The Norwood Press

is composed of three separate firms, together owning and occupying the beautiful buildings shown above, each firm doing its part in the manufacture of the complete book, and at the head of each is an expert in his particular branch.

We make a specialty of Scientific and School and College Text-Book Work; but the best kind of Illustrated Book, Catalogue, and Pamphlet Work requiring electrotype plates is in our line. We have but one standard, and that is THE BEST WORK WE CAN DO, and our prices are as low as a fair profit to us and fair wages to our employees will allow.

The Composition Room

WITH this Announcement we present to the Public our Fifth Specimen Book. In its arrangement we have found it impracticable to show much material, such as head and tail-pieces, engraved initials, etc., etc., of which we have a large and constantly increasing assortment.

As we are distinctively Book Printers, we have shown in this book only such types as we have found of use in our branch of the business. New styles will be added as required.

Our specialty is School and College Text-Book work, for which we have probably the largest and most complete outfit in this country.

By freely replenishing our type, and using it only for electrotyping purposes, we are enabled to keep it in perfect condition,—an advantage all will recognize.

We offer the following inducements:—

1. First-class work at reasonable prices.

2. Very large fonts, enabling us, when necessary, to have a whole book standing in type within a few days of the receipt of the copy.

3. A desire to please, and the will and the means to perform whatever we promise.

J. S. CUSHING & CO.
The Electrotype Foundry

Every effort has been made by us, in this important branch of the business of bookmaking, to insure the best possible results. Within the past year the whole outfit of this department has been overhauled, its facilities doubled, and the best and latest improved machinery has been substituted for the original plant. A material addition has been made to the size of the building it occupies, and it now ranks among the largest electrotyping plants in the country.

Especial attention has been paid to electrotyping fine half-tone cuts, with results very gratifying to us and exceedingly satisfactory to our customers, to whom we respectfully refer for verification of this statement.

We make all of our copper shells of extra thickness, capable of printing a half million copies without showing material wear if ordinary care is taken in their use.

Before boxing, all our plates are carefully examined by an expert electrotyper, and proofs of them are critically revised by our proofreading department. This double inspection insures typographical accuracy as well as mechanical perfection.

The Press Room

THE Press Room of the NORWOOD PRESS is one of the largest in the country, having a capacity exceeding that of Fifty Cylinder Presses. It is furnished with the best makes of modern presses, including Stop-cylinder, Two-revolution, Flat-bed Perfecting, Adams, and Job Presses, and is sufficiently extensive to enable us to print large editions in the least possible time.

Every description of Book or Catalogue Printing is in our line, although we make the finer classes of illustrated work the feature of our business, and a few specimens are shown in this volume.

We have printed in the past year 5,160,000 volumes, ranging in size from 100 to 1600 pages each, in editions of 250 to 100,000 copies, or an equivalent of 17,200 volumes daily, which used about 8 tons of paper per day.

We now store in our vault about 30,000 boxes of plates, and have storage capacity for twice that number.

The Text of this Specimen Book is not printed from type, on extra paper; but from electrotype plates, on ordinary paper, and with our regular book ink, to show the results to be obtained in the average book.

is very fully equipped with all the latest American and foreign machinery, for producing, with the best results and in the least time consistent with good workmanship, large editions of miscellaneous and educational publications in cloth, cased leather, board, and paper.

With a present daily capacity of 10,000 volumes of miscellaneous books, and ample accommodations for the introduction of additional machinery and help, whenever occasion demands, our resources are almost unlimited.

By a very systematic method of keeping account of sheet stock, from its receipt to the delivery of the bound books, our customers are assured of full count on their editions.

Our buildings are fitted with all the modern devices for protection against fire, including automatic sprinklers, watchmen, inspection, etc., thus securing for our customers the advantage of the very lowest rates of insurance on their property in our hands.

A spur track from our buildings to the main railroad line enables us to ship direct to any section of the United States or Canada.

But I suspect our American parents have become somewhat absurdly, and not very innocently, ambitious of having their boys and girls all educated to be gentlemen and ladies; which is, I take it, the same in effect as having them educated to be good for nothing; too proud or too lazy to live by hand-work, while they are neither qualified to live by hand-work, nor could get any to do, if they were. And so they insist on having their children taught how to do something, perhaps several things, without ever soliciting their fingers by actually doing anything. If they would, in all meekness and simplicity of heart, endeavor to educate their children to be good for something, they would be infinitely more likely to overtake the aim of their sinful and stupid ambition. The man who has been well and rightly educated to earn, and does earn, a fair living by true and solid service, he is a gentleman in the only sense in which it is not both a sin and a shame to be called by that title. OLD STYLE BOURGEOIS LEADED.

