Fractures, dislocations and injuries to and loss of limbs: $3,000 (one hand)—Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Roberts (Ind.) 67 N. E. 530. $3,000 (dislocation of fibula of the left limb)—Milledge v. Kansas City (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 892. $6,000 (fracture of limbs and other injuries)—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Taff (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 89. $8,000 (injuries making party a helpless cripple)—Heer v. Warren-Scharf Asphalt Co. (Wis.) 94 N. W. 789. $4,000 (joint of knee, crushing chest and breaking ribs)—Hanlon v. Milwaukee Elec. Ry. & Light Co. (Wis.) 95 N. W. 100. $1,000 (fracture of both bones of leg above ankle) —Isham v. Broderick (Minn.) 95 N. W. 224. $1,000 (partial dislocation of ankle)—Hoffman v. Village of North Milwaukee (Wis.) 95 N. W. 274. $6,090 (injury resulting in ulceration and partial disablement)—Jordan v. City of Seattle, 30 Wash. 298, 70 Pac. 743. $11,000 (arm and hand)—Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Courtney (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 307. $11,500 (loss of leg above knee), compound fracture of arm and bruises and cuts about head and body)—Hill v. Starin, 173 N. Y. 632. $1,000 (loss of leg) —Eberhardt v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (N. Y.) 66 N. E. 1107. $4,346.93 (permanent crippling of limb)—Bertsch v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 173 N. Y. 634. $1,000 (fracture of bones in leg requiring use of crutches)—Adams Exp. Co. v. Smith, 24 Ky. L. R. 1915, 72 S. W. 752. $6,000 (compound fracture of right leg necessitating numerous operations)—The Anchoria (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 1017. $10,000 (one hand)—Sesselmann v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 336. $11,000 (one arm)—Baird v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 172 N. Y. 637. $15,000 (loss of foot)—New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Rombold (Neb.) 93 N. W. 966. $1,933 (injuries to hand and arm)—Baker v. City of Independence, 93 Mo. App. 165. $4,000 (limb broken in two places and serious injuries to back with shock)—Continental Tobacco Co. v. Knoop, 24 Ky. L. R. 1268, 71 S. W. 3. $847 (loss of arm)—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Taylor, 24 Ky. L. R. 1169, 70 S. W. 825. $7,750 (loss of hand)—South Chicago St. Ry. Co. v. Dufresne, 102 Ill. App. 493. $7,000 (loss of limb below knee)—Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co. v. Phillips, 117 Ga. 98. $1,000 (wrenching and spraining ankle)—Louisville R. Co. v. Casey, 24 Ky. L. R. 1527, 71 S. W. 876. $1,500 (impairment of use of arm)—Wagner v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 591. $2,000 (loss of fingers, cuts and bruises)—Dover v. Mississippi River & B. T. Ry. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 298. $2,000 (bruises, dislocation of shoulder, and fracture of shoulder joint)—Meyer v. Milwaukee Elec. Ry. & Light Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 6. $10,000 (fracture of thigh)—Waldie v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 557. $400 (injuries to the hip of a female)—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Shepherd, 24 Ky. L. R. 839, 69 S. W. 1070. $9,000 (broken bones and laceration of flesh, doubtful union of bones)—Bolton v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 172 Mo. 92. $5,000 (broken ribs and collar bone)—Black v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 172 Mo. 177. $500 (injuries necessitating the removal of a part of a bone)—Monticello & B. Turnpike R. Co. v. Jones (Ky.) 24 Ky. L. R. 821, 69 S. W. 1073. $3,000 (fracture)—Beringer v. Dubuque St. Ry. Co. (Iowa) 91 N. W. 931. $3,000 (side, leg and back)—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Davis, 24 Ky. L. R. 1415, 71 S. W. 658.

Bruises and shock: $1,000 (severe shock and pain)—Chicago City Ry. Co. v. Biederman, 102 Ill. App. 617. $1,250 (bruises)—Ljungberg v. Village of North Mankato, 87 Minn. 484.

negligence,[13] nor is it a requisite to a recovery that all the damages averred should be proved.[14] Where interest is allowed as an incident of recovery, it is not nec-

Wrongful death: $1,500 (youth eighteen and a half years of age earning $2.00 a day)—Stumbo v. Duluth Zinc Co. (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 185. $5,000 (the extreme statutory amount not excessive for death of a bright, active boy 16 years of age, who for nearly three years had been a general clerk in a store)—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548. $5,000 (married man of 37 earning $9.00 a week)—Geismann v. Missouri Edison Elec. Co. (Mo.) 73 S. W. 654. $25,000 (battalion fire chief, 38 years of age, salary of $3,300)—Lane v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 82 N. Y. S. 1057. $1,518 (boy of six years)—Hoon v. Beaver Valley Traction Co., 204 Pa. 369. $25,000 (man 62 years of age expending $5,000 a year on his family)—Sternfels v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (N. Y.) 66 N. E. 1117. $3,600 (man earning $10 a week)—Garbaccio v. Jersey City, H. & P. St. Ry. Co. (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 707. $1,100 (man of 35, earning $1,800)—Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Young (Neb.) 93 N. W. 922. $2,750 (boy of 6, where two juries have returned the same verdict)—Gray v. St. Paul City Ry. Co., 87 Minn. 280. $500 (scowman having no one dependent on him for support)—The O. L. Hallenbeck, 119 Fed. 468. $10,000 (man of 35 earning $12 a week)—Stevens v. Union Ry. Co. (N. Y.) 75 App. Div. 602.

Recoveries Held Excessive.

Breach of contract: $250 (carrying a passenger beyond his station)—Central of Ga. Ry. Co. v. Wood (Ga.) 44 S. E. 1001. $25,000 (breach of promise by mail clerk owning house not fully paid for)—Broyhill v. Norton (Mo.) 74 S. W. 1024. $100 (injuries to shipment of stock)—Helm v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 148.

Torts in general: $1,250 (ejection of a passenger)—Georgia R. Co. v. Baldoni, 115 Ga. 1013. $1,000 actual and $1,000 punitive damages (arrest of a passenger tendering worn coin)—Ruth v. St. Louis Transit Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1055. $1,450 (arrest by order of conductor of street car) $500 being ample—Grayson v. St. Transit Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 730. $3,333 (failure to stop a train at a flag station) $2,000 being ample—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Faust (Miss.) 34 So. 356. $400 (wrongful discharge of surface water)—Ready v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 142.

Libel and slander: $36,000 (libel charging conspiracy to defraud the insurance companies) $20,000 being ample—Duke v. Morning Journal Ass'n, 120 Fed. 860. $40,000 (libel holding a magistrate up to scorn as a bullying magistrate unfit for his position) $25,000 being ample—Crane v. Bennett, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 102. $5,000 (libel concerning business standing) $3,000 being ample—Daisley v. Douglass, 119 Fed. 485. $7,000 (slander with immediate recantation) $1,738.20 being ample—Riker v. Clopton, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 310.

Personal injuries: $10,000 (loss of hand and mental and physical suffering incident thereto) $5,000 being ample—Texas & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Hartnett (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 809. $16,000 (injuries to wrist, back and partial paralysis of the leg) $8,000 being ample—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bodie (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 100. $3,100 (temporary injuries, party having sustained no fracture of bones and only slight detention from business)—Stoetzele v. Swearingen, 90 Mo. App. 588. $12,000 (compound fracture of the leg below the knee, causing looseness in knee joint)—Rueping v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 843. $3,000 (broken leg not resulting in permanent injury)—South Omaha v. Fennell (Neb.) 94 N. W. 632. $7,500 (partial disablement of knee cap)—Langbein v. Swift, 121 Fed. 416. $10,000 (evidence of permanent impairment slight and no visible marks) $6,000 being ample—McDannald v. Washington & C. R. Ry. Co., 31 Wash. 585, 72 Pac. 481. $2,500 (injuries imperceptible to the eye)—Swafford v. Rosenbloom, 102 Ill. App. 578.

Wrongful death: $3,000 (alleged malpractice)—Ramsdell v. Grady, 97 Me. 319. $3,500 (girl 8½ years of age) $2,500 being ample—Wells v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 1. $5,000 (domestic servant, turning over to parent $3 a month) $1,500 being ample—Lindstrom v. International Nav. Co., 117 Fed. 170. $5,200 (track walker earning $1.25 a day) $4,000 being ample—Erie R. Co. v. McCormick, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 86. $6,000 (ordinarily bright boy a little over 4 years of age) $3,000 being ample—Hively v. Webster County, 117 Iowa, 672. $10,000 (man seventy-three years of age) $5,000 being ample—Stillings v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 201. $10,000 (miner 55 years of age receiving $50 a month) $6,000 being ample—Vowell v. Issaquah Coal Co., 31 Wash. 103, 71 Pac. 725.

Adequacy of Recovery.

Torts: 6c. inadequate for injuries where $150 was expended for medical services alone—Tooker v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 371. $100 inadequate for deprivation of wife's society caused by injuries, a considerably larger sum having been expended by husband for expenses—Caswell v. North Jersey St. Ry. Co. (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 565. $250 not inadequate for levy of a wrongful execution—Avindino's Heirs v. Beck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 539.

Wrongful death: $10.00 for death of child three year four months old is grossly inadequate—Draper v. Tucker (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1026. $750 not inadequate for death of boy of 5 years—Schnable v. Providence Public Market, 24 R. I. 477. $200 is not so grossly inadequate for killing child of 6 as to justify setting aside award—Gubbitosi v. Rothschild, 75 App. Div. 477, 12 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 16. $250 for the death of a boy of 11 not so grossly inadequate as to justify the granting of a new trial—Snyder v. Lake Shore & M. S. Ry. Co. (Mich.) 91 N. W. 643.

13. Nokken v. Avery Mfg. Co., 11 N. D. 399. Action for wrongful death (Cutting's Ann. Comp. Laws, §§ 3983, 3984)—Peers v. Nevada Power, L. & W. Co., 119 Fed. 400.

14. Under an allegation that plaintiff's hip was dislocated, the dislocation including a bruise, strain or contusion, a recovery is not prevented by the fact that the essary that it should be demanded in the declaration, otherwise where interest beyond the legal rate is sought to be included in the recovery by reason of a special contract.[15]

Special damages are those arising directly, but not necessarily or by implication of law,[16] and cannot be recovered unless specially alleged.[17] The expense of recovering property wrongfully taken and injured,[18] loss of earnings or of business,[19] loss of time or wages,[20] loss of profits for breach of an agreement to lease,[21] amount paid to others to perform the same services in carrying on plaintiff's business that he would have performed but for the injury,[22] are within the rule and must be pleaded. Increased injury by reason of the diseased condition of plaintiff at the time of the accident is not considered a special damage.[23] In Illinois evidence of the wages earned by the injured party at the time of the accident is admissible, though special damages are not averred.[24] An allegation that on account of the injuries plaintiff was compelled to hire a nurse to wait upon him and asking judgment for a stated sum allows evidence of the amount paid for nurse hire though there was no specific sum claimed therefor.[25] Where the damages are such as would necessarily follow a breach of the contract, allegations as to special damages are unnecessary.[26] The rule as to pleading special damages is relaxed where willful negligence is charged.[27]

There is a physical injury stated where the complaint alleges disturbance in body to the great damage of plaintiff.[28]

On an application for the appointment of commissioners to assess damages for change in a street grade, a railroad company liable for a portion of the damages may interpose an answer setting up any defense it may have.[29]

Whether evidence of particular damages is admissible under the issues is evidence does not show a dislocation—St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1010.

15. Camp v. First Nat. Bank (Fla.) 33 So. 241.

16. Cyc. Law Dict.

17. Kircher v. Incorporated Town of Larchwood (Iowa) 95 N. W. 184; Cronin v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 81 N. Y. Supp. 752.

Sufficiency of allegations of special damages: Special damages are averred in a petition for slander stating that plaintiff became sick and suffered great bodily pain—Hitzfelder v. Koppelmann (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 353. Special damages in a suit for slander are insufficiently averred by an allegation that defendant falsely and maliciously said to a person with whom plaintiff was negotiating a trade that plaintiff "is no good, he will not pay for anything he gets" and therefore the trade was broken off—Ford v. Lamb, 116 Ga. 655. In an action for damages to one article of clothing, it is not necessary to allege special damages to the entire suit—J. Harzburg & Co. v. Southern Ry. Co., 65 S. C. 539. Loss of time of a peculiar and special value is insufficiently averred in a petition alleging in addition to suffering, the inability of plaintiff to do ordinary farm work, permanent injuries and damages in a certain sum—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 24 Ky. L. R. 1623, 72 S. W. 27.

18. Patee v. McCabe-Bierman Wagon Co., 97 Mo. App. 356.

19. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 24 Ky. L. R. 1402, 71 S. W. 516; Pequin v. St. Louis & S. Ry. Co., 90 Mo. App. 118; Stoetzle v. Swearingen, 90 Mo. App. 592.

20. Brake v. Kansas City (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 191. Sufficiency of allegation to admit evidence of the value of time lost while disabled from injuries—General Elec. Co. v. Murray (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 50. There is a sufficient allegation of damages for loss of time where it is alleged that plaintiff has been ill and still is partially disabled from attending to her work and household affairs—Brake v. Kansas City (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 191.

21. Drischman v. McManemin, 68 N. J. Law, 337.

22. Paquin v. St. Louis & S. Ry. Co., 90 Mo. App. 118.

23. Campbell v. Los Angeles Traction Co., 137 Cal. 565, 70 Pac. 624. Where the damages are for an assault, evidence that plaintiff was an epileptic at the time of the assault with evidence showing the assault might aggravate the disease, is admissible, though the fact that plaintiff was in an epileptic condition was not pleaded—St. Louis Trust Co. v. Murmann, 90 Mo. App. 555.

24. Illinois Steel Co. v. Ryska, 200 Ill. 280.

25. Moore v. Southwest Missouri Elec. Ry. Co. (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 176.

26. Bussard v. Hibler, 42 Or. 500, 71 Pac. 642.

27. Henry Sonneborn & Co. v. Southern Ry., 65 S. C. 502, 22 St. at Large, p. 693—Stembridge v. Southern Ry., 65 S. C. 440.

28. Watkins v. Kaolin Mfg. Co., 131 N. C. 536, 60 L. R. A. 617.

29. In re Grade Crossing Com'rs, 171 N Y. 685.

largely a matter of construction of averments in the pleadings describing the particular injuries and their effects.[30] Evidence inadmissible for want of proper pleading should be stricken.[31]

(§ 8) B. Evidence as to damages. In general.—There may be no recovery of damages in the absence of proof of their amount.[32] The Northampton tables though not conclusive are competent evidence on question of probable duration of a life in an action for breach of a contract for support.[33] The value of realty cannot be established by the testimony of witnesses as to the amount they would be willing to take for their property.[34] Where it becomes necessary to establish the value of land in an action for failure to convey and the value has been estimated by parcels in the terms of the contract, such estimate is prima facie evidence thereof.[35] A witness cannot testify that in his opinion the breach of a contract by one of the parties thereto caused damages to the other in a lump sum stated.[36]

The fact that property is insured for a certain amount is not conclusive evidence as to its value in an action for its destruction by fire.[37] Direct proof of injuries to the feelings alleged as an element of damages is not indispensable to their recovery, as the existence of this element may be determined from circum-

30. Evidence of hernia is admissible under an averment of injury to muscles of legs, arms, side, back, abdomen and that bowels were strained and bruised—City of Connersville v. Snider (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 555. Impairment of hearing may not be shown under averment of serious and permanent injuries to head and body and nerves and physical shock, great pain in head and body and loss of sleep and loss of memory—Piltz v. Yonkers R. Co., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 29. Evidence of injuries to nerves is admissible under an allegation that plaintiff's arm was cut off, his foot mutilated, and he was otherwise permanently injured—Kappus v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 13. Under allegation of internal injuries about the head, and other pains, injuries to the eye may be shown—Stembridge v. Southern Ry., 65 S. C. 440. Diabetes may be shown under allegation of bruises, strain of spinal column and laceration of muscles causing great pain and preventing labor—Eichholz v. Niagara Falls Hydraulic Power & Mfg. Co., 174 N. Y. 519. Averment of injuries to the nervous system allows testimony of physician that such injuries produce a lower state of vitality, causing defects of hearing, speech and sight—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hawk (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1037. Averment of injuries to the spine allows evidence of the effect of an injury to the spine on the sense of hearing—Id. Averment of fracture of skull and contusion of person with internal injuries does not authorize evidence of dementia—Sealey v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 530. Retroversion of womb may not be shown under averment of injuries in and around head and body making plaintiff sick and sore and causing great bodily pain and injuries of a permanent character—Ramson v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 101. Averment of concussion of the spine does not allow evidence of injury to sexual organs, that not being a necessary result from the injury pleaded—Page v. Delaware & H. Canal Co., 76 App. Div. 160, 12 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 18. Averment of injuries as affecting the back, leg and hip causing concussion of the spine and other bruises or injuries, allows evidence as to the injury of sexual organs—Atlanta Ry. & Power Co. v. Maddox, 117 Ga. 181. Averment of great injury, bruises on leg, back wrenched and sprained, severe contusion of muscles and nerves, and that plaintiff became sick and unable to labor, and his health greatly impaired, does not authorize proof of traumatic neurosis resulting from concussion or shock—Maynard v. Oregon R. Co. (Or.) 72 Pac. 590. Averment of great injury, bruises on limbs and wrenching of back, sprains and contusion of muscles and nerves allows evidence that plaintiff was skinned on the knee and bruised on the right hip, and that sharp pains extended into his neck and that his legs would draw and cramp—Id. Under an averment that by reason of injury to his leg plaintiff endured great pain and bodily suffering, and evidence of a physician without objection, that the temporary derangement of the kidneys frequently resulted from confinement due to broken leg, plaintiff may testify that kidneys were affected by his inactivity—Kircher v. Incorporated Town of Larchwood (Iowa) 95 N. W. 184. The amount actually paid for medical attendance and its reasonableness may be shown under a petition alleging the amount paid, and that the treatment was necessary and plaintiff was compelled to pay the same—St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Duck (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1027. Evidence of plaintiff's condition a year and a half after an accident is admissible under a complaint alleging serious resulting injury—Mogk v. New York & N. J. Tel. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 560.

31. Brown v. Manhattan Ry. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 222.

32. Riggs v. Gray (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 101.

33. Banta v. Banta, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 138.

34. Eastern Tex. R. Co. v. Scurlock (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 366.

35. Humphreys v. Shellenberger (Minn.) 94 N. W. 1083.

36. Foote & Davies Co. v. Malony, 115 Ga. 985.

37. Verdon v. United Elec. Co. (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 99.

stances disclosed by the evidence.[38] The credibility of witnesses testifying as to damages may be tested.[39] In an action against officers for an alleged unlawful search of premises where special damages are asked for humiliation and disgrace, it may be shown that a part of the house was occupied by persons of low character.[40]

Cases passing on the sufficiency of evidence are collected in the footnote.[41]

Evidence in action for personal injuries.—The condition of the injured person before and since the injury may be shown,[42] but this does not authorize the admission of hearsay evidence.[43] The injured person may testify as to the condition of his health previous to the injury.[44] The evidence must have reference to the effect of the injury.[45] The size and dependent condition of plaintiff's family may not be shown.[46] The fact that testimony as to an injury was not admissible to show the injury as an element of damages because not pleaded will not prevent its admission when offered solely as a manifestation of injuries received which were properly pleaded.[47] The opinion of a husband as to the value of his wife's services is admissible together with facts to the effect that she had been able to perform all of the ordinary duties of the household and family prior to the injury but not thereafter,[48] and he may testify as to the value of his time and services devoted to her care and the reasonable amount of drug bills, nurse hire, and hospital bills that were expended.[49] There can be no recovery where there is no data from which the jury may determine the amount of the damages suffered, though it is clear that the party is entitled to recover something.[50]

Expectancy life tables are admissible where the injuries are permanent,[51] and in actions for wrongful death.[52]

Physical examination is usually allowable.[53]

38. Hoover v. Haynes (Neb.) 93 N. W. 732.

39. Houston Cotton Oil Co. v. Trammell (Tex.) 74 S. W. 899.

40. Collins v. Clark (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 97.

41. Breach of contract—Slater v. La Grande Light & Power Co. (Ore.) 72 Pac. 738. Illegal levy by sheriff—Whitworth v. McKee (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1046. Value of bonds at a certain date—Scrivner v. Woodward (Cal.) 73 Pac. 863. Breach of contract involving sale of inventions—South African Reduction Co. v. Peck (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 87. Loss of or damage to property—Golden v. Heman Const. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1093; Wagner v. Conway, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 623; Goldberg v. Besdine, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 451; Glass v. Hauser, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 780; Dibble v. State, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 647; Lippert v. Leski, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 632; Forrest v. Buchanan, 203 Pa. 454; Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 83. Loss of profits—Consumers' Ice Co. v. Jennings (Va.) 42 S. E. 879. Amount of profits lost by delay in furnishing machinery for the operation of a street railroad—Bristol Belt Line Ry. Co. v. Bullock Elec. Mfg. Co. (Va.) 44 S. E. 892. Value of stock converted—Warren v. Strikeman, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 610. Cost of completing a building—Central Lumber Co. v. Kelter, 201 Ill. 503.

42. Rea v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 555; Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Kotoski, 199 Ill. 383. Acts or occupation showing physical strength—Birmingham Ry. & Elec. Co. v. Ellard, 135 Ala. 433; Heer v. Warren-Scharf Asphalt Pav. Co. (Wis.) 94 N. W. 789.

43. Statements to a physician as to past sufferings—Internatonal & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 93.

44. Isherwood v. Lumber Co., 87 Minn. 388.

45. Not confined to the effect of the injuries sued upon—Lentz v. City of Dallas (Tex.) 72 S. W. 59. Testimony as to effect of assumed injury is bad—Cronin v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 227.

46. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Collinsworth (Fla.) 33 So. 513.

47. Bopp v. New York Elec. Vehicle Transp. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 337.

48. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Armes (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 77.

49. City of Dallas v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 95.

50. Louisville Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Ky.) 75 S. W. 285.

51. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mortson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 770; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hubbard (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 112; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 226. Carlisle tables need no proof of their correctness—Atlanta Ry. & Power Co. v. Monk (Ga.) 45 S. E. 494. Defendant not prejudiced by an instruction assuming the Carlisle tables to be conclusive—Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Sizer (Neb.) 95 N. W. 498.

52. Coffeyville Min. & Gas Co. v. Carter, 65 Kan. 565, 70 Pac. 635.

53. Denied by U. S. Supreme Court—Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. Botsford, 141 U. S. 250, 35 Law. Ed. 734. A like rule obtains in Texas—

Sufficiency of evidence is shown by citations below.[54]

(§ 8) C. Instructions.—Instructions should limit the recovery to such damages as are shown by the evidence,[55] and to the amount demanded.[56] The instructions should be so clear as not to mislead the jury.[57] An instruction that the jury should take into consideration mental and physical pain is not made erroneous by the use of the word "should,"[58] nor the words "may" for "will" and "has sustained" for "will sustain."[59] An instruction on the question of aggravation of an injury by unskillful or improper treatment should state the exceptions allowing a recovery where diligence has been used.[60] It is not proper to instruct the jury to consider the probable duration of plaintiff's life in a particularly hazardous business, unless it is shown that plaintiff intended to follow that business for the remainder of his life.[61] Where there is no evidence authorizing the allowance of exemplary damages, the court should instruct that if plaintiff is entitled to any damages the jury should state how much and should find only such actual damages as were proved by the evidence.[62] Generally speaking it is not material whether an instruction which goes simply to the amount of the damages to be recovered is good or bad, if the jury, upon proper instruction as to the question of negligence on main issue, find against the plaintiff.[63] There is no prejudice to a defendant by the statement of an incorrect rule of damages, where the rule adopted diminished the recovery rather than increased it.[64] An instruction on humiliation and shame is proper though these elements were not specifically pleaded and though there was no direct testimony on the point.[65]

(§ 8) D. Verdicts when special must find and not assume all the facts in issue.[66] A separate finding of exemplary damages must be requested[67] and a failure to separately state them does not vitiate a general verdict.[68]

Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 569; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 807; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gibbs (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 71. Illinois (Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Story, 104 Ill. App. 132); and Kentucky—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Hartlege, 25 Ky. L. R. 152, 74 S. W. 742. Where the injured person refuses a personal examination, evidence as to whether the examination would be hurtful to his case is inadmissible—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Stewart (Ill.) 67 N. E. 830. A code provision allowing a physical examination of an injured person, does not authorize a second examination on a subsequent trial, where the permission for the first examination was voluntarily given (Code Civ. Proc. § 873)—Whitaker v. Staten Island Midland R. Co., 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 351.

In North Dakota it is recognized—Brown v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. (N. D.) 95 N. W. 153. See case for list of conflicting authorities on this proposition.

54. Willis v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 340; Eichholz v. Niagara Falls Hydraulic Power & Mfg. Co. (N. Y.) 66 N. E. 1107; Comerford v. Smith, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 638; First Nat. Bank v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1033. Permanency of injury—Ashley v. Sioux City (Iowa) 93 N. W. 303; Louisville R. Co. v. Casey, 24 Ky. L. R. 1527, 71 S. W. 876. Loss of time—Sachra v. Town of Manilla (Iowa) 95 N. W. 198. Value of wife's services—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 335. Loss of future earning capacity—Hanlon v. Milwaukee Elec. Ry. & Light Co. (Wis.) 95 N. W. 100. Rupture—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 345.

55. Brink's Chicago City Exp. Co. v. Herron, 104 Ill. App. 269; Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Young (Colo.) 70 Pac. 688; Hoover v. Haynes (Neb.) 93 N. W. 732; Comstock v. Price, 103 Ill. App. 19; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Robinson (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 70. Need not expressly do so—Stanley v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. Ry. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 489.

56. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watkins, 24 Ky. L. R. 1464, 71 S. W. 882; Morris v. Williford (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 228.

57. Held not to authorize double damages—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Flood (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 331. As to lessened earnings—St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Byers (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 558. As to unanticipated but proximate damages—Coleman v. Perry (Mont.) 72 Pac. 42.

58. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Collins (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 560.

59. Baker v. City of Independence, 93 Mo. App. 165.

60. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 24 Ky. L. R. 1623, 72 S. W. 27.

61. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Gordan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1819, 72 S. W. 311.

62. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Mooney (Fla.) 33 So. 1010.

63. Zimmerman v. Denver Consol. Tramway Co. (Colo. App) 72 Pac. 607.

64. Friedrich v. Milwaukee (Wis.) 95 N. W. 126.

65. Berger v. Chicago & A. Ry. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 102.

66. Bredlan v. York, 115 Wis. 554.

67. Foley v. Martin (Cal.) 71 Pac. 165.

68. Friedly v. Giddings, 119 Fed. 438

CURRENT LAW.

VOLUME I. JANUARY, 1904. NUMBER 6.

DEATH AND SURVIVORSHIP.

Presumption of death.—The absence of a person from his usual place of abode for seven years without tidings from him raises a presumption of his death.[1] The presumption of death may be raised in less time, where there is convincing though not actual proof of loss of life.[2]

Letters of administration are prima facie evidence of death of one on whose estate they are granted.[3]

Survivorship.—Under the common law there is no presumption of survivorship depending on the age, sex, or physical condition of persons losing their lives in a common disaster, hence evidence on that question is required.[4]

DEATH BY WRONGFUL ACT.

§ 1. Nature and elements of liability.—The right to recover for wrongful death is purely a statutory right and did not exist under the common law,[5] except under that prevailing in Hawaii.[6]

1. This was the rule at common law—Ruoff v. Greenpoint Sav. Bank, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 549; Griffin v. Southern Ry., 66 S. C. 77. Proof of absence for more than seven years is sufficient where there is no rebutting proof—Wilcox v. Trenton Potteries Co., 64 N. J. Eq. 173. A statute making seven years' absence a presumption of death unless proof is made of life within that time means that the person referred to must absent himself from his home and proof of change of residence from one state to another and that he has not been heard of in the former state for seven years, does not make a case—Latham v. Tombs (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1060. A code provision that a person on whose life an estate in real property depends who remains without the United States and absents himself for seven years altogether, is presumed to be dead in an action relating to the property in which his death comes in question has reference only to a case where the right to possession of real property depends on the life of a third person and does not apply to a person who is the owner of the property, and the widow and heirs at law of the owner of property sold under condemnation proceedings do not show the death of the owner by the fact that he had made no will and that seven years had elapsed since he had been seen or heard from; there must be other evidence either presumptive or direct to raise the presumption of death—In re Boerum St., 173 N. Y. 321.

2. There is a strong presumption of death where a passenger on an ocean vessel was seen late at night when the vessel was in mid-ocean and was never seen or heard of afterwards though a diligent search was made for him the next morning—Traveler's Ins. Co. v. Rosch, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 491.

3. Ruoff v. Greenpoint Sav. Bank, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 549.

4. Young Women's Christian Home v. French, 187 U. S. 401, 47 Law. Ed. 233; Males v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 108; Middeke v. Balder, 198 Ill. 590, 59 L. R. A. 653. Where testatrix designated a charity as a beneficiary in the event that she survived her son and husband the charity will take to the exclusion of next of kin of testatrix or her son where both survive the husband and perish in a common disaster without proof as to the order of death, the intention of testatrix to this disposition being plainly manifest—Young Women's Christian Home v. French, 187 U. S. 401, 47 Law. Ed. 233.

5. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Jones (Fla.) 34 So. 246; Peers v. Nevada Power, Light & Water Co., 119 Fed. 400.

6. The common law of Hawaii is adopted by Act of Congress—The Schooner Robert

In Michigan, the action for personal injuries survives where the injured persons live an appreciable time thereafter and the action must be prosecuted for the injury and not for the wrongful death.[7] In Texas the opposite rule obtains and the action for the injuries does not survive.[8] In some states, plaintiff may recover in one action for injuries to deceased and for the wrongful death.[9]

There can be no recovery under the general maritime law for damages for negligence resulting in death on the high seas.[10] Where the vessel is registered in a state in this country, the action may be brought in such state, as the injury, in the eye of the law, was consummated therein.[11] Where the statute in force at the place of collision gives a right of action to the widow or next of kin, the action may be enforced in a court of admiralty in proceedings by the owner of the offending vessel for a limitation of liability.[12]

The negligence of defendant must be the proximate cause of the death.[13] Negligence of the nurse in a smallpox camp in connection with the hospital maintained by the railroad as a part of its legal department is imputable to the railroad making it liable for resulting death.[14]

The law of the state where the wrongful death occurs governs though the action therefor is brought in another state.[15]

A release of one person from liability for an accident does not release another, the defendant, unless their relation made them joint tort feasors.[16]

§ 2. Who may bring action.—Non-existence of any of the persons having a precedent right to sue is requisite,[17] and defendant may show as a matter of defense

Lewers Co. v. Kekauoha (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 849.

7. Olivier v. Houghton County St. Ry. Co. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 434.

See Abatement and Revival, (§ 3 Survivability of Actions) ante, pp. 3, 4. There may be a recovery for pain and suffering previous to death together with decedent's loss by being deprived of power to labor during time he would have lived if not injured—Olivier v. Houghton County St. Ry. Co. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 434.

8. Ellyson v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 868.

9. Under the laws of Tennessee damages to the deceased accruing up to the time of his death and damages to widow and next of kin for the pecuniary loss sustained by them by the death, may be recovered. (Shannon's Code, §§ 4025, 4026, 4028)—Davidson Benedict Co. v. Severson, 109 Tenn. 572.

The damages for the wrongful death are equivalent to loss of earning capacity to one totally disabled—Id. The Nevada act creating liability for wrongful death where the act causing death is such as would, if death had not ensued, entitle the party injured to maintain an action, the action to be brought by a personal representative of deceased, and prescribing the manner for distribution, creates but a single cause of action and not one in right of deceased by survival and the other in the right of the next of kin—Peers v. Nevada Power, Light & Water Co., 119 Fed. 400.

10. In re La Bourgogne, 117 Fed. 261.

11. Lindstrom v. International Nav. Co., 117 Fed. 170.

12. The Northern Queen, 117 Fed. 906.

The jurisdiction of admiralty to enforce such causes is treated in Admiralty, ante, p. 23.

13. It is not important that the negligence of a third person may also have contributed to the accident—Neal v. Wilmington & N. C. Elec. R. Co., 3 Pen. (Del.) 467. To attribute death to two or more concurrent causes, each must be a prominent efficient cause, for if one of the alleged causes operates slightly with another, which is the prominent efficient cause, then the proximate cause of death should be traced to the latter—Ellyson v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 868. The voluntary willful act of suicide of an insane person whose insanity was caused by a railroad accident, and who knows the purpose and the physical effect of his act, is a new and independent agency not flowing from the accident—Daniels v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 424.

14. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Freeman (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 542.

15. Foreign cause of action recognized—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Haist (Ark.) 72 S. W. 893.

Parties who may sue—Fabel v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. R. Co., 30 Ind. App. 268; McGinnis v. Missouri Car & Foundry Co. (Mo.) 73 S. W. 586. A non-resident widow could not sue for wrongful death in Wisconsin, the statute of that state giving the right of action to the personal representative of the deceased for the benefit of the husband or widow—McMillan v. Spider Lake Saw Mill & Lumber Co., 115 Wis. 332.

16. The employer of a teamster killed by negligence of a street railway company in running a car upon him after the wheel of his wagon had broken and thrown him on the track is not a joint tort feasor—O'Brien v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 474.

17. Laws of Florida of 1883, c. 3439, § 2 (Rev. St. Fla. § 2343) gives the right to recover for wrongful death to the widow or that there is in being a person given by statute a precedent right of action over plaintiff.[18]

In some states the action can only be brought by the representative of deceased for the benefit of the parties entitled to the recovery,[19] and the appointment of a special administrator is not required.[20] This allows the suit to be prosecuted by a foreign administrator.[21] The widow's acceptance of a benefit certificate will not bar an action by the personal representative of the deceased against the company for the benefit of minor children.[22] In other states the action in certain cases is made personal to the designated beneficiaries and may not be brought by the representative of the deceased.[23] In still other states the action may be brought by either the heirs or the personal representative of deceased.[24]

The fact that the parties entitled to sue are nonresident aliens will not prevent a recovery.[25]

§ 3. Beneficiaries.—Many of the statutes make the right to the recovery depend on whether the party was dependent on deceased for support. In such cases the fact of dependency must be established.[26] husband of deceased; if there are neither widow nor husband then to the minor child or children; where there is neither widow nor husband nor minor children then to any person dependent on the person killed; and where there is neither of the above classes then to the executor or administrator of the person killed—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Jones (Fla.) 34 So. 246. The Missouri act providing that a right of action shall accrue to the widow of a person so killed, his lineal heirs or adopted children, or to any person or persons who were before such loss of life dependent for support on the person so killed, gives separate and alternative rights of action first to the widow, if there is one, second to the lineal heirs or adopted children, and third to persons dependent, and under this act where the widow de jure is alive, no action can be maintained by the children of the deceased. The right to maintain suit by the widow is not affected by her personal misconduct—Cole v. Mayne, 122 Fed. 836; Poor v. Watson, 92 Mo. App. 89.

18. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Jones (Fla.) 34 So. 246.

19. Wetherell v. Chicago City R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 357; Peers v. Nevada Power, Light & Water Co., 119 Fed. 400; Carrigan v. Stillwell, 97 Me. 247. The laws of Oregon permit the action to be brought by the personal representative of a minor though he leaves surviving him a father, mother or guardian (B. & C. Comp., §§ 34, 379, 381)—Schleiger v. Northern Terminal Co. (Or.) 72 Pac. 324.

20. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 285—Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Charman (Ind.) 67 N. E. 923.

21. Boulden v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (Pa.) 54 Atl. 906. Rev. St. Fla. §§ 2342, 2343—Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Sullivan (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 799; Harrill v. South Carolina & G. Extension Ry. Co. (N. C.) 44 S. E. 109.

22. Oyster v. Burlington Relief Department (Neb.) 91 N. W. 699, 59 L. R. A. 291.

23. The laws of Indiana allowing an action for wrongful death of men employed in mines in excess of the number prescribed, intends the right of action as personal to the widow and children of the deceased and does not allow the action to be maintained by the administrator of deceased—L. T. Dickason Coal Co. v. Unverferth, 30 Ind. App. 546. Under the laws of New Mexico giving the right of action for death caused by railroad accidents to the husband or wife of deceased, or if there be no husband or wife then to the minor children, or if there be no minor children then to the father or mother of either of them, the action cannot be prosecuted in favor of legal representatives of the deceased. (Comp. Laws N. Mex. 1897, § 3213)—Romero v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (N. Mex.) 72 Pac. 37. Under the Pennsylvania Act of 1855, the widow alone could maintain the action though deceased left children surviving him—Marsh v. Western N. Y. & P. Ry. Co., 204 Pa. 229.

24. Under a statute allowing the action to be brought by the heirs of the deceased or his personal representatives, an administrator can sue only where there are heirs, as the right of action is for their benefit—Webster v. Norwegian Min. Co., 137 Cal. 399, 70 Pac. 276. The fact that the only heirs of decedent had assigned all their interest in the cause of action to the administrator of deceased before the commencement of the suit, and the administrator appeared as plaintiff, will not bar the action where the statute allows the suit to be brought either by the heirs or the administrator, as the administrator was entitled to sue in his own right and recovery by him would bar a subsequent action. (Rev. St. of Utah, § 2912)—Fritz v. Western Union Tel. Co., 25 Utah, 263, 71 Pac. 209.

25. Gen. St. 1894, § 5913—Renlund v. Commodore Min. Co. (Minn.) 93 N. W. 1057. Code, Ariz. 1887, §§ 2145, 2149, 2150—Bonthron v. Phœnix Light & Fuel Co. (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 941.

26. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 1775—Willis Coal & Min. Co. v. Grizzell, 198 Ill. 313. A mother in indigent circumstances, living generally with her unmarried son and dependent on him for support, is dependent within the meaning of the statute giving the right of action to persons dependent for support on one killed by reason of the violation of the mining laws by the owner of the mine—Bowerman v. Lackawanna Min. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1062. The dependent condition of a father is shown by the fact that he lived in a foreign country, was advanced

Minor grandchildren are not included in the term "minor children" in the Louisiana statute.[27] The mother of an illegitimate child may not sue for his wrongful death under the laws of Georgia.[28] The next of kin of a child are the next of kin by blood and not the adopting parents.[29] A posthumous child is not deprived of his cause of action by the fact that the mother and other children have recovered damages for the death.[30]

§ 4. Damages.—The jury in considering the amount of recovery may properly take into consideration the age, habits of industry, capacity for labor, and probable earnings of deceased,[31] the number, age, and sex of decedent's children dependent on him for support,[32] the special aptitude of a boy for a particular trade on the question of his earning capacity,[33] the condition of decedent's health as bearing on the pecuniary value of his life to plaintiff,[34] the ability of the deceased to earn money and his disposition to contribute to the support of his family.[35] They may not consider prospective advances in salary to deceased based on the prosperity of his employer's business,[36] nor the habits and moral character of the widow of deceased.[37] A widow may recover such a sum as will reasonably compensate her for all damage sustained or that she may subsequently sustain by reason of her hus-

in years, destitute, feeble and unable to work, and that deceased had on numerous occasions sent him money for his support—Boyle v. Columbian Fire Proofing Co., 182 Mass. 93. The dependent condition of a mother is shown by evidence that she had no property but her house and no support except what she received from her sons, and that other children occupied the home with the mother paying only a small sum for their board, and that deceased had promised to take care of his mother and had at different times sent her money—Id. On the question of dependency of a mother on her son for support, evidence is admissible of his promise a few days before his death, to help her all he could and to send money at stated intervals—Id. An invalid adult to whom a father gave money when requested, has such a pecuniary interest in the life of the father as to entitle her to share in damages recovered for his death—Duzan v. Myers, 30 Ind. App. 227. Where the issue is as to whether a person is dependent on the deceased for support it may be shown that regardless of any strict legal right to such support, the person was because of some disability coupled with lack of property, dependent on deceased for support, and that by reason of past support the person had a reasonable expectancy of its continuation had deceased lived—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Jones (Fla.) 34 So. 246. A recovery in favor of a father is erroneous where there was no evidence that the father received any pecuniary benefits from the earnings of deceased at the time of his death or that he had any reasonable expectation of ever sharing in such earnings—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Freeman (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 542. Where it is shown that deceased was unmarried and had sent sums of money to his parents at different times, testimony as to his paying attention to some young lady was properly excluded as too remote to affect the recovery for support of parents—Fritz v. Western Union Tel. Co., 25 Utah, 263, 71 Pac. 209.

27. Walker v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co. (La.) 34 So. 749.

28. Robinson v. Georgia R. & Banking Co., 117 Ga. 168.

29. 2 Gen. St. N. J. p. 1714—Heidecamp v. Jersey City, H. & P. St. Ry. Co. (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 239.

30. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Contreras (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1051.

31. Knight v. Sadtler Lead & Zinc Co., 91 Mo. App. 574; Davidson Benedict Co. v. Severson, 109 Tenn. 572; Watson v. Seaboard Air Line Ry. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 555. An instruction that the measure of damages for wrongful death is such sum as would represent the value of the future earnings of deceased which the beneficiaries had reasonable expectation he would contribute to them if he had lived, and in determining the amount of damages sustained by them, the jury could consider the deceased's earning capacity, his age and life expectancy, is not open to the construction that it allows plaintiffs to recover all the future earnings of deceased—St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Bowles (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 451.

32. Coffeyville Min. & Gas Co. v. Carter, 65 Kan. 565, 70 Pac. 635. On the question of the amount the deceased would have contributed to support, evidence is admissible to show that a married daughter separated from her husband accompanied by her children was on her way to live with and be supported by her father at time of his death, and that another daughter was dying with consumption and unable to support herself—St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Bowles (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 451. In an action by a child for the wrongful death of parent, he may show that his mother and numerous other children are living and entitled to recover pecuniary damages, as bearing on the extent of his recovery—Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Contreras (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1051.

33. Snyder v. Lake Shore & M. S. Ry. Co. (Mich.) 91 N. W. 643.

34, 35. Coffeyville Min. & Gas Co. v. Carter, 65 Kan. 565, 70 Pac. 635.

36. Fajardo v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 354.

37. Consolidated Stone Co. v. Morgan (Ind.) 66 N. E. 696.

band's death, basing the calculation on the number of years he would probably have lived.[38] The amount of the recovery is not affected by her subsequent marriage.[39]

For the death of a parent, the recovery may include the value of his services for care, sustenance, and education of his minor children.[40] The damages to the child are not limited to those accruing during his minority.[41]

Parents are not limited, in the matter of recovery, to the ability of the deceased to earn wages during his minority, but the jury may take into consideration the reasonable expectation of the parents of benefits from the continuation of the life of their son.[42] The recovery may include loss of services of a child and its society and comfort but not for sorrow, grief, or anguish to the parents or pain and suffering to the child.[43] A mother in indigent circumstances, entitled to recover at all for the wrongful death of her son, should recover more than merely nominal damages under a law giving a right of action to dependent persons killed by reason of violation of mining laws by the owner of the mine.[44]

The expectancy of life may be shown as bearing on the amount of damages caused by his death,[45] unless the deceased was engaged in a particularly dangerous occupation.[46] This expectancy may be shown by any proper evidence.[47] This does not allow evidence of the longevity of the father of deceased.[48] Under laws allowing recovery of such damages as may be just, the ages and expectancy of life of the beneficiaries where they are dependent in whole or in part on the deceased may be taken into account in fixing the damages.[49] The jury are not required to take into consideration the possibility of deceased becoming impoverished and his children being required to support him in his old age.[50]

The amount plaintiff is entitled to recover is properly termed a "capital fund" which represents the present value of all the pecuniary loss.[51]

Under the laws of Michigan, the plaintiff may recover the same damages for injuries to his intestate that the intestate would have recovered if he had lived.[52]

In South Carolina the heirs may recover for loss resulting from grief or mental suffering.[53]

38. Cox v. Wilmington City Ry. Co. (Del.) 53 Atl. 569.

39. Consolidated Stone Co. v. Morgan (Ind.) 66 N. E. 696.

40. Anthony Ittner Brick Co. v. Ashby, 198 Ill. 562; Sternfels v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 174 N. Y. 512; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Puente (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 362; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Haist (Ark.) 72 S. W. 893.

41. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Puente (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 362.

42. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Beaver, 199 Ill. 34; Draper v. Tucker (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1026; Corbett v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 25 Utah, 449, 71 Pac. 1065.

43. Corbett v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 25 Utah, 449, 71 Pac. 1065.

44. Bowerman v. Lackawanna Min. Co. (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1062.

45. Coffeyville Min. & Gas Co. v. Carter, 65 Kan. 565, 70 Pac. 635.

46. Western & A. R. Co. v. Clark (Ga.) 44 S. E. 1.

47. Haines v. Pearson (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 194.

48. Hinsdale v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 617.

49. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 377—The Dauntless, 121 Fed. 420.

50. Sternfels v. Metropolitan S. Ry. Co., 174 N. Y. 512.

51. Hackney v. Delaware & A. Telegraph & Telephone Co. (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 252; Watson v. Seaboard Air Line Ry. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 555; Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Sullivan (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 799; Merchants' & P. Oil Co. v. Burns (Tex.) 74 S. W. 758. In Delaware it is held that the recovery is properly limited to such a sum as deceased would probably have earned in his business in life and left as his estate, taking into consideration his age, ability, habits of industry and his expenditures. Neal v. Wilmington & N. C. Elec. R. Co., 3 Pen. (Del.) 467. Under a Code provision allowing recovery of damages in such sum as the jury deems just compensation for pecuniary injuries resulting from death, it is not a just measure of damages to instruct that the recovery should be limited to such an amount as the current rate of interest for trust investments would bring an amount equal to the earning power of the deceased—Fajardo v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y. 354. In an action for wrongful death, on the question of damages evidence of the cost of annuity based on deceased's expectancy of life, sufficient to produce a yearly income equal to his yearly income at time of his death, is inadmissible—Hinsdale v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 617.

52. Comp. Laws Mich. § 10,117—Kyes v. Valley Tel. Co. (Mich.) 93 N. W. 623.

53. Brown v. Southern Ry., 65 S. C. 260.

Under the constitution and laws of Texas allowing the recovery of exemplary damages for the commission of a willful homicide, where the evidence justifies the direction of a verdict for plaintiff, it is not error to instruct the jury as a matter of law to award exemplary as well as actual damages.[54]

It may not be shown in mitigation of damages that the mother of the deceased would receive benefits from a relief association,[55] and the amount of property left by deceased may not be inquired about.[56] Declarations of deceased that his children are trying to get his property from him may not be shown in mitigation of damages.[57] Excessiveness and adequacy of recovery have been passed on in cases cited.[58] Where punitive damages are not recoverable, the recovery is excessive where the loss of society and comfort of a husband is estimated at a greater valua-

54. Const. Tex. 1876, art. 16, § 26, and Rev. St. Tex. art. 3019—Morgan v. Barnhill (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 24.

55. Boulden v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (Pa.) 54 Atl. 906.

56. Comp. St. 1901, c. 21, § 2—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Holmes (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1007. The pecuniary condition and resources of the widow or next of kin or their unfortunate condition may not be shown but it is not error to allow proof of the earnings of the deceased and that the wife and children were supported by him—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Kinnare, 203 Ill. 388.

57. Brown v. Southern Ry., 65 S. C. 260.

58. Amounts held not excessive: $1,500 (boy 18½ years of age, earning $2 a day, and assisting his mother in the housework, and contributing a portion of his earnings to the support of the family)—Stumbo v. Duluth Zinc Co. (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 185. $1,518 (boy six years old)—Hoon v. Beaver Valley Traction Co., 204 Pa. 369. $25,000 (battalion chief in a fire department receiving $3,300 a year whose income was the sole support of his wife and two children aged 8 and 12 years, he being 38 years of age at the time of his death)—Lane v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 82 N. Y. Supp. 1057. $25,000 (one 62 years of age, in good health, with a life expectancy of 13 years, who had accumulated considerable property and expended for his own and his family's support about $5,000 a year)—Sternfels v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. 174 N. Y. 512. $5,000 (bright, active boy of 16 years, who for nearly three years had been a general clerk in a grocery store though this is the extreme statutory limit of recovery)—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548. $5,000 (man 37 years of age earning $9 a week and leaving a wife and four children)—Geismann v. Missouri Edison Elec. Co. (Mo.) 73 S. W. 654. $2,750 (boy of 6 particularly where two juries have returned the same verdict)—Gray v. St. Paul City Ry. Co., 87 Minn. 280. $1,100 (man 35 years of age, earning $1,800 a year and accustomed to render assistance to plaintiffs)—Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Young (Neb.) 93 N. W. 922.

Second verdict for less than might have been given under the mortuary tables will stand on appeal—Georgia, C. & N. Ry. Co. v. Mathews, 116 Ga. 424.

Amounts held excessive: $3,500 (a bright, healthy girl between 8 and 9 years of age who lived with her mother apart from her father, $2,500 being ample)—Wells v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 1. $10,000 (a miner 55 years of age receiving $50 a month, whose expectancy was 17 years, $6,000 being ample)—Vowell v. Issaquah Coal Co., 31 Wash. 103, 71 Pac. 725. $6,000 (an ordinarily bright boy 4 years and 4 months of age, $3,000 being ample)—Hively v. Webster County, 117 Iowa, 672. $5,000 (a daughter, a domestic servant 23 years of age who remitted to her father about $3.00 a month, $1,500 being ample)—Lindstrom v. International Nav. Co., 117 Fed. 170. $3,000 (malpractice resulting in death where the physician had the patient under his care six days)—Ramsdell v. Grady, 97 Me. 319. $5,200 (a track walker earning $1.25 a day, $4,000 being ample)—Erie R. Co. v. McCormick, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 86. $10,000 (a man of 73 years, engaged in successful business, leaving a wife and adult children, and giving financial assistance only to the wife, $5,000 being ample)—Stillings v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 201.

Adequacy of recovery: $10 is a grossly inadequate recovery for the death of a child three years and four months old—Draper v. Tucker (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1026. $500 (death of a scowman leaving two sisters who supported themselves to whom he had promised funds to take them back to the old country to live)—The O. L. Hallenbeck, 119 Fed. 468. $10,000 (death of a milk driver 35 years of age earning $12 a week, leaving a widow and two daughters aged 9 and 12 years)—Stevens v. Union Ry. Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 602. $250 not so grossly inadequate as to justify granting of a new trial in an action for the death of a boy between eleven and twelve years of age, though it was shown that within a year from the time of his death he would have been able to earn from $12 to $15 a week and there was some evidence that a boy of deceased's age would not earn more than the cost of his maintenance before reaching his majority—Snyder v. Lake Shore & M. S. Ry. Co. (Mich.) 91 N. W. 643. $200 not grossly inadequate for the wrongful death of an infant 6 years of age—Gubbitosi v. Rothschild, 75 App. Div. 477, 12 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 16. $750 not grossly inadequate for death of boy of 5 years—Schnable v. Providence Public Market, 24 R. I. 477. $3,600 (death of man 50 years of age earning $10 a week, leaving a widow and four children one of whom was self-supporting and the others aged respectively 13, 6 and 5 years)—Garbaccio v. Jersey City, H. & P. St. Ry. Co. (N. J.) 53 Atl. 707.

tion than the amount of the actual and substantial pecuniary value of his life.[59] It is not error to allow the full statutory damages though it does appear that the party lived for some minutes after the accident and suffered some pain, where there was little or no contest as to the amount of the damages and the attention of the court was not called to the matter except by a somewhat ambiguous claim of law.[60]

§ 5. Actions.—A requirement of notice of injury as a condition precedent to the action does not apply to actions for death.[61] Especially when the right of action for wrongful death is secured from abrogation by a state constitution.[62] Contributory negligence of deceased may be urged in defense of the action,[63] but not where wantonness on the part of defendant is charged.[64]

To determine the jurisdiction of the Federal court on the ground of diverse citizenship, it is the citizenship of the administrator and not of the beneficiaries that controls.[65]

The laws of Utah allow the action to be brought either in the county where the injury was inflicted or in the county where the death occurred.[66]

The action is commenced when the process is put in the hands of the sheriff for service.[67] Under the laws of Louisiana the parties entitled may sue at any time within one year from the death.[68] In Kansas, the time is not extended by the pendency and dismissal of the former action as allowed by the Code in other cases.[69]

All persons entitled to recover must be joined or represented in the action.[70]

Pleading.—In an action by the administrator, it is proper to allege such facts as will show a pecuniary loss to the next of kin,[71] but not necessary as these damages will be presumed.[72] Where the names of those entitled to share are stated it is not necessary to expressly negative the existence of other relatives.[73] Under the Code of California it is the duty of plaintiff to plead and prove the existence of heirs of deceased, as the administrator can sue for wrongful death only where there are heirs.[74] Under laws giving the right of action to a personal representative of one whose immediate death was caused by negligence, it is not necessary that the declaration should contain an averment of immediate death, it is sufficient if it necessarily appears that the death was immediate.[75] Where exemplary damages are recoverable, the complaint need not specify what portion or whether or not the dam-

59. Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Foxworth (Fla.) 34 So. 270.

60. Hesse v. Meriden, S. & C. Tramway Co., 75 Conn. 571.

61. Laws of Minn. 1897, c. 248 referring to defective sidewalks etc.—Orth v. Village of Belgrade, 87 Minn. 237.

62. Const. N. Y. art. 1, § 18—Gmaehle v. Rosenberg, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 339.

63. See Negligence and related titles treating liability for negligence such as Carriers, Municipal Corporations, Railroads, etc., for treatment of contributory negligence as defense to actions for injuries including those resulting in death.

64. Gaynor v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 136 Ala. 244; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Guest, 136 Ala. 348.

65. The complaint should allege citizenship of administrator—Bishop v. Boston & M. R. R., 117 Fed. 771.

66. White v. Rio Grande Western Ry. Co., 25 Utah, 346, 71 Pac. 593.

67. County v. Pacific Coast Borax Co., 68 N. J. Law, 273.

68. Goodwin v. Bodcaw Lumber Co., 109 La. 1050.

69. Civil Code, Kan. § 422—Rodman v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 65 Kan. 645, 70 Pac. 642, 59 L. R. A. 704.

70. The failure of a widow suing to join the husband's mother as a party plaintiff, is not prejudicial where she joins as defendant and the jury awards the entire recovery to plaintiff (Rev. St. Tex. arts. 3021, 3022)—Merchants' & P. Oil Co. v. Burns (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 626.

71. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Roeser (Neb.) 95 N. W. 68.

72. Peers v. Nevada Power, Light & Water Co., 119 Fed. 400; Peden v. American Bridge Co., 120 Fed. 523.

73. Peers v. Nevada Power, Light & Water Co., 119 Fed. 400.

74. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 377—Webster v. Norwegian Min. Co., 137 Cal. 399, 70 Pac. 276.

75. There is a sufficient averment of immediate death within the requirements of the laws of Maine where it is alleged that deceased being properly in the third story when the fire broke out, by reason of such negligence without fault on her part, was then and there burnt to death and consumed by said fire, and then and thereby lost her life (Pub. Laws of Maine, 1891, c. 124)—Carrigan v. Stillwell, 97 Me. 247.

ages prayed for are claimed as exemplary; the allowance of such damages as well as damages resulting to the kindred being matter for the determination of the jury in their discretion from the evidence.[76] A petition is not demurrable because it alleges a contract to support the next of kin, made by the deceased in his lifetime, without alleging that the estate of the deceased is insufficient for that purpose.[77] Cases cited show what amendments are allowable.[78]

The cause of the death may be shown by defendant under the general issue.[79] Under the Kansas Code in an action by a widow who was a resident of the state, an allegation that no personal representative had been appointed is put in issue by an unverified denial.[80]

Evidence.—There is a legal presumption that one found dead and killed by alleged negligence of another has exercised due care.[81] In Georgia it is the duty of plaintiff to show that deceased was without negligence.[82] Holdings as to sufficiency of evidence will be found in the footnote.[83]

Instructions.—Instructions should state the rules of recovery clearly,[84] and 76. Peers v. Nevada Power, Light & Water Co., 119 Fed. 400.

77. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Roeser (Neb.) 95 N. W. 68.

78. In an action in Kentucky for a death occurring in Virginia, an amendment setting out the Code of Virginia allowing such recovery is properly allowed—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Pointer's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 772, 69 S. W. 1108. Where the petition sets forth in general terms the pecuniary loss, the court may permit an amendment setting forth the particular facts from which the loss is inferable—Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Young (Neb.) 93 N. W. 922. Where the action is erroneously commenced by the widow and children, who are the only parties in interest, instead of by all personal representatives, it is the duty of the court to allow an amendment of the complaint substituting the widow in her capacity as administratrix (Rev. St. Utah 1898, § 3005) —Pugmire v. Diamond Coal & Coke Co. (Utah) 72 Pac. 385.

79. Wetherell v. Chicago City R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 357.

80. Vaughn v. Kansas City N. W. R. Co., 65 Kan. 685, 70 Pac. 602.

81. Cogdell v. Wilmington & W. R. Co., 132 N. C. 852. Plaintiff is not bound to show by direct evidence that deceased was free from negligence, and where there were no eye witnesses of the killing, the fact of his exercise of due precautions for his safety may be shown by special evidence, or facts and circumstances from which that fact may be reasonably inferred, including the natural instinct of self-preservation—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Keely, 103 Ill. App. 205.

82. Jones v. Central of Ga. Ry. Co., 116 Ga. 27.

83. Sufficiency of evidence of cause of death of one thrown from a train by the sudden jerking of the same—Southern Ry. Co. v. Webb, 116 Ga. 152, 59 L. R. A. 109. Evidence is insufficient to warrant recovery of full statutory amount where the only fact established is the death of the party at a certain age—Hesse v. Meriden, S. & C. Tramway Co., 75 Conn. 571. Evidence that a body was found in the neighborhood of a bridge and an overcoat close by, is not sufficient evidence to justify submission to the jury of the issue whether deceased came to his death by falling from the defective bridge—Armstrong v. Town of Cosmopolis (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1038.

84. An instruction allowing the recovery of an amount proportionate to the pecuniary injury occasioned should explain the meaning of the term "porportionate to the pecuniary injury"—Merchants' & P. Oil Co. v. Burns (Tex.) 74 S. W. 758. An instruction that the jury should estimate the reasonable probabilities of the life of deceased if they find for plaintiffs, and give such damages not only for past losses but for such prospective damages as plaintiffs might have suffered or would suffer as the direct consequence of the death, and that the jury should apportion the damages among the plaintiffs, was not improper when taken in connection with a further instruction that no recovery could be had in favor of one of plaintiffs as to whom no pecuniary loss had been shown—Western Md. R. Co. v. State, 95 Md. 637. The action of a court in refusing to instruct that the law presumes the exercise of due care by one found dead and killed by the alleged negligence of another, and giving on his own motion an instruction that an inference arises from the instinct of self-preservation that the person killed has exercised due care himself, is erroneous, as presumption and inference do not have the same significance—Cogdell v. Wilmington & W. R. Co., 132 N. C. 852. An instruction that the jury might consider in assessing the damages, the pecuniary benefits which the plaintiff may have derived from deceased had he not been killed at that stage of his life, providing plaintiff is next of kin and dependent on deceased for support, though awkwardly drafted is not erroneous—O'Fallon Coal & Min. Co. v. Laquet, 198 Ill. 125. Where the only evidence in an action for wrongful death was relevant to the issue of pecuniary injury, and there was no intimation that damages might be given as a solace for loss of deceased or as punitive damages, an instruction that the jury should consider the age of deceased and his earnings and all other evidence in the case, was not objectionable as allowing an inclusion of other than pecuniary damages—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Rains, 203 Ill. 417. Instruction need not direct a deduction of the amount of the child's "keep" must be based on the evidence.[85] Generally speaking it is immaterial in an action for wrongful death whether an instruction which goes simply to the amount of damages to be recovered is good or bad if the jury on proper instructions as to the question of negligence, the main issue, find against plaintiff.[86] An instruction that the jury might assess the damages as they deemed fair and just, not exceeding the statutory amount, is not erroneous where defendant asked for no instructions or modifications.[87]

Question for jury.—The questions as to the actual cause of the death,[88] and of decedent's contributory negligence, are for the jury;[89] likewise the question whether a deserting wife was damaged by the husband's death.[90]

Verdicts, judgments, and costs.—The failure of the jury to apportion two or more plaintiffs is not reversible error where plaintiffs make no objection, as the general verdict is sufficient to bar a subsequent action by any of the plaintiffs.[91] A joint judgment is improperly awarded plaintiffs where one of the parties is not entitled to sue therefor.[92] Security for costs should be required where the complaint fails to state a cause of action.[93]

§ 6. Distributive rights in amount recovered.—The mere failure of the administrator to name all the legal beneficiaries provided in the act allowing recovery for wrongful death will not prevent persons entitled to share in the distribution from receiving their distributive share.[94] A child is not deprived of a right to share in the damages recovered for the death of his parent by the fact that he had for some years lived away from his father's home and the father did not contribute anything to his support.[95] Where the widow of deceased has recovered for his death, children of full age who have lived apart from the family are not entitled to share in the judgment.[96]

DECEIT. *

WALTER A. SHUMAKER.

This article covers fraudulent misrepresentation as ground for an action for in estimating the value of his services, as the jury would be presumed to understand that recovery should be based on a deduction of such an amount—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Yarbrough (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 844.

85. North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Irwin, 202 Ill. 345. A court properly refused to submit the issue of self defense in an action for damages for wilful homicide where defendant's own testimony showed that he brought on the difficulty, used the first offensive language and struck the first blow, and pursued and shot the deceased while the latter was attempting to escape—Morgan v. Barnhill (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 24.

86. Zimmerman v. Denver Consol. Tramway Co. (Colo. App.) 72 Pac. 607.

87. Geismann v. Missouri Edison Elec. Co. (Mo.) 73 S. W. 654.

88. City of Madisonville v. Pemberton's Adm'r, 25 Ky. L. R. 347, 75 S. W. 229.

89. Wells v. Town of Remington (Wis.) 95 N. W. 1094.

90. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bryant (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 885.

91. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lehman (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 619.

92. Willis Coal & Min. Co. v. Grizzell, 198 Ill. 313.

*Includes all late cases.

damages, whether the action be in common law form for deceit or an equivalent action under the Codes. Fraud as a ground for relief other than damages is elsewhere treated.[97]

§ 1. Definition and nature of the wrong. A. In general.—The wrong called "deceit" consists "in leading a man into damage by willfully or recklessly causing him to believe and act on a falsehood";[98] or to be more specific, it may be defined as a false representation of a material fact, made with knowledge that it is false or recklessly, and with intent to deceive, and which is acted upon to his damage by the person to whom it is made, or a concealment or suppression of a material fact, which there is a duty to disclose, with like intent and effect.[99] It is a tort for which, at common law, the person damaged may maintain an action on the case, known as an action of deceit, or an action for deceit.

Analyzing the above definition, it will be seen that, to sustain such an action, the following conditions are essential:

(1) There must be a representation of a material fact, or a concealment of a fact which there is a duty to disclose.

(2) The representation must be false.

(3) It must be made with knowledge that it is false, or recklessly.[1]

(4) There must be an intention to deceive.

(5) The person to whom the representation is made must rely and act upon it.

(6) And he must sustain damage by reason of doing so.

(§ 1) B. Deceit as between the parties to a contract.—Most of the cases in which an action of deceit is brought are cases in which false and fraudulent representations are made by one of the parties to a proposed contract and acted upon by the other party in entering into the contract, the term "contract" being here used in the broad sense, as including executed, as well as executory contracts. In such a case, the party who has been deceived and induced to enter into the contract by the other's false and fraudulent representations may rescind the contract at law for want of real consent, and recover back what he has parted with under it, or under some circumstances he may obtain relief in a court of equity. But rescission or avoidance of the contract is not his only remedy. He may, instead of rescinding, affirm the contract or allow it to stand, and maintain an action of deceit to recover any damages he has sustained by reason of the fraud; and his affirmance of the contract, and keeping what he has received under it, or receiving what he is entitled to under it, after discovery of the fraud, is not of itself a waiver of the right to maintain the action.[2]

93. Gmaehle v. Rosenberg, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 541.

94. Oyster v. Burlington Relief Department (Neb.) 91 N. W. 699, 59 L. R. A. 291; Duzan v. Myers, 30 Ind. App. 227.

95. Duzan v. Myers, 30 Ind. App. 227.

96. Lewis v. Hunlock's Creek & M. Turnpike Co., 203 Pa. 511.

97. See the forthcoming article on Fraud and Undue Influence, and articles on such subjects as Cancellation of Instruments, Reformation of Instruments, Contracts (rescission), etc.

98. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 348. And see Fottler v. Moseley, 179 Mass. 295.

99. Pasley v. Freeman, 3 Term R. 51, 2 Smith's Lead. Cas. 94, Bigelow's Cas. 1; Byard v. Holmes, 34 N. J. Law, 296; Ming v. Woolfolk, 116 U. S. 599; Southern Development Co. v. Silva, 125 U. S. 247; Matlock v. Reppy, 47 Ark. 148; Upton v. Vail, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 181, 5 Am. Dec. 210; Arthur v. Griswold, 55 N. Y. 400; Brackett v. Griswold, 112 N. Y. 454, 467, Erwin's Cas. 416; Medbury v. Watson, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 246, 39 Am. Dec. 726, Bigelow's Cas. 22; McGar v. Williams, 26 Ala. 469, 62 Am. Dec. 739; Alexander v. Church, 53 Conn. 561; Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio, 659, 45 Am. Dec. 596; Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572; Cox v. Highley, 100 Pa. 249; Hexter v. Bast, 125 Pa. 52, 11 Am. St. Rep. 874; Buschman v. Conrad, 52 Md. 202; Fenley v. Moody, 104 Ga. 790; Bank of Atchison County v. Byers, 139 Mo. 627.

1. As to this, however, there is some conflict. See post, § 7.

2. Mallory v. Leach, 35 Vt. 156, 82 Am. Dec. 625; Allaire v. Whitney, 1 Hill (N. Y.) 484, Bigelow's Cas. 36; Whitney v. Allaire, 4 Denio (N. Y.) 554, 1 N. Y. 305; Rohrschneider v. Knickerbocker L. Ins. Co., 76 N.

Thus a person who is induced to buy goods, notes, bonds, stock, or other personal property, by the false and fraudulent representations of the seller as to material facts, may, instead of rescinding the purchase, keep the property and bring an action of deceit to recover such damages as he has sustained.[3] And one who has been induced to sell property by the false and fraudulent representations of the purchaser may allow the sale to stand and sue to recover damages for the deceit; and he does not waive this right by merely accepting the amount due under the contract after discovery of the fraud.[4]

It was at one time doubted whether an action of deceit would lie for false and fraudulent representations on the sale of land, but it is now well settled that the action will lie,[5] if the representation is one of fact,[6] and if it is of such a character and made under such circumstances that the purchaser has a right to rely on it.[7]

Effect of warranty or covenant.—An action of deceit to recover damages for false and fraudulent representations by the seller of personal property is not barred by the fact that there is an express or implied warranty upon which the purchaser might maintain an action of assumpsit.[8] He has an election to sue either on the warranty or for the deceit: "The warranty is none the less a contract because it is the means by which the fraud is accomplished, and the fraud is in no way diminished because the seller has at the same time bound himself by a warranty."[9]

Nor is an action of deceit for false and fraudulent representations by the vendor of land barred by the fact that there are express covenants in his deed,—as covenants of seizin or against incumbrances, etc.,—upon which the purchaser might maintain an action of covenant.[10]

(§ 1) C. Deceit not connected with contract.—It must not be supposed from what has been said above that the action of deceit is limited to cases of fraud as between the parties to a contract, for it will lie in many other cases. It may be laid down as a general rule that this action will lie whenever the plaintiff has been led to act to his damage by false representations of fact made by the defendant, with knowledge of their falsity or recklessly, and with intent to deceive; and it is altogether immaterial that the defendant was not in any way benefited by the deceit and did

Y. 216, 32 Am. Rep. 290; Whiting v. Price, 172 Mass. 240, 70 Am. St. Rep. 262; Binghampton Trust Co. v. Auten, 68 Ark. 299, 82 Am. St. Rep. 295; Milnazek v. Libera, 83 Minn. 288, and other cases in the notes following.

3. Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 323; Stiles v. White, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 356, 45 Am. Dec. 214; Andrews v. Jackson, 168 Mass. 266, 60 Am. St. Rep. 390; Whiting v. Price, 172 Mass. 240, 70 Am. St. Rep. 262; Handy v. Waldron, 18 R. I. 567, 49 Am. St. Rep. 794; Trice v. Cockran, 8 Grat. (Va.) 442, 56 Am. Dec. 151; Binghampton Trust Co. v. Auten, 68 Ark. 299, 82 Am. St. Rep. 295; Goring v. Fitzgerald, 105 Iowa, 507; Pronger v. Old Nat. Bank, 20 Wash. 618, 56 Pac. 391; Chilson v. Houston, 9 N. D. 498.

4. Mallory v. Leach, 35 Vt. 156, 82 Am. Dec. 625.

5. Risney v. Selby, 1 Salk. 211; Dobell v. Stevens, 3 Barn. & C. 623; Journey v. Hunt, 1 N. J. Law, 235, 1 Am. Dec. 202; Bostwick v. Lewis, 1 Day (Conn.) 250, 2 Am. Dec. 73; Monell v. Colden, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 395, 7 Am. Dec. 390; Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380, 22 Am. Dec. 586; Van Epps v. Harrison, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 63, 40 Am. Dec. 314; Foster v. Kennedy's Adm'r, 38 Ala. 359, 81 Am. Dec. 56; Atwood v. Chapman, 68 Me. 38, 28 Am. Rep. 5; Andrus v. St. Louis Smelting & Ref. Co., 130 U. S. 643.

For cases in which actions have been sustained for particular representations, see post, § 2 B, notes 35-42, § 10, notes 78-87.

6. Post, 2 B.

7. Post, § 10.

8. Wallace v. Jarman, 2 Stark. 162; Mahurin v. Harding, 28 N. H. 128, 59 Am. Dec. 401; Trice v. Cockran, 8 Grat. (Va.) 442, 56 Am. Dec. 151; Handy v. Waldron, 18 R. I. 567, 49 Am. St. Rep. 794; Hexter v. Bast, 125 Pa. 52, 11 Am. St. Rep. 874; Cobb v. O'Neal, 2 Sneed (Tenn.) 438.

Giving a warranty known to be false is a fraudulent representation—Handy v. Waldron, 18 R. I. 567, 49 Am. St. Rep. 794; Hexter v. Bast, 125 Pa. 52, 11 Am. St. Rep. 874.

9. Mahurin v. Harding, 28 N. H. 128, 59 Am. Dec. 401.

10. Wardell v. Fosdick, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 325, 7 Am. Dec. 383; Ward v. Wiman, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 193; Bostwick v. Lewis, 1 Day (Conn.) 250, 2 Am. Dec. 73; Reynolds v. Franklin, 44 Minn. 30, 20 Am. St. Rep. 540; Claggett v. Crall, 12 Kan. 393.

If a person sells land which has no existence the purchaser may disregard the covenants in the deed and maintain an action of deceit—Wardell v. Fosdick, supra.

not act in collusion with the party who was.[11] The fraud of the defendant and the damage of the plaintiff are the ground of the action. "Fraud without damage, or damage without fraud, gives no cause of action, but where these two do concur * * * an action lies."[12]

Thus it is well settled that a person who is induced to extend credit to another, to his damage, by the false and fraudulent representations of a third person as to the party's credit or financial condition, may maintain an action of deceit against such third person.[13]

And an action will lie for false and fraudulent representations by the defendant, however uninterested he may have been, by which the plaintiff has been induced to purchase real or personal property from a third person,[14] or to pay money to a third person,[15] or to enter into a marriage with a third person.[16]

An agent, although not personally interested, is liable in an action of deceit to one whom, by false and fraudulent representations, he induces to enter into a contract with his principal.[17]

And an agent is liable to his principal in an action for deceit if by false and fraudulent representations he induces the principal, by making a bad loan, or otherwise, to act to his damage.[18] Directors and other officers of a corporation are 11. Pasley v. Freeman, 3 Term R. 51, 2 Smith's Lead. Cas. 94, Bigelow's Cas. 1; Hart v. Tallmadge, 2 Day (Conn.) 381, 2 Am. Dec. 105; Medbury v. Watson, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 246, 39 Am. Dec. 726, Bigelow's Cas. 22; Bean v. Herrick, 12 Me. 262, 28 Am. Dec. 176; Upton v. Vail, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 181, 5 Am. Dec. 210; Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380, 22 Am. Dec. 586; White v. Merritt, 7 N. Y. 352, 57 Am. Dec. 527; Sigafus v. Porter (C. C. A.) 84 Fed. 430; Stoney Creek Woolen Co. v. Smalley, 111 Mich. 321; Kroeger v. Pitcairn, 101 Pa. 311, 47 Am. Rep. 718; Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572; James v. Crosthwait, 97 Ga. 673.

A vendor of land who gives the purchaser a false receipt for the purchase price to enable him to deceive a subsequent purchaser is liable to the latter—Stoney Creek Woolen Co. v. Smalley, 111 Mich. 321.

12. Croke, J., in Baily v. Merrell, 3 Bulst. 95. And see Pasley v. Freeman, 3 Term R. 51.

13. Pasley v. Freeman, 3 T. R. 51, 2 Smith's Lead. Cas. 94, Bigelow's Cas. 1; Foster v. Charles, 6 Bing. 396, 7 Bing. 105; Corbett v. Brown, 8 Bing. 33; Patten v. Gurney, 17 Mass. 182, 9 Am. Dec. 141; Potts v. Chapin, 133 Mass. 276; Upton v. Vail, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 187, 5 Am. Dec. 210; Addington v. Allen, 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 374; Zabriskie v. Smith, 13 N. Y. 322, 64 Am. Dec. 551; Browning v. National Cap. Bank, 13 App. D. C. 1; Einstein v. Marshall, 58 Ala. 153, 29 Am. Rep. 729; Boyd's Ex'rs v. Browne, 6 Pa. 310, Burdick's Cas. 242; Wynne v. Allen, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 312, 32 Am. Rep. 562; Nevada Bank v. Portland Nat. Bank, 59 Fed. 338; Fooks v. Waples, 1 Harr. (Del.) 131, 25 Am. Dec. 64; Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572; Thomas v. Wright, 98 N. C. 272; Anderson v. McPike, 86 Mo. 293. Compare Newsom v. Jackson, 26 Ga. 241, 71 Am. Dec. 206.

False representation that another's check is good—Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572.

14. Medbury v. Watson, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 246, 39 Am. Dec. 726, Bigelow's Cas. 22; Bean v. Herrick, 12 Me. 262, 28 Am. Dec. 176; Irwin v. Sherril, Tayl. (N. C.) 1, 1 Am. Dec. 574; Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380, 22 Am. Dec. 586; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651; Bostwick v. Lewis, 1 Day (Conn.) 250, 2 Am. Dec. 73 (a case, however, of conspiracy).

Inducing a person to invest in stock of a corporation or proposed corporation—Teachout v. Van Hoesen, 76 Iowa, 113, 14 Am. St. Rep. 206; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651.

15. Inducing a bank to pay money on a draft or other instrument to another person than the payee by falsely representing him to be the payee—Lahay v. City Nat. Bank, 15 Colo. 339, 22 Am. St. Rep. 407.

16. One who falsely and fraudulently represents to another that a woman is virtuous, when she is pregnant by himself, and thereby induces the other to marry her, is liable in an action for deceit—Kujek v. Goldman, 150 N. Y. 176, 55 Am. St. Rep. 670.

17. Campbell v. Hillman, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 508, 61 Am. Dec. 195; Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380, 22 Am. Dec. 586; Kroeger v. Pitcairn, 101 Pa. 311, 47 Am. Rep. 718; Hedden v. Griffin, 136 Mass. 229, 49 Am. Rep. 25; Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572; Hedin v. Minneapolis Med. & Surg. Inst., 62 Minn. 146, 54 Am. St. Rep. 628; Chisolm v. Gadsden, 1 Strobh. L. (S. C.) 220, 47 Am. Dec. 550.

Insurance agent making to the insured a false representation that a clause in the policy against the keeping of petroleum is not intended to and does not prohibit the keeping of a small quantity, the policy being subsequently avoided by reason of the keeping of a small quantity—Kroeger v. Pitcairn, 101 Pa. 311, 47 Am. St. Rep. 718. See, also, as to insurance agent's liability—Hedden v. Griffin, 136 Mass. 229, 49 Am. Rep. 25.

Agent falsely representing that the check of his principal is good—Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572.

18. Pewtriss v. Austen, 6 Taunt. 522; Goodale v. Middaugh, 8 Colo. App. 223, 46 Pac. 11.

personally liable in an action of deceit for false and fraudulent representations as to its condition or other material facts, whereby persons are induced to contract with the corporation, or subscribe for or purchase its stock or bonds, or otherwise act to their damage.[19]

So, also, an action will lie against a public officer who makes false and fraudulent representations in selling property;[20] or against an executor or administrator who, by false and fraudulent representations as to the estate, induces one to loan or pay out money on its credit,[21] or who in selling his decedent's land falsely and fraudulently represents that there is no incumbrance.[22]

One who by false and fraudulent representations intentionally induces another to so act that he is prevented from fulfilling a contract with a third person, and thereby damaged, is liable in an action of deceit.[23] And such an action will lie where a man is induced to come into a state by false and fraudulent representations, with intent to arrest him and thus compel him to settle a disputed claim.[24]

§ 2. The character of the representation. A. In general.—Laying aside, for the present, cases of concealment or nondisclosure of facts which there is a duty to disclose,[25] the general rule is that, to sustain an action of deceit, there must be a false representation as to some material and existing fact.[26] And as we shall see in a subsequent section, the representation must be made as to such a fact and under such circumstances that the person to whom it is made has a right to rely upon it, instead of ascertaining the truth for himself.[27]

(§ 2) B. Opinion or prediction.—As a general rule, a mere expression of opinion or prediction, not being a representation of fact, cannot be made the ground for an action of deceit, even though it may not have been honestly entertained, but may have been given with intent to deceive, and may have had such effect.[28] The reason is that one is not supposed to rely upon the mere opinion of another, and if he does so, and is deceived, he cannot complain.[29]

This rule does not apply, of course, where an expression of opinion or prediction is accompanied by a false statement of fact, for there is then a false representation of fact in addition to the opinion or prediction.[30]

19. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377; Andrews v. Mockford [1896] 1 Q. B. 372; Clarke v. Dickson, 6 C. B. (N. S.) 453; Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255; Tyler v. Savage, 143 U. S. 79; Bruff v. Mali, 36 N. Y. 200; Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 325; Westervelt v. Demarest, 46 N. J. Law, 37, 50 Am. Rep. 400, Burdick's Cas. 236; Seale v. Baker, 70 Tex. 283, 8 Am. St. Rep. 592; Windram v. French, 151 Mass. 547; Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84; Shaw v. Gilbert, 111 Wis. 165. And see post, § 8 B. See, also, 3 Clark & Marshall, Corp. 2263.

20. Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380, 22 Am. Dec. 586.

21. Winston v. Young, 47 Minn. 80.

22. West v. Wright, 98 Ind. 335.

23. Benton v. Pratt, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 385, 20 Am. Dec. 623.

24. Cook v. Brown, 125 Mass. 503, 28 Am. Rep. 259; Sweet v. Kimball, 166 Mass. 332, 55 Am. St. Rep. 406; Wanzer v. Bright, 52 Ill. 35.

25. Post, § 5.

26. People v. Healy, 128 Ill. 9, 15 Am. St. Rep. 90, and other cases in the notes following.

27. See post, § 10.

28. Harvey v. Young, Yelv. 21; Haycroft v. Creasy, 2 East, 92; Gordon v. Butler, 105 U. S. 553; Thompson v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 75 Me. 55, 46 Am. Rep. 357; Holbrook v. Connor, 60 Me. 578, 11 Am. Rep. 212; Parker v. Moulton, 114 Mass. 99, 19 Am. Rep. 315; Homer v. Perkins, 124 Mass. 431, 26 Am. Rep. 677; Mooney v. Miller, 102 Mass. 217; Lynch v. Murphy, 171 Mass. 307; Page v. Parker, 43 N. H. 363, 80 Am. Dec. 172; Syracuse Knitting Co. v. Blanchard, 69 N. H. 447; Davis v. Meeker, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 354; Ellis v. Andrews, 56 N. Y. 83, 15 Am. Rep. 379; Robertson v. Parks, 76 Md. 118; Collins v. Jackson, 54 Mich. 186; Crocker v. Manley, 164 Ill. 282, 56 Am. St. Rep. 196; Brady v. Cole, 164 Ill. 116; Williams v. McFadden, 23 Fla. 143, 11 Am. St. Rep. 345; Handy v. Waldron, 18 R. I. 567, 49 Am. St. Rep. 794; Hedin v. Minneapolis Med. & Surg. Inst., 62 Minn. 146, 54 Am. St. Rep. 628; Foster v. Kennedy's Adm'r, 38 Ala. 359, 81 Am. Dec. 56; Ansley v. Bank of Piedmont, 113 Ala. 467; Cooke v. Cook, 100 Ala. 175; Hecht v. Metzler, 14 Utah, 408, 48 Pac. 37, 60 Am. St. Rep. 906; Cole v. Smith, 26 Colo. 506, 58 Pac. 1086; Dudley v. Minor's Ex'r (Va.) 42 S. E. 870; Wrenn v. Truitt, 116 Ga. 708.

29. Van Epps v. Harrison, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 63, 40 Am. Dec. 314, 318; Parker v. Moulton, 114 Mass. 99, 19 Am. Rep. 315; Page v. Parker, 43 N. H. 363, 80 Am. Dec. 172, and other cases cited in the note preceding.

Nor does the rule apply where it appears that a statement as to a matter which is sometimes, or even generally, a matter of opinion, was intended and understood in the particular case as a statement of fact within the knowledge of the party making it.[31] As a general rule a statement as to the value of real or personal property, stock of corporations, or choses in action, is treated as a mere statement of opinion, for which an action will not lie.[32] But a statement as to the value of property may be intended as a statement of fact within the knowledge of the party making it, and in such a case it may give rise to an action of deceit to the same extent as any other statement of fact,[33] unless it was made under such circumstances that there was no right to rely upon it.[34] The same is true of false statements as to the quality or condition of real property, or its adaptability to particular uses,[35] or as to the location or boundaries,[36] the number of acres,[37] the title,[38] etc.; and of statements as to the quality or condition of personal property,[39] or the title thereto,[40] or quantity,[41] etc.; and of a statement as to the amount of an estate.[42] A statement as to the financial condition or credit of another person or corporation, while it may be a mere expression of opinion for which an action will not lie,[43] may be intended and understood as a positive statement of fact, in which case, if it was known to be false and made with intent to deceive, an action may be maintained.[44]

30. Ekins v. Tresham, 1 Lev. 102; Rohrschneider v. Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co., 76 N. Y. 216, 32 Am. Rep. 290; Peffley v. Noland, 80 Ind. 164; McAleer v. Horsey, 35 Md. 439; Bristol v. Braidwood, 28 Mich. 191.

In a late Connecticut case, where the seller of a patented improvement in a machine represented to the purchaser that it had been extensively sold, and was in successful operation and practical use in many mills, and that there was a large demand for it, and that he found it a profitable business, it was held that matters of opinion were so blended with statements of the facts from which they arose, that they also became statements of fact—Scholfield Gear & Pulley Co. v. Scholfield, 71 Conn. 1.

31. See the cases in the notes following. Ordinarily, the question whether a statement was intended merely as a statement of opinion or as a representation of fact is a question of fact for the jury—Simar v. Canaday, 53 N. Y. 298, 13 Am. Rep. 523; Bradley v. Poole, 98 Mass. 169, 93 Am. Dec. 144; Morse v. Shaw, 124 Mass. 59; Homer v. Perkins, 124 Mass. 431, 26 Am. Rep. 677; American Nat. Bank v. Hammond, 25 Colo. 367, 55 Pac. 1090.

But it may be so clearly the one or the other as to admit of no question, in which case its character is to be determined by the court—Gordon v. Butler, 105 U. S. 553; Bellairs v. Tucker, 13 Q. B. Div. 562; Hickey v. Morrell, 102 N. Y. 454, 55 Am. Rep. 824, Chase's Cas. 260, Erwin's Cas. 424. Representations as to value of patent rights held to be of fact—Coulter v. Clark (Ind.) 66 N. E. 739.

32. Harvey v. Young, Yelv. 21; Davis v. Meeker, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 354; Ellis v. Andrews, 56 N. Y. 83, 15 Am. Rep. 379; Bossingham v. Syck, 118 Iowa, 192.

33. Picard v. McCormick, 11 Mich. 68; Handy v. Waldron, 18 R. I. 567, 49 Am. St. Rep. 794; Simar v. Canaday, 53 N. Y. 298, 13 Am. Rep. 523; Chrysler v. Canaday, 90 N. Y. 272, 43 Am. Rep. 166, Bigelow's Cas. 17; Allen v. Hart, 72 Ill. 104; Murray v. Tolman, 162 Ill. 417; McClellan v. Scott, 24 Wis. 81; Moon v. McKinstry, 107 Mich. 668; Ruberg v. Brown, 50 S. C. 397.

34. Ellis v. Andrews, 56 N. Y. 83, 15 Am. Rep. 379. See post, § 10.

35. Van Epps v. Harrison, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 63, 40 Am. Dec. 314; Hecht v. Metzler, 14 Utah, 408, 48 Pac. 37, 60 Am. St. Rep. 906; Oakes v. Miller, 11 Colo. App. 374, 55 Pac. 193; Williams v. McFadden, 23 Fla. 143, 11 Am. St. Rep. 345; Holcomb v. Noble, 69 Mich. 396; Tryce v. Dittus, 199 Ill. 189. And see post, § 10, notes 78-87, and cases there cited. Representations by vendor that land is timbered and suitable for cultivation are of a fact—Sykes v. Reiher (Iowa) 91 N. W. 920.

36. Foster v. Kennedy's Adm'r, 38 Ala. 359, 81 Am. Dec. 56; Hecht v. Metzler, 14 Utah, 408, 48 Pac. 37, 60 Am. St. Rep. 906; Caldwell v. Henry, 76 Mo. 254; Baker v. Sherman, 71 Vt. 439. And see post, § 10. Pointing out of boundaries by vendor is a representation of a fact—Nelson v. Allen (Wis.) 93 N. W. 807.

37. Starkweather v. Benjamin, 32 Mich. 305; Lovejoy v. Isbell, 73 Conn. 368; Coon v. Atwell, 46 N. H. 510; Griswold v. Gebbie, 126 Pa. 353, 12 Am. St. Rep. 878. And see post, § 10. Compare Gordon v. Parmelee, 2 Allen (Mass.) 212; Bankson v. Lagerlof (Iowa) 75 N. W. 661.

38. Wardell v. Fosdick, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 325, 7 Am. Dec. 383; Atwood v. Chapman, 68 Me. 38, 28 Am. Rep. 5; Hunt v. Barker, 22 R. I. 18, 84 Am. St. Rep. 812. And see post, § 10.

39. Stiles v. White, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 356, 45 Am. Dec. 214; Trice v. Cockran, 8 Grat. (Va.) 442 56 Am. Dec. 151.

40. Campbell v. Hillman, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 508, 61 Am. Dec. 195; Barney v. Dewey, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 224, 7 Am. Dec. 372.

41. Lewis v. Jewell, 151 Mass. 345, 21 Am. St. Rep. 454.

42. Wilson v. Nichols, 72 Conn. 173.

43. Haycroft v. Creasy, 2 East, 92; Homer v. Perkins, 124 Mass. 431, 26 Am. Rep. 677; Marsh v. Falker, 40 N. Y. 562.

44. Pasley v. Freeman, 3 T. R. 51, 2 Smith's Lead. Cas. 94, Bigelow's Cas. 1; Up-

The same is true of a false representation by a person as to his own financial condition, where the other party has a right to rely upon it.[45]

The rule that a mere expression of opinion or prediction is not such fraud as will support an action of deceit does not apply where a person dishonestly expresses an opinion or prediction in form, with intent that it shall be relied upon, knowing at the time of the existence of a fact, which he does not disclose, rendering the opinion false, or the fulfillment of the prediction impossible or improbable, which fact is not equally within the means of knowledge of the other party. In such a case he impliedly represents that he does not know of any such fact, and the statement of opinion or prediction coupled with the suppression of such fact is a false and fraudulent representation.[46] Thus a statement by the vendor of a hotel to the purchaser that the lessee is a most desirable tenant is a false representation, and not a mere expression of opinion, where the vendor knows that the tenant is embarrassed and behind in the payment of his rent.[47] The same is true of a statement by the seller of cattle that they will weigh so much, when he knows that they weigh less,[48] and of a statement by a warehouseman that the exterior of his warehouse is fireproof, when he knows that portions of the exterior are constructed of wood.[49]

Nor does the rule that a mere statement of opinion is not actionable apply where there is a relation of special confidence between the parties, and the party making the statement has or is supposed to have special knowledge on the subject. A statement of opinion made by a person on a subject as to which he has, or is supposed to have, special knowledge, with knowledge that it is false and with intent to deceive, to one who he knows to be ignorant on the subject, and to rely on his opinion, is such fraud as will support an action of deceit.[50]

(§ 2) C. Promises and statements of intention.—Ordinarily a mere promise or a statement of intention as to the future, not being a representation as to an existing fact, cannot be made the basis of an action of deceit because it is not performed or fulfilled; and many courts have held that this is true even though the promise is given or statement made with the intention at the time not to perform it, or with knowledge that it cannot be performed.[51] This doctrine, however, is not recognized ton v. Vail, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 181, 5 Am. Dec. 210; Mendenhall v. Stewart, 18 Ind. App. 262; Einstein v. Marshall, 58 Ala. 153, 29 Am. Rep. 729; Wynne v. Allen, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 312, 32 Am. Rep. 562; Andrews v. Jackson, 168 Mass. 266, 60 Am. St. Rep. 390; Warfield v. Clark, 118 Iowa, 69. And see the other cases cited ante.

Representation by the seller of notes that the maker is responsible and that the notes are as good as gold—Andrews v. Jackson, 168 Mass. 266, 60 Am. St. Rep. 390.

45. Cain v. Dickenson, 60 N. H. 371; Eaton v. Avery, 83 N. Y. 31, 38 Am. Rep. 389; Gainesville Nat. Bank v. Bamberger, 77 Tex. 48, 19 Am. St. Rep. 738. And see post, § 10, note 6 et seq. Compare Syracuse Knitting Co. v. Blanchard, 69 N. H. 447.

46. Smith v. Land & House Property Corp., 28 Ch. Div. 7, Bigelow's Cas. 26; Birdsey v. Butterfield, 34 Wis. 52; Hickey v. Monell, 102 N. Y. 454, 55 Am. Rep. 824, Chase's Cas. 260, Erwin's Cas. 424; Glaspie v. Keator (C. C. A.) 56 Fed. 203; French v. Ryan, 104 Mich. 625.

47. Smith v. Land & House Property Corp., 28 Ch. Div. 7, Bigelow's Cas. 26.

48. Birdsey v. Butterfield, 34 Wis. 52.

49. Hickey v. Morrell, 102 N. Y. 454, 55 Am. Rep. 824.

50. Picard v. McCormick, 11 Mich. 68; Chase v. Boughton, 93 Mich. 285; Moon v. McKinstry, 107 Mich. 668; Gordon v. Butler, 105 U. S. 553; Hedin v. Minneapolis Med. & Surg. Inst., 62 Minn. 146, 54 Am. St. Rep. 628; Lofgren v. Peterson, 54 Minn. 343; Vilett v. Moler, 82 Minn. 12; Robbins v. Barton, 50 Kan. 120, 31 Pac. 686; Andrews v. Jackson, 168 Mass. 266, 60 Am. St. Rep. 390; Hicks v. Stevens, 121 Ill. 186; Murray v. Tolman, 162 Ill. 417; Blacknall v. Rowland, 116 N. C. 389.

Statement by a physician and surgeon in a hospital to an ignorant person, that injuries sustained by the latter are curable and can be cured at the hospital—Hedin v. Minneapolis Med. & Surg. Inst., 62 Minn. 146, 54 Am. St. Rep. 628.

"It is true, as a general rule, that the expression of belief or opinion as to a particular matter, though false, cannot be made the basis of an action of deceit; but an opinion falsely expressed, with intent to defraud, may, in special cases, where there is a disparity of knowledge, and the parties do not stand on a basis of equality, be material and actionable"—Vilett v. Moler, 82 Minn. 12.

51. Knowlton v. Keenan, 146 Mass. 86, 4 Am. St. Rep. 282; Dowe v. Morris, 149 Mass.

to the full extent in all jurisdictions. It is clear that a man's intention or purpose at a given time is a matter of fact, and a misrepresentation of intent or purpose is a misrepresentation of fact.[52] Many courts, therefore, have held that a false and fraudulent representation as to one's intention or purpose, or a promise to perform or not to perform acts in the future, may be made the ground of an action of deceit, if it was a mere device resorted to without any intention of performance and for the purpose of deceiving.[53] Thus in an English case, where a prospectus issued to shareholders in a company to invite subscriptions to a loan contained a false and fraudulent statement of the purposes for which the money was wanted, which was in effect a statement of intention as to its application, it was held a material statement of fact for which an action of deceit would lie.[54] And in Massachusetts, where it is generally held that a mere promise will not support an action of deceit, although made with the intention not to perform it, it was held in a late case that a promise to perform acts in the future, if a mere device resorted to without any intention of performance and for the purpose of inducing a debtor to come within the state, to be there arrested, followed by his coming into the state in reliance on such promise, and by his subsequent arrest, was such fraud as would support an action.[55]

Some of the courts hold that a person who sells property on credit cannot maintain an action of deceit against the buyer because he purchased with fraudulent intent not to pay, or knowing that he would not be able to pay,[56] while other courts hold that such a purchase involves a false and fraudulent representation as to present intention, for which the action will lie.[57]

The general rule that a promise or statement of intention will not support an action of deceit does not apply, of course, where the promise or statement is ac-

188, 14 Am. St. Rep. 404; People v. Healy, 128 Ill. 9, 15 Am. St. Rep. 90; Gage v. Lewis, 68 Ill. 609; Kitson v. Farwell, 132 Ill. 327; Ansley v. Bank of Piedmont, 113 Ala. 467, 59 Am. St. Rep. 122; Long v. Woodman, 58 Me. 49; Burt v. Bowles, 69 Ind. 1; Balue v. Taylor, 136 Ind. 368; Farrar v. Bridges, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 565; Farris v. Strong, 24 Colo. 107, 48 Pac. 963; Tufts v. Weinfeld, 88 Wis. 647; Closius v. Reiners, 13 App. Div. (N. Y.) 163; Hackett v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 30 Misc. (N. Y.) 523, 50 App. Div. 266.

But it has been held that making a promise with intent not to perform it constitutes a fraud for which a contract may be rescinded—Lawrence v. Gayetty, 78 Cal. 126, 20 Pac. 382, 12 Am. St. Rep. 29; Chicago, etc. Ry. Co. v. Titterington, 84 Tex. 218, 31 Am. St. Rep. 39; Ansley v. Bank of Piedmont, 113 Ala. 467, 59 Am. St. Rep. 122.

52. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 359. "The state of a man's mind is as much a fact as the state of his digestion"—Bowen, L. J., in Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 Ch. Div. 459, 483.

53. Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 Ch. Div. 459; Ayres v. French, 41 Conn. 142; Sweet v. Kimball, 166 Mass. 332, 55 Am. St. Rep. 406; Goodwin v. Horne, 60 N. H. 486; McCready v. Phillips, 56 Neb. 446.

See, also, Metcalf v. Hart, 3 Wyo. 513, 27 Pac. 900, 31 Pac. 407, 31 Am. St. Rep. 122.

54. Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 Ch. Div. 459.

55. Sweet v. Kimball, 166 Mass. 332, 55 Am. St. Rep. 406.

56. Gage v. Lewis, 68 Ill. 604; People v. Healy, 128 Ill. 9, 15 Am. St. Rep. 90. And see Smith v. Smith, 21 Pa. 367, 60 Am. Dec. 51.

57. Swift v. Rounds, 19 R. I. 527, 61 Am. St. Rep. 791; Goodwin v. Horne, 60 N. H. 486; McCready v. Phillips, 56 Neb. 446; Place v. Minster, 65 N. Y. 89, Burdick's Cas. 259; Anon., 67 N. Y. 598, Burdick's Cas. 240. And see Morrill v. Blackman, 42 Conn. 324.

"Deceit, to ground a recovery," said the Nebraska court, "must relate to existing facts; but if a man buys property on credit, with the intention at the time of not paying therefor, his promise to pay is but a false token whereby the fraud is effected. The real fraud is the expressed or implied representation of his intention to pay"—McCready v. Phillips, 56 Neb. 446.

It has repeatedly been held that a purchase of goods with the fraudulent intent not to pay for them is such fraud as entitles the seller to rescind and recover the goods —Durell v. Haley, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 492, 19 Am. Dec. 444; Nichols v. Pinner, 18 N. Y. 306; Wright v. Brown, 67 N. Y. 1; Rowley v. Bigelow, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 307, 23 Am. Dec. 607; Dow v. Sanborn, 3 Allen (Mass.) 181; Talcott v. Henderson, 31 Ohio St. 162, 27 Am. Rep. 501; Shipman v. Seymour, 40 Mich. 274; Donaldson v. Farwell, 93 U. S. 631; Ayres v. French, 41 Conn. 142; Des Farges v. Pugh, 93 N. C. 31, 53 Am. Rep. 446; Powell v. Bradlee, 9 Gill & J. (Md.) 220; People v. Healy, 128 Ill. 9, 15 Am. St. Rep. 90; Ex parte Whittaker, 10 Ch. App. 446. See, also, Bidault v. Wales, 20 Mo. 546, 64 Am. Dec. 205.

Contra Smith v. Smith, 21 Pa. 367, 60 Am. Dec. 51.

companied by a false and fraudulent representation of fact, or by a fraudulent concealment of a fact which, under the circumstances, there is a duty to disclose.[58]

(§ 2) D. Reasons.—It has been said that a man's statement of his reasons is not such a representation as will support an action of deceit,[59] and this is no doubt generally true for the reason that such a statement is ordinarily immaterial, or is one upon which persons are not supposed to rely. Such a statement, however, is as much a statement of fact as it is a statement as to a man's intention, and it would probably be held actionable if shown to be material, to have been intended to deceive, and to have deceived.[60]

(§ 2) E. Misrepresentation of law.—As a rule, a false representation of the law, not being a representation of fact, does not constitute fraud, and will not support an action of deceit, although made with intent to deceive.[61] The reason is that a person is presumed to know the law, and has no right to rely upon a statement of matter of law made by another.[62] The rule applies, for example, in the absence of special circumstances, where a person misrepresents the legal effect of a contract, to induce another to enter into it, there being no misrepresentation as to the contents;[63] or where a person misrepresents the legal effect of certain acts, to induce another to release a claim, or to settle for less than is due under a contract.[64]

This rule does not apply, however, to a misrepresentation as to one's private rights, which is regarded as a statement of fact, although it may involve matters of law,[65] as a statement by a corporation or its officers, express or implied from conduct, that a certain power is conferred upon it by its charter, the person relying on the representation not having notice of the terms of the charter;[66] or where the holder of a tenant's notes for the rent of land makes false representations to a subtenant, who is ignorant of the terms of the contract between the landlord and tenant, as to the legal right in respect to crops grown on the land, and thereby induces the subtenant to surrender a right.[67] A representation by an officer that certain property has been attached by him is a representation of fact, and not of law.[68]

Nor does the rule apply where there is a special relation of confidence between

And if this is so, there is no good reason why it should not be held such fraud as will support an action of deceit. The Illinois court, however, has made a distinction. See People v. Healy, 128 Ill. 9, 15 Am. St. Rep. 90.

58. Pollock v. Sullivan, 53 Vt. 507, 38 Am. Rep. 702; Kley v. Healy, 127 N. Y. 555; Blake v. Blackley, 109 N. C. 257, 26 Am. St. Rep. 566.

A woman may maintain an action of deceit against a married man for promising to marry her, and is not limited to an action of assumpsit—Pollock v. Sullivan, 53 Vt. 507, 38 Am. Rep. 702.

59. Vernon v. Keyes, 4 Taunt. 488.

60. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 360. Pollock here gives as an example the case of a buying agent's falsely naming, not merely as the highest price which he is willing to give, but as the actual limit of his authority, a sum lower than that for which he is really empowered to deal. See, also, Edelman v. Latshaw, 180 Pa. 419.

61. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 361; Rashdall v. Ford, L. R. 2 Eq. 750; Thompson v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 75 Me. 55, 46 Am. Rep. 357; Upton v. Tribilcock, 91 U. S. 45; Burt v. Bowles, 69 Ind. 1; Aetna Ins. Co. v. Reed, 33 Ohio St. 283; Gormely v. Gymnastic Ass'n, 55 Wis. 350; Beall v. McGehee, 57 Ala. 438; Lehman v. Shackleford, 50 Ala. 437. And see Fish v. Cleland, 33 Ill. 238; Reed v. Sidener, 32 Ind. 373.

62. See the cases above cited.

63. Upton v. Tribilcock, 91 U. S. 45; Russell v. Branham, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 277; Jaggar v. Winslow, 30 Minn. 263, and other cases in note 26 et seq., supra.

64. Thus it was held that one who had a claim against an insurance company for loss by fire, and who was induced to settle for less than the amount of his claim by the false representation of the company's agent that his policy had been forfeited by non-occupancy of the premises, could not maintain an action of deceit against the company—Thompson v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 75 Me. 55, 46 Am. Rep. 357.

65. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 361.

66. West London Com. Bank v. Kitson, 13 Q. B. Div. 360, holding that acceptance of a bill by directors of a company incorporated by a private act of parliament was a representation by them to persons who might purchase the bill that the company had power under the act to accept the same, that it was a representation of fact and not merely of law, and being false, the directors were liable to an action.

67. Lehman v. Shackleford, 50 Ala. 437.

68. Burns v. Lane, 138 Mass. 350.

the parties, as where a lawyer misrepresents the law to one who he knows is relying on his advice, or even where a layman does so to one whom he knows to be ignorant of the law and to depend on his statement. In either case there is a special relation of confidence, and a false representation as to the law, made with intent to deceive, is such fraud as will support an action of deceit.[69]

Persons are not chargeable with notice of the laws of a foreign country or of another state, and a false representation as to such laws, therefore, is treated as a representation of fact which will support an action.[70]

(§ 2) F. Immaterial statements.—A false representation, in order that it may amount to actionable fraud, must be as to a material fact.[71] Thus where the defendant, to induce the plaintiff to enter into a contract to build a section of railroad, falsely represented that he had purchased certain rails, and would sell them to the plaintiff at a certain price, the court held that the representation that the defendant would sell the rails to the plaintiff, being a mere promise, would not support an action for deceit, and that the action could not be sustained on the false representation that he had purchased the rails, since this, separated from the promise, was unimportant and immaterial.[72]

(§ 2) G. Vague statements.—A statement does not amount to such a representation as will support an action of deceit if it is so vague or indefinite that a person of ordinary intelligence would not rely upon it. Such is the case, for example, where a vendor of land points out a line as the "probable" boundary,[73] or where a purchaser of goods on credit asserts that he is "a person safely to be trusted and given credit to."[74]

(§ 2) H. Ambiguous statements.—The fact that a statement is ambiguous does not prevent it from being made the ground of an action of deceit, but in such a case it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to show that the statement was reasonably capable of a meaning rendering it false and misleading, and that he relied upon it in that sense.[75]

§ 3. Oral representations and the statute of frauds.—The rule that parol evidence is not admissible to add to or vary a written contract does not exclude parol evidence of a false and fraudulent representation, not as a term of the contract, but

69. Townsend v. Cowles, 31 Ala. 428; Lehman v. Shackleford, 50 Ala. 437; Moreland v. Atchison, 19 Tex. 303 (where the seller of land to a newly arrived immigrant falsely represented that the title was good).

70. Haven v. Foster, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 112, 19 Am. Dec. 353; Wood v. Roeder, 50 Neb. 476; Rosenbaum v. United States Credit System Co., 64 N. J. Law, 34.

One who has purchased a warrant of another state, in reliance on a false and fraudulent representation of the seller as to the statute of limitations of the other state, may maintain an action of deceit—Wood v. Roeder, 50 Neb. 476.

71. Hedden v. Griffin, 136 Mass. 229, 49 Am. Rep. 25; Dowe v. Morris, 149 Mass. 188, 14 Am. St. Rep. 404. And see Holbrook v. Connor, 60 Me. 578, 11 Am. Rep. 212; Young v. Young, 113 Ill. 430; Tuck v. Downing, 76 Ill. 71; Winston v. Young, 52 Minn. 1; Palmer v. Bell, 85 Me. 352; Nounnan v. Sutter County Land Co., 81 Cal. 1, 22 Pac. 515; Jordan v. Pickett, 78 Ala. 331; Hart v. Waldo (Ga.) 43 S. E. 998.

Whether a representation was material, there being no dispute as to the facts, is purely a question of law for the court—Greenleaf v. Gerald, 94 Me. 91, 80 Am. St. Rep. 377; Caswell v. Hunton, 87 Me. 277. Compare, however, Fottler v. Moseley, 179 Mass. 295.

False representations by the seller of letters patent for the manufacture of an article, as to the cost of manufacturing the article, are material—Braley v. Powers, 92 Me. 203.

A misrepresentation as to quantity of land of 18 acres on sale of 160 is material—Leicher v. Keeney (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 145.

72. Dowe v. Morris, 149 Mass. 188, 14 Am. St. Rep. 404.

Where the president of a corporation, to procure credit for it, represents that it is solvent, and also falsely represents that none of its assets are incumbered and that it is doing a profitable business, the fact that the corporation is solvent does not render the other representations immaterial—Shaw v. Gilbert, 111 Wis. 165.

73. Hall v. Thompson, 1 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 443, 483.

74. Lyons v. Briggs, 14 R. I. 222, 51 Am. Rep. 372.

75. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 330; Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187.

as an inducement thereto, and for the purpose of an action of deceit.[76] Nor is evidence of an oral representation rendered inadmissible because it was made as an inducement to a contract which is within the statute of frauds.[77]

An action of deceit for false and fraudulent representations as to the credit or identity of another is not within the clause of the statute of frauds providing that no action shall be brought to charge a person upon any oral promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another.[78] In some jurisdictions, however, it is expressly provided, in somewhat varying language, that no action shall be brought to charge any person upon or by reason of any representation or assurance made or given, concerning or relating to the character, conduct, credit, ability, trade, or dealings of any other person, to the intent or purpose that such person may obtain credit, money, or goods thereupon, unless such representation or assurance be made in writing, signed by the party to be charged therewith.[79] Such a statute prevents an action of deceit for false and fraudulent representations, not in writing and signed, made by one person to another concerning the financial condition or credit of a third person, to whom the person to whom the representation is made is thereby induced to extend credit to his damage;[80] but it does not affect the right to maintain an action for oral false representations concerning third persons or their property, which do not affect their credit, or are not made with intent to give them credit.[81]

§ 4. Misrepresentation by conduct.—A false representation of fact may be made, both for the purpose of avoidance of a contract and for the purpose of an action of deceit, by conduct as well as by words. Any act intentionally done, which naturally and distinctly conveys an impression that a particular fact does or does not exist, is as much a representation that such fact does or does not exist as an express representation in words.[82]

Thus one who assumes to accept a bill, or make any other contract as agent

76. Dobell v. Stevens, 3 Barn. & C. 623; Picard v. McCormick, 11 Mich. 68, 76; Hanger v. Evins, 38 Ark. 334; Newell v. Horn, 45 N. H. 421; Cobb v. O'Neal, 2 Sneed (Tenn.) 438.

77. Foss v. Newbury, 20 Or. 257, 25 Pac. 669. See, also, Catalain v. Catalain, 124 Ind. 54, 19 Am. St. Rep. 73.

78. Pasley v. Freeman, 3 Term R. 51, 2 Smith's Lead. Cas. 94, Bigelow's Cas. 1; Hamar v. Alexander, 2 Bos. & P. (N. R.) 241; Upton v. Vail, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 181, 5 Am. Dec. 210; Ewins v. Calhoun, 7 Vt. 79. See, also, Lahay v. City Nat. Bank, 15 Colo. 339, 25 Pac. 704, 22 Am. St. Rep. 407.

Contra Newsom v. Jackson, 26 Ga. 241, 71 Am. Dec. 206.

The clause of the statute requiring a promise to answer for the debt of another to be in writing does not prevent an action of deceit against an officer of a bank by a depositor for false representations as to the condition of the bank, by reason of which the depositor has suffered loss—Kemp v. National Bank of Republic (C. C. A.) 109 Fed. 48.

79. The original statute in England was the statute of 9 Geo. IV. c. 14, known as Lord Tenderden's Act.

80. Haslock v. Fergusson, 7 Adol. & E. 86; Kimball v. Comstock, 14 Gray (Mass.) 510; Mann v. Blanchard, 2 Allen (Mass.) 386; McKinney v. Whiting, 8 Allen (Mass.) 208; Hearn v. Waterhouse, 39 Me. 96; Nevada Bank v. Portland Nat. Bank, 59 Fed 338; Cook v. Churchman, 104 Ind. 141. Compare, however, Ball v. Farley, 81 Ala. 292; Warren v. Barker, 2 Duv. (Ky.) 156.

81. Medbury v. Watson, 6 Met. (Mass.) 246, 39 Am. Dec. 726; Norton v. Huxley, 13 Gray (Mass.) 287; Stannard v. Kingsbury, 179 Mass. 174; Hess v. Culver, 77 Mich. 598, 18 Am. St. Rep. 421; Lahay v. City Nat. Bank, 15 Colo. 339, 25 Pac. 704, 22 Am. St. Rep. 407.

An action against a person for fraudulently signing his name as a witness to a false signature of a letter of credit, whereby the plaintiff was induced to sell goods on credit to the person named in the letter, is not founded on an oral representation as to the solvency or credit of another, within a statute providing that no action shall be maintained to charge a person by reason of any representation made concerning the credit, ability, trade, or dealings of any other person, unless made in writing and signed by the party to be charged—Mendenhall v. Stewart, 18 Ind. App. 262.

Such statute applies to false representations as to the condition and property of a corporation, whereby a person is induced to purchase shares of stock directly from it—Heintz v. Mueller, 19 Ind. App. 240. Compare Hubbard v. Long, 105 Mich. 442.

82. Polhill v. Walter, 3 Barn. & Ad. 114; West London Com. Bank v. Kitson, 13 Q. B. Div. 360; Mudsill Min. Co. v. Watrous (C. C. A.) 61 Fed. 163; Croyle v. Moses, 90 Pa. 250, 35 Am. Rep. 654; Swift v. Rounds, 19 R. I.

for another, impliedly represents that he has authority to do so, and if he knows that he has no such authority, he is liable in an action of deceit for any damages sustained by the other party.[83] In like manner officers of a corporation, who accept a bill in its name and put the same in circulation, thereby represent that the corporation has power under its charter to accept the bill.[84] Persons who issue bills or notes in the name of a pretended corporation impliedly represent that there is such a corporation, and if the representation is known to be false, they are liable to purchasers in an action of deceit.[85]

There is also a false representation by conduct for which an action of deceit will lie, where a person fraudulently draws a check on a bank knowing that he has no funds to meet it, or where the holder of a check transfers it, or fraudulently presents it and obtains payment or credit, knowing that the drawer has no funds;[86] where a person fraudulently procures a minor to indorse a note, and then sells the note or authorizes it to be sold to one who relies on such indorsement;[87] where a person purchases goods on credit with the fraudulent intent not to pay for them;[88] where a person selling grain by measurement or weight puts a foreign substance therein to increase the bulk or weight;[89] where the seller of land pours petroleum thereon to give it a deceptive appearance as oil land;[90] where the seller of a mine mixes silver in samples of ore taken from the mine;[91] where a seller of goods fraudulently packs them in such a way as to present a favorable exterior not truly representing the character of the goods;[92] where a broker selling property, and having knowledge of a defect in his principal's title, directs an investigation to a place where he knows that no satisfactory information can be obtained, instead of to another place where the truth can be ascertained.[93]

§ 5. Nondisclosure and concealment of facts.—As between parties who have entered into a contract, and particularly in the case of sales of real or personal property, a failure of one of the parties to disclose facts within his knowledge, and not within the knowledge of the other party, is frequently relied upon as constituting fraud, not only for the purpose of avoiding the transaction, but also for the purpose of an action of deceit; but it is well settled that it does not amount to fraud for either purpose except under special circumstances. The general rule is that the mere failure of one of the parties to a sale of real or personal property, or other contract, to disclose facts within his knowledge, and which, if disclosed to the other party, might prevent him from entering into the contract, does not amount to fraud, either for the purpose of avoiding the contract or for the purpose of maintaining an action of deceit, unless the nature of the transaction or the relation of the parties is such as to impose a duty to disclose the facts.[94] As applied to nondisclosure by the vendor of property, the rule is expressed in the maxim, caveat emptor.

527, 61 Am. St. Rep. 791; Mizner v. Kussell, 29 Mich. 229; Chisolm v. Gadsden, 1 Strobh. L. (S. C.) 220, 47 Am. Dec. 550; Paddock v. Strobridge, 29 Vt. 470.

83. Polhill v. Walter, 3 Barn. & Ad. 114.

84. West London Com. Bank v. Kitson, 13 Q. B. Div. 360.

85. Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio, 659, 45 Am. Dec. 596.

86. Peterson v. Union Nat. Bank, 52 Pa. 206, 91 Am. Dec. 146; True v. Thomas, 16 Me. 36.

87. Lobdell v. Baker, 1 Met. (Mass.) 193, 35 Am. Dec. 358.

88. Swift v. Rounds, 19 R. I. 527, 61 Am. St. Rep. 791. See supra, § 2 C.

89. West v. Bradley, 6 Ind. 394.

90. Chester v. Dickerson, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 349.

91. Mudsill Min. Co. v. Watrous (C. C. A.) 61 Fed. 163.

92. Singleton's Adm'r v. Kennedy, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 222.

93. Chisolm v. Gadsden, 1 Strobh. L. (S. C.) 220, 47 Am. Dec. 550.

94. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 403; Hadley v. Clinton County Importing Co., 13 Ohio St. 502, 82 Am. Dec. 454; Laidlaw v. Organ, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 178; Cleaveland v. Richardson, 132 U. S. 318; Dambman v. Schulting, 75 N. Y. 55; Harris v. Tyson, 24 Pa. 347, 64 Am. Dec. 661; Butler's Appeal, 26 Pa. 63; Smith v. Beatty, 2 Ired. Eq. (N. C.) 456, 40 Am. Dec. 435; Beninger v. Corwin, 24 N. J. Law, 257; Crowell v. Jackson, 53 N. J. Law, 656; Iron City Nat. Bank v. Anderson, 194 Pa. 205.

The difficulty in applying the rule is in determining what circumstances impose the duty to disclose facts.

All of the courts no doubt agree that where the parties are dealing at arm's length, and do not occupy a confidential relation, the vendor of land is under no duty to disclose to the purchaser facts affecting the condition or value of the land, which the purchaser might ascertain for himself by inquiry or examination, and his failure to disclose such facts, where there is nothing more, does not amount to fraud.[95] The same is true of mere nondisclosure of facts by a lessor of premises,[96] or by a seller of personal property.[97] And it is only where a special relation of confidence exists, or where inquiry is made, that a purchaser of real or personal property is under any duty to disclose facts known to him, and not known to the seller, enhancing the value of the property.[98] Failure of a purchaser of goods on credit to disclose his insolvency is not such fraud as will sustain an action of deceit, where he is not asked as to his financial condition.[99]

When the general rule does not apply.—The general rule that mere nondisclosure of facts is not fraud does not apply where there is a special relation of trust and confidence between the parties, or where, for any other reason, the circumstances are such as to impose as a matter of good faith, a duty to disclose the facts.[1]

95. Long v. Warren, 68 N. Y. 426, Chase's Cas. 263; Hall v. Thompson, 1 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 443, 481. Failure of vendor of land to disclose the fact that the boundary is in dispute—Baker v. Sherman, 71 Vt. 439.

96. In Keates v. Earl of Cadogan, 10 C. B. 591, it was held that a lessee of premises could not maintain an action of deceit against the lessor because of the latter's failure to disclose the fact that the premises were in a ruinous condition and unfit for habitation, although he knew that they were leased for immediate occupation.

"It is not pretended," said Jervis, C. J., "that there was any warranty, express or implied, that the house was fit for immediate occupation, but it is said that because the defendant knew that the plaintiff wanted it for immediate occupation, and knew that it was in an unfit and dangerous state, and did not disclose that fact to the plaintiff, an action of deceit will lie. The declaration does not allege that the defendant made any misrepresentation, or that he had reason to suppose that the plaintiff would not do what any man in his senses would do, namely, make proper investigation and satisfy himself as to the condition of the house before he entered upon the occupation of it. There is nothing amounting to deceit." See, also, Foster v. Peyser, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 242, 57 Am. Dec. 43; Lucas v. Coulter, 104 Ind. 81.

97. Kohl v. Lindley, 39 Ill. 195, 89 Am. Dec. 294; Beninger v. Corwin, 24 N. J. Law, 257; Hadley v. Clinton County Importing Co., 13 Ohio St. 502, 82 Am. Dec. 454; Brown v. Gray, 6 Jones L. (N. C.) 103, 72 Am. Dec. 563; West v. Anderson, 9 Conn. 107, 21 Am. Dec. 737; Paul v. Hadley, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 521.

"Caveat emptor is the general rule of the common law. If defects in the property sold are patent, and might be discovered by the exercise of ordinary attention, and the buyer has an opportunity to inspect the property, the law does not require the vendor to point out defects"—Grigsby v. Stapleton, 94 Mo. 423, Chase's Cas. 258.

98. Thus it is not a fraud for the purchaser of goods at the market price to disclose facts which if known generally would greatly enhance the price—Laidlaw v. Organ, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 178.

And the purchaser of land is not guilty of fraud in failing to disclose the fact known to him only, that there is a mine on the land—Fox v. Mackreth, 2 Brown Ch. 420; Harris v. Tyson, 24 Pa. 347, 64 Am. Dec. 661; Butler's Appeal, 26 Pa. 63; Smith v. Beatty, 2 Ired. Eq. (N. C.) 456, 40 Am. Dec. 435.

99. People v. Healy, 128 Ill. 9, 15 Am. St. Rep. 90; Hennequin v. Naylor, 24 N. Y. 139; Nichols v. Pinner, 18 N. Y. 295; Talcott v. Henderson, 31 Ohio St. 162, 27 Am. Rep. 501; Rodman v. Thalheimer, 75 Pa. 232; Le Grand v. Eufaula Nat. Bank, 81 Ala. 123, 60 Am. Rep. 140.

It is otherwise, as we have seen, where goods are purchased with fraudulent intent not to pay for them. See ante, § 2 C.

1. Mallory v. Leach, 35 Vt. 156, 82 Am. Dec. 625; Bennett v. McMillin, 179 Pa. 146, 57 Am. St. Rep. 591; Stewart v. Wyoming Cattle Ranche Co., 128 U. S. 383, Erwin's Cas. 430; Thomas v. Murphy, 87 Minn. 358.

Concealment by purchaser of superior knowledge of value is not fraud—Pratt Land & Imp. Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452. Failure of broker to disclose facts to his principal held fraudulent—Holmes v. Cathcart, 88 Minn. 213; Rank v. Garvey (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1025.

And there is a relation of confidence within this rule if a person knows that another relies upon his knowledge and permits him to do so, although their relation is not otherwise a confidential one—Bennett v. McMillin, 177 Pa. 146, 57 Am. St. Rep. 591.

Where an executor who had sold stock belonging to the estate of his father, and considered worthless, for a nominal sum, and afterwards received a letter directed to the decedent offering a certain amount for the stock, repurchased it from the purchaser, stating to him that he wanted it because it belonged to his father, and that it was of no value, it was held that he was liable to the purchaser in an action of deceit—Edelman v. Latshaw, 180 Pa. 419.

While it is not fraud for the vendor of land to fail to disclose facts affecting its value, which the purchaser might ascertain for himself, it is a fraud for him to fail to disclose a defect in his title not apparent on the face of the title deeds, or other material facts peculiarly within his own knowledge, and which he knows are not within the knowledge or equal means of knowledge of the purchaser.[2] And while the lessor of premises is under no duty to disclose the fact that they are unfit for habitation because of want of repair, a fact which the lessee can ascertain for himself, it is a fraud for him to fail to disclose that they are infected with a contagious disease or otherwise subject to a nuisance prejudicial to health.[3]

In like manner, a seller of personal property, while he is under no duty to disclose defects which are patent or other facts which the purchaser may ascertain for himself by the exercise of ordinary diligence, is bound, according to the great weight of authority, to disclose latent defects within his knowledge, which he knows are not within the knowledge of the purchaser, and which render the property unfit, or less fit than it would otherwise be, for the purposes for which it is purchased; and if he intentionally remains silent as to such defects, he is guilty of a fraud,[4] unless the sale is expressly made "with all faults."[5] This rule has been applied, for example, to a sale of cattle, known by the vendor to be infected with a contagious disease, without disclosing this fact;[6] to the sale of a horse without disclosing the fact that it is affected by a secret malady of a fatal character;[7] to the sale of a cow, known to be purchased for breeding purposes, without disclosing a latent defect rendering her unfit for such purpose;[8] to the sale of provisions for domestic use with knowledge that they are unwholesome;[9] to the sale of hay without disclosing

2. 1 Sugd. Vend. 564; Bryant's Ex'r v. Boothe, 30 Ala. 311, 68 Am. Dec. 117; Peebles v. Stephens, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 324, 6 Am. Dec. 660; Burns v. Dockray, 156 Mass. 135. See, also, Camp v. Camp, 2 Ala. 632, 36 Am. Dec. 423.

3. Minor v. Sharon, 112 Mass. 477, 17 Am. Rep. 122; Cesar v. Karutz, 60 N. Y. 229, 19 Am. Rep. 164. Compare Erskine v. Adeane, 8 Ch. App. 756.

4. Hoe v. Sanborn, 21 N. Y. 552, 78 Am. Dec. 163; Brown v. Montgomery, 20 N. Y. 287, 75 Am. Dec. 404; Waters v. Mattingley, 1 Bibb (Ky.) 244, 4 Am. Dec. 631; French v. Vining, 102 Mass. 132, 3 Am. Rep. 440; Cecil v. Spurger, 32 Mo. 462, 82 Am. Dec. 140; Grigsby v. Stapleton, 94 Mo. 423, Chase's Cas. 258; Hadley v. Clinton County Importing Co., 13 Ohio St. 502, 82 Am. Dec. 454; Paddock v. Strobridge, 29 Vt. 470; Graham v. Stiles, 38 Vt. 578; Maynard v. Maynard, 49 Vt. 297; Cardwell v. McClelland, 3 Sneed (Tenn.) 150; Downing v. Dearborn, 77 Me. 457; Dowling v. Lawrence, 58 Wis. 282; Brown v. Gray, 6 Jones L. (N. C.) 103, 72 Am. Dec. 563; Marsh v. Webber, 13 Minn. 109; Johnson v. Wallower, 18 Minn. 288; Patterson v. Kirkland, 34 Miss. 423.

Compare, however, Hill v. Balls, 2 Hurl. & N. 299; Paul v. Hadley, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 521; Beninger v. Corwin, 24 N. J. Law, 257.

In a North Carolina case in which an action of deceit was brought against the seller of an unsound slave, Pearson, C. J., stated the law as follows: "In the sale of a chattel, the rule of our law is caveat emptor, and if the thing be unsound, to entitle the purchaser to maintain an action he must prove either a warranty of soundness or a deceit. In regard to deceit, the distinction is, where the unsoundness is patent, that is, such as may be discovered by the exercise of ordinary diligence, mere silence on the part of the vendor is not sufficient to establish the deceit, although he knows of the unsoundness, because the thing speaks for itself, and it is the folly of the purchaser not to attend to it. So that in such a case he will not be heard to say he was deceived, unless the vendor made a false statement, or resorted to some artifice, in order to prevent an examination, or to hide the unsoundness, so as to make the examination of no avail. Where the unsoundness is latent, that is, such as could not be discovered by the exercise of ordinary diligence, mere silence on the part of the vendor is sufficient to establish the deceit, provided he knows of the unsoundness; for as the thing is not what it appears to be, and diligence does not enable the purchaser to discover its unsoundness, he is deceived unless the fact is disclosed; so that in such a case, without what the law considers laches on the part of the purchaser, the deceit is accomplished by the suppressio veri." Brown v. Gray, 6 Jones L. (N. C.) 103, 72 Am. Dec. 563.

5. Baglehale v. Walters, 3 Camp. 154; Ward v. Hobbs, 3 Q. B. Div. 150, 4 App. Cas. 13; West v. Anderson, 9 Conn. 107, 21 Am. Dec. 737; Whitney v. Boardman, 118 Mass. 242.

6. Grigsby v. Stapleton, 94 Mo. 423, Chase's Cas. 258; Jeffrey v. Bigelow, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 518, 28 Am. Dec. 476; Badger v. Nicholls, 28 Law T. (N. S.) 441; Mullett v. Mason, L. R. 1 C. P. 559. Compare Ward v. Hobbs, 3 Q. B. Div. 150, 4 App. Cas. 13.

7. Paddock v. Strobridge, 29 Vt. 470.

8. Hadley v. Clinton County Importing Co., 13 Ohio St. 502, 82 Am. Dec. 454.

9. Van Bracklin v. Fonda, 12 Johns. (N.

the fact that poison has been spilled upon it;[10] to the sale of commercial paper without disclosing the fact that the maker has failed and is insolvent,[11] and in many other cases.

The general rule that failure of a party to a sale or other contract to disclose facts known to him and not known to the other party does not amount to fraud does not apply where the party, instead of merely remaining silent, says or does anything to mislead the other party, or to induce him to forego making inquiry or examination which would result in discovery of the facts, or to prevent an inquiry or examination which would result in such discovery.[12] Nor does the general rule apply where a partial statement of facts is made, which, although no fact stated is untrue in itself, is rendered false or misleading as a whole by the intentional suppression or nondisclosure of other facts. This is expressed in the maxim, suppressio veri, suggestio falsi,— "a suppression of the truth may amount to a suggestion of falsehood."[13] "Mere silence is quite different from concealment. Aliud est tacere, aliud celare,—a suppression of the truth may amount to a suggestion of falsehood. And if, with intent to deceive, either party to a contract of sale conceals or suppresses a material fact which he is in good faith bound to disclose, this is evidence of, and equivalent to a false representation, because the concealment or suppression is, in effect, a representation that what is disclosed is the whole truth. The gist of the action is fraudulently producing a false impression upon the mind of the other party, and if this result is accomplished, it is unimportant whether the means of accomplishing it are words or acts of the defendant, or his

Y.) 468, 7 Am. Dec. 339; Moses v. Mead, 1 Denio (N. Y.) 378, 43 Am. Dec. 676; Hoe v. Sanborn, 21 N. Y. 552, 78 Am. Dec. 163; Emerson v. Brigham, 10 Mass. 197, 6 Am. Dec. 109; French v. Vining, 102 Mass. 132, 3 Am. Rep. 440.

10. French v. Vining, 102 Mass. 132, 3 Am. Rep. 440.

11. Brown v. Montgomery, 20 N. Y. 287, 75 Am. Dec. 404; Gordon v. Irvine, 105 Ga. 144.

12. Udell v. Atherton, 7 Hurl. & N. 172; Laidlaw v. Organ, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 178; Stewart v. Wyoming Cattle Ranche Co., 128 U. S. 383, Erwin's Cas. 430; Henderson v. Henshall (C. C. A.) 54 Fed. 320; Hadley v. Clinton Importing Co., 13 Ohio St. 502, 82 Am. Dec. 454; Chisolm v. Gadsden, 1 Strobh. L. (S. C.) 220, 47 Am. Dec. 550; Bowman v. Bates, 2 Bibb (Ky.) 47, 4 Am. Dec. 677; Croyle v. Moses, 90 Pa. 250, 35 Am. Rep. 654; Matthews v. Bliss, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 48; Nysewander v. Lowman, 124 Ind. 584; Firestone v. Werner, 1 Ind. App. 293; Kenner v. Harding, 85 Ill. 264, 28 Am. Rep. 615.

The purchaser of land is guilty of fraud where, instead of merely remaining silent as to the existence of a mine or other facts which he has discovered, he prevents the agent of the vendor from giving information thereof, and resorts to artifice to conceal the facts from the vendor—Bowman v. Bates, 2 Bibb (Ky.) 47, 4 Am. Dec. 677.

Directing an investigation at a place where it is known that information cannot be obtained—Chisolm v. Gadsden, 1 Strobh. L. (S. C.) 220, 47 Am. Dec. 550.

13. Stewart v. Wyoming Cattle Ranche Co., 128 U. S. 383, Erwin's Cas. 430. See, also, Corbett v. Brown, 8 Bing. 33; Central Ry. Co. v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99; Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377; Rhode v. Alley, 27 Tex. 443; Mitchell v. McDougall, 62 Ill. 501; Howard v. Gould, 28 Vt. 523, 67 Am. Dec. 728; Mallory v. Leach, 35 Vt. 156, 82 Am. Dec. 625; Bowman v. Bates, 2 Bibb (Ky.) 47, 4 Am. Dec. 677; Atwood v. Chapman, 68 Me. 38, 28 Am. Rep. 5; George v. Johnson, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 36, 44 Am. Dec. 288; Newell v. Randall, 32 Minn. 171, 50 Am. Rep. 562; Kidney v. Stoddard, 7 Metc. (Mass.) 252; Burns v. Dockray, 156 Mass. 135; Coles v. Kennedy, 81 Iowa, 360, 25 Am. St. Rep. 503; Lomerson v. Johnston, 47 N. J. Eq. 312; Busch v. Wilcox, 82 Mich. 315.

Where a person desiring credit, being asked "how he stood," correctly stated his means, but was silent as to the fact that he owed two-thirds as much as his capital, it was held that there was a false and fraudulent representation—Newell v. Randall, 32 Minn. 171, 50 Am. Rep. 562. And see Browning v. National Capital Bank, 13 App. D. C. 1.

Representation by the vendor of land which had been set off to him on a judgment execution, that his title was good, without disclosing the fact that a petition to reverse the judgment was pending—Atwood v. Chapman, 68 Me. 38, 28 Am. Rep. 5.

Statement that the title of land is good, without disclosing the insanity of a person affecting the title—Burns v. Dockray, 156 Mass. 135.

Representation by the seller that a horse has the distemper, without disclosing the fact, known to him, that it also has the glanders—George v. Johnson, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 36, 44 Am. Dec. 288; Howard v. Gould, 28 Vt. 523, 67 Am. Dec. 728.

Representation by the purchaser of stock in a corporation from one who confides in his knowledge, that a large assessment is about to be levied upon the stock, without disclosing other facts enhancing the value of the stock—Mallory v. Leach, 35 Vt. 156, 82 Am. Dec. 625.

concealment or suppression of material facts not equally within the knowledge or reach of the plaintiff."[14]

If a purchaser of real or personal property makes inquiry of the seller as to facts within the seller's knowledge, the seller must either decline to give any answer and thus let the purchaser know that he must rely on his own examination and judgment and take all risks, or else he must disclose the truth and the whole truth. If he expresses or intimates doubt or ignorance as to facts which he knows, or if he discloses a part of the truth only and suppresses the rest, and the purchaser is thereby deceived, it is deceit.[15]

As we shall hereafter see, knowledge that a representation is false and an intent to deceive, or what is equivalent thereto, is necessary to support an action of deceit, and this applies where a failure to disclose facts is relied upon as constituting fraud. Therefore, one is not liable for failure to disclose facts in the absence of knowledge and an intent to deceive.[16]

§ 6. The representation must be false.—In order that a representation may constitute fraud it must be in fact false, and the plaintiff must prove this. If it is in fact true it cannot be fraudulent, although it may have been made in the belief that it was false and with intent to deceive.[17] An action will lie, however, for a representation which is literally true, if it is calculated and intended to convey a false impression, and does convey such an impression.[18] "In order to establish a case of false representation, it is not necessary that something which is false should have been stated as if it were true. If the presentation of that which is true creates an impression which is false, it is, as to him who seeing the misapprehension seeks to profit by it, a case of false representation."[19] On the other hand, if a statement operates as an estoppel so as to make it true in law it is not false.[20] As we have seen, a statement which is literally true as far as it goes is rendered false and misleading by the suppression of other facts.[21]

Representations subsequently discovered to be untrue.—It has been held that where a false representation is innocently made in the belief that it is true, but the person making it discovers that it is false before it is acted upon by the person to whom it was made, and suffers the latter to continue in error and act upon the representation, a court of equity will treat the representation as fraudulent from the time the mistake is discovered, for the purpose of setting aside a deed.[22] There seems to be no good reason why the same rule should not apply in an action of deceit.[23]

§ 7. Knowledge that representation is false, and intent to deceive. A. Knowledge in general.—Relief is frequently granted in equity, and under some circum-

14. Stewart v. Wyoming Cattle Ranche Co., 128 U. S. 383, Erwin's Cas. 430.

15. Baker v. Seahorn, 1 Swan (Tenn.) 54, 55 Am. Dec. 724; Howard v. Gould, 28 Vt. 523, 67 Am. Dec. 728; James v. Crosthwait, 97 Ga. 673.

16. Kirtley's Adm'x v. Shinkle, 24 Ky. L. R. 608, 69 S. W. 723. And see post, § 7.

17. Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 Ch. Div. 301; Richardson v. Smith, 1 Camp. 277; Potts v. Chapin, 133 Mass. 276; Allison v. Jack, 76 Iowa, 205; Lunn v. Shermer, 93 N. C. 164; Grosjean v. Galloway, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 380; Hart v. Waldo (Ga.) 43 S. E. 998.

Evidence held insufficient to show that an agreement alleged to have been concealed from plaintiff was in existence at the time—Willock v. Dilworth, 204 Pa. 492.

18. Central Ry. Co. v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99; Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss [1896] App. Cas. 273; Stewart v. Wyoming Ranche Co., 128 U. S. 383, Erwin's Cas. 430; Howard v. Gould, 28 Vt. 523, 67 Am. Dec. 523; Busch v. Wilcox, 82 Mich. 315.

19. Lomerson v. Johnston, 47 N. J. Eq. 312, 24 Am. St. Rep. 410.

20. Hart v. Waldo (Ga.) 43 S. E. 998.

21. Ante, § 5.

22. Reynell v. Sprye, 1 De Gex, M. & G. 660, 709. The same is true of a representation which, although true when made, ceases to be true by the happening of some event within the knowledge of the party making it—Traill v. Baring, 4 De Gex, J. & S. 318.

In a late Michigan case it was held that if, after a merchant has made a statement to a commercial agency as to his financial condition, there is a change for the worse therein, it is his duty to notify the agency—Mooney v. Davis, 75 Mich. 188, 13 Am. St. Rep. 425. Morse, J., dissented.

23. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 366.

stances it has been held that contracts may be avoided at law, because of false representations made in the honest belief that they were true and without any intent to deceive,[24] and an action ex contractu to recover damages for breach of a warranty, express or implied, may be maintained without alleging or proving that the defendant knew that the warranty was false.[25] But it is very different where a false representation is treated as a tort, and made the ground of an action of deceit. In such a case the law requires that there shall have been some degree of moral wrong, and something more than mere negligence. There must have been actual fraud. It is sometimes said that an action of deceit will not lie for a false representation unless it was made by the defendant with knowledge that it was false and with intent to deceive, but, as we shall hereafter see,[26] this is not strictly true. It is true, however, that the representation must have been made, either with actual knowledge that it was false, or under circumstances which are equivalent to knowledge in the contemplation of law. In this sense, knowledge of the falsity of the representation is essential, and must be both alleged and proved.[27] This is true, not only where a person is induced to enter into a contract with another by the false representations of a third person who is not interested in the transaction, as in the case of false representations as to the credit of another, but also where one of the parties to a contract is deceived by the false representations of the other party.[28]

24. Davis v. Heard, 44 Miss. 50; Snyder v. Findley, 1 N. J. Law, 78, 1 Am. Dec. 193; East v. Matheny, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 192, 10 Am. Dec. 721; Tyson v. Passmore, 2 Pa. 122, 44 Am. Dec. 181; Woodruff v. Garner, 27 Ind. 4, 89 Am. Dec. 477. And see Hammon, Cont. § 106.

25. As to the distinction between warranty and deceit in this respect, see Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 372; Mahurin v. Harding, 28 N. H. 128, 59 Am. Dec. 401; Kingsbury v. Taylor, 29 Me. 508, 50 Am. Dec. 607; Erie City Iron Works v. Barber, 106 Pa. 125, 51 Am. Rep. 508; Bartholomew v. Bushnell, 20 Conn. 271, 52 Am. Dec. 338.

26. See infra, this section.

27. Taylor v. Ashton, 11 Mees. & W. 401; Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, Chase's Cas. 249; Emerson v. Brigham, 10 Mass. 197, 6 Am. Dec. 109; Tryon v. Whitmarsh, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 1, 35 Am. Dec. 339; Cole v. Cassidy, 138 Mass. 437, 52 Am. Rep. 284; Nash v. Minnesota Title Ins. & Trust Co., 163 Mass. 574, 47 Am. St. Rep. 489; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651; Meyer v. Amidon, 45 N. Y. 169; Salisbury v. Howe, 87 N. Y. 128; Unckles v. Hentz, 19 App. Div. (N. Y.) 165; Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. Law, 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432, Erwin's Cas. 405; Boddy v. Henry, 113 Iowa, 462; Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio, 659, 45 Am. Dec. 596; Lamm v. Port Deposit Homestead Ass'n, 49 Md. 233, 33 Am. Rep. 246; Erie City Iron Works v. Barber, 106 Pa. 125, 51 Am. Rep. 508; Hexter v. Bast, 125 Pa. 52, 11 Am. St. Rep. 874; Griswold v. Gebbie, 126 Pa. 353, 12 Am. St. Rep. 878; Mahurin v. Harding, 28 N. H. 128, 59 Am. Dec. 401; Bartholomew v. Bushnell, 20 Conn. 271, 52 Am. Dec. 338; Elwell v. Russell, 71 Conn. 462; Munro v. Gairdner, 3 Brev. (S. C.) 31, 5 Am. Dec. 531; Cooley v. King, 113 Ga. 1163; Hiner v. Richter, 51 Ill. 299; Merwin v. Arbuckle, 81 Ill. 501; Holdom v. Ayer, 110 Ill. 448; Hanger v. Evins, 38 Ark. 334; Anderson v. McPike, 86 Mo. 293; Dunn v. White, 63 Mo. 181; Hutchinson v. Gorman (Ark.) 73 S. W. 793; Live Stock Remedy Co. v. White, 90 Mo. App. 498; Grosjean v. Galloway, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 380; Warfield v. Clark, 118 Iowa, 69; Summers v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 90 Mo. App. 691. But see Hitchcock v. Gothenburg Water Power Co. (Neb.) 95 N. W. 638.

And this applies equally to concealment of facts—Kirtley's Adm'x v. Shinkle, 24 Ky. L. Rep. 608, 69 S. W. 723.

28. The rule has been applied to the following representations, among others: False representations as to the solvency or credit of another—Haycraft v. Creasy, 2 East, 92; Tryon v. Whitmarsh, 1 Metc. (Mass.) 1, 35 Am. Dec. 339; Young v. Covell, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 19, 5 Am. Dec. 316; Marsh v. Falker, 40 N. Y. 562; Lord v. Colley, 6 N. H. 99, 25 Am. Dec. 445; Fooks v. Waples, 1 Harr. (Del.) 131, 25 Am. Dec. 64; Einstein v. Marshall, 58 Ala. 153, 29 Am. Rep. 729; Tift v. Harden, 22 Ga. 623, 68 Am. Dec. 512.

Representations by directors of a corporation or other persons, inducing persons to subscribe for or purchase its stock or bonds —Taylor v. Ashton, 11 Mees. & W. 401; Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, Chase's Cas. 249; Cole v. Cassidy, 138 Mass. 437, 52 Am. Rep. 284; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651; Wakeman v. Dalley, 51 N. Y. 27, 10 Am. Rep. 551; Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 319; Utley v. Hill, 155 Mo. 232, 78 Am. St. Rep. 569. Compare other cases cited in 3 Clark & M. Corp. p. 2265.

Representation by a third person as to title or value of mortgaged property inducing others to purchase bonds of a corporation secured by the mortgage—Nash v. Minnesota Title Ins. & Trust Co., 163 Mass. 574, 47 Am. St. Rep. 489; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651.

Representations by the directors of a bank or others as to its condition, inducing persons to make or leave deposits—Cole v. Cassidy, 138 Mass. 437, 52 Am. Rep. 284; Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. Law, 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432, Erwin's Cas. 405.

(§ 7) B. Negligence. Unreasonable belief.—In England, after some difference of opinion among the judges, it has been settled by a decision of the House of Lords.[29] that an action of deceit will not lie for a false representation, if it was made by the defendant in the honest belief that it was true, even though his belief may not have been founded on such grounds as would produce such belief in the mind of a prudent and competent man. In other words, the negligence of the defendant in coming to an honest belief, or the unreasonableness of such belief, is no ground for holding him liable, as a matter of law, in an action of deceit, although it is evidence to be considered in determining, as a fact, whether he entertained such a belief.[30]

In this country some of the courts have followed the decision of the House of Lords, or adopted the same doctrine on the authority of earlier cases.[31] Other courts, however, have considered that the moral wrong is sufficient to support an action of deceit where a person makes, as of his own knowledge, a false representation of a fact susceptible of actual knowledge, when he does not know it to be true, although he may believe it to be true, and may have no intent to deceive. Until recently this was understood to be the settled doctrine in Massachusetts, not only with respect to representations made by one of the parties to a contract inducing the other to enter into it, but also with respect to representations by third persons. "It is well settled in this Commonwealth," said the Massachusetts court, "that the charge of fraudulent intent, in an action for deceit, may be maintained by proof of a statement made, as of the party's own knowledge, which is false, provided the thing stated is not merely a matter of opinion, estimate, or judgment, but is susceptible of actual knowledge; and in such case it is not necessary to make any further proof of an actual intent to deceive. The fraud consists in stating that the party knows the thing to exist when he does not know it to exist; and if he does not know it to exist, he must ordinarily be deemed to know that he does not. Forgetfulness of its existence after a former knowledge, or a mere belief of its existence, will not warrant or excuse a statement of actual knowledge."[32] There are decisions to substantially the same effect in some of the other states.[33] In a later Massachusetts case, however, this Representations by the seller of personal property, or by his agent, or by a third person, as to the title, condition, soundness, etc. —Irwin v. Sherril, Tayl. (N. C.) 1, 1 Am. Dec. 574; Erie City Iron Works v. Barber, 106 Pa. 125, 51 Am. Rep. 508; Staines v. Shore, 16 Pa. 200, 55 Am. Dec. 492; Emerson v. Brigham, 10 Mass. 197, 6 Am. Dec. 109; French v. Vining, 102 Mass. 132, 3 Am. Rep. 440; Bartholomew v. Bushnell, 20 Conn. 271, 52 Am. Dec. 338; Mahurin v. Harding, 28 N. H. 128, 59 Am. Dec. 401; Campbell v. Hillman, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 508, 61 Am. Dec. 195; Kingsbury v. Taylor, 29 Me. 508, 50 Am. Dec. 607; Lewark v. Carter, 117 Ind. 206, 10 Am. St. Rep. 40.

Representations by the vendor of real property, or his agent, or a third person, as to the title, value, condition, number of acres, etc.—Williams v. McFadden, 23 Fla. 143, 11 Am. St. Rep. 345; Griswold v. Gebbie, 126 Pa. 353, 12 Am. St. Rep. 878.

29. Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, Chase's Cas. 249.

30. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 362, 363; Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, Chase's Cas. 249; Lord Cranworth in Western Bank v. Addie, L. R. 1 Sc. 145, 168; Taylor v. Ashton, 11 Mees. & W. 401; Glasier v. Rolls, 42 Ch. Div. 436; Angus v. Clifford [1891] 2 Ch. 449; Low v. Bouverie [1891] 3 Ch. 82; Le Lievre v. Gould [1893] 1 Q. B. 491.

31. Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. Law, 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432, Erwin's Cas. 405; Townsend v. Felthousen, 156 N. Y. 618; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651; Griswold v. Gebbie, 126 Pa. 353, 12 Am. St. Rep. 878; Boddy v. Henry, 113 Iowa, 462; Allison v. Jack, 76 Iowa, 205; Pieratt v. Young, 20 Ky. L. R. 1815, 49 S. W. 964.

32. Chatham Furnace Co. v. Moffatt, 147 Mass. 403, 9 Am. St. Rep. 727, Burdick's Cas. 237, Erwin's Cas. 437; Litchfield v. Hutchinson, 117 Mass. 195, Chase's Cas. 257.

