

RELIBRARY OF

ALIBRARY OF

LIBRARY OF

RELIBRARY OF

ALIBRARY OF

LIBRARY OF

ROBIN HOOD pss 17-26

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2008 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

Libulock & Aldersgate St

Anecdotes

O F

ARCHERY;

FROM THE

Earliest Ages to the Year 1791.

Including an ACCOUNT of

THE MOST FAMOUS ARCHERS OF ANCIENT AND MODERN TIMES;

With some curious Particulars in the LIFE of

ROBERT FITZ-ROOTH EARL OF HUNTINGTON,
Vulgarly called

ROBIN HOOD.

THE PRESENT STATE OF ARCHERY,

WITH

THE DIFFERENT SOCIETIES IN GREAT BRITAIN,

Particularly those of Yorkshire, Lancashire, and Durham.

BY E. HARGROVE.

YORK:

Printed for E. HARGROVE, Bookseller, Knarebro';
And sold by all the Booksellers of York, Leeds, and Ripon.

M,DCC,XCII.

GV

1189

H22a

TO

GEORGE ALLAN, Esq. F. A. S.

IN GRATITUDE

FOR MANY FAVOURS RECEIVED,

THESE

ANECDOTES OF ARCHERY

ARE MOST HUMBLY

INSCRIBED

BY THE AUTHOR.

ANECDOTES OF ARCHERY.

THE Bow is the most ancient, and hath been the most universal, of all weapons; and probably was used against the beasts of the forests, long before men made war upon each other:—We find it used by the most powerful and civilized, as well as the most barbarous and uncultivated, nations. In Holy Writ* we are told ISAAC called his son ESAU, and said, “Now therefore take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and go out to the field, and take me some venison; and make me savory meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat, that my soul may bless thee before I die.”

JONATHAN, the son of SAUL, was a skilful Archer; but it seems this weapon had been neglected amongst the armies of Israel, for in the fatal battle near mount Gilboa, betwixt SAUL and the Philistines, we are told †, “The battle went fore against Saul; and the Archers hit him; and he was fore wounded of the Archers.”

* Gen. xxvii. 3. † 1 Samuel, xxxi. 3.

In the next chapter we are told, that DAVID gave orders for the children of Judah, to be taught the use of the bow.

In the Iliad, we find the bow sometimes mentioned, though it does not seem to have been of general use in either army during that memorable war. The poet speaking of PARIS, and describing the dress and arms of that delicate warrior*, says——

. The panther's speckled hide
Flow'd o'er his armour with an easy pride;
His bended bow across his shoulders flung,
His sword beside him negligently hung;
Two pointed spears he shook, with gallant grace,
And dar'd the bravest of the Grecian race †.

PANDARUS aiming an arrow at MENELAUS, the action is thus described ‡:

Now with full force the yielding horn he bends,
Drawn to an arch, and joins the doubling ends;
Close to the breast he strains the nerve below,
Till the barb'd point approach the circling bow:
Th' impatient weapon whizzes on the wing,
Sounds the tough horn, and twangs the quiv'ring string.

* And yet this was the man who afterwards infamously slew the great Achilles, by wounding him in the heel with an arrow, when he was going to marry Polyxena, in the temple of Apollo.

† Iliad, Book III. line 27.

‡ Iliad, Book IV. line 152.

THE LOCRIANS were a body of troops in the Grecian army, who occasionally used both the bow and the sling*.

The LOCRIAN squadrons nor the jav'lin wield,
 Nor bear the helm, nor lift the moony shield;
 But skill'd from far the flying shaft to wing,
 Or whirl the sounding pebble from the sling.
 Dextrous with these they aim a certain wound,
 Or fell the distant warrior to the ground.
 Thus in the van, the Telamonian train
 Throng'd in bright arms, a pressing fight maintain;
 For in the rear the LOCRIAN Archers lie,
 Whose stones and arrows intercept the sky;
 The mingled tempest on the foes they pour;
 TROY's scatt'ring orders open to the shower.

THE suitors of PENELOPE, having in vain attempted to bend the bow of ULYSSES, (that hero being present, disguised like a beggar) he with much difficulty obtains leave to try his skill †.

. One hand aloft display'd
 The bending horns, and one the string essay'd.
 From his essaying hand the string let fly,
 'Twang'd short and sharp, like the shrill swallow's cry.
 A general horror ran thro' all the race,
 Sunk was each heart, and pale was every face:
 Then fierce the hero o'er the threshold strode;
 Stript of his rags, he blaz'd out like a god.

* Iliad, Book XIII. line 891.

† Odyssey, Book XXI. line 446.

Full in their face the lifted bow he bore,
 And quiver'd deaths, a formidable store;
 Before his feet the rattling show'r he threw,
 And thus terrific to the suitor crew:
 " One vent'rous game this hand has won to-day,
 Another, princes! yet remains to play;
 Another mark our arrow must attain,
 PHŒBUS! assist;—nor be the labour vain."
 Swift as the word the parting arrow sings,
 And bears thy fate, ANTINOUS, on its wings:
 Wretch that he was, of unprophetic soul!
 High in his hands he rear'd the golden bowl!
 Even then to drain it, lengthen'd out his breath,
 Chang'd to the deep, the bitter draught of death:
 For fate, who fear'd, amidst a feastful band?
 And fate to numbers, by a single hand?
 Full thro' his throat ULYSSES' weapon past,
 And pierc'd the neck: He falls and breaths his last.

ENEAS in celebrating the anniversary of his father's funeral, amongst other sports and exercises, introduces Archery.

Forthwith ENEAS to the sports invites
 All who with feather'd shafts wou'd try their skill,
 And names the prizes. With his ample hand
 He from SERESTUS' ship a mast erects;
 And on it by a rope suspended ties
 A swift-wing'd dove, at which they all should aim
 Their arrows: They assemble; and the lots
 Shuffled into a brazen casque are thrown.
 With fav'ring shouts HIPPOCOON first appears,
 Offspring of HÏRTACUS: Then MNESTHEUS next,
 So lately victor in the naval strife,
 And crown'd with olive-greens: EURYTION third,

Brother to thee, O PANDARUS! renown'd,
 Who once, commanded to dissolve the league,
 Didst first among the Grecians hurl a dart:
 ACESTES to the helmet's bottom sinks/
 The last; himself presuming to attempt
 The sports of youth. Then all with manly strength
 Bend their tough yough; each with his utmost force
 All from their quivers draw their shafts: and first
 Shot from the twanging nerve HIPPOCOON'S flies
 Along the sky, beats the thin liquid air,
 And on the body of the mast adverse
 Stands fix'd: The mast and frighted bird at once
 Tremble, and all the cirque with shouts resounds.
 Next eager MNESTHEUS with his bended bow
 Stands ready, and his eyes and arrow aim'd
 Directs to heav'n; yet cou'd not reach the dove
 Herself unfortunate, but cut the knots
 And hempen ligaments in which she hung
 Ty'd by the feet upon the lofty mast;
 She flies into the winds and dusky clouds.
 EURYTION then impatient, and long since
 Holding his ready bow and fitted shaft,
 Invokes his brother; and, in open air,
 Seeing the dove now shake her sounding wings,
 Transfixes her amidst the clouds: The bird
 Falls dead, and leaves her life among the stars.

CYAXARES, king of the Medes, and great grandfather to CYRUS, engaged some Scythian
 Archers to teach his son the use of the bow.
 This nation had a law, that their children should learn three things particularly, from the age of five to that of twenty, viz. To ride a horse well, to shoot well, and never to tell a lie. ZENOPHON observes, that CYRUS was from a child brought up to Archery.

HERODOTUS informs us, that when CAMBYSES had conquered EGYPT, and had thoughts of invading ÆTHIOPIA, he sent some spies before him; who, under pretence of carrying presents to the king, might privately inquire into the strength and condition of the kingdom. When they were arrived at court, and had made their presents, the king of ÆTHIOPIA said to them, “It was not from any consideration of my friendship, that the king of PERSIA sent you to me with these presents; neither have you spoken the truth, but are come into my kingdom as spies. If CAMBYSES was an honest man he would desire no more than his own; and not endeavour to reduce a people under servitude, who have never done him any injury. However, give him this bow from me, and let him know, that the king of ÆTHIOPIA advises the king of PERSIA, to make war against the ÆTHIOPAINS, when the PERSIANS shall be able thus easily to draw so strong a bow; and in the meanwhile to thank the gods, that they never inspired the ÆTHIOPAINS with a desire of extending their dominions beyond their own country.” Saying this, he unbent the bow, and delivered it to the ambassadors.

The prophets ISAIAH and JEREMIAH, both speak of this nation, as being famous for bending and handling the bow*.

The best part of the armies of ALEXANDER the GREAT were Archers.

THE bowmen of Athens performed wonders in many battles; but particularly under DEMOSTHENES, their renowned general, when they defeated the Lacedemonians near the city of Pylos. PLATO mentions, that one thousand Archers were appointed for the standing guard of the city of Athens. This celebrated philosopher was an advocate for Archery, and recommended to the Athenians that proper masters might be employed by the state, to teach their youth the use of the bow; and that a large field should be set apart, near every town and city, for that purpose.

THE Cretans began to teach their youth the use of the bow at seven years of age; and so expert were this people in the use of the weapon, that all the neighbouring monarchs were desirous of having a band of Cretan Archers in their armies. "The arrows of Gortynia," says

* Isaiah lxvi. 19.—Jeremiah xlvi. 9.

CLAUDIAN, "aimed from a trusty bow, are "sure to wound, nor ever miss the destined
"mark."

THE victories obtained by the Parthians, over the Romans, was chiefly ascribed to their superiority in the use of their bows. With these they pursued MARCUS ANTONINUS over the hills of Media and Armenia,—conquered the noble Valerian,—and slew the Apostate Julian.

Though we find very little mention of the bow in the Roman armies, yet they often employed auxiliary Archers in their wars. DOMITIAN, COMMODUS, and THEODOSIUS were accounted excellent shooters. It is evident also they had masters at Rome to teach the art, among whom was T FLAVIUS EXPEDITUS; whose image SPON has given from a sepulchral bas relief, where he is called DOCTOR SAGITTARUM.

LEO ordained that all the youth of Rome should be compelled to use shooting, more or less; and always bear their bow and quiver about with them, till they were eleven years old. He also adds, "We strictly command you to make proclamation to all men under our dominion, which
"be either in war or peace; to all cities and "towns; and, finally, to all manner of men,—
"that every free man have bow and arrows of “ his own, and every house have a bow and forty “ arrows for every occasion ; and that they exer“ cise themselves in holts, hills, dales, woods,

 “ and plains, to inure them to all the chances of “ war.”

THE Artillery Company of London *, tho' they have long disused the weapon, are the remains of the Ancient Fraternity of Bowmen, or Archers. Artillery (artillerie) is a French term, signifying Archery : As the King's Bowyer is, in that language, styled Artillier du Roy.

William the Conqueror had a considerable number of bowmen in his army at the battle of Hastings : The names of the officers of this part of his army is contained in the roll of Battle-Abbey † ; they are in number seventy-three, and came from the Vale of Rueil Bretviel, and many other places. Amongst these we find the names of DUGLOSSE, MOWBRAY, MORTIMER, HARECOURT, DEVREUX, ALLAN COUNT DE BRITAIGNE, &c.

As this victory was certainly obtained by the help of the long-bow and broad-arrow ‡ ; so it was by the same weapons that the English afterwards conquered France.

* Archæologiæ, vol. vii.

† Fuller's Church History.

‡ Harold himself was slain by an arrow.

It may not be improper to insert in this place an excellent and curious comparison between this weapon and our fire arms, mentioned in the life of WILLIAM the NORMAN by JOHN HAYWARD.

“ One circumstance more I hold fit to be observed, that this victory was gotten only by means of the arrow; the use whereof was brought into this land afterwards. The English being trained to the fight, did thereby chiefly maintain themselves with honourable advantage against all nations with whom they did contend in arms, being generally reputed the best shot in the world. But of late years it hath been altogether laid aside; and instead thereof, the harquebuss and calliver are brought into use, yet not without contradiction of many expert men of arms; who, albeit they do not reject the use of the small pieces, yet do they prefer the bow before them: First, for that, in a reasonable distance, it is of greater certainty and force: Secondly, for that it discharges faster: Thirdly, for that more men may discharge therewith at once; for only the first rank dischargeth the piece, neither hurt they any but those that are in front; but with the bow ten or twelve ranks may discharge together, and will annoy so many ranks of the enemy: Lastly, for that the arrow doth strike more parts of the body; for in that it turneth by descent, and not only point-blank, like the bullet, there is no part of the body but

“ it may strike, from the crown of the head, to “ the nailing of the foot to the ground. Here“ upon it followeth, that the arrows falling so “ thick as hail upon the bodies of men, as less “ fearful of their flesh, so much slenderly armed “ than in former times, must necessarily work
“ more dangerous effects. Besides these general
“ respects, in many particular services and times
“ the use of the bow is of great advantage; if “ some defence lie before the enemy, the arrow
“ may strike where the bullet cannot; foul wea“ ther may much hinder the discharge of the “ piece, but is of no great impediment to the dis“ charge of the bow: A horse struck with a bul“ let, if the wound be not mortal, may perform “ good service; but if an arrow be fastened in “ his flesh, the continual stirring thereof, occa“ sioned by the motion of himself, will force him
“ to cast of all command, and either beat down,
“ or disorder those that are near. But the crack
“ of the piece, some men say, doth strike a terror
“ in the enemy: True, if they be such as never “ heard the like noise before; but a little use will “ extinguish these terrors. To men, yea to “ beasts, acquainted with these cracks, they work
“ a weak impression of fear: And if it be true, “ which all men of action do hold, that the eye in “ all battles is first overcome, then against men
“ equally accustomed to both, the sight of the ar“ row is more available to victory than the crack of
“ the piece. Assuredly the duke, before the bat-

“He, encouraged his men, for that they should “deal with enemies who had no shot. But I will “leave this point to be determined by more dis“cerning judgment*.”

WILLIAM himself was an admirable Archer, and was so strong, that few but himself could bend the bow he used.

WILLIAM II. being hunting in the New-Forest, in company with Sir WALTER TYRRELL, and others; this knight unfortunately let fly an arrow at a stag, which glancing against a tree, took a different direction, and pierced the king's breast, who immediately expired. To perpetuate the memory of so remarkable an event, JOHN LORD DELWAR, who had seen the tree growing, erected a pillar in the very place where it stood, with the following inscription :

“HERE STOOD THE OAK TREE ON WHICH “AN ARROW, SHOT BY SIR WALTER TYR-“RELL AT A STAG, GLANCED, AND STRUCK
 “KING WILLIAM THE SECOND, SURNAMED “RUFUS, IN THE BREAST, OF WHICH HE IN-“STANTLY DIED, ON THE SECOND DAY OF “AUGUST, A. D. 1100.”

