CURRENT LAW

A COMPLETE ENCYCLOPÆDIA
OF NEW LAW

VOLUME I.

ABANDONMENT TO FINES

GEORGE FOSTER LONGSDORF
EDITOR IN CHIEF

ST. PAUL, MINN.
KEEFE-DAVIDSON COMPANY
1904.

WEBB PUBLISHING CO. PRESS, ST. PAUL, MINN.

TOPICAL INDEX.

[REFERENCES ARE TO PAGES.]

A.

B.

C.

D.

CURRENT LAW.

(Copyrighted 1903, by John B. West Company.)

VOLUME I. AUGUST, 1903. NUMBER 1.

ABATEMENT AND REVIVAL.[1]

It is not attempted here to treat of criminal prosecutions,[2] nor of bills of revivor[3] or revival of judgments[4] or statute-barred causes of action.[5] Various writs are abatable for defects, which matters are not germane to this title.[6]

§ 1. Causes for abatement.—The pendency of another action[7] having the same object[8] and the same parties[9] and prior in time[10] is cause for abatement. It makes no difference that the prior one may prove ineffectual if it be legally capable of affording a remedy;[11] nor will the jurisdiction of the former court be determined on a plea.[12]

If discontinued or otherwise terminated, the suit or action is no longer pending.[13] It is still pending though appealed,[14] though it is not so regarded where, for instance, only one item of a judicial accounting is appealed,[15] nor is it sufficient to merely allege that it has been appealed from and is incorrect.[16] What

1. Abatement of legacies, see Wills; of nuisance, see Nuisance; of taxes, see Taxes.

2. Criminal Law; Criminal Procedure.

3. Equity.

4. Judgments.

5. Limitation of Actions.

6. Attachment, and like titles.

7. Kansas City S. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 106 La. 583; two mandamus proceedings—U. S. v. N. & W. R. Co., 114 Fed. 682; foreign garnishment not cause to abate but reason for stay—Margarum v. Moon (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 179. Pendency of a chancery proceeding to set aside a will does not abate a proceeding before a probate court when the two are concurrent—Wright v. Simpson, 200 Ill. 56.

8. Berliner Gramaphone Co. v. Seaman, 111 Fed. 679; action for price and replevin for goods—Cobb v. Cullen Bros. & Lewis Steel Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 179; partition of land and action respecting personalty only—Robinson v. Ripprecht, 191 Ill. 424; ejectment and injunction against excluding from possession—Shaughnessy v. St. Andrew's Church (Neb.) 89 N. W. 263; mandamus to furnish cars for a shipment identical with mandamus to furnish a certain number of cars—U. S. v. N. & W. R. Co., 114 Fed. 682; action on note pending one to quiet title acquired on sale to pay the debt—Davidson v. Jefferson (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 822; action for money and bonds in state court defeated by prior suit by a defendant for same in federal court and restraining delivery to any other person—State v. Tallman (Wash.) 69 Pac. 1115; allegations of the pendency of a cross bill which did not seek foreclosure of a note but merely brought in trustees of a deed of trust to secure it, held not to state abatable matter since the cross bill did not ask for a recovery of the debt—Walker v. Washington Title Ins. Co., 19 App. D. C. 575.

9. Dodge v. Cornelius, 168 N. Y. 242. All must be identical—Level Land Co. v. Sivyer, 112 Wis. 442. They are not identical where a person was party as executor in one action and as heir in the other—Foster v. Foster, 24 Ky. Law R. 1396.

10. Dodge v. Cornelius, 168 N. Y. 242.

11. Orman v. Lane, 130 Ala. 305; limited jurisdiction of court in which prior suit brought—Ralli v. Pearsall, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 254; unlawful detainer and prior injunction against landlord's exercise of right to terminate lease—Carmack v. Drum, 27 Wash. 382, 67 Pac. 808.

12. Wilson v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co., 115 Ga. 171.

13. Discontinuance—Succession of Wiemann, 106 La. 307; judgment on demurrer—Burnett v. Southern R. Co., 62 S. C. 281; abatement by death—Overlock v. Shinn (Wash.) 68 Pac. 436; dismissal without prejudice—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Riddle's Adm'x, 24 Ky. Law R. 1687; suit to recover purchase money discontinued and suit to specifically enforce conveyance brought—Holt v. McWilliams, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 137.

14. Orman v. Lane, 130 Ala. 305. Undetermined appeal from settlement of guardian's account operating as a supersedeas prevents action on bond—Municipal Court v. McDonough, 24 R. I. 498, 53 Atl. 866.

15. Saloman v. People, 191 Ill. 290.

16. Action against guardian's sureties pending appeal from final settlement—Chase v. Wright (Iowa) 90 N. W. 357.

is a pendency may also be ascertained in other titles,[17] and further authorities and precedents upon identity of causes of action may be found elsewhere.[18]

Improper splitting of a cause of action is a ground of abatement,[19] as is a misjoinder or a nonjoinder;[20] but, when the law of the place allows foreign contractors to be severally sued, they may be so sued in the forum.[21] Under acts permitting continuance in the original plaintiff's name, he may recover in his own name though he has transferred in part,[22] and the objection that plaintiff is not the real party in interest is untenable.[23]

Death abates the action though the statute reads no action shall "abate," etc., but it may be "revived."[24] Under the code practice, equitable actions abate by death the same as law actions.[25]

Mandamus to enforce an officer's personal rather than official duty does not abate by expiration of his term.[26]

Changing the personnel of an official board which has corporate power of succession does not change its legal existence.[27] Nothing short of a final discharge of receivers will abate an action against them.[28] The death of one co-plaintiff[29] or co-defendant in tort does not destroy the action either at statute or common law.[30]

§ 2. Raising objections; waiver.[31]—They are waived by going to trial,[32] and the plea must precede an answer to the merits[33] or a motion for continuance[34] or entry of an office judgment, unless the cause of abatement arise subsequently;[35] but it may be made without further time given to answer.[36] A former officer of a defunct corporation served in proceedings against it may object that the dissolution has abated the action.[37] One to the privilege of defendant may be made on answer without special appearance.[38]

17. Actions; Limitation of Actions (as to when "commenced").

18. Election of Remedies; Former Adjudication.

19. Fox v. Phyfe, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 207; King v. King, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 63.

20. 1 Enc. Pl. & Pr. pp. 13, 14. As to what is misjoinder and nonjoinder, see post. Causes of Action, Parties, and titles treating of particular proceedings, such as Partition.

21. Richards v. McNemee, 87 Mo. App. 396.

22. Civ. Code, § 40; McKnight v. Bertram, H. & P. Co., (Kan.) 70 Pac. 345.

23. Code Civ. Proc. § 385; Stufflebeem v. Adelsbach, 135 Cal. 221, 67 Pac. 140.

24. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. 4837; Overlock v. Shinn (Wash.) 68 Pac. 436.

25. Overlock v. Shinn (Wash.) 68 Pac. 436.

26. Kas v. State (Neb.) 88 N. W. 776.

27. Murphy v. Utter, 186 U. S. 95, 46 Law. Ed. 1070.

28. Order to receivers to surrender property to owner—Cowen v. Merriman, 17 App. D. C. 186.

29. Heald v. Wallace (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 80.

30. (Pub. St. c. 165, § 12), a statute providing for the continuation of an action in which there are several plaintiffs or defendants, if the cause be one which survives, means that it must be one which survives to the remaining plaintiffs or against remaining defendants—Brown v. Kellogg (Mass.) 65 N. E. 378; Duis v. Fisher, 23 Ky. Law R. 1425.

31. Consult, also, Parties, Pleadings, Appeal and Review (Reversible Error). A plea alleging that decedent's interest was a homestead held sufficient to raise the question that the administrator did not succeed to it—Finlayson v. Love (Fla.) 33 So. 306. Allegations that the person served was not qualified to receive service should with certainty allege that such was the case when service was made—Ohio Oil Co. v. Griest (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 534. An allegation that an action on a mortgage debt was pending, is demurrable in a foreclosure action unless it alleges that the other action was "without leave of court" (Code Civ. Proc. § 1628)—Schieck v. Donohue, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 321. In Indiana if the prematurity of the action does not appear on the face of the complaint the abatement should be urged by answer—Burns' Rev. St. § 346; Middaugh v. Wilson (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 555.

32. Yarbrough v. De Martin (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 177. Plea of another action pending must be ruled on—Foster v. Foster, 24 Ky. Law R. 1396.

33. Price v. Garvin (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 985; Huntington Mfg. Co. v. Schofield, 28 Ind. App. 95; Baker v. Union Stock Yards Nat. Bank (Neb.) 89 N. W. 269. Answering to the merits at same time is waiver—Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Bartes (Neb.) 90 N. W. 901; unless made subject to the plea in abatement—Kahn v. Southern B. & L. Ass'n, 115 Ga. 459.

34. Indiana, etc., R. Co., v. Cohoon, 95 Ill. App. 92.

35. Empire C. & C. Co. v. Hull C. & C. Co., 51 W. Va. 474.

36. Horn v. Noble, 95 Ill. App. 101.

37. Board of Councilmen v. Deposit Bank 120 Fed. 165.

38. Baker v. Union Stock Yards Nat. Bank (Neb.) 89 N. W. 269.

United States courts may require the objection to be by plea though under the local practice it is to be made by answer.[39]

Parties not joined must be named and shown to be within the jurisdiction,[40] and if jurisdiction of the court be assailed it must be denied and also alleged to be in another court.[41] A general allegation that the former court had jurisdiction under the declaration filed sufficiently avers it, and the jurisdiction is not a matter for determination.[42]

Evidence on the merits may be submitted with that on the question under the plea so that the jury may assess the damages if they find for plaintiff on the plea.[43] Not only pleadings but also the evidence and the judgment in another suit pending on appeal may be considered to ascertain its identity with the one at bar.[44] Slight evidence will rebut an inference of vexatiousness in a second action.[45]

§ 3. Survivability of causes of action.[46]—Since it affects a right, the law of the place and not of the forum governs.[47] Survival does not depend on the bringing of suit before the injured person dies.[48] When a cause is in judgment, it survives, though an appeal be pending from an order granting a new trial.[49] An official action does not abate by the death of plaintiff officer.[50] Personal actions in tort do not survive at common law.[51] An action is not ex delicto which seeks to cancel conveyances in which an agent had profited adversely to his principal and to enforce a trust thereon, though the same facts might have sustained an action in tort.[52] Personal injuries which by some statutes are made to survive will include such injuries by a railroad company.[53] A law attaching survivability to causes of action for personal injury is not limited by a law giving a right of action for damages resulting from the death of a person by defendant's wrongful act, hence recovery under the former act may include damages for pain, suffering, expenses and losses.[54]

Criminal conversation and loss of society is a "damage to the person" which dies with the person.[55] So is an action for mental anguish due to delaying a telegram,[56] and malicious prosecution, though business and property be consequentially damaged.[57] Negligence in exposing a servant to danger of an assault is an "action for assault" which abates.[58] Conspiracy to defeat a judgment

39. Whelan v. Rio Grande W. R. Co., 111 Fed. 326.

In Tennessee, allegations of fact giving the right to an attachment in equity must be denied by plea—Templeton v. Mason, 107 Tenn. 625.

40. Cone v. Cone, 61 S. C. 512. Allegations that a chattel mortgage was such that the right to the security and to enforcement of it vested in plaintiff with another does not plead his nonjoinder in replevin.—Swift v. Bank of Washington, 114 Fed. 643.

41. Kahn v. Southern B. & L. Ass'n, 115 Ga. 459.

42. Wilson v. Atlanta, K. & N. Ry. Co., 115 Ga. 171.

43. Italian-Swiss Colony v. Pease, 194 Ill. 98.

44. U. S. v. N. & W. Ry. Co., 114 Fed. 682.

45. A mere affidavit will—Citizens' St. R. Co. v. Shepherd (Ind. App.) 62 N. E. 300.

46. Where a seduced woman was not confined until after the death of her father, the mother cannot recover because the right to the daughter's services at the time of the tort was in the father—Hamilton v. Long, 36 Irish L. T.-R. 189, discussed 16 Harvard Law Rev. 298.

47. Sander's Adm'x v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 111 Fed. 708.

48. Rev. St. 1895, art. 3353a, personal injuries—Gulf C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 559.

49. Crawford v. C. R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mo.) 66 S. W. 350.

50. McDonald v. Algea, 96 Ill. 79.

51. Wetherell v. Chicago City R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 357.

52. Keys v. McDermott (Wis.) 93 N. W. 553.

53. Sayles Ann. Civ. St., art. 3353a; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Ginther (Tex.) 72 S. W. 166.

54. Rev. St. c. 3, § 123; c. 70, § 1; Wetherell v. Chicago City R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 357.

55. Pub. St., c. 165, § 1, death of defendant—Dixon v. Amerman (Mass.) 63 N. E. 1057.

56. Code, § 1491; Morton v. W. U. Tel. Co., 130 N. C. 299.

57. Porter v. Mack, 50 W. Va. 581.

58. Ky. St., § 10; Lewis' Adm'r v. Taylor Coal Co., 23 Ky. Law R. 2218.

creditor is not a tort to the judgment as property, and hence dies.[59] An action to recover damages under the statute against unlawful trusts and combinations is not abatable under a statute applying to personal torts.[60] Both by common law and the Virginia statute, an action to recover money from an official, which was paid under protest to prevent an unlawful seizure, survives him.[61] A stockholder's representatives may recover from directors for deceit by which a purchase of stock was induced.[62] In New York a bank may sue administrators for negligence of an officer.[63]

The death of the injured person does not abate the liability to punitive damages.[64] In Tennessee, if all the persons entitled to benefit of an action for wrongfully causing death be themselves dead, the action abates.[65] The contrary is the rule in Kentucky[66] and Pennsylvania.[67]

Actions against a corporation do not survive its dissolution by virtue of statutes authorizing continuance of actions against executors of wrongdoers.[68] A corporation dissolved by repeal of its charter is not within a provision saving the right to sue corporations which expire.[69] A law providing that vested rights shall not be impaired by the legislature when it repeals a charter does not protect causes of action against the corporation from dying with its dissolution.[70] Not even a bill to review a decree entered before the dissolution will lie against a defunct corporation.[71] The action does not die with the civil death of defendant.[72] A partnership's cause of action survives its dissolution.[73]

Contempt to enforce a decree is not a criminal proceeding which abates on defendant's death.[74]

A surviving joint contracting party may sue.[75] Though a creditor's right to sue fraudulently preferred creditors may have abated, he may proceed with the action against other fraudulent attaching creditors.[76]

§ 4. Revival and continuance.—Revivor by motion under the New York Code is a substitute for revivor by bill and adopts the rule as to laches and limitations by analogy. Mere lapse of time alone is not enough. It is allowable at discretion, after the period of limitation, where the cause stands on an interlocutory judgment.[77] Reasonable time will be given if there has been no

59. Jenks v. Hoag, 179 Mass. 583.

60. Code Civ. Proc., § 455; Cleland v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 806.

61. Code Va. 1887, § 2655; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 Law. Ed. 713.

62. Squiers v. Thompson, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 552.

63. Seventeenth Ward Bank v. Smith, 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 228.

64. Where "trespasser" has died—Code, 1917; Wagner v. Gibbs (Miss.) 31 So. 434. In Texas, where personal injuries survive, the recovery may include mental anguish and pain suffered by deceased to the time of death—Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 559.

65. Sander's Adm'x v. L. & N. R. Co., 111 Fed. 408.

66. Thomas' Adm'r v. Maryville Gas Co., 23 Ky. Law R. 1879.

67. Haggerty v. Pittston, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 151.

68. But in New York former directors may be sued after dissolution—Shayne v. Evening Post Pub. Co., 168 N. Y. 70. In Kentucky the law has been repealed allowing corporations to be sued after dissolution for the purpose of winding up their affairs. Acts Ky. 1891-93, c. 203, effected the repeal by re-enacting the previous laws, omitting however that provision—Board of Councilmen v. Deposit Bank, 120 Fed. 165.

69. Ky. St., § 561; Board of Councilmen v. Deposit Bank, 120 Fed. 165.

70. Ky. St., § 1987; Board of Councilmen v. Deposit Bank, 120 Fed. 165.

71. Board of Councilmen v. Deposit Bank, 120 Fed. 165.

72. "Actio personalis moritur cum persona" means natural death—Shayne v. Evening Post Pub. Co., 168 N. Y. 70.

73. O'Shea v. Kavanaugh (Neb.) 91 N. W. 578.

74. Hannah v. People, 198 Ill. 77.

75. Northness v. Hillestad (Minn.) 91 N. W. 1112.

76. Civ. Code, § 500, subd. 2; Chestnut v. Russell, 24 Ky. Law R. 704.

77. Code Civ. Proc. § 757. Held not improper to allow a revival after many years and numerous changes of interest and the death of all the parties, great injustice being avoided and no prejudice appearing; dictum that delay need not be ten years—Jones v. Jones, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 5, citing many cases; affirmed 171 N. Y. 653.

delay.[78] It may be allowed against administrators who have appeared, though the short statute would but for such appearance have run.[79] A continuance "on motion" against an administrator or transferee must be upon notice.[80]

The new party must ordinarily be brought in,[81] but in many states substitution of a pendente lite transferee is unnecessary.[82] An action to compel a guardian to account may be continued without substitution, or substitution may be made upon suggestion, since the "cause of action" is one which survives under the New York Code.[83] Succession in office is a "transfer of interest" other than death, admitting of a continuance in the name of the original party.[84]

A widow who is sole beneficiary of the will is within a provision that "heirs" may continue when there is no administration and no need for one.[85] The administrator of the only person entitled to recover for wrongful death of another may continue the action.[86] Actions on simple contract debts are not to be revived against heirs.[87] In Indiana a corporation director's statutory liability is enforceable against his administrator.[88] The administrator and heirs may, in Massachusetts, rescind a conveyance obtained by fraud.[89] The successor in office of an official party and not a personal representative must continue the action.[90] The "right of action" after appeal is the right to reverse the judgment. It survives to co-defendants under the statute.[91]

New pleadings are not always essential.[92] If one municipal organization succeeds another with no change in name, population or territory, the action proceeds without change in pleadings.[93] Executors should continue the action "as" executors.[94]

Subject or object of action revived.—If the cause of action changes pendente 78. Tilghman v. Paxson Co., 115 Fed. 906; Same v. Foundry Co., Id.

79. Phil & Read C. & I. Co. v. Butler (Mass.) 63 N. E. 949.

80. Mills, Ann. Code, § 15; Symes v. Charpiot (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 311; Code Civ. Proc. § 756; Betts v. De Selding (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 799.

81. Symes v. People (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 312. Under the act of amendments and jeofails, the name of another person may be substituted for that of the nominal plaintiff. —Congress Const. Co. v. Farson & Libbey Co., 199 Ill. 398.

82. May or may not be done—Parker v. Taylor (Neb.) 91 N. W. 537. In New York an ancillary receiver of a foreign corporation need not be substituted unless so ordered.—Code Civ. Proc. §§ 755, 756; Sigma Iron Co. v. Brown, 171 N. Y. 488. The transferee may be substituted—Statute 1893, § 3912; Bradford v. Brown (Okl.) 71 Pac. 655. The personal representative of an assignee may in New York continue the action though the assignee had in turn assigned to another person—Code Civ. Proc. §§ 756, 757; Betts v. De Selding (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 799. See Parties, Pleading; as to mode of substituting parties.

83. Code Civ. Proc. § 755; abatement by ward's majority—Smith v. Mingey, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 103, affirmed, 172 N. Y. 650.

84. Action by tax collector—Code Civ. Proc., § 385; Sheehan v. Osborne (Cal.) 69 Pac. 842.

85. 1 Rev. St., art. 1246; Yarbrough v. De Martin (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 177.

86. Haggerty v. Pittston, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 151.

87. Buck v. Hogeboom (Neb.) 88 N. W. 857.

88. "All causes * * * not otherwise exempt survive"; see statute—Brown v. Clow (Ind.) 62 N. E. 1006.

89. Parker v. Simpson, 180 Mass. 334. Since the right to continue an action depends on the devolution of the interest, the following titles will afford further precedents—Descent and Distribution; Estates of Decedents.

90. Hurd's St. 1897, p. 103, § 19; McDonald v. Algeo, 96 Ill. App. 79.

91. Jameson v. Bartlett (Neb.) 88 N. W. 860.

An order continuing action in the survivor's name on the original pleadings, he having succeeded to the whole interest continues the entire cause of action—McPhillips v. Fitzgerald, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 15. The assignee of the beneficiary interests under a policy may be substituted for the insured who died after bringing action to reform the policy as to premiums payable and to recover the surrendered value and damages for breach of contract. He succeeds to the entire claim. (Code Civ. Proc. § 756, 757)—Hunt v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 338.

92. Warren v. Robison (Utah) 70 Pac. 989. In Washington, under the statutes, a pendente lite assignee who comes in on motion must file a supplemental pleading, but it may be done afterwards—Powell v. Nolan, 27 Wash. 318, 67 Pac. 712.

93. Mobile Transp. Co. v. City of Mobile, 128 Ala. 335.

94. Suing as "A., executor," etc., not sufficient—Jenkins v. Bramlett, 131 Ala. 597.

lite, but before the death, the revival will be on the substituted new cause of action.[95]

ABDUCTION.[96]

In Tennessee it is no defense that the girl requested an elopement.[97]

The indictment need not allege the chastity of the woman when her unchastity is mere matter of defense.[98] An allegation of a taking for "prostitution and concubinage" is not double but merely charges two intents to the same offense which is proper.[99] For the purpose of proving age the inscription over the grave of one born at the same time as the abducted female may be received.[1] The prosecutrix should be corroborated.[2] Her testimony that she was taken to a certain place is not sufficiently corroborated by the fact that she was seen there with accused and others,[3] but the testimony of another woman alleged to have also been abducted at the same time is admissible for corroboration.[4] An instruction is erroneous which submits only a taking for concubinage under an indictment for taking for concubinage, prostitution or marriage. The same is true of one which requires an acquittal if the taking was simply for the purpose of "intercourse alone" since that excludes a taking for marriage.[5] Unchastity being a defense is not for the state to disprove, but for accused to prove and it is sufficient that his evidence raises a reasonable doubt.[6]

ABORTION.[7]

Unlawfully procuring a miscarriage consists in unlawfully destroying the human foetus or in causing it to be born before its time.[8] It is not essential to a conviction that a miscarriage resulted from the use of the instrument where the statute defines as a crime the use of it with intent to produce a miscarriage,[9] nor any defense that the woman consented.[10] Administering does not involve any element of compulsion.[11] The specific intent to produce an abortion must exist.[12] An affidavit on which an information is based may contain separate counts charging

95. Defendant died after giving statutory bond to release property from mechanic's lien. Action is revivable against bond and not land and heirs.—Holmes v. Humphreys (Mass.) 63 N. E. 396.

96. See, also, general matters of law and practice in Criminal Law; Criminal Procedure; Indictments and Informations; Clark and Marshall Crimes.

97. Shannon's Code, § 6462; Griffin v. State (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 61.

98. Shannon's Code, § 6462; Griffin v. State (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 61.

99. Shannon's Code, §§ 6462, 7084, 7086; Griffin v. State (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 61.

1. Boyett v. State, 130 Ala. 77; general appearance of girl and statements of accused, received in rape case—People v. Elco (Mich.) 91 N. W. 755; declarations of the woman inadmissible where she was not asked while testifying if she made them—State v. Deputy, 3 Pennewill (Del.) 19.

2. Evidence of physician that the girl had had sexual intercourse but not fixing a time and evidence of a witness who saw prosecutrix and another girl with a man not identified as accused held not corroborative of the prosecutrix—People v. Swasey, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 185. Corroboration of female victim of other sexual crimes see Rape, Seduction, and corroboration of accomplices, see Criminal Procedure.

3. Charge was "taking to house of prostitution"—People v. Miller, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 592.

4. Pen. Code, § 283; People v. Panyko, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 324, affirmed, 64 N. E. 1124.

5. Request by defendant, refused—Boyett v. State, 130 Ala. 77; request refused because already covered—Griffin v. State (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 61.

6. Griffin v. State (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 61.

7. See, also, general matters of law and practice in Criminal Law; Criminal Procedure; Indictments, etc., and see Clark and Marshall Crimes.

8. 17 Del. Laws, c. 226; State v. Magnell (Del. Gen. Sess.) 3 Pennewill, 307, 51 Atl. 606.

9. 17 Del. Laws, c. 226; State v. Magnell (Del. Gen. Sess.) 3 Pennewill, 307, 51 Atl. 606.

10. State v. Magnell (Del. Gen. Sess.) 3 Pennewill, 307, 51 Atl. 606.

11. State v. Jones (Del. Gen. Sess.) 53 Atl. 853.

12. Rev. Code, p. 930; § 2; State v. Jones (Del. Gen. Sess.) 53 Atl. 853.

different methods of producing the abortion.[13] An allegation of the specific intent sufficiently negatives the administering of medicine for any lawful purposes of saving life.[14] Proof of a time prior to that charged is no variance.[15] Motive may be shown by the fact that accused was the father and it is admissible that he proposed to others that they have intercourse with the woman.[16] Intent may be proved by admissions, acts of concealment or other circumstances,[17] or inferred from the entire transaction.[18] The woman may testify whether in her opinion accused intended to produce an abortion or as he claimed to treat for a venereal disease.[19] Reputation for morality and decency may be shown consisting in what is generally said about the accused respecting such traits.[20] An attempt must be proved by showing the use of means adequate to produce the effect and not merely by showing a prescription of it.[21] An instruction may follow the statute.[22]

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE.[23]

These are historical briefs or synopses of the written evidences of title to land or of the records of such titles.[24] The obligation to provide one is usually upon the purchaser, though it is very frequently a matter of the contract.[25] Public abstracts in Mississippi must be kept up, and the clerk may recover the stated abstracting fee from the owner of each subdivision of land.[26] An abstracter is liable for errors caused by failure to exercise ordinary care even though the purchaser procured the abstract through an undisclosed agency.[27]

ACCESSION AND CONFUSION OF PROPERTY.

The former of these terms signifies the incorporation of property with or its fixed annexation to other property so that the ownership of that added is acquired by the owner of that to which it is added. Confusion differs in being an intermixture of chattels of the same species into an inseparable mass to the loss of that owner who, without the other's consent, so intermixes.[28] A form of accession results from giving the character of fixtures to any structure attached to land.[29] The innocent maker of improvements may ordinarily be reimbursed.[30] Improvements made by mistake merely are not recoverable in Rhode Island.[31] A creditor may sometimes enforce his rights against improvements made by the debtor on another's land.[32] Equity may afford relief in addition to statutory remedies to 13. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1813; on information—Diehl v. State, 157 Ind. 549.

14. State v. Jones (Del. Gen. Sess.) 53 Atl. 858.
15. State v. Magnell (Del. Gen. Sess.) 3 Pennewill, 307, 51 Atl. 606.
16. Fretwell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 1021.
17. State v. Magnell (Del. Gen. Sess.) 3 Pennewill, 307, 51 Atl. 606.
18. State v. Jones (Del. Gen. Sess.) 53 Atl. 858.
19. State v. Pierce, 85 Minn. 101.
20. State v. Jones (Del. Gen. Sess.) 53 Atl. 858.
21. Ergot was prescribed but too small a dose was taken—Fretwell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 1021; sufficiency of evidence and particulars of proof—State v. Magnell (Del. Gen. Sess.) 3 Pennewill, 307, 51 Atl. 606.
22. Fretwell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 1021.
23. Abstracts of title auxiliary to pleadings in trespass to try title, see Trespass to Try Title.
24. Cyc. Law Dict., "Abstracts."
25. 1 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 213.
26. Code, 1892, § 301; L. 1898, p. 59, § 1991w; Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Edwards, 78 Miss. 950.
27. Purchaser's omission to pay undisclosed judgment though in funds and intending to clear all incumbrances sufficient to prove reliance on abstract—Young v. Lohr (Iowa) 92 N. W. 684.
28. Cyc. Law Dict., "Accession"; "Confusion."
29. See Fixtures.
30. Occupying grantee given reimbursement against grantee who first recorded—Penrose v. Doherty, 70 Ark. 256. Contra if he had no title and did have notice—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Barber (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 393; Willis v. McKinnon, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 386.
31. Made by dowress on lands not of inheritance—Olney v. Weaver, 24 R. I. 408.
32. National Valley Bank v. Hancock, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 20, 40 S. E. 611.

improving occupants.[33] Attempted conveyances to the grantees may tend to prove their good faith in improving.[34]

There is no confusion by a debtor who mingles surrendered collaterals with his other property, though he also fails to substitute other property of the same species for collateral as agreed.[35] The owner of innocently confused goods may recover his share in specie out of the common mass, without showing that there was any intention to thwart identification.[36] As against an innocent purchaser from the wrongdoing owner, the real owner may select the equivalent of his own.[37] A levying creditor may have satisfaction out of the entire stock of one with whose merchandise the debtor's was commingled in fraud of the creditor.[38] Priority is given the beneficiary of trust property which has been commingled if the mass has been benefited in consequence.[39]

A separation need not be demanded before suing, where the confusion makes it impossible.[40] A sheriff must not be directed to levy on a certain number of chattels as they average, for the purpose of effecting a division. That would be a judicial act. A partition must be resorted to.[41]

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.[42]

§ 1. The accord. A. In general.—An accord is the making of a new agreement in substitution for the old liability or right.[43] Rights under a will may be 33. Mercer v. Justice, 63 Kan. 225, 65 Pac. 219.

34. Invalid because husband did not join—Nolan v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 785.

35. Samson v. Rouse, 72 Vt. 422.

36. In replevin—Rust Land & Lumber Co. v. Isom, 70 Ark. 99.

37. Blodgett v. Seals, 78 Miss. 522.

38. Eldridge v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 955.

39. Kansas State Bank v. First State Bank, 62 Kan. 788, 64 Pac. 634; Meystedt v. Grace, 86 Mo. App. 178; Pearson v. Haydel, 90 Mo. App. 253.

40. Vaughn v. Rhode Island M. & T. Co., 24 R. I. 350.

41. Two herds mortgaged to different persons and then allowed to mingle—Belcher v. Cassidy Bros. Live Stock Commission Co., (Tex. Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 924.

42. "Payment" as a discharge of obligations expressed in money, see Payment and Tender; seaman's release, see Shipping and Water Traffic.

43. Cyc. Law Dict. "Accord." If the original liability was ex contractu, the result is a Novation, q. v., as to the requisites of a novation. A release may be and usually is only a writing declaring the terms of an accord and satisfaction. See Releases. Compositions with Creditors also usually involve accords and satisfactions but with the peculiarity that an obligation between the creditors also results. Accepting orders for goods on account of wages not yet due—Martin-Alexander Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 70 Ark. 215. An accord is shown by an agreement by a debtor to pay interest to the creditor and a release of the debt excepting only such interest to be paid—Price's Adm'x v. Price's Adm'x, 23 Ky. Law R. 1911, 1947. Taking from one who had converted money a note executed by the person to whom it had been loaned is not a discharge of liability for the conversion—Black v. Black (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 928. One who pledges borrowed property and borrows money of the owner to redeem continues his liability in an other debt—Dibble v. Richardson, 171 N. Y. 131.

Interpretation.—Agreement between heirs of the mortgagor claiming as remaindermen and the mortgagee, to pro rate the moneys derived from mortgage sale according to a scale indicated—Ex parte Felder, 61 S. C. 523; Felder v. Vose, Id; releasing a certificate held not an intended release of one already issued in lieu of the original—Western Loan & Sav. Co. v. Desky, 24 Utah, 347, 68 Pac. 141. A settlement between original owners who had deeded land and taken a reconveyance of it as security, and the grantees (and debtors) held to release all claims by the original owner—Adams v. Hopkins (Cal.) 69 Pac. 228. A contract held not to have included satisfaction for a libel committed on the same day merely because the contract was a general settlement of "all controversies"—Wallace v. Homestead Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 835. A compromise of judgments in consideration of compromises by other creditors and one with the same creditor in consideration of the first recited held to be one contract—Dyer v. Muhlenberg County (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 586. Discharge from "any and all liability on judgments" for sum specified includes liability for costs and interest—Dyer v. Muhlenberg County (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 586. "Relinquish and cancel all book accounts, contracts and demands existing" includes all mutual accounts—Kentucky River Lumber Co. v. Moore-Whipple Lumber Co., 24 Ky. Law R. 587. A release on consideration of building a wall to protect a foundation does not discharge further damage due to faulty design of the protecting wall—Paterson Extension R. Co., v. Rector, etc., of Church of Holy Communion (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 449; family settlement construed to include a guaranty that a share should equal a certain sum—Chauvet v.

the subject of a settlement.[44] It must be understood and assented to, that a part payment is accepted in full[45] and a protest against correctness with notice of a claim will be overcome by such an acceptance.[46] If a cash payment be made with a promise for further payment, it is inferred that the offer is accepted.[47] Accepting a check from an agent known to have authority to effect only full settlement shows an accord and satisfaction.[48]

An agent may effect a compromise.[49] An attorney has presumed authority to compromise a suit,[50] but acts by an agent in substituting his own liability for a debtor's must be brought home to his principal.[51]

Trustees in bankruptcy[52] and executors and guardians under many statutes may effect compromises if for the good of the estate.[53] If the executor as an heir joins with the other heirs it is valid.[54] A satisfaction accepted by the sole heir and next of kin is made good in its origin by the subsequent appointment of such person as administrator.[55]

An agreement to discontinue a pending action without further costs is broken by the entry by plaintiff's attorney of a judgment to protect his lien thereby imposing more costs.[56]

B. The consideration may move from a third person,[57] as where he indorses notes for lesser amount which are accepted in full,[58] or it may move to a third

Ives, 62 App. Div. (N. Y.) 339; affirmed, 173 N. Y. 192.

44. Chauvet v. Ives, 62 App. Div. (N. Y.) 339; affirmed, 173 N. Y. 192. See, also, Estates of decedents.

45. Hence an endorsement by county officers on a statement of claim that the amount allowed was in full did not bind the claimant who cashed warrants for the amount but had been accustomed on previous claims to have disallowed items subsequently allowed—Board of Com'rs v. Durnell (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 1073. Not shown where debtor failed to stipulate that a draft for part was to be in full and creditor drew without saying that it was—Horwich v. Western Brewery Co., 95 Ill. App. 162; especially not if creditor refuses tender as in full—Perin v. Cathcart (Iowa) 89 N. W. 12.

Acceptance of checks tendered in full is sufficient—Critchell v. Loftis, 100 Ill. App. 196; though they were not marked "in full"—Whitaker v. Eilenberg, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 489, in which case the parties effected a sale of a crop of grapes at a fixed price after part performance of which deductions for bad quality were made from remittances and finally the buyer refused to accept save on consignment; but such condition must be understood—Fremont Foundry & Mach. Co. v. Norton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1058. A check tendered by an attorney in full "satisfaction" of moneys collected for a client who disputed the charge for services—Greenlee v. Masnot (Iowa) 90 N. W. 338.

46. McCormick v. St. Louis, 166 Mo. 315.

47. Evidence held sufficient where cash was paid on a disputed note and a promise made to pay a further sum at a future time—Worden v. Houston, 92 Mo. App. 371.

48. Agent of a municipality in dispute with contractor—Genung v. Waverly, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 610.

49. Williamson v. North Pac. Lumber Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 387. Mere possessor of note cannot—Corbet v. Waller, 27 Wash. 242, 67 Pac. 567. In procuring transfer of debtor's property he may release guarantor—Martin v. Rolan Grocery Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 212.

50. Strattner v. Wilmington City Elec. Co. (Del. Super.) 53 Atl. 436. Railroad general attorney cannot agree to employ an adverse litigant—Nephew v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 128 Mich. 599.

51. Sending a receipt to the creditor's manager for his individual debt and a check for the balance "in full" which the manager for his individual debt and a the creditor principal against whom no right of set-off of their manager's debt had ever been claimed—Mull v. Ingalls, 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 80.

52. Agreement to take half held proper—Simmons v. Richards (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 687.

53. Code Civ. Proc., § 1588; Brosnan v. Kramer, 135 Cal, 36, 66 Pac. 979; in Kentucky a guardian must first procure approval of court, (Gen. St., c. 80, art. 2); Bunnell v. Bunnell, 23 Ky. Law R. 800. The same is required of an executor in New York; it is not sufficient that the agreement be made and presented to the court for enforcement; Laws 1893, c. 100; In re Bronson's Estate, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 487.

54. Merkert's Estate v. Grobe (Iowa) 90 N. W. 490.

55. Liability for death of intestate—Doyle v. New York, O. & W. Ry. Co., 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 398.

56. Rosenthal v. Rudnick, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 624.

57. W. F. Taylor Co. v. Baines Grocery Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 260. Payment of an agreed sum of money to satisfy a levy against another—Marshall v. Bullard, 114 Iowa, 462; 54 L. R. A. 862. Accord and satisfaction and release to a newspaper proprietor upon his retracting bars action against his informant—Rogers v. Cox (N. J.) 50 Atl. 143.

58. Alimony decree—Fred v. Fred (N. J. Ch.) 50 Atl. 776.

person but must not be in fraud of creditors.[59] The right of other creditors to an equitable enforcement of a scheme to compromise the entire indebtedness of a county is sufficient to make it binding,[60] or it may suffice if a three party agreement has been partially performed by the other parties.[61] An agreement to employ for an indefinite time is no consideration, but employment given under it and accepted may be.[62] Surrendered rights must be real and substantial to afford a consideration.[63] Discontinuance without further costs is sufficient.[64] It makes no difference that the payor gave only what he claimed to be due.[65] If it be a settlement of title the dispute must be such as that good lawyers might easily differ.[66] The contrary was held where a claim of right was disputed on a point in reality free from doubt.[67] A belief that a policy is voidable for misrepresentation by the insured notwithstanding an "incontestable clause" suffices to raise a doubt.[68] Threatened litigation must be such as the opposing party might maintain.[69] A surrender of levied property is consideration for dismissal of a countersuit only when the levy is lawful.[70]

A part payment received in full is not sufficient since it lacks a consideration; unless the amount be unliquidated or in dispute[71] as where a judgment is appealable[72] but the payment may have been accepted only to avert financial disaster.[73] Applying on the original note proceeds of a check tendered for a part renewal creates no accord because the liability was liquidated.[74] A contract may be unliquidated though written.[75] Inclusion of one unliquidated item with liquidated ones suffices.[76]

C. Fraud, mistake and duress.[77]—An executed settlement can only be impeached for proven fraud, mistake or duress.[78] Mistake,[79] misrepresentation or fraud[80]

59. Conveyance to daughter of contestant of will invalid, though devisee aside from the fraud might have so conveyed—Smith v. Patton, 194 Ill. 638.

60. Compromise with bondholders—Dyer v. Muhlenberg County (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 586.

61. Settlement of disputed claims between members of a corporation—Adams v. Crown Coal & Tow Co., 198 Ill. 445.

62. Carroll v. M. K. & T. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1004.

63. Waiver of right to go into bankruptcy —Herman v. Schlesinger, 114 Wis. 382; Forbearance to appeal sufficient—In re Freeman, 117 Fed. 680; waiver of right to enforce a bond of indemnity, sufficient to support surrender of bond and substitution of new one—German-American Bank v. Schwinger, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 393; payment of a sum due and liquidated not sufficient—Harrison v. Murray Iron Works Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 261. A "settlement" with a building and loan association is without consideration where as a matter of fact it is based on a release of rights under a certificate already cancelled by the issue of one in its stead and in consideration of such release a credit on the loan which at the time had been fully repaid—Western Loan and Sav. Co. v. Desky, 24 Utah, 347, 68 Pac. 141.

64. Rosenthal v. Rudnick, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 624.

65. McCormick v. St. Louis, 166 Mo. 315.

66. Family settlement—Bunnell v. Bunnell, 23 Ky. Law R. 800.

67. City Elec. R. Co. v. Floyd County (Ga.) 42 S. E. 45.

68. Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Villeneuve (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 203.

69. Contest of will by one who was a devisee and also had a contract for conveyance —Jennings v. Jennings (Iowa) 87 N. W. 726.

70. Hawkins v. Collins, 61 S. C. 537.

71. Abelson v. Gordon, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 812; Prairie Grove Cheese Mfg. Co. v. Luder (Wis.) 90 N. W. 1085; giving receipt in full not effective—Bingham v. Browning, 97 Ill. App. 442; Ness v. Minnesota & Colorado Co. (Minn.) 92 N. W. 333; Evers v. Ostheimer, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 163. Disputed amount agreed on with agent—Cleveland v. Toby, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 319; unliquidated loss under fire policy—Riggs v. Home Mut. Fire Ass'n, 61 S. C. 448; but not a liquidated benefit under a life policy—Goodson v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n, 91 Mo. App. 339; dispute as to whether withdrawals by retiring partners should be charged—Bingham v. Browning, 197 Ill. 122; dispute as to amount due—C. R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Buckstaff (Neb.) 91 N. W. 426; estoppel to deny dispute or lack of indebtedness after other parties had partially performed—Adams v. Crown Coal & Tow Co., 198 Ill. 445.

72. Williams v. Blumenthal, 27 Wash. 24, 67 Pac. 393; In re Freeman, 117 Fed. 680.

73. McCormick v. St. Louis, 166 Mo. 315.

74. Kelly v. Lawrence Bros., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 484.

75. Bingham v. Browning, 197 Ill. 122.

76. Settlement embraced an open account and a note and judgment—Little v. Koerner, 28 Ind. App. 625.

77. Evidence, see post, § 3.

78. Tansey v. Kansas City, P. & G. R. Co., 90 Mo. App. 101.

79. Mutual assumption prompted by defendant's honest prediction that injuries were not permanent—Wilcox v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 111 Fed. 435.

80. Imposing release on ignorant foreign-but not mere opinion as to extent or permanency of injury may invalidate a release of liability for injuries,[81] It is not improper to rely on the opposite party's reading of the contents of the release.[82] A settlement is valid though one party was attorney and adviser of the other who acted in this without advice of counsel.[83] Medical prognosis is mere opinion and not fraud.[84] A note procured on settlement of a fraudulent transaction does not extinguish the original liability where a part of the fraudulent scheme was to procure the note.[85] Mere inadequacy of compensation to one who without being imposed on signed a release of injuries will not defeat it in equity.[86] A co-obligor cannot avail of a settlement procured by fraud of the other.[87] A belief that evidences of right were irrevocably lost, in consequence of which one compromised is not mistake.[88]

Rescission is not necessary to suit on a collateral liability which was not included in the settlement[89] but when necessary it must be seasonably made.[90] In order to rescind an accord and satisfaction for fraud what has been paid must be returned[91] though a part payment on a liquidated sum not disputable need not be[92] and money need not be returned before suing on a fraudulently released claim.[93]

§ 2. Satisfaction or discharge.[94]—Generally speaking the accord must be executed before a satisfaction is had[95] but an agreement to compromise on mutual performances is enforceable on showing readiness to perform.[96] It is not necessary that everything be fully executed.[97] It is a good defense to action on a judgment.[98]

ers—Schus v. Powers-Simpson Co., 85 Minn. 447; release represented to be hospital discharge—International & G. N. R. Co. v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 885; Id., (Tex. Sup.) 67 S. W. 316. To be available at law they must go to the procuring the execution of the release; if to the value of consideration can be remedied only in equity —Papke v. G. H. Hammond Co., 192 Ill. 631; release by legatee who was deceived as to validity of will—Lutjen v. Lutjen (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 790. False statement made in good faith that an arm is healed "as good as ever" if relied on will invalidate—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Brown (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 651. Omission to stipulate for a promise made as part of consideration when caused by appeals based on relation of parties (father to son) one of whom acted without counsel, held fraud—Hearn v. Hearn, 24 R. I. 328. Misrepresentation is fraud especially if the releaser is illiterate and without good advisers—Indiana, D. & W. R. Co. v. Fowler, 103 Ill. App. 565; affirmed, 66 N. E. 394.

81. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bennett, 63 Kan. 781, 66 Pac. 1018.

82. It was fraudulently misread as including only a receipt and settlement of expenses—New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Rombold (Neb.) 93 N. W. 966.

83. Kidd v. Williams (Ala.) 31 So. 458.

84. As to duration permanency and consequences of broken hip—Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Wilcox (Iowa C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 913.

85. Kirby v. Berguin, 15 S. D. 444; see, also, duress in exacting a payment as infecting a contemporaneous settlement—First Nat. Bank v. Sargent (Neb.) 91 N. W. 595.

86. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Green, 114 Fed. 676. $125 for wrongful death of miner in good health held so grossly inadequate as to show fraud—Russell v. Dayton Coal & Iron Co. (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 1.

87. Wolsey v. Price, 98 Ill. App. 503.

88. Connor v. Etheridge (Neb.) 92 N. W. 135.

89. Conversion was concealed by party to a settlement and the property was merely mentioned but the liability was not included in the settlement—Ballard v. Beveridge, 171 N. Y. 194.

90. Three years too long delay—Bogue v. Franks, 100 Ill. App. 434.

91. Riggs v. Home Mut. Fire Ass'n. 61 S. C. 448; or tendered—Doyle v. N. Y., O. & W. R. Co., 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 398; Hill v. Northern Pac. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 914; Niederhauser v. Detroit, etc., St. R. Co. (Mich.) 91 N. W. 1028; Hearn v. Hearn, 24 R. I. 328.

92. Life policy—Goodson v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n, 91 Mo. App. 339.

93. Indiana, D. & W. R. Co. v. Fowler, 103 Ill. App. 565; affirmed, 66 N. E. 394.

94. Interpretation of words defining rights discharged, see ante, § 1-A.

95. Executory store-orders for wages past due—Martin-Alexander Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 70 Ark. 215; oral agreement to refund first payment on land contract of sale where title was objected to—Arnett v. Smith (N. D.) 88 N. W. 1037. Adjustment of a fire loss is an accord but not a satisfaction—Vining v. Franklin Fire Ins. Co., 89 Mo. App. 311. Thus an agreement by an insurer to pay a ratable share of loss for repairing a building must be coupled with an agreement to accept—Gerhart Realty Co. v. Northern Assur. Co., 94 Mo. App. 356. Agreement to give notes and mortgage for a smaller sum than those in dispute was never fulfilled by giving the new obligations—Slover v. Rock (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 268.

96. Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Prouty (Neb.) 91 N. W. 384.

97. Settlement comprising the taking over of a debtor corporation's assets was held

A payment in consideration of discontinuing does not necessarily extinguish the cause of action.[99]

The original liability is extinguished by a satisfaction[1] so far that an attorney's lien against it can be enforced only upon leave to prosecute notwithstanding[2]; and cannot be investigated save for fraud or mistake[3] or any item disputed,[4] but the liability of a covenantor for title, to a tenant in common with the releasing tenant may be saved by the terms of the agreement[5] and discharge of codebtors under a judgment compromised as to one of their number may be in like manner avoided.[6] Unless so agreed a satisfaction will not discharge a third person's independent liability growing out of the same transaction.[7] A release operates as fully as judgment.[8] Items of which the parties were ignorant are not included in a satisfaction.[9]

A party who violates it cannot take any advantage of a compromise.[10] If two compromises be of the same contract, acceptance of delayed performance in payment of one waives a delay in payment of the other.[11] A written release of injuries supersedes an oral satisfaction previously made.[12]

§ 3. Pleading, issues, proofs, evidence.—It must be specially pleaded.[13] If performance rather than the agreement to perform was to constitute the satisfaction, it must be pleaded.[14] A tender back of release money need not be pleaded when it can be set off from the recovery.[15] In Kentucky it was held against dissenting opinions that a tender back need not be pleaded where there were allegations of gross fraud in obtaining a release.[16] Since release is matter for defense, allegations assailing it for fraud in the complaint are surplusage.[17]

The jury should say whether wages were due[18] or whether acts and declarations of agents in presence of parties showed an acceptance of a tender[19] or whether a consideration was of value.[20]

Defendant pleading an accord and satisfaction must prove every element of it[21] and mistake must be proved to surcharge a settlement.[22] Inadequacy of con-binding though not all of its accounts receivable had been collected—W. F. Taylor Co. v. Baines Grocery Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 260.

98. Though it be not a specialty—In re Freeman (N. Y.) 117 Fed. 680.

99. Terrill v. Deavitt, 73 Vt. 188.

1. Holmes v. Leadbetter (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 23.

2. Code Civ. Proc. § 66; Doyle v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 398.

3. Baldwin v. Central Sav. Bank (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 179.

4. Connor v. Etheridge (Neb.) 92 N. W. 135.

5. McCune v. Scott, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 263.

6. Hadley v. Bryan, 70 Ark. 197.

7. He had tortiously induced plaintiff to accept a mortgage misrepresenting the condition of a house plaintiff had taken a conveyance in satisfaction of the mortgage—Lee v. Tarplin (Mass.) 66 N. E. 431.

8. C. & N. W. R. Co. v. Wilcox (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 913.

9. Bloomington Min. Co. v. Brooklyn Hygienic Ice Co., 58 App. Div. (N. Y.) 66.

10. Armistead v. Shreveport & R. R. Val. R. Co., 108 La. 171; McKechney v. Weir (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 805.

11. Compromises of county bonds—Dyer v. Muhlenberg County (Ky. C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 586. It was held immaterial that acceptance was in part the act of another if he was party to the contract.

12. Boggs v. Pacific Steam Laundry Co. (Mo. Sup.) 70 S. W. 818.

13. Covell v. Carpenter (R. I.) 51 Atl. 425. In "case", release after issue joined need not be pleaded puis darrein continuance, but may be proved under the general issue—Papke v. G. H. Hammond Co., 192 Ill. 631.

14. Perdew v. Tillma, 62 Neb. 865. Allegation that "if * * * any * * * release, it was obtained by fraudulent representations" is certain and definite enough to plead fraud—International & G. N. R. Co. v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 885; Id. (Tex. Sup.) 67 S. W. 315.

15. As in personal injury cases—Hedlun v. Holy Terror Min. Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 31.

16. McGill v. L. & N. R. Co., 24 Ky. Law R. 1244; and see L. & N. R. Co. v. McElroy, 100 Ky. 153.

17. Hedlun v. Holy Terror Min. Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 31.

18. Martin-Alexander Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 70 Ark. 215.

19. Perin v. Cathcart, 115 Iowa, 553.

20. Hawkins v. Collins, 61 S. C. 537.

21. Board v. Durnell (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 1073.

22. Bailey v. Wood, 24 Ky. Law R. 801.

sideration while not sufficient is admissible.[23] A preponderance will prove fraud, but it must be clear.[24]

ACCOUNTING, ACTIONS FOR.

The action of account, whether in states without similar chancery relief or of enlarged scope in states giving chancery relief, will be treated together with the chancery suit for accounting. Agreements between parties to account fixing amount due and providing for payment, and book debts or other open or mutual accounts, as well as actions thereon will be found elsewhere.[25]

§ 1. Nature of remedy and jurisdiction of courts.—For an account of one item the remedy is at law,[26] but numerous and disputed items,[27] or complicated accounts and necessity for discovery,[28] require an accounting in equity. Where five years have elapsed since a mutual settlement,[29] or where both parties have been equally negligent in keeping accounts and have postponed proof until adequate evidence is impossible,[30] an accounting in equity will not be granted. No accountable relation subsists between the real owner of money and a broker who received it from a third person[31] or between one who was on certain future conditions to receive a commission and the person who was to pay it,[32] but an accounting may be given in equity to one who has a joint interest by reason of furnishing money for business with another in trust relations, though the arrangement is not a partnership.[33] A court of equity may order an accounting to enforce contribution,[34] or to determine the amount due an employe working for a percentage of the net profits of the business,[35] but not to compel an attorney to pay over money collected on a claim.[36] Accounting cannot be had in courts of inferior jurisdiction.[37]

23. Dorsett v. Clement—Ross Mfg. Co. (N. C.) 42 S. E. 612.

24. C. & N. W. R. Co. v. Wilcox (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 913. Evidence held not to show an accord and satisfaction where a payment tendered as in full was accepted under protest that it was not a discharge—Daugherty v. Herndon (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 891. Evidence not sufficient where a check was marked "in full" but testimony was conflicting whether it was put on before or after the check was cashed—Blodgett v. Vogel (Mich.) 90 N. W. 277. Held insufficient that check was sent without condition but with counterclaim sufficient to balance account, which counterclaim was rejected and payment of the balance immediately demanded—Fremont Foundry & Mach. Co. v. Norton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1058.

Evidence of fraud—L. & N. R. Co. v. Carter, 23 Ky. Law R. 2017; of duress—Boydan v. Haberstumpf (Mich.) 88 N. W. 386; of mental incompetency of party—Cundell v. Hoswell (R. I.) 51 Atl. 426; L. & N. R. Co. v. Carter, supra; sufficiency of evidence of fraud in procuring release—Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Bennett, 63 Kan. 781, 66 Pac. 1018; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Harris (Tex. Sup.) 67 S. W. 315; M., K. & T. R. Co. v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 543; Shook v. Illinois C. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 57; Fivey v. P. R. Co., 67 N. J. Law, 627; sufficiency of pleadings and proof to show release—Kehoe v. Patton (R. I.) 50 Atl. 655. Evidence tending to show imposition on an ignorant releasor held sufficient for the jury—Dorsett v. Clement-Ross Mfg. Co. (N. C.) 42 S. E. 612; written release not overcome by testimony of contemporaneous oral agreement—Ogden v. Philadelphia & W. C. Tract. Co., 202 Pa. 480; duress in a settlement proved by the fact that it entered into a payment exacted at the same time—First Nat. Bank v. Sargent (Neb.) 91 N. W. 595; presumption that note was in full settlement not rebutted—Danes v. Slitor (Iowa) 91 N. W. 817. Claim of excessive amount settled through agents and not communicated to principal held sufficient to go to jury on issue of fraud—Williamson v. North Pac. Lumber Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 387. Evidence held insufficient to impeach a settlement because of insanity of the injured party who did not complain for a long time—L. S. & M. S. R. Co. v. Vogelson, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 361.

25. Accounts Stated, and Open Accounts.

26. McCormick v. Page, 96 Ill. App. 447.

27. Fenno v. Primrose, 116 Fed. 49.

28. A sheriff cannot have an accounting from his deputy without showing circumstances for discovery or complicated accounts—White v. Cook, 51 W. Va. 201.

29. Nevian v. New Albany Ice Co. (Ky. App.) 68 S. W. 647.

30. Garnett v. Wills, 24 Ky. Law R. 617. Twenty years' delay after abandonment of the contract by the other party and notice thereof, and death of parties and loss of documentary evidence bars relief—Tozier v. Brown, 202 Pa. 359.

31. McKay v. Hudson, 118 Fed. 919.

32. Loan brokerage—Moore v. Hammond (Or.) 110 Fed. 897.

33. Harvey v. Sellers, 115 Fed. 757.

34. Northern Trust Co. v. Marsh, 98 Ill. App. 596.

35. Lee v. Washburn, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 311.

36. Pfau v. Fullenwider, 102 Ill. App. 499.

37. City court of New York—Gorse v. Lynch, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 150.

§ 2. Persons liable and entitled to accounting.—Accounting between persons in particular relations will be found in topics treating of those relations. The right to an accounting pertains to certain relations of a fiduciary or representative nature such as agency; trusteeships; partnerships.[38] Persons jointly interested[39] in property or profits of sale of land, as co-tenants,[40] may have an accounting. Use of a wife's name to avoid her husband's creditors will not deprive her of accounting.[41]

§ 3. Procedure before reference or without reference.—General questions of procedure in matters not peculiar to this remedy are treated elsewhere. A suit or action for accounting may be joined with or made incidental to other suits or actions under proper circumstances.[42] Annexation of copies of accounts to pleadings is sometimes necessary or proper.[43]

Parties.—Complainants asserting distinct rights generally cannot unite in the bill;[44] the rule applies to heirs and administrator of an estate in an accounting of personal estate or rents and profits of land.[45] Receipt of part of corporate funds, or connivance at diversion thereof, renders one a proper party to an accounting sought by a corporate creditor.[46] A son, who secured his father's debt by mortgage, is a necessary party to an accounting by the father against the creditor for excess of money received on payment.[47] That brokers have dealt with one who received funds from another for secret speculation in stock will not make them parties to a suit for accounting by the owner of the funds against the other.[48] Improper joinder of parties defendant authorizes dismissal only, not judgment for all defendants.[49]

Pleading and evidence.—A bill against two partnerships is multifarious though one defendant is a common partner.[50] The complaint must show a contract to pay, or a breach thereof, or existence of fiduciary or partnership relations,[51] and an allegation of partnership relations which may as well be construed as agency is insufficient.[52] Defendant is entitled, on demand, to a list of the items without regard to the form of action.[53] An account of profits cannot be taken where it is not shown what goods were sold.[54] A bill for accounting must allege disposal of the funds received by defendant, receipt of benefits by him from the funds, and any excess of authority he may have employed.[55] Defendant need not answer the bill fully if he denies existence of the relation on which the duty to account is based.[56] A cross-bill may be filed after the report of master.[57] The party seeking to impeach an accounting for fraud must set out the particular facts relied on.[58]

38. See Agency; Brokers; Factors; Estates of Decedents; Trusts; Partnership and the like.

39. Bradley v. Jennings, 201 Pa. 473.

40. Regan v. Regan, 192 Ill. 589. One tenant in common may require another in possession to account—Keller v. Lamb, 202 Pa. 412.

41. Bradly v. Jennings, 201 Pa. 473.

42. See Causes of Action and defenses as to joinder. Accounting as proper incidental relief see titles like Copyright; Creditor's Suits; and other titles treating of equitable remedies.

43. See Equity (Equity Practice); Pleading.

44. Fletcher Eq. Pl. & Pr., § 49; Clark v. Holbrook, 146 Mass. 366.

45. Scott v. Caloit, 3 How. (Miss.) 148.

46. Schaake v. Eagle Automatic Can Co. 135 Cal. 472, 67 Pac. 759.

47. Canon v. Ballard, 62 N. J. Eq. 383.

48. McKay v. Hudson, 118 Fed. 919.

49. Schaake v. Eagle Automatic Can Co., 135 Cal. 472, 67 Pac. 759.

50. Fletcher, Eq. Pl. & Pr., § 113; Bovaird v. Seyfang, 200 Pa. 261; Cannon v. Ballard, 62 N. J. Eq. 383; order reversed, 52 Atl. 352.

51. Rivelson v. Silverstein, 72 N. Y. Supp. 594.

52. Conger v. Judson, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 121.

53. Ala. Code, § 3290; Morrisette v. Wood, 128 Ala. 505.

54. Cawley v. Cawley (Mass.) 63 N. E. 1070.

55. Mere allegation that money was placed in defendant's hands is insufficient—Thompson v. Snyder, 113 Fed. 531.

56. Fletcher Eq. Pl. & Pr., § 294.

57. Sowles v. Hall, 73 Vt. 55.

58. Anderson v. Anderson (Utah) 70 Pac. 608.

Judgment or decree.—It seems a decree to account is not generally enrolled unless the accounting was only part of the relief given.[59] The judgment to account should require it to be done before the court or referee.[60]

§ 4. Reference and proceedings thereon.—Particular matters relating to reference to master or commissioners in chancery,[61] or to referees[62] will be found under other topics. Reference of the whole cause to a master is becoming the more common practice.[63] An accounting of surplus profits due the state from a railroad company is properly referred to a master.[64] Before ordering a reference the court should determine the right to account if it is made an issue.[65]

Stating the account; items.—An accounting may include a note given to the accounting payor as security though his liability thereon has not been determined.[66] A partner may be credited for the excess paid for his interest in property purchased by a co-partner by reason of the fraud of the latter.[67]

§ 5. Proceedings on coming in of report.—The proceedings after reference to an auditor in an action of account should be governed by rules of trial before the court and not by the strict rules of jury trials.[68] Judgment should not be given against non-residents who sold their interests before debts were contracted, but against the purchasers.[69] An account judgment giving a certain amount of accrued income to a beneficiary under a testamentary trust is not conclusive in a subsequent action to dispose of income accruing after his death.[70]

ACCOUNTS STATED AND OPEN ACCOUNTS.

§ 1. Nature and elements of the several kinds of accounts.—An account stated when itemized must show the relation of debtor and creditor,[71] but may be made orally,[72] and the assent of the party to be charged only, is necessary.[73] A mutual agreement as to the accuracy of the statement of an attorney mutually employed to calculate principal and interest on a written contract requiring payment in installments,[74] or the estimate of a water commissioner as to value of work done under a public contract together with the contractor's receipt for payment,[75] or statements of accounts between corresponding banks mutually acknowledged to be correct,[76] or the balance shown by a bank book and canceled checks,[77] or statements of account received by a bank depositor without objection for an unreasonable length of time,[78] constitute an account stated; but a statement of amount due a decedent made by her husband and a reply by the debtor promising payment,[79] or a mere request for extension of time where no account is presented, and no disputed items exist,[80] is insufficient to establish one. Fair settlement of

59. Fletcher Eq. Pl. & Pr., § 729.
60. A judgment merely directing defendant to account is insufficient—Silliman v. Smith, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 621.
61. Masters in Chancery.
62. Reference.
63. Fletcher Eq. Pl. & Pr. § 583; Kimberly v. Arms, 129 U. S. 512, 32 L. Ed. 764.
64. Surplus profits due under Loc. Laws, 1847, p. 77; Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. State (Ind.) 65 N. E. 401.
65. Jordan v. Underhill, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 559.
66. Moss v. Odell, 134 Cal. 464, 66 Pac. 581.
67. Richards v. Fraser, 136 Cal. 460, 69 Pac. 83.
68. Pardridge v. Ryan, 134 Ill. 247.
69. Strang v. Thomas, 114 Wis. 599.
70. Rudd v. Corneli, 171 N. Y. 114.
71. Acts N. C. 1897, c. 480; Knight v. Taylor (N. C.) 42 S. E. 537.
72. Civ. Code Cal., § 1622; Converse v. Scott (Cal.) 70 Pac. 13.
73. Leiser v. McDowell, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 444.
74. Krueger v. Dodge, 15 S. D. 159.
75. McCormick v. City of St. Louis, 166 Mo. 315.
76. Louisville Banking Co. v. Asher, 23 Ky. Law R. 1180.
77. Kenneth Inv. Co. v. National Bank of Republic (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 173.
78. Nodine v. First Nat. Bank (Or.) 68 Pac. 1109.
79. Kauffmann v. Judah (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 494.
80. Woodriff v. Hunter, 65 App. Div. (N. Y. 404.

a running account, by consideration of all the items therein, concludes both parties.[81] A sale of personalty for an agreed price payable at a certain or future time tends to uphold a count on account stated.[82]

Acceptance of an account stated estops denial of its correctness except for fraud or mistake,[83] and may be shown by payment of part of an account presented.[84] No objection can be made to an account rendered five months after settlement,[85] but unless special damages will result to the bank, a depositor may question an account of deposit retained without objection for an unreasonable length of time.[86]

A credit entered by one party without consent of the other, who always denied his liability, will not make a contested account mutual.[87] An account claiming a certain sum at or about a certain time is an open account.[88]

§ 2. Binding effect, rights and liabilities.—A liquidating partner is not bound personally, as for an account stated, by receipt of a statement of the partnership account erroneously including a personal debt of a retiring partner, which he had no reason to believe was considered a firm liability.[89] A settled account may be impeached only for fraud, mistake or omission,[90] and settlement admits the balance as a new principal unalterable except on proof of mistake or fraud.[91] A settlement is not presumed to include items not due.[92] Failure of an administrator to object to an account stated which is presented against the estate will not excuse establishment of the claim in the usual way.[93]

§ 3. Remedies on account stated.[94]—All prior dealings are merged in an action on an account stated.[95] Under proper circumstances equity will reform an account stated for mistake of law.[96]

Pleading.—Allegation and proof of an alleged statement of account merely supports a balance due in an action not technically on an account stated.[97] A stated account must be verified and the petition must allege its correctness.[98] Allegations of statements made to a depositor by a bank are sufficient, after verdict, as to an account stated.[99] Evidence of errors in a statement of account cannot be given by a plaintiff who did not plead them.[1] A bill to correct a settled account for mistake must allege the mistake distinctly and give the circumstances.[2]

Evidence and questions of fact.[3]—An account stated is prima facie correct,[4] and if it be assailed for a specific vice which is not proved it stands.[5] The pre-

81. Fowler v. Robinson, 98 Ill. App. 262.

82. Moore v. Crosthwait (Ala.) 33 So. 28.

83. Fitzgerald v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 474.

Admission of the debt and a promise to pay it sufficiently shows the account stated—Frothingham v. Satterlee, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 613.

Acceptance together with subsequent statements on the same basis sufficiently show the account stated to the extent of establishing a trust.—Rand v. Whipple, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 62.

84. Seal Lock Co. v. Chicago Mfg. & Optical Co., 98 Ill. App. 637.

85. Poppers v. Schoenfeld, 97 Ill. App. 477.

86. Kenneth Inv. Co. v. National Bank of Republic (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 173.

87. Bay City Iron Co. v. Emery, 128 Mich. 506.

88. Hartsell v. Masterson, 132 Ala. 275.

89. National Cycle Mfg. Co. v. San Diego Cycle Co., 135 Cal. 335, 67 Pac. 280.

90. Batson v. Findley (W. Va.) 43 S. E. 142; assent to accounts rendered so as to make them stated, see supra, § 1; Fitzgerald v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 474; Frothingham v. Satterlee, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 613; Rand v. Whipple, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 62.

91. In re Peters' Estate, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 223.

92. Beebe v. Smith, 194 Ill. 634.

93. Withers v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 829.

94. Three years' limitation does not apply—Moore v. Crosthwait (Ala.) 33 So. 28; Columbia Brewing Co. v. Berney, 90 Mo. App. 96.

95. Columbia Brewing Co. v. Berney, 90 Mo. App. 96.

96. Louisville Banking Co. v. Asher, 23 Ky. Law R. 1180.

97. Leiser v. McDowell, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 444.

98. Myers v. First Presbyterian Church of Perry (Okl.) 69 Pac. 874.

99. Nodine v. First Nat. Bank (Or.) 68 Pac. 1109.

1. Wonderly v. Christian, 91 Mo. App. 158.

2. Batson v. Findley (W. Va.) 43 S. E. 142.

3. Sufficency of proof—Withers v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 829; Dougan v. Dunham (Ga.) 42 S. E. 390; evidence in action—Arnold v. Cason, 95 Mo. App. 426, 69 S. W. 34.

4. Wonderly v. Christian, 91 Mo. App. 158.

5. Duress-Comer v. Illinois Car & Eq. Co., 108 La. 179.

sumption that a certain item was included is overcome by proof that it was not due.[6] Failure of plaintiff to obtain knowledge of a statement of the account for some time after it was made is not a failure of proof of an account stated.[7] The burden of proof is on a depositor to show that checks rendered on an account by the bank are forged.[8] An attorney suing his client for services on account stated may be examined as to the items.[9] Corroborative testimony as to the balance due may be given by a stenographer who took a memorandum of the agreement in presence of both parties.[10] An ex parte affidavit verifying an account stated will not establish its correctness.[11] Proof of an agreement between parties to settle and that a debt owing to one from a third person should be assigned, to the other to which the debtor did not object, shows an account stated.[12]

The effect of a receipt approving an account stated, if in issue, is a question of fact for the referee.[13]

§ 4. Remedies on open accounts.[14]—The statute of limitations will apply to actions on open accounts,[15] beginning with the last item where the full amount is sought.[16] A running and continuous account is not barred,[17] nor is an open mutual account,[18] until accrual of the period after the last item on either side,[19] but an item for board will not prevent bar of an action on a note, there being no mutuality,[20] and an unratified payment of one of the last items will not begin the period.[21] A plea of final settlement in an action on an open account is a complete bar where plaintiff fails to sustain his reply averring that defendant's statement rendered was not final but subject to correction.[22] A bill of particulars referred to in, and filed with, a petition in an action on a mutual account will warrant admission of evidence of mutual dealings between the parties on mutual credit.[23]

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.[24]

§ 1. Nature, office and necessity.—The officers' act is ministerial.[25] As between the parties it is not necessary[26] except to make the deed admissible in evidence[27] or entitle the parties to record it,[28] or to convey a married woman's separate estate[29] or to cut off dower homestead or similar rights.[30]

6. Beebe v. Smith, 194 Ill. 634.
7. Leiser v. McDowell, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 444.
8. Kenneth Inv. Co. v. National Bank of Republic (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 173.
9. McLaughlin v. U. S. (U. S.) 36 Ct. Cl. 138.
10. Converse v. Scott (Cal.) 70 Pac. 13.
11. Withers v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 829.
In Tennessee a partnership account brought from another county can not be verified by a book keeper's affidavit—Shannon's Code, § 5561; Foster v. Scott County, 107 Tenn. 693.
12. Forbes v. Wheeler, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 538.
13. Frothingham v. Satterlee, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 613.
14. Sufficiency of pleading on open account—Hartsell v. Masterson (Ala.) 31 So. 616.
15. Four years will bar an action—Mizer v. Emigh (Neb.) 88 N. W. 479.
16. Carpenter v. Plagge, 192 Ill. 82.
17. Moore v. Renick (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 936.
18. Lancieri v. Kansas City Imp. St. Sprinkling Co. (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 29.
19. Haffner v. Scheunck, 49 App. Div. (N. Y.) 193; affirmed 168 N. Y. 649.
20. Beach v. Bennett (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 567.
21. Rickard v. Geach (Nev.) 69 Pac. 861.
22. Wonderly v. Christian, 91 Mo. App. 158.
23. "A reasonable time" is a matter of law when the facts are clear—P. H. McLaughlin & Co. v. U. S. (U. S.) 37 Ct. Cl. 150.
24. Acknowledgements as admissions estoppels, ratification, adoption; recognition or waiver; see Evidence; Estoppel; Agency; Partnership; Limitations of Actions; Adverse Possession; Marriage; Bastards.
Acts and elements of execution of instruments other than acknowledgments, see Names, Signatures and Seals; Contracts; Deeds; Mortgages; Chattel Mortgages; Wills and the like.
25. Rev. St. § 4106; Read v. Toledo Loan Co., 13-23 O. C. C. 25.
26. Morse v. Morrison (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 169; Messenger v. Peter, 8 Detroit Leg. N. (Mich.) 867, 88 N. W. 209.
27. An acknowledgment to an official bond admits to be received in evidence like Merely because some household goods are included but which do not appear to have been used as such, a chattel mortgage is not one "of household goods" which must be acknowledged.[31]

§ 2. Officers who may take.—Justices of the peace may ordinarily take acknowledgments.[32] A consul general's deputy may do so.[33] The officer need not be disinterested it is held unless the statute so requires,[34] but a party to the instrument is disqualified.[35] A stockholder in a corporate party but not a non-stockholding officer or an agent or attorney of either party, has a disqualifying interest.[36] The corporation's interest need be only partial.[37] Foreign officers enumerated by statute may take them.[38] The power of a foreign notary does not necessarily depend on the authority given by his own state.[39] An officer empowered to take acknowledgments may sometimes act beyond the territory of his ordinary bailiwick or authority,[40] but a notary cannot act outside the place for which he is commissioned.[41] A corporate chattel mortgagor "resides" where its place of business is and should acknowledge the mortgage before a justice of the peace there.[42]

an acknowledged conveyance—Ramsay's Estate v. People, 97 Ill. App. 283.

Certified copy of deed record inadmissible if lacking legal acknowledgment—Swafford v. Herd's Adm'r., 25 Ky. Law R. 1556.

A foreign notary's certificate under seal is prima facie evidence of execution of an official bond—Ramsay's Estate v. People (Ill.) 64 N. E. 555.

Officer was financially interested hence not admissible—First Nat. Bank v. Citizen's State Bank (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 726.

28. The notary must affix his seal (Koch v. West [Iowa] 92 N. W. 663) unless the law at the time does not require it—Westfeldt v. Adams (N. C.) 42 S. E. 823.

The acknowledging officer must not be a party—Hunton v. Wood (Va.) 43 S. E. 186.

A tax deed must be acknowledged and then recorded—Leftwich v. Richmond, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. 128, 40 S. E. 651.

Unless properly acknowledged a record will not protect a mortgage lien—Cumberland B. & L. Ass'n v. Sparks (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 647.

29. If acknowledged before an incompetent notary does not pass under the laws of Florida—Evans v. Dickenson (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 284.

In New Jersey her contract to convey it must be separately acknowledged—Schwarz v. Regan (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 1086.

30. Ogden B. & L. Ass'n v. Mensch, 196 Ill. 554; Buettgenbach v. Gerbig (Neb.) 90 N. W. 654; Rowles v. Reichenbach (Neb.) 90 N. W. 943. Unless an agreement to pass the homestead be testamentary in character, when it need not be acknowledged—Teske v. Dittberner (Neb.) 91 N. W. 181, or be a purchase-money mortgage—Irwin v. Gay (Neb.) 91 N. W. 197; Goodheart v. Goodheart (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 135.

Both husband and wife must join to alien a homestead—Blumer v. Allbright (Neb.) 89 N. W. 809; Hedbloom v. Pierson (Neb.) 90 N. W. 218.

Estoppel will not operate in lieu of acknowledgment—Davis v. Thomas (Neb.) 92 N. W. 187.

If the husband die in possession of the homestead, an improperly acknowledged contract to convey it is not enforceable—Solt v. Anderson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 205.

31. 2 Gen. St., p. 2111, § 41; Dunham v. Cramer (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 1011.

32. Tiffany, Real Prop., § 405; but in 1852 a married woman's deed must have been acknowledged before a court, etc., with seal (Rev. St. 1845, c. 32, §§ 35-39) hence the curtesy only passed under justice's acknowledgment—Linville v. Greer, 165 Mo. 380.

33. Stewart v. Linton (Pa.) 53 Atl. 744.

34. Rev. St., § 4106; Stockholder taking corporation's acknowledgment—Read v. Toledo Loan Co., 13-23 O. C. C. 25.

35. Meckel Bros. Co. v. DeWitt, 13-23 O. C. C. 174; grantor—Leftwich v. City of Richmond, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. 128, 40 S. E. 651; grantee—Hunton v. Wood (Va.) 43 S. E. 186; ownership of part of debt secured by mortgage—Hedbloom v. Pierson (Neb.) 90 N. W. 218.

36. Ogden B. & L. Ass'n v. Mensch, 196 Ill. 554; but see s. c. 99 Ill. App. 67 and cf.; Read v. Toledo Loan Co. supra.

Stockholding cashier of mortgagee bank is disqualified—First Nat. Bank v. Citizens' State Bank (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 726.

Assistant cashier of bank when a stockholder is disqualified—Wilson v. Griess (Neb.) 90 N. W. 866.

37. Wilson v. Griess (Neb.) 90 N. W. 866.

38. In Georgia prior to Act Dec. 18, 1893, a foreign "clerk" of courts' acknowledgment was null. The court or judge should have acted—Code 1882, § 2708; Crummey v. Bentley, 114 Ga. 746.

39. In Illinois an official bond is properly acknowledged before a foreign notary if he certifies it under his seal, whether or not his own state authorizes him to take acknowledgments of sealed instruments; Hurd's Rev. St., c. 103, § 1, c. 30, § 20—Ramsay's Estate v. People, 97 Ill. App. 296.

40. Laws 1850-51, p. 88, art. 3, § 6. Laws 1852-53, p. 244, art. 2, § 1; Mayor of Kansas City may take anywhere in county—Linville v. Greer, 165 Mo. 380.

41. In and for certain county—McClellan's Dig. (Fla.) 791, § 1; Evans v. Dickenson, 114 Fed. 284.

42. See statute—Gilbert v. Sprague, 196 Ill. 444.

§ 3. Persons who may make.—Generally speaking each granting party including husbands or wives must acknowledge for himself or herself. A corporation must do so by its president, secretary or other proper officer. An attorney in fact to convey land may do so in his own name for his principal.[43]

§ 4. Taking acknowledgment.—If the grantor is not personally known to the officer he should ordinarily be identified.[44] It is immaterial that the wife's separate examination was in presence of the grantee of her separate estate.[45]

§ 5. Certificate of acknowledgment.[46]—The identity of the grantor must be shown.[47] One to a wife's deed need not state that she executed it as a party.[48] And it need not state in the language of the statute that when privately examined she freely and voluntarily made the deed[49] at least where the statute so reads that it is satisfied by the taking of her examination privately without reciting it.[50] The statutes of some states require this recital.[51] Grammatical errors are of no importance[52] nor is an obvious error in stating the grantor's name.[53]

§ 6. Authentication of officer's authority.—A notary must attach his seal[54] unless the law at the time of making the deed and recording it required no seal.[55] It is not sufficient that he styles himself "ex officio notary" if no notary's seal be attached.[56]

§ 7. Operation and effect.[57]—An act making it conclusive on the question of duress or coercion of the wife does not preclude inquiry whether a private examination in legal form was had as recited.[58] The clearest and most convincing evidence is necessary to impeach the certificate.[59] It must go beyond the mere testimony of the acknowledging party.[60] Contradictory testimony by the wife has been held not sufficient to impeach the recitals of the certificate.[61] A special allegation of fraud is necessary to attack it when regarded as conclusive.[62] It releases dower without words of conveyance.[63]

§ 8. Defects and invalidities.[64]—A defect not apparent does not destroy the

43. 1 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 507.

44. Good faith of notary no defense for failure to call two witnesses (Rev. St. 1899, § 913)—State v. Grundon, 90 Mo. App. 266.

45. Tippett v. Brooks (Tex.) 67 S. W. 495, 512.

46. An indorsement—Acknowledged by "* * clerk a party" and signed "* * clerk" shows an acknowledgment before a party—Leftwich v. City of Richmond, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. 128, 40 S. E. 651.

47. It must give two identifying witnesses names and residences where grantor was personally unknown to notary—"satisfactorily identified" not sufficient—Riehl v. Noel, 89 Mo. App. 178.

48. Linville v. Greer, 165 Mo. 380.

49. Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 470.

"Willingly signed * * without fear or compulsion on the part of her husband and that she wished not to retract" is sufficient without words for "purposes and consideration therein expressed"—Arnall v. Newcom (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 92.

50. Rev. St. 1887, § 2784; Revision 1899, § 2741; Adams v. Smith (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 1043.

51. A "separate and privy examination" is not recited by recitals that she signed of "her own full will without being forced or compelled," etc. (Pasch. Dig. art. 1003)—Estes v. Turner (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1007.

52. Recital that husband and wife were the "person" who "are" and that "he" executed, etc.—McCardia v. Billings, 10 N. D. 373.

53. "John L." for "James M." as in deed—Kentucky L. I. Co. v. Crabtree, 24 Ky. Law R. 743.

54. Koch v. West (Iowa) 92 N. W. 663.

55. Westfeldt v. Adams (N. C.) 42 S. E. 823.

56. Hayes v. Banks, 132 Ala. 354.

57. Notary's testimony not secondary evidence—Cassidy v. Scottish-American Mortgage Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1023.

58. Acts 1889, c. 389; Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 470.

59. Dickerson v. Gritten, 103 Ill. App. 351.

60. Adams v. Smith (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 1043—holding evidence insufficient to show want of understanding on wife's part.

Failure to privately examine the wife may be shown if certificate does not recite it—Adams v. Smith (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 1043.

61. Davis v. Kelly, 62 Neb. 642.

Evidence held sufficient to identify grantee as the acknowledging officer who signed by similar name—Hunton v. Wood (Va.) 43 S. E. 186.

62. Brand v. Colorado Salt Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 578.

Affidavit of defense that acknowledgment was before consul general's deputy, insufficient—Stewart v. Linton (Pa.) 53 Atl. 744.

63. Goodheart v. Goodheart (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 135.

64. Notary's bond is liable for negligently force of the record of the instrument,[65] but, if the body of the instrument show that the officer took it outside his territorial jurisdiction the acknowledgment is null.[66] A wife joins "freely" if it appears that her reluctance if any is in no wise attributable to her husband,[67] but not if she joins under stress of threats by a drunken husband she stating to the officer that her act is not voluntary.[68] It is no objection that a wife able to read and write stated that she was ignorant of the contents of the instrument.[69] Want of a legal acknowledgment may prevent the releasing of homestead but does not destroy the conveyance.[70]

How cured.[71]—A second validly acknowledged mortgage does not by reciting the existence of the first supply the want of a wife's acknowledgment.[72]

Acts curing errors of form will not validate acknowledgments before one of the parties.[73] A statute validating deeds recorded which were acknowledged without a certificate of magistracy of the officer makes such deeds admissible in evidence.[74]

ACTIONS.

No attempt is made to treat other than the general questions relating strictly to "Actions." "Causes of Action and Defenses" and "Forms of Action" are distinct matters which are elsewhere treated.[75]

Action technically excludes the various special forms of proceedings created by statutes.[76] The word "action" as it appears in statutes is subject to varying constructions and the decisions thereupon are to be sought under titles apposite to such statutes and limited accordingly.[77] A proceeding prosecuted by a city against one for violating an ordinance is not a "criminal action prosecuted by the state."[78]

Essentials.—A proceeding is not necessarily a nullity though the nominal defendant be dead when the action is instituted.[79]

Action is begun by issuance of process and delivery to the sheriff for service,[80] but not by a service in a county other than that wherein only can the action be commenced,[81] nor by procuring a writ which was altered to a later date before service. It is begun as of the altered date.[82] In the federal courts in equity accepting another's identification of grantor—State v. Grundon, 90 Mo. App. 266.

65. Disqualification of notary by interest—Ogden B. & L. Ass'n v. Mensch, 196 Ill. 554.

66. Code Civ. Pr. § 179 limits jurisdiction of justice of the peace to county—Middlecoff v. Hemstreet, 135 Cal. 173, 67 Pac. 678.

67. Goldstein v. Curtis (N. J. Ch.) 52 Atl. 218.

68. Blumer v. Allbright (Neb.) 89 N. W. 809.

69. Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 470.

70. Ogden B. & L. Ass'n v. Mensch, 196 Ill. 554.

71. Failure of a deputy to acknowledge for himself personally in behalf of the sheriff was cured by Rev. Codes, 1887, § 3585—McCardia v. Billings, 10 N. D. 373.

72. Evans v. Dickenson (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 284.

73. Ark. Acts 1893, p. 66; Meunse v. Harper (Ark.) 67 S. W. 869.

74. Laws 1851, p. 122; Stolford v. Goldring, 197 Ill. 156.

75. See those titles.

76. Ordering execution to enforce double liability of stockholders—Wheeler v. Chenault, 63 Kan. 730, 66 Pac. 1010; establishment of a boundary under Laws 1891, c. 89; Swarz v. Ramala, 63 Kan. 633, 66 Pac. 649. Habeas corpus is an action within Rev. St. 1898, § 2601; the person seeking liberty is plaintiff, the one detaining him is an adverse party—State v. Hurgin, 110 Wis. 189; Same v. Aikens, Id.; Same v. Hoyt, Id. Quo warranto by the state on relation of a citizen is in nature of a civil action—Fordyce v. State (Wis.) 92 N. W. 430; State v. Fordyce, Id.

77. For instance in the statute of limitations it will include suits in equity and special proceedings under the Codes; and in statutes giving the right of review the same matters may be excluded. See Appeal and Review; Limitations of Actions and other titles.

78. Comp. Laws, §§ 4813, 4814; City of Madison v. Horner, 15 S. D. 359.

79. Quieting title—McClymond v. Noble, 84 Minn. 329.

80. In justice court in Missouri—Heman v. Larkin (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 907. Process was issued, delivered and dated before bar of limitation was complete, but was served thereafter—County v. Pacific Coast Borax Co., 67 N. J. Law, 48.

81. Code Civ. Proc., § 416; Benson v. Eastern B. & L. Ass'n, 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 319.

82. Larrabee v. Southard, 95 Me. 385.

filing a bill begins the suit.[83] Such a commencement may be effectual though the jurisdiction be assailable,[84] or the service be somewhat delayed,[85] or the pleading defective or incomplete[86] unless it states no cause of action whatever[87] or is amended to state a new cause of action.[88] Delivering a summons which is void because it was signed in blank and filled in by an attorney is not an "attempt" to commence an action.[89] Voluntary appearance is operative as of its own date and not that of a prior but unserved summons.[90] An action is pending and not terminated until it is finally determined and the rights of parties enforced or discharged.[91]

ADJOINING OWNERS.[92]

The law of lateral support makes one liable who removes such support and causes land to subside.[93] It does not apply to lands under water on which piers rest.[94] Liability is not averted by making a wall a party wall.[95] There is negligence in failing to apprise an adjoining owner of the fact that excavations of which he already knows will go below his foundation,[96] but none in failing to provide gutters and down spouts sufficient to conduct an extraordinary precipitation or cloud burst.[97] A complaint for taking support from a wall should allege facts sufficient to support a finding of an easement.[98]

A tenant of an adjoining building may recover his damages though the owner consented to the excavation which caused the damage, nor is it material to the tenant's case that his lessor made no objection to the undermining.[99] One cannot excavate soil on the sea shore where natural causes will result in subsidence of adjoining property and thereby expose a third property to damage.[100]

Over-leaning walls are abatable as a nuisance[1] and adjoining riparian owners

83. Humane Bit Co. v. Barnet, 117 Fed. 316.

84. Non-residence—Walston v. Louisville, 23 Ky. Law R. 1852.

85. Fifty-two days' requested delay on promise of settlement not unreasonable—Wigg v. Dooley (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 306. The contrary held with respect to a proceeding under a special statute (Code 1873, § 3157) to vacate a decree against an insane person—Hawley v. Griffin (Iowa) 92 N. W. 113.

86. Improper allegations to charge defendant as executor—Southern Contract Co.'s Assignee v. Newhouse, 23 Ky. Law R. 2141; want of denial of contributory negligence—Chicago City R. Co. v. Cooney, 196 Ill. 466; uncertainty—Bell v. Floyd, 64 S. C. 246. Amendment must be germane—L. & N. R. Co. v. Pointer's Adm'r, 24 Ky. Law R. 772; supplemental pleadings — Knickerbocker v. Benes, 195 Ill. 434; no allegation of negligence—Wolf v. Collins, 196 Ill. 281; suing corporation by wrong name but without fault on plaintiff's part—Prichard v. McCord-Collins Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 303.

87. M. K. & T. R. Co. v. Bagley (Kan.) 69 Pac. 189; Foley v. Suburban R. Co., 98 Ill. App. 108.

88. Motes v. Gila Val. G. & N. R. Co. (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 532; Pardridge v. Gilbride, 98 Ill. App. 134; Western Stone Co. v. Earnshaw, 98 Ill. App. 538; Taylor v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., (Kan.) 68 Pac. 691. Amendment to state a new place where tort occurred is not such—Chicago City R. Co. v. McMeen, 102 Ill. App. 318; Mott v. Chicago & M. El. R. Co., 102 Ill. App. 412.

89. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 4240, 3594; Johnson v. Turnell, 113 Wis. 468.

90. Hotchkiss v. Aukermann (Neb.) 90 N. W. 949. Court journal entry held sufficient to show an appearance before service—Dunne v. Portland St. R. Co. (Or.) 65 Pac. 1052.

91. When another action is pending, see Abatement and Revival. What is a determination, see Judgments.

92. See, also, Boundaries; Fences; Party-Walls; abutting owners, see Eminent Domain; Highways and Streets.

93. Joliet v. Schroeder, 92 Ill. App. 68.

94. Subsidence of pier caused by dredging in loose soil and mud—White v. Nassau Trust Co., 168 N. Y. 149; subsidence of other land at a distance not admissible to show loss of lateral support—Noonan v. Pardee, 200 Pa. 474.

95. Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 483.

96. Davis v. Summerfield (N. C.) 42 S. E. 818.

97. Miller v. Wilson, 104 Ill. App. 556.

98. He must allege either that it was a party wall or prescription, it being insufficient to allege that it stood on the edge of the lot—Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 483.

99. Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 483.

100. Injunction granted—Murray v. Pannacl (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 595.

1. Barnes v. Berendes (Cal.) 69 Pac. 491.

must so exercise wharfage rights as not to encroach on each other.[2] Heaped up earth should be confined by a retaining wall.[3]

Either owner of lands resting on the same rock formation may do necessary blasting whether the other has already done so or not.[4] The shock or vibration of the soil is not of itself actionable.[5] Willfulness and malice are not essential to a liability for wrongful occupancy or use of adjoining lands.[6]

The owner is not liable for trespasses by servants of a licensee.[7]

A system of drains over an entire tract becomes the property of all separate grantees[8] and when a drain is for the benefit of both, the owner on whose land it is cannot obstruct it.[9]

A frame-work four stories high covered with rough boards and roofed, under which washings were hung was held to be a structure in the nature of a fence erected to annoy.[10] A barrier to the throwing of refuse from the next lot must not unnecessarily be made so as to exclude light and air. It makes no difference that the occupants were disorderly in conduct.[11]

The measure of damages for an encroachment is the consequent reduction of the selling value.[12] Loss of profits of the use of a projected building should not be included, at least until after the building could, but for the encroachment have been erected.[13] Unless there be negligence the damage from withdrawing lateral support does not include injury to buildings.[14]

The statutory action in New York respecting narrow encroachments applies only when there is an abutting building on the plaintiff owner's property.[15]

ADMIRALTY.

This title properly includes admiralty jurisdiction, courts, practice, and procedure. It excludes the law of maritime traffic,[16] of navigation and navigable waters,[17] of war and of nations.[18]

§ 1. Jurisdiction and courts.—The rights of foreign seamen under articles to a foreign ship will not be determined on a suit by them, but may be incidentally to a suit by one of the seamen who is an American. If an American seaman demand process against the ship under a maritime contract jurisdiction must be taken and not remitted to a consular representative.[19] A suit against a foreign ship by a seaman for neglect and mistreatment while injured will be heard

2. Montgomery v. Shaver (Or.) 66 Pac. 923.
3. Abrey v. Detroit, 127 Mich. 374.
4. De Carvajal v. Y. M. C. A., 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 727.
5. Tucker v. Mack Pav. Co., 61 App. Div. (N. Y.) 521.
6. Permitting an excavation to fill with water; declaration sufficient alleging making of excavation in which water gathered to injury of adjoining building—Garvy v. Coughlan, 92 Ill. App. 582.
7. Cutting timber—Klotz v. Lindsay, 88 Mo. App. 594.
8. Lanter v. Hartman, 95 Ill. App. 80.
9. The parties must have agreed (Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 717)—Hall v. Pfnister, 95 Ill. App. 159.
10. Under Pub. St. . 143, §§ 28, 29—Horan v. Byrnes, 70 N. H. 531.
11. Bloom v. Koch (N. J. Ch.) 50 Atl. 621.
12. Goldbacher v. Eggers, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 36.
13. Barnes v. Berendes (Cal.) 69 Pac. 491.
14. Mining—Matulys v. P. & R. Coal & Iron Co., 201 Pa. 70.
15. Code Civ. Proc., § 1499; Goldbacher v. Eggers, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 36, see, also, infra. The one year limitation on actions to recover a strip encroached on by a wall applies though only part of it is covered—Volz v. Steiner, 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 504. The right to an adjudication of title to a strip encroached on is not separable from the right to sue to remove encroaching structures. They must be joined—Code Civ. Proc., §§ 481, 3339, also c. 14, tit. 1, art. 1; Hahl v. Sugo, 169 N. Y. 109.

Remedies in general, see Trespass, Ejectment, and the like.

Actions for injury to chattels and for the trespass against the possession cannot be joined—Hall v. L. Weber Bldg. Co., 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 551.
16. Shipping and Water Traffic.
17. Collision; Navigable waters.
18. International Law; War.
19. The Falls of Keltie, 114 Fed. 357.

if he would otherwise be remediless.[20] Jurisdiction must rest on the subject-matter of a set-off and not on the set-off itself.[21]

Contracts to act as seamen en voyage to fisheries, there to fish and assist in canning the catch,[22] and to navigate a vessel outward and returning are maritime within cognizance of admiralty,[23] but agreements for brokerage though written into a charter party are not.[24] A suit for wharfage against the owner of a domestic vessel,[25] or a lien for penalty under a state law against vessels which refuse to take on a pilot as well as the lien for pilotage, also are.[26]

A proceeding for limitation of liability may be brought though the owner has permitted an action to go to judgment against him but has successfully appealed.[27] It may be brought in any district where the owner is liable to suit though the vessel is not there.[28]

Recovery for wrongfully causing death.—Courts of a state have jurisdiction of an action against a registered vessel for negligence in port resulting in a death on the high seas.[29] Admiralty will enforce a statutory liability for wrongfully causing death.[30] The common law of Hawaii permits a recovery for torts causing death, hence the courts of admiralty will enforce such a right.[31]

The partition of interest in vessels is "a common law remedy" which the admiralty laws save to the state courts,[32] and hence partition may be had in the state court under circumstances, which would not give such relief in the federal court.[33]

§ 2. Remedies and remedial rights.—The vessel rather than her owners may be proceeded against on a remedy in rem and it is not too late to do so on her second visit after the injury.[34] A contract to proceed to a port and there tow a vessel is executory until the towage is undertaken; hence a breach in turning aside to perform other services is not remediable against the tug in a proceeding in rem.[35] The relief given when enforcing a maritime tort defined by a state law will be such only as conforms to the statute creating the liability.[36] Nominal damages for personal torts are not awarded.[37] It is proper to join both the ship and the charterers if they are both charged with liability for breach of a contract of affreightment.[38] A charterer obligated to protect the vessel from liens may interpose defenses.[39] The right to limit liability is not barred by a prior judgment for damages in a state court.[40] Payment of costs in the state court may be imposed on an owner who asks a limitation of liability after he has defended on the merits in the state court.[41] A claimant who gave an ordinary claimant's bond when a bond was required to prevent setting aside the sale of a ves-

20. The Troop, 118 Fed. 769.

21. American Steel Barge Co. v. Chesapeake & O. Coal Agency Co., (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 857.

22. Domenico v. Alaska Packers' Ass'n, 112 Fed. 554.

23. The Laurel, 113 Fed. 373.

24. Brown v. West Hartlepool S. N. Co. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 1018; Taylor v. Weir, 110 Fed. 1005.

25. Braisted v. Denton, 115 Fed. 428.

26. The Lida Fowler, 113 Fed. 605.

27. The Ocean Spray, 117 Fed. 97; Gleason v. Duffy (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 298.

28. Gleason v. Duffy (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 298.

29. Lindstrom v. International Nav. Co., 117 Fed. 170.

30. The Northern Queen, 117 Fed. 906.

31. The Schooner Robert Lewers Co. v. Kekonoha (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 849.

32. Rev. St. U. S., § 563; Reynolds v. Nielson (Wis.) 93 N. W. 455.

33. As where there is a majority owner—Reynolds v. Nielson (Wis.) 93 N. W. 455.

34. The Slingsby, 116 Fed. 227.

35. The Francesco, 116 Fed. 83; The F. W. Munn, Id.

36. Stern v. La Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, 110 Fed. 995.

37. In re California Nav. & Imp. Co., 110 Fed. 670.

38. Within spirit of Admiralty Rule 59—The Planet Venus, 113 Fed. 387.

39. Alaska & P. S. S. Co. v. Chamberlain & Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 600.

40. Gleason v. Duffy (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 298.

41. The Ocean Spray, 117 Fed. 97; Gleason v. Duffy (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 298.

sel cannot deny that it represents the vessel which was released on the strength of it.[42] Damages in addition to costs may be recovered by a vessel owner from one who procures the arrest of a vessel by due process but without an honest belief that he is using a rightful remedy.[43]

§ 3. Practice and procedure. A. Pleading process, etc.[44]—Libels in rem and in personam may be joined on considerations of convenience or the promotion of justice. The admiralty rules of the Supreme Court do not govern.[45] Misjoinders are waived by failure to except to the libel.[46]

It is not indispensable to state nationality of a libeled vessel if the libelant pleads his American citizenship.[47] Claims for a marine tort not litigable against the vessel in rem may be rejected as surplusage if a cause in rem remains in other allegations.[48]

Subrogation to a fund recovered from a colliding vessel may be enforced on an intervention begun after judgment on a mandate from the appellate court.[49] An answer denying negligence on the part of the ship and propounding interrogatories respecting goods and their value cannot be held sham and frivolous until interrogatories be answered.[50] Tenders and deposits made with the answer need not include fees which become taxable only on final decision.[51] Exceptions when not specific must strike at more than form or style.[52] The owner's remedy to enforce the lien on subfreight for charter money is by libeling the subfreight alone with process requiring the holder of the bill of lading or cargo-owner to bring the freight into court. This may be compelled by summary process against the cargo or its owner but it should not be proceeded against until after an order to pay in freight. A warrant of arrest prematurely issued may be retained if afterwards found to be justified.[53]

New parties may be brought in on petition, when they are responsible for the claim sued on, by analogy to practice in collision cases under the 59th rule.[54]

B. Evidence, proof and hearing, and decree.—A decree in rem against a colliding vessel is not admissible for cargo owners who were not made legally subject to it.[55] Testimony of officers and witnesses on board is of more weight than opinions of others.[56]

Issues.—On a libel for charter hire the whole contract may be gone into whether all breaches are specifically alleged or not.[57] Whether a vessel owner designedly or negligently caused a fire may be inquired into in a proceeding to limit liability.[58] On a suit for salvage against ship and cargo, the cargo owners cannot 42. The New York (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 810; Smith v. McAllister, Id.

43. Gow v. William W. Brauer S. S. Co., 113 Fed. 672.

44. After remand see also infra, § 4.

45. The Thomas P. Sheldon, 113 Fed. 779; The S. L. Watson, Id.

46. Separate claims for salvage and towage—Merritt & Chapman Co. v. Chubb (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 173.

47. The Falls of Keltie, 114 Fed. 357.

48. Assaults by master on seamen—The Falls of Keltie, 114 Fed. 357.

49. Intervention by insurer—Mason v. Marine Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 110 Fed. 452.

50. The Oregon (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 482.

51. Docket fees, Rev. St., § 824—Merritt & Chapman Co. v. Catskill & N. Y. Steamboat Co., 112 Fed. 442.

52. New Haven Towing Co. v. City and Town of New Haven, 116 Fed. 762; Castle v. Same, Id.

53. American Steel Barge Co. v. Chesapeake & O. Coal, etc., Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 669.

54. Dailey v. City of New York, 119 Fed. 1005.

55. The Harrogate (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 1019.

56. The Captain Sam, 115 Fed. 1000.

Pleadings and proofs held not to warrant a decree against defendant owners of the salved vessel, who had been allowed a sum for salvage, that they pay salvage in exoneration of the defendant insurer who contracted for it—Merritt & Chapman Co. v. Chubb (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 173.

57. Time of surrendering the vessel is raised by libeling for hire for the month in advance during which surrender was made—Gow v. William W. Brauer S. S. Co., 113 Fed. 672.

58. Rev. St., § 428; In re Old Dominion S. S. Co., 115 Fed. 845.

litigate against the ship her liability for the disaster.[59] An amendment after remand alleging that libelant insurer was authorized to file the libel and collect the amount paid as insurance and that the vessel owner claimed no further damages is supported by proof of a release from the vessel owner to the insurer made after remand on appeal.[60]

Commissioner's findings should when practicable be paragraphed and numbered and exceptions should refer to such numbers.[61] It is of great weight with the court.[62] Objections to a commissioner's computation should be by exception. His procedure is analagous to that of a master in chancery.[63] It is not a fatal error that on a reference a commissioner sat outside the jurisdiction.[64]

Hearing and decree.—The circuit court may if it has obtained jurisdiction consolidate suits pending before it and the district courts growing out of one disaster.[65] Damages should be confined to the claims in the pleadings.[66] A decree may be corrected after term in favor of a petitioner free from fraud or laches if justice requires it.[67] Unless the vessel was arrested and advertised, cargo owners are not affected by a decree in rem founded on an appearance by vessel owners.[68] If the court had power to permit the amendment of a libel, sureties on a stipulation to release a vessel are found by decree as on the original libel.[69]

Costs.—The premium paid to a surety company for a bond to secure libelant's responding in damages to a cross-libel, when such bond is required by a claimant under rule 53, is taxable as costs.[70] This is not so where the surety company was obligated to protect the vessel from liens and hence acted for its own protection without really receiving a premium.[71] The taking of an excessive bond will not exonerate a claimant from costs if he agreed to the amount or failed to seek a reduction.[72] The issuance of an arrest prematurely may be compensated in costs.[73] Costs subsequent to a tender of freight for cargo actually carried, less the expense entailed by failure to carry all that was agreed, will be charged to a libeling carrier and not to the shipper.[74] If the court had jurisdiction of subject matter and parties the libelant may be charged with costs though the libel be dismissed.[75]

§ 4. Appeals and subsequent proceedings.—Practice on appeal.—Dismissal of a cross libel on a collision is an interlocutory order not reviewable by the Supreme Court.[76] Judgment on demurrer with leave to amend is interlocutory and goes up with final decree on the amended libel.[77] An appeal by one claimant does not bring up other distinct claims covered by the decree.[78] Objections to computations by a commissioner will be waived on appeal unless saved by exception on or prior to time of hearing below.[79] Objections for nonjoinder should be made below.[80]

59. The James Turpie, 113 Fed. 700.
60. Fairgrieve v. Marine Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 364.
61. The Itasca, 117 Fed. 885.
62. The Gertrude, 112 Fed. 448.
63. The Eliza Lines (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 307.
64. The William H. Bailey, 100 Fed. 115; affirmed, 111 Fed. 1006.
65. For salvage against ship and cargo, for possession of cargo by cargo-owner, for payment of freight and general average by master against cargo—The Eliza Lines (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 307.
66. The Itasca, 117 Fed. 885.
67. Decree of dismissal inadvertently entered by clerk before any order was made by court set aside and re-entered to save appeal—Hall v. Chisholm (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 807.
68. The Harrogate (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 1019.
69. Fairgrieve v. Marine Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 364.
70. Jacobsen v. Lewis Klondike Expedition Co. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 73. Costs on appeal, see infra, § 4.
71. The Robert Dollar, 116 Fed. 79.
72. The Barge No. 127, 113 Fed. 529.
73. American Steel Barge Co. v. Chesapeake & O. Coal. etc., Co., 115 Fed. 669.
74. Edward Hines Lumber Co. v. Chamberlain (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 716.
75. The Francisco, 118 Fed. 112; The F. W. Munn, Id.
76. Bowker v. United States (U. S.) 22 Sup. Ct. 802.
77. Dennis v. Slyfield (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 474.
78. Mason v. Marine Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 110 Fed. 452.
79. The Eliza Lines (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 307.
80. Salvage awarded to crew of salving

Review and hearing.—Error must be made manifest by appellant before a conclusion reached by two courts below will be disturbed.[81] The same is true where testimony was conflicting or where the witnesses are not impugned in any way.[82] The trial court's award will be reduced only for injustice, palpable error or gross overallowance,[83] and the court will strongly favor the correctness of a decree for damages after an appraisement taken, as against testimony of witnesses who saw the vessel some years later.[84] The practice of taking further testimony on appeal is to be discouraged.[85] Defects in record or proof due to appellant's lack of diligence are not reversible errors.[86] If the final judgment was on one cause of action only the other having been dismissed it matters not that there was a misjoinder.[87]

A mandate reversing the decree because an insurer recovered more than he paid, and which allowed an amendment to show that no liability longer existed towards any one but insurer is satisfied by an amendment and proof that after remand the vessel owner released all right to the insurer.[88] An amendment to plead a special defense in a new form after it has gone through to the Supreme Court and been remanded will be denied.[89] Each party should pay his own costs rather than divide them where both appeal and both fail to maintain the appeals.[90]

ADOPTION OF CHILDREN.[91]

Adoptive acts and proceedings.—A parol agreement may be executed so as to dispense with a deed by reception of a child as one's own and by so treating her until grown[92] and may be specifically enforced.[93] A sealed will reciting an adoption is neither operative as a deed of adoption nor conclusive that one had been made.[94] The fact that a deed of adoption was recorded is evidence that an acknowledgement of it was regular[95] and the record of an order of adoption reciting presence of the parties and of the child and execution of consents overcomes an objection that the agreements were not executed in the judge's presence.[96] A petition may state residence of parents by reference to their written consent attached to it.[97] A probate judgment of adoption will be secure against collateral attack though not formally entered. The essential facts other than those recited will be presumed to have been found.[98] A blank decree signed and with proper vessel not made parties—The Flottbek (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 954.

81. Wilder's S. S. Co. v. Low (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 161.

82. Jacobsen v. Lewis Klondike Expedition Co. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 73; Alaska Packers' Ass'n v. Domenico (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 99.

83. Hume v. J. D. Spreckels & Bros. Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 51.

84. Fairgrieve v. Marine Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 364.

85. Should be produced on trial when possible—Pacific Steam Whaling Co. v. Grismore (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 68.

86. The McDonald (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 681.

87. The S. L. Watson (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 945; The Thomas P. Sheldon, Id.

88. Fairgrieve v. Marine Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 364.

89. Burrill v. Crossman, 111 Fed. 192.

90. Donnell v. Amoskeag Mfg. Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 10; Amoskeag Mfg. Co. v. Donnell, Id.; following The North Star, 106 U. S. 17, 27 Law. Ed. 91; rejecting rule for division in McComb v. Frink, 149 U. S. 629, 37 Law. Ed. 876.

91. The legal relation between a foster parent and child is considered to belong to the title "Parent and Child."

92. The surrender was on the express condition that she would be so treated and the foster parent concealed from the child its real parentage—Lynn v. Hockaday, 162 Mo. 111.

93. McElvain v. McElvain (Mo.) 71 S. W. 142.

94. In re Phillips' Estate, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 103.

95. It bore two signatures, one by the probate judge, and one by unauthorized officer. The law (Vt. Stat. 1894, § 2861) required the probate judge to be satisfied that it had been complied with—Cook v. Bartlett, 179 Mass. 576.

96. Von Beck v. Thomsen, 44 App. Div. (N. Y.) 373; affirmed, 167 N. Y. 601.

97. Substantial compliance with 1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 353—Flannigan v. Howard, 200 Ill. 396.

98. Blanks were left in the decree for the names of the adopter and the children—Wilson v. Otis (N. H.) 53 Atl. 439.

necessary findings is proof of rendition of such a decree.[99] Validity of the decree is unaffected by the long absence of the petition and decree from the court files.[1] An adoption is not presumed merely from the fact that the child resided with the alleged adoptor who was of the same race.[2] It cannot be proved by parol evidence, unless there be some testimony as to the legal act of adoption and explanation of why it is not produced.[3]

Consequences of adoption.—The adopting father's wife acquires no paternal rights under the Tennessee laws if she does not join in the proceedings.[4] Neither is the natural mother estopped as against her by having joined.[5] In Nebraska there is no inheritable capacity conferred if it be not so stipulated in the act of adoption.[6] In Missouri it is conferred by an executed parol adoption.[7] In Wisconsin adoption of a child during marriage revokes a will[8] and the same results in Illinois by virtue of acts giving the inheritable capacity.[9] Bastards may in some states be legitimized by acts of adoption or recognition and thus clothed with inheritable and other rights.[10] Where the proceeding confers "all the rights" of the relation, a child adopted comes under a prior policy payable to "children,"[11] but the question whether the word "child" includes an adopted one usually involves the interpretation of the instrument containing it.[12]

A contract to adopt providing that the adopter shall care for, maintain and make future provision for a child, to give her his name and teach her to regard himself and wife as parents is sufficiently definite to be specifically enforced, is consonant with public policy, and has for its consideration the surrender of parental rights by the real parents. It is not unjust to the widow and natural children if only a child's portion falls to the adopted one.[13] It is not enforceable at law and may not be in equity if the child lives unworthily.[14] Declarations and suppositions that the parent would make the adopted child a legatee must have amounted to a contract so to do, or the child will have no rights against a contrary disposal by the will.[15]

ADULTERATION.

§ 1. Legislation and regulation.—The police power entitles a state to repress or forbid adulterations that are deleterious[16] which are not protected because they happen to be by a patented process.[17] Statutes directed against sale of injuriously or fraudulently adulterated foods are not an interference with interstate commerce.[18] A state law against fraudulent adulterations does not conflict with the

99. Wilson v. Otis (N. H.) 53 Atl. 439.

1. Wilson v. Otis (N. H.) 53 Atl. 439.

2. Indians—Henry v. Taylor (S. D.) 93 N. W. 641.

3. Henry v. Taylor (S. D.) 93 N. W. 641.

4. Shannon's Code, §§ 5409-5411; Baskette v. Streight, 106 Tenn. 549. This statute allows a wife to join though its words import only the masculine—Balch v. Johnson, 106 Tenn. 249.

5. Baskette v. Streight, 106 Tenn. 549.

6. Gen. St. 1873, c. 57, tit. 25, § 797, provides that the adopting person "may stipulate" that the child shall have rights of a natural parent—Ferguson v. Herr (Neb.) 90 N. W. 625.

7. Lynn v. Hockaday, 162 Mo. 111.

8. Rev. St. 1898, c. 173, §§ 4021-4024; Glascott v. Bragg, 111 Wis. 605.

9. Flannigan v. Howard, 200 Ill. 396.

10. See Bastards; Descent and Distribution.

11. Laws 1887, c. 703, § 10, Von Beck v. Thomsen, 44 App. Div. (N. Y.) 373; affirmed, 167 N. Y. 601. A policy payable to the foster mother or to children if she should pre-decease the insured is not a trust dependent on survival of heirs within the exception of the statute (see section 10).

12. See Wills and like titles. Not included in "bodily heirs"—Balch v. Johnson, 106 Tenn. 249.

13. Healy v. Healy, 55 App. Div. (N. Y.) 315; affirmed, 167 N. Y. 572.

14. Winne v. Winne, 166 N. Y. 263.

15. Steele v. Steele, 161 Mo. 566. Testimony of a conversation 30 years ago not sufficient to prove agreement to make adopted child heir in face of a deed to custody of the child silent on the subject—Merchant v. White, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 539.

16. Commonwealth v. Kevin, 202 Pa. 23.

17. Arbuckle v. Blackburn (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 616.

18. As in Ohio—Arbuckle v. Blackburn (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 616.

federal law against importations of harmfully or unwholesomely adulterated foods.[19] The New York law is not unconstitutional in requiring a test from "milk of the herd" when a producer is to be prosecuted and making a test from samples of milk sold or offered when a mere vender is to be prosecuted.[20]

§ 2. The offense.—A prohibition of the use of certain preservatives does not make them adulterants.[21] Use of preservatives on meat is not included by the words "or food products of any nature" as used in the Minnesota statute in immediate connection with enumerated dairy products.[22] Under the Pennsylvania act an injurious adulterant need not be used in injurious quantities.[23] Oleomargarine is colored like "yellow" butter if it has a "perceptible shade" of yellow.[24] A liquid produced by soaking dried apple waste and coloring it is an imitation of cider vinegar.[25]

A statute declaring a fine on one who has in possession adulterated food with intent to sell it gives such the character of an offense though a prior clause prohibits other acts but omits this.[26] The offense of unlawfully having in possession subsists though accused did not himself procure the adulteration.[27] It is a selling to send orders and receive shipments as "agent" and distribute them,[28] but not every order procured by an agent brings him within a statute declaring that taking orders shall be deemed a sale.[29] If he takes an order for "pure" products, he is guiltless though his employer sends adulterated goods marked "pure."[30]

Defendant may show that he innocently used a preservative represented to be free from any harmful ingredient and especially from the one found.[31] Under the New York law against selling adulterated milk the intent of the vender is immaterial.[32]

When the offense is in selling or offering adulterated milk and conviction is on tests of a sample fairly taken it is not relevant that accused had not tampered with the milk nor that no sample was taken from milk of the producer's herd.[33] Reading and study may qualify one as an expert to say that formaldehyde is deleterious.[34]

§ 3. Enforcement and prosecution.—A law providing for the forfeiture of a certain sum for violation should be enforced by action and not criminally.[35]

19. "Coated, colored or polished." Laws 1893, c. 661, § 41, and Act Cong. 1890, c. 839—Crossman v. Lurman, 171 N. Y. 329.

20. Laws 1893, c. 338; Laws 1900, c. 101—People v. Laesser (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 470.

21. People v. Biesecker, 169 N. Y. 53.

22. State v. Rumberg, 86 Minn. 399.

23. Salicylic acid in fruit juice; Act June 26, 1895, § 3, subs. 7—Commonwealth v. Kevin, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 414; affirmed, 202 Pa. 23.

24. Acts 1901 No. 22—People v. Phillips (Mich.) 91 N. W. 616.

25. Laws 1893, c. 308; 1901 c. 338—People v. Niagara Fruit Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 11.

26. Acts 1899, p. 189; this act forbidding manufacture or sale of adulterated food or drugs, defining foods and drugs, and stating what shall be adulteration, and fixing duties of board of health held to contain only one subject; and not to delegate the legislative power because it authorized the board to fix a standard of purity—Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517.

27. Milk—Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517.

28. Commonwealth v. Leslie, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 529.

29. Pure Food Law, § 17—People v. Morse (Mich.) 90 N. W. 673.

30. Pub. Acts, 1899, No. 117—People v. Skillman, (Mich.) 89 N. W. 330; People v. Morse (Mich.) 90 N. W. 673.

31. Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517.

32. Laws 1893, c. 338, § 37—People v. Laesser (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 470.

33. People v. Laesser (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 470.

34. Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517. Held sufficient that proof was that the adulterated cream was taken from a wagon bearing the license number of defendant, and driven by defendant's servant—People v. Hills, 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584. Driver's statement that he was on his way to certain places of delivery not followed by any proof of any delivery is insufficient to show "sale or exposure"—People v. McDermott-Bunger Dairy Co., 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 365. Held sufficient to take the question of knowledge to the jury that defendant objected to an inspector's taking milk which was adulterated though his reason was that he needed it for customers—Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517; sufficiency of evidence from tests of a sample taken from a milk vender's cans—People v. Laesser (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 470.

35. N. Y. Agri. Law, § 37 and though the penalty be "at least" $25 and not more than

Private persons may complain of a violation of a law though enforcement of it be enjoined on certain officers.[36] The accusation need not negative an exception in favor of certain compounds used as food.[37] It suffices to allege presence of a "substance injurious" without adding a charge that the particular adulterant was so.[38] A proviso that the vendor of food shall sell a sample for analysis if requested does not require that the accusation shall show whether any was so procured nor how evidence was obtained.[39] Whether samples of milk on which conviction is sought were fairly taken will not be submitted unless there is a contrariety of evidence thereupon.[40] Affidavits under the New York laws to sustain an application to enjoin sale of adulterated food pending prosecution should show statutory elements of the offense.[41]

ADULTERY.[42]

The offense.—Parties must dwell together in a common residence, to "live together"[43] and a single act is not "living in adultery."[44] The paramour need not be married.[45]

The indictment.—No continuendo need accompany an averment as on a certain day.[46] The words "having a lawful wife other than A" do not imply that she is the wife of accused as against a contrary averment, and an averment as to her being married is needless in such a case.[47]

Evidence.—The same rules of admissibility apply as in divorce or criminal conversation.[48] The fact that accused went into hearsay as to his relation with the paramour, does not open the way to the state.[49] Circumstances must be brought home to accused.[50] Immodest, familiar or equivocal conduct may be shown on the question of intimacy,[51] or it may be proved by declarations showing influence with the paramour[52] in connection with which the occasion of making them may be proved.[53]

Bad repute of the paramour is excluded.[54] The fact that accused being able to hear it laughed aloud when the guilty wife repulsed her husband is relevant.[55]

$100 the smaller sum may be collected despite the absence of a provision as to who shall fix the amount—People v. Bremer, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 14.

36. Board of health; Acts 1899, p. 189—Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517.

37. Nor allege that any standard of purity had been fixed under a statute which merely authorized the health board so to do, but which in any event declared a penalty—Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517.

38. Formaldehyde—Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517.

39. Acts 1899, p. 189—Isenhour v. State, 157 Ind. 517.

40. The inspectors testified without contradiction that the milk was thoroughly stirred before sampling—People v. Laesser (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 470.

41. Laws 1893, c. 338, § 10—People v. Windholz, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 552. Injunction against further sale, in N. Y. not grantable by county judge. See statutes—People v. Windholz, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 552.

42. Matters of law and procedure common to all crimes see Criminal Law; Criminal Procedure; Indictment, etc. Also see, Fornication; Disorderly Conduct. Civil Liability, see Husband and Wife; Seduction. Ground for divorce, see Divorce.

43. Massey v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 911.

44. Penal Code, § 381—Lawson v. State (Ga.) 42 S. E. 752.

45. Lyman v. People, 98 Ill. App. 386.

46. "Living in open" adultery—Lyman v. People, 198 Ill. 544.

47. Lyman v. People, 198 Ill. 544.

48. State v. Kimball, 74 Vt. 223. Consult Divorce; Husband and Wife.

49. Guinn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 376.

50. Hat and coat found where there had been wallowing on the ground but no proof of ownership nor that accused and paramour had been on the ground—Guinn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 376.

51. Getting drunk together, the one falling into the other's lap, going riding together, going as by prearrangement to a negro's house—Guinn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 376.

52. Professions of ability to induce him to furnish bail for a third person—Roller v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 66 S. W. 777.

53. Making arrest of third person at home of accused—Roller v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 66 S. W. 777.

54. Guinn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 376.

The corpus delicti need not be separately shown.[56] Adulterous inclination or undue attentiveness together with equivocal meetings may suffice to prove the offense.[57]

Practice and trial.—The indictment is not vitiated because a transcript removing the cause unnecessarily names the offense and misdescribes it.[58] The injured spouse may insist on a dismissal if given the sole right to prosecute.[59] It is not necessary that both though jointly indicted be tried together.[60] If the offense be a misdemeanor no election is compellable.[61] Instructions need not define "adultery."[62] Whether there was in fact a cohabitation together in open adultery under a statute so defining the crime should be submitted to the jury and it is not sufficient to put to them only the question whether defendants "cohabited together and had intercourse."[63] It is not error unless made so by objection that the bastard offspring of the adulterer was in court in view of the jury.[64]

ADVERSE POSSESSION.[65]

§ 1. Estates and property subject to adverse possession.—There can be no adverse holding of public property against the United States or a state,[66] or a municipal corporation holding in trust for the public,[67] so a street cannot be adversely held,[68] as where abutting owners encroach.[69] Alleys dedicated for the common use of particular lots,[70] or in Minnesota, highways[71] are exceptions to this rule. Statutes in some states, exempt railroad lands from limitation acts.[72] Such acts are not grants of special privileges.[73] A town-site excepted from a

55. Campbell v. State (Ala.) 32 So. 635. A whispered statement by the paramour to the witness that a man just then getting into bed with them was accused is hearsay if accused could not have heard it—Guinn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 376.

56. State v. Kimball, 74 Vt. 223.

57. Amorous letters written after arrest —Monteith v. State, 114 Wis. 165 and see State v. Schaedler (Iowa) 90 N. W. 91.

Evidence examined—Lyman v. People, 198 Ill. 544 ("living in open" adultery, also proof of marriage); State v. Kimball, 74 Vt. 223; State v. Schaedler (Iowa) 90 N. W. 91; subsequent acts held sufficient to show inclination, and, with other facts, to convict—State v. More, 115 Iowa, 178; evidence not sufficient to show a "living together"—Burnett v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 207.

58. Adultery called "Adultery and fornication." Code Cr. Proc., art. 471—Roller v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 66 S. W. 777.

59. Hosford v. Gratiot Circuit Judge (Mich.) 88 N. W. 627.

60. Lyman v. People, 98 Ill. App. 386.

61. Massey v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 911.

62. Lyman v. People, 198 Ill. 544.

63. Tomlinson v. People, 102 Ill. App. 542.

64. Green v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 22.

65. Bar of actions concerning real property not dependent on possession, see Limitation of Actions.

Easements may be gained by prescriptive use and in like manner a dedication may be presumed from long use, etc., see Easements; Dedication.

Loss of property rights by abandonment, see Property.

66. Schlosser v. Hemphill (Iowa) 90 N. W. 814; U. S. v. Dastervignes, 118 Fed. 199.

67. Norrell v. Augusta R. & Elec. Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 466.

Tide land belonging to a city is not subject to state possessory acts; Cal. Statutes 1852, p. 158—United Land Ass'n v. Pacific Imp. Co. (Cal.) 69 Pac. 1064.

68. City of Dekalb v. Luney, 193 Ill. 185.

As where a railroad occupied by an embankment and culvert—Kelly v. Pittsburgh C. C. & St. L. R. Co., 28 Ind. App. 457.

Where possession was under a deed from the dedicator, subsequent to the execution of the deed to the city—Norrell v. Augusta R. & Elec. Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 466.

69. Shirk v. Chicago, 195 Ill. 298.

70. Hegan v. Pendennis Club, 23 Ky. Law R. 861.

71. Prior to Laws 1899, c. 65—City of Hastings v. Gillitt, 85 Minn. 331.

72. Railroad land if within the boundaries condemned and shown by the recorded award, though outside the track and not occupied, cannot be adversely held—Vermont St. § 3745; Drouin v. Boston & M. R. Co. (Vt.) 52 Atl. 957; construing Rev. St. 1899, § 4270, exempting lands granted to public use, in a case where the land was designated for railroad stock yards and grounds on the plat, but not occupied for railroad purposes—St. Joseph, St. L. & S. F. R. Co. v. Smith (Mo.) 70 S. W. 700.

73. Drouin v. Boston & M. R. Co. (Vt.) 52 Atl. 957. In a note to Southern Pac. Co. v. Hyatt, 132 Cal. 240, 64 Pac. 272, 51 Am. L. Reg. 236, the cases concerning acquisition of a railroad right of way by adverse possession are collected. The California cases against the possibility of adverse holding are placed on the double ground that the right of way is held for public use and is a public highway—Southern Pac. Co. v. Burr, 86 Cal. 279, 24 Pac. 1032. That a railway is deed but actually enclosed and occupied may be acquired by a holding sufficiently continued.[74] In the case of government land, possession may become adverse as soon as the entryman is entitled to a patent,[75] and a right in public lands which may be perfected and rendered capable of assertion may be barred.[76]

§ 2. Against whom available.—Adverse possession will not avail against the state,[77] or a municipal corporation, or against minors.[78] After right of entry accrues to them, possession may be adverse to the remaindermen.[79] In Illinois possession by an heir is not adverse to the unassigned dower right of the widow.[80] Statutes of limitation do not run against a woman during coverture,[81] but may run against one through whom she subsequently claims.[82]

§ 3. To whom available.[83]—A railroad company may hold adversely.[84] A city as trustee for the public cannot hold for its own benefit.[85] A city cannot acquire title by adverse possession through the erection of a building on ground to which it makes no claim except as part of a public street.[86] One holding by purchase may also assert limitation acts.[87] A judgment purchaser may hold against a claim under a mortgage junior to the judgment.[88]

§ 4. Definition and essential elements.—All statutory elements must be united,[89] and there be actual possession,[90] before action brought.[91] Enclosure may be required.[92] Occupancy must be open, continuous, notorious and ada public highway, is announced in Olcott v. Fond du Lac County Sup'rs, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 678, 21 Law. Ed. 382, and in accord therewith are Moran v. Ross, 79 Cal. 159, 21 Pac. 547; St. J. & D. C. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 103 U. S. 426, 26 Law. Ed. 578; Drouin v. Boston & M. R. Co. (Vt.) 52 Atl. 957; Philadelphia R. R. Co. v. Obert, 109 Pa. 193; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Freeport, 138 Pa. 91; Bassett v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 201 Pa. 226. In a number of other jurisdictions it is held, however, that railroads are not public highways and that the statute will run against them. This is the rule announced in Northern P. R. Co. v. Ely, 25 Wash. 384, 65 Pac. 555; 54 L. R. A. 526, and the court cites in accord with its view, Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Houghton, 126 Ill. 233; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. O'Connor, 154 Ill. 550; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Moore, 160 Ill. 9; Donahue v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 165 Ill. 640; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Wakefield, 173 Ill. 564; Paxton v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co., 76 Miss. 536; Matthews v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 110 Mich. 170. The commentator states that also in accord with this holding are Coleman v. Flint & P. M. R. Co., 64 Mich. 160; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Stickley, 155 Ind. 312; Wilbur v. Cedar Rapids & M. R. Co. (Iowa) 89 N. W. 101; Norton v. London & N. W. R. Co., 13 Ch. Div. 268 (which holds that the statute runs against the superfluous land of a railroad); Bobbett v. South Eastern R. Co., 9 Q. B. Div. 424 (where it is held that it runs against the railroad whether the land in question is superfluous or not); Erie & N. R. Co. v. Rosseau, 17 Ont. App. 483; N. P. R. Co. v. Hasse, 28 Wash. 353, 68 Pac. 882.

74. The original grantee held for 17 years and his wife after a conveyance to her for 13 years, under color of title of the entire tract, the land having been enclosed 25 years —Hohl v. Osborne (Iowa) 92 N. W. 697.

75. Baty v. Elrod (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1032.

76. Robles v. Cooksey (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 584.

77. Kolb v. Jones, 62 S. C. 193, and cases cited under § 1, supra. There can be no holding of a bed of a dried up body of water owned by either the federal government or the state—Carr v. Moore (Iowa) 93 N. W. 52; Bryan v. Same, Id.

78. Mobile Transp. Co. v. City of Mobile, 128 Ala. 335; Norrell v. Augusta R. & El. Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 466; claim under deed from trustee of minor's estate—Hunter v. Hunter, 63 S. C. 78.

79. Widow who was life devisee procured legal title by payment of balance of purchase money due on bond and conveyed to one who held adversely to the remaindermen more than ten years after the death of the widow—Love v. Butler, 129 Ala. 531.

80. So held under twenty year section of the limitation law—Brumback v. Brumback, 198 Ill. 66.

81. Estes v. Turner (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1007.

82. Estes v. Turner (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1007.

83. See post, § 5, as to particular relationships affecting hostility of claim.

84. Ohio River R. Co. v. Johnson, 50 W. Va. 499.

85. Kansas City v. Scarritt, 169 Mo. 471.

86. This case seems to depend on the fact that the city has no power to erect buildings on land which it had dedicated for street purposes—Pettit v. Grand Junction (Iowa) 93 N. W. 381.

87. Adams v. Hopkins (Cal.) 69 Pac. 228.

88. Mortgagees cannot enforce a lien after ten years (Rev. St. Wis. 1898, § 4211)—Gunnison v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. (Wis.) 117 Fed. 629.

89. Maxwell v. Cunningham, 50 W. Va. 298. Must be open, notorious, exclusive and adverse under claim and color of title against the true owner and the world. [These are the words of the syllabus by the court but the opinion does not announce as an unqualified rule that color of title is a prime element of adverse possession.]—Beer v. Dalton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 593.

90. So held in case of a burial lot—verse,[93] and possession must be apparent to other claimants.[94] There must be no actual occupancy by others,[95] though it seems an encroacher need not be evicted where there is no knowledge of adverse claim. Erection of telegraph lines without claim of title is not adverse possession.[97] A city cannot acquire land for a park by mere public use without a claim by the authorities that it is public property.[98]

§ 5. Hostility.—Possession must be adverse,[99] throughout the entire period.[1] Permissive possession is not sufficient,[2] as where under a belief that the land will be given the occupants.[3] Hostility may be unnecessary where possession is open, notorious and peaceable.[4] The occupant need not give notice of his claim to the true owner in words.[5]

In the absence of a confidential or trust relation, notice of adverse holding or knowledge thereof need not be shown,[6] though where possession is originally subordinate the hostility must be unequivocal and the true owner have notice,[7] so where a tenant conveys all his right, title and interest, possession by his grantee is not adverse to the landlord.[8] A trustee while the trust continues cannot hold adversely to the beneficiary.[9] Permissive possession need not be surrendered that it may become adverse.[10] An heir who is also an executor is not presumed to Melggs v. Hoagland, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 182. Continuous use for grazing and occasional occupation for cutting wood is not sufficient —McCook v. Crawford, 114 Ga. 337.

91. Jones v. Patterson, 23 Ky. Law R. 1838; Patterson v. Davis, Id.; Davis v. Patterson, Id.

92. To secure benefit of 7 years statute—Asher Lumber Co. v. Clemmons, 23 Ky. Law R. 1771.

93. Knight v. Denman (Neb.) 90 N. W. 863.

94. McCook v. Crawford, 114 Ga. 337. Notice to the true owner is shown where with the adverse claimant he agrees to the construction of buildings over the true line—Klinkner v. Schmidt, 114 Iowa, 695. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 1883, § 7, it is insufficient to drive to the property occasionally and sometimes pluck flowers thereon.—Stalford v. Goldring, 197 Ill. 156.

95. McCook v. Crawford, 114 Ga. 337.

96. Lackey v. Bennett (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 651.

97. Andrews v. Delhi and S. Tel. Co., 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 23.

98. The owners were meantime improving and controlling the land and enclosed it entirely at times—Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757; Same v. Townsend, Id.

99. Necessity therefor is not removed by Session Laws, Colorado, 1893, p. 327, § 1, providing that actions to recover land must be brought within twenty years after the claimant has been seized or possessed of the premises—Evans v. Welch, 29 Colo. 355, 68 Pac. 776. So held, where persons to whom lots were conveyed held possession of a strip designated as an out lot—Evans v. Welch, 29 Colo. 355, 68 Pac. 776. Where a wall is erected under a license, its mere continuance for 20 years does not give a right by adverse possession—Percival v. Chase (Mass.) 65 N. E. 800; Chase v. Percival, Id. When a person goes on land under contract with another as owner and builds houses but within 8 years before suit is brought makes three attempts to file on a portion as a homestead, he cannot be regarded as holding for the person under whom he entered—Watts v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 258. A right to water from a spring cannot be acquired by adverse possession by taking, where not shown to be under a claim of right, adverse to plaintiff or his grantor—Hunter v. Emerson (Vt.) 53 Atl. 1070.

1. Knight v. Denman (Neb.) 90 N. W. 863.

2. Hicks Bros. v. Swift Creek Mill Co., 133 Ala. 411, 57 L. R. A. 720. So held, where the claimant lived with his father, recognizing his father's title until the father's death—Butler v. Butler, 133 Ala. 377. Where a railroad company goes into possession on an agreement for a deed in case tracks and a station are constructed—Southern Cal. R. Co. v. Slauson (Cal.) 68 Pac. 107. Where entry was permissive, subsequent acts indicate that it remained so and claimants have taken a lease of the premises—McClenahan v. Stevenson (Iowa) 91 N. W. 925.

3. McClenahan v. Stevenson (Iowa) 91 N. W. 925.

4. Toltec Ranch Co. v. Babcock, 24 Utah, 183, 66 Pac. 876.

5. Jangraw v. Mee (Vt.) 54 Atl. 189.

6. Bryce v. Cayce, 62 S. C. 546. As where two persons are living together on land of which one has title, the holding of the person without title is not adverse, though the relation of the parties is not that of husband and wife—Lloyd v. Rawl, 63 S. C. 219.

7. Maxwell v. Cunningham, 50 W. Va. 298; Stevenson v. Black, 168 Mo. 549. Notice of adverse rights is not afforded by cheap shanties erected by squatters on city lots—Blake v. Shriver, 27 Wash. 593. 68 Pac. 330.

8. Bruce v. Richardson (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 785.

9. Dresser v. Travis, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 358. So held though the trustee had received from the beneficiary a deed of the subject-matter void because the grantor was of unsound mind—Spicer v. Holbrook, 23 Ky. Law R. 1812.

10. Whelchel v. Gainesville & D. Elec. R. Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 776.

hold adversely.[11] A widow's occupancy begun in subordination to the title of her husband is not adverse to his heirs,[12] and the rule applies to a purchaser from certain heirs.[13] One entitled to an undivided interest in land as an heir may purchase from one who has acquired an interest through a tax sale and hold adversely.[14] Occupancy by the husband may be adverse to the wife's statutory estate after her death.[15] One continuing on a homestead entry after its cancellation and a grant of the land to a railroad holds adversely.[16] A grantor may hold adversely to his grantee,[17] but possession under a contract of purchase uncomplied with is not adverse,[18] as when there is a default in payment of the purchase money.[19] The vendee must be entitled to a deed.[20] Mere occupancy after a conveyance is presumed to be in subordination to the title conveyed,[21] as where grantees are children,[22] though not where there is a re-entry after conveyance with covenants of warranty.[23] An heir in joint possession with a widow who has a dower interest does not cause his wife to hold adversely by a voluntary conveyance to her.[24] Where the vendee is in partial occupancy the vendor cannot hold the unoccupied portion adversely without notice,[25] as where a vendor remains in possession of a portion of the premises described in his conveyance but makes no claim of ownership to more than the amount of land remaining in him according to the terms of his conveyance.[26] Possession under a claim that a conveyance was in trust for the occupants is not hostile to the grantee,[27] or permissive possession under a deed fraudulent as to creditors.[28] Vendees holding subject to a vendor's lien cannot claim their possession as adverse.[29]

Mortgagor and mortgagee.—A constructive mortgagee in possession under an agreement that rent shall be applied to payment of taxes and compensation of the mortgagee, does not hold adversely,[30] or a mortgagee in possession who accepts payments on the debt.[31] The grantee of a mortgagor cannot assert title as against one acquiring title through a sale under the mortgage, where the grantee has by taking a contract for a deed from the purchaser at such sale, recognized its validity.[32] Foreclosure to which a grantee of the mortgagor is not made a party does not alter the character of his possession as being consistent and subject to the title under the mortgage.[33] After foreclosure of a mortgage by exercise of the power of sale the mortgagor may hold possession adversely, though the mortgagee

11. Walker v. Killian, 62 S. C. 482.
12. Smith v. Cunningham, 79 Miss. 425.
13. Purchasers from certain heirs are regarded as holding in amity with the other heirs and widow—Sergent v. North Cumberland Mfg. Co., 23 Ky. Law R. 2226.
14. It will not amount to a mere redemption by an heir, and limitation act, § 6, Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 1117, will apply—Richards v. Carter, 201 Ill. 165.
15. Llde v. Park (Ala.) 33 So. 175.
16. This holding was accompanied by acts of dominion such as fencing, cultivation, erection of buildings, and payment of taxes—Wilbur v. Cedar Rapids & M. R. R. Co. (Iowa) 89 N. W. 101.
17. Mannix v. Riordan, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 135.
18. Alsup v. Stewart, 194 Ill. 595; Jenkins v. McMichael, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 476.
19. Thompson v. Dutton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 641; judgment reversed on rehearing, Id. 996. So held where after breach in the bond a vendor retook and held possession for 10 years without accounting for rents and profits or otherwise recognizing the purchaser—Love v. Butler, 129 Ala. 531.
20. Beer v. Dalton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 593.
21. Collins v. Colleran, 86 Minn. 199.
22. Continued for eight years—Tully v. Tully, 137 Cal. 60, 69 Pac. 700.
23. Horbach v. Boyd (Neb.) 89 N. W. 644.
24. Construing Rev. St. Ill., c. 83, § 6—Brumback v. Brumback, 198 Ill. 66.
25. So held where a portion of land granted a railroad was not used by the company—Graham v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co., 69 Ark. 562.
26. In this case the vendor did not know where the boundary of his conveyance went and although he cultivated a portion, made no improvements and claim of title—Woods v. Texas Land & Loan Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 155.
27. McClenahan v. Stevenson (Iowa) 91 N. W. 925.
28. McClenahan v. Stevenson (Iowa) 91 N. W. 925.
29. Henry v. McNew (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 213.
30. Decker v. Decker (Neb.) 89 N. W. 795.
31. Goodman v. Pareira, 70 Ark. 49.
32. Alsup v. Stewart, 194 Ill. 595.
33. Alsup v. Stewart, 194 Ill. 595.

purchases.[34] As against a claim of adverse possession asserted in partition, it is proper to show that claimant entered as a tenant.[35]

Error as to boundary.—If occupancy is due to a mere mistake as to the location of a line neither of the adjoining owners can claim adversely,[36] but there may be adverse occupancy,[37] as where there is a claim of ownership to the line,[38] or where adjoining owners each claim to own beyond a fence erected without regard to the actual boundary,[39] but not where the occupant makes no claim to land other than his lot.[40]

Recognition of a superior title where a portion of a lot is held adversely does not result from the securing of a license to use the remainder.[41] Occupant may purchase outstanding claims of portions.[42] Assertions in legal proceedings of an intent not to claim a fee, will prevent an adverse holding.[43]

Merger or attornment.—Adverse holding ceases if adjoining tracts become the property of the same owner.[44] Attornment to the true owner interrupts possession.[45]

§ 6. Sufficiency of possession.—Actual occupancy and possession may suffice without enclosure, cultivation and improvement.[46] Occasional entries or cuttings of timber are not sufficient.[47] The possession should be distinct and entire.[48] Possession must be exclusive.[49] Adverse possession will not run against tenants in common when any tenant is in possession.[50] Actual, physical possession may be required.[51] It may be by tenant.[52] Permission by the claimant of appropriation of the land by others may be sufficient to defeat his claim.[53] Acts consistent

34. Garren v. Fields, 131 Ala. 304.

35. Construing Code N. C., § 147, providing that where a tenancy is established, a tenant's possession will be deemed the landlord's until the expiration of twenty years from the last payment of rent—Bulluck v. Bulluck, 131 N. C. 29.

36. Small v. Hamlet, 24 Ky. Law R. 238; Patton v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 187.

37. Where land was enclosed and cultivated for more than fifteen years—Diers v. Ward (Minn.) 92 N. W. 402; as where the strip in question is cultivated enclosed and buildings erected thereon—Webb v. Rhodes, 28 Ind. App. 393; occupancy under belief that land is part of another tract and that the true boundary is different than it really is—Baty v. Elrod (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1032.

38. Barrett v. Kelly, 131 Ala. 378. As where the occupant repudiated subsequent surveys—Gist v. Doke (Or.) 70 Pac. 704.

39. Fifteen years occupancy—Brown v. Clark, 73 Vt. 233.

40. Palmer v. Osborne, 115 Iowa, 714.

41. O'Flaherty v. Mann, 196 Ill. 304.

42. Hohl v. Osborne (Iowa) 92 N. W. 697.

43. So held where a city disclaimed an intent to hold the fee of land donated for a grave yard, which had become part of the city and only asserted the claim to it as a grave yard with right of burial therein—Kansas City v. Scarritt, 169 Mo. 471.

44. Patton v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 187.

45. Illinois Steel Co. v. Budzisz (Wis.) 90 N. W. 1019.

46. Revised Statutes, §§ 4213 and 4214—Batz v. Woerpel, 113 Wis. 442. Continuous occupancy for 20 years with enclosure, cultivation and claim of ownership is sufficient. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 1225, 4214—Gilman v. Brown, 115 Wis. 1. Where a strip of land is enclosed for 16 years and used as a passage way for more than 20 years, it is sufficient to sustain title—Batz v. Woerpel, 113 Wis. 442. It is not sufficient to blaze boundaries on timber swamp lands, cut a small amount of timber and occasionally warn off trespassers—Travers v. McElvain, 200 Ill. 377. Enclosure is not necessary if there is actual possession with acts sufficient to give unequivocal notice of an adverse claim to all others—Zepeda v. Hoffman (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 443.

47. Combs v. Combs (App.) 24 Ky. Law R. 1691. Where defendant was never in actual possession, though her tenant occupied a cabin in a small field therein for a time, but defendant lived on an adjoining tract, and timber was occasionally cut and removed from the land in controversy under contract with her, there is no evidence of adverse possession—Patterson v. T. J. Moss Tie Co. (App.) 24 Ky. Law R. 1571.

48. So held where possession was of distinct unidentified parts less than the entire tract—Sparks v. Hall (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 916.

49. Building a fence around a spring is not sufficient if not so constructed as to exclude other persons from using the water, and if it does not appear that it was done in the assertion of a right to the spring or its protection—Hunter v. Emerson (Vt.) 53 Atl. 1070.

50. Johnston v. Case, 131 N. C. 491.

51. Held that where land was purchased in the name of a wife without the knowledge or consent of the husband, the wife could not obtain title, neither party having actual possession—Flanner v. Butler, 131 N. C. 155.

52. Barrett v. Kelly, 131 Ala. 378; Neyland v. Texas Yellow Pine Lumber Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 696.

53. Illinois Steel Co. v. Budzisz (Wis.) 90 N. W. 1019.

with an intention to make trespasses until forbidden, are insufficient.[54] Erection of permanent improvements is a strong circumstance supporting the inference of adverse possession.[55] Possession of an alley under a claim that it is vacated is sufficiently adverse.[56] Under statutes concerning the acquisition of title to vacant land, entry must be made before the actual owner takes possession.[57]

§ 7. Continuity.—Interrupted possession for the statutory period will not suffice unless the possessions are connected.[58] A secret re-entry does not interrupt possession,[59] nor changes in political divisions,[60] nor a judgment in ejectment where there is no surrender, entry or execution,[61] nor proceedings in insolvency where the premises are a declared homestead,[62] nor occasional entries there being actual enclosure.[63] Possession by an executor will not be regarded as an interruption.[64] The acts must be such as to afford reasonable notice to the adverse occupant that his possession is challenged.[65] A re-assumption of possession does not relate to a former occupancy.[66]

§ 8. Duration.—Possession must extend through the statutory period[67] which begins to run from the first act construed as an assertion of hostile holding.[68] Possession while there is no cause of action cannot be included,[69] or pending an action against claimant to recover the land.[70] Entry while the title is in litigation will not constitute a disseisin.[71] Time between filing of an application for school land and the issue of a patent therefor may be included,[72] or after identification of railroad land.[73]

54. Knight v. Denman (Neb.) 90 N. W. 863; Ritter v. Myers (Neb.) 92 N. W. 638.

55. Brock v. Bear (Va.) 42 S. E. 307. Division fences, planting orchards or erection of substantial buildings—Hill v. Coal Val. Min. Co., 103 Ill. App. 41. It may be sufficient to use a small triangular portion of land for the purpose of access to a building—Mackall v. Mitchell, 18 App. D. C. 58.

56. Blennerhassett v. Town of Forest City (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1044.

57. So held where after a payment under Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 83, § 7, the claimant made an entry after the holders of a paramount title had enclosed the land with a fence—Stalford v. Goldring, 197 Ill. 156.

58. Brinkley v. Smith, 131 N. C. 130.

59. Illinois Steel Co. v. Budzisz (Wis.) 90 N. W. 1019.

60. So held where a new county comprehending a portion of a patent was created—Kentucky Union Co. v. Cornett, 23 Ky. Law R. 1922.

61. Duffy v. Duffy, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 25.

62. Harris v. Duarte (Cal.) 70 Pac. 298.

63. Entries to obtain rock or timber or to make sugar—Swafford v. Heid's Adm'r, 23 Ky. Law R. 1556.

64. Being authorized by Rev. St., arts. 1867 and 1869—McLavy v. Jones (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 407.

65. As where the owner of uninclosed land enters and surveys it setting stakes and remaining on the land for a considerable time—Illinois Steel Co. v. Budzisz (Wis.) 90 N. W. 1019.

66. Illinois Steel Co. v. Budzisz (Wis.) 90 N. W. 1019.

67. In case of enclosed land, 15 years—Speer v. Duff, 23 Ky. Law R. 1323; as under a parol gift—Logan v. Phenix, 23 Ky. Law R. 2300. A lease given during proceedings to recover land under which possession is held less than three years does not show adverse holding for a sufficient period—Standard Oil Co. v. Cook, 63 Kan. 866. Under a ten year provision, adverse rights are barred when not asserted until 29 years after foreclosure of a mortgage executed by one in possession under exclusive claim of title—Dunbar v. Aldrich, 79 Miss. 698. Eight years occupancy and subsequent removal and management for the life tenant is not sufficient where right is claimed under statute requiring 10 years possession—Anderson v. Carter (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 78. Possession for 8 years joined to a possession for 1½ years is not sufficient under a 10 year statute—Patton v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 187. Three years statute does not apply in favor of one holding under a sheriff's deed where before sale title had passed to the execution debtor's wife—Watts v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 258. The five years statute does not apply in the absence of a deed of record or payment of taxes—Watts v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 258. Where after grant of a right of way possession of the land is taken under a homestead application, 10 years adverse occupation of the entire right of way except a portion of which the company take forcible possession, will bar an action for its recovery; construing 2 Ball. Ann. Codes and Statutes, § 4797—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Hasse, 28 Wash. 353, 68 Pac. 882.

68. From the date of a tax sale—Gauthier v. Cason, 107 La. 52.

69. Sparks v. Hall (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 916.

70. St. Paul M. & M. R. Co. v. Olson (Minn.) 91 N. W. 294.

71. Entry by squatter who made slight improvements and the owner was residing on a portion of the premises, (2 Ball. Ann. Codes and St. § 4797)—Blake v. Shriver, 27 Wash. 593, 68 Pac. 330.

72. Thompson v. Dutton (Tex. Civ. App.)

One attempting to tack possessions must show a continuity of transfer.[74] Under certain statutes the doctrine of tacking possession does not apply.[75] Possession of an heir may be tacked to that of his ancestor, through whom he acquires possession,[76] but not possession under a deed from a trespasser to the trespasser's possession.[77] An adverse possession cannot be tacked to a prior possession not adverse,[78] as one under contract of purchase.[79] Possession under a tax sale against an execution purchaser may be joined to the execution debtor's possession if he acquires title from such tax purchaser.[80] One claiming by adverse possession in another must connect himself therewith.[81]

§ 9. Color of title.—Title of record is unnecessary[82] except under particular statutes requiring a deed and claim of title of record.[83] Where a statute provides a limitation in favor of those holding under recorded deeds, the heir of one so holding may claim a portion of the property set aside to her in partition without record of the order of court, setting it apart to her.[84] Under the same statute a will need not be recorded to enable the heir to claim by a deed of record to his ancestor.[85] Where adverse possession must be under title or color thereof or under a duly registered deed, it cannot be asserted by a grantor against his own deed.[86] Conveyance of an undefined portion of a larger tract followed by a subsequent and ratified definition of the tract conveyed breaks the continuity of title thereto as regards others claiming in the status of the grantor.[87] The fact that claimant's grantor obtained title by conveyances of constituent portions does not affect the quality of his deed of the entire tract as color.[88] Written evidence of title in grantor does not avail to his parol grantee.[89]

A tax deed is not a title deducible of record from the commonwealth,[90] but may be color of title[91] without proof of the validity of the antecedent proceedings,[92] and though it faultily describe the owner,[93] or there were defects in the assessment;[94] but the title derived from a tax sale, void for insufficiency of de-

69 S. W. 641, judgment reversed on rehearing. Id. 996.

73. Where public lands are granted a railroad on condition of identification adverse possession may begin against the railroad on filing of the certificate of identification and is not deferred to the issuance of the patent —Toltec Ranch Co. v. Babcock, 24 Utah, 183, 66 Pac. 876.

74. Evans v. Welch, 29 Colo. 355, 68 Pac. 776.

75. Revised Codes, N. D. 1899, § 3491a (Laws 1899, c. 158)—J. B. Streeter, Jr., Co. v. Fredrickson (N. D.) 91 N. W. 692.

76. Epperson v. Stansill, 64 S. C. 485.

77. Covert v. Pittsburg & W. R. Co., 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 541.

78. Patton v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 187. Where occupancy is beyond the subdivision line by mistake of the adjoining owners in locating the line one to whom the occupant conveys by a mere description of the land as a government subdivision, cannot take advantage of the prior possession beyond the true line—Patton v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 187.

79. Thompson v. Dutton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 641; judgment reversed on rehearing, Id. 996.

80. Gauthier v. Cason, 107 La. 52.

81. Murray v. Pannaci (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 595; Johnston v. Case, 131 N. C. 491.

82. Where there was 15 years' holding—Krauth v. Hahn, 23 Ky. Law R. 1261.

83. Five years' clause of Texas statute—Lackey v. Bennett (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 651; see Beer v. Dalton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 593, which in a syllabus by the court not supported by the opinion, says that color of title and other elements must be present.

84. McLavy v. Jones (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 407.

85. McLavy v. Jones (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 407.

86. Under either 3 or 5 years limitations—Goldman v. Sotelo (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 558.

87. So held in construction of the Texas statute where a portion of a homestead was conveyed and selected with the wife's ratification and she and the children attempted to avail themselves of subsequent occupation of the part selected—Mass v. Bromberg (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 468.

88. Sharp v. Shenandoah Furnace Co., 3 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 589.

89. Acme Brew. Co. v. Central R. & B. Co., 115 Ga. 494.

90. Construing Ky. St., § 2513—Griffin v. Sparks, 24 Ky. Law R. 849.

91. A marshal's deed to one through whom occupant claims may be color of title though void.—Mackall v. Mitchell, 18 App. D. C. 58.

92. So held under the five year clause of the Texas statute though contra under the three year clause—Gillaspie v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 252.

93. Boyle v. West, 107 La. 347.

94. Jopling v. Chachere, 107 La. 522.

scription, will not sustain adverse possession.[95] Where a tax purchaser and his vendee have no title because of invalidity of the sale and knowledge thereof, their vendees may have a title valid on its face sufficient to sustain title by prescription.[96] A judgment in eminent domain proceedings is not a paper title,[97] or a judgment in a petitory action.[98] One purchasing at execution sale after the title has passed to the wife of the judgment debtor, is not in under color of title.[99] A voidable deed in foreclosure regular and valid on its face is color of title,[1] as where a decree and deed purport to convey a fee on foreclosure of a mortgage of a life estate.[2] Possession for 20 years under an ordinary's deed is sufficient.[3]

The instrument to be color of title must on its face be such and cannot be aided by parol,[4] though extrinsic evidence may be admissible to render the description certain.[5] A conveyance having a grantor and grantee and purporting to pass land aptly described is color of title,[6] though not sufficient to convey title,[7] void,[8] executed by one without title,[9] or under disability,[10] or a mere quitclaim deed.[11] A void headright grant is not sufficient.[12] A deed or mortgage insufficient to convey a homestead does not amount to color[13] though in some states such instrument, void through nonjoinder of the wife may be color of title as against third persons.[14] A deed by the husband though void as against the wife will operate to fix the scope of the grantee's possession.[15] If the description be such that a surveyor can from it locate the land it is sufficient.[16] A deed purporting to convey part of a larger tract must identify the part conveyed.[17] Color of title to a government fraction extends only to the line of the government survey.[18] Where an enclosed lot is sold, the fact that the boundary is doubtful on account of uncertainty as to the location of a starting point, does not prevent the grantee from acquiring title.[19] Possession under a parol contract of sale is good.[20]

95. Cooper v. Falk (La.) 33 So. 567.

96. Cooper v. Falk (La.) 33 So. 567.

97. Construing Em. Dom. Act. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 839. c. 47, § 10 and Hurd's Rev. St., p. 1118, c. 83, § 6—Converse v. Calumet River R. Co., 195 Ill. 204.

98. Ten years prescription against those claiming through the unsuccessful parties, the judgment being in favor of one holding a certificate of purchase from the state—Hargrave v. Mouton (La.) 33 So. 590.

99. Under the three years statute—Watts v. Bruce, 72 S. W. 258.

1. H. B. Claflin Co. v. Middlesex Banking Co. (Ark.) 113 Fed. 958.

2. Webb v. Winter, 135 Cal. 455, 67 Pac. 691; reversed judgment, Id., 65 Pac. 1028.

3. As where there is a sale under partition between the heirs of a lessee—Few v. Keller, 63 S. C. 154.

4. Converse v. Calumet River R. Co., 195 Ill. 204.

5. Sharp v. Shenandoah Furnace Co., 3 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 589.

6. Schlageter v. Gude (Colo.) 70 Pac. 428; Robinson v. Lowe, 50 W. Va. 75.

7. Sharp v. Shenandoah Furnace Co., 3 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 589.

8. Bennett v. Pierce, 50 W. Va. 604.

9. Roth v. Munzenmaier (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1072.

10. A warranty deed from an Indian patentee is color of title in the hands of innocent grantees, though the patentee is incompetent under the treaty and his patent provided that the land should not be conveyed without the consent of the secretary of the interior—Schrimpscher v. Stockton, 183 U. S. 290, 46 Law. Ed. 203, affirming judgment, Id., 58 Kan. 758, 51 Pac. 276.

11. Johnson v. Girtman, 115 Ga. 794.

12. Under 3 years statute—Sheppard v. Avery (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 82.

13. So held when not joined in by the wife—Garner v. Black (Tex.) 65 S. W. 876; affirming judgment Black v. Garner (Tex. Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 918.

14. Avera v. Williams (Miss.) 33 So. 501.

15. Williams v. Bradley (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 170.

16. Hill v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 820. Where a deed relied on as color of title described the land by reference to a deed of a certain date, and such deed is not introduced in evidence, the three and five years statutes of limitation are not available; though a deed is introduced between the same parties of almost identical date—Rountree v. Thompson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 574; Id., 72 S. W. 69.

17. So held under Hurd's Rev. St. 1899. c. 83, § 6—Hanna v. Palmer, 194 Ill. 41. "100 acres deeded to B out of a certain survey" held insufficient—Bruce v. Richardson (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 785.

18. So held where another line was subsequently established—Barnes v. Allison, 166 Mo. 96.

19. It being understood that the description covered all the land within enclosure—Powers v. Bank of Oroville, 136 Cal. 486, 69 Pac. 151.

20. Where continued for fifteen years—Howton v. Gilpin. 24 Ky. Law R. 630.

§ 10. Payment of taxes.—One who on account of his peculiar relation to the title is bound to pay taxes, cannot avail himself of such payments to support a title by adverse possession.[21] Payment of taxes on vacant land while an assertion of title is not equivalent to possession.[22] Under laws making payment of taxes an element of possession all taxes must be paid by the claimant.[23] Under some statutes payment must be coupled with possession.[24] Payment under a deed of record establishes the possession to be adverse.[25] It cannot be objected that the claimant did not pay taxes, where the boundaries being uncertain, no taxes were assessed on the strip in controversy, if they were not included in the assessment paid by claimant.[26]

§ 11. Area of possession.—By statute, the amount of land to be acquired by limitation may be limited.[27] The instrument under which claimant entered is not conclusive as to the scope of possession.[28] One in possession of a portion of a tract under color of title to the whole has constructive possession of the entire tract, if not actually adversely occupied,[29] though the color of title is void.[30] To increase constructive possession, the boundaries of the color cannot be enlarged by intention to convey more land.[31] Such possession is lost by conveyance of the portion in actual occupancy,[32] or by sale of the part constructively possessed.[33] Possession of part may be under a deed improperly recorded[34] but does not extend to land held under distinct conveyances,[35] nor does it affect a record owner whose land is included in a deed between strangers but no portion occupied.[36] Constructive possession of the legal owner is not disturbed by a possession not within the boundaries of his grant though within the boundaries of a conflicting title which included the occupant's land.[37] There is no constructive possession of unenclosed land, a portion of which only is actually occupied.[38] Actual possession cannot be overcome by constructive possession though under a later title deed.[39]

21. So held, where a grantee in possession of the mortgagor, paid taxes on the mortgaged premises for more than seven years—Alsup v. Stewart, 194 Ill. 595.

22. Texas Tram & Lumber Co. v. Gwin (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 892; Id., 68 S. W. 721.

23. Revised Codes N. D. 1899, § 3491a (Laws 1899, c. 158); adverse possession for ten years with payment of taxes—J. B. Streeter, Jr., Co. v. Fredrickson (N. D.) 91 N. W. 692.

24. Under the statute providing for 5 years possession and the payment of taxes—Goldman v. Sotelo (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 558.

25. Sparks v. Hall (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 916.

26. Dierssen v. Nelson (Cal.) 71 Pac. 456.

27. Under Rev. St. art 3344, more than 160 acres cannot be claimed under the ten year limitation act, unless there is evidence of title of record describing a larger tract—Watts v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 258.

28. Where possession is taken of an entire tract under a deed which by mistake fails to convey a portion thereof and conveyance is made by the occupants to others by similar descriptions, the accumulated holdings being more than the statutory period, the land omitted may be held against a subsequent grantee of the original grantor—West v. Edwards, 41 Or. 609, 69 Pac. 992.

29. Krauth v. Hahn, 23 Ky. Law R. 1261; Maxwell v. Cunningham, 50 W. Va. 298; Barrett v. Kelly (Ala.) 30 So. 824.

30. Sparks v. Farris (Ark.) 71 S. W. 945; denying rehearing, Id. 255.

31. Johnston v. Case, 131 N. C. 491.

32. Sharp v. Shenandoah Furnace Co., 3 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 589.

33. Sale of unimproved portion and retention of occupancy of improvements—Kirkpatrick v. Tarlton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 179.

34. In this case it is mooted whether a voluntary deed may be "duly recorded" under Civ. Code, § 3587, and Registry Laws—Baxley v. Baxley (Ga.) 43 S. E. 436.

35. Hill v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 820. Rightful possession of a grant is not extended constructively to the entire limits of a subsequent sheriff's deed including such grant since such possession is not sufficient to render claimant liable to ejectment—Lewis v. Covington, 130 N. C. 541. Where the tract claimed lies partly in two distinct grants, but the actual possession is limited to one grant, claimant has no constructive possession to the extent of his color of title to that part of the land described as lying within the other grant—Elliott v. Cumberland Coal & Coke Co. (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 749.

36. Walsh v. Wheelwright, 96 Me. 174.

37. Where one under a deed carrying accretions sought to claim land the legal title to which was in another it was held that in the absence of actual occupancy there was no constructive possession—Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 812.

38. Zepeda v. Hoffman (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 443.

39. Carey v. Cagney (La.) 33 So. 89.

A deed which by mistake describes land claimed will not prevent acquisition of title where immediately after, the mistake is acknowledged by all parties.[40] Execution of a lease of an entire tract by one holding a deed to a portion does not extend constructive possession to part not actually occupied by the lessor.[41] Where a lap caused by conflicting descriptions is not enclosed, in the absence of actual occupancy constructive possession enures to the superior title.[42] Under mere claim of title, possession is in certain states limited to actual inclosure,[43] but in others possession of a portion claiming the whole is possession of the whole.[44] Possession of the shore does not extend to submerged land where the titles are distinct.[45]

§ 12. Nature of title acquired.—When the statutory period of holding has been completed in concurrence with other elements, the claimant acquires an absolute title equivalent to a valid record title.[46] It will bar a mortgagor's action to redeem,[47] and is a sufficient defense to ejectment.[48] A transferee of one who has acquired title by adverse holding may maintain an action to remove cloud from his title.[49] Actual possession for more than seven years under a deed improperly recorded may overcome the title of a purchaser for value under a perfect paper title.[50] Where a title is divested by adverse possession and the former owner conveys, his grantee cannot assert the benefit of the three years' statute.[51] After a father has acquired title by adverse possession, such title cannot be affected by agreements between a son in possession and the former owner or by a judgmnt establishing such son's title as against the former owner's heirs.[52] Title when acquired is not affected by subsequent acts apparently showing a cessation of adverse holding,[53] or by failure to include a portion of the land in legal proceedings.[54] After forty years, possession is presumed to be under a deed.[55]

§ 13. Pleading, evidence and instructions.—Adverse possession need not be charged in the words of the statute.[56] It may be asserted under a general denial.[57] An allegation as to enclosure, in the absence of a paper title, is not necessary where there is an averment of knowledge of the adverse claim.[58] On pleading adverse possession the facts must be alleged or else the existence of a prescriptive right.[59] Where the statute is pleaded the adverse possession must be by the party

40. Claim under two years statute—Ellis v. Le Bow (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 576.

41. Hill v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 820.

42. Kentucky L. & I. Co. v. Crabtree, 24 Ky. Law R. 743; Krauth v. Hahn, 23 Ky. Law R. 1261.

43. Maxwell v. Cunningham, 50 W. Va. 298.

44. Construing Rev. St., § 4266—Stevens v. Martin, 168 Mo. 407.

45. Gibbs v. Sweet, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 275.

46. So held on an assessment of damages for construction of a highway—Hohl v. Osborne (Iowa) 92 N. W. 697; Renner v. Kannally, 96 Ill. App. 392; judgment affirmed, Id., 61 N. E. 1026; Bennett v. Pierce, 50 W. Va. 604; twenty-four years possession under mesne conveyance from an invalid patentee—Stevens v. Martin, 168 Mo. 407. Open, notorious, and peaceable possession of real estate with claim of right thereto for the period prescribed by statute confers title on the claimant—Kline v. Stein (Wash.) 70 Pac. 235. Evidence of possession and payment of taxes for more than 20 years will support an action for possession—Kolb v. Jones, 62 S. C. 193.

47. So held where there was 7 years possession under a voidable deed in foreclosure—H. B. Claflin Co. v. Middlesex Banking Co. (Ark.) 113 Fed. 958.

48. Bean v. Gardner, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 245.

49. Mickey v. Barton, 194 Ill. 446.

50. Baxley v. Baxley (Ga.) 43 S. E. 436.

51. Grayson v. Peyton (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1074.

52. Kirton v. Bull, 168 Mo. 622.

53. Mann v. Schueling (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 292.

54. Beam v. Gardner, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 245

55. Jenkins v. McMichael, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 161.

56. So the words "claiming to be the owner" need not be used where it was alleged that certain acts were done "of which the defendant well knew, knowing that complainant was doing so as owner of the land"—Bynum v. Stinson (Miss.) 32 So. 910. It is sufficient to allege holding for about fifteen years, and that land was secured fifteen years ago, where a ten years' statute is relied on—Bynum v. Stinson (Miss.) 32 So. 910.

57. Shelton v. Wilson, 131 N. C. 499.

58. Bynum v. Stinson (Miss.) 32 So. 910.

59. Where prescriptive right is pleaded, it must be alleged that it was under claim of right peaceable, without interruption, open, notorious and exclusive—Coleman v. Hines, 24 Utah, 360, 67 Pac. 1122. It is sufficient to assert the time, openness and notoriety of possession together with acts as the cutting of fire wood with knowledge of the opposthough otherwise where the evidence is introduced under a general denial.[60] On trespass for a portion of a tract, defendant may recover on a showing of adverse possession as to the specific portion, though he has not pleaded adverse possession as to that portion specially.[61] Record title or a written agreement of exchange need not be shown where adverse possession pursuant to a parol exchange is pleaded.[62]

The burden of proof of adverse possession is upon the person asserting it,[63] so he must show the time of inception,[64] and must establish his occupancy,[65] though he need not show want of disability in holders of the outstanding title.[66] A deed creates no presumption that actual adverse occupancy begins at the date of its delivery.[67] There is a presumption of good faith.[68] Possession is presumed to be under a deed if a deed be shown.[69] User is presumed to be in subordination to the actual title,[70] and possession presumed to continue subordinate.[71] The presumption is not overcome by a deed accompanied by circumstances showing that it was not executed in good faith,[72] nor by mere possession if the claimants are in the relation of father and son.[73] Where several hold subordinately, if one procure a deed of the interest of the other occupants, it is not presumed that the character of his possession is changed.[74] Prior possession under a bond for title will be presumed to be adverse to an intervening tax purchaser.[75]

Relevancy of evidence.[76]—Claimant cannot show legal advice to make improvements or conversation between himself and other claimants as to their right on the land.[77] Leases executed by claimants for portions of the land not in controversy are admissible to show ownership over the entire tract included in the description.[78] The owner's permission to enter may be shown by parol.[79] The fraudulent character of a conveyance is not material as between the parties as to the intention of adverse holding.[80]

Sufficiency of evidence.[81]—There must be direct evidence that possession is ing claimant—Bynum v. Stinson (Miss.) 32 So. 910.

60. Lloyd v. Rawl, 63 S. C. 219.

61. Smith v. Abadie (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 925; rehearing denied, Id. 1077.

62. Bynum v. Stinson (Miss.) 32 So. 910.

63. Harris v. Cole, 114 Ga. 295; Rountree v. Thompson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 574; Id., 72 S. W. 69.

64. Glezen v. Haskins (R. I.) 51 Atl. 219. It is held that where the time at which the statute began to run was fixed by the cessation of the sinking of a certain building, evidence of the time at which large buildings cease to sink in that city, was sufficient to shift the burden—Chapman v. Morris B. & L. Imp. Ass'n, 108 La. 283.

65. Where the evidence of one surveyor that a house is on the land is met by contrary evidence of another, it is not necessary that the court order another survey before claimant may be dismissed—Cohn v. Pearl River Lumber Co., 80 Miss. 649.

66. Construing Rev. St., art. 3347—Travis v. Hall (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1077; Id. (Sup.) 65 S. W. 1078.

67. Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 812.

68. Baxley v. Baxley (Ga.) 43 S. E. 436.

69. Roth v. Munzenmaier (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1072.

70. Construing Cal. Code Civ. Proc., § 321—Allen v. McKay & Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8.

71. Collins v. Colleran, 86 Minn. 199.

72. Allen v. McKay & Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8.

73. Collins v. Colleran, 86 Minn. 199.

74. Construing Code Civ. Proc. Cal., § 326, providing that where the relation of landlord and tenant is established, the tenant's possession is deemed that of the landlord until five years from the last payment for rent—Allen v. McKay & Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8.

75. Graham v. Warren (Miss.) 33 So. 71.

76. Where it is not disputed that land was appurtenant to a mill, evidence as to the meaning of the deed conveying the mill and its appurtenances is inadmissible—Allen v. McKay & Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8.

77. Reagan v. Hodges, 70 Ark. 563.

78. South v. Deaton, 24 Ky. Law R. 196, 533.

79. So parol evidence of a conversation between a land owner and a right of way agent is admissible to show that a railroad entered under an agreement that it should receive the conveyance if a station were located at a certain place—So. Cal. R. Co. v. Slauson (Cal.) 68 Pac. 107.

80. Collins v. Colleran, 86 Minn. 199.

81. Evidence held sufficient to show termination of permissive possession and to show sufficient holding—Malone v. Malone (Minn.) 93 N. W. 605; Glover v. Sage (Minn.) 92 N. W. 471; Wood v. Ripley, 27 Ind. App. 356. Where a fence is recognized as being on the line by a written receipt after a lapse of 16 years, a finding that the holding was adverse may be justified though there is parol evidence that claimant's grantor stated that the fence might be removed to the true line whenever it was ascertained—Mann v. Schueling (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 292; on adverse.[82] Adverse possession is not satisfactorily established by general statements unwarranted by the facts, and contrary to facts conclusively established.[83] Admissions of defendant that their holding is not adverse, may be sufficient to overcome an apparent weight of evidence to the contrary.[84] Evidence of occupancy for more than the statutory period is sufficient to go to the jury.[85] Where adverse possession is claimed against an entryman, there must be evidence as to when he became entitled to his patent.[86] Where there is no evidence of compliance with the statute, the question of acquisition of title by adverse possession should not be submitted to the jury.[87] In order that adverse possession of a portion of a tract may avail as a partial defense, the tract must be identified,[88] but there may be recovery of a dwelling actually occupied and an identified portion of a tract.[89] If there is evidence of adverse possession of only a portion of the property in controversy, a verdict cannot be directed for the entire property.[90] Where adverse possession for more than the statutory period prior to filing suit is alleged, it is supported by proof of completed possession at any time precedent.[91]

Verdict and findings.—Special findings control.[92] A finding that possession is not hostile is ultimate and not overcome by other findings as to the character of the occupancy.[93] A finding of facts sufficient to support adverse possession is a sufficient finding of such possession.[94]

Questions for jury. Instructions.[95]—The sufficiency of notice of adverse possession is for the jury,[96] as is the question of intent in taking possession,[97] or whether occupancy is such as to indicate a claim of right.[98] Instructions are controlled by general rules.[99] Instructions should not be given where there is no evidence that the land has passed from the state.[1] acquisition of title by a town to property occupied as a town house—Wiggin v. Mullen, 96 Me. 375. Where after a conveyance to his son, the father remains in possession, testimony of parties in opposing interest that the son recognized the father's title in a particular conversation, will not establish adverse possession for the father—Collins v. Colleran, 86 Minn. 199. Statement of a corporation superintendent that they claim title is insufficient—Allen v. McKay & Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8. Testimony of one witness that one of defendant's predecessors accepted a license for the use of the land, and that another predecessor had disclaimed it, warrants a finding of subordination—Allen v. McKay & Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8. Mere testimony of the claimant is not sufficiently corroborated by acts showing a mere intent to trespass from time to time—Ritter v. Myers (Neb.) 92 N. W. 638.

82. A presumption of adverse holding or of an intention to grant cannot be indulged merely because of the remoteness of transactions—Evans v. Welch, 29 Colo. 355, 68 Pac. 776.

83. Illinois Steel Co. v. Budzisz (Wis.) 90 N. W. 1019.

84. Mass v. Bromberg (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 468.

85. Kirton v. Bull, 168 Mo. 622. So held where it was also shown that the adverse party had not paid taxes on the premises during the period, believing that a tax title had been acquired by third persons and had exercised no acts of ownership—Hopkins v. Deering, 71 N. H. 353.

86. Baty v. Elrod (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1032.

87. So held, where the ten years limitation was submitted—Lackey v. Bennett (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 651.

88. Thompson v. Dutton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 996.

89. Thompson v. Dutton (Tex.) 71 S. W. 544; reversed judgment 69 S. W. 641, 996.

90. Kreckeberg v. Leslie, 111 Wis. 462.

91. Travis v. Hall (Tex.) 65 S. W. 1078.

92. So held, where the finding showed possession for fifteen years and a general verdict was based on the theory of twenty years possession—Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. Zehner, 28 Ind. App. 229.

93. Webb v. Rhodes, 28 Ind. App. 393.

94. So held where there was a finding of a conveyance, acts of ownership and possession for fifteen years—Hart v. Doyle, 128 Mich. 257. Findings of an entry under conveyances and possession by the grantees and those succeeding to them, of the tracts, open, peaceable, notorious and continuous in character for more than 5 years, are sufficient to support a conclusion that the action is barred —Adams v. Hopkins (Cal.) 69 Pac. 228.

95. A question of privity of possession is for the jury—Thompson v. Dutton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 641. Where there is a surrender of possession after completion of the statutory period, such surrender must be submitted to the jury on the question of whether it shows that the holding was not adverse—Bentley v. Callaghan's Ex'r, 79 Miss. 302.

96. Bryce v. Cayce, 62 S. C. 546.

97. Haney v. Breeden (Va.) 42 S. E. 916.

98. Jangraw v. Mee (Vt.) 54 Atl. 189.

99. It is proper to instruct the jury that possession under claim of ownership for more than twenty years presumes a grant—

§ 14. Adverse possession of personalty.—Where a mortgage of goods conditionally sold is executed by the purchaser after default in payment, one holding under the purchaser on foreclosure of such mortgage may after the statutory period has elapsed hold title as against the conditional seller.[2] In detinue, rights of possession arising from the statute may be asserted under the general issue or any plea controverting ownership.[3] Where the property is bailed there must be a claim of title inconsistent to the bailor's and actual or constructive notice to him.[4]

AFFIDAVITS.

The scope of this title is limited to matters common to all affidavits, regardless of the purpose or proceeding for which they are designed.

To be valid an affidavit must contain a jurat,[5] and it must be verified by an officer authorized to administer oaths.[6] An attorney-notary may verify his client's affidavit.[7] It is not necessary in South Dakota that the notary verifying a pleading affix his seal thereto,[8] but in many states the use of the seal is required by statute.[9]

An officer in a foreign state authorized to administer oaths may verify affidavits,[10] but there must be attached a properly authenticated certificate showing such authority;[11] and if it merely recites that the officer taking it was an authorized and qualified notary, it does not show that he is authorized to take acknowledgments.[12]

If made by an officer or agent it should state the capacity in which he acts,[13] and why the affidavit is not made by the principal.[14]

Kolb v. Jones, 62 S. C. 193. A jury is properly instructed that a deed does not give possession of land outside its description though title is claimed by possession not under the deed—South v. Deaton, 24 Ky. Law R. 196, 533. An instruction considered as to the sufficiency of its definition of license preventing acquisition of title by adverse possession—Fleming v. Kemp (Mo.) 70 S. W. 694. The jury should not be instructed that the building of a fence is not conclusive evidence of actual possession, but that it may be considered as a circumstance, where the location of fences was not disputed, and it had been established that when removed it was in hostility to claimant's rights—Stalford v. Goldring, 197 Ill. 156.

1. Kolb v. Jones, 62 S. C. 193.

2. Where possession was held more than six years—L. Grunewald Co. v. Copeland, 131 Ala. 345.

3. L. Grunewald Co. v. Copeland, 131 Ala. 345.

4. Rice v. Connelly, 71 N. H. 382.

5. A mere signed statement is an insufficient basis for an application for an appeal—Peters v. Edge, 87 Mo. App. 283; or publication of process—Doheny v. Worden, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 47; Salt Springs Nat. Bank v. Same, Id.

6. A deputy district recorder appointed by a temporary recorder may not take affidavit to mining location notice—Van Buren v. McKinley (Idaho) 66 Pac. 936. Affidavit verified by the clerk of the superior court cannot be made the basis of an attachment writ—Heard v. National Bank, 114 Ga. 291. A notary may verify chattel mortgage affidavit—Campbell v. State (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 513; or an affidavit for a liquor license—State v. Scatena, 84 Minn. 281.

7. For service by publication—Genest v. Las Vegas Masonic Bldg. Ass'n (N. M.) 67 Pac. 743. Contra, see Comp. Stat. Laws Mich., § 2640; and evidence held insufficient to show that affiant was party's attorney—Thos. E. Lynch Co. v. Carpenter, 8 Detroit Leg. N. 892.

8. Wiley v. Carson, 15 S. D. 298.

9. Jones v. Jones, 3 Pennewill (Del.) 14, 50 Atl. 212.

10. So held sustaining a claim filed under Comp. Laws 1897, § 2221—Genest v. Las Vegas Masonic Bldg. Ass'n (N. M.) 67 Pac. 743; as a master in chancery—Hunton v. Palmer, 67 N. J. Law, 94; or United States consular officers—Browne v. Palmer (Neb.) 92 N. W. 315.

11. Shockley v. Turnell, 114 Ga. 378; Connalley v. Wallace Co., 51 W. Va. 181; Henning v. Libke, 104 Ill. App. 303.

12. Code Civ. Pr., § 844 and Laws 1896, c. 547, § 249—Manheimer v. Dosh, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 857.

13. St. Joseph's Polish Catholic Ben. Soc. v. St. Hedwig's Church, 3 Pennewill (Del. Super.) 229. If made by an attorney it need not state that he is an attorney—O'Brien v. Yare, 88 Mo. App. 439.

14. Guyton v. Terrell, 132 Ala. 66. If made by the agent who had charge of the transaction it is sufficient—Steele v. R. M. Gilmour Mfg. Co., 77 App. Div. 199; Carolina Grocery Co. v. Moore, 63 S. C. 184; or if made by an attorney and containing a statement that he knows the matters to be true it is sufficient—Guyton v. Terrell, 132 Ala. 66.

Affidavits on information and belief are sufficient when the source of the information and grounds of belief are given;[15] and unless the documents on which the deductions are based are produced, they will have no probative force.[16]

Affidavits are not admissible as evidence for strangers.[17]

AFFIDAVITS OF MERITS OF CLAIM OR DEFENSE.

In actions on contracts in several states, by rule of court or statute, the plaintiff may file an affidavit or statement of claim, or cause of action, and take judgment thereon, or compel defendant to file an affidavit of defense, or verify his answer.[18]

The object of the affidavit of defense is to avoid a summary judgment.[19]

A general denial of indebtedness[20] or a mere statement that defendant had a good defense to the action is not sufficient,[21] but the facts constituting the defense must be set out,[22] so as to enable the court to determine whether they constitute a defense;[23] and a general averment that there are other facts that defendant does not deem necessary to set out,[24] but which will be produced at the trial, is of no avail.[25] If on information and belief, he must state that he expects to prove the facts or point out source of belief.[26]

The time for filing the affidavit may be extended by stipulation,[27] and it may be filed after the cause is called for trial.[28]

AGENCY.

This topic will include all questions pertaining to the relations of principal and agent, except those especially applicable to particular agencies,[29] which will be found under particular topics. The liability of a principal to prosecution for criminal acts of his agent, is treated under the topics relating to principal and accessory.[30]

§ 1. The relation between the parties. A. Competency to act as agent.—A bank may act as agent,[31] and a cashier may act for his bank.[32] One partner may

15. Leigh v. Green (Neb.) 90 N. W. 255; affirming on rehearing, 62 Neb. 344. Moore v. Thompson (Cal.) 70 Pac. 930; Magruder v. Schley, 17 App. Cas. D. C. 227; affidavit for attachment—Oxford v. Segnine, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 228; affidavit held to state mere conclusions—Moore v. Monumental Mut. Life Ins. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 209; affidavit held to show personal knowledge of affiant—Hayden v. Mullins, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 69.

16. Burns v. Boland, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 555.

17. Turner v. Gonzales (Ind. T. App.) 64 S. W. 565; see title, Evidence. Affidavits of attesting witnesses to execution, etc., of will not admissible if testimony can be had—Kettemann v. Metzger, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 61; see, also, Wills.

18. A judgment cannot be taken on an affidavit of claim unless the action had been brought at the time of filing the affidavit—Miller v. Hart, 3 Pennewill (Del. Super.) 297.

19. Muir v. Preferred Acc. Ins. So., 203 Pa. 338.

20. Hertz v. Sidle, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 88.

21. In assumpsit—Potts v. Wells, 3 Pennewill (Del. Super.) 11, 50 Atl. 62; Reed v. Fleming, 102 Ill. App. 668.

22. Marston v. Trustees, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 547; Silver Peak Min. Co. v. Harris (Nev.) 116 Fed. 439; Magruder v. Schley, 17 App. D. C. 227; Brown v. Ohio Nat. Bank, 18 App. D. C. 598. It should allege facts sufficient to satisfy the court that a good defense exists and of the good faith of defendant. The affidavit should be liberally construed—Brown v. Ohio Nat. Bank, 18 App. D. C. 598.

23. Marston v. Trustees, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 547.

24. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Midvale Steel Co., 201 Pa. 624.

25. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Midvale Steel Co., 201 Pa. 624; Marston v. Trustees, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 547.

26. Tilli v. Vandegrift, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 485; Baum v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 23.

27. Muir v. Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 203 Pa. 338.

28. O'Dell v. Meacham, 114 Ga. 910.

29. Brokers; Factors; Insurance; Attorneys; Corporate agents, see Corporations. Municipal Agents, see Counties, Municipal Corporations, and other municipal topics.

30. Criminal Law.

31. The bank may collect and remit money as agent though due under a lease—Knapp v. Saunders, 15 S. D. 464.

32. Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank 67 N. J. Law, 301.

bind his firm.[33] A power of attorney in her separate property, given by a wife to her husband under a separation agreement, is invalid.[34]

B. Creation of agency.[35]—A mere offer[36] or expressed expectation,[37] or approval of a contract and receipt of its benefits by the principal,[38] or his approval of its terms pending the negotiations by the alleged agent.[39] or his approval and exercise of powers thereunder,[40] sufficiently shows the agency.

If one receiving goods to sell for another, has an option to pay for and keep them,[41] or if he is liable for the price regardless of sale, the other having an option to treat them as sold,[42] or if the goods are received under a contract requiring him to sell no other goods of the kind,[43] and under such contract an exact price is fixed,[44] the contract is a sale and not an agency.

Intermediaries.—A contract which provides for sale of goods by one as agent for another, and holds the purchaser liable for risks of transportation, shows no agency between the agent and the purchaser.[45] A carrier delivering goods shipped on prices "at place of delivery," to a purchaser who has named a consignee to receive and pay freight, is the agent of the buyer.[46] If the agent looks to one party to a contract for instructions and receives them, he is not the agent of the other.[47] A request by one party that another party should act for him as to third parties, creates an agency when so acted upon.[48] A request by one to another to act generally for him, is sufficient to show his agency for certain acts, though he procure them to be done by a third person.[49]

The authority of an agent to bind his principal by a contract within the statute of frauds must be in writing,[50] though agency for an undisclosed principal to execute such a contract may be shown by parol.[51] A contract of agency for sale of lands must describe the lands,[52] and is governed by the statute of frauds where made.[53] A warrant of attorney to confess judgment on a note, is not a power of attorney requiring a war revenue stamp.[54] Fraud of the agent may prevent creation of the agency.[55] There can be no agency to do an invalid

33. Polykranas v. Kranez, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 583.

34. Code Iowa, § 3154; and in connection therewith, §§ 2819, 3161; even though a statute exists allowing the husband and wife to act for each other for their mutual benefit and another allows her to convey her realty as sole—Sawyer v. Biggart, 114 Iowa, 489.

35. Contract termed a "lease" for lumbering and operation of mill, construed to be a mere agency—Petteway v. McIntyre, 131 N. C. 432.

36. By letter from investment company to a mortgagee proposing to secure a purchaser for his mortgage—Opie v. Pacific Inv. Co., 26 Wash. 505, 67 Pac. 231.

37. Statements by one of two parties to a contract that he expected the other to pay for materials, which were not acted upon by either party, show no agency to purchase materials for the other party—Parker v. Brown, 131 N. C. 267.

38. Contract for sale of lands—Payne v. Hackney, 84 Minn. 195.

39. Contract of purchase of building materials—Swanson v. Andrus, 84 Minn. 168.

40. Liability of trust company for acts of its agent as trustee under a contract secured by him in his general authority—American Bonding & Trust Co. v. Takahashi (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 125.

41. Fleet v. Hertz, 98 Ill. App. 564.

42. Sale of machines—De Kruif v. Elleman (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 1118.

43. Vasbury v. Mallory, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 247.

44. Roosevelt v. Nusbaum, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 117.

45. Maynard v. Weeks, 181 Mass. 368.

46. Louis Werner Sawmill Co. v. Ferree, 201 Pa. 405.

47. White City State Bank v. St. Joseph Stock Yards Bank, 90 Mo. App. 395.

48. Williamson v. North Pac. Lumber Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 387.

49. Agency for sending telegram as shown in action for damages against company for failure to deliver—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Millsapp (Ala.) 33 So. 160.

50. Execution of lease beyond one year—Shea v. Seelig, 89 Mo. App. 146.

51. Contract for sale of realty—Brodhead v. Reinbold, 200 Pa. 618.

52. Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3418; Johnson v. Fecht, 94 Mo. App. 605.

53. Goldstein v. Scott, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 78.

54. Under Act Cong., June 13, 1898—Treat v. Tolman (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 892.

55. A conveyance given for purpose of obtaining a loan for the grantors does not create an ostensible agency in the grantee to secure the loan for himself where it appears that he had misrepresented his relation to both parties—Macdonald v. Cool, 134 Cal. 502.

or illegal thing.[56] An intermediary between parties to a gambling contract is not an agent, but a particeps criminis.[57] A conspiracy being shown by some evidence, though circumstantial, each conspirator is an agent of the others so as to render his declarations admissible against them.[58] A corporation is bound by contracts of its duly authorized agents,[59] but not as to matters beyond the subject of their agency.[60]

C. Implied agency.—One who holds out another as possessed of certain powers to act for him,[61] or acquiesces in the acts of the other is liable for his acts within those powers[62] and formal treatment of another as agent is not necessary to establish an agency as to third persons but it is enough if he is allowed to act as such.[63] An implied agency results as to third persons by receipt of collateral securities by a debtor from the holder of his note to sell for payment of the note.[64] The surety on a note is not the agent of the payee.[65] The payee of a note, which has been transferred without notice to the maker before collection, becomes the agent of the holder for such collection.[66] The act of leaving money raised by execution of bonds to a title company with the company, to be paid out on the order of the obligor, did not make the company his agent.[67] In domestic economy of house and family, the wife may be the agent of her husband.[68] The custom of a parent to send a child for goods makes the child his agent even for articles for the child's use,[69] though the custom continues after the child becomes of age.[70]

D. Evidence of agency.[71]—The party setting up an agency must prove it;[72] and to establish an agency the evidence must be clear and convincing,[73] though

56. A cause of action will not lie to recover money wrongfully collected from a third person under an agreement for their joint benefit—Needles v. Fuson (Ky. App.) 68 S. W. 644.

57. Munns v. Donovan Commission Co. (Iowa) 91 N. W. 789.

58. Action for civil damages against conspirators—Mosby v. McKee, etc., Commission Co., 91 Mo. App. 500.

59. Ross v. Sayler, 104 Ill. App. 19; Black v. First Nat. Bank, 54 Atl. (Md.) 88.

60. Western Realty & Inv. Co. v. Haase, 53 Atl. (Conn.) 861; agreement by superintendent of express company to pension injured employe—Chenoweth v. Pac. Exp. Co., 93 Mo. App. 185; Waters v. West C. St. R. Co., 101 Ill. App. 265, and see, President, Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. v. H. W. Johns Mfg. Co., 101 Ill. App. 349; Magowan v. Groneweg (S. D.) 91 N. W. 335. See, also, particularly, Corporations.

61. Insurance agency—Fire Ins. Co. v. Sinsabaugh, 101 Ill. App. 55.

62. Dickinson v. Salmon, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 169.

63. Agent for collection of rents—De Witt v. De Witt, 202 Pa. 255.

64. People's Sav. Bank v. Smith, 114 Ga. 185.

65. Opie v. Pac. Inv. Co., 26 Wash. 505, 67 Pac. 231.

66. Doe v. Callow, 64 Kan. 886, 67 Pac. 824.

67. Fidelity Trust & Safety Vault Co. v. Carr (Ky. App.) 66 S. W. 990; Louisville Bank. Co. v. Same, Id.; Murray v. Same, Id.; Carr v. Ross, Id.

68. Tyler v. Mut. Dist. Messenger Co., 17 App. D. C. 85.

69. Emery-Bird-Thayer Dry Goods Co. v. Coomer, 87 Mo. App. 404.

70. Emery-Bird-Thayer Dry Goods Co. v. Coomer, 87 Mo. App. 404.

71. Facts held sufficient to show that an agent was acting for the manufacturer in a particular transaction and not for the selling representative—Sherman v. Sherman & Lyon Co. (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 226. Evidence sufficient that an agent who became trustee between his principal and another was the principal's trustee, not the other's—American Bond. & Trust Co. v. Takahashi (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 125; Gathercole v. Peck (Neb.) 91 N. W. 513; Holton v. Stroud, 88 Mo. App. 112; sufficiency of evidence of agency in purchase of horse so as to bind principal for price—Fritz v. Kennedy (Iowa) 93 N. W. 603.

72. Agency for guardian—Schmidt v. Shaver, 196 Ill. 108. An employe suing on a contract alleged to have been made with a foreman must show the latter's authority to employ—Ames v. D. J. Murray Mfg. Co., 114 Wis. 85.

73. Anzle v. Manchester (Neb.) 91 N. W. 501; sufficiency of evidence of agency to receive payment for mortgagor—Boyd v. Pape, (Neb.) 90 N. W. 646; of agency for sale of cattle—Gentry v. Singleton (Ind. T. App.) 69 S. W. 898; to send question of agency to jury —Mosby v. McKee, etc., Commission Co., 91 Mo. App. 500; of general agent's authority to contract—Mullin v. Sire, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 807; to show agency for insurance company in securing policy and adjusting loss—Citizens' Ins. Co. v. Stoddard, 197 Ill. 330; of agency and subagency—Lucas v. Rader (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 488; agency for both parties—Vercruysse v. Williams (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 206; agency in making a loan on mortgage—Booth v. Kessler, 62 Neb. 704; in procuring materials on which a mechanic's lien is based —Le Valley v. Overacker, 72 N. Y. Supp. 12; conflicting evidence of authority—Droste v.

it is admissible if not convincing,[74] and facts which may be construed either way on the question of the relation will be considered as showing its existence where an agency in the particular transaction is otherwise shown.[75] Circumstances in evidence showing that one was an agent and was in the pursuit of his business will take the question of agency in a particular transaction to the jury.[76]

The agent may testify directly as to the relation,[77] though such testimony alone is insufficient,[78] but his declarations or conduct cannot be shown,[79] unless there is other evidence of the alleged agent's authority,[80] or unless his principal has recognized or acquiesced in his acts.[81]

The declarations of the principal[82] or his adoption of the agent's acts will show agency.[83] Where it is alleged that a husband acted as agent for his wife in the purchase of machinery placed on her property, directions given by a son, concerning the purchase of the machinery by his father, are properly admitted in support of a defense that it was purchased for the son.[84] That one person employed and permitted another person to act for him, is insufficient to show that the person so acting was not an agent but an independent contractor.[85]

Mere association of an alleged agent with one who was a real agent of the principal for an entirely distinct purpose, does not show the existence of the agency.[86] Proof of the relation between certain persons shows an agency only for ordinary duties of the relation.[87] Agency of a husband for his wife will not be presumed from marriage.[88] nor is additional evidence of his agency for her in another transaction conclusive evidence.[89] Mere possession of property of another does not show an agency to deliver it to a third person so as to estop the owner or his guardian from denying the agency.[90] Where it is conceded that no change in the relations took place between the time of two transactions, agency in the later transaction may be shown by acquiescence of the principal in the former.[91]

Metropolitan Hotel Supply Co., 74 N. Y. Supp. 613.

74. Dickinson v. Salmon, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 169.

75. Detwilder v. Heckenlaible, 63 Kan. 627.

76. Domasek v. Kluck, 113 Wis. 336.

77. O'Neill v. Wilcox, 115 Iowa, 15; American Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Kersh (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 74; American Box Mach. Co. Bolnick, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 765; Garber v. Blatchley, 51 W. Va. 147. In an action against a mother for goods delivered to her on her daughter's order, the daughter may be asked whether her mother gave her authority to order the goods—Stone v. Cronin, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 565.

78. American Box Mach. Co. v. Bolnick, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 765.

79. Currie v. Syndicate Des Cultivators Des Oignons a'Fleur, 104 Ill. App. 165. A solicitor carrying stationery of the alleged principal and samples, cannot prove his agency on his own declaration—Peninsular Stove Co. v. Adams Hardware & Furniture Co., 93 Mo. App. 237; Americus Oil Co. v. Gurr, 114 Ga. 624; Mentzer v. Sargeant, 115 Iowa, 527; Garber v. Blatchley, 51 W. Va. 147; Wise v. International Soc., 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 871. Declarations made while in the transaction of business are not admissible—Parker v. Brown, 131 N. C. 264. The rule applies to a subagent—Lucas v. Rader (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 488; agency to make lease—Bible v. Centre Hall Borough, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 136; Smith v. Delaware & A. Telegraph & Telephone Co. (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 818; insurance agent—Baldwin v. Conn. Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Mass.) 65 N. E. 837.

80. Bird v. Phillips, 115 Iowa, 703; Le Valley v. Overacker, 12 N. Y. Supp. 12; Peterson v. Stockton & T. R. Co., 134 Cal. 244; Bibby v. Thomas, 131 Ala. 350.

81. Smith v. Delaware & A. Telegraph & Telephone Co. (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 818.

82. Arnold v. Teel (Mass.) 64 N. E. 413.

83. Orders taken for goods—Kelly v. Burke, 132 Ala. 235.

84. Rider—Ericsson Engine Co. v. Fowler, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 810.

85. Bianki v. Greater American Exposition Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 615.

86. Leary v. Albany Brewing Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 6.

87. Wikle v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 525; authority of husband to sell wife's lands—Bird v. Phillips, 115 Iowa, 703.

88. Brown v. Woodward (Conn.) 53 Atl. 112.

89. Cushman v. Masterson (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1031.

90. Deposit of an assignment of a judgment by a guardian does not authorize the depositary to deliver it to the guardian's assignee—Schmidt v. Shaver, 196 Ill. 108.

91. Domasek v. Kluck, 113 Wis. 336.

The authority of an agent to sell land given before passage of an act requiring such authority to be in writing, may be shown orally or by any pertinent evidence.[92] A power of attorney from a wife to her husband for execution of all papers relating to a firm of which she was a member, and his testimony that he acted for her in all firm matters, shows his agency.[93]

E. Subagency or delegation of the relation.—An agent cannot delegate his power,[94] but he may appoint subagents when it is necessary in the business of his principal,[95] or when, from its character and under business custom, the business of the principal cannot be accomplished otherwise.[96] One taking charge of business of a principal under directions of a general agent or superintendent, must be presumed to have authority as a sub-agent.[97]

F. Estoppel to assert or deny agency may arise from a holding out.[98]—A principal who allows his agent to appear as owner, or in full power of disposition of his property, whereby others are misled,[99] or who places his agent in possession of property so that the latter is enabled to misappropriate funds borrowed thereon,[1] is estopped to deny the agent's authority;[2] but the rule will not apply where third persons do not know who is the owner of the property.[3] Holding out another as agent in previous similar transactions will not estop a denial of the relation where it appears that in the particular transaction the alleged agent was the sub-agent of defendants without authority to bind them as principals.[4] When the agent has dealt with third persons the principal cannot thereafter disavow to the other's detriment.[5]

An attorney in fact who acts under an instrument giving him authority cannot deny his capacity.[6]

G. Termination of relation.[7]—A contract of agency without time limit may be terminated on reasonable notice[8] by either party in good faith;[9] but where the agent is entitled to an interest because of services rendered, the principal cannot revoke the agency without compensation.[10] The agent's right to commissions on renewals of contracts secured by him, is not such an interest coupled with his power as to prevent revocation of the agency by the principal within its terms.[11]

92. Civ. Code Mont., §§ 2185, 3085, and Code Civ. Proc. Mont., § 1276, requiring written authority, did not affect acts prior to July 1st, 1895—Cobban v. Hecklen (Mont.) 70 Pac. 805.

93. People v. Lappin, 8 Detroit Leg. N. (Mich.) 909.

94. Lucas v. Rader (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 488. He must have special directions—Floyd v. Mackey, 23 Ky. Law R. 2030. If he has been employed because of his particular skill—Bromley v. Aday, 70 Ark. 351.

95. Insurance Co. of N. A. v. Thornton, 130 Ala. 222. See infra, § 2a as to implied authority.

96. Breck v. Meeker (Neb.) 93 N. W. 993.

97. Foreman in construction of telegraph lines supervising work under direction of general superintendent—Fritz v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Utah) 71 Pac. 209.

98. See ante, § 1-C as to implied agency. General agent for making investments had been accustomed to collect notes due principal—Cheshire Provident Inst. v. Fuesner (Neb.) 88 N. W. 849. Evidence held insufficient to support an estoppel by holding out a depositary as agent—Schmidt v. Shaver, 196 Ill. 108.

99. Williams v. Pelley, 96 Ill. App. 346.

1. Investment agent—Morris v. Joyce (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 139.

2. See "holding out doctrine" discussed in Estoppel.

3. Hefferman v. Bateler, 87 Mo. App. 316.

4. Ruddock Co. v. Johnson (Cal.) 67 Pac. 680.

5. Pochin v. Knoebel (Neb.) 89 N. W. 264. Failure of an agent to account for money collected on a note will not enable his principal to repudiate the agency and collect again from the maker. Receipt of an order for goods from an agent and a check in part payment from the buyer without objection and application of the money to his own use will prevent the principal from denying the agency and refusing to deliver the goods—Farrer v. Caster (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 171.

6. Walters v. Bray (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 443.

7. Sufficiency of evidence of continuation of agency—Johnson v. Doon, 9 Detroit Leg. N. 409; termination of insurance agency—Andrews v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 24 Ky. Law R. 844.

8. Barrett v. Gilmour (Eng.) Com'l Cas. 72.

9. Broker—Huffman v. Ellis (Neb.) 90 N. W. 552; Taylor v. Martin (La.) 33 So. 112.

10. Royal Remedy & Extract Co., 90 Mo. App. 53.

11. Andrews v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 24 Ky. Law R. 844.

Death will terminate the agency though the agent is trying to recover land under a power giving him one-half the value recovered.[12] A subagent employed by and accountable directly to a general agent has no such contract of agency with the principal as survives removal of the general agent under his contract.[13] Appointment of a receiver for the principal will not terminate a contract of agency where the receiver affirmed it and received benefits under it.[14] Record of a deed by the owner of land is notice to his agent and all dealing with the latter, of the revocation of the authority of the agent to sell the land.[15]

§ 2. Rights and liabilities of principal as to third persons. A. Actual and implied authority to bind principal.—A mere agent cannot delegate his authority,[16] without special directions,[17] especially if he has been employed because of his peculiar fitness.[18] An agent may appoint subagents where necessary to proper transaction of the business of the principal.[19]

The principal is bound by acts and knowledge of his agent within the scope of the agency,[21] unless the public is the principal[22] and is presumed to have had notice, actual or constructive, of all such acts of the agent.[23] Declarations of agent, made while acting in the scope of his authority, bind his principal,[24] but not declarations after the event or completion of his agency,[25] or without the line of his duties,[26] but such declarations cannot be received unless the agency is proved.[27] Admission of an agent, to bind his principal, must be made while acting for the principal and relate to the subject of the agency,[28] and when so made, they will bind the principal as though he made them.[29] Delivery of a deed to an agent is delivery to his principal.[30]

If the agent acts for himself a third person, though with knowledge of an agency cannot recover from the principal on dealings.[31] Third persons are not bound by knowledge of an agent dealing with them for another.[32]

The implied powers of an agent are those reasonable and necessary to accomplishment of the purpose of the agency,[33] and if no directions are given him

12. Wainwright v. Massenburg, 129 N. C. 46.

13. Insurance subagent—Union Casualty & Surety Co. v. Gray (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 422.

14. Leupold v. Weeks (Md.) 53 Atl. 937.

15. Sayles' Civ. St. Tex., art. 4652, providing the extent of notice by record of a deed—Donnan v. Adams (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 580.

16. Lucas v. Rader (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 488.

17. Floyd v. Mackey, 23 Ky. Law R. 2030.

18. Bromley v. Aday, 70 Ark. 351.

20. Insurance Co. of N. A. v. Thornton, 130 Ala. 222.

21. Receiver of national bank as principal—Watts v. Dubois (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 686.

22. State v. Chilton, 49 W. Va. 453; but contra, it seems, People v. Woodruff, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 90, where land commissioners had notice of a defect of title.

23. Andrews v. Robertson, 111 Wis. 334.

24. Matzenbaugh v. People, 194 Ill. 108; Rhode v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 8 Detroit Leg. N. 888; attorney—Murray v. Sweasy, 69 App. Div. 45; railroad conductor—San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Barnett (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 474; Holt v. Johnson, 129 N. C. 136; Callaway v. Equitable Trust Co., 67 N. J. Law, 44; Jack v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 49. Declarations of an insurance agent as to matters coming from the company bind the latter on a policy—Ulysses Elgin Butter Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 384.

25. Rice v. City of St. Louis, 165 Mo. 636; Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Haines (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 337; Baldwin v. Central Sav. Bank (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 179; Callaway v. Equitable Trust Co., 67 N. J. Law, 44; McLagan v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. (Iowa) 89 N. W. 233.

26. Leary v. Albany Brew. Co., 77 App. Div. 6.

27. It must appear that the agent knew that the property belonged to plaintiff or had authority to act for him at the time—Pease v. Trench, 197 Ill. 101.

28. Schreyer v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 478; Waters v. West Chicago St. R. Co., 101 Ill. App. 265; Stanton v. Baird Lumber Co., 132 Ala. 635.

29. Insurance agency—Sick v. American Central Fire Ins. Co. (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 687; Moran Bros. Co. v. Snoqualmie Falls Power Co. (Wash.) 69 Pac. 759; Krohn v. Anderson (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 621; Cooper v. Ford (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 487.

30. Bond v. Wilson, 129 N. C. 325.

31. Dealings with bank cashier—Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 301.

32. The insurer is not bound by knowledge of agent of the insured—Bradley v. German-American Ins. Co., 90 Mo. App. 369.

33. National Bank v. Old Town Bank (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 786. Selling agent on commission cannot receive payment in anything save money except on special authority—Woodruff v. American Road Mach. Co., 23 Ky. Law R. 1551. Authority to make a loan does not imply authority to collect principal and for the manner of its accomplishment he may employ any recognized usage or mode of dealing,[34] unless such usage is not within the knowledge of persons to be affected.[35] A warranty made by an agent which is no greater than the law would imply, will bind the principal.[36]

Acts of the agent are binding after discharge and will bind his principal where relied upon by a third person in good faith and without knowledge of the discharge.[37] A memorandum by an owner containing a description of land with a price named to an agent, does not show his authority to execute a written contract of sale for the owner.[38]

Evidence and proofs.[39]—Where an agency has been established by competent proof, the principal must prove that a third person had notice of its termination,[40] since it will be presumed in favor of such third person, that the agency continues until he has notice.[41] To admit evidence of the agent's acts as binding the principal, the agency must first be shown.[42] Recitals in a deed executed by an agent may be considered in determining his authority.[43] Where one person has allowed another to act for him, or failed to disavow such action, evidence of conversations between them is admissible on the question of the agency, so as to bind the alleged principal to a third person.[44] The extent of an alleged agency cannot be shown by declarations of one claiming to be the agent.[45] Ratification of similar acts will show authority.[46]

B. Apparent authority and unauthorized or wrongful acts of agent; torts.—The acts of an agent within limits of his apparent authority bind the principal;[47] especially if the principal intentionally or negligently allows third persons to act thereon,[48] or places the agent in such a position that third persons are interest; nor authority to collect interest authority to collect principal (Hefferman v. Boteler, 87 Mo. App. 316); contra where such authority has been held out by a course of making collections—Cheshire Prov. Inst. v. Fuesner (Neb.) 88 N. W. 849. A creditor's agent to procure transfer of accounts and notes may release guarantors of the debtor in consideration of the transfer—Martin v. Rotan Grocery Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 212.

34. Rohrbough v. U. S. Exp. Co., 50 W. Va. 148. An agent to sell conditionally and to recover goods on condition broken may allow a purchaser to take an article on trial and deposit of part payment—Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Cardwell, 114 Ga. 340.

35. State v. Chilton, 49 W. Va. 453.

36. Warranty of goods sold—H. B. Smith Co. v. Williams (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 318.

37. Continental Fire Ins. Co. v. Brooks, 131 Ala. 614.

38. Donnan v. Adams (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 580.

39. Sufficiency of evidence of payment to agent to bind principal—Fay & Eagan Co. v. Causey, 131 N. C. 350; sufficiency of evidence as to limitation of powers—Lyle v. Addicks, 62 N. J. Eq. 123.

40. Insurance agency—Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Oberman, 99 Ill. App. 357.

41. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Oberman, 99 Ill. App. 357.

42. Warehouse agent receiving attached goods from sheriff without authority—Koyukuk Min. Co. v. Van De Vanter (Wash.) 70 Pac. 966; receipt of money by a wife for her husband—Brown v. Woodward (Conn.) 53 Atl. 112.

43. The court may look to the age of the transaction and the assertion of title thereunder, though the deed is not thirty years old—Kirkpatrick v. Tarlton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 179.

44. Civ. Code Cal., §§ 2300, 2317-2319—Curtin v. Ingle, 137 Cal. 95, 69 Pac. 836, 1013.

45. Currie v. Syndicate Des Cultivators Des Oignons a'Fleur, 104 Ill. App. 165.

46. Harrison Nat. Bank v. Austin (Neb.) 91 N. W. 540.

47. Darby v. Hall (Del. Super.) 3 Pennewill, 25. A wife is responsible for fraud of her husband who acted as agent in selling her land, and signed the contract with her—Quarg v. Scher, 136 Cal. 406, 69 Pac. 96; Plano Mfg. Co. v. Nordstrom (Neb.) 88 N. W. 164; shipper's agent—Nichols v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 24 Utah, 83, 66 Pac. 768; trainmaster as agent to employ physician to attend injured employes—Southern R. Co. v. Humphries, 79 Miss. 761; authority of "manager" and selling agent of mining company to "buy"—Gates Iron Wks. v. Denver Engineering Wks. Co. (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 173. General agent in mercantile business may buy on credit though instructed otherwise—Pacific Biscuit Co. v. Dugger, 40 Or. 362, 67 Pac. 32; McKinney v. Stephens, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 125; agent as holding over for principal after expiration of lease—Byxbee v. Blake (Conn.) 51 Atl. 535. A general agent to buy and sell goods may pay for goods bought by indorsing checks of the principal—Graton, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Redelsheimer, 28 Wash. 370, 68 Pac. 879.

48. Lebanon Sav. Bank v. Henry (Neb.) 89 N. W. 169; Faulkner v. Simms (Neb.) Id. 171; Harrison Nat. Bank v. Williams (Neb.) Id. 245.

justified in presuming that he has certain authority;[49] where a principal treats his agent so that third persons following business custom are led to believe that the agent has certain powers, the principal is bound;[50] as where one of two parties to a contract notifies the other that all such transactions are arranged for him by another as agent, the other party is justified in treating such agent as having an ostensible agency to modify a contract already made.[51]

Private instructions to a general agent by his principal cannot be shown to prevent the principal's liability on contracts made by the agent within the scope of his authority,[52] since it is necessary that third persons should have knowledge of such limitations.[53]

One with knowledge of an agent's limited authority,[54] and with means of learning the truth of alleged false statements by the agent,[55] or with notice that the agent's acts must be approved by the principal,[56] deals with him outside that authority at his own peril, and if the agent is a special agent third persons must ascertain his authority at their peril.[57] Third persons are justified in relying on the apparent authority of an agent as held out to them,[58] and need not prove his authority to make a contract within his apparent authority[59] unless the powers assumed by the agent are contrary to ordinary business custom and there is no showing of special authority,[60] or unless the acts violate the known custom of the principal,[61] when such third persons assume the burden of showing his authority.[62] But one who was not misled by the apparent authority cannot urge it to fix liability on the principal.[63] A third person cannot assume that the relation of agency existed where not ostensible, nor, though an agency really exists, can he assume its scope without inquiry.[64] An agent cannot bind his principal beyond the scope of his authority where the third person knows such authority,[65] but they are entitled to rely upon statements of the agent respecting the subject matter of

49. Lebanon Sav. Bank v. Henry (Neb.) 89 N. W. 169; Faulkner v. Simms (Neb.) Id. 171; Harrison Nat. Bank v. Williams (Neb.) Id. 245.

50. An investment agent with general powers may be regarded as having powers to collect and extend time for payment—Harrison Nat. Bank v. Austin (Neb.) 91 N. W. 540.

51. Civ. Code Cal., § 2300—Union Paving & Contract Co. v. Mowry (Cal.) 70 Pac. 81.

52. Hirschhorn v. Bradley (Iowa) 90 N. W. 592. On the question of the authority of a general agent, instances of his general management of the principal's property in his absence may be shown—Mullin v. Sire, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 807.

53. Hall v. Hopper (Neb.) 90 N. W. 549.

54. Thrall v. Wilson, 17 Pa. Super Ct. 376; express agent—Rohrbough v. U. S. Exp. Co., 50 W. Va. 148; Modern Woodmen v. Tevis (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 369.

55. Sale of real estate by agent—Samson v. Beale, 27 Wash. 557, 68 Pac. 180.

56. Notice by an agent to a buyer that the principal will fix the price of goods prevents a claim of apparent authority in the agent to sell for a certain price—Lucas v. Rader (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 488.

57. Fraudulent sale of principal's stock by agent—Fay v. Slaughter, 194 Ill. 157.

58. Murray v. Sweasy, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 45.

59. The burden is on the principal to overcome the presumption of the agent's authority—Nichols v. Oregon S. L. R. Co., 24 Utah, 83, 66 Pac. 768.

60. A purchaser cannot give a piano sales agent notes payable to himself unless the latter's special authority appears—Baldwin v. Tucker, 23 Ky. Law R. 1538. That a lender had possession of security for a loan shows that his agent who negotiated the loan and collected interest, had no authority to collect the principal—Hefferman v. Boteler, 87 Mo. App. 316; Corbett v. Waller, 27 Wash. 242, 67 Pac. 567; likewise where the agent never had possession of the evidence of the debt—Dewey v. Bradford (Neb.) 89 N. W. 249. See, also, Bradbury v. Kinney, Id. 257; Clarkson v. Reinhartz (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 111.

61. Taking of money orders by employe of express agent without collecting charges thereon—Rohrbough v. U. S. Exp. Co., 50 W. Va. 148.

62. Hefferman v. Boteler, 87 Mo. App. 316; Dewey v. Bradford (Neb.) 89 N. W. 249.

63. Apparent authority of mine boss to employ laborers without approval of superintendent—Patterson v. Neal (Ala.) 33 So. 39.

64. The giving of a deed to another on his false representations regarding a loan from a third person to the grantees did not create an agency so as to bind them to secure a loan to him personally by such third person, the latter being bound to ascertain the extent of the agency—Macdonald v. Cool, 134 Cal. 502.

65. Power of auctioneer to extend time of payment beyond stated terms of sale—McKiernan v. Valleau (R. I.) 51 Atl. 102.

his agency.[66] Representations by agents as to general authority to act for their principal in all matters relating to the subject of the agency cannot be held to show authority as to particular acts alone.[67] Third persons having knowledge of an agency must take notice of its limitations,[68] as where they are expressed in the contract executed by the agent,[69] and this applies to a power of attorney unless the principal received the benefits of his agent's acts in excess of authority.[70] Third persons are bound by terms of a contract made with an agent which limits his authority,[71] though they may have dealt with a subagent,[72] and the contract of agency containing instructions may be shown on the question of his powers to bind his principal.[73] The principal cannot be held liable on a contract by his agent until it is shown that he has ratified the agent's acts, where the contract specifies that it is subject to approval by the principal.[74]

Evidence and questions of fact.[75]—In determining whether an agent has certain powers with regard to his principal's property, other instances in which such powers were exercised may be shown as bearing on the apparent scope of his authority[76] and other transactions of a like character with the same agent, and matters relating to custom in the business, may be shown on the question whether third persons could be held to have notice of peculiar limitations on the agent's instructions.[77] Apparent authority of an agent is a question for the jury.[78]

Unauthorized and tortious acts.—An unauthorized agreement by an agent is not binding on the principal unless ratified,[79] but agreements, representations and mistakes of an agent made as a part of the res gestae of his transaction for his principal, will bind the latter.[80] If a principal desires to repudiate acts of an agent in excess of authority, he must refuse to receive the benefits of the agent's acts or restore them if already received,[81] and if he has held out his agent to others as possesssed of certain powers, with notice to them to honor his acts therein, he cannot recover from persons dealing with the agent, because of fraud committed by him in the businesss of his agency.[82] Where powers of a special agent are limited, his contracts to be submitted to his principal, a secret agreement between him and the other party to a proposal to a contract will not bind the principal.[83]

66. Insured may rely on agent's statement that a vacancy permit has been attached to his policy by the company or its general agents—Morgan v. Illinois Ins. Co., 9 Detroit Leg. N. 84.

67. Real estate agents—Samson v. Beale, 27 Wash. 557, 68 Pac. 180.

68. Corporate agent—Jackson Paper Mfg. Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 199 Ill. 151.

69. Insured and beneficiary are bound by limitations expressed in insurance policy—Modern Woodmen v. Tevis (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 369.

70. Money received by the attorney in fact in excess of authority cannot be recovered from the principal—Morton v. Morris (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 94.

71. Porter v. Home Friendly Soc., 114 Ga. 937.

72. Lucas v. Rader (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 488.

73. J. I. Case Thresh. Mach. Co. v. Eichinger, 15 S. D. 530.

74. Sale of machinery by agent under agreement to take in part payment certain second-hand machinery—Elfring v. New Birdsall Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 29.

75. Advertisement in city directory describing agent as "local manager" is admissible—Graton, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Redelsheimer, 28 Wash. 370, 68 Pac. 879.

76. On the question whether an agent of a landlord had power to consent to the sale of crops by the tenant, thereby waiving the landlord's lien thereon, evidence of other sales of produce by the tenant with the agent's knowledge and consent is properly admitted to show apparent scope of his authority in dealing with the landlord's property—Fishbaugh v. Spunaugle (Iowa) 92 N. W. 58.

77. It may be shown by cross-examination that the principal had never objected to the agent's acts in similar transactions—Clarkson v. Reinhartz (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 111.

78. Authority to purchase certain goods; evidence was given of purchases of similar goods accepted by the principal—Fitch v. Metropolitan Hotel Supply Co., 74 N. Y. Supp. 616; agency for sale of timber—Barker Cedar Co. v. Roberts, 23 Ky. Law R. 1345.

79. Agreement by sales agent to receive payment in lumber—J. A. Fay & Eagan Co. v. Causey, 131 N. C. 350.

80. Nutter v. Brown, 51 W. Va. 598.

81. Purchase of note by agent on unauthorized condition—Andrews v. Robertson, 111 Wis. 334.

82. Farquharson v. King, 70 Law J. K. B. 985, (1901) 2 K. B. 697, 85 Law T. (N. S.) 264, 49 Wkly. Rep. 673.

A purchaser of lands cannot recover from the vendor for money paid the latter's attorney in fact in excess of his authority.[84] Revocation of a special agency by the principal before the agent acts will prevent liability for subsequent performance unless third persons have been misled by the principal or he has ratified the agent's acts.[85] A principal may follow his funds, wrongfully diverted by his agent, into the hands of third persons unless they have received them in good faith, for value, and without notice of the agent's trust.[86] Instructions that a principal was entitled to recover money paid to third persons by his agent if the agent exceeded his authority cannot be given where the issue made by the pleadings is that the money was paid under a mistake of fact.[87]

The principal may be liable for agent's torts;[88] or for negligence induced by false statements of the agent,[89] and for trespass by his agent which he ratifies and is done for his benefit,[90] and, for wrongful acts of the agent within the scope of his authority though in violation of his express orders,[91] though he may not have directed or contemplated the acts,[92] but not for wrongful acts of the agent outside the scope of his authority[93] or in transactions independent of the agency[94] or of which he had no knowledge,[95] unless he accepts the fruits of the fraud or deceit of the agent.[96] Where it is shown that a third person defrauded by dealings with an agent, afterwards dealt with the principal, such person may properly show that in both dealings he relied solely on the agent's representations.[97]

C. Particular kinds of agencies.[98]—A general agent may change or waive terms of a contract for the principal,[99] or of a warranty of goods sold,[1] and may

83. Agent to secure written proposals for sale and delivery of cotton—Inman v. Crawford (Ga.) 42 S. E. 473.

84. Morton v. Morris (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 94.

85. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Ashmore (Fla.) 32 So. 832.

86. Central Stock and Grain Exch. v. Bendinger (C. C. A.) 109 Fed. 926; Bendinger v. Central Stock and Grain Exch., Id.

87. Great Western El. Co. v. White (C. C. A. N. D.) 118 Fed. 406.

88. An exception exists where the state is principal—Billings v. State, 27 Wash. 288, 67 Pac. 583. A corporation employing an agent to give an exhibition of fire works is liable for his negligence unless the latter is an independent contractor—Bianki v. Greater American Exposition Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 615.

89. Telegraph company as principal—Seffel v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 897.

90. Brown v. Webster City, 115 Iowa, 511.

91. Arrest of patron by restaurant manager—Dupre v. Childs, 52 App. Div. (N. Y.) 306; affirmed, 169 N. Y. 585.

92. A dry goods merchant is liable for false arrest of a customer by an usher on suspicion of theft—Field v. Kane, 99 Ill. App. 1.

93. Agent for setting up machinery—Flinn v. World's Dispensary Medical Ass'n, 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 490. That a railroad ticket agent arrested a person because of his resemblance to another suspected of stealing from the company's cash drawer, is insufficient to show such act within the scope of the agent's authority so as to render the railroad company liable for malicious prosecution—Wikle v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 525.

94. Fraud of a husband and another in confessing judgments against the husband is not chargeable to the wife because they represented her in purchase of his property in execution—Mencke v. Rosenberg, 202 Pa. 131.

95. J. I. Case Thresh. Mach. Co. v. Eichinger, 15 S. D. 530. Evidence that a mother-in-law had previously mortgaged her property twice to secure debts of her son-in-law and her testimony that she trusted him implicitly, is insufficient to show his apparent authority, while acting as her agent, to agree that a later mortgage executed by her for another loan to him should include a prior loan he had secured by forging her name and of which she had no knowledge or notice—Nourse v. Jennings, 180 Mass. 592. Nor is such apparent authority shown by a letter from the mother-in-law assenting to the loan "as arranged"—Nourse v. Jennings, 180 Mass. 592.

96. White v. New York S. & W. R. Co. (N. J.) 52 Atl. 216.

97. Purchase of worthless mining stock under fraudulent representations of agent—Geraghty v. Randall (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 767.

98. A person dealing with a general loan agent is not liable for payments converted by the agent—Harrison Nat. Bank v. Williams (Neb.) 89 N. W. 245. An agent having full charge of loans and security, using his own judgment, can receive payment—Pochin v. Knoebel (Neb.) 89 N. W. 264; sufficiency of evidence to show agent's authority to enter into an illegal wagering contract (Mass. St. 1890, c. 437)—Allen v. Fuller (Mass.) 65 N. E. 51. That an agent is not in possession of his principal's mortgage is not conclusive as to lack of power to collect money thereon—Harrison Nat. Bank v. Austin (Neb.) 91 N. W. 540.

99. Selling agent—Blaess v. Nichols & Shepard Co., 115 Iowa, 373. An agent with estop the principal by specific acts relating thereto,[2] and may make optional contracts with third persons allowing them time for acceptance or refusal, though his sales are subject to ratification by the principal.[3] Authority as a general agent is presumed to continue.[4] A general agent in charge of the entire business of his principal is presumably authorized to give a note when necessary for its purposes.[5] A general agent to manage real estate is not empowered to bind his principal by entry into a partnership.[6] An agent to manage the principal's business generally, to buy and sell for him, is a general agent though for a special business, and can bind the principal by a purchase on credit though contrary to instructions.[7] An agent employed generally to conduct the business of his principal and draw drafts on the principal for payment of necessary expenses, was authorized to use money collected by him from another and distinct principal to pay such debts and remit in return to the second principal drafts on the first.[8] A general agent to purchase mill supplies and sell manufactured goods, but without authority to sign or indorse checks except for supplies purchased, has no implied authority to indorse a check for goods sold, so as to prevent recovery of the amount from the maker by his principal after the agent had absconded.[9] The authority of a general agent to hire employes for his principal is not a matter of law but a question to be settled from the evidence.[10] Statements made by a general agent to special agents are admissible as showing the authority of a certain special agent as bearing on statements made by him for the principal.[11]

An agent employed for a specific purpose cannot act beyond its scope so as to bind the principal,[12] and a third person dealing with him must learn the extent authority to permit his principal's tenant to market crops may waive the principal's lien thereon—Fishbaugh v. Spunaugle (Iowa) 92 N. W. 58.

1. Blaess v. Nichols & Shepard Co., 115 Iowa, 373; Waupaca Elec. L. & R. Co. v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & L. Co., 112 Wis. 469.

2. A general rental agent may encourage a tenant to buy fixtures and thereby estop the principal from claiming them as part of the realty—Morrison v. Sohn, 90 Mo. App. 76.

3. General agent selling musical instruments may sell on trial and part payment with option to purchaser to return within a fixed period, and the principal cannot repudiate the contract and recover the instrument without refunding the part payment—Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Cardwell, 114 Ga. 340.