But I suspect our American parents have become somewhat absurdly, and not very innocently, ambitious of having their boys and girls all educated to be gentlemen and ladies; which is, I take it, the same in effect as having them educated to be good for nothing; too proud or too lazy to live by hand-work, while they are nowise qualified to live by head-work, nor could get any to do, if they were. And so they insist on having their children taught how to do something, perhaps several things, without ever soiling their fingers by actually doing anything. If they would, in all meekness and simplicity of heart, endeavour to educate their children to be good for something, they would be infinitely more likely to overtake the aim of their sinful and stupid ambition. The man who has been well and rightly educated to earn, and does earn, a fair living by true and solid service, he is a gentleman in the only sense in which it is not both a sin and a shame to be called by that title. Any form of honest service, however plain and humble, has manliness in it, and is therefore a higher style of gentility, and a sounder basis of self-respect, than any, even the proudest, form of mere social ornamentation. The dull boy, who cannot prate science, but can drive a cart as a cart ought to be driven, or the dull girl who cannot finger a piano, but can rightly broil a beefsteak, is, in the eye of all true taste, a far more sightly and attractive object than the most learned and accomplished good-for-nothing in the world. I have seen men calling themselves doctors, who, week after week, month after month, year after year, were going about making sham calls on bogus patients, that so they might either get themselves a practice or make men believe they had got one; and have thought that the poorest drudge, who honestly ate his bread, or what little he could get, in the sweat of his face, was a prince in comparison with them. An aristocratic idler or trifier or spendthrift or clothes-frame, however strong he may smell of the school and the college, of books and of lingual culture, is no better than a vulgar illiterate loafer; nor can his smart clothes and his perfumes and his lily hands and his fashionable airs shield him from the just contempt of thoughtful men.

Now so long as people proceed upon the notion that their children's main business in this world is to shine, and not to work, and that the school has it in special charge to fit them out at all points for a self-supporting and reputable career in life; just so long they will continue to expect and demand of the school that which the school cannot give; to grumble and find fault because it fails to do what they wish; and to insist on

But I suspect our American parents have become somewhat absurdly, and not very innocently, ambitious of having their boys and girls all educated to be gentlemen and ladies; which is, I take it, the same in effect as having them educated to be good for nothing; too proud or too lazy to live by hand-work, while they are nowise qualified to live by head-work, nor could get any to do, if they were. And so they insist on having their children taught how to do something, perhaps several things, without ever soiling their fingers by actually doing any thing. If they would, in all meekness and simplicity of heart, endeavour to educate their children to be good for something, they would be infinitely more likely to overtake the aim of their sinful and stupid ambition. The man who has been well and rightly educated to earn, and does earn, a fair living by true and solid service, he is a gentleman in the only sense in which it is not both a sin and a shame to be called by that title. Any form of honest service, however plain and humble, has manliness in it, and is therefore a higher style of gentility, and a sounder basis of self-respect, than any, even the proudest, form of mere social ornamentation. The dull boy, who cannot prate science, but can drive a cart as a cart ought to be driven, or the dull girl who cannot finger a piano, but can rightly broil a beefsteak, is, in the eye of all true taste, a far more sightly and attractive object than the most learned and accomplished good-for-nothing in the world. I have seen men calling themselves doctors, who, week after week, month after month, year after year, were going about making sham calls on bogus patients, that so they might either get themselves a practice or make men believe they had got one; and have thought that the poorest drudge, who honestly ate his bread, or what little he could get, in the sweat of his face, was a prince in comparison with them. An aristocratic idle or trifler or spendthrift or clothes-frame, however strong he may smell of the school and the college, of books and of lingual culture, is no better than a vulgar illiterate loafer; nor can his smart clothes and his perfumes and his lily hands and his fashionable airs shield him from the just contempt of thoughtful men and sensible women.

GREAT PRIMER PAYSON SCRIPT.

Boston, Sept. 12, 1851.

The new Payson Script has been universally admired for its easy Gracefulness and Legibility. Free from too much Ornamentation, it has met the Printer's want for a Beautiful Script to perfection. The smaller sizes are very suitable and present a very handsome appearance in the finer kinds of Book and Magazine.

which the Indians believed one could obtain a view of Paradise. Across this area, like a railroad traversing a prairie, stretched the driveway for our carriages.

"Do tourists usually seem delighted with the park?" I asked our driver.

"Invariably," he replied. "Of course I cannot understand the words of the foreigners, but their excited exclamations show their great enthusiasm. I like the tourists," he continued, "they are so grateful for any little favor! One of them said to me the other day, 'Is the water here good to drink?' 'Not always,' I replied, 'you must be careful.' At once he pressed my hand, pulled out a flask, and said, 'I thank you!'"

While crossing the plateau we enjoyed an admirable view of