“KING WILLIAM THE SECOND, SURNA-“MED RUFUS, BEING SLAIN AS BEFORE RE-

* See Harl. Miscell. vol. ii.

“ LATED, WAS LAID IN A CART BELONG-“ ING TO ONE PURKESS, AND DRAWN FROM “ THENCE TO WINCHESTER, AND BURIED “ IN THE CATHEDRAL CHURCH OF THAT “ CITY.”

RICHARD STRONGBOW, Earl of Clare, Pembroke, and Buckingham, was famous for his strength and skill in Archery; after reducing Ireland for king Henry II. he died 1177.

RICHARD I. King of England; when besieging the castle of Chaluze, approached too near the walls, and was killed by an arrow from a cross-bow, on the 8th of March 1199.

During the reign of this monarch we first find mention made of ROBIN HOOD *, who hath been so long celebrated as the chief of English Archers.

The intestine troubles of England were very great at that time, and the country every where infested with outlaws and banditti; amongst whom none were so famous as this Sylvan hero and his followers, whom Stow, in his Annals, styles RENOWNED THIEVES. The personal courage of this celebrated outlaw, his skill in Archery, his humanity, and especially his levelling principle, of taking from the rich and giving to the poor, have ever since rendered him the favourite of the common people.

* Vide Rapin.

SIR EDWARD COKE, in his Third Institute, page 197, speaks of Robin Hood, and says, that men of his lawless profession were from him called Roberdfmen: He says, that this notable thief gave not only a name to these kind of men, but mentions a Bay on the Yorkshire coast, called Robin Hood's Bay. He farther adds, that the Statute of Winchester, 13th of Edward I. and another Statute of the 5th of Edward III. were made for the punishment of Roberdfmen, and other felons.

Who was the author of the collection, called Robin Hood's Garland, no one has yet pretended to guess. As some of the songs have more of the spirit of poetry than others, it is probably the work of various hands: That it has from time to time been varied and adapted to the phrase of the times is certain.

In the vision of PIERCE PLOWMAN, written by ROBERT LONGLAND, a secular Priest, and Fellow of Oriel College, and who flourished in the reign of Edward III. is this passage:

I cannot perfitly my Pater Noster as the prift it singeth;

I can rimes of Robinhod and Randal of Chester.

DRAYTON in his Poly-Olbion, Song xxvi. thus characterises him :

From wealthy abbots' chests, and churches' abundant store,
 What often times he took he shared amongst the poor :
 No Lordly bishop came in lusty Robin's way,
 To him before he went but for his pass must pay ;
 The widow in distress he graciously relieved,
 And remedied the wrongs of many a virgin grieved.

HEARNE, in his Glossary, inserts a manuscript note out of WOOD, containing a passage cited from JOHN MAJOR, the Scottish Historian, to this purpose ; that Robin Hood was indeed an arch-robber, but the gentlest thief that ever was : And says he might have added, from the Harlein MSS. of JOHN FORDUN'S Scottish Chronicle, that he was, though a notorious robber, a man of great charity.

The true name of ROBIN HOOD, was ROBERT FITZ-0OTH, the addition of FITZ, common to many Norman names, was afterwards often omitted or dropped : The two last letters TH being turned into D, he was called by the common people OOD or HOOD. It is evident he was a man of quality, as by the annexed Pedigree, copied from Dr. STUKELEY'S Palæographia Britannia : JOHN SCOT, 10th Earl of Huntington, dying anno 1237, without issue R. FITZ-0OTH, was by the female line next heir to that title, as descended from GILBERT DE GAUNT Earl of Kyne and Lindsey. The title lying dormant* during the last ten years of his life, there could be nothing unreasonable or extraordinary in his pretensions to that honour. The arms of ROBIN HOOD were gules, two bends engrailed or. In the old garland he is said to have been born at Loxley in Staffordshire; and in a shooting match †, made by the KING and QUEEN, being chose by the latter for her archer, she calls him LOXLEY: a custom very common in those days to call persons of eminence by the name of the town where they were born.

It does not appear that our hero possessed an estate; perhaps he or his father might be deprived of that on some political account; attainders and confiscations being very frequent in those days of Norman tyranny and feudal oppression. In the 19th of HENRY II. when the son of that king rebelled against his father, ROBERT DE FERRERS manned his castles of Tutbury and Duffield in behalf of the PRINCE. WILLIAM FITZ-OOTH, father of our hero, (suppose him connected with the FERRERS, to which his dwelling

* The title lay dormant 90 years after ROBERT's death; namely, till the year 1337, when WILLIAM LORD CLINTON was created Earl of Huntington.

† On this occasion we are told, that ROBIN HOOD was dressed in scarlet, and his men in green; and that they all wore black hats and white feathers.

at Loxley * seems to point) might suffer with them in the consequences of that rebellion, which would not only deprive the family of their estates, but also of their claim to the Earldom of Huntingdon. From some such cause our hero might be induced to take refuge in those woods and forests, where the bold adventurer,—whether flying from the demands of his injured country, or to avoid the ruthless hand of tyrannic power,—had often found a safe and secure retreat.

Tutbury, and other places in the vicinity of his native town, seems to have been the scene of his juvenile frolics. We afterwards find him at the head of two hundred strong resolute men, and expert archers, ranging the woods and forests of Nottinghamshire, Yorkshire, and other parts of the north of England †.

CHARTON, in his history of Whitby Abbey, page 146, recites, “ That in the days of Abbot Richard this freebooter, when closely pursued by the civil or military power, found it necessary to leave his usual haunts, and retreating cross the moors that surrounded Whitby, came to the sea coast, where he always had in readiness some small fishing vessels; and in

* The FERRERS were Lords of Loxley.

† Besides many other places, the following are particularly mentioned, viz. Barnsdale, Wakefield, Plompton Park, and Fountains-Abbey.

“ these putting off to sea, he looked upon him“ self as quite secure, and held the whole power
“ of the English nation at defiance. The chief “ place of his resort at these times, and where his “ boats were generally laid up, was about six miles
“ from Whitby, and is still called Robin Hood’s “ Bay.” Tradition further informs us, that in one of these peregrinations he, attended by his Lieutenant, JOHN LITTLE, went to dine * with ABBOT RICHARD, who having heard them often famed for their great dexterity in shooting with the long-bow, begged them after dinner to shew him a specimen thereof; when to oblige the Abbot, they went up to the top of the Abbey, whence each of them shot an arrow, which fell not far from Whitby Laths, but on the contrary side of the lane. In memory of this transaction, a pillar was set up by the Abbot in the place where each of the arrows fell, which were standing in 1779; each pillar still retaining the name of the owner of each arrow. Their distance from Whitby Abbey is more than a measured mile, which seems very far for the flight of an arrow; but when we consider the advantage a shooter must have from an elevation, so great as the top of the abbey, situated on a high cliff, the fact will not appear so very extraordinary. These very pillars are mentioned; and the fields called by the aforesaid names in the old deeds for that ground*, now in the possession of Mr. THOMAS WATSON. It appears by his Epitaph, that ROBERT FITZ-00TH lived 59 years after this time (1188); a very long period for a life abounding with so many dangerous enterprises, and rendered obnoxious both to church and state. Perhaps no part of English history afforded so fair an opportunity for such practices, as the turbulent reigns of RICHARD I. KING JOHN, and HENRY III.

* Possibly without invitation.

HUBERT, Archbishop of Canterbury and chief Justiciary of England, we are told, issued several proclamations for the suppressing of outlaws; and even set a price on the head of this hero. Several stratagems were used to apprehend him, but in vain. Force he repelled by force; nor was he less artful than his enemies. At length being closely pursued, many of his followers slain, and the rest dispersed, he took refuge in the Priory of Kirklees, about twelve miles from Leeds, in Yorkshire, the Prioress at that time being his near relation. Old age, disappointment, and fatigue, brought on disease; a monk was called in to open a vein, who, either through ignorance or design, performed his part so ill, that the bleeding could not be stopped.

*. That each of the arrows of these renowned shooters fell, as above described, is probable; but that they were shot from some other place than the top of the Abbey is equally probable.

Believing he should not recover, and wishing to point out the place where his remains might be deposited, he called for his bow and discharging two arrows, the first fell in the river Calder, the second falling in the park, marked the place of his future sepulture. He died on the 24th of December, in the year 1247*, as appears by the following epitaph, which was once legible on his tomb, in Kirklees park; where, though the tomb remains, yet the inscription hath been long obliterated. It was, however, preserved by Dr. GALE, Dean of York, and inserted from his papers by Mr. THORESBY, in his Ducat. Leod. and is as follows:

HEAR, UNDERNEAD DIS LATIL STEAN, LAIZ ROBERT EARL OF HUNTINGTON;
 NEA ARCIR VER AZ HIE SA GEUD,
 AN PIPL KAULD IM ROBIN HEUD:
 SICK UTLAWZ AZ HI AN IZ MEN,
 VIL ENGLAND NIVR SI AGEN.

Obit 24 Kal. Dekembris, 1247.

In a small grove part of the cemetery formerly belonging to this Priory, is a large flat gravestone, on which is carved the figure of a Cross de Calvary, extending the whole length of stone, and round the margin is inscribed in Monastic characters :

* Supposing him twenty-one years of age, when on his visit to ABBOT RICHARD at Whitby, he must at this time have been at least in his eightieth year.

† DOUCE : IHU : DE : NAZAREH : DONNE :
 MERCY : ELIZABEH : DE . STANTON :
 PRIORES : DE : CETTE MAISON*.

The lady whose memory is here recorded, is said to have been related to ROBIN HOOD, and under whose protection he took refuge sometime before his death. These being the only monuments, remaining at the place make it probable, at least, that they have been preserved on account of the supposed affinity of the persons over whose remains they were erected.

R. HOOD's mother had two sisters †, each older than herself. The first married ROGER LORD MOWBRAY; the other married into the family of WAKE. As neither of these could be prioresses of Kirklees, ELIZABETH STANTON might be one of their descendants.

In the churchyard of Hatherfage, a village in Derbyshire, were deposited, as tradition informs

* This Norman inscription shews its antiquity.—
 ROBIN HOOD's ancestors were Normans, and possessed the Lordship of Kyme, in Lincolnshire. There is a market-town in that county called Stanton.

† Dr. STUKELEY.

→ us, the remains of JOHN LITTLE, the servant and companion of ROBIN HOOD. The grave is distinguished by a large stone, placed at the head, and another at the feet; on each of which are yet some remains of the letters I. L.

THE revolution which delivered the Swiss Cantons from the Germanic yoke, happened about the year 1307. In which WILLIAM TELL, a renowned Archer and inhabitant of Underwald, was the principal instrument.

GRISLER, the Governor under ALBERT, the Emperor, exercised the most glaring acts of tyranny and oppression. Amongst the rest of his experiments to try the patience of the people, it is said that he placed his hat on the top of a pole, and commanded every one to pay the same respect to this insignia in his absence, they did to his person when present, on pain of such punishment as he should think proper to inflict.

WILLIAM TELL refusing this base submission, was brought before GRISLER, who knowing him to be a good marksman, wantonly ordered him to shoot an arrow at an apple placed on the head of his own son; at the same time informing him, that if he missed the mark, he should be hanged on the spot. His son, then but a child, was placed at the distance of one hundred and twenty paces from his father; who drawing the bow, with a trembling hand let fly the arrow, which carried away the apple without touching the boy, amidst the shouts and acclamations of many thousands of spectators. The tyrant perceiving he had another arrow concealed under his cloak, asked him;—For what purpose? as he was only to have one shot? To which, he boldly replied, “To have shot thee to the heart if I had had the misfortune to kill my son.”

GRISLER, who had promised to give him his life on his confessing the truth, now ordered him to be bound and carried prisoner to a place on the lake of Lucern; but TELL happily escaping out of the boat, in crossing the lake, retired to the mountains. His fellow-citizens, animated by his fortitude and patriotism, flew to arms, attacked and vanquished GRISLER, who fell by an arrow from the hand of TELL. The consequence was that the association for independency took place on the instant*.

AMONGST the numerous levies made by EDWARD II. for the purpose of invading Scotland, in the year 1314, we find particular mention made of the Northumbrian Archers in HARVEY'S life of King ROBERT BRUCE, an Heroic Poem, printed in the year 1768.

* See Stumpf & Seeuweizer Chronica, fol. 1548.

From Humber's streams, whose tumbling waves resound,
 And deafen all the adjoining coasts around,
 To where the Tweed in softer windings flows,
 Full fifty thousand quiver'd warriors rose * :—
 A hardy race, who well experienced, knew
 To fit the shaft, and twang the bended yew ;
 Bred up to danger, and inured to dare
 In distant fight, and aim the feather'd war ;
 These bands their country's highest triumphs boast ;
 And GLOCESTER and HERTFORD led the host.

The country from the Humber to the Tweed, formerly the ancient Deira, was still covered with woods and forests, abounding with vast quantities of game ; a circumstance which would certainly encourage the use of the bow.

In the year 1341, the 15th of EDWARD III. SIR JOHN ELLAND of Elland, being High Sheriff of the county of York ; and the king then engaged in foreign wars : Three gentlemen who lived in the neighbourhood of Elland, namely, SIR ROBERT BEAUMONT QUARMBY of Quarmby, and LOCKWOOD of Lockwood, having by some means displeas'd the High Sheriff, he resolv'd on their utter destruction. Arming his tenants, he repaired by night to each of their houses, and cruelly murdered them all.

* These troops with many others, suffered a total defeat at Bannockburn, in consequence of a dispute amongst the officers before the battle began.

LADY BEAUMONT, with her two sons, fled for protection to Brearton-Hall in Lancashire, the seat of SIR THOMAS BREARTON, her near relation. She was presently followed by the two sons of LOCKWOOD and QUARMBY, accompanied by their relation young LACY of Crumble-bottom. These youths were entertained alternately, at the hospitable mansions of Townley and Brearton-Hall; where, besides the ordinary education, they were instructed in all the manly exercises of the times,—riding, fencing, and particularly shooting in the long bow. Here they continued till the youngest of the party had attained to his fifteenth year; when it was unanimously agreed, they should with a few trusty associates return into Yorkshire, and retaliate on the House of Elland, the cruel treatment their families had experienced.