4. Cheshire Provident Inst. v. Fuesner (Neb.) 88 N. W. 849.

5. Whitten v. Bank of Fincastle (Va.) 42 S. E. 309.

6. Guy v. Rosewater (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 271.

7. Manager of mercantile business—Pacific Biscuit Co. v. Dugger, 40 Or. 362, 67 Pac. 32.

8. Great Western El. Co. v. White (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 406.

9. Jackson Paper Mfg. Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 199 Ill. 151.

10. Employment of men by foreman of mill—Ames v. D. J. Murray Mfg. Co., 114 Wis. 85.

11. Elfring v. New Birdsall Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 29.

12. Power of architect employed to superintend construction to change building contract—Watts v. Metcalf, 23 Ky. Law R. 2189. An attorney employed to execute a lease can not bind his client to pay commissions for the renting—Calloway v. Equitable Trust Co., 67 N. J. Law, 44. An agent to receive principal and interest can not receive principal before due—Williams v. Pelley, 96 Ill. App. 346. Authority to collect a debt carries no power to compromise—Corbet v. Waller, 27 Wash. 242, 67 Pac. 567; nor to bind the principal to apply the proceeds in a particular way—Hill v. Van Duzer, 111 Ga. 867. An agent to buy for cash can not buy on credit—Americus Oil Co. v. Gurr, 114 Ga. 624. Proof that an agent received payments of interest on a note and trust deed, and wrote a letter exercising an option on the principal to declare the entire debt due on default, is insufficient to show his authority to exercise the option—Wilcox v. Eadie (Kan.) 70 Pac. 338. An architect, described in all contracts relating to construction of a building as the agent of the owner, may bind the latter by agreement to provide for emergencies in the work—Teakle v. Moore, 9 Detroit Leg. N. 371. Authority to ship goods includes authority to accept bill of lading and limit carriers' liability—Adams Exp. Co. v. Carnahan (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 647. An agent to collect money cannot receive payment otherwise—Cooney v. U. S. Wringer Co., 101 Ml. App. 468. Employment of a physician to attend an employe is not within the duties of a bookkeeper and timekeeper of a railroad contractor—Harris v. Fitzgerald (Conn.) 52 Atl. 315. One sometimes employed by a loan company to collect monies does not become its agent by making application for another for a loan, so as to render the company chargeable with his knowledge that a mortgage security was given by defendant as surety—International Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Watson, 158 Ind. 505.

of the agent's authority.[13] However, an undisclosed limitation of authority will not bind others without knowledge.[14] Payment of a note to an agent authorized to collect for the holder satisfies the debt.[15] His possession of a note shows an agent's authority to collect it.[16] A servant authorized to transport his master's property and furnished with funds for the purpose, has no apparent or implied authority to give his master's credit for transportation.[17] Where it is shown that one in control of another's business, did not employ laborers without approval of his superior, there can be no implied authority that he should so employ them[18] Where a contract secured by an agent provides that he has no authority to change its written terms, he cannot bind the principal to accept other and different terms by allowing their insertion,[19] nor can he bind the principal by a verbal modification of a written contract, though such contract was originally made by him, unless his authority to modify is shown or the change is ratified by the principal.[20] Where an agent is employed to sell certain goods of the principal and also to represent him in an arbitration concerning the sale of other goods, the principal's right to question the agent's acts for fraud is the same in both employments.[21] Authority given by a widow to another to secure privilege, from a lodge of which the agent was a member, to bury her husband in the lodge cemetery, will not bind her not to remove the body because of a prohibition in the lodge constitution of which she had no knowledge.[22] Authority to indorse commercial paper for his principal does not imply authority to ratify a sale of the principal's stock or a loan thereon.[23] The agent may bind his principal by alteration of an instrument to correspond with terms of the transaction which was conducted by the agent.[24] A promise by the owner of a building to pay a materialman on an order from the contractor, is proof that the contractor was not an agent to purchase materials for the owner, where the materialman had failed to procure the order until the contractor had abandoned his contract and nothing was due him thereunder.[25] After an agent has represented his principal in certain transactions done annually, and no notice of termination of the agency is given third persons, his ostensible agency for the succeeding year is a question for the jury.[26] Payment of a note secured by a mortgage to an agent authorized to collect, is a satisfaction.[27] A clerk acting under directions of a local manager of a manufacturing company cannot bind the company by independent dealings with third persons.[28]

An officer of an association or corporation cannot bind it as agent in transactions outside the scope of his authority,[29] nor can it be presumed that a corporate 13. Americus Oil Co. v. Gurr, 114 Ga. 624; Young v. Harbor Point Club House Ass'n, 99 Ill. App. 290.

14. Rohrbough v. U. S. Exp. Co., 50 W. Va. 148.

15. Stuart v. Stonebreaker (Neb.) 88 N. W. 653; Pochin v. Knoebel (Neb.) 89 N. W. 264.

16. Smith v. Landecki, 101 Ill. App. 248.

17. Saugerties & N. Y. Steamboat Co. v. Miller, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 167.

18. Authority of boss of coal mine to employ diggers without approval of the superintendent—Patterson v. Neal (Ala.) 33 So. 39.

19. Purchase of shares in loan company from agent on written application provided by the company—National Guarantee L. & T. Co. v. Thomas (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 454.

20. Contract by dredging company with agent of lumber company for excavation of a channel; the agent was authorized only to supervise the work under the contract—Rowland Lumber Co. v. Ross, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 191.

21. Sale of lumber by agent and settlement of dispute as to quality of other lumber sold but already delivered—Williamson v. North Pac. L. Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 532.

22. Matter of Bauer, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 212.

23. Fay v. Slaughter, 194 Ill. 157.

24. Nichols v. Rosenfeld, 181 Mass. 525; Palmer v. Same, Id.

25. Parker v. Brown, 131 N. C. 264.

26. Agent in taking mortgage on crops raised annually on a certain farm—First Nat. Bank v. Minneapolis & N. El. Co. (N. D.) 91 N. W. 436.

27. Boyd v. Pape (Neb.) 90 N. W. 646.

28. Crane & Co. v. Bloom, 64 Kan. 884, 67 Pac. 449.

29. Charter-party signed by managing editor of publishing association—Sun Print. & agent can act for it in matters outside its legitimate business.[30] Though third persons are bound to know the extent of power of the president of a corporation to act as its agent, they may deal with him respecting matters within the ordinary business of the corporation if he is customarily in charge thereof.[31] The manager of a corporation has no authority under his general powers to mortgage its property.[32] An agent of a building and loan association cannot bind his principal beyond the terms of its published circular and by-laws.[33]

A power of attorney[34] is an instrument setting forth the authority of a private attorney or attorney in fact.[35] It must be strictly construed,[36] general powers being controlled by special powers or express limitations.[37] A power of attorney to control and sell does not include power to mortgage.[38] A power to sell land includes authority to execute conveyances and a deed in his own name conveying his "interest" passes the owner's title.[39] A power to sell land carries authority to execute a conveyance for a consideration running to the owner only,[40] and third persons are charged with notice of powers of an agent under a recorded power so that they cannot purchase for a consideration running to the agent[41] unless they are innocent subsequent purchasers.[42] A trade usage followed by an agent in his principal's business cannot prevail against a power of attorney or the law.[43] A special power of attorney to collect debts and use them for the support of the grantor's family will not authorize a conveyance of the property to pay debts previously owed by the grantee.[44] A power of attorney to convey by quit claim deed, executed by a conveyance with general warranty, will quit claim the principal but he is not bound by the warranty.[45] Where an attorney in fact, under a recorded power of sale, sells to himself and then conveys to another, the original owner must show that such grantee had notice of his equities.[46] A power of attorney authorizing the purchase of goods for a certain business of the principal in a foreign country, and to provide for payment of same, does not confer a general borrowing power on the agent to bind the principal.[47] A sealed power of attorney, or proper evidence of its existence, must be shown to uphold a lease of lands executed by one as the agent of another;[48] or to make settlement of a

Pub. Ass'n v. Moore, 183 U. S. 642, 46 Law. Ed. 366.

30. Persons dealing with a brewing company cannot presume that an agent thereof has authority to employ labor in construction of a saloon for one of the company's customers—Leary v. Albany Brew. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 6.

31. St. Clair v. Rutledge (Wis.) 92 N. W. 234.

32. First Nat. Bank v. Kirkby (Fla.) 32 So. 881.

33. Columbia Bldg. & L. Ass'n v. Lyttle (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 247.

34. Definition and rules of construction of power of attorney—White v. Furgeson (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 49.

35. Treat v. Tolman (C. C. A. N. Y.) 113 Fed. 892.

36. A joint power in a note to confess judgment will not authorize a several judgment—Mayer v. Pick, 192 Ill. 561. A power to sell mortgages "now" possessed does not include after acquired mortgages—Union Trust Co. v. Means, 201 Pa. 374. A power to collecting money, etc., under an existing contract will not apply to subsequent contracts—Shackleford v. M. C. Kiser Co., 131 Ala. 224. A power to sell and convey lands will not authorize the agent to defer payment pending an attachment in an action of tort by the grantee against the owner, of which the latter has no notice—Morton v. Morris (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 94. A power to receipt payment of a mortgage and enter satisfaction of record will not authorize assignment of the mortgage—Googe v. Gaskill, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 39.

37. First Nat. Bank v. Kirkby (Fla.) 32 So. 881.

38. Personal property—Reed v. Kinsey, 98 Ill. App. 364.

39. Hunter v. Eastham (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1080.

40. Hunter v. Eastham (Tex.) 69 S. W. 66.

41. An attorney in fact under a power of record can not convey in satisfaction of his own debt in violation of the power—Hunter v. Eastham (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1080.

42. Hunter v. Eastham (Tex.) 69 S. W. 66.

43. State v. Chilton, 49 W. Va. 453.

44. Lewis v. Lewis (Pa.) 52 Atl. 203.

45. Robinson v. Lowe, 50 W. Va. 75.

46. Hunter v. Eastham (Tex.) 67 S. W. 1080.

47. Jacobs v. Morris, 70 Law J. Ch. 183, (1901) 1 Ch. Div. 261, 84 Law T. (N. S.) 112, 49 Wkly. Rep. 365.

48. The lessor, after execution, repudiated the lease and gave notice thereof to the lessee—Freschi v. Molony, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 516.

mortgage debt by a deed for part of the property.[49] A lease by attorneys in fact, reciting that it was made by them "as attorneys in fact of widow and heirs of" decedent and the owners of the premises is a compliance with a power authorizing a lease in the name of "the estate of" the decedent, and the principals may recover rent thereon as against a surety on default of the lessee.[50]

D. Ratification by principal.[51]—An authorized act of an agent, or his tort,[52] may be ratified so as to bind the principal.[53] A principal who undertakes a contract made by his agent without authority[54] or who acts in accordance with the contract,[55] thereby ratifies it though not formal,[56] and though third persons did not know that the agent was acting for another.[57] Acquiescence in acts of an agent within the apparent scope of his authority,[58] or failure to object to acts of an agent after full knowledge,[59] or receipt and retention by principal of the benefits of an agent's unauthorized acts[60] or fraud,[61] unless qualified by a statement of the principal that he does not intend to become responsible,[62] amount to a ratification of the agent's acts, but retention of the benefits by another than the principal will not bind him,[63] nor receipt of benefits of a contract from his duly accredited agent, part of which has resulted from fraud or unauthorized acts of a third person who assumed to be his agent,[64] nor receipt of benefits from an entire transaction, part of which was fraudulent, without knowledge that any of the benefits were fruits of the fraud.[65]

The benefits must result from the transaction tainted with the agent's fraud or unauthorized acts,[66] and the principal must have knowledge of the unauthorized or fraudulent acts,[67] or the terms of contracts made by him;[68] then if he fails to

49. The agent testified further that the deed was to convey the whole property, and that the mortgagor had refused to give any deed whereupon the settlement was not made—Corbet v. Waller, 27 Wash. 242, 67 Pac. 567.

50. Rand v. Moulton, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 236.

51. Sufficiency of evidence of ratification—Hunter v. Cobe, 84 Minn. 187.

52. A bank may ratify a loan secured by its president for an unlawful purpose—Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

53. Brown v. Webster City, 115 Iowa, 511.

54. Nashville C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Smith, 132 Ala. 434; Southern Ry. Co. v. Marshall, 23 Ky. Law R. 813; President, etc., Great Western Turnpike Co. v. Shafer, 57 App. Div. (N. Y.) 331; affirmed, 65 N. E. 1121; W. F. Taylor Co. v. Baines Grocery Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 260; Jacobs v. German Workingmen's Ass'n (Mass.) 66 N. E. 605.

55. Furnishing goods for two years under the agent's contract is sufficient—Vosburg v. Mallory, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 247.

56. Taylor Gas Producer Co. v. Wood, 119 Fed. 966.

57. Hayward v. Langmaid, 181 Mass. 426.

58. Corporation as bound by president's acts—Bennett v. Millville Imp. Co., 67 N. J. Law, 320.

59. Employment of surgeon by corporate agent to attend injured employe—Lithgow Mfg. Co. v. Samuel, 24 Ky. Law R. 1590.

60. Russell v. Peavy, 131 Ala. 563; Plano Mfg. Co. v. Nordstrom (Neb.) 88 N. W. 164; Lyle v. Addicks, 62 N. J. Eq. 123; Bennett v. Millville Imp. Co., 67 N. J. Law, 320; attorney acting as agent in mortgage transaction—Murray v. Sweasy, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 45; payment to agent unauthorized to receive it—Payne v. Hackney, 84 Minn. 195; receipt of payments on unauthorized sale and warranty by machine agent—Blaess v. Nichols & Shepard Co., 115 Iowa, 373. An insurance company ratified improper delivery of a policy by its agent by retaining premium and failing to repudiate his acts—Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 695; contract by corporate officers—Washington Ins. Co. v. Krutz (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 279; Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago, K. & S. R. Co., 9 Detroit Leg. N. 627, 93 N. W. 882; agent selling warehouse receipts for notes instead of cash as instructed—Sloan v. Johnson, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 643; unauthorized employment of subagents—Bellinger v. Collins (Iowa) 90 N. W. 609.

61. Fraudulent purchase of lands—Stephens v. Ozbourne, 107 Tenn. 572; Meyerhoff v. Daniels, 173 Pa. 555.

62. Sale of lands by broker—Clark v. Bird, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 284.

63. That lumber was used by a contractor in repairing a building is not evidence of ratification by the owner of the contractor's representations as to the contractor's authority to purchase lumber for the owner—Parker v. Brown, 131 N. C. 264.

64. Tecumseh Nat. Bank v. Chamberlain Bank. House (Neb.) 88 N. W. 186.

65. Forged indorsements by attorney in fact dealing with principal's commercial paper—Fay v. Slaughter, 194 Ill. 157.

66. Purchasing agent of store—Schallay v. Moffit-West Drug Co. (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 182.

67. Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 301; employment of a coal digger by a boss without knowledge or necessary approval of the mine owner or superintendent—Patterson v. Neal (Ala.) 33 So. 39.

disavow the agent's acts within a reasonable time and third persons are induced to rely upon the validity of contracts made he has ratified them,[69] so as to bind any one claiming under him, even though the acts are clearly without the agent's authority,[70] and even though third persons dealing with the agent may have had some knowledge of his disapproval.[71] Mere failure to disavow the act of a volunteer agent is not a ratification.[72]

There can be no ratification of a contract made by the agent on his own behalf with a concealed intention to give the benefits to another,[73] nor will one dealing with another, whom he thought to be an agent representing third persons, be held to ratify a fraud of such agent though he made no inquiries as to his authority.[74]

The ratification cannot be partial; the principal must adopt or reject the agent's acts in toto.[75] Ratification of an agent's acts relates back to time of their execution unless rights of third parties intervene,[76] and binds the principal as though the agency had been made in the first instance,[77] and cannot be retracted where made with full knowledge of the facts,[78] though it may be prevented by a tender back of the consideration by the agent before consummation of the contract or damage to the other party.[79]

By bringing action against his agent for exceeding his instructions, the principal ratifies his acts as to the third person but not the agent's wrongful act.[80] An agent's collection of a bill due the principal by application on a debt of the principal is not ratified by an attempt by the principal to recover from the agent.[81] That a principal made no objection when a claim was presented by a third person is strong evidence of his ratification of the obligation made by his agent.[82] An admission that part of the results of an agent's unauthorized acts were received to balance part of the agent's embezzlement amounts to a partial ratification.[83] Deeds taken by an agent in name of another without the principal's consent are not ratified by his retention of the deeds and abstracts of title made.[84]

The third person must prove ratification by the principal,[85] by showing knowledge of the principal and appropriation by him of the benefits.[86] The reason-

Ratification by a corporation of a mortgage executed by its agent must be with knowledge of the mortgage—First Nat. Bank v. Kirkby (Fla.) 32 So. 881; loan by agent without authority—Dean v. Hipp (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 804; Topliff v. Shadwell, 64 Kan. 884, 67 Pac. 545; Brown v. City of Webster City, 115 Iowa, 511.

68. Direction to an agent to forward a deed for signing is not ratification of his sale of lands where the principal did not know the terms of the sale—Johnson v. Fecht, 94 Mo. App. 605.

69. Lyle v. Addicks, 62 N. J. Eq. 123. The failure of the principal to repudiate the act of the assumed agent after full information from the agent and from the other party to the contract amounted to a ratification—Robbins v. Blanding (Minn.) 91 N. W. 844; Carlisle & Finch Co. v. Iron City Sand Co., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 378.

70. Failure of principal to disavow agent's sale of property for eight years will prevent avoidance of a sale by execution creditor of principal—Knauer v. McKoon, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 539.

71. Purchase of goods by son acting as general manager of father's store—Roundy v. Erspamer, 112 Wis. 181.

72. Robbins v. Blanding (Minn.) 91 N. W. 844.

73. Keighley v. Durant (Eng.) 70 Law J. K. B. 662, (1901) App. Cas. 240, 84 Law T. (N. S.) 777.

74. Ballard v. Nye (Cal.) 69 Pac. 481.

75. Adams Exp. Co. v. Carnahan (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 647; Hall v. Hopper (Neb.) 90 N. W. 549; Hinman v. F. C. Austin Mfg. Co. (Neb.) 90 N. W. 934; corporation as principal—Fremont Carriage Mfg. Co. v. Thomsen (Neb.) 91 N. W. 376.

76. Execution of deed under power of attorney—Graham v. Williams, 114 Ga. 716.

77. Hunter v. Cobe, 84 Minn. 187. The rule applies to a municipal corporation as principal—Wilt v. Town of Redkey (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 228.

78. Hunter v. Cobe, 84 Minn. 187.

79. Retention of purchase notes of land wrongfully sold by agent is not ratification where the agent tenders back the money and no deed is executed—Bromley v. Aday, 70 Ark. 351.

80. Schanz v. Martin, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 492.

81. Holland Coffee Co. v. Johnson, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 187.

82. Fischer v. Jordan, 54 App. Div. (N. Y.) 621; affirmed, 169 N. Y. 615.

83. Fay v. Slaughter, 194 Ill. 157.

84. Cole v. Baker (S. D.) 91 N. W. 324.

85. Dean v. Hipp (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 804.

86. Ratification of unauthorized purchases must be shown by knowledge of principal and mingling of the purchased goods with able time within which a principal must ratify or reject his agent's acts after notice is a question for the jury from the circumstances.[87]

E. Undisclosed agency.—An undisclosed principal is bound by acts of his agent,[88] unless there are facts putting one dealing with the agent on inquiry,[89] or it does not appear that such persons are damaged by disavowal of the agent's acts[90] and such an agent may bind the principal by sale of his property under ostensible ownership.[91] An undisclosed principal who has allowed his agent to conduct business in his own name "as agent" cannot disavow the agent's acts.[92]

That a contract was made by an undisclosed agent will not prevent enforcement by the principal,[93] and that a third person contracted with an undisclosed agent, will not prevent his liability to the principal for failure to exercise ordinary care in performance of the contract.[94] One dealing with an undisclosed agent may treat him as a principal and a payment to the agent will discharge the third person.[95] A surety who executes a bond for an agent while unaware of his undisclosed principal is not precluded from his action against the principal after payment of the bond by the fact that the agent executed the bond as principal.[96]

Execution of a written contract by one "as agent is a sufficient disclosure of the agency as to the other party.[97] That a wife knew a building was being constructed on her lots, and once saw her husband order lumber for buildings on his own lots, does not show her to be his undisclosed principal.[98]

The commencing of a suit against a principal and his undisclosed agent is not an election to hold the principal and not the agent,[99] and where one dealt with an undisclosed agent he need not elect which he will hold liable until the case is closed.[1]

F. Notice to agent.[2]—The agent is presumed to have informed the principal of contracts he has made.[3] Notice affecting matters within the agency are binding on the principal,[4] unless third persons had knowledge of limitations on the his goods beyond separation—Thrall v. Wilson, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 376.

87. Jones v. Consolidated Portrait & Frame Co., 100 Ill. App. 89.

88. Payment of mortgage to agent—Cheshire Provident Inst. v. Gibson (Neb.) 89 N. W. 243.

89. Effect of agent's signature as manager of a company—Mull v. Ingalls, 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 80. A statement on the face of bills that they were payable only to the principal sufficiently discloses the agency to bind third persons—Henderson, Hull & Co. v. McNally, 48 App. Div. (N. Y.) 134; affirmed, 168 N. Y. 646.

90. A son, handling his mother's funds, cannot bind the latter by dealings beyond her authority and for his own benefit—Larbig v. Peck, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 170.

91. Sale of bank stock always in possession of agent—Garvin v. Pettee, 15 S. D. 266.

92. Purchase of goods by agent and confession of judgment for price—Fees v. Shadel, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 193.

93. Loan made by undisclosed agent enforceable against borrower—Kitchen v. Holmes (Or.) 70 Pac. 830.

94. Abstracter examining title under employment by the owner's agent—Young v. Lohr (Iowa) 92 N. W. 684; negligence of carrier as to goods shipped by agent—Southern R. Co. v. Jones, 132 Ala. 437.

95. Shine v. Kennealy, 102 Ill. App. 473.

96. City Trust, Safe Deposit & Surety Co. v. American Brew. Co., 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 511.

97. If the third person made no inquiry as to the principal, he cannot be heard to deny disclosure. Insurance policy given to agent—Marine Ins. Co. v. Walsh-Upstill Coal Co., 13-23 O. C. C. 191.

98. Snyder v. Sloane, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 543.

99. Tew v. Wolfsohn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 454.

1. Tew v. Wolfsohn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 454.

2. Notice may extend to knowledge of the disposition of a vicious animal—O'Neill v. Blase, 94 Mo. App. 648. An agent's knowledge of insanity of a purchaser of the principal's goods, imputable to the principal, may be shown by notice to the agent by the purchaser's son acting for him—Kelly v. Burke. 132 Ala. 235.

3. Leszynsky v. Ross, 35 Misc. (N. Y.) 652.

4. Notice to corporate president in charge of business of defects in machinery—Houston Biscuit Co. v. Dial (Ala.) 33 So. 268; Schollay v. Moffit-West Drug Co. (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 182; notice that the person with whom dealings are had is an agent—Mull v. Ingalls, 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 80; maker of note as agent of holder for sale of collateral security—People's Sav. Bank v. Smith, 114 Ga. 185. A different understanding of trade terms as between principal and agent in different parts of the country will not prevent the agent's authority;[5] but it must be obtained in the course of the business of the agency,[6] and does not apply to matters beyond the agency or as to which the agent acts for himself,[7] or must be known to the agent at time of his dealings though he may have acquired it previously,[8] and must concern matters with which the agent has power to deal, or about which he is under duty to inform the principal,[9] and not arise from the peculiar knowledge of the agent.[10]

The rule that an agent is presumed to communicate such facts to his principal as his duty requires, does not apply where the agent acts also for himself and his interest or conduct would preclude such disclosure,[11] or when the knowledge is gained while in conspiracy with a third person to defraud the principal.[12] Notice actually communicated to a principal will bind him, though not within the scope of the agent's authority.[13]

Knowledge of fraud and collusion in transfer of lands by an attorney in fact is notice to his grantee who is also his principal.[14] Third persons are justified in giving an agent notice of rescission of a contract with his principal where the latter gives them good reason to believe that the agent has full charge of the transaction.[15] Notice to a general agent is notice to his principal,[16] but a servant is not an agent of his master to receive notice.[17]

The rule of notice applies to a corporation,[18] and to the state.[19]

Acceptance of the results of an agency by the principal shows notice of the nature of the contract made by the agent.[20]

agent's acts from binding the principal where he follows the meaning of the terms accepted at the place of dealing—Moulton v. O'Bryan, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 593; agent's knowledge of insufficient payment of principal's taxes—Nutting v. Lynn, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 59; notice to an agent, with "full authority" to purchase stock, of a lien on the stock as shown by knowledge of pleadings in a suit in which the lien was asserted, imputed to principal—Schwind v. Boyce, 94 Md. 510; Vercruysse v. Williams (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 206; knowledge by agent of a creditor that a debtor is insolvent at time of execution of a mortgage in behalf of the principal—Babbitt v. Kelly (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 384.

5. Purchase of prohibited goods by agent in charge of store—Schollay v. Moffit-West Drug Co. (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 182.

6. Flanagan v. Shaw, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 508.

7. People's Bank of Talbotton v. Exchange Bank of Macon (Ga.) 43 S. E. 269; Lane v. De Bode (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 437; Cooper v. Ford (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 487; notice of cancellation of contract—Indiana Bicycle Co. v. Tuttle (Conn.) 51 Atl. 538. Notice to agent for sale of lands, under deed of trust for purchase price, of an intention of purchaser to cut timber therefrom is not notice to the beneficiary under the trust deed—Girard Life Ins. A. & T. Co. v. Mangold, 94 Mo. App. 125. A wife is not charged with knowledge of fraud in execution sale of husband's property because she was represented therein by her husband and another where the fraud was not connected with the matter in which they represented her—Mencke v. Rosenberg, 202 Pa. 131; attorney employed to examine title to lands—Weil v. Reiss, 167 Mo. 125.

8. Schwind v. Boyce, 94 Md. 510; Deering v. Holcomb, 26 Wash. 588, 67 Pac. 240, 561.

9. Corporate agents or officers—Nehawka Bank v. Ingersoll (Neb.) 89 N. W. 618.

10. A widow cannot be charged with knowledge of regulations in a lodge constitution prohibiting removal of dead from its cemetery because her son-in-law who arranged for the burial of her husband was a member of the lodge—In re Bauer, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 212.

11. Bank v. Thompson (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 798. A depositor in a bank is not charged with knowledge of his bookkeeper's fraud in abstracting and destroying checks, though received in the general course of his employment, and the depositor was not precluded from recovering from the bank sums paids on forgeries because of failure to ascertain and notify the bank after prior forgeries—Kenneth Inv. Co. v. Nat. Bank (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 173.

12. Cooper v. Ford (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 487.

13. Hicks v. Southern R. Co., 63 S. C. 559.

14. Fraudulent transfer of ward's land by guardian in collusion with others—La Dow v. North American T. Co. (Or.) 113 Fed. 13.

15. Sale of machine by agent and rescission by buyer for defects—Weeks v. Robert A. Johnston Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 794.

16. Notice to general manager—Citizens' T. & S. Co. v. Zane (Pa.) 113 Fed. 596.

17. Rogers v. Dutton (Mass.) 65 N. E. 56.

18. Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. v. H. W. Johns Mfg. Co., 101 Ill. App. 349; Waters v. West Chicago St. R. Co., 101 Ill. App. 265; Magowan v. Groneweg (S. D.) 91 N. W. 335.

19. Notice to state land commissioners of a prior lien on lands bought by them (People v. Woodruff, 75 App. Div. [N. Y.] 90; but the state is not liable for torts (Billings v. State [Wash.] 67 Pac. 583); and State v. Chilton, 49 W. Va. 453 holds that an officer's knowledge is not imputable.

20. Acceptance and foreclosure of a mort-

G. Remedies of third persons against principal.—The agent and his undisclosed principal may be joined in a suit on the agent's contract,[21] or third persons may sue the principal alone,[22] unless they first attempted to sue the agent the relation having been disclosed.[23]

Pleading and procedure.[24]—Ratification need not be pleaded to be proved.[25] When a third person deals knowingly with an agent beyond the scope of his authority, the burden is upon such third person to show what benefits the principal received because of the agent's unauthorized acts and his conversion thereof to his own use.[26] Proof of agency is necessary to admit proof of the agent's contract,[27] or his declarations,[28] as binding on the principal. A wife sued for materials sold may examine her husband as to his agency to purchase the materials for her.[29]

The power of one to bind another as his agent,[30] and whether particular acts of the agent are within the scope of his authority,[31] are questions for the jury.

H. Remedies of principal against third persons.—A principal cannot recover from third persons for fraud on the agent and deny liability to the agent for loss therein.[32] Either an undisclosed principal or his agent may sue on a parol contract made by the agent in his own name.[33] The principal may sue in his own name on a note without indorsement by the agent though the note was payable to the agent as trustee.[34]

§ 3. Rights and liabilities of agent to third persons.[35]—The agent cannot limit his liability to third persons by a recital in the contract that he is a general agent,[36] and where he makes contracts in his own name concerning the subject of his agency, he obligates himself though the other party has notice of the agency.[37] An agent is not liable for injuries resulting to third persons by his principal's breach of duty outside the agency,[38] but it is otherwise if the acts or omissions come within his agency.[39] A third person cannot recover damages from an agent because of misrepresentations in regard to a contract made for his principal, un-gage by the principal shows notice that it was given on a wife's property to secure her husband's debt—Russell v. Peavy, 131 Ala. 563.

21. Tew v. Wolfsohn, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 54.

22. Ware v. Long, 24 Ky. Law R. 696.

23. Purchase of property by alleged agent at foreclosure sale—Ranger v. Thalmann, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 5. But election is only required at close of case—Tew v. Wolfsohn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 454.

24. Allegations of authority held sufficient—Samson v. Beale, 27 Wash. 557, 68 Pac. 180; H. B. Smith Co. v. Williams (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 318. Where, in a suit to recover rendered at request of defendant's agent, plaintiff is unable to distinguish which of two agents gave the authority, he may prove statements of either if he shows agency of both—Harris v. Fitzgerald (Conn.) 52 Atl. 315; sufficiency of evidence of authority of agent—Johnson v. Fecht, 94 Mo. App. 605.

25. Kirkpatrick v. Tarlton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 179.

26. Sales agent—Thrall v. Wilson, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 376.

27. Brigger v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 149.

28. American Copper, Brass & Iron Wks. v. Galland-Burke Brew. & Malt. Co. (Wash.) 70 Pac. 236.

29. Snyder v. Sloane, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 543.

30. American Copper, Brass & Iron Wks. v. Galland-Burke Brew. & Malt. Co. (Wash.) 70 Pac. 236; Dickinson v. Salmon, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 169.

31. Tyson v. Joseph H. Bauland Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 310; Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427. On the question of the principal's liability that the agent signed as manager of a company may be considered by the jury—Mull v. Ingalls, 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 80.

32. U. S. Mortg. & T. Co. v. Crutcher, 169 Mo. 444.

33. Coulter v. Blatchley, 51 W. Va. 163.

34. Fla. Rev. St., § 981—Little v. Bradley (Fla.) 31 So. 342.

35. Liability of agent for malicious prosecution on behalf of principal—Porter v. Mack, 50 W. Va. 581.

36. Macdonald v. Bond, 96 Ill. App. 116; see supreme opinion affirming judgment, 195 Ill. 122.

37. Dockarty v. Tillotson (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1050; Macdonald v. Bond, 96 Ill. App. 116; see supreme opinion affirming judgment, 195 Ill. 122.

38. Agent to lease property is not liable for negligence to make repairs—Drake v. Hagan, 108 Tenn. 265.

39. A rental agent in absolute control of a building is liable for injuries resulting from negligence in failing to repair—Lough v. John Davis & Co. (Wash.) 70 Pac. 491.

less the misrepresentation relates to his authority to bind the principal and was relied upon.[40] A child cannot be made personally liable for purchases as agent for its parent though the latter has fraudulently disposed of her property.[41] A joint tort-feasor sued cannot escape liability because he acted as agent.[42]

Where agency is undisclosed an agent is responsible for his acts to third persons,[43] and if he exceeds his authority his personal liability is unquestioned.[44]

Remedies and procedure.—A third person who pursues his claim against an undisclosed principal does not thereby elect to hold the principal liable so that he cannot have a remedy against the agent who contracted in his own name for any balance due after enforcement against the principal.[45] The agent may sue in his own name in property held by him as agent,[46] and where he sues on a parol contract in his own name the undisclosed principal need not be joined.[47] Defenses good against the principal are effective against an undisclosed agent suing in his own name.[48]

§ 4. Mutual rights, duties and liabilities. A. In general; contract of employment; diligence and good faith; respondeat ouster.—An agent cannot delegate his authority without special directions,[49] especially if he has been employed because of his particular fitness for the business of the principal,[50] but he may employ mere clerks;[51] and, if he is without experience and left to his own devices, the principal cannot complain of a sale of property by a subagent and recover it from a third person.[52]

The agent is not responsible for losses to his principal if he keeps within his instructions,[53] and takes all precautions usually employed by the principal for protection of his property.[54] But when he violates his instructions the principal may ignore his acts and hold him liable,[55] though he acts without compensation;[56] and, if by exceeding his powers the agent renders himself liable, he cannot recover over against the principal,[57] but ratification of his unauthorized acts and acceptance of the benefits flowing from the agency will prevent recovery from him by the principal unless the agent has been guilty of fraud.[58]

40. Halbot v. Lens, 70 Law J. Ch. Div. 125, (1901) 1 Ch. Div. 344, 83 Law T. (N. S.) 702, 49 Wkly. Rep. 214.

41. Emery-Bird-Thayer Dry Goods Co. v. Coomer, 87 Mo. App. 404.

42. Diamond v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 141; extortion of money by agent which was paid to principal—Bocchino v. Cook, 67 N. J. Law, 467.

43. Fritz v. Kennedy (Iowa) 93 N. W. 603; Jackson v. McNatt, Id. 425; liability for overpayments on a loan made by agent to third person—Thompson v. People's Bldg., L. & Inv. Co., 114 Iowa, 481. Signing as "general agent" without disclosing principal will not relieve agent—Macdonald v. Bond, 195 Ill. 122.

44. Submission to arbitration without disclosing agency; effect of undisclosed agent's exceeding authority—Macdonald v. Bond, 96 Ill. App. 116.

45. The election to sue the undisclosed principal first was merely an endeavor to be subrogated to the rights of the agent against the principal—Hoffman v. Anderson (Ky. App.) 67 S. W. 49; Tew v. Wolfsohn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 454.

46. An agent may sue on an insurance policy covering property referred to as belonging to him as agent—Marine Ins. Co. v. Walsh-Upstill Coal Co., 13-23 O. C. C. 191; Ohio Rev. St., § 4995.

47. Coulter v. Blatchley, 51 W. Va. 163; Ash v. Beck (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53.

48. Holden v. Rutland R. Co., 73 Vt. 317.

49. Lucas v. Rader (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 488; Floyd v. Mackey, 23 Ky. Law R. 2030. See, also, supra, § 2-A.

50. Bromley v. Aday, 70 Ark. 351.

51. Rohrbough v. U. S. Exp. Co., 50 W. Va. 148.

52. A daughter as agent for father in care of property for benefit of his children may secure the assistance of another in its disposal—Delawder v. Jones, 99 Ill. App. 301.

53. Losses on loans by agent because of failure to require sureties—Watson v. Roth, 191 Ill. 382.

54. Burglary of money collected by agent and placed in principal's office safe for the night—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Buffington, 131 Ala. 620.

55. Agent collecting money of his principal without authority is liable for conversion—Schanz v. Martin, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 492; failure of loan agent to take security as directed—Marshall v. Ferguson, 94 Mo. App. 175.

56. Marshall v. Ferguson, 94 Mo. App. 175.

57. Excess of authority in warranting machines sold—J. I. Case Thresh. Co. v. Gardner (Ky. App.) 67 S. W. 367.

58. Lunn v. Guthrie, 115 Iowa, 501.

He is allowed a reasonable time in which to perform his duties unless his contract provides a time limit,[59] and is not liable for negligence unless in some duty he owes to the principal,[60] as, a failure to inform his principal fully as to contracts made so that the latter may protect his rights,[61] and not then, unless the damages to the principal are the natural and reasonable result of the negligence.[62]

He can acquire no advantage in the business of his agency to the detriment of his principal.[63] Knowledge by an agent of fraud of a third person while dealing with him to the principal's injury shows a conspiracy between the agent and such third person.[64] An agent employed to collect a debt by attachment, who induced his principal to remain away from the sale and purchased the property at a small price, is guilty of fraud.[65] An indorser of a note secured by mortgage, who acted as agent in exchange of lands for one who assumed the mortgage therein, was guilty of fraud in not informing his principal of the indorsement, and his liability was not discharged by payment of the note with funds of the principal in his hands.[66]

A contract placing lands "in" another's "hands to be sold," is one of agency and does not entitle the agent to possession.[67] A general agent to collect several interests in an estate may indorse checks and collect them for the principal.[68] One employed merely to receive and care for goods of another and report on sales made from a branch office is not such an agent as is bound impliedly to pay the expenses of the business done him.[69] A principal is not liable for expenses incurred by the agent in his business where the contract of agency requires the agent to pay such expenses.[70] Where a seller of goods reserves the right to have goods returned and to revoke a contract of agency, his agent cannot recover damages for his refusal to make delivery.[71] An agent agreeing to render his best services in selling goods for the principal commits no breach of his contract by selling, at the same time, another brand of goods of the same general character, manufactured by himself.[72] One who invested money in good faith for himself and his father in a business subsequently found to be fraudulent does not bind himself on claims because of his father's interest by paying the accounts of the business to prevent threatened criminal prosecutions unless such payments were made because of profits received by his father.[73] A mortgage given by an agent to secure his principal for losses resulting from acts in excess of the agent's authority is prior to an execution against the agent obtained in an action commenced just prior to execution of the mortgage and of which the agent had no notice.[74]

A subagent who has no privity with the principals cannot repudiate the acts

59. Sale by factor—Prokop v. Gourlay (Neb.) 91 N. W. 290.

60. Crane Co. v. Columbus State Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 532; diligence of loan agent—Haines v. Christie, 28 Colo. 502.

61. Western Union Cold Storage Co. v. Winona Produce Co., 197 Ill. 457.

62. Liability for failure to deliver to principal order for sale of goods on time, canceled by the purchaser before delivery to the principal—Hurley v. Packard (Mass.) 65 N. E. 64.

63. Bonton v. Cameron, 99 Ill. App. 600.

64. Fraudulent execution of deed by homestead owner to procure notes which were sold to agent—Cooper v. Ford (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 487.

65. Quinn v. Le Duc (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 199.

66. Beatty v. Bulger (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 893.

67. Raeder v. Butler, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 604.

68. Attorney employed by several heirs and legatees to collect their interests in an estate—Macdonald v. Cool, 134 Cal. 502.

69. Especially where it appears the parties had so construed the contract by remittances of bills and payment of them by the company—Sherman v. Consolidated Dental Mfg. Co., 202 Pa. 446.

70. Liability for office rent and expenses of insurance agent—Artz v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 90 Mo. App. 539.

71. Parry Mfg. Co. v. Lyon, 23 Ky. Law R. 844.

72. Hirschhorn v. Bradley (Iowa) 90 N. W. 592.

73. Ward v. Work, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 84.

74. Spalding v. Heideman, 96 Ill. App. 405.

of the agent within the scope of his general authority,[75] and if appointed under proper authority, is not liable as tort-feasor for conversion by the agent.[76]

B. Accounting, settlement and reimbursement.—The right of principal and agent to an accounting is reciprocal,[77] and limitations will not run against an accounting by an agent until demand by the principal and refusal by the agent.[78] A principal who has placed money in the hands of his agent, under a power of attorney, to expend it for him, is entitled to an accounting.[79] An agent cannot deny his liability to an accounting on the ground that the principal had no authority to engage in the transaction which yielded the money in the agent's hands.[80] A lien on the trust fund is not necessary to a suit for accounting in favor of an agent acting in a fiduciary capacity.[81]

In absence of an express agreement proceeds of transactions in the agent's hands belong to the principal subject only to the agent's lien for commissions and advances.[82] The agent must pay interest on money received by him to loan, of receipt of which he gave no notice to his principal,[83] but if he uses his private means to protect his principal's property he may be subrogated to the latter's rights.[84] If he guarantees notes taken by him in exchange for goods, he is not relieved from payment of a worthless note because it was declared good by an officer of the principal on settlement,[85] and the agent will be liable for notes found worthless after his settlement with the principal.[86] The agent cannot charge more for expenses of the business than he actually paid out.[87] A principal cannot avoid liability to his agent for advances in good faith on his request, because of his secret intention not to perform the contract on which the advances were made in accordance with its terms.[88] Negligence of the agent causing unnecessary advancements and expenditures will prevent his reimbursement therefor.[89] Where a tenant remains in possession after the term to care for the premises and collect rents to be applied on a debt due him from the landlord, he should be reimbursed for reasonable expenses.[90] An undisclosed agent dealing in good faith in a fraudulent business with the principal's funds cannot recover from the principal's estate for accounts settled to prevent criminal prosecutions against himself personally on the ground that he was liable to return to the third persons funds received as profits in the business when he discovered the fraud.[91] An agent entrusted with money for an unlawful purpose must account for any surplus remaining after the illegal object is accomplished.[92]

75. After an attorney acting as agent to collect several shares of an estate has properly indorsed checks for their payment, a bank acting as subagent cannot repudiate payment so as to bind the collecting bank to the principals—Macdonald v. Cool, 134 Cal. 502.

76. Ledwith v. Merritt, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 64.

77. An agent acting in a fiduciary capacity can have an accounting in regard to the trust fund—Underhill v. Jordan, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 71.

78. Cole v. Baker (S. D.) 91 N. W. 324.

79. Power of attorney executed by alleged insane woman giving custody of her money to superintendent of the poor—Duff v. Blair, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 364.

80. Agency for sale of municipal bonds, illegal under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 4202a, because sold below par—Wilt v. Town of Redkey (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 228.

81. Underhill v. Jordan, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 71.

82. Britton v. Ferrin, 171 N. Y. 235. An agent must account for all profits made in his principal's business—Erskine v. Sachs (Eng.) 70 Law J. K. B. 978, (1901) 2 K. B. Div. 504, 85 Law T. (N. S.) 385.

83. Thorpe v. Thorpe's Estate (Vt.) 52 Atl. 1051.

84. Chandler v. Green, 101 Ill. App. 409.

85. Wilson v. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co., 96 Ill. App. 545.

86. Wilson v. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co., 96 Ill. App. 545.

87. Real estate agent—Carruthers v. Diefendorf, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 31.

88. Parker v. Moore (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 799.

89. Veltum v. Koehler, 85 Minn. 125.

90. Allen v. Gates, 73 Vt. 222.

91. Ward v. Work, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 84.

92. Hardy v. Jones, 63 Kan. 8, 64 Pac. 969.

Accounting in illegal transactions (Note).

An agent is not discharged from accounting because of a past unlawful act or intention of the principal collateral to the subject matter

C. Compensation and lien of agent.—After an agent has fixed the value of his services and it has been accepted by the principal, the agent cannot recover additional compensation.[93] Violation of instructions,[94] or fraud,[95] or acting for the other party to a contract without knowledge of his principal,[96] or assuming other and inconsistent employment[97] will destroy his right to compensation, but a principal whose agent agreed not to work for other principals in the same business, cannot defeat his right to commissions by a breach of the contract which he knew and did not act upon.[98] Substantial performance of contract by agent for sale of machinery in local terrritory gives him the right to commissions on sales by principal within such territory.[99] The right of an agent to compensation for settling a dispute concerning a sale of lumber does not depend upon a failure of the lumber to fulfill the requirements.[1]

Where the duties of an agent terminate with the relation, he cannot retain commissions on the funds of his principal to accrue in the future.[2] Where the agency is terminated by the principal for good cause,[3] or where a contract of agency without terms as to time is terminated by the principal on reasonable notice,[4] the agent is not entitled to commissions on business done subsequently. Resignation by the agent cuts off his right to commissions on business done where his contract allows such commissions only during continuation of the agency,[5] and the agent is not entitled to compensation because he is personally liable on contracts made for the principal.[6]

An agent employed for a certain sum and commission from net profits to manage the principal's business, may recover the salaries paid to his necessary assistants from his principal,[7] and losses from sales made by him cannot be deducted from his fixed salary but only from his percentage of net profits.[8] No of the agency. Hammon, Cont., § 253, citing Ingersoll v. Campbell, 46 Ala. 282; Woodworth v. Bennett, 43 N. Y. 273. Thus, if he sells the principal's goods in an unlawful traffic, and collects the price, the principal may recover it from him. Ibid., citing Planters' Bank v. Union Bank, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 483, 21 Law. Ed. 473; O'Bryan v. Fitzgerald, 48 Ark. 487; Hertzler v. Geigley, 196 Pa. 419. And in some states, not in all, if an attorney collects a fund pursuant to a champertous agreement, the client may recover it. Ibid., citing cases. Some courts hold that the agent must account for the fund, even though he directly participated in the illegal purpose of the principal. Hardy v. Jones, supra. Contra: Samuels v. Oliver, 130 Ill. 73. If the illegal object of the principal has not been accomplished, his right to recover back the fund from the agent is unquestionable. Hammon, Cont., § 258, citing Taylor v. Lendey (Eng.) 9 East, 49; Sampson v. Shaw, 101 Mass. 145. Thus he may recover money placed in the hands of a stakeholder on a wager. Ibid., citing Corson v. Neatherny, 9 Colo. 212; House v. McKenney, 46 Me. 94. And in most states this is so even though the wager was determined before demand made. Ibid., citing Adkins v. Flemming, 29 Iowa, 122; Willis v. Hoover, 9 Or. 418. Contra: Johnston v. Russell, 37 Cal. 670. If the principal waits until the money has been expended by the agent, however, he cannot recover it back. Hammon, Cont., § 257, citing White v. Barber, 123 U. S. 392, 31 Law. Ed. 243. A full discussion and citation of cases on these points will be found in Hammon, Cont., § 253.

93. Real estate agent—Carruthers v. Diefendorf, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 31.

94. Sale of land by agent—Huffman v. Ellis (Neb.) 90 N. W. 552; Howell v. Denton (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1002.

95. Fraudulent purchase at judicial sale in derogation of principal's interests—Quinn v. Le Duc (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 199.

96. Real estate broker—Linderman v. McKenna, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 409.

97. Carr v. Ubsdell (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 112.

98. Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 78.

99. Keene v. Frick Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 582.

1. Williamson v. North Pac. L. Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 387.

2. Real estate agents retaining commission on rents to accrue after termination of the agency—Thomas v. Gwyn, 131 N. C. 460.

3. Loan agent—Urquhart v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 85 Minn. 69.

4. Sales agent—Barrett v. Gilmour (Eng.) Com'l Cas. 72.

5. Insurance agent—King v. Raleigh (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 251.

6. Loan agent who personally guarantees loans to be collected for his principal; in this case the agent notified the principal that he would demand salary until guaranteed loans were settled before he received acceptance of his resignation already sent the principal—Greer v. Featherston (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 48; Id., 69 S. W. 69.

7. A. B. Frank Co. v. Waldrup (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 298.

8. A. B. Frank Co. v. Waldrup (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 298.

commission can be recovered on a quantum meruit for selling lands without written authority.[9] A real estate agent who brings the parties to a sale together is entitled to commission if the sale is made within the price named in his instructions.[10] A sales agent for a commission equal to the difference between list and trade prices is entitled to such commission on credit sales, though collection had not been made.[11] A contract for percentage commissions on cash payments and paid notes for goods entitles the agent to commission on partial payments made before the goods are returned to the principal. Where a principal retains the right to make sales within the territory of his agent and agrees to give him commission on all sales resulting from his efforts, he is entitled to commission on all such sales whether completed by him or by a general agent; and the local agent is not required to submit to a reduction in price by the general agent to complete such sales.[12] A contract of agency, without time limit, giving the agent gross percentage commissions on all business done, and requiring him to bear all expenses, entitles him to the percentage less expenses on all receipts on business done prior to termination of the agency by the principal without cause.[13] Where the contract is for a stipulated salary and expenses not to exceed a certain sum, the principal may offset moneys furnished for expenses against a salary balance until the agent accounts properly for money advanced.[14] An agent who may draw on his principal regardless of the amount of his commissions due, need not show the amount of such commissions in an action to recover an instalment of his drawing account unless the agency has terminated.[15]

A subagent cannot recover compensation from the principal where the latter's contract with the general agent makes the latter alone liable,[16] but his right to recover commissions from a general agent is not affected by a rule of the latter of which the subagent had no knowledge.[17]

The basis of an agent's compensation for services remaining to be done after wrongful breach of the agency by the principal is the average value of services already rendered unless those remaining are shown to be of greater value.[18] A tenant empowered to remain in possesssion after the term to care for the premises and collect rents to be applied on a debt due him from the landlord, is entitled to reasonable compensation.[19]

Where the payment of a trust fund to his principal will remove it from the jurisdiction so that he cannot collect for services and expenses, the agent has an equitable lien on the fund.[20]

D. Remedies and procedure.—Trover will lie against an agent for conversion of money which his contract requires him to turn over in identity.[21]

Pleading.[22]—The agent must show a breach of the contract by specific averments.[23] An agent may show diligence in trying to recover property of his prin-

9. Gen. St. N. J., p. 1604, § 10 (Statute of Frauds)—Goldstein v. Scott, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 78.

10. McCaffrey v. Page, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 400.

11. Sherman v. Consolidated Dental Mfg. Co., 202 Pa. 451.

12. Sales of machinery by local agent—Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 78; 36. Baskerville v. Gaar, Scott & Co., 15 S. D. 211.

13. Loan agent—Urquhart v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 85 Minn. 69.

14. Moyses v. Rosenbaum, 98 Ill. App. 7.

15. Isaacsen v. Andrews, 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 408.

16. Insurance subagency—Union Casualty & Surety Co. v. Gray (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 422.

17. Lane v. Raney, 131 N. C. 375.

18. McLane v. Maurer (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 693.

19. Allen v. Gates, 73 Vt. 222.

20. Underhill v. Jordan, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 71.

21. Salem Traction Co. v. Anson, 41 Or. 562, 67 Pac. 1015, 69 Pac. 675.

22. Sufficiency of pleading in action for commissions to constitute a cause for an action at law—Gee v. Pendas, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 566; in action against agent for recovery for property stolen from agent—Keystone Watch Case Co. v. Romero, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 381.

cipal, stolen while in his possession, under a general allegation of diligence.[24] An admission of a principal that his general agent appointed plaintiff a subagent is not inconsistent with a defense that the agent's powers to appoint were limited and that termination of the general agency terminated the subagency.[25]

Evidence and burden of proof; questions of fact.[26]—Where an agent claims money retained by him as commission, he must establish his right to it as such.[27] A violation of his instructions by an agent must be proved by the principal.[28] An employer has the burden of showing damage in an action against an insurance company for negligence to appeal from a judgment for damages, obtained by an employe against the company, where the insurance company, under its policy, undertook the defense for the employer.[29] An agent who has charge of his principal's property does not assume the burden of proving that losses did not result from negligence of his employes in charge of the property, in an action for compensation, where it appears that before the losses were shown to have occurred the principal took possession of the property.[30] An agent to collect a debt by attachment, who induced his principal to remain away from the sale and purchased himself at a low price, has the burden to prove advancements which he claims to have made to the principal.[31] Insufficient evidence of discharge will not warrant a non-suit in an action to recover an instalment of agreed advances on commissions.[32] Declarations of an agent in course of his employment are admissible against the principal in an action for breach of contract,[33] if a part of the res gestae, or if the agent is dead,[34] but to admit them agency must first be shown.[35] In an action to recover commisssions, conversations between the agent and third persons in absence of the principal are inadmissible.[36] A finding that the agent was employed at a certain commission and that he performed his services, is sufficient to sustain a verdict in his behalf.[37]

In his action for compensation, the good faith of an agent is a question for the jury.[38] Where the evidence is conflicting as to the fact of agency the jury should not be directed to find no agency existing.[39]

AGRICULTURE.[40]

§ 1. The pursuit of agriculture[41] and production and sale of products[42] have been subjects of regulation, as shown in foot notes.[43]

23. An allegation that the principal "did not keep his promise and guaranty," is insufficient—Picker v. Weiss, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 22.

24. Keystone Watch Case Co. v. Romero, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 381.

25. Union Casualty & Surety Co. v. Gray (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 422.

26. Sufficiency of evidence of conversion by agent—Salem Traction Co. v. Anson, 41 Or. 562, 67 Pac. 1015, 69 Pac. 675; Tyler v. Mutual Dist. Messenger Co., 17 App. D. C. 85.

27. Thomas v. Gwyn, 131 N. C. 460.

28. Marshall v. Ferguson, 94 Mo. App. 175.

29. The presumption that the judgment was correct, prima facie shows that the employer had not been damaged. The insurance company, in taking the appeal, had the same responsibility as any other agent—Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Employers' Liability Assur. Corp. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 616.

30. Sufficiency of evidence to show that expenditures made by agent were made necessary by his negligence—Veltum v. Koehler, 85 Minn. 125.

31. Quinn v. Le Duc (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 199.

32. Isaacsen v. Andrews, 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 408.

33. Barnesville Mfg. Co. v. Love (Del.) 52 Atl. 267.

34. Southern R. Co. v. Allison, 115 Ga. 635.

35. Pease v. Trench, 197 Ill. 101.

36. Rutherford v. Simpson (Minn.) 92 N. W. 413.

37. Carr v. Ubsdell (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 112.

38. McCaffrey v. Page, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 400.

39. Agency for purchase of stock in consolidating corporations—Stoll v. Loving (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 885.

40. Agricultural schools, see Colleges and Academies. Agister's liens, see Animals. Drainage or irrigation of farm lands, see

§ 2. Products and crop liens.—Annual crops are sometimes regarded as chattels[44] and sometimes as part of the realty,[45] but the rights as between the lessee and lessor depend on the terms and construction of the contract of lease.[46]

Liens on crops are statutory, and will be created and enforced according to the local statutes.[47] A debt for supplies necessary to raise crops is privileged in Louisiana,[48] and purchasers are presumed to know of its existence.[49]

§ 3. Agricultural societies.—Under a contract giving one the right to conduct a show on state fair grounds, the licensee does not take any interest in the realty where he was to exhibit.[50] One holding an exclusive privilege has a cause of action for an infringement thereof.[51]

A society may recover against an officer for acts done under color of office but without authority.[52]

An agricultural society is in duty bound to use reasonable care in keeping its grounds and approaches thereto safe,[53] and in granting exhibition privileges to, and in the exercise of such privileges by others, it must see that public safety is not jeopardized.[54] In an action for personal injuries, it is not necessary to expressly state facts in the declaration whenever the defendant neglected its duty in failing to take proper care of its grounds.[55]

ALIENS.

§ 1. Who are aliens.[56]—Mexican born persons residing on territory acquired by the United States remained Mexican citizens until taking the declaration required,[57] and a person born in Porto Rico remained a citizen thereof after the treaty of Paris and Act April 12, 1900.[58]

Public Works and Improvements; Waters and Watercourses.

41. Fruit tree inspectors. Utah Rev. St. 1898, § 1176 amended Laws 1899, c. 47, providing for the appointment of county inspectors, violates Const., art. 13, § 5, prohibiting the legislature from imposing taxes for county purposes, etc.—State v. Standford, 24 Utah, 148, 66 Pac. 1061. Fertilizers. A sale thereof is valid where the required tag had been attached but was lost in transitu. Pol. Code, § 1563—Holt v. Navassa Guano Co., 114 Ga. 666.

42. Adulteration. Food. Health. Commerce. Inspection. Warehousing.

43. Criminal prosecutions. Indictment charging a sale of fertilizers in a package "not bearing in print (and the same not being accompanied by) a statement showing its weight" is insufficient. Md. Code, art. 61, § 2, subsec. 2—State v. Long, 94 Md. 637. Purchasing seed cotton at night. Error to instruct on confessions—Smith v. State, 115 Ga. 586.

44. Swafford v. Spratt, 93 Mo. App. 631.

45. Within the homestead exemption laws—Moore v. Graham (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 200. Tiffany Real Property, § 223, p. 521. See, also, Emblements, Estates of Decedents, Wills, Deeds of Conveyance.

46. Landlord and Tenant.

47. A minor who with his father's teams renders services in the cultivation of a crop for the father's creditor, if entitled to his own services may have a lien therefor, but not for the horse's services—Tuckey v. Lovell (Idaho) 71 Pac. 122. A farm laborer in Texas, making affidavit for a lien need not state the particular crops raised—Allen v. Glover (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 379.

48. Weill v. Kent, 107 La. 322.

49. Knowledge need not therefore be pleaded or proved—Weill v. Kent, 107 La. 322.

50. License held violated and license not entitled to recover part consideration paid under the contract—Mackay v. Minnesota State Agr. Soc. (Minn.) 92 N. W. 539.

51. Privilege to vend refreshments—Mason v. Dewis, 24 Ky. Law R. 1312, but being harassed, annoyed and disturbed in mind thereby, is not an element of damage—Mason v. Dewis, 24 Ky. Law R. 1312.

52. Selling and assisting in the removal of buildings without authority makes the officer a trespasser ab initio—Kent Co. Agr. Soc. v. Ide, 128 Mich. 423.

53. A railroad platform without the society's grounds used by the public to reach the grounds is an approach to the grounds—Thornton v. Maine State Agr. Soc., 97 Me. 108.

54. It is liable for the death of one killed by a bullet from a shooting gallery within the grounds, conducted by one having exhibition privileges, which passed through the fence and killed the person standing on a railroad platform without the grounds—Thornton v. Maine St. Agr. Soc., 97 Me. 108. It is liable for injuries sustained by the falling of seats negligently erected by an exhibitor—Texas State Fair v. Marti (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 432; Same v. Brittain (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 713.

55. Obstruction of bicycle race track—Benedict v. Union Agr. Soc., 74 Vt. 91.

56. As to American born Chinese, see U. S. v. Leung Sam, 114 Fed. 702; Same v. Lee Yee, Id.; Same v. Leung Foo, Id.

57. And could not recover for Indian dep-

§ 2. Disabilities and privileges.—The common law disability of aliens to inherit land, has been changed in some states by statute.[59] As against third persons a devise of realty to a non-resident alien,[60] or the location of a mining claim by an alien, is valid,[61] since the question of disability to take and hold realty can only be raised by the state.[62]

A non-resident alien may sue.[63] An alien cannot hold public office, but may render non-official service.[64]

§ 3. Immigration, exclusion and expulsion.—An attempt to import women for purposes of prostitution in not an offense under the immigration laws,[65] nor is a mere advertisement for laborers in a foreign country a violation of the Alien Contract Labor Law.[66] An action for debt is the proper remedy to recover the penalty for importing contract labor,[67] and the declaration must particularly show the character of the assistance rendered and services to be performed.[68]

Exclusion.—It is within the power of congress to vest in executive officers the power to determine the mode of ascertaining citizenship with a view to the exclusion of aliens.[69] The right to exclude an immigrant is not lost by giving him permission to land for temporary purposes.[70] A Chinaman born, and permanently residing, in the United States cannot be excluded, though the parents were aliens.[71]

Right of transit.—The right of Chinese persons to cross the United States in journeys to and from other countries was not dependent on any treaty,[72] and the treaty with China of December 8th, 1894, in effect recognized and agreed to the continuance of the treasury department regulations of the privilege then in force;[73] the treaty of March 17, 1894, was not violated by rule of December 8, 1900, placing the burden on Chinese persons to show "that a bona fide transit only was intended."[74] The decision of the customs officer refusing to grant the privilege is final and not subject to review.[75]

Registration.—Act May 5, 1892, providing for the registration of resident Chinese and imposing on them the burden of establishing the right to remain is valid,[76] and "laborers" as defined in that act and as amended Nov. 3, 1893, and redations committed before making the declaration—De Baco v. U. S., 36 Ct. Cl. 407.

58. In re Gonzalez, 118 Fed. 941.

59. Nebraska Comp. St., c. 73, §§ 70-73, abolished the disability as to land within the corporate limits of a municipality—Dougherty v. Kubat (Neb.) 93 N. W. 317, and under it heirs of a deceased alien may inherit such lands, irrespective of their citizenship. Sess. Laws 1889, c. 58. Glynn v. Glynn, 62 Neb. 872. This statute is not special legislation but is constitutional—Dougherty v. Kubat (Neb.) 93 N. W. 317.

60. Under Laws 1875, c. 38—Smith v. Smith, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 286.

61. McKinley Creek Min. Co. v. Alaska United Min. Co., 183 U. S. 563, 46 Law. Ed. 331.

62. Smith v. Smith, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 286; McKinley Creek Min. Co. v. Alaska United Min. Co., 183 U. S. 563, 46 Law. Ed. 331.

63. A mine owner for damages by reason of failure to comply with Hurd's St. page 1157, c. 93—Kellyville Coal Co. v. Petraytis, 195 Ill. 215; affirming 95 Ill. App. 635. Alienage of party as ground for removal to federal court, see Removal of Causes.

64. Cal. Pol. Code, § 841, but an alien may be appointed by county supervisors to attend indigent sick—People v. Wheeler, 136 Cal. 652, 69 Pac. 435.

65. Merely proposing during the voyage that women brought on promise of employment engage in prostitution is not an offense within Act March 3, 1875, § 3—In re Guayde, 112 Fed. 415.

66. U. S. v. Baltic Mills Co., 117 Fed. 959.

67. 23 U. S. Stat. at Large 332, § 3—U. S. v. McElroy, 115 Fed. 252.

68. Merely negativing the statute is not sufficient—U. S. v. McElroy, 115 Fed. 252.

69. U. S. v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442.

70. And he is bound to show that he is not likely to become a public charge—In re Gayde, 113 Fed. 588.

71. U. S. v. Leung Sam, 114 Fed. 702; Same v. Lee Yee, Id.; Same v. Leung Foo, Id.

72. 25 U. S. Stat. at Large, 478, § 8—In re Lee Gon Yung, 111 Fed. 998.

73. 28 U. S. Stat. at Large, 1211, art 3, par. 2—In re Lee Gon Yung, 111 Fed. 998.

74. 28 U. S. Stat. at Large, 1211—Fok Yung Yo v. U. S., 185 U. S. 296, 46 Law. Ed. 917; Lee Gon Yung v. Same, 185 U. S. 306, 46 Law. Ed. 921.

75. Fok Yung Yo v. U. S., 185 U. S. 296, 46 Law. Ed. 917; Lee Gon Yung v. Same, 185 U. S. 306, 46 Law. Ed. 921; In re Lee Gon Yung, 111 Fed. 998, cannot be reviewed by habeas corpus—Fok Yung Yo v. U. S., 185 U. S. 296, 46 Law. Ed. 917; Lee Gon Yung v. Same, 185 U. S. 306, 46 Law. Ed. 921.

76. Evidence insufficient to show Chinese in the treaty of 1880, may be excluded.[77] A Chinese prostitute is within the definition.[78] These statutes, however, do not apply to a resident Chinese woman who married an American citizen after their passage,[79] nor to a resident who thereafter became a laborer;[80] though if he thereafter disposes of his business, departs from and returns to the United States as a laborer, he may be deported.[81] If registered under the original act, registration under the amendment need not be made.[82]

Certificate.—The customs officer in determining the right of a Chinese person to enter, may disregard the certificate of residence,[83] and his decision cannot be attacked collaterally.[84]

Deportation; procedure.—The treaty with China of December 8, 1894, left in force the previous statutes governing the procedure for deportation of Chinese laborers.[85] A United States commissioner has jurisdiction to determine the right of a Chinese laborer without certificate to remain;[86] and the commissioner first taking has exclusive jurisdiction,[87] which is not lost because the complainant does not positively aver his official character,[88] or because a defense of citizenship is interposed.[89] The persons sought to be deported are only required to produce sufficient credible evidence, as, when fairly considered, will satisfy the judgment of a reasonable man of their right to remain;[90] and the proceedings not being criminal, the failure of the persons sought to be deported, to testify, may be taken into consideration.[91]

The appeal from his decision is to the district judge,[92] and may be taken on oral notice,[93] but the notice alone does not constitute an appeal.[94] The appeal need not be presented within ten days,[95] but whether the right to a review has been lost by delay in bringing on a hearing, is to be determined by the judge.[96] If no objection has been taken to the commissioner's finding the appeal will be considered as though submitted on an agreed statement of facts,[97] and unless against the weight of evidence the findings will not be disturbed.[98] Where the sufficiency of facts on the right of a Chinese person to remain is alone involved, the decision of the judge of the district court on appeal is final.[99]

a native of Hawaiian Islands.—U. S. v. Chun Hoy (C. C. A. Hawaii) 111 Fed. 899.

77. Lee Ah Yin v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 614.

78. Lee Ah Yin v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 614.

79. Tsoi Sim v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 920.

80. In re Chin Ark Wing, 115 Fed. 412.

81. U. S. v. Moy Yim, 115 Fed. 652; Same v. Chung You, Id.; Same v. Dong Wor, Id.; Same v. Fee Toy, Id.; Same v. Moy Shang, Id.; Same v. Leong Hau Che, Id.

82. U. S. v. Jung Jow Tow, 110 Fed. 154.

83. Lee Lung v. Patterson, 186 U. S. 168, 46 Law. Ed. 1108; affirming In re Lee Lung, 102 Fed. 132.

84. In subsequent deportation proceedings—U. S. v. Wong Soo Bow, 112 Fed. 416.

85. U. S. v. Lee Yen Tai, 185 U. S. 213, 46 Law. Ed. 878. Lee Lung v. Patterson, 186 U. S. 168, 46 Law. Ed. 1108; affirming judgment, In re Lee Lung, 102 Fed. 132.

86. Fong Mey Yuk v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 898; Chin Bok Kan v. U. S., 186 U. S. 193, 46 Law. Ed. 1121; Chin Ying v. Same, 186 U. S. 202, 46 Law. Ed. 1126. Congress may vest the power to determine right to remain in executive officers—U. S. v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442.

87. U. S. v. Luey Guey Auck, 115 Fed. 252.

88. Chin Bok Kan v. U. S., 186 U. S. 193, 46 Law. Ed. 1121; Chin Ying v. Same, 186 U. S. 202 46 Law. Ed. 1126.

89. Chin Bok Kan v. U. S., 186 U. S. 193, 46 Law. Ed. 1121; Chin Ying v. Same, 186 U. S. 202, 46 Law. Ed. 1126.

90. U. S. v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442; of residence—Quong Sue v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 316; of domestic birth—Lee Ah Yin v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 614; Yee N'Goy v. Same (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 333; U. S. v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442; of right of resident to enter after departure—U. S. v. Leung Sam, 114 Fed. 702; Same v. Lee Yee, Id.; Same v. Leung Foo, Id.; of British citizenship; deception in procuring arrest—U. S. v. Lee Kee (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 612.

91. U. S. v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442.

92. Act Sept. 13, 1888—Chow Loy v. U. S., 112 Fed. 354; not by habeas corpus—In re Chow Loy, 110 Fed. 952.

93. Chow Loy v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 354.

94. In re Chow Loy, 110 Fed. 952.

95. Chow Loy v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 354.

96. Chow Loy v. United States (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 354.

97. In re Chin Ark Wing, 115 Fed. 412.

98. U. S. v. Leung Sam, 114 Fed. 702; Same v. Lee Yee, Id.; Same v. Leung Foo, Id.; Same v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442.

99. Chin Bok Kan v. U. S., 186 U. S. 193;

§ 4. Naturalization.—A native of Japan cannot be naturalized.[1] A mere want of knowledge of the nature of our institutions will not alone warrant a refusal of citizenship.[2] A judgment naturalizing an alien excluded from the right, may be attacked collaterally.[3]

ALIMONY.[4]

§ 1. Nature and purpose of the allowance.—Alimony is not a "debt."[5] though as to fraudulent transfers the wife may be regarded as a creditor.[6] The temporary allowance is for the wife, and not for officers and witnesses. They must look to her. It is given so she can meet expenses.[7] Awards are property which is protected by "due process of law,"[8] but a prospective recovery of alimony is not assignable. It is personal to the wife.[9] A permanent award bars dower in Georgia.[10] Temporary allowances do not necessarily supersede separation agreements,[11] but if there is an allowance for alimony besides counsel fees, an attorney in possession of the alimony cannot pay out of it disbursements.[12]

§ 2. Jurisdiction and power to award.—Jurisdiction of the husband's person must be had; therefore his share in an estate cannot be reached, though the executor has been enjoined from paying it over.[13]

A non-resident wife who appears, may have an allowance on her cross-complaint.[14]

A transfer or suspension of jurisdiction may, but does not always, result from taking the case up for review;[15] thus the granting of temporary alimony is not a "remedial writ," which is "necessary or proper" to the appellate jurisdiction of a supreme court under laws which leave the case still pending in the lower court after appeal.[16] If the order for alimony and counsel fees is appealed, the appellate court usually has power to make a proper allowance.[17]

Collateral relief is proper; e. g., on claims of creditors against whom the plaintiff procured a custodianship of defendant's property,[18] or on proper pleadings to determine what, if any, interest the husband has in land standing in a third party's name, and to award it to the wife.[19]

§ 3. Stage or condition of the divorce proceeding.—The divorce action is not "pending" until process be served.[20] An award must be made in the divorce decree, or else in terms reserved for a future time.[21] An allowance pending appeal

46 Law. Ed. 1121; Chin Ying v. U. S. 186 U. S. 202, 46 Law. Ed. 1126.

1. In re Takuji Yamashita (Wash.) 70 Pac. 482.

2. Ex parte Johnson, 79 Miss. 637.

3. In re Takuji Yamashita (Wash.) 70 Pac. 482.

4. Costs in divorce, see Divorce; Costs.

5. Imprisonment for debt—Bronk v. State (Fla.) 31 So. 248; In re Cave, 26 Wash. 213, 66 Pac. 425; State v. Cook, 66 Ohio St. 566; bankruptcy—Welty v. Welty, 96 Ill. App. 141.

6. McFaddin v. McFaddin, 134 Ala. 337. See, also, post, § 7.

7. Lynch v. Lynch, 99 Ill. App. 454; includes costs, fees and expenses—Gundry v. Gundry, 11 Okl. 423, 68 Pac. 509.

8. Cannot be subjected retrospectively to reduction by modification—Livingston v. Livingston, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 261.

9. Also opposed to public policy—Lynde v. Lynde (N. J. Ch.) 50 Atl. 659.

10. Civ. Code, § 2742—Harris v. Davis, 115 Ga. 950.

11. Chamberlain v. Cuming, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 815.

12. In re Bolles, 79 N. Y. Supp. 530.

13. Published service insufficient—Smith v. Smith, 74 Vt. 20; Larson v. Larson (Miss.) 33 So. 717.

14. Fisk v. Fisk, 24 Utah, 333, 67 Pac. 1064.

15. See Appeal and Review for an extended discussion.

16. Code Civ. Proc., §§ 1795, 1830; Civ. Code, § 191; Const. art. 8, §§ 2, 3, 11—Bordeaux v. Bordeaux, 26 Mont. 533, 69 Pac. 103.

17. N. Y. Appellate division will do so—Haddock v. Haddock, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 565.

18. Bradley v. Ramsey (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1112.

19. Van Vleet v. De Witt, 200 Ill. 153.

20. Civ. Code, § 137, construed, with Code Civ. Proc., § 350—Baker v. Baker, 136 Cal. 302, 68 Pac. 971.

21. Comp. Laws, § 8641—Moross v. Moross (Mich.) 87 N. W. 1035.

for defense on appeal, is not premature.[22] It may be awarded to defend an appeal from a permanent award.[23]

§ 4. Reasons for or against. Provisional allowances.—Bad faith in suing, as where a former action was unsuccessful, in which all the facts now alleged might have been proved,[24] or when the avowed sole motive is to adjust property rights,[25] defeats the application. It is error to refuse counsel fees and alimony when the wife is poor and the husband is able to provide them.[26] Ability of the husband should appear; hence, an order for suit money on his appeal was refused when it seemed probably futile.[27]

If the parties had made a separation agreement providing support, temporary allowance will not be made[28] but it is no obstacle that the husband is paying and willing to pay all bills contracted for the wife.[29] It may be granted though the validity of the marriage be assailed.[30] In Kentucky the husband may be required to pay a reasonable fee to the wife's attorney, though there be a dismissal by agreement.[31]

Permanent allowances.—Ordinarily the guilty forfeits the right;[32] but by way of adjusting property rights alimony may be awarded to such party,[33] and the wife for whose desertion a divorce was given may have alimony, the husband having married her solely to escape a prosecution.[34]

In the absence of contrary reasons permanent alimony may be refused to a woman in good health, of middle age and self supporting.[35]

Undue delay may defeat the right to file an original bill for alimony after divorce, even where there was fraud.[36] In Louisiana it is equivalent to leaving the husband's domicile if, on opposing his action for divorce after a separation, she fails to procure the assignment of a domicile.[37]

A foreign divorce on published service bars alimony.[38]

Support of child.—If divorce be given the wife there should be an allowance for a child;[39] such an allowance, if not a lien, will cease with the death of the husband.[40]

§ 5. Amount, character and duration.—The amount is discretionary.[41] Counsel fees should be fixed with reference to the husband's ability and the character of the services,[42] or by what appears from the evidence a reasonable fee.[43] Gen-

22. Hurd's Rev. St., c. 40, § 15, allows granting of allowance "on" appeal—Miles v. Miles, 102 Ill. App. 130.

23. Haddock v. Haddock, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 565.

24. The abandonment had been found justified and the second action was for cruelty—Deisler v. Deisler, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 208.

25. Property owned by the community in another state—Bradford v. Bradford, 80 Miss. 467.

26. Action by husband for absolute divorce—Hunter v. Hunter (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 618.

27. He was injured, swore that he was unable to pay and previous attempts to make him do so had failed—Bachelor v. Bachelor (Wash.) 70 Pac. 491.

28. Grube v. Grube, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 239.

29. Civ. Code, § 137 gives allowance "necessary" for support—Anderson v. Anderson, 137 Cal. 225, 69 Pac. 1061.

30. Eickhoff v. Eickhoff, 29 Colo. 295, 68 Pac. 237.

31. Ky. St., § 900—Powell v. Lilly, 24 Ky. Law R. 193.

32. Rev. St. 1899, § 2929—Motley v. Motley, 93 Mo. App. 473. The husband will not be made to release his marital rights in the erring wife's property or to pay her alimony—Becklenberg v. Becklenberg, 102 Ill. App. 504.

33. Code, § 3180—McDonald v. McDonald (Iowa) 90 N. W. 603.

34. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian, 24 Ky. Law R. 595.

35. Abele v. Abele, 62 N. J. Eq. 644.

36. 12 years; fraudulent conveyance to defeat alimony—Moross v. Moross (Mich.) 87 N. W. 1035.

37. Ellerbusch v. Kogel, 108 La. 51.

38. Eldred v. Eldred, 62 Neb. 613.

39. See Divorce Act, § 23—Abele v. Abele, 62 N. J. Eq. 644.

40. Schultze v. Schultze (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

41. Breedlove v. Breedlove, 27 Ind. App. 560. Code, § 1291 reads as "appears * * * just and proper"—Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333.

42. Powell v. Lilly, 24 Ky. Law R. 193.

43. Schneider v. Kohn, 24 Ky. Law R. 924.

erally, past services are not included.[44] An award equal to the whole salable value of his personalty, and for counsel fees besides, is excessive.[45]

Support of children may be provided pendente lite, though counsel fees and alimony be denied the wife.[46]

Permanent awards; division of property.—A money award may be had under the Washington statute, which sanctions a just and equitable disposition of property of the parties in view of their future.[47] The fact that plaintiff is a childless second wife will not affect the amount.[48] The Wisconsin statute authorizing a division of the husband's estate and that of the wife derived from him, does not admit of a division of the husband's alone, letting that which he gave her stand.[49] Giving all the community property to the wife offends a law against divesting title to land. A half should be given in fee, and a life estate in the other.[50] Under a statute authorizing only support on a limited divorce, it is improper to decree the extinguishment of the wife's marital rights in the husband's estate, setting out in its stead a sum to provide her support as long as she lives.[51]

§ 6. Procedure and practice.—Questions of pleading and practice in divorce are always involved and should be investigated.[52]

Temporary allowances.—The motion should be in the name of the wife, and not of the attorney.[53] Omission of notice does not make an application lack due process of law,[54] but at least it is necessary if defendant has not been served.[55] Continuing the application does not require a new notice.[56] In some jurisdictions it may be heard outside the county, anywhere within the district.[57] Counter affidavits should be allowed.[58] Affidavits tending to disprove a very recent common-

44. Lynch v. Lynch, 99 Ill. App. 454. Under a statute (Code Civ. Proc., § 1769) providing for an allowance "to carry on" the action past services are not reckoned—Poillon v. Poillon, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 536.

45. $300—Baker v. Baker, 136 Cal. 302, 68 Pac. 971; $500 fees not excessive to wife worth $1,900 clear—De Ruiter v. De Ruiter, 28 Ind. App. 9. $150 additional to a like sum for counsel's services on a former trial which lasted a week was held not excessive; the wife, who was poor, having already paid $100 expenses and gone into debt $50—Schuster v. Schuster, 84 Minn. 403; $5 a week and $100 for counsel proper where defendant earned $100 per month and had received $4,000 advances from plaintiff and her father—Mayer v. Mayer (N. J. Ch.) 49 Atl. 1078; $40 inadequate where necessary depositions cost $60 and wife lives abroad—Cairnes v. Cairnes, 29 Colo. 260, 68 Pac. 233; $50 a month, $250 fees, $25 suit money not excessive to indigent wife against husband of wealth—Eickhoff v. Eickhoff, 29 Colo. 295, 68 Pac. 237; $4,000 reasonable where husband was worth over $80,000 and suit was expensive—Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333. $1,500 to a husband with a pension of $360 was reduced to $750 against a wife who had land worth $4,400 clear and producing $250 income—McDonald v. McDonald (Iowa) 90 N. W. 603, in which case the appeal was from alimony only and the evidence on the divorce was not before the reviewing court.

46. She did not sue in good faith—Deisler v. Deisler, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 208.

47. 2 Ball. Codes & Stat., § 5723—In re Cave, 26 Wash. 213, 66 Pac. 425.

48. $4,000 not excessive against defendant with $20,000 realty—De Ruiter v. De Ruiter, 28 Ind. App. 9; $600 not excessive against one who had $1,500 in bank just before suit but who filed affidavits against temporary allowance professing to have only $800 real and personal and no bank account—Wagoner v. Wagoner, 128 Mich. 635; $20 a month sustained against husband worth $9,000 with good income—Brandt v. Brandt, 40 Or. 477, 67 Pac. 508.

49. Rev. St., § 2364, she received $1,187 out of his $3,500 while she had 57 acres from him producing $1,500 per year—Martin v. Martin, 112 Wis. 314; home farm given to wife whose father furnished money to buy it, but costs, support of children and $75 per year for husband was charged on it: Casey v. Casey (Iowa) 88 N. W. 937; seven-twelfths of community to a successful spouse in cruelty case upheld—Gorman v. Gorman, 134 Cal. 378, 66 Pac. 313.

50. Rev. St., art. 2980—Long v. Long (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 428.

51. Comp. Laws, § 8654—Wagner v. Wagner (Mich.) 93 N. W. 889.

52. Divorce. A wife's failure to negative in her complaint that she was at fault for the separation may be cured if the husband denies that he was at fault—Boreing v. Boreing (App.) 24 Ky. Law R. 1288.

53. Lynch v. Lynch, 99 Ill. App. 454.

54. Gundry v. Gundry, 11 Okl. 423, 68 Pac. 509.

55. Baker v. Baker, 136 Cal. 302, 68 Pac. 971. In Oklahoma it may be awarded in vacation without notice—Gundry v. Gundry, 11 Okl. 423, 68 Pac. 509. In North Carolina. Code, § 1291, requires it only on application out of term—Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333.

56. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333.

57. Code, § 1291—Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333. A motion to reduce temporary alimony is ancillary and may be heard in another county—Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371.

58. When the moving party is allowed to law marriage, as alleged, should be received,[59] beside which oral testimony may be heard.[60] If the misconduct be denied, and the wife charged with the fault, and the husband's affidavits be unopposed, it will be refused;[61] but her denial will overcome counter charges of adultery, unless her success seems improbable.[62] If a verified answer be not filed as such, but merely received as an affidavit, its negations of the fact of a marriage will still leave the allegations of that fact stand as admitted.[63] A wife who sues for separation and support will not be relegated to her statutory remedy for support, if the affidavits make a case for alimony to enable her to sue.[64] After a motion to reduce a temporary allowance is denied, it cannot be renewed until circumstances change and the applicant presents a receipt for such a sum as would be proper under such new circumstances.[65]

Permanent award may be made on a cross-complaint.[66] If a complaint avers facts for the purpose of procuring a custodianship, as against creditors, they may respond by pleas setting up their rights.[67]

§ 7. Decree, enforcement and discharge.—The decree of divorce may reserve the control of collection of alimony and the amount.[68] The order must run to the wife.[69] When alimony passes into judgment it becomes a debt fixed in amount,[70] but a decree for payment of monthly sums until a certain amount shall be paid "in full for alimony," is not a mere money decree.[71] If the decree for alimony be by consent, the subsequent actions of parties in relation to it may be regarded in construing the award.[72] A money award in addition to household furniture, and confirming each one's title to his own land, is not a decree for a division in addition to alimony.[73] Payments made pending appeal and stay of an award will be credited on the decree as affirmed.[74] A bond for alimony under the Missouri act is not penal, so that judgment on it stands to secure future breaches.[75]

Orders for alimony are usually appealable.[76] The decree survives the death of both parties, pending appeal.[77]

A foreign award is presumptively valid, and may be enforced.[78] A foreign decree giving a guilty wife an allowance in pursuance of a stipulation that she should not oppose the divorce, is not collaterally assailable as against the wife suing for such support, though the agreement was void; such provision is a judgment of a competent court, and conclusive beyond the power of the foreign court to modify, not being "alimony against an offending husband," which alone the foreign statutes authorize such court to grant or to modify.[79]

Vacating or modifying; discharge.—The court has general power to modify its file affidavits "in reply" to the other's but really to allow proof de novo of her need and the husband's ability; the husband should be allowed to file further counter affidavits or the "replying" ones should be stricken—Poillon v. Poillon, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 536.

59. Roberts v. Roberts, 114 Ga. 590.

60. Stewart v. Stewart, 28 Ind. App. 378.

61. Williams v. Williams, 114 Ga. 772.

62. Glaser v. Glaser, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 231.

63. It set forth a "pretended" marriage—Eickhoff v. Eickhoff, 29 Colo. 295, 68 Pac. 237.

64. Statutory remedy is a quasi criminal proceeding in police court—Miers v. Miers, 35 Misc. (N. Y.) 476.

65. Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371.

66. Fisk v. Fisk, 24 Utah, 333, 67 Pac. 1064.

67. Bradley v. Ramsey (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1112.

68. Jones v. Jones, 131 Ala. 443.

69. Not to attorneys—Lynch v. Lynch, 99 Ill. App. 454. Hurd's Rev. St., c. 40, § 15—Miles v. Miles, 102 Ill. App. 130; Werres v. Werres, 102 Ill. App. 360.

70. Coffman v. Finney, 65 Ohio St. 61, 55 L. R. A. 794, see, also, ante, § 1.

71. Welty v. Welty, 195 Ill. 335.

72. Decree is also a contract—Wickes v. Wickes, 98 Ill. App. 156.

73. Palica v. Palica, 114 Wis. 236.

74. Haddock v. Haddock, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 565.

75. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 468 et seq.—Burnside v. Wand (Mo.) 71 S. W. 337.

76. See Appeal and Review, § 4.

77. Coffman v. Finney, 65 Ohio St. 61, 55 L. R. A. 794.

78. Land held in another's name was subjected—McFaddin v. McFaddin, 134 Ala. 337.

79. A decree was granted in North Dakota and wife sued in New York to recover upon it. France v. France, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 459, affirming 79 N. Y. Supp. 579.

order or judgment for alimony.[80] An order granted after illegally refusing a change of venue, will be set aside.[81] When circumstances have changed it may be reduced[82] if no payments are in arrear,[83] or discharged, provided that the award be for support and not as compensation.[84] Inability to pay must be more than burdensome. It must be enough to excuse payment.[85] No relief will be granted to one who is in contempt, until he submits to the jurisdiction of the court.[86] Adultery by a wife divorced from bed and board will warrant a discharge of the award.[87] If the support of children be not fixed, the decree may as to that be modified without a reservation of the question.[88] Provision may be made for a child born after divorce.[89]

In general the procedure, unless prescribed, should be that for vacating or modifying the divorce decree,[90] or any ordinary decree or judgment.[91] A motion for an increase should not combine support of wife and support of children, which should in the decree be separately awarded.[92] The inquiry on such an application will be whether circumstances have been, according to equitable principles, changed.[93] Under the Illinois laws it can be done after term.[94] In Minnesota specific findings of fact need not be made on such a motion.[95]

Bankruptcy proceedings do not discharge a decree.[96]

Attachment of the person will lie for non-payment, the proceeding not being an "imprisonment for debt,"[97] but the husband must be able to pay.[98] The concurrence of a remedy at law on notes given for the sum awarded,[99] or excessiveness of the award is no defense to contempt;[1] poverty is.[2] There is no contempt in failing to pay after a reconciliation.[3] Contempt should be brought in a court to which a decree is sent for execution,[4] and ability to pay need not be alleged.[5] If he have money in possession available to pay he may be imprisoned at once, since the contempt is in refusal to do an act which he "is able to do."[6] An order to show cause must, under the New York statutes, be served on the party and not on his attorney.[7] A contempt will not be enforced by refusing permission to defendant to plead.[8]

80. Gen. St. 1894, § 5386—Barbaras v. Barbaras (Minn.) 92 N. W. 522.

81. People v. District Court (Colo.) 69 Pac. 597.

82. Depreciation of husband's property—Barbaras v. Barbaras (Minn.) 92 N. W. 522.

83. Wife remarried and not in need, all children but one self-supporting, husband poor—cut down to support the one child—Kiralfy v. Kiralfy, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 407. Inability to care for child suffices—Tobin v. Tobin (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 624.

84. Installments accruing after remarriage of wife and all further payments may be discharged by court; see statute—Brandt v. Brandt, 40 Or. 477, 67 Pac. 508.

85. Palica v. Palica, 114 Wis. 236.

86. He fled from jurisdiction and before returning asked for reduction of amount and vacation of contempt order—Sibley v. Sibley, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 552.

87. Cariens v. Cariens, 50 W. Va. 113, 55 L. R. A. 930.

88. Tobin v. Tobin (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 424; Miles v. Miles (Kan.) 70 Pac. 631.

89. Rev. St. 1899, § 2926—Shannon v. Shannon (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 104.

90. Divorce.

91. Equity; Judgments.

92. Rev. St. 1899, § 2926—Meyers v. Meyers, 91 Mo. App. 151.

93. Warren v. Warren, 101 Ill. App. 308; Tobin v. Tobin (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 624.

94. 2 Starr & C., c. 40, § 18—Welty v. Welty, 195 Ill. 335.

95. Barbaras v. Barbaras (Minn.) 92 N. W. 522.

96. Welty v. Welty, 195 Ill. 335.

97. Rev. St. § 5640—State v. Cook, 66 Ohio St. 566; In re Cave, 26 Wash. 213, 66 Pac. 425; see, also, Bronk v. State (Fla.) 31 So. 248; evidence of willful disobedience,—departure from state having disposed of property, avowed intention not to pay alimony, and proof of earnings—Deen v. Bloomer, 191 Ill. 416; commitment held proper—Baker v. Baker (Ga.) 43 S. E. 46.

98. Attachment is incident to chancery practice adopted in divorce; see construction of statutes—Welty v. Welty, 195 Ill. 335.

99. Bonney v. Bonney, 98 Ill. App. 129.

1. Should have sought a modification—Deen v. Bloomer, 191 Ill. 416.

2. Wester v. Martin, 115 Ga. 776.

3. Dillon v. Shiawassee Circuit Judge (Mich.) 91 N. W. 1029.

4. Sent from Circuit to Common Pleas—State v. Cook, 66 Ohio St. 566.

5. The decree imports it—State v. Cook, 66 Ohio St. 566.

6. 2 Ball. Codes & St., § 5808—In re Cave, 26 Wash. 213, 66 Pac. 425.

7. Goldie v. Goldie, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 12.

8. Bachelor v. Bachelor (Wash.) 71 Pac. 193.

Execution should not issue after the husband's death, unless the award was a lien; but a claim should be proved against his estate.[9] A petition for further execution should show a change in the husband's condition, when the decree reserves the right to such time as petitioner can show a change.[10] Execution must be had and exhausted before resorting to supplementary proceedings.[11]

Subjection of property.—Conveyances in anticipation of an award may be assailed by the wife as fraudulent, even before judgment or award of alimony; and the land may be judicially sold,[12] even though by fraud the wife was induced to join;[13] but not where they preceded the marriage.[14] The grantee may have been innocent.[15] A conveyance to children is voidable only so far as to let in the wife's rights.[16] In order to enforce a decree against property, there must have been an award founded on jurisdiction of the person.[17] The wife may, if the husband absents himself, subject his property in equity to payment of the temporary award.[18] Periodical amounts made a lien on land, may, if not paid, be commuted in a gross sum, and the lien foreclosed.[19] In Nebraska an alimony judgment is a lien on homestead.[20] Unless saved by original decree or by agreement, the wife has no right to attorney's fee as cost of enforcing a lien for the alimony.[21]

§ 8. Suits for annulment and actions for separate maintenance.—No allowance will be given on suit for annulment, if both parties admit the marriage to be void.[22] In some jurisdictions separate maintenance or alimony may be given without divorce.[23] The parties must be residents of the state;[24] and in Louisiana the wife must not have unwarrantably left the matrimonial domicile.[25] The cause for the separation is immaterial under the North Carolina law.[26] To warrant an allowance abandonment need not, in Washington, continue for any fixed time, but support must be really withdrawn.[27] In that state the statutory remedy to determine mutual rights in property may be administered in an action for separate maintenance.[28] Refusal to receive at a time certain and ever since, alleges a living

9. Award for child's support: Schultze v. Schultze (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 56.

10. Jones v. Jones, 131 Ala. 443.

11. Ostrom v. Ostrom, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 232. In South Dakota, the court may require payment of a fixed sum and make it a lien on the husband's homestead under Comp. Laws, §§ 2584, 2585, which allows the court to grant alimony, modify it from time to time, and assign the homestead to the innocent party; and since a judgment debtor is given a year to redeem, he cannot be compelled to immediately surrender possession—Harding v. Harding (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1080.

12. Evidence sufficient that there was fraud in a conveyance to a daughter, accompanied by artifice during separation and leaving insufficient available assets to pay the award—De Ruiter v. De Ruiter, 28 Ind. App. 9; averment of insufficient property to pay alimony after fraudulent conveyances not contradicted by allegation on information of property which he secretes—De Ruiter v. De Ruiter, 28 Ind. App. 9. She is creditor from time of award—McFaddin v. McFaddin, 134 Ala. 337.

13. Chittenden v. Cnittenden, 12 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 526.

14. Chittenden v. Chittenden, 12 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 526.

15. Voluntary transfer—McFaddin v. McFaddin, 134 Ala. 337.

16. Tully v. Tully, 137 Cal. 60.

17. Smith v. Smith, 74 Vt. 20.

18. Executors of his father compelled to pay over income—McGlynn v. McGlynn, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 12 the alimony being incident to an action for separate maintenance.

19. Trumble v. Trumble, 26 Wash. 133, 66 Pac. 124. Under the South Dakota laws, if the husband is in default of monthly payments a fixed sum may be awarded to her instead and enforced against his property—Harding v. Harding (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1080.

20. Fraaman v. Fraaman (Neb.) 90 N. W. 245.

21. Trumble v. Trumble, 26 Wash. 133, 66 Pac. 124.

22. Knott v. Knott (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 15.

23. In equity—Pearce v. Pearce, 132 Ala. 221. $50 at the rate of $5 a month allowed against an able bodied man earning wages and possessed of property—Dorsey v. Dorsey (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 475.

24. Separation of property asked—Carter v. Morris B. & L. I. Ass'n, 108 La. 143.

25. Rev. Civ. Code, art. 2437—Carter v. Morris B. & L. I. Ass'n. 108 La. 143.

26. Code, § 1292—Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72.

27. Desertion a month before, forbidding credit, and suggesting a divorce do not show a refusal to provide, where money was furnished—Schonborn v. Schonborn, 27 Wash. 421, 67 Pac. 987.

28. Branscheid v. Branscheid, 27 Wash. 368, 67 Pac. 812.

apart at the time of suit and without plaintiff's fault,[29] and refusal to live with the wife is equivalent to abandonment.[30] Findings on the question of fraud in conveying property will be rendered needless, where, by reason of a finding that there was no desertion, the right to separate maintenance to assail transfers fails.[31] The allowance being provisional no final judgment will be given, since the relation may be dissolved by divorce or resumed.[32] Nor can monthly payments be awarded under a statute merely requiring the husband to "secure" a support.[33] An award of alimony, made after appeal from the reversal of a sentence of nullity against the wife, is regarded as provisional, and not as an enforcement of the judgment of reversal which was stayed by the appeal.[34] Grantees of the husband pendente lite, with notice, are not protected.[35]

ALTERATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

Alteration of an instrument as a criminal act,[36] or reformation by proper proceedings to properly define the rights of its parties,[37] do not properly come within this topic.

§ 1. Definition, distinctions, and what constitutes.—Alterations of written instruments must be material to affect their validity, such as insertion of terms not contemplated by the parties at time of execution,[38] and not mere interlineations, erasures or alterations apparent on the instruments.[39] Alterations by mistake are not material,[40] nor is an erasure material which makes a description of land obscure where it is followed by a definite and correct description.[41] Insertion of a clause, omitted by negligence of the draughtsman, by agreement of the parties will not avoid the instrument as to subsequent creditors who attach the property.[42] An alteration made before signature by the other party, cannot affect the contract, however material, since he is presumed to read the contract before signing.[43] Signing a note and its delivery to a joint maker impliedly authorize him to insert the date of actual negotiation.[44]

§ 2. Particular instruments.—Alteration of a note by erasure of one of several indorsements without knowledge or consent of other indorsers,[45] or addition of an obligor to a note at instance of the obligee and without consent of other obligors,[46] or of another surety to a bond after delivery without consent of the other sureties,[47] or insertion of name of a bank at which the note is thereby made payable,[48] or erasure of the name of an attesting witness from a note after delivery without the maker's consent though the name is re-inserted in a different place

29. Branscheid v. Branscheid, 27 Wash. 368, 67 Pac. 812.

30. Schonborn v. Schonborn, 27 Wash. 421, 67 Pac. 987.

31. Civ. Code, § 172—Greer v. Greer, 135 Cal. 121, 67 Pac. 20, in which it was held that the finding need not show that the reasons for his leaving home were sufficient or good.

32. Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72.

33. Code, § 1292—Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 140 N. C. 72.

34. Code Civ. Proc., § 1310—Di Lorenzo v. Di Lorenzo (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 566.

35. Starr v. Kaiser, 41 Or. 170, 68 Pac. 521.

36. Forgery.

37. Reformation of Instruments.

38. Entry of additional name in mileage book conditioned to carry only persons named therein—Holden v. Rutland R. Co., 73 Vt. 317.

39. Alterations in deed—Harper v. Reaves, 132 Ala. 625.

40. Indorsements by mistake on note which are subsequently erased—Lau v. Blomberg (Neb.) 91 N. W. 206.

41. Description of land in special tax bill—Henlan v. Gilliam (Mo.) 71 S. W. 163.

42. Bryant v. Bank, 107 Tenn. 560.

43. Building contract altered by architect and contractor before signature—Mockler v. St. Vincent's Inst., 87 Mo. App. 473.

44. Lance v. Calvert, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 102.

45. International Bank of St. Louis v. Parker, 88 Mo. App. 117.

46. M. Rumley Co. v. Wilcher, 23 Ky. Law R. 1745.

47. State v. Paxton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 983; Brown v. State, Id.

48. Burn's Rev. St., 1901, §§ 7515, 7516, 5517—Young v. Baker (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 54.

on the instrument,[49] or insertion of "gold" before "dollars" in a mortgage bond after execution and delivery,[50] is a material alteration which avoids the instrument as to parties not consenting to the change. Failure to name a receiving bank in a blank in a complete note will not authorize its insertion by the payee though the blank is not erased;[51] however there are cases holding that the payee has implied authority to fill a blank for place of payment.[52]

A contract to convey a homestead is not altered by subsequent signature of the wife whose signature was thought unnecessary at time of execution.[53] Detachment of a skeleton note from a contract of which it is a part, and filling its blanks so as to make it negotiable is a material alteration which the signers are not estopped from asserting to avoid their liability.[54] A change of the rate of interest in a note to conform to the actual agreement of the parties will not avoid it.[55] Interlineation of a provision for liability according to front footage in a contract for street grading which already provides for liability of property owners according to interest,[56] or change of an insurance policy payable to insured's "estate" to make it payable to "wife and children,"[57] or indorsement by payee of a note of an agreement to take a less rate of interest,[58] or indorsement of a note whereby a grantee of the equity under a mortgage security is enabled to pay a less rate of interest,[59] or filling of skeleton notes by makers in whose hands they are placed, in accordance with their general purpose,[60] or interlineation of words "Interest at 6 per cent on notes remaining over a year," in a contract of conditional sale where such deferred payments are represented by notes,[61] is not such a material alteration as will avoid the instrument. Negotiability of a note is not affected by the act of the payee in filling the blank for amount, after the maker has signed, with figures less than marginal figures agreed on, and changing the latter to agree with the blank so filled.[62]

§ 3. Effect of material alteration; rights of parties.—Any material alteration of a written instrument after delivery avoids the instrument unless ratified.[63] Material alterations by a party or with his consent destroy his rights as against those not consenting,[64] or as against persons liable who are not original parties to the instrument,[65] but where the contract is separable, the parts unaltered will not be affected.[66]

An unintentional alteration, though material, will not avoid the instrument if the original terms can be ascertained.[67] A transfer of title cannot be divested by alteration of a deed fully executed and delivered with or without the grantee's consent,[68] and interpolation of other names in tax deeds after their execution will

49. Girdner v. Gibbons, 91 Mo. App. 412.
50. Foxworthy v. Colby (Neb.) 89 N. W. 800.
51. Young v. Baker (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 54.
52. Cason v. Bank, 97 Ky. 487; Redlich v. Doll, 54 N. Y. 234; Cox v. Alexander, 30 Or. 438, 46 Pac. 794; Wessell v. Glenn, 108 Pa. 104.
53. Epperly v. Ferguson (Iowa) 91 N. W. 816.
54. Porter v. Hardy, 10 N. D. 551.
55. Osborn v. Hall (Ind.) 66 N. E. 457.
56. Young v. Borzone, 26 Wash. 4, 66 Pac. 135, 421.
57. Steeley's Creditors v. Steeley, 23 Ky. Law R. 996.
58. Reed v. Culp, 63 Kan. 595.
59. The makers cannot be credited with the reduction—Boutelle v. Carpenter (Mass.) 65 N. E. 799.
60. Porter v. Hardy, 10 N. D. 551.
61. Edward Thompson Co. v. Baldwin, 62 Neb. 530.
62. Prim v. Hammel, 134 Ala. 652.
63. Consumers' Ice Co. v. Jennings (Va.) 42 S. E. 879.
64. Porter v. Hardy, 10 N. D. 551.
65. Addition of obligors or sureties to a note or bond without consent of other obligors or sureties, will relieve them—M. Rumeley Co. v. Wilcher, 23 Ky. Law R. 1745; State v. Paxton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 983; Brown v. State, Id.
66. Alteration of part of a series of notes will not affect the remainder, nor a contract of conditional sale for liability of which they were given—Edward Thompson Co. v. Baldwin, 62 Neb. 530.
67. Civ. Code Ga., § 3702—Burch v. Pope, 114 Ga. 334.
68. Gulf Red Cedar Lumber Co. v. O'Neal, 131 Ala. 117.

not affect the transfer of title to persons properly named therein and properly joined in the tax suits.[69] Alteration of notes will not prevent recovery where the security was not assailed and the debt was unpaid.[70]

The party who did not participate in the alteration alone can complain of it,[71] and, though it may be ground for rescission by him, he may still enforce it in its original form.[72] A material alteration is avoidable to any one bound by the instrument who did not consent, though not a surety and though the person making the change did not know of such result.[73] Bona fide holders stand in the same position as parties to the instrument and cannot enforce it[74] either against the maker or his sureties,[75] but if the bona fide holder is not a party to the alteration, he may enforce a negotiable instrument in its original form.[76]

Pleading and evidence.—Plaintiff atttempting to enforce an instrument must disprove or explain alterations.[77] That an alteration is material and apparent will not relieve the party asking relief from alleging that there was fraudulent intent.[78] While it is presumed that an alteration was made on execution or before delivery,[79] where it is sufficiently apparent on the face of the instrument to arouse distrust and raise a necessity of explanation,[80] or where a part restricting the liability of one party has been taken from the contract by the other,[81] the presumption will not lie, and the time, manner and intent of the alteration are questions for the jury.[82] Unless an alteration is suspicious, it is unnecessary to show that it was made before execution,[83] but if it is not plainly ascertainable on inspection of the instrument[84] the party alleging the alteration must prove it. Where the alteration is apparent, and plaintiff claims benefit of it, he must prove that it was made before signing and delivery.[85] Where an instrument in evidence is not referred to in the pleadings, evidence of its alteration may be given without allegations of alteration.[86] An alteration, which makes an instrument appear to have been executed before it was executed, will prevent its admission in evidence, especially, where the acknowledgment was of a date later than the actual signing.[87] To admit an instrument containing alterations and interlineations, it must be proved that all material changes were made before execution,[88] though proof of execution has been made.[89]

69. Holladay-Klotz Land & L. Co. v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 89 Mo. App. 556.

70. Alteration of notes on piano secured by chattel mortgage—Hoffman v. Molloy, 91 Mo. App. 367.

71. Creditors cannot complain of alteration of an insurance policy in attacking an assignment—Steeley's Creditors v. Steeley, 23 Ky. Law R. 996.

72. Lane v. Pacific & I. N. R. Co. (Idaho) 67 Pac. 656.

73. Ball v. Beaumont (Neb.) 92 N. W. 170.

74. Alteration of note—Bank of Herington v. Wangerin (Kan.) 70 Pac. 330; Young v. Baker (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 54; alteration of written instrument to make it a negotiable note—Porter v. Hardy, 10 N. D. 551.

75. He cannot collect even the original amount of a note the amount of which has been altered—Moss v. Maddux, 108 Tenn. 405.

76. Negotiable Inst. Law N. Y., § 205. Mutual Loan Ass'n v. Lesser, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 614.

77. Removal of clause from insurance policy—Burton v. American Guaranty Fund Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 172.

78. Civ. Code Ga., § 3702—Miller v. Slade (Ga.) 43 S. E. 69.

79. Holladay-Klotz Land & L. Co. v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 87 Mo. App. 167.

80. Holladay-Klotz Land & L. Co. v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 87 Mo. App. 167.

81. Burton v. American Guarantee Fund Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 88 Mo. App. 392.

82. Holladay-Klotz Land & L. Co. v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 87 Mo. App. 167.

83. Rosenbloom v. Finch, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 813.

84. Alteration in note filed as claim against estate—Jackson v. Day, 80 Misc. 800. Portion cut off insurance policy—Burton v. American Guarantee Fund Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 88 Mo. App. 392.

85. Consumers' Ice Co. v. Jennings (Va.) 42 S. E. 879.

86. Coppock v. Lampkin, 114 Iowa, 664.

87. Died-Long v. Stanley, 79 Miss. 298.

88. Altered lease—Landt v. McCullough, 103 Ill. App. 668.

The rule applies to receipts for assessments on mutual benefit certificate showing alterations, in an action on the benefit certificate—Rambousek v. Supreme Council. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 277.

89. Holladay-Klotz Land & L. Co. v. T J.

§ 4. Curing or ratifying alterations.—An alteration is immaterial where the other party has knowingly accepted the altered instrument and complied with its terms.[90] Even material alterations may be ratified by sureties to the instrument if approved intentionally with respect to the particular alterations,[91] or by an agent acting for his principal in the transaction.[92] A party who insists on performance of a written contract after knowledge of its material alteration thereby waives his right to question its validity on that ground.[93]

AMBASSADORS AND CONSULS.

An Italian consul may, by virtue of the most favored nation clause, administer on estates of his nation's subjects who die intestate within the consular district.[94] Since consular officers are given power by congress to perform any notarial function authorized by law within the United States, they may take affidavits or depositions.[95] A consul general's deputy may take an acknowledgment.[96] The fact that a consul institutes a proceeding in which his government is interested, and in which he uses his official signature and title, sufficiently shows his authority.[97]

AMICUS CURIAE.

A mother may as amicus curiae attack a collusive decree of nullity of marriage of a daughter, though not invested with a litigable interest.[98] A justice of the peace may consult an amicus curiae.[99] Interested persons should be notified and heard on objections so presented.[1]

ANIMALS.

§ 1. Property in animals.—The owner of a domestic animal has a property right in its carcass after death.[3]

§ 2. Personal injuries inflicted by animals.—One who harbors a vicious dog,[4] or permits him to remain on his premises,[5] if the premises are under his control,[6] or to run at large,[7] or an employer who permits an employee to use a vicious dog in the Moss Tie Co., 87 Mo. App. 167.

90. Change in order for machinery so as to provide for security—J. I. Case Thresh. Mach. Co. v. Ebbighausen (N. D.) 92 N. W. 826.

Insertion of date in an instrument already signed by a joint maker is ratified by his notice of it without objection—Lance v. Calvert, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 102.

91. State v. Paxton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 983; Brown v. State, Id.

92. Alteration in mortgage note executed by husband and wife, charging rate of interest to correspond with agreed terms of the mortgagee's attorney and the husband who acted for his wife—Nichols v. Rosenfeld (Mass.) 63 N. E. 1063; Palmer v Same, Id.

93. Oil lease altered by lessee by insertion of names of other parties interested in royalties—Barnsdall v. Boley, 119 Fed. 191.

94. Treaty of 1871 with Italy, making applicable, article 9 of the Argentine treaty—In re Lobrasciano's estate, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 415.

95. Rev. St. V. S., § 1750; Neb. Code Civ. Pr., § 371 et seq.—Browne v. Palmer (Neb.) 92 N. W. 315.

96. Stewart v. Linton (Pa.) 53 Atl. 744.

97. Extradition proceeding—In re Grin, 112 Fed. 790

98. Steimer v. Steimer, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 26. Such an one has no appealable interest—E. B. v. E. C. B., 28 Barb. 299, 8 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 44.

99. Bocock v. Cochran, 32 Hun, 521.

1. Matter of Guernsey, 21 Ill. 443.

2. Law relating to wild animals not in captivity or domesticated, see Fish and Game Law. There are many regulations and laws which relate to the business of slaughtering animals or of selling meat products. They mostly relate to Food Licenses or Adulteration.

3. Campbell v. District of Columbia, 19 App. D. C. 131.

4. Duval v. Barnaby, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 154, 11 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 227; sufficiency of instruction on what constitutes harboring a vicious dog—Trumble v. Happy, 114 Iowa, 624.

5. The property owner is not liable at common law merely because the injuries were inflicted while on his premises—Trumble v. Happy, 114 Iowa, 624, Ky. St. § 68 changed the common law rule; and one who entered to visit the owner was held not unlawfully on the premises—Dillehay v. Hickey, 24 Ky. Law R. 1220. Evidence held sufficient to submit question of defendant's control of dog to jury—Clark v. Disbrow, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 647.

6. The dog not being kept under his direction and he not having knowledge of its character, he cannot be held liable where the animal was owned by a tenant, the property being used as a stable, merely because he received a portion of the rents from stalls—Laguttuta v. Chisolm, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 326.

7. That a weak minded child had, on previous occasions while the dog was secured, annoyed it is not a defense; the injuries being inflicted while the dog was at large and unmolested by such child—Schilling v. Smith, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 464.

course of his employment is liable for injuries inflicted by it,[8] so also an employer who furnishes an employe a vicious mule,[9] but the relation of master and servant is not essential to a recovery for injuries inflicted by an animal placed in the care of another.[10]

A vicious,[11] or mischievous character,[12] and knowledge thereof on the part of the owner must be shown to render him liable,[13] though knowledge may be presumed.[14]

Negligence may also be presumed.[15]

The owner conducting a vicious animal along a street is bound to exercise due care to protect passers-by from injury.[16]

The plaintiff has the burden of proving liability of defendant.[17]

If the vicious character of the dog were known to the owner punitive damages may be recovered.[18]

§ 3. Injuries to property by animals trespassing or running at large.—The owner of cattle is liable if they trespass upon lands of another[19] though the land was not marked or inclosed,[20] but a herder is held not liable,[21] where such animals are not allowed to run at large and the land is sufficiently fenced against animals permitted to range;[22] if he wilfully drives them thereon though the right of free range exists, it is a trespass.[23] It is not a wilful trespass within penal laws if it be done under a license.[24] The party bound to erect a division fence cannot recover for trespass committed by the adjoining owner's cattle.[25]

8. Watchman of corporate property—Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Kuckkuck, 98 Ill. App. 252; affirmed, 64 N. E. 358.

9. The employer being charged with and the employe not having knowledge of its dangerous character—East Jellico Coal Co. v. Stewart, 24 Ky. Law R. 420.

10. If the owner of a bull placed him in the care of one working his farm on shares, with knowledge of its vicious character but without warning him, recovery may be had. The relation of master and servant is not essential—Talmage v. Mills (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 637.

11. The mere fact that the dog did bite is not sufficient—Martinez v. Bernhard, 106 La. 368, 55 L. R. A. 671. Evidence in action to recover by one kicked by a horse held insufficient to show vicious character—Eastman v. Scott (Mass.) 64 N. E. 968; sufficiency of evidence to show vicious character of dog and knowledge thereof on the part of the owner—Kippen v. Ollasson, 136 Cal. 640, 69 Pac. 293. Judicial notice will be taken of the treacherous and vicious nature of a mule—Borden v. Falk Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 478.

12. Crowley v. Groonell, 73 Vt. 45, 55 L. R. A. 876.

13. That the animal had once attacked the owner is sufficient proof of knowledge—Talmage v. Mills (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 637. Evidence held sufficient to warrant finding of knowledge—Duval v. Barnaby, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 154, 11 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 227.

14. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Kuckkuck, 98 Ill. App. 252; affirmed, 64 N. E. 358.

15. If the owner had actual knowledge—O'Neill v. Blase, 94 Mo. App. 648.

16. O'Neill v. Blase, 94 Mo. App. 648.

17. Laguttuta v. Chisolm, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 326. Evidence held sufficient to submit to the jury question of liability for injuries by a dog, and of ownership of the animal—Laguttuta v. Chisolm, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 326.

18. Dillehay v. Hickey, 24 Ky. Law R. 760.

19. Owner of land held liable for hay consumed by his cattle on his premises left thereon by his permission—Spaulding v. Nesbitt, 87 Mo. App. 90.

20. If he had knowledge that the public land on which he grazed his cattle had been purchased; though the same was not distinctly marked—Cosgriff v. Miller (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 206.

21. Sweet v. Ballentine (Idaho) 69 Pac. 995.

22. Frazer v. Bedford (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 573. Actions in Utah. One-half costs in civil cases can alone be recovered in actions of trespass by sheep. Rev. St. § 20—Smith v. Valentine, 23 Utah, 539, 66 Pac. 295.

23. Addington v. Canfield, 11 Okl. 204, 66 Pac. 355; the trespass occurring between Nov. 1st and Apr. 1st during which time under Rev. Codes, §§ 1549 and 6153, certain stock is permitted to run at large—Ely v. Rosholt (N. D.) 93 N. W. 864. Code Civ. Proc., c. 42, has been abolished.

24. One who under permission of the owner of land drives his horse thereon held justified in continuing to do so where the subsequent purchaser of the land had on several occasions falsely stated that he had purchased it—Kimmons v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 283; and a license from the owner to enter is a defense to the prosecution—Franks v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 985.

25. Hill's Ann. Laws, § 3445; Oliver v. Hutchinson, 41 Or. 443, 69 Pac. 139, 1024; nor can he impound them—Gilmore v. Harp, 92 Mo. App. 77. An instruction in an action for trespass by cattle where the parties' land was a common enclosure that if plaintiff attempted to erect a partition fence on the line between his and defendant's land "or approximately so" and was prevented, etc., is reversible error since it left the construction of the quoted words to the jury.

An escaped animal is not generally speaking "running at large,"[26] nor if grazing on a highway under the care and control of an attendant.[27] Injuries resulting from the negligent management of horses on highways will create a liability.[28]

Action to recover damages will lie,[29] or the remedy may be by attachment,[30] or by a proceeding before a justice of the peace instituted on notice[31] or by distraint as at common law[32] in the latter case they can be held only for the damages committed at the time of distraining them.[33] The remedy to recover damages for trespass by the animals of an adjoining landowner is at common law.[34]

In determining the damages resulting from the trespass the crop[35] or pasture shrinkage will be considered.[36]

§ 4. Liability for killing or injuring animals.—The owner or occupant of land may use such force as is reasonably necessary to eject trespassing animals and can be held liable or punished only for injuries wantonly or purposely inflicted,[37] nor is the landowner in the absence of wantonness liable for injuries sustained by trespassing animals caused by dangerous agencies on his land.[38]

One who without right drives an animal into an inclosure, is liable for injuries resulting to other animals therein.[39]

Recovery in tort for the killing of sheep by dogs[40] or allowances for such losses under the various local statutes is treated in foot notes.[41]

—Oliver v. Hutchinson, 41 Or. 443, 69 Pac. 1024.

Fences, as to duty to maintain division fences.

26. It escaped from an enclosure without fault of the owner and he was making reasonable effort to recapture it—Myers v. Lape, 101 Ill. App. 182.

27. Morgan v. People, 103 Ill. App. 257.

28. Highways and Streets.

29. Frazer v. Bedford (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 573. Petition in trespass held sufficient though it failed to allege that the entry was on inclosed or cultivated lands; the court taking judicial notice that the crops alleged to have been destroyed were not the spontaneous product of the soil—Meyers v. Menter (Neb.) 88 N. W. 662.

30. Against the owners property in general as well as the stock. Comp. Laws, Nev., § 781—Smith v. Fisher, 24 Utah, 506, 68 Pac. 849.

31. It is not necessary that a summons be issued. Neb. Comp. St. c. 2, art. 3, § 4—Randall v. Gross (Neb.) 93 N. W. 223. Except as to jurisdiction, proceedings under the statute will be liberally construed. Nebraska Comp. St., c. 2, art. 3, §§ 2, 3, 6, providing for the taking and selling on execution of trespassing stock is constitutional—Randall v. Gross (Neb.) 93 N. W. 223.

32. Graves v. Rudd (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 63. North Dakota Rev. Codes. § 6153—Ely v. Rosholt (N. D.) 93 N. W. 864. The distrainer may hold under Laws 1890, c. 569, §§ 120, 121 though he may have attempted to proceed under Code, § 3085 et seq.—Lynch v. Ford, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 536. The distrainer loses his lien if he fails to have the damages assessed and cannot set them up in an action of replevin by the owner. Iowa Code, § 2317—Holaman v. Marsh (Iowa) 90 N. W. 82. In case of estrays entering from highway the distrainer may hold the animals for the time allowed to perfect his lien; and not until after such time and the failure to perfect the lien can the owner replevy the cattle—Laws N. Y. 1890, c. 569, § 120—Lynch v. Ford, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 536. Neb. Comp. St. c. 2, art. 3, § 4, did not take away the common law remedy to recover for trespass by stock—Randall v. Gross (Neb.) 93 N. W. 223.

33. Holaman v. Marsh (Iowa) 90 N. W. 82.

34. Rev. St. 1899, § 354 does not apply where the entry was on adjoining land occupied under a common enclosure—Jackson v. Fulton, 87 Mo. App. 228. If he distrains under Rev. St. 1899, c. 69, art. 2, he cannot set up failure to erect a division fence under an agreement—Jones v. Habberman, 94 Mo. App. 1.

35. Oliver v. Hutchinson, 41 Or. 443, 69 Pac. 1024.

36. Oliver v. Hutchinson, 41 Or. 443, 69 Pac. 1024; including expense for feeding landowner's stock—Cosgriff v. Miller (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 206; and the number of the stock plaintiff has depending on pasturage—Sweet v. Ballentine (Idaho) 69 Pac. 995.

37. Addington v. Caufield, 11 Okl. 204, 66 Pac. 355. The killing a dog which entered another's premises and stole provisions is justifiable—Fisher v. Badger, 95 Mo. App. 289; or if he had been worrying sheep though, at the time of the killing the dog had left—Smith v. Wetherill, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 49. Whether one was justified in killing a trespassing dog is a question for the jury—McChesney v. Wilson, 9 Det. Leg. News (Mich.) 591, 93 N. W. 627.

Criminal Procedure. An indictment for wilfully injuring animals must allege the value of the injury—Dunklin v. State, 134 Ala. 195; Cr. Code, § 5091. Evidence held insufficient to show wanton or wilfull killing of trespassing cow—Alexander v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 425.

38. Beinhorn v. Griswold, 69 Pac. (Mont.) 557.

39. Irrespective of ownership or knowledge of viciousness—Martin v. Farrell, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 177.

40. Complaint held to state a cause of action under the statute allowing recovery for sheep killed or maimed by dogs—Peeler v. McMillan, 91 Mo. App. 310. An answer

The liability of railroad companies for injuries to animals[42] and for injuries to horses resulting from the defective construction and negligent use of highways is treated elsewhere.[43]

§ 5. Contracts of agistment.—One who is employed to herd cattle in the possession of the owner is not an agister.[44]

The lien of an agister is statutory and did not exist at common law.[45] He is entitled to possession as against the owner,[46] and his rights have priority over a subsequent chattel mortgage,[47] or a chattel mortgage recorded without the county of the mortgagor's residence.[48] In the absence of such intention surrender of possession will not operate as a waiver of the lien in favor of third parties with notice of its existence,[49] nor is it lost merely because the agister demands excessive charges for care,[50] but if he brings an attachment action against the cattle he will lose his lien.[51] If the agister is not paid his lien will include expenses for keeping after demand for possession by the owner.[52]

The procedure for enforcing such liens varies in the different jurisdictions.[53]

Agisters are not liable for loss resulting from act of God.[54]

§ 6. Estrays and impounding.—The right to take and impound animals found at large and the enforcement of charges for the keeping of them has been the subject of various enactments, as shown in the foot notes.[55] which set up that plaintiff invited dogs by permitting unburned carcasses of sheep to remain on his premises is demurrable—Peeler v. McMillan, 91 Mo. App. 310; that the dog was tracked to defendant's residence and was subsequently seen near the carcasses, and that defendant killed his dog shortly after the sheep were killed may be considered by the jury on the question whether defendant's dog killed the sheep—Peeler v. McMillan, 91 Mo. App. 310.

41. Indiana. A buyer and seller of sheep is within Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 2857 and may be allowed for sheep killed from the dog tax fund—Wayne Tp. v. Jeffery (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 933. Report should be made to the trustees of the township wherein the damage is done—Wayne Tp. v. Jeffery (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 933. Massachusetts. A bill for damages may be allowed by the commissioners at any time. St. 1889, c. 454, § 5 being merely directory—Johnson v. Griswold, 179 Mass. 580. That the appraisal certificate stated joint ownership of the sheep when but one of the parties owned them will not defeat a recovery against the owner of the dog—Johnson v. Griswold, 179 Mass. 580.

42. Carriers; Railroads; Street Railroads.

43. Highways.

44. Boston & K. C. Cattle Loan Co. v. Dickson, 11 Okl. 680, 69 Pac. 889.

45. And the statutes giving such lien should be liberally construed—Becker v. Brown (Neb.) 91 N. W. 178; Same v. Dale, Id.

46. And the forcible taking them from the agister's possession constitutes a larceny—Tennalty v. Parker, 100 Ill. App. 382.

47. Becker v. Brown (Neb.) 91 N. W. 178; Same v. Dale, Id. If Gen. St. 1901, § 3931 had not been followed a mere agreement with the mortgagor will not give the agister priority over the pre-existing mortgage—Central Nat. Bank v. Brecheisen (Kan.) 70 Pac. 895.

48. Rev. St. 1899, § 5404—Duke, Lennon & Co. v. Duke & Woods, 93 Mo. App. 244.

49. Becker v. Brown (Neb.) 91 N. W. 178; Same v. Dale, Id.

50. There being no tender or refusal of the sum actually due—Folsom v. Barrett, 180 Mass. 439.

51. Boston & K. C. Cattle Loan Co. v. Dickson, 11 Okl. 680, 69 Pac. 889.

52. Nothing appearing showing an intention to revoke the contract or to pay the lien—Folsom v. Barrett, 180 Mass. 439.

53. In Nebraska the parties may agree on a mode of enforcing the lien and whether there was such an agreement is a question for the jury—Dale v. Council Bluffs Sav. Bank (Neb.) 9 N. W. 526; Brown v. Same, Id. In Maine municipal courts have jurisdiction to enforce an agister's lien though the owner resides without the county. Rev. St. c. 91, § 56; Pub. Laws 1901, c. 262—McGillicuddy v. Edwards, 96 Me. 347.

54. Humbert v. Crump (Kan.) 71 Pac. 239; contract construed and agister held not liable for cattle killed by storm—Wells v. Sutphin, 64 Kan. 873, 68 Pac. 648.

55. Georgia. The charter of the city of Waycross does not give a right to impound cows—Mayor, etc., of City of Waycross v. Walker, 42 S. E. 375. Missouri. An adjoining owner who fails to erect a division fence according to agreement cannot impound trespassing animals belonging to the adjoining owner—Gilmore v. Karp, 92 Mo. App. 77. Sale. In Colorado failure to give the owner personal notice of sale when his address is known renders the estrayer a trespasser ab initio, and the owner may recover the animal without tendering the charges for keeping, and this though the owner had actual knowledge of the sale—Mills' Ann. St. § 114—Bailey v. O'Fallon (Colo.) 70 Pac. 755. In Texas the presence of the estrayer and two other persons is not a compliance with the statute—Floyd v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 690; Sayles, Ann. Civ. St. arts. 2373, 4963, 4969.

The owner's consent to the sale need not be negatived in the information on a prosecution for illegal sale—Floyd v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 690. Vermont. Absence

A public impounder is liable for all wrongful acts done under color of office.[56]

§ 7. Regulations as to care, keeping and protection and health.—Statutes prohibiting or limiting the running at large of stock have been generally held to be valid[57] and in several of the states an enabling provision in prohibitory statutes has left the question whether they shall apply to certain districts to the municipal authorities or by election of freeholders thereof.[58] One claiming the benefit of free range has the burden of showing the existence of the right in his district.[59]

Statutes providing for the killing of animals affected with contagious diseases have also been held to be valid.[60]

The keeping of male animals for breeding purposes is usually regulated by statute.[61]

Interstate transportation; quarantine; inspection.—It is within the power of a state to quarantine cattle for a period or compel inspection before bringing them into the state,[62] and the mode and time of declaring a quarantine is to be determined by reference to the statutes.[63] A criminal accusation of violating such regulations must with certainty allege the regulation.[64] of the impounding officer from home is not an excuse for the failure to advertise the sale within four days. St., § 4780—Farrar v. Bell, 73 Vt. 342.

56. Kansas City v. Minor, 89 Mo. App. 617.

57. Alabama.. Sufficiency of title of stock law—Street v. Hooten, 131 Ala. 492. Oklahoma. Permitting the running at large in one instance and prohibiting it in another is not a local law—Addington v. Caufield, 11 Okl. 204, 66 Pac. 355. South Carolina. Statute exempting a part of a county from the operation of the stock law is not a taking of property without compensation—Goodale v. Sowell, 62 S. C. 516. Texas. Does not deprive one of his property without due process of law. Laws 1899 c. 128—Graves v. Rudd (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 63. Idaho. Rev. St., §§ 1210, 1211 prohibiting herding or grazing within two miles of inhabited dwellings is valid—Sweet v. Ballentine, 69 Pac. 995.

58. Alabama. A district may be extended by legislative action without the consent of the owner—Street v. Hooten, 131 Ala. 492.

Mississippi. By board of supervisors, and their order establishing an irregular district being void may be collaterally attacked. Laws 1899, c. 17—Garner v. Webster County, 79 Miss. 565.

North Carolina. Petition to board of commissioners; the majority may include landowners of a part of the district wherein the law had been established. Laws 1901, c. 531—Perry v. Commissioners, 130 N. C. 558.

Texas. By election of freeholders. Sufficiency of petition and order for an election —Graves v. Rudd (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 63; description of the district in petition held sufficient—Jones v. Carver (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 780. An election order to determine whether hogs, sheep or goats shall be permitted to run at large is alternative and void—Reuter v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 505; or it is void if made during the term in which the petition was filed—Robertson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 542. Conveying land to persons merely to enable them to vote will not qualify them—Jones v. Carver (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 780.

59. He must to allege his petition to restrain interference with his stock—Addington v. Caufield, 11 Okl. 204, 66 Pac. 335.

60. Rev. St. §§ 4931-4933 providing for the killing of certain animals affected with contagious diseases do not provide for the taking of private property for public use without just compensaton, and are valid—Livingston v. Ellis County (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 723.

61. If a certificate of pedigree is not filed the owner cannot recover for the services rendered, even though the previous owner had filed a certificate—Davis v. Randall, 97 Me. 36.

62. Such a requirement not being a regulation of interstate commerce. Colo. Sess. Laws 1885, p. 335, § 2—Reid v. People, 29 Colo. 333, 68 Pac. 228; affirmed, 23 Sup. Ct. (U. S.) 92; or with the Fed. Const. guarantying equal privileges of the citizens of all the states—Reid v. People, 29 Colo. 333, 68 Pac. 228; affirmed, 23 Sup. Ct. (U. S.) 92; nor in conflict with act of Cong. May 29, 1884 to prevent spreading of disease among domestic animals—Reid v. People, 29 Colo. 333, 68 Pac. 228; affirmed, 23 Sup. Ct. (U. S.) 92. A certificate from the state inspector is necessary though the shipper held a certificate from the federal officers.

63. Ill. Laws 1885 (Hurd's R. S. 1889, p. 155, § 4, to prevent importation or sale of diseased cattle is penal and should be strictly construed—Pierce v. Dillingham, 96 Ill. App. 300. The commissioners and the governor have no power to prohibit importation of particular kinds of domestic animals from all parts of the world except on such conditions as they might prescribe—Pierce v. Dillingham, 96 Ill. App. 300. An officer can not quarantine cattle on the mere request of the commissioners. A formal complaint is necessary. Gen. St. 1899, § 7091—Asbell v. Edwards, 63 Kan. 610, 66 Pac. 641. A quarantine line to be valid must conform to the line fixed by the federal agricultural department. Rev. St. 1895, art. 5043k—Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Masterson (Tex.) 66 S. W. 833.

64. An information charging the defendant with moving cattle from a certain district without inspection but which fails to charge that such a rule was promulgated is

§ 8. Marks and brands.—Under some statutes it has been held that a brand to be recorded must designate on what part of the animal it is placed;[65] if recorded a certified copy is admissible to prove, and is prima facie proof of ownership of the animals when running at large,[66] and parol proof of use of a particular mark or brand may be admitted for purposes of identification only.[67] A criminal liability for wrongful branding or use of brands has been imposed in many states, the procedure being illustrated in footnotes.[68]

§ 9. Cruelty to animals.—Laws for the killing of decrepit or crippled animals to prevent cruelty must provide opportunity for the owner to have notice and be heard.[69] Persons who are carried for hire are not guilty of overloading and overdriving.[70] One who wilfully neglects to furnish a domestic animal with sufficient food for sustenance is guilty of cruelty.[71]

If the indictment charges the act as being wilfully and unlawfully done it need not charge that it was maliciously done.[72] The offense may be laid on a day and "each day" thereafter.[73]

ANNUITIES.

There must be a fixed sum payable at all events to constitute an annuity as distinguished from a gift of income.[74] An annual payment covenanted for in a deed is not to be regarded as rent merely because made a lien on the land,[75] though in strictness as distinguished from a rent charge an annuity is always charged on a person merely and hence is personal estate.[76]

In creating annuities if by will many questions of interpretation arise which pertain to the law of wills. Local limitations on the right to suspend alienability must be avoided if a corpus be set out to raise the payments.[77] An annuity for life in satisfaction of a debt is valid though not computed on the actual sum falling due as principal and interest.[78] When payable on a day certain an annuity will not be apportioned on the annuitant's earlier death,[79] but it may be paid by installments if the will does not provide otherwise.[80] If a fund to produce the annuity is to be set out the executors should decide how much and if any surplus of income is produced it is not for the annuitant.[81] An annuity payable by an executor out of lands is within a law declaring a trust not assignable.[82] An annuity will be regarded as a charge on lands where it is payable from "money" of the estate but lands and money are given in a common mass.[83] insufficient—Wallace v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 506.

65. "On the shoulder or side" is not sufficient—Reese v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 325; or "Left jaw, left shoulder or side" is not sufficient—Steed v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 328.

66. Gale v. Salas (N. M.) 66 Pac. 520.

67. Gale v. Salas (N. M.) 66 Pac. 520; Steed v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 328.

68. Indictment for unlawfully branding cattle held to sufficiently state the time of the commission of the offense and not objectionable as charging two offenses—Ortega v. Territory (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 544. Evidence held sufficient to show change of brand with intention to defraud—Samples v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 64 S. W. 1041.

69. Laws 1897, c. 22, § 1, held unconstitutional—Carter v. Colby, 71 N. H. 230.

70. Atkins v. State (Miss.) 32 So. 921.

71. Under Ga. Pen. Code, §§ 703, 705—Griffith v. State (Ga.) 43 S. E. 251.

72. Ex parte Mauch, 134 Cal. 500, 66 Pac. 734.

73. Though the offense was charged as being committed on "January 1st and on each day until March 11th" the information was held to charge but a single offense—State v. Cook (Conn.) 53 Atl. 589.

74. Sum named was to be paid out of "income" and corpus was not to be impaired—Homer v. Landis, 95 Md. 320. In Gillispie v. Boisseau (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1046 a gift out of "rents and interest" was called an annuity but there were words pointing to an intention to give it at all events.

75. Nehls v. Sauer (Iowa) 93 N. W. 346.

76. Cyc. Law Dict., "Annuity" citing 10 Watts, 127, 2 Bl. Comm. 40.

77. Consult Perpetuities; Wills.

78. It was called "interest" and assailed as usurious—Price's Adm'x v. Price's Adm'x (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1911, 1947.

79. Nehls v. Sauer (Iowa) 93 N. W. 346.

80. Rucker v. Maddox, 114 Ga. 899.

81. Morse v. Tilden, 35 Misc. (N. Y.) 560.

82. Rothschild v. Roux, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 282, also holding the evidence sufficient to show an assignment to have been for security only. As to assignability of expectant or contingent rights generally, see Assignments.

83. Perkins v. First Nat. Bank (Miss.) 33 So. 18.

CURRENT LAW.

(Copyrighted 1903, by John B. West Company.)

VOLUME I. SEPTEMBER, 1903. NUMBER 2.

APPEAL AND REVIEW.

Scope.—"Appeal" is loosely used to designate both appeal and error and also statutory substitutes for them. It is intended to exhaustively treat cases pertinent to any of such modes of review. Proceedings for the review of special and anomalous proceedings, like drainage proceedings, eminent domain, equalization of taxes, and others which readily suggest themselves, are also treated more fully and specifically under titles dealing with the procedure to which such review is incidental.[1] The review of criminal prosecution[2] and of the proceedings of certain inferior tribunals[3] is subject to such rules that separate treatment is required. For the same reason certiorari practice, and procedure upon bills of review and bills to obtain relief from judgments, must be excluded.[4] Limited revisory and supervisory relief is afforded by such remedies as injunction, habeas corpus, mandamus, and prohibition, but it is also foreign to this article.

In a future number of Current Law an article on "Harmless Error" will be printed, such subject being broader in its relations than this, and containing matters equally applicable to "New Trial." The mode of saving questions for review is in like manner pertinent to a wider range of proceedings than appeal.[5]

1. See forthcoming articles on Eminent Domain, Public Works and Improvements, Taxes.
2. Criminal Procedure.
3. See Courts, Justices of the Peace.
4. See articles on Certiorari, Equity, Judgment.
5. See Harmless Error, Saving Questions for Review.

§ 1. The right in general. A. Constitution and statutes.—Appeal is a strict statutory right,[6] which may be lost by a repeal of a statute giving it,[7] if not protected by the constitution.[8] If a statutory right of appeal be given, a court cannot add conditions.[9] A right to appeal is not a "vested" one,[10] nor want of it a "denial of justice";[11] and an appeal to courts of last resort in all cases is not essential to satisfy the constitutional requirement that "all courts shall be open." Therefore, when it is provided that no appeals shall "hereafter" be taken, the statute retroacts on pending cases.[12]

B. Waiver, election, transfer, or extinguishment.[13]—The right may be waived.[14] Certiorari to review the granting of a writ of error by the circuit court of appeals should be seasonably applied for.[15]

Extinguishment of the subject-matter or interest destroys the right.[16] Payment of costs on a judgment carrying no money is not a satisfaction,[17] nor is the application of a deposit in court, when there is a dispute as to the excess unpaid.[18] Mistake may reopen a satisfaction.[19] One party cannot defeat an appeal by entering satisfaction of record.[20] An interlocutory order cannot be reviewed after it is materially changed.[21]

Under a statute providing that causes of action for personal injuries shall survive when the plaintiff obtains judgment, but dies pending appeal, in which the judgment is reversed, an appeal is impliedly given to the defendant in case the plaintiff dies before the appeal is perfected.[22] A stay until revival, and not a loss of the right of review, is the effect of death of the adversary after judgment.[23]

Obedience to an order waives the right to a review;[24] but the intention must be clear,[25] as where judgment is voluntarily paid,[26] and payment accepted.[27] Parties so paying a judgment may reserve the right of review.[28]

6. Hawkins v. Burwell, 191 Ill. 389. Act providing no appeal may be valid if certiorari lies—State v. Com'rs, 87 Minn. 325.

7. Appeal not a "suit instituted" within a saving clause—Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Watkins, 157 Ind. 600.

8. Legislature may regulate but not give or destroy the right (Const. art. 8, §§ 2, 3) —Finlen v. Heinze (Mont.) 69 Pac. 829.

9. Eminent domain proceedings—Mauldin v. Greenville, 64 S. C. 444.

10. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Watkins, 157 Ind. 600.

11. Ins. Co. of N. A. v. Schall, 96 Md. 225.

12. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Watkins, 157 Ind. 600.

13. See post, § 3, "Persons entitled."

14. Participating in new trial—Geraghty v. Randall (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 767. Not waived by asking for entry of judgment on the verdict after being refused a new trial —Carlson v. Benton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 600. Original order of injunction not appealable after parties have proceeded and it has been materially modified on pleadings—Sharples v. Baker, 100 Ill. App. 108. Mortgagee may appeal from condemnation proceedings though he also claims against fee owner—Omaha Bridge Co. v. Reed (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1021.

15. Ayers v. Polsdorfer, 187 U. S. 585.

16. Appeal from temporary injunction fails by final determination of the controversy—Wallace v. Deane (Idaho) 69 Pac. 62. Appeal from action to enforce judgment fails by reversal of the judgment—McGill v. Bartman (Ky.) 68 S. W. 1100. Appeal from judgment on demurrer after defects have been cured by pleading over—Wirth v. Wirth, 181 Mass. 541. An administrator may continue an appeal from divorce and alimony—Coffman v. Finney, 65 Ohio St. 61, 55 L. R. A. 794. Satisfaction of the judgment extinguishes the right—Klinkle v. McClintock (Iowa) 93 N. W. 86. Contra,—Shannon v. Padgett, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1281.

See, also, post, § 11, as to want of interest as ground for dismissal.

17. Territory v. Cooper, 11 Okl. 699, 69 Pac. 813.

18. Duggan v. Smith, 27 Wash. 702, 68 Pac. 356.

19. Judgment omitted interest—Jackson v. Brockton, 182 Mass. 26.

20. MacEvitt v. Maass, 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 382.

21. Interlocutory injunction—Sharples v. Baker, 100 Ill. App. 108.

22. Transcript was not yet filed when plaintiff died—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Adams, 28 Ind. App. 420.

23. Barton v. New Haven, 74 Conn. 729.

24. Order to elect—Morris v. Wofford, 114 Ga. 935. Mandatory injunction obeyed—Knight v. Hirboun, 64 Kan. 563, 67 Pac. 1104. State v. Maloney, 108 Tenn. 82. Obeying mandamus after appealing—Campbell v. Hall, 28 Wash. 626, 69 Pac. 12; Betts v. State (Neb.) 93 N. W. 167.

25. O'Rourke v. New Orleans, 106 La. 313.

26. Cowell v. Gregory, 130 N. C. 80, de-

Enforcement of a judgment affirms it.[29] So, too, adopting it; as if one accepts costs imposed as a condition to an order for the other's relief.[30] Thus a judgment for possession of land may be adopted by harvesting a crop thereon, though a condition remains unperformed;[31] but merely urging a proceeding and decision therein as ground for some action by the court in other litigation does not.[32] The right of appeal is not waived by scheduling the judgment in bankruptcy.[33] Neither does availing of one kind of relief granted prevent appeal for error in refusing complete relief.[34]

Acceptance of benefits will show a waiver unless the rights to them are absolute, so that an appeal could work no change.[35]

Waiving an appeal carries with it appeal from a dependent proceeding.[36] The right to appeal from a provisional order is not waived by going to trial on the main case on changed issues.[37] A right to review an order is not lost by failing to appeal a former order denying the same relief,[38] or failing to move sooner.[39]

Agreement to terms of judgment waives an appeal,[40] but an agreement for trial of a cause does not relinquish the right to review because it does not in terms reserve a right of exception.[41]

Successive orders or reviews.—A person who exercises one concurrent right of appeal is deprived of the other.[42] Appellant cannot dismiss his appeal, and reenter another in the same case;[43] and an appellant from the appointment of guardian, who was nonsuited for failure to appear, and made no attempt to sustain his appeal, cannot take a further appeal.[44] The right is not necessarily lost by prosecuting a different form of review proceeding unsuccessfully;[45] but an unsuccessful appellant to an intermediate court cannot bring error from the trial court to the court of last resort.[46] There must be the elements of an election,[47] or the judg-ciding also that Code, § 886, relating to appellate practice after payment, referred only to involuntary payments.

27. Trimble v. First Nat. Bank, 101 Ill. App. 75.

28. Receipt reserved it—Staehle v. Leopold, 107 La. 399.

29. Owens v. Phosphate Co., 115 Ga. 768.

30. Opening default — San Bernardino County v. Riverside County, 135 Cal. 618, 67 Pac. 1047.

31. Payment of certain moneys—Easton v. Lockhart (N. D.) 89 N. W. 75.

32. Judgment appealable though pleaded as former recovery—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bagley, 65 Kan. 188, 69 Pac. 189. Urging separation as final in suit to divide community—Melancon v. Wilson, 107 La. 628.

33. Bennett v. Bennett, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1281.

34. Judgment set aside conveyances but did not fully adjudge property rights—Milam v. Hill (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 447.

35. Easton v. Lockhart (N. D.) 89 N. W. 75. Trapp v. Off, 194 Ill. 287, holds it a release of errors.

Ballinger v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Iowa) 91 N. W. 767, in which case a stipulation as to amount of an attorney's fee had made uncertain the net amount recoverable after deducting "expense of collection." Retaining costs paid as a condition of opening default—Lounsbery v. Erickson (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1071.

Acceptance of public warrant for part waives appeal from disallowance of the remainder of a claim—Weston v. Falk (Neb.) 92 N. W. 204; Dakota County v. Borowsky (Neb.) 93 N. W. 686.

36. Acquiescing in the dismissal of mandamus as against a principal officer destroys the right to appeal from the order as affecting a subordinate for incidental relief—Evans v. United States, 19 App. D. C. 202. Appealability of release of sureties is waived by consent to dissolution of injunction for which bond was given—Kraeger v. Warnock, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 687.

37. Temporary injunction—Stewart v. Pierce, 116 Iowa, 733.

38. For injunction bond—Sanders v. Ditch, 107 La. 333.

39. Delaying two years to move against an order allowing counsel fees for probating will does not defeat right to appeal from orphans' court's order refusing to vacate such order—Hamilton v. Shillington, 19 App. D. C. 268.

40. West v. West, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1645.

41. Ball v. Wright, 115 Ga. 729.

42. Bergkofski v. Ruzofski, 74 Conn. 204.

43. Da Costa v. Dibble (Fla.) 33 So. 466.

44. He did not rest his case nor move to open the nonsuit—Appeal of White (Conn.) 53 Atl. 582.

45. Writ of error allowed after dismissal of appeal—Burdick v. Security Life Ass'n, 91 Mo. App. 529; Reed v. Kimsey, 98 Ill. App. 364. Certiorari conclusive of jurisdiction only; therefore no election—Porter v. Butterfield, 116 Iowa, 725.

46. Platte Land Co. v. Hubbard (Colo.) 69 Pac. 514.

47. Certiorari and appeal—Furman v. Motley, 67 N. J. Law, 174.

ment on review must be final, to destroy the right to further review.[48] The opposite party may bring error after an appeal if the review was only partial,[49] if he has assigned no cross-errors.[50] A loss of the right to review an order nisi by adoption and affirmance draws with it the right to appeal from an absolute order which follows.[51]

C. Pendency of a former appeal is ground for dismissal of a second,[52] unless the appeals are from determinations which lack identity.[53]

§ 2. The remedy for obtaining review.[54] A. Appeal or error.—An action for violating an ordinance being civil, and not criminal, is reviewable only as other civil actions.[55] Federal courts review decrees by appeal, judgments by error;[56] and this is the general rule,[57] though in some states error lies concurrently with appeal to the final decree or order,[58] and to some judgments error is a statutory mode of review.[59] In Illinois a chancery decree is reviewable in the trial court either by rehearing or bill of review, and in appellate courts either by appeal or error.[60] Only errors of law will be reviewed on a petition in error, and an appeal will not reach such matters.[61] For error on a trial in equity in Nebraska, error, and not appeal, is the remedy.[62] Error, and not appeal, is the remedy in Colorado of one who recovers judgment, but is dissatisfied with the relief given.[63] To be appealable it must adjudge something against appellant.[64] Those cases which in Missouri are reviewable without final judgment must be reviewed by appeal.[65] In Illinois, writ of error will lie to an invalid decree appointing conservators of insane persons, though there is also an appeal to the circuit court.[66] It makes no difference that parties agreed to try the cause on the wrong side of the court.[67] If it be doubtful which is right, both methods may be pursued, and the reviewing court will follow the correct procedure.[68] Appeal will lie to a certiorari improperly begun.[69] A writ of error will lie to a court of record to review a decision for which no statu-

48. Appeal and writ of error—Harburg v. Arnold, 87 Mo. App. 226. Judgment on procedendo—Johnson v. Murphy, 107 Tenn. 558.

49. Armijo v. Neher (N. M.) 68 Pac. 914.

50. Rector v. Hartford Deposit Co., 102 Ill. App. 554.

51. Order nisi opening default judgment—San Bernardino County v. Riverside County, 135 Cal. 618, 67 Pac. 1047.

52. Swortfiguer v. White, 134 Cal. xx., 66 Pac. 80.

53. Two applications for two different railway locations—Appeal of Cherryfield & M. E. R. Co., 95 Me. 361. To different parts of transaction—State v. Tolman, 106 La. 662.

54. How to proceed, see post, §§ 4-11.

55. Appeal and not error—Madison v. Horner (S. D.) 89 N. W. 474.

56. Highland Boy Min. Co. v. Strickley (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 852.

57. Uecker v. Magdanz, 62 Neb. 618; Van Doren v. Empkic-Shugart Co. (Neb.) 90 N. W. 220. In New Jersey circuit court judgments are open to error only—Morse v. State (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 693.

Proceeding to disconnect land from municipality is at law—Heebner v. Orange City (Fla.) 32 So. 879. Executor's application to sell land is at law and not in equity—In re Entenmann (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1033. Mandamus is at law—Jabine v. Oates, 115 Fed. 861. Error lies to judgment in eminent domain—Denver Power Co. v. Denver & R. G. R. Co. (Colo.) 69 Pac. 568. A proceeding before a probate court to open a decree of probate is equitable (Code Civ. Proc. § 675)—Williams v. Miles, 63 Neb. 859.

58. Bannard v. Duncan (Neb.) 90 N. W. 947.

59. To judgments in the supreme court under the Railroad Tax Act, § 28, error lies—State v. Erie R. Co. (N. J. Err. & App.) 50 Atl. 918.

60. Mathias v. Mathias, 104 Ill. App. 344.

61. Hume v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 689. Denial of leave to amend—Reiss v. Argubright (Neb.) 92 N. W. 985. Exclusion of evidence—Kinney v. Bittinger (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1005. Right to jury trial of an issue of fact—Day & Frees Lumber Co. v. Bixby (Neb.) 93 N. W. 688. Admitting or excluding evidence—Hillers v. Yeiser (Neb.) 93 N. W. 989.

62. Browne v. Palmer (Neb.) 92 N. W. 315.

63. Patrick v. Morrow (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 952.

64. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. v. Knudson (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 698.

65. Rev. St. 1899, § 806; Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. v. Peper (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 910.

66. Haines v. Cearlock, 95 Ill. App. 203.

67. Hooven, Owens & Rentschler Co. v. John Featherstone's Sons (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 81, 49 C. C. A. 229, holding that enforcement by foreclosure of mechanic's lien is in equity.

68. Appeal and error—Hooven, Owens & Rentschler Co. v. John Featherstone's Sons (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 81, 49 C. C. A. 229.

69. People v. Feitner, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 224.

tory mode of appeal is given.[70] Error should be brought where for some reason the party injured by a judgment has been unable to avail of his primary statutory remedy by appeal.[71] Error will not review an order not final.[72] Since a voluntary nonsuit is in defendant's favor, he cannot appeal, but error will lie.[73] Error lies to review nonsuit or dismissal as to part of defendants.[74]

B. Certificate or reservation.[75]—Not cases, but questions of law, may be certified by the circuit court of appeals to the supreme court,[76] and only when they present a distinct legal proposition separated from the mass of the record;[77] and the question must be one upon which the circuit judges are doubtful or desire instruction.[78]

Mixed questions are not "questions of law" which may be reserved or certified.[79] The Massachusetts superior court may report a decision coming from the registration court, though the latter may also do so direct.[80]

C. Ordinary or extraordinary and special modes of review.—Statutory remedies, as appeal or error, must, if adequate or applicable, be resorted to, and not certiorari or writ of review,[81] or supervisory control,[82] or prohibition,[83] though prohibition may

70. Decision of county court on apportionment of property on division of towns—Jamaica v. Vance, 96 Ill. App. 598.

71. Want of notice—Haines v. Cearlock, 95 Ill. App. 203.

72. J. L. Gates Land Co. v. Olds, 112 Wis. 268.

73. Florence & C. C. R. Co. v. Maloney (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 270.

74. Ellis v. Almand, 115 Ga. 333; Johnson v. Porter, 115 Ga. 401.

75. Courts may also specially order matters to be included in bills of exceptions, thus reserving questions which would not otherwise go up. See post, § 9.

76. German Ins. Co. v. Hearne (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 134.

77. Felsenheld v. U. S., 186 U. S. 126.

78. German Ins. Co. v. Hearne (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 134.

79. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 642—Lautman v. Miller, 158 Ind. 382.

80. See Statutes—Lancy v. Snow, 180 Mass. 411.

81. Eels v. Bailee (Iowa) 92 N. W. 668; P. L. 1899, p. 552, § 6—Smith & Co. v. Holshauer (N. J. Sup.) 52 Atl. 308. Temporary injunction—Parker v. Superior Ct., 25 Wash. 544, 66 Pac. 154, but certiorari was allowed as to part of it because appeal was too slow and relief doubtful. Distribution of an estate, appealable (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1721,1722)—State v. District Ct., 26 Mont. 378, 68 Pac. 411. Action for violation of ordinances appealable—State v. Lockhart, 28 Wash, 460, 68 Pac. 894. Appeal not too slow to review denial of discharge of receiver—State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 584, 68 Pac. 1052. Order of distribution under earlier will probated pending appeal from annulment of former probate, appealable—State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 677, 69 Pac. 375. Restraining order—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 177, 70 Pac. 256. Certiorari proper where no detriment had yet befallen—Huyser v. School Inspectors (Mich.) 91 N. W. 1020. Denial of motion to dismiss an appeal from a justice's judgment (Code, § 4154)—Eels v. Bailee (Iowa) 92 N. W. 668. Dismissal of appeal for failure of the sureties on the bond to justify is not an excess of jurisdiction, hence certiorari is not the remedy—State v. District Ct. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 516; nor are rulings sustaining objections to introduction of evidence on the ground that the complaint stated no cause of action dismissing it, discharging jury and entering judgment—State v. District Ct. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 981. Judgment in favor of materialman against owner reviewable by appeal and not by writ of review—Weldon v. Superior Ct., 138 Cal. 427, 71 Pac. 502. Appeal lies from district court judgment on appeal from mayor's court—State v. Miller (La.) 33 So. 739. Motion to postpone disbarment proceedings for absence of witnesses and shortness of time is reviewable on appeal—State v. District Ct. (Mont.) 71 Pac. 159.

Certiorari is proper to review lunacy proceedings—State v. Jackson, 93 Mo. App. 516. In Pennsylvania, the merits cannot be reviewed in inquisition of lunacy, because no way is provided to bring the evidence into the record, the review being by certiorari—Commonwealth v. Harrold (Pa.) 53 Atl. 760.

82. Denial of survey and inspection of mining claim—State v. District Ct., 26 Mont. 274, 67 Pac. 625.

83. In re Huguley Mfg. Co., 184 U. S. 297; Johnston v. Hunter, 50 W. Va. 52. Appeal pending from injunction against enforcement of ordinance—People v. District Ct., 29 Colo. 1, 66 Pac. 888. New trial in violation of mandate on reversal; appeal lies—King v. Doolittle, 51 W. Va. 91. Removal of police commissioners—People v. Sherman, 171 N. Y. 684; affirming 66 App. Div. 231. Review of special assessment appeal lies—People v. McCue, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 302. Errors curable by nunc pro tunc entry which will be appealable—Wand v. Ryan, 166 Mo. 646.

Want of jurisdiction assailable by certiorari—People v. De France, 29 Colo. 309, 68 Pac. 267. Error on motion for change of venue not reviewable by prohibition—People v. District Ct. (Colo.) 71 Pac. 388. Action of lower court on appeal from county commissioners is reviewable by appeal and not prohibition—State v. Neal, 30 Wash. 702, 71 Pac. 647. Proceedings on application for distribution of an estate reviewable by appeal and not prohibition—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 700, 71 Pac. 648. Judgment im-lie concurrently with appeal if jurisdiction is totally divested.[84] or if irreparable injury would follow a resort to appeal or error.[85] An appeal is not inadequate merely because expensive, dilatory, and annoying.[86] Like rules apply to mandamus,[87] which does not lie to review judicial acts.[88]

Mandamus, not appeal or error, is the remedy for refusal to settle a bill of exceptions.[90] If the refusal of the district court to dismiss an appeal for insufficiency of the bond be complained of, an order refusing to dismiss should be appealed, or mandamus brought to increase the bond.[91]

Suspension of an attorney with application or notice is open to a "writ of review" or certiorari.[92] The provision that one of the class of actions over which the circuit court of appeals has final jurisdiction may be brought to the supreme court "by certiorari or otherwise" means by other proceeding of the same kind as certiorari: hence it excludes appeal.[93] To review an unjust judgment, appeal from which has been prevented by the adversary, certiorari, if applicable, and not injunction, is the remedy;[94] but injunction may issue instead of appealing if jurisdiction has failed.[95] An order or judgment will not be controlled by injunction if appeal or error afford a remedy,[96] nor nullified by habeas corpus if otherwise reviewable or adequately remediable.[97] Especially will it be seldom done if the action of a state court is thus brought to a federal court.[98] Proceedings of the district court as distinguished from those of the judge under the Chinese exclusion act, being appealable, are not reviewable by this remedy.[99]

Concurrent modes of review may present an election.[1] Appeal may lie in the posing penalty for contempt by error and not by prohibition—Aichele v. Johnson (Colo.) 71 Pac. 367.

84. By change of venue—People v. District Ct. (Colo.) 69 Pac. 597.

85. Exposure of manner in which voters voted at election in controversy—State v. Spencer, 166 Mo. 271. Receivership proceedings, appeal too slow—Gates v. McGee, 15 S. D. 247.

86. State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 700, 71 Pac. 648. Error in taking jurisdiction is reviewable by appeal, not prohibition—State v. Superior Ct. (Wash.) 71 Pac. 722.

87. Remedy by appeal—In re Huguley Mfg. Co., 184 U. S. 297, 46 Law. Ed. 549. Code Civ. Proc. § 646—State v. Westover (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1002. Refusal to issue commission to take testimony—State v. Judge Civil District Ct., 107 La. 474. Order in contempt against contumacious juror—Ponpard v. Frazer (Mich.) 89 N. W. 577. Justice's order dismissing garnishment against corporation (Comp. Laws, §§ 1014, 1018)—Hyde v. Chadwick (Mich.) 90 N. W. 333. Striking scandalous affidavits and refusing new trial thereupon—State v. District Ct., 26 Mont. 372, 68 Pac. 465. Vacation of order for new trial—State v. Westover (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1002. Refusal to revoke probate—State v. Tallman, 29 Wash. 317, 69 Pac. 1101. Application of lunatic to be declared sane—Aldrich v. Superior Ct., 135 Cal. 12, 66 Pac. 846. Denial of motion to compel clerk to reinstate cause—Southern R. Co. v. Walker, 132 Ala. 62.

Mandamus will not lie if error or appeal is appropriate—State v. Jessen (Neb.) 92 N. W. 584. Mandamus will not lie to correct errors of fact by a board of equalization sitting in review of assessments—State v. Savage (Neb.) 91 N. W. 716.

Dismissal of appeal on court's motion entitles either party to entry of judgment which may be reviewed on error, hence mandamus to compel vacation of dismissal is wrong—Detroit, G. R. & W. R. Co. v. Eaton Cir. Judge, 128 Mich. 495.

Interlocutory vacation of dismissal, not appealable—Ex parte Jones, 133 Ala. 212. Appeal from commitment for contempt too slow—Dillon v. Shiawassee Cir. Judge (Mich.) 91 N. W. 1029. Appeal and not mandamus is the remedy where a court decides that the complaint states no cause of action, discharges the jury and enters judgment for defendant—State v. District Ct. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 981.

88. See Mandamus.

90. Williamson v. Joyce, 137 Cal. 151, 69 Pac. 980; Hartford L. & A. Ins. Co. v. Rossiter, 196 Ill. 277; affirming 98 Ill. App. 11.

91. Metropolitan Bank v. Blaise (La.) 33 So. 95.

92. McNamee v. Steele (Idaho) 69 Pac. 319.

93. Act of Congress, March 3, 1891, c. 517, § 6—Hugu[illegible]y Mfg. Co. v. Galeton Mills, 184 U. S. 290, 46 Law. Ed. 545.

94. Chapman v. Kane, 97 Ill. App. 567.

95. Judgment on new trial granted without notice—Smith v. Carroll (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 863.

96. Enforcement of ordinance, appeal lies—Boin v. Jennings, 107 La. 410. Injunction not available to one who failed to appeal—Kyle v. Richardson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 999. Injunction may lie if because there is no right of appeal plaintiff would be remediless—Board of Com'rs v. Spangler (Ind.) 65 N. E. 743.

97. In re Lewis, 114 Fed. 963; but see Ex parte Green, 114 Fed. 959.

98. Storti v. Massachusetts, 183 U. S. 138.

99. In re Chow Loy, 110 Fed. 952.

1. Furman v. Motley, 67 N. J. Law, 174.

same cause wherein certiorari has been brought, being for the review of different matters.[2] The remedy by motion to vacate may sometimes concur with appeal.[3]

Judgment for demurrant to a petition to vacate an order in bankruptcy is reviewable by petition under section 24b of the bankruptcy act, and not by appeal under section 25.[4]

If a cause has been improperly brought to the circuit court of appeals on error, certiorari will issue from the supreme court.[5] Prohibition in similar cases must issue before the court below is concluded by the judgment's becoming final.[6] If a court, in refusing to remand a cause, acts within its jurisdiction, certiorari will not lie, though the court making the transfer did exceed its jurisdiction.[7]

§ 3. The parties. A. Persons entitled to take up the cause.—No person can obtain a review unless he has a legal interest which is affected.[8] An interpleading party who has been dismissed cannot appeal the main cause.[9] If a partner of an attachment debtor intervene to claim property for the firm, and it be decided against his claim, he may appeal.[10] An intervening stockholder of an original party is a third party, and may appeal from a dismissal of his petition, though he fails to make his corporation a party.[11] A successful party may appeal if there was no jurisdiction.[12] Any person interested and aggrieved may appeal from a proceeding not inter partes, especially in probate and administration orders.[13]

Plaintiff cannot say that a defendant whom he sued lacks an appealable interest.[14] A mere lien, as that of an attorney, on a judgment, is not an appealable interest;[15] but a lien on the subject-matter of the judgment is.[16]

An appeal by the head of an executive department of a municipality is equivalent to an appeal by the municipality.[17] A public officer who is agent for transaction of legal business may appeal without special authorization.[18] A municipality which has no standing to oppose confirmation of a special assessment cannot, for lack of grievance, appeal from a refusal to confirm.[19] An action for penalties being civil, the state may appeal.[20]

2. Porter v. Butterfield, 116 Iowa, 725.

3. Order for final settlement made without notice to co-executor may be attacked by motion in orphans' court to set aside as well as by appeal—Yakel v. Yakel, 96 Md. 240.

4. In re Ives (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 911.

5. Security Trust Co. v. Dent, 187 U. S. 237.

6. Klingelhoefer v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 1008.

7. State v. Circuit Court (Wis.) 93 N. W. 16.

8. If neither a party nor a privy the record must show interest—J. L. Gates Land Co. v. Olds, 112 Wis. 268. Must be party to suit or judgment—Carlson v. Gilbert, 99 Ill. App. 574; Ackerman v. People, Id. 576. Voluntary appearance and answer recognized by court suffices—Richey v. Guild, 99 Ill. App. 451. Abstract questions not heard—McComb v. Title & Trust Co. (N. Y.) 36 Misc. 370.

Foreclosure decree setting aside a conveyance and revesting title in an intermediate grantee, who assumed the mortgage, does not aggrieve the original mortgagor—Gandy v. Coleman, 196 Ill. 189.

9. Warner v. Crandall, 88 Mo. App. 321.

10. Hopkins v. Prichard, 51 W. Va. 385.

11. Massey v. Louque (La.) 33 So. 764; White v. Louque, Id.

12. Libelant in divorce—English v. English, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.

13. Probate or refusal thereof—In re Cartright's Will (N. J. Eq.) 51 Atl. 713. Trustees of a cemetery in which a vault was to be built and who were to take a legacy upon a trust in case the legatee should die, have no interest to appeal from a refusal of probate—People v. McCormick, 201 Ill. 310. Board of medical examiners if aggrieved by decision of district court on appeal from their action on application for a license, may appeal to supreme court—State v. District Court (Mont.) 69 Pac. 710. Heirs can appeal decree to sell lands—Kronenberger v. Heineman, 104 Ill. App. 156. Comp. St. c. 20, § 42, surviving husband of deceased wife has interest in accounting of administrator who collected rents of land in which husband had life estate—In re Gannon's Estate (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1028; Gannon v. Phelan, Id.

Probate surety cannot appeal from final settlement—Shaw v. Humphrey, 96 Me. 397.

14. State v. Cranney (Wash.) 71 Pac. 50.

15. Attorney for deceased plaintiff—Barton v. New Haven, 74 Conn. 729.

16. Mortgagee of lands condemned—Omaha Bridge Co. v. Reed (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1021.

17. People v. Sturgis (N. Y.) 30 Misc. 596.

18. Township supervisor—Long v. Ionia Probate Judge (Mich.) 89 N. W. 938.

19. Construing Yonkers Charter, tit. 7, §§ 10, 11—In re Nepperhan St. in Yonkers (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 534.

Representatives or trustees are not aggrieved by orders which simply adjust rights of contending beneficiaries.[21] An individual is not aggrieved by a judgment affecting him in a representative capacity.[22] An executor is aggrieved by refusal to probate a codicil,[23] or by an order directing an account.[24] A receiver's personal interest goes only to compensation and reimbursement;[25] but a trustee appointed simply to make sale in partition may appeal if by any means he becomes subjected to the jurisdiction of the court and rendered liable.[26] A statutory guardian cannot appeal or review a decision on terms of a compromise made by the guardian ad litem.[27]

Order compelling a witness to answer questions on a commission,[28] adjudging against a disclaiming party,[29] or sustaining demurrer to an intervening co-defendant's plea which would abate the action,[30] aggrieves the witness, the disclaimant, and the defendant, respectively. An answering defendant alleged to be a co-owner with plaintiff is interested to appeal from the striking of a partition complaint.[31] Opening a decree settling titles and deciding adversely after the successful party has sold and taken a mortgage affects his lien, and he may appeal.[32] No one who is not restrained can appeal from an injunction.[33]

If in default, a party cannot appeal, even against a co-party,[34] except to attack jurisdictional defects.[35] A plaintiff is in default if he allows his action to lapse;[36] but failure to plead over after demurrer is not a default.[37]

Though not record parties, persons claiming as representatives may appeal.[38] A covenantor for title called in to defend has the right, though he defends in the covenantee's name;[39] but a mortgagee, not party, whose right is prior to the beginning of ejectment against the mortgagor is not affected.[40]

B. Necessary or proper parties to be joined or brought in.[41]—There must be an appellee;[42] and if, by death of a party and failure to substitute a personal representative, there is none, jurisdiction fails.[43]

Co-parties need not appeal or join where "any person who considers himself aggrieved" may appeal as of right.[44] One named as a co-defendant, but never 20. State v. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1057.

21. Taxation of costs to one of several funds of the estate—Grabill v. Plummer, 95 Md. 34. Decree which applies a property to the claim of a particular creditor excluding the others—Chinn v. Curtis, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1563.

22. An executor—State v. District Ct., 26 Mont. 369, 68 Pac. 334.

23. In re Stapleton's Will (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 1.

24. Tillinghast v. Brown University (R. I.) 52 Atl. 891.

25. Sutton v. Weber, 104 Ill. App. 260.

26. Arnold v. Carter, 15 App. D. C. 359.

27. Elder v. Adams, 176 Mass. 303.

28. In re Dittman (N. Y.) 65 App. Div. 340.

29. Stearns Ranchos Co. v. McDowell, 134 Cal. 362, 66 Pac. 702.

30. Both claimed rights in maintenance of a dam, because of defect in parties—Castle v. Madison, 113 Wis. 346.

31. Younger v. Superior Ct., 136 Cal. 652, 69 Pac. 435.

32. Hackleman v. Hackleman, 199 Ill. 54.

33. Stearns-Roger Mfg. Co. v. Brown (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 939; Portland G. M. Co. v. Brown, Id.

34. Henderson Hull & Co. v. McNally, 168 N. Y. 646. Co-defendants—Lexington v. Home Const. Co., 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1957.

35. Failure of attachment writ to state cause of action—Cline v. Patterson, 191 Ill. 246. Default judgment after improper refusal to transfer cause to another district—Goldman v. Jacobs (N. Y.) 38 Misc. 791.

36. Action to try validity of will—Delmar v. Delmar (N. Y.) 65 App. Div. 552. Eminent domain proceeding—Florida, C. & P. R. Co. v. Bear (Fla.) 31 So. 287.

37. People v. Manhattan R. E. & L. Co. (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 595.

38. Executrix succeeding temporary administrators—Kidd v. Morris, 127 Ala. 393.

39. Covenantee who was nominal appellant sought to dismiss—Ladd v. Kuhn, 27 Ind. App. 595.

40. J. L. Gates Land Co. v. Olds, 112 Wis. 265.

41. Mode of impleading parties, see post, § 6.—"Applications," etc.

Amending as to parties, and substitutions, see post, § 11,—"Amendments of parties."

42. In re Hurst Home Ins. Co., 23 Ky. Law Rep. 940.

43. Barton v. New Haven, 74 Conn. 729.

44. Appeal under Rev. St. art. 2759, from refusal to appoint appellant as guardian, sureties for costs did not appeal—Arthur v. Reed, 26 Tex. Civ. App. 574.

served or brought, need not join in the appeal, though a necessary party to the action.[45] Licensee of patent may appeal in patent case without the patentee.[46] Defaulting defendants need not be joined with appellees who answered.[47] Under statutes permitting part of co-parties to appeal in the names of all, all must be joined,[48] or at least named as appellants.[49] Co-defendants may unite as on original action if the judgment be on a cross complaint.[50] Persons who were heard to plead or demur are parties.[51] Defect of parties is not cured by the fact that on an independent appeal they are impleaded.[52]

In Indiana, vacation appeals must bring in all parties,[53] though different kinds of relief be granted, and one party be not affected.[54] The statute does not require it in term-time appeals.[55]

All the parties who may be affected by a reversal should be brought in,[56] in order to give jurisdiction.[57] All joint defendants must be brought in, or else a severance of interest in the judgment must appear on record.[58] If the success of an appeal may leave too large a judgment standing against a co-party, he should have notice of the appeal to bring him in.[59] A co-beneficiary of a deed has an interest which makes him a necessary party if the deed is to be set aside.[60] A receiver is necessarily affected by writ of error to a judgment settling his final report.[61] All who by a supplemental pleading stand as adverse to appellant must be made appellees to an appeal from a dismissal of it as a whole.[62] Attorneys for poor persons accused of crime are the adverse parties who must be cited when the county appeals from an allowance of fees to such attorneys.[63]

Proper parties.—An administrator cannot have a person to whom money was paid made party on appeal from an accounting in order to have judgment against him in case of disallowance.[64]

Successors in title and interest and substituted parties.—A personal representative has sufficient title to bring error without a revival of the judgment,[65] but, if the interest be one which passes to heirs, the revival should be in their

45. Hooven, Owens & Rentschler Co. v. John Featherstone's Sons (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 81.

46. Latter refused to appeal—Excelsior Pipe Co. v. Seattle (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 140.

47. Kaufmann v. Preston, 158 Ind. 361.

48. 3 Starr & C. 1896, p. 3099, § 70—Cooke v. Cooke, 194 Ill. 225.

49. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 647, allows part to appeal; held not sufficient to join others as appellees in assignment of errors—Smith v. Fairfield, 157 Ind. 491.

50. Downing v. Rademacher, 136 Cal. 673, 69 Pac. 415.

51. Commissioners in suit against sheriff —Small v. Edwards, 65 Kan. 858, 69 Pac. 165. Voluntary appearance and answer permitted —Richey v. Guild, 99 Ill. App. 451.

52. Collateral appeals from foreclosure of lien—Hall v. New York, 79 App. Div. 102.

53. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 647—Brown v. Sullivan, 158 Ind. 224.

54. Mellott v. Messmore, 158 Ind. 297.

55. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 647a—Gunn v. Haworth (Ind.) 64 N. E. 911.

56. Schrage v. McCoy, 28 Ind. App. 434; Moyer v. Badger Lumber Co., 64 Kan. 885, 67 Pac. 852.

On appeal from confirmation of sale, the purchasers should be brought in—Phillips v. Keel, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1752. On foreclosure of sale of land by assignee of the notes the vendor if held as a warrantor has such an interest as to make him a necessary party—Massie v. Louque (La.) 33 So. 764; White v. Louque, Id. Mortgagor against whom deficiency is awarded must be made party to appeal by lienor claiming above the mortgage, though after he be adjudged bankrupt—T. C. Power & Bro. v. Murphy, 26 Mont. 387, 68 Pac. 411.

Unaffected ones may be omitted—Coler v. Allen (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 609. Disclaiming parties not necessary or proper—Smalley v. Laugenour (Wash.) 70 Pac. 786.

57. Willits v. Harlan County (Neb.) 90 N. W. 656.

58. Fitzpatrick v. Graham (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 353.

59. Appellant was the co-party's grantee and sought to establish a deficiency in acreage, which would have lessened the co-party's liability for purchase money—Clayton v. Sievertsen, 115 Iowa, 687.

60. Arnett v. McGuire, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2319.

61. Haigh v. Carroll, 197 Ill. 193.

62. Kreuter v. English Lake Land Co. (Ind.) 65 N. E. 4.

63. Green Lake County v. Waupaca County, 113 Wis. 425.

64. James v. Craighead (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 241.

65. Haines v. Cearlock, 95 Ill. App. 203. Personal representative may continue appeal from divorce decree and grant of alimony after death of both parties—Coffman v. Finney, 65 Ohio St. 61, 55 L. R. A. 794.

names.[66] If administration is unnecessary, and the heirs are brought in, failure to substitute an administrator of a deceased party does not vitiate jurisdiction.[67] The administrator of a receiver should be substituted when the appeal concerns personalty in his hands.[68] When the plaintiff in a personal injury case has died before the transcript is filed, the appeal is perfected in Indiana by substituting the personal representative as appellee and serving him with notice of appeal.[69] It is not necessary to bring in transferees pendente lite if no abatement thereby results;[70] nor to make a substitution for one who dies pending appeal.[71] Therefore, on the death of a co-plaintiff in error, the right to reverse an erroneous judgment is in the survivors;[72] but there must be an adversary in court either by appearance or substitution.[73]

§ 4. Adjudications which may be reviewed. A. Statutes and legislation.—The appealability of a judgment may be retroactively changed or destroyed.[75] An act taking away jurisdiction of certain judgments will operate on all those subsequently rendered, but a further provision that it shall apply to all causes pending in inferior courts at the time does not make it retroact on judgments already rendered and subject to review;[76] but an act repealing a restrictive act does not, ipso facto, give jurisdiction to review judgments which, being rendered while the earlier act was in force, were not at the time reviewable.[77] Provisions allowing the legislature to limit and regulate the appellate jurisdiction given by the constitution should not be construed to authorize the destruction of the right of appeal.[78]

B. Dependent on the general form or the character of the adjudication. 1. Nature of decision in general.—Nonjudicial acts[79] and ministerial orders are not reviewable,[80] and hence "action or suit" which is appealable does not include a proceeding to obtain a vessel license from the district court of Alaska.[81] Nor can an act be reviewed which is for the judge, and not for the court.[82] The action of a justice cannot be reviewed under a statute giving an appeal from decisions of a court.[83] A pro forma decree without reference to the merits, but to allow the case to go up, will not be reviewed.[84] A futile review will not be made.[85]

66. Urlau v. Weeth (Neb.) 89 N. W. 427.

67. Applied where guardian died pending appeal from settlement of his account—Magness v. Berry (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 987.

68. State v. German Exch. Bank, 114 Wis. 436.

69. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Adams, 28 Ind. App. 420.

70. Code, § 3476—Emerson v. Miller, 115 Iowa, 315.

71. Code, § 4150—Williams v. Williams, 115 Iowa, 520.

72. Administrator need not be brought in—Jameson v. Bartlett, 63 Neb. 638, holding that the "right of action" which survives under Code Civ. Pr. § 456, is the right to reversal.

73. Barton v. New Haven, 74 Conn. 729.

75. Statutes may retroactively take away appeal (Act March 12, 1901, § 6)—Fitch v. Long (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 622. Act March 12, 1901, took away right to appeals from justice's court which were not perfected until after the act, though the judgment was rendered and appeal taken before—Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Thompson, 27 Ind. App. 367. Right of appeal from judgment of court of claims was taken away by the Act of Congress, March 3, 1887, c. 387, though appeal had already been made and notice given—District of Columbia v. Eslin, 183 U. S. 62. The act repealing the right to appeal from the opening of a default in a municipal court is operative only as to actions subsequently commenced (Laws 1902, c. 580, §§ 257, 261)—Johnson v. Manning, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 738.

76. Act May 12, 1902, limiting jurisdiction of supreme court—Gompf v. Wolfinger (Ohio) 65 N. E. 878.

77. Act Oct. 22, 1902, repealing Act May 12, 1902—Gompf v. Wolfinger (Ohio) 65 N. E. 878.

78. Const. art. 8, § 3—Finlen v. Heinze (Mont.) 70 Pac. 517.

79. Refusal by collector to permit transit of Chinese—Fok Yung Yo v. U. S., 185 U. S. 296.

80. Proceeding by probate court under 94 Ohio Laws, pp. 332, 333—Casper v. Norris, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 119. Grant or refusal of liquor license is quasi-judicial and appealable—State v. Alliance (Neb.) 91 N. W. 357.

81. Pacific Steam Whaling Co. v. U. S., 187 U. S. 447.

82. Appointment of a notary—Steinheimer v. Jones, 114 Ga. 349.

83. Denial of certiorari—Inhabitants of Brockton v. Plymouth County Com'rs (Mass.) 66 N. E. 427. Error does not lie from judgment of supreme justice in habeas corpus to supreme court—Ex parte Cox (Fla.) 33 So. 509.

The judgment must have been completed or perfected, as well as decision announced.[86] The clerk's filing indorsement is equivalent to entry.[87] It must in terms of certainty finally determine the rights.[88] An equity decree, filed with opinion findings and requests, is nisi until exceptions are heard.[89] When conditions are attached the judgment must show what will be the consequence if they are not met.[90] After judgment is entered, appeal should be from it, and not from an order for judgment.[91]

Void orders are not appealable,[92] nor are judgments which rest on them;[93] but an order made on a notice which was merely irregular is.[94] A void order should be first assailed by motion, and the order thereon appealed.[95]

Adjudications founded on the discretion or wisdom of the trial court are not reviewable,[96] except where the judicial, and not the absolute, discretion is ad-

84. Brown v. Brown, 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 544.

85. Ledebuhr v. Krueger (Wis.) 91 N. W. 1012. Error must be one which the court can correct—Rausch v. Barrere (La.) 33 So. 602. Of injunction against holding election after time for it has passed—Tampa Gas Co. v. Tampa (Fla.) 33 So. 465.

Appeals will be dismissed if there is no longer an actual controversy—Wallace v. Deane (Idaho) 69 Pac. 62; McGill v. Bartman (Ky.) 68 S. W. 1100; Wirth v. Wirth, 181 Mass. 541. See, also, cases cited under § 11, post, "Grounds for dismissal."

86. Demurrer sustained or overruled but no judgment yet entered is incomplete (Hollis v. Nelms, 115 Ga. 5; Sloss Iron & Steel Co. v. Knowles, 129 Ala. 410; Tutwiler Coal, C. & I. Co. v. Enslen, 129 Ala. 336; Tinney v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 129 Ala. 523; Memphis & C. R. Co. v. Martin, 131 Ala. 269; Martin v. Sherwood, 74 Conn. 202; Foster v. Bowles, 138 Cal. 449, 71 Pac. 495) even though the party stand on his pleadings—Hollingsworth v. Hollingsworth (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 900. Sustaining demurrer and refusing leave to plead over—Turner v. Hamilton (Wyo.) 67 Pac. 1117. Overruling demurrer by one defendant—Mackenzie v. Judson, 96 Ill. App. 26. Sustaining demurrer and ordering dismissal for want of amended pleadings—Harvey v. Cochran, 103 Ill. App. 576.

Judgment against plea to the jurisdiction—Ross v. Mercer, 115 Ga. 353. Striking answer on a rule to bring in new parties—Ray v. Anderson (Ga.) 43 S. E. 408.

Approval of referee's report on third person's claim against property of bankruptcy, final decree is directly reviewable—Walter Scott & Co. v. Wilson (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 284.

Order nisi for dismissal not followed by judgment—Plaisted v. Cooke, 181 Mass. 118. Order to clerk to enter judgment upon default of certain conditions—Kennedy v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (Iowa) 93 N. W. 71.

Mere verdict—Nordin v. Berner, 15 S. D. 611. Findings, sufficiency of words examined and held not to be a judgment—Barnemann v. Morrison, 132 Ala. 638. Judgment not entered on verdict when appeal taken—Kimmel v. Johnson, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 429.

Finality from which to compute time for appeal, see post, § 6-B.

Finality of judgment as distinguished from the mere completion of it by rendition entry or the like, see post, §§ 4-B, 5.

87. O'Connor v. McLaughlin, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 741.

88. Judgment on demurrer "in favor of defendants and against plaintiff for costs" held uncertain—Butte & B. Consol. Min. Co. v. Montana Ore Purchasing Co. (Mont.) 69 Pac. 714. Defendant "discharged hence without day" held sufficient—Powell v. Canaday, 96 Mo. App. 27. Mere recital that demurrer was sustained insufficient—White v. Whatley, 128 Ala. 524; Memphis & C. R. Co. v. Martin, 131 Ala. 269. Clerk's entry on record by way of mere recital—Richter v. Koopman, 131 Ala. 399; Cowan v. Campbell, 131 Ala. 211.

89. Shamokin & C. T. Light & Power Co. v. John, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 498.

90. Order to reinstate dismissed officer provided he claims no salary for interim—People v. York, 169 N. Y. 452.

91. Halliday v. Barber, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 116.

92. Decree in vacation—Adams v. Wright, 129 Ala. 305. Order continuing a temporary restraining order after appeal taken to a higher court—Jones v. Walter, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 878. Probate order for transfer of property not in state—Stafford v. American Missionary Ass'n, 22 Ohio Cir. Ct. 399. Proceedings under certiorari after judgment refusing to dismiss it for want of a bond—Alabama Midland R. Co. v. Stevens (Ga.) 43 S. E. 46. Special term cannot tax register's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 3287—In re Howe, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 7. Refusal of special term to dissolve ex parte injunction is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 626, 1347, 1348—Marty v. Marty, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 527.

93. On retrial after invalid vacation of first judgment—Akerman v. Ford (Ga.) 42 S. E. 777.

94. New trial, notice premature—Bell v. Staacke, 137 Cal. 307, 70 Pac. 171.

95. Ex parte order allowing attorney fees out of funds in court—Board of Education v. Ward, 50 W. Va. 443. The objector should move to vacate and appeal from that; ex parte order vacating an accounting before surrogate—In re Armstrong, 110 N. Y. St. Rep. 40.

96. Stephens v. Addis, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 185. Refusal to permit amendment after mandate and before entry of judgment—Kelly v. New Haven Steamboat Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 261. Refusal to hear oral evidence on motion for new trial, not within Pub. St. c. 153, § 8—Borley v. Allison, 181 Mass. 246. Refusal to open a default (Code, § 602) dressed.[97] Discretionary rulings during trial are not reviewed even when the appeal is entertained. Cases will be cited elsewhere.[98] A verdict set aside, or a refusal to do so, on considerations addressed to discretion, as excessiveness or sufficiency of evidence, is not reviewable, while, if error of law be the ground, the ruling is reviewable.[99]

"Merits," "principles of the cause," "orders preventing judgment," etc.—"Merits" of the controversy are not involved by a refusal to hear a motion to dismiss before a demurrer.[1] "Principles of the cause" cannot be settled by an appeal from exceptions to a pleading because too vague or uncertain,[2] nor by judgment on demurrer against an additional bill, which, however, is not supplemental.[3] Denial of a transfer of the cause is not appealable "to avoid delay" or decide "principles."[4] Judgment is not "prevented" by refusal to dismiss the action,[5] or by discharging attachment,[6] or by refusing to strike an application to amend for the purpose of recovering on a quantum meruit for a public improvement after a procedendo to enter injunction against a special assessment.[7] Dismissing an action for failure to bring it timely to trial after reversal is not a determination of the action preventing an appealable judgment; nor is a refusal to extend such time one.[8]

2. Rulings relating to pleadings and process, and before trial.—Orders denying the right to become a party (in a few states),[9] or sustaining[10] or dissolving jurisdictional process,[11] may be reviewed, but not the mere dissolution of,[12] or refusal to quash, attachments.[13] Rulings on motions to amend[14] or strike a pleading,[15]

—Browne v. Croft (Neb.) 91 N. W. 177. Refusal to set aside a verdict for insufficiency of evidence—Crossen v. Oliver, 41 Or. 505, 69 Pac. 308. Relief from orders taken by surprise or excusable neglect—Dunton v. Harper, 64 S. C. 338. Decree for costs in equity—West v. East Coast Cedar Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 742. Denial of leave to amend as matter of right—Hanley v. Board of County Com'rs, 87 Minn. 209. Refusal to exact cost bond or affidavit—Spicer v. Holbrook, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1812. Surrogate's refusal to resettle an order—In re Sondheim, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 5. Setting aside of default during term—Norton v. Maddox (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 319. Assignment of cause to one of two unoccupied trial terms—Collis v. Press Pub. Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 38. Motion for new trial for newly discovered evidence—Streep v. McLoughlin, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 165; overruling motion for rehearing—Clerks' Inv. Co. v. Sydnor, 19 App. D. C. 89. Motion to amend is discretionary though statute gives it of right subject to terms imposed—Snook v. Munday, 96 Md. 514.

97. Appeal lies from decree on bill to vacate decree for fraud—Hendryx v. Perkins (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 801.

98. See infra, § 13—"Rulings peculiar to province of trial court."

99. Wood v. Atlantic & N. C. R. Co., 131 N. C. 48. And see Streep v. McLoughlin, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 165.

1. Garthwaite v. Bank of Tulare, 134 Cal. 237, 66 Pac. 326.

2. Answer disclosed no defense—Wallace v. Bobbitt, 79 Miss. 402.

3. A stockholder's bill to enforce a contract whereby he was to buy up a corporate property, is not supplemental to his bill for a receivership, though filed with it, and hence a judgment against it on demurrer does not adjudge the principles of the cause so as to be appealable—Smith v. Pyrites Min. & C. Co. (Va.) 43 S. E. 564.

4. Code, § 34—Vicksburg Waterworks Co. v. Vicksburg, 79 Miss. 510.

5. For non-compliance with Rev. St. 1898, § 2632—Benolkin v. Guthrie, 111 Wis. 554.

6. Spokane Dry Goods Co. v. Fritz, 26 Wash. 433, 67 Pac. 252.

7. Allen v. Davenport, 115 Iowa, 20.

8. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3069, 3072—Sutton v. Chicago, St. P., M. & O. R. Co., 114 Wis. 647.

9. Rutledge v. Tunno, 63 S. C. 205.

Contra, see 17 Am. & Eng. Encyc. Law (1st Ed.) 648; Wenborn v. Boston, 23 Cal. 321; Cobre Grande Copper Co. v. Greene (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 524. Conditional leave to intervene was set aside before the party had come in and the petition showed only a case for leave in discretion of the court; not appealable—Massachusetts L. & T. Co. v. Kansas City & A. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 110 Fed. 28.

10. Against one who specially appears—Plano Mfg. Co. v. Kaufert, 86 Minn. 13.

11. Discharge of trustees after dissolution of attachment—Sprague v. Auffmordt (Mass.) 66 N. E. 416. Nonsuiting attachment action not a dismissal of writ for irregularity—Gates v. Avery, 112 Wis. 271.

12. Dissolution or vacation of attachment before judgment—Machen v. Keeler (N. M.) 68 Pac. 937; Jung v. Myer (N. M.) 68 Pac. 933. Order (before 1901) discharging attachment neither determines action nor prevents judgment—Spokane Dry Goods Co. v. Fritz, 26 Wash. 433, 67 Pac. 252.

13. Refusal to quash foreign attachment—Bellah v. Poole, 202 Pa. 71.

14. Denial of leave to amend—Ayers v. Makely, 131 N. C. 60. To amend notice of election contest—Hanley v. Board of Com'rs Cass County, 87 Minn. 209.

15. Demurrer—Breeding v. Grantland, 135 Ala. 497.

or for security for costs,[16] unless the right to it be statutory,[17] or to change the venue,[18] do not ordinarily affect any substantial right nor have appealable finality. Contra, as to an amendment out of time to conform to proof.[19]

If, on demurrer, the ruling must be final,[20] which it is not if the demurrer be special,[21] or if leave be given to amend,[22] or a pleading[23] or count[24] or cause of action be left standing.[25] The judgment, and not the mere ruling against demurrant, is appealable.[26] Judgments on dilatory pleas are not final.[27]

3. Dismissals, nonsuits, orders to strike cause, etc.—Dismissals determining the cause are reviewable;[28] otherwise, not.[29] Neither is a refusal to dismiss.[30] A ruling on a "motion" to dismiss an action as having abated will not be deemed to be judgment on a plea in abatement, which is not appealable.[31] If it works a final disposal of the cause, an order striking it,[32] or permitting a voluntary dismissal after allowing opening of an adverse judgment, is reviewable.[33] A voluntary nonsuit,[34] or an order taking one off,[35] is not reviewable, except by statute.[36] An involuntary nonsuit,[37] or ruling on motion to set it aside, is.[38] Nonsuiting an attachment action is not a dismissal of the writ for irregularity.[39] Refusal to direct a verdict after disagreement is not final.[40]

16. Refusal to require security for costs (Rev. St. 1898, § 3069)—Cullen v. Hanisch, 114 Wis. 24.

17. Watson v. Glassie, 95 Md. 658.

18. Rulings on change of venue (Comp. Laws, § 3422)—Peters v. Jones, 26 Nev. 259, 66 Pac. 745.

19. Wicker v. Messinger, 22 Ohio Cir. Ct. 712, 12 Ohio Cir. Dec. 425.

20. Sustaining demurrer to complaint for injunction, plaintiff not pleading over—Peters v. Lewis, 28 Wash. 366, 68 Pac. 869; see also infra, this section. Sustaining demurrer of only defendant of whom jurisdiction was had—Lough v. John Davis & Co. (Wash.) 70 Pac. 491. Sustaining demurrer and entering dismissal and final judgment—People v. City Council, 97 Ill. App. 72.

21. Special demurrer for misjoinder—Leavitt v. S. D. Mercer Co. (Neb.) 89 N. W. 426.

22. Walker v. Nat'l G. Loan & Trust Co., 133 Ala. 240. Sustaining demurrer with leave to amend, also allowing appeal to settle the principles of the case—Barrier v. Kelly (Miss.) 32 So. 999.

23. To amended bill leaving first bill standing—Hobson v. Hobson, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 156.

24. To one of two counts without passing on the other—Greig v. Elliot, 29 Colo. 283, 68 Pac. 237.

25. Demurrer by sureties and awarding costs but overruling demurrer by principal defendant (Code Civ. Pr. § 939)—Nolan v. Smith, 137 Cal. 360, 70 Pac. 166.

26. Stromberg-Carlson Tel. Mfg. Co. v. Bisbee, 115 Ga. 346; Padley v. Gregg, 26 Wash. 322, 67 Pac. 72. To petition for prohibition and sustaining temporary writ—Dumont v. Payne, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 288. To petition for condemnation of land—Parker v. Superior Ct., Snohomish County, 25 Wash. 544, 66 Pac. 154. Order directing judgment overruling plaintiff's demurrer and dismissing complaint—Gabay v. Doane (N. Y.) 66 App. Div. 507.

27. Plea to jurisdiction of the person—State Mut. Life & An. Ass'n v. Kemp, 115 Ga. 355. Order overruling plea to the procedure and not to jurisdiction is not final—Puritan Trust Co. v. Coffey, 180 Mass. 510. Dilatory plea to an interpleaded claimant's answer, the liability remaining undecided—Hely v. Lee, 108 Tenn. 715. Motion to dismiss on abatable grounds not a plea in abatement—Brown v. Kellogg, 182 Mass. 297.

28. Without prejudice after submitting cause (Code, § 4101)—Carney v. Reed (Iowa) 91 N. W. 759. Denial of extension of time to proceed after reversal and grant of new trial and dismissal on cross motion—Sutton v. Chicago, St. P., M. & O. Ry. Co., 114 Wis. 647.

29. Dismissal of part of defendants alleged to be jointly liable—Carmichael v. Texarkana (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 845. Dismissal of a cross-libel in admiralty—Bowker v. United States, 186 U. S. 135, 46 Law. Ed. 1090.

30. Refusal to dismiss (Meekins v. Norfolk & S. R. Co., 131 N. C. 1; Clinard v. White, 129 N. C. 250) for want of service—Jester v. Baltimore Steam Packet Co., 131 N. C. 54. Refusal to dismiss for delay in taking out mandate—Gregory v. Thompson Sav. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 988.

31. Brown v. Kellogg, 182 Mass. 297.

32. Striking from calendar because removed to federal court—Ashland v. Whitcomb, 114 Wis. 99.

33. Without notice and with leave to withdraw costs paid as condition to vacating.—Dane v. Daniel, 28 Wash. 155, 68 Pac. 446.

34. Graham v. Parsons, 88 Mo. App. 385.

35. Heilman v. McKinstry, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 70. Setting aside nonsuit entered to avoid adverse ruling not a new trial—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Hansen, 135 Ala. 284.

36. Laster v. Blackwell, 128 Ala. 143, holding that it must appear that it was entered in consequence of rulings on trial.

37. Nonsuit as to part of defendants—Ellis v. Almand, 115 Ga. 333.

38. Veatch v. Norman, 95 Mo. App. 500.

39. Gates v. Avery, 112 Wis. 271.

40. Crowley v. Richards (Iowa) 89 N. W. 103.

4. Orders directing or arresting judgment, or on motion for new trial, are not reviewable at common law,[41] or generally, because lying in discretion,[42] but in some states are made so by statute.[43] Referring a cause to the assignment list after disagreement of the jury is not a grant of a "new trial," which is appealable if it affects a substantial right,[44] nor is setting aside a voluntary nonsuit entered to avoid an objection to evidence.[45]

5. Final judgment or decree.[46]—The adjudication must be finally determinative of the controversy, and must substantially affect the rights of parties.[47] Substantial rights are not affected by the court's assigning reasons for giving to a plaintiff the relief which he demands.[48]

It must be so far final that, if affirmed, nothing remains to the trial court but to execute it;[49] but it may be final, though it open or give rise to other causes of action,[50] or leave some questions reserved or undecided.[51] It is not final if the case be retained.[52] If a refusal to enter judgment on a mandate be merely to permit the trial of a newly-asserted claim, it is not final, but in substance a postpone-

41. Order for judgment non obstante—Sanderson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. (Minn.) 92 N. W. 542. Arresting judgment—Brazel v. New South Coal Co., 131 Ala. 416. New trial not in federal courts—South Penn Oil Co. v. Latshaw (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 598.

42. Streep v. McLoughlin (N. Y.) 36 Misc. 165. Setting aside verdict and ordering new trial at same term—Bird v. Bradburn, 131 N. C. 488.

43. Code, § 4101—Boyce v. Timpe (Iowa) 89 N. W. 83. Denying new trial in proceedings to distribute an estate (Code Civ. Proc. § 1722)—In re Davis' Estate (Mont.) 70 Pac. 721. Probate court decisions on motion for new trial not included in statute relating to "circuit or city courts" (Code, § 434)—Beatty v. Hobson, 133 Ala. 270.

44. The fact that plaintiff had moved to amend before defendant appealed did not raise any substantial right in defendant—Dossett v. St. Paul & T. Lumber Co., 28 Wash. 618, construing Ball. Ann. Codes & St. §§ 5006, 5007, 5070, 5071, 6500, subd. 6.

45. Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Hansen, 135 Ala. 284.

46. Finality is a necessary element of orders other than judgments and decrees determinative of the action. As to such, see subsections 6-9 following. Bock v. Grooms, (Neb.) 90 N. W. 204; Brodhead v. Minges, 99 Ill. App. 435; Coleridge Creamery Co. v. Jenkins (Neb.) 92 N. W. 123; De Harrison v. Perea (N. M.) 70 Pac. 558. When trial is to jury order must be final—Creamery Package Mfg. Co. v. Magill (Neb.) 89 N. W. 170. Circuit court decree not appealable to supreme court on the merits until entirely disposed of—Covington v. First Nat. Bank, 185 U. S. 270, 46 Law. Ed. 906.

47. Orders held final: Denial of petition to be appointed guardian and reinstatement of former guardian—Arthur v. Reed, 26 Tex. Civ. App. 574. Decree to sell mortgaged land—Kronenberger v. Heinemann, 104 Ill. App. 156. Final injunction against discontinuing a telephone service so long as the defendant continues in business in the jurisdiction—Chesapeake & P. Tel. Co. v. Manning, 186 U. S. 238, 46 Law. Ed. 1144. Confirmation of referee's report on reference of damages on injunction bond—Wisconsin M. & F. Ins. Co. Bank v. Durner, 114 Wis. 369. Default judgment after improper refusal to transfer cause to another district—Goldman v. Jacobs, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 781.

Orders held not final: Judgment overruling special plea to jurisdiction—Ross v. Mercer, 115 Ga. 353. Final judgment on demurrer as to one defendant only not final so as to be reviewable by error—Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. v. Peper (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 910; Rock Island Implement Co. v. Marr, 168 Mo. 252. Order fixing a priority but not determining the amount—Davis v. McCullouch, 192 Ill. 277. Decree fixing rights of annuitant in lands of an estate but suspended until reference to adjudicate further rights—Ohio River R. Co. v. Fisher (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 929. Refusal to enter default—Brockway v. W. & T. Smith Co. (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 1073. Decree subjecting lands of trustee to payment of trust moneys and referring to commissioner to state accounts—Savings & B. & L. Ass'n v. Tart (Miss.) 30 So. 693. Report of referee stating an account—Shankle v. Whitley, 131 N. C. 168. Confirmation of commissioner's report—Paul v. Wetlauf, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1480.

48. Where an injunction based on prescriptive rights was granted partly on the ground that a statutory right warranted it—Hume v. Turner (Or.) 70 Pac. 611.

49. Brodhead v. Minges, 99 Ill. App. 435.

50. A decree on original bill in the nature of a bill of review impeaching a decree for fraud and letting the parties proceed in the original suit—Hendryx v. Perkins (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 801. Judgment on dismissal of suit, but referring damages from issuing of injunction therein—West v. East Coast Cedar Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 742.

51. Railroad Commission v. Weld, 95 Tex. 278. Partition decree for sale is final though rights in proceeds remain undecided—East Coast Cedar Co. v. People's Bank (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 446. Adjudication of one legatee's rights on bill to construe will—Hawes v. Kepley, 28 Ind. App. 306.

52. Assessment of taxes against national bank decreed null and case reserved to inquire into future assessments—Covington v. First Nat. Bank, 185 U. S. 270, 46 Law. Ed. 906. Decree finding that one mortgage was ment.[53] It must be res adjudicata as to all parties who were brought in, but need not be as to others merely named as parties;[54] and it does not suffice that a judgment was entered for one co-party on an amended petition alleging that he had taken a transfer of the others' rights.[55]

6. Orders and adjudications in interlocutory or provisional, extraordinary, and special proceedings.—Interlocutory or provisional orders are not separately reviewable,[56] in the absence of legislation. Those intermediate orders and rulings which go up for review with the main judgment are the subject of a later section of this article. This section refers only to their separate appealability.[57]

Statutes in most states designate certain proceedings or orders therein, and certain interlocutory orders, which may be appealed or reviewed.[58] An enumeration of particular ones excludes the reviewability of others.[59] A statute giving appellate jurisdiction in all civil cases does not include special statutory proceedings,[60] and this meaning is not enlarged by a provision that writs of error or appeals shall lie in the same manner as provided for the supreme court.[61] A proceeding before a judge, as such, is not reviewable as a proceeding before the court.[62] A statute of a territory giving an appeal from interlocutory orders is void if the organic act provides for review of final orders only.[63]

These orders must be final,[64] or affect a substantial right.[65] Allowing an ap-paid and ordering retention of cause on the other to await other litigation—Brodhead v. Minges, 198 Ill. 513.

53. Justice v. Phillips, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 290.

54. Hooven, Owens & Rentschler Co. v. John Featherstone's Sons (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 81. Judgment on one demurrer only—Pittsburgh P. G. Co. v. Peper (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 910.

55. Joint suit to recover land—Jackson v. Coombs (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 385.

56. Coleridge Creamery Co. v. Jenkins (Neb.) 92 N. W. 123; De Harrison v. Perea (N. M.) 70 Pac. 558.

57. Section 13, infra.

58. Temporary alimony — Eickhoff v. Eickhoff, 29 Colo. 295, 68 Pac. 237; Motley v. Motley, 93 Mo. App. 473; Marx v. Marx, 94 Mo. App. 172. Allowance of counsel fees to wife in divorce is appealable though made pending a second trial, and also as a final order affecting a substantial right—Schuster v. Schuster, 84 Minn. 403. An allmony decree in Louisiana before final judgment appealable regardless of amount (Const. 1898, art. 85)—Dale v. Hauer (La.) 33 So. 741.

Refusal to grant removal to federal courts is not within Code, § 34, allowing granting of an appeal from interlocutory orders "to state principles" or "avoid delay"—Vicksburg Water Works Co. v. Vicksburg, 79 Miss. 510.

State may appeal in proceedings for indirect contempt (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1915)—State v. Rockwood (Ind.) 64 N. E. 592. By statute in Oregon, one adjudged to be in contempt may appeal as in an action—State v. Gray (Or.) 70 Pac. 904.

59. Refusal to vacate an order denying appointment of administrator ad litem not enumerated (Rev. St. 1899, § 806)—Creech v. Young, 94 Mo. App. 90. Order quashing information to remove county commissioners (Rev. St. § 4807)—Mahoney v. Elliott (Idaho) 69 Pac. 108. Provisions for appealing judgments of a common pleas court settling accounts of county officers do not include an order discharging a rule to strike off such proceedings, it being interlocutory—Moore's Appeal, 203 Pa. 376.

60. 3 Mills' Ann. St. § 1002 D—Fletcher v. Smith (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 697.

61. Such provision refers to procedure only—Fletcher v. Smith (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 697.

62. To compel delivery of papers under Pol. Code, § 272—Albea v. Watts, 114 Ga. 149. Applications for certiorari—Brockton v. Plymouth County Com'rs (Mass.) 66 N. E. 427; or habeas corpus—Ex parte Cox (Fla.) 33 So. 509.

63. Laws 1901, c. 82—Jung v. Myer (N. M.) 68 Pac. 933; Laws 1899, c. 75, §§ 8, 9—Machen v. Keeler (N. M.) 68 Pac. 937.

64. Final orders: Refusal to compel delivery of books, etc., to public officer under Code Civ. Pr. § 2471a, is appealable—In re Brenner, 170 N. Y. 185. Reversal of order continuing a proceeding to settle an administrator's account, ordering objections withdrawn and account approved, is a final order in a special proceeding which goes to the court of appeals—In re Fitzsimons, 174 N. Y. 15. Decision under Rev. St. arts. 4564-4566, that certain rates of freight were unreasonable and giving no other relief; statute provides that reasonableness shall be the only issue tried—Railroad Commission v. Weld, 95 Tex. 278. Refusal to make a rule to pay money absolute—Hollis v. Nelms, 115 Ga. 5.

Orders not final: Judgment with findings in habeas corpus but leaving child in respondent's custody until further order is not final—Hart v. Cotten (Fla.) 31 So. 817. Decree for possession pending taking of final proofs and hearing—Lewis v. New Music Hall Co., 100 Ill. App. 415. Order to remove fence pending action for permanent removal—McKinney v. Thomson, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 337. Order for accounting in a partition suit—Glos v. Clark, 199 Ill. 147.

plication to amend after a procedendo in an injunction suit to prevent a special assessment, so that defendant might recover on a quantum meruit, goes to the merits, and is material.[66] If the same questions arise on appeal from final judgment,[67] or if an interlocutory decree has passed into final decree, the appeal must be from the latter.[68] Refusal of nonsuit should be reviewed on appeal from judgment or from motion for a new trial.[69]

A decision on lunacy proceedings finding the person sane is not appealable in Indiana.[70]

Provisional orders for relief.—It is not the "grant, refusal, continuance, or modification of a provisional remedy" to refuse to limit an examination.[71] Injunctional orders are generally made reviewable,[72] when made on hearing, and not in vacation.[73] The refusal of an injunction is an exception in some jurisdictions.[74] A dismissal of a complaint for an injunction may be appealable as refusing an injunction or on demurrer, if substantially that, though irregular;[75] and a refusal to dissolve a temporary restraining order or injunction may be regarded as equivalent to granting one.[76] A refusal to grant or dissolve a preliminary injunction is not now appealable to the United States circuit court of appeals.[77] In Louisiana, dissolution of an injunction against acts which, if done, may be adequately reparable in money, is not appealable.[78] There should, as in other cases, be some invasion of substantial right or effect upon the merits and a final decision.[79]

Order nisi to remove trustee—Chappell v. Clarke, 94 Md. 178. Denial of application by attorneys for creditors to be recognized as attorneys for an insolvent estate—In re People's Sav. Bank (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 397, 398. Order in special tax proceedings setting aside dismissals of certain defendants and construing statutes, then referring the case—Specht v. Barber Asphalt Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 887.

Order to executor to file inventory and account—In re Allen's Estate, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 32; or to petition for sale of land—Lane v. Thorn, 103 Ill. App. 215. Order dismissing attorney's petition for allowance from estate because not brought up on accounting of executor who employed him—Nash v. Wakefield, 30 Wash. 556, 71 Pac. 35.

65. A determination under the Iowa statutes that a consent to the sale of liquors was sufficient affects such a right—Porter v. Butterfield, 116 Iowa, 725. A non-taxpaying applicant for removal of an officer is not substantially affected by an adverse decision—In re Aldrich, 114 Wis. 308.

Orders in administration must decide rights, affect merits or aggrieve parties—Lane v. Thorn, 103 Ill. App. 215. Refusal to revoke probate affects a substantial right, i. e., to declare an escheat—State v. Tallman, 29 Wash. 317, 69 Pac. 1101. Appointment of appraisers of an estate does not—Mayrand v. Mayrand, 95 Ill. App. 475.

66. Allen v. Davenport, 115 Iowa, 20.

67. Dismissal of complaint—Kelly v. Theiss, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 81.

68. Judgment against cross-bill on demurrer merged into dismissal of cross-bill—Wilder v. Dunne (Fla.) 33 So. 508.

69. Brauer v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 407.

70. State v. Branyan (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 464.

71. Rev. St. 1898, § 3069—State v. Mathys (Wis.) 91 N. W. 114.

72. Interlocutory injunction (23 Stat. at Large, p. 673)—Williams v. Jones, 62 S. C. 472. Rev. St. 1899, § 806, dissolution of interlocutory order of injunction—Powell v. Canaday, 96 Mo. App. 27. Right may be lost by proceeding to trial of main issue—Sharples v. Baker, 100 Ill. App. 108.

73. On hearing—Fuller v. Schutz (Minn.) 93 N. W. 118. In Alaska an interlocutory grant or dissolution of an injunction is appealable (Alaska Code, § 507), though not on a "hearing in equity," as it must be under the federal practice, which so far as applicable is adapted to Alaska—Lane v. Jordon (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 623. Orders of judges granting or refusing to dissolve injunctions in vacation—Hawkins v. Burwell, 191 Ill. 389; Sharples v. Baker, 100 Ill. App. 108.

74. Remedy was to apply to supreme court—Hudson v. Barham (Va.) 43 S. E. 189.

Contra: Dissolution of writ of temporary injunction—Stansbury v. Storer (Neb.) 91 N. W. 197. Refusal to dissolve injunction—United States Heater Co. v. Iron Molders' Union (Mich.) 88 N. W. 889.

75. The demurrer was coupled with answer and the judgment ignored the merits pleaded by answer—Quayle v. Bayfield County, 114 Wis. 108.

76. Act of Congress, Feb. 9, 1893—McFarland v. Washington, A. & M. V. R. Co., 18 App. D. C. 456. Refusal to dissolve injunction (Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 22, § 52) is equivalent to granting one—Hately v. Myers, 96 Ill. App. 217.

77. Since Act Cong. June 6, 1900—March v. Romare (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 354; Berliner Gram. Co. v. Seaman (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 750.

78. Injunction against execution sale—Globe Lumber Co. v. Griffeth, 107 La. 621.

79. Order granting temporary allowance for alimony is not a "trial" and not final—Stewart v. Stewart, 28 Ind. App. 378.

Injunctional orders affecting substantial rights: Against operation of a ginnery—

Though a bill of discovery is ancillary to another action, yet the order to answer is final;[80] and so are other determinative orders in proceedings which arise as collateral to the main cause.[81]

Eminent domain proceedings are covered by statute, as shown in footnotes.[82] When final, such orders must be reviewed as an entirety.[83] Footnotes collect the decisions on finality of such orders, and effect on substantial rights.[84]

7. Orders after judgment on the main cause may, under many statutes, be appealed if final as to the parties and subject-matter.[85] An order extending time to Williams v. Jones, 62 S. C. 472. Refusal to allow defendant to bond an injunction, devolutively appealable—Sanders v. Ditch, 107 La. 333. Against litigating claim for damages on condemnation until title be decided —South Bound R. Co. v. Burton, 63 S. C. 348. Mandatory injunction to surrender possession of disputed property—State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 403, 68 Pac. 865. Injunction to restrain disturbance of receiver's disputed possession of premises—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 177, 70 Pac. 256.

Receivership proceedings held final and appealable: Order for issuance of receiver's certificates to be prior to existing mortgage liens—Bibber-White Co. v. White River Valley E. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 786. Order to receiver of banking partnership to turn over property to trustee in bankruptcy of the partners (Rev. St. 1898, § 3069, sub. 2). Refusal to settle final account of receiver in foreclosure suit and to charge expenses and costs against the complainant—Chapman v. Atlantic Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 257. Order in escheat proceedings that heirs surrender to receiver property after final distribution—State v. O'Day, 41 Or. 495, 69 Pac. 542. Interlocutory orders appointing receiver or extending his powers—St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. Co. v. Vandalia, 103 Ill. App. 363. Order appointing receiver appealable as transferring property though appellant claims it to be exempt (Code 1892, § 34)—Levy v. T. J. Rossel & Co. (Miss.) 33 So. 651.

Not final: Appointment of receiver—Barber v. International Co., 74 Conn. 652; Coons v. Frost, 100 Ill. App. 303. Order to receiver to purchase plant to work tailings of a mining company is neither final order nor judgment in a collateral controversy (Code Civ. Pr. § 963)—Free Gold M. Co. v. Spiers, 135 Cal. 130, 67 Pac. 61. Directing purchases by receiver—Free Gold M. Co. v. Spiers, 136 Cal. 484, 69 Pac. 143. Order to clerk to pay over to receiver—Coons v. Frost, 100 Ill. App. 303.

80. Hurricane Tel. Co. v. Mohler, 51 W. Va. 1.

81. Commitment of witness for refusing to answer is final—Flower v. MacGinniss (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 377. Order nisi for removal of trustee not final—Chappell v. Clarke, 94 Md. 178.

82. County court judgment on report of commissioners to assess damages to land taken for railroad is ultimate and not appealable (V. S. §§ 3821, 1625)—Goodsell v. Rutland-Canadian R. Co., 74 Vt. 206. An eminent domain act giving the right to appeal from the "decision of a city council in awarding damages," but not operating to prevent making of the contemplated works, allows an appeal from damages only—Stearns v. Barre, 73 Vt. 281.

83. Confirmation of inquisition on eminent domain proceedings is conclusive and not reviewable as to all except the right to condemn—Hopkins v. Philadelphia, W. & B. R. Co., 94 Md. 257.

84. Orders held final: Refusal to appoint commissioners—Denver P. & I. Co. v. Denver & R. G. R. Co. (Colo.) 69 Pac. 568. Appointment of appraisers to assess damages by flowage by water company's works (Sp. Laws 1873, p. 478; 1897, p. 708); also acceptance of their report on its return into court —New Milford Water Co. v. Watson (Conn.) 52 Atl. 947; Id. (Conn.) 53 Atl. 57.

Not final: Order fixing amount of bond in condemnation proceeding.—Pittsburgh, C. & W. R. Co. v. Gamble (Pa.) 53 Atl. 759. Appointment of commissioners to fix compensation for railroad crossings under Railroad law, § 12, not final—Stillwater & M. St. R. Co. v. Boston & M. R. R., 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 367.

Substantial rights: If an unconstitutional taking of property be sought (taking one carrier's tracks for another carrier) appeal lies from the appointment of viewers before any assessment of damages—In re Philadelphia, M. & S. St. Ry. Co., 203 Pa. 354. Refusal to re-tax costs on appraisal and assessment is an order affecting a substantial right in special proceeding—In re Collis, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 495.

85. Barber v. International Co. of Mexico, 74 Conn. 652. Vacation of judgment not made appealable by Laws 1893, p. 119, § 1, subd. 1—Nelson v. Denny, 26 Wash. 327, 67 Pac. 78.

Held final: Decision that party had failed to meet terms of decree for specific performance is appealable—Lamprey v. St. Paul & C. Ry. Co., 86 Minn. 509. Vacation of decree after term (Code Civ. Proc. § 581)—Bannard v. Duncan (Neb.) 90 N. W. 947. Refusing to vacate—In re Lamona's Estate, 29 Wash. 394, 69 Pac. 1093. Modifying or reversing order reducing alimony decree appealable—Davis v. Davis, 78 App. Div. 500; Livingston v. Livingston, 173 N. Y. 377. Orders opening judgment on judgment-note (Act May 20, 1891, p. 101), also appealable with final judgment (Act April 4, 1877)—Schomaker v. Dean, 201 Pa. 439. Taxation of costs of prosecution to county whence it came and in favor of county where tried, appealable—Green Lake County v. Waupaca County, 113 Wis. 425. An order subjecting to a judgment money deposited as security for appeal costs only and in lieu of a bond is appealable—Mitchell v. Evans, 18 App. D. C. 254.

Held not final or appealable: Vacation of judgment—Metler v. Metler, 28 Wash. 734, 69 Pac. 9. Opening decree and allowing answer —Browne v. Croft (Neb.) 93 N. W. 406. Over-settle a bill of exceptions is neither a "special order after judgment" nor a final order, under the California statute.[86] Refusal to vacate judgment,[87] or denying confirmation of a partition sale in part, is such a special order.[88] Setting aside execution levy and sale is such.[89] A cost decree is not appealable in Louisiana simply because in a divorce proceeding.[90]

8. Decisions of intermediate courts on appeal are often not subject to further review.[91] A provision giving writ of error to review judgments of named city courts and other "like" courts does not include a city court which differs in not having a common-law jury trial.[92] If only a law point remains, appeal may lie to the court of last resort, without a retrial below;[93] but if the intermediate court modifies the lower court's order, the judgment of the lower court as entered should not be taken to the highest court, but the order of the intermediate court.[94] When the first appeal is tried de novo, the judgment will go up, if other essentials of reviewability coexist.[95]

They must ordinarily be final to be so reviewable,[96] or leave nothing further to ruling motion to set aside judgment from which findings were omitted: the error was reviewable with the judgment—Mantel v. Mantel, 135 Cal. 315, 67 Pac. 758. Refusal to vacate judgment which reserved leave to make such application—Magruder v. Schley, 17 App. D. C. 227. Order imposing terms on vacation of judgment—Board of Socorro County v. Blackington (N. M.) 65 Pac. 995.

Order taxing costs, etc.—Murray v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 26 Mont. 388, 67 Pac. 625. In impeachment proceedings against justice of the peace—In re Kelly, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 344. Refusing to retax—Warner v. Godfrey, 17 App. D. C. 102; Williams v. Getz, 17 App. D. C. 388. Order allowing additions of fees to a return to a writ, not reviewable until taxed as costs—Harding v. Riley, 181 Mass. 334. Order taxing cost reviewable with judgment—Montana Ore Co. v. Boston & M. M. Co. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 1114.

Refusal to extend time for settling a bill of exceptions does not affect substantial right. The statute only authorizes extensions of time of proceedings other than appeals (Rev. St. 1898, § 2831)—Hatch v. Kurtzwell, 112 Wis. 231.

86. Kalischmidt v. Weber, 136 Cal. 675, 69 Pac. 447.

87. (Code Civ. Pr. § 939)—Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Cochran, 134 Cal. xix, 66 Pac. 742.

88. Dunn v. Dunn, 137 Cal. 51, 69 Pac. 457.

89. Otis Bros. & Co. v. Nash, 26 Wash. 39, 66 Pac. 111.

Refusal to set aside execution is not the vacation of a judgment which is specially made appealable—Stephens v. Addis, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 185.

90. Frele v. Lubben, 107 La. 79.

91. "Federal review of state decisions," see post, subsection C-13. Ordinarily this is done by prescribing as jurisdictional facts an amount in controversy or by classifying the decisions with respect to their nature as freehold cases, constitutional cases, etc.; see below, § 4-C. Appealable to higher court: Refusal to compel delivery of books under Code Civ. Pr. § 2471a, goes from appellate division to court of appeals—In re Brenner, 174 N. Y. 185. Melody v. Goodrich, Id. Refusal on appeal to circuit to grant liquor license goes to appeals—Appeal of Candill, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2139. The court of appeals of the District of Columbia will not review a decision on appeal from a justice of the peace except for want of jurisdiction apparent on the record—Mitchell v. Evans, 17 App. D. C. 233. Action before a justice against railroad for killing stock (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5313) is within justice's jurisdiction though concurrent with the circuit court if demand is for over $50; hence decision of circuit is conclusive and no higher appeal lies—Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Watkins, 157 Ind. 600.

92. City court of Americus (Acts 1900, p. 93)—Monford v. State, 114 Ga. 578.

93. Erie R. Co. v. Steward, 170 N. Y. 172. Judgment and order for entry of judgment on answer as frivolous presents law point—Halliday v. Barber (N. Y.) 38 Misc. 116.

94. Surrogate's decree was modified by appellate division. Appeal should be from the order modifying or from an order affirming as modified—In re Union Trust Co., 172 N. Y. 494.

95. Denial of application for letters of administration and refusal to revoke existing letters on appeal from probate court (Rev. St. 1899, §§ 278, 284, 285)—Burge v. Burge, 94 Mo. App. 15.

96. Reversal and remand on error not final—Montana M. Co. v. St. Louis M. & M. Co., 186 U. S. 24, 46 Law. Ed. 1039. An appellate decision that a deed and bond for reconveyance constituted a mortgage and remanding the cause to take an account thereon is not final—Callahan v. Ball, 197 Ill. 319. Judgment of general term on appeal from special term, reversing judgment of special term on demurrer and dismissing the cause for failure to plead over is not a final determination of the general term on the issue raised by demurrer, hence it is appealable in the first instance to the appellate division—Abbey v. Wheeler, 170 N. Y. 122. Exceptions in the circuit court in Indiana held sufficient to appeal from commissioners' award in eminent domain proceedings for a railroad crossing; which being undisposed of left no appealable judgment to go further up—Wabash R. Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 29 Ind. App. 546.

be done by the trial court but to execute the mandate.[97] When the appellate division in New York reverses an order for new trial on ground of newly-discovered evidence, and affirms the judgment, only the affirmance can go on to the court of appeals, the other being on the merits.[98] Finality of an affirmance is neutralized by a reversal and remand of the same judgment on a cross writ of error.[99] Consent of the intermediate court cannot give appealability.[1] Want of jurisdiction may take the case to the highest court.[2] Judgments on appeals to lower courts are not appealable when declared to be "final."[3]

The act creating federal circuit courts of appeal did not destroy finality of a circuit court's decision on appeal from a general board of appraisers of customs; hence no further appeal is allowed unless there be a certificate of importance.[4]

9. Parts of judgments.—Judgments may be reviewed in part so far as they are severable.[5]

C. Dependent on character or value of action, subject-matter, or controversy.—A cause is not appealable by stipulation unless one of the jurisdictional conditions exists.[6] If special grounds of appeal be relied on, the proceeding must be one which may involve such grounds.[7]

1. Nature of action.—Whether an action is civil does not depend on the proofs offered.[8] A penal[9] or mandamus action is civil.[10] Mandamus to compel placing an officer's name on a pay roll is not, however, a civil action for "recovery of

A judgment of the appellate division reversing a decree which reduced alimony goes to the court of appeals—Livingston v. Livingston, 173 N. Y. 377.

97. Remand to enter judgment "according to opinion"—Friedman v. Lesher, 198 Ill. 21. Not final when remanded for further proceedings in conformity with opinion which held that the error consisted in failing to establish one element of the right to recover—Haseltine v. Central Nat. Bank, 183 U. S. 130, 46 Law. Ed. 117. Denial of motion in appellate division to vacate attachments and judgment, not final—Hammond v. National Life Ass'n, 168 N. Y. 262. Reversal by appellate division of special term order modifying final order is final and appealable—In re Board of Education, New York, 169 N. Y. 456. Reversal by court of appeals of D. C. of decree refusing injunction and dissolving preliminary one, and remanding cause for final injunction, will go to U. S. supreme court—Chesapeake & P. Tel. Co. v. Manning, 186 U. S. 238, 46 Law. Ed. 1144.

98. The appeal was was dismissed because the record showed no entry of the affirmance—Reiss v. Pelham, 170 N. Y. 54.

99. Error from U. S. circuit court of appeals to circuit, dismissed on error from supreme court—Montana M. Co. v. St. Louis M. & M., 186 U. S. 24, 46 Law. Ed. 1039.

1. Lewin v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 169 N. Y. 336.

2. Justice's judgment—Darrell v. Biscoe, 94 Md. 684.

3. Appeal to circuit court from surveyor's apportionment of ditch maintenance (Burns' Rev. St. 1894, §§ 5633-5636)—Pittsburg, F. W. & C. Ry. Co. v. Gillespie, 158 Ind. 454. Dismissal of appeal by district court for want of prosecution, not appealable beyond district court—Smith v. District Court, 24 Utah, 164, 66 Pac. 1065. Award of damages in eminent domain—Goodsell v. Rutland-Canadian R. Co., 74 Vt. 206.

4. Error from the higher court will not lie—United States v. Diamond Match Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 288.

5. In re Kittson's Estate, 84 Minn. 493. Judgment of partial dismissal after directed verdict as to other part—Wilson v. Mechanical Orguinette Co., 170 N. Y. 542. One feature was favorable to each party; appeal must be entire—Crane v. Odegard (N. D.) 91 N. W. 962. Decree of interpleader not severable so as to be appealable as to the discharge of plaintiff only—New Zealand Ins. Co. v. Smith, 41 Or. 166, 69 Pac. 268. Dissolution of injunction not appealable apart from dismissal of bill—Burnham v. Driggers (Fla.) 32 So. 796. Though divorce is not appealable costs and alimony are—Alderson v. Alderson, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 595.

6. Denver v. Marselis, 29 Colo. 79, 66 Pac. 887.

7. A petition for correction of an assessment is limited to a comparison of values fixed on other assessable property (Mills' Ann. St. § 3841), and hence presents no constitutional freehold or franchise questions—First Nat. Bank v. Board of Montrose County, 29 Colo. 114, 66 Pac. 890.

8. Action to cancel a charter under the anti-trust act is appealable to the civil appeals though the facts might support an indictment—State v. Shippers' Compress & W. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1049. Action for penalties under anti-trust law is civil—State v. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1057.

9. Action for penalty under city ordinance—Springfield v. Starke, 93 Mo. App. 70.

10. Mandamus is a civil action within the jurisdiction of the court of appeals. (3 Mills' Ann. St. § 1002 d)—Orman v. People (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 430. In Illinois mandamus being appealable as civil cases, goes to the appellate and not to the supreme court—People v. Deneen, 201 Ill. 452.

money."[11] Nor is an action one for recovery of money when only the right to interest is disputed.[12] An action ex contractu within the intermediate jurisdiction refers to the nature of the cause of action, and not to the form of the action.[13]

2. Questions of law afford, in some courts, a jurisdictional ground.[14] Errors assigned in the form of an application to condemn property, or in the jurisdiction or the form of the award, are purely of law, which makes the case reviewable in the supreme court, and not in the superior court, in Connecticut.[15]

3. The existence of a constitutional question makes cases appealable, either directly or ultimately, to the highest court in many states, and to the federal supreme court.[16] Such a question is involved if the judgment is in pursuance of decisions on the unconstitutionality of the law,[17] or necessarily involves constitutional questions.[18] A constitutional question is raised by requesting an instruction that a certain vending of merchandise was interstate commerce.[19] If the question is no longer an open one, the constitutionality of a statute cannot be raised.[20] Claims of right under federal laws must have some litigable merit.[21] Validity of a statute is not in question on a contention merely as to its repeal[22] or construction.[23] If a direct question of validity of the statute be disposed of on another ground without objection, the constitutional question is not raised.[24] The lower court must decide against constitutionality in order to raise a question for jurisdiction of the

11. And hence is appealable though the salary involved is less than $200 (Const. art. 4, § 4)—State v. Daggett, 28 Wash. 1, 68 Pac. 340.