33. Munroe v. Pritchett, 16 Ala. 785, 50 Am. Dec. 203; Foster v. Kennedy's Adm'r, 38 Ala. 359, 81 Am. Dec. 56; Cabot v. Christie, 42 Vt. 121, 1 Am. Rep. 313; Braley v. Powers, 92 Me. 203; Bird v. Kleiner, 41 Wis. 134; Davis v. Nuzum, 72 Wis. 439; Krause v. Busacker, 105 Wis. 350; West v. Wright, 98 Ind. 335; Kirkpatrick v. Reeves, 121 Ind. 280; Mendenhall v. Stewart, 18 Ind. App. 262; Bullitt v. Farrar, 42 Minn. 8, 18 Am. St. Rep. 485; Hedin v. Minneapolis Med. & Surg. Inst., 62 Minn. 146, 54 Am. St. Rep. 628; Holcomb v. Noble, 69 Mich. 396; Totten v. Burhans, 91 Mich. 495. See, also, Lahay v. City Nat. Bank, 15 Colo. 339, 25 Pac. 704, 22 Am. St. Rep. 407.

doctrine has in effect been limited to representations made by one of the parties to a contract to induce the other party to enter into it, and it has been held that where one merely answers inquiries of a stranger or volunteers information in a matter which does not concern him, although he may know that his statements will be acted upon by the person or persons to whom they are made, he is guilty of no breach of duty if he makes the statements honestly to the best of his ability, and cannot be held liable in an action of deceit because of ignorance or stupidity.[34]

In this country some of the courts hold that a person may be in such a relation to the subject-matter of a representation and to the person or persons to whom it is made, as to impose upon him a duty to know whether the representation is true, and that in such a case an action of deceit may be maintained against him if the representation was false, and he could have known that it was so, although he may have believed it to be true and may have had no fraudulent intent. This doctrine has been applied, for example, to false statements issued by directors of banks, and relied upon by depositors, or purchasers of stock, on the ground that their relation to the bank and to the public is such as to impose a duty to know the truth of statements as to the condition of the bank which they may publish.[35] Other courts, however, do not recognize this doctrine, but require that the representations shall be made fraudulently, or at least recklessly, in order that an action of deceit may be maintained.[36] This is the better view. If the directors of a bank, or others owing a duty to ascertain the truth of representations which they make to the public, violate this duty by making representations in good faith but without having used due care to ascertain their truth, an action against them by persons who are damaged by relying on the representations may and should be based on the ground of negligence, and not on the ground of deceit.[37]

(§ 7) C. Reckless ignorance.—Not only in this country, but in England as well, reckless ignorance of one who makes a false statement of fact may be equivalent to knowledge that it is false. "If a man states as fact what he does not believe to be fact, he speaks at his peril; and this whether he knows the contrary to be true or has no knowledge of the matter at all, for the pretence of having certain information which he has not is itself a deceit,"[38]—and in such a case he is just as much liable in an action of deceit as if he knew that his statement was false.[39] "If persons take upon themselves," said Lord Cairns in a leading English case, "to make assertions as to which they are ignorant whether they are true or untrue, they must, in a civil point of view, be held as responsible as if they had asserted

34. Nash v. Minnesota Title Ins. & Trust Co., 163 Mass. 574, 47 Am. St. Rep. 489.

35. Prewitt v. Trimble, 92 Ky. 176; Seale v. Baker, 70 Tex. 283, 8 Am. St. Rep. 592; Tate v. Bates, 118 N. C. 287, 54 Am. St. Rep. 719; Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 54 Am. St. Rep. 725; Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 65 Am. St. Rep. 699.

36. Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, Chase's Cas. 249; Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. Law, 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432, Erwin's Cas. 405; Cole v. Cassidy, 138 Mass. 437, 52 Am. Rep. 284; Wakeman v. Dalley, 51 N. Y. 27, 10 Am. Rep. 551; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651; Utley v. Hill, 155 Mo. 232, 78 Am. St. Rep. 569.

37. See Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81; Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 65 Am. St. Rep. 699.

38. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 367.

39. Taylor v. Ashton, 11 Mees. & W. 401; Evans v. Edmonds, 13 C. B. 777; Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, Chase's Cas. 249; Angus v. Clifford [1891] 2 Ch. 449; Cooper v. Schlesinger, 111 U. S. 148; Bennett v. Judson, 21 N. Y. 238; Hadcock v. Osmer, 153 N. Y. 604, Erwin's Cas. 440; Kountze v. Kennedy, 147 N. Y. 124, 49 Am. St. Rep. 651; Frank v. Bradley & C. Co., 42 App. Div. (N. Y.) 178; Lahay v. City Nat. Bank, 15 Colo. 339, 25 Pac. 704, 22 Am. St. Rep. 407; Aetna Ins. Co. v. Reed, 33 Ohio St. 283; Hedin v. Minneapolis Med. & Surg. Inst., 62 Minn. 146, 54 Am. St. Rep. 628; Griswold v. Gebbie, 126 Pa. 353, 12 Am. St. Rep. 878; Scholfield Gear & Pulley Co. v. Scholfield, 71 Conn. 1; Dunn v. White, 63 Mo. 181; Dulaney v. Rogers, 64 Mo. 201; Caldwell v. Henry, 76 Mo. 254; Chase v. Rusk, 90 Mo. App. 25; Riley v. Bell (Iowa) 95 N. W. 170; Johnson v. Cate, 75 Vt. 100.

Deceit will lie on a false warranty though the maker did not know of its falsity—Piche v. Robbins, 24 R. I. 325.

Evidence of defendant's knowledge that horses were unsound held insufficient—Postal v. Cohn, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 27.

that which they knew to be untrue."[40] The ignorance referred to is conscious ignorance,—the state of mind of a man who asserts his belief in a fact "when he is conscious that he knows not whether it be true or false, and when he has therefore no such belief."[41]

(§ 7) D. Intention to deceive.—In order that an action of deceit may be maintained for false representation, the representation must have been made with intent to deceive, and it must therefore have been made with intent that it should be acted upon by the person to whom it was made.[43] But it is not always necessary to prove by direct evidence that there was such an intent. An intent to deceive is to be implied if a false representation was made with knowledge of its falsity or recklessly, and if the circumstances were such that it would naturally be relied upon and have the effect of deceiving, for persons are presumed to intend the natural and probable consequence of their voluntary acts.[44]

If a representation is made with knowledge that it is false, or recklessly, and with intent that it shall be acted upon, it is no defense, in an action of deceit, that the defendant did not intend to injure the plaintiff or to obtain any gain for himself,—or, in other words, it is no defense that he did not make the representation from any bad motive.[45] "It is a fraud in law if a party makes representations which he knows to be false, and injury ensues, although the motives from which the representations proceeded may not have been bad."[46]

(§ 7) E. Failure to disclose facts.—The rule that a fraudulent intent is necessary to support an action of deceit applies where a failure to disclose facts[47] is relied upon as constituting the deceit, as well as in the case of false representations of fact. An action on an implied warranty may be maintained without proof of fraud, but an action of deceit cannot be maintained because of a failure to disclose facts, unless it is alleged and proved that the defendant knew the facts and intended to deceive.[48] An intent to deceive may be implied, however, if it appears that he knew

40. Reese River Min. Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64, 79.

41. Lord Herschell, in Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, 359, Chase's Cas. 249, 254.

43. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 355, 372; Munro v. Gairdner, 3 Brev. (S. C.) 31, 5 Am. Dec. 531; Mahurin v. Harding, 28 N. H. 128, 59 Am. Dec. 401; Griswold v. Sabin, 51 N. H. 167, 12 Am. Rep. 76; Humphrey v. Merriam, 32 Minn. 197; Young v. Covell, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 19, 5 Am. Dec. 316; Addington v. Allen, 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 374; Zabriskie v. Smith, 13 N. Y. 322, 64 Am. Dec. 551; Tucker v. White, 125 Mass. 344; Thorp v. Smith, 18 Wash. 277, 51 Pac. 381; Terrell v. Bennet, 18 Ga. 404; Sims v. Eiland, 57 Miss. 83; Holdom v. Ayer, 110 Ill. 448; Lebby v. Ahrens, 26 S. C. 275; Clement, Bane & Co. v. Swanson, 110 Iowa, 106. And see post, § 8.

44. Foster v. Charles, 6 Bing. 396; Boyd's Ex'rs v. Browne, 6 Pa. 310, Burdick's Cas. 242; Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. Law, 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432, Erwin's Cas. 405; Collins v. Denison, 12 Metc. (Mass.) 549; Whiting v. Price, 169 Mass. 576, 61 Am. St. Rep. 307; Munro v. Gairdner, 3 Brev. (S. C.) 31, 5 Am. Dec. 531; Humphrey v. Merriam, 32 Minn. 197; Claflin v. Commonwealth Ins. Co., 110 U. S. 81; Judd v. Weber, 55 Conn. 267; Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572; Hudnut v. Gardner, 59 Mich. 341.

45. Foster v. Charles, 7 Bing. 105; Corbett v. Brown, 8 Bing. 33; Polhill v. Walter, 3 Barn. & Ad. 114; Langridge v. Levy, 2 Mees. & W. 519, 4 Mees. & W. 337; Boyd's Ex'rs v. Browne, 6 Pa. 310, Burdick's Cas. 242; French v. Vining, 102 Mass. 132, 3 Am. Rep. 440; Whiting v. Price, 169 Mass. 576, 61 Am. St. Rep. 307; Hedin v. Minneapolis Med. & Surg. Inst., 62 Minn. 146, 54 Am. St. Rep. 628.

46. Tindal, C. J., in Foster v. Charles, 7 Bing. 105.

"Willfully to tell a falsehood, intending that another shall act upon it as if it were the truth, may well be termed fraudulent, whatever the motive which induces it, though it be neither gain to the person making the assertion nor injury to the person to whom it is made"—Lord Herschell, in Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, Chase's Cas. 249.

"The scienter as well as the falsehood being proved, proof of the fraudulent intent is regarded as conclusive. Evidence that the defendant intended no fraud will not be received and the jury will be instructed to find for the plaintiff, though they should be of opinion that the defendant was not instigated by a corrupt motive of gain for himself, or by a malicious motive of injury to the plaintiff"—Depue, J., in Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. Law, 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432.

47. Ante, § 5.

48. Emerson v. Brigham, 10 Mass. 197, 6 Am. Dec. 109; Wilde v. Gibson, 1 H. L. Cas. 605; Chisolm v. Gadsden, 1 Strobh. L. (S. C.) 220, 47 Am. Dec. 550; Hanson v. Edgerly, 29 N. H. 343; Poag v. Charlotte Oil & Fert. Co., 61 S. C. 190; Cowan v. Sapp, 81 Ala. 525; Dowling v. Lawrence, 58 Wis. 282; Sheldon v. Davidson, 85 Wis. 138; Brooke v. Cole, 108 Ga. 251.

the facts, and the circumstances were such that he was under a duty to disclose them.[49]

§ 8. The representation must be made to the plaintiff. A. In general.—A false representation, to sustain an action of deceit, must not only have been made with intent to deceive, but it must have been made, at least in contemplation of the law, with intent to deceive the plaintiff, and therefore it must have been made with the intention that he should act upon it.[50] In other words, if a false and fraudulent representation is made to one person, with intent that he only shall act upon it, and a third person acts upon it, the latter cannot maintain an action.[51]

It is not necessary, however, that the representation shall have been made directly to the plaintiff. It is enough if it was made with intent that it should be communicated to and acted upon by him.[52] "Every man must be held liable for the consequences of a false representation made by him to another upon which a third person acts, and so acting is injured or damnified, provided it appear that such false representation was made with the intent that it should be acted upon by such third person in the manner that occasions the injury or loss;"[53] and provided the injury is the immediate or proximate, and not the remote consequence of the representation.[54] Thus where a dealer sold a gun to a man, knowing that it was to be used by the purchaser and his sons, and falsely represented that it was safe and sound, he was held liable in an action of deceit brought by a son of the purchaser, who was injured by the bursting of the gun.[55]

49. See the cases above cited. And see ante, § 5, and cases there cited.

50. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377 (as to which see infra, note 52); Wells v. Cook, 16 Ohio St. 67, 88 Am. Dec. 436; Buschman v. Codd, 52 Md. 202; Munro v. Gairdner, 3 Brev. (S. C.) 31, 5 Am. Dec. 531; Henry v. Dennis, 95 Me. 24, 85 Am. St. Rep. 365; Carter v. Harden, 78 Me. 528; Butterfield v. Barber, 20 R. I. 99; Hunnewell v. Duxbury, 154 Mass. 286; Hindman v. First Nat. Bank, 86 Fed. 1013.

51. One who has been damaged by acting upon false and fraudulent representations made to him as the agent of another, but not intended to be acted upon by him, cannot maintain an action of deceit against the person making the representations—Wells v. Cook, 16 Ohio St. 67, 88 Am. Dec. 436.

Where the defendant had made false representations to the plaintiff to be communicated to the defendant's creditor to obtain extension of time on a claim which was subsequently transferred to the plaintiff, but he did not know that a note given in payment of the claim was to be taken by the plaintiff, it was held that the defendant was not liable to the plaintiff in an action of deceit, as the false representations were not made with intent that they should be acted upon by him—Butterfield v. Barber, 20 R. I. 99.

The seller of a horse, who has falsely represented it to be gentle, is not liable in an action of deceit brought by the wife of the purchaser, for personal injury sustained by her in driving the horse, where he did not know the horse was intended for her use—Carter v. Hardin, 78 Me. 528.

52. Langridge v. Levy, 2 Mees. & W. 519, 4 Mees. & W. 338; Chubbuck v. Cleveland, 37 Minn. 466, 5 Am. St. Rep. 864; Henry v. Dennis, 95 Me. 24, 85 Am. St. Rep. 365; Eaton v. Avery, 83 N. Y. 31, 38 Am. Rep. 389, Burdick's Cas. 245; Waterbury v. Andrews, 67 Mich. 281; Stoney Creek Woolen Co. v. Smalley, 111 Mich. 321; Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255; Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio, 659, 45 Am. Dec. 596; Nash v. Minnesota Title Ins. & Trust Co., 159 Mass. 437; James v. Crosthwait, 97 Ga. 673, and cases cited in the notes following.

See the extensive note on this question in 85 Am. St. Rep. 368, et seq.

One is liable to a partnership for a false representation made to one of the partners, although not made to him as such, if he relying thereon, induces the firm to act to its damage—Henry v. Dennis, 95 Me. 24, 85 Am. St. Rep. 365.

Where a person made false representation to others to induce them to form a corporation and to have the corporation enter into a contract with him when organized, which was done, it was held that he was liable to the corporation in an action of deceit, although he had no direct communication with it prior to the contract—Scholfield Gear & Pulley Co. v. Scholfield, 71 Conn. 1.

53. Lord Hatherly, in Barry v. Crosky, 2 Johns. & H. 1, 23.

54. Barry v. Crosky, 2 Johns. & H. 1, 23. See, also, post, § 12.

55. Langridge v. Levy, 2 Mees. & W. 519, 4 Mees. & W. 338.

On the same principle, where a husband purchases a preparation for washing the hair, and the seller, knowing that it is intended for such use by the purchaser's wife, falsely and fraudulently represents that it is fit for the purpose, the wife may maintain an action against the seller for injuries sustained in using it—George v. Skivington, L. R. 5 Exch. 1.

And if a druggist fraudulently labels a noxious preparation as a harmless medicine, and sells it as such to dealers, he will be liable to any one who purchases it from a dealer and is injured by using it. The action would be for deceit or negligence according

(§ 8) B. Representations to a class or to the public generally.—A representation may be circulated or published with the intent that it shall be acted upon by a certain class of persons, or by any one of the public to whose hands or notice it may come. In such a case it is deemed to be made to any person, or to any person of the particular class, as the case may be, who may act upon it, and if the representation is fraudulent, and he is damaged, he may maintain an action of deceit.[56] Thus a person who accepts a bill for another, knowing that he has no authority, will be liable in an action of deceit to anyone who may become the holder of the bill in reliance on the acceptance.[57] And where a merchant, for the purpose of obtaining credit, makes a false and fraudulent statement of his financial condition to a commercial agency, he will be liable to customers of the latter who are defrauded by extending credit to him in reliance thereon.[58] A railroad company issuing a timetable thereby represents, unless it is otherwise stated, to any persons meaning to travel by its trains, that it will use reasonable diligence to run trains as therein specified, and if a train which has been taken off is announced as still running, there is a false representation, for which any person who has sustained loss by relying on the representation may sustain an action of deceit.[59]

A prospectus or other statement issued by the directors or promoters of a corporation for the purpose of inducing persons to subscribe for or purchase its stock or bonds, and containing representations which they know to be false, will render them liable to any person who subscribes or purchases in reliance on the representations.[60] And a statement issued by the directors of a bank, containing statements as to its financial condition or other material facts, known by them to be false, will render them, or the bank, or both, liable to any person who is thereby induced to make deposits, or not to withdraw deposits, and loses the same by reason of the bank's insolvency.[61] The same is true of a statement issued by the of-

to the circumstances—Thomas v. Winchester, 6 N. Y. 397, 57 Am. Dec. 455, Chase's Cas. 65, Bigelow's Cas. 567. And see Wellington v. Downer Kerosene Oil Co., 104 Mass. 64.

56. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 373; Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 337; Bartholomew v. Bentley, 15 Ohio, 659, 45 Am. Dec. 596; Hadcock v. Osmer, 153 N. Y. 604, Erwin's Cas. 440; Rohrschneider v. Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co., 76 N. Y. 216, 32 Am. Rep. 290; Eaton v. Avery, 83 N. Y. 31, 38 Am. Rep. 389, Burdick's Cas. 245; Hindman v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 98 Fed. 562; Stoney Creek Woolen Co. v. Smalley, 111 Mich. 321, and other cases cited in the notes following. And see the valuable note in 85 Am. St. Rep. 368 et seq.

General letter of recommendation—Hadcock v. Osmer, supra. False receipt given by vendor of land to enable the purchaser to deceive others to whom he may afterwards sell—Stoney Creek Woolen Co. v. Smalley, 111 Mich. 321.

57. Polhill v. Walter, 3 Barn. & Ad. 114.

58. Eaton v. Avery, 83 N. Y. 31, 38 Am. Rep. 389, Burdick's Cas. 245. See, also, Converse v. Sickles, 161 N. Y. 666; Bradley v. Seaboard Nat. Bank, 167 N. Y. 427; Gainesville Nat. Bank v. Bamberger, 77 Tex. 48, 19 Am. St. Rep. 738; Mooney v. Davis, 75 Mich. 188, 13 Am. St. Rep. 425; Genesee Sav. Bank v. Michigan Barge Co., 52 Mich. 164; Hinchman v. Weeks, 85 Mich. 535; Furry v. O'Connor, 1 Ind. App. 573.

59. Denton v. Great Northern R. Co., 5 El. & Bl. 860.

60. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377; Clarke v. Dickson, 6 C. B. (N. S.) 453; Bedford v. Bagshaw, 4 Hurl. & N. 538; Andrews v. Mockford [1896] 1 Q. B. 372; Tyler v. Savage, 143 U. S. 79; Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 325; Vreeland v. New Jersey Stone Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 188; Paddock v. Fletcher, 42 Vt. 389; Hubbard v. Weare, 79 Iowa, 678; Gerner v. Mosher, 58 Neb. 135.

It has been held that the office of a prospectus of a new company setting forth matters of fact concerning the position and prospects of the undertaking, while it is to be deemed to be addressed to all persons who apply for shares on the original allotment in the formation of the company, is exhausted when the shares have once been allotted, and that it is not to be deemed to be addressed to persons who may afterwards purchase shares from the original allottees or their transferees—Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377. But this does not apply where a prospectus is issued, not merely for the purpose of inviting persons to subscribe for shares, but also for the purpose of inducing them to purchase shares in the market—Andrews v. Mockford [1896] 1 Q. B. 372.

Directors of a national or state bank are liable for false and fraudulent representations as to its financial condition published by them, whereby persons are induced to purchase its stock—Gerner v. Mosher, 58 Neb. 135; Gerner v. Yates, 61 Neb. 100; Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 65 Am. St. Rep. 699.

61. Westervelt v. Demarest, 46 N. J. Law, 37, 50 Am. Rep. 400, Burdick's Cas. 236; Brady v. Evans (C. C. A.) 78 Fed. 558; Zinn v. Mendel, 9 W. Va. 580; Seale v. Baker, 70 Tex. 283, 8 Am. St. Rep. 592; Tate v. Bates, 118 N. C.

ficers of an insurance company by which persons are induced to take out insurance.[62] Officers of a corporation who knowingly sign and issue fictitious certificates of stock are liable in an action of deceit to purchasers or pledgees who are damaged by relying on the certificate as genuine.[63] And directors or other officers who fraudulently cause bonds of the corporation to be falsely indorsed "first mortgage bonds," and place them in the hands of agents for sale, or the corporation itself, will be liable to purchasers of the bonds in reliance on the indorsement.[64]

§ 9. Necessity for reliance on representations.—In order that a person may treat a false representation as fraudulent, for the purpose either of avoiding a contract or of an action of deceit, he must have been deceived by it, and one is not deceived by a representation unless he relies upon it and is thereby induced to act.[65] It is clear, therefore, that one cannot maintain an action of deceit for a false and fraudulent representation which he knew to be false or did not believe to be true,[66] or which had not been communicated to him at all.[67] Nor can he maintain such an action if he made and acted solely upon the result of an independent inquiry or investigation, and not at all upon the false representation.[68]

287, 54 Am. St. Rep. 719; Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 54 Am. St. Rep. 725; Stuart v. Bank of Staplehurst, 57 Neb. 569. And see Cole v. Cassidy, 138 Mass. 437, 52 Am. Rep. 284; Cowley v. Smyth, 46 N. J. Law, 380, 50 Am. Rep. 432, Erwin's Cas. 405; Delano v. Case, 121 Ill. 247, 2 Am. St. Rep. 81.

False publication by savings bank directors that directors and stockholders are personally liable to depositors—Westervelt v. Demarest, 46 N. J. Law, 37, 50 Am. Rep. 400.

62. Salmon v. Richardson, 30 Conn. 360, 79 Am. Dec. 255; Pontifex v. Bignold, 3 Scott N. R. 390, 3 Man. & G. 63; Warfield v. Clark, 118 Iowa, 69.

63. Windram v. French, 151 Mass. 547; Bruff v. Mali, 36 N. Y. 200; Huntington v. Attrill, 118 N. Y. 365.

64. Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84; Bank of Atchison County v. Byers, 139 Mo. 627.

65. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 375, 376; Horsfall v. Thomas, 1 Hurl. & C. 90; Ming v. Woolfolk, 116 U. S. 599; Southern Development Co. v. Silva, 125 U. S. 247; Taylor v. Guest, 58 N. Y. 262, Erwin's Cas. 445; Brackett v. Griswold, 112 N. Y. 454, Erwin's Cas. 416; Wakeman v. Dalley, 51 N. Y. 27, 10 Am. Rep. 551; Zabriskie v. Smith, 13 N. Y. 322, 64 Am. Dec. 551; Tindle v. Birkett, 57 App. Div. (N. Y.) 450; Bennett v. Gibbons, 55 Conn. 450; Flanders v. Cobb, 88 Me. 488, 51 Am. St. Rep. 410; Roscoe v. Sawyer, 71 Vt. 367; Tuck v. Downing, 76 Ill. 71; Holdom v. Ayer, 110 Ill. 448; Dady v. Condit, 163 Ill. 511; Hagee v. Grossman, 31 Ind. 223; Whiting v. Hill, 23 Mich. 399; Page v. Parker, 43 N. H. 363, 80 Am. Dec. 172; Priest v. White, 89 Mo. 609; Anderson v. McPike, 86 Mo. 293; Cole v. Smith, 26 Colo. 506, 58 Pac. 1086; Grosjean v. Galloway, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 380; Burnett v. Hensley, 118 Iowa, 575.

The fact that one who rented certain premises for a certain price had been falsely told by the landlord that it had previously rented at that figure does not show that he acted on such statements—Powell v. F. C. Linde Co., 171 N. Y. 675.

The purchaser of a note who relied solely upon the seller's indorsement, and not upon his false representations as to the solvency of the maker, cannot, after failure to take the proper steps to charge the seller as indorser, maintain an action of deceit for the false representations—Flanders v. Cobb, 88 Me. 488, 51 Am. St. Rep. 410.

Reliance on guaranty, and not on false representations—Holdom v. Ayer, 110 Ill. 448.

One who has lost his deposit in a bank by reason of its insolvency cannot hold the directors or other officers liable in an action of deceit because of their false representations as to its condition, if he was not induced thereby to make or leave the deposit—Brady v. Evans (C. C. A.) 78 Fed. 558.

66. Cowen v. Simpson, 1 Esp. 290; Whiting v. Hill, 23 Mich. 399; Bennett v. Gibbons, 55 Conn. 450; Adams v. Sage, 28 N. Y. 103; Cloutman v. Bailey, 62 N. H. 44; Proctor v. McCoid, 60 Iowa, 153; Hooper v. Whitaker, 130 Ala. 324; Anderson v. Burnett, 5 How. (Miss.) 165, 35 Am. Dec. 425; Davis v. Hawkins, 163 Pa. 228; Crehore v. Crehore, 97 Mass. 330, 93 Am. Dec. 98; Marshall v. Gilman, 52 Minn. 88.

67. Horsfall v. Thomas, 1 Hurl. & C. 90; Brackett v. Griswold, 112 N. Y. 454, Erwin's Cas. 416; Lindsey v. Lindsey, 34 Miss. 432.

A purchaser of defective goods who has made no inspection at all cannot maintain an action of deceit against the seller because he patched up a flaw in the goods to prevent the defect from being seen—Horsfall v. Thomas, 1 Hurl. & C. 90.

68. Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. Div. 1; Farnsworth v. Duffner, 142 U. S. 43; Southern Development Co. v. Silva, 125 U. S. 247; Hagee v. Grossman, 31 Ind. 223; Hall v. Thompson, 1 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 443; Grauel v. Wolfe, 185 Pa. 83; Boyd v. Shiffer, 156 Pa. 100; Crocker v. Manley, 164 Ill. 282, 56 Am. St. Rep. 196; Adams v. Sage, 28 N. Y. 103; Anderson v. McPike, 86 Mo. 293; Lee v. Burnham, 82 Wis. 209; Colton v. Stanford, 82 Cal. 351, 23 Pac. 16, 16 Am. St. Rep. 137.

This does not apply, of course, where the party to whom the representation is made, and who makes an investigation, is prevented by the other party from ascertaining the truth, or the circumstances are such that he cannot ascertain the truth, and he in fact is influenced after all partly by the representation—Smith v. Land & House Property Corp., 28 Ch. Div. 7, Bigelow's Cas. 26.

It is not necessary, however, that the representation complained of shall have been the sole inducement to the plaintiff's action, or even the principal inducement; but it is sufficient if it was a material inducement, although there may have been others.[69] And if this is so, it is not necessary to show that the plaintiff would not have acted if the representation had not been made.[70]

When it is said that a person cannot maintain an action for false and fraudulent representations unless he acted upon them, it is not meant that he must have done some positive act, as distinguished from a forbearance to act. One who refrains from doing what he would otherwise have done, in reliance on a false and fraudulent representation made for the purpose of inducing him to do so, acts on the representation within the meaning of the law, and if damaged thereby, may maintain an action.[71]

The fact that a sale of personal property is "with all faults," or a sale and assignment of commercial paper or a mortgage, etc., is "without recourse," is no bar to an action of deceit for false and fraudulent representations of fact by the seller or assignor, if they were relied upon by the purchaser or assignee.[72]

§ 10. Representations upon which one has a right to rely.—Whether or not a person has a right to rely upon representations made by another depends upon the character of the representations and the circumstances under which they are made. The courts have recognized the fact that sellers of property and other persons, to induce another to enter into a contract, will resort to commendatory and extravagant expressions and representations as to value, quality, and the like, and have held, within limits, that such representations, although known to be false, and in fact relied upon by the other party, cannot be made the basis of a charge of fraud, either for the purpose of rescinding the contract, or for the purpose of maintaining an action of deceit, unless the representations relate to facts as to which the parties have not equal means of knowledge, or the party making them induces the other to forego making inquiry or examination for himself. The reason is that such representations may be expected, and the party to whom they are made is not supposed to rely upon them. If he does so it is his own folly, and he cannot complain. This principle is expressed in the maxims, simplex commendatio non obligat

69. Peek v. Derry, 37 Ch. Div. 541, 14 App. Cas. 337; Clarke v. Dickson, 6 C. B. (N. S.) 453; Safford v. Grout, 120 Mass. 20; Windram v. French, 151 Mass. 547; Roberts v. French, 153 Mass. 60, 25 Am. St. Rep. 611; Morgan v. Skiddy, 62 N. Y. 319; Strong v. Strong, 102 N. Y. 69; Lebby v. Ahrens, 26 S. C. 275; Hicks v. Stevens, 121 Ill. 186; Cabot v. Christie, 42 Vt. 121, 1 Am. Rep. 313; Braley v. Powers, 92 Me. 203; Scholfield Gear & Pulley Co. v. Scholfield, 71 Conn. 1; Lee v. Burnham, 82 Wis. 209; Shaw v. Gilbert, 111 Wis. 165, 184; James v. Crosthwait, 97 Ga. 673; Dashiel v. Harshman, 113 Iowa, 283.

"It was not necessary," said the court in a late Maine case, "that the defendant's false representation should have been the sole, or even the principal inducement for the plaintiff to enter into the contract. If it exerted a material influence upon his mind, although it was only one of several motives acting together, which produced the result, it would be sufficient to render the defendant liable"—Braley v. Powers, 92 Me. 203.

70. "What the plaintiff would have done, but for the false representations, is often a mere speculative inquiry, and is not the test of the plaintiff's right. If the false representations were material and relied upon, and were intended to operate, and did operate, as one of the inducements to the trade, it is not necessary to inquire whether the plaintiff would or would not have made the purchase without this inducement"—Cabot v. Christie, 42 Vt. 121, 1 Am. Rep. 313.

71. Fottler v. Moseley, 179 Mass. 295, (holding that an action could be maintained against a broker for false and fraudulent representations by which the plaintiff was induced to refrain from selling stock, and was thereby damaged); Alexander v. Church, 53 Conn. 561, (holding that a subcontractor on a building could maintain an action against the owner for a false and fraudulent representation by which he was induced not to perfect his lien). Compare Bradley v. Fuller, 118 Mass. 239, where it was held that a creditor could not maintain an action for false representations inducing him not to attach property of his debtor, on the ground that there was no damage. As to this see post, § 12.

72. Schneider v. Heath, 3 Camp. 506; Hexter v. Bast, 125 Pa. 52, 11 Am. St. Rep. 874; West v. Anderson, 9 Conn. 107, 21 Am. Dec. 737. See George v. Johnson, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 36, 44 Am. Dec. 288.

and caveat emptor.[73] "If the buyer trusts to representations which were not calculated to impose upon a man of ordinary prudence, or if he neglects the means of information easily within his reach, it is better that he should suffer the consequences of his own folly than to give him an action against the seller."[74] It may be laid down as a general rule, therefore, that false representations by the vendor of real property to the purchaser, as to the condition, situation, or value of the property, will not support an action of deceit, although known by the vendor to be false, unless the purchaser had no reasonable present means of ascertaining the truth, or was fraudulently induced by the vendor not to make inquiry or examination, or unless there was a special confidential relation between the parties.[75] And the same is true of false representations as to quality or value made by the seller of personal property, stock of corporations, or bonds, notes, and other choses in action.[76]

This principle does not apply, however, to false representations by the seller of property as to extrinsic facts affecting its value, or even to false representations as to value, condition, quality, etc., where the representations are made as statements of fact, and with intent that they shall be relied upon, and the means of ascertaining the truth are not equally open to the purchaser, or he is induced not to make inquiry or examination for himself. In such a case the purchaser has a right to rely upon the representations, and if he does so, and is damaged, he may maintain an action.[77]

Under such circumstances an action of deceit may be maintained, in the case of sales of real property, for a false and fraudulent representation by the vendor or a third person as to the amount of rental or income from the property,[78] or as to 73. Harvey v. Young, Yelv. 21; Stewart v. Stearns, 63 N. H. 99, 56 Am. Rep. 496, Burdick's Cas. 233; Parker v. Moulton, 114 Mass. 99, 19 Am. Rep. 315; Long v. Warren, 68 N. Y. 426, Chase's Cas. 263; Chrysler v. Canaday, 90 N. Y. 272, 43 Am. Rep. 166, Bigelow's Cas. 17.

The leading case is Harvey v. Young, Yelv. 21. In that case the plaintiff in an action of deceit alleged that the defendant stated that a certain term of years which he proposed to sell to him was worth one hundred and fifty pounds, when it was in fact worth but one hundred pounds. After a verdict for the plaintiff judgment was arrested upon the ground that it was the plaintiff's folly to give credit to such an assertion.

74. Page v. Parker, 43 N. H. 363, 80 Am. Dec. 172.

75. Harvey v. Young, Yelv. 21; Long v. Warren, 68 N. Y. 426, Chase's Cas. 263; Chrysler v. Canaday, 90 N. Y. 272, 43 Am. Rep. 166, Bigelow's Cas. 17; Gordon v. Parmelee, 2 Allen (Mass.) 212; Parker v. Moulton, 114 Mass. 99, 19 Am. Rep. 315; Messer v. Smyth, 59 N. H. 41; Gustafson v. Rustemeyer, 70 Conn. 125; Williams v. McFadden, 23 Fla. 143, 11 Am. St. Rep. 345.

76. Davis v. Meeker, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 354; Ellis v. Andrews, 56 N. Y. 83, 15 Am. Rep. 379; Chrysler v. Canaday, 90 N. Y. 272, 43 Am. Rep. 166, Bigelow's Cas. 17; Salem India Rubber Co. v. Adams, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 256; Brown v. Leach, 107 Mass. 364, Bigelow's Cas. 33; Poland v. Brownell, 131 Mass. 138, 41 Am. Rep. 215; Collins v. Jackson, 54 Mich. 186; Mamlock v. Fairbanks, 46 Wis. 415, 32 Am. Rep. 716; Leavitt v. Fletcher, 60 N. H. 182; Buschman v. Codd, 52 Md. 202.

77. Ekins v. Tresham, 1 Lev. 102; Stewart v. Stearns, 63 N. H. 99, 56 Am. Rep. 496, Burdick's Cas. 233; Chrysler v. Canaday, 90 N. Y. 272, 43 Am. Rep. 166, Bigelow's Cas. 17; Townsend v. Felthousen, 156 N. Y. 618; Cottrill v. Krum, 100 Mo. 397, 18 Am. St. Rep. 549.

Value of territorial rights under patent—Coulter v. Clark (Ind.) 66 N. E. 739.

An inexperienced person is entitled to rely on the representations of a promoter as to the value of corporate stock—Hess v. Draffen (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 440.

And see the cases more specifically cited in the notes following. "If the rule caveat emptor," said the New Hampshire court, "was of universal application, an action of deceit for false representations in a sale could never be maintained by the purchaser. It may be difficult to draw the line which separates cases within the rule from those to which it does not apply, as each case depends to some extent upon its peculiar circumstances; but it applies generally to cases free from actual fraud, where the parties deal upon an equal footing and with equal means of knowledge; and it is not applicable, as a general rule, where false and fraudulent representations of material facts are made by the vendor, and the parties have not equal facilities for ascertaining the truth. In such cases the purchaser has a right to rely upon the statements of the vendor; and when the purchaser is justified in relying upon the representations of the vendor, the rule caveat emptor does not apply"—Stewart v. Stearns, 63 N. H. 99, 56 Am. Rep. 496, Burdick's Cas. 233.

78. Ekins v. Tresham, 1 Lev. 102; Dobel v. Stevens, 3 Barn. & C. 623; Hecht v. Metzler, 14 Utah, 408, 48 Pac. 37, 60 Am. St.

its quality or condition,[79] the frequency of the arrival and departure of trains,[80] the title,[81] incumbrances,[82] location or boundaries,[83] number of acres,[84] annexation of particular privileges,[85] rights of way or other easements or appurtenances.[86] And the circumstances may be such as to permit the vendor of land to maintain an action for false representations as to land made by the purchaser.[87] So also, where the circumstances are as above stated, an action may be maintained by the purchaser of personal property for false and fraudulent representations as to the quality or condition,[88] or as to the quantity,[89] or the title,[90] etc.; or by the purchaser of a note or bond for a false and fraudulent representation that it is good, or the maker or obligor solvent,[91] or that it is secured by a mortgage on real estate,[92] or that such bonds have sold in the market at a certain price;[93] or by the purchaser of shares of stock for a false and fraudulent representation that it has always paid a certain dividend;[94] or by the purchaser of a patent right for false representations as to what is covered by the patent, or what is not covered by an earlier patent;[95] or as to the cost of manufacturing the article covered by the patent, it being a novel device with no established market price.[96]

Even a representation as to the value of property, real or personal, may be relied upon, and will support an action of deceit, if the parties occupy a special relation of trust and confidence, or if they have not equal means of knowledge, and if the representation is made as a statement of fact and with intent that it shall be relied upon.[97]

Rep. 906; Griffing v. Diller, 21 N. Y. Supp. 407; Wise v. Fuller, 29 N. J. Eq. 257.

79. Van Epps v. Harrison, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 63, 40 Am. Dec. 314; Caldwell v. Henry, 76 Mo. 254; Oakes v. Miller, 11 Colo. App. 374; Holcomb v. Noble, 69 Mich. 396; Smith v. Myers, 56 Neb. 503; Dinwiddie v. Stone, 21 Ky. L. R. 584, 52 S. W. 814; Hecht v. Metzler, 14 Utah, 408, 48 Pac. 37, 60 Am. St. Rep. 906.

80. Holst v. Stewart, 161 Mass. 516, 42 Am. St. Rep. 442.

81. Bostwick v. Lewis, 1 Day (Conn.) 250, 2 Am. Dec. 73; Wardell v. Fosdick, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 325, 7 Am. Dec. 383; Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380, 22 Am. Dec. 586; Ward v. Wiman, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 193; Haight v. Hoyt, 19 N. Y. 464; Atwood v. Chapman, 68 Me. 38, 28 Am. Rep. 5; Reynolds v. Franklin, 39 Minn. 24, 44 Minn. 30, 20 Am. St. Rep. 540; Hunt v. Barker, 22 R. I. 18, 84 Am. St. Rep. 812; Wilson v. Allen (Wis.) 93 N. W. 807.

But see Peabody v. Phelps, 9 Cal. 213; Andrus v. St. Louis Smelting & Ref. Co., 130 U. S. 643.

82. Weber v. Weber, 47 Mich. 569; West v. Wright, 98 Ind. 335; Hutchinson v. Gorman (Ark.) 73 S. W. 793; Riley v. Bell (Iowa) 95 N. W. 170.

83. Foster v. Kennedy's Adm'r, 38 Ala. 359, 81 Am. Dec. 56; Munroe v. Pritchett, 16 Ala. 785, 50 Am. Dec. 203; Caldwell v. Henry, 76 Mo. 254; Hecht v. Metzler, 14 Utah, 408, 48 Pac. 37, 60 Am. St. Rep. 906; Baker v. Sherman, 71 Vt. 439; Gunther v. Ullrich, 82 Wis. 222, 33 Am. St. Rep. 32; Davis v. Nuzum, 72 Wis. 439; Newell v. Horn, 45 N. H. 421; Roberts v. Holliday, 10 S. D. 576; Smith v. Myers, 56 Neb. 503.

84. Starkweather v. Benjamin, 32 Mich. 305; Griswold v. Gebbie, 126 Pa. 353, 12 Am. St. Rep. 878; Lovejoy v. Isbell, 73 Conn. 368; Coon v. Atwell, 46 N. H. 510; Hill v. Brower, 76 N. C. 124; Whitney v. Allaire, 1 N. Y. 305. Compare, however, Gordon v. Parmelee, 2 Allen (Mass.) 212; Mooney v. Miller, 102 Mass. 217; Credle v. Swindell, 63 N. C. 305.

Such a representation is ordinarily not actionable, if a mere expression of opinion or estimate—Bankson v. Lagerlof (Iowa) 75 N. W. 661. See ante, § 2 B.

85. Monell v. Colden, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 395, 7 Am. Dec. 390.

86. Durkin v. Cobleigh, 156 Mass. 108, 32 Am. St. Rep. 436; Fenley v. Moody, 104 Ga. 790.

87. Where the purchaser of land falsely represented its condition to the vendor, who was his sister, and who lived in another state and was ignorant of its condition, he was held liable to her in an action of deceit—Akers v. Martin (Ky.) 61 S. W. 465.

88. Stewart v. Stearns, 63 N. H. 99, 56 Am. Rep. 496, Burdick's Cas. 233; Stiles v. White, 11 Metc. (Mass.) 356, 45 Am. Dec. 214; Townsend v. Felthousen, 156 N. Y. 618; Trice v. Cochran, 8 Grat. (Va.) 442, 56 Am. Dec. 151; Buschman v. Codd, 52 Md. 202.

89. An action will lie against a seller of carpets laid on the floors of a house for a false representation of fact as to the number of yards therein—Lewis v. Jewell, 151 Mass. 345, 21 Am. St. Rep. 454.

90. Barney v. Dewey, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 224, 7 Am. Dec. 372; Campbell v. Hillman, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 508, 61 Am. Dec. 195.

91. Safford v. Grout, 120 Mass. 20; Andrews v. Jackson, 168 Mass. 266, 60 Am. St. Rep. 390; Binghampton Trust Co. v. Auten, 68 Ark. 299, 82 Am. St. Rep. 295.

92. Whiting v. Price, 172 Mass. 240, 70 Am. St. Rep. 262.

93. Manning v. Albee, 11 Allen (Mass.) 520.

94. Handy v. Waldron, 18 R. I. 567, 49 Am. St. Rep. 794.

95. David v. Park, 103 Mass. 501, Burdick's Cas. 247.

96. Bralcy v. Powers, 92 Me. 203.

A false statement, if made by the seller of property, as to what it cost, or as to what it has sold for or he has been offered for it, etc., has been held by some courts to be in the category of mere dealer's talk, and not to constitute the basis of a charge of fraud,[98] while other courts have held the contrary.[99] Such a representation if made by a third person, and not by the seller, is actionable.[1] And it is actionable even when made by the seller, if there is a special relation of confidence between the parties,[2] or if the price to be paid is based upon the cost, and the cost is falsely misrepresented.[3]

It has been held that an action of deceit will not lie against one for a false and fraudulent representation merely that he is "a person safely to be trusted and given credit to," on the ground that such a representation is mere dealer's talk upon which a person is not supposed to rely,[4] and some courts seem to have gone further and to have held that an action will not lie for false representations by a person that he is solvent or that he has certain resources, fraudulently made for the purpose of procuring credit.[5] The latter proposition, however, is not sustained by the weight of authority. Most of the courts in which the question has arisen have held that a false and fraudulent representation by a purchaser of goods, or other person, that he is solvent, or that he has certain property or resources, made for the purpose of procuring credit, and relied upon by the party to whom it is made in giving credit, is such a fraudulent representation of fact as will support an action of deceit.[6]

An action of deceit lies by a creditor against his debtor for a false and fraudulent representation by the latter that he is insolvent, whereby the creditor is induced to discharge a note or other debt on payment of less than the full amount,[7] or to release claims and accept a note in settlement of pending actions,[8] or whereby he is induced to forbear his efforts to collect the debt until after it has become barred by the statute of limitations.[9]

97. Simar v. Canaday, 53 N. Y. 298, 13 Am. Rep. 523; Chrysler v. Canaday, 90 N. Y. 272, 43 Am. Rep. 166, Bigelow's Cas. 17; Townsend v. Felthousen, 156 N. Y. 618; Manley v. Felty, 146 Ind. 194; Handy v. Waldron, 18 R. I. 567, 49 Am. St. Rep. 794; Picard v. McCormick, 11 Mich. 68; Holcomb v. Noble, 69 Mich. 396.

98. Medbury v. Watson, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 246, 39 Am. Dec. 726; Cooper v. Lovering, 106 Mass. 79; Boles v. Merrill, 173 Mass. 491, 73 Am. St. Rep. 308; Holbrook v. Connor, 60 Me. 578, 11 Am. Rep. 212; Martin v. Jordan, 60 Me. 531; Bishop v. Small, 63 Me. 12; Cole v. Smith, 26 Colo. 506, 58 Pac. 1086.

99. Van Epps v. Harrison, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 63, 40 Am. Dec. 314; Fairchild v. McMahon, 139 N. Y. 290, 36 Am. St. Rep. 701; McAleer v. Horsey, 35 Md. 439; Page v. Parker, 43 N. H. 363, 80 Am. Dec. 172; Ives v. Carter, 24 Conn. 392; Morehead v. Eades, 3 Bush (Ky.) 121; Strickland v. Graybill, 97 Va. 602.

Representation by attorney to client—Manley v. Felty, 146 Ind. 194. See, also, Stoney Creek Woolen Co. v. Smalley, 111 Mich. 321.

1. Medbury v. Watson, 6 Metc. (Mass.) 246, 39 Am. Dec. 726; Kenner v. Harding, 85 Ill. 264, 28 Am. Rep. 615.

2. Teachout v. Van Hoesen, 76 Iowa, 113, 14 Am. St. Rep. 206.

3. Where a person contracts to sell to another a share in property at cost price and falsely states the cost price, the misrepresentation is a fraud—Pendergast v. Reed, 29 Md. 398, 96 Am. Dec. 539.

If a person induces another to join with him in the purchase of land, each to pay one-half of the purchase price, and by falsely representing the purchase price to be greater than it really is obtains from the latter more than one-half of the actual price paid, the deceit is actionable—Bergeron v. Miles, 88 Wis. 397, 43 Am. St. Rep. 911. See, also, Bunn v. Schnellbacher, 163 Ill. 328.

4. Lyons v. Briggs, 14 R. I. 222, 51 Am. Rep. 372.

5. Fisher v. Brown, 1 Tyler (Vt.) 387, 4 Am. Dec. 726. See, also, Dyer v. Tilton, 23 Vt. 313.

Contra, where there was an intention not to pay—Swift v. Rounds, 19 R. I. 527, 61 Am. St. Rep. 791. As to this see ante, § 2 C.

6. Eaton v. Avery, 83 N. Y. 31, 38 Am. Rep. 389; Cain v. Dickinson, 60 N. H. 371; Strong v. Strong, 102 N. Y. 69. See, also, Morse v. Shaw, 124 Mass. 59; Newell v. Randall, 32 Minn. 171, 50 Am. Rep. 562; Mooney v. Davis, 75 Mich. 188, 13 Am. St. Rep. 425. This does not apply to a buyer's false representation as to his financial condition, if it is a mere statement of opinion—Syracuse Knitting Co. v. Blanchard, 69 N. H. 447. As to the right to maintain an action for false representations as to financial condition made to a mercantile agency, see ante, § 8, note 58.

7. Edwards v. Owen, 15 Ohio, 500; Wessels v. Carr, 15 App. Div. (N. Y.) 360.

8. Strong v. Strong, 102 N. Y. 69.

§ 11. Negligence in relying on representations.—As we have seen in the preceding section, it is a general rule that a purchaser of real or personal property, or a party to any other contract, has no right to rely upon representations by the seller, or other party, as to value, quality, condition, etc., when he himself has equal means of ascertaining the truth, and no artifice is resorted to in order to prevent him from doing so.[10] And even when a false representation is not connected with a contract, and is made with intent to deceive, and does in fact deceive, the negligence of the person to whom it is made in relying upon it may be so great as to preclude him from maintaining an action of deceit. It is a general principle "that false statements furnish no cause of action, if they relate to matters concerning which the persons to whom they are made, by the use of ordinary care and attention, can obtain full and accurate information. The law will not relieve those who suffer damages by reason of their own negligence or folly."[11]

It is well settled, however, that this principle "does not call for more than reasonable diligence" under all the circumstances of the particular case.[12] It does not apply, therefore, where false representations are fraudulently made with intent that they shall be relied upon, and are in relation to facts as to which the parties have not equal present means of knowledge, or are of such a character, or made under such circumstances, as to reasonably induce the party to whom they are made to forego making an inquiry or examination which he might otherwise make, although such inquiry or examination, if made, would result in discovery of the truth. In such a case the party to whom the representations are made has a right to rely upon them, and if he does so, and is deceived, the other party cannot escape liability for the fraud by saying that he was negligent in relying on the representations instead of making an investigation or examination for himself.[13] "Where one assumes to have knowledge upon a subject of which another may well be ignorant, and knowingly makes false statements regarding it, upon which the other relies, to his injury, we do not think it lies with him to say that the party who took his word and relied upon it as that of an honest and truthful man was guilty of negligence in so doing, so as to be precluded from recovering compensation for the injury which was inflicted upon him under cover of the falsehood."[14]

9. Marshall v. Buchanan, 35 Cal. 264, 95 Am. Dec. 95.

10. Negligence induced by defendant's act is no defense—Leicher v. Keeney (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 145. Knowledge possessed by plaintiff's agent will not be imputed to him—Lee v. Tarplin, 183 Mass. 52. A statement by a third person that he claimed part of the land sold is sufficient to put plaintiff on inquiry as to defendant's title—Grosjean v. Galloway, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 380. Ante, § 10, notes 73 et seq.

11. Silver v. Frazier, 3 Allen (Mass.) 382, 81 Am. Dec. 662. In this case it was held that the owner of land whose agent was induced to erect a house at a different place on the land than he had been directed, by the false representation of a third person as to the boundary of the land, could not maintain an action of deceit against such third person, where there was nothing to show that the true boundary was peculiarly within the knowledge of the latter. See, also, Holst v. Stewart, 161 Mass. 516, 42 Am. St. Rep. 442.

12. Holmes, J., in Whiting v. Price, 172 Mass. 240, 70 Am. St. Rep. 262. See, also, Cottrill v. Krum, 100 Mo. 397, 18 Am. St. Rep. 549, where it was held error for the court to charge the jury that the plaintiff in an action of deceit was required to make "diligent inquiry."

13. Pollock, Torts (Webb's Ed.) 377, 378; Dobell v. Stevens, 3 Barn. & C. 623; Central Ry. Co. v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99; Stewart v. Stearns, 63 N. H. 99, 56 Am. Rep. 496, Burdick's Cas. 233; Mead v. Bunn, 32 N. Y. 275; Chrysler v. Canaday, 90 N. Y. 272, 43 Am. Rep. 166, Bigelow's Cas. 17; Frank v. Bradley & C. Co., 42 App. Div. (N. Y.) 178; Townsend v. Felthousen, 156 N. Y. 618; Eaton v. Winnie, 20 Mich. 156, 4 Am. Rep. 377; Linington v. Strong, 107 Ill. 295; Endsley v. Johns, 120 Ill. 469, 60 Am. Rep. 572; Holland v. Anderson, 38 Mo. 55; Caldwell v. Henry, 76 Mo. 254; Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84; Cottrill v. Krum, 100 Mo. 397, 18 Am. St. Rep. 549; David v. Park, 103 Mass. 501, Burdick's Cas. 247; Roberts v. French, 153 Mass. 60, 25 Am. St. Rep. 611; Durkin v. Cobleigh, 156 Mass. 108, 32 Am. St. Rep. 436; Holst v. Stewart, 161 Mass. 516, 42 Am. St. Rep. 442; Bean v. Herrick, 12 Me. 262, 28 Am. Dec. 176; Wilson v. Nichols, 72 Conn. 173; Camp v. Camp, 2 Ala. 632, 36 Am. Dec. 423; Lahay v. City Nat. Bank, 15 Colo. 339, 25 Pac. 704, 22 Am. St. Rep. 407; Gunther v. Ullrich, 82 Wis. 222, Illustrations.—Thus one who subscribes for shares of stock in a corporation on the faith of false representations in a prospectus is not precluded from treating the representations as a fraud because he could have ascertained the truth by examining the records of the corporation.[15] And a purchaser of real or personal property may treat as a fraud false and fraudulent representations as to title, incumbrances, location, etc., made by the vendor or by a third person, if they were intended to be relied upon and were in fact relied upon, although he might have disregarded them and ascertained the truth by examining the public records.[16] If the seller of a business falsely and fraudulently overstates the amount of the business and returns, the buyer is not precluded from maintaining an action of deceit by the fact that he might have examined the books.[17] The purchaser of a large number of carpets in a furnished house is not precluded from maintaining an action of deceit for false representations of the seller as to the number of yards, made as of his own knowledge, because he might have ascertained the truth by a measurement.[18] And the purchaser of a house in the vicinity of a city is not precluded, by the fact that he might have made independent inquiry, from maintaining an action against a broker for false and fraudulent representations as to the frequency of the arrival and departure of trains, where the broker falsely purported to read from a time-table.[19]

A person cannot be held negligent in relying upon representations instead of making inquiry or investigation, where he has no reasonable present opportunity to do so.[20]

Impossibility.—The fact that representations were incapable of being made good does not prevent them from constituting a fraud for which an action of deceit may be maintained, if the plaintiff did not know of the impossibility, and in fact relied upon them.[21]

§ 12. The necessity for damage.—To maintain an action for deceit, the plaintiff must show, not only that he relied upon the false and fraudulent representations of the defendant, but also that he has sustained damage by reason of his doing so.[22]

33 Am. St. Rep. 32; Hoock v. Bowman, 42 Neb. 80, 47 Am. St. Rep. 691; Smith v. Myers, 56 Neb. 503; Hunt v. Barker, 22 R. I. 18, 84 Am. St. Rep. 812; Strand v. Griffith (C. C. A.) 97 Fed. 854; Roberts v. Holliday, 10 S. D. 576.

14. Cooley, J., in Eaton v. Winnie, 20 Mich. 156, 4 Am. Rep. 377.

15. Central Ry. Co. v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99.

16. Parham v. Randolph, 4 How. (Miss.) 435, 35 Am. Dec. 403; David v. Park, 103 Mass. 501, Burdick's Cas. 247; Grimes v. Kimball, 3 Allen (Mass.) 518; Holland v. Anderson, 38 Mo. 55; Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84; Kiefer v. Rogers, 19 Minn. 32; Hunt v. Barker, 22 R. I. 18, 84 Am. St. Rep. 812; Dodge v. Pope, 93 Ind. 481; West v. Wright, 98 Ind. 335; Evans v. Forstall, 58 Miss. 30; Weber v. Weber, 47 Mich. 569; Fenley v. Moody, 104 Ga. 790.

"It is established law that a false representation made for a fraudulent purpose may be relied upon by the party to whom it is made, although the representation is of a fact contained in a public record"—Backer v. Pyne, 130 Ind. 288, 30 Am. St. Rep. 231. See, also, Hoock v. Bowman, 42 Neb. 80, 47 Am. St. Rep. 691.

In Campbell v. Hillman, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 508, 61 Am. Dec. 195, it was held that an agent was not relieved from liability for a false and fraudulent representation as to the title of his principal to property sold, by the fact that he informed the purchaser that his principal derived title under a will, which the purchaser had sufficient time and opportunity to examine, where the purchase was made on the faith of the representation, and it was calculated to induce belief and prevent further inquiry. And in Clark v. Edgar, 84 Mo. 106, 54 Am. Rep. 84, it was held that the purchaser of mortgage bonds of a corporation was not precluded from maintaining an action of deceit against the directors for a false and fraudulent representation that the bonds were secured by a first mortgage by the fact that he could have known the truth if he had examined the records.

17. Dobell v. Stevens, 3 Barn. & C. 623.

18. Lewis v. Jewell, 151 Mass. 345, 21 Am. St. Rep. 454.

19. Holst v. Stewart, 161 Mass. 516, 42 Am. St. Rep. 442.

20. Failure to examine records in a distant place—David v. Park, 103 Mass. 501, Burdick's Cas. 247.

Compare, however, Saunders v. Hatterman, 2 Ired. L. (N. C.) 32, 37 Am. Dec. 404.

Failure to examine land which is covered by snow or water—Martin v. Jordan, 60 Me. 531; Jackson v. Armstrong, 50 Mich. 65.

21. McGar v. Williams, 26 Ala. 469, 62 Am. Dec. 739; Kendall v. Wilson, 41 Vt. 567 (sale of perpetual motion machine).

22. Vernon v. Keys, 12 East, 632, 4 Taunt. 488; Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187;

"Fraud without damage, or damage without fraud, gives no cause of action, but where these two concur, an action lies."[23] It is also necessary that the damage sustained by the plaintiff shall have been the natural and proximate, and not the remote consequence of the false and fraudulent representations,[24] and such as can be clearly defined and ascertained.[25]

It has been held that, in legal contemplation, a creditor sustains no damage from false representations by which he is induced not to attach property of his debtor; although another creditor afterwards attaches the same, and the opportunity of thereby collecting his debt is thus lost to the first creditor.[26] But the soundness of this decision may well be doubted.[27] Where a person is prevented from fulfilling a contract with another, by which he would have profited, by the false and fraudulent representations of a third person made for such purpose, he sustains a damage for which he may maintain an action against the latter; and this is true though the contract may have been unenforceable under the statute of frauds.[28]

§ 13. Actions.[29]—A vendee may waive his right of rescission and sue for deceit.[30]

Ming v. Woolfolk, 116 U. S. 599; Hutchins v. Hutchins, 7 Hill (N. Y.) 104, Bigelow's Cas. 76; Alden v. Wright, 47 Minn. 225; Freeman v. Venner, 120 Mass. 424; Dawe v. Morris, 149 Mass. 188, 14 Am. St. Rep. 404; Gilfillen v. Moorhead, 73 Conn. 710; Bartlett v. Blaine, 83 Ill. 27, 25 Am. Rep. 346; Byard v. Holmes, 34 N. J. Law, 296; Jordan v. Pickett, 78 Ala. 331; Fuller v. Hodgdon, 25 Me. 243; Nye v. Merriam, 35 Vt. 438; Bank of Atchison County v. Byers, 139 Mo. 627; Freeman v. McDaniel, 23 Ga. 354; Grosjean v. Galloway, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 380.

The Michigan Statute (Comp. L. § 10421) giving a remedy in assumpsit does not dispense with the necessity of resultant damage—In re Pennewell (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 139.

It is sufficient and proximate damage that goods were obtained long after a credit was induced by misrepresentations—Levy v. Abramson, 81 N. Y. Supp. 344.

A false representation by the seller of property that there is no mortgage thereon will not sustain an action where he has the mortgage released as soon as his attention is called to it, and no injury results—Johnson v. Seymour, 79 Mich. 156.

A stockholder of a corporation suffers no actionable wrong in being induced by false representations to surrender a part of his stock at less than its actual value, where all the other stockholders have surrendered a proportionate amount of their stock at the same valuation—Potter v. Necedah Lumber Co., 105 Wis. 25.

A person who is induced by false and fraudulent representations to indorse a promissory note is not damaged if the maker pays the same, or if he is not compelled to pay it; and it has been held, therefore, that he cannot maintain an action of deceit until he has paid it. Freeman v. Venner, 120 Mass. 424.

But it has been held that an action to recover damages for fraudulently procuring a loan on inadequate security may be maintained as soon as the loan is made, the measure of damages being the difference between the amount of the loan and the value of the securities at the date of the loan, with interest—Briggs v. Brushaber, 43 Mich. 330, 38 Am. Rep. 187.

A wife sustains damage for which she may maintain an action of deceit where she is induced by false and fraudulent representations to join with her husband in a conveyance releasing her inchoate right of dower—Simar v. Canaday, 53 N. Y. 298, 13 Am. Rep. 523.

A man who is induced to marry a pregnant woman by the false and fraudulent representation of the man by whom she is pregnant, sustains a damage in the loss of consortium, if for no other reason, which will support an action of deceit—Kujek v. Goldman, 150 N. Y. 176, 55 Am. St. Rep. 670.

A party is not defrauded when induced by artifice to do that which the law would have compelled him to do—Deobold v. Oppermann, 111 N. Y. 531, 7 Am. St. Rep. 760.

23. Croke, J., in Baily v. Merrell, 3 Bulst. 95.

24. Barry v. Croskey, 2 Johns. & H. 1; Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187; Silver v. Frazier, 3 Allen (Mass.) 382, 81 Am. Dec. 662; Lamb v. Stone, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 527; Bradley v. Fuller, 118 Mass. 239; Dawe v. Morris, 149 Mass. 188, 14 Am. St. Rep. 404; Jex v. Straus, 122 N. Y. 293.

25. Dawe v. Morris, 149 Mass. 188, 14 Am. St. Rep. 404.

26. Bradley v. Fuller, 118 Mass. 239. See, also, Austin v. Barrows, 41 Conn. 287.

27. See Kelsey v. Murphy, 26 Pa. 78, 84. See, also, Alexander v. Church, 53 Conn. 561, sustaining an action for deceit for false representations by the owner of a building that he had paid in full under a building contract, whereby a subcontractor was induced not to perfect his lien.

If a creditor who has actually levied an execution or attachment upon his debtor's property is induced by the false and fraudulent representations of the debtor or a third person to release the same and forbear enforcement of his claim, and thereby loses his opportunity to collect the same, he may maintain an action of deceit—Marshall v. Buchanan, 35 Cal. 264, 95 Am. Dec. 95; Bradley v. Fuller, 118 Mass. 239.

28. Benton v. Pratt, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 385, 20 Am. Dec. 623. See, also, Rice v. Manley, 66 N. Y. 82, 23 Am. Rep. 30.

29. An exhaustive treatment of practice in actions for deceit is impracticable be-

Conditions precedent.—It is not usually necessary to put defendant in statu quo,[31] nor repudiate the transaction.[32]

Pleading.—The declaration must show that the representation was of a matter of fact,[33] that defendant knew of its falsity,[34] and that plaintiff relied thereon.[35]

Evidence.—Rulings as to admissibility of evidence are found in the note.[36]

Question for jury.—Whether plaintiff relied on the representations,[37] whether he was justified in so doing,[38] and whether he was negligent therein,[39] are for the jury. Comparatively slight circumstances authorize the submission of the issue to the jury.[40]

Instructions.—Instructions passed on are found in the note.[41]

Damages.—The measure of damages for fraud inducing a purchase is the difference between the value of the property and what it would have been worth had the representations been true.[42]

DEDICATION.

§ 1. Dedication or conveyance.—A deed with full warranties of title reciting that it is given in consideration for the location of a county seat thereon and in fulfillment of the promise of the grantors to make the conveyance in case such location should be adopted conveys the property in fee simple, and is not a dedication of the land to the use of the public in general.[43]

§ 2. Who may dedicate.—A dedication by the state is as binding as a dedication by individuals.[44] School commissioners in Alabama may plat school lands and cause including so much that belongs in general practice heads. The current cases are here presented to preserve the uniform practice of presenting all current cases. A suit to recover purchase price and expenses alleging that the goods were worthless though fraudulently represented to be valuable is in deceit within statute regulating venue—Howe Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Galt (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 828.

30. Leicher v. Keeney (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 145.

31. Brown v. Lyon (Miss.) 33 So. 284; Hurlbert v. Kellogg Lbr. Co., 115 Wis. 225.

32. Foreclosure of a mortgage given in a trade procured by fraud is not an accord and satisfaction—Lee v. Tarplin, 183 Mass. 52. Acceptance of a deed does not waive false representations as to amount of a mortgage to be assumed by purchaser—Hutchinson v. Gorman (Ark.) 73 S. W. 793.

33. Declaration sufficient as a whole. Fraudulent representations as to title to logs—Hurlbert v. Kellogg Lbr. Co., 115 Wis. 225. Fraudulent representations as to existence of tax title—Koepke v. Winterfield, 116 Wis. 44. Fraudulent representations as to size of tract of land—Leicher v. Keeney (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 145.

34. Declaration insufficient—Northwestern S. S. Co. v. Dexter Horton & Co., 29 Wash. 565, 70 Pac. 59.

35. Oliver v. Hubbard, 29 Ind. App. 639. Circumstances showing relation between representations and damage should be alleged—Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Breautigam (N. J. Sup.) 54 Atl. 228. A general averment that plaintiff relied on the representations is sufficient—Quinby v. Ayre (Neb.) 95 N. W. 464.

36. Evidence depreciating the value of the goods given by plaintiff in exchange is inadmissible in the absence of a counterclaim—Chase v. Rusk, 90 Mo. App. 25. The possibility of their condition being the inducing motive rather than the representations being speculative—Lee v. Tarplin, 183 Mass. 52. Defendant may show that he acted under advice of counsel—Warfield v. Clark, 118 Iowa, 69. Variance: Conspiracy may be proved though not alleged—Butler v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 235.

37. Warfield v. Clark, 118 Iowa, 69.

38. Chase v. Rusk, 90 Mo. App. 25.

39. Lee v. Tarplin, 183 Mass. 52.

40. Mosby v. McKee, etc., Com. Co., 91 Mo. App. 500.

41. An instruction leaving the sufficiency of the declaration to the jury is erroneous—Samuels v. Fuller, 104 Ill. App. 623. Instructions held not to confine truth of representations too closely to time of making them—Von Boeckmann v. Loepp (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 849.

42. Warfield v. Clark, 118 Iowa, 69; Lee v. Tarplin, 183 Mass. 52.

43. First German Reformed Church v. Summit County Com'rs, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 553.

44. In this case the state of Pennsylvania laid out the town of Allegheny under an Act which provided that the streets, lanes and alleys should be common highways forever, and some fifty years later issued a patent covering some of the streets—Snowden v. Loree, 122 Fed. 493.

dedicate the streets to the public.[45] A valid dedication may not be made by a mortgagor,[46] or lessor leasing same with the right in the lessee to purchase.[47] A corporation may dedicate some of its land to public use for a highway, if it do not materially interfere with the accomplishment of the purposes of its incorporation.[48]

§ 3. Mode of dedication. In general.—Land may be dedicated to public use either in accordance with the statute or by common-law dedication.[49] The following steps are necessary to the latter,—first, a survey or other segregation of the land intended to be devoted to public use; second, the making of a plat representing the division of the tract; and third, the sale of land so surveyed by reference to such plat. As a condition precedent to a common-law dedication which is implied from the sale of lots by reference to a plat thereof, exhibited or improperly recorded, there must, in the absence of an acceptance, have been either a survey of the land or some physical evidence upon the ground, to indicate the location and extent of the easement intended by the donor to be devoted to the use of the public.[50]

Intention.—Dedication of ground to the public is a question of intention,[51] and this is particularly the case where it is sought to establish a common-law dedication.[52] Acts of the owner clearly manifesting an intention to dedicate are sufficient.[53] The intention may sometimes be inferred from the shape of the land, its situation, dimensions, and the like.[54]

The mere fact that landowners acquiesce in or omit to protest against the use of a highway by travelers,[55] or put down sidewalks either voluntarily or by order of the city, to enable persons passing on the street to use it, is not conclusive evidence of intent to dedicate.[56] Where the boundaries of a village include all land to the low-water mark on a navigable stream, the owner of land platting an addition 45. Laws Ala. 1828, p. 31—Roberts v. Matthews (Ala.) 34 So. 624.

46. Newport News & O. P. Ry. & Elec. Co. v. Lake (Va.) 43 S. E. 566.

47. Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757.

48. Hast v. Piedmont & C. R. Co., 52 W. Va. 396.

49. Nodine v. City of Union, 42 Or. 613, 72 Pac. 582.

50. Nodine v. City of Union, 42 Or. 613, 72 Pac. 582. There is an insufficient common law dedication of streets where the plat does not show the size of lots or the width of the streets, and does not refer to a survey or any natural object nor fix an initial point from which a survey could be extended and there was no acceptance for over 30 years—Id. Public user and control must be long enough to presume a gift—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. City of Atlanta (Ga.) 45 S. E. 256.

51. Lonaconing, M. & F. Ry. Co. v. Consolidation Coal Co., 95 Md. 630; Guttery v. Glenn, 201 Ill. 275; Langan v. Whalen (Neb.) 93 N. W. 393.

52. Russell v. City of Lincoln, 200 Ill. 511.

53. Lonaconing, M. & F. Ry. Co. v. Consolidation Coal Co., 95 Md. 630; Guttery v. Glenn, 201 Ill. 275; Langan v. Whalen (Neb.) 93 N. W. 393; Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757. Correspondence of unmarked strip with similar strip, which as they lie parallel form a street—Thompson v. Maloney, 199 Ill. 276. Laying out a cut off and closing up an old road—Lonaconing, M. & F. Ry. Co. v. Consolidation Coal Co., 95 Md. 630.

Deed referring to a street held to show no intent to dedicate an extension of such street—Atlantic City v. Groff, 68 N. J. Law, 670. Claiming compensation disproves intent—Langan v. Whalen (Neb.) 93 N. W. 393. Where the plat of a public square intersecting streets did not show that the streets should cross the square, there was no intent to dedicate streets within the square—Guttery v. Glenn, 201 Ill. 275. The word "reserved" written in a plat shows an intent not to dedicate the part so marked—Cleveland v. Bergen Bldg. & Imp. Co. (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 117. Where a railroad company occupies a street which is a public highway in an unincorporated village, and acquires a lot with intent to open through it a way in place of the street, but does nothing more to evince a dedication than to tear down the fence around the lot and allow its use by the public for a way, this does not constitute an irrevocable dedication—Hast v. Piedmont & C. R. Co., 52 W. Va. 396. An intention that streets on a plat should not be dedicated to the public, is shown where the plat itself contains a statement that the streets were merely for convenience in description and without intent to dedicate same to the public, and this effect is not changed by a later contrary declaration, as a mere declaration of a grantor cannot add to or take from the subject matter of a grant—In re City of New York, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 513.

54. Coe College v. Cedar Rapids (Iowa) 95 N. W. 267.

55. Postal v. Martin (Neb.) 95 N. W. 8. A dedication of a road by the proprietor is not shown by fifteen years use of the road by the public with the knowledge and acquiescence of the land owner—Hartley v. Vermilion (Cal.) 70 Pac. 273.

along such stream and laying out the road along the banks thereof will be presumed to have intended to dedicate all the land lying between the street and the river.[57] The question of intention to dedicate is for the jury, where the fact is to be determined from the disputed circumstances.[58]

Acceptance.—The rights of the public resting in a dedication depend on acceptance express or implied by the public,[59] which must be within a reasonable time.[60] An acceptance of a street is peculiarly necessary since it may be a public burden.[61] Until there has been an acceptance, the act of the proprietor in selling lots with reference to the dedication amounts to a mere offer to dedicate and may be withdrawn,[62] and lot owners may close streets included in their premises, where they allow other lot owners necessary ingress and egress to their property.[63] A city is estopped to accept a dedication, where it levied assessments against the property.[64] After the acceptance of a dedication, it is irrevocable.[65] Where there is a good common-law dedication, the grantor may not withdraw the dedication, though there has been no acceptance of it.[66]

There is a good acceptance, where the public authorities take possession of lands dedicated to the public,[67] or where there is a recognition,[68] though not a formal one,[69] of the public rights. Where the land is dedicated by allowing the public use of the property, acceptance and user by the public is sufficient.[70] In Ohio, the ac-

56. Webber v. City of Toledo, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 237.

57. City of Uniontown v. Berry, 24 Ky. L. R. 1692, 72 S. W. 295; rehearing 24 Ky. L. R. 2248, 73 S. W. 774.

58. Langan v. Whalen (Neb.) 93 N. W. 393.

59. Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757; Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. City of Atlanta (Ga.) 45 S. E. 256; Hast v. Piedmont & C. R. Co., 52 W. Va. 396. Ky. Acts 1902, p. 172, c. 76—Schuster v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 2346, 74 S. W. 226; Pease v. Patterson & S. L. Traction Co. (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 524; Lunkenheimer v. Cincinnati, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 617.

60. Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757. Where a dedication of lands for street purposes was not accepted by the city for thirty years, the city will then be estopped to assert any right to open streets that have been fenced in for a good share of the period—Schooling v. City of Harrisburg, 42 Or. 494, 71 Pac. 605.

61. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. City of Atlanta (Ga.) 45 S. E. 256.

62. Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757.

63. State v. Hamilton (Tenn.) 70 S. W. 619.

64. Lunkenheimer v. Cincinnati, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 617. Where it was not shown that a town ever claimed a certain park containing mineral springs but had required payment of taxes thereon, the fact that the town contributed money to keep the springs in repair because the public was permitted to use them will not amount to a dedication and acceptance of the land as a public park—Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757.

65. Spring v. Pittsburg, 204 Pa. 530; Oettinger v. District of Columbia, 18 App. D. C. 375.

66. Russell v. City of Lincoln, 200 Ill. 511; Alden Coal Co. v. Challis, 200 Ill. 222. There is an acceptance of an implied dedication of a street, where the owners of land in a city graded the street, built the sidewalk, had telegraph poles strung along it and erected a hotel fronting on the street which had been used as such for two or three years—City of Hammond v. Maher, 30 Ind. App. 286.

67. Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757. The attempt of a city to open a street embraced in a dedication amounts to an acceptance thereof.

68. Uhlefelder v. City of Mt. Vernon, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 349; Russell v. City of Lincoln, 200 Ill. 511.

69. Heffron v. Galveston (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 370. There is a valid dedication of land for a public market where a plat dividing the city into lots designates a square for that purpose and the city for more than 40 years cared for and preserved the property and lots were sold with reference to the plat though there was no formal acceptance. Ib. If a landowner dedicate a highway over his land for public use by a valid dedication binding on him, and it is accepted by the public by general use of the way, it becomes a highway, as between the dedicator and public, beyond his revocation of the dedication, though the dedication is not accepted by the county court; but this does not charge the county with maintenance or repair of the highway—Hast v. Piedmont & C. R. Co., 52 W. Va. 396.

70. Wright v. Oberlin, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 509. There is an acceptance of an owner's implied dedication of a street without proof of a formal acceptance, where the owner of the land in a city graded a street, built sidewalks, had telegraph poles strung along it and erected a hotel fronting on the street, which had been used extensively for a number of years—City of Hammond v. Maher, 30 Ind. App. 286. Where the public used a cut off laid out instead of an old road, with the knowledge of the owner and without any objection on his part and same was improved at the public expense, there was a sufficient dedication of the cut off to the ceptance of a dedication by an ordinance general in its terms is held insufficient, as more than a general acceptance must be shown.[71] The laying out of an extension of a street under legislative authority does not amount to an acceptance of a way previously dedicated, where the land used is not identical with that actually laid out.[72] There is a refusal to accept a way previously dedicated not identical with that actually laid out, where the city on laying out the way allows substantial damages to the abutting owner.[73] On the acceptance of a dedicated way by a city, nominal damages only may be allowed to the abutting owners.[74]

Sale with reference to plat.—If an owner of land lays it out into streets, lots, and alleys, and sells lots with reference to such streets and alleys, by plat or otherwise, it is a dedication of such streets and alleys irrevocable by him, and makes them public as to all lot owners, and consequently as to the general public.[75] Where the contract for the sale of property refers to a map on which streets are shown, there is an assurance by the vendor that the streets have been dedicated to public use,[76] which estops the grantor of land to deny the dedication of a street along the side of a lot conveyed.[77]

Plats and maps.—Statutes governing dedication generally require the making of a plat and provide for its acknowledgment, certification, and record.[78] A statutory plat should mark the corners of the lots and show the width of streets.[79] The plat should be acknowledged by the owner,[80] and not by his agent.[81] An approval by a clerk in a public office is insufficient where the law requires approval by his principal.[82] In New York, it is held that the filing of maps on which a street was laid out will not make the street a public highway so far as the public is concerned.[83]

A mere plat of land upon paper laying off streets, blocks, and houses in a city is not itself a dedication of the street to public use.[84] To constitute a common-law dedication of land to public purposes by means of a plat, the same certainty of description is required as in other forms of conveyance.[85] Long use of an unacknowl-public and acceptance thereof—Lonaconing, M. & F. Ry. Co. v. Consolidation Coal Co., 95 Md. 630.

71. Cox v. City of Lancaster, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 265.

72, 73, 74. Chapin v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 97 Me. 151.

75. Hast v. Piedmont & C. R. Co., 52 W. Va. 396; Town of Manitou v. International Trust Co. (Colo.) 70 Pac. 757; Nodine v. City of Union, 42 Or. 613, 72 Pac. 582; Schooling v. City of Harrisburg, 42 Or. 494, 71 Pac. 605. Where the inhabitants of a town acquire property interests with reference to streets duly laid out and establish homes and build up trade within the town, the owner of the property may not thereafter deny the dedication either as against the inhabitants or the public at large though no plat of the town was made and title remained in the original owner—Alden Coal Co. v. Challis, 200 Ill. 222. The laying out of lots fronting on streets connecting with public highways and renting the same to inhabitants of a village, amounts to a dedication of the streets to the public use during the time the lots are so rented and occupied —Alden Coal Co. v. Challis, 103 Ill. App. 52. Where a camp meeting association has platted its grounds showing lots and the roads and streets to be used for access thereto and has leased same for a long term of years, there is a dedication of the streets and roads to the use of the lessee, and the association cannot maintain trespass against a person using one of the roads to deliver merchandise to lessees at their request—Thousand Island Park Ass'n v. Tucker, 173 N. Y. 203.

76. Cleveland v. Bergen Bldg. & Imp. Co. (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 117.

77. Davis v. Morris, 132 N. C. 435.

78. Gen. St. Kan. § 4364—Garfield Tp. v. Herman (Kan.) 71 Pac. 517.

79. Coe College v. Cedar Rapids (Iowa) 95 N. W. 267. Courts will not take judicial notice of the width of streets even in cities organized under special charters—Id. There is a complete dedication where the owner makes a plat laying the land out into blocks and lots with intervening streets clearly indicated on the plat and the streets cannot be closed up except where legally authorized—Price v. Stratton (Fla.) 33 So. 644.

80. Deady & Lane's Gen. Laws Or. p. 776, c. 59—Nodine v. City of Union, 42 Or. 613, 72 Pac. 582.

81. Russell v. City of Lincoln, 200 Ill. 511.

82. Approval signed in the officer's name by the clerk (Comp. Laws Mich. § 3372)—City of St. Joseph v. Schulz (Mich.) 93 N. W. 432.

83. Loughman v. Long Island R. Co., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 629.

84. Nodine v. City of Union, 42 Or. 613, 72 Pac. 582.

85. Sanders v. Village of Riverside (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 720; Coe College v. Cedar Rapids (Iowa) 95 N. W. 267.

edged plat by the public will bind the dedicator.[86] Where the owners of land platted it and laid out streets and afterwards by numerous conveyances recognized a later plat by the city engineer, showing the street in a changed position, and made no objection to the public use of the street as so changed, there was a valid dedication of the street not only as platted originally but as changed by the engineer's plat.[87]

Sufficiency of dedication by corporation.—A dedication by a corporation, to bind the corporation beyond revocation, must be made by the directors, or recognized by them in some way, or be expressly ratified by them, or by such public use for such time and under such circumstances as to justify the inference of such ratification. The mere act of officers and agents making such dedication without authority from the directors will not make a valid dedication, unless by such express or implied ratification.[88]

Evidence of dedication.—In every case of an implied dedication, it must appear that the property has been in the exclusive control of the public for a period long enough to raise the presumption of a gift.[89] Claiming compensation negatives a dedication.[90] A deed insufficient in law to amount to a dedication of land for a street may be submitted as a circumstance on the question of dedication.[91] Evidence of dedication is sufficient where the testimony shows that the buildings on a farm had been in existence for more than 100 years and that the only way to reach them from the main highway was by the road in question.[92]

§ 4. Effect of dedication.—An acknowledgment and recording of a plat is equivalent to a deed in fee simple of the portion of land set apart to the public use.[93] Where the grantor conveying land retained title to land used for street, it made no difference to the grantee whether the land was used by the public under common law or statutory dedication.[94]

A dedication is binding on remote grantees of the party executing a plat,[95] and purchasers at a judicial sale of platted premises.[96]

Municipal authorities are without power to appropriate property dedicated to the public to the individual use of corporations.[97] In Louisiana, it has been held that although property has been dedicated to the public use, the city may make reasonable changes therein.[98] Where there is a valid dedication of land for highway purposes, an adjoining owner may not invade a portion of the highway on the ground that more space for road purposes was dedicated than was used.[99]

Where there is a conveyance of land to town trustees for a street, the land will revert to the grantor on its abandonment.[100]

86. Wright v. Oberlin, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 509.

87. Sweatman v. Bathrick (S. D.) 95 N. W. 422.

88. Hast v. Piedmont & C. R. Co., 52 W. Va. 396. Oral evidence of a general manager of a railroad company that the company purchased a lot of land for the purpose of dedicating it to public use as a street, and tore down the fences around it, and threw it open to public use, does not prove such dedication of it as to render the dedication irrevocable—Id.

89. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. City of Atlanta (Ga.) 45 S. E. 256.

90. Admitting existence of highway by claim of damages which is ignored is not conclusive—Langan v. Whalen (Neb.) 93 N. W. 393.

91. Atlantic City v. Groff, 68 N. J. Law, 670.

92. Town of Clarendon v. Rutland R. Co., 75 Vt. 6.

93. Coe College v. Cedar Rapids (Iowa) 95 N. W. 267; Blennerhassett v. Town of Forest City, 117 Iowa, 680.

94. Sweatman v. Bathrick (S. D.) 95 N. W. 422.

The right to use streets dedicated as at common law extends to the general public—Alden Coal Co. v. Challis, 200 Ill. 222.

95. Faller v. Town of Latonia, 24 Ky. L. R. 2476, 74 S. W. 287.

96. Thompson v. Maloney, 199 Ill. 276.

97. First German Reformed Church v. Summit County Com'rs, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 553.

98. Capdevielle v. New Orleans & S. F. R. Co. (La.) 34 So. 868.

99. State v. Thompson, 91 Mo. App. 329.

100. Downes v. Dimock & Fink Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 513.

DEEDS OF CONVEYANCE.

§ 1. Nature, form, and requisites. Deeds distinguished from other instruments.—In determining whether an instrument taking effect on the grantor's death is a deed or a will, the intent of the grantor as to whether it is the passing of title or merely the enjoyment which is thus postponed is the test. This intention is usually determinable from the retention of a power of recall.[1] An instrument in form a contract for deed is sometimes held to be a conveyance.[2] An instrument in form an absolute deed may be held a mortgage, if it appears that it was the intention of the parties that it should stand as security only,[3] and this intent may appear either by parol,[4] in the absence of a statute to the contrary,[5] or by a separate written defeasance.[6] A conveyance of lands upon declared trusts may embody both a conveyance and a declaration of trust in the same writing. The latter phase of the instrument will be properly discussed in a later title.[7] In many if not all particulars the formal requisites of mortgages correspond to those of deeds. Such cases as apply the law to mortgages will be collected under the article on mortgages.

1. Mere nondelivery during the life time of grantor if no power of recall is reserved does not constitute the instrument a will—Phillips v. Phillips (Colo.) 71 Pac. 363; Seifert v. Seifert (Kan.) 71 Pac. 271; Bogan v. Swearingen, 199 Ill. 454. A deed is not testamentary because it provides that grantor shall retain possession during his life time—Christ v. Kuehne, 172 Mo. 118; Adair v. Craig, 135 Ala. 332. Or reserves a rental during grantor's life—Cone v. Cone, 118 Iowa, 458. Conveyance to one for life and remainder to others, the instrument not to take effect till grantor's death, is a will—Coulter v. Shelmadine, 204 Pa. 120. Lost instrument proved merely to be a conveyance to take effect on grantor's death held to be a will—Lincoln v. Felt (Mich.) 92 N. W. 780. An instrument executed as a deed and delivered, stating that grantor "has given" to grantee certain land to belong to him at grantor's death is a deed and not a will—Brice v. Sheffield (Ga.) 44 S. E. 843. Where power of recall is retained the instrument is not a deed—Tarlton v. Griggs, 131 N. C. 216; Johnson v. Johnson, 24 R. I. 571; White v. Watts, 118 Iowa, 549. An instrument in form a deed reciting that grantor was to retain possession of the instrument until his death and to have the use of the property during his life is a will not a deed—Griffin v. McIntosh (Mo.) 75 S. W. 677.

2. Agreements without operative words of conveyance held deeds, the conditions devolving on the purchaser having been performed—Cone v. Cone, 118 Iowa, 458; Yeary v. Crenshaw (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 579.

3. A deed absolute in form but given to secure the payment of a debt will be regarded as a mortgage—Fahay v. State Bank (Neb.) 95 N. W. 505. The intent may be inferred, inadequacy of consideration, retention of premises by grantor and a debt to be secured being the principal indicia—Tuggle v. Berkeley (Va.) 43 S. E. 199; Dillon v. Dillon, 24 Ky. L. R. 781, 69 S. W. 1099; Anglin v. Conley, 24 Ky. L. R. 1551, 71 S. W. 926; Thacker v. Morris, 52 W. Va. 220. An agreement that when the land was resold all surplus over a certain debt should be paid to grantor does not make the deed a mortgage—Moran v. Munhall, 204 Pa. 242. An absolute deed with an agreement back giving control and use to grantor during his life is not testamentary—Durand v. Higgins (Kan.) 72 Pac. 567. An agreement for a reconveyance on making certain payments does not make a deed absolute on its face a mortgage—Pumilia v. De George (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 813.

4. The rule against parol evidence to vary a writing is not applicable—Brown v. Johnson, 115 Wis. 430; Ross v. Howard, 31 Wash. 393, 72 Pac. 74; Stafford v. Stafford (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 984; Hurlbert v. Kellogg Lumber Co., 115 Wis. 225; Northern Assur. Co. v. Chicago Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 198 Ill. 474; Beebe v. Wisconsin Mortg. Loan Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 1103. But it has been held that in an action at law such proof is inadmissible—Billingsley v. Stutler, 52 W. Va. 92.

Sufficiency of evidence: The evidence that a deed absolute on its face was in fact a mortgage must be clear and convincing—Heaton v. Gaines, 198 Ill. 479; Evans v. Thompson (Minn.) 94 N. W. 692; Carveth v. Winegar (Mich.) 94 N. W. 381; Rose v. Gandy (Ala.) 34 So. 239; Cassem v. Heustis, 201 Ill. 208; Holladay v. Willis (Va.) 43 S. E. 616; In re Holmes, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 264; Little v. Braun, 11 N. D. 410. Testimony of grantor alone insufficient by express terms of statute—Schwartz v. Lieber (Miss.) 32 So. 954. Evidence held not to show that a deed absolute on its face was designed as a mortgage—Miller v. Price, 66 S. C. 85.

Bona fide purchasers: A parol defeasance may in the absence of statute be asserted against a bona fide purchaser—Carveth v. Winegar (Mich.) 94 N. W. 381. And an insurer is not a bona fide purchaser within a statute protecting such purchasers—Wolf v. Theresa Village Fire Ins. Co., 115 Wis. 402.

5. Moran v. Munhall, 204 Pa. 242.

6. Wolf v. Theresa Village Fire Ins. Co., 115 Wis. 402. But see Bates v. Sherwood, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 146. Defeasance held to refer to same property as deed—Turner v. Cochran (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1024. A proviso that the deed shall be void if a certain debt is paid makes it a mortgage—Thacker v. Morris, 52 W. Va. 220.

7. See Trusts.

Requisites.—Instruments affecting the title to realty are required to be in writing,[8] and in the proof of their existence the general rules as to best and secondary evidence apply.[9] Holding as to sufficiency of evidence of existence and execution are found in the note.[10] To constitute a valid conveyance by deed, there must be some title in the grantor,[11] words of description identifying the property,[12] apt words of conveyance,[13] execution according to the statutes,[14] delivery[15] during the life of the grantor,[16] and acceptance thereof.[17] As between the parties, a consideration is unnecessary.[18]

8. See article on Frauds, Statute of.

9. See Evidence.

10. Uncontradicted evidence that ancestor of witness had executed a deed held sufficient—Jones v. Bright (Miss.) 33 So. 655. Evidence of execution held sufficient notwithstanding denial by grantor—Royals v. Lacey (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1062. Evidence held sufficient to show that deed was a forgery—Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Hutsor, 198 Ill. 389; Crate v. Strong, 24 Ky. L. R. 710, 69 S. W. 957. Evidence of forgery held insufficient—Riviere v. Wilkens (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 608. See, also, article on Lost Instruments as to sufficiency of evidence on proceeding to establish lost deed.

11. Jordan v. Fennacy, 24 Ky. L. R. 1636, 71 S. W. 900.

At common law, and in most of the states the rule is still in force, a deed to lands of which the grantor was at the time disseised is void being in effect a transfer of a litigious right. This doctrine is treated in the article Champerty and Maintenance.

12. Huntress v. Portwood, 116 Ga. 351. Description sustained though extrinsic evidence was necessary—Gates v. Paul (Wis.) 94 N. W. 55. "Frye's" instead of "Smith Frye's" addition sufficient where there was but one Frye's addition—Langlois v. Cameron, 201 Ill. 301. Description supplemented by reference to other recorded deeds sufficient—Sheafer v. Mitchell, 109 Tenn. 181. But not where the deed referred to is misdescribed as to date—Rountree v. Thompson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 574, 72 S. W. 69. Description by metes and bounds the measures being in blank insufficient—Ellis v. LeBow (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 576. If otherwise adequately described the fact that part of land was in another county than description states does not invalidate—Morrison v. Casey (Miss.) 34 So. 145. A date line at the top giving city and state may be referred to in aid of a description—Horton v. Murden (Ga.) 43 S. E. 786.

13. Technical words of conveyance are not necessary in Georgia—Horton v. Murden (Ga.) 43 S. E. 786. Instruments held to be deeds and not mere agreements to convey—Cone v. Cone, 118 Iowa, 458; Yeary v. Crenshaw (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 579.

14. Signature: In Georgia a signature in the recitals is sufficient—Horton v. Murden (Ga.) 43 S. E. 786. Parol authorization of agent to sign followed by acquiescence sufficient between parties—Saunders v. King (Iowa) 93 N. W. 272. Seal: Not required in New York—Leask v. Horton, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 144. Acknowledgment is not necessary to the validity of the deed as between the parties. See Acknowledgment No. 1, p. 17.

15. Manual tradition unnecessary if parties intended to deliver and believed they had done so (Hildebrand v. Willig, 64 N. J. Eq. 249); and e converso obtaining and recording contrary to the intent of grantor (Schaefer v. Purviance [Ind.] 66 N. E. 154; McNicholas v. Moran, 204 Pa. 165); or in violation of a condition on which the deed was given to grantee (Kenney v. Parks, 137 Cal. 527, 70 Pac. 556) is no delivery. Recordation by grantor with intent to deliver is a sufficient delivery—Ford v. Boone (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 353. Where deed was given to third person with right to recall and grantor exercised rights of ownership thereafter and the deed was not delivered until after his death there was no sufficient delivery—Johnson v. Johnson, 24 R. I. 571. Unconditional delivery to a third person for grantee is sufficient—Callahan v. James (Cal.) 71 Pac. 104; Marshall v. Hartzfelt (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1061; Oliver v. Wilhite, 201 Ill. 552.

Presumptions and evidence as to delivery: A deed in the possession of grantee is presumed to have been delivered—Inman v. Swearingen, 198 Ill. 437. On the day when it bears date—Atlantic City v. New Auditorium Pier Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 644. Recording by grantor raises presumption of delivery—Luckhart v. Luckhart (Iowa) 94 N. W. 461; Tarlton v. Griggs, 131 N. C. 216; Hildebrand v. Willig, 64 N. J. Eq. 249. But acknowledgment raises no presumption of delivery—Tarlton v. Griggs, 131 N. C. 216. Evidence held sufficient to rebut presumption arising from recordation—Smith v. Smith, 116 Wis. 570. Or presumption arising from possession by grantee—Barron v Mercure (Mich.) 93 N. W. 1071. Evidence of delivery held sufficient—Inman v. Swearingen, 198 Ill. 437; Kuhn's Adm'r v. Kuhn, 24 Ky. L. R. 787, 69 S. W. 1077. Evidence held sufficient though deed was unrecorded and in possession of grantor—McGuire v. McGuire, 81 N. Y. Supp. 1134.

16. Delivery to a third person to be given to grantee after grantor's death is sufficient if grantor relinquishes all control—Bogan v. Swearingen, 199 Ill. 454. But otherwise if right of recall is retained by grantor—Tarlton v. Griggs, 131 N. C. 216; Johnson v. Johnson, 24 R. I. 571. The fact that at grantor's direction one of the deeds was delivered before his death does not show that he retained control—White v. Watts, 118 Iowa, 549. Delivery to grantee with direction to record after grantor's death is sufficient—Seifert v. Seifert (Kan.) 71 Pac. 271.

17. Wells v. Hobson, 91 Mo. App. 379. Acts of ownership after delivery constitute an acceptance—White v. Watts, 118 Iowa, 549; Williams v. Van Geison, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 592; Ewing v. Stanley, 24 Ky. L. R. 633, 69 S. W. 724.

18. See article on Fraudulent Conveyances for effect of want of consideration as to creditors.

Validity of assent.[19]—As in all other contracts, the parties must be competent to contract,[20] and must be free from fraud,[21] mistake,[22] and undue influence.[23]

§ 2. Recordation.[24]—The recording of a deed is unnecessary as between the parties,[25] but under the registry laws an unrecorded deed is of no effect against a subsequent purchaser in good faith,[26] and a judgment creditor is a purchaser within

19. This subject will be more fully treated in forthcoming articles on Incompetency, Duress, Fraud and Undue Influence and Mistake. Proceedings to set aside are treated in Cancellation of Instruments. Ante, page 413.

20. Man of 73 held competent—Stringfellow v. Hanson, 25 Utah, 480, 71 Pac. 1052. Woman of 73 held competent—Dean v. Dean, 42 Or. 290, 70 Pac. 1039. Woman of 76 held incompetent—Chadd v. Moser, 25 Utah, 369, 71 Pac. 870. Habitual drunkard held incompetent—Hardy v. Dyas, 203 Ill. 211. Ability to understand the nature and consequences of the transaction is the test of competency —Stringfellow v. Hanson, 25 Utah, 480, 71 Pac. 1052. If grantor was able to understand the nature and value of his property and how he wanted to dispose of it he is competent—Hayman v. Wakeham (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1062.

21. Deed set aside where there was great disparity of intelligence and grantor reposed confidence in grantee—Cannon v. Gilmer, 135 Ala. 302. False representation as to purpose for which property was to be used held sufficient to set aside—Brett v. Cooney, 75 Conn. 338. Transfers by which the attorney in fact of an insane person obtained his principal's land held fraudulent—Clay v. Hammond, 199 Ill. 370. Conveyance by way of compromise where grantee's claim was fraudulently made set aside—Dashner v. Buffington, 170 Mo. 260. Evidence of fraud held insufficient—Stewart v. Dunn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631; Haynes v. Harriman (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1100; Simon's Estate, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 450. Evidence of fraud sufficient —Barry v. Murphy, 24 Ky. L. R. 953, 70 S. W. 276; Wilson v. Winsor, 24 Ky. L. R. 1343, 71 S. W. 495; Highland v. Highland, 24 Ky. L. R. 2242, 73 S. W. 791. The burden of proving fraud is on the party alleging it—Simon's Estate, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 450. Conveyance by old and illiterate woman to her pastor (McClellan v. Grant, 83 App. Div. [N. Y.] 599); or physician (Norfleet v. Beall [Miss.] 34 So. 328) held presumptively fraudulent.

22. Mistake must be mutual—Stewart v. Dunn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631. Evidence held insufficient to show that deed by an old woman to her son was induced by mistake as to her duty to support him—Chadd v. Moser, 25 Utah, 369, 71 Pac. 870.

23. Influence arising from affection is unobjectionable—Adair v. Craig, 135 Ala. 332. Relationship of brother and sister raises no presumption—Reeves v. Howard, 118 Iowa, 121. Conveyance from wife to husband without consideration presumptively invalid —Wilson v. Winsor, 24 Ky. L. R. 1343, 71 S. W. 495. Evidence of undue influence as between principal and agent held insufficient—Adair v. Craig, 135 Ala. 332. As between relatives—Chowning v. Howser, 24 Ky. L. R. 1951, 72 S. W. 748; Ryan v. Ryan (Mo.) 73 S. W. 494; Chadd v. Moser, 25 Utah, 369, 71 Pac. 870; Vance v. Davis (Wis.) 95 N. W. 939; Stringfellow v. Hanson, 25 Utah, 480, 71 Pac. 1052; Reeves v. Howard, 118 Iowa, 121; Dean v. Dean, 42 Or. 290, 70 Pac. 1039; Apland v. Pott (S. D.) 92 N. W. 19. Evidence of undue influence held sufficient—Highland v. Highland, 24 Ky. L. R. 2242, 73 S. W. 791; Babcock v. Clark, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 502; Barry v. Murphy, 24 Ky. L. R. 953, 70 S. W. 276.

24. This subject will be more fully treated in the forthcoming article on Notice and Record of Tittle. See, also, Adverse Possession record as color of title and Evidence admissibility of certificate of record in evidence.

25. Whalon v. North Platte Canal & Colonization Co. (Wyo.) 71 Pac. 995.

26. Goosby v. Johnson, 24 Ky. L. R. 610, 69 S. W. 697; Waggoner v. Dodson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 400.

Who is a bona fide purchaser: To take as against a prior deed the purchaser must have had no actual knowledge thereof—Michigan Trust Co. v. City of Red Cloud (Mich.) 92 N. W. 900; Buchholz v. Leadbetter, 11 N. D. 473. Though in a few states the states do not require good faith and admit of no substitute for the record—Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106. And must not have been in possession of information putting him on inquiry—Truth Lodge v. Barton (Iowa) 93 N. W. 106; Atlantic City v. New Auditorium Pier Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 644; Albany Exch. Sav. Bank v. Brass, 171 N. Y. 693; Bigelow v. Brewer, 29 Wash. 670, 70 Pac. 129; Beebe v. Wisconsin Mortg. Loan Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 1103. Such as possession of the premises—Storthz v. Chapline (Ark.) 70 S. W. 465; Allen v. Moore, 30 Colo. 307, 70 Pac. 682; Kirkham v. Moore, 30 Ind. App. 549; Gillespie v. Buffalo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 204 Pa. 107; Gray v. Zelmer (Kan.) 72 Pac. 228; Linder v. Whitehead, 116 Ga. 206. Under the North Carolina act possession under an unrecorded deed gives no rights against a subsequent grantee—Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106. Payment of value is essential to constitute one a bona fide purchaser—Grove v. Grove (Va.) 42 S. E. 312; Mackey v. Gabel, 117 Fed. 873; Sullivan v. McLane (Tex.) 70 S. W. 949; Trice v. Comstock (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 620. "A valuable consideration" means a fair and reasonable price—Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106. One who had agreed to purchase and had begun a suit for specific performance at the time of recording the deed is not a "subsequent purchaser"—Noyes v. Crawford, 118 Iowa, 15. Where one buys property described generally as all the land owned by grantor in a certain state he is entitled to the protection of the registry laws as to all land which grantor appeared by the records to own—Boynton v. Haggart (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 819.

Sufficiency of record as notice: A record not indexed is not notice—Koch v. West (Iowa) 92 N. W. 663. But under a statute providing that a deed takes effect from the time it is filed for record, it has been held that a this rule.[27] As a prerequisite to recording, it is generally provided that a deed shall be executed with certain formalities not essential to the mere passing of title between the parties,[28] or as a substitute, proved by a subscribing witness.[29]

§ 3. Interpretation and effect.[30] General rules.—The interpretation of a deed is for the court.[31] A deed will be construed against the grantor,[32] but reservations are to be construed in his favor.[33]

Designation of parties.[34]—The word "administratrix" affixed to the name of grantee is descriptio personae.[35] "Heirs" in designation of grantees is frequently held to mean "issue."[36]

Description of property conveyed.—A deed ordinarily conveys only such land as is clearly within its terms,[37] but passes without mention all that is appurtenant,[38] or affixed to the realty[39] and a reservation of a building has been held to include land inclosed with it.[40] On the other hand latent equities will not diminish the property clearly conveyed.[41] In case of conflict, metes and bounds control statement of quantity,[42] but statement of quantity prevails over a reference to the land as that obtained by grantor from a certain source.[43] deed is effective against a third person without notice though recorded in the wrong book—Durrence v. Northern Nat. Bank (Ga.) 43 S. E. 726. In some states the statute allows a specified time for recording deeds, after which they shall be void as to bona fide purchasers. Under such a statute a deed not recorded within such time is nevertheless notice after it is recorded (Blackwell v. British American Mortg. Co., 65 S. C. 105); but if neither of two deeds is recorded within the time limited that first recorded takes precedence—McLeod v. Lloyd (Or.) 71 Pac. 795. The record of a deed by the grantee to another is no notice of the deed to him—Goosby v. Johnson, 24 Ky. L. R. 610, 69 S. W. 697; Hart v. Gardner (Miss.) 33 So. 442; Boynton v. Haggart (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 519. But reference in a recorded deed to other deeds puts purchasers on inquiry as to the same—Mitchell v. D'Olier, 68 N. J. Law, 375; Waggoner v. Dodson (Tex.) 73 S. W. 517. The fact that one deed in the chain is a quit claim is no notice of outstanding unrecorded deeds—Boynton v. Haggart (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 819.

Evidence of recording held sufficient—Riviere v. Wilkens (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 608.

27. Gary v. Newton, 201 Ill. 170.

28. See, also, article on Acknowledgment, ante, p. 17, and forthcoming article on Mortgages. Certificate of acknowledgment held sufficient though it did not show whether notary was appointed by court or governor—Durrence v. Northern Nat. Bank (Ga.) 43 S. E. 726. Deed with but one subscribing witness may be recorded, under Hart, Dig. art. 2760—Riviere v. Wilkens (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 608.

29. The affidavit of a subscribing witness who did not in fact see the grantor execute the deed is insufficient—Baxley v. Baxley, 117 Ga. 60.

30. Only the interpretation of the language of deeds is here treated. The nature of estates and rights incident thereto will be discussed in forthcoming articles on Real Property and Life Estates, Remainders and Reversions.

31. Holmes v. Weinheimer (S. C.) 44 S. E. 82. Interpretation of the language of the deed is for the court but application of the description to the land when extraneous evidence has been admitted is for the jury—Snooks v. Wingfield, 52 W. Va. 441.

32. Van Winkle v. Van Winkle, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 593.

33. Sears v. Ackerman, 138 Cal. 583, 72 Pac. 171.

34. A deed reciting receipt of consideration from "Mrs. S" and with grant and habendum to "said S" conveys to Mrs. S, not to her husband—Day v. Shiver (Ala.) 33 So. 831.

35. Richardson v. Biglane (Miss.) 33 So. 650.

36. So held where a life estate was given to grantor's wife with remainder to the heirs of grantor and his wife—Beedy v. Finney, 118 Iowa, 276.

37. The burden is on grantee to show that a deed embraces lands not clearly covered by its terms—Peery v. Elliott (Va.) 44 S. E. 919.

38. Railroad embankment and rails—Van Husan v. Omaha Bridge & T. Ry. Co., 118 Iowa, 366. Easement of drainage—Overton v. Moseley, 135 Ala. 599. Right to obtain water through pipes laid in street—Mulrooney v. Obear, 171 Mo. 613.

39. See forthcoming article on Fixtures.

40. A reservation of a chapel together with the land on which the same stood has been held to include stables 40 feet from the chapel and inclosed with it—Weed v. Woods, 71 N. H. 581.

41. Where a husband supplied a deficiency in the purchase price of lands bought by executors as an investment of a legacy to the wife and a deed was made to her with his consent she took the entire tract and not merely the proportion represented by the amount paid by the executors—Clay v. Clay's Guardian, 24 Ky. L. R. 2016, 72 S. W. 810.

42. Seeders v. Shaw, 200 Ill. 93.

See also title Boundaries ante, p. 346.

43. A deed of an undivided interest in 2,500 acres "to which I am entitled as widow," etc., conveys an interest in 2,500 acres only though the widow's share was a larger tract—Laufer v. Powell (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 549. A deed of an undivided three-sevenths "being the interest I hold

Quantum of estate conveyed.—A quitclaim deed conveys only such interest as grantor may have,[44] but where one conveys with warranty, title subsequently acquired by him accrues to his grantee.[45] The rule in Shelley's Case, though abolished in some states, is followed in others.[46] Limitations of the estate conveyed must be in the granting or habendum clause,[47] but these clauses will be construed together.[48] A deed to several without designation of interest ordinarily makes them joint tenants at common law, but the rule by statute in many states makes them tenants in common only.[49]

A reservation of timber reserves title thereto and not merely the right to remove within a reasonable time.[50] A reserved right may be sold if so provided in the deed.[51]

Conditions and restrictions.[52]—A breach of a condition does not work a forfeiture in the absence of words to that effect,[53] but where a forfeiture is stipulated it may be enforced though there is a remedy at law,[54] but where the failure to perform was due to mistake, grantee will be allowed to pay damages.[55] Where the condition is severable, the forfeiture will be proportioned to the breach.[56] Grantor can-as heir at law," etc., conveys a three-sevenths interest though grantor's interest as heir was less—Johnson v. Johnson, 170 Mo. 34. A conveyance of all grantor's right, title and interest is not limited by a recital of his interest which states it as less than it is—Murphy v. Murphy (N. C.) 43 S. E. 922. But a conveyance of all grantor's interest will be restricted to his interest by purchase only where such intent appears—Curtis v. Zutavern (Neb.) 93 N. W. 400.

44. Curtis v. Zutavern (Neb.) 93 N. W. 400. Subject to previous deeds by grantor—Wetzstein v. Largey, 27 Mont. 212, 70 Pac. 717. Equitable interests pass—Uihlein v. Matthews, 172 N. Y. 154; Cauble v. Worsham (Tex.) 70 S. W. 737; Sowles v. Lewis, 75 Vt. 59.

45. The rule that where one without title attempts to convey in fee subsequently acquired title inures to the benefit of grantee (Rev. St. § 4591) does not make such subsequent title accrue to purchasers at sales for taxes levied against the grantee, but grantor retains such title—Wilson v. Fisher, 172 Mo. 10. Where land was adversely held at the time of a conveyance with warranty, the conveyance is void and an after acquired title does not accrue to the grantee—Altemus v. Nichols (Ky.) 74 S. W. 221. After acquired title does not inure to the grantee unless the deed contains covenants of seisin or warranty—Altemus v. Asher, 24 Ky. L. R. 2401, 2416, 74 S. W. 245. A quitclaim deed with habendum to grantee and his heirs forever will convey an after acquired title—West Seattle Land & Imp. Co. v. Novelty Mill Co., 31 Wash. 435, 72 Pac. 69.

See, also, Estoppel.

46. A deed to one and his heirs with reversion on failure of heirs—Davis v. Sturgeon, 198 Ill. 520. Or of a life estate to one with remainder to his heirs, vests the fee in grantee—Shapley v. Diehl, 203 Pa. 566. But it is otherwise as to a grant to one and his "bodily heirs"—Utter v. Sidman, 170 Mo. 284. Or "heirs of his body"—Mattison v. Mattison (S. C). 43 S. E. 874. And a grant of a life estate with habendum in fee to his "heirs" has been held not to vest the fee in grantee—Christ v. Kuehne, 172 Mo. 118.

47. Humphrey v. Potter, 24 Ky. L. R. 1264, 70 S. W. 1062. And a grant of a life estate to a married woman is not enlarged by an added clause that she is to hold the same free from her husband's "control, liabilities, curtesy and all other interest"—Chew v. Kellar, 171 Mo. 215. Nor does a clause granting power to grantee to appoint remainderman among his heirs—Taylor v. Adams, 93 Mo. App. 277.

48. Grant without limitation with habendum to heirs on death of grantee gives life estate to grantee—Beedy v. Finney, 118 Iowa, 276. As does a grant to one and habendum to him and his "bodily heirs" though the covenant of warranty runs to "heirs and assigns"—Utter v. Sidman, 170 Mo. 284. Or a grant to one of a life estate with habendum to his heirs in fee—Christ v. Kuehne, 172 Mo. 118.

49. A grant to one and his children makes them joint tenants—Hallam v. Ashford, 24 Ky. L. R. 870, 70 S. W. 197. Where one and his "children" are named as parties of the second part they take as tenants in common though the granting and habendum clauses run to the "party" of the second part—Tyler v. Lilly (Miss.) 33 So. 445. A deed providing that a dooryard adjacent to the granted premises should be used by grantor and grantee in common gives grantee an easement and not a tenancy in common—Deavitt v. Washington County (Vt.) 53 Atl. 563. Where the grant is to two persons jointly, with habendum to them, their heirs and assigns, a clause that one should not come into possession until the death of the other does not make the person whose enjoyment is deferred a mere remainderman—Pickett v. Garrard, 131 N. C. 195.

50. Sears v. Ackerman, 138 Cal. 583, 72 Pac. 171.

51. Right to use wall of granted building for party wall—Alexander v. Parks, 24 Ky. L. R. 2113, 72 S. W. 1105.

52. See article on Buildings, ante, p. 404 for restrictions and character of erections and use thereof.

53. Rankin Regular Baptist Church v. Edwards, 204 Pa. 216.

54. Wanner v. Wanner, 115 Wis. 196.

55. Laking v. French, 183 Mass. 9.

not claim a forfeiture because he was permitted by grantee to break the condition.[57] Holdings as to breach of particular conditions are found in the notes.[58] On condition broken, grantor need not demand performance,[59] and delay in suing is no bar.[60] Grantor is entitled to rents and profits from time of suit.[61] No language in the deed will permit others than the grantor or his heirs to re-enter for condition broken.[62]

Extinguishment of rights.—Title is not divested by a return of the deed to the grantor.[63]

DEFAULTS.

§ 1. Elements and indicia of default.—The party must have been delinquent in appearance or pleading.[64] Jurisdiction must have attached.[65] In an action begun by attachment, pleading under a rule may be equivalent to an appearance.[66] If service be constructive, every requirement of the statute must be fulfilled.[67] A court exercising a special jurisdiction in a statutory remedy must not enter a default without showing facts in the record supporting its jurisdiction.[68]

The pleadings and proceedings must sustain the judgment if it be given,[70] and there must be no responsive pleadings if the default is in pleading,[71] and those which are not responsive may be disregarded.[72] The full time to plead must be 56. Condition against incumbrances; only part incumbered held to be forfeited—Fouts v. Millikan, 30 Ind. App. 298.

57. First Presbyterian Church v. Elliott, 65 S. C. 251.

58. A condition that grantee shall not incumber applies only to voluntary incumbrances, not to lien for taxes—Fouts v. Millikan, 30 Ind. App. 298. A condition to build within a reasonable time is broken by failure to build within ten years—Union College v. City of New York, 173 N. Y. 38. Evidence held to show performance of condition to support grantor—Hilgar v. Miller, 42 Or. 552, 72 Pac. 319.

59. Union College v. City of New York, 173 N. Y. 38.

60. Fifteen years delay in suing where condition was to erect building in reasonable time—Union College v. City of New York, 173 N. Y. 38.

61. Union College v. City of New York, 173 N. Y. 38.

62. The right before breach is not subject of assignment—First Presbyterian Church v. Elliott, 65 S. C. 251.

63. Goodwin v. Tyrrell (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 906; McClendon v. Brockett (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 854. The deed may be reformed or cancelled. See Cancellation of Instruments; Reformation of Instruments.

64. Entry of default judgment after appearance is mere error but not void—Culbertson v. Salinger (Iowa) 97 N. W. 99.

65. Ault v. Cowan, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 628; Russell v. Butler (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 395. Constructive service against one named by initials is bad—Gillian v. McDowell (Neb.) 92 N. W. 991. Serving two parties in two actions not consolidated does not put both in default—Swift v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 42. An original return held not invalid for slight misnomer of corporation defendant—Southern Bell Tel. Co. v. Earle (Ga.) 45 S. E. 319. Default cannot be taken on action by attachment if attachment affidavits are assailed—J. H. Mohlman Co. v. Landwehr, 83 N. Y. Supp. 1073.

66. Myler v. Wittish, 204 Pa. 180.

67. The order appointed no attorneys for nonresidents—Jones v. Griffin, 25 Ky. L. R. 117, 74 S. W. 713.

68. Default in answering interrogatories as on discovery—Goodwater Warehouse Co. v. Street (Ala.) 34 So. 903.

70. Tremblay v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 97 Me. 547. Contracts and bonds securing performance need not be exhibited in action against sureties—Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. United States, 187 U. S. 315, 47 Law. Ed. 194. Plaintiff must show performance on his part of a contract exhibited for payment of money—Hibbert v. Guardian Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 3 Pen. (Del.) 591. Petition founded on a note and mortgage held sufficient to pray personal judgment against original makers in favor of another defendant who as assignor of the debt as collateral to plaintiff adopted the petition as a cross-petition—Crist v. Davidson (Wis.) 93 N. W. 532. If they are not and default judgment is erroneously taken the remedy is by motion to set aside and not by oral demurrer—Gillian v. Gillian, 65 S. C. 129.

71. Demurrer remained undisposed of—Warford v. Temple, 24 Ky. L. R. 2268, 73 S. W. 1023. Judgment as on default is harmless when entered a month after overruling demurrer defendant not having answered over—Lane v. Dowd (Mo.) 72 S. W. 632. Under the Texas practice a firm is brought in by serving members and hence cannot be defaulted though each answers as an individual—Owen v. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 432.

72. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Porter (Fla.) 33 So. 473.

allowed.[73] A cross petition filed after time does not put the plaintiff in default if he fails to answer.[74] If pleadings be amended, the time for answer is reckoned anew,[75] unless the amendment be not material.[76] Continuing the cause with time to plead may also make an answer at the succeeding term timely.[77] The affidavit required by many statutes must supply the statutory requirements.[78] Action against principal and surety is "ex contractu" so that want of an affidavit of defense may be a default.[79]

A default may be waived.[80]

The practice fixing time to plead,[81] or the term at which trial is set down[82] is elsewhere shown and additional cases are there cited.

§ 2. Default by part of co-defendants.—All must be impleaded or brought into one action.[83] One co-defendant may answer after others have compelled an amendment of the complaint.[84]

§ 3. Procedure on default; taking judgment.—Plaintiff must promptly move to enter judgment lest he become chargeable with laches.[85] Proof must be taken of such facts as are not admitted,[86] and is usually required on all the facts in divorce,[87] or in actions against infants,[88] or to guard generally against a fraud on the court or the parties.[89] Clerks cannot as a rule enter final judgment where further proof than the admitted allegations is necessary to ascertain the liability.[90] The plaintiff may properly be required to prove the taking in replevin, that not being for recovery of money only wherein judgment is entered by the clerk on the verified complaint.[91] Scire facias on a judgment is ex contractu in form within default statutes.[92]

Under the West Virginia practice of taking an office judgment, defendant must, in ex contractu actions when there is no order for inquiry of damages, plead to issue at the next term or defense will be barred at the expiration of the term and plaintiff may then have judgment absolute on his filing affidavit as to amount due and unpaid which affidavit he may file later than the term succeeding office judgment. If there is an order for inquiry the plea may be filed at the next or at a later

73. Removing cause before time to put in affidavit and recalling it afterwards prevents default—Muir v. Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 203 Pa. 338.

74. Koehler v. Reed (Neb.) 96 N. W. 380. On error demurrer presumed to have been too late—Grant v. Commercial Nat. Bank (Neb.) 93 N. W. 185.

75. Demurrant must have service of amended complaint drawn out by motions of co-defendants in tort—Merrill v. Thompson, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 503. If an entirely new cause of action be pleaded by amendment there must be new process or its equivalent—Cope v. Slayden, 24 Ky. L. R. 1734, 72 S. W. 284.

76. O'Connor v. Brucker (Ga.) 43 S. E. 731.

77. White v. Lokey, 131 N. C. 72.

78. Affidavit held not sufficient to verify account sued on—Reybold v. Denny, 3 Pen. (Del.) 589.

79. Rule 73 Sup. Ct. D. C.—Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. United States, 187 U. S. 315, 47 Law. Ed. 194.

80. Muir v. Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 203 Pa. 338. By appearing to later proceedings without objection—In re F. W. Myers & Co., 123 Fed. 952.

Stipulation that pleadings should be deemed filed in time void for want of consideration—Southern Bell Tel. Co. v. Earle (Ga.) 45 S. E. 319.

81. Pleading.

82. Dockets, Calendars and Trial Lists.

83. Swift v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 42. Railroad party not served is not in default to suit resulting in judgment against receiver—Ault v. Cowan, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 628.

84. Merrill v. Thompson, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 503.

85. Eight years, too late—Coleman v. Akers, 87 Minn. 492. Final judgment may be taken any time after default is entered in City Court of Macon—O'Connell Bros. v. Friedman (Ga.) 45 S. E. 668.

86. See § 5 post as to what is admitted. The burden of proving substantial damage remains on plaintiff—Osborn v. Leach (N. C.) 45 S. E. 783.

87. Kline v. Kline, 104 Ill. App. 274. And see generally Divorce.

88. See Infants.

89. See Equity.

90. Liability under the mortgage clause in an insurance policy must be sent out to jury not being money demand on a money contract—Glens Falls Ins. Co. v. Porter (Fla.) 33 So. 473.

91. Sibley v. Weinberg, 116 Wis. 1.

92. For "recovery of money arising out of contract"—Marstiller v. Ward, 52 W. Va. 74.

term, either in tort or contract. When there has been no order and plaintiff has put in his affidavit which must state what is "unpaid" as well as "due" he is, on defendant's failure to plead, entitled to judgment and may compel its entry by the court.[93]

The burden of proof of damages is on plaintiff generally but defendant must prove facts relieving him from liability.[94] Under the Connecticut practice, a defaulting defendant reserving the right to disprove material allegations has the burden.[95]

The judgment must follow the issues.[96] Judgment by default does not "deny" trial by jury.[97]

§ 4. Opening defaults.—When the default has passed into judgment, the judgment may for certain causes be opened or vacated either by a statutory proceeding on motion or action or by a bill or equitable action. The grounds are usually fraud, accident, or mistake or some vital defect of jurisdiction. The fact in such cases that there was a default is of persuasive but not controlling force and since the remedies do not depend on default they are relegated to another title for consideration.[98]

The right to relief is lost by one who parts with all interest in the subject-matter of the action.[99] A garnishee defendant has an interest entitling him to relief.[1]

Mistake of fact,[2] or excusable[3] neglect or absence, is generally a ground to

93. Marstiller v. Ward, 52 W. Va. 74 construing Code, 1899, c. 125, § 46.

94. Bernhard v. Curtis, 75 Conn. 476.

In tort defendant must prove contributory negligence—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548. While the facts alleged cannot be disproved, defendant may cross-examine on the trial of damages and may move to dismiss for insufficiency of petition or may request a peremptory charge—O'Connor v. Brucker (Ga.) 43 S. E. 731.

95. Upton v. Town of Windham, 75 Conn. 288.

96. In action against partnership default cannot run against members individually—Williams v. Hurley, 135 Ala. 319.

97. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. United States, 187 U. S. 315, 47 Law. Ed. 194.

98. See Judgments. Prior to Acts 1902, p. 117 the judge of the City Court of Atlanta could not allow a defense to be put in after default—Southern Bell Tel. Co. v. Earle (Ga.) 45 S. E. 319.

99. Browne v. Palmer (Neb.) 92 N. W. 315.

1. Sprague v. Auffmordt, 183 Mass. 7.

2. Between general officers of a corporation as to which one was to employ attorneys to defend an action is excuse—Barto v. Sioux City Elec. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 268. Evidence held sufficient to disprove intention to default—Id. Mistake in trying to serve notice of appearance due to illegible signature of plaintiff's attorney on summons is sufficient—Wheeler v. Castor, 11 N. D. 347. Illiteracy does not excuse the confounding of the case with a pending one and consequent default where the summons was read to defendant at his request—Dean v. Noel, 24 Ky. L. R. 969, 70 S. W. 406. Mistaken belief that service was invalid because not made by officer is of law and not fact—Plano Mfg. Co. v. Murphy (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1072.

3. "Reasonable excuse" must satisfy discretion of court—Deering Harvester Co. v. Thompson, 116 Ga. 418. Misunderstanding which misled associate counsel to forbear putting in defense held sufficient—MacCall v. Looney (Neb.) 96 N. W. 238. Absence of attorney subpoenaed by another court—Hopkins v. Meyer, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 365. Neglect to appear due to being misled by summons to wrong term is excused—Patterson v. Yancey, 97 Mo. App. 681. Reliance on settlement pendente lite held sufficient excuse for default—McBride v. McGinley, 31 Wash. 573, 72 Pac. 105. Permanent departure of attorney from state without notice and his subsequent failure to oppose dismissal excuses plaintiff's default in prosecuting—Atkinson v. Abraham, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 498. Allowance of insufficient time (two days) to answer application for mandamus while attorney was absent held sufficient—People v. Brett, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631. Neglect may be attorney's if excusable—O'Brien v. Leach, 139 Cal. 220, 72 Pac. 1004.

Erroneous extension of time to answer to a day out of term is no excuse—Deering Harvester Co. v. Thompson, 116 Ga. 418. Default after service on local agent who merely informed plaintiff and the serving officer that the general agent should be served but received no intimation that it would be done is not excused—Morris v. Liverpool, L. & G. Ins. Co., 131 N. C. 212. Reliance on clerk's statement that he would not send over transcript on change of venue until payment of costs is not excusable when statute obliges him to immediately send it and gives remedy to collect costs—Patterson v. Yancey, 97 Mo. App. 681. Failure of attorney to inform one employed in his stead of pendency of action is no excuse—Welch v. Mastin (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1090. Party denied relief who had not relied wholly on counsel who was absent at hearing on cross-complaint—Harlow v. First Nat. Bank, 30 Ind. App. 160. Neglect held inexcusable open a default, and good cause must be shown,[4] since the discretion of the court will ultimately control.[5] Neglect is not excused in one who relied on counsel to the extent of withholding all personal attention.[6] Existence of a meritorious defense is not alone sufficient but merely persuasive,[7] and mere error is not sufficient.[8]

The proposed defense must show merit and not be merely technical.[9]

Conditions may be imposed,[10] but should not be where plaintiff has procured the default by fraud,[11] or where the default could not be entered.[12] Costs are frequently imposed as a condition.[13] Times to plead or for hearing on the issues may be accelerated on reinstating the cause.[14]

Motion or application must be at the same term,[15] or within the time prescribed,[16] unless the default was one that the court could not enter.[17] Everything necessary to support the opening should be shown,[18] including a copy of the prothough party claimed to have mailed pleadings—Osborn v. Leach (N. C.) 45 S. E. 783. Party not excused whose agent had actual notice—Turner v. J. I. Case T.-M. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 781.

4. Lasswell v. Kitt (N. M.) 70 Pac. 561. Opening refused on application of one bearing a name variant from judgment and against whom its enforcement is not sought —Meurer v. Berlin, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 294.

5. Welch v. Mastin (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1090; O'Brien v. Leach, 139 Cal. 220, 72 Pac. 1004.

6. Evidence held insufficient to show defendant's inability to appear, his counsel having been remiss in arranging for a continuance—Pepper v. Clegg, 132 N. C. 312. Compare Osborn v. Leach (N. C.) 45 S. E. 783.

7. Welch v. Mastin (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1090; Osborn v. Leach (N. C.) 45 S. E. 783; Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Driskill (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 997; Turner v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 781. It is required in Iowa if opened after term—Culbertson v. Salinger (Iowa) 97 N. W. 99.

8. Such as published service when defendant was not nonresident but only absent—Smothers v. Meridian Fertilizer Factory (Ala.) 33 So. 898. Clerical errors and omissions—Acklen v. Fink, 95 Md. 655; Shelby v. St. James Asylum (Neb.) 92 N. W. 155.

9. Sutherland v. Mead, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 103; Johnson v. Richardson (Kan.) 73 Pac. 113; Childs v. Ferguson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 409. Allegations of contributory negligence, assumed risk, denial of negligence and of injuries complained of is meritorious—Barto v. Sioux City Elec. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 268. Limitation is meritorious—Wheeler v. Castor, 11 N. D. 347. Defense of fraud which he failed to make by defaulting after general denial will not avail—Hoffman v. Loudon, 96 Mo. App. 184. Must be adjudged meritorious—Waters v. Raker (Neb.) 96 N. W. 78.

If sufficient to defeat the judgment it may suffice though technical as where the case cannot be made for lack of witnesses and there is testimony available to make defense—Culbertson v. Salinger (Iowa) 97 N. W. 99.

10. Chicago v. English, 198 Ill. 211. Reasonable to require immediate filing of pleadings and trial in three days—Id.

11. Defendant wife not required to submit to interrogation where her husband as co-defendant colluded with plaintiff—Rauer's Law & Collection Co. v. Gilleran, 138 Cal. 352, 71 Pac. 445.

12. Payment of counsel fee and undertaking to pay judgment not proper on excusable default of answering defendant—Hopkins v. Meyer, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 365.

13. Atkinson v. Abraham, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 498. Items enumerated—Randall v. Shields, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 625.

14. Hearing on demurrer in three days and trial a week later without time to plead over held proper—Chicago v. English, 198 Ill. 211. When a cause is reinstated and demurrer filed it need not be sent to the contested motion calendar but may be argued sooner—Id.

15. Leavitt v. Bolton, 102 Ill. App. 582; First Nat. Bank v. Flynn, 117 Iowa, 493. It will be deemed timely if filed at term though not heard till day of next term and though record does not show that motion was called and continued—Donaldson v. Copeland, 201 Ill. 540. The judgment became absolute where while standing before an assessor a motion in court for continuance was not prosecuted and judgment of neither party was entered—Green v. Fitchburg R. Co., 116 Fed. 928.

16. If within 60 days "after the party has notice" it matters not that summons was "served" eight years before—Coleman v. Akers, 87 Minn. 492, construing Sp. Laws 1889, c. 351. In city court of Macon not after final judgment—O'Connell Bros. v. Friedman (Ga.) 45 S. E. 668. Two years time "after notice" when service is by mail —Atkinson v. Abraham, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 498, reconciling Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724, 798.

17. Default pending bankruptcy—First Nat. Bank v. Flynn, 117 Iowa, 493. Such a default (entered prematurely) is an irregularity remediable by motion to set aside judgment within three years—Reed v. Nicholson, 93 Mo. App. 29.

18. Excuse for default—Childs v. Ferguson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 409. Allegations of mistake as excuse for neglect held sufficient—MacCall v. Looney (Neb.) 96 N. W. 238. Refused in divorce to wife personally served and who did not deny guilt except to say that she had a "good defense" and presented no affidavit of merits or answer—Maguire v. Maguire, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 534. Objection that petition did not show that term had ended when petitioner first knew of judgment must be taken below—MacCall v. Looney (Neb.) 96 N. W. 238.

posed answer,[19] or its equivalent.[20] There should be an affidavit of merits,[21] unless the court dispenses with one[22] or the judgment is irregular on its face.[23]

If the petition to open a judgment be not diligently prosecuted and proved it will be denied.[24] The moving party has the burden of proof.[25]

The judgment should ordinarily be opened and not stricken off,[26] and may be retained as security.[27] A judgment which is joint and several need not be vacated as to answering co-parties of the applicant.[28] Extension of time to plead may be granted on notice of motion only to open default.[29] The order is sometimes required to embody findings.[30] If it is still pending, an order opening default may itself be set aside.[31]

§ 5. Operation and effect of default.—Generally speaking the defaulting party admits every issuable allegation,[32] but may assail the judgment for fundamental defects,[33] and may appear and cross-examine on an issue to try damages.[34] Statutes sometimes provide for saving defenses by timely notice.[35] A default judgment is a conclusive adjudication.[36]

DEPOSITIONS.

§ 1. Occasion or necessity; right to take.—Where the only witness who could testify as to the main point in issue resided in another state and was unwilling to

19. Childs v. Ferguson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 409; Waters v. Raker (Neb.) 96 N. W. 78; Meyer v. City of New York, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584. Copy of proposed pleading should be annexed to motion papers—Schumpp v. Interurban St. Ry. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 576.

20. Court may take affidavit in lieu—Wheeler v. Castor, 11 N. D. 347.

21. The affidavit or verification must be positive. Not on information and belief—Smothers v. Meridian Fertilizer Factory (Ala.) 33 So. 898. It must be objected to below for defects—Headings v. Gavette, 83 N. Y. Supp. 1017.

22. Crane v. Sauntry (Minn.) 96 N. W. 794.

23. Hence one is required where there was an answer, though filed without authority, but no process—Chambers v. Gallup (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1009.

24. It was improperly verified and petitioner did not appear on hearing—Smothers v. Meridian Fertilizer Factory (Ala.) 33 So. 898.

25. Of diligence—Wheeler v. Castor, 11 N. D. 347. If there is a conflict in affidavits relief will be denied—Hoffman v. Loudon, 96 Mo. App. 184. Affidavits denying service held sufficient against sheriff's return—Parker v. Van Dorn Iron Works, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 444.

Evidence. Actual notice to agent is presumed to have passed to defaulting principal unless the contrary is shown—Turner v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 781. Record held sufficient to show no service on one partner—Ricaud v. Alderman, 132 N. C. 62. Facts held sufficient on review though not strongly preponderating—Crane v. Sauntry (Minn.) 96 N. W. 794.

26. Davidson v. Miller, 204 Pa. 223.

27. In Municipal Court—Long Branch Pier Co. v. Crossley, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 249.

28. Patterson v. Yancey, 97 Mo. App. 681.

29. Headings v. Gavette, 83 N. Y. Supp. 1017.

30. The New York Municipal Court must recite the grounds on which it acted (Consol. Act, § 1367)—Johnson v. Manning, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 368. Finding of neglect without excuse sustains refusal without finding on merit of defense—Turner v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 781. Justice's findings not binding on Superior or reviewable in Supreme Court—Id.

31. Reed v. Nicholson, 93 Mo. App. 29. When the case is ordered set down for a certain day the court to which it is sent cannot move it forward without notice—Martin v. Universal Trust Co., 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 320.

32. Chicago v. English, 198 Ill. 211. Only cause of action and not substantial damages—Osborn v. Leach (N. C.) 45 S. E. 783. Execution of mortgage is admitted by default of a verified answer—Downing North Denver Land Co. v. Burns, 30 Colo. 283, 70 Pac. 413. The only question not admitted in action for unliquidated damages is amount—Southern Bell Tel. Co. v. Earle (Ga.) 45 S. E. 319. In an action for rent it is needless to show when it accrued—Chicago v. English, 198 Ill. 211.

33. Wolfe v. Murray, 96 Md. 727.

34. O'Connor v. Brucker (Ga.) 43 S. E. 731.

35. In an action for damages for failure to put a lessee in possession, the wrongful holding over of a former tenant as a defense is admitted away unless saved by the statutory notice—Bernhard v. Curtis, 75 Conn. 476.

36. See generally Former Adjudication. Judgment. Party as "trustee" is not barred by judgment against it not designated as trustee—Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Essex (Kan.) 71 Pac. 268. In support of it a demurrer was presumed to have been filed too late—Grant v. Commercial Nat. Bank (Neb.) 93 N. W. 185.

appear on the trial, a commission to take his testimony was properly issued,[37] and he may be examined on oral questions where he is likely to testify unfairly.[38] A busy physician is not within the words,—"a witness about to depart or who by reason of age, sickness 'or other causes'" shall be unable or unlikely to attend.[39] The Federal practice allows depositions where the witness lives over one hundred miles by the shortest route usually traveled.[40]

An application to take a deposition under a dedimus postestatem as authorized by U. S. Rev. Sts. § 866, cannot be granted under section 863, which relates only to the taking of depositions de bene esse and which section is expressly excluded from the operation of section 866.[41]

Under the chancery rule in Alabama, a deposition cannot be taken until the case is at issue by sufficient answer or decree pro confesso and should be suppressed where taken before such time.[42] Depositions may not be taken by a person before he has properly become a party to the suit particularly where there are nonresident defendants who have only been served by publication and have not appeared.[43]

A deposition may be taken for use on motion for a new trial,[44] and in proceedings in probate and administration.[45]

An order for the examination of witnesses to preserve testimony is properly vacated where it does not appear that the applicant is in hazard of losing such testimony.[46] The proceeding to perpetuate testimony may be terminated by stipulation allowing another to give the evidence of the party subsequently deceased.[47]

§ 2. Procedure to obtain deposition. In Nebraska there is no code provision requiring leave of court to entitle one to take a second deposition of the same witness for use in the same case.[49]

A California superior court sitting in probate may issue a commission.[50] The issuance of a commission to take testimony is a matter of judicial discretion in New York, to be exercised on the facts presented in a given case.[51] Where the opposing party files cross interrogatories and takes out a commission for the witness' deposition, the party initiating proceedings for the deposition is entitled to a commission, though the full time has not elapsed since the service of notice and precept on the opposite party.[52]

37. Frounfelker v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 67.

38. Witness was in the employ of party against whom his testimony was sought—Frounfelker v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 67.

39. Code, Miss, 1892, § 1747—American Exp. Co. v. Bradford (Miss.) 33 So. 843.

40. Not by a "short line" or air line—Jennings v. Menaugh, 118 Fed. 612.

41. North American Transp. & Trading Co. v. Howells (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 694.

42. Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455.

43. Riviere v. Wilkens (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 608.

44. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 885—O'Connor v. McLaughlin, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 305.

45. Code allows it in "any action in any court"—Reformed Presbyterian Church v. McMillan, 31 Wash. 643, 72 Pac. 502. The brother of an intestate living in a foreign country not cited to appear at the accounting of the administrator is entitled to an order for a commission issued with interrogatories for his examination on a proceeding by him for an accounting in which proceeding all the parties who were cited and did appear on the original accounting may join in the application for the commission and be represented in the execution thereof—In re Killan's Estate, 172 N. Y. 547.

46. In re Fulton, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 623.

47. A stipulation that plaintiff might testify as to what decedent said was the cause and extent of his injury as a consideration for the abandonment of the proceeding to perpetuate deceased's testimony, is broad enough to admit evidence that deceased stated on returning home that he was a passenger on defendant's freight train and that when at a certain station the trainmen caused the car in which he was riding to give a violent jerk which threw him from his seat against a door causing injuries to his head, shoulder, side and back—Thompson v. Fort Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 29.

49. Peycke v. Shinn (Neb.) 94 N. W. 135.

50. Reformed Presbyterian Church v. McMillan, 31 Wash. 643, 72 Pac. 502.

51. Frounfelker v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 67.

52. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Skaggs (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 783.

On the issuance of an open commission to take testimony, both parties should have the right to name witnesses whose examination is desired,[53] and the order should name the witnesses to be examined.[54] A case for the granting of an open commission to examine witnesses upon oral questions exists in the contest of a will where the testator and all the witnesses to capacity and influences surrounding testator reside in a distant state.[55] Where the first commission is an open one allowing the examination of witnesses that might be called by either party in a foreign country, a court may properly refuse a second commission when the affidavits of the proposed testimony showed no contradiction of testimony already taken.[56]

Interested parties should have notice of the taking[57] unless their interests are represented by other parties,[58] but where parties are numerous or interest is remote, code provisions sometimes dispense with service on all of them.[59]

In some states the notice cannot be served by a party to the action.[60] Notice "not less" than ten days excludes the day of service and the tenth day thereafter.[61]

§ 3. Taking the testimony or evidence adduced.—A commissioner to take testimony for use in a case in another state derives his authority from the foreign state and court,[62] and where the commission names a particular person to take the deposition, it cannot be taken by another, though the person named is absent and cannot act.[63] The commissioner to take testimony for use in a foreign court may be a resident of the foreign state.[64] The deposition may not be taken by a commissioner or notary who is the attorney of one of the parties, and this though there is no statutory provision against such practice.[65]

Where a deposition is taken at the place designated it is not important that there is a variance between the notice and certificate as to the name of the occupant of the office.[66] In New Jersey, formal proof of the commission need not be presented to support an order for subpoena,[67] nor is such an order a rule which must be entered within ten days.[68] A motion to the court to quash it and the writ when made by a judge does not require a certiorari since it is already before the court.[69] Such an order is illegal so far as it directs the production of the documents if the commission does not require them.[70] There is no authority to issue

53, 54. Corbin v. Anderson, 82 N. Y. Supp. 683.

55. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 897—Corbin v. Anderson, 82 N. Y. Supp. 683.

56. O'Callaghan v. O'Brien, 116 Fed. 934.

57. Vaught v. Murray, 24 Ky. L. R. 1587. 71 S. W. 924.

58. In taking a deposition in support of a claim against an estate, it is sufficient to notify the executor and any other person who may have appeared to resist the claim, but it is not necessary to notify every person who has an ultimate interest in the disposition of the property—Deuterman v. Ruppel, 103 Ill. App. 106.

59. A code provision that depositions may be taken on notice to the adverse party if there be only one, if there be several, to any one of them who is a real party in interest, does not authorize one of two defendants to take depositions by service of notice on the sole plaintiff and thereby upon his co-defendant (Burns' Rev. St. Ind. 1901, § 423)— Black v. Marsh (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 201.

60. Deposition taken thereunder inadmissible (Rev. Laws Mass. c. 175, § 29)—O'Connell v. Dow, 182 Mass. 541.

61. Code, S. C. § 2881—Williams v. Halford (S. C.) 45 S. E. 207.

62. In re Canter, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 126.

63. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. v. Cannon, 103 Ill. App. 534.

64. In re Canter, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 126.

65. Swink v. Anthony, 96 Mo. App. 420; Hacker v. United States, 37 Ct. Cl. 86. Where the commissioner certified that he was not of counsel or kin to either of the parties in said cause, an objection to the certificate on the ground that it did not certify that the commissioner was of counsel or of kin to any one or either of the parties to the cause was without merit—Bickley v. Bickley, 136 Ala. 548.

66. Particularly where the objector was present by representative at the taking of the deposition—Henry Sonneborn & Co. v. Southern Ry. Co., 65 S. C. 502.

67. In re Edison, 68 N. J. Law, 494.

68. Rule 40 of New Jersey Supreme Court not applicable—In re Edison, 68 N. J. Law, 494.

69. It is filed with the clerk—In re Edison, 68 N. J. Law, 494.

70. In re Edison, 68 N. J. Law, 494. Query if it can be allowed at all (Statute allows only "subpoena")—Id.

a subpoena where there is nothing in the application, order, or commission showing whether the commission was to be executed within or without the state in which the action was pending.[71] There is no abuse of discretion in refusing a continuance for want of a witness, where the commission for the taking of his deposition was issued in time, but was not placed in the hands of an officer to be executed.[72]

In Illinois, a commissioner may within reasonable limitations and for reasonable cause adjourn the taking of a deposition.[73]

Commissioners usually have ample means to compel witness to testify.[74]

A witness on a second examination may read over a copy of his testimony given on a previous examination and subscribe such testimony as his deposition.[75]

Cross-examination must not be unreasonably interfered with by the commissioner.[76] One allowed to appear after depositions have been taken is bound by the depositions, but may, on application, cross-examine the witnesses,[77] or on depositions taken by a new party original parties may also examine.[78]

A certificate that a deposition was reduced to writing by a specified person and subscribed by the witness in the presence of the notary shows sufficiently that the deposition was both reduced to writing and subscribed to in the presence of the notary.[79] A misrecital that exhibits are attached may be disregarded if they are fully identified.[80] In South Carolina a witness is not required to sign in the presence of the officer.[81]

A commissioner is not to be denied reasonable compensation for his services by the fact that there is no express statutory provision allowing such compensation.[82] The party at whose instance the deposition is taken is chargeable with the fees allowed to the commissioner, who may recover if the losing party fails to pay them as costs taxed.[83] In Georgia such fees are not to be regarded as taxable costs.[84] A continuance may be granted where the commissioner withholds a deposition on an illegal claim of fees.[85]

§ 4. Returning and filing. A deposition withdrawn from a case must be refiled to entitle it to be read on the trial.[86]

§ 5. Suppression before trial.—As a deposition may be used by either party and if suppressed may be retaken, trivial objections not promptly made will not be considered sufficient for their suppression, where no harm will result.[87] The motion must be made within the time fixed by statute,[88] and before the cause is called for trial.[89] The deposition will not be suppressed because taken during term in

71. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 914—In re Canter, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 103.

72. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Skaggs (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 783.

73. Bueb v. Dreessen, 104 Ill. App. 409.

74. Bernard v. Guidry, 109 La. 451.

75. Samuel Bros. Co. v. Hostetter Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 257.

76. Hacker v. United States, 37 Ct. Cl. 86.

77. Deuterman v. Ruppel, 103 Ill. App. 106.

78. All parties interested who appeared on an administrator's accounting may join in application for, and take part in examination under a commission which issues in a further accounting taken at the instance of an absent heir—In re Killan's Estate, 172 N. Y. 547.

79. Bobilya v. Priddy, 68 Ohio St. 373.

80. Black v. Webber (Neb.) 96 N. W. 606.

81. The genuineness of the evidence in the deposition certified to by the officer is sufficient—J. Harzburg & Co. v. Southern Ry. Co., 65 S. C. 539. Code S. C. 1902, § 2881—Henry Sonneborn & Co. v. Southern Ry. Co., 65 S. C. 502.

82, 83. Paxson v. MacDonald, 97 Mo. App. 165.

84. Almand v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 302.

85. The moving party need not pay the fees demanded to make out a case of proper diligence—Hall v. Hale's Estate, 202 Ill. 326.

86. Peycke v. Shinn (Neb.) 94 N. W. 135.

87. Hughes v. Humphreys, 102 Ill. App. 194.

88. Under a code provision, expressly providing that if depositions are not filed during the term, exceptions, other than for incompetency, must be filed by noon of the third day after such filing, a motion to suppress ten days after the depositions were filed was properly overruled (Code, § 4712)—Casley v. Mitchell (Iowa) 96 N. W. 725.

89. Samuel Bros. Co v. Hostetter Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 257; Pittsburg, C., C. & St. L.

which case is pending in the absence of a statute against such practice,[90] nor because the party received no notice of its taking where the notice was served on his attorney who sent it through the mail to his client who did not receive it,[91] nor because improperly opened by the clerk without a special order of the court where no harm has resulted,[92] nor because answers are not responsive where questions were not comprehended,[93] or the evidence immaterial.[94] Where the deposition considered as a whole showed that a question was substantially answered, the deposition will be admitted though the party refused to answer the question on cross-examination and this particularly where the witness died before the trial.[95] Where a party has secured a commission to take a witness' deposition on cross interrogatories propounded by him subsequent to a commission issued to the opposite party, and this deposition is on file but is not used, the refusal to quash the deposition taken by the opposite party on account of the premature issuance of his commission is not ground for reversal.[96]

§ 6. Opening and objections; use as evidence.—A deposition may not be opened for further examination as to a matter not material or not disputable.[97]

Objections to depositions should be made in writing,[98] and where based on other grounds than incompetency or irrelevancy should be presented to the court before the commencement of the trial,[99] and passed on before the trial begins.[1] Generally a party may not object to testimony adduced by himself,[2] or to depositions admitted under his stipulation.[3] Appearance before the commission and cross-examination of witnesses without taking any exceptions waives an objection as to the regularity

Ry. Co. v. Storey, 104 Ill. App. 132. In this case nearly two months elapsed after the erroneous opening—Hughes v. Humphreys, 102 Ill. App. 194.

90. Donovan v. Hibbler (Neb.) 92 N. W. 637.

91. Party should have asked a postponement and opportunity to cross examine—Diedrich v. Diedrich (Neb.) 94 N. W. 536.

92. Hughes v. Humphreys, 102 Ill. App. 194.

93. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baumgarten (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 78; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bell (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 56.

94. Where a witness whose deposition was taken was one of the complainants in the suit and the only object in asking for a contract was to show interest of witness, his refusal to produce same was no ground for striking his deposition—Bullock Elec. Mfg. Co. v. Crocker Wheeler Co., 121 Fed. 200.

95. Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294.

96. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Skaggs (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 783.

97. To show that deponent who is a party and in court has an interest—Bullock Elec. Mfg. Co. v. Crocker Wheeler Co., 121 Fed. 200.

98. Willeford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 402.

99. Woodard v. Cutter (Neb.) 96 N. W. 54; Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294. Where an entire deposition is not asked to be suppressed, the customary method of procedure is to wait until the deposition is offered in evidence before objections to certain questions and answers contained in the deposition are passed upon, but this is not an inflexible rule, and where nothing but irrelevant and improper testimony is stricken from the deposition, the action is without prejudice, whether done before or after it is actually offered in evidence—Stull v. Stull (Neb.) 96 N. W. 196.

Where depositions are filed but not used in a case pending in a county court, exceptions may be filed at any time before the deposition is used at trial on appeal—Collier v. Gavin (Neb.) 95 N. W. 842.

1. Willeford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 402.

2. A party taking a deposition and having copies of papers attached thereto as exhibits may not by a general objection prevent their introduction as evidence by his opponent—George Adams & Frederick Co. v. South Omaha Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 641. Where a witness in response to interrogatories filed by the objector said he had received certain instructions by letter and the answer was offered in evidence by the other parties, the answer being responsive and called for by the objector, his objection on the ground that the letter itself was not produced was properly overruled—Curtis v. Parker, 136 Ala. 217. Under a code provision that a deposition shall have the same effect as the oral testimony of the witness and objections to the competency of questions or answers may be made as if the witness was personally examined, a defendant at whose instance plaintiff's deposition was taken, though indorsing part of it, may object to other parts as hearsay (Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 883)—Kramer v. Kramer, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 20.