Having prepared every thing for their departure, they set out and travelled through unfrequented paths till they came to Crumble-bottom wood; it being pre-concerted to lay in ambush there, and surprize SIR JOHN ELLAND, coming from the Sherifftown at Brigg-house. This plan was carried into execution, by openly charging him with his former crimes, and attacking him, surrounded by his servants and retainers. A sharp conflict ensued, in which SIR JOHN being separated from his friends, was surrounded and slain.

From hence these daring adventurers fled to the wilderness of Fourness-Fells in Lancashire; in this place so remote from society and destitute of every accomodation they spent the winter, planning schemes for their future attempts on the remains of a family, they wished to extirpate from the face of the earth.

The males of which, now only consisted of a son and grandson of the deceased knight. On the eve of Palm-Sunday, they arrived near the place, took possession of Elland mill, under cover of the night. Here they meant to wait the coming of SIR JOHN ELLAND, his son, and family, and attack them as they passed over the stepping stones of the river in their way to the church. SIR JOHN having the day before heard, that a band of armed strangers had been seen in the neighbourhood; was so much alarmed, that when entreated by his Lady to attend her to church, he concealed his suspicions, by putting on armour under his cloaths. The conspirators had a full view of the family as they descended the hill from the house to the river. Already had the Knight begun to cross the water, when the door of the mill opened, and BEAUMONT holding his bow came forward, and with a determined and resolute air drew the arrow to the head, which flying struck the Knight on the breast, and glanced to a distance. LOCKWOOD at that instant stepped forth and crying out " Cousin, you shoot wide," discharged his arrow, which meeting with the same resistance was equally ineffectual ; here it is said, the Knight was seen to smile just before a second arrow from the bow of LOCKWOOD, entering his head laid him dead on the spot ; at the same time an arrow from some other of the party mortally wounded his only son, who expired soon after ; and with him the male-line of ELLAND of Elland*.

Having thus accomplished their most sanguine intentions, the troop began their retreat with all possible expedition, meanwhile the inhabitants of Elland hearing of the death of their Lord, hastily collected such arms as they could, and came up with the fugitives in Aneley wood. The loud shouts of the people gave notice of their approach ; BEAUMONT, LOCKWOOD, and QUARMBY, had just time to face about and form their little corps, when the enemy appeared in sight. So long as any arrows remained amongst them this resolute band did great execution, and slew many of the Ellanders ; but those being expended they were soon overpowered by numbers, and totally defeated. QUARMBY, left wounded in the wood, was killed by the pursuers. BEAUMONT escaped to the Continent, served under the knights of ST. JOHN in Hungary, and afterwards in the Island of Rhodes, with great reputation*. LOCKWOOD after escaping from his pursuers, arrived at Camel-Hall, nigh Cawthorn in the county of York. This house was then the property of BOSWELL, the under-sheriff, and tenanted by a person of the name of LACY.

* SIR JOHN ELLAND left one only sister, who carried the estate of Elland Hall and the Manor of Elland into the noble family of SAVILE, by marrying an ancestor of the late Lord Marquis of Halifax.

LOCKWOOD's stay here seems to have been prolonged by an affair of gallantry, which took place betwixt him and the daughter of his host. BOSWELL hearing of this prevailed with LACY to deliver the unsuspecting LOCKWOOD into his hands; for this purpose he beset the house, and called aloud to the youth to surrender himself—who, far from submitting, appeared with his bow in his hand, with which he defended himself so well that the sheriff would probably have drawn off his men, had it not been for the perfidy of the daughter of LACY, who rushing suddenly upon him cut his bow-string asunder, and fled in an instant. Disappointed but not conquered, this intrepid youth still refused to surrender; BOSWELL had then recourse to feigned speeches, and hypocritical promises, which succeeded to his wish, and the brave and gallant Lockwood, surrendered himself into the hands of villains, who first bound him, and then put him to death. Such were the consequences of this fatal quarrel, which exhibits a mournful picture of the ferocious manners of the times*.

* This gentleman wrote some years after to one of his friends in Yorkshire, giving an account of his proceedings abroad. The letter was directed "To JENKIN DIXON, dwelling at Hole-House, within the parish Aldmonbury in the county of York."

EDWARD III. in the 15th year of his reign issued an order to the sheriffs of most of the English counties; for providing five hundred white bows and five hundred bundles of arrows for the then intended war against France in 1341.

Similar orders were repeated in the following years; with this difference only, that the sheriff of Gloucestershire is directed to furnish five hundred painted bows, as well as the same number of white. The famous battle of Cressley was fought four years afterwards, in which the English are said to have had four thousand Archers, who were opposed to 15000 Genoese cross-bow men. These having their bow strings moistened with rain, their arrows fell short for want of the usual elasticity; the English having guarded against this inconvenience, gained a complete victory in 1346.

* Vide Hist. of Halifax.

The battle of Poitiers was fought ten years after, (A. D. 1356) and gained by the superiority of the English Archers.

A. D. 1392, an act passed to oblige servants to shoot with bows and arrows on Holydays and Sundays.

Sometimes the archers gained great victories without the least assistance from the men at arms; particularly the decisive victory over the Scots at Hamilton in 1402. In that bloody battle the men at arms did not strike a stroke; but were mere spectators of the valour and victory of the Archers. The EARL of DOUGLAS who commanded the Scots army in that action, enraged to see his men falling thick around him by showers of arrows, and trusting to the goodness of his armour (which had been three years in making;) accompanied by about eighty lords, knights, and gentlemen in complete armour, rushed forward and attacked the English Archers sword in hand. But he soon had reason to repent his rashness. The English arrows were so sharp and strong, and discharged with so much force, that no armour could repel them. EARL DOUGLAS, after having received five wounds was made prisoner; and all his brave companions were either killed or taken*.

* HENRY'S Hist. vol. v. page 463.

PHILIP DE COMINES acknowledges what our own writers assert, that the English Archers excelled those of every other nation :

And SIR JOHN FORTESCUE says again and again, “ that the might of the realme of England standyth upon Archers.”

IN 1403 was the battle of Shrewsbury, the best fought, and the most desperate that England had ever seen : The Archers on both sides did terrible execution. And here the PRINCE OF WALES, afterwards HENRY V. was wounded in the face by an arrow.

The French depended chiefly on their men at arms, and the Scots on their pikemen ; but the ranks of both were often thinned and thrown into disorder, by flights of arrows, before they could reach their enemies. Of this there are numberless instances, and none where it is more evident than in the battle of Agincourt : Some of the particulars of which, though well known, may not be unacceptable to some of our readers.

On the morning of Friday, the memorable 25th of October, A. D. 1415, the English and French armies were ranged in order of battle, each in three lines, with bodies of cavalry on each wing.

The CONSTABLE D'ALBERT, who commanded the French army, fell into the snare that was laid for him, by drawing up his army in the plain between two woods. This deprived him in a great measure of the advantage he should have derived from the prodigious superiority of his numbers * ; obliged him to make his lines unnecessarily deep, about thirty men in file ; to crowd his troops, particularly his cavalry, so close together, that they could hardly move or use their arms ; and, in a word, was the chief cause of all the disasters that followed.

The first line of the French army, which consisted of eighty thousand men-at-arms on foot, mixed with four thousand Archers, and five hundred men at-arms, mounted on each wing, was commanded by the CONSTABLE D'ALBERT, the DUKES of ORLEANS and BOURBON, and many other nobles ; the DUKES of ALENÇON, BRABANT, BAR, &c. conducted the second line ; and the EARLS of MARLE, DAMARTINE, FAUCONBERG, &c. were at the head of the third line. The King of England employed various arts to supply his defect of numbers. He placed two hundred of his best Archers in ambush, in a low meadow, on the flank of the first line of the French. His own first line consisted wholly of Archers, four in file; each of whom, besides his bow and arrows, had a battle-ax, a sword, and a stake pointed with iron at both ends, which he fixed before him in the ground, the point inclining outwards, to protect him from cavalry; which was a new invention, and had a happy effect.

* The English army consisted of about ten thousand, of whom not a few were sick. That of the French amounted to one hundred thousand ; some contemporary writers say one hundred and forty thousand.

That he might not be encumbered, he dismissed all his prisoners on their word of honour to surrender themselves at Calais, if he obtained the victory,—and lodged all his baggage in the village of Agincourt, in his rear, under a slender guard. The command of the first line was, at his earnest request, committed to EDWARD Duke of York, assisted by the LORDS BEAUMONT, WILLOUGHBY, and FANHOPE; the second was conducted by the KING, with his youngest brother HUMPHRY DUKE of GLOUCESTER, the EARLS of OXFORD, MARSHAL, and SUFFOLK; and the third was led by the DUKE of EXETER, the King's uncle.

The lines being formed, the king, in shining armour, with a crown of gold, adorned with precious stones, on his helmet, mounted on a fine white horse, rode along them, and addressed each corps with a cheerful countenance and animating speeches. To inflame their resentment against their enemies, he told them, that the French had determined to cut off three fingers of the right-hand of every prisoner; and, to rouse their love of honour, he declared, that every soldier in that army who behaved well, should from thenceforth be deemed a gentleman, and entitled to bear coat-armour.

When the two armies were drawn up in this manner, they stood a considerable time gazing at one another in solemn silence. But the King dreading that the French would discover the danger of their situation and decline a battle, commanded the charge to be sounded about ten o'clock in the forenoon. At that instant the first line of the English kneeled down and kissed the ground; and then starting up, discharged a flight of arrows, which did great execution among the crowded ranks of the French. Immediately after, upon a signal being given, the Archers in ambush arose, and discharged their arrows on the flank of the French line, and threw it into some disorder. The battle now became general, and raged with uncommon fury. The English Archers having expended all their arrows, threw away their bows, and rushing forward, made dreadful havoc with their swords and battle-axes. The first line of the enemy was, by these means, defeated; its leaders being either killed or taken prisoners.

The second line commanded by the DUKE D'ALENÇON, (who had made a vow to kill or take the King of England, or to perish in the attempt) now advanced to the charge, and was encountered by the second line of the English, conducted by the KING. This conflict was more close and furious than the former—The DUKE of GLOUCESTER, wounded and unhorsed, was protected by his royal brother till he was carried off the field—The DUKE D'ALENÇON forced his way to the KING, and assaulted him with great fury; but that prince brought him to the ground, where he was instantly despatched. Discouraged by this disaster, the second line made no more resistance, and the third fled without striking a blow; yielding a complete and glorious victory to the English, after a violent struggle of three hours duration.

The King, after returning to England, sensible of the very great use and importance of his Archers, directs the sheriffs of counties to collect six wing-feathers from every goose, for the purpose of improving arrows; which were to be paid for by the King. It appears that these six feathers should consist of the second, third, and fourth of each wing.

JAMES I. of Scotland, who had seen and admired the dexterity of the English Archers, and who was himself an excellent Archer, endeavoured to revive the exercise of Archery amongst his own subjects, by whom it had been too much neglected. With this view he ridiculed their awkward manner of handling their bows, in his humorous Poem of *Christis Kirk of the Grene, and procured the following law to be made in his first parliament. (A. D. 1424.)

“ That all men might busk them to be “ Archares fra tha be 12 yeres of age, and that
 “ at ilk tenne pundis-worth of land there be made “ bow markes, and speciallie near parochie kirks, “ quhair upon halie dayis men may cum and at
 “ the leift schute thryse about, and have usage
 “ of Archarie; and wha sa usis not Archarie,
 “ the Laird of the land sall rais of him a wed-
 “ der; and giff the Laird raisis not the said “ pane, the King’s Shiref or his Ministers shall “ rais it to the King.”

* With that a freynd of his cry’d,—“ Fy!”

And up an arrow drew;

He forgit it sae furiously

The bow in slenderis flew:

“ It was as weel, for if, trow I,”

For had the tre been trew,

Men said, that kend his Archery,

That he had slain enow.

But the untimely death of that excellent Prince, which happened in the year 1437, prevented the execution of this law.

THE arrow seems to have been the decisive weapon at the great battle of Towton, between the Yorkists and Lancastrians, where thirty six thousand seven hundred and twenty-six Englishmen fell a sacrifice to the ambition of contending Princes.

The battle began about nine o'clock in the morning of the 29th of March 1461, at which time a thick snow falling was driven by a brisk wind full in the faces of the Lancastrians, who were thereby prevented from observing the exact distance of the enemy.

The LORD FAUCONBERG, an old and experienced officer, made an admirable use of this accident; for he ordered his men to advance as near as they conveniently could, and to discharge a flight of arrows, and then retire with all speed out of the reach of those of the enemy.

This stratagem had a wonderful effect: The Lancastrians feeling the arrows, and thinking their enemies were not many yards distant, emptied their quivers by repeated discharges, ED-

WARD's men all the while keeping theirs in reserve. The LORD FAUCONBERG perceiving the Lancastrians' shot was near spent, and that they were advancing, as was customary, sword in hand, to begin a close fight, plied them with another furious discharge, which obliged them to fall back on the main body. Most authors agree, that this conduct of FAUCONBERG's was a great help to the victory*.

Stow observes that the slain were buried in five great pits in the field by North-Saxton church; and adds, that a Mr. HUNGATE caused them to be removed from thence, and buried in the churchyard of Saxton; but they were certainly buried in many parts of the field, as their remains are often discovered there by the ploughshare.

Mr. DRAKE informs us, that in the year 1734, himself and two other gentlemen were present at this place, to see one of these graves opened in the field; where, amongst vast quantities of bones, they found some arrow piles, pieces of broken swords, and five very fresh groat-pieces of HENRY IV. V. and VI's. coin. These laying, nearly altogether, close to a thigh bone, made it probable that they had not had time to strip the dead before their interment.

* THOMAS LORD CLIFFORD, noted for his cruelty at the battle of Wakefield, was, three months after, killed at this battle, by a headless arrow, which piercing his throat, he died immediately, aged 26.

In the 5th year of EDWARD IV. an act passed, that every Englishman, and Irishman dwelling with Englishmen, should have an English bow of his own height; which is directed to be made of yew, wych, hazel, ash, or awborne, or any other reasonable tree, according to their power. This act also directs, that butts shall be made in every township, which the inhabitants are obliged to shoot up and down every feast day, under the penalty of a halfpenny, when they shall omit this exercise.

In the 14th year of the same King it appears, by RYMER's Fœdera, that one thousand Archers were to be sent to the DUKE of BURGANDY, whose pay is settled at sixpence a-day; which is more than a common soldier receives clear in the present times, when provisions are much dearer, and the value of money so much decreased.

This circumstance seems to prove very clearly, the great estimation in which Archers were still held. In the same year EDWARD, preparing for a war with France, directs the sheriffs to procure bows and arrows, as most specially requisite and necessary.