12. Whitehead v. Brother's Lodge, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1633.

13. Action to reform a policy and compel a payment thereon—Clinton Mut. County Fire Ins. Co. v. Zeigler, 201 Ill. 371.

14. Striking case from city court docket (Gen. Stat. 1902, § 788, giving appeal from "any" question of law)—Sanford v. Bacon (Conn.) 54 Atl. 204.

15. Gen. St. § 1146; Public Acts 1897, p. 888, § 1—Hubbard v. Hartford, 74 Conn. 452.

16. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Reynolds (Va.) 41 S. E. 856. See also infra, this section, "13, Federal review of state decisions." Question of conflict between state law and federal constitution, ground for error from supreme to circuit court—Fidelity M. L. Ass'n v. Mettler, 185 U. S. 308, 46 Law. Ed. 922.

17. Clark v. West Virginia C. & P. R. Co., 50 W. Va. 1.

18. Refusal to allow receiver to pay costs of suit in which he was appointed does not involve "due process of law"—Chicago Gen. Ry. Co. v. Sellers, 191 Ill. 524. Legality of adoption of amendment to constitution adopting three-fourths vote of jury—Boling v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 67. Prohibition of retrospective laws involved in a controversy over the validity of a pledge made before the usury laws and renewed afterwards—Marx v. Hart, 166 Mo. 503. A county attorney rightfully employed under a statute contemplating that he shall serve in addition to the district attorney, does not supplant a constitutional officer; hence when the district attorney sues for fees in suits conducted by the county attorney, no constitutional question arises. (Const. art. 6, § 21; Mills' Ann. St. §§ 813, 1551)—McMullin v. Board of Commissioners, 29 Colo. 478, 68 Pac. 779. Habeas corpus tried on the theory that the prisoner was twice punished for the same offense—Carter v. McClaughry, 183 U. S. 365, 46 Law. Ed. 236. Refusal to charge on the burden of proof in a libel suit does not raise the constitutional right to prove the truth in such a case—Hanlon v. Pulitzer Pub. Co., 167 Mo. 121.

19. Action for penalty for selling without license—Canton v. McDaniel, 91 Mo. App. 626.

20. Equitable Life Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308. Domesticity of commerce by telegram between domestic termini but over route partly in foreign state—W. U. Tel. Co. v. Reynolds (Va.) 41 S. E. 856. Legality of act already settled by decisions—Van Camp Hardware & Iron Co. v. O'Brien, 28 Ind. App. 152. Constitutionality of Acts 1895, pp. 58, 59, dispensing with allegations of freedom from contributory negligence, has been settled—Atlanta Nat. Gas, etc., Co. v. Boyer, 28 Ind. App. 516.

21. A federal question is not raised so as to oust jurisdiction by an answer in replevin that as a forwarder having paid customs duties on the goods defendant was entitled under the federal laws to be subrogated to the lien of the customs duties—State v. Bland, 168 Mo. 1.

22. Pearce v. Vittum, 193 Ill. 192.

23. The question whether an act authorizing a recovery of damages from dealers in intoxicating liquors required that the injury be attributable to the intoxication as a cause, is one of construction and not of constitutionality—Sauter v. Anderson, 199 Ill. 319. The question whether Act Feb. 25, 1898, created the office of supervisor of assessment or merely added such duties to the county treasurer is one of construction and not constitutionality—Foote v. Lake County, 198 Ill. 638.

24. Instruction that law was invalid refused because inapplicable to issue—Village of Morgan Park v. Knopf, 199 Ill. 444.

supreme court in Louisiana.[25] The constitutional question must be raised on trial,[26] or at least in the trial court.[27] None is presented if the cause was dismissed before hearing.[28] Such a question is not presented so as to give jurisdiction to the United States supreme court when first raised in the state court of appeal, and for that reason not passed on.[29]

4. Construction of statutes and public regulations is of itself a ground in Indiana.[30] An action to recover a fine is not one "to test the validity of regulations" adopted by a public body, and made specially appealable.[31] A justice's judgment does not involve construction of the statute, where the pleadings bring the parties within the statute, and the sole question is one of proof.[32]

5. Jurisdictional questions are not raised by a finding of the existence or nonexistence of facts calling into force a special remedy.[33]

6. Conflicting or overruling decisions.—In Missouri, a decision, to be certifiable to the supreme court as in conflict with its decisions, must be on the whole case, and not alone on a single point.[34] In Texas, error will lie if civil appeal decisions be in conflict, though the latter one is a reversal, and remands the case.[35] A conflict must be well defined to warrant certification.[36] The case should be certified if one decision conforms to the supreme court decision, and the other conflicts;[37] but if the question has already been decided by the supreme court, it should not be certified again.[38] The supreme court will not issue a writ of error on the ground that the civil appeals has overruled its former decision, unless the lower court "practically settles the case."[39]

7. Revenue and tax cases.—The revenue is not directly affected by a suit to annul a public contract for street improvements, and to enjoin payments thereunder,[40] or by controversy as to apportionment of funds,[41] or by action to compel the furnishing of duplicate books.[42] An action to collect taxes may involve the construction of facts for the collection of taxes by cities without construing "the revenue laws of the state."[43]

In Louisiana, a question of the legality, but not the regularity, of tax, carries

25. State v. Pollock, 108 La. 594.

26. To oust jurisdiction of court of appeals—Kreyling v. O'Reilly (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 372.

27. Question raised on new trial timely if there was no occasion to do so earlier—Barber Asphalt Co. v. Ridge, 169 Mo. 376. General statement of unconstitutionality of an ordinance in brief does not raise question—Standard Oil Co. v. Danville, 199 Ill. 50.

28. Enjoining acts of a city as unconstitutional—Harding v. Carthage (Mo.) 71 S. W. 673.

29. Jacobi v. Alabama, 187 U. S. 133.

30. An action involving construction of a statute relating to fees of constables will go from the circuit court to the supreme court, though the amount sued for was within a justice's jurisdiction (Rev. St. 1901, § 1337h)—State v. Bagby, 29 Ind. App. 554.

31. Regulations of a railroad commission (Const. art. 285)—Railroad Commission v. Kansas City So. R. Co., 107 La. 450.

32. Terre Haute & L. R. Co. v. Erdel, 158 Ind. 344.

33. Dismissal of a petition in voluntary bankruptcy on the ground that defendant was chiefly engaged in farming—First Nat. Bank v. Klug, 186 U. S. 202, 46 Law. Ed. 1127.

34. Const. Amend. 1884, § 6—Gipson v. Powell, 167 Mo. 192.

35. Harn v. American B. & S. Ass'n, 95 Tex. 79.

36. McCurdy v. Conner (Tex.) 66 S. W. 664.

Decision that district can adopt local option though it is already in force in part of district does not conflict with one that it cannot vote when it is already in force in the county—Kidd v. Rainey, 95 Tex. 556. Decisions on the right to make openings in a railroad fence held not in conflict—International & G. N. R. Co. v. Richmond (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1029.

37. Decisions upon materiality of survey in trespass to acquire title—McCurdy v. Conner (Tex.) 66 S. W. 664.

38. Yoacham v. McCurdy, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 183.

39. Rev. St. art. 941, subd. 8, art. 943—Rotan Grocery Co. v. Rogers, 95 Tex. 437.

40. Wells v. Rogers, 196 Ill. 292.

41. Conflict of claims of municipalities to public funds—Reed v. Chatsworth, 201 Ill. 480.

42. Assessment books—People v. Hendee, 199 Ill. 55.

43. Const. art. 6, § 12—Hannibal v. Bowman, 167 Mo. 535.

the case to the supreme court.[44] Its constitutionality or legality is not involved by seeking to compel issue of certificate that poll tax has been paid.[45] Assessments levied by action of taxpayers do not, unless the proper amount be involved, go to the supreme court.[46]

S. Cases involving freeholds and titles.—A judgment and not the prayer determines whether freehold is involved.[47] A freehold or the title to realty is involved if the effect of decree is to transmute it from one person to another, or if the decision necessarily involves passing of the title, though it is not in fact changed.[48] In Missouri it is not sufficient that the title to land is collaterally investigated.[49] It is necessarily involved whenever title is disputed;[50] hence it is involved if the question be whether a highway legally exists,[51] or on proceedings to vacate and reestablish a highway,[52] but not if the mere fact of existence is in issue, as in an action for penalties for obstructing.[53] The assertion of a life estate as against the claim of easement is one of freehold.[54] So is the assertion of an easement in a highway,[55] or the assertion of a right of inheritance of a child against devises by its father.[56] If one in possession of land, resisting an attempt to evict him, seeks the annulment of plaintiff's title, the title, and not alone the possession, is in issue for jurisdictional purposes.[57] A title is involved if an ejectment defendant bought in on execution sale to pay the costs, and was afterwards sued to recover possession.[58] It may be involved by intervention to assail an attachment defendant's title,[59] but is not affected by a suit to remove a sheriff's certificate of sale as a cloud on the title.[60] A suit to compel a conveyance to the purchaser whose right

44. Legality of sidewalk tax appealable —S. D. Moody & Co. v. Chadwick, 108 La. 66. Action assailing tax books for want of taxing power and also because of illegality of assessment, is appealable though the latter ground alone would be insufficient, unless the jurisdictional amount was involved —Tebault v. New Orleans, 108 La. 686. If an assessment be assailed solely for irregularity, it must involve the jurisdictional amount—State v. Board of Assessors, 107 La. 572. A tax assailed because the collector had failed to do certain things and was therefore without authority to proceed, does not involve constitutionality and legality of the tax but only regularity of the collector's proceedings—State v. Delgado, 107 La. 72.

45. McAyeal v. Murrell, 108 La. 116.

46. Ayers Pav'g Co. v. Loewengardt (La.) 33 So. 553.

47. The complainant sought to recover mining claims and judgment was given under the cross complaint for a lien on the claims—Weiss v. Gullett, 29 Colo. 121, 67 Pac. 155.

48. Mills v. Wilson, 95 Ill. App. 88; Pettyjohn v. Adams, 95 Ill. App. 243; Hanon v. Jones, 100 Ill. App. 583; Smith v. Patton, 97 Ill. App. 180; McDavid v. Sutton, 104 Ill. App. 626. Suit to set aside a divorce as against heirs of one of the parties who died seised of realty, does not involve freehold—Maher v. Title Guaranty & Trust Co., 95 Ill. App. 365. Suit to vacate a decree amounting to a muniment of title, involves title to realty —Pelz v. Bollinger, 87 Mo. App. 540. Seeking to set aside fraudulent conveyance and revest title in owner involves title—Balz v. Nelson (Mo.) 72 S. W. 527. Suit to cancel a trust deed and the notes secured for failure of consideration and duress, involves title—Lappin v. Crawford, 92 Mo. App. 453.

49. Side issue on the question of ownership to determine whether proper notice was given to foreclose a mechanic's lien—P. M. Bruner Granitoid Co. v. Klein (Mo.) 70 S. W. 687.

50. Smith v. Patton, 97 Ill. App. 180. Title is involved by suit designed to assert title as against an estoppel to claim it—Spence v. Renfro, 88 Mo. App. 59. Freehold pleaded to trespass q. c. f.—Patterson v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1571. Freehold pleaded to trespass—Roach v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1222. It may be put in issue by plea of general issue —Dolton v. Malin, 102 Ill. App. 417.

51. Cox v. Commissioners, 97 Ill. App. 218. Injunction against laying out road on the ground that title had not been divested, involves freehold—Commissioners of Highways v. Elwood, 96 Ill. App. 239. Title decided in suit enjoining penal action for obstruction of a highway—Village of Dolton v. Dolton, 196 Ill. 154.

52. Perry v. Bozarth, 198 Ill. 328.

53. Action for penalty for failure to cut hedge fences—Herman v. Commissioners, 197 Ill. 94. Freehold not involved in action for penalty for obstructing highway—Seidschlag v. Antioch, 198 Ill. 413.

54. Truax v. Gregory, 98 Ill. App. 395.

55. Village of Dolton v. Dolton, 99 Ill. App. 141. Village street—Harlem v. Suburban R. Co., 198 Ill. 337.

56. Flannigan v. Howard, 101 Ill. App. 616.

57. State v. Judges, 107 La. 487.

58. Tice v. Hamilton, 94 Mo. App. 198.

59. Alsdurf v. Williams, 196 Ill. 244.

60. Johnson v. McDonald, 196 Ill. 394. A sheriff's certificate was assailed on the ground that the property was a homestead and that the sale was not regular—Charleston State Bank v. Brooks, 197 Ill. 388.

is not controverted involves no title.[61] No question of freehold is involved in application for writ of assistance,[62] or an injunction against interfering with opening a road, and to compel acceptance of damages awarded,[63] or on petition to disconnect land from a city, where the sole questions are whether it is unplatted, and whether petitioner owns all of it;[64] but "title to realty" is affected by injunction against obstruction of an easement.[65]

Proceedings to foreclose liens on land do not, as a rule, involve freeholds.[66] Title is not the substantive fact put in litigation by a plea of adverse title to a foreclosure suit;[67] otherwise, if it be by cross bill.[68]

Suit of trustee in bankruptcy to set aside fraudulent conveyance does not involve freehold if claims are paid from another source;[69] otherwise it does.[70]

Boundary cases do not include all actions in which a boundary is the issue.[71]

9. A franchise is involved wherever the court must necessarily determine whether or not one exists,[72] as in quo warranto assailing validity of a municipal organization,[73] or action seeking dissolution and receivership of a corporation.[74] No franchise is involved on a bill to set aside a conveyance of letters patent,[75] nor in a controversy over the right to a corporate name.[76]

10. Probate and administration orders are usually appealable.[77] A judgment of the county court in Illinois, holding a legatee's petition for an accounting demurrable, is appealable to the circuit, and not to the appellate, court;[78] also a proceeding to compel the surrender of property under the administration act.[79]

11. The jurisdictional amount in controversy, as prescribed by statute,[80]

Freehold not involved in appeal to set aside judgment and suppress record as a cloud on title for lack of jurisdiction of the person—Helton v. Elledge, 199 Ill. 95.

61. Krepp v. St. L. & S. F. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 479.

62. Kerr v. Brawley, 193 Ill. 205.

63. Rhoten v. Baker, 193 Ill. 271.

64. Roodhouse v. Briggs, 194 Ill. 435.

65. Against obstruction of a stairway claimed as an easement—Peters v. Worth, 164 Mo. 431.

66. The mere question whether a mortgage continued in existence or was extinguished, does not involve a freehold—Poole v. Kelsey, 95 Ill. App. 233. Judgment in suit to quiet title finding a lien and charging same, does not involve title—Rowe v. Current River Land & Cattle Co., 167 Mo. 305. A suit to subject a trustee's title to a lien of her creditor as against the cestui que trust on the ground that they had held out the trustee's ownership and procured credit to her, does not involve title to real estate though the prayer is that title be declared in the trustee for such purpose—Klingelhoefer v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 1008.

67. Tarr v. Abrams, 64 Kan. 887, 68 Pac. 605.

68. Cross bill alleging adverse title to a foreclosure involves freehold—Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Galloway, 95 Ill. App. 60.

69. Lamont v. Regan, 96 Ill. App. 359.

70. Smith v. Patton, 97 Ill. App. 180.

71. An action on a contract for sale of land will go to the Texas supreme court though the sole issue is on a boundary—Steward v. Coleman County, 95 Tex. 445.

72. People v. School Directors, 97 Ill. App. 108.

73. People v. Marquiss, 192 Ill. 377.

74. Bixler v. Summerfield, 195 Ill. 147.

75. Maginn v. Bassford, 196 Ill. 266.

76. Jockish v. Deutcher Krieger Verein, 98 Ill. App. 9.

77. Interlocutory orders must decide rights, affect merits or aggrieve parties—Lane v. Thorn, 103 Ill. App. 215. Order to file inventory and accounting appealable in Rhode Island (Gen. Laws, c. 248, §§ 1-3)—Tillinghast v. Brown University (R. I.) 52 Atl. 891. A petition for a fuller accounting by one administrator will in Maryland be regarded as addressed to the general jurisdiction of the orphans' court and not to the special jurisdiction given where he has "concealed" or has omitted to return property in his hands, hence a decree should be reviewed in the court of appeals instead of making up issues to try the fact as provided in the special statute.—Cummings v. Robinson, 95 Md. 83. May be further appealed when tried de novo—Burge v. Burge, 94 Mo. App. 15. An order refusing to set aside an order of final settlement may be appealed though it is without prejudice if it is too late to apply again—Yakel v. Yakel, 96 Md. 240. Order to executor to petition for sale of land decides no right—Lane v. Thorn, 103 Ill. App. 215. An executor is aggrieved by refusal to probate a codicil—In re Stapleton's Will (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 1.

78. The proceeding is statutory and not a suit or proceeding "at law" or "in chancery" within the appellate court act—Rochey v. Downey, 98 Ill. App. 320.

79. People v. Benson, 99 Ill. App. 325.

80. The supreme court will not entertain appeal to grant new trial from Buffalo municipal court if neither party pray judgment for $50—King v. Norton (N. Y.) 36 Misc. 53. Less than $25 will not go either to the appeals or supreme—Moore v. State, 63 Kan. 886, 66 Pac. 239.

usually excludes costs,[81] and is reckoned by the sum claimed, not the amount recovered.[82] Thus, the demand, and not the amount owing by a garnishee,[83] or the amount of liens claimed, not that of the decree adjusting them, controls;[84] but if a judgment be the subject of action, the original demand is ignored.[85] Costs taxed against an attorney on dismissing an action should be regarded as a part of the main judgment in determining the amount;[86] but contra if the taxation or allowance of costs is not an incident of the main demand.[87]

Jurisdiction of suits on "contract" involving a specified amount excludes interest and costs.[88] If the appealability depends on the amount of the "judgment," a provision for the transfer of property of unspecified value will not aid a money judgment which is below a specified sum.[89]

If title to land be involved, the value of it is in many states no longer a jurisdictional element;[90] but in Louisiana the appealability of an action for partition by licitation among the heirs is determined by the sum in controversy, if the only dispute is the obligation of an heir to collate.[91] Likewise of a suit for partition of the community property when independent of a judgment of separation.[92] In other states a certificate of importance or the like must also be had if the land is worth less than the limit of value.[93] An action by a partial assignee in his own name alone on a chose in action is at law, and must involve the jurisdictional amount.[94] Actions to recover money or personalty do not include those where the right to interest is the subject of litigation.[95]

The amount not only may, but must, be necessarily involved.[96] The amount of the mortgage debt will be included with defaulted interest in an action seeking foreclosure on the ground that the default matured the debt.[97] In forcible entry, the rental value is the amount in controversy.[98] In a boundary case, the value

81. Lockett v. Clifford, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1. Judgment in disbarment proceedings reprimanding respondent and taxing him with $61 costs is appealable though less than $100 is involved—State v. Tracy, 115 Iowa, 71.

82. Kirby v. Ranier-Grand Hotel Co., 28 Wash. 705, 69 Pac. 378; Howard v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1051. Demand for over $200.—judgment $185 is appealable—Dugdale v. Doney, 28 Ind. App. 283. In Kansas it is the amount which might have been recovered under the allegations of the complaint — Pampel v. Downey, 64 Kan. 888, 68 Pac. 607. The amount in controversy exceeds $100 so as to give an appeal to the court of civil appeals, where the suit was originally for $200 before a justice of the peace but judgment for $50 was recovered in the county court (Rev. St. 1895, art. 996)—Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Cunnigan, 95 Tex. 439.

83. Hutmacher v. Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n, 198 Ill. 613.

84. M. Pugh Co. v. Wallace, 198 Ill. 422.

85. Defendant's action of nullity upon a judgment against him for $1500 resulting from a suit for $5000 involves too little—Royal v. Frederick Leyland & Co. (La.) 33 So. 49. On a decree for money found due on a trustee's accounting, the amount decreed and not the difference between it and the amount originally claimed against him was held to be in controversy—Prentice v. Hancock (Pa.) 53 Atl. 763.

86. Dismissal of $34,000 suit taxing costs of less than $300—People v. Madden, 134 Cal. 611, 66 Pac. 874.

87. Attorney's fees allowed for services in a foreclosure—State v. Judges, 106 La. 241.

88. Note for $100 with interest, making in all less than $200, is within "justice's jurisdiction" of "suits on contract not involving more than $100" and not within concurrent jurisdiction of justices up to $200 (see Statutes)—Shaul v. Citizens' State Bank, 157 Ind. 281.

89. Ducey v. Patterson, 29 Colo. 290, 68 Pac. 239.

90. Injunction against execution—Park v. McReynolds, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 894. Foreclosure of liens—Davis v. Ramage, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1420.

91. Succession of Magi, 107 La. 208.

92. Melancon v. Wilson, 107 La. 628.

93. Judgment lien of less than $100—Hidy v. Hanson. 116 Iowa, 8.

94. Barto v. Seattle & I. R. Co., 28 Wash. 179, 68 Pac. 442.

95. In Kentucky if the right to interest as distinguished from the amount due be in controversy, the court of appeals may take jurisdiction though the amount would otherwise exclude it (Ky. St. § 950)—Whitehead v. Brothers Lodge, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1633; Same v. Ellis, Id.

96. $200 fees and $65 a month alimony is not $1000—Miles v. Miles, 200 Ill. 524.

97. Forest Hill B. & L. Ass'n v. McEvoy's Ex'r, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 161.

98. Towle v. Weise, 64 Kan. 760, 68 Pac. 637.

is not that of the adjoining tracts, but that of the disputed strip.[99] In replevin, the total value of all the property is taken, though different persons recover particular chattels, worth less than the limit.[1] Successive yearly values of a right like a lease or easement are aggregated only when all are involved.[2] When specific recovery of a chattel is sought, its value as alleged is taken.[3] An injunction against a fee bill is not a money judgment or one for property, within the limitations.[4] Sometimes the value of the right to be protected by the injunction is taken.[5]

Admitting part of a demand reduces the amount in controversy,[6] as does entering a remittitur of part before judgment,[7] or withdrawing part by amendment before going to the jury.[8] If property claimed be surrendered and accepted, its value is no longer in controversy, and cannot be added to the damages claimed.[9] In an action to recover land, its value is to be computed notwithstanding defendant's disclaimer, if he claims the value of the buildings and denies plaintiff's title.[10] On an executor's accounting, the amount with which he voluntarily charges himself is not in dispute.[11] Abandonment of an appeal by a defendant does not abandon his plea of reconvention, on which alone the jurisdictional amount is brought into controversy.[12]

Sums demanded in each of several counts may be aggregated.[13] A contract debt and a counterclaim may be added to make the amount.[14] When one sues for himself and others, then the entire sum is taken.[15] Likewise when actions are consolidated and tried without objection.[16] A judgment in solido against the principal and surety may be appealed if a judgment exceeding the jurisdictional amount was sought against the principal only, while a lesser sum was asked against the surety,[17] but the judgment must be joint.[18] Intervening claimants cannot aggregate disconnected claims,[19] nor can several beneficiaries of a trust.[20]

99. Salles v. Jacquet, 108 La. 107.

1. Goodyear Rubber Co. v. Schreiber, 29 Wash. 94, 69 Pac. 648.

2. Easement worth $1200 a year for 30 years, involves more than $4500—Overall v. St. L. Traction Co., 88 Mo. App. 175. The jurisdictional sum of $100 is not involved in a proceeding to forfeit a lease after one year's payment had been made, the lease providing that it might be continued for 5 years on payment of $20 a year—Barker v. Lanyon Zinc Co., 64 Kan. 884, 67 Pac. 629.

3. Action for recovery of horse (alleged worth $100) and for $25 damages, not $200 in controversy—Ziegler v. Heile, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1125.

4. Shackelford v. Phillips, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 154.

5. Sufficient if damages exceeding jurisdictional amount will befall if injunction be refused—Marx & Haas Co. v. Watson, 168 Mo. 133, 56 L. R. A. 951. Injunction against misusing public property worth twenty thousand (20,000) dollars—Sugar v. City of Monroe, 108 La. 677, 32 So. 961.

6. To the difference between the amounts—Hedrick v. Mutual Guarantee B. & L. Ass'n, 51 W. Va. 421. The statutory amount $200 was recovered but appellant had admitted $1.40 due; hence not appealable—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Landram, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1956.

7. State v. Judges, 107 La. 784.

8. Dodge v. Corliss, 28 Wash. 474, 68 Pac. 869.

9. Kaufman v. Cade, 107 La. 144. Property was surrendered by defendants and damages claimed were less than $2000—Howat v. Howat (La.) 33 So. 106.

10. New Orleans v. Fredericks, 107 La. 496.

11. And cannot be added to disputed items to give jurisdiction.—In re Burke's Estate, 169 Mo. 212; Green v. Hussey, Id.

12. A counter-proceeding in error was brought by the plaintiff to review the decision of the county court on appeal from a justice—Benchoff v. Stephenson (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 106.

13. Pub. St. c. 150, § 5—Gilman v. American Producers' Controlling Co., 180 Mass. 319.

14. $1000 and $950, recovery of $994—Foster v. McKeown, 192 Ill. 339.

15. Recovery of taxes paid—Commonwealth v. Scott, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1488, 55 L. R. A. 597.

16. Skinner v. Board of Com'rs, 63 Kan. 557, 66 Pac. 635. Two suits on bail bonds for $2500 each, if consolidated in one action, involve $5000—State v. Fraser, 165 Mo. 242.

17. Perkins v. Lapeyronnie, 107 La. 502.

18. In an action for trespassing on a particular tract, if the several defendants do not plead a common title, and separate judgments are asked and awarded, the amount is determined by that which is asked against each—Southern Timber & Land Co. v. Wartell (La.) 33 So. 559.

19. Mechanics' liens—Davis v. Upham, 191 Ill. 372.

20. Beneficiaries under a trust cannot lump their shares held in trust so as to appeal to supreme instead of superior court

If there be several conflicting claims or liens, the amount of each, and not the aggregate amount, is decisive.[21] If a successful party appeals, the difference between the demand and the recovery is the amount;[22] and when a judgment disposes of a part only of the sum, reserving the balance, that sum only is in controversy.[23] On appeal by the garnishee, the judgment against him, and not the demand, fixes the right.[24]

12. Review of intermediate appeals often depends on one or more jurisdictional facts or conditions.[25] Neither of such grounds can exist when the decision is made without opinion.[26] In Ohio, the supreme court could not under Act May 12, 1902, review a judgment in error rendered by a lower court except as provided by statute;[27] but the act which repealed it did not give jurisdiction to review judgments which, being rendered while the earlier act was in force, were not at the time reviewable.[28] Statutes taking away the right of appeal of a class of cases to the appellate court, and making them direct to the supreme, disentitle one to appeal such a case to the appellate court and thence to the supreme.[29]

In Indiana, only money judgments of the specified amount, and not those for title or possession of realty, are appealable from the appellate to the supreme court.[30] The whole amount, and not only that affected by the error assigned on an intermediate appeal, takes the case up.[31] The amount claimed, not that recovered, determines whether the cause was within a justice's jurisdiction;[32] but allegations as to amount control the prayer for damages.[33] Certiorari will not lie to an intermediate court as having, without authority, decided federal questions, where the only question was a forwarder's baseless claim to subrogation to the government lien for customs duties which he had paid.[34]

No "new question of law" or "contravention of" a higher court's decision exists when the intermediate court misrepresents or misstates the facts.[35] The Texas statute allowing an appeal if the civil appeals overrules its own decision

(P. L. 248)—In re Samson's Estate, 201 Pa. 590.

21. Suits by garnishing plaintiffs were consolidated — Hutmacher v. Anheuser-Busch Brew'g Ass'n, 198 Ill. 613. M. Pugh Co. v. Wallace, 198 Ill. 422, holding that a subcontractor below the limit cannot appeal merely because the contractor whose claim is above the limit has appealed.

22. People's B. & L. Ass'n v. Zimmerman, 65 Ohio St. 176.

23. Judgment gave $50 (less than appealable sum) to appellant and made no disposition of remaining proceeds—Newton v. Porter, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1388.

24. Schreiner v. Emel, 26 Wash. 555, 67 Pac. 228.

25. Gen. St. Kan. 1901, § 5019. The record must show $100 in controversy or title to land involved—Grant v. Robb, 64 Kan. 886, 67 Pac. 852. Statute making appellate court findings of fact binding on supreme court, held constitutional—Earnshaw v. Western Stone Co., 200 Ill. 220. Applications of such statutes to the cases are shown in the former part of this section.

26. Craig v. Bennett, 158 Ind. 9.

27. Act May 12, 1902. Injunction commenced in common pleas and taken to circuit—Slingluff v. Weaver, 66 Ohio St. 621.

28. Act Oct. 22, 1902, repealing Act May 12, 1902—Gompf v. Wolfinger (Ohio) 65 N. E. 878.

29. Freehold cases (Act June 7, 1877, p. 69, §§ 88, 90, as amended)—Perry v. Bozarth, 198 Ill. 328.

30. In granting the right to appeal referring only to money judgments (Acts 1901, p. 565, § 10)—Smith v. American Monument Co. (Ind.) 65 N. E. 524.

31. Towne v. Towne, 191 Ill. 478.

32. Dugdale v. Doney, 28 Ind. App. 283; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Cunnigan, 95 Tex. 439. Action to recover $160 on a guaranty is within the jurisdiction of a justice (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1500)—Crew v. Sager (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 934. In Texas an action involving less than $100 and originating in a justice court, ordinarily being a cause for the county court on appeal, is not brought within the clause making all district court judgments appealable, merely because in Roberts county the district court exercises county court jurisdiction (Sayles' Rev. St. art. 996; Acts 22d Leg. 1891, p. 12)—Southern Kan. R. Co. v. Cooper (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 409. An action in the circuit court for judgment for $100 and costs is within the jurisdiction of a justice—Taylor v. Geiger (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 192.

33. Allegations and bill of particulars for $174 held within justice's jurisdiction though prayer was for $200 and interest accrued—Seward v. Steeley (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 216.

34. State v. Bland, 168 Mo. 1.

35. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1337j—Barnett v. Bryce Furnace Co., 157 Ind. 572.

or that of another court of "civil appeals" does not include overruling a decision of the former court of appeals.[36]

For lack of finality, rules nisi[37] or rulings on motions for a decision,[38] dismissals of appeals for lack of jurisdiction,[39] or remands for further proceedings,[40] are not reviewable.

A mandate to decree in accordance with the prayer of the bill is reviewable by error as leaving nothing further for the trial court to do.[41]

If parties seek a review in the circuit court of appeals, its final jurisdiction will conclude them on constitutional questions which might have taken the case direct to the supreme court;[42] nor can its judgment be reviewed because a federal question incidentally arose which was not of a character to make the matter appealable directly to the supreme court.[43] The refusal of the circuit court to settle a receiver's accounts, and to charge certain costs against complainant, involves no question of jurisdiction which will take the case to the supreme court, though it was done on the ground that the court lacked authority to charge such costs to the complainant.[44]

13. Federal review of state or territorial decisions will lie if there is a federal question.[45] The federal question must have been raised in the state court,[46] and decided against the validity of an act of congress, to be thus reviewable;[47] but it is of no moment that the state court, in addition to a federal question, inadvertently and needlessly decide a question not federal,[48] or that the state court decide that no federal question existed;[49] but jurisdiction is not ousted by the correctness of the state court's decision.[50] Writs of error will issue from the supreme court in all cases where constitutionality of the state law is decided against either party.[51] The question of repugnancy of a state law is not presented when the state appellate court merely declines to pass upon it;[52] and none is presented by assailing a law for invading the power of congress if it has been construed as intended to apply only to matters of state control.[53] Ordinarily it must not be withheld until after decision on appeal or error,[54] unless it could not have been tried sooner;[55] but it may be

36. Gossett v. Citizens' R. Co. (Tex.) 69 S. W. 976. Opinions held not conflicting on the law of negligence per se by a railway company which violates an ordinance—Gossett v. Citizens' R. Co. (Tex.) 69 S. W. 976.

37. To strike off from the common pleas docket an appeal from county officers is interlocutory—Huntington County v. Mason, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 148.

38. Refusal to affirm probate court's settlement of executor's accounts—McGinty v. Kelley, 85 Minn. 117.

39. Dismissal of appeal from justice of the peace for lack of jurisdiction—Valley Turnpike Co. v. Moore (Va.) 42 S. E. 675.

40. Order of remand for further proceedings "in accordance with * * * opinion" not final—Friedman v. Lesher, 198 Ill. 21. A remand in eminent domain proceedings to take proceedings and impanel a jury as ordered by statute or to vacate a part of the order and for further proceedings is not final so as to go to the U. S. supreme court—Macfarland v. Brown, 187 U. S. 239.

41. Curran v. Houston, 201 Ill. 442.

42. Cary Mfg. Co. v. Acme Clasp Co., 187 U. S. 427.

43. Ayres v. Polsdorfer, 187 U. S. 585.

44. Chapman v. Atlantic Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 257.

45. If the question is a settled one review will be denied—Equitable Life Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308.

46. Home for Incurables v. New York, 187 U. S. 155. Invalidity of state law was a defense—Manley v. Park, 187 U. S. 547.

47. Act making silver dollar legal tender, sustained—Baker v. Baldwin, 187 U. S. 61.

48. Balk v. Harris (N. C.) 43 S. E. 477.

49. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Elliott, 184 U. S. 530, 46 Law. Ed. 673.

50. Andrews v. Andrews, 188 U. S. 14.

51. Unconstitutionality was urged as a defense by plaintiff in error—Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co., 184 U. S. 540, 46 Law. Ed. 679.

52. Because not raised at trial does not present—Layton v. Missouri, 187 U. S. 356; Erie R. Co. v. Purdy, 185 U. S. 148, 46 Law. Ed. 847.

53. Act regulating the domestic transportation—Erie R. Co. v. Purdy, 185 U. S. 148, 46 Law. Ed. 847.

54. Too late on an application for rehearing in the highest state court—Weber v. Rogan, 188 U. S. 10. Too late on petition for writ of error after state court had passed on the case on other than the constitutional question—Telluride Power Co. v. Rio Grande Western R. Co., 187 U. S. 569. Too late when first made in a petition in error to the supreme court—Johnson v. New York L. I. Co., 187 U. S. 491.

made on a motion to set aside judgment.[56] It may have been raised in a state court other than the one to which the writ is directed.[57] Objection raised below must specify whether the state or the federal constitution is offended, else it will be deemed that the former is invoked.[58]

Illustrative cases showing federal questions are collected in the footnotes.[59] If the state court necessarily passed on the question what rights were vested under a federal decree, a federal question is involved; but there must be more than a mere question of practice as to whether any grounds for relief are stated.[60] One is involved where the state court bases its judgment on infractions of numerous statutes collectively, some of which are alleged to be repugnant to the federal constitution.[61] A federal right, and not its mere existence in the case at bar, must be attacked.[62] Thus, the validity of a federal grant or reservation of land must be questioned.[63] A contention that United States surveys and patents will be changed in legal effect by the admission of certain evidence is federal.[64] State rights of sovereignty over beds of meandered waters within the state depend on no federal question, but on the common law;[65] and the making of government surveys, meandering waters, and the approval of such surveys by government officers, is not an adjudication of submerged lands to the state, so that a question of state title thereto can present a federal question.[66] A claim of title in ejectment, under a Spanish confirmation by treaty and patent, raises a federal question.[67] Defenses not federal in an action of ejectment are estoppel, licenses, payment of taxes, invalidity of a statute because not described in its title, want of power to grant public property, and limitations.[68] A municipal ordinance passed pursuant to law is a law of the state, and conflict between it and the federal constitution gives jurisdiction to the supreme court.[69] Repealability of a tax exemption, but not the question whether it was repealed, is a federal question.[70] No contract is impaired by a change in the decisions of a state

55. On rehearing—Missouri, K. & T. R. Co., v. Elliott, 184 U. S. 530, 46 Law. Ed. 673.

56. Manley v. Park, 187 U. S. 547.

57. Error to lower court after question had been tried and remanded by state supreme court—Rothschild v. Knight, 184 U. S. 334, 46 Law. Ed. 573.

58. Layton v. Missouri, 187 U. S. 356.

59. Arresting a judgment on the ground that it enforced an unconstitutional statute, shows a federal question—St. Louis Consol. Coal Co. v. Illinois, 185 U. S. 203, 46 Law. Ed. 872. Denial of right of action to recover usurious interest expressly founded on Act of congress, shows a federal question—Talbot v. First Nat. Bank, 185 U. S. 172, 46 Law. Ed. 857. The question of what damages are recoverable on an injunction bond given in federal courts is federal. It is a liability depending on authority exercised in the U. S.—Tullock v. Mulvane, 184 U. S. 497, 46 Law. Ed. 657. The objection is untenable that obligation of contract, due process of law or equal protection was denied by a quo warranto in which a charter was forfeited after a full hearing by all the parties in court, when the charter itself prescribed mandamus as the remedy; neither does it matter that the attorney general was instructed by statute to take such action as was proper—New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana, 185 U. S. 336, 46 Law. Ed. 936. The question of proper or necessary parties in an action to forfeit a charter is not federal—New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana, 185 U. S. 336, 46 Law. Ed. 936. It is not a federal contention that a "judgment" impairs a contract—New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana, 185 U. S. 336, 46 Law. Ed. 936. State decision that executing a power brings a grantee under the taxable transfer act though power was given by will before act was passed—Orr v. Gilman, 183 U. S. 278, 46 Law. Ed. 196.

60. National Foundry & Pipe Works v. Oconto City Water Supply Co., 183 U. S. 216, 46 Law. Ed. 157.

61. Capital City Dairy Co. v. Ohio, 183 U. S. 238, 46 Law. Ed. 171.

62. Findings of fact or conclusions of local law on which a federal right is predicated are not federal—Telluride Power Co. v. Rio Grande Western R. Co., 187 U. S. 569.

63. Not sufficient to allege that the description in a patent failed to cover the tract intended—Sweringen v. St. Louis, 185 U. S. 38, 46 Law. Ed. 795. Decision that Indian Reservation is public lands within a federal act (Act April 19, 1864, § 12) does not question the validity of such act—Kennard v. Nebraska, 186 U. S. 304, 46 Law. Ed. 1175.

64. Riparian rights under swamp land grants—French-Glenn L. S. Co. v. Springer, 185 U. S. 47, 46 Law. Ed. 800.

65. Iowa v. Rood, 187 U. S. 87.

66. Iowa v. Rood, 187 U. S. 87.

67. Mobile Transp. Co. v. Mobile, 187 U. S. 479.

68. Mobile Transp. Co. v. Mobile, 187 U. S. 479.

69. Owensboro v. Owensboro Water Works Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 318.

70. Allegation that an exemption from taxation became part of a contract between as to ownership in tide lands.[71] It is not a denial of full faith and credit to hold a foreign law inapplicable.[72]

If a federal question existed, error will lie to the circuit court of appeals, though the case could not go directly to the supreme court;[73] but if a decree of a circuit court of appeals be improperly appealed, it is not aided by a certiorari to perfect the record.[74]

Decrees and judgments of supreme courts of the territories are reviewable in the circuit court of appeals only in cases enumerated.[75]

Appeals from the territorial court of Hawaii by virtue of Act April 30, 1900, § 86, will lie when appeals would lie from state courts to United States courts; and the fact that the territory has been assigned to a judicial circuit, or that a district court with powers of a circuit court has been erected in Hawaii, the judgments of which are appealable to the United States courts, does not extend the right of appeal from the territorial courts.[76]

D. Dependent on the parties.—A mandamus against county clerk to furnish duplicate assessment books is not a case in which the state is interested as a party or otherwise.[77]

The state is a party when the suit is by state officers and in relation to a state canal. In Illinois, if the state is interested, an appeal still lies direct to the supreme court.[78] The supreme court of Missouri takes the case if a county is party.[79]

E. Questions certifiable.—A law for the certification of a dissent from an inferior court does not apply to those cases wherein the inferior court is the last resort.[80] Questions of great public interest, and those whereon a judge is in doubt, only, will be certified.[81]

§ 5. Courts of review and their jurisdiction.—In the preceding section the jurisdiction of courts was incidentally involved. When the reader's inquiry is simply whether a case belongs to a class, such as freehold or constitutional cases, or those involving a stated amount, that section should be consulted.[82] A constitutional grant of general appellate jurisdiction "under such limitations" as the legislature may prescribe does not enable the legislature to extend or restrict the right of appeal, but only to limit or regulate appellate procedure and relief,[83] and should not be construed to authorize the destruction of the right of appeal.[84] Under such a provision, the court may be authorized to affirm, reverse, or modify, to continue or dissolve injunctions, and the orders which are directly appealable may be enumerated, and power given to review intermediate orders on an appeal from the final judgment.[85] In Rhode Island, the constitution does not vest all appel-the state and a corporation and was violated by a subsequent statute shows a federal question—Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Hewes, 183 U. S. 66, 46 Law. Ed. 86.

71. Mobile Transp. Co. v. Mobile, 187 U. S. 479.

72. Johnson v. New York Life Ins. Co., 187 U. S. 491.

73. Jurisdiction in part resting on diversity of citizenship—Howard v. United States, 184 U. S. 676, 46 Law. Ed. 754.

74. Huguley Mfg. Co. v. Galeton Mills, 184 U. S. 290, 46 Law. Ed. 546.

75. Alienage or diverse citizenship of parties, patent cases, revenue cases, criminal cases, admiralty cases—Union Cent. L. I. Co. v. Champlin (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 858.

76. In re Wilder's S. S. Co., 183 U. S. 545, 46 Law. Ed. 321; Wilder's S. S. Co. v. Low (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 161; Equitable Life Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308.

77. People v. Hendee, 199 Ill. 55.

78. Practice Act, § 88, not repealed by Act 1887 amending Appellate Court Act—Canal Com'rs v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago, 191 Ill. 326.

79. Corbin v. Adair County (Mo.) 71 S. W. 674.

80. Local option election contest—Kidd v. Rainey, 95 Tex. 556.

81. Habermann v. Heidrich (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 795. Decision admitting evidence of a prior accident of the same sort not important or distinctive—Vandecar v. Universal Trust Co., 114 N. Y. 783.

82. Ante, § 4-C.

83. Const. art. 8, §§ 2, 3—Finlen v. Heinze, 27 Mont. 107, 69 Pac. 829.

84. Const. art. 8, § 3—Finlen v. Heinze (Mont.) 70 Pac. 517.

85. Such statutes are all rules of procelate jurisdiction in the supreme court as one body; hence the creation of an appellate division of which three members should be a quorum, was valid.[86] If a court of intermediate appeals be created for a time, by act providing that the jurisdiction of the supreme court shall remain except as changed, on the extinction of the court of appeals the jurisdiction of the supreme court is restored without further legislation.[87]

One, at least, of the jurisdictional grounds prescribed, must exist to carry the case to the highest court.[88] If one of such grounds remain in dispute, a transfer to such court is imperative.[89] Conversely, if grounds excluding jurisdiction exist, a transfer by the lower court will not confer it.[90] A constitutional provision for appellate courts having jurisdiction of such appeals as the legislature may provide, and giving a further appeal to the supreme court in freehold cases, does not intend that the appellate courts shall have jurisdiction of franchise cases unless the legislature so provides.[91] Footnotes show laws of the several states.[92]

The action of the highest court in transferring a case to the intermediate court is conclusive as to jurisdiction.[93]

In federal courts the fact that treaty questions are commingled with other essential ones does not authorize the circuit court of appeals to pass on the former.[94] Nor can it hear a cause wherein the sole question is on the conflict between the federal constitution and a state law,[95] though the decision may have been wholly on other grounds.[96] The supreme court's jurisdiction is exclusive where the record shows a controversy on constitutional questions on which alone the jurisdiction of the circuit court was invoked.[97] If the constitutional question arose incidentally, the jurisdiction of the circuit court of appeals is not ousted,[98] or if jurisdiction was invoked because of diversity of citizenship, and a constitutional question subsequently arose, the circuit court of appeals has jurisdiction.[99] A district court decree dure and do not affect the right of review—Finlen v. Heinze, 27 Mont. 107, 69 Pac. 829.

86. Const. art. 14, § 3, devises the jurisdiction "until otherwise prescribed" by law—Floyd v. Quinn (R. I.) 52 Atl. 880.

87. Act Feb. 27, 1895—Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Morris, 65 Kan. 532, 70 Pac. 651.

88. Eccles v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Mo.) 68 S. W. 1041.

89. McClure v. Feldman (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 732. The transfer will be made if it appears on appeal that a constitutional question was raised during the trial—Watkins v. Edgar, 94 Mo. App. 285.

90. In Colorado if the supreme court was without jurisdiction of an appeal direct from the county court of a justice case it could not take the case by transfer from the court of appeals—Altman v. Huffman (Colo.) 70 Pac. 420.

91. Perry v. Bozarth, 198 Ill. 328.

92. In Colorado forcible entry cases became reviewable in the court of appeals by conferring on it jurisdiction like the supreme court, though in consequence of a later amendment at the same term the forcible entry statute was impliedly restored, so as to make the appeal go only to the supreme court (Laws 1891, pp. 119, 228)—Schafer v. Hegstrom (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 396. Validity of a statute is for the supreme court exclusively—People v. Church, 103 Ill. App. 132. A license suit involving fact only held appealable on the ground of amount involved to the court of appeal and not to the supreme court—State v. Judges of Appeal Ct. (La.) 33 So. 756. In Colorado, a civil proceeding in contempt is reviewable in the supreme court only when it possesses proper jurisdictional elements—Naturita C. & R. Co. v. People (Colo.) 70 Pac. 691. New Jersey surrogate's decision on probate is appealable to orphans' court—In re Cartwright's Will (N. J. Prerog.) 51 Atl. 713. County court judgments are not reviewable directly in supreme court—Kingman v. Davis, 63 Neb. 578. Allowance of a claim against an estate should go to the law and not to the probate side of the supreme court—Morgan v. McCausland, 96 Me. 449. Appeals from taxation of costs after remand should go to that court which heard the appeal—State v. Judges Ct. of Appeals, 107 La. 69.

93. Bowlby v. Kline, 28 Ind. App. 659; State v. Ohio & I. M. Land Co., 95 Mo. App. 349. A proceeding to establish a will of realty and personalty—Ortt v. Leonhardt (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 577.

94. It may either affirm or reverse disregarding such question, or may certify it and reserve decision—United States v. Lee Yen Tai (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 465.

95. St. Clair County v. Interstate S. & C. Transfer Co. (C. C. A.) 110 Fed. 785.

96. Owensboro v. Owensboro Waterworks Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 318.

97. Seattle v. Thompson (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 96.

98. A statute offered as evidence was objected to as being unconstitutional—Watkins v. King (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 524.

99. Keyser v. Lowell (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 400.

dismissing suit to enforce private land claim is not directly appealable.[1] Prize causes are appealable from the supreme court of the District of Columbia direct to the supreme court of the United States when the former is sitting as a district court.[2]

Ancillary powers.—When the trial court has authority to grant injunctions pending appeal, application for one will not be heard, even though the trial court should refuse to examine it on the merits;[3] but, if the laws authorize the reviewing court to issue remedial writs necessary to complete the exercise of appellate jurisdiction, it may grant an injunction to preserve the statu quo.[4] Certiorari will issue from the court of last resort if jurisdiction be wrongfully assumed.[5] The highest court will not attempt by prohibition to supervise the improper assumption of jurisdiction by a court below after it has completely disposed of the case and adjourned the term.[6]

§ 6. Bringing up the cause. A. General nature and mode of practice.[7]—The reader should consult section 2 of this article on the question of what remedy to invoke,—whether appeal, error or other mode. The present section deals with the practice on the several proceedings. It should be borne in mind that the several terms, "appeal," "error," and the like, no longer are capable, in a general discussion, of technical strict use, but signify forms of appellate procedure analogous to appeals and writs of error. The distinctions of the various remedies should be kept in mind.

Appellate practice in the federal courts does not follow or conform in any way to state practice,[8] unless, as in the Indian Territory, the practice of an adjoining state is adopted by statute.[9] The practice should conform to that of the court which is to review, though the trial was as one reviewable to a lower court.[10] Appeals from probate courts frequently follow the practice of appeals from justices of the peace.[11] If the trial judge exceeds his power, and sets aside a judgment and retries the case, the remedy is not against the second judgment, but the first, taking a bill of exceptions, and, if necessary, compelling the trial judge to sign it.[12] Erroneous appeals or proceedings in error may be attacked by certiorari from a higher court if promptly brought.[13]

B. Time for instituting and perfecting.—Length of the period in which to appeal is a matter of legislation,[14] inferior and probate court review being generally specially limited in time.[15] The time is sometimes dependent on the class of errors attacked,[16] or the kind of proceeding.[17] Under a statute requiring a speedy

1. Act Cong. July 1, 1864, § 3—Gwin v. U. S., 184 U. S. 669, 46 Law. Ed. 741.

2. The act making judgments of the supreme court of the District of Columbia appealable to the court of appeals is not applicable—United States v. Sampson, 19 App. D. C. 419.

3. It should be renewed before the trial court—Ajax Min. Co. v. Triumph Min. Co. (Colo.) 69 Pac. 523.

4. Finlen v. Heinze, 27 Mont. 107, 69 Pac. 829.

5. Security Trust Co. v. Dent, 187 U. S. 237.

6. Klingelhoefer v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 1008.

7. Mode of perfecting election contest appeal in Kentucky—Stewart v. Rose, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 347, 68 S. W. 465.

8. West v. East Coast Cedar Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 737.

9. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Truskett, 186 U. S. 480, 46 Law. Ed. 1259.

10. Forcible entry from municipal court (Gen. St. 1894, c. 86)—Watier v. Buth, 87 Minn. 205.

11. Barker v. Thompson, 98 Ill. App. 78.

12. Akerman v. Ford (Ga.) 42 S. E. 777.

13. Refused because of six months' delay after the record in error was filed in circuit court of appeals and the case docketed—Ayres v. Polsdorfer, 187 U. S. 585.

14. Perfected within six months (appointment of receiver)—First Nat. Bank v. Ashley (Neb.) 93 N. W. 685.

15. Bond on appeal from county court must be filed within thirty days and transcript within forty days from order appealed (Comp. Sts. ch. 20, §§ 42, 46)—Jones v. Piggott (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1000. Since Act Feb. 28, 1881, county court appeals in probate matters must be taken within ten days (repealing Comp. St. 1901, c. 23, § 242)—Drexel v. Rochester L. & B. Co. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 254.

16. Error in ruling on demurrer is not one "occurring at trial" from which a year appeal if the sufficiency of the evidence to support the jurisdiction is to be reviewed, no inquiry as to such matter can be made upon a bill of exceptions in an appeal taken after the expiration of the short time.[18] Special time limitations on appeals from interlocutory and provisional orders not otherwise appealable must be strictly followed.[19] When interlocutory judgments are reviewable only at the trial court's discretion, a general statute requiring exceptions to be filed within a limited time does not apply to interlocutory orders appealed from;[20] nor does an act relating to vacation judgments fix the time for taking exceptions to an interlocutory judgment.[21] Interlocutory orders cannot be appealed after the time fixed, although they are subject to review with the final judgment.[22]

The taking of it within such time is ordinarily essential to a transfer of jurisdiction;[23] whence delay may work a cause for dismissal,[24] or cure errors by making the judgment conclusive.[25] If several orders be appealed, only those taken in time will be considered.[26]

An appeal is premature if brought before a final determination is had, or if the judgment be incomplete.[27] It is not final when incident to it there is pending some necessary proceeding to fix rights.[28] An appeal may be brought within the statutory time after final judgment, though the same matters might have been reviewed by appealing from an interlocutory order.[29] It must be final as to all coparties.[30] If a judgment be amended, the period is computed from the amendment;[31] and ordinarily the time does not begin until after determination of motions for new trial.[32] Time is computed from the date of record entry of a decree in is given—Mechanic's Sav. Bank v. Harding, 65 Kan. 655, 70 Pac. 655.

17. Under statutes in Idaho, district court judgments on appeal from county commissioners not reviewable upon the facts unless appealed within sixty days—Mahoney v. Board of Com'rs (Idaho) 69 Pac. 108. Timely filing of transcript in election case is jurisdictional—Krimm v. Helmbold, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 551, 68 S. W. 1103.

18. Code Civ. Proc. § 939, prescribes 60 days—People v. Jones, 138 Cal. xix, 70 Pac. 1063.

19. Appointment of receiver not final and not appealable after thirty days—Coons v. Frost, 100 Ill. App. 303. Neither the parties nor the court can extend the time for appeals from appointment of receiver for corporations beyond ten days—Crichton v. Webb Press Co., 107 La. 86.

20. Goodsell v. Rutland-Canadian R. Co., 74 Vt. 206.

21. Goodsell v. Rutland-Canadian R. Co., 74 Vt. 206.

22. Receivership orders (Burns' Rev. Sts. 1901, § 1245)—Chicago Horseshoe Co. v. Gostlin (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 514.

23. In Alabama, the time within which appeal from the overruling of a demurrer must be taken—Blackburn v. Huber Mfg. Co., 135 Ala. 598. District court judgments on appeal not taken up within ninety days—Warren v. Humble, 26 Mont. 495, 68 Pac. 851.

24. See post, § 11. Dismissal cannot be averted by filing new bond after time—David v. Guich, 30 Wash. 266, 70 Pac. 497. Notice must be within the time—Southern Cal. R. Co. v. Slauson (Cal.) 68 Pac. 107. Failure to substitute party in time—Hays v. Pugh, 158 Ind. 500. Tardy appeal from refusal to revoke probate—In re Reilly's Estate, 26 Mont. 358, 67 Pac. 1121.

25. See post, § 15. If judgment not seasonably appealed, the appeal from new trial reviews only errors presented on the motion—Mechanic's Bank v. Harding, 65 Kan. 655, 70 Pac. 655.

26. Steenburg v. Richbourg (Fla.) 33 So. 521. If two interlocutory decrees are appealed and one was entered more than six months before the appeal will take up the later one only—Mattair v. Furchgott (Fla.) 32 So. 925; Ray v. Frank (Fla.) Id. It is sufficient if one of two orders which includes the other was appealed from in time—In re Lamona's Estate, 29 Wash. 394, 69 Pac. 1093.

27. Sustaining demurrer not appealable; must be judgment—Martin v. Sherwood, 74 Conn. 202. An order sustaining demurrer, though made appealable by statute, is not final—Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. School Tp. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 676. Report of referee stating an account is not—Shankle v. Whitley, 131 N. C. 168, 42 S. E. 574. Sustaining demurrer by part of defendants only—Rock Island Implement Co. v. Marr, 168 Mo. 252. As to when adjudication becomes final, see also ante, § 4-B.

28. Accounting—Trammell v. Ashworth, 99 Va. 646.

29. Demurrer sustained and leave to amend; afterwards leave to amend stricken, and judgment of dismissal given against plaintiff sustained on demurrer—Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. School Tp. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 676.

30. Appeal by one co-defendant—McVey v. Barker, 92 Mo. App. 498.

31. Hayes v. Silver Creek Water Co., 136 Cal. 238, 68 Pac. 704.

32. Especially so where in order to review certain questions motion for new trial must be made (R. S. 1889, § 2248)—Walter v. Scofield, 167 Mo. 537, as in a law action reviewable only by error, where the motion is not equity.[33] Judgment on demurrer to an additional bill should be appealed from within the statutory time from its rendition, if it be in its nature separate from the original bill, and not supplementary to it.[34]

Under statutes limiting the time from the service of notice of entry of the judgment, notice must be served by the prevailing party,[35] and it must correctly describe the judgment or order.[36]

If the last day of the time "within" which proceedings must be begun be a Sunday, an appeal on the succeeding day will be timely.[37]

"Fast" or accelerated procedure.—No judgment in mandamus can be brought up except by "fast" bill.[38] A writ of error from a judgment is ordinary, and not "fast," though a writ of prohibition has been previously vacated in the case.[39] In Georgia, a prayer for an injunction, not acted on, affords no reason for allowing a fast writ to review a vacation appointment of trustees.[40] Neither does it lie to bring up a motion to dissolve an injunction.[41]

Delays and extensions.[42]—Delay attributable to neglect of officer is not usually imputed to an appellant;[43] but in Tennessee failure of the clerk to mark the oath as filed in time renders it a nullity, though seasonably made.[44]

The appellate court cannot enlarge the statutory time.[45] Reinstating a cause after its determination, and the instituting of proceedings for an appeal, extend the time for filing it;[46] but an abortive attempt to appeal does not extend the time for suing out the concurrent remedy by error.[47] Stipulating to extend the time for filing briefs is not a waiver in writing of the timely giving of an undertaking for appeal.[48] Defects in proceedings cannot ordinarily be amended after time.[49] When the opposite party is dead, and his representative does not appear, a stay results until a substitution can be made;[50] but if not perfected before the death of a party, proceedings thereafter cannot be had and filed nunc pro tunc.[51]

C. Affidavits and oaths.[52]—Affidavit of interest may be dispensed with if all parties admit the interest.[53] An attorney is not an agent who may file an affidavit stating his belief that the appellant is aggrieved.[54] If they are jurisdictional, ruled on until after judgment is rendered—City of Lincoln v. First Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 874.

33. Hall v. Moore (Neb.) 92 N. W. 294.

34. Appeal waived by delaying judgment on original bill—Smith v. Pyrites Min. Co. (Va.) 43 S. E. 564.

35. Service by an appealing co-party insufficient—Prescott v. Brooks (N. D.) 90 N. W. 129.

36. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1351, copy varied from the original as to date and name of clerk and did not with certainty refer to the entry—Gaday v. Doane (N. Y.) 38 Misc. 661. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1724, an appeal bond must be filed within five days of serving notice, not within five days from filing notice with the clerk—Johnson County Bank v. Joe Klaffki Co., 26 Mont. 384, 68 Pac. 410.

37. Writ of error under Rev. St. 1899, § 837—Jordan v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 92 Mo. App. 84.

38. Holder v. Jelks (Ga.) 42 S. E. 400.

39. Bacon v. Jones (Ga.) 42 S. E. 401.

40. Loyd v. Webster (Ga.) 42 S. E. 1013.

41. Hanson v. Stephens (Ga.) 42 S. E. 1028.

42. Statutory extensions. Since no act is to be done by the party served, the time of filing the bond is not extended merely because the service of notice is to be by mail. Code Civ. Proc. § 1833, provides for extensions when service is by mail only when some act is to be done by the adverse party—Johnson County Bank v. Joe Klaffki Co., 26 Mont. 384, 68 Pac. 410.

43. Failure to serve the notice—Martin Mach. Works v. Miller, 132 Ala. 629. Failure to settle bill of exceptions—Crooks v. Crooks, 136 Cal. xix., 68 Pac. 101.

44. Jones v. Ducktown Sulphur Co. (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 821.

45. Hall v. City of N. Y., 79 App. Div. 102.

46. Until pending motions for reargument and reinstatement be determined (Gen. St. 1902, §§ 791, 793)—Sanford v. Bacon (Conn.) 54 Atl. 204.

47. Judgment not suspended by appeal—McCollum v. Ulen, 92 Mo. App. 384.

48. Mitchell v. Board of Education, 137 Cal. 372, 70 Pac. 180.

49. Defective bond—Koutnik v. Koutnik, 196 Ill. 162; David v. Guich, 30 Wash. 266, 70 Pac. 497.

50. Barton v. New Haven, 74 Conn. 729.

51. Barton v. New Haven, 74 Conn. 729.

52. Affidavit of good faith under R. S. § 808, is jurisdictional—Sehested v. Kansas City (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 1068.

53. Appeal from order appointing receiver—Davies v. Monroe, W. & L. Co., 107 La. 145.

54. Rev. Sts. 1899, § 808—Schnabel v. Thomas, 92 Mo. App. 180.

affidavits must be seasonably presented.[55] An affidavit for appeal should, if necessary, be amended before decision on motion to dismiss for its defectiveness;[56] but irregularity in amending after a ruling may be waived by going to trial.[57]

D. Notice, citation, summons.—Statutes giving right to appeal imply that notice must be given,[58] unless otherwise provided.[59] When appeal is taken in open court, citation or notice is not usually necessary.[60] In Louisiana, unless waived in writing by appellant or his counsel, the clerks must issue citation,[61] and, if the appeal be taken at a term subsequent to judgment term, a citation is necessary.[62] The clerk's failure to issue a citation does not prejudice the proceeding unless appellant was at fault.[63]

The notice or summons cannot be required to state matters which the statute does not require;[64] but notice of appeal must be explicit and particular.[65] The process must name the court of review.[66] As against plaintiff, one notice is sufficient, though the judgments were entered separately against each of several defendants;[67] but orders in special proceedings collateral to a cause cannot be covered by a single notice.[68] Referring to a judgment on affirmance as for a certain amount equal to the costs is not a defect if the notice otherwise shows that the appeal is not limited to the matter of costs.[69] A misrecital of the date is not material.[70] In Washington, a notice need be directed only to the prevailing party or parties.[71]

All persons who are necessary parties respondent must be, and those who are proper parties may be, cited.[72] Service on a firm is not good where the members were held as individuals.[73] Service on attorneys usually suffices,[74] and it is not necessary to serve each one of associated counsel.[75] Attorneys representing two parties may accept service on an appeal of one of them if the interests do not conflict.[76] Notice of appeal should be served on the substituted personal representative when an appeal is taken after a party has died.[77]

55. In Jones v. Ducktown Sulphur Co. (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 821, the failure to make a filing as in time, though seasonably made, defeated the appeal.

56. Moston v. Stow, 91 Mo. App. 554.

57. Moston v. Stow, 91 Mo. App. 554.

58. Shannon's Code, § 1984, condemnation proceedings—Woolard v. Nashville, 108 Tenn. 353.

59. In Illinois notice to executor of appeal from disallowance of claim is not necessary (Administration Act, § 68)—Ford v. First Nat. Bank, 201 Ill. 120.

60. Not necessary if taken by motion in open court at the time of judgment—Vallee v. Hunsberry, 108 La. 136.

61. Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561.

62. Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561.

63. Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561.

64. Mauldin v. Greenville, 64 S. C. 444. A summons in error need not contain the name of the attorney of record on whom it is served (Code Civ. Proc. § 544)—Mechanics' Bank v. Harding, 65 Kan. 655, 70 Pac. 655.

65. Since it is jurisdictional in its office—State v. Hammond, 92 Mo. App. 231.

66. Citation—Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561.

67. Clark v. Eltinge, 29 Wash. 215, 69 Pac. 736.

68. Order allowing fees to counsel for person accused and order taxing costs to county from which change of venue was taken—Green Lake County v. Waupaca County, 113 Wis. 425. A notice held to describe an order refusing to vacate and not the judgment itself, which therefore was not brought up—Norris v. Campbell, 27 Wash. 654, 68 Pac. 339.

69. Engel-Heller Co. v. Henry Elias Brewing Co. (N. Y.) 37 Misc. 480.

70. People v. County Board of Canvassers (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 110.

71. The statute requires it to be served on all parties, but permits other than the appellant to join in it if similarly situated—Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786.

72. See ante, § 3-B. Disclaiming parties should not be—Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786.

73. State Nat. Bank v. Dallas (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 334.

74. Personal service on attorney sufficient for a stay (Rev. St. 1898, § 2820)—Harris v. Snyder, 113 Wis. 451. The attorney may be cited if the appellee cannot be found and has no domicile and delay will be granted until regular service can be made.—Levy v. Levy, 107 La. 576.

75. Timely service on one only of respondent's attorneys suffices—Burnes' Estate v. American Brewing Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 512.

76. Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786. An attorney for three defendants cannot acknowledge service on behalf of one, where the other two appeal adversely—Hayes v. Union Merc. Co., 27 Mont. 264, 70 Pac. 975.

Notice must be served within the time for taking the appeal,[78] but an extension is sometimes allowed.[79] When appeal is to be taken within a time "from" entry of judgment, the notice must be given after entry.[80] Under an act permitting an omission to serve either the clerk or the adverse parties to be supplied, parties cannot be afterwards served if neither they nor the clerk had been served,[81] but a co-defendant may be so served.[82] Laches defeating relief will not necessarily defeat an extension of time for service.[83]

Filing notice is a jurisdictional requisite to take an appeal in Oregon;[84] hence cannot be allowed out of time as an omission to do an "act necessary to perfect" it.[85]

The assignment of errors should be filed or served on the adverse party if it is taken as a guide to making up the transcript.[86]

Notice of application for writ of error is not waived by serving an answering brief after the time for giving notice.[87] The notice of application should specify the time when it will be made.[88]

E. Application for leave to appeal, petition in error, assignments, and statements of appeal.[89]—Objections that an appeal is frivolous and dilatory must be addressed only to the appellate court;[90] nor can an appeal be refused because the decree is entered on a mandate from a former review.[91] If the lower court vacates an order on the ground that it suspends the final judgment of the supreme court, applicant for appeal should be refused and sent to the supreme court to apply for relief.[92] If an appeal be predicated solely upon leave granted in Louisiana, the propriety of granting the order is solely for the court to which application is made.[93] If writ of error be issued by the clerk below on filing assignment of errors, and the supersedeas bond be approved by the circuit court of appeals, which issues citation that is duly served, the mere omission to formally petition for the writ, as required by court rules, is a formal defect.[94] A statute requiring leave to appeal in mortgage foreclosure does not include cases where the character of the instrument is disputed.[95]

Defendants who do not join in a term-time appeal in Indiana need not be named.[96] Parties should be properly named.[97] The use of "etc.," or the like,

77. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Adams, 28 Ind. App. 420.

78. Bryan v. Bryan, 137 Cal. xix., 70 Pac. 304.

79. Citation may be made after time when everything else is done if it has been prevented by inability to find the appellee—Levy v. Levy, 107 La. 576.

80. Code Civ. Proc. § 939—Bell v. Staacke, 137 Cal. 307, 70 Pac. 171.

81. Code Civ. Proc. § 1303, part of defendants only were served; nunc pro tunc service was held null as to other defendants—Hall v. New York, 79 App. Div. 102.

82. Notice after time may be given to a co-defendant to whom the judgment was to be paid, where the appealing defendant had notified the clerk and plaintiff (Code Civ. Proc. § 1303)—Cooper v. Cooper (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 221.

83. Spindler v. Gibson (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 150.

84. Session Laws 1901, p. 78, § 5, provides, shall be taken by serving and "filing"—Taylor v. Lapham, 41 Or. 479, 69 Pac. 439.

85. Taylor v. Lapham, 41 Or. 479, 69 Pac. 439.

86. Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Peacock (Fla.) 33 So. 247.

87. Biles v. Beadle, 93 Mo. App. 628

88. Burns' Ann. Pr. Code 1901, § 715. Biles v. Beadle, 93 Mo. App. 628.

89. Superior court cannot allow appeal from commissioners of estate—Swain v. Knapp, 71 N. H. 620.

90. Southern B. & L. Ass'n v. Carey, 117 Fed. 325.

91. Southern B. & L. Ass'n v. Carey, 117 Fed. 325.

92. Appeal from order setting aside injunction against judgment of supreme court—New Orleans v. Bilgery, 108 La. 191.

93. If it acts illegally, a mandamus will issue—State v. King (La.) 33 So. 121.

94. Alaska United Min. Co. v. Keating (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 561.

95. V. S. § 981—Herrick's Adm'r v. Teachout. 74 Vt. 196.

96. In assignment of errors (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 647a)—Gunn v. Haworth (Ind.) 64 N. E. 911.

97. "Gunn" for "Gwinn," and the use of initials, make an assignment bad, under Sup. Ct. Rule 6—Gunn v. Haworth (Ind.) 64 N. E. 911. Failure to amend name which was in the record identical with that below held unimportant—Conyers v. Commissioners (Ga.) 42 S. E. 419.

following the name of some of co-parties in a statement of appeal, brings in as appellees only those named.[98] If a writ joins all the defendants, they are brought before the court, though the petition in error did not join them.[99]

The refusal of a co-party to appeal should be shown.[1] On appeal from an order not inter partes appellant should in some way show an appealable interest.[2]

It must appear that the cause is at an appealable or reviewable stage.[3] A petition does not describe the cause and the judgment sought to be reviewed, where it refers to them as exhibits, and no exhibits are filed.[4] Appellant must show that a ground of jurisdiction exists, if the reviewability depends on it,[5] and jurisdictional allegations must be direct and special.[6] An application for writ of error founded on an allegation of a conflict between the decision and a decision of the highest court must show that the questions were identical.[7] It must either appear that the requisite amount is in controversy, or that the case is within the exceptions to the requirement.[8] Averments of the existence of a federal question must be distinct and positive beyond question.[9] Two separate applications may be granted if one of them discloses error.[10]

A petition or application should be in the party's name.[11] It is not fatally defective because in the name of plaintiff in error by attorney, both being in typewriting.[12] An assignment should be signed by the party or his attorney.[13]

Where the statute regulating petitions in error was amended only a short time before the filing of the petition, appellant was allowed to amend his petition to conform to the new act.[14]

Where the transcript is to be made up according to the assignments, the adversary should be apprised by service or by filing.[15]

F. Allocatur, order for appeal, certificate.—The appellate court is not designated by a recital that the appeal is allowed "as prayed for."[16] If the order is insufficient to give jurisdiction, taking up the record accomplishes nothing.[17] The order of a circuit court in Kentucky granting a cross appeal is of no force.[18] De-

98. Brodie v. Parsons, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 831. The character "&c." in a statement of parties does not bring any others than those expressly named—Chinn v. Curtis, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1563. The words "et al." do not describe parties not expressly named in the petition in error—Brabham v. Custer Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 989. In a special proceeding it is not sufficient to say that the appeal is in behalf of others not named—In re Park Ave. Viaduct Assessment, 112 N. Y. St. Rep. 1030.

99. An attempt on the part of the trial court to amend the writ by striking the names of some of the defendants from it, is null—Fitzpatrick v. Graham (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 353.

1. Appeal by licensee without patentee—Excelsior Co. v. Seattle (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 140.

2. Probate appeal—People v. McCormick, 104 Ill. App. 650.

3. A bill of exceptions should show that a final judgment was entered—Bell v. Stewart (Ga.) 43 S. E. 70.

4. Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14.

5. Valley Turnpike Co. v. Moore (Va.) 42 S. E. 675.

6. State v. Pollock, 108 La. 594.

7. Admissibility of original petition under amended petition not same as that of admissibility of amended petition to rebut original petition—Watson v. First Nat. Bank (Tex.) 67 S. W. 314.

8. Crouse v. Brown, 65 Kan. 858, 69 Pac. 165; Moore v. Richardson, 197 Ill. 437.

9. Michigan Sugar Co. v. Michigan, 185 U. S. 112, 46 Law. Ed. 829.

10. Rilling v. Schultze, 95 Tex. 352.

11. Application for writ of error in the name of a corporation which does not appear as party is not sufficient by reason of a recital without proof that applicant and the plaintiff below were the same corporation, all other pleadings being in the name of the original party—State Nat. Bank v. Dallas (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 334.

12. Moore v. Moran (Neb.) 89 N. W. 629.

13. H. B. Smith Co. v. Williams (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 318.

14. Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14.

15. Presenting assignments to the judge at the settling of bill of exceptions is not alone sufficient in Florida—Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Peacock (Fla.) 33 So. 247.

16. Sehested v. Kansas City (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 1068.

17. Sehested v. Kansas City (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 1068.

18. Hancock v. Hancock's Adm'r, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 664.

fects may be waived by proceeding with the case.[19] An order for an appeal may be vacated at any time before it is perfected in the higher court.[20]

Federal practice.—In the ninth circuit, an allocatur is needless if the clerk issues the writ which is lodged with the trial clerk.[21] The writ should issue to that state court wherein the case is,[22] or to the state appellate court having final jurisdiction.[23] Mistakes in the teste of the writ as to date and omission of the court seal are amendable.[24] Defendant in error, by opposing a motion to withdraw a writ, and to allow filing of a new petition, writ, and bond, waives the objection that the writ issued and was filed before the assignment of error.[25] The trial court cannot amend a writ of error.[26]

Certifications and reservations.—There must be a certificate of importance to the supreme court if the record shows no other ground.[27] The certification must state sufficient to present the question.[28] The certificate of the circuit court of appeals to the supreme court should state the facts on which the questions arise, and not send up the whole record.[29] Merely allowing exceptions to an opinion, and with them a transcript, does not reserve the case for the decision of three justices.[30] An order allowing appeal may be such as to certify questions.[31]

G. Bonds, security, payment of costs; necessity.[32]—Security is necessary on error from the supreme to a state court.[33] Fiduciaries[34] and public representatives are usually exempted from giving bond.[35] An executor is a trustee who may appeal without bond,[36] but he must have given an executorial bond, and must give the statutory notice in time.[37] The executor of an executor appealing against the administrator d. b. n. is such a trustee;[38] but an executor who appeals in his individual right as against a co-executor does not come within the statutes allowing appeal without an undertaking.[39] And where a guardian ad litem can be appointed only for de-

19. Order granting appeal to appellants by firm instead of individual names is not defective if they proceeded under it—Pugh v. Wallace, 198 Ill. 422.

20. Appeal to circuit court on filing a bond vacated before filing—Vallee v. Hunsberry, 108 La. 136.

21. Alaska United Min. Co. v. Keating (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 561.

22. Superior court of Massachusetts after decision and re-script from supreme court—Rothschild v. Knight, 184 U. S. 334, 46 Law. Ed. 573.

23. Court of appeals where supreme court had disavowed jurisdiction—Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Elliott, 184 U. S. 530, 46 Law. Ed. 673.

24.—Alaska United Min. Co. v. Keating (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 561.

25. Alaska United Min. Co. v. Muset (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 66.

26. Fitzpatrick v. Graham (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 353.

27. Pick v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 192 Ill. 157. There must be a certificate of jurisdictional facts if the sum involved is otherwise too small—Douglass v. Frazier, 64 Kan. 886, 67 Pac. 1102.

28. Sufficiency of the findings only will be reviewed when the judge's report omits the evidence—Cleveland v. Hampden Sav. Bank, 182 Mass. 110. On a question whether reference was proper it was not shown whether any question of long accounts was involved —Malone v. St. Peter & P. Church, 172 N. Y. 269.

29. Emsheimer v. New Orleans, 186 U. S. 33, 46 Law. Ed. 1042.

30. First Nat. Bank v. Greene, 23 R. I. 238.

31. Order allowing appeal from a dismissal "for want of jurisdiction," sufficiently certifies question of circuit court's jurisdiction—Excelsior Wooden Pipe Co. v. Pac. Bridge Co., 185 U. S. 282, 46 Law. Ed. 910.

32. Code March 16, 1895, providing that a new "appeal bond" may be ordered, in default of which execution may issue, means a new stay bond, and the failure to provide one is not ground for dismissal—Mersfelder v. Spring, 136 Cal. 619, 69 Pac. 251.

33. Act. Cong. July 20, 1892, does not authorize supreme court to allow a writ of error to a state court without security—Gallaway v. Ft. Worth Bank, 186 U. S. 177, 46 Law. Ed. 1111.

34. Supersedeas bond is unnecessary when executor appeals from order annulling a will, since estate must pay costs in any event —State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 677, 69 Pac. 375.

35. Head of an executive department of a city—People v. Sturgis, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 596.

36. An appeal from an accounting—In re Sidwell's Estate (Ohio) 66 N. E. 521.

37. Rev. St. § 6408—In re Sidwell's Estate (Ohio) 66 N. E. 521.

38. In re Sidwell's Estate (Ohio) 66 N. E. 521.

39. Rev. St. §§ 6101, 6408—Downing v. Downing, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 389.

fendant, one who is styled "guardian ad litem for plaintiff" is not within such exemption.[40]

A statute exempting a city from giving a bond makes the mere appeal operate as a supersedeas;[41] and the like results from laws exempting bonded executors and trustees.[42] In New York, if the head of an executive department of the municipality appeals, it is in effect by the municipality, so that service of the notice works a supersedeas.[43] An order for receivership of property pending foreclosure will not be superseded without a stay bond, when no possession is taken under it, and the possession of the estate is not interfered with.[44] Judgments for money and for the foreclosure of liens described in the complaint on personal property are judgments for the sale of personal property on foreclosure, which require stay bonds in California.[45]

Payment of costs.—A statutory direction to an officer to send up transcript on payment of his fees does not make payment of fees jurisdictional.[46]

Diverse parties or orders appealed from.—One undertaking will suffice where a judgment and an order denying a new trial are appealed.[47] Though a statute require "appellant" to give bond, yet several appellants may unite in one bond.[48]

Fixing, taking, and approving.[49]—The court allowing a supersedeas bond should fix the conditions as well as the amount, and it is the duty of the parties seeking it to see that such conditions are fixed.[50] Mandamus will lie against a court which refuses to fix a supersedeas.[51] The clerk or judge of the court to which a cause has been removed should take the bond.[52] In Illinois the clerk of the circuit court cannot approve a bond except when directed by the court;[53] but if the statute provides for an approval by the clerk, an approval by the court is not sufficient.[54] In Colorado, a deputy clerk may approve the bond.[55] In the District of Columbia, court rules do not require approval of an appeal bond by the lower court to be on notice.[56] It is not necessary that the federal judge who allows the writ or signs a citation shall approve the appeal bond.[57]

Sureties.—Under statutes authorizing exceptions to sufficiency of sureties, the bond will be void if they fail to appear upon notice and justify.[58] A surety company must have become qualified to do business in the state before it can go

40. Rev. St. arts. 1011, 1406—Duke v. Wheeler (Tex. Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 409.

41. Jordan v. Seattle, 29 Wash. 581, 70 Pac. 54.

42. Comp. St. 1901, c. 20, § 395—Kerr v. Lowenstein (Neb.) 90 N. W. 921.

43. Code Civ. Proc. § 1314—People v. Sturgis, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 598.

44. Receiver was to take rents and profits only—Bank of Woodland v. Stephens, 137 Cal. 458, 70 Pac. 293.

45. Code Civ. Proc. § 942—Tolle v. Heydenfeldt, 138 Cal. 55, 70 Pac. 1013. A stay bond is also necessary if the property be perishable and sale be directed (Code Civ. Proc. § 949)—Tolle v. Heydenfeldt, 138 Cal. 55, 70 Pac. 1013.

46. Drexel v. Rochester L. & B. Co. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 254.

47. Bell v. Staacke, 137 Cal. 397, 70 Pac. 171.

48. Downing v. Rademacher, 136 Cal. 673, 69 Pac. 415.

49. Appeals in private road proceedings proceed specially under Ky. St. § 4003 (applied to execution of bonds)—Freeman v. Cook (Ky.) 68 S. W. 410. In Kentucky, to appeal from an election contest, the supersedeas bond must be filed in the circuit court, and not in the court of appeal—Patterson v. Davis, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 842.

50. Carson v. Jansen (Neb.) 91 N. W. 398. The lower court will hear objections and determine competency of sureties—McSweeney v. Blank, 107 La. 292; Davies v. Monroe W. & L. Co., 107 La. 145.

51. State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 590, 68 Pac. 1051.

52. Code, § 3318, provides that upon removal, all orders, papers, etc., shall be sent over and the cause shall proceed as if brought in that court—Smith v. Pyrites M. & C. Co., 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 170, 49 S. E. 918.

53. Kontnik v. Kontnik, 196 Ill. 162.

54. Rev. St. c. 22, § 52—Harding v. Harding Incandescent Co., 98 Ill. App. 141.

55. Colburn v. Seymour, 29 Colo. 292, 68 Pac. 218.

56. Richards Brick Co. v. Rothwell, 18 App. D. C. 516.

57. Brown v. Northwestern Life Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 145.

58. Starling v. Burdette, 28 Wash. 261, 68 Pac. 733.

on the bond.[59] A bond is fatally defective which is signed by sureties who, independently of it, were bound by the judgment.[60]

The amount of the bond is usually regulated by statute at double the judgment if it be in money.[61] If not a money judgment, then in an amount sufficient to afford protection.[62] If the judgment be for a partially secured debt, the bond should cover the unsecured part only.[63] If an injunction order be appealable, the court should, on request, fix the amount of a supersedeas bond to stay proceedings pending appeal.[64] In Texas, the bond must show that the amount was properly fixed.[65]

Terms and conditions.[66]—The bond need only identify, and need not recite, the judgment in detail.[67] On appeal from probate it should, in the absence of statute, run to the estate.[68] An undertaking for costs on appeal from an order to pay legacies without the additional undertaking to stay execution leaves the order open to enforcement by any means,—by execution, or otherwise.[69] A judgment may be enforced by the appellee pending an appeal from a suit to set aside an assignment of the judgment if the bond be conditioned only to pay costs and abide the result.[70] An execution is stayed, though it be improvidently issued.[71] An appeal is suspensive in Louisiana if the money is in possession of the court abiding judgment, though the bond be for costs only.[72]

Irregularities and defects.—A bond allowed and given where none is warranted is a nullity for all purposes.[73] A bond is not objectionable to appellee if so worded that he can enforce it to the full extent of the law.[74] A mere variance in stating the term in a bond otherwise particularly describing the judgment is surplusage.[75] If the identity of parties appellant is otherwise made certain, it is immaterial that words of description following counsel's signature are uncertain.[76] It is no vice that it runs to appellant's sureties for costs, as well as to the respondent.[77] A signing by an obligee does not affect a bond which is sufficient without him.[78] The bond is valid, though it does not state to whom it shall

59. Dodge v. Corliss, 27 Wash. 685, 68 Pac. 177.

60. They add nothing to the security—David v. Guich, 30 Wash. 266, 70 Pac. 497.

61. An appeal and supersedeas bond should be double the judgment and two hundred dollars besides—Graham v. American Surety Co., 28 Wash. 735, 69 Pac. 365.

62. In Washington if a judgment be only in part for the recovery of money, the bond should be in double the amount of the judgment, also such further sum as the court shall prescribe sufficient to protect the respondent—Title G. & T. Co. v. McDonnell, 28 Wash, 359, 68 Pac. 890. The bond, in order to stay receivership, must be in such penalty as to save appellee harmless and two hundred dollars besides (Ball. Codes, § 6506)—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 232, 70 Pac. 484.

63. Reid v. Donovan (Mich.) 93 N. W. 914.

64. State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 177, 70 Pac. 256.

65. The bond must be in the statutory amount and must show that the amount was fixed by the clerk as prescribed—Crouch v. Crouch (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 515.

66. Names of partners need not be in bond for an appeal taken by firm in Louisiana—McSweeney v. Blank, 107 La. 292. A supersedeas bond in the terms of a statute should be construed as the statute—Campbell v. Harrington, 93 Mo. App. 315. Conditions to prosecute and to pay money adjudged are separate and independent—Campbell v. Harrington, 93 Mo. App. 315. Supersedeas bond of foreclosure decree must provide for use and occupation—Collins v. Brown (Neb.) 89 N. W. 754. Character of bond required in Washington on appeal from procedure to enforce tax certificates—Meagher v. Hand, 28 Wash. 332, 68 Pac. 892.

67. Number and style of the case, date of judgment and name of court suffice—Frerie v. Cloudt (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 890.

68. Blackman v. Edsall (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 790.

69. In re Holmes' Estate, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 267.

70. Carson v. Jansen (Neb.) 91 N. W. 398.

71. Campbell v. Harrington, 93 Mo. App. 315.

72. Metropolitan Bank v. Blaise (La.) 33 So. 95.

73. Appeal instead of error in mandamus—Jabine v. Oates, 115 Fed. 861.

74. McSweeney v. Blank, 107 La. 292.

75. White v. Boreing, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 738.

76. They signed as attorneys for "plaintiff" when there were several represented by them—Bendich v. Scobel, 107 La. 242.

77. White Crest Canning Co. v. Sims, 29 Wash. 389, 69 Pac. 1094.

78. White Crest Canning Co. v. Sims, 29 Wash. 389, 69 Pac. 1094.

be payable,[79] or runs to the state, instead of a prescribed officer.[80] A bond otherwise joint and several by each of the defendants does not lose that character, though it refers to the "appeal," and the notice recites that each "appeals."[81] In Louisiana, if the bond be in an amount fixed, though insufficient for a suspensive appeal, it may serve for a devolutive one.[82] In Texas, a bond may suffice to transfer jurisdiction though it lack a penalty.[83]

The bond may, unless wholly null, be amended,[84] but defects cannot be cured by filing a new bond after time.[85] If timely given, a bond may be amended by striking out an improper reference to another order than that appealed from.[86] A failure of sureties to sign a justification may be cured by the clerk's certification that they made the proper oath, in the absence of a statute requiring their signature to it.[87] Correction of a recital in the bond to show the district to which an appeal was actually taken is a proper amendment.[88] In Montana, the bond may be amended by substituting several undertakings for a joint one before hearing of motion to dismiss;[89] and in Texas, one may be amended by adding a penalty which was lacking.[90] The failure of one appellant to sign a bond is waived by appellees who proceed to go into the merits of the case.[91]

H. Entry below.—There must be an entry of appeal or error below, and an appearance above, under Florida practice.[92] The appeal should be made returnable to a day certain,[93] and entry must be in the proper book,[94] and state to what court and term the cause has gone.[95] Failure to enter an appeal is immaterial if notice was served and the fact of taking it admitted.[96]

§ 7. Transfer of jurisdiction, supersedeas and stay.—The appeal must be perfected to transfer jurisdiction.[97] An allowance of appeal which is null does not oust it;[98] and similarly, an appeal erroneously taken in a law action,[99] or proceedings prematurely brought, do not transfer jurisdiction.[1]

Supersedeas by operation of appeal or error.—Generally speaking, the trial court's power ceases for all purposes on the transfer of jurisdiction;[2] hence the

79. Downing v. Rademacher, 136 Cal. 673, 69 Pac. 415.

80. A bond in a probate proceeding is not void because it runs to the state instead of the judge of probate as required (Comp. St. c. 23, § 311)—In re Gannon's Estate (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1028.

81. Hayes v. Union Merc. Co., 27 Mont. 264, 70 Pac. 975.

82. McSweeney v. Blank, 107 La. 292; L. J. Mestier & Co. v. Chevalier Pavement Co., 108 La. 562.

83. It is amendable—Williams v. Wiley (Tex.) 71 S. W. 12.

84. Motion should be made above for a new bond before dismissing—In re Gannon's Estate (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1028.

85. Koutnik v. Koutnik, 196 Ill. 162.

86. Johnson v. Manning, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 288.

87. Colburn v. Seymour, 29 Colo. 292, 68 Pac. 219.

88. Nations v. Lovejoy, 80 Miss. 401.

89. Hayes v. Union Merc. Co., 27 Mont. 264, 70 Pac. 975.

90. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1025, permits amendments in form or substance—Williams v. Wiley (Tex.) 71 S. W. 12.

91. Engel v. Atkinson (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 683.

92. Ropes v. Kemps (Fla.) 33 So. 244; Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Peacock (Fla.) 33 So. 247.

93. An entry in the minutes instead of the chancery order book and not naming a return day or term is no notice to appellee—Cotter v. Holmes (Fla.) 33 So. 246; L'Engle v. Holmes (Fla.) 33 So. 247.

94. Appeal must be on chancery order book and not on minutes—Cotter v. Holmes (Fla.) 33 So. 246.

95. L'Engle v. Holmes (Fla.) 33 So. 247.

96. Barden v. Stickney, 130 N. C. 62.

97. Mere filing of the notice does not fix the time when jurisdiction is transferred—Barton v. New Haven, 74 Conn. 729.

98. If allowed to the wrong court, can afterwards be allowed to the right one—Vallee v. Hunsberry, 108 La. 136. Jurisdiction not transferred if there is no appealable decision—Morgan v. McCausland, 96 Me. 449.

99. As in Nebraska—Ewings v. Hoffine (Neb.) 93 N. W. 186.

1. Final judgment not yet entered below—Bell v. Stewart (Ga.) 43 S. E. 70.

2. If a suspensive appeal be granted lower court should not disturb it by sequestration or injunction—New Orleans v. Bilgery, 108 La. 191. Setting aside judgment, the trial, etc., after appeal taken, are invalid—Story & Clark Piano Co. v. Gibbons (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 168. The court of claims loses jurisdiction when the record goes up on appeal—Monroe v. U. S., 37 Ct. of Cl. 79.

Pendency of appeal does not bar motion below to amend record—Birnbaum v. May, lower court cannot grant a supersedeas thereafter,[3] or divest jurisdiction,[4] but may during term request the return of the record if proper grounds for a new trial have arisen.[5] The trial court has no control over the cause to enter a dismissal.[6] If the appeal is not yet perfected, the trial court has control for ancillary proceedings.[7] It is very doubtful if a court can enforce a decree, though entered upon mandate, if it has been appealed, and a supersedeas bond tendered.[8] The estoppel of the judgment is destroyed if the review is de novo, or if there is a supersedeas, but not if error is brought.[9] A suspension of limitations may result.[10] Execution on a judgment is stayed, but its validity remains unchanged.[11] Where a receivership for a firm is not appealed from, but judgment is appealed from and supersedeas taken, the receivership and custody of the property remain in the lower court.[12] Appeals from collateral orders do not oust the trial court's jurisdiction as to further proceedings in the cause,[13] and an appeal by one party has no such effect on independent questions litigated between other parties;[14] nor need it follow that a provisional order is stayed by appeal from the judgment.[15] Under statutes working a supersedeas, the trial court, though ordinarily empowered to modify a divorce decree as respects the custody of children, cannot do so when that is the matter appealed from.[16] In Montana, the district court has exclusive power pending appeal to allow temporary alimony.[17] On an appeal from probate, the probate court cannot grant general letters, testamentary or of administration.[18] Appealing and superseding an order annulling a will reinstates the executor only so far as to enable him to maintain the appeal.[19] The statute in Montana stays a mandatory injunction;[20] but ordinarily it can be done only by special allowance.[21] Appeal from a denial of habeas corpus to an applicant charged with crime does not stay the prosecution, and no stay is authorized.[22] Supersedeas will not serve the office of a restitution.[23] Superseding a decree for specific performance within a certain time extends that time from the day of the return of the mandate of affirmance.[24] Appealing from part of an inseparable decision vacates all.[25]

170 N. Y. 314. Appeal by intervenor in quo warranto does not stay judgment for relator, (statute excepts judgments determining right to office from stay)—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

3. Johnson v. Turner (Fla.) 33 So. 238.

4. Appeal from final settlement by probate court—In re Hutton's Estate, 92 Mo. App. 132.

5. New evidence—Nutter v. Mossberg, 118 Fed. 168.

6. Spindler v. Gibson, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 150. Clerk of trial court cannot; it must be done on application or motion above—Da Costa v. Dibble (Fla.) 33 So. 466.

7. Crawford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mo.) 66 S. W. 350.

8. Southern B. & L. Ass'n v. Carey, 117 Fed. 325.

9. Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 462. Appeal suspends conclusiveness of judgment—Boucher v. Barsalou (Mont.) 69 Pac. 555.

10. Lien of judgment is extended—Ebel v. Stringer (Neb.) 93 N. W. 142. On right of action for deficiency on mortgage—Brand v. Garneau (Neb.) 93 N. W. 219.

11. Hence an action may be brought on it and garnishee proceedings instituted—Salem-Bedford Stone Co. v. Hobbs, 28 Ind. App. 520.

12. Lamb v. Rowan (Miss.) 33 So. 4.

13. Later proceedings in settlement of trustee's account—Gardner v. Stare, 136 Cal. xix, 69 Pac. 426. A plea of pendency of an appeal from the vacation of an attachment is no defense to an action on the attachment bond unless coupled with an allegation that there was also a stay of proceedings—Powell v. Bursky, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 533.

14. Appeals from a judgment setting aside conveyances to a son before reserving those to a wife—Perrine v. Perrine, 63 N. J. Eq. 483.

15. Appealing from an order setting aside an absolute divorce does not merge a prior judgment for maintenance against the husband—Smith v. Superior Ct., 136 Cal. 17, 68 Pac. 100.

16. Vosburg v. Vosburg, 137 Cal. 493, 70 Pac. 473.

17. Bordeaux v. Bordeaux, 26 Mont. 533, 69 Pac. 103.

18. Ex parte Wessinger, 63 S. C. 130.

19. State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 677, 69 Pac. 375.

20. Code Civ. Proc. § 1733—Maloney v. King, 26 Mont. 492, 68 Pac. 1014.

21. See post, this section, "Supersedeas by special order."

22. State v. Fenton, 30 Wash. 325, 70 Pac. 741.

23. Adverse party had already taken possession under judgment—Thompson v. Thompson, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 645.

24. Southern Oil Co. v. Scales (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1033.

25. Appeal from partial disallowance of

In equity, appeal places the parties as they were at the beginning of the action.[26]

The appellate court cannot vacate a statutory supersedeas on the ground that an appeal is frivolous.[27]

Supersedeas by special order or allowance.—If a decree be self-executing, a stay cannot be taken.[28] A suspensive appeal is not given to one who treated the judgment as binding,[29] or against one who is not party or subject to the control of the court.[30]

As to what matters.—Judgments in extraordinary proceedings,[31] and temporary injunctions, but not mere ex parte restraining orders, are often made supersedable.[32] It will not be done if a vacation of the order is the practical result of a stay.[33] A statute excepting judgments granting, modifying, continuing, or dissolving injunctions from the supersedeas statutes, and committing the superseding of such matters to the discretion of the court, does not authorize the continuation of a temporary restraining order issued by the clerk, when the court dissolves it and an appeal is taken.[34] A statute providing that an appeal from contempt shall not stay any other action does not forbid a supersedeas of the contempt order itself.[35] If a will be annulled, and another one admitted to probate with a grant of administration and authority to distribute, notwithstanding an appeal from the annulment, the appellate court, to protect its jurisdiction, will stop distribution.[36] No law in Montana authorizes the staying of a perpetual injunction, since the statutes apply only to interlocutory injunctions.[37] In Nebraska, it is discretionary with the district, and, after taking up the cause, with the supreme court, to allow supersedeas in cases not enumerated by statute.[38]

Procedure, order, or writ, and its effect.—Under the laws of Kentucky, the trial court cannot continue a temporary restraining order after an appeal is taken. The authority lies in the higher court.[39] In Florida, circuit judges cannot grant supersedeas on appeal from final decree.[40] On a motion for stay, an objection that a perpetual injunction is void will not be heard.[41] A special order to supersede an injunctional order is always necessary in Florida.[42] A federal supersedeas claim by county board—Dakota County v. Borowsky (Neb.) 93 N. W. 686.

26. An appeal in equity, with the filing and approving of a supersedeas bond, suspends decree—Riley v. Melia (Neb.) 92 N. W. 913.

27. Johnson v. Turner (Fla.) 33 So. 238.

28. Decree declaring a mulct law proceeding to be insufficient—Whitlock v. Wade (Iowa) 90 N. W. 587.

29. Husband who remarried after decree of divorce—State v. King (La.) 33 So. 121.

30. The railroad company had under its franchise entered on a highway, pending appeal from proceedings to establish the highway—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 138 Cal. 244, 71 Pac. 112.

31. Judgment in quo warranto is supersedable by virtue of Rev. St. § 1272—Simonton v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 809.

32. An order to show cause against a permanent injunction made returnable to another district and directing the issuance of a temporary restraining order was held a mere restraining order, not supersedable after dissolution, the return day not being at the term at which the cause was triable—Riggins v. Thompson (Tex.) 71 S. W. 14. An order made on hearing that an obstruction by an adjoining owner be removed held a temporary injunction, susceptible of continuance by supersedeas—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 197, 70 Pac. 233. Temporary mandatory injunction to deliver property is supersedable—State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 403, 68 Pac. 865.

33. Under the laws and constitution of Montana an order of injunction against working a mine of which appellants were in possession is mandatory in effect, hence cannot be stayed by special order, since Code Civ. Proc. § 1733, stays proceedings, and since an order for a stay would operate as a vacation, which the supreme court could not do as incidental to its appellate powers—Maloney v. King, 26 Mont. 487, 68 Pac. 1012.

34. Jones v. Walter, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 878.

35. State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 590, 68 Pac. 1051.

36. State v. Superior Ct., 28 Wash. 677, 69 Pac. 375.

37. Maloney v. King, 26 Mont. 487, 68 Pac. 1012.

38. Carson v. Jansen (Neb.) 91 N. W. 398.

39. Jones v. Walter, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 878.

40. Johnson v. Turner (Fla.) 33 So. 238.

41. Maloney v. King, 26 Mont. 492, 68 Pac. 1014.

42. Under the laws of Florida, whether the supersedeas be by operation of law or bond ordinarily given does not suspend an injunction granted by the decree appealed from unless the trial judge so specifies.[43] An order for an appeal containing an allowance of a supersedeas granted to an order dissolving an injunction continues it in force on the giving of the proper bond.[44] A supersedeas in quo warranto suspends only further action, leaving the judgment stand.[45] If a stay be allowed from a self-executing decree, it will be a nullity.[46] If the undertaking for supersedeas be regularly filed, and the amount properly fixed, it is immaterial that the record showed no determination on the subject of motion for a stay;[47] but the mere allowance of a suspensive appeal in Louisiana does not alone operate suspensively on the jurisdiction below.[48]

§ 8. Appearance, entry, and docketing above.—Appellant should make an appearance above.[49] A special appearance below is not enlarged to a general one by taking an appeal and filing an appeal bond.[50] A motion to docket and dismiss for delay may be made at any time while the defect remains unremedied.[51] If a case has not been settled in time to prepare and docket a transcript, so much of one as is available should be made up and docketed, and the remainder then brought up by proper proceedings.[52] A mistaken appeal may, in Colorado, be redocketed as error;[53] e. g., a cause reviewable by error which it is too late to appeal.[54] When a dismissed appeal is redocketed as on error, it should be without prejudice to renewal of motion to dismiss, if there is doubt as to the appropriateness of error.[55]

§ 9. Perpetuation of proceedings and evidence for the reviewing court. A. The record proper and what it must show.—The rule that error must be made to affirmatively appear, and that particular matters must be shown by the record, to authorize a review of particular alleged errors, is elsewhere treated.[56] But in addition to this it is usually held that certain matters must be shown in order to sustain the appeal generally.

Jurisdiction of the court below is ordinarily presumed, but, where absence of jurisdictional steps appears, the presumption does not obtain;[57] and where the existence of a constitutional[58] or federal question,[59] or a minimum amount in by order of the supreme judges, if the granting or dissolving of an injunction is provided for among other things, the supersedeas will not be effective as to the injunction unless a special application and order of the supreme court or a judge thereof be had to that end—Johnson v. Turner (Fla.) 33 So. 238.

43. Violation of the injunction should be redressed against the injunction but not against the supersedeas bond—Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Norrie, 118 Fed. 923.

44. New River Mineral Co. v. Seeley, 117 Fed. 981.

45. Hence contempt cannot be brought against an ousted party who refuses to surrender office—Simonton v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 809.

46. Whitlock v. Wade (Iowa) 90 N. W. 587.

47. Harris v. Snyder, 113 Wis. 451.

48. Upton v. Adeline Sugar Factory Co. (La.) 33 So. 725.

49. Florida practice—Ropes v. Kemps (Fla.) 33 So. 244; see, also, Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Peacock (Fla.) 33 So. 247.

50. White House Mountain G. M. Co. v. Powell (Colo.) 70 Pac. 679.

51. Worth v. Wilmington, 131 N. C. 532.

52. Worth v. Wilmington, 131 N. C. 532.

53. Appeal from county court; Mills' A. C. § 388a, expressly permits it—Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Peterson (Colo.) 69 Pac. 578.

Appeal from judgment of county court dismissed and redocketed on error—Bailey v. O'Fallon (Colo.) 70 Pac. 755; Colorado F. & I. Co. v. Knudson (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 698.

54. Mills' Ann. Code, § 388a; Roseberry v. Valley B. & L. Ass'n (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1063.

55. Taylor v. Colorado Iron Works, 29 Colo. 372, 68 Pac. 218.

56. See post, § 13. Limitation by contents of record.

57. Biart v. Myers (Neb.) 91 N. W. 573.

58. Unless it does, the court of appeals cannot transfer the cause to the supreme court—Dawson v. Waldheim, 91 Mo. App. 117.

59. A certificate of the judge will not suffice—Home for Incurables v. New York, 187 U. S. 155. Thus if it be raised by assertion of title under act of congress, the record must show that such claim of title was made in the state courts—Sweringen v. St. Louis, 185 U. S. 38, 46 Law. Ed. 795. It must appear that the constitutional provision offended was in the federal and not in the state constitution—New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. New York, 186 U. S. 269, 46 Law. Ed. 1158. In order to raise the question, the pleadings should specify what constitutional provision is violated—Ash v. Independence, 169 Mo. 77.

controversy,[60] is essential to the jurisdiction of the appellate court, the facts giving jurisdiction must appear by the record, though it is sometimes held that jurisdictional facts may be ascertained from outside the record.[61]

The ruling complained of,[62] and the judgment or order of the court below must appear,[63] and a record entry thereof is essential.[64] On appeal from an intermediate court, the judgment of the trial court must be in the record,[65] as must that of the intermediate court.[66]

The making of objections,[67] filing of instructions objected to,[68] and the taking of exceptions,[69] and by which party exceptions were taken, must appear.[70] Rulings not excepted to cannot be reviewed,[71] and a bill showing no exceptions cannot be considered.[72]

Proceedings for new trial and to obtain review.—The record must show the timely filing of the motion for new trial,[73] the notice of appeal,[74] the taking of the appeal,[75] and grant thereof,[76] the proper settlement and signing of the bill of 60. Marx & Haas Co. v. Watson, 168 Mo. 133, 56 L. R. A. 991. Under Gen. St. 1901, § 5019, the record must show that the water right in controversy was worth over $100 or the trial judge must have certified that title to land was involved, in order to give supreme court jurisdiction—Grant v. Robb, 64 Kan. 886, 67 Pac. 552. A vendor suing for his interest, which is limited to unpaid purchase money, does not show jurisdiction by allegations that the property was worth more than the statutory amount—Gottfred v. Woodruff, 193 Ill. 491. A record showing judgment for $2088, and affidavit in garnishment stating that the garnishee was indebted to the debtor, but not stating how much, does not show that garnishees were indebted in $1000 so as to make dismissal of the process appealable—Pick v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 192 Ill. 157.

61. Towle v. Weise, 64 Kan. 760, 68 Pac. 637.

62. Stuart v. Mitchum, 135 Ala. 546; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Crocker, 135 Ala. 492. The convening order under which the court sat need not be inserted—Com'rs of Natrona Co. v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 66 Pac. 14.

63. Campbell v. City of Stanberry (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 887; O'Donnell v. Quinn, 100 Ill. App. 5; In re Pina's Estate, 136 Cal. xix, 71 Pac. 171; Young v. Hatch (Colo.) 70 Pac. 693; Lucas v. Huff, 92 Mo. App. 359.

The bill of exceptions must show that a judgment was entered or the case tried after setting aside a judgment and opening a default—Bell v. Stewart (Ga.) 43 S. E. 70. On appeal from the probate court, the transcript must show a judgment identifiable as that appealed from—Barker v. Thompson's Estate, 98 Ill. App. 78.

64. Mikesell v. South Bend Electric Co., 29 Ind. App. 586.

Docket entries in brief form held sufficient to show that judgment was entered on a master's report in divorce—English v. English, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.

A recital in the record (Reese v. Fuller, 132 Ala. 282); or in the bill of exceptions (O'Donnell v. Quinn, 100 Ill. App. 5); or in the abstract is insufficient (Mattair v. Furchgott [Fla.] 32 So. 925).

The bill of exceptions may be looked at to see if there was a finding in response to a request therefor, and if there was evidence to require it—Hinton v. Sun Life Ins. Co. (Tenn.) 72 S. W. 115.

65. Saussay v. Lemp Brewing Co. (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1048.

66. Bram v. Miller (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 714. The judgment of an intermediate court where that is complained of must be included—Kummer v. Dubuque Mills Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 938.

67. Corrigan v. Kansas City, 93 Mo. App. 173; Cox v. Cohn, 29 Ind. App. 559; Nickerson v. Leader Mercantile Co., 90 Mo. App. 336. Ground of objections—Lovejoy v. Campbell (S. D.) 92 N. W. 24.

68. Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 488.

It was sought to bring in the instructions by special exceptions written on the margin of each, under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 542—Williams v. Chapman (Ind.) 66 N. E. 460.

69. Gillett v. Burns (Mich.) 92 N. W. 104; Nickerson v. Leader Mercantile Co., 90 Mo. App. 336; Hoffman v. Molloy, 91 Mo. App. 367.

70. City of Greenfield v. Johnson (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 542.

71. See "Saving Questions for Review."

72. Moulton Agency v. W. F. McLaughlin Co., 100 Ill. App. 272; Frederick v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 135 Ala. 486.

73. Recital in bill of exceptions insufficient—Greenwood v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 138; Parry v. Gordon Coffee & Spice Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 130. Continuance of the motion to the term when it was denied need not be shown—Hugumin v. Hinds (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 479. A showing that on the day the motion was set for argument sufficiently discloses that it was presented to the court—Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. Martin, 28 Ind. App. 468.

74. Browne v. Wallace, 66 Ohio St. 57, a recital thereof in the journal being insufficient.

75. Greenwood v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 138. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 953, a clerk's certificate that "good and sufficient undertaking * * * in due form was given is sufficient—Downing v. Rademacher, 136 Cal. 573, 69 Pac. 415.

76. Welty v. Gibson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 704. In Missouri, since county court judgments are appealed like those of a justice, an allowance of the appeal will by analogy exceptions,[77] and these must be shown by the record and not by recitals in the bill.[78] Proceedings after supersedeas resulting from an appeal need not be included in the record.[79] Evidence of facts outside the record is occasionally received.[80]

B. What is part of record proper; necessity of bill of exceptions or its equivalent.—The record proper, which the appellate court can consider without its being authenticated by a bill of exceptions, comprehends pleadings and amendments thereto,[81] including demurrers,[82] a stipulation for submission on the pleadings, made part of the judgment entry,[83] but not a consent to the entry of judgment,[84] also a bill of exceptions taken on a former trial and read at the second trial, is part of the record.[85] Grounds for a ruling are not necessarily recorded.[86] Documents will not go up unless they were in court below.[87] Proceedings on application for a rehearing are not of the record of the determination concerning which rehearing is sought.[88]

Bringing matters into the record.—Prevailing plaintiff, as against an appealing defendant, must see that material evidence is in the record.[89] A bill of exceptions is the usual procedure for bringing matters into the record. Where the bill of exceptions is quashed, the court will consider the case as if there had been no bill.[90] Where the statute allows proceedings to be made of record by order, its provisions must be strictly complied with;[91] and without such a statute an order to make proceedings of record is ineffectual.[92] Grounds for appellate jurisdiction not apparent of record should be certified.[93] The record in another cause between be considered to have been made though not shown by the record—Williams v. Kirby, 169 Mo. 622.

77. Filing of the bill—Jaco v. Southern Missouri & A. R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 567; Edmondson v. South Georgia R. Co., 115 Ga. 790; Biles v. Beadle (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 465; Upton v. Castleman (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 707; Lucas v. Huff, 92 Mo. App. 369. Filing of case made—Johnson v. Johnson (Kan.) 71 Pac. 518. Extension of time to file—Knight v. Bergmann (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 237; Thompkins v. Muntzell, Id. 240; Andrews v. Meadow, 133 Ala. 442; Mikesell v. South Bend Elec. Co., 29 Ind. App. 689; Thompson v. Dampskibsaktieselskabet Habil, 135 Ala. 249; Tinsley v. Kemry (Mo.) 70 S. W. 691; Lindsey v. Kenan, 133 Ala. 532; Robertson v. Boyd (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 976; Samuel v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co., 135 Ala. 501. The order was not dated and the time of making did not appear. Filing within extension granted—Hinton v. Sun Life Ins. Co. (Tenn.) 72 S. W. 118. And leave to file in vacation—Dantzler v. Swift Creek Mill Co., 128 Ala. 410; Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Arnold, 133 Ala. 368; Zion Fountain Lodge v. Folkes, 132 Ala. 609. A record reciting the filing of a bill of exceptions, such recital being followed by the bill and a certificate to the transcript that it contained "all orders and motions" affecting the judgment and appeal is sufficient to show filing.

78. Welty v. Gibson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 704. Recitals in the bill are insufficient to excuse delay—Smith v. Baer, 166 Mo. 392; and see, Haydon v. Alkire Grocery Co., 88 Mo. App. 241; but service may appear otherwise than by the acknowledgment thereof—Southern R. Co. v. Barfield, 115 Ga. 724. A record entry of the filing of a bill of exceptions "as follows" followed by a bill to which the judge's signature was affixed shows that the bill was signed before filing—State v. Rockwood (Ind.) 64 N. E. 592.

79. They are a nullity—Story & Clark Piano Co. v. Gibbons (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 168.

80. Bankruptcy of party—Scruby v. Norman, 91 Mo. App. 517.

81. McCall v. Herring (Ga.) 42 S. E. 468.

82. Mallinckrodt Chemical Works v. Nemnich, 169 Mo. 388.

83. Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14.

84. Grant v. McArthur, 137 Cal. 270, 70 Pac. 88.

85. Hill v. American Surety Co., 112 Wis. 627.

86. A board of equalization should certify legal grounds for its rulings; and evidence other than the record will be had only when they refuse to do so—Newark v. North Jersey St. R. Co. (N. J. Sup.) 53 Atl. 219.

87. Ballots will not be brought up as part of the record of an election case, unless they were in some manner placed in proof or brought into court—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 678.

88. Record on granting liquor license does not include affidavits on application for rehearing—In re Chuya's License, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 410.

89. O'Connall v. Thompson-Starrett Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 47.

90. Nester's Estate v. Carney, 98 Ill. App. 630; Gonzales Mandlebaum Co. v. Broghamer (Neb.) 89 N. W. 621; Helm v. Byfield (Neb.) 91 N. W. 511; Janoska v. Pickard (Neb.) 91 N. W. 521.

91. Proceedings not set out in order—Fredericksburg v. Wilcoxen, 158 Ind. 359. Motion ordered to be included not spread on order book and not showing that order was on motion (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 662)—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

92. Wood v. Tattnall County, 115 Ga. 1000.

93. If record did not show proper jurisdictional amount, other ground of jurisdiction must have been certified—Grant v. Robb, 64 Kan. 886, 67 Pac. 852.

the same parties and in the same court, merely certified to the supreme court by the clerk, cannot be considered on appeal, since judicial notice cannot be taken of it below.[94]

The matters which are not part of the record, but must be brought in by a bill of exceptions or its equivalent, include proceedings at a former trial,[95] errors occurring at the trial generally,[96] papers filed in the cause generally,[97] refusal to "sanction" petition for certiorari,[98] or summons in mandamus as to which there had been an appearance and answer,[99] or petition or motion for change of venue,[1] or continuance,[2] motions and rulings thereon,[3] bench notes, memoranda, and recitals of rulings,[4] the exceptions taken at the trial,[5] settlement of bill of exceptions,[6] rules of court,[7] the evidence,[8] affidavits,[9] argument of counsel,[10] motion for new trial[11]

94. The record must be introduced in evidence and brought up by statement of facts or bill of exceptions—Plumley v. Simpson (Wash.) 71 Pac. 710.

95. McDonald v. People, 28 Colo. 573, 66 Pac. 703.

96. Bolton v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Mo.) 72 S. W. 830; Staunton Coal Co. v. Menk, 99 Ill. App. 254; Malott v. Scanlon, 101 Ill. App. 142; Richmond Passenger Co. v. Robinson (Va.) 41 S. E. 719.

97. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Luffman (Fla.) 33 So. 710.

98. Wood v. Tattnall Co., 115 Ga. 1000.

99. Hart v. State (Ind.) 64 N. E. 854.

1. Salomon v. Wincox's Estate, 104 Ill. App. 277.

2. In Texas the rule of court requiring a bill of exceptions to review the overruling of motion for continuance is valid—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Bowles (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 451.

3. Radeke Brewing Co. v. Granger, 101 Ill. App. 549. Order striking out pleas—Logan v. Adams Mach. Co., 135 Ala. 473. Motion to revoke appointment of receiver—Bank of Dexter v. Stoddard County Bank, 169 Mo. 74. Denial of motion to open default—Hartford L. & A. Ins. Co. v. Rossiter, 98 Ill. App. 11. Motion on trial of remonstrance in highway proceedings to reject viewer's report—Pifer v. Ritter (Ind.) 64 N. E. 463. Motion to make pleading more specific—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Greb, 29 Ind. App. 704. Rulings and exceptions—Trigger v. Drainage Dist., 199 Ill. 230. Motion to strike plea from file and ruling thereon—Cottingham v. Greely-Barnham Grocery Co., 129 Ala. 160; Randall v. Wadsworth, 130 Ala. 443; Deiterman v. Ruppel, 200 Ill. 199. The recital of motions and orders in the clerk's journal does not make them part of the record—Malott v. Scanlon, 101 Ill. App. 142.

4. Memphis & C. R. Co. v. Martin, 131 Ala. 249.

5. Flowers v. Raupp, 97 Mo. App. 454; Wells v. Fetner (Neb.) 89 N. W. 596; Scaggs v. Western Home Ins. Co., 94 Mo. App. 98; Henline v. Popejoy, 101 Ill. App. 153. Minute entries insufficient—Evans v. Southern R. Co., 133 Ala. 482. Recital in record insufficient—Aden v. Road Dist., 197 Ill. 224. Exceptions to the judgment—Mathews v. Kimball, 103 Ill. App. 28; Lord v. Guyot (Colo.) 70 Pac. 683; People v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 200 Ill. 389. Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. providing that a new trial order is deemed excepted to—Carr, Ryder & Adams Co. v. Closser, 27 Mont. 94, 69 Pac. 560.

6. Pepperdine v. Hymes, 92 Mo. App. 464. Refusal to settle bill must be shown by a bill of exceptions if such refusal is appealed from—Williamson v. Joyce, 127 Cal. 151, 69 Pac. 950. But see Hamilton Brown Shoe Co. v. Williams, 91 Mo. App. 511, where it is said that a bill of exceptions only becomes of record by record entry. A judgment entry stating that judgment was rendered on an agreed statement of facts makes the statement of record—In re Glenn's Estate, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 397.

7. Carnahan v. Connolly (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 536; Dyniewicz v. Benziger, 99 Ill. App. 572.

8. Garth v. Arnold (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 468; Tanner v. Mishawaka Woolen Mfg. Co., 28 Ind. App. 536. Acts 1899, p. 384, § 6, relating to transcripts, being invalid—Case v. Bennett (Ind.) 64 N. E. 594. Evidence of want of prosecution—Carnahan v. Connolly (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 536. Evidence excluded—Curlee v. Rose, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 259; Caplen v. Hawkins, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 608. Testimony taken by a master commissioner is part of his report, though not filed till after judgment—Midland R. Co. v. Trissal (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 543. The mere filing of the evidence with a certificate that it is correct is insufficient to make it part of the record—J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Millikan, 28 Ind. App. 686. Certification by the clerk of papers showing rulings will not take the place of a bill—Roach v. Moss Tie Co. (Ky.) 71 S. W. 2. Evidence must be preserved by bill of exceptions—Heald v. Wallace (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 80; Heil v. Martin (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 430. A stipulation of facts will not take the place of a bill of exceptions—Frizzell v. Murphy, 19 App. D. C. 440. The insertion of the original manuscript of the evidence in the transcript does not make it part of the record—South Chicago City R. Co. v. Zerler (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 599. Proceedings under the invalid act of 1899 held to be substantially a bill of exceptions—Howard v. Indianapolis St. R. Co., 29 Ind. App. 514.

9. Phoenix Life Ins. Co. v. Williams (Neb.) 90 N. W. 756; State v. Wolski (Wis.) 92 N. W. 344. An order reciting that it was made on affidavits does not identify affidavits found in the transcript—F. Chevalier & Co. v. Wilson, 30 Wash. 227, 70 Pac. 497; Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Brown (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 915; Salomon v. Wincox's Estate, 104 Ill. App. 277; Staunton Coal Co. v. Menk, 99 Ill. App. 254; Sterling v. Self (Tex. Civ. App.)

or in arrest of judgment,[12] the opinion of the trial court,[13] instructions,[14] and requests for findings.[15]

C. The bill of exceptions. 1. Form and requisites.[16]—All instructions objected to may be joined in one bill.[17] The sustaining of separate demurrers by several defendants may be presented in one bill;[18] but a joint bill cannot be made on the overruling of two demurrers argued together without consolidation of the causes.[19]

The general rule is that the bill must state the ground of objection.[20] Where several exceptions are saved by the same bill, each must show the ground of objection.[21] The findings and judgment, and exceptions thereto, must appear;[22] but matters extrinsic to the proceeding and adjudication brought up should be excluded.[23] Matters occurring in the presence of the court and matters judicially noticed may be included.[24]

Redundant matter must be eliminated.[25] The fact that the bill contains other matters than the evidence does not invalidate it.[26] The evidence should never be given in the form of question and answer;[27] and the fact that the trial judge so desired does not justify such a presentation.[28] A bill containing 500 pages, and without the marginal notes required by the rule, will not be considered.[29]

A paper referred to in the bill must be annexed or identified beyond all doubt.[30] Reference in bill to evidence in transcript,[31] to instructions in record,[32]

70 S. W. 238; Gretsch v. Maxfield (Neb.) 93 N. W. 934; Esert v. Glock, 137 Cal. 533, 70 Pac. 479; Timmonds v. Twomey (Ind.) 66 N. E. 446; F. Chevalier & Co. v. Wilson, 30 Wash. 227, 70 Pac. 487. Affidavit on motion for new trial—Creamery Pckg. Mfg. Co. v. Hotsenpiller (Ind.) 64 N. E. 600; People v. Smith, 201 Ill. 454; Shuey v. Holmes, 27 Wash. 489, 67 Pac. 1096. Affidavit as to remarks of counsel—Ryans v. Hospes, 167 Mo. 342. Affidavit of clerk to loss of papers—Memphis L. & T. Co. v. Board of Directors, 70 Ark. 409.

10. Frick v. Kabaker, 116 Iowa, 494. And see Ryans v. Hospes, 167 Mo. 342.

11. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Pendleton (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 996; Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14; Kansas City v. Mastin, 169 Mo. 80; Leforce v. Andrews (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 812; Bryson v. Wallace (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 814; Salomon v. Ellison, 102 Ill. App. 419. Errors urged for new trial—Gregory v. Leavitt (Neb.) 89 N. W. 764; Gandy v. Cummins (Neb.) 89 N. W. 777. Notice of motion for new trial is not sent up, but should be included in statement or bill of exceptions—Madigan v. Harrington, 26 Mont. 358, 67 Pac. 1121. In Missouri the rule is otherwise—Turney v. Ewins (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 543.

12. Johnson v. Bedford, 90 Mo. App. 43.

13. Aachen & M. Fire Ins. Co. v. Crawford, 199 Ill. 367; Jenkinson v. Koester, 86 Minn. 155; Harrington v. Butte & B. Min. Co., 27 Mont. 1, 69 Pac. 102. But see Beasley v. Ridout, 94 Md. 641, where statements in the opinion as to admission of facts were considered admissions of record.

14. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. v. Brink (Fla.) 33 So. 245, when not indorsed and signed by the judge as required by Rev. St. §§ 1090, 1091, but when so indorsed they are part of the record, or, under the Kentucky practice, identified by the judge—Beavers v. Bowen, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 882.

15. Recital in motion for new trial insufficient to show request for findings—First Nat. Bank v. Citizens' State Bank (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 726.

16. It is a rule that assignments or specifications should not combine distinct or diverse errors. See post, § 11.

17. Richmond Passenger & Power Co. v. Robinson (Va.) 41 S. E. 719.

18. Butler v. Lewman, 115 Ga. 752.

19. Purvis v. Ferst, 114 Ga. 689.

20. Though the contrary is held in Texas—Gunnels v. Cartledge (Tex.) 64 S. W. 806.

21. Richmond Passenger & Power Co. v. Robinson (Va.) 41 S. E. 719.

22. Colson v. Linn, 101 Ill. App. 194.

23. Comp. Laws, § 10,504, allowing, on writ of error where new trial is refused, the incorporation into the bill of all proceedings had on the motion for new trial, means that error will lie to such an order and that in that case the bill of exceptions should contain only proceedings on the motion—Walker v. Newton (Mich.) 90 N. W. 328.

24. State v. Fawcett (Neb.) 90 N. W. 250.

25. Whipple v. Preece, 24 Utah, 364, 67 Pac. 1072.

26. Town of Lewisville v. Batson, 29 Ind. App. 21.

27. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hall, 131 Ala. 161. Code, § 33, authorizes evidence to be set out "in extenso" in certain cases, but this was held to authorize only a statement in narrative form. A bill containing remarks of counsel and judge, unanswered questions, rulings not excepted to, etc., will be stricken from the files—Southern R. Co. v. Jackson, 133 Ala. 384. A bill containing the complete stenographic report of the testimony, being in violation of Code, p. 1201, § 33, will be stricken—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hall, 131 Ala. 161.

28. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hall, 131 Ala. 161.

29. City of Lafayette v. Wabash R. Co., 28 Ind. App. 497.

30. McKendree v. Shelton, 51 W. Va. 516.

to the transcript for the exceptions,[33] or to papers filed on a motion,[34] is insufficient. A motion to strike out a pleading cannot be incorporated by reference.[35] A statement in the bill that a deed attached to interrogatories was the original is sufficient to show that the original was shown to the witness.[36]

The bill is to be construed against the exceptant.[37]

2. Settlement, signing, and filing.—The bill must ordinarily be settled by the judge who heard the case, if not disabled or disqualified,[38] but it is sometimes provided that the clerk may sign the bill if stipulated to be correct.[39] Stipulation will not supply want of this signature.[40] If several judges hear different proceedings therein, several bills must be obtained from the respective judges.[41] The chairman of an official board should sign, settle and allow bills of exceptions to proceedings before the board.[42]

A bill will not be considered if not presented within the time limited by statute;[43] but there may be a nunc pro tunc order authorizing the filing of a bill properly settled;[44] and a federal judge may, under extraordinary circumstances, allow a bill after the term, though there has been no extension.[45] Inadvertent failure to file an exception is not ground for leave to file nunc pro tunc.[46] A bill filed within an extension allowed by the court is valid;[47] but one filed after the expiration of the time allowed by an order is of no effect.[48] An extension may Reference in a bill to "other ballots" objected to, etc., "but not mentioned herein" held not sufficient—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

31. N. Y. Life Ins. Co. v. Brown's Adm'r, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2070.

32. Southern R. Co. v. Jones, 132 Ala. 437; C. B. & Q. R. Co. v. Haselwood, 194 Ill. 69.

33. County Ct. Rule 29 provides that the transcript is to be referred to only to test accuracy of statement or review whole evidence—Carrow v. Barre R. Co., 74 Vt. 176.

34. San Diego Sav. Bank v. Goodsell, 137 Cal. 420, 70 Pac. 299. Sup. Ct. Rule 29 provides that they must be incorporated in the bill. Matter must be copied into the bill or referred to as provided by the statute allowing skeleton bills (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 638)—Tilden v. Louisville & J. Ferry Co., 157 Ind. 532. Matter not filed until after skeleton bill is settled cannot be incorporated by reference—Ellis v. School Dist. No. 3, 89 Mo. App. 258.

35. Midland R. Co. v. Trissal (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 543.

36. Harper v. Reaves, 132 Ala. 625. The deposition stated that the witness was shown the deed attached to the interrogatories.

37. Fisher v. Bertram, 100 Ill App. 542; Jones v. Glothart, Id. 630. Ruling is not supposed to have been made unless one appears—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Lawrence, 96 Ill. App. 635.

38. Death, sickness or "other disability" (Act Cong. June 5, 1900) does not include "absence" of trial judge—Western Dredging Co. v. Heldmaier (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 123.

Where a statute changing county lines provides that the former judge shall settle exceptions in pending cases, a settlement by the new judge is ineffectual—Carr v. Noah, 28 Ind. App. 105.

39. Mutual stipulations that no amendments were to be made suffices—Williams v. Miles, 62 Neb. 566.

40. The judge was dead, but it was considered that the statutory method of establishing in such case was exclusive—Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Bates, 133 Ala. 447.

41. Staunton Coal Co. v. Menk, 99 Ill. App. 254.

42. Union Stock Yards Bank v. Board (Neb.) 91 N. W. 286.

43. Hershberger v. Kerr (Ind.) 65 N. E. 4; American Tin Plate Co. v. Williams (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 304; City of Elwood v. Laughlin, 29 Ind. App. 667. Not presented within 20 days after the ruling complained of —Regopoulas v. State, 115 Ga. 232; Goodrich v. Ga. R. & B. Co., Id. 340. Not presented within 10 days after service of proposed amendments—Burns v. Napton, 26 Mont. 360, 68 Pac. 17. Tendered more than thirty days after adjournment of term —American Freehold Land Mtg. Co. v. Walker, 115 Ga. 737; McDaniel v. Allison, Id. 751; Alabama Mineral R. Co. v. Marcus, 128 Ala. 355; Richter v. Koopman, 131 Ala. 399. Must be presented at same term unless extension granted—McDonald v. Algeo, 96 Ill. App. 79; City of Covington v. Wilson, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1722.

44. Haydon v. Alkire Grocery Co., 88 Mo. App. 241.

45. Western Dredging & Imp. Co. v. Heldmaier (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 179. In this case a nunc pro tunc settlement was allowed where the trial judge was absent from the circuit and the bill, being settled by another judge, was quashed because of his lack of authority.

46. Berliner v. Piqua Club Ass'n, 73 App. Div. 622. Leave to renew the motion on an affidavit stating further cause was allowed on payment of costs.

47. Gorringe v. Read, 24 Utah, 455; Olson v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., Id. 460.

48. Girdner v. Bryan, 94 Mo. App. 27. Presentation after the time allowed though within 30 days ineffectual—Bullock v. Cordele Sash, Door & Lumber Co., 114 Ga. 627.

be made ex parte,[49] or in vacation.[50] The extension must be made before the time allowed has expired;[51] but time for filing may be extended on stipulation even after the time originally limited has expired.[52] Statutory limitation of the extent to which time may be enlarged by stipulation cannot be waived.[53] An extension of time to settle bill on a motion for a new trial by one defendant will not operate in favor of his co-defendant, who appeals, not from the denial of the motion, but from the judgment.[54] A postponement of the hearing on proposed amendment works an extension of the time for presentation of the bill for settlement.[55] The taking of an appeal within the time allowed for settlement does not bar the right to settle the bill.[56] Where a motion for a new trial was not made in time, a bill of exceptions 30 days after its denial is too late.[57] Plaintiff cannot preserve his exceptions to the sustaining of a demurrer by one defendant by exceptions pendente lite.[58] A bill of exceptions to a judgment cannot include exceptions to an interlocutory ruling at a previous term, and not then settled.[59] An indorsement on the bill, of an extension of time for "filing," is ineffectual under an act authorizing extension of "signing" only; hence a tardy signing is void; and a journal entry not authorized does not aid it, though reciting an extension as to signing as well as filing.[60]

A curative act for the making of a bill of exceptions, to supply one made under an unconstitutional law, is itself unconstitutional, if rights already vested by failure to seasonably perfect the appeal by preparing a bill of exceptions are in any way impaired so as to violate contract rights.[61]

The death of a party does not prevent the settlement of exceptions taken by him.[62] A certificate that certain matters stated in the bill were "probably correct" has been held sufficient.[63] A certificate by the court reporter conflicting with that of the judge is of no effect.[64] The bill must be signed by the judge as such.[65] The bill must be filed[66] after signature,[67] and a filing before signature is insufficient;[68] but failure of the clerk to attach a file mark does not prejudice the exceptant.[69] No leave to file the bill is necessary unless an allowance of 49. City of Chicago v. Rustin, 99 Ill. App. 47.

50. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. McDonald, 79 Miss. 641. The statute authorizes an extension by "the court."

51. Lewellyn v. Lewellyn, 87 Mo. App. 9; Ward v. Sumner, Id. 624; and see Alabama Mineral R. Co. v. Marcus, 128 Ala. 355; Cooley v. United States Sav. & Loan Co., 132 Ala. 590.

52. Loeff v. Taussig, 102 Ill. App. 398.

53. Cooley v. United States Sav. and Loan Co., 132 Ala. 590. Practice rule 30 (Code p. 1200) provides that time may be extended by consent to the next term of court and no longer. It was also held in this case that the rule did not conflict with Code, § 620, providing that the time shall not be extended "by the court" more than six months. It was further held that after the period to which the parties could lawfully extend had expired the court had no power to make a further extension.

Code, § 616, providing that time for settlement may be extended by consent is limited by section 618, providing that time for filing may be fixed by stipulation in term time or extended in vacation—Tisdale v. Alabama & G. Lumber Co., 131 Ala. 456.

54. Henry v. Couch, 132 Ala. 570.

55. Boyer v. Burnett, 134 Cal. 481.

56. Capital City Ins. Co. v. Cofield, 131 Ala. 198.

57. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Ohio Postal Tel. Co., 22 O. Cir. Ct. R. 555, 12 O. C. D. 522.

58. Holland v. Saul, 115 Ga. 511.

59. Guyer v. Davenport, R. I. & N. W. R. Co., 196 Ill. 370.

60. National Union v. Stoll, 65 Ohio St. 547.

61. Johnson v. Gehbauer (Ind.) 64 N. E. 855.

62. Haydon v. Alkire Grocery Co., 88 Mo. App. 241.

63. Atwood v. Walker, 179 Mass. 514. The matter in question was a list of authorities offered to show the law of a foreign state and excluded.

64. Saussay v. Lemp Brewing Co. (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1048.

65. Nestor's Estate v. Carney Bros. Co., 98 Ill. App. 630.

66. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Evans, 28 Ind. App. 518.

67. Wilson v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 167 Mo. 323; Ayres v. Blevins, 28 Ind. App. 101; Tretheway v. Peek, Id. 81; Trittipo v. Trittipo, Id. 80; Allen v. Hamilton, 157 Ind. 621; City of Indianapolis v. Tansell, Id. 463.

68. Acme Cycle Co. v. Clarke, 157 Ind. 271; Hershberger v. Kerr (Ind.) 65 N. E. 4.

69. June v. Falkinburg, 89 Mo. App. 563. A stipulation that the bill may be incorporated into the transcript waives a failure of the clerk to attach a file mark—Chi-time is desired.[70] The bill must be under seal.[71] The amendments should be incorporated and a clean copy made, and an allowance of the proposed bill and amendments is insufficient.[72]

Duty and enforcement.—The judge need not sign a second bill.[73] Refusal to settle a bill on a question of fact will not be controlled by mandamus, where the evidence is conflicting;[74] but where the judge refuses to sign unless matters resting in his own mind, and forming no part of the proceedings, are inserted, mandamus will issue.[75] The remedy for improper refusal to sign is by mandamus, not appeal or error, unless there is a statutory remedy.[76] Unsigned bill not accompanied by affidavits of bystanders is of no effect.[77]

Amendment and vacation.—The bill may be amended, but only from a matter of record.[78] The fact that an amendment will require the incorporation of additional matter in the interest of the other party is no ground for denial of the motion.[79] Delay in moving to correct the bill is excusable if resulting from technical objections by the other party to the procedure to correct.[80]

In the note are shown grounds for striking out or retaining a bill.[81] Denial of a motion for leave to present a new bill on grounds not going to the merits does not bar a motion to amend the bill.[82] A motion to strike out for incorrectness must be accompanied by a correct bill.[83]

D. The settled case or statement of facts.—This being in the nature of a statutory substitute for a bill of exceptions, the procedure in respect to it varies in different jurisdictions.[84]

All extrinsic matters should be excluded.[85] An agreed statement of facts designed for use below cannot be considered as a case on appeal, where the record fails to show whether additional evidence was introduced below.[86] A "here insert," not followed by the insertion of the document referred to, is ineffectual.[87]

A statement filed after the time limited,[88] or after the adjournment of court,[89]

cago City R. Co. v. Martensen, 100 Ill. App. 366.

70. Hartford Life & Annuity Ins. Co. v. Rossiter, 98 Ill. App. 11.

71. Vosseler v. Wheeler, 99 Ill. App. 21.

72. Dyea Elec. Light Co. v. Easton, 15 S. D. 572. A delay of seven months in correcting a bill after it has been returned by the judge for that purpose under Civ. Code § 5545 is fatal—Sutton v. Valdosta Guano Co., 115 Ga. 794.

73. People v. Perdue, 99 Ill. App. 289.

74. Kowalsky v. Kerrigan, 134 Cal. 590, 66 Pac. 850. Proof against a trial judge's finding of laches in presenting the bill must be clear—State v. Holmes (Neb.) 91 N. W. 175.

75. State v. Fawcett, 63 Neb. 523; Hartford Life & Annuity Ins. Co. v. Rossiter, 196 Ill. 277. Where the judge refused to settle a bill on appeal from an order adjusting a guardian's accounts until a certain book was included and it appeared that the book had been destroyed without fault of the guardian, mandamus was issued—Crooks v. Superior Court of San Francisco, 136 Cal. 23, 68 Pac. 96.

76. Code Civ. Proc. § 645; State v. Fawcett (Neb.) 90 N. W. 250.

77. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Holt (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 591.

78. Jackson v. Fulton, 87 Mo. App. 228.

79. Platt v. Schmitt (Wis.) 91 N. W. 992. Insertion of such matters may be ordered as a condition.

80. Platt v. Schmitt (Wis.) 91 N. W. 992.

81. A bill purporting to have been filed in time will not be stricken out on affidavits—Keller v. Kettner (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 997. A bill will not be stricken because not served in time—Kranich v. Helena Consol. Water Co., 26 Mont. 378, 68 Pac. 408, 71 Pac. 672. A bill will not be stricken because it is unnecessary—Board of Com'rs of Natrona County v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14. 81 days' delay in court above in moving to strike out is fatal—Board of Com'rs of San Juan County v. Tulley (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 346.

82. Platt v. Schmitt (Wis.) 91 N. W. 992.

83. Chicago Cottage Organ Co. v. Biggs, 22 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 392, 12 O. C. D. 497.

84. The formal statement of facts may be waived—Bernhardt v. Curtis (La.) 33 So. 125.

85. Territory v. Cooper, 11 Okl. 699, 69 Pac. 813.

86. Scott v. Cox (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 992.

87. Bowden v. Davis (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 47.

88. Anderson v. Walker (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 432; reversed 95 Tex. 596, on the ground that a good excuse was shown for the delay. And appellant has the burden of proof if he seeks to excuse his delay under (Rev. St. 1895, art. 1352)—Sisk v. Joyce (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 50.

89. Hollywood v. Wellhausen (Tex. Civ.

will not be considered; and refusal to allow filing after expiration of time is discretionary.[90] Application for extension need not be made during the time originally allowed.[91] It is immaterial that the case was signed at a different time and place than that named in the notice, if no objection was made.[92] The court cannot allow an ex parte amendment after a stipulation for settlement.[93] A certificate attached to the statements proposed by each party treating them as a single statement, is a sufficient settlement.[94]

E. Abstracts.—These are of two classes,—abstracts of the record proper and abstracts of the evidence,—though both are sometimes combined in a single abstract, and the practice in different states overlaps to an extent which renders impossible the separate treatment of each class. There is also an abstract, so called, which in many jurisdictions is required as part of the brief. It summarizes the matters in contention like an opening statement to the jury.[95]

Necessary contents.—All matters which counsel wish to urge must be abstracted.[96] The sufficiency of the evidence will not be considered where there is no brief of the evidence.[97] The abstract should contain a recital of all that pertains to the record proper,[98] including the filing of a motion for a new trial,[99] the filing of the bill of exceptions,[1] and the taking of the appeal;[2] and an abstract not complying with the rules of court will not be considered.[3] The abstract must identify the part of a pleading to which an exception is taken.[4] Instructions must be numbered.[5]

Proceedings not to be stated in extenso.—Documents should be abstracted, and App.) 68 S. W. 329; Wilcox v. League (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 414; Dennis v. Neal (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 387, though no motion to strike out is made.

90. The excuse alleged was misunderstanding of code provision—Ingrim v. Epperson, 137 Cal. 370, 70 Pac. 165.

91. But must be made within 60 days after such expiration, the statute providing that not more than 60 additional days shall be allowed—Crowley v. McDonough (Wash.) 70 Pac. 261.

92. Comstock v. Eagleton, 11 Okl. 487, 69 Pac. 955.

93. Watkins v. La Mar, 10 Kan. App. 226, 69 Pac. 730.

94. Herrman v. Great Northern R. Co., 27 Wash. 472, 68 Pac. 82.

95. See post, § 11, "Briefs."

96. Hughes v. Humphreys, 102 Ill. App. 194; Douglass v. Miller, 102 Ill. App. 345; Crawford-Adsit Co. v. Bell, 100 Ill. App. 366; Van Meter v. Lambert, 104 Ill. App. 243.

97. Equitable Mortg. Co. v. Bell, 115 Ga. 651; Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Upshaw, 115 Ga. 688; Indiana, D. & W. R. Co. v. Ditto, 158 Ind. 669; Hancock v. McNatt (Ga.) 42 S. E. 525; Gerspach v. Barhyte (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1057. An auditor's report of the evidence brought up in the bill will take the place of a brief of the evidence—Schmidt v. Mitchell (Ga.) 43 S. E. 371. And where abstracts of evidence are not ordinarily used it has been said that when the testimony is voluminous counsel should agree on a selection—Carrow v. Barre R. Co., 74 Vt. 176.

98. The abstract should show the filing and contents of the pleadings, the judgment, the motion for a new trial and ruling thereon, the proceedings for appeal and the filing of the bill of exceptions—Jordan v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 92 Mo. App. 81. People's Sav. Bank v. Gordon (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 470.

99. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Crawford (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 491; Kirk v. Kane (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 463; Opp v. Kohler (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 128; Roberts v. Modern W. of A. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1075.

1. Nold Lumber Co. v. Easton (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 934; Kirk v. Kane (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 463; Baumeister v. Toomey (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1070; Roberts v. Modern W. of A. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1075.

Including the extension of time to file—Greenwood v. Parlin, etc., Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 138; Roberts v. Modern W. of A. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1075; order for filing—Hughes v. Henderson, 95 Mo. App. 312. And this must appear by the original and not by an amended abstract—Western W. S. Co. v. Kolkmeyer, 91 Mo. App. 286. See, also, Albin v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 934.

2. A statement that the notice of appeal was "issued" instead of "served" on defendant is insufficient—Oskaloosa Cigar Co. v. Iowa Cent. R. Co. (Iowa) 89 N. W. 1065. And a statement that within statutory time a due and sufficient notice of appeal was served states only a conclusion of law and is insufficient—Jaroszewski v. Allen (Iowa) 91 N. W. 941.

3. The transcript may be referred to (Brassfield v. Knights of Maccabees, 92 Mo. App. 102) but where the abstract does not authorize a review of any question, the court will not look to the transcript—Dixon v. Thomas, 91 Mo. App. 364.

4. Robertson v. Dunne (Fla.) 33 So. 530.

5. Trimble v. Terril, 99 Ill. App. 349.

not set out in full,[6] and the evidence must be properly abridged.[7] The record entries need only be recited.[8]

Supplemental and counter abstracts.—A supplemental abstract may be filed before submission of the cause,[9] or before joinder in issue.[10] Omissions should be urged by the filing of an additional abstract.[11]

§ 10. Transmission of proceedings and evidence to reviewing court. A. Form and contents of transcript or return.—The transcript should contain only such papers as are necessary to an understanding of questions raised;[12] but an incomplete transcript made under the instructions of appellant's counsel will not be considered.[13] The transcript must show the pleadings.[14] The court below cannot direct that testimony not in the bill of exceptions be included in the transcript.[15]

The original files will not take the place of a transcript.[16]

The evidence will not be examined if the transcript is not indexed;[17] and, if there are no marginal notes, the clerk will be instructed to insert them.[18]

Defects or omissions.—The appeal will be dismissed for failure to file a transcript.[19] The inadvertent omission of a rule of court will be overlooked where it is given in one of the briefs.[20] An informal statement of the date and entry of orders included in the transcript is sufficient.[21] If the transcript is illegible, a new one will be required.[22]

B. Certification and authentication.—The transcript must be duly certified by the clerk.[23] The clerk's certificate to the transcript must be under seal.[24] Docu-

6. Graham v. Baxley (Ga.) 43 S. E. 405. Where pleadings and irrelevant documents are set out at length, the abstract will not be considered—Thoma v. Hecker (Iowa) 90 N. W. 598.

7. Hurley v. Hurley (Iowa) 91 N. W. 895.

8. Scott v. Black (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 523.

9. Turney v. Ewins (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 543. Though one filed on leave obtained on the day of submission without consent of respondent is improper—Welty v. Gibson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 704. And omission of the judgment motion for new trial and record of filing bill of exceptions cannot be supplied without consent—Albin v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 934. See. also, Western W. S. Co. v. Kolkmeyer, 91 Mo. App. 286, in which it was said that the filing of a bill of exceptions must be shown by the original, not by an amended abstract.

10. And the filing of briefs is a joinder in issue under this rule—Hoffman v. Loudon (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 162.

11. Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406; Taylor v. Vandenberg, 15 S. D. 480; Tufts v. Morris, 92 Mo. App. 389. A denial of an amended abstract must be supported by the transcript—Foley v. Cudahy Packing Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 284.

12. An amended affidavit for attachment and the traverse thereof are sufficient to show jurisdiction without the original affidavit—Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 459. The transcript is sufficient, if, though not complete, it fully presents all questions involved—Brown v. Schintz, 98 Ill. App. 452.

13. Charter Oak S. & R. Co. v. Rice, 108 La. 699. The withdrawal of the long hand manuscript from the files in an attempt to comply with the invalid act of 1899 will not be treated as a mutilation of the record, and questions not depending on the evidence will be reviewed—Johnson v. Gehbauer (Ind.) 64 N. E. 855. Where an appeal is abandoned and a new one taken a new schedule for a partial transcript must be filed—Hackney v. Hoover (Ky.) 67 S. W. 48.

14. O'Brien Lumber Co. v. Shoot, 104 Ill. App. 348.

15. West v. East Coast Cedar Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 737.

16. Brabham v. Custer County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 989; Chappell v. Jasper County O. & G. Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 515; Marcy Mfg. Co. v. Flint & W. Mfg. Co., 158 Ind. 173. And Laws 1887, p. 182, allowing the original bill of exceptions to be included does not justify the incorporation of the original of a master's report and the evidence taken before him (Beth Hammidrash, etc., v. Oakwoods Cemetery Ass'n, 200 Ill. 480) and where the practice is to send up only what is specified by counsel, a praecipe for a "transcript" is not satisfied by the original—Drew v. Geneva (Ind.) 65 N. E. 9. But in Wisconsin Rev. St. § 3050 requires the original papers used on application for an order to be transmitted on appeal therefrom—Schomberg H. L. Co. v. Engel, 114 Wis. 273.

17. Indiana, D. & W. R. Co. v. Ditto, 158 Ind. 669; Peterson v. Union Trust Co. (Ind.) 65 N. E. 1025. Paper book must have index with a statement of question and pleadings in full in appendix (Sailor v. Reamer, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 597) and in Kansas a transcript without an index will not be admitted to the files—Emporia v. Kowalski, 65 Kan. 772, 70 Pac. 863.

18. Brinkley v. Smith, 130 N. C. 224.

19. Burdett v. Dale, 95 Mo. App. 509.

20. Griffith v. Adams, 95 Md. 170.

21. The court indicates the proper introductory form—Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14.

22. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Rogers, 70 Ark. 385.

23. Sone v. Grant Oaks (Mo. App.) 70 S.

ments accompanying the transcript must be certified by the clerk.[25] A bill of exceptions included in a transcript must precede the certificate.[26] Where the certificate to the transcript states the title of the case differently from the papers in the transcript the appeal will be dismissed.[27] It is immaterial that the certificate to a bill of exceptions refers to it as a "transcript."[28] A certificate that a "recital" of all papers is included is insufficient.[29]

C. Transmission and filing.—The appeal will be dismissed if the transcript is not filed within the time prescribed by law or rule of court,[30] though jurisdiction is not lost by failure to file in time,[31] and may be excused.[32] It is usually provided by rule that the time may be extended.[33]

W. 266. A certificate by the judge being insufficient—Duston v. Foster, 64 Kan. 886, 67 Pac. 1102. But in Illinois the certificate of the judge to the statement of facts is sufficient—Brown v. Schintz, 98 Ill. App. 452; Heberlein v. Wendt, 99 Ill. App. 506. Where the case has been transferred the clerk of the court to which it is transferred should certify the record—Smith v. Pyrites M. & C. Co. (Va.) 40 S. E. 918. The successor of the judge who tried the case may certify the statement of facts—Graton & K. Mfg. Co. v. Redelsheimer, 28 Wash. 370, 68 Pac. 879.

In Florida habeas corpus transcripts in error must be certified according to Cir. Ct. Rule 103—Hart v. Cotten (Fla.) 31 So. 817.

24. Comstock v. Stoner (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 501; Hesch v. Bolin (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 39.

25. Holstein v. Klein (Neb.) 93 N. W. 214. Where the judge by way of amendment files a statement showing that the bill is partly untrue, and the clerk certifies that the bill "as amended" is true, the bill will not be considered—Jarriel v. Jarriel, 115 Ga. 23. Where the clerk certifies that the papers, including the bill of exceptions, sent up are the originals, the omission of a signature to the indorsement of filing on the bill is immaterial—Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14. A certificate relating to the filing of the longhand manuscript of evidence held to show that the original manuscript was transmitted—Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 483. The judge's certificate is not necessary to make proceedings in chancery part of the record—Hopper v. Mather, 104 Ill. App. 309.

26. Butt v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. (Ind.) 65 N. E. 529.

27. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Peacock (Fla.) 33 So. 247.

28. Oster v. Broe (Ind.) 64 N. E. 918. Unnecessary recitals of fact in the certificate are immaterial—Scott v. Whipple (Ga.) 42 S. E. 519.

29. It should be stated that there is "a copy of" the same—Burnham v. Driggers (Fla.) 32 So. 796. The certificate should show that all papers used on a hearing are included, not that all "on file" are there—Madden v. Kinney, 114 Wis. 528.

30. Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561; In re Wegmann (La.) 33 So. 192; Da Costa v. Dibble (Fla.) 33 So. 466. The statutory limitation of time is mandatory in Ohio (Downing v. Downing, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 389) but in Washington it is said to be directory—Prescott v. Puget Sound B. & D. Co., 30 Wash. 158, 70 Pac. 252. Fifteen days before the opening of the term—Lucas v. Heuston, 168 Mo. 658. Within 40 days after settlement of bill of exceptions—Bell v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 137 Cal. 77, 69 Pac. 692. Third day of next term convening more than thirty days after taking of appeal—Taylor v. Colorado Iron Wks., 29 Colo. 372, 68 Pac. 218. Ten days after appeal is perfected on appeal from probate court—Drexel v. Rochester L. & B. Co. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 254. Where the supreme court would not be in session 10 days after the order for filing transcript an order for filing at the first day of the next session is proper.—Posner v. Southern E. & B. Pipe Co. (La.) 33 So. 641. The 40 days from the time the appeal is entered and perfected runs from the entry of the appeal, not from the approval of the bond, in case of an appeal by the District—District of Columbia v. Roth, 18 App. D. C. 547.

31. Drexel v. Rochester L. & B. Co. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 254; Crichton v. Webb Press Co., 107 La. 86. Appeal not defeated if transcript filed before motion to dismiss for delay—Johnson v. San Juan Fish Co., 30 Wash. 162, 70 Pac. 254.

32. But there must be good reason for the delay—Bell v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 137 Cal. 77, 69 Pac. 692. As may delay in filing a counter abstract where no prejudice resulted—Foley v. Cudahy Packing Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 284. The fact that a motion for a new trial was pending and the bill of exceptions was not settled is no excuse for delay in filing the transcript—Bell v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 137 Cal. 77, 69 Pac. 692. Nor is mistake as to the court where the record should be filed—Carleton v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 511. And an agreement with opposing counsel has been held not to excuse delay (Keller v. Kettner [Tex. Civ. App.] 67 S. W. 907) but delay caused by acts of the court or of opposing counsel will be excused—Anderson v. Walker (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1003; District of Columbia v. Roth, 18 App. D. C. 547. Affidavits showing excuse for delay cannot be considered—Keller v. Kettner (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 907. Failure to procure a return from the municipal court in New York is not excused by appellant's contention that he was not responsible for the payment of fees, which were demanded in advance—King v. Norton, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 53.

33. The court is not limited to one extension—Macfarland v. Byrnes, 19 App. D. C. 531. But the extension must be granted before the expiration of the time limited—District of Columbia v. Roth, 18 App. D. C. 547.

Transmission of transcripts in two different cases under one cover is sufficient.[34]

D. Amendment and correction.[35] In trial court.—Leave may be granted to apply to the trial court for an amendment.[36] And in some jurisdictions no leave is necessary.[37] Exceptions not actually taken at the trial may be stricken out on application to the trial court.[38]

In the reviewing court.—In some states the reviewing court will order a correction of the record.[39] The appellate court will not inquire into the genuineness of the signature to the settled case.[40] After the record is made up, a suggestion of diminution cannot be made except by consent;[41] and an application made after the cause had been pending two years in the appellate court will not be granted.[42] A suggestion of error made by counsel in argument will not be regarded.[43] An amendment will not be allowed to bring up testimony not affecting the result,[44] or a motion not decided.[45] The parties may stipulate for corrections.[46] An admission of error in the answer to the petition for correction cures the error.[47] Certiorari will be allowed to bring up corrections made below.[48]

E. Conclusiveness of record, and effect of conflict therein.—Review is confined to matters in the record, in examining which certain presumptions are applied as to facts not shown.[49] The record is conclusive, and cannot be contradicted, except by proceedings in due form for an amendment.[50] And it will prevail over the original papers in the transcript,[51] and over notations by the clerk on the margin of

34. Hall v. Moore (Neb.) 92 N. W. 294.

35. Omitted parts of record in liquor license case may be brought up—Persinger v. Miller (Neb.) 90 N. W. 242. In Ohio a transcript from an administrator's accounting, if seasonably filed to perfect an appeal, may be amended by supplying omissions—Falconer v. Martin, 66 Ohio St. 352.

36. McKenzie v. Murphy, 29 Colo. 485, 68 Pac. 838. And see Brenham v. Rankin (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 321, where it was suggested that the signature to the settled case was not genuine.

37. Birnbaum v. May, 170 N. Y. 314; Campbell v. Campbell (Iowa) 91 N. W. 894. And a duly certified amendment cures an apparent error—Carrington v. People, 195 Ill. 484.

38. Lincoln v. Sager (Neb.) 89 N. W. 617.

39. Even on its own motion—Turman v. Whaley (Fla.) 32 So. 811. In Connecticut by Pub. Acts, c. 194, an application must first have been made to the trial court—Griswold v. Guilford (Conn.) 52 Atl. 742.

40. Time will be allowed to apply below—Brenham v. Rankin (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 321.

41. Ortt v. Leonhardt (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 577. Before the cause is called for argument—Western W. S. Co. v. Kolkmeyer, 91 Mo. App. 286. Sup. Ct. Rule 4 provides that no suggestion of diminution shall be made after joinder in error—Hoffman v. Loudon (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 162.

42. Carnahan v. Connolly (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 836. An application made after decision on appeal was granted in Tennessee—Hinton v. Sun Life Ins. Co. (Tenn.) 72 S. W. 118.

43. Oskaloosa Cigar Co. v. Iowa Cent. R. Co. (Iowa) 89 N. W. 1065.

44. Hyde v. Mendel (Conn.) 52 Atl. 744.

45. Sullivan v. King (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 207.

46. Camp v. Wabash R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 272.

47. Hinton v. Sun Life Ins. Co. (Tenn.) 72 S. W. 118.

48. Johnston v. Arrendale (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 44.

49. See post, § 13 "Restriction to record."

50. State v. Berger, 92 Mo. App. 631; Davies v. Cheadle (Wash.) 71 Pac. 728; Purple v. Union Pac. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 123; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Hungerford (Conn.) 52 Atl. 487; Washington Liquor Co. v. Alladio Cafe Co., 28 Wash. 176, 68 Pac. 444; Turner v. Adams, 75 Conn. 28; Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14; Weeks v. Texas Midland R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1071; Justice v. Gallert, 131 N. C. 393. And this applies to recitals in an order contained in the record (Brown v. Schintz, 98 Ill. App. 452) and to recitals in an order of facts shown on the application therefor—Allen v. Richardson (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1075. And to amendments to the record —Carrington v. People, 195 Ill. 484.

51. Signing of the verdict—Seal Lock Co. v Chicago Mfg. Co., 98 Ill. App. 637. Time of filing papers—Central Coal Co. v. Texas Produce Co., 70 Ark. 479. References to depositions which do not appear will not prevail over a statement that all the evidence is included—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hull, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 375. But a justice's return as to the date when his judgment was rendered was held to prevail over a statement in the case on appeal from the intermediate court—Erdman v. Upham, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 315. Facts shown in the record on which appellate jurisdiction rests prevail over findings—Schreiner v. Emel, 26 Wash. 555, 67 Pac. 228; and under the Illinois appellate court act unless the record shows facts the pleadings cannot be examined—Pick v. Mut. Life Ins. Co., 192 Ill. 157; Murray Iron Wks. v. De Kalb Elec. Co., 200 Ill. 186.

the minute book.[52] The agreed statement of facts will control the bill of exceptions.[53]

§ 11. Practice and proceedings in appellate court before hearing. A. Joint and several appeals; consolidation; severance.—It will be supposed that both defendants joined in an appeal from an order affecting them alike, and wherein they tried their claims together, represented by the same counsel.[54] Appeal from judgment, also from denial of a new trial, is not double;[55] nor is one from a motion and a petition for new trial.[56] Several feigned issues with different plaintiffs should be severed.[57] The parties cannot, without action of court, effect a consolidation by merely treating actions so,[58] and the trial court cannot do so after judgment;[59] hence causes tried together by agreement cannot be joined in a single appeal.[60] Appeals from separate judgments are not consolidated merely because the cases were tried together by order of the court below; hence the parties cannot join.[61] If an erroneous consolidation be attempted, the examination will be limited to the original cause.[62]

B. Original and cross proceedings.—One who is not a party cannot bring a cross bill of exceptions.[63]

An original proceeding is necessary to institute review proceedings; hence a "cross bill of exceptions" will not lie to review the omission of the court to act on a petition of intervention;[64] but, if another party has appealed, a cross proceeding is generally necessary if an appellee or respondent would review errors,[65] and a cross proceeding in error, and not an independent proceeding, should be brought to obtain affirmative relief.[66] A cross bill will not be treated as a main bill unless filed in time for that purpose.[67]

C. Amendments of parties.—If an appeal be taken in the names of parties, one of whom is already dead, it may be amended to show that the survivors take it.[68] If administration is unnecessary, and the heirs are brought in, failure to substitute an administrator of a deceased party does not vitiate jurisdiction.[69] On the death of a ward pending appeal, administrators may be substituted for guardians.[70] Substitutions should be promptly made.[71] A stipulation that the administrator shall continue the appeal is equivalent to a revival in his name.[72] After revival in the trial court, it need not be again done in the reviewing court.[73]

D. Calendars; trial dockets; terms.—The term is usually determined under statutes, by the time when the appeal or review proceeding is perfected or reaches

52. In re Pichoir's Estate (Cal.) 70 Pac. 214.

53. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 559. But see Ellis v. Lee Bow (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 576, where it was said that in case of conflict between the bill and the statement of facts the presumption against the existence of error obtains.

54. Charles D. Koier Co. v. O'Brien, 202 Pa. 153.

55. Kountz v. Kountz, 15 S. D. 66.

56. German Nat. Bank v. Edwards, 63 Neb. 604.

57. Kimmel v. Johnson, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 429.

58. Hidy v. Hanson, 116 Iowa, 8.

59. Prinz v. Moses (Kan.) 66 Pac. 1009.

60. Judgment on demurrer entered separately in each—Brown v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Ga.) 43 S. E. 498.

61. Cases were consolidated and separate judgment of nonsuit entered—Center v. R. N. Fickett Paper Co. (Ga.) 43 S. E. 498.

62. Prinz v. Moses (Kan.) 66 Pac. 1009.

63. Unsuccessful petitioner to intervene—Turnbull v. Foster (Ga.) 43 S. E. 42.

64. Turnbull v. Foster (Ga.) 43 S. E. 42.

65. See post, this section, "Forming Issues, Cross-Errors."

66. Scully v. Smith (Kan.) 71 Pac. 519.

67. Turnbull v. Foster (Ga.) 43 S. E. 42.

68. Death after judgment before appeal—Griswold v. Thornton, 129 Ala. 454.

69. Applied where guardian died pending appeal from settlement of his account—Magness v. Berry (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 987.

70. If the guardians have fully accounted—Brown v. Lambe (Iowa) 93 N. W. 486.

71. Delay of six months after expiration of the year to bring in the successor of a trustee party held fatal—Hays v. Pugh, 158 Ind. 500.

72. Crawford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mo.) 66 S. W. 350.

73. Crawford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mo.) 66 S. W. 350.

an issue of error, as is shown in the footnote;[74] but it may depend on the return day of the appeal or writ of error. Special cases which it is prescribed shall be heard and determined as speedily as possible may be advanced and docketed, though not filed within requisite time to go on the docket.[75]

E. Forming issues; pleading, assigning, and specifying error.—The term "assignment of errors" is now used in two general senses: First, as indicating averments made to obtain a writ of error or allowance of an appeal; second, as referring to specifications, sometimes with the argument or brief, but often separate therefrom, made to advise and inform the reviewing court what errors are relied on to work a reversal. In many states a review is of right, and only as used in the latter sense is there any assignment of errors, the appeal being a statutory one instituted by a notice or other monitory act. The procedure by petition containing averments of error often requires that, in addition, the "briefs" shall specify the particular errors to which argument is directed. These distinctions should be noted carefully. It is the object of assignments in any case to define and develop the issues on review.[76] The assignment or statement of errors, as an act or proceeding operating to bring up the cause, is elsewhere treated.[77]

1. Proper parties to assign errors.—The objector must have an appealable interest.[78] Errors cannot be urged which affect other parties, but not the objector;[79] or which are favorable to him[80] or his co-defendant;[81] or which his position and the case require him to uphold,[82] as where he invites or assents to the action of the court.[83] He cannot complain of an erroneous submission which he requested, or of

74. In Kentucky (Civ. Code. Pr. §§ 738, 753), an appeal does not come on at a term unless the transcript is filed twenty days before the beginning of the term, unless the parties otherwise consent—Meacham v. Democratic Com., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1340.

75. Election cases under Act of 1900—Graham v. Graham, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 20.

76. Consult general treatises on practice; also the various statutes.

"Petitions in error" contain averments of errors which limit the review. A corresponding function is served by what is elsewhere called the "assignment of errors."

77. See ante, § 6.—"Application, etc., Assignments and Statements."

Such function is often performed by a paper separate from the specifying averments.

78. See ante, § 3a, and the cases there cited.

79. French v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 199 Ill. 213; Richards v. Minster (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 98; Wm. E. Peck & Co. v. Kansas City Roofing Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 169; McCardle v. Aultman Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 507; McDavid v. McLean, 104 Ill. App. 627. Allegations against a dismissed defendant which were multifarious as to others now objecting—Missouri Broom Mfg. Co. v. Guymon (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 112. Failure to separately find as against co-defendant—Dobbs v. Purington, 136 Cal. 70, 68 Pac. 323. Failure to serve a co-defendant—Storey v. Kerr (Neb.) 89 N. W. 601. Debtor's assignee cannot complain of errors between creditor and garnishee—Norton v. Maddox (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 319. Objector's claim of interest had already been decided adversely by the court—Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485. Ruling correct as to defendant husband and not affecting wife is assignable by neither—Rogers v. Hopper, 94 Mo. App. 437. Defendant cannot complain of errors between plaintiff and intervenor—People v. Campbell (Cal.) 70 Pac. 918.

80. See "Harmless Error"—Fitzgerald v. Alma Furniture Co., 131 N. C. 636; Citizens' Bank v. Rung Furniture Co. (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 471; Garretson v. Kinkead (Iowa) 92 N. W. 55; Kinney v. Murray (Mo.) 71 S. W. 197. Committee of habitual drunkard cannot complain that an order of release was probationary instead of absolute—In re Larner, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 134. Objector had requested a more unfavorable instruction than the one objected to—Padelford v. Eagle Grove (Iowa) 91 N. W. 899.

81. George v. St. Joseph (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 110; Cleland v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 306.

82. Trustees v. Hoffman, 95 Mo. App. 488; Krup v. Corley, Id. 640; Oneill v. Blase, 94 Mo. App. 648; Sappington v. C. & A. R. Co., 95 Mo. App. 387; Krebs v. Zumwalt, 91 Mo. App. 404.

Trial on a particular theory—Ryan v. Pacific Axle Co., 136 Cal. xx., 68 Pac. 498. Refused request substantially covered—Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Eyer (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 453.

83. Dixon v. McDonnell, 92 Mo. App. 479; City of San Antonio v. Potter (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 764; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Baumgarten (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 78; Parkins v. Mo. Pac. R. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 197; Gregg v. Roaring Springs Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 920; MacDonald v. Tittmann (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 502; Summers v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 90 Mo. App. 691; Eberly v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 381.

Correct ruling on but erroneous grounds for which he was responsible—McDonald v. People, 29 Colo. 503, 69 Pac. 703.

Refusal to direct verdict when he proffered its consequences;[84] but he does not assail his own act by merely attacking the instructions—Hopkins v. Modern Woodmen, 94 Mo. App. 402.

Findings on a point agreed to be immaterial—Kent v. Richardson (Idaho) 71 Pac. 117.

Assent to judge's entering jury room—Griffith v. Mosley, 70 Ark. 244. Trial in absence of one juror—Rehm v. Halverson, 197 Ill. 378. Proceeding with trial after refusal to dismiss and not renewing motion—Greenspan v. Newman (N. Y.) 37 Misc. 784. Introducing evidence after being refused a directed verdict—Greenfield v. Johnson (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 542. Ruling to which he assented by proving in accordance—Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Crothersville (Ind.) 64 N. E. 914. Instrument admitted by agreement without proof of binding execution by agent—Kaufman v. Simon, 80 Miss. 189. Defending suit to quiet title without objecting to plaintiff's want of possession—Bates v. Drake, 28 Wash. 447, 68 Pac. 961. Failure to correct a submitted draft of a hypothetical question afterwards put by and admitted for the adverse party—Allen v. Voje, 114 Wis. 1. Cannot assail finality of judgment because of subsequent amendment of findings on consent and after he had appealed—United States v. St. Louis Transp. Co., 184 U. S. 247, 46 Law. Ed. 520.

Essential facts conceded to have been proven—Sexton v. Union Stock Yds. Co., 200 Ill. 244; People v. Smith, 201 Ill. 454. Failure to explicity allege a fact tacitly admitted by the theory of trial—McHale v. Maloney (Neb.) 93 N. W. 677.

Refusing to take a continuance granted on allowing adversary to reopen and amend —Jaroszewski v. Allen (Iowa) 91 N. W. 941.

Erroneous evidence introduced by himself —Continental Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 108 Tenn. 374; Marsden Co. v. Bullitt, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1697; or developed by him—Early's Adm'r v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1807; Jarrell v. Crow (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 397; on his own cross-examination —O'Banion v. Mo. Pac. R. Co., 65 Kan. 352, 69 Pac. 353; Davis v. Streeter (Vt.) 54 Atl. 185; Hicks v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 322; or the repetition of it—Tufts v. Morris, 92 Mo. App. 389. Admission of a mutilated instrument afterward introduced by objector—Pope v. Anthony (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 521. Discrediting a witness whom the objector also called—Hardin v. Jones (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 836.

Want of evidence caused by his own erroneous objection—Sachs v. American Surety Co. (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 60; Hagey v. Schroeder (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 598.

Exclusion of evidence on his own objection—Harp v. Harp, 136 Cal. 421, 69 Pac. 28. Exclusion of what related to a different issue than the sole one submitted at objector's request—Thompson v. Rosenstein (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 439. Exclusion from jury of evidence on one cause of action as to which defendant procured a charge in his own favor—Murphy v. St. Louis Transit Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 159. Mode of proof due to objector's evidence—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Answer which may have been a conclusion was not followed by cross-examination to develop that objection—Shaefer v. Mo. Pac. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 154.

Instructions requested or like those requested by him or containing similar language—Stowers v. Singer, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 395; Gregg v. Roaring Springs Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 920; Little Dorrit G. M. Co. v. Arapahoe Co. (Colo.) 71 Pac. 389; Weigley v. Kneeland, 172 N. Y. 625; Dady v. Condit, 104 Ill. App. 507; Strother v. De Witt (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1129; Farmers' Ins. Co. v. Cole (Neb.) 93 N. W. 730; Davidson v. Chicago & A. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1069; Kansas City v. Madsen, 93 Mo. App. 143; Republic Iron Works v. Gregg, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1627; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Eyer (Tex.) 70 S. W. 529; Sibley Warehouse Co. v. Durand & Kasper Co., 200 Ill. 354; Murphy v. Century Bldg. Co., 90 Mo. App. 621; Hunt v. Searcy, 167 Mo. 158; Buck v. Hogeboom (Neb.) 90 N. W. 635; Clapp v. Royer (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 345; Beaver v. Eagle Grove, 116 Iowa, 485; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Shelton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 653; Frost Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 98 Ill. App. 308; Rock Island Sash Works v. Pohlman, 99 Ill. App. 670; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Jenkins (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 233; Denver R. Co. v. Peterson (Colo.) 69 Pac. 578; Ryans v. Hospes, 167 Mo. 342; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Sherwood (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 776; West Chicago R. Co. v. Buckley, 200 Ill. 260; Ward v. Bass (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 879; Springfield R. Co. v. Puntenney, 200 Ill. 9; Slack v. Harris, 200 Ill. 96; or covered by his own—Standard Starch Co. v. McMullen, 100 Ill. App. 82; Krejci v. C. & N. W. R. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 708; even though conflicting—Roe v. Bank, 167 Mo. 406. But if it is modified and given he may object—Maxey v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 95 Mo. App. 303.

Error in giving one of two inconsistent requests—Chicago House Wrecking Co. v. Stewart Lumber Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1009. His request was refused but the same issue was submitted—Kennard v. Grossman (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1025. Failure to charge on a point which he had insisted was covered by the general charge—Young v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 789. Failure to instruct on a theory abandoned and departed from in making proof—Peacock v. Gleason (Iowa) 90 N. W. 610. Failure to explain words like he requested—State v. Fidelity Co., 94 Mo. App. 184. Submission of issues developed by objector—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Trammell (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 716. Failure to instruct more strongly than requested instruction—Bishop v. People, 200 Ill. 33.

Wrong Theory—Pantall v. Rochester C. & I. Co. (Pa.) 53 Atl. 751. As where he introduced evidence consistent only with the theory on which the case was erroneously tried —Hollister v. Donahoe (S. D.) 92 N. W. 12. Trying case on a theory which excluded a presumption of negligence from the character of the accident—Galligan v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 182 Mass. 211. Advancing theory which resulted in instruction of incorrect measure of damages—Heisch v. Bell (N. M.) 70 Pac. 572.

84. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Jacobs, 70 Ark. 401; James Clark Co. v. Cumberland, 95 Md. 468; Miles v. Walker (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1014. Procuring submission of negligence precludes question that it existed as matter of law—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Schmelling, correctness of the finding as matter of fact.[85] There is no estoppel to assert a want of jurisdiction which appears on the face of the record.[86] He is not precluded from saying that pleadings sufficient for a particular relief warrant a judgment without proof of a fact essential to a different remedy to which his theory on trial pointed.[87] Nor can one who sues in two capacities object in his representative capacity to errors which affect him as an individual.[88] A party secondarily liable may complain of an error against the party first liable,[89] but the converse is not true; but the pleadings must admit of an adjustment of their mutual liabilities.[90]

A party not brought into the reviewing court,[91] and, except as to fundamental or jurisdictional defects, a defaulted one,[92] will not be heard.

Aside from the foregoing rules, it is necessary that the question shall have been properly saved for review, to do which the party must ordinarily object and except, lest he be deemed to waive the question.[93] By allowing a preceding order to go unappealed, subsequent errors involving it may be waived.[94] The question of right to a remedy may be reversed for appeal if the failure to claim such remedy was caused by conflict and uncertainty in authorities.[95]

2. Cross errors.—An appellee may go beyond the errors assigned,[96] but can urge errors only when he has cross appealed, or cross assigned errors,[97] and sometimes only when he has appealed or brought error independently.[98] They may be assigned by an appellee who was refused an appeal.[99] A prevailing defendant must assign cross errors in order to bring up errors in the plaintiff's pleadings;[1] but he cannot 197 Ill. 619. Improper allowance of damages—Stephens v. Quigley (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 828. Improper direction at his request to specially find—Steele v. Johnson (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 1065; Hayes v. Bunch, 91 Mo. App. 467.

85. Benton Co. Bank v. Boddicker (Iowa) 90 N. W. 822.

86. But libelant cannot make technical objections to averment of residence in divorce suit—English v. English, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.

87. Proof of forcible detainer in landlord's summary proceeding—Marvin v. Hartz (Mich.) 89 N. W. 557.

88. Ferguson v. Slater (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 422.

89. Landowner and contractor against whom mechanic's lien suit was brought—Christopher & S. Foundry Co. v. Kelly, 91 Mo. App. 93. City and abutting owner sued for injuries from a defective sidewalk—George v. St. Joseph (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1110.

90. Town of Central Covington v. Bellonby, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1092.

91. Worthington v. Miller, 134 Ala. 420; Chavez v. Myers (N. M.) 68 Pac. 917. He is not a party for this purpose where his name is merely used by another co-party to perfect the appeal—Norris v. Downing, 195 Ill. 91.

92. In such case defaulted party may appeal—ante, §§ 1, 3. Jurisdictional omissions (from writ of attachment) are appealable by a defaulted party—Cline v. Patterson, 191 Ill. 248.

93. See the article "Saving Questions for Review" which will appear in a later number.

94. In re Trinity Ave., 114 N. Y. State Rep. 732; Hereford v. Hereford, 134 Ala. 321, and many other cases cited in "Saving Questions for Review."

95. MacFarland v. Byrnes, 19 App. D. C. 531.

96. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Adams (Miss.) 32 So. 937.

97. Jones v. Peebles, 133 Ala. 290; Long v. Campbell, 133 Ala. 353; Powell v. Canaday, 96 Mo. App. 27; Arizona & N. M. R. Co. v. Nevitt (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 550; Sappington v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 95 Mo. App. 387. Compare Bradley, etc., Co. v. Perkins (La.) 33 So. 351. Refusal to non-suit the appealing plaintiff—Fritz v. Southern R. Co., 130 N. C. 279. An incomplete appeal is of no effect—Ritt v. True Tag Co., 108 Tenn. 646. Error affecting co-defendant appellee—National Bank v. Carper (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 188; Kaukauna Elec. Light Co. v. Kaukauna, 114 Wis 327. He should bring error—Bates Mach. Co. v. Cookson, 104 Ill. App. 457. Cross-error is proper procedure—Scully v. Smith (Kan.) 71 Pac. 519.

98. Co-defendant—Southwestern Tel. Co. v. Priest (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 241. He filed a bond after time, not preceded by any motion for new trial or notice of appeal (Rev. St. art. 1387)—National Bank v. Carper (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 188. Unless the proceeding is in equity—Jones v. Ducktown, etc., Co. (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 821.

In error in Florida a defendant cannot allege error—Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 462. A tendered cross-bill of exceptions cannot be treated as a main bill unless filed seasonably for that purpose—Turnbull v. Foster (Ga.) 43 S. E. 42.

Cross-assignments going to orders taxing costs in a will contest which orders were in the record, should not be stricken—Schmidt v. Schmidt, 201 Ill. 191.

99. Pugh v. Wallace, 198 Ill. 422.

1. Amendment of declarations and refusal to strike—Pierson v. Linn, 101 Ill. App. 624.

assign the dismissal of his own cross bill unless there has been an appeal from it.[2] Assuming an office does not waive the right to assign errors against ousted party's appeal in quo warranto.[3]

3. Specifications and averments.—Generally speaking, errors must be specified[4] by sufficient assignments,[5] or equivalent specifications in other papers,[6] subject to a usual exception in favor of fundamental errors or such as are plainly apparent on the face of the record.[7] If it chooses, the court may hear errors not specified.[8] Advanced causes are sometimes made an exception.[9] Especially will an assignment of errors in the federal courts be ignored which violates the rule requiring each error to be specified, when the brief also fails to refer by page to the record where support for such objections is to be found.[10] Denial of a change of venue is an error of law which must be assigned, though it was in an equity action.[11] Assignment in a court of primary appeal is not required of an appellee in order to save questions for the event of a further appeal.[12]

Error must be positively averred.[13] Mere statements of reasons for a new trial are insufficient.[14] The appellant must, in his brief, controvert appellee's statements denying facts material to the cause which do not affirmatively appear in the record.[15]

The rulings or errors must be identifiable with reasonable certainty.[16] The

2. Vanderpoel v. Knight, 102 Ill. App. 596.

3. People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

4. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Sanford, 197 Ill. 310; Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280; Lambert v. Marcuse, 137 Cal. 44, 69 Pac. 620; Medano Ditch Co. v. Adams, 29 Colo. 317, 68 Pac. 431; Herriman Irr. Co. v. Keel, 25 Utah, 96, 69 Pac. 719.

In petition in error—Bosserman v. Larson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 411; Kennard v. Grossman (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1025. Errors which would otherwise be presented on motion for new trial must be specifically alleged—Gregory v. Leavitt (Neb.) 89 N. W. 764; Gandy v. Cummins (Neb.) 89 N. W. 777. Petition in error must aver error in ruling on motion for new trial—Orcutt v. McNair (Neb.) 92 N. W. 200.

On appeal—Cessna v. Benedict, 98 Ill. App. 440.

Arugments on rulings not assigned will be ignored—Hoyt v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 724. Reasons for appeal must be set out—Stevens v. Stevens, 71 N. H. 579. Rulings on demurrer—Harris v. Nye (Neb.) 91 N. W. 250. Objection to striking of evidence must be assigned—Mahoney v. People, 98 Ill. App. 241; Cessna v. Benedict, 98 Ill. App. 440; Pennsylvania Co. v. Bond, 99 Ill. App. 535. Sufficiency of evidence must be assigned—Nordin v. Berner, 15 S. D. 611. Objection to instructions must be assigned—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hays (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1072; Braegger v. Oregon S. L. R. Co., 24 Utah, 391, 68 Pac. 140. Refusal of instructions must be assigned—Sinclair v. Waddill, 200 Ill. 17. Amount of a verdict for personal injuries must be assigned—Palmer v. Kinloch Tel. Co., 91 Mo. App. 106. Election cases being appealable as civil cases require assignment of error—Brumback v. McAuley (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 240.

5. Chichester v. New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co., 74 Conn. 510.

6. Rulings not appearing erroneous by bill of exceptions should be assigned—Southerland v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 786. Either in abstract of assignment or at least in argument—Hanon v. Jones, 100 Ill. App. 583. Either the record or assignments must disclose objection to sufficiency of evidence in support of findings—State v. Pierre, 15 S. D. 559.

7. United States v. Lee Yen Tai (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 465. Absence of jurisdictional amount in controversy need not be—Land Mortg. Bank v. Voss (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 732. Refusal to submit question whether notes in suit were obtained by threats held not fundamental, hence must be assigned—Clapp v. Royer (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 345. Deficiencies in pleadings must be specially assigned unless they make the judgment palpably erroneous—New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Hungerford (Conn.) 52 Atl. 487. Wrong instruction—Harper v. Dodd (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 223.

8. Not error to hear matters not specified but which parties argue—Lynch v. Syracuse, L. & B. R. Co., 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 95.

9. Not necessary in Texas where cause is advanced on a suggestion of dilatory appeal—Continental F. Ass'n v. Bearden (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 982.

10. Mitchell Transp. Co. v. Green (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 49.

11. Lessenich v. Sellers (Iowa) 93 N. W. 348.

12. Iroquois Furnace Co. v. Elphicke, 200 Ill. 411.

13. "Excepted, excepts, assigned and now assigns" error, to a ruling recited in bill of exceptions sufficient—Johnson v. Porter, 115 Ga. 401.

14. Standish v. Bridgewater (Ind.) 65 N. E. 189.

15. Replevin suit under a chattel mortgage for a debt not yet due appellee claiming in his brief that there was no proof of breach of condition or identity of the property taken—Hart v. Peet (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 400.

16. Ketelman v. Chicago Brush Co. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 282.

objectionable part of the record must be indicated.[17] General statements are insufficient.[18] If the bill of exceptions recites grounds for a ruling, an assignment may be good by merely referring to it.[19] In Texas the assignment must contain a legal proposition, or one must be stated under it,[20] and must be followed by an explanatory statement.[21]

The assignment must be as broad as the objections urged,[22] and must conform to the objections urged;[23] and a general objection will not raise special matters.[24]

Distinct errors may not be combined in one assignment,[25] or in explanatory

17. Civ. App. Rule 25—Swift v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 321. An assignment so worded as to refer to a petition which has been stricken out and supplemented by an amended petition presents nothing—Guthrie v. Howland (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1040.

18. Error assigned as failure to construe a contract and determine rights of a foreign corporation—Field v. Eastern B. & L. Ass'n (Iowa) 90 N. W. 717. A reference to exceptions to pleadings by number held too general—Henry v. McNew (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 213. Assignments held too general to specify defective description in petition on trespass to try title—Henry v. McNew (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 213. Specifications, that instructions do not state the law, are confusing, conflicting and present false issues, held too general—Shoemaker v. Bryant Mill Co., 27 Wash. 637, 68 Pac. 380. Errors should be particularized—United States v. Lee Yen Tai (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 465. An objection to a statement for mechanic's lien that it is not sufficiently itemized or dated must specify the dates and items—Williams v. Stroub, 168 Mo. 346. Assignments that an act is unconstitutional, held insufficient—Standish v. Bridgewater (Ind.) 65 N. E. 189. General assignments of error in refusing judgment non obstante and in overruling motion for new trial, and motion to direct a verdict held too general—Copeland v. Ferris (Iowa) 92 N. W. 699. Averments that verdict was contrary to charge and to evidence and based on erroneous evidence, etc., held too general—Cline v. Hackbarth (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 48. Rulings on evidence—Parkins v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 197. Averment that the court erred in that a motion set out good cause for a new trial—Hughey v. Mosby (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 395. The statement that a rejection of a report "is not sufficient," fails to set forth reasons for appealing—Stevens v. Stevens, 71 N. H. 579.

19. Judgments on demurrers—Linder v. Whitehead (Ga.) 42 S. E. 358.

20. Ash v. Beck (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53; Gwaltney v. Searcy (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 384; Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183. Held sufficient to assign priority of a mortgage to state that certain contracts exhibited to a mortgagee before the mortgage did not put him on inquiry, and that the court erred in holding that they did—Belcher Mortg. Co. v. Norris (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 548. Either as part of the assignment or otherwise there must be a proposition—Dennison & S. R. Co. v. Carter (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 322, 71 S. W. 292. Under an assignment to the admission of two matters in evidence there should be a proposition on each—Yarbrough v. De Martin (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 177.

21. Civ. App. Ct. Rule 31—Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Puente (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 362; Pinkard v. Willis (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 135; Tarrant County v. Reid (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 785. Must point out specific errors followed by a sufficient statement—Butler v. Holmes (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 52. An assignment of instruction as error held insufficient in merely specifying a number of errors and stating that they were not warranted by evidence but without referring to the record and subjoining no statement to the proposition—Holton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 408. Averments of a refusal to allow interest in a judgment on contract must have statements showing contract rate or time when money became due—Hipp v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 39.

22. Matters not germane will be disregarded—Weeks v. Texas M. P. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1071.

23. Objection to sufficiency of findings—Tarrant County v. Reid (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 785. Objections to evidence—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Banks, 132 Ala. 471; Meyer v. Standard Tel. Co. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 720. Included errors may be examined—San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Addison (Tex.) 70 S. W. 200. Assignment of the overruling of a demurrer for want of certain allegations and objection that corresponding facts were not proved—Hughey v. Mosby (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 395. Error in assessing recovery and specification of insufficiency of evidence—Southwestern Oil Co. v. Bank (Okl.) 70 Pac. 295.

24. Assigning error in overruling general demurrer does not raise special exceptions—Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Sherwood (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 776.

25. A letter acknowledging the correctness of an account was objected to and the admission of the account itself was objected to—Robinson v. Chamberlain (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 209. Assignment in admitting evidence and in refusal of new trial raises more than one question—Ruddy v. Repp, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 437. Single assignment is bad if any instructions are correct—Greenfield v. Johnson (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 542. Single assignment held bad because directed against an instruction relating to defective appliances and to one directed against duty to keep appliance in repair—Copeland v. Ferris (Iowa) 92 N. W. 699. Single assignment to demurrers to separate paragraphs presents only pleading as a whole—Chicago & S. E. R. Co. v. Woodard (Ind.) 65 N. E. 577. Error assigned in several instructions—Younglove v. Knox (Fla.) 33 So. 427. One assignment to single instructions embracing several propositions is bad—Bennett v. Marion (Iowa) 93 N. W. 555. One assignment to rulings on demurrers against separate paragraphs, one of them good—Hague v. First Nat. Bank (Ind.) 65 N. E. 907.

words following it;[26] for an assignment is good or bad as a whole.[27] Instructions are not separately indicated by referring to instructions contained in specified paragraphs of the charge;[28] but an assignment otherwise double may be considered if vices are urged against each of the matters assigned as error.[29] It is not an improper grouping of charges to contrast those which are objected to as conflicting.[30] One assignment lodged against several matters is insufficient, if any of them are correct,[31] or if the error affect only one of them;[32] but a single assignment may reach one ruling which disposes of two matters.[33]

Joining in assignments.—Appellants should not join in assignment if the ruling may be good as to one of them.[34] They must join if the exception was joint.[35] If there was but one defendant, the use of the plural is a clerical error, and does not make an assignment joint.[36]

Amendments and additional assignments.—Insufficiency in assignments is disregarded if proper amendments are made, and the questions are specifically disclosed in the argument and brief.[37] The appellate court in Illinois has discretion to allow additional assignments on higher appeal.[38]

Defects or errors in pleadings.—The complaint or declaration as a whole should be assigned for insufficiency to state a cause of action.[39] Single assignments to the overruling of demurrers against a mechanic's lien complaint in twelve paragraphs present only sufficiency of the pleading as a whole.[40] A material omission from a petition or complaint is fundamental.[41] The reason why it was error to overrule a demurrer should be stated.[42]

Rulings on evidence.—Assignments of error in rulings on evidence should conform to the objection made.[43] In Texas the principle making exclusion of evidence erroneous should be stated.[44] What the evidence was which the court excluded should appear, at least in substance.[45] That evidence of unnamed witness was refused and rejected is not sufficient.[46] Particular evidence which is objectionable

26. An appended proposition, so called, is bad which merely refers to the assignment wherein several propositions are combined —Driver v. Wilson (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 290.

27. Hennessy v. Anstock, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 644.

28. Assignments held too general—Falvre v. Manderschied (Iowa) 90 N. W. 76.

29. Assignments designating certain instructions by number and stating that each was either erroneous or inapplicable held sufficient—Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Young (Colo.) 70 Pac. 688.

30. Shoemaker v. Turner (Iowa) 90 N. W. 709.

31. Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. State, 158 Ind. 189.

32. Renard v. Grande (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 644.

33. If a single ruling sustains separate demurrers to separate paragraphs, one assignment reaches error in sustaining either demurrer—Farmers' Ins. Co. v. Yetter (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 762.

34. Niehaus v. Cooke, 134 Ala. 223; Killian v. Cox, 132 Ala. 664. If a complaint be sufficient as to any defendant, a joint assignment of error in overruling demurrer is bad—Bush v. McBride (Ind.) 65 N. E. 1026.

35. Chappell v. Jasper Gas Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 515.

36. Ohio Farmers' Ins. Co. v. Vogel (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1056.

37. Roberts v. Parker (Iowa) 90 N. W. 744.

38. Refusal to allow additional assignments seven days after judgment in appellate court is proper discretion—Off v. Finkelstein, 200 Ill. 40.

39. A single paragraph cannot be separately assigned but must be questioned by assigning the whole complaint as insufficient —Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Millikan, 28 Ind. App. 686; Van Horn v. Mercer (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 531.

40. Chicago & S. E. R. Co. v. Woodard (Ind.) 65 N. E. 577.

41. Allegation of fact necessary to give petitioner the right to purchase school land —Sterling v. Self (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 238.

42. Interstate S. & L. Ass'n v. Benson, 28 Wash. 578, 68 Pac. 1038.

43. Objection was general and assignment special—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Banks, 132 Ala. 471.

44. Yarbrough v. De Martin (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 177.

45. Russell v. Mohr-Weil Lumber Co., 115 Ga. 35. Merely specifying the question without the expected answer will not suffice—Bigby v. Warnock, 115 Ga. 385. Admission of "all testimony" relevant to a stated matter is bad; should show what was admitted —Wright v. Roberts (Ga.) 42 S. E. 369.

46. Tourtellotte v. Brown (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 638.

should be specified.[47] Specific references to the witness' name and the pages of the abstract do not indicate the very error complained of, if various questions and numerous objections appear on those pages.[48]

Instructions.—Error in charging should be assigned to the particular error.[49]

If charges were refused, it should be shown what they were.[50] An instruction affirmatively stating an erroneous rule of law is fundamental error which need not be assigned.[51] A distinct statement of the error complained of is not made by objecting to a refusal of an instruction which does not clearly raise the question.[52] An assignment of error in charging abstractly does not present the question whether it applies to the evidence.[53] Nor does its correctness arise on an averment that the instruction was inapplicable.[54] Merely identifying an instruction without specifying wherein it is erroneous is bad.[55]

Error in directing a verdict should be so assigned as to point out wherein error lies.[56] A general assignment against a directed verdict raises only the sufficiency of evidence.[57]

Verdicts and findings of fact.—If the verdict be assailed for deficiency of evidence, particulars in which it is unsupported should be indicated.[58] Sufficiency to support findings must be specified with particularity.[59] The particular in which a finding lacks proof should be stated.[60] It is sufficient to indicate each probative fact.[61] Want of evidence is not presented by an objection that findings are contrary to evidence.[62] If the verdict is excessive or unconscionable, there must be

47. Not the entire examination—Logansport & W. Gas Co. v. Coate (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 638. Reference to subject-matter insufficient—Chicago, St. P., M. & O. R. Co. v. Lagerkrans (Neb.) 91 N. W. 358. Inadmissibility of a lease is not raised by questioning its right to be recorded without stating that it was not proved by evidence other than itself—Yarbrough v. De Martin (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 177.

48. Grapes v. Sheldon (Iowa) 93 N. W. 57.

49. If error in a group of instructions is assigned, the reason should be pointed out—Albion Milling Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Neb.) 89 N. W. 638. Assignments should specify objectionable parts of charge in exact words—Sailor v. Reamer, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 597.

50. Butler v. Holmes (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 52. Refused instructions should be set out—Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Co[illegible]l (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 980. Not sufficient to say that refused instructions covered principles applicable to case—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Jernigan, 198 Ill. 297.

51. Harper v. Dodd (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 223.

52. Constitutionality of statute—Griswold v. Guilford (Conn.) 52 Atl. 742.

53. Brown v. Latham, 115 Ga. 666.

54. Averment that evidence did not warrant instruction on measure of damages insufficient to present correctness of the rule stated—Meyer v. Standard Tel. Co. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 720.

55. "No. 5 in Abs folios 450"—Hedlun v. Holy Terror Min. Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 31.

56. An assignment against a directed verdict for plaintiff for the reason that the evidence supported defenses held too general—Liner v. Watkins Mortg. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 311. On assigning a peremptory instruction, the statement should show that there was an issue raised on a question which it was urged should have been sent to the jury—Swift v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 321. Averment that directed verdict was wrong under pleadings and evidence is special and presents both the sufficiency of the facts pleaded and those proved; also whether the successful party was entitled to verdict—Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280.

57. Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280.

58. King v. Henderson (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 487. Objection for insufficiency of evidence held not sufficiently specified in an action for killing a person on a railroad bridge—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Harby (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 541. Insufficiency of evidence must be specified—Hollister v. State (Idaho) 71 Pac. 541. Failure to prove material facts cannot be raised under an assignment of the overruling of a demurrer based on the omission of allegations from the pleadings—Hughey v. Mosby (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 395.

59. State v. Pierre, 15 S. D. 559. Averment that special findings are inconsistent with general verdict and that facts showed, etc., held insufficient—Copeland v. Ferris (Iowa) 92 N. W. 699. Assignments of error in finding in favor of the adverse party and not in favor of appellant and in not giving judgment for appellant, present questions of fact—Coverdale v. Royal Arcanum, 199 Ill. 649. A material finding must be specified and its lack of support clearly shown—Silveira v. Reese, 138 Cal. xix., 71 Pac. 515.

60. Code Civ. Pr. §§ 657-659—Swift v. Occidental Min. Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 470. General averment of insufficiency is bad—Bell v. Staacke (Cal.) 70 Pac. 472.

61. Laidlaw v. Pacific Bank, 137 Cal. 392, 70 Pac. 277.

62. Record v. Chickasaw Cooperage Co., 108 Tenn. 657.

an assignment of the court's refusal to set it aside.[63] In Texas, assignments otherwise presenting the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict need not be accompanied by an assignment of error in overruling motion for a new trial.[64] Inclusion of interest in a verdict for damages for a tort should be particularized.[65] Error in assessing recovery is not specified by an objection to verdict as unsupported.[66]

Judgments and findings of law.—It should be specified wherein a judgment is contrary to law, else the court will consider only whether it follows the pleadings.[67] A general assignment is, however, sufficient, where error appears on the face of the record.[68] Averment that judgment for damages is not authorized by pleading raises the propriety of allowance of interest.[69] A refusal to reform a judgment by striking out should be particularly assigned.[70] A finding which is in reality one of law should be averred as such, though it purports to be, and is included among, findings of fact.[71]

Motion for new trial.—In some jurisdictions, error assigned in ruling on a motion for new trial must specify the particular error or ground urged,[72] but not in Indiana;[73] and in Nebraska the ruling must be assigned in addition to those errors assigned on the motion itself, if they are to be considered.[74]

Rulings by a lower court of appeal should be assigned error in "sustaining" or "not sustaining" the action of the trial court.[75]

4. Demurrers, pleas, and replications.—Replication to a plea of release of errors must deny or confess and avoid; and if it does not answer the plea, and is demurred to, the demurrer will be heard as though to the plea.[76]

F. Briefs and arguments.—Briefs are necessary if the court insists,[77] and for 63. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Branch (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 338.

64. St. Louis & S. W. R. Co. v. McArthur (Tex.) 70 S. W. 317.

65. General objection that the verdict was contrary to law insufficient—Southern R. Co. v. Horner, 115 Ga. 381.

66. Whether a verdict was exact in amount does not come upon an averment that it is unsupported—Southwestern Oil Co. v. Bank of Stroud (Okl.) 70 Pac. 205.

67. De Mund Lumber Co. v. Stilwell (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 543. General assignment of error in entering judgment on verdict is bad unless a question of law has been saved or there is error on the record—Wills v. Hardcastle, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 525. "Findings unsupported by evidence" does not present judgment unsupported by findings—Tarrant County v. Reid (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 785. That it was error to pass any decree for complainant, held too general—Clerks' Inv. Co. v. Sydnor, 19 App. D. C. 89. Allowance for moneys due after the time pleaded must be assigned—Morin v. Robarge (Mich.) 93 N. W. 886. That judgment is contrary to law too indefinite—Bosserman v. Larson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 411.

68. Waterbury L. & C. Co. v. Hinckley (Conn.) 52 Atl. 739. Assigned error in finding of judgment for plaintiff, presents the sufficiency of findings to support the judgment—White v. Schaberg (Mich.) 91 N. W. 168.

69. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Addison (Tex.) 70 S. W. 200.

70. No proposition was appended—Robinson v. Chamberlain (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 209.

71. Findings that a lien was valid was objected to as being against the law and unsupported—Petaluma Pav. Co. v. Singley, 136 Cal. 616, 69 Pac. 426.

72. If more than one ground is urged—Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Huffman, 86 Minn. 30. An assignment is bad if it does not state the ground on which the motion was made—De Mund Lumber Co. v. Stilwell (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 543. General assignments of error in refusing a new trial and overruling motion for it, not sufficient—Stephenville v. Bower (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 833. General assignment against overruling a new trial is bad—Shoemaker v. Turner (Iowa) 90 N. W. 709. Insufficiency of evidence must be specified on appeal from new trial—Pickering L. & W. Co. v. Savage, 137 Cal. xix., 69 Pac. 846. Error must be assigned besides being specified in motion for new trial—Southwestern Oil Co. v. Bank of Stroud (Okl.) 70 Pac. 205.

73. Error assigned in overruling motion for new trial is sufficient in form—Standish v. Bridgewater (Ind.) 65 N. E. 189.

74. Achenbach v. Pollock (Neb.) 90 N. W. 304; Sharp v. Call (Neb.) 90 N. W. 765; German Fire Ins. Co. v. Palmer (Neb.) 92 N. W. 624; Cole v. Adams County (Neb.) 93 N. W. 701. Denial of new trial must be assigned in order to present sufficiency of evidence—Moores v. Jones (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1016; Zimmerman v. Kearney County Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 497.

75. In Pennsylvania, "not sustaining" the (designated) "assignment of error" specifying what it was—Mellick v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 203 Pa. 457.

76. Trapp v. Off, 194 Ill. 287.

77. Brevaldo v. Rogers (Fla.) 33 So. 455. Should not be dispensed with—3 Enc. Pl. & want of the proper brief a decision may be rendered,[78] but is not a matter of right.[79] The right to open may be waived by delay in filing briefs or arguments.[80]

Time for filing briefs by appellees will not be shortened where the service on them was so tardy that they are not obliged to appear until a later term.[81] Filing briefs after an abortive motion to dismiss for want of them is equivalent to a filing before motion.[82] Additional briefs allowed must be filed within time given.[83] Tardy filing may be waived by delay to object.[84] It is not excused by pendency of a motion to dismiss for insufficiency of the bond.[85] A failure to file is not excused by the fact that all the errors are fundamental and are presented by assignments.[86] A delay in filing briefs in reliance upon the oral promise of the opposing counsel below is not excused where the statute and rules of the court provide for an extension of time by agreement or by the court or judge for good cause shown before the expiration of the time allowed, the attorney not being admitted in the supreme court.[87]

The brief should be answered or it may be taken as confessed.[88] Under the Indiana rules, statements concerning the record are accepted, unless denied or corrected by an answering brief.[89] Facts may be admitted by adopting words of the opinion which assume their existence.[90] If appellee's brief sets up a defense or avoidance not touched on by appellant, he must reply to prevent an affirmance.[91] Points not properly made or presented in the brief cannot be urged in the reply briefs[92] or on rehearing.[93]

Statutes and court rules prescribing the form and contents of briefs should be insisted on.[94] A common requirement is a summary of the record and evidence.[95] Under the supreme court rule of Indiana, one who omits to briefly recite

Pr. "Briefs." In Georgia tardiness is a contempt and not a ground for dismissal—Roberts v. Roberts, 115 Ga. 259. Failure to file briefs necessitates dismissal in Texas—Bowman v. Hoffman (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 152.

78. Pro forma affirmance or dismissal—Pavey v. Pavey, 103 Ill. App. 589; Ball v. Dignowity (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 800; Warren v. Humble, 26 Mont. 495, 68 Pac. 851.

79. Striking a brief does not entitle opposite party to decision—Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 78.

80. Under the Iowa rules in case where appellee had the burden in a trial de novo, his failure to file arguments thirty days before hearing was held equivalent to thirty days' notice of waiver of the right to open—Busch v. Hall (Iowa) 93 N. W. 356.

81. Rule 18 allows time to be shortened for good cause—State Board v. People, 29 Colo. 353, 68 Pac. 236.

82. Sup. Ct. Rule 5 construed—Swortfiguer v. White, 137 Cal. 391, 70 Pac. 214.

83. If not decision will be made on arguments already submitted—Nicholas v. Nicholas (Va.) 42 S. E. 866.

84. Gipson v. Morris (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 425.

85. Headstrom v. Hellieson, 136 Cal. 498, 69 Pac. 148.

86. R. S. 1895, art. 1417, and the supreme court rules 22, 34, require it—Bowman v. Hoffman (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 152.

87. Robertson v. Shorow (Wyo.) 69 Pac. 1.

88. Delay of 200 days in failing to file answering brief taken as confession of errors—People's Nat. Bank v. State (Ind.) 65 N. E. 6.

89. McElwaine-Richards Co. v. Wall (Ind.) 65 N. E. 753.

90. That there was any evidence on a certain point was so admitted—Pitcairn v. Hiss (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 492.

91. Appeal was based on a disallowed counter-claim for charges; appellee asserted that he had paid them—Bartholomew v. Yankee (Colo.) 70 Pac. 405.

92. Sufficiency of application for mandamus—Malott v. State, 158 Ind. 678.

93. Indiana Power Co. v. St. Joseph Power Co. (Ind.) 64 N. E. 468.

94. Kranich v. Helena Water Co., 26 Mont. 379, 68 Pac. 408, 71 Pac. 672.

95. Indiana Sup. Ct. Rules provide if the record be not summarized so as to present error in ruling on a demurrer, it will be disregarded—Huston v. Fatka (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 74. Findings substantially the same as allegations need not be printed in appellant's brief in Washington, when no evidence was taken and no error in findings is urged—Payette v. Ferrier (Wash.) 71 Pac. 546. A parenthetical reference to the petition and evidence in the case is not a statement of the case and points to be insisted on by the pleadings and facts shown by the record—Southwick v. Southwick (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 477. Appellant must conform in every respect to the rule requiring an abstract of the case presenting the questions and the manner in which they are raised and page reference to the transcript—Kranich v. Helena Water Co., 26 Mont. 379, 68 Pac. 408, 71 Pac. 672. Findings and conclusions need be printed in a brief only when a question is raised thereon—Cathcart v. Bryant, 28 Wash. 31, 68 Pac. 171. If they are omitted without excuse and no correction is offered, the sufficiency of the evidence will not be examined—Interstate S. & L. Ass'n v. Benson, 28 Wash. 578, 68 Pac. 1038. Under rule 10 the the evidence cannot object to its sufficiency.[96] If errors be not presented and argued properly[97] in briefs or orally,[98] they are waived, though the trial is de novo.[99] One of several points is lost if not presented.[1]

The argument must go into the error discursively,[2] and must treat all the grounds on which a ruling is lodged.[3] The "points" or errors should be specified and authorities cited,[4] and the place where the record contains the matter referred to;[5] but though defective it may be retained if the court can see the errors relied on.[6] It is not sufficient to refer to the case or bill of exceptions by number of the folio if the place referred to does not clearly present the question.[7] statement must refer to and present the order denying a new trial which is appealed from—Warren v. Humble, 26 Mont. 495, 68 Pac. 851. Affirmed for failure to include statements of case and reference to order appealed from in brief—Warren v. Humble, 26 Mont. 495, 68 Pac. 851. In many states there must be an abstract or the like and index, etc., made up as part of the memorial of the transmitted proceedings; see ante, § 9. A brief should state the cause af action, the assignments, so that the significance of all can be ascertained without inspecting the entire record, and should support assignments by propositions—Maldonado v. Arthur (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 562.

96. Boseker v. Chamberlain (Ind.) 66 N. E. 448; Indiana, D. & W. R. Co. v. Ditto, 158 Ind. 669.

97. Clem v. Wise, 133 Ala. 403; Beyer v. Fields, 134 Ala. 236; Kearney v. Nicholson (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 361; Falke v. Brule (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1054; Trimble v. Terril, 99 Ill. App. 349; Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lee (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 675; Hoyt v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 724; Mayhew v. Knittle (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1037; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Church (Neb.) 90 N. W. 878; Commonwealth Roofing Co. v. Palmer Leather Co., 67 N. J. Law, 566; Nordin v. Berner, 15 S. D. 611; Nix v. Reiss Coal Co., 114 Wis. 493; Chicago Transf. R. Co. v. Gruss, 102 Ill. App. 439; Dolan v. Mutual Reserve Life Ass'n, 182 Mass. 413; Anderson v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 151; Pearce v. Miller, 201 Ill. 188; Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 483; Greenfield v. Johnson (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 542; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Daegling (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 761; Southerland v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 786; Jaraszewski v. Allen (Iowa) 91 N. W. 941; Scott v. Gage (S. D.) 92 N. W. 37; Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498; Doherty v. Rice, 182 Mass. 182; Carroll v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 182 Mass. 237; Barrett v. Bruffee (Mass.) 65 N. E. 44. Cross-errors—Moore v. Hooker Co., 101 Ill. App. 177. Objections to an account appealed from—Cogswell's Heirs v. Freudenau, 93 Mo. App. 482. Where brief does not point out insufficiency of evidence an assignment thereon will not be noticed—Brovelli v. Bianchi, 136 Cal. 612, 69 Pac. 416.

98. Corrigan v. Kansas City, 93 Mo. App. 173; Portsmouth Bank v. Omaha (Neb.) 93 N. W. 231.

99. Thoma v. Hecker (Iowa) 90 N. W. 598.

1. Several grounds for new trial—Logansport Gas Co. v. Coate, 29 Ind. App. 299. Several grounds for demurrer—Bell v. Stevens, 116 Iowa, 451. Appeal from two adjudications—Rauer's Coll'n Co. v. Gilleran, 138 Cal. 352.

2. Himrod Coal Co. v. Clark, 197 Ill. 514; Frick v. Kabaker, 116 Iowa, 494; Zimmerman v. Kearney County Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 497.

3. Motion for new trial—Boyd v. W. U. Tel. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 711.

4. Brief held bad for failure to specify errors or cite authorities as required by rules—McAlester Coal Co. v. Patterson (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 840. Refusal of instructions must be specified—Trompen v. Yates (Neb.) 92 N. W. 647. On a long account by an administrator, individual items not specified will not be inspected to discover error in apportioning income and principal—In re Hart's Estate, 203 Pa. 492. A statement held sufficient to present the propriety of a charge relating to the good faith of community debts, the charge and the evidence being given by reference to the assignment and the record.—Cage v. Tucker's Heirs (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 425. Appeal may be dismissed for failure to specify number and particularize errors in the briefs—Driscoll v. Shields, 26 Mont. 494, 68 Pac. 851. Assignments must be briefed separately—Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183. Unless errors are fundamental, the assignment must be copied into the brief—Hollywood v. Wellhausen (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 329.

5. Objectionable evidence should be referred to by page of the record if not stated under the assignment—Westinghouse Co. v. Troell (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 324. A statement of the case that recites that there are other questions is substantially a "clear statement of the case, so far as deemed material"—Drumheller v. American Surety Co., 30 Wash. 530, 71 Pac. 25; Crowley v. McDonough, 30 Wash. 57, 70 Pac. 261. Objections that plaintiff's franchise was defective held bad, they not referring to the record where the fact appeared—Los Angeles Traction Co. v. Wilshire, 135 Cal. 654, 67 Pac. 1086. Must definitely refer to evidence in 1300 page transcript, complained of as being cross examination on new matters—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471. Rulings on evidence must under rule 22 be referred to by page and line of transcript—Indiana, D. & W. R. Co. v. Ditto, 158 Ind. 669. Under rule 10 ruling on motion for nonsuit must be referred to and also the proper page of the transcript showing it—Power v. Stocking, 26 Mont. 478, 68 Pac. 857; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Daegling (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 761.

6. Record not referred to and rulings on motions to dismiss as to one party were not specified (Statutes and Court Rules construed)—Crowley v. McDonough, 30 Wash. 57, 70 Pac. 261.

7. It presented a colloquy as to instructions—Devaney v. Degon, etc., Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 62.

Malign and scandalous words may subject a brief to striking out.[8] It may be stricken for failure to properly specify errors.[9] A brief should be stricken when the excuse for filing out of time is press of business in the trial court.[10] An appellee's brief and assignment of cross errors is not to be stricken merely because appellee was denied an appeal.[11] Leave may be given to file new briefs in place of those stricken as being scandalous.[12]

It is scandalous to refer to the trial judge as "arrogant,"[13] so is an attack on a co-ordinate branch of government which exceeds criticism of a particular action and becomes general denunciation,[14] or a statement attributing extraordinary ignorance and usurpation of power to the trial judge.[15] It is not objectionable for opposing counsel to refer to such language as "coarse and brutal aspersions."[16] A brief cannot be regarded as misleading, if a misstatement regarding the record is made merely by way of disagreement of counsel.[17]

Refiling briefs from other courts.—In Illinois where facts are not reviewed in the supreme court and the appellate court brief can be used only to determine what was there decided, copies of such briefs commingling questions of law and fact and entitled in the supreme court will be ignored.[18]

G. Grounds for dismissing, quashing, or striking out appeal.—Nonexistence of any litigable right is good cause, e. g., that the appeal is frivolous or futile.[19] or the judgment purely moot,[20] or the cause of action extinguished.[21] Judgment on a cross proceeding requires a dismissal of the main writ of error.[22] An appeal from judgment on demurrer is moot if appellants have since pleaded over.[23] A settlement by acceptance only of what was undisputed leaves the issue pending and not

8. Spoken of the trial court—Schleissner v. Schleissner, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 492; Sawdey v. Spokane Falls & N. R. Co., 27 Wash. 536, 67 Pac. 1094. Spoken of the U. S. Land Office—United States v. Peuschel, 116 Fed. 649.

9. Assignments were not copied into brief—Hollywood v. Wellhausen (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 329.

10. Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 78.

11. Pugh Co. v. Wallace, 198 Ill. 422.

12. Schleissner v. Schleissner, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 492.

13. Schleissner v. Schleissner, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 492.

14. United States v. Peuschel, 116 Fed. 649.

15. Sawdey v. Spokane Falls & N. R. Co., 27 Wash. 536, 67 Pac. 1094.

16. Sawdey v. Spokane Falls & N. R. Co., 27 Wash. 536, 67 Pac. 1094.

17. Sawdey v. Spokane Falls & N. R. Co., 27 Wash. 536, 67 Pac. 1094.

18. Daum v. Cooper, 200 Ill. 538.

19. Appeal from an order for judgment notwithstanding exceptions is so when no new points other than the frivolous exceptions are raised—Williams v. Clarke, 182 Mass. 316. Appeal from order releasing bond for an injunction which appellant consented should be dissolved—Kraeger v. Warnock, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 687. Appellant had been party in another appeal which he allowed to become conclusive against him so that in any event an affirmance would have been made—Ledebuhr v. Krueger (Wis.) 91 N. W. 1012. Election held before review of mandamus to place name on official ballot—State v. Lambert (W. Va.) 43 S. E. 176. Refusal of mandamus to compel taking of forthcoming bond in replevin which was decided for plaintiff on the main issue—Alabama Coal Co. v. Bowden (Fla.) 31 So. 820. Second appeal rested on tax deed declared void by first appeal—Winborne v. Hughey (Fla.) 33 So. 248. Appeal from interlocutory judgment which has become merged in final judgment not appealed from—Wallace v. Deane (Idaho) 69 Pac. 62. Reversal of judgment on which the appealed controversy was founded—McGill v. Bartman (Ky.) 68 S. W. 1100. On appeal from a remand in habeas corpus it appeared that relator was no longer in custody—Ex parte Wolston (Tex. Crim.) 68 S. W. 679.

20. Repeal of the act assailed by appeal on which judgment was based (General Revenue Law)—State Board v. People (Colo.) 70 Pac. 416. Refusal to issue license for a period since elapsed—State v. Martin (Fla.) 32 So. 926. Expiration of term of tenancy sought to be enforced—Sullivan v. Garvey (Iowa) 92 N. W. 672. Obedience to writ of mandamus appealed from—Crouse v. Nixon, 65 Kan. 843, 70 Pac. 885. Expiration of official term of parties before submission of appeal from impeachment proceedings—King v. Tilford, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1270. Questions become moot by delay—Conn v. Desha, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1400.

21. Settlement of controversy—Thomson-Houston Elec. Co. v. Nassau Elec. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 354; Wedekind v. Bell, 26 Nev. 395, 69 Pac. 612.

22. Harwell v. Martin, 115 Ga. 156.

23. Further specifications after demurrer to petition for removal of an administrator—Wirth v. Wirth, 181 Mass. 541.

dismissible,[24] and the doing of an act commanded but without intent to obey a mandamus is not necessarily cause for dismissal.[25]

Abandonment or failure of prosecution.[26]—Failure to file the record,[27] or taking a second appeal,[28] is not an abandonment.

Any substantial defect in or want of jurisdiction,[29] or in the remedy for review,[30] or prematurity,[31] or undue delay,[32] as in bringing up the record or transcript case, etc.,[33] or in assigning errors,[34] or presenting briefs;[35] also any failure in respect to the bond, if it be jurisdictional,[36] or any error of substance in the 24. In re Hutton's Estate, 92 Mo. App. 132.

25. Act was done in ordinary course of business—State v. Sunset Tel. Co., 30 Wash. 676, 71 Pac. 198.

26. An affirmance may result from want of prosecution or delay in perfecting appeal—Burnes v. American Brg. Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 512; Alexander v. Wilson (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 602. See, also, the paragraph following, "Any substantial defect," etc.

27. Burdett v. Dale, 95 Mo. App. 511.

28. Drexel v. Rochester L. & B. Co. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 254. But see ante, § 10, to the effect that tardy bringing up of the transcript or "record" may entail a dismissal.

29. Fitch v. Long, 29 Ind. App. 463; Hobson v. Hobson (Va.) 40 S. E. 899; Nobles v. Bernet (La.) 33 So. 313. Want of finality in judgment: Writs of error to the supreme court from two decisions of the circuit court, one affirming and the other reversing and remanding, on a cross writ of error, the same judgment of the circut court will be dismissed because there is no finality in either decision of the circuit court of appeals—Montana Min. Co. v. St. Louis M. & M. Co., 186 U. S. 24, 46 Law. Ed. 1039. Direct appeal from order reviewable only with final judgment—Mahoney v. Elliott (Idaho) 69 Pac. 108.

A writ of error will not be dismissed because one has brought two orders, one of which cannot be reviewed. Interlocutory ruling and ruling on order for new trial—Dodson, etc., Co. v. Harris, 114 Ga. 966.

See, also, ante, § 4, as to what judgments are final. Lack of jurisdictional amount—Booher v. Wisner, 65 Kan. 860, 70 Pac. 581. Jurisdictional amount made up of partly fictitious items—Johnson v. Hosmer, 108 La. 697. Claim of damages obviously inflated to reach jurisdictional amount—Marshall v. Schneider (La.) 33 So. 572. Mandamus dismissed where amount did not appear—State v. Police Jury (La.) 33 So. 308. Defect of parties—Booher v. Wisner, 65 Kan. 860, 70 Pac. 581; Anderson v. Laurent (Fla.) 33 So. 237. Purchasers at sale, confirmation of which was appealed from, not made parties—Phillips v. Keel, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1752. Failure to bring in as parties to appeal those who appeared and pleaded below without objection, though not entitled to do so—Small v. Edwards, 65 Kan. 858, 69 Pac. 165.

If another appeal be already pending, the latter one will be dismissed—Da Costa v. Dibble (Fla.) 33 So. 466. Error after appeal taken but not perfected dismissed—Burdett v. Dale, 95 Mo. App. 511. Defective process or procedure to transfer cause: Defective order for appeal—Hughes v. Henderson, 95 Mo. App. 312. Delay in issuing scire facias to defendants in error—Solary v. Weed (Fla.) 32 So 779. It is sufficient if one only of respondent's attorneys be served in time—Sherman v. Luckhardt (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 388.

No entry below nor appearance above—Ropes v. Kemps (Fla.) 33 So. 244. Want of formal petition for writ of error is not substantial if the issuance of the writ has been necessarily approved by later orders—Alaska United Min. Co. v. Keating (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 561. Notice not given within statutory time—Southern Cal. R. Co. v. Slauson (Cal.) 68 Pac. 107. Irregularities not causing uncertainty not sufficient—Bendich v. Scobel, 107 La. 242.

30. See ante, § 2. Bringing appeal instead of error—Bailey v. O'Fallon (Colo.) 70 Pac. 755; Colorado F. & I. Co. v. Knudson (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 698.

31. McVey v. Barker, 92 Mo. App. 498.

32. Hatton v. Hatton, 136 Cal. 353, 68 Pac. 1016; Schatzlein Paint Co. v. Passmore, 26 Mont. 500, 68 Pac. 113. Tardy filing of oath for appeal is ground unless appeal be perfected by proper proceedings on leave of court—Jones v. Ducktown S. C. & I. Co. (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 821. Tardy recording of writ of error—Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Peacock (Fla.) 33 So. 247. Six months' unnecessary delay to procure a substitute for a deceased trustee party and to bring in the substituted trustee after his appointment was held inexcusable, and dismissal ordered for want of parties—Hays v. Pugh, 158 Ind. 500, Affirmed for failure to properly perfect or prosecute an appeal—Burnes v. American Brg. Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 512; Alexander v. Wilson (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 602.

33. Record not brought up at the return term of writ of error—Rush v. Connor (Fla.) 32 So. 796. No transcript filed within 90 days—Potts v. Watkins (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 820. Delay may be waived by submitting on the merits—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 678; Taylor v. Colorado Iron W'ks, 29 Colo. 372, 68 Pac. 218.

34. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Sanford, 197 Ill. 310. Fifteen days' delay in filing amended asignments after motion to affirm for insufficient assignments and until the day of submission is unreasonable—Stienblock v. Johns (Iowa) 93 N. W. 595.

35. Headstrom v. Hellieson, 136 Cal. 498, 69 Pac. 148; Robertson v. Shorow (Wyo.) 69 Pac. 1. In Georgia tardiness in filing briefs is contempt but not ground for dismissal—Roberts v. Roberts, 115 Ga. 259. Failure to file briefs—Brevaldo v. Rogers Co. (Fla.) 33 So. 455; Pavey v. Pavey, 103 Ill. App. 589; Bowman v. Hoffman (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 152. Defects in briefs, see ante, this section,—"Briefs and Arguments."

36. Patterson v. Davis, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 842. Want of good sureties—David v. Guich, 30 Wash. 266, 70 Pac. 497. Not of the statutory penalty—Loy v. Coey (Wash.) 71 Pac. 552. Deficiency in amount—Loy v. Coey

"record," "transcript," "assignment," "briefs," or the like,[37]—will ordinarily warrant and often necessitate a dismissal.

The United States supreme court will dismiss proceedings based on federal questions only when such questions are frivolous or trifling.[38]

Matters prior to the order appealed are not cause for dismissal.[39]

Omission of that which it is an officer's duty to supply is not chargeable to appellant,[40] nor is an amendable defect,[41] or an excusable delay,[42] or condition due to the opposite party's action,[43] good cause. If a bond be such that appellant could (Wash.) 71 Pac. 552. Appeal is good if bond suffices to bring up though not to suspend judgment—Mestier & Co. v. Chevalier Pav. Co., 108 La. 562.

The want of a supersedeas to a judgment containing an injunctional order is not important unless that order is complained of—Linder v. Whitehead (Ga.) 42 S. E. 358.

Code March 16, 1895, providing that a new "appeal bond" may be ordered in default of which execution may issue, means a new stay bond, and the failure to provide one is not ground for dismissal—Mersfelder v. Spring, 136 Cal. 619, 69 Pac. 251. Mere irregularities not impairing security not sufficient—Colburn v. Seymour, 29 Colo. 292, 68 Pac. 219.

37. Omission to page and index a record containing numerous alleged errors—Emporia v. Kowalski, 65 Kan. 772, 70 Pac. 863. No index or statement of question, incomplete appendix, and improper certification and assignments—Sailor v. Reamer, 20 Pa. Super Ct. 597. Want of marginal notes—Brinkley v. Smith, 130 N. C. 224. There is no substantial variance between the name of a corporation party and the same name omitting the word "Limited" with the name of the corporate domicile—Palatine Ins. Co. v. Dickerson (Ga.) 43 S. E. 52. Failure to file notice of schedule of record for appeal—McHargue v. Reams, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1385. Failure to assign errors in briefs as required by court rules—Driscoll v. Shields, 26 Mont. 494, 68 Pac. 851.

Want of abstract—Brumback v. McAuley (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 240. No abstract or record except a book so styled but not verified—Westheimer v. McInerny (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 725. Failure to file abstract containing pleadings or the substance thereof, or statement of case, or showing that a bill of exceptions had been filed—Ladd v. Williams (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 475. Omissions from transcript record or paper book: Pleadings and record entries were in bill of exceptions only—Faulkner v. Hutchins (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 867. Certificate to evidence, statement of question, and evidence itself were lacking—Herlehy v. Shrader, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 438. Paper book contained no statement of question, assignment, or exceptions—Manley v. Okell, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 240. Failure in any way to preserve ruling on evidence and the evidence itself in the record—Richardson v. McConanghey (W. Va.) 43 S. E. 124. Failure to show filing of bill of exceptions—Westheimer v. McInerny (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 725. Omission of evidence not fatal, when findings can be supported by presumption in favor of its sufficiency—Casey v. Gibbons, 136 Cal. 368, 68 Pac. 1032. Omissions must be such as to influence decision—Bendich v. Scobel, 107 La. 242. Failure to include notice of motion for new trial not cause to dismiss—Madigan v. Harrington, 26 Mont. 358, 67 Pac. 1121. Matters omitted from transcript at appellant's instance after court's direction to include them—Finch v. Strickland, 130 N. C. 44. Insufficient certificate of evidence—Madden v. Kinney, 114 Wis. 528. Improper certification of transcript—Hart v. Cotten (Fla.) 31 So. 817. Omission to show the judgment complained of—Biles v. Beadle (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 465; Jones v. Miller (Neb.) 89 N. W. 598. Of two interlocutory orders one was not taken in time and the other was not in the transcript—Mattair v. Furchgott (Fla.) 32 So. 925.

Omission of order on contested application for leave to appeal without paying costs—Majors v. Goodrich (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 290.

38. Claim of title under Spanish grant confirmed by treaty and patent not frivolous—Mobile Transp. Co. v. Mobile, 187 U. S. 479. Will be dismissed if question is settled—Equitable Life Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308, or if case was decided on other grounds—New York Cent. R. Co. v. New York, 186 U. S. 269, 46 Law. Ed. 1158.

39. Premature notice of motion for new trial—Bell v. Staacke, 137 Cal. 307, 70 Pac. 171.

40. Certificate to bill of exceptions was not in legal form (Civ. Code, § 5534)—Scott v. Whipple (Ga.) 42 S. E. 519. Delay in giving notice of appeal attributable to officers and not to appellant—Martin Mach. Works v. Miller, 132 Ala. 629.

41. In appeal bond, unless appellant was in bad faith—Watier v. Buth, 87 Minn. 205. Under laws permitting amendment of the bond, omission of a co-appellant to sign it is not ground to dismiss, if they promptly move to file a new bond—Engel v. Atkinson (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 683.

42. Court of Appeals Rules 11 and 12 in Colorado do not require a dismissal for delay in filing assignments if there is an excuse and no prejudice has resulted—Moynahan v. Perkins (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1062. Tardy filing of assignment not ground for dismissal in Colorado, if there was an excuse—Moynahan v. Perkins (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1062. Pendency of application for rehearing of order extending time for citation is no excuse since rehearing does not lie—Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561. Appellant not at fault for failure to settle bill of exceptions—Crooks v. Crooks, 136 Cal. xix., 68 Pac. 101. Excuses for tardiness in filing briefs—State Board v. People, 29 Colo. 353, 68 Pac. 236; Gipson v. Morris (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 433; Headstrom v. Hellieson, 136 Cal. 498, 69 Pac. 148; Bowman v. Hoffman (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 152; Robertson v. Shorow (Wyo.) 69 Pac. 1.