3. Under a stipulation allowing the use of a deposition taken in a former suit and that either party should have the right to use such additional evidence as either might desire and should be competent under the pleas, no objection could be raised on the trial to the admissibility of depositions, but only to the additional evidence—Parlin v. Hutson, 198 Ill. 389.

of the commission.[4] In Nebraska, it is no objection to the reading of a deposition that the officer before whom it is taken does not certify that the witnesses were sworn as well after as before testifying.[5] The fact that a stranger to a deposition might have introduced it in evidence as against those who were parties to it does not affect his right to object to its introduction by them as against him.[6]

A deposition taken and filed is for the use of either party to the action,[7] and where one party has offered a part of a deposition taken by him, the other party may offer other parts thereof.[8] A deposition de bene esse for one trial is competent for any subsequent trial of the case.[9] A second deposition is admissible within the discretion of the court like the recall of a witness for second examination.[10] A deposition which has been quashed is inadmissible for any purpose[11] until the order has been set aside.[12] A deposition is not competent against one not present at the time it was taken and to whom no notice was given where he properly objects to it.[13] A showing of nonresidence of deponent is sufficient, where the notice states that he is a nonresident and witness has previously stated that he lived in another state and the deposition so states as does also the return.[14] There is a presumption that the witness continued to reside in a distant state where he was at the time a deposition was taken and the fact of his residence at a greater distance than one hundred miles need not be proved.[15]

A party taking a deposition may read the deposition, though the witness is present at the trial for his opponent, defendant being allowed to fully cross-examine the witness before the jury.[16] A deposition incompetent because not filed as required by statute or because the party is present in court may be introduced as his written admission.[17] The deposition of a witness is admissible where he is physically unable to attend.[18]

Exhibits sufficiently identified by markings of the notary and testimony of witnesses who saw them issued may be considered in connection with depositions, though not attached as recited.[19]

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION.

§ 1. Law governing descent.—The law of the state[20] in force at the time of intestate's death governs the descent of his estate.[21]

4. Willeford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 402.
5. Donovan v. Hibbler (Neb.) 92 N. W. 637.
6. Black v. Marsh (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 201.
7, 8. Curtis v. Parker, 136 Ala. 217.
9. Oliver v. Columbia, M. & L. R. Co., 65 S. C. 1.
10. Fredonia Nat. Bank v. Tommei (Mich.) 92 N. W. 348.
11. Joy v. Liverpool, L. & G. Ins. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 822. A deposition which had been quashed was not admissible at the instance of the party procuring its suppression to impeach the testimony of the witness as contained in a deposition subsequently taken, where no foundation had been laid by asking the witness whether he had not said or done the things specified in the deposition and an opportunity offered him to explain—Id.
12. Long v. Fields (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 774.
13. Black v. Marsh (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 201.
14. Oliver v. Columbia, M. & L. R. Co., 65 S. C. 1.
15. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Reagan (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 815.
16. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Steenberger, 24 Ky. L. R. 961, 69 S. W. 1094. Under a code provision allowing a party to summon the witness whose deposition has been taken who may be examined as if summoned by the party taking the deposition, the party taking the deposition may read the deposition or examine the witness orally or decline to do either at his election, but in either event the other party may examine the witness as to all matters, whether brought out in the deposition or not—Sherrod v. Hughes (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 717.
17. Profile & Flume Hotels Co. v. Bickford (N. H.) 54 Atl. 699.
18. Under the North Carolina code, a deposition of a witness adjudged unable to talk and physically unable to remain in court is admissible in evidence (Code, N. C. 1883, § 1358 [4])—Willeford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 402. Where a deposition is taken under the stipulation that it is to be used only in case witness is unable to attend, the deposition is properly admitted on the affidavits of the witness showing physical inability, which is

§ 2. Persons entitled to share or inherit.—Persons claiming, have the burden of proving heirship.[22]

The common law rule as to inheritance by aliens has been changed in some states. An adopted child is likewise enabled under some laws to inherit the same as if born to decedent in lawful wedlock,[24] provided it has been legally adopted,[25] and if adopted after the execution of a will which made no provision for it and showed no intention to disinherit will share as an after-born child;[26] and this may sometimes result from an adoption by parol.[27] Legitimacy by recognition may be conferred by an alien on his natural son so as to enable the son to inherit.[28]

An intentional omission to provide for a child in the will will disinherit him.[29]

§ 3. Inheritable and distributable property.—The heir claiming a share in certain property has the burden of proving it a part of the distributable estate.[30]

To be a part of the distributable estate, it is essential that decedent have title in the property.[31]

Property ineffectually devised will pass as intestate estate,[32] or in case of lapsed legacies,[33] or on failure to dispose of the remainder after termination of the life estate.[34] Where the property by the will is equitably converted into personalty, it will be distributed as such.[35]

A recovery for death of decedent by wrongful act is not generally a part of the estate though sometimes sued for by an administrator for the benefit of "heirs" or "children." Who can share depends on the wording of the statute. Generally decedent's minor children are entitled to share, but not adult children whose family relations with decedent had been severed,[36] nor grandchildren.[37] That the beneficiary was not named in the complaint in the action to recover the damages will not affect his right to share.[38] contradicted only by unsworn statements of attorneys—Styles v. Village of Decatur (Mich.) 91 N. W. 622.

19. Black v. Webber (Neb.) 96 N. W. 606.

20. Moen v. Moen (S. D.) 92 N. W. 13; McCune v. Essig (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 588.

21. Evans' Adm'r v. Evans, 24 Ky. L. R. 2421, 74 S. W. 224.

22. Pleading held not such an admission as to shift the burden—Sorenson v. Sorenson (Neb.) 94 N. W. 540. Sufficiency of evidence of heirship—O'Callaghan v. O'Brien, 116 Fed. 934; Crumley v. Worden, 201 Ill. 105.

23. In Nebraska he may inherit lands within corporate limits of a municipality (Comp. St. c. 73, §§ 70-73)—Dougherty v. Kubat (Neb.) 93 N. W. 317.

24. Flannigan v. Howard, 200 Ill. 396, 59 L. R. A. 664. Compare Adoption of Children, ante, p. 26.

25. A child taken into decedent's family but not legally adopted is not a legal heir—Merchant v. White, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 539.

26. Flannigan v. Howard, 200 Ill. 396, 59 L. R. A. 664.

27. Lynn v. Hockaday, 162 Mo. 111. Sufficiency of evidence to show agreement by deceased to make child in his custody his heir—Merchant v. White, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 539.

28. Though the recognition was made prior to the taking effect of Comp. Laws, § 3403—Moen v. Moen (S. D.) 92 N. W. 13.

29. Omission held not due to inadvertence or mistake—In re McMillen's Estate (N. M.) 71 Pac. 1083. Will construed and held to sufficiently mention a child to prevent such child from sharing as though decedent died intestate—Smith v. Smith (N. H.) 54 Atl. 1014. Compare Wills.

30. In re Ruchizky's Estate, 205 Pa. 105.

31. Goods sold by decedent but not delivered until after his death are not part of the distributable estate—Warner v. Warner, 30 Ind. App. 578. If a homestead settler has not completed the term of residence entitling him to make final proof before death he has no descendible interest in the land. The widow on making final proof has absolute title—McCune v. Essig (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 588. Only lands to which a patent had been issued to the deceased Indian will pass to his heirs. The land only having been allotted remains tribal property—Sloan v. United States, 118 Fed. 283.

32. Shumaker v. Grammer, 200 Ill. 48; Dodsworth v. Dam, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 684.

33. In re Woolley, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 224.

34. Torrey v. Peabody, 97 Me. 104.

35. Hutchings v. Davis, 68 Ohio St. 160.

36. Lewis v. Hunlock's Creek & M. Turnpike Co., 203 Pa. 511.

A minor son held not emancipated and an adult crippled daughter entitled to share—Duzan v. Myers, 30 Ind. App. 227.

The next of kin have no legal title to a cause of action for the wrongful or negligent death of the ancestor; hence an order authorizing the compromise of an action by the widow as administratrix, to recover for the wrongful death of her husband, will not be vacated merely because of the birth of a posthumous child—In re Anderson's Estate 82 N. Y. S. 763.

37. Walker v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co. (La.) 34 So. 749.

38. Duzan v. Myers, 30 Ind. App. 227; Oyster v. Burlington Relief Dept. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 699, 59 L. R. A. 291.

§ 4. Course of descent and distribution.—Property inherited from the mother passes to her relatives on the child's death without lawful descendants,[39] but a deceased child's share in the mother's estate which passed to another child was not inherited by the latter from the mother and passes on his death without lawful descendants to the surviving father.[40] A child has no present interest to furnish a stock of descent in the land inherited by his step-mother from the deceased father.[41] A half-brother will, under the laws of Indian Territory, take the land of the deceased sister leaving surviving a maternal uncle and the deceased father's third wife.[42] Nieces, nephews, uncles, and aunts take the entire personalty as against cousins.[43]

§ 5. Quantity of estate or share acquired.—Nieces, nephews, uncles, and aunts share equally.[44] Property conveyed to an infant on his death, intestate leaving no children or their descendants, passes to his parents equally in Kentucky.[45] In Texas in the distribution of the paternal moiety, children of deceased aunts will take per stirpes.[46]

§ 6. Husband or wife as heirs.[47]—The widow's share in the husband's estate will be governed by the statute in force at the time of the husband's death.[48] In case of intestacy leaving no issue or parent the survivor takes the entire estate,[49] and the property given to the surviving widow by statute on intestacy of the husband without issue vests in her absolute.[50] In Minnesota, as against a testamentary disposition of personalty, the surviving wife has no interest,[51] but in Ohio she is entitled to her share irrespective of any testamentary disposition,[52] and if the will affects an equitable conversion of the realty into personalty, the widow will take her distributive share though she has been paid her dower.[53] In computing the widow's share of the personalty under the North Carolina statute, she should receive one-half after deducting expenses of administration less the amount paid her for a year's support.[54] A post-nuptial contract procured by fraud will not affect the widow's inheritance.[55]

DETINUE.[56]

Non detinet puts in issue defendant's possession of the chattels at the time of suit,[57] but evidence of possession three days before is prima facie sufficient.[58] A verdict need not separately find the value of articles of the same class.[59] The right of defendant to a judgment for return of the goods or for their value on nonsuit must be sought during the term.[60]

See Death by Wrongful Act.

39. Facts held to show that the property had been conveyed absolutely to the mother and not in trust by the deceased father—Shires v. Shires, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 621.

40. Such son did not take directly from the mother within Laws 1896, c. 547, § 284—Righter v. Ludwig, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 416.

41. Under Rev. St. 1881, §§ 2483, 2486, 2487—Bateman v. Bennett (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 713.

42. Finley v. Abner (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 911.

43, 44. In re Davenport, 172 N. Y. 454.

45. Ky. St. § 1893. Though one of the parents paid the purchase money—Guier v. Bridges, 24 Ky. L. R. 945, 70 S. W. 288.

46. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1695, does not apply to the distribution of the paternal moiety—Jernigan v. Lauderdale (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 39.

47. See Husband & Wife for rights of survivor in community property. See Homesteads for rights of survivor in land exempted as homestead. See Estates of Decedents for widow's quarantine and allowance. See Curtesy and Dower for such interest of survivor.

48. Evans' Adm'r v. Evans, 24 Ky. L. R. 2421, 74 S. W. 224.

49. Burns' Rev. St. § 2651—Haugh v. Smelser (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 506; McCarthy v. McCarthy, 20 App. D. C. 195.

50. Code Civ. Proc. § 2713—Crawford v. Nassoy, 173 N. Y. 163.

51. Laws 1889, c. 46, § 70, amended Laws 1893, c. 116—In re Robinson's Estate, 88 Minn. 404.

52, 53. Hutchings v. Davis, 68 Ohio St. 160.

54. Baptist Female University v. Borden, 132 N. C. 476.

55. Palmer v. Palmer (Utah) 72 Pac. 3.

56. Statutory substitutes are treated under Replevin.

57, 58, 59. Downs v. Bailey, 135 Ala. 329.

60. Ex parte Bolton, 136 Ala. 147.

DIRECTING VERDICT AND DEMURRER TO EVIDENCE.

§ 1. Directing verdict.[61]—The court should direct a verdict without hesitancy in a case where the duty is plain though it should not do so if in doubt as to the propriety of the action.[62] A motion for a directed verdict is to be regarded as a demurrer to the evidence, admitting not only all the evidence proves but all that it tends to prove, and the judge cannot consider any modifying or countervailing evidence, the sole question being whether there is or is not evidence legally tending to prove the fact affirmed.[63] The most favorable view which is authorized by the law of evidence must be taken in favor of the party against whom verdict is directed.[64] His evidence with all inferences fairly deducible from it must be assumed to be true though contradicted in every particular.[65] Evidence erroneously admitted in his favor over objection and exception may be disregarded,[66] so also evidence at variance with the pleadings.[67] As against one defendant, evidence preventing a direction may be introduced by a co-defendant.[68]

Rules as to quantum of evidence. Generally.—In some jurisdictions, evidence amounting to more than a scintilla demands submission to the jury;[69] in others, the rule is that any evidence tending to support the plaintiff's cause of action is sufficient,[70] or any competent evidence which if believed would support a verdict for plaintiff,[71] and conversely on motion by plaintiff.[72]

Elsewhere, the question is not whether or not there is any evidence but whether or not there is any substantial evidence on which a jury can properly render a verdict in favor of the party who produced it.[73] Such evidence may be

61. See, also, Dismissal and Nonsuit for nonsuit on failure of proof. Discharge of jury and trial by court where no facts are in dispute see articles Jury; Trial. Necessity to request directed verdict in order that errors may be reviewed is treated in article Saving Questions for Review.

62. U. P. Steam Baking Co. v. Omaha St. Ry. Co. (Neb.) 94 N. W. 533.

63. Cohen v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 104 Ill. App. 314; Chadbourne v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 333; Wetherell v. Chicago City R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 357; Hartung v. North Chicago St. R. Co., 102 Ill. App. 470. Plaintiff's evidence alone should be considered and all questions on which there was a substantial conflict of testimony dismissed from consideration, since on such questions defendants are entitled to have judgment of a jury—Chesley v. Rocheford (Neb.) 96 N. W. 241.

64. From that evidence and inferences justified to be drawn therefrom the judge must say whether there is any evidence which would reasonably justify a finding for that party—Milwaukee Mech. Ins. Co. v. Rhea (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 9. Verdict should not be directed unless the facts testified to can be said to admit of no rational inference but that of absence of negligence on the part of defendant railroad company, or the presence of negligence on the part of plaintiff's decedent or the plaintiff has failed to furnish a scintilla of evidence on all essential points to sustain his claim—Ham v. Lake Shore & M. S. Ry. Co., 23 Ohio Circ. R. 496; Cogan v. Cass Ave. & F. G. Ry. Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 738.

65. Newbold v. Hayward. 96 Md. 247.

66. Townsend v. Greenwich Ins. Co., 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 323; Mallory v. Fitzgerald's Estate (Neb.) 95 N. W. 601.

67. Winchester v. Joslyn (Colo.) 72 Pac. 1079.

68. Bopp v. New York Elec. Vehicle Transp. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 337.

69. Plaintiff's case—Coble v. Huffines, 132 N. C. 399.

70. Gladstone Baptist Church v. Scott (Ky.) 74 S. W. 1075; Chesapeake & N. R. Co. v. Ogles, 24 Ky. L. R. 2160, 73 S. W. 751; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Huff, 104 Ill. App. 594; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Crady, 24 Ky. L. R. 643, 69 S. W. 706; Heman v. Larkin (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 907; Nelson v. Fehd. 203 Ill. 120. In conversion to recover the value of grain unlawfully cut, a verdict should not be directed for defendant if there is evidence as to the value of the standing grain, though it is not very specific—Mueller v. Olsen (Minn.) 97 N. W. 115. Evidence "fairly tending to prove"—Hartrich v. Hawes, 202 Ill. 334. Circumstantial evidence—Caris v. Nimmons, 92 Mo. App. 66. In an action for malicious prosecution where the evidence fairly tended to show want of probable cause for the arrest and malice, the cause should not be taken from the jury—Lasher v. Littell, 202 Ill. 551. Verdict should not be directed for defendant in an action for false imprisonment where there is evidence tending to show defendant's bad faith—Burbanks v. Lepovsky (Mich.) 96 N. W. 456. A reasonable inference of actionable negligence will prevent a directed verdict for defendant—Board v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1079. 70 S. W. 625.

71. Allen v. Cerny (Neb.) 94 N. W. 151.

72. An instruction for plaintiff may be refused where defendant has introduced evidence tending to support a counterclaim—New Orleans Coffee Co. v. Cady (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1017.

direct or inferential,[74] but slight evidence which is suspicious and uncertain is not sufficient.[75]

Absence of evidence.—An instruction should be given for defendant where there is no testimony to support plaintiff's contention on a material and essential point;[76] so verdict should be directed on such counts in the declaration as are wholly unsupported,[77] and where there is no evidence whatever an issue may be withdrawn.[78] A verdict is properly directed for plaintiff where defendant having assumed the burden of proof offers no evidence as to material facts.[79]

Necessity that verdict if given should be set aside.—Where the evidence with all the inferences which the jury could justifiably have drawn from it is insufficient to support a verdict for one party so that it would be the duty of the court to set aside such verdict if it had been rendered, the court may direct a verdict for the opposite party.[80] To justify a court in directing a verdict or changing the answer of the jury from affirmative to negative, the finding of the jury must be contrary to the undisputed credible evidence.[81] The evidence must demand a finding in accordance with the verdict.[82]

Undisputed or conclusive evidence.—Though a question of fact is involved, a verdict may be directed if the evidence is clear and uncontradicted,[83] such that all reasonable men in the exercise of an unprejudiced judgment must reach the same conclusion,[84] but not when the court cannot say that the jury, without acting 73. Cole v. German Sav. & Loan Soc. (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 113.

74. Rosenbaum v. Gilliam (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 507.

75. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Sporer (Neb.) 94 N. W. 991.

76. Cogan v. Cass Ave. & F. G. Ry. Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 738. If at the close of the testimony in a trial for personal injuries there is no substantial evidence on which a jury can properly find that the negligence charged was the proximate cause of the hurt sustained, it is the duty of the court, as it is in a like condition of the evidence in the trial of every other issue of fact, to instruct the jury to return a verdict for defendant—Cole v. German Sav. & Loan Soc. (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 113. Where no competent admissible evidence of negligence is produced—Thomas v. Star & C. Milling Co., 104 Ill. App. 110.

77. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. O'Leary, 102 Ill. App. 665.

78. Tague v. John Caplice Co. (Mont.) 72 Pac. 297.

79. Boughn v. Security State Bank (Neb.) 95 N. W. 680. In a suit on a contract, where no evidence is introduced in support of the only defense properly pleaded, the court should construe the contract, determine the measure of damages and direct the jury to return a verdict accordingly—School Dist. v. McDonald (Neb.) 94 N. W. 829.

80. Day v. Boston & M. R. R., 97 Me. 528; Webster Mfg. Co. v. Goodrich, 104 Ill. App. 76; Sherwood v. Rieck, 104 Ill. App. 368; Palmer v. Fidelity Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 575; Chaffee v. Park Falls Lumber Co. (Neb.) 96 N. W. 495; Lynch v. Englehardt, etc., Merc. Co. (Neb.) 96 N. W. 524; Marquardt v. Ball Engine Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 374; Heisch v. Bell (N. M.) 70 Pac. 572; Wall v. Brewer, 115 Ga. 1021.

Note.—New York has departed from the rule that the court may direct a verdict at the close of all the evidence where it would be compelled to set aside a verdict in favor of the opposing party, and holds that where an actual issue of fact is presented the case must go to the jury—McDonald v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 167 N. Y. 66.

81. Blohowak v. Grochoski (Wis.) 96 N. W. 551.

82. Verdict for a particular amount should not be directed unless demanded by the evidence—Pritchett v. Moore, 116 Ga. 757.

83. Residence of a corporation was involved—Nester v. Baraga Tp. (Mich.) 95 N. W. 722; Wagoner v. Landon (Neb.) 95 N. W. 496. Issue as to whether defendant was plaintiff's agent—Midville, S. & R. B. R. Co. v. Bruhl (Ga.) 43 S. E. 717; Bryson v. Wallace (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 814; McCleneghan v. Norton (Neb.) 93 N. W. 695. Instruction for attorney's fees—New York Life Ins. Co. v. English (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 440. Where value of goods sought in trover is undisputed, verdict in such amount may be directed—Rogers v. Dutton, 182 Mass. 187. Action on notes for farm machinery—Winterringer v. Warder (Neb.) 95 N. W. 619.

84. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. v. De Clow (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 142. Defense of usury—McCall v. Herring (Ga.) 45 S. E. 442; City of Chanute v. Higgins, 65 Kan. 680, 70 Pac. 638; Merchant v. South Chicago City Ry. Co., 104 Ill. App. 122; Linton v. Baker (Neb.) 96 N. W. 251. Issue as to whether certain cattle were covered by a chattel mortgage—Adams v. South Omaha Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 641. Where all reasonable minds would be compelled to conclude that plaintiff encountered danger with concurrent injury under circumstances and surroundings showing that in so doing he acted rashly, recklessly or unreasonably—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Finfrock, 103 Ill. App. 232. Verdict may be directed for defendant in an action for injuries at a railroad crossing, where the undisputed evidence when construed most favorably to plaintiff is insufficient to warrant the inference of negligence—Hajsek v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. (Neb.) 97 N. W. 327.

unreasonably, might come to a different conclusion from the evidence,[85] as where two equally plausible conclusions may be deduced from the circumstances,[86] or where a reasonable inference against the moving party exists.[87] It is error to direct a verdict where the evidence would authorize a finding for either party.[88]

On conflicting evidence as to a material issue of fact, a verdict cannot be directed.[89] Immaterial questions of fact need not be submitted.[90] The rule that defendant must admit all of the facts essential to plaintiff's case, or they must be established by documentary evidence which he is estopped to deny, is not applicable if there is no evidence tending to prove the defenses which he pleads and the facts on which plaintiff's cause of action is based are undisputed.[91]

Evidence of contributory negligence should not be withdrawn by direction of a verdict.[92]

Preponderance of the evidence will not warrant a direction if an issue of fact is presented,[93] which is supported by any credible evidence.[94]

Credibility of witnesses is a question for the jury,[95] though they are uncontradicted,[96] or though they have made contradictory statements out of court;[97] but where the undisputed circumstances show that a witness' version cannot be by any possibility true, or if it is inherently impossible, the rule demanding the submission of the credibility of the witness to the jury does not apply.[98] A sufficient contradiction of the witness may arise from the nature of the facts to which he testifies, though the witness is not directly contradicted.[99] The question of intentional false testimony and its effect on other portions of the evidence is for the jury.[1] Where if experts whose evidence was properly received are believed by the jury, plain-

85. Standard Life & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Sale (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 664; Howard v. Indianapolis St. Ry. Co., 29 Ind. App. 514. Plaintiff's negligence—Palmer v. Kinlock Tel. Co., 91 Mo. App. 106.

86. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wood (Kan.) 72 Pac. 215. Action to establish a will—Hagan v. Sone, 174 N. Y. 317; Otstot v. Indiana, I. & I. R. Co., 103 Ill. App. 136; Whalen v. Utica Hydraulic Cement Co., 103 Ill. App. 149. Contract for shipment of coal —Hocking v. Hamilton (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 417.

87. Peters v. Southern Ry. Co., 135 Ala. 533.

88. Cunningham v. Central of Ga. Ry. Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 246.

89. Moore v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. (Ala.) 34 So. 617; Morrill v. McNeill (Neb.) 91 N. W. 602; Matheson v. City of Tennille, 115 Ga. 999; Central Ry. Co. v. Mehlenbeck, 103 Ill. App. 17; Peters v. Southern Ry. Co., 135 Ala. 533; Pope v. Whitcomb (Neb.) 93 N. W. 947. Action for logs—Griffin v. Brock (Miss.) 33 So. 968. Action on note given for legal services—McWhorter v. Bluthenthal, 136 Ala. 568. Error to direct a verdict in a proceeding to set aside a tax sale on account of an excessive levy where there is a wide variance between the evidence of plaintiff and defendant as to the value of the property levied on—Stark v. Cummings (Ga.) 45 S. E. 722. On failure of an affirmative defense, there being positive evidence to the contrary by plaintiffs, verdict for defendant should not be directed—Webb v. Hicks (Ga.) 43 S. E. 738. Evidence that a person does not remember having authorized a message is not so contradictory of evidence that it was authorized as to require a submission to the jury—Norman v. Western Union Tel. Co., 31 Wash. 577, 72 Pac. 474.

90. Stokes v. Foote, 172 N. Y. 327.

91. Mosby v. McKee, etc., Commission Co., 91 Mo. App. 500.

92. See generally Negligence and articles dealing with particular phases thereof such as Carriers, Master and Servant.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Lilley (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1012.

93. Philips v. Philips, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 113; Daggett v. Webb (Tex. Civ. App. 70 S. W. 457; Rosenkranz v. Saberski, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 650.

94. Morton v. Smiley (Wis.) 96 N. W. 534.

95. Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bauman, 104 Ill. App. 600. Sufficiency of resolution authorizing municipal contracts to take the place of ordinances for such purpose required by charter, must be submitted to the jury where established by parol evidence—Dalton v. City of Poplar Bluff, 173 Mo. 39. In replevin where plaintiff alone testifies to value of property, the jury should not be instructed that in finding for plaintiff, they should assess the value at such sum—Dysart v. Terrell (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 986.

96. City of Poplar Bluff v. Hill, 92 Mo. App. 17; Hugumin v. Hinds, 97 Mo. App. 346.

97. McCoy v. Munro, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 435.

98. Blumenthal v. Boston & M. R. R., 97 Me. 255.

99. Van Gaasbeek v. Staples, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 271.

1. Bankers' Union v. Schiverin (Neb.) 92 N. W. 153.

tiff is entitled to substantial damages it is error to direct a verdict for nominal damages.[2]

Variance.—A directed verdict on the ground that a theory presented by the pleadings is not supported by the evidence may be denied where in his evidence plaintiff expressly repudiates such theory.[3]

Insufficiency in law.—The court should so instruct the jury when the evidence offered is not sufficient in law to make out the case of the party who has offered it.[4]

The federal courts hold that where plaintiff is not entitled to recover and does not ask leave to take a voluntary nonsuit and there is no motion by defendant for a compulsory nonsuit, verdict is properly directed for defendant,[5] but in other courts it has been held that though plaintiff has failed to prove his case and should be nonsuited, defendant is not entitled to have a verdict directed in his favor which will be a final bar to plaintiff's right of action.[6]

Right as dependent on the state of the pleadings.—A verdict cannot be directed based on pleadings bad in substance.[7] Where the answer contains no substantial defense, verdict may be properly directed for plaintiff.[8] A verdict should not be directed in favor of a surety entitled to a partial release where its effect will be to release him entirely.[9]

Time for motion or direction.—A verdict may be directed at any time before the jury's verdict is announced and recorded in open court.[10] A prayer for an instruction that evidence is insufficient to entitle plaintiff to recover may be granted at the close of plaintiff's evidence.[11] In Florida, a directed verdict after all the evidence is in cannot be requested before the argument.[12]

Duty of court to first announce rulings on evidence.—If objections to evidence and motions to strike the same are reserved, the court cannot direct a verdict without special ruling on the objections and motion made.[13]

Effect of motion on moving party.—The New York rule that after a motion to direct a verdict in his favor a party is not entitled to reserve exceptions to a refusal to send the case to the jury at his request after the motion to direct a verdict was denied is not followed in the circuit court of appeals of the second circuit.[14]

Motion by both parties.—Where both parties move for a directed verdict, it is a virtual submission of the issue to the judge.[15] The court may determine the case on its merits,[16] and its decision on the facts is equivalent in effect to a verdict.[17]

2. Bjerrum v. Springfield Breweries Co., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 172.

3. Alleged joint contract in declaration against connecting carriers—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1052.

4. Hill v. Pitt (Neb.) 96 N. W. 339. Undisputed evidence of probable cause warrants a direction for defendant in malicious prosecution—Bechel v. Pacific Exp. Co. (Neb.) 91 N. W. 853. Though some of the facts bearing on that issue may be in dispute—Figg v. Hanger (Neb.) 96 N. W. 658.

5. Gibboney v. Board of Chosen Freeholders (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 46.

6. Rosenkranz v. Saberski, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 650. Plaintiff should be reserved the right to institute a subsequent action for the same cause (Civ. Code, 1895, § 5347)—Hines v. McLellan (Ga.) 45 S. E. 279.

7. Kelly v. Strouse, 116 Ga. 872.

8. Sloan Commission Co. v. Fry (Neb.) 95 N. W. 862.

9. Trial of an illegality filed by a surety on whose property a fi. fa. had been levied reciting that the plaintiff in fi. fa. had released property of the principal defendant for the sum of $90.00 which was credited on the fi. fa. but which property was averred to be worth $200—Ward v. McLamb (Ga.) 45 S. E. 688.

10. Prior to such time the judge may recall all instructions and direct a verdict—Garrett v. Farwell, 102 Ill. App. 31.

11. Proceedings under a caveat to a will—Schwanteck v. Berner, 96 Md. 138.

12. Rev. St. § 1088—Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Seymour (Fla.) 33 So. 424.

13. McDermott v. Mahoney (Iowa) 93 N. W. 499.

14. One Pearl Chain v. United States (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 371.

15. Cullinan v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 82 N. Y. Supp. 695.

16. Snow v. Modern Woodmen, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 142.

Each party is concluded as to the findings of fact.[18] Though the only evidence on an issue is given by an interested witness, such issue need not be submitted unless requested where both parties have moved for a directed verdict.[19] The New York rule that a motion by both parties for direction of a verdict is a submission of questions of fact to the court is not followed in Wisconsin.[20]

On appeal, every reasonable intendment of the facts will be indulged in favor of the party in whose behalf the verdict is directed.[21]

Waiver of motion.—A motion at the close of plaintiff's case is waived by introduction of evidence by defendant on his own behalf,[22] and must be renewed at the close of all the evidence.[23] Where after the close of evidence against one defendant he moves for a directed verdict in his favor, there being no evidence against him, but the motion is denied and he remains in the case, and his co-defendant presents evidence which tends to show his liability, the case against him may properly be submitted to the jury.[24]

§ 2. Demurrers to evidence.[25]—A demurrer to the evidence admits the truth of plaintiff's testimony together with reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom most favorable to plaintiff.[26] It is to be regarded as a waiver by demurrant of all evidence introduced by it that is contradictory to that for the demurree.[27] The court cannot weigh contrary inferences.[28] If the evidence supports the issue made by the pleadings, a demurrer to the evidence should be overruled,[29] or if there is any evidence from which the essential facts may be inferred.[30] A demurrer to plaintiff's evidence may be sustained when, considered with the whole evidence, reasonable persons could not differ as to the failure to establish a prima facie case,[31] or where it totally fails to support the pleadings.[32] A joinder in demurrer may be compelled unless the court doubts the facts to be reasonably inferred though the evidence is plainly against the demurrant. A mere conflict in the evidence does not warrant a refusal since it may be determined by rejecting the parol evidence of the demurrant. The existence of the right is to be determined in the judicial discretion of the trial court.[33]

When demurrer should be made.—The production of other portions of the record on cross-examination of a witness as to a record testified to by him, and the reading of such portions of the record to the jury, does not amount to the introduction of original evidence forfeiting the right to demurrer.[34]

17. Leggat v. Leggat, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 141.

18. Bradley Timber Co. v. White (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 779.

19. W. P. Fuller & Co. v. Schrenk, 171 N. Y. 671.

20. National Cash Register Co. v. Bonneville (Wis.) 96 N. W. 558.

21. Birnstein v. Stuyvesant Ins. Co., 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 808; Appel v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 83.

22. Western Md. R. Co. v. State, 95 Md. 637.

23. Anthony Ittner Brick Co. v. Ashby, 198 Ill. 562.

24. Bopp v. New York Elec. Vehicle Transp. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 337.

25. See definition and historical sketch in Cyc. Law Dict. "Demurrer (In Practice)."

26. In seduction it presents the question whether plaintiff's testimony is sufficient on which to base a finding of such loss of services as is necessary to maintain the action—Snider v. Newell, 132 N. C. 614. Evidence held sufficient to authorize a verdict for plaintiff injured at a railroad crossing—Vance v. Ravenswood, S. & G. Ry. Co. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 461; Creighton v. Modern Woodmen, 90 Mo. App. 378.

27. Glasscock v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 1039; Chinn v. Chicago & A. Ry. Co. (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 375; Geiser Mfg. Co. v. Lee (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 701.

28. Morrow v. Pullman Palace Car Co., 98 Mo. App. 351.

29. Kelly v. Strouse, 116 Ga. 872.

30, 31. Morrow v. Pullman Palace Car Co., 98 Mo. App. 351.

32. Sustained on failure of evidence to discharge burden of proving alleged waiver of forfeiture in action on insurance policy—Cottom v. National Fire Ins. Co., 65 Kan. 511, 70 Pac. 357. Sustained where evidence shows right of action on contract without evidence of tort, the sole ground of action alleged—Ellis v. Flaherty, 65 Kan. 621, 70 Pac. 586. Not sustained on failure of evidence as to injury to land, where injury to land and crops was alleged—Coleman v. Bennett (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 734.

33. University of Virginia v. Snyder (Va.) 42 S. E. 337.

Proceedings after demurrer.—Defendant after a decision against him on demurrer to plaintiff's evidence may introduce evidence in his own behalf.[35]

DISCOVERY AND INSPECTION.

Discovery is a remedy for the disclosure of facts or the production of instruments in the possession or power of the adverse party which are necessary to maintain the right or title of the party asking it. It was originally a chancery proceeding ancillary to another suit but is sometimes asserted as a common-law right. Its remedial features are preserved in code remedies for examination of parties or inspection of documents.[36]

§ 1. Discovery in equity.—The right to have discovery must pertain to material facts relating to complainant's own case and cannot be extended to the manner in which, or the evidence by which, the adversary's case is to be established.[37] It is refused when unnecessary to make a prima facie case,[38] or when the complainant fails to show a right to be protected.[39] A suit in equity cannot be brought in the federal courts to discover evidence to enforce a purely legal demand, provable by process at law.[40] In an equitable suit by judgment creditors of a corporation to obtain discovery of names of stockholders to sue them, it cannot be urged that a statute providing for production of documents in possession of an adverse party gave an adequate remedy, since that statute applies only when a suit has already been commenced.[41] In a creditor's suit against the defendant and his alleged debtor, if the debt is purely legal and is denied by the alleged debtor, the question of its existence cannot be tried, but complainant may obtain a discovery from such alleged debtor as to his indebtedness, and the right to an equitable lien by his joinder, with a provision in the decree that the lien may become effective when the debt is established at law, and may also have a receiver appointed with authority to bring such an action.[42] If the bill waives a sworn answer discovery

34. Cooley v. Galyon, 109 Tenn. 1, 60 L. R. A. 139.

35. Riley v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. (Neb.) 95 N. W. 20.

36. Cyc. Law Dict. "Discovery." As a preliminary to the introduction of secondary evidence of documents a notice to produce them may be given. See Evidence (Documentary Evidence). Compare also Trial (Reception and Exclusion of Evidence).

Examination of a party by way of taking his deposition for use as evidence is treated in the article Depositions. Subpoena duces tecum see Evidence. Witnesses.

37. Denied to cross complainant—Sunset Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. City of Eureka, 122 Fed. 960.

38. Where, in a suit to enjoin infringement of a patent, the validity and infringement are not disputed, and claimant claims as an assignee and proves his assignment, his case is prima facie complete without proving defendant's knowledge of the assignment—Arnold Monophase Elec. Co. v. Wagner Elec. Mfg. Co., 118 Fed. 653.

39. The creditor of an insolvent railroad company cannot have a discovery of prices paid for claims against the company by the president, in a purchase for a third person who had full right to buy them, unless he shows a conspiracy to defraud stockholders and creditors, especially where a master has previously allowed such claims—Cassidy Fork Boom & Lumber Co. v. Roaring Creek & C. R. Co., 119 Fed. 425.

40. Bill based on agreement for use of patented device for discovery and accounting as to the use of such device as a basis of royalty will not lie since defendant is entitled to a jury trial, and under Rev. St. U. S. § 724, plaintiff may compel production of the evidence at law—Safford v. Ensign Mfg. Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 480.

41. A demurrer by defendant on the ground that the claims of the judgment creditors not having been proven in the insolvency proceedings they thereby lost their remedy against the corporation, cannot be sustained where it appears that complainants were non-residents and under the statute governing insolvency proceedings the claims of nonresidents who have not appeared voluntarily in the proceedings are not affected (Gen. Laws, c. 274)—Clark v. Rhode Island Locomotive Works (R. I.) 53 Atl. 47.

42. Hudson v. Wood, 119 Fed. 764.

cannot be had,[43] but the rule is not extended to a creditor's suit in which the creditors are endeavoring to discover assets.[44] In a suit against a corporation by a judgment creditor to compel discovery of the names of stockholders, the bill is not liable to demurrer for failure to allege that the stockholders had not protected themselves from liability; if it alleges that complainants did not know their names and residences and the amount of stock held by them, that the treasurer had been requested to give them such information but had neglected to do so, and that they had no means of learning the facts necessary to prosecute an intended action at law, it is sufficient as to allegations of want of knowledge.[45] It is not necessary to discovery that a bill against stockholders to subject equitable assets of the corporation to a judgment against it, asking discovery as incidental relief, should be verified.[46] On a bill for partition asking discovery and alleging that defendants have in their possession a will under which complainant claims title, and which they refuse to produce or prove, or permit complainant to use for that purpose, the court will construe the will on the issue as to whether complainant has a right to discovery.[47] An order for the inspection of books by a party litigant before trial where the books contained entries which have no concern with his transaction and which he is not entitled to inspect must require deposit of books in the clerk's office and attendance of a representative of the other party, and that the clerk shall determine the relevancy of contested entries as to their inspection, the judge being empowered to review such determination at chambers on summary application.[48]

§ 2. Production and inspection of books, papers, and documents; examination of party.[49] A. Right to examination or inspection.—Production and inspection of books may be had in the Federal courts before trial at law,[50] and in Montana.[51] The granting of the order is in the discretion of the trial court and it may exclude such books or papers on trial, if the inspection is not allowed.[52] The application must conform to the statute.[53] It must appear that the examination of a party,[54] or the inspection of books, papers, or documents,[55] is necessary

43. Tillinghast v. Chace, 121 Fed. 435; Excelsior Wooden Pipe Co. v. Seattle (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 140.

44. Hudson v. Wood, 119 Fed. 764.

45. Under Gen. Laws, c. 180, § 14—Clark v. Rhode Island Locomotive Works (R. I.) 53 Atl. 47.

46. Montgomery Iron Works v. Capital City Ins. Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 210.

47. Hanneman v. Richter, 63 N. J. Eq. 803.

48. Gray v. Schneider, 119 Fed. 474.

49. The discretion of the court on an application for production of books, papers and documents to enable a party to prepare for trial should be liberally exercised (Hart v. Ogdensburg & L. C. R. Co., 69 Hun [N. Y.] 497, cf. Richmond's Appeal, 59 Conn. 226, 21 Am. St. Rep. 85); but they must contain evidence relative to the merits of the case (Keeler v. Dusenbury, 1 Duer [N: Y.] 660); and the party applying must show this to be the fact to the satisfaction of the court or officer by stating facts and circumstances (Davis v. Dunham, 13 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 425; New England Iron Co. v. New York Loan & Imp. Co., 55 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 351; Lienan v. Dinsmore, 10 Abb. Pr. [N. S.; N. Y.] 212; Ely v. Mowry, 12 R. I. 570); and show enough facts to raise a presumption that the documents exist and are in the possession and control of the other party (Hoyt v. American Exch. Bank, 1 Duer [N. Y.] 655; Ahlymeyer v. Healy, 12 N. Y. State Rep. 677). Curiosity alone is insufficient (Bien v. Hellman, 2 Misc. [N. Y.] 168); books of no use when produced are not subject to the order (Whitman v. Weller, 39 Ind. 515). "Fishing for evidence," or "drawing the fire" of the opposite party will not be allowed (Arnold v. Pawtuxet Valley Water Co., 18 R. I. 189); if the applicant can gain access to the books without an order it will not be allowed (McAllister v. Pond, 6 Duer [N. Y.] 702, 15 How. Pr. 299). See extended note in 41 Am. St. R. 392.

50. Especially if their existence has been disclosed by discovery (under Rev. St. U. S. 724, providing that in actions at law the federal courts may require production of books or writings in the possession or power of parties, on motion and notice, which contain evidence pertinent to the issue under circumstances allowing such production in chancery)—Gray v. Schneider, 119 Fed. 474.

51. Where an action at law is pending, the court may order an inspection of books, papers and documents in possession of the other party containing evidence relating to the merits of the action or defense (Code Civ. Proc. § 1810)—State v. District Ct., 27 Mont. 441, 71 Pac. 602. Since the statute enumerates the reasonable grounds for it, it is not an "unreasonable search or seizure."—Id.

52. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 394—Chamberlain v. Chamberlain Banking House (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1021.

53. Under Code Civ. Proc. c. 8, art. 4—Romer v. Kensico Cemetery, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 100.

54. Hunt v. Sullivan, 79 App. Div. 119, 12 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 328. Plaintiff cannot have an

to the other party in the preparation of his case for trial. Mere "fishing excursions" to probe the other party for possible grounds of an action or defense are not allowable.[56] It must appear that the information sought is peculiarly within the examination of defendant before trial to obtain information to enable him to ask recovery of a specific amount if he can state the amount without such examination with reasonable accuracy and his demand is not complicated with other matters—Boeck v. Smith, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 575. An order for examination of certain defendants to enable plaintiff to frame his pleadings will not be allowed unless he shows a cause of action by affidavit and the necessity of the examination; that he has insufficient information to draw his complaint, and that defendants have such necessary information to the obtaining of his relief—Butler v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 235. Where the grounds of complaint in an action by a minority stockholder against the directors was that under certain agreements they were mismanaging the corporation to their own advantage and to the injury of the stockholders, the latter are not entitled to an examination of the directors before joinder of issues, since the exact terms of the agreement as to which the plaintiffs were ignorant need not be alleged—Elmes v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 244. Where it appears in an action to reach part of the income from a trust fund that the beneficiary was entitled to as much as was necessary for his support, plaintiff may have an examination of the trustees before trial to determine the amount of income and surplus, if any, and to find in whose possession books relating to the trust are kept—Corn Exch. Bank v. Lorillard, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 194. Where a stockholder who had exchanged his common stock for bonds of a consolidated company alleged in an affidavit asking examination of the directors who were defendants, together with the other corporations constituting the consolidated company, that they had deceived him as to the value of his stock, and had retained for their own benefit, the difference between the interest paid on the bonds he had received and the earning capacity of the stock he had surrendered, and that he had been damaged as an individual, he will not be allowed to examine certain of the directors of his company before trial, since he is able to frame a complaint for deceit and damages based on the alleged misrepresentations from an injury resulting therefrom—Butler v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 235. An affidavit by a minority stockholder of a corporation alleging that its directors controlled three similar corporations and a consolidated company embracing all of them; that they agreed to divert business of the company to other corporations and afterwards to the consolidated company; that they withheld from stockholders, dividends earned, and had benefited individually by large profits, will entitle him to sue for an accounting of profits and enable him to draw his complaint so that an examination of the directors before trial will not be allowed; the extent of the damages cannot be made a subject for examination of the directors; nor can a director be required to disclose what has been done with the property of the corporation, merely because of his fiduciary relation to the stockholder, where the affidavit for such examination shows that plaintiff has sufficient information to draw his complaint—Elmes v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 244.

55. It will not be allowed to enable plaintiff to form its complaint where it has the necessary information without such order—Snow, Church & Co. v. Snow-Church Surety Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 40. Where in an action by customers of stock brokers to surcharge accounts rendered because certain items are false and fraudulent and the pretended transactions fictitious, it is alleged that the information cannot be obtained except from the stock brokers, plaintiffs are entitled to examination of such persons before trial to determine who are the buyers and sellers in the alleged transactions—Caldwell v. Labaree, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 564. Where defendant in an action to recover services for transactions on the stock exchange and for advancements, did not allego that any particular account or entry sought to be examined was necessary to enable him to prepare his answer or prove his defense, or that any account or entry in the book would be of value to him, an order giving him the general right to inspect plaintiff's books to discover defects in the latter's proof or matter justifying a defense or counterclaim, is improper—Seligsberg v. Schepp, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 626. In an action by an insurer to recover additional premiums on indemnity policies providing that the premium should be based on an estimate of the compensation paid by the insured to its employes during the existence of the policy, and that such premium should be raised if greater compensation was paid, and a certain amount thereof refunded if less compensation was paid, and as to other policies, they were based on the number of employes under certain conditions, both policies giving plaintiff the right to examination of books of the insured in so far as relating to the number of employes and the matter of their wages, in which the complaint alleged that the number of employes and the amount of wages was greater than appeared in the representations of assured, plaintiff is entitled to an order for examination of defendant's books (Code Civ. Proc. § 803)—Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Seagrist, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 614. Where defendants do not show that the books of plaintiff contain entries which they wish and do not excuse their own failure in not obtaining the necessary information from persons whom they say informed them as to the books, they cannot compel plaintiff to produce his books in order to support a counterclaim—Russell v. McSwegan, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 306.

56. Interrogatories for discovery and written answers under oath, such as seek exclusively matter for the other side which amount to a fishing excursion and are unreasonable and irrelevant or seek to establish a forfeiture to contradict written instruments or answers privileged on the ground of public interest, are not allowable—Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704.

knowledge of the other party,[57] and that the party seeking it intends to use it at the trial.[58] The nature of the pending action in which the information is sought to be used and the nature of relief sought must appear to the court,[59] and the petition must show expressly or impliedly that the court has acquired, or would have, jurisdiction in the action in which an examination is sought.[60] The books and papers sought must be within the state.[61] Where complainant alleged injury by libel in a newspaper, an examination before suit to enable him to ascertain from the person in control who is the proprietor of the paper was denied though in former suits certain persons who were alleged to be the editors or proprietors filed answers denying such allegation.[62] It is no defense to a motion for discovery and inspection of the books of a firm that it has dissolved and has turned its books and papers over to a corporation succeeding to its business, where it appears that the members of the firm have become the officers of the corporation and it is not shown that they did not have control of the books and could not produce them for inspection.[63]

Under the Florida statute, plaintiff may propound interrogatories to a claimant of property seized under execution to discover affirmative evidence, disprove good faith of her claim, or to rebut a prima facie title asserted by her by showing fraud. The statute was intended to enable a party to secure admissions by the other party before trial to relieve the necessity of producing evidence to prove particular issues thus admitted. Such answers are admissible, though they may expose the persons answering them to actions or to penalties, also where the defendant in ejectment seeks to learn the character in which plaintiff claims, or seeks secondary evidence of lost written documents, or seeks to ascertain the character of confidential communications which the other party would not be privileged from disclosing, or to disprove the good faith of a prima facie defendant, or to show fraud on the part of the defendant.[64]

Plaintiff cannot be accused of laches in delaying an application for inspection of books of defendant where it alleges that defendant made statements regarding the facts sought to be discovered, which plaintiff believed to be true, and that on discovery of the falsity thereof plaintiffs at once applied for the examination, which statement was not denied by defendant.[65]

One suing a municipality may inspect public records and documents pertinent and material to the issues in possession of defendant, but cannot have a peremptory order requiring the latter on motion after notice to defendant in its corporate capacity, to exhibit such records and documents to his inspection at certain times and places; he may make a motion, designating the record or document he wishes to inspect, for a rule on the officer or agent of the municipality having custody of it,

57. An affidavit for examination of directors of a corporation before issue joined in an action by a stockholder, must show that the information desired is peculiarly within the knowledge of the directors and cannot be obtained by plaintiff in any other way, and that he demanded such information from the directors—Elmes v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 244.

58. Where it is alleged as a reason for asking examination of plaintiff before trial that it is necessary, in order that defendant may properly prepare for trial, but it does not appear that he intends to use the evidence at the trial, the examination will be denied without prejudice to a renewal of the motion on proper grounds—Dudley v. New York Filter Mfg. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 164.

59. State v. District Ct., 27 Mont. 441 71 Pac. 602.

60. 61. Snow, Church & Co. v. Snow-Church Surety Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 40

62. The court observes that under the authority of Matter of Weil, 25 App. Div. (N. Y.) 173 this examination would be allowed, but "in this department" the rule is otherwise—In re Singer, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 561.

63. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Seagrist, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 625.

64. Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704.

65. Five years delay—Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Seagrist, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 625.

to show cause why the inspection should not be allowed, and if the rule is made absolute on the return and disobeyed, it may be enforced by attachment.[66]

(§ 2) B. Persons, books, and papers liable to examination.—All of joint or successive parties should be examined if no one of them can make full disclosure.[67] The books and documents to be examined must be limited to those pertaining to the matter in controversy.[68] A provision in an order allowing inspection of letters written to defendant concerning a claim is too broad since defendant cannot be bound by statements written by strangers to the transaction.[69]

(§ 2) C. Procedure; use at trial.—Motion or application for physical examination should be made before trial if pleadings apprise defendant of nature of injury.[70] A "petition" to inspect books and papers in the hands of defendant cannot be joined with a "motion" for an order for examination of a party before trial.[71] A demand for inspection of papers is waived by the opposing party's appearance to oppose an order after service of an order to show cause.[72] That a petition for discovery and inspection of papers in possession of defendant was subscribed to by plaintiff's attorney instead of himself is not material where he verified the petition.[73] The petition[74] must show expressly or by implication that the court has acquired or would have jurisdiction, in the action in aid of which an examination of books and papers is sought to enable plaintiff to frame his complaint, and that the books and papers are within the state.[75]

The affidavit for examination of defendant before trial must show facts rendering the examination necessary, or why it will not suffice to bring out the facts at the trial.[76] On application for an order for examination of defendant's books

66. District of Columbia v. Bakersmith, 18 App. D. C. 574.

67. Trustees appointed at different times no one of whom could establish all the facts (order for examination of such trustees before trial to discover in whose possession the books were kept and the amount of the income and surplus properly included all the trustees)—Corn Exch. Bank v. Lorillard, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 194.

68. Where the order requires defendant to produce ledgers, cash books, time books, time sheets, and all other books showing the amount of wages paid to employes during period covered by policies, it is too broad since only the number of employes and the amount of money paid to them is sought to be discovered, and it must be modified to require only producing of cash books, time books and time sheets during the period. It should be limited to books of original entry showing payments to employes—Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Seagrist, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 614. The inspection given under an order to investigate the books of account of the other party concerning a certain transaction, must be limited to the particular items showing the facts mentioned and cannot relate to the entire books of the other party; it cannot be limited to books and records of one year; where the order authorizes him to inspect all letter press copy books of defendant containing letters written by its officers, to ascertain letters relating to the claim, a provision which enables inspection of copies of maps of all workings made by defendant in a certain year, was too broad—State v. District Ct., 27 Mont. 441, 71 Pac. 602. An order requiring officers of a defendant corporation to produce all books of the corporation for examination is too broad and must be restricted to the corporate minute books and by-laws pertaining to the instrument set out in the complaint and relating to contracts annexed to and made a part thereof—De Brunoff v. McClure-Tissot Co., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 640.

69. State v. District Ct., 27 Mont. 441, 71 Pac. 602.

70. Examination of plaintiff's urine refused during trial where the petition pleaded injury to his kidneys—Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 569.

71. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 805—Boeck v. Smith, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 575.

72, 73. Hallett v. American Law Book Co., 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 652.

74. Sufficiency of showing of need for examination. Plaintiff suing on a life policy providing that the amount thereof could be realized from the death fund existing at the time of the insured's death, the proceeds of the assessment levy and the reserve fund in excess of a certain amount of outstanding bonds, is entitled to an examination of the insurance company's books and officers before trial to ascertain its financial condition on a complaint alleging on information and belief that sufficient funds existed in the hands of defendant company to pay the policy which was denied by defendant, and averring that the only proof plaintiffs had concerning such facts were certain reports made by the company to the insurance commissioner and published statements which were not in proper form or sufficient to justify plaintiff in relying upon them—McCoy v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 315.

75. Snow, Church & Co. v. Snow-Church Surety Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 40.

76. Hunt v. Sullivan, 79 App. Div. 119, 12 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 328. See, also, McCoy v.

and papers, the affidavit in support must show that an action is pending and advise the court of the nature of the action, the relief sought,[77] and the necessity of the examination.[78] The affidavit for examination of a witness before suit to discover who is proprietor of a newspaper to bring an action against him for libel must name definitely the proposed defendant and show a cause of action against him in favor of the plaintiff.[79]

Where the entire series of interrogatories propounded under the Florida practice was objected to as improper and certain ones as incompetent and irrelevant, a ruling of the court sustaining the objection is wrong if any interrogatory proves competent.[80]

After an order for examination of defendants before trial was granted, and one of them left the jurisdiction before an application was made to reverse the order, but after advice that it could not be sustained, his action will not justify continuance of the order as to him where proceedings were begun for reversal within a few days after the order was granted.[81]

A party may contradict answers to interrogatories introduced by him,[82] and this by parol where the parol evidence is otherwise admissible.[83]

(§ 2) D. Order, and time and manner of examination.—An order for examination of defendant's books and papers by plaintiff must limit the time within which inspection shall be made.[84] It may allow inspection of papers in possession of defendant on a particular date and at such other times as the referee may appoint.[85] An ex parte order which requires the secretary of a corporation to appear at a certain time and place before a referee and submit to examination and produce books and papers relating to a fire insurance policy issued by the company is not defective as failing to comply with the statute governing proceedings for inspection of books where the order is for the examination of the secretary before trial; it does not authorize inspection of the corporate books and papers but only the production of them for the examination to enable the officer to refer to them for refreshment of his recollection.[86]

Jurisdictional facts must be embodied in the order if any special jurisdictional power be exercised.[87] If an order for examination of defendant's books and papers is made without a proper showing, or embraces inspection of papers which could contain no evidence relevant to the issue under the circumstances, or fails to limit

Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 315. An examination of defendants will not be allowed plaintiff before trial in order to state the amount of his damages accurately in an action for deceit, since such statement is not required, and his information of the fraud may be alleged on information and belief—Butler v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 235.

77. Butler v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 235. Sufficiency of affidavit—Elmes v. Duke, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 244.

78. State v. District Ct., 27 Mont. 441, 71 Pac. 602.

79. In re Singer, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 561.

80. Interrogatories submitted under Rev. Sts. § 1116—Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704.

81. Boeck v. Smith, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 575.

82. Under 2 Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 6012—Sawdey v. Spokane Falls & N. R. Co., 30 Wash. 349, 70 Pac. 972.

83. Under Code Pr. art. 354—Le Bleu v. Savoie, 109 La. 680.

84. State v. District Ct., 27 Mont. 441, 71 Pac. 602.

85. Hallett v. American Law Book Co., 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 652.

86. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 872, subd. 7, and §§ 803-809—Mauthey v. Wyoming County Co-op. Fire Ins. Co., 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 579.

87. The Circuit Court of Alabama, though of general jurisdiction is of limited jurisdiction in the terms of the statute allowing either party to a civil suit at law, a discovery on interrogatories propounded to the adverse party as in courts of equity, so that the existence of the jurisdictional facts must affirmatively appear in the record on the granting of a judgment by default when the answers are not full or are evasive, and the requirement is not satisfied by a recital in the judgment that the court sustains plaintiff's motion for judgment by default or because defendants failed to answer properly such interrogatories (Under Code, 1896, § 1856. See, also, §§ 1850 et seq.)—Goodwater Warehouse Co. v. Street (Ala.) 34 So. 903.

the time of inspection, certiorari will lie on the ground that the court has exceeded its jurisdiction.[88]

(§ 2) E. Physical examination to prepare for trial or to prepare evidence.—The later cases as to allowance of examination of the person of plaintiff in personal injury cases to enable plaintiff to prepare his defense are, like the earlier cases, in conflict, but by the weight of authority the rule may be said to be that such examination may be allowed whenever, in the discretion of the court, the ends of justice demand it.[89] Kentucky[90] and North Dakota[91] allow the examination, and Illinois[92] and Texas[93] refuse it. The consequences of refusal to submit to a rule for such examination are various in different states.[94]

88. State v. District Ct., 27 Mont. 441, 71 Pac. 602.

89. Note. The leading authority against allowing the examination is Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. Botsford, 141 U. S. 250, 35 Law. Ed. 734, which is influenced by the federal statute quoted in the opinion, as preventing any other manner of examination or discovery than that prescribed by itself; and there is a strong dissenting opinion by Justice Brewer refusing to assent to the doctrine that such examination is not sanctioned at common law; the courts of various states have refused to accept the ruling in this case, the North Dakota Supreme Court remarking that no such limitation on the court there exists either by statute or under the Constitution of the State. See Brown v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. (N. D.) 95 N. W. 153 (this case reviews the conflicting authorities and cites many cases from different states). For other states in accord with the latter case, see Lane v. Spokane Falls & N. Ry. Co., 21 Wash. 119, 57 Pac. 367; City of Ottawa v. Gilliland, 63 Kan. 165, 65 Pac. 252; Belt Elec. Line Co. v. Allen, 102 Ky. 551 (see this case for a statement of the rule according to the weight of authority); Schroeder v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 47 Iowa, 375; Sibley v. Smith, 46 Ark. 275; Sidekum v. Wabash, St. L. & P. Ry. Co., 93 Mo. 400; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Thul, 29 Kan. 466; Graves v. Battle Creek, 95 Mich. 266; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Hill, 90 Ala. 71; King v. State, 100 Ala. 85; Hatfield v. St. Paul & D. R. Co., 33 Minn. 130; Richmond & D. R. Co. v. Childress, 82 Ga. 719; Miami & M. Turnpike Co. v. Baily, 37 Ohio St. 104. The lower courts of Pennsylvania have acquiesced in the rule—Hess v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 7 Pa. Co. Ct. R. 565. The court of Civil Appeals in Texas has heretofore held the contrary—Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 569; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 807. But the same court recognizes the weight of authority, and observes in another case (Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gibbs [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 71) that the supreme court of the state is inclined to allow such examination, citing I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Underwood, 64 Tex. 463 and Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Johnson, 72 Tex. 95. In Indiana the right to such examination is now recognized in South Bend v. Turner, 156 Ind. 418, which directly overrules former cases, (Pennsylvania Co. v. Newmeyer, 129 Ind. 401 particularly) and shows that conflict has existed within the state, citing Graves v. Battle Creek, 95 Mich. 266, as showing the rule in the Federal courts to be against the weight of authority. The latest Kentucky case (Louisville Ry. Co. v. Hartlege [Ky.] 74 S. W. 742) is in accord but emphasizes the condition that the right to examination is not absolute but addressed to the sound discretion of the court. Massachusetts, Illinois, and New York do not allow examination in absence of statute, holding with the Federal Court that it has no sanction at the common law—Stack v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 177 Mass. 155; McQuigan v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 129 N. Y. 50; Parker v. Enslow, 102 Ill. 272; Peoria, D. & E. Ry. Co. v. Rice, 144 Ill. 227. But in New York it is now allowed by statute—Lyon v. Manhattan Ry. Co., 142 N. Y. 298; Laws 1893, c. 721. See extended note on this subject in 41 Am. St. Rep. 392 (The changes since publication of this note will be found in the later cases here noticed).

90. Louisville Ry. Co. v. Hartlege (Ky.) 74 S. W. 742.

91. Brown v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. (N. D.) 95 N. W. 153, containing a resume of the conflicting authorities on personal examination.

92. Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Story, 104 Ill. App. 132, citing 144 Ill. 227, as the leading case in Illinois.

93. Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex.) 77 S. W. 403, exhaustively reviewing the authorities pro and con and affirming Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 569, citing Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. Botsford, 141 U. S. 250 and Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sherwood (Tex. Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 776; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 807. Examination not allowed because it was undisputed that plaintiff received no external injuries, it did not appear that the examination would throw any light on the extent or character of her injuries, and no suspicion appeared that the alleged suffering was unreal—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gibbs (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 71, citing I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Underwood, 64 Tex. 463 and Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Johnson, 72 Tex. 95 as seeming to support the doctrine of allowing the examination when demanded by the ends of justice.

94. The order requiring a person to submit to inspection of the person may be enforced by an order dismissing the action (South Bend v. Turner, 156 Ind. 418, 83 Am. St. Rep. 200). Some courts enforce the order by contempt (Schroeder v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 47 Iowa, 375; cited with approval in Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Thul, 29 Kan. 466, 44 Am. Rep. 664). Contra, see dissenting opinion by Brewer, J., in Union Pac. Ry. Co. v. Botsford, 141 U. S.

DISMISSAL AND NONSUIT.[95]

§ 1. Voluntary nonsuit or discontinuance.—Where defendant does not ask affirmative relief, plaintiff at common law may, as a matter of right, discontinue at any time before trial.[96]

Authority to dismiss.—A general employment of an attorney to prosecute an action does not confer on him the power to dismiss it.[97] A defendant may, without the assent of his attorney, enter into a stipulation with plaintiff's attorneys for a dismissal of the action with prejudice and without costs.[98] Where a committee for the reorganization of a corporation takes a nonsuit in a suit by it on a contract which it has entered into, a stockholder may at the discretion of the court be allowed to have the nonsuit set aside on the ground of collusion,[99] but if a majority of a committee had power to act, failure of one member to act will not vitiate the right to take a nonsuit,[1] and if the purpose of the intervenor is to protect his individual interests and not of all those in similar status, the committee may take a nonsuit subject only to the intervenor's right to be heard on his claim for affirmative relief.[2]

In case of counterclaim or cross complaint.—Where defendant sets off a demand, plaintiff may take a nonsuit without prejudice as to his own demand, and a judgment, if entered for defendant, should protect plaintiff,[3] but after a plea of set-off, plaintiff in assumpsit cannot take a voluntary nonsuit so as to prevent defendant from further prosecuting his plea.[4] A second cause of action may be withdrawn though there has been a counterclaim, if the first is sufficient to meet the counterclaim.[5] Where a cross complainant has been given jurisdiction by the act of the plaintiff in commencing an action in a certain forum, he is not deprived of the right to maintain the cross complaint by the act of the original complainant in dismissing.[6] Notice of an intention to dismiss given by an intervenor to the judge after an adjournment has been granted for the purpose of enabling a party to prepare an additional answer of set-off will not operate as a dismissal, preventing the filing of the answer as against the intervenor.[7]

After submission of controversy to court or jury.—The court may, at its discretion, permit a dismissal after final submission to the court or jury, but plaintiff

250; South Bend v. Turner, 156 Ind. 418, 83 Am. St. Rep. 200. The case of Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 569 cites the Indiana case approvingly. The result is the discrediting of the refusing party's evidence—Austin v. N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex.) 77 S. W. 403. Motion must be promptly made—Austin & N. W. R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 569.

95. Dismissal in equity is treated in the article Equity, dismissal on reference in Reference, limitation of time to bring new action Limitation of Actions, question of costs Costs, effect of dismissal as adjudication Former Adjudication.

96. United States v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 554.

97. Steinkamp v. Gaebel (Neb.) 95 N. W. 684.

98. Paulson v. Lyson (N. D.) 97 N. W. 533.

99, 1, 2. Bangs v. Sullivan (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 74.

3. Rev. St. 1810, 1812—Samahaw v. Samahaw, 18 App. D. C. 76.

4. Samahaw v. Samahaw, 18 App. D. C. 76.

5. Collin v. Farmers' Alliance Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 698.

6. Action brought by a judgment creditor in the county in which the judgment was rendered under Code, § 70, to subject land to the judgment—Chinn v. Curtis, 24 Ky. L. R. 1563, 71 S. W. 923.

7. On an intervention in a receivership, where it is agreed that matters of set-off may be proved under a general denial, if the receiver, on the close of the evidence, is directed to file an answer of set-off and counterclaim against the intervenor and an adjournment granted for that purpose, the counterclaim may be received and filed before hearing a motion by the intervenor to dismiss, notice of a desire to dismiss having been first given to the judge after he left the bench on adjournment—Whitcomb v. Stringer (Ind.) 66 N. E. 443.

may no longer dismiss as of right.[8] After demurrer and the due submission by both parties of the issues to the court, plaintiff is not entitled as a matter of right to dismiss;[9] hence dismissal without prejudice cannot be allowed after a demurrer on the ground of limitations is sustained.[10]

After submission on a demurrer to the evidence, plaintiff's absolute right to dismiss without prejudice is lost.[11]

Submission to the jury is the submission of an issue of fact which the jury may decide in favor of either party,[12] so plaintiff may dismiss without prejudice, if before final submission of the case to the jury, though the court has announced its intention to give a peremptory instruction for defendants,[13] but the giving of a supplementary instruction that three-fourths of the jury may render a verdict does not affect a previous submission so as to authorize plaintiff to take a nonsuit before such supplementary instruction is given.[14] After verdict on an issue of fact, plaintiff cannot take a nonsuit.[15]

In case of a trial by the court, plaintiff cannot dismiss without prejudice after the court has announced its conclusion and directed the terms of the judgment to be entered.[16] On a trial to the court in Missouri if the plaintiff desires to save his right to take a nonsuit until after decision of the questions of law he should request a special finding thereon before the issues of fact are submitted.[17]

Where discontinuance may be had as to a joint defendant at any time before final judgment, there may be a discontinuance as to the executrix in a suit on a bond against the sureties and the executrix of the principal before confirmation of an assessor's report determining the amount for which execution should issue, though there has been a finding assessing the damages at the penal sum of the bond.[18]

Conditions to dismissal without prejudice.—If after various postponements complainant dismisses, defendants should as far as possible be indemnified for expenses in preparing for trial at the times when it was regularly called as a condition for setting aside the dismissal.[19] An ex parte order on complainant's motion dismissing a bill at complainant's cost without prejudice to the right to begin a reserved cause of action is not conditional on payment of costs.[20] Complainant's motion to dismiss without prejudice may be allowed on condition that defendant's evidence, which he has been at great pains to get together, be perpetuated and placed so as to be available in future controversies over the subject-matter between the parties or their privies.[21]

8. Bee Bldg. Co. v. Dalton (Neb.) 93 N. W. 930.

9. Day v. Mountain (Minn.) 94 N. W. 887.

10. Action to recover realty—Dunham v. Harvey (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 772.

11. Fronk v. Evans City Steam Laundry (Neb.) 96 N. W. 1053; Bee Bldg. Co. v. Dalton (Neb.) 93 N. W. 930. Where demurrer to the evidence is interposed at the close of plaintiff's evidence, and at the close of defendant's evidence by defendant in a cause tried to the court and the cause is taken under advisement and the parties required to furnish briefs, there is a final submission (Rev. St. 1899, § 639)—Lawyers' Co-op. Pub. Co. v. Gordon, 173 Mo. 139.

12. Code Civ. Proc. § 430—Bee Bldg. Co. v. Dalton (Neb.) 93 N. W. 930.

13. Civ. Code Pr. § 371—Wilson v. Dupree, 24 Ky. L. R. 1456, 71 S. W. 645.

14. Rev. St. 1899, § 639, permits plaintiff to take a nonsuit at any time before the cause is finally submitted to the jury and not afterward—McCauley v. Brown (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 464.

15. Code, 1883, § 936. Too late where the jury after returning a verdict is sent out to place its verdict in proper form—Strause v. Sawyer (N. C.) 45 S. E. 346.

16. Code, §§ 3764, 3765—Carney v. Reed, 117 Iowa, 508.

17. Rev. St. 1899, § 695—Lawyers' Co-op. Pub. Co. v. Gordon, 173 Mo. 139.

18. Pub. St. c. 167, § 42; St. 1885, c. 384, § 12—McKim v. Titus, 182 Mass. 393.

19. McEwen v. Dimond, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 626.

20. Dismissal of a bill for infringement of a patent without prejudice to the right to commence a suit for infringement of a re-issued patent obtained pending the suit by surrender of the patent sued on—Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co. v. Glenn Tel. Co., 121 Fed. 174.

21. American Steel & Iron Co. v. Mayer, 123 Fed. 204. Leave to discontinue was denied on a mere showing of desire to relitigate—American Steel & Iron Co. v. Mayer, 121 Fed. 127.

Effect of discontinuance.—A discontinuance does not bar another action, though there has been an agreement as to the facts and a submission to the court for its opinion.[22] Where independent causes of action were joined, a dismissal of one does not abate the other,[23] but where a person has brought an action in two forms on the same facts, he cannot, after a voluntary dismissal of one action, have a reinstatement of the other.[24]

Where a proceeding for a money judgment is joined with one for the foreclosure of a lien, on the sustaining of exceptions to such portions of the petition as sought to foreclose a lien on land conveyed before suit and on land not leased to plaintiff, plaintiff may dismiss his claim for a money judgment and as to the consideration of a sale of the land to others without dismissing his action for foreclosure.[25]

Where there is a dismissal as to one defendant, the court is without jurisdiction to reinstate the case as to him or render judgment against him.[26]

Where plaintiff is erroneously allowed to dismiss as of right after demurrer and submission of the issues to the court, a judgment rendered on the order is nevertheless valid until vacated, and such judgment cannot be granted by the court against objections so as to make it a dismissal on the merits.[27]

As between co-defendants.—Where defendants are jointly liable, a discontinuance as to one is fatal as to the rest.[28] An objection by one defendant to a dismissal as against the other, places the plaintiff on his guard, and if he fail to amend his declaration charging joint liability, he cannot have judgment against the remaining defendant alone.[29]

In an action against the principals and sureties on the bond of a partnership if the bond binds the sureties to liability for the members of the partnership as individuals, a dismissal as to one of the principals not served who is insolvent is permissible, and a judgment may be rendered against the other and against the surety.[30] Where a note is executed jointly, a petition thereon which is discontinued as to one maker should not be dismissed as to the other.[31]

Reinstatement or setting aside nonsuit.—The ex parte entry of an order of dismissal on complainant's motion if irregular on account of lack of notice must be questioned by motion to set aside.[32] A petition for new trial on the ground of newly-discovered evidence which has been dismissed voluntarily will not be reinstated on the ground of surprise, after an adverse decision on a motion for rehearing in the supreme court which plaintiff had supposed would be favorable to him.[33]

22. Such a discontinuance is not a retraxit—Wilson v. Smith, 117 Fed. 707.

23. Dismissal of an action to recover damages for trespass on mining property, does not abate a statutory action under Code Civ. Proc. § 13, to quiet title and for an injunction against trespass—Montana Ore Purchasing Co. v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co., 27 Mont. 288, 70 Pac. 1114.

24. Action brought in assumpsit and in equity, with a dismissal as to the action in assumpsit—Jones v. Kennedy (Miss.) 33 So. 287.

25. Industrial Lumber Co. v. Texas Pine Lands Ass'n (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 875.

26. On dismissal of the wife of one also a defendant in an action for conversion on the ground that the evidence does not show possession in her, she cannot be reinstated on a subsequent disclosure that she has possession—Blumenthal v. Lewy, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 535.

27. Plaintiff is entitled to the benefit of due process of law which proceeds on inquiry of the matter it adjudicates—Day v. Mountain (Minn.) 94 N. W. 887.

28. Discontinuance as to one director in an action to enforce limited liability of directors of an insolvent corporation—Bauer v. Parker, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 289.

29. Harris v. Humphrey & Co., 103 Ill. App. 45.

30. Rev. St. 1895, §§ 1256, 1257, 1259—Scalfi v. Graves (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 795.

31. It was held in this case that where a note was signed on its face by one person and on the back by another, it was a joint civil undertaking, and on discontinuance as to the party signing on the face, the petition should not be dismissed on the ground that the one signing on the back was a surety only—Brooks v. Thrasher, 116 Ga. 62.

32. Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co. v. Glenn Tel. Co., 121 Fed. 174.

33. Tighe v. Winger (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1052

An unauthorized dismissal by an attorney may be set aside especially where pending the action the cause has become barred by limitations and the fact that another attorney who represented plaintiff asked that the order be made without prejudice will not be necessarily construed as showing plaintiff's assent, an exception having been taken and allowed.[34] A discontinuance without costs made under a written stipulation signed by defendant will not be set aside in the absence of fraud for the mere purpose of protecting the rights of defendant's attorney who was to receive, as fees for defending the action, the costs taxable to defendant in case he was successful.[35]

§ 2. Involuntary dismissal or nonsuit. Time for Dismissal.—Where the court has submitted the case to the jury and received a general verdict for plaintiff, it cannot dismiss on the merits,[36] but a motion for nonsuit in the nature of a motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction may be made after verdict,[37] and where the case should never have been submitted to the jury because of failure of plaintiff's evidence, the complaint may be dismissed notwithstanding the previous submission to the jury.[38] Dismissal after death of a party is unwarranted before expiration of the time in which an action may be revived by his personal representative.[39]

Questions which may be presented.—The question of jurisdiction may be raised by motion to dismiss.[40] A motion for nonsuit is not a proper way in which to test the validity of a statute or the legal sufficiency of compliance therewith.[41] On an exception raising the statute of limitations if all of plaintiff's complaint is barred save a sum too small to bring it within the jurisdiction of the court, the petition is properly dismissed.[42]

Defect in process.—Dismissal may be had on failure to return summons, though an affidavit of service on one of defendants and a copy of the summons is filed,[43] and though the summons is for a time lost.[44]

Defect in parties.—Where, in an action on tort, a defendant is joined who was not connected with the tort, a nonsuit may be entered as to him or a verdict directed for him and the case submitted as to the other defendants.[45] On motion by a sole defendant served, for a dismissal unless the other defendants are brought in, he should not be allowed costs to indemnify him against expense of answering.[46]

Defect in pleadings.[47]—Defendant is entitled to consideration of a motion

34. Steinkamp v. Gaebel (Neb.) 95 N. W. 684.

35. Garvin v. Martin (Wis.) 93 N. W. 470.

36. Though Code Civ. Proc. § 1187, provides for opening a motion to non-suit, the jury may be required to assess damages or any question of fact raised by the pleadings to be submitted to it—Levy v. Grove Mills Paper Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 384.

37. Parker v. Southern Exp. Co., 132 N. C. 128.

38. Failure of plaintiff in an action for death by negligence to offer any evidence of negligence of defendant—Glennon v. Erie R. Co., 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 397.

39. See article Abatement and Revival. Code, § 38. Dismissal of suit on death of party interposing claim to property levied on under execution—Bauer v. Word, 135 Ala. 430.

40. City of Windsor v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 105 Ill. App. 46.

41. Where the action is for failure of a carrier to comply with an application to trace freight, it cannot be urged as ground for nonsuit that the evidence failed to show noncompliance with plaintiff's application by defendant and that it showed that the damage was due to plaintiff's negligence—Savannah, F. & W. Ry. Co. v. Elder (Ga.) 43 S. E. 379.

42. Roller v. Zundelowitz (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1070.

43. Code Civ. Proc. § 582—Grant v. McArthur, 137 Cal. 270, 70 Pac. 88.

44. Code Civ. Proc. provides that if a paper is lost, the court may authorize the use of a copy in place of the original—Grant v. McArthur, 137 Cal. 270, 70 Pac. 88.

45. Action against two street railway companies and a construction company to recover injuries from the construction and operation of a street railroad in which it appeared that one of the railway companies having leased its property was no longer liable for negligent operation—Minnich v. Lancaster & L. Elec. Ry. Co., 203 Pa. 632.

46. Error to grant $50.00 costs in addition to $10.00 motion costs—Geoghegan v. Luchow, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 581.

47. Dismissal of a bill asking reconveyance of land alleged to have been conveyed for judgment on the pleadings only when there is no demurrer or reply to new matter stated by him as a defense or counterclaim;[48] an insufficient reply is not ground.[49] A judgment of dismissal will be entered where the pleadings fail to show a right of recovery in plaintiff,[50] but where a petition contains several counts, the whole case should not be dismissed on the ground that one of them is bad,[51] and judgment on the pleadings cannot be rendered where they present a material issue of fact.[52]

A successful demurrer to a supplemental petition setting up facts estopping defendants from asserting a defense does not authorize a dismissal,[53] nor does a demurrer sustained as to a portion of the claim.[54]

Where plaintiffs sue in an individual and representative capacity on successful exceptions to the right to sue as representatives, there should not be a dismissal.[55]

A stipulation as to reference reserving a right to move to dismiss on the ground of no cause of action does not save a right to seek dismissal on the ground of variance of proof from the pleadings.[56]

A dismissal for an inadvertent failure to file copies of instruments forming the basis of the proceeding should be set aside, where the substance of the papers was fully set out in the petition, and a copy should be allowed to be subsequently filed.[57]

Where variance between pleading and proof is by statute made immaterial unless the adverse party has been misled to his prejudice, a dismissal will not be granted in the absence of prejudice on a showing that labor and material was furnished on an express contract where the complaint is on a quantum meruit.[58]

Amendable defects.—Dismissal should not be granted for insufficiency of an affidavit in forcible entry and detainer, the affidavit being amendable.[59] Filing an unverified complaint is not ground for dismissal.[60]

Dismissal on merits.[61]—Every material fact in issue must be found for plaintiff on dismissing complaint at the close of the opening address,[62] and judgment on the opening statement should be denied unless it admits facts precluding recovery.[63] Though the court is authorized in his discretion to set aside a verdict it should not enter a judgment dismissing the complaint on the merits.[64] Under the New York municipal court act a judgment of dismissal on the merits can be granted only where at the close of the whole case the court is of the opinion that the plaintiff is in trust, will be sustained, where the answer denies the trust and a finding is made below on sufficient evidence that no trust was contemplated—Jackson v. Thomson, 203 Pa. 622.

48. Alaska Code, § 69; 31 St. 343, c. 786—Walton v. Wild Goose Min. & Trading Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 209.

49. Walton v. Wild Goose Min. & Trading Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 209.

50. Original action in the supreme court—Territory v. Jacobs (Okl.) 70 Pac. 197.

51. Woodbridge v. Drought (Ga.) 45 S. E. 266.

52. Swinehart v. Pocatello Meat & Produce Co. (Idaho) 70 Pac. 1054.

53. Allegation of sale through an agent and supplemental petition setting up an estoppel of defendant to deny an agency—Owens v. Hughes (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 783.

54. Ingham v. Ryan (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 899.

55. Trespass to try title by plaintiffs in their own right and as foreign executors—Hayden v. Kirby (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 198.

56. Lake v. Anderson, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 189.

57. Failure to file certified copy of the proceedings as required by Ky. St., § 2838 with a petition to enforce liens on said apportionment warrants—Kremer v. Leathers, 24 Ky. L. R. 1149, 70 S. W. 843.

58. Code Civ. Proc. § 2943—Lundine v. Callaghan, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 621.

59. Mansfield's Dig. §§ 5102, 5083, 2285 (Ind. Ter. Ann. St. 1899, §§ 3307, 3288, 2285)—Smith v. Bush (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 934.

60. Expressly so provided by Mansfield's Dig. § 5086; Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 3291, if the complaint is verified on or before calling of the action for trial—Hargrove v. Cherokee Nation (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 823.

61. Nonsuit held properly granted on the ground that in an action on an insurance policy plaintiff's interest was not properly stated in the policy—Alberts v. Insurance Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 282.

62. Hoffman House v. Foote, 172 N. Y. 348.

63. Coffeyville Min. & Gas Co. v. Carter, 65 Kan. 565, 70 Pac. 635.

64. Rosenstock v. Dessar, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 501.

not entitled to recover as a matter of law or where the court sustains a demurrer and no leave to plead over is granted.[65] The order of dismissal must state the ground on which the issues have been dismissed.[66] In trover, a nonsuit should not be granted on failure of demand before suit where such demand is not necessary.[67] Plaintiff in an action for damages cannot be nonsuited for the reason that he has failed to repay or tender money paid him for a release.[68]

Failure of proof.[69]—While the rule of law is the same, the practical restrictions upon the court are even greater in the case of a motion for nonsuit than they are upon the motion to direct a verdict after all the evidence is in.[70] The overruling of a demurrer to the evidence or a motion for a nonsuit is not an adjudication as to the sufficiency of the pleadings to authorize a recovery.[71] In Georgia a nonsuit corresponds to a demurrer to the evidence and the only question is as to the sufficiency of the evidence without regard to defects in the pleadings.[72] The common-law practice does not there prevail which authorizes a nonsuit when it is clear that the action in point of law is not maintainable, though the objection appear on the face of the record and may be taken advantage of by motion in arrest of judgment.[73]

On motion for nonsuit, plaintiff's evidence is to be taken as true, and all the evidence should be construed most favorably toward him.[74] The case should not be taken from the jury when recovery may be had on any view reasonably drawn from the facts which the evidence tends to establish,[75] or where there is more than a scintilla of evidence tending to prove plaintiff's contention.[76] If made after defendant has introduced evidence, his evidence is not to be considered.[77] Nonsuit should not be ordered where plaintiff states a good case in his declaration and sustains it by his evidence.[78] Plaintiff can be nonsuited when the allegations are sustained by the testimony only in cases where the complaint is subject to a demurrer.[79]

A nonsuit should be granted on failure of evidence to support plaintiff's allegations,[80] but a motion to dismiss for failure to establish one branch of the com-

65. Laws 1902, p. 1561, c. 580, § 249. Dismissal should be without prejudice on failure of plaintiff in an action to recover commissions for sale to prove that he was the procuring cause of the sale—Wakefield v. Street, 83 N. Y. Supp. 765.

66. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1022, an order is insufficient which states the ground to be that plaintiff has failed to establish a cause of action and that he is not entitled to the relief demanded in the complaint—Gein v. Little, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 503.

67. Civ. Code, 1895, § 3887. Trover by a vendor against a vendee based on a conditional bill of sale reserving title until payment of the purchase money—Scarboro v. Goethe (Ga.) 45 S. E. 413.

68. Austin v. Piedmont Mfg. Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 135.

69. See for other procedure for taking case from jury Directing Verdict and Demurrer to Evidence.

70. In an action based on negligence, if any reasonable probability of negligence may account for the event by inference from the evidence within plaintiff's control, defendant should be put to its proofs to supply the facts as to its own conduct and plaintiff should not be nonsuited merely because he has not fully established those acts of which he can acquire knowledge only from the defendant or those in its interest—Hupfer v. National Distilling Co. (Wis.) 96 N. W. 809.

71, 72, 73. Kelly v. Strouse, 116 Ga. 872.

74. House v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 131 N. C. 103; Hopkins v. Norfolk & S. R. Co., 131 N. C. 463. Evidence held not to authorize a nonsuit in an action against a distillery company by one scalded by the bursting of a vat of slops.—Hupfer v. National Distilling Co. (Wis.) 96 N. W. 809. Nonsuit held properly granted where the evidence of plaintiff showed that by ordinary care he could have avoided the injuries for which he sued—Barfield v. Southern Ry. Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 282.

75. Cain v. Gold Mountain Min. Co., 27 Mont. 529, 71 Pac. 1004.

76. Butts v. Atlantic & N. C. R. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 472.

77. Though acts 1897, c. 109 provides for motion for non-suit at the end of plaintiff's evidence—Brown v. Atlantic & C. Air Line R. Co., 131 N. C. 455.

78. Beck Duplicator Co. v. Fulghum (Ga.) 45 S. E. 675; Southern Bauxite Mineral & Mfg. Co. v. Fuller, 116 Ga. 695.

79. Austin v. Piedmont Mfg. Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 135.

80. Failure to prove an agreement to pay for work and labor sued for—Briggs v. Collins, 27 Mont. 405, 71 Pac. 307. Failure to establish an essential part of a contract plaint should be denied where the complaint states another cause of action on which plaintiff may recover without amendment.[81] Where a special plea of former adjudication is made in connection with denial of all material terms of the complaint and a finding is made for defendant on the issue of former adjudication on its submission to the court after a jury is impaneled, the complaint is properly dismissed if no evidence has been offered in support of the controverted allegations.[82]

Where negligence established is not as to a matter alleged as negligence, a nonsuit is properly granted,[83] but where negligence and willful negligence are both alleged, nonsuit cannot be granted on failure of evidence as to willful negligence merely,[84] and the same is true of failure to prove an intention of wrong alleged in connection with negligence.[85] A motion for a nonsuit based on an assumed state of facts which may be properly determined by the jury only should be denied.[86]

Failure of prosecution.[87]—A complaint is properly dismissed by default on failure of plaintiff's counsel to take up the case when called for trial,[88] and a nonsuit may be properly entered on a statement of no evidence, where a postponement has been denied a representative of an attorney in the case.[89]

A statute authorizing dismissal of actions not brought to trial is not intended to authorize dismissal of a litigant who though ready to proceed seasonably has consented to delay in order to accommodate opposing counsel,[90] and while dismissal of a cause for want of prosecution is within the discretion of the court, an excusable neglect to present facts to the court on the hearing of the motion controls the discretion.[91]

If plaintiff refuses to prosecute, the suit should be dismissed for want of —United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Donnelly, 68 N. J. Law, 654.

81. Action for damages from failure to keep a cold storage warehouse at the proper temperature, and failure to prove an agreement in such regard also alleged—Rettner v. Minnesota Cold-Storage Co., 88 Minn. 352.

82. Rensberger v. Button (Colo.) 71 Pac. 330.

83. Action for death of a railroad employe, negligence in handling and overloading a freight train and carelessly managing the trains and in shifting the meeting point of trains, and proof that plaintiff's intestate was killed by a train going in an opposite direction from one which he was sent back to signal—Land v. Southern Ry. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 203.

84. 22 St. at Large, p. 693, provides that there need not be an election between two or more acts of negligence alleged to have caused the injury sued on—Griffin v. Southern Ry., 65 S. C. 122.

85. Young v. Western Union Tel. Co., 65 S. C. 93.

86. Based on assumption of risk by servant suing for negligent injury—Wood v. Victor Mfg. Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 81.

87. A case which has been at issue for nearly 13 years without plaintiffs bringing it on for trial, the reason for delay being that the parties became reconciled and neither party wished to prosecute the action, may be dismissed for want of prosecution —Rosenheim v. Rosenfield, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 640. Code Civ. Proc. § 822, Gen. Rule of Practice No. 36—Zafarano v. Baird, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 144. A dismissal for neglect is authorized where there is an unexplained delay for five years in the taking of steps to bring the issue to a hearing. Where nothing is done for seven years after filing a demurrer to the complaint, defendant is entitled to a dismissal on motion by plaintiff to strike the demurrer, though he was by statute permitted to bring the case to hearing—Langford v. Murphey, 30 Wash. 499, 70 Pac. 1112.

88. McEwen v. Dimond, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 626. If a plaintiff's attorney, five days before the opening of the session has notice that his case is the only cause on the trial calendar and will be called, the case is properly dismissed, though the attorney is engaged in another court, on failure to prosecute—Spokane & V. Gold & Copper Co. v. Colfelt, 30 Wash. 628, 71 Pac. 196.

89. Representative stated that the attorney was actually engaged in another case, but postponement was denied on the ground that the attorney had had ample opportunity to prepare for trial, and his client was endeavoring to delay trial—Appeal of White, 75 Conn. 314.

90. Facts held to show an abuse of the trial court's discretion in refusing to set aside a dismissal ordered under Rev. St. 1898, § 2611a—Hine v. Grant (Wis.) 96 N. W. 796.

91. A dismissal for the want of prosecution may be vacated, where it has been granted after substitution of attorneys by plaintiff, and plaintiff's new attorney alleges a failure to find the former attorney and consequent inability to procure an affidavit contradicting the allegations in support of the motion—Moore v. Thompson, 138 Cal. 23, 70 Pac. 930.

prosecution and a jury should not be empaneled over plaintiff's objection and judgment entered for defendant.[92]

Waiver of right to dismiss.—Neglect to make a motion for dismissal on the overruling of a motion for a cost bond waives a statutory right to dismissal of an action in which such bond is required, at any time before judgment.[93] Though plaintiff has performed an act which entitles defendant to a discontinuance, defendant waives his right by failing to avail himself of it promptly and by appearing and consenting to continuances.[94]

Effect.—A judgment of dismissal entered by the court on the merits is a bar to further proceedings on the facts disclosed in the pleadings.[95] Dismissal as to one not a necessary or proper party who has been on his own motion granted leave to come in as a defendant does not affect complainant's right as against original defendants.[96]

Opening and setting aside.—The denial of a motion to open a nonsuit is ordinarily discretionary, and is not governed by statutes providing for the setting aside of default judgments.[97] The motion should usually be made during the session at which judgment was rendered,[98] and may be required sooner.[99]

There must be notice to defendant before a cause dismissed for want of prosecution may be reinstated at an adjourned term.[1]

On motion to set aside a dismissal, a complaint duly verified, which states a cause of action, is a sufficient showing of merits.[2] Motion to reinstate may be based on facts outside the record.[3]

A motion to set aside an order of dismissal and judgment suspends the judgment and prevents the court from being ousted of jurisdiction by the running of time from the entry of judgment.[4]

The presumption is that the trial court's discretion as to dismissal for want of appearance to go on with the trial has not been abused.[5] Absence of a witness will not warrant the setting aside of a dismissal for failure of prosecution, if there is no showing made of diligence in procuring his attendance or statement of what his evidence was to be.[6]

A judgment denying a motion to reinstate is conclusive of all matters pleaded or which might have been pleaded including fraud or mistake in the dismissal.[7]

On reversal of an order of reinstatement, proceedings to renew must be brought within six months from the order of dismissal and not within six months from the judgment reversing the order of reinstatement.[8]

92. Anderson v. Broward (Fla.) 34 So. 897.

93. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Brown (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 915.

94. Hayes v. Dunn, 136 Ala. 528.

95. Day v. Mountain (Minn.) 94 N. W. 887.

96. Citizens' Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Bellville & S. I. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 109.

97. Gen. St. 1888, § 1126, does not apply to a non-suit for failure of prosecution—Appeal of White, 75 Conn. 314.

98. Delay of six weeks until another judge is holding a session of court, authorizes a refusal—Appeal of White, 75 Conn. 314.

99. Motion not made in two days after judgment stricken when defendant was in court and had made no objection to the dismissal as to him on plaintiff's motion—Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Driskill (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 997.

1. Laun v. Ponath, 91 Mo. App. 271.

2. Hine v. Grant (Wis.) 96 N. W. 796.

3. Crawford v. Watkins (Ga.) 45 S. E. 482.

4. Kremer v. Leathers, 24 Ky. L. R. 1149, 70 S. W. 843.

5. Evidence held insufficient to show an abuse of discretion in dismissing on failure of party or attorney to be present when case was called for trial—Hall v. City of Austin (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 32.

6. Spokane & V. Gold & Copper Co. v. Colfelt, 30 Wash. 628, 71 Pac. 196.

7. Crawford v. Watkins (Ga.) 45 S. E. 482.

8. Civ. Code, 1895, §§ 3786, 3787—Crawford v. Watkins (Ga.) 45 S. E. 482.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.

A statute prohibiting use of profane words in the presence of a female is not violated by a profane written communication.[9] Vagrants are punishable as disorderly persons at common law.[10] Making political speeches in the street to the obstruction of traffic is a breach of the peace.[11] An ordinance declaring palmists, etc., disorderly persons, is valid.[12] An indictment for using profane language in the presence of a "woman" is sufficient.[13]

DISORDERLY HOUSES.

If disorderly persons frequent a house and unfit and unbecoming acts are there committed, it is immaterial that the peace of the neighborhood was not disturbed.[14] The penalty in Minnesota is fixed by Gen. St. 1894, § 6297, not by acts 1897, c. 108.[15]

DISTURBANCE OF PUBLIC ASSEMBLAGE.

Injury to property, while the owner was attending a religious meeting, not known to him until afterward, is not a disturbance of the meeting.[16] That one rose in a meeting and endeavored to answer criticisms by the clergyman does not show that he "willfully" disturbed the meeting.[17]

DIVORCE.[18]

§ 1. Jurisdiction and domicile of parties.—The question of residence is jurisdictional.[19] Residence once attained is not lost by temporary absences.[20] The appearance of a nonresident defendant will not give the court jurisdiction of a suit instituted by one who is without a bona fide domicile in the state.[21] If a residence is bona fide it makes no difference that plaintiff's motive was to procure a divorce.[22]

9. Williams v. State, 117 Ga. 13.
10. In re Stegenga (Mich.) 94 N. W. 385.
11. People v. Wallace, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 170.
12. State v. Kenilworth (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 244.
13. Jackson v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 611.
14. State v. Ireton (Minn.) 94 N. W. 1078. Evidence held sufficient to show keeping of disorderly house where liquors were sold on Sunday and disorderly persons gathered —State v. Babcock (R. I.) 55 Atl. 685. A residence is not rendered a disorderly house by occasional acts of fornication therein by the owner—State v. Irvin, 117 Iowa, 469.
15. State v. Grosofski (Minn.) 94 N. W. 1077.
16. Cox v. State, 136 Ala. 94.
17. State v. Dahlstrom (Minn.) 95 N. W. 580.
18. Alimony, see Alimony. Separation and separate maintenance without change of status see Husband and Wife. Annulment of marriage see Marriage.
19. Branch v. Branch, 30 Colo. 499, 71 Pac. 632.
20. A wife's residence for the purpose of an action for divorce is not lost by her going into another state to work in order to support herself—Boreing v. Boreing, 24 Ky. L. R. 1288, 71 S. W. 431. A residence for one year prior to the commencement of a suit is sufficiently established by evidence that plaintiff came to the state about two years before the commencement of the suit and spent much of the time until its commencement therein, and though absent from the state for some time the absence was to seek employment, and her child remained in the state during this absence, and it was the constant intention of the plaintiff to make her home within the state—Summerville v. Summerville, 31 Wash. 411, 72 Pac. 84.
21. Andrews v. Andrews, 188 U. S. 14, 47 Law. Ed. 366.
22. Wallace v. Wallace (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 433.
Presumption against bona fide residence arises from undue haste in suing after taking up new domicile—Hunter v. Hunter, 64 N. J. Eq. 277.

§ 2. Causes for divorce.—Ante-marital unchastity is not of itself a ground in Georgia.[23]

Cruelty must consist in such treatment as will meet the terms of the local statutes making it a ground.[24] The habitual use of rough language as constituting extreme cruelty depends on the character and station in life of the parties.[25]

Indignities.—It is an indignity to the wife rendering her "condition intolerable" for the husband to drink to excess and frequent evil resorts,[26] or to impute adultery to her and withdraw all marital relations.[27]

Desertion.—A refusal to accompany a husband to a new home established by him amounts to desertion.[28] In California, a refusal to consent to matrimonial intercourse when physical conditions do not warrant the refusal and there is no just cause therefor amounts to desertion.[29] The desertion must not be the result of mutual agreement,[30] and where willful and continued for the statutory time, it is not necessary that it should be malicious.[31] So long as a husband performs his duties to his wife, she is required to live with him and her separation from him is not justified either by coolness of his manner or want of expressions of affection,[32] unless accompanied with rudeness and negligence showing a loss of affection.[33]

The continued separation of complainant prosecuting a suit for divorce from bed and board for extreme cruelty of defendant cannot, during the pendency of the suit, be held to be an obstinate desertion and the time of the pendency of the suit cannot be included in the period of desertion in a suit for divorce on the ground of desertion.[34] In some states, it is the duty of a husband to seek his wife and endeavor to induce her to return before suit on the ground of desertion whether the desertion was caused by his own misconduct[35] or the wife's willfulness.[36] The offer must be sincere[37] and without unreasonable delay.[38] The wife who expects to

23. Statute names "fraud" and "pregnancy at time of marriage unknown to husband"—Stanley v. Stanley, 115 Ga. 990.

24. In Kentucky it suffices that the husband abuses and beats his wife and his temper is such that she will probably suffer great bodily harm by remaining with him—Howlett v. Howlett, 24 Ky. L. R. 974, 70 S. W. 404. Likewise where he uses unfeeling language to her, admits misconduct with other women and attempts to poison the minds of his children against their mother, thus indicating settled aversion—Zumbiel v. Zumbiel, 24 Ky. L. R. 590, 69 S. W. 708. "Repeated" cruelty is not shown by a single act of physical violence—Werres v. Werres, 102 Ill. App. 360.

25. Shuster v. Shuster (Neb.) 92 N. W. 203.

26. McCann v. McCann, 91 Mo. App. 1.

27. Besides striking her—Green v. Green, 131 N. C. 533.

28. Schuman v. Schuman, 93 Mo. App. 99.

29. Fink v. Fink, 137 Cal. 559, 70 Pac. 628.

30. The evidence warrants an inference that separation was by mutual consent and therefore insufficient to justify a decree where plaintiff testified that she lived pleasantly with defendant until a few weeks before the alleged desertion, when she discovered her husband in a falsehood and a quarrel ensued which led to the separation, and she stated that she did not care much about defendant's leaving her, and made no inquiry for him, but that she would have lived with him had he stayed at home—Walthen v. Walthen (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 736.

31. McBride v. McBride (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 781.

32. Schuman v. Schuman, 93 Mo. App. 99.

33. A wife was justified in leaving her husband though he had used no physical violence to her and had been liberal with her in money matters, where his conduct had become so rude and negligent as to show a loss of affection and he was habitually rude to her lady visitors and often left his home for long visits without informing her of his proposed departure—Boreing v. Boreing, 24 Ky. L. R. 1288, 71 S. W. 431.

34. Weigel v. Weigel, 63 N. J. Eq. 677; Hunter v. Hunter, 64 N. J. Eq. 277.

35. On a separation caused by the drunkenness and cruelty of the husband and his failure to reform within two years and seek his wife a divorce is properly granted for desertion—Jerolaman v. Jerolaman (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 166.

36. Though the desertion on the part of the wife was wrongful, yet it is the duty of the husband to seek by proper steps to cause her to return—Wood v. Wood, 63 N. J. Eq. 688.

37. A husband demanding a separation will not be entitled to a divorce on the ground that his offer of reconciliation was refused where the letter asking such return was written in cold and formal terms with no promise of affection or indication of regret for causing the separation—Woolard v. Woolard, 18 App. D. C. 326.

38. Where a husband deserted his wife against her consent he cannot 18 years after cure the desertion by an offer to return so as to entitle him to divorce for desertion take advantage of the rule requiring a husband to seek his wife and endeavor to induce her to return must so behave herself as not to give the husband any cause to suspect her chastity.[39] A husband marrying to escape conviction for seduction is not entitled to a divorce for abandonment because she refused to live with him where she shortly afterwards retracted and offered to live with him as a wife.[40] Failure to provide must, in Colorado, continue for a year.[41]

§ 3. Defenses and excuses.—A divorce will not be granted where both parties are at fault.[42] The general principle which governs in a case where one party recriminates is that the recrimination must allege a cause which the law declares sufficient for divorce.[43]

Subsequent cohabitation with knowledge condones the offense.[44] A delay of 25 years after discovery of a wife's infidelity to sue for divorce on that ground is fatal in the absence of some satisfactory excuse.[45] A wife is not prevented from relying on cruelty of a husband as ground for divorce by reason of her continuing to live with him thereafter in expectation of proper treatment in which she is disappointed.[46] A husband may not excuse his cruel treatment on the ground that he was intoxicated at the time.[47] Whether the improper language of the husband was provoked by the acts of the wife, unless the language was disproportionate to the occasion, is a question for the trial court and will not be reviewed on appeal.[48] A husband cannot obtain a decree for adultery of the wife where he turns her out of the house into the streets of a large city with but a trifling sum to provide for her wants and the alleged act, if committed at all, was committed thereafter.[49] A husband is not prevented from defending on the ground of cruelty by reason of a denial of a divorce to him on the ground of the wife's adultery connived at by him, his conduct since that time having been exemplary.[50]

Where the suit is based on allegations which the party personally knew to be false, it is a fraud on the court, and the pendency of the action is no defense to a subsequent suit for desertion brought by the other spouse,[51] and this is the case on the wife's refusal of his offer to return —McMullin v. McMullin (Cal.) 71 Pac. 108. Civ. Code Cal. § 102, allows return within one year to cure a desertion.

39. Hall v. Hall (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 455.

40. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian, 24 Ky. L. R. 595, 69 S. W. 700.

41. A decree for failure to make reasonable provisions for the support of a family, is properly refused, where the evidence shows that ample provisions had been made until less than a year before the commencement of the action and that the parties were dependent on their own labor for support—Branch v. Branch, 30 Colo. 499, 71 Pac. 632.

42. Anderberg v. Anderberg (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1071. A divorce for misconduct of a wife will be refused where the petitioner is shown to be guilty of a like offense—Knott v. Knott (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 559. A divorce is properly denied on the ground of cruelty in the use of profane language where the testimony shows that both parties were guilty of using such language—Shuster v. Shuster (Neb.) 92 N. W. 203.

43. In North Carolina a wife sued for divorce on the ground of adultery may not recriminate on ground of two acts of adultery of the husband, the laws requiring in case of a husband that he should live in adultery while it gives the husband a divorce on the ground of adultery of the wife —House v. House, 131 N. C. 140.

44. A husband living with his wife after full knowledge that her representations as to her reputation before marriage were false, cannot urge such representations as a ground for divorce—Stanley v. Stanley, 115 Ga. 990. Where the husband resumed marital relations after separation and suspected unfaithfulness of his wife but had no proof thereof until after a later separation, the fact of his living with her after the first separation did not amount to such a condonation as deprived him of the right to a divorce on the ground that her acts in planning to elope with another constituted indignities to him rendering his condition intolerable—Connelly v. Connelly (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1111.

45. Poverty as an excuse insufficient where complainant had means to make a trip to Europe likewise the fact that she had resided abroad—Barker v. Barker, 63 N. J. Eq. 593.

46. Creyts v. Creyts (Mich.) 94 N. W. 383.

47. Harl v. Harl, 24 Ky. L. R. 2163, 73 S. W. 756.

48. Shuster v. Shuster (Neb.) 92 N. W. 203.

49. Heidrich v. Heidrich, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 72.

50. Torlotting v. Torlotting, 97 Mo. App. 183.

51, 52. Weigel v. Weigel, 63 N. J. Eq. 677.

where the suit is begun by advice of counsel, unless it is shown that all the facts within the knowledge of the party were truly stated to the counsel.[52]

§ 4. Practice and procedure.—Practice in general should be as in other cases, unless there is a different provision by statute.[53] In Washington, the code allows complaint to be filed in the county in which plaintiff has lived for one year.[54] Under the divorce act giving defendant thirty days to appear and answer, a summons which gives him only twenty days is insufficient to authorize the court to proceed to judgment.[55]

Ne exeat.—Departure of a husband from the state without procuring the discharge of a writ of ne exeat and without leave of court is a breach of the bond, whether the departure occurs before or after judgment.[56] The action on a ne exeat bond is properly brought for the use and benefit of the wife.[57] An allegation that after it was given the husband left the state and had not since returned and that the wife recovered judgment against him in a certain sum shows sufficiently as against a demurrer that he left after judgment was rendered.[58]

Pleading.—An allegation that plaintiff was a bona fide resident of the state constitutes a sufficient allegation of residence to confer jurisdiction and to render the complaint amendable to conform to the proof as to residence.[59] Adultery, drunkenness, or indignities may be proved under allegations of numerous acts of drunkenness or adultery, and it is not necessary to plead them in the words of the statute.[60] Where specific acts of adultery are charged, evidence that defendant committed adultery with other women than paramour named is not admissible.[61] Defendant is entitled, in New York, to a bill of particulars showing time, place, and circumstances of each act of adultery charged.[62] A demurrer to a petition on the ground that it shows condonation of the offense will not be sustained unless averments of the petition plainly show conduct of the wife amounting to condonation.[63]

In Maryland, a supplemental bill may not be filed setting up as a ground for relief actual adultery occurring after the institution of the suit with persons not specified in the original bill.[64] Under a prayer for general relief, a divorce from bed and board may be granted where the facts shown warrant such relief though the complaint does not show the existence of the statutory grounds relied on.[65] Verification in accordance with the code is mandatory.[66] The Pennsylvania common pleas courts may require service of copies of pleadings to be made on parties within the county by the sheriff though there is nothing in the divorce act requiring service by the sheriff.[67]

Evidence and proof.—Under a code provision making a husband a competent witness to disprove the allegations of adultery, he should be allowed to deny the charge specifically.[68] In Kentucky, a wife is not competent to testify in an action brought by her for divorce on the ground of separation for five years.[69] In Indiana, the two witnesses offering to prove plaintiff's status in the county and state must be resident freeholders and householders of the state.[70]

53. Reed v. Reed (Mo. App.) 70 S. W. 505.
54. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5718—Bachelor v. Bachelor, 30 Wash. 639, 71 Pac. 193.
55. Mottschall v. Mottschall (Colo.) 72 Pac. 1053.
56, 57, 58. Marselis v. People (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 429.
59. Johnson v. Johnson, 30 Colo. 402, 70 Pac. 692.
60. McCann v. McCann, 91 Mo. App. 1.
61. Goldie v. Goldie, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 389.
62. Hunter v. Hunter, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 672; Kirkland v. Kirkland, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 423.
63. Diedrich v. Diedrich (Neb.) 94 N. W. 536.
64. Schwab v. Schwab, 96 Md. 592.
65. Zumbiel v. Zumbiel, 24 Ky. L. R. 590, 69 S. W. 708.
66. Code of N. C. § 1287—Hopkins v. Hopkins, 132 N. C. 22.
67. Timney v. Timney, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 538.
68. Goldie v. Goldie, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 389.
69. Boreing v. Boreing, 24 Ky. L. R. 1288, 71 S. W. 431.
70. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1043—Becker v. Becker (Ind.) 66 N. E. 1010.

The motives of the complainant in effecting a change of residence may be inquired into.[71] Under a statute requiring proof of good conduct of plaintiff before granting him a divorce, a decree is properly refused where the evidence shows that plaintiff deserted his family shortly after the birth of a child and remained in concealment until his whereabouts were disclosed by the commencement of the suit.[72] Circumstances relevant to a charge of adultery are shown below.[73] A husband seeking divorce on the ground of desertion has the burden of proving a willful and obstinate desertion and must show affirmatively that she left of her own choice against his will and remained away when it was her duty to return.[74] Corroborative testimony to essential matters must be taken to support a decree.[75] Where evidence is equally balanced and is as capable of one construction as the other, the court will adopt the construction in favor of innocence.[76] Holdings as to sufficiency of evidence are grouped in the footnote.[77]

Reference.—A master in an undefended suit for divorce may examine the witness by leading questions, where he seems inclined to evade disclosure, but this does not allow his counsel to examine by use of leading questions.[78]

71. Hunter v. Hunter, 64 N. J. Eq. 277. Want of bona fide residence may be inferred from haste in suing upon a cause which originated in a state where such cause is not recognized—Id. Where the evidence shows that plaintiff acquired her residence in the state with intent to remain therein, the fact that she states that her object in coming to the state was to obtain a divorce will not bar her right to obtain such divorce, though her evidence will be considered in determining the bona fides of a residence—Wallace v. Wallace (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 433.

72. Coe v. Coe (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 707.

73. Where one testifies to seeing defendant in a compromising position it may be shown that the act could not have been seen from the place testified to—Goldie v. Goldie, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 389. A companion of defendant at the house of prostitution may testify whether he had seen defendant have sexual intercourse with any woman on such occasion—Id. In an action for the wife's adultery a letter written to her by her alleged paramour shortly before her marriage is admissible in connection with evidence of similar acts during marriage to prove the illicit intercourse charged—Bickley v. Bickley, 136 Ala. 548.

74. Wood v. Wood, 63 N. J. Eq. 688.

75. Proof of plaintiff's status by witnesses, only one of whom possesses the qualifications, is insufficient and confers no jurisdiction on the court—Cummins v. Cummins, 30 Ind. App. 671. The Illinois laws require the cause of divorce in case of default to be proved by more than one witness (Rev. St. c. 40, § 8)—Kline v. Kline, 104 Ill. App. 274.

76. Poillon v. Poillon, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 127.

77. The motive cannot be established by the petitioner's own testimony as to the reason for making a change of residence and where the petitioner's testimony on that point is practically unsupported and there is no cross-examination and some of the answers indicate a mental reservation, it will be held that there was not such a residence acquired as would give the court jurisdiction—Hunter v. Hunter, 64 N. J. Eq. 277. The statutory degrees of cruelty—Bryan v. Bryan, 137 Cal. XIX, 70 Pac. 304; McKee v. McKee (Neb.) 96 N. W. 489; Creyts v. Creyts (Mich.) 94 N. W. 383; Harl v. Harl, 24 Ky. L. R. 2163, 73 S. W. 756. Extreme cruelty of wife—Torlotting v. Torlotting, 97 Mo. App. 183. A divorce on the ground of extreme cruelty is properly denied a husband where the evidence of a child in the father's favor showed prejudice and feeling against the mother and the evidence of neighbors showed that defendant had been a faithful wife, cleanly in her habits and there was strong evidence that plaintiff himself had been unfaithful and that her refusal to admit him to the house occurred after he had filed a bill for divorce against her which was afterwards discontinued—Parkinson v. Parkinson (Mich.) 96 N. W. 497.

Adultery—Gibson v. Gibson, 18 App. D. C. 72; Fischer v. Fischer (Mich.) 91 N. W. 633; White v. White, 64 N. J. Eq. 84. Evidence insufficient to sustain charge of adultery—Post v. Post (N. J. Eq.) 52 Atl. 1102; Goldie v. Goldie, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 389; Poillon v. Poillon, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 127; Burch v. Burch, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 55.

Causes of separation or desertion: Evidence insufficient to show that the husband was authorized in refusing longer to live with his wife because of her misconduct—Wood v. Wood, 63 N. J. Eq. 688. Evidence held not to satisfactorily show that defendant's leaving plaintiff was without plaintiff's fault—Hale v. Hale, 24 Ky. L. R. 2203, 73 S. W. 784. Evidence sufficient to warrant a decree for desertion—Hall v. Hall (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 455. Evidence insufficient to show willful separation—Wood v. Wood, 63 N. J. Eq. 688. Evidence insufficient to support a finding that the separation between plaintiff and defendant was voluntary and without defendant's consent—McMullin v. McMullin (Cal.) 71 Pac. 108. Evidence of constructive desertion of a wife by her husband held insufficient to authorize a decree—Seeley v. Seeley, 64 N. J. Eq. 1.

78. Seeley v. Seeley, 64 N. J. Eq. 1.

In New York, the court of special term will not deny judgment because of errors of the referee in the reception and exclusion of evidence, the code not allowing a judgment to be taken of course on a referee's report and requiring the testimony and other proceedings to be certified to the court by the referee with his report and judgment rendered by the court.[79]

Verdicts and findings.—A finding that plaintiff has been guilty of willful desertion is a conclusion of law and not a finding of fact.[80] Where there is no issue as to the date of a marriage, findings are unnecessary and an inconsistency on that point is harmless.[81] Consent to a verdict by eleven jurors is valid where the verdict is for defendant, though a code provision provides that no judgment in divorce shall be given in favor of plaintiff until facts have been found by the jury and under this rule the verdict would have been invalid if for plaintiff.[82]

New trial.—In North Carolina, a new trial may be granted on the issue of adultery by plaintiff without granting it on the issue of desertion by defendant.[83]

Decree, vacation, and modification.[84]—Under the New York provision that final judgment in divorce shall be made three months after the entry of the interlocutory judgment, the date of the entry and not of the filing of the referee's report is the day from which the time is to be reckoned,[85] and the interlocutory judgment must be filed with the county clerk who is a clerk of the supreme court and not with the clerk of a particular division of the supreme court.[86] A decree divorcing the husband "from his wife" is valid though the name of the wife is incorrectly given in the decree, as the inaccurate name may be rejected as surplusage.[87]

A decree will not be vacated where party was personally served and might have appealed,[88] or where he has unreasonably delayed in seeking to vacate or set it aside.[89] A statute allowing a certain time to open a decree made on publication does not apply where the party obtaining the divorce is dead at the time the application to open the decree is made.[90] Defects or irregularities in procuring published service must be such as to vitiate the jurisdiction on which the decree rests.[91] Application to vacate a decree must be made in time and present a strong case if plaintiff has since died.[92] When there are no property rights or anything but the

79. Party relegated to appeal to obtain new trial—Goldie v. Goldie, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 389.

80. Fink v. Fink, 137 Cal. 559, 70 Pac. 628. A denial of a divorce on a finding that extreme cruelty had been proved but that defendant had refused matrimonial intercourse without finding that there was "no just cause for such refusal" as required by the code is insufficient to support the conclusion and on appeal the court could not say that the finding as to cruelty was a finding of cause for plaintiff's conduct—Id.

81. Bryan v. Bryan, 137 Cal. XIX, 70 Pac. 304.

82, 83. Hall v. Hall, 131 N. C. 185.

84. Evidence of fraud and duress sufficient to sustain judgment setting aside decree of divorce—Humphrey v. Humphrey (Neb.) 91 N. W. 856.

85. Gibson v. Gibson, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 103.

86. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1774—Rothstein v. Rothstein, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 101.

87. Howton v. Gilpin, 24 Ky. L. R. 630, 69 S. W. 766.

88. A defendant in a divorce suit served with citation which was explained to him on the original petition and the amended petition did not set up a new cause of action, and who knew of the decree twenty days after its rendition and paid the costs, cannot maintain the suit to set aside the decree for fraud, his remedy was by appeal—Richards v. Minster (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 98.

89. In this case the parties were married in 1888 but never lived together. In 1892, a divorce was obtained of which the defendant in the state had knowledge the same year but made no effort to have the decree set aside until 1899 and after the marriage of her former husband—Hurley v. Hurley, 117 Iowa, 621.

90. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1042—Day v. Nottingham (Ind.) 66 N. E. 998.

91. The fact that the affidavit for service by publication was made by the wife instead of by a disinterested person as required by one statute will not suffice to show more than mere error where a real doubt as to the applicability of that statute exists and the requirements of the other one are met and the notice given substantially complies with the law. (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1048)—Day v. Nottingham (Ind.) 66 N. E. 998.

92. Day v. Nottingham (Ind.) 66 N. E. 998. It is not a fraud on an actual nonresident to state falsely but unnecessarily in the affidavit for published service that the place of residence is unknown, especially right to a divorce to be relitigated, the death of one party extinguishes all right to open the decree;[93] and hence, where she dies leaving considerable property, and it is not shown that she was possessed of the property at the time she obtained the divorce, the court will hesitate to set aside the decree as the only effect of such an action will be to permit defendant to inherit the property. Defaulted parties must show merits and good cause.[94]

Costs.—In granting a husband a divorce, in Kentucky, the costs may not be adjudged against the wife, where she is without property and was not in fault. The husband should have been adjudged to pay the costs of the wife including reasonable attorney's fees.[95]

Review.—The reviewability and mode of review of divorce decrees or of the order for alimony depends on the local statutes.[96] The review of divorce suits on appeal is generally governed by rules applicable to equity cases and extends to law and facts and the courts are not bound to affirm the decrees where convinced that they are against the preponderance of the evidence.[97] On appeal the court will give great weight to the judgment of the lower court and will not reverse unless the showing of error is clear,[98] and this is especially the case where the evidence is contradictory.[99] Plaintiff in a divorce suit, having married pending the appeal from the decree granting the divorce, will not be heard on the appeal or be allowed to have the case remanded for a new trial, the case being reversed.[1] A marriage by a divorced person during the period allowed by law for commencing proceedings for reversal of the divorce decree is invalid.[2] Where the husband to whom the divorce was granted died pending an appeal, and the wife asserts no right to have the action revived to determine the property rights, the appeal will be dismissed.[3]

§ 5. Custody and support of children.—The question of custody should be determined by the welfare of the child,[4] and should be given to a deserting wife as against a husband who though successful married her only to escape a prosecution.[5] The custody decree allowing parents alternate custody should be so framed as not to interfere with the child's attendance at school.[6] Support of children should be awarded separately from alimony.[7] A husband is entitled to the earnings of a child and bound for his support though the custody is given to the mother.[8]

since had affiant stated the truth the service would have been allowed—Id.

93. Day v. Nottingham (Ind.) 66 N. E. 998.

94. A judgment by default will not be set aside where defendant admits personal service and does not deny the charge of adultery except by stating that she has a good and valid defense and does not present an affidavit of merits or a proposed answer—Maguire v. Maguire, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 534. See, also, Defaults.

95. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian, 24 Ky. L. R. 595, 69 S. W. 700. See, also, Alimony ante, p. 70 and Costs ante, p. 808.

96. An alimony decree in Louisiana before final judgment is appealable regardless of amount (Const. 1898, art. 85)—Dale v. Hauer, 109 La. 711. An order modifying a decree by reducing alimony appealable—Davis v. Davis, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 500. A judgment of the appellate division reversing a decree which reduced alimony goes to the court of appeals—Livingston v. Livingston, 173 N. Y. 377. In Kentucky, the action of the chancellor in the matter of adjudging the costs and alimony, and maintenance can be reviewed, though the judgment for divorce is not subject to review on appeal—Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian, 24 Ky. L. R. 595, 69 S. W. 700. See Appeal and Review, ante, p. 85.

97. Schuman v. Schuman, 93 Mo. App. 99. The appellate courts in Missouri may review issues of fact in suits for divorce as in suits of equity—McCann v. McCann, 91 Mo. App. 1.

98. Harl v. Harl, 24 Ky. L. R. 2163, 73 S. W. 756.

99. Donaldson v. Donaldson (Mich.) 96 N. W. 448; Coe v. Coe (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 707.

1. Branch v. Branch, 30 Colo. 499, 71 Pac. 632.

2. Eaton v. Eaton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 995.

3. Sperry v. Sperry (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 1077.

4. Properly given to a father, where the wife's circumstances and surroundings make it doubtful whether it would be just to the child to give her its custody and the father is giving the child a fair opportunity for education in a home surrounded by good conditions—Masterson v. Masterson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1352, 71 S. W. 490.

5. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian, 24 Ky. L. R. 595, 69 S. W. 700.

6. Van Buren v. Van Buren, 75 App. Div. 615, 11 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 381.

7. Rev. St. 1899, § 2926—Meyers v. Meyers, 91 Mo. App. 151.

Courts generally have the right to modify orders providing for the custody of the minor children,[9] and the change in custody may be made in habeas corpus proceedings.[10] Where no provision is made for the custody of the children at the time the decree is entered, the mother may at a subsequent term obtain an order compelling the father to provide her with means for their future support.[11] In California, the supreme court has no power, on appeal from an order denying a new trial, to modify the provision of the decree providing for support of a minor child until it attains its majority.[12] A decree of another state determining the custody of the child in a suit for divorce is res judicata of all questions as to the right of custody which could have been before the court at the time of the entry of the decree,[13] but the decree will not bar a subsequent proceeding in the domestic court to modify it on proof of a change in the situation of the parties.[14] Acts allowing the court to modify maintenance orders entered before the passage of such acts are unconstitutional.[15]

§ 6. Adjustment of property rights.—Where the court finds that the wife has been willfully absent for more than three years and that the husband is entitled to a decree on that ground, the court can, under Rev. St., Ohio, 1890, § 5700, adjudge to her such share of the husband's property as it deems just, which adjudication is binding on his estate.[16] Under a code providing that by failure to take exceptions to a misjoinder of causes of action, it shall be deemed waived, property rights not growing out of the marriage relation should be adjudicated by an action of divorce though not properly joined, where no objection was made.[17]

§ 7. Effect of divorce.—A husband and wife after divorce become tenants in common of the community property and either may recover the entire interest as against a trespasser.[18] After a decree of divorce, the husband has no right of possession in the wife's separate property simply because such property was occupied as a homestead while the marriage relation existed.[19] The fact that a wife obtains a divorce for desertion of husband will not bar proceedings against a husband who marries to escape prosecution for bastardy and afterwards maltreats and deserts her.[20]

§ 8. Foreign divorce.—The full faith and credit clause of the federal con-

8. Meyers v. Meyers, 91 Mo. App. 151.

9. Miles v. Miles, 65 Kan. 676, 70 Pac. 631; Everitt v. Everitt, 29 Ind. App. 508. Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 2926—Meyers v. Meyers, 91 Mo. App. 151. The court has power on petition to provide for the care and custody of children born after the decree of divorce, where the decree made no provisions for such support—Shannon v. Shannon, 97 Mo. App. 119.

10. The duty of the state, as parens patriae, and the jurisdiction of a habeas corpus court are continuing and not limited to the date of a divorce—Williams v. Crosby (Ga.) 45 S. E. 282. A decree in a divorce suit awarding the child to one of the parents is prima facie evidence of the legal right to its custody, but is not conclusive in habeas corpus proceedings, where neglect or mistreatment of the child or unfitness of the parent arising since the date of the decree is involved—Id.

11. Meyers v. Meyers, 91 Mo. App. 151. Evidence sufficient on petition to modify decree as to support and maintenance of child to sustain legitimacy of child whose paternity was denied in the later proceeding—Kraus v. Kraus (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 130.

12. Bryan v. Bryan, 137 Cal. XIX, 70 Pac. 304.

13. Wilson v. Elliott (Tex.) 73 S. W. 946. A foreign divorce decree awarding custody to the mother may not be contested by a father where he has recognized its validity by contracting a second marriage—State v. King, 109 La. 161.

14. Wilson v. Elliott (Tex.) 73 S. W. 946. In a proceeding to modify a decree of another state awarding custody of a child, evidence of a change in the situation of the parties prior to the rendition of the foreign decree is admissible in corroboration of evidence showing a similar situation or conduct since the decree relied on to effect a modification thereof—Id.

15. Livingston v. Livingston, 173 N. Y. 377.

16. Hassaurek v. Hassaurek's Adm'r (Ohio) 67 N. E. 1066.

17. Code Civ. Proc. Neb. § 96—Reed v. Reed (Neb.) 91 N. W. 857.

18. Williamson v. Gore (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

19. Cizek v. Cizek (Neb.) 96 N. W. 657.

20. State v. Lannoy, 30 Ind. App. 385. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 7298a et seq.

stitution is not violated by the refusal of a state to recognize a decree of another state by one who temporarily left his home and acquired a domicile in such state to obtain a divorce for an act which occurred in the former state which was not ground for a divorce there.[21] A foreign decree to a husband for desertion will be regarded as a nullity in the forum where the wife at the time had obtained a decree from bed and board in the state of the forum for his desertion.[22] Where the decree of a state rendered after personal service on the husband and notice to appear or answer requires the husband to pay alimony in certain amounts, a judicial debt of record is established which may be enforced in the courts of another state within the full faith and credit clause of the constitution.[23] One obtaining a decree in a foreign court will not thereafter be heard to deny its validity though in states not recognizing such divorces.[24]

DOCKETS, CALENDARS AND TRIAL LISTS.[25]

Placing cause on calendar.—A notice of trial is essential,[26] even where the cause is transferred from another calendar for which it has been noticed,[27] but it is otherwise where both parties move that a cause be restored to the calendar.[28] Notice of trial cannot be given while a stay is in effect.[29]

Passing or advancing causes.—The court may advance a preferred cause though the attorney has failed to comply with the statute as to notice of motion for advancement.[30] Motion to pass a cause is implied consent to trial on the day to which it is passed.[31]

Transfer, correction, or striking off.—A motion to strike off must be promptly made.[32] Modification of an order setting a cause for trial cannot be made ex parte.[33] The clerk cannot of his own motion correct his error in placing the cause on the wrong calendar.[34] Where the complaint does not authorize equitable relief, the court will transfer the cause to the law calendar e. g., in New York to trial term calendar.[35]

21. Andrews v. Andrews, 188 U. S. 14, 47 Law. Ed. 366.

22. In re Heins' Estate, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 31.

23. Compare title Alimony ante as to when alimony award becomes enforceable as money judgment—Moore v. Moore, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 162.

24. In re Swale's Estate, 172 N. Y. 651; Starbuck v. Starbuck, 173 N. Y. 503.

25. Calendars and dockets of appellate Courts, see Appeal and Error, ante, p. 139. Rules for determining when issues are joined, also times to plead, see Pleading.

26. The court has no power to relieve a party whose notice was served too late—Roberts v. Schaf, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 433. The fact that the attorney had instructed his clerk to give the notice is no excuse for failure—Hix v. Edison Elec. Light Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 384; Loftus v. Oppenheim, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 464. The request to put the case on the calendar required by Pub. Acts 1899, c. 187, p. 1102, must be made within thirty days after the return day when issue is joined within such time—McKay v. Fair Haven & W. R. Co., 75 Conn. 608.

In some states the practice is for the clerk to put the cause on the docket for trial in all cases where the action is begun in time to enable all issues to be formed by the first day of the term. It is then announced "for trial" or otherwise by the attorneys when the docket is "called."

27. Poerschke v. Baldwin, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 284.

28. Darby v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631.

29. Stay under Code Civ. Proc. § 779, for failure to pay costs of motion—Roberts v. Schaf, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 433.

30. Code Civ. Proc. § 792, provides that unless notice be given of the particular day at which it is intended to move the cause for trial it shall not be moved out of its order except by special order of court—City of New York v. Shack, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 575.

31. Union Surety & Guaranty Co. v. Tenney, 102 Ill. App. 95.

32. Winterburn v. Parlow, 102 Ill. App. 368. Two and one-half months delay after notice of trial is fatal—Freund v. Huylers, 102 Ill. App. 486. And a motion when the cause is called for trial comes too late—Pierpont v. Johnson, 104 Ill. App. 27. A motion to have equitable issues sent to special term cannot be made after two years delay—Jacob v. Thompson, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 526.

33. Martin v. Universal Trust Co., 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 320.

34. Noble v. Burney, 116 Ga. 626.

35. Plaintiff contended that he was entitled to go to trial at peril of dismissal if

Short cause calendars.—A case should not be put on the short cause calendar where there is reasonable doubt whether it can be tried in the prescribed short time.[36]

DOMICILE.[37]

Under the common law, the husband may select the family domicile.[38] The domicile of an infant is that of the parents and is presumed to continue at such place until proof that it has been lawfully changed.[39] After the death of the father, the domicile of the children is that of the mother.[40]

A change of domicile is accomplished by a change of residence to a new place coupled with the animus manendi.[41] The intent must be shown,[42] and there must be an actual removal, an arrangement for the change is not sufficient.[43] Domicile is not lost by temporary absence.[44] One charging a change of domicile has the burden of proving the change, as the domicile of origin continues until another is acquired.[45]

Domicile of paupers and insane persons.—A person of unsound mind is incapable of forming an intention necessary to effect a change of domicile.[46] On marriage, the woman takes the pauper settlement of her husband if he has any.[47] A settlement of a woman is not changed by her marriage induced by collusion of the pauper officers of the district of her settlement,[48] nor where the husband at the time of the marriage was mentally incapacitated to contract a marriage.[49] Though a pauper act uses the word "resides" in the sense of having a domicile and provides that a woman who resides at any place for five years altogether shall gain a settlement, yet the intention of one leaving a place to return at some in-he failed to establish an equitable cause of action—Everett v. De Fontaine, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 219.

36. Uvalde Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Dunn, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 467. Cases requiring more than two hours should be sent to the foot of the general term calendar—Guaranty Trust Co. v. Griffiths, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631.

37. Jurisdiction as dependent on domicile or citizenship of parties, see Jurisdiction.

38. Schuman v. Schuman, 93 Mo. App. 99.

39. In re Russell's Estate, 64 N. J. Eq. 313. The residence of a child at the death of the father is not changed by the fact that the mother takes the child with her to another state, unless an intent on her part to abandon the former state as a residence is shown—Id.

40. In re Russell's Estate, 64 N. J. Eq. 313. It is not necessary that the children should be removed from the state of the father's residence in order to make their domicile that of the mother in another state—Modern Woodmen of America v. Hester (Kan.) 71 Pac. 279.

41. Marks v. Germania Sav. Bank (La.) 34 So. 725. Continuous, uninterrupted declarations, especially at times not suspicious, accompanied by the fact of residence, the removal of personal property and the exercise of political rights establish a change of domicile—Id.

42. In re Russell's Estate, 64 N. J. Eq. 313; Inhabitants of Palmer v. Inhabitants of Hampden, 182 Mass. 511.

43. Inhabitants of Palmer v. Inhabitants of Hampden, 182 Mass. 511.

44. Removal for temporary purposes without intention of changing his residence will not disqualify a juror—Sikes v. State, 116 Ga. 182. A wife living separately from her husband for five years does not lose her residence in the state of his domicile for the purpose of a divorce suit while going into another state to work to support herself—Boreing v. Boreing, 24 Ky. L. R. 1288, 71 S. W. 431. A finding that a party was not a nonresident so as to allow an attachment is supported where testimony of a party and his wife shows that he left the state merely to take a temporary position and there was nothing to the contrary on which to base more than a mere suspicion—Newlon-Hart Grocer Co. v. Peet (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 446.

An intention to return at an indefinite time not sufficient to retain domicile under pauper laws—Inhabitants of Palmer v. Inhabitants of Hampden, 182 Mass. 511.

45. Succession of Simmons, 109 La. 1095; Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Brown (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 915.

46. Held in a case involving a pauper settlement—Phillips v. City of Boston (Mass.) 67 N. E. 250.

47. Inhabitants of Winslow v. Inhabitants of Troy, 97 Me. 130.

48. Inhabitants of Hudson v. Inhabitants of Charleston, 97 Me. 17. Sufficiency of evidence that a marriage was procured by collusion on the part of the officers of a town liable for the support of a pauper woman—Id.

49. Inhabitants of Winslow v. Inhabitants of Troy, 97 Me. 130.

definite time is not enough to retain her domicile there so that the time before and after her leaving may be tacked to make the five year domicile.[50] The guardian of an insane person in Iowa may deny his ward's legal residence in the county of the guardian's appointment in an action to restrain collection of taxes though the laws of that state require appointment of a guardian for any "inhabitant" of the county found insane.[51]

Domicile under election laws.—Residence in an election district is acquired by moving one's personal effects thereto and by acts showing an intent that residence should commence at that time.[52] It is not lost by temporary absences.[53] It is lost by removal into another state with intent to remain there permanently, though the party afterwards changes his intention and returns.[54] A student, who at the time of voting has no fixed intention to remain in the state, is not eligible to vote therein though he has actually resided in the state for a longer period than that required.[55]

Domicile under revenue laws is often required as of a certain date as determining taxable residence.[56]

Domicile under bankruptcy act.—Under the bankruptcy act conferring jurisdiction as to persons having a domicile within the district for the preceding six months or greater portion thereof, a traveling gambler residing in a particular district for only two months is not included.[57]

Evidence as to domicile.—The statements of a party and his conduct are not conclusive of the question of intent,[58] but may be considered on that question along with other evidence,[59] and a like rule governs where domicile is sought to be proved by the appointment of an administrator and the probate of a will.[60] In the absence of evidence to the contrary, residence in the United States under the copyright law is sufficiently proved by a certificate of the librarian describing the party as of New York and the author's testimony that he was at the time of the trial a resident of New York and had mailed the copies to the librarian in New York more than ten years before.[61]

50. Inhabitants of Palmer v. Inhabitants of Hampden, 182 Mass. 511.

51. Brown v. Lambe (Iowa) 93 N. W. 486.

52. There is an acquisition of a residence in a precinct within the election laws where the party at the date necessary to fix his residence as a legal voter moves a part of his property into the house and is married on that day and the following day moves into the house with his wife—Conner v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 709, 69 S. W. 963.

53. An unmarried man will not lose his residence by reason of his leaving the state where he intends to return within a short time and does in fact return and lives in the state at the time of his election—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852, 25 Ky. L. R. 435, 75 S. W. 257. A voter moving into another ward for sanitary reasons only intending to return does not lose his residence by reason of the temporary removal—Finn v. Board of Canvassers, 24 R. I. 482.

But see ante, note 44.

54. Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852, 25 Ky. L. R. 435, 75 S. W. 257.

55. Parsons v. People, 30 Colo. 388, 70 Pac. 689.

56. In New York, residence on July 1st determines residence for assessment—People v. Feitner, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 287.

57. In re Williams, 120 Fed. 34.

58. Ida County Sav. Bank v. Seidensticker (Iowa) 92 N. W. 862. An affidavit stating that a party has removed and resides in another state and does not reside in the state from which it is claimed he has removed, states a conclusion and is not sufficient proof of nonresidence—Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Brown (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 915.

59. While a man's act in registering himself and wife at hotels as of a certain place may be insufficient in itself to fasten upon him acknowledgment of domicile there, repeated registerings of that kind through two or three years time, and never once of another (subsequently claimed from interested motives, to be his domicile) are strong links in the chain of facts and circumstances going to establish intention to make the place of declared residence his domicile—Marks v. Germania Sav. Bank (La.) 34 So. 725.

60. Ewing v. Mallison, 65 Kan. 484, 70 Pac. 369.

61. Patterson v. J. S. Ogilvie Pub. Co., 119 Fed. 451.

DOWER.

§ 1. Nature of right; persons entitled; election.—The wife's inchoate right of dower prior to the husband's death is not a vested right protected against legislative change;[62] hence a statute defining the lands in which a wife is dowable is operative as to inchoate rights of dower,[63] but after the dower estate has become vested by the death of the husband it cannot be changed by legislation to the prejudice of the heirs.[64]

A widow who prior to her husband's death abandons him and lives in adultery is not entitled to dower,[65] and though both husband and wife have been guilty of adultery, the husband first being guilty, the wife nevertheless is not entitled to dower she not being living with her husband at the time of his death.[66]

Where, on the emigration of the husband, the wife refuses to accompany him, the separation will be regarded as voluntary on her part, within the meaning of statutes depriving her of dower in the case of such separation, and she is not excused by a report that he is married to another woman.[67] Nor can she claim dower where from her actions it is apparent that she does not intend again to live with her husband.[68]

Election between dower and other rights.—Statutes allowing an election by the widow to take one-half of the land subject to the payment of the debts of the estate in lieu of dower in one-third where there are no children have been construed to be distinct from statutes providing for the order of succession in the event of intestacy without issue, so that an election to take under one of such provisions will not bar a claim under the other.[69]

There is no such inconsistency between the right of dower and the distributive share in personalty as to make the taking of one an exclusion of the other.[70] Acceptance of the provisions of the will by the widow does not bar dower unless the provisions of the will are inconsistent with such right or it expressly so provides.[71] A provision for joint occupancy of the realty by the wife and daughter, and in case they desire it, for a sale and equal division of the proceeds between the wife and two children of testator, is not so inconsistent with the widow's right of dower as to prevent her becoming an owner in fee of one-third of the land occupied though it provided that on sale the share of the proceeds should be given to the wife in lieu of dower.[72]

In New York a widow cannot have dower in addition to a testamentary provi-

62. Helm v. Board, 24 Ky. L. R. 1037, 70 S. W. 679; Bartlett v. Tinsley (Mo.) 75 S. W. 143.

63. Ky. St. § 2135—Helm v. Board, 24 Ky. L. R. 1037, 70 S. W. 679.

64. Estate vested under Code 1851, § 1394, giving the widow for life, one-third of the land of which the husband died seized—Bottorff v. Lewis (Iowa) 95 N. W. 262.

65. Rev. St. 1899, § 2953—Lyons v. Lyons (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 467.

66. Code, § 2102; Acts 1893, c. 153—Phillips v. Wiseman, 131 N. C. 402.

67. Rev. St. 1889, § 4532—Wilson v. Craig (Mo.) 75 S. W. 419.

68. She remarried without procuring a divorce—Wilson v. Craig (Mo.) 75 S. W. 419.

69. Rights under Civ. Code, §§ 228, 236, regarded as separate from rights under section 1852—Dahlman v. Dahlman (Mont.) 72 Pac. 748.

70. Rev. St. 1892, §§ 4176, 5964—Hutchings v. Davis (Ohio) 67 N. E. 251.

71. Code, 1873, § 2452, provides that the widow's share cannot be affected by any will of the husband, unless she consent thereto within six months after notice of its provisions—Kiefer v. Gillett (Iowa) 94 N. W. 270.

72. Kiefer v. Gillett (Iowa) 94 N. W. 270.

sion for payment to her of one-third of the income of the realty during the minority of the child, and on the termination of the trust for the child a conveyance of one-third of the realty itself.[73] Where no provision is made for the widow by will except the creation of an annuity not stated to be in lieu of dower, the widow is not required to elect,[74] and where the will gives the widow nothing in lieu of dower, her acceptance of her dower is not an election between her distributive share conferred by statute and the will, though she takes the value in money.[75]

An agreement by the wife at the time of execution of a will by her husband, to take thereunder in lieu of dower or other interest, and the acceptance of a portion of the bequest from the executors, does not prevent the widow from renouncing the will if the bequest is less than the amount she would take under the statute.[76]

Ignorance of her rights will not excuse failure of the widow to renounce the husband's will within the period prescribed by statute for her election unless the time has been extended by the chancellor.[77]

The fact that the widow remains in the residence given her in lieu of dower by an antenuptial contract during assignment of dower does not show an election to take under the contract.[78] The widow's right to dower is not extinguished by merger on an acceptance from the heirs of a quitclaim deed of the premises in which dower is claimed, where a different intention may be reasonably deduced from the circumstances.[79]

Effect of assignment.—Before dower is assigned it is not subject to a transfer or conveyance by the widow,[80] though by statute it may be made so.[81] Prior to assignment, the widow has no such title to the land as will support an action at law against the administrator or heir for rents collected; her remedy is in equity.[82]

When dower is assigned, the widow's seisin relates to the date of death of her husband and the antecedent seisin of the heir is to be regarded as not having had an existence,[83] and where, before assignment, the administrator rents property in which such dower is assigned, one to whom he transfers the obligation for rent cannot enforce such obligation as against the widow's claim, such transferee being chargeable with knowledge of the limited rights of the administrator,[84] and the widow can, if the transferee receive a portion of the crop as rent, waive the tortious conversion and bring an action for money had and received.[85]

After assignment, the widow has a vested estate in that assigned to her,[86] which estate does not depend on her continued occupancy,[87] and she is not answerable to the heirs of the husband for rents received from tenants to whom she leased the premises.[88] Under statutes giving the widow a life estate, her dower estate after award is not one of inheritance and cannot be bequeathed or conveyed so as to pass an interest to her heirs or strangers after her death;[89] hence, when an heir in a conveyance of his realty reserved any interest which might accrue in

73. In re Gorden, 172 N. Y. 25, 11 Ann. Cas. 397.

74. Horstmann v. Flege, 172 N. Y. 381, 12 Ann. Cas. 163.

75. Hutchings v. Davis (Ohio) 67 N. E. 251.

76. There is no ground for estoppel and there is no consideration making the agreement binding as a valid contract—Spratt v. Lawson (Mo.) 75 S. W. 642.

77. Election must be within one year under Kentucky St. 1899, § 1404—Logsdon v. Haney (Ky.) 74 S. W. 1073.

78. The contract was on an insufficient consideration—Moran v. Stewart, 173 Mo. 207.

79. Wettlaufer v. Ames (Mich.) 94 N. W. 950.

80. She cannot by a lease transfer her interest in oil and gas rights in land from which she is entitled to be assigned dower—Haskell v. Sutton (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 533.

81. Rev. St. 1899, § 2934—Phillips v. Presson, 172 Mo. 24.

82, 83, 84, 85. Bettis v. McNider (Ala.) 34 So. 813.

86. Haugh v. Peirce, 97 Me. 281.

87. She is seized for life of a freehold estate—Rowley v. Poppenhager, 203 Ill. 434.

88. Rowley v. Poppenhager, 203 Ill. 434.

89. Code, 1851, § 1394—Bottorff v. Lewis (Iowa) 95 N. W. 262.

the estate of the widow, such reservation cannot be regarded to refer to the dower estate but merely to such other lands as might be acquired by the widow in fee simple.[90]

Where property, devised the widow for life, is on her refusal to take under the will set off as dower, the rights of the remaindermen are not affected.[91]

§ 2. In what dower may be had.—Possession under a mere equitable right to a conveyance is not sufficient to support an inchoate right of dower, though the husband complies with the contract of purchase but takes title in the name of a third person.[92] Under certain statutes, the widow may have dower in property of which the husband was not in actual possession.[93] Possession by the husband under an arrangement with the life tenant is not sufficient.[94] Where the husband's equity under a contract for the purchase of land is sold to satisfy a judgment for the payment of a balance due on the purchase price, the wife has no right of dower as against the purchaser who has received possession.[95]

The wife of a devisee has an inchoate right of dower in his share of lands devised, and a decree in partition which bars her of any right, title, or interest in such lands is erroneous.[96]

The wife is not entitled to dower in land which her husband holds in trust,[97] but a parol trust will not be raised to defeat a wife's claim to dower in land of which her husband was seized in favor of one taking with constructive notice of the absolute character of the conveyance to the husband.[98] The widow may have dower in the husband's lands which with him she has conveyed in trust to be conveyed by the trustee to the husband's heirs in default of an appointment during his life time or in his will, there having been no appointment,[99] but her dower is extinguished as to a portion of the land which the trustee conveyed during the husband's life at his request.[1]

Dower attaches only to such real estate of a partnership as is not required for the payment of partnership debts and for the adjustment of rights between the partners.[2]

Property conveyed before marriage.—The widow is entitled to one-third of the real property owned by her husband during coverture only, and such right cannot be extended to lands conveyed by the husband before marriage to his heirs by a former marriage by way of advancements.[3] A conveyance before marriage is not in fraud of the wife's dower right where made with her knowledge and in the absence of fraud, undue influence, or want of capacity on the part of the husband.[4] There is no right of dower in property which before his marriage the husband has conveyed by deeds placed in escrow to be recorded and delivered to the grantees after his death.[5]

90. Bottorff v. Lewis (Iowa) 95 N. W. 262.

91. Baptist Female University v. Borden, 132 N. C. 476.

92. There is no sufficient seisin where the husband has title to land which he purchases, conveyed to his brother in order to prevent the wife's right of dower from attaching—Nichols v. Park, 78 App. Div. 95, 12 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 306.

93. Rev. St. 1889, § 4535—Bartlett v. Tinsley (Mo.) 75 S. W. 143.

94. Boykin v. Springs, 66 S. C. 362.

95. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 2652, provides that dower shall attach to the real estate of which the husband is seized in fee simple during marriage—Schaefer v. Purviance (Ind.) 66 N. E. 154.

96. Schick v. Whitcomb (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1023.

97. His estate not being an indefeasible estate of inheritance—Gritten v. Dickerson, 202 Ill. 372.

98. Bartlett v. Tinsley (Mo.) 75 S. W. 143.

99, 1. Goodheart v. Goodheart, 63 N. J. Eq. 746.

2. Davidson v. Richmond, 24 Ky. L. R. 699, 69 S. W. 794.

3. Code, § 3366—Burgoon v. Whitney (Iowa) 95 N. W. 229.

4. Evidence held not to show fraud in the case of a conveyance before the second marriage of a man of 76 in consideration of the assumption of debts by a son and promise to make certain provisions for other children—Daniher v. Daniher, 201 Ill. 489.

Land acquired by the husband after divorce is not subject to dower in favor of the former wife.[6]

Lands subject to mortgage or vendor's lien.—The wife has no dower in land which her husband takes subject to a mortgage though he executes his own notes and mortgage to take the place of the existing indebtedness, the evidences of which are surrendered to his grantor.[7]

In Missouri, the wife is entitled to dower in land purchased by the husband subject to a mortgage, and if after the husband's death the administrator pays off the mortgage by a sale of the mortgaged and other land, the widow's dower immediately attaches, and as the purchaser does not acquire title under the mortgage he cannot be subrogated to the mortgagee's rights.[8]

In Kentucky, prior to the adoption of a statute allowing the wife dower in a surplus remaining after the sale of land of which her husband was seized, to satisfy a vendor's lien, the widow's right to dower was subordinate to the purchase money lien.[9]

Though a sale under a mortgage in which the wife has joined is after the husband's death, the widow is entitled to dower only in the surplus remaining after satisfaction of the mortgage.[10]

Land of alien.—The widow may claim dower in lands conveyed individually by her husband, though he was born in a foreign state.[11]

§ 3. Extinguishment, release or bar, and revival of dower.—Where before marriage the wife releases her widow's award, dower, and homestead in her future husband's property in consideration of a sum in gross, the release will be inoperative as to the dower if void as to the homestead and repudiated as to the award by the wife after the birth of a child.[12] An antenuptial relinquishment of dower cannot be renounced by the widow unless she was an infant at the time of its execution.[13] Dower is not barred by an antenuptial contract making provision for the wife's support during widowhood merely and not for life.[14]

A widow who has been given a consideration for her release of her distributive share cannot avoid such release without a return of the consideration.[15]

Effect of joinder in conveyance or incumbrance.—Statutes which provide that the wife shall not have dower in land sold to satisfy liens or encumbrances created by deed in which she joins comprehend mortgages.[16] Where the wife has, in a mortgage, released her dower, she is entitled, on a sale under the mortgage, only to compensation for the value of her dower in that part of the land not necessary

5. Yutte v. Yutte, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 272.

6. Nichols v. Park, 78 App. Div. 95, 12 N. Y. Ann. Cas. 306.

7. Dower denied as against a purchaser on foreclosure of the second mortgage—Rhea v. Rawls, 131 N. C. 453.

8. The better rule appears to be announced in a dissenting opinion in this case, in which it is held that the husband during his lifetime never having more than an equity of redemption, there was nothing to which the inchoate right of dower could attach in excess thereof, and hence no such inchoate right could become absolute on the discharge of the mortgage by the administrator. Majority opinion construes Rev. St. §§ 2933, 2935, 2936—Casteel v. Potter (Mo.) 75 S. W. 597.

9. Under Rev. St. c. 47, art. 3, § 6, Ky. St. 2135, providing that if there is a surplus of the land or proceeds of sale, after satisfying a purchase money lien, the wife shall have dower from such surplus, the widow's right to dower must be satisfied out of the surplus proceeds where the whole land is sold and the land or its transferees are not liable—Helm v. Board, 24 Ky. L. R. 1037, 70 S. W. 679.

10. Code, § 2269, does not make any contrary provision though it provides for a dower in surplus in the sale of land during a husband's life time—Hoy v. Varner (Va.) 42 S. E. 690.