RICHARD III. by his attention to Archery, was able to send one thousand bow-men to the DUKE of BRETAGNE; and he availed himself of the same troops at the battle of Bosworth: At this battle the Archers, on the side of KING RICHARD, were commanded by the DUKE of NORFOLK; and the EARL of OXFORD was Captain of those of the EARL of RICHMOND.

HENRY VII. directs a large body of Archers to be sent to Brittany, and that they shall be reviewed before they embark. In the 19th year of his reign, the same king forbids the use of the cross-bow; “because the long-bow had been “much used in this realm, whereby honour and “victory had been gotten against outward ene-
“mies, and the realm greatly defended.”

This King instituted a band of Archers to guard his person, under the title of Yeomen of the Guard. This band is at present established; but they are now armed with swords and halberts, instead of bows. Still, however, to keep up the memory of their predecessors skill, they annually practice shooting with bows and arrows

HENRY VIII. in the 3d year of his reign, directs, that every father should provide a bow and two arrows for his son, when he shall be seven years old. Also in the 6th of the same king's reign, every one, except clergy and judges, are obliged to shoot at butts.

Anno 1510, FERDINAND, King of Arragon, soliciting succours from HENRY VIII. against the Moors in Africa, his desires were complied with, and fifteen hundred Archers sent him under the command of THOMAS LORD DARCY.

Anno 1513, JAMES IV. King of Scotland, invaded the English borders while KING HENRY was in France. The EARL of SURREY, being Lord Lieutenant, raised the Militia of the northern counties, amounting to twenty-six thousand men, and advanced to meet him. The battle (which happened at Flowden Field) was bloody and terminated in the total defeat of the Scots; whose King, with the Archbishop of St. Andrews, two Abbots, twelve Earls, and seventeen Lords, were slain in battle. The victory, in a great measure, seems to have been owing to SIR EDWARD STANLEY and his Archers.

The names of the nobility and gentry who were present, with their tenants, at this memorable battle, are recorded in a curious old Poem, said to have been written by a schoolmaster at Ingleton, in the West Riding of the county of York, which is particularly interesting, as it presents a striking picture of the manner of raising our ancient Militia, the true constitutional force of this country: Men, who were one day at the plough, and the next ranged under the banners of their respective leaders with arms in their hands, which they used only against the hostile invader; whom having repelled, the survivors returned to their respective employments, amidst the congratulations of their dearest connections, their friends, and their countrymen.

Then might you see on every side*
 The ways all fill'd with men of war;
 Here silken streamers waving wide,
 There polish'd helms glitt'ring afar.

From Lancashire and Cheshire fast
 They to the lusty STANLEY drew;
 From Hornby where as he in haste
 Set forward with a comely crew.

What banners brave before him blaz'd,
 The people mus'd where he did pass;
 Poor husbandmen were much amaz'd,
 And women wond'ring, cried,—alas!

Young wives did weep in woe ful cheer,
 To see their friends in harness dress:
 Some rent their clothes, some tore their hair,
 Some held their babes unto their breast.

* Henry Jenkins believed he might be about twelve years of age at the time of the battle of Flowden Field, when he was sent to Northallerton with an horse-load of arrows, which a bigger boy had the charge of from thence to the army under the Earl of Surrey.

There woeful mothers mourning stood,
Viewing their sons harness'd on horse:
And shouting shriek'd when they forth rode,
And of their lives took little force.

From Penigent to Pendle-hill,
From Linton to Long Addingham,
And all that Craven coasts did till,
They with the lusty CLIFFORD came*.

All Staincliffe hundred went with him,
With striplings strong from Whorledale,
And all that Hanton hills did climb,
With Longstroth eke and Litton Dale.

Next whom LORD LUMLEY † and LATIMER ‡,
Were equal match'd with all their pow'r;
With whom was next their neighbour near,
LORD CONYERS stout and stiff in stoure §.

SIR-WALTER AUFITH, sage and grave,
Was with SIR HENRY SHERBURN bent;
And under BULMER's banner brave
The Bishopric of Durham went ||.

* Henry, the thirteenth Lord Clifford, on account of the hatred the House of York bore to his family, was concealed in the disguise of a shepherd, from seven years old till he arrived at his thirty-second year; when, in the first parliament of Henry VII. he was restored in blood and honour, to all his baronies, lands, and castles. He died in 1523.

† John Lord Lumley married Joan, sister to Lord Scroop of Bolton.

‡ John Neville Lord Latimer, married Catherine Par, and leaving her a widow, she became the last wife of Henry VIII.

§ William Lord Conyers of Hornby Castle, near Richmond in Yorkshire, married Maud, daughter of Henry Percy Earl of Northumberland.

|| There were many ancient families in the North of England at this time, whose names are not mentioned in this Poem. But it must be remembered, that the King, with a great part of his nobility, and a numerous army, was then in France.

Whom ensued SIR CHRISTOPHER WARD,
 With him SIR EDWARD EFFINGHAM;
 Next went SIR NICHOLAS APPELYARD,
 SIR METHAM, SIDNEY, EVERINGHAM.

Next went SIR BOLD and BUTLER brave,
 Two lusty Knights of Lancashire;
 Then BURKERTON bold and BYGOT grave,
 With WARCUP wild, a worthy squire.

Next RICHARD CHOLMLEY and CHRISTON stout,
 With men of Hatfield and of Hull;
 LAURENCE of Dun with all his rout,
 The people fresh with them did pull.

JOHN CLARTICE then was 'nexed near
 With STAPYLTON of stomach stern;
 Next whom FITZ-WILLIAM forth did fare,
 Who martial fautes was not to learn.

The next the left-hand wing did wield,
 SIR MARMADUKE CONSTABLE old *;
 With him a troop well tried in field,
 And eke his sons and kinsfolk bold.

Next him in place was 'nexed near
 LORD SCROOP † of Bolton stern and stout,
 On horseback who had not his peer,
 No Englishman Scots more did doubt.

With him did wend all Wensdale,
 From Morton unto Moisdale Moor;
 All they that dwelt on th' Banks of Swale,
 With him were bent in harness stout.

* Sir Marmaduke Constable was High Sheriff of the county of York,
 A. D. 1509

† John Lord Scroop married Catherine, daughter of Henry Clifford Earl of Cumberland.

From Weresdale warlike wights did wend,
 From Bishop's Dale went bow-men bold,—
 From Coverdale to Cotter-end,
 And all to Kidston causy cold ;

From Mollerstang and Middleham,
 And all from Mask and Middleconby,
 And all that climb the mountain Cam,
 Whose crown from snow is seldom free ;

With lusty lads and large of length
 Which dwelt at Seimer water-side,
 All Richmondshire its total strength
 The lusty SCROOP did lead and guide.

Next went SIR PHILIP TILNEY tall,
 With him SIR THOMAS BARKLEY brave,
 SIR JOHN RADCLIFFE in arms royal,
 And eke SIR WILLIAM GASCOIN grave.

Next whom did pass with all his rout,
 SIR CHRISTOPHER PICKERING proud,
 With SIR BRYAN STAPYLTON stout,
 Two valiant knights of noble blood.

Next with SIR JOHN STANLEY there yede
 The BISHOP of ELY's servants bold,
 SIR LIONEL PERCY eke did lead
 Some hundred men well tried and told.

Next went SIR MINHAM MARKINFIL *
 In armour-coat of cunning work ;
 The next went SIR JOHN MAUNDEVILL,
 With him the citizens of York.

* Markenfield of Markenfield nigh Ripon, a knightly family, whose only remaining branch is James Markenfield; now inhabiting a small cottage in Etammergate, Ripon, reduced in circumstances, oppressed with age, but still respected.

SIR GEORGE DARCY in banner bright
 Did bear a bloody broken spear,
 Next went SIR MAGNUS with his might,
 And CHOSTANCE bold of lusty cheer.

SIR GUY DAWNIE with his glorious rout,
 And then M'DAWBIE's servants bold,
 Then RICHARD TEMPEST with his rout,
 In rere-ward thus their 'ray did hold.

The right-hand wing with all his rout
 The lusty LORD DACRES did lead *,
 With him the bows of Kendal stout
 With milk-white coats and crosses red.

All Kefwick eke and Cockermonth,
 And all from Copeland's craggy hills,
 All Westmoreland both north and south,
 Whose weapons were huge maffy bills.

All Carlisle eke and Cumberland,
 They with LORD DACRES proud did pass,
 From Branton and from Broughly sands
 From Graystone and from Raven-Glafs.

With striplings strong from Stanemore side,
 And Austin-moor men marched kene;
 All those that Gillsland grave did hide,
 With horsemen light from Hefham-Leaven.

All these did march in DACRES' band,
 All these ensued his banner broad;
 No justier Lord was in the land,
 Nor more might boast of birth and blood.

* Thomas Dacre Lord Dacre of Gillsland.

Most lively lads in Lonsdale bred,
With weapons of unweildy weight,
All such as Tatham Fells had fed,
Went under STANLEY's streamer bright.

From Bowland bill-men bold were boun,
With such as Botton banks did hide ;
From Wharemore up to Whittington,
And all to Wenning water-side.

From Silverdale to Kent Sand-side,
Whose soil is sown with cockle shells,
From Cartmel eke and Conney side,
With fellows fierce from Furnace Fells.

From Warton unto Warrington,
From Wigan unto Wirefdale,
From Wedicar to Waddington,
From old Ribchester to Ratchdale.

From Poulton and Preston, with pikes,
They with the STANLEY stout forth went,
From Pemberton and Pilling-Dikes
For battle bill-men bold were bent.

Thus STANLEY stout the last of all
Of the rere-ward the rule did wield ;
Which done, to Bolton in Glendale,
The total army took the field.

Thus marched forth these men of war,
And every band their banner shew'd,
And trumpets hoarse were heard afar
And glittering harness shining view'd.

The founding bows were soon up bent,
 Some did their arrows sharp up take;
 Some did in hand their halberts hent,
 Some rusty bills did ruffling shake.

.....

With the rere-ward the river past,
 All ready in ranks and battle array,
 'They had no need more time to waste,
 For victuals they had none that day :

Yet they such steadfast faith did bear,
 Unto their King and native land,
 Each one the other did up cheer
 Gainst foes to fight whilst they could stand,

And never flee whilst life did last,
 But rather die by dint of sword.
 'Thus over plains and hills they pass'd
 Until they came to Sandiford,

A brook of breadth a tailor's yard,
 Where th' EARL of SURREY thus did say,
 " Good fellow soldiers, be not fear'd,
 " But fight it out like men this day."

Strike but three strokes with stomach stout,
 And shoot each man sharp arrows three,
 And you shall see without all doubt
 The beaten Scots begin to flee.

.....

The ADMIRAL did plain aspect,
 The Scots array'd in battles four :
 'The man was sage and circumspect,
 And soon perceived that his power

So great a strength cou'd not withstand ;
Wherefore he to his father sent,
Desiring him straight out of hand
With rere-ward ready to be bent,

And join with him on equal ground :
Whereto the EARL agreed anon ;
Then drum struck up with dreadful sound,
And trumpets blew with doleful tone.

The ENGLISHMEN their feather'd flights,
Sent out anon from sounding bow,
Which wounded many warlike wights,
And many a groom to ground did throw.

On either side were soldiers slain *,
And stricken down by strength of hand ;
That who cou'd win, none weet might plain,
The victory in doubt did stand.

Till at the last great STANLEY stout,
Came marching up the mountain steep,
His folks cou'd hardly fast their feet,
But forc'd on hands and feet to creep.

“ My Lancashire most lively wights,
“ And chosen mates of Cheshire strong ;
“ From sounding bow your feather'd flights,
“ Let fiercely fly your foes among.”

The noise then made the mountains ring,
And STANLEY stout, they all did cry,
Out went anon the grey goose wing,
And 'mongst the Scots did flickering fly.

* Sir Bryan Tunstal of Thurland Castle, a valiant Captain, was slain in this battle. He was interred in the chancel of Tunstal church, where his effigy at full length, cut in stone, is placed recumbent upon his tomb.

The King himself was wounded fore,
 An arrow fierce in's forehead light,
 That hardly he cou'd see his foes
 The blood so blemished his fight.

Yet like a warrior stout he said,
 And fiercely did exhort that tide;
 His men to be nothing dismay'd,
 But battle boldly there to bide.

But what avail'd his valour great,
 Or bold device all was but vain;
 His captains keen fail'd at his feet,
 And standard-bearer down was slain.

THE van-guard was led by LORD THOMAS and SIR EDWARD HOWARD. The centre by their father LORD SURREY; and the rear by SIR EDWARD STANLEY*. The LORD DACRES, with a body of horse, was to act as a reserve on all occasions. The king of Scots exhorting his men to behave like soldiers, immediately joined battle. SIR EDWARD HOWARD for sometime sustained a heavy charge, and had nearly been routed by the singular valour of the EARLS of LENOX and ARGYLE, had not the LORD

* Sir Edward Stanley, after his return from this battle, began to build the magnificent Chapel of Hornby in Lancashire; on one part of which is an eagle cut in stone, and the following inscription, "Edwardus Stanley, Miles Dominis Monteagle, me fieri fecit." He dying before it was perfected, the parish finished the body of the chapel, which is of interior workmanship.

DACRES, with the Bastard HERON, brought up the reserve, and restored the fight.

LORD THOMAS HOWARD met with a brave resistance from the EARLS of CRAUFORD and MONTROSE. The KING and the EARL of SURREY maintained a long and a sharp dispute, till SIR EDWARD STANLEY bringing up his Archers, who let fly their arrows with such force and effect, that the Scots troops began to give way by opening their ranks. The KING perceiving the disorder redoubled his efforts, and pressing forward with irresistible fury, had well nigh overthrown the English standard, when LORD THOMAS HOWARD coming to the assistance of his father, and being joined by LORD DACRE's horse, immediately gave a turn to the fortune of the day. The Scottish monarch, with the flower of his nobility and gentry, threw themselves into a ring, in which form they did all that valiant men could do to defend themselves; nor did any one exceed the King in personal valour; but being mortally wounded in the forehead with an arrow he fell, and with his life ended this fierce and cruel conflict. The royal corpse being found the next morning, and acknowledged by several of both nations, was conveyed to the Charter-house, from thence to Shene, a Monastery in Surrey; "Where," says STOWE, "it remained for a time, in what order I am not certain; but since the dissolution of the Abbeyes in the “ reign of EDWARD VI. HENRY GREY, then “ Duke of Suffolk, keeping house there, I have “ been shewed the same body, as was affirmed,

 “ wrapped in lead, thrown into an old waste “ room, amongst old timber, stone, lead, and “ other rubbish.” A strange monument of human instability!