43. It is not a failure to perfect when the not escape liability because of its defects, it is not so defective in form or substance as to render the appeal ineffectual and therefore dismissible.[44] Failure to except to findings is not important unless contentions are based on them.[45] The appellee cannot complain that no evidence is in the record to support findings in his favor.[46]

H. Raising and waiver of defects in appellate procedure; motions and pleas.— The appellate court alone may hear objections and dismiss a regular appeal;[47] for example, that an appeal is frivolous and dilatory.[48]

An objection is premature when before the time to bring up the record a non-appealing party complains of alleged failure to serve him.[49] Objections must be raised before even a qualified submission on the merits,[50] and are defeated when the error is cured before moving;[51] but a motion to dismiss cannot be defeated by doing a jurisdictional act after the time has expired,[52] and an abortive motion is ineffectual to cut off the time for doing any requisite thing.[53] A settlement will be cause for dismissal even after submission.[54] Under a rule permitting appellee to move to docket and dismiss if the transcript be tardy, such motion may be at any time before the transcript is docketed,[55] and if no case has been settled so as to permit a timely docketing, a dismissal can be averted by docketing so much as is obtainable and by making affidavit and moving for certiorari.[56]

A general appearance does not waive delay in applying for leave to appeal, but such objection is too late after submission.[57]

One who has opposed a motion for leave to correct an irregularity should not be heard on a motion to dismiss for such irregularity.[58] Plaintiff cannot say that a defendant whom he sued lacks an appealable interest.[59]

Defective assignments may be waived by proceeding to argument,[60] or omitting to raise the question.[61] Filing briefs does not waive an objection that a former appeal is pending.[62] Failure to provide copies of abstract may be waived failure of a surety to justify is attributable to exceptions filed by the objecting party—Klingler v. Henderson, 137 Cal. 561, 70 Pac. 617. If the duty is peremptory (to bring up a transcript) it is of no moment that appellant would have been obliged to advance fees chargeable to the opposite party—King v. Norton, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 53.

44. Bond signed only by the surety was joint and several in form and principal held estopped to deny it—Bloomingdale v. Weil, 29 Wash. 611, 70 Pac. 94.

45. Cathcart v. Bryant, 28 Wash. 31, 68 Pac. 171. Exceptions not necessary unless error is urged—Cathcart v. Bryant, 28 Wash. 31, 68 Pac. 171.

46. Berry v. Rood, 168 Mo. 316.

47. Spindler v. Gibson, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 150.

48. Southern B. & L. Ass'n v. Carey, 117 Fed. 325.

49. First Nat. Bank v. Gordon Hdw. Co., 30 Wash. 127, 70 Pac. 251.

50. Leave was reserved to file briefs—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 678.

51. Transcript, not filed before briefs, was filed before motion—Johnson v. San Juan Fish Co., 30 Wash. 162, 70 Pac. 254. Filed before motion and no prejudice resulted—Perkins v. Boyd (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1062. In North Carolina, under the rules, a transcript, though not in time, will prevent a dismissal if docketed before a certificate and motion to dismiss—Benedict v. Jones, 131 N. C. 473. If a defect in the abstract has been supplied by a certification of record, dismissal will be refused—Beale v. Patterson (Iowa) 93 N. W. 594. In Montana (Code Civ. Proc. § 1740) an objection to an appeal bond as being joint is averted by filing a proper undertaking before hearing of motion to dismiss—Hayes v. Union Merc. Co. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 975.

52. Filing new bond for appeal—David v. Guich, 30 Wash. 266, 70 Pac. 497.

53. Filing briefs—Swortfiguer v. White, 137 Cal. 391, 70 Pac. 214.

54. Wedekind v. Bell, 26 Nev. 395, 69 Pac. 612.

55. Worth v. Wilmington, 131 N. C. 532.

56. Worth v. Wilmington, 131 N. C. 532.

57. Roseberry v. Valley B. & L. Ass'n (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1063; Wabash R. Co. v. People, 196 Ill. 606.

58. Issuing writ of error before assignments are filed—Alaska United Min. Co. v. Muset (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 66.

59. State v. Cranney, 30 Wash. 594, 71 Pac. 50.

60. Not ground for dismissal if amended and questions specifically argued by both sides—Roberts v. Parker (Iowa) 90 N. W. 744.

61. Orcutt v. McNair (Neb.) 92 N. W. 200.

62. Burdett v. Dale, 95 Mo. App. 511.

by proceeding to reply to the brief.[63] Want of citation cannot be raised after other grounds are urged.[64]

The same grounds should not be urged on a second motion,[65] but a motion may be renewed to a cause reinstated as on error after dismissal on appeal.[66]

How presented.—When a defect is amendable, motion should be made in the appellate court for a rule to amend before moving for dismissal.[67] The destruction or extinguishment of the subject-matter of an appealed action should be presented by a proper plea in Kentucky.[68] The court will dismiss of its own motion for want of jurisdiction.[69]

A plea in abatement for facts of record or not in dispute should be so made as to raise an issue of law.[70]

Motion should be on notice,[71] and in time.[72] Grounds should be specific.[73] Only necessary matters will be heard;[74] appealability and sufficiency of the proceedings for appeal being the usual questions.[75]

The court may judicially notice want of jurisdiction and dismiss the appeal.[76] The rules differ as to whether information outside the record may be taken by the court on such a motion.[77] An assignment shown by the record to be sufficient will be sustained as against affidavits of fraud.[78] If an omitted proceeding is necessary only in certain circumstances, those circumstances must be shown.[79]

Proper mode of disposing of cause; dismissal or pro forma decree.—An appeal will be stricken for want of jurisdiction.[80] If there is a want of jurisdiction, a co-plaintiff in error cannot obtain a dismissal leaving the cause stand in the other one's name.[81] If satisfied that an appeal is frivolous, it will be dismissed rather than to grant a supersedeas or extend the time to file briefs.[82]

An affirmance may result from defects of the record not sufficient for dismissal,[83] or defects of the brief.[84]

63. Carter v. Dilley, 167 Mo. 564.

64. It was last in order of the objections—Vallee v. Hunsberry, 108 La. 136.

65. Levy v. Levy, 107 La. 576.

66. Taylor v. Colorado Iron Works, 29 Colo. 372, 68 Pac. 218.

67. Defective bond—In re Gannon's Estate (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1028.

68. McGill v. Bartman (Ky.) 68 S. W. 1100.

69. Fitch v. Long, 29 Ind. App. 463; Hobson v. Hobson (Va.) 40 S. E. 899.

70. Sanford v. Bacon (Conn.) 54 Atl. 204.

71. Rule 23 of Court of Appeals—Shannon v. Padgett, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1281; Carr v. General Inc. Light Co., 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 837. Notice referring to other papers held to sufficiently state grounds—Bell v. Southern Pacific R. Co., 137 Cal. 77, 69 Pac. 692.

72. In Alabama motion to dismiss for delay in filing transcript must be made before Thursday following the default—Martin Mach. Works v. Miller (Ala.) 32 So. 305. For defect in order of appeal within three days after filing transcript—Vallee v. Hunsberry, 108 La. 136.

73. Objections to bond—McSweeney v. Blank, 107 La. 292.

74. Unnecessary question of waiving assignment of error—Board of Com'rs v. Shaffner (Wyo.) 68 Pac. 14.

75. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 235, 70 Pac. 721.

76. Less than $2000 in dispute—Salles v. Jacquet, 108 La. 107.

77. Jurisdictional amount in controversy cannot be proved by affidavit—Smith v. American Monument Co. (Ind.) 65 N. E. 524. Affidavits receivable to show whether moving party who had disclaimed and been defaulted was necessary to the appeal—First Nat. Bank v. Gordon Hdw. Co., 30 Wash. 127, 70 Pac. 251. A statute authorizing a disposition of a cause on appeal does not include dismissal for settlement after appeal not shown by the record—In re Hutton's Estate, 92 Mo. App. 132. The fact that the controversy has ceased since appeal must appear on the record—White Crest Canning Co. v. Sims, 29 Wash. 389, 69 Pac. 1094.

78. Smith Co. v. Williams, 29 Ind. App. 336.

79. If decision was made in September and appeal taken in February, party must show that it was at a subsequent term of court in order to dismiss for want of citation—Succession of Hoyle (La.) 33 So. 625.

Dismissal not made when fact of waiver of citation is certified by clerk and denied by counsel's affidavit—Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561.

80. Defective order for appeal—Hughes v. Henderson, 95 Mo. App. 312.

81. Center v. Fickett Paper Co. (Ga.) 43 S. E. 498.

82. Knight v. West Coast N. S. Co. (Fla.) 33 So. 450.

83. Mere incomplete record works affirmance but not dismissal—Poage v. Smith, 101 Ill. App. 261. Failure to include notice of motion for new trial—Madigan v. Harrington, 26 Mont. 358, 67 Pac. 1121.

84. Warren v. Humble, 26 Mont. 495, 68 Pac. 851; Pavey v. Pavey, 103 Ill. App. 589.

A dismissal will not be allowed as to one party, where others have appealed and an examination of the entire record would be necessary on the motion.[85]

Rehearing.—Refusal to dismiss and allowance of extension of time in which to cite parties is interlocutory and hence not open to a rehearing under the Louisiana practice.[86]

§ 12. Hearing.—The regulation of hearings is largely discretionary and according to rules of court. If the hearing be de novo, preliminary issues may be first determined.[87] An appellee in divorce who remarries pending appeal will not be heard.[88]

§ 13. Review. A. Mode of review; review proper or trial de novo.[89]—An equity appeal brings the case up for trial de novo.[90] An action transferred without cause from the law to the equity side of the court must, nevertheless, be tried de novo.[91] Whether a cause is legal or equitable depends on the theory used at trial.[92] It will be assumed that an action was tried at law, where it appears that it was for recovery of money only and was brought for trial and tried at the law term.[93] Divorce cases are reviewed as equity causes.[94] Appeals from surrogates and courts of probate are usually de novo,[95] though defenses below may in some states be disregarded.[96] A party may be concluded by failure to appeal as to certain issues.[97] On appeal from a surrogate to the appellate court, a reference may be had to settle a particular issue of fact, especially where it appears that new and important testimony may be produced.[98] Summary proceedings by a landlord,[99] appeals in eminent domain proceedings to the court of general jurisdiction,[1] and appeals from county boards to the court of general jurisdiction,[2] are also usually de novo. Review of applications for liquor license in Pennsylvania is confined to the record.[3] Ferry proceedings in West Virginia are reviewed in the cir-

In Texas the civil appeals may, where the appellee has filed a brief on the failure of the appellant to do so, affirm upon the examination of the record merely to see if the judgment can be sustained according to appellee's view—Ball v. Dignowity (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 800.

85. Mestier & Co. v. Chevalier Pav. Co., 108 La. 562.

86. Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561.

87. Question of heirship to determine litigant's interest preliminary to appeal from distribution—Goff v. Britton, 182 Mass. 293.

88. Branch v. Branch (Colo.) 71 Pac. 632.

89. See, also, ante, § 2, as to whether appeal or error lies.

90. Riley Bros. v. Melia (Neb.) 92 N. W. 913. Erroneous evidence let in will be ignored—Washougal & L. Transp. Co. v. Dalles P. & A. Nav. Co., 27 Wash. 490, 68 Pac. 74. Bill cannot be amended to state new matter known to party—Jackson v. Thomson, 203 Pa. 622.

91. Loetscher v. Dillon (Iowa) 93 N. W. 98.

92. Highland Boy Gold Min. Co. v. Strickley (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 852; see also, Hooven, Owens & Rentschler Co. v. John Featherstone's Sons (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 81. Case should be reviewed as one at law, if in that form and tried as such—O'Melia v. Hoffmeyer (Iowa) 93 N. W. 497.

93. German-American Provision Co. v. Garronne (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 409.

94. Schuman v. Schuman, 93 Mo. App. 99; McCann v. McCann, 91 Mo. App. 1.

95. In re Wicke (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 221; In re Cartright's Will (N. J. Eq.) 51 Atl. 713; Ansley v. Richardson, 95 Mo. App. 332; Springfield Grocer Co. v. Walton, Id. 526. Hearing on claims—Wencker v. Thompson's Adm'r (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 743.

On appeal from refusal of probate, testimony other than that of subscribing witnesses may be heard—In re Kohley's Estate, 200 Ill. 189, following many cases. On appeal from settlement of administrator's account common pleas may either take new testimony or refer anew—James v. West (Ohio) 65 N. E. 156. Excluded evidence is received—Buie's Estate v. White, 94 Mo. App. 367. New issues excluded on appeal from disallowance of claim against decedent's estate—Fitzgerald's Estate v. Union Sav. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 994.

96. Thomson v. Black, 200 Ill. 465.

97. By failure to appeal from allowance of a set-off a claimant may be concluded on appeal as to that much—Thorpe v. Thorpe's Estate (Vt.) 52 Atl. 1051.

98. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 2586—In re Pfarr's Estate (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 634.

99. An affidavit of defense may be made on appeal—Harvey v. Clark (Miss.) 32 So. 906.

1. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Duncan, 87 Minn. 91.

2. Mahoney v. Board (Idaho) 69 Pac. 108.

3. In re Weaver's License, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 95.

4. Ferry proceedings under Code 1899, c. 39, §§ 47, 48, and § 14, c. 112—Sistersville Ferry Co. v. Russell (W. Va.) 43 S. E. 107.

cuit court only on the record and not tried by jury.[4] Titles treating of special proceedings should be consulted.[5]

An attempted appeal where none will lie may be regarded as a certiorari and the review restricted accordingly.[6]

B. Scope in general.—Nothing is reviewed, in the strict sense distinguished from trial de novo, unless properly saved by objection and exception, or unless apparent on the record itself.[7] Assignments and specifications sufficient to define issues of error are also necessary,[8] but the court may hear questions outside the assignments if argued.[9] In considering reserved questions, the court will confine itself to objections urged in the briefs and arguments of counsel where the record does not disclose particular matters objected to.[10] The decision should be confined to the issues,[11] and questions incident to them are not withdrawn from consideration by mere admissions as to matters of law.[12] An order in equity, the record of which was admitted in evidence in a suit at law, cannot be reviewed on appeal from the judgment.[13]

Moot questions will not be decided.[14] Unnecessary points will not be considered. Demurrers will not be separately considered where the conclusions of law present the same questions.[15] On appeal from a verdict given defendant because a defense of res judicata was determined a bar by the jury, no other questions need be considered.[16]

Error reaches only matter of law.[17]—In some states, sufficiency of evidence as ground for reversal is examined on writs of error as well as appeal,[18] but only the sufficiency of facts to support special findings will be reviewed together with the questions of law.[19] In Nebraska, rulings on evidence cannot be reviewed on appeal, but only by petition in error, and the supreme court will pass upon the competency of evidence in determining the weight as supporting the decree.[20] The appellate court of Missouri will not pass on the weight of evidence in action for recovery of money.[21] Where a verdict is rendered by a jury without objection of either party as to the mode of trial, an objection cannot be urged on appeal in Missouri that it was against the weight of evidence.[22] A defect apparent on the

5. See Eminent Domain, Estates of Decedents, Taxes, Wills. Trial de novo on appeal from opening or vacation of highways, see Highways and Streets.

6. In habeas corpus—Commonwealth v. McDougall, 203 Pa. 291.

7. See Saving Questions for Review.

8. See ante, § 11.

9. Lynch v. Syracuse R. Co. (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 95.

10. Thompson v. Betts, 74 Conn. 576.

11. Hence on the question whether there was a vendor's lien it is proper to find no sale though not pleaded—People v. Court of Appeals (Colo.) 69 Pac. 606. If he bases his right to recover on one count of his petition, his rights under the other cannot be considered—Overshiner v. Britton, 169 Mo. 341.

12. Thus that a contract was one of sale —People v. Court of Appeals (Colo.) 69 Pac. 606, holding also that there was no practical construction of it.

13. Partlow v. Lickliter (Va.) 42 S. E. 671.

14. Pennsylvania Co. v. Walker, 25 Ind. App. 285. Speculative and academic questions not answered—New Idea Pattern Co. v. Whelan (Conn.) 53 Atl. 953. Whether a city had an easement by which it was empowered to construct a sewer where it appeared that the construction was by statute —Gas Light & Coke Co. v. New Albany, 158 Ind. 268. Where a demurrer was sustained to a petition for mandamus seeking to compel an election board to treat a certificate of nomination as evidence, the election law will not be construed on appeal after election—Duvall v. Swann, 94 Md. 608. See also Harmless Error.

15. Gas Light & Coke Co. v. New Albany, 158 Ind. 268.

16. Werner v. Cincinnati, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 475.

17. See ante, § 2. It must be of record, § 13-E.

18. Tyree v. Harrison (Va.) 42 S. E. 295.

19. Empire State-Idaho Min. & Devel. Co. v. Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 417.

20. Cheston v. Wilson (Neb.) 89 N. W. 764.

21. Carr v. Ubsdell (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 112.

22. Stephan v. Metzger, 95 Mo. App. 609.

face of the declaration will always be noticed on writ of error.[23] On a writ of error in Georgia, a ruling which results in a final judgment inconsistent with the law may be reviewed, the whole case being open for inspection; the writ will also lie on the ground that the petition does not set out a cause of action, the supreme court thereon having the powers possessed by the common law courts in reviewing judgments of other courts.[24] Error brings up only rulings against the plaintiff in error,[25] and by analogy, if an appeal is not from an action of an equitable nature, only errors affecting appellant can be considered.[26]

Particular courts of appeal.—The appellate division of the supreme court of New York will pass upon the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict, the same as any other question.[27] The appellate court in Illinois may properly consider the sufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment, and reverse if found insufficient,[28] and the verdict must be set aside if so clearly against the evidence as to indicate passion or prejudice.[29] In Indiana, the sufficiency of the evidence will be reviewed by the appellate court.[30]

Review as dependent on parties appealing.—Error cannot be alleged by a party neither appealing nor joining an appeal.[31] A decision by the trial judge of a material matter of fact which the evidence properly put in issue cannot be questioned by the successful party to sustain a judgment in his favor entered upon the verdict of the jury.[32] An appellee wishing to have rulings of the trial court against him reviewed must take a cross appeal or cross assign errors.[33] Defendant below cannot complain on appeal that the relief granted against him was not all that was asked for in the bill.[34] One appealing cannot complain of instructions more favorable to the losing party than is justified by law.[35] Error which affects only one of several defendants cannot be urged on appeal by the others,[36] unless his

23. Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280.

24. Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280.

25. Not against defendant in error—Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 462. But he may cross-assign. See ante, § 11.

26. Jones v. Ducktown Sulphur, Copper & Iron Co. (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 821; Stuart v. Same, Id.; Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Co. v. Priest (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 241.

27. Schooler v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 114 N. Y. State Rep. 800; Kellogg v. Albany & H. R. & Power Co. (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 321, 11 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 50.

28. Chicago City R. Co. v. Biederman, 102 Ill. App. 617.

29. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cunningham, 102 Ill. App. 206.

30. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Sims, 28 Ind. App. 544.

31. Plaintiff cannot complain of error affecting an intervenor where their interests are adverse—Richards v. Minster (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 98; William E. Peck & Co. v. Kansas City Metal Roofing & Corrugating Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 169; Chavez v. Myers (N. M.) 68 Pac. 917; Powell v. Canaday, 96 Mo. App. 27; Worthington v. Miller, 134 Ala. 420. Filing assignments of error is insufficient to have error considered—Ritt v. True Tag Paint Co., 108 Tenn. 646. A party who does not appeal cannot complain of the conditions imposed upon him by the judgment below—Kaukauna Electric Light Co. v. Kaukauna, 114 Wis. 327. A law enabling one of several losing parties to appeal and use the names of all the parties for that purpose will not enable him to appeal in behalf of all, and errors as to him only will be considered, under Prac. Act Ill. § 71—Norris v. Downing, 196 Ill. 91. On appeal by plaintiff making both defendants appellees, a defendant who failed to perfect an appeal from a judgment against him in favor of his co-defendant cannot assign error as against the co-defendant—National Bank of Cleburne v. Carper (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 188. A defendant who did not appeal after his motion for a nonsuit was overruled could not have the motion reviewed on appeal by plaintiff from an order setting aside the verdict, though the nonsuit should have been granted—Fritz v. Southern R. Co., 130 N. C. 279. Whether instructions were too favorable to defendant will not be reviewed where plaintiff did not appeal—Fitzgerald v. Alma Furniture Co., 131 N. C. 636; Bradley-Ramsey Lumber Co. v. Perkins (La.) 33 So. 351; Kinney v. Murray (Mo.) 71 S. W. 197.

32. Citizens' Bank v. Rung Furniture Co. (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 471.

33. Long v. Campbell, 133 Ala. 353; Arizona & N. M. R. Co. v. Nevitt (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 550. Consent must be indorsed if they cross-assign—Jones v. Peebles, 133 Ala. 290.

34. Brown v. Schintz, 98 Ill. App. 452.

35. Sappington v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 95 Mo. App. 387.

36. French v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 199 Ill. 213. Where a bill is dismissed as to one defendant as to whom it is prejudicial, the others cannot raise such prejudice as ground for reversal on appeal—Missouri Broom Mfg. Co. v. Guymon (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 112. Where two co-defendants answer separately, interests are thereby injured.[37] Error against either party to the appeal will be corrected by reversal of proceedings in whole or in part, where the whole record is before the appellate court.[38] Error in direction of a verdict in favor of part of certain defendants sued in tort cannot be raised by other co-defendants.[39] Where a city and an abutting owner are jointly sued, the city cannot on appeal ask for reversal of the judgment against it because of errors in favor of the abutting owner, though it may raise such errors as between itself and the abutting owner.[40] Plaintiff on reversal of a judgment as to him has no interest in the division of costs taxed against the other parties on a rule for that purpose.[41] One who is sued below both in his individual and representative capacities as guardian for certain minors cannot complain of errors below in regard to one of such capacities, where no recovery was had against him in such capacity.[42]

Waiver of errors in appellate court.—Errors,[43] cross errors,[44] exceptions,[45] grounds in support of a motion for a new trial,[46] or in support of a demurrer,[47] objections to a petition in error,[48] or objections to allowances in an administrator's settlement,[49] though assigned, will be deemed abandoned where not argued or discussed in the briefs. The rule applies to an appeal in equity tried de novo.[50] A mere statement of error is not argument.[51] The particular facts of the error must be pointed out.[52] An instruction is law of the case unless assailed by motion for new trial or petition in error.[53]

the failure of the court to make separate findings upon the issues made by the answer of one cannot affect the other so as to constitute error to be considered on his appeal, under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. §§ 452, 469, 475, providing for liberal construction of pleadings—Dobbs v. Purington, 136 Cal. 70, 68 Pac. 329. Where one of two defendants is served and tries the case, he cannot complain of entry of an irregular judgment against the other if the action will permit of a several judgment—Storey v. Kerr (Neb.) 89 N. W. 601; McCardle v. Aultman Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 507; McDavid v. McLean, 104 Ill. App. 627; Christopher & Simpson Architectural Iron & Foundry Co. v. Kelly, 91 Mo. App. 93.

37. A landlord may complain of a judgment against a contractor in a mechanic's lien proceeding, as it affects his land—Christopher & Simpson Architectural Iron & Foundry Co. v. Kelly, 91 Mo. App. 93; Town of Central Covington v. Bellonby, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1092.

38. Childers v. Loudin (W. Va.) 42 S. E. 637.

39. Cleland v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 396.

40. George v. St. Joseph (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 110.

41. Johnson v. New Orleans (La.) 33 So. 735.

42. Ferguson v. Slater, McMahon & Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 422.

43. Clem v. Wise, 133 Ala. 443; Falke v. Brule (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1054; Beyer v. Fields, 134 Ala. 236; Trimble v. Terril, 99 Ill. App. 349; Hoyt v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 724; Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lee, 29 Ind. App. 480; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Church (Neb.) 90 N. W. 878; Mayhew v. Knittle (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1037; Nordin v. Berner, 15 S. D. 611; Commonwealth Roofing Co. v. Palmer Leather Co., 67 N. J. Law, 566; Nix v. C. Reiss Coal Co., 114 Wis. 443; Zimmerman v. Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 497; Scott v. Gage (S. D.) 92 N. W. 37; Jaroszewski v. Allen (Iowa) 91 N. W. 941; Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 495; Southerland v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 786; City of Greenfield v. Johnson (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 542; Anderson v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 151; Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 483; Pearce v. Miller, 201 Ill. 188; Portsmouth Sav. Bank v. Omaha (Neb.) 93 N. W. 231; Corrigan v. Kansas City, 93 Mo. App. 173; Landt v. McCullough, 103 Ill. App. 668. Error in excessive damages—Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Gruss, 102 Ill. App. 439. An assignment of error in admission of a lease and deposition in evidence discussed only as to the lease is waived as to the deposition—Yarbrough v. De Martin (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 177. Failure, on appeal from default and order to set aside default, to urge the error in the judgment in the brief is a waiver thereof—Rauer's Law & Collection Co. v. Gilleran, 188 Cal. 352, 71 Pac. 445.

44. Moore v. H. M. Hooker Co., 101 Ill. App. 177.

45. Carroll v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 182 Mass. 287; Doherty v. Rice, Id. 182; Dolan v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, Id. 413. To admission of evidence—Barrett v. Bruffee, 182 Mass. 229; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Daegling (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 761.

46. Logansport & W. Val. Gas Co. v. Coate, 29 Ind. App. 299. Argument of only one of several grounds assigned is insufficient—Boyd v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 711.

47. Bell v. Stevens, 116 Iowa, 451.

48. Failure to allege that the court erred in overruling a motion for new trial—Orcutt v. McNair (Neb.) 92 N. W. 200.

49. Cogswell's Heirs v. Freudenau, 93 Mo. App. 482.

50. Thoma v. Hecker (Iowa) 90 N. W. 598.

51. Error alleged in overruling demurrer—Frick v. Kaboker, 116 Iowa, 494.

Procedure de novo.—A requirement that all causes removed on appeal to the district court shall be tried anew does not affect the nature of a case appealed, so as to confer right to a jury in cases in which jury trial is not a matter of right.[54] The rule that all cases appealed and tried de novo should be tried on the same issues raised below does not require the pleadings to be in the precise language of that filed below;[55] hence it is proper to plead anew, but more fully;[56] but an amendment to the petition cannot be made to pray a larger recovery than the limit of jurisdiction below.[57] If the petition on appeal be assailed as tendering new issues, the question must be determined by comparison of the petitions.[58] On appeal from a judgment in foreclosure, appellee may amend his complaint to aver that no proceedings have been had at law, that it may conform to proofs after submission of the cause.[59]

C. Restriction to rulings below.—Questions presented may be reviewed, though not ruled upon formally, if the effect of other rulings was such as to decide the questions.[60] Facts on which there is no finding will be passed by,[61] and what was said at a subsequent ruling is not decisive on review of an earlier one.[62] Review will not be made on issues differing from those raised at the trial.[63] A defendant for whom the court has directed a verdict on a particular ground may defend the verdict on any ground fairly presented by his motion below.[64] Unless a motion for a new trial on several grounds is expressly overruled as to the other grounds than the one on which it was granted, such grounds will not be considered on appeal from the order granting it.[65] Judgment on general grounds of demurrer will not admit review of special grounds.[66] The appellate court cannot pass on the merits of a case where the trial court sustained a demurrer to the whole declaration, which contained one good count.[67]

Reasons not reviewed.—If a correct result is reached by the trial court, the reasons therefor will not be reviewed.[68] That the lower court gave a wrong reason for a proper judgment will not prevent affirmance,[69] and reasons in a written opinion will not be reviewed where the case is submitted to the court with an agreement that he shall decide all questions of law and fact.[70] A judgment correct on other grounds than that on which it was rendered below will not be reversed.[71]

52. Error in refusal of instructions—Himrod Coal Co. v. Clark, 197 Ill. 514.

53. Iowa Sav. Bank v. Frink (Neb.) 92 N. W. 916.

54. In probate trials the right to trial by jury is not given—In re Roarke's Estate (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 527.

55. Coleman v. Spearman, Snodgrass & Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 983.

56. Martens v. Pittock (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1038.

57. Spargur v. Prentiss (Neb.) 92 N. W. 300; Prentiss v. Spargur, Id.

58. Coleman v. Spearman, Snodgrass & Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 983.

59. Ure v. Bunn (Neb.) 90 N. W. 904.

60. Demurrer to a co-defendant's answer was carried back to the bill, which was dismissed as to all parties—Coleman v. O'Leary's Ex'r, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1248.

61. Hunt v. Hunt, 171 N. Y. 396.

62. Statements made in ruling afterwards on motion for new trial—Lauer v. Palms (Mich.) 89 N. W. 694.

63. Defenses not pleaded — Richey v. Haley, 138 Cal. 441, 71 Pac. 499; Taylor v. Hall (Idaho) 71 Pac. 116; Whalen v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281. Demurrer will not raise question that a third person secondarily liable should contribute—Fleener v. Litsey (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 82. On appeal from a replevin judgment wrongful seizure of property in addition to that pleaded is not reviewed—Pease v. Trench, 197 Ill. 101.

Instructions not requested—Kansas City v. Madsen, 93 Mo. App. 143; Edwards v. Barber Asph. Pav. Co., 92 Mo. App. 221; Corrigan v. Kansas City, 93 Mo. App. 173. Hence consult the title Saving Questions for Review, wherein cases are collected showing necessity of raising question by objection.

64. Whitney v. N. Y., N. H. & H. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 102 Fed. 850; Currier v. Trustees (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 44.

65. Boyd v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 711.

66. Linder v. Whitehead (Ga.) 42 S. E. 358, limiting former decisions.

67. Wolf v. Alton, 103 Ill. App. 587.

68. Palmer v. Crisle, 92 Mo. App. 510; Denny v. Stokes (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 209.

69. Davison v. Johnson, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 27.

70. Griffith v. Finger, 115 Ga. 592.

71. Le Mond v. Harrison (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 956.

On review of a case, an instruction held void below will not be held valid where void on its face, though no objection was ever made on that ground.[72]

D. Restriction by character of order or judgment; matters brought up with final judgment.—Rulings on practice[73] and intermediate orders[74] go up with the judgment. The denial of a motion for a settlement of certain issues and for a jury trial can be reviewed on appeal from final judgment.[75] Judgment on a plea to the jurisdiction is reviewable with the final judgment on the main issue,[76] but the matter so to be reviewed must be such as is involved by the judgment.[77] Denial of motion to set aside a nonsuit for failure to appear and prosecute cannot be reviewed on appeal from the judgment of nonsuit, nor from an order refusing to set aside the nonsuit ordered for failure of proof.[78] Rulings of a referee cannot be considered on appeal from a judgment sustaining a motion to confirm his report.[79] An interlocutory judgment as to the form of a partnership between the parties, dissolving it and directing an accounting, cannot be reviewed on appeal from a final judgment.[80] On review of a dismissal of the complaint on motion, a motion for a new trial is not to be considered, since the case is left without a verdict.[81]

Matters reviewable on appeal from interlocutory orders.—Proceedings subsequent to an interlocutory order are not considered.[82] On appeal from a ruling on a demurrer, subsequent proceedings will be considered if they result in a finding according to the facts alleged or within the issue, without placing improper burdens on defendant.[83] An order allowing amendment will not bring up the sufficiency of the allegations.[84] Nonsuit or refusal to take one off involves no rulings on evidence.[85] A second order reaches facts or rights involved in a former one not appealed.[86]

On appeal from grant or refusal of a new trial.—Generally appeals from a grant or denial of a motion for a new trial are confined to the motion,[87] and the suffi-

72. Thompson v. Roberts (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1079.

73. Insurance Co. v. Parker (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1040; Lau v. Blomberg (Neb.) 91 N. W. 206. Denial of leave to amend—Ayers v. Makely, 131 N. C. 60. Refusal to dismiss—Jester v. Baltimore Packet Co., 131 N. C. 54. Denial of motion for judgment on pleadings—Duffy v. Meadows Co., 131 N. C. 31. Omission to make findings is reviewable with the judgment—Mantel v. Mantel, 135 Cal. 315, 67 Pac. 758. Erroneous reception or rejection of ballots by court in quo warranto may be reviewed—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918. An order sustaining a motion to strike out parts of an amended complaint is reviewable on final appeal—Corcoran v. Sonora Min. Co. (Idaho) 71 Pac. 127.

74. Where the return of the clerk contains the judgment roll properly certified (Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3050, 3070)—Garvin v. Martin (Wis.) 93 N. W. 470. Intermediate orders specified in the notice of appeal (Code Civ. Proc. § 1301)—New York, L. & W. R. Co. v. Erie R. Co., 170 N. Y. 448.

75. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. §§ 190, 1316, 1324, providing for the manner of appeals from the appellate division to the supreme court—Herb v. Metropolitan Hospital, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 552.

76. State L. & A. Ass'n v. Kemp, 115 Ga. 355; Gambrill v. Schooley, 95 Md. 260.

77. Order to receiver of mining company to purchase cyanide plant to work tailings is reviewable with final adjudication (Code Civ. Pr. § 936)—Free Gold M. Co. v. Spiers, 135 Cal. 130, 67 Pac. 61. Exceptions to guardian's final report bring up all former reports—Peterson v. Erwin, 28 Ind. App. 330. Allowance of alimony will not be reviewed upon the question whether marriage de jure or marriage de facto existed—Eickhoff v. Eickhoff, 29 Colo. 295, 68 Pac. 237.

78. The two latter appeals are allowed by Gen. St. Conn. §§ 1110, 1129—Appeal of White (Conn.) 53 Atl. 582.

79. Reed v. Jugenheimer (Iowa) 92 N. W. 859.

80. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1316—Aronson v. Greenberg, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 639.

81. Bessenger v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 32.

82. Subsequent amendments — Smith v. Lamping, 27 Wash. 624, 68 Pac. 195.

83. The appeal court is not to rule upon the demurrer as the close of the pleadings (Pub. Acts Conn. 1897, p. 892, § 15)—Mechanics' Bank v. Woodward, 74 Conn. 689.

84. Thilemann v. New York, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 595.

85. Forrest v. Buchanan, 203 Pa. 454; Lewis v. Hinson, 64 S. C. 571.

86. Cost orders—Horn v. Bohn, 96 Md. 8. But not the former order itself—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 43, 70 Pac. 102.

87. On appeal from denial of new trial in divorce support of children cannot be adjudicated—Bryan v. Bryan, 137 Cal. xix.,

ciency of the complaint cannot be considered,[88] but only on an appeal from the judgment.[89] The sufficiency of the findings will not be noticed on appeal from denial of a new trial,[90] nor error appearing on the judgment roll,[91] nor the sufficiency of the evidence to support the findings and judgment on appeal from an order granting a new trial for newly discovered evidence.[92] A failure to find on a material issue amounts to a decision against law which may be reviewed on appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial.[93] An order of dismissal as to other defendants will not be considered on appeal from an order denying a new trial in a suit in which judgment was rendered in favor of only the defendants who appeared.[94] An exception to a nonsuit, properly saved on a motion for a new trial, may be reviewed on appeal from denial of the motion.[95] A motion for a new trial for insufficiency of evidence raises the same questions as a previous request for a peremptory instruction and submission of specific issues to the jury so that both rulings need not be reviewed on appeal.[96]

Equitable, provisional, and special decrees and orders.—It must be presumed that the court sitting without a jury,[97] or in equity, considered only competent evidence.[98] An appeal in an equitable action will not bring up for review a ruling as to the admission of evidence.[99] On appeal from a portion of a decree, other matters cannot be reviewed.[1] On appeal from a decree entered after answer and hearing, a decree overruling a demurrer to the bill is not reviewable, a direct appeal from the latter decree being necessary.[2] The equity of the bill on which an interlocutory order is based may be reviewed on appeal therefrom.[3] The inclusion of an unappealable interlocutory decree in an appealable decree will not enable its review.[4] A former interlocutory decree overruling a motion to dismiss the bill for want of equity will not be reviewed on appeal from an order denying a motion to discharge a receiver.[5] If no appeal is taken from the part of an equity judgment which awards money to one of the parties, it cannot be claimed that as to that issue the losing party had a right to a jury trial.[6] An appeal from an order in execution of or ancillary to a decree will not bring up the decree,[7] except as to whether it supports the latter; thus on appeal from an order of sale of commun-

70 Pac. 304. Error to review denial of a new trial when brought after a year from judgment, will review only the errors presented on the motion for new trial—Mechanics' Bank v. Harding, 65 Kan. 655, 70 Pac. 655. Where the court below erroneously determined a motion for new trial raising questions of law and fact only on specific questions of law, the merits of the motion on the other grounds will not be determined—Gray v. Washington W. P. Co., 27 Wash. 713, 68 Pac. 360.

88. Sutter County v. Tisdale, 136 Cal. 474, 69 Pac. 141; Swift v. Occidental Min. Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 470.

89. Lambert v. Marcuse, 137 Cal. 44, 69 Pac. 620.

90. Walker v. Lillingston, 137 Cal. 401, 70 Pac. 282. On appeal from an order denying a motion for new trial in a suit to quiet title, the question whether the findings sustain a judgment of restitution will not be considered—Southern Cal. R. Co. v. Slauson (Cal.) 68 Pac. 107.

91. This can only be considered on appeal from the judgment—Swift v. Occidental Min. Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 470.

92. Bridenbecker v. Bridenbecker, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 6.

93. Clark v. Hewitt, 136 Cal. 77, 68 Pac. 303.

94. United Land Ass'n v. Pacific Imp. Co. (Cal.) 69 Pac. 1064.

95. Converse v. Scott, 137 Cal. 239, 70 Pac. 13.

96. St. Joseph & G. I. R. Co. v. McCarty (Neb.) 92 N. W. 750.

97. Mullin v. Johnson, 98 Ill. App. 621.

98. Oliver v. McDowell, 100 Ill. App. 45.

99. Under Code Civ. Proc. Neb. § 675—Leavitt v. Bartholomew (Neb.) 93 N. W. 856.

1. Bates Mach. Co. v. Cookson, 104 Ill. App. 457.

2. Code Maryland, art. 5, §§ 24, 26, construed—Gardiner v. Baltimore, 96 Md. 361.

3. Order appointing receiver—Cabaniss v. Reco Min. Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 318.

4. Interlocutory decree on motion to strike parts of bill contained in decree on demurrer to bill—Hood v. Southern R. Co., 133 Ala. 374.

5. Hereford v. Hereford, 134 Ala. 321.

6. Lord v. Murchison, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 321.

7. Errors in preliminary orders allowed to become conclusive cannot be raised—New Milford Water Co. v. Watson (Conn.) 52 Atl. 947, 53 Atl. 57. Appeal from confirmation of sale in foreclosure—Omaha L. & T. Co. v. Walenz (Neb.) 89 N. W. 623. On appeal from confirmation order in highway proceedings, errors prior to original decree will be ignored unless they go to the jurisdic-ity property under a power in a husband's will, the court can review error in including the wife's interest.[8] The proof as to the allowance of expenses in an order discharging a receiver will be reviewed though it may incidentally involve the propriety of his appointment which is not ordinarily reviewable.[9] Infringement will not be determined on appeal from a patent injunction granted on full hearing for special reasons, but only the propriety of the injunction will be questioned.[10] The constitutionality of certain laws, the effect of a final judgment in another proceeding and the right of a taxpayer to relief by injunction will not be reviewed on appeal from order denying injunction, where the motion was based on affidavits merely.[11] On appeal from a refusal to reform a deed that such relief was improper under the evidence will not be considered.[12] The propriety of the appointment of a receiver for a trust estate cannot be reviewed on appeal from an order overruling exceptions to a special register's report and adjusting the claim of a creditor.[13] Proceedings after judgment, such as vacation or modification, are often by statute made reviewable with the judgment as shown in the note.[14] An appeal from a judgment will not bring up an accompanying appeal from an order refusing to set aside the judgment and render a different judgment on the findings.[15] An appeal from a second order denying a motion to open a default will not bring the first order up for review.[16]

E. Restriction by contents of record.—The errors alleged must clearly appear,[17] the burden of showing error being always on the party alleging it,[18] and in the absence of an affirmative showing of error, it is assumed that the rulings below are correct.[19] The reviewing court is confined to the record, and will consider only such error as is there presented,[20] but when a proceeding has been once re-tion—Hector Township Road, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 120.

8. Under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. §§ 153, 940, 956—In re Wickersham's Estate (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1079.

9. Horn v. Bohn, 96 Md. 8.

10. American Fur Co. v. Cimiotti, etc., Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 838; Thomson-Houston Elec. Co. v. Nassau Elec. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 354; Stearns-Roger Mfg. Co. v. Brown, 114 Fed. 939, 52 C. C. A. 559.

11. Knowles v. Conklin, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 633.

12. Bossingham v. Syck (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1047.

13. Campbell v. Claflin Co., 135 Ala. 527.

14. Under 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & Sts. §§ 5153, 5156, 5157, though entitled and docketed as a separate action—State v. Superior Ct. (Wash.) 71 Pac. 740. Opening of judgment entered on judgment note may be reviewed with final judgment—Schomaker v. Dean, 201 Pa. 439.

15. Birch v. Cooper, 136 Cal. 636, 69 Pac. 420.

16. Not within 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 6500, subd. 7—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 43, 70 Pac. 102.

17. Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280; McMillan v. Conat (N. D.) 91 N. W. 67; Parker v. Moore (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 799; Dunscomb v. Patterson, 101 Ill. App. 69; Cooper v. Ward (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 297; Stevenson v. Henkle (Va.) 42 S. E. 672. Ruling complained of not appearing—Kelly v. Morris, 101 Ill. App. 102. The fact that a judgment held to be an estoppel had been reversed must appear—Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 462. Where the special verdict is not in the record the case will be reviewed as if there were none—O'Sullivan v. Knox, 114 N. Y. 848.

18. Tradewater Coal Co. v. Lee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 215; McGeary v. McGeary, 181 Mass. 539; Jaco v. Southern Mo. & A. R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 567; Holland v Cunliff (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 737; Ortt v. Leonhardt (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 577; Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581; Tapana v. Shaffray (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 119; Stewart v. Rosengren (Neb.) 92 N. W. 586.

19. McGeary v. McGeary, 181 Mass. 539; Ortt v. Leonhardt (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 577; Springfield Grocer Co. v. Walton, 95 Mo. App. 526; International Soc. v. Dennis, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 327; Southern R. Co. v. Hill (Ga.) 42 S. E. 728; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Lawrence, 96 Ill. App. 635. No ruling appeared; objection presumed to have been withdrawn—Adams v. Hopkins (Cal.) 69 Pac. 228.

20. Gardner v. Lake (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 306; Newton v. Fain, 114 Ga. 833; Moultham v. Apking (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1051; Hoyt v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 724; Dyea Elec. Light Co. v. Easton, 15 S. D. 572; Fidelity & D. Co. v. West Chicago St. R. Co., 99 Ill. App. 486; Kansas City S. R. Co. v. Billingslea (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 335; State v. St. Louis, 169 Mo. 31; Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581; Bush v. Tecumseh Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 236; Manthey v. Rauenbuehler, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 173; Stevens v. Hill, 74 Vt. 164; Anderson v. Mossy Creek Mills Co. (Va.) 41 S. E. 854; Ashland v. Whitcomb, 114 Wis. 99; Creamery Pckg. Mfg. Co. v. Hotsenpiller (Ind.) 64 N. E. 600; Lyon v. Bray (Iowa) 90 N. W.

versed and additional evidence received, the evidence on both hearings should be considered,[21] and the state of the record the day the appeal was taken controls.[22] Exceptions are presumed to have been made at the time of the action with which they are set out.[23] Where it does not appear from the record when the bill of exceptions was filed, it cannot be presumed that the term had been adjourned so that the time was extended for the filing.[24] It cannot be presumed that a certificate by the judge to the effect that greater damages should have been awarded in an action for tort was made, where there is no recital of the fact in the record.[25] Matters extrinsic to the record are not regarded.[26] Even if the record might admit, it will not be examined to make new findings of fact in order to support a decree below.[27] A judgment in tort as to one defendant on separate verdicts will be considered on its own merits apart from the fact that the judgment as to the other has been affirmed or reversed.[28] Though the evidence below would warrant a certain finding, where such finding was not made it cannot be resorted to on appeal in order to support the judgment.[29] The appeal court cannot presume that defendant would not have tendered the amount recovered in an action for a balance on contract if plaintiff had not claimed more.[30] Where a ruling depends on evidence, it cannot be reviewed unless all the evidence relating thereto is in the record,[31] and where it is based on a rule of court that rule must be shown.[32] In order that the supreme court may try an accounting had before a referee below

827; Hester v. Frary, 99 Ill. App. 51. And judicial notice will not be taken of the records of the court below—Bush v. Tecumseh Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 236. If properly preserved, poll books may be examined, though but for the appeal they would have already been destroyed by virtue of statute—Reed v. Jugenheimer (Iowa) 92 N. W. 859. Indorsement on a recognizance sent up as part of record may be considered as to time of forfeiture—Commonwealth v. Meeser, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.

21. McConkie v. District Ct. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 716.

22. Hinson v. Ralston, 100 Ill. App. 214.

23. It will be presumed that the dates of giving and excepting to an instruction were the same where the record shows the date of filing and the exception—Skow v. Locks (Neb.) 91 N. W. 204.

24. Hugumin v. Hinds (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 479.

25. Under Code Ala. § 1326, requiring such certificate in order that plaintiff may recover more costs than damages—Guttery v. Boshell, 132 Ala. 596.

26. Expenditures by a purchaser after sale in foreclosure and before reversal—Hunt v. Whitehead, 19 App. D. C. 116.

27. Appeal to United States supreme court from decree refusing to demand compliance with interstate commerce commissioners' order—Interstate Commission v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 186 U. S. 320, 46 Law. Ed. 1182.

28. Connor v. General Fire Extg. C., 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 624.

29. Spier v. Hyde, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 151.

30. Niemeyer v. Woods, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 630.

31. Carnahan v. Connolly (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 836; Griffith v. Finger, 115 Ga. 592; Carpenter v. Carpenter (Mich.) 89 N. W. 717; Rhodes v. Rhodes, 95 Mo. App. 327; Wills v. Hardcastle, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 525; Lone Tree Ditch Co. v. Cyclone Ditch Co., 15 S. D. 519; Carrow v. Barre R. Co., 74 Vt. 176; Standish v. Bridgewater (Ind.) 65 N. E. 189; Eklund v. Martin, 87 Minn. 441; In re Eckhart's Estate (Wis.) 92 N. W. 363; Kansas City v. Parker, 65 Kan. 734, 70 Pac. 867. But see St. Paul Trust Co. v. Kittson (Minn.) 92 N. W. 500, in which it was said that where findings of ultimate facts are stated by the court to be based on certain conditions the evidence thereof as well as findings of the particular facts should be in the record. Refusal to stay or set aside execution will not be reviewed if facts not in record—Stephens v. Addis, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 185. There must be a sufficient statement of evidence to show impropriety of rulings or an assignment of the errors—Southerland v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 786. Refusal of nonsuit not ordinarily exceptionable where evidence is not preserved—Cavanaugh v. Grady (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1027. Allowance to assignee for creditors not disturbed where facts were not in record—Woodcock v. Reilly (S. D.) 92 N. W. 10. Presumption from the record is that a refusal of liquor license resulting from disagreement was not arbitrary—In re Foreman's License, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 98. Taxation of cost of harvesting distrained crops against the tenant is aided by presumption, in absence of evidence of a different arrangement—Gore v. Gardner (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 520. Denial of a motion to suppress a notary's certificate of a witness' refusal to testify and refusal to allow the witness to testify will be presumed to have been justified by the character of the evidence where none of the evidence on the motion to suppress was given in the record—Weinert v. Simmang (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1011.

32. Carnahan v. Connolly (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 836; Anaconda Min. Co. v. Heinze, 27 Mont. 161, 69 Pac. 909.

de novo, the evidence must be certified by the court.[33] Errors on the face of the record may be reviewed though there is no bill of exceptions.[34] The bill must show that the alleged error was prejudicial.[35]

Jurisdiction and venue.—Want of jurisdiction must be shown in the record to review a motion to dismiss on that ground,[36] and the same rule applies to an alleged disqualification of the judge,[37] or to a motion for change of venue.[38] An order reciting that a cause was stricken from the calendar because removed to the federal court and that court had taken jurisdiction will not show sufficiently the assumption of such jurisdiction where the whole order certified shows no fact in proof thereof though it might be assumed that it was shown by oral admission or stipulation.[39] An order reciting a motion to strike the cause from the calendar because of pendency of another action in the federal court on the same issues will not show that jurisdiction had been taken by the latter court where the files and record merely recite an answer raising the pendency of the prior action and that a motion to strike the cause was made on the same ground at trial but do not show that any proof was taken on the answer or any reply had or the answer admitted.[40] All reasonable presumptions will be indulged in favor of the jurisdiction[41] of a court of superior general jurisdiction.[42] The manner in which a special judge was secured to try a cause cannot be presumed to affect his jurisdiction where the record does not disclose it and it appears that no objection was taken to his action.[43] Where the record shows substitution of his personal representative on the death of a party plaintiff, it will be presumed that the appointment was made by a court of competent jurisdiction, and that the order of substitution was regular.[44]

Facts conferring appellate jurisdiction should appear in the record.[45] Where it appears that an appeal to the circuit from the justice court was not perfected within six days, but it is not shown that the appeal was taken from the justice during term time, it will be presumed on appeal to the appellate court that since the circuit court retained jurisdiction, the appeal was not taken during term time.[46]

33. Boone Hdw. Co. v. Lee (Iowa) 92 N. W. 69.

34. Hughes v. Henderson, 95 Mo. App. 312; Cornelius v. Ferguson (S. D.) 91 N. W. 460.

35. Littlefield v. Gray, 96 Me. 422. And see "Harmless Error" for presumptions as to the effect of error.

36. Meyer v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 95 Mo. App. 721. A case transferred down is presumed to be within the lower court's jurisdiction—Frank Bird Trf. Co. v. Krug (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 309. Presumption on a silent record favors jurisdictional facts though not in complaint—Whittenberger v. Bower, 158 Ind. 673. Presumption will not aid absence of finding of jurisdictional facts—In re Snow, 96 Me. 570.

37. State v. Mack, 26 Nev. 430, 69 Pac. 862.

38. Duncan v. Thomas (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 310.

39. Ashland v. Whitcomb, 114 Wis. 99.

40. The answer and motion were put in issue without a reply under Rev. St. Wis. 1898, § 2667—Ashland v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co., 114 Wis. 104.

41. If the record fails to disclose any error in the jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties or power of court to enter the judgment, it will be presumed regular in every respect—Carnahan v. Connolly (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 836. It will be presumed in favor of the correctness of a judgment appealed from the probate court, that that court had jurisdiction for appointment of an administrator de bonis non and not that the jurisdiction still remained in the chancery court, though it appears that former administration was in the latter court—Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646.

42. Tapana v. Shaffray (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 119; Von Hermann v. Berry, 102 Ill. App. 658; Stewart v. Rosengren (Neb.) 92 N. W. 586; Holland v. Cunliff (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 737.

43. Nickerson v. Leader Mercantile Co., 90 Mo. App. 336.

44. Under Rev. St. Utah, § 2920, providing for revival of an action on death of a party—Warren v. Robison (Utah) 70 Pac. 989.

45. Findings below of the amount will control if there be no allegations or evidence in the record—Schreiner v. Emel, 26 Wash. 555, 67 Pac. 228.

In Illinois the pleadings may be examined to determine the amount involved in ex contractu actions only when there was no trial of fact; otherwise the supreme court decides solely on the evidence preserved in the record (1 Starr & C. 1896, c. 37, par. 28)—Pick v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 192 Ill. 157; Murray Iron W'ks v. De Kalb Elec. Co., 200 Ill. 136.

46. Hadley v. Bernero (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 451.

Process and pleading.—An amendment of process cannot be reviewed unless the original process and the amendment are in the record.[47] Sufficiency of a complaint cannot be reviewed unless all the pleadings are in the record.[48] The sufficiency of a bill of particulars cannot be determined in the absence of an inventory referred to.[49] The judgment overruling a demurrer must be in the record.[50] An admission of allegations is not presumed,[51] but where pleadings in a suit for taxes state that tax bills are filed therewith, which is not denied, it must be presumed on appeal that they were filed.[52] If the fact does not appear, it will not be presumed that titles were put in issue.[53] Issue will be presumed to have been taken on pleas to which objection had been entered, but not urged, and on which the case was submitted for final decree.[54] Where facts established by a verdict are not within issues made by the pleadings, it will be presumed, in the absence of statements in the record and settled case or bill of exceptions, that they were litigated by consent, so that the sufficiency of the pleadings will not be reviewed.[55] It may be supposed that a proper amendment of a petition was made to conform to proof.[56] Rulings on matters of process will be presumed correct.[57] If it does not appear otherwise, it will be presumed that a mother had notice of the appointment of a third person as guardian for her children.[58] Pleadings which have been treated by the trial court as filed will be so treated though not marked by the clerk.[59] An amended petition, filed and acted upon, will be presumed, nothing appearing to the contrary, to have been filed with the permission of the court.[60] It will be presumed that a motion for leave to amend which was denied was decided in the court's discretion and not because the court had no power to allow it.[61] It must be assumed that leave to plead was obtained on appeal from an order sustaining a demurrer to partial defenses, since the court can only pass on the sufficiency of partial defenses.[62] Where after three actions brought by a city were consolidated an order was entered overruling demurrers to the petition, the order will be regarded on appeal as made in all the consolidated actions.[63] A presumption that leave to amend an answer was refused as a matter of discretion when the order is silent as to ground is rebutted by a statement of the judge in the case on appeal that the ground was the insufficiency of the amendment offered.[64] Where an answer denying authority to sign a corporate note, in a suit thereon, is said in the 47. Saussay v. Lemp Brew. Co. (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1048.

48. Gerspach v. Barhyte (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1057.

49. Handy v. Powers, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 618.

50. A record recital being insufficient—Randall v. Wadsworth, 130 Ala. 633; Speer v. Crowder (Ala.) 32 So. 658.

51. If return to a mandamus is not in record, allegation of the petition will not be deemed to have been admitted—United States v. Hitchcock, 19 App. D. C. 347. A finding, that an affidavit was not seasonably filed in order to make allegations by way of replication or supplement conclusive unless denied by counter affidavit, will be sustained upon a silent record—In re Kunkle's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 200.

52. Woolley v. Louisville, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1357.

53. In partition—Sauer v. Schenck (Ind.) 64 N. E. 84.

54. Adair v. Feder, 133 Ala. 620.

55. Peach v. Reed, 87 Minn. 375.

56. Under 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & Sts. § 6535—Richardson v. Moore, 30 Wash. 406, 71 Pac. 18.

57. Refusal to quash service of summons will be held to be on sufficient evidence where the evidence on the motion was not in the bill of exceptions—Haskell v. Dutton (Neb.) 91 N. W. 395.

58. Beardsley v. Thomas (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 411.

59. Jolliffe v. Maxwell (Neb.) 91 N. W. 563.

A recital that a paper was filed presupposes that it was delivered to the officer and served on him—Jarvis v. Chase Company (Neb.) 89 N. W. 624.

60. Reeves v. Pierce, 64 Kan. 502, 67 Pac. 1108.

61. Kelly v. New Haven Steamboat Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 261.

62. Gabay v. Doane, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 413.

63. Woolley v. Louisville, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1357.

64. Ayers v. Makely, 131 N. C. 60.

65. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 618.

abstract to have been duly verified without setting out the verification, the latter will be presumed sufficient.[65]

Motions and affidavits.—To review the ruling on a motion, the record must show the motion itself,[66] the grounds thereof,[67] the affidavits on which motion is based,[68] and the ruling thereon.[69] Where there is a difference in the date of an affidavit mentioned in the bill of exceptions and the one filed in the transcript, it cannot be presumed that the one filed was the one read on the hearing.[70]

Proceedings at trial in general.—Improper remarks of counsel,[71] or of court,[72] questions asked of a juror,[73] a demand for a jury trial,[74] must appear in the record to review alleged error therein. The reasons for a request to peremptorily challenge after a juror has been accepted must appear.[75] The absence of the judge from the room during argument of counsel will be presumed to have been with consent of the parties and will not alone be ground for reversal.[76] Defendant will be presumed to have consented to the manner of trial and to the waiver of findings on a certain equitable defense offered, where it does not appear by the bill of exceptions that he requested the trial of such defense or that findings were refused thereon.[77] Where it appears that a juror was excused and another appointed, it must be presumed that the jury box was exhausted.[78] It will be presumed that the members of the jury board were competent though it is alleged that one of the three was incompetent where it is not shown that the other two members were disqualified.[79]

Admission or exclusion of evidence.—Rulings on the admissibility of evidence cannot be reviewed unless the record shows the evidence admitted,[80] or excluded.[81] A ruling on evidence will not be considered unless there is a showing as to its 66. Hamilton v. Maxwell, 133 Ala. 233; Chicago & S. E. R. Co. v. Woodard (Ind.) 65 N. E. 577; Craggs v. Bohart (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 931; Muncie Gas Co. v. Muncie (Ind.) 66 N. E. 436. To strike out petition—Corrigan v. Kansas City, 93 Mo. 173. To review denial of motion for change of venue because not filed in time, the day when the cause was set for trial must appear—Goodwin v. Bentley (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 496.

67. Terrill v. Tillison (Vt.) 54 Atl. 187. The record or transcript must show errors urged on motion for a new trial—Gregory v. Leavitt (Neb.) 89 N. W. 764; Gandy v. Cummins (Neb.) 89 N. W. 777.

68. Hamilton v. Maxwell, 133 Ala. 233; Kinney v. Bittinger (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1005. Judgment collaterally attacked for want of jurisdiction—Haupt v. Simington, 27 Mont. 480, 71 Pac. 672.

69. Striking out of plea—Moore v. Crosthwait, 135 Ala. 272; Chicago & S. E. R. Co. v. Woodard (Ind.) 65 N. E. 577; Wickes v. Pulfrey (Mich.) 91 N. W. 633; Kelly v. Morris, 101 Ill. App. 102. But where a new trial was granted, the court will examine the record to see if any ground therefor existed, the ground not being stated—Bernier v. Anderson (Idaho) 70 Pac. 1027. Counter affidavits presumed to have been ignored or not objected to where order on the motion does not refer to them—People v. Shea, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 237.

70. San Diego Sav. Bank v. Goodsell, 137 Cal. 420, 70 Pac. 229.

71. Groh's Sons v. Groh, 114 N. Y. 438; Shoemaker v. Bryant Mill Co., 27 Wash. 637, 68 Pac. 380; Warren v. Nash (Ky.) 67 S. W. 274. In Warren v. Nash, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 479, it was held that affidavits on motion for new trial sufficiently showed the error—Murphy v. Hopper, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 606; Guckavan v. Lehigh Traction Co., 203 Pa. 521.

72. Reamer v. Morrison Exp. Co., 93 Mo. App. 501.

73. It was claimed that false answers had been made—Elgin v. Nofs, 103 Ill. App. 11.

74. Southern R. Co. v. Beach (Ga.) 43 S. E. 413.

75. Allen v. State, 70 Ark. 22, 337.

76. Gorham v. Sioux City S. Y. Co. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 698.

77. Horwege v. Sage, 137 Cal. 539, 70 Pac. 621.

78. Under Acts Tenn. 1901, c. 124, §§ 4, 5, 8, requiring a substitute juror to be drawn from the box unless exhausted—Turner v. State (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 774.

79. Turner v. State (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 774.

80. Wells, etc., Co. v. Williams (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314; Brown v. Woodward (Conn.) 53 Atl. 112; Dubois v. Decker (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 267; Freeman, etc., News Co. v. Mencken, 115 Ga. 1017; State v. Thompson, 91 Mo. App. 329. A finding that a writing did not express the intent of the parties is not sufficient to show that oral evidence was admitted to contradict it—Wallace v. Hendee (N. J. Sup.) 53 Atl. 694.

81. Grand Lodge v. Bunkers, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 487; Hunt v. Northwestern Mortg. Trust Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 23; Dresser v. Canadian Pac. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 281; Supreme Lodge v. Robbins, 70 Ark. 364; Crane v. Blackman, 100 Ill. App. 565; Blackwell v. Mayfield (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 659; O'Malley v. Com., 182 Mass. 196; Emory Mfg. Co. v. Rood, 182 Mass. 166; Carwile v. Carwile, 131 Ala. 603; Stevens v. Walton (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 834.

relevancy,[82] and accordingly, the pleadings must be in the record.[83] Where a question does not clearly disclose the expected answer, an offer of proof must be made,[84] and the record must show such offer.[85] Where, on a trial of mental capacity, one of the parties was refused permission to introduce certain witnesses, it will not be presumed, on appeal from an order finding mental capacity restored, that such witnesses would have given evidence against the conclusion.[86] Exclusion of answers to certain questions cannot be held error unless the answers are set out in the bill of exceptions and error affirmatively appears.[87] Rulings as to the admissibility of evidence will be presumed to have been correct in the absence of contrary showing.[88] It will be presumed that a collateral attack on a judgment for want of jurisdiction of the person made in the court below was tried there by inspection of the judgment roll alone.[89]

Sufficiency of evidence.—If the sufficiency of the evidence is questioned, all the evidence must be presented.[90] The chancery rule is otherwise, appellee being

82. Volusia County Bank v. Bertola (Fla.) 33 So. 448; Taft v. Little, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 74.

83. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Seymour (Fla.) 33 So. 424; Consumers' Ice Co. v. Jennings (Va.) 42 S. E. 879.

84. See Saving Questions for Review.

85. Sesler v. Coal Co., 51 W. Va. 318; Freeman etc., News Co. v. Mencken, 115 Ga. 1017; Anthony Ittner Brick Co. v. Ashby, 198 Ill. 562; Broek v. Bear (Va.) 42 S. E. 307; Colson v. Linn, 101 Ill. App. 194. No offer of further proof is necessary where the exclusion was based on an erroneous view of the pleadings—Maugh v. Hornbeck (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 153.

86. In re Lovern's Estate, 137 Cal. 680, 70 Pac. 783.

87. Carwile v. Carwile, 131 Ala. 603.

88. If the bill of exceptions fails to show when certain evidence was offered or for what purpose or the reason of objections thereto, an error therein will not be presumed—Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704. Where it appears from the record that testimony in the bill of exceptions in another case was read on the trial, the appeal court will presume that the bill was properly authenticated and correctly read—Woodworth v. Gorsline (Colo.) 69 Pac. 705. Exclusion of a printed circular which it appears was used simply to advertise defendant's business without setting forth its contents in an action for services will be presumed to have been correct—Stevens v. Walton (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 834. Where the reason for the exclusion of an answer is not given and it appears that the party objecting had the benefit of the testimony given, the supreme court cannot say that the exclusion was not because of mere repetition—Harp v. Harp, 136 Cal. 421, 69 Pac. 28. Admission of secondary evidence of corporate records—Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Dilworth, 95 Tex. 327.

89. Haupt v. Simington, 27 Mont. 480, 71 Pac. 672.

90. People's Sav. Bank v. Gordon (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 470; Speirs Fish Co. v. Robbins, 182 Mass. 128; Woodcock v. Reilly (S. D.) 92 N. W. 10; Mankameyer v. Egelhoff, 93 Mo. App. 183; Henderson v. Foster, 182 Mass. 447; Johnson v. Gehbauer (Ind.) 64 N. E. 855; State v. Lusk, 93 Mo. App. 680; Richardson v. Pennington (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 838; Dixon v. Thomas, 91 Mo. App. 364; Heller v. Beal, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 540; Leavitt v. Bolton, 102 Ill. App. 582; Leicher v. Keeney (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 145; Reder v. Bellemore (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1065; Peach v. Reed, 87 Minn. 375; Hopper v. Mather, 104 Ill. App. 309; Gay v. Havermale, 30 Wash. 622, 71 Pac. 190; Dauel v. Arnold, 103 Ill. App. 298; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Collinsworth (Fla.) 33 So. 513; Chicago Horseshoe Co. v. Gostlin (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 514. By evidentiary bill of exceptions and properly abstracted—Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Seymour (Fla.) 33 So. 424; Younglove v. Knox (Fla.) 33 So. 427. Unless the special findings are inconsistent with any tenable theory under the issues—Kansas City L. R. Co. v. Frey (Kan.) 71 Pac. 525; American Tin Plate Co. v. Williams (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 304; Uhlefelder v. Mt. Vernon, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 349; Spargur v. Prentiss (Neb.) 92 N. W. 300; Allen v. Henn, 197 Ill. 486; Metzger v. Morley, 99 Ill. App. 280; Rinehardt v. Reifers, 158 Ind. 675; Rush v. Landers, 107 La. 549; Fields v. Daisy Min. Co., 25 Utah, 76; United States Mortg. Co. v. Marquam, 41 Or. 391, 69 Pac. 37, 41; Pinkard v. Willis (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 135; Tarrant County v. Reid (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S W. 785; Allen v. Henn, 197 Ill. 486; Berry v. Rood, 168 Mo. 316; Thacker Mfg. Co. v. Mallory, 27 Wash. 670, 68 Pac. 199. By abstract—Gerspach v. Barhyte (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1057; Dennis v. Spence, 80 Miss. 396; Morton v. Clark, 181 Mass. 134; Leonard v. Harkleroad (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 127; Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli Min. Co., 29 Colo. 377, 68 Pac. 286; Harris County v. Brady, 115 Ga. 767; Lange v. Heyer, 195 Ill. 420; Aldag v. Ott, 28 Ind. App. 542; Stadel v. Aikins, 65 Kan. 82, 68 Pac. 1088; Rumney v. Detroit, etc., Cattle Co. (Mich.) 89 N. W. 573; Williams v. Stroub, 168 Mo. 346; Clark v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 93 Mo. App. 456; Edwards v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 36; Rutledge v. Tarr, 95 Mo. App. 265; Dittman Shoe Co. v. Graff (Neb.) 91 N. W. 188. Where all the evidence relating to the particular question on which a nonsuit was ordered is preserved it is sufficient—Goodale Lbr. Co. v. Shaw, 41 Or. 544, 69 Pac. 546. Case heard on agreed statement and certain papers, and only agreed statement included in record—Scott v. Cox (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 required to show in the record evidence sustaining the decree.[91] The record must affirmatively show that it contains all the evidence,[92] and a statement that the record contains all that is "necessary to a full presentation of the errors complained of" is not sufficient,[93] nor is a statement that the "substance" is included,[94] nor that the record contains all the "testimony."[95] It has been held that the showing that all evidence is included need not be express but only by a fair implication,[96] and where it appears on the face of the bill that its statement that all evidence is included is incorrect, the evidence cannot be reviewed.[97] A bill stating evidence and that thereupon both parties rested shows that it contains all the evidence.[98] In Michigan there must be findings of fact to authorize a review of the evidence.[99] Existence of a stipulated fact will be referred to the time of commencing suit rather than the time of trial.[1] A plaintiff appellee must see that the record sustains his judgment by including material facts.[2]

Instructions.—The instructions given or refused must appear properly in the record.[3] The giving or refusal of instructions cannot be reviewed unless the record contains the entire charge,[4] the evidence to which they relate,[5] the issues to which they relate;[6] and this applies particularly to instructions withdrawing part or all of the issues,[7] and the record must show that it contains the entire charge.[8] Modification of charges asked must be shown if complained of.[9]

S. W. 802. All evidence in condemnation proceedings must be in record to review it—Benton Harbor T. R. Co. v. King (Mich.) 91 N. W. 641; In re Rostraver Road, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 195. In absence of evidence from record order of court confirming condemnation award over exceptions to the verdict will be favored by presumption—Macfarland v. Byrnes, 19 App. D. C. 531.

91. Jenkinson v. Koester, 86 Minn. 155; Owen v. Palmour, 115 Ga. 683; Home Sav. Ass'n v. Noblesville Church (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 478; Glos v. Cratty, 196 Ill. 193.

92. United States v. Copper Queen Min. Co., 185 U. S. 495; Randall v. Wadsworth, 130 Ala. 633; Miller v. Dailey, 136 Cal. 212, 68 Pac. 1029; Power v. Stocking, 26 Mont. 478; 68 Pac. 857; Ramsey v. Burns, 27 Mont. 154, 69 Pac. 711; Adkins v. Monmouth, 41 Or. 266, 68 Pac. 737; Olson v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 24 Utah, 460, 68 Pac. 148; Young v. Hatch (Colo.) 70 Pac. 693; Craggs v. Bohart (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 931. There being no presumption that the record contains all the evidence—Watkins v. La Mar, 10 Kan. App. 226, 69 Pac. 730. But see Bush v. Tecumseh Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 236.

93. Lange v. Heyer, 195 Ill. 420.

94. Hancock v. Shockman (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 826.

95. Craggs v. Bohart (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 931.

96. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Thiebaud (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 918.

97. Greenfield v. Johnson (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 542.

98. Mullin v. Johnson, 98 Ill. App. 621.

99. Wickes v. Pulfrey (Mich.) 91 N. W. 633.

1. Glos v. Patterson, 195 Ill. 530.

2. O'Connall v. Thompson etc., Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 47.

3. Andrysiak v. Satkowski (Ind.) 63 N. E. 854, 65 N. E. 286; McCord v. Southern R. Co., 130 N. C. 491; Green v. Tate (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 486.

4. Instructions refused—Garr v. Cranney (Utah) 70 Pac. 853; Beavers v. Bowen, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 882; Hancock v. Shockman (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 826; Freeman, etc., News Co. v. Mencken, 115 Ga. 1017; Craggs v. Bohart (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 931; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Tynan (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 288; Younglove v. Knox (Fla.) 33 So. 427. Instructions given—Rice v. Williams (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 433; Ball v. Marquis (Iowa) 92 N. W. 691; Crossen v. Grandy (Or.) 70 Pac. 906; Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Seymour (Fla.) 33 So. 424; Meyer v. Standard Tel. Co. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 720; Lord v. Guyot (Colo.) 70 Pac. 683; Timmonds v. Twomey (Ind.) 66 N. E. 446; Godfrey v. Hutchinson Grocer Co. (Okl.) 71 Pac. 627; Lesser Cotton Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 133.

5. Instructions refused—Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Seymour (Fla.) 33 So. 424; Younglove v. Knox (Fla.) 33 So. 427; Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704; Mexican Cent. R. Co. v. Wilder (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 708; Sherwin v. Rutland R. Co., 74 Vt. 1. Instructions given—Rice v. Williams (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 433; Ball v. Marquis (Iowa) 92 N. W. 691; Crossen v. Grandy (Or.) 70 Pac. 906; Meyer v. Standard Tel. Co. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 720; Lord v. Guyot (Colo.) 70 Pac. 683; Timmonds v. Twomey (Ind.) 66 N. E. 446; Lesser Cotton Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 133. But it is otherwise where the instructions could not have been good under any state of the evidence—Downing v. State (Wyo.) 69 Pac. 264.

6. Hutchins v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 473.

7. Deering & Co. v. Hannah, 93 Mo. App. 618; Advance Thresher Co. v. Esteb, 41 Or. 469, 69 Pac. 447. Plaintiff had dismissed two counts and filed another and it did not appear what change if any was thereby made. It was objected that the instructions did not call attention to the dismissal of the two counts—Malott v. Hood, 201 Ill. 202.

An exception to an instruction must show prejudice to the party making it in order to show error in the instruction.[10] If an appellant alleges error in the refusal of an instruction that he had complied with his contract, in an action to enforce it, his abstract must show such compliance.[11] Instructions not given in the bill of exceptions will be presumed to have been properly given or refused,[12] but it cannot be presumed that the judge below performed his duty or that the instructions in the record constitute all that were given or refused, where they were neither signed by the judge nor indorsed.[13] It will be presumed that sufficient instructions were given for proper submission of a question.[14] If it can be presumed consistently with the statement in the record of the effect of instructions offered in evidence, where only the general effect is given, it will be presumed that they supported the conclusions of the court.[15] Where no instructions appeared to have been given or refused, it must be presumed that the court gave the correct rule for the measure of damages.[16] It will not be presumed that the attention of the court was not called to the omission of a word from an instruction by mistake, but rather that errors in instructions as to which exceptions are taken were pointed out to the court by counsel.[17] An exception for "defendant" will be presumed to have been taken for the defendant which the attorney represented, where it appears that he was authorized only to act for one of two defendants.[18] Where there are exceptions to instructions in the transcript, after the charge and before the record of submission to the jury and entry of the verdict, with an entry which shows them to have been filed with the instructions, and a certificate by the clerk that they are a part of the record, the same presumption will obtain as when notation is made by counsel on the written charges,[19] unless necessity is shown for an instruction that it was properly refused.[20]

Verdict or findings and judgment.—Necessary findings must be made and must appear.[21] Propositions which the court below of its own motion held to be law are of the record though not requested and will be reviewed like instructions given by the court on its own motion.[22] If no propositions of law are submitted to the court below, it will be presumed that all questions of law arising are properly decided.[23] The conclusions of law cannot be reviewed when the findings of fact are not in the record.[24] The relevancy of questions submitted to the jury cannot be reviewed in the absence of the evidence,[25] nor can the amount of the verdict.[26] A general verdict, together with answers to specific questions, though the latter are not sufficiently complete to authorize a judgment, will be presumed to cover all facts necessary to a judgment on the special findings, where no inconsistency is shown between the general verdict and the special findings.[27] It will be presumed that the jury followed the instructions of the court.[28] The authority of the judge will

8. Dubois v. Decker (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 267; Danville v. Schultz, 99 Ill. App. 287; Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471. But it need not directly appear that no other instructions were given—Warren v. Nash, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 479.

9. Grand Lodge v. Bunkers, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. 487.

10. Copeland v. Hewett, 96 Me. 525.

11. Way v. Miller, 91 Mo. App. 53.

12. Corey v. Havener, 182 Mass. 250.

13. Under Code, Colo. § 187. subds. 6, 7—Lord v. Guyot (Colo.) 70 Pac. 683.

14. Lee v. Tarplin (Mass.) 66 N. E. 431.

15. Holland v. Cunliff (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 737.

16. Ottofy v. Keyes, 91 Mo. App. 146.

17. Carleton Min. Co. v. Ryan, 29 Colo. 401, 68 Pac. 279.

18. Bowen v. O'Hair, 29 Ind. App. 466.

19. Lincoln v. Sager (Neb.) 89 N. W. 617.

20. Glanz v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 575.

21. Necessary findings to support decision not presumed though recited by decree—In re Sherwood's Estate, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 342.

22. London G. & A. Co. v. Mosness, 98 Ill. App. 651.

23. Hercules C. & M. Co. v. Frazer, 102 Ill. App. 307.

24. Lillard v. Mather, 28 Ind. App. 583.

25. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Scaggs, 64 Kan. 561, 67 Pac. 1103.

26. Huff v. Parker (Miss.) 31 So. 833.

27. Eklund v. Martin, 87 Minn. 441.

28. Rosser v. Western Union Tel. Co., 130 N. C. 251. Where in an action brought be presumed to have been given to the act of the clerk in making a record of the refiling of the finding.[29] It will be presumed that a default entered by the court on the same day on which defendant filed a general demurrer was entered before the filing of the demurrer where it does not appear that the demurrer was on file at time of entry.[30] A decree of dismissal on general demurrer will be presumed to have been upon the merits and not for want of jurisdiction unless it appears otherwise from the decree.[31]

F. Rulings peculiar to province of trial court. 1. Discretionary rulings in general; interlocutory and provisional orders.—The discretion of the lower court is not an unlimited power, and its rulings and judgments during the progress of the cause are open to review,[32] but discretionary acts and rulings will never be disturbed unless abuse of the discretion is shown.[33] The rule applies to the refusal of a presiding judge to remove a proceeding for mandamus to a court of equity,[34] and grant or refusal of a change of venue,[35] and to allowance or refusal of an order for examination of a party or corporate officer to obtain facts on which to found an action against a corporation,[36] and if it does not appear that irreparable injury will result, to an order for the production of books and papers,[37] and the reference of a case where there is a conflict in the evidence as to whether the issue involves the examination of an account,[38] and the overruling of a motion to recommit a referee's report.[39] The granting or denial of a motion for a continuance[40] or an ancillary order appointing a receiver,[41] or grant or refusal of a temporary injunction,[42] or the vacation or dissolution of a preliminary injunction[43] and a ruling on an application for additional temporary alimony,[44] will not be reviewed except where clear abuse of discretion is shown. After final judgment, the discretion of the trial court in assuming jurisdiction of an action by the public administrator for the on two counts, one of the counts was abandoned and the jury disregarded the instruction as to the amount of verdict to be found for plaintiff, it cannot be presumed that the verdict was based on the count which had been abandoned contrary to the instructions of the court—McClung v. Moore, 136 Cal. 181, 71 Pac. 88.

29. Verzier v. Conrard, 75 Conn. 1.

30. Grant v. Commercial Nat. Bank (Neb.) 93 N. W. 185.

31. Bradford Belting Co. v. Kisinger-Ison Co., 113 Fed. 811, 51 C. C. A. 483.

32. Cabanne v. Macadaras, 91 Mo. App. 70.

33. Discretion in relieving party from effects of order or other proceeding because of excusable default—Moore v. Thompson, 138 Cal. 28, 70 Pac. 930; Hollister v. Donahoe (S. D.) 92 N. W. 12.

34. Under Act 1896, c. 229, providing for removal of causes from courts of law to equity in the discretion of the judge presiding—Summerson v. Schilling, 94 Md. 581.

35. Doll v. Stewart (Colo.) 70 Pac. 226; Heinl v. Terre Haute (Ind.) 66 N. E. 450. After two trials and the consideration of counter-affidavits on the motion by the trial court—Faivre v. Manderschied (Iowa) 90 N. W. 76.

36. The supreme court will not interfere on the ground that his answers may tend to incriminate him, as that objection may be made below—In re Porter Screen Mfg. Co. (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 329.

37. Succession of Marks, 108 La. 494.

38. Salem Traction Co. v. Anson, 41 Or. 562, 67 Pac. 1015; 69 Pac. 675.

39. Jeffers v. Pease, 74 Vt. 215.

40. Hannum v. Hill, 52 W. Va. 166; Miles v. Ballantine (Neb.) 93 N. W. 705; Scott v. Boyd (Va.) 42 S. E. 915. On appeal from a final decree—United States v. Rio Grande Irr. Co., 184 U. S. 416; Empire Coal Co. v. Hull Coal Co., 51 W. Va. 474. Where no objections have been filed—Ida Co. Sav. Bank v. Seidensticker (Iowa) 92 N. W. 862.

41. St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. Co. v. Vandalia, 103 Ill. App. 363.

42. Stearns-Roger Mfg. Co. v. Brown, 114 Fed. 939, 52 C. C. A. 559. Temporary injunction in patent case on giving bond will stand if infringement cannot be determined until final hearing—Stearns-Rogers Mfg. Co. v. Brown (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 939. In ancillary suit followed by a similar order of another court in the principal case—United States Gramophone Co. v. Seaman, 113 Fed. 745, 51 C. C. A. 419.

43. Dickson v. Dows (N. D.) 92 N. W. 797. Vacating temporary injunction restraining the laying of a railroad on a street during the pendency of an action to determine rights to the street—Rochester & E. R. R. Co. v. Monroe County Elec. Belt Line Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 38. Applied for on bill, answer and affidavits—Baya v. Lake City (Fla.) 33 So. 400. Where ex parte proofs on hearing of a motion for preliminary injunction are conflicting—Chickering v. Chickering (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 69.

44. Motley v. Motley, 97 Mo. App. 473.

death of a nonresident killed in a foreign state will not be disturbed.[45] Whether an injunction shall be made perpetual leaving defendant to another remedy or whether it shall be made on terms adjusting the rights of the parties is discretionary and will not be reviewed.[46] Where it appears that a preliminary restraining order was granted before answer filed and that the opposition to the motion was made on affidavits only, the discretion of the court will not be disturbed by a review of the merits of the case, where the bill shows a right to preliminary relief.[47] On the question whether discretion was abused in granting an injunctional order, the protection afforded defendant will be considered.[48] An award of alimony,[49] or of a share of the community property to a divorced person when evidently the result of a proper discretion, will be sustained.[50]

Dismissal and nonsuit.—Ruling on an application for dismissal,[51] without prejudice for failure of proof,[52] will not be reviewed, but will be presumed to have been proper where neither the record nor the statement of facts filed show the grounds thereof.[53] All facts warranted by the evidence must be presumed as having been settled for plaintiff, where the verdict was directed for him on a certain part of the claim and dismissed as to other items without evidence.[54] Failure of the court to dismiss on its own motion an action to enforce a contract against public policy may be reviewed, since the determination of the question of public policy is not discretionary, but involves a decision of law.[55] Allegations of fact are taken as true on appeal from dismissal on complaint and opening,[56] or review of a nonsuit,[57] and on appeal from a judgment dismissing an action for want of evidence plaintiff is entitled to the most favorable inferences that may be drawn from the evidence,[58] and will be entitled to have disputed facts treated as found in his favor.[59]

Orders relating to pleadings.—Unless a gross abuse of discretion is shown, the granting or refusal of leave to file an amended and supplemental bill,[60] or a supplemental answer,[61] denial of a motion to strike a paragraph from a complaint as surplusage,[62] refusal of the lower court after reversal to allow an amendment by plaintiff pending the rendition of a judgment following the mandate,[63] refusal of leave to further plead after one amendment after successful demurrer,[64] to allow the filing of a supplemental answer which does not set forth facts constituting, if true, a bar to the action,[65] to permit defendant an amendment to his answer to a bill at the hearing,[66] or allowance of answer or reply or other act after the time limited,[67] or during the trial, will not be reviewed.[68] The rule must be otherwise

45. Hoes v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 363.
46. Peck v. Schenectady R. Co., 170 N. Y. 298.
47. Whitson v. Columbia Phonograph Co., 18 App. D. C. 565.
48. Amount of bond and privilege of dissolving on giving counter security—American Co. v. Cimiotti Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 838.
49. Breedlove v. Breedlove, 27 Ind. App. 560.
50. Gorman v. Gorman, 134 Cal. 378, 66 Pac. 313.
51. Bee Building Co. v. Dalton (Neb.) 93 N. W. 930; Friedrich v. Fergen, 15 S. D. 541.
52. Especially where none of the evidence appears in the record—Ebner v. Zimmerly (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 818.
53. Johnson v. Spokane, 29 Wash. 730, 70 Pac. 122.
54. Becker v. New York, 170 N. Y. 219.
55. Cullison v. Downing (Or.) 71 Pac. 70.
56. Montgomery v. Boyd, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 64.
57. Veazey v. Allen, 173 N. Y. 359.
58. Dismissal of action for negligence in placing an obstruction in street because of insufficient evidence to connect the defendant with the act—Parkes v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 844.
59. Whitaker v. Staten Island Midland R. Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 468.
60. Berliner Gramophone Co. v. Seaman, 113 Fed. 750, 51 C. C. A. 440; Berliner Gramophone Co. v. Same (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 806.
61. Balk v. Harris, 130 N. C. 381.
62. Marx v. Miller, 134 Ala. 347.
63. Kelly v. New Haven Steamboat Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 261.
64. Under Mills' Ann. Code, §§ 73, 75—King v. Mecklenburg (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 984.
65. Balk v. Harris, 130 N. C. 381.
66. Tufts v. Waxman, 181 Mass. 120.
67. Under Code, § 274—White v. Lokey, 131 N. C. 72; Best v. British, etc., Mortg. Co., 131 N. C. 70.
68. Hubenka v. Vach (Neb.) 89 N. W. 789.

if the facts stated in the supplemental answer, if true, would constitute a bar to the action.[69] Refusal to allow a complaint to be amended, if on erroneous grounds, will be reviewed though generally such acts are discretionary.[70]

Rulings relating to trial or evidence.—Rulings relating to the order and sequence of proofs offered,[71] the admission of evidence of a witness who has disobeyed an order for exclusion of witnesses,[72] the allowance of an interpreter for witness,[73] the determination by the court as to what transactions are properly considered by the jury as connected with the matter in dispute,[74] the exclusion of remote evidence,[75] the decision as to the qualifications of a witness offered as an expert,[76] the ruling on the right to cross-examine persons whose affidavits were offered,[77] the latitude allowed on cross-examination of a witness,[78] are all matters of discretion for the lower court. Though the suspension or enforcement of the rule limiting cross-examinations to evidence in chief to the order in which the evidence is introduced is discretionary, the judgment may be reversed on appeal for the action of the lower court in this regard, that serious injury may not result therefrom to the rights of a party.[79]

The trial of cases outside of their regular order by direction of the court will be presumed to have been for sufficient cause in the absence of a contrary showing.[80] The control of the argument of counsel,[81] or the rebuke for improper argument,[82] or the allowance of a motion to withdraw a juror because of improper remarks of counsel in summing up,[83] the action of the court regarding improper comment by an attorney during cross-examination,[84] and the limit of time for argument,[85] are all discretionary matters and will not be reviewed unless the restrictions are unjust.

Refusal to direct a verdict will not be disturbed.[86] The evidence of the moving party only will be considered, in so far as it supports the case of the other party, in determining the correctness of a directed verdict.[87] Each party will be given the benefit of all inferences to be drawn from the evidence, where all the evidence

69. Balk v. Harris, 130 N. C. 381.

70. Martin v. Bank of Fayetteville, 131 N. C. 121.

71. The refusal of the trial court to allow defendant to introduce proofs of death made by plaintiff in an action on a life policy as claimed in connection with plaintiff's cross-examination—Hennessy v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 74 Conn. 699. The admission of testimony on re-examination of a witness which should have been introduced on his examination in chief—Williams v. Stroub, 166 Mo. 346. The admission of further evidence after the closing argument and submission of the case—Stivers v. Conklin, 103 Ill. App. 288. Refusal to reopen issues on appeal from highway proceedings to circuit court is discretionary—Fifer v. Ritter (Ind.) 54 N. E. 463. The allowance of testimony out of time—Ulysses Elgin Butter Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 384.

72. Murray v. Allerton (Neb.) 91 N. W. 518.

73. Braunowski v. National Box Co., 104 Ill. App. 338.

74. Buck v. Hogeboom (Neb.) 90 N. W. 835.

75. Spalding v. New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co., 71 N. H. 441.

76. Watriss v. Trendall, 74 Vt. 54.

77. For injunction—Union Terminal Co. v. Wilmar & S. F. R. Co., 116 Iowa, 392.

78. Yingling v. Redwine (Okl.) 69 Pac. 519.

79. O'Connell v. Pennsylvania Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 989.

80. Under Rev. St. Ill. c. 110, § 17, allowing cases to be tried out of their order for sufficient cause—Staunton Coal Co. v. Menk, 99 Ill. App. 254.

81. Sinclair Co. v. Waddill, 99 Ill. App. 334.

82. Obuchon v. Boyd, 92 Mo. App. 412.

83. Cattano v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 173 N. Y. 565.

84. Davis v. Streeter (Vt.) 54 Atl. 185.

85. Schrandt v. Young (Neb.) 89 N. W. 607.

86. Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280; Woodson v. Holmes (Ga.) 43 S. E. 467. Though Civ. Code Ga. § 5331, gives the trial judge power to direct a verdict—Owen v. Palmour, 115 Ga. 683. Refusal below to direct a verdict for defendant because of improbability of plaintiff's testimony will not be ground for reversal where the matter properly belongs to the jury as concerning the credibility of a witness and can be reviewed only by the court below on motion for a new trial—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Gardner, 114 Fed. 186, 52 C. C. C. A. 142. The refusal to direct a verdict for defendant at the close of all the evidence will not be reviewed to determine the weight of the evidence, but only whether there was any evidence tending to support plaintiff's claims—Chicago City R. Co. v. Loomis, 201 Ill. 118.

87. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Stebbins, 15 S. D. 280.

offered by one was rejected by the court and a verdict directed for the other.[88] The allowance of a demurrer to the evidence may be reviewed on writ of error.[89]

Grant of new trial or rehearing or settlement of exceptions.—An order granting or refusing a new trial will not be reviewed unless the discretion of the court has been abused,[90] where there is a substantial conflict in the evidence,[91] or the evidence is partly parol,[92] though the verdict was rendered in the absence of either party,[93] and though the judgment might have been affirmed,[94] and this is especially true on an award of a first new trial where the evidence is conflicting,[95] or where based solely on a question of law,[96] or where the defeated party made no motion for judgment or nonsuit on the trial,[97] or where it does not appear that the verdict was absolutely required by the evidence,[98] and in reviewing such case, the court will only consider the evidence so far as necessary to determine whether the trial court properly exercised its discretion,[99] but the review of an allowance of a new trial cannot be refused merely on the ground that the trial court was in a better position to understand the situation than the appeal court.[1] A finding on motion for a new trial that both parties consented to the presence of exhibits in the jury room is conclusive.[2] A judgment will not be reversed for refusal to grant a new trial on account of excessive damages, unless the evidence shows passion or prejudice on the part of the jury.[3] The grant of a new trial conditioned on payment of costs,[4] or be-

88. Horbach v. Boyd (Neb.) 89 N. W. 644.

89. University of Va. v. Snyder (Va.) 42 S. E. 337.

90. Walker v. Moser (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 230; Chancey v. County Court, 51 W. Va. 252; Baker v. Branan, 115 Ga. 670; Jones v. Spence, 115 Ga. 794; Bevering v. Smith (Iowa) 90 N. W. 840; Ortt v. Leonhardt (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 577; Laclede Power Co. v. Nash-Smith Tea Co., 95 Mo. App. 412; Manzigian v. Boyajian (Mass.) 66 N. E. 413; Hanson v. Diamond Iron Min. Co., 87 Minn. 505; Ward v. Joslin, 186 U. S. 142; Jordan v. Parsons, 115 Ga. 455; Hayward v. Langmaid, 181 Mass. 426; Slattery v. Supreme Tent, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 108; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Hamilton, 135 Ala. 343; Harloe v. Berwick, 138 Cal. xix., 70 Pac. 1060; St. Louis Trust Co. v. Murmann, 90 Mo. App. 555; Merrill v. Brantley, 133 Ala. 537; McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Calta, 86 Minn. 287; Copeland v. Copeland, 64 S. C. 251. On ground of insufficiency of evidence—Burr v. Harty (Conn.) 52 Atl. 724; Lammers v. Butler-Ryan Co. (Minn.) 92 N. W. 523; Vastine v. Rex, 93 Mo. App. 93; State v. Todd, 92 Mo. App. 1; Jangraw v. Mee (Vt.) 54 Atl. 189; Southern R. Co. v. Lollar, 135 Ala. 375. There must be a clear showing of prejudice—Tradewater Coal Co. v. Lee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 215. It is sufficient that there was some evidence supporting the verdict—Atlanta v. Milam, 115 Ga. 15; Haltiwanger v. Columbia, N. & L. R. Co., 64 S. C. 7; Manhattan Oil Co. v. Richardson Lubricating Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 923. Insufficiency of evidence as shown by character thereof and of the witnesses, would justify setting aside a verdict after denial of a new trial for insufficiency of evidence—Cole v. Detroit Elec. R. Co. (Mich.) 92 N. W. 935. Sufficiency of evidence to show that the trial judge exceeded his discretion in overruling a motion for a new trial in a civil case for undue influence on the jury—Hall-Moody Inst. v. Copass, 108 Tenn. 582. Where it appears from the record on denial of defendant's motion for a new trial that plaintiff's evidence does not sustain the theory set up in the declaration—Western & A. R. Co. v. Hunt (Ga.) 42 S. E. 785. Where contributory negligence is plainly shown by evidence in action for personal injuries and no negligence is shown on part of defendant, refusal of his motion for new trial after verdict for plaintiff, will be ground for reversal—Birmingham R., L. & P. Co. v. Owens, 135 Ala. 154. Motion for new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, the facts being contradictory—Culp v. Mulvane (Kan.) 71 Pac. 273; Anderson v. Medbery (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1087; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 226.

91. Sullivan v. Market St. R. Co., 136 Cal. 479, 69 Pac. 143; Campbell v. Great Falls, 27 Mont. 37, 69 Pac. 114; Rand v. Kipp, 27 Mont. 138, 69 Pac. 714.

92. Ottumwa Nat. Bank v. Totten, 94 Mo. App. 596.

93. White v. Hoster Brew. Co., 51 W. Va. 259.

94. Louisville v. Johnson, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 685.

95. Seifert v. Freeman, 115 Ga. 353; Allen v. Lumpkin (Ga.) 43 S. E. 54.

96. Macon Consol. St. R. Co. v. Jones (Ga.) 42 S. E. 468.

97. Ruckman v. Dormond (Or.) 70 Pac. 707; Knox v. Ward, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 801.

98. Cox v. Atkinson, 115 Ga. 723; Fenn v. Maddox, 115 Ga. 795; Thornton v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 116 Ga. 121.

99. Pengilly v. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (N. D.) 91 N. W. 63.

1. Reeder v. Traders' Nat. Bank, 28 Wash. 139, 68 Pac. 461.

2. Walker v. Newton, 9 Detroit Leg. N. 151, 90 N. W. 328.

3. Morton v. Moran, 30 Wash. 362, 70 Pac. 968. Damages for unlawful appropriation of telegraph right of way over plaintiff's lands—Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513.

cause the verdict is against the weight of evidence, without imposing payment of costs as a condition, will not be disturbed where the verdict appears unsupported by the evidence.[5] The grant of a new trial will be sustained for error in directing a verdict where the evidence will warrant recovery on any ground within plaintiff's pleadings,[6] or where it appears that the jury after long deliberation received the impression from the court's instructions that they would not be discharged until they agreed.[7] The reasons given by the lower court in its opinion for granting a new trial will not limit the action of the court of appeal where the order was general,[8] but if the order can be sustained on any ground assigned, it will be affirmed though the trial court specified a particular ground for allowance,[9] or where the order was general and one of the grounds was insufficiency of evidence,[10] for the reason that defendant was deprived of the testimony of a certain witness though the witness properly refused to testify,[11] and the appeal court will not determine whether the judgment is the proper legal conclusion from the facts.[12] An order granting a new trial based only on the legal conclusion that the special verdict was inconsistent and evasive may be reviewed as not within the court's discretion.[13] If a failure to prosecute a motion for a new trial is not sufficiently excused, refusal to reinstate the motion after dismissal will not be disturbed.[14] A determination as to the sufficiency and diligence necessary to obtain a new trial for newly discovered evidence will not be disturbed except on the most convincing grounds.[15] The action below in setting aside a judgment and granting a new trial will be presumed to have been regularly taken on sufficient evidence,[16] and if the motion is made on several grounds and allowed, it will be presumed that it was allowed for the one showing an error, if the ground is not shown on the record;[17] but it cannot be presumed that the motion was filed within the statutory time,[18] nor that the court heard evidence outside the affidavits on a motion for a new trial where no such evidence appears by the record,[19] nor, if the exceptions taken by defendant at the trial are not in the record, that a new trial was not properly ordered as against the weight of the evidence.[20] If an order for a new trial is general in its terms, it will be presumed that evidence was held insufficient by the court below in that it was against the findings of the jury,[21] but it cannot be assumed that it was based on any particular ground, and the court will look into the correctness of the rulings on the admission or rejection of evidence and the giving of instructions.[22] Where it does not appear from the order what was the ground upon which a new trial was granted, but the record shows that it might have been made because of insufficiency of the evidence,[23] or that evidence

4. Under Code W. Va. c. 138, § 5—Garber v. Blatchley, 51 W. Va. 147.

5. Lashaway v. Young, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 177.

6. Veatch v. Norman, 95 Mo. App. 500.

7. Rodgers v. Farmers' Nat. Bank (Iowa) 91 N. W. 773.

8. Ben Lomond Wine Co. v. Sladky (Cal.) 71 Pac. 178.

9. Dundon v. McDonald, 137 Cal. 1, 69 Pac. 498.

10. Ben Lomond Wine Co. v. Sladky (Cal.) 71 Pac. 178.

11. Reno M. & L. Co. v. Westerfield (Nev.) 69 Pac. 899.

12. Bryan v. Bryan, 137 Cal. xix., 70 Pac. 304.

13. Miller v. Casco (Wis.) 93 N. W. 447.

14. Fulton Grocery Co. v. Maddox, 114 Ga. 913.

15. German Nat. Bank v. Atherton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 550; Pengilly v. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (N. D.) 91 N. W. 63.

16. Presumption invoked to reconcile apparently conflicting statements in bill of exceptions as to hearing of motion and settlement of bill—Pendo v. Beakey, 15 S. D. 344. Under Code Neb. § 602—Grand Lodge v. Scott (Neb.) 93 N. W. 190.

17. Insurance Co. v. Evans, 64 Kan. 770, 68 Pac. 623.

18. Pound's Estate v. Cassity, 91 Mo. App. 424. However see—Schallehn v. Hibbard, 64 Kan. 601, 68 Pac. 61.

19. Head v. Ayer & L. Tie Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 728.

20. Serwer v. Serwer, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 415.

21. Harrington v. Butte & B. Min. Co., 27 Mont. 1, 69 Pac. 102.

22. Under Rev. St. § 901, requiring the order for a new trial to specify the ground on which it was based—Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

23. Harloe v. Berwick, 138 Cal. xix., 70 Pac. 1060.

was improperly admitted, it will be presumed that the court exercised discretion in granting a new trial on that ground.[24] Where a motion for a new trial regularly made is overruled after the term and at a time when, under the law, a term of court might be in session in another county in the district, and no objections are made that it was considered in vacation, it will be presumed that it was overruled at an adjourned day of the regular term.[25] Where a new trial may have been granted either for insufficiency of evidence or error of law at the trial, it will be presumed that the order was made on the latter ground.[26] Where no reason is assigned therefor, it will be presumed that a new trial was granted because of the court's disapproval of the verdict either as against the weight of the evidence or because inconsistent, if special, especially where costs are imposed as a condition of the grant.[27] It will be presumed that denial of a motion for retrial was made in the court's discretion and not because of lack of power to allow it.[28] If a statement certified by the judge does not purport to contain all the evidence but is stipulated to be correct, it will be presumed that only sufficient evidence has been included to explain the ground specified in the notice of the motion for a new trial for insufficiency of evidence.[29] A final decree will not be reversed because of error in denying application for a rehearing.[30]

It will be presumed that the time for filing was extended by the court for good cause or by consent of the other party, where the bill is not filed until after expiration of the statutory period, though no recital appears in the record as to such extension.[31] Where a motion to dismiss an appeal is made because an order extending the time for a bond and bill of exceptions was made ex parte, it will be presumed that notice of the order was given, where there is no recital in the record.[32]

Matters relating to judgments or costs.—Allowance of a motion to set aside a default[33] entered for want of an affidavit of defense where the ground alleged was technical and defendant delayed for four months after entry and issuance of execution before seeking to have the judgment set aside,[34] or for failure to file an amended complaint within the time granted,[35] or where the court directs a trial anew on the merits,[36] is discretionary though excusable neglect as ground for setting aside was clearly shown.[37] So, also, rulings on an application to set aside[38] or amend a judgment,[39] to admit evidence on a technical issue,[40] or to open a judgment of nonsuit, though it appears severe,[41] are sustained as being discretionary. A finding of fact on a motion by defendant to open a judgment taken on excusable default will not be reviewed unless abuse of discretion is shown.[42] The overruling of a motion during term to vacate for an unauthorized appearance by an attorney will not be disturbed except on the strongest evidence where it appears that there was a general

24. Rembt v. Roehr Pub. Co., 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 459.
25. State Ins. Co. v. School Dist. (Kan.) 71 Pac. 272.
26. Berg v. Olson (Minn.) 93 N. W. 309.
27. Giese v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & L. Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 356.
28. Kelly v. New Haven Steamboat Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 261.
29. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 659, subd. 3, providing for the sufficiency of notice of a motion for a new trial—Cahill v. Baird (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1061.
30. United States v. Rio Grande D. & I. Co., 184 U. S. 416.
31. Coler v. Sterling, 15 S. D. 415.
32. McKenzie v. Murphy, 29 Colo. 485, 68 Pac. 838.
33. Watts v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 258; Woodard v. Norris (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1064; Wheeler v. Castor (N. D.) 92 N. W. 381; Fargo v. Keeney (N. D.) 92 N. W. 836; Sibley v. Weinberg (Wis.) 92 N. W. 427.
34. Whitecar v. Supreme Castle, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 631.
35. Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co., (Iowa) 93 N. W. 78.
36. Wheeler v. Castor (N. D.) 92 N. W. 381.
37. Under Code 1902, § 274, making such acts discretionary—Morris v. Liverpool, L. & G. Ins. Co., 131 N. C. 212.
38. Whitecar v. Supreme Castle, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 631; Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. v. O'Donnell, 101 Ill. App. 533.
39. Becher v. Deuser, 169 Mo. 159.
40. Enyart v. Moran (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1045.
41. Sibley v. Weinberg (Wis.) 92 N. W. 427.
42. McMahon v. Pugh, 62 S. C. 506.

appearance in the case at former terms by the attorney.[43] An order vacating a judgment in absence of contrary showing will be presumed to have been made within time.[44] The allowance of costs[45] accruing in the case before a prior appeal,[46] or the discretion of the court in fixing compensation of receivers and their counsel,[47] will not be reviewed if no abuse is shown. On the hearing of exceptions sent to a review court, questions of costs which should have been determined before taxation will not be passed upon.[48]

2. Questions of fact.—In a forthcoming number will be discussed the rules for distinguishing matters of law from those of fact. Applications of the rules will be found in nearly all the titles treating of substantive law.[49] Generally speaking, questions of fact will not be reviewed on appeal.[50] A verdict directed for plaintiff subject to the court's decision on all the issues is however not conclusive on an issue of fact though the evidence in regard thereto is conflicting.[51] A judgment will not be disturbed unless so unjust as to indicate prejudice, partiality, or corruption,[52] whether on findings of the court or jury,[53] if the record shows jurisdiction of the subject-matter.[54] In the federal courts, an appeal, unlike a writ of error, opens the facts as well as the questions of law to inquiry.[55] An erroneous assumption or finding of preliminary fact essential to the jurisdiction is reviewable by writ of error.[56] A trial in equity is before the court though issues of fact have been referred to a master, and special findings by reason of the court's action upon the master's report made without request from either party amount to a general finding only and cannot be reviewed as a special finding.[57] A special finding stating ultimate facts

43. Chilhowie Lumber Co. v. Lance, 50 W. Va. 536.

44. Under Rev. St. Idaho, § 4228—Kerns v. McAulay (Idaho) 68 Pac. 503.

45. Bowring v. Wabash R. Co., 90 Mo. App. 324. Granting costs against an executor personally—Webb v. Peck (Mich.) 92 N. W. 104.

46. United Security Life Ins. Co. v. Larner, 18 App. D. C. 147.

47. Braman v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 114 Fed. 18, 51 C. C. A. 644.

48. Motion for extra allowance—Riverside Bank v. Jones, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 531.

49. See Questions of Law and Fact, also Negligence and like titles.

50. Whether misconduct was provoked is fact—Shuster v. Shuster (Neb.) 92 N. W. 993. Whether father acting as guardian was entitled to be paid for child's support is a question of fact—McGeary v. McGeary, 181 Mass. 530. The amount of damages is a pure question of fact in Utah—Braegger v. Oregon S. L. R. Co., 24 Utah, 391, 68 Pac. 140. Decision that a commodity is or is not a substance or article specified in customs laws—United States v. Jackson, 113 Fed. 1009; Page v. United States, 113 Fed. 1006; Gabriel v. United States, 114 Fed. 491; Weil v. United States, 115 Fed. 592. Whether a statement by counsel in his argument, as to what a witness would have said if called, is one of fact or a request for an inference is a question for the trial court—Walker v. Boston & M. R. Co., 71 N. H. 271. Whether facts alleged amount to an excuse for negligence may be reviewed as a conclusion of law—Morris v. Liverpool, L. & G. Ins. Co., 131 N. C. 212.

Surrogate's assumption of a material fact will not be supported by presumption when the record contains no evidence either way, even though counsel did not dispute him—In re Raymond, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 11.

51. Fraser v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 114 Wis. 510.

52. Cincinnati, H. & I. R. Co. v. Worthington (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 557; Golibart v. Sullivan (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 188. If the measure of damages is uncertain an award will be disturbed only when so great as to indicate passion—Welch v. Greene (R. I.) 54 Atl. 54. Material injury must be made apparent—Wills v. Hardcastle, 19 Pa. Super Ct. 525. Trial court's action in reducing damages does not alone show passion and prejudice—Doran v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 815; Knowlton v. Des Moines E. L. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 918. Misconduct of counsel ground for reversal—Spalding v. Grundy, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1759. It will be presumed that the jury were free from passion or improper motives unless there is proof to the contrary—Sutton Exch Bank v. Grosshans (Neb.) 90 N. W. 640.

53. Fullerton v. Carpenter (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 98; South Omaha v. Meyers (Neb.) 95 N. W. 743; State v. Hill (W. Va.) 43 S. E. 160; Palmquist v. Mine & Smelter Supply Co. (Utah) 70 Pac. 994; Lake Street El. R. Co. v. Shaw, 103 Ill. App. 662.

54. Jaco v. Southern Missouri & A. R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 587.

55. United States v. Diamond Match Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 286.

56. This though a writ of error lies generally only for errors of law apparent in the record, and it applies where there is a failure to proceed properly to bring a party into court and make him a party to the record—Chilhowie Lumber Co. v. Lance, 50 W. Va. 536.

57. Under Burns' Rev. St. Ind. 1901, §§ 349, 412, providing for abolition of distinction between actions at law and suits in will not be disturbed though it contains also statements of evidence and inferences therefrom.[58] That no propositions of law were presented to the trial court will not prevent consideration of the evidence as sufficient to support the judgment, though the appeal court may assume that all questions of law were determined correctly.[59] Controverted facts and inferences will not be reviewed where both parties below move for direction of verdict.[60] Where there has been a view by the jury their finding is conclusive.[61] If the jury has drawn wrong conclusions from the facts, their verdict can be set aside.[62] If the trial court, after finding all the issues for plaintiff, erroneously dismissed the bill and granted a new trial to correct errors in its own rulings, the evidence will not be considered on appeal to determine the necessity of reversal.[63] A judgment on a directed verdict cannot be sustained because of a defense neither established nor considered by the court below.[64] A finding of fact by the court on an issue not submitted nor requested will be reviewed to determine the sufficiency of evidence supporting it.[65]

Findings of fact in general.[66]—A verdict or findings of fact will only be set aside when not supported by evidence,[67] if properly submitted,[68] since the appeal court cannot pass on the credibility of witnesses or the peculiar weight to be given their testimony;[69] there being sufficient to carry the issues to the jury,[70] and no equity and for the manner of trial of issues of law and fact formerly of exclusive equitable cognizance—Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. State (Ind.) 65 N. E. 401.

58. American Nat. Bank v. Watkins (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 545.

59. Mullin v. Johnson, 98 Ill. App. 621.

60. German American Bank v. Schwinger, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 393.

61. Finding as to defects in machinery—Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Holloway, 114 Fed. 458, 52 C. C. A. 260.

62. Jeffrey v. United Order of Golden Cross, 97 Me. 176.

63. Action by judgment creditor to set aside fraudulent conveyance by debtor—St. Francis Mill Co. v. Sugg, 169 Mo. 130.

64. Defense of contributory negligence in action for personal injuries—Kaiser v. Detroit & N. W. R. (Mich.) 91 N. W. 752.

65. Under Sales' Civ. St. Tex. art. 1331—Hardin v. Jones (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 836.

66. Decisions of fact by state board of taxation not reviewable—Newark v. North Jersey St. R. Co. (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 219. Divorce facts are reviewable only when all the evidence is sent up—Rhodes v. Rhodes, 95 Mo. App. 327.

67. Montz v. Roberts, 103 Ill. App. 270; English v. English, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 586; Dillon v. Watson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 156; Upton v. Windham (Conn.) 53 Atl. 660; McDonald v. Stitt (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1031; Lake St. El. R. Co. v. Shaw, 103 Ill. App. 662; Taylor v. Hall (Idaho) 71 Pac. 116; Lindell v. Deere-Wells Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 164; Seyfer v. Otoe County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 756; Garr v. Cranney (Utah) 70 Pac. 853; State v. Mansfield (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 471; Stiewel v. Am. Surety Co., 70 Ark. 512; Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Stewart (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1057; Stout v. Stout, 28 Ind. App. 502; Logansport & W. Val. Gas Co. v. Coate, 29 Ind. App. 299; D. M. Osborne & Co. v. Case (Okl.) 69 Pac. 263; Bryce v. Cayce, 62 S. C. 546; Jensen v. N. P. R. Co. (Idaho) 70 Pac. 790; City of Omaha v. Doty (Neb.) 89 N. W. 992; Petrie v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 171 N. Y. 638; Long v. McWilliams (Okl.) 69 Pac. 882. The preponderance must be clearly against the decree—Van Vleet v. DeWitt, 200 Ill. 153. Verdict in will contest—Crossan v. Crossan, 169 Mo. 631. The testimony must fairly show the verdict to be excessive—Village of Plainview v. Mendelson (Neb.) 90 N. W. 956. Findings of viewers in eminent domain—Lanquist v. Chicago, 200 Ill. 69; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wilson, 108 La. 1; Manhattan R. Co. v. Comstock (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 341. Error in assessing damages in eminent domain must be palpable—In re Brookfield (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 520. Finding as to the settlement of a cause of action—Stanley v. Stanley, 27 Wash. 570. 68 Pac. 187. Findings of fact are binding on appeal from order for temporary alimony—Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333. Verdict of jury as to the duty of a railroad company to fence its tracks in an action for damages for the killing of domestic animals—Downey v. Miss. River & B. T. R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 137. Finding as to whether a warranty of good health furnished by one asking for reinstatement in a benefit association was forged—Creighton v. Modern Woodmen of America, 90 Mo. App. 378. Findings of the trial court as to negligence on specific facts may be reviewed where the inferences of facts are unreasonable or one or more of the facts inconsistent with the conclusions—Hyde v. Mendel (Conn.) 52 Atl. 744.

68. Truworthy v. French, 97 Me. 143; Gunther Bros. & Co. v. Aylor, 92 Mo. App. 161. Submission without instructions is not necessarily error—Costley v. Seward, 93 Mo. App. 108.

69. Richey v. Haley, 138 Cal. 441, 71 Pac. 499; Silveira v. Reese, 138 Cal. xix., 71 Pac. 515; Peck v. Gelski (Iowa) 93 N. W. 581; Mountain City Mill Co. v. Link Milling Co., 92 Mo. App. 474; Corrigan v. Kansas City, 93 Mo. App. 173; Haslack v. Wolf (Neb.) 93 N. W. 996; Bedwell v. Bedwell (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 983; Ricaud v. Alderman & Flanner (N. C.) 43 S. E. 543; Romero v. Coleman (N. M.) 70 Pac. 559. The lack of opportunity on the part of the supreme prejudicial error of law being shown.[71] The presence of substantial evidence in support is sufficient,[72] though a different conclusion might have been reached,[73] unless injustice has been done without regard to the weight of evidence,[74] and the rule applies to an action presenting no equitable issues though tried by the court as an equity action.[75] A finding dependent on many facts must be supported by the detailed facts.[76] A finding of the trial court on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed,[77] unless clearly unsupported by the evidence.[78] Inferences drawn by the court from facts will not be reviewed,[79] if they have reasonable foundation in the facts.[80] A verdict for damages for personal injuries will not be set aside as ex-court to see the plaintiff in an action for personal injuries sustained from his master's machinery, on the stand, will not prevent a holding under the evidence that he was not so stupid as to preclude an instruction below that he had assumed the risk—Chmiel v. Thorndike Co., 182 Mass. 112. Unless unworthy witnesses have been believed—Goothye v. DeLatour, 108 La. 286.

70. Vermillion v. Parsons (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1092.

71. Inhabitants of Atkinson v. Orneville, 96 Me. 311. Finding on contributory negligence where submitted under proper instructions cannot be reviewed on writ of error—Kansas City S. R. Co. v. Billingslea (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 335.

72. Waters v. White (Conn.) 52 Atl. 401; Roskilly v. Steigers (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 909; Fidelity Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Lowe (Neb.) 93 N. W. 749; Taussig v. Wind (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1095; Van Wagoner v. Paterson, 67 N. J. Law, 455; West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Lieserowitz, 197 Ill. 607; Clark v. Shannon & Mott Co. (Iowa) 91 N. W. 923; Wilbur v. Berry, 71 N. H. 619; Bradshaw v. Cochran, 91 Mo. App. 294; Bowles Live Stock Commission Co. v. Hunter, Id. 436; Fullerton v. Carpenter (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 98; City of South Omaha v. Meyers (Neb.) 92 N. W. 743; State v. Hill, 52 W. Va. 296; Palmquist v. Mine & Smelter Supply Co. (Utah) 70 Pac. 994; Lake St. El. R. Co. v. Shaw, 103 Ill. App. 662. Finding upon verbal evidence—Wallrath v. Bohnenkamp (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 1112. The testimony can only be examined to ascertain whether there was any competent evidence tending to support the findings—Salem Light & Traction Co. v. Anson, 41 Or. 562, 69 Pac. 675. A mere possible inference from the evidence, contrary to the judgment rendered, will not warrant its reversal—Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Ray, 199 Ill. 63. Finding that one's name appeared on the back of notes sued on, signed as maker, not as indorser, will not be disturbed—Olansky v. Berlin (N. Y.) 37 Misc. 775. Questions of fact put in issue by the pleadings and submitted under a proper charge as to which no exceptions are taken—Liberty Wall Paper Co. v. Stoner Wall Paper Mfg. Co., 170 N. Y. 582. Evidence of mental capacity to understand the nature of a conveyance on which reasonable minds might differ will be held to sustain a finding of incompetency—Smith v. Smith (Neb.) 89 N. W. 799. The order below refusing to set aside the verdict on special finding will not be disturbed except in the absence of evidence in support, or overwhelming weight of evidence against it—Bannon v. Ins. Co. of N. A. (Wis.) 91 N. W. 666. Though after overruling a demurrer to plaintiff's evidence, in which he joined, the case is submitted to the jury on the evidence as it stands and the verdict is for plaintiff—Coleman v. Bennett (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 734. Where the evidence of either side as given in the record would alone suffice to sustain a verdict for its party a verdict for either will not be disturbed if no prejudicial rulings appear—Walker v. Montgomery, 104 Ill. App. 659. A verdict in favor of plaintiff suing for injuries caused by negligence will not be set aside where, as a matter of law, the evidence does not show conclusively that she was guilty of contributory negligence—Coonan v. American House Furnishing Co., 86 Minn. 12. If there is evidence to sustain the general verdict and the material findings on interrogatories submitted, the judgment will not be disturbed, though the evidence as to some features of the case cannot be said to be of great weight—Creamery Package Mfg. Co. v. Hotsenpiller (Ind.) 64 N. E. 600.

73. National Exch. Bank v. Wiley (Neb.) 92 N. W. 582; Demary v. Burtenshaw's Estate (Mich.) 91 N. W. 647.

74. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Eastman (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 431.

75. Phipps v. Norton (Iowa) 93 N. W. 562.

76. Chester v. Buffalo Car Mfg. Co. (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 443.

77. Royal Remedy & Extract Co. v. Gregory Grocer Co., 90 Mo. App. 53; Morrison v. Sohon, Id. 76; Greditzer v. Continental Ins. Co., 91 Mo. App. 534. On testimony of two witnesses contradicting each other—Jordan v. Coulter, 30 Wash. 116, 70 Pac. 257. In action at law in federal court tried by stipulation without a jury—American Sales Book Co. v. Bullivant (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 255.

78. Payne v. Liebee (Neb.) 91 N. W. 851; Morris v. Liverpool, L. & G. Ins. Co., 131 N. C. 212; Annie Laurie Min. Co. v. Ross Min. & Mill. Co. (Utah) 70 Pac. 465.

79. Stocker v. Coddington (Minn.) 93 N. W. 680. If the court below is given power to draw inferences in a case submitted on an agreed statement of facts, the appellate court will review the findings only to decide whether the facts warrant the conclusions drawn, but if no inference can be drawn by the trial court, it can add to the statement of facts only the conclusions implied by the law and the appellate court can review them no further—Norton v. Brookline, 181 Mass. 360.

80. Northdruft v. Lincoln (Neb.) 92 N. W. 628.

cessive unless the amount is such as to show passion or prejudice of the jury.[81] All fair and reasonable inferences will be made as to the facts to sustain a verdict,[82] and to uphold the judgment as to matters in which the record is silent,[83] and the rule applies to findings by the court.[84] It will be presumed, in support of a general verdict, that all issues of fact necessary for its support were found by the jury in favor of the party for whom it was rendered,[85] and in the absence of a particular 81. McLean v. Lewiston (Idaho) 69 Pac. 478.

82. Sappington v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 95 Mo. App. 387; Arnold v. Cason, Id. 426; Sheehan v. Osborn, 138 Cal. 512, 71 Pac. 622. Presumption in favor of findings—In re Young's Estate (Pa.) 53 Atl. 511.

If the bill of exceptions or certificate of evidence does not purport to contain the substance of all evidence produced, sufficiency thereof to support the findings will be presumed—Fields v. Daisy Gold Min. Co., 25 Utah, 76, 69 Pac. 528; Allen v. Henn, 197 Ill. 486. Unless a contrary statement is made in the bill of exceptions—Metzger v. Morley (Ill.) 64 N. E. 280; Metzger v. Wooldridge, 99 Ill. App. 283. Where plaintiff's case fails entirely, the verdict of the jury as to the value of defendant's rights will be presumed to be correct on failure in replevin of evidence to show interest of plaintiff in the property—Kingman Imp. Co. v. Strong (Neb.) 89 N. W. 993. If the damages in an action for libel are not excessive, it will not be presumed that the jury allowed exemplary damages—Danville Press Co. v. Harrison, 99 Ill. App. 244. If rights of a defendant under a counter claim are given in the declaration of law by the court, they will be presumed to have been considered in rendering judgment—Williams v. Stroub, 168 Mo. 346; Long-Bell Lumber Co. v. Same, Id. Where a husband complained of the action of the court in refusing to make him a party defendant in partition proceedings against his wife, it will be presumed, in favor of the ruling, that the husband and wife had separated, where his petition did not state that they lived together, and the evidence was not in the record (Burns' Rev. Sts. 1894, § 6974)—Littell v. Burns, 29 Ind. App. 572. Where both parties moved for a verdict on the evidence and a verdict was directed for defendant, an issue on conflicting evidence will be presumed to have been found in his favor.—Raegner v. Brockway, 171 N. Y. 629. In a proceeding to foreclose a mortgage on community property, the legal title to which is in the husband and on which a mortgage has been executed by the husband and second wife after the first wife's death, it will be presumed that the court found that the mortgagee had notice of the first marriage, the wife's interest and that children were left, where the mortgage is held void as to the children of the first marriage.—American Freehold Land Mortgage Co. v. Dulock (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 172. If evidence appears in the record from which the court below would have been justified in finding a certain conclusion of fact, it will be presumed in favor of the ruling that such conclusion was found—Town of Montgomery v. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co., 29 Ind. App. 692. It will be presumed that all issues submitted in an action on a note in which equitable relief was prayed were submitted to the jury under proper instructions and by consent, and that the cross complaint was supported by no evidence—Horgwege v. Sage, 137 Cal. 539, 70 Pac. 621. If books used by commissioners appointed by the county court to settle with the sheriff collecting the county levy are not in the record, nor the parties thereto copied into the transcript, a presumption will be indulged that the books explained apparent duplications of credit and were sufficient to authorize the judgment—Bates v. Knott County Court, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 73. Where the conclusions of law below imputed an agent's malice to the principal in malicious attachment of goods, which were exempt, the court will presume in the absence of contrary facts the knowledge of the principal and acquiescence by him in the agent's acts—Leonard v. Harkleroad (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 127.

83. Peele v. Ohio & I. Oil Co., 158 Ind. 374; Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581; Schallehn v. Hibbard, 64 Kan. 601, 68 Pac. 61. Presumed that money spent for a bank was for a lawful purpose—Laidlaw v. Pacific Bank (Cal.) 67 Pac. 897. Where an instrument incorrectly designates the location of land in a certain city addition, it will be presumed in the absence of contrary showing that an addition exists in which such land is found—Rinehardt v. Reifers, 158 Ind. 675. An issue not submitted nor requested to be submitted will be presumed on appeal to have been found by the court in the manner supporting the judgment; under Rev. St. 1895, art. 1331, relating to special verdicts—Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Spencer (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 196.

84. A finding that plaintiff was regularly appointed to office will raise a presumption that his appointment was authorized under the proper statute by the proper officers; that he was the one of two deputies appointed who was to receive the higher salary under the statute, if the appointment of no other is shown—Freeman v. Marshall, 137 Cal. 159, 69 Pac. 986. Facts on which contempt orders are based are reviewed only as to the legal sufficiency to support the judgment—Green v. Green, 130 N. C. 578.

85. Eklund v. Martin, 87 Minn. 441; St. Paul Trust Co. v. Kittson (Minn.) 92 N. W. 500. If sufficient evidence appears to support the finding—Malone v. Fisher (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 996. If the evidence on which objections to a trustee's account were sustained does not appear, all presumptions will be in favor of the judgment—Gardner v. Stare, 136 Cal. xix., 69 Pac. 426. If no evidence is in the record on which a plea of privilege was heard, it will be presumed that the evidence sustained the judgment denying the plea—Robinson v. Chamberlain (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 209. Agreement as to findings presumed to dispense with proof of separate facts—Massillon Engine Co. v. Arnold, 133 Ala. 368. It will be presumed that plaintiff's theory as to disputed ques-showing as to the findings of a jury on an issue of fact, that they found in such a manner as to support the verdict;[86] but where the facts are stipulated it cannot be presumed that they were different in order to support the judgment.[87] The findings will be presumed to have been supported by evidence received without objection in the absence of contrary showing,[88] since it cannot be presumed that the record contains all the evidence heard on the trial in the absence of a showing to that effect;[89] but the transcript duly certified will be presumed to contain all necessary to be considered in determining the correctness of the rulings.[90] The presumption that sufficient facts appear to support a judgment in the short form will not apply to that part of the judgment dismissing the complaint as to one defendant.[91] Where no objection was taken to a complaint and the proceedings are not in the record, it must be presumed that every allegation of the complaint, whether defective or not, was sustained by evidence.[92] It must be presumed that evidence excluded by the court below could have been produced by the party offering it if permitted.[93] In favor of a verdict by the court without a jury, it must be presumed that only competent testimony was considered.[94] If the answer of a witness is liable to two constructions, one of which is admissible, such construction will be given it on appeal,[95] and it must be presumed that the answer of the witness was responsive to the question.[96] Where defendant requested an instruction submitting an issue of fact, it will be presumed that the evidence tended to establish the conclusion of the jury in opposition to his contention, so that he cannot complain of the finding on appeal.[97] The decision of a court or commissioner below as to the credibility of a witness cannot be disturbed unless the record discloses some reason for not giving full credit to his testimony.[98] An order based not alone on the affidavit of plaintiff's attorney but on all proceedings in the action which were not brought up on review, which awards full statutory costs against defendant, will not be disturbed.[99] It will be presumed in support of a judgment in replevin on a verdict which fails to fix the tions of fact was adopted by the jury finding a verdict in his favor on appeal from a refusal to direct a verdict for defendant in an action for personal injuries—Gaukler v. Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co. (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 215, 90 N. W. 660. If a certain fact in issue is not found by the trial court it will be presumed that evidence did not warrant it—Rilling v. Schultze, 95 Tex. 352; Meislahn v. Irving Nat. Bank, 172 N. Y. 631. Where the record does not show when a trial was had below or what evidence was produced on a particular issue, it will be presumed that sufficient facts were shown the trial court to support the judgment—Keyes v. Moy Jin Mun, 136 Cal. 129, 68 Pac. 476.

86. Findings as to misrepresentation and deceit regarding the value of corporate stock conveyed—Guilford v. Mason, 24 R. I. 386.

87. Conway v. Supreme Council, 137 Cal. 384, 70 Pac. 223.

88. Beardsley v. Clem, 137 Cal. 328, 70 Pac. 175; Ball v. Marquis (Iowa) 92 N. W. 691. If only part of evidence is in the abstract, judgment will be presumed to have been supported by omitted evidence—Hartman v. Reid (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 787. On appeal from an allowance of a widow's claim against the estate for erecting a monument for her husband, it will be presumed that the court had proper evidence of the value or solvency of the estate and of the suitableness of the monument—Pease v. Christman, 158 Ind. 642. It cannot be assumed that a judgment was rendered without proof of the allegations of the complaint on appeal from an order opening a default reciting that the motion to open the default was brought on an order to show cause reciting that it was made on annexed affidavits, pleadings and proceedings in the action, though the affidavits are omitted from the record—Hopkins v. Meyer (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 619. Those facts which the appellant had the burden of proving, but which are not given in the findings, will be presumed not to have been affirmatively proved—Peele v. Ohio & I. Oil Co., 158 Ind. 374. If the evidence does not appear in a bill of exceptions, it will be presumed to have been sufficient to sustain a judgment correcting the verdict by inserting property omitted by mistake—Law v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago, 197 Ill. 523.

89. Watkins v. La Mar (Kan. App.) 69 Pac. 730; Metz v. Bell, 137 Cal. xix., 70 Pac. 618.

90. Bush v. Tecumseh Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 236.

91. Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451.

92. Buckman v. Hatch (Cal.) 70 Pac. 221.

93. Anthony v. Carp, 90 Mo. App. 387.

94. Triska v. Miller (Neb.) 91 N. W. 870.

95. Supreme Council Am. Legion of Honor v. Orcutt (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 682.

96. Stanley v. Core (Iowa) 93 N. W. 343.

97. Black v. Missouri Pac. R. Co (Mo.) 72 S. W. 559.

98. On appeal from an order of deportation of a Chinese person—United States v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442.

99. Ballantyne v. Steenwerth (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 632.

value of each article, that the property had been disposed of, making such finding unnecessary.[1] An exhibit shown by record to have been offered in evidence against the objections of the opposing party and referred to in the cross-examination and which appears in the record will be presumed to have been duly read when introduced.[2] In support of a judgment for damages for breach of a contract, it will be presumed that an offer made by defendant for performance was made after the breach of the contract and after the time within which performance was to be made.[3] Where the record showed that when objections to admission in evidence of a judgment roll in a former action were overruled, the judge directed entry of a statement that it had been admitted, that an appeal from the judgment was pending, to which no objection was made, it will be presumed that the existence of a pending appeal was sufficiently shown.[4] Where the answers of a wife, to whom her husband has conveyed immovables, to interrogatories of his creditors, show that the husband has conveyed property in another state for a consideration arising under the laws there, the appeal court will not assume that the consideration for conveyance of the property within the state was used for conveyance of the foreign property.[5] Where no conclusions of facts are filed by the trial court, the facts will be held to sustain the judgment unless irreconcilable.[6] The statement of the reasons for its rulings by the court, though apparently prolix, will be presumed proper and necessary.[7]

Review as affected by the character of the evidence.[8]—Evidence improperly admitted below and against which the finding of the court has been made must be treated as disregarded,[9] but conclusions not properly within the issues considered by the court below in making its judgment cannot be rejected as surplusage.[10] The record in another cause between the same parties and in the same court, merely certified to the supreme court by the clerk, cannot be considered on appeal, since judicial notice cannot be taken of it below.[11] Where the transcript of evidence used in the first trial is used on a second trial, the findings of the lower court on the first trial cannot affect the weight of the evidence on appeal.[12] Incompetent or improper judicial notice taken by the trial court will be rejected in determining the weight of evidence sustaining an order.[13] On appeal from a suit on a contract, the real contract must be largely inferred from the subsequent course of dealing of parties as a question of fact, where it was not originally in writing and the terms of the oral agreement were indefinite.[14] Which of the parties was in possession of lands cannot be settled on appeal in a cause where the evidence showed that neither had ever been in actual possession.[15] That a question of fact, on which a verdict was based, was decided with difficulty, will not be ground for a reversal unless the evidence was clearly misconstrued.[16] A verdict on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed unless clearly wrong,[17] especially if approved by the trial judge, unless he erred as to the law,[18]

1. Bonner v. Springfield Wagon Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1032.
2. Sailor v. Caldwell, 65 Kan. 86, 68 Pac. 1085.
3. Emack v. Hughes, 74 Vt. 382.
4. Boucher v. Barsalou, 27 Mont. 99, 69 Pac. 555.
5. Rush v. Landers, 107 La. 549.
6. Anderson v. Carter (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 78.
7. Gorham v. Sioux City Stock Yards (Iowa) 92 N. W. 698.
8. An order founded on both written and oral evidence will not be disturbed unless clearly inconsistent with established facts—Male v. Dahlgrin (Neb.) 92 N. W. 602.
9. In re Sawyer's Estate (Minn.) 92 N. W. 962.
10. Chappell v. Jasper County O. & G. Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 515.
11. The record must be introduced in evidence and brought up by statement of facts or bill of exceptions—Plumley v. Simpson (Wash.) 71 Pac. 710.
12. Hagerman v. Bates (Colo.) 69 Pac. 526.
13. State v. Fawcett (Neb.) 90 N. W. 259.
14. Whale v. Gatch (Or.) 70 Pac. 832.
15. Flanner v. Butler, 131 N. C. 151.
16. A verdict that a road was defective for want of a railing along a ravine—Barnes v. Rumford, 96 Me. 315.
17. Engel v. New York Evening Post Co., 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 377; Topliff v. Chicago, 196 Ill. 215; Parkins v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 197; Baker v. Borello, 136 and if supported by substantial evidence,[19] or if made on a view by the jury,[20] or

Cal. 160, 68 Pac. 591; Lowenstein v. Alexander (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 270; Martin v. Dowd (Idaho) 69 Pac. 276; York v. Pacific & I. N. R. Co. (Idaho) 69 Pac. 1042; Kelly v. Morris, 101 Ill. App. 102; Catron v. Scripps, 101 Ill. App. 105; Renard v. Grande, 29 Ind. App. 579; Duckwall v. Williams, 29 Ind. App. 650; Roush v. Russell, 28 Ind. App. 699; Sharpless Co. v. Day (Iowa) 90 N. W. 814; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Mangham (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 80; Mills v. Thomas Elevator Co., 172 N. Y. 660; Lilienthal v. McCormick (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 89; Bryan v. Bryan, 137 Cal. xix., 70 Pac. 304; Columbia Sav. Bank v. Los Angeles County, 137 Cal. 467, 70 Pac. 308; Donellan v. Ketchum, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 144; Rath v. Rath (Neb.) 89 N. W. 612; Schaaf v. Hamilton (Neb.) 89 N. W. 614; Pecha v. Kastl (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1047; Link v. Reeves (Neb.) 91 N. W. 506; Clifford v. Braun, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 432; Hofferberth v. Myers, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 377; Hume v. Hood Camp Confed. Veterans (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 643; Kleeb v. Long-Bell Lumber Co., 27 Wash. 648, 68 Pac. 202; Alexander v. Wakefield (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 77; Nelson v. Lexington, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1477; Carroll Contr. Co. v. Gilsonite R. & P. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1119; Jackson v. McNatt (Neb.) 93 N. W. 425; Rock Island & P. R. Co. v. Dormady, 103 Ill. App. 127; Beale v. Patterson (Iowa) 93 N. W. 594; Pine v. Callahan (Idaho) 71 Pac. 473; Boston & M. Consol. C. & S. Min. Co. v. Montana Ore Purchasing Co., 27 Mont. 431, 71 Pac. 471; Patterson v. Mills, 138 Cal. 276, 71 Pac. 177; Day & F. Lumber Co. v. Bixby (Neb.) 93 N. W. 688; McKee v. Fagan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 676; Pettee v. Deere Plow Co., 11 Okl. 467, 68 Pac. 735; Smith Premier Typewriter Co. v. Mayhew (Neb.) 90 N. W. 939; Dufrene v. Anderson (Neb.) 90 N. W. 221; Andrews v. Steele City (Neb.) 89 N. W. 739; Continental Nat. Bank v. Levy (Neb.) 89 N. W. 749; Paxton v. Scott (Neb.) 92 N. W. 611; Malone v. Garver (Neb.) 92 N. W. 726; Milwaukee Nat. Bank v. Gallun (Wis.) 92 N. W. 567; Patterson v. Mills (Cal.) 68 Pac. 1034; Lyons & E. P. Toll Road Co. v. People, 29 Colo. 434, 68 Pac. 275; Bernardis v. Allen, 136 Cal. 7, 68 Pac. 110; Phoenix Acc., etc., Ass'n v. Horton, 29 Ind. App. 198; Churchill v. Rose, 136 Cal. 576, 69 Pac. 416; Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli M. & L. Co., 29 Colo. 377, 68 Pac. 286; Felix v. Brandstetter Co. (Iowa) 89 N. W. 971; Gaboury v. Smith (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 275; Williams v. Chapman (Ind.) 66 N. E. 460; Cinfel v. Malena (Neb.) 93 N. W. 165; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Winfrey (Neb.) 93 N. W. 526; Chicago Cottage Organ Co. v. Erbe (Iowa) 90 N. W. 66; Schumacher v. Shawhan, 93 Mo. App. 573; Scheurmann v. Styninger (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 119, 90 N. W. 292; Brinkworth v. Hazlett (Neb.) 90 N. W. 537; Omaha Nat. Bank v. Sanders (Neb.) 90 N. W. 211; Levy v. Hinz (Neb.) 90 N. W. 640; Lusk v. Riggs (Neb.) 91 N. W. 243; State Ins. Co. v. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co. (Neb.) 90 N. W. 997; Metz v. Blattner (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 489; Boudinot v. Hamann (Iowa) 90 N. W. 497; Bankers' Union v. Schiverin (Neb.) 92 N. W. 158; Miller v. Potter, 102 Ill. App. 483; Grafeman Dairy Co. v. St. Louis Dairy Co., 96 Mo. App. 495; Hyde v. Mendel (Conn.) 52 Atl. 744; Bank of Ackley v. Porter, 116 Iowa, 377; Hercules Min. Co. v. Central Inv. Co., 98 Ill. App. 427; Greer v. Clay, 99 Ill. App. 204; Doppelt v. Columbia Paper Stock Co., 99 Ill. App. 207; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Campbell (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 453; Simmons v. Hutchinson (Miss.) 33 So. 21; Mound City L. & S. Co. v. Miller, 170 Mo. 240; Webb v. Peck (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 449, 92 N. W. 104; Dobbins v. Humphreys (Mo.) 70 S. W. 815; Garr v. Cranney (Utah) 70 Pac. 853; Peniston v. Schlude (Mo.) 71 S. W. 146; Johnston, etc., Hat Co. v. Lightbody (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 957; Kendall v. Selby (Neb.) 92 N. W. 178; Guilford v. Mason, 24 R. I. 386; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Gentry (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 562; Fears v. Fears (Ga.) 42 S. E. 999; Dunafon v. Barber (Neb.) 92 N. W. 198; Long v. Long (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 587; Wunderlich v. Palatine Ins. Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 264; Todd v. York (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1040; Kirkham v. Moore (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1042; Love v. Central Life Ins. Co., 92 Mo. App. 192; Lindell v. Deere-Wells Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 164; Slack v. Harris, 101 Ill. App. 527; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Presbrey, 98 Ill. App. 303; Ziemens v. Harwood, 99 Ill. App. 309; Williams v. Stroub, 168 Mo. 346; Zellars v. Missouri W. & L. Co., 92 Mo. App. 107; Warder, etc., Co. v. Stiritz & Co., 103 Ill. App. 525. If the verdict is responsive to the issues—Hudelson v. McCallum, 103 Ill. App. 408; Petzel v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 103 Ill. App. 210; Nehring v. Larson, 103 Ill. App. 160; Gribble v. Everett (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1124; Obuchon v. Boyd, 92 Mo. App. 412. Even though the evidence preponderates in favor of the unsuccessful party—Chicago City R. Co. v. Leach, 104 Ill. App. 30. Or he is sustained by the larger number of witnesses—Copeland v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 418; Pence v. Wabash R. Co., 116 Iowa, 279; Faivre v. Manderschied (Iowa) 90 N. W. 76. Merely a slight preponderance as to the number of witnesses testifying to the lack of mental capacity of a testator will not warrant the reversal of a verdict finding his capacity sufficient to make a will—Mahon v. Mooney, 196 Ill. 147. Though most of plaintiff's evidence is given by deposition—Rounthwaite v. Rounthwaite, 136 Cal. xx., 68 Pac. 304. The appeal court will only determine whether the evidence tended to support the verdict—Chicago Terminal T. R. Co. v. Kotoski, 199 Ill. 383. That the verdict is too small will not avail—Robinson v. Rhea-Thielens Implement Co., 103 Ill. App. 62. The trial judge is arbiter as to questions of fact depending on conflicting evidence, whether given by affidavit or deposition, or by word of witnesses—Sheehan v. Osborn, 138 Cal. 512, 71 Pac. 622. He has also a better opportunity of judging of the credibility of witnesses—Stivers v. Conklin, 103 Ill. App. 288; Dunn v. Springfield F. & M. Ins. Co. (La.) 33 So. 585. If the evidence of either side standing alone would support a verdict for it, the verdict rendered will be affirmed—Abrams v. Rideout, 101 Ill. App. 131. A sharp conflict in the evidence will not produce reversal, unless the rulings of the court on the evidence and the instructions were such as to prejudice appellant's case—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson, 99

where the trial court made a personal examination of the subject-matter,[21] and if the losing party made no exceptions to the charge of the judge and did not request a different submission of facts to the jury,[22] and the view of the evidence most favorable to a party must be taken in support of a judgment for him,[23] the appeal court only

Ill. App. 400. Though there is much evidence which is obviously untrue, the judgment will not be disturbed—Snyder v. Nelson, 101 Ill. App. 619. Verdict on contradictory testimony of the parties as the only witnesses — Rickey v. Brady (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 444. In a case depending entirely on disputed questions of fact properly submitted—Wholeben v. Warren Mica Lubricant Co., 203 Pa. 234. If the evidence is given by witnesses of apparently equal credibility and is directly conflicting, the jury has a right to select the person whom it will believe, and its verdict is conclusive. Action against railroad for personal injuries on conflicting evidence as to negligence of the company in running an engine without headlight or warning—Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Coffman (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 233. If no evidence appears which fairly proves a material finding of the jury, their verdict will be reversed—Haenky v. Weishaar, 64 Kan. 717, 68 Pac. 610. The preponderance of evidence establishing contributory negligence of plaintiff in action for personal injuries will cause a verdict in his favor to be set aside—Pardridge v. Gilbride, 98 Ill. App. 134. The finding must be so manifestly against the evidence that a new trial should have been granted below—Randall v. Wadsworth, 130 Ala. 633. As where it is wholly unsupported—Grooms v. Lieurance, 98 Ill. App. 394; Kehlor v. Wilton, 99 Ill. App. 228; Derby v. Derby, 101 Ill. App. 154. And the undisputed fixed facts show that the verdict is contrary to the evidence—Manss-Bruning Shoe Co. v. Prince, 51 W. Va. 510. Or it is against the weight of evidence so as to shock the sense of justice of reasonable persons—Singer Mfg. Co. v. Rogers, 70 Ark. 385. Sufficiency of evidence to warrant reversal of verdict as against the evidence—Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Mangham (Tex. Civ. App) 69 S. W. 80; Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Austin, 114 Ga. 905. Finding as to whether the opportunity was given plaintiff to be negligent in attempting to leave a car—Beringer v. Dubuque St. R. Co. (Iowa) 91 N. W. 931. As to contributory negligence of parent in protecting child, in action for personal injuries to the latter—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Byers (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1009. Finding as to value of real estate to be sold on foreclosure—Bowman v. Bellows Falls Sav. Inst. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 204. Findings in highway proceedings—Raab v. Roberts (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 618. Judgment in condemnation of lands—Guyer v. Davenport, R. I. & N. W. R. Co., 196 Ill. 370. Decision as to which was the predominant material in an article subject to customs duties—Leerburger v. United States, 113 Fed. 976. Finding as to blame for collision of vessels—Gaffner v. Pigott (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 486. Amount of recovery found in replevin for fair rental of property—Adams v. Wright, 74 Conn. 551. Finding as to fraudulent disposal of property by debtor—Dimmock v. Cole (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 166, 90 N. W. 333. Finding as to whether tenant held over after expiration of his term—Chicago v. Peck, 98 Ill. App. 434. Finding as to whether animal killed by train was struck on public highway on right of way which should have been fenced—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Neal (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 91. Finding of trial court that an irrigation ditch constructed on land of another had been materially enlarged without authority—Smith v. Fresno C. & I. Co., 136 Cal. xx., 68 Pac. 490. Civ. Code Cal. §§ 1835, 2061, regarding sufficiency of evidence to sustain verdict in civil cases, construed—Parker v. Gregg, 136 Cal. 413, 69 Pac. 22. Findings of fraudulent intent in transfer by bankrupt—Cullinane v. State Bank (Iowa) 91 N. W. 783. Finding as to ability of passenger to take care—Wheeler v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 70 N. H. 607. Finding as to whether an insured committed suicide or was murdered, where both parties without objection call witnesses to express their opinions as experts on the facts as shown and their opinions were conflicting—Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Skipper, 115 Fed. 69, 52 C. C. A. 663. Finding as to whether plaintiff had disposed of mortgaged chattels without proper authority or permission of defendant—Matthews v. Granger, 196 Ill. 164. Finding on question whether the bell was properly rung or the whistles sounded in action for injuries on railroad—Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Corson, 101 Ill. App. 115. A verdict in an action for personal injuries held not to be disturbed unless plainly against the evidence or the result of passion or prejudice or because the jury has misconceived the effect of the evidence, where it plainly appears that the negligence of the defendant produced the injury to the injured person—Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Corson, 101 Ill. App. 115. Finding that one party to a contract for real estate sale was not to execute the notes necessary to bind the contract in an action to recover commissions—Carnes v. Howard, 180 Mass. 569.

18. Atlanta Consol. St. R. Co. v. Jones (Ga.) 42 S. E. 524; Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Bond, 114 Ga. 913. The rule obtains though the verdict was not strictly in accord with the evidence where the court below refused a new trial—Lackey v. State, 115 Ga. 242. And there was some evidence to support the verdict—Brown v. Latham, 115 Ga. 666.

19. Gorringe v. Read, 24 Utah, 455, 68 Pac. 147; De Mund Lumber Co. v. Stilwell (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 543; Willard v. Carrigan (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 538.

20. Judgment for damages for change of grade of a street—Danville v. Schultz, 99 Ill. App. 287.

21. Herriman Irr. Co. v. Keel, 25 Utah, 96, 69 Pac. 719.

22. Jones v. Lustig, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 834; Lauck v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 847; Waldeck v. Cushman, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 848.

23. Kelley v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 45; Akers v. Akers, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 636; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Steenberger, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 761.

weighing the evidence to determine its sufficiency to support a verdict.[24] The finding of the trial court without a jury on both law and facts will be treated as the verdict of a properly instructed jury,[25] where there is evidence reasonably tending to support it,[26] or where no declarations of law are requested;[27] but if an error as to preponderance of evidence appears, it will be reversed.[28] The same is true of special findings of fact tried by the court.[29]

Effect of approval by the trial judge.—A verdict on questions of fact approved by the court will not be disturbed,[30] except for error on the part of the trial judge,[31] though the appellate court believes the weight of evidence to be against it.[32]

24. Anderson v. Medbery (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1089. The trial court should determine whether the verdict is against the evidence—Walbrath v. Bohnenkamp (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 1112.

25. Excelsior Coal Min. Co. v. Gatliff, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 682; Curtis v. Tyler, 90 Mo. App. 345; McKee v. Verdin (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 154; Solomon v. Solomon (Neb.) 92 N. W. 124; Hanna v. Clark (Pa.) 53 Atl. 758; Garr v. Cranney (Utah) 70 Pac. 853; Pollard v. Allen, 96 Me. 455; Beifeld v. Pease, 101 Ill. App. 539; Myers v. Menefee (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 540; Austin v. Georgia L. & T. Co., 115 Ga. 152; Merkert's Estate v. Grobe (Iowa) 90 N. W. 490; Allen v. Henn, 197 Ill. 486; Rogers v. Hopper, 94 Mo. App. 437; Franklin County Bank v. Everett (Neb.) 91 N. W. 495; Hill v. Whale Min. Co., 15 S. D. 574; Noble v. Miller, 168 Mo. 533; Snyder v. Commercial Union Assur. Co., 67 N. J. Law, 626; Miller v. Servis (N. J. Sup.) 52 Atl. 374; Bozarth v. Lincoln Legion of Honor, 93 Mo. App. 564; Los Angeles Traction Co. v. Wilshire, 135 Cal. 654, 67 Pac. 1086; McGray v. Monarch Elevator Co. (S. D.) 91 N. W. 457; Kaestner v. Oldham, 102 Ill. App. 372; Atlantic City v. Goldstein, 67 N. J. Law, 517; Martin v. Williams, 96 Mo. App. 249; Leonard v. Mallory (Conn.) 53 Atl. 778; West v. East Coast Cedar Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 737; State v. Penter, 96 Mo. App. 416; Powers v. Perkins (Mich.) 92 N. W. 790; Romero v. Coleman (N. M.) 70 Pac. 559; Rush v. Fletcher (N. M.) 70 Pac. 559; Darling Milling Co. v. Chapman (Mich.) 92 N. W. 352; Tinker v. Catlin, 102 Ill. App. 264. It must appear manifestly against the weight of the evidence—Denver Life Ins. Co. v. Price (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 313; Jones v. Maxton, 100 Ill. App. 201; Hare v. Winterer (Neb.) 90 N. W. 544; St. Louis, B. & S. R. Co. v. Gray, 100 Ill. App. 538. The credibility of witnesses is a question for the trial court—In re Moore's Estate (Minn.) 93 N. W. 523. Especially where the court has the opportunity to see and hear the witnesses—Springer v. Chicago Real Estate L. & T. Co., 102 Ill. App. 294; Bouton v. Cameron, 99 Ill. App. 600. Though affirmative admissions of the successful party tend to an adverse judgment—Wright v. Patterson (Ga.) 43 S. E. 49. It is insufficient that the conclusions of fact are subject to grave doubt—Shaffer v. Shaffer, 51 W. Va. 126. Especially where the trial judge in a written opinion states his conclusions of fact—Griffith v. Finger & S. Mfg. Co., 115 Ga. 592; and no propositions of law are submitted—Jones v. Glathart, 100 Ill. App. 630. On waiver of jury by stipulation—Wolff v. Wells, Fargo & Co., 115 Fed. 32, 52 C. C. A. 626; though the case is tried de novo on the appeal—Druse v. Davey (Neb.) 90 N. W. 644. Unreasonable delay in payment of claim as question of fact—Union El. R. Co. v. Nixon, 99 Ill. App. 502. Improper consideration of affidavits of jurors to impeach their verdict and of counter affidavits will not change the rule—Canon v. Farmers' Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 585. The finding is that of the court where each party asks direction of a verdict without asking submission of specific questions of fact—Westervelt v. Phelps, 171 N. Y. 212. Finding as to the furnishing of proofs of death in action on life policy—Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Hickson, 197 Ill. 117. Findings as to adverse claims to mining property dependent on evidence as to veins, dips, etc.—Montana Ore Purchasing Co. v. Boston & M. Consol. C. & S. Min. Co., 27 Mont. 288, 70 Pac. 1114. As to misconduct of an executor—Thomas v. Hosselkus, 137 Cal. 474, 70 Pac. 455. Question of honesty of co-tenant in placing improvements on the land in action by the other co-tenant to recover profits of resale by the former—Friedrich v. Fergen, 15 S. D. 541. Finding as to cutting of timber by mortgagor after execution of mortgage in action for waste—Girard Life Ins., A. & T. Co. v. Mangold, 94 Mo. App. 125. Finding as to qualifications of signers of application for liquor license—Persinger v. Miller (Neb.) 90 N. W. 242. Questions of fact on hearing of petition for leave to file claim for damages resulting from defective highway under Pub. St. N. H. c. 76, § 9—Drew v. Derry, 71 N. H. 113. Finding in ejectment as to validity of plaintiff's title—West v. East Coast Cedar Co., 113 Fed. 737, 51 C. C. A. 411. Decision of court as to misconduct of counsel—German Ins. Co. v. Shader (Neb.) 93 N. W. 972. Conclusions of the court on submission of a case without a jury on an agreed statement of facts will be reviewed where the statement is filed and made a part of the record. The statement amounts to a special verdict—Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Kelly, 114 Fed. 268, 52 C. C. A. 154.

26. Stai v. Selden, 87 Minn. 271.

27. Heman v. Gerardi, 96 Mo. App. 231.

28. Iroquois Furnace Co. v. Elphicke, 200 Ill. 411.

29. Board of Trustees v. Morris, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1420; Veum v. Sheeran (Minn.) 92 N. W. 965; Rank v. Garvey (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1025. The evidence being largely oral, the appellate court will be greatly influenced by the greater ability of the trial judge to settle the question of their credibility—Crawford v. Dixon (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 470.

30. Where the motion for new trial is confined to general grounds—Walters v. Freeman (Ga.) 42 S. E. 741.

Effect of two trials below.—The court of appeal may always consider the fact that two juries have found the same verdict in the case,[33] and where two juries have found the same verdict on a proper submission of fact and conflicting evidence,[34] on substantially the same evidence, and the trial judge in each instance has refused to set aside the verdict,[35] it will not be disturbed as against the weight of evidence, especially where the second verdict was on the same and additional evidence.[36] The rule will apply to a decision by two courts on the same question of fact.[37] Even a second verdict in favor of a party will be set aside where there is no evidence to support the theory of the case necessary to its support.[38]

Effect of theory of facts on which judgment is based.—A judgment for plaintiff rendered upon a certain theory cannot be supported upon another theory of the case not submitted to the jury nor upon which defendant made any defense.[39] That the judgment below was founded on a theory opposite from that urged by plaintiff below whereby he was aggrieved will not prevent relief on appeal on his theory.[40] Where a case is submitted solely on one of three grounds urged by plaintiff, a verdict for him cannot be sustained on the theory that the evidence would have justified a finding for him on either of the other grounds.[41] Where plaintiff relied upon two grounds and no declarations of law were asked or given, a judgment for defendant will not be reviewed where it cannot be ascertained which ground the judgment was based upon.[42] Though the judge below based his judgment, in a cause submitted on the merits, on legal principles, and declined to pass on other questions, upon a determination of which the same judgment might have been found, the supreme court may affirm the judgment on the latter grounds.[43]

In equitable proceedings.—Decrees or findings of fact in equity,[44] or findings of 31. National Cash Register Co. v. Hickox & R. Pub. Co., 102 Ill. App. 331.

32. Colyer v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 93 Mo. App. 147.

33. McCoy v. Munro, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 435.

34. Moore v. Eldridge, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 922; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Sporleder, 100 Ill. App. 626; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Shumaker's Adm'x, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2458. Unless there is a showing of undue partiality or prejudice—Haycraft v. Griggsby, 94 Mo. App. 74. Especially where the first verdict was reversed for errors on the trial—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Alumbaugh's Adm'r, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 349. If there is evidence to support the verdict and it has been approved by the trial court, though the court on appeal and trial de novo might reach a different conclusion—Weinberger v. McDonough, 98 Ill. App. 441. Sufficiency of evidence of personal injuries warranting second verdict for same amount—Loker v. Southwestern Mo. Elec. R. Co., 94 Mo. App. 481.

35. Where only one issue of fact appeared in the case—McMahon v. Jacob, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 346.

36. Allen v. McKay (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8.

37. Brainard v. Buck, 184 U. S. 99. Facts twice passed on below with same result will not be re-examined by supreme court in a Chinese deportation case, although treaty questions were raised, enabling disposal of the entire case—Chin Bak Kan v. United States, 186 U. S. 193.

38. Where in an action on a note alleged to have been paid by an authorized agent, no evidence appears of the creation of the agency for that purpose—Antognoli v. Miller (Ga.) 42 S. E. 1006.

39. Clark v. Manhattan R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 284.

40. Owatonna v. Rosebrock (Minn.) 92 N. W. 1122.

41. Fielders v. North Jersey St. R. Co. (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 404.

42. Early v. Helmaring, 170 Mo. 597.

43. Under Const. Miss. 1840, § 146, and Code Miss. 1892, §§ 4350, 4353—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Adams (Miss.) 32 So. 937.

44. Davis v. Auld, 96 Me. 559; Vinson v. Scott, 198 Ill. 144; Derdeyn v. Donovan (Miss.) 33 So. 652; Callender v. Dole, 198 Ill. 616; Hubbard v. Hubbard, 198 Ill. 621; Lacotts v. Dunn (Ark.) 72 S. W. 370; Robinson v. Sharp, 201 Ill. 86; Mississippi Cotton Oil Co. v. Smith (Miss.) 33 So. 443; Dermott v. Priddy (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1088; Arnold v. Northwestern Tel. Co., 199 Ill. 201; Stevens v. Magee (Miss.) 33 So. 73; Travis v. Parks (Mich.) 8 Det. Leg. N. 1118, 89 N. W. 569; Espenschied v. Baum (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 793; Spencer v. Landsaw, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 15. Finding largely on oral evidence—Powell v. Canaday, 95 Mo. App. 713; Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581; based on advisory verdict of jury—Bemmerly v. Smith, 136 Cal. 5, 68 Pac. 97. Finding of court reversing finding of master—Nash v. Woodward (S. C.) 40 S. E. 895. Finding as to existence of a trust—Harris v. Harris, 136 Cal. 379, 69 Pac. 23; as to existence of partnership—Lyle v. Howard's Adm'x, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 143. Finding by chancellor as to wilfull trespass and punitive damages therefor—Howell v. Shannon, 80 Miss. 598. Finding in foreclosure that no proceedings have been had at law to a master,[45] on conflicting evidence affirmed by the court,[46] or of a special master,[47] in an equitable accounting under the eye of the court,[48] will not be set aside unless irreconcilable with any reasonable construction of the testimony,[49] though if the evidence had been submitted to the appeal court it might have reached a different conclusion.[50] especially where the evidence leaves the appeal court in doubt,[51] or where the evidence is conflicting and heard in open court,[52] the chancellor hearing and seeing the witnesses being in a better position to judge of their credibility;[53] but if the chancellor did not have the advantage of hearing the testimony of the more important witnesses, his finding will not be binding on the appellate court.[54] In an equitable action in Missouri and South Carolina, the court will review evidence without regard to findings below and render a proper judgment.[55] The rule that a judgment will not be reversed unless clearly against the evidence will not apply to suits in equity in Kentucky.[56] Disputed facts in concurrent findings of a master and the circuit court together with the circuit court of appeals will not be disturbed by the supreme court of the United States.[57] Where an answer in an action tried by the court pleads an equitable defense and prays affirmative relief, the weight of evidence and the credibility of the witnesses are for the court if the action is tried as at law.[58] All reasonable presumptions are in favor of findings in a decree,[59] or of the findings of a master[60] where the evidence is not reported.[61] Facts omitted from the special findings of a suit in equity will be considered as found on appeal where conclusively established by the evidence and necessary to the decree.[62] recover any part of debt—Engart v. Moran (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1045. Finding by chancellor that land covered by a patent from the state was included in an earlier patent and that the later patent was void—Asher v. Howard, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 961. Order allowing a receiver's account against charges of positive fraud—Minneapolis Trust Co. v. Menage, 86 Minn. 1. Finding as to existence of irregularity in decree made by the same court that made the decree—Tromble v. Hoffman (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 183. 90 N. W. 694. Finding as to right to temporary injunction on contradictory counter affidavits impugning good faith of both parties—Syracuse & O. L. Elec. R. Co. v. Syracuse R. T. R. Co., 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 565.

45. Barton v. Hulsey (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 868; John Hancock Life Ins. Co. v. Houpt, 113 Fed. 572; Bogue v. Franks, 100 Ill. App. 434.

46. Ferguson Contract Co. v. Manhattan Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 791; Hagemann v. Hagemann, 102 Ill. App. 479; Beatty v. Somerville, 102 Ill. App. 487; Helb v. Hake, 203 Pa. 625.

47. Murphy v. Southern R. Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 257.

48. Goetting v. Weber, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 503.

49. Frerking v. Thomas (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1005.

50. Kohlsaat v. Illinois T. & Sav. Bank, 102 Ill. App. 110.

51. Taylor v. King, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1824; Lowry v. Paw Paw Sav. Bank (Mich.) 93 N. W. 530; Howton v. Gilpin, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 630.

52. Garden City Sand Co. v. Gettins, 200 Ill. 268; Wetzstein v. Largey, 27 Mont. 212, 70 Pac. 717; In re Fague's Estate, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 638; Battle Creek Val. Bank v. Collins (Neb.) 90 N. W. 921.

53. Polarek v. Gordon, 102 Ill. App. 356; Kochman v. O'Neill, 102 Ill. App. 475.

54. Kinney v. Murray, 170 Mo. 674.

55. Rev. St. 1899, § 695, as to review on appeal does not apply to equity cases—Fitzpatrick v. Weber, 168 Mo. 562. Under Const. S. C., art. 5, § 4, the court must examine all the testimony in equity cases—Brown v. Newell, 64 S. C. 27.

56. Taylor v. King, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1824.

57. Schwartz v. Duss, 187 U. S. 8.

58. Dermott v. Priddy (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1088.

59. If the evidence supporting a decree is not in the record, facts recited therein must be assumed as true and the decree sustained if its findings are sufficient—Russell v. Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co., 98 Ill. App. 347. Where it appears from the record that the order of sale was recalled after appraisement in foreclosure and the property was appraised and sold under another order, the presumption will obtain that the property brought two-thirds of each appraisement unless a contrary showing is made—Bowditch v. O'Linn (Neb.) 91 N. W. 523. Where several writs commanding a sheriff to execute a decree of foreclosure were issued, it will be presumed in the absence of contrary showing that the appraisement was valid—Omaha Nat. Bank v. Sanders (Neb.) 90 N. W. 211.

60. If an action was originally tried before a master, it will be presumed that the master did not consider part of the answer of a witness to a proper question because not responsive—Sargent v. Burton, 74 Vt. 24. It will be presumed that a proper foundation was laid for an answer of a witness as supporting the ruling made by the master before whom the action was tried—Sargent v. Burton, 74 Vt. 24.

Proceedings before referees or auditors.—Findings of a referee,[63] approved by the court below,[64] or on a compulsory reference,[65] or of an auditor approved by the court,[66] or in submission of issues at law by consent,[67] will not be disturbed except in clear cases. Findings of a compulsory statutory reference will be reviewed both as to law and facts.[68]

G. Rulings and decisions on intermediate appeals.—A lower court of appeal will presume that a case sent from the higher court is properly in its jurisdiction.[69] A question of fact in a state court is a question of fact in the supreme court of the United States,[70] and findings of fact in the state court are conclusive in the supreme court.[71] The decision of the Illinois appellate court on controverted questions of fact is binding on the supreme court,[72] whether on appeal from the finding of the 61. East Tennessee Land Co. v. Leeson (Mass.) 66 N. E. 427.

62. Lynch v. Egan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 775.

63. Creedon v. Patrick (Neb.) 91 N. W. 872; State v. Davis (Neb.) 92 N. W. 740; Collins v. McGuire, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 443; Ocorr & Rugg Co. v. Little Falls, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 592; Aronson v. Greenberg, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 639; Camp v. First Nat. Bank (Fla.) 33 So. 241; Lancieri v. Kansas City I. St. Sprinkling Co., 95 Mo. App. 319. Question of negligence—Dutton v. Amesbury Nat. Bank, 181 Mass. 154. Damages assessed by referee on stipulation—Hentz v. Mt. Vernon, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 515. Finding as to a claim against an estate will not be reversed though the evidence apparently justifies a doubt as to its correctness because of the superior advantages of the referee in seeing and hearing the witnesses—Hart v. Tuite, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 323.

64. Branner v. Webb, 65 Kan. 857, 68 Pac. 1107.

65. Roth v. Continental Wire Co., 94 Mo. App. 236.

66. In re Fague's Estate, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 638.

67. Alexander v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 114 Fed. 774; Rumford Falls Boom Co. v. Rumford Falls Paper Co., 96 Me. 96.

68. Compulsory reference under Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 698—Buxton v. Debrecht, 95 Mo. App. 599.

69. Ortt v. Leonhardt (Mo. App.) 68 S. W. 577; Bowlby v. Kline, 28 Ind. App. 659; State v. Ohio, etc., Land Co., 95 Mo. App. 349. As that no constitutional question is presented—Sneed v. Salisbury, 94 Mo. App. 426; Kirkwood v. Meramec Highlands Co., 94 Mo. App. 637. Case was treated as one of equitable nature and not mandamus which would not lie—Gowdy Co. v. Patterson, 29 Ind. App. 261.

70. Finding of fact as to what was the law of another state—Eastern B. & L. Ass'n v. Ebaugh, 185 U. S. 114, 46 Law. Ed. 830.

71. Jenkins v. Neff, 186 U. S. 230, 46 Law. Ed. 1140. In an equity suit—Bement v. National Harrow Co., 186 U. S. 70. Though the supreme court is bound by agreed facts before a state court it may inquire whether they support the judgment—Kelley v. Rhoads, 188 U. S. 1.

72. Chicago v. O'Malley, 196 Ill. 197; Starkweather v. Maginnis, 196 Ill. 274; Chicago City R. Co. v. Fennimore, 199 Ill. 9; Union El. R. Co. v. Nixon, 199 Ill. 235. Where evidence is conflicting and a motion to exclude the evidence and find for defendant is denied—Chicago v. Peck, 196 Ill. 260. Whether plaintiff was a fellow-servant with others is a question of fact—Frost Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 197 Ill. 253. As is also negligence of street railway company in action for injuries to passenger—Chicago City R. Co. v. Morse, 197 Ill. 327. And whether damages awarded are excessive—Chicago City R. Co. v. Morse, 197 Ill. 327; Chicago City R. Co. v. Fennimore, 199 Ill. 9. Finding of negligence on conflicting evidence in action against railroad company for death of child—Potter v. O'Donnell, 199 Ill. 119. Under Practice Act, § 87, finding of no negligence in action for personal injuries—Weeks v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 198 Ill. 551. Finding as to assumption of risk by employe—Anthony Ittner Brick Co. v. Ashby, 198 Ill. 562. Reversal by appellate court of findings of trial court as contrary to evidence and recital of findings in judgment—Aachen & M. Fire Ins. Co. v. Crawford, 199 Ill. 367. That a directed verdict is asked at close of all the evidence instead of at close of plaintiff's evidence will not change the rule as to review of refusal—Chicago City R. Co. v. Martensen, 198 Ill. 511. Finding as to waiver by mutual insurance society of forfeiture of membership—Grand Lodge v. Lachmann, 199 Ill. 140. Question of agency for fire insurance company—Northern Assur. Co. v. Chicago Mut. B. & L. Ass'n, 198 Ill. 474. Finding as to knowledge of benefit association that a member was engaged in selling liquor and as to waiver of by-law prohibiting members from such occupation—Coverdale v. Royal Arcanum, 199 Ill. 649. Excessiveness of verdict is a question of fact—Sinclair Co. v. Waddill, 200 Ill. 17. Finding as to waiver by insurance company of condition forfeiting policy—Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Sanford, 200 Ill. 126. A finding as to delay in performance of a contract is substantially a finding of fact that defendant was guilty of a breach of the contract which plaintiff had not waived—Iroquois Furnace Co. v. Elphicke, 200 Ill. 411. Discussion of former decision in brief and suggestion that court of its own motion might review it will not avail—Best v. British & A. Mortg. Co., 131 N. C. 70. Whether a member of a benefit association was in good standing at time of his death is a question of fact, and the supreme court will not consider effect of a by-law, whether notice of assessment was given, or whether default in dues had been waived—Hunter v. National Union, 197 Ill. 478. Whether certain property was covered by chattel mortgage of a corporation and whether the mort-trial court,[73] or of a jury;[74] but the facts so found must be the ultimate facts as shown in the pleadings.[75] The rule applies to findings of fact on appeal from the appellate division of the supreme court of New York;[76] though where a verdict directed on uncontradicted evidence is affirmed in the appellate division, the court of appeals may determine whether the evidence justified direction.[77] A finding of fact by the court of civil appeals of Texas, supported by the evidence, is conclusive on the supreme court though not on the lower court on retrial.[78] Findings of fact by the court of errors and appeals in New Jersey will not be reviewed by the supreme court.[79] Findings of fact by the court of chancery appeals of Tennessee will not be disturbed by the supreme court.[80] Exceptions to legal conclusions of a surrogate on dismissal of a proceeding will be reviewed by the court of appeals on appeal from an order of affirmance in the appellate division.[81] Modification, by the appellate division, of a judgment of a special term by striking out damages awarded one of the plaintiffs is a reversal, and if the order does not state the grounds on which it was based, the court of appeals will presume it was for errors of law and grant a new trial.[82] If the appellate division did not state that a reversal was upon the facts, in a case in which the question of the bar of limitations was not settled by the trial court, the court of appeals will not review that question.[83] Where a judgment on a verdict directed for the relator in mandamus in which both parties ask direction of a verdict has been affirmed by the appellate division of New York, the court of appeals will presume that the facts were settled so as to support the judgment.[84] The presence of both questions of law and fact in a particular issue will not make the finding reviewable.[85] Submission of a proposition, to the court on trial, that a chattel mortgage was executed without authority, does not render it a proposition of law reviewable by the supreme court under a law allowing "written propositions" to be submitted on trial without a jury.[86] If an appeal is taken to the appellate court of Illinois, involving a question of freehold, which that court cannot hear, appellant gage was executed without authority—Gilbert v. Sprague, 196 Ill. 444. Finding as to assumption of risk by servant under control of foreman—Western Stone Co. v. Muscial, 196 Ill. 382. Whether loss to goods in transit was due to shipper's negligence in loading—Elgin, J. & E. R. Co. v. Bates Mach. Co., 200 Ill. 636. Negligence of mother in action for death of child—True & True Co. v. Woda, 201 Ill. 315. Finding as to procuring release by fraud—Indiana, D. & W. R. Co. v. Fowler, 201 Ill. 152.

73. Jones v. Maxton, 197 Ill. 248.

74. O'Hara v. Murphy, 196 Ill. 599. In action for personal injuries where direction of verdict for defendant was not requested—Spring Val. Coal Co. v. Rowatt, 196 Ill. 156.

75. Iroquois Furnace Co. v. Elphicke, 200 Ill. 411.

76. Under Const. art. 6, § 9, and Code Civ. Proc. § 191, subd. 4—Archer v. Mt. Vernon, 171 N. Y. 629; Rider v. Syracuse R. T. R. Co., 171 N. Y. 139; Bank of Monongahela Valley v. Weston, 172 N. Y. 259; National Revere Bank v. National Bank of Republic, 172 N. Y. 102; In re Boerum St., 173 N. Y. 321. Authority of city to make street repairs as dependent on evidence of damage by frost is a question of fact—People v. Featherstonhaugh, 172 N. Y. 112. If there is some evidence which the jury believed the court of appeals will leave the value thereof as sustaining the verdict to the appellate division—Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Barnes, 172 N. Y. 618. Whether the acts of an owner of an easement were reasonable, in building a wharf over a basin controlled jointly by him and his grantee in a deed reserving the easement, involves questions of fact as to circumstances and necessity for the improvement, and an appeal from a reversal of the appellate division in an action to restrain the grantor will be dismissed—India Wharf Brew. Co. v. Brooklyn W. & W. Co., 173 N. Y. 167.

77. Second Nat. Bank v. Weston, 172 N. Y. 250.

78. Hunter v. Eastham, 95 Tex. 648.

79. Finding that location of highway was not induced by improper offers to supervisors—Devine v. Olney (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 466.

80. Carver v. Maxwell (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 752.

81. In re Killan's Estate, 172 N. Y. 547.

82. Van Siclen v. New York, 172 N. Y. 504.

83. Matteson v. Palser, 173 N. Y. 404.

84. People v. Scannell, 172 N. Y. 316.

85. Finding as to existence of waiver of by-law by benefit association—Coverdale v. Royal Arcanum, 199 Ill. 649.

86. The law does not permit exceptions as to rulings on submissions of fact (Practice Act, Ill. p. 138)—Gilbert v. Sprague, 196 Ill. 444. See, also, High Court Ind. v. Schweitzer, 171 Ill. 325.

cannot raise such question on appeal to the supreme court.[87] The appellate court of Illinois, in reversing a judgment and rendering one of its own, must give therein a recital of the facts as found as a basis for review by the supreme court.[88] If defendant submitted no propositions of law on trial and assigned no cross-errors on appeal by plaintiff to the appellate court, no questions of law remain for his appeal to the supreme court.[89] The statute restricting the supreme court to questions of law only, and making findings of fact by the appellate court conclusive, does not apply to chancery suits.[90] If the court of civil appeals of Texas does not review an error assigned on a finding of fact by the trial court, the supreme court will hold the error overruled, thus sustaining the trial court.[91] The finding of the circuit court on hearing of a motion to affirm a justice's judgment for failure to give notice of appeal, on conflicting evidence as to waiver of notice, is conclusive on appeal to the Missouri court of appeals.[92] A decision on re-examination as to whether a Chinaman is lawfully in the country, made by a federal commissioner and a judge of the district court on appeal from the commissioner, is conclusive on the supreme court.[93]

H. Effect of decision on former review in same court.—The decision of an appellate court is binding on that court on a subsequent appeal or writ of error in the same case,[94] where the second appeal from a trial as of right raises no question that could not have been raised on the first,[95] and where the case,[96] and the evidence, is in

87. Dean v. Plane, 195 Ill. 495.

88. Under Practice Act, Ill. § 88; sufficiency of finding as to practice of medicine or surgery without a license—People v. Smith, 199 Ill. 20.

89. Aachen & M. Fire Ins. Co. v. Crawford, 199 Ill. 367.

90. Prac. Act, § 90 (Rev. St. p. 1297); chancery proceeding against personal representative of deceased partner—Henry v. Caruthers, 196 Ill. 136.

91. Finding that contracts were procured by fraud—National Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Teel, 95 Tex. 586.

92. Pattison v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co., 93 Mo. App. 643.

93. Chin Bak Kan v. United States, 186 U. S. 193; Chin Ying v. Same, 186 U. S. 202.

94. Payette & Ferrier (Wash.) 71 Pac. 546; Commercial State Bank v. Ketcham (Neb.) 92 N. W. 998; Stager v. Troy Laundry Co., 41 Or. 141, 68 Pac. 405; Sisk v. Joyce (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 50; Branner v. Webb, 65 Kan. 857, 68 Pac. 1107; Benton County Sav. Bank v. Boddicker (Iowa), 90 N. W. 822; State v. O'Neil Lumber Co. (Mo.) 70 S. W. 121. The remedy, if any, is by petition to rehear—Holley v. Smith (N. C.) 43 S. E. 501; allowance of interest on accounting—Anderson v. Northrop (Fla.) 33 So. 419; Northrop v. Anderson, Id. Decision of particular question directly before the court—Jones v. Wilmington & W. R. Co. (N. C.) 42 S. E. 559. Former appeal on foreign judgment for alimony held to be final and enforceable—Arrington v. Arrington, 131 N. C. 143. Acts of trial court approved by implication on the first appeal will not be reviewed—Olsen v. North Pac. Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 77. Right of defendant corporation to purchase claims against a third party from plaintiff—Mahoney v. Butte Hardware Co. (Mont.) 71 Pac. 674. Construction of writings between the parties—Weigley v. Kneeland, 172 N. Y. 625. Affirmance of judgment taxing costs—In re Jerome Ave. (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 631; Hawes v. Hynes, Id. Appeal from judgment for plaintiff in action for personal injuries—Leeds v. New York Tel. Co. (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 121. Right of plaintiff to recover for wrongful restraint of property by attachment—Farmers' & Shippers' Tobacco Warehouse Co. v. Gibbons, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1670. Decision that mortgagee, after foreclosure, may bring an action for trespass before maturity of mortgage—Girard Life Ins., Annuity & Trust Co. v. Mangold, 94 Mo. App. 125. Rulings as to sufficiency of evidence to carry issues to the jury—Southern Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hudson, 115 Ga. 638. Though an amended complaint was filed after the complaint was held sufficient on demurrer by the appellate court, where it differed only as to parties included—Mississinewa Min. Co. v. Andrews, 28 Ind. App. 496. Offer of proof omitted on former trial which was not prejudicial to the other party will not change the law of the case—Lawson v. Spencer, 90 Mo. App. 514. That plaintiff withdrew all objection to incompetent evidence will not entitle defendant to have it considered by the appellate court so as to change its decision previously made—Standard Sewing Mach. Co. v. Leslie (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 557; Tidball's Ex'rs v. Shenandoah Nat. Bank (Va.) 42 S. E. 867; decision that evidence on a particular issue warranted submission to the jury—Wunderlich v. Palatine Ins. Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 264. Where defendant, in a writ of error to review a judgment entered on affirmance in the appellate court of a verdict directed for plaintiff, gave no evidence except what he had introduced on the first trial, which was held incompetent, the giving or refusal of instructions will not be reviewed—Standard Sewing Mach. Co. v. Leslie (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 557.

95. Bradley v. Lightcap, 201 Ill. 511; objection to appointment of receiver which might have been made on the first trial—Clark v. Brown (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 130.

96. Burke v. Ledsinger, 115 Ga. 195; Middeke v. Balder, 98 Ill. App. 525.

legal effect, the same,[97] but only as to questions necessarily involved and such as where presented and expressly or impliedly decided.[98] Questions which might have been but were not determined on the first appeal are not settled.[99] If on second trial, after reversal, new material evidence is given, the decision on the appeal as to matters concerning the finding is not conclusive on a second appeal,[1] except as to questions of law.[2] Where a cause is reversed and remanded generally, the assumption of a certain fact by the appeal court will not preclude determination of its existence on a second appeal, the record of which brings up additional evidence.[3] On appeal from an order rendered in an action on a judgment, questions raised by special answers in such action but determined on appeal from the judgment will not be considered.[4] As to matters not considered by the higher appellate court on appeal from an intermediate court, the decision of the lower court remains the law of the case.[5] A second judgment like the first will not be reversed also for insufficiency of evidence where, on retrial, the evidence in support is strengthened.[6] A reversal on a former appeal by part of defendants from a judgment against all will not disturb the judgment against those not appealing.[7] Where an order granting a new trial was reversed as given on erroneous ground and the court refused to consider other grounds assigned, such questions may be considered on an appeal from the judgment afterward entered.[8] A ruling on a first appeal that a petition states a cause of action so as to admit evidence supporting it over an oral objection will be conclusive on a second appeal where on the second trial defendant neither demurred nor moved for more definite averments but urged his former objection.[9] Affirmance of a judgment denying a preliminary injunction depending solely on questions of law concludes plaintiff as to such questions raised in his assignments of error though not all are expressly referred to in the opinion or synopsis.[10] Appeal from a decree entered in pursuance of a mandate of the United States supreme court brings up only the question whether the decree properly followed the mandate.[11]

§ 14. Provisional, ancillary, and interlocutory relief.—It is inherent in the appellate court to protect the subject-matter in statu quo pending an appeal.[12] If the appellate court be given authority to issue writs in aid of its jurisdiction, it can preserve the subject of litigation by injunction and the trial court has no power whatever,[13] but in some states the lower court may do so.[14] The circuit court of appeals cannot issue writs of prohibition in protection of its appellate jurisdiction not yet invoked.[15] When an intermediate court acting only for the protection of its

97. Travers v. McElvain, 200 Ill. 377. Appeal from non-suit in action for personal injuries because of contributory negligence—Copeland v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 418.

98. Herriman Irr. Co. v. Keel, 25 Utah, 96, 69 Pac. 719.

99. Wine v. Woods, 158 Ind. 388.

1. Herriman Irr. Co. v. Keel, 25 Utah, 96, 69 Pac. 719.

2. State v. Paxton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 983; Brown v. State, Id.

3. Lang v. Metzger, 101 Ill. App. 380. A statement on the first appeal that tax deeds of another state were presumptive evidence of title and regularity of the proceedings will not prevent determination of their invalidity on the second appeal for failure to name the state as grantor—Wine v. Woods, 158 Ind. 388.

4. Salem-Bedford Stone Co. v. Hobbs, 28 Ind. App. 520.

5. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hill (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 708.

6. Though plaintiff's evidence on the first trial was so impeached as to render reversal of a judgment in his favor necessary, a second judgment for him will not be disturbed where on the second trial his evidence was so corroborated as to render its falsity uncertain—Wunderlich v. Palatine Ins. Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 264.

7. A writ of error by plaintiffs against defendants not appealing will not be dismissed—Williams v. Wiley (Tex.) 71 S. W. 12.

8. Gray v. Washington Water Power Co., 30 Wash. 155, 70 Pac. 255.

9. Marshall v. Ferguson, 94 Mo. App. 175

10. Savannah, T. & I. H. R. Co. v. Savannah, 115 Ga. 137.

11. United States v. Camou, 184 U. S. 572.

12. Finlen v. Heinze (Mont.) 69 Pac. 829.

13. Finlen v. Heinze (Mont.) 69 Pac. 829.

14. Injunction will issue from the lower court to protect the property pending appeal under Civil Code 1887, § 144—Ajax G. M. Co. v. Triumph G. M. Co. (Colo.) 69 Pac. 523.

15. In re Paquet (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 437.

own jurisdiction continues a temporary restraining order issued by the lower court, such continuation ceases with the suing out of a writ of error to the highest court.[16] Before resorting to mandamus to compel a clerk to approve a supersedeas bond, the statutory remedy by motion should be tried.[17] The trial court during term may of its own motion revive an action where appellant dies after a short transcript, but before the bill of exceptions is filed.[18]

Since appealing from dissolution of an injunction does not continue it in force, an appeal may proceed after dissolution of a counter injunction against further proceedings and an appeal from the dissolution.[19]

Stay of appeal.—An appeal of a collateral judgment will be stayed until decision of an appeal from another judgment on which the first depends.[20] If a party has taken proper steps to procure the making of an order, and has in good faith appealed, proceedings may be stayed on the appeal until an order can be formally made on the motion appealed from.[21]

§ 15. Decision and determination. A. Affirmance or reversal.—Errors which do not prejudice appellant or are not substantial do not warrant a reversal,[22] but if error of law be prejudicial, a reversal follows though the court believes that the correct result on the evidence has been reached.[23] In some states however it is sufficient that a correct result is reached regardless of error.[24] If the case is decided below upon a certain theory of law, it may be affirmed on the correct theory.[25] The decisions upon the harmlessness or materiality of errors will be collected in a future article, which see.[26] Where mistake in the amount is offset by others in the appellant's favor, it is ignored,[27] nor will reversal be made to permit recovery of nominal damages solely.[28]

Affirmance or reversal should be on the facts in the record.[29] Affirmance may be with leave to apply for appropriate relief below when reversal cannot be made be-

16. Riggins v. Thompson (Tex.) 71 S. W. 14.

17. Code Civ. Pr. § 889—State v. Houseworth, 63 Neb. 658.

18. Crawford v. C., R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mo.) 66 S. W. 350.

19. Mauldin v. Greenville, 64 S. C. 444.

20. Freilsen v. Strader Cypress Co., 108 La. 61.

21. A motion to set aside a judgment and re-assess damages had been consolidated with a mandamus proceeding to compel payment, and mandamus was granted but no order made on the motion—People v. Holdredge (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 622. Proceeding on appeal was stayed to enable party to procure formal entry of order below—People v. Holdredge (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 622.

22. City of South Omaha v. Meyers (Neb.) 92 N. W. 743; Sibley Warehouse & S. Co. v. Durand & K. Co., 102 Ill. App. 406; Edmonston v. Jones (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 741; Vinson v. Scott, 198 Ill. 542; Linam v. Jones, 134 Ala. 570; Moore v. Ortgier, 103 Ill. App. 579; Kalina v. Steinmeyer, 103 Ill. App. 502; Kerr v. O'Keefe, 138 Cal. 415, 71 Pac. 447; Hannum v. Hill, 52 W. Va. 166; Gray v. Washington W.-P. Co., 30 Wash. 665; Swanson v. Keokuk & W. R. Co., 116 Iowa, 304; Succession of Hewitt, 107 La. 446; Boston Sav. Bank v. Bradford, 181 Mass. 199; Goodwin v. Goodwin (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 529; Chicago v. Le Moyne (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 662. Errors affecting issues decided favorably to appellant not ground to reverse—Hartman v. Warner (Conn.) 52 Atl. 719. Erroneous charge was disregarded—Erickson v. Kansas City, O. & S. R. Co. (Mo.) 71 S. W. 1022. Failure to allow nominal damages—Willets v. Ida County Sav. Bank (Iowa) 90 N. W. 729. See many cases in Harmless Error. Erroneous instruction as to damages for delay in paying for injury to land, but verdict only slightly exceeded lowest estimate and there was nine years delay—Provident L. & T. Co. v. Philadelphia, 202 Pa. 78. A wife cannot complain that the former allowance was excessive—Wagner v. Wagner (Mich.) 93 N. W. 889.

23. McNicol v. Collins, 30 Wash. 318, 70 Pac. 753. So in Illinois appellate courts—Irwin v. N. W. Nat. Life Ins. Co., 200 Ill. 577.

24. So by statute—Germania Fire Ins. Co. v. Pitcher (Ind.) 64 N. E. 921; Cox v. Peltier (Ind.) 65 N. E. 6; McCardle v. Aultman Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 507; Jackson v. Helmer (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 134. Defective pleadings—Willoughby v. Long (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 646.

25. If questions of law alone are involved, the rule will be applied though all parties have not appealed—Sheafer v. Mitchell (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 86.

26. Harmless Error.

27. Mayer v. Nethersole (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 383.

28. Hofferberth v. Myers (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 377. Costs or other right must be involved—School Dist. v. Burress (Neb.) 89 N. W. 609.

29. Smith v. Hooper, 95 Md. 16; Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 462.

cause lately developed conditions or defenses are not in the record.[30] Affirmance will be made despite error against an appellant whose failure to bring in a party would make any other decision wrong as to other appellees.[31] The changing of the law on which a judgment rests may require a reversal if no rights have become fixed or vested.[32] If a higher court reverses a decision on which the judgment at bar is based, a reversal in the case at bar will follow;[33] thus after two trials and the verdict of the jury in the first has been set aside below, exceptions taken and evidence certified, proceedings and evidence on the first trial will be examined, and, if error is discovered in setting aside the verdict, all subsequent proceedings will be set aside.[34] A decision may be had by agreement.[35] If inconsistent reliefs be granted, acceptance of one necessitates affirmance of the other.[36]

When a party has committed a defect or default in proceedings, a pro forma decision may be made without consideration of the merits,[37] so when there is no real dispute.[38]

An equal division of sitting and qualified judges makes an affirmance.[39] When a complete decision is made on one party's proceeding, others will be dismissed.[40] Where a judgment is reversed in a case controlled by questions made in the cross bill of exceptions, dismissal of a writ of error on the main bill will follow.[41]

Reversal or affirmance must be entire unless the parts of the decree are severable,[42] but a wrong judgment may be reversed in favor of one appealing defendant letting it stand against others who did not appeal,[43] and when reversed as to one, it is left so standing.[44] If not dependent on each other[45] and severable, a decision on one judgment does not affect the other,[46] but an original judgment may be reversed with the amended one in order to clear the record.[47] When an order denying the right to 30. Another judgment introduced in evidence as res adjudicata was later reversed—Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 462.

31. Priorities would have been deranged—Hall v. New York (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 102.

32. Law respecting disconnection of territory from city limits was retroactively repealed after affirmance in a lower court of appeal and affirmance was reversed—Burchett v. People, 197 Ill. 593. Decisions followed had been overruled—American Sugar Ref. Co. v. New Orleans (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 691.

33. MacFarland v. Byrnes, 19 App. D. C. 531.

34. Wood v. American Nat. Bank, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. Rep. 133, 40 S. E. 981.

35. State v. Schwartz F'dry Co., 108 La. 85.

36. Judgment for specific performance and also damages for breach—Hoskins v. Dougherty (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 102.

37. Power v. Stocking, 26 Mont. 475, 68 Pac. 857; Burnes' Estate v. American Br'g Co. (Mo.) 70 S. W. 512; Pavey v. Pavey, 102 Ill. App. 589. It is not given of right—Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 78; Alexander v. Wilson (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 602. Appellant discontinued and took no other appeal—Post v. Spokane (Wash.) 69 Pac. 371. Hearing on merits denied because of defects in briefs—Power v. Stocking, 26 Mont. 475, 68 Pac. 857. For failure of defendant to file briefs there should be a reversal and a pro forma judgment against defendant—Pavey v. Pavey, 102 Ill. App. 589. Striking briefs does not entitle the adverse party to decision—Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 78.

38. Reversal made because of absence of any real dispute upon merits—Matter of Ferris (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 619.

39. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Camper, 100 Ill. App. 21.

40. Decision on cross-error—Harwell v. Martin, 115 Ga. 156.

41. Harwell v. Martin, 115 Ga. 156; Martin v. Harwell, Id.

42. New Cache La Poudre Irr. Co. v. Water Co., 29 Colo. 469, 68 Pac. 781; Chicago Traction Co. v. Stanford, 104 Ill. App. 99. Joint judgment in tort erroneous as to one—Holz v. Rediske (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1105.

Judgment on counts to cancel a release and for damages for injury is severable—Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581. Under Rev. Codes N. D. § 5630, providing that the supreme court must finally dispose of the case unless a new trial is ordered—Prescott v. Brooks (N. D.) 90 N. W. 129.

43. Orr v. Wolff (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 614.

44. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Stebbins, 15 S. D. 280.

45. Judgment against garnishee reversed with main judgment though another judgment had been entered—Decatur v. Simpson (Iowa) 93 N. W. 496. Final judgment reversed with interlocutory one on which it depended—Schieck v. Donohue, 114 N. Y. State Rep. 739.

46. Connor v. General Fire Ex. Co. (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 624. Summary judgment against surety in forcible entry case may be reversed leaving judgment stand as against principal—Hadley v. Bernero (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 451.

47. One corrected the other—State v. Denham, 30 Wash. 643, 71 Pac. 196.

become a party is affirmed, a reversal should be entered of an order for a stay until decision.[48]

B. Transfers and removals, and certifications or reservations.—In Indiana a cause will be sent to the highest court when there is one disqualified judge of the intermediate court and a division of the others.[49] Decision may be withheld until determination of other controlling causes.[50] The circuit court of appeals may certify a treaty question reserving decision on other questions presented, or may decide without passing on such question.[51]

C. Remand or final determination.—There can be no original adjudication but only review.[52] A judgment for plaintiff in an action which clearly in point of law will not lie must be reversed.[53] Final determination may be given if nothing remains to be decided by a retrial,[54] as when the sole contention is a matter of law,[55] or if no different or more favorable result can be reached on a new trial,[56] or if a defect of pleadings,[57] or deficiency of proof appears which cannot be supplied,[58] or if there be a defect which is unsubstantial or is capable of correction by the appellate court.[59] It may be done where the appeal is so taken that all doubtful questions are concluded.[60] Certain classes of cases are excepted from these rules.[61] The court will finally dismiss as against an appellant whose pleadings show no cause of action.[62] Remand will not be made if the case turns on a point of the legal sufficiency of the evidence to make a prima facie case.[63] When a primary court decrees a new trial, but, lest a further appeal be taken, makes findings of fact, it is proper for it to rest there without entering final judgment.[64]

If any material fact or right is in doubt,[65] or there be a defect in procedure or

48. Matter of Parsons, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 622.

49. By virtue of statute—Seiler v. State (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 101.

50. Collateral rights in litigation—Frellson v. Strader Cypress Co., 108 La. 61.

51. U. S. v. Lee Yen Tai (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 465.

52. Jurisdiction on appeal from settlement of guardian's account in probate court is purely appellate, excluding matters of original jurisdiction—Magness v. Berry (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 987. Matters on provisional accounting incapable of adjudication will be left for a future accounting—Succession of Willis (La.) 33 So. 314.

53. Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280.

54. Good v. Lasher, 99 Ill. App. 653; Lazarus v. Rosenberg (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 105. Appellate division may, under Code Civ. Pr. §§ 626, 1348, dissolve ex parte injunction on appeal from refusal of special term to do so—Marty v. Marty (N. Y.) 66 App. Div. 527. Error in assessing too great a proportion of costs of local improvements against abutter, requires reversal, although the city does not complain of the portion assessed against it—Kreiger v. Gosnell, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1095.

55. On review of a mandamus to an officer, the sole issue was on a law question of all his powers—State v. Police Com'rs (Mo.) 71 S. W. 215.

56. City of Chicago v. Jackson, 196 Ill. 496; Bedford Quarries Co. v. Thomas, 29 Ind. App. 89.

57. Glover v. Clark, 100 Ill. App. 176. Injunctional order granted on bill showing no equity was finally dismissed—Worth Mfg. Co. v. Bingham (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 785.

58. City of Galveston v. Brown (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 156.

59. Under a provision requiring a decision according to substantial justice regardless of technical errors, judgment may be given without remanding to amend conformably to proof—Jackson v. Helmer (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 134.

60. Action in Louisiana for killing sheep was appealed to supreme court which could not consider any but constitutional questions—Rausch v. Barrere (La.) 33 So. 602.

61. Election contest will be remanded, though all necessary evidence is up—Patterson v. Hanley, 136 Cal. 265, 68 Pac. 821, reluctantly following precedents.

62. Iodence v. Peters (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1041.

63. Richardson v. Moffit-West Co. (Mo. App.) 69 S. W. 398. Entire failure to fix liability on defendant—Wells, Fargo Express v. Waites (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 450. Under N. Y. practice if a motion to dismiss be reserved until after general verdict, an appeal from dismissal takes up the verdict, and judgment may be given (Code Civ. Pr. § 1187)—Niemoller v. Duncombe (N. Y.) 59 App. Div. 614.

64. Traughber v. Smelser, 108 Tenn. 347.

65. Hurst v. Benson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 417; Low v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 421. Two women claiming as widows damages for death by wrongful act—Albinest v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co., 107 La. 133. Decree refusing foreclosure reversed regardless of fact that separate judgment on note had been reversed—Cooper v. Haythorn (Kan.) 71 Pac. 277. Reversal in mandamus case is necessitated if findings are not returned by the trial judge as required—People v. Dalton (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 499. Divorce case remanded to adjudicate property rights—McAllister v. McAllister, 28 Wash. 613, 69 Pac. 119. Judgment of ac-proof which may be amended,[66] or if there be evidence tending to make a case or defense though the weight be against it, a remand for new trial is necessary.[67] It will not be denied because a different result is improbable.[68] Remand will be made to a lower court of review which failed to pass on a material point,[69] or where the trial court was not asked to correct error.[70]

Judgment may be modified if everything necessary to advise the court in so doing is before it, or the fact is admitted;[71] otherwise it must be affirmed or reversed and the changes made by the trial court.[72] Errors of computation[73] or clerical errors may be corrected,[74] and excessive or erroneous amounts may be reduced,[75] but relief against subsequent conditions requires the exercise of original jurisdiction.[76] Improper costs may be stricken out or a new judgment given which eliminates them.[77] It cannot be modified in favor of a party not appealing.[78]

Remand with directions.—If to sustain jurisdiction the action must necessarily be regarded one of tort and hence abatable by death, death of defendant pending appeal will necessitate a remand with direction to abate the action.[79] If the record of an intermediate court of appeal shows that it had no jurisdiction of the case, the case may be remanded to such court for it to dismiss the appeal.[80] Where much time has elapsed, a new trial should be given rather than send back the cause for find-counting reversed as to one item may be remanded for finding on that alone—James v. West (Ohio) 65 N. E. 156. Allowance to executors for extraordinary services cannot be apportioned in the absence of facts—Glover v. Check, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1783.

66. A faulty amended complaint was used though the original one was good—Braggins v. Holekamp (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 57. Lack of proof of due passage of an ordinance—Puchen v. Jennings, 107 La. 413. Remanded with leave to amend to conform to proofs made—Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Buffehr (Colo.) 69 Pac. 582. In an equitable cause defendant withheld evidence because some of plaintiff's evidence was excluded—Robson v. Hamilton, 41 Or. 239, 69 Pac. 651. Where pleadings were defective but had been treated as good, and judgment was given without proof of a material fact the cause was remanded—Eaton v. Tod (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 546; Succession of Emonot (La.) 33 So. 368. Want of evidence due to error of exclusion—Wall v. Dimmitt, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1749; Santaquin Min. Co. v. High Roller Min. Co. (Utah) 71 Pac. 77. As on reversing judgment of abatement where there had also been a demurrer to complaint—Hayden v. Kirby (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 198.

67. Chicago City R. Co. v. Maloney, 99 Ill. App. 623; Gordon v. Hall (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 219. Judgment formerly set aside in trial court not entered in lieu of that appealed—E. H. Taylor v. Warehouse Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1656.

68. Sherman v. Ludin (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 614.

69. Wideman v. Patton, 64 S. C. 408.

70. Appellant should move below for a correction of the verdict which is too small—Comstock v. Fraternal Ass'n (Wis.) 93 N. W. 22.

71. Order to vacate changed to one "opening" judgment where the object of it was to let in a defense—Potts v. Harmer, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 252. Want of evidence other than improbable testimony of a party will require reversal—Numan v. Wolf (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 38. Judgment against claim bond in statutory action to try right to attached property, instead of against the property itself held capable of correction—Arnold v. Cofer, 135 Ala. 364. Perpetual injunction against construction of a railroad may be modified to permit of its construction if proper condemnation proceedings be had—Peck v. Schenectady R. Co., 170 N. Y. 298. An injunction may be modified by excluding its operation from matters inadvertently included—Pape v. New York & H. R. Co. (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 175.

72. It appeared that obstruction of a water course was not harmful at all seasons but it did not appear just when; hence injunction against it was affirmed—Mace v. Mace, 40 Or. 586, 68 Pac. 737, 67 Pac. 660. Absence of material evidence which trial court did not give appealing party time to produce—United States v. Rio Grande Dam Co., 184 U. S. 416, 46 Law. Ed. 619.

73. Error of referee in computation—Hasbrouck v. Marks (N. Y.) 58 App. Div. 33.

74. Hopper v. Hickam, 169 Mo. 166, 69 S. W. 297.

75. Judgment embracing admittedly unproved items—Mullin v. Langley (N. Y.) 37 Misc. 789.

76. Appellate court cannot relieve but must affirm—Village of New Holland v. Holland, 99 Ill. App. 251. Judgment for vendor for purchase price will not be reversed to add an order for delivery of deed, where one was tendered and refused, and no question of tender was brought in issue—North Stockton Town Lot Co. v. Fischer, 138 Cal. 100, 70 Pac. 1082.

77. Guttery v. Boshell, 132 Ala. 596; Cramer v. Huff, 114 Ga. 981.

78. Decree settling accounts—Snyder v. O'Beirne (Mich.) 93 N. W. 872.

79. Bank of Iron Gate v. Brady, 184 U. S. 665, 46 Law. Ed. 739.

80. Involving validity of the statute—Commissioners of Drainage Dist. v. Commissioners of Highways, 199 Ill. 80.

ings to sustain judgment.[81] An order to enter judgment on the verdict may be given when the setting aside of it is reversed.[82] If the reviewing court having power to change findings made on a trial to the court remands the cause without doing so, it cannot direct specific judgment below.[83] A direction may be made to take more evidence.[84] Amendments to prove a jurisdictional fact will not be permitted in the appellate court but reversal with leave to amend should be made.[85] A direction cannot be made for leave to plead a new cause of action cutting off new defenses, or allowing a prayer for relief which plaintiff was offered below but refused.[86]

An affirmance may be conditioned on a remittitur of excessive[87] or illegal sums awarded,[88] or upon payment of costs which should have been imposed but were not.[89] To warrant an order for remittitur of erroneous items in a verdict, the improper awards should be separated and identified from the others.[90] Reversal should not be made as against a party who offers to make good an inadequacy in the award.[91]

On appeal from the municipal court in New York, a demand for a new trial may be treated as surplusage where neither party demanded judgment for more than $50. Jurisdiction to grant the new trial cannot be conferred by stipulation of the parties.[92]

D. Findings, conclusions, or opinions on which decision is predicated.—When a lower court of appeal reverses it should make findings or conclusions to support and explain its decision,[93] unless there is no controversy of fact.[94] They will not as a rule find facts on evidence which the record itself shows.[95] Rights may be adju-

81. Want of material findings in partition—Levine v. Goldsmith (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 204.

82. Set aside on a jurisdictional objection and was found to be supported by evidence and unaffected by error—Strawn v. Brandt-Dent Co. (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 234.

83. Guyer's Estate v. Caldwell, 98 Ill. App. 232.

84. If affidavits on motion to attach for contempt are uncertain and unsatisfactory, a denial of the motion may be reversed, and the cause sent to a referee to take evidence—Hogan v. Clarke (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 615.

85. Watson v. Bonfils (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 157.

86. Action to set aside conveyance—Warner v. Godfrey, 186 U. S. 365, 46 Law. Ed. 1203.

87. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Darby (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 446; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Burke, 101 Ill. App. 486; Leach v. Durkin, 98 Ill. App. 415; City of Chicago v. Glore, 99 Ill. App. 78; City of Chicago v. Gilfoil, Id. 88; Hill v. Oswald, Id. 120; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Murphy, Id. 126; City of Chicago v. Doolan, Id. 143; Swafford v. Spratt, 93 Mo. App. 631; Illinois Car Co. v. Weibel, 101 Ill. App. 490. The county court may do so on appeal from the Syracuse municipal court—Lynch v. Syracuse, etc., R. Co. (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 95.

If majority of court think excessive—Skelton v. St. Paul C. R. Co. (Minn.) 92 N. W. 960.

Court should be satisfied the jury acted honestly—Hawes v. Warren, 119 Fed. 978. And in Colorado (Code, § 217) remittitur cannot be ordered if the excess was due to passion and prejudice—F. M. Davis Ironworks v. White (Colo.) 71 Pac. 384.

88. Usury—Sorensen v. Central Lumber Co., 98 Ill. App. 581. Unproved item—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Tucker (Miss.) 31 So. 792; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Sampson (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 692. Remittitur of a separate judgment erroneously entered in addition to a joint judgment—Cunningham v. Underwood (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 803. Award exceeding ad damnum clause—Trustees of Christian University v. Hoffman, 95 Mo. App. 488; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Pawkett (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 323; First Nat. Bank v. Calkins (S. D.) 93 N. W. 646. Erroneous interest remitted and costs paid—Meyer v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 95 Mo. App. 721. Allowance covered too long a time—United Press v. A. S. Abell Co. (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 550.

89. Order granting new trial—Helgers v. Staten Island R. Co. (N. Y.) 69 App. Div. 570.

90. Held sufficient where verdict stated separate items and on what they were based, and where excess was equal to the amount claimed improperly—W. U. Tel. Co. v. Partlow (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 584. Confirmation of special tax which included an improper item distributed over many properties must be reversed—Thompson v. Chicago, 197 Ill. 599.

91. Hoyt v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 724.

92. King v. Norton (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 619. As to inferior court judgments generally, see Courts, Justices of the Peace.

93. In Illinois the appellate court must make findings if it finds different from the trial court, even when facts are stipulated—Irwin v. N. W. Nat. Life Co., 200 Ill. 577.

94. Matter of execution of written instrument—Iroquois Furnace Co. v. Elphicke, 200 Ill. 411.

95. Instruments set out—Scott v. Farmers' Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 343; Rountree v. Thompson (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 69. Motion for additional conclu-dicated if decisive of the question.[96] Unnecessary questions will not be answered.[97] No decision will be made as to a nonappealing party unless it is necessitated by the decision on appellant's case.[98]

E. Modifying or relieving from appellate decree.—Decision will not be modified ex parte for matters not in the record.[99] If the alimony part of a divorce decree was not appealed and the facts as to alimony are not in the record, the appellate decision cannot be modified in such respect.[1] A lower court decree pursuant to remand may be reversed to correct error in the appellate decision.[2] Leave may be granted after affirmance, to apply to the lower court to vacate a satisfied judgment.[3] If leave be given to vacate a judgment below, applicant is not restricted to the showing made above.[4] If right to plead over given below was not reserved in a judgment of affirmance, application for it should be made above.[5] Since a remand revests jurisdiction in the lower court, the reviewing court may vacate without notice any judgment thereafter made by it.[6]

F. Mandate and retrial.—The cause usually but does not necessarily go back to the same tribunal for trial.[7] After reversal of a referee's judgment, the case does not go back to him.[8] A motion for issuance of mandate without costs on ground of poverty requires a clear showing.[9] Time to issue mandate is computed from the date of original decision above and not from corrected dates.[10]

Retrial.—No new note of issue is required where a cause once on docket stays until stricken or disposed of.[11] In Kentucky, statutory notice of filing a mandate is needless to take a case to the next term when filed in court during term time.[12] A remanded cause may proceed by jury trial though the former trial was to the court.[13] When the highest court renders judgment absolute pursuant to appellant's stipulation, no proceeding to assess damages is needed if it was done in the order appealed.[14]

Matters decided are fixed and should not be raised again,[15] unless new evidence sions denied because on matters in record by bill of exceptions—Texas Tram Co. v. Gwin (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 721.

96. People v. Court of Appeals (Colo.) 69 Pac. 606.

97. Conflicting special findings not reconciled for an unsuccessful appellant—Kirkpatrick v. Tarlton (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 179. Effect of breach of contract resulting in no damage—New Idea Pattern Co. v. Whelan (Conn.) 53 Atl. 953.

98. Christopher & S. Foundry Co. v. Kelly, 91 Mo. App. 93.

99. Smith v. Hooper, 95 Md. 16.

1. Gibson v. Gibson, 18 App. D. C. 72.

2. Intermediate court will reverse judgment following its own mandate if supreme court afterward reverses decision on which mandate issued—Guyer's Estate v. Caldwell, 98 Ill. App. 232.

3. Post v. Spokane, 28 Wash. 701, 69 Pac. 371, 1104.

4. State v. Superior Court (Wash.) 71 Pac. 740.

5. White v. Jackson (N. Y.) 39 Misc. 218.

6. Thomas v. Robinson (Iowa) 92 N. W. 70.

7. After the creation of two districts in W. Va. a remanded cause will, under the provision of Act of Congress, Jan. 22, 1901, be sent to the northern district in order to be heard before the trial judge, though otherwise the cause would have been transferred to the southern district—Hatfield v. King, 186 U. S. 178, 46 Law. Ed. 1112.

8. Camp v. Bank (Fla.) 33 So. 241.

9. Party had property but did not show that effort to sell had been made or that it was impossible to sell—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 788.

10. Lee v. British & Am. Mortg. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 775. Act 1901, c. 54, as to time of taking mandate, construed to operate prospectively and to apply where a defeated plaintiff procures a reversal—Scales v. Marshall (Tex.) 70 S. W. 945.

11. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes, § 4970—Spokane & V. Copper Co. v. Colfelt, 30 Wash. 628, 71 Pac. 196.

12. Chestnut v. Russell, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 704.

13. Guyer's Estate v. Caldwell, 98 Ill. App. 232.

14. Damages were found and case dismissed, that was reversed and reversal affirmed—Wright v. Mt. Vernon (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 467.

15. People v. Hathaway, 102 Ill. App. 628; Fortunato v. New York (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 441; Russell v. Mohr-Weil Co., 115 Ga. 35; Martin v. People's Bank, 115 Fed. 226. That action was equitable—Porter v. International Bridge Co. (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 358. Rights of a lessee on certain facts—Shaft v. Carey (Wis.) 90 N. W. 427. Taxation and allowance of costs—In re Henschel, 114 Fed. 968. Fees should not be allowed to receiver after his appointment is held invalid—La Femina v. Arsene (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 620. Though decided for a wrong reason—Hutch-is received making a different case;[16] hence a judgment against defendant, who proved an answer held to state a complete defense, is wrong;[17] but if the point or issue was not reviewed, it is still open,[18] if the right to raise it has not been lost by delay, failure to object, or appeal, or the like.[19]

The court must follow the mandate else a second reversal will follow.[20] The verdict for a successful appellant may be set aside though a directed verdict for the adversary was wrong.[21] New terms of sale may be imposed in a second foreclosure after reversal of the first for usury.[22]

Unless restricted by the mandate, amendments may be allowed by the court below.[23] Pleadings and papers may be amended to state facts more fully,[24] or to state inson v. Manhattan Co., 170 N. Y. 579. Decision on facts not binding where retrial was discontinued and new action brought in different jurisdiction—Ill. Cent. R. Co. v. Bentz, 108 Tenn. 670.

Answer may be let in after reversal for not defaulting defendant (Code, § 274) Cook v. Am. Exchg. Bank, 131 N. C. 96.

Trial court bound only by decisions of law—Hale v. People's Gas Co., 102 Ill. App. 364. Contradicting former testimony affects credibility only (Pacific Biscuit Co. v. Dugger (Or.) 70 Pac. 523; but see Wunderlich v. Palatine Ins. Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 264, holding that opinion cannot be read to contradict him. Trial may be de novo on facts if no directions given—Hovland v. McNeill & H. Co., 104 Ill. App. 149.

If no change in proof verdict may be directed—Lindsey v. Allen (Ga.) 43 S. E. 49. Instruction applicable to same facts sustained—Ward v. St. Vincent's Hospital (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 317.

16. Phelps Co. Ins. Co. v. Johnston (Neb.) 92 N. W. 576; Friedman v. Lesher, 198 Ill. 21. Bass Dry Goods Co. v. Granite City Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 415; Sovereign Camp W. O. W. v. Haller (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 186; Boston & M. Min. Co. v. Montana Ore Pchg. Co., 27 Mont. 431, 71 Pac. 471; State v. Paxton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 983; Griffen v. Manice (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 371. Different evidence—Pacific Coast Biscuit Co. v. Dugger (Or.) 70 Pac. 523. New findings held immaterial on right of trustee to compensation—Bemmerly v. Woodard, 136 Cal. 326, 68 Pac. 1017. Retrial after reversal of involuntary nonsuit—Fuchs v. St. Louis, 167 Mo. 620. Evidence held not material as to time of accruing of right to proceeds of commercial paper—Hutchinson v. Manhattan Co., 170 N. Y. 579.

17. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Mahoney, 29 Ind. App. 654.

18. Duncan v. Scott Co., 70 Ark. 607. Instructions given—Kibler v. Southern R. Co., 64 S. C. 242. Referee's report is still evidence if its admissibility was not reviewed—Boody v. Pratt (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 470. Right to interest not concluded when not mentioned—Whitehead v. Brothers Lodge I. O. O. F., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1633.

19. Sufficiency of pleadings—Greenwood Tp. v. Richardson, 10 Kan. App. 581, 62 Pac. 430. New possible defense covered by answer but not considered on review, cannot be let in after reversing judgment on pleadings for want of a specified fact—Shaft v. Carey (Wis.) 90 N. W. 427. Separate issues not appealed are closed—Bemmerly v. Woodard, 136 Cal. 326, 68 Pac. 1017.

20. Delbridge v. Lake B. & L. Ass'n, 98 Ill. App. 96. Judgment on retrial sustained—Kentucky Heating Co. v. Louisville Gas Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 990. Slight departure may be error but not make void—People v. Carpenter, 29 Colo. 365, 68 Pac. 221. Held error to deduct costs from sum adjudged—Lockhart v. Severance, 63 S. C. 74.

New judgment should not be entered on directions to modify it in a certain respect and "further if necessary"—Bemmerly v. Woodard, 136 Cal. 326, 68 Pac. 1017. Contra where the kind of modification was not prescribed—Downing v. Rademacher, 138 Cal. 324, 71 Pac. 343.

Mandamus not proper remedy for departure—People v. Carpenter, 29 Colo. 365, 68 Pac. 221.

Contra,—American Placer Co. v. Rich (Idaho) 69 Pac. 280.

Appeal lies if mandate be transgressed—Butler v. Thompson, 52 W. Va. 311.

Conformity of procedure to mandate; construction. It should construe an opinion in light of the subject of it—Farrow v. Eclipse Bicycle Co., 18 App. D. C. 101. Decision construed on right to prove subsequent facts not as defense but as going to mitigation of damages—Gabay v. Doane (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 413. Reversal for errors on trial not construed as favorable to party on facts, in face of adverse holding on every issue—Smith v. Day, 117 Fed. 956; Huntress v. Portwood (Ga.) 42 S. E. 513. Reversal for want of a finding not a decision on facts—Conway v. Catholic Knights, 137 Cal. 384, 70 Pac. 223. Opinion on practice does not conclude merits—Bradshaw v. Gunter, 135 Ala. 240. Decision held conformable to opinion reversing decree quieting title and instead deciding equities in mining claim—Dowing v. Rademacher, 138 Cal. 324, 71 Pac. 343. Reversal of nonsuit does not decide on facts—Kelly v. Strouse (Ga.) 43 S. E. 280. When issue goes back as to whether writing sets out the whole of a contract, it is error to exclude testimony as varying an instrument—Huber Mfg. Co. v. Hunter (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 484. As to right of recovery for breach of covenant for title—Egan v. Martin (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 468.

21. Binion v. Georgia R. Co., 115 Ga. 330.

22. Morgan v. Wickliffe, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1039.

23. The applicant should excuse failure to do so earlier—Russell v. Mohr-Weil Co., 115 Ga. 35. Refusal to let in a defense of limitations sustained—Wilson v. Winsor, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1343. Reversal on reasons first developed on review held to warrant leave to amend without paying costs—Miller additional facts.[25] Amendment to conform to proof is primarily discretionary with the court below.[26] Additional facts may before resubmission be added to a demurrable complaint after reversal of judgment for want of them.[27] After appeals de novo, as in equity, amendments are not allowable, but in special circumstances relief is given.[28]

Other relief may be given on a retrial which is not repugnant to the mandate.[29] When an order on a motion is reversed and remanded without direction, the merits are still open to the court below.[30] Application for a remedy may be renewed on a remand with leave to resort to any remedy without prejudice to former applications.[31] An intimation in the opinion as to right of recovery does not exclude that issue from a retrial.[32] An order of restitution may be made if judgment has been paid with an agreement to repay if reversed.[33]

Proceedings on remand to lower appellate court.—If sent back for want of jurisdiction, decision stands and mandate must issue.[34] An intermediate appellate court to which a cause was remanded because the agreed facts were too meagre must make findings of fact or if error of law exists remand the cause further to the trial court.[35] When a reversal is sent back to find facts or if reversed for error of law to remand, an affirmance may be made by the intermediate court.[36] An omitted finding of fact may be supplied on a mandate to reverse and remand or affirm.[37] An intermediate appellate court should reverse a judgment entered pursuant to its own mandate, if such course is necessitated by a decision of the highest court contrary to directions in such mandate.[38] A mere entry on rescript to the court below, "exceptions overruled," leaves the suit still pending until final decree.[39]

§ 16. Rehearing and relief thereon.—Rehearings are allowed only when the judgment finally disposes of the cause.[40] The petition must state matters not already considered,[41] but new points not before urged cannot be urged,[42] and record subsequent to judgment appealed will not be received.[43] A time is usually prescribed within which rehearing must be asked or petition filed.[44] The petition must be

v. Carpenter (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 130. Amendment allowed to conform to statutory procedure and to use such evidence formerly adduced as was responsive (proceeding to enjoin prevention of change of point of diversion of water changed so as to sue to make change)—New Cache La Poudre Co. v. Water Supply Co., 29 Colo. 469, 68 Pac. 781. It is not a contempt but an occasion for appeal if the trial judge deny an amendment designed to present a defense not passed on because not pleaded—May v. Ball, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 241. Mandate gave directions on facts found and on which opinion was based —Butler v. Thompson, 52 W. Va. 311.

24. A contempt affidavit if meager may be amended on re-trial—Scott v. State (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 824.

25. Emerson v. Schwindt, 114 Wis. 124. Amendments should not be made to meet objections overruled by the supreme court —Russell v. Mohr-Weil Lumber Co., 115 Ga. 35.

26. Male v. Schaut, 41 Or. 425, 69 Pac. 137.

27. Charleston R. Co. v. Miller, 115 Ga. 92.

28. Evidence of bona fides and that former evidence was fraudulent—Fellows v. Loomis, 204 Pa. 225.

Evidence held not to show concealment of facts warranting such relief — Farrow v. Eclipse Bicycle Co., 18 App. D. C. 101.

29. Grant of new trial two years after remand held not error—Canosia Tp. v. Grand Lake Tp., 87 Minn. 347.

30. Temporary alimony—Marx v. Marx, 94 Mo. App. 172.

31. Contempt against one who interfered with receiver—Fletcher v. McKeon (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 231.

32. Csatlos v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 635.

33. Denning v. Yount (Kan.) 71 Pac. 250.

34. Bradley v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 92 Mo. App. 241.

35. Heath & Milligan Co. v. National Linseed Oil Co., 99 Ill. App. 90.

36. Heath & M. Co. v. National Linseed Oil Co., 197 Ill. 632.

37. Agnew v. Supple, 99 Ill. App. 19.

38. Guyer's Estate v. Caldwell, 98 Ill. App. 232.

39. Cushing v. Cushing, 181 Mass. 209.

40. Refusal to dismiss is interlocutory—Gagneaux v. Desonier (La.) 33 So. 561.

41. Da Costa v. Dibble (Fla.) 33 So. 466.

42. Indiana Power Co. v. St. Joseph Power Co. (Ind.) 64 N. E. 468; Mathews v. Granger, 196 Ill. 164; Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli Co., 29 Colo. 377, 68 Pac. 286. Instruction cannot be assailed on objections not broader than urged at hearing—Union Pac. R. Co. v. Colorado Tel. Co. (Colo.) 69 Pac. 564; McDonald v. People, 29 Colo. 503, 69 Pac. 703. Points not in briefs—Fishel v. Goddard (Colo.) 69 Pac. 607.

43. Clipper Min. Co. v. Eli Co., 29 Colo. 377, 68 Pac. 286.

44. The court cannot extend the statufiled as of the day it is received; and delivering it for transmission to the clerk is not delivery to him.[45] It should be addressed to the court and the court should pass on it.[46] Final disposition of cause will not be made on application for rehearing.[47] Reversal founded on apparent defects of trial procedure will be set aside and the judgment affirmed on a showing that the clerk omitted to put them in the record and the party could not sooner have known of or corrected it; if there has been unexplained delay, and the case must go back in any event, he may be remanded to such remedy as may still be given in the trial court.[48]

§ 17. Liability on bonds and the like.[49]—No liability attaches to the obligor in an erroneously exacted supersedeas bond.[50] An appeal undertaking, insufficient to comply with the statute, may bind the sureties as a common law undertaking, if there is an actual stay of execution thereon.[51] The conservator of a lunatic who has given a bond on appeal from a judgment against him cannot question its validity for want of a proper obligee.[52]

Extent of liability.—Moneys already paid should be allowed on recovery.[53] Under statutes requiring an appellant to give an undertaking to pay all costs and damages awarded on appeal, the liability of a surety extends only to the costs of the appeal to the appellate court.[54] On supersedeas of a judgment overruling a demurrer to the petition, the surety is not liable for the amount of a verdict finally rendered.[55] On a bond filed by one party appealing, the liability extends only for loss occasioned by the suspension of the portion of judgment superseded by such party.[56]

Sureties are not liable for damage occasioned by the party's own neglect and not the stay.[57] Interest not awarded by the appellate court cannot be included in the damages where there is no proof of misconduct on the part of appellant.[58] On an appeal bond superseding an order confirming a foreclosure sale and directing the execution of a deed and delivery of possession to the purchaser, the obligee may tory time to seek a rehearing—Dudgeon v. Bronson (Ind.) 65 N. E. 752. Must be filed within 25 days of filing opinion—Radloff v. Haase, 197 Ill. 98. 15 days after decision—Smith v. Simpson (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 841.

45. Radloff v. Haase, 197 Ill. 98.

46. Under the laws of Arkansas as adopted for the government of the Indian Territory, the court of appeals in the territory, has no authority to adopt a rule permitting a judge to order a rehearing. If presented after term within the fifteen days allowed, a judge should indorse an order for filing upon the petition which shall then stand over for hearing until the tenth day of the next term—Smith v. Simpson (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 841.

47. Losecco v. Gregory, 108 La. 648.

48. Service on a necessary party—Powell v. Nolan, 27 Wash. 318, 68 Pac. 389.

49. Variance in statement of term held unimportant—White v. Boreing, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 738.

50. Bond required of an administrator—Kerr v. Lowenstein (Neb.) 90 N. W. 931.

51. The sureties were charged with notice that they were not merely executing a cost bond—Coughran v. Hollister, 15 S. D. 318.

52. Bond given to the estate—Duncan v. Thomas (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 310.

53. Penny v. Richardson (Okl.) 71 Pac. 227.

54. An undertaking on an appeal to the appellate court, stating that it was made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1326 and that the surety undertook that appellant would pay all costs and damages awarded against him on appeal, does not include costs in all the courts, though judgment absolute was rendered against appellant with costs in all the courts—Bennett v. American Surety Co. (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 468.

55. His liability is only for the costs of prosecuting the writ of error—Franklin v. Kriegshaber, 114 Ga. 947.

56. On a bond given by a third party made defendant in foreclosure where a judgment had been rendered against the creditor for the debt and against both parties for foreclosure, the appellant is not liable for money judgment rendered against the creditor but only for loss directly occasioned by a postponement of the foreclosure sale—Adoue v. Wettermark (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 553.

57. Adverse party failed to take possession of mortgaged property after the dismissal of appeal and dissolution of injunction—Pfirshing v. Peterson, 98 Ill. App. 70.

58. Fund deposited at interest, and no proof of unreasonable or vexatious delay in prosecuting the appeal and appellee had received the fund with its accumulations—Pike v. Gregory (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 128.

recover rents and profits collected by the judgment debtor after confirmation of the sale,[59] though a deficiency judgment is paid.[60] On a bond on writ of error from a decree in rem, the obligors are not held to pay any of the money decree.[61]

Satisfaction and discharge of sureties.[62]—A bond on appeal from trial to an intermediate court is not discharged by a bond from an intermediate to a higher court, and payment of one does not satisfy the other.[63] A change of issues by amendment in the appellate court discharges the sureties.[64] An amendment of the judgment which does not affect the legal rights of the parties does not affect the rights of sureties on the appeal bond.[65] Confinement of the principal for contempt in failing to pay the judgment does not operate as a satisfaction.[66] Sureties on appeal for a defendant who gave bond to prevent restitution are liable until restitution is made.[67] Violation of an injunction pending an appeal should be redressed against the injunction bond and not against the supersedeas which left such injunction in force.[68]

Forfeiture and enforcement.—A bond on a writ of error is forfeited with dismissal of the writ.[69] An action on an appeal bond is barred by the statutes relating generally to official bonds.[70] One joint obligee may maintain an action if it is alleged and proven that he has become entitled to the interests of co-obligees, but he must prove such fact if it is denied, and where he has not made such showing, it is in the discretion of the court whether it will permit a juror to be withdrawn and the case continued.[71] Independent actions may be brought on bonds given by the same party on appeal to an intermediate court and from the intermediate to a final court.[72] The property of the judgment debtor need not be exhausted before suing on a supersedeas bond, nor need an execution be issued and returned nulla bona, nor in case of decease of the judgment debtor need the remedy against his estate be first pursued.[73]

Evidence of misrepresentations releasing the surety must connect them with the execution of the bond.[74]

59. Woodworth v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 185 U. S. 354, 46 Law. Ed. 945. During the time he has been kept out of possession by the bond—Brown v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 148.

60. German Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Kern (Or.) 70 Pac. 709.

61. The bond was conditioned to prosecute the writ with effect—Smith v. Caldwell (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 926.

62. The liability of a surety on an appeal bond in foreclosure is not discharged by payment of part of a bid made by him at a sale, under the judgment, which was not completed—Leopold v. Epstein (N. Y.) 54 App. Div. 133. Mistake in the omission of the husband from the judgment rendered on appeal from a judgment in favor of husband and wife, is not a defense to an action on the appeal bond. Judgment in city district court in an action for an injury to wife, removed to the common pleas—Rosenberg v. Stover, 67 N. J. Law, 506.