11. In the absence of evidence that he was an alien, McClain's Code, 1888, § 3646, will have no application even if it applied to resident aliens—Casley v. Mitchell (Iowa) 96 N. W. 725.

12. Zachmann v. Zachmann, 201 Ill. 380.

13. Rev. St. 1899, § 2951, allows such relinquishment in case of infancy—Moran v. Stewart, 173 Mo. 207.

14. Moran v. Stewart, 173 Mo. 207.

15. Willis v. Robertson (Iowa) 96 N. W. 900.

16. Ky. St. § 2135—Morgan v. Wickliffe, 24 Ky. L. R. 2104, 72 S. W. 1122.

to the payment of the mortgage debt though the proceeds of that part of the land are obtained by a sale of the husband's personal right of redemption.[17]

Signature and acknowledgment of a mortgage is not sufficient to bar the wife's dower if her name does not appear in the body of the instrument.[18] Particular words of release are not necessary in New Jersey.[19]

Where a wife joins in a conveyance by her husband for the purpose of releasing any inchoate right of dower which she may have in his interest in the estate of a deceased brother, she will not be regarded as conveying property owned by her.[20]

Covenants of warranty.—Where, by statute, the heirs and devisees of a person who has conveyed with covenants or agreements are made answerable on such covenants to the extent of the lands descended or devised to them, the widow is not by such statute estopped from claiming dower in land conveyed by the husband alone with warranties during marriage until claims for damage for breach of such warranty are satisfied.[21]

Foreclosure or execution sales.—A wife's right to dower is not barred by foreclosure proceedings in which she has failed to have her inchoate right adjudicated where the decree contains nothing from which it could be implied that the rights of the parties to the land in controversy were litigated or determined.[22] The right to claim dower is not barred by a default decree rendered against the wife in foreclosure proceedings instituted on a mortgage which she has signed and acknowledged, but in which she has not released dower, if neither the petition nor the decree in such proceedings mentions or seeks to bar dower.[23] A wife's dower is not divested by sale of land on execution on judgment rendered against the husband alone.[24] A decree of foreclosure which does not mention the wife of the grantor will not be extended to cut off her dower interest in the land through an application of the rule that the word "defendant" in a decree will be held to include a plural where the sense requires it.[25]

Effect of creditor's suit.—A decree in a suit by judgment creditors of the husband to marshal liens, to which the wife is an unnecessary party, does not bar her dower right since the creditors have no claim against such right, nor is such right affected by a sheriff's sale under the decree, or by judgments on answers and cross petitions in favor of mortgagees who are joined where she is not included in such judgments,[26] nor is the wife, by the fact that she is improperly made a party, bound to take notice of the claims of the mortgagees so that the decree will estop her from asserting dower.[27] If there is a sale under the decree of land in which the wife is entitled to dower and from the proceeds mortgages thereon are paid, the wife on bringing suit for dower is not bound to redeem the mortgages where they are, before such suit is brought, barred by the statute of limitations and the

17. Potter v. Skiles, 24 Ky. L. R. 910, 70 S. W. 301.

18. Beverly v. Waller, 24 Ky. L. R. 2505, 74 S. W. 264.

19. Joining with the husband in the execution and acknowledgment of a conveyance, the acknowledgment being properly certified is sufficient—Goodheart v. Goodheart, 63 N. J. Eq. 746.

20. Such deed does not pass land the equitable title to which was in the wife before the death of her husband's brother, and of which he held the legal title as trustee, and which by a succeeding trustee had been conveyed to her—Adamson v. Souder, 205 Pa. 498.

21. Construing Rev. St. 1889, § 8839—Bartlett v. Tinsley (Mo.) 75 S. W. 143.

22. Martin v. Abbott (Neb.) 95 N. W. 356.

23. Beverly v. Waller, 24 Ky. L. R. 2505, 74 S. W. 264.

24. Martin v. Abbott (Neb.) 95 N. W. 356.

25. Rev. St. 1892, § 23, provides that the singular shall be held to include the plural where the sense requires. The language of the decree was "Recover of the defendant Adams Jewett"—Jewett v. Feldheiser (Ohio) 67 N. E. 1072.

26, 27, 28. Jewett v. Feldheiser (Ohio) 67 N. E. 1072.

same reason prevents relief to the purchaser on the ground of subrogation, in addition to the fact that such purchaser was not in privity with the mortgagees.[28]

Adverse possession will not bar the wife's right to dower unless continued after the husband's death for the full period of limitations.[29]

Payments to secure release.—Creditors cannot reach a sum paid the wife of the execution debtor by the purchaser of the husband's equity of redemption, who has redeemed from execution sale, to secure a release of her dower.[30] A wife who takes conveyances of specific realty from the husband's assignee for creditors in consideration of relinquishment of dower in the remainder, and the release of a mortgage on a portion thereof, is entitled to dispose of the realty conveyed to her by will.[31]

§ 4. Liens and charges upon dower.—Though mortgages on the real estate are paid by a sale of a portion thereof under order of the court, the widow's dower as against the heirs is to be computed on the full value of the real estate,[32] but where a mortgage superior to the wife's dower is satisfied in part by payment by the heirs after the husband's death, the widow to be entitled to dower in the land must contribute her share of such advances.[33]

§ 5. Assignment of dower and money awards.—Where, under the statute, dower may be assigned in a body and need not be assigned in each tract of land owned by the decedent separately, an heir who has received a portion of the realty in full of his share of an estate and holds under a warranty deed is entitled to have the widow's dower allotted from land other than that which he has so taken.[34] The widow and heirs may make an arrangement by which the widow is allotted in a single tract of land the dower to which she is entitled in each separate lot, and a subsequent partition decree allotting the lands in severalty but finding that the widow occupies the tract mentioned as her homestead and dower interest in the real estate of her deceased husband may be regarded as intending to effectuate such assignment by agreement.[35]

Dower may be assigned from the rents of improved property, allowance being made for the rental value of the improvements in case the widow has no dower therein.[36] Where an annuity is assigned to the widow payable from the rents and profits of realty, she cannot be compelled by the owner of the realty to sell or commute such rents.[37]

Where on partition sale a third of the proceeds are assigned the widow as dower to revert to the heirs on her death, such fund when it again comes into court will be distributed under the original decree unless there have been intervening transfers.[38] An assignment of an interest in the reversion may be verbal,[39] but is not evidenced by a quitclaim deed of the land made to the purchaser after confirmation of the partition sale.[40] Where the widow has assigned the fund to one who has given a bond for its repayment into court, the owners of the land

29. Lucas v. White (Iowa) 95 N. W. 209. Limitation fixed by Code, § 3447, does not begin until the husband's death—Lucas v. Whitacre (Iowa) 96 N. W. 776.

30. It is immaterial that the amount so paid was excessive—Potter v. Skiles, 24 Ky. L. R. 1457, 71 S. W. 627.

31. She is a purchaser for value and the conveyance does not simply vest in her her inchoate dower interest so that it will pass to her husband on her death—Under Horner's Rev. St. 1901, § 2510—Willson v. Miller, 30 Ind. App. 586.

32. There was no personalty to be applied to the encumbrances—Mowry v. Mowry, 24 R. I. 565.

33. Hoy v. Varner (Va.) 42 S. E. 690.

34. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 661, § 36—Longshore v. Longshore, 200 Ill. 470.

35. Rowley v. Poppenhager, 203 Ill. 434.

36. She may be awarded one-third of the remainder after deduction from the net rent of the proportion which the improvements bear to the land, if the land has no rental value separate from the improvements and cannot be divided—Bartlett v. Ball, 92 Mo. App. 57.

37. A third part of the rents and profits assigned under the Rev. St. c. 65, § 3—Haugh v. Peirce, 97 Me. 281.

38, 39, 40, 41. Curtis v. Zutavern (Neb.) 93 N. W. 400.

as determined in partition, and the representatives of such as are deceased, may join in an action on the bond.[41]

§ 6. Damages for withholding dower and mesne profits.—Where the action is against heirs but as beneficiaries of a trust, they are to be regarded as strangers in fixing the time from which damages shall run for the detention of dower.[42]

§ 7. Remedies and procedure.—A court in the exercise of probate jurisdiction can in Montana make no orders affecting dower, but the general jurisdiction of the court must be invoked.[43]

Limitations begin to run against the action for the allotment of dower at the time of the husband's death.[44] In states where the right of dower becomes fixed in case of a divorce for extreme cruelty, an action to recover such dower is limited by the general statutes relating to real actions and not by the general limitation of actions on judgments and decrees.[45]

The widow is not guilty of laches while she remains in joint possession of the estate in which she is dowable.[46]

On election to take under the statute an undivided one-half interest in her husband's estate, the widow may have partition without waiting until the expiration of the time within which contest of the probate of the will can be made.[47]

An averment of ownership by the wife of an undivided one-third of lands of her deceased husband, seeking that title be confirmed in her, sufficiently negatives the loss of the wife's dower interest during coverture.[48]

DURESS.[49]

Arrest on a criminal charge,[50] particularly where it was at the instance of a third person,[51] or threat of such arrest,[52] or of civil proceedings,[53] are not duress; but a threat of forcible eviction from premises has been held to be duress.[54]

EASEMENTS.[55]

§ 1. Nature and Creation.—Grant; Implication; Estoppel; Prescription.
§ 2. Location, Maintenance and Extent of Right.
§ 3. Transfer and Assignment.
§ 4. Extinguishment and Revival.—Limitations in Grant; Abandonment; Merger; Adverse Possession.
§ 5. Obstruction and Remedies.

§ 1. Nature and creation. Creation by grant.[56]—In construing an ambiguous grant of a right of way of adjoining owners, obscure or ambiguous expressions will be interpreted to fulfill the common purposes of the grantors. The deed

42. Code Civ. Proc. § 1600, provides that as against heirs damages shall run from the husband's death; as against others, from demand—Gorden v. Gorden, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 258.
43. Code Civ. Proc. tit. 13—In re Dahlman's Estate (Mont.) 72 Pac. 750.
44. Are barred in 15 years—Winchester v. Keith, 24 Ky. L. R. 1033, 70 S. W. 664.
45. Comp. Laws, §§ 8639, 8918, 9714, 9751. Such action may be brought within 15 years after the decree of divorce—Moross v. Moross (Mich.) 93 N. W. 247.
46. Brumback v. Brumback, 198 Ill. 66.
47. Spratt v. Lawson (Mo.) 75 S. W. 642.
48. Omission to negative loss of plaintiff's inchoate interest in the property, by execution or other judicial sale, or by her own relinquishment, does not prevent her from demurring to an answer setting up adverse possession as a defense—Lucas v. Whitacre (Iowa) 96 N. W. 776.
49. The recovery back of money paid under duress will be treated in Implied Contracts.
50. Arrest on a charge of bastardy will not invalidate a settlement—Jones v. Peterson, 117 Ga. 58.
51. Bogue v. Franks, 199 Ill. 411.
52. A statement to defendant that he was liable to imprisonment because his note had no revenue stamps attached to it does not invalidate a renewal note—Reichle v. Bentele, 97 Mo. App. 52.
53. Threat to issue execution on a disputed judgment does not invalidate security thereupon given—Dispeau v. First Nat. Bank, 24 R. I. 508.
54. Iowa Sav. Bank v. Frink (Neb.) 92 N. W. 916.
55. See articles Adjoining Owners for easement of lateral support. Highways and streets for establishment of highway by prescription. See, also, Licenses to enter on Land, Waters and Water Supply.
56. Evidence held sufficient to establish if joint will be regarded as the several grant of each owner.[57] A right of way granted need not be described or definitely located.[58] A deed conveying "rights, privileges, advantages, hereditaments, and appurtenances," passes an easement over an adjacent alley.[59]

Negative easements.—Where the owners of a portion of a building make a mutual covenant that no change in the front or main entrance shall be made without mutual consent, they create a negative easement.[60]

Public easements.—Where a strip of land is conveyed as a private easement or for street purposes only, no interest greater than an easement is conveyed,[61] so a deed conveying to a city "a perpetual easement for the purpose of a public levee" conveys nothing but an easement to the city and the grantors retain the fee, together with such right of possession and beneficial use as is not inconsistent with an exercise of the rights granted the city,[62] and, on an unwarranted lease of the lots by the city, may maintain an action against the lessee for possession.[63] An express covenant to dedicate for public highway purposes a portion of the premises embraced in a deed gives the grantor a right in common with the general public to use the strip as a public highway and insist that it be kept open as a means of access to his premises though the dedication is not accepted by the proper local authorities; and an intention to create a private right of way appurtenant to the remaining premises of the grantor is not shown.[64]

Implication from necessity.—The grant of an easement by implication does not arise for convenience, but only from necessity.[65] A right to quarry carries the right to use the land over the stone as far as necessary to make the right available.[66]

A right of way of necessity based on an estoppel is not an interest or right in land which entitles the holder to compensation on the taking of the land for a public improvement.[67]

Severance of title after creation of servitude.—If the owner of land effects an advantage for one portion as against another, the grantees of the several portions on severance of the ownership take charged with the easements and entitled to the benefits visibly attached at the time of severance,[68] and where the owner of two adjoining tracts of land sells one, the purchaser takes in the same manner as against the tract retained,[69] and where the owner of two adjoining lots conveys one on which a building has been erected encroaching on the other with the "ima right of way based on a deed which had been destroyed—Bright v. Allan, 203 Pa. 386.

57. Atlantic City v. New Auditorium Pier Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 644.

58. Lease conferring a right of access to a water front regarded as sufficiently definite to show a right of access to the lessor's dock which was the only water front which he owned and was separated from the leased premises merely by a private drive-way—Stolts v. Tuska, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 137.

59. Lowenberg v. Brown, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 414.

60. First Nat. Bank v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, 71 N. H. 547.

61. Lott v. Payne (Miss.) 33 So. 948.

62, 63. Sanborn v. Van Duyne (Minn.) 96 N. W. 41.

64. Allen v. Lester, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 376.

65. Easement of way over other land of owner does not arise unless necessary to reach that sold—In re City of New York, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 513; In re East 142d St., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 430.

66. Bedford-Bowling Green Stone Co. v. Oman, 73 S. W. 1038, 24 Ky. L. R. 2274.

67. In re East 142d St., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 430.

68. Fremont, E. & M. V. R. Co. v. Gayton (Neb.) 93 N. W. 163. During his life time a testator owning lands between certain highways, kept open a passage from his dwelling-house to each of such highways; by his will he divided his land into two tracts, giving one to each of his sons, the passage or roadway going through each of such tracts. Held, that the sons were charged with the reciprocal easement—Winne v. Winne, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 435. Where the owner of lots, after erection of a house on one, constructs a sewer across the others to a public sewer, on severance of the ownership of the lots, an easement in the use of the sewer arises in favor of the purchaser of the lot on which the house is located. Under Civ. Code, §§ 1084, 1104—Jones v. Sanders, 138 Cal. 405, 71 Pac. 506.

69. Where the owner constructs a dam across a stream on one tract causing flow-provements, easements, rights, and privileges thereto appurtenant," he, and those claiming under him, cannot secure the removal of the encroachment,[70] but an encroachment by an owner on an adjoining lot of which he is an owner in common does not become an easement after a sale of the house and lot and acquisition by the former owner of title in severalty to the adjoining lot.[71]

A husband, by joining with his wife in a conveyance of a lot owned by her adjacent to one owned by him, does not, if he does not join in the covenants, create an easement, authorizing the continuance of an encroachment on his lot by a house erected on the wife's lot.[72]

Creation by estoppel. Description in conveyance.—A right of way is recognized by acceptance of a deed, specifically reserving it to the grantor.[73]

While in most conveyances where an easement passes as an appurtenance to the grant it is referred to as a boundary or in specific terms in the deed, that is not essential;[74] hence, the fact that a description does not refer to an alley-way along the boundary of a lot does not show an intention to discontinue the use of such alley-way, and if it is shown in a map which is referred to as evidencing the description, an easement therein passes,[75] though the map was not filed until after the execution of the deed.[76] After transfer of both title and possession, the grantor cannot create an easement by mere declarations.[77] Where a lot is described as fronting on a strip reserved for a street, the grantee acquires a private right of way,[78] but an implied covenant for a right of way will not arise out of a false description.[79]

The act of a city in accepting a plat or excluding an alley shown thereon from the city limits has no bearing on the right of a purchaser of one of the platted lots to use an alley shown on the plat as appurtenant to his land, the plat having been recorded by the owner.[80]

Though an easement of way may be created only by grant or by prescription, a purchaser of lots may recover for breach of a contract by the vendor to make certain streets in case the purchaser should erect a house, since the right to use the contemplated ways arises from an implied covenant on the part of the grantors that the ways are in existence and defendants are estopped to deny such fact.[81]

Where after a mortgage is executed the lands are platted, a release of one of the lots describing it by metes and bounds and its plat number does not carry with it the easements to use the private roads described in the plat nor do they pass as appurtenant.[82] age of a portion of the other tract, there is, on a sale of the servient tract, an implied contract that the mutual benefits and servitudes shall remain—Znamanacek v. Jelinck (Neb.) 95 N. W. 28.

70. Frizzell v. Murphy, 19 App. D. C. 440.

71, 72. Farley v. Howard, 172 N. Y. 628.

73. Morrison v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 117 Iowa, 587.

74, 75, 76. Lowenberg v. Brown, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 414.

77. Land conveyed was described by reference to a plat, and both in the deed and on the plat was a statement that certain streets were referred to and shown for convenience of description only and not with intent to convey them or dedicate them to public use. Held, that a subsequent statement of the grantor that such reservation was not intended to restrict the free and uninterrupted use of said streets by the grantee for the purpose of ingress and egress to and from any of the building lots would operate to create a way by estoppel, extending only to allow the use by the lot owner of the street on which his lot abutted so far as to enable him to reach the next open street, but would give him no easement over other streets designated on the map—In re East 142d St., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 430; In re City of New York, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 513.

78. Teasley v. Stanton, 136 Ala. 641.

79. Lots described as fronting on a strip of land reserved for a street but shown by the description by metes and bounds as well as statements of facts to be some 105 ft. distant from such reserved strip—Teasley v. Stanton, 136 Ala. 641.

80. Douthitt v. Canaday, 24 Ky. L. R. 2159, 73 S. W. 757.

81. Drew v. Wiswall (Mass.) 67 N. E. 666.

82. The metes and bounds excluded the only road touching the lot—Queens County Sav. Bank v. Hudson, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 629.

Creation by prescription.—An easement may be established by open, visible, continuous and undisputed user during the statutory period.[83] Such user will be presumed to be under a claim or assertion of right and adverse, and not by leave or favor of the owner.[84] User must be exclusive, adverse, uninterrupted, and inconsistent with the rights of the owner to its use and enjoyment.[85] It must be adverse and not permissive.[86] Use by the public negatives the presumption of a grant.[87] A license will not furnish a basis for a prescriptive easement.[88] There must be a claim of right known to the adverse party[89] with the acquiescence of the owner of the land.[90] Facts rendering it necessary that opposing claimant should have known of the assertion of title may remove the necessity of showing actual knowledge.[91] There need not be a positive prohibitive act in order to show lack of acquiescence preventing a claimant from acquiring a right of way by prescription.[92]

The adverse user must not only be continuous in point of time, but substantially identical during the whole of the statutory period with regard to manner and extent.[93]

Where by statute it is required that there must be other evidence of adverse possession of an easement than the mere use, evidence of an understanding between the grantor and grantee that land transferred should be subject to a way is sufficient.[94]

§ 2. Location, maintenance, and extent of right.—Where right of way has been decreed, the location need not be expressly designated by the parties but it is sufficient that there be acquiescence in the use of a particular way.[95] A deed, if aptly expressed, may grant a new location of an easement of a way and return the

83. Use of an alley—Lowenberg v. Brown, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 414. Must be 20 years use—Riehlman v. Field, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 526. Use of a well defined track for more than 21 years to reach land owned by the claimant otherwise inaccessible—Bates v. Sherwood, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 146.

84. Winne v. Winne, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 435. No objection or assertion of dominion to the contrary being shown—Hey v. Collman, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584.

85. Exclusive use by defendant of an alley way for more than twenty years except for swinging window blinds which opened into the alley from complainant's property is not sufficient to establish an easement by prescription in complainant—Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Forbes, 135 Ala. 277.

86. Use of a sluice way under a railroad bridge by an adjoining property owner as a pass way for cattle during the statutory period of limitations—Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Ives, 202 Ill. 69.

87. Reed v. Garnett (Va.) 43 S. E. 182. Evidence held insufficient to show that way was used under a lease in its inception and hence not adverse—Hey v. Collman, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584.

88. License to use land for a private way, no rights being asserted in connection with the use and no consideration paid or value parted with on the faith that the license was perpetual—Kibbey v. Richards, 30 Ind. App. 101. Use of way in common with public not shown to be under an independent claim of right is regarded as exercised under an implied license—Reed v. Garnett (Va.) 43 S. E. 182. Permissive connection of private pipes with a railroad water main for more than fifteen years does not show an easement—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Dickey, 24 Ky. L. R. 1710, 72 S. W. 332.

89. Use by complainant of an alley way which was not exclusive or inconsistent with defendant's rights—Sharpe v. Marcus (Ala.) 33 So. 821.

90. Use of a way together with the public is insufficient, though such use is greater than the usual public use and accompanied by occasional repairs—Reed v. Garnett (Va.) 43 S. E. 182.

91. An instruction that possession to be adverse must have been asserted with the knowledge and acquiescence of the opposing claimant is not erroneous if given in connection with an instruction that actual knowledge need not be shown if there are facts such that the opposing claimant should have known of the assertion of title—Allen v. McKay (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8.

92. Denial of the existence of a right of way and threats to close it up before the expiration of twenty years from the time of the first claim held sufficient—Reed v. Garnett (Va.) 43 S. E. 182.

93. That one seeking to acquire an easement for the purpose of maintaining a ditch may have had a ditch somewhere on the land for ten years, does not give him a right to maintain it in a new location, or use an extension thereof made within that period—Dunn v. Thomas (Neb.) 96 N. W. 142.

94. Code, § 3004—O'Reagan v. Duggan, 117 Iowa, 612.

95. Evidence held to show a definite selection—Dickinson v. Crowell (Iowa) 94 N. W. 495.

site of the old way to the owners of the fee,[96] but the conveyance cannot be effectual for one purpose and not the other.[97]

Ways of necessity.—Where a right of way arises from necessity, it must be chosen at such place as is reasonably necessary.[98] The choice must be such as to injure the grantees of other portions of the property as little as possible.[99] The fact that the way is impassable during a portion of the year will not allow it to be widened.[1]

Extent of use.[2]—Nothing passes as incident to a grant of a right of way except what is reasonable to the fair enjoyment thereof.[3] If appurtenant to certain land it cannot be used for the benefit of other land.[4] The purposes of use need not exist at the time of the original grant,[5] unless the burdens are increased.[6]

§ 3. Transfer and assignment.—Where an easement is conveyed by deed and the habendum runs to the heirs and assigns of the grantee, the easement runs with the land.[7] An easement may pass to the successors in title to the dominant estate, though the conveyance by which it is created contains no words of assignability.[8] It need not be especially mentioned to pass with the conveyance of the dominant tenement.[9] An easement to pump water from an adjacent owner's lands so long as a mine on a leasehold is operated is an easement appurtenant to the mine and passes to a purchaser of the mining company's interest.[10] An easement of way is assignable.[11] The assignee of an easement does not take subject to his grantor's liabilities to perform duties pertaining thereto.[12]

Judicial or tax sale.—Easements appurtenant pass under a sheriff's deed on foreclosure without express mention.[13] An easement of way passes by a deed of

96, 97. Atlantic City v. New Auditorium Pier Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 644.

98. Right arising from a sale of standing timber on land not bordering on a highway to pass over other land of the vendor, does not afford the purchaser choice of any way he wishes, though it affords a reasonable means of egress and ingress and is commonly used by others—Worthen v. Garno, 182 Mass. 243.

99. Where a right of way was granted for access to a dock, if the dock is subsequently leased by the grantor to two other persons in severalty and at different times, the grantee of the easement must confine his right of way to that portion of the dock last alienated, if it is sufficient—Stolts v. Tuska, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 137.

1. Way 16 ft. wide used for 25 years, impassable during a large part of the year on account of moisture—Dudgeon v. Bronson, 159 Ind. 562.

2. Evidence held not to show an excessive use of an easement of way—Weed v. McKeg, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 218.

3. The grantee of a strip of land for a right of way has no right to construct embankments in such a manner as to injure an irrigation ditch where sufficient soil could be obtained to raise the way to a height protecting it from overflowing without encroaching on or damaging the ditch—Hotchkiss v. Young, 42 Or. 446, 71 Pac. 324.

4. A railroad owning a lot abutting on a private alley appurtenant thereto which occupies such lot for a freight depot, is not entitled to insist on the alley being kept open for public use in approaching its passenger station located on a lot not abutting on such alley—West v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 852.

5. Right to cart clay is not limited to beds open at the time of the grant but extended to those subsequently opened—Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Co. v. Ryan, 68 N. J. Law, 474.

6. Where a common stairway and area is established by owners of adjoining buildings one of the parties cannot interfere with the light in the other's windows by changes in the stairway or use the neighbor's walls for support of new landing, subjecting the area to an additional use by persons going to additional stories erected on his building—Allegheny Nat. Bank v. Reighard, 204 Pa. 391.

7. Conveyance of a house and lot with easement to a door-yard—Deavitt v. Washington County (Vt.) 53 Atl. 563. Conveyance of upland with privileges on waters of adjacent lake—Mitchell v. D'Olier, 68 N. J. Law, 375, 59 L. R. A. 949.

8. Easement of way to a stone quarry created by writing under seal and reserving a right in the grantor to re-enter on termination of the use of the road and working of the quarry—Stovall v. Coggins Granite Co., 116 Ga. 376.

9. Mitchell v. D'Olier, 68 N. J. Law, 375, 59 L. R. A. 949.

10. Featherston Min. Co. v. Young (Ga.) 45 S. E. 414.

11. Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Co. v. Ryan, 68 N. J. Law, 474.

12. Assignee of an easement to maintain a canal not liable for breach of assignor's covenant to maintain a dam which was the condition of the grant—Barringer v. Virginia Trust Co., 132 N. C. 409.

13. Easements of way—Richmond v. Bennett, 205 Pa. 470.

foreclosure, though created after the execution of the mortgage.[14] A sheriff's sale for taxes does not discharge an easement.[15]

§ 4. Extinguishment and revival. Limitations in grant.—A water privilege granted to a mining company operating on an adjacent leasehold, to continue as long as the company shall mine iron ore and use water from said location, terminates on the removal of the washer to an adjoining mine.[16] A right of way to remove timber sold granted to continue for a specified time, does not continue for the removal of other timber after the expiration of the time limit.[17]

A proviso on grant of a new right of way to a city that a former way shall revert to the grantors on acceptance and record of the deed does not postpone the acquisition of the right to the new site until the city has passed a formal resolution of acceptance.[18]

Termination of necessity.—An easement of way granted for the purpose of enabling access to certain land is not a way of necessity which becomes extinct on the acquirement of another means of access.[19]

Abandonment.—A right of way conveyed by grant does not become extinct by mere nonuser,[20] hence, the allowance of an arch over a way does not constitute an abandonment by the grantee of rights above such arch.[21] An easement does not expire merely because not mentioned in a deed of conveyance forming a portion of the chain of title.[22]

Unauthorized use will not extinguish an easement in fee.[23]

Merger.—Where the owner of the servient estate purchases the dominant estate the easement is merged and a subsequent sale of the dominant estate does not revive the easement in the absence of an express creation thereof,[24] though there may be a revivor by a subsequent conveyance of the two estates to different parties, and where the transferees of the servient estate take jointly with the owners of the dominant estate, they will be held to have taken subject to the easement if visibly in use.[25] A way of necessity so merged does not revive on severance of the estates but a new way is implied if the necessity continue.[26] If the owner of a portion of the servient estate acquires the easement there is a merger only to the extent of his interest.[27]

Conveyance of servient estate.—The purchaser of a servient estate is charged with notice by open and visible use of the easement.[28] He is not protected by recording acts.[29] Constructive notice arises from record of a lease referring to the easement,[30] or from a partition decree establishing it.[31] One claiming an easement is not estopped by silence at a public sale of the land,[32] nor does a convey-

14, 15. Richmond v. Bennett, 205 Pa. 470.

16. Featherston Min. Co. v. Young (Ga.) 45 S. E. 414.

17. Leigh v. Garysburg Mfg. Co., 132 N. C. 167.

18. Atlantic City v. New Auditorium Pier Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 644.

19, 20. Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Co. v. Ryan, 68 N. J. Law, 474.

21. The grant conveyed "free and perfect egress and ingress" over an alley and it was held that the allowance of the arch was a mere non-user—Weed v. McKeg, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 218.

22. Richmond v. Bennett, 205 Pa. 470.

23. Deavitt v. Washington County (Vt.) 53 Atl. 563.

24. Easement of way to spring acquired by prescription originally—Riehlman v. Field, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 526.

25. Easement in a hall-way—Wettlaufer v. Ames (Mich.) 94 N. W. 950.

26. Bates v. Sherwood, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 146.

27. Barringer v. Virginia Trust Co., 132 N. C. 409.

28. Use of irrigating ditch for six years—Croke v. American Nat. Bank (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 229.

29. Easement of way, physically defined and apparent arising from prescription—Hey v. Collman, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584.

30. Lease granting a right of way to a water front and dock—Stolts v. Tuska, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 137.

31. Though the deeds make no mention thereof, a right of way may be so established—Dickinson v. Crowell (Iowa) 94 N. W. 495.

32. Hey v. Collman, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584.

ance with covenants of seisin and right to convey without reservation of an apparent easement estop the claiming of the easement by a person not a party to the deed or in privity with the grantee.[33]

If on severance of ownership of lots jointly subject to an easement for a sewer an intermediate vendee executes a grant of the easement to his vendee, such grant is conclusive evidence of his knowledge of the existence of the easement, and it is immaterial whether it is known to those holding the grant as security only.[34]

Adverse possession.—Where a way has been acquired by prescription, adverse possession to defeat it must be equivalent to that barring all rights of entry on realty.[35] The fact that a portion of an alley-way is closed up by a prior conveyance does not show an intention to close the entire alley.[36]

§ 5. Obstruction and remedies.—An easement of way and of light and air may be violated though the use for a way is not hindered.[37] If there is an easement of way, an adjoining owner on building a projection over such way must construct it at such height as not to interfere with the convenient use of the way by the grantee.[38]

Laches, estoppel, or acquiescence.—Where defendants have gone ahead over plaintiff's objection under a theory that they are acting within their legal rights, they cannot claim that they have been misled by plaintiff so that he is estopped.[39] There is no acquiescence to an obstruction where, at the time it is begun, the owner of the easement objects and begins a suit for injunction within a week,[40] nor is plaintiff barred by laches when he objects when the encroachment is begun but does not bring an action until the obstruction is completed.[41]

Who may enforce.—Where one of adjacent owners abandons his right of way common to several adjacent lots, he cannot enjoin an appropriation of the way by adjacent owners where it is contiguous to their land.[42]

Demand.—Before action can be brought to establish a way of necessity, complainant must show a request of the owner to locate the way and either a failure to do so or an unreasonable location, and in the event of the failure, that complainant has established a location.[43]

Form of remedy.—Where an easement is obstructed the obstruction may be removed by the person injured if he can do it peaceably.[44] The owner of the easement cannot bring ejectment or trespass to try title against the owner of the fee who is rightfully in possession.[45] Equity has jurisdiction to prevent interference with easements,[46] and a complainant may have equitable relief though his title

33. Easement of right to carry water in an irrigation ditch—Croke v. American Nat. Bank (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 229.

34. Jones v. Sanders, 138 Cal. 405, 71 Pac. 506.

35. Clay v. Kennedy, 24 Ky. L. R. 2034, 72 S. W. 815. Easement of free passage over a bridge barred by continuous denial and compulsion of payment of toll daily for 12 years—Dupont v. Charleston Bridge Co., 65 S. C. 524.

36. Lowenberg v. Brown, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 414.

37. Erection of smoke stack darkening windows and heating the air in an alley mutually reserved by adjoining owners—St. Louis Safe Deposit & Sav. Bank v. Kennett Estate (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 474.

38. Construction of a projection from a building at a height of 9 ft. above an alley, and a construction at a less height with an excavation of the existing surface to make it 9 ft., held an unlawful trespass—Weed v. McKeg, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 218.

39. St. Louis Safe Deposit & Sav. Bank v. Kennett Estate (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 474.

40. Weed v. McKeg, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 218.

41. Erection of smoke stack where defendants have advised plaintiff that he has no right to object and have suffered no damage through the delay—St. Louis Safe Deposit & Sav. Bank v. Kennett Estate (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 474.

42. Where an avenue thirty feet wide was abandoned and enclosed by the owners of lots fronting on it, one of such owners cannot enjoin the erection of a building by another owner on a portion of the strip on which his lot fronts—Tremberger v. Owens, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 594.

43. Thomas v. McCoy, 30 Ind. App. 555.

44. Keplinger v. Woolsey (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1008.

45. Cornick v. Arthur (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 410.

46. Obstruction of right to carry water in an irrigation ditch—Croke v. American has not been adjudicated at law, where it is clear and such that in a trial at law the judge would not be warranted in submitting the question to the jury.[47] The remedy may be by injunction.[48]

Pleading.—A bill to restrain obstruction of an easement must show the existence thereof.[49] A complaint is sufficient which states ownership of an easement without stating how it was acquired.[50] In a proceeding to establish a way of necessity, the complaint must contain a particular description of the route selected.[51]

Damages.[52]—Exemplary damages may be awarded for destruction of an easement under statutory provisions allowing such damages for malicious or oppressive breach of noncontractual obligations.[53] On obstruction of a way, the measure of damages is the difference in the rental value of the dominant estate.[54]

Review.—Where negative easements are partially extinguished, a question of whether further encroachment will be restrained becomes one of fact.[55] On seeking to restrain the use of an easement on the ground that it is more burdensome to the servient estate, it must be alleged, in order that such fact be considered on appeal, that the taking of the dominant estate for a jail site made an easement of door yard more burdensome.[56]

EJECTMENT.[57]

§ 1. Cause of action.—The right to maintain ejectment may be removed by statutory provisions for other remedies.[58] In Georgia, the right to maintain an action in the common-law form of ejectment has not been removed by statutes defining the form and character of pleadings nor by the general judiciary act.[59]

Property for which action lies.—Mining rights appurtenant to land cannot be recovered in ejectment.[60]

Nat. Bank (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 229. To restrain obstruction of a right of way though the exact width and particular location is not definitely fixed if the existence of a right of way of a certain width is admitted by the answer—Bright v. Allan, 203 Pa. 386.

47. Obstruction of way—Richmond v. Bennett, 205 Pa. 470.

48. Keplinger v. Woolsey (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1008; St. Louis Safe Deposit & Sav. Bank v. Kennett Estate (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 474.

49. Bill held demurrable which asserts possession of land carrying with it the easement by adverse possession, where the instrument pleaded as color of title did not comprehend within its boundaries the ditch in which the easement was claimed, or show that complainant's user of the ditch was adverse or under the grantee—Overton v. Moseley, 135 Ala. 599.

50. Carter v. Wakeman, 42 Or. 147, 70 Pac. 393.

51. Thomas v. McCoy, 30 Ind. App. 555.

52. See article Damages for general questions.

53. Civil Code, § 3294. Action for destruction of a sewer—Jones v. Sanders, 138 Cal. 405, 71 Pac. 506.

54. Though the dominant estate is not rented—Hey v. Collman, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 584.

55. Negative easements to refrain from changing the front and entrance of a building which had been abrogated as to a change in the lower story of the building, but it was sought to enjoin a change in the upper stories—First Nat. Bank v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, 71 N. H. 547.

56. Deavitt v. Washington County (Vt.) 53 Atl. 563.

57. See, also, Trespass.

58. Under Rev. St. D. C. § 482, providing a remedy for an encroachment of less than seven inches by a wall, ejectment cannot be maintained to recover an inch of ground occupied by an encroachment of the wall of a house on an adjoining lot—Frizzell v. Murphy, 19 App. D. C. 440.

59. Judiciary Act 1799—Georgia Iron & Coal Co. v. Allison, 116 Ga. 444.

60. An instruction that plaintiff may recover the "mineral interest and mining

Title of plaintiff.—Plaintiff must recover on the strength of his own title.[61] He must have legal title at the time action is brought.[62] An equitable title will not sustain the action[63] though it is sufficient to enable the maintenance of a suit in equity, to procure legal title.[64] A title based on equitable estoppel is not sufficient,[65] and plaintiff cannot, in ejectment, enforce equities against a grantee in good faith holding the legal title,[66] but a corporation which has acquired possession of land in payment of stock subscriptions has an equitable title allowing it to maintain ejectment without joining the holders of the legal title.[67]

The holder of a vendor's lien may maintain an action in equity to dispossess a third person in possession, though it has made a conveyance.[68]

A tenant in common may bring ejectment against third persons.[69] One who has a mere easement cannot bring ejectment against the rightful possession of the fee owner.[70] A devisee may prosecute ejectment during the pendency of probate proceedings.[71] The holder of the duplicate final receipt of the receiver of the United States land office for a homestead entry may bring ejectment.[72] Where it appears that plaintiff holds the legal title charged with certain payments to defendants, he need not make payment or tender before bringing his action, but the equities may be adjusted at the trial either by payment of the money into court or by a conditional verdict.[73] A minor whose property has been illegally seized and sold as that of another person may ignore the sale and institute a petitory action for its recovery.[74]

A grant under which title is claimed from the state must be registered at the time action is begun. Registry before trial is not sufficient,[75] and a curative statute allowing the registry of grants within a certain time, though the time originally fixed for their register may have expired, does not alter the rule that plaintiff must show title in himself at the commencement of the suit.[76]

Sufficiency of mere prior possession.—The rule varies. In some jurisdictions plaintiff must have more than a mere possessory right,[77] though defendant is only a trespasser;[78] in others, prior possession is sufficient as against a trespasser,[79] and in such case possession sufficiently establishes title,[80] and evidence thereof is sufficient to throw the burden of establishing a superior title on defendant, though it is not averred that he is a trespasser.[81] In a petitory action in Louisiana, a de-rights" is erroneous, since such rights must include incorporeal hereditaments lying in grant but not in seisin, such as rights of way over the surface, the right to dig and drive slopes and entries and the like—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Massey, 136 Ala. 156.

61. As against defendant's possession, plaintiff must show a better muniment of title or acquisition of title by adverse possession—Jackson Lumber Co. v. McCreary (Ala.) 34 So. 850.

62. Where defendant's grantor acquired a legal title through a foreclosure, plaintiff who had taken title as co-tenant with such grantor subject to the trust deeds which were foreclosed cannot bring the action—Nalle v. Thompson, 173 Mo. 595.

63. Nalle v. Parks, 173 Mo. 616.

64. Nalle v. Thompson, 173 Mo. 595.

65. Harrison v. Alexander, 135 Ala. 307.

66. Equities arising from a statement in a deed that the grantor was a trustee for plaintiff—De Lassus v. Winn (Mo.) 74 S. W. 635.

67. McCandless v. Inland Acid Co., 115 Ga. 968.

68. Miller v. Farmers' Bank, 25 Ky. L. R. 373, 75 S. W. 218.

69. Shelton v. Wilson, 131 N. C. 499.

70. Cornick v. Arthur (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 410.

71. Beer v. Plant (Neb.) 96 N. W. 348.

72. McClung v. Penny (Okl.) 70 Pac. 404.

73. Howard v. Murray, 203 Pa. 464.

74. Jewell v. DeBlanc (La.) 34 So. 787.

75. Morehead v. Hall, 132 N. C. 122.

76. Acts 1901, c. 175—Morehead v. Hall, 132 N. C. 122.

77. Must show legal title and presumption of grant does not arise from possession—Cahill v. Cahill, 75 Conn. 522.

78. Under Shannon's Code Tenn. §§ 5000, 5001, plaintiff must show a perfect legal title either by conveyances by the state or by completed adverse possession—Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 812.

79. One who on the face of the county records has color of title, is regarded as the owner in the neighborhood where it lies, pays the taxes for many years, disposes of the hay or other products, is regarded as in such actual possession as will maintain the action—Robinson v. Gantt (Neb.) 95 N. W. 506. Petition held sufficient to show prior possession—Watkins v. Nugen (Ga.) 45 S. E. 260.

80, 81. Horton v. Murden (Ga.) 43 S. E. 786.

fendant may compel his adversary to produce another than a title radically null before ouster can be decreed, even under the rule possideo qua possideo.[82]

Recovery cannot be had on prior possession as against one who enters under a valid deed from one in possession, though such possessor had no title, unless it is shown that defendant had knowledge. The rule is otherwise where the deed is void.[83]

Rights arising from mortgages.—After condition broken, the mortgagee may bring ejectment,[84] and the trustee in a trust deed may proceed without a demand for possession.[85] While the mortgage debt is not paid, action will not lie against a mortgagee in possession though foreclosure is barred by limitation.[86] If necessary parties are not joined on foreclosure, the purchaser cannot bring ejectment.[87]

Seisin of plaintiff.—Plaintiff's title must be connected with the possession.[88] Seizure and possession within the limitation act is shown by legal title in the absence of evidence of an actual adverse possession.[89] An heir may recover on the prior possession of his ancestor.[90]

Ouster by defendant.—Ejectment will not lie against one not in possession,[91] or after an abandonment of possession, where there is no assertion of title,[92] but it may be maintained against a tax title claimant under a void tax deed, who has not had actual possession.[93] Persons having an easement of way are not in such possession of the strip so used as to warrant ejectment being brought against them,[94] unless they take exclusive possession and exclude the owner of the fee.[95]

Public or quasi public use.—Where land has been occupied by a tram road without power of eminent domain, it may be recovered in ejectment,[96] but if a city takes possession of property appropriated for a local improvement without paying the compensation, the owner is not entitled to the remedy.[97] Grantors who have conveyed to a city an easement for levee purposes in certain lots may, on an unwarranted lease of the lots by the city, maintain an action against the lessee for possession.[98]

Taxation of land as estoppel of state.—A state or municipality is not estopped from maintaining ejectment by the fact that it has levied taxes on the land.[99]

§ 2. Defenses.—An equitable defense cannot be asserted in ejectment,[1] so an equitable estoppel cannot be urged.[2] Where resulting trusts are abolished by

82. Granger v. Sallier (La.) 34 So. 431.

83. As based on an immoral consideration—Watkins v. Nugen (Ga.) 45 S. E. 260.

84. Bradfield v. Hale, 67 Ohio St. 316.

85. Brown v. Schintz, 203 Ill. 136.

86. Action by heirs at law of a deceased mortgagor—Kelso v. Norton, 65 Kan. 778, 70 Pac. 896.

87. One who has conveyed with covenants of freedom from encumbrances cannot on purchase at foreclosure, in which his vendee is not joined, bring ejectment against the vendee in possession, since he takes before an assignment of the mortgage—Titcomb v. Fonda, J. & G. R. Co., 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 630.

88. Plaintiff must show a regular chain of title back to some grantor in possession or to the government—Jackson Lumber Co. v. McCreary (Ala.) 34 So. 850.

89. Code Civ. Proc. Alaska, c. 2, § 4, provides that plaintiff or one of his predecessors in title must be seized or possessed of the premises within ten years before commencement of an action to recover real property or the possession thereof—Tyee Consolidated Min. Co. v. Langstedt (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 709.

90. It must be shown that the ancestor was in possession at the date of his death under a bona fide claim of right—Watkins v. Nugen (Ga.) 45 S. E. 260.

91. Doggett v. Hardin, 132 N. C. 690.

92. A defendant who on vacating a house had locked all the doors but one on the inside, leaving the keys inside, and closed the remaining door by a spring lock, keeping no key, is not in possession authorizing ejectment—Connor v. Connor (Mich.) 96 N. W. 441.

93. Dunbar v. Lindsay (Wis.) 96 N. W. 557.

94. Davis v. Morris, 132 N. C. 435.

95. Lott v. Payne (Miss.) 33 So. 948.

96. Hughey v. Walker (Ark.) 73 S. W. 1093.

97. Appropriation authorized in Rev. St. § 2232—Webber v. Toledo, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 237.

98. Sanborn v. Van Duyne (Minn.) 96 N. W. 41.

99. Levy of taxes on wharves in a river—Turner v. Mobile, 135 Ala. 73.

1. Action by a purchaser at a tax sale cannot be defended against on the ground of his incapacity to purchase—Graham v. Warren (Miss.) 33 So. 71.

2. Grubbs v. Boon, 201 Ill. 98; Haney v. Breeden (Va.) 42 S. E. 916. Action based on statute, except in favor of creditors, a defendant in ejectment cannot show that plaintiff holds as a resulting trustee for a third person, unless defendant is a creditor of such person.[3] In case plaintiff fails to prove a valid title, defendants need not establish their title.[4]

Rightful possession under a lease with option to purchase will defeat ejectment.[5]

Removal into equity. Injunction.—Equity will not take jurisdiction to prevent a multiplicity of suits where a plaintiff basing his right on the same title, brings separate actions against numerous defendants who hold distinct portions of the land under different titles, and who are without privity with each other.[6] An ejectment suit cannot be enjoined for reasons which may be set up as a defense in the action,[7] and a city cannot have an action of ejectment against it to recover shore lands on a river, removed into equity, where it contends that it has a right to control certain wharves and lots by immemorial usage and custom, since such contention, if established, furnishes a complete and adequate defense to the action of ejectment.[8]

Limitations and laches.—Title by adverse possession affords a good defense to ejectment.[9] The action is not barred in a time shorter than the period prescribed by statute.[10]

§ 3. Parties.—The person in possession is a necessary party where ejectment is used to try a question of title asserted by one not in possession.[11] In ejectment by a claimant under a single title, all those in possession of the land should be joined though they claim distinct tracts under separate titles.[12] One alleged to be in possession jointly with claimants under an agreement with them is properly made a co-defendant.[13] A railroad which allows another railroad to operate over a right of way originally obtained by it is not a necessary defendant.[14] An administrator who is not in possession of land and has not been directed by the court to take possession cannot defend an action of ejectment and is not a proper party.[15] One who has sold the land in controversy cannot intervene in ejectment to which the purchaser is not a party and in which the vendor's title is not attacked.[16] Where on the declaration, made by the party against whom a petitory breach of condition in a deed against the erection of a particular kind of building cannot be defended on the ground that the grantor with knowledge and without protest permitted the erection of such a building—Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 202 Ill. 41.

3. One holding as purchaser at a judicial sale cannot show that the plaintiff held title for the judgment debtor—Pfeffer v. Kling, 58 App. Div. (N. Y.) 179.

4. Sinclair v. Huntley, 131 N. C. 243.

5. Tyson v. Neill (Idaho) 70 Pac. 790.

6. Turner v. Mobile, 135 Ala. 73.

7. Bill to enjoin ejectment and set aside a deed to plaintiff on the ground that the grantor was insane, cannot be maintained—Larson v. Larson (Miss.) 33 So. 717.

8. Turner v. Mobile, 135 Ala. 73.

9. Baty v. Elrod (Neb.) 97 N. W. 343. Prescription under color of title—Ballard v. James (Ga.) 45 S. E. 68.

10. Prior to such time the action cannot be held to be on a stale claim—Craig v. Conover, 24 Ky. L. R. 1682, 72 S. W. 2.

11. Comp. Laws, § 10950, permits an action of ejectment for such purpose—Farrand v. Kavanaugh (Mich.) 93 N. W. 1083.

12. Lewis v. Hinson, 64 S. C. 571.

13. Complaint by the Cherokee Nation alleging that a third person pursuant to an agreement with the claimants to citizenship in the Nation holds the land jointly with the claimants is sufficient to authorize making such third person a defendant under Mansfield's Dig. § 4940; Ind. Ter. Ann. St. 1899, § 3149, allowing joinder of persons claiming adverse interests or who are necessary parties to a complete determination—Hargrove v. Cherokee Nation (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 823.

14. Construing Ejectment Act, §§ 17, 18; 2 Starr & C. Ann. St. (2d Ed.) pp. 1610, 1614, providing for the making of the landlord defendant in an action against the tenant—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

15. Rev. St. Fla. § 1917—Finlayson v. Love (Fla.) 33 So. 306.

16. On ejectment for the possession of a portion of lands originally belonging to the Cherokee Nation, the Nation cannot be permitted to come in under Mans. Dig. § 4946 (providing for intervention by "any person having an interest in the property") and seek judgment for possession, improvements and back rents, on the grounds that the improvements were made on the land by defendant's grantor under claim of citizenship, that such claim was adjudged void and the improvements sold by the Nation to plaintiff's grantor, which sale carried with it the action is brought, that he is a mere lessee, the lessor is brought into the action, the latter is the real defendant, he is a warrantor only in a qualified sense.[17]

§ 4. Pleading. Complaint or petition.—In an action of ejectment in the common-law form, an abstract of the title relied on need not be attached to the declaration.[18] Evidence of the truth of plaintiff's allegation of ownership need not be set out in the petition.[19] Where the action may be brought on an equitable title, the nature of the equity need not be stated in the complaint if from the record evidence introduced an ex parte correction of defects therein would be made by the court.[20] In jurisdictions allowing equitable defenses, on an action by the holder of the legal title for lands as an entirety, it is not necessary that he state equities in defendant.[21]

An allegation that plaintiffs were placed in possession by a former owner is sufficient.[22] In South Carolina, it is not necessary that the complaint allege a right to immediate possession in addition to an allegation of ownership and unlawful possession of defendants and a refusal on their part to surrender.[23]

Allegations that plaintiff has a lawful title and that defendants are unlawfully withholding possession are not demurrable as conclusions of law,[24] but if from the facts pleaded it is shown that an allegation of ownership is an unwarranted conclusion of law, the complaint is demurrable.[25]

A complaint specifying the nature of defendant's title to be under a pretended deed executed by plaintiff, which plaintiff avers that he never executed or delivered, but that he is and has been at all times the owner in fee simple of the premises, is not demurrable as stating an equitable cause of action.[26]

The fact that the prayer is only for damages is not ground for demurrer, if the complaint shows a cause of action for recovery of possession.[27]

The petition may be amended so as to conform to the evidence and properly describe the land sought to be recovered, even after trial and verdict.[28] The complaint cannot be amended so as to seek to enforce an equitable lien.[29]

Plea or answer.—An answer is sufficient which denies that plaintiff at the date laid in the declaration or at any other time was possessed or entitled to the possession.[30] A denial of plaintiff's title is sufficient as against a demurrer.[31]

Title by adverse possession to be a defense must be pleaded.[32] A plea that prior to the date laid in the complaint, defendant had acquired title by adverse right of possession; that installments of the purchase money were due and unpaid and the Nation had an interest in the improvements to the extent of the deferred payments—Donohoo v. Howard (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 927.

17. Jewell v. DeBlanc (La.) 34 So. 787.

18. Civ. Code, § 5002, concerning the action for recovery of lands and mesne profits is not applicable—Georgia Iron & Coal Co. v. Allison, 116 Ga. 444.

19. The petition which alleges that plaintiffs are the owners and entitled to possession of an undivided 1-36 interest of the land particularly described therein, and that the defendant was wrongfully withholding possession from them is sufficient—Anderson v. Proctor Coal Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 130, 74 S. W. 717.

20. Westfelt v. Adams, 131 N. C. 379.

21. Under Code, 1899, c. 90, § 9, in ejectment against a co-tenant having an equitable interest in the land in controversy, plaintiff having legal title need not mention such equity in her declaration—Parr v. Currence (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 184.

22. Whether plaintiffs had prior possession, were tenants at will, or were in under a mortgage, whether title had been acquired under the mortgage or not—Horton v. Murden (Ga.) 43 S. E. 786.

23. Senterfeit v. Shealy, 66 S. C. 384.

24. Livingston v. Ruff, 65 S. C. 284.

25. Ely v. Azoy, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 669.

26. Evidence that the deed was never executed or delivered is admissible in ejectment—Wisconsin Lakes Ice & Cartage Co. v. Pike & North Lakes Ice Co., 115 Wis. 377.

27. Livingston v. Ruff, 65 S. C. 284.

28. Cushing v. Conness (Neb.) 95 N. W. 855.

29. Complaint by a creditor against one devisee cannot be amended to seek an equitable lien on the entire land of the estate to recover against all heirs and devisees—Finch v. Strickland, 132 N. C. 103.

30. Weeks v. Link, 137 Cal. 502, 70 Pac. 548.

31. Jones v. Griffin, 25 Ky. L. R. 117, 74 S. W. 713.

32. Code Civ. Proc. § 437, requires the statement of any new matter constituting a defense—Allen v. McKay (Cal.) 70 Pac. 8.

possession, together with a denial of plaintiff's title or right of possession as executor and denials of his executorship, and of the death of his testator, does not deny the title of the testator.[33]

Under a general denial, a partition decree between the parties cannot be attacked on the ground that it was rendered in the absence of defendant and not in accord with views previously expressed by the court.[34]

Where defendants set up a tax title they may be allowed to amend by specifically setting forth in their answer, the proceedings in the tax sale and the manner in which title became vested in the commonwealth.[35]

Effect of pleading.—A plea of the general issue is a waiver of a disclaimer.[36] Failure to serve a notice to quit is waived by an answer to the merits.[37]

Variance[38] with regard to immaterial allegations is not fatal.[39] An admission of legal title in plaintiffs and a common source contained in defendant's answer is not affected by an immaterial allegation in the reply that plaintiffs claimed through a person named as devisee of the common source, and hence failure of the evidence to show that plaintiff's title was derived through such devisee cannot be taken advantage of by the defendants.[40] Where possession as alleged is admitted, it cannot be shown that the premises are unoccupied.[41]

§ 5. Evidence. Burden of proof.—The burden is on plaintiff to establish his title as against the title asserted by defendant.[42] If he deraigns title through purchase from heirs, he must establish the fact of heirship.[43] Where a boundary is in dispute, he has the burden of establishing encroachment by defendant,[44] and if defendant has occupied for more than the time requisite to acquire title by adverse possession, plaintiff must show that the occupancy was not adverse.[45] If the parties claim under conflicting patents, plaintiff claiming under the junior patent must establish that the land for which he sues is within lands excepted by the senior patent.[46] Since one taking a deed from a widow is not estopped to deny a husband's title, where she is not one of the heirs or devisees of the husband, and her right of dower has not been assigned, the burden is on plaintiff to show that the deed covers the widow's dower interest.[47]

Presumption of a sale of an unlocated head right certificate may arise from continued possession under a claim of right together with acts of ownership.[48]

Common source of title.—Where the parties claim through a common source, examination of the title back of such source is unnecessary,[49] so where plaintiff brings ejectment as trustee against the mortgagor and his tenants, the trust deed stating that the grantor conveys and warrants renders unnecessary proof of title from the government there being an affidavit of common source.[50] A claim under a 33. Knight v. Denman (Neb.) 94 N. W. 622.

34. Bartley v. Bartley, 172 Mo. 208.

35. Jones v. Griffin, 25 Ky. L. R. 117, 74 S. W. 713.

36. Danner v. Crew (Ala.) 34 So. 822.

37. Action by the Cherokee nation against non-citizens—Hargrove v. Cherokee Nation (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 823.

38. Defendant's allegation that she holds by mesne assignments of a mortgage does not render admissible parol evidence that she has executed an assignment of the mortgage as collateral after the date named and had received a re-assignment on repayment of the debt secured—Barson v. Mulligan, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 192.

39. Proof that legal title is in plaintiff and declaration that plaintiff was an administratrix—Richardson v. Biglane (Miss.) 33 So. 650.

40. Snyder v. Elliott, 171 Mo. 362.

41. Dunbar v. Lindsay (Wis.) 96 N. W. 557.

42. Instruction to such effect held proper—Finch v. Finch, 131 N. C. 271.

43. Lochridge v. Corbett (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 96.

44. Harper v. Anderson, 132 N. C. 89.

45. Burden of showing that occupancy of land by a widow was as a homestead and not adverse to the heirs—Reno v. Blackburn, 24 Ky. L. R. 1976, 72 S. W. 775.

46. Virginia Coal & Iron Co. v. Keystone Coal & Iron Co. (Va.) 45 S. E. 291.

47. Caudle v. Long, 132 N. C. 675.

48. Lochridge v. Corbett (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 96.

49. Horswill v. Farnham (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1082.

50. Brown v. Schintz, 203 Ill. 136.

decedent and a claim under the widow will be presumed to be through a common source, where by statute it is provided that in the absence of heirs at law the widow inherits her husband's realty in fee.[51]

The effect of filing an affidavit in denial of an affidavit of common source filed by plaintiff is to cast on plaintiff the burden of proving both his own and defendant's chain of title to the common source.[52] If all the titles held by one defendant are identical in origin with all held by the other defendant, they claim through a common source, and plaintiff is not required to elect under statutes requiring that when defendants hold under different sources, plaintiff shall elect against which he shall proceed.[53]

Admissibility of evidence.[54]—Evidence offered by a plaintiff having the burden of proving defendant's title to a common source is not inadmissible for the reason that it shows defendant's title to be defective.[55] The lesser seal of the commonwealth need not be shown by a land-office copy of a patent to be attached to the original to render it admissible in ejectment.[56] Where an instrument of conveyance has been lost, possession, acts of ownership, and other circumstantial proof may be offered.[57] In determining the question of whether plaintiffs have had sufficient possession of land to warrant the maintenance of ejectment, the manner in which owners of land of like character in the same neighborhood commonly occupy and use such lands may be considered.[58]

Deeds from persons not asserted by the pleadings to have had title are not admissible by plaintiff,[59] nor is a deed admissible where the alleged grantor denies its execution and there is no evidence of delivery.[60] Evidence in support of title outside of that shown by an abstract tendered, if admitted without objection, may be submitted to the jury though there is a statutory provision limiting a party in ejectment to the title shown by the abstract tendered by him.[61]

To render a sheriff's deed on execution sale admissible, the essentials to its validity must first be shown.[62] A sheriff's deed to defendant after an execution

51. Shannon's Code, § 4165—Carver v. Maxwell (Tenn.) 71 S. W. 752.

52. Bradley v. Lightcap, 201 Ill. 511.

53. Evidence held to show common source—Townsend v. Kreigh (Mich.) 97 N. W. 46.

54. In ejectment by the husband and wife where it is claimed that she furnished a portion of the purchase money, evidence as to statements made by the wife at the time she furnished a particular sum, and the purpose for which it was furnished is admissible—Ray v. Long, 132 N. C. 891. Where plaintiff is claiming title through a headright certificate a petition and judgment in favor of one asserting an ownership under the same right as plaintiff is admissible as establishing notoriety of an adverse claim and if plaintiff claims through purchase from the heirs of the owner of the certificate, the inventory and appraisement of such owner's estate showing the certificate, an order of court authorizing and approving its sale, and an administrator's deed reciting a purchase by the decedent from the original owner are admissible as muniments of title and declarations of ownership—Lochridge v. Corbett (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 96. In ejectment based on breach of condition of a trust deed, the record of a judgment in a chancery action between the same parties finding a sum due on the note secured by the trust deed, is admissible though a writ of error had been prosecuted from the decree and a supersedeas granted. The original notes are also admissible in evidence though they have been merged in a decree or in judgment—Brown v. Schintz, 203 Ill. 136. Where plaintiff claims under a deed, a mortgage executed by the heirs of the grantor on the premises is admissible as bearing on the question of the nature of the grantor's subsequent possession, it being contended that the property had reverted to the grantor by failure of plaintiff to comply with the conditions of the deed—First Presbyterian Church v. Elliott, 65 S. C. 251. Where ejectment is based on breach of a condition against the erection of a building for a particular purpose, evidence as to the business and property interests of the grantors, is inadmissible—Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 202 Ill. 41.

55. Bradley v. Lightcap, 201 Ill. 511.

56. Virginia Coal & Iron Co. v. Keystone Coal & Iron Co. (Va.) 45 S. E. 291.

57. The acts of the husband and of the wife in relation to land are admissible to show in which one of them was the possession—Cahill v. Cahill, 75 Conn. 522.

58. Hanson v. Stinehoff, 139 Cal. 169, 72 Pac. 913.

59. Hilliard v. Connelly, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 271.

60. Bynum v. Hewlett (Ala.) 34 So. 391.

61. Code 1896, § 1531—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Massey, 136 Ala. 156.

62. Valid judgment and execution, the sale on a judgment against plaintiff's husband is inadmissible where it is not contended that the husband had ever had title.[63]

Sufficiency of evidence.[64]—Where plaintiff was entitled to possession and defendants were unlawfully withholding at the time action was brought, plaintiff may recover on proof of his title without regard to the date of the ouster or the possession at any time prior or subsequent.[65] The evidence must identify and locate the lands which are the subject of controversy;[66] documentary evidence of title to a particular strip of land not shown to be the land described by metes and bounds in the complaint is not sufficient.[67] A decree divesting the title of parties to land in controversy and vesting it in one through whom plaintiff claimed is not a sufficient proof of title in the absence of evidence in the decree or otherwise as to who were the parties in the suit.[68] To establish title under an oral gift from a parent, the evidence must leave no room for reasonable doubt.[69] Mere description of themselves by the grantors in a quitclaim deed as heirs of a person named is not sufficient to establish title through intestate succession from such person.[70] Evidence of a possession under a recorded deed prior to defendant's entry authorizes the direction of a verdict in the absence of evidence by defendant.[71] Evidence of a deed to plaintiff's father is not sufficient in the absence of possession for a sufficient length of time to ripen a title.[72]

§ 6. Trial and judgment. Instructions.—Instructions should be applicable to the issues,[73] Where several distinct issues are submitted to the jury, an instruction requested by plaintiff on the effect of certain facts as barring his right of action should be limited to the issue of limitations.[74] An instruction on the effect of a deed as color of title in defendant is not harmful when, if the existence of the deed is found, defendant is entitled to a verdict.[75] Where only an undivided interest is sued for and verdict rendered therefor, a general charge for jurisdiction of the court and whether defendant in ejectment was the party against whom the judgment was rendered—Clem v. Meserole (Fla.) 32 So. 815. Must be shown who the judgment or the order or execution was against, or whose title the sheriff's deed purported to convey in the absence of evidence sufficient to show a claim of adverse possession—Bynum v. Hewlett (Ala.) 34 So. 391.

63. Finch v. Finch, 131 N. C. 271.

64. To establish ownership—Baxter v. Newell, 88 Minn. 110. To authorize a verdict finding part for plaintiff and part for defendant—Perry v. Saylor (Ga.) 44 S. E. 993. To allow submission of the question of forgery of a deed—Larson v. Pederson, 115 Wis. 191. To sustain a defense based on occupancy of land under a parol contract with the grand-parent as against the plaintiff claiming under a deed—Shroyer v. Smith, 204 Pa. 310. To establish title under a gift—Ramey v. Crum, 24 Ky. L. R. 741, 69 S. W. 950. To show entry under a parol gift by a parent and erection of improvements in reliance thereon—Goodin v. Goodin, 172 Mo. 40. To show title by inheritance or through a decree in chancery vesting title in a partnership under which plaintiff claimed—Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 812. To show that one through whom plaintiff claimed died at such date as to preclude his having taken as an heir—Peniston .. Schlude, 171 Mo. 132. To show possession of a river bed vacated by diversion of the water into a new channel at the time defendants entered—Hanson v. Stinehoff, 139 Cal. 169, 72 Pac. 913. To sustain a finding that defendant had offered to pay a balance remaining due on the purchase price of the premises—Belger v. Sanchez, 137 Cal. 614, 70 Pac. 738.

65. Walton v. Wild Goose Min. & Trading Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 209.

66. A map attempting to plat land located under a lake is not sufficient proof of location in the absence of any showing of a survey—Webster v. Harris (Tenn.) 69 S. W. 782, 59 L. R. A. 324.

67. Stoffelo v. Molina (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 912.

68. Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 812.

69. Claim by a son against other heirs—Goodin v. Goodin, 172 Mo. 40.

70. Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed 812.

71. Wilcox v. Moore (Ga.) 45 S. E. 400.

72. Possession for seven years—Caudle v. Long, 132 N. C. 675.

73. An instruction on adverse possession by defendants ignoring an issue of co-tenancy and failing to show knowledge of the adverse holding on the part of plaintiff is erroneous—Parr v. Currence (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 184.

74. Defendant claimed title by deed and also by adverse possession—Pittman v. Weeks, 132 N. C. 81.

75. Though the defense asserted is the 20-year limitation and not the 7-year limitation based on color of title—Pittman v. Weeks, 132 N. C. 81.

the recovery of the entire land is harmless.[76] If there is evidence of breach of condition of a deed, an instruction as to the effect thereof may be given.[77]

Directing verdict.—Under a declaration charging a joint holding, a verdict cannot be directed on evidence that defendant's holding was not joint.[78] A verdict may be directed against defendant who has asserted an entire ownership though a deed in evidence not relied on by him in his pleadings shows that he is the owner of a tenth interest.[79]

Conformity of pleadings, evidence, and findings with judgment.—The judgment must conform to the pleadings and evidence.[80] If defendants set up complete performance of a contract of purchase and pray judgment for a deed from plaintiff or repayment of the purchase price and improvements, a judgment that plaintiff take nothing, that defendants go without day and recover the costs, is erroneous.[81] Under statutes allowing recovery on a showing of a possession in defendant and a right to possession in plaintiff, findings that defendants are withholding possession and that plaintiffs have the right to possession will support a judgment for plaintiff without a specific finding of an ouster.[82] Judgment awarding plaintiff possession cannot be rendered on findings of fact not showing title in plaintiff.[83] Where the judgment conforms to a particular description in the petition which describes a piece of land which is no part of that sought to be recovered, it cannot be sustained, though there is a general description of the land in the petition which is correct.[84] If the only question submitted to the jury is one of damages, the judgment cannot be amended to conform to the verdict by striking out an award of possession.[85]

A written disclaimer is necessary before a judgment can be rendered in favor of defendant if his defense is that he is not in possession or claiming title.[86]

Relief granted.—Where a deed is not void on its face, defendant may be required to deliver it up for cancellation.[87] In ejectment by a grantor in which he tenders a deed to defendant, the court may render a decree as in an action for specific performance allowing the defendant to take the deed on performance of the conditions.[88]

Effect of judgment.—One not a party to ejectment who does not appear and who is not vouched in is not bound by the judgment.[89]

76. Danner v. Crew (Ala.) 34 So. 822.

77. First Presbyterian Church v. Elliott, 65 S. C. 251.

78. Townsend v. Kreigh (Mich.) 94 N. W. 732.

79. McCandless v. Inland Acid Co., 115 Ga. 968.

80. Value of use of a party wall cannot be included in the judgment in the absence of a claim therefor or evidence of use by defendant—Alexander v. Parks, 24 Ky. L. R. 2113, 72 S. W. 1105.

81. Since defendant was either entitled to a decree as prayed in the answer or not to recover at all and if it was found that a balance remained due on the purchase price, a conditional decree should have been rendered vesting title in him on payment of the balance, interest and costs—Chouteau Land & Lumber Co. v. Chrisman (Mo.) 72 S. W. 1062.

82. Rev. St. 1887, par. 3139—Curtis v. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co. (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 924.

83. Findings that defendant delivered plaintiff's grantor a deed of the lands and that a sheriff delivered a deed based on a sale of the land on execution are not sufficient—Wickersham Banking Co. v. Rice, 137 Cal. 506, 70 Pac. 546.

84. Cushing v. Conness (Neb.) 95 N. W. 855.

85. It being apparent that the court found for plaintiffs on all issues not submitted to the jury—Barson v. Mulligan, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 638.

86. Judgment should not be rendered on a verdict before such disclaimer is filed if the verdict is in favor of defendant on the evidence of witnesses that defendant was not in possession or claiming title—Lehigh Valley Coal Co. v. Beaver Lumber Co., 203 Pa. 544.

87. Watkins v. Nugen (Ga.) 45 S. E. 260.

88. Decree held to be based on such theory which allowed a railroad company to withdraw a deed from the record, which deed conveyed to the company on condition of the erection of a station—Smith v. Frankfort & C. R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 2040, 72 S. W. 1088.

89. Ballard v. James (Ga.) 45 S. E. 68.

Writ of possession, supersedeas, restitution.—Payment of sums had by plaintiff under the contract by which he is entitled to possession may be exacted before the award of a writ of possession.[90] Where a supersedeas writ is illegally issued restraining a writ of possession, the obligors on the bond are nevertheless liable as on a common law obligation.[91] On reversal of a judgment for plaintiff in ejectment, restitution cannot be awarded to defendant, where a receiver appointed pending the litigation has sold the land as trustee of a paramount mortgage.[92]

§ 7. Receivership in ejectment.—Pending action of ejectment, a court of equity may appoint a receiver of the rents and profits where it appears that defendants are appropriating the rents and profits, that from the state of the law docket there can be no speedy trial of the action, and the defendants are insolvent.[93] A receiver in ejectment is not authorized by a showing that there was a deed of trust on the land superior to the title of either of the parties or of those under whom they claim title, that the interest was unpaid, the taxes were delinquent, and foreclosure was threatened.[94] In ejectment by a foreclosure purchaser, collection of rents by an insolvent in possession may be enjoined and a receiver appointed.[95]

Right of defendant to rents.—If on an intervention in ejectment, a receiver of rents and profits is appointed, defendant may be allowed the money derived from the receivership if plaintiff is without title and an intervenor failed to allege sufficient interest to permit an intervention.[96] Where land incumbered by a mortgage paramount to the rights of either of the parties is sought to be recovered in ejectment and a receiver is appointed, the defendant on reversal of a judgment against him is entitled to recover rents and profits and the proceeds of a sale of the equity of redemption, which the receiver has paid over to plaintiff. Defendant is not liable for rents and profits after the appointment of a receiver, and on reversal of the judgment may have restitution in a summary manner in the ejectment suit without being relegated to a separate action.[97]

§ 8. New trial.[98]—The assertion of an equitable counterclaim for specific performance of an oral contract for sale of land will not prevent a new trial as of right though by statute it does not exist in equitable actions, notwithstanding they determine not only the possession but the title, where also by statute defendant is allowed to set up equitable defenses in his answer in ejectment.[99] A second new trial in ejectment can be granted only as a matter of favor, and when the court is satisfied that justice will be promoted.[1]

Amendments setting up the statute of limitations may be refused in the discretion of the court on a second trial.[2]

Conditions. Bond.—A bond filed is sufficient though conditioned for payment of costs "if" the new trial is granted.[3] Where payment of all costs recov-

90. Plaintiffs were in possession under a deed from an ancestor, having agreed to make certain payments to their brothers and sisters—Howard v. Murray, 203 Pa. 464.

91. Leech v. Karthaus, 135 Ala. 396.

92. Colbern v. Yantis (Mo.) 75 S. W. 653.

93. Whyte v. Spransy, 19 App. D. C. 450.

94. Colbern v. Yantis (Mo.) 75 S. W. 653.

95. Whyte v. Spransy, 19 App. D. C. 450; Vizard v. Moody, 117 Ga. 67.

96. Donohoo v. Howard (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 927.

97. Colbern v. Yantis (Mo.) 75 S. W. 653.

98. New trial for error and not of right, see generally New Trial.

99. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3073, 3078, 3092—Newland v. Morris, 115 Wis. 207.

1. New trial should be granted where its defeat may have turned on a question of pleading and of the order of proof, which on another trial might be obviated by an amendment of the answer and strict compliance with rules governing the introduction of evidence—Barson v. Mulligan, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 407.

2. Kennan v. Smith, 115 Wis. 463.

3, 4. Rev. St. 1898, § 3092—Newland v. Morris, 115 Wis. 207.

ered by the judgment is made a condition to the granting of a new trial, interest on the costs to the time of payment is not required.[4] On a second new trial in ejectment, defendant, though held to the payment of costs and damages awarded the plaintiff is not required to pay damages awarded for the rents and profits or the value of the use and occupation.[5]

§ 9. Mesne profits and damages.[6]—A statutory provision for the recovery of mesne profits is applicable to an action by an Indian nation under an act of congress to recover land from a trespasser.[7]

Necessity of prayer.—If the prayer is simply for possession of the premises, damages for mesne profits cannot be awarded,[8] and where special damages are not claimed, the rental value cannot be awarded as damages nor can the complaint be amended to cover such rentals.[9]

Persons liable.—In order that one may be protected by good faith in possession as against a claim for waste, the possession need not be continuous or of the entire property.[10] One taking possession in error as to the law may be regarded as holding in bad faith and chargeable with rents and profits,[11] and one in under an erroneous judgment must respond to the owner for resulting damages.[12]

Time for which recovery may be had.—If the statute provides that rents and profits or the value of the use and occupation for a term not exceeding 6 years may be recovered, the 6 years are to be regarded as dating back from the beginning of the action.[13] Where defendants in ejectment are without notice of plaintiff's title until action is begun, they can be chargeable only from the date of filing the suit to the date of judgment.[14] Judgment should not be rendered against defendants for detention of the premises prior to the time at which plaintiffs acquired title.[15]

Set-off.—A claim for rents and profits may be off-set by the cost of clearing the land in a case where the court is in doubt as to the actual value of the occupancy.[16] If the premises detained are a homestead, defendant, as against a claim for the use thereof, cannot set off judgments held by him against plaintiff.[17]

Measure of damages.—The measure of damages for an unlawful withholding of possession is the value of the use for any legitimate and proper purpose while the owner is deprived thereof.[18] An increased rental value resulting from improvements made by one holding under color of title and in good faith should not be taken into consideration against him.[19] Disconnected benefits, not arising in the usual course of defendant's occupancy, should not be considered,[20] nor uses

5. Damages mentioned in Code, § 1525, will be regarded as those recovered for waste and other material injuries and not the penalty for the detention of the premises—Barson v. Mulligan, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 407.

6. See generally Waste, Damages.

7. Mansfield's Digest, § 2637; Ind. Ter. Ann. St. 1899, § 1921, is applicable to an action under Act of Congress, June 28, 1898, §§ 3, 4 & 6 (Ind. Ter. Ann Sts. 1899, §§ 57s, 57t, 57v)—Brought v. Cherokee Nation (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 937.

8. Gen. St. p. 1289, § 45; Sup. Ct. Rule 85—Kline v. Williams (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 556.

9. Pfeffer v. Kling, 171 N. Y. 668.

10. Claim for value of timber cut down and disposed of—Leathem & Smith Lumber Co. v. Nalty, 109 La. 325.

11. McDade v. Bossier Levee Board, 109 La. 625.

12. On detention of a farm, water mill and power, the reasonable rental value together with the expenses in moving to and from the premises may be recovered less the taxes and the value of the permanent reasonable and necessary repairs—Lewis v. Scott, 24 Ky. L. R. 2367, 73 S. W. 1131.

13. Code Civ. Proc. § 1531—Willis v. McKinnon, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 249.

14. Cowan v. Mueller (Mo.) 75 S. W. 606.

15. Where title is acquired by descent, judgment should not be rendered for detention prior to the death of the ancestor—Fitzpatrick v. Graham (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 401.

16. McDade v. Bossier Levee Board, 109 La. 625.

17. Lewis v. Scott, 24 Ky. L. R. 2367, 73 S. W. 1131.

18. Curry v. Sandusky Fish Co., 88 Minn. 485.

19. McCarver v. Herzberg, 135 Ala. 542.

20. Such as a particularly profitable catch of sturgeon in defendant's fishing business—Curry v. Sandusky Fish Co., 88 Minn. 485.

peculiar to defendant's business.[21] A city on recovery of land dedicated as a street cannot recover its rental value where it is shown that it was useful only for agricultural purposes and the city has sustained no damage.[22] In assessing damages for waste in the cutting of timber, the diminished value of the land and not the manufactured value of the timber is to be regarded as the measure, but the value of timber in its manufactured state may be shown in connection with the reasonable cost of manufacturing and marketing.[23]

§ 10. Allowance for improvements and expenditures.—In a real action to recover possession of property, defendant cannot be allowed for taxes paid, if rents and profits are not demanded.[24]

Defendant cannot be allowed for improvements which he makes with knowledge of the owner's rights,[25] or which he makes while occupying under a void decree.[26] Where by statute, defendants in possession under color of title and in good faith are allowed for their improvements, a claimant under a void tax deed will be allowed for his improvements though he knew that some interest was claimed by plaintiff if his occupancy was in good faith under belief of valid title.[27] He should be allowed compensation so far as such improvements increase the vendible value of the land, where they are necessary to a proper use of the land and made with knowledge of and without objection from plaintiffs.[28] Where an executor who is also a devisee joins in a sale of realty, the devisee on suing as such to recover his portion of the property on refusal of defendants to make payments, the executor being unable to confer title, may recover such share only on repayment of the proportionate part of defendant's expenditures and improvements less a like share of the rental value.[29]

If the deed under which defendant claims shows that the grantor does not claim to be an absolute owner, but only holds by a general license, he cannot claim compensation for improvements.[30] One making improvements on land which he has purchased at a sale by his assignee in bankruptcy to defeat a fraudulent conveyance to his wife and children is not entitled to compensation for improvements.[31]

In a statutory action to recover for improvements made on lands recovered in ejectment, the defendant cannot recover for improvements not made on the land in controversy.[32]

If a counterclaim for improvements in ejectment is based solely on statute, the defendant is not entitled to relief arising from the equitable powers of the court.[33]

21. Where defendant had occupied land in the business of catching and curing fish, evidence of the fishermen as to the value of the use based on the nature of defendant's business, is inadmissible—Curry v. Sandusky Fish Co., 88 Minn. 485.

22. City of Uniontown v. Berry, 24 Ky. L. R. 1692, 72 S. W. 295, 24 Ky. L. R. 2248, 73 S. W. 774.

23. Nelson v. Churchill (Wis.) 93 N. W. 799.

24. Milliken v. Houghton, 97 Me. 447.

25. Willis v. McKinnon, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 249.

26. Code, § 473, allows the value of improvements to an unsuccessful defendant in ejectment—Finch v. Strickland, 132 N. C. 103.

27. Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,995—Thomas v. Wagner (Mich.) 92 N. W. 106.

28. Jones v. Griffin, 25 Ky. L. R. 117, 74 S. W. 713.

29. Crouch v. Nast, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 492.

30. Under Comp. Laws Dak. 1887, §§ 5455, 5456—Skelly v. Warren (S. D.) 94 N. W. 408.

31. Not a bona fide holder of the premises under color of title believed by him to be good—Hallyburton v. Slagle, 132 N. C. 957.

32. Recovery cannot be had for improvements on neighboring islands, where certain islands have been recovered in ejectment—Kobush v. Schmidt (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 1087.

33. Skelly v. Warren (S. D.) 94 N. W. 408.

CURRENT LAW.

(Copyrighted 1904, by John B. West Company.)

VOLUME I. FEBRUARY, 1904. NUMBER 7.

ELECTIONS.[1]

§ 1. Statutory authorization, time, place and notice.[2]—A subsequent act of the legislature cannot validate an election already unlawfully held.[3]

Time.—Elections must be held at the time fixed by the law or by some person authorized by law to fix it: the authority to hold an election at one time will not warrant an election at another.[4] Where a time is fixed by the constitution, the election may be held at the required time without further legislation therefor.[5] An election for congressman only is not one for "state" officers at which a vacancy may be filled.[6] An election to fill a vacancy may be directed to be held before the expiration of the term by which the vacancy will result.[7] One departure for a special cause from a customary date of holding an election does not establish a new date.[8]

Place.—When electors are given power to designate the place of holding future elections but do not do so, ensuing elections are properly held at the same place.[9]

1. See Judges, for election of special judges. See Railroads for voting of municipal aid bonds.

Intoxicating Liquors, for local option elections. See articles dealing with various political divisions such as States, Municipal Corporations, Counties, Towns for powers of legislatures, boards of aldermen, councils, etc., to judge of qualifications of their members.

2. Bill for revision of a city charter held broad enough in its title to cover changes in the time of holding the charter elections. Laws 1896, p. 641, c. 520—People v. Kent, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 554. Section 42 of an act to regulate elections. Pub. Laws 1898, p. 258, is repealed by the 4th section of the supplement to said act approved April 14th, 1903, Pub. Laws 1903, p. 606—Hopper v. Stack (N. J. Sup.) 56 Atl. 1. Act Oct. 16, 1900, does not repeal all of Ky. St. 1471 except such portion as is reenacted in § 4—Herndon v. Farmer, 24 Ky. L. R. 1045, 70 S. W. 632.

3. Election held under repealed law not validated by act declaring that the repealing act was intended not to apply to place in question—Rodwell v. Harrison, 132 N. C. 45.

4. People v. Knopf, 198 Ill. 340. An incorrect statement of a clerk who is given no power to determine the year in which the election of particular officers shall take place, and who has no such power in the absence of statute, but whose duty is confined to stating in his notice the officers to be elected at any election as provided by law, will have no effect in rendering an election valid which the law does not authorize—People v. Kent, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 554. A private law fixing the time of the election of town officers is repealed by a general statute expressly so providing, so that an election held at a day fixed in the private statute is invalid—Rodwell v. Harrison, 132 N. C. 45.

5. State v. Moores (Neb.) 96 N. W. 1011.

6. Ferguson v. Hackett, 25 Ky. L. R. 170, 74 S. W. 708; Smith v. Doyle, 25 Ky. L. R. 278, 74 S. W. 1084.

7. People v. Wright, 30 Colo. 439, 71 Pac. 365.

8. It will be presumed that a customary long used date had been fixed by law or by a vote of the electors—Hoxsie v. Edwards, 24 R. I. 338.

9. Gen. Laws, c. 9, §§ 4, 9 as amended by

A mistake in the location of a polling place outside the limits of the election district will not invalidate the votes of the district, though it is provided by statute that the voter must vote in the district where he actually resides.[10]

Precincts.[11]—Irregular establishment of precincts does not render the election illegal and void where there is no showing of fraud, prejudice to any candidate, or deprivation of voting privileges.[12]

Notices.—Exact compliance with statutes in regard to notice of election is not requisite where such statutes are merely directory,[13] and the results of a full and fair election are not vitiated by failure in this regard.[14]

Mandamus.—Where a duty respecting the holding of an election is clearly obligatory and has been disregarded, the court will by mandamus compel action.[15]

Restraint.—An injunction does not lie to restrain the holding of a public election authorized by law,[16] and unless for irregularity such as to render the election absolutely illegal or void, the supreme court of a state will not, at the suit of a private person, restrain election inspectors from acting.[17]

§ 2. Eligibility and registration of electors.[18]—The constitutional right to vote for all elective officers cannot be curtailed by permitting a vote for only part of candidates for a board to the end that it shall be bi-partisan.[19] A requirement that electors shall vote in the wards in which they reside is an "additional qualification" for municipal elections within a constitutional grant of power.[20]

Residence.[21]—A constitutional period of residence "before election" cannot be extended by requiring it as a condition to registration.[22] The intention to remain is consistent with the purpose to remove at some future indefinite time,[23] but there must be a fixed intention to remain.[24] He must abandon his former residence.[25]

Removal with intention to reside permanently in another state forfeits a voting residence though the intention is altered and a return made to the state.[26] An intent to return may prevent loss of residence by removal.[27]

Pub. Laws, c. 808, § 8—Hoxsie v. Edwards, 24 R. I. 338.

10. Pub. Laws 1898, p. 237—Lane v. Otis, 68 N. J. Law, 656.

11. In Idaho, an election precinct cannot include more than one justice's precinct (Rev. St. 1887, § 759, subd. 3—State v. Vineyard (Idaho) 72 Pac. 824.

12. Election inspectors will not be restrained from acting in absence of such a showing—State v. Wilcox, 11 N. D. 329.

13. Posting of only one notice instead of two held not fatal—Hoxsie v. Edwards, 24 R. I. 338.

14. Omission to mention one of the offices among those to be filled—Winters v. Warmolts (N. J. Law) 56 Atl. 245. The mere fact that an election notice may be construed to authorize the closing of the registration books sooner than provided by law, will not invalidate an election, unless it is apparent that the books were so closed—Epping v. Columbus, 117 Ga. 263.

15. Giving notice—People v. Knopf, 198 Ill. 340. Inserting names of offices to be filled—People v. Knopf, Id.

16. Morgan v. Wetzel County Ct. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 182.

17. In establishing precincts—State v. Wilcox, 11 N. D. 329.

18. Special advisory election courts see post, § 7.

19. Act April 8, 1884, as amended by act June 1, 1886, 2 Gen. St. p. 806, providing that boards of excise commissioners shall consist of five members not more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party and that no voter shall vote for more than three candidates—State v. Bedell, 68 N. J. Law, 451; Smith v. City of Perth Amboy (N. J. Sup.) 56 Atl. 145.

20. Code 1892, § 3028 is not in conflict with Const. §§ 241, 242, 245—State v. Kelly (Miss.) 32 So. 909.

21. Residence in a precinct from September 12th to November 5th, does not fulfil the 60 day requirement—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1009, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257. A person becomes a resident on the day he rents a house and moves his clothing and furniture therein, he being married on that day and going into occupancy with his wife on the day following.—Conner v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 709, 69 S. W. 963.

22. Code 1892, § 3028 making residence of one year "prior to registration" essential, is invalid—State v. Kelly (Miss.) 32 So. 909.

23. Railroad laborers who have been working within the state for four years—Black v. Pate, 136 Ala. 601.

24. Students not qualified (Const. art. 7, § 4)—Parsons v. People, 80 Colo. 388, 70 Pac. 689.

25. A student desiring to compel his registration in the district of his residence at a seminary of learning must show his former residence and facts showing an abandonment thereof, and acts done by him besides that of taking up his abode at the seminary

Registration.—Conditions for registration must not impair the constitutional right to vote.[28] A provision that two members of a town council shall be registrars, and in case that they disagree as to voting qualifications a citizen of the town may be called upon as umpire, is reasonable.[29]

A board of registration is not liable in damages for refusal to register a voter.[30] A county board of registrars cannot in equity be compelled to place a negro's name upon the voting list, if the refusal to register him is alleged to be part of a general scheme to disfranchise negroes, since if such a scheme exists, a mere order of the plaintiff's name to be inscribed will not furnish adequate relief, and in addition, if the lists are fraudulent, the court cannot become a party to the unlawful scheme by adding another voter thereto.[31] Mandamus to compel registration will not lie, where the ground alleged denies the legal existence of the registration board.[32]

§ 3. Nominations by convention or petition. Regularity of conventions.—A convention if regular for one purpose is regular for all purposes within the scope of its action.[33]

A person who accepts a nomination from a convention of a party becomes bound by the rulings of the party organization as to the regularity of his nomination.[34] In a controversy as to which are the regular nominees of a party, the court's inquiry is limited to determine which was the regular party convention;[35] as to this question, the determination of the party central organization is conclusive.[36]

The majority of those voting will control action of a political convention,[37] and if it has been regularly organized those remaining cannot be deprived of their power to act by the voluntary withdrawal of a majority of delegates entitled to participate;[38] nor can such majority unite with rejected delegates to form a legal party convention.[39]

Nomination by petition.—Immaterial variations from the statute will not affect a petition of nomination.[40] The petitioners for a party nomination need not, under Kentucky laws, state that they are members of the party;[41] and though the petition for the purpose of gaining a new residence—In re McCormack, 86 App. Div. 362.

26. Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1009, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257.

27. An unmarried man does not lose his residence by going to another state to secure labor (Ky. St. 1478)—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1009, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257. A temporary removal from the ward for sanitary reasons does not forfeit residence—Finn v. Board of Canvassers, 24 R. I. 482.

28. Code 892, § 3028 requiring full period of residence prior to registration is invalid—State v. Kelly (Miss.) 32 So. 909.

29. Ordinance held authorized by a town charter as a "needful regulation" for registration—Epping v. Columbus, 117 Ga. 263.

30. Complaint held demurrable—Giles v. Teasley, 136 Ala. 164.

31. Giles v. Harris, 189 U. S. 475.

32. Demurrer sustained to mandamus to compel registration alleging that Const. 1901, art. 8, §§ 180, 181, 183-188 are unconstitutional, such sections prescribing qualifications of voters and the mode of registration—Giles v. Teasley, 136 Ala. 164.

33. County convention—State v. Liudahl, 11 N. D. 320.

34. State v. Liudahl, 11 N. D. 320.

35. State v. Porter, 11 N. D. 309.

36. The determination of the central organization of a party as to which of two caucuses is regular is conclusive as to which is a regular nomination—Rose v. Bennett (R. I.) 56 Atl. 185. The decision of a credential committee of a state convention as to the qualification of delegates from a county convention made on contest and with full notice, which is adopted by the state convention, is not reviewable by the courts—State v. Liudahl, 11 N. D. 320; State v. Porter, 11 N. D. 309. It is immaterial that delegates voted on the decision in the convention, if their votes were not controlling—State v. Weston, 27 Mont. 185, 70 Pac. 519, 1134. The decision of the state convention of a party as to which faction of a county central committee was entitled to select delegates to a state convention is conclusive as to the right of candidates for county offices subsequently nominated by the successful faction to appear on the official ballot under the party name—Id.

37. The fact that delegates are present and do not vote does not affect the acts of the majority voting—State v. Porter, 11 N. D. 309.

38, 39. State v. Porter, 11 N. D. 309.

40. Republican candidate instead of candidate of the Republican party—Wilkins v. Duffy, 24 Ky. L. R. 913, 968, 70 S. W. 668.

41. The statute requires that they shall state that they are qualified and desire to vote for the candidate—Wilkins v Duffy, 24 Ky. L. R. 913, 968, 70 S. W. 668.

does not state that there is no other nomination for the office, the nominee should be placed on the ballot by the clerk, if he has knowledge that there is no other nominee of the party and that no one claims the nomination.[42]

If petitioners be found not entitled to have the candidate placed on the ballot under the party name which they request, the name may be placed on the ballot without any party designation.[43]

Certificates and declinations and vacancies.—The nomination certificate must be filed with the officer designated by statute,[44] and his action thereupon may be subject to judicial review[45] or control.[46] If the nomination certificate is not filed in time, the defect may be remedied by filing as for a vacancy.[47]

Declinations of nomination must strictly follow the statutes as to time.[48] A convention may delegate the nominating power to a committee unless restrained by its party rules or by statute, and hence a committee to fill vacancies may nominate whomsoever the convention might have.[49]

§ 4. Official ballot.—One's eligibility to office is not curtailed by a law denying the right to print his name on the ballot if spaces to write it in are provided.[50] In California a nominee is held to have a constitutional right, if nominated by two parties for the same office, to have his name printed twice on the ballot under both party designations.[51]

An election is not vitiated by the fact that the clerk places the name of a candidate under an erroneous party device, where his action might be regarded as in good faith under a plausible interpretation of an opinion of the attorney general.[52] The surname of a candidate is a sufficient designation if there is only one candidate of such name for the office.[53]

The officer required to prepare the official ballot has purely ministerial duties.[54] A writ of prohibition will not issue to restrain the placing on a ballot of the name of a candidate whose nomination has been duly certified.[55]

42. Though a party nomination by petition may be made only in case of failure to nominate by convention or primary—Wilkins v. Duffy, 24 Ky. L. R. 913, 968, 70 S. W. 668.

43. Davidson v. Hanson, 87 Minn. 211.

44. A judge of a district having but one county should be regarded as a county officer in Montana, and certificates of nomination should be filed with the county clerk (Pol. Code, § 1312; Const. Sched. § 1)—State v. Hays, 27 Mont. 174, 70 Pac. 321. The officer's file mark is not necessary, presentation being sufficient under Code, § 1104—Reese v. Hogan, 117 Iowa, 603. Laws 1896, c. 909, § 56—Gillespie v. McDonough, 39 Misc. 147.

45. In New York the act of a secretary of state in filing nomination certificates may be reviewed in the judicial district of the supreme court in which the citizen resides.

46. The proper officer may be compelled by mandamus to receive a certificate of nomination, his duties being ministerial and not judicial, notwithstanding it is provided that the certificates must come from a party casting two per cent of the total vote of the preceding election—(Rose v. Bennett [R. I.] 56 Atl. 185); mandamus lies only where an election is duly to be held, hence will not issue where, pursuant to competent advice that the terms were not to expire, no proclamation for the election of judges in November 1902 was made and no party nominated candidates—State v. Chatterton (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 466.

47. Code, §§ 1104, 1102—Reese v. Hogan, 117 Iowa, 603.

48. Under act Feb. 2, 1899, § 24, the nominee must file his declaration at least thirty days before election day—Napton v. Meek (Idaho) 70 Pac. 945.

49. Gillespie v. McDonough, 39 Misc. 147 construing Laws 1896, c. 66, forbidding committees to nominate candidates of opposing parties, under certain circumstances.

50. State v. Moore, 87 Minn. 308, 59 L. R. A. 447 sustaining Primary Election Law.

51. Pol. Code, § 1197, to the contrary providing that his name shall appear once, and in the other party column the words "no nomination" held unconstitutional—Murphy v. Curry, 137 Cal. 479, 70 Pac. 461, 59 L. R. A. 97.

52. Placing Republican candidate under the title of the Independent Republican party. Laws Extra Sess. 1900, c. 5, § 12, provide that an election shall be void only where there is fraud, intimidation, bribery or violence—Wilkins v. Duffy, 24 Ky. L. R. 913, 968, 70 S. W. 668.

53. State v. Eagan, 115 Wis. 417.

54. Not authorized to select party names for candidates or determine which of two party names should be used for the party candidates—Lind v. Scott, 87 Minn. 226. Where names of candidates for state and judicial district offices are certified to the county auditor by the secretary of state, his duties as to preparing the official ballots become ministerial—Miller v. Davenport (Idaho) 70 Pac. 610.

Where a rate per thousand is established as compensation for printing ballots, the printer cannot charge the county the full price for a thousand ballots for a fraction furnished townships, but there can be but one fractional charge.[56]

Use of party name.—A substantial number of persons having an organization, a committee, distinct views and teachings, is a political party.[57] Party names must be distinct.[58] A factional dispute may give each of two candidates the right to the use of the party name.[59] Under the primary election law of Minnesota, a party which has made no nomination at the primary election cannot have a candidate placed with other candidates so nominated on the ticket under a party name;[60] but it does not lose the exclusive right to its party name on the state ticket by the failure to poll enough votes to go on the official ballot by nominations in convention; it may nominate by petition.[61]

§ 5. Primary elections.—Primary elections are subject to regulation under the police power of the state.[62] They must be held in accordance with the statute applicable thereto,[63] and in Minnesota are not prescribed for nominations of state officers,[64] but in Kentucky they are.[65]

Control by party committees.—Primary election laws usually intrust the calling of elections to the party governing committees[66] subject to statutory limitations on their mode of action.[67] A power to the state committee to count the votes cast at

55. Against the county auditor to restrain insertion of the name of a candidate for district judge on an official ballot, the nomination being duly certified to the secretary of state and by him to the auditor—Miller v. Davenport (Idaho) 70 Pac. 610.

56. Gen. St. 1901, § 2708—Honey v. Board of Commissioners, 65 Kan. 428, 70 Pac. 333.

57. The Socialist labor party is a political party within such definition in Minnesota though compelled to make its nominations by petition having failed to cast a statutory percent of the total vote at a preceding general election—Davidson v. Hanson, 87 Minn. 211.

58. "Social Democratic Party," held to conflict with "Democratic party" (Gen. Laws 1901, c. 312)—Lind v. Scott, 87 Minn. 226.

59. Nomination for registrar of voters was made by a special convention of the city committee and holders of certain designated offices in a town, and later by the voters at a primary election, held under a statute then first going into effect, and it was held that though the chairman of the town committee refused to recognize the latter nominee, such nominee was entitled to have ballots issued by him containing his name as a candidate for the office under the title of the party name counted—Flanagan v. Hynes, 75 Conn. 584.

60. Laws 1899, c. 349, § 25, as amended by laws 1901, c. 216, § 9—State v. Scott, 87 Minn. 313.

61. Gen. Laws 1901, c. 312—Davidson v. Hanson, 87 Minn. 211.

62. Hopper v. Stack (N. J. Sup.) 56 Atl. 1.

Validity of Statutes. Such laws are not rendered special by the fact that they apply only to fall elections (Hopper v. Stack [N. J. Sup.] 56 Atl. 1); or by the fact that they provide that candidates to be voted for by a single ward or township shall be nominated directly without intervention of delegates, while those to be elected by more than one ward or township shall be nominated by delegates in party conventions (Act April 14th, 1903, Pub. Laws, 1903, p. 603)—Id.

Laws 1899, c. 27 not being an amendment but only indirectly affecting general election law does not violate provisions regarding amendments—De France v. Harmer (Neb.) 92 N. W. 159. Act held not obnoxious to provision against adoption of other acts without setting them out—Hopper v. Stack (N. J. Sup.) 56 Atl. 1.

The voter may be required, if challenged, to make affidavit that at the last general election at which he voted, he voted for a majority of the candidates of the party with which he is proposing to act, without infringing his constitutional rights—Id.

63. Ky. St. art. 12—Young v. Beckham, 24 Ky. L. R. 2135, 72 S. W. 1092.

64. Such nominations are by convention—Davidson v. Hanson, 87 Minn. 211, construing statutes.

65. Ky. St. art. 12, §§ 1550, 1565—Young v. Beckham, 24 Ky. L. R. 2135, 72 S. W. 1092.

66. When called under such statutory provisions they cannot be enjoined (Ky. St. art. 12, c. 41)—Meacham v. Young, 24 Ky. L. R. 2141, 72 S. W. 1094. State committee denied power to prevent primary called regularly by local committee or to remove local committeemen and appoint new committee for that end—Neal v. Young, 25 Ky. L. R. 183, 75 S. W. 1082. Interference by state committee enjoined—Id. Governing committee cannot question the eligibility of a candidate before the primary and refuse to place his name on the ballot—Young v. Beckham, 24 Ky. L. R. 2135, 72 S. W. 1092.

67. A statute providing that rules shall not be amended except on reasonable notice, does not apply to rules adopted by the first meeting of a county general committee changing the rules of the preceding year. (Primary Election Law, Laws 1898, p. 336, c. 179 as amended by Laws 1899, p. 968, c. 473, subd. 2)—People v. Democratic General Committee, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 173. And a rule a primary election for state officers will be read into a statute which authorizes the committee to call the convention and authorizes local committee to count the vote and certify the nominations for local officers.[68] Redress must be first sought from the committee before mandamus or certiorari will lie to review its action.[69]

Ballots for primaries.—"Primaries" are not "elections" which require a ballot with blank spaces for writing in names.[70]

Review and contest of primary.—A statutory power to review the action or neglect of public officers with regard to rights or duties prescribed by a primary law is confined to the subject-matter of the act.[71] Where the board of canvassers is given authority to hear and determine all questions concerning the counting of ballots cast in a party caucus for nomination, they are entitled to throw out the entire vote and refuse to certify any nomination, where the ballots evidence fraud.[72]

A notice of intention to contest is not sufficient to require a recount.[73] A petition for an injunction to compel a party committee to recount the ballots of a primary election must allege wrong doing or mistake on the part of the committee or election officers.[74]

§ 6. Officers of election.—An officer appointed by a committee under statute to police an election draws his authority from the statute and not from the committee and may use force in arresting a violator of the election law.[75] Compensation provided the officers for local elections is not necessarily affected by consolidation of the local elections with general elections.[76]

§ 7. Polling the vote.—An election actually held may be valid despite an officer's refusal to open the polls.[77]

Election courts.—A mere desire of election officers to have a means of advice as to legal rights or duties will not require a judge to be deputed under the Pennsylvania law to hold a special election court.[78]

§ 8. Irregularity and ambiguity in ballot.—The right of the elector to have his vote cast and counted should be protected from fraud or mistake of the election officers by every possible safe-guard,[79] but omission of mandatory requirements is there adopted controls acts performed at that time, though it later may become ineffective on account of failure to file a certificate thereof as required by statute—Id.

68. Ky. St. art. 12, §§ 1563, 1565—Young v. Beckham, 24 Ky. L. R. 2135, 72 S. W. 1092.

69. Mandamus will not issue to compel the recognition of an unnamed person as member of the general committee of a party, if such person has never applied for, or been refused recognition, though by the statute summary jurisdiction is given to review the actions or neglect of the officers or members of a political convention committee—People v. Democratic General Committee, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 173.

70. Minnesota Const. art. 7—State v. Johnson, 87 Minn. 221.

71. Under Laws 1899, p. 995, c. 473, § 11, a justice of the supreme court cannot review the neglect of the mayor of a city in appointing election officers under a power conferred by laws 1896, p. 900, c. 909, § 12, as amended by laws 1901, p. 232, c. 95—McShane v. Murphy, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 566.

72. Cannon v. Board of Canvassers, 24 R. I. 473.

73, 74. Henry v. Secrest, 24 Ky. L. R. 1505, 71 S. W. 892.

75. Primary election sheriff—Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. L. R. 1513, 71 S. W. 872.

76. Pub. Laws 1901, p. 41, does not affect compensation allowed by act March 22, 1901 for duties connected with charter elections in certain cities—Bennett v. City of Orange (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 249.

77. His act did not disfranchise the electors since they had the right to elect a moderator in his place and proceed with the annual town election—Hoxsie v. Edwards, 24 R. I. 338.

78. In re Election Court, 204 Pa. 92.

79. State v. Falk (Minn.) 94 N. W. 879. Defects held not material: Failure to initial ballots (Construing Beaumont City Charter) —King v. State (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1019. A. Schr. placed on a ballot as the initials of a judge Anthony Schriver—Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703. Failure of clerk to sign ballots and use of the words "Hotel Lancaster" in place of his name "George D. Lancaster"—Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75. The fact that the judge's initials are placed on a portion of the ballot which is torn off before it is deposited. It will be presumed that all the ballots deposited were official, where one judge put on the initials and another judge accepted the ballots and placed them in the box. Construing Gen. Pub. Laws, art. 23, § 61, as amended by acts 1901, c. 2—Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703.

fatal whether from fraud, mistake, or irregularity.[80] Such statutes are regarded as constitutional and valid, though by their application the rejection of a few honestly voted ballots is necessitated.[81]

The marks must at least substantially conform to the statutes, applications whereof are noted below.[82] The voter's choice must be indicated.[83]

After marking in the circle indicating a desire to vote a straight ticket, the voter does not entirely invalidate his ballot by digressing into other columns.[84] Unofficial ballots authorized in case of failure to provide official ones may be counted though not regularly marked.[85]

The writing in of names is also controlled by statute, the intent of the voter being given great weight.[86] The rule as to the effect of writing in a name already printed on the ballot varies.[87] Where the voter is required to return a spoiled ballot and receive another, a ballot bearing attempted erasures may be rejected.[88]

80. Code 1899, c. 3, §§ 36, 66, require the rejection of any ballots not signed by clerk—Kirkpatrick v. Board of Canvassers (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 465. Ballots on which the names of both poll clerks are written by one of them or by some other person are void—Id. In an election for city officers in Missouri in a city which comes under the registration act, a ballot on which the registration number of the person casting the ballot is not indorsed cannot be counted (Rev. St. 1899, § 6995, is not repealed by the act of 1891, § 11)—Donnell v. Lee (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 997.

81. Kirkpatrick v. Board of Canvassers (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 465.

82. May be marked in blue pencil—Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703. By express consent of an opponent, a ballot bearing a candidate's name in blue pencil may be counted, though the statute provides that all marks must be in black (Rev. St. §§ 2966, 35)—State v. Conser, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 270. Need not be in the shape of a cross (Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703); but the action of the court below in rejecting ballots marked with a straight line instead of a cross has been sustained—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

83. Where mark is opposite a blank space following the name of a candidate, it cannot be counted for such candidate. Rev. St. c. 11, § 238, provides that the ballot shall not be counted if the voter's choice cannot be determined—Flanders v. Roberts, 182 Mass. 524. Erasure of a cross mark invalidates the ballot—Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703.

84. A ballot marked in the circle at the head of the ticket and with crosses after the names of candidates on other tickets, will be counted for all candidates under the marked circle, except for those offices as to which marks have been placed after the names of candidates on other tickets. Ballot marked in two circles and with a cross in the square opposite the name of one candidate under one of such circles, will be counted for the candidate after whose name he has placed the cross only—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257.

A cross in the circle under the device of a regular party and also under the device of an independent candidate, will not cause the ballot to be rejected, but where there are three sets of candidates, if a cross is placed in two of the circles, it is fatal—Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75. If the ballot is marked in the circle under a party device and also under the device of an individual, independent candidate, it should be counted for the independent candidate and not for the candidate for the corresponding office on the party ticket, the independent candidate being the only one under the individual device—Little v. Hall, 24 Ky. L. R. 1060, 70 S. W. 642. If after marking the circle at the head of the ticket the voter makes a cross in the square opposite the single candidate on the other ticket, the vote should be counted for such candidate for that office, and as to the other offices for the party candidates under the circle which is crossed—Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75. Where the ballots are unmistakably marked for one party, the fact that there is an apparently fraudulent mark in the circle at the top of another ticket will not prevent the ballot being counted for the first party—Id.

85. No crosses—In re Hammond (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1079 (This was a town election).

86. The voter must not make a cross after the name which he so writes (Pol. Code, § 1205)—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918. The writing of the name of a candidate in a blank under a printed designation of an office is under the Ohio law effective as a vote for such person for such office—State v. Conser, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 270. Name may be written beneath the line—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

In Wisconsin, if a name is written on a ballot on which there is a printed name for such office, it will be counted for the written name; though Rev. St. 1898, § 799 provides that no ballot shall contain a greater number of names for any office than there are persons to be chosen—State v. Eagan, 115 Wis. 417.

87. A ballot with a cross placed under the party emblem or name from which the name of a candidate is erased, and the name of the candidate appearing on the opposite ticket written in should not be counted in favor of the opposite candidate (Pub. Acts 1901, p. 26, No. 214)—People v. Byers (Mich.) 97 N. W. 51. Where the name of an opposing candidate is written partly over the name of the candidate and a pencil line drawn through the name of the latter, it must be counted in favor of the name written, if the statute provides that ballots shall not be rejected for technical errors not making it impossible to determine the voter's choice;

§ 9. Distinguishing marks on ballot.—The intent of the voter must be determined by an inspection of the ballot and the existence of marks by which it may be identified irrespective of any conjecture as to the purpose or circumstances under which the mark was made.[89]

§ 10. Count, canvas, and return.—In determining a plurality the voter's choice for precedence is not material.[90]

Return.—It is not necessary in New York to return the number of votes cast by each of several parties for a common candidate.[91] An officer's refusal to sign a return does not invalidate the election.[92] An election certificate carries a presumption that proper canvass of the vote was had before the certificate was issued, and that the canvassing officers determined that the persons returned were duly elected.[93]

Recount.—A power to canvass returns does not confer authority to canvass ballots.[94] A recanvass should be restricted to ballots objected to.[95] A candidate does not waive the right to object to the legality of a recount by his presence thereat.[96]

Performance of purely ministerial duties concerning elections may be compelled by mandamus.[97] and though no cross mark was under the written name Rev. St. §§ 2966, 2935—State v. Conser, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 270. Pol. Code. § 1205—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918. The voters must not write a name in the blank left for candidates for certain offices, where such name is printed as a candidate for such office.

88. Pol. Code, § 1207—People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

89. People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918. Marks regarded as distinguishing: Double cross; cross after words "no nomination;" blot on margin; hole caused by erasure of stamp mark; cross inside a column; cross after words "for electors;" cross against the printed names for presidential electors, and nine names written for electors in the blank column; "William McKinley" or "McKinley" written in the blank column; letter A. No. 14; three lines forming a star—Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703.

Not distinguishing: An S. shaped mark resulting from an offset on folding of the ballot after it was placed in the hands of the board; "Wm. McKinley" written in blank column and no crosses against names of presidential electors (People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918); extending the cross slightly beyond the square; deficiency in the leg of a cross; ending arms of cross in curls; repetition of pencil strokes making cross (Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703); blurred figures or irregular black marks in the circle (Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75; ink blots on the back (Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75; Coulehan v. White, 95 Md. 703).

In the absence of statute the voter may make a cross in two of the circles at the head of the ticket, if by so doing he does not vote for two candidates, and such will not be regarded as a distinguishing mark if made in good faith. Ky. St. § 1471, provides that ballots shall not be rejected for technical errors, unless it is impossible to determine the voter's choice—Herndon v. Farmer, 24 Ky. L. R. 1045, 70 S. W. 632.

90. Statute read, that of the persons elected selectmen, the person first named on the plurality of the ballots cast for them or any of them shall be the first selectman. Contestant lacked a plurality without resort to votes on which he was not named first—Buck v. Barnes, 75 Conn. 460.

91. Construing election law, Laws 1896, c. 909, §§ 84, 110, 111, 131—People v. Board of County Canvassers, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 514.

92. Signature by the clerk after the judge's refusal on account of the reception of two votes after closing of the polls is sufficient—Collins v. Masden, 25 Ky. L. R. 81, 74 S. W. 720. Not invalidated by failure to sign at the proper time, where the ballots do not appear to have been tampered with, and correspond to the count returned—Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75.

93. State v. Kersten (Wis.) 95 N. W. 120.

94. Rev. St. c. 24, § 57, conferring authority on the board of trustees of villages to canvass returns of village elections—Holt v. People, 102 Ill. App. 276. In Nevada the board of county commissioners may recount the votes though it has canvassed and declared the election returns and given a certificate of election to a legislator (Comp Laws 1900, § 2116)—Wright v. Board of Com'rs (Nev.) 71 Pac. 145.

95. Election law, § 114; Laws 1896, c. 109, authorizes a judicial investigation of ballots objected to as illegal (In this case there was no claim that the number of votes shown by the tally sheet did not correspond to the number shown by the poll books)—In re Brush, 171 N. Y. 694.

96. Fritz v. Crean, 182 Mass. 433.

97. Mayor of a city may be compelled to certify the returns of the commissioners of election, where it is provided that such commissioners shall be appointed, and that after the close of the polls they shall ascertain the result of the election in the presence of the mayor who shall certify with the election officers to the returns—Bourgeois v. Fairchild (Miss.) 33 So. 495. Duty of registrars of voters making recount under Rev. Laws, c. 11, § 267, to reject certain defective ballots and make a statement of the result of a re-count then made held ministerial—Flanders v. Roberts, 182 Mass. 524.

A letter of a board of canvassers stating its decision not to certify the result of a re-

§ 11. Review by court.[98] Right and remedies.—The right to contest an election for fraud or mistake is not to be repealed or curtailed by inference from subsequent statutes,[99] and a remedy by legislative contest of election of a member is not a bar to other remedies for securing a review of the election.[1] Mandamus and certiorari cannot both be maintained.[2]

Failure of a candidate to object to the rejection of certain ballots in his presence at the first count does not estop him from contesting the election.[3] Error in receiving a ballot may be offset by receiving similar ballots for the opposing candidate.[4]

Jurisdiction and judicial inquiry under statutes creating special remedies or conferring special jurisdiction are limited by terms of the statutes.[5]

Pleadings and issues.—General statements or averments of illegality or irregularities are insufficient.[6] An amendment setting up new grounds of contest after the expiration of the period for contest will not render the entire petition liable to be stricken out.[7] Time for filing responsive pleadings as fixed in the statute is man-count because it was convinced of intrinsic fraud is a judicial determination that all ballots should be rejected, and not a refusal to perform a ministerial duty of certifying the result of a re-count. And a declaration by the chairman of the board that one had received a plurality of the votes, being not an official finding does not render the issuance of a certificate merely ministerial—Cannon v. Board of Canvassers, 24 R. I. 473.

It will not lie to control purely political and governmental functions, unless there is a refusal to act in any manner—Orman v. People (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 430. It lies to compel officers to declare the result of an election and to notify the parties shown to be elected—Holt v. People, 102 Ill. App. 276.

Nor will it lie to compel a board to perform acts not within its power. Under Gen. St. 1901, §§ 2587, 2590, requiring the board to open the returns, determine their regularity and genuineness, make the footing and declare the result, it cannot be required to re-canvass returns and exclude certain votes as cast and return under a law which is claimed to be unconstitutional—Sharpless v. Buckles, 65 Kan. 838, 70 Pac. 886.

98. See States, Municipal Corporations, Officers and kindred titles for review of qualification of members of representative bodies such as State Legislatures, city and town councils, etc., by the bodies to which they are elected.

99. State v. Conser, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 270.

1. Does not prevent a recount before the county commissioner under Comp. Laws 1900, § 2116—Wright v. Board of Com'rs (Nev.) 71 Pac. 145.

2. Review of re-count authorized by Rev. St. c. 11, § 267—Flanders v. Roberts, 182 Mass. 524.

3. State v. Conser, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 270.

4. People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

5. The action of the judge of a township election in rejecting and destroying ballots may be reviewed on a contest of the election (Rev. St. §§ 2966, 13)—State v. Conser, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 270. Summary process provided for the contesting of the election of selectmen may be invoked for the determination of the question of which selectman is to be first selectman—Buck v. Barnes, 75 Conn. 460. By statute in certain states the circuit court is entitled to declare that there is no election where there has been such fraud, intimidation, bribery or violence, that neither contestant nor contestee may be adjudged fairly elected (Laws, Extra Sess. 1900, c. 5, § 12)—Stewart v. Rose, 24 Ky. L. R. 1759, 72 S. W. 271. A county court in Illinois has no authority to entertain a contest of an election for the office of president of an incorporated town existing under a special charter. He is not by the fact that he is ex-officio of the board of county supervisors rendered a county officer within the meaning of Rev. St. 1874, p. 464, giving the county court jurisdiction of contests as regards county officers; jurisdiction rests in the circuit court under the mandatory act of 1895, § 97—King v. Jordan, 198 Ill. 457. In Massachusetts, the supreme judicial court may correct errors of law in the count by the registers, if such errors appear on the face of the papers. Rev. Laws, c. 11, § 267 does not remove such power—Flanders v. Roberts, 182 Mass. 524.

Where there is a tie vote a justice of the supreme court on a re-count in certiorari cannot make an order revoking the certificate of the canvassing board, since no person has received a majority on which alone the power rests to revoke the certificate (Pub. Laws 1898, p. 311, § 160)—Kehoe v. Stagmeier (N. J. Law) 56 Atl. 252.

6. Paulk v. Lee, 117 Ga. 6. Petition asserting that the county canvassing board made grave errors and that owing to one etc., it was easy to make mistakes to the injury of plaintiff, too general (Election law of October 24, 1900)—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 678, 69 S. W. 800. Specifications alleging that certain legal ballots were cast for contestant which were not counted, and that there were certain ballots counted for contestee that were so marked, mutilated or defective as to render them void, are not sufficient without a charge that the illegal ballots counted for contestee, or the legal ballots not counted for contestant were protested, and it is also not charged that any of such ballots were preserved and returned to the clerk of the circuit court—Hall v. Campbell (Ind.) 68 N. E. 892.

7. Motion to strike should be limited to the new ground of contest—Southerland v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 786.

datory, unless good cause is shown.[8] Rules as to pleadings in general are not controlling.[9] An answer which sets up counter grounds of a contest need not be styled a counterclaim.[10] It may be set up in an amended answer that ballots had been altered and that there had been an opportunity for such alteration, such matter not being regarded as ground of a counter contest.[11] Judgment cannot be rendered for the contestee on the striking of the contestant's reply to counter grounds, where though the answer is taken as true, the contestant might recover on proof of his petition.[12] The fact that an assignment of grounds of contest of an election is dismissed on motion for insufficiency of statement of facts is harmless, though the proper way of contesting the sufficiency of such specifications is by demurrer.[13] Only the issues made up within the time limited by the statute may be passed on together with proof filed within such time.[14]

Dismissal.—An election contest may be dismissed by the contestant at any time before issue is joined, and until such dismissal is set aside, another party cannot intervene and be substituted as a contestant; nor can the dismissal be set aside without notice to contestant.[15]

Preservation and production of ballots.—The United States district court may require the ballots cast for a congressman to be preserved, where they would be destroyed under a state law before they could be used as evidence on an election contest, and a showing that they are desired as evidence is sufficient to support an order, though the issues as to the contest are not made up so as to authorize the taking of testimony.[16]

Secrecy of the ballot may forbid its production in court to be made a matter of record.[17]

Evidence.—The rules of evidence applicable to contests involving property rights are applicable to election contests.[18] Where ballots have been in the custody of one of the parties in ballot boxes which were susceptible of entry, they are not admissible until it is shown that they have not been tampered with and are the ones cast.[19] Decisions as to sufficiency are noticed in the foot notes.[20]

8. Other matters demanding counsel's special attention are not a sufficient excuse—Preston v. Price, 24 Ky. L. R. 1090, 70 S. W. 623. The day on which summons is served is included in the twenty days allowed for answer by the contestee under Election Law, Extra Session, 1900, § 12—Combs v. Eversole, 24 Ky. L. R. 1063, 70 S. W. 638.

9. Notice of filing answer is needless—Preston v. Price, 24 Ky. L. R. 1090, 70 S. W. 623.

10. Preston v. Price, 24 Ky. L. R. 1090, 70 S. W. 623.

11. Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257.

12. Contestant alleged an irregularity affecting 200 votes for the contestee. The contestee set up counter grounds as to 40 or 50 of the contestant's votes—Preston v. Price, 24 Ky. L. R. 1090, 70 S. W. 623.

13. Hall v. Campbell (Ind.) 68 N. E. 892.

14. Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 678, 69 S. W. 800.

15. The court moots the question of whether such a dismissal can be set aside—Moore v. Waddington (Neb.) 96 N. W. 279.

16. Rev. St. §§ 109, 123—In re Howell, 119 Fed. 465.

17. Order to custodian to produce ballots held void—Donnell v. Lee (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 997.

18. Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75. Idiot may testify how he voted—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257. Ballots need not be produced and proved within the time provided by statute for the taking of proof in the case—Id. School census not admissible to show minority of voters—Id.

19. Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257.

On a recount, it will be presumed that a torn ballot was damaged after consideration by the officer, it having been counted. Ballot marked under the Republican device which is torn on the side should be counted for the Republican candidates—Bates v. Crumbaugh, 24 Ky. L. R. 1205, 71 S. W. 75.

20. To warrant declaring an election void on the ground that neither party could be adjudged fairly elected—Stewart v. Rose, 24 Ky. L. R. 1759, 72 S. W. 271. Evidence of previous party affiliation is not sufficient to show the way in which an insane person voted so as to authorize the deduction of his vote from the candidate of that party, and if there is evidence that he has made conflicting statements as to the way in which he voted, his ballots should not be deducted—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257. Facts held to justify the throwing out of the vote of a precinct on the ground of the misconduct of the officers in the manner in which the

Recount of ballots.—Where the ballots have been tampered with, a recount will not be ordered.[21] If the election officers are required to furnish with disputed ballots a statement as to whether they have or have not been counted, and if counted, what part, and for whom, such statement is essential to the consideration of such ballots on a contest.[22] In Kentucky, commissioners for a recount of the ballots must allow the presence of the interested parties and their representatives.[23]

Decision and review thereof.[24]—The judgment concludes only the facts involved.[25] Where a justice of the supreme court has not exceeded his jurisdiction, his order made in a recount cannot be reviewed on certiorari.[26] Objections not raised below cannot be considered on appeal.[27]

The appellate court will adopt findings of fact when there is any substantial evidence in support.[28] Evidence to influence or control discretion or findings of the lower court must be on the record,[29] and where a finding of fact is silent as to the legality of ballots, the party having the burden will be deemed to have failed in respect to the facts.[30]

Security.—A bond conditioned for the payment of costs and damages may be made a condition precedent to the right of appeal, in which case a supersedeas bond in the court of appeals is not sufficient.[31]

§ 12. Offenses against election laws.[32]—The congress of the United States has no power to punish bribery or intimidation at elections other than those in which the nation is directly interested, or in which some mandate of the national constitution is disobeyed.[33] A statute against "repeating" by voters in certain cities is voting was allowed to be carried on and in the count—Combs v. Eversole, 24 Ky. L. R. 1063, 70 S. W. 638.

21. Application to set aside the canvass by the town board of election on questions submitted under the liquor tax law in which it appeared that the town clerk's office had been entered and the ballot box opened before the application for a setting aside of the returns—In re Bertrend, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 536.

22. Acts Gen. Assembly 1900, Extra Sess. p. 18, § 10. It is not sufficient to state on the back of each ballot "not counted, questioned, W. H. Hack"—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257.

23. Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852; Id., 75 S. W. 257.

24. See, also, Appeal and Review; Certiorari.

25. A judgment establishing the invalidity of an election attempted to be made at a general election does not conclude the same parties as to the power to make election at a subsequent general election, though there have been no changes in the law relating to such elections—State v. Moores (Neb.) 96 N. W. 1011.

26. Re-count under Election Law, Pub. L. 1898, p. 310, 311, §§ 159, 160—Kehoe v. Stagmeier (N. J. Law) 56 Atl. 252.

27. That a name was unauthorized because also printed on a ballot, that a cross was marked after the words "no nomination" —People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11, 70 Pac. 918.

28. Donnell v. Lee (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 997. A jury finding that the ballots counted by the board of canvassers were the same as those voted will not be reviewed—Attorney-General v. Campbell (Mich.) 92 N. W. 787.

29. Refusal to set aside dismissal sustained on silent record—Moore v. Waddington (Neb.) 96 N. W. 279.

Attaching the original ballots to the findings and calling them exhibits is not a sufficient preservation of the evidence to allow the findings of the trial court as to the legality of the ballots to be reviewed—Bolton v. Clark (Ind.) 68 N. E. 283. The ballots are not a part of the record where it does not appear that they were ever filed, were in proof or received from the custody of the proper officer—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 678, 69 S. W. 800.

In some states they cannot become a part of the record—Donnell v. Lee (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 997.

30. Bolton v. Clark (Ind.) 68 N. E. 283.

31. Acts Extra Session 1900, p. 40, § 12—Patterson v. Davis, 24 Ky. L. R. 842, 70 S. W. 47. The bond need not be signed by appellants. Acts Extra Session, 1900, p. 40, c. 5, § 12 provides that either party may appeal by giving bond to the clerk of the circuit court with good surety conditioned for the payment of all costs and damages—Keller v. Ferguson, 24 Ky. L. R. 2012, 73 S. W. 785.

32. In Massachusetts, since selling of a vote is not made a crime by statute, though punishments are provided for the giving of bribes, the common law making such selling of a vote a crime, will be regarded to be superseded, and a charge that plaintiff sold his vote is not slanderous—Doyle v. Kirby (Mass.) 68 N. E. 843.

33. Revised statutes of the United States, section 5507, punishing bribery, cannot be by the courts changed to fit particular transactions which congress might have legislated for—James v. Bowman, 190 U. S. 127. A statute of the United States punishing persons who by means of bribery or threats pre-unconstitutional as punishing an offense punishable by a general law.[34] A statute punishing bribery and fraud at nominating elections applies only to bribery in nomination of candidates and not to the election of party officers.[35] A judge of election need not himself have made an alteration in the returns to render him liable for making a false return.[36] An offer of money to a member of an election board at a primary election to secure the casting and counting of the ward's vote for a certain person for county chairman is within a statute punishing any endeavor to influence a member of a county or executive committee of any party, a judge or clerk of any return board in the discharge, performance or nonperformance of any act, duty, or obligation pertaining to such office.[37] Going into a polling place to make inquiries or to remonstrate is not "remaining" within a prohibited distance of the polls.[38]

Special election courts.—Where the judge sits on election day for the purpose of hearing questions arising from breach of the peace and illegal acts of election officers, he sits as a committing magistrate, and not only courts of record but each judge has the power to issue warrants for election fraud, if the constitution provides that election officers shall be privileged from arrest, save on warrant of the court of record or judge thereof.[39]

The indictment need not negative the exceptions to the statute.[40] Different counts charging various acts all committed to secure the election of defendant to a particular office may be joined.[41] An indictment of an election judge under the Pennsylvania law for making false returns of a primary election need not aver that defendant was sworn as a judge.[42]

Questions for jury.—On a prosecution for false personation of an elector, the jury should not be left to determine whether the person personated was in law an elector.[43]

ELECTION OF REMEDIES AND RIGHTS.

§ 1. Election of remedies.—Any one of several proper remedies may be chosen which the circumstances will support.[44] The right of a seller of personalty to elect vent the exercise of the right to suffrage guaranteed by the 15th amendment to the constitution, cannot be sustained on the ground that it is an exercise of the power granted to congress by the 15th amendment to prevent action by the state through some one or more of its official representatives, and an indictment which charges no discrimination on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, is also destitute of support by the 15th amendment—Id.

34. Rev. St. 1899, § 7261 as to repeating in different "precincts" relates to the same offense as § 2114 against repeating in different "places"—State v. Anslinger, 171 Mo. 600.

35. Act June 8, 1881, Pub. Laws, 70, will not sustain an indictment alleging that defendant offered bribes to secure votes for himself for the office of county chairman at a primary election—Commonwealth v. Gouger, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 217.

36. Votes at a primary election properly cast and counted but the returns altered after certification by the election officers—Commonwealth v. Hafer, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 107.

37. Act June 8, 1881, § 6—Commonwealth v. Gouger, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 217.

38. Ryan v. Quinn, 24 Ky. L. R. 1513, 71 S. W. 872.

39. Const. art. 8, § 14—In re Election Court, 204 Pa. 92.

40. Under Pen. Code, § 342, an indictment for carrying a pistol at an election precinct need not allege that defendant was not "a sheriff, deputy sheriff or other arresting officer acting in the discharge of his duty"—Kitchens v. State, 116 Ga. 847.

41. Commonwealth v. Gouger, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 217.

42. Act June 29, 1881, P. L. 128—Commonwealth v. Hafer, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 107.

43. A prima facie case is made out under such statute (Rev. Sts. 1899, § 7261) by the showing of an attempt to vote in the name of an adult foreign born citizen, the register of votes showing that such person had taken out naturalization papers—State v. Hardelein, 169 Mo. 579.

44. Conversion may be waived and suit brought on an implied promise to pay. Market value at time of conversion may be recovered—Hirsch v. Leatherbee Lumber Co. (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 645. When a portion of the soil is removed from land the owner may recover its value as personalty instead of for the trespass on the realty—Hunt v. Boston (Mass.) 67 N. E. 244. In an action by a tenant for nuisance he may elect to have his damages measured by the depreciation in the rental value of the premises as a whole between various remedies on insolvency of the buyer is not controlled by any consideration of the buyer's interests.[45] On breach of an entire contract of employment for a stated time, the employe may rescind and sue on a quantum meruit or bring an action for damages.[46] Action may be brought against an undisclosed principal on discovery, or against the agent.[47]

To require election remedies must be inconsistent,[48] and co-existent.[49]

Making election and effect thereof.—A participation in a proceeding shows an election against an inconsistent remedy.[50] Facts essential to an intelligent choice of procedure must be known.[51] Mistake as to remedy does not prevent a subsequent or by the loss in the usable value of the premises—Hoffman v. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co., 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 371.

On breach of agreement by landlord to repair action may be contract or tort—Thompson v. Clemens, 96 Md. 196, 60 L. R. A. 580.

Sale of realty. On failure of title a purchaser of realty may abandon and sue for the purchase money, recover damages or proceed in equity for a rescission of the contract—Newberry v. Ruffin (Va.) 45 S. E. 733. Where a plea of limitations is sustained to an action by the vendor for the purchase price he may elect to sue for the land—Sanders v. Rawlings (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 41. On conveyance to a third party by a vendor the vendee may seek a performance from the third party or resort to the vendor for damages and a refusal by the vendee to carry out the contract with the third person amounts to an election to pursue the vendor —Meyers v. Markham (Minn.) 96 N. W. 787.

45. Pratt v. Freeman & Sons Mfg. Co., 115 Wis. 648.

46. Action to recover a month's salary under an employment at $1,000 per year amounts to an election preventing recovery for other damages—Ornstein v. Yahe & L. Drug Co. (Wis.) 96 N. W. 826. A contract for work and labor, the performance of which is prevented by the employer, may be abandoned by the employee and recovery had on a quantum meruit—Jenson v. Lee (Kan.) 73 Pac. 72. Where a promise and agreement to pay for plaintiff's services are alleged together with a promise to make compensation therefor by will or otherwise coupled with an allegation that defendant's decedent did make provision for payment by a deposit, such pleading does not show an election to proceed as if on a performance made by such act of deposit—Cooper v. Brooklyn Trust Co., 84 N. Y. Supp. 88.

47. Ware v. Long, 24 Ky. L. R. 696, 69 S. W. 797.

48. Held inconsistent. Attacking transfer and suing for consideration thereof and sharing therein as creditor of grantor. A creditor by election to sue for the consideration paid for a fraudulent transfer by a bankrupt and by acceptance of a dividend from the proceeds of the sale is estopped from seeking the land—McWilliams v. Thomas (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 596. Action for possession or value and action for conversion (against executor)—Moran v. Morrill, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 440. Attachment for price and action for tort in fraudulent purchase—Ermeling v. Gibson Canning Co., 105 Ill. App. 196. Retaking of goods prevents action against purchaser for fraud—Bacon v. Moody, 117 Ga. 207. Defense of statute of frauds as against a contract which at the trial defendant admitted to be valid and sought to be relieved from certain stipulations therein contained—Graham v. Heinrich (Okl.) 74 Pac. 328. Action at law for breach carried to judgment prevents subsequent bill for specific performance—Slaughter v. La Compagnie Francaise Des Cables Telegraphiques (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 588.

Election not required. Appeal from probate of a will and bill to charge trust on legatees and devisees—Spencer v. Spencer (R. I.) 55 Atl. 637. Action against a sheriff for false imprisonment and action for a penalty provided by statute on failure of the sheriff to keep an account of the labor done by a prisoner and pay to him any amount due on discharge (Pub. St. c. 282, § 20; Laws 1899, c. 31, §§ 1, 2)—Noyes v. Edgerly, 71 N. H. 500. Action at law on an insurance policy and suit for reformation of the policy—Lansing v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 756. Action by payee against executor of a co-payee to recover half the proceeds and action against one to whom the co-payee indorsed it without authority—Allen v. Corn Exch. Bank, 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 335. Suit on a replevin bond given in sequestration and right to pursue the property or its value in the hands of a purchaser—Crawford v. Southern Rock Island Plow Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 280. Statutory provision (2 Ball. Ann. Codes & Sts. § 4487) for the cancellation of lis pendens is not exclusive of an action to cancel such lis pendens as a cloud on title as provided by 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & Sts. § 5521—King v. Branscheid (Wash.) 73 Pac. 668. Election is not required when suit is brought on a contract ordering goods and also on notes for the purchase price—Strickland v. Parlin (Ga.) 44 S. E. 997.

Action to set aside an assignment for creditors for fraud from which a creditor obtains no benefit is not a bar to a taking by the creditor under the assignment—In re Garver (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 667.

49. Action for money rent is not an election barring forcible entry and detainer, where at the time it was brought, the remedy of forcible detainer did not exist—Mark v. Schumann Piano Co., 105 Ill. App. 490.

50. The holder of an attachment lien who files a claim with a subsequently appointed receiver will be deemed to have elected to rely on the rights to be gained under the receivership—Mercantile Realty Co. v. Stetson (Iowa) 94 N. W. 859.

51. Pekin Plow Co. v. Wilson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 176; Noyes v. Edgerly, 71 N. H. 500.

Suit to set aside a conveyance in consideration of a sale induced by false statements of attaching creditors of the seller dismissed on discovery that creditors had no lien does adoption of a proper remedy,[52] and the rule that having elected the party cannot pursue the other remedy does not cause a subsequent unsuccessful attempt to pursue such remedy to bar the right to pursue the remedy first elected.[53] Action dismissed without prejudice is not an election unless rights are affected.[54] Where two persons become severally liable, an action against one is not of necessity an election to pursue such person alone.[55]

The rules pertaining to election between counts are designed to secure singleness of issues and are relegated to appropriate titles.[56]

§ 2. Election between rights and estates.—The doctrine of election between rights is confined to narrow limits and cannot rest on a mere unfounded claim under a will.[57]

An acceptance of the will will not, in absence of statute, bar other rights not inconsistent.[58] There is no such inconsistency between the right of dower and the distributive share in personalty as to make the taking of one an exclusion of the other.[59] Heirs and devisees cannot assert a title hostile to their right of inheritance or to the will.[60] If the will directs payment of taxes and gives all the real estate to the wife, she cannot, if she claim under the will, assert a homestead exemption in the realty as against the husband's creditors, but the testator's children who take a remainder may claim a homestead therein during their unmarried minority.[61] Rights in hostility to a testamentary provision must be seasonably claimed,[62] and surviving spouses must renounce within such time as may be imposed by statute.[63] not prevent a recovery of the goods sold against the attaching creditor—Garrett v. Farwell Co., 199 Ill. 436.

52. Hill v. Combs, 92 Mo. App. 242.

53. Acceptance of benefits from a railroad relief fund constitutes an election barring a right of action against the company for damages but a mistake in instituting such action does not affect the right to benefit from the relief fund which had become fixed—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bigley (Neb.) 95 N. W. 344.

54. Another action not barred by an attachment dismissed without prejudice—First Nat. Bank v. Barse Live Stock Commission Co., 198 Ill. 232. See, also, Garrett v. Farwell Co., 199 Ill. 436.

55. Action against a grantee of mortgaged premises who assumed the mortgage to recover a personal judgment on the debt, not an election barring action against a prior grantee who also assumed the mortgage—Bossingham v. Syck, 118 Iowa, 192.

56. In civil cases, Pleading. In prosecutions for crime, Indictment, etc.

57. Does not apply to prevent a daughter from claiming under a conveyance from her mother though the daughter has claimed under her father's will where the mother discovering that she holds certain land by deed and not by the will conveys to the daughter —Parkey v. Ramsey (Tenn.) 76 S. W. 812.

58. Code 1873, § 2452—Kiefer v. Gillett (Iowa) 94 N. W. 270. A provision for joint occupancy of the realty by the wife and daughter, etc., held not inconsistent with dower—Id. In New York a widow cannot have dower in addition to a testamentary provision for payment to her of one-third of the income of the realty during the minority of the child, and on the termination of the trust for the child a conveyance of one-third of the realty itself—In re Gorden, 172 N. Y. 25, 11 Ann. Cas. 397. Where no provision is made for the widow by will except the creation of an annuity not stated to be in lieu of dower, the widow is not required to elect—Horstmann v. Flege, 172 N. Y. 381, 12 Ann. Cas. 163. Where there is nothing in the terms of the will to indicate an intention on the part of the testator to dispose of the widow's share of the community property, she is not put to an election—In re Wickersham's Estate, 138 Cal. 355, 70 Pac. 1076.

59. Though she take the value of dower in money (Rev. St. 1892, §§ 4176, 5964)—Hutchings v. Davis (Ohio) 67 N. E. 251. Rights under Civ. Code, §§ 228, 236, regarded as separate from rights under section 1852 —Dahlman v. Dahlman (Mont.) 72 Pac. 748.

60. Under statutes providing that a widow holding land through marriage shall not on re-marriage alienate such land so as to divert it from the children by the marriage through which the property came to her, the children by acceptance on their mother's death of the proceeds of property received by her in exchange for property which she conveyed to the second husband become barred from pursuing the property received through the first marriage—Pond v. Wood (Ind. App.) 69 N. E. 172. Election is not required in an action by a devisee to enforce specific performance of a contract to devise certain land as to whether complainant will take under the will or under the contract—Price v. Price (N. C.) 45 S. E. 855.

61. Kiesewetter v. Kress, 24 Ky. L. R. 1239, 70 S. W. 1065.

62. Election to take land in lieu of legacies must be made before the land is sold by the executor under a power—Hanbest v. Grayson (Pa.) 55 Atl. 786.

63. To be entitled to the year's support under Code 1883, § 2116, the widow must renounce the will and bring suit within six months from its probate—Perkins v. Brinkley (N. C.) 45 S. E. 465. On affirmance of a

Ignorance is not an excuse for delay.[64] A wife cannot be held to an election made at the time her husband executes his will,[65] though election may be by antenuptial agreement.[66]

The election must be unequivocal,[67] and understandingly,[68] and fairly and freely made.[69] A written declaration or admission of the mere capacity of heirship made by the descendants of a dead man does not of itself constitute an acceptance of his succession, nor does a written admission of the fact that the widow, in the absence of action by the creditors of the succession, is entitled to be recognized as usufructuary of that portion of the estate devolving on the legal heirs, and acceptance of the succession cannot be inferred against persons styling themselves heirs who have claimed nothing as such, taken no affirmative action in assertion of their rights, or contracted as such.[70] Silence and inaction by an heir after reaching majority may show an election to accept a family settlement made in his minority so as to prevent his heirs from claiming otherwise.[71] An election to take land in place of the proceeds of an equitable conversion must be by unequivocal acts joined in by all persons interested in the fund which would be derived from conversion.[72]

A court, in exercising an election for an incompetent, should take into account not only the value of the property but the circumstances surrounding the life and conditions of the parties, the contents of the will, and the probabilities as to what he would do if he were able to elect for himself.[73]

Where the widow elects to take a child's share rather than dower or under the will, she is bound to contribute ratably from her share to the payment of the debts decree sustaining a will from which the widow has appealed, she must file her election within six months from the rendition of the original decree, unless she has obtained permission of the probate court to an extension of the time. Pub. St. c. 127, § 18—Bunker v. Murray, 182 Mass. 335.

64. Unless time was seasonably extended. Election must be within one year under Kentucky St. 1899, § 1404—Logsdon v. Haney, 25 Ky. L. R. 245, 74 S. W. 1073.

65. An acceptance by the wife of the provisions of her husband's will at the time of its execution in lieu of dower and other interest in his estate does not prevent her, after the husband's death electing to take contrary to the will under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 2948, 2949—Spratt v. Lawson (Mo.) 75 S. W. 642.

66. Antenuptial relinquishment of all interest in the husband's property (Code 1883, § 2116)—Perkins v. Brinkley (N. C.) 45 S. E. 465. Acceptance of a bequest of all the husband's personal property in addition to the property given by an antenuptial agreement is an election preventing the widow from claiming her award under Starr & C. Ann. St. p. 313, c. 3, par. 76, the antenuptial agreement providing for a cash payment in lieu of dower, widow's award and homestead right—Friederich v. Wombacher (Ill.) 68 N. E. 459.

67. Retention of property by the wife which had been temporarily assigned to the husband for occupancy as a homestead during legal proceeding does amount to an acceptance of it as a homestead barring her right to dower—Hogg v. Potter (Ky.) 76 S. W. 35. Election not shown by the fact of the widow's retention of the residence given her in lieu of dower by antenuptial contract during assignment of dower—Moran v. Stewart, 173 Mo. 207. Dower is not extinguished by merger on an acceptance from the heirs of a quitclaim deed of the premises in which dower is claimed, where a different intention may be reasonably deduced from the circumstances—Wettlaufer v. Ames (Mich.) 94 N. W. 950. The fact that the widow qualifies as executrix of her husband's will and unites with a co-executor in foreclosing mortgages belonging to the estate and buying in the property for the use of the estate, does not estop her from afterward dissenting from the will and electing to take a child's part in lieu of the provisions of the will and of dower (Rev. St. 1892, §§ 1830, 1831, 1833)—Benedict v. Wilmarth (Fla.) 35 So. 84.

68. A writing which could be construed to be an agreement to take less than the widow's distributive share will not be regarded as an election for such purpose, where it is not executed understandingly and a waiver of the widow's right to administer which contains a statement that the widow wishes to receive a child's part in the division of the estate, does not amount to a waiver of her distributive share—Evans' Adm'r v. Evans, 24 Ky. L. R. 2421, 74 S. W. 224.

69. In re Wickersham's Estate, 138 Cal. 355, 70 Pac. 1076.

70. Griffin v. Burris, 109 La. 216.

71. An heir having a right to claim property under her mother or her grandfather will be deemed to have elected to abide by a distribution of her grandfather's estate setting off certain property to her subject to a life estate to her father, by living on such property with her father, acquiescing in his management and seeking no account of the rents and profits—Appeal of Ward, 75 Conn. 598.

72. In re Rauch's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 60.

73. In re Robinson's Estate, 88 Minn. 404.

and costs of administering the estate up to and including the point of actual distribution, but her share is superior to legacies.[74]

ELECTRICITY.[75]

Electric[76] franchises[77] cannot be granted by minor divisions of the state unless so empowered.[78] The use of streets for transmission of electric power on a system of poles and wires has been held an added servitude;[79] the operation of electric railroads not.[80] Franchises are limited by their terms.[81] The franchise is a contract whose obligation may not be impaired,[82] and service rates are protected from unreasonable regulation.[83] Injunction is the proper remedy for infringement.[84]

Contracts have been construed in cases cited.[85]

A degree of care commensurate with the highly dangerous character of electricity is due from one who uses it to prevent injuries to others.[86] Necessary care must be taken at places where others have a right to go,[87] or are likely to go.[88] In-

74. Rev. St. 1892, §§ 1830, 1831, 1833—Benedict v. Wilmarth (Fla.) 35 So. 84.

75. The law pertaining specifically to telegraphs and telephones is treated in a separate title, Telegraphs and Telephones.

76. Gas and other illuminating light held not to include electricity—People's Elec. Light & Power Co. v. Capital Gas & Elec. Light Co. (Ky.) 75 S. W. 280. An electric railway company chartered as a carrier may not transfer rights to others to vend electricity—Carthage v. Carthage Light Co., 97 Mo. App. 20.

77. See article Franchises.

78. Power to grant gas franchise not enough—Carthage v. Carthage Light Co., 97 Mo. App. 20. Use of streets may be given where ordinary use will not be obstructed —McWethy v. Aurora Elec. Light & Power Co., 202 Ill. 218. Right not availed of for 12 years is lost—Id. A requirement that permission of certain officials be first obtained may be waived by the city—Id. A conveyance of a municipal gas plant with an exclusive franchise imposing no obligation on the grantee to furnish any other light than gas did not give the grantee an exclusive right to furnish electric lights—People's Elec. Light & Power Co. v. Capital Gas & Elec. Light Co. (Ky.) 75 S. W. 280.

79. Goddard v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 526; Union Elec. Tel. Co. v. Applequist, 104 Ill. App. 517; Goddard v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 533; Bronson v. Albion Tel. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 201, 60 L. R. A. 426. See Eminent Domain, post, p. 1011.

80. Parrish v. Hamilton, etc., Traction Co., 23 Ohio Circ. R. 527; Lonaconing Midland & F. R. Co. v. Consolidation Coal Co., 95 Md. 630.

81. Electric "railway" does not include "lighting"—Carthage v. Carthage Light Co., 97 Mo. App. 20. A contract to furnish electric lights held not to give the grantee an exclusive right to furnish electric lights—People's Elec. Light & Power Co. v. Capital Gas & Elec. Light Co. (Ky.) 75 S. W. 280. May lease properties to like companies—Crowe v. Nanticoke Light Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 1038. But cannot transfer portion of indivisible franchise—Carthage v. Carthage Light Co., 97 Mo. App. 20.

82. Southwest Mo. Light Co. v. Joplin, 113 Fed. 817; Hot Springs Elec. Light Co. v. Hot Springs, 70 Ark. 300.

83. See Constitutional Law, ante, p. 593.

84. People's Elec. Light & Power Co. v. Capital Gas & Elec. Light Co. (Ky.) 75 S. W. 280.

85. To take certain amount of power construed—Laclede Power Co. v. Stillwell, 97 Mo. App. 258. To permit stringing of wires on structure construed—Wagner v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 174 N. Y. 520. The contract contemplates reasonable access to make repairs—Id. See, also, Contracts generally.

86. Economy Light & Power Co. v. Hiller, 203 Ill. 518; Wagner v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 174 N. Y. 520; Katafiasz v. Toledo Consol. Elec. Co., 24 Ohio Circ. R. 127. That wires are reasonably safe is not sufficient—Geismann v. Missouri Edison Elec. Co., 173 Mo. 654. Must know conditions of wires and to use utmost care to protect same by proper insulation—Lexington R. Co. v. Fain's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1443, 71 S. W. 628; Geismann v. Missouri Edison Elec. Co., 173 Mo. 654; Wagner v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 174 N. Y. 520. Such care as a reasonably prudent man would exercise under the circumstances considering, etc.—Neal v. Wilmington, etc., Elec. R. Co., 3 Pen. (Del.) 467; Kennealy v. Westchester Elec. R. Co., 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 293. Must use high degree of care to prevent injury to persons using a bridge, taking into consideration all the uses to which the bridge is put—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548. Only ordinary care in the maintenance of wires and fixtures and appliances—Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bauman, 104 Ill. App. 600.

87. Potts v. Shreveport Belt R. Co. (La.) 34 So. 103. Under contract to carry wires on a structure a lineman has a right to go thereon to make repairs—Wagner v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 69 App. Div. (N. Y.) 349. Acceptance of pass with assumption of risk held not to make defense—Id.