During the reign of HENRY VIII. several statutes were made for the promotion of Archery. The 8th of ELIZABETH, chap. 10, regulates the price of bows* ; and the 13th of the same reign, chap. 12, enacts, that “ bow-staves shall “ be brought into the realme from the Hanse-
 “ towns and the eastward :” So that Archery still continued to be an object of attention in the legislature.

IN a splendid shooting match at Windsor, before the King, when the exercise was nearly over, his Majesty observing one of his guard, named BARLOW, preparing to shoot, said to him, “ Beat “ them all, and thou shalt be Duke of Archers.” BARLOW drew his bow, executed the King’s command, and received the promised reward ; being created DUKE of SHOREDITCH, that being the place of his residence. Several others of the most expert marksmen were honoured with titles, as EARL of PANCRIDGE, MARQUIS of CLERKENWELL, &c.

- * Eugh Bows, 2s. 8d. each.
 Bow strings, 0 6 per dozen.
 Livery arrows, 1 10 per sheaf.

The following letter inserted in LODGE'S Illustrations of British History, serves to shew what attention was paid to this article in our armies so late as the year 1544.

The Lords of the Council to the Earl of Shrewsbury.

“ After our right hearty commendations to
 “ your LORDSHIP, where thies bearers THOMAS “ SCARDEN, and JOHN STODDAR, the King's “ bowyer and fletcher, do pressently repair into “ those parts for the putting in order of the “ bowes and arrows, as wele at Barwick, as other “ places theire; and for theire help have also with “ them three other bowyers and five fletchers.
 “ Your Lordship shall understand, that we have “ delivered unto them conduct-money, and also “ wages for one month, to begin at their arrival, “ after the rate following: That is to say, the
 “ said SCARDEN and STODDAR at XIIId. by
 “ the daye, and every of the said fletchers and “ bowyers VIIIId. by the daye; praying your “ Lordship to take order for continuance of “ theire wages after the rate aforesaid, when the “ said month shall be expired, for the time of “ their being there accordingly. And thus fare

 “ your good Lordship right hartely well.

“ From Baynard’s Castle, the XXIIId. day of “ January 1544. Your Lordship’s assured “ loving friends.

“ THOMAS WRIOTHESLEY, “ THOMAS WESTMINSTER, “ CHARLES SUFFOLK,
 “ WILLIAM PAGET.”

KING HENRY VIII. and QUEEN CATHERINE, came from Greenwich to Shooter’s Hill one May-Day, where they were received by two hundred Archers, clad in green, with a Captain personating ROBIN HOOD ; who first shewed the King the skill of his Archers in shooting : after which the Ladies were conducted into the wood, and feasted with venison and wine, in arbours and bowers curiously decorated.

ON the 17th of September 1583, the London Archers to the number of three thousand, with each a long-bow and four arrows marched to a place near Shoreditch, called Hodgson’s Fields, where a tent was pitched for the chief citizens. Proclamation was made by sound of trumpet that every man should stand at least forty feet from each side of the butts*.

* These butts were distant from each other 148 yards.

This exercise lasted two days; on the evening of the second day the victors were led off the field mounted on horses, and attended by two hundred persons with each a lighted torch in his hand.

The dresses of this assembly would, at this day, be thought a little singular. The Archers were distinguished by green ribbons and sashes; most part of the company had hats and jerkins of black velvet, doublets of satin and taffety; and upwards of nine hundred persons, each of whom wore a chain of gold.

PRINCE HENRY, son of JAMES I. at eight years of age, learned to shoot both with the bow and gun; at the same time this prince had an officer in his establishment who was stiled Bow Bearer.

CHARLES I. appears from the dedication of a treatise, entitled The Bowman's Glory, to have been himself an Archer. And, in the eighth year of his reign, he issued a commission to the Chancellor, Lord Mayor, and several of the Privy Council, to prevent the fields near London being so inclosed as to interrupt the necessary and profitable exercise of shooting; as also to lower the mounds where they prevented the view from one mark to another.

This Prince likewise issued two proclamations in 1631 and 1633, for the promotion of Archery; the last of which recommends the use of the bow and pike together.

ON the 21st of March 1661, four hundred Archers marched with flying colours to Hyde-Park, where several of the Archers with cross-bows shot near twenty score yards; and some of them, to the amazement of the spectators, hit the mark at that very great distance: There were likewise three showers of whistling arrows. So splendid was the appearance, and pleasing the exercise, that three regiments of foot laid down their arms to join the spectators.

JOHN KING, of Hipperholm near Halifax, in Yorkshire, was esteemed the best Archer of his time in England. He was sent for to the court of CHARLES I. and won great wagers. Being victor at a great shooting match at Manchester, during Cromwell's administration, some of the gentry caused him to be carried upon men's shoulders, crying "A KING, a KING!" Great numbers of republicans being present, were alarmed, and cried out as eagerly, "Treason, treason! "A plot, a plot!" He died in January 1675.

IN the year 1675, three hundred and fifty Archers, most richly habited, appeared in Moorfields to compliment SIR ROBERT VINER, then Lord Mayor: From thence they marched through Moorgate, Cripplegate, and through Woodstreet into Cheapside; then they passed by the north-side of St. Paul's, and marched round into Cheapside again, and so to Guildhall; where they waited to receive the King, and the then Lord Mayor. When the king had viewed and passed by the Archers, they marched to Christ-church, where a very noble dinner was given, at the expence of the Lord Mayor. Their standard was guarded by six cross-bow men; all the officers wore green scarfs, and every bowman a green ribbon.

The principal officers were SIR ROBERT PEYTON, Knight, and Mr. MICHAEL ARNOLD.

On the 26th of May following, the Archers rendezvoused in the military ground near Bloomsbury, and marched from thence through part of Holborn, Chancery-Lane, Temple-Bar, and the Strand, to White-hall, being six abreast; yet, when the van reached Whitehall, the rear was not passed through Temple-Bar. From Whitehall they passed to Tothill-Fields; here they drew up and were reviewed by the King, who marched along their front several times. He was attended by the DUKES of YORK and MONMOUTH, and most of the nobility. The Archers were in number about a thousand; the spectators near twenty times that number. During the course of the day several showers of whistling arrows were discharged*, with which the company were exceedingly entertained.

CATHERINE of PORTUGAL, (Queen to CHARLES II.) seems to have been much pleased with the sight of this exercise: For in 1676, by the contributions of SIR EDWARD HUNGERFORD and others, a silver badge for the Marshal of the fraternity was made, weighing twenty-five ounces, and representing an Archer drawing the long-bow, with the following inscription:

REGINÆ CATHERINÆ SAGITTARII.

The supporters were two bow-men, with the arms of England and Portugal.

On the 14th of July, 1681, the London Archers, to the number of one thousand, under the command of Mr. EDWARDS and Mr. HENRY WARREN, marched to Hampton-Court, to shoot for several pieces of plate, viz. Two silver cups and three dozen of silver spoons. The target was placed upon a butt erected on purpose upon the lawn before the palace. The King was pleased to honour them with his presence on the occasion; staid near two hours, and permitted as many of the Archers as pleased to kiss his hand—A mark of the pleasure he took in viewing their exercise.

* These arrows are supposed to have been used by the picquet guards, to give notice to the camp of the enemy's approach during the night.

On Friday, April 21, 1682, the Archers under the command of SIR EDWARD HUNGERFORD, COLONEL M. ARNOLD, LIEUTENANT COLONEL J. MOULD, MAJOR H. WARREN, LIEUTENANT E. DONNE, G. WALKER, and J. MANLEY, Captains, met in the artillery ground and marched through Cornhill, Fleetstreet, and the Strand, to Tothill-Fields. The King and most of the nobility honoured them with their company. There were at least one thousand Archers in the field. The recreation lasted for sometime, during which three showers of whistling arrows were discharged. The company, the Archers, and the exercise taken altogether, it was supposed, exceeded any thing of the kind that had hitherto been seen in England.

IN Scotland little less attention, though apparently not with equal success, was paid to the encouragement of this art. In both kingdoms it was provided that the importers of merchandise should be obliged, along with their articles of commerce, to import a certain proportion of bows, bow-staves, and shafts for arrows. In both every person was enjoined to hold himself provided in bows and arrows: and was prescribed the frequent use of Archery. In both a restraint was imposed upon the exercise of other games and sports, lest they should interfere with the use of the bow; for it was intended that people should be made expert in the use of it as a military weapon, by habituating them to the familiar exercise of it as an instrument of amusement.

As there was no material difference between the activity and bodily strength of the two people, it might be supposed that the English and Scots wielded the bow with an equal vigour and dexterity: But from undoubted historical monuments it appears, that the former had the superiority. The English shot with a very long bow. Those who were arrived at their full growth and maturity, being prohibited from shooting at any mark that was not distant upwards of two hundred and twenty yards. In the use of the bow great dexterity, as well as strength, seems to have been requisite. Though we hear of arrows at Cheviot Chase which were a yard long; yet it is by no means to be supposed, that the whole band made use of such, or could draw them to the head.

The regulation of the Statute of EDWARD IV. viz. "That the bow shall not exceed the height of a man," is allowed by Archers to have been well considered; and as the arrow should be half the length of the bow, this would give an arrow of a yard in length to those only who were six feet high. A strong man of this size in the present times, cannot easily draw above twenty-seven inches, if the bow is of a proper strength to do execution at a considerable distance. At the same time it must be admitted, that as our ancestors were obliged by some of the old statutes, to begin shooting with the long-bow at the age of seven, they might have acquired a greater flight in this exercise than their descendants.

Not many years ago, there was a man named TOPHAM, who exhibited surprising feats of strength, and who happened to be at a public house near Islington, to which the Finsbury Archers resorted after their exercise. TOPHAM considered the long-bow as a play-thing, only fit for a child; upon which one of the Archers laid him a bowl of punch that he could not draw the arrow two thirds of its length. TOPHAM accepted the proposal with the greatest confidence; but bringing the arrow to his breast instead of his ear, he was greatly mortified by paying the wager, after many fruitless efforts.

As to the distance to which an arrow can be shot from a long bow, with the best elevation of forty-five degrees, that must necessarily depend much both upon the strength and slight of the Archer; but in general the distance was reckoned from eleven to twelve score yards*.

According to NEAD, an Archer might shoot six arrows in the time of charging and discharging one musquet.

Arrows are reckoned by sheaves; a sheaf consisting of twenty-four arrows*. They were carried in a quiver, called also an arrow-case, which served for the magazine. Arrows for immediate use were carried in the girdle. In ancient times phials of quicklime, or other combustible matter for burning houses or ships was fixed on the heads of arrows, and shot from long-bows. Arrows with wild-fire, and arrows for fire-works, are mentioned among the stores at Newhaven and Berwick, 1st of EDWARD VI.

To protect our Archers from the attacks of the enemy's horse, they carried long stakes pointed at both ends: These they planted in the earth, sloping before them. In the first of EDWARD VI. three hundred and thirty of these stakes were in the stores of the town of Berwick; there were also at the same time eight bundles of Archers' stakes in Pontefract Castle.

* By the 33d of HENRY VIII. no one aged twenty-four, was to shoot at any mark under eleven score yards.

† GROSE on ancient armour.

11
230

THE following description of an Archer and his accoutrements is given in a MS. written in the time of QUEEN ELIZABETH.

“ Captains and officers should be skilful of that “ most noble weapon; and to see that their sol“ diers, according to their draught and strength,
“ have good bows, well nocked, well stringed, “ everie string whippe in their nocke, and in “ the myddes rubbed with wax,—brafer and “ shutting glove,—some spare strynges trymed
“ as aforesaid; every man one sheaf of arrows, “ with a case of leather, defensible against the “ rayne, and in the same fower and twentie ar“ rows; whereof eight of them should be lighter
“ than the residue, to gall or astoyne the enemy
“ with the hail-shot of light arrows, before they “ shall come within the danger of their harquebuse “ shot. Let every man have a brigandine or a “ little cote of plate, a skull or hufkin, a maule
“ of lead, of five feet in length, and a pike,
“ and the same hanging by his girdle, with a “ hook and a dagger; being thus furnished, teach “ them by musters to march, shoote, and retire,
“ keeping their faces upon the enemy’s. Sumtime
“ put them into great numbers, as to battell ap“ parteyneth, and there use them often times “ practised till they be perfect; for those men in “ battell ne skirmish cannot be spared. None
“ other weapon maye compare with the same
“ noble weapon.”

THE ancient records of the Royal Company of Archers in Scotland, having been destroyed by fire, about the beginning of the present century, no authentic traces of their institution now remains. It is said, that they owe their origin to the Commissioners appointed in the reign of JAMES I. of Scotland, for enforcing and overseeing the exercise of Archery in different counties. These Commissioners, who were in general men of rank and power, picking out amongst the better sort of people, under their cognizance, the most expert Archers, formed them into a company, and upon perilous occasions made a present of their services to the king as his chief body guards. In which situation they often distinguished themselves for their loyalty, their courage, and skill in Archery. This rank of the King's principal body-guards, the Royal Company still claim within seven miles of the metropolis of Scotland.

The Company at present consists of about one thousand in number; among whom are most of the Scottish nobility of the first distinction. A number of these gentlemen meet weekly during the summer season in Edinburgh, and exercise themselves in the Meadows, shooting at butts or rovers. In the adjoining ground they have a handsome building, erected within these twelve years, with suitable offices, whither they adjourn after their exercise, and where they hold their elections, and other meetings relative to the business of the Society.

The prizes belonging to this company, and which are annually shot for, are; 1st. A Silver Arrow, given by the town of Musselburgh, which appears to have been shot for as early as the year 1603. The victor in this, as in other prizes, except the King's prize, has the custody of it for a year, and then returns it with a medal appended, on which are engraved any motto and device which the gainer's fancy dictates. 2d. A Silver Arrow, given by the town of Peebles, A. D. 1626. 3d. A Silver Arrow, given by the city of Edinburgh, A. D. 1709. 4th. A Silver Punch Bowl, of the value of about fifty pounds, made of Scottish silver, at the expence of the Company, A. D. 1720. 5th. A Piece of Plate, value twenty pounds, called the King's prize, 1627. This prize becomes the absolute property of the winner.

All these prizes are shot for at what is termed rovers; the marks being placed at the distance of one hundred and eighty-five yards.

Besides these there is another prize annually contended for at butt, or point-blank distance, called the Goose. The ancient manner of shooting for this prize was,—a living goose being built in a turf-butt, with his head only exposed to view; the Archer who first hit the goose's head was entitled to the goose as his reward. But this custom, on account of its barbarity, has been long ago laid aside; and in place of the goose's head, a mark of about an inch diameter, is affixed upon each butt; and the Archer who first hits this mark is captain of the butt-shooters for a year.