63. The securities are cumulative—Aurand v. Aurand, 98 Ill. App. 524.

64. Stay bond on appeal from probate to district court—Smith v. Haner (Idaho) 69 Pac. 109.

65. Amendment of a foreclosure judgment requiring the sheriff to pay from proceeds of the sale, the expenses of sale, the costs adjudged to the plaintiff and the amount of the mortgage debt, so as to direct him to pay the mortgage debt and thereafter the costs and expenses, does not affect the rights of the sureties—Leopold v. Epstein (N. Y.) 54 App. Div. 133.

66. Confinement of conservator of insane person for contempt in failing to pay a judgment to the estate of the ward not a satisfaction discharging the sureties on an appeal bond in the action leading to the judgment—Duncan v. Thomas (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 310.

67. Forcible detainer—Penny v. Richardson (Okl.) 71 Pac. 227.

68. Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Norrie, 118 Fed. 923.

69. On a bond to stay execution, the sureties are liable to the owner of the judgment for its amount with interest and costs—Campbell v. Harrington, 93 Mo. App. 315.

70. Code Civ. Proc. § 14, bars an action on an appeal bond in ten years—Crum v. Johnson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1054.

71. Code Civ. Proc. § 29—Harker v. Burbank (Neb.) 93 N. W. 949.

72. County to district and district to supreme courts—Duncan v. Thomas (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 310.

73. Bonds given under Code Civ. Proc. § 588—Palmer v. Caywood (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1034.

74. The surety cannot testify that he was informed that a bond for payment of a judgment, if affirmed, was simply a cost bond, if it is not shown who informed him or

Summary judgment cannot be entered against a surety on a bond in unlawful entry and detainer.[75] Under statutory provisions for entry of judgments against sureties on appeal bonds on affirmance, when the amount can be ascertained without trial, judgment cannot be so entered on an appeal bond conditioned to pay rents and damages to real property pending appeal,[76] and the appellate court may refuse to enter judgment save for costs of appeal, where the appellee has performed acts prejudicial to the sureties.[77] General provisions for the entry of judgment against sureties on motion and notice for the amount adjudged against the plaintiff may be inapplicable to bonds given on appeal, in which case the remedy is by action.[78]

Judgment on the bond should be according to its terms.[79] In debt on an appeal bond, the judgment should be for the penalty, to be discharged by payment of damages resulting from the breach.[80]

APPEARANCE.

This title deals with voluntary appearances, and of special appearances to the writ, or appearances as constituting a waiver of jurisdictional defects. Appearance to the writ generally, and consequences of it, or of nonappearance, pertain to other topics, as affecting questions of default, forfeiture, or time to plead.[1]

§ 1. Definitions, kinds, and distinctions of appearances, and what constitutes them. General or special appearance.—An appearance is general in its effect and for all purposes, if it is for any other purpose than to object to the jurisdiction,[2] or, while otherwise special, invokes other ground recognizing the jurisdiction, as a motion, on special appearance, by one not served, asking dismissal for that he relied on the statement—Coughran v. Hollister, 15 S. D. 318, 89 N. W. 647.

75. The remedy is by action on the bond—Hadley v. Bernero (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 451.

76. 2 Ballinger's Ann. Codes & Sts. § 6523—Carmack v. Drum, 27 Wash. 382, 67 Pac. 808.

77. The appellate court will not render judgment on the supersedeas bond except for costs of appeal, and will leave the appellee to sue on the bond where the surety became such on account of his knowledge that appellant was carrying on a profitable business and in reliance on his promise to make a certain deposit monthly, which would have been sufficient to discharge any judgment entered on appeal, and appellee obstructed the entrances to appellant's place of business and cut off his light, heat and water, rendering the place unfit for occupation, so that the payments could not be made—Quandt v. Smith, 29 Wash. 311, 69 Pac. 1097.

78. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 612-616, the supreme court is not authorized by the issuance of a writ of scire facias or on notice to order an execution on a cost bond given under Rule 12 of the court in error proceedings—Dunn v. Bozarth (Neb.) 90 N. W. 954.

79. The judgment should so run where the fiat for a supersedeas bond on writ of error required a bond for judgment, interest and costs—Taylor v. Wells (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 266.

80. Ackerman v. People, 100 Ill. App. 125.

1. See Default, Bail in Civil Actions, Justices of the Peace, Pleading.

2. Burnham v. Lewis (Kan.) 70 Pac. 337. To move to vacate appraisement of realty for a judicial sale, and to object to confirmation on grounds not going to jurisdiction over the party.—Nebraska L. & T. Co. v. Kroener (Neb.) 88 N. W. 499. Appearance in attachment to contest right to amend the affidavit—Burnham v. Lewis (Kan.) 70 Pac. 337. To obtain a copy of the complaint and to secure costs, under Mills' Ann. Code Colo. § 45—Brockway v. W. & T. Smith Co. (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 1073. Asking to be made defendant to object to a confirmation of sale in foreclosure, and objecting on the ground of ownership and failure in service of summons upon himse.. and another—Nelson v. Nebraska L. & T. Co., 62 Neb. 549. To set aside a judgment by default for failure to answer—Thompson v. Alford, 135 Cal. 52, 66 Pac. 983.

To plead or answer to merits—McClure v. Paducah Iron Co., 90 Mo. App. 567; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Baumgarten (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 78; Walters v. Field (Wash.) 70 Pac. 66. San Diego Sav. Bank v. Goodsell, 137 Cal. 420, 70 Pac. 299. To assail a suit on the ground that attachment was sued out on Sunday, and to enter a denial of the attachment, and plead in reconvention—Benchoff v. Stephenson (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 106. By defendant in divorce to contest the right to custody of the children—Abercrombie v. Abercrombie, 64 Kan. 29, 67 Pac. 539.

jurisdictional defects and for personal right to be sued in another county;[3] or appearance by one not served with process to ask for vacation of a decree on the ground of failure of jurisdiction, of fraud, and of insufficiency of evidence.[4] An answer of several defendants without name, making no reference to one who was not served, is an answer of those served only, and will not give jurisdiction of the one not served as a voluntary appearance.[5] Voluntary appearance and tendering of issue by defendant in the main action and an attachment in aid, and the filing of a bond to perform the judgment, is a submission of the person to the jurisdiction, entitling plaintiff to personal judgment.[6]

Neither filing a petition to remove a cause from a state to a federal court,[7] nor appearance of defendant to raise the question of jurisdiction,[8] nor appearance in attachment to move to quash,[9] nor an appearance specially to move to dismiss for failure to issue summons within thirty days after filing the complaint, operates as a general appearance waiving summons or defects therein.[10] A demand by defendant's attorney in attachment, that plaintiff's attorney should declare plaintiff's residence, or the giving of a notice of a motion to strike out an order of the court validating the sheriff's return, where the invalidity was urged on the motion to quash, does not amount to a general appearance, though following a special appearance to quash.[11]

Appearance to testify as a witness is not an appearance in the action.[12]

Appearance by a foreign corporation to object to the jurisdiction is held in Texas an appearance to the next term of court.[13]

A subsequent plea to the merits by defendant is an appearance waiving the improper overruling of a previous motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction of parties.[14] Filing a demurrer and plea to the declaration, after a motion to quash service is overruled, is an entry of appearance, and waives defects in process and service,[15] though not the right to object to the ruling on appeal.[16] A motion for a continuance by a defendant corporation, after entry of special appearance to object to the jurisdiction on an application for a receiver, which objection was overruled, is a demurrer as well as a motion affecting the jurisdiction, and operates as a full appearance, waiving all objections to jurisdiction.[17] A motion to dismiss a bill is a general defense, in the nature of a demurrer, and is such an appearance as will waive a motion to vacate service of subpoena on the ground that the teste antedates the filing of the bill.[18] An agreement between parties that a premature overruling of a motion to dismiss may be set aside to have the case heard on its merits is not a general appearance by defendant, but makes it necessary for the court to overrule the order and retain the case.[19]

An appeal amounts to an appearance so as to permit the court below on reversal to proceed with the case,[20] and, in Kentucky, though the service of pro-

3. Dudley v. White (Fla.) 31 So. 830.
4. Henry v. Henry, 15 S. D. 80.
5. Mullins v. Rieger, 169 Mo. 521.
6. New Albany Mfg. Co. v. Sulzer (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 873.
7. Coombs v. Parish, 6 Colo. 296.
8. Evansville Grain Co. v. Mackler, 88 Mo. App. 186.
9. Franklyn v. Taylor Hydraulic Air Compressing Co. (N. J.) 52 Atl. 714.
10. Under Code Colo. §§ 30, 396—Coombs v. Parish, 6 Colo. 296.
11. Franklyn v. Taylor Hydraulic Air Compressing Co. (N. J.) 52 Atl. 714.
12. Commercial State Bank v. Rowley (Neb.) 89 N. W. 765.
13. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. v. Troell (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 324.
14. Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Hickson, 97 Ill. App. 387. Cf. Walters v. Field (Wash.) 70 Pac. 66.
15. Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Hickson, 197 Ill. 117.
16. American Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Mason (Ind.) 64 N. E. 525.
17. Chicago & S. E. R. Co. v. Kenney (Ind.) 62 N. E. 26.
18. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke (N. J. Ch.) 49 Atl. 1116.
19. Evansville Grain Co. v. Mackler, 88 Mo. App. 186.
20. Wylly v. Sanford L. & T. Co. (Fla.) 33 So. 453.

cess is insufficient, the appeal amounts to a general appearance;[21] however, in Wisconsin, a general appeal from the whole judgment will not cure lack of personal service on defendant.[22] Prosecution of an appeal for a defendant corporation is such an appearance that, on return of the case to the trial court, objections to the jurisdiction on the former hearing are waived.[23] In Ohio, where defendant has made reasonable objection to the jurisdiction over him, his subsequent plea to the merits does not waive objections to the jurisdiction, nor does his filing petition in error amount to a general appearance.[24] In the federal courts, a plea signed by counsel, raising an issue which is apparent on the face of the bill, will be considered an appearance for that purpose only.[25] A special appearance is not made general by perfecting an appeal.[26]

Agreement to a continuance of a suit before a justice is an appearance conferring jurisdiction of a person.[27] Application before a city police court for a change of venue in a prosecution to recover a penalty for violation of a city ordinance is a voluntary submission to the jurisdiction.[28] Where defendants defaulted during term time and afterwards stipulated with plaintiff extending the time for them to act in the case, judgment will be entered on subsequent failure to plead, though the service of process on them was defective.[29]

§ 2. Who may make or enter.—Appearance of plaintiff's attorney in court after entry and payment of judgment, when a motion was made by defendant to retax costs without further process, will not give jurisdiction of plaintiffs.[30] An answer by the guardian of an insane person constitutes an appearance for the latter, giving jurisdiction of his person.[31] Where a firm having goods of another is garnished, and one partner is served, the other may appear voluntarily and waive service of process on himself.[32] A county attorney may waive issuance and service of summons in error, though he has appeared in the case against the county at the trial.[33]

§ 3. Effect.—General appearance amounts to a waiver of notice or process,[34] and an appearance for any other purpose than the quashing of process waives any defects in process or service thereof,[35] especially if objection to service be withheld until too late to sue anew.[36]

It waives any mistake of the clerk in making the summons returnable to the wrong term,[37] or a statutory defect in summons in that a complaint was not

21. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chestnut & Co. (App.) 24 Ky. Law R. 1846.

22. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2891, requiring personal service to give the clerk jurisdiction to enter a default judgment out of term—Electric Appliance Co. v. Warren (Wis.) 91 N. W. 970.

23. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Jordan, 23 Ky. Law R. 1730.

24. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Freeman (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 237.

25. The strict rules of the common law as to substantial issues regarding jurisdiction are not applied in the federal courts, but such issues may be raised by parties or counsel by plea, motion, or suggestion—Jenkins v. York Cliffs Imp. Co., 110 Fed. 807.

26. White House Mtn. G. M. Co. v. Powell (Colo.) 70 Pac. 679.

27. Kirkpatrick Const. Co. v. Central Electric Co. (Ind.) 65 N. E. 913.

28. In re Jones, 90 Mo. App. 318.

29. Cook v. American Exch. Bank, 129 N. C. 149.

30. Iowa Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Chase (Iowa) 91 N. W. 807.

31. Under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 1769, providing for representation of insane persons by their guardians—Mullen v. Dunn, 134 Cal. 247, 66 Pac. 209.

32. Marx v. Hart, 166 Mo. 503.

33. Dakota County v. Bartlett (Neb.) 93 N. W. 192.

34. Kilmer v. Gallaher (Iowa) 88 N. W. 959. Filing demurrer—Fitzgerald v. Foster, 11 Okl. 558, 69 Pac. 878.

35. Baker v. Union Stock Yards Nat. Bank (Neb.) 89 N. W. 269.

General appearance and answer—McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Scott (Neb.) 89 N. W. 410; Cone v. Cone, 61 S. C. 512. Consent to continuance before a motion to quash—New River Mineral Co. v. Painter (Va.) 42 S. E. 300. Motion to set aside default for failure to plead—Barra v. People (Colo. App.) 69 Pac. 1074. Waiver of exemptions—English v. English, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.

36. Fosha v. Western Union Tel. Co., 114 Fed. 701.

37. Patterson v. Yancey (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 845.

served with it.[38] Persons appearing in proceedings to probate a will cannot object to insufficiency of the notice.[39] Appearance by an administrator to set aside a default against the estate, entered after his substitution in place of his decedent, waives any objection to jurisdiction in the first instance over decedent.[40] Appearance by defendant in replevin to contest the merits, and entry of judgment against him awarding possession to plaintiff, will waive objections to jurisdiction on the ground that the constable was not directed in writing to seize the property in the first instance.[41] A general appearance by a foreign corporation in a justice's court without objection, after the overruling of a special appearance and a motion to quash service, gives the justice, and the district court on appeal, jurisdiction to render judgment against the corporation.[42]

No subpoena is necessary on an amended libel in divorce where a subpoena issued and was served on the original libel, and respondent entered his appearance, answered the amended libel, and went to trial.[43] Where defendants appear generally without citation, they waive objection that, because of procedure and amended pleadings, such action is a new action;[44] and appearance at subsequent terms, and consent to continuance of two of four causes of action remaining after judgment upon the others, waives objections to jurisdiction for want of new process.[45]

Where there is jurisdiction of the subject-matter, an appearance and answer over by defendant waives any objection he may have to jurisdiction of the person.[46] Where an absent and nonresident defendant appears generally, in an attachment sued out against him in an action at law, personal judgment may be given against him, either with or without an order subjecting the attached property, though there has been no publication.[47] By pleading to the action a party sued out of the jurisdiction of the court waives the right to object on that ground.[48] The statutory privilege that railroad companies can only be prosecuted in the county where plaintiff resides is personal, and defendant's voluntary appearance waives the privilege.[49]

A full appearance by defendants will not prevent them from urging limitations to part of the causes of action which were urged in a new cause of action to which they appeared by answer.[50] A motion to release attached property on the ground that the attachment is unlawful may be made after general appearance by defendant.[51] Where defendant, in a suit for divorce and temporary alimony, entered a general appearance on the day preceding the hearing on the motion for alimony, and obtained a three days' continuance of the motion, he did not waive his right to apply for change of venue on the subsequent day, where the application was his first pleading, and the motion was heard on affidavits alone.[52]

Special appearance.—An appearance to move a stay of an execution issued on a void judgment will not waive defects in original service,[53] nor will appearance to set aside a judgment obtained without valid service amount to a submis-

38. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1897—Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank v. Stringer, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 127.
39. Flood v. Kerwin, 113 Wis. 673.
40. Moses v. Hoffmaster, 64 Kan. 142, 67 Pac. 459.
41. Under District Court Act N. J. § 143—Hunton v. Palmer, 67 N. J. Law, 94.
42. Plano Mfg. Co. v. Nordstrom (Neb.) 88 N. W. 164.
43. English v. English, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.
44. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 477.
45. Seay v. Sanders, 88 Mo. App. 478.
46. State v. Cryts, 87 Mo. App. 440; Jones v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 89 Mo. App. 653.
47. Chilhowie Lumber Co. v. Lance & Co., 50 W. Va. 636.
48. Grant v. Birrell, 35 Misc. (N. Y.) 768; Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Hickson, 97 Ill. App. 387.
49. Under Gen. Laws Tex. 1901, p. 31—Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Baumgarten (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 78.
50. Bernard v. Mott, 89 Mo. App. 403.
51. Sullivan v. Moffat (N. J.) 52 Atl. 291.
52. People v. District Court of Second Judicial District (Colo.) 69 Pac. 597.
53. Wren v. Johnson, 62 S. C. 533.

sion to jurisdiction of the person.[54] A special appearance to contest the jurisdiction of the court over the person of defendant will allow a contest of the sufficiency of the affidavit for publication.[55] Removal of a cause into the federal court will not prevent subsequent objection to the sufficiency of service,[56] and the filing of a petition and bond for removal by a corporation, as defendant, is not such an appearance as will prevent a motion to set aside defective service, even though the motion was in the state court before removal, and not acted upon.[57]

§ 4. Relief, striking, or withdrawal.—Withdrawal by defendant of appearance entered by mistake with the court's leave, while relieving him from a waiver of objections to the jurisdiction, does not authorize objection to the service on mere matters of form.[58] Withdrawal of appearance by defendant and motion to set aside summons may be allowed where the nature of the action was not fixed by service of the complaint.[59]

ARBITRATION AND AWARD.

This topic does not include submission to a referee,[1] or to a tribunal on agreed statements of rights or demands by parties,[2] or particular provisions in insurance policies for arbitration of loss.[3]

§ 1. The remedy in general.—Statutory arbitration is cumulative merely, and controversies capable of submission by parol agreement may still be submitted as at common law.[4]

§ 2. The submission and agreements to submit.—A provision for submission of future differences in a contract will not bar an action thereon,[6] and, if joined with a provision not to bring suit on the contract, will render the agreement void as invading the province of the courts;[7] but mere provisions that questions of difference between the parties should be settled by certain persons are not void, since they simply prescribe such determination as a condition precedent to suit by either party,[8] and, until an award or discharge of the arbitrators, no suit can be brought.[9] A condition in a bill of sale after an express agreement for payment, providing for arbitration of a dispute regarding the charging of expenses, does not make an award a condition precedent to action; and a provision that failure of either party to appoint an arbitrator will authorize the other to appoint will not prevent a revocation of the arbitration agreement.[10]

A submission in court or by agreement, providing for entry of the award

54. Wren v. Johnson, 62 S. C. 533.
55. Columbia Screw Co. v. Warner Lock Co. (Cal.) 71 Pac. 498.
56. Conley v. Mathieson Alkali Works, 110 Fed. 730.
57. Tortat v. Hardin Min. & Mfg. Co., 111 Fed. 426.
58. Jenkins v. York Cliffs Imp. Co., 110 Fed. 807.
59. Action for penalty for not making corporate report. Defendant could not attack the summons until the nature of the action was disclosed—Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank v. Stringer, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 127.
1. Reference.
2. Submission of controversy.
3. Insurance.
4. Poggenburg v. Conniff, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2463, 67 S. W. 845; Gardner v. Newman, 135 Ala. 522.
6. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.
7. Adjustment of insurance loss or damages on breach of policy—Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Zlotky (Neb.) 92 N. W. 736; Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Hon (Neb.) 92 N. W. 746.
8. Submission of questions of payment on building contract to engineers in charge of work—National Contracting Co. v. Hudson River Water Power Co., 170 N. Y. 439.
9. Citizens' Trust & Surety Co. v. Howell, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 255.
10. Dickson Mfg. Co. v. American Locomotive Co., 119 Fed. 488.

as judgment, is irrevocable, and bars a suit on any demand submitted; but it is void as to parties not joining.[11] Appointment of a representative by one of the parties to a contract pursuant to its provisions to settle a dispute between the parties is not a submission to an arbitrator so as to make an award by him binding on his superior until set aside in legal proceedings.[12]

§ 3. The arbitrators and umpire.—Members of an ecclesiastical court may act as arbitrators, and their award will be binding in the civil courts.[13] A mere agent to compromise is not an arbitrator.[14] The arbitrator must be sworn.[15]

§ 4. Hearing and procedure before arbitrators.—The arbitrator must hear all the facts, but he need not consider admissions by parties not relating to their differences.[16] Where the issues are simple, or involve matters concerning which the arbitrators are experts, they may refuse to hear counsel at their discretion;[17] and one going into an arbitration waives objection for want of oath of the arbitrators and failure to admit counsel.[18]

§ 5. The award; requisites, validity, and effect of award.—The award must be certain as to an amount of money to be paid,[19] and is not conclusive as to matters not submitted,[20] and may be set aside as to such matters.[21] It need not be treated as an adjudication, where the dispute was submitted informally, and the award received by one party, but afterwards returned to the other.[22] If an award is void or not mutual as to one party, it cannot prejudice him,[23] but, if void in part for uncertainty, it may be sustained, where separable, by rejecting the void part as surplusage.[24]

Unless the submission contains stipulations or shows a conclusive intent that the parties should be bound by ministerial acts of the arbitrator, his decision in such matters is not final.[25] A finding that a person employed as a clerk may bind his employer by accepting, for his principal, a void transaction arranged by himself, is a wrong on the parties. If the arbitrators overstep the bounds of the submission or disregard the facts or rules thereof, either willfully or ignorantly, through good or bad motives, the award may be set aside by the injured party.[26]

The parties, and all claiming under them, are bound,[27] in the absence of fraud or mistake, and the successful party is entitled to judgment if the award follows the judgment.[28]

An award, in an oral submission, of rights in real property, is not a transfer,

11. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.

12. Agent appointed to settle dispute as to sale of lumber—Williamson v. North Pac. Lumber Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 387.

13. Poggenburg v. Conniff, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2463, 67 S. W. 845.

14. Williamson v. North Pac. Lumber Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 387.

15. Amicable compounder—L. J. Mestier & Co. v. A. Chevalier Pavement Co., 108 La. 562.

16. Amicable compounder—L. J. Mestier & Co. v. A. Chevalier Pavement Co., 108 La. 562.

17. Pennsylvania Iron Works Co. v. East St. Louis Cold Storage Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 903.

18. Gardner v. Newman, 135 Ala. 522.

19. Award for support of a bastard—Poggenburg v. Conniff, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2463, 67 S. E. 845.

20. Award as to claim on gambling contract not submitting legality of contract—Lum v. Fauntleroy, 80 Miss. 757.

21. The effect of a first contract between the parties, which was followed by a second contract relating to the same subject-matter, cannot be settled by the arbitrator where such effect was not submitted in the arbitration—Cullen v. Shipway, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 130.

22. Phipps v. Norton (Iowa) 93 N. W. 562.

23. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.

24. For damages and support of bastard—Poggenburg v. Conniff, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2463, 67 S. W. 845.

25. The ministerial acts, such as calculations and measurements, are not necessarily performed by the arbitrator—Nelson v. Charles Betcher Lumber Co. (Minn.) 93 N. W. 661.

26. The wrong cannot be attributed to a mere error of judgment—Bartlett v. L. Bartlett & Son Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 473.

27. Horne v. Hutchins, 71 N. H. 128.

28. Corrigan v. Rockefeller (Ohio) 66 N. E. 95.

within the statute of frauds, but a mere definition of already existing rights.[29] The award on a claim for alimony and other pecuniary demands by a wife amounts to an alimony decree.[30] A common-law award is established by showing an agreement to submission and the proceedings thereon.[31] The award is not a lien on land until entered as a judgment or decree after notice to the parties, but retains its common-law force, though by statute it may be entered as a judgment.[32] A decree will not merge with an award on the same cause of action; but a judgment made subject of submission will be merged by the award, though not carried into a new judgment.[33] A lien for services in favor of one party against a fund to be realized by the other from such services is not merged in an award settling the value of the services, but may be enforced to the extent of the award.[34]

Enforcement of award.—In an action to enforce the award, it need not be alleged that the judgment of the arbitrators was still in force.[35] In a suit to determine the rights of grantees in the subject of a submission by their grantors, the arbitration may be shown.[36] In an action on a contract containing an arbitration clause, the interest of an arbitrator and the plaintiff's knowledge of such interest are questions for the jury, and the burden of proof is on plaintiff to show such interest.[37] All presumptions will be indulged to sustain an award.[38] Parol evidence is admissible to show the application of the award to the subject-matter.[39]

Review of award and rearbitration.—Equity will not review on its merits an award rendered by an arbitrator consistently with legal principles as he understood them.[40] Neither denial of right to counsel nor refusal to be sworn constitutes such fraud on the part of the arbitrators as will vitiate the award,[41] unless it prejudice results; and even then the denial of counsel cannot be urged on a motion to vacate the award where the objection had been waived by submission.[42] An award within the scope of the submission cannot be disturbed judicially, but any departure, misconduct, or error of judgment on the part of the arbitrators is fatal.[43] Terms offered to induce arbitration, which are fully understood, cannot be ground of fraud to set aside the award.[44] Under an agreement to have an award entered as a judgment, acceptance of service of a motion to that effect and agreement to its adoption will not waive the right to benefit of the statutory provision that the entry must be made at the succeeding term; and the arbitration, being void, may be set aside.[45]

29. Submission of rights to water power—Horne v. Hutchins, 71 N. H. 128.

30. The arbitrators had full power, and the parties had previously agreed to accept the result—Harris v. Davis, 115 Ga. 950.

31. Unless fraudulent, it is as effectual in a subsequent suit on the same claim as a statutory arbitration, and may be pleaded in bar without showing statutory requirements—Gardner v. Newman, 135 Ala. 522.

32. Code W. Va. c. 108, § 3—Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.

33. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.

34. Sanborn v. Maxwell, 18 App. D. C. 245.

35. Poggenburg v. Conniff, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2463, 67 S. W. 845.

36. Right of mill owners in dam—Horne v. Hutchins, 71 N. H. 128.

37. Hall v. Western Assur. Co., 133 Ala. 637.

38. It will be presumed that it related to the matters submitted, and that the evidence was heard on them—Poggenburg v. Conniff, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2463, 67 S. W. 845.

39. Use of dam granted by award to mill owners—Horne v. Hutchins, 71 N. H. 128.

40. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. §§ 2374, 2375, provides that fraud, corruption, or mistake is the only ground of attack on an award—Dobson v. Central R. Co., 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 582.

41. Gardner v. Newman, 135 Ala. 522.

42. Pennsylvania Iron Works Co. v. East St. Louis Cold Storage Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 903.

43. Bartlett v. L. Bartlett & Son Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 473.

44. Insurance loss—Townsend v. Greenwich Ins. Co., 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 87; Same v. Continental Ins. Co., Id.; Same v. Hanover Fire Ins. Co., Id.

45. Arbitration of rights to property as between husband and wife—Crouch v. Crouch (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 595.

A plea of partiality on the part of the arbitrators must show that rights granted to the adverse party were denied the pleader.[46] An opinion delivered to counsel of the parties, on rendition of the award, citing reasons for the decision, but not made a part of the award or referred to therein, and not required by the submission, cannot be used as evidence to impeach the award; nor can the testimony of the arbitrators be used.[47] A judgment setting aside an award may properly enjoin the removal of money deposited, pending a hearing by one party to pay the claim of the other if he is successful.[48] An agreement to set aside an award and have a rearbitration is binding, though no rearbitration is had.[49]

§ 6. International disputes.—The claims of a United States railroad company against a foreign government for revocation of a concession to build a road were submitted, by agreement under a special law of the foreign state, to arbitration by a special commission, which was given power to determine its own procedure, to examine the property and records of the company, to take testimony, and to settle the amount of indemnity to the company, and it was agreed that the award should be final. Under this agreement the award was made, and on review by the circuit court of appeals it was held: (1) That the matters to be considered and included in the award were to be settled by the commission, the presumption being in favor of the award unless excess of power was shown; (2) that the commission was empowered to consider, in awarding indemnity to the company, other expenses incurred by it in the enterprise, as well as cost of construction, such as the amount paid for the concession, salaries paid to its officers, and its office and traveling expenses; (3) that, in absence of an express provision, the submission could not be construed to require a unanimous decision, and, the commission having unanimously determined that all matters should be settled by a majority vote, a majority award was binding; (4) that the resignation of one member after many items had been considered and agreed upon, and just before the taking of the final vote, by a letter to his government and his colleagues, which was not shown to have been received or accepted by his government, did not create a vacancy on the commission, or terminate its existence, or affect its award made the same day by concurrence of all the other members; (5) that a provision in the submission for allowance and assessment of expenses of the commission did not include attorney's fees for one party, to be paid by the other; and (6) that, the submission making no provision for interest on the award, and the company having received the revenues of the road until settlement, interest could not be allowed, but the erroneous allowance thereof did not avoid the whole award, the items being separable.[50]

§ 7. Statutory arbitration between employers and employes.[51]—Labor differences may be the subject of statutory regulation.[52] Where there is a court established for settlement of differences between employers and employes regarding wages, a submission of prices for certain labor, with a schedule of items of work, will justify an award of a certain compensation by the piece; and where there is testimony showing an understanding between the parties as to the time the decision shall take effect, the court may fix the time, though it need not fix the term,

46. Plea of denial of right to counsel—Gardner v. Newman, 135 Ala. 522.

47. Corrigan v. Rockefeller (Ohio) 66 N. E. 95.

48. Cullen v. Shipway, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 130.

49. Insurance loss—Goodwin v. Merchants' & B. Mut. Ins. Co. (Iowa) 92 N. W. 894.

50. Republic of Colombia v. Cauca Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 1020; Cauca Co. v. Republic of Colombia (C. C. A.) Id.

51. See, also, "Master and Servant."

52. Southern Pac. Co. v. Schoer (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 466.

for which the scale of wages is to run, especially if the parties have fixed the term in their submission. The decision need not be rendered within ten days, a statutory provision to that effect being directory merely.[53]

ARGUMENT OF COUNSEL.

§ 1. Right of argument.—Counsel for each of defendants severally liable may be heard.[1] A party defending in person cannot address the jury where his answer sets up no defense and on his own evidence a verdict should be against him.[2] If defendants waive their argument, plaintiff cannot close.[3]

§ 2. Opening statements.—Counsel may state what he purposes to prove unless the proof will be manifestly incompetent.[4] The time for an opening statement is discretionary with the trial court.[5] Defendant is not as of right entitled to reserve his opening statement to the conclusion of plaintiff's evidence.[6] Where facts alleged in an opening statement recite a different cause of action than that in the petition, trial should not be proceeded to over an objection without amendment of the petition or striking of one of the causes of action.[7] Motions for judgment on the opening statement cannot be granted unless plaintiff admits facts absolutely preventing recovery.[8] Defendant in opening may read his answer.[9]

§ 3. Kind, extent, and mode of argument or comment during trial.—A judgment may be reversed for misconduct of counsel in argument.[10]

Use of pleadings and other writings belonging to case.[11]—Counsel is not entitled to read special interrogatories to the jury and inform them how to answer them.[12] Counsel cannot be compelled to read a whole instruction to the jury.[13] If a party's pleadings are read by the adverse party, the party may adopt his own interpretation of them so long as they are not misquoted.[14]

Statements of law and reading from decisions.—An opinion by the court cannot be read in argument,[15] or an opinion in another case.[16] Arguments of legal

53. Comp. Laws Mich. 1897, § 563, providing for and regulating the state court of mediation and arbitration—Pingree v. State Court of Mediation & Arbitration (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. News. 18; 89 N. W. 943.

1. As where a principal and surety on a bond are defendants—Lyman v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 65 App. Div. 27.

2. Gunn v. Head (Ga.) 42 S. E. 343.

3. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes and Statutes, Sec. 4993, subd. 5—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498; Collins v. Clark (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 97.

4. He may give a history of the case and state other contests between the parties in another state—Pritchard v. Henderson (Del.) 3 Pen. 128.

5. In the absence of abuse of discretion, a ruling as to the time of allowing an opening statement is not reviewable—D. Sinclair Company v. Waddill, 99 Ill. App. 334.

6. Though such statement will inform plaintiff of the error and enable him to amend—D. Sinclair Co. v. Waddill, 200 Ill. 17.

7. Hunter Milling Co. v. Allen, 65 Kan. 158, 69 Pac. 159.

8. Coffeyville Mining & Gas Co. v. Carter, 65 Kan. 565, 70 Pac. 635.

9. It appeared that plaintiff was not prejudiced and the court's discretion not abused —Waid v. Hobson (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 176.

10. Spaulding v. Grundy, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1759. As where the attorney disregards rulings of the court, repeats questions excluded as improper, and asks questions tending to arouse the jury's sympathy, calls them "boys" in an appeal for mercy, and makes remarks not justified by the evidence and also reflecting on the person through whom plaintiff claims—Atherton v. DeFreeze (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 994, 88 N. W. 886.

11. Pleadings from other trials or cases, see infra this section.

12. So held under March 4, 1897, Acts 1897, p. 128, Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 555, where counsel was permitted to fully argue the evidence and with respect to the interrogatories from memory—Chestnut v. Southern Ind. R. Co., 157 Ind. 509.

13. Ward v. Bass (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 879.

14. Nicholson v. Merritt, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2281.

15. Cent. Ga. R. Co. v. Hardin, 114 Ga. 548.

16. Stone v. Commonwealth, 181 Mass. 438. It was held error to allow cases not pertinent to any issue of law but strikingly similar as to the facts to be read to the jury, and statements made to them that in the similar cases substantial damages had been approved and plaintiff found free from negligence—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gee, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 414. So definitions of "reasonable time" or discussions of what may be "contributory negligence" cannot be read—Newport News & O. P. R. & Electric conclusions are not to be permitted,[17] so remarks discrediting the authoritative value of instructions are improper.[18] Statements of law are presumed to have been made in a connection rendering them correct.[19]

Comments on witnesses.—Particular comments on the credibility of witnesses may be made,[20] though the jury cannot be asked to go outside of the evidence;[21] hence, the interest of witnesses may be argued.[22] Absence of witnesses may be commented on where it does not appear that their evidence is not peculiarly within the knowledge of the adverse parties.[23] Failure to question a witness may be commented on,[24] or the failure of a party to testify.[25]

Inferences from the evidence must be justified.[26] An argument though improper may be so illogical as to be harmless.[27]

Co. v. Bradford, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. Rep. 219, 40 S. E. 900.

17. As where it is stated that a change in the method of operating a train after an accident was of itself a confession of liability, and justified a recovery by plaintiff—Prescott & N. W. R. Co. v. Smith, 70 Ark. 179; but it is fair to assume that the account books of a decedent are in the hands of his administrator—Ryans v. Hospes, 167 Mo. 342.

18. But reversal is not required where the remark is immediately ordered withdrawn and counsel explains that he does not wish to be understood as having such meaning—Chicago & A. R. Co. v. McDonnell, 194 Ill. 82.

19. As where it is stated that an officer sued for assault on service of a writ, was presumed to have served the writ in a legal way—McKinstry v. Collins, 74 Vt. 147.

20. So it is proper to remark that a witness excused from the rule should more than all the others have been placed thereunder—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. York, 128 Ala. 305. Where witnesses were brought from a distant city it is not going too far to say "Would you have gone to St. Louis to get pimps and detectives? Would you have gone to Chicago and employed detectives of the Pinkerton gang to have gone to St. Louis and followed through the hospital after this man? There is but one man who would have done it and he is the mayor of the city of Salem"—City of Salem v. Webster, 95 Ill. App. 120. Where in a deposition the witness states his residence at a town not in existence, such fact may be argued as a badge of fraud, and that the witness was attempting to conceal his identity, such witness being a person in whom the ownership of notes sought to be recovered in bankruptcy is alleged to be—Reeder v. Traders' Nat. Bank, 28 Wash. 139, 61 Pac. 461.

21. Where defendant in his examination has denied making a certain statement and is not impeached, plaintiff's attorney cannot ask the jury to consider whether he would be apt to ask such a question if it were not well founded and also to consider defendant's manner when he answered the question—Moran v. Baldi, 71 N. H. 490. It is error to allow a claim agent to be called a cow coroner and to state that he will not be believed by the jury, and that a particular juror named having had dealings with him knew what kind of a cat he was and would not believe him—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Rea, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 549.

22. As where counsel states that if a witness had given contrary evidence it would have admitted his gross negligence and occasioned his discharge from employment—Wimber v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 114 Iowa, 551.

23. As where on contest of a will testator's hired men are not called by either party, proponent's counsel may ask the jury if they have seen the hired men—In re McCabe's Will, 73 Vt. 175. In commenting on failure to introduce certain witnesses it may be stated that a party did not dare place them on the stand—Wilkins v. City of Flint, 128 Mich. 262.

24. As where one witness for a party testifies to a confession overheard by another witness for the same party, and such witness, on his examination, is not questioned thereto—McKinstry v. Collins, 74 Vt. 147.

25. As where the absence of one of a plaintiff partnership is argued to be a circumstance indicating that matters are being kept from the jury—Gillman v. Williams (Vt.) 52 Atl. 428.

26. So in slander, an inference that plaintiff started a newspaper controversy, is not warranted by evidence of a reporter that he asked defendant, if a statement in an article by plaintiff was true, where the original article is not in evidence—Jarman v. Rea, 137 Cal. 339. Where a remark was testified to and denied by certain witnesses, counsel may state that another witness, if called, would have testified that he heard it—Walker v. Boston & M. R., 71 N. H. 271. Where an expert testifies that he expects the party for whom he is a witness to pay him a certain sum, it is not reversible error to state that such witness had been bought up by the party to testify in its favor for such sum—Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Follin (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 810. Counsel does not exceed the limits of argument by asserting that either one of certain witnesses was mistaken or one has lied—Ex parte Snodgrass (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 1061. Counsel cannot be allowed to call a defendant a robber and a self confessed robber of his wife's grandmother and to state that he was trying to deny a debt where the sum in regard to which such statements were made, was alleged by defendant to have been included in a settlement prior to the suit—Grabowsky v. Baumgart, 128 Mich. 267.

27. Where in slander for charging unchastity it is argued that a verdict for defendant would be a judgment as to plain-

Matters outside of issues.—Counsel may argue anything within the issue,[28] but not grounds of relief not presented by the pleadings.[29] Comments extraneous to the issue may require a reversal,[30] though the pendency of other suits of a similar nature may be commented on.[31]

Matters not in evidence.—Evidence which has not been objected to may be commented on,[32] and denial of the right to discuss evidence is equivalent to its exclusion;[33] but counsel must not discuss matters not in evidence,[34] nor make statements of fact concerning matters not in the record,[35] or from their own experience not in evidence.[36] Counsel should not refer to amount of verdicts sustained in other cases.[37] An argument that a plea of non est factum to a note charges plaintiff with forgery is not the statement of a fact not in evidence, but is a mere expression of an opinion.[38] Persistence in arguing facts not in evidence and excluded by the court may be ground for a new trial or reversal.[39] It is improper to read pleadings not introduced in evidence to the jury,[40] or for tiff's lack of chastity—Hacker v. Heiney, 111 Wis. 313.

28. As where plaintiff was injured by stumbling over slag near a railroad track, counsel may argue the continued and safe use of the premises, since the slag had been there—Southern R. Co. v. McLellan, 80 Miss. 700. Where a note in payment of lightning rods was sued by an assignee, defendant's counsel may state that though he had read that plaintiff had houses, he did not think that plaintiff had any of his assignor's lightning rods—Kirby v. Berguin, 15 S. D. 444. Where a conductor testified that he was discharged for incompetency and defendant that he was discharged for not ringing up fares, argument that defendant was negligent in leaving an incompetent man on the car will not be regarded as an argument that plaintiff's injury resulted from general incompetency of the conductor but as a comment on the credibility of the conductor's testimony—Leach v. Detroit Electric Ry. (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 951, 88 N. W. 635.

29. Humphreys v. Eastlack, 63 N. J. Eq. 136. In an action by a carrier for freight submitted on the theory that there was an undertaking to pay on the part of the defendant, defendant cannot state that he had lost the chance to protect himself, though there is evidence that the plaintiff made a delivery of the goods to the consignee without demanding its freight—Montpelier & W. R. R. Co. v. Macchi, 74 Vt. 403.

30. As where in partition of personalty sought by an execution purchaser, and the title is in issue, defendant's counsel states that the property was worth $750 and plaintiff bid only $25 therefor—Hunstock v. Roberts (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675. A remark by counsel that an action was not brought for more, since, had it been, the cause would have been removed to the tribunal, where recovery was not allowed for mental anguish, is not fatal where the jury are told not to consider such remark and the verdict of damages awarded was not complained of as excessive—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Perry (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 499.

31. So held in an action against a railway company for personal injuries in which it was alleged that the claim was fraudulent—Wheeler v. Detroit Elec. R. Co., 128 Mich. 656.

32. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Mochell, 193 Ill. 208.

33. Home Riverside Coal Min. Co. v. Fores, 64 Kan. 39.

34. Warren v. Nash, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 479.

35. As where counsel states from his knowledge of the adverse party that if there were $500 and such party's honor on the table, the party would grab the $500 and let his honor go—Gutzman v. Clancy, 114 Wis. 589. Statements that family quarrels and charges of infidelity will be proved are substantiated by evidence of charges of "whoring"—Hacker v. Heiney, 111 Wis. 313. Statements that defendant has the names of witnesses which it refuses to divulge, or summons, are erroneous where not based on the evidence —Stewart v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 72 App. Div. 459. Statement that bankers had been for many years taking usury and that it was unreasonable to believe that they had not done so in the case at bar and that it was hard to collect taxes from them, is ground for setting aside a verdict where the action is by the bankers and the defense usury—Wells v. Moses, 87 Minn. 432. In an action for libel in the publication of a charge of murder, counsel should not be allowed to allude to plaintiff as a murderer where there is no evidence to sustain such charge and plaintiff was discharged after arrest on a warrant in which no offense was named—Jones v. Murray, 167 Mo. 25. It is misconduct to charge plaintiff with having bribed witness to swear falsely, there being no evidence thereof—Hopkins v. Hopkins (N. C.) 43 S. E. 506.

36. Louisville & Nashville R. Co. v. Hull, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 375, 57 L. R. A. 771.

37. Quincy Gas & Electric Co. v. Bauman, 104 Ill. App. 600. Counsel must not state to the jury that in similar cases, certain sums awarded as damages have been held not excessive and that it is the jury's duty to punish defendant—Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. Martin, 28 Ind. App. 468.

38. Brown v. Johnston Bros., 135 Ala. 608.

39. Courier Printing Co. v. Wilson (Neb.) 90 N. W. 112.

40. Nicholson v. Merritt, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2281.

counsel to refer to them;[41] this, though a file mark on the pleading has been introduced.[42] Counsel may read from a transcript of the stenographer's notes.[43]

Appeals to passion, prejudice, and sympathy.—Arguments arousing the passion and prejudice of the jury cannot be permitted,[44] or incorrect statements exciting sympathy,[45] though arraignment of the conduct of the opposite party may be severe.[46] It is improper to make arguments attacking plaintiff's public spirit.[47]

Remarks during the trial are on the same basis as arguments.[48] It is not ground for new trial for counsel to say, on eliciting evidence on cross-examination, "that is something I didn't know about, I am glad to find that out."[49] Attempts by counsel to get matters in evidence by the asking of leading questions which are improper may be ground for reversal.[50] Remarks of counsel on a jury coming in to report its inability to agree may require its dismissal.[51]

41. Louisville & Nashville R. Co. v. Hull, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 375, 57 L. R. A. 771.

42. Johnston v. Johnston (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 123.

43. Bradley v. City of Spickardsville, 90 Mo. App. 416.

44. As where defaulted defendants in a libel suit have been permitted to answer, it is improper to allow plaintiff's counsel to state that the answer was delayed to allow defendants to get rid of their property, and such matter was also referred to on cross-examination contrary to the court's rulings—Hocks v. Sprangers, 113 Wis. 123. Statements that the title of an action for malpractice should read as the action of a lot of doctors against a poor girl do not require reversal where the counsel is rebuked and directed to argue the evidence without making general statements—Keikhoefer v. Hidershide, 113 Wis. 280. In crim. con. where plaintiff's wife had been divorced and died far from home and apart from defendant language of plaintiff's attorney in calling defendant a "seducer and murderer" is not ground for reversal—Lee v. Hammond, 114 Wis. 550. Counsel for defendant in action for divorce on ground of adultery should not exhibit her child to the jury saying that a verdict for plaintiff would bastardize the child and disgrace and dishonor defendant—Hopkins v. Hopkins (N. C.) 43 S. E. 506. Repeated denunciations of defendant as a corporation are erroneous—Stewart v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 459. It is improper to accuse a defendant of conducting a trial at an unnecessary personal expense to the members of the jury as tax-payers—Stewart v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 459. To say that the only way to reach a railroad defendant is to make it pay money; that it has no soul, no conscience, no sympathy, and no God, is improper—Western & A. R. Co. v. Cox, 115 Ga. 715. It is improper and prejudicial to say that a railroad company "has rights that you don't have; it can plow through your land and move your houses; it has unusual rights and ought to pay for them"—Ft. W. & D. C. R. Co. v. Lock (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 456. Telling the jury that it must assess such an amount as damages as will show a railroad company that it cannot violate the law is not ground for reversal—Louisville, H. & St. L. R. Co. v. Chandler's Adm'r, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 998. Argument that a jury should, as Southern gentlemen, find in favor of a Southern woman as against a soulless corporation of the North, is improper—Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. v. City Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 604. Counsel should not state that he understands an insurance company is defending a case—Geo. A. Fuller Co. v. Darragh, 101 Ill. App. 664.

45. As where counsel states that a person desired as a witness demands a large sum for his testimony, since there was a remedy to enforce such witness' attendance—American Malting Co. v. Lelivelt, 101 Ill. App. 320. A remark that a verdict is not asked for plaintiff because he is poor or defendant rich and powerful but only if he is entitled to verdict, does not require a new trial—Gilman v. City of Laconia, 71 N. H. 212. On a question of damages the jury must not be asked to consider the fact that plaintiff cannot now be a mother if there is no evidence to that effect—Blackman v. West Jersey & S. R. Co. (N. J. Law) 52 Atl. 370.

46. As where it is stated that there was an intent to rob a cripple of his rights, that defendant's counsel displayed a cloven hoof of the monster and that reference to a party concerned in the alleged fraud was like a crimson rag thrown in the counsel's face—Hedlun v. Holy Terror Min. Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 31. In an action on notes, statements in argument that defendants are vultures and wolves, and fit subjects for the penitentiary, do not require a reversal—Huber v. Miller, 41 Or. 103, 68 Pac. 400. Argument that plaintiffs were engaged in drunken and lewd debauch showing contributory negligence in reckless driving held permissible—Guertin v. Hudson, 71 N. H. 505.

47. Where damages were sought for the construction of a railroad, and plaintiff's conduct was characterized as an impediment to progress and defendant's bondsmen characterized as public spirited citizens—Hanna v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co., 27 Tex. Civ. App. 492.

48. Welch v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. (Iowa.) 90 N. W. 828.

49. Guertin v. Hudson, 71 N. H. 505.

50. Manigold v. Black River Traction Co., 114 N. Y. State Rep. 861.

51. As where counsel requests that the jury be discharged as they stood ten to two, that a majority should not be dragged into

§ 4. Excuses for impropriety.—Prejudicial remarks are not excused by the fact that they are provoked by opposing counsel,[52] though the contrary has been held.[53]

§ 5. Objections and rulings.—Objections must be made to erroneous remarks.[54] The ground need not be stated,[55] though it has been held that objections to an opening statement must state the reason thereof.[56] The objectionable language should be specifically pointed out.[57] The extent of an exception is for the determination of the court,[58] as is the question of whether an argument is a statement of fact or a request for an inference.[59]

§ 6. Action of court or counsel curing objection.—Remarks which the jury are instructed to disregard are no ground for reversal,[60] especially where offending counsel also cautions the jury not to consider matter outside the record,[61] or there is an immediate rebuke to counsel,[62] but such instruction is not always sufficient.[63] An emphatic statement by the court that language is improper and ought not to be used obviates the necessity for a new trial, where no exception was taken or another action requested by the opposite party.[64] It may be ground for reversal that an improper question is asked though the answer was excluded.[65] Error in argument may be cured by its immediate withdrawal on exception.[66] Reference to the amount of a former verdict may be harmless if withdrawn and the jury finding a low verdict by an obstructionist, that it was an outrage—Hagen v. N. Y. Cent. & H. R. Co. (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 519.

52. Welch v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. (Iowa) 90 N. W. 828.

53. As where he invites a statement that plaintiff should either be done justice or sent to the county house at once—Wilkins v. City of Flint, 128 Mich. 262.

54. Portland Gold Min. Co. v. Flaherty (C. C. A.) 111 Fed. 312.

55. As where counsel persists in stating amounts of damages held excessive in other cases—Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. Martin, 28 Ind. App. 468.

56. Where an answer was read by defendant—Waid v. Hobson (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 176.

57. To counsel summing up—Dimon v. N. Y. Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 173 N. Y. 356.

58. Walker v. Boston & M. R., 71 N. H. 271.

59. Walker v. Boston & M. R., 71 N. H. 271.

60. Allen v. McKay & Co. (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8. As where the insolvency of a contractor is commented on in lien proceedings, and the jury are instructed that questions of financial condition are not to be considered—Hammond v. Pullman (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 1052, 89 N. W. 358. As where a counsel states in the presence of other jurors to a juror who has denied acquaintance with certain persons that he believes that the juror does know such persons because he has been around trying to compromise the case—Gundlach v. Schott, 95 Ill. App. 110. Statements that corporations object to the passage of laws protecting employees and to laws requiring the inclosure of elevators will not cause reversal, where the court admonishes the counsel to confine himself to the evidence—Wendler v. People's House Furnishing Co., 165 Mo. 527; Cameron Lumber Co. v. Somerville (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 1064, 89 N. W. 346. A statement of the court after objection to argument that "the jury in this case will regulate their deliberations upon the evidence in this case, which the jury always does" is sufficient and not erroneous as being in the nature of a rebuke to the objecting party—Clukey v. Seattle Electric Co., 27 Wash. 70, 67 P. 379. Where judgment was modest in amount—Moore v. Neubert, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 144. An improper reading from a reported case may be cured by causing a counsel to stop, and instructing the jury to disregard what he had read—Hayes v. Continental Casualty Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 135.

61. Where in an action for careless driving, plaintiff's counsel in argument attempted to bring out the fact that defendants were in the custom of racing—Westercamp v. Brooks, 115 Iowa, 159.

62. Lockwood v. Fletcher, 74 Vt. 72.

63. As where when the case was largely dependent on one witness and counsel remarked that if the jury knew such witness' business methods they would say, "God save the plaintiffs and God save all those who deal with them"—German-American Insurance Co. v. Harper, 70 Ark. 305. So held where, on a proceeding by an execution purchaser, opposing counsel stated that plaintiff bid only a small portion of what the property was worth and that the action was an attempt to confiscate the property—Hunstock v. Roberts (Tex. Civ. App. (65 S. W. 675. The party's misconduct is not cured by an instruction at his request that "In case either counsel in summing up the stated facts that were not proved upon the trial, or in case either counsel gave a recollection of the facts which disagrees with the recollection of the jury, the jury may disregard these statements and take their own recollection of the facts"—Stewart v. Metropolitan City R. Co. (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 459.

64. United States v. Alexander, 119 Fed. 1015.

65. Cosselmon v. Dunfee, 172 N. Y. 507.

66. Kilpatrick v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 74 Vt. 288. As where the remark is not only withdrawn but an apology made and a request to the jury to disregard it—University of Illinois v. Spalding, 71 N. H. 163. Re-instructed not to consider it, and there is no reasonable ground to believe that they were influenced.[67] A court on adjudging counsel's remarks to be improper may, by pointed rebuke of counsel, remove as far as it can any improper effects from his statements, and may state that it is not based on evidence and such action is sufficient.[68] A direction to the jury that there was no evidence of a statement made in argument, and that it should not be considered, is a ruling that the remark is improper.[69] The jury should be instructed to disregard reference to matters not in issue.[70]

ARREST AND BINDING OVER.

§ 1. Occasion or necessity for warrant.—His official position will not authorize a peace officer to arrest at pleasure without a warrant;[1] the offense must be committed within his view, especially if a misdemeanor,[2] or, if a felony, he must have reasonable cause to believe, either from his own information or that of others, that the person he seeks to arrest committed the offense.[3] If the person arrested did, in fact, commit the crime charged, the reasonableness of the information on which the officer arrested him is immaterial.[4] Discovery of a person running toward him from direction of a disturbance at a late hour of the night may be reasonable ground for belief that he has committed an offense.[5] Under special acts no warrant or information is necessary to arrest a child under 16, found without parent or guardian in a place where intoxicating liquors are sold.[6] An officer acting without a warrant is not justified in shooting a man fleeing from arrest for a less offense than a felony.[7]

A private person may arrest without a warrant where an offense has been committed,[8] or attempted in his presence,[9] but, unlike an officer, he takes the risk of a mistake in attempting to arrest for a felony.[10] If one engaged in a misdemeanor desists and attempts flight a private person cannot arrest him.[11] marks withdrawn concerning damages, the jury instructed to disregard them and verdict reduced to a not excessive amount—Meyer v. Milwaukee El. R. & L. Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 6.

67. Baker v. Independence, 93 Mo. App. 165.

68. Brzozowski v. National Box Co., 104 Ill. App. 338.

69. Jas. Smith Woolen Mach. Co. v. Holden, 73 Vt. 396.

70. Keck v. Bode, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 413.

1. People v. Hochstim (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 562. The possibility that one who threatens the life of another, may assault him is insufficient; Code Cr. Proc. (Tex.) arts. 107-112—Allen v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 66 S. W. 671.

2. People v. Glennon (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 1; arrest for indecent exposure—Rarick v. McManomon, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 154. An officer may arrest one carrying a dangerous weapon, without legal authority, and disarm him—Manger v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 145.

3. That an offense has been committed is, of itself, insufficient—People v. Hochstim (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 562; Rarick v. McManomon, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 154; mere conscious knowledge that a house is disorderly will not justify an arrest of the keeper—People v. Glennon (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 1. This rule has been applied in a civil case—Park v. Taylor (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 34. That a deputy superintendent of elections is also a peace officer will not change the rule as to arrests for violation of the election laws; see Code Cr. Proc. § 177—People v. Hochstim (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 25.

4. Code Iowa, § 5196—State v. Phillips (Iowa) 92 N. W. 876.

5. Brooks v. State, 114 Ga. 6.

6. Under Pen. Code N. Y. § 291, subds. 4, 5—People v. Angie (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 539.

7. Cr. Code Prac. Ky. §§ 36, 43, declares that unnecessary force or violence shall not be used—Petrie v. Cartwright, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 954.

8. Cr. Code Neb. § 284.—Kyner v. Laubner (Neb.) 91 N. W. 491.

9. Code Cr. Proc. N. Y.—Tobin v. Bell (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 41.

10. People v. Glennon (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 1.

11. Golibart v. Sullivan (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 188.

§ 2. Privilege from arrest.—An officer of the United States army cannot be arrested on a warrant or order of a state court.[12] A citizen cannot be arrested and taken away to prevent his voting.[13]

§ 3. Complaint, affidavit, or information to procure warrant.—The preliminary complaint for examination before a magistrate need not charge the crime with the same particularity as an indictment.[14] It is sufficient in South Dakota though it shows that the offense was committed more than three years before if the statutory exception is not pleaded.[15] An affidavit which negatives all exceptions and excuses given in the statute need not state that the act was "unlawfully" done.[16] An affidavit before a magistrate in Mississippi must conclude "against the peace and dignity of the state."[17] The name by which a person is generally known will be sufficient in preliminary examination though his real name is subsequently substituted.[18] An information charging that defendant did commit the crime of misdemeanor at a certain time and place by violating a certain statute is insufficient to give the justice jurisdiction.[19] A complaint for issuance of a warrant is not based on information merely where based on the evidence of another than affiant given before a justice which affiant swore he believed to be true.[20] A verification on information and belief is sufficient except for issuance of a warrant of arrest, and objection must be made by motion to quash the warrant before plea to the merits or other steps which operate as waiver.[21] A preliminary complaint made by one person cannot be substituted for a lost complaint made by another.[22]

§ 4. The warrant and its issuance.[23]—Legal evidence that a crime has been committed is necessary to issuance of a warrant by a magistrate.[24]

A clerk of court so named in the statute authorizing him to issue a warrant does so as the court; and it is lawful; and the clerk pro tempore may exercise the power.[25] A law giving a court of record, or a judge thereof, power to issue warrants for specified offenses, as election frauds, extends the power to every judge of such court.[26]

In Missouri, a justice cannot issue a warrant without an information filed by the prosecuting attorney unless it appears that the accused is about to escape, or has no property to prevent his leaving, or that he has no known place of residence.[27] The necessity of a warrant, issued by a justice on mere affidavit before information filed, should be shown by an entry on the docket, an indorsement on the writ, or other writing of equal weight.[28]

The warrant is ordinarily directed to the regular sheriff or constable.[29] If

12. In re Turner, 119 Fed. 231.

13. People v. Hochstim (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 562.

14. Sufficiency of such complaint in forgery—State v. Newton, 29 Wash. 373, 70 Pac. 31.

15. Comp. Laws, §§ 7114, 7115, construed—Smith v. Jones (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1084.

16. Prosecution of parent under Act Ind., Mch. 6, 1899, concerning duties of parents and guardians in regard to attendance of children at school—State v. Bailey, 157 Ind. 324.

17. Const. § 169—Miller v. State (Miss.) 32 So. 951.

18. State v. Pipes, 65 Kan. 543, 70 Pac. 363.

19. Under Code Cr. Proc. N. Y. §§ 148, 149—People v. Tuthill (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 24.

20. The positive testimony under oath is sufficient—Village of Sparta v. Boorom (Mich.) 89 N. W. 435, 8 Detroit Leg. N. 1100.

21. In re Cummings (Okl.) 66 Pac. 332.

22. Under Code Cr. Proc. Tex. art. 470, providing for substitution of a new indictment on loss of the former one—Morrison v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 66 S. W. 779.

23. Sufficiency of order of arrest issued by magistrate of Russian circuit court as warrant of arrest required by treaty with Russia—In re Grin, 112 Fed. 790.

24. Though it need not be convincing, the uncorroborated oath of a single witness is insufficient where the charge is denied—People v. McGirr (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 471.

25. Under St. 1893, c. 396, § 44; clerk pro tempore was appointed under St. 1893, c. 396, § 6—Commonwealth v. Posson, 182 Mass. 339.

26. Const. art. 8, § 14—In re Election Court (Pa.) 53 Atl. 784.

27. McCaskey v. Garrett, 91 Mo. App. 354.

28. McCaskey v. Garrett, 91 Mo. App. 354.

29. Sufficiency of warrant of arrest directed to a person other than the regularly it follows the statutory requirements, it is sufficient though it does not state the particulars of the crime.[30] Where the complaint was amended as to the name of the owner of property alleged to be stolen, it was not necessary to amend the warrant since it necessarily recited the substance of the complaint and a plea thereto was in effect a plea to the complaint.[31] A warrant of arrest for defacement of a building is not void because it charges that the building was on a highway; a statement of the names of owners specifying a certain person "and divers other persons" is sufficient as to ownership.[32] The warrant is not void because issued on Sunday.[33] An order in contempt to arrest one and bring him before the court without bail or giving a return day in the warrant is not substantial error where he is in court with time to plead and in the meantime is allowed to go on his own recognizance.[34] Waiver of preliminary examination in misdemeanor cures all defects in the warrant.[35] A plea to the merits or entering a recognizance for future appearance waives a defect in the complaint in that it is verified on information and belief.[36]

§ 5. Making arrest and keeping and disposition of prisoner.—The officer must make his character as an officer known to the person at time of arrest.[37] He must inform the person arrested of the intention to arrest him, the cause, and authority to arrest, and that he is a peace officer.[38] A sheriff may arrest an escaped convict at any time and is allowed a reasonable time in which to deliver him to the employer of county convicts.[39] One may be arrested and held to await the action of the grand jury though a former jury failed to indict him, especially where the state subsequently discovers new evidence of the charge against him.[40] A private citizen arresting another for a crime committed or attempted in his presence need not state the cause of the arrest.[41] The common-law rule that one arrested on a capias and surrendered in discharge of bail may be committed without any mittimus is not changed by statute, nor the rule that one, brought into court on a capias issued on information or indictment and failing to furnish bail, may be committed to jail without a mittimus or express order of court.[42] Removal of one under arrest to another parish for sake keeping does not prevent constructive jurisdiction of his person by the former parish and its judge and sheriff.[43]

§ 6. Preliminary hearing, binding over, or discharge.—The preliminary examination is a right or personal privilege which the accused may waive.[44] One may be proceeded against by information without examination before a magistrate and his right to meet the witnesses face to face may be satisfied on the trial.[45] An accused is not entitled to a preliminary examination before a justice elected constable—Parish v. State, 130 Ala. 92.

30. Under Code Cr. Proc. N. Y. §§ 151, 152—Krauskopf v. Tallman, 170 N. Y. 561.

31. Under Rev. St. Wis. 1898, §§ 4740, 4747, and §§ 4703, 4706, providing for amendment of the complaint — Fetkenhauer v. State, 112 Wis. 491.

32. The act is none the less a crime if the building is lawfully on the highway; sufficiency of warrant under 2 Ballinger's Ann. Codes and Stat. §§ 6678, 6683, 6695—State v. Yourex, 30 Wash. 611, 71 Pac. 203.

33. Parish v. State, 130 Ala. 92.

34. State v. Peterson, 29 Wash. 571, 70 Pac. 71.

35. Defendant must show that he has not waived preliminary examination where he pleads in abatement alleging a defect on the warrant and the state joins issue thereon—Everson v. State (Neb.) 93 N. W. 394.

36. In re Cummings, 11 Okl. 286, 66 Pac. 332.

37. Cortez v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 536.

38. Code Iowa, § 5199—Stewart v. Feeley (Iowa) 92 N. W. 570.

39. McQueen v. State, 130 Ala. 136.

40. Ex parte Baker (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 91.

41. Barclay v. United States, 11 Okl. 503, 69 Pac. 798.

42. V. S. §§ 2028, 2029, 1981, construed—State v. Shaw, 73 Vt. 149.

43. State v. Gray (La.) 33 So. 108.

44. Reinoehl v. State, 62 Neb. 619.

45. Bel. & C. Ann. Codes & St. Ore., §§ 1258-64, 1278, 1660, construed in the light of where an indictment for felony has been found.[46] The district attorney cannot send an indictment before the grand jury without preliminary examination or the sanction of the court.[47] A judge who sits on election day with jurisdiction of breaches of the peace or violation of the election laws is a committing magistrate.[48] Where the grand jury for the term in session has been discharged, the committing magistrate, in his discretion, may remand an accused to appear before the next succeeding grand jury and is not required to recognize him for appearance at the present term.[49] Where a week passed between first arraignment and preliminary examination, the magistrate may refuse further postponement to allow accused to procure an attorney.[50] It cannot be objected after the examination that it was taken and certified by another than the official reporter. The magistrate may select the reporter.[51] The public may be excluded on examination by a magistrate.[52] The evidence need only establish probable cause.[53] It must appear on preliminary examination before a committing magistrate of one charged with perjury in a former suit that the alleged false testimony was material to the issues of the suit.[54] Duplicity in charging two offenses in the same count of a complaint in preliminary examination will not affect the proceedings nor the information on trial.[55] The trial court may permit the committing magistrate to amend his certificate to depositions taken before him at preliminary examination outside his district but in the county.[56] Though the transcript of the preliminary examination on which the grand jury acted was not indorsed by the magistrate as required by law, the grand jury may act thereon and the witnesses whose names are indorsed on the indictment may be examined on the trial where the identity of the transcript is unquestioned.[57]

§ 7. Custody awaiting indictment or trial.[58]—A bail warrant is unnecessary when one on trial for felony is ordered into custody in exercise of the court's discretion.[59] A justice has no authority to review an order of the circuit court remanding one charged with seduction to custody to await the action of the grand jury or to change the amount of his bail as fixed by that order.[60]

ARSON.

The offense.—Only a willful burning is essential to arson by a tenant.[1] If the upper floor of a building is occupied as a dwelling, it is a dwelling house.[2]

Const. art. 1, § 11—State v. Belding (Or.) 71 Pac. 330.

46. State v. Mooney, 49 W. Va. 712.

47. Commonwealth v. Sheppard, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 417.

48. In re Election Court (Pa.) 53 Atl. 784.

49. Under Code Cr. Proc. Tex. art. 411, providing for discharge and reassembling of the grand jury—Ex parte Glascow (Tex. Cr. App.) 64 S. W. 1053.

50. Arrest on charge of rape—People v. Figueroa, 134 Cal. 159, 66 Pac. 202.

51. Under Code Iowa. §§ 5227, 4702, providing for taking examinations before magistrates; in this case it was agreed that the minutes of testimony should be taken by the official reporter—State v. Turner, 114 Iowa, 426.

52. People v. Wyatt (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 456; Same v. O'Brien, Id.

53. Sufficiency of evidence to warrant magistrate in holding an officer of an association on a charge of larceny for appropriating property of the association under Pen. Code N. Y. § 528; Code Cr. Proc. N. Y. § 208, construed—People v. Crane, 114 N. Y. State Rep. 408. Sufficiency of commitment to await action of grand jury on charge of violating a certain section of the Penal Code. Under Pen. Code N. Y. § 351—People v. Hagan, 170 N. Y. 46.

54. The offering of the decree in the suit in evidence is insufficient where the materiality of the alleged false testimony does not appear and the judgment roll is not produced—State v. Second Jud. Dist. Ct., 26 Mont. 275, 67 Pac. 943.

55. Sothman v. State (Neb.) 92 N. W. 303.

56. Such permission gives the justice jurisdiction to make the amendment—State v. McGann (Idaho) 66 Pac. 823.

57. Indorsement required by Code Iowa, § 5228—State v. Turner, 114 Iowa, 426.

58. Sufficiency of showing for commitment by magistrate of one charged with fraud in regard to civil service appointment—Palmer v. Colladay, 18 App. D. C. 426.

59. V. S. § 1981, construed—State v. Shaw, 73 Vt. 149.

60. Hall v. State, 130 Ala. 139.

1. The contention was that the elements of arson by an owner (insurance, etc.) must

Indictment.—An averment that a building was "in the possession of and occupied by" a person named sufficiently alleges his tenancy.[3] The offense may be laid on or about a certain day,[4] and property may be laid in one of the codevisees.[5] The name of the person who was in the building need not be stated.[6]

Variance.—Proof of rightful possession by the person charged as owner is sufficient.[7] The evidence of ownership will not be closely scrutinized,[8] and in California if the proof identify the building and it be occupied by another, ownership need not be shown.[9]

Evidence that defendant's clothing smelled of kerosene, which had been used, is admissible,[10] as is evidence of his possession of a tool such as was used in the commission of the offense.[11] Evidence that property not identified as coming from the burned building was taken from defendant's house by an alleged accomplice is inadmissible.[12]

Other offenses.[13]—Incriminating admissions by defendant are sufficient corroboration of an accomplice.[14] An instruction omitting the element of malice is insufficient.[15] Verdict of guilty as charged is sufficient where the information alleges the degree.[16]

Review.—Failure to object to an instruction assuming a material fact does not waive right to attack the sufficiency of the evidence because of failure to show such fact.[17]

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.

§ 1. Nature and elements of criminal offense.[1]—There are numerous statutory crimes of assault with intent to commit felony all of which are differentiated from assault in the proper sense by the specific intent which enters and is appear—Kelley v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 20.

2. State v. Jones (Mo.) 71 S. W. 680.

3. Kelley v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 20.

4. Comp. Laws, § 7245, provides that the precise time need not be stated unless a material ingredient of the offense—State v. McDonald (S. D.) 91 N. W. 447.

5. Code Cr. Proc. art. 445—Kelley v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 20.

6. State v. Jones (Mo.) 71 S. W. 680. Indictment for burning a building in which there was a human being held sufficient—State v. Jones (Mo.) 71 S. W. 680. An allegation that the burning was with intent to injure the building may be rejected as surplusage—State v. Snellgrove (Ark.) 71 S. W. 266. Description of the premises as a "house and tenement" is not bad for duality—State v. Snellgrove (Ark.) 71 S. W. 266.

7. Hannigan v. State, 131 Ala. 29; People v. Davis, 135 Cal. 162, 67 Pac. 59.

8. Defendant had sold the building to the alleged owner, but attempted to show a prior sale by him to a third person—People v. Davis, 135 Cal. 162, 67 Pac. 59.

9. People v. Davis, 135 Cal. 162, 67 Pac. 59.

10. People v. Bishop, 134 Cal. 682, 66 Pac. 976. A witness may state from the color and smell that a bottle had contained alcohol—People v. Fitzgerald, 137 Cal. 546, 70 Pac. 554. It was further held that if the admission of this proof was error, it was rendered harmless by a remark of the court, in checking further inquiry, that others had access to the clothing.

11. Defendant was accused of burning his own house to defraud insurers. Holes were bored in the floor and filled with kerosene. A brace found in the house after the fire was admitted—People v. Bishop, 134 Cal. 682, 66 Pac. 97.

12. Ray v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 64 S. W. 1057.

13. Evidence of the burning of other buildings as part of the same scheme is admissible—State v. Jones (Mo.) 71 S. W. 680. Evidence of other offenses held improper—State v. McCall, 131 N. C. 798. Evidence held insufficient—Chapman v. State, 157 Ind. 300; People v. Johnson, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 308; People v. Wagner, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 399. In the last cited case threats by defendant and his presence at the time the fire started were shown, but there was nothing to indicate that the fire was of incendiary origin. No evidence except previous threats—State v. Freeman, 131 N. C. 725. Circumstantial evidence held to support a conviction—Kelley v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 20.

14. People v. Davis, 135 Cal. 162, 67 Pac. 59.

15. Boone v. State (Miss.) 33 So. 172.

16. Comp. Laws, § 7428, requires the jury to find the degree, but section 7421 provides that a general verdict of guilty refers to the crime charged—State v. McDonald (S. D.) 91 N. W. 447.

17. The assumption was that the fire was incendiary. Defendant had moved for an acquittal because such fact was not shown—People v. Wagner, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 399.

1. Definitions. Assault—State v. Mills

elemental in them.[2] Intent to injure is usually essential.[3] In the note are holdings as to what is an assault.[4]

Battery is not essential to an assault with intent to commit a felony.[5] Assault is defined as aggravated by disparity of age or condition of parties under the Texas statute.[6] Indecent liberties taken without the consent of the female constitute an assault and battery.[7]

§ 2. Defenses.—A school teacher may administer reasonable chastisement.[8] Mere words do not justify an assault,[9] nor does a chastisement of, or indignities to, defendant's child.[10] Where defendant struck the first blow or willingly entered the combat, he cannot urge self-defense,[11] though provoked thereto by abusive words;[12] but one who interferes to prevent injury to the aggressor is justified if he did not know who started the affray.[13] Mere holding of a knife, without overt act, does not justify an assault.[14] Forcible recaption of personalty voluntarily parted with is not justified.[15]

§ 3. Indictment.[16]—An indictment that defendant assaulted, etc., another "by pointing a revolver at him in a threatening manner," sufficiently charges the manner of the assault.[17] Matter of aggravation must be fully charged.[18] Conviction may be had under a charge of a greater offense, provided it be one which includes assault.[19]

§ 4. Evidence; instructions; verdict; punishment.[20]—In the notes are cases

(Del.) 52 Atl. 266; battery—State v. Mills (Del.) 52 Atl. 266; Jacobi v. State, 133 Ala. 1.

2. See Homicide, Robbery, Rape. Accessories. Any person aiding or abetting an assault and battery is liable therefor—State v. Mills (Del.) 52 Atl. 266; Anderson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 110.

3. To ride a horse toward another without intent to ride him down is not an assault, though such person is injured in fleeing from the apparent danger—Barnes v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 168. But see (pointing pistol)—State v. Llewellyn, 93 Mo. App. 469.

4. Following and attempting to detain a woman—State v. Fulkerson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 704. Riding horse toward another—Barnes v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 168. Shooting away from prosecutor—State v. Hunt, 25 R. I. 75. Taking hold of prosecutor while others dispersed his cattle—Fortenberry v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 593. Going into the house for a weapon, it not being brought into the presence of prosecutor, is not an assault—Spradling v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 17. Indecent liberties—Walker v. State, 132 Ala. 11. Making improper gesture to woman—Fuller v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 184.

5. Knight v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 110.

6. A man 28 years old, 6 feet tall, weighing 165 pounds, is a person of robust health—Black v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 113. A man 57 years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 175 pounds, is not an aged person—Black v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 113.

7. Walker v. State, 132 Ala. 11.

8. Whipping which left marks on boy's person held not excessive—Stephens v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 281.

9. Particularly when used the day before the assault—State v. Mills (Del.) 52 Atl. 266.

10. Walkley v. State, 133 Ala. 183. Insulting words to defendant's daughter on the previous day—Walker v. State (Ga.) 43 S. E. 737.

11. Johnson v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 209.

12. Shaw v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1046.

13. Kees v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 855.

14. State v. Pohl, 170 Mo. 422.

15. Lockland v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1054.

16. Indictment for indecent assault held sufficient—State v. Fulkerson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 704.

17. State v. Llewellyn, 93 Mo. App. 469.

18. An averment of "serious injury" without stating its nature and extent insufficient—State v. Battle, 130 N. C. 655. Allegation of assault with a deadly weapon towit, a scythe blade—Spradley v. State, 80 Miss. 82; or a pistol—Mann v. State, 80 Miss. 398, sufficient. The weapon need not be one named in the statute (a brick)—State v. Sims, 80 Miss. 381. Indictment under Texas Statute for assault by robust person upon an aged one—Black v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 113; or by a male upon a female person—Webb v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 276, held sufficient.

19. A conviction of simple assault may be had on an indictment for aggravated assault—Weiner v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 681; or for assault with intent to kill—Sessions v. State, 115 Ga. 18; Com. v. Yarnell, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 144; State v. Washington, 107 La. 298; State v. Kelly, 41 Or. 20, 68 Pac. 1; or for assault with intent to rob—Rambo v. State, 134 Ala. 71; or for assault with intent to do great bodily harm—State v. Climie (N. D.) 94 N. W. 574; or for assault with intent to rape—Duggan v. State (Ga.) 43 S. E. 253; Caddell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 1015; State v. Trusty (Iowa) 92 N. W. 677. But not under an indictment for manslaughter—People v. De Garmo, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 46.

20. Where defendant assaulted an agent removing a sewing machine from defendant's house, evidence as to the contract under which such machine was obtained is competent—Lockland v. State (Tex. Cr. App.)

showing the relevancy of evidence in particular prosecutions, also its sufficiency to make out a case or defense.[21]

Instructions will be necessitated on any matter of defense of which there is evidence,[22] or upon limitation of a right of self-defense.[23] Where there is evidence that prosecutor struck the first blow, a charge on provocation should be given,[24] and defendant's testimony to his intent requires a charge as to use of a weapon with intent only to frighten.[25] If given in answer to a question by the jury, they should be specific.[26] An instruction on self-defense not requiring defendant to have been free from fault is properly refused.[27]

Verdict guilty as charged,[28] or of a specific offense charged, is, generally speaking, correct.[29] Where the penalty affixed would apply to either of two degrees, the verdict should be specific as to degree.[30]

Punishments held proper are shown in the note.[31]

§ 5. Civil liability.—The liability of a master for assault by his servant is elsewhere treated.[32]

What constitutes.[33]—The intent to injure is essential.[34] Anger or malice need not appear.[35] The assault need not culminate in physical violence,[36] and defendant need not have been the actual assailant.[37]

73 S. W. 1054. An altercation the previous day may be shown, where the evidence is conflicting as to who was aggressor in the assault in issue—People v. Tillman (Mich.) 92 N. W. 499. Defendant may show that the place where the assault was alleged to have been committed was public—Duffy v. People, 197 Ill. 357. On trial for assaulting one who was attempting to arrest defendant, he may show the motives and conduct of the person assailed — Spradley v. State, 80 Miss. 82. On trial for indecent assault bad repute of prosecutrix and her admissions of former misconduct may be shown—Wilson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 106. Defendant cannot state why he had the pistol—Holmes v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 180. Opprobrious words used by prosecutor cannot be shown in extenuation under Code, § 4345, where the defendant was the first to use them—Johnson v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 209.

21. Identification by prosecutor, opposed by alibi held insufficient—Duffy v. People, 197 Ill. 357. Assault with deadly weapon; evidence sufficient—People v. Ametta, 111 N. Y. State Rep. 177; People v. Maggio, 111 N. Y. State Rep. 204; Werner v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 68; Black v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 113. Indecent assault; evidence sufficient—Doyle v. Com., 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 143, 40 S. E. 925; State v. Fulkerson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 704. Self-defense held to be for jury—State v. Goode, 130 N. C. 651. From threats and the firing of a pistol the jury may find that it was loaded—Mazzotte v. Territory (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 911. And see Lockland v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1054.

22. Evidence of affray in which defendant shot one who was attempting to disarm him held to require instructions on heat of passion and self-defense—Gordon v. Com., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 552. Evidence held to require charge on accidental shooting—Calhoun v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 279. Evidence of assault on defendant's daughter held to require instruction on self-defense—Williams v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 957.

23. Evidence held to require a charge on duty to retreat—State v. McCann (Or.) 72 Pac. 137.

24. Edgerton v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 678.

25. Instructions for shooting in heat of passion, without malice—Howard v. Com., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1301; Werner v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 681.

26. Instruction defining assault held not sufficient answer to question by jury as to accident—People v. Schlesinger, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 199.

27. Johnson v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 209.

28. Lockland v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1054.

29. A verdict of "guilty of aggravated assault" is good in Arkansas, but not one of "guilty of assault with a deadly weapon," the latter phrase having no technical significance—In re Burns, 113 Fed. 987.

30. Williams v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 957.

31. Evidence in prosecution for aggravated assault held to justify maximum punishment—Webb v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 276. $1000 fine held not excessive—Doyle v. Com., 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 143, 40 S. E. 925.

32. Master and Servant. Carriers.

33. Definition of assault and battery—Butler v. Stockdale, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 98; Armstrong v. Little (Del. Super.) 54 Atl. 742.

34. Gilmore v. Fuller, 198 Ill. 130.

35. Catching hold of a person in a sportive manner and jerking him so as to injure plaintiff—Reynolds v. Pierson, 29 Ind. App. 273.

36. Driving a woman from the house whereby she was exposed to inclement weather—Kline v. Kline, 158 Ind. 602. Pointing a firearm with threat to shoot—Hickey v. Welch, 91 Mo. App. 4.

37. Accessories: One who merely approves an assault by another is not liable —Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513; but one who orders an assault is jointly liable with him who commits it—Sellman v. Wheeler, 95 Md. 751.

Defenses.—Reasonable force may be used in expelling a trespasser.[38] One who uses excessive force in self-defense is liable.[39] Mere provocation or abuse is not a defense.[40] An officer has no right to strike a person not under arrest for disobeying his order.[41]

§ 6. Pleading, evidence, and trial.[42]—A denial of assault to an averment of battery raises no issue,[43] but denial of that charged with allegations of a lesser justifiable one does.[44] In the notes are collected instances of pleadings considered as to sufficiency.[45]

The burden of a prima facie case is on plaintiff.[46] Provocation is admissible in mitigation,[47] but proof of a criminal conviction is not.[48] Evidence of defendant's wealth is not admissible.[49] Other facts admissible generally,[50] or as proving damages or extent of injury,[51] or provocation,[52] as well as sufficiency of evidence,[53] are discussed in the note. Rules of measure and proof of damages are the subject of a forthcoming article but illustrative cases are given.[54] An instruction that one who "caused" or "approved" an assault is liable is misleading.[55]

38. Illinois Steel Co. v. Waznius, 101 Ill. App. 535; Hannabalson v. Sessions, 116 Iowa, 457.

39. Gutzman v. Clancy, 114 Wis. 589; Armstrong v. Little (Del. Super.) 54 Atl. 742.

40. Palmer v. Winston Salem R. & E. Co., 131 N. C. 250; Armstrong v. Little (Del. Super.) 54 Atl. 742.

41. Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513.

42. Amendment of answer before verdict allowed—Hannabalson v. Sessions, 116 Iowa, 457. Costs—Comp. Laws 1897, § 11,258, allowing no costs on recovery of less than $50 applies to recovery against master for assault by servant—Johnson v. Detroit, Y. & A. A. R. Co. (Mich.) 90 N. W. 274.

43. Zwerling v. Annenberg, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 169.

44. And the burden is on plaintiff—Berkner v. Danneberg (Ga.) 43 S. E. 463.

45. Averments authorizing punitive damages sufficient—Johnson v. Bedford, 90 Mo. App. 43. Petition against police officer need not allege that battery was without warrant or order—Connelly v. American B. & T. Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 714. Petition held sufficient—Long v. McWilliams, 11 Okl. 562, 69 Pac. 882. Self defense: Answer that plaintiff began difficulty but not alleging that defendant acted in self defense bad—Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513. If justification appears it is effectual though there was no plea son assault demesne—Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513.

46. The burden is on plaintiff to show the assault but not to negative self-defense—Orscheln v. Scott, 90 Mo. App. 352; Sellman v. Wheeler, 95 Md. 751.

47. Palmer v. Winston Salem R. & E. Co., 131 N. C. 250; Genung v. Baldwin, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584; Berkner v. Dannenberg (Ga.) 43 S. E. 463. Contra,—Armstrong v. Rhoades (Del. Super.) 53 Atl. 435.

48. Armstrong v. Rhoades (Del. Super.) 53 Atl. 435; Edwards v. Wessinger, 65 S. C. 161.

49. Beavers v. Bowen, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 882, 70 S. W. 195.

50. On trial for an assault committed by an officer preserving order at the polls it was held that rules of a political party were inadmissible. That evidence that the election was declared off because of interference was inadmissible—Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513. Evidence of plaintiff's turbulent character held inadmissible, and in no case can bad character be proved by specific acts—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bell (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 56.

51. Evidence of time of plaintiff's disability proper though no damages claimed for loss of time—Gutzman v. Clancy, 114 Wis. 589. Evidence of physician as to injury held competent though he did not know the cause thereof—Sellman v. Wheeler, 95 Md. 751.

52. Evidence of defamatory publications by defendant long before not admissible in mitigation—Genung v. Baldwin, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 195.

53. Evidence held sufficient. Question as to sufficiency of replevin proceedings in action against officer serving writ—McKinstry v. Collins, 74 Vt. 147. Evidence as to conspiracy between defendants held for the jury—Orscheln v. Scott, 90 Mo. App. 352. Evidence of conspiracy insufficient—Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513. On undisputed evidence a verdict is properly directed—Genung v. Baldwin, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 195.

54. See Damages. Elements of compensatory damages—Armstrong v. Rhoades (Del. Super.) 53 Atl. 435. Where a woman was driven from the house at the point of a pistol and suffered from exposure to weather, damages for fright and mental suffering may be recovered—Kline v. Kline, 158 Ind. 602. Amount. Substantial damages not allowed for technical trespass—Slingerland v. Gillespie, 67 N. J. Law, 385. $300 not excessive where illness was caused and plaintiff's arm was disabled several weeks—Long v. McWilliams, 11 Okl. 562, 69 Pac. 882. $500 for indecent familiarities held not excessive—Bruske v. Neugent (Wis.) 93 N. W. 454. Evidence held not to justify punitive damages—Orscheln v. Scott, 90 Mo. App. 352.

55. Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513. Miscellaneous decisions respecting instructions. Instruction that day laid in declaration is not essential is correct though the evidence fixes the day and there is proof of an alibi—Bruske v. Neugent (Wis.) 93 N. W. 454. Instructions held to be conflicting—Stone v. Heggie (Miss.) 34 So. 146. Instruction as to self-defense held proper where plaintiff attempted to ride defendant down—Halley v. Tichenor (Iowa) 94 N. W. 472. In-

ASSIGNMENTS.

§ 1. Rights susceptible of assignment.—Matter not in esse may be assigned,[1] or demands not yet due,[2] such as rights to accrue under an unperformed contract,[3] or wages to be earned under an existing contract,[4] and the rule is not changed by statutes prohibiting what is known as the "truck system;"[5] but there can be no assignment of a possibility of future employment.[6] An heir cannot assign his expectancy.[7]

An office or agency involving personal confidence cannot be assigned,[8] nor contracts for personal services.[9] It cannot be objected that a contract is not assignable because one of trust and confidence, where there is a consent to its transfer and payment to the transferee.[10] An agreement to buy merchandise is not so personal that it cannot be assigned.[11] A contract between a railroad company and a lumber company whereby the lumber company agrees to ship entirely by the railroad cannot be assigned so as to bind the railroad without its assent.[12] A covenant not to engage in business is assignable.[13] An agreement by a corporation to construct and operate a street railroad may be assigned,[14] as may a contract empowering a railroad company to take water from a spring and erect a pumping works.[15] An assignment of the salary of a public officer to be earned in the future is void.[16] The assignability of a contract may be restricted by agreement.[17]

struction as to self-defense against officers not disclosing their purpose, correct—Stuck v. Yates (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 177. Instruction as to exemplary damages incorrect—proper form stated—Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513. Instruction as to powers of officer preserving order at polls, incorrect—Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1513. Instruction held to authorize consideration of plaintiff's epileptic condition though it should have been more specific—St. Louis Trust Co. v. Murmann, 90 Mo. App. 555. Evidence held to require instruction as to injury impairing plaintiff's capacity to work—Sellman v. Wheeler, 95 Md. 751. Evidence held not to require instruction as to recaption of property—Keller v. Lewis, 116 Iowa, 369.

1. Such assignments operate as present contracts, and attach to matter assigned when it comes into being—Williams v. West Chicago St. R. Co., 101 Ill. App. 291; as a right, covered by a mortgage, to receive securities to be issued—Central Trust Co. v. West India Imp. Co., 169 N. Y. 314; Brewer v. Griesheimer, 104 Ill. App. 323.

2. Citizens' Trust & Surety Co. v. Howell, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 255.

3. Citizens' Trust & Surety Co. v. Howell, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 255.

4. Tolman v. Union Casualty & Surety Co., 90 Mo. App. 274. This whether the employment is of certain or uncertain duration or whether the assignment is as security for present or future advances or an outright sale—Bell v. Mulholland, 90 Mo. App. 612; Brewer v. Griesheimer, 104 Ill. App. 323; Wenhan v. Mallin, 103 Ill. App. 609.

5. Brewer v. Griesheimer, 104 Ill. App. 323.

6. Bell v. Mulholland, 90 Mo. App. 612.

7. In re Wickersham's Estate, 138 Cal. 355, 70 Pac. 1076.

8. Colton v. Raymond (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 863. A contract to rent a space in a department store with an agreement to furnish services is not assignable without mutual consent—Moore v. Thompson, 93 Mo. App. 336.

9. Applying to a contract to do county printing—Campbell v. Board of Com'rs, 64 Kan. 376, 67 Pac. 866.

10. Employment of an architect by county commissioners to draft plans—Weatherhogg v. Board of Com'rs, 158 Ind. 14.

11. Liberty Wall Paper Co. v. Stoner Wall Paper Mfg. Co., 170 N. Y. 582.

12. Tifton, T. & G. R. Co. v. Bedgood (Ga.) 43 S. E. 257.

13. Fleckenstein Bros. Co. v. Fleckenstein (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 1043.

14. Under both general law and Revised Statutes, art. 308, providing for the assignment of non-negotiable instruments—Lakeview Land Co. v. San Antonio Traction Co., 95 Tex. 252. A promise to build a sidetrack in consideration of release from liability for loss by fire is assignable by a railroad company (Rev. St. Tex. art. 308)—Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Carter, 95 Tex. 461.

15. Rev. St. art. 308, makes the interest of an obligee of any non-negotiable written instrument assignable—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 83.

16. City of Chicago v. People, 98 Ill. App. 517; First Nat. Bank v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 633. An agreement by which a partner appointed boiler inspector agrees to allow his salary to go to the partnership is not void as assignment of unearned salary—McGregor

Rights of action which survive may be assigned,[18] though they may, by statute, be nonassignable before suit is brought.[19] An assignment of a portion of whatever may be recovered in an action or by way of compromise is not against public policy as preventing compromise of disputed claims.[20] A grantor's right of re-entry for condition broken is assignable after breach.[21] The right to charge a partner's individual property for firm debts and a judgment therefor is assignable.[22] A claim for damages may be wholly or partially assigned,[23] but in some jurisdictions a right of action sounding in tort for unliquidated damages is not assignable,[24] as also a right to sue for the balance due on an insurance policy after settlement under mistake as to the amount.[25] Assignments of distinct claims to one person are not invalidated by the fact that the sum over which a particular court has jurisdiction is thereby exceeded.[26] The right to maintain an action may pass with an assignment of a substantial property right.[27] A right of action limited to particular persons is nonassignable,[28] so a statutory right of redemption from foreclosure is not assignable.[29] An assignment void as a conveyance may be enforced by way of estoppel.[30]

§ 2. Requisites and sufficiency of express assignments.—Assignments may be by parol,[31] as in case of a debt,[32] in which instance they may be established by acts and conduct of the parties.[33] An assignment of a right of action need not be witnessed.[34] Written evidences of debt may be assignable by delivery.[35] A written evidence of assignment may be transferred by delivery of possession and indorsement.[36] Where a contract is personal, consent to its assignment may be pre-

v. McGregor (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 118, 90 N. W. 284.

17. Where a building contract contains an agreement that there shall be no assignment without the architect's consent, an assignee without such consent derives no rights—Mueller v. Northwestern University, 195 Ill. 236. A provision in a building contract that rights thereunder shall not be assigned without consent of the architect is not waived by failure to repudiate an assignment, of which the notice to the owners was sufficient only to afford them knowledge, after investigation, that the contractor was to collect the amount due and to account to his assignee therefor—Mueller v. Northwestern University, 195 Ill. 236.

18. A portion of a cause of action against a railroad company for injuries to the person may be assignable before suit. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. art. 3353a, providing that causes of action for personal injuries not resulting in death shall survive—Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Ginther (Tex.) 72 S. W. 166. Actions to recover penalty for exaction of usurious interest under Rev. St. art. 3106—Taylor v. Sturgis (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 538. Rights of the owner of a horse and cutter to sue for an injury resulting from a defective highway may pass by assignment—Bolster v. Ithaca St. R. Co. (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 239.

19. Action by wife for death of husband, construing Rev. St. arts. 3025, 4647—Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 503. A cause of action for personal injuries is assignable before suit brought—Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Ginther (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 96.

20. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Ginther (Tex.) 72 S. W. 166.

21. Bouvier v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. Co., 67 N. J. Law, 281.

22. Right preserved by Code, § 27—Wood v. Carter (Neb.) 93 N. W. 158.

23. Breach of warranty—McConaughey v. Bennett's Ex'rs, 50 W. Va. 172. Claim of a tenant against his landlord—United States Casualty Co. v. Bagley (Mich.) 8 Det. Leg. N. 843, 87 N. W. 1044, 55 L. R. A. 616.

24. A right of action by a widow to recover for the wrongful death of her husband is not assignable before verdict—Marsh v. Western N. Y. & P. R. Co., 204 Pa. 229.

25. Goodson v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n, 91 Mo. App. 339.

26. So held in the case of claims for killing stock—Henderson v. Detroit & M. R. Co. (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 386, 91 N. W. 630.

27. So an action to avoid a fraud may be maintained where incidental to a subsisting substantial right—National Valley Bank v. Hancock 4 Va. Sup. Ct. Rep. 20, 40 S. E. 611.

28. Bank's right of action to have transfers of bonds by its directors to its president, set aside—Smith v. Pac. Bank, 137 Cal. 363, 70 Pac. 184.

29. Terry v. Allen, 132 Ala. 657.

30. In re Wickersham's Estate, 138 Cal. 355, 70 Pac. 1076.

31. Over claims of subsequent attaching creditors—Beard v. Sharp, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1582.

32. Forsyth v. Ryan (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1055.

33. Forsyth v. Ryan (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1055.

34. An assignment of a right to annul a judicial sale need not be by authentic act—Viguerie v. Hall, 107 La. 767.

35. Checks for services payable in goods at the employer's store are assignable by delivery (Sand. & H. Dig., § 489)—Martin-Alexander Lumber Co. v Johnson, 70 Ark. 215.

36. Twelfth Ward Bank v. Samuels (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 168.

sumed from acquiescence.[37] An executory agreement to assign does not pass legal title.[38] The person liable cannot question the consideration for the assignment of a claim,[39] nor is his consent necessary;[40] but before a partial assignment may be enforced at common law the debtor must assent,[41] though assent is not necessary to its enforcement in equity if all parties are before the court;[42] so an order drawn on a debtor in favor of a third person must be accepted to amount to an assignment.[43] The debtor cannot object that the debt is stated at less than its amount.[44]

As to third persons, a consideration is immaterial,[45] or where the only defense made is an accord and satisfaction.[46] An assignment under seal will be presumed to be on good consideration.[47] A mistake in the name by which a claim is assigned will not invalidate it.[48]

On assignment of a claim, notice to the debtor is unnecessary except as against junior assignees.[49] Priorities between assignments may depend on notice.[50]

Record.—An assignment of part of a cause of action before suit need not be filed where there is actual notice, though there is a statutory requirement that sales of judgment or causes of action shall be acknowledged, filed, and noted on the judgment or trial docket.[51]

§ 3. Constructive or equitable assignments.—Any order, writing, or act which makes an appropriation of a fund amounts to an equitable assignment thereof,[52] so an order on a specified fund operates pro tanto;[53] but it must be drawn on a particular fund,[54] and must be accepted by the party on whom it is drawn.[55]

37. Consent to assignment of the privilege of conducting a shoe department in a department store may be shown by permission to the assignee to continue in possession—Moore v. Thompson, 93 Mo. App. 336.

38. After such an agreement, the assignor may still maintain an action in his own name—National City Bank of Grand Rapids v. Torrent (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 49, 89 N. W. 938.

39. A defendant railroad company cannot where a stock claim is assigned by writing which recites a valuable consideration, object to the assignment on the ground that the assignee was to turn over the proceeds and was not the owner—Henderson v. Detroit & M. R. Co. (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 386, 91 N. W. 630.

40. Kingsbury v. Joseph, 94 Mo. App. 298.

41. Rivers v. A. & C. Wright & Co. (Ga.) 43 S. E. 499.

42. Rivers v. A. & C. Wright & Co. (Ga.) 43 S. E. 499.

43. Andrews v. Frierson (Ala.) 33 So. 6.

44. Colorado School Land Leasing & Mining Co. v. Ponick (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 458.

45. Forsyth v. Ryan (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1055.

46. Phipps v. Bacon (Mass.) 66 N. E. 414.

47. McDonough v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 625.

48. Claim against Colorado School Land Leasing & Mining Company, assigned sub nom. Colorado School Land Mining & Leasing Company—Colorado School Land Leasing & Mining Co. v. Ponick (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 458.

49. Where accounts and bills receivable were transferred as collateral for a loan—Young v. Upson, 115 Fed. 192; Houser v. Richardson, 90 Mo. App. 134. On assignment of equitable interest, the assignee must notify the trustee to protect himself against junior assignees—Houser v. Richardson, 90 Mo. App. 134.

50. A contract right to an assignment has no priority over a subsequent assignment, unless the debtor and subsequent assignees both have notice prior to the subsequent assignment—Enochs-Havis Lumber Co. v. Newcomb, 79 Miss. 462.

51. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. art. 4647—Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Ginther (Tex.) 72 S. W. 166.

52. As where by an instrument in writing addressed to a city treasurer and recorded, by which it was agreed to pay claimants an amount due for services as a fireman—Harlow v. Bartlett, 96 Me. 294; McConaughey v. Bennett's Ex'rs, 50 W. Va. 172. Sufficiency of assignment of notes and book accounts—Smith v. Meyer, 84 Minn. 455. An agreement to pay 50 per cent of any sum recovered in any proceedings which an attorney should deem it advisable to take to secure compensation for the taking of land for a street amounts to an equitable assignment—Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451. An instrument reciting that it had empowered petitioner and a banker to make certain sales, and had agreed to allow petitioner a per cent on purchase price received from his sales, and directed the banker to pay such per cent from the purchase money to petitioner, operates as an equitable assignment giving the petitioner a lien on the funds—Leupold v. Weeks, 96 Md. 280.

53. Willard v. Bullen, 41 Or. 25, 67 Pac. 924. Order on a fund due a municipal contractor filed with the proper city officers—Dickerson v. Spokane, 26 Wash. 292, 66 Pac. 381.

54. Izzo v. Leddington (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 272.

55. So an agreement that a third person shall collect money and apply it to a particular indebtedness is not an assignment, until the third person has agreed to make such application—Hanchey v. Hurley, 129 Ala. 306. There must be an acceptance be-

Delivery of a check for payment of notes against a deposit subject to check is an assignment pro tanto,[56] though, contra, a bank check for a portion of a deposit does not at the time of delivery operate as an assignment pro tanto.[57] A mere promise to pay from a particular fund does not amount to an equitable assignment,[58] or to pay a debt from a fund to be created.[59] A power of attorney to collect operates an equitable assignment.[60] An agreement to pay an attorney a certain amount on settlement or recovery of a claim does not amount to an equitable assignment,[61] but an agreement to pay attorneys compensation from an appropriation to be secured by them has such effect.[62]

§ 4. Construction, interpretation, and effect.[63]—Assignees of nonnegotiable choses in action take subject to existing equities.[64] An assignment of the earnings of a threshing machine cannot be enforced against an innocent purchaser without notice.[65] After assignment of an equitable interest and notice to the trustee, the assignee's rights attach to the property itself.[66] Where an attorney is assigned one-third of a cause of action, the defendant with notice will be liable to the attorney for such portion of a sum paid directly to the client by way of compromise against the attorney's rights.[67] The assignee of corporate stock acquires rights accruing to his assignor.[68] When certain shares of stock are assigned to the receiver by an instrument vesting him with "rights of an owner so far as regards sale, disposition, and management," dealings with the stock by the receiver after the death of the assignor for the benefit of all parties in interest cannot be attacked by the assignor's administrator for the reason that he did not consent to them.[69] An agreement to sell bonds in litigation does not convey a judgment regarding them.[70] On an equitable assignment of rights under a contract, the assignee must show that his assignor has so performed as to be entitled to payment.[71] An assignment of moneys to become due under a contract may not fore an implied request of the creditor that the debtor pay the debt to a third person, will amount to an assignment—Shackelford v. M. C. Kiser Co. (Ala.) 31 So. 77. An instrument reciting that for value received, the makers "hereby sell and assign" a certain amount of "any money due or to become due," and containing a request to pay persons named out of any moneys becoming due or due on an account mentioned, and to charge the same to the drawers, is not an assignment, but is an order or bill of exchange, which must be accepted, as required by Act 1899, § 132—Nelson v. Nelson-Bennett Co. (Wash.) 71 Pac. 749.

56. Staninger v. Tabor, 103 Ill. App. 330.

57. Donohoe-Kelly Banking Co. v. Southern Pac. Co., 138 Cal. 183, 71 Pac. 93.

58. Phillips v. Hogue, 63 Neb. 192; Addison v. Enoch, 168 N. Y. 658.

59. So held on an agreement to transfer bonds to be thereafter issued in consideration of an assignment of a judgment—Cushing v. Chapman, 115 Fed. 237.

60. Power of attorney conferring on a bank full authority to collect all sums due for government work, amounts to an equitable assignment of the entire amount to become due, including a percentage retained as a guaranty fund. So held awarding the assignment priority over a subsequent assignment of the percentage retained to a person without notice—National Bank of Republic v. United Security Life Ins. & Trust Co., 17 App. D. C. 112.

61. Randel v. Vanderbilt (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 313.

62. Sanborn v. Maxwell, 18 App. D. C. 245.

63. On an agreement to assign so much of a claim as should be unsecured at a certain time, a garnishment in a suit on the claim may be regarded as security—National City Bank of Grand Rapids v. Torrent (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 49, 89 N. W. 938. Where there is an equitable assignment of 50% of an award in condemnation, the amount of a mortgage ordered paid by the court must be deducted in determining the sum transferred, though the owner was not bound to pay such mortgage—Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451.

64. Third Nat. Bank v. Western & A. R. Co., 114 Ga. 890. So the assignee of a cost bill takes subject to any right of off-set—Northwestern & Pacific Hypotheek Bank v. Rauch (Idaho) 66 Pac. 807.

65. Rydson v. Larson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 195.

66. Houser v. Richardson, 90 Mo. App. 134.

67. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Ginther (Tex.) 72 S. W. 166.

68. Where a corporation taking over another agrees to pay its stockholders a certain sum, the assignee of a shareholder may recover an amount paid his assignor under the agreement though he may not bring an action against the corporation—Bacon v. Grossmann (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 574.

69. McCartney v. Earle (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 462.

70. Smith v. Pac. Bank, 137 Cal. 363, 70 Pac. 184.

71. Goldengay v. Smith, 62 N. J. Eq. 354.

deprive the assignor of the right to collect such moneys.[72] The holders of a fund cannot contend that nothing was due the assignor where they have led the assignee to believe that only the amount was in controversy and to be fixed by the court.[73] Before acceptance by the assignee, an employer is not released by an assignment of the contract of employment.[74] A contract by a lessor to save a lessee harmless for damages on account of an adverse claim cannot be assigned to the adverse claimant so as to permit a recovery against the lessor of rent paid under the lease.[75]

§ 5. Enforcement of assignment and of rights assigned.—An action at law may be brought on an equitable assignment.[76] A consideration is not necessary to enable an absolute assignee to sue in his own name,[77] but an assignee for collection cannot sue in his own name,[78] though one who has agreed to use the proceeds for the benefit of the assignor may recover.[79] Where by statute permission is given an assignee to sue in his own name, permission to sue in the name of the assignor is immaterial.[80] The assignor of a chose in action need not be made a party to an action thereon by the assignee.[81] The assignee of a subcontractor on public work may sue in the assignor's name.[82] Where the assignee of a contract assumes the obligations of his assignor, he does not become a party thereto so that he may be sued at law on the contract, nor will the doctrine of subrogation apply in such an action.[83]

It is sufficient to allege that a contract was "duly" assigned.[84] Consideration may be generally alleged.[85] An averment before a justice that a claim for services was assigned to plaintiff is a sufficient averment that the assignment was of an antecedent debt.[86] Failure of the declaration to state that an assignment is in writing must be taken advantage of by demurrer, and objection cannot be made

72. So held where all moneys were assigned, "except such sums as may be due or owing to other material men, sub-contractors, or laborers," but no method was specified by which the amount to be received by the assignee was to be determined, nor express authority given him to collect the moneys assigned him—Mueller v. Northwestern University, 195 Ill. 236. Knowledge of the owners of such an assignment does not render them liable to the assignee in case the contractor converts money received to his own use—Mueller v. Northwestern University, 195 Ill. 236. In case a building contract provides that it shall not be assigned without consent of the owner, failure of the owners to investigate a notice of assignment does not prevent them from setting up payment as against the assignee where but slight information would have been gained by investigation after notice—Mueller v .Northwestern University, 195 Ill. 236.

73. So held where after an allowance to trustees for counsel fees they attempted to retain the amount as against the counsel's assignee on the ground that there had been an agreement that the assignor was not to receive a fee by permission of the other attorneys, though there had been a refusal by the court to allow any fee to the assignor—Stone v. Hart, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1777.

74. Acceptance is not shown by letters from the assignee to the employe requesting him to report and adjust a question of salary, salary being specified in the original contract—Griffin v. Brooklyn Ball Club (N. Y.) 68 App. Div. 566.

75. Examine Sherman v. Spalding (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 617, 93 N. W. 613.

76. Dickerson v. Spokane, 26 Wash. 292, 66 Pac. 381.

77. Notwithstanding a statutory requirement that actions must be instituted by the real party in interest—Roth v. Continental Wire Co., 94 Mo. App. 236. Assignee of a cause of action arising from a breach of an agreement to discontinue another suit may maintain an action though there is no consideration—Rosenthal v. Rudnick (N. Y.) 65 App. Div. 519.

78. Assignments of an itemized verified account and oral agreements to pay the full amount when collected to the assignor—Stewart v. Price, 64 Kan. 191, 67 Pac. 553.

79. As where a claim if collected was to be applied on a board bill of the assignor—Forsyth v. Ryan (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1055.

80. St. 1897, c. 402, § 1; Gilman v. American Producers' Controlling Co., 180 Mass. 319; Peters v. Same, Id.

81. Wood v. Carter (Neb.) 93 N. W. 158.

82. Brownell Imp. Co. v. Critchfield, 197 Ill. 61.

83. Goodyear Shoe Mach. Co. v. Dancel (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 692.

84. Buffalo Tin Can Co. v. E. W. Bliss Co., 118 Fed. 106.

85. It is sufficient to allege that an order against the city was in payment of labor performed for a contractor on public work—Dickerson v. Spokane, 26 Wash. 292, 66 Pac. 381. Where a written assignment states that it is for a valuable consideration, it cannot be contended that the actual consideration was not specifically set forth, in an exception of no cause of action—Viguerie v. Hall, 107 La. 767.

86. Farnam v. Doyle, 128 Mich. 696.

after the written assignment has been admitted without objection.[87] It cannot be shown that an assignment is colorable unless such fact is pleaded.[88] The capacity of the assignor may be investigated.[89] An allegation of assignment by a company is not supported by an assignment executed by an individual.[90] A question as to the existence of an assignment and the assent of a controlling party thereto is for the jury.[91]

ASSIGNMENTS FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS.

§ 1. Nature of transaction in general.—A transfer of property direct to a creditor as collateral security is not a general assignment,[1] nor is a conveyance by a testamentary trustee of his interest in the trust estate, and a reconveyance to him of the same estate,[2] nor an assignment of particular choses for the benefit of particular creditors in the absence of such intentions.[3]

§ 2. Statutory provisions and conflict of laws.—Under the rule of comity as to real estate,[4] the laws of the state of the making of a general assignment govern its validity,[5] or the assignee's title,[6] and it will be enforced as against the property in a foreign state if the creditors residing therein are not prejudiced thereby,[7] or public policy thereof is not transgressed.[8]

§ 3. Right to make a general assignment.—An officer of a corporation can only make an assignment of the corporate assets with the concurrence of the board of directors.[9]

§ 4. Filing, recording, or registering; qualifying of assignee, removals, and substitution.—In some of the states it is required by statute, to pass title of nonresident assignors, that the assignment be recorded in the county of the situs of the property or debt.[10]

The trust does not fail because the assignee fails to qualify as required by statute,[11] or because of incapacity of and maladministration of the assignee,[12]

87. Phipps v. Bacon (Mass.) 66 N. E. 414.

88. The execution of the assignment was admitted—Lesh v. Meyer, 63 Kan. 524, 66 Pac. 245.

89. In an action on an assigned claim which originally stood in the name of the assignor in trust, it is proper to inquire whether the assignor held in trust for some one else as bearing on the validity of the assignment—Chambers v. Webster (N. Y.) 69 App. Div. 546.

90. Kibler v. Brown, 114 Fed. 1014.

91. Liberty Wall Paper Co. v. Stoner Wall Paper Mfg. Co., 170 N. Y. 582.

1. Transfer to the receiver of the creditor—McCartney v. Earle (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 462.

2. Within Act 1843—In re Hart's Estate, 202 Pa. 503; Appeal of Philadelphia Trust, Safe Deposit & Ins. Co., Id.

3. Assignment of an insurance policy—Brookshier v. Chillicothe Ins. Co., 91 Mo. App. 599.

4. Memphis Sav. Bank v. Houchens (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 96.

5. Memphis Sav. Bank v. Houchens (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 96.

6. Watson v. Bonfils (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 157.

7. Memphis Sav. Bank v. Houchens (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 96.

8. Bloomingdale v. Weil, 29 Wash. 611; Bloomingdale v. Security Safe Deposit & Trust Co., Id.

9. Lesher v. Friedman, 99 Ill. App. 42.

10. Situs of debt due by a domestic corporation authorized to transact business in the state of the nonresident assignor held to be in the foreign state, and that the assignment need not be recorded in this state—De Turck v. Woelfel, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 265, 270.

11. H. B. Claflin Co. v. Middlesex Banking Co., 113 Fed. 958.

12. Long v. Campbell, 133 Ala. 353.

but a court of equity will execute the trust[13] by removing the assignee[14] and appointing another in his place.[15] A substituted assignee is precluded by acts of his predecessor.[16]

§ 5. Meaning and effect in general.—A deed of general assignment will operate to relinquish all rights of the assignor in his assets.[17]

§ 6. Legality and equitableness.—A deed invalid in its inception cannot be validated by a subsequent deed,[18] and, if valid, it cannot be invalidated by any subsequent acts of the creditors,[19] assignor or assignee,[20] or by erroneous orders of court.[21] By participating in or accepting benefits from the estate, creditors will be estopped to question the validity of the assignment.[22]

Conditions.—An undisclosed condition releasing the assignor from claims authorizes a rescission by an assenting creditor.[23]

Reservation of property.—While property may remain in the hands of the assignor on assignment,[24] yet, if the deed of assignment on its face conveys all the assignor's property and he retains undisclosed property, the assignment is void;[25] but the reservation of a homestead[26] or an unmatured claim may be valid.[27]

Preferences.—Preferring certain creditors by omitting other creditors renders the assignment void,[28] provided there was an intent to prefer such creditors;[29] but assenting creditors will be estopped to claim that the assignment is a general one.[30] In the absence of such an assent thereto by all the creditors, it may be declared a general assignment for the benefit of them all.[31] This may be done on action brought against the assignee in his individual capacity.[32] Such a judgment will relate back to the original deed,[33] and is admissible in evidence in action against the assignee to recover the assets.[34] A nonassenting creditor may reach the property, in the hands of a trustee under deed to prefer certain creditors, by garnishment.[35] A conveyance of property on the day of the execution of the assignment does not constitute a preference.[36]

§ 7. Property passing to and the rights of the assignee therein.—All of the debtor's property,[37] except that which equitably belongs to creditors[38] and that

13. H. B. Claflin Co. v. Middlesex Banking Co., 113 Fed. 958.

14. Long v. Campbell, 133 Ala. 353.

15. In New York the county court has jurisdiction—Matter of Sheldon (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 625.

16. In re Plankinton Bank, 114 Wis. 582; National Bank of Republic v. Herman, Id.; Provident L. & T. Co. v. Fidelity Co., 203 Pa. 82, wherein assets were abandoned by predecessor.

17. And he can do nothing to invalidate it—Taylor v. Seiter, 100 Ill. App. 643.

18. Rainwater-Bradford Hat Co. v. McBride (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 597; H. B. Claflin Co. v. Harrison (Fla.) 31 So. 818.

19. The subsequent acts of the creditors or the assignee cannot be imputed to the assignors.—Taylor v. Seiter, 100 Ill. App. 643.

20. Long v. Campbell, 133 Ala. 353.

21. Taylor v. Seiter, 100 Ill. App. 643.

22. Memphis Sav. Bank v. Houchens (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 96; Taylor v. Seiter, 100 Ill. App. 643; Kaufman v. Simon, 80 Miss. 189.

23. Graves v. Morgan, 182 Mass. 161. And a suit by the creditors to enforce claims is a sufficient rescission—Graves v. Morgan, 182 Mass. 161.

24. Owens v. Taylor, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 612.

25. Owens v. Taylor, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 612: H. B. Claflin Co. v. Harrison (Fla.) 31 So. 818.

26. Long v. Campbell, 133 Ala. 353.

27. Claim for compensation for personal services to be performed—Rainwater-Bradford Hat Co. v. McBride (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 597.

28. H. B. Claflin Co. v. Harrison (Fla.) 31 So. 818. Contra in Indian Territory—Robinson v. Belt, 187 U. S. 41.

If an assignment contains no preferences, it is not necessary to file the schedule required by Code 1892, § 124—Kaufman v. Simon, 80 Miss. 189.

29. Lenhardt v. Ponder, 64 S. C. 354; Mengert v. Brinkerhoff (Ohio) 66 N. E. 530. Rev. St. § 6343, amended April 26, 1898—Owens v. Taylor, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 612.

30 Mengert v. Brinkerhoff (Ohio) 66 N. E. 530.

31. Mengert v. Brinkerhoff (Ohio) 66 N. E. 530.

32. Mengert v. Brinkerhoff (Ohio) 66 N. E. 530.

33. Mengert v. Brinkerhoff (Ohio) 66 N. E. 530.

34. Mengert v. Brinkerhoff (Ohio) 66 N. E. 530.

35. Hungerford v. Greengard, 95 Mo. App. 653.

36. Taylor v. Seiter, 199 Ill. 555.

37. Cornell v. Sulter, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 384. The county court has jurisdiction thereover—Taylor v. Seiter, 100 Ill. App. 643.

38. Ross v. Sayles, 104 Ill. App. 19.

which was subsequently acquired by the assignor, passes to the assignee;[39] but if the deed conveys specific property, no other property passes.[40] The law of the state of the making of an assignment governs the title of the assignee.[41] He takes subject to all existing equities.[42]

Under the rights and interests passing may be included an interest as distributee in a decedent's estate,[43] a life estate,[44] a contingent remainder,[45] property pledged to the assignor as collateral security,[46] money earned under a contract, though not due at the time of the making of the assignment,[47] and a bank deposit, though the bank held unmatured notes against the assignor.[48]

Property which has no value as an asset may be properly excluded from the appraisement by the assignee;[49] and if the assignee fails to include property in his inventory, or to assert any claim of ownership or right thereto, it will constitute an abandonment thereof as an asset of the estate.[50] Where the assignee had abandoned a portion of the assets of the estate, his successor in office could not claim the same as against an intervening bona fide purchaser.[51]

Property transferred or conveyed by assignor.—While the assignor may in good faith, before an intent to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, transfer his property or give liens thereon,[52] yet, if made after a contemplated assignment, the property attempted to be transferred will be included in the assignment,[53] provided there is an intent to prefer the creditor[54] and the assignor is insolvent, of which the grantee had knowledge.[55] A conveyance by the assignor, recorded on the same day, though executed some time before the assignment was recorded, will not except the property from the assignment.[56] Chattel mortgages void as to the mortgagor's creditors are so as to his assignee.[57] Since it is the duty of the assignee to sue to set aside fraudulent transfers by the assignor,[58]

39. Rainwater-Bradford Hat Co. v. McBride (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 597.

40. Owens v. Taylor, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 612.

41. Watson v. Bonfils (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 157.

42. Storts v. Mills, 93 Mo. App. 201.

43. Though the administrator had not reduced the entire estate to possession—Gatewood v. Gatewood's Adm'x, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 931, 70 S. W. 284.

44. Cunningham v. Estill, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 559, 68 S. W. 1081.

45. Whether the parties to the deed believed it so passed or not—McAllister v. Ohio Valley Banking & Trust Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1307, 71 S. W. 509.

46. Cornell v. Sulter, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 384.

47. A building contract provided that, in case the owner was compelled to complete the building, the cost thereof should be offset against whatever was due the contractor. Held, that the money so due for the surplus passes to the assignee of the contractor—New Jersey Steel & Iron Co. v. Robinson (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 481.

48. Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 89.

49. An endowment insurance policy due in eight years, and, in case of death, payable to others and creditors of the assignor, held a valueless asset—Provident L. & T. Co. v. Fidelity Ins. Co., 203 Pa. 82.

50. Failure to exercise rights over an endowment insurance policy—Provident L. & T. Co. v. Fidelity Ins. Co., 203 Pa. 82.

51. Provident L. & T. Co. v. Fidelity Ins. Co., 203 Pa. 82.

52. International Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 101 Ill. App. 548. A partial transfer of money earned under a building contract which had been, under the terms of the contract, withheld by the owner of the building until the completion thereof as security, is valid as against the assignee for the benefit of all the creditors of the contractor—Ludowici Roofing Tile Co. v. Pennsylvania Inst. for Instruction of Blind, 116 Fed. 661.

53. International Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 101 Ill. App. 548; Rev. St. § 6343—Hunt v. Bode, 66 Ohio St. 255; Cooper v. Nolan, 138 Cal. 248.

54. The burden of proving it is on the person attacking the transfer—International Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 101 Ill. App. 548.

55. Lenhardt v. Ponder, 64 S. C. 354.

56. The deed being given in payment of corporate stock, the assignor being president thereof, and retaining possession of the deed as such officer—Taylor v. Seiter, 199 Ill. 555.

57. Watson v. Rowley, 63 N. J. Eq. 195. If unrecorded, is void as to the assignee—Clark v. Baker (Colo.) 69 Pac. 506; or if recorded after the assignment—In re H. G. Andrae, 117 Fed. 561. If a holder fails to make affidavit as required by Laws 1899, c. 54, § 15, it is void as to the mortgagor's assignee—Watson v. Rowley, 63 N. J. Eq. 195.

58. Cornell v. Sulter, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 384. Sufficiency of complaint in action by assignee to set aside fraudulent conveyance by the assignor—Cooper v. Nolan, 138 Cal. 248.

creditors may sue only in case the assignee refuses to do so.[59] In Ohio, such a suit should be in a court of insolvency.[60] At common law, however, the right to avoid such transfers belongs to the creditors, and not to the assignee.[61] Conveyances or transfers by insolvent, which are fraudulent as to creditors, will be treated elsewhere.[62]

§ 8. Collection of assets and reduction to money.—In actions by assignee to collect assets, proof of the original assignment as recorded and the assignee's bond and schedule is sufficient evidence, in the absence of specific objections, as to his authority.[63] The right of set-off exists in case of mutual indebtedness at the time of assignment,[64] but unmatured claims,[65] or claims arising subsequent to the assignment, cannot be set off.[66]

Sale of assets by assignee.—The assignee may reduce property to money by permitting an execution against the assignor to be levied thereon and sold according to law.[67] The bank books of an assignor banker should not be sold.[68]

The assignee cannot purchase at his own sale.[69] The right of an assignee to sue in his own name does not pass by purchase of a chose in action from the assignee,[70] but the purchaser must proceed under the name of the assignor.[71] This would not be true in states which allow the real party in interest to sue in his own name.[72]

Validity and setting aside sale.—A private sale may be approved by the court,[73] which may be done without notice to the creditors,[74] but, before the court will approve it, it must appear to have been beneficial to the creditors.[75] If the consideration was grossly inadequate, the sale may be avoided;[76] but that the consideration was for a sum less than the appraised value of the property will not necessarily invalidate the sale,[77] nor will the fact that the purchase money was not paid until after the time fixed by the deed for the expiration of the trust,[78] nor will any irregularity in the appraisement by the assignee.[79] Jurisdiction to set aside a sale by an assignee may be obtained by a summary proceeding,[80] in the county court in New York.[81]

59. Rev. St. § 6344—Cornell v. Sulter, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 384.

60. Rev. St. § 6344. A judgment of that court is conclusive on the right of creditors to sue in the common pleas—Cornell v. Sulter, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 384.

61. Ross v. Sayler, 104 Ill. App. 19. So, also, under the statutes of Missouri—Watson v. Bonfils, 116 Fed. 157.

62. Fraudulent Conveyances.

63. Hitchings v. Kayser, 171 N. Y. 636.

64. Storts v. Mills, 93 Mo. App. 201. A deposit in the assignor bank cannot be set off against a surplus realized on collaterals in the hands of the depositor—Storts v. Mills, 93 Mo. App. 201.

65. Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 89.

66. Storts v. Mills, 93 Mo. App. 201.

67. Mengert v. Brinkerhoff (Ohio) 66 N. E. 530.

68. Andrews v. Wilson's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1497, 71 S. W. 890.

69. Where the son and daughter of the assignee purchase at his sale, the father loaning a part of the money, and part of it being in his possession, he purchasing in behalf of the son, it also appearing that they realized a large sum in excess of the purchase price shortly after, the purchase is properly set aside—Matter of Sheldon (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 625.

70. Congress Const. Co. v. Farson & Libby Co., 101 Ill. App. 279.

71. Congress Const. Co. v. Farson & Libby Co., 101 Ill. App. 279.

72. See Parties.

73. Shirk v. Trundle, 96 Md. 177.

74. Conclusiveness of confirmation of assignee's sale in subsequent action to avoid the sale—Peele v. Ohio & I. Oil Co., 158 Ind. 374.

75. Shirk v. Trundle, 96 Md. 177. Evidence held sufficient to show that a private sale was beneficial to creditors—Peele v. Ohio & I. Oil Co., 158 Ind. 374.

76. Evidence held insufficient to show that sale by the assignee was properly advertised, and that the consideration was not grossly inadequate—Shirk v. Trundle, 96 Md. 177. Where the assignor, by his conduct at the sale, was instrumental in preventing the property from bringing a better price, he will be estopped from alleging inadequacy of consideration as ground for avoidance—Helena Coal Co. v. Sibley, 132 Ala. 651.

77. Burns' Rev. St. § 744, "providing that no property shall be sold on execution or order of court for less than two-thirds of the appraised cash value," has no application to sales by assignees, the latter being governed by Act 1881, p. 74, § 10—Peele v. Ohio & I. Oil Co., 158 Ind. 374.

78. Shirk v. Trundle, 96 Md. 177.

79. Peele v. Ohio & I. Oil Co., 158 Ind. 374.

80. Matter of Sheldon, 173 N. Y. 287. The administration of an estate by an assignee for benefit of creditors being a proceeding

§ 9. Administration of the trust in general.—If the creditors consent to the continuance of the debtor's business by the assignee, they will be estopped to deny his authority.[82]

Other titles wherein administration of trust is involved.—The rules respecting collection of assets, administration, and settlement are somewhat like those applied to personal representatives, trustees, and like functionaries; hence the corresponding parts of titles given below should be examined for authorities analogous.[83]

§ 10. Debts and liabilities of the estate.—A claim for damages for breach of contract by the assignor may be proven against the estate.[84] A debt created subsequent to the assignment cannot be,[85] but only against the surplus arising after a settlement.[86]

Claim of assignee for compensation and allowances.—Commissions cannot be allowed an assignee where his assignor was adjudged bankrupt within four months after making the assignment,[87] but he may be allowed for actual and necessary expenses incurred in the preservation of the estate.[88] The amount of commission allowed assignees is the subject of various statutory regulations, as shown in the footnotes,[89] and attorney's fees are within the court's discretion.[90] Orders of the court fixing the amount of compensation for the assignee and his attorney may be reviewed on the coming in of the auditor's or referee's report of his account.[91]

§ 11. Presentment and allowance of claims.—In the absence of objections made within the statutory time, the presented claims will stand as allowed,[92] but they may thereafter be interposed by application to the court on notice to the creditor.[93] The successor assignee cannot object to the list of creditors filed by his predecessor, though the time for filing objections thereto has not expired.[94] If a claim is unlisted or in excess of the listed amount, the assignee is justified in rejecting it,[95] and a creditor may be estopped to assert that the schedule of claims was not in full for all demands.[96]

§ 12. Classes and priorities of debts.—It is one of the assignee's duties to have the right to liens and the priority thereof determined by the court.[97] Priority should be given one who, to protect himself, overpaid the assignee,[98] and also to a claim put into judgment before ratification of the assignment.[99] In in court, one who purchases at an assignee's sale thereby makes himself a party to such proceeding—Matter of Sheldon, 173 N. Y. 287.

81. Matter of Sheldon (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 625.

82. Quimby v. Uhl (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 1, 89 N. W. 722.

83. Bankruptcy, Estates of Decedents, Receivers, Trusts.

84. Moore v. Thompson, 93 Mo. App. 336; Laclede Power Co. v. Stillwell (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 380.

85. Buckler v. Trigg, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 410, 68 S. W. 637.

86. Buckler v. Trigg, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 410, 68 S. W. 637.

87. In re Mays, 114 Fed. 600.

88. In re Mays, 114 Fed. 600.

89. In South Dakota the assignee may be allowed the same commissions as are allowed to executors under Comp. Laws, § 5888—Woodcock v. Reilly (S. D.) 92 N. W. 10. The same under Code, c. 87, § 17—Beecher v. Foster, 51 W. Va. 605. Creditors held estopped to object to an allowance of commissions on judgments which were uncollectible—Woodcock v. Reilly (S. D.) 92 N. W. 10.

90. Amount of allowances for attorney's fees—National Bank of Baltimore v. Dulaney, 96 Md. 159; Marshall v. National Bank of Baltimore, Id.

91. National Bank of Baltimore v. Dulaney, 96 Md. 159; Marshall v. National Bank of Baltimore, Id.

92. In re Plankinton Bank, 114 Wis. 582; National Bank of Republic v. Herman, Id.

93. In re Plankinton Bank, 114 Wis. 582; National Bank of Republic v. Herman, Id.

94. In re Plankinton Bank, 114 Wis. 582; National Bank of Republic v. Herman, Id.

95. Sitter v. Karraker, 100 Ill. App. 669.

96. As where the wife of the assignor joined in the assignment under an understanding that her only share of the estate was to be the amount of her claim as scheduled—Gates v. Union Trust Co. (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 81, 90 N. W. 45.

97. Court of insolvency in Ohio—Cornell v. Sulter, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 384.

98. As where a customer of the assignor stock brokers paid the market price on the day of redemption of stock to which he was entitled, and which the assignor had pledged as collateral—Matter of Price, 171 N. Y. 15; Matter of Crocker, Id.

respect to property situated within the state, the rights of resident creditors are entitled to priority over nonresident creditors under a foreign assignment.[1]

§ 13. Satisfaction and discharge of debts and claims.—The rights of all the creditors to dividends will be determined as of the date of the assignment.[2] The presentment of a claim after the estate had been exhausted will not bar an action by the claimant against the assignor to recover a personal judgment.[3] Creditors may be estopped to question the validity of a general assignment by recognizing the same or by accepting benefits thereunder,[4] as where they filed their claims and received dividends.[5]

§ 14. Accounting, settlement and discharge, or failure of trust.—The trust is not terminated by the death of the assignor,[6] or by the discharge of the assignee and his sureties by order of the court,[7] but in such case a receiver may be appointed to take charge of unadministered assets.[8] A provision directing the closing of the estate within a limited time is directory only, and does not terminate the trust at the expiration of the time.[9] It may be terminated by the consent of the assignor and the majority of the creditors,[10] and it is terminated as to creditors by the payment of their claims.[11] A discharge should not be ordered on the day that the account is entered, and is void in Kentucky if so made.[12] The termination of the assignee's powers terminates his right to sue in his own name.[13] The trust is not destroyed by the assignee's failure to properly qualify.[14]

A decree settling the assignee's accounts is not binding on the wife and children of the assignor.[15] The retention after order of surrender of the surplus property by the assignee is constructive notice to subsequent creditors of a present title in the assignee.[16]

ASSISTANCE, WRIT OF.

Nature and grounds.—The purpose of the writ is to render effectual decrees by which rights have been fixed, or to place a party in possession of property by 99. It appearing that the only purpose of making the assignment was the defeat of such preference—Friedman v. Lesher, 198 Ill. 21.

1. Bloomingdale v. Weil, 29 Wash. 611; Bloomingdale v. Security Safe Deposit & Trust Co., Id.

2. Matter of Hayes (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 264.

3. New Albany Mfg. Co. v. Sulzer, 29 Ind. App. 89.

4. Where the creditors, after a general assignment, made a composition, whereby they were to receive notes secured by the trust estate, and accepted such notes, they are estopped to question the validity of the assignment or the title of the assignee—Memphis Sav. Bank v. Houchens (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 96.

5. Taylor v. Seiter, 100 Ill. App. 643. Where the creditor had participated in the assignment by accepting a distribution thereunder, and consenting to a sale, he will be estopped to assert invalidity on the ground that the assignee filed no petition, no schedule, and gave no bond—Kaufman v. Simon, 80 Miss. 189.

6. Andrews v. Wilson's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1497, 71 S. W. 890.

7. Andrews v. Wilson's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1497, 71 S. W. 890.

8. Andrews v. Wilson's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1497, 71 S. W. 890.

9. Two years—Shirk v. Trundle, 96 Md. 177.

10. But an order of discontinuance of the proceedings, made before the expiration of three months, is void under St. c. 10, §§ 10, 15, and the creditors whose consent is required, are those who, within three months, file their claims under said statute—Manufacturers' Paper Co. v. Royal Trust Co., 98 Ill. App. 41.

11. After payment of claims, the assignor may assume possession and carry on the business in his own or the assignee's name—Quimby v. Uhl (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 1, 89 N. W. 722.

12. St. § 93, provides that notice of application be given, and at the second regular term thereafter the court may hear the motion—Knoedler v. Teegarden, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1785, 72 S. W. 268.

13. No matter how his powers were terminated—Congress Const. Co. v. Farson & Libbey Co., 101 Ill. App. 279.

14. See ante, § 4.

15. Cunningham v. Estill, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 559, 68 S. W. 1081.

16. A trust for assignor's family was created in the surplus in consideration of the wife's releasing dower. It was not recorded, but the creditors were settled with, which facts were equivalent to notice to subsequent creditors—Cunningham v. Estill, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 559, 68 S. W. 1081.

order of court.[1] The writ may issue to place the purchaser at foreclosure sale,[2] or his grantee, in possession;[3] and the mortgagor cannot successfully resist a petition for such a writ where he does not show an action, pending or contemplated, to obtain relief against the decree,[4] nor on the ground that the sale was void under an agreement between the parties relied on in a motion to enjoin the sale.[5] It may also issue to oust a lessee, where time was given him to prevent forfeiture of his lease by complying with its conditions, which he fails to do until so shortly before expiration of the period that performance is impossible;[6] but not on a decree cancelling a deed,[7] nor against one not a party who came into possession before suit, nor against a stranger who is a tenant of one of the parties,[8] nor against one, entering land pendente lite, claiming paramountly to all the parties.[9]

Procedure.—An alias writ should not be granted where several years have elapsed after the suit, and the original writ was returned executed before application for the alias writ, especially if the application does not deny that defendant holds as tenant of the party applying or under a claim of right.[10] A petition for issuance is unnecessary to compel defendant to comply with orders of the court, where he had full notice of the claim against him and opportunity to contest it.[11]

ASSOCIATIONS AND SOCIETIES.

§ 1. Definition and nature.[1]—A "grange" may be regarded as a voluntary association.[2]

§ 2. Internal relations, rights, and duties.—A voluntary association is not subject to judicial control except for the protection of property interests.[3] Power of expulsion of members may be entrusted to a board of directors.[4] The decision of an association with regard to the admission or expulsion of members is not reviewable by the courts unless there is a violation of good faith or of law.[5] A member expelled against the laws of the association may have a remedy in equity if property interests are involved.[6] Before a remedy in the courts may be invoked, remedies by appeal within the society must be exhausted.[7] Rules concerning membership do not in general confer a property right, hence a gen-

1. It is almost unknown in Missouri—Sills v. Goodyear, 88 Mo. App. 316.
2. Magruder v. Kittle (Neb.) 89 N. W. 272; Burns' Rev. St. 1901, §§ 249, 1062, 1096, construed; the change to the Code did not destroy the right—Emerick v. Miller (Ind.) 64 N. E. 28.
3. Emerick v. Miller (Ind.) 64 N. E. 28.
4. An answer alleging a meritorious defense to the foreclosure, which was prevented by fraud of the mortgagee, and that a suit to set aside the decree was dismissed for failure of the mortgagee to sign interrogatories, is insufficient—Emerick v. Miller (Ind.) 64 N. E. 28.
5. Murchison v. Miller, 64 S. C. 425.
6. Railroad lease—the supreme court extended the time, and the writ was issued by the lower court five days before expiration of the period—Pittsburg, J. E. & E. R. Co. v. Altoona & B. C. R. Co., 203 Pa. 108.
7. Remedy is at law—Clay v. Hammond, 199 Ill. 370.
8. In the last instance, a writ of restitution will be as effective—Sills v. Goodyear, 88 Mo. App. 316.
9. A claim by one in possession, in good faith, under a void tax deed, is under such an independent title—Merrill v. Wright (Neb.) 91 N. W. 697.
10. Application by purchaser at foreclosure sale—Ex parte Forman, 130 Ala. 278.
11. Dorr v. Root, 104 Ill. App. 417.

1. Incorporated societies, clubs, etc., see Corporations.
2. Henry v. Simanton (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 153.
3. Courts will not interpose between the association and a member except for such a purpose—Froelich v. Musicians' Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 383.
4. Brandenburger v. Jefferson Club Ass'n, 88 Mo. App. 148; State v. St. Louis Medical Soc., 91 Mo. App. 76.
5. Being quasi judicial in their character—Froelich v. Musicians' Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 383; State v. St. Louis Medical Soc., 91 Mo. App. 76.
6. Froelich v. Musicians' Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 383; O'Brien v. Musical M. P. & B. Union (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 150.
7. No property right being involved—O'Brien v. Musical M. P. & B. Union (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 150.

eral association cannot be compelled to continue association with a local one, no property right being involved;[8] nor do rights of membership conferred on a local by a general society.[9] They may do so when involving pecuniary benefits.[10] Where an association tribunal has power to determine certain matter under its rules, the members are bound by its decision to the extent of the powers conferred on it.[11]

Funds cannot be diverted from the objects and purposes of the association by a majority against the will of the minority.[12] Members of an association may sue to prevent other members from exercising rights concerning the association property or affairs.[13] A member may procure a renewal of a lease of property occupied by the association without rendering the property subject to be impressed with a trust in his hands or to be regarded as obtained by him as agent of the association.[14] Rights of withdrawing members of a communistic society to a distribution of the property may be lost by lapse of time.[15] The right of withdrawing members of a community to compensation will be presumed to be satisfied after lapse of a long time.[16] Members of an association who attempt to incorporate will not be regarded as having withdrawn and forfeited their rights in its property.[17] The burden of showing a withdrawal is on those asserting it.[18]

A by-law not proposed in writing before its adoption as required by the constitution is not binding on a member.[19] By-laws may be amended so as to affect the rights of members who have already come within their scope.[20] By-laws of an association are to regulate the conduct and to define the duties of the members toward the association and to each other.[21] Where by-laws are to be regarded as a contract, the parties are the members of the association as among themselves, or the association and the individual members.[22] In so far as by-laws do not relate to purely contract relations they may be altered by the association without destroying vested rights, since by the fundamental contract of membership, the member pledges his assent to every lawful rule adopted by the majority in furtherance of common objects.[23] Regulations of the conduct of members must be reasonable and proper.[24] By-laws need not be literally construed.[25] Where it is

8. O'Brien v. Musical M. P. & B. Union (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 150.

9. O'Brien v. Musical M. P. & B. Union, (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 150.

10. If an association's by-laws provide for a contribution to funeral expenses of its members, the member has such a property interest as will entitle a court to interfere to prevent his expulsion by unauthorized proceedings—Froelich v. Musicians' Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 383.

11. Bartlett v. Bartlett & Son Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 473.

12. Bachman v. Hoffman, 104 Ill. App. 159.

13. The rule in relation to partnerships does not apply—Boston Base Ball Ass'n v. Brooklyn Base Ball Club, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 521.

14. Lumbard v. Grant, 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 140.

15. Schwartz v. Duss, 187 U. S. 8.

16. Schwartz v. Duss. 187 U. S. 8.

17. As where under St. 1895, p. 25, providing for the incorporation of co-operative associations, certain members incorporate, adopt the association name and use its trade marks and books, and members refusing to join the corporation treated the others as having withdrawn, and elected successors—Strong v. Los Nietos & R. W. Growers' Ass'n, 137 Cal. 607, 70 Pac. 734.

18. Strong v. Los Nietos & R. W. Growers' Ass'n, 137 Cal. 607, 70 Pac. 734.

19. Froelich v. Musicians' Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 383.

20. A member of a pilot's association whose license had been revoked for disability and who was receiving half pay under a by-law providing that a member losing his license for any cause other than intoxication, should receive half pay until reinstated, is bound by an amendment of the by-laws to the effect that members losing their license through not being capable of following their business, should receive $50 per month—Marshall v. Pilots' Ass'n, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 644.

21. Marshall v. Pilots' Ass'n, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 644.

22. Marshall v. Pilots' Ass'n, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 644.

23. Marshall v. Pilots' Ass'n, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 644.

24. A by-law of a pilots' association is reasonable which provides that pilots refusing to go on boats in their turn shall be considered on sick leave and receive pay accordingly—Marshall v. Virden, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 245.

25. As where a by-law of a pilots' association provides for the contingency of a pilot refusing to go on a boat in his turn, provided that propositions for amendment of a constitution must be submitted in writing and referred to a special committee which must report at the next annual meeting, action need not be taken on a printed report of a committee for revision at the annual meeting next following its circulation, but such report may be acted on at a subsequent meeting where it does not appear that there have been intermediate changes.[26] Rules of an association may be construed by a tribunal established by it if they reasonably admit of two constructions. The jurisdiction of such tribunal is limited by the laws of the association, and its decisions are not open to judicial control except as regards jurisdictional error and at the demand of a person whose property rights are injured.[27]

§ 3. The association and persons not members.—Persons outside the association cannot enjoin the association from the enforcement of by-laws operating directly only on its members.[28] An agricultural society must use reasonable care for the safety of persons attending its exhibitions at its invitation and paying an admission fee, whether they are inside its grounds or on the usual approaches to them.[29]

An injunction may be had to prevent the violation of an agreement of association.[30] It will be presumed that distant relatives of deceased members of a community have no claims which they may assert against the community.[31]

§ 4. Actions and litigation.—Under certain statutes, an association may be regarded as a quasi corporation for the purpose of service of process.[32] In some states, voluntary unincorporated associations which are not organized to hold property or carry on a trade or business cannot sue or be sued as associations.[33] A statute may allow an election between a proceeding against the association as such or against all the members thereof.[34] Where persons are sued as an association, the burden is on plaintiff to establish the joint liability of the defendants, if it is denied.[35] An action may be maintained against an officer of an association for its acts, though all the members have joined therein.[36] The right is not affected by joinder of certain members as co-defendants.[37] Suits against unincorporated voluntary associations as such may be authorized by statute.[38]

a pilot who absents himself from port without leave and does not take his turn, may be regarded as refusing to go on a boat—Marshall v. Virden, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 245.

26. Construing art. 30 of the rules and regulations of the Union Veterans' Union—Goulding v. Standish, 182 Mass. 401.

27. Disciplinary proceedings by regular constituted tribunal are in the nature of the determination of a quasi judicial body, in effect like an award of arbitrators—Bartlett v. Bartlett & Son Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 473.

28. As where an association of cattle merchants adopted rules prohibiting members from dealing with non-members—Downes v. Bennett, 63 Kan. 653, 66 Pac. 623, 55 L. R. A. 560.

29. A society is liable in case a bullet fired in a shooting gallery conducted within the grounds, misses the target, goes through the fence and strikes a person standing on a railroad platform outside at its invitation, the association having let space for the conduct of the gallery—Thornton v. Maine State Agric. Soc., 97 Me. 108.

30. Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 603, where certain ball clubs, members of a voluntary unincorporated association, sought to prevent the violation of the agreement by other clubs, and to avoid an election by them of a certain person as officer of the league and to restrain his acting as such, and holding such an action not one to determine title to office, which must be brought by the people under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1948, 1984—Boston Base Ball Ass'n v. Brooklyn Base Ball Club, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 521.

31. Schwartz v. Duss, 187 U. S. 8.

32. Construing Const. § 208 and Ky. St. § 457—Adams Exp. Co. v. Schofield, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1120, 64 S. W. 903.

33. Cleland v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 306.

34. Holding Pub. Acts 1897, Act No. 25, § 1, not invalid for the reason that it grants two remedies against the association and only one in its favor—United States Heater Co. v. Iron Molders' Union (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 978, 88 N. W. 889.

35. Where several plead non joint liability the joint liability of even defaulted defendants must be proven or else the pleadings must be amended and a dismissal had as to co-defendants not jointly liable—Powell Co. v. Finn, 198 Ill. 567.

36. Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 1919, in an action against a president to recover damages for a conspiracy by all the members to injure plaintiff's business.—Rourke v. Elk Drug Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 145.

37. Rourke v. Elk Drug Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 145.

§ 5. Dissolution and termination.—Where the existence of an association is limited to three years, after which its affairs were to be wound up by the incumbent officers, a distribution of its property may be enforced in equity by one of the members where five years have elapsed without a successful attempt to wind up its affairs.[39] Where property contributed to a community becomes joint and indivisible stock and contributions are irrevocable, descendants of deceased members who contributed no property to the society have no rights to share in the property of the society on its dissolution on the theory of a resulting trust.[40] A court of chancery may have jurisdiction to appoint a receiver to wind up the affairs of an association.[41] Proceedings under a statute for winding up voluntary associations may be availed of by creditors becoming such after incorporation of the association, the debts not being germane to the corporate existence and no notice of intention to incorporate having been given at an association meeting.[42] A bill filed to wind up an association is not bad on demurrer though it appear that one of the creditors is a foreign corporation and there is no showing that it has been authorized to do business in the state.[43]

ASSUMPSIT.

§ 1. Nature, form, and propriety of action.—Assumpsit cannot be maintained in the absence of an express or implied promise, though there may be a right of action for deceit or a suit in equity for an accounting,[1] but it may be brought where the party making an offer has prevented its acceptance.[2] It does not lie for negligent performance of a contract.[3] By statute, it may lie to recover a sum, the amount of which must be ascertained by evidence.[4] A surplus resulting from a sale of the land conveyed to a creditor by a debtor for such purpose may be recovered in assumpsit.[5]

The common counts.—If after execution of a contract nothing remains but the payment of the agreed price, recovery may be on the common counts.[6] There

38. Holding Pub. Acts 1897, Act No. 25, § 1, valid and not beyond the power of the legislature as authorizing associations not legal entities to be sued—United States Heater Co. v. Iron Molders' Union (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 978, 88 N. W. 889.

39. Clerks' Inv. Co. v. Sydnor, 19 App. D. C. 89.

40. Schwartz v. Duss, 187 U. S. 8.

41. Bill filed under Act 1894 to wind up a Grange, organized for the purpose of conducting a general store for the benefit of members, which was conducted under a superintendent in his own name though the executive functions of the organization were in the hands of three trustees—Henry v. Simanton (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 153.

42. Proceedings under Act 1899 after incorporation of a Grange—Henry v. Simanton (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 153.

43. Henry v. Simanton (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 153.

1. Where plaintiff, defendant and a third person who were the owners of the entire stock of a corporation agreed to sell it and defendant at the same time made a secret agreement with the purchaser to be paid a further sum for his interest in consideration for which he gave an option on other property, plaintiff cannot maintain assumpsit to recover a share of the amount so received by defendant—Cummings v. Synnott (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 84.

2. Offer to sell corporate stock to remain open until a particular date and to be accepted in a designated manner where the party is prevented from accepting it by the conduct of the other—Guilford v. Mason, 24 R. I. 386.

3. A declaration for "unskillfully and negligently" doing what was "undertaken" sounds in case and not assumpsit—Mullin v. Flanders, 73 Vt. 95.

4. Under Rev. St. c. 94, § 10, assumpsit will lie to recover unpaid rental under a contract by which defendant took possession of and operated plaintiff's boom, agreeing to collect the expenses of receiving and delivering logs from other parties and pay plaintiff its proportionate share of 10% earned on the capital stock of plaintiff. The proportionate part was to be determined by the proportion which defendant's logs and lumber bore to the whole number of logs and other lumber handled.—Rumford Falls Boom Co. v. Rumford Falls Paper Co., 96 Me. 96.

5. There was an oral agreement that any surplus remaining should be paid to the debtor—Moran v. Munhall, 204 Pa. 214.

6. McDermott v. St. Wilhelmina Benev. Aid Soc. (R. I.) 54 Atl. 58; McArthur Bros. v. Whitney, 202 Ill. 527. Especially where the contract only fixes a maximum price—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471; Union El. R. Co. v. Nixon, 99 Ill. App. 502; Zapel v. Ennis, 104 Ill. App. 175; Morin v. Robarge (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 635, 93 N. W. 886.

may be recovery on the common counts after faulty performance of a special agreement.[7]

Where a special contract has been terminated indebitatus assumpsit will lie,[8] as where a written contract is rescinded,[9] or a partly performed contract abandoned by mutual consent;[10] but where plaintiff is prevented by defendant from performing work to be done under an express contract, recovery cannot be had under the common counts.[11]

Where notes are given for an obligation, a recovery on the common counts cannot be had if the notes are introduced in evidence, though only to sustain a specification that the obligation as such is sought to be recovered.[12]

An action for money had and received is similar to a bill in equity and may be maintained on any showing that defendant received or obtained possession of money of the plaintiff which in equity and good conscience he should pay over to him. It is a liberal action in which all tort, trover, and damage is waived.[13] Where defendant has actually had and received the money, it is immaterial whether he is doing business in his own name or in the name of a purported corporation.[14]

A quantum meruit may be joined to a declaration on a special contract.[15]

Money paid voluntarily under a mistake of law and not under a claim of right cannot be recovered in assumpsit, though otherwise where paid under a mistake of fact.[16] A count for money paid will not lie against a town on account of a voluntary payment of a precinct treasurer.[17] The count for use and occupation is founded on an express or implied contract and there must be the relation of landlord and tenant.[18] The title to real estate cannot be tried.[19]

Existence and waiver of other remedies.—An action for trover may be waived and assumpsit brought,[20] so where personalty is delivered in exchange for land, assumpsit may be maintained if the party agreeing to convey the land refuses to comply though the personalty has not been converted into money or its identity destroyed,[21] and on a misappropriation of money by a bank clerk the tort may

7. As where work was done under a special agreement but not in the stipulated time and manner but was nevertheless beneficial to the defendant and enjoyed by him —Empire Coal Co. v. Hull Coal Co., 51 W. Va. 474.

8. Whether the termination is by the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties or the wrongful conduct of defendants—Zapel v. Ennis, 104 Ill. App. 175.

9. Assumpsit to recover a payment on rescission for fraud—Hanrahan v. National B. L. & P. Ass'n, 67 N. J. Law, 526.

10. Recovery for labor performed—Empire Coal Co. v. Hull Coal Co., 51 W. Va. 474.

11. Contract to fill a road, prevented of performance by failure of defendant to notify plaintiff can be recovered on, only on the contract agreement—Truitt v. Fahey (Del. Super.) 52 Atl. 339.

12. Action by an insurance agent to recover premiums as such, and introduction of notes given by the policy holder for the amount thereof, the specification being that the agent sought to recover the premiums as such—Aseltine v. Perry (Vt.) 54 Atl. 190.

13. It lies whenever one man has received money from another man without consideration—Law v. Uhrlaub, 104 Ill. App. 263; Morris v. Jamieson, 99 Ill. App. 32. Where one believing defendant to be the owner of realty made an agreement to pay rent to him the true owner cannot recover such payments from defendant as money had and received—Sherman v. Spalding (Mich.) 93 N. W. 613.

14. Level v. Chadbourne, 99 Ill. App. 171.

15. Burton v. Rosemary Mfg. Co. (N. C.) 43 S. E. 480.

16. Heath, etc., Mfg. Co. v. National Linseed Oil Co., 99 Ill. App. 90.

17. A count for money paid at the request of a town will not warrant a recovery against it, where payment was voluntarily made by the treasurer of a fire precinct for water pipe which one of the precinct commissioners had been authorized by the chairman of the town selectmen to procure, the payment being to accommodate persons to whom it was due and not because the precinct was liable or because the town had requested him to make it—Contoocook Fire Precinct v. Hopkinton, 71 N. H. 574.

18. Hill v. Coal Val. Min. Co., 103 Ill. App. 41. Possession of a mere trespasser will not sustain an action for use and occupation—Janouch v. Pence (Neb.) 93 N. W. 217. Assumpsit for use and occupation cannot be maintained where defendant is in possession claiming adversely to plaintiff and under a third person, there being no contract relation between the parties—Adsit v. Kaufman (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 355.

19. Hill v. Coal Val. Min. Co., 103 Ill. App. 41.

20. Moore v. Richardson (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 1032.

21. Plaintiff is not required to resort to be waived and suit brought on an implied contract.[22] Assumpsit will not lie for failure to repair property occupied under an agreement for a fixed rental.[23]

An action of assumpsit may be brought on a contract though it contains an inaccurate reference to "foregoing covenants," the expression "agreement," being elsewhere used throughout the contract.[24]

§ 2. The declaration.—Though the declaration is on a special contract, recovery may be had on a common count in general assumpsit if sufficient facts are set out, though there is not a specific declaration on a second cause of action, but. where the special contract is established, plaintiff cannot abandon it and recover on the common count.[25]

§ 3. Pleas and defenses.[26]—Where the tort is waived and suit brought in assumpsit, the defense, available to a defendant in trover, of showing ownership and right of possession in a third person, may be asserted.[27]

A defendant who has refused to perform an express contract cannot contend that assumpsit will not lie with regard to matter covered by the express agreement and on assumpsit after refusal of defendant to return the consideration on refusal to perform a contract void within the statute of frauds, it cannot be contended that plaintiff had a remedy on the express contract until the statute of frauds was pleaded.[28]

Where the contract is performed according to its terms, it cannot be shown that the work done was without value.[29]

Defendant in an action for money had and received may set off the indebtedness of plaintiff to him.[30]

Where the complaint is assumpsit for extra work outside a building contract, it is not a sufficient answer to aver execution of the original contract.[31] It will not be presumed that money was used for an unlawful purpose in the absence of an express averment.[32]

§ 4. Evidence and instructions.—Under the general issue, plaintiff has the burden of proving the contract and also the breach of it assigned.[33] The burden of proof of a set-off is on defendant.[34]

Under the general issue, matter in discharge of the promise or which goes to show that plaintiff had never a cause of action is admissible.[35] Specific rulings as to evidence are grouped in the notes.[36] replevin or trover but may bring an action on the implied agreement after termination of the express contract—Booker v. Wolf, 195 Ill. 365.

22. Lipscomb v. Citizens' Bank (Kan.) 71 Pac. 583.

23. The remedy is an action for breach of contract where a party renting a boom and piers fails to keep them in repair—Rumford Falls Boom Co. v. Rumford Falls Paper Co., 96 Me. 96.

24. Gen. Laws 1896, c. 202, § 4, providing that the word "covenant" shall have the same effect as though a seal was affixed, construed in an action on a contract to furnish engravings.—Providence Tel. Pub. Co. v. Crahan Engraving Co. (R. I.) 52 Atl. 804.

25. Burton v. Rosemary Mfg. Co. (N. C.) 43 S. E. 480.

26. Where actions of assumpsit are limited to 6 years after accrual of the cause of action, an action on a note secured by mortgage is included—Houghton v. Tolman, 74 Vt. 467.

27. Federal courts will apply this rule in jurisdictions where it is upheld—Phelps v. Church of Our Lady (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 882.

28. Booker v. Wolf, 195 Ill. 365.

29. In assumpsit by a contractor to recover the value of certain concrete placed in a foundation according to the terms of a building contract, it cannot be shown that such concrete is without value as a foundation.—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

30. Morris v. Jamieson, 99 Ill. App. 32.

31. Complaint alleged that the work was in addition to the work required by the original contract—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

32. In an action for money loaned pleas must aver that the money borrowed was used in fact for the unlawful purpose mentioned—Edman v. Charleston State Bank, 101 Ill. App. 83.

33. Ward v. Athens Min. Co., 98 Ill. App. 227.

34. In an action to recover the contract price of certain grading in which defendant set off work performed by it in order to

Instructions as to defendant's admissions do not demand his presence at the trial.[37]

§ 5. Verdict and judgment.—Damages cannot be recovered under the common counts except for a failure to pay money.[38] Where a tort is waived and the action is brought in assumpsit and not for a conversion, the measure of damages is the value of the property at the time of conversion.[39]

ATTACHMENT.

§ 1. Definition, nature, and distinctions.—The term "attachment," as here complete the job in time—McArthur Bros. v. Whitney, 202 Ill. 527.

35. The plea raises the question of whether at the time of suit there was an existing debt or cause of action—Ward v. Athens Min. Co., 98 Ill. App. 227.

36. On a complaint for value of certain cotton alleged to be due under a written instrument or mortgage executed by defendant, the mortgage is admissible—Ingram v. Bussey, 133 Ala. 539. In an action for the use and occupation of certain rooms in which were presses alleged to belong to defendant under a bill of sale, evidence of a bill of sale of presses executed by defendant to a third person and the record of a suit by him for breach of contract to purchase such presses are admissible to controvert a contention of defendant that the bill of sale had been executed to him to enable him to sell the presses as mortgagee; but, concerning the action for breach of contract, a question is too broad which asks defendant to state the circumstances under which the action was brought, and whether it was brought at the request of another. Letters to defendant showing that the writer was endeavoring to obtain purchasers and that the bill of sale was to give defendant authority to sell the presses as the property of the mortgagor are admissible, together with the bill of sale and an offer by defendant to purchase the property —Emory Mfg. Co. v. Rood, 182 Mass. 166. Where under an agreement for grading the right was reserved to put on an additional force and deduct the cost from the contract price, in an action for grading the amount and value of the grading done before defendant put on its own force is admissible—McArthur Bros. v. Whitney, 202 Ill. 527.

Under the general issue it may be shown that the contract was void or voidable, that it was performed, that there was a legal excuse for nonperformance, such as a release or discharge before breach or nonperformance of a condition precedent or that it was rescinded—Ward v. Athens Min. Co., 98 Ill. App. 227.

Under a quantum meruit the value of the services and not the benefits immediate or remote that have been derived therefrom is in issue—Rothstein v. Siegel, Cooper & Co., 102 Ill. App. 600. It cannot be shown what services were worth to third persons at a time after that in which they were rendered to defendant—Connelly v. Cover, 102 Ill. App. 426. The plaintiff may show ill treatment by defendant compelling him to abandon a special contract in an action on quantum meruit for the services performed thereon—Davis v. Streeter (Vt.) 54 Atl. 185.

Sufficiency. Evidence held insufficient to warrant a recovery in assumpsit for money to be paid on purchase of land—Newman v. Baker (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 232, 90 N. W. 1027. An action on quantum meruit for work performed may be sustained by evidence showing that plaintiff performed services in keeping house for defendant under a contract on his part to take care of her and her children and to marry her, which she was forced to abandon by defendant's ill treatment and a refusal to permit one of her children to remain in the house—Davis v. Streeter (Vt.) 54 Atl. 185.

37. An instruction that defendant admits that the work was done but not to the extent claimed by plaintiff if warranted by the evidence may be given, though defendant himself was not present at the trial—Morin v. Robarge (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 635, 93 N. W. 886.

38. A verdict for damages resulting from failure to do any other particular thing agreed to be done, cannot be supported—Stewart Mfg. Co. v. Iron Clad Mfg. Co., 67 N. J. Law, 577.

39. It is error to base the damages on the cost price specified in an agreement antedating the conversion, if there is other evidence of value more favorable to defendant—Moore v. Richardson (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 1032.

used, is confined to original or mesne process by seizure of property which it is sought to subject to a demand. In some jurisdictions it is applied, though inaccurately, to garnishment proceedings as well. Garnishment is designed to reach a third person's obligation towards the defendant, the process issuing against such third person. These are the modern uses of the terms. Attachment of the person is now usually considered in connection with the law of contempt. The practice in justices' courts on issuing attachment is more appropriately treated in another place.[1] The exemption of property from such process,[2] and the liability of officers for a wrongful levy, will also be treated elsewhere.[3]

§ 2. In what actions it will issue.—The local statutes must be consulted. Ex contractu actions for liquidated demands almost universally warrant attachment. Unliquidated demands and immature ones in most of the states, and tort actions in some jurisdictions, may support attachment.[4] Special grounds, as fraud, or nonresidence, or concealment, must in some states coexist with the fact that the action is of a given class.[5] The remedy will not lie in a proceeding to revive a dormant judgment,[6] but may be employed to enforce collection of a chancery decree for money, as in the case of a judgment at law.[7] Attachment will issue on a claim for the contract price of cut marble for building, which may be rendered certain as to amount.[8] It will not lie in a suit for breach of marriage promise under a statute authorizing attachment on affidavit showing a just claim to be due.[9] A debt for coal for domestic purposes is within the law giving attachment on a claim for "necessaries."[10] Attachment in action to recover the value of goods fraudulently conveyed cannot be refused as suing for a penalty, and not a debt;[11] but the right to money obtained by a third person's fraud from its owner is not a debt warranting the issuance of attachment, though the holder is bound to reimburse the owner.[12] Attachment may issue against property of one joint debtor in favor of a creditor, who has filed an affidavit bringing him within the attachment act, and the summons may include all shown by the affidavit to be indebted, regardless of the attachment.[13] In South Carolina it issues in aid of an action for unliquidated damages sounding in tort.[14]

§ 3. Right to and grounds for the writ.—Statutory attachment on claims not due is a matter of right,[15] and not of discretion.

Nonresidence.—If a nonresident is not subject personally to jurisdiction of the court his property is attachable.[16] Actual residence of the debtor, and not his domicile, determine his status in attachment.[17] Personal service does not establish that defendant is resident of the state.[18] Attachment will not issue for nonresidence while an amended law is in force which does not make nonresidence the

1. See the forthcoming articles on Contempt, Garnishment, Justices of the Peace. Attachment of the person to enforce alimony, see Curr. Law No. 1, p. 74, Alimony. Attachment to enforce payment of rent, see Landlord and Tenant.
2. Exemptions.
3. Sheriffs and Constables.
4. On contract of employment—Cohen v. Walker, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 114.
5. See post, § 3.
6. Farak v. First Nat. Bank (Neb.) 93 N. W. 682.
7. Whalen v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281.
8. Sullivan v. Moffat (N. J.) 52 Atl. 291.
9. Gen. Laws R. I. c. 252, §§ 14, 17—Mainz v. Lederer (R. I.) 51 Atl. 1044.
10. Rev. St. Ohio, § 6489, providing attachment for recovery of a claim for necessaries—Collins v. Bingham, 22 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 533.
11. Rothschild v. Knight, 184 U. S. 334, 46 Lawy. Ed. 573.
12. Ryles, Wilson & Co. v. Shelley Mfg. Co., 93 Mo. App. 178.
13. Jones v. Lunceford, 95 Ill. App. 210.
14. Chitty v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 62 S. C. 526.
15. Code Civ. Proc. Kan. §§ 230, 231—Nelson v. Stull (Kan.) 70 Pac. 590.
16. Rev. St. Ohio, § 5524—Thompson v. Ogden, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 185.
What absence shows nonresidence under the attachment law—Stickney v. Chapman, 115 Ga. 759.
17. Thompson v. Ogden, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 185.
18. Hall v. Packard, 51 W. Va. 264.

ground of attachment.[19] Attachment of debts owing to a nonresident creditor in the state of his debtor's residence according to its laws does not deprive the creditor of property without due process of law.[20] Wrongful discharge of a servant may be ground for an attachment against property of a nonresident employer.[21] Mere temporary absence from the state to work for three months is not nonresidence justifying attachment.[22] Voluntary removal from the state to discharge duties of indefinite duration, requiring continuous absence for an unlimited time, shows nonresidence under the attachment law; and an occasional return to visit, or intent to return at some uncertain time in the future, will not prevent loss of residence.[23] Embezzlement by a bank clerk will authorize suit on an implied contract for his honesty and good faith, and an attachment of his property, where he is a nonresident.[24]

Attachment against corporations.—Attachment may issue against a foreign corporation or a nonresident defendant on the same grounds as a resident defendant, and because of nonresidence alone, in aid of an action on contract or a judgment or an award.[25] That a foreign corporation has an office and does business within the state will not prevent attachment against it.[26] A domestic corporation with its chief office or place of business within the state is not liable to attachment provided against foreign corporations.[27] It cannot issue against national banks, whether solvent or insolvent.[28] A suit in equity, in attachment, for breach of contract, to which a national bank is made defendant because it received the proceeds, is not an attachment prohibited by the federal statute.[29]

Fraudulent transfer or disposition of property.—Fraudulent transfer of a debtor's assets is ground for attachment of the property.[30] The writ should be sustained if the acts of defendant constituting plaintiff's ground were committed with an intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, or either of these.[31] An attachment will lie in Tennessee on behalf of a judgment creditor to set aside a fraudulent transfer of property, and subject defendant's equity of redemption to payment of the judgment.[32] Creditors may proceed by attachment to subject assets of a corporation to their claims, where such assets have been transferred to a new corporation to defeat such claims.[33] An irregular sale of goods from a debtor's factory, below cost, and out of all usual course of business, will justify attachment, unless

19. Act April 26, 1898, repealed in 1900, amended Rev. St. Ohio, § 5521, but failed to make nonresidence a ground of attachment—Hough v. Dayton Mfg. Co., 66 Ohio St. 427.

20. Rothschild v. Knight, 184 U. S. 334, 46 Lawy. Ed. 573; affirming judgment, 176 Mass. 48.

21. Cohen v. Walker, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 114, 11 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 135.

22. Sufficiency of evidence of defendant's witnesses to establish his intention to remain a resident—Newlon-Hart Grocer Co. v. Peet (Colo. App.) 70 P. 446.

23. Thompson v. Ogden, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 185.

24. Gen. St. Kan. 1901, § 4624, authorizing attachment against nonresidents on demands arising on contract—Lipscomb v. Citizens' Bank (Kan.) 71 P. 583.

25. Civ. Code Prac. Ky. § 194—Bates Mach. Co. v. Norton Iron Works (Ky. App.) 68 S. W. 423.

26. Voss v. Evans Marble Co., 101 Ill. App. 373.

27. "Or," in Code Colo. § 92, providing for such attachment, should read "and"—Rocky Mountain Oil Co. v. Central Nat. Bank, 29 Colo. 129, 67 P. 153.

28. Under Rev. St. U. S. § 5242—Van Reed v. People's Nat. Bank, 173 N. Y. 314.

29. Rev. St. U. S. § 5242; the bank purchased a draft given for a sale of corn, and received payment—Searles v. Smith Grain Co., 80 Miss. 688.

30. Colorado Trading & Transfer Co. v. Acres Commission Co. (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 954.

Sufficiency of evidence of attempts to defeat efforts of creditors warranting the issuance of attachment—Blewett v. Sprague, 24 Ky. Law R. 1860. Sufficiency of evidence to sustain fraudulent disposition of property as to creditors—Dye v. Bank of Plankinton (S. D.) 92 N. W. 28.

Evidence of fraudulent purpose to remove property held insufficient—Rallings v. McDonald, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 112.

31. Bowles Live-Stock Commission Co. v. Hunter, 91 Mo. App. 333.

32. Templeton v. Mason, 107 Tenn. 625.

33. The stockholders of the new corporation need not be made parties, nor need they be given notice of pendency of the attachment—Buckwalter v. Whipple, 115 Ga. 484.

such sale was secretly made without defendant's knowledge.[34] That a debt is about to be collected by a nonresident creditor who will take the money from the state, leaving insufficient property to satisfy a claim against the creditor, is sufficient for an attachment against him.[35]

§ 4. Attachable property.[36]—The remedy will lie against any property of defendant, not exempt, within the county of the officer serving the writ, though in possession of plaintiff.[37] Horses in possession of a trainer, and entered in races in his name, cannot be attached for his debts.[38] Money borrowed by defendant to deposit as bail is not attachable.[39] Refusal of a debtor to receive goods which he had bought from third person, and his attempt to secure their sale to another, shows a rescission of the sale to him preventing attachment of the goods as his property.[40] Where the property of debtors was transferred to a creditor by his receipt of the keys of the building where it was stored, and removal of part of the property, as well as by execution of an unrecorded instrument, the apparent possession by the debtors of the remainder, which was not removed, was not sufficient to sustain attachment.[41] Money deposited within the jurisdiction by a foreign corporation having an office there may be attached for a debt made in the course of business in the state, as where held by a public officer to secure the debt in litigation, the custody of the law being no obstacle.[42]

Money deposited in a federal court pending litigation cannot be attached by any other court.[43] Attachment cannot issue against an estate being administered,[44] nor money in hands of an executor or administrator,[45] nor the interest of the beneficiary of a trust,[46] nor lands conveyed in trust for the benefit of creditors,[47] nor personal property of a partnership on the death of one of the partners, so as to affect the partnership estate,[48] nor upon interest coupon bonds, brought into the state by the receiver of a foreign corporation in an action to recover damages for breach of contract between the corporation and the attachment plaintiff.[49]

A lien could not have been obtained by attachment on land fraudulently conveyed as to creditors in Iowa prior to Code, § 3899.[50] A law providing for attachment and sale of liquor licenses includes the certificate and the franchise under the license.[51] The owner may use reasonable force to retake exempt property attached by an officer.[52]

Attachable debts and choses in action.—Decisions relative to this question per-

34. Secret sale fails to support fraudulent intent—Abel & Bach Co. v. Duffy, 106 La. 260.

35. Civ. Code Prac. Ky. § 194, subsec. 6, providing for attachment against debtors about to remove, or who have removed, their property from the state—Bates Mach. Co. v. Norton Iron Works (Ky. App.) 68 S. W. 423.

36. Sufficiency of evidence to show that title to goods remained in the shipper, regardless of indorsement of the bill of lading, so as to render them liable to attachment as his property—Westervelt v. Phelps, 171 N. Y. 212.

37. Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.

38. Anderson v. Heile (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1115.

39. Rallings v. McDonald, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 112.

40. Blaul v. Mayes (Iowa) 90 N. W. 730.

41. Under Code, § 2906, making the retention of actual possession without record of an instrument in evidence of a sale sufficient to warrant seizure under an attachment against the vendor—Peycke v. Hazen (Iowa) 93 N. W. 568.

42. India Rubber Co. v. Katz, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 349.

43. Jurisdiction of the court over such money continues until a decree or order for its disbursement has been executed—Corbitt v. Farmers' Bank (Va.) 114 Fed. 602.

44. Barnes v. Stanley, 96 Mo. App. 1.

45. Gorman v. Stillman (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1088.

46. Fiske v. Parke, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 422.

47. 3 Comp. Laws Mich. § 8839. The trustees are entitled to the property in order to complete their power—Geer v. Traders' Bank of Canada (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 578.

48. Barnes v. Stanley, 96 Mo. App. 1.

49. Woodhull v. Farmers' Trust Co. (N. D.) 90 N. W. 795.

50. Byers v. McEniry (Iowa) 91 N. W. 797.

51. Acts Conn. 1895, c. 123, giving right of attachment against interests under liquor licenses—Quinnipiac Brew. Co. v. Hackbarth, 74 Conn. 392.

52. Property exempt under Gen. St. Conn. § 1164—State v. Hartley (Conn.) 52 Atl. 615.

tain more properly to the law of garnishment, q. v., but a few decisions are collected here. Demands against the public,[53] or in litigation,[54] or unliquidated claims,[55] or interests in partially performed contracts,[56] are not subject to such process. For attachment purposes, a debt secured by bond and mortgage does not exist and cannot be attached independent of the securities.[57] A creditor of a foreign firm cannot attach a debt due from a foreign corporation to the firm within the state, and payment of the debt will not avail the corporation against subsequent action for recovery by a receiver of the firm.[58] An attachment of a debt existing by reason of insurance of property destroyed by fire, given by a company domiciled in another state, is not invalid because levied before adjustment of the loss, since the amount may be ascertained in the proceeding. The situs of the debt was the domicile of the company, and it could be attached in an action against the company there.[59] No demand exists in favor of insured in a tontine policy, providing for no cash surrender value, until completion of the tontine period, and no benefit accrues to the insured or beneficiary before that time, except the face value in case of death, which is liable to attachment by service of warrant and notice to the insurance company; nor is the right of a holder of a tontine policy to elect to take a cash surrender value, annuity, or a paid-up policy in settlement a cause of action, a demand, or property liable to attachment.[60]

§ 5. Procedure in general.—A petition showing that the debt of the attachment defendant is a judgment on which execution has issued, sufficiently shows the debt to be due.[61]

Beginning action and acquiring jurisdiction.—Jurisdiction of an action against nonresident debtors is acquired under the Michigan practice by commencement of attachment against land fraudulently conveyed by them,[62] and of its property by attachment against a foreign corporation.[63] The jurisdiction secured by publication applies to the property only to the extent of the amount claimed in the publication.[64] The rule that a common-law action is commenced when summons is issued applies to an attachment.[65] The issuance of the writ for the seizure of the property is not requisite to an order for service by publication.[66]

Necessity of issuance of summons.—The conditions precedent to issuance of a writ are the concurrent issuance of a summons, unless that has already been done, and the action has not proceeded to final judgment, and that the ground for a writ is proper.[67] The mere order by the clerk for publication of summons and notice, and filling out the papers without issuance, will not give jurisdiction where issuance is not waived.[68] An attachment in aid, issued before return of a notice

53. Board v. Bodkin (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 270.
54. Waples-Platter Co. v. Texas & P. R. Co. (Tenn.) 68 S. W. 265; Nelson v. Stull (Kan.) 70 Pac. 590.
55. Waples-Platter Co. v. Texas & P. R. Co. (Tex.) 68 S. W. 265.
56. Rothrock Co. v. Port Gibson Co., 80 Miss. 517.
57. Fiske v. Parke, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 422.
58. Allen v. United Cigar Stores Co., 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 500.
59. Sexton v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (N. C.) 43 S. E. 479.
60. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 649, subd. 3, providing for attachment against insurance companies on interests in policies, and sections 648, 649—Columbia Bank v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 428.
61. Petition held not uncertain as to amount realizable from estate of a codebtor—First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.
62. Comp. Laws Mich. §§ 10,556, 10,559, providing for attachment for fraudulent conveyance, and section 9167, applying the attachment to real estate—Archer v. Strachan (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 920, 88 N. W. 465.
63. Chitty v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 62 S. C. 526.
64. Code N. C. § 352, requiring the publication of warrant and summons to state the amount of the claim—Alpine Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452.
65. Under Code Va. §§ 3223, 3959—Furst v. Banks (Va.) 43 S. E. 360.
66. Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.
67. Under Rev. St. Wis. 1898, §§ 2730, 2731—Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.
68. Code N. C. §§ 161, 199, 219, 348, and 352—McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509.

in an action for money on contract, under a law providing that judgment may be had after fifteen days' notice, is void.[69]

In New York, proof of the issuance of summons is not a necessary condition to issuance of the writ.[70] Also, in Kansas, the filing of a petition, the issuance of summons, and the levy of the writ constitute the taking of an attachment, though no personal service was had or service by publication attempted until after filing petition.[71] Under a law requiring publication to be within a certain time, it may begin on the last day.[72] Filing an affidavit of nonresidence, stating defendant's residence, and mailing a copy of publication to defendant more than two years after the return, is insufficient.[73]

§ 6. Affidavit and its sufficiency.[74]—Facts constituting ground for an attachment must appear by a verified affidavit, and must be proved by the plaintiff on the trial.[75] A verified complaint, merely stating on information and belief that certain persons had contracted with plaintiff as agents of defendant, is insufficient. An affidavit must be filed showing the facts of the agency or the grounds for plaintiff's belief.[76] The clerk of a superior court of Georgia cannot administer an affidavit.[77] An affidavit made by the principal in the transaction out of which the cause of action arose, who had been in personal contact with defendant, reciting that the latter was the resident of another state, is sufficiently made on personal knowledge.[78] An affidavit on the ground of fraudulent transfer of property is not a direction to an officer to levy on property in the hands of a purchaser from the transferee.[79]

Averments in general.—A statement of mere conclusions and not facts relating to the existence of a debt owing to plaintiff from defendant is insufficient.[80] A statement in an affidavit that certain facts will be alleged in the complaint is insufficient to show the truth of such facts.[81] The affidavit may be made by an agent.[82] A complaint and affidavit by the agent of plaintiff on information and belief, taken from correspondence and telegrams from his principal, without setting forth the correspondence, are insufficient.[83]

It must state the debt to be recovered in amount over and above all legal set-offs and counterclaims, and that the debt is due.[84] The amount of plaintiff's

69. The attachment was issued under Code Va. § 2959, in aid of an action under Code Va. § 3211—Furst v. Banks (Va.) 43 S. E. 360.

70. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 638—Belmont v. Sigua Iron Co. (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 771.

71. Code Civ. Proc. Kan. § 20, providing for the first publication or service within sixty days, applies only to the statute of limitations. Section 57, providing for commencement of actions, applies to civil actions in general—Wester v. Long, 63 Kan. 876, 66 Pac. 1032.

72. July 31st to August 30th is thirty days, within Code Civ. Proc. § 638—Doheny v. Worden, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 47; Salt Springs Nat. Bank v. Worden, Id.

73. Britton v. Gregg, 96 Ill. App. 29.

74. Sufficiency of affidavit for attachment as against a motion for dissolution by other creditors—Axford v. Seguine, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 228; of affidavit and complaint in attachment against a foreign corporation to show that the corporation was foreign, under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1776, requiring an affirmative verified allegation thereof—Steele v. R. M. Gilmour Mfg. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 199; of affidavit to show that plaintiff owned property shipped by defendant's railroad as a connecting line; under Rev. St. S. C., providing that a connecting carrier is liable severally with the receiving line for loss or damage to freight—Chitty v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 62 S. C. 526.

75. Brandenburg v. Malcolm, 102 Ill. App. 302.

76. Civ. Code Proc. N. Y. § 636, renders an affidavit necessary—Sizer v. Hampton & B. R. Lumber Co., 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 547.

77. Heard v. Nat. Bank of Illinois, 114 Ga. 291.

78. Hayden v. Mullins, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 69.

79. Siersema v. Meyer, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 358.

80. American Audit Co. v. Industrial Federation (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 788.

81. Axford v. Seguine, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 228. But facts shown in pleading need not always be stated—Teague v. Lindsey (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 573.

82. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 636—Steele v. R. M. Gilmour Mfg. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 199.

83. Barrell v. Todd, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 22.

84. Rev. St. § 4303, by implication clearly damage must be fully ascertainable from the affidavit and papers.[85] It must show that plaintiff is entitled to recover a certain sum from defendant, which is done by stating that a certain balance was due plaintiff after taking out all credits to be given defendant, and that defendant has agreed to pay another sum certain for goods furnished.[86] The affidavit need not state the value of the property, but only the amount of damages, where the attachment is in aid of a suit to recover damages to property.[87] Where the petition in an action on a note shows that payments have been made reducing the debt to the sum specified in the affidavit for attachment, those facts need not be averred in the affidavit.[88] An affidavit alleging want of sufficient personal property of defendant within the state to satisfy the claim is necessary to a sale of land.[89] When against residents of the state, it must, in California, show that the debt was not secured.[90]

Averments as to nonresidence.—The affidavit must state the residence of both of two defendants, or that plaintiff was unable to ascertain the residence after diligence, and must state that both defendants are indebted to plaintiff.[91] An affidavit showing that the defendant had been absent from the state for a long time, and had expressed himself as unwilling to return, and as intending to go to a foreign country, sufficiently shows facts authorizing an attachment against him as a nonresident, and sufficiently shows his intent to leave the state to defraud his creditors or avoid service of process.[92] An averment that defendant has removed to another state, where he now resides, is sufficient as to nonresidence;[93] and a statement that defendant resides without the state at a certain address, which fact is shown by the affidavit of another, annexed, sufficiently authorizes attachment against a nonresident.[94] If other grounds exist, it seems needless to aver nonresidence.[95]

Amended and supplemental affidavits.—An affidavit defective as to venue may be amended, on motion nunc pro tunc, on a showing that it was properly verified before an officer within his jurisdiction.[96] A motion before hearing, asking an extension of time within which plaintiff might file affidavits and proofs to amend those already filed, because of newly-discovered evidence unknown at time of the original affidavits, is a motion for continuance to secure further evidence, and not for purpose of amendment.[97]

§ 7. Attachment bond or undertaking; terms.—Omission of a description of land will not render the bond void if the description may be obtained from the original record and the officer's return.[98] That one of the sureties claims ownership of valuable property involved in litigation will not justify the court in refusing requires such statement—Kerns v. McAulay (Idaho) 69 Pac. 539. Plaintiff must allege by affidavit his right to a certain sum over and above all counterclaims—Roth v. American Piano Mfg. Co., 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 509.

85. Attachment based on claim for unliquidated damages—Mallon v. Rothschild, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 8.

86. Mere allegation of breach of contract, and its cancellation by plaintiff for the breach, is insufficient—Roth v. American Piano Mfg. Co., 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 509.

87. Chitty v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 62 S. C. 526.

88. Teague v. Lindsey (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 573.

89. Civ. Code Prac. Ky. § 230—Webber v. Tanner, 23 Ky. Law R. 1694.

90. Such attachment can only lie under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 538, providing for attachment of unsecured claims against residents—Sparks v. Bell, 137 Cal. 415, 70 Pac. 281.

91. Britton v. Gregg, 96 Ill. App. 29.

92. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 636, subd. 2, which authorizes attachments against nonresidents—Doheny v. Worden, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 47; Salt Springs Nat. Bank v. Worden, Id.

93. Citizens' State Bank v. Porter (Neb.) 93 N. W. 391.

94. Mallon v. Rothschild, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 8.

95. As that the debt was unsecured—Kerns v. McAulay (Idaho) 69 Pac. 539.

96. Fisher v. Bloomberg, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 368.

97. Hood v. Fay, 15 S. D. 84.

98. Requirement of description by Pub. St. Mass. c. 161, § 128—Berry v. Wasserman, 179 Mass. 537.

to consider such property in estimating the value of the sureties' assets on a plea in abatement for insufficiency of sureties.[99] Since it cannot be known that the federal bankruptcy law will not be repealed before final judgment in attachment, its enactment cannot affect the reference in an attachment bond to local laws relating to special judgments against bankrupts by enabling the attachment plaintiff to proceed against their sureties.[1]

Liabilities on bond.—If the bond in words binds the "undersigned," all signers are included in the obligation. Persons not named in the body of the bond, signing it as "securities," bind themselves as sureties.[2] Sureties are not liable to defendant, though he recovers judgment, if no levy has actually been made.[3] The expenses of trial on vacation of an attachment may be recovered of sureties, and they are liable for costs on an unsuccessful motion to vacate, not denied on the merits, where judgment is for defendant in the main action.[4] A bond of plaintiff and sureties, providing that plaintiff will prosecute the suit, and that "they" will pay all damages and costs rendered against "them" for wrongful issuance, sufficiently includes the plaintiff and sureties.[5] The measure of damages to the owner is the costs awarded on vacation of the warrant, and interest on the value of the property for the time it was held, where it appears that, in vacating the attachment, it was not held void ab initio.[6] The sureties on bond conditioned that sureties should pay defendants all damages they or either of them may sustain by the attachment if wrongful are liable only for the value of the attached property, less the proceeds of its sale, and not for a sum erroneously paid to plaintiff.[7] Discontinuance of the attachment by plaintiff is equivalent to a final determination that plaintiff was not entitled to attachment, and gives defendant an immediate right of action on the attachment bond.[8] A chattel mortgagor may sue for damages on the attachment bond of one who levied on his interest after default, even though the mortgagee has recovered against the attachment plaintiff for conversion of the property.[9] An action will lie on a bond given the sheriff to protect him against claimants of the attached property, where it appears that judgment has been rendered against him which he has had to pay.[10] Where a bond in attachment of land is conditioned to pay the judgment recovered after the obligee shall assert title by writ of entry, and no appraisal of the land is had, the obligors have waived such appraisal and are bound by the judgment.[11]

Actions on bond.[12]—A declaration in a suit on an attachment bond, which fails to assert that plaintiff has first established his title by writ of entry, which was required by the bond, is liable to demurrer.[13] The surety cannot show in de-

99. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

1. Public St. Mass. c. 171, and St. Mass. 1888, c. 405, §§ 1, 2—Berry v. Wasserman, 179 Mass. 537.

2. Sufficiency of attachment bond given by plaintiff as to warranty of the action, relation of the parties, and obligation assumed—First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

3. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. provides that the undertaking shall secure costs and damages only to defendant on recovery of his judgment—Krall v. Howard, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 832.

4. Tyng v. American Surety Co., 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 137.

5. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

6. Hartmann v. Burtis, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 481.

7. Files v. Davis, 119 Fed. 1002.

8. Straus v. Guilhou (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 180.

9. The legal title to the property still remains in the mortgagor—Jencks v. Murphy, 15 S. D. 425.

10. Tucker v. Smith (Kan.) 68 Pac. 40.

11. Appraisal of attached land required by Pub. St. Mass. c. 161, § 126—Berry v. Wasserman, 179 Mass. 537.

12. Sufficiency of evidence of damages to property by reason of attachment—Witherspoon v. Cross, 135 Cal. 96, 67 Pac. 18; reasonableness of verdict on conflicting evidence as to value of land levied on, and of attorney's services—Barnett v. Lucas, 27 Ind. App. 441.

13. Berry v. Wasserman, 179 Mass. 537.

fense of a suit on the bond that there was a chattel mortgage on the property.[14] Where an attachment against nonresidents was vacated, and the appeal from the vacating order was abandoned, in a suit by local attorneys on the attachment bond, as assignees of defendants, to recover for their services, the surety could not set up that the foreign attorneys of the attachment plaintiff were negligent as to service of summons, so that the attachment was vacated, nor allege that the appeal was still pending, where they alleged no stay of proceedings.[15] The burden is on defendant to show the sufficiency of the sureties.[16] The levy of an attachment upon his property for which the bond was executed must be shown by the obligee.[17]

Judgment in the original action may be rendered in some jurisdictions.[18] On discontinuance of an attachment by plaintiff, in which defendant appeared specially to move for vacation of the service and warrant, judgment cannot be entered against plaintiff for defendant's costs and damages.[19] Judgment for the amount of the bond cannot be rendered either in a suit or by rule without notice of the proceedings.[20]

§ 8. The writ or warrant.—In Wisconsin the affidavit stating statutory grounds of attachment must be attached to the writ.[21] An attachment should issue in amount not exceeding the sum stated in the complaint, especially where it appeared that such amount included damages in two causes of action, as to one of which plaintiff was not entitled to attachment.[22] The writ should be confined to the demand in that cause of action as to which attachment is authorized.[23] The remedy is to reduce, and not to vacate, a writ that exceeds the amount of the demand.[24] The writ may call defendants by their reputed names or surnames, and joint defendants by their separate or partnership names, or by such names as they are usually known.[25] That defendant's name was given as "Kavarik," when it was really "Kovarik," will not render the writ void where fraud or bad faith is not shown, and amendment to correct the name will not work dissolution of the attachment already levied.[26] A simple mistake in a writ in computing the amount due is immaterial where the petition shows the date and amount of judgment sued on, and the rate of interest.[27] A defect of omission to state the cause of action is not waived by default, but may be raised on appeal.[28] A warrant may be amended nunc pro tunc for failure to state the ground of attachment as against one acquiring an interest in the attached property after issuance of the defective warrant, as well as against the original owner.[29] Abandonment of an attachment merely because defendant is not rightly named therein will not affect issuance of a second writ in good faith, though the property seized under the first attachment is not returned before the second is made.[30]

14. Hartmann v. Hoffman, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 443.
15. Powell v. Bursky, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 533.
16. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.
17. Barnett v. Lucas, 27 Ind. App. 441.
18. Civ. Code Prac. § 232—Deposit Bank of Frankfort v. Thomason (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1957.
19. Straus v. Guilhou (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 180.
20. Thompson v. Arnett (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1082.
21. The grounds are set out in Rev. St. 1898, § 2731—Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.
22. The word "demand," used in Code Civ. Proc. § 538, refers to the amount stated in the affidavit as the indebtedness owing from defendant—Baldwin v. Napa & S. Wine Co., 137 Cal. 646, 70 Pac. 732.
23. The words "demand in conformity with the complaint," in Code Civ. Proc. § 540, construed in connection with sections 427, 537—Baldwin v. Napa & S. Wine Co., 137 Cal. 646, 70 Pac. 732.
24. Cohen v. Walker, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 114, citing 35 Misc. Rep. 509.
25. Nester's Estate v. Carney Bros. Co., 98 Ill. App. 630.
26. Norris v. Anderson, 181 Mass. 308.
27. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.
28. Cline v. Patterson, 191 Ill. 246.
29. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. §§ 641, 723—King v. King, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 189.
30. Brady v. Royce, 180 Mass. 553.

An alias writ of special execution under the Illinois practice cannot issue under the statutes.[31] In equitable attachments under the Rhode Island statute the affidavit need not be attached to the writ, though the remedy is mesne process; because the affidavit must first be submitted to the court; and it is immaterial that it calls on attachment defendants to answer the bill.[32]

§ 9. The levy or seizure; indemnifying bonds.—Levying creditors should be allowed to take and retain only enough property to meet their debts.[33] The officer may take a reasonable time to pack the goods and remove them from the premises.[34] A levy is not sufficient where it appears that it was not made in the presence of any witness.[35] The validity of a levy on mortgaged chattels against a mortgage subsequently executed is not affected by payment of security required to be given the mortgagee.[36]

Levy on debts or choses.—Where an attachment judgment for money only was recovered without personal service within the state, acceptance by the officer of a certificate of the mortgagor as to his indebtedness in the sum therein named, instead of taking into custody a bond and mortgage due defendant, was an insufficient levy. The bond collaterally secured by the mortgage was insufficiently seized by the delivery of a certified copy of the warrant with notice to the debtor.[37]

Notice of levy.—An attachment sale of realty cannot be upheld where it appears that the officer did not give notice of the levy to the tenant in possession, nor recite such notice in his return.[38] Service of a paper merely purporting to be a copy of the attachment upon one claimed to be owing defendant is insufficient, and failure to serve a certified copy of the attachment is not a mere irregularity, but an error going to the jurisdiction.[39] Serving notice of a levy on land as late as the day preceding the levy will not render it void, though it should be after levy is made.[40] A notice of an attachment of lands held by devisees under a will, served on the "agent for the heirs and legatees," is sufficient.[41]

An equitable attachment on the assets of a partnership requires actual or constructive notice to both partners before decree as to the property, but should not be abated, after service on one partner, for failure to take an order of publication against the other.[42]

That some of the averments in a petition, in an action on a bond given a sheriff to protect him against claimants of attached property, are indefinite and informal, will not prevent recovery where liability is clearly shown.[43]

§ 10. Return to the writ.—Levy against property of a nonresident in one county cannot be returned in another county so as to give jurisdiction there.[44] A

31. Attachment Act Ill. § 26 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 178), does not provide for an alias attachment writ, nor is the alias writ of special execution authorized by Attachment Act, § 35 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 180), authorizing a special execution—Keeley Brewing Co. v. Carr, 198 Ill. 492, affirming judgment, 94 Ill. App. 225; Ill. Cyc. Dig. vol. 1, p. 751.

32. Under Gen. Laws, c. 252, § 27—Ladd v. Franklin Loan & Trust Co. (R. I.) 53 Atl. 59.

33. A levy for $76.74 and costs on property worth $1,225 is excessive—Anderson v. Heile (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1115.

34 Ramsey v. Burns (Mont.) 69 Pac. 711.

35. Under Code Neb. § 205—Citizens' State Bank v. Porter (Neb.) 93 N. W. 391.

36. Code Iowa, § 3979—Tollerton & Stetson Co. v. Skelton (Iowa) 92 N. W. 651.

37. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 649, providing for levy on personal property capable of manual delivery—Fiske v. Parke, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 157; order affirmed, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 327.

38. Rev. St. Mo. 1889, § 543—Walter v. Scofield, 167 Mo. 537.

39. General rules of practice No. 37, Code Civ. Proc.—Weil v. Gallun, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 439.

40. Kilham v. Western Bank & Safe Deposit Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 409.

41. Kilham v. Western Bank & Safe Deposit Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 409.

42. Time for maturity of the suit should be given plaintiff fixed as to the absent partner—Brown v. Gorsuch, 50 W. Va. 514.

43. Tucker v. Smith (Kan.) 68 Pac. 40.

44. Code Ala. §§ 526, 524, subd. 4, and § 4205, providing for venue of civil actions—Kress v. Porter, 132 Ala. 577.

return is sufficient to give the officer a lien, though it appears that he included more property than defendant owned at the place of attachment.[45] If it sets out receipt of a notice to remove attached property, and recites the fact of removal, it is prima facie sufficient to show removal.[46] A return showing attachment of a certain number of sacks of potatoes is not conclusive as to the number of bushels attached.[47] Return of a writ reciting a levy on land and service on a Chinaman as sole occupant will not render a judgment of sale void because of failure to give the name of the Chinaman, which was unknown.[48] The court may allow the officer to amend his return after verdict, especially as to matters occurring after entry of the writ.[49]

§ 11. Custody, sale, redelivery, or release of attached property.—The property may be left with plaintiff as bailee by the officer without endangering the lien.[50] The officer cannot recover fees for keeping property attached for more than the time provided by law, though he has an oral agreement with defendant for such fees.[51]

Sale and confirmation or vacation.—Though by law the officer may sell perishable property, an order of the court is necessary unless it is subject to speedy decay.[52] Where land was attached before death of its owner, and after his death the complaint was amended to ask foreclosure of the lien, but not waiving recourse against other property, a foreclosure by sale was unauthorized, but the personal judgment against the estate could be given preference in the proceeds of a sale of the attached property if sold by the executor to pay debts.[53] The validity of the attachment because of death of defendant before service, and service on his executor, cannot be questioned on a motion to confirm the sale; nor can it be urged that the service was insufficient to give jurisdiction, where the question was raised by an amended complaint, and not controverted. A motion to vacate a judgment of sale, in so far as it applies to lands because the attachment is invalid, raises the question of the validity of the judgment, and is not merely a motion to set aside the sale.[54] A motion by a junior attaching plaintiff to set aside a sale under the senior attachment for inadequacy of price will be denied where it appears that sufficient property remains unsold to satisfy his claim.[55] The court cannot order funds in the hands of levying officers as proceeds from the sale to be paid to plaintiff before final judgment.[56] A second attaching creditor is not entitled to notice of an application for an order from the judge in vacation to direct the sheriff, who has sold the goods, to turn over the proceeds to his successor in office; and the law providing for appointment of a receiver cannot apply where the officer has sold the goods, and, pursuant to the order, turned the money over to his successor.[57]

45. Stearns v. Silsby, 74 Vt. 68.
46. Riley v. Tolman, 181 Mass. 335.
47. La Follett v. Mitchell (Or.) 69 Pac. 916.
48. White v. Ladd, 41 Or. 324, 68 Pac. 739.
49. Harding v. Riley, 181 Mass. 334.
50. Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.
51. Under Pub. St. Mass. c. 161, § 42, providing for appointment of a keeper of attached personalty, and chapter 199, § 6, limiting the compensation of the officer or keeper to ten days, unless on written consent of parties or special order of court—Leach v. Eastman (Mass.) 65 N. E. 60; Eastman v. Leach, Id.
52. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. §§ 547, 548—Witherspoon v. Cross, 135 Cal. 96, 67 Pac. 18.
53. Under Rev. St. Ariz. 1887, pars. 1117, 1119, and 1176, providing for presentation of claims against an estate, and payment of secured claims by the executor on sale of the property covered by the lien—Wartman v. Pecka (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 534.
54. White v. Ladd, 41 Or. 324, 68 Pac. 739.
55. Levi v. Goldberg, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 210.
56. Under Civ. Code Ga. §§ 4556, 4558, 5463—Lambert Hoisting Engine Co. v. Bray (Ga.) 43 S. E. 371.
57. Authority is not given by Rev. St. 1899, § 393, giving the court custody and disposition of proceeds of attached property; Rev. St. 1899, §§ 395, 399, provide for appointment of receiver in ejectment—Tennett-Strippling Shoe Co. v. Magill, 91 Mo. App. 570.

Wrongful taking from officer.—The measure of damages for wrongful taking of property from a sheriff holding it under a valid writ is its value when taken, with interest, not exceeding enough to satisfy the writ, considering the value of the goods when taken, in the situation in which they were found, with a view to the manner in which the officer might lawfully have disposed of them. Evidence of the value of goods attached in the ordinary market may be heard.[58]

§ 12. Forthcoming bonds and receipts.—The surety on a bond for discharge of attached property is liable for failure of its return, though judgment is recovered only against a defendant who does not own the property.[59] The sufficiency of grounds of an attachment, or the liability of the property thereto, cannot be determined in an action to enforce a bond for discharge of the attachment.[60]

Claimant's bonds.[61]—Execution of a claimant's bond, and his receipt of the property, will not discharge the lien of the levy, and he must become a party to the action.[62] After sale of property delivered on a claimant's bond, it cannot be objected that the bond did not secure a joint owner of the debtor.[63] After surrender of the property to the claimant under his bond, terms in the bond in excess of the statutory requirement will be treated as surplusage.[64] Death of a surety will not require a new bond by a claimant who had received the property from the sheriff.[65] A claimant's bond is not broken until a judgment subjecting the property has been rendered which the debtor has failed to satisfy, and until then no action can be brought.[66] In an action on a bond conditioned to require the claimant to establish ownership, the burden is on the defendant to show ownership.[67] A bond payable to the deputy sheriff who is the "levying officer" may be enforced by him.[68] Issues raised by a claimant in intervention cannot be set up in an action on the bond after judgment in the intervention finding the property liable.[69] An allegation in an action on claimant's bond showing a liability of the obligor to pay the value of the property in a certain sum need not be proved, where it is not denied.[70]

§ 13. Lien or other consequences of levy.[71]—An attachment rightfully issued and levied creates a lien for plaintiff to the amount of his claim and costs, whether in aid to an action or as a special proceeding.[72] A judgment of sale was not conclusive as to the validity of the seizure of part of the attached property, though attachment of the remainder was good, where defendant died before service, and it was made on his executor.[73] A mere clerical mistake of the clerk in recording an attachment lien by inserting the name of the wrong county in the title of the

58. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. McDonald (Neb.) 88 N. W. 492; Id., 89 N. W. 770.

59. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 554, 555, provide that the bond should be conditioned to pay the value of the property in case the plaintiff recover judgment—McCormick v. National Surety Co., 134 Cal. 510, 66 Pac. 741.

60. Civ. Code Prac. § 221—Thompson v. Arnett (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1082.

61. Sufficiency of evidence, in action on a claimant's bond, to show that the obligor was not the owner of the attached property—Goldstein v. Goldman, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 356.

62. Civ. Code Prac. §§ 29, 214, providing for intervention in attachment suits—Deposit Bank of Frankfort v. Thomason (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1957.

63. Deposit Bank of Frankfort v. Thomason (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1957.

64. Under Civ. Code Prac. §§ 214, 682, providing for bond of a claimant in attachment, and the filing of a new bond where the first is insufficient—Deposit Bank of Frankfort v. Thomason (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1957.

65. Larsen v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 295.

66. Deposit Bank of Frankfort v. Thomason (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1957.

67. Code Civ. Proc. § 2912—Goldstein v. Goldman, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 356.

68. Civ. Code, §§ 4571, 4572—Thompson v. O'Connor, 115 Ga. 120.

69. Thompson v. O'Connor, 115 Ga. 120.

70. Goldstein v. Goldman, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 356.

71. Effect on lien of leaving property with plaintiff, see ante, § 11.

72. Rhodes v. Samuels (Neb.) 93 N. W. 148.

73. Jurisdiction depended on the validity of the attachment—White v. Ladd, 41 Or. 324, 68 Pac. 739.

cause will not affect the lien.[74] Default in attachment by creditors who knew of a mortgage covering the property gives the creditors no property rights of which they were deprived without due process of law by passage of a law, pending the attachment, validating the record of the mortgage.[75] An entry of judgment by agreement in favor of defendant in attachment on lands, including satisfaction of claims not existing at time of attachment, renders the lien void as against purchasers of land from defendant after commencement of the suit.[76]

§ 14. Conflicting levies, liens, and creditors; priorities.[77]—Title under attachment sale does not necessarily prevail over a prior unrecorded debt.[78] An unrecorded assignment of a title bond is valid against a subsequent attachment for debts of the assignor.[79] Attachment of a bank deposit precedes an unpresented check for a part thereof.[80] An unindorsed bill of lading delivered to a creditor of the owner of goods shipped with a draft on the consignee for the proceeds gave the creditor a lien superior to that of a subsequent attachment.[81] The court has sufficient chancery power to postpone one attachment for another for a sound equitable reason.[82] On attachment in a suit against an insolvent foreign corporation, a preference, based on the view of the law held by the courts in the state of the domicile of the corporation, and not on its statutes, cannot be allowed.[83]

Priorities between attachments and mortgages.[84]—Notice to the attaching creditor, by his attorney and agent, that another creditor holds a chattel mortgage on the property seized prior to levy, puts him on inquiry; but record of a chattel mortgage, executed in one state on property in another, in the state of execution, is not notice to attaching creditors in the state where the property is situate.[85] Consent by a chattel mortgagee that the surety on the mortgagor's forthcoming bond in attachment should have a lien prior to his own in case he became liable will not give the attachment priority over the mortgage.[86] The insufficiency of a chattel mortgage to give notice to a subsequent attaching creditor will not prevent notice where such creditor was informed of the existence of the mortgage, before levy, by his own attorney, who had learned of the mortgage from the mortgagor and the records.[87] The burden is on attaching creditors claiming priority over a mortgage on the ground that fraudulent representations of the mortgagee as to the financial condition of the mortgagee induced them to give credit to him, and, if evidence of fraud is not produced, a verdict for the mortgagee should be directed.[88] An attachment lien on property of a son is prior to a former security given by the son for his father's debt, which the creditor failed to enforce, while allowing the son to continue business and to obtain credit from the attachment plaintiff, and where it appears that the father induced the withdrawal of the at-

74. Under Hill's Ann. Laws, Or. § 151, the lien depends on the date of the filing of the certificate—Schlosser v. Beemer, 40 Or. 412, 67 Pac. 299.

75. McFaddin v. Evans-Snider-Buel Co., 185 U. S. 505, 46 Lawy. Ed. 1012; affirming judgment, 105 Fed. 293.

76. Oconto Co. v. Esson, 112 Wis. 89; Wright v. Same, Id.; Bellew v. Same, Id.

77. Confirmation of sale as affecting rights and priorities, see ante, § 11.

78. Rohrer v. Snyder (Wash.) 69 Pac. 748.

79. The bond was recorded as authorized by Code, § 2459—Macrae v. Goodbar, 80 Miss. 315.

80. The check at time of delivery does not operate as an equitable assignment pro tanto—Donohoe-Kelly Banking Co. v. Southern Pac. Co. (Cal.) 71 Pac. 93.

81. Clary v. Tyson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 710.

82. Freedman v. Holberg, 89 Mo. App. 340.

83. Lamb v. Russel (Miss.) 32 So. 916.

84. Sufficiency of fraudulent statements by chattel mortgagee to attaching creditors to give the latter priority over the mortgage—Chittenden v. Charles H. Sieg Mfg. Co. (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 1077.

85. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Kennedy, 114 Iowa, 444.

86. Caumiser v. Humpich (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1133.

87. Frick v. Fritz, 115 Iowa, 438.

88. Chittenden v. Chas. H. Sieg Mfg. Co. (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 1077.

tachment by fraud, so as to enable the former creditor to obtain a preference by entering up a judgment.[89]

Surrender of attached property to a receiver under a stipulation approved by the court that it shall be without prejudice will not terminate the attachment, but the priority of lien is retained.[90] Creditors who have turned over attached property to a receiver appointed in a suit to foreclose a mortgage thereon, under a stipulation holding part of the gross proceeds subject to the attachment, can claim only that portion after payment of necessary expenses of sale, and cannot be charged with a proportion of taxes, insurance, and expenses from the claim of the receiver.[91] Subsequent appointment of a receiver, or his subsequent taking possession of property within the state of his appointment, will not affect an attachment of the property already made.[92]

Priority between attachments and assignments for benefit of creditors.—Subsequent attachments of land fraudulently conveyed are prior to the title of assignees, under a general assignment.[93] On a feigned issue to determine the validity of an assignment of stock prior to an attachment, the attaching creditors may show that in a prior attachment, dissolved for defect in the bond, the claimant under the assignment had entered appearance for the assignor to claim for him benefit of the exemption laws, as showing the invalidity of the assignment.[94] A sale under execution in attachment proceedings, and payment proceeds to plaintiff after institution of claim proceedings by an assignee for benefit of creditors, will not prevent plaintiff from contesting the validity of the claim. The debtor's act in postponing an assignment for creditors until after a levy is not chargeable to levying creditors who did not know or participate in his intent, and the general creditors must prove affirmatively that there was such participation; hence the fact that they afterwards took part in a scheme to start him in business, and helped him to purchase the attached property for that purpose, will not invalidate their attachment as against the assignment for benefit of creditors.[95]

Effect of bankruptcy proceedings.—An adjudication in bankruptcy dissolves all attachments issued during four months preceding the petition, unless preserved by an order of court.[96] The attaching creditor of an alleged bankrupt has a lien, until the attachment is vacated or rendered void by the adjudication in bankruptcy, which is a preference.[97] The bankruptcy act does not invalidate the lien of an attachment obtained more than four months before the bankruptcy proceedings, though the lien depends on a judgment obtained within four months. That the service was made prior to that time is sufficient.[98] An attachment against property of a bankrupt exempt from the bankruptcy proceedings, and over which the court therein has refused to take jurisdiction, will not be discharged, though issued within four months preceding the petition.[99] A judgment against a garnishee in an action against the bankrupt within four months before

89. Leonard v. Bowne, 63 N. J. Eq. 488.

90. Central Trust Co. v. Worcester Cycle Mfg. Co., 114 Fed. 659.

91. American Surety Co. v. Worcester Cycle Mfg. Co., 114 Fed. 658.

92. Woodhull v. Farmers' Trust Co. (N. D.) 90 N. W. 795.

93. Watson v. Bonfils (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 157.

94. McConnel v. Dilworth, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 114.

95. Evidence of such participation will not prevail against direct testimony of the attaching creditors that no collusion existed between them and the bankrupt—H. B. Claflin Co. v. Muscogee Mfg. Co., 127 Ala. 376.

96. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 67—Watschke v. Thompson, 85 Minn. 105.

97. He cannot maintain a petition in involuntary bankruptcy—In re Scherkein, 113 Fed. 421.

98. Under Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 67f, providing that attachments issuing within four months preceding the filing of the petition are void—In re Beaver Coal Co., 110 Fed. 630.

99. The attachment is not void under Bankruptcy Act U. S. § 67f—Powers Dry Goods Co. v. Nelson, 10 N. D. 580.

the filing of the petition is void, whether questioned directly or collaterally.[1] The trustee in bankruptcy may apply to the state court for an order discharging previous attachments, against the bankrupt's property, void under the bankruptcy law. His laches in moving for dissolution will not render the attachment a prior lien; it need only appear, in addition, that the bankrupt was insolvent when the attachment issued.[2] On annulment of the lien of an attachment in a state court by an adjudication in bankruptcy, the court loses jurisdiction of the property, and cannot affect the jurisdiction.[3] Discharge of an attachment against property of a bankrupt by discharge of the debtor will not prevent enforcement of the lien against the property by judgment.[4] A referee in bankruptcy may properly proceed, on application of the trustee, to determine the validity and amount of an attachment lien on the property held by a party to the proceedings, though such party gave him notice that he had released the lien; and his decision is conclusive as to the creditor's interest in property covered by the lien, but not as regards other property. A judgment for the amount claimed in the attachment will stand against a finding of the referee for less than was set up in an insufficient answer in bar, where the record of the bankruptcy was not introduced on the trial, and the attachment defendant did not claim benefit of the referee's finding.[5]

§ 15. Enforcement and dissolution, discharge, vacation, or abandonment of attachment. A. Validity and grounds for setting aside.—An attachment in aid must abide the result of the suit, since the existence of the ground of action cannot be determined in a proceeding to enforce the provisional remedy.[6] Service on a nonresident within the county of issuance will not abate the attachment, nor will grounds for demurrer to a bill in equity, founded on the nonresidence.[7] Persons upon whom notices of attachment are served on the ground of their indebtedness to defendant cannot have the existence of such debts determined on motion to set aside the service.[8] An amendment to a petition, showing recovery in a cause of action on an implied promise to repay money had and received, supports the original petition, alleging an oral contract to pay, so as to constitute proper ground for attachment.[9] One moving as a subsequent lienor to vacate a prior attachment does not make good his right by showing his own attachment, and an incomplete publication to sustain it.[10] Dismissal is proper where the court has not the required jurisdiction of defendant, and no property within the state has been seized.[11] An attachment against residents for a debt, on contract for direct payment of money, must be discharged, though two of six defendants whose property was taken are nonresidents, where the affidavit does not show that the claim was not secured.[12] An attachment in an action for breach of a contract void under the statute of frauds is properly vacated on motion.[13] Collection of a sum, and its credit on the claim for which attachment issued, from the estate of one jointly

1. Under Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 67f—In re Beals, 116 Fed. 530.
2. Bankruptcy Act, § 67f—Hardt v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co., 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 90.
3. In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906.
4. Powers Dry Goods Co. v. Nelson, 10 N. D. 580.
5. Wakeman v. Throckmorton, 74 Conn. 616.
6. Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.
7. Hall v. Packard, 51 W. Va. 264.
8. Weil v. Gallun, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 439.
9. Munns v. Donovan Commission Co. (Iowa) 91 N. W. 789.
10. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 638, providing for publication; section 442, providing for time of publication; and section 682, giving one acquiring a lien after attachment the right to apply for vacation—Doheny v. Worden, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 47; Salt Springs Nat. Bank v. Same, Id.
11. Beasley v. Lennox-Haldeman Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 385.
12. Code Civ. Proc. § 556—Sparks v. Bell, 137 Cal. 415, 70 Pac. 281.
13. Knight v. Hatfield, 129 N. C. 191.

liable with defendant, which was accepted by plaintiff's amended petition, does not render the attachment void;[14] nor omission of the cause of attachment in the writ, since plaintiff may have it amended as the court may direct.[15] Attachment against a foreign corporation should not be vacated on the ground that the action was at law, merely because a referee, who had received the affidavits, had decided that the action was not in equity, since that question should not be determined on a preliminary motion.[16] Where service of summons, made without the state, is set aside, the attachment will be vacated, though appeal has been taken and no stay granted.[17] A slight change in the names of the defendants as they appear in the affidavits will not be ground for vacating the writ, where it is certainly shown that they were the proper persons.[18] Defendant's failure to execute a bond will not prevent vacation of attachment brought on ground of breach of a contract, which, it was apparent from the pleadings, was void under the statute of frauds.[19] Vacation of a warrant on a condition with which each defendant complies works plaintiff no injury.[20] Where the warrant of an attachment states that the action is for wrongful detention of property, while the complaint alleges wrongful conversion, it is merely an irregularity, not to be considered on a motion to vacate.[21] In Arizona the death of defendant will not dissolve the attachment;[22] but it is otherwise in South Dakota as to attachment issued on an ordinary money judgment.[23] Dismissal of a cause of action on which property is seized dissolves the attachment, so that a sale cannot be had, though an amended petition is subsequently filed setting forth another and different cause of action.[24] A motion to dissolve should prevail where the causes of action as to some of several claims on which the attachment issued have been dismissed by plaintiff.[25] Attachment against a national bank in an action to recover property secured by the bank by intervention in a preceding attachment against others should be dissolved on motion of the bank.[26]

B. Procedure.—After general appearance by defendant, a motion may be made to release the property for failure of the grounds of attachment.[27] Where defendant appears and joins issue on the petition, the court may render judgment for the amount found due, without regard to the extent of the levy.[28] Outside of defendant's liability, the ground of attachment must be questioned by traverse of the affidavit and trial by the issues thus formed.[29] The jury cannot be remitted to the affidavit to ascertain the issues to be determined.[30] Annulment of an attachment in a state court by proceedings in bankruptcy deprives such court of

14. First Nat. Bank v. Wallace (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 392.

15. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 176, §§ 6, 28, providing the form of the writ, and that it should not be quashed for mere insufficiency—Cline v. Patterson, 191 Ill. 246; reversing judgment, 88 Ill. App. 360.

16. Schultz v. Brackett, Bridge Co., 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 595.

17. Code Civ. Proc. requires personal service within thirty days after issuance of the attachment, or service by publication commenced within that time—Martin v. Smith, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 425.

18. Sparks v. Bell, 137 Cal. 415, 70 Pac. 281.

19. Knight v. Hatfield, 129 N. C. 191.

20. McDonald v. Manice (Sup.) 72 N. Y. Supp. 543.

21. Rallings v. McDonald, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 112.

22. Rev. St. pars. 67, 68, 725—Wartman v. Pecka (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 534.

23. Yankton Sav. Bank v. Gutterson, 15 S. D. 486.

24. Holway v. American Exch. Nat. Bank (Neb.) 89 N. W. 382.

25. First Nat. Bank v. Van Doren (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1017.

26. Under Rev. St. U. S. § 5242, prohibiting attachment against national banks in state courts—Willard Mfg. Co. v. Geo. H. Tirney & Co., 130 N. C. 611.

27. Sullivan v. Moffat (N. J.) 52 Atl. 291.

28. Attachment in aid of action for money had and received, in which the identical money deposited by plaintiff was attached—Munns v. Donovan Commission Co. (Iowa) 91 N. W. 789.

29. Rev. St. 1898, § 2745—Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.

30. Bowles Live-Stock Commission Co. v. Hunter, 91 Mo. App. 333.

jurisdiction, and the question of comity cannot arise.[31] In Texas, defendant's right to answer with as many defenses as necessary and pertinent to his cause, if filed simultaneously and in due order, will not prevent him from filing a plea in abatement to the writ on the ground of the insolvency of the sureties on the bond after filing a plea to merits; but where defendant's answer, a general denial, was filed nine months after the commencement of the suit, a plea in abatement filed three years and fifteen days later is too late.[32] That sureties on a bond are nonresidents, and that the resident sureties are not worth the amount required, may be raised by plea in abatement.[33] A motion may be made for an order for accounting from the party served in an equitable attachment; but a motion for an account under oath of the shares of stock attached cannot be made before complainants have established their bill, or shown circumstances requiring disclosure.[34] Plaintiff may discontinue the suit where defendant has only appeared specially to move vacation of the service and warrant.[35] The motion to dismiss attachment against a nonresident, to aid which garnishment has issued, on the ground that no property or credits of defendant within the jurisdiction have been seized, cannot lie until the garnishee has answered, though a bond for dissolution has been given.[36] Defendant may move for a discharge of the writ before levy.[37]

On a motion to dismiss for improvident issuance, the questions of existence of action in fact against defendant, or of statutory conditions requisite to the writ, or of the facts upon which such conditions rest, are immaterial.[38] An affidavit traversing the attachment affidavit in all parts except in the statement that plaintiff has reason to believe that defendant was disposing of his property to defraud his creditors is insufficient.[39]

Evidence.[40]—Until the contrary is shown, it will be presumed that the court decided an issue of right to an attachment on the affidavit alone.[41] Where the writ issues for the price of coal furnished as "necessaries," it will be presumed that it was furnished for domestic purposes, unless it appears otherwise.[42] If a corporation, cited to appear and give a certificate of property in its possession belonging to the defendant, refuses to do so, or gives an insufficient certificate, plaintiff may have an examination, but such examination must be limited to property liable to attachment within the jurisdiction.[43] The rights of parties to the property should be determined only by the preponderance of the evidence.[44] The manner of taking evidence on the motion is discretionary, where defendant traverses the affidavit.[45] On a petition to dissolve, defendant may testify that he had no knowledge of any debt owing to plaintiff, as showing absence of fraudulent intent in disposing of his property.[46] An affidavit of nonresidence, by the person from

31. In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906.
See ante, § 14, where the effect of bankruptcy as annulling attachment is treated.

32. Rev. St. art. 1262—Wallace v. First Nat. Bank (Tex.) 65 S. W. 180.

33. Wallace v. First Nat. Bank (Tex.) 65 S. W. 180.

34. Under Gen. Laws, c. 252, § 27—Ladd v. Franklin Loan and Trust Co. (R. I.) 53 Atl. 59.

35. Straus v. Guilhou (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 180.

36. Henry v. Lennox-Haldeman Co. (Ga.) 42 S. E. 383.

37. Sparks v. Bell (Cal.) 70 Pac. 281.

38. Gallun v. Well (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.

39. Reese v. Damato (Fla.) 33 So. 459.

40. Sufficiency of evidence of fraudulent intent—Abel & Bach Co. v. Duffy, 106 La. 260; of evidence as to failure of actual levy on property, so as to prevent running of limitations against the officer making the levy—Hill v. Haas, 46 App. Div. (N. Y.) 360; affirmed, 170 N. Y. 566.

41. The complaint cannot be considered unless verified and attached to the affidavit and referred to therein—Chitty v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 62 S. C. 526.

42. Attachment for claims for necessaries, under Rev. St. Ohio, § 6489—Collins v. Bingham, 22 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 533.

43. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 650, 651—Stine v. Greene, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 221.

44. Bowles Live-Stock Commission Co. v. Hunter, 91 Mo. App. 333.

45. Geo. F. Dittman Boot & Shoe Co. v. Graff (Neb.) 91 N. W. 188.

46. Dimmock v. Cole (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. News, 166; Smith v. Same, Id.; Goodwin v. Same, Id.

whom the information as to nonresidence given in the affidavit of attachment was obtained, attached to the latter affidavit, may be considered on a motion to vacate to show the source of information, though not sufficiently authenticated to be admitted in evidence.[47] On notice of a motion to vacate, both on the attachment papers and the judgment, without any limitation as to the use of the judgment by defendant, it may be used by plaintiff, as well as defendant, to establish any facts recited therein; and where the judgment recited that defendant was a foreign corporation, and showed a claim due from it to plaintiff for breach of contract, which was based on the attachment papers and the judgment, it will be presumed that the recitals of the judgment were sufficiently proved, and it is immaterial that they were not substantiated by the affidavits.[48]

Judgment and decree or order.—A personal decree cannot be had in foreign attachment in chancery.[49] The judgment need not recite that execution shall issue against the property, or that the judgment is in rem, and valid only as against the attached property.[50] Judgment must be entered on the merits, where the parties appear voluntarily and go to trial on the issue of ownership in the original action.[51] A judgment of sale is not prima facie void as including land not owned by the defendant, unless that fact appears from the return of service.[52] A judgment in attachment in aid of assumpsit is entire, and, if void as to one of two defendants, is void as to both.[53] A defendant without title to, but in possession of, real estate attached as that of another, and claiming it as her own, may urge errors in a judgment for its sale.[54] An attachment creditor does not lose his rights by failing to take out execution on his judgment within sixty days after rendition, where he surrendered the property to a receiver prior to judgment, thereby preventing a levy.[55] Finding and judgment for defendant ipso facto discharge the attachment.[56] In vacating an attachment because founded on breach of a contract void under the statute of frauds, the court need not find that plaintiff had expended money on the property under the contract.[57]

On discharge of an attachment, neither party can be ordered to pay the sheriff's bondage by reason of the law providing for payment of legal charges on delivery to defendant by the officer, and defendant cannot be ordered to pay the sheriff's bondage as taxed by him, though the court has authority to tax it.[58] An order by the judge at chambers, discharging an attachment levied by one assuming to act as officer, but not qualified, on plaintiff's release, executed without presence of his counsel, or contest, does not settle the right of plaintiff to seize the property under a subsequent attachment, based on the original affidavit, filed when the action was commenced.[59] Where property is seized without an affidavit of grounds, the seizure may be discharged on motion, but the writ cannot be set aside.[60]

47. Mallon v. Rothschild, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 8.
48. Belmont v. Sigua Iron Co. (Sup.) 80 N. Y. Supp. 771.
49. The proceeding is purely statutory, under Code Miss. §§ 486, 487—Chamberlin-Hunt Academy v. Port Gibson Brick & Mfg. Co., 80 Miss. 517.
50. Kerns v. McAulay (Idaho) 69 Pac. 539.
51. Haines v. Stewart (Neb.) 91 N. W. 539.
52. White v. Ladd, 41 Or. 324, 68 Pac. 739.
53. Britton v. Gregg, 96 Ill. App. 29.
54. Webber v. Tanner (App.) 23 Ky. Law R. 1694; modifying 23 Ky. Law R. 1107.
55. Under Gen. St. Conn. 1887, § 922—Central Trust Co. v. Worcester Cycle Mfg. Co., 114 Fed. 659.
56. Alpirn v. Goodman (Neb.) 91 N. W. 530.
57. Knight v. Hatfield, 129 N. C. 191.
58. Code Civ. Proc. § 709—Treadwell v. John A. Mead Mfg. Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 478.
59. J. V. Brinkman Co. Bank v. Gustin, 63 Kan. 758, 66 Pac. 990.
60. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2731—Gallun v. Weil (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1091.

§ 16. Hostile and opposing claims to attached property.[61]—A mere claim of ownership of attached property will not give the right to intervene to settle the ownership in the attachment suit.[62] An interpleader cannot be maintained after the property is destroyed in the hands of plaintiff.[63] Interposition by a mortgagee who claims the proceeds of the property will not bind the owner by estoppel to prevent assertion of his rights.[64] Where a second attachment following one in the federal court is made subject thereto, one claiming the property under a deed of trust, and receiving the property from the marshal in the first attachment on a forthcoming bond, after selling the property and satisfying his deed, cannot interplead in the second attachment.[65] An attachment procured by collusion of the parties to give preference to plaintiff over other creditors is void against them.[66] After an attachment lien on land, obtained against a debtor, is enforced against his executrix by sale, insolvency of his estate is unnecessary to jurisdiction to clear title as against fraudulent grantees of the debtor.[67] A national bank may intervene in attachment; but intervention does not make it a party, so as to authorize dismissal.[68] A stranger in possession of attached property, who gives a statutory undertaking for redelivery, cannot assert ownership, so as to try the right of property.[69] A judgment creditor who assigned the judgment before its attachment by his creditor cannot bring an action to compel his assignee to interplead to protect his interests, since notice may be given the assignee to appear, which will fully protect the judgment creditor against him.[70] An interpleader is in the nature of replevin, so that the respective interests of the parties may be settled.[71] Interposition of a claim suit admits both the debt claimed by plaintiff and the levy.[72] Where defendants allow judgment to go by default, the only issue between them and plaintiffs is as to damages, so that an intervenor claiming the property has no right to interfere;[73] but intervention filed after sale of the property, and deposit of the proceeds with the clerk under order of court, is in time.[74] An intervenor in a landlord's attachment cannot recover for the use of the property, though he claims ownership.[75]

Pleading.—The provisions of a state statute as to the trial of claims against attached property are binding on the federal courts, so that, where the attachment plaintiff fails to have an issue made up at the term to which the execution is returnable as to the claim against the property, the claimant is entitled to have the property discharged, and be discharged from his forthcoming bond, and his right is not lost by failure to move for discharge during a number of terms of

61. Priorities, see ante, § 14; also see Priorities between Creditors. Bonds to indemnify levying officer, see ante, § 9; also see Bonds, Indemnity.

62. Haines v. Stewart (Neb.) 91 N. W. 539.

63. It involves primarily the right of possession—I. Stadden Grocery Co. v. Lusk, 95 Mo. App. 261.

64. The mortgagee cannot, by his acts, estop the mortgagor as against a wrongdoer—Petty v. Hayden, 115 Iowa, 212.

65. Simmons Hardware Co. v. Loewen, 95 Mo. App. 122.

66. Under Code, § 2156—Butler v. Feeder, 130 Ala. 604.

67. First Nat. Bank v. Tompkins (Neb.) 91 N. W. 551.

68. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Geo. H. Tirney & Co., 130 N. C. 611.