88. Wires over a public bridge; injured person was not rightfully on the bridge—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548. Must exercise all reasonable precaution against passing a dangerous current of electricity through a guy wire attached to a pole on a vacant lot in densely peopled part of the city—New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Johnson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 778. Wires strung across a viaduct without the railing but at a place where small boys were in the habit of climbing and coming spections must be thorough.[89] External or atmospheric currents should be guarded against.[90] After discovery of the dangerous condition of the wire, it is the duty of the company to act promptly in making repairs.[91] A company operating an electric plant is required to use the appliances with the same degree of care as if they were actually owned by the company.[92]

The defendant's negligence must be the proximate cause of injuries resulting from electricity.[93] The injured person must be free from contributory negligence.[94]

Actions.—Where different companies contribute to the injury, the liability is joint.[95] The actual owners of the plant and not an assignor are liable for injuries though the franchise forbade its assignment.[96]

Pleading.—Holdings as to sufficiency of pleadings,[97] and variance between pleading and proof, will be found in the footnote.[98]

Evidence.—The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is not of universal application to injuries from electricity.[99] The fact of insulation recognizes the inherent danger of a wire.[1] It is the fact of injury by electricity and not the manner that is important.[2] Proof need not be made by an eye witness.[3] The condition of appliclose to wires—Consolidated Elec. Light & Power Co. v. Healy, 65 Kan. 798, 70 Pac. 884.

89. Potts v. Shreveport Belt R. Co. (La.) 34 So. 103; Wagner v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 174 N. Y. 520.

90. Telephone wires left standing after disconnecting instrument—Southern Bell Tel. Co. v. McTyer (Ala.) 34 So. 1020. Liability for injuries to a customer, not avoided by reason of the consent of the store-keeper that the wires might be left twisted together inside the building—Id.

91. Evidence of gross negligence in delaying to obviate danger after notice that appliances were out of order—Lutolf v. United Elec. Light Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 1025. Case is for the jury where the break in wire of police alarm system was known to the police within an hour after it occurred and it was also known that the wire was in close proximity to other wires carrying dangerous currents (It fell across trolley feed wire)—Herron v. Pittsburg, 204 Pa. 509. Telephone company whose wires were burned out in the night time by contact with light wires and dangled in a street not negligent in law in failing to discover conditions by 8:30 the next morning—Economy Light & Power Co. v. Hiller, 203 Ill. 518.

92. Smith v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 531.

93. Causes held proximate. Bringing telephone wire in contact with electric wire.—death of lineman—Cumberland Tel. Co. v. Ware's Adm'x (Ky.) 74 S. W. 289. Allowing a pulley wire of arc lamp to remain without insulation and come in contact with feed wires.—injuries to a boy passing along the sidewalk and taking hold of the wire—Lexington R. Co. v. Fain's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1443, 71 S. W. 628.

94. Katafiasz v. Toledo Consol. Elec. Co., 24 Ohio Circ. R. 127. That painter on the balcony of a house came in contact with live wire few inches from the corner of the balcony, is not conclusive evidence—Consolidated Gas Co. v. Brooks (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 296. Purposely taking hold of wire and causing contact with charged wire, is negligence—Lexington R. Co. v. Fain's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1443, 71 S. W. 628.

95. Electric wire allowed to sag and charge telephone wires—Economy Light & Power Co. v. Hiller, 203 Ill. 518. A city, its contractor and the telephone company are jointly liable where the contractor strung defectively insulated wires and telephone company placed wires in contact—Cumberland Tel. Co. v. Ware's Adm'x (Ky.) 74 S. W. 289.

96. Gordon v. Ashley, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 525.

97. Pleading sufficient to allege liability for death due to delay in restoring worn out insulation—Geismann v. Missouri Edison Elec. Co., 173 Mo. 654. To charge bad wiring in a jail whereby fire resulted and caused death of inmate—Miller v. Ouray Elec. Light & Power Co. (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 447. Methods of inspection sufficiently challenged by allegation that defendant negligently and carelessly suffered and permitted its wires to be out of repair—Lutolf v. United Elec. Light Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 1025.

An admission that on the day named defendant was operating the street railroad propelled and worked by electric power, is an admission that defendant was using appliances and mechanical devices necessary for its operation—Smith v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 531.

98. No variance between allegation that wire was charged and for that reason was dangerous, and evidence showing that it might be charged and was so charged and was dangerous at the time of the injury—Melican v. Missouri-Edison Elec. Co., 90 Mo. App. 595.

99. It applies to an injury from a live trolley wire fallen in the street (Smith v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 82 App. Div. [N. Y.] 531) though plaintiff introduced evidence showing that the fall was caused by the trolley slipping off and striking some of the supporting wires (Clancy v. New York, etc., R. Co., 82 App. Div. [N. Y.] 563); also in case of death from contact with electric wires at a place where deceased had a right to be and might be expected to be. Geismann v. Missouri-Edison Elec. Co., 173 Mo. 654. No presumption of negligence by the happening of the injury—Crowe v. Nanticoke Light Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 1038.

1. Wagner v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 174 N. Y. 520.

2. Smith v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 82

ances,[4] and the cost of making changes to render them more safe may be shown.[5] Ordinances and rules as to inspection are admissible,[6] likewise the clothing worn by plaintiff at the time of an injury caused by a burn from a live wire.[7] The condition of the wire causing the injury shortly after the accident may be shown.[8] Holdings as to sufficiency of evidence are grouped in the footnote.[9]

Questions for the jury and instructions.—Questions of negligence are for the jury.[10] See footnote as to pertinency and sufficiency of instructions.[11]

EMBEZZLEMENT.[12]

Elements.—To constitute embezzlement, the property embezzled must be that

App. Div. (N. Y.) 531. Liable whether injury was by physical contact with a trolley wire or by ground currents caused by the wires—Clancy v. New York, etc., R. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 563. Plaintiff need not prove that at the exact point of contact the insulation was off the wire—Geismann v. Missouri-Edison Elec. Co., 173 Mo. 654.

3. Consolidated Gas Co. v. Brooks (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 296.

4. In an action for death resulting from contact with wires hung on a highway bridge, evidence tending to show that the pulley on which the wires were hung, was put in the proper place in being bolted to the bridge rather than out in the stream is admissible—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548.

5. In an action for death caused by contact with a wire hung along the truss bridge, evidence as to what the cost of elevating the wire above truss of the bridge would have been, was properly admitted—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548.

6. Herron v. Pittsburg, 204 Pa. 509.

7. Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Baumann, 203 Ill. 295.

8. Gloucester Elec. Co. v. Kankas (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 490.

9. Sufficient. To show injury received by voluntary contact with a guy wire, after notice—New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Johnson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 778. Whether wire was insulated and whether contact therewith caused decedent's death—Economy Light & Power Co. v. Sheridan, 200 Ill. 439. To show defective insulation of wire at time it was strung—Kennealy v. Westchester Elec. R. Co., 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 293. To show negligence respecting a wire strung across a highway bridge—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548. To show ordinary care by defendant—Wagner v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 174 N. Y. 520.

Insufficient. To show contributory negligence—Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548; Lutolf v. United Elec. Light Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 1025.

Evidence held to authorize the giving of binding instruction for defendant—Crowe v. Nanticoke Light Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 1038.

10. Failure to inspect—Lutolf v. United Elec. Light Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 1025. Contributory negligence—Lexington R. Co. v. Fain's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1443, 71 S. W. 628; Geismann v. Missouri-Edison Elec. Co., 173 Mo. 654; Fitzgerald v. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co. (Pa.) 56 Atl. 350.

11. An instruction that if electric wires had the appearance of being properly insulated it was inducement to risk contact with them though announcing an abstract proposition of law, and did not purport to cover the whole cause, was not prejudicial—Geismann v. Missouri-Edison Elec. Co., 173 Mo. 654. An instruction that it was incumbent on defendant to keep its wires reasonably safe, is properly given on a petition averring that death was caused by contact with one of defendant's electric wires, upon which the insulation had, through defendant's negligence, become worn off and the current exposed, and that the defect had existed a long time prior to the day of the accident, and which defendant knew or might have known—Id. An instruction that if decedent knew or should have known of the danger resulting from contact with an insulated wire, and the wire was seen or should have been seen by him, and he negligently came in contact therewith, the verdict should be for defendant, is properly modified by adding "and knew that defendant's wire was at some point not properly insulated"—Id. An instruction on the negligence of decedent in failing to wear a rubber coat, boots or gloves, was properly limited by qualification as to their practicability in decedent's situation as a sign hanger—Id. An instruction that question of negligence on the part of defendants and care on the part of plaintiff were for the jury is not objectionable where the instruction further explained that it was their duty and province to determine those questions of fact under the law and evidence in the case—Economy Light & Power Co. v. Hiller, 203 Ill. 518. An instruction in an action against a telephone and electric light company for injuries that if the injury was caused by the negligence of defendants or either of them then plaintiff could recover is not prejudicial though not limiting recovery to the defendant proved guilty; the court having instructed that the telephone company should not be found guilty unless its negligence caused the accident and also having given blank verdicts suitable to the different contingencies and there being no doubt as to the negligence of the electric light company—Id. An instruction that on all evidence of the case, deceased having been warned to keep away from a pole, but having persisted in examining it, his act amounted to contributory negligence whether he knew the precise nature of the danger or not, was properly refused where there was evidence that deceased passing along a sidewalk near the pole received the fatal shock without touching or attempting to touch the pole—Lutolf v. United Elec. Light Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 1025.

12. Though matters pertaining to the law of another,[13] and must have been in defendant's possession by virtue of an office or employment,[14] and there must have been an actual appropriation thereof,[15] with felonious intent.[16] One who with felonious intent urged the employer to intrust the money to the servant is guilty as a principal.[17]

Indictment[18] in the language of the statute is sufficient.[19] The money need not be described,[20] and an indictment charging embezzlement of "about" a certain sum is of embezzlement are here discussed even where the statute denominates the offense larceny, many matters of procedure of general application will be found in Larceny.

13. Proof of a qualified or special property in the alleged owner is sufficient—Meacham v. State (Fla.) 33 So. 983. Under the Alabama statute it is immaterial whether the property belonged to defendant's principal if it came into defendant's hands by virtue of his employment—Willis v. State, 134 Ala. 429. One entitled to a commission out of the funds is a joint owner and cannot be guilty of embezzlement until there has been an accounting—McElroy v. People, 202 Ill. 473. A claim of a lien not asserted in good faith is no defense—State v. Lewis, 31 Wash. 75, 71 Pac. 778.

14. One who is authorized to buy goods for another, and who thereupon sends back a memorandum "you have bought from me" such goods, is a seller and not an agent—State v. Brown, 171 Mo. 477. The secretary of a lodge cannot be convicted of embezzlement where it was not his duty but that of another secretary to receive the funds—Loving v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 277. One intrusted with property to trade for other property holds the same as agent—O'Morrow v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 209. One entrusted with funds to purchase a business in which he and the owner of the money are to be partners is not an agent—Manuel v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 973. An attorney entrusted with money to loan on security to be approved by him, is liable under the act relating to embezzlement by attorneys—Commonwealth v. Barton, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 447.

Public Funds. Money collected by the state department from foreign governments to indemnify citizens for injuries is public money of the United States within Rev. St. § 5488, relating to embezzlement by disbursing officers—Kieckhoefer v. United States, 19 App. D. C. 405. Assessments collected by a city to meet the cost of contemplated repairs are public funds—State v. Carter, 67 Ohio St. 422. Act creating new county government held not to interfere with powers of township officers—Commonwealth v. Carson, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 48. A warrant duly issued for an approved claim and placed in the custody of the auditor is a subject of embezzlement—State v. Raby, 31 Wash. 111, 71 Pac. 771. Funds collected by a city officer under an arrangement for immunity between the city and persons engaged in unlawful sale of liquor are subject of embezzlement—State v. Patterson (Kan.) 71 Pac. 860. One required by a rule of the treasury department to deposit money on a certain day is within Rev. St. § 5492, as to failure to deposit when required to do so by the "Secretary of the Treasury"—Dimmick v. United States (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 638. A clerk in charge of a branch money order office is in charge of funds which he is entitled to draw upon—United States v. Royer, 122 Fed. 844.

15. One having the property of a relative in his custody and appropriating it is liable though he gave her a note therefor, she not understanding the transaction—Jackson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 760. But one who openly appropriated money and acknowledged the debt, whereupon the employer suspended prosecution has been held free from criminal intent—McElroy v. People, 202 Ill. 473. A temporary conversion is sufficient—People v. Jackson, 138 Cal. 462, 71 Pac. 566.

16. State v. McDonald (N. C.) 45 S. E. 582; State v. Sienkiewiez (Del.) 55 Atl. 346. Advice of counsel after the conversion is no defense—State v. Patterson (Kan.) 71 Pac. 860; State v. Hunt (R. I.) 54 Atl. 937.

17. Thomas v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1045.

18. Duplicity and joinder. Indictment of public officer held not to charge statutory offense of failure to pay over to successor in addition to embezzlement—Commonwealth v. Carson, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 48. Indictment charging bailee with embezzling money and failing to account therefor not double—State v. Humphreys (Or.) 70 Pac. 824. Indictment alleging continuing embezzlements during a period of several months held not double—State v. Dix (Wash.) 74 Pac. 570. Joinder of counts for theft and for embezzlement held not prejudicial—Davis v. United States, 18 App. D. C. 468.

19. State v. Jones, 109 La. 125. Indictment charging in general terms of the statute failure to account, the property and employment being specifically alleged is sufficient—State v. Whitworth, 30 Wash. 47, 70 Pac. 254. Statute prohibits embezzlement of money which one has in his possession by virtue of his employment. Indictment in language of statute that money was in defendant's possession by virtue of his employment without other averment of ownership of money was held sufficient—Willis v. State, 134 Ala. 429. The requirement of an intent to defraud not being specified in the statute relating to public officers but being inferred from the words "embezzle or convert" an indictment using such words is sufficient without an averment of fraudulent intent—State v. Patterson (Kan.) 71 Pac. 860. An indictment in the language of the statute but failing to show the relation of defendant to the person defrauded is bad—Commonwealth v. Barney, 24 Ky. L. R. 2352, 74 S. W. 181. The indictment need not allege that the person defrauded was a "private person"—Spurlock v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 77 S. W. 447.

20. Dimmick v. United States (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 638; State v. Bartholomew (N. J. Sup.) 54 Atl. 231. An averment that the money was lawful money of the United States though unnecessary must be proved as laid—State v. Neilon (Or.) 73 Pac. 321.

sufficient,[21] and variance as to the amount is not fatal;[22] but one charging possession as agent of "a horse" and conversion of "said mule" is bad.[23] The name of the employer and nature of the relation must be alleged,[24] but not whether a bailee was paid for his services.[25]

Admissibility of evidence.—A statement from which defendant paid the shortage therein shown is admissible,[26] as are books kept by defendant,[27] and evidence of other offenses when part of a system.[28] Defendant's need of money is admissible to show motive.[29] Defendant's declarations are admissible against him.[30] Evidence that defendant drew the money from a bank is admissible as tending to show conversion.[31]

Sufficiency of evidence in particular cases is discussed in the footnote.[32]

Instructions[33] must cover every grade of the offense which the jury might find,[34] and must require fraudulent intent.[35]

EMBLEMENTS AND NATURAL PRODUCTS.[36]

Annual crops are sometimes regarded as chattels,[37] sometimes as part of the 21. Willis v. State, 134 Ala. 429.

22. State v. Lewis, 31 Wash. 75, 71 Pac. 778; State v. Hunt (R. I.) 54 Atl. 937. Conversion of any part of the property described is sufficient—State v. Sienkiewiez (Del.) 55 Atl. 346.

23. Duncan v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 543.

24. State v. Holton, 88 Minn. 171. Com. v. Barney, 24 Ky. L. R. 2352, 74 S. W. 181. The mere fact that the name of the owner indicated that it was a building and loan society is insufficient to show such fact. The prosecution was under Code, § 1918, relating to embezzlement by officers of such associations—State v. Ames (Iowa) 94 N. W. 231. While defendant's office or employment should be correctly stated, misdescription is not always fatal. Defendant was described as "treasurer" instead of "collector" and it appearing that the collector was ex officio treasurer it was held that the error was harmless, the statute forbidding reversal for errors not prejudicing defendant—State v. Bartholomew (N. J. Sup.) 54 Atl. 231.

25. State v. Humphreys (Or.) 70 Pac. 824.

26. Willis v. State, 134 Ala. 429. As are the reports of a sheriff of tax collections on prosecution for embezzling the same—State v. Nellon (Or.) 73 Pac. 321.

27. Books of public officer—State v. Patterson (Kan.) 71 Pac. 860. Falsification of a check book stub not traced to defendant cannot be shown—State v. Ames (Iowa) 94 N. W. 231. Manner in which an employe kept his books to conceal defalcation—State v. Pittam (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1042.

28. Willis v. State, 134 Ala. 429. Evidence as to the manner in which defendant obtained the money is not inadmissible because it shows fraud on his part—Jackson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 760.

29. Govatos v. State, 116 Ga. 592.

30. Declarations that the affair was at most a breach of trust, etc., admissible to show receipt of money—Jackson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 760.

31. State v. Woodward, 171 Mo. 593.

32. Evidence of embezzlement of watch held sufficient—State v. McGregor, 88 Minn. 77. Failure to account for shortage held sufficient to show criminal intent—Willis v. State, 134 Ala. 429. Evidence held to show that defendant was entitled to commission and insufficient to show guilty intent—McElroy v. People, 202 Ill. 473. Evidence of intent held for the jury—State v. Lewis, 31 Wash. 75, 71 Pac. 778. Evidence held to show that advice of counsel was sought after the conversion—State v. Hunt (R. I.) 54 Atl. 937. Evidence held insufficient to show that property had not been sold to defendant on credit—People v. Goodrich, 138 Cal. 472, 71 Pac. 509. Evidence of failure of clerk in the mint to deposit money when required by regulations to do so held sufficient—Dimmick v. United States (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 638. Evidence held insufficient to show embezzlement by bailee of horse—State v. Vennum (Kan.) 74 Pac. 268. Evidence of conversion of funds obtained for investment held sufficient—People v. Hackett, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 86.

33. Inadvertent use of the word "attorney" referring to defendant held harmless—State v. Lewis, 31 Wash. 75, 71 Pac. 778. Held to sufficiently cover defendant's right of disposal under a power of attorney—Jackson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 760.

34. Petty embezzlement should be submitted where the evidence of amount is not clear—Loving v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 277.

35. State v. Ames (Iowa) 94 N. W. 231; McElroy v. People, 202 Ill. 473; State v. Rigall, 169 Mo. 659. General charge held to cover requested instruction as to intent—Dimmick v. United States (C. C. A.) 121 Fed 638. Instruction that conversion must have been "intentional and wilful" properly refused as misleading—Willis v. State, 134 Ala. 429.

36. Mineral products being governed by a distinct body of law, are treated in Mines and Minerals. Matters of contract respecting crops, not in any manner controlled by the nature of the subject matter, will be found in Contracts, Sales and similar titles.

37. Swafford v. Spratt, 93 Mo. App. 631; Glass v. Blazer, 91 Mo. App. 564.

realty.[38] They pass without mention by a deed of the land;[39] but, at least in states where they are held to be personalty, they may be separately sold[40] or mortgaged.[41]

As between landlord and tenant, the right to the crops depends on the terms of the contract.[42] A mortgagor is entitled to growing crops pending foreclosure proceedings,[43] but a purchaser on foreclosure of a vendor's lien has been held to be entitled to the crops.[44]

38. Within the statute of frauds—Kileen v. Kennedy (Minn.) 97 N. W. 126; Kirkeby v. Erickson (Minn.) 96 N. W. 705. Within homestead exemption laws—Moore v. Graham (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 200.

Note. Effect of statute of frauds. In Bernal v. Hovious, 17 Cal. 541, 79 Am. Dec. 147, the fifteenth section of the Statute of Frauds, which declares that "every sale made by a vendor of goods and chattels in his possession or under his control, and every assignment of goods and chattels, unless the same be followed by an actual or continued change of possession of the things sold or assigned, shall be conclusive evidence of fraud as against the creditors of the vendor or the creditors of the persons making such assignment, or subsequent purchasers in good faith," was held not to apply to a case of growing crops, they not being goods and chattels within its meaning. Bours v. Webster, 6 Cal. 661; and Visher v. Webster, 13 Cal. 58, to the same effect.

Although growing crops are chattels and will pass by a verbal sale, yet they are not susceptible of manual delivery until harvested and therefore are not until harvested "in the possession or under control of the vendor within the meaning of the statute." Davis v. McFarlane, 37 Cal. 634, 99 Am. Dec. 340; Bours v. Webster, 6 Cal. 661; Visher v. Webster, 13 Cal. 58, to the same effect; Pacheco v. Hunsacker, 14 Cal. 120; Bernal v. Hovious, 17 Cal. 541, 79 Am. Dec. 147; Robbins v. Oldham, 1 Duv. 28. Such construction of the statute would make it an absolute interdiction upon the sale of growing crops, unless the vendor were willing to abandon the possession to the vendee at the same time. Davis v. McFarlane, 37 Cal. 634, 99 Am. Dec. 340. There is nothing in the vegetable or fruit which is an interest in or concerning land when severed from the soil, whether trees, grass, or other spontaneous growth (prima vestura) or grain, vegetables, or any kind of crops (fructus industriales), the product of periodical planting and culture. They are alike, mere chattels, and the severance may be in fact as when they are cut and removed from the ground, or in law as when they are growing, and the owner in fee of the land by a valid conveyance sells them to another person or where he sells the land reserving them by expressed provisions. Purner v. Piercy, 40 Md. 212, 17 Am. Rep. 591. As a general rule if the products of the earth are sold specifically, and by the terms of the contract to be separately delivered as chattels, the sale is not affected by the fourth section of the Statute of Frauds, as amounting to a sale of an interest in land. Purner v. Piercy, 40 Md. 212, 17 Am. Rep. 591. If the contract when executed is to convey to the purchaser a mere chattel, though it may be in the interim a part of the realty, it is not affected by the statute. Purner v. Piercy, 40 Md. 212, 17 Am. Rep. 591. If, however, the contract is in the interim to confer upon the purchaser an exclusive right to the land for a time for the purpose of making a profit of the growing surface, it is affected by the statute and must be in writing, although the purchaser is at the last to take from the land only a chattel. Purner v. Piercy, 40 Md. 212, 17 Am. Rep. 591. A contract for the sale of growing crops raised by the industry of man and the cultivation of the earth is not within the statute. Bloom v. Welsh, 27 N. J. L. 177; Green v. Armstrong, 1 Denio, 550; Davis v. McFarlane, 37 Cal. 634, 99 Am. Dec. 340; Flynt v. Conrad, 61 N. C. 190, 93 Am. Dec. 588; Brittain v. McKay, 23 N. C. 265, 35 Am. Dec. 738; Walton v. Jordan, 65 N. C. 172; Bond v. Coke, 71 N. C. 100; Cook v. Steel, 42 Tex. 53. In McIlvaine v. Harris, 20 Mo. 457, 64 Am. Dec. 196, it was held that growing wheat was an interest in land and a contract concerning it within the statute of frauds, and must be in writing, and that parol evidence of the sale of the wheat was inadmissible.—From extensive note to Dickey v. Waldo, 23 L. R. A. 449.

39. Gam v. Cordrey (Del.) 53 Atl. 334; Marshall v. Homier (Okl.) 74 Pac. 368; Kammrath v. Kidd (Minn.) 95 N. W. 213.

Note. Emblements on highways. Where the fee of a highway remains in the abutter, he is entitled to all herbage growing thereon. Smith v. Langewald, 140 Mass. 205; Blaker v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282; Woodruff v. Neal, 28 Conn. 165.—From note to People v. Foss, 8 L. R. A. 473.

40. Glass v. Blazer, 91 Mo. App. 564. Either a future crop or the hope of a crop may be sold. Where a future crop is sold the consideration must be returned if the crop fails, but it is otherwise if the mere hope of a crop is sold—Losecco v. Gregory, 108 La. 648. A grant of all timber on certain lands needed in certain operations is too uncertain to pass any present interest in the timber and the grantor may remove it before it is needed—Kennedy Stave & Cooperage Co. v. Sloss-Sheffield Steel Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 372.

41. Chattel mortgage held to sufficiently describe future crops—Woods v. Rose, 135 Ala. 297. Mortgage on crops by one who has sublet a part of his farm on shares covers only crops raised by him—Norfleet v. Baker, 131 N. C. 99.

42. Where the landlord is to receive half the crop title thereto is in him—Northness v. Hillestad, 87 Minn. 304. But where he is to receive one-half the "income" the title to the crops is in the tenant—Rowlands v. Voechting, 115 Wis. 352. Outgoing tenant held entitled to crop—Whorley v. Karper, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 347. Title held to be in landlord until division—Kelly v. Rummerfield (Wis.) 94 N. W. 649. Crops held to belong to tenant as against purchaser of premises—Simanek v. Nemetz (Wis.) 97 N. W. 508; Horman v. Cargill (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 1101. Testimony of custom is admissible to aid in construction of cropper's contract—Gehl v. Milwaukee Produce Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 26. But not to vary its terms—Thompson v. Exum, 131 N. C. 111.

43. As against a receiver appointed on

Liens on crops depend for their validity and enforcement on the statutes under which they arise.[45]

In some states growing crops are exempt from taxation.[46]

The aid of a receiver is sometimes invoked against injury by one out of possession but entitled to remove crops.[47]

EMINENT DOMAIN.

The general principles applying to appropriation of private property are treated here while the appropriation for many particular public purposes will be more fully treated under special subjects.[1]

§ 1. The power of the state and delegations of it.—The power of eminent domain is an inalienable right of sovereignty.[2] The territory of Arizona may provide for its exercise.[3] Generally, constitutional provisions merely recognize the appeal from confirmation of foreclosure sale—Cassell v. Ashley (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1035.

44. Sieffert v. Campbell, 24 Ky. L. R. 1050, 70 S. W. 630.

45. A minor who cultivates crops for his father's creditor with the father's team may, if entitled to his own services, have a lien therefor but not for the services of the team—Tuckey v. Lovell (Idaho) 71 Pac. 122. An affidavit for a lien by a farm laborer under the Texas statute need not state the particular crops raised—Allen v. Glover, 27 Tex. Civ. App. 483. The obligation assumed by a tenant selling his crop on the faith of the landlord's waiver of his lien to make good title to the buyer is a sufficient consideration for the waiver—Fishbaugh v. Spunaugle, 118 Iowa, 337. A debt for supplies needed to raise crops is privileged in Louisiana and purchasers are presumed to know of its existence—Weill v. Kent, 107 La. 322.

46. Alfalfa, being perennial though not indigenous, is not exempt as a "growing crop"—Miller v. Kern County, 137 Cal. 516, 70 Pac. 549.

47. Threatened injury by an outgoing tenant required to harvest crops to certain crops of the new tenant is not sufficient to authorize the appointment of a receiver to harvest the crops—Horn v. Bohn, 96 Md. 8. Threatened injury to oil lands by one claiming conflicting title not sufficient for appointment of receiver to operate the same—Freer v. Davis, 52 W. Va. 35.

1. The reason for separate treatment is the difference in statutory proceedings to appropriate for such particular purposes—See Bridges; Canals; Highways & Streets; Public Works & Improvements; Sewers & Drains; Waters & Water Supply.

2. Hollister v. State (Idaho) 71 Pac. 541.

3. Under the Organic act granting the legislative power of the territory, and the exercise of all subjects of legislation not inconsistent with the federal constitution and laws—Sandford v. Tucson (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 903.

power to exist,[4] leaving to the legislature the right to determine the circumstances necessary to, and the manner and extent of, its exercise,[5] or to delegate such power of determination to municipal bodies.[6] The extent of its exercise is limited by express words or clearly implied conditions of the statutes.[7] A law authorizing condemnation of land for "private" roads is not special legislation.[8] The delegation of the power may be revoked or modified by the legislature at any time.[9] The grant to a corporation of the right to exercise eminent domain makes it subject to government regulation in public use of property or products.[10] The question of the necessity, propriety, or expediency of exercising the power, is legislative, not judicial, in the absence of contrary statutory or constitutional provisions.[11]

The power to take property is not necessarily exhausted by its first exercise.[12]

Who may exercise the power.—Municipalities and public,[13] or semi-public,[14] or domestic private corporations,[15] or foreign private corporations,[16] may exercise

4. Samish River Boom Co. v. Union Boom Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 670.

5. Samish River Boom Co. v. Union Boom Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 670. Grant to foreign corporations—Southern Illinois & M. Bridge Co. v. Stone, 174 Mo. 1. A taking of adjacent property to change a village street grade may be declared to be for a public use to the extent of injury (Laws 1897, p. 420, c. 414, § 159)—Comesky v. Suffern, 81 N. Y. Supp. 1049.

6. Comp. Laws, cc. 4097, 6446, as to power of township board to authorize construction of a street railway construed—Freud v. Detroit & P. R. Co. (Mich.) 95 N. W. 559. Act April 4, 1868, § 12; Pub. Laws 62, requiring municipal consent to occupation of a street by a railway is not repealed by Const. 1874, art. 17, § 1—Pittsburg v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 205 Pa. 13. Pub. Laws 1894, p. 374, requiring a street railroad to obtain consent of a governing body of a municipality and of a certain proportion of abutting owners to construction of a railway upon a street or highway, was superseded by Pub. Laws 1896, p. 329—Mercer County Traction Co. v. United New Jersey R. & C. Co., 64 N. J. Eq. 588.

7. Waterbury v. Platt, 75 Conn. 387, 60 L. R. A. 211; Goddard v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 202 Ill. 362. Condemnation of property already appropriated to public use—Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Indianapolis & M. Rapid Transit Co. (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 1013.

8. Pol. Code, § 2692—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

9. The various statutes and ordinances of Boston allowing private corporations to build underground conduits in certain streets to carry wires, none of which purport to convey private rights of property, merely provide for regulations of different public rights in the streets, and the rights of such corporations may be controlled or terminated by the legislature at any time without regard to express provisions therefor in such statutes and ordinances—New England Tel. v. Boston Terminal Co., 182 Mass. 397.

10. Fallsburg Power & Mfg. Co. v. Alexander (Va.) 43 S. E. 194.

11. Zircle v. Southern R. Co. (Va.) 45 S. E. 802.

12. Land may be taken by a railroad for additional tracks and enlargement of terminal facilities—Gardner v. Georgia R. & B. Co., 117 Ga. 522.

13. Cities may exercise the power in laying out and opening streets. Under Rev. Code 1899, § 2454, subd. 7 of section 2148 together with Code Civ. Proc. c. 35—Lidgerwood v. Michalek (N. D.) 97 N. W. 541. The police jury of a parish may condemn a site for a court house or jail. Under Civ. Code, art. 2630, amended by Acts 1886, No. 117, and Acts 1896, No. 96—Fuselier v. Police Jury, 109 La. 551.

14. That representation of a city on the board of directors of a free library, is only one-half the members, will not prevent it from taking land, part of which is to be used for such library—Laird v. Pittsburg, 205 Pa. 1.

15. Sand. & H. Dig. §§ 2757, 2758, 2770-2781, giving telephone and telegraph companies power to take a right of way along highways, railroads and post roads under statutory regulation, is constitutional—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Southwestern Telephone & Telegraph Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276. Under a law incorporating telegraph companies and giving them right to acquire property necessary to their lines and buildings, which incorporates laws regarding assessment of damages within itself, such companies may condemn land on assessment and payment of damages under the act so included—Postal Tel. & Cable Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 30 Ind. App. 654. Construction of Acts 1886, No. 117 and Acts 1896, No. 96, which amended and re-enacted Rev. St. § 1479, giving railroad, plank or turnpike road corporations the right to exercise the power of eminent domain, construed together with Civ. Code, art. 2630, as amending and re-enacting it, though not referred to in the amending act—Fuselier v. Police Jury, 109 La. 551. The original charter of the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company in Georgia, to exercise the power of eminent domain, as subsequently amended by Act Dec. 26, 1836, p. 197, (Prince's Dig. p. 358) is not affected by Act Dec. 18, 1894, p. 95, (Civ. Code 1895, § 4657 et seq.) prescribing a uniform method for exercise of the power. The act amending the original charter authorized it to condemn private property and prescribed a method for such condemnation—Gardner v. Georgia R. & B. Co., 117 Ga. 522. Where the charter of a corthe power to enable them to serve public purposes. A corporation of Arkansas cannot exercise the power in Indian Territory under the laws of that state.[17] That a boom company is a trespasser on property it seeks to condemn[18] or that one railroad company has leased its property to another and owns no rolling stock, will not prevent its exercise of the power.[19] A telegraph company maintaining lines on a railroad right of way under a rental contract, with a covenant to remove at the end of the term, obtained no rights from its tenancy which could support subsequent condemnation of the premises.[20] A prior purchase of land, and re-entry for breach of condition subsequent, will not prevent condemnation by the purchaser, a railroad company.[21]

§ 2. Purposes and uses of a public character.—Private property cannot be taken for a private purpose,[22] except as so permitted by the constitution;[23] but poration provided that corporations for certain purposes could construct railways and condemn rights of way on payment of compensation, and the charter was amended by Act 1896, § 18, giving the right to cross existing railroads or public roads, and limiting the power to condemn land to such purposes, the original power of condemnation was taken away—Boyd v. Winnsboro Granite Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 10. The right to take land for a dam is not conferred on a corporation organized to own and operate gas, electric and water works, to furnish light, power and water for hire under Rev. St. 1899, c. 131, § 8756, giving such right only to public mills as defined by the statute to be grist mills grinding without toll, or water grist mills built on water courses by authority of statute or order of court—Southwest Missouri Light Co. v. Scheurich, 174 Mo. 235. Gen. St. 1865, c. 69, § 17, as amended by Laws 1871-72, p. 15, giving bridge corporations power to exercise eminent domain amended by later laws allowing them to take land for approaches, road, foot or wagon ways over bridges is construed as to the word "road" in the amendment, to apply to structures designed for the passage of railroad trains as though the word was "railroad" and authorizes a railroad bridge company to condemn land for approaches and necessary tracks—Southern Illinois & M. Bridge Co. v. Stone, 174 Mo. 1. A passenger railway company incorporated under Act June 7, 1901, P. L. 523, giving the right of eminent domain for the construction of an elevated railway on a highway for one mile, having obtained the consent of the local authorities and filed a bond for security of a non-consenting land owner, may build such road though the land owner has secured the restraint of other street railway companies from building a surface street railway for such districts—Philadelphia & T. R. Co. v. Neshaminy El. R. Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 1034.

16. A railroad corporation organized in another state complying with Acts 1889, p. 43, c. 34, giving it the same rights as domestic corporations in building a line within the state, is a domestic corporation as to the right of exercising eminent domain—Russell v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. (Ark.) 75 S. W. 725. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1024, 1025, giving foreign corporations authority to transact business in the state on complying with certain formalities as other corporations, empowers a foreign corporation to exercise the same power of eminent domain as domestic corporations, where chartered to build a toll bridge across a boundary river between two states, without regard to whether it was empowered to exercise such right in the state of its residence, where authorized by federal law to build such bridge—Southern Illinois & M. Bridge Co. v. Stone, 174 Mo. 235. A corporation established under laws of another state to build telegraph and telephone lines within certain counties of that state cannot extend its lines beyond those counties under act No. 124, 1880, providing for the condemnation of property within the state since that applies only to foreign corporations authorized in the states where they are created to carry on their business elsewhere—Southwestern Tel. Co. v. Kansas City, S. & G. R. Co., 108 La. 691.

17. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Southwestern Telephone & Telegraph Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276.

18. Samish River Boom Co. v. Union Boom Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 670.

19. State v. Superior Ct., 31 Wash. 445, 72 Pac. 89.

20. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 120 Fed. 362.

21. Supplement of March 25, 1881 (on failure to agree as to repurchase)—State v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. Co. (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 1040.

22. Gaylord v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago (Ill.) 68 N. E. 522. Lands for railroad purposes cannot be condemned by one not in charge of a public use, or intending to perform a public service, or who merely wishes to transfer rights acquired to another—Beveridge v. Lewis, 137 Cal. 619, 67 Pac. 1040, 70 Pac. 1083. Pub. Acts 1887, p. 219, No. 202, § 9, subd. 6, (2 Comp. Laws 1897, § 6814) permitting land to be taken for construction of a navigable water way with appurtenant water power, which can be used for private purposes held unconstitutional—Berrien Springs Water Power Co. v. Berrien Circuit Judge (Mich.) 94 N. W. 379. Laws 1901, p. 502, c. 354, preventing the owner of one of two or more artesian wells in any vicinity, one or more of which are operated, from wasting water flowing from his well so as to diminish the flow of water in other wells in the vicinity and rendering him liable to damages for discharging more than is reasonably necessary for his use, so as to materially diminish the flow of other wells, declared unconstitutional as to owners whose wells take their supply from percolating that a private purpose will be incidentally served will not prevent taking for a lawful purpose.[24] The use must be necessarily of a public nature,[25] and must be for the general public, not merely particular individuals thereof,[26] and statutes granting the power will be construed to require public benefit.[27] Power to take property for a temporary use is not necessarily implied from power to take it for a permanent public use,[28] nor does statutory authority to condemn for a particular purpose not raise a presumption that such purpose is public.[29] A purpose partially public is insufficient.[30] The petitioner must be bound to serve a public purpose,[31] and the public must be entitled to use without his favor or permission.[32] Mere convenience is insufficient to show public necessity.[33] The condition which makes a use public must exist at the time of taking.[34] Property obtained for a public use cannot be diverted to a private use.[35] waters—Huber v. Merkel (Wis.) 94 N. W. 354.

23. Const. art. 1, § 17, construed with art. 9, §§ 1, 2, gives certain corporations the right to condemn for branch railroads, etc.—Boyd v. Winnsboro Granite Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 10.

24. Berrien Springs Water Power Co. v. Berrien Circuit Judge (Mich.) 94 N. W. 379. Buying of electric light plants is for a public purpose though it is proposed to furnish private service with the public service (Rev. St. 1899, § 6275, construed in connection with Const. art. 2, §§ 20, 21)—State v. Allen (Mo.) 77 S. W. 868.

25. Act May 14th, 1899, Pub. L. 216, § 14, as amended by Act May 21, 1895, Pub. L. 93, giving one street railway the right to use a certain portion of the tracks of another street railway on payment of damages, cannot be sustained since it merely aids the first company to obtain property of the other for its own benefit—Philadelphia, M. & S. St. R. Co.'s Petition, 203 Pa. 354. Though a company incorporated under a special charter (Acts 1899-1900, p. 418) may, in the exercise of some of its functions, be subject to laws regulating internal improvement companies and would be subject to public regulation, where it devoted its products to public use, and had power under its charter to devote a part or none of such products to public use, the public has no such definite right to such use as will render constitutional a provision giving it a right of eminent domain—Fallsburg P. & M. Co. v. Alexander (Va.) 43 S. E. 194. Necessity of condemnation of certain property is shown by evidence of a reasonable necessity under circumstances of the particular case, dependent on the practicability of another location, considered in connection with the real cost to one and the probable injury to the other—Samish River Boom Co. v. Union Boom Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 670. Code, § 2028, giving an owner or lessee of land without a private or public way thereto, the right to acquire a public way to a railroad station, the street or highway on, or immediately adjacent to a railroad line, and Code, § 2031, giving the owner, lessee or possessor of mineral lands, on payment of damages assessed, the right to build a railway, to reach and operate such mine and carry products to market, must be construed together so that a railway under the latter act can only be established on a public way established under the first act (Code, §§ 2028, 2031)—Morrison v. Thistle Coal Co. (Iowa) 94 N. W. 507.

26. Water rights—Hildreth v. Montecito Creek Water Co., 139 Cal. 22, 72 Pac. 395.

27. Gen. Laws 1901, c. 258, not expressly providing that a ditch shall not be authorized, unless found of public benefit, will be construed to be intended for such benefit—State v. Board of County Com'rs, 87 Minn. 325.

28. Waterbury v. Platt, 75 Conn. 387.

29. Under Const. art. 1, § 16—Healy Lumber Co. v. Morris (Wash.) 74 Pac. 681.

30. Gaylord v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago (Ill.) 68 N. E. 522. The taking of property for purposes, some of which are private in nature, does not comply with the constitutional provision for public necessity—Berrien Springs Water Power Co. v. Berrien Circuit Judge (Mich.) 94 N. W. 379.

31. The intention to devote the property to a public purpose must be independent of the corporate will of petitioner—Berrien Springs Water Power Co. v. Berrien Circuit Judge (Mich.) 94 N. W. 379. Power to flow the lands of another by the erection of a dam to obtain water, where such flowing was found to be of public benefit, will not allow building of a dam to generate electricity for the operation of a railroad on the ground of public benefit, under V. S. c. 159, not requiring petitioner to serve the public generally—Avery v. Vermont Elec. Co. (Vt.) 54 Atl. 179.

32. A mere public benefit is not a public use—Gaylord v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago (Ill.) 68 N. E. 522.

33. An unsustained claim that unless a railroad right of way was condemned a street railway company would be compelled to diverge from its right of way, as located, so as to render hazardous, dangerous and impracticable the operation of its road, does not show necessity for condemnation of the right of way (Act 1901, p. 461; Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5468a, subd. 5, does not expressly or impliedly confer authority to condemn)—Indianapolis & V. R. Co. v. Indianapolis & M. Rapid Transit Co. (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 1013.

34. The power cannot be invoked on the theory that forfeiture will result if the purpose proves not to be public—Avery v. Vermont Elec. Co. (Vt.) 54 Atl. 179.

35. Where a city attempted to condemn property for certain public purposes but failed to complete the condemnation pro-

A railway to a mine,[36] private roads which are open to public use,[37] a levee along the bank of a river,[38] purchase or erection and maintenance by cities of public and private electric plants,[39] drainage of wet lands,[40] a system of free public fisheries in fresh water lakes of every county of a state,[41] additional railroad tracks and enlargement of terminal facilities,[42] a branch track to reach a private industrial enterprise to be used in furtherance of public business,[43] land for a railroad water station,[44] supplying an incorporated city or town and its inhabitants with natural gas for heating and illuminating;[45] all these are public purposes for which private property may be taken. Condemnation of land for park purposes by a city is valid though it intends to use part of the land for a free library and art building at the time situated on another part of the public park.[46] Land for a log road,[47] or for a tram-way, cannot be taken by a lumber company only to carry its own timber.[48] Public necessity cannot be said as a matter of law to require improvements in a stream.[49] Water companies cannot condemn water from springs on their lands which naturally flows over adjoining lands.[50] Municipalities cannot embark in business generally of a private nature except under stress of public necessity.[51]

§ 3. Property liable to appropriation and estate therein which may be acquired.—Statutes must be strictly construed respecting the property which they allow to be taken.[52] An easement,[53] a right of profit a prendre in lands,[54] the ceedings and the parties treated the proceedings as void and contracted for a sale of the property by deed containing certain restrictions as to its use, a lease by the city under chapter 34, p. 255, Sp. L. 1891, giving it the right to lease land obtained by it for a private purpose, of the property to another person for a private enterprise is an unconstitutional diversion of the property to private use and gives the lessee no rights against the owner—Sanborn v. Van Duyne (Minn.) 96 N. W. 41.

36. This though the public can only travel by railway cars, since another mine owner can use it without paying additional damages to the original owner; there is no unconstitutional taking; though the spur track from the mine connected with the railroad more than a mile from a station it complied with the statute providing for such tracks since the mine owner had a public way over which his cars could be hauled to the station—Morrison v. Thistle Coal Co. (Iowa) 94 N. W. 507.

37. Pol. Code, § 2692—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

38. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Cambern (Kan.) 71 Pac. 809.

39. Rev. St. 1899, § 6275, construed in connection with Const. art. 2, § 20—State v. Allen (Mo.) 77 S. W. 868.

40. Lile v. Gibson, 91 Mo. App. 480. Const. art. 2, § 20, against taking private property for private use except for private ways and drains, ditches, for agricultural or sanitary purposes, does not apply to Rev. St. 1899, § 8251, etc., providing for establishment of drainage districts, construction of ditches and assessment of benefits—Mound City L. & S. Co. v. Miller, 170 Mo. 240.

41. Under Act of March 22, 1901, providing for regulation of such fisheries and use by all citizens—Albright v. Sussex County Lake & Park Commission, 68 N. J. Law, 523.

42. Under railroad charter powers—Gardner v. Georgia R. & B. Co., 117 Ga. 522.

43. Zircle v. Southern R. Co. (Va.) 45 S. E. 802.

44. Under Gen. St. 1901, § 1359—Dillon v. Kansas City, Ft. S. & M. R. Co. (Kan.) 74 Pac. 251.

45. By corporation organized under general laws and occupying streets and alleys under municipal authority (Code 1899, § 42) —Charleston Natural Gas Co. v. Lowe, 52 W. Va. 662.

46. Laird v. Pittsburg, 205 Pa. 1.

47. Laws 1899, p. 255, c. 130, construed in connection with Const. art. 1, § 16—Healy Lumber Co. v. Morris (Wash.) 74 Pac. 681.

48. Under Pub. Laws 1895, c. 224, § 297, and Code 1883, § 2056, amended by Pub. Laws 1887, c. 46, § 1 (at most it may obtain an easement under compliance with the statute) —Leigh v. Garysburg Mfg. Co., 132 N. C. 167.

49. Even though construction of a dam will render the stream navigable—Berrien Springs Water Power Co. v. Berrien Circuit Judge (Mich.) 94 N. W. 379.

50. Shannon's Code, §§ 1844 et seq., and § 2502—Watauga Water Co. v. Scott (Tenn.) 76 S. W. 888.

51. Cities and towns cannot be authorized by the legislature to buy and sell fuel to citizens in competition with private dealers, but the government of such a municipality may make itself an agent on occasions of great scarcity of fuel for relief of persons unable to supply themselves through private enterprise, and money so spent will be expended for public use—In re Opinion of the Justices, 182 Mass. 605.

52. Act Cong. July 24, 1866; R. S. §§ 5263, 5264, authorizing any telegraph company to build lines over any part of the public domain including military or post roads, gives an interstate franchise, but does not empower companies to exercise the power of eminent domain to take private property—right to fish in fresh water lakes of a state,[55] and private interests in tide lands held under a contract from the state,[56] may be taken. Consent by an abutting owner to construction of a street railway is not such a property right as can be appropriated.[57]

Lands once acquired and lost may be reacquired by condemnation.[58]

Property exempt by law because used for a certain purpose must be capable of such use,[59] and must be so used at time of condemnation.[60]

Property in actual and necessary use for a public purpose cannot be taken for another purpose no more necessary,[61] but it may be taken if the new use will not materially interfere with the old use.[62] Statutory authority is not necessary

Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 120 Fed. 362. Sufficiency of compliance with statutory requirements that a spur railway line should be located on, or immediately adjacent to a division line, where such spur line was constructed from a mine to a railroad across the land of another—Morrison v. Thistle Coal Co. (Iowa) 94 N. W. 507. Where a water district is empowered by Private Laws 1899, c. 200, to take the entire property of a water company within certain territory, it must take all the property held by such company within such territory, if it takes anything, whether specifically named in the statute or not, including real estate or other property not connected with the water system, the plant or physical system and all franchises or privileges exercised or capable of being exercised. Under Private Laws 1899, c. 200—Kennebec Water Dist. v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185. A company operating a railway on leased lands built under provisions of the Traction act of 1893 (§§ 13, 14, Gen. St. p. 3239), procured appointment of commissioners to condemn land adjoining its line so that the two tracks would not exceed 60 feet in width, is within the Act—Middlesex & S. T. Co. v. Metlar (N. J. Law) 56 Atl. 142. Where a railroad company taking a right of way covenanted to make a suitable and convenient crossing where the owner should direct, and he selected a place where the railroad was nearly at a grade and the crossing was constructed and used for several years, and subsequently the railroad company raised the grade so as to destroy the crossing, at which time the owner notified the company of his rights and demanded that the crossing be left open, he could not be compelled to accept compensation in the place of the crossing, where the charter of the original railroad company, (Laws 1867, p. 306, c. 160, § 9) and general statutes (Gen. St. p. 2661, § 84) under which the present company was formed, preserved the old road to the owner and required suitable crossings for farm purposes, and gave no right to take rights expressly given or reserved to the owner—Speer v. Erie R. Co., 64 N. J. Eq. 601.

53. Deavitt v. Washington County (Vt.) 53 Atl. 563.

54. Under Const. p. 16, art. 1, authorizing the taking of any interest in private property less than the whole—Albright v. Sussex County Lake & Park Commission, 68 N. J. Law, 523.

55. Though private property and prima facie belonging to owners of soil covered by the water—Albright v. Sussex County Lake & Park Commission, 68 N. J. Law, 523.

56. By railroad company under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. §§ 4333, 4334, the land was held by individuals subject only to forfeiture for failure to pay balance of purchase price—State v. Superior Ct., 31 Wash. 445, 72 Pac. 89.

57. It is a personal right under Rev. St. §§ 3439, 3440—Hamilton, G. & C. Traction Co. v. Parrish, 67 Ohio St. 181.

58. Bouvier v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 1040.

59. Where property dedicated as a street had never been improved and could not be used as such without being improved, it is not exempt from condemnation by a railroad company because of Laws 1879, p. 147, giving street railway companies the power of eminent domain exempting public roads and streets—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 219, 232, 70 Pac. 484.

60. Under Act 1854, 55, c. 225, giving a railroad company the right to condemn a right of way but exempting gardens from such use, property which is not used as a garden at the time of condemnation is not exempt because used as a garden when the company afterward takes actual possession —Dargan v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 131 N. C. 623.

61. Land used for public park cannot be taken for a postoffice; under Mass. Laws, governing an eminent domain proceeding by the United States—In re Certain Land in Lawrence, 119 Fed. 453. A creek improved by a city for drainage cannot be taken by a drainage district—Bishop v. People, 200 Ill. 33. One street car company granted right to build tracks in street already occupied by another company under former grant, cannot interfere with vested rights or franchises of the latter company by straddling its tracks—Parrish v. Hamilton, G. & C. Traction Co., 23 Ohio Circ. R. 527. One railroad company cannot condemn for right of way purposes, an entire tract of land belonging to another, part of which is in actual and necessary use for railway purposes—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. (Kan.) 73 Pac. 899. Acts 1901, p. 461; Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5468a, subd. 5, giving an interurban street railway authority to build its road on a railroad which the route of its road shall intersect, does not authorize its appropriation longitudinally of the railroad right of way in whole or in part—Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Indianapolis & M. Rapid Transit Co. (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 1013.

62. Const. art. 12, § 10, construed in connection with Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5638—Samish River Boom Co. v. Union Boom Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 670. Under Civ. Code, § 2626, to taking land already in public use for a new use if public interests demand it,[63] but if the right is given by statute it must be strictly construed,[64] and if express powers given a petitioner suffice to accomplish the object sought no implied power to condemn property already appropriated can exist.[65] The future needs of the present purpose and the public duty of the present occupant must be considered in allowing property already in public use to be taken,[66] but a mere hypothetical convenience of the occupant will not prevent appropriation.[67] A proceeding to obtain the right to connect a flume with a city canal to discharge water into it is not a condemnation of city land so that the use by the power company must be shown to be a more necessary public use than the use of city since the city owns but an easement over the land.[68]

State lands given by statute to each township to be sold for school purposes may be taken.[69]

Statutory authority to petitioner to choose his own location must be exercised in good faith.[70] Railroad companies exercising the power of eminent domain may determine, within statutory limits, the location and amount of land to be taken, one railroad may condemn a crossing over another where necessary to public needs of the business—Houston & S. R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 109 La. 581. Real estate of one railroad company not in actual and necessary use for its road may be taken by another company—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. (Kan.) 70 Pac. 939. Act May 14, 1889, Pub. Laws 211, § 14 amended by Act June 7, 1901, Pub. Laws 514, authorizing one street railroad to use the track of another for a certain prescribed distance is unconstitutional—Commonwealth v. Uwchlan St. R. Co., 203 Pa. 608. Under Rev. St. 1878, §§ 3964, 5263, a telegraph company may locate lines along a railroad right of way—Postal Tel. & Cable Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 30 Ind. App. 654. Under Rev. St. arts. 698, 699, a telegraph and telephone company may take a right of way over railroad property though it might obtain a right of way over other lands—Fort Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. Co. (Tex.) 71 S. W. 270. Telephone companies can only occupy railroad rights of way and cannot interfere with tracks; under act 1880, p. 168, No. 124—Southwestern Tel. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 109 La. 892. 23 St. at Large, p. 61, §§ 2, 3, allowing telephone lines to be built over railroad or other land, authorizes telephone companies to condemn a right of way for its purposes, where acquired by the railroad company by condemnation and in fee—South Carolina & G. R. Co. v. American Tel. Co., 65 S. C. 459. An amendment to the charter of a railroad company which gave it no power to condemn a right of way across the track of another company, adopting provisions of the general railroad law as far as applicable, included in Civ. Code, § 2167, giving it right to acquire such right of way by condemnation though under the original charter it could only be acquired by private contract—Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Seaboard Air Line R., 116 Ga. 412. Act March 19, 1900 (Pub. Laws 1900, p. 74) [which amended the telegraph company act April 9, 1875, § 8; Gen. St. p. 3457] construed as not depriving such companies of the right to condemn a use in public roads for such purposes, where the owners refused to consent, such power being given by Act March 11, 1880 (Pub. Laws 1880, p. 201). The act first mentioned does not confer or withdraw power of eminent domain, but merely regulates its exercise as to telegraph rights of way—Coles v. Midland Tel. Co., 68 N. J. Law, 413.

63. Taking of land by one railroad to cross another—Houston & S. R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 109 La. 581.

64. Act Cong. July 24, 1866, c. 230, 14 Sts. 221, authorizing construction of telegraph lines over post roads including public roads and highways, does not confer the right to use streets and alleys of a municipality except on conditions prescribed—Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Newport, 25 Ky. L. R. 635, 76 S. W. 159. Act Pa. March 24, 1849, chartering a telegraph company and authorizing it to build lines between certain cities and intermediate places, and to erect structures necessary to cross public ways and waters of the state so as not to interfere with their use, is a grant of a right of way along and over roads of the state, but does not confer expressly or by implication, the right to take, in exercise of the power of eminent domain, a right of way along a railroad track—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 120 Fed. 362.

65. Condemnation of railroad right of way by telegraph company—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 120 Fed. 362.

66. Taking railroad right of way for telegraph purposes—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 120 Fed. 362.

67. Taking right of way for telephone lines—Southwestern Tel. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 109 La. 892.

68. Rev. St. §§ 3588, 3590, construed in connection with § 3591—Salt Lake City Water & Elec. Power Co. v. Salt Lake City, 25 Utah, 441, 71 Pac. 1067.

69. Act Cong. July 3, 1890, known as "Idaho Admission Act"—Hollister v. State (Idaho) 71 Pac. 541.

70. In appropriation of shore lines or waters by boom companies, a later extension of business beyond the first location does not show bad faith (Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4379)—Samish River Boom Co. v. Union Boom Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 670.

and their discretion will not be controlled by the courts, unless clearly abused,[71] but after choice is made and the road established, the right of location under that proceeding is exhausted.[72]

Use or estate which may be exercised.—A use or interest in land may be taken temporarily.[73] A police jury failing to agree with landowners as to making a public road in a county may establish it by imposing mere servitude of passage over the lands.[74]

§ 4. What is a "taking" or "injuring" of property.—The duration of injury is immaterial; if it actually occurs there is a taking.[75] To be injured, property need not abut on a public improvement; it need only be near enough to be proximately and substantially injured.[76] A mere regulation of an occupation,[77] right,[78] or of the use of property,[79] is not an appropriation requiring compensation; but oppressive taxation or wrongful diversion of public funds may be.[80] Circumstances showing a taking or injury,[81] and damages which do not fall within those terms,[82] are illustrated in the cases cited below and under succeeding para-

71. Zircle v. Southern R. Co. (Va.) 45 S. E. 802. A railroad company under its charter powers may determine the amount of land necessary to enlarge its terminal facilities or build additional tracks—Gardner v. Georgia R. & B. Co., 117 Ga. 522. Where a railroad charter gave authority to build a line between two places without exact description thereof, it may be located at the company's discretion—Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Campbell (Tenn.) 73 S. W. 112.

72. Where the map of a proposed railroad filed by the company, does not describe definitely its location, nor is it so described in an instrument by an abutting owner conveying the right of way, the railroad company cannot change the track as established when the grant is made without the owner's consent or condemnation proceedings by making additional tracks, switches, or sidings—Stephens v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 175 N. Y. 72.

73. For use while constructing water works under Act April 1, 1895 (Pub. Laws 1895, p. 769)—Hepburn v. Jersey City, 67 N. J. Law, 686.

74. Under Rev. St. § 3369—Fuselier v. Police Jury of Parish of Iberia, 109 La. 551.

75. Injury to abutting property only during construction of a railroad in a street—Bailey v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 182 Mass 537.

76. Const. 1874, art. 6, § 8—Cooper v. Scranton City, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 17.

77. An act requiring a license of transient merchants, and imposing a penalty for violation (Act March 11, 1901; Burns' Rev. St. 1901, §§ 7231a, 7231b construed in connection with Const. art. 1, § 21)—Levy v. State (Ind.) 68 N. E. 172.

78. Regulation of a city water supply though injury results to established business (St. 1895, c. 488)—Sawyer v. Commonwealth, 182 Mass. 245.

79. Ordinance against allowing growth of weeds on private premises—St. Louis v. Galt (Mo.) 77 S. W. 876. A requirement, that railroad companies should keep rights of way clear of dry vegetation and under growth to prevent fires, and providing for certain penalties on failure (Rev. St. 1898, § 2614)—McFarland v. Mississippi River & B. T. R. Co. (Mo.) 75 S. W. 152.

80. Assessment of property for public improvements beyond total value of the property after assessment—Louisville v. Bitzer, 24 Ky. L. R. 2263, 73 S. W. 1115. Law apportioning money from city licenses between state, county and city, held unconstitutional (St. 1903, p. 190, c. 102, § 20, subd. 9, construed in connection with Bill of Rights, § 8)—State v. Boyd (Nev.) 74 Pac. 654.

81. A general telegraph line on a railroad right of way erected under a transfer of telegraph lines of the railroad company and enlarged for commercial purposes. The conveyance was an attempt to confer the right to maintain a general commercial line—Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 572. Obstruction of surface water by construction of railroad, making a pond on abutting farm property—Arkansas Cent. R. Co. v. Smith (Ark.) 71 S. W. 947. Destruction of a private road and the owner's access—Culver v. Yonkers, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 309. Destruction of a rice plantation by federal improvement in navigation (5th Amend to Cons. U. S.)—United States v. Lynah, 188 U. S. 445; Same v. Williams, 188 U. S. 485. Pollution of a river by drainage of city sewage damaging riparian owners above tide waters (The city had condemned no such right)—Doremus v. Paterson (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 304. Damage to land by drainage of sewage into a creek in natural course of flowage, even though the sewers were properly constructed (Const. 1876, art. 1, § 17)—New Odorless Sewerage Co. v. Wisdom (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 354. Appropriation of, or damage to, water rights of lessees from a company holding water power for manufacturing purposes under statutory authority, (Pollution by city sewage of streams from which lessees were entitled to draw water)—Doremus v. Paterson (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 304. Taking of public lands occupied by a claimant as "homestead" (He has legal vested rights under his claim)—Oklahoma City v. McMaster (Okl.) 73 Pac. 1012. Taking of a dam for water supply to the impairment of granted rights of an owner servient to the flowage by the dam (L. 1893, p. 317, c 189)—In re Brookfield (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 138.

82. Injuries to riparian lands by piers, abutments or bridges erected by municipal graphs. The opening of a highway across a railroad is a taking requiring compensation for land actually taken in absence of a showing of benefits.[83]

Destruction of a calling, business, or profession, is a taking of property as much as a taking of real estate.[84] A right of way of necessity based on estoppel but not amounting to an easement is not an interest in land entitling one to compensation, where taken for a public street.[85] Vested rights of riparian owners cannot be abolished by legislative action as to irrigation except by condemnation.[86] That an interest in lands is less than the whole will not prevent the right to compensation for land taken or damaged in constructing a street if the right is substantial and is affected.[87] Condemnation of a turnpike is no injury to abutting property.[88]

Establishment or vacation of streets.—Injury to abutting lands by opening a street,[89] or extending a street under railroad tracks,[90] or closing a street,[91] or of an alley, destroying access to adjacent property,[92] or temporary closing of a street destroying access during the period,[93] generally gives a right to damages; but this will not apply to statutory vacation as affecting rights of corporations to carry wires in underground conduits.[94]

Establishment or change of street grade.—Generally, no recovery can be had for grading under a previously established plan which injures improvements erected on the abutting property after establishment of the grade,[95] unless improvement authorities in the exercise of public rights, so that the bank is washed by the augmented current—Salliotte v. King Bridge Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 378. Loss of business resulting from taking adjoining property for railroad purposes; a statute is necessary to create liability for such injury—Bailey v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 182 Mass. 537. Establishment of a highway across railroad tracks (Notice of the proceedings is unnecessary to foreclose rights of grantee of the railroad property)—Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. State, 159 Ind. 510. Lowering of the grade of a highway belonging to a plank road company to accommodate a street railway, the township and the plank road company consenting—Austin v. Detroit, Y. & A. A. R. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 35. Elevation of tracks on a railroad right of way to the damage of adjacent property (Chicago v. Webb, 102 Ill. App. 232) or obstruction of light, air and view—Osburn v. Chicago, 105 Ill. App. 217. Inspection of mining claims in an action to determine adverse claims thereto (Code Civ. Proc. § 1314, construed in connection with Const. art. 3, § 14)—State v. District Ct. (Mont.) 73 Pac. 230.

83. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Shelley (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 564.

84. State v. Chapman (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 94. Widow keeping house and boarding her children and occasional visiting relatives during their vacation for pay does not have an established boarding house business—Gavin v. Commonwealth, 182 Mass. 190.

85. In re City of New York, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 430.

86. Crawford Co. v Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781.

87. Olson v. Seattle, 30 Wash. 687, 71 Pac. 201.

88. Under Act May 14, 1889, § 17, P. L. 217—Hinnershitz v. United Traction Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 841.

89. Grant v. Hyde Park, 67 Ohio St. 166.

90. Requiring construction of a bridge or viaduct to carry trains over the street—Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Troy (Ohio) 67 N. E. 1051.

91. The closing rendered the street a cul de sac directly in front of property—Village of Winnetka v. Clifford, 201 Ill. 475. The property must be so situated that the owner is entitled to notice of vacation proceedings: if it did not extend to an open part of the street, that a continuation in front of his property has been dedicated but never opened will not avail him—Beutel v. West Bay City Sugar Co. (Mich.) 94 N. W. 202.

92. The owner suffers a burden different from that of the general public—Chicago v. Webb, 102 Ill. App. 232.

93. Loss of rents of tenements abutting on private way leading to closed street (Sts. 1891, p. 880, c. 323, construed in connection with Pub. St. 1882, c. 49, § 16)—Munn v. Boston (Mass.) 67 N. E. 312.

94. The right of the corporation is a part of the public easement destroyed by the vacation (Act 1896, c. 516, § 23)—New England Tel. Co. v. Boston Terminal Co., 182 Mass. 397.

95. Ross v. Cincinnati, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 43. The owner had notice of the grade when he built—In re City of New York, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 355. A railroad company which had acquired the right to maintain its road along a certain street through a sub-way as against abutting owners, before passage of a law compelling a change of grade and erection of a steel viaduct to give the public use of the street, was not liable to abutting owners for damages from interference with easements of light, air and access. The state had the power to change the grade and compel the viaduct to be built for public benefit without compensation to abutting owners—Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co., 173 N. Y. 549.

If no legal grade has been established for to conform to the established grade destroys the natural drainage and furnishes no means adequate for drainage,[96] or unless the map showing the plan of grade is so vague as to mislead the abutting owner.[97] Change of an established grade resulting in consequential injury requires compensation[98] though the whole street has not been worked up to the established sidewalk grade;[99] but one who removed his building after title to land was acquired by the city but before the street was opened cannot recover.[1]

Notice sufficient to prevent abutting landowners from recovering for injuries from change in the grade of a street must be clear and conclusive.[2]

The legislature may declare a change of a street grade by a village to be a taking of adjacent property for public use to the extent of its injury.[3] A constitutional amendment giving damages to abutting property from change of a street grade applies to improvements of abutting owners made before as well as after its passage.[4]

Railroads or other ways or structures on city streets.—Electric railways are not an additional servitude on city streets when they can be said to fall within the public use for which the street was taken,[5] unless the construction changes the established grade of the street,[6] or special injury be done to abutting property.[7] Provisions made by statute for reservation of space for the construction of railways to which they are confined, show such a contemplated use.[8] The same rules apply to wires and poles,[9] transmission of electric heat, light, and power on poles or wires in use for a different purpose,[10] are added burdens to the street. As to property not too remote, construction of a railroad in a street,[11] or of an elevated railway, though the fee of the street is in the city,[12] amounts to a taking or injuring of abutting property; but this will not apply to railroad structures in a street resulting in mere a street a city in Iowa is liable for damages to abutting property from grading (Wilbur v. Ft. Dodge [Iowa] 95 N. W. 186) but in Ohio there can be no recovery when a grade is established unless it is unreasonable (Ross v. Cincinnati, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 43) and in Montana, damages are allowed for injuries resulting from the first established grade (Const. art. 3, § 14)—Less v. Butte (Mont.) 72 Pac. 140.

96. Wilbur v. Ft. Dodge (Iowa) 95 N. W. 186.

97. In re City of New York, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 312.

98. Const. art. 1, § 13, amended in 1896—Dickerman v. Duluth, 88 Minn. 288. Direct and physical injury to abutting property cannot be denominated damnum absque injuria because done under police power—Chicago v. McShane, 102 Ill. App. 239. Accumulation of surface water on abutting property as a direct and unavoidable result of the change—Cooper v. Scranton City, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 17.

99. Laws 1897, p. 420, c. 414, § 159—In re Comesky, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 137.

1. In re City of New York, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 622.

2. In re City of New York, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 525.

3. Laws 1897, p. 420, c. 414, § 159—In re Comesky, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 137.

4. Const. art. 1, § 13, amended in 1896—Dickerman v. Duluth, 88 Minn. 288.

5. Baker v. Selma St. & S. R. Co., 135 Ala. 552. Though the owner's fee extends to the center of the street—Lange v. La Crosse & E. R. Co. (Wis.) 95 N. W. 952.

6. Obstruction of access to abutting property—Farrar v. Midland Elec. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 500.

7. Such as injury to easement of light and air by building a trestle and bridge in front of property (State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 219, 232, 70 Pac. 484) or interference with access—Parrish v. Hamilton, G. & C. Traction Co., 23 Ohio Circ. R. 527.

8. St. 1895, p. 109, c. 131 (location under direction of selectmen)—Eustis v. Milton St. R. Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 663.

9. Recovery may be had for unavoidable injury to trees on abutting property by erection of wires, or where the poles and wires permanently or exclusively occupy parts of a public street or highway (Bronson v. Albion Tel. Co. [Neb.] 93 N. W. 201, 60 L. R. A. 426) but construction of a telephone system in city streets which are subject to such a use gives no right to damages; except as to unnecessary damage to abutters, for there is no additional servitude—Kirby v. Citizens' Tel. Co. (S. D.) 97 N. W. 3.

10. Street railway—Goddard v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 202 Ill. 362.

11. Construction and operation within less than thirty feet of a factory impairing access, and diverting the street from its dedicated purpose, requires compensation (Const. art. 1, § 16)—Cleveland Burial Case Co. v. Erie R. Co., 24 Ohio Circ. R. 107. That a railroad was built on the opposite side of a street will not prevent recovery by an abutting owner, but the owner of a residence lot 300 feet from the street cannot claim damages (Comp. Laws, § 6254)—Marquette & S. E. R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670.

12. The question of additional servitude inconvenience of access,[13] or to temporary railroad tracks in a city street during elevation of tracks,[14] or to change of a grade crossing,[15] or additional tracks laid in a street under municipal authority,[16] or change of grade, width, or use of a street for railroad tracks.[17]

Use of rural highways for purposes other than general public travel.—Street railways on highways are regarded as an additional servitude in Pennsylvania,[18] but not in Michigan,[19] Maryland,[20] or Kentucky.[21] A telegraph,[22] or a telephone line,[23] or a natural gas conduit,[24] or the change of a horse railway to an electric one,[25] adds to the burden of a country highway, except where the fee is in the public.[26]

Erection of public viaducts or bridges under statutory authority in a street, the fee of which is in the city, is not a taking of abutting property,[27] unless access be destroyed.[28] A bridge abutment or approach on a rural highway is a "taking" if it impairs access to abutting lands.[29]

§ 5. Right of appropriation as dependent on compensation, payment, deposit, or offer to purchase. Compensation is necessary.—Private property cannot be taken for a public purpose without payment of just compensation,[30] though the taking be then becomes immaterial (Const. 1870, art. 2, § 13)—Aldis v. Union El. R. Co., 203 Ill. 567.

13. Where a depot is built across a street so as to require persons going from a dwelling a point beyond it to go around by other streets, there is no taking or injury to the dwelling—Dennis v. Mobile & M. R. Co. (Ala.) 35 So. 30.

14. Elevated grade crossings required by statute; the temporary character of the tracks can only be considered in estimating the amount of damages—McKeon v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 75 Conn. 343.

15. The tracks were used so as to damage abutting property—Knapp & C. Mfg. Co. v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. (Conn.) 56 Atl. 512. Mere inconvenience in access to a street because of construction of a railroad is insufficient to amount to special injury—Putnam v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 182 Mass. 351.

16. They constitute an additional servitude though the grantor of the abutting owner granted the right to lay the original track—Rock Island & P. R. Co. v. Johnson, 204 Ill. 488.

17. Under Const. § 242—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cumnock (Ky.) 77 S. W. 933. Causing total destruction to access. See, also, as to special injuries to adjacent property (Pub. St. c. 112, § 95)—Putnam v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 182 Mass. 351. Though under statutory authority and though no more injury results than would result from filling the street with building material which is allowable by statute—Knapp & C. Mfg. Co. v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. (Conn.) 56 Atl. 512. Station houses of a railroad occupying more of the street than the viaduct on which the railroad is located thereby cutting off easements of light and air. Viaduct erected under Laws 1892, p. 694, c. 337—Dolan v. New York & H. R. Co., 175 N. Y. 367.

18. In townships of the first class; they constitute an additional burden to the fee—Dempster v. United Traction Co., 205 Pa. 70.

19. Austin v. Detroit, Y. & A. A. R. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 35.

20. County highway—Lonaconing Midland & F. R. Co. v. Consolidation Coal Co., 95 Md. 630.

21. Georgetown & L. Traction Co. v. Mulholland, 25 Ky. L. R. 578, 76 S. W. 118. Removal of obstructing fences to build electric railway held not an injury where they were built under license until removal was required by public necessity—Id.

22. The landowner held the fee—Union Elec. Tel. Co. v. Applequist, 104 Ill. App. 517.

23. Gray v. New York State Tel. Co., 41 Misc. (N. Y.) 108.

24. Fee was in abutter—Ward v. Triple State Natural Gas & Oil Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 116, 74 S. W. 709.

25. Consent to the horse road will not bind an abutting owner as to the electric way—Humphreys v. Ft. Smith Traction, etc., Co. (Ark.) 71 S. W. 662.

26. Kennedy v. Mineola; H. & F. Traction Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 484, 12 Ann. Cas. 189.

27. The street easement is for public purposes—Sauer v. New York, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 585.

28. Approach to viaduct—Chicago v. Le Moyne (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 662.

29. Interference with access need not be total—Lafean v. York County, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 573.

30. Taking lands by United States to improve navigation (5th Amendment)—United States v. Lynah, 188 U. S. 445; Same v. Williams, 188 U. S. 485. Land taken by county for road—Hitch v. Edgecombe County Com'rs, 132 N. C. 573 (Const. § 21, art. 1)—Hogsett v. Harlan County (Neb.) 97 N. W. 316. Taking of property of water works company by city (Laws 1875, p. 157, c. 181 amended by Laws 1881, p. 220, c. 175. Laws 1883, p. 286, c. 255; Laws 1885, p. 370, c. 211 construed in connection with Laws 1875, p. 162, c. 181)—In re Board of Water Com'rs (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 348. Acts 1901, p. 90, c. 63, violates Const. art. 1, § 21, in not providing for compensation for taking water supply—Watauga Water Co. v. Scott (Tenn.) 76 S. W. 888. Rev. St. 1874, p. 701, c. 92, authorizing taking property for public mills or machinery other than public grist mills, is unconstitutional—Gaylord v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago (Ill.) 68 N. E. 522. Under Const. art. 3, § 14, compensation must be made for damages from street grading though under the first grade fixed—Less v. Butte (Mont.) 72 Pac. 140. The rule applies to private corpounder the police power of the state,[31] or by taxation,[32] or by assessment for public improvements,[33] or by one railroad company for crossing the road of another;[34] but public streets or highways may be extended across a railroad without compensation.[35] "Just compensation" in the constitutional sense means full compensation, so that the taking of property for public use for less than full compensation invades constitutional rights without regard to the extent.[36]

Necessity of payment of compensation or deposit in court before taking property.—Railroad companies are generally required to pay the compensation awarded to the landowner, or into court for him, before taking possession,[37] or divesting the owner of title.[38] The rule has also been applied to street railways working injury to abutting owners,[39] to taking of lands by a city for streets,[40] or by a county for roads,[41] but it is unnecessary in Kansas as to land taken for a schoolhouse site.[42]

Necessity of securing consent or offer to purchase.—A railroad company must acquire its right of way by purchase if practicable, and resort to condemnation only when it cannot purchase.[43] To take lands for agricultural, domestic, or sanitary drains, an offer to purchase is not necessary before beginning proceedings.[44] New York City may proceed to take all rights of joint owners of the structure, user, and wharfage of a pier, in which the city is also joint owner, without an attempt to purchase from such owners.[45] Consent of a mortgagee to use of land for telegraph purposes need not be sought before condemnation if the owner refuses consent.[46] rations taking property, they being limited in the delegation of power as other persons (Const. art. 1, § 14, construed in connection with the 14th amendment)—Steinhart v. Superior Ct., 137 Cal. 575, 70 Pac. 629.

31. Injury to abutting property by temporary use of street by railroad during elevation of tracks—McKeon v. New York, etc., R. Co., 75 Conn. 343, 53 Atl. 656; Knapp & C. Mfg. Co. v. New York, etc., R. Co. (Conn.) 56 Atl. 512.

32. The eastern half of the Union Pacific railroad company's bridge over the Missouri river, used exclusively for railroad purposes cannot be taxed for municipal purposes by the city of Council Bluffs, though within corporate limits, the east end of the bridge being over a mile from municipal improvements of any sort, and not furnished fire or police protection, and the land between the bridge and the settled part of the city used for agriculture—Arnd v. Union Pac. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 912.

33. If the total value of assessed property after improvement is less than the cost of improvement, the assessment lien cannot be enforced—Louisville v. Bitzer, 24 Ky. L. R. 2263, 73 S. W. 1115.

34. Civ. Code, § 2167—Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Seaboard Air-Line R., 116 Ga. 412.

35. The company has acquired subject to the public necessity—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. State, 159 Ind. 510.

36. Spring Valley Water Works v. City & County of San Francisco, 124 Fed. 574.

37. Code Civ. Proc. 1254, authorizing an order allowing a railroad company to take possession of lands during condemnation proceedings for a right of way, violates Const. art. 1, § 14, that no right of way shall be appropriated for private corporation until full compensation is made and paid into court for the owner—Steinhart v. Superior Ct., 137 Cal. 575, 70 Pac. 629.

38. Under Code, § 1079, providing for payment to person entitled or into court whereon title absolutely vests in petitioner in fee—Southern R. Co. v. Gregg (Va.) 43 S. E. 570.

39. State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 219, 232, 70 Pac. 484.

40. Where damages are awarded in a taking of property for streets by a city, and on appeal to the circuit court a larger award is obtained, the land cannot be appropriated by the city until the difference in the awards is paid or tendered to the property owner though the original award has been paid into court—Heinl v. Terre Haute (Ind.) 66 N. E. 450.

41. Opening section line road—Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Douglas County (Neb.) 95 N. W. 339.

42. Under Gen. St. 1901, § 6131, providing means for determining value of property taken for such public purpose, and Const. art. 12, § 4, giving right to full compensation and under Bill of Rights giving remedy by due course of law for all such injury to property—Buckwalter v. School Dist. No. 2, 65 Kan. 603, 70 Pac. 605.

Note. The better rule would seem to be that in case of a purely public appropriation it suffices to provide for compensation, but the states are in conflict. See 6 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [1st Ed.] 586.

43. Bouvier v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. (N. J. Law) 53 Atl. 1040. Under Comp. Laws, §§ 6242, 6243, 6251—Marquette, etc., R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670.

44. Under Act March 19, 1895 (Laws 1895, p. 142, c. 79)—Lewis County v. Scobey, 31 Wash. 357, 71 Pac. 1029.

45. Greater N. Y. Charter, §§ 822, 824 (Laws 1901, p. 354, c. 466)—In re City of New York, 41 Misc. (N. Y.) 134.

46. Coles v. Midland Tel. Co., 68 N. J. Law, 413.

Release or waiver of damages.—A landowner may waive his right to compensation by dedication,[47] written consent,[48] or by acts adopting or acquiescing in the conditions producing injury to his property,[49] but not by mere failure to appear in the proceedings to take the property.[50] Dedication of land taken will not waive damages to land not taken.[51] A general dedication as to property will not bind a subsequent grantee of part thereof, or those claiming under him, where he bought previously, and was recognized as the owner in the proceedings,[52] nor will consent to building of an elevated railway bind a bona fide purchaser without actual or record notice where there was already one road in the street.[53] Consent of the lessor will not bind the lessee as to his interest.[54] Consent to construction of a horse railway in a highway will not permit an electric railway.[55] Consent by an abutting owner to an elevated railway over the driveway of a street cannot be extended to the sidewalk.[56] A grant by an abutting owner of the right to lay a railroad track in a street under municipal authority will not bind his successor in title as to additional tracks.[57] A waiver of damages on laying out a road is binding, though the road is not actually opened until after the territory is included in an incorporated town.[58] A city may agree with an owner as to waiver of damages for a way across his land and assumption of betterments by the city, though it may be required to go on the land and to obtain the right to go on the land of others to care for surface waters and other private owners may be benefited thereby.[59] A purchaser from an abutting owner after passage of an ordinance authorizing grading of a street may recover for injuries to his property.[60]

§ 6. Measure and sufficiency of compensation.[61]—The general rule as to the measure of damages is that the owner shall be awarded the fair cash market value of property taken, and, as to property injured but not taken, the difference between such value just before and just after the appropriation.[62] The uses to which the

47. Const. art. 6, § 13, art. 17, § 18, allowing the fee in streets to remain in the owner on his dedication, does not prevent such dedication operating as a release of damages for street uses, e. g. by a telephone company—Kirby v. Citizens' Tel. Co. (S. D.) 97 N. W. 3. Dedication of a street prevents recovery of damages to lateral support by a cut in grade—Ross v. Cincinnati, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 43. An owner who granted land in fee to a county for a highway, cannot complain of a grant by the county for construction of a natural gas conduit under the road —Ward v. Triple State N. G. & O. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 116, 74 S. W. 709.

48. Of abutting owner to construction of an elevated railway—Shaw v. New York El. R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 290.

49. An abutting property owner agreeing with a contractor employed in grading a street for the city, for a raising of the grade of his lot and house to correspond with the street grade, thereby assented and contracted to the grading of the street and cannot recover damages from such grading occurring after the agreement—Carson v. St. Joseph, 91 Mo. App. 324.

50. He may object to confirmation of the report on opening and grading a street—In re Opening of Tiffany St., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 525.

51. New York Consolidation Act, § 978, and Greater New York Charter 980, provide a separate award for property taken and property injured but not taken—In re City of New York, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 215. However see Ross v. Cincinnati, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 43, for dedication of street as waiver of injury to lateral support by cut in grade.

52. Toledo v. Weber, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 564.

53. Shaw v. Manhattan R. Co., 79 N. Y. Supp. 915.

54. Consent by city to elevated railroad in front of property leased by it—Storms v. Manhattan R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94.

55. Humphreys v. Ft. Smith T. L. & P. Co. (Ark.) 71 S. W. 662.

56. Where not acted on by the company it cannot be construed as extinguishing his easement where in effect it merely expresses a willingness to give a restricted consent—Shaw v. Manhattan R. Co., 79 N. Y. Supp. 915.

57. Rock Island & P. R. Co. v. Johnson (Ill.) 68 N. E. 549.

58. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Town of Whiting (Ind.) 67 N. E. 933.

59. Rev. Laws, c. 50, § 11—Bell v. Newton (Mass.) 67 N. E. 599.

60. Work was not actually begun before conveyance—Howley v. Pittsburg, 204 Pa. 428.

61. Evidence of damages, see post, § 14.

62. Ely v. Conan (Minn.) 97 N. W. 737; Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Mawman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 66; Dallas v. Taylor (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1005; Chicago v. McShane, 102 Ill. App. 239; Village of Barrington v. Meyer, 103 Ill. App. 124; Chicago v. Anglum, 104 Ill. App. 188; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Hughes (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 976. Grading street —Robinson v. St. Joseph, 97 Mo. App. 503. Opening a street—Meridian v. Higgins (Miss.) 33 So. 1. Public improvement—Wheeler v. Bloomington, 105 Ill. App. 97; property is put by the owner, or to which it is adapted, are to be considered,[63] together with its location and possibility of development.[64] Damages cannot be restricted to value of lands taken if other lands are injured,[65] but they must lie in the same body or continuous tract with lands taken.[66] Where a public improvement is made, the whole improvement must be considered.[67] Nominal damages are sufficient where the interest of the owner is slight and intangible.[68] Remote, speculative, conjectural,[69] or sentimental[70] damages, cannot be allowed.

Rockford v. Doughty, 103 Ill. App. 48. Railroad in front of property—Boyer v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1038; Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Eddings, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 170. Injury from approach to bridge in highway—Lafean v. York County, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 573. Street railway in front of premises and raising track above grade—Farrar v. Midland Elec. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 500. Closing street and building subway under railroad track in another street—Village of Winnetka v. Clifford, 201 Ill. 475. Injury to property used for business purposes—Bailey v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 182 Mass. 537.

The value to the seller and not the buyer must determine—Kennebec Water Dist. v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185. Condemnation of turnpike; the actual value, not the cost of construction at time of taking, is the measure under Const. § 242, and Act March 17, 1896—Richmond & L. Turnpike Road Co. v. Madison County Fiscal Ct., 24 Ky. L. R. 1260, 70 S. W. 1044. What the owner will take for the property or what the jurors would take if they were owners, is immaterial—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. A prudent and beneficial sale is the measure of value—Kennebec Water Dist. v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185. No reduction can be made because of general depreciation of property caused by the improvement—Shimer v. Easton R. Co., 205 Pa. 648. The value before appropriation must not be affected by notice or knowledge that the property was to be taken—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cumnock (Ky.) 77 S. W. 933; Kennebec Water Dist. v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185. The use to which the petitioner puts the property is to be considered in damages to land not taken—South Buffalo R. Co. v. Kirkover (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 366. If a railroad company builds two tracks in a street when authorized to build one, the measure is the difference in the value of injured property as affected by the authorized track and its value as affected by addition of the unauthorized track—Klosterman v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1233, 71 S. W. 6. In condemnation of land from a larger tract by a city for improvement of water works, the rule of damages is the market value of the property taken for all legitimate purposes and the market value as increased by a valuable spring may be considered, though the corporation itself was supplying water to citizens and without regard to the particular necessity of the city for this distinct tract of land—Ely v. Conan (Minn.) 97 N. W. 737.

63. Bailey v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 182 Mass. 537; Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Mawman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 66; South Buffalo R. Co. v. Kirkover (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 366; Boston Belting Co. v. Boston, 183 Mass. 254. Homestead use—Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Eddings, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 170. Land taken or injured by opening highway—Watkins v. Hopkins County (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872. Taking railroad right of way for telegraph line—Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Ohio Postal Tel. Cable Co., 68 Ohio St. 306. Though a peculiar and increased value to the owner cannot be considered—United States v. Honolulu Plantation Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 581.

64. Where extension of a car line would render suburban property valuable—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Hughes (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 976.

65. Grant v. Hyde Park, 67 Ohio St. 166; Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Even though not mentioned in the petition (Const. art. 1, § 16)—Sultan Water & Power Co. v. Weyerhauser Timber Co., 31 Wash. 558, 72 Pac. 114.

66. Injury to one of three adjoining farms by military appropriation will not require damages for the others—[illegible]p v. United States, 24 Sup. Ct. 114.

67. Chicago v. Anglum, 104 Ill. App. 188.

68. Where riparian owners had granted a dam proprietor lower down, all lands that would be overflowed by raising water over twelve feet but only for the purpose of flowage, under stipulation that if land was not so used or should not be used the grantors might buy it back, and the pond was condemned by the city and the rights of all lower riparian owners were taken for a municipal water supply, the interest of the granting riparian owners was so intangible and valueless even though the fee in the land granted for flowage was in their successors of title that a nominal sum granted in the commissioner's report establishing damages was sufficient—In re Brookfield, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 520.

69. Land for railroad—East & W. I. R. Co. v. Miller, 201 Ill. 413. Taking part of stone quarry for a railroad—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Danger too remote an element of damage—Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Mawman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 66. Building of railroad embankment as affecting flow on riparian lands—St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Vaughan (Ark.) 72 S. W. 575. Injury to market value of land on opening a street, because of cost of further street improvements which may be made, cannot be considered as a substantive item of damages, though it may be considered the fact—De Benneville v. Philadelphia, 204 Pa. 51. Damages from interruption of negotiations for sale cannot be allowed where it did not appear that a bona fide transaction was defeated; lands released from conditions imposed to protect New York water supply (Laws 1896, c. 674)—In re Collis, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 368.

70. Homestead taken for depot purposes

Benefits to property not taken cannot be set off against the value of property taken,[71] nor benefits accruing to the owner in common with the general public, even as against damages to property not taken.[72] As to land not taken, benefits may be allowed,[73] and laws providing for a taking of property by municipalities in Wisconsin must provide for set-off of such benefits.[74] Laws regulating set-off of benefits must operate uniformly.[75] Greater safety from elevation of railroad tracks cannot be called speculative benefits.[76] If the improvement as an entirety has resulted in benefit rather than damage to property, though it is damaged by part of the improvement standing alone, no recovery can be had if no property is actually taken.[77] If it does not appear that special benefit from the improvement had not been considered in awarding damages in condemnation, such benefit, if existing, cannot be set off against the damages.[78] If a land owner has paid, or will be obliged to pay, an assessment for street improvements in front of lots, only benefits in excess of such assessment can be off-set against his damages.[79] Where a contract was made between a railroad company, which had commenced construction without acquiring the right and had been enjoined, and the owner, that the company might continue construction on promise to pay damages to be assessed, including value of bridge abutments on the land and of the land taken, and payment of a bonus not to be considered as part of the damages, the owner could recover the value of the land taken, regardless of special benefits to the remainder from construction of the road, no damages being sought for land not taken.[80]

Particular elements of damage.—Danger of fire from a railroad, as increasing insurance rates,[81] or noise incident to operation of an elevated railroad, such —Cane Belt R. Co. v. Hughes (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1020.

71. Railroad appropriation—Guthrie & W. R. Co. v. Faulkner (Okl.) 73 Pac. 290; South Buffalo R. Co. v. Kirkover, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 55.

72. Guthrie & W. R. Co. v. Faulkner (Okl.) 73 Pac. 290. Code, c. 49, § 1946, amended by Laws 1891, p. 149, c. 160—Southport, W. & D. R. Co. v. Owners of Platt Land (N. C.) 45 S. E. 589. Benefits from building street railroad above grade of street—Farrar v. Midland Elec. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 500. General rise in value of realty from railroad in street—Pochila v. Calvert, W. & B. V. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 255. Railroad in front of land—Boyer v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1038. Opening of street—Meridian v. Higgins (Miss.) 33 So. 1. Construction of viaduct in street damaging abutting property—Chicago v. Le Moyne (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 662. Erection of depot in vicinity—Pochila v. Calvert, W. & B. V. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 255. General benefits from an improvement by any corporation other than municipal, cannot be set off against damages resulting therefrom (Const. art. 1, § 14, requires compensation in such cases to be made in money or paid into court regardless of benefits)—Beveridge v. Lewis, 137 Cal. 619, 67 Pac. 1040, 70 Pac. 1083, 59 L. R. A. 581. Pecuniary benefits resulting from construction of a subway in another street by a railroad company as consideration in an agreement with a city as to closing a street, differ only in degree and not in kind from that accruing to the general public—Village of Winnetka v. Clifford, 201 Ill. 475.

73. Benefits resulting from conduit walls on taking of property by city to improve waterway—Brown v. Waterbury, 75 Conn. 727. Benefits of the whole improvement to abutting property on change of grade of a street may be considered—Chicago v. McShane, 102 Ill. App. 239; Village of Barrington v. Meyer, 103 Ill. App. 124; Chicago v. Anglum, 104 Ill. App. 188.

74. Building and repair of city docks (Fed. Const. art. 14, § 1; Const. Wis. art. 1, § 13; Racine City Charter, Laws 1891, pp. 206, 207, 216, c. 40, §§ 65-67, 77)—Lathrop v. Racine (Wis.) 97 N. W. 192.

75. Code Civ. Proc. § 1248, authorizing setting off of benefits on taking property for public use, construed in connection with Const. art. 1, § 14, providing that no right of way shall be appropriated for use of any other than a municipal corporation until compensation is made, irrespective of benefits, must have an unequal operation since it cannot be enforced where a corporation not municipal is seeking to condemn a right of way, and violates the constitutional provision against discrimination not justified by intrinsic differences and requiring uniform operation of general laws—Beveridge v. Lewis, 137 Cal. 619, 67 Pac. 1040, 70 Pac. 1083, 59 L. R. A. 581.

76, 77. Chicago v. Webb, 102 Ill. App. 232.

78. In subsequent action for damages by owner—Lamb v. Elizabeth City, 131 N. C. 241.

79. Damages for change of grade—Carroll v. Marshall (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 1102.

80. McElroy v. Kansas City & I. Air Line, 172 Mo. 546.

81. Building over 100 feet from road—North Arkansas & W. R. Co. v. Cole (Ark.) 70 S. W. 312.

as constitutes a private nuisance, if not taken alone as distinguished from other concurring causes of damage,[82] may be considered; but not mere danger from construction or operation of a railroad.[83] Good will cannot be considered where the business is practically without competition.[84] Damages to rental and market value of lands because of diversion of business cannot be allowed;[85] nor loss in profits in business then conducted on the land;[86] nor increased expense in operating business on lands not adjacent to those taken;[87] nor value of improvements by petitioner on land with consent of the owner,[88] nor of improvements by the owner with notice of the proposed improvement;[89] nor consequential injuries to land not taken in erection of an approach to a county bridge;[90] nor can damages to crops during occupancy of the land without condemnation be added to permanent damages.[91] In opening a street, the cost of improvements to be charged against the property later may be considered, though it cannot be allowed as a substantive item of damages;[92] and the question of probable grade may be determined in assessing damages to land not taken.[93] Where a stone quarry is condemned, the quality and value of the stone quarried and the royalty given by the lessee may be considered in determining the value of the land.[94] The value of land taken by crossing a railroad with a highway must be allowed if no benefits appear.[95] Damages from improper construction and operation of a structure or improvement cannot be allowed in the condemnation proceedings.[96] In taking a railroad right of way, that telegraph lines were built along such way under a contract between the railroad company and a telegraph company creating an additional servitude on the land will not entitle the owner to an accounting of rents and profits received therefor by the railroad company.[97] Damages to a riparian estate from interference with flowage must be limited to deprivation of use of the water.[98] Interest on damages assessed as of the date of the taking may be given though the owner is not required to remove from the property, and does not remove until later.[99]

82. Under St. 1894, pp. 764, 765, c. 548, §§ 8, 9—Baker v. Boston El. R. Co., 183 Mass. 178.

83. Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Mawman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 66.

84. Water plant of private company—Kennebec Water Dist. v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185.

85. Abutting business property affected by lowering a street under a subway on elevation of railroad tracks—Chicago v. McShane, 102 Ill. App. 239.

86. Interference with flow of brook through premises—Boston Belting Co. v. Boston, 183 Mass. 254.

87. Floating logs on other lands than those taken for a dam and flume—Sultan Water & Power Co. v. Weyerhauser Timber Co., 31 Wash. 558, 72 Pac. 114.

88. Railroad tracks—Omaha Bridge & T. R. Co. v. Whitney (Neb.) 94 N. W. 513. Remainder men cannot recover for improvements on land under contract with life tenant, even after death of the latter, since entry was lawful—Chicago, P. & St. L. R. Co. v. Vaughn (Ill.) 69 N. E. 113.

89. Improvements on land before establishment of street grade—Wilbur v. Ft. Dodge (Iowa) 95 N. W. 186.

90. York County Act of Feb. 17, 1860 (P. L. 61) relating to roads and bridges in that county—Lafean v. York County, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 573.

91. Action to recover permanent damages for telegraph line on land—Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 572.

92. De Benneville v. Philadelphia, 204 Pa. 51.

93. Grant v. Village of Hyde Park, 67 Ohio St. 166.

94. Such method of assessment will not separate the value of the stone from that of the land—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

95. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Shelley (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 564.

96. Adjacent property injured from improper construction of a railroad (Code Civ. Proc. § 2221, subds. 1, 2)—Montana R. Co. v. Freeser (Mont.) 74 Pac. 407. Subsequent damages in taking land for approach to railroad bridge—Russell v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. (Ark.) 75 S. W. 725.

97. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Snyder (Iowa) 95 N. W. 183.

98. Boston Belting Co. v. Boston, 183 Mass. 254. Not extended to value of the whole flow, taking for irrigation—Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781. Value of spring as affected—Leiby v. Clear Spring Water Co., 205 Pa. 634. Where land is taken for a municipal reservoir, the value of the submerged land as a foundation for such reservoir, based on the value of the water per million gallons, is not a proper basis of estimation, since the city had acquired rights of lower riparian owners to unobstructed flow, and the owners of such lands merely had a right of use in the flowing water—In re Brookfield, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 520.

99. Taking by Metropolitan park commis-

Accrual and period of damages.—Damages for railroad appropriation must be assessed as of the time of entry;[1] for a street,[2] or a highway, as of the time of opening;[3] for appropriation to lay gas pipe lines in Indiana, as of the time of filing the instrument of appropriation.[4] Compensation for property taken cannot be limited to a temporary use for a public purpose,[5] except as to temporary location of railroad tracks in streets during elevation of regular tracks.[6] Damages to land on both sides of a highway, the owner of which is entitled to certain crossings, from a street railroad therein, may be recovered as for the time between injury of the crossings and their restoration.[7]

Taking rights in public ways.—Damages resulting from taking rights in public ways must be special and not those suffered by the public generally,[8] except as to electric roads in rural highways, as to which general depreciation of property values may be recovered.[9] Where the easement only of a highway is in the public, a landowner may recover compensation for the estate taken for a gas conduit placed therein under a county grant, and damages to adjacent premises.[10] Where a highway is taken by a railroad company which constructed a new road parallel with the old, the county may recover the cost of putting the new road in as good condition as the old road at condemnation.[11] Deposit in a street, with due care, of material and machinery by a railroad company to facilitate the work of elevating its tracks is not an element of damages to abutting owners; but substantial damages must be allowed an abutting owner, injured in the rental value of his land and in the business conducted thereon, by temporary railroad tracks in a street.[12]

Estate or interest appropriated.—In a proceeding to assess damages for land held under a valid title by adverse possession taken for a highway, that the owner had no valid record title is immaterial.[13] That petitioner does not acquire the fee may be considered.[14] In taking a leasehold, the award to the tenant cannot be deducted from the award to owners of fee in remainder.[15] Riparian rights taken require compensation as injuries to property by railroad construction.[16] In taking an established business and plant under an existing franchise, many elements must be noticed.[17] sioners under St. 1894, p. 283, c. 288; St. 1895, p. 504, c. 450—Hay v. Commonwealth, 183 Mass. 294.

1. Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Entry prior to assessment of damages—Van Husan v. Omaha Bridge & T. R. Co., 118 Iowa, 366. Where construction begun under prior entry was restrained and the owner licensed the company to proceed under promise to pay compensation assessed —McElroy v. Kansas City & I. Air Line, 172 Mo. 546.

2. Damages to buildings along line of street—In re City of New York, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 622.

3. Hogsett v. Harlan County (Neb.) 97 N. W. 316.

4. Muncie Natural Gas Co. v. Allison (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 111.

5. Property taken for sewer which will be discontinued after a certain number of years (Act April 14, 1881, p. 234, § 4)—Waterbury v. Platt, 75 Conn. 387.

6. It cannot render compensation unnecessary—McKeon v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 75 Conn. 343.

7. Georgetown & L. Traction Co. v. Mulholland, 25 Ky. L. R. 578, 76 S. W. 148.

8. Injury from locating railroad in street —Bailey v. Boston & P. R. Corp., 182 Mass. 537; St. 1894, p. 764, c. 548, §§ 8, 9; Baker v. Boston El. R. Co., 183 Mass. 178.

9. Shimer v. Easton R. Co., 205 Pa. 648.

10. Ward v. Triple State Natural Gas & Oil Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 116, 74 S. W. 709.

11. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Grayson County (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 64.

12. The damages must be limited to the time of deprivation—McKeon v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 75 Conn. 343.

13. Hohl v. Osborne (Iowa) 92 N. W. 697.

14. Sexton v. Union Stock Yard & Transit Co., 200 Ill. 244. The value of a spring on land through which a railroad is built cannot be allowed unless it is destroyed—Guthrie & W. R. Co. v. Faulkner (Okl.) 73 Pac. 290.

15. St. Louis v. Abeln, 170 Mo. 318. Under Acts 1897, c. 19—Board of Levee Com'rs v. Nelms (Miss.) 34 So. 149.

16. Enjoyment of flowage of natural stream (Comp. St. 1901, § 93a, art. 2, § 41, and Const. art. 1, § 21, construed)—Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781.

17. In taking the plant of a water company the value cannot be limited to the cost of construction at that time of a plant of equal value and modern design, since it is the plant of a company in business and to do so would be to substitute one element of

Sufficiency of damages.[18]—An agreement by a county to spend a certain sum in improvement of a road at request of a landowner, and for his benefit, in lieu of damages where duly carried out, is due compensation for land taken.[19] Deposit of damages before entry of judgment cannot prejudice the landowner.[20]

§ 7. Who is liable for compensation.—Damages to an abutting owner from original establishment of a street grade cannot be recovered from a municipal corporation,[21] unless by statute.[22] A city is liable for change of street grade caused by it.[23] Elevation of a railroad track on the right of way in a city will not render the city liable for damages to property owners.[24] That an order, under which a city built a viaduct in a street, was void, or that it was built in the exercise of police power, will not prevent liability of the city for damages to abutting property.[25] One county cannot be compelled to pay for any portion of a turn pike road lying within the limits of another county.[26] A borough is liable for damages from change of grade of a road on the line between the borough and a township where the borough authorities directed and paid for the change.[27] No personal liability is imposed upon a land owner, against whom an assessment is levied, to pay for lands appropriated by a city in the exercise of eminent domain under a law providing for the levy of such assessment.[28]

§ 8. Condemnation proceedings in general.[29]—There must be a legal proceed-value for the measure of value itself; the appraisers must consider that the plant is an active concern; its present efficiency; the time necessary to build it anew, the time and cost of development to its present state of business and income; the added income and profits, if any, which would accrue to a purchaser during time required to build the plant anew and to develop the business and income; all franchise rights and privileges; the right to continue business thereunder subject to regulation; that the business is practically without competition; that further development may be necessary to develop its use and that only reasonable water rates can be charged; any increase of value due to natural causes; the value of the plant as property in itself. But they cannot consider the fact that the plant will be taken as reducing its value; nor past misbehavior of the company rendering the franchise liable to forfeiture; nor excess of water rates charged in the past; nor impairment of efficiency of administration by combination of many water systems under one management; nor damages to other property not in relation to the system except that of common ownership; nor bad faith of the company in the past—Kennebec Water Dist v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185.

18. Sufficiency of award (In re City of New York, 84 App. Div. [N. Y.] 455) for an additional strip of about three acres on each side of a railroad right of way (Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Brink [S. D.] 94 N. W. 422) of damages to abutting property by operation of railroad tracks on new grade of street and construction of stone wall interfering with view, air and light—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cumnock (Ky.) 77 S. W. 933.

Destruction of a building erected on land with consent of the owner of a private easement in taking land for a street entitles the owner of the land to a substantial award for the building—In re Opening of Summit Ave., 82 N. Y. Supp. 1027.

19. Welch v. Tipperry (Neb.) 92 N. W. 582.

20. Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

21. O'Donnell v. White (R. I.) 53 Atl. 633.

22. The right does not exist at common law—Reilly v. Ft. Dodge, 118 Iowa, 633.

23. Where liability of railroad companies for damages in construction of a viaduct over tracks in a city is determined on appeal, and afterward the city, the parties and the companies stipulated for an entry of judgment requiring the viaduct to be constructed according to a revised plan, the additional cost of which is to be borne by the city, and the city raised the grade of the street in front of improved property to its damage, and the viaduct was built in conformity with such changed grade, the city having caused the work to be done is primarily liable for consequential damages regardless of the relations between it and those performing the construction—Dickerman v Duluth, 88 Minn. 288.

24. By ordinance—Chicago v. Webb, 102 Ill. App. 232.

25. The latter condition is decided under the provision of the Constitution against taking private property for public use without just compensation—Chicago v. Le Moyne (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 662.

26. Under Act June 2, 1887 (Pub. Laws 306) authorizing condemnation of turn pike rights wholly or in part in any county and assessment of damages on the proper county —In re Factoryville & A. Turnpike & Plank Road, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 613.

27. Haggart v. California Borough, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 210.

28. Comp. St. 1901, § 158, c. 12a—Omaha v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 979.

29. Traction Act of 1893, § 14 (Pub. Laws 1893, p. 302; Gen. St. p. 3235) prescribing practice in condemnation, is superseded by Gen. Condemnation Act of 1900. (Pub. Laws ing for condemnation,[30] unless as to persons whose interests do not require it.[31] Only one proceeding in one county is necessary to condemn a telegraph right of way in many counties.[32] One proceeding by a city is sufficient to take property to build a bridge, and may include building of the bridge and the widening of streets leading thereto.[33] An attempt by one railroad company to condemn, for right of way purposes, an entire tract of land belonging to another, part of which is in actual and necessary use for railway purposes and for which a single award is made, is entirely void.[34] Petitioner must be given a reasonable time for condemnation.[35] An application by a railroad company to take land of plaintiff in trespass pending against it for entry before award and appeal therefrom cannot be consolidated with the action nor are the two proceedings merged.[36] A rental contract with a railroad company providing for removal at expiration, will not give a telegraph company the right to a petition to condemn the right of way.[37] Proceedings must affirmatively appear to have substantially followed authorizing statutes.[38] If the statutes provide for a full hearing, special provision for determination of benefits is unnecessary.[39] A conveyance of land after filing of the application and notice to the owner will not affect the proceedings.[40]

Conditions precedent; discontinuance or abandonment.—Petitioner's charter need not describe the route of its line, nor need such line be surveyed if data of a definite location otherwise appear.[41] Proceedings by a railroad are not void because its line was not located by the company or directors but by certain officers.[42] The petitioner may discontinue the proceedings,[43] and a city may abandon proceedings in good faith.[44] An agreement by the parties for abandonment is binding.[45]

1900, p. 79)—Paterson & State Line Traction Co. v. De Gray (N. J. Law) 56 Atl. 250.

30. Rev. St. 1899, § 8251—Mound City Land & Stock Co. v. Miller, 170 Mo. 240.

31. A railroad company which had no notice of proceedings for establishment of a highway across its right of way and was awarded no damages, is not thereby deprived of its property without due process of law and compensation so as to affect the rights of another company which succeeded to its rights, property and franchises—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. State, 159 Ind. 510.

32. Fed. Const. Amend. 14, is not violated by 23 St. at Large, p. 61—South Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. American Tel. Co., 65 S. C. 459.

33. Under Laws 1895, c. 986, authorizing construction of a bridge over the Harlem River by the City of New York—In re City of New York, 174 N. Y. 26.

34. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. (Kan.) 73 Pac. 899.

35. A railroad company which had constructed tracks over land claiming under a deed from the life tenant has a reasonable time after death of the tenant, and suit by the remaindermen for partition within which to condemn the property—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Vaughn (Ill.) 69 N. E. 113. A railroad company entering realty under a lease with a view to purchase when possessed and building part of its line thereon, may restrain the lessor for a reasonable time from dispossessing it of the land so that it may condemn the land by proper proceedings—Winslow v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 188 U. S. 646.

36. The application is no bar to the action—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Gardner (Ga.) 45 S. E. 600.

37. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 120 Fed. 362.

38. Brown v. Macfarland, 19 App. D. C. 525; St. Louis v. Koch, 169 Mo. 587.

39. Drainage of wheat lands under Gen. Laws 1901, c. 258—State v. Board of Com'rs, 87 Minn. 325.

40. Traction railway (3 Gen. St. p. 3235, called the Traction Act)—Houston v. Paterson State Line Traction Co. (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 403.

41. The articles of incorporation of a telephone company need only express the general purpose of the business (Sand. & H. Dig. § 2770)—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276.

42. Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Campbell (Tenn.) 73 S. W. 112.

43. The landowner cannot then compel appointment of commissioners to assess damages to obtain expenses. Code, §§ 3371, 3373, 3379, 3380, providing for condemnation proceedings, and § 3374 regarding abandonment of proceedings by the petitioner within 30 days after entry of the final order by written notice and payment of fees and expenses—County of Onondaga v. White, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 587.

44. While a city attempting to condemn private property for internal improvements may abandon proceedings under the Code, §§ 880, 884, 1999, 2008-2011, it must do so in good faith with intent to surrender completely the project as far as the land involved is concerned, otherwise the first award in such proceedings will bind the municipality—Robertson v. Hartenbower (Iowa) 94 N. W. 857.

45. Independent contract treating pro-

Parties; bond.—The state and a water company need not be made parties to a proceeding by a railroad company to take land held under contract from the state and over which a water company has a right of way.[46] Where land was conveyed to petitioner before proceedings commenced, former owners need not be joined, if the mortgagee is a party.[47] A telegraph company operating on a railroad right of way must be a party to condemnation of the right of way by a telephone company.[48] If dedication for a street is unaccepted, the owner is a necessary party to condemnation by a traction company.[49] A bond supporting a petition to open a private road for a definite sum, double the probable cost of the proceedings as given in the bond, is sufficient though no unconditional promise is made to pay all expenses.[50]

§ 9. Jurisdiction.[51]—The Superior Court of Washington may entertain proceedings by a street railway to take a right of way.[52] In California, the proceedings must be brought in the superior court of the county where the property is situated.[53] A proceeding before a justice, to drain agricultural lands, will lie without regard to the county in which the lands are found, since it affects only the land over which the ditch is to be constructed.[54]

§ 10. Applications; petitions; pleadings.[55]—A greater interest in land than the law allows cannot be requested.[56] If petitioner proceeds as an agent, the agency must be alleged.[57] The public use, and the necessity of taking, must be alceedings as void—Sanborn v. Van Duyne (Minn.) 96 N. W. 41.

46. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. §§ 5637, 5658, 5640—State v. Superior Ct., 31 Wash. 445, 72 Pac. 89.

47. Marquette, etc., R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670.

48. South Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. American Tel. Co., 65 S. C. 459.

49. P. L. 302 (Gen. St. p. 3235)—Pease v. Paterson & S. L. Traction Co. (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 524.

50. Pol. Code, §§ 2692, 2683—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

51. An act providing that civil actions or special proceedings before the clerk of the superior court in North Carolina shall be sent to the superior court before the judge giving him jurisdiction and requiring him to determine all matters of controversy, refers to proceedings in actions so sent before the judge in term and does not authorize an appeal from the clerk's rulings on exceptions to the report of the commissioners in condemnation to the judge at chambers (Code 1883, § 1946 construed in connection with Act 1887, p. 15, c. 276 and Code 1882, § 252)—Cape Fear & N. R. Co. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248.

52. State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 219, 232, 70 Pac. 484.

53. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392, 395 and amendment of 1901 to § 394, construed in connection with §§ 22, 23, and 1243—Santa Rosa v. Fountain Water Co. (Cal.) 71 Pac. 1123.

54. Lile v. Gibson, 91 Mo. App. 480.

55. (Includes maps, plans, etc.).

A petition by a railroad company reciting that the company was organized to construct a railroad from a certain point to another point on the shore of a lake, that it intended in good faith to construct such road from the point just named to a certain point, and thence to the shore of the lake, that it had caused surveys to be made, and had located its road, is sufficient (Under Comp. Laws, § 6243, as amended by Acts 1901, p. 115, Act No. 80)—Marquette, etc., R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670.

Sufficiency of description in instrument of appropriation. Description of lands sought to be condemned for a private road—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915. Description of a right of way for levee purposes in petition so as to confer jurisdiction on the county court, under Rev. St. § 1889, c. 7796, amended by Laws 1893, p. 222—Williams v. Kirby, 169 Mo. 622. A petition to take land for drains for agricultural, sanitary or domestic purposes, need not detail all the space to be taken by the commissioners, under Act March 19, 1895 (Laws 1895, p. 142, c. 79)—Lewis County v. Scobey (Wash.) 71 Pac. 1029. Where attempts to purchase have failed, a railroad company need not include, in one petition, all descriptions in the county necessary for its road—Marquette, etc., R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670. A petition to take land for a turnpike sufficiently describes the road where it sets forth that it begins at one of the terminal points of the turnpike and continues therefrom to a line between a borough named in one county, and a borough named in another county, under Act June 1887 (P. L. 306)—In re Factoryville & A. Turnpike & Plank Road, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 613. A petition to take part of a railroad right of way for a telephone line sufficiently shows the location and construction of the line by statements that posts will be sunk along the main line a certain distance from the center of the track for a certain number of miles—South Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. American Tel. Co., 65 S. C. 459.

56. Gas company cannot ask fee where only easement can be taken (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5104)—Great Western Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Hawkins, 30 Ind. App. 557.

57. Natural person seeking land as agent

leged;[58] but a petition by a city to take land for streets need not allege that the city has made provision to pay the award either by general taxation or special assessment.[59] After filing an application to take land for a street, the city council cannot change its terms to include more or less land by passage of an ordinance.[60] A petition by a telegraph company need not be authenticated by a corporate seal.[61]

A general and specific denial suffices to try the right of a foreign corporation to do business in the state.[62] Where a complaint to take land to widen a street avers that costs, damages, and expenses were to be paid by special assessment on property benefited and not by the state, a demurrer fails to raise the question whether such improvement violates a law limiting indebtedness of cities.[63] That the county fenced the part of land necessary to location of a road may be shown in proceedings to take the land for the road, to prevent the recovery of such expense by the landowner if pleaded.[64] Filing a proper profile is a condition precedent to an order of condemnation.[65]

§ 11. Process; notice, citation, publication.—Summons must be served on,[66] or notice given, all interested persons or occupants,[67] except as to proceedings to take land for a school house in Kansas,[68] or as to a grantee in a conveyance of lands after filing of application and notice of condemnation to the owner,[69] or as to former owners who conveyed to petitioner before proceedings commenced, the mortgagee being a party,[70] or as to a railroad company succeeding another company over whose road a highway was extended;[71] and must include all lands intended to be condemned.[72] Notice must be provided for in a statute regulating the procedure.[73] As to land of a nonresident, it may be served on his agent.[74] Occupants may object for failure to serve all owners.[75]

§ 12. Hearing and determination of right to condemn.[76]—Courts cannot of servant for public use—Beveridge v. Lewis, 137 Cal. 619, 70 Pac. 1083.

58. Land for gas pipe line, under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5103—Great Western Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Hawkins, 30 Ind. App. 557. Complaint by city to establish streets may do so by setting out ordinance showing necessity (Rev. St. 1901, § 2451, par. 2454)—Sanford v. Tucson (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 903. A petition filed with grade crossing commissioners of a city asking that application be made for appointment of a commission to appraise damages from construction of a viaduct through a street, alleging that under an agreement between the commissioners in behalf of the city and a railroad company and under the act creating such commissioners and its mandatory and supplemental acts, a cut was made in a certain highway, is sufficient to show that the cut was the result of a determination by the commissioners that it was necessary to carry out a plan adopted by them (Laws 1890, c. 255, known as the Grade Crossing Act)—People v. Adam, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 306.

59. Rev. Code 1899, § 5962—Lidgerwood v. Michalek (N. D.) 97 N. W. 541.

60. Grant v. Hyde Park, 67 Ohio St. 166.

61. Under Act March 20, 1900 (Pub. Laws 1900, p. 79)—Coles v. Midland Tel. Co., 68 N. J. Law, 413.

62. Act No. 124, 1880, on failure of showing dismissal will follow—South Western Tel. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 108 La. 691.

63. Harrison Act limiting municipal indebtedness—Sanford v. Tucson (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 903.

64. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

65. Kinston & C. R. Co. v. Stroud, 132 N. C. 413.

66. "Special proceeding" for condemnation (Code 1883, §§ 199, 278, 279, 1943)—Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Pennearden Lumber & Mfg. Co., 132 N. C. 644.

67. Otherwise commissioners cannot be appointed (Railroad Law, § 6 [Laws 1890, c. 565] regulating condemnation of lands by steam railroads)—Greenwich & J. R. Co. v. Greenwich, etc., R., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 220.

68. Gen. St. 1901, § 6131—Buckwalter v. School Dist. No. 42, 65 Kan. 603, 70 Pac. 605.

69. 3 Gen. St. p. 3235, called the Traction Act—Houston v. Paterson State Line Traction Co. (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 403.

70. Marquette & S. E. R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670.

71. Const., Bill of Rights, § 21—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. State, 159 Ind. 510.

72. For levee purposes (Laws 1893, p. 208, § 24; Rev. St. 1889, § 7796, amended by Laws 1893, p. 222, and Rev. St. 1889, § 7797)—Williams v. Kirby, 169 Mo. 622.

73. Board of Education v. Aldredge (Okl.) 73 Pac. 1104.

74. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

75. Greenwich & J. R. Co. v. Greenwich, etc., R., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 220.

76. Sufficiency of evidence in proceedings to condemn land for a street to overcome revise a legislative grant on the ground of impropriety or inexpediency,[77] but the right to condemn may be determined, though questions of fact are involved.[78] A law requiring the mode of crossing at intersection of two railroads to be submitted to the circuit court does not apply to a crossing of a railroad by a street or interurban electric railway.[79] The necessity of taking property is a question for the court,[80] but the question, whether other property than that sought can be condemned, cannot be determined.[81] In condemnation of a private passway, the jury cannot determine whether the proposed route is the most practicable or feasible.[82] The necessity of a crossing of one railroad line by another at a certain place is properly determined by a jury of the vicinage whose finding will not be disturbed unless manifestly wrong.[83] A landowner is not entitled to have issues of fact in proceedings to condemn a right of way, which are raised by his answer, tried by a jury before assessment of damages by commissioners or jurors and before appeal taken.[84] The court must find that the new use will not interfere with a public use to which the property is already applied.[85] The right to condemn must appear on the face of the proceedings,[86] and the right to condemn because of failure to purchase must be shown by evidence of negotiations or reasonable effort to purchase.[87] The grade of a highway will be presumed to have been lowered by a street railroad company with consent of the township, if done without objection.[88] Defendant may object that plaintiff is a corporation, the majority of the stock of which is owned by aliens and hence is prohibited from owning land within the state.[89] Appearance and filing cross petition in condemnation, and presumption that certain land within the municipality was part of its territory and under its jurisdiction—Miller v. Sterling, 198 Ill. 523. Sufficiency of report of commissioners as to manner of crossing of a railroad by an interurban electric railway as construed in connection with the street interurban railway Act of 1901, and Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5158b and following—Wabash R. Co. v. Ft. Wayne & S. W. Traction Co. (Ind.) 67 N. E. 674.

Where in proceedings for a right of way before the clerk before hearing and appointment of commissioners, no irreparable damage could result to land owners, a writ of prohibition will not lie to prevent clerk from hearing the condemnation and appointing commissioners under Code, §§ 1945, 1946—Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton (N. C.) 45 S. E. 549. A decree, in certiorari to determine validity of an ordinance giving a street railway company power to lay a road on a highway within a township, holding such ordinance valid, will not estop contestant in a later new proceeding to urge invalidity of the ordinance for reasons not advanced or considered in the first proceeding—Mercer County Traction Co. v. United New Jersey R. & Canal Co. (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 819.

77. Grant to street railway to use streets or bridges within corporate limits cannot be revised at suit of abutting owner—Lange v. La Crosse & E. R. Co. (Wis.) 95 N. W. 952. The question whether petitioner's charter was a fraud and that it was intended to be operated merely as a lumber road and not for public use cannot be considered—Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton (N. C.) 45 S. E. 549.

78. Construction of railroad charter as to right to condemn is for the court—Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Campbell, 109 Tenn. 655.

79. Gen. Railroad Law (Burns' Rev. St. 5158a) construed in connection with Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5468e—Wabash R. Co. v. Ft. Wayne & S. W. Traction Co. (Ind.) 67 N. E. 674.

80. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276.

81. Where right has been granted a telephone company to take an easement on railroad right of way for their line in a manner so as to not interfere with the ordinary use of the right of way, the question of the necessity of taking is first, whether there will be substantial obstruction of the use by the railroad company, and whether the right is necessary to the use of the telephone company—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276.

82. Under St. c. 110, art. 2, §§ 4348-4356—Barrall v. Quick, 24 Ky. L. R. 2393, 74 S. W. 214.

83. Houston & S. R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 109 La. 581.

84. Under Pub. Laws 1893, p. 111, c. 148, & Code, § 1945—Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton (N. C.) 45 S. E. 549.

85. Taking railroad right of way for telegraph line—Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Ohio Postal Tel. Cable Co., 68 Ohio St. 306.

86. Taking right of way for gas pipe line (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5105)—Great Western Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Hawkins, 30 Ind. App. 557.

87. By street railway (Laws 1890, p. 1108, c. 565, § 90 as amended by Laws 1895, p. 791, c. 933)—Schenectady R. Co. v. Lyon, 85 N. Y. Supp. 40.

88. Austin v. Detroit, Y. & A. A. R. (Mich.) 96 N. Y. 35.

89. Under Const. art. 2, § 33—State v. Superior Court (Wash.) 74 Pac. 686.

submission of the issue to the jury, waives defendant's right to question the power of the petitioner to condemn.[90] A property owner need not defend against an apparently separate proceeding which affects him only because of an ulterior purpose therein.[91] The questions of necessity for a water station and the quantity of land required are settled conclusively after condemnation proceedings are regularly had, and the owner has accepted the award.[92] The extension of the work of a boom company to a greater extent than at first established does not show bad faith in its selecting the place appropriated for its business.[93] A decision of the county court confirming the decision of the county commissioners that a proposed highway is a public necessity is final.[94]

§ 13. Commissioners or other tribunal to assess damages; trial by jury.[95]—In taking property for park purposes, an appraiser who had formerly assisted in appraising the value of premises as a member of the real estate board was disqualified.[96] Where an owner appeared before grade crossing commissioners and established a prima facie injury to her property by a change in the grade, the commissioners could not produce witnesses on their own motion controverting such evidence and determine that she is not entitled to relief, but must apply to the supreme court for the appointment of a commissioner to determine the issues of fact.[97] Notice must be given of a new appointment of viewers on a street vacation.[98]

A jury may be had to try damages,[99] but not damages to business under an act limiting the right to a jury to property,[1] nor under the federal constitution as to proceedings under power delegated by a state removed to the federal court,[2] nor, in some cases, where commissioners have already acted.[3] Where the law

90. Du Pont v. Sanitary Dist., 203 Ill. 170.

91. Where there was no apparent connection between two ordinances, one of which authorized condemnation of lands to widen a city street and another a railroad company already operating two tracks in the street to lay two more tracks on payment of costs of condemnation and improvements made necessary by the alteration and the additional tracks, the property owner could not be required to make a defense in the original condemnation by showing the connection between the two ordinances and the real purpose of the railroad in the city in the proceeding, and his failure to object at that time on the ground that such purpose was to procure a right of way for the railroad, will not prejudice him—Pennsylvania Co. v. Bond, 202 Ill. 95.

92. Dillon v. Kansas City, Ft. S. & M. R. Co. (Kan.) 74 Pac. 251.

93. Samish River Boom Co. v. Union Boom Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 670.

94. In re Mitchell, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 277.

95. Compensation of commissioners as costs, see post, § 17.

Laws 1890, p. 1082, c. 565 as amended by Laws 1892, p. 1382, c. 676, authorizing appointment of commissioners to determine compensation to be paid by one railroad for the right to intersect another, is not repealed by Laws 1897, p. 795, c. 754 as amended by Laws 1900, p. 1590, c. 739—Oneonta, etc., R. Co. v. Cooperstown, etc., R. Co., 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 284.

96. State v. District Court, 87 Minn. 268.

97. Court Crossing Act, § 12 as amended by Laws 1898, p. 605, c. 345 as amended by Laws 1890, p. 473, c. 255—People v. Adam, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 620.

98. One filing a petition for appointment of viewers to award damages for vacation of a street and securing a continuance of the jury exclusively for two terms because of doubt as to whether damages may be recovered at law and who then, after six years delay, secures a new jury under the original petition, their award assessing benefits against another owner without notice of the appointment of such new jury, is erroneous —In re Upsal Street, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 150.

99. Proceedings by United States to take land in Hawaii—United States v. Honolulu Plantation Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 581. Damages for crossing one railroad by another—Houston & S. R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 109 La. 581.

1. Stat. Mass. 1895, c. 488, § 15—Sawyer v. Commonwealth, 182 Mass. 245, 59 L. R. A. 726.

2. The state procedure applies—Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 122 Fed. 156.

3. One whose property is not taken or entered upon by the action of the water board in taking the water of a river, or whose property is not adjacent to the river or crossed by or adjacent to any railroad or public way, the location of which is changed by construction of the water works, has no right to a jury trial if dissatisfied with damages allowed by commissioners, under Metropolitan Water Supply Act (St. 1895, p. 573, c. 488) § 14, construed in connection with § 15 (St. 1895, p. 575, c. 488)—Fairbanks v. Commonwealth (Mass.) 67 N. E. 335.

allows a second jury of twelve on filing of exceptions to the verdict of the first jury of seven by the owners, the authorities and not the owners must demand the second jury.[4] A law providing in part that roads shall be laid out by a jury of free holders is valid.[5] A decision of the court that the jury should determine damages in a railroad condemnation authorizes impaneling a jury.[6]

§ 14. The trial, or inquest, and hearing on the question of damages.—Where part of a highway is discontinued by the railroad commissioners under statutory authority, a proceeding may be had to assess damages to abutting lands.[7] After complaint filed in the proper county in condemning a right of way for a ditch, plaintiff cannot change the place of trial at his own instance by recitals in the summons.[8] Where a railroad divides land, there is no presumption that the owner will not be given the privilege of crossing.[9] Where petitioner files a map of location and alleges inability to agree on a reasonable purchase price, he must prove such facts.[10] Refusal of a demand to take testimony in writing will not affect the award where not renewed or insisted upon.[11] Refusal of the jury to hear arguments of counsel after testimony and view, will not invalidate the award where it does not appear that the party objecting insisted on argument or that it would have been refused if he had insisted.[12] A jury appointed to determine compensation for taking property for public improvements cannot consider the question whether the city had acquired title by prescription.[13] Damages need be assessed separately, only in highway proceedings.[14] Whether a proceeding by a city to take land for a park is a continuation of a former proceeding, after reversal on appeal by part of defendants, or a new one based on a new ordinance, the first verdict cannot be made the basis for the second.[15] Deposit of damages before entry of judgment cannot prejudice the landowner.[16] A plea is necessary, in highway proceedings, to admit evidence, after contest filed, that the county fenced the part of the land necessary to be fenced for the highway.[17]

The jury may make their verdict from knowledge gained on a view as well as from opinions and conclusions as to the extent of damages given by witnesses,[18] and commissioners are not bound by the technical rules of evidence, or as to their source of information, but may be guided by their own judgment and experience rather than by the opinions of witnesses.[19] That witnesses were examined on the

4. Under Rev. St. D. C. c. 11, §§ 263-265—Brown v. Macfarland, 19 App. D. C. 525.

5. Rev. St. § 3369, construed in connection with Civ. Code, art. 2640, and those immediately preceding—Fuselier v. Police Jury, 109 La. 551.

6. Where in condemnation proceedings by a railroad company, the court settled the issue as to whether a bona fide offer to purchase was made by the company before beginning the proceedings as being on the evidence for determination by the jury giving the land owner an opportunity later to offer additional evidence, the refusal of another judge to hear such evidence will not oust jurisdiction to impanel the jury—Detroit & T. Shore Line R. Co. v. Hall (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1066.

7. Pub. St. 1891, c. 159, § 18—Leighton v. Concord & M. R. R. (N. H.) 55 Atl. 938.

8. Code Civ. Proc. § 2210—State v. District Court (Mont.) 74 Pac. 200.

9. A right of way divided a stone quarry and separated the water front from the upland—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

10. Code 1883, c. 49—Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Pennecarden Lumber & Mfg. Co., 132 N. C. 644.

11. Law requiring testimony to be taken does not require a stenographer—Benton Harbor Terminal R. Co. v. King (Mich.) 91 N. W. 641.

12. Benton Harbor Terminal R. Co. v. King (Mich.) 91 N. W. 641.

13. 4 Starr & C. Ann. St. p. 166, c. 24, par. 59—Thomas v. Chicago (Ill.) 68 N. E. 653.

14. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 121, § 46—Hamilton v. Commissioners of Highways, 203 Ill. 269.

15. In re West Terrace Park (Mo.) 75 S. W. 973.

16. Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

17. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

18. Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498; Groves, etc., R. Co. v. Herman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 36; Petzel v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 103 Ill. App. 210. But they cannot disregard the evidence and determine their verdict from the view alone—Du Pont v. Sanitary Dist., 203 Ill. 170.

assumption that petitioner would build a dock to take the place of one condemned did not make a stipulation binding on it to build such new dock, where the stipulation was not recognized in the petition nor the judgment.[20]

Admissibility of evidence.[21]—The evidence must be confined to the market value of the property,[22] and cannot include mere offers for its purchase or lease,[23] or prices paid for it several years before,[24] or condition of the property long before appropriation,[25] or the value or extent of improvements upon land not taken or affected,[26] or the amount that the owner and other witnesses would take for property similarly situated,[27] or the effect of the improvement on property in general.[28] The general selling price should be fixed from a knowledge of the price

19. In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207.

20. Du Pont v. Sanitary Dist., 203 Ill. 170.

21. Where renditions made by plaintiff in a suit to recover damages to abutting property by a street railroad, of the property for taxes were admitted in evidence, plaintiff could show that the valuations were made by the assessor—Boyer v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. (Tex.) 76 S. W. 441. Where it appeared in an action by a county for damages for appropriation of a highway by a railroad which had built a new road parallel to the old, that the railroad company had made excavations adjacent to the new road after construction, damages may be allowed for such injury even though the pleadings did not authorize a recovery on that ground, the jury being liable to consider such evidence without an instruction—St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Grayson County (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 64. In recovery of damages for land taken for a town way, evidence as to condition of a side walk immediately in front of the premises before and after taking may be given, especially where limited to description of the premises and for that purpose (Pub. St. c. 49, §§ 79-105)—Carraher v. Inhabitants of Revere, 182 Mass. 427. Where a land owner claimed as a part of damages by condemnation by a city of a right of way through land to make a water way to carry waters of a brook that he had been deprived of the right to shift the bed of the brook so as to increase the cellar room of his building, evidence as to the extent of such damage did not prejudice the city, where the court had found that it was not proved with reasonable certainty and assessed only nominal damages; the land owner may show that for years the flow of a brook had increased to more than its former or natural flow because of erection of a number of mills on the water shed, where the court had found that the conduit through which the brook flowed was large enough to carry away all the water at all times—Brown v. Waterbury, 75 Conn. 727.

In taking the property and franchise of a water company, evidence may be heard: To show the actual construction of the plant with proper allowance for depreciation, though this is not conclusive; to show the quality of water furnished, the services given the public, the fitness of the plant, the source of water supply to meet reasonable needs, present and future; to show the actual rates charged in the past and actual earnings, the value of such evidence depending on the reasonableness of the rates; the amount for which the plant may be reproduced though this is not conclusive (however capitalization of the income even at reasonable rates will not suffice to show present value of the plant, though admissible)—Kennebec Water Dist. v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185.

22. Dallas v. Taylor (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1005; Kennebec Water Dist. v. Waterville, 97 Me. 185; Chicago, R. I. & T. R. Co. v. Douglass (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 449. Fair market value before and after improvement—Village of Barrington v. Meyer, 103 Ill. App. 124. Specific damages to spring on land—Leiby v. Clear Spring Water Co., 205 Pa. 634; Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Price for which lands are generally held for sale in the ordinary course of business in the neighborhood—Friday v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 204 Pa. 405.

23. Smith v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 205 Pa. 645. Offers five years before condemnation—Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Eddings, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 170. Testimony of owner as to offers to lease or purchase—Sharp v. United States, 24 Sup. Ct. 114.

24. Price paid by owner seven years before—Lanquist v. Chicago, 200 Ill. 69. Evidence of what the owner paid for two lots sought to be condemned cannot be received where the owner bought them and another lot for a lump sum so that the amount given for each lot could not be determined—Id.

25. In action by county for damages against a railroad company from excavations near a new road which the company had built parallel to the old road, because of its appropriation of the latter, testimony as to the condition of the old road long before appropriation or the new road long after completion is inadmissible—St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Grayson County (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 64.

26. United States v. Honolulu Plantation Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 581.

27. Building railroad in street—Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Scurlock (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 366.

28. Construction of railroad—Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Eddings, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 170. An opinion expressed by witnesses that any farm was depreciated in value by location of a pipe line across it, will not authorize testimony that prices of farms in general in the county had not been affected by the location of pipe lines across them—Trussell v. Western Pennsylvania Gas Co., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 423. Where an abutting owner testified in a suit to recover damages from building of a street railroad in front of his property, that his business was interfered of lands generally held for sale, and at which they are sold in the course of ordinary business in the neighborhood.[29] As to lands of different sorts, values may be placed on different parts so divided in the segregate,[30] and testimony may be heard concerning several tracts of land jointly, though owned in severalty by different owners.[31] It may be shown that a purchaser could not be found in the county.[32] Where the court had determined that the use of the lands sought was public, evidence to show an intention of a different use is inadmissible.[33] Evidence of general uses to which property may be put cannot be admitted to lessen damages to the use to which it is put,[34] nor evidence that an entire tract would sell more advantageously if cut up into smaller tracts.[35] Exposure of buildings to fire, as increasing insurance rates, may be shown,[36] and increased expense in operation because of proximity of the improvement,[37] and reasonable probability of increased value of the property in the future.[38] A map showing largely imaginary, though possible, developments of the land, cannot be admitted.[39] A lease given by operators of a stone quarry to owners, fixing a royalty, may be admitted to show value of the land and leasehold interest.[40]

Witnesses familiar with the land and improvements, and with actual sales of land in the vicinity, may testify as to damages.[41] Unqualified witnesses cannot testify as to probable efficiency of an improvement to serve the public.[42]

Sufficiency of evidence.[43]—On taking land for a right of way, an instrument with by operation of the road, but on cross examination testified to an increase in his business, proof of general improvement in business in the city could not be given in rebuttal—Boyer v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. (Tex.) 76 S. W. 441.

29. Friday v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 204 Pa. 405.

30. Land consisting of both tide and uplands—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

31. Under Comp. Laws, § 6363, concerning condemnation by Union Depot Companies—Benton Harbor Terminal R. Co. v. King (Mich.) 91 N. W. 641.

32. Taking part of stone quarry—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

33. Sultan W. & P. Co. v. Weyerhauser Timber Co., 31 Wash. 558, 72 Pac. 114.

34. Evidence by a railroad company constructing tracks in a street in front of certain property, that the property was increased in market value for general purposes, cannot be admitted to lessen the damages of the abutting owner whose evidence showed that the property was injured as a homestead for which purpose he occupied it, since the railroad company had no right to lessen its value for home purposes without compensation—Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Scurlock (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 366.

35. The owner is entitled to the value of the land as taken, and to any loss resulting from the taking to the remainder of the tract for uses to which it was adapted or to which it had been applied—Watkins v. Hopkins County (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

36. Railroad over 100 feet from building—North Arkansas & W. R. Co. v. Cole (Ark.) 70 S. W. 312.

37. Blasting in quarry through which railroad is built—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

38. Suburban property as affected by future extension of street car line—St. Louis, S. W. R. Co. v. Hughes (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 976.

39. Sexton v. Union Stock Yard & Transit Co., 200 Ill. 244.

40. Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

41. Smith v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 205 Pa. 645; Leiby v. Clear Spring Water Co., 205 Pa. 634. They must be acquainted with the market value of the land—Chicago, R. I. & T. R. Co. v. Douglass (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 449.

42. Witness without special knowledge who had not investigated a proposed sewer system—Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Mawman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 66. See, also, Evidence, § 9.

43. In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207. To show damage to lands not taken in condemnation for a street—Miller v. Sterling, 198 Ill. 523.

In action to determine conflicting claims to award for land taken for a street to show that part of the land had previously been dedicated as a street so that defendant had no right to compensation—Gardiner v. Baltimore, 96 Md. 361. To show that a building had been erected before establishment of grade of a street on which it abutted, so as to entitle the owner to damages by the grading of the street in accordance with established plan—In re City of New York, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 355. Evidence in proceedings to condemn a turnpike road in connection with the fact that a certain par value of its stock was selling at that price at time of condemnation, to show that such price was just compensation for the property (St. § 4748B)—Richmond & L. Turnpike Road Co. v. Madison County Fiscal Ct., 24 Ky. L. R. 1260, 70 S. W. 1044.

Proof to estop land owners from recovering for a change of grade producing injury to buildings fronting on a street, must be clear and conclusive as to existence of facts charging them with notice of the inten-conveying a right of way to the company on certain compensation, as liquidated damages, obtained with a view to constructing the road without binding the company, and on which it entered and took the land, is conclusive as to the amount of damages.[44] Testimony of a witness as to value of property cannot be given great weight merely because he is willing to purchase it.[45]

Instructions.[46]—The jury may be instructed as to the interest acquired by the tion to regulate and change such grade—In re City of New York, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 525.

Evidence in a proceeding to take land adjoining a river for railroad purposes that when the water rose high enough in the river to overflow an embankment which was intended to be erected by a railroad company, it would wash out defendant's lands not taken, is speculative and insufficient to support a verdict for damages to such land where evidence of experts was undisputed that the current of water would be checked in flowing over the embankment by back water on the lands not taken so that no washout would result—St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Vaughan (Ark.) 72 S. W. 575.

Where it appeared that commissioners had awarded a certain amount to a hospital as damages from lowering the grade of an adjoining street, that access to the hospital was obtained from another street already graded, and to a certain degree over land fronting on street to be graded, and the only evidence was the testimony of an expert that it would cost a certain amount to lower the building, it was apparent that the amount awarded was based on an erroneous principle or was without foundation though substantial damage was done to the buildings. The construction of New York Consolidation Act, § 978 (Laws 1882, c. 410) and Greater New York Charter, §§ 980, 988 (Laws 1901, c. 466)—In re City of New York, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 215.

44. Chicago, R. I. & T. R. Co. v. Douglass (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 449.

45. Friday v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 204 Pa. 405.

46. An instruction in a proceeding to take part of a stone quarry, which was such that the jury could not assume that the amount of rental paid at the time of trial would be the fair rental value for the future, cannot be given—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. An instruction that damages must be assessed relating to the time of the condemnation, amounts to an instruction that relation must be had to the time of the filing of the instrument of appropriation—Muncie Natural Gas Co. v. Allison (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 111. Where the jury were permitted to view premises sought for a railroad right of way and were charged that the view was to allow them to obtain a more intelligent idea of the property and that they might consider their observation together with the testimony, rejecting what they believed from their view to be false, and in case the evidence was conflicting to resort to knowledge gained by the view as determining the verdict, and that the testimony of any witness if false might be disregarded entirely unless corroborated by credible evidence, the instruction amounted only to a charge that if there was a conflict in the testimony they might resort to the evidence of their own senses in order to settle the damages—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

Sufficiency of particular instructions. An instruction in proceedings to take land for a private pass way failing to state the quantity of land required, is not defective where the jury knew fully the amount of land necessary—Barrall v. Quick, 24 Ky. L. R. 2393, 74 S. W. 214. An instruction stating that the jury were not bound to believe witnesses unless worthy of credit but might disregard the testimony if they believed from their view and all the evidence that it was not true, was wrong—Du Pont v. Sanitary Dist., 203 Ill. 170. An instruction that railroads are public necessities and that such use of land is a public use, was proper, where other instructions gave the jury the question whether it was necessary to take the land for a public use—Detroit & T. Shore Line R. Co. v. Hall (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1066. The appropriating party in an action for damages by the unlawful grading of a street, is not prejudiced by the introduction in the case of an incorrect rule of damages, where the rule tended rather to diminish the recovery than increase it—Friedrich v. Milwaukee (Wis.) 95 N. W. 126. An instruction that the jury should give the value of all the land to the owner did not exclude damages for anything on or under the land or damages resulting to other land, where other instructions state that the value was its worth in consideration of any injury sustained to the land remaining—Detroit & T. Shore Line R. Co. v. Hall (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1066. Where part of a stone quarry in active operation and valuable only for that purpose, was taken for a railroad right of way the jury were properly instructed that it might consider the quality of stone it produced and its value, or the royalty given by the lessee, in determining the value of the land, since this did not separate the value of the stone from that of the land—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Where there is evidence in locating a highway that it would be of public utility, an instruction cannot be given that benefits to a land owner should be considered together with all the other evidence, since they should have been instructed to consider only that bearing properly on the issue of property and benefits—Angell v. Hornbeck (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 237. An instruction in proceedings to take land for an approach to a bridge which will injure a levee of the owner, that damages which he may thereafter suffer cannot be considered if possible to be prevented by proper construction and maintenance of the work, is not cured by another instruction that the jury should consider the reasonable cost of a new levee, the market value of a steam-taking,[47] and that they "can" consider the purpose for which the property is used.[48] An erroneous instruction on the measure of damages is not cured by another giving a correct measure.[49] If defendant fears the jury will give too great effect to certain testimony, he must guard against danger by requesting instructions.[50]

§ 15. View of appropriated premises.[51]—A view of the premises sought to be taken may be had,[52] but it is not absolutely required by the federal constitution.[53] In a proceeding to condemn land for a turnpike, a map of the entire road need not be attached to the report of the jury of view, though a map showing definitely the points between which the road is condemned is necessary.[54]

§ 16. Verdict, report or award; judgment thereon, and lien and enforcement of judgments.—A final order nunc pro tunc as of the date of entry of judgment takes effect from the actual date though it recites an earlier one.[55] Adjustment of damages from construction of a dam does not include damages to riparian owners from subsequent impeded navigation of the river;[56] and damages caused by seepage of water from a canal resulting from faulty construction are not included

boat landing at the place and the increased danger of overflow on the owner's plantation—Russell v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. (Ark.) 75 S. W. 725. Where in condemnation proceedings to take lands for a dock line, a cross-petition was filed alleging that other lands not described would necessarily be taken and asking damages therefor, an instruction that the jury were not confined to the petition but could render a verdict for the value of all lands, which under the evidence, would be taken and requiring them to consider the values in evidence allowing the market value of the lands whether described in the petition or not, is erroneous—Du Pont v. Sanitary Dist., 203 Ill. 170. An instruction that the market value of property taken cannot be reduced by benefits from the construction or operation of drainage canals by petitioner, but such benefits, if any, must be confined to property not taken, and the rights in the property and uses of which defendant would be deprived, or the use, benefit and enjoyment of which would be interfered with physically, is misleading and inconsistent—Id. On assessment of damages to land by erection of a telephone line, an instruction is incorrect which charges the jury that they are not bound to take the opinions of any witness though they might adopt such opinions so far as reasonable but that they could consider their own experience as to the effect of such structure on market value of abutting property, and that if such property in their opinion was affected thereby the compensation should be made accordingly, or if otherwise, the award should be proportionately less—De Gray v. New York & N. J. Tel. Co., 68 N. J. Law, 454. Where a railroad company taking a right of way stipulated to build culverts to carry water across such right of way, but did not bind itself not to obstruct the flow of such water, or to carry it over at any particular place as should be convenient to defendants as the water should naturally flow, they could not object to a charge permitting the jury to consider any interference with the carrying of water over the right of way as an element of damages, on the ground that such element had been eliminated—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Where the jury were permitted to view premises sought to be taken for a railroad right of way and were charged that the view was to allow them to obtain a more intelligent idea of the property and that they might consider their observation together with the testimony, rejecting what they believed from their view to be false, and in case the evidence was conflicting to resort to knowledge gained by the view as determining the verdict, and that the testimoney of any witness if false, might be disregarded entirely unless corroborated by credible evidence, amounted only to a charge that if there was a conflict in the testimony they might resort to the evidence of their own senses in order to settle the damages—Id.

47. After proper instructions as to elements of damage—Sexton v. Union Stock Yard & Transit Co., 200 Ill. 244.

48. Street railroad—Boyer v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. (Tex.) 76 S. W. 441.

49. Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Mawman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 66.

50. Carraher v. Inhabitants of Revere, 182 Mass. 427.

51. Weight to be given to knowledge obtained on view in making verdict, see ante, § 14.

52. Petzel v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 103 Ill. App. 210; Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498; Sexton v. Union Stock Yard & Transit Co., 200 Ill. 244; Groves & S. R. R. Co. v. Herman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 36; Du Pont v. Sanitary Dist., 203 Ill. 170.

53. 23 St. at Large, p. 61, giving telegraph companies power to take railroad rights of way is not in violation of Fed. Const. Amend. 14, for failing to provide for a view—South Carolina & G. R. Co. v. American Tel. Co., 65 S. C. 459.

54. In re Factoryville & A. Turnpike & Plank Road, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 613.

55. The right to make such an order is doubted—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

56. Sultan Water & P. Co. v. Weyerhauser Timber Co., 31 Wash. 558, 72 Pac. 114.

in an award to the owner in condemnation of the land for the canal.[57] Where an award was not paid but petitioner entered and used the land for the purpose for which it was condemned, the owner had a lien on the land for the award enforceable in equity; and the waiver of the lien by permitting the line to be constructed before payment, if effective, was complete on construction without regard to lapse of time.[58]

Sufficiency.[59]—The award of the commissioners is sufficient unless palpable error in principles on which damages are assessed appears.[60] That a judgment was in personam and did not, in form, require payment of damages, but appropriation of the land, will not prejudice the owner where the damages were paid into court.[61] Where a judgment provides that unless the award is paid within a certain time the proceedings shall abate and the land cannot be occupied until payment is made, defendant cannot object that damages are assessed against the drainage district instead of the county though the district is not responsible.[62] An order in proceedings to alter a highway in a county under township organization may properly provide for assessed damages to be paid to owner before the judge, or to the township trustee if he refuses to accept.[63]

Validity.—The report of commissioners must conform to the statute.[64] A report of commissioners against the free judgment of their majority, but following erroneous advice of the corporation counsel under stress of a threat to have them removed with loss of fees, is void.[65] The award of commissioners is not erroneous because they heard incompetent evidence, where they viewed the property, and damages awarded are established by competent evidence.[66] A condemnation judgment is valid though payment is made before it is due.[67] A quotient ver-

57. Turpen v. Turlock Irr. Dist. (Cal.) 74 Pac. 295.

58. Where a judgment was rendered when the owner was in the employ of the railroad company and in easy circumstances, but the railroad company was financially embarrassed and payment was requested by the owner several times thereafter from the railroad company and its successor, that he permitted the first company to build the line without paying the award did not waive his equitable lien—Southern R. Co. v. Gregg (Va.) 43 S. E. 570.

59. An award, by a jury who viewed the land and were properly instructed as to elements of damage, which was in excess of the value fixed by plaintiff's witnesses but less than the value fixed by defendant's witnesses, was not necessarily inadequate—Sexton v. Union Stock Yard & Transit Co., 200 Ill. 244.

Where appraisers gave a certain sum for property taken for park purposes, in case "buildings and improvements" should not be removed, and another sum should they be removed, they did not fail to value the buildings alone so as to render the award invalid, since the word "improvements" had reference to the attachments and fixtures necessarily constituting a part of the building and was equivalent to the word "building" under city charter arranging for assessment of damages in condemnation of property for park purposes—State v. District Ct., 87 Minn. 268.

Where injury to two lots is alleged from a railroad tunnel, and it appears that one was injured but the other suffered only nominal damages, and damages were awarded in a lump sum, the entire judgment is erroneous if it does not show an assessment as to each lot—Peak v. Kings County Elec. R. Co., 81 N. Y. Supp. 926.

60. In re Brookfield, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 520.

61. Condemnation by municipal corporation—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

62. Taking land for drainage purposes (Act March 19, 1895 [Laws 1895, p. 142, c. 79])—Lewis County v. Schobey, 31 Wash. 357, 71 Pac. 1029.

63. Shively v. Lankford, 174 Mo. 535.

64. Where a village board of water commissioners having authority to purchase or condemn water rights and property necessary for a water supply, bring condemnation to take property of a water works already supplying the village, and commissioners appointed to make an award refuse to follow the statute as to appraisal of such property including good-will and franchises of the company at full value, and determine such value as provided by a contract between the village and the water works company, void because ultra vires, a new appraisal will be ordered before new commissioners—In re Board of Water Com'rs (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 348.