The affairs of the Company are managed by a Prefes and six Councillors, who are choten annually by the whole members. The Council are vested with the power of receiving or rejecting candidates for admission, and of appointing the Company's officers civil and military.

The uniform of the Royal Company of Archers is tartan, lined with white, and trimmed with green and white fringes; a white sash with green tassels; and a blue bonnet, with a silver's Cross and feathers. The Company have two standards: The first of these bears on one side Mars and Cupid encircled in a wreath of thistles, with this motto, "IN PEACE AND WAR." On the other a eugh tree, with two men dressed and equipped as Archers, encircled as the former—motto, "DAT GLORIA VIRES."

The other standard displays on one side a lion rampant, gules, on a field or, encircled with a wreath; on the top a thistle and crown,—motto, “NEMO ME IMPUNE LACESSET.” On the other, St. Andrew on the cross, on a field argent; at the top a crown,—motto, “DULCE PRO PATRIA PERICULUM.”

ROGER ASCHAM, who wrote a treatise on this art in the year 1544, mentions the bracer or leathern guard worn by Archers upon the left arm, to prevent it from being cut by the string of the bow. But he recommends shooting without any bracer, as its use may be superseded by giving the bow a greater bend; that is about nine inches. The shooting glove was like the bracer, the same as at present. The bow-string was made either of silk or hemp.

The bow he recommends to be made out of the bole of a yew tree, and its strength such that the Archer could with moderate exertion draw an arrow to the head. The arrow was made of oak or birch, and was of different sizes, according to the different purposes it was intended for; its length generally from twenty-seven to thirty-two inches; the longest were used in war.

He recommends a goose's feather for the shaft, as better than any other. The head of the arrow differed very much from the modern ones. Those used in shooting at the marks somewhat resembling a pine apple, smooth at top, but furrowed longitudinally.

For war they used sharp heads without any barb.

The arrow was always drawn to the ear when they shot at short marks. At long marks or rovers, it was then necessary on account of the elevation, to be drawn to the breast.

The Archers did not shut either eye when they took aim; nor did they look at the arrow, but at the mark only.

BOW - MAKERS.

DURING the last century, the KELSALS of Manchester were the best bow and arrow makers in England; that family is now extinct. The art is revived by JOSEPH WRIGLEY and Co. of Cheetnam near Manchester; who excel all others in the choice of wood, and accuracy of workmanship.

Bows and arrows are also made and sold by SAMUEL STANWAY near Northwich in Cheshire.

There is also a manufactory for implements of Archery established by Mr. WARING at Leicester House.

In ancient times when the demand for these articles was universal, the business was divided into separate branches; from whence arose the following Surnames, viz. BOWYER, BOWER, STRINGER, ARROWSMITH, FLETCHER, &c.

LANCASHIRE AND CHESHIRE ARCHERS.

THESE counties have long been celebrated for their numerous and skilful Archers. About the year 1648, three brothers, JOHN, ROGER, and DANIEL RAWSON, became particularly famous in that science: JAMES the son of JOHN is now (1792) living at Cheetham-Hill near Manchester, aged 76: From the age of eighteen to sixty he never refused a challenge; nor ever lost a match. In the above counties are many societies of bowmen: Few market towns in Lancashire but have one or two sets of butts placed at the several distances of 30, 60, 90, and 120 yards. The Lancashire bowmen hold their meetings at Cheetham-Hill every Wednesday, from Lady-day to Michaelmas, at three in the afternoon. There is also a party, who shoot there every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, if the weather proves favourable.

MISS BOUVRE, near Warrington, is esteemed the best Archers in the county. In support of the ancient fame of Lancashire bowmen, LELAND, in his Collectanea, hath the following line,
LANCASHIRE FAIRE ARCHERE.

SCORTON ARCHERS

BEGAN to shoot for a Silver Arrow at Scorton near Richmond, in Yorkshire, May 14, 1673, and have continued ever since.

ARTICLES

Agreed upon by the SOCIETY of ARCHERS at SCORTON, May 14, 1673, for the regulating of the annual exercise of shooting at the Targets for a Silver Arrow.

I. IMPRIMIS. THAT every person intending to shoot at this, or other yearly game, for the future, shall deposite and pay into the hands of the Captain and Lieutenant of the Archers (or of some others deputed and appointed by them Stewards to the Company of Archers for that year, the sum of five shillings, or what other sum shall from time to time be concluded and agreed upon by the major part of the Archers; the same to be done some convenient time before the general day of meeting to shoot at the said targets, whereof notice to be publicly given, to the end, that Plate, and such other prizes as are hereafter mentioned, may be had and provided in due time.

II. ITEM. UPON the day appointed for the said exercise, all persons concerned shall repair to the place for the said purpose (to be appointed by the Captain of the Archers for that present year, which place shall always be within six miles of Eriholme upon Tees, in the county of York, unless otherwise resolved and agreed upon by the greater number of the Society of Archers present at the shooting down of the said targets) by eight of the clock in the morning; when and where a note in writing shall be taken of those intending to shoot, (the Captain and Lieutenant excepted) and lots or figures of their numbers shall be drawn by some indifferent person; according to which figures they are to observe their several courses and orders in shooting for that time; and if any come after the lots are drawn, they shall take their places, and shoot after the last figure and according to their coming.

III. ITEM. Two targets shall be then and there ready provided by the Captain and Lieutenant, (who hereby are and shall be exempted and freed from depositing any sum or sums of money, so long as either of them shall continue in their respective offices) with four circles aptly distinguished with colours; whereof the innermost circle being gilded or yellow, shall be for the Captain's prize; and the next to that shall be for the Lieutenant's prize; and the third and fourth, or outermost circumferences, shall be for such spoons or other prizes of a greater and lesser value, according to the monies deposited, as they shall be ordered and proportioned by the Captain and

Lieutenant, and three of the Company of Archers then and there present.

IV. ITEM. THE said targets shall be set in some open and plain field, upon two straw basts or mats, breast-high from the ground, each being distant from the other at least eight score yards, at which distance three rounds shall be shot by all the Company, with what manner of shaft (not exceeding two shafts) every one pleaseth. The Captain and Lieutenant beginning first, and then the rest two and two, in order, according to their several lots and numbers, till the said rounds be shot out at the first stand; after which they shall remove in ten yards, and there shoot other three rounds in manner aforesaid; and then remove in ten yards more, and shoot three rounds there; and so forwards from stand to stand, or one removal to another till all the prizes be gotten or shot down; provided that their said approach to the targets be never nearer than sixty yards, at which distance they must stand to shoot them out, if not won before.

V. ITEM. SUCH person as in his due order and place shall first pierce or break the Captain's Prize, or any parts thereof with his arrow, (that is to say) so as his arrow or any part thereof shall be within the circle dividing between red and gold, shall have the silver arrow from the rest, and shall be esteemed and adjudged Captain of the Archers, and shall have and enjoy all privileges due and belonging to that office, during the year ensuing; and further shall have twenty shillings of such monies as shall be deposited by the Company of Archers at their next annual meeting for shooting at the targets; when he shall and must bring in the said silver arrow, to be shot for in manner and form aforesaid. The same to be done and performed yearly about Whitfuntide, to and by all the successive Captains. Also he that in like manner pierceth the Lieutenant's Prize or Circle, shall have such prize or piece of plate as shall be allotted and appointed by the Captain and Lieutenant for that time. Likewise he that first pierceth either of the other circumferences shall have one spoon (or such other prize as shall be appointed for the same circle as aforesaid) for every arrow wherewith he shall pierce or break them, in case all the prizes belonging to them be not gotten before. Also he that pierceth any of the inner circles in manner aforesaid, whereout the prize or prizes were won before, shall have one of the best prizes remaining in the circle, next to that which he shall so hit, provided that the spoons and such other prizes as shall be designed for the said two outermost circles shall be of two several rates and values; and the better of them shall be allotted and appointed for the circle and circumference next to the Lieutenant's.

VI. ITEM. IF any of the Company shall presume to shoot at the targets out of his due turn of standing, he shall loose his shot for that round (or having shot before) in the next round following: And if any be absent from the stand to shoot in his turn according to his figure, then the next figure there present shall shoot on, that no time may be lost, and shall have such prize as he shall then win. Nevertheless such absent figure may, at his coming to the place of standing, have liberty to shoot during that round, if the Captain so please and appoint, either at the time of his coming, or at the end of the same round, provided that he come before the beginning of the next round.

VII. ITEM. FORASMUCH as the Exercise of Archery is lawful, laudable, healthful, and innocent; and to the end that God's holy name may not be dishonoured by any of that Society, it is agreed and hereby declared, that if any one of them shall that day curse or swear in the hearing of any of the company, and the same be proved before the Captain and Lieutenant, he shall forthwith pay down one shilling, and so proportionably for every oath; to be distributed by the Captain to the use of the poor of that place or township where they shoot. And in case of refusal or neglect to pay the same, then such party to be excluded from shooting any more till payment is made as aforesaid.

VIII. AND LASTLY. ALL the Company of Archers shall, on the day of shooting at the targets as aforesaid, dine with the Captain and Lieutenant at some ordinary appointed for them near the place of shooting; and if any of them shall refuse or neglect so to do, or not dining with them, shall pay one shilling to the Captain or Lieutenant for his ordinary; then the party so offending shall lose and forfeit the privilege of shooting in the round next following after dinner.

NAMES OF THE CAPTAINS AND LIEUTENANTS OF THE SCORTON ARCHERS,

From 1673 to 1791;

The TIMES when, and PLACES where the SOCIETY met, and the number of SHOOTERS that appeared at each Meeting.

Time when shot for.	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Place and No. of shooters.
1673, May 14.	HENRY CALVERLEY, Esq;	WILLIAM WHEATLEY, - - -	SCORTON, - - - 22
1674, June 4.	GEORGE DOBSON, - - - - -	GEORGE DOBSON, - - - - -	BARTON, - - - 22
1675, May 20.	MR. SAMUEL BIRKBECK, - - -	G. DOBSON and T. ALLENKON, - - -	Eriholme, - - 23
1676, May 9.	THOMAS DODSWORTH, Esq;	MR. SAMUEL BIRKBECK, - - -	Croft, - - - 17
1677, May 10.	MR. JOHN DAWSON, - - - - -	MR. SAMUEL BIRKBECK, - - -	Croft, - - - 14
1678, Sept. 5.	LEO. BRAKENBURY, - - - - -	MR. LOFTUS SQUIRE, - - - - -	Melfonby, - - 7
1679, June 11.	JOHN MURTON, - - - - -	MR. JOHN DAWSON, - - - - -	Melfonby, - - 5
1680, June 8.	THOMAS GYLL, Gent. - - - - -	MR. LOFTUS SQUIRE, - - - - -	Melfonby, - - 9
1681, May 12.	NICHOLAS THOMPSON, - - - - -	LEO. BRAKENBURY, - - - - -	Barton, - - - 7
1683, June 13.	THOMAS GARTHORN, - - - - -	NICHOLAS COLE, Esq;	Eriholme, - - 12
1684, May 13.	PHILIP ETHERINGTON, - - - - -	PHILIP ETHERINGTON, - - - - -	Eriholme, - - 14
1685, May 12.	RICHARD WILKINSON, - - - - -	RICHARD MARSHALL, - - - - -	Eriholme, - - 19
1686, June 8.	MR. RICHARD GRIMSTON, - - - - -	JOHN SADLER, - - - - -	Eriholme, - - 22
1687, May 19.	LEO. BRAKENBURY, - - - - -	PERCIVAL ROBINSON, - - - - -	Melfonby, - - 18
1688, July 25.	MR. RICHARD GRIMSTON, - - - - -	PHILIP ETHERINGTON, - - - - -	Melfonby, - - 15
1689, July 4.	LEO. BRAKENBURY, - - - - -	JOHN LAWSON, - - - - -	Melfonby, - - 14

ANECDOTES OF ARCHERY.

Time when shot for.	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Place and No. of shooters.
1690, June 12.	LEO. BRAKENBURY, - - -	NICHOLAS THOMPSON, - - -	Melfonby, - - 12
1691, June 18.	WILLIAM GARTHORN - - -	JOHN PILKINGTON, Gent. -	Melfonby, - - 15
1692, May 31.	Mr. REGINALD STEADMAN,	Mr. GEORGE HARTLEY, - -	Darlington, - - 15
1693, May 30.	Mr. GEORGE HARTLEY, - -	Mr. GEORGE TROTTER, - -	Barton, - - 12
1694, May 30.	Mr. GEORGE HARTLEY, - -	Mr. GEORGE TROTTER, - -	Middleton-Tyas, 14
1695, July 1.	Mr. MARMADUKE HARTLEY,	LEONARD BRAKENBURY, -	Melfonby, - - 12
1696, July 2.	Mr. MARMADUKE HARTLEY,	Mr. THOMAS GYLL, - - -	Barton, - - 13
1697, July 29.	WILLIAM RAINE - - - -	WILLIAM RAINE, - - - -	Middleton-Tyas, 14
1700, July 2.	MARMADUKE HARTLEY, - -	THOMAS GYLL, - - - -	Barton, - - 15
1702, Oct. 1.	ROBERT EDEN, Esq; - - -	Mr. WILLIAM RAINE, - -	Darlington, - 9
1703, June 4.	NICHOLAS THOMPSON, - - -	GEORGE HARLAND, - - -	Peircebridge, - 11
1704, Aug. 16.	NICHOLAS THOMPSON, - - -	LEONARD BRAKENBURY, - -	Barton, - - 15
1705, Aug. 1.	NICHOLAS THOMPSON, - - -	NICHOLAS THOMPSON, - -	Barton, - - 13
1706, Aug. 14.	Mr. ANTHONY HAMMOND, -	RALPH LODGE, - - - -	Barton, - - 11
1707, June 5.	Mr. CHRIST. BRIDGEWATER,	Mr. Jos. ETHERINGTON, -	Hartforth, - - 10
1708, Aug. 27.	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - -	Mr. RICHARD WILSON, - -	Hartforth, - - 17
1709, July 5.	Mr. EDWARD HORNER, - -	NICHOLAS THOMPSON, - -	Richmond, - - 18
1710, June 27.	RICHARD HUTCHINSON and } ROBERT ROBINSON,	THOMAS THWAITES, - - -	Richmond, - - 11
1711, Aug. 15.	LEONARD BRAKENBURY - -	GEORGE GARNET, - - - -	Richmond, - - 13