69. Right to trial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 945, 996—Allyn v. Cole (Neb.) 91 N. W. 505.

70. Code, art. 9, § 17, providing for determination of rights to funds attached—Fetterhoff v. Sheridan, 94 Md. 445.

71. Drumm Flato Commission Co. v. Summers, 89 Mo. App. 300; Barnes v. Stanley, 96 Mo. App. 1.

72. Code, § 4141, provides for interposition of claims in attachment—Schloss v. Inman, 129 Ala. 424.

73. Alpine Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452.

74. Code, § 3928—Petty v. Hayden, 115 Iowa, 212.

75. Intervention authorized by Code, § 3594—Ohde v. Hoffman (Iowa) 90 N. W. 750.

court.[76] A claim to property attached as belonging to a firm, which was declared bankrupt within four months after beginning the attachment, must be disposed of on the pleadings, and not on motion.[77] On proceedings by claimant, only the specific property covered by the affidavit and bond can be considered, and the claimant cannot prove that there was no valid levy.[78] The issue on interplea in attachment is the title of the attached property as between defendant and the interpleader.[79] Defects in a notice by a third person that attached property belonged to him are waived by execution of a proper indemnifying bond, and such waiver is sufficiently pleaded by alleging that the officer, in pursuance of the notice, required an indemnifying bond, which was given.[80]

Evidence and questions of fact.[81]—Where a claimant of attached goods withdrew his claim before the jury retired, and sued the officer in conversion, it will be presumed, on motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings, that such suit was commenced prior to the sale in the attachment, there being no evidence on that issue.[82] The burden of proof is on the claimant, and he has the right to open and close;[83] he must establish his title affirmatively.[84] Where the claimant admits that defendant was in possession of goods at time of levy, he has the burden of proof, so as to entitle him to open and close, and must explain the possession of defendant as consistent with his claim of title.[85] Where the interpleader does not question the validity of the attachment and levy, plaintiff need introduce no evidence that he is a creditor of defendant, especially if he allege that the interpleader's title is fraudulent.[86] The inventory attached by the sheriff to the levy may be admitted as evidence,[87] and, on intervention after sale, testimony may be given as to the amount for which the property sold.[88] Complainant cannot introduce a receipted bill for the attached property, dated after the levy; and where the wife of defendant claims personal property attached as her own, evidence that defendant had listed the property with the assessor as his own may be admitted in rebuttal of his testimony that the property belonged to his wife.[89] Evidence that a debtor owning a kiln on the land of another had told the landowner to take the kiln for supplies advanced, and that he had done so, is admissible in favor of the landowner, who claims the land as against an attaching creditor who seized the kiln.[90] The issue for the jury on a claim is whether the property belongs to defendant and is liable to satisfaction of the writ.[91]

Trial.[92]—A separate trial is discretionary where the only issue is that of 76. Code Miss. 1892, §§ 4425-4428—Miller v. Tennant-Stribling Shoe Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 865.

77. New Orleans Acid & Fertilizer Co. v. Grissom, 79 Miss. 662.

78. H. B. Claflin Co. v. Harrison (Fla.) 31 So. 818.

79. Graham Paper Co. v. Crowther, 92 Mo. App. 273.

80. Under Code, §§ 3991-3993, 3906—Donnelly v. Mitchell (Iowa) 93 N. W. 369.

81. Sufficiency of evidence to show the right of claimant in attachment to the property—Brewer v. Gates (Miss.) 31 So. 205; of title of intervenor—Alpine Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452; of value of goods in a suit by a claimant to recover them from attachment against another—Roberts v. Burr, 135 Cal. 156, 67 Pac. 46.

82. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Driver, 40 Or. 333, 67 Pac. 111.

83. H. B. Claflin Co. v. Harrison (Fla.) 31 So. 818; Graham Paper Co. v. Crowther, 92 Mo. App. 273.

84. Alpine Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452.

85. People's Nat. Bank v. Harper, 114 Ga. 603.

86. Graham Paper Co. v. Crowther, 92 Mo. App. 273.

87. Schloss v. Inman, 129 Ala. 424.

88. Ohde v. Hoffman (Iowa) 90 N. W. 750.

89. Arnold v. Cofer (Ala.) 33 So. 539.

90. Code 1892, § 4231, which requires assignments of trusts to be in writing, is not applicable—Brewer v. Gates (Miss.) 31 So. 205.

91. Code, § 4142—Schloss v. Inman, 129 Ala. 424.

92. Sufficiency of instruction as to the possession of personalty as prima facie evidence of title in a case in which the wife of defendant claimed the property as her own, and of an instruction directing the title.[93] Trial of a claim to attached property cannot be held before publication or service after issuance of an ancillary attachment writ.[94] A debt, though incapable of manual delivery, is within the statute authorizing the sheriff to proceed by jury to try title to attached property for the purpose of obtaining a bond.[95] Under the law giving the sheriff power to try the validity of a claim to attached property by a jury, and relinquish the levy if the verdict is for claimant, unless plaintiff gives a sufficient bond, a bond given by the attaching creditor voluntarily on such claim without a jury trial is valid, so as to enable the holding of the property.[96]

Findings and judgment.—The finding need not show general ownership in the claimant, where the taking is admitted by plaintiff, since special ownership is sufficient.[97] Judgment cannot be entered against the claimant and sureties in an indefinite amount, to be afterwards ascertained by the judgment in the principal suit, but may be given against them for the value of the property as fixed by the attaching officer, where the value is not controverted on trial of the claim, nor any finding had thereto.[98] Judgment cannot be rendered against the obligors on the claim bond, but should be made merely condemning the property as subject to the attachment, and liable to satisfaction of the judgment which has been rendered or is to be rendered.[99] Where goods claimed by an intervenor are sold as perishable by order of court, a judgment in favor of the claimant should be for the amount in court, not the value of the goods.[1] Where the recitals of the jury's verdict in a trial of right of property show that the verdict was made pursuant to an agreement between the parties, it will be presumed that the separate assessment of each item, according to the statutory requirement, was made unnecessary by the agreement, and, unless the contrary appears, that the assessment was impracticable.[2]

§ 17. Wrongful attachment.[3]—Where the action to aid which attachment was issued was pending, the owner of property attached cannot maintain an action of contract for its recovery against the officer serving the attachment.[4] That plaintiff gave an indemnity bond to the officer does not show responsibility for, or approval of, a seizure of goods of a third person.[5] Where one who had loaned money to a railroad contractor levied on property of the contractor and the railroad company, when a levy against property of the contractor alone would have stopped construction, he is liable in wrongful attachment for only such damages to the company as are clearly shown.[6] Where it appears that the administrator of an estate received goods uninjured which had been attached as property of the jury to consider the assessment of taxes on the property against defendant in connection with other evidence on the question of title—Arnold v. Cofer (Ala.) 33 So. 539.

93. Alpine Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452.

94. Lamb v. Russel (Miss.) 32 So. 916.

95. Code Civ. Proc. § 651—Minor v. Gurley, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 662.

96. Comp. Laws, §§ 5002, 5125—Matheson v. F. W. Johnson Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1083.

97. Roberts v. Burr, 135 Cal. 156, 67 Pac. 46.

98. Under Rev. St. § 1200, providing that judgment as to adverse claims shall be entered deciding the right of property, and giving plaintiff a right of recovery against the claimant for costs and damages of his intervention—Geiger v. Henry (Fla.) 32 So. 874.

99. Arnold v. Cofer (Ala.) 33 So. 539.

1. Hughes Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Reagan (Ind. Ter.) 69 S. W. 940.

2. Assessment of items required by Code, § 4143—Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Arnold, 133 Ala. 368.

3. Amount of exemplary damages in wrongful attachment, as out of proportion to amount of actual damages—Leonard v. Harkleroad (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 127. Sufficiency of evidence to show that the writ of venditioni exponas grew out of the attachment referred to in the bond sued on—Hamilton v. Maxwell, 133 Ala. 233.

4. Brady v. Royce, 180 Mass. 553.

5. Siersema v. Meyer, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 358.

6. Cameron v. Orleans & J. R. Co., 108 La. 83.

estate, and that, after sale under order of court, the proceeds were paid to the estate, the attachment plaintiff is not liable for wrongful issuance of the writ.[7] The owner of attached goods may sue for wrongful attachment on plaintiff's bond, or independently thereof, and join the surety; and in the latter suit the surety cannot object to jurisdiction because his liability on the bond is less than the limit of jurisdiction, where the owner claims exemplary damages, bringing the amount within the limit.[8] A wrongful attachment cannot be attacked by other creditors on an ordinary creditor's bill.[9]

Pleading and damages.—Where the same amount of actual damages is claimed in an original and an amended petition, a plea to the jurisdiction will not lie on the amended petition after a plea to the merits on the original petition.[10] Plaintiff cannot recover "any damages" resulting from wrongful detention of the property,[11] nor lost profits.[12]

Evidence and questions of fact.—The inventory and appraisement made by the officer on levy is admissible on the value of the goods as against the creditor.[13] Evidence of the amount of plaintiff's business, profits, and credit, and the effect of a wrongful attachment thereon, are admissible; and evidence that news of the attachment was published by a mercantile agency is admissible under an allegation that the attachment injured plaintiff's business and credit, though defendants are not shown to have been directly responsible for publication; and where defendants pleaded a release from plaintiff, evidence thereof should have been admitted, though the complaint showed such excessive levy as to amount to duress.[14] Evidence of a sale of a part of his property by plaintiff, where limited to the issue of probable cause, is properly admitted where the attachment was on the ground of fraudulent disposition of property, and evidence is admissible to show that a deed from plaintiff to his father, was not filed until the day of issuing the writ, though it appeared to have been executed three years before.[15] Evidence of the proceedings in the attachment, and the action in which it was in aid, and of the application of the proceeds of the sale to the judgment obtained, is also admissible to show defendant's good faith. He may also testify as to the value of the goods after qualifying himself.[16] Where it appears that no writ was on file, motions by the attachment plaintiff in the original suit to substitute the writ, and to direct the officer to sell the property, may be admitted to show that the attachment defendant recognized the validity of the levy.[17] A suit against the officer for conversion, tried after sale and after withdrawal of his claim before it was submitted to the jury, the contrary not being shown, will be presumed, on a motion by the officer for judgment on the pleadings, to have been begun before sale.[18] The question of existence of a fraudulent intent is for the jury.[19]

7. Pinkard v. Willis (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 135.
8. Leonard v. Harkleroad (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 127.
9. Meyrovitz v. Glaser (Ala.) 31 So. 360.
10. Thompson v. Rosenstein (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 439.
11. An instruction in such language is too broad—Hayes v. Union Mercantile Co. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 975.
12. Legal interest on the value of the goods may be recovered—Moravec v. Grell, (Sup.) 79 N. Y. Supp. 533.
13. Green v. McCracken, 64 Kan. 330, 67 Pac. 857.
14. Hayes v. Union Mercantile Co. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 975.
15. Cline v. Hackbarth (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 48.
16. Cline v. Hackbarth (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 48.
17. Hamilton v. Maxwell, 133 Ala. 233.
18. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Driver, 40 Or. 333, 67 Pac. 111.
19. Hamilton v. Maxwell, 133 Ala. 233.

CURRENT LAW.

(Copyrighted 1903, by John B. West Company.)

VOLUME I. OCTOBER, 1903. NUMBER 3.

ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELORS.[1]

§ 1. Admission to practice and license taxes.—The right to practice law is not a natural one, and females cannot be admitted except by statutory authority; and a statute not expressly authorizing their admission cannot be so construed, since it is in derogation of the common law, under which they were not eligible;[2] and a law authorizing admission of members of the bar of other states under certain conditions will not authorize their admission, though members of the bar elsewhere.[3] An unmarried woman cannot be admitted in Tennessee to practice in the supreme court.[4] A law permitting admission of attorneys from another state without examination does not change the requirement of another law that they should be citizens of the United States.[5] A judgment rendered in an action in a municipal court in New York, defended by one not a party and not regularly admitted to practice, is void.[6]

In Maryland a purchaser at a foreclosure sale may file exceptions to a resale signed by himself, and not by the solicitor.[7] One who wrongfully procures admission should be disbarred.[8]

A license on the vocation may be imposed on lawyers by a city ordinance under statutory authority,[9] but it cannot now be imposed in California, either for

1. Questions relating to attorneys in fact (Agency), appointment of counsel for persons charged with crime (Criminal Procedure), conduct and argument of counsel in civil cases (Argument of Counsel, Trial), or criminal proceedings (Criminal Procedure), or presence of special counsel before the grand jury (Grand Jury), will be treated under topics indicated.

2. Code Md. art. 10, § 3, as amended by Act 1898, c. 139, and Code Md. art. 1, § 6—In re Maddox, 93 Md. 727.

3. Code Md. art. 10, § 6, as amended by Act 1898—In re Maddox, 93 Md. 727.

4. Ex parte Griffin (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 746.

5. Act 1895 (Wash.) § 6, as affected by Act Feb. 16, 1897 (Laws 1897, p. 12), amending Laws 1895, p. 178—In re Takuji Yamashita (Wash.) 70 Pac. 482.

6. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 63, 64—Kaplan v. Berman, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 502.

7. Under Code Md. art. 16, §§ 126, 166, 186, authorizing appearance of a party for himself in equity in certain cases—Aukam v. Zautzinger, 94 Md. 421.

8. Neff v. Kohler Mfg. Co., 90 Mo. App. 296.

9. So in Virginia (Code, § 1040)—Blanchpurposes of revenue,[10] or as a regulation of business.[11] A municipal license is not required of an attorney whose place of business or residence is not in the municipality, or who does not hold himself out as practicing before its bar.[12] Services which may be performed as well by a layman as a lawyer will not require a license.[13]

§ 2. Privileges, disabilities, exemptions and liabilities; general powers of the vocation.—An attorney who is also a notary may take the affidavit of his client for service by publication.[14] A law requiring an attorney bringing suit for a nonresident to be liable for costs will not apply where the suit is for several plaintiffs, part of whom are nonresidents.[15] An attorney in the United States courts is an officer liable to contempt for misbehavior.[16] Acceptance by an attorney of a trusteeship in bankruptcy is a surrender of his power to represent creditors as an attorney.[17] A statute prohibiting an attorney from acting as surety on an undertaking in a suit or proceeding applies to an injunction bond.[18] Attorneys must refrain from offensive language to court, opposing counsel, or witnesses.[19]

§ 3. Suspension and disbarment.—Disbarment is not punishment, but an exercise of the court's discretion in determining whether the attorney is a proper person; and the power to disbar is distinct from power to punish for contempt, though the same causes may be ground for both.[20] Statutory authority is unnecessary.[21] In North Dakota, the proceedings should begin in the district court unless the offense was committed in the supreme court, or with reference to its proceedings.[22] The supreme court of South Carolina has jurisdiction of disbarment proceedings.[23] The exclusive original jurisdiction of the Louisiana supreme court over professional misconduct does not apply to nonprofessional misconduct.[24] The proceedings are not criminal, and may be brought in the chancery branch of the district court.[25] Disbarment proceedings, and not a motion to vacate an order licensing an attorney, is the proper remedy for fraud and false representations in securing such order.[26]

Grounds.—The courts are not confined to the statutory grounds of disbarment.[27] Charges against an attorney must affect his professional fitness, and not merely his character as a citizen.[28] Misappropriation of a client's money;[29] or ard v. Bristol (Va.) 41 S. E. 948, citing many cases. The Portland, Oregon, council is authorized, under the city charter, to impose a license tax on attorneys practicing in the city, notwithstanding their general license to practice, the city tax being on the occupation (construing Portland City Charter, § 32, subds. 1-4, 33)—Lent v. Portland (Or.) 71 Pac. 645.

10. Act March 23, 1901 (Pol. Code Cal. § 3366), impliedly repealed the power of municipalities to license for other purposes than regulation—City of Sonora v. Curtin, 137 Cal. 583, 70 Pac. 674.

11. Under St. Cal. 1883, p. 93, § 862, subd. 10, empowering municipalities to license "for regulation and revenue"—City of Sonora v. Curtin, 137 Cal. 583, 70 Pac. 674.

12. Evidence merely that he was a lawyer, and practiced in trial of three cases during the month given in the complaint, is insufficient—Ahlrichs v. Cullman, 130 Ala. 674.

13. St. Ky. § 100. Securing reduction of tax claim for another—Dunlap v. Lebus, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1481, 65 S. W. 441.

14. Genest v. Las Vegas Masonic Bldg. Ass'n (N. M.) 67 Pac. 743.

15. Civ. Code Ga. § 5387—Berrie v. Atkinson, 114 Ga. 708.

16. Rev. St. U. S. § 725—Ex parte Davis, 112 Fed. 139.

17. In re Evans, 116 Fed. 909.

18. Dennett v. Reisdorfer, 15 S. D. 466.

19. In re Voss (N. D.) 90 N. W. 15.

20. In re Adriaans, 17 App. D. C. 39.

21. State v. Gebhardt, 87 Mo. App. 542.

22. Rev. Codes N. D. 1899, §§ 434-437—In re Freerks (N. D.) 90 N. W. 265.

23. In re Duncan, 64 S. C. 461.

24. The supreme court has such jurisdiction, by Const. art. 85, and nonprofessional misconduct is in the jurisdiction of the district court, under Act No. 129, 1896—State v. Fourchy, 106 La. 743.

25. Const. Ky. § 137—Commonwealth v. Richie, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1218, 70 S. W. 1054.

26. Neff v. Kohler Mfg. Co., 90 Mo. App. 296.

27. State v. Gebhardt, 87 Mo. App. 542.

28. Neff v. Kohler Mfg. Co., 90 Mo. App. 296.

Ground of disbarment must show either conviction of crime or evidence of its commission or fraud amounting to moral turpitude—In re Cahill, 66 N. J. Law, 527.

29. In re Bearnes (Minn.) 92 N. W. 466; Southworth v. Bearnes (Minn.) Id.

advertisement by an attorney who agrees to obtain divorces in violation of law;[30] or misrepresentation amounting to fraud in collection of debts, whereby he retained more than his proper contingent fee;[31] or fraudulent acts regarding a sale of lands, and acceptance of payment therefor after he had parted with the title;[32] or substantial alteration or destruction of a transcript of testimony by an attorney who afterwards certified its genuineness;[33] or fraudulent use of a judgment by introduction of unauthorized provisions, whereby he obtains money from the county treasury;[34] or retention of a client's money after collection, and continual misrepresentation regarding his collection of claims and payment to the client;[35] or filing a motion in arrest of judgment falsely charging court officers with usurpation of office and improper interest, though the attorney stated he believed them true when made;[36] or obtaining a license on presentation of a license from another state, which he knew had been revoked, especially where his conduct since admission has been immoral and reprehensible;[37] or obtaining admission on an original certificate of admission from another state, which had been revoked, and a certificate of good moral character from a person in that state who did not know of the revocation;[38] or presentation by an attorney from another state, who asks for admission to the bar, of a forged letter of recommendation by a local firm, though the forgery was made by him under the impression that the firm would approve his action,[39]—constitutes sufficient grounds for disbarment. Frequenting a gambling house to play, and willful refusal to prosecute the proprietor, or neglect to prosecute offenders when proofs are furnished him, or to proceed to abate public nuisances under the statute, is such moral turpitude as justifies suspension of a state's attorney from practice.[40] Retention of money may be unprofessional, though not embezzlement.[41] It does not matter that a false statement in a motion did not amount to a technical or indictable crime.[42]

Censurable conduct.—Disbarment is not called for by misconduct previous to admission,[43] or deposit of a client's money as his own, and drawing it for his own use,[44] or a transfer of property inconsistent with a purpose to obtain title for his client,[45] or neglect to notify his client of the collection of money, or to pay it over immediately, there being no fraud or deceit,[46] or advising and assisting his client to disregard and oppose an order for appointment of a receiver pending appeal,[47] though these acts are deserving of censure.

30. People v. Smith, 200 Ill. 442.

31. In re Weed, 26 Mont. 507, 68 Pac. 1115.

32. In re Weed, 26 Mont. 507, 68 Pac. 1115.

33. Withdrawing from the transcript testimony as to talks with one accused of homicide after the crime, and substitution of other statements therefor, was a material alteration—Ex parte St. Rayner (Or.) 70 Pac. 537.

34. Rev. Codes N. D. 1899, § 427, subd. 3, and § 428—In re Freerks (N. D.) 90 N. W. 265, holding that the fact that attorney believed he had a valid claim may be considered by the court in mitigation.

35. People v. Keigan (Colo.) 69 Pac. 524.

36. In re Adriaans, 17 App. D. C. 39.

37. People v. Hahn, 197 Ill. 137.

38. Admission of attorneys from other states under Rev. Codes N. D. 1899, §§ 421, 424—In re Olmstead (N. D.) 91 N. W. 943.

39. Code Civ. Proc. Mont. § 394, and supreme court rule 22, require statutory evidence of good moral character as requisite for admission to the bar on license from a foreign jurisdiction — In re Woodward (Mont.) 71 Pac. 161.

40. Rev. Codes N. D. 1899, §§ 7243, 7620, c. 63. The violation of oath and refusal to obey the statute is a misdemeanor—In re Voss (N. D.) 90 N. W. 15.

41. The attorney kept the client's funds provided to bring suit on false representation that he had done so, even after she learned the truth, and intrusted the case to another attorney—People v. Mead, 29 Colo. 344, 68 Pac. 241.

42. The only question to be considered is the personal fitness of the attorney to be a member of the bar—In re Adriaans, 17 App. D. C. 39.

43. State v. Gebhardt, 87 Mo. App. 542.

44. In re Duncan, 64 S. C. 461.

45. Code Civ. Proc. Mont. § 402, providing for disbarment for felony, etc., construed with Comp. St. 1887, div. 4, § 200, making fraudulent transfer of property a felony—In re Weed, 26 Mont. 241, 67 Pac. 308.

46. In re Veeder (N. M.) 66 Pac. 545.

47. Coffin v. Burstein, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 22.

Defense or excuse.—The attorney cannot prevent disbarment by an offer to restore money converted by him.[48] The question of privilege cannot be urged to excuse falsifications in motions.[49] An attorney who appeared in his own defense in disbarment proceedings in which his license was revoked cannot plead ignorance of such revocation in subsequent disbarment proceedings against him in another state for procuring a license by means of the former revoked license.[50]

Proceedings in general.—Disbarment proceedings are not barred as ex delicto actions,[51] and are not affected by bar of criminal prosecution for the same offense.[52] In Louisiana a change in statutory procedure cannot retroact.[53]

The proceedings are most properly begun by a majority of the bar,[54] and should be entitled in the matter of the accused, and not as the state against him.[55] The mailing of an affidavit, charging misconduct of an attorney, to a judge in vacation, will authorize him, on sitting as a court, to direct proceedings and appoint attorneys to prosecute.[56]

The information must be certain and definite.[57] A petition on the ground of a statutory crime must allege specifically the facts constituting such crime.[58] It must ordinarily be verified by the oath of some person not upon mere information and belief,[59] unless verification is excused for good cause.[60] Neither petition nor information need be verified where instituted by the state bar association to the supreme court, and thereon information is prepared by the attorney general.[61]

Evidence.[62]—In a proceeding on the ground of retention of a client's money, a demand for the money must be shown, unless false representations of the attorney have led the client to believe that no moneys have been collected.[63] In proceedings to disbar an attorney admitted on license from another state, a copy of disbarment proceedings in the other state, showing a judgment finding him guilty of moral turpitude, is sufficient to show want of good moral character.[64]

Suspension pending trial.—If he is accused of crime as ground of disbarment, he can only be suspended until the facts are ascertained as required by the statute.[65]

Hearing and trial.—The attorney accused is not entitled to be present at the hearing of the charges against him by a commission created by the supreme court.[66] The evidence may be heard by referee and report made to the court.[67] The attorney's witnesses may be examined in open court.[68]

Decision and judgment; disbarment, reprimand or suspensions.—A proceeding

48. In re Z——, 89 Mo. App. 426.
49. In re Adriaans, 17 App. D. C. 39.
50. People v. Hahn, 197 Ill. 137.
51. The proceedings lie on a violation of the attorney's obligation under his license, and do not constitute an action ex delicto—State v. Fourchy, 106 La. 743.
52. In re Weed, 26 Mont. 507, 68 Pac. 1115.
53. State v. Fourchy, 106 La. 743.
54. In re Duncan, 64 S. C. 461.
55. The proceeding is in the nature of a rule to show cause why his name should not be stricken from the rolls—Hyatt v. Hamilton County (Iowa) 90 N. W. 508.
56. In the name of the state (Code, § 325)—State v. Tracy, 115 Iowa, 71.
57. Merely charging that money accounts were placed with the attorney, and that he appropriated the collection, is insufficient—State v. Gebhardt, 87 Mo. App. 542.
58. Code Civ. Proc. Mont. § 402, providing grounds for disbarment. Fraudulent transfer of property constituting a felony, under Comp. St. Mont. 1887, div. 4, § 200, in which the word "or" should be read "if"—In re Weed, 26 Mont. 241, 67 Pac. 308.
59. Code Civ. Proc. § 420—In re Weed, 26 Mont. 241, 67 Pac. 308.
60. State v. Gebhardt, 87 Mo. App. 542.
61. People v. Mead, 29 Colo. 344, 68 Pac. 241.
62. Sufficiency of evidence in disbarment—In re Bearnes (Minn.) 92 N. W. 466; Southworth v. Bearnes (Minn.) Id. Of fraudulent deception as ground for disbarment—State v. Fourchy, 106 La. 743. Of tampering with records—Ex parte St. Rayner (Or.) 70 Pac. 537.
63. Repeated calls by the client, which were understood, constitute sufficient demand—People v. Keigan (Colo.) 69 Pac. 524.
64. People v. Miller, 195 Ill. 621.
65. Rev. St. Mo. 1899, §§ 4929, 4930—State v. Gebhardt, 87 Mo. App. 542.
66. State v. Fourchy, 106 La. 743.
67. People v. Mead, 29 Colo. 344, 68 Pac. 241.
68. In re Duncan, 64 S. C. 461.

on the ground of conversion of a client's money cannot be dismissed, though instituted merely to coerce payment by the attorney.[69] An attorney should not always be disbarred, though he may be liable to censure.[70] Improper retention of money belonging to his client, by an attorney who employs subterfuge to prevent payment and proceedings against him, will warrant suspension for six months.[71] Collusion of parties to effect a dissolution of marriage with knowledge of their attorney is not cause for disbarment, though ground for temporary suspension.[72] In Iowa, where the attorney is found not guilty, a judgment for costs, and that he should be reprimanded, cannot be rendered on dismissal.[73] An order of disbarment or suspension, made without application and notice to the attorney, may be reviewed on writ of review (certiorari).[74] A disbarment judgment for contempt is not conclusive against the attorney in subsequent proceedings based upon the same charges, which included professional misconduct, since the two are distinct offenses.[75]

Reinstatement.—A court with power to suspend or disbar an attorney may reinstate him on proper proof that he has become a proper person. Where a report of a committee on a motion for reinstatement shows that the applicant has regretted his past misconduct, and has no financial entanglements connected with such acts, he may be restored to practice, but proof of subsequent good character must be sufficient to overcome the judgment of disbarment.[76] An attorney disbarred for larceny while drunk may be reinstated on proper showing of reform. His application for reinstatement must be under oath, must set forth the facts concerning the disbarment proceedings, the causes for reinstatement, and comply with rules for first admission of attorneys.[77] He will not be reinstated on petition of others, but must appear in person or by his own petition.[78]

§ 4. Creation and nature, termination and change of the relation.—A warrant of attorney is an instrument authorizing an attorney to appear for the maker or to confess judgment against him.[79] An agreement between an attorney and another, whereby the attorney was to procure the services of another attorney to prosecute certain claims, does not create the relation of attorney and client between the two attorneys, so as to enable the first to recover a contingent fee from the second in summary proceedings; nor does the fact that the first attorney had formerly performed work under an original retainer to prosecute the same suits raise the relation of attorney and client.[80] It will not be presumed that a husband has authority to employ an attorney for his wife from their relations, and because he made a contract for her separate estate,[81] nor because he was executor of a will under which she was legatee and trustee.[82] A contract authorizing an attorney to bring an action for a husband for personal injuries to his wife will not authorize the attorney to proceed in behalf of the wife.[83] Where three attorneys are employed by several defendants, testimony of one attorney that one defendant had

69. In re Z——, 89 Mo. App. 426.
70. State v. Fourchy, 106 La. 743.
71. Rev. St. Mo. 1899, §§ 4924, 4930, 4931—In re Z——, 89 Mo. App. 426.
72. In re Cahill, 66 N. J. Law, 527.
73. Code, §§ 323, 324. A judgment in such terms is appealable—State v. Tracy, 115 Iowa, 71.
74. McNamee v. Steele (Idaho) 69 Pac. 319; Goode v. Steele (Idaho) Id.
75. The contempt consisted in procuring approval of a worthless appeal bond by a false affidavit—People v. O'Brien, 196 Ill. 250.
76. In re Simpson (N. D.) 93 N. W. 918.
77. In re Newton (Mont.) 70 Pac. 510.
78. In re Wellcome, 25 Mont. 131, 69 Pac. 836.
79. Treat v. Tolman (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 892; Cyc. Law Dict. "Warrant of Attorney."
80. In re Hirshbach, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 79.
81. Cushman v. Masterson (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1031.
82. Sowles v. Hall, 73 Vt. 55.
83. Whitesell v. New Jersey Ferry Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 82.

not employed him is insufficient alone to establish that the other attorneys had no authority to appear for such defendant.[84]

Discharge and substitution.—A party may discharge his attorney or solicitor, and the latter has no further authority in the cause,[85] and notice thereof may be given by bringing an action to restrain the attorney from collecting a judgment obtained;[86] but parties dealing with the attorney are not affected by the discharge without notice.[87] After judgment, the attorney of record may be treated by the adversary as still in that relation, in absence of notice of change.[88] A client who allows an attorney to continue to act for him thereby withdraws notice of discharge.[89] An attorney who notifies his client that he will not proceed further, after verdict obtained is reversed on appeal, discharges himself, and cannot object.[90] A mother's retainer of an attorney to sue for injuries to her child does not bind her when, as guardian, she employs a different attorney to sue.[91]

A change of attorneys may be made at any time by securing the fees of those who have acted.[92] That an attorney had advanced expenses of an action brought on a contingent fee, and his client was unable to repay them, will not prevent substitution of another attorney by order of court on proper application and notice.[93] On dissolution of partnership of attorneys, one of them may be substituted for the firm on his client's consent if no lien of the firm at date of substitution is prejudiced.[94]

Mere delivery of a referee's report may be made by a new attorney without a substitution.[95]

Only reasonable notice of a motion for change of attorneys is necessary, no special mode being required.[96] On motion for substitution the court must consider a contract between the client and attorney for compensation on quantum meruit, where the client had authority to make the contract.[97] Where a second motion charges bad faith and alleges full payment for services, the question of bad faith already considered on the first motion need not be reconsidered.[98] When the matter of compensation will be within control of the court, apportionment of it may be reserved in the order of substitution until final determination of the case.[99]

§ 5. Rights, duties, and liabilities between attorney and client generally; loyalty and good faith.—The attorney for two parties cannot serve notice on one

84. Patterson v. Yancey (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 845.
A reference may be had on the question of employment, where evidence is conflicting—In re Hammann, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 417.

85. Lynch v. Lynch, 99 Ill. App. 454.

86. O'Neal v. Spalding, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1729, 66 S. W. 11.

87. Milliken v. McBroom, 38 Mo. 342. The rule applies to the attorney of record, even after judgment—Belle City Mfg. Co. v. Kemp, 27 Wash. 111, 67 Pac. 580.

88. Belle City Mfg. Co. v. Kemp, 27 Wash. 111, 67 Pac. 580.

89. Steinson v. Board of Education, 78 N. Y. Supp. 703.

90. Fargo v. Paul, 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 568.

91. Bryant v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 542.

92. If the attorneys have been guilty of misconduct, security is unnecessary—O'Sullivan v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 268.

93. Substitution in ejectment suit where the attorney had no interest in the land under Code Civ. Proc. § 284—Gage v. Atwater, 136 Cal. 170, 68 Pac. 581.

94. Schneible v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 522.

95. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 65, requiring thirty days' notice, and § 1019, requiring a referee's report to be filed within sixty days after submission—Agricultural Ins. Co. v. Darrow, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 413.

96. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 4769—Schultheis v. Nash, 27 Wash. 250, 67 Pac. 707.

97. Authority of client to ask for substitution under 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. §§ 4769, 6402, 6405—Schultheis v. Nash, 27 Wash. 250, 67 Pac. 707.

98. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 4769. The guardian moved for a change for bad faith, and, this failing, moved secondly for bad faith, and alleged full payment for services according to the statute—Schultheis v. Nash, 27 Wash. 250, 67 Pac. 707.

99. Bryant v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 542.

on behalf of another.[1] The burden is on the attorney to show that his client was not prejudiced by adverse dealings, and that no information was withheld which he should have known.[2] Profits realized by an attorney in dealing with the assets of an estate may be recovered by the heirs, though he was not guilty of fraud. He may retain profits made by the purchase of stock from an administrator in regard to which he did not represent the estate.[3] An attorney may represent a bankrupt, and also serve the trustee in bankruptcy (collecting debts) if no adverse interests clash; hence fees paid cannot be recovered.[4] It is not fraud for the attorney of an administrator to bring suit for another to enforce specific performance of a contract by the decedent to will his estate to the plaintiff, where the suit affects only the residue after administration.[5] Where an attorney has reduced a claim sent to him to judgment, he may assert against the clients a prior mortgage from the debtor, though he did not notify his clients of the existence of such mortgage, where the failure to give them notice did not prejudice them.[6] Attorneys who prosecuted an action for an infant for a contingent fee were liable for fraud of their clerk in negotiating a settlement, whereby more money was retained from the amount paid than the agreed fee, though they acted honestly, and attempted to discharge their liability by refunding the excess to the clerk.[7] A failure to pay over money on demand which an attorney had collected for a client and deposited to his own credit is breach of contract and not conversion.[8]

Diligence.—An attorney is liable for lack of such skill and diligence as is commonly possessed and exercised by members of the profession, but not for mere mistake of judgment as to the law, if he employed ordinary care in learning the facts, and a bond for faithfulness does not extend this.[9] He is put on inquiry as to all proceedings had in respect to the matter of his engagement, which he has a right and opportunity to know, regardless of a practice not to give out information, and of the contributing negligence of one of several injured clients.[10]

Damages for negligence.—In an action for negligence of attorneys in failing to appear in another action, evidence of the amount involved in the later action, or of the costs paid, cannot be given on the question of damages.[11] The proportion which would have been a contingent fee will be deducted in assessing what might have been recovered but for negligence.[12]

Evidence of negligence.—A client suing an attorney for failure to bring an action must prove that a cause of action existed, and the negligence of the attorney.[13] On the question of negligent omission to proceed, it is relevant that like proceedings were successful.[14]

Dealings between attorney and client.—Though such dealings are regarded with suspicion, and will not stand against the prejudice of his client, the attorney may contract with his client or the adverse party concerning the subject-matter

1. Bennett v. Weed, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 290.
An adverse dealing to one client's interests on behalf of another may be repudiated on returning what was received—Hare v. De Young, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 366.
2. Vanasse v. Reid, 111 Wis. 303.
3. Beale v. Barnett, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1118, 64 S. W. 838.
4. Keyes v. McKerrow, 180 Mass. 261.
5. McCabe v. Healy (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1008.
6. State v. Fidelity & Deposit Co., 94 Mo. App. 184.
7. In re McGuinness, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 606.
8. Jackson v. Moore, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 217.
9. Bonding him to faithfully act—Humboldt Bldg. Ass'n v. Ducker, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1073, 64 S. W. 671.
10. Attorneys for importers protesting against imposition of customs must take notice of appraiser's adverse decision in time to act—Childs v. Comstock, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 160.
11. Cornelissen v. Ort, 9 Detroit Leg. News, 604.
12. Childs v. Comstock, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 160.
13. Keith v. Marcus, 181 Mass. 377. Sufficiency of evidence considered—Eberhardt v Harkless, 115 Fed. 816.
14. Childs v. Comstock, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 160.

of his employment.[15] An assignment of claims to an attorney will be set aside where he secured them by fraud.[16] Purchase of a judgment he has secured is presumptively void, and the attorney must show good faith and sufficient consideration.[17] A conveyance by client to attorney, fairly conducted on full consideration and without undue influence, is valid,[18] and, if made in settlement of fees and loans made by the attorney, is not presumptively fraudulent.[19] A settlement for services between an attorney and client is not void where the client fully understood the transaction, and was under no disability.[20] An attorney cannot sue a client on a bond which accompanied a mortgage held by the attorney on lands conveyed by the client, where the attorney had promised to release him in the deed and hold the grantee liable, and the client assumed and paid a mortgage on lands received in exchange.[21]

Accounting to client.—Attorneys must account for the moneys of clients in their hands, except a reasonable sum for fees and expenses.[22] One who acts as attorney, agent, and lender of money to an inexperienced woman and her minor children must keep an intelligent account of the transaction, and can acquire no advantage from failure to account.[23]

An account rendered of money received by an attorney on a decree will not bind the client where it is incorrect and unexplained.[24]

§ 6. Remedies between the parties.[25]—One client cannot sue an attorney to recover his share of joint moneys collected by the attorney for several.[26] An assignment of choses in action to an attorney creates him a trustee for his client, so that a demand before suit to recover the property is unnecessary.[27] Breach of a nonprofessional employment will be redressed by action.[28]

Pleading.—That failure of an attorney to perform certain acts was due to an honest mistake in judgment is pleadable as a matter of defense, and not by demurrer to a petition alleging that he might have known of the existence of the facts by the exercise of ordinary care.[29]

Summary proceedings or motions.—The court has summary power to compel the attorney to pay into court or to the client a fund received in settlement, though the settlement was made in another state.[30] After the client takes the attorney's note for the amount, they are debtor and creditor so that payment cannot be enforced by summary proceedings;[31] and they will lie to compel an attorney to pay disputed disbursements to assisting counsel employed on a contingent fee, when the attorney has fully accounted to both the client and the counsel.[32] Where an attorney was employed on a contingent fee, and there was a dispute as to whether it was agreed that associate counsel should be paid from proceeds of the suit before division, the attorney was not guilty of illegal conduct in so paying the asso-

15. Vanasse v. Reid, 111 Wis. 303.
16. Brooks v. Pratt (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 725; Same v. Gray, Id.
17. Stubinger v. Frey (Ga.) 42 S. E. 713.
18. Tippett v. Brooks (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 512.
19. Lindt v. Linder (Iowa) 90 N. W. 596.
20. Kidd v. Williams, 132 Ala. 140.
21. Aiken v. Van Wert, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 379.
22. In re Keen, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 374.
23. Brigham v. Newton, 106 La. 280.
24. In re Bolles, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 180.
25. Suit to compel attorney to pay over money received for client—In re Martin, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 505.
26. Jackson v. Moore, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 217.
27. Metz v. Abney, 64 S. C. 254.
28. In re Hammann, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 417.
29. Suit against attorney employed to examine titles for failure to report existence of liens—Humboldt Bldg. Ass'n v. Ducker, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1073, 64 S. W. 671.
Complaint held sufficient to sue attorney for negligence in advising guardian as to a loan of ward's money—Gardner v. Wood, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 93.
30. Compensation may be determined—Lynde v. Lynde (N. J. Ch.) 50 Atl. 659.
31. In re Neville, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 102.
32. In re Dailey, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 523.

ciate counsel; hence the remedy at law should be pursued.[33] A motion to compel an attorney to pay over moneys improperly retained is entertained and allowed at the court's discretion,[34] though he was not guilty of bad faith in withholding it.[35] The security provided by statute as a condition precedent to compelling an attorney to account for moneys in his hands is not necessary before proceeding by motion to compel him to pay over the money.[36] It is properly heard in the county where judgment is rendered. The court may adjust any set-off or lien which the attorney may have on the money; and where, on such motion, a claim of set-off by the attorney was heard and fraudulently allowed, the allowance amounts to a verdict. Ex parte affidavits cannot be admitted on the motion.[37] A motion by attorneys, against whom a petition to compel payment of moneys retained has been filed, to remit the petitioner to an action or legal proceeding in order that they might plead a counterclaim, cannot be denied on the theory that there is no request to remit petitioner to an action at law.[38] Where the client applies for an order directing his attorney to pay over a judgment collected, and the attorney submitted his rights in the fund to the court for determination, he cannot object that a reference should have been had to determine his fees.[39]

Equity will entertain a bill by a client setting up fraud against his attorney in retaining more than the amount of his proper fees, and asking that he be compelled to account as trustee;[40] but an accounting in equity cannot be had to compel an attorney to pay over money collected on a claim.[41] A bill may be brought in equity to investigate fraudulent transactions between attorney and client and declare them void, and equity will always, at the instance of a client, treat such transactions as constructively fraudulent, unless the attorney, upon whom the burden of proof lies, shows their fairness and equity.[42] An injunction may issue to restrain an attorney from collecting a judgment, though he had a lien thereon for fees which he might have obtained by proper action.[43]

Criminal proceedings.—If he retains the money pending an agreement as to his compensation, he is not liable under a law providing a fine for refusal to turn over such money, less his proper fees.[44]

§ 7. Compensation and lien; compensation.—A husband's unauthorized retainer to sue for his wife is not sufficient.[45] An agreement for a percentage of the demands to be defeated is a contract of employment, under which the attorney must perform in a reasonable time to bind his clients.[46] While an attorney cannot hire an associate without consent, he may recover for full services performed, though he had an assistant under his employment, and is to divide fees.[47]

Public services, or those pertaining to the office of attorney, are not paid; hence an attorney cannot recover from the county for representing the public disbarment proceedings.[48]

Services not specified in contract.—An attorney employed for a certain pur-

33. Lynde v. Lynde (N. J. Ch.) 50 Atl. 659.
34. Keeney v. Tredwell, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 521.
35. Code Iowa, §§ 3826-3830—Union Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Soderquist, 115 Iowa, 695.
36. Code Iowa, § 331—Union Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Soderquist, 115 Iowa, 695.
37. Union Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Soderquist, 115 Iowa, 695.
38. In re Pollock, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 499.
39. In re Borkstrom, 168 N. Y. 639.
40. Maloney v. Terry, 70 Ark. 189.
41. Pfau v. Fullenwider, 102 Ill. App. 499.
42. Robinson v. Sharp, 201 Ill. 86.
43. O'Neal v. Spalding, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1729, 66 S. W. 11.
44. Hamel v. People, 97 Ill. App. 527.
45. Evidence held insufficient to show that husband's act was binding on wife—Whitesell v. New Jersey Ferry Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 82.
46. Wheeler v. Harrison, 94 Md. 147.
47. Kingsbury v. Joseph, 94 Mo. App. 298.
48. Code Iowa, §§ 323-329. Section 325 nowhere provides that the county shall pay fees to such attorney—Hyatt v. Hamilton County (Iowa) 90 N. W. 508.

pose may recover for all services required to that end;[49] but he cannot recover for unless labor performed through negligence or inexperience, nor for services in an action where the statute demands special evidence, if he has failed first to ascertain its existence.[50] Recovery cannot be had for services for which the attorney was not employed, and which were done without his client's knowledge or consent;[51] or for services of assistant counsel, employed without authority.[52] An agreement to prosecute a particular suit will not bind the attorney to defend a motion to vacate the judgment obtained.[53]

Implied contract.—A client who knew an attorney was rendering services for him, and did not dissent, is liable on an implied contract for fees; the result of a case in which he was employed, or the conditions of a distinct contract for other services, cannot affect the implied contract.[54] On an unauthorized statement to him that he was to appear, an attorney cannot do so and recover from a party who had no litigable interest in the suit.[55] Employment of one attorney by another to assist in a case raises an implied contract by the client to pay the second attorney's fees;[56] but the client's knowledge that assistant counsel were employed and were acting will not bind him where he believed that his attorneys were responsible for the fees.[57] An attorney who employs local counsel to conduct a suit in another county may charge the fees as expenses to the extent he would have expended had he gone in person.[58] A written contract between an attorney and client for compensation in certain litigation cannot affect the right to compensation of another attorney employed by the first attorney, with consent of his client, to conduct the argument on appeal, where the contract was unknown to the second attorney, and no arrangement was made concerning compensation.[59] Where an attorney employed to assist another in a suit is ignorant of an agreement that the first attorney should pay his fees, such agreement cannot be shown in an action against the client for such fees.[60]

Employment of several attorneys or by several clients.—Several employment of more than one attorney in the same cause entitles each to recover value of his own services.[61] Where it is shown that attorneys fully performed certain labors for several clients, and were prepared to defend all their rights, they may recover for fees on the contract, though no particular services were rendered as to one of the clients.[62]

Contingent fees and payment in property recovered.[63]—A contingent fee contract, not champertous, is valid where the costs are paid by the client, and binding between the parties as to the proportion of the amount recovered agreed to be paid;[64] but the contract must not offend public policy by stipulating against a

49. Investigation of title to lands in a foreign state—Brownrigg v. Massengale (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 1103.

50. Leo v. Leyser, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 549.

51. Preparation and filing of brief—Duckwall v. Williams (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 232.

52. Dillon v. Watson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 156.

53. Foreclosure of mechanic's lien—Cranmer v. Brothers, 15 S. D. 234.

54. Davis v. Walker, 131 Ala. 204.

55. Appearing for casualty company insuring railroad company against injuries to employes in suit by indemnity company, insuring an employe as to injuries, against the railroad company—Lillis v. Pennsylvania Casualty Co., 9 Detroit Leg. News, 315, 91 N. W. 165.

56. The first attorney was the agent of his client in the employment—Miller v. Ballerino, 135 Cal. 566, 67 Pac. 1046, 68 Pac. 600.

57. McCarthy v. Crump (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 343.

58. Dillon v. Watson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 156.

59. Allen v. Parrish (Kan.) 70 Pac. 351.

60. Miller v. Ballerino, 135 Cal. 566, 67 Pac. 1046, 68 Pac. 600.

61. MacDonald v. Tittmann (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 502.

62. Wheeler v. Harrison, 94 Md. 147.

63. As to the rights of champertous contractors, consult Champerty and Maintenance.

64. This under the Pennsylvania law and the federal law—Muller v. Kelly, 116 Fed. 545.

Suing in forma pauperis does not show that attorney acts for contingent fee, and is partner in suit—Allison v. Southern R. Co., 129 N. C. 336.

settlement,[65] nor provide for an overreaching excessive portion.[66] Suit on a life policy may be so undertaken.[67]

A contract that attorney's fee shall be collected from proceeds of an insurance policy assigned to the client to secure notes containing a clause for fees is an equitable assignment pro tanto of the proceeds of the policy.[68]

Computing and assessing amount.—A fixed fee is not reduced because less labor was required than had been anticipated.[69]

In the absence of contract, the measure of fees is the reasonable value of the services,[70] to be determined by the usual charges for the same or similar services for competent persons, or reasonable compensation under the facts of the particular case, where no usual charge is established.[71] Professional standing of an attorney, his reputation in a special line, and the importance of his services, measured by the amount involved, the time taken, and the result, together with the conditions connected with the subject-matter, may be considered in determining his fees.[72] That he has been unsuccessful in his efforts will also be considered.[73] Where the contingent fee is based on an "award" for taking land made long after title was taken, it includes interest on the award.[74] An agreement to institute a suit for recovery of money for half of the amount recovered is proper if not induced by fraud, or if the fee is not so excessive as to show improper advantage.[75] A five hundred dollar fee certain, and one thousand dollars additional in case of success, is reasonable in collection of a claim, by suit, for nearly twenty thousand dollars.[76] The amount of property saved by the efforts of the attorney for his client should be considered in assessing fees on a contingent basis,[77] but the fees cannot exceed the agreed proportion of the amount actually received by the client from the judgment.[78]

Where an attorney, employed by an estate, improperly induced the heirs to enter a contract for collection of an insurance policy on the life of deceased at a large contingent fee, he was entitled to recover only reasonable compensation.[79]

Allowances by court.—In New York a judgment for costs only when collected on execution should be paid to the attorney to whom the costs belong, and not to his successful client.[80] An attorney commencing suit without authority cannot have costs.[81] A contract giving an attorney part of alimony recovered for his client, as fees, is void,[82] and none of it should be diverted to expenses if there is an allowance for that.[83]

Loss or forfeiture of compensation.—Fraud of the attorney,[84] and withdrawal

65. Davis v. Chase (Ind.) 64 N. E. 88.

66. Robinson v. Sharp, 201 Ill. 86. Half held proper—In re Fitzsimons, 174 N. Y. 15.

67. Robinson v. Sharp, 201 Ill. 86.

68. Blakey v. New York Life Ins. Co., 28 Ind. App. 428.

Construction of contract for conveyance of part of land recovered as attorney's compensation—Adams v. Hopkins (Cal.) 69 Pac. 228.

69. Employment by devisee to prevent sale of property by executors—Browder v. Long, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2068, 66 S. W. 600.

70. Kingsbury v. Joseph, 94 Mo. App. 298.

71. Bingham v. Spruill, 97 Ill. App. 374.

72. Schlesinger v. Dunne, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 529.

73. Germania Safety Vault & Trust Co. v. Hargis, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 874, 64 S. W. 516; Randall v. Packard, 142 N. Y. 47.

74. Bassford v. Johnson, 172 N. Y. 488, modifying order in Re Bassford, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 617.

75. In re Fitzsimons, 174 N. Y. 15.

76. Fox v. Willis, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1773.

77. Employment to recover realty and to clear titles for contingent fee, based upon the value of the land under which the same was recovered for timber cut from the land by trespassers—Bowser v. Patrick, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1578, 65 S. W. 824.

78. Leslie v. York, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2076, 66 S. W. 751.

79. Robinson v. Sharp, 201 Ill. 86.

80. Adams v. Niagara Cycle Fittings Co., 10 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 401.

81. Whitesell v. New Jersey Ferry Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 82.

82. The rights under a decree for alimony are not assignable or capable of anticipation—Lynde v. Lynde (N. J. Err. & App.) 52 Atl. 694.

83. In re Bolles, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 180.

84. Claimed as set-off in action for the fraud—Harding v. Helmer, 193 Ill. 109.

without cause of an attorney employed generally,[85] will forfeit compensation; but his acting for the other party with his client's consent will not affect the right.[86] The contract for fees must not be unreasonable in amount.[87]

Frustration of performance.—Discharge for good cause will prevent recovery of compensation.[88] If the employment is without time, and the attorney is discharged without fault before complete performance, he may recover for services rendered.[89] Mere authority to bring a suit, being revocable by the client, entitles the attorney only to compensation for services performed before revocation.[90] An attorney discharged without cause while the litigation for which he was employed is still pending may recover for loss of compensation at once.[91] Abandonment of his enterprise by the client before services are rendered will not prevent recovery of a retainer by the attorney;[92] but an attorney engaged to assist in a trial can only recover the reasonable value of his services, where a compromise was made on the eve of the trial, though his services were to be gratuitous in case suit was unsuccessful.[93] Where the other party, on compromise and demurrer, agrees to pay an attorney, he is liable for reasonable fee under the attorney's contract, less a reasonable rate thereof as represented by the part of the attorney's duties still unperformed.[94] Payment by defendant of a certain sum without admitting plaintiff's cl . but merely to stop suit and annoyance, is not a settlement or recovery within an agreement by plaintiff to pay his attorney a certain fee on "settlement or recovery."[95]

Lien.—A law giving an attorney's lien cannot be applied retroactively to affect contracts containing no provision therefor.[96] An attorney acting before a county board sitting judicially appears in legal "proceedings," and has a lien for fees without filing a claim or giving notice as against the claimant represented.[97] An attorney who drew a will cannot retain possession of it until his fees for that and other services are paid, and may be compelled to produce the instrument.[98]

As a general rule there is no lien on the subject-matter of litigation; hence where, in a suit for divorce and alimony, and to set aside a fraudulent conveyance by the husband and wife to others, the husband defaulted, and, before the question of alimony was submitted, the wife dismissed her case, her attorneys had no lien.[99] The husband's attorney in divorce proceedings has no lien on money decreed to be paid by the wife in consideration of a transfer of his interest in their joint property, where the husband failed to comply with conditions giving him a like right to conveyance from her.[1]

The lien exists only for services concerning the particular fund on which it is sought,[2] and does not attach to funds which the attorney did not assist in creat-

85. Cahill v. Baird (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1061.
86. Brodie v. Parsons, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 831. See Strong v. Investment Union, 183 Ill. 97.
87. A fee of one-half the amount recovered in compelling an administratrix to account regarding a large estate, in which all the parties are interested, is excessive, and cannot be enforced—In re Fitzsimons, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 345.
88. Cahill v. Baird (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1061.
89. Union Surety & Guaranty Co. v. Tenney, 102 Ill. App. 95; judgment affirmed 200 Ill. 349.
90. Whitesell v. New Jersey Ferry Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 82.
91. Well v. Finneran, 70 Ark. 509.
92. Union Surety & Guaranty Co. v. Tenney, 200 Ill. 349.
93. Action of quantum merult against the attorneys by whom he was employed to recover fees—O'Neill v. Crane, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 358.
94. Bowser v. Patrick, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1578.
95. Randel v. Vanderbilt, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 313.
96. Kendall v. Fader, 99 Ill. App. 104; judgment affirmed 199 Ill. 294.
97. Maloney v. Douglas County (Neb.) 89 N. W. 248.
98. In re Bracher (N. J. Prerog.) 51 Atl. 63.
99. Code Iowa, § 321—Keehn v. Keehn, 115 Iowa, 467, citing many cases with full discussion.
1. Canney v. Canney (Mich.) 91 N. W. 620.
2. Aber's Petition, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 110.

ing, or of which he never had custody;[3] nor will it exist as against a fund in court which is consumed by a lien prior to the one which the attorney has enforced;[4] nor can a special lien be claimed on a fund recovered under a right adverse to that of the party represented by the attorney.[5] Funds of an estate in bank, and checks drawn before letters issued, are not subject to a lien for services respecting only the executor's share, and rendered before his appointment, which was made to avert a contest, and prejudiced some of the legatees.[6]

It exists to secure expenses as against a judgment,[7] or the amount of recovery for a minor,[8] or funds in the hands of the other party, where procured by proper notice before payment,[9] but not against a garnishment fund in favor of the attorney of the garnishment defendant,[10] nor on a fund resulting from settlement, after the plaintiff's death, of a suit for personal injuries,[11] nor on property for defending successfully a suit for its recovery,[12] nor on a homestead for services in a suit to recover it,[13] nor for representation of a defendant, where no counterclaim is alleged,[14] nor where such defendant claims no affirmative relief, but the attorney may be protected against fraudulent and collusive settlement.[15]

Attorney's fees cannot be made a lien on a homestead, though stipulated in a mortgage for improvements,[16] or in a contract giving a mechanic's and materialman's lien;[17] but in Louisiana fees for services in selling property of an insolvent are prior to the privilege of the vendor or lessor.[18] Fees in a foreclosure suit, in which the decree provides for payment, form part of the judgment, and, if not paid, go to the mortgagee in trust for the attorney; and the lien therefor may be enforced against property bought in the name of another, who purchased the decree from the mortgagee.[19] Where the fee is contingent, the lien is only prospective.[20] An agreement of heirs to pay a contingent fee in a partition suit does not create an equitable interest in or a lien upon property of an estate, so that the agreement may be enforced in the partition or on distribution of the property.[21]

The attorney's statutory lien on a judgment gives him only additional security, and does not destroy his rights in a judgment for costs only.[22] The lien of an attorney for plaintiff on his client's judgment for taxable costs and court charges is prior to defendant's right to set off another judgment held by him against plaintiff.[23] Parties who settle with the adverse party for less than the amount of a judgment obtained against them, on which attorneys have a lien, are personally liable for their fees.[24] A contract with attorneys for legal services in re-

3. Schmertz v. Hammond, 51 W. Va. 408.
4. Schmertz v. Hammond, 51 W. Va. 408.
5. Schmertz v. Hammond, 51 W. Va. 408.
6. Kerngood v. Jack, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 309.
7. In re Dailey, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 523.
8. American Lead Pencil Co. v. Davis (Tenn.) 67 S. W. 864.
9. Gen. St. Minn. 1894, § 6194, providing a lien for attorney's fees on judgments or papers in possession of the attorney—Weicher v. Cargill, 86 Minn. 271.
10. Phillips v. Hogue, 63 Neb. 192.
11. The fund represents the damages suffered by the estate, and not by the deceased plaintiff—In re Carrig, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 612.
12. St. Ky. § 107—Thompson v. Thompson, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1535.
13. Exemption under Const. Tenn. art. 11, § 11, and Shannon's Code Tenn. § 3798—McBroom v. Whitefield, 108 Tenn. 422.
14. The lien under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66, cannot be made to extend to liability of plaintiff on an injunction bond—Fromme v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 105.
15. Lien given by Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Saranac & L. P. R. Co. v. Arnold, 41 App. Div. (N. Y.) 482.
16. Harn v. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n (Tex.) 65 S. W. 176.
17. American Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n v. Daugherty (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 131.
18. Salaun v. Creditors, 106 La. 217.
19. Loofbourow v. Hicks, 24 Utah, 49, 66 Pac. 602.
20. Anderson v. Itasca Lumber Co., 86 Minn. 480; Cameron v. Boeger, 102 Ill. App. 649.
21. Boyle v. Boyle, 116 Fed. 764.
22. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Adams v. Niagara Cycle Fittings Co., 10 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 401.
23. Pride v. Smalley, 66 N. J. Law, 578.
24. Flint v. Hubbard (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 446; Fischer-Hansen v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 173 N. Y. 492.

gard to mining claims gives them no right of action against a subsequent purchaser of the property who did not know of the contract, where it gave such attorneys no interest in the proceeds of the sale until it was received by the owners.[25]

Loss of lien.—An attorney who authorized his client to commence action on a judgment obtained by him in another state loses his lien on the judgment as to the judgment debtor.[26] An attorney who notifies his client that he will not proceed further after the verdict obtained is reversed on appeal without payment of fees thereby discharges himself if the fees are not paid, so that he cannot object to susbstitution of another attorney on the ground of his lien.[27]

Protection of fees or lien in suit in which attorney is employed.—The attorney's lien may be enforced in the action in which the attorney served,[28] though it will not prevent dismissal by the client.[29] Contra in Georgia, where the party cannot withdraw a proceeding against objection of his attorney, when the proceeding, if successful, would result in recovery of property as to which the attorney would have a lien for fees.[30] Attorneys in an action for personal injuries, who are entitled to a portion of the recovery in lieu of fees, cannot object to plaintiff's dismissal without their consent, nor can they be made parties and continue the prosecution merely because of their lien.[31] After two trials without result, a dismissal by plaintiff without knowledge or consent of his attorney, and not based on settlement, or for the purpose of defrauding the attorney, is proper, though he agreed to give the attorney a third of the amount recovered and expenses, and that no settlement should be made without consultation.[32] But plaintiff in a personal injury suit assigned to attorneys cannot compromise with defendant, who knows that the suit was brought on a contingent fee, except as to the unassigned part of the claim.[33]

If the retainer agreed upon is not paid before time of trial, an attorney who has appeared and filed answer for defendant may withdraw from the case or fail to appear at trial.[34] Parties to a suit in which no counterclaim or affirmative defense is asked may discontinue after a first trial, and will not be compelled to go to trial again for the benefit of defendant's attorneys who served on the first trial and the appeal.[35]

The claim of an attorney for services in prosecuting a suit for personal injuries will not entitle him to intervene,[36] nor can he do so in a divorce suit.[37] A contract for a contingent fee in case of judgment or settlement will not entitle attorneys to be made parties, nor does it amount to an assignment of a part of the claim.[38]

A set-off of judgments will not be allowed to defeat the attorney's lien for tax-

25. Weiss v. Gullett (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 442.

26. The attorney sent a transcript of the judgment on which to bring suit, and agreed to hold the client personally—Barnabee v. Holmes, 115 Iowa, 581.

27. Fargo v. Paul, 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 568.

28. Gen. St. Minn. 1894, § 6194—Welcher v. Cargill, 86 Minn. 271.

29. Cameron v. Boeger, 102 Ill. App. 649, jt. aff. 200 Ill. 84. Dismissal on appeal—Williams v. Miles, 63 Neb. 851.

30. Walker v. Equitable Mortg. Co., 114 Ga. 862.

31. Code Tenn. 1899, c. 243, § 1, providing a lien on the right of action from the date of filing the suit, gives no such right to the attorney—Tompkins v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. (Tenn.) 72 S. W. 116.

32. Anderson v. Itasca Lumber Co., 86 Minn. 480.

33. The contract empowered the attorney to sue in his own name—Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Andrews (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 923.

34. Silver Peak Min. Co. v. Harris, 116 Fed. 439.

35. Saranac & L. P. R. Co. v. Arnold, 41 App. Div. (N. Y.) 482.

36. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 503.

37. Keehn v. Keehn, 115 Iowa, 467.

38. Cameron v. Boeger, 102 Ill. App. 649; judgment affirmed 200 Ill. 84. Not party in interest—Allison v. Southern R. Co., 129 N. C. 336.

able costs.[39] An attorney cannot have a discontinuance set aside because of failure to provide for costs, where his client is solvent and consents to the discontinuance.[40] An agreement whereby an attorney is to defend and receive costs taxed to his client, if successful, as fees, gives him no such interest as will prevent discontinuance by his client without costs, on stipulation with the other party.[41]

Remedies for enforcement of lien or recovery of compensation.—Fees of attorneys representing a minor cannot be fixed on ex parte application.[42] Where an attorney is substituted in a suit for another, who was to recover a contingent fee, the former attorney is entitled to be protected in the order of substitution, so that any compensation due him in the event of recovery may be withheld.[43] The attorney's lien on a client's cause of action cannot be enforced, after accord and satisfaction, without an order of the court.[44] A set-off cannot be allowed to the extent of an attorney's lien on a judgment recovered.[45]

An order permitting attorneys to enforce their lien by final judgment after a settlement between the parties cannot be had where it does not appear that their client was insolvent or refused to pay them. That a settlement was induced by fraud cannot affect the right of the attorneys of the other party to enforce their lien by final judgment, though their client was not guilty of fraud.[46]

In New York a statutory provision for enforcement of an attorney's lien does not prevent a suit in equity to enforce it,[47] though the cases seem to be in conflict as to the rights in equity;[48] but equity will enforce an attorney's lien on an award in eminent domain, where the distribution of the award is disputed.[49] An attorney may enforce in equity a lien against a judgment in foreclosure secured for a client who died pending the suit, where the executrix employed another attorney to obtain the judgment, and bought the mortgaged property.[50] The lien extends to proceeds of a cause of action and to the fund created by settlement, so that, if the other party, with actual notice of the lien, pays the fund to the client, he is liable in an equitable action for enforcement of the lien if the client is insolvent.[51]

Pleading and proof.[52]—An attorney may join in the same action a count for fees and a count for claims for witness' fees in the litigation duly assigned to him.[53] The attorney need not plead his admission,[54] nor can such objection be urged in arrest of judgment;[55] and he is not bound to show affirmatively that no fraud or lack of proper knowledge was present at formation of the contract of employment.[56] A verbal employment by corporate agents of an attorney for so

39. Collins v. Campbell, 97 Me. 23.
40. McKay v. Morris, 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 571.
41. Garvin v. Martin (Wis.) 93 N. W. 470.
42. American Lead Pencil Co. v. Davis (Tenn.) 67 S. W. 864.
43. Bryant v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co. 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 542.
44. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Doyle v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 398.
45. Finney v. Gallop (Neb.) 89 N. W. 276.
46. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Young v. Howell, 64 App. Div. (N. Y.) 246.
47. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Fischer-Hansen v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 173 N. Y. 492; Skinner v. Busse, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 265, 11 Ann. Cas. 156.
48. Lien given by Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Fromme v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 105.
49. Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451.
50. Lien given by Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Skinner v. Busse, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 265, 11 Ann. Cas. 156.
51. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 66—Fischer-Hansen v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 173 N. Y. 492.
52. As to the grounds which may be considered in computing the proper fee, see supra, this section, "Computing and Assessing Amount." Sufficiency of complaint in action by attorneys to enforce a lien against the judgment fraudulently satisfied by their insolvent client—Flint v. Hubbard (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 446.
53. Flint v. Hubbard (Colo. App.) 66 Pac. 446.
54. Miller v. Ballerino, 135 Cal. 566, 67 Pac. 1046, 68 Pac. 600.
55. Kersey v. Garton, 77 Mo. 645.
56. Clifford v. Braun, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 432.

long as they should remain such agents, or the corporation should continue in business, was not definite in time, so that an action to recover fees at the contract rate from the time of the beginning of the contract should be brought, instead of a suit to recover full damages for breach of the contract.[57] A failure to allege that the attorney was licensed is cured by a finding, on general demurrer, that the services were performed by certain attorneys for defendant.[58] An executory stipulation, as part of an agreement with an attorney, that the client and another should fix the attorney's fees, is a defense to an action to recover such fees, where it is not shown that the client had repudiated the agreement, and such action cannot be supported on a quantum meruit without allegation that the client and his agent had repudiated the contract or refused to fix the compensation.[59] Recovery as upon a quantum meruit is not a material variance from a declaration for services on contract of employment.[60] Where a client attempts to recover damages for negligence of an attorney in bringing a suit without proper cause, in an action by the attorney for fees, the burden of proof to show negligence is on the client.[61] On petition for set-off of judgments, attorneys to whom a judgment recovered by them has been assigned cannot assert their lien for services in procuring it as against set-off claimed by the judgment debtor, unless they show the value of their services.[62] The record and proceedings in a suit may be admitted to show the value of the attorney's services therein,[63] and, where signed by the client, may be admitted to show also the client's knowledge and acceptance of services.[64] The fact that a judgment was not vacated is evidence that the case was properly tried; hence that defending motion to vacate was not necessitated by unskillfulness.[65] Expenses of the suit paid by a client cannot be shown in recoupment in an action by the attorney for fees, unless it appears that the attorney acted negligently in bringing the suit.[66] The attorney's own testimony as to the value of his services, though entitled to respect, is not conclusive, and the court may exercise its own judgment.[67] That a corporation, which had employed an attorney as general attorney, used printed matter and stationery on hand after his discharge, which contained his name as such attorney, was insufficient to show his right to salary for the period during which the printed matter and stationery was so used.[68] Cases are shown below where the sufficiency of evidence was considered.[69]

Verdict and judgment.—A finding that attorneys had lost their right to en-

57. Eberhardt v. Harkless, 115 Fed. 816.

58. The complaint is sufficient, under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 469, 475, providing that a mere variance, by which the adverse party is not misled, will not destroy the right of action —Kersey v. Garton, 77 Mo. 645.

59. Instructions held erroneous—Roche v. Baldwin, 135 Cal. 522, 65 Pac. 459, 67 Pac. 903.

60. Skinner v. Busse, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 265, 11 Ann. Cas. 156.

61. Keith v. Marcus, 181 Mass. 377.

62. Aber's Petition, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 110.

63. Duckwall v. Williams (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 232.

64. Davis v. Walker, 131 Ala. 204.

65. Cranmer v. Brothers, 15 S. D. 234.

66. Keith v. Marcus, 181 Mass. 377.

67. Germania Safety Vault & Trust Co. v. Hargis, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 874.

68. Ostrander v. Capital Inv. Ass'n (Mich.) 89 N. W. 964.

69. Prima facie case in suit for fees—De Mund Lumber Co. v. Stilwell (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 543; evidence of contract for contingent fee in addition to certain fee already paid by client for all services in the case —In re Borkstrom, 168 N. Y. 639; as to the contract of employment and payment for services—Smith v. Norton, 114 Wis. 458; of employment and right to interest in a fund on account of attorney's fees—Blakey v. New York Life Ins. Co., 28 Ind. App. 428; of employment of attorney to negotiate a loan for a broker to entitle the attorney to compensation—Brennan-Love Co. v. McIntosh, 62 Neb. 522; to establish a prima facie contract of employment and right to compensation—Ottofy v. Keyes, 91 Mo. App. 146; to show a right to a contingent fee in addition to a certain fee—In re Borkstrom, 168 N. Y. 639; to show that attorney's fees would be fixed by the client and his agent—Roche v. Baldwin, 135 Cal. 522, 65 Pac. 459, 67 Pac. 903; to show that an attorney was employed personally as general attorney for a corporation, so that his sole right to unpaid salary was unaffected by subsequent entry into partnership with another attorney—Ostrander v. Capitol Inv. Ass'n (Mich.) 89 N. W. 964.

forcement of a lien for fees by laches cannot be considered in an action to enforce, where the client does not plead waiver or laches.[70] A verdict cannot be directed at plaintiff's close in an action for attorney's fees, where the attorney testifies to employment, performance of services, and the value thereof, which testimony is corroborated by other evidence.[71]

§ 8. Authority of attorney to represent client.[72]—Where a suit is filed by a duly-licensed attorney, his authority to act for a plaintiff not under disability is presumed,[73] and, after judgment, the opposite party may treat the attorney of record as his opponent's attorney, unless he has notice of change.[74] A complaint signed by the attorney need not show that he was attorney, his license and assumption of powers being sufficient.[75] A creditor's attorney may sign the creditor's name to and verify a petition in involuntary bankruptcy if he knows the facts stated therein.[76] Proof that an action was brought with consent of the plaintiff is insufficient to dispense with the statutory requirement that every attorney should file his warrant of attorney.[77] In the management of litigation he may stipulate that the deposition of one suing on account of injuries may be taken in advance of the trial, and may be read in an action by his personal representatives should he die before trial.[78] An attorney for three joint tort feasors cannot accept service for one of an appeal by the other two, which may subject the other to contribution.[79] It will not be presumed that an attorney securing a judgment has authority to have execution levied on land conveyed by the debtor as security before reconveyance to him.[80]

Knowledge of an attorney beyond the matter of his employment is not notice to his client;[81] otherwise of material information known at time of his employment, and which must have been in his mind when transacting the business.[82] An attorney representing an adverse party also, without his client's knowledge, and having personal interest in the proceedings, cannot bind his client by a knowledge of an unrecorded deed, especially where the attorney acquired the knowledge before employment by such client, and while representing another.[83] That an attorney received knowledge of the fraud of the debtor by reason of his friendship for the latter will not prevent notice attaching to his client, and excuse failure to sue, unless there was collusive fraud between the attorney and the debtor.[84]

70. Loofbourow v. Hicks, 24 Utah, 49, 66 Pac. 602. Sufficiency of finding as to value of services on conflicting expert evidence—Schlesinger v. Dunne, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 529; finding in suit for fees in foreclosure—Dillon v. Watson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 156; sufficiency of amount of verdict for attorney's fees, based on highly conflicting expert evidence—Schlesinger v. Dunne, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 529.

71. De Mund Lumber Co. v. Stilwell (Ariz.) 68 Pac. 543.

72. A statement in an affidavit that complainant is nonresident sufficiently shows the reason for verification by his attorney. Under Code Ala. p. 1205, rule 15, requiring the reason to be given—Guyton v. Terrell, 132 Ala. 66.

73. Bigham v. Kistler, 114 Ga. 453.
Sufficiency of evidence of authority given by a husband and wife to bring action in the name of wife for personal injuries—Whitesell v. New Jersey Ferry Co., 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 82.

74. Belle City Mfg. Co. v. Kemp, 27 Wash. 111, 67 Pac. 580.

75. O'Brien v. Yare, 88 Mo. App. 489.

76. In re Herzikopf, 118 Fed. 101; In re Hunt, 118 Fed. 282

77. Act April 14, 1834, Pub. Laws Pa. 1833-1834, p. 354—Fisler v. Reach, 202 Pa. 74

78. Ludeman v Third Ave. R. Co., 72 App. Div. (N Y.) 26

79. In Montana, service by mail is not sufficient against a successful defendant whose attorney is disqualified by representing unsuccessful defendants from accepting service—Hayes v. Union Mercantile Co. (Mont.) 70 Pac. 975.

80. Parker v. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 114 Ga. 702.

81. A purchaser of lands employing an attorney to examine title is not bound by the latter's knowledge that the vendor is insolvent—Weil v. Reiss, 167 Mo. 125.

82. Deering v. Holcomb, 26 Wash. 588, 67 Pac. 240, 561.

83. Scotch Lumber Co. v. Sage, 132 Ala. 598.

84. Knowledge of fraudulent conveyance obtained in attempting to collect debt—Deering v. Holcomb, 26 Wash. 588, 67 Pac. 240, 561.

An attorney cannot compromise a claim without authority, but authority may be inferred from circumstances, such as a lapse of years without reassertion of the claim.[85] He is presumed to have authority to compromise a pending suit.[86] The apparent scope of authority of a general attorney for a railroad company to compromise a claim for damages does not include an agreement, without express authority or ratification, to employ a certain person for life as partial satisfaction.[87] The authority of an attorney to settle a case may be shown by proof that his client was present in court and allowed the attorney to treat for a settlement, and that the case was dismissed under a belief that offers made to the attorney would be fulfilled.[88]

He cannot transfer his client's property in satisfaction of fees of officers,[89] nor release a surety in a claim property bond,[90] but may authorize a constable and release property in his possession from an attachment writ.[91] The attorney of a divorced wife cannot waive her right in a written contract with her husband to secure to her the monthly rental of property in which she has a life estate, without her special authority.[92]

An attorney authorized to collect a claim has implied authority to indorse a draft received in order to cash it.[93] And if one employed to act for and collect the shares of several heirs and legatees was responsible for money collected, and had sole authority to receive it, he had authority to indorse checks received in payment and cash them.[94]

He may employ local counsel to try a case in another county,[95] but, when employed for a stated sum, cannot engage services of an associate without authority of the client.[96]

An attorney cannot purchase for his client property sold under execution against the client in proceedings defended by the attorney.[97] An attorney to defend an action for personal injuries has no authority to order payment of the claim after judgment.[98] That an attorney knew of a claim at the time he directed the execution of a lease between the parties will not warrant the inference that he had authority to bind his client to payment.[99]

Verbal admissions and conclusions of law of an attorney will not raise an estoppel pleaded by the adverse party against his client without evidence in the record supporting the admission.[1] An attorney under general retainer cannot bind his client by prejudicial admissions and advice to the adversary, unless authorized.[2] An attorney for one of several parties, who allows an attorney representing co-parties to waive objections to evidence in response to a request from their adversary, without attempting to object on behalf of his clients, thereby waives the objection as to them.[3]

§ 9. Rights and liabilities as to third persons.—An attorney acting in good

85. Bay v. Trusdell, 92 Mo. App. 377. Sufficiency of evidence of authority of attorney to compromise and settle the suit—Diamond Soda Water Mfg. Co. v. Hegeman, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 430.

86. Strattner v. Wilmington City Electric Co. (Del. Super.) 53 Atl. 436.

87. Nephew v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 128 Mich. 599.

88. Strong v. Smith, 98 Ill. App. 522.

89. Property surrendered by client's debtor in consequence of disclosure was turned over to disclosure commissioner for fees—Davis v. Ferrin, 97 Me. 146.

90. Lowry v. Clark, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 357.

91. Muir v. Orear, 87 Mo. App. 38.

92. Budlong v. Budlong (Wash.) 71 Pac. 751.

93. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 63 Neb. 698. Contra, Chatham Nat. Bank v. Hochstadter, 11 Daly (N. Y.) 343.

94. National Bank v. Old Town Bank (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 726.

95. Dillon v. Watson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 156.

96. In re Borkstrom, 168 N. Y. 639.

97. Fisher v. McInerney, 137 Cal. 28, 69 Pac. 622, 907.

98. Waterbury v. Waterbury Traction Co., 74 Conn. 152.

99. Callaway v. Equitable Trust Co., 67 N. J. Law, 44.

1. Harvin v. Blackman, 108 La. 426.

2. Lytle v. Crawford, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 273.

3. In re Ross, 136 Cal. 629, 69 Pac. 430.

faith is not liable for false imprisonment which he advised.[4] The client is not liable for injuries resulting from acts of the attorney without the scope of his employment.[5] On reversal of a judgment obtained by a creditor setting aside transfers of his debtor, prior to the latter's assignment, as fraudulent, an allowance of costs to the debtor's attorneys, based on the amount of the transfers instead of the judgment, should be refunded by the attorneys on motion of the creditor.[6]

§ 10. Law partnerships and associations.—An attorney may bind his partner for legal services without compensation, without the latter's knowledge.[7] On dissolution, one attorney may be substituted for the firm on his client's consent, if no firm lien for fees is prejudiced.[8] Where the ascertained value of services rendered in a certain case by a firm afterwards dissolved, and by two members of the dissolved firm on a retrial, cannot be paid in full, the fee collected should be divided pro rata between the dissolved firm and the two members; where undisposed-of cases are assigned to the several members, each is entitled to the returns from such cases prosecuted in good faith, and services of other members therein are gratuitous; such a settlement of the firm business for good consideration will be upheld.[9]

§ 11. Public attorneys. A. Attorneys general.— In Texas the attorney general may institute and direct suits in the district courts for enforcement of penalties for violation of the railroad laws.[10] Since it is the duty of the county attorney, in Kentucky, to respresent the state in proceedings to compel taxpayers to list omitted property, an attorney employed by the attorney general in such a proceeding instituted by an agent of the state auditor cannot recover from the state for his services.[11] Where the superintendent of banking reports to the attorney general that a savings, loan, and building association was in a condition unfit to continue business, the latter may begin proceedings for dissolution in the name of the people without a relator.[12] In Mississippi, neither the attorney general nor the district attorney is a necessary party to quo warranto to try right to office,[13] nor, in Washington, can the attorney general, on his own relation, institute proceedings by quo warranto to determine whether a corporation exercising a public franchise has usurped its authority in such exercise.[14]

B. District and state's or prosecuting attorneys.—Prosecuting attorneys should not act as inquisitors and extort admissions or confessions from those accused of crime.[15] On removal of a criminal case to another county, the attorney of that county must usually prosecute it.[16] An information filed by an assistant prosecuting attorney, where such an officer is authorized, will be presumed to have been filed by a proper official, duly appointed, unless the contrary appears from the record.[17]

4. Roth v. Shupp, 94 Md. 55.

5. An attorney for creditors of an insolvent bank will not render them liable for libelous matter published in an expert statement, though he had authority to make the statement—Hall v. Baker, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 131.

6. Shotwell v. Dixon, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 123.

7. Stone v. Hart, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1777.

8. Schneible v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 522.

9. Lamb v. Wilson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 167.

10. Under Const. art. 5, § 21, and article 10, § 2, providing for duties of county attorneys and regulation of railroads—Moore v. Bell (Tex.) 66 S. W. 45.

11. The various Kentucky statutes regarding the authority of the state auditor and the attorney general as to omitted property construed—Coulter v. Denny, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1619.

12. New York Banking Law, § 18, and Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. §§ 1785, 1786, 1808, construed—People v. Manhattan Real Estate Co., 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 535.

13. Under Code 1892, §§ 3520, 3521—State v. Morgan, 80 Miss. 372.

14. Under the provisions of the constitution and statutes relating to such proceedings, the duty is that of the prosecuting attorney of the proper county—State v. Seattle Gas & Electric Co., 28 Wash. 488, 68 Pac. 946, 70 Pac. 114.

15. State v. Hagan, 164 Mo. 654.

16. Pol. Code Mont. §§ 4318, 4319—State v. Whitworth, 26 Mont. 107, 66 Pac. 748.

17. State v. Weeks, 88 Mo. App. 263.

Since special laws prevail over general ones, the special solicitor pro tem. in a county governed by such an act, and not one acting under general appointment, is recognized.[18] Counsel may be appointed to assist in prosecution of persons charged with crime, though prosecuting attorneys are provided for by statute; and the law providing for appointment of deputies by county officers and justices of the peace will not prevent appointment of assistant prosecuting counsel by the court.[19] A special counsel, assisting the district attorney, but not under official oath, cannot appear before the grand jury to assist it in investigation of criminal charges.[20] That one appointed as temporary state's attorney may have been privately retained by prosecuting witnesses in the case will not render him ineligible. A law providing for appointment by the circuit judge does not violate a constitutional provision that all state and county officers, not otherwise provided for, must be elected by the people or appointed by the governor.[21]

A county attorney cannot enter a voluntary appearance and confess judgment against the county, even on a resolution of the county board authorizing him to confess such judgment.[22] He may waive issuance and service of summons in error, as against the county, where he has appeared for it at the trial.[23]

A law giving a county attorney, who assists at prosecutions in the circuit court, a portion of judgments recovered, will not entitle him to such fee where his term expired before judgment, though he assisted at the trial.[24]

A commonwealth's attorney, taking a bribe to dismiss an indictment, may be indicted for malfeasance in office, or, under the statute, for taking a bribe, in either case the punishment being limited to that prescribed by the statute if the facts shown constitute the statutory offense. Impeachment is not necessary before indictment and punishment for such malfeasance.[25]

Decisions under various local laws, and for that reason peculiar, follow, arranged by states.

Arkansas.—The prosecuting attorney cannot claim a fee where present by deputy in an assault and battery case.[26]

Colorado.[27]—The district court, in its discretion, may appoint counsel to assist the district attorney in criminal cases, and the county must pay for his services. Allowance by the district court of fees to such attorney is at least prima facie evidence of the value of his services.[28] Under a law which applies to the emergency in case the district attorney fails to appear, the court cannot appoint an attorney to prosecute crime, at expense of the county, merely because the district attorney was disqualified because he had been attorney for defendant on a former trial before entering his office. The attorney general is empowered to 18. In prosecutions for misdemeanors in county court—The special act for Marengo county (Acts Ala. 1882-1883, p. 647) prevails over Code Ala. § 5537 et seq.—Douglass v. Prowell, 130 Ala. 580.

19. State v. Whitworth, 26 Mont. 107, 66 Pac. 748.

20. Under Code Crim. Proc. § 313, subd. 2, and §§ 262-264—People v. Scannell, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 40.

21. Construction of Rev. St. § 1354, requiring only admission to the bar as qualification for temporary appointment, and Const. 1885, art. 3, § 27—King v. State (Fla.) 31 So. 254.

22. Custer County v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 62 Neb. 657.

23. Dakota County v. Bartlett (Neb.) 93 N. W. 192.

24. Ky. St. § 133—Spalding v. Hill, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1802, 72 S. W. 307.

25. St. § 1366, Const. § 68—Commonwealth v. Rowe, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1718.

26. Under Acts Ark. 1883, p. 301, § 2, Mansf. Dig. § 3233, Sand. & H. Dig. §§ 6010, 6011, and Act 1895, amending Sand. & H. Dig. above, all providing for deputy prosecuting attorneys and the fees in prosecutions by such deputies—State v. McNair, 70 Ark. 65.

27. Fixing compensation of deputy district attorney as constitutional—Merwin v. Board Com'rs of Boulder County, 29 Colo. 169, 67 Pac. 285.

28. Board Com'rs of Hinsdale County v. Crump (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 159.

appoint special counsel to represent the state under another statute.[29] The judge of the district court may appoint an attorney to represent the state before the grand jury, where it appears that the district attorney has been involved in offenses without first proceeding to remove or prosecute the latter.[30] Where the supervisors of a county employed an attorney to collect certain money due the county from the state on a contingent fee, which he retained from the amount collected, the district attorney cannot sue for recovery of the contingent fee, as a claim allowed by the supervisors without authority of law.[31] The fees of a "district" attorney do not come within the sections of the constitution providing that the compensation of all county and precinct officers shall be as fixed by law, since he is a district officer, and the allowance of his fees for representing the state before justices of the peace is in the discretion of the county commissioners. The law providing for such allowance was not repealed by a subsequent law on the same subject.[32] A law giving county commissioners discretion in allowance of fees to district attorneys is not unconstitutional as depriving such attorneys of property without due process of law, nor as conferring judicial power on a body not included in the courts specified in the constitution, nor is the law invalid as conferring power in a proviso. In disallowing claims for such fees, the commissioners are not required to spread the reasons for disallowance on their records. The allowance is wholly discretionary, and not liable to review by the courts; but if the right of appeal were conceded, the court, on review, could not fix the amount of the fees,—that power residing wholly in the commissioners.[33] A district attorney, who allowed a county attorney to enter his appearance as attorney for the county commissioners in a suit on a county officer's bond, but performed no actual services in the suit, which was dismissed by the county attorney on compromise, is not entitled to his statutory fee for collections.[34]

Iowa.—The county attorney properly takes an appeal to the supreme court in a criminal case, and gives notice thereof, and the attorney general has no authority until the case has reached that court.[35] A former county attorney is not prevented from appearing, after expiration of his term, for a woman in an action for damages for a sale of liquor to her husband, merely because defendant was indicted during his term for a distinct sale.[36]

Kentucky.—The attorney for the commonwealth is not required to make the opening statement to the jury in a criminal trial; his statement that he omitted the facts of the charge because unfamiliar with them will be taken as true.[37]

29. Pen. Code, § 1130, does not provide for such emergency, Pol. Code, § 472, providing for appointment by the attorney general—Toland v. Ventura County, 135 Cal. 412, 67 Pac. 498.

30. People v. District Court, 29 Colo. 5, 66 Pac. 896.

31. Under St. Cal. 1897, p. 463, § 25, subd. 16, providing that the supervisors shall direct all suits in which the county is a party; and section 8, providing for suits by the district attorney to recover money paid by the supervisors without authority of law—Contra Costa County v. Soto (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1019.

32. Sess. Laws 1891, pp. 213, 214, § 8, and page 223, § 1, subd. 6, providing for such allowance, are not affected by Const. art. 14, §§ 7, 15; and the statute first mentioned was not repealed by the second, though on the same subject, their provisions not being repugnant—Merwin v. Board Com'rs of Boulder County, 29 Colo. 169, 67 Pac. 285.

33. Laws 1891, pp. 213, 214, construed in connection with Const. art. 2, § 25, and article 6, § 1—Merwin v. Board Com'rs of Boulder County, 29 Colo. 169, 67 Pac. 285; on the question of review by the courts, see, also, Board of Yuma County Com'rs v. Pendleton (Colo. App.) 67 Pac. 911, construing 3 Mills' Ann. St. § 1905.

34. Under Mills' Ann. St. § 1551, providing that the district attorney should represent counties in his district in suits, and section 1873, providing his fee for collections—McMullin v. Board Com'rs of Montrose County (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 449.

35. Code, §§ 5448, 5449, and §§ 301, 208—State v. Grimmell, 116 Iowa, 596.

36. Under Code, § 305—Bellison v. Apland, 115 Iowa, 599.

37. Crim. Code Prac. § 220—Hendrickson v. Com., 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1191.

Louisiana.—The district attorney may represent the state in cases of assault in magistrates' courts, and his right to do so may be enforced by mandamus when denied by the magistrate.[38]

Missouri.[39]—The necessity for appearance by the prosecuting attorneys in criminal cases in the court of appeals, and their compensation for services and expenses, are to be settled by the county court when the claim is presented, or by the circuit court on appeal therefrom, as questions of fact from the evidence adduced;[40] hence evidence that he did so without an order of the county court is not admissible.[41]

New Hampshire.—Under the general course of legislation relating to duties and compensation of county solicitors and justices of the peace, a county solicitor, who was also a justice, cannot claim fees for drawing complaints and warrants in cases which it was his duty to prosecute, whether they were mentioned specifically in the statutes or not.[42]

New York.—Laws 1874, c. 323, § 2, providing for employment of counsel to assist the district attorney, impliedly repealed Laws 1872, c. 733.[43] The fees of an attorney who was employed to assist the county attorney in a criminal case, and who assisted on appeal to the court of appeals, on a motion for a new trial and for change of place of trial, and on a second trial before another justice in another county, cannot be certified by the latter justice in the court of appeals to enable him to maintin certiorari to review the action of the board of supervisors in reducing the amount so certified.[44] Where a particular county is exempted from operation of a law providing for payment by counties of fees and expenses of counsel to aid the district attorney, a certificate of a justice within such county for compensation of such counsel will impose no liability on the county.[45]

Oklahoma.—Territorial district courts cannot appoint a county attorney except in absence of the regular attorney, or on his inability to perform his office, or in case of a vacancy. The inability to perform duties must be from physical or mental incapacity, not mere lack of experience or incapacity to conduct a prosecution. The district court cannot restrict or supersede his authority except when he is disqualified or unable to perform his duties. He, and not the court, has power to appoint his assistants.[46] He should bring a suit within the county, for the public, to prevent misappropriation of funds by public officers.[47]

Tennessee.—The costs allowed a district attorney general in an inheritance tax suit must be turned over to the state.[48]

Texas.[49]—The district attorney for the county in which a suit is brought to 38. State v. Brown, 106 La. 437.

39. Informations given to the criminal court in a county of between 50,000 and 75,000 population must be made in the name of the assistant prosecuting attorney, appointed and paid by the prosecuting attorney himself. Under Rev. St. 1879, § 4975, providing for appointment of assistant, and section 4991—State v. Weeks, 88 Mo. App. 263.

40. Rev. St. 1899, § 4951—Meador v. Texas County, 167 Mo. 201.

41. Meador v. Texas County, 167 Mo. 201.

42. See the various statutes cited in the opinion as showing the course of legislation—Fletcher v. Merrimack County, 71 N. H. 96.

43. People v. Coler, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 217.

44. Under Laws 1892, c. 686, providing that the costs and expenses of such assistant shall be certified by the judge presiding at the trial—People v. Board Sup'rs of Genesee County, 168 N. Y. 640.

45. Under various statutes cited in the opinion, and construed with reference to the county of New York—People v. Coler, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 217.

46. The circumstances are limited to the conditions prescribed by St. 1893, c. 22, art. 5, § 9—Mahaffey v. Territory, 10 Okl. 213, 66 Pac. 342.

47. Board of Education v. Territory (Okl.) 70 Pac. 792.

48. Under Acts 1897, c. 41, fixing the compensation of district attorneys general, and providing that costs taxed against the losing party must be turned over to the state—Harrison v. Johnston (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 414.

49. See Black v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 65 S. W. 906, for conduct of criminal trial recover a penalty for violation of the railroad laws cannot appear for the county unless by request of the railroad commission, and appearing without such authority can recover no fees.[50]

AUCTIONS AND AUCTIONEERS.

License and regulation.[51]—Under laws requiring a license of transient merchants who would sell at auction, the merchant must be licensed, though another actually is the auctioneer, or though the merchant acts as agent for a mortgagee. The reasonableness of such an ordinance is for the court, and, in the absence of competent evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that the tax is reasonable.[52] An auctioneer's license fee of $2,500 has been held unreasonable and illegal.[53]

Sale; fees; liability on bond.—Both purchaser and seller are bound by publicly proclaimed terms of an auction.[54] Purchasers at an auctioneer's sale are not entitled to recover part of the price paid, under an agreement with the auctioneer that the time of payment should be extended and a mortgage given for the remainder of the price, where no authority is shown in the auctioneer to give the extension and the purchasers have not complied with the contract as alleged by them.[55] Representations by the auctioneer, which the purchaser did not hear or rely upon in buying, cannot be urged by him as fraud to set aside the sale.[56] Under a law giving auctioneers a certain percentage of movable and immovable property as fees, where both movable and immovable property are sold together, the appraisement must be taken as the basis of computation.[57] The surety on an auctioneer's bond is liable for his failure to account for proceeds of a sale.[58]

BAIL IN CIVIL ACTIONS.

§ 1. Occasion, necessity, kinds, and distinctions.—Where special bail is demandable of a defendant who would make defense, he cannot oppose a motion for it by grounds which constitute a defense, e. g., defective service.[1]

§ 2. The bail-piece; security or sureties.—A bond omitting the name of defendant in the recitals is not invalid where the omission may be supplied with certainty from the instrument itself,[2] and may be a common-law bond if it does not comply in its conditions with the statute.[3] The bond is not affected by an omission to note on the writ, pursuant to a directory act, that the bond taken on mesne process has been filed.[4] The amount on execution against the person should by prosecuting attorney, criticism, and explanation of duties.

50. Rev. St. arts. 4577, 4579—Moore v. Bell, 95 Tex. 151.

51. A real-estate auctioneer, in addition to specific tax, must pay an additional ¼ of % on the amount of the sale; statutes construed to determine which of two given modes of assessing license taxes shall be used (Act 1889-90, c. 244, §§ 44, 50)—Adams v. Walker (Va.) 42 S. E. 866.

52. Iowa City v. Newell, 115 Iowa, 55.

53. Margolies v. Atlantic City, 67 N. J. Law, 82.

54. Chandler v. Morey, 195 Ill. 596.

55. McKiernan v. Valleau, 23 R. I. 501.

56. Burnett v. Hensley (Iowa) 92 N. W. 78.

57. Under Acts La. 1896, No. 104—Barry v. American White Lead & Color Works, 107 La. 236.

58. Under Laws N. Y. 1897, c. 682, requiring licenses and bonds from auctioneers in cities of a certain size, which was extended to Greater New York without the approval of its officers, because in force when the new charter went into effect—Saul v. United States F. & G. Co., 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 77. Sufficiency of complaint, in action against a surety on an auctioneer's bond for failure of the latter to account for proceeds of a sale, as to averments that the auctioneer was licensed for a certain year—Saul v. United States F. & G. Co., 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 77.

1. Gen. St. § 957; Practice Act, § 1, makes such plea a "defense"—Bergkofski v. Ruzofski, 74 Conn. 204.

2. Reeg v. Adams, 113 Wis. 175.

3. Conditions required by Rev. St. Wis. 1898, § 3034, in bond of arrested debtor—Straw v. Kromer, 114 Wis. 91.

4. Construing Rev. St. Me. c. 85, § 1—S. N. Maxcy Mfg. Co. v. Bowie, 96 Me. 435.

not exceed $5,000.[5] The court may reduce the amount of bail, though it was given without objection or reservation of right to ask for reduction.[6]

§ 3. Rights and liabilities; forfeiture, exoneration, and discharge.—Bail for appearance of one arrested on a capias are his custodians and may take him where they wish and surrender him to the officer.[7] A bond to appear as a witness is satisfied if appearance be made by attorney on the first continuance, though no appearance was made thereafter.[8] The surety on an undertaking, for discharge of a defendant in an action for fraudulent conversion, who is liable under its terms for disobedience of any order of the court, requiring performance of acts specified in the order of arrest, is not liable for default as to directions which the court could not give, though execution against both property and person was returned without results.[9] It will not be presumed that money deposited in lieu of bail belongs to the person bailed, where it appears certainly that a third person paid the money and received a receipt from the sheriff.[10] Defendant cannot be discharged in trover, bail being required, on a mere finding that he cannot produce the property; it must appear that he cannot give security, and that his reasons for not producing the property are sufficient.[11] Discharge of one arrested under a capias, though erroneous, relieves him from restraint and his bail from liability.[12]

§ 4. Enforcement of bail-piece; procedure.—A complaint on a bail bond need not show that the sheriff delivered a copy of the bond to the plaintiff as required by statute.[13]

BAIL IN CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS.

§ 1. Authority to take and right to give bail.—The circuit court of appeals of the United States is empowered, and generally it is its duty, to admit to bail after conviction of a crime, not capital, pending a writ of error. The writ stays execution, but such stay does not concern the question whether defendant shall go at large on bail. The right will not be denied because defendant has been tried and convicted three times on the same indictment, but will be allowed for sufficient time only to insure the filing of a transcript in that court and the question of further bail should be left until such time has elapsed.[1] A United States commissioner may be admitted to bail when charged with contempt of a federal court.[2] Bail cannot be allowed after a conviction of a felony, unless for an extraordinary cause not growing out of the crime,[3] but may be allowed pending appeal from a conviction for manslaughter where the law governing its allow-

5. Sibley v. Smith, 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 514.
6. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 567—Sibley v. Smith, 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 514.
7. People v. Hathaway, 102 Ill. App. 628.
8. Straw v. Kromer, 114 Wis. 91.
9. Bristol v. Graff, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 426.
10. Finelite v. Sonberg, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 455.
11. Shinholser v. Jordan, 115 Ga. 462.
12. People v. Hathaway, 102 Ill. App. 628.
13. The provision under Sanb. & B. Ann. St. § 2702, is merely to give plaintiff a chance to refuse the sureties—Reeg v. Adams, 113 Wis. 175.
1. Under 26 Sts. 829, § 11, Rev. St. 1007, and rule 38 of the circuit court of appeals, conviction for embezzlement of funds of national bank—McKnight v. United States (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 451.
2. Under Rev. St. § 1014, and Act May 28, 1896—Castner v. Pocahontas Collieries Co., 117 Fed. 184.
3. Such as illness aggravated by imprisonment or strong reason for apprehension that imprisonment will result fatally—Ex parte Hill, 51 W. Va. 536.

ance was changed after conviction but before sentence.[4] A statute authorizing the city recorder to require bail for appearance before the court authorized to try the offense, where it appears that a prisoner is probably guilty, does not violate the 14th amendment of the federal constitution.[5] A bond taken as a bail bond by a sheriff without legal authority cannot be enforced as a common-law bond.[6] The supreme court of appeals of West Virginia may award habeas corpus solely to obtain bail and to grant bail in case of a felony.[7]

§ 2. Application for bail.—If one convicted of embezzling funds of a national bank is denied bail pending a writ of error, further application should be made to the appellate court unless great urgency exists.[8]

§ 3. Making of recognizance and sufficiency.[9]—A recognizance in a criminal appeal must require defendant to appear before the court to submit to judgment on appeal,[10] and if the bond is given after amendment of the code, it must conform thereto as to requirements for such appearance.[11] In misdemeanor cases the bond must show the amount of the fine assessed,[12] and whether defendant was ever convicted in any court of any offense, or charged with misdemeanor, what punishment was imposed, and whether the violation was of a city ordinance or a statute,[13] and, on appeal from the judgment of the county court dismissing a misdemeanor, appeal from the corporation court must state whether defendant has been convicted of a misdemeanor in any court, the amount of fine imposed and whether the case has been dismissed in the county court.[14] A condition in a recognizance requiring defendant's presence at the hearing of the motion for a new trial may be enforced.[15] An instrument, in form a recognizance, prepared and signed by the sureties before arrest and certified the next day by the justice as taken before him in due form, is void.[16] A recognizance requiring appearance at the next term of "the court of oyer and terminer and quarter sessions of the peace" is valid, where the offense may be tried in either court, whether it uses the word court in the plural or singular.[17] A condition that defendant shall pay any judgment rendered against him is not required in a recognizance on appeal from a case before a police judge for violation of a city ordinance and may be treated as surplusage.[18] A bond on appeal from a justice to the criminal district court, conditioned to appear at the present regular term instead of the next term of court as required, is insufficient.[19] If the court thinks a bond insufficient, it may order a new bond and place defendant in custody, if he fails to comply after notice,[20] but after persons charged with crime have entered

4. Territory v. Cooper, 11 Okl. 699, 69 Pac. 813.
5. Parks v. Nelms, 115 Ga. 242.
6. State v. Frazer, 165 Mo. 242.
7. Ex parte Hill, 51 W. Va. 536.
8. McKnight v. United States (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 451.
9. Form for recognizance on appeal in misdemeanor—Horton v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 172. Sufficiency of showing to reduce bail from $3000 to $1500 on arrest for murder—Hernandez v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 840; to reduce bail from $2000 to $250 on arrest for assault with intent to murder—Sancedo v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 546.
10. Bolton v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 525.
11. Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 889, amended by the act of the 27th legislature which went into effect July 18th, 1901—Martin v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 508.
12. Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 887—Weber v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 269; De Valeria v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 1020.
13. Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 887—Horton v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 172; Roberts v. State, Id. 272; Bolton v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 525; Kapps v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 83; Bertoni v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 963.
14. Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 827—Roberts v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 272.
15. State v. Abel, 170 Mo. 59.
16. Clute v. Ionia Circuit Judge (Mich.) 91 N. W. 159.
17. Commonwealth v. Meeser, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.
18. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 2784 and 5805—Howlett v. Turner, 93 Mo. App. 20.
19. The appeal will be dismissed—Marshall v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 550; Baxstrum v. State, Id. 748.
20. State v. Eyermann (Mo.) 72 S. W. 539.

recognizance for appearance at a certain term, to await the action of the grand jury, and have appeared, they cannot be required to enter a new recognizance for appearance at a subsequent term though the grand jury was not in session.[21] A justice has no authority to change the amount of a bail bond fixed by an order of the circuit court remanding one charged with seduction to custody to await the action of the grand jury.[22] An additional bail bond executed by defendant and surety under order of court abrogates the original bond, and defendant's compliance with the order waives arrest so that the surety cannot object that he was not in custody or under arrest when the new bond was given.[23]

§ 4. Fulfillment or forfeiture; discharge; rights and liabilities of sureties.—A bail bond is operative after appearance until all preliminary motions are settled so that trial may commence and flight of defendant before such settlement will render his sureties liable.[24] Failure of defendant to appear at a subsequent term to which a cause is continued, without renewal of a recognizance conditioned that the accused shall appear at the next term of the district court, is not a breach of the bond,[25] and failure of defendant to appear after reversal for failure of jurisdiction, and remand of the case for disposal according to law, is not a violation of an undertaking requiring him to surrender himself "in execution of the judgment, if affirmed or modified, or reversed and the case remanded for a new trial, or the appeal is dismissed."[26] A bond on appeal from a conviction in a justice court conditioned that defendant would prosecute the appeal with effect and pay the fine and costs adjudged against him cannot be forfeited as to the sureties while he stands ready to meet such obligations.[27] Persons who enter a recognizance to appear at a certain term to await the action of the grand jury on a criminal charge fulfill the condition if they appear though the grand jury was not in session, and the court could not compel them to enter a recognizance to appear at a subsequent term.[28] A judgment of forfeiture cannot be entered against one who asked and was promised the court's indulgence because of absence of his counsel without giving him a reasonable opportunity to procure counsel.[29] Sureties on a recognizance on appeal from a conviction for a misdemeanor cannot relieve themselves from liability by surrendering the defendant,[30] and surrender of accused by his surety in another parish from the one in which the bond was given cannot discharge the surety.[31] Failure of the record to show that the court did not have jurisdiction of defendant, or that the proceeding for forfeiture of the recognizance was dismissed as to him, will not affect the validity of the judgment of forfeiture as against the surety.[32] The amount of forfeiture need not be stated in the judgment,[33] and where an additional bond was given, the original being abrogated, a declaration of forfeiture need not specify which bond was

21. Recognizance given before justice—In re Tomer (Del.) 3 Pennewill, 31.
22. Hall v. State, 130 Ala. 139.
23. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 2543—State v. Eyermann (Mo.) 72 S. W. 539.
24. Applications for change of venue, a continuance, and a demurrer to the jurisdiction decided against defendant were passed upon but the decision as to continuance and the demurrer were not entered or announced, under Code Cr. Proc. arts. 635, 641, 303-310, 577, 591—Fossett v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 322.
25. The order is limited to the term at which continuance is given—Perkins v. Milton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 756.
26. State v. Candland (Utah) 70 Pac. 403.
27. Humphries v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 527.
28. Recognizance taken before justice—In re Tomer (Del.) 3 Pennewill, 31.
29. Humphries v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 527.
30. Code Cr. Proc. arts. 310, 318, 324, 327 authorizing such surrender applies only to bail bonds—Talley v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 514.
31. Under Rev. St. § 1033—State v. Miller (La.) 33 So. 57.
32. State v. Eyermann (Mo.) 72 S. W. 539.
33. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 2800—State v. Eyermann (Mo.) 72 S. W. 539.

forfeited.[34] Failure to mark a recognizance as filed and to note the fact on the quarter session's docket will not render an adjudication of forfeiture void in an action on the recognizance.[35] A default of a recognizance entered by action of the prosecuting attorney, after final adjournment of the term and on reassembling of the court in the night, may be set aside or vacated in a direct proceeding as a fraud, and a cross complaint in an action on the bond setting up such facts, is such a direct proceeding;[36] but the forfeiture cannot be attacked collaterally in an action on the bond by answering that the forfeiture was not taken during the term, but after adjournment and during vacation, where the record does not show that it was not taken during the term.[37] Calling of defendant and forfeiture of his recognizance can be performed in term time only.[38]

§ 5. Enforcement of bond or recognizance.[39]—Recovery on a bail bond is not prevented by the omisssion of the clerk to record the forfeiture on the day it is adjudged.[40] A suit to recover on a forfeited bond must be brought in the quarter sessions court and an affidavit of defense may be required,[41] and a statement containing an exact copy of the recognizance and a reference to the place where the record of forfeiture may be found, as "the office of the clerk of the said court," is a sufficient reference to the records sued on.[42] In an action on the bond, the action of the circuit court in the taking of a recognizance will be presumed regular and it will be presumed that the instrument is valid.[43] Where no alias writ of scire facias was issued as to the principal on a forfeited recognizance, and he was not found, and the court did not dismiss as against him, it may proceed to judgment against sureties who have been served and have answered.[44] Execution on scire facias may be ordered against the defaulting defendants in a joint and several recognizance at one time, and against the defendant who goes to trial at another time, and the recognizance of record and judgment of forfeiture are competent and sufficient evidence under the appropriate averments in scire facias to authorize judgment of execution.[45] On appeal from a suit on a forfeited bond, the court may consider an indorsement on the bond in the record which shows the date of forfeiture.[46]

§ 6. Remission of forfeiture and return of deposit in lieu of bail.—On discharge, all money deposited by the accused in lieu of bail must be paid to defendant and not to one who furnished it.[47] Where on affirmance of a judgment against one for wife abandonment requiring him to pay a certain amount weekly for her support, he surrenders and moves that the money deposited with the city chamberlain instead of a bond be returned to him, he will be discharged, but the amount will be retained for the wife's support and the costs charged against him.[48] One

34. State v. Eyermann (Mo.) 72 S. W. 539.
35. It is to be presumed that the recognizance was before the court when the adjudication was made—Commonwealth v. Meeser, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.
36. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1443—State v. Hindman (Ind.) 65 N. E. 911.
37. State v. Hindman (Ind.) 65 N. E. 911.
38. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, §§ 1790, 1791, and Rev. St. 1881, §§ 147, 148 (Horner's Rev. St. 1901, §§ 1721, 1722)—State v. Hindman (Ind.) 65 N. E. 911.
39. Form of judgment after default in performance of the conditions of a recognizance; it need not be a money judgment—Burrall v. People, 103 Ill. App. 81. Sufficiency of scire facias on a recognizance under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 2543, 2549—State v. Abel, 170 Mo. 59.
40. The omission may be cured by amendment—Commonwealth v. Meeser, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.
41. Commonwealth v. Meeser, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.
42. Commonwealth v. Meeser, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.
43. State v. Eyermann (Mo.) 72 S. W. 539.
44. Under Rev. St. §§ 2800, 2556—State v. Abel, 170 Mo. 59.
45. The procedure on scire facias in such case was not changed by Cr. Code, div. 3, § 17—Burrall v. People, 103 Ill. App. 81.
46. Commonwealth v. Meeser, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.
47. For the purpose of the proceeding the money belonged to defendant and could not be subjected to the claim of his creditor—People v. Gould (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 505.

convicted in a city police court, governed by a charter providing that certiorari shall not be allowed on conviction for a violation of a city ordinance until the fine and all the costs are deposited in the city treasury, is entitled to have his money returned, if final decision on certiorari is in his favor.[49] Defendant cannot sue to recover money deposited in lieu of bail immediately after deposit because the conviction was not void but merely erroneous.[50] Interest cannot be recovered on the deposit on appeal from a conviction in a police court for violation of a city ordinance until after decision in the case and demand by defendant.[51]

BAILMENT.[1]

§ 1. The contract of bailment.—The distinction between a bailment and a sale lies in the obligation to restore the specific article.[2] A seller may before delivery be regarded as a depository for hire,[3] but a purchaser to whom a machine was shipped to be set up in running order, or his administrator, is not a bailee entitled to a lien on the machine for freight and expenses.[4] An innocent party to whom goods are delivered as part of a fraudulent scheme is not a bailee for the true owner.[5] The owner of a bath house is a bailee for hire of valuables deposited in the office at his direction.[6] One remaining in possession of a chattel after the expiration of a contract for its use is not a tenant from month to month.[7] If, after a bill of sale of crops to a creditor, the seller agrees to protect the crops and place them in a marketable condition subject to the order, the seller is a bailee of the buyer.[8]

§ 2. Rights and liabilities between bailor and bailee.[9]—The bailee of a horse for treatment is not liable for conversion where it appears that it was stolen without negligence.[10] One agreeing to take care of teams, who allows articles to be left in the office of his stable, is liable for their unexplained loss.[11] The burden is on the bailee to show that a loss or injury to property in his exclusive custody was not occasioned by his negligence.[12] Where goods delivered to be made up

48. People v. Burke (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 566.

49. The deposit is in lieu of a bond—Mayor, etc., of Savannah v. Kassell, 115 Ga. 310.

50. Mayor, etc., of Savannah v. Kassell, 115 Ga. 310.

51. Mayor, etc., of Savannah v. Kassell, 115 Ga. 310.

1. Other titles specially treating of special kinds of bailments should be consulted. See Animals (Agistment), Banking and Finance, Factors, Pledge.

2. Fleet v. Hertz, 98 Ill. App. 564. A receipt for wheat "to be paid for at market price on demand" may be construed to evidence a sale—Hagey v. Schroeder (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 598.

3. Rev. St. § 3252 makes the provision that the seller is bound to keep the property with ordinary care and is responsible for loss by negligence—Strong v. Morgan (Idaho) 67 Pac. 1123.

4. James Smith Woolen Mach. Co. v. Holden, 73 Vt. 396.

5. Swindlers ordered goods of the plaintiff and had them sent to the defendants who were in good standing. Then one of them telephoned defendants in plaintiff's name stating that the goods had been delivered by mistake and should be delivered to a person who would call for them, and defendants delivered the goods to a stranger presenting an order purporting to be signed by plaintiff—Krumsky v. Loeser (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 504.

6. Sulpho Saline Bath Co. v. Allen (Neb.) 92 N. W. 354.

7. Lighting apparatus—Bruckman v. Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co., 91 Mo. App. 454.

8. Trover will not lie without demand in the absence of evidence of actual conversion—Baston v. Rabun, 115 Ga. 378, 41 S. E. 568.

9. Pleading and evidence in action for damages. Petition is sufficient which states a contract to restore an animal on demand, alleges demand and refusal to return, and payment of charges and demands judgment for the value of the animal—Dixon v. McDonnell, 92 Mo. App. 479. In trover value stated by bailor of a wagon left for repair is the proper amount of recovery less the price of the repairs, where there is no other evidence—Bain v. Ganzer (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 621.

10. Dalley v. Black, 92 Mo. App. 228.

11. McKillop v. Reich (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 334.

12. Hislop v. Ordner (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 337; Sulpho Saline Bath Co. v. Allen (Neb.) 92 N. W. 354.

are stolen from a tailor before their return, he cannot recover for work done as against the manufacturer's counterclaim for value, on mere evidence that he had nothing to do with the theft.[13] Where the packages are returned intact by the bailee, the burden shifts.[14] The bailee may by contract exempt himself from liability for fire.[15] Where the bailee agrees to repay the value of property damaged or destroyed, he is liable, though the loss does not result from his negligence.[16] A bailee may be liable for a conversion, where he makes a wrongful use of the property.[17] A bailee of a wagon for repair, who dismantles it and loans its wheels, is liable for its value on refusal of a demand for the return of the property in the condition received.[18]

Where a check is left with a bailee, he is not authorized to negotiate it and appropriate the proceeds by reason of the fact that he has claims against the payees.[19] Where a landlord allowing goods to be stored on his premises reserves no right to retain them at the end of the term or to demand payment on removal, he has no lien for unpaid storage.[20] A bailee cannot hold adversely to the bailor until the bailor has notice of the inconsistent claim of title.[21]

§ 3. Rights and liabilities of third persons.—Property in the hands of the bailee is subject to garnishment for the bailor's debts,[22] but is not liable for the bailee's debts.[23] A bailor of property for sale has a right of possession enabling him to maintain replevin against a wrongful purchaser.[24]

BANKING AND FINANCE.

§ 1. The occupation in general; regulation, supervision, control.—In determining whether a corporation is a banking institution, the court will consider

13. Rothoser v. Cosel (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 337.

14. As where stored liquor is lost by leakage—Taussig v. Bode & Haslett, 134 Cal. 260, 66 Pac. 259, 54 L. R. A. 774. Sufficiency of evidence to show lack of proper care in permitting a horse to be overdriven—Pelton v. Nichols, 180 Mass. 245. Evidence held insufficient to show that death of a horse was caused by bailee's negligence—Hislop v. Ordner (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 337. Evidence held insufficient to show neglect in case of horse under contract of agistment—Dixon v. McDonnell, 92 Mo. App. 479.

15. A provision that a miller shall not be responsible for a loss of a deposit of wheat covers a loss of flour in which form the deposit was to be returned—Wells v. Porter, 169 Mo. 252.

16. Where leased fire extinguishers were burned—Rapid Safety Fire Extinguisher Co. v. Hay-Budden Mfg. Co. (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 556.

17. As where wheat left with a miller to be returned or purchased when the owner is ready to sell is ground into flour by the miller without the owner's consent—Mayer v. Springer, 192 Ill. 270.

18. Bain v. Ganzer (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 621.

19. Keiner v. Folsom, 113 N. Y. State Rep. 1099.

20. As where after the expiration of the lease, the tenant is allowed to leave his goods for a certain sum payable monthly—Webster v. Keck (Neb.) 89 N. W. 410.

21. Rice v. Connelly, 71 N. H. 382.

22. Construing Pub. St. c. 245, § 19, and holding liable one having in his possession money taken from an intoxicated person for safe keeping—Canning v. Knights, 71 N. H. 404.

23. Horses in the hands of a trainer cannot be attached by his creditors though entered in the races in his name—Anderson v. Heile, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1115, 64 S. W. 849.

the articles of incorporation, the character of its business and any not unwarranted construction which the officers have placed on its charter powers.[1]

State aid.—A bank is not liable on state bonds issued in its aid,[2] but may purchase them as an investment,[3] and does not thereby extinguish them.[4]

Statutes against the issuance of circulating mediums do not prevent issuance of checks to employees payable in merchandise at a company's store.[5]

§ 2. Associated or incorporated bankers; corporate existence generally.[6]—Constitutional provisions relating to the formation of corporations, include banking corporations though there are provisions of the constitution relating specially thereto.[7] By-laws remain operative after expiration of the original charter where it is renewed by a direction that the period of its existence shall be extended as fully as if provided in the original charter.[8]

Stock subscriptions must be paid in cash where there is no statutory provision otherwise.[9] If choses in action are accepted, the directors are bound to the exercise of ordinary care in ascertaining that they are of the value for which they are taken.[10] Creditors may enforce payment of the par value of stock though the bank has no cause of action, and without showing what has been done with stock notes,[11] and directors of an adjudged insolvent bank may make assessments without leave of court.[12] Certificates of deposits issued shareholders on reduction of capital stock are without consideration where the liabilities exceed assets.[13] There can be no recovery thereon against the bank's receiver,[14] and payments thereon may be recovered by him.[15]

Dividends paid a stockholder in an insolvent bank in disobedience of the banking act may be recovered by the corporation, and on its failure to do so, a 24. A bailee of law books has not a right of possession against his principal so as to defeat such an action—Lucas v. Rader, 29 Ind. App. 287.

1. A corporation which receives money on deposit, pays it on checks, buys and sells commercial paper and forwards exchange under articles of incorporation stating the general nature of the business to be to negotiate loans, purchase and sell notes, stocks and bonds, borrow money, receive money on deposit and execute drafts is a bank and its stockholders are liable for its debts. (Const. art. 11b, § 7)—Hamilton Nat. Bank v. American L. & T. Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 159.

2. The banking department of the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana created under the act of 1853 is not liable for the bonded debt of the state incurred in 1836 in aid of the bank—Hope v. Board of Liquidation, 108 La. 315.

3. Banking department of the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana created under acts 1853, No. 246 has such power—Hope v. Board of Liquidation, 108 La. 315.

4. The Citizens' Bank of Louisiana is to the same extent as other persons entitled to benefits of a funding scheme under act Jan. 24, 1874, for such bonds held by it—Hope v. Board of Liquidation, 108 La. 315.

5. Construing Sand. & H. Dig., c. 18—Martin-Alexander Lumber Co. v. Johnson, 70 Ark. 215.

6. A new corporation is created by Acts 1853, No. 246, for the reorganization of the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana after the adoption under such act of the articles of association by the creditors—Hope v. Board of Liquidation, 108 La. 315.

7. Construing Const. 1846, art. 8, §§ 1-3, 4, 7—Barnes v. Arnold, 169 N. Y. 611.

8. So held in a suit by the receiver of a bank against its directors—Campbell v. Watson, 50 N. J. Eq. 396.

9. Payment in notes, judgments, etc., cannot be permitted—Coddington v. Canaday, 157 Ind. 243.

10. Coddington v. Canaday, 157 Ind. 243.

11. Stock certificates were assessed by the bank at less than par, by agreement and the bank accepted the shareholder's proportion of fictitious profits in discharge of his liability to pay money for the stock—Gager v. Paul, 111 Wis. 638.

12. Banking Act of 1895, St. 1895, p. 175—Union Sav. Bank v. Dunlap, 135 Cal. 628, 67 Pac. 1084.

13. Where the capital stock and indebtedness of a bank are considerably in excess of its assets, certificates of deposit issued to stockholders to the amount of one-half the original capital on reduction of the capital stock one-half, will be regarded as without consideration as against the receiver and creditors—State v. Bank of Ogallala (Neb.) 90 N. W. 961.

14. A bank holding stock as collateral which surrenders it under such agreement is in the same position as an ordinary stockholder—State v. Bank of Ogallala (Neb.) 90 N. W. 961.

15. Action may be brought at any time within four years—State v. Bank of Ogallala (Neb.) 90 N. W. 961.

creditor may proceed in equity.[16] Banking corporations are subject to the joint and several liability imposed on directors of corporations in general, who pay dividends before full payment of the capital stock, when the corporation is insolvent or in danger of insolvency, without reason to believe that there were profits sufficient to pay such dividends without diminishing the capital.[17]

Transfer of stock.—If a bank has notice of an assignment of capital stock, it is not entitled to deal with the former holder as a stockholder, though there has been no effort to secure a formal transfer of stock on the corporate books. Otherwise in the absence of notice.[18] The bank's charter may validly provide that shareholders who have failed to respond to calls or who are indebted to the bank cannot transfer stock without permission.[19]

Lien on stock.—A bank may have a superior lien on stock to the extent of an authorized loan, though it has violated its charter by making a loan greater in amount than authorized to the stockholder.[20] Though a loan to a stockholder is greater than authorized by its charter, an assignee of the stock cannot insist that it be transferred to him until all the indebtedness of the assignor contracted prior to notice of the assignment is paid, in case he is not willing to pay such an amount as will discharge the lien on the stock given the bank by its charter.[21] The assignee cannot insist that payment made by the assignor should be applied otherwise than as directed by him, and on an action to determine whether the indebtedness to the bank has been fully paid, authorizing the assignee to demand a transfer of the stock on the books of the bank, the only question involved is whether payments by the assignor have been applied as directed, or if no direction has been made, applied as required by law.[22]

General powers.—A corporation exercising banking powers may guaranty bonds of a railroad company in which it owns the majority of the stock,[23] may issue certificates of deposit payable at a day fixed, with interest,[24] or may collect and remit money payable under a lease.[25] The maker of a note cannot defend against a banking corporation thereon, on the ground that the bank had no authority to purchase it.[26]

Personal liability of directors and officers.—Bank directors are liable for losses and waste of money and property occurring through their gross inattention to the business of the bank or their willful violation of their duties,[27] as where they have allowed over-drafts by a cashier,[28] or failed to discover abstractions extending over several years which could have been discovered by a mere adjustment of accounts.[29] They are not excused by reliance upon statements of the officers and occasional 16. Rev. St. 1898, § 2024, subsec. 40—Gager v. Paul, 111 Wis. 638.

17. Construing R. S. 1898, § 1765—Williams v. Brewster (Wis.) 93 N. W. 479.

18. Charter provided that an assignment of its stock should not be valid against it unless a formal transfer was made on its books—People's Bank of Talbotton v. Exchange Bank of Macon (Ga.) 43 S. E. 269.

19. Lyman v. State Bank of Randolph, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 901.

20. Charter provisions limiting the amount of loans to any one person to one-tenth of the paid up capital stock and also that the shares of any stockholder shall be bound to the bank for dues or indebtedness of the stockholder to the bank and conferring a lien thereon superior to all other liens—People's Bank of Talbotton v. Exchange Bank of Macon (Ga.) 43 S. E. 269.

21. People's Bank of Talbotton v. Exchange Bank of Macon (Ga.) 43 S. E. 269.

22. People's Bank of Talbotton v. Exchange Bank of Macon (Ga.) 43 S. E. 269.

23. Central R. & B. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 114 Fed. 263, 52 C. C. A. 149.

24. Though Civil Code, § 576, expressly vested such power in savings banks—Abbott v. Jack, 136 Cal. 510, 69 Pac. 257.

25. Knapp v. Saunders, 15 S. D. 464.

26. Black v. First Nat. Bank, 96 Md. 399.

27. Construing Burns' Rev. St. 1894, §§ 2922-2925, 2927, 2929, 2934—Coddington v. Canaday, 157 Ind. 243.

28. Evidence held sufficient to show negligence on the part of directors rendering them liable for moneys abstracted by the cashier and overdrafts permitted after notice from the bank examiner—Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.

29. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.

examination by the state officials,[30] especially where they have failed to appoint a committee to examine the bank's affairs every three months as required by a by-law,[31] though ignorant of the by-law,[32] or though it has been long disregarded.[33] Officers and directors of a bank are not responsible for depreciation of the value of its stock due to their errors in judgment and not to negligence. Directors who by reason of absence from the state or sickness failed to have knowledge of a hazardous loan made by the vice-president and manager and who make all reasonable efforts to collect the loan after discovering it are not liable to stockholders for depreciation in the stock.[34] A loan may be made by the manager of a bank to an insolvent corporation under such circumstances that the cashier who enters the amount of the loan to the credit of the corporation with knowledge of its insolvency may not be negligent so as to render himself liable to the stockholders for depreciation in the value of the stock.[35] Where a bank director has had knowledge of insolvency, he may be personally liable to subsequent depositors. To relieve himself, he must warn individual depositors of insolvency or proceed through the board of directors, superintendent of the banking department, or cashier to discontinue the taking of deposits.[36] His knowledge is established by evidence of an inspection of books at a director's meeting showing the surplus to be gone and the capital to be impaired.[37] Where a prima facie case of fraud is made, the burden of explaining is on the director.[38]

An action against wrong doing directors which would ordinarily be brought by the corporation may be brought by the stockholders affected, where the present directors are the ones charged with the misconduct.[39] A shareholder whose stock has been sold on failure to pay assessments necessitated by negligent loans of the directors may maintain an action in behalf of himself and others in the same position, to compel the directors to repay him the value of his stock as it was before their acts of negligence. Such action may be brought within ten years.[40] A bank's creditors after its insolvency,[41] or a receiver given power to take charge of a bank's property and prosecute all actions necessary in the discharge of his duties, may sue the directors for negligence,[42] and the receiver may assert on behalf of creditors claims which the stockholders could not.[43] Action may be brought before the total losses have been determined and the limit of the director's liability fixed.[44]

Powers of officers and right to represent bank.—One who has taken advantage of the acts of bank officers is estopped to deny the authority to make them,[45] and the

30. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.
31. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.
32. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.
33. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.
34. Warren v. Robison (Utah) 70 Pac. 989.
35. A cashier's contract of employment provided that he should not be charged with the responsibility of making loans and selecting securities. The manager of a bank without knowledge of the cashier negotiated a loan to the corporation and took its note indorsed by a solvent firm—Warren v. Robison (Utah) 70 Pac. 989.
36. It is not a defense that the director has expressed an opinion that deposits should not be received and there has been an arrangement which was not carried out for their receipt under proper restrictions—Cassidy v. Uhlmann, 170 N. Y. 505.
37. It may be shown as part of the res gestae that after insolvency checks were drawn at a director's meeting in favor of certain persons with whom the bank was in close relations, for more than the visible assets of the bank and were paid through the clearing house—Cassidy v. Uhlmann, 170 N. Y. 505.
38. Cassidy v. Uhlmann, 170 N. Y. 505.
39. So held in an action by share holders to recover damages resulting from a sale of stock on non-payment of an assessment, necessitated by negligent loans of the directors—Hanna v. People's Nat. Bank, 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 517.
40. Hanna v. People's Nat. Bank, 35 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 517.
41. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.
42. Construing Burns' Supp. 1897, § 2938, Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1242—Coddington v. Canaday, 157 Ind. 243.
43. As where the stockholders have authorized the directors to accept doubtful judgments and notes in payment of subscriptions—Coddington v. Canaday, 157 Ind. 243.
44. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.
45. A borrower of money cannot deny bank may be estopped to deny the legitimacy of acts which it has permitted its president to perform.[46] Officers other than the cashier may have authority to receive deposits.[47] Such authority must be determined by the actual facts and not the opinions of other officers.[48] The president of a bank may contract to loan money for the purchase of specific property, and may testify thereto.[49] He cannot bind the bank by false representations, of which it has not actual knowledge when acting for himself,[50] or by a statement on an application for a bond by its cashier from a surety company.[51] Cashiers are in the same status as to agency as other persons in a fiduciary relation.[52] A cashier may cancel an indemnifying bond and accept a new one.[53] He has power to sign certificates of deposit from power to sign all papers connected with the business.[54] Evidence of authority to issue certificates of deposit.[55] A bank may be liable for the acts of its cashier and general manager in undertaking to make investments.[56] In an action on a note, the cashier need not make express proof of his authority.[57] The teller has no implied authority to certify checks in the absence of a custom to certify and subsequent payment of certified checks by the bank.[58]

Unauthorized acts.—Acts of an officer outside the usual scope of his authority to which the bank is not a party and of which it has no notice are not binding on it.[59] They must be acts within the reasonable or apparent scope of his authority or which are done with the knowledge and approval of the directors or are similar to those which have been so done or which have been afterwards ratified by the bank's acceptance of benefits thereunder,[60] but a bank to escape liability for fraud of its officers cannot deny their authority to represent it in the usual course of authority of president to make the loan or dictate its terms—Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

46. Arrangement of a loan of money for the purchase of stock—Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

47. As where an officer of a bank who generally attended the loan department and who had authority to sign and indorse checks and certificates of deposit in the absence of the cashier received a check at the ordinary window and turned it over to the teller—Burnell v. San Francisco Sav. Union, 136 Cal. 499, 69 Pac. 144.

48. Burnell v. San Francisco Sav. Union, 136 Cal. 499, 69 Pac. 144.

49. Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

50. The president with another was surety on a bond given for the performance of a railroad contract and on the contractors being about to abandon the work, informed the other surety that if he would make a note, the president had a contract with the railroad company which would protect them and that the first money paid under the contract should be applied to the note, which was desired merely to show the bank examiner, and it was held that the bank having advanced money on the note could hold the co-surety liable therefor—National Bank of Cleburne v. Carper (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 188.

51. United States F. & G. Co. v. Muir (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 264.

52. Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 301.

53. A surety on the first bond pleaded that the bond had been surrendered and cancelled and another one taken and plaintiff denied the authority of its cashier in such matters. The cashier was by a by-law given general charge of books, papers and property of the bank and generally determined the rate of discount and looked after the securities and had general charge of the lending of the money. The bond was one indemnifying the bank against all discount, etc., of the paper of a certain corporation—German Am. Bank v. Schwinger, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 393.

54. Abbott v. Jack, 136 Cal. 510, 69 Pac. 257.

55. Semi-annual statements of the bank's cashier and evidence of the custom of the bank in issuing certificates of deposit are admissible—Abbott v. Jack, 136 Cal. 510, 69 Pac. 257.

56. The cashier exhibited statements to the depositor taken from the books of the bank which purported to show that investments were made by the bank for the depositor—Bobb v. Sav. Bank of Louisville, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 817, 64 S. W. 494.

57. Battersbee v. Calkins (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 778, 87 N. W. 760.

58. Muth v. St. Louis Trust Co., 94 Mo. App. 94.

59. Jones v. First Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 912. A bank is not liable for a draft fraudulently issued by cashier to pay his own debt, where it is not shown that there is any authorization or ratification by the directors and the president and directors could not have discovered the fraud by the exercise of any care—Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 301.

60. Hill v. Bank of Seneca, 87 Mo. App. 590.

business,[61] so it may be liable to a third person for a draft on a correspondent signed by its cashier and entered at less than its face.[62] Ratification may result from acceptance of benefits,[63] and an unauthorized act cannot thereafter be questioned.[64] There can be no authorization or ratification of unknown and concealed fraudulent acts,[65] and if a draft and the entry on the stub of the draft book are regular on their face, there is no evidence of negligence in the officers of the bank in failing to discover its fraudulent character from an inspection so as to raise an implied ratification.[66] Where the cashier of a banking corporation directs another bank to apply the corporation's deposit to his own indebtedness, a defense of estoppel in an action by the corporation to recover the deposit need not be based on defendant's ignorance of the cashier's authority, there being positive evidence that defendant knew nothing of the misappropriation of the money, and no proof of knowledge of his want of authority.[67]

Official or individual capacity.—It is to be presumed that the acts of an officer are done officially rather than individually.[68] They should be at the usual place of business of the bank unless otherwise authorized or ratified.[69] If a cashier is dealt with as an individual, it cannot afterward be claimed that it was a bank transaction.[70] There is no presumption that a cashier has official authority with regard to a transaction relative to his own business,[71] and if the act is known to be an individual one, the burden is on the other party to show that it was authorized by the bank or ratified.[72] Representations made by a cashier for the purpose of enabling its debtor to continue in business may be regarded as for the benefit of the bank.[73] A bank may be liable in tort to a person injured by a false statement in a certificate of deposit, of the source from which a deposit arose, made by the cashier in the interest of the bank, though not expressly authorized by the board of directors.[74] A bank is not responsible for representations of a defaulting officer made, after the bank has gone into the hands of the comptroller, for the

61. Acts of president and cashier in collecting money, depositing it to the credit of a customer and paying checks against it—Citizens' Bank v. Fromholz (Neb.) 89 N. W. 775.

62. Where a cashier has been allowed to overdraw and make drafts for his personal use and has power to sign drafts on a correspondent, the bank cannot recover from the payee of a draft, the difference between its face and the amount for which it was fraudulently entered on the bank's books—Campbell v. Upton, 171 N. Y. 644.

63. Ratification of the surrender by a cashier of a bond given to indemnify the bank against certain discounts is shown by the fact that the bank officials knew that the discounts were in excess of the amount secured by the bond and in endeavoring to recover for the discounts sued on the substituted bond first—German Am. Bank v. Schwinger, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 393. See as to sufficiency of evidence of ratification of a contract by cashier for the threshing of wheat on which a bank held a mortgage—Hill v. Bank of Seneca, 87 Mo. App. 590.

64. Arrangement for a loan of money for the purchase of stock—Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

65. Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 301.

66. Action by receiver to recover money paid on the draft—Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 301.

67. Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 612.

68. A cashier receiving money on a lease and depositing it subject to the check of the person to whom it is due—Knapp v. Saunders, 15 S. D. 464.

69. Jones v. First Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 912.

70. As where he so acts in securing a draft—Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 301.

71. Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 57 N. J. Law, 301.

72. Campbell v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 57 N. J. Law, 301.

73. As where the cashier advised one about to sell goods to an insolvent indebted to the bank, who was engaged on government contract work that the insolvent's note would be paid, though the bank did not realize any profit from the sale of the goods to the insolvent—Taylor v. Commercial Bank, 68 App. Div. (N. Y.) 458.

74. As where the cashier certifies to a state insurance commissioner that an insurance company has on deposit a sum paid in as the full amount of its capital stock, where the deposit in fact consisted largely of the proceeds of notes given in payment for stock discounted on the company's indorsement and for which the stock was held as collateral security, the certificate being made to enable the bank to secure a deposit from the company or to sell the stock held as collateral—Hindman v. First Nat. Bank, 112 Fed. 931, 50 C. C. A. 623.

purpose of obtaining collateral securities from a third person.[75] Where a bank cashier makes a sale in which he and another are jointly interested and deposits the entire proceeds in his own name and converts them to his own use, no one connected with the bank having anything to do with the transaction or having any knowledge of the third person's interest, the bank occupies no trust relation towards such person.[76] Where a broker receives a draft to be used in speculation, drawn by the cashier of the bank payable to himself, the broker is placed on inquiry as to the ownership of the funds.[77] A broker who receives drafts drawn by the cashier of a bank to his own order for use in speculation may be liable to the true owner for the funds used, though he had no knowledge of the ownership, but may be given credit for the proceeds of money repaid by him which may be traced into the hands of the owner, though he cannot have credit for moneys merely traced to the cashier.[78]

Notice to bank from knowledge of officers.—A bank is chargeable with the knowledge of its agent.[79] Knowledge of a bank cashier concerning acts done in the scope of his authority must be imputed to the bank,[80] as when acquired by the cashier in the reception of a deposit.[81] The bank is not chargeable with notice of fraudulent acts of an officer for his personal ends and outside the scope of his authority,[82] such as knowledge of its cashier that he has no authority to pledge a certificate of stock indorsed in blank for his personal debt,[83] and so knowledge gained by a cashier as president of another corporation is not imputed to the bank where he is acting, as for the bank in his own interests.[84] Notice to a director privately or received by him through sources open to persons generally, and which he has not communicated, is notice to the bank.[85] Change in officers does not affect notice previously acquired.[86]

Insolvency.—A creditor who appears and makes no objection on the hearing of a receiver's report recommending the allowance of claims cannot afterwards contend that certain of the claims were invalid.[87] Failure of consideration may be urged against an action by a receiver.[88] Claims purchased after its insolvency cannot be set off against a debt owing a bank.[89] On a contention that claims sought to be set off against defendant's note were purchased after insolvency, a stipulation that a bank went into insolvency expresses a positive and affirmative act on the part of the bank.[90]

75. Tecumseh Nat. Bank v. Chamberlain Banking House, 63 Neb. 163.

76. Bank of Overton v. Thompson (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 798.

77. Mendel v. Boyd (Neb.) 91 N. W. 860.

78. Mendel v. Boyd (Neb.) 91 N. W. 860.

79. Where he has knowledge that the notes and mortgage securing them are fraudulent and without consideration, the bank cannot hold notes as collateral—Baldwin v. Davis (Iowa) 91 N. W. 778.

80. Such as knowledge of the condition of stock which he purchased as cashier—Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Loyd, 89 Mo. App. 262.

81. As where a married woman deposits a conveyance of her property with the bank's cashier to be delivered on payment of the purchase money and on receipt of the purchase money the cashier in violation of his agreement places it to the credit of the woman's husband—Rhinehart v. People's Bank, 89 Mo. App. 511.

82. Jones v. First Nat. Bank (Neb.) 90 N. W. 912. A bank is not chargeable with notice of the fraudulent purpose of a director in obtaining a loan from his mere capacity as a director—Southern Commercial Sav. Bank v. Slattery's Adm'r, 166 Mo. 620.

83. Brady v. Mt. Morris Bank, 65 App. Div. (N. Y.) 212.

84. Note of a corporation received by it without consideration and discounted by the cashier after consultation with the directors —People's Sav. Bank v. Hine (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 283, 91 N. W. 130.

85. Black v. First Nat. Bank, 96 Md. 399.

86. United States Nat. Bank v. Forstedt (Neb.) 90 N. W. 919.

87. There was advertisement for the presentation of claims and filing of objections. The claims in controversy were asserted to represent an illegal deposit of public funds —Baker v. Williams, etc., Banking Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 711.

88. As where notes are given for accommodation to swell the apparent assets of a bank—Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Brady, 165 Mo. 197.

89. Dyer v. Sebrell, 135 Cal. 597, 67 Pac. 1036.

90. Dyer v. Sebrell, 135 Cal. 597, 67 Pac. 1036.

Winding up.—In order that directors acting as trustees in statutory proceedings to wind up the affairs of a bank be removed, the petition must show malfeasance or nonfeasance sufficient to warrant the same.[91]

Reorganization.—Creditors who acquiesce in proceedings for reorganization may by the acceptance of benefits be estopped from denying their validity.[92]

Stockholders' individual liability.—A law imposing a liability on stockholders may affect stockholders of a bank organized prior to its passage,[93] though statutes providing for procedure to enforce stockholders' liability do not apply to actions actually pending,[94] and may operate on stockholders becoming such either before or after the time when they take effect.[95] In order to impose an individual liability on its stockholders, the corporation need not exercise all the functions of a banking corporation.[96] Acceptance of stock issued is not essential to fix liability on the person who allows it to stand on the corporate books in his name.[97] Under statutes providing for continuation of liability after assignment of stock the liability is limited to creditors at the time of transfer,[98] and notice of transfer need be given only where the stockholder is liable for an existing debt.[99] Liability exists for deposits.[1] Stockholders' individual liability under certain statutes may only be enforced by the creditors.[2] The court may authorize the receiver to compromise, it being within his authority to compound bad or doubtful debts.[3] Where stockholders of an insolvent bank are made liable as such for one year after the transfer of stock, liability continues one year beyond the time fixed for the payment of debts in proceedings for reorganization.[4] Action is regarded as begun at the time of service of summons.[5] A demand is not necessary before suit,[6] and

91. A petition which fails to state extravagance, negligence or delay in performance of the duties by the trustees, or that they have violated any law or contract, done any wrong or withheld any right or threatened any such thing is insufficient—Sands v. Gund (Neb.) 93 N. W. 990.

92. As where creditors accept certificates of deposit after the organization under L. 1897, c. 89 without questioning the validity of the re-organization, they cannot state that it was void because based on a petition formerly dismissed by a judge other than the one granting the order but without his knowledge—Hunt v. Roosen, 87 Minn. 68. Evidence held to show acquiescence of creditors in proceedings for re-organization of an insolvent bank—Hunt v. Roosen, 87 Minn. 68.

93. Construing L. 1882, c. 409, Banking Law 1892, § 52, and statutory construction law, § 31—Hagmayer v. Alten, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 59.

94. Under L. 1897, c. 441, amending L. 1892, c. 689, § 52, requiring proceedings to be conducted only in the name and behalf of a receiver on dissolution of a bank, actions actually pending are not affected, nor does it apply to defendants not yet served in an action actually pending—Mahoney v. Bernhard, 169 N. Y. 589.

95. Banking Law 1892, § 52—Hagmayer v. Alten, 36 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 59.

96. Const. art. 11b, § 7—Hamilton Nat. Bank v. American L. & T. Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 189.

97. A wife may be regarded as having been an owner notwithstanding on being notified of the issue of stock to her she refused to receive it and assigned it to her husband, but continued to appear as holder on the books—Construing Civil Code, § 322, defining the term "stockholder" to include equitable owners as well as those evidenced as owners on the books of the corporation—Abbott v. Jack, 136 Cal. 510, 69 Pac. 257.

98. Construing Rev. St. 1898, § 2024, subsec. 16, and holding that an action must be commenced within six months after the transfer—Gager v. Paul, 111 Wis. 638.

99. So held construing charter of a state bank providing that stockholders shall be liable as sureties to the extent of the par value of their stock at the time of the creation of the debt, and Code 1882, § 1496, and exempting from liability as to debts subsequently contracted without reference to his holding one who for a short time held stock as collateral—Brunswick Terminal Co. v. National Bank of Baltimore, 112 Fed. 812.

1. Under Stock Corporation Law (L. 1890, c. 564, § 58), providing that stockholders shall not be liable for corporate debts not payable within two years from the time they are contracted or unless the corporation is sued within two years after they become due—Barnes v. Arnold, 169 N. Y. 611.

2. Cannot be collected by corporate officer or receiver. Const. art. 11b, § 7—Hamilton Nat. Bank v. Am. Loan & Trust Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 189.

3. Where liability was denied and stockholders were insolvent (Comp. St. c. 8, § 35)—State v. German Sav. Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 414.

4. Construing Laws 1897, c. 89, § 4—Hunt v. Roosen, 87 Minn. 68.

5. Rev. St. 1898, § 4239—Gager v. Paul, 111 Wis. 638.

6. Parker v. Adams (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 325.

the receiver need not have secured the return nulla bona of executions against himself on all claims.[7] The stockholders cannot defend on the ground that he has unreported assets,[8] or because of failure to collect all of a first assessment, or the sale of a large part of the assets at a low price under order of court.[9] The number of shares defendant held, the total number of the shares, and the amount and date of the debts, should be shown.[10] On an issue of insolvency, the receiver appointed after the voluntary closing of a bank may testify to the steps taken to collect paper coming into his hands and state that he is unable to say when any of it will be paid, and a witness may testify that his note, long overdue, was accommodation paper and his written assumption of its payment executed concurrently may be introduced.[11] Interest from the date of judgment only may be allowed.[12] A stockholder may be liable for interest from the time of closing to the time of payment, in excess of the amount of deposit and contractual interest to the time of the closing.[13] Payments by a stockholder by reason of his indorsement of the bank's paper in excess of his statutory liability may be pleaded as an equitable set-off.[14]

§ 3. National banks; officers and examiners.—The liabilities of directors of national banks may be shifted by them to sub-committees.[15] A bank examiner is not the agent of the bank in its negotiations tending towards a resumption of business.[16]

Powers.—National banks have no powers except those expressly granted or incidental to the business for which they are established.[17] They cannot become sureties in a replevin suit.[18] They may purchase bonds issued by a city board of education.[19] A bank has power to lease ground under an agreement that it will erect a building thereon and may erect a building more than sufficient for its own use, if adapted to make the property most productive. The lease may be for a term exceeding its corporate life, and the aggregate rental may exceed the capital stock.[20] A national bank may be substituted to the rights of a surety who has taken a mortgage on real estate though the bank itself has no power to take such a mortgage.[21]

7. Brinkworth v. Hazlett (Neb.) 90 N. W. 537.

8. Brinkworth v. Hazlett (Neb.) 90 N. W. 537.

9. Beckham v. Hague (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 606.

10. Under 1 Mills' Ann. St. § 518, declaring stockholders of a banking corporation individually liable for all its debts contracted while they were stockholders equally and ratably to the extent of their shares —Richardson v. Boot (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 454.

11. State v. Stevens (S. D.) 92 N. W. 420.

12. If the recovery is not made greater than the par value of the stock. Construing L. 1892, c. 689—Mahoney v. Bernhard (N. Y.) 45 App. Div. 499.

13. Parker v. Adams (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 325.

14. Strauss v. Denny, 95 Md. 690.

15. As where discounting and examining committees are appointed, which permit the cashier during the period of three years to discount doubtful notes for a certain person to the extent of two-thirds of the capital. It is held that the committees were liable to the injured stockholders—Hanna v. People's Nat. Bank (N. Y.) 35 Misc. Rep. 517.

16. So his representations in regard to the liability of a defaulting officer of the bank and as to the value and condition of the securities already furnished by him are not binding on the bank and one who furnishes collateral security to a defaulting officer for his indorsements on paper previously sold by him to the bank cannot rely on such representation as a defense in an action by the bank to foreclose its lien on such securities —Tecumseh Nat. Bank v. Chamberlain Banking House, 63 Neb. 163.

17. Bailey v. Farmers' Nat. Bank, 97 Ill. App. 66.

18. Bailey v. Farmers' Nat. Bank, 97 Ill. App. 66.

19. Rev. St. U. S. § 5136; Comp. Sts. U. S. 1901, p. 3455—Newport Nat. Bank v. Board of Education, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 876, 70 S. W. 186.

20. The lessor of land to a bank is not accountable to the stockholders or creditors of the bank because the bank exceeded its powers in the expenditure of money in erection of a building thereon which was to become part of the realty and more than was required by the terms of the lease, and such excessive expenditure is not a lien on the property after it has returned to the hands of the lessor—Brown v. Schleier (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 981.

21. Magoffin v. Boyle Nat. Bank, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 585, 69 S. W. 702.

Violation of banking act.—An action by the shareholders against directors for violation of the national banking act may be maintained where the bank fails to bring an action against the directors after request, and it may be brought before dissolution of the bank, in behalf of all shareholders, and the bank made a party. One shareholder cannot maintain such an action for his benefit alone while the bank is a going concern.[22]

Stock.—A transfer of national bank stock is not void for reason that at the time of the transfer, the assets of the bank are unequal to the discharge of its liabilities, if such fact is unknown to the seller, though he has knowledge that the bank has less than the legal reserve, and the fact that the purchaser of bank shares is insolvent, where the seller has no knowledge of such fact, does not render the sale void on a subsequent suspension of the bank.[23] The directors of a national bank are not authorized to make an assessment to pay a deficiency in the capital stock but an assessment for such purpose, under Rev. St. § 5205, must be made by the shareholders.[24]

Lien on stock.—The indorser of a note to a national bank is not released by the fact that the bank allowed the maker to part with his stock, since the national bank has no lien on such stock.[25] The bank may hold its stock as collateral security for a portion of its purchase price.[26] A lien on stock for indebtedness to the bank created after receipt of notice of pledge is inferior to the rights of the pledgee.[27]

Receivership.—The appointment of a receiver on insolvency of a national bank, by the comptroller, does not end its legal existence so as to render it unable to sue and be sued.[28] The receiver has no rights in excess of those of the bank, its stockholders, and creditors.[29] He does not have all the powers of the United States in its sovereign capacity.[30]

Enforcement of stockholders' liability.—On voluntary liquidation of a national bank, the individual liability of stockholders may be enforced only by a proceeding in equity in the nature of a creditor's suit in behalf of all the creditors brought in the district in which the bank is located, and, if ancillary proceedings are necessary against nonresident stockholders, they should be authorized by the court of original jurisdiction and brought by the receiver or some person appointed by the court.[31] Where the comptroller of the currency fixes the amount of personal liability of a stockholder in an insolvent bank and decides that it is necessary to enforce it, the claim may be sold or assigned by the receiver as other assets of the bank. The comptroller's decision as to the necessity of instituting proceedings cannot be questioned in other litigation.[32] Where transfer by the receiver

22. Zinn v. Baxter, 65 Ohio St. 341.

23. R. S. U. S. § 5191, U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3486, does not cause a reduction of the reserve below the legal requirement to create a presumption of inability to continue business—Earle v. Carson, 188 U. S. 42.

24. Weinhard v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 68 Pac. 806, 41 Or. 359; Williams v. Same, Id.

25. Smith v. First Nat. Bank, 115 Ga. 608.

26. Rev. St. U. S. § 5201, U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3494—Brown v. Ohio Nat. Bank, 18 App. D. C. 598.

27. Curtice v. Crawford County Bank (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 390.

28. So where the legal title but not the exclusive ownership of a note is in the name of the bank, a suit on the note may be maintained in the bank's name—Camp v. First Nat. Bank (Fla.) 33 So. 241.

29. He cannot set aside, on the ground of ultra vires, an executed contract or have property charged with a lien for money expended under such a contract; as where property has been leased, money expended in the erection of a banking house and the building subsequently surrendered to the owner of the land and the lease cancelled—Brown v. Schleier (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 577.

30. He cannot maintain an action based on the ultra vires character of a contract made ten years prior to his appointment and not at the time objected to by the United States or stockholders—Brown v. Schleier (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 981.

31. Williamson v. American Bank (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 793.

32. Waldron v. Alling (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 86.

to plaintiff is established, it will be presumed that the formalities requisite to the validity of a transfer had been complied with.[33] A special authority conferred by the comptroller on the receiver of a national bank to bring actions for an assessment is not revoked by a general authority to compromise or settle all the claims or assets of the bank.[34] A second assessment may be made by the comptroller where the first is insufficient to meet the debts if the two do not exceed the amount of liability.[35] The stock register is not conclusive as to persons liable to assessment after insolvency of a national bank.[36] The complaint in a proceeding to recover an assessment need not directly allege the amount of capital stock.[37]

The limitation of actions to enforce liability begins to run from the time the assessment is levied,[38] and the action may be barred notwithstanding Act June 30, 1876, § 2, 19 Sts. 63, ch. 156, provides that an action to enforce the individual liabilities of a shareholder in a national bank, under Rev. Sts. U. S. § 5151, shall not be barred as long as there are outstanding claims against the bank. Such actions are within the meaning of a limitation act relating to actions on contracts not in writing, expressed or implied or on a liability created by statute.[39] Uncontradicted evidence of the receiver that he made personal demand on the stockholder who admitted having received notice of the assessment is sufficient to show notice and demand.[40]

State interference and powers of state courts.—Where the charter of a national bank has expired and it is in process of liquidation, the officers may, by the supreme court of a state, be compelled to allow an examination by the stockholders of its books, papers, and assets.[41] An application for the issuance of a new certificate by a stockholder who has lost a certificate of stock in a national bank may be made to a state court.[42] A state law prescribing a penalty on national banks receiving deposits when insolvent is invalid.[43] The receiver is bound by state laws concerning fraudulent conveyances if he attempts to enforce them in a state court.[44] A national bank, whether solvent or insolvent, is not subject to an attachment before judgment.[45] A bank may intervene in an attachment in a state court without becoming a party so as to necessitate a dismissal of the suit, but where a bank intervenes in an attachment suit, and plaintiff brings a subsequent action against the bank and also attaches the property involved, the attachment should be dissolved.[46] The privilege of a national bank against attachment does not prevent a suit in equity in attachment against a bank and one who sold the bank a bill of lading with a draft attached, for breach of contract and for a return of the money from the bank.[47]

33. Waldron v. Alling (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 86.

34. McClaine v. Rankin (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 110.

35. Studebaker v. Perry, 184 U. S. 258, 46 Law. Ed. 528.

36. The presumption arising therefrom may be rebutted by evidence of a sale of stock in good faith, and the performance of all duties imposed on the seller to secure transfer on the bank's register—Earle v. Carson, 188 U. S. 42.

37. Allegations of the existence of five hundred shares, par value $100, and a ratable assessment at $100 per share amounting to $50,000 are sufficient—McClaine v. Rankin (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 110.

38. Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 394—Beckham v. Hague (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 606.

39. McDonald v. Thompson, 184 U. S. 71, 46 Law. Ed. 437.

40. McClaine v. Rankin (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 110.

41. Tuttle v. Iron Nat. Bank, 170 N. Y. 9.

42. Application to the supreme court under stock corporation law (L. 1892, c. 688, §§ 50, 51), held to be within the meaning of 22 St. 1882, c. 290, § 4; U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3458—Matter of Hayt (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 356.

43. Iowa Code, §§ 1884, 1885—Easton v. State of Iowa, 188 U. S. 220.

44. Watts v. Dubois (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

45. And the statute making such provision is not repealed by implication, by the Act of Congress July 12, 1882, 22 Sts. 102. R. S. U. S. § 5242—Van Reed v. People's Nat. Bank, 173 N. Y. 314.

46. Willard Mfg. Co. v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 130 N. C. 609; Willard Mfg. Co. v. George H. Tirney & Co., Id. 611.

47. Action by purchaser of merchandise—

Usury by national banks.—Action to recover a penalty for exaction of usurious interest may be maintained in any state court, and is a civil action of which the chancery court may have jurisdiction.[48] The remedy given by Rev. St. U. S. § 5198, is exclusive.[49] Twice the amount of the entire interest and not twice the amount of the excess interest is the amount to be recovered.[50] There can be no recovery of interest on the amount.[51] The legal interest allowed on foreclosure, a deduction having been made of interest in excess of the legal rate, cannot be recovered in double amount under Rev. St. § 5198.[52] Usurious interest actually paid on discounting and loaning a series of notes cannot be applied to the satisfaction of the principal of the debt by the bank.[53] A petition showing that an action to recover usurious interest is not begun within two years from the time the transactions occurred, is not rendered good as against a demurrer by an allegation that the charge and reservation of the usurious interest were without plaintiff's knowledge or consent.[54]

§ 4. Savings banks.—The question of the status of a bank as a savings bank may be for the jury.[55] Where a savings bank is by special act changed to a bank having a capital stock representing guaranty funds to the depositors, the holders of which had no power to elect trustees or share in the management of the institution, a double liability is not imposed on such stock on insolvency.[56] Provisions that capital stock of a savings bank shall be security to non-stockholding depositors do not give them priority over general creditors.[57]

Powers.—Persons dealing with banks must take notice of their limited powers.[58] A savings bank may agree as to the time and amount of interest payments.[59] A contract by a savings bank to borrow money to pay deposits is not enforceable against non-stockholding depositors and is ultra vires.[60] A savings bank may be estopped to deny liability to repay money expended for its benefit at its request.[61]

Liabilities of directors.—Directors of a savings bank who appropriate its funds willfully to sustain another bank controlled by them by pretending to purchase its worthless paper are liable to creditors and stockholders for misappropriation. A depositor's assignee may bring an action therefor, as may one who becomes a creditor after the misappropriation, or any one creditor though he has not obtained a judgment against the bank, and a specific demand for an accounting need not be made.[62]

Russel v. Smith Grain Co., 80 Miss. 688, 32 So. 287; Searles v. Same, Id.

48. Construing Acts 1887, c. 97—McCreary v. First Nat. Bank (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 821.

49. Charleston Nat. Bank v. Bradford, 51 W. Va. 255. Cash payments cannot be set off in an action on the note—Haseltine v. Cent. Nat. Bank, 183 U. S. 132, 46 Law. Ed. 118. Usury obtained by a national bank in discounting notes drawing interest only after maturity cannot be set up by way of cross-bill in an action by the bank on notes—First Nat. Bank v. Hunter (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 371.

50. First Nat. Bank v. Watt, 184 U. S. 151, 46 Law. Ed. 475.

51. Rev. St. U. S. § 5198; U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3493—McCreary v. First Nat. Bank (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 821.

52. Talbot v. First Nat. Bank, 185 U. S. 172, 46 Law. Ed. 857.

53. Construing Rev. St. U. S. §§ 5197, 5198—Charleston Nat. Bank v. Bradford, 51 W. Va. 255.

54. Talbot v. Sioux Nat. Bank, 185 U. S. 182, 46 Law. Ed. 862.

55. As where it is sought to determine whether interest is paid on deposits not subject to checks—Dottenheim v. Union Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 114 Ga. 788.

56. Gen. L. 1867, Sp. L. 1873, c. 117—State v. Sav. Bank of St. Paul, 87 Minn. 473.

57. Act April 11, 1862, for the incorporation of savings banks—Laidlaw v. Pac. Bank (Cal.) 67 Pac. 897.

58. So failure to loan money on mortgage security is not a cause of action where there is no report by two members of the investment board as provided by Sts. 1894, ch. 317, § 21, cl. 1—Gilson v. Cambridge Sav. Bank, 180 Mass. 444.

59. Act 1889, p. 280, confers additional powers on savings banks generally without regard to the time of their incorporation—Dottenheim v. Union Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 114 Ga. 788.

60. Act April 11, 1862, § 10, and Act March 12, 1864—Laidlaw v. Pac. Bank, 137 Cal. 392, 70 Pac. 277.

61. Construing Act April 11, 1862, § 10, Amendatory Act of March 12, 1864—Laidlaw v. Pac. Bank (Cal.) 67 Pac. 897.

Rules.—The adoption of rules and regulations may be evidenced by their long use with the knowledge and approval of the trustees.[63] The agreement of a depositor to the regulations of a savings bank may be shown by his conduct and need not be evidenced by his signature to the pass book.[64] Rules adopted after a person becomes a depositor do not affect him, though he agrees that notices as to deposits shall be regarded as personal notices and the rule has been posted for many years before the depositor's death.[65] A rule for the protection of a savings bank adopted on account of the inability of the officers to identify every depositor does not apply where by reasonable diligence the officers may be able to protect the depositor's interest.[66]

Deposits and repayment.—The relationship between a savings bank and its depositors is the ordinary one of debtor and creditor, where there is no limitation of liability by by-law or regulation.[67] Accounts subject to check are to be paid without limitation or restriction except that the check must be presented within banking hours on banking days.[68] There may be a joint tenancy in savings deposits.[69] A deposit in an alternative name may be repaid to the executor of one of the persons mentioned.[70] Payment may be properly made to the domiciliary administrator of a nonresident depositor, if before notice of the prior appointment of a domestic administrator.[71]

Reliance on pass book.—Conversion of the pass book does not pass title to the deposit.[72] The negligence of a depositor in losing his pass book does not relieve the officer of the bank from the exercise of reasonable care in payment of the deposit, though a by-law requires immediate notice of the loss of the book to the bank.[73] In the absence of such a regulation, no question of negligence can arise where payment is made on forged orders accompanied by the deposit book which has been lost and the bank not notified.[74] The fact that payment to an impostor is in the form of a check on another bank payable to the real depositor does not exempt the savings bank from liability.[75] A bank may be justified in payment to a person presenting the savings book and orders purporting to be signed by the owner where it has no notice that the book has been lost.[76]

62. Construing Const. art. 12, § 3, Civ. Code, §§ 571, 574—Winchester v. Howard, 136 Cal. 432, 69 Pac. 77.

63. Affecting the contractual relations between the savings bank and its depositors—Ladd v. Augusta Sav. Bank, 96 Me. 510.

64. Ladd v. Augusta Sav. Bank, 96 Me. 510.

65. Rule forbidding gifts of deposits except by assignment in writing duly acknowledged—Ranney v. Bowery Sav. Bank (N. Y.) 39 Misc. 301.

66. Where a by-law permits money to be withdrawn by the depositor or any person duly authorized to receive it, the decision of the officers of the bank as to the sufficiency of the authority is at their peril—Ladd v. Augusta Sav. Bank, 96 Me. 510.

67. Ladd v. Androscoggin County Sav. Bank, 96 Me. 520.

68. Construing Act 1889, p. 180—Dottenheim v. Union Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 114 Ga. 788.

69. So held where a mother and daughter made a deposit in their joint name, allowing the survivor to take the deposit—In re Barefield (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 745.

70. The demand was accompanied by presentation of pass book and testamentary letters and the other person mentioned had never deposited or withdrawn any money or had possession of the pass book—Grafing v. Irving Sav. Inst., 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 566.

71. It was not shown that there were local creditors whose claims would be lost—Maas v. German Sav. Bank, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 524.

72. Newman v. Munk (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 639. See as to sufficiency of evidence of lack of authority and fraud in the withdrawal of deposits—City Sav. Bank v. Enos, 135 Cal. 167, 67 Pac. 52.

73. The fact that a person to whom payment is made had possession of the bank book is not a defense, if the payment could have been avoided by a comparison of the recipient's signature with the signature on file—Ladd v. Augusta Sav. Bank, 96 Me. 510. A by-law attempting to exempt a savings bank from liability for loss, where notice is not given of loss or theft of the pass book and deposit is paid on presentation of the book, is not a defense where payment is on presentation of the pass book and forged orders—Kingsley v. Whitman Sav. Bank, 182 Mass. 252.

74. Ladd v. Androscoggin County Sav. Bank, 96 Me. 520.

75. Ladd v. Augusta Sav. Bank, 96 Me. 510.

76. A book contained a statement that it was the order of withdrawal and that pay-

§ 5. Loan, investment, and trust companies.—A trust company may be estopped to deny its banking powers.[77] Agency of a paying teller of a trust company in certifying a check may be established by previous similar acts.[78] A loan and trust company cannot guaranty a note given between third persons and not negotiated by it.[79] In New York, trust companies have no power to loan, discount, or purchase commercial paper.[80] A trust company may pay a certificate of deposit though it has been assigned.[81] Where a trust company receives and pays money deposited to the credit of another on the checks and drafts of a depositor, it must pay interest thereon.[82] Legal interest may be allowed on preferred claims under the charter of a trust company on dissolution, though the fund thereby be exhausted as against general creditors and though before dissolution they received less than legal interest.[83]

§ 6. Deposits and repayment thereof; checks, drafts, certifications, receipts, credits. Relation of banker and depositor.—The relation between a bank and its depositors is that of debtor and creditor,[84] and the bank becomes the absolute owner of the actual deposit.[85] A bank cannot claim that it is a gratuitous bailee bound only to use the lowest degree of diligence.[86] The relation of banker and depositor is not created by the deposit of a sum in the nature of indemnity against advances to be made on checks of the depositor's agent given on purchase of goods.[87]

Evidence of deposit.—An entry in a pass book is prima facie evidence of the receipt of a deposit.[88] The fact that a bank enters a check left for collection to the depositor's credit as cash is not conclusive.[89] On garnishment against a deposit, the name in which it stands is presumptive but not conclusive evidence of ownership.[90] A written assignment of deposit found among a deceased husband's papers does not conclusively show an assignment of the wife's deposit.[91]

Certificates of deposit and cashier's checks.—Certificates of deposit may be called in after the expiration of the time limit or, on notice, the rate of interest may be reduced.[92] Interest is waived by withdrawal before expiration of the time limit.[93] A cashier's check cannot be countermanded by the payee after indorsement, it being similar to a bill of exchange drawn by the bank on itself ments to persons producing the book should be deemed valid as to depositors—Winter v. Williamsburgh Sav. Bank (N. Y.) 68 App. Div. 193.

77. As where it has fully entered into a banking business it cannot deny capacity to certify checks on the ground that it was not chartered as a bank—Muth v. St. Louis Trust Co., 88 Mo. App. 596.

78. Muth v. St. Louis Trust Co., 88 Mo. App. 596.

79. Such a transaction is ultra vires a corporation organized under Comp. L. of Kansas, 1885, p. 260, c. 23, for the purpose of transacting the business of a loan and trust company and for buying and selling personal property including commercial paper with power to enter into any obligation or contract essential to the transaction of its ordinary affairs—Ward v. Joslin, 186 U. S. 142, 46 Law. Ed. 1093.

80. L. N. Y. 1893, c. 696, L. N. Y. 1892, c. 689, §§ 55, 163—Jenkins v. Neff, 186 U. S. 230, 46 Law. Ed. 1140.

81. Code Civ. Proc. § 1909—Zander v. N. Y. Security & Trust Co. (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 98.

82. Muth v. St. Louis Trust Co., 88 Mo. App. 596.

83. People v. American Loan & Trust Co. (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 355.

84. Quattrochi v. Farmers' & M. Bank, 89 Mo. App. 500.

85. In the absence of special agreement —Camp v. First Nat. Bank (Fla.) 33 So. 241.

86. Campbell v. Watson, 62 N. J. Eq. 396.

87. Armour v. Greene County State Bank (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 631.

88. Quattrochi v. Farmers' & M. Bank, 89 Mo. App. 500.

89. Where the bank has not been negligent or the depositor misled, the check may be charged back on its proving to be worthless—Union Safe Deposit Bank v. Strauch, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 196.

90. Bessemer Sav. Bank v. Anderson, 134 Ala. 343.

91. Dodge v. Lunt, 181 Mass. 320.

92. Bank of Commerce v. Harrison (N. M.) 66 Pac. 460.

93. Bank of Commerce v. Harrison (N. M.) 66 Pac. 460.

and accepted in advance by its issuance; the rights of the parties are those of parties to a negotiable note payable on a demand.[94]

Repayment of deposits.—Receipt of a deposit creates an agreement to repay to any one holding a check if at the time of presentation the drawer has such sum on deposit.[95] Deposits may be repaid to person making them, though made by him as attorney.[96] A bank can refuse repayment on the ground that the depositor's title is defective or that the deposit belongs to another,[97] but knowledge of an outstanding draft will not justify a refusal.[98] Where a bank has notice that money deposited is not the property of the depositor, repayment to the depositor or the person in whose name the deposit is entered will not relieve it from liability, though it cannot be required to hold the deposit more than a reasonable time to allow a third person to protect his rights. Notice of the third person's claim need not be given by him personally, if the bank acquired it of other parties.[99] On payment of a portion of the deposit on a valid check, the bank is no longer liable therefor to the depositor or his administrator.[1] A bank is not liable for failure to reserve the proceeds of drafts drawn against goods purchased to the payment of a check for the purchase price which has been presented at a time when there were no funds to meet it.[2] Want of authority to collect a deposit is waived by failure to urge it as a ground of objection at the time of demand.[3] The bank may be estopped to deny liability for the amount of a check.[4] A check may be revoked by the drawer at any time before presentation for payment,[5] but if given for a valuable consideration, it may be paid after notice of revocation, though the burden is thrown on the bank of showing that it operated as a valid assignment of the funds.[6] A check is revoked by the death of the drawer,[7] and the bank pays at its peril after notice.[8] After having refused to pay any portion of a check in excess of the amount on deposit, the bank has no right to pay it.[9]

Forged or altered checks and drafts.—A bank is not justified in paying to the mere holder of a check without identification or evidence of the genuineness of an indorsement.[10] Variation between the name of the payee and that indorsed should place it on its guard.[11] If it pay on a forged indorsement, it is not entitled to repayment from the drawer or to retain the check.[12] A bank without notice is not liable for the payment of a check to one securing it under a ficti-

94. Drinkall v. Movius State Bank (N. D.) 88 N. W. 724.

95. Brown v. Schintz, 98 Ill. App. 452; Petrue v. Wakem, 99 Ill. App. 463.

96. Where the bank has no notice of intended misappropriation—Pennsylvania Title & Trust Co. v. Meyer, 201 Pa. 299.

97. Nehawka Bank v. Ingersoll (Neb.) 89 N. W. 618. The bank may be compelled to pay to the real owner—Hanna v. Drovers' Nat. Bank, 194 Ill. 252.

98. Nehawka Bank v. Ingersoll (Neb.) 89 N. W. 618.

99. Drumm-Flato Com. Co. v. Gerlack Bank, 92 Mo. App. 326.

1. Raesser v. Nat. Exch. Bank, 112 Wis. 591.

2. Perry v. Bank of Smithfield, 131 N. C. 117.

3. Officers at the time of demand stated that they would not pay interest and would look into the question of paying the principal—Atlanta T. & B. Co. v. Close, 115 Ga. 939.

4. Evidence held sufficient for such purpose though the funds had been garnished—Rostad v. Union Bank, 85 Minn. 313.

5. Weiand's Adm'r v. State Nat. Bank, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1517, 65 S. W. 617, 66 S. W. 26.

6. Raesser v. Nat. Exch. Bank, 112 Wis. 591.

7. A bank paying after notice of the drawer's death is liable to his estate—Pullen v. Placer County Bank, 138 Cal. 169, 71 Pac. 83.

8. Weiand's Adm'r v. State Nat. Bank, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1517, 65 S. W. 617, 66 S. W. 26.

9. Especially where notified of the death of the drawer and directed not to make payment—Weiand's Adm'r v. State Nat. Bank, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1517, 65 S. W. 617, 66 S. W. 26.

10. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bimetallic Bank (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 115.

11. Payee "Daley," indorsement "Daily" —Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bimetallic Bank (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 115.

12. Garthwaite v. Bank of Tulare, 134 Cal. 237, 66 Pac. 326.

tious name,[13] and may pay on a forged indorsement if the person who receives the money is the one whom the maker believes to be the payee named,[14] but where a check is by mistake delivered to a person other than the payee, the bank cannot rely on such fact where it paid on an indorsement different from the name of the payee and without knowledge of the error in delivery, relying on the indorsement.[15] The maker of a check is not bound to so prepare it that it cannot be altered,[16] but must exercise reasonable care to detect alteration or forgery by the comparison of his vouchers returned with the record of checks issued.[17] Where checks are raised by an employee of the depositor, the depositor is charged with knowledge which would have been disclosed by a comparison of the checks with the stubs of the check book, though the comparison is made by the guilty employee,[18] and if he fail to examine checks returned, the bank is relieved from responsibility for raised checks paid after the account was balanced, in the absence of negligence on its part,[19] but it is contributory negligence to pay a plainly altered check preventing the bank from taking advantage of the depositor's negligence.[20] Failure to verify returned vouchers or to discover and notify the bank of forgery does not estop the depositor from claiming forgery though he may be liable for the damage occasioned thereby to the bank.[21] Failure to examine a statement showing an application of deposits and notify the bank within reasonable time of a misapplication will preclude a recovery.[22] One who has received the proceeds of a check or allowed the proceeds to be deposited to her credit cannot deny that the check was signed by her or by her authority.[23] Where two banks both pay a forged check without discovering the forgery, the latter bank relying on the indorsement of the bank first paying, may on discovery of the forgery, recover the money paid the first, unless a change has taken place in the remedies available to the parties.[24]

Checks drawn without authority.—A bank is not liable for payment in good

13. In this case, one securing a loan under false representations as to his name took a check therefor in the assumed name, indorsed it as such and in his real name, and secured payment thereon—Meyer v. Indiana Nat. Bank, 27 Ind. App. 354.

14. As where an executor on the faith of letters purporting to be signed by a legatee bought a draft for the amount of the legacy payable to the legatee and forwarded it to his address, and the legatee being in fact dead the writer of the letters secured the draft and obtained payment by forgery of the name of the legatee—States v. First Nat. Bank, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 256, 203 Pa. 69.

15. The doctrine that where two persons are equally innocent the one failing to act on his knowledge must bear the loss, does not apply though the drawer was not satisfied that he had delivered the check to the actual payee and took a receipt from him—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bimetallic Bank (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 115.

16. Failure to subsequently discover alterations on the part of a depositor does not relieve the bank's liability for payment before the account was balanced—Critten v. Chemical Nat. Bank, 171 N. Y. 219, 57 L. R. A. 529.

17. Critten v. Chemical Nat. Bank, 171 N. Y. 219, 57 L. R. A. 529.

18. Critten v. Chemical Nat. Bank, 171 N. Y. 219, 57 L. R. A. 529.

19. Critten v. Chemical Nat. Bank, 171 N. Y. 219, 57 L. R. A. 529.

20. Payment of a check apparently altered by the insertion of the word "cash" instead of the name of the payee and having the amount written over an erasure—Critten v. Chemical Nat. Bank, 171 N. Y. 219, 57 L. R. A. 529.

21. Critten v. Chemical Nat. Bank, 171 N. Y. 219, 57 L. R. A. 529.

22. Where plaintiff's cashier directed an application of its deposit to his individual debt, and a statement furnished by defendant was examined by the bookkeeper and one director of plaintiff, and the director questioned the cashier with regard thereto, receiving unsatisfactory answers, and on the cashier's disappearance six months later action was brought to recover a deposit wrongfully applied—Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 612.

23. Phoenix Nat. Bank v. Taylor, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2307, 67 S. W. 27.

24. A drawee bank paying a forged check without discovery thereof, relying on the indorsements of another bank which has paid the amount of the check without identification of the person or inquiry, may recover the amount thereof from the latter bank on discovery of the forgery, if such bank has not been placed in a worse position than it would have been had the drawee bank refused payment on the first presentation—Canadian Bank v. Bingham, 30 Wash. 484, 71 Pac. 43.

faith of checks wrongfully drawn by an agent, though under an arrangement to cash checks given for a certain purpose,[25] and it is not bound to see that the checks are drawn pursuant to the agreement.[26] Where a bank is given signature cards containing the names of the president and treasurer to guide it in repayment of deposit of a corporation, it cannot pay checks signed by treasurer alone;[27] otherwise if the signature card bear only the name of the treasurer.[28] It is negligence for a bank to pay an unsigned check of a depositing corporation though to its bookkeeper, and no estoppel can arise because the corporation has failed to warn the bank of the forged checks.[29]

Set-off of debts due bank against deposit.—Generally a bank may appropriate funds on deposit to a debt of the depositor of a bank.[30] Some states hold that individual deposits may be set off against a firm debt.[31] In Louisiana, it is held that there must be a special mandate from the depositor to allow the deposit to be diverted to a debt of the bank.[32] A depositor may, after insolvency of a bank, have his deposit set off against notes due the bank, though they were not due at the time of suspension.[33] The surety cannot insist on an application by the bank of a depositor's credit balance to the satisfaction of a debt due it, in the absence of an instruction or agreement between the bank and the depositor, and where the debt is not included in the account between them.[34]

Deposits received after insolvency.—A petition alleging that a deposit was made when the bank was insolvent and known to be such by its president sufficiently shows fraud where an order is sought requiring the receiver to pay over the deposit.[35] Such a petition must offer to return a certificate of deposit received therefor.[36] It is sufficient prima facie to prove receipt of deposits during insolvency and one day before suspension.[37]

Special deposits.—A deposit evidenced by a certificate payable in current funds is general and on insolvency the depositor will be regarded as a general creditor.[38] A deposit of funds of an estate knowingly received is special.[39] A deposit by a tenant to secure a landlord in the performance of a lease is special and must be kept intact for the purposes named.[40] Trust funds remain such though deposited by the trustee in his own name.[41] They cannot be appropriated to the individual debt of the trustee to the bank and a bank is liable for such conversion.[42] Where a trust fund deposited is appropriated to the customer's

25. The negligence is that of the principal who by his selection of agent has made the loss possible—Armour v. Greene County State Bank, 112 Fed. 631, 50 C. C. A. 399. Where the arrangement is to pay checks drawn by a purchasing agent in payment of goods, the principal is bound to notify the bank on receipt of the first check bearing irregular and fictitious indorsements and until the receipt of such notice, the bank is not negligent in paying such checks—Armour v. Greene County State Bank, 112 Fed. 631, 50 C. C. A. 399.

26. Armour v. Greene County State Bank, 112 Fed. 631, 50 C. C. A. 399.

27. Shoe Lasting Mach. Co. v. Western Nat. Bank, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 588.

28. Shoe Lasting Mach. Co. v. Western Nat. Bank, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 588.

29. Kenneth Inv. Co. v. Nat. Bank of Republic, 96 Mo. App. 125.

30. Globe Sav. Bank v. Nat. Bank of Commerce (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1030.

31. Owsley v. Bank of Cumberland, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1726, 66 S. W. 33.

32. Succession of Gragard, 106 La. 298.

33. Thompson v. Union Trust Co. (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 101, 90 N. W. 294.

34. Camp v. First Nat. Bank (Fla.) 33 So. 241.

35. Rev. St. 1898. § 4541—Hyland v. Roe, 111 Wis. 361.

36. Hyland v. Roe, 111 Wis. 361.

37. Jernberg v. Mix, 100 Ill. App. 264.

38. Woodhouse v. Crandall, 99 Ill. App. 552.

39. Officer v. Officer (Iowa) 90 N. W. 826.

40. Receipt issued stated that the bank was to pay the landlord damages sustained through the tenant's default and was to hold the whole sum to the credit of the landlord after expiration of a certain time and on the conditions of the lease—Woodhouse v. Crandall, 197 Ill. 104.

41. Union Stock Yards Bank v. Haskell (Neb.) 90 N. W. 233.

42. Nehawka Bank v. Ingersoll (Neb.) 89 N. W. 618.

debt, the bank, if it has knowledge, is liable for a conversion.[43] Where a bank permits a deposit for a specific purpose in the account of a third person, it is liable if it allow a withdrawal of the deposit for other than the specified purpose by the person in whose name it stands.[44] Deposits made subsequent to an agreement that they should be applied to a note cannot be claimed as subject to check, though made when the note was not yet due.[45] Trust funds received with notice may be followed on insolvency, though mingled with other funds, if they may be identified or have swelled the bank's funds.[46] A check payable to the order of the bank does not sufficiently show that it received the funds represented thereby.[47] Where a deposit is made by the purchaser of a firm's goods to be divided among several creditors of the firm, as their interest might appear, the bank cannot after involuntary bankruptcy of the firm apply the deposit to notes of the firm held by it without the consent of the depositor or the bankrupts.[48]

Slander of credit or damages for failure to pay checks.—Parol demand will not support an action for slander of credit,[49] but a petition which states the existence of a deposit in defendant bank and a refusal to honor a check and repay a deposit on demand states a cause of action.[50] Plaintiff's insolvency at commencement of a suit for damages based on a refusal to honor checks is immaterial,[51] and it cannot be shown that a third person offered to buy plaintiff's claim.[52] In an action for the wrongful refusal to honor a check, recovery may be had for the time lost, expenses incurred, or for any loss of credit, business, etc., but an allowance cannot be made for humiliation or mortification of feelings.[53] Where the bank has funds to meet a check, the payee has a right of action thereon.[54] A bank may make a valid agreement to honor checks for the purchase of goods to be secured by a draft and bill of lading on the goods when shipped, and where it has received sufficient funds on the draft is liable for payment of the checks, though the drawers are already indebted to the bank on other transactions.[55]

Actions to recover deposits. Parties.—Where an alleged donee sues to recover a deposit in a savings bank, the administrator of the depositor may be made a party without showing that the administrator's claim is well founded.[56]

Demand is sufficiently established by plaintiff's evidence if not contradicted.[57] One to whose credit money is deposited need not present a receipt or check as precedent to an action to recover an amount not received because of mistake in settlement.[58] Deposits are properly demanded after receivership by drawing a check on the bank and demanding payment of the receiver.[59] See note as to sufficiency of petition.[60]

43. Globe Sav. Bank v. Nat. Bank of Commerce (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1030.

44. Deposit by son in his father's account to pay son's note, withdrawal by the father before the note is presented but after its maturity—Weitzel v. Traders' Nat. Bank, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 615.

45. Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

46. Officer v. Officer (Iowa) 90 N. W. 826.

47. Action for the conversion of bonds. Check represented the amount borrowed on them as collateral and the officer in whose charge the bonds were testified that no part of the proceeds of the check went to the bank. The indorsement was such as would appear on the check in the natural course of business—Griffin v. Mechanics' & Traders' Bank, 61 App. Div. (N. Y.) 434.

48. In re Davis, 119 Fed. 950.

49. Hanna v. Drovers' Nat. Bank, 194 Ill. 252.

50. Kloepfer v. First Nat. Bank, 65 Kan. 774, 70 Pac. 880.

51. Hence a motion by defendant requiring plaintiff to give security for costs cannot be introduced—Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

52. Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

53. American Nat. Bank v. Morey, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 658, 69 S. W. 759.

54. Falls City State Bank v. Wehrlie (Neb.) 93 N. W. 994.

55. Evidence held sufficient to show an agreement to honor checks given in payment of the purchase of goods—Falls City State Bank v. Wehrlie (Neb.) 93 N. W. 994.

56. Banking L. § 115; L. 1882, c. 409, § 259; L. 1892, c. 689—McGuire v. Auburn Sav. Bank, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 22.

57. Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114 Iowa, 632.

Defenses.—Payment of checks drawn by a trustee on a trust fund in reliance on his apparent title and in good faith, to be availed of as a defense, must be pleaded in an action for trust funds deposited to the trustee's own account.[61] Instructions in actions to recover deposits should be applicable to the evidence.[62] In an action to recover deposits where plaintiff denies that check was signed by her or by her authority, the jury should not by instruction be instructed that they must find that plaintiff herself signed the check before they can find for defendant.[63] Plaintiff's negligence in not discovering a mistake in settlement is for the jury.[64] Plaintiff may recover interest from the date of the institution of his suit.[65]

Notes payable at bank.—Where there has been a direction to apply deposits to the payment of a note though it is not due, an action cannot be maintained for failure to honor subsequent checks where the maker has not money on deposit in excess of the amount of the note.[66] Authority to credit a draft to the payment of a certain note does not authorize a cashier to credit the account of the payee of the note when the note is beyond his control and cannot be indorsed with the payment.[67]

Certifications.—Certification is equivalent to acceptance, may be by any natural or artificial person on whom the check is drawn, and thereafter laches in making demand of payment cannot be imputed to the holder.[68] After certification of a check a bank is estopped to deny the possession of funds to pay the same.[69] Where on the same day that a note is certified, the certifying bank informs the bank holding it that the certification was by mistake, but the note is nevertheless sent through the clearing house, an action by the certifying bank to recover from the second bank may be maintained without an application for a re-settlement of accounts at the clearing house.[70] Sufficiency of evidence of fraud in withholding presentation of a certified check.[71] A bank's liability on negligent certification of a raised draft may rest on estoppel rather than on the certification.[72] After negligent certification of a raised draft which another bank pays when deposited with it, the first bank cannot recover the amount paid as money paid by mistake.[73] The question of good faith in paying a raised draft which has been certified by another bank and sent through the clearing house is one for the jury.[74]

58. Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114 Iowa, 632.

59. Wylie v. Commercial & Farmers' Bank, 63 S. C. 406.

60. A petition is sufficient which states that the plaintiff having executed a note to defendant bank, credit for the amount thereof was entered on a page in his pass book which had been fully settled and balanced, that a subsequent deposit by a third person without plaintiff's knowledge to plaintiff's credit of an equal sum was entered in the proper place, that plaintiff was informed that such deposit had not been made and was not given credit for one of the sums—Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114 Iowa, 632.

61. Union Stock Yards Bank v. Haskell (Neb.) 90 N. W. 233.

62. In an action to recover a deposit made by plaintiff bank and applied by it to a loan made to plaintiff's cashier, there was no evidence that there was any understanding between the cashier and any of defendant's officers when the deposit was made that it should be so applied. Held, that an instruction as to the effect of such intention or understanding should not be given—Iron City Nat. Bank v. Fifth Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 612.

63. Phoenix Nat. Bank v. Taylor, 23 Ky Law Rep. 2307, 67 S. W. 27.

64. Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114 Iowa, 632.

65. Bobb v. Sav. Bank of Louisville, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 817, 64 S. W. 494.

66. Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

67. Kunze v. Tawas State Sav. Bank (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 211, 90 N. W. 668.

68. Muth v. St. Louis Trust Co., 88 Mo. App. 596.

69. Jackson Paper Mfg. Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 199 Ill. 151.

70. Construing Const. N. Y. Clearing House—Mt. Morris Bank v. Twenty-third Ward Bank, 172 N. Y. 244.

71. Muth v. St. Louis Trust Co., 94 Mo. App. 94.

72. As where a bank pays another bank in which a raised draft, negligently certified by it, has been deposited, and the latter bank, relying thereon, pays the deposit—Continental Nat. Bank v. Tradesmen's Nat. Bank, 173 N. Y. 272.

73. Continental Nat. Bank v. Tradesmen's Nat. Bank, 173 N. Y. 272.

74. To be determined on the clearing-house rules, and the evidence—Continental Nat.

§ 7. Loans and discounts.—A bank has power to loan deposits for its customers unless its charter prohibits it.[75] A bank authorized to loan a deposit for a depositor is bound only to the exercise of good faith and reasonable diligence, but if it loan without authority, is absolutely responsible.[76] A loan evidenced by the books of a bank will be presumed to have been with the bank's knowledge of its essential features and with its approval, if there is no evidence to the contrary.[77] A bank in discounting a negotiable note is not bound to the exercise of care in the ascertainment of defenses.[78] The validity of notes discounted by a bank's cashier in excess of the amount which a national bank may legally loan one person is not affected by the fact that the cashier was prosecuted and punished for misapplying the bank funds, and the maker of the note for aiding and assisting him, and that the amount of the penalty of the cashier's bond had been recovered by the receiver.[79]

Advances against bills of lading.[80]—A bank which advances money to an agent for the purchase of property for a firm and accepts a draft on the firm attached to a bill of lading on the property, which is shipped in the firm name, is entitled to it as against an attachment against the agent, no fraud being shown, and it does not release its lien by obtaining a guaranty of payment of the draft from the consignee.[81] On sale of property consigned, with notice that a draft has been drawn against it, the brokers are liable to the holder of the draft for the net amount realized from the sale after the charges have been deducted.[82]

§ 8. Collections.—Bankers are liable for failure to exercise due diligence in the collection of notes which they have undertaken.[83] They are not liable for negligence of a correspondent unless negligent in its selection.[84] A check should not be sent to the drawee bank.[85] It is negligence to send a second note to a correspondent, where a note previously sent has not been reported on at maturity, without making inquiry as to such note, or to fail to make inquiry concerning the former notes until after several weeks from their maturity, during a period of financial disturbance.[86] Where a draft indorsed for deposit is transmitted for collection the collecting bank becomes the agent of the receiving bank and cannot be held liable by the depositor for delay in presentation.[87] It will be presumed that the drafts were forwarded for collection in the same manner as in a prior course of Bank v. Tradesmen's Nat. Bank, 173 N. Y. 272.

75. Bobb v. Sav. Bank of Louisville, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 817, 64 S. W. 494.

76. Watson v. Fagner, 99 Ill. App. 364.

77. Roe v. Bank of Versailles, 167 Mo. 406.

78. A bank is not charged with notice that a partnership signs merely as surety, by the fact that the firm name is signed under the name of a partner—Warren Deposit Bank v. Younglove, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1969, 66 S. W. 749.

79. In re Edson, 119 Fed. 487.

80. Stock purchased under an agreement by which the bank advances the money, making a charge of $2 a car and taking the bills of lading therefor with drafts attached, becomes the property of the buyer and not of the bank—Clary v. Tyson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 710.

81. Shaffer v. Rhynders, 116 Iowa, 472.

82. Defendants promised to honor a draft for cattle to a certain amount if two cars were consigned them. Plaintiff discounted the draft with knowledge that but one car was consigned to defendant. On sale of such car by defendant, they received the net sum over and above the charges less than the draft, though the gross sum was in excess thereof, and it was held on their refusal to pay anything on the draft that they were liable for the net amount received—First State Bank v. Thuet (Minn.) 93 N. W. 1.

83. A petition which states the undertaking to collect, failure to exercise diligence, and damage to plaintiff, is sufficient—Coleman v. Spearman, etc., Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 983.

84. Second Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1255, 65 S. W. 4, 55 L. R. A. 273. It seems that it is not negligence to send notes of a corporation for collection to a bank, of which the secretary and treasurer of the corporation is cashier—Second Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1255, 65 S. W. 4, 55 L. R. A. 273.

85. Carson, etc., Co. v. Fincher (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 1108, 89 N. W. 570.

86. Second Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1255, 65 S. W. 4, 55 L. R. A. 273.

87. Morris v. First Nat. Bank, 201 Pa. 160.

business.[88] A bank which is the collecting agent of another does not cease to be such because drafts drawn on it are forwarded it for collection.[89] Where the collecting bank gives credit for the proceeds and holds them for some time they will not be regarded as trust funds.[90] An agreement for a prompt transmittal of the proceeds of collections will be interpreted by the understanding of the parties as evidenced by the usage and course of business.[91] Where a bank presents checks of its depositors to a trust company on which they are drawn, and accepts the check of the trust company in payment, the liability to its depositors becomes fixed, and the checks presented cannot be recovered from the assignee for creditors of the trust company.[92] Where a bank having made a collection and drawn a draft on another bank for the purpose of transmitting the proceeds thereof fails, the person for whom the collection is made has no right to reach the proceeds of the collection as a trust fund, payment of the draft having been refused by the bank on which it was drawn.[93] Where the holder of a note delivers it for collection, the bank may properly pay the proceeds over to him in the absence of actual notice that they belong to a third person, notwithstanding the note has been assigned.[94] The collecting bank may apply the proceeds of a draft to the overdrawn account of the transmitting bank, though the transmitting bank has suspended payment, if the collecting bank has no knowledge of such fact or notice that the draft which is indorsed in blank was held by the transmitting bank merely for collection and not as owner.[95] Where the transmitting bank becomes insolvent before the presentation of a draft for payment by the correspondent bank, the drawee of the draft may recover the proceeds of collection from the correspondent, the amount not being credited by the receiving bank or credited by the correspondent to the receiving bank until after payment, when the correspondent credited the receiving bank's account, it having no notice of its insolvency.[96]

Duty to preserve rights of parties.—A bank's duty with regard to paper delivered it for collection is to forward it and make a proper demand of payment and on nonpayment to take the proper steps to charge the indorser.[97] The collecting bank is bound to use reasonable care and diligence to protect the rights of the forwarding bank in respect to the liability of the indorser and drawer of the check forwarded for collection, and its failure to do so relieves the forwarding bank from liability after the collecting bank has paid it.[98] An instruction to protest requires

88. As where a bank sends drafts to another bank having a correspondent at the place of payment, it will be presumed that the drafts so forwarded were sent and received for collection, such having been a former course of business—National Revere Bank v. Nat. Bank of Republic, 172 N. Y. 102.

89. National Revere Bank v. Nat. Bank of Republic, 172 N. Y. 102.

90. Where it was a business custom to give an agent transmitting notes of a corporation for collection, credit for the proceeds and sometimes to retain the proceeds for two months before remitting, the corporation is an ordinary creditor—McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Yankton Sav. Bank, 15 S. D. 196.

91. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Yankton Sav. Bank, 15 S. D. 196.

92. Farmers' & Mech. Nat. Bank v. Cuyler, 18 Pa. Super. Ct. 434.

93. A draft was sent for collection, which, when presented by the receiving bank, was paid by check on such bank, the drawee having money on deposit sufficient to meet such check, and the amount thereof was charged to his account and a draft issued on another bank and mailed to plaintiff—Peters Shoe Co. v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 977.

94. Bank of Laddonia v. Friar, 88 Mo. App. 39.

95. American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Theummler, 195 Ill. 90.

96. Nash v. Second Nat. Bank, 67 N. J. Law, 265.

97. A bank to which drafts are transmitted by another in the ordinary course of business and which mails them to its correspondent undertakes the duty of collecting them and paying over the proceeds or returning them with the liability of the parties unimpaired in case they are not paid, there being no special agreement—National Revere Bank v. Nat. Bank of Republic, 172 N. Y. 102. A bank is liable for failure to demand payment or protest for non-payment a note held by it for collection on which it is liable as indorser—Louisville Banking Co. v. Asher, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1180, 65 S. W. 133.

98. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank v. Security Bank, 87 Minn. 81.

the taking of necessary steps to bind indorsers,[99] but the bank need not see that a notary performs his duty as to notice of dishonor.[1] Where a receiving bank cashes a check and forwards it for collection and the drawer is discharged by failure of the collecting bank to protest, the receiving bank is damaged prima facie to the amount of the check, but the damages may be reduced by showing the insolvency of the persons discharged from liability.[2] Where the collecting bank fails to properly charge an indorser, the presumption is that the indorser was solvent.[3]

Drafts with bill of lading attached.—The collecting bank is not liable for defects in the goods against which the drafts were drawn,[4] or for the drawer's failure to pay freight as agreed on and as shown by the invoice attached to the draft.[5] Negligence of the bank with regard to delivery of the goods may be waived.[6] The indorsement on a draft attached to a bill of lading may be sufficient to charge the drawee with notice that it is held for collection only.[7]

Actions.[8]—Where collections are sought to be held as a trust fund against a receiver, it may be shown that certain preferred creditors of the bank have recovered judgments entitling them to share pro rata in the funds on hand at the time of the insolvency.[9] Sufficiency of petition as identifying funds sought to be recovered after insolvency as proceeds of collection.[10]

§ 9. Offenses against banking laws; penalties. Receipt of deposits when insolvent.—Penal statutes punishing receipt of deposits when insolvent do not apply to private bankers.[11] A corporation may be a de facto corporation if at the time of an indictment for receiving deposits after insolvency, there is a statute permitting its organization, though at the time of the attempted organization there was no such statute.[12] Insolvency means an inability to pay depositors as banks usually do and to meet liabilities becoming due in the ordinary course of business.[13] An intent to injure and defraud the bank must be charged in the indictment and proved in proceedings under Rev. St. § 5209.[14]

Evidence.[15]—That a transaction charged to be embezzlement by a bank officer

99. Note forwarded for collection—Williams v. Parks, 63 Neb. 747.

1. Since such is to be regarded as an official act of the notary—Williams v. Parks, 63 Neb. 747.

2. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank v. Security Bank, 87 Minn. 81.

3. National Revere Bank v. Nat. Bank of Republic, 172 N. Y. 102.

4. Commerce Mill. & Grain Co. v. Morris, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 553; Gregory v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 66.

5. Gregory v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 66.

6. Where a draft with bill of lading attached is forwarded for collection with instructions to allow ten days to the drawee for examination of the goods, the drawer waives any negligence of the bank in delivering the goods for examination without requiring payment of the draft by writing the drawee to pay the draft at once, when they are notified by the bank of the drawee's refusal after the expiration of ten days to pay the draft or return the goods and are requested to give further instructions—Flood v. First Nat. Bank, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 661, 69 S. W. 750.

7. "Pay to the order of American Nat. Bank," indorsed by the American Nat. Bank, "Pay any bank or banker or order American Nat. Bank"—Gregory v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 66.

8. See as to sufficiency of evidence to show partnership ownership of a draft drawn to the order of one partner and indorsed by him individually for deposit—Morris v. First Nat. Bank, 201 Pa. 160. See as to sufficiency of pleading to raise the issue as to forwarding bank's negligence in failing to inquire concerning a cause of delay and notify the owner of the notes thereof—Second Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1255, 65 S. W. 4, 55 L. R. A. 273.

9. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Yankton Sav. Bank, 15 S. D. 196.

10. It is sufficient to state the deposit of a check the day before the appointment of a receiver, the bank's officers having knowledge of its insolvency, and that the drawee held a portion of the check for a time after the receivership before it was paid over—Hyland v. Roe, 111 Wis. 361.

11. Penal Code, §§ 601, 609—Hall v. Baker, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 131.

12. State v. Stevens (S. D.) 92 N. W. 420.

13. Comp. Laws, § 6850—State v. Stevens (S. D.) 92 N. W. 420.

14. A refusal to instruct as to necessity of finding such intent is error, though the instructions define embezzlement as fraudulent appropriation by defendant of the funds of the bank to his own use—McKnight v. U. S., 111 Fed. 735, 49 C. C. A. 594.

15. Sufficiency of showing of knowledge of affairs of bank on prosecution under Starr & C. Ann. St. c. 38, § 168—Paulsen v. People, was without the knowledge or consent of the directors or discount committee need not be proved specifically, if the transaction which the evidence tended to show was one to which it would not be presumed the directors or committee would consent.[16] In a prosecution under Rev. St. § 5209, against a national bank officer or clerk for embezzlement or making of false entries with intent to injure or defraud the bank or to deceive, the burden of rebutting intent is placed on defendant after proof of acts charged, and he must satisfy the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that there was no guilty intent in the transaction.[17]

Where the charge is embezzlement in causing a bank's money to be paid to persons known to be insolvent for the purpose of bribery and with intent to defraud the bank, the persons having executed a note to the bank, the instructions should not ignore the question of the insolvency of the persons to whom the loan is made.[18]

BANKRUPTCY.

§ 1. Validity of act.—That the bankruptcy act of July 1, 1898, permits others than traders to be adjudged bankrupts,[1] or because bankrupts are allowed the state statutory exemptions,[2] or because it fails to require notice to creditors of the filing of a petition in voluntary proceedings,[3] or personal service of notice of application for discharge in such proceedings,[4] does not render it unconstitutional.

195 Ill. 507. In a prosecution under Starr & C. Ann. St. c. 38, § 168, defendant may testify that he believed the bank was solvent, though, if the proof of knowledge to the contrary is great, failure to permit him so to do is harmless—Paulsen v. People, 195 Ill. 507.

16. A charge of embezzlement in paying out money on a note known to be worthless with intent to injure and defraud the bank—McKnight v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 972.

17. United States v. German, 115 Fed. 987.

18. McKnight v. U. S. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 972.

1. Hanover Nat. Bank v. Moyses, 186 U. S. 181, 46 Law. Ed. 1113.

2. Such provision not being an attempt to delegate legislative powers—Hanover Nat. Bank v. Moyses, 186 U. S. 181, 46 Law. Ed. 1113.

3. Hanover Nat. Bank v. Moyses, 186 U. S. 181, 46 Law. Ed. 1113.

4. It does not deprive creditors of their property without due process of law—Hanover Nat. Bank v. Moyses, 186 U. S. 181, 46 Law. Ed. 1113.

§ 2. Supersession of state laws.—The passage of the federal bankrupt act suspended the operation of state bankruptcy acts,[5] except as to persons and cases which are not within the purview of the act;[6] and a state statute relating to insolvent mining corporations,[7] and permitting proceedings against a farmer,[8] are not superseded. Pending proceedings under the state laws were not barred by the passage of the federal act,[9] and a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors before the passage of the bankrupt act is a pending proceeding.[10]

§ 3. Occasion for proceeding and acts of bankruptcy. A. General assignment.—It is an act of bankruptcy for a debtor to make a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, irrespective of his solvency.[11]

B. Insolvency.—One is not insolvent within the act if his assets are sufficient to pay his debts.[12] In determining the question of insolvency, only such transfers as were made to defraud creditors should be excluded as assets,[13] and property mortgaged may be included, though it does not appear that the mortgage was so intended.[14] The mere submission of a corporation to the appointment of a receiver by a state court is not of itself an act of bankruptcy,[15] nor is an application by a partnership for dissolution and the appointment of a receiver, though the action was instituted for the purpose of preventing bankruptcy proceedings;[16] and an answer in proceedings in a state court for the appointment of a receiver admitting insolvency is not an admission in writing of inability to pay debts or a willingness to be adjudged a bankrupt.[17] That the petitioner sent a post-dated check and a note to a creditor and afterward renewed the note, which was finally paid a little less than four months before his application, is insufficient to show his insolvency.[18]

C. Disposition of property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors.—An actual intent to hinder, delay, and defraud must exist before any of the acts specified in the law shall constitute an act of bankruptcy,[19] and an intent involves a purpose wrongfully or unjustifiably to prevent, obstruct, embarrass, or postpone creditors in the collection or enforcement of their claims.[20] Intent will be presumed when one does any act which he knows will produce that result.[21] The doing or permitting of any of the things specified in such section with intent not to become a bankrupt is not necessarily doing or permitting them with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors.[22] It is not permitting a "removal" of property by the debtor within the above section where he had neither the power nor

5. Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 483; In re Storck Lumber Co., 114 Fed. 360; R. H. Herron Co. v. Superior Ct. of City & County of San Francisco, 136 Cal. 279, 68 Pac. 814; Littlefield v. Gay, 96 Me. 422.

6. R. H. Herron Co. v. Superior Ct. of City & County of San Francisco, 136 Cal. 279, 68 Pac. 814; Littlefield v. Gay, 96 Me. 422; Old Town Bank v. McCormick, 96 Md. 341; Rosenfeld v. Siegfried, 91 Mo. App. 169.

7. R. H. Herron Co. v. Superior Ct. of City & County of San Francisco, 136 Cal. 279, 68 Pac. 814; Littlefield v. Gay, 96 Me. 422.

8. Bankruptcy Act, § 4a, excepts "a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil"—Old Town Bank v. McCormick, 96 Md. 341.

9. Where the proceedings were pending, an action to set aside conveyances as fraudulent cannot be maintained by the trustee of the insolvent appointed under the bankruptcy act—Hood v. Blair State Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 701, 706.

10. Osborn v. Fender (Minn.) 92 N. W. 1114.

11. Day v. Beck & Gregg Hardware Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 834.

12. In re Henry Zeltner Brewing Co., 117 Fed. 799.

13. § 1, subd. 15—Posey v. McManis (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 792.

14. Posey v. McManis (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 792.

15. In re Henry Zeltner Brewing Co., 117 Fed. 799.

16. In re Varick Bank, 119 Fed. 991.

17. Bankruptcy Act, § 3a (5)—In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

18. In re Chappell, 113 Fed. 545.

19. Bankruptcy Act, § 3a (1)—In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

20. In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

21. In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

22. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 3a (1)—In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

the right to prevent its removal,[23] as where possession was taken by a receiver appointed by a state court[24] after admission of insolvency by answer in the proceedings in the state court.[25]

D. A preferential transfer of property while insolvent to a particular creditor or creditors is an act of bankruptcy,[26] irrespective of knowledge on the part of the creditor of an intention to prefer him.[27] If legal proceedings result in a preference and the debtor fails to discharge or vacate such preference, it will constitute an act of bankruptcy and there need be no intent on the part of the debtor to prefer the creditor, nor need he participate in bringing about the preference.[28]

§ 4. Persons who may be adjudged bankrupt and who may petition.—A farmer,[29] a wage earner, earning less than $1,500 per year,[30] a carrier,[31] mining[32] or laundry corporation,[33] or an incorporated social club,[34] or a corporation which had never acted under its charter authorizing it to engage in mercantile pursuits,[35] is not subject to involuntary proceedings.

Voluntary proceedings may be instituted by a debtor who owes less than $1,000,[36] and an unliquidated claim for a personal tort is not a debt which can be included in his schedule,[37] since the word "debt" in section 4 of the act is limited to a debt, demand, or claim, provable in bankruptcy, as defined in section 1, subd. 11.[38] An insane person is not qualified to file a petition in voluntary proceedings.[39]

Involuntary proceedings may be instituted by a creditor who holds an unsurrendered preference,[40] but a creditor whose claim is disputed and unliquidated[41] or who is enforcing his claim by action in a state court[42] cannot. While a debtor owing less than $1,000 cannot be adjudged a bankrupt,[43] yet jurisdiction is not lost where other petitioners join their claims bringing the amount up to the limit;[44] but the requisite number of petitioners against a corporation cannot be made up by one creditor assigning a part of his claim to two other persons, the other creditors being unwilling to file the petition.[45] A petition in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against a corporation cannot be filed by creditors who became such by an assignment of a part of the creditor's claim to them.[46]

23. "Removal" as used in that section means an actual or physical change in the possession or locality of the property—In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

24. In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

25. In re Wilmington Hosiery Co., 120 Fed. 180.

26. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 3a—Boyd v. Lemon & Gale Co., 114 Fed. 647. Evidence held sufficient to show insolvency at the time of making a preferential transfer which was averred as the act of bankruptcy—In re Coddington, 118 Fed. 281.

27. Act 1898, § 3a (2). Deed of trust as security—Boyd v. Lemon & Gale Co., 114 Fed. 647.

28. Bankruptcy Act, § 3a (3)—White v. Bradley Timber Co., 119 Fed. 989.

29. Evidence held sufficient to show that a person was not "engaged chiefly in farming" within section 4 of the Bankruptcy Act—In re Drake, 114 Fed. 229.

30. In re Pilger, 118 Fed. 206.

31. In re Philadelphia & Lewes Transp. Co., 114 Fed. 403.

32. R. H. Herron Co. v. Superior Ct. of City & County of San Francisco, 136 Cal. 279, 68 Pac. 814.

33. Bankruptcy Act, § 4—In re White Star Laundry Co., 117 Fed. 570.

34. In re Fulton Club, 113 Fed. 997.

35. In re Tontine Surety Co., 116 Fed. 401.

36. Littlefield v. Gay, 96 Me. 422.

37. Where the only debt which the petitioner scheduled was a judgment for malicious injury to the person, from which an appeal was pending, the adjudication will be set aside—In re Yates, 114 Fed. 365.

38. In re Yates, 114 Fed. 365.

39. § 59a—In re Eisinberg, 117 Fed. 786.

40. In re Herzikopf, 118 Fed. 101.

41. His claim must first be liquidated as required by § 63b—In re Big Meadows Gas Co., 113 Fed. 974.

42. By attachment—Buckingham v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 305.

43. R. H. Herron Co. v. Superior Ct. of City & County of San Francisco, 136 Cal. 279, 68 Pac. 814; Littlefield v. Gay, 96 Me. 422.

44. In re Ryan, 114 Fed. 373. Evidence held sufficient to show that petitioner was entitled to damages to the jurisdictional amount—In re Stern (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 604; Appeal of Manhattan Ice Co., Id.; In re Manhattan Ice Co., 114 Fed. 399.

45. Under Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 59, three creditors must petition to have a corporation declared bankrupt—In re Independent Thread Co., 113 Fed. 998.

46. In re Independent Thread Co., 113 Fed. 998.

§ 5. Procedure for adjudication. A. Involuntary.—The petition must allege that the defendant is not a wage earner nor a person engaged chiefly in farming.[47] It must aver that payments while insolvent were made with intent to prefer the creditor.[48] If based on a concealment of money with intent to hinder, defraud, and delay creditors, it need not set forth the manner and details of the concealment.[49] An averment that one of petitioner's claims was fraudulently contracted may be stricken out as impertinent.[50] If proceedings are sought to be instituted against a partnership, the petition should be specifically directed against the partnership and not against the individuals composing it,[51] and the partnership as such is not brought before the court by a petition against the individuals composing it.[52] It is not necessary that a petition against a corporation aver the nature of the company's business.[53] The bankruptcy act does not require that a petition shall be verified by a formal or any affidavit.[54] It may properly be verified by the attorney or agent of the petitioner,[55] who has knowledge of the facts,[56] and if verified by the attorney his authority is sufficiently shown if it appear that he is admitted to practice in the circuit or district courts pursuant to bankruptcy order 4.[57] If it is signed and verified by a person in behalf of a corporation, he must state under oath that he was authorized to so sign and verify.[58]

The last day should be included in computing the time to answer.[59]

The general power of the court to permit amendments is not abrogated or restricted by bankruptcy rule 11,[60] and is by rule 6, by implication, limited to where earlier acts of bankruptcy are to be included.[61] The petition may be amended at any stage of the proceedings.[62] Unless a failure to state an act of bankruptcy in the original petition is excused, and unless an amendment would be in furtherance of justice, an amended petition will not be entertained,[63] and if the proceedings are against the members of a partnership, it cannot be amended so as to call for an adjudication against the partnership.[64] A clerical error in the jurat of a duplicate original petition may be cured by amendment.[65]

Objections to the petition[66] and to the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court over the person and estate of the debtor are waived by his appearance and giving testimony on the hearing of the petition.[67]

On proper demand made therefor, the bankrupt may have jury trial on the question whether he had made a general assignment.[68]

The bankrupt may be examined on the question of his solvency at the time of the alleged preferential transfer.[69] The proof must affirmatively show that the

47. In re Bellah, 116 Fed. 69.
48. In re Ewing, 115 Fed. 707.
49. In re Bellah, 116 Fed. 69.
50. In re Ewing, 115 Fed. 707.
51. In re Mercur, 116 Fed. 655.
52. In re Mercur, 116 Fed. 655.
53. Where a petition alleges that the corporation had had its principal place of business within the district for the greater portion of six months next preceding the date of the filing of the petition and had property within said district and owed debts to the amount of $1,000, it is sufficient, especially where the demurrer was filed as a part of the answer on which the parties went to final hearing—In re Stern (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 604; Appeal of Manhattan Ice Co., Id.
54. In re Bellah, 116 Fed. 69.
55. In re Herzikopf, 118 Fed. 101.
56. In re Hunt, 118 Fed. 282.
57. In re Herzikopf, 118 Fed. 101.
58. In re Bellah, 116 Fed. 69.
59. Day v. Beck & Gregg Hardware Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 834.
60. In re Bellah, 116 Fed. 69.
61. In re Sears (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 294.
62. In re Mercur, 116 Fed. 655.
63. White v. Bradley Timber Co., 116 Fed. 768.
64. Proceedings held to be against the individual members of a partnership and not against the latter—In re Mercur, 116 Fed. 655.
65. In re Bellah, 116 Fed. 69.
66. Objection that the attorney or agent had no authority to verify the petition—In re Herzikopf, 118 Fed. 101.
67. In re Smith, 117 Fed. 961.
68. Day v. Beck & Gregg Hardware Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 834.
69. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 3d—In re Coddington, 118 Fed. 281.

person sought to be adjudged an involuntary bankrupt is not within the exceptions of the act.[70]

An adjudication made on the tenth day after the filing of the petition in default of an answer is premature, since the time of answering does not expire until the expiration of the tenth day.[71] The mere adjudication of the partners of a firm as bankrupts, is not an adjudication against the partnership.[72] If the petition is dismissed, the respondent, not having been deprived of possession of his property, will not be allowed counsel fees or damages.[73] Want of jurisdiction is ground for collateral attack.[74] A judgment of a court of bankruptcy on a verdict of not guilty by jury can be reviewed only by writ of error.[75]

B. Voluntary.—If a partnership is seeking a discharge from firm as well as individual liability, separate petitions should be filed and subsequent proceedings should be conducted separately.[76] On default of a partner after service of the petition by his co-partner, the proceedings will be deemed voluntary on the part of both.[77] Since the bankruptcy act does not give a creditor the right to contest voluntary proceedings, he cannot intervene for the purpose of showing that the petitioner is solvent,[78] nor can he petition to vacate an adjudication,[79] and even if he had the right to intervene, that the facts stated in opposition by him came to his knowledge only recently will not excuse a delay of eight months.[80] There is no presumption from the adjudication that the bankrupt was insolvent at any period previous to the filing of his petition.[81] An order sustaining a demurrer to a petition on an application to vacate an adjudication in voluntary proceedings can be reviewed only by petition and not by appeal.[82]

§ 6. Conflict between voluntary and involuntary proceedings.—That a petition in involuntary proceedings has been filed will not bar a voluntary petition,[83] but the latter will be given priority without prejudice to the rights of the creditors in the former.[84]

§ 7. Protection and possession of the property pending the appointment of trustee; receivers.—A warrant for the seizure of property of an alleged bankrupt will not be issued except on a strict compliance with the provisions of section 69 of the bankruptcy act, and it will not be issued on the affidavit of the bankrupt alone waiving all preliminaries.[85] A receiver will be appointed only pending the filing of a bond by the petitioners;[86] he is entitled to possession of the property as against a mortgagee who took possession thereof under the mortgage subsequent to the adjudication.[87] A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to restrain the enforcement of claims against the bankrupt's property pending the appointment of a trustee,[88] as where a sale is attempted of property fraudulently conveyed by the

70. In re Pilger, 118 Fed. 206.

71. Sts. at Large, p. 544, §§ 18b and 18e—Day v. Beck & Gregg Hardware Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 834.

72. Bankruptcy Act, § 5h, cannot be construed into affirmative authority for the administration of firm assets in individual proceedings against all the parties—In re Mercur, 116 Fed. 655.

73. § 3 (5) e applies only when his property has been taken from his possession—In re Morris, 115 Fed. 591; In re Williams, 120 Fed. 34.

74. The validity of bankruptcy proceedings may be collaterally attacked in the state court on the ground of insufficiency of the property of the petitioning creditors—Buckingham v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 305; Matter of O'Donnell, Id.

75. Elliott v. Toeppner, 187 U. S. 327.

76. In re Farley, 115 Fed. 359.

77. In re Carleton, 115 Fed. 246.

78. In re Carleton, 115 Fed. 246.

79. In re Ives (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 911.

80. In re Ives (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 911.

81. In re Chappell, 113 Fed. 545.

82. Bankruptcy Act, § 24b—In re Ives (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 911.

83. In re Stegar, 113 Fed. 978.

84. In such case the involuntary proceedings will be stayed to be renewed subsequently if necessary—In re Stegar, 113 Fed. 978.

85. In re Sarsar, 120 Fed. 40.

86. Bankruptcy Act, § 3e—Beach v. Macon Grocery Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 143.

87. In re Gutman, 114 Fed. 1009.

88. Beach v. Macon Grocery Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 143; In re Smith, 113 Fed. 993. Actions by creditors against an insolvent cor-debtor,[89] or under a mortgage, it appearing that the mortgage was void.[90] The petition for an injunction to restrain proceedings in a state court may be signed and verified by the attorney for the creditors.[91]

§ 8. Creditors' meetings; appointment of trustee; removals.—In voluntary proceedings where the schedule shows no assets and no creditor appears at the first meeting, a trustee need not be appointed,[92] and there are no assets where all the scheduled property is exempt.[93] The referee in proceedings for the appointment of a trustee should entertain objections to claims to determine whether they are presented in good faith and the right of the claimants to vote.[94] Allowable claims cannot be considered at a meeting for the election of a trustee if the creditors are not present,[95] or the power of attorney of his proxy is sufficient.[96] The notary's certificate of acknowledgment to a power of attorney to proxy of a bankrupt's creditor is sufficient though it contains no venue.[97] If the attorney for creditors is appointed as trustee and he accepts the office, his relation as attorney for the creditors in the court terminates.[98] The approval by the referee of the trustee, appointed by the creditors, should be evidenced by an order in writing on which the parties may be heard by the judge.[99] In case of disapproval of the trustee selected, the referee has not power to appoint another trustee,[1] but he should call another meeting,[2] and give the creditors an opportunity to appoint a new trustee.[3]

§ 9. Compositions.—Neither the creditor nor the bankrupt can be compelled to pay receivers and attorneys' fees on the composition,[4] and in the absence of such an agreement, the composition fails and the estate will proceed as if no composition had been attempted.[5] A composition should be confirmed when it is for the best interests of creditors.[6] A dismissal of bankruptcy proceedings after confirmation of a composition will discharge all ordinary claims provable in bankruptcy, though the holders did not prove the same or participate in the proceeding,[7] and the bankrupt cannot assert the creditors' rights as against a contract made by him, valid as between himself and the claimant.[8] poration commenced in the state court, will not be restrained, but proceedings on the judgment will be enjoined, it being uncertain whether creditors can enforce stockholders' liabilities before their claims had been reduced to judgments—In re Remington Automobile & Motor Co., 119 Fed. 441.

89. In re Miller, 118 Fed. 360.

90. Under Ga. Code, § 2878, providing that a creditor cannot collect usurious interest from an insolvent debtor to the prejudice of other creditors, a sale under a deed in fact a mortgage void as usurious, may be restrained—In re Miller, 118 Fed. 360; In re Ball, 118 Fed. 672.

91. If the moving papers state why it is made by the attorney it is sufficient—In re Goldberg, 117 Fed. 692. Sufficiency of petition, by creditors to restrain attachment proceedings in the state court, to show that the bankruptcy proceedings were pending in the district wherein the petition was filed—In re Goldberg, 117 Fed. 692. That the property attached was sold without proper notice, under order of sale by the state court, to the attaching creditor's son for one-tenth the appraised value warrants the issuance of an injunction restraining further interference pending the bankruptcy proceedings—In re Goldberg, 117 Fed. 692.

92. And Rule 15 in bankruptcy so providing is within Bankruptcy Act, § 30, empowering the U. S. supreme court to prescribe necessary rules—Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786.

93. Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786.

94. In re Malino, 118 Fed. 368. He should permit an investigation into the relations between an attorney, who had been attorney for the bankrupt and at the meeting represented certain creditors, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any of the claims he represented were held in the interest of the bankrupt—In re Dayville Woolen Co., 114 Fed. 674.

95. In re MacKellar, 116 Fed. 547.

96. In re Henschel (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 443.

97. If the proxy complies with the form prescribed, pursuant to Bankruptcy Act 1830, it is sufficient—In re Henschel (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 443.

98. In re Evans, 116 Fed. 909.

99. In re Hare, 119 Fed. 246.

1. In re MacKellar, 116 Fed. 547; In re Hare, 119 Fed. 246.

2. In re MacKellar, 116 Fed. 547.

3. In re Hare, 119 Fed. 246.

4. In re Slomka, 117 Fed. 688.

5. In re Slomka, 117 Fed. 688.

6. A composition confirmed by the court as being for the best interests of creditors—In re Arrington Co., 113 Fed. 498.

§ 10. Property and rights passing to trustee.[9] A. Particular kinds of property or rights.—A seat in a stock exchange having a vendable value,[10] policies of life insurance having a cash surrender value payable to the bankrupt[11] or to his wife if she survives him and to his representatives in case he survives her,[12] though the laws of the state exempt the avails of all life insurance,[13] passes to the trustee. A vested remainder in realty passes to the trustee of the remainderman during the existence of the life estate,[14] and improvements placed on land by a vendee under contract to convey on payment of the purchase money pass to his trustee whether the same are fixtures or not.[15] Partnership assets do not pass to the trustee of one of the members of the firm,[16] though the proceedings against the members and firm were instituted simultaneously and by the same creditor,[17] nor do goods obtained by false pretenses pass as a part of the bankrupt's estate.[18] The title to exempt property,[19] or to public lands which after the adjudication against the bankrupt reverted to the state on nonperformance of the contract of sale,[20] does not pass.

Property fraudulently conveyed by the debtor passes to his trustee whether or not creditors could have attacked the conveyance,[21] or where by subsequent acts they would be barred from attacking it,[22] and this though the transfers were made more than four months previous to the adjudication,[23] except where the fraudulent grantee had transferred it to a bona fide purchaser.[24] Under act 1867, a fraudulent conveyance made within one month previous to the institution of voluntary bankruptcy proceedings was void.[25]

B. Nature of trustee's title in general.—The trustee takes the same but no better title than the bankrupt had,[26] subject to all legal and equitable claims[27] and

7. Glover Grocery Co. v. Dorne (Ga.) 42 S. E. 347.

8. Where the bankrupt effected a compromise with his creditors, there being no adjudication against him, the court of bankruptcy may in summary proceedings direct a surrender of property to one claiming title under a writing claimed to be void under a state statute as a secret lien—In re Winship Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 93.

9. Merely because through the efforts of a bankrupt corporate officer the stock has been enhanced in value will not warrant a recovery of the stock by his trustee, and this though his wife owned all the stock except one share—Campbell v. Thompson (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 161.

10. Page v. Edmunds, 187 U. S. 596.

11. In re Holden (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 650.

12. Under the laws of Washington, the wife's interest in such insurance is made her separate property and is assignable—In re Holden (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 650.

13. Bankruptcy Act, § 70a (5)—In re Holden (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 650.

14. In re Haslett, 116 Fed. 630.

15. A vendor in Pennsylvania under contract to convey on payment of purchase money has no lien aside from his legal estate in the land—In re Clark, 118 Fed. 358.

16. Ludowici Roofing Tile Co. v. Pa. Inst. for Instruction of Blind, 116 Fed. 661.

17. Ludowici Roofing Tile Co. v. Pa. Inst. for Instruction of Blind, 116 Fed. 661.

18. And replevin may be obtained against the trustee for such goods—Bloomingdale v. Empire Rubber Mfg. Co., 114 Fed. 1016; Goodyear Rubber Co. v. Schreiber, 29 Wash. 94, 69 Pac. 648; In re Burkle, 116 Fed. 766. The seller to recover the goods from the trustee need not show that the purchaser did not, at the time of the purchase, intend to pay for them—In re Hamilton F. & C. Co., 117 Fed. 774. Evidence held sufficient to show fraud by the bankrupt in procuring goods, entitling the sellers to reclaim—In re O'Connor, 114 Fed. 777.

19. In re Seabolt, 113 Fed. 766.

20. Snodgrass v. Posey (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 984.

21. Sheldon v. Parker (Neb.) 92 N. W. 923. Evidence held sufficient to show a sale by a bankrupt valid as against his trustee in bankruptcy—Weeks v. Fowler, 71 N. H. 518.

22. It is not a defense to an action by the trustee to recover property fraudulently transferred that the action was brought on the instigation of other creditors who pursuant to an agreement had ceased to prosecute actions against the bankrupt and would testify to the value of the property received by defendants—Frank v. Musliner, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 616.

23. In re Schenck, 116 Fed. 554.

24. In such case the judgment in the action to set aside the conveyance should be for damages against the fraudulent grantee and it should not set aside the conveyance—Skillin v. Maibrunn, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 588.

25. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 130 N. C. 482.

26. Logan v. Nebraska Moline Plow Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 129; In re Kellogg (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 1017; In re Rabenau, 118 Fed. 471; Snodgrass v. Posey (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 984; In re Standard Laundry Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 476. Where a chattel mortgagee purchased the chattels and thereafter sold them to a third person who purchased subject to the mortgage, the second purchaser and his trustees are estopped from questionliens existing at the time of the filing of the petition,[28] which title vests as on the day of adjudication.[29] Under the bankrupt act, 1867, section 14, the bankrupt's property did not pass to the assignee until after he had qualified and it had been assigned by the judge or register.[30]

C. The trustee takes title free from liens acquired by legal proceedings within four months prior to the filing of the petition in voluntary or involuntary proceedings,[31] by a judgment,[32] or by an execution issued on a judgment obtained more than four months before but levied on property purchased by the debtor while insolvent and within four months,[33] irrespective of whether the debt would be released by the bankrupt's discharge;[34] by proceedings supplementary to execution;[35] by distraint for rent,[36] garnishment[37] or attachment,[38] and this applies to liens against exempt as well as nonexempt property;[39] but he takes subject to a lien acquired by legal proceedings commenced more than four months prior to the petition, though its enforcement depends on a judgment obtained within four months, as by attachment,[40] or by the commencement of a judgment creditor's action,[41] and subject also to a mechanic's lien acquired within four months of the bankruptcy of the debtor, since it is not acquired by legal proceedings.[42]

Funds on deposit in bank pass to the depositor's trustee free from any lien of the bank for the payment of unmatured notes held by it against the bankrupt,[43] and this though the funds were under the control of the bankrupt's assignee for the benefit of creditors and though the notes matured after the assignment and before the petition in bankruptcy was filed,[44] and particularly where the fund was deposited in trust for the benefit of certain creditors.[45]

D. Whether chattel mortgages executed by the bankrupt are valid liens will be determined by the laws of the state of the making.[46] The trustee takes free from any lien where the mortgagor was allowed to retain possession,[47] with the ing the validity of the mortgage—In re Standard Laundry Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 476.