65. Taking land for street—In re City of New York, 83 N. Y. Supp. 1081.

66. Change of street grade—In re Comesky, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 137.

67. Code Civ. Proc. § 1251—Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

dict as to damages is not void in the absence of a binding agreement by the jury to accept it.[68]

Effect or conclusiveness.[69]—The judgment is conclusive as to successors in property to petitioner,[70] but it is not a bar to a subsequent action for damages for faulty construction of the improvement.[71] The finding of commissioners as to value of land taken for railroad terminal purposes and benefits is conclusive.[72] Commissioners who dismissed a claim by a landowner for want of jurisdiction through mistake or inadvertence cannot reopen their decision.[73] Where there was a settlement by the parties, a decree entered by consent, giving an easement for the right of way as described, had the same effect as a deed of the right of way.[74] A stipulation signed by the attorney for petitioner, requiring the latter to build a new dock on real estate remaining after land is taken for dock purposes according to specifications, will not bind the petitioner, where the judgment did not mention the stipulation.[75]

68. The verdict is properly regarded as not arrived at by chance where six or eight jurors file affidavits that they had regarded the evidence and the instructions merely, and five affidavits stating that while a quotient estimate was made there was no agreement for its acceptance; an affidavit by a right of way agent of the railroad that the quotient verdict was adopted by previous agreement, will be presumed to be on information alone and incompetent, where it does not disclose whether on knowledge or information—Groves & S. R. R. Co. v. Herman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 36.

69. A finding that damages were assessed by taking into consideration the existence of the brook taken by a city for a waterway, and its walls, and the extent to which they affected the value of the land taken, did not support a claim that the land covered by the side walls of the old water way was regarded by the court as unincumbered—Brown v. Waterbury, 75 Conn. 727. Where in proceedings to open a street a city designates a person in possession of property as its owner and damages are awarded by the jury to him, and it appears in the proof that he purchased such property before the day of dedication of the street, the city after several years cannot deny title in him and claim that the grantor, by signing the dedication, bound him or persons claiming under him, especially where it appears that such signing was done generally and without naming a specific portion of the property—Toledo v. Weber, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 564. A judgment in condemnation under statutes allowing a municipality to obtain land as provided by general statutes, to convey it to the United States for naval purposes, which general statute relates to condemnation proceedings for such purpose, and the award of damages therefor, which were paid to and accepted by the owner without appearing or taking in appeal, is res judicata in an action against one holding the land for the U. S. for its recovery on account of the unconstitutionality of the statute authorizing the proceedings by one claiming title through such owner—Branch v. Lewerenz, 75 Conn. 319. Where the common council of the city brought proceedings to condemn property for street purposes under laws in force and the proceedings were pending on appeal when another law became effective as to the city transferring to the board of public works the authority to condemn property but providing that proceedings begun before its passage should be carried forward by the proper department, and placing on the city attorney the duty to apppear in all appeals concerning the city, it will be assumed that he was discharging his duty and acting with full authority in asking for a judgment on the verdict in the appeal over the objections of the property owner, and the judgment will bind the city—Heinl v. Terre Haute (Ind.) 66 N. E. 450.

70. Where one railroad company failed to present to the commissioners a claim for damages for establishing a highway across its right of way, another company succeeding to its rights. franchise and property after the final order establishing and opening the highway, cannot show on mandamus to compel it to build the highway crossing, that it will be compelled to expend considerable funds in building such crossing, since ample opportunity was given for the adjustment of claims in the proceedings for location of the highway—Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. State, 159 Ind. 510.

71. A judgment in proceedings by a sanitary district to take land for a channel to divert a river in which plaintiff joined with other joint owners of a tract cut by the channel and which included a portion afterward put in crops by him, in a cross petition alleging that the tract constituted an entire dairy farm and asking damages for injuries to it, and for loss of shipping facilities which did not appear to have been recovered, is not a bar to his recovery in an action against a district for damages from an overflow, because of negligent construction of the channel, where it did not appear that an overflow would have resulted had the channel been constructed according to specifications exhibited in the condemnation proceedings, nor whether it was built according to such plans—Sanitary Dist. v. Ray, 199 Ill. 63.

72. Under Code, c. 49, §§ 1945, 1946—Southport, W. & D. R. Co. v. Owners of Platt Land (N. C.) 45 S. E. 589.

73. Assessment of damages for change of grade—People v. Leonard, 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 269.

74. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Snyder (Iowa) 95 N. W. 183.

75. Du Pont v. Sanitary Dist., 203 Ill. 170.

§ 17. Costs and expenses.[76]—Assessors cannot allow a prevailing party on hearing to tax as costs sums voluntarily paid by him as compensation for their services; nor the amount paid under an agreement between counsel for hiring a stenographer;[77] and commissioners cannot receive compensation for days when nothing was accomplished at their meetings though their failure resulted from acts of the corporation counsel.[78] A petitioner is liable for court costs and attorney's fees for defendant, on refusal to pay the award.[79] The general statute relating to costs where the recovery exceeds the amount offered before trial applies to condemnation proceedings.[80] Where it appears, in proceedings to locate a highway, that the county has fenced such land, in considering the costs, the expense of fencing should be added to the award, and if the sum is greater than the amount fixed by commissioners, the landowner may recover costs.[81] After dismissal of proceedings, a city is not liable for attorney's fees in defense unless it wrongfully and needlessly continued the proceedings while able to have them dismissed.[82] When plaintiff seeks to discontinue the proceedings before appointment of commissioners, the landowner cannot compel such appointment so as to obtain his expenses.[83] An allowance for costs previous to appointment of commissioners in charge of a street grade is discretionary and cannot be taxed by the clerk.[84] The costs in proceedings for construction of drains must be assessed

76. Construction of various statutes as to costs and expenses. Laws 1896, c. 393, providing that in condemnation by the city of New York, the corporation counsel shall furnish a clerk to the commissioners, is not impliedly repealed though omitted from New York Charter of 1897, and commissioners are not authorized to appoint a clerk where furnished one by the corporation counsel—In re Board of Public Improvement. 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 351. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, p. 839, c. 47, § 10, requiring the court to make an order on dismissal of condemnation proceedings by petition before entry of final order or failure to make payments within the time named, for payment of costs, expenses and attorney's fees by the petitioner as may seem just, does not apply to proceedings under Act July 1, 1897, as amended by Laws 1901, p. 117—Rieker v. Danville (Ill.) 68 N. E. 403. Code Civ. Proc. § 3372, providing that if compensation awarded by the commissioner exceeds the offer of petitioner for the property, the court in its final order shall direct defendant to recover costs, as allowed in the supreme court, including those for proceeding before and after notice of trial, refers to trial before appointment of commissioners and the land owner is not entitled to costs in proceedings before the commissioners as though a trial had been had—In re Brooklyn Union El. R. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 567. A provision in a city charter that if the award of appraisers of land taken for park purposes should be set aside, the court may recommit the matter to the same appraisers or appoint new ones, allowing reasonable compensation for services and award of costs, including such compensation, is not unconstitutional as imposing undue hardship on a party appealing, but merely relates to costs and disbursements connected with the trial—State v. District Ct., 87 Minn. 268. The charter provision for costs in the Act of 1876, c. 198, giving petitioner the right to abandon condemnation proceedings after final order, not having been adopted in § 3374 of the Code passing in 1390, it cannot be held that costs and expenses of the owner may be included in the order of discontinuance but plaintiff is entitled to an order giving leave to discontinue on payment of taxable costs of parties appearing, and of motions, and compensation of a guardian ad litem of infant defendant, to be fixed under a rule of court relative to such compensation, opportunity being given plaintiff to file answering affidavits (Code, § 3374 and Laws 1876, c. 198, amending Laws 1850, c. 140, § 18)—Onondaga County v. White, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 587.

77. Rev. Laws, c. 165, § 54—Boston Belting Co. v. Boston, 183 Mass. 254.

78. In re City of New York, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 433.

79. Local Imp. Act, § 94, as amended by Laws 1901, p. 117—Rieker v. Danville (Ill.) 68 N. E. 403.

80. A landowner may recover the same amount of costs that defendant may recover in proceedings before notice of trial, where compensation awarded by the commissioner exceeds the amount in the offer to purchase with interest from the time offer was made, where the land owner succeeded in the supreme court after trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 3251 construed in connection with § 3372)—In re Brooklyn Union El. R. Co. (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 249.

81. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

82. St. Louis City Charter, art. 6, § 9, authorizing dismissal or withdrawal of proceedings by the city at any time before final judgment on payment of costs—Lester Real Estate Co. v. St. Louis, 170 Mo. 31.

83. Onondaga County v. White, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 587.

84. Laws 1897, p. 420, c. 414 (Code Civ. Proc. § 3420)—Bley v. Hamburg, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 23.

against the drainage district instead of the county, though the latter is the nominal party.[85] An order reversing the proceedings on appeal with costs as in an action entitles appellant to tax costs including disbursements.[86] On appeal, attorney's fees cannot be taxed and apportioned as part of the costs between the parties, where the verdict was much smaller than the commissioner's award,[87] and costs in the circuit court must be taxed against appellant.[88] Where appeal is dismissed by stipulation on terms favorable to the landowner without mention of costs, they should be taxed against the company.[89] Affidavits by commissioners for allowance of fees and expenses must be specific and certain.[90]

§ 18. Review of condemnation proceedings.[91]—If on appeal by a mortgagee to the district court, the landowner is not brought in, the corporation petitioner may bring him in if necessary to protect his rights.[92] An award will not be set aside for instructions which do not prejudice the petitioner, where within the range of testimony.[93]

Right to appeal. Decisions reviewable.—Particular statutes allowing appeal must be strictly construed.[94] The judgment appealed from must be final.[95] A mortgagee who appeared may appeal from the award independently of the owner, and his right is not forfeited or suspended by filing a claim against the mortgagor's estate.[96] An appeal will lie from an order of the special term of the supreme court of New York setting aside an award of commissioners.[97] A taxpayer or citizen, showing no special injury different from that of the general pub-

85. Act March 19, 1895 (Laws 1895, p. 142, c. 79)—Lewis County v. Schobey, 31 Wash. 357, 71 Pac. 1029.

86. Taking land for an approach to a bridge (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 3240, 3256)—In re Dept. of Public Works, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631.

87. Wormely v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. (Iowa) 95 N. W. 203.

88. Appeal from county to circuit court on taking lands for private passway—Barrall v. Quick, 24 Ky. L. R. 2393, 74 S. W. 214.

89. Appeal by both parties from an award dismissed on stipulation that the land owner should receive the full award in settlement of his claim, and that the railroad company should build a private crossing at a place to be designated without any statement as to costs and attorney's fees (Code, § 2007)—Heath v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. (Iowa) 94 N. W. 467.

90. Greater N. Y. Charter, §§ 998, 999, providing for the taxation of costs, fees and expenses of such commissioners—In re City of New York, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 433. Laws 1897, § 713, regulating compensation of commissioners of appraisal in proceedings to take real estate for the water supply of the city of New York—In re Collis, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 287.

91. General questions of appeal, see Appeal & Review, p. 85 et seq.

92. Omaha Bridge & Terminal R. Co. v. Reed, (Neb.) 96 N. W. 276.

93. Groves & S. R. R. Co. v. Herman (Ill.) 69 N. E. 36.

94. The Traction Act of 1893, gives no appeal in condemnation from the report of commissioners as appeal is meant in § 9 of the Condemnation Act, and companies organized under the former cannot appeal under the latter—Paterson & State Line Traction Co. v. De Gray (N. J. Law) 56 Atl. 250. Under Act May 16, 1891, P. L. 75, giving the right of appeal to abutting owners from an ordinance opening, altering or improving a street, an appeal will not lie from vacation—Daughters of American Revolution v. Schenley, 204 Pa. 572. Comp. Laws 1897, §§ 6248, 6240, giving an appeal from commissioners or jury in condemnation by a railroad company, do not authorize appeal from an allowance of attorney's fees to the owner—Detroit & L. Shore Line R. Co. v. Hall (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1066.

95. After entry of judgment for a right of way it is final and appeal will lie though damages are not settled—Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Campbell, 109 Tenn. 640. That a plea not barred is filed in proceedings for a right of way before the clerk, will not justify an appeal from an order of the Superior Court directing the clerk to hear the proceedings and appoint commissioners (Code, § 1946)—Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton (N. C.) 45 S. E. 549. In proceedings for a right of way a determination on preliminary trial that plaintiff has the right to condemn the land for such purposes, is not open to appeal until final judgment—Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Campbell, 109 Tenn. 640. Where defendant appeared before the clerk, and specially objected to service of summons on one defendant, and answered raising issues of fact asking that the case be transferred to the Superior Court at term, and on refusal appealed to the judge of such court, his order remanding the case to clerk with directions for hearing on ten days' notice was interlocutory and no appeal would lie to the Supreme Court—Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton (N. C.) 45 S. E. 549.

96. Omaha Bridge & Terminal Co. v. Reed (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1021.

97. Code Civ. Proc. § 3375—In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207.

lic in highway proceedings, cannot appeal to the supreme court.[98] Failure of an owner to appear before commissioners and show damages sustained by opening and grading of a street will not deprive him of damages, and if he has any not allowed, he may object to confirmation of the report.[99] In proceedings to assess damages on a street on pending appeal to the circuit court when a certain law became effective, the subsequent judgment of the court is final and there can be no further appeal.[1]

Remedy for review; certiorari.—Certiorari will not be allowed to an abutting owner whose land is injured by a change in location of a highway authorized by the board of railroad commissioners,[2] nor to an owner who acquiesced in the taking if there is a legal foundation therefor,[3] nor to review the award on taking land for a turnpike,[4] nor in proceedings to condemn rights of way for ditches.[5] The supreme court may issue a writ of certiorari to review condemnation proceedings when no other adequate remedy is available.[6] Where commissioners, to assess damages from a change of grade, erroneously dismissed a claim for want of jurisdiction, the claimant's remedy was not by application for a rehearing, but by certiorari for review, or motion to the court to reopen the matter and send it back to the commissioners.[7] The question of a third adequate remedy is immaterial where certiorari cannot be had in proceedings to condemn land for a ditch, the right of appeal being given.[8]

Saving questions for review.—An objection that jurors were not residents of the county in which the land was situated,[9] or that persons who obtained a conveyance of land for a right of way to a railroad company were not its agents,[10] cannot be raised on appeal where not raised in the court below. A motion for a new trial is unnecessary to review of improper exclusion of evidence as to damages to lands not named in the petition,[11] or to review rulings on evidence to which exceptions were reserved on trial.[12] An objection to a charge as to the measure of damages will not lie where no instruction curing the defect was offered by appellant and the instruction he did offer was similar to the one given.[13] It cannot be said on appeal that there is no evidence of public necessity,[14] and where the petition alleged that petitioner was unable to acquire purchase, it cannot be said that there was no evidence of such inability,[15] where all the evidence is not

98. Pub. St. c. 68, § 2—Bennett v. Town of Tuftonborough (N. H.) 54 Atl. 700.

99. In re City of New York, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 525.

1. Various statutes construed—Evansville & T. H. R. Co. v. Terre Haute (Ind.) 67 N. E. 686.

2. There is an ample remedy by appeal—Leighton v. Concord & M. R. R. (N. H.) 55 Atl. 938.

3. Acquiescence amounts to estoppel—Slocum v. Neptune Tp., 68 N. J. Law, 595.

4. The appellate court cannot examine the extent to which the jury should have considered the reduced value of part of the road lying in one county, by reason of the taking of part in another, since if the company is dissatisfied with its award it may appeal to the court of common pleas under Act June 2, 1887—In re Factoryville & A. Turnpike & Plank Road, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 613.

5. The remedy is appeal to the Supreme Court (Code Civ. Proc. § 2214)—State v. District Ct. (Mont.) 74 Pac. 200.

6. For right of way (Shannon's Code, §§ 4834, 4853, 4854, 6329, 6336)—Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Campbell, 109 Tenn. 640. Right of appeal is not given (Const. art. 1, § 16, and art. 4, § 4)—State v. Superior Ct., 30 Wash. 219, 232, 70 Pac. 484.

7. People v. Leonard, 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 269.

8. State v. District Ct. (Mont.) 74 Pac. 200.

9. Benton Harbor Terminal R. Co. v. King (Mich.) 91 N. W. 641.

10. Chicago, R. I. & T. R. Co. v. Douglass (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 449.

11. 2 Bail. Ann. Codes & St. § 5056—Sultan Water & Power Co. v. Weyerhauser Timber Co., 31 Wash. 558, 72 Pac. 114.

12. Mills' Ann. St. § 1727, providing that a motion for a new trial is unnecessary to enable the supreme court to review proceedings of an inferior court, where errors have been once passed upon by such court against exceptions, applies to appeals in eminent domain under Mills' Ann. Code, § 393, allowing such appeals to be taken to the supreme court as other appeals from the district court—Loloff v. Sterling (Colo.) 71 Pac. 1113.

13. Board of Councilmen v. Howard, 25 Ky. L. R. 111, 74 S. W. 703.

14, 15. Benton Harbor Terminal R. Co. v. King (Mich.) 91 N. W. 641.

in the record. If the record shows neither testimony nor a substitute therefor, but only the award or verdict and exceptions, the order below will be affirmed.[16] Where the commissioner's report gave part of the damages assessed to a tenant for his leasehold interest, the circuit court properly overruled exceptions to the report where the exact extent of his interest was not shown.[17] On appeal by a city from an order refusing in part to confirm the report of commissioners as to certain lands and referring the report back to them with directions to award substantial damages to the owners thereof on a certain basis after regarding private but not public easements, the owners could not contend that such private easements had been abandoned or lost by adverse possession.[18]

Bringing up the cause; record.—A landowner is not affected by an appeal by his mortgagee, if no summons issued against him.[19] An objection to a requirement in the judgment that each party shall pay its own costs cannot be made on appeal on the judgment roll alone;[20] and a recital of payment of damages in the final order is conclusive.[21] A certificate signed by the trial judge bearing date after notice of appeal and stipulation of counsel as to printing the transcript is not a part of the judgment roll.[22]

Scope of review.[23]—The question of public necessity of a proposed railroad will not be reviewed on appeal from the award.[24] Whether certain persons not parties were entitled to damages will not be considered.[25] On appeal by the condemning party, distribution of the award will not be reviewed.[26] The question to be determined on appeal by a mortgage is the value of his lien.[27] Where the appeal was on the question of damages for additional land taken for a railroad, it will be presumed that no damages were awarded for the first construction.[28] An award by commissioners on both testimony and view will be affirmed unless palpably incorrect,[29] or unless the commissioners have proceeded on an erroneous basis, have overlooked material features, or have been influenced by passion or hearsay.[30] An award,[31] or report of commissioners,[32] or the finding of a chancellor,[33] or the ver-

16. Macfarland v. Byrnes, 19 App. D. C. 531.

17. St. Louis v. Abeln, 170 Mo. 318.

18. In re City of New York, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 455.

19. Omaha Bridge & Terminal R. Co. v. Reed (Neb.) 96 N. W. 276.

20, 21, 22. Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128, 72 Pac. 915.

23. Where in a proceeding to open a street, testimony was given to show different methods of grading as showing the grade which might ultimately be adopted, and the jury found substantial damages for the remainder of the owner's land in a general verdict, and a special verdict holding damages to be allowed only because of establishment of a future grade and that if the street should be improved on a grade which would not produce a cut of more than 5 ft. there would be no damages, on review the general verdict cannot be disregarded and a holding made that it is controlled by the special verdict so as to set aside amount of general verdict as to damages for land not taken—Grant v. Hyde Park, 67 Ohio St. 166. Where a city council brought proceedings to open a street under laws in force and an appeal was pending when another law became effective as to the city, transferring to the board of public works the authority to condemn property, but providing that proceedings begun before its passage should be carried forward by the proper department, and placing on the city attorney the duty to appear in all appeals concerning the city, it will be assumed that he was discharging his duty and acting with full authority in asking for judgment on the verdict in the appeal over objections of the property owner, and the judgment will bind the city—Heini v. Terre Haute (Ind.) 66 N. E. 450.

24. Detroit & L. Shore Line R. Co. v. Hall (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1066.

25. Marquette & S. E. R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670.

26. The city is not interested in distribution of damages for street grading—In re City of New York, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 215.

27. Omaha Bridge & Terminal R. Co. v. Reed (Neb.) 96 N. W. 276.

28. The railroad company had already taken a right of way and were seeking to take land to widen it—Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Brink (S. D.) 94 N. W. 422.

29. In re Collis, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 368.

30. In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207.

31. Marquette & S. E. R. Co. v. Longyear (Mich.) 94 N. W. 670.

32. Contradicted by testimony of one witness—St. Louis v. Abeln, 170 Mo. 318.

33. Unless an erroneous measure of damages was applied—Richmond & L. Turnpike Road Co. v. Madison County Fiscal Ct., 24 Ky. L. R. 1260, 70 S. W. 1044.

dict of a jury,[34] on conflicting evidence, will be affirmed; especially where the jury viewed the premises.[35] The lower court cannot confirm the verdict of the first jury of seven allowed under the statute, where the property owners have filed exceptions asking the verdict to be vacated.[36]

Trial or hearing.[37]—Where the action of the court below influenced certain landowners to forego their right to a second jury, that right was retained for them on appeal.[38] A motion to the court to set aside an award of commissioners is not a rehearing on the merits so that further affidavits as to the value of the property may be received.[39] Where a railroad company had filed exceptions to proceedings by street railway to acquire crossing over its road and has appealed, it cannot interfere with the street railway and prevent the crossing.[40] On appeal from an award for land taken for a depot, evidence cannot be given that the railroad owned land adjacent to the land sought equally suitable for such purpose.[41] On exceptions in the circuit court to the report of commissioners, they were properly allowed to testify.[42] On trial de novo on appeal from an award by commissioners, the jury must award damages on the evidence before them without regard to the former award.[43]

Decision and determination.—On appeal, the court cannot modify an excessive award but must set it aside.[44] Where landowners appealed from an award in their favor to the circuit court, the jury must of necessity find for them.[45] If property owners refuse a stipulation in an order to set aside an award, unless they consent to its reduction, it in legal effect sets aside the award.[46] The verdict and judgment are set aside by a reversal though only part of defendants appeal.[47] A verdict for landowners on appeal to the circuit court must be itemized, since the statute and not the jury fixes the costs.[48] On appeal from an order of the special term setting aside an award of commissioners, the appellate division must determine on the facts whether there should be a re-reference to the commissioners.[49] After an affirmance of judgment for petitioner, dismissal properly follows on plaintiff's motion where the appeal was on other grounds than insufficiency of the award, and before determination of the appeal plaintiff notified the other parties that he would not take the property and would move to dismiss.[50]

§ 19. Remedy of owner by action or suit.[51] A. Actions for tort, dam-

34. Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498.

35. Lanquist v. Chicago, 200 Ill. 69; East & W. I. R. Co. v. Miller, 201 Ill. 413; Detroit & L. Shore Line R. Co. v. Hall (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1066; Natchitoches R. & Const. Co. v. Henry, 109 La. 669.

36. Taking land to widen a street; the statutory requirement for a second jury is absolute (Act Congress March 3, 1899, § 5, and Rev. St. D. C. c. 11, §§ 263-265)—Brown v. Macfarland, 19 App. D. C. 525.

37. Act May 21, 1895, governing actions to recover damages for appropriations by private corporations, giving the right to waive assessments of damages by viewers, and to demand a jury view of the premises, applies only to actions brought directly to recover damages without interposition of viewers, and not to cases arising by appeal from the award of viewers—Frazee v. Manufacturers' Light & Heat Co., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 420.

38. Street extension—Under Rev. St. D. C. c. 11—Macfarland v. Byrnes, 19 App. D. C. 531.

39. In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207.

40. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5468e, § 17—Wabash R. Co. v. Ft. Wayne & S. W Traction Co. (Ind.) 67 N. E. 674.

41. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Hughes (Tex. Civ App.) 72 S. W. 1020.

42. St. Louis v. Abeln, 170 Mo. 318.

43. Sharp v. United States, 24 Sup. Ct. 114.

44. Code Civ. Proc. § 3371—In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207.

45. Acts 1897, c. 19, p. 22 et seq.—Board of Levee Com'rs v. Nelms (Miss.) 34 So. 149.

46. In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207.

47. In re West Terrace Park (Mo.) 75 S. W. 973.

48. Acts 1897, c. 19, p. 22 et seq.—Board of Levee Com'rs v. Nelms (Miss.) 34 So. 149.

49. In re Town of Guilford, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 207.

50. Pool v. Butler (Cal.) 74 Pac. 444.

51. Measure of damages in action or suit to recover as well as condemnation proceedings, see ante, § 6.

ages, or trespass; recovery of property.[52]—An application by a railroad company to take land as property of plaintiff in trespass for entry of the land before award of the appraisers, and appeal therefrom, cannot be consolidated with the trespass, it being no bar to such action, nor are the two proceedings merged.[53] Written notice of injury is unnecessary before bringing action against a railroad company for damages from temporary use of a street.[54] Recovery for damages to abutting property from a railroad in a street from noise, smoke, and difficulty of access, will not bar a subsequent action for a change in grade by the company and construction of a stone wall.[55] Statutory bar of actions for damages depends upon the particular statute.[56]

Right of action.—Statutes prescribing remedies for recovery of damages must be strictly construed.[57] One who did not appeal from a judgment and award cannot sue for the value of his land.[58] A city entering a private road and erecting structures, partially destroying the owner's means of access to his property without authority or compensation, must pay damages or be compelled to restore the road to its original condition.[59] On wrongful appropriation of land by a city, the owner need not look to a fund provided by a certain statute in recovery of damages, if it does not contemplate creation of a fund for that purpose.[60] An expressed intention by a railroad company not to abandon a right of way is not conclusive evidence thereof, but may be considered in ejectment by the owner together with acts of the company.[61] A declaration to recover land, showing on its fact that the railroad company had been in actual occupation of the land before plaintiffs acquired title, is liable to demurrer.[62] Where the legal title to land owned by a husband stood in his wife's name, a contract by the husband with a city to waive damages for laying out of a way, and the

52. Rights acquired by defendant on recovery of damages as well as by condemnation, see post, § 21.

A judgment in proceedings by a sanitary district to take land for a channel to divert a river in which plaintiff joined with other joint owners of a tract cut by the channel and which included a portion afterward put in crops by him, on a cross petition alleging that the tract constituted an entire dairy farm and asking damages for injuries to it, and for loss of shipping facilities which did not appear to have been recovered, is not a bar to his recovery in an action against a district for damages from an overflow from negligent construction of the channel, where it did not appear that an overflow would have resulted otherwise, nor whether it was built according to plans exhibited on the condemnation—Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Ray, 199 Ill. 63.

53. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Gardner (Ga.) 45 S. E. 600.

54. By railroad (Gen. St. 1902, § 2020)—Knapp & C. Mfg. Co. v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. (Conn.) 56 Atl. 512.

55. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cumnock, 25 Ky. L. R. 1330, 77 S. W. 933.

56. That an owner secures modification of a proposed change of street grade so as to cause less injury, will not bar his right to damages from the actual change—Klaus v. Jersey City (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 220. Where a land owner whose property is taken for a railroad right of way, conveys the land to his wife after he is barred by a two years' limitation, she has no right of recovery against the company (Acts 1872-73, c. 75, & Acts 1854-55, c. 225)—Dargan v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 131 N. C. 623. Every day's temporary use of a highway by a railroad company while changing a grade crossing without compensation to abutting owners is a new trespass and no bar to recovery arises for damage suffered within three years (Gen. St. 1902, § 1115)—Knapp & C. Mfg. Co. v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. (Conn.) 56 Atl. 512. The right to sue a railroad company for damages from construction and operation of tracks in a street in front of property under legislative and municipal authority is barred after five years, but an action for damages for such construction and operation without such authority is barred only by the 15 years statute—Klosterman v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1233, 71 S. W. 6.

57. Gen. St. p. 2820, § 71, giving a right of action to an owner of a building abutting upon a street or highway, the grade of which is altered by a municipality, to recover damages will not authorize an action against a village, villages not being included in the act—Bellis v. Village of Flemington (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 300.

58. Omaha Bridge & Terminal R. Co. v. Reed (Neb.) 96 N. W. 276. Private Laws 1899, c. 62, § 24, applying to condemnation of land in Elizabeth City—Lamb v. Elizabeth City, 132 N. C. 194.

59. Culver v. Yonkers, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 309.

60. Comp. St. 1901, § 158, c. 12a—Omaha v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 979.

61. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill 418.

62. King v. Southern R. Co., 119 Fed. 1017.

assumption of betterments by the city, will entitle the wife to sue for damages sustained by the husband through breach of the contract.[63] If a city appropriates property under statutory authority without payment of compensation, the owner must seek compensation, and cannot bring ejectment;[64] nor can compensation be recovered in ejectment for land taken by a railroad company under a statute providing for assessment of compensation.[65] A grant by ordinance to a street railway company to use streets or bridges within corporate limits is legislative so that it cannot be revised by the court on the ground of inexpediency at suit of the abutting owner.[66] The county may sue for damages from appropriation of a highway by a railroad company.[67] Owners injured by alteration of a highway may sue in the superior court for damages without first applying for assessment of damages by county commissioners.[68] Filing a claim for damages in highway proceedings which was refused, and dismissal of appeal therefrom, will not prevent an action for damages.[69] One cannot sue for damages to access by street vacation, unless his property is situated so as to entitle him to notice of vacation proceedings.[70] An owner cannot recover for injuries to highway fences by construction of an electric road, where such fences were constructed under a license requiring removal on request, their presence was inconsistent with use of the highway, and the owner had been requested to remove them.[71] An owner may recover value of things removed in laying out a street because of failure to give notice of removal, only by statutory petition and not in tort.[72] Where land was conveyed to a city under a deed restricting its use to a certain public purpose, and proceedings by the city to condemn the land were never completed and were treated as void, the owners may assert their rights as against a lessee of the city who used the land for a private manufacturing enterprise.[73] An abutting owner may recover for damages by change of a street grade resulting in accumulation of water on his premises.[74] Where injury from change of a street grade is unavoidable, the owner's remedy is by statutory proceedings before viewers, and not by trespass.[75] No right of action exists for damages from raising a street to conform to an established grade, without authority of a resolution, though the grade had been established by ordinance.[76] Where a village did not acquire rights of property owners affected by change of a grade crossing, authorized in proceedings by trustees before railroad commissioners and to ascertain damages therefor, the owners have an action against the village for damages.[77] After establishment of a grade by ordinance, improvement, or user, an abutting owner

63. Bell v. Newton (Mass.) 67 N. E. 599.
64. Webber v. Toledo, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 237.
65. Acts 1872-73, c. 75, or Acts 1854-55, c. 225, providing for application for assessment to the clerk of the superior court—Dargan v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 131 N. C. 623.
66. Lange v. La Crosse & E. R. Co. (Wis.) 95 N. W. 952.
67. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 4426—St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Grayson County (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 64.
68. Under St. 1900, c. 299—Ahearn v. Middlesex County, 182 Mass. 518.
69. Hogsett v. Harlan County (Neb.) 97 N. W. 316.
70. Where his land did not extend to the open part of a street though it reached part which had never been opened, the dedication of which had never been accepted, and he could not reach the street directly except by use of an old crossing belonging to a railroad company whose track crossed the street and which had been allowed to be used as a cross street since vacated, he is not so situated as to be entitled to recover—Beutel v. West Bay City Sugar Co. (Mich.) 94 N. W. 202.
71. Georgetown & L. Traction Co. v. Mulholland, 25 Ky. L. R. 578, 76 S. W. 148.
72. Stowell v. Ashley (Mass.) 68 N. E. 675.
73. Sanborn v. Van Duyne (Minn.) 96 N. W. 41.
74. Recovery from city—Cooper v. Scranton City, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 17.
75. Borough improvement without negligence and following a borough plan of general improvement (Act May 23, 1889, or Act May 16, 1891)—Cooper v. Scranton City, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 17.
76. Wilbur v. Ft. Dodge (Iowa) 95 N. W. 186.
77. Torge v. Village of Salamanca, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 211.

may improve his property in accord therewith; but before establishment he cannot recover for injury from a change after improvement of his property, unless the city has established an unreasonable grade.[78] A riparian owner whose property rights are injured or appropriated by irrigation works may recover compensation.[79] An action of tort will not lie to recover damages for water taken from a stream and building of a water plant.[80] After a railroad company has entered land and erected buildings with or without the owner's consent, a subsequent vendee can recover neither the land nor its value from company.[81] Though abutting owners on Park Ave., New York, cannot restrain operation of railroad on a viaduct erected under a statute, when suing for damages to fee and rental values of property, they may recover where station houses of the company extend beyond the street line of the viaduct depriving them of light and air.[82] After leasing premises, a city cannot deprive the lessee of damages to the leasehold from construction of an elevated railroad in front of the property by consenting to construction; the lessee may recover for a building constructed before construction of the road regardless of renewals of the lease since they relate back to renewal of the original term.[83]

Pleading, issues and proof.—A declaration to recover damages from lowering the grade of a street need not allege that the property has been benefited by the entire improvement in other respects so as to compensate the owner for such damages.[84] An abutting owner suing to recover damages for use of a street by a railroad company while changing a grade crossing need not show a benefit to defendant from such use but must show that he suffered loss.[85] That plaintiff's possession in an action for damages from construction of a railroad in a street, extended into the street, and that he had not acquired the right to such property, may be considered on the extent of injury.[86] Damages may be recovered for accumulation of water on land, in an action for damages on taking for a right of way, though improper construction of the road is not substantially pleaded.[87] Where it was not alleged in recovery for negligence of a city in removing buildings from condemned lands that there was any cost in raising the buildings after removal, the jury could not be charged to consider such cost as an element of damages.[88] In a suit to recover damages for wrongful taking of land by a city and careless removal of buildings where it appeared that the property had been legally condemned and damages assessed and tendered, evidence that special benefit to the property was greater than its value was irrelevant where plaintiff was allowed to amend by striking out averments as to wrongful taking.[89] In an action for damages from construction of a railroad in an adjacent street, defend-

78. Ross v. Cincinnati, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 43.

79. Irrigation Act of 1895—Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781.

80. St. 1886, pp. 278, 279, c. 311, §§ 1, 2, 4, creating the company and authorizing it to take water from a stream and construct dams and basins, and making it liable for damages to be recovered as in the case of land taken for a highway, provides the remedy for damages to a meadow by reason of the dam and raising of water in the pond—Benson v. Great Barrington Fire Dist. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 876.

81. King v. Southern R. Co., 119 Fed. 1017.

82. Viaduct erected under Laws 1892, p. 694, c. 337—Dolan v. New York & H. R. Co., 175 N. Y. 367.

83. The rent for renewal cannot be considered to have been paid with reference to the presence of the road when the building was erected previously; assignment of the lease in violation of covenant where the lessors collected rents and executed a renewal of the lease without regard to the breach—Storms v. Manhattan R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94.

84. It is a matter of defense—Chicago v. McShane, 102 Ill. App. 239.

85. Knapp & C. Mfg. Co. v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. (Conn.) 56 Atl. 512.

86. Pochila v. Calvert, W. & B. V. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 255.

87. Arkansas Cent. R. Co. v. Smith (Ark.) 71 S. W. 947.

88, 89. Lamb v. Elizabeth City, 131 N. C. 241.

ant cannot show its offer to cut down the street grade made after beginning the action.[90] Evidence that plaintiff was compensated, in proceedings to condemn land for a canal, for injuries from seepage of water, is not admissible where the condemnation proceedings are not pleaded.[91] On an issue as to abandonment of a railroad right of way, it may be shown that the road was built to haul supplies and products for a mine now exhausted.[92]

Burden of proof; questions of fact; witnesses.[93]—Defendants, in action for damages by construction of a railroad, must show the extent of special benefits.[94] Though a petition to recover for land taken alleges damages to land not taken, plaintiff waives such damages if he introduces no proof thereof.[95] The question of damages to property from street improvements is for the jury in an action against the city.[96] Whether there was an intention to abandon a railroad right of way is a question for the jury on evidence that it had ceased to operate the road, had removed the tracks almost entirely, had failed to keep up the fences, and allowed the right of way to grow up with weeds.[97] A witness unacquainted with property before construction of a trolley line on a highway through the property cannot testify as to the damages.[98]

View of premises; instructions.[99]—The jury may view the locus in an action against a county to recover damages from construction of a bridge.[1] An instruction that abandonment of right of way will give the owner of the fee right to possession is not misleading as omitting the element of intention in abandonment where other instructions clearly charged as to such intention.[2]

Verdict, judgment, and allowance of damages.—In a suit to recover permanent damages for erection of a telegraph line upon land without acquisition of the right, damages to crops within the three years during which the line was building cannot be added to permanent damage.[3] Where it did not appear, in an action to recover for negligence in removing buildings from land appropriated by the city, that special benefit had not been considered in the condemnation proceedings, it could not be set off against the damages.[4] Where, in an action for injuries from seepage of water from a canal, a stipulation was made that a judgment for plaintiff should be joint against the contractor and the canal corporation, and that the latter would not set up a defense against plaintiff that the contractor was an independent contractor, a finding for plaintiff after verdict that the canal corporation was liable and the contractor not liable was harmless though unnecessary.[5] A writ of ouster in ejectment will not be restrained as to service, where it appears from the face of the petition that the defendants in the ejectment claimed under condemnation proceedings after the final ejectment judg-

90. Pochila v. Calvert, W. & B. V. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 255.

91. Turpen v. Turlock Irr. Dist. (Cal.) 74 Pac. 295.

92. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

93. Sufficiency of objection in ejectment against a railroad company that employe of the company was not permitted to state the intention of the company as to abandonment of the road—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

94. Pochila v. Calvert, W. & B. V. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 255.

95. McElroy v. Kansas City & I. Air Line, 172 Mo. 546.

96. Board of Councilmen v. Howard, 25 Ky. L. R. 111, 74 S. W. 703.

97. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

98. Shimer v. Easton R. Co., 205 Pa. 648.

99. Sufficiency of instructions as to measure of damages in an action to recover for construction of viaduct on a street in front of property (Chicago v. Le Moyne [C. C. A.] 119 Fed. 662) as to set-off in action to recover for closing a street under agreement between a city and a railroad company occupying another street—Village of Winnetka v. Clifford, 201 Ill. 475.

1. Lafean v. York County, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 573.

2. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

3. Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 572.

4. Lamb v. Elizabeth City, 131 N. C. 241

5. Turpen v. Turlock Irr. Dist. (Cal.) 74 Pac. 295.

ment and which were void because the law under which they were brought failed to provide for notice to the landowner.[6] Where, in statutory proceedings for assessments of damages from construction of approach to a county bridge, an objection was made successfully on the ground that the act does not apply, the county commissioners cannot object to a judgment in trespass by the owner after trial on the merits, on the ground that his proper remedy was under such act.[7] In a suit against a city to prevent continuing trespass and recover damages from lowering the water level under land by establishment of a pumping station nearby, an award of fee damage is not incorrect because the city had given plaintiff no notice of intention to acquire the land.[8] An award of fee damage against a city for continuing trespass and damage from lowering the water level under land by establishment of a pumping station cannot be attacked on the ground that it was an award of depreciation in value of the rest of the property after the water was taken, without allowing for the water, plaintiff having only a right of use in the water which was included in the fee damages.[9]

Appeal.—While a deed by plaintiff's curator to land for a railroad track and appurtenances might be investigated in an action against the railroad company for obstruction of use of a roadway reserved in the deed, to determine whether such reservation was made, the title to the land could not be affected by the judgment so as to give the supreme court jurisdiction of an appeal direct from the circuit court.[10]

(§ 19) B. Suits in equity; injunction.[11]—An attempt to take property without exercise of eminent domain, or payment of compensation, will be restrained,[12]

6. Board of Education v. Aldredge (Okl.) 73 Pac. 1104.

7. Act May 16, 1891, P. L. 75—Lafean v. York County, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 573.

8. Plaintiff was not entitled to notice of intention to commit a trespass—Westphal v. New York, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 252.

9. Westphal v. New York, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 252.

10. In re McGee St. (Mo.) 74 S. W. 993.

11. Where there was no apparent connection between two ordinances, one of which authorized condemnation of lands to widen a street and another authorized a railroad company already operating two tracks in the street to lay two more tracks on payment of costs of condemnation and improvements made necessary by the alteration and the additional tracks, the property owner could not be required to make a defense in the original condemnation by showing the connection between the two ordinances and the real purpose of the railroad in the proceeding, and his failure to object at that time on the ground that such purpose was to procure a right of way for the railroad, will not prejudice him in a suit to restrain the construction—Pennsylvania Co. v. Bond, 202 Ill. 95.

12. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276. Taking of property for public street—Baya v. Town of Lake City (Fla.) 33 So. 400. Entry of abutting lands by electric railway company—Freud v. Detroit & P. R. Co. (Mich.) 95 N. W. 559. Though there is a controversy as to title or boundaries—Foley v. Doddridge County Ct. (W. Va.) 46 S. E. 246. Railroad sidings and switches in highway under power to maintain only a single track—Stephens v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 175 N. Y. 72. Construction of railroad in street in which abutting owner has easement—Cleveland Burial Case Co. v. Erie R. Co., 24 Ohio Circ. R. 107. An abutting owner may restrain building of telephone line on rural highway—Gray v. New York State Tel. Co., 41 Misc. (N. Y.) 108. Riparian owners may restrain pollution of a river by city sewage above tide waters—Doremus v. Paterson (N. J. Err & App.) 55 Atl. 304. The court failed to provide for payment of damages assessed on opening a highway (Rev. St. art. 4694)—McCown v. Hill (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 850. One railroad company will be prevented from crossing track of another (Civ. Code, § 2167)—Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Seaboard Air-Line R., 116 Ga. 412. Crossing irrigation canal with lateral to carry water to land—Castle Rock Irr. Canal & Water Power Co. v. Jurisch (Neb.) 93 N. W. 690. Taking for a street; exclusive possession under a contract of purchase and part payment of purchase price gives the right to bring injunction—Olson v. Seattle, 30 Wash. 687, 71 Pac. 201. Railroad siding in street on other than established grade built without authority of city and damaging access and drainage rights—Zook v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (Pa.) 56 Atl. 82. Railroad track in street the title to which was in the abutting owner; that construction has been begun and the company has incurred great expense will not prevent restraint—Paige v. Schenectady R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 571. Abutting owner may restrain laying of additional railroad tracks in a street without grant or condemnation or payment of compensation—Rock Island & P. R. Co. v. Johnson (Ill.) 68 N. E. 549. An owner may restrain street railroad tracks built without his consent though owners on the opposite side of the street have consent-but construction of an improvement causing damages will not be prevented there being a remedy at law for damages,[13] unless it is shown to be a nuisance by which complainants suffer special injury;[14] nor an improvement causing no injury to complainant;[15] nor where property is not taken directly for public purpose, but suffers injury as to rights incidental to its peculiar station or position, so that condemnation proceedings and payment of damages in advance are not practicable.[16] A railroad company may be restrained from destroying a telegraph line built by a telegraph company under statutory authority along the railroad and pending proceedings to condemn a right of way along such road, where irreparable damage would result to the telegraph company.[17] In Maryland, construction and operation of an electric railway on a county highway will not be restrained.[18] Where two years before making of a contract for lease of a quarry the owner conveyed a railroad right of way, the lessee's rights were subject to the deed, so that he could not restrain the building of the railroad by a grantee from the railroad company because of failure of such grantee to condemn and pay damages for his interest.[19] Condemnation will not be restrained because of lack of failure to agree on compensation,[20] nor because an illegal and unconstitutional method of assessing damages was prescribed.[21] An action by an owner to dispossess a railroad company of his land will be restrained on offer of compensation by the company.[22] Condemnation proceedings to take a right of way will not be restrained.[23] A railroad company entering realty under a lease, with a view to purchase when possible and building part of its line, may restrain the lessor for a reasonable time from dispossessing it so that it may condemn the land.[24] One who failed to appeal cannot sue in equity to set aside the condemnation.[25]

In suing to determine rights in a stream, plaintiff may offer to do equity by compensating riparian owners whose rights are affected by construction of ed—North Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Inland Traction Co., 205 Pa. 579. Wrongful entry of a private road and damage to access and property by a city may be prevented. Where part of the cost was assessed against the owner he may have the assessment set aside and compel restoration and payment of damages—Culver v. Yonkers, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 309. It must appear that there was appropriation actual or intended without compensation where directors of a water company evinced an intention to comply with the law in taking waters in which riparian owners had rights—Hey v. Springfield Water Co. (Pa.) 56 Atl. 265. Construction of elevated railroad in street already containing one railroad will be restrained at suit of a subsequent purchaser of abutting property without actual or constructive notice of consent by his grantor to such construction—Shaw v. New York El. R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 290.

13. Abutting owners cannot restrain electric railway in street because of threatened damage to access or from noise, dust and vibration—Baker v. Selma St. & S. R. Co., 135 Ala. 552. Operation of railroad track in highway under special ordinance causing injury to abutting owners—Budd v. Camden Horse R. Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 804.

14. Electric railway in street—Baker v. Selma St. & S. R. Co., 135 Ala. 552.

15. A railway company cannot restrain construction of street railway on public road crossing its tracks and on which its lands abut, if none of its rights or franchises are injured (Act June 19, 1871; P. L. 1360)—North Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Inland Traction Co., 205 Pa. 579.

16. The owner will be left to his remedy at law unless insolvency or other special reason appears—Bronson v. Albion Tel. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 201.

17. Act July 24, 1866, construed in connection with Rev. St. § 3964—Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 120 Fed 981.

18. The easement taken for the highway is held to have included such use—Lonaconing Midland & F. R. Co. v. Consolidation Coal Co., 95 Md. 630.

19. Coyne v. Warrior Southern R. Co (Ala.) 34 So. 1004.

20. There is an adequate remedy by defense in the condemnation proceedings—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276.

21. Taking land for sewerage plant by city; power to take the land was not in issue—Vickers v. Durham, 132 N. C. 880.

22. Action by lessee giving company right to enter—Winslow v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 188 U. S. 646, 47 Law. Ed. 635.

23. Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton (N. C.) 45 S. E. 549.

24. Winslow v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 188 U. S. 646.

25. Opening highway (Rev. St. 1899, § 9419)—Searcy v. Clay County (Mo.) 75 S. W. 657.

an irrigation canal without leaving them to their actions at law.[26] By suing in equity instead of at law for trespasses by injuries to property, plaintiff waives his statutory right to condemnation proceedings and a jury trial.[27] Where a devisee seeks to restrain operation of a street railway in front of premises and to recover damages accruing after the death of his testator and before such death under an assignment from the testator, defendant waives his right to have such damages ascertained at law by making no objection to their recovery and allowing proof.[28]

Limitation and laches.—Recovery for permanent damages by erection of a telegraph line across land, within three years, is not barred by the three years' statute.[29] Proceedings for damages instituted nearly three years after reference of assessment of damages by the board of strect commissioners to commissioners of assessments are not barred by laches.[30] One whose property is taken by a city without payment or taking possession within six months may elect, after the taking, his manner of suit therefor, and such right will not be barred in less than twenty-one years.[31] Where a street railway company built a single track on a turnpike so as to show intent to build a double track and operated it for two years before laying of the second track, abutting owners are estopped by laches from restraining further construction after the track is one-third completed.[32] An abutting owner owning the fee in a street on which a railroad company, granted municipal authority to construct a track, has laid a second track, is not guilty of laches in seeking to restrain use of such track because the right of construction was not obtained by grant or condemnation, where he proceeded as soon as he learned that the company intended to use such track as a permanent second track supposing previously that it was only a temporary track.[33]

Parties.—Nonriparian lessees and grantees of the privilege to take and use water from a canal, into which water flowed from a river above the flow of the tide and which was returned to the river below such flow, cannot be joined as complainants with riparian owners in a suit against the city to restrain the pollution of the river without condemnation and compensation.[34] Where it appears after suit for injunction and damages for operation of a railway in front of premises that the original plaintiff has parted with the fee without reserving any rights so that the only question in issue is that of past damages, the court cannot, in the exercise of its discretion, make the grantee a party plaintiff.[35]

Pleading and issues.—A petition to restrain opening of a highway alleging that damages assessed to plaintiff had not been paid is sufficient, where no special exception is made to admitting evidence on the issue.[36] In a suit to prevent erection of a telephone pole on property because of irreparable damage, allegations that defendant was without authority to erect the pole, or that its erection would be unlawful, or that there was no adequate remedy at law, are necessary.[37] A

26. Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781.

27. Injury from city pumping stations—Westphal v. New York, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 252.

28. Hirsh v. Manhattan R. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 374.

29. Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 572.

30. Klaus v. Jersey City (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 220.

31. Rev. St. §§ 2260, 4977—Webber v. Toledo, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 237.

32. Hinnershitz v. United Traction Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 841.

33. Rock Island & P. R. Co. v. Johnson (Ill.) 68 N. E. 549.

34. Their rights are subordinate to those of the city—Doremus v. Paterson (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 304.

35. The causes of action are totally distinct—Pope v. Manhattan R. Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 583.

36. McCown v. Hill (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 850.

37. Cooke v. Central Dist. & Print. Tel. Co., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 43.

complaint for injunction to restrain interference with a taking of property need not set out the instrument of appropriation or aver that it stated jurisdictional facts.[38] On a bill to prevent a railroad company from laying a siding in a street, in a manner other than the established grade, the power of the city to give consent cannot be considered.[39] A devisee who acquired, by assignment, claims of his testator's estate to damages for operation of an elevated railroad in a street, may include them in recovery in a suit to restrain operation.[40]

Decree, judgment, or order.[41]—On a prima facie showing to restrain condemnation of land for a station, the proceedings should be restrained until the statutory right to condemn is judicially determined.[42] In a suit to restrain the crossing of one railroad track by another, the court cannot provide that plaintiff's track may be crossed on condition that defendant put in a certain described system of switches.[43] In a suit to restrain proceedings by one railroad company to take an entire tract of land belonging to another, and including property already in actual and necessary use for railroad purposes, the court cannot divide a single award so as to allow it to stand in part and to be set aside in part.[44]

§ 20. Payment and distribution of sum awarded.[45] Title or interest requiring compensation.[46]—A city to which land has been dedicated for a public park

38. It is sufficient if it alleges authority to cross a railroad track and inability to agree on compensation, the filing of an instrument of appropriation, the fixing of the amount by commissioners, and that the railroad company interfered with its right to cross, asking an injunction (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 5468a, cl. 5, & § 5468e)—Wabash R. Co. v. Ft. Wayne & S. W. Traction Co. (Ind.) 67 N. E. 674.

39. Zook v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (Pa.) 56 Atl. 82.

40. Hirsh v. Manhattan R. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 374.

41. A judgment against the city to prevent a continuing trespass and for damages to land caused by a pumping station, rendered lessees for raising crops, requiring them on in behalf of plaintiffs some of whom are only tender of the amount designated to convey to defendant the right to maintain and operate the pumping station as constructed, merely intends conveyance of such rights as a particular plaintiff may have and was not incorrect as requiring him to act beyond his power—Westphal v. New York, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 252.

42. Riley v. Charleston Union Station Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 149.

43. Under Civ. Code, § 2167—Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Seaboard Air-Line R., 116 Ga. 412.

44. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. (Kan.) 73 Pac. 899.

45. The special fund referred to in Comp. St. 1901, c. 12a, § 7 providing the moneys to re-imburse a city for payment of damages to abutting property on the taking of lands, does not refer to an assessment levied in pursuance of that law, but to a levy made for the payment of a specific judgment under § 158, Comp. St. 1901, § 2, art. 6, § 77—Omaha v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 979.

46. Where property is under lease for a certain term with covenant of renewal on terms to be settled by the parties and lessee builds on the premises, that the rent for renewal was paid with reference to presence of an elevated railroad in front of premises erected during original term will not prevent lessee from recovering damages to his lease hold—Storms v. Manhattan R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94. Where land was appropriated by a city to widen and extend a street and compensation assessed but possession was not taken by the city nor the award paid until years after the appropriation and after the property had changed hands, a widow receiving part of the property as devisee under will of a testator who owned it at time of condemnation and to whom part was conveyed by warranty deed after condemnation, and before construction of the street, may sue for the compensation assessed—Webber v. Toledo, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 237. Where before actual grading of a street was begun under a contract, land on which it was laid out was conveyed and viewers appointed to estimate the damages, from whose estimate a new owner appealed and on the issues a verdict was properly rendered for him; the viewers were appointed after the grading and he was entitled to recover regardless of a law requiring the viewers to report in a single sum as to both benefits and damages, or another law requiring that an award of damages shall include all damages, since such laws apply only to viewers appointed before the court (Act May 16, 1891 [Pub. Laws 75] & Act May 26, 1891 [P. L. 117])—Howley v. Pittsburg, 204 Pa. 428. Where a city acquired land three years after proceedings were begun to lay out a street designated on a map previously filed with the registrar, and before condemnation, the land was subdivided into lots and a map made on which the proposed street appeared as laid out, the lots were sold and deeds delivered the day after acquisition by the city, boundaries of lots including all land within the proposed street and the deeds containing a clause making the sale subject to proceedings pending for the opening of streets, the grantee had an absolute title to the land without regard to easements, and must receive compensation for full fee value —In re City of New York, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 618.

cannot have compensation on its condemnation for a post office.[47] Property owners whose title depends on a conveyance from the heirs of a former owner cannot contest the title of other heirs in condemnation without acquiring the interest of the latter.[48] An award to a tenant for interruption to his business by condemnation of property cannot be deducted from damages sustained by the property.[49] That a devisee may restrain operation of an elevated railroad in front of premises will not entitle him to recover damages accruing during life of the testator.[50] Where a city builds a viaduct over railroad tracks causing a change of street grade, damaging municipal property, no damages can be awarded to the city in order to compel partial contribution by the railroad company.[51]

Sufficiency of payment.[52]—Compensation for property taken must be by actual payment or its equivalent of damages assessed.[53] Where an unconditional award is made an owner for land condemned by a city, a personal debt of the owner for taxes may be deducted by the city.[54] In a county under township organization, damages for land taken for a highway may be paid to a township trustee after the owner refuses to receive them.[55]

Distribution.[56]—Equity will determine which of several claimants is entitled to the award for land condemned by a city for a street.[57] The award of freeholders, or of the district court on appeal, stands for the land and belongs to lienholders to the extent of their liens.[58] Where plaintiff has recovered judgment and paid into court the damages, payment to defendants cannot be ordered pending appeal by them on other grounds than insufficiency of the award.[59]

Lien and enforcement.[60]—Where an award was not paid but petitioner entered and used the land, the owner had a lien on the land enforceable in equity.[61] An attorney's lien against an award may be enforced in equity where distribution is disputed.[62]

47. It has no legal estate; laws and decisions of Mass. governing condemnation proceedings for that purpose by the United States—In re Certain Land in Lawrence, 119 Fed. 453.

48. United New Jersey R. & Canal Co. v. Consolidated Fruit Jar Co. (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 46.

49. St. Louis v. Abeln, 170 Mo. 318. The award to the tenant cannot be deducted from the award to owners of fee in remainder (Acts 1897, c. 19)—Board of Levee Com'rs v. Nelms (Miss.) 34 So. 149.

50. Hirsh v. Manhattan R. Co., 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 374.

51. Viaduct built under a contract with the city—In re Grade Crossing Com'rs, 171 N. Y. 685.

52. Comp. St. 1901, § 158, c. 12a, regarding the assessment of damages against abutting and adjacent lands for lands taken by a city provides means for re-imbursement of the city for such payment, but does not contemplate the creation of a fund to pay such owners—Omaha v. State (Neb.) 94 N. W. 979.

53. Brown v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 128.

54. Buckhout v. New York, 82 App. Div (N. Y.) 218.

55. Const. art. 2—Shively v. Lankford (Mo.) 74 S. W. 835.

56. Sufficiency of evidence in action to determine conflicting claims to award for land taken for a street to show that part of the land had previously been dedicated as a street so that defendant had no right to compensation—Gardiner v. Baltimore, 96 Md. 361. On conflicting claims to an award equity may entertain a bill by a defendant in the proceedings, claiming that a tract owned by him and condemned was claimed by the city as included in the street and refusing to receive the award for property which was not claimed as within the street, under Acts 1892, c. 165; New Charter of Baltimore, § 827, providing for determination of conflicting claims regarding awards for condemnation of property by the city by a suit in equity—Id.

57. The title passes to the city and the suit is not to determine title—Gardiner v. Baltimore, 96 Md. 361.

58. Omaha Bridge & Terminal R. Co. v. Reed (Neb.) 96 N. W. 276.

59. Pool v. Butler (Cal.) 74 Pac. 444.

60. Sufficiency of evidence in a suit to enforce an equitable lien on land taken for payment of the award to overthrow a presumption of payment from lapse of time—Southern R. Co. v. Gregg (Va.) 43 S. E. 570.

Where the question of payment was not in issue in a suit to enforce an award for land taken, and plaintiff's evidence that there had been no payment was not denied and he had continuously asserted such claim, which had been acknowledged by the defendant railroad company and its predecessors who condemned the property, there was no laches—Southern R. Co. v. Gregg (Va.) 43 S. E. 570.

61. Southern R. Co. v. Gregg (Va.) 43 S. E. 570.

62. Award to a city and other claimants

§ 21. Ownership or interest acquired.—An easement running with the land is acquired by condemnation thereof.[63] A stock yard and transit company does not acquire the fee in taking land.[64] A petitioner taking a right of way for a ditch, having a prior right to construct it, is vested with the exclusive right, title, and possession of the land.[65] A provision that proceedings under statutes for condemnation of property and giving "ownership" to plaintiff applies to all cases where the intent is to vest in plaintiff more than the right of occupation or use of the land.[66] Proceedings by a school district to take a school house site divests the owner of title though he had at the time only an equitable title and afterward received the legal title.[67] A railroad built on public tide lands of the state will not pass by purchase of the land.[68] By condemnation of a right of way, the interest obtained is the ownership of the land,[69] so that the company may convey, to a connecting company, land acquired for a right of way.[70] Possession of a landowner who holds part of the land taken for a railroad right of way is subservient to rights of the company, unless it is shown that it is adverse thereto with knowledge of the company.[71] A railroad company, by taking land as purchaser from one holding under adverse possession, received a good title when the combined adverse possession of it and its grantor reached the statutory period.[72] A wagon road laid out by owner entirely on his own land belongs to him as any other land, so that railroad company taking a right of way across such road acquires title to it as to the remainder.[73] Where lands are condemned for a railroad water station, the owner in fee has no concurrent right of possession with the company of the part of the lands not actually used by the company or of any part necessary for its use.[74] Where a railroad company is required to maintain waterways for owners whose lands it intersects, an owner has a right of crossing appurtenant to each of his divided tracts which is not transmitted to grantee of part of lands lying on one side of the track.[75] A settlement in proceedings to take a right of way by stipulation, giving a right of way with no reservation as to any land contained therein, merges all prior agreements in such stipulation, and an oral agreement that the owner's use of his way as it then existed would not be disturbed is unenforceable.[76] A railroad company which had located a branch line on land to which it held title partly by condemnation, and partly by deed, and of which it was in actual or constructive possession for railroad purposes, may restrain another company from ousting it by force under a title from the same person from which the first company claimed.[77] On recovery by a lessee of damages for construction of an elevated railroad in front of the leasehold, the company is entitled to a release from him including not only the easement during the existing term but for for land taken in extension of a street—Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451.

63. Deavitt v. Washington County (Vt.) 53 Atl. 563.

64. Sexton v. Union Stock Yard & Transit Co., 200 Ill. 244.

65. Rev. St. § 3084—Whalon v. North Platte Canal & Colonization Co. (Wyo.) 71 Pac. 995.

66. Civ. Code, art. 2640—Fuselier v. Police Jury, 109 La. 551.

67. Gen. St. 1901, § 6131—Buckwalter v. School Dist. No. 42, 65 Kan. 603, 70 Pac. 605.

68. The railroad company may condemn a right of way after the purchase—Lake Whatcom Logging Co. v. Callvert (Wash.) 73 Pac. 1128.

69. Since aliens cannot hold such title they cannot condemn (Const. art. 2, § 33)—State v. Superior Ct. (Wash.) 74 Pac. 686.

70. Code 1896, § 1170—Coyne v. Warrior Southern R. Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 1004.

71. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Snyder (Iowa) 95 N. W. 183.

72. Covert v. Pittsburg & W. R. Co., 204 Pa. 341.

73. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. v. Fleming (Ga.) 45 S. E. 664.

74. Dillon v. Kansas City, Ft. S. & M. R. Co. (Kan.) 74 Pac. 251.

75. Marino v. Central R. Co. (N. J. Err. & App.) 56 Atl. 306.

76. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Snyder (Iowa) 95 N. W. 183.

77. Pennsylvania Co. v. Ohio River Junction R. Co., 204 Pa. 356.

future renewals provided for.[78] A prohibition against authorizing a street railway company to acquire realty within a city by condemnation does not restrict the power of eminent domain given by other sections of the law to corporations subject to it; and relates only to private property and not to an abutting owner's rights in the street.[79] The constitutional provision that the fee of land taken for highways shall remain in the owner does not apply to streets of a city for the purpose to which they have been dedicated.[80] The city of New York by condemning land for a bridge over the Harlem river acquired title to all lands taken necessary for such construction and the approaches in fee simple absolute, but only a title in trust as to lands taken for altering streets.[81] In extending a street across a railroad track, the city acquires only a joint right with the company to use, allowing the company its right to lay additional tracks as increase of business may require, provided it keeps the tracks occupied by the street free and open to public use.[82] An application to take lands for a street and to assess compensation, where the proceedings are not amended, will give the city the right after judgment to use the land for all street purposes including establishment of a reasonable grade.[83]

§ 22. Transfer of possession and passing of title.—Where the report of commissioners made an award for land and improvements taken for a street, and a resolution of the board of street opening and improvement under statutory authority vested title in the city six months before, listing and valuation of the property for taxes, confirmed after title passed, did not make the tax a lien on the land making the owner liable.[84]

§ 23. Relinquishment or abandonment of rights acquired.[85]—A lease by a railroad company of land condemned for a water station to a fishing and boating club with reservation of actual possession for all purposes for which the land was taken, and the right to cancel the lease on notice, is not an abandonment of the land.[86] On abandonment of a railroad, the property reverts to the former owner; the abandonment must include an intention to abandon as well as an actual relinquishment.[87] On alteration in location of an existing highway, a town board cannot order the bed of the old highway to revert to a particular person, where it is not shown that he or his grantors have owned such land.[88] An intention expressed by a railroad company not to abandon a right of way is not conclusive evidence of such intention, but may be considered in ejectment in connection with acts of the company; on the question of abandonment it may be shown that the road was built to haul goods and products to and from a mine now exhausted. Whether there was an intention to abandon the right of way is for the jury. An instruction that the abandonment will give the owner of the fee right to possession is not misleading as omitting to mention the element of intention in abandonment where other instructions clearly charged as to such intention.[89]

78. Storms v. Manhattan R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 94.

79. Laws 1890, p. 1108, c. 565, § 90, as amended by Laws 1895, p. 791, c. 933—Schenectady R. Co. v. Lyon, 85 N. Y. Supp. 40.

80. Const. art. 6, § 13, art. 17. § 18—Kirby v. Citizens' Tel. Co. (S. D.) 97 N. W. 3.

81. Laws 1895, c. 986—In re City of New York, 174 N. Y. 26.

82. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Hogan, 105 Ill. App. 136.

83. Grant v. Hyde Park, 67 Ohio St. 166.

84. Buckhout v. New York (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 659.

85. Abandonment of condemnation proceedings as to procedure, see ante, § 8. Sufficiency of objection in ejectment against a railroad company that employe of the company was not permitted to state the intention of the company as to abandonment of the road—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

86. Dillon v Kansas City, Ft. S. & M. R. Co. (Kan.) 74 Pac. 251.

87. Const. 1870, art. 2, § 13; Starr & C.'s Ann. St. p. 113, 2d Ed.—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

88. People v. Vandewater, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 60.

89. On evidence that it had ceased to operate the road, had almost entirely removed the tracks, had failed to keep up the fences,

EQUITY.*

This topic will treat of the general rules of equity and of procedure in equity in those states where the adoption of a code has not changed equitable forms and procedure, and also such matters of procedure as remain under the codes.

and had allowed the right of way to grow up with weeds—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Clapp, 201 Ill. 418.

Notes from "L. R. A." and "Am. St. Rep.," classified according to above analysis.

§ 1. General protection of rights. 37 L. R. A. 783, 38 L. R. A. 240.

§ 2A. Adoption by federal courts of remedies created by state statutes; limiting or enlarging equity powers and jurisdiction. 18 L. R. A. 266; 24 L. R. A. 417; 30 L. R. A. 336. Federal equity jurisdiction. 2 L. R. A. 225. Protection of civil rights. 10 L. R. A. 616. Jurisdiction to order foreclosure sale of realty in different states. 32 L. R. A. 208. Concurrent jurisdiction. 2 L. R. A. 175.

§ 2B. Adequate remedy at law. 6 L. R. A. 855; 11 L. R. A. 65. Coming into equity with clean hands. 2 L. R. A. 368; 11 L. R. A. 458. Doing equity. 1 L. R. A. 863. Following the law. 4 L. R. A. 858; 7 L. R. A. 85. Multiplicity of suits. 1 L. R. A. 801; 11 L. R. A. 207.

§ 2C. Foreign corporations. 85 Am. St. Rep. 924. Enforcement of stockholders' liability. 37 Am. St. Rep. 172. Corporations generally. 9 L. R. A. 650. Discovery by stockholder. 3 Am. St. Rep. 86. Forfeiture of corporate franchise. 9 L. R. A. 273; 8 Am. St. Rep. 200. Enforcement of stockholders' liability. 3 Am. St. Rep. 808. Foreclosure of liens on corporate stock. 42 L. R. A. 532. Assignments of expectancies. 56 Am. St. Rep. 339. Equitable assignments. 4 L. R. A. 247. Trusts; enforcement of constructive trust. 38 L. R. A. 497. Of voluntary imperfect trusts. 34 Am. St. Rep. 196. Unexecuted voluntary trust. 51 Am. St. Rep. 391. Protection of trusts. 35 L. R. A. 175. Accounts. 4 L. R. A. 504. Reformation of instruments; wills. 50 Am. St. Rep. 283. Instruments in general. 3 L. R. A. 189; 5 L. R. A. 156. Contracts. 65 Am. St. Rep. 481. Deeds. 65 Am. St. Rep. 506. Cancellation of instruments. 9 Am. St. Rep. 777; 9 L. R. A. 200; 36 L. R. A. 367; 43 L. R. A. 566. Administration of estates; setting aside letters. 81 Am. St. Rep. 560. Care of infants. 7 L. R. A. 534; 54 Am. St. Rep. 253. Relief against mistake. 4 L. R. A. 483; 12 L. R. A. 273; 32 Am. St. Rep. 385; 24 Am. St. Rep. 388; 9 Am. St. Rep. 712; 55 Am. St. Rep. 494; 65 Am. St. Rep. 487. Relief from duress. 43 Am. St. Rep. 889; 6 L. R. A. 493. Contest for office. 5 L. R. A. 403; 42 Am. St. Rep. 236. Dissolution of partnerships. 69 Am. St. Rep. 410. Foreclosure of liens. 42 L. R. A. 532; 74 Am. St. Rep. 387. Crimes and criminal prosecutions. 35 Am. St. Rep. 670. Interference with discretionary power. 8 L. R. A. 175. Interference in elections. 42 Am. St. Rep. 235. To prevent waste. 11 L. R. A. 207. Relief against judgment. 23 Am. St. Rep. 117; 25 Am. St. Rep. 165; 53 Am. St. Rep. 444; 54 Am. St. Rep. 218; 30 L. R. A. 498. Enforcement of judgment. 16 L. R. A. 115; 45 L. R. A. 285. Partition. 8 L. R. A. 289; 88 Am. St. Rep. 726. Matters of boundaries. 18 L. R. A. 361; 26 L. R. A. 749; 24 Am. St. Rep. 388. Prevention of public nuisance. 57 Am. St. Rep. 694; 36 L. R. A. 593; 12 L. R. A. 753; 9 L. R. A. 711. Relief from fraud. 5 L. R. A. 189; 11 L. R. A. 65; 2 Am. St. Rep. 801. Protection of insane persons. 54 Am. St. Rep. 253; 1 L. R. A. 610.

§ 3. Laches. 10 L. R. A. 125; 57 L. R. A. 253; 1 L. R. A. 191; 8 L. R. A. 248; 6 L. R. A. 799; 2 Am. St. Rep. 802; 9 Am. St. Rep. 530; 23 Am. St. Rep. 149; 54 Am. St. Rep. 259; 26 Am. St. Rep. 22; 60 Am. St. Rep. 660; 65 Am. St. Rep. 504; 63 Am. St. Rep. 475; 2 Am. St. Rep. 799.

§ 4. 33 L. R. A. 87. Federal courts. 11 L. R. A. 275. Adoption by federal courts of remedies created by state statutes. 18 L. R. A. 266; 30 L. R. A. 336.

§ 5. 3 Am. St. Rep. 815; 54 Am. St. Rep. 255; 44 Am. St. Rep. 738; 10 Am. St. Rep. 646.

§ 1. General principles controlling equity.—Courts of equity will be liberal rather than strict in adapting their practice and applying their jurisdiction to existing conditions.[1]

§ 2. Equity jurisdiction and occasion for relief. A. In general.—Conditions existing when a bill is filed and not those which come into existence later must determine equitable jurisdiction.[2] Parties cannot by silence or consent confer it.[3] If before trial the parties agree to dispense with the necessity for granting relief sought, the court will refuse to act.[4] If equity is without jurisdiction on an original bill, it cannot take jurisdiction on a cross bill in the same suit.[5]

Where parties are within the jurisdiction of the court, any suit may be maintained and remedy granted directly operating on the person of defendant and not upon the subject-matter, which may be situated in another state or country, and such decree may be enforced against the person of defendant thus indirectly affecting his property beyond the jurisdiction.[6]

Courts of equity and of law have concurrent jurisdiction over certain matters.[7]

The Federal equity jurisdiction to give relief is that which equity had when the Judiciary Act was adopted.[8] Federal equity jurisdiction cannot be altered by state laws but substantial rights may be created which the proper federal court will enforce by the proper remedy, either in equity, in admiralty, or at law,[9] and congress may also create new rights of action likewise enforceable.[10]

§ 6. Complaint in suit for relief from judgment. 28 Am. St. Rep. 111. Amendments to pleadings. 51 Am. St. Rep. 423. Supplemental bill. 10 L. R. A. 298. Amendments in general. 51 Am. St. Rep. 423. Auxiliary bills. 3 L. R. A. 189. Cross bills. 56 Am. St. Rep. 868; 50 Am. St. Rep. 738; 29 L. R. A. 263. Demurrer. 23 Am. St. Rep. 150; 2 Am. St. Rep. 807. Multifariousness. 1 L. R. A. 125. Pleading laches. 2 Am. St. Rep. 807; 23 Am. St. Rep. 150.

§ 8. Trial by jury. 5 L. R. A. 226; 18 L. R. A. 646; 15 L. R. A. 287; 23 L. R. A. 367. Right to jury in actions against receivers. 74 Am. St. Rep. 290.

§ 11. Necessity of leave of court. 28 L. R. A. 157. Right to file in general. 36 L. R. A. 385. Computing time for. 49 L. R. A. 226.

1. Gibbs v. Morgan (Idaho) 72 Pac. 733.

2. Busch v. Jones, 184 U. S. 598, 46 Law. Ed. 707.

3. Damages for trespass—McMillan v. Wiley (Fla.) 33 So. 993.

Jurisdiction in equity cannot be conferred by estoppel, based on an order requiring election between bill and garnishment proceedings—Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455.

4. Daugherty v. Curtis (Iowa) 97 N. W. 67.

5. Metz v. McAvoy Brew. Co., 98 Ill. App. 584. But the cross bill may state a case on which the bill could not have been sustained—Sanders v. Riverside (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 720.

6. Specific performance respecting land in another state—Barringer v. Ryder (Iowa) 93 N. W. 56. Where a citizen of one state furnished to a manufacturer in another state a certain machine, title to remain in the seller until the price was paid, but the agreement as to title was not recorded in the state where the machinery was located as required by its laws, and the whole plant was afterwards attached under a mortgage, the court in the state of the seller's domicile had jurisdiction at the suit of the assignee of the mortgage to restrain the seller from removing the machinery from the plant; this case reviews many cases as to territorial jurisdiction of courts of equity—Schmaltz v. York Mfg. Co., 204 Pa. 1. In a suit to subject lands within the state to a claim for breach of a contract to convey land without the state, on service by publication, the bill cannot be changed into one for specific performance, since the court would have no jurisdiction of the subject matter—McGaw v. Gortner, 96 Md. 489.

The county court of one county cannot entertain a suit to enjoin judgment rendered by the county court of another county (Batt's Civ. St. § 2996)—Aultman v. Higbee (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 955.

7. Nuisance—Miller v. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 390. Frauds—Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373; Alton Grain Co. v. Norton, Id., 385. Remedy by cancellation not affected by statutory remedy—Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581. Money received by a bank from one afterward adjudged a bankrupt may be recovered by his trustee in equity under the federal bankruptcy act though he might have recovered it at law—Gnichtel v. First Nat. Bank (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 1041.

8. National Surety Co. v. State Bank (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 593.

9. National Surety Co. v. State Bank, 120 Fed. (C. C. A.) 593; Jones v. Mutual Fidelity Co., 123 Fed. 506. Creditors' suit entertained while probate proceedings on debtors' estate were pending—Hale v. Tyler, 115 Fed. 833. Such statutes or decisions of state courts can never confer authority on a federal court within the state to exercise equitable jurisdiction in actions at law—Goodyear Shoe Mach. Co. v. Dancel (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 692; Peck v. Ayers & L. Tie Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 273; United States Min. Co. v. Lawson, 115 Fed. 1005.

In so doing the legislature must preserve

The Federal district court sitting in bankruptcy exercises a special and not a general chancery jurisdiction.[11] The equity jurisdiction of probate courts is usually a limited statutory one.[12]

The right to proceed at law or in equity may be waived.[13] Where it has been decided on appeal that an action is in equity the court cannot, in a second trial, treat the action as at law and render a judgment accordingly, but must dismiss the action.[14]

Effect of code or statutory provisions.—The codes recognize the distinction between legal and equitable character as distinguished from the form of actions.[15] Creation by statute of a new equitable right or a new application of an equitable remedy does not enlarge the constitutional jurisdiction of chancery.[16] Where the code is silent as to remedies furnished by the old common law or equity practice, they may be employed in the bringing of a cross suit if not inconsistent with the code; and it seems that though a cross petition is more than merely defensive and asks affirmative relief, such relief need not be equitable when based on equitable grounds, but the matters set up in the cross petition must be germane to the original suit.[17] Equitable defenses may be made in legal actions,[18] but apart from statute, affirmative equitable relief cannot be administered.[19]

(2) B. Principles and maxims controlling application of equitable relief. General maxims.—No wrong will be suffered to exist without a remedy in equity, where the injury is sufficient to impress the conscience of the chancellor and complainant asks relief seasonably.[20] right of jury trial—Hudson v. Wood, 119 Fed. 764. See, also, forthcoming article Jurisdiction and article Courts, ante.

10. U. S. Rev. St. 1979—Giles v. Harris, 189 U. S. 475.

11. Construction of Bankrupt Act of July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 23; 30 Stat. 552, 553 (controversy between trustee and claimant of property)—In re Rochford (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 182.

12. Construction of various statutes as to the equity jurisdiction of probate courts in Massachusetts—Abbott v. Gaskins, 181 Mass. 501. The probate court of Illinois has no general chancery jurisdiction, and such chancery jurisdiction as it has will not divest other courts of general chancery jurisdiction of the power to act in the same matters—Northern Trust Co. v. Marsh, 98 Ill. App. 596.

13. Answering to cross bill filed in action at law—Wollenberg v. Rose, 41 Or. 314, 68 Pac. 804. Stipulation that the issues arising on petition at law might be tried on equity side with those on the cross-bill—Shehan v. Stuart, 117 Iowa, 207. Suing in equity instead of at law for trespasses plaintiff waives his statutory right to put defendant to condemnation proceedings and a jury trial—Westphal v. New York, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 252.

14. Porter v. International Bridge Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 358.

15. Character of action under code as determining right to jury trial—New Harmony Lodge v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 5. Effect of amended petition in injunction to restrain trespass as changing suit to action of trespass to try title maintainable only in county where land is situate—Fant v. Kenedy Pasture Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 420. In California, a proceeding to revoke probate of a will cannot be changed into a proceeding in equity to declare a trust—In re Davis' Estate, 136 Cal. 590, 69 Pac. 412. An action to foreclose a lien on property pledged as security for money loaned is inconsistent and cannot be joined with another to recover on a claim assigned to plaintiff for services rendered by a third person (Code Civ. Proc. § 484)—Conde v. Rogers, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 147. Ejectment, and count asking the court to ascertain and declare the title, may be joined (Rev. St. 1899, § 593)—Lane v. Dowd, 172 Mo. 167.

Where a cross bill in an action to recover rent of premises asks a cancellation of the lease, it is a suit in equity wherein equitable principles will control relief—Lincoln Trust Co. v. Nathan (Mo.) 74 S. W. 1007.

16. A statute authorizing the state board of health to restrain continuance of the discharge of sewage or other pollution into a stream. The reason for the act is that the legal remedy has been found inadequate (Act 1899. Pub. Laws, p. 73)—State v. Diamond Mills Paper Co. (N. J. Ch.) 51 Atl. 1019.

17. Armstrong v. Mayer (Neb.) 95 N. W. 51.

18. Defense of mistake (Code Civ. Proc. § 507)—Madison v. Benedict, 73 App. Div. (N. Y.) 112.

19. Damages from tort cannot be set off in an action on contract, because of insolvency or non-residence of plaintiff, where the jurisdiction of the court to hear equitable defenses does not include the recognition of such right and the award of affirmative relief—Hecht v. Smook & A. Furniture Co., 114 Ga. 921.

20. Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132.

He who comes into equity must come with clean hands,[21] but the rule applies only to a complainant whose misconduct is the basis for his request for relief in the particular transaction.[22]

He who seeks equity must do equity.[23] Compensation for a taking of prop-

21. Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132; Trice v. Comstock (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 620.

Relief denied. To assist business in violation of Const. art. 1, § 9, against pool selling or gambling—Maxim v. Sheehan, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 368. Complainant guilty of the same misconduct with which he charges respondent—Edward Thompson Co. v. American Law Book Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 922. One who seeks to avail himself of a crime whether he or another committed the crime—Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373; Alton Grain Co. v. Norton, Id., 385. Contracting to make defendant a free holder so as to enable him to sign appearance bonds for pay to be divided between them—Bacon v. Early, 116 Iowa, 532. Procuring attachment by a creditor to prevent attachment by other creditors—Moore v. Hemp's Ex'rs, 24 Ky. L. R. 121, 68 S. W. 1. Bucket shop trades in futures obnoxious to law—Board of Trade v. O'Dell Commission Co., 115 Fed. 574.

Lessee claiming under lease against public policy as forfeiting franchise of railroad—Brooklyn, etc., R. Co. v. Long Island R. Co., 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 496. Where abatement of stock pens is sought as a nuisance, it cannot be enjoined by defendants thereto, though plaintiffs in the abatement have no authority to have them abated—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Crothersville, 159 Ind. 330. Where an attorney obtained leave to sell the land of a decedent to pay debts, which had formerly been mortgaged by the administrator for the same purpose under representations that a larger amount of debts was owing than actually existed, and misstating the interests of the mortgagee in the property, and secured a license to sell without statutory notice, purchasing the property himself for an amount agreed upon with the administrator, he cannot secure cancellation of a mortgage given by the executor as a cloud on title—Snow v. Blount, 182 Mass. 489. Usurious payments on mortgage sought to be foreclosed—Interstate Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Badgley, 115 Fed. 390. Excessive claim in suit to enforce lien—Camden Iron Works v. Camden, 64 N. J. Eq. 723.

Both parties equally guilty (fraud on creditors)—Edgell v. Smith, 50 W. Va. 349; Bagwell v. Johnson, 116 Ga. 464. Contract concerning the sales of lands, whereby they were to sell the land secretly so as to defraud the owner—Trice v. Comstock, 115 Fed. 765.

Query. Whether the holder of a contract purporting to be for the purchase and sale of a diamond issued by what is commonly called a tontine company can come into equity with clean hands—Mann v. German-American Inv. Co. (Neb.) 97 N. W. 600.

22. Trice v. Comstock (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 620. In a suit to restrain the erection of windows over a sidewalk, complainants are not barred by relief because they themselves have erected obstructions over the sidewalk—Anisfield v. Grossman, 98 Ill. App. 180. A debtor may apply to a court of equity for relief against usury when he has paid fully his lawful indebtedness—Bell v. Mulholland, 90 Mo. App. 612. Where a combination of railroad companies forming a passenger association violates the federal anti-trust law it is not so directly connected with the contract of a ticket buyer that a railroad company in the association will be refused equitable relief in restraint of third persons from dealing in tickets in violation of the contract—Kinner v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 23 Ohio Circ. R. 294.

23. Complainant must acknowledge all equitable rights justly belonging to the adverse party necessarily involved in the subject matter of the suit—Wenham v. Mallin, 103 Ill. App. 609. Stockholder suing on refusal of directors must show that the result of the action will not be inequitable—Siegman v. Maloney, 63 N. J. Eq. 422. Payment of debts to trustee of homestead when asking enforcement of reconveyance—Walsh v. Walsh (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1024. Offer to allow redemption not required from execution creditor suing to quiet title under sheriff's deed—Worthington v. Miller, 134 Ala. 420. An attorney who obtained leave to sell the land of a decedent to pay debts, and by agreement bought it was required to do equity to a mortgagee claiming under a mortgage by the representative for an excessive amount—Snow v. Blount, 182 Mass. 489. An agreement between the parties to a suit in equity that on certain consideration defendant would pay two notes, held not fair and equal when it did not provide for the surrender of outstanding notes and bond—Cook v. Casler, 83 N. Y. Supp. 1045.

Surrender of losses paid to tenant for burned fixtures held not necessary on rescission of lease when that question is not reached by issues made—Lincoln Trust Co. v. Nathan (Mo.) 74 S. W. 1007.

Where the distinction between legal and equitable rights is strictly preserved, estoppel in pais is not available at law (Grubbs v. Boon, 201 Ill. 98; Haney v. Breeden [Va.] 42 S. E. 916; Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 202 Ill. 41), but the general rule is otherwise.

Returning consideration or benefits. A rescinding vendee need not return the property in the condition in which it was received—Bell v. Felt, 102 Ill. App. 218. Returning moneys to which party not entitled—Lincoln Trust Co. v. Nathan (Mo.) 74 S. W. 1007. Benefits received by heir under agreement with administrator—Holmes v. Columbia Nat. Bank (Neb.) 97 N. W. 26. Difference between real value of services rendered under employment by corporation from which the stock was purchased, and the amount plaintiff received therefor, (suit to rescind sale of stock)—Deppen v. German-American Title Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1110, 70 S W. 868.

Duty to conflicting claimants, lienors, etc. Interest must be paid on moneys of other parties retained by suitor—Weber v. Zacharias, 105 Ill. App. 640.

Discharge of debt secured by mortgage on fraudulently conveyed property sought to be erty may be offered as equity in a suit respecting a stream and persons injured need not be remitted to the legal remedy.[24]

Equity follows the law.[25]

Equity will not attempt to give relief where it would be futile.[26] The right sought to be enforced must be valuable.[27]

Existence of an adequate remedy at law will render equitable interference unnecessary and improper,[28] unless the legal and equitable remedies are concurrent;[29] even then equity will refuse to act if the law court has already taken jurisdiction.[30] The application of the rule depends upon the particular circumstances of each case,[31] and rests in the sound discretion of the court where circumsubjected to complainant's judgment—Taylor v. Dwyer, 131 Ala. 91. Offer to pay taxes and penalties with interest on redeeming from tax sale—South Chicago Brew. Co. v. Taylor (Ill.) 68 N. E. 732.

24. Rights of riparian owners damaged by making irrigation ditch—Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781.

25. As to the statute of limitations—Parmelee v. Price, 105 Ill. App. 271; Hale v. Coffin (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 470; Crawford v. Watkins (Ga.) 45 S. E. 482; Mantle v. Speculator Min. Co., 27 Mont. 473, 71 Pac. 665. As to a legal demand sued on in equity—Sibley v. Stacey (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 420; Boynton v. Haggart (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 819; Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. O'Brien County, 118 Iowa, 582; Newberger v. Wells, 51 W. Va. 624. However see Ide v. Trorlicht, etc., Carpet Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 137; Wall v. Meilke (Minn.) 94 N. W. 688; State v. Dashiele (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 779.

26. The inadequacy of its relief by decree will prevent a court of equity from compelling a county board of registrars to enroll negro on the voting lists where the refusal to register is alleged to be part of a general scheme by the whites of the state and the state to disfranchise the negroes—Giles v. Harris, 189 U. S. 475.

27. The amount of $3.55 which will be considerably reduced by later circumstances, is too small to justify the interference of a court of equity—Tanner v. Nelson, 25 Utah, 226, 70 Pac. 984.

28. Sharpe v. Hodges, 116 Ga. 795; Shenehon v. Illinois Life Ins. Co., 100 Ill. App. 281. Protection of irrigation rights—Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781. Definition of adequate remedy at law—Carter v. Warner (Neb.) 89 N. W. 747; Keplinger v. Woolsey (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1008.

29. To cancel an instrument—Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581. Probate courts—Northern Trust Co. v. Marsh, 98 Ill. App. 596. Nuisances—Miller v. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 390. Questions of fraud—Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373; Alton Grain Co. v. Norton, Id., 385. On equity jurisdiction of Massachusetts probate courts—Abbott v. Gaskins, 181 Mass. 501. That the statutes of a state give complainant a legal remedy in its courts which did not exist at common law will not prevent a federal court of equity from taking jurisdiction—Peck v. Ayers & L. Tie Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 273. Cancellation of a release of damages for personal injuries, obtained by fraud in equity, will not be prevented by an enactment of a statute giving a remedy at law—Roberts v. Central Lead Co., 95 Mo. App. 581.

Whether the procedure shall be in one court or another depends absolutely on the object of the suit and the nature of the relief sought, so that if the procedure and the relief are essentially equitable, it does not matter that they bear relation to a legal demand—Jones v. Mutual Fidelity Co., 123 Fed. 506.

Code remedies may embrace both equitable and legal relief and be in addition to legal remedies strictly speaking, e. g.: remedy to "ascertain" and "quiet" title to land (Code Civ. Proc. § 1310)—Montana Ore-Purchasing Co. v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co., 27 Mont. 288, 70 Pac. 1114. In Missouri under the statute, a suit in equity to remove a cloud on title may be maintained by one not in possession—Field v. Barber Asphalt Co., 117 Fed. 925.

30. Matters of complex or mutual accounts and claims arising out of fiduciary relations which are already in litigation at law—Nash v. McCathern, 183 Mass. 345.

31. EQUITABLE RELIEF DENIED.

Cases in which the legal remedy is held to be adequate. Where an action at law is brought against attorneys to recover money retained by them as fees from the proceeds of prior litigation, they have an adequate remedy at law to determine their fees, in the action against them—German v. Browne (Ala.) 34 So. 985. Where damages will fully compensate complainant and no multiplicity of suits is threatened jurisdiction will be refused—Wabash R. Co. v. Engleman (Ind.) 66 N. E. 892. Injunction against an action by a guardian (adequate remedy by appeal from the order of appointment by the probate court)—White v. Strong, 75 Conn. 308. In an action to enforce a lien against a town collector and his sureties one of whom is dead, the administrator may defend upon the ground that there is an adequate remedy at law, where the complaint alleges that they claimed an interest in the premises which accrued subsequently to the lien of the tax collector's bond—Chatfield v. Rodger, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 631. A bill to prevent diversion of water from a canal will be dismissed to leave plaintiff to his remedy at law, where it appears that, at the time of filing, his business had been destroyed by certain combinations, that he had long delayed in asserting his right, that the damage was trifling, if any, and that defendant had made improvements greatly increasing the capacity of the canal—Stewart Wire Co. v. Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co., 203 Pa. 474. Equity will not interfere with eminent domain proceedings by a city to acquire an easement along a creek where, under the city charter and the Code of the state, plaintiff has an ample remedy by interposing in stances appear showing that the legal remedy may not be complete.[32] The rule is the proceedings—Hooker v. Rochester, 172 N. Y. 665. The federal court will not entertain a suit seeking discovery and relief where the only ground for equity is discovery of evidence to be used in enforcing a legal demand—Safford v. Ensign Mfg. Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 480.

A suit may be brought to determine which of several claimants is entitled to the award for land condemned by a city for a street, since the title to the property passes to the city and the action is not to determine title to land—Gardner v. Baltimore (Md.) 54 Atl. 85.

Contracts. Absence of fraud or mistake—Bank v. Belington Coal Co., 51 W. Va. 60. Discharge of servant from employment—Boyer v. Western Union Tel. Co., 124 Fed. 246. Breach of a contract to sell a certain commodity—Mundy v. Brooks, 204 Pa. 232. Breach of sale of standing timber by denial of license to enter (Under Code 1896, § 809) —Inglis v. Freeman (Ala.) 34 So. 394. Failure to deliver goods sold (injunction asked against sale to others)—New Hartford Canning Co. v. Bulifant, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 6. A written contract will not be construed in equity, nor damages granted for its breach, where a reformation is not asked and neither fraud nor mistake is alleged—Clarke v. Shirk (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 340. Where the right to a lien was lost through bad faith, a suit for breach of contract and foreclosure of the lien will be dismissed, leaving plaintiffs to their remedy at law—Robinson v. Brooks, 31 Wash. 60, 71 Pac. 721. Specific performance of a verbal contract leasing an office for a term of years will not be decreed after part performance where the lessee asking relief did nothing which may not readily be compensated for by an action for damages—Henley v. Cottrell Real Estate, etc., Co. (Va.) 43 S. E. 191. After one partner sells his interest to the other, under the latter's agreement to pay the debts he is not entitled to maintain a suit in equity for enforcement of the contract and an accounting, unless he shows fraud, there being an adequate remedy at law—Pace v. Smith (Ala.) 34 So. 1006. Defense cognizable at law in action on insurance policy will prevent a suit in equity for its cancellation—Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Pearson, 114 Fed. 395; Shenehon v. Illinois Life Ins. Co., 100 Ill. App. 281.

Accounting. No showing of mutual, intricate or complicated account or other ground invoking equity (American Spirits Mfg. Co. v. Easton, 120 Fed. 440), or that the contract provided for such accounting—Lee v. Washburn, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 410. A complaint alleging that plaintiff was employed as promoter, held insufficient—Everett v. De Fontaine, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 219.

Right of property or possession. Defendant in replevin when prevented pending action from exercising dominion may try his right before a jury—Jones v. MacKenzie (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 390. In a suit to recover possession of a deed returned to the grantor to be corrected after delivery to the grantee, on his refusal to return will not lie, unless there is no adequate remedy at law, and claim and delivery or an action to determine adverse claims may be maintained by the grantee—Barkey v. Johnson (Minn.) 95 N. W. 583.

Remedy by ejectment—Lasswell v. Kitt (N. M.) 70 Pac. 561. If there is no equity in the cause of one seeking an injunction against erection of a building on land the presence of defects in the title on which the other party relies has no significance—Dobleman v. Gately, 64 N. J. Eq. 223. A bill to cancel or remove a cloud on title cannot be maintained by one not in possession—Neff v. Ryman (Va.) 42 S. E. 314; Treadwell v. Torbert, 133 Ala. 504. Incompetency of suitor makes no difference—Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 129 Ala. 279; Galloway v. Hendon, 131 Ala. 280. Nor can he regain possession so as to sue in equity by leasing to tenants of the grantee—Treadwell v. Torbert, 133 Ala. 504.

Forcible dispossession of one in possession under a deed purporting to convey the legal title—David v. Levy, 119 Fed. 799.

Deed absolutely void for insanity of the grantor—Boddie v. Bush, 136 Ala. 560. Enforcement of condition precedent in a deed —Davison v. Davison, 71 N. H. 180. Invalidity of deed to homestead by insane husband and not joined in by wife—Larson v. Larson (Miss.) 33 So. 717; Letohatchie Baptist Church v. Bullock, 133 Ala. 549. Title and boundary of land as between adverse claimants—Freer v. Davis (W. Va.) 43 S. E. 164. Protection of wharfage rights along the line of their abutting property, which was recognized by custom and the statute and organic law of the state—Turner v. Mobile, 135 Ala. 73. Violation of the terms of a deed granting an easement for right of way to a railroad company by the erection of a trestle above the grade as required by the state railroad commissioner, will not entitle the grantor of the easement to a decree compelling the removal of the track and abandonment of the road, but only to pecuniary damages—Lane v. Michigan Traction Co. (Mich.) 97 N. W. 354. The prosecution of several actions for injuries to land on the ground that defendant will require discovery as to title and interest of each complainant will not be restrained in equity (Shannon's Code, § 5684 authorizes discovery in suits at law)—Ducktown Sulphur, Copper & Iron Co. v. Fain, 109 Tenn. 56.

Torts or criminal acts. Equity will not interfere where a tort only has been committed—Sheriff v. Turner, 119 Fed. 782. Violation of penal laws will not be prevented at suit of one seeking merely to restrain a rival in business (York v. Yzaguairre [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 563); nor to prevent criminal acts merely because the proper officers have neglected or refused to perform their duty in enforcing the law; or a public nuisance on the ground that the criminal laws as administered do not meet the requirements unless it clearly appears that injury will result to public civil rights or property—People v. Condon, 102 Ill. App. 449.

Where property is not taken directly for public purpose, but suffers injury as to rights incidental to its peculiar situation or posi-not to be carried out so strictly as to deny any party reasonable means for enforcing legal or equitable rights.[33] To remit complainant to law his damages tion, so that condemnation proceedings and payment of damages in advance are not practicable, the owner will be left to his remedy at law and will not be granted an injunction unless for insolvency or other special circumstances—Bronson v. Albion Tel. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 201.

Trespass. One out of possession—Gildersleeve v. Overstolz, 97 Mo. App. 303. Repeated trespass, where plaintiff holds the legal title—Thomas v. Robinson (Iowa) 92 N. W. 70. Unnecessary encroachment on a toll road by an electric railroad—Detroit & B. Plankroad Co. v. Oakland R. Co. (Mich.) 92 N. W. 346. Acts of trespass confined to the driving of a few stakes by surveyor—Wabash R. Co. v. Engleman (Ind.) 66 N. E. 892. Entry by solvent person and the sinking of shafts and carrying away of samples of ore, the substance of the estate being not materially injured—Harley v. Montana Ore Purchasing Co., 27 Mont. 388, 71 Pac. 407.

Penalties. An equitable action to cancel a chattel mortgage which has been paid cannot be based upon a claim for the statutory penalty for failure to release other chattel mortgages unpaid and not reduced to judgment. The penalty should be recovered at law before being made the foundation of an equitable proceeding for cancellation of the lien—Meredith v. Lyon (Neb.) 92 N. W. 122.

Suits pertaining to public office. Removal from, or right to office—Marshall v. Board of Managers, 201 Ill. 9. Appointment of public officers or their title to office—Landes v. Walls (Ind.) 66 N. E. 679. Quo warranto and not a suit in equity is the proper remedy for preventing a de facto officer from performing the duties of the office—Deemar v. Boyne, 103 Ill. App. 464. Equity will not interfere by injunction to test the validity of the action of the mayor and council of the city in removing a city attorney for misconduct or in recognizing his successor—Howe v. Dunlap (Okl.) 72 Pac. 365. The mayor of a city cannot restrain impeachment proceedings and his removal from office as against the aldermen and city council, since he has an adequate remedy at law to protect his title to office—Riggins v. Thompson (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 578.

Existence and powers of municipal corporations. Relief from ultra vires dealings of municipal corporations—Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132. Legality of organization of a school district cannot be attacked in equity, the proper remedy being quo warranto—School Dist. No. 4 v. Smith, 90 Mo. App. 215. A federal court of equity cannot entertain a suit by holders of warrants issued by the board of Metropolitan police of New Orleans, to enforce payment by the city from a fund required to be raised by taxation under the apportionment to the city by the board of its share of expense in policing the district except as ancillary to a judgment at law against the city, and even then it will only apply to taxes collected. The creditors have an action at law against the city notwithstanding the act of 1877 (see New Orleans v. Benjamin, 153 U. S. 411.) —Emsheimer v. New Orleans, 116 Fed. 893.

Remedies against corporations or stockholders. Dispute as to corporate office—Standard Gold Min. Co. v. Byers, 31 Wash. 100, 71 Pac. 766. Management of a corporation will not be interfered with in absence of fraud or collusion or ultra vires acts on the part of the managing officers—Coss v. Herring, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 36. Where stock subscribers sold their stock to a nonresident with intent to defraud the corporation and its creditors and without reason to believe that the purchaser would be able to pay the subscription notes, a judgment creditor of the corporation could not sue in equity to compel them to pay their subscription notes because there was an adequate remedy at law by garnishment—Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455. The remedy at law is sufficient to prevent jurisdiction of a bill asking for a temporary injunction on behalf of a non-assenting holder of preferred stock to prevent a corporation from carrying out an agreement with another corporation for the substitution of non-accumulative for accumulative dividend-paying preferred stock and a refund of all dividends in arrears—Willcox v. Trenton Potteries Co., 64 N. J. Eq. 173. A bill against a re-organized railroad company which had bought and gone into possession of the property of the first company through a foreclosure sale and a trust company to get possession of bonds deposited by complainant with the latter company which were guaranteed by the first railroad company and to compel their payment on the ground that the foreclosure was void, does not show that there is no adequate remedy at law, so as to justify interference of equity, even if it is not open to the objection of multifariousness—Sawyer v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 119 Fed. 252.

Enforcement of, or relief against judgments at law. Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132. Vacation of judgment in equity after the term will not be allowed in absence of substantial injury; construing Code Civ. Proc. subd. 4, § 602—Van Every v. Sanders (Neb.) 95 N. W. 870. Equity cannot subject choses in action belonging to a judgment debtor to the satisfaction of an execution returned "no property found" without an allegation of fraud, mistake, the presence of a trust or other fact recognized as ground for interference of equity—Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455. Equity will decline to interfere to grant new trials at law when relief may be obtained by application to the law court—Hayes v. United States Phonograph Co. (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 84.

EQUITABLE RELIEF GRANTED.

Cases in which the legal remedy is held to be inadequate. Where the law, because of its universality and the peculiar circumstances of the case, cannot restore to a person a right wrongfully taken by another, equity will afford a remedy—Rhoten v. Baker, 104 Ill. App. 653. The interference of equity is justified where irreparable injury is imminent to preserve matters in statu quo until the court ascertain the truth—Leigh v. National Hollow Brake Beam Co., 104 Ill. App. 438. That violence committed must be susceptible of proof.[34] To warrant the interference of equity to prevent a nuisance, it must appear that the danger of injury is imminent and impending by strikers may be punished criminally will not prevent restraint in equity to protect property or business—Union Pac. R. Co. v. Ruef, 120 Fed. 102.

Prevention of collisions at crossing of railroads—Jersey City etc. R. Co. v. New York R. Co. (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 709. Restraining exercise of eminent domain—St. Louis, etc. R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276. Action on negotiable paper where the indorsee has only an equitable title—Moore v. Durnam, 63 N. J. Eq. 96; Action asking judgment that a chattel mortgage executed to plaintiffs be declared a lien on the property prior to certain other mortgages of earlier date assigned to defendant—Salmon v. Norris, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 362. Suit to adjust rights and distribute moneys arising on condemnation—Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451.

Multiplicity of suits—Longshore v. Longshore, 200 Ill. 470. If an interpleader will not clearly lie, equity may take jurisdiction to prevent a multiplicity of suits and a waste of property, especially where the remedy at law is not as complete as may be afforded in equity—Fleming v. Blosser Printing Co. (Ga.) 44 S. E. 805. Where a judgment creditor is prosecuting a multiplicity of proceedings in garnishment to subject wages of laborers, mechanics and clerks absolutely exempt by law from attachment, execution and garnishment process as far as his judgment is concerned, he may be restrained in equity—Siever v. Union Pac. R. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 943.

Relief against fraud and mistake. Fraud —Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373; Alton Grain Co. v. Norton, Id. 385. Constructive fraud in execution of an instrument—Gorman v. McCabe (R. I.) 52 Atl. 989. Insertion of clause in note by fraud—Gregory v. Howell, 118 Iowa, 26.

Mistake which is not the result of complainant's own violation of a legal duty—Barker v. Fitzgerald, 105 Ill. App. 536. Mistake of law resulting in loss of property rights—Bottorff v. Lewis (Iowa) 95 N. W. 262.

Enforcement of contracts. Contract not mutual but accepted and performed by one party—Corbet v. Oil City Fuel Supply Co., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 80. Where part of the price has been paid for land sold, the vendor may have specific performance—Maryland Clay Co. v. Simpers, 96 Md. 1. By-law of a mutual benefit society so amended as not to be a breach of the contract with member as to entitle him to sue for damages—Langan v. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor, 174 N. Y. 266. Cross-bill in equity filed in an action at law setting up part payment on a parol contract for the sale of land and asking relief thereon—Wollenberg v. Rose, 41 Or. 314, 68 Pac. 804. Where one who desired to develop the water power of a river, secured options on adjoining lands necessary to his object, and on learning that other landowners were securing lands for the same purpose, transferred his options to them under an agreement that a corporation should be organized in which he was to have a certain interest, he was entitled to sue in equity for the appointment of a receiver to complete the purchase and to protect his rights, where they refused to complete the contract and ignored his demand for a return of the options conveyed—Barrett v. Twin City Power Co., 118 Fed. 861.

Preventing interference with contractual rights. The unlawful interference with performance of contracts by coal companies will be prevented where it appears that the plaintiff is without adequate remedy at law—Chesapeake & O. Coal Agency Co. v. Fire Creek Coal & Coke Co., 119 Fed. 942. The assaulting or intimidating of workmen by strikers or threatening them or their families so as to prevent them from working for the employer will be restrained in equity where there is no adequate remedy at law—Union Pac. R. Co. v. Ruef, 120 Fed. 102.

Cancellation or reformation of contracts. —Null v. Elliott, 52 W. Va. 229; Nutter v. Brown, 52 W. Va. 598; Youngstown Electric Light Co. v. Butler County Poor Dist., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 95; Enos v. Stewart, 138 Cal. 112, 70 Pac. 1005. Suit to cancel a contract for fraud—Andrews v. Frierson (Ala.) 33 So. 6. Deed including, by mistake of scrivener, more land than intended—Barry v. Rownd (Iowa) 93 N. W. 67. Setting aside fraudulent conveyance for undue influence—Keys v. McDermott (Wis.) 93 N. W. 553. Fraud in conveyance of lands—Allen v. Henn, 197 Ill. 486. A suit to cancel a deed on consideration that the grantee should remain with, and care for, the grantor during life on the ground of breach of contract is properly brought in equity—Lowman v. Crawford, 99 Va. 688. Instrument made on misrepresentation and fraud as to the consideration by one in a fiduciary relation—Robinson v. Sharp, 201 Ill. 86. To compel surrender of judgment note to which there is a defense as against any person—Vannatta v. Lindley, 198 Ill. 40 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 98, § 10) —Vannatta v. Lindley, 198 Ill. 40. Cancellation of promissory note for total failure of consideration (Womelsdorf v. O'Connor [W. Va.] 44 S. E. 191); especially where the holder has taken possession of property covered by a mortgage given as security for the note—Hodge v. McMahon (Ala.) 34 So. 185.

Remedies against unconscionable contracts and forfeitures.—Roux v. Rothschild, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 435; Coveney v. Pattullo (Mich.) 89 N. W. 968. Usurious contracts—Bill v. Mulholland, 90 Mo. App. 612. Forfeitures—Houston v. Curran, 101 Ill. App. 203.

Recovery of personal property. Where it appears in an action to enforce a constructive trust in property claimed to have been sold under false representations of the buyer and mingled with other property so as to be difficult of investigation, the remedy at law by an action of replevin was not adequate and equity would assume jurisdiction—Missouri Broom Mfg. Co. v. Guymon (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 112.

Recovery of lands based on necessity of first cancelling a deed—Kilgore v. Norman, 119 Fed. 1006.

Trespass, waste and other injuries to real property or possession thereof. Trespass may be prevented where irreparable injury and its effect certain.[35] That the same judge presides over both courts will not change the rule.[36] A federal court can never assume equitable jurisdiction in an will result, until the question of title can be determined at law—Freer v. Davis, 52 W. Va. 1.

Where trespass has already been done, and it appears to the court that defendant intends to commit other deliberate trespasses which cannot be adequately compensated for at law, equity will interfere, especially where defendant is insolvent—Adden Coal Co. v. Challis, 103 Ill. App. 52; (cutting of trees)—Palmer v. Crisle, 92 Mo. App. 510.

But insolvency is not indispensable to make a case—Lynch v. Egan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 775. Riparian owner filling low places and constructing a levee so as to overflow lands on the opposite side may be restrained though not insolvent—Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2, c. 89—Sullivan v. Dooley (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 82.

Equitable waste by removing timber pending action on a title bond the vendees being insolvent—Terry v. Robbins, 122 Fed. 725.

Interference by lessor with construction of a switch track to a mine by a lessee—Ingle v. Bottoms (Ind.) 66 N. E. 160. Remedy of lessee of oil lands against one who has attempted to bore for oil under contract with owner—Chappell v. Jasper County Oil & Gas Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 515. One who is a licensee for removal of ore from land and whose license may be revoked only for breach of rules and regulations has no remedy at law against a trespasser—Lytle v. James. 98 Mo. App. 337.

Where the construction of a track by a railroad company in a street will destroy an easement owned by an abutting owner, he may ask interference in equity to prevent the laying of the track until his rights have been properly appropriated or purchased through proceedings by the railroad company—Cleveland Burial Case Co. v. Erie R. Co., 24 Ohio Circ. R. 107. Though construction has been begun and great expense incurred—Paige v. Schenectady Ry. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 571. An action at law to dispossess a railroad company which entered and built its track under an unenforceable contract, will be restrained if the company offers to compensate for use and occupation which compensation may be fixed by condemnation proceedings—Winslow v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 188 U. S. 646, 47 Law. Ed. 635. Opening and using land as a street without the owner's consent, condemnation, dedication, or user—Baya v. Town of Lake City (Fla.) 33 So. 400.

A cross-bill in a suit to quiet title, averring that defendant has possession and asking establishment of its title, will give a court of equity jurisdiction to settle the question as to title as between the parties, though the failure of plaintiff to be in possession would have defeated jurisdiction on the original bill—Sanders v. Village of Riverside (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 720; Village of Riverside v. Sanders, Id.

Where improvements are made on land of another in good faith and under belief of title and the builder on discovery of the mistake, removes them, and the owner sues for the value of the improvements, the defendant may obtain relief in equity, when he cannot under his title recover under the occupying claimants' act—Darnall v. Jones' Ex'rs, 24 Ky. L. R. 2090, 72 S. W. 1108.

Equity will grant relief on a bill to restrain obstruction of an easement, though there has been no decision as to title at law, where the evidence as to plaintiff's title is such that a verdict would be directed for him at law—Richmond v. Bennett, 205 Pa. 470.

Removal of boundary fences and encroachments by new fences (F. H. Wolf Brick Co. v. Lonyo [Mich.] 93 N. W. 251) no question of title being involved—Currier v. Jones (Iowa) 96 N. W. 766.

Matters relating to corporations. Suit to restrain a resident creditor from suing a corporation for which the receiver was appointed in another state—Davis v. Butters Lumber Co., 132 N. C. 233.

Statute providing for production of documents in possession of an "adverse party" gives no adequate remedy for discovery of names of defendant corporation's stockholders before suing (Gen. Laws, c. 244, § 47)—Clark v. Rhode Island Locomotive Works (R. I.) 53 Atl. 47.

Though the title to office in private corporations must be tried at law by quo warranto, if other elements exist in a case which make equitable intervention proper, a court of equity may determine the title to office—Boggiano v. Chicago Macaroni Mfg. Co., 99 Ill. App. 509.

Illegal acts by municipalities. Unlawful revocation by a city council of a permit to remove a building within the fire limits—Lerch v. City of Duluth, 88 Minn. 295. Where municipal authorities are taking unauthorized action under color of office, which injures the rights of a taxpayer so that he has no direct remedy at law, he may appeal to equity—Poppleton v. Moores (Neb.) 93 N. W. 747. A taxpayer after payment of his taxes has no remedy at law against an illegal award of a sum of money and may restrain payment—Kircher v. Pederson (Wis.) 93 N. W. 813.

Public Improvements and Contracts. Where work has been begun under a contract which was awarded to a bidder other than the lowest bidder, the only remedy is in equity—City of Akron v. France, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 63. Suit for damages on contractor's bond is adequate to remedy threatened use of worthless material in a public work—Miller v. Bowers, 30 Ind. App. 116. Improper departures already made from paving contract by which the city is defrauded—Central Bitulithic Pav. Co. v. Manistee Circuit Judge (Mich.) 92 N. W. 839; Common Council of City of Manistee v. Same, Id. Where a city wrongfully erected structures on a private road to enable its use by the public so as to injure the owner's access to adjoining property and assessed part of the costs on his property, he may bring a suit in equity to set aside the assessment, secure the restoration of the road to its former condition and for damages—Culver v. City of Yonkers, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 309.

Enforcement of debts against insolvents or bankrupts. A set off may be enforced action at law because it is conferred by state statutes or decisions of state courts.[37] A remedy must exist which is adequate and applicable in the same jurisdiction.[38]

The legal remedies must have been diligently pursued and exhausted,[39] unless complainant would have defeated himself by so doing.[40]

The adequacy of the legal remedy must be raised by defendant,[41] before defense on the merits.[42]

Doing complete justice.—Where equity has obtained jurisdiction, on equitable against one who is insolvent—Hahn v. Gates, 102 Ill. App. 385. Bankrupt's trustee may sue to recover the money paid in contemplation of insolvency though he might have recovered it at law—Gnichtel v. First Nat. Bank (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 1041.

Relief against judgment—Brooks v. Twitchell, 182 Mass. 443. Collusive judgment against municipality may be restrained by a taxpayer—Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132. Administrator relieved as against a judgment against the estate—Polarek v. Gordon, 102 Ill. App. 356. Written agreement outside the record not to levy execution against property of certain parties now complaining in consideration of their making no active defense to the action—Crook v. Lipscomb (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 993.

Enforcement of judgment and aid of execution. A right to reach choses in action of a judgment debtor given by statutes to a judgment creditor by garnishment proceedings may be enforced in equity where because of impediment it cannot be enforced at law—Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455; Hall v. Henderson, Id. Existence of money demand not triable in creditors' suit—Hudson v. Wood, 119 Fed. 764.

32. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Pearson, 114 Fed. 395.

33. Fryberger v. Berven, 88 Minn. 311.

34. Restrictive contract—American Fisheries Co. v. Lennen, 118 Fed. 869.

35. Drilling of oil well—Pope v. Bridgewater Gas Co., 52 W. Va. 252.

36. Union Light & Power Co. v. Lichty (Or.) 71 Pac. 1044.

37. Goodyear Shoe Mach. Co. v. Dancel (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 692.

38. Federal courts—National Surety Co. v. State Bank (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 593.

39. Metz v. McAvoy Brew. Co., 98 Ill. App. 584. The holder of a contract for sale of a diamond on tontine plan not reduced to judgment or who has no lien on property of the company, cannot come into equity—Mann v. German-American Inv. Co. (Neb.) 97 N. W. 600. Failure to appeal or bring certiorari—Kyle v. Richardson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 399. An adjoining land owner who has failed to appeal cannot sue in equity to vacate proceedings for opening of a highway. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 9419 giving an appeal from the judgment in such proceedings in the county court—Searcy v. Clay County (Mo.) 75 S. W. 657. Where it appears that defendants could have obtained any relief they were entitled to against a default judgment on motion, they cannot sue in equity to set aside the proceedings—Baer v. Higson (Utah) 72 Pac. 180. A new trial will not be granted in the district court by petition in equity on the ground that a hearing in the supreme court has been denied the applicant without his fault, unless it appears that he has used the utmost diligence to have the case reviewed in the supreme court and the review has been denied him—Langan v. Parkhurst (Neb.) 96 N. W. 63. Where the jurisdiction of chancery to reach equitable or legal assets of a defendant, whether a corporation or a natural person, is in aid of a legal remedy for a money demand, it is not by way of substitution for, but only in aid of, the legal remedy and cannot be resorted to until plaintiff has exhausted the latter remedy by obtaining judgment for the demand and general issue of execution returned unsatisfied—Jones v. Mutual Fidelity Co., 123 Fed. 506. General corporate creditors cannot proceed in the federal court of equity, against the stockholders, until they have exhausted their remedy against the corporation by reducing their claims to judgment—New Hampshire Sav. Bank v. Richey (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 956. A return of "no property found" on execution, prima facie shows that legal remedies have been exhausted so that equity may take jurisdiction—Oppenheimer v. Collins, 115 Wis. 283. Where it appears that an administrator fraudulently filed a petition representing that decedent left no lineal descendants and obtained an order distributing his estate and discharging himself, and after the death of the widow of decedent was appointed her administrator, and fraudulently represented the amount of her property and failed to charge himself with amounts of money which came into his possession as administrator of the two estates, the children of a brother of the decedent, suing to recover one-half of his estate were not required, first before bringing their bill, to proceed against the widow's estate in the probate court—Maney v. Casserly (Mich.) 96 N. W. 478.

Mistake, accident or omission in pursuing legal remedy. Mistakes of law—Dobson v. Central R. Co., 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 582.

One having a complete and adequate remedy at law will not be heard in equity, unless prevented by accident or circumstances beyond his control from asserting it at law and when he is free from laches—Klinesmith v. Van Bramer, 104 Ill. App. 384. One may have relief in equity from a fraudulently procured judicial accounting where he learned the facts too late for appeal—Aldrich v. Barton, 138 Cal. 220, 71 Pac. 169.

40. Jones v. Mutual Fidelity Co., 123 Fed. 506.

41. Le Vie v. Fenlon, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 265.

42. United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 117 Fed. 544. The right to object may be waived by stipulating for a hearing before the master—Sanders v. Riverside (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 720.

grounds, of the parties and the subject-matter for one purpose it will retain the case to grant complete relief,[43] though plaintiff did not pray all relief given,[44]

43. Richardson v. Ranson, 99 Ill. 258; Bonney v. Sellers, 99 Ill. App. 444; Leigh v. National Hollow Brake Beam Co., 104 Ill. App. 438. Though some matters may concern purely legal remedies—Bourke v. Hefter, 104 Ill. App. 126; Whalen v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281.

Applications of rule. Jurisdiction taken to appoint a receiver (Barrett v. Twin City Power Co., 118 Fed. 861); or to test validity of assignment of mortgage by decedent on behalf of heirs (Snyder v. Snyder [Mich.] 92 N. W. 353); or to construe a will (Lyons v. Steinhardt, 37 Misc. [N. Y.] 628); or to prevent multiplicity of suits (Richardson v. Ranson, 99 Ill. App. 258; Bonney v. Sellers, 99 Ill. App. 444); or to determine whether conveyance is a mortgage (Lane v. Beitz, 99 Ill. App. 342); or to restrain trial of a claim case between the same parties and relating to the same land—Goodwynne v. Bellerby, 116 Ga. 901. Equity, having once obtained jurisdiction respecting land, will entertain a cross-bill asserting other rights than those set forth by the bill (Longshore v. Longshore, 200 Ill. 470); or praying a reconveyance and accounting of rents—Allen v. Leflore County (Miss.) 31 So. 815. Original suit concerning water rights, and retention of case until all matters involved between the parties are finally adjusted—La Junta & L. Canal Co. v. Hess (Colo.) 71 Pac. 415.

On jurisdiction to determine a disputed boundary line, the ownership of land lying between the boundary lines claimed by each of the parties may be settled—Killgore v. Carmichael, 42 Or. 618, 72 Pac. 637. Where jurisdiction is acquired to discharge a mortgage, the whole controversy will be settled and complainant will be awarded a surplus due her as heir of the mortgagor, consisting of rents from the estate of the mortgagee—Whetstone v. McQueen (Ala.) 34 So. 229. After a contract for collection of payments on insurance policies has been cancelled for fraud, the bill may be retained to enjoin further litigation on the contract—Barrington v. Ryan, 88 Mo. App. 85. After taking jurisdiction to establish title to land because of the destruction of records in the Chicago fire, the court may remove a cloud on title in the same suit—South Chicago Brew. Co. v. Taylor (Ill.) 68 N. E. 732. If equity has taken jurisdiction of the parties and the subject, and on trial has granted interpleader to determine ownership of certain property as between two defendants, it will keep jurisdiction to determine that controversy—American Press Ass'n v. Brantingham, 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 426. After jurisdiction is rightfully taken of a controversy and all parties are before the court, equity may retain jurisdiction to grant full relief, and in doing so may restrain an action at law by one party in another court involving the same matters in controversy—Berliner Gramophone Co. v. Seaman (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 750; Id., 115 Fed. 806. In a litigation to preserve and protect property of a corporation pending litigation for benefit of creditors, bondholders and stockholders, all questions relating to ownership and claims against the property may be settled in the one cause—Richardson v. Ranson, 99 Ill. App. 258; Bonney v. Sellers, 99 Ill. App. 444. Where an incompetent person conveyed land and gave money to another through undue influence, a court of equity, after cancelling the deed at the suit of the grantor's heirs, may retain the bill to recover the money—Eagan v. Conway, 115 Ga. 130. Commission of waste by cutting timber which constitutes the chief value of land may be restrained in equity and also an accounting may be had for waste already committed and equity may also determine the title to land, though plaintiff is out of possession—Douglas Co. v. Tennessee Lumber Mfg. Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 438. In a suit to determine rights in a stream, plaintiff may offer to compensate riparian owners whose land is affected by construction of an irrigation canal, so that the rights of all the parties as to damages may be settled without leaving such owners to actions at law—Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781. If equity has taken jurisdiction of a trust estate for a party in interest entitled to complain of the investment of the fund in land in the name of the trustee, it will retain the case for complete justice and compel restoration of the capital by all who have aided in its impairment—Newton v. Rebenack, 90 Mo. App. 650. In a suit to foreclose a mortgage placed on water works previous to purchase by a city, equity will determine all matters in controversy and enforce complainant's rights under a contract made before execution of the mortgage, requiring the city to pay rentals to the trustee for the benefit of the bondholders—Centerville v. Fidelity Trust & Guaranty Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 332; Fidelity Trust & Guaranty Co. v. Fowler Water Co., 113 Fed. 560. Where a corporation organized by the owners of water rights was before the court in a suit to require transfer of deeds of water rights, it was held unnecessary to bring a new action against such corporation for the appointment of a receiver—La Junta & L. Canal Co. v. Hess (Colo.) 71 Pac. 415. Where cross suits have been brought for reformation of an insurance policy, to enforce payment of loss and for cancellation, and to restrain prosecution of an action at law, equity may retain jurisdiction to determine all the issues on the consolidation and trial of the suits together, including all questions at issue between the parties, and may render judgment for the loss on the policy—German Ins. Co. v. Downman (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 481. Where it appears that the sole executor of an estate, who was also the co-executor of another estate of which his wife was executrix and residuary legatee, had joined with her in asserting claims against the estate of which he was sole executor, a court of equity is justified in taking jurisdiction to determine whether there was a conspiracy between them to defraud parties in interest, and having so acquired jurisdiction it will retain it to afford relief demanded by the facts—Steinway v. Von Bernuth, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 596. Joinder by statute of all matters of action necessary provided the relief is consistent with the cause of action in the original suit.[45] If the relief sought by the bill is denied, it will not be retained to give purely legal relief incidental in its nature,[46] but only that within the scope of the controversy.[47] When nonresidents are in court by publication only, jurisdiction cannot be retained for relief which requires jurisdiction of the person.[48]

Jurisdiction may be taken to give complete relief where equitable rights appear in an action at law.[49] A bill may be retained on the docket to allow trial of title at law.[50]

Multiplicity of suits.—Where there is danger of a multiplicity of suits at law, equity will take jurisdiction,[51] unless the several suits depend on the same statement of facts and subject-matter,[52] or plaintiff has no valid cause of action legal or equitable,[53] or the persons directly interested are not parties, are not to a complete remedy (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 281)—Palmer Steel & Iron Co. v. Heat, etc., Co. (Ind.) 66 N. E. 690.

44. Cancellation of contract decreed—Jordan v. Coulter, 30 Wash. 116, 70 Pac. 257.

45. A suit for cancellation of an instrument cannot be retained after a finding that the instrument is valid to construe the instrument and to restrain defendant from representing that it operated as a license—Kerr v. Southwick (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 772.

46. After sustaining demurrer to the bill—Kessler v. Ensley Co., 123 Fed. 546. Damages will be assessed only where incidental to other relief in disposal of the whole controversy, and not if equitable grounds for relief have vanished—National Tube Co. v. Eastern Tube Co., 23 Ohio Circ. R. 468. A claim against a city to recover water rentals due under a contract, being a strictly legal question, cannot be enforced in a federal court of equity, though the court has acquired jurisdiction concerning other matters in controversy between the parties. Under the constitutional guaranty of right to trial by jury—American Waterworks Co. v. Home Water Co., 115 Fed. 171.

47. Where equity has obtained jurisdiction for purposes of an injunction, and such relief is denied, it may retain the case to give pecuniary damages, rather than remit complainant to his remedy at law—Lane v. Michigan Traction Co. (Mich.) 97 N. W. 354. Where one sues in equity in good faith but fails to show a right to equitable relief, the court may refuse to dismiss the suit and leave him to an action at law to secure a legal right within the scope of the controversy to which he shows himself clearly entitled, regardless of the form of the action—Gates v. Paul (Wis.) 94 N. W. 55.

48. Specific performance denied—McGaw v. Gortner, 96 Md. 489.

49. Where an action has been begun at law on an insurance policy, it appears after answer that a mutual mistake in the instrument will prevent recovery, equity will stay the prosecution at law, receive a bill for reformation of the policy, join the two actions and render judgment on the policy as reformed—Lansing v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 756.

50. Partition suit—Eagle v. Franklin (Ark.) 75 S. W. 1093.

51. Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781; Fleming v. Blosser Printing Co. (Ga.) 44 S. E. 805; Perry v. Elliott (Va.) 44 S. E. 919. After jurisdiction has been obtained to restrain waste and for an account for waste already taken, a multiplicity of suits may be prevented by settling the question of title—Peck v. Ayers & Lord Tie Co. (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 273. Where many complainants have identical claims of right in the same subject matter against many defendants which are corporations alleged to be in a combination to inflict wrongs on each complainant, equity will taken jurisdiction to avoid a multiplicity of suits—Tift v. Southern R. Co., 123 Fed. 789. A creditor's bill cannot be dismissed on a finding that certain defendants were indebted to the debtor for rent because plaintiff has an adequate remedy in garnishment proceedings, since one of the objects of the bill is to prevent a multiplicity of suits—Benedict v. T. L. V. Land & Cattle Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 210. Where it appears by a petition that defendant was acting in a manner to cast a cloud on the title of leases belonging to plaintiff causing plaintiff a multiplicity of suits to protect his rights, equity will interfere by injunction—Allen v. New Domain Oil & Gas Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 2169, 73 S. W. 747.

Illustrations. To prevent continued trespasses—Palmer v. Crisle, 92 Mo. App. 510; Lynch v. Egan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 775. Multiplicity of garnishment proceedings to subject wages of employes to attachment which are exempt by law—Siever v. Union Pac. R. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 943. Three persons interested in an award for damages on extension of a street—Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451. Injunction against enforcement of an illegal city ordinance imposing a license tax where complainant will be called upon to defend many criminal prosecutions and to suffer irreparable injury—City of Hutchinson v. Beckham (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 399. Rights to waters of a stream claimed by many persons because of riparian rights, appropriations and prescription or otherwise—Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781. Constantly recurring injury resulting from a trespass by a railroad company for which suit had already been instituted and plaintiffs intended to sue again—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Garrison (Miss.) 32 So. 996.

52, 53. Where several persons holding tracts of land under different titles without privity between them are sued each in ejectment by another equity will not intervene to prevent a multiplicity of suits—Turner v. City of Mobile, 135 Ala. 73.

numerous, and have separate and independent claims.[54] There must be a community of interest in the subject-matter or a common right or title.[55] It is not necessary that the many threatened suits shall have been begun.[56] A statutory remedy of one action at law will prevent equitable interference.[57] A reduction of the controversies to one issue will oust equitable jurisdiction.[58]

(§ 2) C. Occasions for, and subjects of, equitable relief.—The subjects of equity jurisdiction have been classified by numerous writers.[59] Justice Story assigns the following groups,[60]—trusts and equitable estates generally,[61] mistake, accident, and fraud,[62] penalties and forfeitures, imposition, unconscionable bargains, and

54. Threatened survey of state lands by land department of state—Kirwan v. Murphy, 189 U. S. 35, 47 Law. Ed. 698.

55. Tift v. Southern R. Co., 123 Fed. 789. A bill to prevent suits by 21 owners of land adjoining plaintiff's sulphur works will not be entertained—Ducktown Sulphur, Copper & Iron Co. v. Fain, 109 Tenn. 56. A suit to enforce the statutory liability of stockholders of a foreign corporation cannot be brought in equity to prevent a multiplicity of suits, where the amount demanded is the full amount of the par value of the stock held by each, the interest of each stockholder being separate and distinct—Hale v. Allinson, 188 U. S. 56, 47 Law. Ed. 380.

56. Prevention of enforcement of a city ordinance because void as against plaintiff and because many threatened prosecutions may result—Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. v. City of Superior (Wis.) 93 N. W. 1120.

57. Where a statute for highway assessments provides for one assessment to be paid up at once or on default to be paid in ten parts annually giving the right to the parties assessed to elect and have the question of validity of assessment determined in one action, a suit to declare an assessment void will not be entertained—Greenhood v. MacDonald, 183 Mass. 342.

58. All but one disclaimed—Nash v. McCathern, 183 Mass. 345.

59. Approved classifications may be found in Bispham's Equity, chapter on "Outline of Jurisdiction," and in Cyc. Law Dict. title "Equity."

60. 1 Story, Eq. Jur. § 29, cited Fletcher Eq. Pl. & Pr. § 3.

61. In a suit for relief respecting a trust arising under a will, the court will not refuse to exercise its power because some of the beneficiaries are infants or because objections are made on behalf of one of such beneficiaries if convinced that a change in the scheme of the trust is necessary to carry out the testator's intention and will result in benefit to the infants and protection of their interests—Pennington v. Metropolitan Museum of Art (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 468. A bill to recover profits, alleged to have been made by a director of a corporation employed on a salary to purchase goods for the corporation, on the ground that he had sold such goods to the corporation at a profit, cannot be sustained as a bill to enforce a trust—American Spirits Mfg. Co. v. Easton, 120 Fed. 440.

Equitable assignment wrought by attorney's contract—Deering v. Schreyer, 171 N. Y. 451.

A lien will be kept alive or extinguished in equity as will best accomplish justice and the actual intention of the parties—Kohlsaat v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 102 Ill. App. 110. But an equitable action will not lie to enforce an attorney's statutory lien. Lien given by Code Civ. Proc. § 66—Fromme v. Union Soc. & Guaranty Co., 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 105.

62. Mistake in matters of law may even be made the ground for relief and where one parts with a private right of property on grounds on which he would not have acted had he not misapprehended the law, he may be granted relief—Bottorff v. Lewis (Iowa) 95 N. W. 262. An award in arbitration will not be reviewed for alleged mistakes of law, where the arbitrator honestly decided the case consistent with what he believed to be the law—Dobson v. Central R. Co., 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 582.

An erroneously instituted proceeding was remanded to a court of equity whence it had come on appeal with directions to proceed in equity regularly—Smith v. Gudger (N. C.) 45 S. E. 955.

A void process cannot be amended in equity so as to vitalize a suit brought on the law side of the court, since it is equivalent to no process at all—Neal-Millard Co. v. Owens (Ga.) 45 S. E. 508.

Fraud in execution of a will—Delabarre v. McAlpin, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 591. One dealing with a municipal corporation in regard to matters beyond defendant's corporate powers, can have no relief in equity to save himself from loss; but if public officers collusively neglect to defeat the bringing of invalid claims against the municipality into judgment, a taxpayer may intervene in a seasonable time in the name of one or more taxpayers acting for all, to restrain its collection—Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132.

Cancellation of contracts obtained by fraud—Andrews v. Frierson (Ala.) 33 So. 6. An allegation in a bill to restrain an action on a note, that the clause in the note as to place of payment was inserted by fraud, will justify the intervention of equity—Gregory v. Howell, 118 Iowa, 26. The most extensive remedy will be given to a defrauded person, and all actually concerned in the fraud or who directly or knowingly participate in its fruits will be reached where the fraud relates to the contract—Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373; Alton Grain Co. v. Norton, Id. 385. Relief will be granted the purchaser of lands because of false representations as to their value by the vendor upon which the purchaser relied—Allen v. Henn, 197 Ill. 486. A bill alleging that defendant was long the confidential agent of a deceased person, and that while the latter was mentally incompetent defendant induced the purchase of lands at exorbibetrayals of confidence,[63] impending irreparable injuries or meditated mischiefs,[64] and many cases of oppressive proceedings and undue advantages.[65] The admin-tant prices to his own benefit, and that he had neglected to account for moneys received by him, the amounts of which were wholly within his own knowledge, and asking that the conveyances be declared fraudulent and defendant required to account, shows a case for equity—Keys v. McDermott (Wis.) 93 N. W. 553.

63. Wherever there exists a relation of trust and confidence between parties giving one an advantage over the other, equity will investigate transactions between them, and will not be confined to merely formal fiduciary relations—Cannon v. Gilmer, 135 Ala. 302. Contract by attorney for fees in defense of one charged with robbery—Coveney v. Pattullo (Mich.) 89 N. W. 968. Total failure of consideration—Womelsdorf v. O'Connor (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 191. Sale of annuity worth $20,400 for $2,700—Roux v. Rothschild. 37 Misc. (N. Y.) 435. Usurious agreements—Bill v. Mulholland, 90 Mo. App. 612.

The rule against declaring forfeitures is not offended by enforcing rights under an accomplished and completed forfeiture; application to restrain a trespass by a tenant after exercise of option to forfeit lease—Metropolitan Land Co. v. Manning (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 696.

64. Trespass—Freer v. Davis, 52 W. Va. 1; Palmer v. Crisle, 92 Mo. App. 510; Lynch v. Egan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 775. See also forthcoming article Injunction. A party will not be aided in maintaining a public nuisance nor in violating the penal laws of the state—Nebraska Tel. Co. v. Western Independent Long Distance Tel. Co. (Neb.) 95 N. W. 18. See also the doctrine of "clean hands," ante

Equity may determine the proper provisions for protection against collision, where two railroads cross each other at grade and cannot themselves agree upon such provisions—Jersey City, etc. St. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co. (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 709. The statutory authority given the court of equity in New Jersey to entertain a petition to compel a railroad company to erect gates at a crossing is consistent with its general jurisdiction and modes of procedure. Act March 16, 1898 (Pub. L. 1898, p. 110)—Palmyra Tp. v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (N. J. Law) 52 Atl. 1132.

65. Extortionate charges and unjust discriminations by common carriers will be restrained—Tift v. Southern R. Co., 123 Fed. 789. Where a contract is not mutual in the sense of equality of benefit, but has been accepted and performed by one of the parties, performance by the other may be compelled—Corbet v. Oil City Fuel Supply Co., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 80.

Taking property without purchase or the owner's consent, condemnation proceedings, dedication or prescription, may be enjoined—St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276. Laying out street—Baya v. Town of Lake City (Fla.) 33 So. 400. One holding title to the center of a street may restrain building or operation of a railroad line thereon the right not having been acquired by condemnation—Paige v. Schenectady R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 571. One railroad company will be restrained from crossing the track of another without acquiring the right by condemnation. Under Civ. Code, § 2167—Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Seaboard Air Line R., 116 Ga. 412. One without authority may be restrained from crossing the canal of an irrigation company with a lateral to carry water to his land from another canal—Castle Rock Irr. Canal & Water Power Co. v. Jurisch (Neb.) 93 N. W. 690.

Relief may be granted against forfeitures caused by fraud, accident or mistake, but if the forfeiture amounts to a mere pecuniary obligation, no relief will be given where it was caused by gross or willful negligence—Houston v. Curran, 101 Ill. App. 203. Forfeiture of a mining lease will be enforced where it will work equity and protect the landowner against negligence and laches of the lessee and great loss—Negaunee Iron Co. v. Iron Cliffs Co. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 468. While equity will not enforce forfeitures, the rule will not be applied to relieve a party against express terms of his own contract—Robinson v. Board of Education of City of Chicago, 98 Ill. App. 100, and where a contract provides for a forfeiture in unmistakable terms and is otherwise legal, equity will not relieve as against the forfeiture—Equitable Loan & Security Co. v. Waring (Ga.) 44 S. E. 320.

Enforcement of a judgment may be restrained where substantial injury will result from its enforcement—Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455; Hall v. Henderson, Id.; Jones v. Mutual Fidelity Co., 123 Fed. 506; Hayes v. United States Phonograph Co. (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 84; Brooks v. Twitchell, 182 Mass. 443. Unless there is some substantial injury authorizing the vacation of a judgment in equity after the term, it will not be authorized by subd. 4, § 602, Code Civ. Proc., which is merely declaratory of equity jurisdiction under the old practice—Van Every v. Sanders (Neb.) 95 N. W. 870. Relief cannot be granted from a judgment obtained by fraud perpetrated by the judgment creditor, where the debtor is not guilty of any inexcusable ignorance or negligence, by granting a new trial or disturbing judgment, but the judgment creditor may be prevented from enforcing the judgment—Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132. Strictness regarding the restraint of enforcement of a judgment will be relaxed where it is asked by an administrator with no personal knowledge of the subject-matter or where the injured party could not obtain relief at all or was prevented without fault or negligence from obtaining such relief by fraud or accident—Polarek v. Gordon, 102 Ill. App. 356. Where a defense to an action comes to the knowledge of a party for the first time after trial in a court of law and the enforcement of the judgment would amount to a fraud on the part of the other party, such enforcement will be restrained—Polarek v. Gordon, 102 Ill. App. 356. Where the attorney of plaintiff in an action at law assured defendant that he might appear at any time and that no advantage would be taken of the delay but a default and judgment was entered under a general order without knowlistration and distribution of property of bankrupts may be had in equity and becomes a branch of equity jurisdiction when authorized by act of congress.[66] The management of a corporation or society will not be interfered with unless the officers or stockholders are exceeding their corporate power or there is fraud or collusion as to the managing officers or the stockholders.[67] A suit in equity cannot be maintained merely to settle the title to a corporate office.[68]

Chancery is concerned only with questions of property and the maintenance of civil rights, and has no jurisdiction in criminal or merely immoral matters not affecting rights to property.[69] Violation of penal or criminal laws will not be prevented in equity,[70] nor matters of a political character considered.[71]

Peculiar remedies of equity have been enumerated[72] as follows,—specific performance, injunctions,[73] re-execution, reformation, and cancellation;[74] account,[75] dower, and partition suits, confusion of boundaries, and rents, partnership bills, creditors' bills, and administration suits, relief and care of infants, idiots, and lunatics, discovery, commissions to take testimony, or bills to perpetuate evidence, or to take testimony de bene esse, bills quia timet, receivership, ne exeat, and supplicavit.

edge of the parties until two years afterwards when the judgment could not be vacated on motion or proceeding for review, a bill showing such facts is not liable to demurrer for want of equity to set aside the judgment—Brooks v. Twitchell, 182 Mass. 443. Where execution of an ejectment judgment against a railroad company will seriously affect public interests, it may be suspended by a court of equity in its discretion during a period sufficient to enable the company to prosecute condemnation proceedings in order to secure the land—Griswold v. Minneapolis, etc. R. Co. (N. D.) 97 N. W. 538.

Complainant must be free from neglect to assert his rights at law—Langan v. Parkhurst (Neb.) 96 N. W. 63; Kyle v. Richardson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 399; Klinesmith v. Van Bramer, 104 Ill. App. 384. Relief against default—Baer v. Higson (Utah) 72 Pac. 180.

66. In re Rochford (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 182.

67. Coss v. Herring, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 36.

68. Standard Gold Min. Co. v. Byers, 31 Wash. 100, 71 Pac. 766.

69. Marshall v. Board of Managers of Illinois State Reformatory, 201 Ill. 9. Statutory penalties cannot be recovered. For failure to release chattel mortgages—Meredith v. Lyon (Neb.) 92 N. W. 122.

70. Injunction to prevent keeping open barber shop on Sunday—York v. Yzagnairre (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 563. Merely criminal acts will not be prevented merely because public officers have neglected to perform their duties—People v. Condon, 102 Ill. App. 449.

71. Questions concerning an appointment of public officers or their title to office will not be determined—Howe v. Dunlap (Okl.) 72 Pac. 365; Riggins v. Thompson (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 578; Deemar v. Boyne, 103 Ill. App. 464; Landes v. Walls (Ind.) 66 N. E. 679. Question of removal or title to office—Marshall v. Board of Managers of Illinois State Reformatory, 201 Ill. 9.

72. See Bispham's Equity.

73. A justice of the peace will not be prevented from acting in regard to a matter of which he has jurisdiction—Klinesmith v. Van Bramer, 104 Ill. App. 384. Where irreparable injury is being done or threatened to land, going to destroy the substance of the estate when the title is in dispute, equity will interfere to prevent trespass and to preserve the property until the question of title is determined at law, though no action for that purpose has been begun, if plaintiff intends immediately to begin such an action—Freer v. Davis, 52 W. Va. 1.

The proper remedy to restrain unauthorized exercise of the power of eminent domain in Arkansas is a suit in equity for injunction—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 276.

74. A written instrument will be cancelled or reformed for mutual mistake, accident, undue advantage or other equitable ground—Null v. Elliott, 52 W. Va. 229; Youngstown Electric Light Co. v. Butler County Poor Dist., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 95; Nutter v. Brown (W. Va.) 42 S. E. 661; Enos v. Stewart, 138 Cal. 112, 70 Pac. 1005. Where the agent of a grantee drew the deed including by mistake more land than was intended, and land for which no consideration was paid, the grantee will not be allowed to profit by the mistake in order to defeat a suit for reformation—Barry v. Rownd (Iowa) 93 N. W. 67.

A suit may be maintained by the United States to set aside patents erroneously issued under a grant to a railroad company and to test the good faith of bona fide purchasers thereof and establish their rights in such lands and in the same suit an accounting may be required from the railroad company regarding the lands sold by it and the amount received therefor recovered by decree. Under Acts March 3, 1887, Feb. 12, 1896 and March 2, 1896—United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 117 Fed. 544.

75. The former treasurer of a corporation, and also a bank in which its funds were deposited with knowledge of their ownership and fraudulent withdrawal by the treasurer to be converted to his own use, may be re-

Separate articles pertaining to each of the several subjects of equitable jurisdiction and to each equitable remedy should be consulted.[76]

§ 3. Laches and acquiescence.—Laches will prevent interference of equity,[77] when to grant complainant relief would presumptively be inequitable and unjust because of the delay;[78] change of condition during negligent delay being essential.[79] Laches is not imputed to the public exercising governmental functions.[80] It may occur in failure to assert a legal remedy or defense.[81] What conduct amounts to laches depends upon the peculiar circumstances of each case where no analogous statute of limitations exists at law.[82] quired to account—Hunter v. Robbins, 117 Fed. 920.

76. See titles like Cancellation of Instruments; Contribution; Discovery and Inspection; Injunctions; Trusts.

77. Phillips v. Piney Coal Co. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 774; Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781. By reason of the maxim,—"Equity aids the vigilant and not the slothful."

78. Hahn v. Gates, 102 Ill. App. 385. Delay will not prevent relief where it does not appear that defendant has suffered any disadvantage from complainant's mere delay —Williams v. Starkweather, 24 R. I. 512. Laches in a suit to enforce an award for land taken for a railroad right of way, is not shown where the denial of payment is not controverted and the claim has been continuously asserted and acknowledged by the other party and his predecessors—Southern R. Co. v. Gregg (Va.) 43 S. E. 570.

79. O'Brien v. Wheelock, 184 U. S. 450, 46 Law Ed. 636.

Delay such that memories of those having knowledge of the material facts have weakened, amounts to laches—Lutjen v. Lutjen, 64 N. J. Eq. 773. Delay in bringing suit to charge landowners with liability for levee assessments during which time the owners of the property were constantly changing and the property had become liable to large assessments under a new statute and under expenditures for repair of the levee—O'Brien v. Wheelock, 184 U. S. 450, 46 Law. Ed. 636. A bill to restrain completion of a contract between the officers of a city and a railroad company for elevation of tracks and the building of a retaining wall, brought by abutting owners three months after the execution of the contract, will be dismissed for laches, where it appears that the railroad company had incurred great expense in constructing the improvements and had purchased land on the faith of the contract before the bill was filed—Keeling v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 205 Pa. 31.

80. A suit against a railway corporation to recover surplus profits directed by law to be paid the state, cannot be barred by laches of state officers, the relation between the state and the corporation raised by the incorporation of the company, being an exercise of state sovereignty and not a business contract. Right to surplus profits given by local laws 1847, p. 77—Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. State, 159 Ind. 438.

81. Klinesmith v. Van Bramer, 104 Ill. App. 384. Where it appears that the parties are guilty of neglect in not presenting a defense against a former suit at the proper time they will not be granted relief against a judgment—Allen v. Foster (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 800. Where it appears that five out of nineteen complainants object to proceedings to make a street improvement, on the ground that the several assessments were not equal according to benefits, but the appeal was not sustained and no other steps were taken, they were prevented by laches from obtaining relief by a suit to restrain collection of the assessments because of irregularities—Gates v. Grand Rapids (Mich.) 95 N. W. 998. See ante, § 1 (exhaustion of legal remedy).

82. Laches sufficient to defeat a re-hearing and after interlocutory decree, finding infringement of a patent, is a matter depending on the facts of each case and the effect of the grant or refusal on the rights of the respective parties—Pittsburgh Reduction Co. v. Cowles Elec. Smelting Co., 121 Fed. 556.

Conduct amounting to laches. 12 years' delay—Wilcoxon v. Wilcoxon, 199 Ill. 244. Three months where great expense was incurred—Keeling v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 205 Pa. 31. Four years' unexplained delay in suing to cancel a contract (Civ. Code Ga. § 3711)—Reynolds, etc., Mortg. Co. v. Martin, 116 Ga. 495. As against bona fide purchaser —Fisher v. Patterson, 197 Ill. 414. Suit for accounting brought twenty years after accrual of action and acquiescence by plaintiff in defendant's abandonment of contract —Tozier v. Brown, 202 Pa. 359. Delay in enforcing the payment of negotiable notes from the estate of an indorser—Tidball's Ex'rs v. Shenandoah Nat. Bank (Va.) 42 S. E. 867. Unexplained delay of four years with knowledge of fraud in procuring a contract—Gale v. Southern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 117 Fed. 732. Lapse of four years after perpetration of an alleged fraud before application for relief—Reynolds, etc., Mortg. Co. v. Martin, 116 Ga. 495. Lapse of time before suit by a surviving partner for an accounting and to obtain the benefit of an equitable defense to notes against the firm —Wilson v. Wilson, 41 Or. 459, 69 Pac. 923. Application for leave to file a replication nunc pro tunc after an order dismissing the cause for failure to file such replication in a suit instituted after many years of litigation and delay regarding timber claims—Potts v. Alexander, 118 Fed. 885. Claim against estate of an administrator for money claimed to have been retained by him belonging to plaintiff, not allowed after 30 years—Gatewood v. Gatewood's Adm'x, 24 Ky. L. R. 931, 70 S. W. 284. 20 years' delay to assert a resulting trust against one who would not recognize it—Quairoli v. Italian Beneficial Soc., 64 N. J. Eq. 205. Bill to collect a legacy nine years after refusal of the executor to pay, the estate in the meantime having been distributed, though the legatee placed the claim in the hands of an attorney immediately on refusal of the executor—Wilson v. Smith, 117 Fed. 707. Delay of thirty years to attack a conveyance of land from one Indian to another approved by the Secretary of the Interior as against the grantee and those claiming under him who have been in possession all the time—Pope v. Falk (Kan.) 72 Pac. 246. Six years after contract began, where the bill does not negative knowledge of the facts by plaintiff at the time of their occurrence—Doane v. Preston, 183 Mass. 569. Delay until long after the death of the immediate parties to a purchase at execution with a trust in favor of the debtor—Moore v. Hemp's Ex'rs, 24 Ky. L. R. 121, 68 S. W. 1. Bill against an innocent purchaser of the latter premises filed two years and six months after knowledge of the severance of a house from the soil, praying a return of the house or an accounting for rents and value thereof, and attempting to establish an equitable lien for such value and rents—Fisher v. Patterson, 197 Ill. 414. Contribution against co-executor's estate for the amount he paid to legatee denied 40 years after the death of the testator—In re Wehrle's Estate, 205 Pa. 62. Two years' delay in prosecution of petition against committee of lunatic, coupled with death of lunatic and administration of his estate, held laches—Consumers' Brew. Co. v. Bush, 19 App. D. C. 588. Ten years' delay in filing a bill to avoid a release for fraud without allegation of mistake, amounts to laches, especially where the fraud is not clearly shown—Lutjen v. Lutjen, 64 N. J. Eq. 773. Ten years' unexplained delay, before suing to cancel a release of rights in an estate for fraud, is laches where fraud is not shown, nor mistake alleged, though the consideration may have been inadequate—Id. Money paid by a county to a state hospital for the insane and applied to its use, cannot be recovered after six years on the ground of mistake and fraudulent concealment of the facts by the hospital trustees—Trustees of State Hospital v. Philadelphia County (Pa.) 54 Atl. 1032. Forfeiture of a mining lease will be enforced where it will protect the landowner against negligence and laches of the lessee—Negaunee Iron Co. v. Iron Cliffs Co. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 468. A delay of fifty years after the death of her husband, during which time the widow still lived, will not constitute such laches as will preclude remaindermen from recovering the land from one to whom she had conveyed her quarantine in the house after her husband's death—Graham v. Stafford, 171 Mo. 692. Where in a partition suit the petitioner first discovered during the taking of testimony that the land which was alleged to belong to his mother was in fact purchased with money belonging to his father's estate, and afterward he made no attempt to regain his rights as his father's sole heir until a decree was enrolled, he was prevented by laches from intervening for that purpose—Rice v. Donald (Md.) 55 Atl. 620. Where one of several intervenors in an equitable suit who was admitted without conditions as a party, remained in the case for 17 months without taking part in the proceedings or offering evidence, he cannot on petition filed after the close of the testimony be allowed full charge of the suit as complainant on an averment that there was collusion between the original parties, of which no other intervenor complains and as to which he offers no evidence except certain testimony in the record, which pertained to other issues and was taken in a previous stage of the litigation—Edwards v. Bay State Gas. Co., 120 Fed. 585.