Time when shot for.	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Place and No. of shooters.
1712, Sept. 16.	Mr. HAMMOND, - - - - -	Mr. THEOBALDS, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 21
1713, Sept. 16.	Mr. THOMAS THWAITES, - - - - -	RICHARD WILSON, - - - - -	Hartforth, - - 24
1714, Aug. 16.	Mr. JOHN ROBINSON, - - - - -	Mr. EDWARD HORNER, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 13
1715, July 19.	Mr. LEONARD HARTLEY, - - - - -	RICHARD WILSON, - - - - -	- - - - - 12
1716, Nov. 5.	Mr. JOHN WILKINSON, - - - - -	Mr. THOMAS THWAITES, - - - - -	Barton, - - - 17
1717, July 18.	REV. JOHN WILKINSON, - - - - -	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Peircebridge, - 9
1718, July 22.	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Mr. EDWARD BELL, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 17
1719, May 28.	Mr. THOMAS THWAITES, - - - - -	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 8
1720, June 30.	CUTHBERT BOUTH, Esq; - - - - -	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 12
1721, Sept. 29.	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Mr. EDWARD BELL, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 17
1722, Sept. 6.	ACLOM MILBANKE, Esq; - - - - -	CUTHBERT ROUTH, Esq; - - - - -	Richmond, - - 15
1723, Sept. 6.	Mr. EDWARD BELL, - - - - -	Mr. JAMES WHITE, - - - - -	Black Bull, - - 15
1724, May 28.	ACLOM MILBANKE, Esq; - - - - -	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 10
1725, Sept. 9.	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Black Bull, - - 8
1726, June 24.	CODRINGTON JOHN PRESSICK, - - - - -	Mr. JAMES WHITE, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 13
1727, June 9.	ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	WILLIAM DOBSON, Gent. - - - - -	Yarm, - - - 12
1728, July 15.	Dr. BELL, Captain, - - - - -	Mr. ROBERT ROBINSON, - - - - -	Croft, - - - 16
1729, July 17.	WILLIAM BROWN, Esq; - - - - -	JAMES COOKE, Esq; - - - - -	Croft, - - - 19
1730, June 11.	WILLIAM DAVILE, Jun. Esq; - - - - -	MATTHEW WASS, Esq; - - - - -	Richmond, - - 15
1731, Sept. 16.	Mr. CALLEB REDSHAW, Jun. - - - - -	Mr. HENRY NICHOLLS, Jun. - - - - -	Richmond, - - 13

ANECDOTES OF ARCHERY.

83

Time when shot for.	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Place and No. of shooters.
1732, July 27.	Mr. JAMES WHITE, - - - -	Mr. THOMAS KELLY, - - -	Richmond, - - 17
1733, May 31.	Mr. JOSEPH COATES, - - - -	WILLIAM BROWNE, Esq; - -	Peircebridge, - 13
1734, June 20.	Mr. JOSEPH COATES, - - - -	Mr. PETER MARLEY, - - -	Richmond, - - 14
1735, June 24.	Mr. JOSEPH COATES, - - - -	THOMAS THWAITES, - - -	Richmond, - - 13
1736, June 16.	Mr. JOHN PLUMB, - - - -	THOMAS KELLY, - - - -	Richmond, - - 16
1737, June 16.	Mr. PETER MARLEY, - - - -	Mr. PETER MARLEY, - - -	Barton, - - - 20
1738, June 27.	REV. Mr. THOBALDS, - - - -	SIR HUGH SMITHSON, Bart.	Peircebridge, - 24
1739, July 5.	Mr. JAMES WHITE, - - - -	Mr. JOSEPH COATES, - - -	Love-lane, - - 17
1740, July 17.	THOMAS KELLY, - - - -	Mr. RICHARD SEYMOUR, - -	Peircebridge, - 10
1741, June 24, 25.	THOMAS KELLY, - - - -	THOMAS KELLY, - - - -	Richmond, - 9
1742, Aug. 12.	Mr. JOSEPH COATES - - - -	Mr. THOMAS WATSON, - -	Richmond, - 9
1743, Aug. 2.	Mr. JOSEPH COATES - - - -	REV. Mr. THEOBALDS, - -	Richmond, - - 11
1744, Aug. 30.	Mr. RICHARD SEYMOUR, - -	Mr. JOHN PLUMB, - - - -	Richmond - - 9
1745, Sept. 4.	SIR HUGH SMITHSON, Bart.	CALEB REDSHAW, Esq; - - -	Peircebridge - 11
1746, Aug. 5.	Mr. JOSEPH COATES, - - - -	Mr. JOHN PLUMB, - - - -	Stanwick, - - 18
1747, Aug. 27.	Mr. RICHARD ROBINSON, -	Mr. RICHARD SEYMOUR, - -	Richmond, - - 17
1748, Aug 25, 26.	JOSEPH APPLEBY, - - - -	THOMAS KELLY, - - - -	Richmond, - - 12
1749, Aug. 8.	Mr. ISAAC TRUMAN, - - - -	Hon. THOMAS VANE, Esq;	Darnton, - - 15
1750, July 25.	JOHN BOWER, Esq; - - - -	Hon. THOMAS VANE, Esq;	Darlington, - 14
1751, Sept. 5, 6.	Mr. JOSEPH APPLEBY - - - -	Hon. THOMAS VANE, Esq;	Darlington, - 16

Time when shot for.	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Place and No. of shooters.
1752, Aug. 27.	JOHN COLLIER, Jun.	Mr. JOHN WRIGHT,	Darlington, - - 12
1753, July 5.	MARK MILBANKE,	Mr. NICHOLSON,	Darlington, - - 18
1754, July 25.	REV. Mr. NICHOLSON,	WILLIAM CHAYTOR, Esq;	Scorton, - - 19
1755, Aug. 14.	Mr. JONES,	Mr. ROBINSON,	Hurworth, - - 20
1756, June 11.	ROBERT HALL,	ROBERT DAVISON,	Richmond, - 14
1757, July 15.	THOMAS KITCHING,	Mr. THOMAS WATSON,	Darlington, - 16
1757, July 15.	THOMAS KELLY,	GEORGE RICKERBY,	Darlington, - 16
1758, June 13.	JOHN WRIGHT,	JOHN WRIGHT,	Richmond, - 12
1759, June 21.	GEORGE RICKERBY,	ROBERT HALL,	Darlington, - 19
1760, June 25.	GEORGE RICKERBY,	ROBERT HALL,	Love-lane, - - 13
1761, July 7.	GEORGE RICKERBY,	THOMAS WATSON,	Richmond, - - 16
1762, June 29.	GEORGE THOMPSON,	RICHARD HODGSON,	Richmond, - - 15
1763, July 12.	ROBERT HALL,	GEORGE RICKERBY,	Richmond, - - 15
1764, Oct. 11.	THOMAS KELLY,	THOMAS KELLY,	Darlington, - 14
1765, July 8.	THOMAS WATSON,	THOMAS KELLY,	Ferryhill, - - 20
1766, June 18.	ROBERT HALL,	JOHN GAINFORD,	Darlington, - 16
1767, July 21.	Mr. THOMAS RAINE,	ROBERT JACKSON,	Darlington, - 18
1768, May 24.	Mr. JAMES PORTEES,	Mr. JOHN GAINFORD,	Hurworth, - - 14
1769, July 4.	Mr. JOHN GAINFORD,	Mr. ROBERT HALL,	Darlington, - - 7
1770, July 5.	Mr. ROBERT HALL,	Mr. THOMAS WATSON,	Richmond, - - 9

Time when shot for.	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Place and No. of Shooters.
1771, July 24.	Mr. JOHN GAINFORD, - - -	Mr. GEORGE RICKERBY, - -	Darlington, - - 8.
1772, July 15.	Mr. GEORGE RICKERBY, - -	Mr. JOHN GAINFORD, - - -	Richmond, - - 5
	In 1773 and 1774, the ARROW was not shot for, no Gentlemen appearing.
1775, July 20.	Mr. THOMAS KELLY, - - -	Mr. ROBERT JACKSON, - -	Richmond, - - 5
1776, July 30.	Mr. THOMAS KELLY, - - -	Mr. MACFARLAN, - - - -	Richmond, - - 6
	In 1777, the ARROW was not shot for, no Gentlemen appearing.
1778, July 23.	Mr. THOMAS KELLY, - - -	Mr. ROBERT JACKSON, - - -	Richmond, - - 5
	In 1779 and 1780—Not shot for.
1781, July 18.	Mr. ROBERT HALL, - - -	JAMES GORDON, Esq; - - -	Richmond, - - 14
1782, June 26, 27.	Mr. ROBERT HALL, - - -	Mr. HENRY WILSON, - - -	Darlington, - 18
1783, July 10.	JAMES WILSON, - - - -	Mr. ROBERT HALL, - - - -	Darlington, - - 7
1784, June 22.	Mr. ROBERT HALL, - - -	Mr. ROBERT HALL, - - - -	Darlington, - - 8
1785, July 5.	Mr. ROBERT HALL, - - -	Mr. MACFARLAN, - - - -	Darlington, - - 7
1786, Aug. 15.	Mr. THOMAS WATSON, - - -	SEYMOUR HODGSON, Esq; - -	Darlington, - - 8
1787, June 26.	Mr. THOMAS WATSON, - - -	Mr. JOHN HAYTON, - - - -	Darlington, - - 12
1788, June 27.	Mr. THOMAS WATSON, - - -	Mr. MACFARLAN, - - - -	Darlington, - - 9
1789, Aug. 28.	Mr. JOHN GLENTON, - - -	Mr. MACFARLAN, - - - -	Richmond, - - 9
1790, Aug. 18.	Mr. MACFARLAN, - - - -	Mr. GLENTON, - - - - -	Richmond, - - 9
1791, June 14.	Mr. MICHAEL BASSETT, - - -	Mr. MACFARLAN - - - - -	Richmond, - - 9

FINSBURY ARCHERS,

Instituted in the year 1753.

THE few gentlemen now remaining of this Society, are incorporated with the Archers' division of the Hon. Artillery Company; and were among those who attended his Majesty in the procession to St. Paul's on the 23d of April, 1789.

WHARFDALE ARCHERS,

Instituted in the year 1737.

ARTICLES.

WE whose names are underwritten, do hereby oblige ourselves to meet every Thursday, between the hours of three and six in the afternoon, at Mrs. BENTHAM's in Otley. And it is further agreed, that every Subscriber who does not attend according to the above obligation, shall for every such default forfeit sixpence; and if he does attend shall pay sixpence for his club, otherwise shall be deemed a defaulter. That his name, forfeiture, and day of the month be entered in a book, kept at Mrs. BENTHAM's for that purpose. That the forfeitures be paid on a day appointed by a majority of the Subscribers. That if any one denies on that day to pay his forfeiture or forfeitures, as entered in the book, he shall be prosecuted according to law ; and his name upon such refusal, shall be struck out from the list of Subscribers. To prevent any disputes which may be occasioned by the difference of clocks and watches, Mrs. BENTHAM's clock only shall be referred to in all cases relating to the hours appointed as above for meeting. Dated the fourth day of August, 1737.

W. VAVASOUR,	B. KNIGHT,
THO. FAWKES,	HEN. MITTON,
HEN. ATKINSON,	JAS. ROBINSON,
AYS. FAWKES,	ANTH. FOSTER,
FR. FAWKES,	R. MUSGRAVE,
JOHN FAWKES,	THOMAS BOOTH,
WM. BULKLEY,	THO. HARRISON.
C. VAVASOUR,

How long this Society continued to meet is not now known*.

RICHMOND ARCHERS,

INSTITUTED within the borough of Richmond in Yorkshire, in the year 1755,—to meet and shoot for a Silver Cup, on Thursday in every week.

* I have been informed that the butts, used by this Society, were placed near Farnley Hall, and but lately demolished.

DARLINGTON ARCHERS,

INSTITUTED March the 25th, 1758,—to shoot for a Silver Medal and Gorget *; on which day the Articles were agreed upon, and signed by the following gentlemen † :

JAMES ALLAN,	GEO. ALLAN,
ISAAC TRUMAN,	H. THOMPSON,
WM MOORE,	J. MARSH,
ROBERT HALL,	JEREMIAH RUDD,
W. HUTCHINSON,	THO. BURREL,
RHD. SCRUTON,	JOS. APPELEY,
GEO. RIDSDALE,	WM. CHAYTOR,
WM. NORTON, jun.	RA. TUNSTALL,
JOS. MORLEY,	FRA. LOWSON, jun.
THOMAS WATSON,	RD RICHARDSON,
WM. HOLLAN,	RD MEREWETHER,
THO. KITCHING,	JOSEPH DIXON,
RHD. HODGSON,	EDWARD LOWSON,
JOHN YORK,	THO. PIERSE, jun.
PHIL. CARTER,	JOHN PEASE,
WM. AUNGLE,	JOS. NICHOLSON,
JOHN WRIGHT,	HEN. CHAYTOR.
RHD. SHERWOOD,

* The motto on the Gorget is, "SECUNDUS HOC CONTENTUS ABITO."

† There was afterwards a Silver Cup added as a third prize, on which is engraven, "TERTIUS HOC CONTENTUS."

Bellack St
Aldergate St

W. H. D. P. 1814

Shooters at this meeting were,

ROBERT HALL,	THO. WATSON,
GEORGE ALLAN,	WM. MOORE,
RHD. HODGSON,	W. HUTCHINSON,
JOS. MORLEY,	GEO. RIDSDALE,
RHD. SHERWOOD,	JOHN WRIGHT,
THO. KITCHING,	WM. HOLLAN.

In September following, a Banner was added to the Medal and Gorget. On this Banner, which was of green silk, was embroidered or painted, several golden arrows, tied together with a riband, and furrounded by military trophies.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1758.

Shooters at this meeting were,

THO. KITCHING,	M. NICHOLSON,
THO. WATSON,	G. ALLAN,
RHD. HODGSON,	HEN. CHAYTOR,
THO. PIERSE,	WM. CHAYTOR,
JOHN WRIGHT,	ROBERT HALL.
JOS. MORLEY,

The Medal was won by Mr. ROBERT HALL, and the Gorget and Banner, by Mr. HENRY CHAYTOR.

MAY 11, 1759.

The Medal was won by Mr. THOMAS WATSON. The Gorget and Banner by Mr. ROBERT HALL.

SEPTEMBER 7, 1759.

Shooters at this meeting were,

THO. WATSON,	GEO. ALLAN,
ROBT. HALL,	RHD. HODGSON,
HUM. THOMPSON,	WM. AUNGLE.

Memorandum. The Medal not won this day. The Gorget was won by Mr. THOMAS WATSON, and the meeting adjourned to one o'clock the next day.