27. Duplan Silk Co. v. Spencer (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 689.

28. South End Imp. Co. v. Harden (N. J. Ch.) 52 Atl. 1127.

29. In re Gutman, 114 Fed. 1009.

30. Leathem & Smith Lumber Co. v. Nalty, 109 La. 325. And the assignment by the register to the trustee operated as a conveyance of land though not scheduled—Hallyburton v. Slagle, 130 N. C. 482.

31. Section 67f; Mencke v. Rosenberg, 202 Pa. 131; In re Beals, 116 Fed. 530. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 67f, should be construed in connection with U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3418, § 1—Gabriel v. Tonner, 138 Cal. 63, 70 Pac. 1021.

32. Kinmouth v. Braeutigam, 63 N. J. Eq. 103; Mencke v. Rosenberg, 202 Pa. 131.

33. In re Darwin (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 407. A lien on specific land cannot be acquired by the filing of an execution in a county other than that in which the judgment was rendered within four months, though the judgment was rendered more than four months before the adjudication of the defendant as a bankrupt.

34. In re Benedict, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 230.

35. Property discovered in such proceedings passes to his trustee in bankruptcy—Rodgers v. Forbes, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 438.

36. In re Duble, 117 Fed. 794.

37. In re Beaver Coal Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 889.

38. In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906.

39. In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906.

40. In re Beaver Coal Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 889; Wakeman v. Throckmorton, 74 Conn. 616.

41. Ninth Nat. Bank v. Moses, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 664; Metcalf v. Barker, 187 U. S. 165. Injunction issued by referee restraining proceedings in state court on a judgment and entered more than four months before the adjudication of the judgment debtor as a bankrupt is without authority—White v. Thompson (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 868.

42. Holland v. Cunliff, 96 Mo. App. 67. The filing of mechanic's lien against the bankrupt after adjudication for a credit due within four months before the adjudication gives the lien claimant no greater rights than ordinary creditors—Lazzari v. Havens, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 255.

43. Bankruptcy Act, §§ 63, 68, relating to mutual debts or mutual credits and the right of set-off, must be interpreted as applicable to proceedings in bankruptcy and to the incidental proof and allowance of claims, and not as intended to change the principles of set-off in actions—Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 89.

44. Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 89.

45. The trustee of a bankrupt, certain of whose creditors had deposited in the bank proceeds of his property sold by them and which was to be prorated among creditors, is entitled to possession of such funds as against the bank asserting an adverse claim thereto—In re Davis, 119 Fed. 950.

46. In re Josephson, 116 Fed. 404.

47. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 70e; New York Laws 1897, c. 417—Skillen v. Endelman, 39 right to sell and replace goods sold,[48] though the mortgage provided that the proceeds of the sale of the goods should be used in payment of the mortgage and other debts and required daily deposits with the mortgagee.[49] There is no lien against the trustee where the mortgage was not recorded pursuant to an agreement,[50] or where prejudice resulted to creditors from the failure.[51] If executed before but recorded within four months of the adjudication,[52] or on the day before filing the petition,[53] or if recorded after the mortgagor had made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors and before the institution of bankruptcy proceedings against him,[54] it is not a lien. A recorded bill of sale executed to secure advancements to aid the bankrupt in the conduct of his business is a valid lien.[55]

The trustee takes such rights of the bankrupt, holding under a contract of sale with a reservation of title in the seller, as the bankrupt could have transferred or creditors have levied on or subjected to debts.[56]

E. Property transferred while insolvent and within four months of the filing of the petition shall be deemed a preference which passes to the trustee,[57] and whether an intent to prefer on the part of the bankrupt is essential has been the subject of conflicting decisions.[58] It must appear, however, that the bankrupt was insolvent at the time of the transfer,[59] and knowledge on the part of the creditor,[60] such as would induce a reasonable belief of the insolvency—not a mere cause to suspect the insolvency—is sufficient to render the transfer within four months a preference and void.[61] It is not necessary to show a specific agree-

Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 261; In re Jones, 116 Fed. 431.

48. In re Hull, 115 Fed. 858.

49. Egan State Bank v. Rice (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 107.

50. In re Josephson, 116 Fed. 404.

51. Deland v. Miller & Chaney Bank (Iowa) 93 N. W. 304; Texas Brew. Co. v. Mallette (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 441.

52. Babbitt v. Kelley, 96 Mo. App. 529.

53. In re Jones, 116 Fed. 431.

54. Laws Wis. 1901, c. 207, provides that an assignee for the benefit of creditors represents the rights and interests of creditors in respect to transfers or liens, fraudulent or void as to creditors—In re Andrae Co., 117 Fed. 561.

55. In re Durham, 114 Fed. 750.

56. To constitute such reservation a lien it is essential that the contract be recorded (R. S. Mo. 1899, § 3412)—In re Fraizer, 117 Fed. 746; In re Rabenau, 118 Fed. 471; In re Kellogg (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 1017; In re Garcewich (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 87. Nebraska Comp. St. c. 32, § 26—Logan v. Nebraska Moline Plow Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 129. In Rhode Island property held under a conditional contract of sale and under which the bankrupt purchaser had no legal title, does not pass to his trustee—In re Smith, 119 Fed. 1004. Contract between consignor and bankrupt consignee construed and held a conditional sale to the latter and void under the Missouri statute and that the consignor has merely the rights of an ordinary creditor—In re Rabenau, 118 Fed. 471. Contract construed and held to constitute a bailment and not a conditional sale and the bailor entitled to the property as against the trustee of the bailee—In re Galt (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 64.

57. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 60.

58. In New York it has been held that such intent is essential—Benedict v. Deshel, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 276; but in California it has been held contra—Gabriel v. Tonner, 138 Cal. 63, 70 Pac. 1021.

59. Mortgage—In re Soudan Mfg. Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 804. Facts held to show that the bankrupt was not an insolvent at the time of making certain payments to creditors and within four months previous to the filing of his petition—In re Chappell, 113 Fed. 545.

60. Sherman v. Luckhardt, 65 Kan. 610, 70 Pac. 702; In re Harpke (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 295. Evidence held insufficient to show knowledge of an intended preference after defendant, a clerk of the bankrupt, had received a preference by being paid money, the proceeds of a sale of the bankrupt's entire stock of goods—Dunlop v. Thomas, 28 Wash. 521, 68 Pac. 909. The giving of an insolvent firm's note indorsed by a third person secured by delivery of the firm's collaterals to secure a bank and who discounted for the firm its accepted drafts, the transaction being conducted by the senior partner of the firm who was also an officer of the bank who had knowledge of the firm's insolvency, constitutes a preference though the bank's cashier had no reason to believe that the preference was intended and the accommodation indorser acted in good faith—Crooks v. People's Nat. Bank, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 331.

61. Sirrine v. Stover-Marshall Co., 64 S. C. 457; Rosenfeld v. Siegfried, 91 Mo. App. 169; Harmon v. Feldheim (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 421, 91 N. W. 744; Lampkin v. People's Nat. Bank (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 715; Gans v. Weinstein, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 209; Stedman v. Bank of Monroe (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 237; Johnson v. Cohn, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 189; Marden v. Sugden, 71 N. H. 274. Evidence held insufficient to show knowledge or reasonable cause to believe that a grantee ment between the parties to prefer.[62] The question whether the creditor receiving a preference had reasonable cause to believe the debtor to be insolvent is one of fact.[63] The day on which the transfer was made should be excluded and that on which the petition in bankruptcy was filed should be included, in determining whether a transfer was made within four months preceding the filing of the petition.[64] A transfer within four months of the adjudication of the debtor as a bankrupt, neither party at the time believing that he was insolvent,[65] or if in fact insolvent, the corporation debtor being at the time a going concern,[66] or an oral agreement between the owner of a building and the contractor that materials already delivered shall stand as security for advancements, where by the terms of the contract the owner has a general lien on all materials delivered for the fulfillment of the contract, though the contract was not recorded,[67] or the mere giving of a renewal chattel mortgage within four months of the bankruptcy to the mortgagor,[68] or a conveyance in consideration of money previously loaned, executed eight months before, though by mistake not recorded until within four months of the filing of the petition,[69] or an equitable transfer of fire insurance policies to a creditor more than four months before the transferee was adjudicated a bankrupt, though not delivered until after or within four months of the adjudication,[70] is not a preference void as to the trustee. The distribution of the assets of a partnership among individual partners within four months and while the firm was insolvent,[71] the giving of notes to a retiring partner for his interest,[72] a deposit in bank subject to the debtor's draft,[73] are preferential transfers.

The giving of collateral security to creditors while insolvent and within four months of the debtor's bankruptcy constitutes a preference;[74] but merely because was insolvent at the time of execution of the conveyance to his sister or that he intended it as a preference—Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 144. Evidence held insufficient to show a sale at such an inadequate price as will put the purchaser upon inquiry as to the intent of the transfer by the bankrupt—Dunlop v. Thomas, 28 Wash. 521, 68 Pac. 909; Hackney v. Hargreaves (Neb.) 92 N. W. 626.

62. Gabriel v. Tonner, 138 Cal. 63, 70 Pac. 1021.

63. Harmon v. Walker (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 439, 91 N. W. 1025; Deland v. Miller & Chaney Bank (Iowa) 93 N. W. 304; Boudinot v. Hamann (Iowa) 90 N. W. 497; Sherman v. Luckhardt, 96 Mo. App. 320. Under the evidence in this case the question whether a certain transaction was a preference should have been determined by the court—Hackney v. Hargreaves (Neb.) 92 N. W. 626.

64. Whitley Grocery Co. v. Roach, 115 Ga. 918.

65. The grantor caused property to be conveyed to the wife in consideration of money previously loaned to her under an agreement that he would convey to her property of equal value—Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 89. The husband was not the agent of the wife merely because he directed a conveyance of land purchased by him direct to his wife and so charged her with notice of his insolvency—Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 89; Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 144.

66. Mortgage to secure money advanced to pay outstanding liabilities—In re Soudan Mfg. Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 804.

67. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 70—Duplan Silk Co. v. Spencer (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 689.

68. Deland v. Miller & Chaney Bank (Iowa) 93 N. W. 304.

69. Conveyances by husband to wife which were delivered to the wife's attorney to be recorded, and who by oversight failed to record one of them and the other he recorded only ten days before the petition was filed—Dean v. Plane, 195 Ill. 495. Failure of attorneys of a wife to whom the husband had made a conveyance eight months before his adjudication in bankruptcy, the evidence being sufficient to show that she had no knowledge of his insolvency or that he might become insolvent, to record the conveyance will not justify a conclusion of fraud—Dean v. Plane, 195 Ill. 495.

70. McDonald v. Daskam (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 276.

71. Such disposition gives a preference to individual creditors—In re Head, 114 Fed. 489.

72. In re Denning, 114 Fed. 219.

73. Act 1898, §§ 1 (5), 60—In re Stege (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 342.

74. In re Belding, 116 Fed. 1016; In re Jones, 118 Fed. 673; In re Ed. W. Wright Lumber Co., 114 Fed. 1011. A chattel mortgage covering goods owned by the bankrupt, together with goods purchased at the time of the execution thereof and within four months of the commencement of the proceedings, is valid as against the trustee only as to the goods purchased at the time of the execution—In re Hull, 115 Fed. 858. The execution of a mortgage by a partner of a firm, to his son, within four months of the filing of his petition in voluntary bankruptcy, which was given as collateral security for a note, given by the son to secure overdrafts by the firm, held not to constitute a prefera creditor demanded or accepted security for his claim is insufficient to show that he had reasonable grounds for believing his debtor insolvent and that he was receiving a preference thereby;[75] nor will knowledge of the debtor's insolvency be presumed where the security was for a debt six-sevenths of which constituted a present loan.[76] The taking of collateral security for a present loan within four months of the bankruptcy of the borrower is not of itself the acceptance of a preference.[77] Giving possession of and a lien on future acquired property, under an agreement made while the owner was insolvent and within four months, to secure advances, constitutes a preference.[78]

F. Preferential payments.—The entry of a judgment by a creditor and part collection thereof under execution within four months of the adjudication of defendant in bankruptcy,[79] or the repayment of a part of a loan made within four months of an adjudication against the borrower,[80] or giving a post-dated check payable on the day of the insolvency of the drawer and deposited by the creditor on the same day in another bank, which received payment on the day following through the clearing house,[81] or a fraudulent secret preference to a creditor on a composition with the bankrupt made more than four months before the bankruptcy of the debtor,[82] are preferences. In the latter case, it is a preference to the extent of the excess over the amount he should have received under the composition,[83] which must be surrendered before the creditor can prove an independent debt.[84] A transfer of property in payment of a first mortgage debt is not a preference where the mortgaged property was ample to pay it and also the second mortgage thereon.[85] A payment made by a third party to the creditor of a bankrupt is not a preference to the creditor.[86]

The payment of a part of the claim within four months of the petition in bankruptcy,[87] as a payment of a part of a running account, constitutes a preference;[88] but a payment of a part of a credit balance before a claim for conversion arose is not a preference which must be surrendered before the latter can be proved,[89]

ence within the bankruptcy act—Crooks v. People's Nat. Bank, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 331.

75. Perry v. Booth, 114 N. Y. Rep. 706; Laundy v. First Nat. Bank (Kan.) 71 Pac. 259; Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 144.

76. Stedman v. Bank of Monroe (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 237.

77. Harmon v. Feldheim (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 421, 91 N. W. 744; Young v. Upson, 115 Fed. 192; In re Soudan Mfg. Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 804. So held where the bankrupt was engaged in a canning business, and advances were made to him by a bank which took up drafts attached to bills of lading for cans, and mortgages were subsequently executed, and further advances made for the purchase of raw material—In re Durham, 114 Fed. 750.

78. Mathews v. Hardt, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 570.

79. In re Metzger Toy & Novelty Co., 114 Fed. 957.

80. A loan was made to a corporation by a creditor within four months and the payments were made after the creditor had obtained a representation on the board of directors and during the period of the making of the loan and the part payments other creditors had put merchandise into the bankrupt's estate on credit—In re Colton Exp. & Imp. Co., 115 Fed. 158. Since an oral agreement that the loan should be repaid from a particular fund does not create a lien, payment made out of such fund and within four months of the borrower's bankruptcy constitutes a preference—Torrance v. Winfield Nat. Bank (Kan.) 71 Pac. 235.

81. In re Lyon, 114 Fed. 326.

82. In such case the creditor will be charged with the note given as a preference at its face value regardless of the amount actually received—In re Chaplin, 115 Fed 162.

83. In re Chaplin, 115 Fed. 162.

84. In re Chaplin, 115 Fed. 162.

85. Posey v. McManis (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 792.

86. Money advanced by a bank to the bankrupt under agreement that it was to be used only for a particular purpose, but was later returned to the bank in payment of the check not having been so used, does not constitute a preferential payment—Dressel v. North State Lumber Co., 119 Fed. 531.

87. In re Meyer, 115 Fed. 997.

88. In re Graff, 117 Fed. 343. Discount of the debtor's note on account is a preferential payment—In re Wiessner, 115 Fed. 421.

89. Withdrawal of a part of a credit balance after purchase of corporate stock by bankrupt brokers for claimant on the day of the purchase, it being presumed, there being no evidence of the time of the conversion of the stock by the brokers, that it was converted after the withdrawal—In re Graff, 117 Fed. 343.

nor is a payment to close up an existing account, made within four months of the petition in bankruptcy of the debtor, a preference which must be surrendered before subsequent credits can be proved.[90] A payment to the holder of notes by the bankrupt maker made while insolvent and within four months of the bankruptcy proceedings is a preference to the payee,[91] though the note was secured by solvent indorsers,[92] and though the payments were made to the payee's pledgee;[93] but a payment to the payee does not constitute a preference to the accommodation comakers or sureties,[94] or to one who in good faith and in the ordinary course of business discounted the note.[95]

§ 11. Collection, reduction to possession, and protection of the property. A. Discovery.—A trustee appointed under the state insolvency laws more than four months previous to the adjudication of the insolvent as a bankrupt may be examined by the trustee in bankruptcy concerning his disposition of the bankrupt's assets.[96]

B. Compelling surrender by bankrupt.—It is within the jurisdiction of a court of bankruptcy to determine whether or not the bankrupt has under his control or possession certain assets,[97] but he is entitled to be heard, and to have reasonable time to produce evidence.[98] Section 7 of the bankruptcy act does not deprive the bankrupt of his constitutional right to claim the privilege of a witness,[99] and he cannot, therefore, be compelled, on his examination, to answer questions,[1] or to disclose certain papers which might tend to incriminate him.[2] A court of bankruptcy has no broader powers in punishment for contempt than are possessed by other federal courts.[3] On failure of the bankrupt to comply with an order directing the bankrupt to surrender assets, the court may commit him as a for a contempt,[4] but before committing him the court should be satisfied, beyond a reasonable doubt from the evidence, of his ability to comply with the order.[5] If on his examina-

90. In re Seay, 113 Fed. 969; Kimball v. Rosenham Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 85; Morey Mercantile Co. v. Schiffer (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 447; Jaquith v. Alden (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 270. A contract to loan money to be advanced from time to time as required by the borrower, the amount of each advance to be secured by notes and a transfer of accounts, held as between the lender and the borrower's trustee in bankruptcy a continuous transaction and that the proceeds of the notes and accounts be first applied to the payment of a note for which the account stood and the excess applied generally on the indebtedness—Young v. Upson, 115 Fed. 192. Payments of profits by a bankrupt stockbroker to a customer held not such a preference as would have to be surrendered before the latter could present his claims—In re Topliff, 114 Fed. 323. Payment of notes in full of account which were discounted by the creditors—In re Bullock, 116 Fed. 667; In re Wiessner, 115 Fed. 421.

91. In re Waterbury Furniture Co., 114 Fed. 255; In re Wiessner, 115 Fed. 421; In re Bullock, 116 Fed. 667; Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.

92. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.

93. In re Meyer, 115 Fed. 997.

94. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1; Swarts v. Siegel, 114 Fed. 1001; In re New, 116 Fed. 116.

95. In re Wyly, 116 Fed. 38.

96. Bankruptcy Act, § 21—In re Pursell, 114 Fed. 371.

97. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328.

98. Boyd v. Glucklich (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 131.

99. In re Nachman, 114 Fed. 995.

1. In re Shera, 114 Fed. 207; In re Nachman, 114 Fed. 995.

2. Bankruptcy Act, § 7, subd. 9—In re Franklin Syndicate, 114 Fed. 205.

3. The procedure to hold for contempt and what constitutes a defense should be the same as in the other United States courts—Boyd v. Glucklich (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 131.

4. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328. Evidence held sufficient to show a failure of bankrupt to surrender all his property—In re Shachter, 119 Fed. 1010. It is not a defense that thieves broke into his store and stole a greater portion of his goods where it appeared that after he continued .business with the balance for about four months, he deserted the store and left the goods in such a condition that any one might take them, and it further appeared that he informed certain parties that practically nothing was taken at time of robbery—In re Levin, 113 Fed. 498; In re Wilson, 116 Fed. 419.

5. He cannot be ordered to surrender property not in his possession or under his control—Boyd v. Glucklich (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 131; In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328. A bankrupt committed for failure to surrender assets concealed, discharged from further imprisonment—In re Taylor, 114 Fed. 607.

6. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328. Admissibility of evidence on the issue of an alleged loss of assets by reason of burglary.

tion he admits having had, a short time previous to his bankruptcy, certain assets, he has the burden of accounting therefor,[6] and on failure to do so an order directing its surrender is proper.[7]

C. Property in possession of officers appointed by state courts.—The trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to possession of the bankrupt's property in the hands of a receiver appointed by a state court, in proceedings suspended by the operation of the bankruptcy act,[8] and where he had not converted the property into money, an order of the state court directing a surrender on condition of payment of receiver's and attorney's expenses and fees is erroneous;[9] otherwise where the receiver had converted the assets into money.[10] The order of surrender may properly direct the court of bankruptcy to pay such expenses and fees.[11] Where the state court had jurisdiction to complete pending mortgage foreclosure proceedings, its receiver is entitled to possession of the property covered by the mortgage,[12] but as to property not so covered and as to the surplus arising from the sale the trustee is entitled to possession.[13] Generally, the trustee should first apply to the state court which appointed the receiver for an order directing the surrender of the bankrupt's property.[14]

D. Summary proceedings against third persons; jurisdiction.—A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction in a summary manner to require a third person to pay over money or surrender property in his possession belonging to the bankrupt's estate to which no adverse title is asserted.[15] The court may, however, determine whether a real or pretended adverse claim exists,[16] and if it does exist and the respondent does not consent,[17] or if questions of fact will be involved in determining whether the claim is real, the court should decline jurisdiction.[18] A claim which arose subsequent to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy,[19] or a claim as trustee under a trust mortgage,[20] or claims as between trustees of different estates, are not such claims as would defeat the proceeding.[21] The respondent consents to jurisdiction by appearing and defending,[22] or by appearing for the purpose of review;[23] but a consent is not shown where the respondent demurred to the petition for want of jurisdiction and sufficient facts though he also filed an answer on the merits.[24]

Service of an order to show cause on persons not parties and without the district does confer jurisdiction in personam.[26] An order to show cause why assets belonging to one adjudged a bankrupt in the district court of New York should not

7. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328. An order directing bankrupts to turn over money to their trustees held justified by the evidence.

8. Wilson v. Parr, 115 Ga. 629.

9. Hanson v. Stephens (Ga.) 42 S. E. 1028. An application in the federal court for an order that if the state court modified such order, so as to allow the property to be turned over to the trustee without first requiring the fees so to be paid, and the trustee ordered to sell enough of the estate to pay off such fees and expenses, and making them a first lien, was denied—In re Rogers, 116 Fed. 435.

10. Wilson v. Parr, 115 Ga. 629.

11. State v. German Exchange Bank, 114 Wis. 436.

12. Pleading in mortgage foreclosure proceedings construed and held not to have been a pleading under the state insolvency laws and the receiver entitled to retain possession —Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 483.

13. Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 483.

14. Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (C C. A.) 113 Fed. 483.

15. In re Davis, 119 Fed. 950; In re Michie, 116 Fed. 749.

16. In re Baird, 116 Fed. 765; In re Davis, 119 Fed. 950; In re Michie, 116 Fed. 749, In re Waukesha Water Co., 116 Fed. 1009.

17. In re Baird, 116 Fed. 765; In re Michie, 116 Fed. 749. Where the property is in actual possession of an adverse claimant, a receiver should not be appointed nor should a summary order of sale be made--Beach v. Macon Grocery Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 143.

18. In such case the right of contestant should be determined in a plenary action—In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906.

19. In re Davis, 119 Fed. 950.

20. In re Waterloo Organ Co., 118 Fed. 904.

21. In re Rosenberg, 116 Fed. 402.

22. In re Durham, 114 Fed. 750.

23. Philips v. Turner (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 726.

24. In re Michie, 116 Fed. 749.

26. In re Waukesha Water Co., 116 Fed. 1009.

be surrendered was granted by the district court for the district of Pennsylvania.[27] A summary order directing the surrender of assets should not include interest.[28]

E. Actions to collect or reduce the property to the trustee's possession.[29]—The trustee alone can avoid a conveyance made by the bankrupt in fraud of his creditors,[30] or sue to recover unpaid subscriptions to stock in the bankrupt corporation.[31] His remedy is an action to recover property levied on under judgments rendered invalid by the adjudication in bankruptcy and not by a proceeding to set aside the judgments,[32] and he is entitled to all the remedies to reach property fraudulently conveyed and all the relief that can be afforded to any other individual.[33] It is not a condition precedent to the action by the trustee to avoid fraudulent conveyances that the claims against the estate shall have been filed and allowed,[34] or that the trustee shall have reduced them to judgment;[35] but it must appear that the assets in his hands are insufficient to satisfy the debts.[36] If the action is not barred when the petition was filed, it is not barred until the lapse of two years after the estate has been closed.[37] By the recovery from a fraudulent transferee of personalty, the bankrupt's trustee is not precluded from following the proceeds of the goods received by the bankrupt in the hands of preferred creditors.[38] The bankrupt is not a necessary party to an action by his trustee to avoid a transfer in fraud of creditors,[39] nor is a fraudulent transferee who had transferred the property to another fraudulent transferee.[40]

Jurisdiction of courts.—In the absence of a consent, the federal court has not jurisdiction of an action by a trustee to recover assets.[41] A suit by a trustee to set aside a fraudulent foreclosure sale of the bankrupt's property must be brought within the county wherein the foreclosure decree was entered.[42]

Pleading.—The declaration or statement of claim in an action by a trustee to avoid a transfer must aver that the bankrupt intended to give a preference, and that the creditor had reasonable cause to believe that he intended to give a preference,[43] and that if the transfer be permitted to stand, a greater percentage of the debt will be allowed to the transferee than other creditors of the same class.[44]

Evidence.—In actions by trustees to reduce the bankrupt's assets to his possession, the persons denying the authority of a trustee have the burden of proving want of authority.[45] The trustee has the burden of proving insolvency of the bankrupt at the time of the alleged preference,[46] and the referee in bankruptcy may be permitted to testify as to the amount of claims allowed for the purpose of 27. In re Peiser, 115 Fed. 199.

28. In re Davis, 119 Fed. 950.
29. Summons in an action by a trustee defectively describing him as plaintiff, held cured by allegations in the complaint annexed—Newland v. Zodikow (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 541.
30. Bankruptcy Act, § 70e—Barnes Mfg. Co. v. Norden, 67 N. J. Law, 493; Barker v. Franklin (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 292.
31. Falco v. Kaupisch Creamery Co. (Or.) 70 Pac. 286.
32. Gage v. Bates Machine Co., 71 N. H. 884; King v. Same, Id.; Fulton Pulley Co. v. Same, Id.
33. Sheldon v. Parker (Neb.) 92 N. W. 923. Since Ala. Code, § 1818 authorizes a suit in equity by creditors the trustee may maintain the suit—Andrews v. Mather, 134 Ala. 358.
34. Schmitt v. Dahl (Minn.) 93 N. W. 665.
35. Hood v. Blair State Bank (Neb.) 91 N. W. 701, 706.
36. Deland v. Miller & Chaney Bank (Iowa) 93 N. W. 304.
37. Schreck v. Hanlon (Neb.) 92 N. W. 625; Sheldon v. Parker, Id. 923.
38. Lampkin v. People's Nat. Bank (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 715.
39. Frank v. Musliner (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 616.
40. Skillen v. Endelman (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 261.
41. McIntyre v. Malone (Neb.) 91 N. W. 246; Stelling v. G. W. Jones Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 261; Boudinot v. Hamann (Iowa) 90 N. W. 497.
42. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co. v. Bush (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 444.
43. Peck v. Connell, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 22.
44. Schreyer v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 478.
45. Oliver v. Hilgers (Minn.) 92 N. W. 511.
46. In re Chappell, 113 Fed. 545.

showing insolvency,[47] or the proceedings before him properly certified may be admitted for that purpose,[48] or the bankrupt may be permitted to testify that at the time of the making of the transfer he considered himself in failing circumstances.[49] In an action in the state court to set aside a preference by the bankrupt, the testimony given by the bankrupt on his examination in bankruptcy proceedings is admissible only as affecting his credibility as a witness.[50] On the question of whether a transfer was made in contemplation of insolvency, a voluntary conveyance made on the day following the transfer in question is admissible in evidence.[51] In an action by a trustee to recover property fraudulently conveyed, a certified copy of the order adjudicating the debtor a bankrupt is admissible to prove a collateral matter.[52] If the trustee's petition sets up a transfer by way of preference and fraudulent conveyance, evidence that the transfer was colorable is not admissible.[53] Evidence of what certain property brought at auction is admissible on the question of value.[54] Parol evidence is admissible to show that certain persons nominally partners were not so in fact.[55]

Judgment.—In an action by a trustee to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of realty, where the property had passed to a bona fide purchaser, the damages may be decreed against the fraudulent grantee under the prayer for general relief, though no judgment could be entered setting aside the conveyance.[56]

Costs allowed in actions by the trustees in state courts being subject to general rules will be treated elsewhere,[57] though in some states by statute the trustee may be compelled to give security for costs to entitle him to maintain the action.[58]

Interest on recovery.—On recovery by the trustee of preferential payments, interest will be allowed from the date of demand,[59] and in case no demand had been made, from the date of the suit.[60]

§ 12. Protection of trustee's title and possession. A. Restraining interference. —The court of bankruptcy may properly restrain a pending action against the trustee, where it tends to embarrass the administration of the estate, and where it is clear that his taking of the property was not wrongful.[61] An injunction is properly issued restraining an attachment suit in the state court, which refuses to recognize the adjudication in bankruptcy,[62] or the marshal may be directed to seize property attached by the state court.[63]

47. Cullinane v. State Bank (Iowa) 91 N. W. 783. Admissibility of evidence in action to avoid bill of sale executed within four months before the filing of a petition—Frank v. Musliner (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 616.

48. Bankruptcy Act, § 21d—Spratlin v. Colson, 80 Miss. 278.

49. Supplee v. Hall, 75 Conn. 17. In an action by a trustee to recover money paid as a preference, declarations of the bankrupt held admissible—Tredway v. Kaufman, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 256.

50. Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 144.

51. Supplee v. Hall, 75 Conn. 17.

52. Rosenfeld v. Siegfried, 91 Mo. App. 169.

53. In re Michie, 116 Fed. 749.

54. Harmon v. Walker (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 439, 91 N. W. 1025. In an action by a trustee to recover the value of goods under a void sale by the bankrupt, the admission of evidence that the goods had subsequently enhanced in value is not prejudicial, where the value allowed was as of the date of the bill of sale—Frank v. Musliner (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 616.

55. Marden v. Sugden, 71 N. H. 274.

56. Skillin v. Maibrunn (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 588. Conditional judgment in action to avoid sale by bankrupt within four months held proper—Frank v. Musliner (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 616.

57. See Costs. To avoid the action by the trustee to recover goods transferred within four months before the adjudication, an offer to surrender the goods to the trustee must be absolute and without condition—Frank v. Musliner (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 616.

58. A defendant in an action by a trustee is entitled to security for costs only where the cause of action existed prior to the adjudication in bankruptcy. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 3268—Kelley v. Kremer (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 456; and causes of action to recover preferential payments and to set aside fraudulent conveyances do not accrue prior to the appointment of the trustee—Kronfeld v. Liebman (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 437. Facts held sufficient to show that a cause of action arose prior to the appointment of the trustee —Joseph v. Makley (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 156.

59. Tredway v. Kaufman, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 256.

60. Tredway v. Kaufman, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 256.

61. In re Gutman, 114 Fed. 1009.

62. In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906.

B. Actions affecting trustee's title.—State courts have concurrent jurisdiction with federal courts of all actions to determine title to goods held by the trustee as property belonging to the bankrupt,[64] and trover not being a possessory action may be maintained against trustees in bankruptcy in the state court,[65] but replevin cannot be maintained.[66] Proceedings in suits brought by the trustee in the district court against third parties, of which the federal court would not have had jurisdiction except on consent, cannot be reviewed by the circuit court of appeals on petition,[67] but only by appeal.[68]

§ 13. Rights of trustee in pending actions by and against bankrupt; jurisdiction of state courts.—Any cause of action which would survive a deceased plaintiff will pass to his trustee,[69] and where rights sought to be enforced in pending actions passed to the trustee, the bankrupt's right to prosecute terminates,[70] even though the action was not scheduled,[71] and the adoption of the bankrupt's pleading or the filing of a pleading therein by his trustee makes the latter a party to the action.[72] A default against a bankrupt may, on application of his trustee, be opened at the term succeeding the term at which it was entered.[73] The jurisdiction of state courts in pending actions on claims which will be released by a discharge of the defendant is ousted by his bankruptcy, except for the purpose of staying the action,[74] and the state court is the proper court to stay the suit,[75] either on petition of the defendant or by his creditors;[76] but this does not apply to actions commenced prior to the passage of the bankruptcy act,[77] or to actions to enforce valid liens acquired against a bankrupt's property prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy,[78] or to actions to try title,[79] though the creditor proved up his claim.[80]

§ 14. Management of the property and reduction to money.—The estate funds should be deposited to the credit of the trustee as such designating the estate,[81] and on failure of the trustee to so deposit them and to pay out in the manner prescribed by the rules, he will not be allowed therefor.[82] Checks drawn by the trustee in payment of dividends made payable to the persons whose names are not on the dividend sheet and which do not show what claims are covered or authority of payee to receive them are not such vouchers as will be approved.[83]

63. In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906.

64. Truda v. Osgood, 71 N. H. 185; Cooke v. Scovel (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 692.

65. Weeks v. Fowler, 71 N. H. 518.

66. Weeks v. Fowler, 71 N. H. 221.

67. Power to review by original petition extends only to orders made in bankruptcy proceedings—In re Rusch (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 270.

68. Stelling v. G. W. Jones Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 261; Walter Scott & Co. v. Wilson (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 284.

69. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 70—Cleland v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 306.

70. Scruby v. Norman, 91 Mo. App. 517; Scheidt v. Goldsmith, 103 Ill. App. 623.

71. Scruby v. Norman, 91 Mo. App. 517.

72. If the defendant has not filed an answer and the bankrupt files an answer purporting to adopt the answer of the defendant, though no verdict is rendered against the trustee, judgment may be entered against him—Kingsbury v. Waco State Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 551.

73. Though under Iowa Code, § 3790, a default can be opened only on application being made at the same term, since the application by the trustee is an intervention in behalf of creditors—First Nat. Bank v. Flynn (Iowa) 91 N. W. 784.

74. Bankruptcy Act, § 11a—First Nat. Bank v. Flynn (Iowa) 91 N. W. 784; In re Tune, 115 Fed. 906. The state court cannot set aside a sale under the attachment and order a resale on proceedings instituted by a junior attaching creditor—Levi v. Goldberg (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 210. Judgment cannot be entered after the petition has been filed—First Nat. Bank v. Flynn (Iowa) 91 N. W. 784. Holding contra—State v. Superior Ct. of King County, 28 Wash. 35, 68 Pac. 170.

75. McIntyre v. Malone (Neb.) 91 N. W. 246.

76. McIntyre v. Malone (Neb.) 91 N. W. 246.

77. Creditor's action to avoid a fraudulent conveyance against the bankrupt—Metcalf v. Barker, 187 U. S. 165; Pickens v. Roy, 187 U. S. 177.

78. Creditor's action—National Bank of Republic of N. Y. v. Hobbs, 118 Fed. 626; South End Improvement Co. v. Harden (N. J. Ch.) 52 Atl. 1127.

79. In re Wells, 114 Fed. 222.

80. Pickens v. Roy, 187 U. S. 177.

81. In re Carr, 117 Fed. 572.

82. In re Hoyt, 119 Fed. 987.

83. In re Carr, 116 Fed. 556.

Sale by trustee.—Property of a bankrupt subject to liens may be sold free from such liens and the rights thereunder be transferred to the proceeds.[84] Under act 1867, a trustee had authority to sell the bankrupt's real property without order of the court,[85] and a voluntary bankrupt had the right to purchase his property at the trustee's sale,[86] and the assignee's deed conveyed title though not under seal.[87] All the rights of a trustee pass to his purchaser at a sale under order of the court.[88] A purchaser of interests in certain transferred contracts, which transfer was void as a preference, has a cause of action therefor.[89] The failure of a seller of chattels to a bankrupt to demand a separate sale of such chattels at a sale by the trustee of the purchaser is a waiver of his lien thereon.[90] An agreement by lienors to submit the priority of their liens for adjudication and no sale of the property be made until such adjudication, is a waiver of objections to a sale free from their liens;[91] and by so consenting they are estopped to question the validity of the sale.[92] A trustee waives his right to question the validity of a mortgage by selling the property subject to the mortgage.[93] A subsequent offer of a better price than realized at the sale will not alone warrant setting it aside.[94] To prevent a resale of property where the trustee had purchased at his own sale, it is sufficient to account for the value of the property as of the time of the purchase, where it appears that it had not increased in value.[95] The undisclosed agency of a bidder at a public auction sale by a trustee in bankruptcy to whom the property was struck off, which if it had been known to others they would have bidden a better price held sufficient ground to avoid the sale.[96]

§ 15. Claims against the estate and proof and allowance. A. Claims provable.—Since only claims absolutely due at the time of the petition are provable, attorney's fees stipulated in an unmatured note,[97] or a claim for damages for breach of covenants occurring subsequent to the filing of the petition,[98] cannot be proved. The decisions on the question whether the bankruptcy of a tenant terminates the lease and whether rent subsequently accruing can be proved are conflicting as will appear from the footnotes.[99] A claim for damages for breach of an

84. In re Waterloo Organ Co., 118 Fed. 904. An order directing a sale but "without prejudice to the rights of lien creditors to claim from a fund derived from sale amount of their respective liens" is proper and fully protects the loaners' right and they need not except to the return of the sale—Geo. Carroll & Bro. Co. v. Young (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 576. Where the mortgage covered the mortgagor's property together with whatever property he may subsequently acquire and it was determined by the referee in bankruptcy the amount of property which the mortgagor owned at the time of the execution of the mortgage but not the validity of the latter as to the after acquired property, a sale may be made of the property free from all liens, the lien to be transferred to the proceeds and in case of purchase by the mortgagee he will be required to give the trustee of the bankrupt mortgagor security to pay the value of the property subsequently found not subject to the lien—In re Waterloo Organ Co., 118 Fed. 904. A trustee who held the property under trust mortgage to secure bondholders of the bankrupt and who purchased the property at the trustee's sale, the lien being transferred to proceeds, permitted to give bond for the purchase price—In re Waterloo Organ Co., 118 Fed. 904.

85. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 130 N. C. 482.

86. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 130 N. C. 482.

87. Westfelt v. Adams, 131 N. C. 379.

88. Bryan v. Madden (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 638.

89. Complaint in an action by the purchaser's grantee to set aside the transfer as in fraud of creditors held sufficient—Bryan v. Madden (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 638.

90. In re Klapholz, 113 Fed. 1002.

91. Chauncey v. Dyke Bros. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 1.

92. Chauncey v. Dyke Bros. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 1.

93. O'Neil v. International Trust Co. (Mass.) 66 N. E. 424.

94. In re Ethier, 118 Fed. 107.

95. In re Hawley, 117 Fed. 364.

96. In re Ethier, 118 Fed. 107.

97. In re Garlington, 115 Fed. 999.

98. Bankruptcy Act, § 63—In re Pennewell (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 139.

99. The adjudication of a lessee bankrupt does not of itself terminate the lease—In re Pennewell (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 139; Woodworth v. Harding (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 54. Contra—In re Hays, Foster & Ward Co., 117 Fed. 879. A claim for rent accruing after the adjudication (Bernhardt v. Curtis, 109 La. 171), though the bankrupt executed notes therefor, cannot be proved—In re Hays, Foster & Ward Co., 117 Fed. 879. A statu-executory contract may be proved though the time for full performance had not expired.[1] A claim under a contract based on several elements, some of which are unliquidated, cannot be proved until liquidated.[2] One who holds a claim against a bankrupt under an assignment[3] in such form as would estop the assignor from avoiding it, may prove the claim.[4] A claim acquired by the wife of the bankrupt by subrogation may be proved against his estate,[5] or a claim for her separate property which entered into the estate,[6] and a final judgment for alimony may be proved.[7] A claim barred by the statute of limitations though scheduled by the bankrupt,[8] or a judgment against the bankrupt which has abated,[9] or a claim which claimant is enforcing by attachment proceedings in a state court cannot be proved.[10] The consideration paid for a transfer of property made with intent to defraud creditors cannot be made the basis of a claim against the estate.[11] A claim for local taxes may be proved.[12]

A contract executed by individual members of a partnership cannot be proved against the estate of the partnership in bankruptcy.[13] That the claimant entered into a void agreement of partnership will not affect his right to prove a previous existing claim against the firm.[14] If the partnership assets were exhausted before bankruptcy and before individual debts of the partners were contracted, the partnership creditors are entitled to share ratably with the individual creditors in the individual assets of the partners,[15] or after the dissolution and a sale of the partnership property, a partnership creditor may share in the estate of the partner subsequently declared a bankrupt, where it does not appear that there is a solvent partner or that other equities exist in favor of individual creditors.[16]

B. Proof of claims.—Amendment of proof of claims is granted with great liberality,[17] and may be made after the expiration of the year allowed for proving claims, tory lien given a landlord on goods and chattels of the tenant as against creditors for rent for the unexpired term may be enforced—In re Mitchell, 116 Fed. 87. If the landlord of a bankrupt tenant under a lease for a term of years containing a stipulation that if the lessee should become a bankrupt, the whole rent for the whole term shall be taken to be due and payable forthwith, desires to avail himself of such stipulation for the purpose of securing a preference for one year's rent, he is bound to conform to the contract as a whole, and if he attempts to secure such a preference and at the same time retain his interest as landlord unimpaired in the residue of the term by taking exclusive possession of the premises, he was properly allowed rent due at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy as a preferred debt under the state statute and also the rental rate during the time the trustee retained possession—Wilson v. Pennsylvania Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 742.

1. The amount of damages being readily ascertainable—In re Stern (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 604; Appeal of Manhattan Ice Co., Id.

2. Bankruptcy Act, §§ 57b and 63b (5)—In re Big Meadows Gas Co., 113 Fed. 974.

3. In re Miner, 114 Fed. 998.

4. The assignor's certificate in record stating the assignment is sufficient within the statute of frauds and to estop the assignor—In re Miner, 117 Fed. 953.

5. As surety for him she had paid the debt, it not being a contract between the husband and wife in violation of the Mass. Statutes—In re Nickerson, 116 Fed. 1003. Wife held to have acquired her bankrupt husband's notes given to her testator, by subrogation where by the will she was not to share in the decedent's estate if her husband was indebted to deceased and where she acquired the notes as a part of her share of the estate—In re Nickerson, 116 Fed. 1003.

6. Though she did not register the claim as such under the Oregon statutes since the register thereof is not conclusive either way as to her right—In re Miner, 117 Fed. 953.

7. Arrington v. Arrington, 131 N. C. 143.

8. In re Wooten, 118 Fed. 670. Holding contra—In re Gibson (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 974.

9. In re Farmer, 116 Fed. 763.

10. Buckingham v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 305; Matter of O'Donnell, Id.

11. In re Lansaw, 118 Fed. 365; Johnson v. Cohn (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 189.

12. The assets are subject to taxes in the district where they would have been taxed had not bankruptcy proceedings been instituted. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 64a—In re Sims, 118 Fed. 356.

13. Chattel Mortgage—In re Jones, 116 Fed. 431. Nothing appearing on the face of the note, to indicate that it was given for a partnership debt—In re Jones, 116 Fed. 431.

14. Ultra vires contract of partnership by corporation with existing firm—In re R. T. Ervin & Co., 114 Fed. 596.

15. In re Conrader, 118 Fed. 676.

16. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 5, does not apply where a partner became bankrupt after a dissolution of partnership and a sale of its property—In re Greene, 116 Fed. 118.

17. In re Moebius, 116 Fed. 47.

if there is sufficient to amend by in the original proof,[18] but not if it in effect will be an allowance of proof after such time.[19] Since a payment to a secured creditor is not a payment of a dividend,[20] it is not necessary that such a creditor prove his claim before intervening for the purpose of establishing a lien on a particular fund,[21] and he need only prove his claim as in an ordinary suit,[22] though a failure of the secured creditor to present his claim will not release the surety.[23]

C. Contest of claims.—It is the duty of a trustee to plead the state statute of limitations against a debt scheduled by the bankrupt.[24] Creditors whose claims have not been allowed cannot contest the claims of others.[25] All objections to claims should be specific,[26] but it is not necessary that they be verified by oath.[27] Failure of a creditor to object to the allowance of claims is a waiver of a right to a re-examination thereof on the ground of preferences received,[28] but the failure on the part of a trustee to contest a claim when presented will not bar his action to avoid it as a preference,[29] nor is the allowance of the claim by the referee conclusive as against him.[30] The bankrupt's attorney should not act for a creditor whose claim is contested.[31] A creditor has the burden of proving his claim, if objected to, by a preponderance of evidence,[32] and proof that it arose in a different manner from that stated in the verified claim is insufficient to support it.[33] As evidence of the existence and amount of the claim, a judgment of a state court is not conclusive until the expiration of the time of right of appeal therefrom.[34] In estimating the amount of a claim for conversion of goods, their value at the time of the filing of a petition in bankruptcy may be taken.[35]

D. Surrender of preferences and effect thereof.—A preferential transfer must be surrendered before the creditor can prove any of his several claims of the same class,[36] whether the claim is made by the creditor or his transferee.[37] The holder of two series of obligations made by the bankrupt, who received a preferential payment on the second series, cannot prove the first until he shall have surrendered such payment.[38] On surrender of preferential payments by the claimant, the creditor will be allowed the full amount of his valid claim.[39] A claim for a balance due on a current account is a single claim which can be divided into separate claims in determining a preference.[40] It is the duty of the trustee to institute such proceedings against a creditor who held unsurrendered collateral security as he may deem best or on advice of counsel or creditors,[41] and the court

18. Hutchinson v. Otis (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 937; In re Hutchinson, Id.
19. In re Moebius, 116 Fed. 47.
20. In re Goldsmith, 118 Fed. 763.
21. In re Goldsmith, 118 Fed. 763.
22. He is not required to follow Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 57—In re Goldsmith, 118 Fed. 763.
23. Levy v. Wagner (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 112.
24. In re Wooten, 118 Fed. 670.
25. Dressel v. North State Lumber Co., 119 Fed. 531.
26. In re Wooten, 118 Fed. 670.
27. In re Wooten, 118 Fed. 670.
28. In re Hamilton Furniture Co., 116 Fed. 115.
29. Buder v. Columbia Distilling Co., 96 Mo. App. 558.
30. Buder v. Columbia Distilling Co., 96 Mo. App. 558.
31. In re Wooten, 118 Fed. 670.
32. Evidence that the claimant is a near relative of the bankrupt will be given the same weight as in ordinary cases—In re Wooten, 118 Fed. 670. Evidence held insufficient to support a claim presented—In re Grant, 118 Fed. 73.
33. In re Lansaw, 118 Fed. 365.
34. In re Freeman, 117 Fed. 680.
35. The time of the conversion of corporate stock purchased by bankrupt brokers for a customer being uncertain—In re Graff, 117 Fed. 343.
36. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.
37. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.
38. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.
39. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1. If the amount paid by the surety, together with the dividends, amounts to more than the obligation, the creditor will hold the surplus in trust for the surety—Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.
40. Kimball v. E. A. Rosenham Co. (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 85; C. S. Morey Mercantile Co. v. Schiffer (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 447.
41. In re Baber, 119 Fed. 520.

will not, nor should the referee, entertain a petition by him asking for advice.[42] Creditors who had without fraud received preferences which were not surrendered may prove their claims against the surplus remaining after payment of all unpreferred creditors in full.[43]

Credits given before preferential payments are not available as a set-off against such payments,[44] but only such credits thereafter extended for property which subsequently became a part of the assets will be allowed,[45] though the property transferred is not recoverable by the trustee as a preference under section 60b, and though the creditor had not ground to believe that the transfer was intended as a preference,[46] and this is not limited to a case where the trustee sues to recover the preference.[47] Accepting the bankrupt as a debtor by having him assume the liability and take the goods sold to another in consideration of a part payment therefor is not extending credit, which could be set off against a preferential payment to the creditor.[48] Goods transferred to the bankrupt who assumed liability therefor to the original seller are not property passing to the bankrupt's estate, the liability for which is available as a set-off against a preferential payment.[49]

E. Priorities.—The rights of creditors to share in the estate will be determined by the status of their claims at the time the petition was filed,[50] and the test of classification of claims is the percentage that they will receive from the estate.[51] Creditors secured by indorsement or guaranty of third persons will share the same as unsecured creditors.[52] Trust funds held by the bankrupt,[53] and a lien for wages given by a state statute though not earned within three months previous to the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings are entitled to priority.[54] Bankruptcy Act, § 5b, providing that if one partner only is adjudged a bankrupt, the partnership property shall not be administered in bankruptcy except on consent of the other partners, has no application to a case where a partner sold out before the remaining partner's bankruptcy,[55] and in such case the partnership property at the time of the dissolution should be first applied to the payment of firm creditors and the bankrupt's separate estate should be applied first to the payment of his separate debts and any surplus from either source should be distributed according to the bankruptcy act.[56] A claim for taxes against a partnership is entitled to

42. In re Baber, 119 Fed. 520.
43. In re Morton, 118 Fed. 908.
44. Carleton Dry Goods Co. v. Rogers (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 14.
45. Gans v. Ellison (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 734.
46. C. S. Morey Mercantile Co. v. Schiffer (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 447.
47. Kahn v. Cone Export & Commission Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 290.
48. Carleton Dry Goods Co. v. Rogers (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 14.
49. Carleton Dry Goods Co. v. Rogers (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 14.
50. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1. Facts held to show that a creditor had waived his lien on a particular fund by mistake and was entitled to have it restored—In re Hutchinson (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 937.
51. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.
52. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 1.
53. Under Ky. Sts. and Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 64b. cl. 5, giving priority to "debts owing by any person who by the laws of the state or the United States is entitled to priority" and funds held as guardian are within the above statute—In re Crow, 116 Fed. 110. The party claiming that a part of the estate in the hands of the trustee was a trust fund has the burden of proving that the fund in some form was a part of the estate when it passed to the trustee—In re O'Connor, 114 Fed. 777; In re Globe Refinery Co., Id. It was presumed that the balance of the proceeds of corporate stock, sold by a pledgee of bankrupt stockbrokers who had purchased a part of the stock pledged for a customer and which had been fully paid for by the latter, was the proceeds of the customer's stock and that he was entitled thereto as against the bankrupt and the general creditors—In re Graff, 117 Fed. 343. From the facts it was presumed that a part of corporate stock sold by the receiver of bankrupt stockbrokers was bought for a customer who had paid for the same who was entitled to the proceeds in the trustee's hands as against creditors—In re Graff, 117 Fed. 343.
54. Bankruptcy Act, § 64b (4), gives priority of wages earned within three months before the date of the commencement of the proceedings. (5) provides that debts owing to any person who by the laws of the states or of the United States is entitled to priority —In re Slomka, 117 Fed. 688.
55. In re Denning, 114 Fed. 219.
56. In re Denning, 114 Fed. 219.

priority of payment from the estate of the bankrupt partners.[57] A trustee may oppose a petition by a creditor to be awarded a lien on certain assets in his hands without pleading thereto.[58]

The bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to determine priorities between liens on the bankrupt's property in its custody,[59] and lienors who had not proved their claims, but who agreed that the priority of their liens be submitted and that no sale be made until the adjudication thereby confer jurisdiction to determine how the proceeds of the sale be distributed among rival claimants.[60]

F. Expenses of the proceeding.—The referee will not be allowed for notices sent to creditors in general on the re-examination of a claim,[61] or where no distribution of money requiring notice to creditors has ever been had,[62] or for investigation and finding in the ordinary and usual way in cases of specific liens,[63] or for expenses of a stenographer not employed on application of the trustee and in the absence of stipulation or deposit of money therefor.[64] Secured claims or claims entitled to priority of payment are not dividends within the bankruptcy act on which a referee is entitled to commission.[65] Fees in addition to statutory fees cannot be allowed referees even with the consent of the attorneys for the parties.[66] In allowing a trustee commissions for selling, the court will follow the rules of allowance in cases of masters' commissions,[67] and dividends on which he will be allowed commissions are the surplus remaining after the payment of taxes and priority claims in full.[68] The clerk, referee, and trustee in bankruptcy are entitled to separate fees to be charged against the estate of each of the petitioning partners as well as against the partnership estate seeking discharge from individual as well as firm liabilities.[69] The allowance by a referee of fees to himself and the trustee may be reviewed on the final settlement of the estate, where they have not been passed upon by the district judge or court.[70] The allowance of attorney's fees out of the estate is within the discretion of the court,[71] and if petitioning creditors refuse to pay the fee and he is entitled thereto, the court will allow it out of the fund,[72] but they will not be allowed where the attorneys make an exorbitant charge therefor, even though recommended by the referee,[73] or where the attorney was also appointed trustee.[74]

57. Iowa Code, § 1307, provides that "any individual of a partnership is liable for taxes due for the firm"—In re Green, 116 Fed. 118.

58. In re Mulligan, 116 Fed. 715.

59. Chauncey v. Dyke Bros. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 1. It may enforce a lien given by stock exchange rules to members for debts due from a defaulting member on the proceeds of his seat by proving their claims to a committee while the fund remains in their hands—Hutchinson v. Otis (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 937.

60. Chauncey v. Dyke (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 1.

61. In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

62. In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

63. In the absence of a provision in the bankruptcy act or general orders—In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

64. Bankruptcy Act, § 38a, cl. 5, Gen. Order No. 10—In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

65. Bankruptcy Act, §§ 40a, 48a, 64a, 64b and 65a—In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

66. Dressel v. North State Lumber Co., 119 Fed. 531.

67. In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

68. §§ 40a, 48a, 64a, 64b and 65a.—In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

69. In re Farley, 115 Fed. 359.

70. Bankruptcy Act, Gen. Order, No. 26—In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

71. In re Carr, 117 Fed. 572.

72. Rule for allowance of attorneys' fees as laid down by the District Court for E. D. N. Carolina, "For preparing petition in involuntary bankruptcy, and superintending the filing thereof, and in the issuance of subpoena thereon, and preparing schedules, in case such duty falls on the petitioning creditors, a fee of not exceeding $50, in the discretion of the court, where the same is payable out of the estate of the bankrupt; and no further fee shall be allowed such attorney where there is no contest or trial before the court touching the adjudication in bankruptcy; and in case the defendant therein contests the adjudication, necessitating a trial before the court or referee of such issue, such further fee as the court may find to be reasonable in the particular case. And for the allowance of this fee the attorney asking for such fee must disclose his deal-

G. Expenses of receivers and assignees appointed prior to bankruptcy proceedings.—A claim for services rendered as a general assignee of the bankrupt in the preservation of his estate may be allowed,[75] but not a claim for commissions.[76] Where the assets of a bankrupt in the hands of a receiver appointed by a state court had not been converted into money, the receivership and attorney's fees should be made the basis of a claim in the bankrupt court.[77] The bankrupt's assignee by accepting appointment as receiver of the bankrupt's estate submits the fund and his right to compensation as assignee to the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy by turning over to himself such fund as receiver without retaining compensation,[78] but he does not confer jurisdiction on such court by filing his account of disbursements within four months of the adjudication therein for allowance, where he objects to jurisdiction before the entry of a final order.[79]

§ 16. Exemptions.—The right of the bankrupt to have property set apart as exempt from liability will be determined by the laws of the state of his residence,[80] and the decisions of the state court declaring certain specific property exempt will be followed.[81] The particular property, however, which the bankrupt wishes to retain under the state exemption laws must be set up in his schedule,[82] and he must follow the procedure required by the state statute.[83]

The bankrupt may claim as exempt a seat in a stock exchange,[84] or property not paid for by him where the seller had no lien thereon,[85] or the proceeds of property which had been assigned by him for the benefit of his creditors in the hands of his trustee,[86] but exemptions cannot be claimed out of property recovered by the trustee which had been transferred as a preference,[87] nor can the individual partners of a firm dissolved within four months prior to the adjudication against the firm claim exemptions in the firm property.[88] The debtor loses his exemption rights if under a waiver creditors will receive the benefit thereof,[89] or where he had made a fraudulent disposition of his property.[90]

A building occupied chiefly for business purposes but also occupied as a residence and not exceeding the statutory value limit may be claimed as a homestead.[91] The debtor's homestead exemption is not lost because he changed his ings with his client, that the court may act intelligently"—In re Carr, 117 Fed. 572.

73. In re Carr, 116 Fed. 556.

74. In re Evans, 116 Fed. 909.

75. In re Klein, 116 Fed. 523.

76. In re Mays, 114 Fed. 600.

77. Hanson v. Stephens (Ga.) 42 S. E. 1028.

78. In re Klein, 116 Fed. 523.

79. In re Klein, 116 Fed. 523; In re Jackson, 116 Fed. 46.

80. In re Staunton, 117 Fed. 507. The bankrupt may select as part of his exemption, the proceeds of property sold by his assignee for the benefit of creditors before the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings, since under the laws of Pennsylvania he may select articles of personal property including cash—In re Staunton, 117 Fed. 507.

81. In re Stone, 116 Fed. 35.

82. In re Duffy, 118 Fed. 926.

83. Merely claiming the benefit of the statute held insufficient—In re Garner, 115 Fed. 200.

84. Pennsylvania court decisions so holding followed—Page v. Edmonds, 187 U. S. 596.

85. In re Butler, 120 Fed. 100.

86. In re Talbott, 116 Fed. 417.

87. In re Long, 116 Fed. 113. But where he had transferred a judgment to a trustee for certain creditors, and the trustee did not assume ownership and it was paid to the trustee in bankruptcy the bankrupt may claim exemption therein—Bashinski v. Talbott (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 337.

88. Under the laws of Arkansas, a partner cannot claim exemptions from the firm property—In re Head, 114 Fed. 489.

89. In re Garner, 115 Fed. 200.

90. In re Taylor, 114 Fed. 607; In re Evans, 116 Fed. 909. As where he carried on a business in the name of another as agent, and nearly all the indebtedness was created within five months preceding his bankruptcy and the better portion of the stock was sold off at auction, the balance being worth less than the exemption—In re Williamson, 114 Fed. 190. Sufficiency of evidence to show that the bankrupt was not chargeable with fraud in concealing property from creditors, such being the ground of forfeiture of exemptions under Georgia Code, § 2830—In re Stephens, 114 Fed. 192; In re Boorstin, 114 Fed. 696; In re Thompson, 115 Fed. 924. Evidence held insufficient to show a fraudulent disposition of property by a bankrupt so as to effect a forfeiture of his exemptions under the state law—In re Duffy, 118 Fed. 926.

91. So held under the state decisions—In re Stone, 116 Fed. 35.

homestead within four months prior to the adjudication in bankruptcy,[92] nor because he established it after insolvency and in contemplation of bankruptcy.[93]

Claims enforceable against the homestead are also to be determined by the laws of the state of the debtor's residence.[94] Court costs cannot be enforced against the bankrupt's exemptions,[95] nor can a court of bankruptcy subrogate the trustee to the right of a creditor who had acquired a lien on the bankrupt's exempt property.[96]

If the trustee failed to follow the statute in setting aside the exemption to which the bankrupt is entitled, he will not be allowed the payment.[97] Where no trustee has been appointed, the bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to set apart particular property belonging to the bankrupt as exempt;[98] if the only assets of a voluntary bankrupt were exempt and there was no necessity for the appointment of a trustee, the court still had jurisdiction to order it set apart,[99] and the order relates back to the time of the filing of the petition,[1] and it is an adjudication that there are no existing liens thereon.[2]

After specific property has been set apart to the bankrupt as exempt and he has taken possession, it is no longer within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court,[3] therefore the court cannot entertain a petition after the discharge of the bankrupt for a readjustment of the exemptions,[4] or to enforce a special lien against it,[5] or a lien not affected by the bankrupt's discharge.[6]

§ 17. Death of bankrupt pending proceedings.—The allowance to the widow of the deceased bankrupt will be governed by the laws of the state of his residence.[7] On the death of the bankrupt after a determination of the right to exemptions in personalty, but before the same had been set apart, the property to be set apart passes to his administrator and not to the trustee.[8]

§ 18. Referees, proceedings before them, and review thereof.—Without a certificate of the clerk showing inability of the district court to act or a division of the district, the referee has no jurisdiction to compel a state officer to surrender a bankrupt's property by summary process.[9] The rules of equity practice of the federal

92. Huenergardt v. John S. Brittain Dry Goods Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 31.

93. In re Stone, 116 Fed. 35.

94. In Vermont debts existing prior to the establishment of the homestead may be enforced against it—In re Gordon, 115 Fed. 445. Where the bankrupt had transferred his property, taking a promissory note therefor, on his application to have the proceeds of the note set apart to be invested in a new homestead, it will be charged with a proportionate part of the discount of the note which had been sold by the bankrupt and which sale was accepted by the trustee—In re Johnson, 118 Fed. 312. A lien unavoided by the discharge in bankruptcy cannot be enforced against the property set apart by the bankrupt court as exempt—Evans v. Rounsaville, 115 Ga. 684.

95. In re Hines, 117 Fed. 790.

96. In re Rosenberg, 116 Fed. 402.

97. Bankruptcy Act, § 47, subd. 11, makes it the duty of the trustee to set aside exemptions of the bankrupt and "report the same to the court"—In re Hoyt, 119 Fed. 987.

98. Though § 47 (11) makes it the duty of the trustee to set it apart—Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786. In ejectment brought by a purchaser under execution sale three days after the defendants filed a petition in bankruptcy, the defendants may show an order made by the bankruptcy court setting aside the particular property as exempt—Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786.

99. Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786..

1. Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786.

2. Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786.

3. In re Seydel, 118 Fed. 207.

4. If the creditor had notice of the claim of exemptions and failed to appear and object to the allowance he would at any rate be precluded by laches to have the proceedings re-opened after discharge of the bankrupt and the exemption re-adjusted—In re Reese, 115 Fed. 993.

5. In re Seydel, 118 Fed. 207.

6. White v. Thompson (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 868.

7. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 8. In Ohio she is entitled to reside a year in his mansion house if dower is not sooner assigned. Rev. Sts. § 4188, and to the articles set out in Rev. Sts. §§ 6038-6039, 6040, but she will not be allowed the exemptions to which decedent would have been entitled—In re Parschen. 119 Fed. 976.

8. In re Seabolt, 113 Fed. 766.

9. Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 38 gives the referee the right to exercise the powers of a courts should govern the hearing before the referee.[10] On re-examination of a claim it is not necessary that the referee give notice to all the creditors.[11] A witness cannot be compelled to attend before a referee in bankruptcy at a distance more than one hundred miles from where he resides, though within the state of his residence.[12] The referee is not empowered to excuse a witness from answering questions on objections thereto.[13] Questions of privilege and competency of witnesses and the admissibility of evidence not being peculiar to proceedings before referees will be treated in another subdivision of this subject.[14] The referee should base his findings on the evidence taken before him.[15] He is not precluded from changing a finding made before the evidence has been transcribed to conform to the evidence when read after it has been transcribed,[16] and a finding against a person not a party to a subsequent proceeding is not conclusive therein.[17] The rules of equity practice will govern as to the review of the hearing.[18] Exceptions to rulings on evidence must be specific,[19] and the referee should make all excluded testimony a part of his record with his rulings thereon and the exceptions taken thereto.[20] Formal exceptions however to the findings are not essential to a review thereof.[21] Generally, the referee's findings are conclusive on the court,[22] and will not be interfered with on questions of fact except when clearly erroneous;[23] if the court's attention is called to particular testimony which the referee had overlooked it will review his findings,[24] and the weight to be given to the findings is dependent on the character of the evidence.[25] The judge on review of a referee's decision may determine the issue de novo on the competent evidence in the record or he may recommit the proceeding for further hearing.[26]

§ 19. Modification and vacation of orders of bankruptcy court.—Interlocutory orders may be altered, modified, or vacated, by a federal court sitting in bankruptcy after the term of the regular court at which they were entered,[27] if no rights have become vested under them.[28]

§ 20. Trustee's bonds; actions thereon.—A United States district court has jurisdiction of an action by a trustee on the bond of a former trustee.[29]

§ 21. Accounting and settlement of trustee.—A final settlement by the trustee will not be ordered until the records of the entire proceeding shall have been made in accordance with the requirements of the statutes and rules of court.[30] A trustee's balance sheet and vouchers should correspond with the statement of the depositary.[31] If he takes possession of a fund belonging to another than the bankrupt and retains it after it has been adjudged to such party pending an appeal by him, he will not be charged interest in the absence of a showing that he judge in taking possession on the issuance of a certificate by the clerk showing absence from the district, sickness or inability of the judge or a division of the district—Woodward v. McDonald (Ga.) 42 S. E. 1030.

10. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328.

11. In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.

12. Bankruptcy Act, § 41—In re Hemstreet, 117 Fed. 568.

13. Dressel v. North State Lumber Co., 119 Fed. 531.

14. See § 11 B.

15. The referee can not base the determination of the same issue on findings made in the previous proceeding which was dismissed or state any of the evidence taken therein except on consent of the parties—In re Rosenburg, 116 Fed. 402.

16. The referee before changing his findings should give counsel notice so that they may be heard—In re Hawley, 116 Fed. 429.

17. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328.

18. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328.

19. Dressel v. North State Lumber Co., 119 Fed. 531.

20. General Order, No. 37—In re Lipset, 119 Fed. 379; In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328.

21. In re Miner, 117 Fed. 953. In the Massachusetts District—In re Swift, 118 Fed. 348; In re Hawley, 116 Fed. 428.

22. In re Grant, 118 Fed. 73; In re West, 116 Fed. 767; In re Miner, 117 Fed. 953; Wakeman v. Throckmorton, 74 Conn. 616.

23. In re West, 116 Fed. 767.

24. In re Grant, 118 Fed. 73.

25. In re Swift, 118 Fed. 348.

26. In re De Gottardi, 114 Fed. 328.

27. In re Henschel, 114 Fed. 968.

28. In re Ives (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 911.

29. United States v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co., 118 Fed. 482.

30. In re Carr, 116 Fed. 556.

31. In re Carr, 116 Fed. 556.

received interest,[32] nor will he be allowed payments directed by the referee not empowered to authorize them.[33]

§ 22. Discharge of bankrupt; its effect and how availed of. A. Procedure to obtain discharge and vacation thereof.—The bankruptcy court has not jurisdiction to entertain a petition for a discharge filed more than 18 months after the adjudication.[34]

Specifications in opposition to a discharge must be signed and sworn to by each of the opposing creditors and not alone by the attorney or counsel,[35] but a member of the partnership opposing, authorized to sign the firm name, may verify.[36] If verified by an attorney or other agent, it should have been authorized by an order of the court[37] stating the reason for such verification,[38] and the reason therefor should be also stated in the verification.[39] A failure to except to the signature or verification is a waiver of the objection.[40]

It is necessary to aver in the specification to oppose a bankrupt's discharge that he "knowingly and fraudulently" made the false oath,[41] and if based on the ground that the bankrupt had failed to keep books of account must aver that the failure was with fraudulent intent.[42] It is within the discretion of the court to amend specifications[43] by permitting substituted specifications, merely enlarging the original ones, to be filed after the expiration of the required time in which to file,[44] and the exercise of this discretion may be reviewed by the circuit court of appeals.[45] Objections to the specifications in opposition to a bankrupt's discharge unless taken in the district court are waived.[46] After specifications in opposition are filed, no further pleading on the part of the bankrupt is necessary,[47] and the allegations contained therein cannot be taken as confessed for want of an answer,[48] nor is their sufficiency admitted by failure to demur or object;[49] and if the allegations are vague or general or unauthorized, the bankrupt may move to have them stricken out, or may rely upon his defense at the time of the hearing.[50]

The burden is on the objecting creditors to establish the averments contained in their specifications,[51] but they need not be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.[52] Testimony given by the bankrupt on his original examination in the proceedings cannot be used against him on his application for a discharge.[53] Objections to evidence on the trial of specifications are waived by not raising them before the referee.[54]

The referee is entitled to be allowed for expenses incurred in the publication of 32. A claimant through mistake had waived his lien on the fund and without objection allowed it to be paid to the trustee—In re Hutchinson (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 937.

33. Bankruptcy Act, Gen. Order No. 29—In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co., 116 Fed. 731.
34. In re Fahy, 116 Fed. 239.
35. In re Glass, 119 Fed. 509. Bankruptcy Act, § 18c—In re Baerncopf, 117 Fed. 975. Form of verification to specifications in opposition to a discharge by individual or corporate creditors—In re Glass, 119 Fed. 509.
36. In re Glass, 119 Fed. 509.
37. In re Glass, 119 Fed. 509.
38. In re Glass, 119 Fed. 509.
39. In re Baerncopf, 117 Fed. 975.
40. In re Baerncopf, 117 Fed. 975.
41. Bankruptcy Act, §§ 14, 29—In re Blalock, 118 Fed. 679; In re Beebe, 116 Fed. 48. Specification held bad for indefiniteness—In re Blalock, 118 Fed. 679.
42. In re Blalock, 118 Fed. 679.
43. In re Glass, 119 Fed. 509.
44. In re Osborne (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 1.
45. In re Carley (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 130.
46. In re Osborne (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 1. In the northern district of New York, it is a practice that all objections to sufficiency of specifications be made within a specified time and by motion—In re Baldwin, 119 Fed. 796.
47. In re Crist, 116 Fed. 1007.
48. In re Crist, 116 Fed. 1007.
49. In re Crist, 116 Fed. 1007.
50. In re Crist, 116 Fed. 1007.
51. In re Crist, 116 Fed. 1007.
52. Evidence that the bankrupt for the purpose of obtaining a credit had made a written statement which failed to disclose debts to relatives, which he afterwards claimed to owe and paid while insolvent held sufficient to cast on him the burden of explaining—In re Greenberg, 114 Fed. 773.
53. In re Leslie, 119 Fed. 406.
54. In re Baldwin, 119 Fed. 796.

a notice of application for discharge,[55] and for stationery,[56] but not for services in making copies of the petition for the discharge.[57]

The mere omission of a debt from the schedule is not ground for setting aside his discharge,[58] and an order vacating the discharge and permitting the addition made without notice to the creditor is void.[59] Where the actual facts did not warrant the discharge and there was fraud on the part of the bankrupt in sending notice of application for his discharge to a creditor at a wrong address, the discharge will be vacated.[60]

B. Grounds for refusal.—It is not ground for refusing a discharge that the bankrupt omitted creditors from the schedule,[61] nor because he had made a false oath in bankruptcy proceedings against a corporation in which he was an officer,[62] nor will bad faith be presumed from a mere under or over statement of debts.[63]

The willful and fraudulent concealment of property by the bankrupt will deprive him of his right to a discharge,[64] and it is such a concealment for the bankrupt to fail to schedule an interest as a cestui que,[65] or a contract under which he was to receive money, though nominally assigned to another, where it was treated by the bankrupt and the assignee as belonging to the former,[66] or to schedule only a portion of shares of corporate stock claimed as exempt when he had a contract by which he was to receive a larger number of shares;[67] but the mere omission of exempt property,[68] or a failure to name certain corporate stock in his schedule or that he undervalued it,[69] or that he omitted a conveyance of land which might have been subjected to the payment of the creditor's debts, made more than three years before the passage of the bankruptcy act,[70] or that he undervalued certain real interests,[71] or that there had been a large shrinkage in the property of the bankrupt previous to filing of petition[72] is not alone sufficient to show a concealment. The bankrupt has the burden of proving that money received by him after the appointment of the trustee was paid to the trustee.[73] The charge of fraudulent concealment of property should be supported by a fair preponderance of credible evidence.[74]

Failure to keep books of account.—The omission of sales from books of account,[75] or loans to the bankrupt though made a few months before the bankruptcy

55. In re Dixon, 114 Fed. 675.
56. In re Dixon, 114 Fed. 675.
57. In re Dixon, 114 Fed. 675.
58. The creditor not having knowledge of bankruptcy proceedings in time to have proved his claim since in such case he is not prejudiced—In re Monroe, 114 Fed. 398; In re Hawk (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 916.
59. In re Hawk (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 916.
60. Facts held to show a fraudulent concealment of property and fraud in sending notice of applications of discharge warranting a vacation of the discharge—In re Roosa, 119 Fed. 542.
61. In re Blalock, 118 Fed. 679; In re Monroe, 114 Fed. 398.
62. Bankruptcy Act 1898, §§ 14, 29, subd. b (2)—In re Blalock, 118 Fed. 679.
63. Sufficiency of evidence to show bad faith in the statement of indebtedness—In re Miner, 114 Fed. 998. Evidence held insufficient to show that the bankrupt had made false oath with respect to a claim against which he scheduled—In re Miner, 117 Fed. 953.
64. In re Leslie, 119 Fed. 406.
65. Hudson v. Mercantile Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 346. Though advised by an attorney that he had been divested of all interest therein—In re Stoddart, 114 Fed. 486.
66. In re Semmel, 118 Fed. 487.
67. In re Semmel, 118 Fed. 487.
68. In re Semmel, 118 Fed. 487.
69. In re Semmel, 118 Fed. 487.
70. In re Countryman, 119 Fed. 639; Paxton v. Scott (Neb.) 92 N. W. 611.
71. It appeared that the bankrupt did not know his exact interest in certain land, and in the schedule claimed a half interest when in fact he had a life interest—In re Blalock, 118 Fed. 679.
72. In re Leslie, 119 Fed. 406.
73. Evidence held sufficient to show that money received by the bankrupt after filing of petition had not been paid over to his trustee—In re Leslie, 119 Fed. 406.
74. In re Leslie, 119 Fed. 406; In re Salsbury, 113 Fed. 833. Weight to be given to bankrupt's testimony—In re Baldwin, 119 Fed. 796. Evidence held sufficient to show a fraudulent concealment of assets—In re Baerncopf, 117 Fed. 975; In re Blalock, 118 Fed. 679; In re Schenck, 116 Fed. 554; In re Lesser (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 83; In re Holstein, 114 Fed. 794; In re Otto, 115 Fed. 860; Fields v. Karter (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 950. To show fraud in listing creditors as would justify a refusal to set aside a judgment released by the bankrupt's discharge as provided by N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 1268—In re Mollner, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 441.
75. Bankruptcy Act, § 14b (2). Though the bankrupt kept full books of accounts, but act was passed,[76] and though entered in private books continually in the bankrupt's possession and concealed by him,[77] is not the keeping of proper books of account within § 14, b, (2). Where the bankrupt's condition for at least a year prior to his failure was one of such hopeless insolvency that he would be presumed to have known it, a failure to keep the requisite books of account will be considered to have been in contemplation of bankruptcy.[78] The destruction of books material to the proper condition of the bankrupt, though the books were the books of account of a firm of which bankrupt had been a member, is ground for refusal of his discharge.[79]

C. Liabilities released.—Choses in action which by operation of the act passed to the trustee, though not scheduled or reduced to the trustee's possession, are barred by a discharge in bankruptcy[80] where the creditor had actual knowledge of the proceedings,[81] otherwise where he had no notice of the proceeding until too late to prove the claim.[82]

A valid lien acquired more than four months before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy,[83] and not proved against the estate, is not affected by the bankrupt's discharge,[84] whether the lien was contracted or judicial,[85] or statutory, as a mechanic's lien;[86] and such a lien is acquired by the commencement of a judgment creditor's suit before the bankruptcy of the judgment debtor,[87] or an action to establish a special lien on the property,[88] and a lien of garnishment.[89] Therefore, after the discharge in bankruptcy, the stay of an attachment may be vacated and judgment rendered against the attached property,[90] or the plaintiff may take a judgment with a perpetual stay.[91] An attachment lien acquired pending bankruptcy proceedings does not survive the defendant's discharge in bankruptcy.[92]

Under the act of 1898, a cause of action for a debt created by fraud is not barred by a discharge of defendant in bankruptcy,[93] which is not limited to common law actions of fraud or deceit,[94] nor need it have accrued while the bankrupt was acting as an officer or in some fiduciary capacity,[95] nor is it barred by filing proof thereof with the trustee, though the claimant may have waived the cause of action for the tort,[96] and a failure to return an overpayment made by mistake on failed to produce them until compelled to do so, and then produced but one book which omitted certain sales, and his explanation that the omitted ones were made to his son under an agreement that he should offset them against previous shortages in other sales—In re McBachron, 116 Fed. 783.

76. In re Feldstein (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 259; In re Greenberg, 114 Fed. 773.

77. In re Feldstein (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 259.

78. In re Feldstein (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 259.

79. In re Conley, 120 Fed. 42.

80. Especially where the creditors whose debts were discharged received nothing from the estate—Scruby v. Norman, 91 Mo. App. 517.

81. Zimmerman v. Ketchum (Kan.) 71 Pac. 264; Graham v. Richerson, 115 Ga. 1002.

82. In re Monroe, 114 Fed. 398.

83. Bankruptcy Act 1898 merely takes away from the lien creditor the right to proceed against the debtor in personam—Evans v. Rounsaville, 115 Ga. 684; Wenhamm v. Mallin, 103 Ill. App. 609.

84. Philmon v. Marshall (Ga.) 43 S. E. 48; Evans v. Rounsaville, 115 Ga. 684.

85. Paxton v. Scott (Neb.) 92 N. W. 611.

86. Such a lien is not acquired by legal proceedings within § 67b—Holland v. Cunliff, 96 Mo. App. 67.

87. Within N. Y. Code Civ. Pro. § 1268 authorizing the cancellation of judgments against discharged bankrupts except "where the judgment was a lien on real property owned by the bankrupt before he was adjudged bankrupt," and the judgment creditor who had brought the suit is entitled to have the judgment stand for the purpose of enforcing the lien as acquired—Arnold v. Treviranus (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 589.

88. McCall v. Herring (Ga.) 42 S. E. 468.

89. Holland v. Cunliff, 96 Mo. App. 67.

90. Wakeman v. Throckmorton, 74 Conn. 616.

91. Elder v. Prussing, 101 Ill. App. 655.

92. Graham v. Richerson, 115 Ga. 1002.

93. Bankruptcy Act, § 17a (2)—Frey v. Torrey (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 166. Judgments held to have been rendered in an action for fraud within the bankruptcy act—Matter of Bullis (N. Y.) 68 App. Div. 508.

94. The words "fraud," "embezzlement" and "misappropriation" in Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 17a (4), refer to one acting in a fiduciary capacity, and not to individual debtors referred to in (2) excepting judgments in actions for fraud—Matter of Bullis (N. Y.) 68 App. Div. 508.

95. Frey v. Torrey (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 166.

96. Frey v. Torrey (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 166.

demand is not a fraud within the act.[97] Under the amendment of 1903, however, a claim based on fraud while acting as an officer or in a fiduciary capacity alone is excepted,[98] and technical trusts and not implied trusts are embraced within the term "fiduciary capacity;"[99] therefore a claim against the bankrupt as administrator,[1] or for the conversion of the proceeds of property sold under a deed of trust by the trustee,[2] or to enforce a trust in land of the bankrupt held by another,[3] or for trust funds deposited with the bankrupt banker merely for transmission to parties entitled thereto are not barred;[4] but a claim for goods procured by fraudulent representations is.[5] Whether the action was for fraud is conclusively determined by the judgment in the state court,[6] though the entire record may be examined.[7] Interest collected on funds in the hands of one acting in a fiduciary capacity is not barred by his discharge in bankruptcy.[8]

A decree for alimony entered in a state court previous to the bankruptcy of the defendant,[9] or a judgment for damages for the alienation of a wife's affections are not released by the discharge.[10] A judgment entered by consent after the discharge of the defendant in bankruptcy in an action pending before the institution of the proceedings will not be vacated on the ground that the debt was discharged by the bankrupt,[11] but a judgment on the common money counts is barred by the discharge of the judgment debtor in bankruptcy.[12]

A cause of action for conversion,[13] or a pending action of trover to try title is not barred by the discharge of defendant in bankruptcy.[14]

The discharge of a bankrupt principal will not affect the liability of his surety or co-debtor,[15] but will render his co-obligors liable for debt,[16] therefore statutory liabilities of stockholders are not released by the discharge of the corporation in bankruptcy.[17]

D. Pleading and evidence.—A plea of a discharge in bankruptcy must be filed within the time prescribed by court rules and in the manner and form required by statute,[18] and a failure to plead or prove the discharge is a waiver of the benefit thereof.[19] A plea of general denial and discharge in bankruptcy are not inconsistent pleas.[20] Bankruptcy of an appellant may be shown in the appellate court by evidence dehors the record.[21]

97. The exceptions from a release by a discharge in section 17a, cl. 4, of debts created by fraud, embezzlement, etc., "fraud" will not include an implied fraud or fraud in law but a positive, or fraud in fact—Western Union Cold Storage Co. v. Hurd, 116 Fed. 442.

98. § 17a (4).

99. Stickney v. Parmenter, 74 Vt. 58.

1. Stickney v. Parmenter, 74 Vt. 58.

2. In such case the bankrupt acted in a fiduciary capacity—Ruff v. Milner, 92 Mo. App. 620.

3. Evans v. Staale (Minn.) 92 N. W. 951.

4. Predmore v. Torrey (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 127.

5. No fiduciary relations exist between seller and purchaser of merchandise, such relation being necessary to except a judgment for fraud from the operation of the discharge, under § 17 of the Bankruptcy Act—Harrington v. Herman (Mo.) 72 S. W. 546; Morse & Rogers v. Kaufman, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. Rep. 172, 40 S. E. 916.

6. Harrington v. Herman (Mo.) 72 S. W. 546.

7. Matter of Bullis (N. Y.) 68 App. Div. 508.

8. Stickney v. Parmenter, 74 Vt. 58.

9. Welty v. Welty, 195 Ill. 335.

10. Exline v. Sargent, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 180. Such a judgment being for willful and malicious injuries to the person and property of another and excepted by § 17 of the Bankruptcy Act—Leicester v. Hoadley (Kan.) 71 Pac. 318.

11. Stevens v. Meyers (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 128.

12. Barnes Mfg. Co. v. Norden, 67 N. J. Law, 493.

13. Watertown Carriage Co. v. Hall (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 201; contra, In re Benedict (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 230.

14. Berry v. Jackson, 115 Ga. 196.

15. Elder v. Prussing, 101 Ill. App. 655; Holland v. Cunliff, 96 Mo. App. 67; Bernhardt v. Curtis, 109 La. 171.

16. Seymour v. O. S. Richardson Fueling Co., 103 Ill. App. 625.

17. Elsbree v. Burt, 24 R. I. 322.

18. Griffith, Turner & Co. v. Adams, 95 Md. 170. Sufficiency of petition for leave to file a supplemental answer setting up the discharge of defendant in bankruptcy—Balk v. Harris, 130 N. C. 381.

19. Wakeman v. Throckmorton, 74 Conn. 616. As where the bankrupt first calls attention to it by motion of arrest three weeks after verdict nearly seven months after verdict—Lane v. Holcomb, 182 Mass. 360.

20. Ruff v. Milner, 92 Mo. App. 620.

21. Scruby v. Norman, 91 Mo. App. 517.

BASTARDS.

§ 1. Legal elements and evidences of illegitimacy.—To establish illegitimacy in the offspring of a lawfully married woman, the impossibility that the husband be the father must be shown.[1] A wife cannot bastardize her children born while she is living with a husband not shown to be impotent.[2] "Cohabiting" in statutes declaring the presumption of legitimacy means ostensible living together as man and wife.[3]

Parish records of a foreign country may be prima facie evidence of illegitimacy,[4] and are not overcome by the presumption of legitimacy or legitimization by marriage of parents.[5]

§ 2. Rights and duties of and in respect to bastards.—Statutes requiring the father to support his minor children do not require him to support his illegitimate child.[6] An agreement by him to pay for support and expenses is supported by the withdrawal of the mother's claim for support to the overseer of the poor.[7] Damages awarded the mother of a bastard by arbitrators will be upheld, the mother being liable for support.[8]

The mother may transfer her right of custody to the putative father, though such transfer may be void as against the child if contrary to his interests.[9]

Illegitimate children referred to in an application for insurance as adopted children and who lived with insured may recover under a benefit certificate limited to wife, children, dependents, or blood relatives.[10]

Inheritance.—Between acknowledged and unacknowledged collateral heirs, the former inherit.[11] Under statutes rendering bastards capable of inheritance and transmission of inheritance through the mother, they may inherit from a brother of the mother dying after her.[12]

§ 3. Procedure to ascertain paternity and compel support.—Where the statute provides for a proceeding by an "unmarried" woman she need not be unmarried at the time of complaint.[13]

A minor prosecutrix may dismiss of her own motion,[14] though in Nebraska it is held that prosecutrix cannot compromise a judgment.[15] Dismissal on provision for maintenance is a bar to a second prosecution.[16]

1. Adger v. Ackerman, 115 Fed. 124, 52 C. C. A. 568.

2. Since Code Civ. Proc. § 1962, subd. 5, raises an indisputable presumption of legitimacy of issue of a wife cohabiting with her husband, who is not impotent, the wife cannot testify that children are illegitimate, though Civ. Code, § 195, provides that illegitimacy may be proved like any other fact when legitimacy is disputed by husband or wife, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1879, provides that all persons may be witnesses though parties and persons in interest—In re Mills' Estate, 137 Cal. 298, 70 Pac. 91.

3. Code Civ. Proc. § 1962, subd. 5—In re Mills' Estate, 137 Cal. 298, 70 Pac. 91.

4. Recitals that a child was born to a spinster in a parish record kept under laws requiring a record of all children whether legitimate or not are prima facie evidence under Rev. St. 1898, § 4160, giving such effect to "material facts" in parish records of births, marriages or deaths—Sandberg v. State, 113 Wis. 578.

5. There was evidence that the mother, less than two years after the birth, left the country under her maiden name and without company of a husband—Sandberg v. State, 113 Wis. 578.

6. 18 Del. Laws, c. 230—State v. Miller (Del.) 52 Atl. 262.

7. Beach v. Voegtlen (N. J. Sup.) 53 Atl. 695.

8. Damages against a priest fixed by the ecclesiastical court—Poggenburg v. Conniff, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2463, 67 S. W. 845.

9. An instrument expressing such transfer will not be annulled where there was no sufficient showing of fraud, undue influence, or mistake, and the interest of the children was promoted—Ousset v. Euvrard (N. J. Ch.) 52 Atl. 1110.

10. Hanley v. Supreme Tent, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 161.

11. Bourriaque v. Charles, 107 La. 217.

12. Rev. St. 1899, § 2916—Moore v. Moore, 169 Mo. 432.

13. Comp. St. c. 37, § 1—Parker v. Nothomb (Neb.) 91 N. W. 395.

14. Consent of the county attorney is not required if she enter of record an admission of provision for support—State v. Baker, 65 Kan. 117, 69 Pac. 170.

15. State v. McBride (Neb.) 90 N. W. 209.

16. An admission of provision secured without fraud is binding on both prosecutrix and the state—State v. Baker, 65 Kan. 117, 69 Pac. 170.

Evidence.—Paternity need not be established beyond a reasonable doubt.[17] Proof of birth creates a presumption of birth alive.[18] The child may be offered in evidence to prove paternity by resemblance.[19] Defendant may show association of prosecutrix with other men with opportunity for sexual intercourse at about the time of conception.[20]

Judgment and damages.—Prosecutrix is not entitled to a sum awarded generally as costs.[21] A judgment for support against the putative father may be enforced after he has married the mother.[22]

Bonds.—The fact that no expenditures were made by the municipality is not defense to an action on a bastardy bond.[23]

§ 4. Legitimation, recognition, adoption.—Provisions for formal acknowledgment of bastards are not exclusive.[24] Statutes enabling bastards to inherit from the father, if acknowledged in writing by him, allow writings executed before their passage to capacitate the bastard as heir.[25] If they require that the child be received into the father's family, if the father is living with a woman whom he holds out as his wife and has a home, the child must be received therein.[26] Under certain statutes there need be no express intention of making the child an heir.[27]

Recognitions but not denials of paternity made by a person deceased are admissible.[28] A recognition in writing may be in letters from the father to the illegitimate.[29]

Where a minor bastard is legitimized by the marriage of his parents under the laws of their domicile, such status follows him.[30]

BETTING AND GAMING.

It is not proposed to treat of the keeping of lotteries,[1] or the validity of wagering contracts.[2]

§ 1. The offense and criminal prosecutions. A. The offense. Validity of regulations.—The legislature is ordinarily held to have plenary power to regulate or prohibit gaming. Thus prohibition of gaming in any place barred or made difficult of access to the police,[3] betting on races through a turf exchange,[4] bookmaking and pool selling,[5] the selling of wagers on the drawing of numbers,[6] have been upheld, and the prohibition may be directed only to the proprietors of the

17. Preponderance of evidence sufficient—Priel v. Adams (Neb.) 91 N. W. 536. Evidence held insufficient, there being a showing of intercourse with others than defendant—People v. McKay, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 527.

18. Priel v. Adams (Neb.) 91 N. W. 536.

19. Kelly v. State, 133 Ala. 195.

20. Where the state has proved defendant's association with prosecutrix at about such time—Kelly v. State, 133 Ala. 195.

21. Barry v. Niessen, 114 Wis. 256.

22. Though the child is thus legitimized—Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 595, 69 S. W. 700.

23. Code Cr. Proc. § 883, makes proof of such expenditures unnecessary—New York v. Buechel, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 507.

24. Civ. Code, art. 203, does not exclude arts. 207, 208—Bourriaque v. Charles, 107 La. 217.

25. Acknowledgment in writing before witnesses, of paternity, by a nonresident alien, in 1877, prior to Code, § 3403, makes on his death, after passage of such section, the child heir as to his realty in South Dakota—Moen v. Moen (S. D.) 92 N. W. 13.

26. Civ. Code, § 230. Acknowledgment and gifts of small sums of money are not sufficient—Garner v. Judd, 136 Cal. 394, 68 Pac. 1026.

27. Comp. St. c. 23, § 31—Thomas v. Thomas' Estate (Neb.) 90 N. W. 630.

28. Action under Code, § 3385, permitting an illegitimate to inherit from the father if recognized publicly and notoriously or in writing—Britt v. Hall, 116 Iowa, 564.

29. Code, § 3385. Evidence held sufficient—Britt v. Hall, 116 Iowa, 564.

30. Fowler v. Fowler, 131 N. C. 169.

1. "Lotteries."

2. "Gambling Contracts."

3. In re Ah Cheung, 136 Cal. 678, 69 Pac. 492.

4. Shreveport v. Maloney, 107 La. 193. And see People v. Bennett, 113 Fed. 515, in which Laws N. Y. 1895, c. 570, requiring, under penalty, all wagers on horse races to be recorded at the track, is upheld.

5. People v. De Bragga, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 579.

6. People v. Flynn, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 67.

game.[7] A statute making bookmaking punishable as a felony except where another punishment is provided by law does not provide two penalties for the same offense.

Cards and other table games.—Craps is not a banking or table game, though the owner of the table acts as stakeholder and receives a commission.[8]

Racing and race tracks.—Betting on the result of a horse race is legal in Louisiana.[9] Bookmaking in New York is illegal though not carried on at a race track.[10] A telegraph company transmitting messages as to the result of races is not liable.[11]

Slot machines.—A slot machine paying prizes in cigars is illegal.[12]

Gaming at public place.—The back yard of a building where liquor is sold,[13] or the second story of a building the lower floor of which is used for the sale of liquor,[14] is within a statute prohibiting gaming "at" a store, etc., where liquor is sold. A room adjoining a saloon and partitioned off therefrom is within the statute.[15] A remote field sometimes resorted to for the purpose of card playing is not a public place,[16] but a room to which persons went at will without invitation may be found by the jury to be,[17] and the front yard of a dwelling forty feet from a highway is a public place.[18]

B. Indictment or information and trial procedure.—Indictment for playing at a hotel need not allege that it was not a private residence,[19] but an indictment for pool selling must allege that it was not at a race course authorized by statute.[20] If the indictment alleges that the place was not a private residence, it need not be designated.[21] The particular location of a pool room need not be specified.[22] An indictment for keeping a pool room must allege the presence therein of the books and apparatus mentioned in the statute.[23] An indictment charging gambling by three persons is variant from evidence that one of them gambled with persons not named.[24] Information in general terms sufficient.[25]

See note for holding as to materiality of certain evidence or sufficiency of proof.[26]

7. It is not class legislation because the patrons are not punished—State v. Woodman, 26 Mont. 348, 67 Pac. 1118.

8. Cummings v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 395; Campbell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 396.

9. Shreveport v. Maloney, 107 La. 193.

10. Under Pen. Code, § 351, though Laws 1895, c. 570, relates only to the recording of wagers at the track—People v. Levoy, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 55. Pen. Code, § 351, Laws 1895, c. 570, provided for civil liability only for book making at race tracks—People v. Stedeker, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 449.

11. Com. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1633, 67 S. W. 59.

12. Laws 1901, p. 166, prohibits slot machines "for money, checks, credits, or any representative of value, or for any property or thing whatever"—State v. Woodman, 26 Mont. 348, 67 Pac. 1118.

13. James v. State, 133 Ala. 202.

14. Kicker v. State, 133 Ala. 193; Osborn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 592.

15. Douthit v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 809.

16. Russ v. State, 132 Ala. 20. See Williams v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 192, for a conviction on similar facts, under a statute prohibiting gaming at any place except a private residence.

17. Cartiledge v. State, 132 Ala. 17.

18. Lee v. State (Ala.) 33 So. 894.

19. That being the exception in the statute—Wilkerson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 850; Hodges v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 179.

20. People v. Stedeker, 175 N. Y. 57.

21. Russell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 190; Hankins v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 191.

22. People v. Stedeker, 175 N. Y. 57.

23. People v. Stedeker, 175 N. Y. 57.

24. Pullen v. State (Ga.) 42 S. E. 774.

25. The information alleged that one C did at a certain place use and allow rooms to be used for gambling—People v. Wyatt, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 456.

26. Evidence that another participant in the game has left the county is inadmissible—James v. State, 133 Ala. 208. On a trial for permitting a minor to play, evidence that at some previous time defendant requested the minor not to come is inadmissible—Alexander v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 319.

Sufficiency: To convict of keeping a gaming house—White v. State, 115 Ga. 570. To convict of playing for money; witness saw only checks used and did not see them cashed—State v. Brooks (Mo. App.) 67 S. W. 942. A conviction on the testimony of one who said he was pretty sure he saw defendant playing but might be mistaken was sus-

One indicted for keeping gaming table is entitled to instruction that he must be interested in the gain or loss thereof.[27] Betting need not be defined on trial for bookmaking.[28] Where all the evidence is that the play was in a pasture, an instruction as to the burden of proving that it was not at a private residence is properly refused.[29]

Gambling with cards is a misdemeanor in Idaho.[30]

§ 2. Penalties and seizure of implements.—Act authorizing destruction of gambling implements does not deprive of property without due process of law.[31] An instrument which may be used for an innocent purpose cannot be seized by the police as a preventative measure.[32] Absence of preliminary affidavits cannot be objected to where no search is made.[33] The court may order a trial before ordering the destruction of a slot machine.[34] Statute providing penalty is to be strictly construed,[35] and will be limited to gambling within the state.[36]

§ 3. Recovery back of money lost.—Where the action is in name of third person, defendant may show it is really in interest of loser,[37] and this may be shown under the general issue,[38] but it has been held that collusion between the loser and the person suing is no defense.[39] Action must be brought in county where loss occurred.[40] Giving of notes is not a payment which may be recovered back, nor is payment by sureties on supersedeas bond given on appeal from judgment on such notes.[41]

BIGAMY.

The offense.—Belief in a divorce is no defense, nor is a divorce after the second marriage.[1] The fact that the first wife had married defendant within the time when divorced persons were forbidden to remarry in the state where the marriage was performed is no defense where the divorce was granted elsewhere.[2]

Indictment.—The indictment need not negative a divorce from the first wife,[3] nor state time and place of first marriage or negative exception as to absence of spouse and belief in death.[4] In Oregon, the information must allege that the first wife was living at the time of the cohabitation.[5] Variance between indictment and marriage certificate as to name of first wife is not fatal.[6] tained—Simmons v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 586. Sufficient to show a room in hotel rented by month but under general supervision of defendant, who was hotel keeper; bed in room, but no evidence that any one slept therein; gambling appliances in room—Hodges v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 179.

27. Jones v. State, 80 Miss. 181.

28. People v. Levoy, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 55.

29. Williams v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 192.

30. The minimum punishment is fixed by Act Feb. 6, 1899; the maximum by Rev. St. § 6313—In re Rowland (Idaho) 70 Pac. 610.

31. Garland Novelty Co. v. State (Ark.) 71 S. W. 257.

32. Musical slot machine—Wagner v. Upshur, 95 Md. 519.

33. Garland Novelty Co. v. State (Ark.) 71 S. W. 257.

34. Garland Novelty Co. v. State (Ark.) 71 S. W. 257.

35. Jacob v. Clark, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 2120, 72 S. W. 1095.

36. Jacob v. Clark, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 2120, 72 S. W. 1095.

37. Staninger v. Tabor, 103 Ill. App. 330; Kizer v. Walden, 198 Ill. 274.

38. Staninger v. Tabor, 103 Ill. App. 330.

39. Kizer v. Walden, 198 Ill. 274.

40. Staninger v. Tabor, 103 Ill. App. 330.

41. Jacob v. Clark, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 2120, 72 S. W. 1095.

1. Rogers v. Com., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 119, 68 S. W. 14.

2. State v. Bentley (Vt.) 53 Atl. 1068.

3. Rogers v. Com., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 119, 68 S. W. 14. An indictment that defendant married a certain woman and cohabited with her, his first wife being living at the time of such marriage and cohabitation, is sufficient—State v. Steupper (Iowa) 91 N. W. 912.

4. Ferrell v. State (Fla.) 34 So. 220. Indictment negativing exception in general terms held sufficient—State v. Damon, 97 Me. 323.

5. The statute (Bel. & C. Ann. Codes & St. § 1918) forbids cohabitation with another as husband or wife while first spouse is living. Information alleging that defendant while first wife was living married another and "subsequently cohabited with her" held insufficient—State v. Durphy (Or.) 71 Pac. 63.

6. It was shown that the certificate was Evidence and instructions.—The license issued for the first marriage is admissible.[7] Evidence of continued cohabitation is admissible.[8] An instruction requiring a finding of marital cohabitation only is erroneous.[9]

BLACKMAIL.

The sending of blackmailing letters is a postal crime.[1]

BONDS.

§ 1. The instrument; essentials and validity.—A bond not within the intendment of a statute may be sustained as a common law contract,[1] but not a bond in compliance with an unconstitutional statute,[2] unless there is a consideration independent of the statute.[3]

Consideration is not required for a statutory bond,[4] and statutes providing that want of consideration shall be a defense to actions on notes, bonds, etc., do not apply to penal bonds.[5] A bond for the performance of a contract under a void franchise is without consideration.[6]

Execution.—A signature of the secretary for the purpose of attesting the signature and seal of the vice-president on the back of the secretary's surety bond cannot be regarded as a signing of the bond.[7]

Delivery to the attorney of an interested party is sufficient,[8] or a placing in the hands of a third person to be delivered to the obligees.[9]

Fraud with which the obligee is not connected will not avoid a bond.[10]

§ 2. Rights of parties and transferees.—The obligors of a forged bond are erroneous—Kuehn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 526.

7. De Lucenay v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 796.

8. The indictment alleged a marriage in another state and the evidence offered was of continued cohabitation in Iowa—State v. Steupper (Iowa) 91 N. W. 912. Evidence held sufficient—Ferrell v. State (Fla.) 34 So. 220. Failure of the clergyman to identify the parties to the first marriage is immaterial if there is other evidence—Kuehn v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 526. Conviction reversed where first wife testified to ceremony but clerk certified that there was no return thereof on file—People v. Goodrode (Mich.) 94 N. W. 14.

9. State v. St. John, 94 Mo. App. 229.

1. Act Cong. Mar. 2, 1889, amending R. S., § 5480, directed against "schemes to defraud"—Horman v. United States (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 350.

1. State v. Paxton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 983. An appeal undertaking insufficient to comply with the statute may bind the sureties as a common law undertaking, if there was an actual stay of execution thereon. The sureties were charged with notice that they were not merely executing a cost bond by the fact that they were required to justify in the sum of $2,000 and undertake to pay costs and damages to the amount of $250, together with the amount of the judgment, if it was affirmed and the bond was treated by counsel as sufficient—Coughran v. Hollister, 15 S. D. 318.

2. Bond stating that it was given under Code Civ. Proc. § 1203, from a building contractor for the protection of materialmen—Shaughnessy v. American Surety Co., 138 Cal. 543, 71 Pac. 701.

3. Statute afterward declared unconstitutional—Stevenson v. Morgan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 180.

4. State v. Paxton (Neb.) 90 N. W. 983.

5. Rev. St. 1874, c. 98, § 9. A plea of no consideration is not a defense in an action on a penal bond for the payment of a materialman—Chicago, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Haven, 195 Ill. 474.

6. Bond given by grantee of franchise—Kirkwood v. Meramec Highlands Co., 94 Mo. App. 637.

7. Laws 1895, p. 105, § 4, provides that the surety of an officer of a building association should be approved by the board of directors. A bond not otherwise signed by the secretary, bore on its back, after recital of such approval by the board, the signature of the vice-president, followed by the corporate seal and the words "Attest, John C. Obert, Secretary." Held, that it was not a sufficient signature of his bond—North St. Louis Bldg. & L. Ass'n v. Obert, 169 Mo. 507.

8. Several months later the attorney made a delivery to the obligee—Wylie v. Commercial & Farmers' Bank, 63 S. C. 406.

9. Bonds were placed in the hands of a third person to be delivered at the death of the obligor, the obligor parting with all dominion over them—Frank v. Frank (Va.) 42 S. E. 666.

10. False representations of one not the agent of the obligee, which he did not participate in or have knowledge of—Feigenspan v. Wilson (N. J. Sup.) 52 Atl. 233.

not made liable by the fact that the obligees have accepted it in good faith and incurred liability in reliance thereon.[11] A purchaser with notice after maturity from a bona fide holder for value before maturity and without notice is entitled to the rights of the latter,[12] and the fact that an intermediate owner of negotiable bonds could not have enforced them does not affect a bona fide purchaser.[13] A default in payment of interest does not cause a purchaser to take with notice of dishonor.[14]

Purchasers of non-negotiable mortgage bonds take them subject to equities between the parties existing before notice of assignment,[15] and are in the position of assignees of non-negotiable instruments.[16] The obligor may be estopped to deny a trustee's authority to pledge the bonds for its own debt,[17] though estoppels are not favored and must be clearly made out.[18] A trust company holding bonds, executed to it as trustee, to be sold, can confer no rights on one to whom it pledges the bonds for its own debt.[19]

§ 3. The terms and conditions in general; interpretation, legal effect, breach.[20]—The substance rather than the form will be given importance in the interpretation of a bond.[21]

Where a corporate officer by statute is to hold office at the pleasure of the board of directors, his bond is not limited to the first year of his employment, though the minutes of the meeting at which he is appointed read that he is appointed until the next annual election.[22]

A condition for the honest and proficient performance of duties covers negligence though co-employes are also negligent.[23] A bond for faithful performance of an attorney's duties adds nothing to his liability under the law.[24]

§ 4. Remedies and procedure.—Where a bond imposes a primary liability, the doctrine of laches does not apply.[25] Compliance with provisions for payment in

11. Terrill v. Tillison (Vt.) 54 Atl. 187.

12. Central R. & B. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 Fed. 700.

13. Central R. & B. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 114 Fed. 263, 52 C. C. A. 149.

14. Negotiable bonds—Central R. & B. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 Fed. 700.

15. A covenant by the obligor that the land is free from incumbrance cannot be asserted against him by the transferee as an estoppel if made on faith of the obligee's agreement to discharge such incumbrance with a portion of the amount secured by the mortgage, and the obligor is liable only for the amount actually received by him—Macauley v. Louisville Banking Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1, 67 S. W. 843.

16. The obligor may make any defense against the assignee of bonds payable to a trust company, "trustee," or bearer that he might have made against the original payee—Rodd v. Louisville Banking Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 55, 67 S. W. 63.

17. As where he has stated that the trustee has settled with him in full, and that he owed all outstanding bonds, and the pledgee has taken on the faith of such statement—Rodd v. Louisville Banking Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 55, 67 S. W. 63.

18. Hence having no reason to believe that the bonds would be transferred before the money is furnished, the obligor is not estopped to plead that he did not receive the consideration which was to be advanced during the erection of a house—Macauley v. Louisville Banking Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1, 67 S. W. 843.

19. The pledgee for its own debt to a trust company to whom bonds are payable, "trustee" or bearer acquires no lien—Rodd v. Louisville Banking Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 55, 67 S. W. 63.

20. A bond conditioned to be void in case a building contracted to be erected by the vendee on land conveyed will not be regarded as securing the payment of the purchase price, though the land without the erection of the building would have been inadequate security for mortgages thereon, one of which was assumed by the vendee and the other executed by him as part of the contract of sale—Sachs v. American Surety Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 60.

A bond for the satisfaction of a mortgage within six months will not be regarded as one for liquidated damages, and is satisfied by satisfaction of the mortgage though after the period mentioned, no damages being shown—McDaniels v. Gowey, 30 Wash. 412, 71 Pac. 12.

21. More regard will be paid to the general purpose as shown by the provisions of the bond as a whole and the interests of the parties in the subject-matter than to the words implied—Northern Assur. Co. v. Borgelt (Neb.) 93 N. W. 226.

22. The bond of a cashier of a savings bank mentioned no time during which it was to be operative and no other bond was given, though the cashier was re-appointed at successive annual meetings—Ida County Sav. Bank v. Seidensticker (Iowa) 92 N. W. 862.

23. A bank officer is liable though directors have not used due diligence—Fiala v. Ainsworth (Neb.) 94 N. W. 153.

24. Humboldt Bldg. Ass'n v. Ducker's Ex'x, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1073, 64 S. W. 671.

25. Bond required before appointment of accord with the mechanic's lien law is not a condition precedent to enforce the contractor's bond for performance of the contract.[26]

After 20 years there is a presumption that a bond has been paid.[27]

Action to enforce a bond should be in the name of the obligees,[28] though the assignee or pledgee of a negotiable bond may sue in his own name.[29]

Pleading.—Where the condition is set out and breaches specifically assigned, non damnificatus is not a good plea.[30] Such plea does not answer an alleged breach of a bond to perform a particular act.[31] Where the answer is not sworn to, the execution of the bond is admitted.[32] Striking of a plea of non est factum to an amended declaration carries with it former pleas of the same nature, allowing the bond to be admitted in evidence without preliminary proof of execution.[33]

Evidence.—In an action for breach of a bond to erect a building by the vendee, evidence as to the value of the premises had there been performance is admissible.[34]

Rulings and instructions.—A ruling proper as to sureties but erroneous as to the principal defendants should be refused if there is no distinction between the two classes of parties.[35] Instructions should conform to the evidence.[36]

Judgment and damages.—On breach of a bond for the erection of a building by the vendee of land, the loss of profits may be the measure of damages.[37]

Where a bond is treated as for the payment of money, a judgment cannot be modified so as to provide that it shall stand as security for further breaches, the statute allowing judgment in such form applying only to bonds not conditioned for the payment of money.[38]

If the damages exceed the penalty of the bond, the amount of the penalty with interest may be recovered.[39] By statute, interest may be made not allowable an employe, conditioned to be void in case of a competent and honest performance of services—Walker v. Brinkley, 131 N. C. 17.

26. Central Lumber Co. v. Kelter, 201 Ill. 503.

27. Such evidence is not rebutted by proof of insolvency not shown to have continued through the term or by proof of payments shown to have been on other accounts—Guillou v. Redfield (Pa.) 54 Atl. 886.

28. Sister Mary Nonna v. Conlan (N. J. Sup.) 52 Atl. 210.

29. Mills' Ann. Code, § 3. The nature of his title or the consideration paid by him is not material—Board of Com'rs of Lake County v. Schradsky (Colo.) 71 Pac. 1104.

30. The breaches should be traversed with a conclusion to the country—Dime Sav. Inst. v. American Surety Co. (N. J. Sup.) 53 Atl. 217.

31. Where the condition is for anything except mere indemnity, performance must be averred—Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. West Chicago St. R. Co., 99 Ill. App. 486.

32. Campbell v. Harrington, 93 Mo. App. 315. Rev. St. c. 110, § 34—Central Lumber Co. v. Kelter, 102 Ill. App. 333.

33. Central Lumber Co. v. Kelter, 201 Ill. 503.

34. Sachs v. American Surety Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 60.

Sufficiency of evidence: To show validity of a bond over a contention that it was fraudulent—Tatum v. Tatum's Adm'r (Va.) 43 S. E. 184. In an action on the bond of an assistant bank cashier for negligence in aiding a misappropriation of funds—Fiala v. Ainsworth (Neb.) 94 N. W. 153. In an action on a contractor's bond, evidence that it cost over $1400 to complete the building after the contractor abandoned it, will sustain a judgment against the sureties for $1374.42—Central Lumber Co. v. Kelter, 201 Ill. 503.

35. Curtiss v. Curtiss, 182 Mass. 104.

36. An instruction as to the burden of proof of a change in a bond should be denied where the only evidence goes to show a forgery—Terrill v. Tillison (Vt.) 54 Atl. 187.

37. On a sale of land for $190,000, the vendee assumed a mortgage for $120,000 and gave a mortgage for $70,000. The vendor agreed to advance $100,000 as a building loan, and the vendee gave a bond to erect certain buildings. In an action on the bond $30,000 were held to be the measure of damages, it appearing that the premises were worth $160,000, and that a deficiency resulted on foreclosure of the purchase-money mortgage which would not have been occasioned had the buildings been erected—Sachs v. American Surety Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 60.

38. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 464-477. Held that an action on a bond conditioned for the payment of monthly alimony, in which the prayer was for judgment for penalty of the bond, and that execution issue for a fixed amount then in arrears as damages, regarded the bond as conditioned for the payment of money—Burnside v. Wand, 170 Mo. 531.

39. Damages in an action on a bond to secure damages in eminent domain proceedings were properly made up of the amount of the penalty with interest from the date of the breach of the bond—Pennell v. Card, 96 Me. 392. From the time in which payment was due under the pleadings until the time for entering judgment—Camden v. Ward, 67 N. J. Law, 558.

if it cause the recovery to exceed the penalty of the bond except where the bond is for the payment of money.[40]

BOUNDARIES.

§ 1. Rules for locating or identifying. In general.—Courses and distances are to be run by the magnetic meridian.[1] A line referred to as a boundary will be regarded as meaning a continuous line.[2] Omission of a connecting word between calls of a deed is immaterial.[3] Calls made under a mistake may be disregarded.[4] Interior lines need not be found where one of a block of several tracts may be located by adjoiners.[5]

Conflict between course and distance and natural or artificial monuments.—Courses and distances yield to natural and ascertained objects,[6] but they must be clearly identified and not in conflict with other natural objects called for in the description.[7] Natural monuments control measurements,[8] so a location by monument will control one by distance.[9] The actual location of lines on the ground will control courses and distances,[10] hence actual location will control calls for a straight line.[11] Where lines fixed by course and distance do not correspond with calls for marked corners, they must run straight between the corners,[12] and if a course cannot be made to touch all the natural objects called for, that course should be taken which will satisfy most of them.[13] A call for distance may control an artificial monument.[14]

40. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1915, interest from the breach of a bond to erect a building cannot be recovered where there is a judgment for the full amount of the penalty —Sachs v. American Surety Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 60.

1. Ayers v. Huddleston (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 60.

2. A line shown on a plat made by a commissioner of delinquent lands will control lines from the margins of the tract extending partially through them but which if extended would not meet—Jackson v. Land Ass'n, 51 W. Va. 482.

3. Omission of "thence," the sense being apparent—Johnson v. Harris, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 449, 68 S. W. 844.

4. As where one of two sets of calls must be disregarded and one is found to have been made under a mistake as to the relative position of surveys—Sellman v. Sellman (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 48.

5. Lehigh Val. Coal Co. v. Beaver Lumber Co., 203 Pa. 544.

6. Leonard v. Forbing (La.) 33 So. 203. Where the call of a description is "thence up said branch with its meanders as follows: N. 130 vrs.; N., 45 deg. W., 150 vrs.; N. 360 vrs., and lyn brs. N., 70 deg. W., 2 vrs.," the meandering of the branch must be taken as a boundary to the end of the call—Griffin v. Barbee (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 698. The jury cannot be instructed to disregard calls for natural objects because the objects are not found on the course or at the distance, if there is evidence tending to show that they exist and to justify a finding that they are those seen and called for by the surveyor, though they vary greatly from the courses and distances and make the survey much smaller than stated—Watkins v. King (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 524.

7. Bell County Land & Coal Co. v. Hendrickson, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 371, 68 S. W. 842.

8. Hall v. Caplis (La.) 33 So. 570.

9. Hammond v. George (Ga.) 43 S. E. 53.

10. Trinwith v. Smith (Or.) 70 Pac. 816. Conveyance "to the lot recently conveyed to A." where A. had erected a fence and the grantee understood that he was purchasing only to A.'s lot—Long v. Shields, 20 Pa. Sup. Ct. 559.

11. The actual location is a question for the jury—Johnson v. Harris, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 449, 68 S. W. 844.

12. The ground marks were identified—Sloan v. King (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 541.

13. Kentucky Land & Immigration Co. v. Crabtree, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 743, 70 S. W. 31.

14. Where the lateral line between lots is described as beginning at a certain number of feet from a street corner and passing through the center of a party wall, the call for distance will control, though placing the

Conflicts between plats and maps and monuments.—A boundary marked by objects will control a map,[15] so lines on a plat are not conclusive as to the actual location of lines on the ground,[16] and a plan made from a survey marked on the ground is controlled by lines and corners fixed by the ground marks,[17] though not affected by unidentified ground marks;[18] hence a special description of a lot by monuments controls a general description by number,[19] and a survey ascertained by monuments on the ground controls a recorded plat.[20]

Government surveys.—The lines established by a government survey, if possible of ascertainment, control as to a controverted section line,[21] and corners and monuments fixed by it control all other surveys,[22] and cannot be altered whether properly placed or not.[23] The official plat controls field notes of a meander line.[24] Where a corner is not found or its location satisfactorily proven, the field notes of the government survey control and are prima facie evidence of the true line,[25] though the plats and field notes may be overcome by other evidence,[26] such as monuments in the ground marking corners.[27]

Conflicts between surveys or descriptions of different date.[28]—Courses and distances in a senior survey control marked lines of a junior survey, where there is no evidence of the original junior survey or of possession or acquiescence.[29] Location of a junior survey over an older survey does not give the land of the older survey to the junior one.[30] A former grant will control a subsequent overlapping grant by the same grantor, there being a description by metes and bounds.[31]

Lost or omitted monuments.[32]—Adjoiners fix the location if they correspond to the calls, where the marks and monuments on the ground cannot be found to line four inches beyond the center of the party wall—Ehrenreich v. Froment (N. Y.) 73 App. Div. 213.

15. Where a patent of pueblo lands issued to the city of San Francisco excepted the Presidio military reservation, but did not fix the boundaries thereof in courses and distances, though a map showing the boundaries was attached to and made a part of the patent, evidence of original location of the boundary of the reservation as marked by monuments on the ground before the map was made is admissible—Wheeler v. Benjamin, 136 Cal. 51.

16. The question of the location of a starting point is for the jury, where there was evidence as to land marks determining its location and also as to its location by means of distances from a range line determined only by a plat—Ayers v. Huddleston (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 60.

17. Coleman v. Lord, 96 Me. 192.

18. If a deed conveys a lot by number according to a plan which is referred to, and gives the boundaries which correspond exactly with those appearing on the plan, the lines and surveys of the plan govern though there are unidentified stakes on the ground not corresponding with the survey—Coleman v. Lord, 96 Me. 192.

19. The land from which lots were sold was monumented and also laid out by map—Stanwood v. Beck (N. J. Ch.) 52 Atl. 353.

20. Survey of a city addition—Olson v. Seattle, 30 Wash. 687.

21. It is the duty of the court to ascertain if possible the monuments established by the government survey and the line as indicated—McGray v. Monarch Elevator Co. (S. D.) 91 N. W. 457.

22. Clark v. Thornburg (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1056; Knoll v. Randolph (Neb.) 92 N. W. 195.

23. Trinwith v. Smith (Or.) 70 Pac. 816.

24. Hanson v. Rice (Minn.) 92 N. W. 982.

25. Knoll v. Randolph (Neb.) 92 N. W. 195; Clark v. Thornburg (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1056.

26. Testimony that lines run from an original corner as marked on the ground show the plats and field notes grossly inaccurate and that extensive improvements had been made according to the corners as marked—Rowell v. Weinemann (Iowa) 93 N. W. 279. Evidence of four old surveyors as to finding and locating on the ground the original corners of a government survey and of nine witnesses as to finding such monuments, together with evidence that improvements had been made and highways established for many years according to such location, is sufficient to overcome the plats and field notes of the government survey—Rowell v. Clark (Iowa) 93 N. W. 280.

27. Rowell v. Weinemann (Iowa) 93 N. W. 279.

28. Surveyors' markings within the township are more reliable as to the location of a section line than the markings of an adjoining township surveyed a year later—Hall v. Caplis (La.) 33 So. 570.

29. Hornberger v. Giddings (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 989.

30. Lehigh Val. Coal Co. v. Beaver Lumber Co., 203 Pa. 544.

31. Sandy River Cannel Coal Co. v. Whitehouse Cannel Coal Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1653, 72 S. W. 298.

32. On a conveyance by metes and bounds, a corner not marked by a monument will be determined by courses and distances—Ayers v. Huddleston (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 60.

establish the location of individual surveys of a block of surveys, and when the monuments cannot be found and the adjoiners do not correspond with the calls, courses and distances govern.[33]

Highways, streets, or ways as boundaries.—A state grant of land bordering on a highway is presumed to convey title to the center thereof.[34] Where a way is made a boundary, a grantee takes to the center of it with a right of way over the entire surface.[35] The presumption that a description limiting a tract by an existing road carries the fee to the center may be supported by other circumstances,[36] and there must be an express exclusion to overcome it.[37] The inclusion or exclusion may be indicated by the description.[38] If a stone monument is called for on the side of a street, the street as well as the stone becomes a monument.[39] In Illinois, the purchaser of a platted lot takes to the center of a street, where the lot is described by reference to the plat, though there has been no effectual statutory dedication of the streets and alleys described,[40] though in New York it is held that the street must have been opened or used.[41] A street named as a boundary will be presumed to mean the street as actually opened and in use.[42]

§ 2. Riparian or littoral boundaries.—Where a stream, navigable in fact, is the boundary, title extends to its center, unless there is an expressed intent otherwise;[43] the same is true of a non-navigable stream,[44] but not where there is an express call for low water mark.[45] Where title to land along a navigable river extends only to the original low water mark, by the law of the state, the low water mark remains the boundary on the addition of gradual accretions, but where there is a cutting of a natural channel by the stream suddenly, the title to the abandoned channel remains in the state.[46] There is a rebuttable presumption that an owner bordering on a canal has title to the center of the stream.[47]

33. Lehigh Val. Coal Co. v. Beaver Lumber Co., 203 Pa. 544.

34. Paige v. Schenectady R. Co. (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 571.

35. A way is made a boundary by a description "running northerly of said road four rods, thence easterly by a way twenty feet wide, nineteen rods," though the distance indicated on the road does not quite reach to the way, and the fact that the way is not laid out at the time of the conveyance is immaterial, as are other facts relative to the utility of such way—LeMay v. Furtado, 182 Mass. 280.

36. Recital of purpose to dispose of entire estate—Van Winkle v. Van Winkle (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 593.

37. Van Winkle v. Van Winkle (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 593.

38. A description of land as on the side of a highway beginning at a certain point and thence by courses and distances, the first being along said highway a certain distance, excludes the highway, and further evidence of such exclusion may be found in that the description by courses and distances conveys the purported amount without including the highway—Kennedy v. Mineola, H. & F. Traction Co. (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 484. The deed to a tract starting at a point on the northerly side of a street, thence northerly a certain distance and at right angles a certain distance, thence southerly to the northerly side of the said street, thence westerly along the northerly side to the place of beginning, does not convey any part of the street—Jacquemin v. Finnegan (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 628. Where one platted certain property conveyed a lot by description, "northerly till it strikes the southerly line of" a street mentioned in the plat beginning, "thence to the line of the said street easterly," the title to the south half of the street being in the grantor, the deed carried title to the middle thereof—Healey v. Kelly (R. I.) 54 Atl. 588.

39. It was held that under a conveyance making such a call the land to the street was conveyed though the stone monument by error had been placed a few feet distant from the edge of the street. The land had also been laid out by map, and upon the map the street was the boundary of the lots conveyed, and reference to the lots by number as indicated on the map was made in the conveyance—Stanwood v. Beck (N. J. Ch.) 52 Atl. 353.

40. Thompson v. Maloney, 199 Ill. 276.

41. Where on a map lots and streets were designated, but a lot marked as a street had never been opened or used as such, the grantee of an adjacent lot did not obtain any easement therein or take to the center of it, though his lot was described as extending "to land marked street"—Downes v. Dimock & Fink Co. (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 513.

42. Southern Iron Works v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 131 Ala. 649.

43. Webster v. Harris (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 782; Chesbrough v. Head, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 427.

44. McBride v. Whitaker (Neb.) 90 N. W. 966.

45. Webster v. Harris (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 782.

46. Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 812.

Meander lines.—The stream and not the meander line indicated on a public survey is the boundary of the riparian owner,[48] and a United States grant of land bordering on a navigable meandered river conveys title to high water mark.[49] Government lands bordering on a non-navigable stream are bounded by the thread of the stream,[50] though in certain states high water mark is the boundary.[51] The body of water may be one that should not have been meandered in the government survey,[52] but where there is no adjacent body of water proper to be meandered, the meander line if consistent with other calls and distances may be the boundary of a fractional lot.[53]

Unsurveyed islands in a non-navigable stream lying between the thread of the stream and the shore line, or parts of islands so lying, belong to the grantee of the government whose grant is bounded by a survey showing a meandered line along the river bank.[54] In Iowa, if meandered waters dry up, the title of the shore owners does not extend beyond the boundaries fixed by the original patent, except as to accretions or relictions.[55] Lateral boundaries of lands between the meander line and the shore of a meandered inland navigable lake are fixed by extending the side lines of the contiguous lots on a deflected course from their intersection with the meander line toward a point in the center of the lake.[56]

§ 3. Conflicts and ambiguities in terms defining boundaries.[57]—Where adjoining tracts are conveyed together, the omission in describing one of the tracts of the line which would constitute the division line between them is not material.[58]

§ 4. Establishment by agreement of adjoiners.—A practical location of a boundary may be established by agreement and acquiescence of the interested parties,[59] and a line established by consent is binding in the absence of fraud, unfair

47. Warren v. Gloversville, 114 N. Y. State Rep. 912.

48. Johnson v. Tomlinson, 41 Or. 198, 68 Pac. 406; Hendricks v. Feather River Canal Co., 138 Cal. 423, 71 Pac. 496. Meander lines being run merely for the purpose of determining the amount of land—Chesbrough v. Head, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 427.

49. In a case where the meander line was above high water mark, and the bank of the river was perpendicular, there being no distinction between high and low water marks and no shore line, the state has no title to land created by erosion and filling which it may grant to a person other than the government patentee—Washougal & L. Transp. Co. v. Dallas, P. & A. Nav. Co., 27 Wash. 490, 68 Pac. 74.

50. Construing R. S. U. S. §§ 2396, 2397—Kirby v. Potter, 138 Cal. 686, 72 Pac. 338.

51. Where the government survey shows a meander line, and lots adjacent to a non-navigable stream are conveyed by number according to the government plat, the land between the meander line and high water mark is conveyed. Following the Iowa decisions—In re Valley, 116 Fed. 983.

52. Carr v. Moore (Iowa) 93 N. W. 52; Bryan v. Same, Id.

53. Security Land & Exploration Co. v. Burns, 87 Minn. 97; Same v. Weckey, Id. One holding title from the government to land in the south half of a section, the south section being the southern boundary, and the northern boundary being indicated by a meander line, cannot claim similar land lying between the meander line and the half section line on the theory that the lateral line is the northern boundary—Schlosser v. Hemphill (Iowa) 90 N. W. 842.

54. McBride v. Whitaker (Neb.) 90 N. W. 966.

55. Carr v. Moore (Iowa) 93 N. W. 52; Bryan v. Same, Id.

56. Such lands are owned as if accretions or relictions—Hanson v. Rice (Minn.) 92 N. W. 982.

57. Other calls, lines, etc., in a description may be resorted to if it is contended that a tree has been mistakenly designated as the northeast instead of the northwest corner—White v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1028. Where land is described as running to the top of a mountain, thence along the top of a mountain to certain steep rocks, thence along such rocks so as to include all stone that falls, an intention is indicated to convey only to the top of the mountain; and a description of an eastern boundary as being along the east bluff of the steep part of the mountain, and as running along the top of the mountain, indicates an intention to include land to the bluff—Weiant v. Rockland Lake Trap Rock Co. (N. Y.) 61 App. Div. 383. Where a call was for an outcrop of conglomerate rock, a ledge over one thousand feet in length which closes the boundary may be held to be the call, though there was another ledge two hundred feet long which did not close the boundary and was a spur from the large one—Miller v. Cure, 205 Pa. 168.

58. Johnson v. Harris, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 449, 68 S. W. 844.

59. Sufficiency of evidence to show boundary by agreement—Egan v. Light (Neb.) 93 N. W. 859. Acquiescence in a boundary line for the period of limitations establishes a practical location—Benz v. St. Paul (Minn.) 93 N. W. 1038. Where a boundary has been dealing, or superior knowledge of one party,[60] though the agreed boundary is not the true line;[61] but there must not have been a mutual mistake.[62] Grantees are also bound.[63] The question of establishment may be for the jury.[64]

Where one with knowledge of the true line allows another party to encroach and subject himself to expense, as would not have been done had the line been in dispute, a practical location may be established,[65] but it is not sufficient to establish a boundary by estoppel that a fence be built on what is supposed to be the true line.[66] A vendor who points out boundaries is estopped from disputing their location, the purchaser taking in reliance thereon.[67]

An adjoining owner may claim to the true line, though he has by mistake previously conformed to an erroneous one.[68]

The acts of a surveyor in accepting possession from a sheriff in a former suit do not create an estoppel on his employer.[69] An agreement to have an existing line resurveyed is not an admission of its incorrectness,[70] nor is abandonment of a survey shown by a petition for a resurvey to have the line actually run on the ground.[71]

§ 5. Establishment by arbitration, action, or statutory mode. Right of ac-

intentionally established by the adjoining owners and maintained for more than twenty years, it cannot be questioned—Wentworth v. Braun (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 702. Especially where a fence and subsequently a brick wall had been built on the same line—Wentworth v. Braun (N. Y.) 78 App. Div. 634. An injunction may be had against the removal of a fence on a line established for more than twenty years, and plaintiff is not restricted to a suit at law on the ground that the controversy involved a disputed boundary line, defendant having torn the fence down and erected a new one on plaintiff's land, claiming that it was on the true line—F. H. Wolf Brick Co. v. Lonyo (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 566, 93 N. W. 251. Occupancy in accordance with a fence recognized as a division line for more than ten years causes the line established to become the division line—Lawrence v. Washburn (Iowa) 93 N. W. 73; Clark v. Thornburg (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1056. Twenty-five years—Graham v. Gorman (Iowa) 93 N. W. 595. Twenty years—F. H. Wolf Brick Co. v. Lonyo (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 566, 93 N. W. 251. Where a brick wall is erected, supposedly corresponding to the line of a lot, and both parties acquiesce in the line established for seventeen years, they are bound, though there is a slight error and though the brick wall did not extend the entire length of the lot—O'Callaghan v. Whisenand (Iowa) 93 N. W. 579. Where after an agreement as to a division line between adjoining owners they hold in acquiescence therewith for fourteen years, the line becomes established and an adjoining owner is entitled to have his deed reformed so as to make the established line the boundary—Thiessen v. Worthington, 41 Or. 145, 68 Pac. 424.

60. Grogan v. Leike, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 59. An agreement that a hedge is a boundary line is conclusive as between the adjoining owners—Brown v. Johnson (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 49. A dividing line established by parol agreement, accompanied by occupancy in accordance therewith for more than the period of limitation, and the maintenance of a fence on the line, is binding on the parties and their successors—Dierssen v. Nelson, 138 Cal. 394, 71 Pac. 456.

61. Lynch v. Egan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 775; Egan v. Light (Neb.) 93 N. W. 859.

62. Where there has been an encroachment by a building resulting from a mistake as to a boundary line, a conveyance of a strip of land to the encroacher for the purpose of giving him title to the land occupied by his building does not amount to a practical location, both parties supposing they know the location of the true boundary line, and where the strip as conveyed contained a part of the lot already owned by the encroaching owner—Benz v. St. Paul (Minn.) 93 N. W. 1038.

63. Alexander v. Parks, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 2113, 72 S. W. 1105.

64. Though there is no conflict of evidence as to the agreement, where there is a conflict as to whether one party did not make false and fraudulent representations as to what were the true boundaries and a conflict also as to the advisability of land marks—Perry v. Hardy, 71 N. H. 151. Where after the purchase of adjoining tracts separately the owner digs a canal at a point other than the former division line, and there is evidence that he regarded the portion of land on either side as separate tracts and designated them by terms as implied in his will, the question of whether a new boundary was created is for the jury—Harper v. Anderson, 130 N. C. 538. Where an agreement to submit the location of a boundary to surveyors appointed by each of the parties is controverted, the question is for the jury—Francois v. Taylor, 71 N. H. 222.

65. Benz v. St. Paul (Minn.) 93 N. W. 1038.

66. In this case there was no showing that there had been a dispute or that it was known that there was an uncertainty as to the line—Peters v. Reichenbach, 114 Wis. 209.

67. Government subdivisions—Rowell v. Weinemann (Iowa) 93 N. W. 279.

68. Patton v. Smith (Mo.) 71 S. W. 187.

69. Hornberger v. Giddings (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 989.

70. Interrupting a claim of adverse possession—Baty v. Elrod (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1032.

71. Petition in 1808 by owner of a block of tracts to have lines run in compliance tion.—Proceedings for location of the boundaries of a common landing place cannot be resorted to for the purpose of determining its legal existence, though if disputed the boundaries may nevertheless be located without prejudice to the right to determine the existence.[72] Findings of the county surveyor in proceedings to establish boundaries are not binding if it appear from the facts that the boundary in question is not uncertain or unestablished.[73] There must be a request for a proper and legal survey and an opportunity for compliance therewith before the court may be asked to establish a line between adjoining owners.[74]

An application for the establishment of a boundary by public authorities may be required by statute to be in writing.[75] The jurisdiction cannot be objected to after an answer without demurrer.[76]

Burden of proof.—The presumption of the correctness of lines established may, by a lapse of time, become, if not conclusive, rebuttable only by clear and satisfactory proof.[77] If the government corners cannot be found, the burden is on the person seeking to establish them at a point other than called for by the field notes,[78] and so the burden is on one asserting that a stream mentioned as a boundary has disappeared and does not correspond to existing streams in the vicinity of the land.[79]

Admissibility of evidence.—Holdings as to the admissibility of particular classes of evidence, such as field notes, plats, surveyors' reports and opinions, are grouped below.[80] Evidence of the reputation of a boundary as existing as an ancient line is admissible[81] if not too recent.[82] with act of 1785—Lehigh Val. Coal Co. v. Beaver Lumber Co., 203 Pa. 544.

72. R. S. L. c. 48, § 102—Gardner v. Essex County Com'rs (Mass.) 66 N. E. 793.

73. B. & C. Comp. §§ 4907, 4909, 4910—Egan v. Finney (Or.) 72 Pac. 133.

74. Ayers v. Huddleston (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 60.

75. A proceeding under Civ. Code, § 3244, for the processioning of land may be dismissed for insufficiency of proceeding where there is no written application—Ballard v. Haines, 115 Ga. 847.

76. Bill to enjoin the removal of a line fence—F. H. Wolf Brick Co. v. Lonyo (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 566, 93 N. W. 251.

77. Where for thirty years a fence has been maintained on a line bordering a street, and the city authorities have permitted it to remain, though for twenty years they have knowledge of a shortage in the land originally platted—Corey v. Ft. Dodge (Iowa) 92 N. W. 704.

78. Knoll v. Randolph (Neb.) 92 N. W. 195.

79. Leonard v. Forbing, 109 La. 220.

80. For admissibility of a judgment in a prior suit, objected to on the ground that the line was not in controversy therein; that a corner therein did not correspond with the call in the patent, and because the call and the judgment presented a patent ambiguity, see Dillingham v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 791. It may be shown that a railroad track had been moved, where a surveyor locating the line testified that he had taken the center as a starting point, assuming that the track had been located in the center of the right of way and not moved—Anderson v. Wirth (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 254, 91 N. W. 157. Where there is a dispute as to a boundary line, evidence of establishment of a boundary by consent is not an attempted construction of the deeds—Dierssen v. Nelson, 138 Cal. 394, 71 Pac. 456. Where in a patent the intent was evident to exclude the Presidio military reservation, oral evidence to show the location of an ancient fence and cannon marking the boundary is admissible as is the testimony of engineers with plats to illustrate the location of these objects in connection with the premises in dispute, though there was an erroneous map attached to the patent apparently indicating the boundary—Wheeler v. Benjamin, 136 Cal. 51, 68 P. 313. A deed which does not locate any line or corner of the land in controversy is not admissible to show a boundary line, though in connection with evidence of marks made at the time of conveyance—Clark v. Gallagher, 74 Vt. 331. Where a boundary is described as a public road and two roads are shown to have been in existence when the deed was executed, either of which would have satisfied the call, proceedings of the county commissioners of the county to establish a road answering the description are admissible—Davis v. Blacksher Co., 131 Ala. 401.

Plats. The original plat of a survey is admissible and of great weight in determining the original location of lines and corners—Bell County Land & Coal Co. v. Hendrickson, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 371, 68 S. W. 842. Surveys and plats made in partition to which defendant was not a party are inadmissible on an issue as to boundary—Harper v. Anderson, 130 N. C. 538. A plat is admissible over an objection that it was made by persons without title where the lot in controversy was purchased with reference to the plat, and it was offered to show the location of the lot in connection with the shore line—Schwede v. Hemrich, 29 Wash. 124, 69 Pac. 643.

Field notes. The original field notes are Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence of a nonexpert as to the location of a line from existing government monuments may overcome that of surveyors locating a different line independent of monuments.[83] Miscellaneous holdings as to sufficiency in particular cases are grouped below.[84]

Questions of law and fact.—The location of a boundary line is a question of fact.[85] It is a question for the jury whether a line has been agreed on as one established by government survey or acquiesced in as a true division line.[86]

Instructions.[87]—An estoppel should not be submitted where the pleadings do not warrant it.[88] The jury may be instructed that a natural object clearly proved corresponds to the description in the writing.[89]

Verdict and judgment or decree.—A verdict which calls for a straight line and fixes three points, one of which is not in the line, is too uncertain to support a judgment.[90] A decree referring to a government survey specifically may be sufficient.[91] The judgment must conform to the verdict.[92] admissible in behalf of either party. Where the field notes have been introduced in evidence by plaintiff, defendant may show by the surveyor who ran lines contended for by him, that they correspond with certain calls of the original notes—Hamilton v. Saunders (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1069.

Surveys and opinions of surveyors. Where a branch was the boundary, though course and distance was also given, the opinion of surveyors that the line should be run by course and distance rather than by following the branch is inadmissible—Griffin v. Barbee (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 698. Evidence of an expert as to a different result obtained by a survey is proper to rebut evidence of another expert as to a survey which he had made from the same starting point—Clark v. Gallagher, 74 Vt. 331. Where the boundary of a lot is in controversy and its limits are fixed by a plat in which it is described by course and distance from a specified starting point, a survey made for the purpose of straightening streets beginning at an arbitrary point other than that specified in the plat is not admissible—Trotter v. Stayton, 41 Or. 117, 68 Pac. 3. The fact that on making a subsequent survey the surveyor began on the other end of the line will not cause it to be rejected—Shrake v. Laflin (Neb.) 92 N. W. 184.

81. Kentucky Land & Immigration Co. v. Crabtree, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 743, 70 S. W. 31.

82. Evidence that by reputation a certain tree was a beginning corner is inadmissible where the witnesses testify that they had not heard that it was such corner until after a date when a surveyor had been unable to make a resurvey without the assistance of the surveyor who had made the original survey in finding the starting point, such evidence being too recent and not ante litem motam—Westfelt v. Adams, 131 N. C. 379.

83. Baty v. Elrod (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1032.

84. McCulloch v. Patman (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1012. To show that a channel indicated by an original survey was not capable of location by either natural or artificial land marks—Shrake v. Laflin (Neb.) 92 N. W. 184. To establish that a fence was built on the line of an original survey—Gilman v. Brown, 115 Wis. 1. Evidence that a fence was observed to correspond with at least one of the stakes of an original survey is not overcome by measurements not connected with points established to have been on such survey—Gilman v. Brown, 115 Wis. 1. An identification of a section corner as a starting point by a county surveyor on examination of the ground and on sworn evidence will not be rejected in the absence of any showing of mistake or error—Shrake v. Laflin (Neb.) 92 N. W. 184. Evidence held to show that a corner was lost and the field notes inaccurate, authorizing commissioners to locate the lines from original government corners found elsewhere—Trinwith v. Smith (Or.) 70 Pac. 816. To establish that land was within a certain survey—Sherman v. King (Ark.) 72 S. W. 571. To show that a re-survey corresponded with an original survey—McGarry v. Runkel (Wis.) 94 N. W. 662.

85. Watkins v. King (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 524; Patterson v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1571, 71 S. W. 930. True location of a block of land is for the jury where plaintiff's evidence shows that it could be well located west of where it met calls for an old survey, and defendant shows that plaintiff's block could be well located by marks on the ground east of the present location—Lehigh Val. Coal Co. v. Beaver Lumber Co., 203 Pa. 544. Where a street is a monument, its existence at the date of the deed is a question for the jury—Hammond v. George (Ga.) 43 S. E. 53.

86. Clark v. Thornburg (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1056.

87. An instruction that the jury shall decide from the evidence whether meandered lines located by a government surveyor can be identified, where such lines indicate the margin of a certain channel, does not substitute the lines for the center of the channel as a boundary where the jury is expressly told that if such channel can be located its center must constitute such boundary—Shrake v. Laflin (Neb.) 92 N. W. 184; Mensen v. Same, Id.

88. An instruction that if defendant purchased land in reliance on a fence as a true line, then plaintiff was estopped from claiming that the boundary was elsewhere, should not be given, where defendant's answer does not allege that he purchased in reliance on the location of the boundary as evidenced by a fence erected by a former owner on the line as then surveyed—First Nat. Bank v. McDonald (Or.) 70 Pac. 901.

89. Miller v. Cure, 205 Pa. 168.

90. Dillingham v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 791.

Incidental relief and costs.—A decree in proceedings to determine division lines from a shore to a harbor line should not be accompanied by an injunction unless demanded by the circumstances.[93] Where the actual distance between remote corners varies from the length actually called for, the variance must be proportionately distributed between the several subdivisions.[94] Shortage in land platted will be distributed between the lot owners where there has been no adverse possession, each block being regarded as distinct if possible.[95] Costs in such proceedings should not be taxed to persons whose lines are not determined.[96]

Vacation.—Statutory proceedings to locate a boundary line cannot be set aside by the person bringing them because of failure to notify the parties or because of the omission of immaterial evidence by the surveyor or because of errors, and an independent action setting aside the report of a surveyor cannot be allowed because of failure of the party by reason of a mistake to perfect his appeal.[97]

§ 6. Offenses against land marks.—A wall used merely as a fence and which has not been mentioned as a monument in any deed is not within the meaning of statute punishing the destruction of monuments.[98]

BOUNTIES.

§ 1. Bounties to soldiers.—The soldier's additional homestead allowed by Rev. St. § 2306, is in the nature of a bounty.[1]

§ 2. Bounties on naval captures.—What is prize of war is elsewhere treated. Where the flag ship was within signal distance at the beginning and again before the end of the engagement, she is entitled to share.[3] What persons attached to or on board a vessel are entitled to share is treated in the notes.[4] One who was both fleet captain and commander of a vessel may share as both.[5]

BREACH OF PROMISE OF MARRIAGE.

§ 1. The promise.—A written agreement for marriage, signed and accepted by both, is binding on the woman though she does not agree, in words, to marry.[1] Disease rendering consummation impossible is the only excuse available for failure

91. It is not sufficiently definite to describe land as "commencing at the closing corner established by United States surveyor Alt, in May, 1900," if the field notes of the survey are on file in the office of the commission of public lands in the state, but the decree would be sufficient if the survey referred to were the one made pursuant to Act Congress, Aug. 18, 1894, and was specifically referred to—Egan v. Light (Neb.) 93 N. W. 859.

92. Where a verdict finds three points on a boundary not in a line, a direction of the court to a surveyor to locate a certain point and run a straight line and an entry of judgment in accordance with his report is not authorized as based on the verdict—Dillingham v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 791.

93. Proceedings under Gen. Laws, c. 266, in which the court did not decide injunction to be proper, and no fraud or intent to disregard the lines established was shown—Taber v. Hall (R. I.) 52 Atl. 686.

94. Entire line was in the same survey, and it was not to be presumed that the variance was caused by a defective survey of any part—Brooks v. Stanley (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1013.

95. Anderson v. Wirth (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 254, 91 N. W. 157.

96. Error to tax costs to persons made parties but whose lines have been previously determined—Taber v. Hall (R. I.) 52 Atl. 686.

97. Close v. Huntington (Kan.) 71 Pac. 812.

98. R. S. L. c. 208, § 78—Ropes v. Flint, 182 Mass. 473.

1. United States v. Lair, 118 Fed. 98.
2. "War."
3. Sampson v. U. S., 36 Ct. Cl. 194.
4. Men on board though their accounts were kept on other vessels; men temporarily detailed to other vessels are entitled to share; men transferred to shore hospital before the engagement are not, nor men subsequently attached—In re Engagement off Santiago Bay, 36 Ct. Cl. 200, 206. The rules formulated by the auditor Nov. 22, 1898, govern—In re Engagement off Santiago Bay, 36 Ct. Cl. 200.
5. Chadwick v. U. S., 36 Ct. Cl. 471.
1. Sponable v. Owens, 92 Mo. App. 174.

to fulfill a promise to marry.[2] A promise to marry to be fulfilled on the happening of a future event must be performed within a reasonable time with regard to the character of the contingency, and the lapse of time after the event together with conduct indicating intent not to marry amount to a refusal.[3]

§ 2. The action.[4]—Attachment will not lie in aid of a suit for breach of marriage promise.[5] Recovery cannot be had for breach of a marriage promise, setting no time for consummation, without an offer to perform or a request of the other party to perform,[6] but lapse of time after the time set to marry and conduct indicating an intention not to marry may render a demand for performance unnecessary.[7] Where defendant could not marry on a day set because of sickness, and, before he was able, plaintiff brought an action for breach which she discontinued, an offer to marry or a request of defendant to marry was necessary after discontinuance before bringing another action.[8] Seduction must be specially pleaded to be considered in aggravation of damages, and likewise the bad character of plaintiff to be considered in mitigation of damages.[9] Where there is proof that defendant owned property of value, his financial condition may be considered in determining what position in life plaintiff would have attained by marriage though the exact value of his property does not appear.[10] The pecuniary ability of defendant may be shown to show substantial injury resulting to plaintiff, and this may be accomplished by proof of his reputed financial ability.[11] Evidence of ownership of specific property by defendant is admissible where plaintiff alleges loss of valuable dower rights in his property.[12] Evidence of statements by plaintiff that she had been unduly intimate with another than defendant may be rebutted by her denial of the fact or the statement.[13] An instruction excluding consideration of "the result of any sexual relations between the parties" as an element of damages is not objectionable as excluding birth of an illegitimate child, though it excludes consideration of "sexual intercourse."[14] Where part of correspondence is lost and oral testimony thereof is given, the construction of a marriage promise contained therein is not for the court.[15]

BRIBERY.

Nature and elements of offense.—Accepting a bribe and agreeing to accept the same are distinct offenses.[1] Offer of money for release by one illegally arrested is not an offense.[2] The solicitation of a bribe is an offense though the person solicited refuses to give it.[3]

Indictment.[4]—Where the indictment alleges that money was offered it need not be alleged to be of value.[5] An averment of agreement by an officer to receive

2. Smith v. Compton, 67 N. J. Law, 548.
3. Birum v. Johnson, 87 Minn. 362.
4. Sufficiency of instruction giving consideration of plaintiff's financial circumstances to the jury in estimating plaintiff's damages—Herriman v. Layman (Iowa) 92 N. W. 710.
5. The demand does not come within Gen. Laws, c. 252, §§ 14, 17—Mainz v. Lederer (R. I.) 51 Atl. 1044.
6. Clark v. Corey (R. I.) 52 Atl. 811.
7. Birum v. Johnson, 87 Minn. 362.
8. Smith v. Compton, 67 N. J. Law, 548.
9. As to mitigating circumstances see Code, § 3593—Herriman v. Layman (Iowa) 92 N. W. 710.
10. Herriman v. Layman (Iowa) 92 N. W. 710.
11. Birum v. Johnson, 87 Minn. 362.
12. Smith v. Compton, 67 N. J. Law, 548.
13. Herriman v. Layman (Iowa) 92 N. W. 710.
14. Herriman v. Layman (Iowa) 92 N. W. 710.
15. Barber v. Geer (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 792.
1. And, accordingly, Pol. Code, art. 21, § 1879, was not repealed by Pen. Code, § 68—People v. Seeley, 137 Cal. 13, 69 Pac. 693.
2. Moore v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 521; Ex parte Richards (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 838.
3. People v. Hammond (Mich.) 93 N. W. 1084.
4. Indictment of legislator held not sufficient in respect to allegation that official action was to be influenced—State v. Meysenburg (Mo.) 71 S. W. 229. Indictment of po-a bribe on agreement that his action on a matter pending before him should be thereby influenced sufficiently alleges corrupt intent.[6] An indictment reciting that defendant knew that he would be called on to vote on a certain measure is not argumentative.[7]

Evidence and instructions.[8]—That defendant executed the agreement under which the bribe was received is admissible.[9] Evidence of conversations with one who acted as go-between are admissible, but not bribes received by co-officers of defendant,[10] nor the fact that accused made purchases.[11] It may be shown whether the thing given was regarded as valuable.[12]

BRIDGES.

The construction and maintenance of bridges as part of the highway and by the usual highway authorities,[1] the rights and liabilities of toll bridge companies,[2] and the duties and liabilities of railroad companies as to construction and maintenance of bridges over their tracks,[3] will be treated more fully elsewhere.

§ 1. Location and provision for public bridges.[4]—The sanitary district of Chicago, in diverting the Chicago River into artificial channels for drainage, was empowered to replace bridges rendered useless by the widening of the river.[5] A city may swing a bridge over the land of a private owner and, in consideration for the right, construct a vault under the street to be used free of rent by the owner during the existence of the bridge.[6]

§ 2. Construction and maintenance. A. In general.[7]—Villages are charged with maintenance of bridges within their limits and are not liable to taxation to aid towns in the building of bridges under a law exempting them from liability lice officer for accepting bribe to permit operation of confidence men held good—State v. Gardiner (Minn.) 92 N. W. 529. Omission of the word "English" before the word "sparrow" in describing the bounties with respect to which the bribery was alleged is not fatal—People v. Gorsline (Mich.) 94 N. W. 16. Indictment for offering bribe to sheriff to permit escape of prisoner held sufficient—Moore v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 521.

5. People v. Seeley, 137 Cal. 13, 69 Pac. 693.

6. People v. Seeley, 137 Cal. 13, 69 Pac. 693.

7. People v. Hammond (Mich.) 93 N. W. 1084. Variance: Between averment of money and proof of check is fatal but in respect to amount ($9,000 alleged, $8,966.28 proved) is not—State v. Meysenburg (Mo.) 71 S. W. 229.

8. Instructions: Instruction as to intent held to be covered by general charge—People v. Gorsline (Mich.) 94 N. W. 16. Instruction held to misstate an admission by defendant—People v. Gorsline (Mich.) 94 N. W. 16.

9. State v. Gardiner (Minn.) 92 N. W. 529. And see State v. Meysenburg (Mo.) 71 S. W. 229.

10. State v. Meysenburg (Mo.) 71 S. W. 229.

11. Evidence that one who was alleged to have bribed defendant to allow a house of prostitution to run without interference afterwards bought furniture is inadmissible—People v. Bissert, 172 N. Y. 643.

12. Where defendant transferred certain stock to the alleged bribe giver, the transfer being claimed by the state to be a mere blind, it was held that proof of the value of the stock was competent; that declarations of the alleged bribe-giver that he regarded it as worthless was admissible; that the amount received by another shareholder was not admissible—State v. Meysenburg (Mo.) 71 S. W. 229.

1. Highways and Streets.
2. Toll Roads and Bridges.
3. Railroads.

4. Constitutionality of c. 78, Comp. St. Neb., relating to the building of bridges over streams dividing counties—Cass County v. Sarpy County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 635.

5. Under Hurd's Rev. St. Ill. 1899, p. 327, providing for organization of the district to make an outlet for drainage and sewage through the Desplaines and Illinois rivers—Lussem v. Sanitary Dist., 192 Ill. 404.

6. Under Rev. St. Ill. 1874, c. 24, par. 62, Starr & C. Ann. St. Ill. c. 24, par. 284—Chicago v. Norton Milling Co., 196 Ill. 580.

7. Constitutionality of Pub. Laws Pa. 1899, page 231, providing for the purchase, maintenance, use and condemnation by the city of bridges over streams separating or dividing parts or districts of counties—Stegmaier v. Jones, 203 Pa. 47.

where they maintain their own bridges.[8] Where a law, charging the maintenance of portions of a bridge between two towns, upon one of the towns, is repealed by a law saving prior acts under it, the liability for maintenance is not changed.[9] In building a public bridge, a county should provide for whatever business may be fairly anticipated for the accommodation of the public in the vicinity.[10] Authority from the supervisors to construct a bridge continues for eleven years.[11] That the supervisors have not authorized construction of a bridge cannot be urged by a taxpayer where it was ordered by the proper city authorities.[12] The county and town boards cannot act jointly in making a contract for construction of a bridge.[13] A law authorizing taxation by counties to aid towns in building bridges, which does not apply to property in cities or incorporated villages maintaining their own bridges, is not unconstitutional as class legislation rendering taxation not uniform.[14] That sufficient means are not available to build a needed bridge will not prevent a recovery when such funds are available for materials furnished.[15] Under the law authorizing the fiscal court to appoint a bridge commissioner to superintend the construction and repair, one thus appointed holds his office subject to the right of the court to revoke the bond, remove him from office, or abolish the office.[16] Where county commissioners, representing that they had the right under the law, purchased bridges and gave orders for payment, the holders of such orders may bring an action for leave to remove the bridges unless paid for.[17] A bridge tax levied on all property in a ward is a local assessment, though it cannot be imposed without a vote of the tax payers of the ward.[18] One who leases oyster ground in a navigable river from a town cannot recover damages for eviction by reason of construction of a bridge by the town across the river over the oyster ground.[19]

The liability of a county to contribute for construction or maintenance of a bridge on a county line highway is purely statutory,[20] and a county need not contribute to the repair of a bridge over a stream on the line where the other county repaired the bridge in violation of a law regulating repairs.[21] One county, by suit, may compel an adjoining county to contribute for repair of a bridge across a stream on the county line without a previous contract,[22] but not unless such county has refused to enter a contract for that purpose where the plaintiff county has already made the repairs.[23] That a county allowed the construction of a bridge on its line without objection, and made approaches thereto, and that the bridge was used by its citizens, will not estop it nor its taxpayers from disputing a claim presented by the other county for contribution.[24] Allowance by a county board of a claim by another county for contribution to a line bridge will not estop the first county on

8. Under various sections of the statutes regarding maintenance of bridges by villages and towns—Battles v. Doll, 113 Wis. 357.

9. Under Laws N. Y. 1828, c. 21, § 5, repealing act of 1818, c. 91—In re Webster, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 560.

10. Seyfer v. Otoe County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 756.

11. Kundinger v. Saginaw (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 650, 93 N. W. 914.

12. Kundinger v. Saginaw (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 650, 93 N. W. 914.

13. Under Rev. St. Wis. 1898, § 1319, providing for payment of half the cost of bridges by the county on petition from the town—Johnson v. Buffalo County, 111 Wis. 265.

14. Rev. St. Wis. 1898, § 1319, construed in connection with Const. Wis. art. 8, § 1—Battles v. Doll, 113 Wis. 357.

15. Under Gen. St. Kan. 1901, c. 110, art. 12—Chicago L. & C. Co. v. Sugar Loaf Tp., 64 Kan. 163, 67 Pac. 630.

16. Ky. St. § 4320—Campbell County v. Trapp, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2356, 67 S. W. 369.

17. Lee v. Board of Com'rs of Monroe County (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 744.

18. Griggsry Const. Co. v. Freeman, 108 La. 435.

19. Hall v. Oyster Bay, 171 N. Y. 646.

20. Under Comp. St. Neb. c. 78, §§ 87-89—Saline County v. Gage County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1050.

21. Cass County v. Sarpy County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 635.

22. Under Comp. St. Neb. c. 78, § 89, amended April 1st, 1889—Cass County v. Sarpy County, 63 Neb. 813.

23. Under Comp. St. Neb. § 88—Saline County v. Gage County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1050.

24. Saline County v. Gage County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1050.

appeal from the allowance.[25] The supervisors of one of two adjoining counties had authority to appropriate money to construct part of a railroad bridge so as to make a passage for pedestrians and teams without letting a contract or taking a bond.[26]

A city must maintain suitable approaches to, and guards upon, bridges within its limits.[27] The county commissioners may repair a bridge over a navigable river though prohibited by law from building such bridges.[28] The highway commissioners in towns may employ a person to superintend the repair of unsafe bridges, and it is the duty of the town board on presentation of vouchers for his claim to allow a reasonable compensation, and in auditing such claim, the board is not restricted to proof submitted by the claimant, but may act on their own knowledge. The action of the board in rejecting the claim is not a bar to subsequent proceedings by the claimant to compel audit and payment.[29]

B. Injuries from improper or defective construction.—Townships are liable for repair of bridges, though built at the charge of the county by the commissioners and hence are liable for injuries resulting from neglect to repair,[30] though a town is not liable at common law for injuries resulting from a defective bridge.[31] It cannot be held liable for an injury caused by the negligence of the commissioners in constructing a temporary bridge on private property, under a license to replace a highway bridge carried away by a freshet,[32] nor for injuries resulting from undermining of the foundation of a bridge by a flood three years after construction without notice of such undermining, though the bridge was imperfectly constructed.[33] A municipality cannot escape liability for injuries from defects in a bridge resulting from natural decay because its officers did not have actual notice of the particular defect which caused the accident,[34] but notice to officers of a city that a certain bridge is defective and the failure of the city to repair will not make it liable for injury where the officers were not charged with care of the bridge.[35] It cannot be urged by a township that a defect causing injury was due to the original construction of a bridge by the county where the bridge had stood for nearly 60 years and the defect was due to the failure to repair the natural decay, nor can the township claim that such decay was a latent defect, it being negligence for the township to fail in precaution to discover the condition of the bridge.[36] Where by law, the town and not the commissioner of highways is liable for injuries from defective bridges, that the highway commissioner has no funds to repair a bridge is no defense to an action against the town for injuries resulting from its defects.[37] A highway commissioner is not excused from negligence in failing to place guard rails or barriers along a certain bridge because there were many similar bridges within the town requiring his attention, nor because this bridge and many others had been used for many years without protection.[38] Maintenance of a bridge

25. Saline County v. Gage County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1050.

26. Under County Government Act (St. Cal. 1891, p. 295) § 25, construed in connection with Pol. Code, § 2713, and County Government Act, § 25, subd. 35—Croley v. California Pac. R. Co., 134 Cal. 557, 66 Pac. 860.

27. Grant v. Brainerd, 86 Minn. 126.

28. Under Code Md. art. 25, §§ 3, 13—Bembe v. Anne Arundel County Com'rs, 94 Md. 330.

29. Under Laws 1890, c. 568, § 10, as amended by Laws 1895, c. 606, and Laws 1899, c. 84—People v. Town Board of Oyster Bay, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 309.

30. Under Act March 30, 1859 (Pub. Laws Pa. 309), which was extended to the particular county in question by act March 12, 1860—Whitmire v. Muncy Creek Tp., 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 399.

31. Mobus v. Waitsfield (Vt.) 53 Atl. 775.

32. Under Gen. Laws N. Y. c. 19, § 16, fixing the liability of towns for damages from defects in highways or bridges, a temporary bridge is unauthorized by law—Ehle v. Minden, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 275.

33. Pearl v. Benton Tp. (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 317, 91 N. W. 209.

34. Green v. Nebagamain, 113 Wis. 508.

35. San Antonio v. Ball (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 713.

36. Whitmire v. Muncy Creek Tp., 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 399.

37. Laws N. Y. 1881, c. 700—Lee v. Berne, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 214.

38. Pelkey v. Saranac, 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 337.

known to be too weak to support a load specified by law is prima facie negligence on the part of the highway commissioners.[39] That a traction engine together with a water tank weighed more than four tons will not prevent a recovery for damages resulting from the breaking of a bridge, where only the front wheels of the engine, which weighed less than four tons, were on the bridge at the time of collapse.[40]

A railroad company is not liable for injuries from defects in a bridge which it constructed across its tracks under a specific agreement as to the design with the borough council and which was accepted by such council,[41] but it cannot escape liability for failure to guard the approach to a bridge in a street on its right of way and leading to its crossing by reason of a contract with the city empowering the company to build a bridge, but rendering the city liable for its repair, where the bridge together with its approaches constitutes a part of the road way of a street as well as of the right of way. Both the city and railroad company are liable for injuries to travelers.[42] It is also liable for injuries from defects in a bridge over its tracks by reason of the failure of the town to notify the company of such defects as required by law.[43] A toll bridge company has the duty of exercising not only ordinary care in making a safe passage for travelers, but a degree of care nearly akin to that required of a carrier of passengers.[44] In order to recover for injuries received on a town bridge, plaintiff must be a traveler at the time and the injury must result to his person or property as a traveler.[45] One who went to the assistance of her husband and son, who with their vehicle had broken through a public bridge, and was kicked by the horses as they floundered, and was injured by falling fragments of the bridge, cannot be held as a matter of law not to be a traveler on the bridge at the time of the injury.[46]

Proximate cause of injury.—A town is not liable for injuries occurring on a defective bridge unless the insufficiency of the bridge is the proximate cause.[47] Where both a loose plank over a hole on a bridge and the absence of a guard rail apparently contributed to an injury, it is immaterial which was the dominating cause.[48] Where travelers are injured at night by the sudden fright and shying of their horse, whereby their vehicle is thrown over a high approach to a bridge, the want of a guard rail is the proximate cause of the injury.[49] A city is liable for injuries to persons leaving a draw bridge where the bridge tender's negligence in ascertaining their safety was the proximate cause, though the act of a third person in his employ co-operated to produce the injury.[50] Where a toll bridge company was negligent in failing to light their bridge, whereby a traveler was injured, that the negligence of another traveler concurred in the accident, will not prevent recovery from the company.[51]

Contributory negligence.—One was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law by passing through an unlighted bridge with knowledge of its condition.[52] One with knowledge of a hole in a bridge is not excused from vigilance in

39. Under Gen. Laws N. Y. c. 19, § 154, fixing the weight of a vehicle and load at four tons—Heib v. Big Flats, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 88.

40. Under Highway Law N. Y. 1890, c. 568, § 154—Vandewater v. Wappinger, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 325.

41. Smith v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 201 Pa. 131.

42. Sayles' Annual Civ. St. Tex. 1897, arts. 4426, 4438—Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Sandifer (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 461.

43. The liability of the company is absolute—Martin v. Sherwood, 74 Conn. 475.

44. Conowingo Bridge Co. v. Hedrick, 95 Md. 669.

45. Mobus v. Waitsfield (Vt.) 53 Atl. 775.

46. Mobus v. Waitsfield (Vt.) 53 Atl. 775.

47. Mobus v. Waitsfield (Vt.) 53 Atl. 775.

48. Strader v. Monroe, 202 Pa. 626.

49. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Sandifer (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 461.

50. This though the city is not liable for acts of such third person—Chicago v. O'Malley, 196 Ill. 197.

51. Conowingo Bridge Co. v. Hedrick, 95 Md. 669.

52. Conowingo Bridge Co. v. Hedrick, 95 Md. 669.

crossing though he had previously seen that the defect had been repaired.[53] A boy between six and seven years old, rightfully on a bridge in a city to which he was a stranger was not contributorily negligent in running from a man in the employ of the bridge tender, by reason of which he fell off the bridge and was injured.[54] A traveler knowing the defective condition of a bridge is contributorily negligent in forcing his way through the gates and attempting to cross whereby injury results.[55] For a driver of a milk wagon to sit on one of the cans is not negligence per se in crossing a defective bridge though he must use greater care.[56] One crossing a bridge with a vehicle and load in excess of the statutory weight thereby weakening it so that he sustained an injury in crossing the next day from the breaking of the bridge cannot recover.[57] In an action against a township for damages to a threshing machine by the breaking of a defective bridge, plaintiff was not negligent in crossing without examining the condition of the bridge, where it appears that his machine was below the statutory weight and of the sort in ordinary use in the vicinity.[58] A woman riding a bicycle on a township bridge in broad daylight with no obstruction ahead, and having the full width of the bridge, cannot recover for injuries resulting from her failure to properly direct her wheel whereby she was thrown into the stream and injured though there was no guard rail.[59]

Remedies.[60]—The thirty days' limitation applies to an action for injuries from a defective bridge though plaintiff alleges that he was mentally incompetent until the limitation expired.[61] The town in which a bridge over a railroad is located is not a necessary party to an action against a railroad company for injuries from defects in a bridge.[62] A notice by one injured from defects in a culvert or bridge to the town is a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action and must state that he will demand satisfaction.[63] After a finding by the jury in an action for injuries from a defective highway by special verdict that the highway was not defective, an answer in reply to another question that the town officers should have known of the existence of the defect and repaired it before any injury occurred did not render the verdict inconsistent.[64]

Pleading and evidence.[65]—A complaint for injuries by reason of defects in a bridge over a railroad maintained by the company need not allege that it was the duty of the company to repair the bridge or that it built or owned the bridge.[66] A complaint against a county for injury to live stock from a defective bridge must allege that it was a public bridge and that it was erected after passage of the act fixing the liability for such injuries.[67] The burden is on one injured to show no contributory negligence.[68] An allegation in an action for injuries from a defective

53. Smith v. Jackson Tp., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 337.
54. Chicago v. O'Malley, 196 Ill. 197.
55. Kane v. Yonkers, 169 N. Y. 392.
56. Smith v. Jackson Tp., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 337.
57. Heib v. Big Flats, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 88.
58. Whitmire v. Muncy Creek Tp., 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 399.
59. Beer v. Clarion Tp., 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 537.
60. Sufficiency of verdict in action for injury resulting from a defective bridge as consistent with the finding that the injury was the result of the accident and not negligence—Miller v. Casco (Wis.) 93 N. W. 447.
61. Under Comp. St. Neb. c. 78, § 117—Swaney v. Gage County (Neb.) 90 N. W. 542.
62. Martin v. Sherwood, 74 Conn. 475.
63. Lawton v. Weathersfield, 74 Vt. 41.
64. Miller v. Casco (Wis.) 93 N. W. 447.
65. Sufficiency of evidence in action for personal injuries from a defective bridge—Lenz v. St. Paul, 87 Minn. 85. Evidence of contributory negligence by one injured by falling off a draw bridge—Brennan v. Albany & G. Bridge Co., 170 N. Y. 588. Evidence of contributory negligence of a mother and daughter driving along an unprotected approach to a bridge in the evening—Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Sandifer (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 461. Evidence of negligence of a highway commissioner in failing to repair a bridge after obstruction by a flood—Lee v. Berne, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 214.
66. Under Gen. St. § 2673, requiring the company to repair and Pub. Acts Conn. 1893, c. 244—Martin v. Sherwood, 74 Conn. 475.
67. Under Act Ga. Dec. 29, 1888—Seymore v. Elbert County (Ga.) 42 S. E. 727.
68. Mobus v. Waitsfield (Vt.) 53 Atl. 775.

bridge that they resulted from the insufficiency of the bridge precludes any idea of negligence on the part of the town.[69] The question of the weight of a loaded vehicle, in an action against the town for the breaking of a bridge, is one of proof as to the weight together with the strain caused by the attempt to move the load on the bridge.[70] In an action against a town for injuries from a defective bridge, testimony of witnesses that they had suffered accidents in driving over the bridge may be admitted.[71] Where the law requires that a claim for personal injuries from a defective bridge should state, in a notice to the town, what part of the body was injured and plaintiff stated that the back of her head was injured, she could properly show that her head was bloody, that there was a bruise on the back of her head and that after the accident she suffered from headaches.[72]

Questions for jury.—The failure of a city to properly maintain barriers on an embankment on a public highway leading to a bridge,[73] contributory negligence in crossing a bridge with an engine and separator,[74] the negligence of highway commissioners in failing to place a guard rail or barrier on a bridge of a certain size,[75] whether the acts of a city bridge tender are the proximate cause of an injury,[76] and the negligence of a toll bridge company in failing to light their bridge by reason of which a traveler was injured in collision with another,[77] are questions for the jury. In an action against a toll bridge company for injuries while crossing an unlighted bridge by collision with a bicycle rider, the question of carelessness of the rider cannot be submitted to the jury where there was no evidence on that point. Mere absence of lights on the bridge cannot impute negligence to the company, that being a question for the jury.[78] In an action by an administrator against a county for injuries to his decedent while crossing a bridge with a threshing machine, the questions of the construction of the bridge and the proper use by decedent are for the jury.[79] In an action for injuries from a defective bridge, the question whether it was a bridge need not be submitted to the jury where there was no controversy on that point and the testimony showed that it was a bridge.[80]

§ 3. Penalties for injuries to bridges.—The penalty for injuries to a public bridge given by the law applies only to willful, not mere negligent, acts.[81]

BROKERS.

General principles of agency,[1] and agency in particular relations,[2] are treated under particular topics.

§ 1. Employment and relation in general.[3]—A person buying claims for him-

69. Vt. St. § 3490, providing for recovery of such damages in an action on the case—Mobus v. Waitsfield (Vt.) 53 Atl. 775.
70. Heib v. Big Flats, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 88.
71. Lynds v. Plymouth, 73 Vt. 216.
72. Lynds v. Plymouth, 73 Vt. 216.
73. Grant v. Brainerd, 86 Minn. 126.
74. Heib v. Big Flats, 66 App. Div. (N. Y.) 88.
75. Pelkey v. Saranac, 67 App. Div. (N. Y.) 337.
76. Chicago v. O'Malley, 196 Ill. 197.
77. Conowingo Bridge Co. v. Hedrick, 95 Md. 669.
78. Conowingo Bridge Co. v. Hedrick, 95 Md. 669.
79. Seyfer v. Otoe County (Neb.) 92 N. W. 756.
80. Lynds v. Plymouth, 73 Vt. 216.
81. Comp. Laws Mich. 1897, § 4160—St. Ignace Tp. Overseer v. Pelton (Mich.) 8 Detroit Leg. N. 842, 87 N. W. 1029.
1. Agency.
2. Factors, Insurance, Attorneys and Counselors.
3. Sufficiency of evidence of employment self is not a broker.[4] One receiving certain goods from another to effect their sale on commission is a mere broker, and the relation of debtor and creditor does not exist.[5] The listing of real estate of a wife by her husband and her acquiescence in such act and their agreement to pay commissions to the broker, together with part payment by the husband and a promise of the balance, sufficiently shows the broker's employment by the husband for his wife and her ratification of the act.[6] Where it appears that the broker asked the owner if he wanted to sell, and his price, stating that he had a party who might buy, and that afterward the broker made offers for the property, speaking of the prospective purchasers as his clients, he was the agent of the buyer and not the seller.[7] Whether a hotel keeper had impliedly employed a cigar dealer who dealt with him to act for him as a broker in the sale of his lands, as shown by certain negotiations between the parties and by the testimony of the alleged broker, is for the jury.[8]

A contract for services in selling lands is governed by the statute of frauds in the state where made.[9] A real estate agent cannot recover on a quantum meruit for selling real estate under oral employment in New Jersey, since the authority must be in writing,[10] and a real estate broker of a city of the first or second class must have written authority of the owner before selling real property, or he can recover no commission;[11] however this law has been held unconstitutional as depriving the citizen of liberty and property without due process of law.[12]

Mere acquiescence in a broker's statement that he had secured a loan for prospective purchasers does not show ratification of the broker's agency, no such agency being shown by the latter's statement.[13] Where a contract for the sale of lands by a broker is made without time, either party may terminate it in good faith at will,[14] or after a reasonable time for the completion of a contract by a broker, the principal may revoke the authority;[15] but where services rendered by a broker in one employment are in part the consideration for a second employment, the latter employment is coupled with an interest so that it cannot be revoked at the mere pleasure of the owner,[16] and a contract authorizing a broker to sell lands within a certain period, either in parcel or en masse, cannot be revoked by the owner during the period, where the broker was proceeding diligently in the sale.[17] A broker's contract authorizing the sale of a large tract of land and providing that it should be subdivided and that a portion should be reserved for sale on other terms does not (Hogan v. Slade [Mo. App.] 71 S. W. 1104; Benedict v. Pell [N. Y.] 70 App. Div. 40); of employment of agent for exchange of lands (Barton v. Powers, 182 Mass. 467); for the sale of stock (Kratt v. Hopkins [N. Y.] 77 App. Div. 634); of broker's employment in an action against the owner for commissions (Benedict v. Pell [N. Y.] 70 App. Div. 40); to show that an agent was employed by another to purchase an electric light plant (Hart v. Maloney, 114 N. Y. State Rep. 293); of evidence to carry to the jury the issue whether the president of a corporation and a trustee jointly, or one of them individually, employed a broker to sell lands of the corporation so as to be liable for commissions—Monk v. Parker, 180 Mass. 246. Sufficiency of revocation of employment of broker for sale of business property—Abbott v. Hunt, 126 N. C. 403.

4. Gast v. Buckley, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 992, 64 S. W. 632.

5. American Val. Co. v. Wyman, 92 Mo. App. 294.

6. McCormack v. McCaffrey (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 775.

7. Haynes v. Fraser (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 627.

8. Horwitz v. Pepper, 128 Mich. 688.

9. Goldstein v. Scott (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 78.

10. Under Gen. St. N. J., p. 1604, § 10 (Statute of Frauds)—Goldstein v. Scott (N. Y.) 76 App. Div. 78.

11. Under L. New York 1901, c. 128, § 640d, making a sale of real property without written authority of the owner, a misdemeanor—Whiteley v. Terry (N. Y.) 39 Misc. Rep. 93.

12. Grossman v. Caminez (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 15.

13. Howe v. Miller, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1610, 65 S. W. 353, 66 S. W. 184.

14. Taylor v. Martin (La.) 33 So. 112; Huffman v. Ellis (Neb.) 90 N. W. 552.

15. Collier v. Johnson, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2453, 67 S. W. 830.

16. Bird v. Phillips, 115 Iowa, 703.

17. McLane v. Maurer (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 693.

contemplate that all lands should be surveyed and subdivided before sale so that failure in such acts will authorize revocation of the contract.[18] A contract with a broker for the sale of lands to net the owner a certain sum may be terminated at will so as to prevent recovery by the broker for services thereafter.[19] The law requiring a real estate broker's license will not prevent one not a broker from receiving compensation for services in buying and selling real estate of others,[20] nor one who sells land for an owner under a special contract without holding himself out as a real estate broker.[21] A state privilege tax on resident merchandise brokers who merely solicit orders within the state for nonresident dealers, to be shipped by them, is a violation of the commerce clause of the federal constitution.[22] A law requiring a license on agents securing laborers to work in another state does not violate the federal constitution or interfere with interstate commerce.[23]

Agency for both parties.[24]—A lender who paid a loan to an agent of the borrower with whom the borrower had made arrangements to pay off mortgages on his property is not liable for money retained by the agent from the amount, since the latter was the representative of the borrower.[25] A real estate agent employed by an owner to sell lands on commission, after the conclusion of the contract, may become an agent of the purchaser to pass on the title, pay the price and receive the deed, if the purchaser knows of his former employment and a knowledge of an incumbrance on the land gained in such capacity will be binding on the purchaser.[26]

§ 2. Mutual rights, duties, and liabilities. Representative duties and authority.[27]—The authority of a real estate agent is limited to the terms given by his principal.[28] Under a simple agreement with brokers to find a satisfactory purchaser, the owner is entitled to determine the consideration and the details concerning payment.[29] The words "placed in the hands of 'a broker' to be sold" do not confer on the brokers the right to possession of the land but merely indicate appointment for sale.[30] A contract giving a broker "the sale of the following described property" for a certain period at a certain price, is one conferring an ordinary broker's authority, and will not authorize him to sign contracts of sale for the owner.[31] Where an owner offered his property to an agent to sell at a certain price, leaving the details of the settlement indefinite, the agent's authority extended only to production of the buyer and he could not complete the contract.[32] An agent for renting and collecting rents cannot authorize another to sell the realty for the owner.[33] When brokers authorized to sell land during a period of six months for certain terms, and afterwards until certain notice of withdrawal is given, found a purchaser able and willing to buy at the terms, they could contract to sell, allowing a reasonable time for the arrangements and his investigation of the title, and were not required to demand cash payment.[34] A broker employed to make a loan has no authority to collect principal and interest though payable at his office, nor will authority to collect interest authorize him to collect the prin-

18. McLane v. Maurer (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 693.
19. Abbott v. Hunt, 129 N. C. 403.
20. Raeder v. Butler, 19 Pa. Sup. Ct. 604.
21. Black v. Snook (Pa.) 53 Atl. 648.
22. Stockard v. Morgan, 185 U. S. 27.
23. Laws N. C. 1901, c. 9, § 84—State v. Hunt, 129 N. C. 686.
24. See post, § 4, for effect on right to compensation.
25. Henken v. Schwicker (N. Y.) 67 App. Div. 196.
26. Vercruysse v. Williams (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 206.
27. Sufficiency of notice to show ratification by a customer of an unauthorized purchase of stock by brokers on his account in good faith—Wolff v. Lockwood (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 569.
28. Balkema v. Searle, 116 Iowa, 374.
29. Kilham v. Wilson (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 565.
30. Raeder v. Butler, 19 Pa. Sup. Ct. 604.
31. Brandrup v. Britten (N. D.) 92 N. W. 453.
32. Balkema v. Searle, 116 Iowa, 374.
33. Topliff v. Shadwell, 64 Kan. 884.
34. Gilmore v. Bailey, 103 Ill. App. 245.

cipal, especially where the lender retains possession of the security.[35] Brokers who bought wheat for a customer on margins were not bound, after his death and the refusal of his representatives to act, to make the necessary advances when the market fell to carry the wheat instead of closing out as the contract provided.[36]

Good faith and diligence of the parties.[37]—Though a contract for the sale of lands by an agent is unilateral and invalid, an advertisement and listing by the agent is a sufficient partial performance to enable an enforcement.[38] A contract for the sale of lands providing that the owner shall fix the price will raise an inference in law that the price shall be fixed and the sale completed within a reasonable time.[39] An agent for the sale of property on certain terms, who learns of a better sale or exchange to be made, should make known the facts thereof to the owner before procuring a sale as authorized, and conduct otherwise amounts to a fraud.[40] An agent for the sale of lands without particular instructions is not guilty of fraud for failing to reveal the identity of a purchaser where the owner makes no inquiry regarding him.[41] The owner of lands is entitled to know who the prospective purchaser is for the purpose of consummating the sale, but a statement by him to the agent that if he fails to meet such purchaser at the time appointed for the completion of the same, the contract may be considered closed, is a sufficient waiver of his right to such information.[42]

Ratification by principal of unauthorized acts.—Ratification of a contract of sale by an attorney in fact under a power properly made will bind the owner whether he knew all the terms and conditions of the contract when it was made or not.[43] A principal who receives and retains the consideration from a sale by his agent on unauthorized terms and does not offer to return the same cannot recover damages from the agent for his unauthorized act in the absence of his fraud. Retention of the consideration for a reasonable time is sufficient to show ratification and no particular time need be shown.[44] Where a real estate agent violated his contract by taking deeds in the name of a third person receipt and retention of the deeds and abstracts by the principal do not amount to a ratification.[45] Retention of an account of a sale of stock by the owner without objection is not a ratification of the sale by the owner without authority, where, on being informed of the sale, he immediately responded to his broker that the sale was without authority.[46] Acceptance of the proceeds of a sale of her realty by an aged and incompetent woman did not amount to a ratification of the sale by her agent, especially where she did not know that the deed named the agent as grantee, and, on learning such fact, stated her intention to recover the land.[47]

Damages for negligence or unauthorized conduct.—Where an agent for the sale of realty takes a different security in payment than the one he was authorized to take, the measure of damages resulting to the principal from his act is the difference in value between the security taken and the one authorized, not exceeding the amount of payments covered by the security.[48] Where it appears that stock brokers accepted an order to purchase but failed to execute it, and it is not shown

35. Hefferman v. Boteler, 87 Mo. App. 316.
36. Demary v. Burtenshaw's Estate (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 365, 91 N. W. 647.
37. What constitutes a reasonable time within which a purchaser of stock may repurchase stock to replace that which should have been purchased by his brokers within the rule to recover as damages for negligence of brokers—Burhorn v. Lockwood (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 301.
38. Lapham v. Flint, 86 Minn. 376.
39. Tinsley v. Durfey, 99 Ill. App. 239.
40. Holmes v. Cathcart (Minn.) 92 N. W. 956.
41. Rank v. Garvey (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1025.
42. Simpson v. Smith (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 815.
43. Rank v. Garvey (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1025.
44. Lunn v. Guthrie, 115 Iowa, 501.
45. Cole v. Baker (S. D.) 91 N. W. 324.
46. Burhorn v. Lockwood (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 301.
47. Clark v. Bird (N. Y.) 66 App. Div. 284.
48. Lunn v. Guthrie, 115 Iowa, 501.

that they were to carry the stock for a rise, the measure of damages for the jury is the difference between the market value on the day set for purchase and the market value within a reasonable time after knowledge of the broker's negligence, during which the plaintiff might have purchased.[49] Where three persons are interested together in a speculative account with stock brokers, they may be regarded as partners by the brokers so that one is individually liable for the balance due on the account, and it may be set off by the brokers in an action against them by such person for damages in closing an account in which he was individually interested.[50]

Accounting to principal.—An agent in charge of the management and sale of the premises failing to communicate offers to his principal and purchasing for himself at a less price that the offers, who sells afterward at an advanced price, must account to his principal.[51] A land broker who purchases for himself, using a third person as intermediary, and sells at a profit, must account for such profit to the owner.[52] The relations of broker and principal for the purchase of stock on a margin are not those of pledgee and pledgor, but of parties to an executory contract for the sale and purchase of the stock, so that the broker is bound to deliver the stock purchased on demand and payment and may claim payment on the tender of the stock after reasonable notice.[53] Stock brokers cannot be compelled to return funds appropriated by them in their negotiations for their principal where it is not shown what their contract was nor that they were not entitled to retain the funds.[54]

Remedies between the parties.[55]—Causes of action by a purchaser of stock against a broker acting for him on margins without any intention that the sale should be completed by actual delivery may be joined, since they sound in contract.[56] On a general assignment by a broker, or on his becoming bankrupt, a customer need not make a demand and tender before asserting the breach of the contract, though the parties may regard the assignment as temporary and treat the bankruptcy as a breach if the trustee does not tender performance within a reasonable time, so that the customer's damages may begin at the date of the bankruptcy petition.[57] In an action for damages against an agent for the sale of land on unauthorized terms, if the principal pleads no fraud, he must show a return of the consideration received by him to the purchaser or an offer for such return, and the agent is not charged with the burden of proving that the principal received and retained the consideration.[58]

§ 3. Rights and liabilities of principal and broker as to third persons.—The holder of a note is not estopped to deny the authority of a broker to receive payment where the payor does not know of the holder's ownership.[59] One who pays the amount of security to another as agent for the holder, who is in possession of the

49. Gurley v. MacLennan, 17 App. D. C. 170.

50. Wolff v. Lockwood (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 569.

51. Cornwell v. Foord, 96 Ill. App. 366.

52. Merriam v. Johnson, 86 Minn. 61.

53. In re Swift (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 315; Hutchinson v. Dee, Id.

54. Sufficiency of complaint—Cowen v. Voyer (N. Y.) 79 App. Div. 638.

55. Pleading and burden of proof in an action by a principal against his stock broker for recovery of a balance alleged to be retained by the broker—Kratt v. Hopkins (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 634. Sufficiency of evidence to set aside conveyance of lands secured by an agent for an aged and incompetent principal (Clark v. Bird [N. Y.] 66 App. Div. 284); of evidence of ratification of a contract for the sale of land by the owner (Topliff v. Shadwell, 64 Kan. 884); of evidence to show that a contract made by the sales agent of a land company was binding on the company—Keen v. Maple Shade L. & I. Co. (N. J.) 50 Atl. 467.

56. Actions under Sts. (Mass.) 1890, c. 437, § 2, as construed in connection with Pub. Sts. (Mass.) c. 167, § 2, cl. 5—Ballou v. Willey, 180 Mass. 562.

57. In re Swift (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 315; Hutchinson v. Dee, Id.

58. Lunn v. Guthrie, 115 Iowa, 501.

59. Hefferman v. Boteler, 87 Mo. App. 316.

paper, takes the risk of showing the authority of the agent to collect.[60] Where a broker employed to procure and consummate the purchase of lands, learned, before the transaction was complete, that there was an outstanding mortgage which really covered the land but which by mistake was made to describe a different tract, and accepted the title and paid for the lands, the purchaser was bound by the agent's knowledge and the mortgage could be enforced against him.[61] Where an offer to buy cotton in bale made through a broker was subject to confirmation by the buyer and he insisted that the broker should give security, such condition was not a waiver of the customary requirement for confirmation and until such contract was so confirmed, no action could be maintained upon it.[62] Where a broker can sell only on confirmation by his principal and misrepresents a prospective sale to the latter so as to secure approval, there was no sale though the goods were delivered and the seller could recover goods retained by the purchasers though he could not recover for goods which the purchaser returned to the broker as in excess of the amount they ordered.[63] In an action for deceit in an exchange of property conducted by the broker of defendant, evidence that defendant complained of the contract made by his broker is sufficient to show the employment.[64]

§ 4. Compensation and lien.[65]—If it appears in an action for commissions that there were no acts for the brokers to perform, a promise for commissions is without consideration and void.[66] An executory contract by a real estate agent, to reduce his commissions in order to secure a sale, based upon a bona fide misstatement of an agent of the buyer that the sale could not be reached without reduction, is without consideration, and cannot be enforced by either party to the sale.[67] An oral offer to the owner, by the proposed purchaser secured by an agent, to buy the lands at the agreed price is sufficient under the Iowa statutes to entitle the agent to commissions.[68]

A real estate broker is entitled to commissions where it appears that, within the time limited, he found a solvent purchaser ready to make an enforceable contract at the seller's terms,[69] or at more favorable terms,[70] or, in the absence of express terms, at terms acceptable to the owner.[71] It must appear that the purchaser was secured by the broker or that he in some way aided the sale.[72] The rule applies to an exchange as well as a sale of lands.[73] That the principal did not know that the agent secured a purchaser to come to him will not prevent recovery, nor that the title to the property was in the name of the principal's wife.[74] Completion of a satisfactory contract with the principal is sufficient though it calls for part payment and the principal failed to collect the remainder.[75] A broker employed to secure a buyer for land at a "figure satisfactory" to the owner must comply with this condition before he is entitled to recover commissions.[76] Where it

60. Hefferman v. Boteler, 87 Mo. App. 316.
61. Vercruysse v. Williams (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 206.
62. Johnston v. Fairmont Mills, 116 Fed. 537.
63. Frye v. Keller (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 228.
64. Arnold v. Teel, 182 Mass. 1.
65. Sufficiency of compliance by broker with terms of sale as fixed by owner—Donly v. Porter (Iowa) 93 N. W. 574. Right to compensation for securing sale of a ferry—Gracie v. Stevens, 171 N. Y. 658.
66. Wolff v. Denbosky (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 643.
67. Dayton v. Am. Steel Barge Co. (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 223.
68. Bird v. Phillips, 115 Iowa, 703.
69. Ross v. Smiley (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 766; Locke v. Griswold, 96 Mo. App. 527; Phillips v. Dowhower, 103 Ill. App. 50; Sullivan v. Milliken (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 93; McCaffrey v. Page, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 400.
70. McCaffrey v. Paige, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 400.
71. Fairchild v. Cunningham, 84 Minn. 521.
72. Wilson v. Weber (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 800.
73. Hersher v. Wells, 103 Ill. App. 418.
74. Rounds v. Alee, 116 Iowa, 345.
75. Brady v. Foster (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 416.
76. Weibler v. Cook (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 637.

appears that two brokers were given the sale of certain lands, the one that first directed the attention of a purchaser thereto and visited the property with him was not entitled to commissions, unless it appeared that he was the procuring cause of the sale.[77] Mere introduction of a purchaser to the owner by an agent without authority who also rendered some assistance in furthering negotiations will not entitle the agent to commissions.[78] Where a purchaser was found by the owner and the brokers merely repeated an accepted proposition to the purchaser, after it had been made by the owner who closed the trade himself, the agents are not the procuring cause of the sale so as to be entitled to commissions.[79] If a broker does not have exclusive charge of the land, so as to prevent its sale by the owner, and was not instrumental in bringing about a sale, he cannot recover commissions.[80] If land is listed as a whole and the broker has authority to sell only in that manner, a sale by the owner of part of the property after the employment is terminated will not entitle the broker to a commission.[81] Where negotiations by a broker are brought to a definite proposition to the owner by a buyer, but the proposition is rejected and the negotiations abandoned, a purchase by the same person subsequently after the termination of the broker's authority, direct from the owner without fraud of the latter, will not entitle the broker to commissions.[82] Where the agent informed the owner, who was unable to understand English, that the contract, at the time of signature, provided that the agent was to have no commissions, he cannot recover commissions if the owner found a buyer without assistance.[83] The employment of a second broker by the first, on information from the latter, cannot be proven to defeat commissions for a sale of land.[84] Where an agent authorized to sell land at a certain price put the owner into communication with a purchaser, but the latter postponed the purchase and subsequently went to another agent who had authority to sell the same land and purchased at a reduced price, which was accepted by the owner, the first agent was entitled to a commission for the sale.[85] An agent who procured a purchaser willing to buy corporate property within the terms of his contract is entitled to his agreed commission though the purchaser demanded indemnity against certain suits brought against the corporation, of which he had no notice, and which were not noticed in the contract.[86] A broker is entitled to his agreed commission where he furnishes a building contractor with information whereby he enters into contracts for the construction of buildings for the principal.[87] If a promoter aided in negotiations with prospective purchasers of a street railway under a contract with the owners, the owners are liable for his compensation; and, where the contract provided for compensation if any of the negotiations with the prospective purchaser were completed, the owners cannot urge a change in the contract to prevent payment of commissions.[88] Where the broker is the procuring cause of a loan, he is entitled to commission from the one who authorized or ratified his employment for that purpose.[89] He must inform his client that a lender has been found or actually complete the loan in order

77. Bowser v. Mick, 29 Ind. App. 49.
78. McVickar v. Roche (N. Y.) 74 App. Div. 397.
79. Collier v. Johnson, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2453, 67 S. W. 830.
80. Buck v. Hogeboom (Neb.) 90 N. W. 635.
81. Frenzer v. Lee (Neb.) 90 N. W. 914.
82. Fairchild v. Cunningham, 84 Minn. 521.
83. Curtis v. Wagner, 98 Ill. App. 345.
84. Adams v. McLaughlin (Ind.) 64 N. E. 462.
85. Cunliff v. Hausman (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 368.
86. Injunctions relating to paving contracts to be assigned the purchaser in the course of the contract—Indiana Bermudez Asphalt Co. v. Robinson, 29 Ind. App. 59.
87. Kaestner v. Oldham, 102 Ill. App. 372.
88. Alexander v. Wakefield (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 77.
89. Sufficiency of evidence to show employment of broker to secure a loan and to show that the broker was the procuring cause of the loan—Williams v. Clowes (Conn.) 52 Atl. 820.

to merit his commissions.[90] There is no implied promise on the part of an owner to pay commissions to a third person who procured an exchange of lands through information from the broker employed to effect the exchange.[91] A broker who mails a letter accepting a proposition for the purchase of lands is complying with his contract so as to be entitled to his commissions even though the letter is intercepted by another before its delivery.[92] A condition in a contract between an owner and a broker that the commission shall be paid out of the first cash payment is not a condition precedent to the right to recover commissions since it does not mean that unless a cash payment is made no commission can be recovered.[93] Where a broker authorized to sell land for a certain price was offered a larger amount by the purchaser, who afterwards bought without the broker's aid, he could not recover the excess in the price from the purchaser but must sue the owner.[94] Where a land owner wrote a broker declining an offer of purchase made through him, and asking a larger price, which was declined, at the same time denying any contract for commissions on the sale if made, a sale through a third person to the same purchaser for a different price will not entitle the broker to commissions.[95] Where a loan broker fails to appear at the time specified for completing the loan and the papers are not prepared, the borrower cannot rescind his contract and deprive the broker of commissions, if the latter offers to perform the same day.[96]

Revocation of the broker's authority will prevent recovery of commissions for a sale effected thereafter, his efforts in this behalf being voluntary,[97] but if the owner permits an agent to act for him in completing a sale after notice of the termination of his contract,[98] or if the revocation is made after an able and willing purchaser is secured by the broker, he is liable for commissions.[99] Merely bringing parties to a sale together in the absence of a binding contract will not entitle the broker to commissions,[1] especially if the broker was entitled to commissions only if the land was sold, and his employer was in no way responsible for the failure of sale.[2] Where it does not appear that the parties to a proposed sale ever met on any terms or conditions as to payments of the price, the broker is not entitled to commissions where those conditions were a part of his contract though the purchaser offered to buy at the agreed price.[3] If a broker brings the parties to an exchange of property together, that the contract is made without notice to him,[4] or that the owner completed the sale[5] will not deprive the broker of compensation. If an owner accepts an offer on certain terms, the broker finding a purchaser may recover his commission, though the terms are indefinite.[6] If the broker sells on other terms than those given him by the owner, he cannot recover commissions,[7] as where he sold land for $17 less than the price set by the owner.[8]

The broker must show that a purchaser secured by him is able to complete

90. McLaughlin v. Whiton (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 838.
91. Dartt v. Sonnesyn, 86 Minn. 55.
92. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Davis (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 217.
93. Finch v. Guardian Trust Co., 92 Mo. App. 263.
94. The broker was bound to sell for the best price obtainable and account for all receipts except a reasonable compensation —Boysen v. Robertson, 70 Ark. 56.
95. Land Mortgage Bank v. Hargis (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 352.
96. Collier v. Weyman, 114 Ga. 944.
97. Fairchild v. Cunningham, 84 Minn. 521.
98. Dayton v. Am. Steel Barge Co. (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 223.
99. McLane v. Goode (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 707.
1. Pipkin v. Horne (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1000; Carnes v. Howard, 180 Mass. 569. An instruction that if he brought the parties together thereby beginning negotiations that resulted in a sale is misleading as not showing that he effected the sale—Bowser v. Mick, 29 Ind. App. 52.
2. Owen v. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 432.
3. Drake v. Biddinger (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 56.
4. French v. McKay, 181 Mass. 485.
5. Dean v. Archer, 103 Ill. App. 455.
6. Monk v. Parker, 180 Mass. 246.
7. Huffman v. Ellis (Neb.) 90 N. W. 552.
8. Howell v. Denton (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1002.

the contract, which included an exchange of lands, and a mere production of deeds is insufficient unless he shows that the purchaser held ownership to the lands which were the subject of the contract.[9] If the purchaser secured by the broker accepts the terms, the commission is earned though the purchaser fails to complete the sale and demands a reduction in the price.[10] Though a broker secured a purchaser and the terms were fully agreed upon and a deposit made, but no memorandum or receipt made between the parties, he is not entitled to commissions where the purchaser subsequently refuses to complete the contract.[11] That a contract for the sale of a mine was not capable of enforcement and was canceled by the parties will not prevent a recovery of commissions by an agent who found a customer according to his agreement.[12] Where an agent is employed to sell property for a certain price, all over such price to belong to the agent, and in case of withdrawal before sale, to receive a certain commission on the price of the property at that time, he is entitled to such commission on withdrawal.[13] A contract of sale with a purchaser secured by a land broker which provides for delivery on the first payment and, in case of default that the contract shall be returned to the owner, is a mere option and on failure thereof, the broker is not entitled to commissions.[14]

Sufficiency of performance.—Where a contract written by the broker representing the owner of lands contained a mistaken description, and included lands which he did not own, without his knowledge and consent, the broker is not entitled to commissions though the tract to be conveyed actually contained more than the amount specified.[15] Where an agent to sell lands was under verbal authority, the principal cannot object, in an action for commissions, that an acceptance by a purchaser was insufficient because it called for a written agreement warranting a perfect title and an adjustment of rent and interest details since such agreement was necessary to a binding contract.[16] Where an owner agreed to pay another a commission for obtaining a tenant for his building, and after unsuccessful efforts by the agent, another agent of the owner secured a tenant on different terms from those offered by the first agent, without any participation of the latter, he was not entitled to commissions.[17] Where a broker sold goods at a higher price than set by the owner and part of the order was filled by the latter before revocation of the sale by the buyer, and subsequently the buyer renewed the contract at a lower price, the broker was entitled to commissions on the whole amount of goods.[18] An agreement with a broker to accept a loan on property and pay commissions from the proceeds of the loan will not render his employer liable, where the title is rejected by the lender and the loan refused.[19] Where the commission of a loan broker is to be deducted from the loan on the day of closing, the principal is not liable for the commission, if his title is rejected and the loan refused by the lender.[20] Where the trustees of an estate furnished a perfect record title for the security of a loan which they had employed an agent to secure for them on commissions, but the agent failed to procure the loan because the lender declined to accept the title, the agent was not entitled to commissions.[21] The owner's refusal to complete a purchase will not prevent recovery

9. Hersher v. Wells, 103 Ill. App. 418.
10. Michaelis v. Roffmann (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 830.
11. Kronenberger v. Bierling (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 817.
12. Mattes v. Engel, 15 S. D. 330.
13. Schlange v. Lennox, 101 Ill. App. 88.
14. Arthur D. Jones & Co. v. Eilenfeldt, 28 Wash. 687, 69 Pac. 368.
15. Scott v. Gage (S. D.) 92 N. W. 37.
16. Ross v. Smiley (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 766.
17. Henkel v. Dunn (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 735.
18. Edward H. Everett Co. v. Cumberland Glass Mfg. Co., 112 Wis. 544.
19. Hess v. Eggers (N. Y.) 38 Misc. Rep. 726.
20. Hess v. Eggers (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 845.
21. Marmaduke v. Martin, 90 Mo. App. 629.

of commission where the broker has secured a purchaser ready and willing to buy on the terms offered,[22] though the commission consists of a percentage of the price to be obtained.[23] That the owner was at liberty to sell and had given another an option on the property, which either party thereto might revoke at any time, will not relieve him of liability for commission.[24] That his employer does not own the lands to be sold and cannot secure the title will not prevent recovery of commissions, where he secured a purchaser satisfactory in every way without knowledge of these facts;[25] and where he brought a purchaser able and willing to buy on the owner's terms, he is entitled to compensation though the sale is not completed on such terms owing to the misrepresentations of the owner as to the property.[26] Where the owner of lands calls off negotiations by his broker for a sale, because of litigation between him and the prospective purchaser, a subsequent sale by the owner to such purchaser in settlement of the litigation will not entitle the broker to commissions.[27] An owner who authorized a broker to sell land for a certain price on a certain cash payment and balance on delivery of title, but refused to complete the sale because the price was insufficient, exclusive of commissions, was estopped to assert afterward that he was not bound to pay commissions because the agent did not comply with his instructions as to payment of price.[28] Where an executor employs an agent to secure a loan at a certain commission, and the agent produces a lender able and willing to make the loan, but he declines because the executor does not have authority to execute the mortgage on the lands of the estate, the agent may recover his commission.[29] A loan broker who secured a party willing to make the loan within his terms but was prevented from completing the contract on account of a cloud on the title to the land which was to be made the security, and the borrower did not complete the title until finally conditions had changed so that the lender declined to make the loan, is nevertheless entitled to commissions.[30]

That the owner in his agent's presence modified the terms of the purchaser's proposal as to the method of payment will not prevent the recovery of commissions by the agent,[31] as, a change in the price to which the owner agreed,[32] or a change in the contract whereby an exchange of lands instead of a sale was effected,[33] or a change in the property so that other property was received.[34] Where the broker brought the parties to a contract together and by negotiations between themselves they effected an exchange of property different from that which was contemplated by the broker, he is entitled to commissions if he stood ready to render any services necessary to effect the exchange and his conduct was the efficient cause which produced the result.[35] If the owner makes a new condition for compliance with a sale effected by his authorized broker to an able and willing purchaser, the agent is entitled to commissions though the transaction fails.[36] Where a landowner sold a larger tract of land to a purchaser secured by a broker than was intrusted to

22. York v. Nash (Or.) 71 Pac. 59; Bird v. Phillips, 115 Iowa, 703; Thain v. Philbrick (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 829; Gresham v. Connally, 114 Ga. 906; Sullivan v. Milliken (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 93; Hersher v. Wells, 103 Ill. App. 418.

23. Stauffer v. Linenthal, 29 Ind. App. 305.

24. York v. Nash (Or.) 71 Pac. 59.

25. Monk v. Parker, 180 Mass. 246.

26. Veatch v. Norman, 95 Mo. App. 500.

27. Taylor v. Martin (La.) 33 So. 112.

28. Donly v. Porter (Iowa) 93 N. W. 574.

29. Fullerton v. Carpenter (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 98.

30. Clark v. H. G. Thompson Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 720.

31. Sale of street railway secured by agent—Alexander v. Wakefield (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 77; Huntemer v. Arent (S. D.) 93 N. W. 653.

32. McLane v. Goode (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 707.

33. Rabb v. Johnson, 28 Ind. App. 665.

34. French v. McKay, 181 Mass. 485.

35. French v. McKay, 181 Mass. 485.

36. McQuillen v. Carpenter (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 595.

37. Veatch v. Norman, 95 Mo. App. 500.

the broker, and at a less price, before a reasonable time was given for completion of the sale begun by the broker, the latter was entitled to a reasonable compensation for services rendered.[37] A broker who is promised certain commissions for a sale at not less than a certain price, and certain extra commissions and compensation for his services if the property is sold by the owner, is entitled to the latter compensation where he has performed his duties, though the owner sells on his own account for less than the agreed price.[38] Modification of a contract for sale of lands, made by a broker employed to exchange all or a part of his principal's lands, will not affect the right to commissions where arranged by the principal himself and made necessary by conditions beyond the broker's control.[39] A broker employed to sell for a specified sum, or less if accepted by the owner in writing, on a condition that during a certain time the owner will not sell except through the broker, or, if he does, will pay full commissions, can recover commissions on a sale by the owner during the time, though the owner referred the broker to the purchaser and though the amount received was less than the amount specified.[40] That one who sold a mine as agent was afterwards made superintendent by the purchaser and secured a modification of the contract will not prevent the recovery of commissions.[41] That a lessee of convict labor releases a sublessee from a contract made for him by an authorized agent, and accepts a contract at a sum which gives the agent no commission under his contract, will not prevent recovery of the agreed commission.[42] Where a contract with a broker for the sale of cattle allowed to him all he should receive above a certain price, he cannot recover commissions, though he secured a purchaser, where the owner took up the negotiations and sold the cattle to the purchaser at a reduced price.[43]

Effect of fraud or bad faith.—A broker who had an interest in the contract of sale, in order to recover commissions, must show that he acted in good faith.[44] A broker employed to sell lands, at a fixed price and under a certain condition, who sells under like terms to a purchaser without informing his employers cannot recover commissions from them.[45] Brokers acting for a guardian cannot recover commissions, where it appears that one of them was guilty of bad faith in attempting to lower the price of the property at the sale secured by the order of court in partition proceedings.[46] Where an agent undertook to sell land for a certain price, any amount above that to be his commission and he induced his employer to agree to sell for a lower price without disclosing the fact that he might obtain more and then sold for a price much above the first agreed price, the employer was entitled to recover the amount of the reduction from the agent.[47] Where a broker secured a purchaser for lands and immediately telegraphed and wrote to the owner concerning such purchaser, who also sent a message to the owner though he intercepted it before it was received, there was no negligence on the part of the broker to notify the owner of the sale so as to forfeit his right to commissions though the land had been sold, before the notice was received, to another purchaser.[48]

Acting for both parties.—Acting for the other party without knowledge of his principal will destroy the broker's right to commission,[49] and the principal may

38. Raeder v. Butler, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 604.
39. Blair v. Slosson, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 403.
40. Gregory v. Bonney, 135 Cal. 589, 67 Pac. 1038.
41. Mattes v. Engel, 15 S. D. 330.
42. The agent was to have all excess over a certain price per convict as commission—Bush v. Mattox, 116 Ga. 42.
43. Frey v. Klar (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 211.
44. Buck v. Hogeboom (Neb.) 90 N. W. 635.
45. Linderman v. McKenna, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 409.
46. DeArmit v. Milnor, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 369.
47. Ballinger v. Wilson (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 488.
48. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Davis (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 217.
49. Linderman v. McKenna, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 409.

show that, though the sale took place as alleged, the broker, while acting for him and without his consent, acted for the other party and received commissions for such services;[50] but if the agent informed both parties that he would charge them commissions to be paid equally by them, to which both agreed, both are liable.[51] If the broker was not intrusted with discretion as to terms of sale, an arrangement between him and the purchaser regarding compensation will not prevent recovery of commissions from the owner.[52] A broker acting for one party cannot show, in an action for compensation from the other, that there was a general custom in acting for both parties for brokers to charge commissions of each.[53] A real estate broker carrying on negotiations for a lease in the name of the tenant cannot claim commissions from the landlord.[54] A broker who was not an intermediary to bring the parties together, but who took a contract from the owner to himself, refusing to disclose the purchaser and receiving a commission from the latter, neither of the parties knowing that the other was charged a commission, cannot recover a commission from the owner.[55] Where a broker in charge of the property of two owners tried to effect an exchange with the knowledge of one but not of the other that he was representing both parties, their acts in completing the contract, after the other had repudiated the agency on notice of the double representation, amounted to a ratification of the agent's acts so as to render the one liable for commissions who contracted with knowledge of the double agency.[56]

Accrual and amount of commissions.—The right to commission accrues when an acceptable contract is completed by the principal.[57] Where a broker's contract called for payment of commissions for the sale of land out of the purchase money as paid, the whole commissions became due on confirmation of a foreclosure sale, under the purchase money mortgage, at which the vendor bid in the property for the full unpaid balance and costs.[58] Where a land agent induced an owner to fix a net price and on the representation of the sale as to a third person, he cannot purchase so as to realize a greater profit than a reasonable commission.[59] An agreement for commissions in a certain amount, to cover fees, attorney's charges, and expenses, cannot be ground for a judgment for the full amount, where performance was prevented by reason of the owner's defective title.[60] $112,500 was not an excessive commission in selling a ferry for $4,500,000.[61] A contract between an owner and real estate brokers whom he owed for services, recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds, by which he agrees to give them exclusive control of a sale of lands from the proceeds of which they were to be paid, gives the brokers a lien on the proceeds, and where the owner reserved the right to fix the price but afterwards refused to comply and executed mortgages on the property, the debt became due and the lien attached.[62]

Actions for compensation.[63]—A broker may sue a purchaser who has failed to carry out his contract with the vendor thereby destroying the right to commissions,

50. Wolff v. Denbosky (N. Y.) 36 Misc. Rep. 643.
51. Lamb v. Baxter, 130 N. C. 67.
52. Sale of ferry—Gracie v. Stevens, 171 N. Y. 658.
53. Dartt v. Sonnesyn, 86 Minn. 55.
54. Callaway v. Equitable Trust Co., 67 N. J. Law, 44.
55. Horwitz v. Pepper, 128 Mich. 688.
56. Casady v. Carraher (Iowa) 93 N. W. 386.
57. Brady v. Foster (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 416.
58. Crane v. Eddy, 191 Ill. 645.
59. Merriam v. Johnson, 86 Minn. 61.
60. Gatling v. Central Spar Verein (N. Y.) 67 App. Div. 50.
61. Gracie v. Stevens, 171 N. Y. 658.
62. Tinsley v. Durfey, 99 Ill. App. 239.
63. Sufficiency of complaint by real estate broker for commissions (Adams v. McLaughlin [Ind.] 64 N. E. 462); of amended petition in an action for commissions for the sale of land its effect as changing the cause of action so as to constitute a departure—Stewart v. Van Horne, 91 Mo. App. 647. Sufficiency of evidence in action for commissions (Kratt v. Hopkins [N. Y.] 77 App. Div. 634; Benedict v. Pell [N. Y.] 70 App. Div. 40; Monk v. Parker, 180 Mass. 246;

though the broker agreed to look to the vendor for commissions.[64] Where one desiring to purchase realty employs an agent to secure it and afterward employs another without the knowledge of the agent who makes the purchase and receives the commission, the agent has no remedy against the third person to recover the commissions but his remedy is against his employer.[65]

The declaration in an action for commissions must allege either an actual sale or that plaintiff secured a purchaser, within the time limited, who was able and willing to buy on the terms stated and that the sale was prevented by the owner;[66] and in an action for commissions on a loan, the complaint must show that the borrower knew that a lender had been found or that the loan was actually secured.[67] An answer in an action to recover commissions is insufficient, where it admits the contract and the services of the agent, but attempts to show that the latter was guilty of fraud in persuading the owner to trade for other property of less value while failing to show that such property was of less value than the land or stating facts showing the fraud.[68] A common count stating that a broker performed services for another to the value of $3,000 is sufficient to sustain a finding that an employer agreed to pay the broker the usual commission of one per cent on a loan of $300,000 and that this was the reasonable value of the broker's services.[69] A broker suing on a contract for services will not be denied commissions according to the facts as proved because his petition asks for a particular amount.[70] In an action for commissions for the sale of land, the owner is entitled to show what effect the acts of other agents had upon the sale before and after the employment of the plaintiff.[71] In an action to recover commissions for the exchange of lands, which defendant should convey when leave was obtained by the court, plaintiff need not show that such leave was obtained, that the owner still held the property, and that

Rutherford v. Simpson [Minn.] 92 N. W. 413); in action to recover commissions for securing a loan (Faulkner v. Cornell, 114 N. Y. State Rep. 526); in action for recovery of commissions for securing a tenant (Clark v. Dayton, 87 Minn. 454); in action for commissions for sale of land to show the employment and that the agent was the broker and procured the sale though it was closed through another agent (Hogan v. Slade [Mo. App.] 71 S. W. 1104); of evidence of approval by the owner of a contract for sale of goods made by his agent in order to entitle the latter to commissions (Edward H. Everett Co. v. Cumberland Glass Mfg. Co., 112 Wis. 544); in action for commissions for sale of land to warrant a finding that the agreement between the parties contemplated a finding of a purchaser by the broker rather than a sale (Rounds v. Allee, 116 Iowa, 345); in action for commissions to show that the broker secured a purchaser ready and able to buy on terms acceptable and that the sale failed through the owner's fault (Huntemer v. Arent [S. D.] 93 N. W. 653); of evidence of employment of agent to secure exchange of property so as to entitle him to commissions (Barton v. Powers, 182 Mass. 467); of evidence to show that the broker's authority ceased before sale and that his efforts did not produce the sale (Fairchild v. Cunningham, 84 Minn. 521; to show that a broker suing for commissions on sale of land was the efficient cause of the acceptance of defendant's offer by the prospective purchaser (Summers v. Carey [N. Y.] 69 App. Div. 428); to show that the broker's employment to sell continued until completion of the sale (Diamond v. Wheeler, 114 N. Y. State Rep. 416); to show an agreement to pay a reasonable commission for services (Hart v. Maloney, 114 N. Y. State Rep. 293); to show fraud in representations by the broker so as to warrant the purchaser in refusing to buy and deprive the broker of his commissions (Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 72 S. W. 217); of evidence to carry to the jury the question whether the plaintiff broker had induced the purchase of lands so as to entitle him to commissions (Rounds v. Allee, 116 Iowa, 345); to carry to the jury the issue whether an owner of goods prevented an exchange by an authorized agent so as to render him liable for the agent's commissions (Stauffer v. Linenthal, 29 Ind. App. 305); of evidence to warrant directing a verdict for the owner in an action against him for commissions—McDermott v. Mahoney (Iowa) 93 N. W. 499. Sufficiency of instructions in action by real estate broker for commissions—Kesterson v. Cheuvront (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 1091.

64. Livermore v. Crane, 26 Wash. 529, 67 Pac. 221.

65. Adams v. Dieren, 92 Mo. App. 129.

66. Sullivan v. Milliken (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 93.

67. McLaughlin v. Whiton (N. Y.) 37 Misc. Rep. 838.

68. Rabb v. Johnson, 28 Ind. App. 665.

69. Williams v. Clowes (Conn.) 52 Atl. 820.

70. Veatch v. Norman, 95 Mo. App. 500.

71. Smiley v. Bradley (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 696.

it was possible for him to complete the trade, unless there was bad faith or fraud on the part of the owner.[72] Evidence that a broker procured money at the request of another and on his promise to pay commissions is not a variance from an allegation that the broker procured a loan for him.[73] On an allegation of performance of a contract by a broker for a loan for his principal to be secured by a mortgage on his property, the agent cannot prove the failure to complete performance because of defects in the principal's title.[74]

The burden of proof is on a landowner who alleges, in defense of an action for commissions, that, after he made a sale, the broker procured a sale by fraud.[75] Where the owner of lands in an action by the broker for commissions bases his defense on a misrepresentation of the land by the broker so that the prospective purchaser refused to buy, he must show in what way the land varied from the broker's description so it may be determined whether or not the variation is material.[76] Where the broker finds a purchaser whose offer is accepted it will be presumed, in an action for commissions, that the latter is able to complete the contract and the burden is on the owner to show the contrary.[77] The buyer of a street railway, sold by a promoter for the owners, may testify in an action for commissions by the promoter as to the truth of the representations made to him by the promoter regarding the earning capacity of the road.[78] Where the owner refused to complete a sale to a purchaser secured by the broker, the purchaser may testify in an action by the broker for commissions that when he was introduced to the owner he was ready and willing to buy on the terms fixed, and that he so stated to the owner, and evidence is also admissible that when the broker introduced the purchaser to the owner he refused to sell, and, when the broker claimed his commissions, stated that he would rather pay the commissions than lose a certain price per acre on the land.[79] It is immaterial in an action for commissions on a sale of land that the owner had other agents where it is not contended that they were instrumental in the sale.[80] Conversations between the broker and proposed purchaser in the absence of the owner of lands cannot be introduced in an action by the broker against the owner for commissions on the sale.[81] In an action by an agent for commissions for securing a loan on realty, evidence that the loan had been twice refused on account of defects in defendant's title, and that lis pendens existed, is insufficient to show a defective title, where it does not appear that they constituted a cloud on the title when the loan was refused.[82] Where an owner being sued by a broker for commissions introduced a complaint in another action by the broker against the purchaser of the lands for damages for refusing to carry out the sale, a stipulation made by the parties to that action filed in court by which the broker acknowledged the receipt of a certain amount in full of all demands, is properly admitted in evidence.[83]

Trial and instructions.—An instruction cannot be given which assumes a contract of employment when that issue is in conflict and is separately submitted.[84] The jury in an action for commissions for the sale of land should not be in-

72. Carnes v. Howard, 180 Mass. 569.
73. Williams v. Clowes (Conn.) 52 Atl. 820.
74. Gatling v. Central Spar Verein (N. Y.) 67 App. Div. 50.
75. Stem v. Whitney, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 2179, 66 S. W. 820.
76. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Davis (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 217.
77. Stauffer v. Linenthal, 29 Ind. App. 305.
78. Alexander v. Wakefield (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 77.
79. McDermott v. Mahoney (Iowa) 93 N. W. 499.
80. Rounds v. Alee, 116 Iowa, 345.
81. Rutherford v. Simpson (Minn.) 92 N. W. 413.
82. Gatling v. Central Spar Verein (N. Y.) 67 App. Div. 50.
83. Davies v. Thomas, 87 Minn. 301.
84. Casady v. Carraher (Iowa) 93 N. W. 386.

structed that they are not bound by any rule as to compensation, since the rule in the absence of contract is the usual commission in such cases or a fair compensation under the facts.[85] Where the evidence as to the employment of a broker is conflicting in an action for commissions, an instruction that he may recover, if he procured the sale, is erroneous as taking the question of employment from the jury.[86] Where the parties to an action for commissions differed as to the terms of the contract, its terms must be left to the jury.[87] Where the evidence is conflicting upon the issue whether a broker had the exclusive right to the sale of certain land, the question should be presented to the jury;[88] and on contradictory testimony, the question whether there was a sale or whether the agent acted in good faith is for the jury.[89] Where the evidence appears undisputed that an owner agreed to the price at which an agent sold different tracts of land, the jury cannot find for the owner as to any of the tracts.[90] The question whether the plaintiff in an action for commissions was a real estate broker is properly submitted to the jury, where a written contract is produced by which the plaintiff was to sell lands belonging to defendant for commissions.[91] Whether the parties to a sale of land intended that a memorandum, specifying the terms and executed by the owner alone, should be a contract between them was a question of fact so that its delivery was not conclusive as entitling the broker to commissions as for a completed sale.[92] Whether owners of property had so acquiesced in a contract by a broker for its sale as will preclude their setting up its invalidity as a defense to an action for commissions is a question for the jury.[93] Evidence that a broker suing for commissions secured a purchaser and that the landowner admitted by letter that a sale had been made is sufficient to send the completion of the contract as a question to the jury,[94] and evidence that certain brokers were employed by the owners to sell lands on certain terms and that they signed the agreement of sale as agents of the owner will carry the question of employment to the jury, though the owner denies such employment.[95] Where there was evidence to show, in an action for commissions in effecting the exchange of lands, that defendant promised to pay a compensation beyond the agreed commission if he found the exchange satisfactory, and that he found it satisfactory, the issue is properly submitted to the jury.[96]

BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS.

§ 1. The contract, sufficiency and interpretation.[1]—An agreement to furnish

85. Hartman v. Warner (Conn.) 52 Atl. 719.
86. Benedict v. Pell (N. Y.) 70 App. Div. 40.
87. Merriam v. Johnson, 86 Minn. 61.
88. Black v. Snook (Pa.) 53 Atl. 648.
89. McCaffrey v. Page, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 400.
90. McLane v. Goode (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 707.
91. Raeder v. Butler, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 604.
92. Rutherford v. Simpson (Minn.) 92 N. W. 413.
93. Sale of ferry—Gracie v. Stevens, 171 N. Y. 658.
94. Finch v. Guardian Trust Co., 92 Mo. App. 263.
95. Dixon v. Daub, 17 Pa. Super. Ct. 168.
96. Blair v. Slosson, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 403.
1. Facts held not to show an implied con-material according to plans and specifications is in the nature of a building contract and not a sale on inspection.[2] Liability on a building contract may pass with the premises on which the building is to be erected.[3] One who contracts for work to be placed in a building in the course of construction by another may become a guarantor of the performance of the construction necessary before the work may be begun.[4]

The construction of the contract is for the court where the specifications are not contradictory or inconsistent.[5] An attached writing may become a part of the contract where so recognized by both parties.[6] Particular terms and provisions construed are grouped in the notes.[7]

Plans, specifications, and detail drawings become a part of the contract on an offer to furnish material in accordance therewith,[8] but the contractor is not bound by contractual provisions in the specifications not embodied in the contract.[9] tract by a subscriber to the stock of a corporation to pay contractors for work performed in the erection of buildings for the corporation—Poulson v. De Navarro, 102 N. Y. St. Rep. 177. Evidence held sufficient to show inception of a contract to plaster buildings—Disken v. Herter, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 453.

2. Agreement by a lumber dealer to furnish material according to plans and specifications requiring all material to be thoroughly kiln dried, smooth and straight—Utah Lumber Co. v. James (Utah) 71 Pac. 986.

3. On transfer of the premises, if the grantee assumes the payment of claims for materials, he becomes the principal debtor, and the grantor is surety, but the undertaking does not apply to a claim for materials for which the grantor is not liable—Hurd v. Wing, 76 App. Div (N. Y.) 506.

4. A person contracting for marble work to be placed in a chapel in the course of erection by a church organization becomes such a guarantor where the contract provided that the owner agreed to provide all labor and material not included in the contract in such manner as not to delay the material progress of the work and in event of failure so to do thereby causing loss to the contractor agreed that he would reimburse him for such loss—Fontano v. Robbins, 18 App. D. C. 402.

5. Question of whether the erection of smoke, heat and ventilating flues and stacks was included—Keefer v. Sunbury School Dist., 203 Pa. 334. A "complete carpenter's rig of good quality" and an "outfit of drilling tools and lines" are to be construed by the jury with the aid of expert evidence—Glenn v. Strickland, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 88.

6. Attached to a written contract to install an automatic sprinkling system, was a writing, "We propose to furnish and install a complete wet system for the sum of $1,056, additional for tank riser, $75. We commence on the inside of the building at the foot of each riser and at the bottom of the tank to be furnished by you, additional for outside work to connect sprinkler with and leave plugs for extension post and indicator valves to control risers, for the sum of $175." Held that where the owner had a copy of the contract with the writing attached and allowed the erection of the tank, riser and outside work without objection, accepting it when completed, that the contractor was entitled to recover the sum of $250 therefor, in addition to the contract price of $1,056—General Fire Extinguisher Co. v. Mooresville Cotton Mills (N. C.) 43 S. E. 942. A clause attached to a contract to furnish an automatic sprinkler and alarm system signed only by the party agreeing to furnish the system "it is further understood that if you desire us to maintain the alarm system connection to our station longer than one year will do so at an annual expense to you of $35 per year," does not impose an obligation to furnish the connection at the price named during the pleasure of the other party—Baylies v. Automatic Fire Alarm Co., 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 557.

7. Capacity of a stated "nominal horse power" in the absence of a technical meaning as to such terms in the trade, will be regarded as meaning a rated rather than an actually developed power in use—Heine Safety Boiler Co. v. Francis Bros. & Jellett (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 235. Soap stone is "rock" within the meaning of a well-drilling contract—Okey v. Moyers (Iowa) 91 N. W. 771. The removal of quick-sand flowing in from the sides of an excavation may be recovered for at the agreed price per cubic yard if it is necessarily removable. (The contract stated that it would be necessary to pile the excavations, since there was a stratum of sand which it would be necessary to keep out to prevent the bank from caving)—Carroll Contracting Co. v. Gilsonite R. & P. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1119. Specifications for a contract of papering, requiring, "Walls to be washed or sized with good, strong glue as necessary to insure that paper will remain fast to the wall," do not bind the contractor to so treat the walls that the paper will remain fast but only to adopt the method most likely to cause it to do so—Independent School Dist. v. Swearngin (Iowa) 94 N. W. 206. A general clause in specifications requiring work to be made water tight, imposes an obligation to make the work water tight only so far as possible under the plans and specifications—Dwyer v. New York, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 224.

8. Utah Lumber Co. v. James (Utah) 71 Pac. 986.

9. A contractor may recover for extra work, though not agreed to in writing as specified by the specifications—Reichert v. Brown, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 782.