Excusable[83] delay such as lack of knowledge regarding the facts[84] is not laches, unless there were circumstances which should have demanded inquiry or where,

Conduct not amounting to laches. Sufficiency of facts in a suit for dissolution of a partnership and an accounting to rebut presumption of laches, arising from delay for 12 years—Wilcoxon v. Wilcoxon, 199 Ill. 244. Defendant cannot be held guilty of laches where he defended his title to property when assailed and there was no delay which would not apply equally as well to plaintiff—Marshall v. Meyer, 118 Iowa, 508. Where a note drawing ten per cent interest and well secured, was sued upon eight years after its maturity, recovery is not barred by laches, where the payee's administratrix lived only two years after the maturity, and the administrator succeeding her died before the estate was closed, and it does not appear that the defendants had been injured by the delay—Luke v. Koenen (Iowa) 94 N. W. 278.

83. Delay caused by constant assurance of his agent residing in the vicinity, that a suit would be useless, and by frequent promises that payment of a debt will be secured without suit, is not laches—Cushing v. Schoeneman (Neb.) 96 N. W. 346. Delay due mainly to the adversary's urgent appeals for time and inability to meet his obligation—Hellans v. Prior, 64 S. C. 296. Delay while in possession—Sheldon v. Dunbar 200 Ill. 490. Tenant in common in possession—Brumback v. Brumback, 198 Ill. 66. Where complainants on learning of an adverse claim to lands in another state at once notified the claimants of their intention to assert their rights, they were not chargeable with laches during the period in which both parties were attempting to secure an adjustment of the claims by the United States land office—Hodge v. Palms (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 396. That complainant's attorney could not attend the trial of their case, is not sufficient—Aultman v. Higbee (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 955. See, also, like cases in Default, ante, p. 915.

84. Heirs whose ancestor was domiciled in another state and whose will was there probated, are not chargeable with proceedings for the settlement of his succession in which his land was sold so as to be prevented by laches from asserting their rights in such property, where they brought suit within two years after first knowledge of the adverse claim of the purchaser—Fletcher v. McArthur (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 393. Sixty-seven years' delay before filing of the bill to cancel for fraud in procurement of deed where complainants only suspected the after notice of the facts, the party failed to obtain knowledge where it might have been obtained.[85] A member of an Indian tribe is not for that reason released from the necessity of diligence in asserting his rights in equity.[86] A married woman in West Virginia is liable to the consequences of laches as though a feme sole, since she may deal with her separate estate as such.[87] It has been held in New York that no question of laches strictly speaking is involved in an action for fraud under the code; and that whether the equitable doctrine of laches still exists in that state is doubtful.[88]

Application of analogous statutes of limitation.—Generally the time prevailing in analogous cases at law will be adopted in equity to bar causes of action,[89] with the same exceptions.[90] It will especially be done where jurisdiction is concurrent,[91] and as to legal rights sought to be enforced.[92] Equity is disinclined fraud within three years before commencement of the suit and had no actual proof until within one year—McGee v. Welch, 18 App. D. C. 177. Delay by heirs where an administrator and a widow fraudulently concealed part of the decedent's estate, and represented that he died without other heirs, and the widow's estate on her death later included a large part of the property to which the children of a brother of the decedent were entitled and which was intact and could be reached by the court and for which the administrator had never accounted—Maney v. Casserly (Mich.) 96 N. W. 478. Suit to restrain action on a judgment entered by default, where it appears that defendant to the judgment was assured by plaintiff's attorneys that he might enter appearance at any time and that no advantage should be taken of his delay and that a judgment and default was entered without his knowledge, which he did not discover until two years later when he immediately took steps to have it set aside—Brooks v. Twitchell, 182 Mass. 443.

85. Wall v. Meilke (Minn.) 94 N. W. 688. Circumstances sufficient to excite suspicion —Coolidge v. Rhodes, 199 Ill. 24. Not excused by alleging generally in the bill that they had no knowledge of the fraud until three months before suit, where it is not shown that they made no inquiry though the means of knowledge was accessible—Kessler v. Ensley Co., 123 Fed. 546.

86. The validity of a deed of land belonging to a Shawnee Indian, sold by his guardian while he was a minor, cannot be attacked by the Indian more than 21 years after attaining his majority for want of jurisdiction over the proceedings, where no fraud is shown and the property has meantime greatly increased in value—Dunbar v. Green (Kan.) 72 Pac. 243.

87. Phillips v. Piney Coal Co. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 774.

88. Code Civ. Proc. § 382, subd. 5—Slayback v. Raymond, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 601. [Quoting the court of appeals, "whether the equitable doctrine of laches, as distinguished from the statute of limitations, now exists in this state, is open to serious doubt." 156 N. Y. 491; 13 Hun, 273; 39 App. Div. 276; 121 N. Y. 69, cannot be considered an authority on this point.]

89. Parmelee v. Price, 105 Ill. App. 271; Watson v. Texas & P. R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 830; Sioux City, etc., R. Co. v. O'Brien County, 118 Iowa, 582.

Illustrations. Suit to enforce an equitable lien within the time allowed for the same action at law—Michigan Trust Co. v. Red Cloud (Neb.) 92 N. W. 900. A direct proceeding to set aside a judgment and sale of land thereunder, is not within statute allowing bills of review for a new trial within two years after judgment rendered on service of process by publication, but the four years' limitation applies (Rev. St. 1895, arts. 1375, 3358 construed)—State v. Dashiell (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 779. A bill for appointment of commissioners to assign dower filed seven years after the death of the husband is barred by the statute—Crawford v. Watkins (Ga.) 45 S. E. 482. Where a land patent accrued 32 years before intervenors asked for relief and the limitation at law was five years, and the intervenors showed no excuse for delay, they were not entitled to relief in equity, where an innocent purchaser had bought the land relying on the patent—Boynton v. Haggart (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 819. Where a judgment was recovered but two months before an original bill was brought to subject equitable assets to its payment and the bill was amended five years later to change it to a general creditor's bill, the statute of limitations did not begin to run until the recovery of judgment, and the amended bill was not barred by laches since it was filed within six years from the accrual of the action—Montgomery Iron Works v. Capital City Ins. Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 210.

So in Federal courts—Potts v. Alexander, 118 Fed. 885. That the state statute of limitations gives 10 years for bringing an action to recover land, does not prevent a federal court of equity from refusing to interfere on account of laches by suit to set aside the conveyance for fraud, which can only be done in equity, though the suit was commenced within the 10 years—Kessler v. Ensley Co., 123 Fed. 546.

90. Newberger v. Wells, 51 W. Va. 624.

91. Where the title of complainant to lands on which he bases his right to relief in equity is legal and capable of establishment at law the doctrine of laches will not apply, but his rights will be barred by adverse possession alone, since on general principles equity will follow the law—Higgins Oil & Fuel Co. v. Snow (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 433.

92. Sibley v. Stacey (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 420; Higgins Oil & Fuel Co. v. Snow (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 433. A proceeding to enforce to find laches when limitations have not run.[93] If a suit is brought within the time fixed by the analogous statute of limitations, defendant must show laches to exist either from the face of the bill or by circumstances set up in his answer, but if the suit is brought after the statutory period, complainant must show facts taking the case out of the rule as to laches.[94]

Under the codes, the doctrine of laches will not be applied in equity, where the statute has defined the time within which suit may be brought.[95]

§ 4. Practice and procedure in general.—Courts of equity are always open, in the absence of a statute to the contrary.[96] The filing of the bill is the commencement of a suit in equity,[97] and jurisdiction is obtained by service of process thereon or of a substituted service which must conform to all statutory requirements, appearance, or pleading by the defendant.[98] The place or local court wherein a bill must be brought is reserved for treatment in a later article.[99] The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is strictly maintained in the federal courts.[1]

§ 5. Parties.—One party may sue for a number similarly situated.[2] Where on a bill to distribute the assets of a corporation after abandonment by the stockholders, it appears that there were 25,000 shares of stock about one-third of which was held by persons living in all parts of the country and whose residences could statutory liability of a stockholder, either at law or in equity, is founded on a legal, not an equitable, right, and if the right to enforce such liability is barred at law, the same limitation will be applied by analogy in equity—Hale v. Coffin (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 470.

93. Hahn v. Gates, 102 Ill. App. 385. Extraordinary circumstances will move it to do so—Ide v. Trorlicht, etc., Carpet Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 137. Where, by reason of laches of complainant, it is doubtful whether defendant can secure evidence sufficient to fairly present his case or obtain the advantages which he might have had, or avoid any hardships that might have been avoided, if the claim had been made in seasonable time, relief will not be granted in equity though the limitation to be applied to a remedy at law has not expired—Wilson v. Wilson, 41 Or. 459, 69 Pac. 923.

94. Boynton v. Haggart (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 819.

95. Slayback v. Raymond, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 601. An action for reformation of a written instrument for mistake is not barred by any statute of limitations in Minnesota—Wall v. Meilke (Minn.) 94 N. W. 688. In Montana the rule of statute that actions for relief not previously provided for as to limitation must commence within five years after accrual of the cause, applies to suits in equity —Mantle v. Speculator Min. Co., 27 Mont. 473, 71 Pac. 665.

96. Webb v. Hicks, 117 Ga. 335; Mitchell v. Turner, 117 Ga. 958.

97. Humane Bit Co. v. Barnet, 117 Fed. 316.

When an action is commenced it is frequently fixed by statute under the codes. In general see Actions ante, p. 20. Under West Virginia statutes filing of bill relates back to issuance of process—Geiser Mfg. Co. v. Chewning, 52 W. Va. 523.

98. Suit to set aside administration, in which no summons was served on the administrator and no pleading filed by him—Costa v. Superior Court, 137 Cal. 79, 69 Pac. 840. No allegation of actual notice and defective affidavit for substituted service—Barker v. Barker, 63 N. J. Eq. 593.

See generally articles, Jurisdiction; Process.

Published service gives jurisdiction only for purposes of the bill—McGaw v. Gortner, 96 Md. 489. Jurisdiction to act upon the person is not obtained by publication. See Jurisdiction; Process. Also, ante, § 2.

99. Venue and Place of Trial.

1. Highland Boy Gold Min. Co. v. Strickley (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 852. Misjoinder—United States v. Boyd, 118 Fed. 89. Procedure is controlled by the 7th amendment to the Constitution and § 16 of the Judiciary Act of September 24, 1789, and the propriety of bringing a case at law or in equity, must be determined with reference to those provisions—Jones v. Mutual Fidelity Co., 123 Fed. 506. The federal statute requiring their practice to conform as nearly as possible to the state practice did not abolish the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity in federal courts (Rev. St. § 914) —Hill v. Northern Pac. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 914.

Non-resident defendants served by publication in a suit to subject lands of their ancestor to a debt in favor of plaintiff, are not parties for any other purpose—McGaw v. Gortner (Md.) 54 Atl. 133.

2. Preferred creditors who are constituted trustees to collect and distribute money are not similarly situated to other creditors not preferred—Beecher v. Foster (W. Va.) 42 S. E. 647. Depositors of grain in elevator denied right to sue for all under Hill's Ann. Laws, § 385, merely on the ground of impracticability of joining all—Tobin v. Portland Flouring Mills Co., 41 Or. 269, 68 Pac. 743, 1108. As to who are regarded as parties on a proceeding to punish violation of a bill against named defendants and their "associates, confederates," etc., see Ex parte Richards, 117 Fed. 658.

not be ascertained, the court was properly authorized in its discretion to allow the principal and largest stockholders fairly representing the adverse interests of all to represent such stockholders as defendants and to dispense with the bringing in of all interested parties.[3]

The law making obligations joint and several so that joint obligors are not always necessary parties does not change the rule as to propriety of making all interested persons parties.[4] Where it appears that a third person has an interest in the subject-matter, the court must of its own motion stay the suit and require him to be made a party defendant.[5] The sufficiency of interest to render one a proper or necessary party, depending upon the particular circumstances of the case is discussed by cases in the note but will be exhaustively treated in "Parties."[6]

Defendants sued for an accounting of property should be shown to have a common title or to have come by the property in the same way.[7] There is no misjoinder of defendants where there is a joint defense and the law and testimony with regard to each defendant is the same and their several acts are such as may be included in one bill for an injunction.[8] If a want of parties does not appear from the bill, a demurrer will not reach the defect.[9] Where a defect of parties is not raised by answer or demurrer, it is waived.[10] After a demurrer sustained for misjoinder of complainants, the bill may be amended by dismissal as to the complainant without interest.[11]

Bringing in new parties; intervention.[12]—New parties defendant can be added

3. Noble v. Gadsden Land & Imp. Co., 133 Ala. 250.

4. Craig v. McKnight, 108 Tenn. 690.

5. In partition—Latham v. Tombs (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1060.

6. Suit to recover stock in a corporation sold to person forbidden by its by-laws and to restrain further sale in violation of such by-laws—Champollion v. Corbin, 71 N. H. 78. Persons not in esse who may have an interest in property are not necessary parties to an equitable action for sale thereof, under Pub. Laws 1903, p. 122, c. 99—Smith v. Gudger (N. C.) 45 S. E. 955. Since the county court is not the agent of the county, nor the county a party to proceedings therein to lay out a highway, the county cannot be made a party to a bill by an adjoining land owner to vacate the proceedings—Searcy v. Clay County (Mo.) 75 S. W. 657. Claimant but not the attorney held a necessary party to recover sum from which attorney was to be paid, under Rev. St. 1898, § 2603—Kircher v. Pederson (Wis.) 93 N. W. 813. Suit to quiet title to lands held from state and to cancel other writings affecting title—Bent v. Hall (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 342. The general rule that complainant cannot be compelled to make another defendant on the latter's application, is particularly true where the bill contains no allegations connecting the third person with the subject-matter of the litigation—Doke v. Williams (Fla.) 34 So. 569. Relief will not be refused in a federal court because of failure to join one as defendant who is out of the jurisdiction, where he has no interest in the subject matter which will be affected by a decree—Mackay v. Gabel, 117 Fed. 873. In a suit by the treasurer of a corporation the proper custodian of its funds and trustee of an express trust in his own name against his predecessor for an accounting of money wrongfully withheld, the corporation need not be joined in the federal court where its joinder would oust jurisdiction, under equity rule 47—Hunter v. Robbins, 117 Fed. 920.

Injunctions. A lessee under an illegal lease is not necessary to a bill to enjoin an officer from further execution of such leases—Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 294, 47 Law. Ed. 183. Suit to restrain a purchaser from paying any of the price to the grantor's agent who procured the sale and to restrain the agent from receiving it, and cross suit to surrender notes for agent's commission—Daugherty v. Curtis (Iowa) 97 N. W. 67.

Suit for infringement. Licensee—Peters v. Union Biscuit Co., 120 Fed. 679. To enforce liens on corporate property—Godchaux v. Morris (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 482. The heirs of a deceased co-owner—Taylor v. Forbes' Adm'x (Va.) 44 S. E. 888. Creditors over whom priority was claimed held necessary parties to the suit—Beecher v. Foster (W. Va.) 42 S. E. 647.

To set aside or cancel. Grantor or judgment debtor—Homestead Min. Co. v. Reynolds, 30 Colo. 330, 70 Pac. 422; Schneider v. Patton (Mo.) 75 S. W. 155; Mackay v. Gabel, 117 Fed. 873. Co-heir—Williams v. Crabb (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 193.

7. Griffin v. Henderson, 116 Ga. 310.

8. United States v. Dastervignes, 118 Fed. 199.

9. Walling v. Thomas, 133 Ala. 426.

10. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Robinson, 96 Mo. App. 385.

11. Victor Talking Mach. Co. v. American Graphaphone Co., 118 Fed. 50.

12. Where a suit is referred to the vice chancellor before whom "all proceedings" shall be then had (Chancery Rule 49), the advisory master is deprived of authority to admit new parties. Under rule 49 of the Chancery Practice—Perrine v. Perrine, 63 N. J. Eq. 483.

by defendant only when the allegations of the original petition will warrant it.[13] If an answer is not intended as a mere defense but affects the right of a co-defendant, he must be made a party thereto and relief must be asked against him on the facts.[14]

Leave to file a petition of intervention after a cause has stood for a long time rests in the sound discretion of the trial chancellor and will not be reviewed unless an abuse of such discretion is shown.[15] Where the court, in a suit for distribution of property of an insolvent railroad company, ordered all creditors to appear before a master and prove there the claims, one who asserts a right to preferred payment over other claims may do so by intervention under the order and need not file an original bill.[16] Intervention is limited to the issues, within the scope of the original bill,[17] and the intervenor's allegations must be construed as pleading in connection with the averments of the original bill.[18]

§ 6. Pleading. A. General rules.—A pleading will be construed most strongly against the pleader.[19] The rule requiring certainty in pleadings is to furnish the court proper foundation for judgment if the pleadings are held true.[20] Scandalous matter, raising no issues may be expunged.[21] The objection of an adequate remedy at law must be made at the earliest opportunity and before defense upon the merits.[22]

(§ 6) B. Original bill, petition, or complaint.—A bill seeking discovery need not be verified, where only incidental to the main object of the suit.[23] A petition, the allegations of which do not authorize relief prayed for, will be dismissed on general demurrer, if there is no prayer for general relief.[24]

Bill or petition.—Continuation of a suit in equity by heirs,[25] or an application by a trustee for direction, where no suit is pending,[26] should be by bill and not by petition. Rights of third persons in subject-matter of a suit should be presented by an appropriate bill and not by petition, though beneficiaries of a trust may intervene by petition, where the trustee is a party.[27] A bill not printed and not accompanied by a certificate that there was no time to print it, nor indorsed by notice to appear, and which does not set forth that it was filed or intended to be filed in a court sitting in equity, is only a petition.[28]

13. Roberts v. Atlanta Real Estate Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 308.

14. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.

15. Gunderson v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 199 Ill. 422.

Persons allowed to come in to protect interest—Foley v. Grand Hotel Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 509.

16. Central R. & Banking Co. v. Farmer's Loan & Trust Co., 116 Fed. 700; Farmer's Loan & Trust Co. v. Central R. & Banking Co., Id.

17. Intervention to assert a hostile claim denied in partition—Rice v. Donald (Md.) 55 Atl. 620. On bill by receiver of a railroad filed to restrain the removal of a spur track by another company which connected a brick yard with the main line of receiver's road, petition by the owner of the brick yard intervening to protect his right under a contract with the receiver's company sustained against demurrer—Receiver of Cent. R. & Banking Co. v. Macon, etc., R. Co., 115 Fed. 926.

18. Receiver of Cent. R. & Banking Co. v. Macon, etc., R. Co., 115 Fed. 926.

19. Stockton v. National Bank of Jacksonville (Fla.) 34 So. 897; Johnson v. McKinnon (Fla.) 34 So. 272. Where a bill by heirs for accounting for coal removed by defendants from under streets and lots, alleges that the ancestor of complainants platted and conveyed most of the lots and died seized of two lots, it will be presumed that the coal was removed after such conveyances alleged in the absence of a contrary allegation—Brewster v. Cahill, 199 Ill. 309.

20. Becklenberg v. Becklenberg, 102 Ill. App. 504.

21. Morrison v. Snow (Utah) 72 Pac. 924.

22. United States v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 117 Fed. 544. Where the defense of an adequate remedy at law has not been pleaded in an action for specific performance, plaintiff will not be compelled to abandon the equitable remedy—Le Vie v. Fenlon, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 265. Defendant in a suit to quiet title, who stipulates for trial of the cause before a master, waives any objection to jurisdiction in equity on the ground that plaintiff's remedy is at law—Sanders v. Village of Riverside (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 720; Village of Riverside v. Sanders, Id.

23. Montgomery Iron Works v. Capital City Ins. Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 210.

24. Copeland v. Cheney, 116 Ga. 685.

25. Kronenberger v. Heinemann, 104 Ill. App. 156.

26. Stapylton v. Neeley (Fla.) 32 So. 868.

27. Doke v. Williams (Fla.) 34 So. 569.

Exhibits as part of bill.—General allegations in a bill supported by exhibits attached must be taken as qualified and limited by the exhibits.[29] If a bill for infringement of a patent makes profert of the patent, it constitutes a part of the bill and may be examined on demurrer.[30] A description in a bill concerning lands is sufficient especially on interlocutory hearing where it refers for such description to a trust deed attached to the bill.[31]

Sufficiency of allegations.—Every fact necessary to relief must be alleged clearly and definitely.[32] Facts not conclusions must be given.[33] Immaterial matter should not be alleged.[34] Complainant must allege facts showing his hands to be clean,[35] and that he has not neglected to protect his rights at law.[36] Fraud and duress cannot be alleged in a general manner, but the facts constituting them must be given.[37] In a suit to set aside a release for undue influence, particular acts constituting undue influence need not be alleged, it being necessary only to allege the result.[38] The bill must show that complainant is not guilty of laches,[39] but laches need not be denied where not apparent on the face of the bill since 28. Cooke v. Central Dist. Tel. Co., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 43.

29. Willard v. Davis, 122 Fed. 363.

30. Fowler v. New York (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 747. A bill by property owners to secure modification of a decree in foreclosure on the property and franchise of a street railway company, to which foreclosure they were not parties, to secure and protect their rights under an agreement held to show equity—Thompson v. Schenectady R. Co., 119 Fed. 634.

31. Whyte v. Spransy, 19 App. D. C. 450.

32. Stockton v. National Bank (Fla.) 34 So. 897; Johnson v. McKinnon (Fla.) 34 So. 272. Jurisdiction cannot be acquired to give an administrator relief in a suit for an accounting from persons alleged to hold property of the estate, where he waives discovery and asks the appointment of a receiver but does not allege their insolvency or irreparable injury, or the amount, character or value of the property sought—Griffin v. Henderson, 116 Ga. 310. A bill to prevent the erection of a telephone pole upon land of plaintiff is without equity where it does not aver that defendant was without authority to erect the pole, that such erection would be unlawful, or that there were such circumstances as would render a legal remedy inadequate—Cooke v. Central Dist. Tel. Co., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 43.

33. A bill brought by members of a labor union to restrain breach of a contract of employment alleging that defendants, its officers, and agents unlawfully combined to destroy the union, etc., held insufficient as containing only conclusions of law—Boyer v. Western Union Tel. Co., 124 Fed. 246. A simple allegation that the plaintiffs are heirs at law of the decedent, and that as a compromise to a suit contesting her will the executors agreed to turn over to them one-half the estate, is insufficient to show their rights where they were apparently not heirs at law in the state where the action arose, since their full relation and the facts as to the compromise should be set out—Bishop v. York, 118 Fed. 352. A bill alleging that after making plats, a party sold and conveyed certain lots to purchasers in fee simple without an allegation of language in the deeds excluding streets, held to show that the property in the streets passed with the conveyance—Brewster v. Cahill, 199 Ill. 309.

34. A bill for cancellation of a deed executed by complainant and her husband, charges immaterial matter where it alleges coercion by the husband, and that complainant believed the grantee had heard of such conduct and had used influence over the husband to secure the conveyance, such belief not being a matter of issue—Pratt Land & Imp. Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452.

35. Persons seeking to enjoin abatement of stock-pens as a public nuisance on the ground that defendants had no authority to abate them, must allege that they were not a public nuisance—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Crothersville, 159 Ind. 330.

36. Petition as showing affirmatively that petitioner had an adequate remedy at law which he neglected to pursue—Hess v. Lell (Neb.) 94 N. W. 975. A bill to quiet title against one adverse claimant must allege that the title of complainant has been successfully tried at law at least once—Boston & M. Consol. Copper, etc., Min. Co. v. Montana Ore Purchasing Co., 188 U. S. 632, 645. A bill asking for relief against a judgment because complainants have a valid legal defense which they were prevented from making on account of inability to obtain the evidence must aver that proper diligence was used in the preparation for trial—Hayes v. United States Phonograph Co. (N. J. Ch.) 55 Atl. 84. In a suit to set aside a judgment for fraud, plaintiff must allege sufficient facts to show that he was not guilty of negligence at the former trial—Miller v. Miller's Estate (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1010.

37. Mortimer v. McMullen, 102 Ill. App. 593.

38. McLeod v. McLeod (Ala.) 34 So. 228.

39. Phillips v. Piney Coal Co. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 774. A bill showing laches on its face or showing facts bringing the cause of action within the statute of limitations is liable to demurrer on that ground, unless it states facts sufficient to bring the action without the statute or excuse the laches—Newberger v. Wells, 51 W. Va. 624. In a suit to set aside a conveyance for fraud, an allegation that knowledge of the facts was obtained only shortly before filing the bill is sufficient without a statement of facts and it is defensive matter.[40] Allegations intended only to forestall an anticipated defense and which do not support the primary claim to relief will be stricken out.[41] A bill or complaint asking injunctive relief in equity must show danger of substantial and serious damage,[42] and that such injury will be irreparable,[43] the complaint alleging the specific facts showing such injury;[44] as, for instance, the fact that defendant is insolvent and cannot respond in damages.[45] Relief cannot be granted on equities set up in affidavits supporting a complaint where the complaint itself fails to state a cause of action.[46] The sufficiency of bills or petitions in particular suits will be found in the footnotes.[47]

Multifariousness.—A bill in equity cannot join independent, inconsistent, and repugnant causes of action sufficient in themselves separately.[48] Matters of circumstances to excuse laches—Coolidge v. Rhodes, 199 Ill. 24.

40. Pratt Land & Imp. Co. v. McClain, 135 Ala. 452.

41. Stevenson v. Morgan, 64 N. J. Eq. 219.

42. Hart v. Hildebrandt, 30 Ind. App. 415.

43. Chappell v. Jasper County Oil Co. (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 515.

44. Wabash R. Co. v. Engleman (Ind.) 66 N. E. 892; Porter v. Armstrong, 132 N. C. 66.

45. Porter v. Armstrong, 132 N. C. 66.

46. Landes v. Walls (Ind.) 66 N. E. 679.

47. Moore v. Hammond (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 759. Bill in suit to construe a deed as demurrable for uncertainty and inconsistency in allegations—Hill v. Spencer, 196 Ill. 65. Bill to set aside fraudulent conveyance as to implied allegation of notice—Flook v. Armentrout's Adm'r (Va.) 42 S. E. 686. Bill stating a cause of action for an accounting and injunction in regard to infringement of a patent—Murjahn v. Hall, 119 Fed. 186. Bill for reformation of written instrument in connection with exhibits attached as a statement of the terms of the alleged instrument or of grounds for relief authorizing reformation—Willard v. Davis, 122 Fed. 363. Petition in suit to annul judgment and set aside execution sale for want of jurisdiction because of failure to serve with process and no appearance—Mullins v. Rieger, 169 Mo. 521. Complaint for an accounting in regard to a mining claim by one alleging that he is the owner of a certain interest and asking for general relief—Yarwood v. Johnson, 29 Wash. 643, 70 Pac. 123. A bill to compel defendant to restore a building erected on plaintiff's land and removed by defendant must show in what manner the building was placed on the land—Bowie v. Smith (Md.) 55 Atl. 625. A petition for relief in equity against a judgment must state its nature or show that it might operate to prejudice plaintiff—Van Every v. Sanders (Neb.) 95 N. W. 870. A bill charging an attorney with failure to pay over money collected and asking an accounting must allege a cause for an accounting—Pfau v. Fullenwider, 102 Ill. App. 499. Though complainant is not obliged to show the full extent of his rights as against the other party, he must show that he has rights as against him—Gould v. Barrow, 117 Ga. 458. A petition by an executor to compel persons to account for property of an estate held by them must allege that the property was acquired in the same manner or held in common—Griffin v. Henderson, 116 Ga. 310. A bill to prevent the opening of a highway alleging a valid judgment of the county court decreeing the opening and averring that the surveyor's report in fact departed from the petition for the highway must allege fraud or misrepresentation—Searcy v. Clay County (Mo.) 75 S. W. 657. An allegation in a bill by a corporation, that defendants are citizens and residents of the state where the suit is brought, and non-residents of another state where the corporation resides, is sufficient as to the places of abode of the parties. Under Equity Rule 20—Tonopah Fraction Min. Co. v. Douglass, 123 Fed. 936. Where a complaint is removed from the state court and demurred to for want of facts, it cannot be dismissed because as a bill in equity, it does not give the address, statement of citizenship, or proper prayer, or because erroneously placed on the law docket, these being objections as to form only. (Rev. St. § 954)—Dancel v. United Shoe Mach. Co., 120 Fed. 839. Where one buys land with actual notice of ownership in another than his grantor, and builds thereon at his peril, a bill to reform his deed because of omission by mistake or fraud, asking cancellation of a deed purporting to convey his land need not allege an offer to pay the value of the improvements put on the land—Blackburn v. Perkins (Ala.) 35 So. 250. That it appears in a suit for reformation of a deed because of mistake and fraud, that the transaction was had between the grantor of complainant and defendant in the name of defendant's wife, though the bill alleged that the land was sold to defendant, will not deprive complainant of relief to which he may be entitled—Id. A complaint alleging that defendant, an agent to purchase land, took title in his own name and claimed ownership and asking a decree making defendant a trustee as to the lands for complainant cannot be sustained as a bill for specific performance of the contract of sale, since it was one to establish a trust—Oden v. Lockwood, 136 Ala. 514. A petition purporting to be filed in a pending suit but showing that such suit has terminated is bad—German v. Browne (Ala.) 34 So. 985. General allegations of no sufficient remedy at law, of multiplicity of suits, cloud on title, and irreparable injury, held sufficient to show jurisdiction of a bill by the Cherokee Nation to enjoin the allowance of leases by the secretary of the interior on tribal lands for mining purposes—Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 294.

48. Bills held multifarious—Sawyer v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 119 Fed. 252; Day v. National Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n of N. Y.

pure legal cognizance alleged in a bill for equitable relief will not render it multifarious.[49] Legal and equitable causes cannot be joined especially where the distinction in forms is preserved as in Federal courts,[50] nor under codes, except as authorized.[51] Particular causes, as legal or equitable, will be found in the footnotes.[52]

(W. Va.) 44 S. E. 779. Bill to set aside a judgment of the county court opening a highway and for damages against road overseers —Searcy v. Clay County (Mo.) 75 S. W. 657. Bill for cancellation of many independent and separate contracts by one defendant with several complainants—Crawford-Adsit Co. v. Fordyce, 100 Ill. App. 362. Bill asking for partition as to certain defendants and removal of cloud from title as to another who is not at all connected with them—Roller v. Clarke, 19 App. D. C. 539. Petition by executor seeking accounting against two defendants alleged to hold property of the estate but failing to allege that they held any of it in common or that they have acquired it in the same way—Griffin v. Henderson, 116 Ga. 310. Bill joining a cause of action against a corporation to foreclose a mortgage, and another against stockholders to recover fraudulent dividends paid out of the income of the mortgaged property—New Hampshire Sav. Bank. v. Richey (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 956. Bill by a borrower of a building association to have his stock and obligations cancelled and yet seeking as shareholder to call the officers to account and to have the business wound up—Day v. National Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n of N. Y. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 779. Bill against judgment debtors and another praying not only a discovery and other equitable relief, but a personal judgment against one, is multifarious as to him —Hudson v. Wood, 119 Fed. 764. Bill against several for an account from two; for foreclosure of deed of trust given by all and for a deficiency judgment, where one has no interest in the land, another has an inalienable equity for life, and the others vested remainders therein—Fields v. Gwynn, 19 App. D. C. 99.

Bills held not multifarious. Bill seeking to restrain use of a patented article and also the use of the generic name of that article—Adam v. Folger (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 260. Bill to condemn land for a street not multifarious because it makes all persons interested in any of the lands parties—Gardiner v. City of Baltimore, 96 Md. 361. Bill by heirs of a husband and wife to recover land not multifarious because title to some land was vested in the husband to other lands in the wife, and to still other lands in both, nor because defendants claimed through various sources of title—Kilgore v. Norman, 119 Fed. 1006. Bill by one of two grantees against the other alleging an overlapping of the grant from a common grantor and asking apportionment not multifarious because it also seeks apportionment against another person claiming under the defendant grantee—Adams v. Wilson (Ala.) 34 So. 831. Bill by a judgment creditor of a corporation against stock subscribers to subject their subscription notes to the judgment, not multifarious for misjoinder of respondents, though the interests as between respondents themselves are distinct and independent—Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455; Hall v. Henderson, Id. Bill to enjoin the passing over of oyster beds if such relief be not practicable—Simonson v. Cain (Ala.) 34 So. 1019. Bill to restrain diversion of waters not multifarious because such waters are claimed in different rights, where all are affected alike by the acts of defendants—Rincon Water & Power Co. v. Anaheim Union Water Co., 115 Fed. 543. Bill alleging a fraudulent conveyance pursuant to a conspiracy and that certain decrees were fraudulently obtained pursuant to the same conspiracy and asking that such decrees be set aside—Northwestern Land Ass'n v. Grady (Ala.) 33 So. 874. Bill for an injunction to restrain the lowering of the level of a lake where defendants, though acting independently have contributed to the impairment of such level—Draper v. Brown, 115 Wis. 361. Bill by the federal government against several defendants to prevent pasturing two bands of sheep on a reservation where there are no averments showing different rights or interests as between the defendants—Dastervignes v. United States (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 30. Creditor's bill based on two several judgments both in favor of the plaintiff and against the same defendant attacking as fraudulent a conveyance of property in trust from the judgment defendants to certain of his co-defendants, reserving annuity to the grantor and also an assignment of the annuity to the other co-defendants, not multifarious the relief asked being in the alternative—De Hierapolis v. Lawrence, 115 Fed. 761. Bill seeking relief against several tax bills issued under separate ordinances as a cloud on title—Perkins v. Baer, 95 Mo. App. 70. Bill to set aside a will and a deed by the same person and alleged to have been procured by undue influence of one defendant—Williams v. Crabb (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 193. Bill by a judgment creditor of a corporation against the corporation and certain stockholders to recover unpaid stock subscriptions and compel payment for bonds issued to the stockholders not paid for, subsequently amended by an allegation that defendants fraudulently received the assets of the corporation for which they did not pay and that actual fraud existed by which the bill was changed to an ordinary creditor's bill and discovery and accounting was asked —Montgomery Iron Works v. Capital City Ins. Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 210. Bill asking foreclosure and relief against an original mortgagee and various transferees parties who become sureties—Miller v. McLaughlin (Mich.) 93 N. W. 435.

49. Letohatchie Baptist Church v. Bullock, 133 Ala. 548.

50. Equitable defenses will not be heard in ejectment—Highland Boy Gold Min. Co. v. Strickley (C. C. A.) 116 Fed. 852. An action by the United States against heirs of a deceased public officer to recover moneys alleged to have been overpaid him on his salary, as received by them in the distribution of his estate, cannot be joined with one against the sureties on his bond to charge them with liability for the same moneys—United States v. Boyd, 118 Fed. 89.

51. A cause of action for alleged abuse

(§ 6) C. Amended and supplemental bills, complaints, or petitions.—The federal statute requiring the court to amend all defects or want of form other than those expressed in a demurrer applies to suits in equity.[53] Plaintiff may amend his of process and malicious prosecution of a civil suit, based on an attempt to foreclose a mortgage in the federal courts cannot be set up as a counterclaim in a later suit in the state court to foreclose the mortgage—President, etc., of Ins. Co. of North America v. Parker (Neb.) 89 N. W. 1040.

52. A petition of intervention in a suit against a receiver on a claim for damages for death is an equitable proceeding and pleadings must follow the rules and practice in equity—Mercantile Trust Co. v. Pittsburgh & W. R. Co. (C. C. A.) 115 Fed. 475. A suit on a contract, in which a conspiracy is alleged by defendant with others to render performance by him impossible and to render him insolvent in order to defeat the rights of complainant, is equitable—Berliner Gramaphone Co. v. Seaman (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 750. A suit to recover for breach of contract is not equitable and cannot be brought in a federal court of equity merely because the contract gave complainant the right to inspect defendant's books—India Rubber Co. v. Consolidated Rubber Tire Co., 117 Fed. 354. Where complainants sued for value of gas delivered under a contract, and prayed that because of a mutual mistake the contract be reformed, the suit was brought in equity though the relief to which plaintiff was finally shown to be entitled, amounted to a mere money judgment; under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 281, authorizing the joinder of all matters of action necessary to a complete remedy—Palmer Steel & Iron Co. v. Heat, Light & Power Co. (Ind.) 66 N. E. 690. An action to recover for legal services from the estate of a decedent is at law—Kingsbury v. Joseph, 94 Mo. App. 298. Where a crossbill asks cancellation of a lease and affirmative relief destructive of plaintiff's right to recover thereon, the suit is one in equity—Lincoln Trust Co. v. Nathaw (Mo.) 74 S. W. 1007. A suit in the nature of a bill in equity either to have a deed to a bank declared a mortgage so as to allow the mortgagor to redeem, or to enforce a vendor's lien, is a pure chancery proceeding; construing Rev. St. 1899, § 691, providing for jury trials in actions to recover money or specific personalty—Yancey v. People's Bank (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 117. Matters arising under a plea of set-off cannot be heard in a court of law if based on equitable grounds requiring rescission of the contract—Hancock v. Whitehall Tobacco Warehouse Co. (Va.) 41 S. E. 860; Same v. Hubard, Id. Sufficiency of misrepresentations alleged in answer in a suit on a life insurance policy, praying cancellation thereof, to change the suit under statutory provisions into one in equity; construing Rev. St. 1889, §§ 5849, 5850—Kern v. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor, 167 Mo. 471. A suit to have a deed declared a mortgage so as to allow enforcement of a vendor's lien or redemption by the mortgagor is a purely chancery proceeding; construing Rev. St. 1899, § 691, providing for jury trials in actions to recover money or specific personalty—Yancey v. People's Bank (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 117. A suit to ascertain the amount of money loaned by plaintiff to defendant and to declare a lien on property pledged as security and to foreclose it is in equity and is not as for a money demand—Conde v. Rogers, 74 App. Div. (N. Y.) 147. Conversion involving issues as to whether a bill of sale was merely a security and whether it was procured by fraud does not present issues solely of equitable cognizance—Frick v. Kabaker, 116 Iowa, 494. Where plaintiff in ejectment claimed by purchase from the purchaser at a trustee's sale, and the answer denied the same and that the grantor in the trust deed was indebted to the grantee, and pleaded usury, no grounds appeared for transfer of the cause to equity—North American Trust Co. v. Chappell, 70 Ark. 507. Where the answer alleges that a mistake was made in reducing the agreement sued on to writing the cause should be transferred to the equity docket at defendant's request for reformation of the contract—Grasmier v. Wolf (Iowa) 90 N. W. 813. A suit to set aside a transfer of stock for fraudulent representations of the transferee, to restrain disposal of those holding in trust for him, to compel delivery of stock certificates and to require a reissue to plaintiff by the corporation, is exclusively in equity—Morrison v. Snow (Utah) 72 Pac. 924. A suit by persons claiming to be the owners of mining lands for restitution of the lands and to restrain the taking of ore therefrom, in which the defendants claimed an abandonment of the property and a re-location by themselves, is an action at law, not a suit in equity and plaintiffs are entitled to a jury—Haggin v. Kelly, 136 Cal. 481, 69 Pac. 140. Whether the right and remedy of a corporation to resist a judgment against it, rendered because of collusive fraud of its officers, be legal or equitable, the right of a taxpayer to resist such judgment on behalf of himself and other taxpayers, is legal, and his remedy equitable—Balch v. Beach (Wis.) 95 N. W. 132. Suit for repeated trespass defended by a claim of a highway is legal, though complainant alleges insolvency of defendants and asks an injunction—State ex rel. Hansen v. Hart (Utah) 72 Pac. 938. Ejectment against grantees of a mortgagor cannot be transferred to equity and tried with a bill to redeem from foreclosure though the defense in ejectment is the right to redeem—Robinson v. United Trust (Ark.) 72 S. W. 992. Where it was agreed on an intervening petition in receivership proceedings that under the general denial the receiver might give evidence of set-off merely in defense, the action of the court in later directing the receiver of its own motion to file a further answer of set-off asking judgment over did not constitute the case a new action, and the intervenor was not entitled to a jury to try the set-off; when equity jurisdiction is developed it continues throughout the controversy though the remedy might be conferred at law—Whitcomb v. Stringer (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 582.

53. Rev. St. § 954—Dancel v. United Shoe Mach. Co., 120 Fed. 839.

bill or petition if the amendment does not make a new cause of action or create a departure in pleading.[54] If the bill states no cause of action, no amendment can be filed,[55] nor can essential averments as to jurisdiction be supplied.[56] Plaintiff may be allowed to amend his bill after proof to conform to such proof,[57] the result being to set aside former defaults or failure to answer.[58] A bill which does not show, and was not intended to show, any defect as to parties in the original bill, or mistake or omission in its allegation of a fact, is not an amended bill.[59] An affidavit is not an amended or supplemental bill, where filed in course of a hearing without leave to file an amended pleading, nor can its statements render one a necessary party not made so by the bill.[60] Amendments will not be compelled.[61] Defendants may cure allowance of improper amendments by electing to treat an amended as an original bill.[62] Application for leave to amend after replication filed must be made by motion supported by affidavit.[63] An amendment will be refused if not presented until the case is ready for hearing.[64] After demurrer sustained for misjoinder of complainants, the bill may be amended by

54. What constitutes a departure in an amendment from a bill for setting aside attachments as fraudulent—McDonnell v. Finch, 131 Ala. 85. Amended bill as departure from original bill by judgment creditors to subject property of partners to claims on ground of conveyance in fraud of creditors—Metcalf v. Arnold, 132 Ala. 74. An amendment of a bill or petition in equity seeking in effect the same relief for which the suit was brought is allowable. Amendment in a suit to prevent foreclosure of a chattel mortgage and for redemption and sale of the property under Rev. Laws, c. 173, § 48—King v. Howes, 181 Mass. 445. If an amendment states reasons for relief more fully and different in some particulars from those in the original bill, it will be allowable in the discretion of the court as not setting forth a different cause of action, where its purpose is the same. The amendment sought to establish a resulting trust from the same transaction and under the same general rule of law—Brainard v. Buck, 184 U. S. 99. Amendments held not departure or change of form. Fixing the time when complainants became creditors of defendant; original bill alleging facts showing that they were such creditors—Hauk v. Van Ingen, 196 Ill. 20. Inclusion in partition of tracts of land omitted from the original complaint—Adams v. Hopkins (Cal.) 69 Pac. 228. As to amount claimed as attorney's fees, under Code, § 706, allowing amendment before final decree—American Freehold Land Mortg. Co. v. Pollard, 132 Ala. 155. Showing that complainant is a corporation, the original petition being in the name of a society—Adas Yeshurun Soc. v. Fish, 117 Ga. 345. Praying for partition in kind and not a sale as asked in the original bill—Berry v. Tennessee & C. R. Co., 134 Ala. 618. In suit against indorser, supplying necessary averments and adding as new parties the personal representatives of the makers—Tidball's Ex'rs v. Shenandoah Nat. Bank (Va.) 42 S. E. 867. Changing from bill to quiet title to action under the statute to determine claims and quiet title—Smith v. Gordon, 136 Ala. 495. Substituting a prayer for accounting and for a money judgment with a special lien on the land for one to recover land in which trust funds were wrongfully invested—Jordan v. Downs (Ga.) 45 S. E. 439. Adding a prayer for a personal judgment in a suit to subject lands to a judgment—Schneider v. Patton (Mo.) 75 S. W. 155. Amendments held to introduce new cause of action. Alleging that in the trespass and threatened trespass sued for, defendant acted as agent for another and asking that he be made a party defendant and restrained—Roberts v. Atlanta Real Estate Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 308. Setting up irregularities in foreclosure sale, where the original bill seeks redemption—Robinson v. United Trust (Ark.) 72 S. W. 992.

55. Mellor v. Smither (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 116.

56. It must appear at every stage of the cause that the court has jurisdiction—Dickinson v. Consolidated Traction Co., 114 Fed. 232.

57. South Chicago Brew. Co. v. Taylor (Ill.) 68 N. E. 732; Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455. Where a mother sued to recover balance remaining unpaid on a conveyance of land to her son for a given consideration and he answered that the real consideration was services rendered and to be rendered in the care of his mother and the proof showed that he had wholly failed in this, the mother may file an amended petition asking cancellation of the conveyance—Stephenson v. Stephenson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1873, 72 S. W. 742.

58. South Chicago Brew. Co. v. Taylor (Ill.) 68 N. E. 732.

59. Smith v. Pyrites Min. & Chemical Co. (Va.) 43 S. E. 564.

60. Sidway v. Missouri Land & Live Stock Co., 116 Fed. 381.

61. In a suit by one state against another state, an amendment to the bill raising the issue as to water rights in a river flowing into and through both states will not be compelled on demurrer, however imperfect the bill may be, but its sufficiency for the relief prayed for will await the trial on the merits—Kansas v. Colorado, 185 U. S. 125.

62. Love v. Moser, 109 Tenn. 143.

63. Equity rule 29—Beavers v. Richardson, 118 Fed. 320.

64. Bill for redemption from foreclosure—Robinson v. United Trust (Ark.) 72 S. W. 992.

dismissal as to the complainant without interest.[65] Where complainant has not made out his case by pleading and proof, the bill may be dismissed in vacation without allowing an opportunity to amend.[66] An order sustaining a demurrer to one aspect only of a bill is merely interlocutory and the order may be revised before final decree and the bill amended at any time as to that portion with permission of the court.[67] Where amendments to a bill filed after sworn answer set up no new cause of action or additional facts requiring answer, the denial of the sworn answer applies to the bill as amended, without further oath or verification.[68] The filing of an amended bill,[69] or of an amended and supplemental bill, is in the discretion of the court and will not be reviewed unless that discretion is abused.[70] If the bill makes no cause of action, one cannot be introduced by supplemental bill which has accrued thereafter, but if the original bill states a cause of action, a supplemental bill may be employed to bring in material facts occurring after its filing,[71] and if leave has been given to file a supplemental bill to bring in matters arising after filing the original bill, matters which might also have been included in the original bill may then be included in the amendment.[72] A supplemental bill is not necessary to bring in material facts occurring after the filing of the original bill only to establish the facts in issue.[73] A statement by the chancellor on hearing a master's report does not amount to a decision on the issues, where there is no entry of an order or decree referring to the report, and a supplemental bill may be thereafter filed.[74]

(§ 6) D. Cross bill or petition.—Additional facts relating to the subject-matter of the bill may be set up by cross bill and affirmative relief asked,[75] and the rule applies to cross petitions.[76] Relief will not be granted on a cross bill asking an account which could not be stated with equal justice to the parties.[77] Where the

65. Victor Talking Mach. Co. v. American Graph. Co., 118 Fed. 50.

66. Westbrook v. Hayes (Ala.) 34 So. 622.

67. Globe-Wernicke Co. v. Macey (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 696.

68. Simonson v. Caln (Ala.) 34 So. 1019.

69. Where specific matters omitted in an original complaint in partition are included by an amendment, its allowance is in the discretion of the court whether the original complaint stated a cause of action or not—Adams v. Hopkins (Cal.) 69 Pac. 228.

70. Berliner Gramophone Co. v. Seaman (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 750, 115 Fed. 806.

71. Mellor v. Smither (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 116. A bill which states new facts amounting to an entirely new cause of action between different parties and on which a decree could be rendered without referring to the original bill, is not a supplemental bill—Smith v. Pyrites Min. & Chemical Co. (Va.) 43 S. E. 564. A supplemental bill in a partnership accounting is not objectionable as making a different case from the original bill, where it merely states that after the filing of the original bill the parties agreed that the accounts should be stated according to certain schedules and on the accounting the balance was found due plaintiff—McMurtrie v. Guiler (Mass.) 67 N. E. 358.

72. Mellor v. Smither (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 116.

73. Pennsylvania Co. v. Bond, 99 Ill. App. 535.

74. French v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 199 Ill. 213.

75. Price v. Stratton (Fla.) 33 So. 644. While the Code is silent in Nebraska as to remedies furnished by the old common law or equity practice, they may be employed in bringing a cross suit not inconsistent with the provisions of the Code—Armstrong v. Mayer (Neb.) 95 N. W. 51. A cross-bill to restrain complainant from enjoying the rights asserted and asked to be established by his bill cannot be maintained since those rights must be adjudicated in settling the issues of the bill and answer—Sunset Tel. Co. v. Eureka, 122 Fed. 960. In a suit against a railroad company by a publishing company because of the refusal to carry papers on a certain train another publishing company having a contract for exclusive right of shipment thereby cannot file a cross bill to obtain equities against the complainant on account of expenses relating to the train service—Memphis News Pub. Co. v. Southern R. Co. (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 941.

76. A cross petition for abuse of process by vexatious delay in an action at law involving the same issues during the pendency of which the suit was stayed, held distinct from the original suit and not allowable—Armstrong v. Mayer (Neb.) 95 N. W. 51. In a suit by a trustee under an assignment of a mortgage to foreclose it, judgment creditors of the owner of the equity in the lands, who allege that the assignment is fraudulent against them as creditors of such owner, cannot amend cross bill to allege that the assignment was also fraudulent against them as creditors of the trustee—Carter v. Carter, 63 N. J. Eq. 726.

77. Memphis News Pub. Co v. Southern R. Co. (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 941.

purpose of a cross petition is defensive only, it need not be brought on equitable grounds nor ask equitable relief, but when it asks affirmative relief, it must be limited to equitable matters if not to matters cognizable on equitable grounds.[78] A cross petition in a suit to remove a cloud on title, not authorized under the Burnt Records act and alleging nothing not already stated in the answer and not asking that a conveyance be removed as a cloud on title, may be stricken from the files.[79] A cross bill should not be dismissed on sustaining demurrer for nonjoinder without giving an opportunity to amend.[80] Where cross complainant filed no amended cross bill on being granted leave to do so but proceeded to hearing, the court, in its discretion, may refuse an application to amend made more than six months after the close of the hearing.[81]

(§ 6) E. Demurrer.[82] Grounds.[83]—The remedy for improper waiver of answer under oath is by motion not by demurrer.[84] A general demurrer will not lie if the bill states any ground for equitable relief;[85] nor to a bill containing matter proper for relief together with matter not calling for relief;[86] nor to a bill praying special relief on several grounds and general relief, if any claim of the bill is allowed;[87] nor because a discovery and an accounting were sought which could not be granted;[88] nor where it seeks to have the whole bill declared bad for objections applying only to parts of it.[89] A demurrer is properly sustained to a petition on the face of which it appears that there is an adequate remedy at law;[90] or to a bill showing laches in assertion of the rights maintained;[91] or to a bill stating a cause within the statute of limitations at law;[92] and whether averments of an equitable petition warrant the relief asked by its prayers will be determined on general demurrer.[93] Any number of grounds for special demurrer will not sustain a general demurrer.[94] A general demurrer will lie to a bill showing laches.[95] Only grounds apparent on the face of the pleading can be raised by demurrer.[96] A

78. But under the Nebraska Code this practice is so far changed that the relief need not be equitable when based on equitable grounds, but the matters set up in the cross petition must be germane to the original suit—Armstrong v. Mayer (Neb.) 95 N. W. 51.

79. Hurd's Rev. St. 1899, c. 116—South Chicago Brew. Co. v. Taylor (Ill.) 68 N. E. 732.

80. Price v. Stratton (Fla.) 33 So. 644.

81. Ferguson Contracting Co. v. Manhattan Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 791.

82. Sufficiency of demurrer under Chancery Rule 9, in Michigan—Schaub v. Welded Barrel Co. (Mich.) 90 N. W. 335.

83. The federal statute declaring that no declaration or bill in a civil case in the federal courts shall be quashed for defects or want of form, except those specially set down by the party in case of demurrer and requiring the court to amend all defects or want of form other than those expressed in the demurrer, applies to suits in equity (Rev. St. § 954)—Dancel v. United Shoe Mach. Co., 120 Fed. 839.

84. Springfield Co. v. Ely (Fla.) 32 So. 892.

85. Orlando v. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Fla.) 33 So. 986. On general demurrer for want of equity, the bill must be construed most strongly against the pleader, though if there is any ground of equitable relief or any number of grounds for special demurrer the general demurrer will be overruled—Johnson v. McKinnon (Fla.) 34 So. 272. Not to a complaint asking to set aside a will for fraud and also a transfer of property, for want of consideration, on the ground that equity has no jurisdiction in cases of fraud in execution of a will. Equity will take jurisdiction as to fraudulent transfers of property—Delabarre v. McAlpin, 71 App. Div. (N. Y.) 591.

86. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.

87. Junior Order Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Sharpe, 63 N. J. Eq. 500.

88. Gorman v. Stillman (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1088.

89. Orlando v. Equitable Bldg. & Loan Ass'n (Fla.) 33 So. 986.

90. Sharpe v. Hodges, 116 Ga. 795.

91. Phillips v. Piney Coal Co. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 774; Johnson v. McKinnon (Fla.) 34 So. 272; Potts v. Alexander, 118 Fed. 885; Wilson v. Wilson, 41 Or. 459, 69 Pac. 923. However see Gleason v. Carpenter, 74 Vt. 399.

92. Equity follows the law by analogy—Parmelee v. Price, 105 Ill. App. 271.

93. Copeland v. Cheney, 116 Ga. 685.

94, 95. Johnson v. McKinnon (Fla.) 34 So. 272.

96. A demurrer cannot be sustained to a bill against an administrator to enforce the sale of stock which decedent had agreed should be sold to his fellow shareholders at his death for a value to be agreed upon by arbitration on the ground that the arbitration had been revoked, where the revocation is not shown in the bill—Fitzsimmons v. Lindsay, 205 Pa. 79. Facts in support of a contention that a tender of borrowed money is necessary to maintenance of a suit to avoid a mortgage must be raised by answer and not demurrer where they do not appear on demurrer will not lie to part of a bill and answer to a part where the different paragraphs are interdependent so that the bill cannot be divided into parts.[97] A joint demurrer will not be sustained unless good as to all parties joining in it.[98]

Effect of, and procedure on, demurrer.—A demurrer admits the allegations of the bill and during its pendency it does not matter whether the bill is properly verified.[99] Whether specifications and drawings of a patent are sufficiently full and clear to enable experts in the art to understand them cannot be determined on demurrer to a bill for infringement.[1] Where a bill by one tenant in common is not sustained as to the right of complainant to erect a monument on certain land removed by defendant, it will not be retained after demurrer to try the issue of damages to the monument by removal.[2] If defendant asks and is given leave to allow his answer to the original bill to stand as answer to the amended bill, he cannot demur thereafter, except as to new matter set up in the amendment.[3] Sustaining a demurrer to an insufficient plea is not ground for reversal, though the proper practice is to set the plea down for hearing on the sufficiency or by motion to strike.[4] After a successful demurrer by two of several defendants claiming in the same right because of failure to state a cause of action against any defendant, the bill is properly dismissed as to all, though the other defendants do not appear.[5] Where the court on demurrer settles the principles in favor of plaintiff without action pro forma on the demurrer, it will be considered that the sufficiency of the bill was settled in rendering the decree, thereby substantially overruling the demurrer.[6] A joint and several demurrer in behalf of two defendants is abandoned after being overruled where it appears that defendants were ruled to answer and failed, and the bill was taken as confessed against them, and no intention appears on their part to stand by their demurrer.[7] Where a bill shows a case in double aspect by charging certain acts as an infringement of a patent and charging unfair competition and asks relief on both grounds, an order sustaining a demurrer, addressed to one aspect of the bill only, is merely interlocutory and may be revised before final decree, and the bill may be amended as to that portion at any time with the permission of the court.[8] A demurrer on file must be considered as waived where the attention of the trial court is not directed to it during the pendency of the cause.[9]

(§ 6) F. Plea.—Laches may be raised by plea.[10] A plea alleging laches is insufficient if it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute estoppel by lapse of time.[11] A plea stating a number of facts all tending to one conclusion, namely that the court is without jurisdiction on the subject-matter, is not multifarious.[12] A plea court is without jurisdiction of the subject-matter, is not multifarious.[12] A plea the state may be properly stricken.[13] After a plea has been set down for argu-

the face of the complaint—Lange v. Geiser, 138 Cal. 682, 72 Pac. 343.

97. Sledge v. Dickson (Miss.) 33 So. 282.

98. Brown v. Tallman (N. J. Ch.) 54 Atl. 457. A demurrer to a bill by a judgment creditor against an insolvent corporation to compel discovery of names and holdings of stockholders on the ground that the corporation was chartered subject to a certain statute, and that it did not appear by the bill that the corporation had ever accepted the general statute governing corporations and the liability of stockholders is without merit, where the bill merely alleges that the corporation is a manufacturing company doing business in a certain city—Clark v. Rhode Island Locomotive Works (R. I.) 53 Atl. 47.

99. Sharples v. Baker, 100 Ill. App. 108.

1. Dade v. Boorum & Pease Co., 121 Fed. 135.

2. Capen v. Leach, 182 Mass. 175.

3. Pennsylvania Co. v. Bond, 99 Ill. App. 535.

4. Breeding v. Grantland, 135 Ala. 497.

5. Griffiths v. Griffiths, 198 Ill. 632.

6. Le Sage v. Le Sage, 52 W. Va. 323.

7. Jocelyn v. White, 98 Ill. App. 50.

8. Globe-Wernicke Co. v. Fred Macey Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 696.

9. Cessna v. Benedict, 98 Ill. App. 440.

10. Potts v. Alexander, 118 Fed. 885.

11. Crafts v. Crafts, 23 R. I. 5.

12. Vacuum Oil Co. v. Eagle Oil Co., 122 Fed. 105.

13. Under rule 48 of the circuit court—Moore v. Clem (Fla.) 34 So. 305.

ment by complainant, facts stated therein must be taken as true.[14] After a plea to the jurisdiction has been filed, duly noticed, and set down for argument at the following term, complainant cannot move to strike it out.[15] If no objection is made to the sufficiency of a plea, defendant is entitled to a dismissal if he proves a good defense thereunder.[16]

(§ 6) G. Answer.—After foreclosure is well advanced under a reference, the master may properly refuse a motion for leave to answer over.[17] A defendant who files a demurrer merely for delay will be allowed to answer only on payment of costs and reimbursement of complainant's unnecessary expenses.[18] Facts not appearing on the face of the complaint must be presented by answer and not demurrer.[19] An answer affecting the right of a co-defendant, and asking relief as against him, must be served upon him.[20] Laches,[21] or the existence of an adequate remedy at law, may be raised by answer.[22] Where plaintiff pleads a contract as the ground of his equity, defendant may plead the whole contract as it existed.[23]

Verification and sufficiency.—If the oath of an answer is defective, complainant must except or move to strike it from the files or apply for a decree pro confesso.[24] If amendments to a bill after sworn answer gives no new cause of action or facts requiring answer, the denial of the answer applies to it without further oath or verification.[25] The answer must be responsive to the bill.[26] Defendant is not excused from answering interrogatories filed with a bill by the fact that they are not specifically referred to therein, if he is not prejudiced by the failure.[27] Where defendant in his answer attempts to excuse failure to answer interrogatories, he must set out as specifically the grounds for such refusal as in a de-

14. Metcalf v. American School Furniture Co., 122 Fed. 115.

15. Under rule 213 of the New Jersey chancery court and Chancery act 1902, § 20—Wilson v. American Palace Car Co., 63 N. J. Eq. 557.

16. Holloway v. Southern Building & Loan Ass'n, 136 Ala. 160.

17. Kiddell v. Bristow (S. C.) 45 S. E. 174.

18. Especially where it appears that complainant's counsel resides at a distance from the court—Merrimac Mattress Mfg. Co. v. Schlesinger, 124 Fed. 237.

19. That complainant seeking to avoid a mortgage had made no tender—Lange v. Geiser, 138 Cal. 682, 72 Pac. 343. And see § 5 E, ante, as to what may be raised by demurrer.

20. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493.

21. Potts v. Alexander, 118 Fed. 885.

22. Vannatta v. Lindley, 198 Ill. 40; but where the lack of an adequate remedy at law is necessary to interference of equity for plaintiff, the objection of its presence need not be taken by answer—Everett v. De Fontaine, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 219.

23. McCoy v. Kane, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 187.

24. By setting a cause down for hearing on bill and answer before replication filed and before it is at issue, he will be held to have admitted all its allegations at the hearing regardless of a defective verification—Lee v. Bradley Fertilizer Co. (Fla.) 33 So. 456.

25. Simonson v. Cain (Ala.) 34 So. 1019.

26. An answer confined to facts necessarily required by the bill and other facts inseparably connected so that they constitute one and the same transaction, is responsive when it discharges as well as when it charges the defendant—Maxwell v. Jacksonville Loan & Imp. Co. (Fla.) 34 So. 255. Where an answer to a bill to set aside a conveyance of land for fraud is based on the vacant character of the land, and alleges that defendant is in possession, it is responsive and the bill must be dismissed if no other proof appears—Ropes v. Jenerson (Fla.) 34 So. 955. Answer to bill to set aside a tax sale as evasive and irresponsive and deficient in failing to require complainant to prove the allegations of his bill—Applewhite v. Foxworth, 79 Miss. 773. Equity rule 34 which directs that defendant shall be assigned to answer the bill, or so much thereof as is covered by a plea or demurrer, after the plea or demurrer overruled, as applied in the decisions of the federal supreme court, though such rule is not there construed or explained, controls a defendant desiring to answer after an issue of fact has been determined against him on a plea joined—Westervelt v. Library Bureau (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 824. Where the interrogatory of a bill to set aside a deed as fraudulent, calls upon defendants to answer whether any valuable consideration was received, what it was, where and when paid, and who were present, and the answer stated that a valuable consideration was paid, which consisted in the liquidation of a debt from the grantor to the grantee in a certain amount for unpaid rent and in cash of a certain amount paid from time to time by currency and check as the business of the grantor required, the responses did not possess the precision and detail required by the bill—O'Connor v. Williams (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 550.

27. Specific reference required by Equity Rule 43—Federal Mfg. & Printing Co. v. International Bank Note Co., 119 Fed. 385.

murrer on the same grounds.[28] Defendant cannot be required to answer as to a trade secret.[29] An answer relevant to particular relief or the costs is not impertinent.[30]

Effect of answer; as evidence; admissions.—A responsive answer is conclusive, unless opposed by two witnesses or by one witness and corroborating facts equal to the testimony of another;[31] however, in West Virginia by statute an answer is not evidence, whether under oath or not, but only puts plaintiff on proof of his bill as denied by the answer.[32] An answer under oath has only the effect of an unsworn answer, where the bill expressly waives a sworn answer,[33] but a bill cannot be amended after a sworn answer has been filed in response to a demand in the original bill so as to waive the sworn answer, especially as to matter set up in the original bill.[34] The answer is taken as true where the case is heard on bill and answer, or on bill, answer, and exhibits,[35] Jurisdictional averments cannot be supplied by allegations of the answer.[36] If complainant introduces defendant's answer in evidence, its denials must be considered as well as its admissions.[37] An answer which admits a fact not mentioned in the note of testimony or order of submission, does not constitute evidence of that fact.[38] Where an unsworn answer in foreclosure denied payment of a debt, but admitted execution of a mortgage, plaintiff's proof consisting of the note, mortgage, and answer, was insufficient.[39]

(§ 6) H. Replications, exceptions, and motions.—Where a plea is allowed on argument, complainant may file a replication and contest its truth.[40] A general replication filed to a plea in bar does not admit its sufficiency.[41] Under Code Miss. § 540, no replication to an answer is necessary.[42] Exceptions must be filed to the form of a plea.[43] Exceptions cannot be allowed to the entire answer for insufficiency where a material averment of the bill is denied,[44] nor is failure to answer an immaterial averment ground of exception.[45] A motion to strike out a cross bill for

28. Equity Rule 44—Boyer v. Keller, 113 Fed. 580.

29. Federal Mfg. & Printing Co. v. International Bank Note Co., 119 Fed. 385.

30. Robertson v. Dunne (Fla.) 33 So. 530.

31. Hopkins v. Stoneroad, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 168. Suit to have plaintiff declared the owner of a third interest in a mortgage—McCoy v. Kane, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 187. Where a sworn answer is not expressly waived by the bill—Calivada Colonization Co. v. Hays, 119 Fed. 202. Testimony by a wife supporting that of her husband as against an answer in equity is entitled at least to the weight of a corroborating circumstance so as to satisfy the equitable requirement—Sharp v. Behr, 117 Fed. 864. On a motion for dissolution of an injunction to restrain a trustee's sale, a denial by the sworn answer of an allegation in the bill that certain judgment liens are prior to the lien of a trust deed must be taken as true, where no proof is given on the subject—Hudson v. Barham (Va.) 43 S. E. 189.

32. Code 1899, c. 125, §§ 38, 59—Knight v. Nease (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 414.

33. Morrison v. Hardin (Miss.) 33 So. 80.

34. Springfield Co. v. Ely (Fla.) 32 So. 892.

35. Complainant thereby admits all the allegations of the answer whether responsive or not and that he has no ground of relief except as admitted in the answer—Goddard v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 104 Ill. App. 526; Gates v. City of Grand Rapids (Mich.) 95 N. W. 998; Ropes v. Jenerson (Fla.) 34 So. 955. After complainant secures the suit to be set down for hearing on bill, answer and replication before the three months allowed by Equity Rule No. 71 for taking testimony and a hearing is had by the parties without testimony, and without objection by defendants, they have waived their right to take testimony and their answer is evidence only in so far as it is responsive—Maxwell v. Jacksonville Loan & Imp. Co. (Fla.) 34 So. 255.

36. A defect in a bill by a purchaser at a foreclosure sale for subrogation to the rights of another mortgagee, in that it does not show that the mortgage was a subsisting incumbrance on the land is not cured by an admission in the answer that the satisfaction of the mortgage was void—Tait v. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co., 132 Ala. 193.

37. Scott v. Brassell, 132 Ala. 660.

38. Tait v. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co., 132 Ala. 193.

39. Scott v. Brassell, 132 Ala. 660.

40. Austin v. Hoxsie (Fla.) 32 So. 878.

41. Under Equity Rule 33—Soderberg v. Armstrong, 116 Fed. 709.

42. Where an answer to a bill seeking to subject certain railroad property to payment of taxes alleged that the railroads were constructed by companies under charters which contained exemption privileges, an issue was raised without replication as to what company constructed the road—Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Adams (Miss.) 32 So. 937.

43. Formal objections waived by setting plea down for hearing—Vacuum Oil Co. v. Eagle Oil Co., 122 Fed. 105.

44. Moore v. Clem (Fla.) 34 So. 305.

45. Peters v. Tonopah Min. Co., 120 Fed.

irrelevant matter stated is a substitute for a demurrer and raises the question of legal sufficiency of its allowance as the basis for relief.[46]

If a motion to strike out pleas is not tried or submitted for trial, it will be considered abandoned.[47]

(§ 6) I. Issues, proof, and variance.—The evidence offered must correspond with the allegation in the pleadings and be confined to the issues.[48] Material averments in the bill, neither admitted nor denied by the answer, must be proved.[49] Where the liabilities of several respondents to a bill are separate and distinct as among themselves, material facts denied by any of them may be proven, though admitted by a majority of them.[50] A certified copy of a corporate charter supplemented by parol testimony is sufficient on the issue of incorporation as against a denial on information and belief.[51]

(§ 6) J. Objections and waiver thereof.[52]—Where a case has been sent to a referee by agreement, want of jurisdiction cannot be first raised by defendant after close of the testimony.[53] Misjoinder of causes and parties must be objected to before trial.[54] An order appointing a receiver is not void because an amended bill was not verified, no objection for the defect being taken at the time.[55] An objection that another action for the same cause was pending, made by answer but stricken out during the trial on defendant's motion, is waived.[56] Consent by defendants to amendment and failure to demur to the original bill for omissions waives any defects thereby created.[57] The right to allege error in the overruling of a de-

537. Exception will not lie to an answer in a suit in a federal court, which fails to answer an averment of the bill that a true and correct copy of the plat referred to is attached and made an exhibit, where no rule of pleading requires such exhibits to be attached.—Id.

46. Hanneman v. Richter, 63 N. J. Eq. 753. A motion to strike out that part of an answer in partition denying the title claimed by the bill, as that of tenants in common with defendant under a certain devise, should be denied, since it is merely a substitute for an exception instead of a demurrer, and that part of such answer in question is not impertinent. Chancery Rule 213—Id.

47. Adair v. Feder, 133 Ala. 620.

48. Stockton v. National Bank of Jacksonville (Fla.) 34 So. 897. Proof as to an essential fact is insufficient however full and convincing it may be, unless the fact is alleged in the pleadings—Lyle v. Wynn (Fla.) 34 So. 158. Where in a suit to set aside a conveyance from husband to wife on the ground of fraud of creditors a set-off is not pleaded against the claim by cross-bill, no evidence of such set-off can be introduced—Noble v. Gilliam, 136 Ala. 618. Where a proceeding is brought in joint names of the owner, of a patent and another to restrain infringement, defendant has no concern with the terms of the agreement regarding the patent between the parties plaintiff whether it constitutes an exclusive license to manufacture or an unlawful combination in restraint of trade—Cincinnati Unhairing Co. v. American Fur Refining Co., 120 Fed. 672. Evidence showing an agreement, the existence of which was not alleged in the pleadings, is irrelevant and inadmissible under a cross bill. Cross bill to enforce a statutory lien on railroad property in favor of a sub-contractor under which evidence was introduced showing an agreement by the principal contractor to take certain bonds of the company at a certain price, which the sub-contractor had agreed to receive in part payment for work done—Ferguson Contracting Co. v. Manhattan Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 791. Variance between allegations of bill and evidence in a suit by a deserted wife to set aside a conveyance by her former husband is without consideration and inimical to her interests and because the homestead was released without her joinder in the deed—Smith v. Kneer, 203 Ill. 264.

49. Glos v. Cratty, 196 Ill. 193.

50. Henderson v. Hall, 134 Ala. 455; Hall v. Henderson, Id.

51. Samuel Bros. & Co. v. Hostetter Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 257.

52. Complainant waives any objection to a plea in form or substance which may only be taken by exceptions by setting the plea down for argument without replication and admits the truth of all facts well pleaded however inconsistent or contradictory to the bill—Cook v. Sterling Electric Co., 118 Fed. 45. Where a devisee had taken an assignment of claims of his testator to damages because of the operation of an elevated railroad in front of premises belonging to the estate and asks recovery for past damages sustained to the estate in a suit to restrain maintenance of the road, defendant waived any right to have such damages ascertained in an action at law, where he made no objection to the plaintiff's right to recover in an equitable proceeding, though proof was received—Hirsh v. Manhattan R. Co., 84 App. Div. 374.

53. Richmond v. Bennett, 205 Pa. 470.

54. Curran v. Hagerman (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1003.

55. Clark v. Brown (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 130.

56. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 168, 169—Kiddell v. Bristow (S. C.) 45 S. E. 174.

57. Hauk v. Van Ingen, 196 Ill. 20.

murrer to a bill is not lost by attending the taking of testimony before the master and cross-examination of witnesses.[58] A defendant does not waive error in the overruling of a demurrer by failing to give notice and secure entry of record that he had elected to abide by the demurrer.[59] Where, by his pleadings, defendant asks equitable relief, he waives any objection to equitable jurisdiction,[60] such objection, where based on facts appearing on the face of the bill, is waived by failure to demur.[61]

(§ 6) K. Pleading laches and acquiescence.—Laches need not be pleaded as a defense, but it is sufficient if it appears from the evidence.[62] It may be raised by plea or answer, or on the hearing, or preliminary to the hearing.[63] Generally, it may be pleaded by demurrer,[64] especially if plaintiff shows requisite facts constituting laches;[65] however, in Vermont, it seems, the rule is otherwise.[66] The statute of limitations may be raised by demurrer.[67]

§ 7. Taking bill as confessed or default.—Complainant is not entitled to a decree pro confesso if his complaint is insufficient to support such decree though defendant may be in default;[68] such decree is properly entered after time granted to answer on overruling a demurrer but no answer is filed, unless a sufficient cause for not pleading is shown, or a good cause for further time to plead,[69] and if defendants are not under disability, follows as a matter of course after default entered against them and cannot be assailed if warranted by averments of the bill.[70] Equity rules being extended to proceedings to enforce the bankruptcy act, failure to file an answer to a petition for expunging a claim will give plaintiff a right to a decree pro confesso with the ordinary consequences of such decree.[71] After a bill has been taken for confessed, evidence is introduced only in the discretion of the court and may not be required if facts alleged in the bill and confessed will support a decree.[72] Even after decree pro confesso, the final decree must be based on allegations of the bill and must not grant more than is asked for and shown by it.[73]

§ 8. Trial by jury of special issues.[74]—Where a feigned issue is directed to be made, the order should provide for its trial by jury, unless the parties waive a jury.[75]

58. Jocelyn v. White, 201 Ill. 16.

59. Jocelyn v. White, 201 Ill. 16.

60. A defendant asking such relief by answer cannot object that an action to quiet title was brought on the equity side of the docket—McBride v. Whitaker, (Neb.) 99 N. W. 966. In a suit to establish a boundary between adjacent lands defendant, by admitting the dispute and praying that the boundary be established on the line described by him, waived all objection to jurisdiction—Killgore v. Carmichael (Or.) 72 Pac. 637. Answering and going to trial on the merits in a divorce proceeding after the overruling of the bill on the ground of multifariousness, waives any objection which the holder of the legal title to the land claimed by the wife as owned by her husband may have had to the jurisdiction of the court to determine the ownership of the land in the divorce proceeding—VanVleet v. DeWitt, 200 Ill. 153.

61. Negaunee Iron Co. v. Iron Cliffs Co. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 468. Suit to restrain removal of line fence—F. H. Wolf Brick Co. v. Lonyo (Mich.) 93 N. W. 251.

62. Calivada Colonization Co. v. Hays, 119 Fed. 202; this statement is not true in all jurisdictions, see Fletcher Eq. Pl. & Pr. § 275. On a petition of intervention in foreclosure, laches may be considered as a defense without being pleaded—Gunderson v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 199 Ill. 422.

63. Potts v. Alexander, 118 Fed. 885.

64. Phillips v. Piney Coal & Coke Co. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 774; Johnson v. McKinnon (Fla.) 34 So. 272; Potts v. Alexander, 118 Fed. 885; Fletcher Eq. Pl. & Pr. §§ 207, 275.

65. Wilson v. Wilson, 41 Or. 459, 69 Pac. 923.

66. Gleason v. Carpenter, 74 Vt. 399.

67. Parmelee v. Price, 105 Ill. App. 271.

68. Wong Him v. Callahan, 119 Fed. 381.

69. Ray v. Frank (Fla.) 32 So. 925.

70. Dunfee v. Mutual B. & L. Ass'n, 101 Ill. App. 477.

71. Gen. Rules in Bankruptcy No. 37—In re Docker-Foster Co., 123 Fed. 190.

72. Jackson Union Tel. Co. v. Ava, etc., Tel. Co., 100 Ill. App. 535.

73. Lyle v. Wynn (Fla.) 34 So. 158.

74. Character of action under Code practice as determining right to jury trial—New Harmony Lodge v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 5.

75. Russell v. Chicago & M. Elect. R. Co., 98 Ill. App. 347.

Right to jury trial.—A jury is not a matter of right in an equity cause,[76] but the court in its discretion may submit to the jury any question of fact,[77] where an action is purely one of equity and contains no legal issues, and its action will not be disturbed unless such discretion is abused,[78] and the character of the cause of action as legal or equitable determines the right to a jury under the codes.[79] However, it is generally otherwise as to legal issues,[80] wherein state statutes cannot control the federal courts.[81] After equity jurisdiction is developed, it continues throughout the controversy though the remedy might be conferred at law, so that a jury trial to determine a set-off may be denied.[82] Failure to apply to the court on notice for trial by jury of specific questions of fact is a waiver thereof.[83] It cannot be objected that the judge charged the jury more fully for one party than for the other in a suit in equity, where it appears that he charged fully the defense made by the pleas and evidence of the objecting party.[84] The court may properly refuse to submit certain questions to another jury after a disagreement by the first, and their discharge and a decree on testimony already heard.[85]

Verdict or findings and effect thereof.—The verdict is advisory only,[86] and hence error cannot be assigned on the form in which interrogatories were pro-

76. Maggs v. Morgan, 30 Wash. 604, 71 Pac. 188.

77. Welch v. Tipperry (Neb.) 92 N. W. 582. Where an answer in a suit for settlement and accounting of a partnership alleges a settlement, the issue thereby made may be taken from the jury in the discretion of the chancellor—Ely v. Coontz, 167 Mo. 371. In a suit in the nature of a bill in equity to have a deed to a bank declared a mortgage so as to allow the mortgagor to redeem or to enforce a vendor's lien, a jury trial is not allowable except that the judge may take the jury's verdict on the issues as advisory—Construing Rev. St. 1899, § 691, providing for jury trials in actions to recover money or specific personalty—Yancey v. People's Bank (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 117.

78. Culp v. Mulvane (Kan.) 71 Pac. 273; Reese's Adm'r v. Youtsey, 24 Ky. L. R. 603, 69 S. W. 708. Were a cross bill in a suit asking a decree concelling a lease and a judgment prays affirmative relief destroying plaintiff's right to recover, it constitutes the suit one in equity in which a trial by jury is properly denied—Lincoln Trust Co. v. Nathan (Mo.) 74 S. W. 1007. Where an appeal is taken from the district court in a proceeding in the probate court admitting to probate a spoliated or destroyed will, a jury trial is not a matter of right—Gallon v Haas (Kan.) 72 Pac. 770. A suit to set aside a transfer of corporate stock because of fraudulent representations of the transferee, to restrain holders of stock in trust for him from disposing of it and to compel delivery of stock certificates and require a re-issue of the stock of plaintiff by the corporation, is exclusively a suit in equity so that neither party has a right to a jury trial—Morrison v. Snow (Utah) 72 Pac. 924.

79. New Harmony Lodge v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 5. A jury is not a matter of right under the Code in a suit to restrain maintenance of a nuisance and to recover past damages—Under Code Civ. Proc. § 968—Miller v. Edison Electric Illuminating Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 390.

80. Where defenses by way of counterclaim are set up in an action to restrain the sale of a negotiable note, defendant may have a jury trial on the issue of damages—Larrabee v. Given (Neb.) 91 N. W. 504. Where a complaint for trespass is denied by an answer alleging a highway to exist at the locus of the alleged trespass, the action is at law entitling either party to a jury on the legal issues though injunctive relief is sought—State ex rel. Hansen v. Hart (Utah) 72 Pac. 938.

81. In a creditor's suit in a federal court against the judgment defendant and another alleged to be his debtor on a mere money demand, the question of the indebtedness of the third person if denied by him cannot be tried by the court though such procedure is authorized by the statute of the state, since that would deprive the alleged debtor of his constitutional right to a jury—Hudson v. Wood, 119 Fed. 764.

82. Whitcomb v. Stringer (Ind. App.) 63 N. E. 582.

83. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 970—Steinway v. Von Bernuth, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 596.

84. Jordan v. Downs (Ga.) 45 S. E. 439.

85. Hardy v. Dyas, 203 Ill. 211.

86. Kozacek v. Kozacek, 105 Ill. App. 180; Yancey v. People's Bank (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 117; Buckers Irr. Mill. & Imp. Co. v. Farmers' Independent Ditch Co. (Colo.) 72 Pac. 49. The issue whether a written receipt for payment of money should be reformed to show that the amount was given in full payment is for the court so that a verdict of the jury is merely advisory—Kammermeyer v. Hilz (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1107. In an action by a creditor against persons alleged to have fraudulently converted and concealed property of his decedent debtor and asking discovery for himself and all other creditors of decedent, on submission of the issues to a jury for advisory findings, the court may refuse to accept such findings but may make new ones, proper in its opinion under the evidence, since the action is to be tried by the court and not as a matter of right by the jury—Culp v. Mulvane (Kan.) 71 Pac. 273.

pounded.[87] Where an indefinite verdict is returned, the court may request the jurors to state the meaning of their answers and suggest that more explicit answers be made.[88] Adoption of a special verdict of a jury on an equitable issue makes it the court's finding.[89] Submission of a particular issue does not take the whole case to the jury so that the court may refuse to consider it.[90]

§ 9. Hearing or trial; rehearing. A. In general.—An action to reform a note and another to enforce payment thereon should be tried separately, the first having prior trial,[91] but an action for damages and for restraint of continuance of the wrong contains one cause of action, and a motion to try the equitable issues first must be denied.[92] Complainant may ordinarily discontinue at any time before defendant is entitled to a decree.[93] Rehearing may be granted before decree,[94] but not afterward except for grave error or newly-discovered evidence.[95]

(§ 9) B. Dismissal.[96]—A bill will be dismissed where jurisdictional facts are not shown on the hearing,[97] or if the bill is multifarious,[98] or when after hearing on bill and exhibits, the bill does not show a proper case for relief,[99] though not if equity is apparent on the face of the bill though a demurrer might lie,[1] or if the defect may be cured by amendment.[2] A bill by creditors to set aside a fraudulent attachment should be dismissed as to nonresident defendants.[3] If the plea

87. Suit to quiet title—W. H. Taggart Mercantile Co. v. Clack (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 925.

88. Jordan v. Downs (Ga.) 45 S. E. 439.

89. Kammermeyer v. Hilz (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1107.

90. Where on a petition for enforcement of a mechanic's lien, issues were submitted to a jury as to whether notes reported by the auditor on reference of the account, to have been given by one of the defendants to petitioners were received and accepted in payment of the claim, the issue related only to the original receipt of the notes and did not determine that the petitioners had not received in so far the benefit of the notes that they should be charged against them, so that the refusal of the court to consider the whole question on the ground that the jury had determined it was error—Moore v. Jacobs, 182 Mass. 482.

91. Tapley v. Herman, 95 Mo. App. 537.

92. Stoner v. Mau (Wyo.) 72 Pac. 193.

93. He is entitled to a discontinuance on payment of costs where the case has not progressed so as to entitle defendant to decree and no other party has intervened—Forrest v. City Council of Charleston (S. C.) 43 S. E. 952. He may dismiss his bill after close of the evidence, the setting of the cause on the calendar, and an order by the court to stand for hearing but before the hearing, where defendant would be deprived of no substantial right accruing after commencement of the suit, and is entitled to no affirmative relief, though he may be subjected to a subsequent suit—Pennsylvania Globe Gaslight Co. v. Globe Gaslight Co., 121 Fed. 1015. Complainant in a suit for infringement of a patent may not discontinue after the taking of proofs at great expense to defendant, merely to re-try questions involved in a new suit—American Steel & Wire Co. v. Mayer & Englund Co., 121 Fed. 127.

94. Hellams v. Prior, 64 S. C. 543.

95. It cannot be had after decree on the merits on answer filed, unless for grounds sufficient for bill of review for error apparent on its face, or for an original bill to impeach it for fraud, or because of newly-discovered evidence—Snyder v. Middle States Loan, Bldg. & Const. Co., 52 W. Va. 655. Where an amendment to a petition was filed, to conform to the proof, and the decree was not rendered until more than seven months later, and no attempt was made by defendant to take any new testimony, the decree will not be set aside and re-hearing allowed for the introduction of further evidence, the character of which is not shown. Suit to remove cloud on title—South Chicago Brewing Co. v. Taylor (Ill.) 68 N. E. 732.

96. Allowance of voluntary dismissal of bill because of answer showing a set-off growing out of the subject matter of the bill and of such a character that an independent action thereon would be barred by limitation at the time the bill was dismissed but not when filed—Ex parte Jones, 133 Ala. 212.

97. Union Light & Power Co. v. Lichty, 42 Or. 563, 71 Pac. 1044.

98. Day v. National Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n of N. Y. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 779.

99. Bowie v. Smith (Md.) 55 Atl. 625; Wilson v. Derrwaldt, 100 Ill. App. 396. A bill will be dismissed where the record shows no justice or conscience in plaintiff's claim—Anthes v. Schroeder (Neb.) 92 N. W. 196. A decree dismissing a creditor's bill as to certain defendants is proper, where it appears by the evidence that they had purchased property of the debtor in good faith and paid for it without any knowledge of his debts—Benedict v. T. L. V. Land & Cattle Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 210.

1. West v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 852.

2. But dismissal will be denied where the bill may be amended by striking out a defective disjunctive averment (Taylor v. Dwyer, 131 Ala. 91). If it does not appear from the original bill that it can be amended so as to entitle complainant to relief, dismissal for want of equity will not be denied, nor the amendment considered as made—Tait v. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co., 132 Ala. 193.

3. Adair & Co. v. Feder, 133 Ala. 620.

is sustained by the proofs, the bill must be dismissed.[4] Dismissal of a bill by plaintiff without prejudice is in the discretion of the court to be allowed in consideration of the rights of both parties.[5] Dismissal of a bill cannot accompany refusal of a preliminary injunction where defendant has not demurred to the bill nor set down the case for hearing on bill and answer and a motion for preliminary injunction was the only matter before the court.[6] Where a defendant defaults and refuses to answer, dismissal of the bill cannot include him though proper as to other defendants.[7] Where the only issue on a bill by the donor of a trust to compel the trustee to refund on death of the beneficiary was plaintiff's right to the funds, the court cannot pass on the trustee's account on dismissal, and direct him to retain the funds for a certain beneficiary.[8] Failure in pleading and proof may be followed by dismissal in vacation without giving an opportunity to amend,[9] but a cross bill, insufficient for failure to join a necessary party defendant, cannot be dismissed on sustaining a demurrer without an opportunity to amend as to such party.[10] After the superior court has entered a final decree granting relief prayed for, it cannot dismiss the bill by decree at a subsequent term.[11] Dismissal of a bill carries the cross bill made up of an answer alleging a set-off not purely equitable in character, and insufficient to support an original bill;[12] but will not affect a cross-bill asking affirmative relief, though it carries with it a cross bill which is merely defensive in its character,[13] or an amended and a supplemental bill filed with the original bill where the order was without reference to the amended pleading, since it was made upon a defective record.[14] Dismissal of a cross bill for want of equity must be determined by inspection of the cross bill alone in its relation to the original bill assuming its statements to be true.[15]

(§ 9) C. Evidence and its introduction.[16]—Failure to object to evidence on its introduction will not prevent objection to relevancy on the final hearing.[17] A rule allowing three months for taking testimony after case is at issue means three calendar months excluding the day of filing the replication.[18] The usual equity practice is to try all cases on depositions.[19] A motion to reopen the cause before the master and allow defendants to introduce evidence may be granted, though, before the motion was made, notice was given that a change of venue would be asked.[20] Where the evidence as to material issues is conflicting, the court in its discretion may refuse relief.[21] Fraud need not be proved beyond a reasonable

4. Eveleth v. Southern Cal. R. Co., 123 Fed. 836.
5. Ebner v. Zimmerly (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 818.
6. Lyndall v. High School Committee, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 232.
7. Creditor's suit—Benedict v. T. L. V. Land & Cattle Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 210.
8. Scofield v. Peck, 182 Mass. 121.
9. Westbrook v. Hayes (Ala.) 34 So. 622.
10. Price v. Stratton (Fla.) 33 So. 644.
11. Ernst Tosetti Brewing Co. v. Koehler, 200 Ill. 369.
12. Ex parte Jones, 133 Ala. 212.
13. Price v. Stratton (Fla.) 33 So. 644.
14. In the appellate court of Virginia, the bill and amended and supplemental bill together constituted one record—Berliner Gramophone Co. v. Seaman (C. C. A.) 113 Fed. 750.
15. Woodruff v. Adair, 131 Ala. 530.
16. Sufficiency of evidence to support a decree locating a boundary line (Killgore v. Carmichael [Or.] 72 Pac. 637) in suit to enforce equitable lien for award for land taken for railroad right of way (Southern R. Co. v. Gregg [Va.] 43 S. E. 570) of fraud on the part of a national bank in the organization and operation of a corporation formed by complainant and stockholders and officers of the bank, rendering it liable to complainant on the contracts of such corporation—Edward P. Allis Co. v. Standard Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 55.
17. Suit for infringement of patent—Diamond Drill & Mach. Co. v. Kelly Bros., 120 Fed. 282.
18. Circuit Court Rule No. 71—Maxwell v. Jacksonville Loan & Imp. Co. (Fla.) 34 So 255.
19. Dickerson v. Askew (Miss.) 34 So. 157. The taking of oral proof on notice in a suit to foreclose a vendor's lien is not authorized by Code 1892, § 1764.
20. Brewster v. Cahill, 199 Ill. 309.
21. Blats v. Blats, 117 Ga. 165; Hardy v. Dyas, 203 Ill. 211. Prayer for injunctive relief—Leath v. Hinson, 117 Ga. 589. A de-doubt, circumstantial or presumptive evidence being sufficient.[22] Generally, one asking cancellation of an instrument for fraud must prove such fraud,[23] but if the instrument was secured by one in a fiduciary relation, the burden is on him to show it free from fraud.[24] Where the case has been submitted for final decree on the register's report and exceptions, the rules of chancery practice requiring the making of a note of testimony offered at the hearing did not apply.[25]

Verdict and findings.—The statute relating to findings of fact does not apply to equitable actions.[26] A mere opinion expressed by a judge of the federal circuit court on a question of fact is not a finding of facts in equity.[27] A special finding that certain ditches intercepted all waters flowing into a certain stream and diverted all its surface and subterranean waters is not in conflict with a general finding that there had been no actual increase to the stream by such ditches.[28] A verdict in a suit for concellation of a contract and deeds thereunder is sufficient where it refers to the description in the deed which is substantially the same as that in the petition and which fully identified the property.[29]

§ 10. Decree, judgment, or order. A. In general; requisites and sufficiency.[30] —A decree sustaining a demurrer to a bill is not defective, though it does not state on what ground it is sustained, if any one ground is well taken.[31] Where a petition contained all necessary averments of a bill and was answered by defendant, and the issues were tried by the court on evidence given the court having jurisdiction, its order and judgment amount to a decree in equity settling the accounts.[32] It is immaterial that the decree was not drawn or spread upon the records until after adjournment for the term, where it conforms to the findings announced orally after return of the verdict though somewhat more extensive in detail.[33]

(§ 10) B. Effect and construction.—A personal decree is of the same effect and rests on the same basis as a judgment at law.[34] Plaintiff is put out of the case by a decree for interpleader and the cause is ended by a decree determining the rights of various defendants.[35] An order directing a final decree to be entered in accord with the verdict is not conclusive that the jury's findings were adopted without modification.[36] A decree requiring defendant to do certain things and in default thereof directing a certain judgment to be rendered against him is none the less final because defendant defaulted and judgment required was then rendered;[37] but cree will not be disputed unless plainly wrong where the evidence relating to fraud, upon which it is founded, is conflicting—Sibley v. Stacey (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 420.

22. Knight v. Nease (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 414.

23. Mortimer v. McMullen, 102 Ill. App. 593.

24. Sheehan v. Erbe, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 176.

25. Rules 76, 77—Whetstone v. McQueen (Ala.) 34 So. 229.

26. White Crest Canning Co. v. Sims, 30 Wash. 374, 70 Pac. 1003.

27. Hendryx v. Perkins (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 268.

28. Buckers Irr. Mill. & Imp. Co. v. Farmers' Independent Ditch Co. (Colo.) 72 Pac. 49.

29. American Cotton Co. v. Collier (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1021.

30. Time for entry of final decree after amended bill—Bank of Bramwell v. White (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 287. Sufficiency of decree directing a sale of railroad property in foreclosure as determining the validity of a sub-contractor's lien under an issue raised by the pleadings though such issue had not been tried or had been left to be determined by subsequent reference to a master—Ferguson Contracting Co. v. Manhattan Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 791.

31. Adams v. Wilson (Ala.) 34 So. 831.

32. For allowance of claim against estate of a deceased partner filed in a territorial court—Esterly v. Rua (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 609.

33. Buckers Irr. Mill. & Imp. Co. v. Farmers' Independent Ditch Co. (Colo.) 72 Pac. 49.

34. Whalen v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281.

35. Duke, Lennon & Co. v. Duke & Woods, 93 Mo. App. 244.

36. Buckers Irr. Mill. & Imp. Co. v. Farmers' Independent Ditch Co. (Colo.) 72 Pac. 49.

37. Requiring that within five days defendant in a suit to subject certain lands conveyed to him to judgments held by the plaintiff should indorse, assign and transfer a promissory note to the clerk of the court to be held for the use and benefit of plaintiff until further order and in default judgment should be given for plaintiff for the face value of the note with interest and a decree settling rights of claimants to a fund, and directing the commissioner and receiver to bring in all funds not already brought in and report them to the court, is not a final decree.[38] Where the final decree entered shows that the court found the issues in favor of plaintiff, an inference must be drawn that the court found those facts in favor of him which were responsive to the issues and necessary to the decree unless the special findings show otherwise.[39] Where defendant in a suit fails to claim by any form of pleading the benefit of a statute constituting a defense before final decree is entered against him, he is barred thereafter by the principle of res judicata from setting up such defense.[40] A decree purporting to be final, and in effect for defendant on all points of the litigation, cannot retain the case for further adjudication, and so much of it as provides for further jurisdiction is void.[41] Only the consenting parties are bound by a consent decree; and an order entered by consent of all parties represented by counsel after close of the pleading and proofs and submission for final adjudication is binding on all parties appearing at time of the entry.[42]

(§ 10) C. Measure of relief.—No decree, even pro confesso, can be rendered unless on a proper pleading giving adequate facts,[43] and the decree must always conform to the allegations and prayer of the pleadings.[44] Discovery cannot be had on a for costs—Schneider v. Patton (Mo.) 75 S. W. 155.

38. Gunnell's Adm'rs v. Dixon's Adm'rs (Va.) 43 S. E. 340.

39. Buckers Irr. Mill. & Imp. Co. v. Farmers' Independent Ditch Co. (Colo.) 72 Pac. 49.

40. Defense of jury—Snyder v. Middle States Loan, Bldg. & Const. Co., 52 W. Va. 655.

41. City of St. Louis v. Crow, 171 Mo. 272. In creditors' suit against the defendant and one claimed to be his debtor on a mere money demand, if the debt is denied by the alleged debtor, the question of its existence cannot be tried, but complainant may obtain a discovery from such alleged debtor as to his indebtedness, and the right to an equitable lien to become effective when the debt shall be established in an action at law, and may also have a receiver appointed with authority to bring such an action—Hudson v. Wood, 119 Fed. 764.

42. Mylius v. Smith (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 542.

43. Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493; City of Orlando v. Equitable B. & L. Ass'n (Fla.) 33 So. 986. After overruling a general demurrer to a bill which contains matter proper for relief and other improper matter, a decree giving relief justifiable only on the improper matter should be reversed—Turner v. Stewart, 51 W. Va. 493. On a hearing on bill, answer and replication in a suit to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent, a decree adjudging the title to the land in controversy to be in defendants and constituting their homestead cannot be entered after it is shown that there is no equity in the bill—Ropes v. Jenerson (Fla.) 34 So. 955.

44. Where the allegations of the bill are sufficient to support a decree, it will stand though giving relief not specifically prayed for, where there is a general prayer for relief—Stewart v. Tennant, 52 W. Va. 559. If the proof and allegations of a bill are at variance, complainant cannot have a decree conforming to either, since relief must be granted on the case made by the bill—Baldwin v. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 206. Complainant cannot obtain damages in a suit for cancellation where he asked no legal relief though the facts show him to be entitled to it—Rubie Combination Gold Min. Co. v. Princess Alice Gold Min. Co. (Colo.) 71 Pac. 1121. Where an original petition asked judgment for the balance of the price of land conveyed, and then contained a general prayer for all proper general and equitable relief, cancellation of the deed may be had—Under Code Civ. Proc. § 90—Stephenson v. Stephenson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1873, 72 S. W. 742. While a party may have any relief to which he shows himself entitled under a general prayer, it must be consistent with and founded on the allegations of his bill regardless of the evidence produced—Schneider v. Patton (Mo.) 75 S. W. 155. A personal judgment against a defendant in a suit by a judgment creditor to subject lands of defendant to a certain judgment is unauthorized where the petition contains no allegations from which it may be gathered on what account a personal judgment would be asked—Schneider v. Patton (Mo.) 75 S. W. 155. Where a bill for foreclosure of a mortgage sets up no claim for attorney fees or alleges that such fees had been incurred by complainant and shows no expense in the employment of an attorney and contains no prayer for such allowance and the note and mortgage contain no stipulation for payment of such fees, they cannot be allowed in the decree—Lyle v. Winn (Fla.) 34 So. 158. Though a complaint in an action by one to quiet title to lots owned in severalty alleged that plaintiff deraigned title through a common source under a statute providing that several persons so claiming an interest in land may unite in an action to determine an adverse claim, yet where it appears that each owns his respective lot, a finding that they deraigned title through a common source is immaterial as regards an objection that no evidence has been given to support it, where the question of misjoinder was not raised by answer or demurrer, and the questions of jurisdiction and bill waiving a sworn answer.[45] Affirmative relief can only be granted a defendant on a cross bill.[46] A prayer for general relief, together with one for the appointment of a receiver only, will not be considered as for other relief than the appointment, unless the petition shows a cause of action for such relief.[47] The facts as they exist at the close of the suit must determine the relief given.[48] After a hearing on a bill, answer, and proofs, and the filing of findings of fact and conclusions of law, a final decree should be rendered on exceptions filed, and not a decree merely dismissing the exceptions.[49] Findings which may prejudice an action at law cannot be incorporated into a decree dismissing a bill.[50]

(§ 10) D. Modification and amendment; vacation and setting aside; collateral attack.—The statutory abolition of the writ of error coram nobis in favor of a motion authorizing the setting aside of a judgment for error of fact, at any time within five years, does not apply to decrees.[51] Where an order for appointment of a receiver is the only relief sought, it will be vacated for want of authority in the court.[52] A statute authorizing vacation of a judgment after the term on certain grounds does not apply to a proceeding in equity to vacate a judgment.[53] An interlocutory decree is under the control of the court and may be revised on the merits until entry of a final decree.[54] Mere modification will not destroy the character of a decree as final.[55] Where questions have been settled by final decree, and appeal therefrom has been refused, they cannot be reopened in the same litigation;[56] but an order for a decree is not affected by the rule that after entry of a final decree the court has no further power to deal with the case except on bill of review,[57] and after entry of a decree, it may, for good cause shown, be set aside or modified at the same term in the sound discretion of the court,[58] but at the next term it cannot be vacated[59] or modified, unless for ground sufficient for a bill of review for error apparent in the decree, or for newly-discovered evidence or for an original bill to impeach it as for fraud in procurement.[60] Laches will destroy the right to relief from a decree.[61] An infant may have a decree against him opened by original bill if he proceeds diligently after majority.[62] A decree improperly obtained will be set aside though the party against whose property it runs owes the person in whose favor it is rendered.[63] A decree entered in a case in which a certain person was not a party and of which the sufficiency of the complaint as stating a cause of action were waived because not taken by demurrer or answer—Construing Civ. Code Proc. §§ 381, 434—Dewey v. Parcells, 137 Cal. 305, 70 Pac. 174.

45. Tillinghast v. Chace, 121 Fed. 435. Where a bill contains no interrogatories and answer under oath is expressly waived, a prayer for discovery may be disregarded—Excelsior Wooden Pipe Co. v. City of Seattle (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 140.

46. Interstate B. & L. Ass'n v. Edgefield Hotel Co., 120 Fed. 422.

47. Mann v. German-American Inv. Co. (Neb.) 97 N. W. 600.

48. The rule that the right to judgment in actions of law always depends on facts as they exist when the action is commenced, does not apply in equity—Pennsylvania Co. v. Bond, 99 Ill. App. 535.

49. Russell v. Stewart, 204 Pa. 211.

50. Suit for cancellation of a note—Vannatta v. Lindley, 198 Ill. 40.

51. Ernst Tosetti Brew. Co. v. Koehler, 200 Ill. 369.

52. Mann v. German-American Inv. Co. (Neb.) 97 N. W. 600.

53. Code, §§ 4091-4094—Iowa Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Chase, 118 Iowa, 51.

54. Decree finding unfair competition and ordering accounting—Fairbank Co. v. Windsor (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 200.

55. Schneider v. Patton (Mo.) 75 S. W. 155.

56. Baker v. Watts (Va.) 44 S. E. 929.

57. White v. Gove (Mass.) 67 N. E. 359.

58. Matthews v. Tyree (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 526.

59. Not for fraud of complainant's solicitor in procuring its entry—Ernst Tosetti Brew. Co. v. Koehler, 200 Ill. 369.

60. Snyder v. Middle States Loan, Bldg. & Const. Co., 52 W. Va. 655.

61. After nine years a bill cannot be maintained to vacate a decree for fraud, where complainant knew of the decree during all the time and shows no excuse for delay—Hendryx v. Perkins (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 801.

62. Having the right by statute to show cause against the decree, he may do so though the ground is error apparent on the face of the decree—Stewart v. Tennant, 52 W. Va. 559.

63. Vanderpoel v. Knight, 102 Ill. App. 596.

he had no notice, though interested in the subject-matter, is absolutely void as to him and may be attacked collaterally.[64] Every reasonable intendment is in favor of the decree.[65]

Satisfaction, lien, and enforcement.—A decree for money may be enforced by the same remedies as a judgment at law.[66] An action may be brought to enforce a decree rendered in a foreign state awarding costs in favor of plaintiffs;[67] but not on a decree to which plaintiff was not a party, where it had been superseded by appeal to the supreme court when the action was commenced, and the decree had been reversed and the suit dismissed.[68]

§ 11. Bill of review.[69]—A bill of review to reverse a decree is barred by release of error therein.[70] A bill of review proper, or an original bill in the nature of a bill of review, must always be brought in the same court that rendered the decree sought to be reviewed; the application must be made there though the supreme court has subsequently affirmed the decree,[71] and leave must be obtained from the court, where the judgment was rendered and enrolled, to file a bill of review for newly-discovered matter,[72] or a supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review, but notice to parties before giving leave is in the discretion of the court.[73]

Time for bill and laches.—A bill to correct a final decree must be filed within a year after entry, and ignorance of the laws of a state will not excuse a foreign executor for failure to file within the year.[74] If for error of law or error on the face of the record, it must be brought within the statutory period for taking an appeal from the decree,[75] and if for newly-discovered matters, within a reasonable time,[76] but the rule does not apply to a bill to set aside a decree for accident, mistake, or surprise, where facts sufficient for such relief are alleged.[77] After nine years, a bill cannot be maintained where complainant had knowledge of the decree during all the time and the delay is not excused by sufficient facts.[78]

64. Holmes v. Columbia Nat. Bank (Neb.) 97 N. W. 26.

65. Where a complaint in a suit to set aside a decree for error apparent on the record averred that defendant's answer did not aver whether such answer contained new matter so as to show whether there was in fact more than one fund in controversy between the parties, it will be presumed in support of the decree that there was but one fund and that the question of date of deposit of such fund as set forth in the decree was immaterial—Garbade v. Frazier, 42 Or. 384, 71 Pac. 136.

66. Whalen v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281. Decrees may be enforced by a writ of capias ad satisfaciendum, under the Illinois statute, in any case where such writ would be proper at law (Hurd's Rev. St. c. 22, §§ 42, 47)—Whalen v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281.

67. Davis v. Cohn, 96 Mo. App. 587.

68. Riley Bros. Co. v. Melia (Neb.) 92 N. W. 913.

69. Under the chancery practice in Illinois there are four ways by which a decree may be reviewed for alleged error, viz.: By rehearing in the court that heard the case; by bill of review in the court of the original proceeding and decree; by appeal; and by writ of error—Mathias v. Mathias, 104 Ill. App. 344.

70. Ferrell v. Ferrell (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 187.

71. The superior court of Cook County, Illinois, cannot entertain a bill to review a decree entered in the circuit court of that county, under Const. 1870, art. 6, § 23, which recognizes two courts as different tribunals and Rev. St. c. 37, par. 27, fixing a different time for holding their terms—Mathias v. Mathias, 202 Ill. 125. Where a decree has been entered on the mandate of the appellate court leaving no question to be determined by the court below, the former court should determine the sufficiency of reasons on application for a bill of review though where matters material occurring in the court below after the decision of the cause are concerned or other sufficient reasons appear, the appellate court may send the whole inquiry or part thereof to the lower court for settlement—Keith v. Alger (C. C A.) 124 Fed. 32.

72. Camp Mfg. Co. v. Parker, 121 Fed. 195.

73. Thompson v. Schenectady R. Co., 119 Fed. 634.

74. Williams v. Starkweather (R. I.) 54 Atl. 931.

75. Chamberlin v. Peoria, etc., R. Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 32; Camp Mfg. Co. v. Parker, 121 Fed. 195.

76. Camp Mfg. Co. v. Parker, 121 Fed. 195. After a decision in the circuit court of appeals in North Carolina, a bill of review filed in the circuit court without leave of the former court must be considered, in determining the reasonableness of its time of filing, as filed on the day when leave to file was afterwards granted by the circuit court of appeals—Id.

77. Dewey v. Stratton (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 179

Grounds.—Matters going to the jurisdiction are not ground for a bill of review.[79] A bill of review will not lie for error of law not apparent on the face of the decree,[80] newly-discovered evidence, insufficient to warrant a reversal of the decree,[81] or which could by ordinary diligence have been discovered before the decree;[82] and accordingly the bill on that ground must be accompanied by testimony applicable to the allegations of the bill, so that the court can see from examination of the evidence and the bill that the result would be different on a retrial,[83] and a showing of diligence.[84] Allowance of a claim against a decedent's estate may be revised where persons interested appear and defend and set up the invalidity of the claim and its allowance is barred by limitations.[85] Where a decree sustaining a patent is entered after appeal, discovery by defendant of other patents raising the question of anticipation will not justify a bill of review unless some unusual circumstance appears.[86] Since reversal of a decree by a bill of review cannot affect the title of a purchaser under the decree, a bill seeking to set aside a sale of land under a decree in a proceeding for collection of taxes cannot give the relief sought.[87] Persons not parties, who are affected by a decree, should file a supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review to secure a modification of the decree.[88]

Application and proceedings.[89]—On a bill of review in the federal court to set aside a decree for newly-discovered evidence, diligence as well as the materiality of the evidence must be considered.[90] Leave by the federal supreme court, after affirming a decree of the circuit court, to apply to the latter for leave to file bill of review, removes the bar of the decree of the circuit court leaving the application to be determined by that court on its merits subject to appeal to the court having jurisdiction.[91] One securing dismissal of an appeal because a decree is not final cannot claim afterwards, on application for a bill of review, that such decree was final.[92] Where a bill of review is brought on a decree allowing a credit for services as an attorney on settlement of an administrator's accounts,

78. Hendryx v. Perkins (C. C. A.) 114 Fed. 801.

79. The bill will not lie for error in a decree in tax proceedings where it alleges as the main ground of relief that the chancellor had no jurisdiction—Donaldson v. Nealis, 108 Tenn. 638.

80. Garbade v. Frazier, 42 Or. 384, 71 Pac. 136.

81. Shaffer v. Shaffer, 51 W. Va. 126. It is insufficient if it merely shows the decree to have been technically wrong, and if presented on the hearing would have produced a different decision, but it must also appear that complainant therein is deprived of substantial equity by the decree entered. A decree setting aside the sale of lands to plaintiff and giving him judgment for the purchase money paid will not be set aside on bill of review because of newly discovered evidence that plaintiff had made a conveyance of the lands pending the suit, where it conclusively appears on the trial that the sale was secured by gross fraud and bribery of his agent, in result of which he was compelled to pay an excessive price for the lands, and defendants have suffered no loss of equity by such conveyance—Keith v. Alger (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 32. A bill cannot be maintained for newly discovered matter alleging fraud in concealing from complainant the actual amount in a tract of land where it appears that there was correspondence between the parties as to the amount of such land before the first suit and the opinion therein considered that subject—Camp Mfg. Co. v. Parker, 121 Fed. 195.

82. Baker v. Watts (Va.) 44 S. E. 929; Camp Mfg. Co. v. Parker, 121 Fed. 195.

83. Lewis v. Topsico, 201 Ill. 320.

84. If brought for evidence of witnesses residing in the same vicinity as the parties to the original suit, and by the same attorney who represented defendants in the original trial, there must be an affidavit or showing of diligence to obtain such facts at the trial, and an allegation of fact showing that they could not have been previously discovered—Lewis v. Topsico, 201 Ill. 320.

85. Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

86. Kissinger-Ison Co. v. Bradford Belting Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 91.

87. Donaldson v. Nealis, 108 Tenn. 638.

88. Thompson v. Schenectady R. Co., 119 Fed. 634.

89. A bill to vacate a decree for fraud in entry alleging that an agreement was collusively entered into by certain of the defendants to have a trust deed set aside, held not supported by evidence of a single fact showing fraud—Minor v. Minor, 204 Pa. 199.

90. Kissinger-Ison Co. v. Bradford Belting Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 91.

91. Board of Councilmen v. Deposit Bank (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 18.

92, 93. Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

whether the evidence supports the findings of fact on which the decree is founded cannot be considered, but only whether the expenses as a proper legal charge under the circumstances.[93]

ESCAPE.[1]

The offense.—An arrest from which an escape was made must have been legal,[2] and it is not an aiding of one detained on an "accusation" if he has been convicted.[3] Intent of a jailer is no part of "negligence" in permitting an escape,[4] otherwise if "misfeasance, malfeasance, or willful neglect" be laid,[5] and an "ignorant" act may fall without either word.[6]

Indictment and trial.—The crime for which imprisonment was adjudged may be alleged generally if the legality of detention be well pleaded.[7] Aiding an "intent to escape" is averred by the words "attempt to escape" which presuppose "intent."[8] A statute requiring an accused officer to show diligence to prevent an escape is satisfied by his showing that he hid the prisoner in a wood to foil lynchers who however effected a capture.[9]

ESCHEAT.

Escheat from alienage results on the death as an alien of one to whom the state had released a former escheat.[10] The state may release an escheat though the indirect result is to withdraw the estate from the statutes against perpetuities.[11] Statutes permitting aliens to take by succession to deceased aliens require the claimant to prove his right.[12] The state may, after they have acquired title to land, repeal laws respecting the inheritable capacity of aliens;[13] and when statutes giving such rights are amended and restricted to certain aliens, the lands of all other aliens again become liable to escheat.[14] Unclaimed money when it passes into a mere debt does not escheat as money.[15]

No proceedings are necessary to escheat a nonresident alien's lands,[16] but when proceedings are required, they must be within statutory limitations of time.[17] Fees of officers in such proceedings must be claimed below.[18]

ESCROWS.

A conditional delivery to a party to the contract does not create an escrow,[19] nor, strictly speaking, does a deposit of deeds with a third person with instruc-

1. Escape or attempts to do so may furnish inculpatory evidence against one charged with other crimes, but the forbearance of a prisoner to escape though he might has not a converse effect. See Indictment and Prosecution (Criminal Evidence).

2. People v. Hochstim, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 25.

3. Pen. Code, art. 229—Brannan v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 184.

4. Ky. St. § 1339—Lynch v. Com., 24 Ky. L. R. 2180, 73 S. W. 745.

5, 6. Ky. St. § 3748—Lynch v. Com., 24 Ky. L. R. 2180, 73 S. W. 745.

7, 8. State v. Daly, 41 Or. 515, 70 Pac. 706.

9. Direction of verdict of guilty held error—State v. Blackley, 131 N. C. 726. Evidence held to call for instruction on "ignorance" of a jailer suffering an escape—Lynch v. Com., 24 Ky. L. R. 2180, 73 S. W. 745.

10, 11. Richardson v. Amsdon, 85 N. Y. Supp. 342.

12. Hence that the alleged deceased alien was in fact such—Richardson v. Amsdon, 85 N. Y. Supp. 342. Evidence considered—Id.

13. The privilege of inheritance is an expectancy and not vested—Donaldson v. State (Ind.) 67 N. E. 1029.

14. The common law is revived—Donaldson v. State (Ind.) 67 N. E. 1029. The several statutes construed—Id.

15. Union Trust Co. v. Glover (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 436.

16. Richardson v. Amsdon, 85 N. Y. Supp. 342.

17, 18. 40 years after death of a legatee who died before testator who was last seized is too late (Act May 20, 1889)—In re Bousquet's Estate, 206 Pa. 534.

19. Delivery by tenant of lease and rent notes to an agent of the landlord, accompanied by a condition, that in case a proposed sale of the land to the tenant was consummated they were to be returned—Bemis v. Allen (Iowa) 93 N. W. 50.

tions that they be delivered to the grantee on his coming into being or of age or on the grantor's death.[20]

The escrow is irrevocable after performance of the condition by the other party. Prior to such time it may be revoked if not on an independent consideration.[21]

Where the language of the condition is ambiguous, the surrounding circumstances and conditions may be considered in determining the intent of the parties.[22] If the condition is never fulfilled, the deed is not operative,[23] though delivered,[24] and delivery cannot be demanded.[25]

ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

§ 1. Necessity or occasion for administration and the kinds thereof.—Administration by personal representatives must be had to confer jurisdiction on courts

20. Grantor's death. Deeds intended as advancements to grand-children, delivered by a grand-father to his daughter, are held by her as bailee—McKnight v. Reed (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 318. Such a delivery is sufficient however to pass title if with intent to relinquish furher control—McKnight v. Reed (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 318; Schreckhise v. Wiseman (Va.) 45 S. E. 745; Tarlton v. Griggs, 131 N. C. 216; Seifert v. Seifert (Kan.) 71 Pac. 271. Deposit to be delivered at grantor's death sufficient though depositary would have returned them to the grantor and did deliver one deed to the grantee before the grantor's death at his request—White v. Watts, 118 Iowa, 549. Sufficient that deeds to be delivered to grantees at grantor's death are left with grantee's representative, and grantor relinquishes all control and right to alter disposition of property—Bogan v. Swearingen, 199 Ill. 454. Delivery to a third person with intent to retain the right to recall it until the grantor's death, as evidenced by advertising the property for sale is not sufficient to allow title to pass to the grantee on delivery to him after the grantor's death—Johnson v. Johnson, 24 R. I. 571. Deposit of the deed to be delivered after the grantor's death does not waive consideration expressed to be care of grantor by grantees, his children, until his death —Culy v. Upham (Mich.) 97 N. W. 405. Grantee's existence or maturity. A deed delivered to a person to be delivered to the grantee on its coming into being does not pass title until the final delivery as deed delivered to promoters of a grantee corporation to be delivered to the corporation when completely organized—Santaquin Min. Co. v. High Roller Min. Co., 25 Utah, 282, 71 Pac. 77. Otherwise where conditioned on grantee coming of age. Delivery to be kept until grantee came of age without reservation of control is sufficient—Marshall v. Hartzfelt, 98 Mo. App. 178. See Deeds of Conveyance for effect of postponing operation till grantor's death as determining character of instrument as testamentary or otherwise.

21. Evidence held to show compliance by creditors with an agreement by which conveyance of property was to be deposited in escrow in settlement of firm debts to be delivered in case the creditors surrendered over estates of decedents,[26] though it is not absolutely necessary to probate the estates of all decedents,[27] as where there are no debts against decedent,[28] since in such case the heirs may distribute the estate between themselves,[29] but only the parties who sign the agreement to distribute without administration are bound thereby.[30] Administration may be had on the estate of one presumed to be dead from a continued absence for a specified time.[31]

In some states, the time in which administration can be had has been fixed by statute,[32] which has been held to apply to administration de bonis non as well as to principal administration.[33]

Ancillary administration may be had on property brought into the state in good faith and in the ordinary course of business after the death of a nonresident decedent,[34] but not where it is in the possession of the domiciliary appointee temporarily within the state.[35]

Administration de bonis non can be had only where a vacancy occurs in the principal administration with assets unadministered,[36] as by the death of the principal representative[37] or his discharge after final settlement of his accounts.[38] Appointment and qualification as administrator de bonis non operates as a relinquishment of original letters to the same appointee.[39] However, an appoint-their evidences of indebtedness—Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Jones, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 534. Deeds deposited to be delivered at the grantor's death may be withdrawn by him if such is the intent at the time of deposit. Evidence held to justify such withdrawal over the objection of the grantees, sons of the grantor who claimed that the deeds were executed in consideration of their leasing the land until the father's death—Everts v. Everts (Iowa) 94 N. W. 496.

22. Construction of condition for delivery of stock in mining corporation on determination of ownership of property sold the corporation in return for the stock—Clarke v. Eureka County Bank, 123 Fed. 922.

23. Deed of re-conveyance placed in escrow by a grantee in an absolute conveyance to secure a debt conditioned for delivery on payment of the debt—Fitch v. Miller, 200 Ill. 170.

24. Passes no title to grantee or bona fide purchaser from him, as against grantor—Mays v. Shields (Ga.) 45 S. E. 63.

25. Stock delivered in escrow to be held until a question of ownership is determined cannot be demanded before such determination—Clarke v. Eureka County Bank, 123 Fed. 922.

26. An action cannot be maintained to recover a legacy against the representative of a deceased co-legatee who took the estate without administration—Mitchell v. Mitchell, 132 N. C. 350.

27. Gwinn v. Melvin (Idaho) 72 Pac. 961. Under Laws S. D. 1901, p. 201, c. 123, § 2 the county court can take possession and apply assets of certain intestates without the appointment of an administrator—Smith v. Terry Peak Miners' Union (S. D.) 94 N. W. 694.

28. Waterhouse v. Churchill, 30 Colo. 415, 70 Pac. 678. Administration is necessary upon the estate of a married woman to protect creditors—McCarthy v. McCarthy, 20 App. D. C. 195.

29. Waterhouse v. Churchill, 30 Colo. 415, 70 Pac. 678; Gwinn v. Melvin (Idaho) 72 Pac. 961. A complaint in an action to recover a chose in action allowed to one of the distributees setting out such a division held sufficient—Granger v. Harriman (Minn.) 94 N. W. 869. Equitable relief, where by a mistake the interests of the heirs of an intestate were ignored in a settlement without administration—Hutchison v. Fuller (S. C.) 45 S. E. 164.

30. Dauel v. Arnold, 201 Ill. 570.

31. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 2385, etc., relating to the administration of the estates of absentees. An administration under this statute will not be affected by the fact that the absentee is still alive—Romy v. State (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 998.

32. An application is barred after a lapse of four years under Rev. St. 1887, § 4060; such a proceeding being an action within §§ 4020 & 4080—Gwinn v. Melvin (Idaho) 72 Pac. 961. After such time has elapsed a stranger cannot by procuring letters subject realty to the payment of his claim—Cummings v. Lynn (Iowa) 96 N. W. 857.

33. Act March 15, 1832—In re Hanbest's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 427.

34. If brought in for the purpose of securing a resident plaintiff to prosecute an action for negligence the appointment will not be made—Hoes v. New York, etc., R. Co., 173 N. Y. 435.

35. In re McCabe, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 145.

36. Ala. Code, § 111—Sands v. Hickey (Ala.) 33 So. 827. The executor of the deceased executor does not become the representative of the estate in trust by operation of law—Jepson v. Martin, 116 Ga. 772. Where the residuary legatee failed to pay a specific legacy, but had procured a discharge from the probate court without notice to the legatee, an administrator de bonis non may be appointed under Comp. Laws, § 9334—Cole v. Shaw (Mich.) 96 N. W. 573.

37. Cushman v. Albee, 183 Mass. 108. In Alabama the power of the husband as administrator in right of marriage ceases with the wife's death—Sands v. Hickey (Ala.) 33 So. 827.

38, 39. Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646.

ment before a vacancy actually occurs has only the effect of an excess of power and is not void in toto.[40]

§ 2. Jurisdictions and courts controlling administration.—Residence and situs of property govern the jurisdiction of the probate courts of particular counties to administer,[41] though the existence of assets is not essential to confer jurisdiction to appoint an administrator.[42] In case of nonresident decedents administration can be had only where assets are within the state,[43] though under the statutes of Utah this is held not to be the rule.[44] Where assets within the jurisdiction are essential, it has been held that it is sufficient if they were brought within the state in good faith after the death of decedent,[45] but not if brought in by the domiciliary representative for temporary purposes;[46] nor is a recognizance bond property within the state.[47]

While the court having power to appoint personal representatives has jurisdiction to determine disputed jurisdictional facts[48] the mere fact that the court granted administration is not conclusive evidence of jurisdiction.[49]

§ 3. The persons who administer and their letters. A. Selection and nomination.—It is not essential that the applicant be a resident of the state.[50] A divorced wife cannot administer the estate of her deceased former husband.[51] The trustee in bankruptcy of an heir entitled to share may be appointed,[52] and the public administrator will be preferred to a relative not entitled to share in the estate.[53] A person who is prosecuting a pending action against an estate is not a proper person.[54] Objections to the disposition of the appointee executor and his moral character are not necessarily sufficient to withhold letters of administration.[55]

Laches in applying for appointment by the person entitled thereto is a waiver of his preference,[56] and an agreement on consideration of the relinquishment of the right to administer is void as against public policy.[57]

(§ 3) B. Procedure to obtain administration and grant of letters.—An unverified petition unsupported by evidence is insufficient on which to base the application.[58]

The subsequent discovery of a will merely renders the appointment of an administrator as in case of intestacy voidable.[59]

40. Sands v. Hickey (Ala.) 33 So. 827.

41. Ewing v. Mallison, 65 Kan. 484, 70 Pac. 369. The statute relating to the administration on the estates of absentees confers jurisdiction on the county wherein the property of the absentees is situated irrespective of their last residence—Romy v. State (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 998.

42. Holburn v. Pfanmiller's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1613, 71 S. W. 940.

43. Wright v. Roberts, 116 Ga. 194.

44. Rev. St. 1898, § 3774—In re Tasanen's Estate, 25 Utah, 396, 71 Pac. 984.

45. Hoes v. New York, etc., R. Co., 173 N. Y. 435.

46. In re McCabe, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 145.

47. Filer v. Rainey, 120 Fed. 718.

48. The surrogate in New Jersey may determine the residence of decedent when residence is contested—In re Russell's Estate, 64 N. J. Eq. 313.

49. Ewing v. Mallison, 65 Kan. 484, 70 Pac. 369.

50. Foley v. Cudahy Packing Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 284.

51. In re Swales' Estate, 172 N. Y. 651. She cannot set up the invalidity of the decree which she obtained in a foreign state, (In re Swales' Estate, 172 N. Y. 651) but she is not barred of her right to administer by a foreign decree in favor of the deceased obtained on the same grounds for which she obtained a prior decree of separation in the state of the application for administration. Her decree barred action in the foreign state based on the same cause —In re Heins' Estate, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 31.

52. Mich. Comp. Laws 1897, § 9324—Osmun v. Galbraith (Mich.) 92 N. W. 101.

53. So held where decedent left a surviving non-resident parent, under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 6669—In re Gilchrist's Estate, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 637.

54. Cogswell v. Hall (Mass.) 67 N. E. 638.

55. Saxe v. Saxe (Wis.) 97 N. W. 187.

56. A delay of nearly three years by the husband after the death of his wife, to apply, and then merely appearing in an objection to an application by another, is a waiver—In re Sutton's Estate, 31 Wash. 340, 71 Pac. 1012.

57. In re Lewis' Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 393.

58. In re Pina's Estate, 138 Cal. XIX, 71 Pac. 171.

The grant of letters is conclusive until revoked in a direct proceeding or an appeal[60] as to the competency of the appointee[61] or the existence of a vacancy in the principal administration at the time of the appointment de bonis non;[62] and while it may be collaterally attacked for want of jurisdiction[63] or fraud[64] yet all presumptions are in favor of jurisdiction.[65]

The effect of an appeal from an appointment of an administrator is to oust the jurisdiction of the appointing court in the proceeding.[66]

(§ 3) C. Security or bond.—An executor is entitled to notice of an application to compel him to give bond.[67] If he is also residuary legatee he should not be required to give security to return an inventory.[68] In a proceeding by the sureties to be released if the administrator files an account and a new bond the order may be entered without further citation to the persons interested in the estate, the account not being objected to by the surety.[69] A representative's bond, though not in statutory form may be held valid as a common-law bond.[70]

(§ 3) D. Removals.—Generally, the power of removal is discretionary.[71] Misconduct in office or jeopardy of the estate are grounds for removal,[72] but mere accident in delaying to file an inventory within the proper time,[73] or a temporary residence without the state,[74] is not; nor will the representative be removed where it would affect the estate adversely,[75] and instead of revoking letters testamentary, the executor may be required to give bond.[76]

The court is not required to suspend the powers of a representative pending proceedings for his removal,[77] and an appointment of an administrator pendente

59. Under Code Ala. § 113—Sands v. Hickey (Ala.) 33 So. 827.

60. The probate court of one county cannot while an appointment in another county is in force appoint an administrator—In re Davison's Estate (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 373. While a decree granting letters of administration to an executor stands, the probate court has no power to grant letters to a co-executor—Cogswell v. Hall (Mass.) 67 N. E. 638.

61. Larson v. Union Pac. R. Co. (Neb.) 97 N. W. 313. It will be presumed that the appointing court had before it the written request of the persons entitled to an administrator that the public administrator be appointed—McCooey v. New York, etc., R. Co., 182 Mass. 205.

62. Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646; Sands v. Hickey (Ala.) 33 So. 827.

63. Ewing v Mallison, 65 Kan. 484, 70 Pac. 369; Barney v. Babcock's Estate, 115 Wis. 409; McCooey v. New York, etc., R. Co., 182 Mass. 205. The question of jurisdiction as dependent upon residence of deceased may be raised collaterally—Ewing v. Mallison, 65 Kan. 484, 70 Pac. 369. The decision of the Orphan's Court that the widow's release was obtained by fraud is not res judicata—In re Myers' Estate, 205 Pa. 413.

64. So held as to an ancillary appointment where assets of a nonresident decedent were brought within the state merely for the purpose of procuring a resident plaintiff to prosecute an action for negligence—Hoes v. New York, etc., R. Co., 173 N. Y. 435.

65. Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646; Jepson v. Martin, 116 Ga. 772; McCooey v. New York, etc., R. Co., 182 Mass. 205.

66. After an appeal from the county to the district court, the county court is without jurisdiction to adjudge the appointee in contempt for agreeing as administrator to change venue to another county though it had appointed him temporary administrator pending the appeal—Ex parte Robertson (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 859. See further the title Appeal & Review, ante.

67. State v. Clark, 24 R. I. 470.

68. State v. Clark, 24 R. I. 470. So provided by many statutes [Editor].

69. In re Sogaard's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 519.

70. Awtrey v. Campbell (Ga.) 45 S. E. 301.

71. Clancy v. McElroy, 30 Wash. 567, 70 Pac. 1095.

72. As where the administratrix permitted the most valuable asset, a liquor store, to be sold under a chattel mortgage under an arrangement whereby one who had been in her employ became a purchaser and executed a new chattel mortgage and assisted in procurement of renewal of a lease to the same person, and carried on the business in his name with her assistance and for her benefit—In re Heyen's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 511. Or delay in administration coupled with the filing of a petition in voluntary bankruptcy—In re Truesdell's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 336.

73. Clancy v. McElroy, 30 Wash. 567, 70 Pac. 1095.

74. New York Civ. Proc. § 268, subd. 6, authorizes revocation of letters testamentary, where the executor "has moved" from the state—In re McKnight, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 284.

75. Succession of Willis, 109 La. 281.

76. Under N. Y. Code Civ. Proc § 2472, subd. 2, § 2481—In re Wischmann, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 520.

77. In re Healy's Estate, 137 Cal. 474, 70 Pac. 455.

lite should be made only where there is some reasonable ground to apprehend that in the absence of such an appointment a loss will occur to the estate.[78]

The objection that the party had no capacity to petition for the removal must be raised by demurrer.[79]

An order on a petition for the revocation of letters of administration being appealable[80] it will be conclusively presumed to have been made on sufficient evidence and not ordinarily subject to collateral attack.[81]

§ 4. The authority, title, interest, and relationship of personal representatives. A. In general.—If the appointee executor and trustee merely qualifies as the former, he holds the property as executor,[82] and his duties and functions as such continue until his final account has been filed and settled.[83] A discharge[84] or death terminates his relationship.[85] The administrator de bonis non succeeds to all the rights of the appointee.[86]

In the absence of contrary evidence, the execution of a writing as administrator is prima facie proof of authority of the signer as representative,[87] and in the case of a widow signing as administratrix it will be presumed to have been as administratrix of the estate of her deceased husband.[88]

(§ 4) B. Contracts, charges, and investments.—Generally, an executor[89] or an administrator in his capacity as such cannot bind the estate by an original undertaking on his part;[90] and if not binding on the estate, it cannot be enforced against the heirs.[91] A contract signed "A. Estate B, Administrator," is the individual obligation of the administrator.[92] An assignment by a personal representative as such does not necessarily pass any interest which he may have personally in the subject-matter.[93]

78. Pending an appeal to the prerogative court from an order removing an executor, such court has jurisdiction to appoint an administrator pendente lite—In re Marsh's Estate (N. J. Prerog.) 55 Atl. 299.

79. In re Tasanen's Estate, 25 Utah, 396, 71 Pac. 984.

80. In re Tasanen's Estate, 25 Utah, 396, 71 Pac. 984; In re Sutton's Estate, 31 Wash. 340, 71 Pac. 1012.

81. A temporary injunction restraining the co-administrator from taking possession under an order removing his co-executor and directing such surrender will be dissolved—Howell v. Dinneen (S. D.) 94 N. W. 698.

82. Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246.

83. Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246. A final settlement and distribution is not conclusive that he has ceased to be executor—Whetstone v. McQueen (Ala.) 34 So. 229.

84. The authority of an agent of a personal representative terminates upon the discharge of the representative as such—Upton v. Dennis (Mich.) 94 N. W. 728.

85. McClellan v. Mangum (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 840.

86. Goodwynne v. Bellerby, 116 Ga. 901.

87. Murray v. Barden, 132 N. C. 136.

88. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Gipe (Ind.) 65 N. E. 1034.

89. By the mere execution by renewal of a promissory note, a new promise is not created to pay the original note executed by decedent—Hughes v. Treadaway, 116 Ga. 663. The execution of a promissory note by an executrix also life tenant under the will is not binding on the estate—Whitten v. Bank of Fincastle, 100 Va. 546. Without authorization by the will or order of court, an executor has no power to bind the estate by borrowing money for its use—Rice v. Strange, 24 Ky. L. R. 1945, 72 S. W. 756. Under a mere power given to executors to keep property together for a specified term of years they have not power to consent to a mortgage by one of the heirs on his undivided interest—Garman v. Hawley (Mich.) 93 N. W. 871. Under power to "handle, manage and control the estate, and to sell, realize and convey, by deed or other conveyance * * * in such a manner as may seem right and proper," the executor had power to transfer a purchase money note belonging to the estate, as collateral security for money borrowed by him—Prieto v. Leonards (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 41. The question whether the executor had power to employ assistants or agents cannot be determined in an action to construe the will, but must be determined on the accounting of the executor—Russell v. Hilton, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 178. An executor who was personally liable on notes, the principal assets of the estate, may loan the amount thereof in consideration of another becoming his surety and as indemnity, to be paid to the estate when it could be settled which was not until the death of the widow—Brown's Ex'r v. Dunn's Estate (Vt.) 55 Atl. 364.

90. Craig v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 640.

91. Contract with an attorney for services to be rendered the estate—In re Bruning's Estate (Iowa) 96 N. W. 780.

92. And in an action thereon a pleading of plene administravit is an insufficient answer—Glisson v. E. A. Weil & Co., 117 Ga. 842.

93. Richtmyer v. Lasher, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 574.

An administrator may employ as counsel for the estate an attorney for one of the heirs in a suit between the heirs.[94] If authorized to sell under a will the executor may employ an agent to make the sale and agree to compensate him therefor.[95]

The court having jurisdiction of the estate may authorize[96] or direct the personal representative of a deceased person to perform a contract entered into by deceased during his life,[97] and the heirs are necessary parties where a contract of sale of realty is sought to be enforced.[98] Specific performance of a contract of sale may be enforced by the representatives of the deceased vendor[99] or they may exercise the contracted option to rescind.[1]

To continue decedents' business for other than the purpose of reduction to money there must be an express authorization in the will;[2] an oral request of the decedent before his death is insufficient.[3] If the will directs the sole surviving partner to continue the business, the personal representative of the deceased partner and such survivor become partners and liable as such,[4] but if an executor voluntarily continues the business of the deceased he will be charged to account for only the net profits.[5]

Generally, the making of improvements on realty by executors[6] or investments as the purchase of realty at their own foreclosure sale, should only be done on leave of court.[7]

(§ 4) C. Title, interest, or right in decedents' property.—The title to all personalty passes to the domiciliary representative no matter where situated.[8] Ordinarily an administrator has no rights in the lands of a decedent who left heirs except to subject them to the payment of decedent's debts,[9] nor is he under obligation to take possession until it is necessary for the protection of creditors[10] or until an order has been entered directing him to take possession,[11] which can be granted only when it is necessary for the payment of debts,[12] and which applies

94. In re Healy's Estate, 137 Cal. 474, 70 Pac. 455.

95. Ingham v. Ryan (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 899.

96. Contract for sale of realty—May v. Boyd, 97 Me. 398.

97. Fitzsimmons v. Lindsay, 205 Pa. 79; In re Huggins' Estate, 204 Pa. 167. No matter what the form of the application to the court may be, whether in the nature of a bill in equity or not—Wheeler v. Wheeler, 105 Ill. App. 48.

98. A decree made in such a proceeding to which the heir is not a party, may be collaterally attacked on such ground—Holmes v. Columbia Nat. Bank (Neb.) 97 N. W. 26. Recitals in such a decree will not be extended to include other than record parties—Id. Relief granted in such a proceeding—Id.

99. In the absence of fraud and collusion and unless the property is homestead, any allegation of the personal representative of the deceased vendor in suit for specific performance is binding on all persons interested in the estate, e. g., an allegation that the property is homestead—Solt v. Anderson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 205. The decree should direct payment of the purchase money to the heirs—Id.

1. Oakes v. Gillilan (Neb.) 95 N. W. 511.

2. In re Peck, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 296.

3. In re McCollum, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 362.

4. City Nat. Bank v. Stone (Mich.) 92 N. W. 99.

5. In re Peck, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 296.

6. Improvement approved though made without leave of the court—Henry v. Henderson (Miss.) 33 So. 960.

7. An order granting such authority held to limit the bid by the executors to an amount equal to the face of the note secured by the mortgage—Warfield v. Hume, 91 Mo. App. 541.

8. In re McCabe, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 145.

9. Halstead v. Coen (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 957. He cannot therefore maintain a bill to quiet title—Bailey v. Larrance, 104 Ill. App. 662. It is the duty of the administrator to pay taxes and insurance, and spend money in repairing the realty—State v. Taylor (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 1032. Before assignment of dower the widow is entitled to possession of the real estate on which deceased had given a trust deed which covenanted that he should remain in possession until default in payment. Particularly where she is the administratrix of deceased grantor, since as such she is the holder of the term of years created by the covenant—Wilkes v. Wilkes, 18 App. D. C. 90.

10. Tunnicliffe v. Fox (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1032.

11. Johnson v. McKinnon (Fla.) 34 So. 272. If he has not been in possession or directed to take possession by the court, he cannot defend in ejectment—Finlayson v. Love (Fla.) 33 So. 306.

12. Where there is no showing that the personal estate was insufficient to pay debts, to a temporary administrator appointed pending the contest of the will.[13] He cannot therefore maintain an action to avoid a fraudulent conveyance by decedent until there is a deficiency in assets.[14] An administrator has no interest or possessory rights in homestead lands of the deceased,[15] but until the widow's homestead is set apart and segregated, the widow as executrix is entitled to the control of the entire track.[16] The possession of realty by an administrator is not adverse to the heirs.[17]

The personal representative has the same but no better title than his decedent had[18] which vests by relation from the time of death[19] and he holds the property in trust for all the creditors.[20]

Possession of personalty by the heirs before the appointment is not wrongful.[21]

§ 5. The property; its collection, management and disposal by personal representatives. A. Assets.—Jewelry, such as a watch, watch-chain, watch-charm, rings, and diamonds, are assets.[22] Insurance money received under a policy payable to the estate of the deceased is ordinarily an asset.[23] The recovery for injuries resulting in death by the representative is not generally considered assets.[24] Income accruing on a life estate prior to the death of the life tenant are assets of his estate.[25] A recovery for injuries to the realty paid after the death of the remainderman are assets of his estate subject to the life estate.[26] A right of action to recover for a trespass on realty during the life of the owner is an asset passing to his representative on his death.[27] Unpaid purchase money passes to the administrator of the deceased vendor as personalty[28] even if the contract of orders authorizing the administrator to complete buildings commenced by the deceased and to take charge of the improved real estate, and to insure buildings thereon, are void, and the administrator will not be allowed the expenses therein as credits, but will not be charged with rents accruing after death collected by him—Langston v. Canterbury, 173 Mo. 122.

13. Union Trust Co. v. Soderer, 171 Mo. 675.

14. Bagley v. Harmon, 91 Mo. App. 22. But under Mass. Pub. Sts. c. 134, § 15, the representative must first obtain possession by entry or action and sell within a year after possession—Tyndale v. Stanwood, 182 Mass. 534. The heirs have no right to avoid an executed gift by the deceased ancestor, though it was procured by fraud or undue influence—Bishop v. Leonard, 123 Fed. 981.

15. Finlayson v. Love (Fla.) 33 So. 306.

16. Cammack v. Rogers (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 945.

17. And if he passed possession to his wife and continued to reside thereon, there is no visible change of possession—Ashford v. Ashford, 136 Ala. 631.

18. Lahey v. Broderick (N. H.) 55 Atl. 354.

19. Flynn v. Flynn, 183 Mass. 365.

20. Though the estate is administered under a will free from the control of the county court—Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Bell (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 570.

21. Hardy v. Wallis, 103 Ill. App. 141.

22. Coffinberry v. Madden, 30 Ind. App. 360.

23. Pietri v. Seguenot, 96 Mo. App. 258. Evidence in an action by an administrator held sufficient to show that a policy of insurance held by a creditor of the decedent was taken out to secure the creditor and not by the creditor in his own right—Strode v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 379. Evidence held sufficient to show a policy of insurance an asset of the estate—Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Opper, 75 Conn. 295. The application for insurance contained a direction to pay on death to the person whom the applicant would name in his will, and the policy was made payable to the deceased, his personal representatives or assigns, held that the policy was assets and the legatee was entitled to the surplus proceeds after the payment of the debts of the estate of insured—Leonard v. Harney, 173 N. Y. 352.

Statute governs in N. Y. as to fraternal and mutual benefit insurance.

24. See Woerner, Adm'n, § 306, p. 647; and subject Death by Wrongful Act, ante, p. 865. The general administrator of a deceased person is the proper party to maintain an action to recover for the wrongful death of the decedent—Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Charman (Ind.) 67 N. E. 923. An administratrix has authority to compromise a claim for wrongful death of her deceased husband without leave of court—Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Gipe (Ind.) 65 N. E. 1034. The administratrix and sole distributee may compromise an action brought by her to recover for the wrongful death of the intestate's husband—Mattoon Gas Light Co. v. Dolan, 105 Ill. App. 1.

25. People's Nat. Bank v. Cleveland, 117 Ga. 908.

26. De Witt v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 10.

27. Code 1892, §§ 1916, 1917. Heirs cannot sue therefor—Conklin v. Alabama & R. R. Co. (Miss.) 32 So. 920.

28. Clapp v. Tower, 11 N. D. 556; Solt v. Anderson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 205. In the hands of an officer under a sale under execution prior to the death of decedent—Carr v. Berry, 116 Ga. 372.

sale with deceased was renewed by his representative;[29] but if the land is the homestead of the deceased vendor his administrator is entitled only to the surplus over the statutory limit.[30] Though the executor be given power of sale, rents accruing subsequent to the death of the decedent are not assets.[31] Under a deed of trust by decedent whereby he was to receive the income during life and on his death the trustee was to pay over to "his heirs, executors, or administrators (the remainder) as the same may in and by the law be provided" the trustor's executor is entitled to the remainder.[32]

While the representative as such has no interest in property held by deceased in trust though he was one of the beneficiaries,[33] it not being an asset,[34] yet he is entitled to possession of such property.[35] The presumption is that a judgment in favor of a representative as such is his personal judgment but is subject to be removed by slight evidence showing that it was in fact a judgment in favor of the estate.[36]

(§ 5) B. Collection and reduction to possession.—The personal representative being entitled to the possession of personalty can alone sue to recover;[37] the heirs being entitled to sue only when there is no necessity for administration,[38] though they may be made parties to an action to recover assets procured from the deceased by fraud.[39] The representative of a deceased legatee may enforce a provision in the testator's will directing the payment of the legatee's debts.[40] The personal representative is not estopped to claim restitution of property sold under a void execution merely because he was present and purchased at the sale,[41] nor is he estopped to claim title because he took possession as representative.[42] A representative can compromise a debt due the estate only on leave obtained.[43]

Only unadministered assets vests in the administrator de bonis non[44] to recover which he may sue his predecessors,[45] but personalty mingled with the ad-

29. Clapp v. Tower, 11 N. D. 556.

30. Solt v. Anderson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 205.

31. Bittle v. Clement (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 138. Rents and profits of realty which had descended to an intestate held not such assets which would pass to the administrator —Appeal of Ward, 75 Conn. 598.

32. Heintz v. Hoover, 138 Cal. 372, 71 Pac. 447.

33. In an action against him for an accounting of the rents and profits, the judgment should be against him personally—Anderson v. Northrop (Fla.) 33 So. 419.

34. In re Belt's Estate, 29 Wash. 535, 70 Pac. 74.

35. But is liable to account to the beneficiary in his individual or representative capacity—In re Belt's Estate, 29 Wash. 535, 70 Pac. 74. The representative of a deceased public officer who died in possession of funds coming to him by virtue of his office which he had mingled with personal funds, is entitled to the possession thereof for the purposes of administration—O'Brien v. New England Trust Co., 183 Mass. 186. In Vermont, the probate court may direct the representatives to convey property held by the deceased in trust to the person entitled thereto. Property purchased by the husband and deeded to the wife is not such a trust as would confer jurisdiction to the probate court to direct the deceased wife's representatives to convey—Wilder's Ex'x v. Wilder (Vt.) 53 Atl. 1072.

36. Sufficiency of evidence to rebut the presumption—Dozier v. McWhorter, 117 Ga. 786.

37. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 132 N. C. 350. The widow cannot sue to recover property alleged to have been transferred by the deceased husband in fraud of her marital rights—Flynn v. Flynn, 183 Mass. 365. The heirs cannot sue to recover for trespass to personalty committed during decedent's life—Conklin v. Alabama & V. R. Co. (Miss.) 32 So. 920. Evidence in an action to recover assets held sufficient to warrant the submission of the cause to the jury—Motz v. Motz, 82 N. Y. Supp. 926.

38. Sun Life Ins. Co. v. Phillips (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 603.

39. Keys v. McDermott (Wis.) 93 N. W. 553; Gay v. Mooney, 67 N. J. Law, 687.

40. Such a direction is in the nature of a legacy—Hallock v. Hallock, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 508.

41. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 957—Black v. Vermont Marble Co., 137 Cal. 683, 70 Pac. 776.

42. In re Belt's Estate, 29 Wash. 535, 70 Pac. 74.

43. The surrogate has power to allow a compromise of a claim by accepting stock in a foreign corporation to which the property in dispute was to be transferred which was in possession of one claiming right thereto as surviving partner of the deceased—In re Gilman's Estate, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 186.