SEPTEMBER 8, 1759.

Shooters at this meeting were,

THO. WATSON,	RHD. HODGSON,
ROBERT HALL,	HUM. THOMPSON,
GEORGE ALLAN,	W. AUNGLE.

The Medal was won by Mr. ROBERT HALL. The Gorget by Mr. THOMAS WATSON.

MAY 13, 1760.

Shooters this day were,

ROBT. HALL,	THO. KITCHING,
THO. WATSON,	WM. HALL.
RHD. HODGSON,

The Medal was won by Mr. RICHARD HODGSON. The Gorget and Banner by Mr. THOMAS WATSON.

SEPTEMBER 5, 1760.

The Medal was won by Mr. ROBERT HALL. The Gorget by Mr. THOMAS WATSON.

MAY 14, 1761.

The Medal was won by Mr. THOMAS HALL. The Gorget was not shot for.

SEPTEMBER 11, 1761.

The Medal was won by Mr. ROBERT HALL. The Gorget by Mr. RICHARD HODGSON.

AYCLYFFE ARCHERS.

THIS Society met at Aycliffe, in the county of Durham, May the 24th, 1758, to shoot for a Silver Cup; but continued a very short time.

TOXOPHILITES.

THIS Society was formed by SIR ASHTON LEVER and Mr. WARING. For sometime they shot with few members; but with unwearied attention they have now increased their numbers to one hundred and fifty. They are patronised by his Royal Highness the PRINCE of WALES, and their President is the DUKE of NORFOLK.

WOODMEN OF ARDEN.

They practice under the patronage of the EARL of AYLESFORD, in Warwickshire.

ROYAL BRITISH BOWMEN,

Patronised by his Royal Highness the PRINCE of WALES. They were encouraged and supported by the late SIR WATKIN WILLIAMS WYNNÉ, his Lady, and most of the first families in the principality. A company of ladies join this Society, who are most expert in the exercise; as is proved by the excellent shooting of LADY CUNLIFF in particular.

The candidates for this Society are balloted for.—Six black balls exclude.—The subscription is only one guinea per annum. By way of practice, detachments meet weekly; but the grand-field day is once a fortnight, at each member's house in rotation. A collation is served under the Society's tent, a limitation is made as to the number of dishes; and the display of any thing hot is punished by a fine of five guineas.

A Gold and Silver Medal, with Druidical embellishments, are shot for each field-day. The gentlemen shoot at ninety, the ladies at only sixty yards distance. The uniform for the men is a green coat, white waistcoat and breeches, decorated with the Prince of Wales's plume buttons; the ladies' dress is white muslin and green ribbons.

ROYAL KENTISH BOWMEN,

Patronised also by the PRINCE of WALES. They have a most superb and elegant lodge, with a delightful shooting ground, at Dartford Heath in Kent.

ROBIN HOOD'S BOWMEN.

A set of Gentlemen who meet near Highgate, and are much increased of late years.

LOYAL ARCHERS.

FORMED on the 23d of April, 1789, the day of the general thanksgiving for the restoration of the King's health — They meet at Lewisham, where their lodge and shooting ground are pleasantly situated in a retired and rural spot.

THE HAINAULT FORESTERS.

THEY meet under the venerable Oak*, in the forest of that name in Essex. This Society

* The LORD WARDEN'S Records mention a Fair being held under this Oak for near two centuries back; and there are persons yet living (1792) who remember the shade of this wonderful tree covering a statute acre of ground. The middle of the stem is forty feet in circumference.

consists of ladies, as well as gentlemen, and are composed of the first families of the neighbourhood.

YORKSHIRE ARCHERS.

THIS Society was first formed in the Summer of the year 1789,—of whom it may be truly said, both with regard to their dexterity and respectability, that they are inferior to none.

They shot their first Target, May 3, 1790, at Chapel-Town near Leeds, at which meeting, CARR IBBETSON, Esq; . . . Capt. of the target.
 JOHN DIXON, Esq; Capt. of numbers.

JUNE 7, 1790,

Being the next monthly target, it was shot at Chapel-Town, by appointment of CARR IBBETSON, Esq; who, winning the Medal of Captain of the target, has, on that account, the appointment of the place where the next monthly meeting shall be held.

At this meeting

SAMUEL RODBARD, Esq; Capt. of the target.
 JOHN DIXON, Esq; Capt. of numbers.

JULY 5, 1790.

This target was shot at Chapel-Town.

HENRY DIXON, Esq; . . . Capt. of the target.
 JOHN DIXON, Esq; Capt. of numbers.

AUGUST 2, 1790.

This target was shot at the Granby, Harrogate.

THOMAS FENTON, Esq; . Capt. of the target.
JOHN DIXON, Esq; Capt. of numbers.

SEPTEMBER 6, 1790.

This target was shot at Chapel-Town.

WILLIAM LEE, Esq; . . . Capt. of the target.
JOHN DIXON, Esq; Capt. of numbers.

OCTOBER 4, 1790.

This target was shot at Ferrybridge.

THOMAS FENTON, Esq; . Capt. of the target.
HENRY DIXON, Esq; . . . Capt. of numbers.

MAY 2, 1791.

This target was shot at Chapel-Town.

SAMUEL RODBARD, Esq; Capt. of the target.
JOHN DIXON, Esq; Capt. of numbers.
THOMAS JAQUES, Esq; . . Lieut. of the target.
SAMUEL RODBARD, Esq; Lieut. of numbers.

JUNE 6, 1791.

This target was shot at Chapel-Town.

THOMAS JAQUES, Esq; . Capt. of the target.
JOHN DIXON, Esq; Capt. of numbers.
JOHN HANSON, Esq; Lieut. of the target.
THOMAS JAQUES, Esq; . . Lieut. of numbers.

JULY 4, 1791.

This target was shot at Heath, near Wakefield.

THOMAS JAQUES, Esq; . .	Capt. of the target.
SAMUEL RODBARD, Esq;	Capt. of numbers.
THOMAS WYBERG, Esq;	Lieut. of the target.
HENRY DIXON, Esq; . . .	Lieut. of numbers.

AUGUST 1, 1791.

This target was shot at the Granby, Harrogate.

THOMAS WYBERG, Esq;	Capt. of the target.
JOHN DIXON, Esq;	} Capt. of numbers. Lieut. of the target.
SAMUEL RODBARD, Esq;

SEPTEMBER 5, 1791.

This target was shot on Knavesmire, near York.

THOMAS FENFON, Esq;	Capt. of the target.
JOHN DIXON, Esq;	} Capt. of numbers. Lieut. of the target.
HENRY DIXON, Esq; . . .

OCTOBER 3, 1791.

This target was shot at Heath, near Wakefield.

JOHN DIXON, Esq;	Capt. of the target.
HENRY DIXON, Esq; . . .	} Capt. of numbers. Lieut. of the target.
THOMAS WYBERG, Esq;

Besides the above monthly meetings, the Yorkshire Archers had a target at the general meeting of all the Societies in England, held May 27, 1791, on Blackheath, and were within one arrow of gaining a Medal there shot for.

Their shooting uniform, is a plain green frock, and velvet cape of the same colour, with uniform buttons, white waistcoat and breeches, round black hat, uniform button and loop, with a white ostrich feather, white stockings, half boots, or black gaiters. — The dress uniform depends on the pleasure of the Lady Patrons.

The targets to be always shot at on public days, at the distance of one hundred yards.

The four Medals belonging to the Society to be transferable, and to be shot for at each of the six monthly meetings. — The Gold Medal for the Captain of the Target, to be gained by the most central shot during the day — the large Silver Medal to the Captain of Numbers, for the greatest number of shots in the targets — The Silver Medal for the second best shot; and the other Silver Medal for the Lieutenant of Numbers, having the second greatest number of shots in the targets.

The sum of Four Guineas is given by the Society to be shot for on each target day, and distributed in the following manner; viz. Each arrow, shot within the gold or centre circle of the targets, receive two shillings and sixpence; all arrows in the red or second circle, two shillings; those hitting the inner white or third circle, one shilling and sixpence; those in the black or fourth circle, one shilling, and those in the outer white or fifth circle, sixpence.

The Patron of the Society, EARL FITZ-WILLIAM — The Patroness, the COUNTESS of MEXBOROUGH.

The Society consists at present of seventy-four members, with four honorary ones.

The Ladies presented the Society last summer, with very elegant Colours, to be placed on the top of a large Tent belonging the Society, in which a company of eighty may with great convenience dine.

THE MERCIAN BOWMEN,

A very respectable Society, who meet on Summer Hill, near Coventry.

THE KENTISH RANGERS.

A Society who meet on Blackheath, and are formed of members who have separated from one of the other Societies.

SOUTHAMPTON ARCHERS,

Now Royal, being patronised by his Royal Highness the DUKE of GLOUCESTER.

BOWMEN OF CHEVY-CHACE,

Under the immediate patronage of the DUKE of NORTHUMBERLAND.

WOODMEN OF HORNSEY.

SURREY BOWMEN,

Who are also become Royal, having his Royal Highness the DUKE of CLARENCE as patron. This Society has of late been particularly distinguished, and promises to vie with any in point of dexterity and skill.

THE ARCHERS OF ARCHENFIELD,

Near Hereford, have been much spoken of, both for their dexterity and hospitality.

THE grand Annual Meeting of the following Societies of Archers, took place on Friday, the 27th of May, 1791, at Blackheath, viz.

HONOURABLE THE ARTILLERY COMPANY, in two divisions, SURREY BOWMEN, first division,
 ————— second division,
 HAINAUT FORESTERS,
 TOXOPHOLITES, first division,
 ————— second division,
 NORTHUMBERLAND ARCHERS,
 SHERWOOD FORESTERS,
 KENTISH RANGERS,
 KENTISH BOWMEN,
 LOYAL ARCHERS,
 WOODMEN OF ARDEN,
 ROBIN HOOD SOCIETY,
 YORKSHIRE ARCHERS,
 WOODMEN OF HORNSEY.

They were all dressed in green, with half-boots. Numbers of ladies were likewise dressed in the uniform of the Societies. Thirty-two targets were placed on the ground, and about a dozen of Archers appointed to shoot at each.—At twelve o'clock the shooting for the prizes commenced, and continued without intermission till three; when they retired to their tents, and partook of some refreshments. After which, the contest was renewed; and on examining the targets at six o'clock, Mr. RICKARDS, of the Toxophilite Society, appeared to be entitled to the Gold Medal; and Mr. RUSH of the Woodmen of Hornsey, to the Silver Medal. LORD AYLESBURY, having shot sixteen different times into the target, he was declared Captain of Numbers. The Archers afterwards returned to town, and dined together at the Thatched-House Tavern.

The Loyal Archers shot once into the Bull's Eye of the Target; the Yorkshire Archers once; the Toxophilite Society twice; the Robin Hood once; and the Woodmen of Hornsey twice.

Two persons were slightly wounded by standing too near the targets.

The tents were fancifully decorated with banners, proudly displaying the devices of the various orders of Archery.

THUS have we seen in the lapse of time, one of the most dangerous and destructive weapons of war laid aside, to make room for a novel invention; and English Archery, once the terror of foreign enemies, now changed into a pleasing, elegant, and healthful amusement. May we not wish for a similar alteration with regard to every other instrument invented for the destruction of men; and hope for the arrival of those peaceful days, so beautifully described by the poet——

No more shall nation against nation rise,
Nor ardent warriors meet with hateful eyes;
Nor fields with gleaming steel be cover'd o'er,
The brazen trumpets kindle rage no more;
But useless lances into scythes shall bend,
And the broad falchion in a plowshare end.

I N D E X.

	Page.		Page.
Achilles, . . .	6	Cambyfes, . . .	10
Alexander, . . .	11	Cretans, . . .	11
Athens, . . .	11	Cressley, . . .	33
Artillery Company,	13	Clifford, . . .	57
Agincourt, . . .	35	Charles I. . . .	59
Arrows, their shape and size . . .	71	Catherine of Portu- gal,	62
Arrow, how far one may be shot, . .	66	Clergy excepted from shooting . . .	45
Arrows, wood proper to make them of,	71	Demosthenes, . . .	11
Ayclyffe Archers,	91	Description of an Archer,	67
Bannock Burn, . .	27	Darlington Archers,	88
Bows, their price, &c.	56	Eneas,	8
Bows, every man to be possessed of one,	43	Esau,	5
Bows, height of . .	64	Ethiopians, . . .	10
Bow strings, . . .	71	Edward II. . . .	27
Bows to be made of eugh,	71	Edward III. . . .	33
British Bowmen, . .	92	Edward IV. . . .	43
Bowmen of Chevy Chace,	99	Elland (Sir John)	30
Butts to be erected in every town, . .	43	Fortescue, . . .	35
Bow Makers, . . .	72	Flowden Field, . .	45
Cyrus,	9	Finsbury Archers .	86
		Fathers to provide bows and arrows for their sons . .	44
		Glove (shooting)	71

	Page.		Page.
Herodotus, . . .	10	Romans, . . .	12
Hatherfage, . . .	25	Richard I. . . .	17
Hamildon, . . .	34	Robin Hood, . . .	18
Henry IV. . . .	35	Richard III. . . .	44
Henry V. . . .	35	Richmond Archers, 87
Henry VII. . . .	44	Robin Hood's Bow-
Henry VIII. . . .	44	men,	93
Hainault Foresters, 93		Saul, king of Israel, 5
Jonathan,	5	Strongbow, Richard, 17
Isaiah	11	Stanton, Elizabeth, 25
Jeremiah,	11	Shrewsbury, battle of, 35
James I. of Scotland, 40		Scotland,	68
Jenkins Henry, - 46		Scorton Archers . 74
King, (John) of Hip-		Southampton Archers, 99
perholm	60	Surrey Bowmen, . 99
Kentish Bowmen, 93		Stakes for Archers, 66
Kentish Rangers . 98		Servants obliged to
Locrians,	7	shoot,	34
Leo,	12	Tell, William, . . .	26
London Archers, 58		Towton,	41
Loyal Archers, . 93		Topham,	65
Lancashire Archers, 73		Toxopholites, . . .	91
Mercian Bowmen, 98		Ulyffes,	7
Paris son of Priam, 6		William the Norman, 14
Pandarus,	6	William Rufus, . . .	16
Pedigree of Robin		Wharfdale Archers, 86
Hood,	20	Woodmen of Arden, 92
Plato,	11	Woodmen of Horn-
Parthians,	12	fey,	99
Poicters,	34	Yorkshire Archers, 94
Prince Henry, . . .	59

1971

1971

1971

3 1158 00165 3491

92

UC SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

AA 000 606 470 3