Entire and severable contracts.—Where in a contract for the erection of a number of houses, each building is separately dealt with as to subject-matter, consideration, and remedy, the contract is divisible,[10] but it is not sufficient merely to require specified sums for each building.[11] An agreement to perform certain different branches of work for a lump sum amounts to an entire contract.[12]

Fraud, misrepresentation, or mistake.—A mistake in the estimates, for which the party is not responsible, does not invalidate an offer accepted by him.[13] One party may rely on representations of the other as to matters with which the first is unfamiliar and of which the second has knowledge,[14] but if the whole environment and physical conditions surrounding the work are apparent, the contractor cannot claim that he has been misled.[15] The fact that borings have been relied on by the contractor in making his bid does not entitle him to recover for extra work caused by obstructions.[16]

§ 2. Performance of contract.[17]—In the absence of a guaranty, compliance with plans and specifications together with performance when directed is all that can be required of a contractor,[18] and he is not responsible for unsatisfactory results.[19] If there are no particular specifications, he is bound to select proper materials and perform the work in a proper manner.[20] Performance as called for in the contract cannot be abandoned, and a more feasible plan adopted by the contractor.[21]

10. Contract to erect 86 houses, fixing a separate price of work on each house, payments to be made as enumerated in the estimate. On payment of the contract price of a house, a release of liens thereon was to be given, and in default of payment a lien might be filed for the amount unpaid, but only on the houses not paid for—Nolt v. Crow, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 113.

11. A contract for the erection of four buildings for a specified price, seventy-five per cent. to be paid during progress of the work, twenty-five per cent. a stated time after completion, is not made a severable contract by a provision that the entire sum shall be segregated and divided in payments so as to require specified sums for each of the buildings—Wehrung v. Denham (Or.) 71 Pac. 133.

12. Agreement to decorate walls, place the wood-work, and furnish a room—Pitcairn v. Philip Hiss Co., 113 Fed. 492, 51 C. C. A. 323.

13. Mistake of $10,000 in the estimate for the erection of a building occasioned by an error in addition—Brown v. Levy (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 255.

14. Representations leading to a contract of dredging as to the thickness of rock to be removed, made after soundings had been taken, and a chart made with which the party making the statements was familiar, are as to matters of fact, though actual measurements were not stated to have been made—Hingston v. Smith, 114 Fed. 294, 52 C. C. A. 206.

15. Contract to dredge a channel, alleged misrepresentations as to locality and depth of water—Rowland Lumber Co. v. Ross, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 191, 40 S. E. 922.

16. On a contract for the sinking of piers a profile showing borings in the vicinity of each pier marked with the character and thickness of each stratum does not guaranty that the same conditions exist where the piers are to be sunk but only that they represent with substantial accuracy what was found where the borings were made—Groton B. & M. Co. v. Alabama & V. R. Co., 80 Miss. 162.

17. A contract for boilers of 140 nominal horse power not complied with by boilers rated at the shop in accordance with the usual rules as 130 horse power—Heine Safety Boiler Co. v. Francis Bros. & Jellett (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 235. Where an original bid for construction of a building from stone, brick and terra cotta is based on specifications for iron beams and girders over window and door openings, such beams may be required on the construction of the same building from marble under an alternate bid though they were not usually required in marble buildings where the specifications for the alternate bid require the work to be done in compliance with drawings to be furnished including all necessary changes on account of the substituted construction—Miles v. United States, 113 Fed. 1011.

18. Contractor is not liable for the fact that mortar is killed by freezing—Schliess v. Grand Rapids (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 192, 90 N. W. 700.

19. Cannon v. Hunt (Ga.) 42 S. E. 734. Where specifications for an elevator called for a ten horse power motor, the contractor may recover, though the motor was not powerful enough—Morse, etc., Co. v. Puffer, 182 Mass. 423. In assumpsit by a contractor to recover the value of certain concrete placed in a foundation according to the terms of a building contract, it cannot be shown that such concrete is without value as a foundation—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471. A contractor may recover the costs of reconstruction on failure to produce the desired result, where he has followed the specifications. (After the specifications was the clause "generally the work is all to be performed in a thorough and mechanical manner and rendered thoroughly water tight, all to be subject to the approval of the architect)—Dwyer v. New York, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 224.

20. Cannon v. Hunt (Ga.) 42 S. E. 734.

21. On agreement to drill a well, the con-

Deviation from specifications.—The contractor is liable for failure to follow plans and specifications,[22] so the owner may have damages for deviation from the material specified.[23] An engineer in charge of government work cannot consent to deviations from the plans and specifications.[24]

Substantial performance may warrant a recovery after deduction for trifling omissions,[25] though not if the contract requires strict execution.[26] The question of substantial performance is for the jury.[27]

Liability for failure to perform.—To charge the contractor, there must be a substantial failure in performance.[28] Return of the contract price does not discharge liability for breach of the contract.[29]

Damage to finished work.—Woodwork placed in a building may be recovered for though injured by the falling of the roof through the owner's negligence.[30]

Abandonment.—The contractor is not entitled to abandon the difficult portion of the work and perform the less difficult,[31] or to abandon so as to place himself in a better position, and the other party in a worse position, than were the contract fully executed.[32]

§ 3. Modification of contract.—A new contract to take less than the price previously specified or to do the work at the contractor's risk must be on a new consideration.[33] Settlement of a dispute may be a sufficient consideration.[34] On substitution of a contract in which a price is not specified, the price provided by the original contract cannot be recovered.[35] tractors are not entitled to drill a second hole though without charge for a first which they abandoned by reason of a drill rod having been broken and lodged therein. The contractors were bound to prosecute their work with reasonable diligence and care, and if that was not done were not entitled to drill a second hole if water was not found in the first, the other party having agreed to board the employees and furnish the teams necessary for the work—Peacock v. Gleason (Iowa) 90 N. W. 610.

22. Sarrazin v. Adams (La.) 34 So. 301. Recovery cannot be had in the absence of a waiver of non-performance where the contractor has substituted inferior workmanship and materials in place of those required and effected saving to himself and damage to the owner by making changes and omissions—D'Amato v. Gentile, 100 N. Y. State Rep. 832.

23. It is immaterial that the materials used be equally as good as those specified—Cannon v. Hunt (Ga.) 42 S. E. 734. It is an open violation of the contract to fail to follow the plans and specifications, using poor material, leaving the floors so far from level that the furniture leaned forward or to the side, so that the roof leaked and the doors and windows could not be closed, and if the contract was for the payment of $2,800, $1,100 may be reserved by the owner to place the house in repair—Sarrazin v. Adams (La.) 34 So. 301.

24. If a government contract provide that the plans and specifications cannot be changed except on written order of the bureau of yards and docks, the consent to deviations from the specifications by the engineer in charge with power to reject materials and work unsuitable or variant from the plans and specifications does not operate as a waiver or estoppel, relieving the contractors from liability to the government for deviations—United States v. Walsh, 115 Fed. 697, 52 C. C. A. 419.

25. Perry v. Levenson, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94.

26. When the trial court found that there had been a failure to the extent of one-seventh of the value of the contract price it was error to find substantial performance and render judgment for the contract price less one-seventh—Mitchell v. Williams, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 864.

27. Evidence of defects in woodwork necessitating an expenditure of $500 on a contract to do woodwork and decorate the walls of a room for $5200—Pitcairn v. Philip Hiss Co., 113 Fed. 492, 51 C. C. A. 323.

28. Contract to procure and supervise the erection of a house—Anderson v. Harper, 30 Wash. 378, 70 Pac. 965.

29. Provisions for the removal of machinery in event it should prove unsatisfactory, on return of the money to be paid therefor, do not limit the builder's liability on failure to perform to the return of the money received—Harrison v. Murray Iron Works Co., 96 Mo. App. 348.

30. Teakle v. Moore (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 371, 91 N. W. 636.

31. Sewer contract provided for weekly allowances by the engineer in charge. Held, that the contractor could not suspend work in loose soil where he had encountered difficulties and recover for subsequent excavation in rock ground—National Contracting Co. v. Com. (Mass.) 66 N. E. 639.

32. A contractor for a sewer system for a city, the city not being at fault, cannot abandon the work at a stage selected for his benefit—Brown v. Baton Rouge, 109 La. 967.

33. Contract for drilling a well—Wendling v. Snyder (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1041.

34. Where a plumber refused to replace portions of the work which had been stolen unless paid therefor and the owners told him to continue the work and they would pay him—Innes v. Ryan, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 806.

35. A contract to construct an electric

§ 4. Changes in plans and specifications.—The fact that detailed drawings are to be furnished at a later date does not authorize a change in the plans.[36] A requirement of a written order of the architect for alteration does not necessitate such an order on a mere change in the parties doing the work.[37] A provision that the engineer in charge may make alterations if demanded by emergencies is not to be regarded as imposing an obligation to make alterations.[38] If the engineer has full authority to order necessary changes, the contractor must make them, though the action of the engineer is not reasonable.[39]

Provisions that alterations and additions to a contract must be settled and agreed on in writing may be waived by either party so far as they are for his benefit.[40]

§ 5. Extra work.—Recovery for extra work cannot be had in the absence of an express or implied consent thereto.[41] A promise to pay a claim for extra work clearly provided for in the specifications is without consideration.[42] A contract for additional compensation precludes a claim that the work was within the intendment of the original contract.[43] The contractor cannot charge for extra work rendered necessary by his faulty performance.[44]

A provision, in general specifications for bidding, that the price of extra work must be agreed on in writing before it is commenced, does not apply to extra work done under a branch of the contract, in the specifications for which there is no such provision. Where extra work is to be allowed only if done pursuant to the order of the architect and notice of claims therefor is required to be given him, the order only is essential to recovery.[45] Claim of compensation for changes need not be made at the time they are ordered.[46]

Where work done outside the original contract is accepted, it should be paid for at the rate originally contemplated,[47] and recovery is not limited to the actual cost of labor and materials;[48] but where the main contract fixes an aggregate light plant with a three wire system for a stated price, substitution of a two wire system—Davis v. Bingham, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 299.

36. A provision for the furnishing of detailed drawings in future, and that anything omitted in the specifications and shown on the drawings, or vice versa, was to be done without extra charge, does not authorize a change in the plans—Dwyer v. New York, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 224.

37. Drumheller v. American Surety Co., 30 Wash. 530, 71 Pac. 25.

38. Such provision in a sewer contract held to be for the benefit of the commonwealth only—National Contracting Co. v. Com. (Mass.) 66 N. E. 639.

39. Under a provision that the engineer in charge might direct necessary modifications of a sewer contract and order additional supports at the contractor's expense if proper ones were not furnished, the engineer may order oak ribs to be used instead of pine ones though the contract called for the use of spruce lumber at such points and of such descriptions as the engineer might direct—National Contracting Co. v. Com. (Mass.) 66 N. E. 639.

40. The question of waiver of a requirement of a description in writing of alterations in a building contract is for the jury —Copeland v. Hewett, 96 Me. 525. Obtaining of a written order from the architect as required by the contract for deviation from the specifications may be waived by the presence and consent of the owner at the time of deviation—Perry v. Levenson, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94. Oral directions for alterations acted on by the contractor operate as a waiver of a requirement in the contract of written evidence to charge the owner—Crowley v. United States F. & G. Co., 29 Wash. 268, 69 Pac. 784.

41. Niemeyer v. Woods, 110 N. Y. St. Rep. 563.

42. Under specifications requiring foundation to go deeper than shown on the drawings if necessary to reach natural undisturbed earth work done under the level shown by the drawings cannot be charged for as extra work—Wear v. Schmelzer, 92 Mo. App. 314.

43. Contract between county commissioners and a court house building contractor—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

44. Columns to support a balcony—Vanderhoof v. Shell (Or.) 72 Pac. 126.

45. Extra carpenter work—Teakle v. Moore (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 371, 91 N. W. 636.

46. The contract provided for extra compensation in such case—Essex v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 736.

47. Contract for lowering the bed of a tail race—Malloy & Boggs v. Lincoln Cotton Mills (N. C.) 43 S. E. 951.

48. A reasonable profit may be recovered —Venable Const. Co. v. United States, 114 Fed. 763.

price, the price paid thereunder for similar labor and material cannot be regarded as fixing the price paid for extra work which must be measured by its cash market value.[49]

§ 6. Delay in performance.—A provision in a building contract intending to prevent forfeiture for delay should be upheld if possible.[50] Where no time is specified, the work must be begun or prosecuted within a reasonable time,[51] and the contractor is bound to complete the work within a reasonable time only.[52]

Delay occasioned by a strike will not prevent recovery on the contract where the owner has taken no steps at the time to complete the work or terminate the contract under a right conferred on him therein, and there being no time limit fixed in the contract.[53]

A stoppage of work occasioned by a delay of the architect in passing on completed work which would be covered up by further work is not a breach of the contract.[54]

The owner cannot defend on the ground of delay caused by his fault.[55] Failure to make payments as required prevents the enforcement of a penalty for failure in timely completion of the work.[56] Demand by the contractor for allowance for delay occasioned by the owner need not be made in writing of the architect, where the architect assured the contractor that he was entitled to the amount of time demanded.[57]

Waiver of delay or extension of time.—Where the owner has gone into possession while the contractors are at work, she cannot recover for a delay in delivery.[58] Completion at the time specified may be waived by allowing the contractor to continue without objection and assisting him in completion,[59] and where the contractor undertakes work relying on representations of the other party that it would be less difficult than it afterward proved to be, and the work is accepted and used, though more time was required than contemplated, there is an implied extension of time of completion.[60]

Liquidated damages.—In computing the time of delay for which the owner is entitled to damages, deduction should be made of the time for which the con-

49. Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

50. King v. United States, 37 Ct. Cl. 428.

51. Andrae v. Watson (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 991.

52. Contract for the construction of an annex to a building—Krause v. Board of School Trustees (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 1010.

53. Three weeks' delay—Happel v. Marasco, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 314.

Strike as excuse for non-performance. (Note.) The contractor is not excused because of a strike of laborers affecting the building operations (Hammon, Cont. p. 827; Budgett v. Bennington [Eng.] 1 Q. B. 35), but it is common to insert a "strike clause" in such contracts by which the contractor is relieved in case of a strike. When the time of performance is not specified, the performance, though delayed by a strike, may still be regarded as within a reasonable time under the circumstances (Hammon, Cont. p. 828; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Hallowell, 65 Ind. 188; Geismer v. Lake Shore R. Co., 102 N. Y. 563.)

54. A petition setting up the facts attendant on such a stoppage held not demurrable as showing a breach of the contract by plaintiff—McClellan v. McLemore (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 224.

55. Ocorr, etc., Co. v. Little Falls, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 592. The delay was caused by the owner's violation of the building department's requirements and his desire that improvements on a seventh story should be finished before the sixth, and the owner had made no serious complaint about delay and also the season had been unusually wet—Perry v. Levenson, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94.

56. Harris' Assignee v. Gardiner, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 103, 68 S. W. 8.

57. The architect was also the owner's superintendent—Vanderhoof v. Shell (Or.) 73 Pac. 126.

58. Sarrazin v. Adams (La.) 34 So. 301.

59. On subletting a grading contract, the principal contractor reserved the right to place an additional force on the work if he was of the opinion that enough men were not being employed to complete it within the specified time, and deduct the cost from the contract price. Held, that the action of the principal contractor in placing on his own men and teams after the specified time was a waiver—McArthur v. Whitney, 202 Ill. 527.

60. Representations leading to a contract to lower the bed of a tail race—Malloy & Boggs v. Lincoln Cotton Mills (N. C.) 43 S. E. 951.

tractor was delayed by the owner,[61] and delay occasioned by unavoidable contingencies where the contract is made subject thereto.[62] Sundays are not to be deducted.[63]

§ 7. Termination or cancellation of contract.[64]—Destruction of a building terminates a contract for the construction of an annex thereto.[65]

If the contract makes an architect's certificate a condition precedent to the right to terminate the contract, it must be strictly complied with.[66]

Provisions in a government contract authorizing the engineer in charge to annul it if the work be not faithfully prosecuted, and authorizing him to employ such additional labor as may seem essential to secure the completion of the work, are distinct.[67]

The owner is not the sole judge of proper performance, though the contract authorize its cancellation in case the work is not carried on rapidly enough or in accord with the specifications.[68] A parol agreement to increase weekly payments to a subcontractor in case more men are employed prevents the cancellation of the contract in case the amount subsequently paid is not enough to pay the extra men, and they strike for a single day.[69]

§ 8. Completion by owner or third person.[70]—Provisions for completion on default of the contractor are not regarded as creating forfeitures and to be construed strictly against the owner.[71] The owner is not bound to exercise the privilege to complete the work.[72] He may, without waiving his rights, make such changes as are usually made in good faith during construction.[73] Where it is provided that in completion the owner may use materials brought on the ground

61. Delay occasioned by a change in plastering from mortar to adamant—Vanderhoof v. Shell (Or.) 72 Pac. 126.

62. Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Eastern R. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 609.

63. Vanderhoof v. Shell (Or.) 72 Pac. 126.

64. Where a sewer contractor refuses to uncover pipe which the chief engineer believes has been placed on the wrong grade, the engineer is entitled to have it done by other parties, and such is not an ousting of the contractor from the work, the contract providing that the engineer's orders are to be obeyed—Brown v. Baton Rouge, 109 La. 967.

65. Contract held to contain an implied condition that the whole building should continue to exist until full performance of the work thereunder—Krause v. Board of School Trustees (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 1010.

66. If the contract requires a certificate from the architect that the contractor has not properly performed and that his neglect is sufficient ground for a termination of the employment, a certificate that the work is not being properly performed and that the owner may take such action as he deems best is not sufficient—White v. Mitchell (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1061. A private letter written to the owner and not communicated to the contractor will not justify a rescission—Wilson v. Borden (N. J. Err. & App.) 54 Atl. 815. A provision that after three days' notice the owner, in the case of default of the contractor in furnishing labor or material, might supply it, and if the architect certify that it was sufficient ground could terminate the employment of the contractor, requires three days' notice of intention to terminate the contract as well as of intention to furnish material and labor—McClellan v. McLemore (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 224. If in a government contract it is provided that the contract may be annulled by notice in writing from the engineer in charge, it is questionable whether a notice from the engineer's superior officers will effect the annulment—King v. United States, 37 Ct. Cl. 428..

67. Exercising the right to employ additional labor in such a way as to interfere with the contractor's completion of the work, excludes the right to annul the contract—King v. United States, 37 Ct. Cl. 428.

68. Cancellation by him is not justified if the work in fact is being performed as called for in the contract—Hoyle v. Stellwagen, 28 Ind. App. 681.

69. Though the contract authorized cancellation if the sub-contractor got in arrears with his portion of the work—O'Dwyer v. Smith, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 136.

70. Where the contract is abandoned after the owners have refused to pay an installment by reason of failure to substantially complete a building, the owners may complete it and hold the contractors for the necessary expense—Hansen v. Hackman, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 290.

71. Though it is provided that in finishing the building the owner may use materials placed on the ground by the contractor and account to the contractor for the difference between the cost of completion and the unpaid contract price—Duplan Silk Co. v. Spencer (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 689.

72. Failure to do so does not constitute a waiver of the contractor's default—Mitchell v. Williams, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 864.

73. Delray Lumber Co. v. Keohane (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 494, 92 N. W. 489.

by the contractor, the owner is regarded as having a qualified right of property in such materials,[74] though the mere fact that the contractor has gotten together material for the purpose of the contract does not give the other party any property therein or entitle him to enjoin the removal of the same.[75] If the owner takes over the working plant of the contractor without right, he is liable for the reasonable value of its use.[76]

Where the owner completes the building on abandonment by the contractor under a right reserved, the contractor is entitled to any balance of the contract price over the cost of completion.[77]

§ 9. Architects' and other certificates of performance.—An architect's certificate for payment is not issued until delivered to the contractor.[78] It is conclusive in the absence of fraud, the burden of proof of which is on the owner.[79]

Where an architect's certificate is refused in bad faith, recovery may be had without it,[80] and the requirement of a final certificate may be waived.[81] Absence of certificate will not prevent a recovery where no reason appears why the architects have refused it,[82] or where the owners enjoy every advantage of the contractor's work which they would obtain were a stipulated certificate granted,[83] so failure to procure a certificate required will not defeat assumpsit.[84]

Giving of certificates for partial payments does not preclude the pleading of defects as against an action to recover a final payment though the defects were in work done before the last instalment certificate was given.[85]

§ 10. Arbitration of disputes.[86]—Where not otherwise expressed or necessarily to be implied from the terms of a contract, an agreement for the submission of

74. They are regarded as being delivered into the possession of the owner in such a manner as to become surety for the advances made by him on the contract—Duplan Silk Co. v. Spencer (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 689.

75. Material for a street railroad—Cameron v. Orleans & J. R. Co., 108 La. 83; Orleans & J. R. Co. v. International Const. Co., 108 La. 82.

76. A railroad construction company took over the working plant of a firm of contractors under the protection of an injunction, claiming to have the right to do so under the terms of the contract because of the contractor's default, but it was afterward adjudged not to have such a right—Champlain Const. Co. v. O'Brien, 117 Fed. 271, 788.

77. The work being regarded as done under the contract—White v. Livingston, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 361.

78. The architect made the certificate, sent it to the owner who objected to an allowance for certain work and the architect thereupon retained it—Wear v. Schmelzer, 92 Mo. App. 314.

79. Schultze v. Goodstein, 115 N. Y. St. Rep. 946.

80. Refusal based on failure to perform within the specified time—Perry v. Levenson, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94.

81. It was provided that the architect should be the superintendent of the building, should be an arbiter between the parties, and could reject any work not complying with the specifications, and during the progress of the work, he inspected and approved it and made directions for corrections which were complied with, and the owner, architect and contractor agreed to the acceptance of the building subject to certain alterations—Vanderhoof v. Sheil (Or.) 72 Pac. 126. Where the owner has declared a forfeiture of the contract and begun completion of the building, provisions as to the obtaining of an architect's certificate need not be complied with before an action on the contract—Ocorr, etc., Co. v. Little Falls, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 592.

82. Contractors had made a substantial performance—Happel v. Marasco, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 314.

83. Contract to equip a factory with a sprinkling system, price to be payable when a certificate should issue by a board of fire underwriters, and the board, though certifying that the contractor had fully performed, refused to grant the certificate because the water supply at the factory was insufficient and the factory was beyond the reach of an organized fire department—New York & N. H. Sprinkler Co. v. Andrews, 173 N. Y. 25.

84. Certificate as to the value of extra work in an action therefor—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

85. The final payment was to be made 15 days after the building was completed, delivered and accepted on certificate of the architect, "such certificate to be final and conclusive that the work done warranted said payments"—Blanchard v. Sonnefield (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 257.

86. A stoppage of work occasioned by the failure of the architect to act with regard to the acceptance of work already done, and by the need to avoid covering up such work before settlement, presents a proper subject for arbitration within a clause of a contract providing for the arbitration of disputes between the contractors and the architect—McClellan v. McLemore (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 224. Provisions for arbitration as to the value of changes or for claims to arbitration is collateral and a breach cannot be pleaded in bar to an action on the contract itself.[87] Where a method of adjustment for extra work is provided in the contract, the contractor is not justified in abandoning without resort to such method.[88] A stipulation that findings of the engineers in charge as to the fulfillment of the contract shall be conclusive is not an attempted ouster of the courts of jurisdiction.[89] Where it is provided that architects designated by a firm name shall be arbiters, a member of the firm whose name does not appear in the firm name may act.[90]

A provision for arbitration as to extra work cannot be availed of by the owner where he has made no demand or offer of arbitration and has not taken steps to select arbitrators,[91] and an agreement or arbitration is not a condition precedent to a recovery if there is no question as to the reasonableness of the charges.[92] Provisions as to the finality of the decision of an arbitrator do not apply when the contract is rescinded.[93]

§ 11. Acceptance.[94]—The fact that a tenant is allowed to enter and use a building does not amount to an acceptance.[95] Entry after the stipulated time for completion is not a waiver of defects though ascertainable by the exercise of ordinary care.[96] Use of building material without discovery of latent defects does not prevent a subsequent assertion of breach of the contract.[97] The owner's supervision does not prevent refusal to accept finished work, the contractor having made no attempt to remedy defects then pointed out.[98] An agreement that the employer shall determine all questions, as to performance of work done after plans and specifications, does not entitle him to reject the work arbitrarily.[99] Recovery damage occasioned by the contractor's delaying the progress of the work, do not require the submission to arbitrators of damages for failure to complete at the specified time, where liquidated damages for each day of such delay are provided—Drumheller v. American Surety Co., 30 Wash. 530, 71 Pac. 25. Under a clause providing for arbitration of matters in dispute, is included a dispute as to whether a recovery cannot be had for the entire amount of stone specified, though the whole amount was not delivered because rendered unnecessary by reason of rock foundation being found sooner than anticipated—Wymard v. Deeds, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 332.

87. A provision for the arbitration of disputes concerning allowances for alterations does not make an arbitration a condition precedent to an action based on a distinct provision for the reimbursement of the contractor for delays, though the latter provision states that the amount of the contractor's loss through delay shall be fixed by the architects or by arbitration as provided in the first provision—Fontano v. Robbins, 18 App. D. C. 402.

88. A sewer contract agreed that in case of cavings of banks and errors in grade, the chief engineer of the city should adjust the claims and that expenditures and losses should be charged as provided for in the contract—Brown v. Baton Rouge, 109 La. 967.

89. Held to be within the rule allowing stipulations that actions shall not be brought until performance of certain acts by a third person—National Contracting Co. v. Hudson River Water Power Co., 170 N. Y. 439.

90. Such person was the architect in charge and recognized as such by both parties—Wymard v. Deeds, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 332.

91. Evidence held insufficient to show a demand of arbitration by defendant and refusal by the plaintiff—Van Note v. Cook, 55 App. Div. (N. Y.) 55.

92. Essex v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 736.

93. Action for damages for the loss of a contract and not for work done thereunder in reference to a railroad contract making the decision of the engineer final as to disputes and waiving the right to sue at law —Dobbling v. York Springs R. Co., 203 Pa. 628.

94. An unequivocal acceptance results from delivery of keys to the owner and his taking possession subject to an agreed list of alterations subsequently performed by the contractor to the satisfaction of the architect—Vanderhoof v. Shell (Or.) 72 Pac. 126.

95. Mitchell v. Williams, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 864.

96. Cannon v. Hunt (Ga.) 42 S. E. 734.

97. Utah Lumber Co. v. James (Utah) 71 Pac. 986.

98. The contract provided that the work should be done to the owner's satisfaction in a perfect and workmanlike manner and should be accepted by him—Mitchell v. Williams, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 864.

99. The issue of substantial performance may be raised in an action for the contract price—Schliess v. Grand Rapids (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 192, 90 N. W. 700.

may be had where the owner has agreed to accept a certain sum for a minor default in performance and agreed on the balance due.[1]

Acceptance and acquiescence of the engineer in charge, or final acceptance by an inspecting board, are not conclusive in the case of government contracts.[2]

§ 12. Payment.—Where a contract provides that a stated sum shall be paid within a specified time after a section of the work is completed, a payment not in excess of such sum cannot be refused on the ground that with the payments already made it will amount to more than the sum for which the work on that particular section was to be done under the contract.[3] A provision for the retention of money to indemnify the owner against any lien chargeable to the subcontractor entitles the retention of the amount of a judgment on a subcontractor's lien,[4] but a lien for material furnished by the owner does not come within a requirement that final payments shall not be made until the owner is satisfied that no liens have been placed on the property.[5]

An admitted liability may furnish a good consideration for an agreement to allow a deduction of an off-set for damages.[6]

§ 13. Subcontracts.—The contractor may be liable for a breach of a subcontract though the owners may have a good defense against the subcontractor.[7] A subcontractor may, by acting on his contract after knowledge of the insolvency of the general contractor, be prevented from disaffirming his agreement.[8]

A contract providing for payment of a subcontractor on his furnishing to the original contractor releases of all liens and claims which might arise under the subcontract is complied with by a showing that no mechanic's liens can attach.[9]

Extra work by subcontractor.—The fact that a subcontractor is required by the contract to omit specified work, or do extra work at the direction of the owner or architects, does not prevent the subcontractor from doing extra work at the direction of the principal contractor.[10] A promise to pay a subcontractor after he had done work outside his contract and not within the principal contract is without consideration on the part of the contractors.[11]

1. Roussel v. Mathews, 62 App. Div. (N. Y.) 1.

2. The government after payment and acceptance may hold contractors liable for defects where the final test was made under conditions which did not permit structural departures from the specifications to be discovered, and acceptance was in ignorance of facts which would have occasioned a refusal, the contract requiring that specifications should not be changed except on written order of the bureau in charge and by written agreement—United States v. Walsh, 115 Fed. 697, 52 C. C. A. 419.

3. Contract for completion of electrical work on a building for $725, such building being erected in two sections, provided that payment for labor should be made twice a week during the progress of the work and for material within 30 days after the receipt of the same, and that as there was immediate need of the first section $400 should be due within 10 days from the completion of the electrical work therein. $301 was paid for the first two weeks' work. Held, that refusal of a payment of $78 thirty days later, of which $63 was for labor, was not justified as to the labor by reason of the fact that it was in excess of the sum for which plaintiff was to do the work on the first section—Mullin v. Langley, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 789.

4. Wear v. Schmelzer, 92 Mo. App. 314.

5. Vanderhoof v. Shell (Or.) 72 Pac. 126.

6. Admission of liability for an injury to a heating system in a building may operate as an off-set to the contractor's action for a balance due for work on the building, though the injury was caused by negligence of an independent contractor employed by plaintiff—McClure v. Lorain County Com'rs, 24 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 72.

7. Agreement that work should not be sub-let without the architect's consent, and that all materials should be submitted to him, and failure by the subcontractor to comply with such requirement—Herry v. Benoit (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 359.

8. The subcontractor failed to repudiate, called on the owner for aid in collecting purchase money and filed a mechanic's lien—University of Virginia v. Snyder (Va.) 42 S. E. 337.

9. Turner v. Wells, 67 N. J. Law, 572.

10. On a contract to set arch blocks on all floors except the ground floor in accordance with specifications, the sub-contractor may recover as for extra work for setting arch blocks in a basement floor on the street level of one frontage which was frequently referred to in the specifications as the basement or ground floor—Isaacs v. Dawson, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 232.

11. Majory v. Schubert, 115 N. Y. St. Rep. 703.

Withholding of payments for benefit of subcontractor.[12]—Action may be brought on an agreement to retain from the contractor money for the protection of a materialman before completion of the contract,[13] but on a contract to retain payments to be made a principal contractor and pay them, at the time of payments to a materialman, the materialman is not entitled to payment though he has furnished all the material if the principal contract has not progressed far enough to entitle the principal contractor to payment.[14]

Rights on default by subcontractor.—Where a contract provides that, on default in the furnishing of material, other material may be secured after five days' notice, the reasonableness of the action in terminating the contract is not involved; the contractors have the right to secure substantially the same material, and may purchase it from stock at greater than mill prices, if to have it manufactured would necessitate considerable delay.[15] A materialman agreeing to furnish inspectors cannot complain that he is not notified of their appointment.[16]

§ 14. Bonds.—Requirement that bond shall be given to secure performance of the contract does not require the owner to accept a bond requiring him to perform additional acts for the protection of his sureties.[17] Agreement to give a bond will not prevent recovery if it is found by the referee that the objection that the bond was not given was a mere subterfuge to avoid payment.[18] Laborers and materialmen are proper parties to a suit to enforce a bond exacted of a contractor for the payment of materials and wages.[19]

§ 15. Remedies and procedure.—An action may be brought for breach of contract though the owner has retained an amount stipulated as demurrage.[20] The owner's remedy on completion after abandonment by the contractor is an action for damages for breach of contract.[21] Where the contractor has refused to accept a small amount due on the contract, tendered by the owner, he cannot urge default in regard thereto as a defense to an action for breach.[22] A bill may be a sufficient demand.[23]

Recovery in general assumpsit or on quantum meruit.—Where nothing remains to be done under a special contract except payment of the amount due, recovery

12. An agreement by a mortgagee to withhold moneys coming into his hands for the owner for the purpose of paying them to a subcontractor, in case he will continue to supply materials, renders the mortgagee liable to the subcontractor with whom the agreement was made in case he pays such moneys over to the owner—Prata v. Green, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 224. An agreement to furnish materials to a contractor is a sufficient consideration for a promise by a third person to retain enough of the money due on the contract to pay the person furnishing the materials—Roussel v. Mathews, 62 App. Div. (N. Y.) 1.

13. Roussel v. Mathews, 62 App. Div. (N. Y.) 1.

14. Young v. Smith, 202 Pa. 329.

15. In this case 30 days had elapsed after the time limited for performance before the notice called for was given and manufacture would have consumed from 4 to 6 months—Christopher, etc., Co. v. Yeager, 202 Ill. 486.

16. The materialman was required to furnish shop drawings and the inspectors, without whose approval no work could be done, were appointed as soon as the shop drawings were approved—Christopher, etc., Co. v. Yeager, 202 Ill. 486.

17. The owner need not accept a bond requiring him to give immediate notice in writing to the surety of default by the principal and to institute any suit on the bond within six months after the work is completed—Brown v. Levy (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 255.

18. Disken v. Herter, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 453.

19. Gastonia v. McEntee-Peterson Engineering Co., 131 N. C. 363.

20. Ramlose v. Dollman (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 917.

21. Plaintiff cannot recover the contract price and cost of foundation on the common counts where defendant has abandoned a contract to erect a monument on a foundation prepared by him, and plaintiff has furnished the foundation and erected the monument—Wigent v. Marrs (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 158, 90 N. W. 423.

22. Ramlose v. Dollman (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 917.

23. Presentation of a bill by a subcontractor to a contractor on the contractor's rescission of his contract, followed by an admission that the bill was correct and delivery of a writing stating the rescission of the contract and fixing the amount due the subcontractor, shows a legal demand and may be had on a common count for work and labor.[24] Where a contractor, without his fault, is prevented by the owner from completing, he may recover on a quantum meruit,[25] or on refusal of the owner to pay an instalment when due as required by the contract,[26] or on termination of the contract by inevitable casualty before full performance, if payment was to be made as the work progressed.[27] If work done under an express contract is accepted and used, recovery may be had on a quantum meruit though it is not done according to contract.[28] Completion of the work after an action commenced does not allow a recovery.[29] If the contractor rescinds for default of the other party, he may only recover on a quantum meruit.[30]

Where the contractor has canceled his written contract against the will of a subcontractor, the subcontractor may sue on a quantum meruit for the work and labor actually done, and need not tender the contractor what has already been paid.[31]

Pleading.—If plaintiff desire to disregard an invalid portion of the contract, the petition must be drawn on the theory that the contract is severable.[32] The complaint must show performance,[33] though performance of conditions not precedent to demand of performance of the other party need not be pleaded.[34] Waiver of provisions of the contract must be pleaded.[35] The elements of damages should be alleged.[36] refusal to pay and it cannot be objected that claimant was not entitled to payment at the time of demand—South End Imp. Co. v. Harden (N. J. Ch.) 52 Atl. 1127.

24. On an express contract for construction of a sidewalk recovery after abandonment cannot be had on a quantum meruit, unless it is shown that the work rendered and the material furnished was of value to and accepted by defendant, which question is for the jury—Roskilly v. Steigers, 96 Mo. App. 576. Especially where the contract only fixes a maximum price—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471; Zapel v. Ennis, 104 Ill. App. 175.

25. Day v. Eisele. 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 304. On wrongful prevention of completion, if the contractor elect to treat the contract as rescinded, the reasonable value of the work done may be recovered, if there is no provision for an apportionment of compensation—George M. Newhall Engineering Co. v. Daly (Wis.) 93 N. W. 12.

26. White v. Livingston, 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 361.

27. Krause v. Board of School Trustees (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 1010.

28. Plumbing—Gross v. Creyts (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 199, 90 N. W. 689. On a contract to construct a heating plant, the contractor may recover for services rendered on a quantum meruit less the damages occasioned by his breach—McKnight v. Bertram H. & P. Co., 65 Kan. 859, 70 Pac. 345.

29. Riddell v. Peck-Williamson H. & V. Co., 27 Mont. 44, 69 Pac. 241.

30. Person v. Stoll, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 141.

31. O'Dwyer v. Smith, 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 136.

32. Laclede Const. Co. v. Tudor Iron Works, 169 Mo. 137.

33. Where work is required to be done according to the plans, specifications and requirements of an engineer, a petition is demurrable which does not allege that petitioner performed according to the requirements of the supervising engineer or set forth facts excusing him—National Contracting Co. v. Com. (Mass.) 66 N. E. 639. It is not sufficient to show performance of a condition precedent to a right to terminate the contract to aver "that plaintiff had done and performed all the agreements, provisions and stipulations to be by him done and performed by the terms of said contract"—White v. Mitchell (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1061. Under a contract providing that weekly payments should be made on estimates of the engineer in charge, but that such estimates should be made only when the work progressed in accordance with the contract, a petition which does not allege that the express agreement was complied with is demurrable—National Contracting Co. v. Com. (Mass.) 66 N. E. 639. A petition for damages for breach of contract, in that the engineer in charge had failed to make alterations in the plans of work, though an emergency had arisen by reason of the material around the tunnel not permitting an excavation and the refilling of it be done under air pressure, is defective if it fail to allege that air pressure was necessary to prevent changes in the ground water line, the contract providing that alterations should be made if demanded by an emergency and that work be done under air pressure when necessary to prevent changes in the adjacent ground water line—National Contracting Co. v. Com. (Mass.) 66 N. E. 639.

34. The owner need not plead performance of the conditions of the contract in an action by him for breach, where it was stipulated that payments should depend on the progress of the work, and on presentation of certificates from the architect as to performance—Ramlose v. Dollman (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 917.

35. Waiver of provisions for a written order of the architect for alterations must

A defense that plaintiff has not complied with an essential condition precedent is not demurrable.[37] Where the complaint is assumpsit for extra work outside a building contract, it is not sufficient answer to aver execution of the original contract.[38] Where the complaint alleges a contract to erect a building, it is but a partial defense to allege a contract to furnish certain portions of the building which was taken out of defendant's hands in violation of the agreement.[39] Special notice is not needed to allow proof of nondelivery of materials.[40] By statute it may become unnecessary to traverse a different contract set up by answer.[41]

Variance.—The pleadings and proof must correspond.[42]

Evidence.—The burden is on defendant to show failure to complete the work within the agreed time.[43] Plaintiff's failure to prove the expense of completion may be supplied by defendant's evidence.[44] In an action for extra work, evidence of the cost thereof is inadmissible which does not show its amount or value under the terms of the contract;[45] the contractor must introduce the original contract.[46] In an action on a contract and not a quantum meruit, the right to recover is not affected by evidence of value to the defendant,[47] other rulings as to the admissibility of evidence are collected in the notes,[48] as are holdings as to sufficiency.[49] be pleaded—Essex v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 736.

36. Action for failure to permit a contractor to perform should allege the character and amount of labor done by plaintiff preparatory to the work, the fact that a profit would have been made and the amount thereof—Andrae v. Watson (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 991.

37. Averment in an answer of a clause providing that the decision of the supervising engineers as to the fulfillment of the contract should be conclusive, and that the contractor has not obtained such decision or requested defendant to obtain it—National Contracting Co. v. Hudson River Water Power Co., 170 N. Y. 439.

38. Complaint alleged that the work was in addition to the work required by the original contract—Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

39. Where no denial of the allegations of the complaint was made, an answer setting up such facts as a complete defense was demurrable but was good as a counterclaim —Ivy Courts Realty Co. v. Morton, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 335.

40. In an action to recover under a contract to furnish stone, defendant may without special notice show that it became unnecessary to use the rock anticipated, and plaintiff having been notified did not deliver it, though he claimed for the entire amount specified by the contract—Wymard v. Deeds, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 332.

41. In an action for breach of a contract to pay for certain floor arches, an answer which alleges a written agreement by which payment was guaranteed by defendant only of a certain portion of the price of setting up such arches, is under Code Civ. Proc. § 522, regarded as traversed without a reply so that fraud may be proven in avoidance of the agreement—Nesbit v. Jencks, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 140.

42. Where the complaint alleges simply a contract, the answer avers the execution of a written contract and the reply admits the execution of a contract as set forth in plaintiff's complaint, and plaintiff on the trial admits that he made the written contract attached to the answer, evidence of an oral modification on a subsequent day may be rejected as variance—Duval v. American Telep. & Teleg. Co., 113 Wis. 504. Under an allegation that a tram-way as constructed was defective, unsafe and not of the kind agreed on, it may be shown that the tramway was defective in that it was more destructive to the cable used than was the tram-way which it replaced—Lipscomb v. South Bound R. Co., 65 S. C. 148. Under allegations in an action for damage occasioned by falling of plaster, that the materials furnished were not good and the work was not performed in a workmanlike manner, recovery cannot be had for falling of plaster caused by too rapid drying, though occasioned by defendant's failure to properly close the doors and windows—Taussig v. Wind (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1095. Where a contract required an architect's certificate and complete performance was alleged, the contractor cannot recover on a showing that the certificate was unreasonably withheld—Dwyer v. New York, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 224.

43. Supporting a counterclaim for liquidated damages—Dunn v. Morgenthau, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 147.

44. Action to recover a balance on a building contract where at the close of evidence plaintiff amended by alleging substantial instead of complete performance, defendant's evidence showing the necessary expense and enabling the court to adjust the judgment —Niemeyer v. Woods, 110 N. Y. St. Rep. 563.

45. Work in constructing a railroad grade under a contract fixing prices for extra work required by the engineer—North American Ry. Const. Co. v. McMath Surveying Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 169.

46. As evidence that the work was extra and of the rate at which it was to be paid— Board of Com'rs v. Gibson, 158 Ind. 471.

47. Letters not objected to on the ground of variance may be considered with regard to their effect on the previous contract though the original contract is pleaded— Laclede Const. Co. v. Tudor Iron Works, 169 Mo. 137.

48. Not reversible error to exclude evidence that the sub-contractor at the time of

Instructions[50] may remove from the jury the question of substantial performance of the entire contract.[51]

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

§ 1. The organization.[1]—Invalidity of an association's charter may be remedied by subsequent curative legislation.[2] A provision for the returning of fees making his contract had the specifications, where he is seeking to recover for work as extra, though it was called for by the specifications and expressly excluded from the sub-contract—Isaacs v. Dawson, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 232. Evidence of an expert plumber as to the preferability of one and one-half inch to two inch pipe under laundry tub is admissible if the issue is raised, the two inch pipe being called for in the contract and the one and one-half inch pipe conforming to the regulation of the building department. The expert may also testify as to whether earthen pipe was preferable to iron, if the contractor has sought to show that such pipe was necessitated by the condition of the ground—Schultze v. Goodstein, 115 N. Y. St. Rep. 946. Under allegations of facts showing that plaintiff was entitled to a final certificate which had been refused him on his demand, evidence showing that the certificate was refused at the instance of the owner is admissible—Vanderhoof v. Shell (Or.) 72 Pac. 126. Evidence of the contractor's reputation for fair and honorable dealing is irrelevant to an issue of compliance with the contract—Cannon v. Hunt (Ga.) 42 S. E. 734. Evidence of the work done under direction of the architect as well as under the original plans is admissible, where it appears that the architect has made numerous changes in the plans requiring a great deal of extra work making the original plans inadequate—McClellan v. McLemore (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 224. Where contractors are compelled to abandon a well before they had reached water as required by the contract, evidence in an action to recover the reasonable value of the labor, that they were willing to start drilling another hole unless water was found is immaterial—Peacock v. Gleason (Iowa) 90 N. W. 610. Where defendant claimed failure to perform, it may be shown that he rented the building as erected and permitted the tenant to go into possession, and the acts of the tenant may be shown—Mitchell v. Williams, 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 864. On an issue as to whether a well was drilled with reasonable diligence and care, it may be shown that it was customary to use casing to prevent a well from caving in—Peacock v. Gleason (Iowa) 90 N. W. 610. Evidence of a custom in papering is inadmissible where the contract provides "walls to be washed or sized with good strong glue"—Independent School Dist. v. Swearngin (Iowa) 94 N. W. 206.

49. Evidence sufficient to warrant submission of the question as to whether a change was ordered by the architect—Essex v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 736. To show modification of a contract for drilling a well—Wendling v. Snyder (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1041. Court's allowance for changes and extra work held excessive—California Iron Const. Co. v. Bradbury, 138 Cal. 328, 71 Pac. 346. To establish insolvency of the contractor at the time of making a subcontract, entitling the subcontractor to repudiate on the ground of fraud—University of Virginia v. Snyder (Va.) 42 S. E. 337. To show agreement to pay wages at city rates for work in the country—Hilbrand v. Dininny, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 511. To show agreement to pay the board of laborers—Hilbrand v. Dininny, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 511. To show the substitution of a verbal contract abrogating a written contract for the dredging of a channel—Rowland Lumber Co. v. Ross, 4 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 191, 40 S. E. 922. To show waiver of timely delivery of material—Boyle, etc., Co. v. Fox, 110 N. Y. St. Rep. 102.

50. Instructions held erroneous as assuming that plaintiffs declined to proceed with their work unless their estimate was paid in full—McClellan v. McLemore (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 224. Where there is evidence that fire proof arches had already been delivered before the contracts in controversy were entered into, the jury should be instructed that in case there had been a delivery there was no consideration for the contracts, one of them being alleged to be an agreement by a mortgagee to pay for them in consideration of their delivery into the mortgaged premises, and the other which was asserted by the mortgagee being an agreement to guarantee payment to a certain sum if plaintiff would furnish a set of arches in the building—Nesbit v. Jencks, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 140. Instructions that plaintiff would have no right to charge defendants with additional costs owing to changes in sizes and weights of material, render unnecessary instructions on the question of whether plaintiff could bind defendants by contract for heavier material, the action having arisen from an exercise of the right by plaintiff to procure material elsewhere on default of defendants in fur-and charges paid in advance to a rejected applicant for membership does not deprive a corporation of its character as a building and loan association.[3] An unincorporated building association is a partnership and the directors are not governed by the strict rules applying to directors of corporations.[4]

Pleading corporate existence.—In an action by a corporation it may be regarded as a building and loan association if its name and the allegations of the petition indicate that it has such character.[5]

By-laws adopted before passage of an amendment to a statute, but conforming thereto, need not be readopted to become operative under the amendment,[6] though a mere doing business under a statute is not an acceptance of powers conferred in it.[7] In the absence of statute, notice of the repeal of a by-law is not required.[8] A member who has for years recognized the validity of by-laws cannot question the validity of their adoption collaterally, or there may be an estoppel to deny their existence.[9]

Powers.—Building and loan associations have no powers not conferred by statute.[10] They cannot borrow money to retire stock.[11] They may extend the time of payment of mortgages and make settlements with debtors.[12] If they have power nishing it—Christopher, etc., Co. v. Yeager, 202 Ill. 486.

51. In an action on contract to decorate a room, erect woodwork and furnish it, the jury may be told that defective woodwork would not prevent recovery if the contract was "otherwise" substantially performed—Pitcairn v. Philip Hiss Co., 113 Fed. 492, 51 C. C. A. 323.

1. Taxation of building and loan associations is treated under the article Taxation.

The subject-matter of a statute concerning building and loan association mortgages is sufficiently indicated by a title "An act regulating building and loan associations"—Julien v. Model Bldg., Loan & Invest. Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 561.

2. An association organized under Act Jan. 30, 1871, whose charter is invalid for the reason that it was granted by a chancery court without power in the premises, may take advantage of act Mar. 23, 1883, providing that associations under charters granted by such courts may, by application for amendment of their charters, obtain powers prescribed by Acts 1875, c. 142, and it is a mere irregularity if in the application for the amendment some of the powers which the association desired to obtain were described merely by general reference to a specific section of such later statute—Deitch v. Staub (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 309.

3. Cottingham v. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ga.) 41 S. E. 72, 74.

4. The directors are regarded as managing partners and so called stockholders are general partners—Woodward v. Nelligan, 19 App. D. C. 550.

5. Cottingham v. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ga.) 41 S. E. 72, 74.

6. Where, before the passage of Act July 1, 1891, providing that a building and loan association might make loans at a rate of interest and premium fixed by its by-laws, the preference or priority of loans being decided by the priority of applications, the association had adopted by-laws providing for the filing of applications consecutively and the charging of a fixed rate and premium, the board of directors need not go through the form of re-adopting the by-laws in order that they may become operative under the act—Collins v. Cobe, 104 Ill. App. 142.

7. If the statute confers authority on existing associations to make loans at a premium fixed in the by-laws without competition, it must be shown in order to validate a loan so made that a by-law previously adopted fixing the premium rate, was readopted after the statute took effect or that the association reorganized under the statute (Rev. St. 1889, ch. 42, art. 9; Rev. St. 1899, ch. 12, art. 10). On a loan so made, the association is entitled to but 6 per cent. interest and all payments in excess of such rate should be credited on the principal—Callison v. Trenton Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 477.

8. A member of a Minnesota building association becoming such while the by-law is in force is not entitled on subsequently obtaining a loan to rely on the by-law as not having been repealed—Western Realty & Investment Co. v. Haase (Conn.) 53 Atl. 861.

9. By-laws entered on the records of the association, acted on, and enforced cannot be asserted by a member not to have been regularly adopted, as a defense to payment of his obligations to the association—Collins v. Cobe, 202 Ill. 469.

10. If the statute provides that shares shall mature when stock by reason of the earnings reaches par, the association cannot fix any period for maturity—Caston v. Stafford, 92 Mo. App. 182. They can use only such proportion of the monthly receipts in the retirement of stock as is authorized by statute—Appeal of Powell, 93 Mo. App. 296.

11. Such borrowing held not for temporary purposes—Appeal of Powell, 93 Mo. App. 296.

12. Where such acts are done for the benefit and valid exercise of their powers and not to evade statutory restrictions—Kelso v. Oak Park Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 99 Ill. App. 123.

to purchase property sold under mortgages which they hold, they have also the power to sell and convey such property.[13]

Ultra vires acts.—Contracts to pay officers other than the secretary, for services, are ultra vires and against public policy.[14] A building and loan association is liable for a deposit though received on an ultra vires contract,[15] and where it has had the benefit of performance by the member cannot object that it was not authorized by statute to make a contract to pay a fixed sum at the maturity of the certificate.[16]

Powers of officers.—Loans may be placed in the hands of the directors.[17] It is not an unlawful placing of power in the hands of the directors to vest it in fifteen directors chosen from the stockholders.[18]

The corporation is bound by official statements of the secretary accepted and acted on in good faith.[19] Acts of the secretary of an incorporated building association beyond the scope of his powers as defined by the articles of the association may be binding on the association where by apparent acquiescence of the directors and members, he has become practically a general manager.[20] The association may be estopped by a statement of its collecting agent as to the number of payments required to bring stocks to par and release a deed of trust.[21]

The fact that a representative of an association receives a commission from the borrower does not make him the agent of the latter.[22]

Bonds of officers.—A signature of the secretary for the purpose of attesting the signature and seal of the vice-president on the back of the secretary's surety bond cannot be regarded as a signing of the bond.[23]

§ 2. Membership and stock.—The fact that a lending and borrowing class of members are created with adverse interests does not render the methods of the association unlawful.[24] Estoppel to deny membership by virtue of a forged certificate does not result from the acceptance of payment of dues to the secretary issuing the forged certificate where the treasurer is the only officer entitled to receive payments.[25]

13. Kelso v. Oak Park Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 99 Ill. App. 123.

14. Eddy v. Barry, 99 Ill. App. 266.

15. On an ultra vires receipt of money as a deposit, with agreement to pay interest, the association is liable for interest only from the time payment is demanded—Brennan v. Gallagher, 199 Ill. 207.

16. Such defense is not available in an action by a member on a matured certificate—Vought v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 172 N. Y. 508.

17. Boleman v. Citizens' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n, 114 Wis. 217.

18. Boleman v. Citizens' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n, 114 Wis. 217.

19. Statement concealing the condition of its affairs—Shinkle v. Knoll, 99 Ill. App. 274.

20. A member who has paid his debt to the association to the secretary, and secured the bond and deed of trust and accompanying certificate of title, which had been delivered as security, is entitled to a release of the deed of trust, acquiescence of the association in the acts of the secretary for nearly fourteen years being shown, and when for eight years after the member ceased paying dues, the directors made no effort to enforce them or enforce payment of the debt, and where it also appeared that the association was in process of liquidation with no "live" stock holders—Woodward v. Nelligan, 19 App. D. C. 550.

21. The estoppel extends to the assignee of the association and though the association did not know the purpose of the inquiry, where in reliance thereon plaintiff had purchased property and made payments—Williams v. Verity (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 732.

22. The representative had power to solicit loans, collect fines and dues, appraise property and do everything toward the consummation of the loan, and was appointed to solicit subscriptions to capital stock and collect membership fees therefor—McMullen v. Griggs, 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 417.

23. Laws 1895, p. 105, § 4, provides that the surety of an officer should be approved by the board of directors. A bond not otherwise signed by the secretary bore on its back after recital of such approval by the board, the signature of the vice president, followed by the corporate seal and the words "Attest, John C. Obert, Secretary." Held, that it was not a sufficient signature of his bond.—N. St. Louis Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Obert, 169 Mo. 507.

24. Boleman v. Citizens' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n, 114 Wis. 217.

25. Columbia Council Member No. 77 v.

Status of borrowing members.—The borrower's relation as a shareholder ceases with a resolution of the directors declaring the debt due and directing a foreclosure, and the stock is thereby forfeited and the debt matured, and it is also held that where the member becomes a borrower and pledges his stock, he becomes a debtor,[26] and is not chargeable with losses or entitled to share profits.[27]

Under certain statutory provisions a borrowing member is not entitled to profits unless they have been apportioned and declared by a board of directors. The action of the secretary, approved by the stockholders on report of the board of directors, is not sufficient.[28]

Preferred shares.—In the absence of charter or statutory prohibition, certain classes of shares may be given preference in respect to dividends and principal, and are not invalidated by the fact that when issued they were unauthorized by by-law, if their issuance was subsequently ratified by the shareholders and a by-law authorizing their further issuance adopted, objection not being made until after insolvency of the association.[29]

Full paid stock.—Associations may issue full paid stock with guaranteed dividends.[30] If such dividends are to be paid only from profits, the holders are not entitled to interest after insolvency of the association.[31]

A change in the by-laws of an association conferring on instalment stockholders equality with common or full paid stockholders does not authorize the full paid stockholders to recover the price paid by them for it, either on the ground that its issuance was ultra vires or that the contract under which it was issued was repudiated, and if they were previously required to make good losses in favor of instalment shareholders, and having control of the business, have charged losses against their stock, they are not entitled to repayment of the losses previously charged to them.[32]

Dividends due a stockholder may be applied to his debt to the association.[33] A provision in a coupon to pay a certain amount in a dividend at a certain time amounts to an agreement to pay it only if earned,[34] and the fact that profits are earned does not create a legal obligation to pay a dividend.[35]

Rights of pledgees.—Where a statute provides that stock may be pledged by delivery of certificates and the former holder may still represent it at meetings and vote as a stockholder, notice of the pledge or a transfer on the corporation's Belmar Building & Loan Ass'n (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 142.

26. Juergens v. Cobe, 99 Ill. App. 156.

27. Interstate Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Holland (S. C.) 43 S. E. 978.

28. Rev. St. c. 32, § 6c, par. 83b, § 6b, § 5, par. 82—Agnew v. Macomb Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 197 Ill. 256.

29. Wilson v. Parvin (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 652.

30. Such is regarded as a borrower of money—Cottingham v. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ga.) 41 S. E. 72, 74.

31. Wilson v. Parvin (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 652.

32. Installment stockholders were placed on an equality with the owners of full paid stock who had formerly had the sole right to vote and to control the business of the association, though their capital was subject to the repayment of losses sustained by the association in favor of installment stockholders. The meeting had been called for the purpose of amending the by-laws and complainants' stock was voted in favor of the proposition, complainants being represented by proxy—Synnott v. Cumberland Bldg. Loan Ass'n (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 379.

33. As against the widow's claim of such dividend as part of her exempt distributable share of her husband's estate—Andrews v. Ky. Citizens' Bldg. & Loan Ass'n's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 966, 70 S. W. 409.

34. Laws 1875, c. 564, § 1, provided that no dividend was to be declared except from earnings, and the stock certificate declared that the holder was subject to conditions printed thereon, that the certificate should participate in profits as provided by the articles of the association, that a dividend to the extent of 7% per cent. per annum would be paid. The by-laws made a similar provision for the annual payment of a dividend from profits not exceeding 7% per cent.—Watson v. Columbia Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 498.

35. Dividend is not compelled by the fact that 2 per cent. profits were earned during the preceding six months—Watson v. Columbia Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (N. Y.) 71 App. Div. 498.

books is not required to make the association liable to a pledgee if it pay the value of the shares and cancel them without requiring a return of the certificate. The measure of damages is the amount for which they were pledged with interest from the time action was brought. The pledgee need not, before action, acquire title to the shares by judicial sale or otherwise.[36]

Maturity of stock.—A contract that stock shall mature before the borrower's monthly dues and profits bring the stock to par is ultra vires,[37] as are representations that stocks will be brought to par on the making of a stated number of fixed monthly payments.[38] An estimate in a building and loan company's prospectus that stock will mature at a stated time is not binding.[39] A statement that par will be paid for each share at the end of a stated time, subject to the terms, conditions, and by-laws attached, does not make the fixed time of maturity.[40] The promise to pay does not control other provisions in the certificate.[41] Where a certificate of stock states that it matures at a stated time, and that the company will then pay the par value, a member after such time cannot be required to continue to make payment until they, plus the earnings, equal the par value,[42] and where the instalments have been duly paid, the holder of the certificate of membership is entitled to the par value of each share of stock held thereunder.[43] Where the by-laws printed on a stock certificate are made part of the contract without reservation as to amendments, amendments subsequent to the issuance cannot be considered in construing the contract.[44] The contract with one shareholder cannot be avoided for the reason that the association may not be able to meet obligations to others.[45]

36. Brown v. Union Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 28 Wash. 657, 69 Pac. 383.

37. Caston v. Stafford, 92 Mo. App. 182.

38. Williams v. Verity (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 732.

39. Stock does not necessarily mature in 60 months under by-laws providing: that payments on stock shall be a certain sum per month for 60 months or to the date of maturity, that when 60 payments have been made, the stockholder shall be entitled to the value thereof, that a borrowing stockholder making 60 payments of dues shall have credit on his loan to the value of the stock, and on the payment of any balance, the loan will be satisfied—Hough v. Woody (Ark.) 71 S. W. 252.

40. Racer v. International Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 772.

41. There was also a provision that profits arising from interest, premiums, fines, etc., should at stated periods be apportioned among the shares, and when they with the monthly payments should amount to the par value, the shares should be deemed to have matured and not sooner—International Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Radebaugh (Ind.) 64 N. E. 604. Provisions for monthly payments on shares until matured or withdrawn and that a certain sum monthly should be paid by share holders on each share until they were fully paid, are not inconsistent with a promise to pay the par value of the share at a fixed date, making payment contingent on the paying in of a sum which with the profits apportioned to the certificate would amount to its face—Vought v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 172 N. Y. 508.

42. Provision for maturity on seventy-eight payments. The by-laws provided that the certificate of stock, the application, and the by-laws formed the contract, and required a monthly installment of seventy-five cents on each share until fully paid and provided that $100 per share should be paid at maturity—Field v. Eastern Building & Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 90 N. W. 717.

43. The certificate provided that on compliance with the conditions and by-laws printed on the certificate, the association would pay $100 for each of the shares held by a member, 78 months after the date of the certificate, the amount of monthly installments and the maturity of the certificate being fixed by the indorsement on the back thereof—Vought v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 172 N. Y. 508.

44. Field v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 90 N. W. 717. Where the association undertakes to mature certain shares in a certain time, the agreement is not affected by the fact that the shareholder obtains a loan on the security of his shares after amendment of the by-laws making stock mature when its par value is equaled by the amount of the dues paid thereon with apportioned profits; nor is it rendered conditional on the success of the enterprise by an agreement of the shareholder to pay a certain monthly installment until the stock matures or is withdrawn, or by a by-law continuing payment of installments until full payment of the share—Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Williamson, 189 U. S. 122.

45. The association was composed of small stockholders throughout the United States, and it was provided that no shareholder should have any claim or interest or control of the affairs, assets or funds of the association except as specifically provided—Field v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 90 N. W. 717.

Withdrawal.—Payment of the withdrawal value of shares may be required to be made from a particular fund, and a fee covering clerical expenses may be exacted.[46] The term "withdrawing stockholders" includes those who withdraw at the maturity of stock as well as those withdrawing before.[47] One who ceases to be a member of the association is no longer liable for its debts or entitled to share in its subsequent earnings.[48] A leaving of a portion of the amount due a stockholder on account of matured stock on deposit at interest will not be considered as a deposit to meet dues and payments on stock.[49]

Actions.—A foreign building and loan association cannot by a provision in its contract require that suits against it be brought in the state of its incorporation.[50] The withdrawing member of a building association may proceed in equity before having obtained a judgment at law and exhausted his legal remedies.[51] In an action on a matured certificate, the application for membership need not be introduced.[52] Where the contract is misleading, the shareholder may testify as to representations by the agent of the association at the time of her application.[53]

§ 3. Loans and mortgages. A. General features and regulations.—The issuing of stock, execution of a note and mortgage, and the issuance of lien stock may be one transaction.[54] Neither one who accepts a loan and stock issued nor his assignee can assert that he deals as a stranger.[55] The constitution and by-laws of the association become part of the contract.[56] Where there is no usury, fraud, or other illegality, contracts with a foreign association will be enforced according to the equitable interpretation of their terms.[57] Taking a trust deed on encumbered real estate to secure a loan by a member is not an ultra vires act, and statutes providing that borrowers shall give unencumbered security are not positive prohibitions on the association though mandatory on the members; hence a trust deed obtained on a false representation that the property was unencumbered is not void.[58] Only the state in a direct action may question whether a loan to one not a member is an unauthorized exercise of corporate power.[59] A statute providing that stock pledged as security may not be withdrawn does not forbid its withdrawal on payment of the loan.[60]

46. The association may limit payments of withdrawal value to funds derived from a percentage of dues collected, and may exact a withdrawal fee of one dollar per share without violating 1 Gen. St. p. 331—Intlso v. State (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 206.

47. Construing a certificate of membership providing that no money should be drawn from the loan fund except to make loans on security and to pay amounts due withdrawing shareholders—Vought v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 172 N. Y. 508.

48. Juergens v. Cobe, 99 Ill. App. 156.

49. The stockholder received a pass book showing a deposit of $3,800 on interest, the remaining stock amounted to only $2,000, and he made the payments thereon from other funds and received the value on its maturity, leaving the $3,800 on deposit—Brennan v. Gallagher, 199 Ill. 207.

50. Code 1897, c. 13, tit. 9, requires foreign building and loan associations to consent that notice of suit may be served on the auditor—Field v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 90 N. W. 717.

51. Continental Nat. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Miller (Fla.) 33 So. 404.

52. It was not a part of the contract though mentioned as part of the consideration and defendant did not claim that it constituted a defense—Vought v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 172 N. Y. 508.

53. Code 1897, § 4614, provides that where there is a mutual misunderstanding the contract is to prevail against either party in the sense in which he had reason to suppose the other understood it—Field v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 90 N. W. 717.

54. Sufficiency of evidence to establish such fact—Western Loan & Sav. Co. v. Desky, 24 Utah, 347, 68 Pac. 141.

55. The association having no right to make loans except to members—Boleman v. Citizens' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n, 114 Wis. 247.

56. Agnew v. Macomb Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 197 Ill. 256.

57. People's Bldg., Loan & Sav. Ass'n v. Gilmore (Neb.) 90 N. W. 108.

58. Rev. St. c. 32, § 85—Juergens v. Cobe, 99 Ill. App. 156.

59. Civ. Code, §§ 633-648½—Bay City Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Broad, 136 Cal. 525, 69 Pac. 225.

60. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1370, 1368—Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374.

In the absence of statute, notes and mortgages to a building and loan association are negotiable and assignable.[61]

Priority.—Statutes may, without violation of the United States Constitution, allow mortgages of mutual building and loan associations priority over other liens on premises subsequently filed.[62]

Insurance of mortgaged property.—A provision in the by-laws requiring borrowing members to insure their premises for the security of the association, and authorizing the association on failure of the borrower to make renewals, makes the association the borrower's agent and places on it the liability for loss in case it neglects to keep the property insured.[63]

Dues and fines.—Loan dues characterized by the by-laws as payments on stock cannot be regarded as interest,[64] and stock dues cannot be considered in determining whether interest paid is usurious where it is not intended to apply them to the loan until maturity.[65] Monthly stock dues do not of themselves operate as a pro tanto satisfaction of the loan.[66]

A stipulation to continue payment on stock surrendered at the time of loan is void.[67] The rule differs as to the liability for fines where a borrower has ceased payment.[68] Where, owing to the peculiar relationship of the borrower, fines for delinquent payments have never been charged against him, they should not be allowed in an action by him for the cancellation of his note and deed of trust.[69]

Rights and liabilities of transferees of borrower.—The grantee of a borrowing stockholder stands in the same position as the stockholder.[70]

B. Usury.—An agreement that the stockholder would be bound by the by-laws in existence or afterward adopted does not deprive him of his right to assert usury.[71]

Conflict of laws.—The rule of the federal courts is that the contract of a borrowing stockholder is governed by the law of the state in which the association

61. Prior to passage of Burns' Rev. St. § 4463e—Bowlby v. Kline, 28 Ind. App. 659.

62. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 2014-15; United States Const. art. 14, § 1—Julien v. Model Bldg., Loan & Invest. Co. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 561.

63. Geswine v. Star Bldg. & Loan Co., 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 477.

64. And the only interest to which the association is entitled is the surplus of the total monthly payments for the specified period over the principal of the loan—Western Loan & Sav. Co. v. Desky, 24 Utah, 347, 68 Pac. 141.

65. Boleman v. Citizens' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n, 114 Wis. 247.

66. Caston v. Stafford, 92 Mo. App. 182.

67. Such an agreement by a member of a foreign mutual loan association, held to be without consideration and the borrower's obligation to be discharged by repayment of the loan, with interest—Kear v. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Neb.) 90 N. W. 643.

68. Fines may be embraced in a verdict in an action by the building association against the member—Cottingham v. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ga.) 41 S. E. 72, 74. His connection with the association as a stockholder having ceased he is no longer liable for fines for non-payment of premiums—Kleimeir v. Covington Perpetual Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 735, 70 S. W. 41.

69. Loan by a building and loan association to its attorney—Arbuthnot v. Brookfield Loan & Bldg. Ass'n (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 132.

70. If he assumes performance of the grantor's obligation he becomes personally bound and his notice of the nature of his grantor's obligation is not limited to the recitals in the deed of trust—Caston v. Stafford, 92 Mo. App. 182. One to whom the mortgagor has conveyed and assigned the mortgaged stock, cannot on failure to pay installments, object to the enforcement of fines provided for by the association by-laws—Boleman v. Citizens' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n, 114 Wis. 247. Where a borrower executes a mortgage providing for usurious premiums, the grantee of the mortgaged premises, who is admitted into membership by the association, may have credit for the usurious payments made by his grantor, whether he has agreed to assume a mortgage debt or not—Middle States Loan Bldg. & Const. Co. v. Baker, 19 App. D. C. 1. A purchaser of property who assumes payment on a building and loan association mortgage as part of the purchase price, can set up a defense of usury or have premiums credited to the principal because the association has become insolvent—Deitch v. Staub (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 309. Where the borrower has paid usurious interest, one to whom he has conveyed the land subject to the mortgage, can have the usurious excess applied to the principal, though he has no such rights as regards excess interest paid by himself—Irwin v. Washington Loan Ass'n (Or.) 71 Pac. 142.

71. The by-law asserted was passed after the loan. Contracts waiving usury are against public policy—Georgia State B. & L. Ass'n v. Grant (Miss.) 34 So. 84.

is incorporated and has its home office, if the subscription to stock was there made and payments of stock instalments and interest are there payable,[72] and if the parties to the contract intended that there should be no violation of local usury laws, provisions intending to make the contract one of another state will not be regarded as for the purpose of enabling a violation of the law;[73] but Mississippi holds that a loan contract and mortgage is governed by the law of the state where the property is situated,[74] and is not freed from usury by the fact that a premium incidental to the stock contract is part of a contract separate from that of the loan and similar to those used in the state of the corporation's domicile where the by-laws fixed the place of performance;[75] while Nebraska holds that a foreign building and loan association is subject to its usury laws and that a premium to be paid by taking stock in a foreign corporation which has not complied with the state laws is usurious.[76]

Where a foreign association makes a loan and stipulates that it shall be with reference to the law of the state of its domicile, the rule as to accounting in such state may be followed.[77] Mortgages given to foreign building and loan associations are not affected by subsequent local acts.[78]

Exemption of building associations from general usury laws.—Building and loan associations are, by statute in certain states, exempted from the usury laws;[79]

72. Though the security is situated in another state—Interstate B. & L. Ass'n v. Edgefield Hotel Co., 120 Fed. 422; Alexander v. Southern Home B. & L. Ass'n, 120 Fed. 963; Gale v. Southern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 117 Fed. 732.

73. Provisions will not be regarded as for the purpose of avoiding the law of Virginia which are for the purpose of making the contract an Alabama one, if it was expected that the stock would be matured at such time as to render the rate of interest less than that allowed by the laws of Virginia—Gale v. Southern B. & L. Ass'n, 117 Fed. 732.

74. National Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. Hulet (Miss.) 33 So. 3. Interest was payable to local boards in the state where the property was located according to the association's by-laws and was held to be governed by the local laws as to usury—Georgia State B. & L. Ass'n v. Shannon, 80 Miss. 642. Contract for a loan on land in Mississippi by an association having no office or general agent in the state but with special agents in various towns authorized to solicit subscriptions for stock, take application for loans and receive payments of dues, interest and premiums—National Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. Brahan, 80 Miss. 407. A contract by foreign building association having no office or general agent within the state but having provided a place of payment of loans within the state and established a local board, making its secretary and treasurer agent to receive payment, is regarded as a local contract—National Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. Farnham (Miss.) 33 So. 2.

75. Georgia State B. & L. Ass'n v. Brown (Miss.) 31 So. 911.

76. Contract called for six per cent. interest on a loan of $1,500 and a premium of $1,500 to be paid for taking stock to such amount and the making of monthly payments thereon of $9 until the stock matured—Anselme v. American S. & L. Ass'n (Neb.) 92 N. W. 745.

77. Loan by Maryland association on land in the District of Columbia; adoption of the Maryland rule, where the result of an accounting in the District is found to be the same—Middle States Loan, Bldg. & Construction Co. v. Baker, 19 App. D. C. 1.

78. Hurd's Rev. St. 1901, p. 479—Carpenter v. Welty, 101 Ill. App. 58.

Foreign loans. (Note.) An association which loans and does business in another state may therein charge no higher interest than the laws of such state permit. If it actually makes the loan in a state, it is of no avail that the contract specifies that it is subject to the laws of a foreign domicile (Shannon v. Georgia Building Ass'n, 84 Am. St. Rep. 657, 78 Miss. 955, cited in note to Floyd v. National Loan Co., 87 Am. St. Rep. 805, 826; S. C. 49 W. Va. 327).

What law governs in determining whether a loan by a foreign building association is usurious. (Note.) Though there is some apparent conflict in the authorities upon this point, the true answer will depend on the foreign or domestic character of the loan contract and the question whether or not it was designed to evade domestic usury laws. It was held that where the loan was in fact payable in the state of the borrower's residence, it was to be regarded as a contract of that state and governed by its laws; hence the fact that the contract contained a stipulation for payment in the foreign domicile of the lender was of no avail to make such contract a foreign one and thus to avoid usury laws of the state where the payment was to be made (Pacific Savings Co. v. Hill, 91 Am. St. Rep. 477, 40 Ore. 280, 67 Pac. 103; Hicinbothern v. Interstate Ass'n, 40 Ore. 511, 69 Pac. 1018). See discussion of these cases and others in note 91 Am. St. Rep. 484.

79. Under Rev. St. 1889, § 2814, Rev. St. 1899, § 1364, a membership and stock subscription contract cannot be claimed to be a fraud on the usury law—Stanley v. Verity (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 727. Where it is found on foreclosure that the mortgagee is a interest and premium payments together may exceed the legal rate;[80] and such statutes do not deny the equal protection of the laws,[81] interfere with property rights, or grant special privilege.[82] Statutes rendering the execution of premiums and fines nonusurious do not validate specific reservations of interest in excess of the legal rate.[83] The use of a form of contract employed by building and loan associations is not sufficient to show a loan to be made by such an association.[84]

Premiums.—Premiums for a loan do not render it usurious,[85] though a requirement of a payment monthly of a specified sum, called premium, in addition to a legal rate of interest, is void,[86] if not a monthly instalment of a fixed and determined premium for the loan.[87] A statute providing that a borrower, instead of paying the entire premium in advance, may pay it in equal monthly or other instalments, does not authorize other than a fixed and definite amount of premium.[88] If by statute, establishment of a fixed premium for loans is authorized, one who borrows at less than the premium fixed, though in addition to interest the total amounts to more than the legal rate, cannot claim that the transaction is usurious.[89] Contracts in which a gross premium is deducted from, and an annual premium made payable on, a loan may be legalized by subsequent statutes.[90] Where the terms of a loan call for interest at a certain rate and premium, the total being in excess of the statutory percentage, only the amount named as interest may be exacted by the association.[91] If the sum of premiums and instalments on stock is in excess of legalized interest, the mortgage is usurious only as to excessive payments.[92] The extortionateness of a premium fixed by the by-laws of an association may be determined by the courts.[93] Where premiums are constructively interest, the time when stock is to mature becomes essential.[94] The legal rate of interest which may be agreed on verbally does not control the question of usury in the exaction of premiums and instalments in addition to a rate named in the bond.[95] homestead loan association, it may take more than the rate of interest otherwise allowed by law—Collins v. Cobe, 202 Ill. 469.

80. Sanb. & B. Ann. St. § 2013—Bullman v. Citizens' L. & B. Ass'n (Wis.) 90 N. W. 199.

81. The federal court held that the statute was not so clearly within the constitutional inhibition as to authorize it in declaring it invalid after it had been sustained by the state supreme court—Brandon v. Miller, 118 Fed. 361.

82. Rev. St. § 3836-3 does not violate Const. art. 1, §§ 1, 2—Spies v. Southern Ohio L. & T. Co., 24 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 40.

83. Comp. Laws, §§ 7581, 7584—Estey v. Capitol Inv. B. & L. Ass'n (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 424, 91 N. W. 753.

84. For the purpose of preventing the contract from being void by usury laws—Hyland v. Phoenix Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 92 N. W. 63.

85. Savings & Loan Association incorporated under laws 1851, c. 122—Roberts v. Murray, 40 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 339.

86. On accounting, payments so made should be charged as on account of the principal debt—Middle States Loan, Bldg. & Construction Co. v. Baker, 19 App. D. C. 1. A contract requiring a borrower to pay monthly premium and dues which with the interest on the loan exceed the legal rate is usurious (Laws 1886, p. 35, §§ 1, 2)—National Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. Pinkston, 79 Miss. 468.

87. Washington Nat. B. & L. Ass'n v. Andrews, 95 Md. 696.

88. It is not a fixed premium to require "no more than" a certain number of fixed installments. Construing Code, art. 23, § 98, Acts 1894, c. 321—Washington Nat. B. & L. Ass'n v. Andrews, 95 Md. 696.

89. Cover v. Mercantile Mut. B. & L. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 302.

90. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 4463 (Horner's Rev. St. 1897, § 3406i)—Racer v. International B. & L. Ass'n (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 772.

91. Bel. & C. Ann. Codes & St. § 4595, allows interest at the rate of 10 per cent. The contract called for 6 per cent. interest and a certain amount on each share of stock pledged. Held, that the association was entitled to interest at the rate of 6 per cent. only—Hubert v. Washington Nat. Bldg., Loan & Inv. Ass'n (Or.) 71 Pac. 64.

92. Irwin v. Washington Loan Ass'n (Or.) 71 Pac. 142.

93. Fixing a premium of forty cents per hundred dollars in addition to interest at 7 1-5 per cent. is not extortionate—Cover v. Mercantile Mut. B. & L. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 302.

94. Evidence as to the time of maturity is essential where it is contended that a premium deducted as an entire sum from the face of the loan is constructive interest because not fixed by competitive bidding—Laidley v. Cram, 96 Mo. App. 580.

95. Sums withheld whether regarded as

Competitive bidding to determine premiums.—The policy of certain states now is to favor fixed rates of interest and premiums,[96] the statutes of other states make a premium, over the legal rate of interest, not fixed by competitive bidding, usurious.[97] Premiums not fixed by competition or opportunity therefor are regarded as interest, and if when added to the stipulated interest they exceed the highest legal rate, the loan is usurious,[98] and the excessive premiums will be applied to the principal.[99]

The premium paid may be a certain per cent rather than a stated sum.[1] The bidding must be at a directors' meeting held for the purpose,[2] and a by-law providing a fixed minimum premium to be paid in advance out of the money borrowed renders a loan, made thereafter on competitive bidding, usurious,[3] though the premium so fixed was in excess of the minimum amount.[4] The burden is on the defendant borrower to show that a premium was not fixed as required by statute.[5]

Statutes authorizing a premium to be agreed on without bidding do not authorize the taking of two premiums, one in gross and one payable monthly.[6]

The stockholders need not meet whenever a loan is auctioned, though it is provided that loans shall be offered at open meeting, and a by-law may provide that the secretary on written authority may bid for the stockholder and a bid in writing be lawful.[7]

Application of usurious payments.—If the contract is usurious, the borrower should be charged with the amount of the loan and credited with the value of the stock and sums paid on interest and premiums.[8] He is entitled to credit on his loan of the entire amount of the usurious interest, though it is provided that a portion of such payments are to be applied to the operating expenses of the company;[9] but it has been elsewhere held that he cannot be credited with payments on the expense account or with fines and withdrawal fees[10] or with dividends,[11] actual premiums or constructive interest are not usurious unless the entire amount exceed the rate of interest which may be contracted for in writing, though the bond in addition provides for interest at five per cent.—Laidley v. Cram, 96 Mo. App. 580.

96. Bullman v. Citizens' L. & B. Ass'n (Wis.) 90 N. W. 199.

97. Trainor v. German American S. L. & B. Ass'n, 102 Ill. App. 604. Rev. St. 1889, §§ 2812, 2814—Cover v. Mercantile Mut. B. & L. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 302.

98. Laidley v. Cram, 96 Mo. App. 580.

99. Moses v. National L. & I. Co., 92 Mo. App. 484.

1. Comp. Laws, §§ 7581, 7584—Estey v. Capitol Inv., B. & L. Ass'n (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 424, 91 N. W. 753.

2. Moses v. National L. & I. Co., 92 Mo. App. 484.

3. The by-law was passed prior to Rev. St. 1899, c. 1362—Thudium v. Brookfield L. & B. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 134.

4. Rev. St. 1889, § 2812. A by-law fixing a minimum premium of 6 per cent. vitiates a loan though the premium actually received as a consequence of competitive bidding was 25 per cent.—Arbuthnot v. Brookfield L. & B. Ass'n (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 132.

5. Competitive bidding—Deitch v. Staub (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 309. Evidence that the majority of loans had been made on a bid of a certain amount and that the secretary stated to applicants that such amount with the interest charged would probably mature their stock within a certain time, that the secretary had been so advised by an actuary, that such were the usual results, that this caused many of the bids to be put in on that basis, but that no rate was fixed by the directors and the bid was left to the option of the applicants, does not show that a fixed rate of interest was charged—Bullman v. Citizens' L. & B. Ass'n (Wis.) 90 N. W. 199.

6. Acts 1885, § 6, p. 83, required competitive bidding as to premiums. Acts 1897, p. 287, provided that the given rate of premium might be agreed on without bidding. Held, that the latter act did not authorize the double premium—International B. & L. Ass'n v. Radebaugh (Ind.) 64 N. E. 604.

7. Directors having control of the business with power to enact by-laws provided by by-laws for directors' meetings open to all stockholders at which loans were to be occasioned. Construing Sand. & B. Ann. St. § 2011—Bullman v. Citizens' L. & B. Ass'n (Wis.) 90 N. W. 199.

8. People's Bldg., Loan & Sav. Ass'n v. Marston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1034. A receiver cannot collect either costs or interest on a usurious borrowing contract and the borrower should be credited with all dues and interest paid—Carpenter v. Lewis (S. C.) 43 S. E. 881.

9. Middle States Loan, Bldg. & Construction Co. v. Baker, 19 App. D. C. 1.

10. Georgia State B. & L. Ass'n v. Grant (Miss.) 34 So. 84.

11. Where the loan is usurious, the borrower is entitled to be credited with all pay-and if the stock contract is separate from that for the usurious loan, the borrower may be credited only with the withdrawal value of the stock.[12]

Settlements waiving usury.—A change in the form of the usurious contract, at the request of the association, to make it in accord with a new plan of doing business, will not be regarded as a settlement of the borrower's claim for usury.[13] One who has, by settlement, participated in profits arising from contracts similar to his own, cannot claim that the contract and settlement is usurious,[14] and contracts may be purged of usury in equity where settlements have been made by the parties with full knowledge of their rights.[15]

Cancellation of contract.—Notice of desire to pay a loan need not be given before suing to cancel a note and deed of trust for usury.[16] Where it is desired to avoid a loan on account of usury, it must be alleged that premium is contrary to the by-laws. It is not sufficient to allege that it is forbidden by the statute.[17]

Particular contracts.—In the footnotes are given contracts regarded as usurious,[18] and not usurious.[19]

ments, whether indicated as premiums or interest as payment on an ordinary 6 per cent. loan, but in such case is not entitled to dividends on the stock—Kleimeir v. Covington Perpetual B. & L. Ass'n, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 735, 70 S. W. 41.

12. Georgia State B. & L. Ass'n v. Brown (Miss.) 31 So. 911.

13. The new contract included all money due by the old and additional repayment and expense charges—Hyland v. Phoenix Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 92 N. W. 63.

14. Cover v. Mercantile Mut. B. & L. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 302.

15. Equity has the right to consider the circumstances attending the entire matter as well as the relation and rights of the parties—Trainor v. German-American S. L. & B. Ass'n, 102 Ill. App. 604.

16. Rev. St. 1899, § 1368, does not require such notice though a balance is found due the association—Thudium v. Brookfield L. & B. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 134.

17. Under statutes construed to allow an association to loan on a fixed premium, which together with interest exceeds the rate that others may charge—Gale v. Southern B. & L. Ass'n, 117 Fed. 732.

18. On application for the loan of $1,900, the borrower received $1,710, the difference being credited to the private account of the association and the borrower agreed to pay $12.35 per month stock dues and $15.84 per month interest and premiums. Held, that as the monthly payments of $15.84 were to be regarded as interest, they exceeded the statutory rate of 10 per cent. per annum, the sum loaned being only $1,710, and the contract was usurious—People's Bldg., Loan & Sav. Ass'n v. Marston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1034. The contract was in the nominal sum of $1,500, dated June 14th, the borrower did not receive a first payment of $750 until Sept. 23rd, and of the second payment on December 23rd, $171 was reserved for monthly premiums to date—Hyland v. Phoenix Loan Ass'n (Iowa) 92 N. W. 63. It is unconscionable for a contract to provide that the borrower should repay double the amount borrowed together with interest, and a mortgage securing such contract will not be foreclosed. At the time of the loan the borrower purchased stock to the amount of the loan and immediately reassigned it to the association absolutely in consideration of the advancement, "by way of anticipation of the value at the maturity" of the shares, and it was further provided that the par value of the shares was given the association as a premium. The borrower was required to pay the loan with interest in seven years together with the entire premium if the stock had then matured, and if it had not, so much of the premium as had been earned or, in default of such payment, to keep up the dues on the stock until it matured, in addition to the payment of interest—Pacific States Sav., Loan & Bldg. Co. v. Green, 114 Fed. 412. It is sufficient to authorize a submission of a question as to whether a loan obligation was a device to evade usury laws, where a contract allows receipt of full interest on the principal until the maturity of the stock and the retention of all payments to such time, and plaintiff testifies that such payments were to be immediately applied on principal—Walter v. Mutual Home Sav. Ass'n (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 536. Sufficiency of evidence to establish that contract was a device to cover usury—Cotton States Bldg. Co. v. Rawlins (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 786. Subscription for stock and payment of premiums at the time of renewal of a loan, an amount of stock equal to the loan having been subscribed at the time of the original loan, is regarded as a mere pretext for usurious interest—Kleimeir v. Covington B. & L. Ass'n, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 735, 70 S. W. 41. Sufficiency of evidence to show that a transaction leading to a loan was free of fraud and without concealment, though usurious—Cover v. Mercantile Mut. B. & L. Ass'n, 93 Mo. App. 302.

19. On a loan of $2,250, the borrower paid 10 per cent. premium, also $1.00 per share premium for stock, and agreed to pay monthly $12.38 interest at 6 per cent. on the loan and premium, and 30c per share or $7.24 to be applied to payment of the stock. Held, that the transaction was not usurious—Hall v. Stowell, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 21. Six per cent. interest together with premiums of 16 2-3c a month on each $100 share, dues of 50c per month, and fines of 10c per month during default therein, are not usurious or

C. Default and foreclosure.—A provision for a shorter period of default than indicated by statute is not material to the validity of a mortgage where the association is not attempting to enforce such provision.[20] A borrower is not in default who has been prevented from making his monthly payments by the act of the association.[21] Where the borrower defaults he should be credited with the present value of his stock, and for such purpose, the stock will be regarded as equal to the sum of stock payments and declared dividends.[22]

Foreclosure.—A new corporation, assuming the liabilities of the former association to which the mortgagor had paid his dues and interest for about 4 years, may foreclose though the mortgage was not given to it originally.[23] The association is entitled to interest and monthly premium as provided in the contract to the time of decree.[24] Where an association satisfies a decree of foreclosure in consideration of an execution of the mortgage, if the mortgage is void the satisfaction is void.[25]

Foreclosure after insolvency.—In foreclosure of a borrowing member's mortgage by receivers, the member's claim against the association is properly left unadjusted.[26] Foreclosure will not be denied because dividends to which defendants would be entitled, are not yet ascertained,[27] and the member is not entitled to a computation of such dividends.[28] The mortgagor's stock should be sold and the proceeds credited on the debt before recourse to the premises,[29] and foreclosure will not be awarded where the payments on stock, interest, and premiums discharge the debt in full.[30] The stockholder cannot assert, as against foreclosure of his mortgage, that the association was improperly managed or that the contract was ultra vires.[31] Dues and premiums included in the bond should not be made part of the mortgage debt.[32]

D. Accounting between borrower and association. 1. In general.—The borrower's liability is for the sum loaned with such interest as may be rightfully collected under the contract.[33] The by-laws may be resorted to to determine the proportion of monthly payments to be applied to interest.[34] Interest on pre-unreasonable—Spies v. Southern Ohio L. & T. Co., 24 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 40. A borrower subscribed for 30 shares of stock, par value $240 each and applied for a loan $7,200 bidding 25 per cent. premium. The association withheld the premium, $1,800 and paid him $5,400. The borrower agreed to pay $30 monthly installment of stock and also $30 monthly interest, such payments to be continued until the stock should be worth $240, at which time it should be applied to the payment of the loan and cancelled. Held that the contract was not usurious—Laidley v. Cram, 96 Mo. App. 580.

20. Sand. & B. Ann. St. § 2011—Boleman v. Citizens' Loan & Bldg. Ass'n, 114 Wis. 217.

21. Home Sav. Ass'n v. Noblesville Monthly Meeting of Friends Church (Ind. App.) 64 N. E. 478.

22. People's Bldg., Loan & Sav. Ass'n v. Gilmore (Neb.) 90 N. W. 108.

23. It appeared that by mortgagor's consent the assets had been handed over to plaintiff association, and that he was relying on reimbursement from assets of which the mortgage in question was part—Helping Hand Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Samuelson, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 134.

24. It is not limited to the legal rate of interest from the commencement of suit—Racer v. International Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 772.

25. Kelso v. Oak Park Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 99 Ill. App. 123.

26. There was no proof as to the value of the member's stock, or as to the probable dividend which would be paid from the assets—Riggs v. Carter (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 580.

27. Breed v. Ruoff, 173 N. Y. 340.

28. The bond and mortgage obliged the member to pay the principal and interest of the loan in full—Hoagland v. Saul (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 704.

29. The stock was assigned as collateral to the mortgage—Hoagland v. Saul (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 704.

30. Meares v. Finlayson, 63 S. C. 537.

31. Menominee Loan & Bldg. Ass'n v. Lovell (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 420, 91 N. W. 743.

32. Such dues and premiums being part of a scheme which has failed, to enable the par value of the stock to be applied to the payment of the borrower's debts and the redemption of the non-borrowers' shares—Hoagland v. Saul (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 704.

33. Interstate Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Holland (S. C.) 43 S. E. 978.

34. The mortgage on its face did not show how much was to be so applied on a mium payments should not be credited on the principal if not usurious.[35] The member should not be allowed interest on interest rightfully paid.[36] Interest may be charged on the full amount of his loan though there was an illegal premium.[37] Where there is a tender of settlement of a loan, further payment of interest is released.[38]

Provisions that where the stock held as security is matured, the total payments of instalments, interest, and premiums will not exceed the amount of the advance together with interest at the highest legal rate, cannot be taken advantage of by the borrower until maturity of the stock.[39] The same is true of a provision in a by-law that only so much of the premium collected on contracts governed by laws that limit the aggregate amount of premium and interest that can be taken on them shall be taken as profits, as will in addition to the interest collected, equal the highest legal rate.[40]

Payments made on account of operating expenses should not be credited the loan,[41] or admission fees, stock dues and fines,[42] or insurance premiums required by the contract.[43]

The borrower should be credited with the withdrawal value of his stock at time of the loan and with subsequent payments of stock dues, interest, and premiums with interest from the time of payment.[44] Where credit is given for the amount paid, no further deduction for stock should be made on an accounting.[45] On accounting between a foreign association and a borrowing member, the borrower may have the value of his stock credited on the debt, though not prior to his election, and if there is no evidence of its actual value, stock will be valued at the amount actually paid on it. Dividends earned may also be applied.[46] Interest should be allowed on dues from date of payment.[47] The withdrawal value of stock of a stranger cannot be applied to a mortgage debt except by his express direction.[48]

The stockholder, seeking accounting, should allege that his stock has been brought to par by payment of monthly dues, thus entitling him to a release of his deed of trust.[49] sum payable monthly—Washington Nat. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Andrews, 95 Md. 696.

35. McDowell v. Pioneer Sav. & Loan Co. (Neb.) 90 N. W. 111.

36. In computing amount due on withdrawal—Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374.

37. The loan was subject to deduction of $10 attorney's fees and $16.50 premium, which was credited on the loan—Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374.

38. Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374.

39. Stipulation contained in the bond giving the stockholder on attempting to withdraw at any time the right to have account taken so that he shall only pay by way of interest the highest legal rate—Georgia State Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Grant (Miss.) 34 So. 84.

40. Georgia State Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Grant (Miss.) 34 So. 84.

41. McDowell v. Pioneer Sav. & Loan Co. (Neb.) 90 N. W. 111.

42. Though there is a by-law providing that a certain amount per share should be set aside for expenses, since the borrower on becoming a debtor of the association is no longer a member—Interstate Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Holland (S. C.) 43 S. E. 978.

43. Alexander v. Southern Home Bldg & Loan Ass'n, 120 Fed. 963.

44. Interstate Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Holland (S. C.) 43 S. E. 978.

45. Mercantile Co-Operative Bank v. Schaaf (Neb.) 89 N. W. 990. The borrower is not entitled to credit for dues and also for value of stock—Sappington v. Aetna Loan Co., 91 Mo. App. 551.

46. McDowell v. Pioneer Sav. & Loan Co. (Neb.) 90 N. W. 111.

47. Sappington v. Aetna Loan Co., 91 Mo. App. 551.

48. It was recited in a quitclaim deed from the association that the grantee's husband desired to withdraw his certificate and that it should be applied as a partial payment on the debt of the mortgagor. In the granting clause it was recited that in consideration of a payment of a sum of money and of the "cancellation of said certificates," the interest in the land and the mortgage held by the association was conveyed. Held, that the husband's certificate was withdrawn in consideration for the deed and was not to be applied on the mortgage as a payment, the other certificates mentioned being those of the mortgagor—McMillan v. Craft, 135 Ala. 148.

49. Caston v. Stafford, 92 Mo. App. 182.

The adjustment of a loan and acceptance of profits due a borrowing member will not be reviewed in an action to settle the rights of the parties under a new loan then made.[50] A mistaken statement to a stockholder that a loan was fully paid is not binding where immediately recalled before intervention of added rights.[51]

2. Rights of borrower on voluntary liquidation.—Stockholders are accounted with on the same principle whether the association is solvent or insolvent on voluntary liquidation.[52] On voluntary liquidation, a borrowing member can be credited only with payments made on the loan specifically, together with the value of the shares if it can practically be determined;[53] he is not entitled to damages for failure of the association to carry out the contract, and should be credited on his debt only with payments made as borrower.[54]

A judicial adjustment may be demanded by a borrowing member where an association on notifying him that it has decided to wind up its affairs refuses further payment under the contract and demands payment of a certain sum largely in excess of the loan; he is then required only to repay the loan with legal interest less premium and interest paid, and cannot be required to continue payments under the contract; interest at the legal rate is to be charged him to the date of adjustment of the claim and not to the date at which the company refused payments; and the association cannot complain of an apportionment of payments in a manner already adopted by it though not in compliance with the written contract. The court should fix the time for payment of the amount found due into court and make provision for the enforcement of a mortgage security.[55]

3. After insolvency of association. In general.—On receivership, the borrower need not comply further with his contract but there must be an equitable adjustment with the association.[56] Limitations of the right to demand direct payments of loans before the member's stock matures become inoperative.[57] Where it is not shown that the association was insolvent or that there had been prior losses at the date of termination of membership, a borrowing stockholder is entitled to credit for everything paid in excess of a legal rate of interest,[58] together with such payments as are not referable to the stock.[59] A mortgagor is entitled to credit for interest paid an association to be paid the holder of a prior mortgage and which has not been so paid, if an inequality of the final distribution of the assets of the association, it being insolvent, is not thereby produced.[60] Lim-

50. Callison v. Trenton Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 477.

51. Alexander v. Southern Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 120 Fed. 963.

52. People's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. McPhillamy (Miss.) 32 So. 1001; Same v. Hawks, Id.

53. He is not entitled to credit of the total amount paid including stock dues, and if the value of the shares cannot be estimated he must wait until distribution by the receiver before receiving their value—People's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. McPhillamy (Miss.) 32 So. 1001; Same v. Hawks, Id.

54. On adjusting his claim a special contract as to monthly payments was regarded as abrogated and the member regarded simply as a debtor—Home Sav. Ass'n v. Noblesville Monthly Meeting of Friends Church (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 465.

55. Home Sav. Ass'n v. Noblesville Monthly Meeting of Friends Church (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 465.

56. Hall v. Stowell (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 21; Riggs v. Carter (N. Y.) 77 App. Div. 580.

57. Western Realty & Investment Co. v. Haase (Conn.) 53 Atl. 861. If it become necessary by reason of an assignment for benefit of creditors, to wind up the association, a borrower cannot complain that maturity of his loan is thereby hastened—Catlett v. U. S. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 200, 68 S. W. 123.

58. The only evidence of losses was that the assignee for the benefit of creditors of the association had charged off sums on account of uncollected usury and that there had been judgments recovered for usury collected—Olliges v. Ky. Citizens' Bldg. & Loan Ass'n's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1954, 72 S. W. 747.

59. Hall v. Stowell (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 21.

60. Whitehead v. Commercial Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 679.

itation of an action to recover a loan to a borrowing member begins to run at the date of appointment of a receiver on insolvency of the association.[61]

Credit and charges for premiums.—Payments of premiums should be credited to the debt,[62] without interest.[63] The member cannot be charged with premiums to be paid.[64] A stockholder after insolvency is not entitled to credit for premiums paid by reason of a provision in the bond that on final settlement the association was to retain, as instalment on the stock and interest, no more than the sum actually advanced with interest at a stated rate.[65]

Credits for dues.—In fixing the amount due on a mortgage to an insolvent association, the stock of the borrower, or payments, fines, dues, or penalties thereon cannot be considered.[66] He cannot be credited on the debt with sums paid as dues on stock.[67] On foreclosure by the receiver, they cannot be taken into consideration, but must await final distribution.[68] The borrower is not entitled to credit though before the assignment she has taken steps to have the dues applied to the discharge of the debt, if before such steps were taken the association was insolvent and endeavoring to wind up its affairs.[69] In the absence of fraud, a borrowing member who has assigned his certificate of stock as security cannot, after insolvency of the association, have his payments on stock credited to the loan, on the ground that he was not a stockholder.[70]

Credits for value of shares.—Provisions for final settlement with borrowers may be made the basis of a settlement on insolvency of the association before the stock matures.[71] Subsequent insolvency and assignment of the assets of the association does not affect the withdrawing member's right to credit for the value of his pledged stock and dividends already declared.[72] If the articles of the association provide that obligations due it may be canceled by applying the amount to the credit of all shares owned by the borrower, he is entitled on insolvency of the corporation to such credit, and if their value may be proximated, they may be set off in an action by the receiver on the note, though it is difficult or impossible to determine their exact value.[73] Credit to be allowed on shares is to be

61. Contract provided that the loan should be repaid at a future time and pledged the partly paid stock as security, stock to be paid by monthly dues, with an alternate provision for repayment of the loan thereby—Clarke v. Caufman (Kan.) 71 Pac. 241.

62. Since the association being unable to perform its part of the plan under which they were paid, they are without consideration—Hoagland v. Saul (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 704; Roberts v. Murray (N. Y.) 40 Misc. Rep. 339.

63. Barry v. Friel, 114 Fed. 989.

64. Roberts v. Murray (N. Y.) 40 Misc. Rep. 339.

65. Alexander v. Southern Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 120 Fed. 963.

66. Barry v. Friel, 114 Fed. 989.

67. In an action by the assignee of the insolvent association—U. S. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n's Assignee v. Fitzpatrick, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 222, 68 S. W. 400; Catlett v. U. S. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 200, 68 S. W. 123. The condition was to pay the principal in six months with interest "together with all dues and premiums due at the expiration of each month"—Hoagland v. Saul (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 704; Coltrane v. Blake (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 785; Andrews v. Kentucky Citizens' Bldg. & Loan Ass'n's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 966, 70 S. W. 409; Whitehead v. Commercial Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 679.

68. They should neither be charged the member or set off against the loan—Roberts v. Murray (N. Y.) 40 Misc. Rep. 339.

69. Wills v. Paducah Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ky.) 67 S. W. 991.

70. Monthly payments as interest and payments on stock, were continued for more than 3 years—Stanley v. Verity (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 727.

71. Where the bond provided that on final settlement with the association, it should retain as installment on the stock and interest, no greater sum than the amount actually advanced with interest at the rate of 8 per cent., final settlements should be made under such provision, the borrower being charged with the loan and interest and credited with the installments of stock and interest paid as partial payments—Interstate Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Edgefield Hotel Co., 120 Fed. 422.

72. The action was begun before insolvency—Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374.

73. Robinson v. Spencer (N. Y.) 72 App. Div. 493.

computed according to their actual value. Statutory notice precedent to repayment of a loan and surrender of pledged stock may be waived, though a withdrawing member desiring credit on account of stock assigned to him subsequent to the loan must have given notice of its withdrawal.[74]

Dividends earned prior to insolvency should be credited on the loan of a withdrawing shareholder.[75]

§ 4. Termination and insolvency of association.—The court of an insolvent association's domicile in which its affairs are being wound up is a court of primary jurisdiction, and the courts of other states in which shareholders and assets are located should remit collections made by them in either ancillary or original receiverships to the domiciliary court for equitable distribution.[76]

Receivership.—Where a corporation is not only insolvent but its business has been carelessly managed, its affairs may be wound up though insolvency alone might not be sufficient ground.[77] Minority stockholders are entitled to receivership where the assets of the association have been permitted to be absorbed by a competing company and its affairs so managed that it becomes insolvent and they may have the transaction set aside,[78] and a member who has given notice of withdrawal may, notwithstanding, sue for appointment of receiver and equitable relief.[79] Where statutes provide that a receiver shall not be appointed for an association in liquidation except on application of the state auditor, a receiver cannot be appointed in an action by a shareholder though the association went into liquidation after the action was begun.[80]

Insolvency will not be inferred from a receivership.[81] Where the available assets are less than the value of the stock paid in, the association is insolvent.[82] In computing liabilities shareholders should be regarded as entitled to the amounts they have paid in, without deduction of expenses.[83]

Rights of withdrawing and paid up shareholders.—Shareholders, before withdrawal claims have been filed, are not creditors,[84] their status is not changed by payment of premiums and dues in advance, notice of withdrawal before assignment, or merging of claim into judgment; nor does the association become a borrower from a stockholder by the fact that the amount due on the stock was in the hands of the association at the time of assignment and after a demand for

74. Notice required by Rev. St. 1899, § 1368, is waived where the association disputes merely the amount owed—Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374.

75. Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374.

76. Whether such courts are state or federal—Southern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Miller (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 369.

77. P. L. 1899, p. 366, provides that an injunction against further operation and the appointment of a receiver may be had where the association is insolvent, exceeding its powers, or violating the law; or where its methods of business or continuation render its further operation hazardous to the public or those whose funds it has in custody; and, in the case at bar, it appeared that the association had been running 8½ years, was insolvent, its withdrawals large, expenses extravagant, investments careless, and there was no probability of maturing the shares within reasonable time. The association had been compelled to take property to an amount more than the first mortgage securities to prevent losses on loans—Bettle v. Republic Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 63 N. J. Eq. 578.

78. Continental Nat. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Miller (Fla.) 33 So. 404.

79. The association had failed to set apart a fund to pay withdrawing members and other actions of the directors justified the proceeding—Continental Nat. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Miller (Fla.) 33 So. 402.

80. Construing Burns' Rev. St. 1901, §§ 4477, 4479; Horner's Rev. St. 1901, §§ 3420ii, 3420kk; Acts 1899, p. 84, § 8; Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 4463h; Horner's Rev. St. 1901, § 3406h—Huntington County Loan & Sav. Ass'n v. Fulk, 158 Ind. 113.

81. In a bill for an accounting on a loan where insolvency is not alleged—Caston v. Stafford, 92 Mo. App. 182.

82. Where stockholders cannot be paid the full amount of their contributions—Continental Nat. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Miller (Fla.) 33 So. 404.

83. Sufficiency of evidence of insolvency—Bettle v. Republic Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 63 N. J. Eq. 578.

84. Bettle v. Republic Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 63 N. J. Eq. 578.

payment.[85] Notice of withdrawal does not give a preference over other members on distribution of assets in insolvency, against express provisions of the by-laws,[86] or if the association is insolvent before withdrawal is accomplished;[87] but where the holder of matured shares surrenders them and causes his certificate to be canceled, though he allows the amount due to remain with the association, his claim is entitled to preference over those whose stock has not matured at the time of insolvency,[88] and shareholders, who are issued certificates of indebtedness on withdrawal, obtain preference over other shareholders.[89] Holders of fully paid stock have no preference on insolvency over other stockholders,[90] being regarded as shareholders and not creditors;[91] but in Georgia it is held that the holder of fully paid, dividend-guaranteed, nonparticipating stock, is to be regarded as a creditor.[92]

A pledge of secureties to secure preferred shares of fully paid fixed dividend stocks may be enforced on insolvency, there being no general creditors.[93]

Rights of officers.—Directors are not deprived of their rights as creditors in the assets of the association because they have borrowed money beyond its legal capacity, nor is it gross negligence, raising such penalty, for them to mature stock after reports by duly appointed committees as to the financial condition of the association and with the advice of counsel,[94] where there was insufficient evidence to charge them with its insolvency.[95]

Voluntary liquidation.—The question of whether a voluntary liquidation is or is not an administration suit does not alter the rule of distribution among stockholders.[96]

85. The stockholder is not thereby given preference over other stockholders and the sole effect of the judgment, is to fix the amount on which she will receive pro rata distribution in the insolvency proceedings after dues are paid—Manheimer v. Henderson Bldg. & Loan Ass'n's Assignee, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1816, 72 S. W. 313.

86. Coltrane v. Blake (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 785.

87. Though such fact was unknown to the shareholder—Reitz v. Hayward (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 374. If 30 days' notice is required by the by-laws in order that paid up stock may be withdrawn, in order that the status of the shareholder be changed, notice must be given more than 30 days before insolvency proceedings—Coltrane v. Blake (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 785.

88. Jones v. Brennan, 100 Ill. App. 153; Gallagher v. Brennan, 99 Ill. App. 81.

89. Bates v. American Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 1018; Reed v. Solomons, Id.; Solomons v. American Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 116 Fed. 676.

90. The only difference between the two classes of stock was that the holders of the fully paid received interest by a fixed dividend at stated periods instead of a proportionate share of the profits—Coltrane v. Blake (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 785; Bates v. American Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 1018; Reed v. Solomons, Id.

91. Solomons v. American Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 116 Fed. 676; Coltrane v. Blake (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 785.

92. Though the right to payment is not absolute until after a stated period and specified notice and sufficient assets have been received from a specific source to make full payment—Cashen v. Southern Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Ga.) 41 S. E. 51.

93. The corporation, having power to borrow money and mortgage the corporate property, issued prepaid shares bearing a fixed dividend out of the profits. The holders of such share had no vote and the proceeds became part of the fund to be loaned to borrowing shareholders. Held, that the prepaid shareholders were entitled to a preference as against other shareholders in notes and mortgages payable to the association placed in trust for the payment of principal and dividends of the prepaid shares —Wilson v. Parvin (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 652.

94. It is not shown that the money did not go to the association or to what extent there was negligence, if any—Commonwealth v. Anchor Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 101.

95. The evidence of the directors was not contradicted that the first intimation they had of financial difficulty, was an examination by bank examiners and the reports of committees for the examination of the financial affairs of the association had uniformly shown it to be solvent—Commonwealth v. Anchor Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 101.

96. People's Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. McPhillamy (Miss.) 32 So. 1001; Same v. Hawks, Id.

BUILDINGS.

§ 1. Public regulation.—Under general powers, a city cannot compel buildings in a certain locality to conform to a certain standard.[1] The right to regulate does not carry a right to condemn without inspection.[2] An ordinance may provide that in the business portion of a city no stationary or swinging sign or awning shed shall be erected across the sidewalk.[3] A city cannot allow the projection of a building over the sidewalk so as to impair the public use of the street or the passage of light and air to adjacent buildings.[4] An encroachment of a building on the sidewalk is a public nuisance whether the encroachment is for ornament or utility.[5]

Building inspectors are not included in an ordinance relating to the appointment of janitors, engineers, or other persons by the commissioner of public buildings.[6]

Precautions against fire and other casualty.—A statute providing for the provision of fire escapes may impose a duty on the owner independent of the action of the municipal officer or fire engineer.[7] Where lights are required to be maintained in hallways without outside window openings, windows opening into an air shaft, or a skylight at the top of the house, are not outside openings.[8] Cutting a door into a theatre entrance comes within an ordinance concerning such entrances.[9]

§ 2. Private regulation. Covenants as to character of buildings.—Where there are express restrictions in deeds as to the character of buildings, the vendee will not be bound by parol restrictions unless he is shown to have had notice of them before payment for the property.[10] Covenants for the erection of dwellings of a specified character and location run with the land and the fact that a street subse-

1. A power to make building regulations guarding against danger from unsafe construction, and to pass ordinances for the preservation of order and protection of rights and privileges from encroachment or for the maintenance of peace, good government and welfare, does not authorize an ordinance allowing the refusal of a building permit if the proposed building does not conform to the general character of the buildings erected in the locality and will tend to depreciate the value of surrounding property. Construing Baltimore City Charter, Acts 1898, c. 123, that a similar ordinance passed prior to the charter was not rendered valid by the section of the new charter ratifying all ordinances not inconsistent with the charter—Bostock v. Sams, 95 Md. 400.

2. A statute allowing cities of the first class to regulate the management and inspection of elevator hoist ways and elevator shafts, does not allow a city to condemn an entire class of elevator appliances and require their removal without inspection and by a general regulation—Act Pennsylvania, May 5th, 1899—Richmond Safety Gate Co. v. Ashbridge, 116 Fed. 220.

3. Such an ordinance is not an unlawful invasion of the rights of an abutting owner, is not special or discriminatory and its reasonableness will be presumed—Ivins v. Trenton (N. J. Sup.) 53 Atl. 202.

4. Ordinance authorizing the construction of a bay window projecting 18 inches over the sidewalk, held invalid—John Anisfield Co. v. Grossman, 98 Ill. App. 180.

5. Pillars 22 inches in the street may be enjoined by an adjoining owner—First Nat. Bank v. Tyson, 133 Ala. 459.

6. See for construction of the municipal Code and St. Louis City charter as to the right of a commissioner of public buildings to remove the building inspectors appointed by him—State v. Longfellow, 93 Mo. App. 364.

7. Rev. St. c. 26, § 26, as amended by Pub. Laws 1891, c. 89—Carrigan v. Stillwell, 97 Me. 247.

8. Laws 1897, p. 474, c. 378, § 1320—Bretsch v. Plate, 115 N. Y. St. Rep. 868.

9. Cutting of a door in a partition between a store and the entrance of an adjoining theatre without a permit from the building inspector, is a violation of building regulations 1897, § 182, as to theatre entrances and also of section 20 requiring the building inspector to determine whether a formal permit is necessary for an intended repair to a building—Mertz v. District of Columbia, 18 App. D. C. 434.

10. Standard L. & B. Co. v. Schanz (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 620.

quently becomes a business street does not prevent the covenantee while occupying her residence as a dwelling from enforcing the covenant,[11] but a provision in a deed that a house erected on the lot sold should not be of more than certain dimensions does not create an easement in favor of an adjoining owner entitling him to insist that no different building shall ever be erected on the lot conveyed.[12] A covenant against the erection of tenement houses does not forbid the erection of a modern apartment house,[13] nor does a covenant in a deed for the erection of a first class dwelling house;[14] but a covenant similar to the latter prohibits erection of a photograph gallery.[15]

Building lines.—Provisions in deeds controlling the erection of buildings are to be strictly construed against the grantor.[16] Acceptance of a street by the public is an acceptance of the easement created by a building line established in a plat. One owner can be compelled to observe a building line though other owners have violated it.[17] Grantees of adjoining lots cannot enforce a covenant against building within a certain line.[18] The enforcement of a covenant establishing a building line may be rendered inequitable by changing circumstances,[19] or the restriction may expire with other limitations in the deed.[20]

11. A covenant that the grantor, her heirs or assigns, in the case of improvement of adjoining lots, would erect one or more first-class dwelling houses, the fronts of which would be on a line referred to, runs with the land and is binding on a subsequent grantee of such adjoining lots with notice, and one who acquires title to such lots in partition is bound by notice of the covenant obtained from the record of the deed—Holt v. Fleischman, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 593.

12. Boston Baptist Social Union v. Trustees of Boston University (Mass.) 66 N. E. 714.

13. Notwithstanding Laws 1867, c. 908, § 17, declares that a tenement house includes every house occupied as a residence of more than three families, living independently and doing their own cooking, and a covenant against the erection of a tenement house, contained in a deed executed in 1873, is not violated by the erection of a seven story apartment house containing two separate apartments on each floor—Kitchings v. Brown, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 439; White v. Collins Bldg. & Const. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 1.

14. Holt v. Fleischman, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 593.

15. A photograph gallery is within the meaning of a restriction that nothing but a two story dwelling house costing not less than $3,000 with a brick or stone foundation and set not less than twenty feet from the sidewalk should be erected on a lot conveyed—Frink v. Hughes (Mich.) 10 Detroit Leg. N. 106, 94 N. W. 601.

16. A deed conveying property provided that no building should be erected nearer a certain street than the building directly south of the property conveyed. The grantor did not own the property south but had conveyed it to his daughter. Held, that it did not sufficiently appear that the restriction was for the benefit of the daughter's lot to allow it to be enforced by her—Hays v. St. Paul M. E. Church, 196 Ill. 633.

17. The establishment of a building line is sufficient where the plat shows a street and a dash line parallel thereto upon which are the words, "Building line 50 ft. from the boulevard line," and the reservation is for the benefit of the public and property abutting on the street, and it is unnecessary to expressly mention grantees or donees of the easement in the plat, or to refer to the reservation in deeds made by the owner in order to bind persons holding under them by the restriction—Simpson v. Mikkelsen, 196 Ill. 575.

18. Held, that a subsequent purchaser of an adjacent lot and a portion of the lot subject to the covenant did not revive the easement by a conveyance, the adjacent lot having been taken from the original grantor free from the covenant—Schwoerer v. Leo, 39 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 505.

19. A covenant prohibiting the erection of any dwelling-house nearer than twenty feet to the street, will not be enforced where, at the time the deed was executed, the property was in the suburbs and neighboring houses were detached and set back some distance from the street, and since that time the character of the surrounding property has changed, an orphan asylum and a brewery have been erected on neighboring blocks, a street car line built and a flat building three stories high placed on the street line directly opposite—Roth v. Jung, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 1.

20. A condition in a deed that no building of less than a certain value shall be erected, that all buildings shall be set back from the street a certain distance and that no building shall be used for a livery stable or tenement house or for any manufacturing purpose for the period of ten years, is governed by the time limitation as to all the restrictions and becomes inoperative as to the building lines after ten years—Best v. Nagle, 182 Mass. 495.

Equitable enforcement of building restrictions. (Note.) The right to enforce a covenant concerning the use to which land shall be put may be enforced in equity, though it

§ 3. Liability for unsafe condition of premises.[21]—A building so erected that it accumulates ice and allows it to fall on adjacent property is a nuisance which may be enjoined.[22] Both the owner and contractor are liable under a building contract, the performance of which as planned will injure third persons, but the owner is not liable where the execution of the plan will not necessarily cause the injury, but it results from the negligence of the independent contractor.[23] The owners of a building are not responsible for injuries to employes by a person contracting to rearrange it according to fixed plans,[24] though they have been held liable to an employe of a contractor for the painting of an elevator shaft, who, while within the shaft, is struck by a weight of the elevator, the owners having used the elevator without warning.[25]

Notice.—Possession of the means of knowledge of the dangerous condition of premises and negligently remaining ignorant is equivalent to actual knowledge.[26]

Invitation or license to use dangerous place.—A mere license to enter on premises does not impose any obligation to provide against injuries or accidents arising from the existing condition of the premises,[27] but a person who is on the premises with the permission of the owner on business for their mutual benefit is not a mere licensee,[28] and a merchant must protect a customer from the unsafe condition of a be not a covenant such as runs with the land (Tulk v. Moxhay, 2 Phillips, 774; Whitney v. Union R. Co., 11 Gray [Mass.] 359, 71 Am. Dec. 715). Some American cases base the right on the theory that an easement is created by the covenant, which theory is criticised by Mr. Tiffany (Tiff. Real Prop. p. 763). Agreements which are so enforced are usually restrictive, relating to the character of business to be transacted (McMahon v. Williams, 79 Ala. 288; Post v. Weil, 115 N. Y. 361) or to use for building (Peck v. Conway, 119 Mass. 546) or for residence purposes (Trustees v. Lynch, 70 N. Y. 440), or establishing building lines (Ogontz Co. v. Johnson, 168 Pa. St. 178; Linzee v. Mixer, 101 Mass. 512), or fixing a minimum cost of buildings (Page v. Murray, 46 N. J. Eq. 325) or style of construction (Keening v. Ayling, 126 Mass. 404). But agreements not restrictive have been enforced (Carson v. Percy, 57 Miss. 97; Sharp v. Cheatham, 88 Mo. 498).

Jurisdictions differ as to whether an owner may enforce such agreements when he is only indirectly benefited by them. Affirmative is New York. (Hodge v. Sloan, 107 N. Y. 244. Contra, Norcross v. James, 140 Mass. 188; Brewer v. Marshall, 18 N. J. Eq. 337).

While it is not necessary that such agreement be contained in a sealed instrument, yet the purchaser must have either actual or constructive notice. Ordinarily, a purchaser can enforce such an agreement only when it was made for the purpose of benefiting the land (De Gray v. Monmouth Beach Club, 50 N. J. Eq. 329; Sharpe v. Ropes, 110 Mass. 381; Equitable Life Association v. Brennon, 148 N. Y. 661). But such intention is inferred from the fact that the land was laid off in lots intended for building purposes (Parker v Nightengale, 6 Allen [Mass.] 341, 83 Am. Dec. 632). A prior purchaser enforcing such an agreement must generally show that the restriction was part of a common plan for the benefit of all the lots in a tract, it being then assumed that all assented to such plan (De Gray v. Monmouth Beach Club, 50 N. J. Eq. 329, citing with other cases, 1 Tiffany, Real Prop. 768). A change in, or frustration of, such a general plan of improvement (Trustees v. Thatcher, 87 N. Y. 311; Page v. Murray, 46 N. J. Eq. 325) or an adjoining proprietor's act in making it of no avail (Landell v. Hamilton, 177 Pa. St. 23) may defeat enforcement of it. The leading cases, embracing many others than those herein cited, are collected and discussed in 1 Tiffany, Real Prop. pp. 762-770, from which this note is taken.

See an extended discussion of the right to enjoin breach of contract in note to Philadelphia Ball Club v. Lajoie, 90 Am. St. Rep. 627, 641; S. C. 202 Pa. St. 210. Citing as applied to building covenants Gawtry v. Leland, 31 N. J. Eq. 385; Hills v. Metzenroth, 173 Mass. 423; Wright v. Evans, 2 Abb. Pr. (N. S.) 308.

21. As between landlord and tenant, see topic "Landlord and Tenant." Negligence of building contractors is treated with other general questions under "Negligence."

22. Davis v. Niagara Falls Tower Co., 171 N. Y. 336, 57 L. R. A. 545.

23. The contract is no justification to the contractor in an action by a party who has sustained damages, where the performance of the contract is necessarily injurious—Murray v. Arthur, 98 Ill. App. 331.

24. While the builder was in possession of the building, plaintiff, an employe of an electric company, fell through a hole in the floor which was concealed by rubbish—Hogan v. Arbuckle, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 591.

25. Harmer v. Reed A. & I. Co. (N. J. Err. & App.) 53 Atl. 402.

26. Person injured by slipping on fish in an aisle opposite a fish stall in a market house—Washington Market Co. v. Clagett, 19 App. D. C. 12.

27. Bentley v. Loverock, 102 Ill. App. 166.

28. Where a distilling company allows purchasers of slop to fill their wagons from the vat and to go on a platform around the vat and stir it, it is bound to ordinary care to keep the vat in a safe condition and may be liable for the scalding to death of a person by the bursting of the vat—Hupfer v. National Distilling Co., 114 Wis. 279.

store room though he enter at a place where he is uninvited.[29] The fact that a person has asked an employe of defendant whether she might use a certain door and has seen others enter and leave by it is not sufficient to show an implied invitation for its use.[30]

Acts or conditions showing negligence.[31]—It is not negligence per se to raise the floors of rooms of a building slightly above the hall floors.[32] Failure to provide fire escapes as required by statute, if the proximate cause of death, and the death is the ordinary consequence thereof, is evidence of actual negligence.[33]

Liability for falling buildings and material.—The owner of a building may be responsible for injuries resulting from its fall if he has not exercised proper care to ascertain its condition; its fall without apparent cause is prima facie evidence of negligence.[34]

The owner may be freed from liability for injuries resulting from the blowing of material from the roof of a building during a wind storm by the fact that he relied on the skill of skilled architects and workmen to whom the planning and construction of the building was delegated and that it was safely and properly constructed by skilled persons and was in possession of a tenant. It is also a good defense that the accident was the result of vis major.[35]

Where a building has been damaged by fire, the owner is liable for injuries from the falling of its walls after a reasonable time to make them safe under ordinary circumstances or such causes as past experiences would show to be likely to arise and he is not relieved by the employment of competent architects and builders to take proper precautionary measures, or by a threatened injunction against repair of the walls by persons attempting to save the contents of the building.[36] It is also held that he is bound to act only as a reasonably prudent man.[37]

City ordinances requiring the protection of sidewalks pending the construction of buildings do not create a cause of action in favor of persons injured through failure to take the required precaution and do not enlarge the personal liability of the owner, or render him liable for an injury sustained by the negligence of his contractor's servants in allowing material to fall into the street.[38]

29. Customer entering by an alley door—Burk v. Walsh (Iowa) 92 N. W. 65.

30. Door at the back of a store reached by three steps, access to which was had by a narrow passage between the counter and cashier's desk. Plaintiff was injured by stepping through such door and falling into an excavation outside, no light being provided—Rooney v. Woolworth, 74 Conn. 720.

31. The owner of a store is not liable for a fall occasioned through plaintiff catching his foot in a door mat, where the door mat has been in place for several years and no injury had ever happened—Dwyer v. Hills Bros. Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 45. Evidence held insufficient to establish negligence in the owner of a building toward a delivery man falling into a space between the elevator and the wall of a shaft—Gray v. Siegel-Cooper Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 118. The owner of a building is not liable to a fireman falling into an elevator shaft, though there was no guard rail on the side from which he approached, where it was not shown that he had entered the building in a way that might reasonably be anticipated, or that men preceding had not removed the guard rail and moved the elevator—Baker v. Otis Elevator Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 513. It is for the jury to determine where brick came from, the fall of which occasioned the injury and whether the fall thereof was the result of the negligence of defendant or his servants—Leach v. Durkin, 98 Ill. App. 415.

32. Licensee injured through the construction of a room floor in an office building, four and seven-eighths inches above the hall floor—Ware v. Evangelical B. B. & M. Soc., 181 Mass. 285.

33. Rev. St. c. 26, § 26, as amended by Pub. Laws 1891, c. 89—Carrigan v. Stillwell, 97 Me. 247.

34. Comp. Laws, § 3603, imposes a liability for injury to others by the want of ordinary care in the management of property—Patterson v. Jos. Schlitz Brew. Co. (S. D.) 91 N. W. 336.

35. Uggla v. Brokaw, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 310.

36. Lauer v. Palms (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 61, 89 N. W. 694.

37. One acting on the report of a competent mechanic after examination of condition held not liable—Freeman v. Carter (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 527.

38. New York City ordinance approved Sept. 25, 1895, amended Nov. 18, 1895, pro-

Contributory negligence.[39]—One who enters as a mere licensee on poorly lighted premises, with which he is not familiar, is contributorily negligent.[40]

Actions.—If a charge of negligence is based on the violation of a city ordinance, recovery cannot be had on a common law liability.[41] In the footnotes are grouped decisions to sufficiency of pleading,[42] admissibility of evidence,[43] sufficiency of evidence,[44] and instructions.[45] Instructions ignoring the question of whether the true condition of a building could be ascertained by the exercise of ordinary care should viding penalties for failure of an owner or general contractor constructing a building over five stories high to build a temporary roof over the sidewalk in front thereof—Koch v. Fox, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 288.

39. A tenant of a building may, without negligence, use a dumb waiter placed in the house for the convenience of persons delivering goods—Vandercar v. Universal Trust Co., 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 290. An ice dealer who uses a dumb waiter in an apartment house with knowledge that it was in a dangerous condition, is contributorily negligent—McGuire v. Board, 58 App. Div. (N. Y.) 388. Evidence held sufficient to go to the jury as to plaintiff's contributory negligence in stepping through the door of an elevator shaft in an unlighted hall on a dark day—Muller v. Hale, 138 Cal. 163, 71 Pac. 81.

40. He cannot recover for a fall down an elevator shaft—Bentley v. Loverock, 102 Ill. App. 166. The same rule applies where plaintiff after having several times called at the front door, found the front door locked on one evening and went to the rear, while attempting to enter the back door in the dark, fell down the elevator shaft—Daley v. Kinsman, 182 Mass. 306.

41. Action for injury to a child falling through a hatch-way based on an ordinance requiring such hatch-way to be guarded—Hirst v. Ringen Real Estate Co., 169 Mo. 194.

42. It is sufficient that the complaint state that the owner permitted a building to collapse, and in so doing, to instantly and without notice kill deceased while he was rightfully and without negligence therein—Patterson v. Jos. Schlitz Brew. Co. (S. D.) 91 N. W. 336. It is sufficient against a general demurrer to allege "that this hatch-way, at the time of the injuries of plaintiff's child, was barred, enclosed by railing, gate or other contrivance to prevent accident or injuries to persons therefrom as required by § 749, art. 3, c. 16, of the Revised Ordinance of the city"—Hirst v. Ringen Real Estate Co., 169 Mo. 194. Complaint for injuries received by the fall of a building alleged that plaintiff was lawfully in front of the building and the answer denied it, held, that there was no issue as to the plaintiff's precise position—Waterhouse v. Jos. Schlitz Brew. Co. (S. D.) 94 N. W. 587.

43. In an action for the falling of a building, evidence that other similar buildings had fallen is admissible to show notice; it may be shown how and of what material the building was constructed, the manner of construction and the fact that the material had decayed being alleged in the complaint; and description of material and methods employed in constructing similar buildings is admissible—Waterhouse v. Jos. Schlitz Brew. Co. (S. D.) 94 N. W. 587. To show that a hall was lighted at the time plaintiff stepped into an elevator shaft, it is inadmissible to introduce evidence of its being lighted at the same time of day on other days of the month—Muller v. Hale, 138 Cal. 163, 71 Pac. 81. Evidence that fine print could be read March 18th at 5 P. M. is not admissible to show that a hallway was sufficiently lighted without artificial light December 13th between 4 and 4:30 P. M. Records of the United States Weather Bureau as to conditions of the weather are admissible, and a picture of the hallway may be admissible to show the construction of the staircase though it will not show whether the hall was sufficiently lighted—Bretsch v. Plate, 115 N. Y. St. Rep. 868. Witness cannot be asked as to her knowledge of whether it is customary for elevators to have lights, though she testified that when she entered the room where the shafts were, there were no lights—Muller v. Hale, 138 Cal. 163, 71 Pac. 81. In an action for injuries from the falling of a wall after a fire, a letter written by the chief engineer to the mayor of the town and given by the mayor to the owner, stating that the wall was dangerous and should be pulled down is admissible to show notice—Curd v. Wing, 115 Ga. 371.

44. To sustain a recovery against a hotel proprietor for injury received by being struck by a bag of potato peelings falling from a back platform—Ahern v. Melvin, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 462. Evidence that a section of iron railing has been allowed to remain loose for some time is sufficient to go to the jury in an action by a pedestrian injured by its fall—Butts v. National Exch. Bank (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 1083. Evidence held sufficient to show that the defective condition of a vat could have been discovered by exercise of ordinary care—Hupier v. National Distilling Co., 114 Wis. 279. To show that a hall was sufficiently lighted to relieve the owner from the duty of maintaining a light under Laws 1897, p. 474, c. 378, § 1320—Bretsch v. Plate, 115 N. Y. St. Rep. 868.

45. An instruction that it is the duty of the owner of a market house to maintain sufficient watchmen to keep the aisles in safe condition for the public, is proper—Washington Market Co. v. Clagett, 19 App. D. C. 12. Where injury was received from the falling of walls after partial destruction of a brick building, an instruction that the owner would not be liable if he had employed a competent mechanic to inspect the walls, and the mechanic had reported them safe, should be given though there is a general charge on ordinary care—Freeman v. Carter (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 527.

be refused.[46] Instructions requiring a peculiar kind of protection to an elevator shaft are erroneous.[47] Hypothetical findings will not be reviewed.[48]

§ 4. Liability for negligent operation of elevators.—Operators of passenger elevators are common carriers of passengers;[49] while not insurers, they must exercise the highest degree of care, and their liabilities are similar to those of a carrier by railroad.[50] It is their duty to use extraordinary care in and about the operation of elevators to prevent injury to persons therein,[51] and they are bound to the highest degree of care and diligence for the safety of passengers practically consistent with efficient use and operation thereof.[52]

Where the elevator is built by a reputable firm, has all known safety appliances, and is frequently inspected, there is no liability for an accident.[53] The owner of a building may be liable for negligence where a freight elevator is so constructed that it will not come to the level of a floor so that loading causes jarring resulting in an accident.[54] The owner may not be liable for an act of a third person.[55] The jury may be instructed that noncompliance with statutory requirements of the use of appliances to prevent passenger elevators from starting while their doors are open is evidence of negligence.[56] Where an elevator is not out of repair, or its use in the way in which it was used dangerous, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply to a person accustomed to its operation who is injured in an unexplained manner.[57]

Where a stop is made to allow passengers to get off, the operator must stop long

46. Instruction is properly refused in an action for collapse of a building, that defendant was not liable unless there was something in the appearance of the building or its condition to indicate to a person on an ordinary examination that the building was improperly constructed or unless defendant had notice that it was improperly constructed—Waterhouse v. Jos. Schlitz Brew. Co. (S. D.) 94 N. W. 587.

47. Error to instruct that a failure to erect and maintain guards and barriers for the protection of an elevator shaft was negligence—Burk v. Walsh (Iowa) 92 N. W. 65.

48. It is not an adjudication that defendants failed to perform their duty toward plaintiff as a licensee, and that plaintiff did not by her negligence contribute to her injuries such as to demand a review, where the trial court found that plaintiff, who was injured by stepping into an excavation on going out of a door of defendant's store, used the door by an implied invitation, and that if the facts did not establish such conclusion it would find that the license given plaintiff established a liability—Rooney v. Woolworth, 74 Conn. 720.

49. Chicago Exch. Bldg. Co. v. Nelson, 197 Ill. 334; Beidler v. Branshaw, 102 Ill. App. 187.

50. Becker v. Lincoln Real Estate & Bldg. Co. (Mo.) 73 S. W. 581; Griffen v. Manice, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 371.

51. Beidler v. Branshaw, 102 Ill. App. 187.

52. Chicago Exch. Bldg. Co. v. Nelson, 197 Ill. 334. Where persons are carried on a freight elevator, the highest degree of care must be exercised practicable and consistent with the efficient use of the means and appliances adopted—Beidler v. Branshaw, 102 Ill. App. 187.

53. The elevator was shown to be in perfect order by various inspections of the persons erecting it, the insurance companies, and the city. There was an occasional bumping of the car on the springs, and the accident occurred through the unexplained failure of the machinery to stop at the bottom of the shaft, though the car was properly operated—Griffen v. Manice, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 371.

54. Grifhahn v. Kreizer, 62 App. Div. (N. Y.) 413.

55. The owner of a building is not liable to a person injured by the sudden starting of a freight elevator through the fact that some one on another floor pulled the starting rope without giving warning, where no similar accident had occurred since the elevator had been in use some four years, and the person injured testified that he did not think that a person outside the shaft could pull the rope with force enough to start the elevator—Cleary v. Brooklyn Factory & Power Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 35.

56. Gen. Laws, c. 108, § 16. Plaintiff's foot was caught between the elevator and the floor by the moving upward of the elevator when she started out after the door had been opened—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co. (R. I.) 52 Atl. 122.

57. A freight and passenger elevator was so constructed that in passing through the shaft it lifted on its top sections of the floor and carried them thus to the top of the shaft, leaving them again in their proper places on the trip down. Plaintiff's intestate had been carried to the top floor of the building and left alone there, it being agreed that the elevator should return for him when he signalled. The signal was given, and the operator on reaching the top floor discovered him pinned between the top of the elevator and the roof, the guard rail of the opening being down; there was an abundance of light around the elevator. Held that on the evidence, the owners of the building were not liable—State v. Green, 95 Md. 217.

enough to allow passengers desiring to do so to alight, though they are not the ones directing the stop, and before starting must exercise reasonable care to ascertain if there are other persons in the act of getting off.[58] Moving of an elevator after it is stopped, though at plaintiff's request, may be negligence.[59] Starting an elevator without closing the door tends to show negligence in its operation.[60]

Contributory negligence.—An attempt to leave an elevator at the usual stop without speaking to the conductor is not negligence as a matter of law, though the passenger does not stop to look or listen or observe whether the conductor is about to close the door which has been opened to admit passengers.[61] The passenger's mistake in the number of the floor at which he is attempting to leave the elevator need not be considered in determining his care.[62] Persons riding on freight elevators must avoid assuming dangerous positions.[63]

Actions for injuries.—A statute as to safety appliances need not be referred to in terms in the pleadings if it clearly appear from the averment of the accident that had it been complied with the accident would not have occurred.[64] The burden of showing negligence is on the person injured.[65] No presumption that negligence does not exist in the operation of a freight elevator arises from the fact that it has been operated for some time without accident.[66] Evidence of negligence not charged in the declaration is inadmissible.[67] The condition of the elevator immediately after the accident may be shown.[68] Decisions as to sufficiency of evidence are collected in the notes.[69]

58. Becker v. Lincoln R. E. & B. Co. (Mo.) 73 S. W. 581.

59. An instruction as to such point should be that if the elevator was so moved at plaintiff's request as to conduce to the accident, such moving was not negligence on the part of defendant—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co. (R. I.) 52 Atl. 122.

60. Passenger knowing it to be the custom for descending passengers to notify the operator of a desire to get off at floors before the ground floor, attempted to leave at the second floor, thinking that the elevator had reached the ground—Chicago Exch. Bldg. Co. v. Nelson, 197 Ill. 334.

61. Chicago Exch. Bldg. Co. v. Nelson, 197 Ill. 334. The question of whether a passenger is guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to leave an elevator without acquainting the conductor of his purpose as well as the right to assume that the car would not start until the door is closed is for the jury—Roulo v. Minot (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 619, 93 N. W. 870.

62. The passenger has the right to alight at any of the usual stopping places, though in this case it was customary for descending passengers to notify the conductor if they desired to get off elsewhere than at the ground floor—Chicago Exch. Bldg. Co. v. Nelson, 197 Ill. 334.

63. One using a freight elevator as a licensee who steps off into an unguarded place which was perfectly apparent, is contributorily negligent—Gray v. Siegel-Cooper Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 118. It may be contributory negligence for a person familiar with the construction of an elevator to so stand that his heel is caught between the car and a lintel—Beidler v. Branshaw, 200 Ill. 425. One who with knowledge places his foot between a freight elevator and a floor is negligent and cannot recover where the elevator is subsequently lowered by the employee in charge without knowledge of the presence of the foot—Bromberg v. Friend, 101 N. Y. St. Rep. 698.

64. Gen. Laws, c. 108, § 16—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co. (R. I.) 52 Atl. 122.

65. Defective working of elevator—Griffen v. Manice, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 371.

66. There was evidence that the elevator was improperly constructed—Grifhahn v. Kreizer, 62 App. Div. (N. Y.) 413.

67. Operation of an elevator—La Salle County Carbon Coal Co. v. Eastman, 99 Ill. App. 495.

68. Where there is no evidence that its condition had changed before the examination by the witness—Slack v. Harris, 101 Ill. App. 527.

69. To show negligence of defendant in an accident caused by the sudden starting up of an elevator while plaintiff was attempting to leave it—Ingrafia v. Samuels, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 14. To show that by defendant's negligence plaintiff's foot was caught and crushed under a floor plate through the elevator stopping below the floor and then moving upward while plaintiff was getting out—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co. (R. I.) 52 Atl. 122. Evidence held insufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff injured by the falling of an elevator which was inspected and found in good condition by a competent engineer the morning of the accident, which was in charge of a competent operator and had worked for three years without accident and worked properly after the accident without repair and there was no evidence of any fault of the operator or other employes—Hubener v. Heide, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 200. Negligence not shown in aged woman's attempting to leave an elevator after it had stopped and the door was opened, and being caught between the car and the BURGLARY.

§ 1. What constitutes. Breaking.—Entry by a servant with intent to steal is burglarious though he had a right to sleep in the building.[1] Opening a closed door is a breaking,[2] as is breaking a window and reaching in through it.[3] Removing the putty around a window pane without taking out the pane is not.[4]

Intent.—If there is no intent to commit crime, the offense is not burglary.[5]

Nature and situation of building.[6]—Enclosure is not necessary to make a building part of the curtilage.[7] A corn crib is a "house,"[8] and a chicken house is a "building."[9]

Commission of intended crime.—Actual commission of a crime is not necessary.[10]

Attempt.—Going to a building with burglar's tools and with intent to break in is an attempt.[11]

§ 2. Indictment.—The indictment need not state whether the owner of the building was a partnership or a corporation,[12] but it has been otherwise held as to the property within the building,[13] nor need an indictment for burglary in rooms in a hotel allege the leasing thereof though they are stated to be a dwelling house.[14] It need not be alleged that there were goods subject of larceny in the building.[15] Whether the crime was committed in the day or night need not be stated under some of the later laws.[16] Property may be laid in a part owner who is in control,[17] or in a tenant,[18] and it has been held that the owner's name need not be alleged,[19] and title to the chattels stolen may be laid in one having special property.[20] Particular allegations passed on by the courts are in the notes.[21]

§ 3. Admissibility of evidence.[22]—Actual larceny may be proved to show floor by the sudden rising of the car—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co. (R. I.) 52 Atl. 122. Evidence held sufficient for the jury on the question of an elevator conductor's negligence in allowing the elevator to start while the passenger was getting out—Roulo v. Minot (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 619, 93 N. W. 870.

1. State v. Howard, 64 S. C. 344.

2. Barber v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 515; State v. Snow (Del.) 51 Atl. 607.

3. State v. Boysen, 30 Wash. 338, 70 Pac. 740.

4. Minter v. State (Ark.) 71 S. W. 944.

5. It is breaking and entering under the Delaware Statute—State v. Snow (Del.) 51 Atl. 607.

6. Under Gen. St. 1901, § 2059, to constitute burglary in the second degree there must be a human being or some valuable property in the building—State v. Poole, 65 Kan. 713, 70 Pac. 637.

7. State v. Bugg (Kan.) 72 Pac. 236.

8. Barber v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 515.

9. State v. Poole, 65 Kan. 713, 70 Pac. 637.

10. Accused took property not subject of larceny—Farris v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 140; Ragland v. State (Ark.) 70 S. W. 1039; Walker v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 954.

11. People v. Sullivan, 173 N. Y. 122.

12. State v. Golden, 86 Minn. 206.

13. State v. Jones, 168 Mo. 398. By statute in Kentucky (Stat. § 1162) an averment of the ownership of such property is surplusage—Scott v. Com., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 889, 70 S. W. 281.

14. State v. Burton, 27 Wash. 528, 67 Pac. 1097.

15. State v. Golden, 86 Minn. 206.

16. But if it is alleged to have been committed in the night a conviction of burglary in the day time cannot be had—People v. Smith, 136 Cal. 207, 68 Pac. 702.

17. Farris v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 140.

18. Brown v. State (Miss.) 33 So. 170.

19. State v. Williams (Iowa) 94 N. W. 255.

20. Blackwell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 960.

21. Drug store properly described as a "store house commonly called a drug store"—McNutt v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 143. Description of money taken held sufficient—State v. Wilson (Kan.) 71 Pac. 849. Information for burglary from railroad car held to insufficiently describe the car—People v. Webber, 138 Cal. 145, 70 Pac. 1089. Indictment sufficient in this respect—Gilbert v. State (Ga.) 43 S. E. 47. Indictment charging entry and intent to "commit a felony" in general terms sufficient—Com. v. Johnston, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 241. And see as to general charge of intent to commit larceny—State v. Ellsworth, 130 N. C. 690; Smith v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 106. Variance: As to ownership of car entered fatal—People v. Webber, 138 Cal. 145, 70 Pac. 1089.

22. Subsequent finding of hidden goods admissible—McAnally v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 404. Evidence that defendant's wife knew there was money in the house is not admissible—Long v. State the intent.[23] Possession of burglar's tools some time later may be shown.[24] Proof of possession of burglar's tools is not excluded by the fact that such possession is an independent crime.[25]

§ 4. Sufficiency of evidence.[26]—Possession of stolen goods is not necessarily a proof of guilt.[27]

§ 5. Instructions and verdict.[28]—An instruction ignoring intent is reversible error.[29] Instructions that where defendant is found in possession of stolen goods he must show that he obtained them "fairly and honestly,"[30] or must satisfactorily explain their possession,[31] are erroneous. The verdict must be certain as between two crimes charged,[32] and if it denominates the offense found must specify it.[33]

CANALS.

§ 1. Location, establishment, construction, and operation.—Where a company, authorized to construct a canal under a law requiring it to keep the canal open for public patronage at prescribed tolls, is empowered by a subsequent law to lease, sell, or discontinue it because no longer useful, a purchaser of the canal and franchises is not required to keep it open.[1] An owner of lands adjoining a canal may enjoin the discharge of city sewage into it where he will suffer substantial

(Miss.) 33 So. 224. Statements as to instrument with which door was broken (State v. Ellsworth, 130 N. C. 690); and as to whether defendant could have entered through a certain opening (Murmutt v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 67 S. W. 508) not excluded as mere opinions. Statement of co-conspirator admissible—Barber v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69. S. W. 515. Admissions indefinite as to time held inadmissible—State v. Snyder (Iowa) 91 N. W. 765. Where there is testimony that defendant was seen with similar property he may explain his possession—State v. Brundidge (Iowa) 91 N. W. 920.

23. Moseley v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 414. And see Farris v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 69 S. W. 140.

24. Williams v. People, 196 Ill. 173; People v. Gregory (Mich.) 90 N. W. 414.

25. Williams v. People, 196 Ill. 173.

26. Evidence sufficient—Ragland v. State (Ark.) 70 S. W. 1039; Walker v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 954; Gilbert v. State (Ga.) 43 S. E. 47; State v. Armstrong, 170 Mo. 406; Blackwell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 960. Evidence insufficient—Garcia v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 95; Brooks v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 419. Evidence of ownership of building sufficient—McNutt v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 143. Evidence sufficient to show that stolen goods subsequently found were hidden by defendant—McAnally v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 404. Evidence of venue sufficient in prosecution for burglary from car—Gilbert v. State (Ga.) 43 S. E. 47. Presumption of intent (Laws 1895, c. 4405) authorizing presumption of intent from entry in night does not apply to entry by day—Walker v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 954. Evidence that property was taken for temporary use only insufficient to go to jury—King v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 410.

27. State v. Brady (Iowa) 91 N. W. 801; Carano v. State, 24 Ohio Cir. Ct. 93; Gravitt v. State, 114 Ga. 841; State v. Brundidge (Iowa) 91 N. W. 920. But see State v. Armstrong, 170 Mo. 406. And it has been said that it will support a conviction—State v. Swift (Iowa) 94 N. W. 269; but only where the burglary and attendant larceny were committed by the same person and at the same time—State v. Williams (Iowa) 94 N. W. 255. In connection with other facts held sufficient—Branch v. Com. (Va.) 41 S. E. 862; Richardson v. State (Miss.) 33 So. 441; Odell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 971; State v. Brady (Iowa) 91 N. W. 801; Williams v. People, 196 Ill. 173; Hollengshead v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 114.

28. Charge held argumentative—Brantley v. State, 115 Ga. 229. Limitation of proof of other burglaries to bearing on intent—Camarillo v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 68 S. W. 795. Evidence not requiring: Instructions as to taking of property for temporary use—King v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 410. As to acquiescence in statement of third person by silence—Brantley v. State, 115 Ga. 229. Instruction as to possession of stolen goods—Brantley v. State, 115 Ga. 229. As to circumstantial evidence—Moncevlis v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 94. As to innocent intent of one claiming to have been employed as drayman—Whitworth v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 67 S. W. 1019.

29. State v. Williams (Iowa) 94 N. W. 255.

30. State v. Brady (Iowa) 91 N. W. 801. But see State v. Swift (Iowa) 94 N. W. 269.

31. State v. Brundidge (Iowa) 91 N. W. 920. Instructions as to possession of stolen goods held erroneous—People v. Boxer, 137 Cal. 562, 70 Pac. 671. Instructions held correct—State v. Swift (Iowa) 94 N. W. 269.

32. On trial for burglary and larceny must identfy crime found—State v. Jones, 168 Mo. 398. Verdict on several counts construed—Carano v. State, 24 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 93.

33. "Guilty of a misdemeanor" insufficient—Smith v. State (Ga.) 43 S. E. 440.

1. Under Laws 1899, c. 469, § 3—New York Cement Co. v. Consolidated Rosendale Cement Co., 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 285.

injury therefrom though he thereby greatly interferes with the plans of the city for the public welfare.[2]

§ 2. Ownership and administrative control by public.—A canal, constructed by a corporation having the power of eminent domain and the right to divert the waters of navigable rivers, which uses part of the bed of a public stream, is held under a public trust and the tolls thereof may be regulated by law; a lease of part of the canal from a grantee of the original corporation will not enable the lessee to charge larger tolls than originally fixed by law when the canal was constructed.[3] A law, authorizing a corporation which had constructed a canal to discontinue its use, contemplates an actual physical discontinuance by vote of the corporate managers, and notice of closing given by a mesne grantee of the corporation is not effectual against another corporation having the right to use part of the canal while it remained a canal.[4]

CANCELLATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

§ 1. Nature of remedy.[1] Instruments which may be canceled.—A deed will be set aside in equity for fraud where it concerns an estate purely in expectancy as well as an estate in praesenti,[2] and though void on its face since it operates as a cloud on title;[3] but where both parties to a deed are equally guilty in attempting to defraud creditors, equity will leave them in the position in which they have placed themselves.[4] The federal government may maintain a suit to set aside patents erroneously issued granting lands to a railroad company as against the company and alleged bona fide purchasers.[5]

Adequacy of remedy at law.[6]—Generally, a conveyance of an interest in lands will not be canceled in equity where complainant is not in possession, his remedy at law by ejectment being adequate;[7] and a contract by him with the tenants of the grantee to lease premises to them will not be such a regaining of possession by him as will enable him to maintain a suit in equity;[8] but it is otherwise

2. Warren v. Gloversville, 114 N. Y. State, 912.

3. Under Laws 1823, c. 238, lease under Laws 1899, c. 469—New York Cement Co. v. Consolidated Rosendale Cement Co., 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 746.

4. Laws 1899, c. 469, §§ 3, 4—New York Cement Co. v. Consolidated Rosendale Cement Co., 38 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 518.

1. See Quieting Title; Reformation of Instruments; retention of bill to grant complete relief, see Equity.

Cancellation of land patents by government, see Public Lands; of patents to mineral claims, see Mines and Minerals; of tax deeds by officers, see Taxes; of insurance policy under terms of instrument, see Insurance.

2. Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183.

3. Morton v. Morris, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 262.

4. Edgell v. Smith, 50 W. Va. 349.

5. Under U. S. Acts, Mar. 3, 1887; Feb. 12, 1896; and Mar. 2, 1896, the company may, in the same suit, be required to account for lands sold—United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 117 Fed. 544.

6. Sufficiency of showing of inadequacy of remedy at law for cancellation of life policy for concealment of facts to entitle company to sue in equity—Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Pearson, 114 Fed. 395.

7. Treadwell v. Torbert, 133 Ala. 504. On ground of mental incapacity—Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 129 Ala. 279. Deed by alleged insane person out of possession—Galloway v. Hendon, 131 Ala. 280. Deed from a testator after the will at suit of a devisee out of possession—Letohatchie Baptist Church v. Bullock, 133 Ala. 548. A deed conveying land to another on condition that it shall revert to the grantor or the happening of the condition subsequent be cancelled after such event has occurred—Davison v. Davison, 71 N. H. 180. Where the bill avers that complainant never delivered possession to the grantees at any time it should be dismissed for failure to show that complainant had possession when it was filed—Galloway v. Hendon, 131 Ala. 280. A devisee seeking to recover land from another in possession under a deed made by testator after his will, on the ground of mental incapacity and failure to join the wife in a conveyance of the homestead, will be left to his remedy at law—Letohatchie Baptist Church v. Bullock, 133 Ala. 548.

8. Treadwell v. Torbert, 133 Ala. 504.

as to a deed, on consideration that the grantee should remain with and care for the grantor during life, sought to be set aside on the ground of breach of contract,[9] or an instrument secured from complainant by fraud and misrepresentations of one in a fiduciary relation toward him,[10] or a suit in Illinois to set aside a deed for fraud, alleged to be a cloud on the title,[11] and the cancellation of a release of damages for personal injuries, obtained by fraud in equity, will not be prevented by an enactment of a statute giving a remedy at law.[12] Equity will not cancel an insurance policy for a fraudulent representation by the insured in his application, there being a complete remedy at law.[13] Where fraud in obtaining a release of an interest in an estate was constructive and insufficient for declaring it void in a court of law, that defendant's account as executor was pending in a municipal court for settlement constituted no ground for refusing jurisdiction on the theory that complete relief could be had in a municipal court.[14] Where a statute provides that fraud or circumvention used in obtaining execution of a note may be pleaded in defense in an action on the note, equity will not cancel or order return of the note even though it contains a power of attorney authorizing confession of judgment in term time or vacation.[15]

§ 2. Grounds of action; right to relief. Right in general.—A grantee in a deed executed after a grantor is restored to sanity may sue to cancel a previous deed executed by him while insane.[16] Instruments representing debts already paid will be canceled in equity.[17] An assignment, without consideration, of a policy on the life of her husband just before his death, by a wife to his brother, who was in close relations with them, under circumstances indicating undue influence and misrepresentation, will be canceled at her suit where it appears that the husband intended that his wife and children should receive the proceeds and so indicated by his will, leaving her little else in lieu of her dower in valuable property.[18]

Duress and mistake.—A deed obtained by duress may be set aside by the grantor or his heirs within the limitation period,[19] but duress is not shown where it appears that both fear and promises contributed to induce the execution, since fear without the promises might have proved insufficient.[20] That the grantee of a deed from a husband and his wife knew of the bad habits and tyranny of the husband is insufficient to show constructive notice that the husband procured the wife to sign by coercion.[21] Mistake is a ground for cancellation of an instrument in equity,[22] if mutual.[23]

9. There is no remedy at law—Lowman v. Crawford, 99 Va. 688, 3 Va. Sup. Ct. R. 534.

10. Robinson v. Sharp, 201 Ill. 86.

11. Clay v. Hammond, 199 Ill. 370.

12. Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. 581.

13. Shenehon v. Illinois Life Ins. Co., 100 Ill. App. 281.

14. Gorman v. McCabe (R. I.) 52 Atl. 989.

15. Hurd's Rev. St. Ill. 1899, c. 98, § 10—Vannatta v. Lindley, 198 Ill. 40.

16. Clay v. Hammond, 199 Ill. 370.

17. Note given to testator will be cancelled as against executrix where it appears that it was paid before testator's death—Hoberg v. Haessig, 90 Mo. App. 516. Bonds and notes of complainant held by defendant as unpaid though fully paid—Canon v. Ballard, 63 N. J. Eq. 797.

18. Way v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 61 S. C. 501.

19. Hovorka v. Havlik (Neb.) 93 N. W. 990.

20. Deed by husband and wife sought to be cancelled at suit of wife—Pratt L. & I. Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452.

21. Pratt L. & I. Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452.

22. Failure of husband to join in a purchase money mortgage on property purchased by the wife because of a mistake of the draughtsman—Dietrich v. Hutchinson, 73 Vt. 134. Deed made under a misapprehension as to the location of the land, and which conveys a wrong tract though there was no intent to defraud on the part of the grantor—Fearon L. & V. Co. v. Wilson, 51 W. Va. 30. Release of a cause of action for personal injuries executed when complainant did not fully understand the nature of the document—Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581.

23. Stewart v. Dunn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631.

Fraud and misrepresentation.—An instrument procured by fraud may be canceled in equity,[24] but it must appear that the grantee participated therein or gave consideration with knowledge of the fraud,[25] and that he has made misstatements whereby the grantor has been misled, or that, knowing the grantor to be laboring under mistake, he remained silent.[26] A power of attorney executed by an insane person, whereby the attorney conveyed to a third person who in turn conveyed to the attorney will be canceled for fraud together with the subsequent instruments.[27] Fraud in securing conveyance of property in a residence district, the residents of which had agreed not to sell to undesirable persons, to one who was undesirable, is sufficient ground for cancellation at suit of the grantor though he suffered no pecuniary loss and the consideration was adequate.[28] Where an owner conveyed property relying on a misrepresentation of the grantee that a mortgage received in consideration was a prior lien, he is entitled, when the property covered by the mortgage is swept away by foreclosure of prior liens and the mortgagor is insolvent, to sue in equity, to set aside his conveyance, and as well, one from his grantee to a third person without consideration; that he destroyed the worthless mortgage before discovering the fraud will not prevent relief.[29]

Inadequacy of consideration or unconscionable terms exacted of complainant may be ground of cancellation,[30] but a deed executed by husband and wife will not be canceled, on behalf of the wife, merely because the consideration was, in part, an old debt due from the husband.[31]

Mental incapacity and undue influence.—Where an instrument is executed by one of insufficient mental powers to understand its import, or who has been unduly influenced by another of stronger mind, equity will grant relief,[32] but other-

24. Andrews v. Frierson, 134 Ala. 626. Sufficiency of fraud and misrepresentation to warrant cancellation of deed—Dashner v. Buffington, 170 Mo. 260. Of evidence to show fraud, undue influence, mental incapacity, or misrepresentation in execution of a deed from mother to her son—Revels v. Revels, 64 S. C. 256. Contract for the collection of payments on insurance policies obtained through fraud may be cancelled in equity and further litigation enjoined—Barrington v. Ryan, 88 Mo. App. 85. Misrepresentations made by an intelligent white man to an ignorant and destitute negro woman who had great confidence in him, whereby he secured a deed of her land will warrant cancellation of the deed—Cannon v. Gilmer, 135 Ala. 302. A quit claim deed from his wife recorded by a husband after their separation conveying the homestead which he had previously conveyed to her and had always treated as hers will be cancelled where it appears that she never knowingly executed it—Chittenden v. Chittenden, 22 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 498, 12 O. C. D. 526.

25. Pratt L. & I. Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452.

26. Stewart v. Dunn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631.

27. Clay v. Hammond, 199 Ill. 370.

28. Brett v. Cooney (Conn.) 53 Atl. 729.

29. Sufficiency of evidence to show conveyance of property in consideration of the mortgage—Bishop v. Thompson, 196 Ill. 206.

30. Sufficiency of showing of unconscionable contract—Coveney v. Pattullo (Mich.) 89 N. W. 968. Deed given in exchange for worthless mortgage—Bishop v. Thompson, 196 Ill. 206. That it is sealed is no defense to a suit to cancel an instrument for want of consideration. Way v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 61 S. C. 501. A sale of annuities worth $20,400 for a consideration of $2,700 will be set aside as unconscionable—Roux v. Rothschild, 37 Misc. Rep. (N. Y.) 435. Where it appears that an attorney has been sufficiently paid for his services in defending a charge of robbery against complainant, a mortgage on his farm executed by complainant, to the attorney for additional fees, will be set aside as unconscionable—Coveney v. Pattullo (Mich.) 9 Detroit Leg. N. 26, 89 N. W. 968. Where a deed was made to prevent collection of a judgment against the grantor for damages and the ground for damages failed, the purpose of the conveyance will not prevent a suit to set aside the deed—Brant v. Brant, 115 Iowa, 701.

31. Pratt L. & I. Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452.

32. Sufficiency of evidence to show mental incapacity of father in action to set aside a conveyance to his son—Chidester v. Turnbull (Iowa) 90 N. W. 583. One claiming as devisee may recover land from another in possession under a deed after the will on a showing of undue influence—Letohatchie Baptist Church v. Bullock, 123 Ala. 548. Deed for a grossly inadequate consideration secured by an unfair advantage of the grantor, who was mentally weak—Walling v. Thomas, 133 Ala. 426. Release of a cause of action for personal injuries executed when the maker was so weak physically and mentally, because of his injuries that he could not understand the nature of the document—Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581. Release of interest in estate by wise if the grantor realized, without advice, the nature of the transaction and guarded the interests of those who should rightfully receive his property.[33]

§ 3. Procedure. Laches.—Delay before bringing a suit to set aside an instrument for fraud must not be unreasonable,[34] and what constitutes unreasonable delay depends upon the particular circumstances of each case;[35] if complainant was ignorant of the fraud until shortly before suit, laches cannot be imputed,[36] unless he had knowledge of facts putting him on inquiry.[37] If the parties are living in confidential or fiduciary relations, the fraud must be actually discovered,[38] and if complainant relies on promises of defendant to settle and delays suit he will be held blameless.[39] The rule is stricter where fraud is not shown.[40] The period of legal limitation will not always govern.[41]

Conditions precedent.—A suit may be brought by a surety to cancel a bond for fraudulent representations by the obligee, though no action has been brought on the bond.[42] Where it appears that respondent had secured a conveyance of property from his mother by fraud and undue influence and had attempted to have them rescinded on behalf of the complainant, no notice of the rescission was necessary as to him.[43]

Return of consideration or the placing of the other party in statu quo within an aged person, weak and unable to write to an executor in ignorance of its contents and relying on the advice of the executor—Gorman v. McCabe (R. I.) 52 Atl. 989.

33. Deed of aged woman who provided for her rightful heirs—Dean v. Dean (Or.) 70 Pac. 1039.

34. Deed—Edgell v. Smith, 50 W. Va. 349. Four years' unexplained delay is laches; Civ. Code, § 3711—Reynolds & Hamby Estate Mortg. Co. v. Martin (Ga.) 42 S. E. 796.

35. McGee v. Welch, 18 App. D. C. 177. Delay of 18 years with knowledge of fraud is fatal—Becht v. Becht, 168 Mo. 525. Delay may be laches in suit to set aside a release given by a legatee to an administratrix where the facts are rendered uncertain of proof—Lutjen v. Lutjen (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 625. Three years' delay by wife before suing to cancel a deed executed by her and her husband, on ground of duress and fraud, is not laches—Pratt Land & Improvement Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452. Where a suit was brought in the state court to set aside a release for wrongful death within one month after a prior suit for the same purpose was dismissed from the federal court for want of jurisdiction there was no laches—Russell v. Dayton Coal & Iron Co. (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 1.

36. Fraud was discovered five days before suit—Bishop v. Thompson, 196 Ill. 206.

37. Facts and circumstances excusing laches need not be alleged; sufficiency of evidence to show that complainant had notice of facts putting him on inquiry so as to constitute laches—Coolidge v. Rhodes, 199 Ill. 24. Suit to cancel a mortgage for fraud brought 40 years after execution and 33 years after foreclosure and sale will fail for laches where purchasers during that time have been in open possession of the lands and the original parties to the transaction are dead, none of whom it appears ever made any adverse claim—De Roux v. Girard's Ex'r (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 89.

38. Children living with their father during many years, in friendly and confidential relations, before discovery that he claimed to own property under a deed from their mother, given before her death, are not guilty of laches in failing to file a suit for cancellation of such deed, on the ground that the mother never executed it, until the actual discovery of the fact—Lewis v. McGrath, 191 Ill. 401.

39. If complainants suing to set aside a deed obtained from their ancestress by undue influence have continually asserted their rights and postponed suit relying on promises made by defendant for nearly three years after the death of the grantor, they are not guilty of such laches as to prevent cancellation—Walling v. Thomas, 133 Ala. 426.

40. Ten years' unexplained delay, by one not under disability, before suing to cancel a release of his rights in an estate for fraud, is laches where fraud is not shown, nor mistake alleged, though the consideration may have been inadequate—Lutjen v. Lutjen (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 625. Delay of three years in seeking to cancel a deed to a grantee after deceased, for failure of consideration, is fatal where the grantor never sought the consideration during the grantee's life nor from his administrator after his death until it was impossible to comply with the demand and the complaint does not show when the complainant learned that the grantee did not intend to complete his contract. The consideration was a deed to certain land of the grantor which was never executed—Dean v. Oliver, 131 Ala. 634.

41. Where a deed of property was given in consideration that the grantees should care for the grantor during life, and the deed was recorded at his death, and the grantees and those claiming under them were permitted to hold the property and pay the taxes for six years without any adverse claim or excuse for delay, a suit for cancellation instituted by heirs of the grantor was barred by laches though not barred by limitation—Vermilion County Children's Home v. Varner, 192 Ill. 594.

42. Craig v. McKnight, 108 Tenn. 690.

43. Parker v. Simpson, 180 Mass. 334.

a reasonable time is a necessary condition precedent to an action to set aside an instrument for fraud or undue influence,[44] unless the failure so to do is excused for good reason,[45] or it appears that the use of the property conveyed during defendant's possession has been of a greater value than the consideration received by complainant,[46] since equity proceeds on the principle that a transaction should not have taken place and the parties must be placed as nearly as possible in the position they would have occupied had there never been any such contract.[47] The return of worthless property is unnecessary,[48] nor is it necessary that the property be returned in the condition in which complainant received it.[49] A retiring partner, seeking to set aside an amicable settlement for fraud of the continuing partner, need not offer to return the amount received in such settlement.[50] In an action by heirs to set aside a deed of the ancestor, for fraud while she was mentally weak, an offer of restitution is unnecessary where an offer was made by amendment to account for the value of services rendered to the ancestor.[51] Cancellation of a building and loan mortgage and contract because it does not represent the real contract but is a mere device to avoid usury laws will not be refused for failure of payment of the debt and legal interest.[52]

Parties and pleading.[53]—The grantor need not be joined in a suit by one claiming to be the equitable owner to set aside a deed where both parties to the suit admit, that by the deed, defendant acquired all his interest.[54] A husband by whom she had children is prima facie invested with title to the curtesy on con-

44. Meyer v. Fishburn (Neb.) 91 N. W. 534. Trust deed of homestead executed by husband and wife—Hirzel v. Schwartz (Colo. App.) 68 Pac. 1056. Cancellation of release for personal injuries—Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581; Hill v. Northern Pac. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 914. Where a deed was executed for a debt for which a note and mortgage on a homestead had previously been given, the debtors to keep possession and sell the property within nine months, retaining the proceeds after payment of the debt, the deed would not be set aside for failure to return the note and mortgage when such return was not necessary to execution of the deed and was not unreasonably delayed—Snyder v. Nichols, 64 Kan. 886, 67 Pac. 886.

45. Trust deed given in security of chattel mortgage debt—Fry v. Piersol, 166 Mo. 429.

46. Walling v. Thomas, 133 Ala. 426. The deed was alleged to be void as inconsistent with provisions of a will under which the land was held—Call v. Shewmaker, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 686, 69 S. W. 749.

47. Bell v. Felt, 102 Ill. App. 218.

48. Worthless notes and mortgages given in consideration—Bishop v. Thompson, 196 Ill. 206.

49. Bell v. Felt, 102 Ill. App. 218.

50. Menzenhauer v. Schmidt, 63 N. J. Eq. 463.

51. Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130.

52. Walter v. Mutual Home Sav. Ass'n (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 536.

53. Parties in a suit to cancel a bond—Craig v. McKnight, 108 Tenn. 690. Sufficiency of allegations in bill to show duress (Glass v. Haygood, 133 Ala. 489); of mental incapacity of grantor to contract (Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130); of mental incapacity and duress (Walling v. Thomas, 133 Ala. 426); of fraud and mental incapacity (Combs v. Combs, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 1264, 65 S. W. 13); of allegations of fraud in securing a deed (Johnson v. Velve, 86 Minn. 46); of allegations of mental incapacity in bill for cancellation of a contract (Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130); of allegations in regard to contract sought to be set aside as showing that defendant was a creditor of the grantor's estate—Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130. Materiality of issues in suit for cancellation of deed from parent to child in consideration of support of parent—Payette v. Ferrier (Wash.) 71 Pac. 546.

Parties. (Note.) Actions for cancellation of instruments must depend upon the peculiar circumstances of each case in determining who shall be made parties thereto, but the general rule that all persons whose interests would be affected by the cancellation must be made parties will always apply—Pomeroy, Code Remedies, § 379. So in an action to set aside an award, the arbitrators, having no interest in the subject matter and not liable to be affected by the result of the action, cannot be made defendants—Knowlton v. Mickles, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 465; nor will the conveyance of part of a tract of land to a third person, prior to the filing of a bill for cancellation of a fraudulent conveyance of the whole, render the grantee in the second conveyance a necessary party to the suit—Fletcher, Eq. Pl. & Pr. p. 61; Billings v. Aspen Mining Co., 51 Fed. 338.

The joinder of plaintiffs in suits of this kind depends entirely upon whether the fraudulent acts resulting in injury to them are the same as to each particular plaintiff and result from the same means and in identical results except as to the amount of the injury—Fletcher, Eq. Pl. & Pr. p. 72. So it has been held that persons subscribing to capital stock on false representation of the condition of the corporate capital and business prospects may join in a bill for cancellation of their subscriptions, where it appears that they acted jointly in the whole transaction—Id., and cases there cited.

54. Mackay v. Gabel, 117 Fed. 873.

veyance of realty to his wife, and should be joined as defendant in a suit against her to cancel the deed for fraud, so that he may join in reconveyance; and this, even though he would take no interest by curtesy on failure to join.[55] Where a grantor improperly brought suit in equity for cancellation, he may remedy the defect by filing the appropriate count at law amending the bill.[56] A bill in equity for cancellation of a deed must show that complainant was in possession when it was filed.[57] An allegation that the grantee offered to reconvey land and that such offer is still held good is sufficient to show that he is able to reconvey.[58] A bill to cancel a deed for undue influence need not allege the manner in which the influence was asserted if it alleges who asserted the influence.[59] A petition to cancel a mortgage for duress will not lie, where it is not averred that complainant did not owe the debt which the mortgage was executed to secure.[60] A complaint to cancel a deed by plaintiff's testator, alleging undue influence, incapacity, and weakness of mind of decedent, is sufficient, unless on special demurrer, though it does not directly allege fraud.[61] A bill to set aside a trust deed must set out facts enabling defendants to answer without embarrasssment or it will be dismissed.[62] Intimate relations of friendship between the parties need not be specially pleaded in order to be proved.[63] The facts constituting fraud alleged as the ground in a cross bill for cancellation of a mortgage must be particularly shown and a general allegation is insufficient.[64] An allegation in a complaint to rescind a conveyance for fraud, that the grantor showing the grantee a fertile and well timbered tract of land during the negotiations but conveyed to him a rough, timberless, and valueless tract, sufficiently alleges injury to the grantee.[65] Allegations in a petition to set aside a conveyance, that the vendees knew the value of land and fraudulently concealed it from the grantor, knowing his ignorance thereof, are material in connection with other appropriate allegations.[66] Allegations that the execution of a deed was procured by fraud and undue influence, that the grantor was weak in mind and incompetent to manage his affairs and that defendant knowing this had complete control over his mind and property, and, taking advantage thereof, procured the deed without consideration, sufficiently alleges the fraud.[67] A petition setting forth with sufficient clearness alleged fraud and artifice practiced to secure a conveyance will not be subject to demurrer for vagueness, and if it alleges that when the contract was made the grantor was old, without memory, and incapable of transacting business, it is not liable to a general demurrer for a failure to allege that she remained so incapable until her death.[68] A grantor seeking to set aside a deed for fraud in representations must allege and prove the misrepresentations, that they were false, that he believed them true and relied and acted upon them; if the allegations of the complaint confuse the theories of the contract sought to be canceled so that insufficient facts are shown to sustain any particular theory, it is insufficient.[69] In a suit to cancel a power of attorney in a deed executed by a person claimed to be insane brought by a grantee of the premises in a deed executed after his restoration to sanity, it is immaterial

55. Construction of Gen. Laws R. I. c. 194, § 16, with Pub. St. R. I., c. 166, § 16; also Gen. Laws, c. 194, § 1, as to right of husband in realty conveyed to wife—Gorman v. McHale (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1083.
56. Davison v. Davison, 71 N. H. 180.
57. Galloway v. Hendon, 131 Ala. 280.
58. Lockwood v. Allen, 113 Wis. 474.
59. Letohatchie Baptist Church v. Bullock, 133 Ala. 548.
60. Fry v. Piersol, 166 Mo. 429.
61. Collins v. O'Laverty, 136 Cal. 31.
62. Wolters v. Schrafft (N. J. Law) 52 Atl. 694.
63. Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183.
64. Mortimer v. McMullen, 102 Ill. App. 593.
65. Under the rule as to liberal construction of pleadings—Lockwood v. Allen, 113 Wis. 474.
66. Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183.
67. Johnson v. Velve, 86 Minn. 46.
68. Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130.
69. Grentner v. Fehrenschield, 64 Kan. 764, 68 Pac. 619.

what consideration was paid by plaintiff for his conveyance.[70] In a suit by heirs to cancel a deed of their ancestor, for fraud used while she was mentally incompetent, an amendment to the bill offering to account for the value of services rendered to the ancestor by defendant as her agent was sufficient as an offer of restitution.[71] In a suit for cancellation of a bond and mortgage the instruments need not be made a part of the complaint or filed therewith.[72] In an action to cancel a deed for excess of authority in execution by plaintiff's agent, evidence that plaintiff enlarged the agent's authority is not admissible where no averment of such enlargement was made in the answer.[73]

Evidence and questions of fact.[74]—In a suit for cancellation, one who derives a benefit from the instrument must show the fairness of the transaction.[75] Complainant must prove fraud alleged as ground for cancellation of an instrument, even though, for want of personal knowledge by defendants, their answer lacks the force of an answer under oath made on actual knowledge.[76] Where defendant in foreclosure sets up fraud in securing the note and mortgage and asks for cancellation by cross bill, the burden of proving fraud is upon her.[77] That a conveyance is made by a father to his son while residing with the son will not suffice to show it presumptively fraudulent so as to shift the burden of proof of want of undue influence to the grantee, though the conveyance deprives other children of their share in the property.[78] In a suit for cancellation of a mortgage for duress, plaintiff must show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that he made the mortgage to escape criminal prosecution.[79] Evidence that the agreed price was the value of the land cannot be heard in an action to cancel a deed because executed by an agent in excess of his authority.[80] Inadequacy of consideration is not necessarily conclusive evidence of fraud in the execution of a conveyance.[81] Parol evidence to set aside a written contract for fraud, accident, or mistake, must concern what occurred contemporaneously with execution of the document and

70. Clay v. Hammond, 199 Ill. 370.

71. Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130.

72. Marley v. National Bldg., Loan & Sav. Ass'n, 28 Ind. App. 369.

73. Morton v. Morris, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 262.

74. Admissibility of evidence, in a suit to cancel a contract for the sale of cotton, as to the manner of baling cotton and improvements therein after the making of the contract—American Cotton Co. v. Collier (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1021. Sufficiency of evidence of mistake (Stewart v. Dunn, 77 App. Div. 631); of mental incapacity to execute deed (Wilson v. Jackson, 167 Mo. 135); of mental incapacity to execute a trust deed (Tatum v. Tatum's Adm'r [Va.] 43 S. E. 184); of mental incapacity at time of executing a mortgage (Beatty v. Somerville, 102 Ill. App. 487); of evidence to show that a trust deed was executed without duress (Bogue v. Franks, 199 Ill. 411); to show that the assignment of a ground lease was without fraud (Sheehan v. Erbe, 77 App. Div. 176); of evidence as depending on weight and credibility of witnesses (Frank v. Schloss [N. Y.] 37 Misc. Rep. 140); to show that no undue influence was used in securing execution of a deed (Vinson v. Scott, 198 Ill. 144); to show mental capacity to execute a deed (Vinson v. Scott, 198 Ill. 144); to show that an offer to place the other party in statu quo was made in reasonable time (Meyer v. Fishburn [Neb.] 91 N. W. 534); to cancel deed to grantor's granddaughter for fraud and undue influence (Haynes v. Harriman [Wis.] 92 N. W. 1100); of evidence of acquiescence by complainant in breach of a condition subsequent by a railroad company of provisions in a deed granting the company complainant's land (Dickson v. St. Louis & K. R. Co., 168 Mo. 90); of evidence, in suit by administrator to cancel testator's deed for fraud, to carry to the jury the issue whether the instrument contained the real contract between the parties (Carpenter v. Bradshaw [Ga.] 42 S. E. 1016); of evidence to establish lien on property received from her father's estate conveyed by a daughter to her brother for services in care of the daughter and father by the son in a suit by the daughter to set aside her deed as against the son's widow—Domling v. Domling, 8 Det. Leg. N. 786, 87 N. W. 788. Sufficiency of instructions as to ratification of execution of contract and deeds sought to be cancelled—American Cotton Co. v. Collier (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1021.

75. Cannon v. Gilmer, 135 Ala. 302.

76. De Roux v. Girard's Ex'r (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 89.

77. Mortimer v. McMullen, 102 Ill. App. 593.

78. Chidester v. Turnbull (Iowa) 90 N. W. 583.

79. Fry v. Piersol, 166 Mo. 429.

80. Morton v. Morris, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 262.

81. An instruction directing the jury to find that the conveyance was procured by fraud, if the consideration was so inadequate as to shock the conscience was incorrect—Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183.

what secured its execution and must be clear and precise in order that the case may be submitted to the jury.[82] Whether an offer to return consideration or place the other party in statu quo was made in reasonable time is a mixed question of law and fact.[83] The question of ratification of a conveyance of an expectant estate secured by fraud of the grantee for an inadequate consideration is for the jury, where evidence appears reasonable, tending to show that at the time of the alleged ratification he knew no more about the transaction than at the time of execution.[84]

Findings and judgment.[85]—Where facts sufficient to require cancellation for fraud and mental incapacity were pleaded by plaintiff, and sufficient evidence appears to sustain the allegation, defendant suffers no injury because the jury was required to make certain additional findings though their submission was not justified by the evidence.[86] A verdict for cancellation of a deed is sufficient where the description of property in the petition is practically that in the deed so that the property is fully identified.[87] If it appears in an action to rescind a conveyance for fraud, that there was no evidence of any change in the contract, but the making of the deed and the execution of a mortgage to secure the purchase price were admitted, the court was warranted in finding that the grantee held the land unencumbered except for the purchase price mortgage.[88] Cancellation of a conveyance by an aged person, mentally incompetent, conveying land and vesting title to cash at suit of the heirs at law after death of the grantor, relates to the realty and the court having taken jurisdiction may retain it to recover the money.[89] A decree dismissing a suit for cancellation of a note should not contain findings which may prejudice an action on the note.[90] Where the prayer for relief asks that defendant be ordered to restore personal property received from plaintiff as far as possible, defendant is entitled, on a decree against him, to deliver any articles found to have been wrongfully obtained and receive credit therefor on the amount charged against him.[91] Where the court in a suit for cancellation for fraud of the grantee required the grantee to execute to the grantor a deed in fee and free from all incumbrances, except a purchase-money mortgage which was received from the grantee as a condition for entering of a judgment for the grantee rescinding the conveyance to him for fraud, the grantor's rights were fully protected.[92] Where an attorney, employed to perfect the title of land sold at the expense of the grantor, secured a cancellation of a mortgage covering part of the purchase price and another loan, at the instance of the grantee and without the knowledge of the grantor, the latter may have the cancellation set aside as fraudulent.[93] Where a father deeded land to a son in consideration of the care of his parents during life and payment of certain sums to his brothers, and after compliance for several years the son died leaving a wife but no children, in a suit by the brothers to determine the interests of the wife in the farm and recover the title, a decree was properly granted, on condition that the wife be paid $500, and that the brothers restore to her the notes given to them by her husband for the payment of the sums coming to them from their father's estate.[94]

82. Nettleton v. Caryl, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 250.
83. Meyer v. Fishburn (Neb.) 92 N. W. 534.
84. Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183.
85. Conclusiveness of findings as to misrepresentations and undue influence in securing a sale of lands at greatly inadequate consideration on the question of setting the sale aside—Coile v. Hudgins (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 56.
86. Wells v. Houston (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 183.
87. American Cotton Co. v. Collier (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1021.
88. Lockwood v. Allen, 113 Wis. 474.
89. Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130.
90. Vannatta v. Lindley, 198 Ill. 40.
91. Parker v. Simpson, 180 Mass. 334.
92. Lockwood v. Allen, 113 Wis. 474.
93. Renner v. Kannally, 193 Ill. 212.
94. Coe v. Dickerson, 8 Det. Leg. N. 838, 87 N. W. 1028.

CURRENT LAW

(Copyrighted 1903, by John B. West Company.)

VOLUME I. NOVEMBER, 1903. NUMBER 4.

CARRIERS.[1]

PART I. IN GENERAL.

§ 1. Definitions and Distinctions.

§ 2. Duty to Undertake and Provide Carriage; Discrimination; Penalties.—Charges; Statutory Provisions; Definitions; Indictment and Prosecution.

§ 3. Rights and Relations between Carrier and Connecting Carrier, Draymen or Transfer Men.

PART II. CARRIAGE OF GOODS.

§ 4. Delivery to Carrier and Inception of Liability.

§ 5. Contracts for Carriage.—Failure to Furnish Cars.

§ 6. Bills of Lading.—Conclusiveness; Interpretation; Indorsement and Transfer.

§ 7. Delay in Transportation and Delivery.

§ 8. Loss of or Injury to Goods.—Damage by Water and Storms; Fire; Effect of Failure to Disclose Value; Effect of Acceptance.

§ 9. Delivery by Carrier.—Notice of Arrival; Duty to Require Bill of Lading; Place of Delivery; Wrongful Delivery; Liability for Conversion; Shipments C. O. D.; Refused Shipments.

§ 10. Carrier as Warehouseman.—Care Required.

§ 11. Liability of Carrier or Connecting Carrier.—Limitation of Liability; Delivery to Succeeding Carrier; Loss or Injury; Statutory Regulations.

§ 12. Limitation of Liability.—Particular Limitation; Limitations as to Amount; Assent to Limitations; Waiver.

§ 13. Remedies and Procedure.—Persons Who May Sue; Form of Action; Venue; Pleading; Burden of Proof; Evidence; Instructions.

§ 14. Freight and Other Charges.—Establishment of Commission Rates; Rebates; Persons Liable for Freight; Advances by Carrier; Demurrage; Liens and Enforcement; Recovery of Overpayments; Actions for Charges.

PART III. CARRIAGE OF LIVE-STOCK.

§ 15. Duty to Carry and Contract of Carriage Generally.

§ 16. Care Required of Carrier.—Delays.

§ 17. Delivery.

§ 18. Liability of Carrier or Connecting Carrier.—Through Contracts; Limitation of Liability; Duty to Deliver; Delay; Liability of Final Carrier.

§ 19. Limitation of Liability.—Limitations as to Amount; Consideration for Limitation; Assent; Provisions for Personal Care of Shipper; Provisions for Notice of Injury; Waiver.

§ 20. Procedure in Actions Relating to Carriage of Stock.—Venue; Limitations and Conditions; Who May Sue; Pleading; Burden of Proof; Evidence; Instructions; Judgment.

§ 21. Damages.—Elements; In Case of Connecting Carriers.

PART IV. CARRIAGE OF PASSENGERS.

§ 22. Duty to Undertake and Provide Carriage.—Who are Passengers; When Relation Begins; When Relation Ceases; Persons on Other Than Passenger Trains.

§ 23. Contracts and Tickets.—The Contract in General; Discrimination; Statutory Regulations of Fare; Mileage Books, Through Contracts; Regulation of Sale of Tickets; Right to Use Tickets; Rights on Loss of Tickets; Round Trip Tickets; Limited Tickets; Stop-over Privileges; Redemption of Tickets; Actions for Failure to Carry or Honor Tickets; Sufficiency of Performance of Contract; Actions for Failure to Perform.

§ 24. Extra Charges Where Tickets are Not Procured and Other Regulations.

§ 25. Ejection of Passengers.—Persons Without Ticket or Refusing to Pay Fare; Persons Refusing to Pay Extra Charges; Persons With Defective Tickets; Interchangeable Mileage; Defective Transfers; Right to Tender Fare After Refusal; Passenger on Wrong Train; Passenger Misbehaving; Place; Manner; Injuries Caused by Passenger's Conduct; Actions; Pleading; Burden of Proof; Evidence; Instructions; Elements and Measure of Damages; Exemplary and Punitive Damages.

§ 26. Liability for Personal Injuries.—A. General Principles.—What Law Governs; Degree of Care Demanded; Non-incidental Dangers; Freight Trains; Cabs; Free Passengers; Intoxicated or Disabled Passengers; Carriers Using Cars or Premises of Others; Union Stations.

B. Condition and Care of Premises.—Duty to Warm Stations; To Furnish Safe Platforms; To Light Platforms and Premises; Liability for Objects Near Tracks.

---

1. See articles "Railroads," "Street Railways," for all questions of the rights and liabilities of such carriers not arising from the actual carriage of goods and passengers, such as control by state or municipality, duties toward third persons and trespassers, and liability to fence and protect right of way. See article "Master and Servant" for injuries to employes. Consult also article "Shipping and Water Traffic."

Part 1. In general. § 1. Definitions and distinctions.—One who travels between certain points and openly professes to carry goods for all such persons as choose to employ him is a common carrier.[2] A storage company which engages in moving household goods is not,[3] nor is the driver of a licensed bus necessarily so.[4] Operators of passenger elevators are carriers.[5]

§ 2. Duty to undertake and provide carriage; discrimination; penalties.[6]—A carrier is bound to receive and transport freight from all persons similarly situated,[7] though it may fix for itself the limits within which it will act as a common carrier if it act in good faith and without discrimination.[8] The carrier cannot refuse shipments except such as are to be sold to a certain person, even though the refusal is applied to all shippers.[9]

Charges of common carriers may be regulated by the legislature,[10] but should not be so reduced as to render operation of the road infeasible.[11] A carrier may charge a less rate than that fixed by the railroad commission if discrimination is not made, and if it is attempted to exact the maximum rate after an agreement to carry for less, the shipper may recover back the overcharge.[12] Where goods consigned to a point in the state are sold to a person without the state, and by

2. Swift & Co. v. Ronan, 103 Ill. App. 475.

3. In a sense entitling it to a lien for charges—Thompson v. Storage Co. (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 938.

4. Atlantic City v. Dehn (N. J. Sup.) 54 Atl. 220.

5. Chicago Exch. Bldg. Co. v. Nelson, 197 Ill. 334; Beidler v. Branshaw, 102 Ill. App. 187.

6. See "Commerce" for questions under the interstate commerce act. See post, § 14, for general questions of freight and demurrage charges. Discrimination in passenger rates, see post, § 23.

7. A carrier maintaining a switch to a certain quarry is bound to receive freight belonging to owners of a neighboring quarry to and from reasonable points along its lines at which it could lawfully ship or receive it.—Bedford-Bowling Green Stone Co. v. Oman, 24 Ky. L. R. 2274, 73 S. W. 1038.

8. It may determine the means and methods of transportation, the goods it will carry, and between what points and under what circumstances and conditions it will receive them—Harp v. Railroad Co., 118 Fed. 169.

9. Refusal to accept shipments of coal—Loraine v. Railroad Co., 205 Pa. 132.

10. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Chicago, 199 Ill. 484.

11. Legislative reduction of rates chargeable on local business is unreasonable and unjust where at the time, under the exercise of efficient and economical management, the earnings from local business within the state are insufficient to pay one half the proportion of the interest of the mortgage debt on the lines within the state justly chargeable thereon—Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Smith, 110 Fed. 473.

12. Wells-Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

him sold to a person at another point within the state, a shipment from the original destination to the final one is intra-state business, governed by the rates of the state, but transfers from one car to another, and re-billing, do not cause the shipment to lose its character as an interstate one, if there is a definite intention that the shipment shall be from a point without to a point within a state,[13] and though the person alleging an overcharge acquired title from the original shipper at a point within the state before it arrived at its destination.[14] To render a railroad liable for failure to observe a domestic regulation, it must be shown to have knowledge that the shipment is domestic.[15]

Statutory prevention of discrimination.—A provision for indictment of carriers for discrimination in rates, if on investigation the railroad commission fails to exonerate them from the operation of a statute, is not an encroachment on the power vested in the railroad commission to determine to what extent a carrier may be relieved from an inhibition against greater charges for short than long hauls,[16] but it cannot be provided that indictments for unjust discrimination may be made only on recommendation by the commission, for that might exempt the carrier from the constitutional penalty.[17]

A proceeding by action against a railroad commission under the Texas law, to declare an established rate to be unreasonable, does not give the court advisory power to pass on the rules and regulations of the commission,[18] but the inquiry is not limited to whether the rate is so unreasonable and unjust as to amount to the taking of property without due process of law.[19]

Omission from a new statute providing for the fixing of rates by a railroad commission, of provisions for the prosecution of carriers charging unlawful rates, does not effect a repeal of the previous statute,[20] and where statutes relating to discrimination are united in a revision and the penalties provided in each are continued, the penalty provided in one cannot be imposed in a prosecution based on the violation of another.[21]

What constitutes discrimination.—It is not discrimination to refuse to furnish cars for shipment in one direction though cars are furnished to be shipped in the opposite direction,[22] or to furnish cars which may be advantageously loaded when others are refused.[23] Cars must be furnished in the order in which requests therefor are received.[24] It is not a discrimination to refuse to construct spur tracks,[25] or to refuse to deliver stock to other than the carrier's yards,[26] and,

13. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. State (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 429.

14. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Fort Grain Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 419.

15. Evidence held insufficient—failure to stop cotton at first compress—(Rev. St. 1895, art. 4574, § 1)—State v. Railroad Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 572.

16. Construing Ky. St. § 820; Const. § 218—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Com., 23 Ky. L. R. 1159, 64 S. W. 975.

17. Commonwealth v. Railroad Co., 23 Ky. L. R. 1382, 65 S. W. 158.

18. Railroad Commission v. Weld (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 122.

19. Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4565, 4566—Railroad Commission v. Weld & Neville, 95 Tex. 278, 73 S. W. 529.

20. Construing Act Ky. March 10, 1900, Gen. St. Ky. 1894, § 819—McChord v. Railroad Cos., 183 U. S. 483, 46 U. S. Lawy. Ed. 289.

21. Construing Rev. St. 1889, §§ 2636, 2637, 2663, and awarding a judgment for treble damages—McGrew v. Railway Co., 87 Mo. App. 250.

22. The cars furnished were for local and not for interstate shipments and the order applied to all persons alike—Harp v. Railway Co., 118 Fed. 169.

23. It is not an unlawful discrimination either at common law or under the statute to furnish coal cars to be loaded from chutes at a time when cars to be loaded by wagon in station yards are refused, nor is it unreasonable at a time when the supply of cars was insufficient and the tracks on which cars to be loaded by wagons would have to be placed were in constant use—Harp v. Railway Co., 118 Fed. 169.

24. Nichols v. Railroad Co., 24 Utah, 83, 66 Pac. 768.

25. A railroad need not lay a track to a mine, though it has permitted the building of similar tracks to other mines—Harp v. Railway Co., 118 Fed. 169.

26. The facilities provided were reasonable—Central Stock Yards Co. v. Railroad Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 113.

in the absence of statute, the courts cannot compel an exchange of traffic between connecting railroads.[27] A greater sum may be charged for the carriage of a high than a low grade of coal.[28] A level rate on cotton without regard to density of compression is not unreasonable and unjust.[29] Where the statute prohibits a greater charge for a shorter than for a longer haul over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included in the longer distance, it is not a discrimination for connecting carriers to charge less under a joint traffic agreement for a haul from a point on one road to a point on the other than the first carrier charges from the initial point on its road to its terminus between the points.[30] Penalties for overcharges cannot be recovered for the inclusion by the carrier of a switching charge exacted of it by another road which delivers the goods to it.[31]

It may be an illegal discrimination to furnish a newspaper editor an annual pass in consideration of the publication of a time table.[32]

Penalties.—Where a penalty is provided for each article refused, a separate penalty may be exacted for each animal on refusal to transport a car load of cattle.[33] Where a statute provides a penalty for a refusal of freight or passengers, a connecting carrier to whom freight is consigned cannot sue for the penalty.[34]

Indictment and prosecution.—A fine provided for an overcharge in freight rates cannot be enforced in a civil action.[35] An indictment for violation of the Kentucky statute against discrimination cannot be returned until the railroad commission has refused to exonerate the carrier, since it is provided by statute that it shall be the duty of the commission to investigate charges against the carrier, and, if an order failing to exonerate it is made, to furnish the grand jury a copy of the order that it may be indicted.[36] Under the same law, an order of railroad commissioners failing to exonerate a carrier from unlawful discrimination with regard to special named cases cannot be made the basis of an indictment for discrimination as to subsequent shipments.[37] Where the statute provides that freight of the same class must be hauled for all persons between the same points and on the same conditions, in the same manner and for the same charges, an indictment for discrimination must allege that the services were on the same conditions.[38]

§ 3. Rights and relations between carrier and connecting carrier, draymen or transfermen, etc.[39]—Ownership of connecting property is not a prerequisite to the statutory duty of one connecting or crossing railroad to afford accommodations to the other in the transportation of passengers and goods.[40] A railroad has power

27. Such power is not conferred on courts by the interstate commerce act—Central Stock Yards Co. v. Railroad Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 113.

28. Construing Const. § 215—Commonwealth v. Railroad Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 509, 68 S. W. 1103.

29. Not a violation of Rev. St. 1895, art. 4566, supporting an action against the railroad commission—Railroad Commission v. Weld & Neville, 95 Tex. 278, 73 S. W. 529.

30. Ky. St. § 820—Commonwealth v. Railroad Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1883, 72 S. W. 361.

31. Code 1892, §§ 4287, 4288. Defendant had given a rate for transportation over its own line and in the freight bill included a switching charge which it had to pay in order to obtain possession of the freight—Gilliland v. Railroad Co. (Miss.) 32 So. 916.

32. If the value of the advertisement is not shown to equal the value of the pass and there is a sale of transportation on credit and not payable in money. Construing Laws 1891, p. 277, c. 320, § 4—McNeill v. Railroad Co. (N. C.) 44 S. E. 34.

33. Carter v. Railroad Co., 129 N. C. 213.

34. 2 Comp. Laws 1897, § 6235—Crosby v. Railroad Co. (Mich.) 9 Det. Leg. N. 310, 91 N. W. 124.

35. Laws 1893, c. 24, § 9—State v. Railroad Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 222.

36. Ky. St. § 820—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Com., 23 Ky. L. R. 1159, 64 S. W. 975.

37. Const. § 218; Ky. St. § 820—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com., 24 Ky. L. R. 1593, 1779, 71 S. W. 910.

38. Violation of Const. § 215, construing Cr. Code, § 124, as to certainty of indictment—Commonwealth v. Railroad Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1887, 72 S. W. 758. "On different conditions" held bad—Commonwealth v. Railroad Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1888, 72 S. W. 361; Commonwealth v. Railroad Co., 24 Ky. Law Rep. 1886, 72 S. W. 360.

39. See post, § 26, for liability of carrier of passengers who uses the premises or vehicles or transports the cars of another.

40. A street railroad, vested with the right of eminent domain and with charter power to acquire real estate, is subject to

to contract with other railroads for carriage beyond its lines, provided it does not fix discriminatory rates.[41] Where a carrier maintains a wharf for the transfer of goods between its own lines and vessels of other carriers, the use of such wharf and its appliances must be allowed to all on equal terms.[42] In a statutory proceeding for the appointment of commissioners to make an award as to the terms on which crossing and connecting railways are to receive the goods and passengers of each other, a recognizance for costs is not required unless provided for by the statute.[43]

A railroad may prevent the solicitation of custom within its stations for carriage and baggage lines and hotels,[44] or the congregating of hackmen around the doors of its station, to solicit business, in such numbers as to interfere with ingress and egress, though it has allowed one firm of hackmen to enter its station to solicit trade.[45]

Part 2. Carriage of goods. § 4. Delivery to carrier and inception of liability.[46]—A carrier may refuse to accept freight improperly prepared for shipment, or may prepare it itself.[47] It is not a conversion for a carrier without notice to accept goods from other than the true owner.[48]

§ 5. Contracts for carriage.—A contract of carriage is governed by the law of the place of its inception.[49]

A carrier undertaking to carry out a contract to deliver freight at a certain point cannot absolve itself from negligence by reason of the insufficient authority of an agent to make the contract.[50] The station agent is not presumed to have authority to bind his company for loss on connecting lines, but his authority may be inferred from previous course of dealing.[51] If the carrier ratifies a contract by a local agent accepting, instead of advance payment of freight required by rule, a deposit of the amount at the point of destination, it must perform the contract.[52] The agent of a railroad company having no line within the state has implied authority to contract for the safe delivery of goods beyond the line of his company, and to contract over what roads the freight shall be transported.[53] A contract made by an eastern freight agent may be binding on the receivers of a western railroad.[54] Where the receiving carrier agrees to carry over its own

V. S. c. 169, § 3860—Rutland R. Co. v. St. Ry. Co., 73 Vt. 20.

41. Code, § 2066—Bras v. McConnell, 114 Iowa, 401.

42. West Coast Naval Stores Co. v. Railroad Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 645; Macon, D. & S. R. Co. v. Graham & Ward (Ga.) 43 S. E. 1000. Injunction will lie against a grant of the exclusive use of coal unloading machinery at a dock to one shipper, though the machine which had been erected and maintained jointly by the carrier and a coal transfer company is conveyed to the transfer company—Youghiogheny & O. Coal Co. v. Railway Co., 24 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 289.

43. V. S. § 3864—Rutland R. Co. v. St. Ry. Co., 73 Vt. 20.

44. Injunction will lie for such purpose—Pennsylvania Co. v. Donovan, 116 Fed. 907.

45. The injunction should not go further than to protect complainant's right of private property; an obstruction to the use of the sidewalk or street by the public should be left to be dealt with by the municipality—Donovan v. Pennsylvania Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 215.

46. Evidence held sufficient for the jury in an action for damages from negligent failure to ship goods.—Porter v. Railroad Co. (N. C.) 43 S. E. 547.

47. Elgin J. & E. Ry. Co. v. Bates Mach. Co., 98 Ill. App. 311.

48. Robt. C. White L. S. Commission Co. v. Railroad Co., 87 Mo. App. 330.

49. A contract entered into in Missouri between a resident corporation and a carrier having an office and doing business there is a Missouri contract—Herf & Frerichs Chemical Co. v. Lackawanna Line (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 346. See, also, article "Conflict of Laws."

50. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 132 Ala. 434.

51. Faulkner v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 927.

52. Porter v. Railroad Co. (N. C.) 43 S. E. 547.

53. Freemont, E. & M. V. R. Co. v. Railroad Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 131; New York, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Railroad Co., Id.

54. Such freight agent has apparent authority to contract at his office in New York, for carriage over the road and the connecting steamship lines across the Pacific, and such contract is binding on the receivers, if the shipper has no notice of limitation on the agent's authority, and does not line and forward according to the usual course of business from its terminus, it is not bound by statements of its station agent as to the rate to be charged by the connecting carrier.[55] A statement by one not the regular agent but in the carrier's office, that a low rate will be given in a few days, does not evidence a contract to carry at such rate.[56] A railroad station agent may bind the company to furnish cars.[57] The burden of showing the station agent's authority is on the plaintiff.[58]

Failure to furnish cars.—Where the carrier fails to furnish cars at an hour specified, but furnishes them at a time early enough to bring them to their destination in time for the same market, the shipper cannot refuse to ship and recover for breach of contract.[59] In an action for failure to furnish cars the contract must be set out if the cause of action is apparently one for breach.[60] It must be alleged that the goods concerning which the action is brought were tendered or received by an authorized agent of the carrier or application for cars made to agent authorized to furnish cars.[61] The carrier is liable for breach of agreement to furnish cars belonging to another line, and inability to obtain the precise kind of cars ordered is not an excuse, if it was understood that the shipper would accept any variety obtainable where the others could not be secured.[62]

The carrier is liable for refusal to accept perishable goods and provide suitable cars, though it has not held itself out as furnishing refrigerator cars. The carrier is not relieved from liability by failure of a refrigerator car company to furnish cars, or by the fact that it was willing to haul iced cars to be furnished by another company under contract with the shipper, or that there were more goods for shipment than enough to fill the cars ordered.[63]

§ 6. Bills of lading.—Issuance of the bill of lading is not necessary to fix the liability of a railroad as a carrier.[64] Where a bill of lading is issued for accommodation before actual delivery of the goods, the carrier is not bound to endeavor to get possession of the goods if the owner has agreed to deliver them on board.[65] know that the railroad does not own the steamship line, and the receivers do not operate it—Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Railroad Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 873.

55. McLagan v. Railway Co., 116 Iowa, 183.

56. Wells-Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams, (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

57. An oral agreement to such effect is valid unless the want of authority of the agent is known to the shipper—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Irvine & Woods (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 540.

58. McLagan v. Railway Co., 116 Iowa, 183.

59. Currell v. Railroad Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 113.

60. Such omission is not supplied by an allegation in the answer stating a contract to furnish cars on a certain date in time for a certain market and a replication admitting such contract, as pleaded, and the trial could not proceed on the theory of a contract to have cars ready on a certain hour and not a contract to furnish them in time for a certain market.—Currell v. Railroad Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 113.

61. Complaint held demurrable which alleged that plaintiff placed timber for shipment near the company's tracks at a station named and that he applied to a freight conductor and the company's agents at other stations for a car—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Lee, 69 Ark. 584.

62. Nichols v. Railroad Co., 24 Utah, 83, 66 Pac. 768.

63. An agreement to furnish refrigerator cars at particular dates need not be shown to establish prima facie liability—Mathis v. Railway Co. (S. C.) 43 S. E. 684.

64. Where it has received a consignment for transportation and is notified of its destination, it cannot escape liability as a carrier by issuing a bill of lading in the form of a track or warehouse receipt after destruction of the consignment—Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Wilson, 99 Ill. App. 367.

65. An unauthorized issuance by an agent of bills of lading for goods in a public warehouse is not ratified by a steamship company by its reception on board of goods purporting to be those described, which have been fraudulently substituted for the actual goods in the warehouse. Acceptance of goods on board is a ratification only from time of delivery, and the company is not liable while the goods are in the warehouse subject to the orders of the seller, though a bill of lading has been issued by its agent to the purchaser—Cunard S. S. Co. v. Kelley (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 678.

Conclusiveness of bill.—Statutes making bills of lading conclusive, where weights are stated therein, have been held constitutional,[66] and may provide for attorney's fees in cases prosecuted under them.[67] Liability is for goods actually received, though a different quantity is described in the bill.[68] A receipt for goods not delivered to the carrier may be explained by showing that it was not intended to change the actual or legal custody until they were loaded.[69]

Interpretation.—Clauses of bills of lading will be interpreted in their relation to the other clauses thereof, and according to obvious, not to hidden, meanings.[70] A phrase in a receipt, in "apparent good order except as noted, contents and condition of contents unknown," does not create a presumption that boxed goods are received in good condition.[71]

Indorsement and transfer of bill of lading operates as a constructive delivery of the property, though not where it has been taken from the carrier's possession under legal process, with knowledge of the parties.[72] Transfer deprives the consignor of his control,[73] and the carrier becomes an agent of the indorsee if he has actual possession.[74] The receipt and negotiation of the bill does not, as between the shipper and the carrier, annul a prior contract under which the goods were shipped and upon which rights and obligations have accrued.[75] Transfer of bill of lading, with draft attached, to a creditor, confers a lien superior to the lien of a subsequent attachment.[76] Assignment after delivery of the goods to the consignee does not pass title, where the bill requires that it shall be taken up on such delivery,[77] but bills of lading attached to drafts, deposited with a bank to secure checks drawn for the payment of the drafts, in the hands of the bank still represent the goods on which it has a lien.[78] A bank advancing money for the purchase of goods may, through acquiescence in a uniform course of business, be prevented from retaining possession of the goods and bills of lading as against one to whom the purchasers had sold them.[79] Under statutes providing that a bill of lading to bearer may be transferred by delivery, the carrier is liable for delivery to the consignee where it has given the shipper a bill of lading naming the shipper and consignee, providing for delivery of the goods shipped to the parties entitled thereto, and such bill has been indorsed and delivered to a third person.[80]

66. Laws 1893, c. 100—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Simonson, 64 Kan. 802, 68 Pac. 653, 57 L. R. A. 765.

67. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Simonson, 64 Kan. 802, 68 Pac. 653, 57 L. R. A. 765.

68. Southern Ry. Co. v. Allison, 115 Ga. 635.

69. A bill of lading in its character as a receipt is open to explanation—Cunard S. S. Co. v. Kelley (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 678.

70. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Reiss, 183 U. S. 621, 46 U. S. Lawy. Ed. 358.

71. Mears v. Railroad Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 610, 56 L. R. A. 884.

72. Storey v. Hershey, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 485.

73. Robt. C. White L. S. Commission Co. v. Railroad Co., 87 Mo. App. 330.

74. Storey v. Hershey, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 485. A carrier is not relieved from its duty to forward within a reasonable time, by reason of the fact that a party, who by the terms of the bill of lading it was to notify, verbally instructed it not to deliver the goods, such person not being in possession of or entitled to the bill of lading in which the owner of the goods was named as both shipper and consignee—Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Berry (Ga.) 42 S. E. 371.

75. Negotiation is not a ratification or adoption of the bill—Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Railroad Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 873.

76. Clary v. Tyson (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 710.

77. Action by the assignee for a valuable consideration to recover for a conversion—National Commercial Bank v. Lackawanna Transp. Co., 59 App. Div. (N. Y.) 270.

78. First Nat. Bank v. Railway Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1033.

See Hall v. Keller, 64 Kan. 211, 67 Pac. 518, 91 Am. St. Rep. 209, and note on liability of indorsee for breach of contract for sale of goods so shipped.

79. Agreement to advance money to cotton dealers for the purchase of cotton, taking the bills of lading as security under a course of business whereby the dealers sold the cotton, and, after the sales were made, obtained the bills from the bank and deposited the amount received on the sales therein—First Nat. Bank v. Railway Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1033.

80. 1 Ball. Ann. Codes & Statutes, §§ 3598, 3603, 3604, and 3600—First Nat. Bank v. Railroad Co., 28 Wash. 439, 68 Pac. 965.

§ 7. Delay in transportation and delivery.—The carrier is not liable for delay to perishable fruit on account of damage to the track by unprecedented rains.[81] If goods are accepted for shipment with knowledge that they may be seized as contraband of war, the carrier is bound to use all reasonable means to prevent delay from such cause.[82] The carrier is not liable for the value of goods by reason of a mere omission to deliver within a reasonable time; the measure of damages is the difference between the value at time of delivery and the value at the time delivery should have been made,[83] and if after shipment the destination is changed, the measure of damages for delay at the original destination is the difference in value at the substituted destination.[84] Any reasonable expense occasioned by an unreasonable delay, causing goods to deteriorate in value, may be recovered.[85]

§ 8. Loss of or injury to goods.—Where receipt of goods is admitted, the carrier must show that their loss was not the result of his negligence.[86] He is not liable for acts done at the direction of the shipper,[87] unless from an unreasonable delay in transportation it becomes the carrier's duty to disregard instructions.[88]

Damage by water and storms.—Cars must be shown to be free from leaks.[89] Where there is a stipulation against loss by water, the fact that goods were delayed two days and were wet when delivered does not show that they were wet by the carrier's negligence.[90] A carrier is not rendered liable for loss of goods by an unprecedented storm by the mere fact that he has failed to make a prompt delivery after arrival. He must, by ordinary prudence, have been able to protect the goods after notice of the impending danger.[91] A carrier is not liable as for conversion of wheat destroyed by an unusual storm while the property remains in its possession, through delay in carriage and delivery at the point of destination, but is liable for retention of a portion of wheat recovered after the storm and retained for an unreasonable time.[92]

Fire.—No presumption of negligence in an express company arises from the mere fact that a fire occurs.[93] The carrier is bound to guard its warehouse

81. A train containing fruit was sent over the road first after repair of the section damaged, though a light work train went over the road through the water the day before—Burnham v. Railway Co. (Miss.) 32 So. 912.

82. After lead was loaded on a vessel, the deputy collector refused to clear the ship on the ground that the lead was contraband, and it was unloaded. The ruling was reversed on the following day before the vessel sailed, but the lead was left, and the carrier, in the absence of proof that it had made any effort to see that the vessel was cleared, was held liable for damages resulting from delay, though the lead was sent on by a later vessel—Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Railroad Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 873.

83. Louisville, N. A. & C. Ry. Co. v. Hellprin, 95 Ill. App. 402.

84. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Tex. Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 792.

85. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Josey (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 606.

The consignor's estimate of damage from delay may be taken, though it is greater than that of the consignee and the consignor states that the consignee has a greater knowledge of the market—Southern Ry. Co. v. Deakins, 107 Tenn. 522.

86. Blum v. Monahan, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 179.

87. Where a vent in a car of vegetables is so left open in February, recovery cannot be had for severe but not unprecedented cold weather—Gillett v. Railway Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 61.

88. Negligence of a consignor in instructing not to ice perishable goods—Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dorsey (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 575.

89. Where injury was received in an unprecedented storm, evidence that cars appeared to be good, close and dry and were in good condition at a certain point, does not show lack of negligence where there was no evidence of the effect of the storm on the cars as breaking them or causing leaks—Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 437, 66 S. W. 341.

90. Dobson v. Railroad Co., 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 582.

91. In this case, though delivery was possible on the morning of the storm, the drayman was deterred by bad weather and after the storm became apparent it did not appear that there was any safer place than that of storage—International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bergman (Tex. Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 999.

92. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 129.

93. The contract was on condition that the carrier should not be liable for loss or damage by fire unless the goods were spe-from the spread of fire originating on adjoining premises.[94] Where an express company is not informed that a package contains gold, it is not negligent in failing to search the ruins of a burned car for its recovery.[95]

Effect of failure to disclose value.—It is a fraud, releasing the carrier from liability, for the shipper not to state the value of the property in order to obtain a lower freight charge,[96] though there is no fraud or concealment of value where goods are shipped under a proper description, without inquiries or representations.[97] Where a valuable package is shipped without disclosure under a stipulation for limited liability at a less charge than would have been made had the value been disclosed, recovery in excess of such limitation cannot be had in the absence of proof of an affirmative act of wrong doing.[98]

Acceptance by consignee.—Signature of a clear receipt by one employed by the consignee to take away the goods may not be binding.[99]

§ 9. Delivery by carrier.—Goods may be held until charges are paid.[1] In order that seizure under a legal process be a defense to nondelivery, the carrier must notify the shipper and must show that the process was valid on its face.[2] Where there is reasonable doubt as to who is entitled to possession of goods, the carrier may investigate before immediate shipment,[3] and the amount of time reasonable to allow a carrier to determine disputed ownership is a question for the jury.[4] When goods shipped subject to acceptance are refused by the consignee and the consignor refuses to order their return after notice, he cannot recover of the carrier.[5] The carrier is liable for a promise of prompt delivery by its agent preventing the consignee from removing the goods promptly on arrival.[6]

Notice of arrival.—Under the laws of Missouri, where a consignment arrives at its destination on time, the carrier is not bound to notify the consignee of arrival, but the duty may be imposed by established usage at the point of destination, and is not removed by a stipulation in the contract that goods are to be called for on the day of their arrival.[7] cially insured.—Rowan v. Wells, Fargo & Co., 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 226.

94. Adequate precaution on the carrier's premises may not relieve it from liability for a fire originating on adjoining premises, and so violent that its spread to the carrier's building could not be prevented, if the carrier had full knowledge of the specially hazardous condition of the adjoining place. Where wool is stored in a shed adjoining a large quantity of jute particularly exposed to fire, evidence that the shed in which the jute was stored had no watchman, and little fire protection, and that defendant's shed was not well constructed to withstand a fire from the outside, is sufficient to warrant the submission of the question of defendant's care to the jury—Judd v. Steamship Co. (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 206.

95. Rowan v. Wells, Fargo & Co., 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 226.

96. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Pitman (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 312.

97. Valuable negatives shipped as "photo goods"—Southern Pac. Co. v. D'Arcais, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 57, 64 S. W. 813.

98. Rowan v. Wells, Fargo & Co., 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 226.

99. The fact that a local express company's agent employed by the consignee to procure the goods for him, signs a clear receipt without complaint, does not prevent the consignee from showing that the goods were wet—Mears v. Railroad Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 610, 56 L. R. A. 884.

1. Held error to refuse an instruction that if goods were shipped by mistake over another line by plaintiff's agent and they were shipped to their right destination partly over defendant's line, defendant could hold them for charges and plaintiff could not recover, it being shown that the value was less than the freight charges—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Klepper (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 426.

2, 3, 4. Merz v. Railway Co., 86 Minn. 33, 90 N. W. 7.

5. Levy v. Weir, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 361.

6. Where the agent with knowledge of congestion in the freight yards promises a delivery preventing the consignee from removing the goods—Southern Ry. Co. v. Deakins, 107 Tenn. 522, 64 S. W. 477.

7. The question of notice becomes one for the jury, where the carrier claims that it had notified the consignee by mail, and the person having charge of the consignee's mail claimed that such notice was never received and could not be found in the usual files—Herf & Frerichs Chemical Co. v. Lackawanna Line (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 346.

Duty to require production of bill of lading.—A carrier is not civilly liable for delivery to the consignee without requiring surrender of the bill of lading, though such bill is not marked "Not negotiable."[8] There is no common law liability to require surrender of the bill of lading on delivery to the owner or consignee, and there is no liability to a third person to whom the bill is afterward sold.[9] Commercial usage may require a production of a bill of lading though it name the consignee.[10] The owner of a cotton press receiving cotton in transit for compression is liable to the holder of the bills of lading for its delivery without their production.[11]

Place of delivery or destination.—Goods shipped to a port for water carriage may be delivered at carrier's wharf though outside the statutory limits of the port.[12]

Wrongful delivery.—The liability for wrongful delivery remains though the carrier has become a warehouseman or an involuntary bailee.[13] An express company is not excused for delivery of money to a third person other than the consignee, by the fact that the consignor might, by the exercise of due care, have ascertained that the order and check for the money were forgeries.[14]

Liability of carrier as for conversion.—Where an express company delivers to a person other than the consignee, it is liable for a conversion.[15] If a railroad company delivers a consignment to another than the consignee, subject to the consignor's order, it is not relieved from liability for the technical conversion by the fact that the goods are destroyed in the hands of a third person by an unprecedented storm.[16] Where a demurrage charge may be collected at the expiration of a certain time, and at the expiration of a greater time the carrier has the right to remove the shipment and place it in a warehouse, the carrier is guilty of a conversion in case it remove a car before the final period, though the demurrage charge has accrued.[17] There is no conversion if the carrier delivers the goods at their destination, and the remedy of the shipper is an action for negligence or breach of contract.[18] In the absence of direction, failure of the carrier to return goods refused by the consignee on account of delay, is not a conversion.[19]

Shipments C. O. D.—Where goods shipped C. O. D. show damage by water, the agent must disclose such fact before exacting payment from the consignee,[20] and if he unjustifiably suppresses facts as to their condition, the carrier is not relieved from liability by the fact that it has remitted the proceeds to the consignor before receiving notice within a reasonable time that the goods were worthless.[21] Notice within a reasonable time should be given of the consignee's refusal 8. Pen. Code, § 629, 633, Laws 1858, c. 326, as amended by Laws 1859, c. 353—Mairs v. Railroad Co., 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 265.

9. Where the bill does not provide for delivery to the order of the consignee, the carrier is not liable for delivery to him without requiring presentation of the bill, though the words "or order" were inserted in the bill and it was transferred to an innocent purchaser—Mairs v. Railroad Co., 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 265.

10. First Nat. Bank v. Railroad Co., 28 Wash. 439, 68 Pac. 965.

11. Southern R. Co. v. Bank (C. C. A.) 112 Fed. 861.

12. Delivery at a carrier's wharf at Westwego is permissible on a contract of shipment from Texas to the port of New Orleans for export, though such point is a few miles above across the river from and outside the municipal or port limits of New Orleans—Marande v. Railroad Co., 184 U. S. 173, 46 U. S. Lawy. Ed. 487.

13. Security Trust Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. Exp., 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 830.

14. Security Trust Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. Exp., 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 830.

15. Security Trust Co. v. Wells, Fargo & Co. Exp., 114 N. Y. St. Rep. 830.

16. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Seley (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 89.

17. Darlington v. Railway Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 122.

18. The shipper should receive the goods. The measure of damages in either action is the same—Redmon v. Railroad Co., 90 Mo. App. 68.

19. Louisville, N. A. & C. R. Co. v. Heilprin, 95 Ill. App. 402.

20, 21, 22, 23. Books evidencing damage by water, were delivered Dec. 1st, opened on the 12th or 13th, and notice sent the ex-to accept,[22] and the question of reasonableness may be for the jury.[23] Before money paid for damaged goods received C. O. D. can be recovered, there must be an offer to return the goods.[24]

Refusal by consignee.—Before the shipper may abandon goods to the carrier, it must show that the goods were not delivered in due time through the carrier's negligence, and that they were kept in an unsafe place until there was material deterioration.[25]

§ 10. Carrier as warehouseman.—The carrier is liable as a warehouseman only, where goods are not demanded by the consignee immediately on their arrival,[26] or where it holds them after refusal of the consignee to accept on account of special damages.[27] The fact that goods are shipped to the shipper himself as the consignee does not alter the rule as to the termination of the carrier's liability as a carrier.[28] An express company, after the consignee has refused to accept a C. O. D. parcel and the shipper has directed it to be held until called for,[29] or a carrier by water, where goods are left on its dock at the direction of the consignee for more than a reasonable time after notice of arrival, is liable as a warehouseman only.[30] Where facts are undisputed, the question of whether a railroad is a carrier or a warehouseman is one of law.[31]

Care required.—An express company whose liability has become that of a warehouseman is not liable for the theft of goods in the night-time from a small country depot in which they are stored.[32] Recovery cannot be had for goods stolen from the carrier's warehouse without its fault, after the consignee has allowed them to remain therein three days.[33]

§ 11. Liability of carrier or connecting carrier.[34]—In the absence of contract, the carrier is not at common law liable for the negligence of employees of a connecting carrier,[35] though one company owns a large amount of stock of the other.[36] The common law rule has been declared by certain statutes,[37] but if the contract is to deliver at the ultimate destination, there is a liability.[38] Acceptance of freight for transportation to a point beyond the terminus creates a prima facie obligation to deliver at the point of destination.[39] If several carriers make a joint agreement for through transportation and division of compensation, they become jointly and severally liable for any loss on the whole line.[40] The carrier is liable for an injury on a connecting line where a through car is sent to its destination without press company on the 19th after the purchase price had been remitted to the consignor—Hardy v. American Exp. Co., 182 Mass. 328.

24. Where a consignment of books is so damaged as to be worth but five or six dollars, it must nevertheless be tendered the express company on demand for the price paid—Hardy v. American Exp. Co., 182 Mass. 328.

25. Herf & Frerichs Chemical Co. v. Lackawanna Line (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 346.

26. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Akers (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 848.

27. Goods burned after two weeks had elapsed—Frederick v. Railroad Co., 133 Ala. 486.

28. The carrier is liable as warehouseman only, for goods destroyed the fourth day after notice of delivery, though the goods are shipped to the shipper as consignee and he does not arrive at the place of delivery or have an agent there until after such time—Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Peterson (Colo.) 69 Pac. 578.

29. Byrne v. Fargo, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 543.

30. Notice and direction by wife of the consignee in charge of his place of business—King v. Steamboat Co., 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 555.

31. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Peterson (Colo.) 69 Pac. 578.

32. Byrne v. Fargo, 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 543.

33. King v. Steamboat Co., 36 Misc. (N. Y.) 555.

34. See post, § 18, carriage of live stock.

35. Hartley v. Railroad Co., 115 Iowa, 612.

36. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Tex. Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 54.

37. Civ. Code, § 2298, provides that a company shall be liable only to its own terminus and until delivery to the connecting road—Felton v. Railway Co., 114 Ga. 609.

38. Jones v. Railroad Co., 89 Mo. App. 653. Agreement to transfer over its own and connecting lines—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Leatherwood (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 119.

39. Elgin, J. & E. Ry. Co. v. Machine Co., 98 Ill. App. 311.

40. Robt. C. White L. S. Commission Co. v. Railroad Co., 87 Mo. App. 330.

unloading.[41] Where a transportation company receives its car from an initial carrier, the transportation company becomes liable for mistake in the directions given the railroad next taking the car.[42]

Exemption and limitation of liability.—An initial carrier entering into a through contract may limit its liability for transportation to the terminus of its own line;[43] this, though statutes exist providing that no contract shall exempt a railroad corporation from a liability which would have existed in the absence of a contract.[44] Though the agent making a contract is the agent of other connecting roads, a contract limiting the liability of a connecting road to injuries on its own line may be valid.[45] The limitation may be in the bill of lading.[46] It is not affected by the fact that there is an agreement for a particular kind of service, or the naming of a destination beyond the carrier's line.[47] In the absence of such limitation, it is liable for injuries occurring on other lines beyond its terminus.[48] In Nebraska it is held that where the first carrier receives the entire charge for transportation, it cannot free itself from liability for safe carriage over every part of the route by express contract, the agreement being regarded as one to deliver at the ultimate destination.[49] If the contract provides that the agreement is between the shipper, the carrier and the connecting lines, and that no line shall be liable for the negligence of another, the receiving carrier is not liable for negligence of other carriers.[50] Where a carrier makes a through contract, it cannot exempt itself from liability for the negligence of connecting carriers.[51] Receipt of bills of lading from connecting lines containing an assumption of liability is sufficient to show that the shipper does not regard the original carrier as liable for the entire distance.[52] Though the carrier limit its liability to its own line, it is liable for the negligence of its agent in billing freight to a wrong destination on the line of the connecting carrier.[53] An exemption in favor of the first carrier may extend to a connecting carrier,[54] though not specially named.[55]

Delivery to succeeding carrier.[56]—The duty of an intermediate carrier is to use reasonable diligence to secure further transportation by tender to a connecting line, and if acceptance is refused, to notify the consignor or consignee without unreasonable delay, and store or care for the goods while awaiting for

41. The contract was to transport "to destination if on its road or otherwise to the place on its road where same is to be delivered to any connecting carrier"—Elgin, J. & E. Ry. Co. v. Mach. Co., 200 Ill. 636.

42. Richer v. Fargo, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 550.

43. Fremont, E. & M. V. R. Co. v. Railroad Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 131; N. Y., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Railroad Co., Id.; Hartley v. Railroad Co., 115 Iowa, 612.

44. Code, § 2074—Hartley v. Railroad Co., 115 Iowa, 612.

45. The connecting road was not sued as a partner—Askew v. Railway Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 846.

46. Provision that the carrier shall not be liable for loss not proved to have occurred on its own road or after the property is ready to deliver to the next carrier—Dunbar v. Railway Co., 62 S. C. 414.

47. Taffe v. Railroad Co., 41 Or. 64, 67 Pac. 1015.

The words, "Fulton Market, New York City," with a stipulation "on fastest passenger train service," do not amount to an agreement to deliver at the ultimate destination but is merely an undertaking to deliver to the connecting carrier—Taffe v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 41 Or. 64, 68 Pac. 732.

48. Elgin, J. & E. Ry. Co. v. Machine Co., 98 Ill. App. 311.

49. Bill of lading provided that the property was to be delivered in good order to the succeeding carrier, "it being expressly agreed that the responsibility of this company shall cease at this company's depot at which the same are to be delivered" to such carrier—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Grain Co. (Neb.) 90 N. W. 205.

50. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chestnut & Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1846, 72 S. W. 351.

51. Redmon v. Railroad Co., 90 Mo. App. 68.

52. Hartley v. Railroad Co., 115 Iowa, 612.

53. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 71.

54. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Berdan, 22 Ohio Circ. R. 326.

55. Stipulation that no carrier should be liable for damage by water not due to its own negligence—Mears v. Railroad Co. (Conn.) 52 Atl. 610, 56 L. R. A. 884.

56. Delivery of livestock, see post, § 17.

instructions, and when it has done this, it becomes liable only as a warehouseman.[57] Property unloaded at the pier of a connecting carrier before notice of arrival to the succeeding carrier is not within the meaning of a clause limiting the carrier to liability as a warehouseman only while the property awaits further conveyance.[58] A bill of lading providing for a termination of liability on delivery to a steamship company or on the steamship company's pier is not complied with by an unloading on a pier in the absolute control and possession of a railroad company and notice to the steamship company,[59] but on almost identical facts, a contrary ruling is announced.[60] A connecting carrier is not liable for conversion if, instead of delivery to the next carrier, it stores the property subject to the owner's order.[61] Where the agreement of an express company is to forward goods to its agency nearest the ultimate destination and to deliver it to another express company, it is not liable for a loss in the hands of a transfer company while the goods were in transmission to the succeeding express company.[62]