44. Meservey v. Kalloch, 97 Me. 91.

45. Such an administrator is not within Rev. St. Me. 72, §§ 10, 16—Meservey v. Kalloch, 97 Me. 91; American Surety Co. v. Piatt (Kan.) 72 Pac. 775. Instructions in an action by a successor to recover assets from his ministrator's personalty so as to be incapable of identification are not assets passing to the administrator de bonis non.[46] In a proceeding to recover the assets an issue of title may be tried by jury.[47] For the conversion of assets by the administrator, the remedy of the special administrator is by an accounting.[48]

The petition must describe the personalty sought to be recovered from the heirs by action.[49] Mere insolvency of an estate is not a defense to an action by the representative to recover for a tort to the estate.[50] Equity having jurisdiction of a suit by an administrator to declare a trust in favor of the decedent in lands may, as a part of the relief, direct a sale thereof.[51]

(§ 5) C. Inventory and appraisal.—There should be an inventory returned.[52] An additional inventory of newly-discovered property may be filed.[53]

Only persons interested in the estate can compel the filing of an inventory by the representative.[54]

It is not ground of objection to an inventory that it failed to include as an asset a personal claim against the estate which was not intended to be enforced,[55] but the inventory of the representative of a deceased representative must include a claim paid to heirs as shown by the accounts of the latter.[56] If the personalty had all been disposed of by will and there was but one small debt which was apportioned among the beneficiaries under the will, there is no necessity for making an inventory.[57]

An administrator cannot be compelled to inventory property not an asset.[58] The mere direction to inventory certain property is not conclusive that such property is an asset.[59]

It will be presumed that property with which he charges himself is an asset;[60] yet he is not estopped thereby from claiming ownership.[61]

The personal representative has nothing to do with the appointment of appraisers.[62]

(§ 5) D. Property allowed widow or children. Quarantine.—The widow's allowance is determined by the terms of the various statutes.[63] predecessor held sufficient—Tunnicliffe v. Fox (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1032.

46. Reed v. Hume, 25 Utah, 248, 70 Pac. 998; Meservey v. Kallock, 97 Me. 91.

47. In probate court—In re Murphy's Estate, 30 Wash. 9, 70 Pac. 109. In Pennsylvania, the Orphan's court may award such an issue to the common pleas to determine the title of claimant—In re Huggins' Estate, 204 Pa. 167.

48. Iowa Code, § 3393—Garretson v. Kinkead, 118 Iowa, 383. If the personal representative takes possession of realty under the supposition that it belonged to the decedent, he will be allowed only for such payment made to protect the property, where the person entitled thereto had received a direct benefit by such payment—Walker v. Neil (Ga.) 45 S. E. 387. He cannot have the property subjected to re-payment of the taxes when decreed to be the property of the daughter—Id.

49. Union Trust Co. v. Soderer, 171 Mo. 675.

50. Brown v. Howell, 68 N. J. Law, 292.

51. Suit to recover funds of decedent wrongfully converted into realty. If the minor heir by his guardian had full knowledge of the proceeding and acquiesced therein he will be estopped to question the title of the purchaser—Buchanan v. Ammerman, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 439.

52. In proceedings for an accounting the executor should not be penalized for failure to file an inventory—Mulford v. Mulford (N. J. Ch.) 53 Atl. 79.

53. As expressly authorized by Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, § 1973—Texas Loan Agency v. Dingee (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 866.

54. Petition held insufficient to show petitioner a creditor—In re Huntington's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 477.

55, 56. In re Glenn's Estate, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 397.

57. In re Murphy's Estate, 30 Wash. 9, 70 Pac. 109.

58. Merely because property was recovered by representatives, as such, does not of itself show that such property is an asset—In re Belt's Estate, 29 Wash. 535, 70 Pac. 74.

59. The probate court has jurisdiction to determine whether certain property is an asset merely for the purpose of compelling an inventory. The finding however is not conclusive in another form—In re Belt's Estate, 29 Wash. 535, 70 Pac. 74.

60. In re Fague's Estate, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 638.

61. In re Murphy's Estate, 30 Wash. 9, 70 Pac. 109; Tunnicliffe v. Fox (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1032.

62. Held in action on bond for breach of duty—O'Brian v. Wilson (Miss.) 33 So. 946.

63. The widow's statutory exemption in-

The widow's allowance for support does not depend upon the testacy, intestacy[64] or the solvency of the deceased husband[65] or the fact that she could support herself and children from the income of her own property;[66] and if the income from property which she held as a devisee was insufficient for her support without resorting to the principal fund, she may properly be allowed for a year's support.[67] Under the Georgia statutes she is not entitled to homestead and a year's support where the aggregate of the two exceed the amount which may be set apart as a homestead and exemption,[68] yet she will not be deprived of her year's support merely because she and her children resided for a year on the deceased's homestead property.[69]

An antenuptial contract whereby she agreed not to claim any interest in any property of her husband bars her right to support,[70] but only where deceased left no minor children surviving.[71] She may lose her right by electing to take under the will of the deceased husband.[72] A decree of separation and alimony obtained by the wife during life bars her right, as widow, to an allowance.[73]

The legal title to specific property set apart by statute to the widow vests immediately in her[74] which she may recover by action;[75] if, however, the widow took possession of personalty of less value than her exemption, the representative of deceased cannot be charged therewith.[76] Where the statute provides that if the deceased's estate did not exceed a certain sum the widow may have the same set aside to her free from debts she takes subject to a purchase-money mortgage on such property.[77] If real property is set off to the widow it is subject to a valid pre-existing lien thereon.[78] The widow's demand for her statutory allowance inures to the benefit of her assignee.[79]

The allowance to the deceased's family should be generally made on notice.[80] cludes only such personal articles of which the deceased died possessed and not money—In re Sprague's Estate, 85 N. Y. Supp. 303.

The amount of the allowance is within the discretion of the court—Maney v. Casserly (Mich.) 96 N. W. 478.

It is only where minor children are members of the family of the deceased that they can share in the allowance for a year's support to the widow and children under the statute, (Goss v. Harris, 117 Ga. 345) or when it is necessary for their support that personal property can be set apart—Stewin v. Thrift, 30 Wash. 36, 70 Pac. 116. An allowance for the maintenance of the minor children may be made from the estate of the deceased mother. Under 2 Ballinger's Wash. Ann. Codes & St. § 6220—In re Murphy's Estate, 30 Wash. 9, 70 Pac. 109. Ohio Rev. St. § 6040—In re Glenn's Estate, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 397.

64. Busby v. Busby (Iowa) 95 N. W. 191.

65. That bankruptcy proceedings were pending against deceased at the time of his death will not bar the widow's statutory allowance—In re Parschen, 119 Fed. 976.

66. Busby v. Busby (Iowa) 95 N. W. 191.

67. Under the facts the representatives of the estate were held estopped by laches to move to vacate an order granting the widow an allowance for a year's support—Busby v. Busby (Iowa) 95 N. W. 191.

68. Green v. Hambrick (Ga.) 45 S. E. 420. That the widow also had a homestead set apart from the estate of her deceased husband is not ground for collateral attack on a judgment setting apart a year's support—Groover v. Brown (Ga.) 45 S. E. 310.

69. Bardwell v. Edwards (Ga.) 45 S. E. 40.

70. Perkins v. Brinkley (N. C.) 45 S. E. 465.

71. Zachmann v. Zachmann, 201 Ill. 380.

72. Nelson v. Lyster (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 54. A failure for six months to elect not to take under the will, will bar the widow's right to a year's support—Perkins v. Brinkley (N. C.) 45 S. E. 465.

73. In re Evans' Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 430.

74. Code, § 2713—Crawford v. Nassoy, 173 N. Y. 163.

75. She need not proceed in the surrogate's court—Crawford v. Nassoy, 173 N. Y. 163.

76. Her exemption not having been set apart to her—O'Brian v. Wilson (Miss.) 33 So. 946.

77. Under Burns' Rev. St. Ind. 1901, §§ 2575, 2578—Warner v. Warner, 30 Ind. App. 578.

78. Wade v. Freese (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 69. Sayles' Rev. Civ. St. 1888, 1889, art. 2053, providing that no property on which liens had been given by husband and wife, so as to be binding on her, or on which vendor's lien exists, shall be set apart as exempt until the discharge of the debt secured, applies to insolvent estates—Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Davis' Estate (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 951.

79. The joinder of the widow with the assignee in an action for her statutory allowance is not fatal—Brown v. Bernhamer, 159 Ind. 538.

80. An order made without notice may be validated by an order after hearing on no-

In Texas, the probate court has no jurisdiction of such an application where by the will it was provided that no action should be had in such court with reference to the estate other than the probate of the will and filing of the inventory.[81] In an action to recover it is essential that she aver the existence of funds sufficient to pay the allowance at the time of the demand.[82]

The estate in remainder of heirs in homestead set apart to the widow and heirs is subject to sale for payment of the widow's award.[83] If the widow was appointed executrix and devised a life estate but failed to have her award allowed, but did not waive the same, it will not constitute a lien on the realty after her death.[84] An order granting a monthly allowance to the widow for support is subject to modification pending administration on the estate.[85] An appeal from the allowance may be taken by the executor.[86]

The widow is entitled to quarantine in the mansion house and plantation until dower is assigned,[87] which right is assignable,[88] and a conveyance by her after the husband's death operates as an assignment thereof.[89] She may lose her quarantine right by having abandoned her husband during his life and lived in adultery.[90]

(§ 5) E. Management, custody, control, and disposition of estate.—In some states by a special statutory provision the court having probate jurisdiction may take charge of the estate of the intestate and dispose of the same without the appointment of an administrator.[91] The executor is entitled to have corporate stock belonging to the estate transferred on the books of the corporation in his own name,[92] and an administrator may pay dues on building and loan stock pledged by the decedent without leave of court.[93]

In some states the representative can transfer personalty only on leave of court,[94] though the court may ratify a transfer made without leave.[95] In selling personalty, the representatives must obtain the best possible price.[96]

Leave of court is necessary to authorize the representative to borrow money and give security therefor, since he cannot bind the estate by an original undertaking.[97] A decree or order authorizing him to mortgage realty is not conclusive on a creditor not made a party,[98] and it may be collaterally attacked for want of jurisdiction.[99] tice—In re Murphy's Estate, 30 Wash. 9, 70 Pac. 109.

81. Nelson v. Lyster (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 54.

82. Complaint held sufficient to state the existence of funds—Brown v. Bernhamer, 159 Ind. 538. Where she brings the action for her statutory allowance it is not necessary that she annex to her complaint her deceased husband's will giving her such property as she was entitled to under the statute—Id. The entire estate should be assigned to the widow as her statutory allowance where it is within the limit, though part of the land was the separate property of the husband and though prior to his death a declaration of homestead had been filed by the widow alone (Code Civ. Proc. § 1469)—In re Neff's Estate, 139 Cal. 71, 72 Pac. 632.

83. In re Tittel's Estate, 139 Cal. 149, 72 Pac. 909.

84. Brack v. Boyd, 202 Ill. 440.

85. James' Estate v. O'Neill (Neb.) 97 N. W. 22.

86. Lane v. Thorn, 103 Ill. App. 215.

87. Casteel v. Potter (Mo.) 75 S. W. 597. A verdict in favor of a daughter in an action to recover the property on the ground that the will which did not provide for the daughter was invalid—De Roche v. Myers (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 558.

88. Phillips v. Presson, 172 Mo. 24.

89. In such a case a purchaser is entitled to possession until dower is assigned or during the widow's life at the pleasure of the remaindermen—Graham v. Stafford, 171 Mo. 692.

90. Lyons v. Lyons (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 467.

91. A person appointed by the county court to take physical possession of property under laws 1901, p. 201, ch. 123, § 2, has no capacity as agent of the court to sue to recover assets—Smith v. Terry Peak Miners' Union (S. D.) 94 N. W. 694.

92. London, Paris & American Bank v. Aronstein (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 601.

93. State v. Taylor (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 1032.

94. So of land contract by decedent—Hovorka v. Havlik (Neb.) 93 N. W. 990.

95. Holt v. Rust-Owen Lumber Co. (Neb.) 96 N. W. 613.

96. Where they were obliged to pay $375 for the unexpired term under decedent's lease and sub-let the property for $225 they will not be charged the difference—In re Peck, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 296.

Executors have power to convert realty into personalty only when so authorized by the court or the will.[1] If a sale is directed as part of the administration by a will which fails to designate by whom it should be made, it may be executed by the person named as executor,[2] but if the will fails to nominate an executor, the power cannot be executed by the appointed representative.[3] A personal power of sale terminates on the discharge of the executor,[4] and cannot be exercised by the administrator with the will annexed on the theory that the direction of sale operated as an equitable conversion into personalty.[5] If a personal power be given to co-executors, it may be exercised by the survivors,[6] but not by one of the executors alone.[7] It may be executed through an attorney.[8] The exercise of a discretionary power of sale will not be reviewed by the courts.[9] A power to sell for debts is not affected by the fact that an action was pending by the creditor asking a settlement of the estate.[10] The will governs the time for the exercise of the power of sale.[11] The rule of caveat emptor applies to sales of executors.[12] A deed signed by an administrator is a good color of title, though it does not purport on its face to evidence execution under an order of the court.[13] Purchase-money notes given to an executor cannot be enforced until due.[14]

§ 6. Debts and liabilities of estate; their establishment and satisfaction. A. Liability of estate.—Before a claim can be allowed it must appear to have been an obligation of the decedent.[15] While relationship to deceased affords a presumption

97. See ante, § 4 B.

98. Hughes v. Treadaway, 116 Ga. 663.

99. That the order provided for the payment only of certain claims and not a ratable payment is an error in the exercise of jurisdiction and not ground for collateral attack—Stambach v. Emerson, 139 Cal. 282, 72 Pac. 991.

1. Will held to confer a power of sale on the executors—Bedford v. Bedford (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 1017; In re Rowley, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 622. Will construed and held to confer power on the executor to sell realty for payment of debts—Mersman v. Worthington's Ex'rs, 24 Ky. L. R. 2115, 72 S. W. 1094. Will held to charge the expenses of converting realty into personalty for the purposes of the will to be a charge against the realty—Matthews v. Tyree (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 526.

2. It is error to appoint the executor as a trustee to make the sale under Rev. Sts. 1898, § 2128—Lawrence v. Barber, 116 Wis. 294.

3. Shannon's Code, § 3976, does not apply in such case but that power is devolved on chancery—McElroy v. McElroy (Tenn.) 73 S. W. 105.

4. Title not vesting in the executor as trustee—Boland v. Tiernay, 118 Iowa, 59. By consenting to a decree discharging the executor, the devisee is not estopped from claiming title to land as such, sold under power by the executor after the termination of his authority as such—Boland v. Tiernay, 118 Iowa, 59.

5. In Tennessee prior to 1851, the power to convert realty into personalty under a will was personal to the executor and could not be exercised by the administrator with the will annexed—McElroy v. McElroy (Tenn.) 73 S. W. 105; Scott v. Douglas, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 555.

6. Bedford v. Bedford (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 1017.

7. Lynch v. Buckley, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 614.

8. Gates v. Dudgeon, 173 N. Y. 426.

9. Bedford v. Bedford (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 1017. Only parties to the proceeding can move for a new trial of objections to a confirmation of sale under power in the will—In re Richards' Estate, 139 Cal. 72, 72 Pac. 633.

10. Mersman v. Worthington's Ex'rs, 24 Ky. L. R. 2115, 72 S. W. 1094.

11. Will construed as to the time of the exercise of the power to sell particular property—O'Reilly v. Platt, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 348.

12. A plea in an action on promissory notes given in consideration of a transfer of realty that neither the deceased nor the executor had title, is properly stricken out—Keen v. McAfee, 116 Ga. 728. Where the surviving husband and executor under the will of the deceased wife giving him power to sell, conveyed to his second wife without consideration, the mortgagee under a mortgage executed by himself and wife, is chargeable with notice of his want of power to place the legal title in his wife and to mortgage any of the property of the estate—Neary v. Neary (Neb.) 97 N. W. 302. Purchaser from an agent is bound to know that he was authorized to sell—Lynch v. Buckley, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 614.

13. The deed in this case was given under authority given by heirs to dispose of property at private sale for the purpose of saving time and expense—Street v. Collier (Ga.) 45 S. E. 294.

14. In an action to recover on notes given in consideration of the transfer of realty, the executors can recover only on the notes then actually due—Keen v. McAfee, 116 Ga. 728.

15. Unless it appeared that the defendant requested that medical attendance be given to his tenants, a claim therefor against his estate will not be allowed—Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227. A claim for medical services rendered deceased's widow given a life estate by the will of her deceased husband is that services rendered him are gratuitous,[16] yet recovery can be had on an implied contract to pay therefor,[17] though in some states an express contract, either parol or in writing, must be proved.[18] Stronger proof however is required in support of claims made by relatives for personal services than is required on general claims by strangers,[19] and it must be supported by direct or indirect evidence of a clear and unequivocal character.[20] An express agreement of deceased to pay one not a relative may be shown by facts and circumstances.[21] After establishing the agreement to pay the claimant need not prove nonpayment.[22]

The estate of deceased joint debtor is liable only in the event that the surviving joint debtors are insolvent.[23] Counsel fees allowed in an action by the wife for support during the life of her deceased husband is a proper claim against his estate after his death,[24] as is alimony allowed for life under a decree entered on consent.[25] Money received by a deceased representative, whether rightfully or not, is a proper claim against his estate.[26] Taxes accrued on realty at the time of a conveyance thereof by deceased is not a personal debt.[27]

Where the estate had received the benefit of a tort committed by the decedent, it may be subjected to liability.[28] It cannot however be charged with the torts of the representatives,[29] though committed for the benefit of the estate and under order of the court.[30] If the testator disposed of property which he held as bailee, the executor's possession is not tortious.[31] not a proper claim against his estate, though the personal representative had assets belonging to the life estate to which she was entitled—Gray v. Seeley's Estate (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1061.

16. Woerner, Adm'n, § 396; Shannon v. Carter (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 495. Before claim against the estate of a deceased father for services rendered by a child, can be allowed, it must appear that such child had been emancipated, and emancipation will not be presumed—Tuohy v. Trail, 19 App. D. C. 79.

17. Shannon v. Carter (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 495; Allen v. Allen (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 396. Recovery for services by a child, rendered deceased, can be had only from the time of the request therefor up to the death—Shannon v. Carter (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 495.

18. Hinkle v. Sage, 67 Ohio St. 256.

19. In re Warner's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 432; In re Pray, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 516. Admissibility of evidence on the trial of a claim for services, by a member of the family—Ellis v. Baird (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 960; Gill v. Donovan, 96 Md. 518; Allen v. Allen (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 396; by one not a relative—Bonebrake v. Trauer (Kan.) 72 Pac. 521; Cunningham v. Hewitt, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 114. Evidence held sufficient to show an agreement to pay for services rendered by a niece (Neish v. Gannon, 198 Ill. 219) daughter (Shannon v. Carter [Mo. App.] 72 S. W. 495) mother during her life (Wessinger v. Roberts [S. C.] 45 S. E. 169; In re Payne's Estate, 204 Pa. 535) daughter-in-law (Allen v. Allen [Mo. App.] 74 S. W. 396) a sister (Wright v. Reed, 118 Iowa, 333). Evidence held insufficient to establish a claim by a niece (Gaunce v. Barlow, 24 Ky. L. R. 929, 70 S. W. 284) cousin (Hanly v. Potts, 52 W. Va. 263) sister (In re Warner's Estate, 39 Misc. [N. Y.] 432). Evidence held insufficient to sustain a claim for board —In re Wilmot's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 686. Evidence held insufficient to show an intent to charge for board and clothing furnished deceased brother—Succession of Oubre, 109 La. 516; sufficient to support a claim by a wife against her husband for board before marriage—In re Hamilton, 70 App. Div. (N. Y.) 73. A written document, "I * * * being of sound mind, desire that * * *, for her services day and night and diligent nursing, may receive $250 after my death," is not evidence of a promise to pay the sum mentioned nor is it a valid testamentary disposition but the person mentioned may only recover the sum agreed upon to be paid for the services rendered as nurse—Stadermann v. Heins, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 563. Instructions in an action by a daughter to recover held proper—Shannon v. Carter, 72 S. W. (Mo. App.) 495.

20. Hinkle v. Sage, 67 Ohio St. 256.

21. Oates v. Erskine's Estate, 116 Wis. 586. Evidence that a note given to claimant who held a confidential relation towards deceased insufficient to show that it was a valid obligation against the estate of the maker—Varick v. Hitt (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 139.

22. Ralley v. O'Connor, 173 N. Y. 621.

23. Booth Bros. v. Baird, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 495.

24. Kellogg v. Stoddard, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 92.

25. Hassaurek v. Hassaurek's Adm'r (Ohio) 67 N. E. 1066.

26. Overstreet v. Reddick, 117 Ga. 331.

27. In re Mertens' Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 512.

28. An action will lie against the executor to recover for unlawfully cutting and removing timber from public land by decedent —United States v. Bean, 120 Fed. 719.

29. Blum v. Dabritz, 78 N. Y. S. 207, as for the wrongful eviction of a tenant holding under a lease executed by the deceased—Id. 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 800. Complaint in an action for tort construed and held that a demurrer

A covenant of warranty is personal and binding on the representatives of the covenantor.[32]

The expenses accruing in the ordinary course of administration are proper items to be proved.[33] While funeral charges are not, strictly speaking, debts due from decedent, they will be allowed when reasonable though not ordered or authorized by the representative,[34] so also expenditures for a monument.[35] Claims or demands against decedents' estates generally carry interest,[36] but not compound interest nor is it to be computed with annual rests in the absence of specific agreement.[37]

(6) B. Liability of heirs, devisees, and legatees.—If property is bequeathed subject to the payment of the testator's debts, the beneficiary takes cum onere.[38] It is only where the heirs, devisees, or legatees have received property through their ancestor that they can be made liable for his debts,[39] severally to the amount each received from the estate,[40] and if the devisee buys in the land devised on foreclosure sale he does not hold as devisee.[41] The residuary legatee is not liable for debts until he gives a bond as such under the statute.[42] The debts of decedent cannot be charged against a devisee who did not sign the agreement between the devisees to apportion the debts among themselves.[43] The heirs take subject to liens existing against the property.[44] Taxes accrued or realty at the time of the death of the owner are not a personal debt of the deceased owner.[45] Taxes accrued before death of the testator on realty devised in trust ought to be paid out of the general estate and not be made a charge on the lands.[46] Statutes of limitations barring rights of action against heirs by the representative in his capacity as such, properly sustained—Id.

30. On refusal of the executor to surrender personalty to the mortgagee entitled to possession thereto under the contract, he will be personally liable—Mathew v. Mathew, 138 Cal. 334, 71 Pac. 344.

31. Moran v. Morrill, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 440.

32. An action for breach of warranty against the administrator of the deceased grantor may be maintained though no real assets descended to the heirs of the warrantor. Since like any other action on a covenant sounding in damages the judgment will be satisfied out of the assets whether personal or real—Wiggins v. Pender, 132 N. C. 628.

33. Nicholas v. Sands, 136 Ala. 267. Where the deceased partner devised the good will and business to the survivor, on condition that he pay certain legacies, and if assets were insufficient to conduct the business until there were sufficient to pay, an obligation entered into by the partnership formed between the survivor and his sons is not an obligation of the estate of the deceased partner, the legatee survivor having taken possession as such and paid the legacies charged—Fleming v. Fleming, 204 Pa. St. 648.

34. Foley v. Broeksmit (Iowa) 93 N. W. 344.

35. The contract for a monument costing $1,050. held unwarranted—In re Smith, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 339.

36. Clift v. Mercer, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 369.

37. Anderson v. Northrop (Fla.) 33 So. 419.

38. The heirs of such devisee are estopped from denying that the land is so subject—Meddis v. Kenney (Mo.) 75 S. W. 633. Where testator devised the entire estate, both personalty and realty to the widow, the land will be held subject to the payment of debts—Kiesewetter v. Kress, 24 Ky. L. R. 1239, 70 S. W. 1065.

39. Where by agreement between the representatives and the legatees the estate was placed in trust for their use for life, no right of action accrued under the Code of Civ. Proc. § 1837, against the legatees—New York v. United States Trust Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 366. In Louisiana, on acceptance of the succession, the heirs are liable for the debts of decedent. Evidence held insufficient to show acceptance of succession by the heirs—Griffin v. Burris, 109 La. 216. On the acceptance of a residuary legacy, the legatee after giving bond as such, is liable for the payment of the decedent's debts—Pym v. Pym (Wis.) 96 N. W. 429. An action under Code, §§ 1837, 1860, to charge decedent's debts against the heirs will not fail simply because it appears that they took as devisees—Matteson v. Palser, 173 N. Y. 404. Where the deceased mortgagor executed a deed of trust reserving the income for life and on death the realty to go to her children the latter cannot be personally decreed to pay the deficiency on mortgage foreclosure as heirs, there being no proof of fraudulent intent in making the conveyance or that the property at the time was not sufficient to pay the debts—Matteson v. Palser, 173 N. Y. 404.

40. Haines v. Haines (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 401.

41. Byrne v. Condon, 68 N. J. Law, 439.

42. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3975—Pym v. Pym (Wis.) 96 N. W. 429.

43. Dauel v. Arnold, 201 Ill. 570.

44. Lien for omitted taxes—Commonwealth v. Zweigart's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 2147, 73 S. W. 758.

45. In re Hewitt, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 322.

46. In re Doheny, 171 N. Y. 691.

or devisees for liabilities of decedents have been held to apply to suits in equity as well as actions at law.[47] The heir in an action against him on a claim against his ancestor may plead that it was barred as against the decedent.[48] The recovery will be limited to the value of the lands inherited in the condition in which they were at the time of the descent cast where the heir had conveyed the land.[49] If the heir had not aliened land the judgment should direct that the amount be levied on the lands inherited.[50]

(§ 6) C. Exhibition, establishment, allowance, and enforcement of claims.—It is essential to the allowance of a claim to the estate of a decedent that it be presented[51] in the form required by the statute,[52] but this does not apply to claims by the United States.[53] A representative may by his acts waive exhibition of a claim.[54] The general rule is that the claim must be presented to the representative before action can be brought thereon,[55] but this applies only to demands against decedent and not to demands against his representatives.[56] The bringing of an action against the personal representative in North Carolina, is a sufficient filing of the claim.[57] The failure to present the claim within the statutory time will bar an action thereon, though the personal representative still has personalty in his possession.[58] In Alabama the common-law rule that the mere fact of want of notice of a claim will not excuse the personal representative from payment if the assets were sufficient and though he had made a bona fide distribution thereof prevails.[59] A claim for interest against the estate of a deceased trustee by the cestui must be proven as an ordinary claim.[60] In some instances claims against decedent's estate not yet due may be presented,[61] and if such a claim matures after the time for the presentation of claims but before distribution it should be presented.[62] A contracted indebtedness payable upon the death of a certain person is not a contingent claim.[63]

A claim which would have been the proper subject of a set-off in the lifetime of the deceased may be so availed of against his administrator in enforcing a claim of the estate against the debtor, particularly if the estate is insolvent,[64] and in

47. Maine Rev. St. c. 87, § 16, applied by a federal court to a suit against a legatee to enforce the ancestor's liability as a stockholder in a foreign corporation—Hale v. Coffin (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 470.

48. Haines v. Haines (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 401. An answer in an action against heirs to recover a debt of their ancestor permitted to be amended to conform to the fact and relief granted generally—Reid v. Pringle (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 837.

49, 50. Haines v. Haines (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 401.

51. Berryhill v. Gasquoine, 88 Minn. 281. Claimant held guilty of such negligence as would bar right to have the estate reopened for the purpose of presenting his claim—Potter v. Brentlinger, 117 Iowa, 536. The failure to claim attorney's fees as stipulated in the note by the deceased maker, and procuring an allowance for the face of the note with interest, will operate as a bar to an action for such attorney's fees—Nease v. James (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 87.

52. Cheairs v. Cheairs (Miss.) 33 So. 414. In many states the claim is presented by filing in the court of probate. See post, Presentation to Court, etc.

53. United States v. Bean, 120 Fed. 719.

54. As by appealing from its allowance by the probate court—Wencker v. Thompson's Adm'r. 96 Mo. App. 59.

55. If the action is against the administrator and heirs, the administrator should file an affidavit showing absence of a demand before suit together with the statutory affidavit—Tichenor v. Wood, 24 Ky. L. R. 1109, 70 S. W. 837.

56. As a claim for usury paid the administrator—Crenshaw v. Duff's Ex'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 718, 69 S. W. 962.

57. McLeod v. Graham, 132 N. C. 473.

58. Orphan's Court Act, § 75, has no application to an action to collect a claim—Cunningham v. Stanford (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 245.

59. Whetstone v. McQueen (Ala.) 34 So. 229.

60. Elizalde v. Elizalde, 137 Cal. 634, 66 Pac. 369, 70 Pac. 861.

61. Under Rev. St. c. 3, § 67, a claim under a contract to pay rent for an entire term with a provision that such term may be shortened upon certain contingencies, may be presented—McElroy's Estate v. Brooke, 104 Ill. App. 220.

62. And if not so presented the heirs cannot be made liable therefor under Minn. Gen. St. 1894, § 5918, et seq.—Hunt v. Burns (Minn.) 95 N. W. 1110.

63. Brown's Ex'r v. Dunn's Estate (Vt.) 55 Atl. 364.

64. Helms v. Harclerode, 65 Kan. 736, 70 Pac. 866. Where the deceased before death agreed that an account stated be credited on the note held against accountant, the latter such case it need not have first been presented,[65] otherwise if the estate is solvent.[66] A claim against a decedent, however, cannot be set off against a claim under a contract with the representative,[67] or against a judgment against claimant for the conversion of decedent's assets.[68]

On the question of whether debts secured by mortgage must be presented before the security can be enforced, the decisions are conflicting. In New York and Missouri they need not be presented,[69] but in Pennsylvania and Texas the contrary holds.[70]

A judgment obtained against a decedent during life must be exhibited,[71] but it need not be filed until after it has been affirmed on appeal.[72]

Special statutes of limitation.—The time within which claims may be filed or presented against an estate has been fixed in most jurisdictions by statute,[73] which must be complied with to prevent a bar,[74] and such statutes have been held to apply to claims of nonresidents,[75] and to begin to run from the time of the publication of the notice of the appointment of the representative.[76] Because the administrator had not filed an inventory[77] or an appeal from the probate of the will was pending is not an excuse for failure to present the claim within the statutory time,[78] and merely because the estate is not settled is not ground for equal relief on a barred claim.[79]

An action to enforce a claim is barred if not brought within the statutory time[80] after presentation and disallowance[81] or waiver of presentation.[82] The statute has may plead it in an action on the note without first presenting it to the probate court—Parker v. Wells (Neb.) 94 N. W. 717.

65. Hall v. Greene (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1087.

66. Troup v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 24 R. I. 377.

67. Hancock v. Hancock's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 664, 69 S. W. 757.

68. Particularly where the estate is insolvent—Succession of Gragard (La.) 34 So. 742, 743.

69. In re Eadie, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 117. A claimant must first exhaust his mortgage security on land before payment can be made out of the general fund, whether the mortgage was executed or assumed by the deceased. Mo. Rev. St. 1899, § 191. Will construed and held to intend that the debt secured be paid out of the general fund—Knight v. Newkirk, 92 Mo. App. 258.

70. Where realty is subject to administration, it is necessary to preserve a mortgage lien thereon that it be presented to the personal representative of the deceased mortgagor for allowance, though given to secure the purchase money; and though it provides that on default the trustee might sell, notwithstanding the death of the mortgagor—Texas Loan Agency v. Dingee (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 866. A claim for attorney's fees as provided in the mortgage may be allowed—In re Rowe's Estate, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 597.

71. Wencker v. Thompson's Adm'r, 96 Mo. App. 59. It is error to direct that an execution issue to enforce a judgment on a claim which had been appealed—Bennett's Estate v. Taylor (Neb.) 96 N. W. 669. Where an insolvent estate was being administered under a will independent of the court, judgments against decedent cannot be enforced by execution, since in such case the representative holds the property in trust for the benefit of all creditors—Farmers', etc., Nat. Bank v. Bell (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 570.

72. Ryans v. Boogher, 169 Mo. 673.

73. After the expiration of twelve months from the granting of administration on the estate of a deceased partner all claims of the surviving partner arising out of partnership transactions are barred—Willis v. Sutton, 116 Ga. 283. A claim for services rendered as attorney in procuring probate of a will accrues on the probate of the will—Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

74. Kornegay v. Mayer, 135 Ala. 141. The indorsement by the clerk that the claim is allowed and registered is insufficient—Cheairs v. Cheairs (Miss.) 33 So. 414.

75. Hale v. Coffin (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 470, 114 Fed. 567.

76. The time begins to run from the time of the publication of a notice of appointment as administrator de bonis non and not from the time of the appointment of the executor, who did not publish notice of the appointment—Lynch v. Farnell, 24 R. I. 496.

77. Particularly where the assets of the estate were shown by the guardian's report and the administrator's application for appointment—In re Jacob's Estate (Iowa) 93 N. W. 94.

78. Butler v. Templeton, 115 Wis. 382.

79. In re Jacob's Estate (Iowa) 93 N. W. 94.

80. An action to recover a year's support allowed a widow is barred if not brought within two years. It is therefore no ground for exception to the inventory of the assets that the claim for a year's allowance against her deceased husband's estate was not included—In re Glenn's Estate, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 397; Tuohy v. Trail, 19 App. D. C. 79. Claim held barred under the facts—Melton v. Martin (Mont.) 72 Pac. 414.

81. Miller v. Ewing, 68 Ohio St. 176; In re Glenn's Estate, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 397. After rejection of a claim by representatives the creditor must consent to a hearing thereon in court within the statutory time (N. Y.

been held to apply to scire facias to revive an action against the representatives of a deceased defendant.[83]

Nonresidence[84] or the death of the representative will not suspend the running of the statute.[85] The representative cannot by any act waive the bar of the statute,[86] as by a payment on account[87] or a new promise.[88] This rule applies to the realty as well as the personalty of the estate.[89] In New Jersey he may by a new promise remove the bar.[90]

General statutes of limitation[91] while suspended by the death of the debtor are revived by the appointment of a representative of his estate,[92] and are not suspended by a presentation of the claim,[93] though in Virginia an order directing an account of debts against the estate,[94] and in Louisiana the approval of the representative's accounts recognizing the claim[95] suspends the operation of the statute.

Presentation to representative.—It is not necessary that a claimant shall formally present a claim evidenced by writing and require an indorsement of allowance thereon,[96] and if formally presented it need not be verified.[97] The attorney for the estate may disallow a claim presented to the representative.[98] The consent in open court to the allowance of a claim by an executor without notice to his coexecutor is sufficient.[99] The mere failure to object to an account presented is insufficient to show that the representative had stated the account and relieved the claimant from the necessity of establishing it.[1] The rights of a creditor of an estate cannot be prejudiced by failure of the administrator to file the claim within the statutory time after it had been proved and allowed.[2]

Presentation to court having jurisdiction of estate.—A disputed claim may be allowed on the final settlement of the accounts of representatives only where the parties had consented to such hearing.[3] Where a claim is presented to the court having jurisdiction over the estate written pleadings are not necessary,[4] nor do the rules governing pleading apply.[5] If the demand is filed in such form as to unmistakably disclose the nature of the transaction which gave rise to it it is sufficient.[6] A waiver of a notice of claim by the representative is a waiver of the objection to the sufficiency of its presentment to the court.[7] Since written pleadings Code Civ. Proc. § 1822)—In re Brown, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 185.

82. If the waiver was by appeal from allowance by the court, the day of appeal will be considered the date of presentation—Wencker v. Thompson's Adm'r, 96 Mo. App. 59.

83. Green v. Barrett, 123 Fed. 349.

84. Va. 1887, § 2933 does not apply—Kesterson v. Hill (Va.) 45 S. E. 288.

85. Pub. St. c. 189, § 8, limiting the time in which action should be brought to three years of the granting of letters, applies to the original granting of letters, and not to the time of granting of letters de bonis non—Thompson v. Hoxsie, 24 R. I. 493.

86. Cockrell v. Seasongood (Miss.) 33 So. 77; Miller v. Ewing, 68 Ohio St. 176.

87. Lynch v. Farnell, 24 R. I. 496.

88, 89. Findley v. Cunningham (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 472.

90. Hewes v. Hurff (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 275.

91. See generally the title Limitation of Actions.

92. The general statute will apply where the court had fixed no time for the presentation of claims—Appeal of Mason, 75 Conn. 406.

93. MacNeill v. Gallagher, 24 R. I. 490.

94. Robinett's Adm'r v. Mitchell (Va.) 45 S. E. 287.

95. Succession of Willis, 109 La. 281.

96. If he presents the writing and requires a partial payment giving the administrator time for payment of the balance is sufficient—Miller v. Ewing, 68 Ohio St. 176.

97. Nicholas v. Sands, 136 Ala. 267.

98. Miller v. Ewing, 68 Ohio St. 176.

99. Cross v. Long (Kan.) 71 Pac. 524.

1. Withers v. Sandlin (Fla.) 32 So. 829.

2. Under Cal. Civ. Code, § 1497—Bell v. Mills (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 24.

3. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 1882, provides that a written consent by both parties for such a hearing may be filed—In re Warner's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 432.

4. Thomson v. Barker, 102 Ill. App. 304.

5. Stanley's Estate v. Pence (Ind.) 66 N. E. 51. The denial of motion to compel claimant to make his petition more definite and certain after a trial, held not prejudicial error—Bonebrake v. Tauer (Kan.) 72 Pac. 521.

6. Claim held to evidence sufficient personalty—Monumental Bronze Co. v. Doty (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 234.

7. Monumental Bronze Co. v. Doty (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 234.

are not required effect may be given to the statute of limitations though not raised by objection or pleading.[8]

The jurisdiction of the probate courts over disputed claims depends upon the statutes creating them. In Illinois, Missouri and Texas they are given general jurisdiction over all claims both legal and equitable,[9] in New York the surrogate's jurisdiction is ousted by raising issues of fact[10] or equitable defenses.[11] A statutory reference of a claim in New York bars all further proceeding thereon in the surrogate's court.[12] The probate court in Iowa has no jurisdiction to determine the individual liability of heirs on a contract made by the personal representative of the estate.[13]

Neither party is entitled to a jury trial,[14] though issues of fact may be sent to a jury.[15]

Claims against decedent's estate should be allowed only when established by satisfactory evidence.[16] Admissions by heirs of deceased are not evidence of indebtedness against the estate.[17] If the claim has been established the representatives have the burden of proving payment,[18] even though the claimant did not prove his allegation of nonpayment.[19] The objecting party has the burden of showing that the claim allowed but not paid by the representative is invalid.[20]

The allowance of a claim by the probate court makes the claimant a judgment creditor of the estate,[21] and entitled to a lien against the property.[22]

The decree is conclusive as to the matters in issue and on the parties brought into the proceedings,[23] and on the creditors not made parties,[24] unless impeached for

8. Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 2718, pleadings are not required on a reference of a rejected claim—Simons v. Steele, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 202; McBride v. Ulmer, 30 Ind. App. 154; Wencker v. Thompson's Adm'r, 96 Mo. App. 59.

9. Thomson v. Barker, 102 Ill. App. 304. A claim as remaindermen against the estate of a deceased life tenant is enforceable in the probate court—Deiterman v. Ruppel, 200 Ill. 199. A claim for damages under a contract by a decedent to hold claimants harmless from damage by fire may be determined by the probate court. Under Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 192—Wabash R. Co. v. Ordelheide, 172 Mo. 436. The district court had jurisdiction to determine the validity of a trust deed given to secure it—Ryon v. George (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 48. The district court has no original jurisdiction to allow claims against the estate of a decedent—Craig v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 640.

10. In re Huntington's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 477.

11. The surrogate in New York can only determine to whom the judgment claim belongs and as to payments made thereon—In re Wait's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 74.

12. The surrogate has no authority to render an affirmative judgment on the counterclaim in favor of the estate—In re Wilmot's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 686.

13. In re Bruning's Estate (Iowa) 96 N. W. 780.

14. Alaska Code, § 823—Esterly v. Rua (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 609.

15. As questions whether an interlineation on a note presented was written before the signature, and whether there was a fiduciary relation between the parties, such as would impose upon the creditors the burden of proving consideration—In re Dutton's Estate, 205 Pa. 244. Personal property act, § 7 does not deprive personal representatives of such right—Montgomery v. Boyd, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 64.

16. Kingan & Co. v. Burns' Estate, 104 Ill. App. 661. Particularly where the claim covers a long period of time—Hart v. Tuite, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 323. Admissibility of evidence—Crampton v. Newton's Estate (Mich.) 93 N. W. 250. The ex parte affidavit of claimant's agent is insufficient to support an allowance of a disputed claim—Kingan & Co. v. Burns' Estate, 104 Ill. App. 661. On sufficiency of evidence to support claim see—Galloway's Adm'r v. Galloway, 24 Ky. L. R. 857, 70 S. W. 48; Allsop v. Deposit Bank of Owensboro, 24 Ky. L. R. 762, 69 S. W. 1102; Simpson v. Scheutz (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 457; Curd v. Wissler (Iowa) 95 N. W. 266; In re Wilmot's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 686; Succession of Alexander (La.) 35 So. 273.

17. Kornegay v. Mayer, 135 Ala. 141.

18. Best v. Best's Adm'r, 25 Ky. L. R. 93, 74 S. W. 738. Evidence of payment held admissible under the issue—Garretson v. Kinkead, 118 Iowa, 383. Evidence held sufficient to show that claimant's claim had been paid by decedent—Cummings v. Lynn (Iowa) 96 N. W. 857.

19. Hurley v. Ryan, 137 Cal. 461, 70 Pac. 292.

20. In re Knab, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 717.

21. Under Rev. St. Mo. 1899, §§ 192, 1580, 3713—Funk v. Seehorn (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 445.

22. Funk v. Seehorn (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 445.

23. If a creditor presents his claim before the commissioner appointed in suit by administrator under W. Va. Code 1899, c. 86, § 7, the decree on demand is confusing as to the claimant and the representative and the party purchasing land of the estate under the decree made—Hurxthal v. St. Lawrence fraud, accident or mistake.[25] The rejection of a claim not presented in statutory form is not an adjudication which would bar a subsequent action thereon.[26]

The surrogate's court must have heard evidence and made findings of fact to sustain the validity of a decree in a statutory proceeding to direct payment of a claim.[27]

The personal representative can obtain a review of an allowance of a claim[28] only by giving the statutory bond,[29] and it is his duty to follow the appeal when taken by claimant without further or other notice than the taking and the perfection of the right to appeal.[30] The claim is usually tried anew on appeal without further or formal pleadings.[31] The finding on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed on appeal.[32]

Actions and suits to enforce claims.—In New Jersey, an action to enforce a claim cannot be commenced until six months after the granting of letters.[33] It is not an essential condition precedent to an action on a rejected claim that it be filed.[34] A resident creditor of a nonresident decedent may sue to subject decedent's interest in personalty which had been fraudulently transferred and which was situate within the state,[35] and a judgment creditor whose judgment was enforceable against the estate if there were assets in the hands of the personal representative may maintain a proceeding in aid of his execution to subject money in the hands of the debtors of the estate.[36] To all actions wherein a claim against an estate is sought to be proved, as an action by a creditor to subject property fraudulently conveyed, the representative is a necessary party,[37] but it is not error to refuse to direct the joinder of an insolvent co-executor.[38] To a suit to determine the validity of a trust deed

Boom Co. (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 520. And in an action to avoid a fraudulent conveyance by the decedent, the allowance of a claim based on a promissory note, cannot be collaterally attacked on the ground that the note was without consideration—Clark v. Thias. 173 Mo. 628. The decree of the District Court of Alaska on a claim by a surviving partner against the estate of a deceased partner on pleadings regularly filed, will be regarded as a decree in suit of equity settling the partnership accounts—Esterly v. Rua (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 609.

24. Since upon the allowance any creditor feeling aggrieved could appeal. Such a judgment therefore cannot be vacated at a subsequent term—Ford v. First Nat. Bank, 201 Ill. 120. The county court's classification of a claim in a judgment of allowance is conclusive.—Id.

25. Ford v. First Nat. Bank, 201 Ill. 120.

26. In the federal court (Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. §§ 6226, 6230, 6233)—United States v. Fidelity Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 766.

27. As where an issue was raised by the answer of executor to a proceeding by a creditor to compel payment, under Code Civ. Proc. § 2722, as to funds in their hands applicable to such payment—In re Sherwood's Estate, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 342.

28. If the order was made in the absence of the administrator where no answer or objection was filed against the claim, the administrator may bring error against the allowance under Code Civ. Proc. § 580—Herman v. Beck (Neb.) 94 N. W. 512.

29. Rev. St. Ohio, § 6408, authorizing the trustee to appeal without bond does not apply to an executor appealing on accounting, and notice of an intention to take an appeal is insufficient—Downing v. Downing, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 389. In order to entitle one to appeal from the decision of the commissioner of claims, it is essential that the bond required be approved by the judge of probate before it is filed (Comp. Laws Mich. §§ 9386, 9387, 9395)—Bartlett v. Frazer (Mich.) 95 N. W. 721.

30. Ford v. First Nat. Bank, 201 Ill. 120.

31. Wencker v. Thompson's Adm'r, 96 Mo. App. 59. New defenses such as pleas of non est factum and nil debet to a claim against deceased surety on a bond or objections cannot be interposed,—thus an objection to a claim against estate of deceased surety that it did not include the name of one of the sureties; the description of the bond being sufficiently specific so that the claim would constitute a bar to another suit—Thomson v. Black, 200 Ill. 465.

32. In re Young's Estate, 204 Pa. 32.

33. In New Jersey it is held that the statute does not apply to an action to foreclose a mortgage on decedent's land—Ayres v. Shepherd, 64 N. J. Eq. 166.

34. Only claims allowed need be filed—Saxton v. Musselman (S. D.) 95 N. W. 291.

35. The refusal of the foreign representative to take out ancillary letters will be construed as a refusal to sue—Montgomery v. Boyd, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 64.

36. Rev. St. Ohio, § 5464, permitting such actions in aid of execution, applies to estates of decedents—Lauer v. Smith, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 47.

37. Montgomery v. Boyd, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 64.

38. Robinett's Adm'r v. Mitchell (Va.) 46 S. E. 287.

rejected as a claim, the trustee is not a necessary party,[39] and a plea of limitations is not an admission of the validity of the claim.[40] The judgment on a claim against the estate need not state that it be paid in due course of administration.[41] A judgment against a representative as representative is a personal judgment against him.[42]

(§ 6) D. Classification, preferences, and priorities.[43]—All valid existing liens on personalty, as a chattel mortgage, should be first paid out of the proceeds.[44] The attorney of the representative has not a lien on the estate for services rendered,[45] nor is a physician entitled to priority of payment for services rendered the family of deceased.[46] A statute making funeral expenses a prior claim against the assets does not apply to estates in the course of administration at the time of its passage.[47] The decedent's debts are entitled to priority over debts of another assumed by the will.[48]

The allowance for a year's support to the widow is entitled to priority over a landlord's lien.[49] A mortgage debt, whether for purchase money or not, is entitled to priority over the widow's exemption.[50] Out of the proceeds of the sale to pay debts, the widow is entitled first to have set apart to her the deficiency in the homestead allotted.[51] A legatee is entitled to priority of payment of his legacy out of the surplus proceeds from a sale of the homestead under a mortgage foreclosure as against decedent's general creditors.[52]

A lien on property is not waived by presenting the amount of the claim.[53]

The court making the ancillary appointment is without jurisdiction to determine the insolvency of a nonresident decedent and direct a surrender of the assets to the principal administrator so that all creditors would receive an equal percentage of their claims.[54]

Proceedings for reclassification can only be maintained by creditors.[55]

(§ 6) E. Funds, assets, and securities for payment.—All the property of the deceased not exempt is subject to the payment of his debts, though the residuary legatee gave bond as such under the statute,[56] but the personalty should first be subjected.[57] Property fraudulently conveyed by decedent may be subjected.[58]

39. Pym v. Pym (Wis.) 96 N. W. 429.

40. Succession of Oubre, 109 La. 516.

41. Particularly where the action was brought in the federal court on a claim against the deceased as a surety on a federal official bond; in such case it will be paid according to the laws of the state and subject to the priority given by U. S. Rev. St. §§ 3466, 3467—Smythe v. United States, 188 U. S. 156.

42. To bind the estate it must direct that the recovery is to be levied on the goods and chattels of the estate—Thompson v. Mann (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 246.

43. The widow's election to take her award in money on approval by the court constitutes it a claim of the second class—Lane v. Thorn, 103 Ill. App. 215.

44. Baker v. Becker (Kan.) 72 Pac. 860.

45. Waite v. Willis, 42 Or. 288, 70 Pac. 1034.

46. Baker v. Dawson, 131 N. C. 227.

47. In re Kalbfleisch's Estate, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 464.

48. As where the husband directed payment of his widow's debts after her death—Hallock v. Hallock, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 508.

49. In re Laurence's Estate (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 779.

50. In re Rowe's Estate, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 597. The holder of a pre-existing lien on the realty of decedent may have a decree setting apart such realty to the widow set aside and have the land sold to enforce his lien; such setting aside the property to the widow is not a partition and distribution of the estate so as to divest the court of authority to charge the property with a lien—Wade v. Freese (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 69.

51. Shea v. Shea's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1702, 72 S. W. 7.

52. Under Rev. Sts. 1898, §§ 2271, 3862, the will not making debts a charge—Kuener v. Prohl (Wis.) 97 N. W. 201.

53. Mathew v. Mathew, 138 Cal. 334, 71 Pac. 344.

54. Lewis v. Rutherford (Ark.) 72 S. W. 373.

55. Petition showing allowance of petitioner's claim by the probate court held sufficient to show a petitioner a creditor—Ford v. First Nat. Bank, 201 Ill. 120.

56. Rev. St. 1898, § 3795—Pym v. Pym (Wis.) 96 N. W. 429.

57. The liability on a contract relating to the use of certain realty cannot be satisfied from the rents of the realty, where the personal estate is sufficient for the payment of debts—Baptist Female University v. Border, 132 N. C. 476.

58. Tyndale v. Stanwood, 182 Mass. 534.

Accretions arising on personalty subsequent to the death of intestate may be applied towards payment of debts and expenses,[59] and creditors entitled to the proceeds of the sale are entitled to the accretions arising from the investment of such fund between the time of sale and distribution.[60] The proceeds of realty sold under direction in the will are personalty subject to the payment of testator's debts,[61] though the sale was directed merely for the purpose of distribution or payment of legacies,[62] and though the realty sold was situated without the state;[63] but a discretionary power to sell or divide[64] or a power of sale for the purpose of making division, does not effect a conversion of the realty and personalty so as to subject it to the payment of debts.[65] If there is sufficient property not specifically devised resort cannot be had against specific devises for payment of debts of the testator,[66] and before a specific devise can be subjected, realty devised to the widow who elected to take her statutory distributive share must first be resorted to.[67] A specific legacy less the "expenses of administration" is not subject to the representative's commissions or transfer taxes.[68] Unless the debts are charged against the realty both realty and personalty being specifically devised, both should contribute ratably.[69]

(§ 6) F. Payment and satisfaction.[70]—Generally payment of claims should be made only after allowance and authorization by the court,[71] but if by a compromise without authority the estate was benefited, the representative will be allowed the payment.[72] The partial payment of claims may be decreed though the estate is insolvent and no judicial settlement of the administrator's accounts has been had.[73] It is not an objection to the payment of claims of petitioning creditors that other creditors not joined may contest the allowance on the final settlement of the administrator's accounts.[74]

§ 7. Subjection of realty to payment of debts under order of court. A. Right to resort to realty.—Whether decedent's realty may be subjected to the payment of the debts of decedent must be determined by the laws of the state wherein the property is situated.[75] Generally it can be resorted to for the purpose of creating a fund with which to pay the debts of the decedent,[76] but only where there is an insufficiency of personal assets,[77] and the existence of debts and insufficiency of personalty may be shown by a decree of insolvency.[78] If an imperative power to sell to pay debts is given by the will, the statutory right should not be resorted to,[79] otherwise if the power is discretionary.[80]

59. As life tenant in the personalty of his deceased intestate wife the husband is not entitled to interest accruing on a judgment in favor of the wife accruing after her death but only to the income of the surplus personalty after payment of debts and expenses of the administration—Hunter v. Hersperger, 96 Md. 292.

60. In re Campbell's Estate, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 430.

61. In re Newell's Estate, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 563; Lynch v. Spicer (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 255.

62. In re Newell's Estate, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 563.

63. Though they were obliged to take out ancillary letters in the state where the land is situate—In re Newell's Estate, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 563.

64. Bedford v. Bedford (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 1017.

65. Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

66. In re Martin, 25 R. I. 1.

67. Baptist Female University v. Borden, 132 N. C. 476.

68. In re Pray, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 516.

69. Will construed and held to devise personalty specifically—Dauel v. Arnold, 201 Ill. 570; In re Martin, 25 R. I. 1.

70. See the title Payment and Tender, as to what is a payment.

71. Consent of one heir will not estop another heir to object to the allowance—Johnson v. Pulver (Neb.) 95 N. W. 697.

72. In re Wagner, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 490.

73. In re Miner's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 605.

74. In re Miner's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 605.

75. The court is without jurisdiction to direct a sale of decedent's land situate without the state for the payment of debts, since it will be presumed, in the absence of proof that the common law existed in that state—Seldner v. Katz, 96 Md. 212.

76. Wilson v. Wilson, 109 La. 1075, 34 So. 94.

77. Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646; In re Snow (Me.) 53 Atl. 116. It must be averred and proved that a sale is necessary for the payment of debts, under Rev. Sts. c. 71, § 1—In re Snow (Me.) 53 Atl. 116.

Only such claims as have been presented[81] and not barred by the statute of limitations may be enforced against the realty,[82] though under the statute of Maryland it is held that only claims enforceable against decedent during life can be so enforced.[83] The right to apply for sale of realty for the purpose of paying the expenses of the administrator may be barred by lapse of time.[84] Taxes not due are not such a debt as would justify a resort to realty.[85] Expenses of administration[86] and the widow's allowance[87] are provable in some states against the realty.

The homestead of a surviving widow[88] or land devised in lieu of dower and homestead, if not in excess of her rights as widow, cannot be subjected to the payment of debts,[89] though the value above the homestead may be.[90]

(§ 7) B. Procedure to obtain order.—Proceedings must be had before the estate is settled.[91] Jurisdiction is in the courts designated by statute.[92] The question whether the land sought to be sold had been fraudulently conveyed by the deceased cannot be determined.[93]

In Alabama the personal representative alone can apply for leave to sell realty for the payment of debts.[94] It is essential that all persons interested in the realty be made parties,[95] including minor heirs[96] for whom a guardian ad litem must be appointed.[97] The administrator of an insolvent intestate who had executed a deed of trust for the benefit of creditors may be joined with the trustees.[98]

Some notice is essential.[99] Constructive notice may be sufficient.[1]

If the proceedings to obtain leave to sell are instituted by order to show cause,

78. Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646.

79. In re Rowley, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 622.

80. Parker v. Beer, 173 N. Y. 332.

81. Cheairs v. Cheairs (Miss.) 33 So. 414.

82. Which applies to a claim by an attorney for procuring the probate of the will of the deceased—Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

83. A claim for damages for refusal to convey under an option given by deceased to purchase is not a debt due, where the deceased died before the expiration of the life of the option and before election to take by claimant—McGaw v. Gortner, 93 Md. 489.

84. An application made eight years after the grant of letters no excuse for the delay being given except for a short portion of the time held to bar the application—Mackin v. Hobbs, 116 Wis. 528.

85. Holburn v. Pfanmiller's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1613, 71 S. W. 940.

86. In re Roach's Estate, 139 Cal. 17, 72 Pac. 393; Deppe v. Cilley (Minn.) 94 N. W. 679. An attorney cannot have the realty sold to enforce his claim for services in probating the will—Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

87. It is so expressly provided by Rev. Sts. 1895, arts. 2037, 2043, under certain conditions which will be presumed to have existed in favor of the purchaser as against the widow—Johnson v. Weatherford (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 789.

88. The widow cannot be estopped to claim the land sold as her homestead. Though she failed to prosecute a proceeding for allotment and abandoned objections to the petition for leave to sell and even bid for the land at the sale—Houf v. Brown, 171 Mo. 207. The entire lot being exempt as a homestead for the widow and children, the purchaser thereof at the administrator's sale cannot have the homestead exempt set apart by appraisal.—Id. A will which devises to the widow all realty and personalty which should remain after payment of his just debts and funeral expenses does not authorize a resort to his homestead for the payment of his debts—Pym v. Pym (Wis.) 96 N. W. 429.

89. Dauel v. Arnold, 201 Ill. 570.

90. W. J. Perry Live Stock Commission Co. v. Biggs (Neb.) 94 N. W. 712.

91. If the executrix under a nonintervention will had settled the estate a sale on her application to the probate court to pay expenses of administration is void—English-McCaffery Logging Co. v. Clowe, 29 Wash. 721, 70 Pac. 138.

92. Where the judge of the court having probate jurisdiction was disqualified to act, jurisdiction may be conferred on the circuit court by his certifying the cause as authorized by Rev. Sts. 1899, § 1760—Meddis v. Kenney (Mo.) 75 S. W. 633.

93. The remedy in such case is provided by Pub. Sts. c. 134, § 15, by action or by entry and taking possession—Tyndale v. Stanwood, 182 Mass. 534.

94. Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646. This question depends largely on local statutes [Editor].

95. Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

96. Hill v. Taylor (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 9.

97. If the petition for the appointment is not verified and no affidavit filed showing that no general guardian had been appointed, it is error to overrule exceptions to the confirmation of the sale—Catlett v. Catlett's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1986, 72 S. W. 781.

98. Sufficiency of allegation of title—Robinson v. McDowell (N. C.) 45 S. E. 545.

99. Private sale on order without notice is void—Fussell v. Dennard (Ga.) 45 S. E. 247.

1. Where the estate had been long pending and the heirs had constructive notice provided by statute an order of sale will not be set aside because the heirs had not received a notice of the filing of the petition for sale—In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171.

the order need not contain a description of the property,[2] but if by petition it must aver the necessity for such proceeding,[3] it must accurately describe the land sought to be subjected,[4] and show the title of the deceased,[5] but the precise character of his interest need not be specifically set out.[6] It need not be averred that the property is encumbered.[7] If the parcel of realty is more than sufficient to pay claims, the petition must aver that a sale of a part thereof would depreciate the balance.[8]

A denial of the existence of the necessity for resort to the realty is a good answer.[9] Any heir may object to an application by the administrator to sell lands of the estate,[10] nor need notice of such objections be given the other heirs.[11] The objection that the petition did not allege that certain lands described had been conveyed by the devisee in bad faith must be raised by answer.[12] The application may be postponed.[13] That the time for hearing on the application was set for a day less than the statutory time is a mere irregularity not invalidating the proceedings.[14] Where the mode of service by publication is specially prescribed the procedure on publication in ordinary actions is not applicable.[15] A jury trial is not a matter of right in a proceeding to subject the decedent's lands to the payment of debts.[16] The administrator has the burden of proving the filing or presentment of claims under a plea of the statute of nonclaim.[17] Admissions by the heirs of deceased are not evidence of indebtedness against the estate.[18]

(§ 7) C. The order.—Inadequacy of price is not ground for vacating the order.[19]

If an order of sale was regularly made and the court had jurisdiction, and was not appealed from, it is binding on all[20] on the question of necessity for the sale.[21] That the notice for a hearing on application was set at a date short of the required time,[22] or that no order of confirmation of sale was found on the record ten years after the sale, is not ground for a collateral attack on the purchaser's title;[23] but if the record discloses that no notice was given of an application for an order directing a sale the order authorizing a private sale is void.[24]

2. In re Roach's Estate, 139 Cal. 17, 72 Pac. 393.

3. In re Snow (Me.) 53 Atl. 116. Petition held sufficient—In re Roach's Estate, 139 Cal. 17, 72 Pac. 393.

4. A petition is invalid if it fails to indicate with any degree of accuracy the section, township and range—Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646. Where the petition did not describe the land and an order granted thereon also failed to describe the land a conveyance thereof is void—Roberts v. Thomason (Mo.) 74 S. W. 624. A petition containing a description, "50 acres on the east side of the west half of the S. E. quarter of Section 15, and fractional N. W. end of N. E. quarter of Section 22, in all * * * containing 75 acres," is an insufficient description as to the lands in Section 22—Kornegay v. Mayer, 135 Ala. 141.

5. Petition held to sufficiently show title —Henley v. Johnston, 134 Ala. 646.

6, 7. Tyndale v. Stanwood, 182 Mass. 534.

8. In re Snow (Me.) 53 Atl. 116.

9. Finch v. Du Bignon, 117 Ga. 113. Sufficiency of answer—Dauel v. Arnold, 201 Ill. 570.

10, 11. Grant v. Noel (Ga.) 45 S. E. 279.

12. Galloway v. Galloway (S. C.) 45 S. E. 108.

13. Application for sale by administrator postponed until after expiration of lease held proper—Magruder v. Hornot (La.) 34 So. 696.

14. Haight v. Hayes (Neb.) 92 N. W. 297.

15. Held that the court need not wait until the statutory time after publication—In re Roach's Estate, 139 Cal. 17, 72 Pac. 393. Code Civ. Proc. (N. Y.) § 441, governing service of summons by publication does not apply—In re Denton's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 326.

16. Where the answer raises no issue involving the recovery of money only or of specific property—Gregory v. Perry (S. C.) 45 S. E. 4.

17. Evidence of the name of a claimant alone is insufficient to show a presentment—Kornegay v. Mayer, 135 Ala. 141.

18. Kornegay v. Mayer, 135 Ala. 141.

19. The objection should be made on confirmation—In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171.

20. In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171; Smith v. Huffman, 132 N. C. 600. Order is void when made after settlement of estate—English-McCaffery Logging Co. v. Clowe, 29 Wash. 721, 70 Pac. 138.

21. Dyson v. Jones, 65 S. C. 308; Haight v. Hayes (Neb.) 92 N. W. 297; In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171.

22. Haight v. Hayes (Neb.) 92 N. W. 297.

23. Mott v. Ft. Edward Water Works Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 179.

24. Fussell v. Dennard (Ga.) 45 S. E. 247.

Heirs of the deceased may appeal from the order authorizing a sale for the payment of debts,[25] but an executor cannot appeal from an order directing a sale for the payment of the widow's award.[26] In Utah such an order is not appealable as a final order.[27] The purchaser may appeal from an order vacating the decree of sale, though taken after the expiration of the time for appeal from the latter.[28] In the absence of evidence in the record, the findings of fact will not be reviewed.[29] On appeal, it will be presumed that it was proper to resort to the particular piece of realty directed to be sold.[30] In Maine the necessity for resort to realty must be proved on appeal, the decree of sale not being evidence of the fact.[31]

(§ 7) D. The sale.—The time within which the sale is required to be made will be computed from the time of entry of an order modifying the original order of sale.[32] The court may extend the time.[33] Sales by personal representatives under order granting leave for the payment of debts should be public.[34] A statute validating private sales by personal representatives defeats a pending action to avoid a sale on such ground.[35]

Statutory requirements of notice must be met.[36]

The representative's return of sale must show that the property was sold for the payment of debts.[37] A premature confirmation of sale is a mere irregularity which will not invalidate it.[38] That the accepted bid is far below the estimated value of the property,[39] or if the property was not offered in a manner which would be likely to bring the best price, the sale will not be confirmed.[40] The value of the land at the time of the sale determines the adequacy of the price.[41] Objections to the sale must be made on confirmation,[42] and cannot be first raised on appeal.[43] It will be presumed that the officer appointed to make the sale followed the statutory requirements.[44]

Equity has jurisdiction of a suit to avoid a sale of realty by the representative procured by fraud,[45] though the right to have it set aside may be lost by laches.[46]

25. Applied to a sale by the husband of community property—In re Wickersham's Estate (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1079.

26. Lane v. Thorn, 103 Ill. App. 215.

27. In re Williamson's Estate (Utah) 72 Pac. 2.

28. In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171.

29. In re Roach's Estate, 139 Cal. 17, 72 Pac. 393. The appellate court has no jurisdiction to determine the application on the merits where the record does not show what disposition has been made of the proceeding—Knerr v. McDonald, 30 Ind. App. 600.

30. In re Roach's Estate, 139 Cal. 17, 72 Pac. 393.

31. In re Snow, 96 Me. 570.

32. After the expiration of a year from the grant of a license to sell, the court can extend the time for sale not exceeding the limit fixed by Rev. St. 1898, § 3889—Mackin v. Hobbs, 116 Wis. 528. The sale must be made within two years after order granted—Id.

33. Mackin v. Hobbs, 116 Wis. 528.

34. In Pennsylvania, prior to act May 9, 1889, a personal representative who had procured an order for the sale of realty for the payment of debts was not authorized to sell at a private sale—Kiskaddon v. Dodds, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 351. The remainderman held not estopped under the facts from suing nineteen years after the making of a sale to avoid it on the ground that it was private—Id.

35. Kiskaddon v. Dodds, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 351.

36. A purchaser of timber rights and saw mills connected therewith, at a private sale, under an order authorizing it, where no notice of the intended sale had been published, acquires no title—Fussell v. Dennard (Ga.) 45 S. E. 247. That the posted notices of sale did not contain the sale commissioner's signature will not of itself invalidate the sale—Allsop v. Deposit Bank of Owensboro, 24 Ky. L. R. 762, 69 S. W. 1102.

37. Applied to return of sale of community property under power in will of the deceased spouse—In re Wickersham's Estate (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1079.

38. As where the order of sale, and the execution and delivery of the deed all take place at the same term of court (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 2512)—Custer v. Holler (Ind.) 67 N. E. 228.

39, 40. Ryan v. Wilson, 64 N. J. Eq. 797.

41. "Disproportionate to the value" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1552 means disproportionate to the value at the time of the bid—In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171.

42. In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171.

43. There is an objection that the notice was not published in the requisite time—Meddis v. Kenney (Mo.) 75 S. W. 633.

44. That the notice of sale was posted the required length of time—Allsop v. Deposit Bank of Owensboro, 24 Ky. L. R. 762, 69 S. W. 1102.

45. McAdow v. Boten (Kan.) 72 Pac. 529.

By accepting the benefits of a sale, the heirs may be estopped to set up its invalidity,[47] and the recovery of a judgment against the administrator by the heirs, in part for the proceeds of land sold operates as a ratification of the sale.[48]

The rule of caveat emptor applies to sales by representatives.[49] The purchaser is not bound to see that the proceeds are applied on the payment of the debts.[50] On resale for a less price after failure of the purchaser to complete his contract he will be liable for the difference in the price together with the costs of the resale.[51] Generally, the purchaser of land at a sale for the purpose of payment of debts is entitled to the rents from the date of the confirmation of the sale, and he cannot recover rent for the period of time announced at the sale that possession would be withheld.[52]

The temporary administrator may complete the sale made by the original representative by enforcing the bid and executing a deed without leave of court.[53]

§ 8. Rights and liabilities between representatives and estate. A. Management of, and dealings with the estate.—The representative is bound only to exercise the care of a prudent man in the management of his own business.[54] Any misconduct,[55] or neglect of official duty by a representative[56] or his agent renders him personally liable for the resulting loss.[57] A representative is liable for such property as is actually shown to be in his hands at the time of the settlement of his accounts,[58] and if at such time he is insolvent and has no funds or property, he will be held liable as representative, though he claims to have transferred such sum to himself as guardian for the sole distributee.[59] He is properly charged with assets received prior to his appointment.[60]

If the representative fails to exercise due diligence in attempting to collect debts due the estate, he will be personally charged therewith,[61] as where, by an agreement

"If the proceedings were unfair" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1552, warranting the setting aside of a sale, means some irregularity as to the notice or fraud and collusion among bidders—In re Leonis' Estate, 138 Cal. 194, 71 Pac. 171. As to sufficiency of instruction in an action to avoid sale on the ground of fraud, see—Morrow v. Cole, 132 N. C. 678.

Fraud. Because the personal representative assisted in establishing the claim against the estate, (Morrow v. Cole, 132 N. C. 678) or that the purchaser had been imposed on and bought at an excessive price, are not alone grounds for setting aside the sale particularly where the administratrix purchased at the appraised value and retained the property for more than a year making payment and only one creditor was represented in the proceeding to avoid the sale and none of the heirs (Benson v. Benson, 97 Mo. App. 460) nor is the fact that the grantee of the purchasers knew that a certain person was claiming as heir of deceased sufficient to put him on inquiry as to fraud in procuring the sale—Morrow v. Cole, 132 N. C. 678.

46. Twelve years after the discovery of fraud held sufficient to bar the proceeding —Eames v. Manly (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 387.

47. Battle v. Wright, 116 Ga. 218. By receiving a distributive share of the proceeds of a sale of land to pay debts, the heir is estopped to question the validity of the deed—Meddis v. Kenney (Mo.) 75 S. W. 633.

48. Battle v. Wright, 116 Ga. 218.

49. Keen v. McAfee, 116 Ga. 728.

50. Applied where the survivor in community sold to pay community debts—Cruse v. Barclay (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 358.

51. Thomas v. Caldwell, 136 Ala. 518.

52. Broadwell v. Sammons, 24 Ky. L. R. 814, 69 S. W. 1084.

53. Goodwynne v. Bellerby, 116 Ga. 901.

54. O'Brian Bros. v. Wilson (Miss.) 33 So. 946.

55. As where an administrator wrongfully obtained control of the intestate's business and property at less than full value and where he failed to account for part of the assets—In re Feierabend, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 524.

56. If the personal representative co-mingles funds in such a manner that he is unable to separate the funds on his accounting, he will be personally charged for any loss occurring to the estate—In re Hayes, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 500. The executor should not be charged for failure to surrender premises rented by the deceased by the month, where delay was caused by a contest of the will wherein his fitness to administer was also questioned—In re Murray's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 433. For a depreciation in realty resulting from a neglect of performance of their duties, the executors are jointly liable—In re Irvine's Estate, 203 Pa. 602.

57. The administrator is personally liable for funds of the estate paid by him to rectify errors made by his attorney in an action—In re Hayes, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 500.

58, 59. State v. Whitehouse, 75 Conn. 410.

60. In re Lovell's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 378.

61. Carpenter v. Stowe's Estate, 75 Vt. 114; In re Hutton's Estate, 92 Mo. App. 132; In re Irvine's Estate, 203 Pa. 602. An administrator cannot be charged for failure to extend time of payment, a solvent surety was released, the maker being insolvent,[62] though it must first appear that the debt was due and payable.[63]

For unauthorized payments, as when the claim had not been allowed, the representative will not be credited,[64] though made with the consent of one of the heirs;[65] but if by an unauthorized compromise of a claim the estate was benefited, he should not be personally charged with the payment,[66] nor will payment of distributive shares before the debts are paid be credited.[67]

The representative is not chargeable with rents until he takes possession of the realty for the purpose of payment of debts, though the will effected an equitable conversion of the realty,[68] but he will be personally charged with rents during the time in which he wrongfully withheld possession from the heirs.[69] He cannot be held liable for injuries committed to the freehold by the purchaser at a void sale where he had never been in possession or control, or aided or abetted in the injuries.[70]

Since personal representatives cannot deal with the estate to their own individual profit[71] they cannot directly[72] or through a third person purchase at their own sales;[73] they may, however, in the absence of fraud, purchase at a foreclosure sale of decedent's property,[74] or buy the interest of an heir[75] or claims for money received by decedent as guardian, where such funds never came into the hands of the representative.[76] If the personal representative purchased realty with estate assets taking title in his own name he may be compelled to reconvey the same to persons entitled thereto.[77] On avoidance of a sale, it is not necessary to reimburse the representative the consideration, where he had collected the rents and profits equal in amount thereto.[78] To enforce the payment of the purchase price of property sold to an administrator, the remedy of the co-administrator is to enforce the decree settling the accounts of his co-administrator and charging him with the purchase money and not by bill to enforce a vendor's lien.[79] Any profits which the representative made by dealing with the funds of the estate will be charged against him.[80] to enter deficiency judgment in mortgage foreclosure proceedings where such judgments would have been worthless—In re Hayes, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 500. He cannot be charged with property of which he had no knowledge or by the exercise of ordinary diligence could not have discovered—O'Brian Bros. v. Wilson (Miss.) 33 So. 946.

62. Foster v. Foster, 24 Ky. L. R. 1396, 71 S. W. 524.

63. He cannot be charged with a judgment which the representative knew in fact to have been paid deceased—Mulford v. Mulford (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 79.

64. Langston v. Canterbury, 173 Mo. 122.

65. Johnson v. Pulver (Neb.) 95 N. W. 697.

66. In re Wagner, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 490.

67. Keiningham v. Keiningham's Ex'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1330, 71 S. W. 497. Though the payments were made on advice of counsel and the probate judge—James v. West, 67 Ohio St. 28.

68. Tunnicliffe v. Fox (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1032.

69. Maney v. Casserly (Mich.) 96 N. W. 478.

70. Morrow v. Cole, 132 N. C. 678.

71. In re Peck, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 296. Sufficiency of complaint in an action to recover stock purchased with assets of the estate by a co-executor and transferred as collateral security—Ruggles v. O'Brien, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 641. If the personal representative wrongfully disposes of the personalty to his own advantage, he will be compelled to pay the creditors of the deceased—In re Brady's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 397. Funds received by the executor as extra compensation in the performance of duties as officers of a corporation in which the decedent was interested, held not a part of the profits of the corporation belonging to the estate—In re Schaefer, 171 N. Y. 686.

72. Cole v. Boyd (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1003.

73. Sufficiency of evidence to support a verdict setting aside a sale to the husband of the administratrix—Lowery v. Idelson (Ga.) 45 S. E. 51.

74. O'Brian Bros. v. Wilson (Miss.) 33 So. 946.

75. If by the conveyance title of undiscovered property passed it will be decreed to be held by the representative in trust and a reconveyance directed—Shelby v. Creighton (Neb.) 96 N. W. 382.

76. Murray v. Barden, 132 N. C. 136.

77. Evidence held sufficient to show that the administrator purchased an heir's interest with proceeds of certain personalty belonging to the estate—Stone v. Burge, 24 Ky. L. R. 2424, 74 S. W. 250.

78. Cole v. Boyd (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1003.

79. Langley v. Langley, 135 Ala. 383.

(§ 8) B. Representative as creditor or debtor.—The representative may pay himself on appointment for services rendered the deceased as his general guardian.[81] A representative may retain sufficient assets to pay his personal claim[82] if he reports it though it became barred during administration,[83] or a claim against the estate may be enforced by bill in equity against the co-executor.[84] A claim for expenses for services rendered by an administrator under a void appointment can be allowed only on notice as on an accounting.[85] By the acceptance of administration, debts due decedent by the representative will be treated as funds in his hands,[86] unless at the time of the acceptance he was and continued to be during the entire administration insolvent,[87] and he has the burden of proof to establish the fact of insolvency;[88] this does not, however apply if he became insolvent pending his administration.[89] Commissions to which the personal representative may be entitled may be applied in payment of a claim by the estate against him.[90]

(§ 8) C. Interest on property or funds.—If the representative unnecessarily retains the funds and delays making final settlement of his accounts[91] or if he uses the funds in the conduct of his own business he will be charged with interest,[92] though there had been no demand for a settlement;[93] but that the money was involved in litigation and unproductive will relieve him from liability.[94] He is chargeable with interest on a sum retained by him as compensation before final settlement,[95] but not on funds held by the deceased as trustee.[96] Interest may be allowed against administrators from the time of the refusal to pay the widow's statutory allowance,[97] and on funds not accounted for from the time of his death.[98] Simple interest only is allowed on rents received to which third persons were en-

80. As where he purchased with estate funds outstanding claims at a discount and paid himself in full—In re Rainforth's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 609.

81. Reed v. Hume, 25 Utah, 248, 70 Pac. 998. The insertion of a claim against himself in an inventory filed by an executor is not of itself sufficient to sustain a plea of set off in an action by him against the estate—Siebert v. Steinmeyer, 204 Pa. 419.

82. Evidence held insufficient to establish a claim by the personal representative against the estate—In re Arkenburgh, 171 N. Y. 688; In re Rosell's Estate, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 463.

83. But where he made no return until after action was brought to compel an accounting and long after the period of limitation had expired the presumption that the return setting up such retainer is correct and that the claim is just may be overcome by slight evidence—Willis v. Sutton, 116 Ga. 283.

84. As a claim for board and attendance furnished testator—Ely v. Ely (N. J. Sup.) 53 Atl. 1125.

85. Such claim does not come within Wis. Rev. St. 1898, § 3838—Brown v. McGee's Estate (Wis.) 94 N. W. 363.

86. Devisson v. Akin, 42 Or. 177, 70 Pac. 507. As where he was the principal on a secured note or where it was due from a partnership firm in which the representative was a member—James v. West, 67 Ohio St. 28; In re Howell's Estate (Neb.) 92 N. W. 760.

87, 88, 89. In re Howell's Estate (Neb.) 92 N. W. 760.

90. In re Brintnall, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 67.

91. Kenan v. Graham, 135 Ala. 585. The fact that the court had ordered but one payment of fifty per cent to creditors will not operate to excuse retention of large sums without report during several years, nor will a failure of the court to order a payment out of the unreported funds entitle the administrator to retain all of the profits which his own bank in which he deposited the funds could make—Johnson v. Pulver (Neb.) 95 N. W. 697. In the absence of bad faith, delay in the settlement of the estate, or that the money could have been invested to better advantage, the personal representatives should not be charged with interest—In re Woodbury's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 143. Where executors were directed to invest funds which they retained from May 1, 1866, until March, 1867, they will not be charged with interest during such time—Mulford v. Mulford (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 79.

92. If a representative borrows money from the estate, he will be chargeable with interest, at the rate of not less than five, or more than 6%—In re Flynn's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 126; In re Burke's Estate, 96 Mo. App. 295.

93. After two years—Haskins v. Martin, 103 Ill. App. 115.

94. James v. West, 67 Ohio St. 28.

95. Kenan v. Graham, 135 Ala. 585.

96. Elizalde v. Elizalde, 137 Cal. 634, 66 Pac. 369, 70 Pac. 861.

97. Which may be recovered in the action for the recovery of the allowance—Brown v. Bernhamer, 159 Ind. 538.

98. At six per cent—Maney v. Casserly (Mich.) 96 N. W. 478.

titled under an independent right and not as heirs.[99] A consent to a discharge is a waiver of the right to compel the representative to pay interest.[1]

(§ 8) D. Allowances for expenses, costs, counsel fees, and funeral expenses.—That the appointment was void because of lack of jurisdiction on the part of the appointing court is not ground for refusing reimbursement for money expended in good faith;[2] merely because the person employed as agent by the representative is a relative is not ground for refusing to allow the representative the compensation paid.[3] Traveling expenses not necessary in the performance of duties as representatives are not chargeable.[4]

If the deceased in his lifetime procured a burial lot and a monument the expense of procuring one by the representative will not be allowed,[5] and only a reasonable allowance should be granted for funeral expenses.[6]

A representative may be personally charged with the costs of the accounting,[7] as where he rendered complicated accounts necessitating an audit[8] or where he had used the estate funds to speculate in claims against the estate;[9] but if no material benefit resulted to the estate by reason of the contest the contestants will not be allowed the costs.[10]

The executor is entitled to a reasonable allowance for attorney's services in procuring the probate of the will[11] as well as to resist a caveat interposed before the will had been admitted;[12] but he will not be allowed costs and expenses of a proceeding between legatees to contest validity of a will though he made a successful defense.[13] For legal services rendered the representative in the administration of the estate he should be allowed a reasonable sum,[14] and an extra compensation may be allowed for legal services performed by himself,[15] but he will not be allowed for services which could have been rendered by himself without the assistance of counsel.[16]

(§ 8) E. Rights and liabilities of co-representatives and successors.—Executors are jointly liable for all funds coming into their hands unaccounted for.[17] To

99. Anderson v. Northrop (Fla.) 33 So. 419.

1. Tucker v. Stewart (Iowa) 97 N. W. 148.

2. Brown v. McGee's Estate (Wis.) 94 N. W. 363.

3. If the executor has several pieces of rented realty he may properly employ his son to collect the rents paying him customary rates therefor—In re Wagner, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 490.

4. In re Biggars, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 426.

5. In re Woodbury's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 143.

6. A witness' estimate as to value is not binding on the court or jury—Foley v. Broeksmit (Iowa) 93 N. W. 344.

7. In re Holmes, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 264.

8. Though where he mingled his administration accounts with the accounts in the conduct of the realty on request of the heirs, he will not be charged with the costs of the audit—In re Young's Estate, 204 Pa. 32.

9. In re Rainforth's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 609.

10. In re Eadie, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 117.

11. Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354. That the devisees notified him that they would employ their own counsel pending contest is not ground for refusal of such allowance—Reed v. Reed, 24 Ky. L. R. 2438, 74 S. W. 207. The amount of allowance of counsel fees in probate held proper—Id.

12. Tuohy v. Hanlon, 18 App. D. C. 225.

13. In re Fry's Estate, 96 Mo. App. 208.

14. McKee v. Soher, 138 Cal. 367, 71 Pac. 438, 649. It is so expressly provided by Rev. St. 1889, § 223—Langston v. Canterbury, 173 Mo. 122. The amount of fees for counsel in aiding the preparation of the accounts and the judicial settlement thereof is within the discretion of the court. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2561, 2562, does not limit the amount of such fees—In re Mitchell, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 120. On the executor's general statement that the attorneys' services rendered were for the giving of advice he will not be allowed an additional sum for such attorneys of $500, $650 having been allowed to another attorney—In re Peck, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 296. The attorneys for the personal representative should be allowed a reasonable sum for services of attorney rendered in a proceeding for the distribution of the estate—Clark v. Young, 24 Ky. L. R. 2395, 74 S. W. 245. Allowance for extra services held proper—Id.

15. Under Wis. Rev. St. 1898, § 3929, the allowance of an account for extra service held not an abuse of discretion on the part of the court because not presented in detail —In re Ryan's Estate (Wis.) 94 N. W. 342.

16. In re Murray's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 433.

17. In re Irvine's Estate, 203 Pa. 602.

render an executor liable for a devastavit of his co-executor, it must appear that he was guilty of negligence in the performance of his duty.[18]

(§ 8) F. Compensation.—Representatives cannot retain specific sums claimed as a commission before the final settlement of their accounts.[19]

While the mere neglect of duty will not operate as a forfeiture of compensation,[20] it will not be allowed where the personal representative is surcharged with large sums because of mismanagement[21] or where he failed to comply with an order directing an account[22] or where he speculated with the funds of the state for personal profit.[23] Failure to perform the duties as representative will operate as a waiver of the right to compensation.[24] That the appointment was void by reason of lack of jurisdiction in the appointing court is not reason for depriving him of compensation for services rendered in good faith.[25] If the representative continued the deceased's business without authorization he will not be allowed compensation for services rendered therein.[26] The representative will be allowed only the statutory commissions[27] or such as are reasonable[28] computed on such transactions as the statute contemplates.[29] For carrying on the business of the deceased under directions in the will for a stated time the executor is entitled only to reasonable compensation, and not to the statutory commission on gross receipts or the disbursements.[30]

In most states where extraordinary services have been rendered an extra allowance beyond the statutory commissions may be granted,[31] and the apportionment thereof between the co-representatives should be made by the court granting the same,[32] the amount being within the discretion of the court.[33]

(§ 8) G. Rights and liabilities of sureties and actions on bonds.—Since a debt due decedent by a solvent representative is considered funds in his hands[34] it may be enforced against the sureties on his administration bond,[35] and to avoid such liability they have the burden of showing insolvency of the representative at the time of the appointment.[36] It is a breach of the bond to pay claims without

18. In re Hunt, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 613. Executor held not liable for the state funds on the bankruptcy of his co-executor—In re Hoagland, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 56.

19. Kenan v. Graham, 135 Ala. 585.

20. In re Brintnall, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 67. Failure to reduce note to possession which during the lifetime of the intestate passed into the maker's hands is not such negligence, particularly where the representative was charged with the principal and interest of the note—In re Baker, 172 N. Y. 617.

21. In re Hayes, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 500.

22. An injunction restraining the executor from transferring or incumbering alleged partnership effects of his intestate is not an excuse for failure to comply with an order directing him to render an account—West v. Municipal Court, 25 R. I. 84.

23. In re Rainforth's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 609.

24. Foster v. Foster, 24 Ky. L. R. 1396, 71 S. W. 524.

25. Brown v. McGee's Estate (Wis.) 94 N. W. 363.

26. In re Peck, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 296.

27. So held though the will directed that the executors "be paid liberally"—Kenan v. Graham, 135 Ala. 585.

28. Four and a half per cent allowance on personalty amounting to $263,000 reduced to three per cent—In re Young's Estate, 204 Pa. 32.

29. Commissions will not be allowed on a specific legacy (In re Whipple, 81 App. Div. [N. Y.] 589) or on property which is not an asset but goes to the devisees or heirs in kind—Glover v. Check, 24 Ky. L. R. 1281, 71 S. W. 438.

They should be allowed on the amount of personalty collected and not as inventoried (Webb v. Peck [Mich.] 92 N. W. 104) and only on such sums actually paid out and received during the life of the representative—In re Whipple, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 589.

If commissions had been allowed on funds of the estate, he will not be allowed further commissions on investments made with the funds—In re Davidson's Estate, 204 Pa. 381.

30. Lamar v. Lamar (Ga.) 45 S. E. 498.

31. An extra allowance held excessive and reduced—Glover v. Check, 24 Ky. L. R. 1281, 71 S. W. 438. Extra allowance for legal services rendered by himself—In re Ryan's Estate (Wis.) 94 N. W. 342.

32. The court on appeal from an order allowing the additional compensation will remand the cause for apportionment—Glover v. Check, 24 Ky. L. R. 1783, 72 S. W. 302.

33. The opinions of a witness as to what would be a fair compensation is not admissible—Kenan v. Graham, 135 Ala. 585. Allowance held not excessive—In re Ryan's Estate (Wis.) 94 N. W. 342.

34. See ante, § 8B.

35. James v. West, 67 Ohio St. 28.

36. Keegan v. Smith, 172 N. Y. 624.

authorization[37] or to fail to take solvent notes in consideration of a sale of personalty as directed by an order of the probate court.[38] Nonpayment of a claim is not a breach where the estate would be exhausted by the payment of preferred or prior claims,[39] but the mere fact that the estate was insolvent[40] or that a decree of probable insolvency had been entered is not a bar to a pending action on the bond by a creditor of the estate.[41]

Until liability has been fixed and the representative has failed to pay no action can be maintained on his bond,[42] and an accounting is an essential pre-requisite,[43] but this does not apply to an action by an administrator de bonis non against the removed representative and his sureties,[44] nor is it in such case necessary that a demand be made before suit brought or a judgment be procured against the removed representative.[45] After issuance of a citation therefor and failure of the representative to account the action may be maintained.[46]

Any person damaged by the breach of the bond[47] as a creditor entitled to payment of his claim[48] or widow or next of kin of decedent are entitled to sue,[49] and several persons interested may jointly enforce the liability.[50] The administrator de bonis non may maintain the action to recover unadministered assets.[51] A judgment creditor may sue without first obtaining leave of court.[52]

It is only where a single creditor seeks to surcharge or falsify the accounts settled by a personal representative that equity will have jurisdiction of his bill against the personal representative and his bond.[53]

A claim against the estate of a deceased surety on an executor's bond may be filed in the probate court in the name of the actual claimant.[54] The fact that no claim was filed against the estate of a deceased surety on an executor's bond will not bar an action against the surety's legatee, where the executor's account had not been filed until after the surety's estate had been settled.[55]

The special statute of limitations barring claims against an estate does not apply to an action on the bond of a representative by his successor,[56] and the time in which distributees may sue does not begin to run until after a judgment has been had determining the amount to which they are entitled.[57] The sureties are estopped to question the validity of the appointment,[58] and it is not a defense that

37, 38. State v. Taylor (Mo. App.) 74 S W. 1032.

39. Under Me. Rev. St. c. 66, § 2. Where it is shown that the estate was exhausted by payment of the first four classes of claims, the non-liability of the sureties on the bond for claims of other classes was settled—Burgess v. Young, 97 Me. 386.

40. It would have been the duty of the probate court when the administratrix represented the estate insolvent to appoint commissioners or to pass upon claims presented —Fuller v. Dupont (Mass.) 67 N. E. 662.

41. Since in such case the action could be stayed until determination of the insolvency proceedings under Rev. Laws, c. 142, § 2—McKim v. Roosa (Mass.) 67 N. E. 651.

42. Garvey v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 391. Under Wis. Rev. St. 1898, § 4014 it is not a prerequisite to an action that a devastavit and default be determined as against the representative—Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246.

43. Reed v. Hume, 25 Utah, 248, 70 Pac. 998.

44. American Surety Co. v. Platt (Kan.) 72 Pac. 775.

45. Fuller v. Dupont (Mass.) 67 N. E. 662.

46. Probate Court v. Potter (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1085.

47, 48. State v. Taylor (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 1032.

49. Meservey v. Kalloch, 97 Me. 91. In some states the suit runs by the name of the state or the court of probate to the use of the damnified person [Editor].

50. That the writ issued under Gen. Laws, c. 220, § 21, was indorsed and issued at the instance of more than one interested party is not ground for a demurrer—Probate Court v. Potter (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1085.

51. Meservey v. Kalloch, 97 Me. 91; American Surety Co. v. Platt (Kan.) 72 Pac. 775.

52. Under Rev. St. Mass. c. 149, § 20—McKim v. Roosa (Mass.) 67 N. E. 651.

53. Thompson v. Mann (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 246.

54. Even though under the state statute actions on such bonds must be brought in the name of the people—Thomson v. Black, 200 Ill. 465.

55. Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246.

56. Fuller v. Dupont (Mass.) 67 N. E. 662.

57. Craddock v. Browning, 24 Ky. L. R. 1074, 70 S. W. 684.

58. Romy v. State (Ind. App.) 67 N. E.

the settlement of accounts was procured by fraud.[59] A mere mistake of the amount claimed as distributee in an action by him as such on the bond is not fatal.[60] Interest may be allowed and should be computed from the date of the allowance of the representative's account.[61] The judgment may be for the full amount of the estate.[62]

§ 9. Actions by and against representatives and costs therein.—A successor may prosecute actions instituted by his predecessor without authorization from the court.[63] Actions affecting assets may be brought by persons interested in the estate only when the personal representative refuses to sue.[64] An executor may sue for a construction of the will of his testator to ascertain the rights of the beneficiaries.[65]

Since the administrator takes no interest in the realty[66] he cannot maintain a suit to declare a resulting trust in favor of decedent[67] or to affect the title in realty,[68] though under the code of N. Dakota he may maintain such actions;[69] but where resort to the realty will be necessary for the payment of debts he may maintain an action to set aside a void attachment lien,[70] and he has such an interest in the land as would entitle him to be made a party plaintiff to an action to restrain the commission of waste thereon.[71] In all actions affecting the realty the heirs or persons interested therein should be made parties.[72]

Property or funds in the hands of personal representatives being in custodia legis cannot be reached by attachment[73] or garnishment.[74]

Foreign appointees may maintain actions against residents,[75] but actions against them must be brought in the state of the appointment unless there are assets in the state and they qualify therein,[76] and in such case the action may be maintained if they fail to take out ancillary letters.[77] An action against a foreign executor to recover a legacy may be maintained if he is found within the state.[78]

An appearance by one of two defendant co-executors binds both.[79]

998. In an action on the bond of an administrator of an absentee under the Indiana statute, the sureties are estopped to question the validity of the appointment on the ground that the absentee was still alive at the time of the appointment—Id.

59. Since decrees settling the accounts of representatives cannot be collaterally attacked—State v. Carroll (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 468.

60. Sufficiency of complaint in an action against the administrator and his bondsmen by a distributee—Miller v. Ganser, 87 Minn. 345.

61. Fuller v. Dupont (Mass.) 67 N. E. 662.

62. Though the executor was beneficiary under the will, no final order to settle the accounts or distribute the estate having been made—Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246.

63. Goodwynne v. Bellerby, 116 Ga. 901. Revival of actions by and against decedents, see Abatement and Revival.

64. It is not necessary to the maintenance of a suit for an accounting by a creditor against the administrator and the county judge alleging the fraudulent retention of fees, that the administrator shall refuse to sue—McGlave v. Fitzgerald (Neb.) 93 N. W. 692. The legatee may recover property bequeathed from third persons on the executors giving consent to the legacy—People's Nat. Bank v. Cleveland, 117 Ga. 908.

65. Leggett v. Stevens, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 612.

66. See ante, § 4C.

67. Johnston v. Johnston, 173 Mo. 91.

68. Bailey v. Larrance, 104 Ill. App. 662.

69. Rev. Codes 1899, §§ 6372, 6380, 6460, 6461—Blakemore v. Roberts (N. D.) 96 N. W. 1029.

70. Munger v. Doolan (Conn.) 55 Atl. 169.

71. Halstead v. Coen (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 957.

72. Under Laws 1887, c. 147, as amended by Laws 1901, c. 186, on death of a mortgagee before payment, all his rights and powers as mortgagee pass to his personal representatives. On death of the mortgagee pending an action to foreclose, his executor, to continue the action must make the mortgagee's heirs parties—Hughes v. Gay, 132 N. C. 50. Action to avoid a conveyance by deceased because procured by fraud—Gaines v. Gaines, 116 Ga. 475, 476.

73. Gorman v. Stillman (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1088.

74. Williams v. Smith (Wis.) 93 N. W. 464.

75. A foreign administrator may maintain an action for the wrongful death of the intestate without ancillary appointment, where the cause of action arose in the state of his appointment—Boulden v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 205 Pa. 264.

76. So held under the statutes of Illinois—Filer v. Rainey, 120 Fed. 718.

77. Montgomery v. Boyd, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 64.

78. Keiningham v. Keiningham's Ex'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1330, 71 S. W. 497.

79. Montgomery v. Boyd, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 64.

The description in the body of the pleading controls the caption in determining whether the action is brought in the individual or representative capacity,[80] and if nothing appears in the body to indicate that the action is brought in the representative capacity, the words "executor" or "administrator" in the caption will be treated as surplusage;[81] so also if the claim is in the representative's individual capacity an allegation of representative capacity will be treated as descriptio personae.[82] It is not fatal that the complaint in an action where the representative sues in such capacity and individually does not state his capacity.[83] Where time of appointment is alleged it is not necessary to plead the death of decedent.[84] Representative capacity is not in issue if not made so by special plea.[85]

Certified copies of letters of administration are sufficient proof of authority to maintain the action.[86]

The general rule is that where the representative is unsuccessful he will be charged with costs.[87] Where the action was caused by the wrongful acts of the representatives[88] or where he has been guilty of misconduct or bad faith in defending it he should be personally charged with the costs.[89] Since under the statute whereby a claim which was not presented within the time required if put in action will not carry costs it is improper to tax disbursements.[90] If the claim sued on was materially reduced by the representative's contest thereof he should not be charged with costs,[91] though plaintiff consented on the trial to a reduction.[92] An allowance in addition to costs may be granted where the representative unreasonably refused or neglected to pay.[93] If a judgment against a personal representative does not in terms make the costs chargeable against the estate, the representative is personally liable.[94] If the representative appeals from a judgment as a legatee the costs may be taxed against him personally.[95]

§ 10. Accounting and settlement by representatives. A. Who may require.—Only parties interested in the estate can compel representatives to account.[96] A

80. If the complaint describes the plaintiff as "A. B., executor," omitting the word "as" and in the body of the complaint states that he sues as executor, it sufficiently shows the action to have been brought in a representative capacity—Englehart v. Richter, 136 Ala. 562. Sufficiency of declaration as to authority of plaintiff executrix in an action to recover assets—Acton v. Walker's Ex'x, 24 Ky. L. R. 2377, 74 S. W. 231. A complaint in an action against an administrator held not defective because of a failure to show that the defendant contracted individually or in his representative capacity—Magoun v. Magoun, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 232.

81. Williamson v. Stevens, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 518.

82. Hayden v. Kirby (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 198. The representative capacity of plaintiffs as executors need not be set out in the complaint in an action to quiet title—San Francisco & F. Land Co. v. Hartung, 138 Cal. 223, 71 Pac. 337.

83. Steele v. Gilmour Mfg. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 199.

84. Stanley v. Sierra Nevada Silver Min. Co., 118 Fed. 931.

85. Harte v. Fraser, 104 Ill. App. 201.

86. Sands v. Hickey (Ala.) 33 So. 827. In the justice's court he need not prove his capacity though his statement says that he sues as executor—Knoche v. Perry, 90 Mo. App. 483.

87. As where he fails in a suit to subject property to the payment of decedent's debts —Holburn v. Pfanmiller's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1613, 71 S. W. 940.

88. The personal representative is properly charged with costs of an action to prevent him from committing waste—Steinway v. Von Bernuth, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 596.

89. Opitz v. Karel (Wis.) 95 N. W. 948. The representative will be charged with the usual costs on payment of a claim after suit brought against him. If after foreclosure was instituted he will be charged with costs accruing to the time of payment, including $500 as attorney's fees—Hall v. Metcalfe, 24 Ky. L. R. 1660, 72 S. W. 18. Costs and extra allowance are proper in action against the personal representative to foreclose a mortgage executed by the deceased —Richards v. Stillman, 172 N. Y. 632.

90. Code Civ. Proc. § 1836. Though on reference of such a claim it was stipulated that the disbursements and expenses of the reference should be taxed as part of the costs of the case, the plaintiff being under the Code not entitled to tax his costs, it is improper to tax the disbursements, that is, the reference fees, witness fees and other proper charges—Nichols v. Moloughney, 82 N. Y. Supp. 949.

91, 92. Healy v. Malcolm, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 422.

93. Weeks v. Coe, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 310.

94. McCarthy v. Speed (S. D.) 94 N. W. 411.

95. Roberts v. Lamberton (Wis.) 94 N. W. 650.

96. A grand-child of the testator held not to have such an interest as will entitle him legatee in remainder after the expiration of a life estate created by will vesting in the life tenants the right to use both principal and income for specific purposes has such an interest as will entitle him to compel an accounting by the executrix.[97] A creditor may maintain an action for an accounting against the administrator and judge on the ground of retention of illegal fees, though he may have other remedies.[98] The granting of an order by the court having probate jurisdiction directing the filing of an account by personal representatives on petition of a creditor is discretionary.[99]

(§ 10) B. Procedure.—Courts of equity and probate courts have concurrent jurisdiction to settle the accounts of representatives,[1] but the court first assuming has exclusive jurisdiction,[2] though on the ground of surprise equity will assume jurisdiction.[3] A representative can be compelled to account only for funds which came into his hands as such.[4] The probate court cannot therefore settle the accounts of an executor as testamentary trustee,[5] though the fact that the executor was also appointed testamentary trustee will not affect the jurisdiction of the court to compel an accounting as executor.[6] A sole surviving partner and executor of the deceased partner may be compelled to settle his accounts in the probate court.[7] In Texas, the death of the representative ousts the court of jurisdiction to determine the rights between deceased and the estate which he represented.[8] In New York, to maintain the proceedings—Tunnicliffe v. Fox (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1032.

97. Where the executrix was by will directed to support the widow and an imbecile son during life the residuary legatee may compel the executrix to file a supplemental accounting, showing in detail her transactions with the principal of the estate, and an itemized statement of all the income received, and a statement in detail of the payments made under the provisions in the will, and this though the executrix was also the widow and life tenant under the will—In re Hunt's Estate, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 159.

98. The remedies to re-tax costs, or action on the administrator's bond or to recover penalties for taking illegal fees not being exclusive—McGlave v. Fitzgerald (Neb.) 93 N. W. 692.

99. Code Civ. Proc. § 2727, answer held insufficient to warrant the denial of a petition for such an accounting—In re Blum's Estate, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 161.

1. Haughian v. Conlon, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 584. Equity has jurisdiction of a suit to protect the trust estate against the executor acting as trustee and to afford complete relief by compelling an accounting. As where a sole executor and trustee of an estate was co-executor of another estate of which his wife was executrix and residuary legatee and he was joining with her in the assertion of claims against the former estate, though no conspiracy is proved—Steinway v. Von Bernuth, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 596. Action against the co-representative to recover assets held not to be an action for conversion but one in equity for the adjustment of the interests of the parties—Ruggles v. O'Brien, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 641.

2. To oust jurisdiction pending proceedings before the surrogate must be pleaded—Haughian v. Conlon, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 584.

3. The proceedings in the orphan's court being a surprise to the executor who was unable to prepare his defense at once, where he asks by bill to be allowed to settle in a court of equity and to foreclose certain mortgages connected with the estate—Mulford v. Mulford (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 79.

4. A general guardian on a subsequent appointment of administrator of the deceased parent of his ward, cannot be compelled to account for sums paid to him as guardian from an estate in which the mother was the sole distributee—In re Maybee's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 518. The Surrogate has no jurisdiction on the settlement of the account of the executors of a deceased stockholder in a corporation who were also officers and directors therein, to determine whether the executors have used their powers as officers and directors in voting extra compensation to themselves or in distributing the corporation's property—In re Shaefer, 171 N. Y. 686. The probate court has jurisdiction to direct a surrender of the rents collected and reported to the court to the person entitled thereto though the land was rented by the representative without authority—Lyons v. Lyons (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 467.

5. In re Belt's Estate, 29 Wash. 535, 70 Pac. 74. Where the executor and testamentary trustee had settled the estate without an accounting in court, and leaving in his hands the residuary estate in trust after the death of the beneficiary, the probate court has no jurisdiction to settle the accounts as executor including the trust property—Canfield v. Canfield (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 1.

6. Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246.

7. In re Dummett, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 477; In re Mertens' Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 512. Under the Alaska Code, the District Court has jurisdiction to determine the claim by a surviving partner against the estate of his deceased partner, which involves an accounting of the partnership affairs (31 U. S. Stat. 457, §§ 790-794)—Esterly v. Rua (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 609.

8. McClellan v. Mangum (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 840.

on death of the representative pending settlement, a revivor thereof may be had.[9] The probate court has jurisdiction to compel an accounting by a removed personal representative.[10]

The domiciliary court cannot compel the representative to account for foreign assets accounted for before the court appointing him ancillary representative,[11] nor can the court making the ancillary appointment compel an account of assets without the state of such appointment which had been accounted for to the domiciliary court.[12] The court making the ancillary appointment is without jurisdiction to adjudicate on claims of the estate against the representative,[13] nor can he be charged with property whose legal situs was without the state of such ancillary or domiciliary appointment.[14] The residence of the agent of a personal representative having possession of assets which in fact were without the state cannot be considered in determining the question of jurisdiction of the probate court over such assets.[15] In Kentucky, a foreign representative may be compelled to account for property held in the state.[16]

Delay in a proceeding to compel an accounting will not oust the court of jurisdiction.[17]

All persons interested in the estate should be made parties to the proceeding for the settlement of the representative's accounts.[18] If there are unknown persons interested who have not been cited the settlement is void.[19]

Accounts of co-representatives should be joint.[20]

The sureties on the representative's bond[21] or any person interested in the estate may interpose objections to the account.[22] The payment of claims may be questioned on the settlement.[23] A contested account may be referred.[24] The

9. The successor of a deceased representative is entitled to notice of an application to revive an accounting pending at the time of his predecessor's death—In re Tredwell's Estate, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 155. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2606 amending laws 1902, c. 349, an appearance in response to a citation by the administrator with the will annexed to compel the representatives of the deceased representative to account, is insufficient to warrant the making of an order of revivor of the pending account—In re Tredwell's Estate, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 155. The appearance of an administrator with the will annexed in support of a motion to vacate an order reviving an account pending at the time of the death of the accounting representative is insufficient to confer power to grant another order reviving such pending account—Id.

10. In re Morrison's Estate, 68 Ohio St. 252.

11. The statutes of the state of ancillary appointment not giving the right to administer the property of a nonresident decedent situated in the state by his foreign representative—In re Crawford, 68 Ohio St. 58.

12, 13, 14, 15. Tunnicliffe v. Fox (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1032.

16. Hussey v. Sargent (Ky.) 75 S. W. 211.

17. Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246. An agreement between the legatees held not to deprive the surrogate of jurisdiction to compel an accounting by the representative of the estate—Kells v. People's Trust Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 548.

18. Canfield v. Canfield (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 1; In re Killan's Estate, 172 N. Y. 547; In re Mertens' Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 512. The executrix of her husband's estate, both she and her husband having been successively the representatives of another estate is a person interested in the latter is a proper party to a proceeding on the settlement of her accounts—In re Walton's Estate, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 723.

19. New York Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2518-2523—In re Killan's Estate, 172 N. Y. 547.

20. In re Smith's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 331.

21. Co-executors, sureties on the bond of another executor, may object to an accounting and distribution before the expiration of the time within which claims may be filed against the estate—Yakel v. Yakel, 96 Md. 240.

22. In re Walton's Estate, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 723. Sole distributee held estopped to question credit for compensation by agreement with the representative to allow him the same—Cummings v. Robinson, 95 Md. 759. Facts held sufficient to show that a legatee receiving notice of the representative's accounting was not estopped to file exceptions to the report—In re Cummings' Estate (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1117.

23. A decree discharging special administrators appointed pending contest of the will and directing a transfer of the assets to themselves as executors, made on notice to all parties interested, is not res judicata of claims paid by such special administrators—In re Doheny, 171 N. Y. 691.

24. Objections to an intermediate account may be referred, though no reference was pending on objections to the final account—James v. West, 67 Ohio St. 28. That there was a failure to report on all the issues referred is not ground for setting aside the report, the court having power to hear fur-contestant generally has the burden of proof,[25] but the representative has the burden of proving the justness and necessity of payment of administration expenses.[26] Depositions may be taken and received.[27]

(§ 10) C. The decree or order.—On consolidation of separate proceedings for the settlement of the accounts by co-administrators a single order directing distribution by both is proper.[28] A decree finding a balance due in the hands of a personal representative may properly direct the ultimate issuance of execution against him individually.[29]

A decree settling the accounts is binding on all persons made parties to the proceeding,[30] and on the sureties on the bonds of the representative,[31] and is conclusive as to all matters determined.[32] It is not subject to collateral attack,[33] even on the ground of fraud.[34] It does not necessarily show that the representative has been divested of his administrative capacity.[35] The settlement of the accounts as ancillary representative is conclusive on the court on settlement of the accounts of the domiciliary appointee.[36] A creditor not a party but who was entitled to be heard may intervene for the purpose of an appeal without becoming a party by petition, nor need he file exceptions to the findings,[37] and a municipal corporation to whom taxes are due from the estate is a creditor entitled to such remedy by appeal.[38] If the executor gave a bond on his appointment it is not necessary that he file a bond in order to appeal.[39] On review the only question open is whether the particular items questioned are legal charges under the evidence.[40] The settlement may be affirmed in part and reversed in part,[41] and on reversal such part may be remanded to the court below for findings as to the facts.[42] A co-executor may move to vacate the settlement of the estate by his co-executors without notice to him.[43] Unless it clearly appears that an allowance for attorney's fees was unreasonable all the parties having acted in good faith there is no ground for reopening the account.[44] The allowance of a motion to ther testimony and supply the omission, or the court may also supply additional findings on evidence heard before it, or refer to another commissioner—Id. The finding of the referee on the settlement of a representative's accounts is not conclusive on the surrogate—In re Schaefer, 171 N. Y. 686.

25. In re Wagner, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 490.

26. In re Peck, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 296; In re Rainsforth's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 609.

27. In re Killan's Estate, 172 N. Y. 547. A non-resident surviving heir may procure an order therefor for his own examination on his application for an accounting—Id. All persons appointed to appear on an accounting may be joined in an application for a commission to examine the sole surviving non-resident heir and be represented in the execution thereof—Id.

28. In re Smith's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 331.

29. Whetstone v. McQueen (Ala.) 34 So. 229.

30. In re Stevens, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 377. On an infant represented by his guardian—In re Turner, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 495. No presumption can supply lack of proof of citation or notice of appearance by the heir—Miguez v. Delcambre, 109 La. 1090.

31. Barney v. Babcock's Estate, 115 Wis. 409; Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246.

32. As to the amount of personalty which a legatee is entitled to receive—Skillin v. Central Trust Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 206. If it declares that the executor holds the balance in trust for specific purposes under the will it is conclusive as to the existence of the trust—In re Chase's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 616.

33. In re Stevens, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 377.

34. It can only be attacked by a direct suit in equity—State v. Carroll (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 468.

35. Whetstone v. McQueen (Ala.) 34 So. 229.

36. In re Crawford, 68 Ohio St. 58.

37. Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 2569—In re Sullivan, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 51.

38. That the administrator has been guilty of unwarrantable delay in the settlement of the estate, whereby unnecessary taxes have accumulated, and that he should be charged with same personally, is not an objection to the city's right to appeal—In re Sullivan, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 51.

39. In re Sidwell's Estate, 67 Ohio St. 464. The executor of a deceased executrix is within Rev. St. § 6408, and entitled to appeal from the settlement of the account without giving a bond—Id.

40. The sufficiency of the evidence will not be considered—Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354.

41, 42. James v. West, 67 Ohio St. 28.

43. Code, art. 93, § 241, art. 90, §§ 1, 2, do not preclude such a proceeding—Yakel v. Yakel, 96 Md. 240.

44. Geesey v. Geesey, 96 Md. 630.

open a decree to permit the introduction of further testimony is within the discretion of the court.[45] That the order dismissing the petition to vacate an order settling the accounts of a representative was without prejudice will not prevent the petitioner from appealing from the dismissal.[46]

A suit in equity will lie to set aside the settlement on the ground of fraud.[47] After an estate has been settled and distribution made under order the heirs entitled to share in the estate who had been fraudulently deprived thereof have no adequate remedy in the probate court and may resort to equity to recover.[48]

§ 11. Distribution and disposal of funds.[49] Time for distribution.—Distribution should not be made until after payment of the debts of decedent.[50]

It is the administrator's duty to apply for an order of distribution after the estate has been settled.[51] The mere pendency of an action to declare liens on distributive shares in the hands of the administrator is not ground for delaying distribution,[52] nor is the right of the heirs of a deceased legatee to compel payment of the legacy to the estate affected by the validity or invalidity of the will of such legatee.[53] The administrator has the burden of showing an excuse for not making distribution within the legal time.[54]

Interests, shares, and adjustment thereof.[55] The representative may set off against a distributive share a claim due from the distributee to the estate,[56] though an action thereon would have been barred by limitations.[57] Unless the will so intends, a legacy will not operate as an extinguishment of a debt.[58] If the heir's indebtedness is greater than the amount of his distributive share he should be credited with this amount.[59] A representative who has paid out money on account of last sickness and funeral expenses of an adult child has a charge on such child's distributive share for reimbursement.[60]

Mode of distribution, and persons who may receive shares.—Distribution may be demanded in specie.[61] It is not necessary that the distributee be required to give a refunding bond on payment of his distributive share, where the time for

45. In re Cummings' Estate (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1117.

46. The time within which second petition could have been filed having expired—Yakel v. Yakel, 96 Md. 240.

47. State v. Carroll (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 468. If brought within five years after the discovery—Tucker v. Stewart (Iowa) 97 N. W. 148. Evidence held insufficient to establish fraud—Smith v. Buchanan (Iowa) 96 N. W. 1086.

48. Maney v. Casserly (Mich.) 96 N. W. 478. Held not barred by laches from obtaining equitable relief—Id.

49. Interpretation of will to determine as to payment of legacies will be treated under Wills.

50. Coulter v. Bradley, 30 Ind. App. 421. The administrator's liability to pay the debts in such case where the assets were insufficient cannot be avoided because he acted on advice of counsel and the probate judge—James v. West, 67 Ohio St. 28. The heirs may obtain possession by paying the debts or securing their payment—Succession of Willis, 109 La. 281.

51. Haskins v. Martin, 103 Ill. App. 115.

52. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 490, 71 Pac. 757.

53. In re Wickersham's Estate, 138 Cal. 355, 70 Pac. 1076.

54. Haskins v. Martin, 103 Ill. App. 115.

55. Receipt for share is evidence of payment of full interest—In re Murphy, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 238. Priorities between general demonstrative and specific legacies, see post, § 14A. See, also, Advancements, post, § 14B.

56. Johnston v. Cutchin (N. C.) 45 S. E. 522. A deduction directed by will from the share of the legatee held to include all indebtedness of such legatee to the decedent, and a promissory note made by the legatee to the decedent was therefore not a proper subject of a set-off against his share—In re Cummings' Estate (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1117.

57. In re Timerson, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 675; Woodruff v. Woodruff, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 408; Holden v. Spier, 65 Kan. 412, 70 Pac. 348.

58. Sharp v. Wightman (Pa.) 54 Atl. 888.

59. In re Warner's Estate, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 432.

60. In re Murphy's Estate, 30 Wash. 9, 70 Pac. 109.

61. Where the estate had been fully settled and all legacies paid, corporate stock in the hands of the representative should be delivered to the residuary legatee and not ordered to be sold—Lane v. Albertson, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 607. The widow on election not to take under the will of her deceased husband is entitled to her distributive share of securities and investments paid her in specie, when it was not necessary to dispose of the same to create a fund for the purpose of payment of debts of the estate—Baptist Female University v. Borden, 132 N. C. 476.

the presentation of the payment of claims has been barred by the statute.[62] If the representative is also guardian of infant heirs, he may transfer their shares to himself as guardian without an order of court,[63] and if appointed guardian in a foreign state it is not essential that he should also have procured a domestic appointment.[64] A voluntary payment by an administrator to the nonresident foreign guardian is valid.[65] In case of death of the ward without owing debts, payment may be made to his surviving heir without the intervention of administration on his estate.[66]

Interest.—Legacies will bear interest from the time when they are due and payable,[67] but this does not apply to the surviving spouse's statutory distributive share.[68] A partial payment of a specific legacy must first be applied to the deduction of accrued interest.[69] If the representative desires to avoid paying interest on legacies by a tender of payment he must keep the tender good.[70]

Procedure.—All the parties to an agreement fixing the shares of the estate to which each shall be entitled in settlement of a contest of a will may petition for a partial distribution under a statute authorizing it,[71] and all the heirs should be made parties to proceedings for a general distribution of the estate.[72] Infants interested must be represented by guardian.[73] All persons interested in the estate are entitled to notice of the application for an order of distribution.[74]

The court of probate jurisdiction has power in proceedings for distribution to determine who is entitled to share,[75] or the court may require trial of the issues raised by the persons claiming to be heirs and entitled to share.[76] The probate court may inquire into the indebtedness of a distributee to the estate and order a deduction,[77] and determine whether legacies are a charge upon the realty.[78] It has power to direct a deposit in court of surplus funds in the representative's hands only where special reasons are alleged therefor.[79]

62. Klicka v. Klicka, 105 Ill. App. 369.

63. A mere declaration of intention to hold the estate as guardian is sufficient—State v. Whitehouse, 75 Conn. 410.

64. If it appears that he had given a bond in the state of appointment and that there were no debts against the decedent in the state of appointment as administrator—State v. Whitehouse, 75 Conn. 410.

65. Pub. St. Mass. c. 139, §§ 39, 40, were intended merely to enable the administrator to protect himself by a domestic decree—Gardiner v. Thorndike (Mass.) 66 N. E. 633.

66. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2384—In re Maybee's Estate, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 518. A direction by will to pay a person's debts is a legacy to him which his personal representative may enforce—Hallock v. Hallock, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 508.

67. Facts held to show that the trustees of a trust fund created by a will were entitled to interest on such fund, and that a deposit in the bank of a fund by the executor with knowledge of one of the persons subsequently appointed trustee was not a tender so as to avoid interest—In re Blake's Estate, 137 Cal. 429, 70 Pac. 303.

68. Since such share cannot be known until the amount of the personal property subject to distribution has been ascertained—Hutchings v. Davis, 68 Ohio St. 160.

69. Morton's Ex'r v. Trustees of Church Home, 24 Ky. L. R. 1122, 70 S. W. 841.

70. In re Godwin's Estate, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 469.

71. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 490, 71 Pac. 757. Sufficiency of petition for distribution—Gaines v. Gaines, 116 Ga. 476. Sufficiency of petition by an executor for leave to sell realty for the purpose of making distribution among devisees—Zehnder v. Schoenbachler, 24 Ky. L. R. 947, 70 S. W. 278. Construction of an agreement between heirs as to the distribution of the estate—Chauvet v. Ives, 173 N. Y. 192.

72. Succession of Bothick, 109 La. 1.

73. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 490, 71 Pac. 757.

74. Baker v. Lumpee, 91 Mo. App. 560.

75. Reformed Presbyterian Church v. McMillan (Wash.) 72 Pac. 502. Rev. St. § 3980, authorizing an action for such purpose, does not apply where administration is pending—Garr v. Davidson, 25 Utah, 335, 71 Pac. 481.

76. As where on an appeal from a settlement of the accounts of the representative, persons claimed to be heirs and that they were omitted from the will by mistake, claiming also there was an intestacy as to the residue estate, and this even though relationship is admitted—Goff v. Britton, 182 Mass. 293.

77. Holden v. Spier, 65 Kan. 412, 70 Pac. 348.

78. Legacies being given in excess of the personalty and power of sale resting in the executors who accounted for the proceeds on such accounting, the Surrogate may determine whether such legacies were a charge on the land—In re Plummer's Estate, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 536.

79. Merely that the executor was leaving the city for a trip to a distant state and that it was apprehended that he might not

A decree of distribution which does not dispose of the entire estate is void.[80] A decree settling the account and directing distribution is conclusive on the parties to the proceeding as to the amount of personalty a legatee was entitled to.[81]

Wherever an issue of fact is made in a proceeding for distribution of an estate, a motion for a new trial, and a re-examination of issues may be had.[82]

The personal representative can appeal from a decree of distribution only when he is aggrieved thereby,[83] as where there is a dispute as to the amount due from him.[84] If he is also a beneficiary he must appeal in his individual capacity.[85] Whether the representative is a party aggrieved cannot be determined on a motion to dismiss the appeal.[86] The effect of an appeal from an order of distribution is to vacate the order.[87] On a motion to dismiss an appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial, the merits of the controversy cannot be examined.[88] Only statutory costs can be awarded on appeal from a decree of distribution.[89]

All the legatees should be made parties to an action by a legatee to enforce payment of his share,[90] and the legatees must aver in the complaint that there was sufficient personalty in the hands of the executor or real estate which it was the intention of the testator should be charged with the legacy.[91]

§ 12. Enforcement of orders and decrees by attachment as for a contempt.—The failure of personal representatives to comply with orders directing the performance of duties may generally be enforced by committing him as for a contempt,[92] as orders directing the payment of legacies,[93] or an order directing him to deposit certain property belonging to the decedent in court.[94] The mere adjudication of a representative as a bankrupt is not ground for discharging him from a committal.[95] An executor will not be punished criminally for failure to pay a claim.[96]

§ 13. Discharge of personal representatives.—The mere settlement of the accounts of a personal representative does not ipso facto discharge him.[97] A legatee is entitled to notice of application for a discharge of the executor,[98] and the decree pay over the money promptly if not ordered to do so before return, is not sufficient ground—Reed v. Reed, 24 Ky. L. R. 2438, 74 S. W. 207.

80. Succession of Bothick, 109 La. 1. A decree of distribution construed and held not to include the distribution of homestead property of the decedent—Fraser v. Farmers' & M. Sav. Bank (Minn.) 95 N. W. 307.

81. Skillin v. Central Trust Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 206. The court refused to disturb a settlement after the lapse of eleven years—Harman v. Avritt, 24 Ky. L. R. 1919, 72 S. W. 751.

82. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 235, 70 Pac. 721.

83. Succession of Marks, 108 La. 685; Lamar v. Lamar (Ga.) 45 S. E. 498.

84. In re Godwin's Estate, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 469.

85. In re Fuhrman's Estate, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 27.

86. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 235, 70 Pac. 721.

87. The appeal being a trial de novo in the circuit court—Klicka v. Klicka, 105 Ill. App. 369.

88. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 235, 70 Pac. 721.

89. In re McMahon's Estate (Wis.) 94 N. W. 351.

90. Parker v. Cobb, 131 N. C. 25.

91. Coulter v. Bradley, 30 Ind. App. 421.

92. As where on being ordered to account he fills the printed blank with the word "nothing" written in each of the schedules and claiming that he no longer acted as executor (In re People's Trust Co., 37 Misc. [N. Y.] 239) or if he refuses to answer questions as to taxable property of the estate at appraisal—In re Bishop's Estate, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 112. See, also, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 64.

93. Under N. Y. Civ. Proc. § 2555—In re Holmes' Estate, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 267.

94. Excuse held insufficient to purge the contempt and he was not allowed to withdraw personal funds deposited in court—Reed v. Reed, 24 Ky. L. R. 2438, 74 S. W. 207.

95. Evidence considered and held not to purge the administrator of contempt—In re Collins, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 753.

96. Miss. Code 1892, § 1063, making it a felony for an executor to convert assets or failure to pay, etc., does not apply—State v. Pannell (Miss.) 34 So. 388.

97. Whetstone v. McQueen (Ala.) 34 So. 229. An order releasing the executor from all liability as such on his paying a particular sum to those entitled thereto and directing that his bond remain in force until further order of the court did not discharge the executor so as to deprive the court of jurisdiction to appoint an administrator de bonis non—Barney v. Babcock's Estate, 115 Wis. 409.

98. Cole v. Shaw (Mich.) 96 N. W. 573. The beneficiary of an annuity is entitled to is not binding on a person interested not made a party to the proceeding.[99] If procured by fraud it will be vacated.[1] The receipt for a share is proof, until contradicted, that the signer received the full amount of interest to which he was entitled.[2] A discharge of the representative of a deceased representative will not estop the heirs of the latter estate from attacking the discharge of the deceased on the ground of fraud.[3]

§ 14. Rights and liabilities between beneficiaries of estate. A. In general.[4]—A division of decedent's property made before death and accepted by the heirs is binding upon them.[5] If the heirs entered into actual occupancy after death of the donor their rights would be the same as if they had inherited in common and made a parol allotment,[6] and the fact that the realty subsequently enhanced in value will not entitle the other heirs who received personalty to share therein.[7] If, however, the ancestor distributed his estate so as to deprive an heir of his right to share he may recover from the heirs receiving the property.[8] If there is no administration the heirs may contest the validity of a transfer of realty by decedent to an heir on the ground of fraud.[9]

A contract by a minor legatee whereby he stipulated to receive a sum less than his legacy is not binding.[10] Such contracts to be binding must be based on a consideration.[11]

Whether the legacies are charged upon realty devised is to be determined from a construction of the will,[12] and in the absence of direction in the will realty can be resorted to only after exhaustion of the personalty.[13] In the absence of personalty, realty not specifically devised will be first subjected.[14] If there was no fund out of which demonstrative legacies could be paid, they will share pro rata with the general legatees.[15] Though the entire residue be exhausted the residuary legatee cannot call on either specific or general legacies or devises to abate in his favor.[16] notice of application for discharge of the residuary legatee as executrix—Id.

99. Cole v. Shaw (Mich.) 96 N. W. 573.

1. It is a sufficient fraud if the representative stated that he had paid over to persons entitled thereto specific sums in cash, when in fact only notes had been given—Tucker v. Stewart (Iowa) 97 N. W. 148.

2. In re Murphy, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 238.

3. Coleman v. Howell, 131 N. C. 125.

4. Liability for decedent's debts, see ante, § 6B. Election by beneficiaries to take under the statute see Election of Remedies and Rights. For contracts to devise; the rights as dependent on an interpretation of the will and for abatement, ademption and satisfaction of bequests, see Wills.

5. Hackleman v. Hackleman, 199 Ill. 84; White v. Watts, 118 Iowa, 549.

6. Hackleman v. Hackleman, 199 Ill. 84.

7. White v. Watts, 118 Iowa, 549.

8. An heir must collate whatever he has received in excess of his portion unless it was given as an extra portion; the intention to give an extra portion must be shown by unequivocal testimony and will not be presumed from the fact that the donations were in the form of contracts of sale (Clark v. Hedden, 109 La. 147) and if he makes a prima facie showing that the transaction was gratuitous the defendants have the burden of showing that they were onerous—Id. Collation of revenues is due, though the donations were in form of sales, unless thereby the excluded heir was kept in ignorance of the donations, from the death only when suit is brought within one year, otherwise from the time of judicial demand—Id. Declarations of testator in writing as to why an heir was omitted from distribution made before death should not be disregarded in toto because untrue in part—Id. Evidence that the sale by a mother to one son and daughter was a simulated sale and with intent to place the property beyond the reach of another son—Laporte v. Laporte, 109 La. 958. Property held not subject to collation—Succession of Lamotte (La.) 34 So. 122.

9. Snyder v. Snyder (Mich.) 92 N. W. 353.

10. In re Cummings' Estate (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1117.

11. In re Cummings' Estate (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1117. Evidence held insufficient to show an agreement between the legatees that a specific sum should be deducted from the share of one of the legatees—Id.

12. Lynch v. Spicer (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 255 On a deficiency of personalty by reason of the widow's election to take her statutory distributive share the legatee could not compel a sale of real estate for the payment of legacies—Baptist Female University v. Borden, 132 N. C. 476.

13. Silk v. Merry, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 218.

14. Under Act 1894, c. 438—Ewell v. McGregor, 96 Md. 357.

15. In re Warner's Estate, 39 Misc. (N Y.) 432.

16. In re Martin, 25 R. I. 1.

Subject to the debts and widow's distributive share on her election not to take under the will demonstrative legacies are entitled to priority over general legacies.[17]

(§ 14) B. Advancements.—An advancement is the giving by anticipation the whole or part of what is supposed a child would be entitled to on the death of the parent making it,[18] and a voluntary conveyance from a parent to a child will be presumed to be intended as an advancement,[19] though the conveyance was through a third person.[20] If a child was allowed to use land belonging to the deceased without payment of rent during her life, the reasonable value of the use of the land may be treated as an advancement to her.[21] If a husband purchases realty taking title in wife's name it will be presumed it was intended as an advancement to her.[22] A release of an expectant estate is an advancement if based on a consideration,[23] and like any other advancement[24] must, if required by statute, be in writing.[25] Advancements made by a testator prior to the execution of his will though designated as such at the time made are to be taken as gifts and cannot be deducted from the legatee's share unless the will so directs in specific terms.[26] Advancements made cannot be brought into hotchpot.[27]

(§ 14) C. Actions between beneficiaries.—To an action to determine the right of devisees or legatees all of the devisees and legatees should be made parties,[28] and it is not a breach of an administrator's duty that he fails to intervene in such an action.[29] Of actions between legatees to determine their rights the court in which administration is pending has not exclusive jurisdiction.[30]

Persons claiming to be heirs of an intestate must prove that there are no other persons of the statutory classes who would take before them.[31] An heir claiming particular property has the burden of proving that the property belonged to the ancestor.[32]

§ 15. Rights and liabilities between beneficiaries and third persons.—The title of a bona fide purchaser from an heir is not affected by the subsequent discovery

17. Baptist Female University v. Borden, 132 N. C. 476.

18. Waldron v. Taylor (W. Va.) 45 S. E. 336. The release of an expectant estate on conveyance to the expectant heir is a sufficient consideration and such heir was entitled to enforce a covenant of warranty in the deed against the other heirs and widow—Longshore v. Longshore, 200 Ill. 470. Evidence held sufficient to show gifts to have been advancements—Tye v. Tye, 24 Ky. L. R. 637, 69 S. W. 718; Dobbins v. Humphreys, 171 Mo. 198. Evidence held insufficient to show an advancement to a son—Hedges v. Hedges, 24 Ky. L. R. 2220, 73 S. W. 1112. Sufficiency of evidence as to amount of advancement—Dobbins v. Humphreys, 171 Mo. 198.

19. Ellis v. Newell (Iowa) 94 N. W. 463. An agreement by a husband on the wife's procuring a divorce that he would convey a part of his property for the support and education of their minor children, held not to have been intended as an advancement though he stated that he did not intend that she should have any more of his property—Bissell v. Bissell (Iowa) 94 N. W. 465; Heyward v. Middleton, 65 S. C. 493.

20, 21. Hamilton v. Moore, 24 Ky. L. R. 982, 70 S. W. 402.

22. To overcome this presumption, the evidence must not only be distinct and credible but it must preponderate. The conduct of a husband in taking charge of the property, improving it and managing it as though it were his own property, is inconsistent with the presumption of an advancement—Chambers v. Michael (Ark.) 74 S. W. 516.

23. Gary v. Newton, 201 Ill. 170.

24. Under 2 Starr & C. St. 2d Ed. p. 1432—Gary v. Newton, 201 Ill. 170.

25. Gary v. Newton, 201 Ill. 170.

26. In re Cummings' Estate (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1117.

27. Waldron v. Taylor (W. Va.) 45 S. E. 336.

28. Spurlock v. Burnett, 170 Mo. 372; Parker v. Cobb, 131 N. C. 25. Sufficiency of petition in an action to establish heirship—Craig v. Welch-Hackley Coal & Oil Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 2225, 73 S. W. 1035.

29. As an action by an heir on an alleged contract with the ancestor whereby such heir would be entitled after administration to all property remaining in the hands of the administrator—In re Healy's Estate, 137 Cal. 474, 70 Pac. 455.

30. As an action to set aside an assignment of legacies on the ground of fraud (Ward v. Du Pree [S. D.] 94 N. W. 397) or an action to set aside a conveyance to an heir—Snyder v. Snyder (Mich.) 92 N. W. 353.

31. An admission held not to relieve persons claiming as heirs of the necessity of making a prima facie case—Sorenson v. Sorenson (Neb.) 94 N. W. 540.

32. In re Ruchizky's Estate, 205 Pa. 105

of a will.[33] Neither the representative nor the distributees can dispute the right of the court to direct the payment of a distributee's share to his assignee, the court having recognized the assignment and the assignor not questioning it,[34] but a decree directing the payment to the assignee is not res adjudicata of the right of a judgment creditor to enforce his lien against the share.[35]

The legatee's creditor cannot attach the share in the representative's possession,[36] but he may maintain a suit in equity to subject it to the payment of the claim before the executor has rendered his account.[37] Such a proceeding does not take the administration of the estate from the probate court.[38] The bill in such case need not aver that there would be sufficient left after the payment of debts for the payment of legacies, where it avers that the executor has a sum in his hands belonging to the legatee.[39]

The interest of an heir in a residuary estate[40] or in the ancestor's land subject to homestead may be subject to levy and sale under execution on judgment against him.[41] The rights of a devisee may be subjected to payment of his debts though under the will he is prohibited from disposing of the same until he arrives at a certain age.[42] An oral agreement with the ancestor to release his expectancy cannot be set up to avoid liability of the heirs' share to payment of judgment debts.[43] The share of the distributee who executed the mortgage alone can be subjected to payment.[44] The heirs' share in the personalty should be subjected to the payment of his debts before resort can be had to the realty.[45]

ESTOPPEL.

Many common applications of the doctrine of estoppel are so closely related

33. Under Kansas Wills Act, § 50, the purchaser has the burden of showing that he had no knowledge of the existence of the will—Markley v. Kramer (Kan.) 72 Pac. 221. The purchaser of a devisee is entitled to have the will of the ancestor of the devisee probated—Hanley v. Kraftczyk (Wis.) 96 N. W. 820.

34. In re Davis' Estate, 27 Mont. 490, 71 Pac. 757. Construction of an assignment by heirs of their share of the estate—Lasley v. Preston (Mich.) 93 N. W. 253.

35. Martinovich v. Marsicano, 137 Cal. 354, 70 Pac. 459. To an action by a trustee of a legatee under a trust created for the benefit of creditors to set aside conflicting assignments of the legatee, the representatives of the ancestor's estate are not necessary parties—Tompkins v. Tompkins, 123 Fed. 207.

36. Gorman v. Stillman (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1088.

37. Gorman v. Stillman (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1088. The judgment creditor of the heirs of a deceased heir who claimed to own property in indivision with heirs of the ancestor, has sufficient interest to sustain an action against the said heirs, to ascertain whether the debtors are entitled to anything after settlement of respective rights—Succession of Bothick (La.) 34 So. 163. Under the facts held that the rights of judgment creditors of heirs of a deceased heir and the co-heirs of the latter must be established contradictorily, one with the other—Id.

38, 39. Gorman v. Stillman (R. I.) 52 Atl. 1088.

40. But the purchaser will be deferred until by proper administration of the estate it can be ascertained what share of the proceeds the heirs would be entitled to—Hardy v. Wallis, 103 Ill. App. 141. Under a will giving the widow charge of all of the testate's property and income thereof during her life, and on her death his executor to take and dispose of the remainder and divide it among his children, his son has no such interest as could be levied on for the payment of his debts—Harris v. Kittle (Ga.) 45 S. E. 729.

41. Dinsmoor v. Rowse, 200 Ill. 555.

42. Smith v. Smith, 24 Ky. L. R. 2261, 73 S. W. 1028.

43. If the agreement be held valid the heir would hold the share taken in trust for the benefit of the other heirs, and being a secret trust cannot be enforced against the heirs' judgment creditors—Gary v. Newton, 201 Ill. 170.

44. The share of the widow, who executed a mortgage on the homestead, on partition will be subjected to its payment—Saunders v. Strobel, 64 S. C. 489. Where the residuary estate is to be divided under the will between two heirs the surplus remaining on foreclosure of a mortgage on the homestead of decedent will be divided equally between one heir and the mortgagee of the other's interest—Kuener v. Prohl (Wis.) 97 N. W. 201.

45. A judgment directing the reverse ap-to other subject-matters that it is deemed best to treat them elsewhere; the more important being estoppel to claim that a corporation acted ultra vires or to aver want of authority in a corporate officer or agent,[46] to deny partnership,[47] to question the existence or scope of an agent's authority,[48] and the estoppel of a tenant to dispute his landlord's title.[49]

§ 1. Kinds of estoppel.—Estoppels arise from records, from deeds, and from matter in pais.[50] An estoppel by judgment prevails over one by deed.[51]

§ 2. By record.—Estoppel by judgment is elsewhere treated,[52] and the conclusiveness of judicial and official records, being often ruled on principles of evidence rather than of estoppel, is excluded.[53]

§ 3. By deed.—A party and his privies,[54] when no fraud intervenes,[55] are estopped to deny that which he has by deed or other specialty asserted,[56] e. g., his own title,[57] easements appurtenant,[58] or boundaries.[59] Conversely, the grantee cannot derogate the title under which he claims,[60] but may reinforce his title.[61]

Where one conveys with warranty, after-acquired title enures to the grantee.[62] or his privies.[63] The rule does not apply where title is taken in a different right plication is not prejudicial to the heir debtor where his entire share is less than the debt enforced—Oppenheimer v. Collins, 115 Wis. 283, 60 L. R. A. 406.

46. See Corporations.

47. See Partnership.

48. See Agency.

49. See Landlord and Tenant.

50. See §§ 2-4 post. See Cyc. Law Dict., "Estoppel," for definitions and cases stating same.

51. Boynton v. Haggart (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 819.

52. See Former Adjudication.

53. See Evidence, § 5.

54. Sinclair v. Huntley, 131 N. C. 243.

55. Call v. Shewmaker, 24 Ky. L. R. 686, 69 S. W. 749.

56. Inadequate dedication held not to operate as an estoppel—Klug v. Jeffers, 85 N. Y. Supp. 423. Recitals in a bond are conclusive on the obligors—Stroud v. Hancock, 116 Ga. 332; Proudfoot v. Gudichsen, 102 Ill. App. 482. Receiptors cannot deny that the sheriff had possession of the goods—Colbath v. Hoefer (Or.) 73 Pac. 10.

57. Van Husan v. Omaha Bridge & T. R. Co., 118 Iowa, 366. Mortgagor cannot deny his title, if mortgage contains words which under 1 Starr & C. St. p. 924, § 11 amount to full covenants—Roderick v. McMeekin (Ill.) 68 N. E. 473. Where one has an interest in land and a claim against it he is estopped to assert his claim against one to whom he has mortgaged his interest —Butler v. Butler (S. C.) 45 S. E. 184. Chattel mortgagor cannot deny that he owned the goods—Layson v. Cooper, 174 Mo. 211. Grantor with warranty may claim from grantee for use and occupation before the deed —Woodcock v. Baldwin (La.) 34 So. 440.

58. Grantor is estopped to deny grantee's easement in streets described in a plat referred to in the deed—Cleaver v. Mahanke (Iowa) 94 N. W. 279; Drew v. Wiswall (Mass.) 67 N. E. 666; Driscoll v. Smith (Mass.) 68 N. E. 210; Mann v. Bergmann, 203 Ill. 406.

59. Summerfield v. White (W. Va.) 46 S. E. 154.

60. The grantee is estopped to deny that the grantor had a title to convey (Muller v. Hoth [La.] 34 So. 162) but two deeds, one of which has expired by limitation and the other of which has never been delivered, do not estop grantee to dispute grantor's title—Drake v. Howell (N. C.) 45 S. E. 539. One claiming under a deed cannot question its validity—Granger v. Sallier (La.) 34 So. 431. One claiming rights in land under contract from a certain person, cannot deny the title of that person's grantee—Monds v. Elizabeth City Lumber Co., 131 N. C. 20. The rule that where a deed is subject to certain incumbrances the grantee cannot dispute their validity (see Mortgages) does not apply to an incumbrance not known to either party (Gill v. Patton, 118 Iowa, 88) nor does the assumption of a first mortgage estop the grantee to attack a second—Welbon v. Webster (Minn.) 94 N. W. 550. Mortgagee cannot hold adversely—Stancill v. Spain (N. C.) 45 S. E. 466. Grantee cannot claim in derogation of an express reservation—Hughes v. South Bay School Dist. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 778. One entering into possession under a qualified grant is estopped to assert any greater interest—Knickerbocker Ice Co. v. New York, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 530. The grantee of a patentee cannot by obtaining a new patent destroy reservations in his deed—Sandy River Cannel Coal Co. v. White House Cannel Coal Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1653, 72 S. W. 298.

61. Hanley v. Kraftczyk (Wis.) 96 N. W. 820.

62. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 132 N. C. 947. Conveyance by remainderman (Nichols v. Guthrie, 109 Tenn. 535) or expectant heir—Johnson v. Johnson, 170 Mo. 34, 59 L. R. A. 748. Covenant that grantor and his heirs would never claim adversely—Shepherd v. Kahle (Wis.) 97 N. W. 506.

Where the deed was void because the land was adversely held (Altemus v. Nichols [Ky.] 74 S. W. 221) or where the grantor had no title of record (Wheeler v. Young [Conn.] 55 Atl. 670) after acquired title does not pass.

63. Subsequently acquired title does not accrue to a purchaser at tax sale for taxes levied against grantee (Wilson v. Fisher, 172 Mo. 10) but does inure to one hold-or capacity.[64] The subsequently acquired title must amount to an estate in the land,[65] and no larger quantum of estate will enure than was originally conveyed.[66]

§ 4. In pais.—The general doctrine of estoppel in pais is that one cannot deny the existence of a state of facts on which he has by false representation,[67] silence, or acquiescence,[68] or misleading conduct,[69] or asseverations of title or ing by quitclaim from the grantee—Johnson v. Johnson, 170 Mo. 34.

64. One conveying lands impressed with a trust may subsequently acquire the interest of the beneficiary—Condit v. Bigalow (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 160.

One conveying for a corporation cannot set up title subsequently acquired by him personally—Central Coal & Iron Co. v. Walker's Ex'x, 24 Ky. L. R. 2191, 73 S. W. 778.

65. The equitable interest arising from a contract to purchase does not inure to the grantee where it was afterward lost by default—Kentucky Land & Immigration Co. v. Crabtree, 24 Ky. L. R. 743, 70 S. W. 31. Purchase of emblements from tenant does not accrue to grantee—Simanek v. Nemetz (Wis.) 97 N. W. 508.

66. Conveyance of an easement does not carry after acquired rights—Horne v. Hutchins (N. H.) 55 Atl. 361. Quitclaim does not pass after acquired title (Taylor v. Wainman, 116 Ga. 795; Morrison v. Whiteside, 116 Ga. 459) nor any deed not containing covenants of seisin or warranty (Altemus v. Nickell, 24 Ky. L. R. 2401, 74 S. W. 245) but a quitclaim with habendum to grantee and his heirs forever will—West Seattle Land & Imp. Co. v. Novelty Mill Co., 31 Wash. 435, 72 Pac. 69; Garlick v. Pittsburgh & W. R. Co., 67 Ohio St. 223. Mortgage without covenants does not attach to subsequently acquired title—Donovan v. Twist, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 130.

67. By owner to subcontractor as to terms of contract—Rath v. Orr (Iowa) 93 N. W. 489. By wife that borrowed money was for her separate estate (National Lumberman's Bank v. Miller [Mich.] 91 N. W. 1024) by carrier that it held bills of lading—Schlichting v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. (Iowa) 96 N. W. 959.

One obtaining property for another by representing himself as the latter's agent, cannot deny such person's ownership thereof—State v. Whitworth, 30 Wash. 47, 70 Pac. 254. Directors representing that the stock was paid up are estopped to deny liability on a contract because it was not—Dwinnell v. Minneapolis F. & M. Mut. Ins. Co. (Minn.) 97 N. W. 110.

Must be actual or constructive intent that the representations should be acted on—Booth v. Lenox (Fla.) 34 So. 566. Representation by one that his signature was genuine works an estoppel notwithstanding the statute of frauds—Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Johnson's Adm'x (Ky.) 76 S. W. 335.

Statements as to future action of city council, being of opinion, do not estop—Marsh v. City of Bridgeport, 75 Conn. 495.

Representation as to amount of "present" debt held to work an estoppel as to such amount as against security thereafter given —Williams v. Verity, 98 Mo. App. 654.

68. The mental condition of one failing to assert title is to be considered—Guernsey v. Fulmer (Kan.) 71 Pac. 578. No estoppel can be predicated on failure to deny a statement in the party's presence unless it is clear that he heard it—Powers v. McKnight (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 549.

Illustrations. Allowing party to act on faith of note estops maker from setting up defects which he then knew—Waterman v. Waterman, 85 N. Y. Supp. 377. Acquiescence in insufficient notice to terminate lease—Baltimore Dental Ass'n v. Fuller (Va.) 44 S. E. 771. 30 years' acquiescence in oral establishment of boundary—Campbell v. Combs (Ky.) 77 S. W. 923. Acquiescence in breach of terms of lease—Stoddard v. Gallagher (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1051. Subscriber not objecting to construction after time limited cannot cancel subscription—Horton v. Erie Preserving Co., 85 N. Y. Supp. 503.

Permitting expenditures or improvements. Allowing another to expend money on lands (Price v. Stratton [Fla.] 33 So. 644; First German Reformed Church v. Summit County Com'rs, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 553; Wolfinger v. McFarland [N. J. Eq.] 54 Atl. 862; Lowther Oil Co. v. Miller-Sibley Oil Co. [W. Va.] 44 S. E. 433; Despard v. Bennett [W. Va.] 44 S. E. 448; Lydick v. Gill [Neb.] 94 N. W. 109; Cobban v. Hecklen, 27 Mont. 245, 70 Pac. 805) or allowing property to be purchased as that of another (Barchent v. Selleck [Minn.] 95 N. W. 455) without asserting claim of title.

Concealment of marriage held to estop to assert homestead rights—Cahill v. Dickson (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 281. Acquiescence in appropriation of water rights by another estops to claim the same—Orient Min. Co. v. Freckleton (Utah) 74 Pac. 652. Allowing improvements on faith of contract to sell estops to plead statute of frauds—Coleridge Creamery Co. v. Jenkins (Neb.) 92 N. W. 123. Permitting expenditure under contract with knowledge of ground of rescission—Beardsley v. Clem, 137 Cal. 328, 70 Pac. 175. Government held "estopped" to question validity of patent to land—United States v. Stinson (C. C. A.) 125 Fed. 907.

Knowledge of person claiming estoppel. There is no estoppel if the person making the improvement knew of the adverse interest (Bright v. Allan, 203 Pa. 394; Price v. Stratton [Fla.] 33 So. 644) or relied on records and was not misled (Strahl v. Smith, 30 Colo. 392, 70 Pac. 677) nor where record title is plain (Sanborn v. Van Duyne [Minn.] 96 N. W. 41) nor where the improvements were made under an express condition with owner which has been broken (Griswold v. Minneapolis, etc., R. C. [N. D.] 97 N. W. 538) nor where notice of claim was given though it was misunderstood—Rhodes v. Stone, 25 Ky. L. R. 921, 76 S. W. 533. One continuously in possession of land is not estopped to assert his cotenancy therein against one to whom his cotenant attempted to convey the whole —Truth Lodge v. Barton (Iowa) 93 N. W. 106.

Knowledge or intent of person estopped and duty to speak. Intent to deceive is not necessary (Lydick v. Gill [Neb.] 94 N. W. 109), but the party must know of his rights right,[70] induced another to act[71] to his prejudice,[72] and without his fault or negli-

(St. Louis Safe Deposit & Sav. Bank v. Kennett Estate [Mo. App.] 74 S. W. 474, discussing the rules of estoppel generally; Parkey v. Ramsey [Tenn.] 76 S. W. 812) though it has been held that an owner inducing purchase from another is estopped though he was ignorant of his own title (Chambers v. Bookman [S. C.] 46 S. E. 39; Ward v. Cameron [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 240) and such an estoppel does not prevent the setting up of after acquired title—Kentucky Union Co. v. Patton, 24 Ky. L. R. 701, 69 S. W. 791.

Silence of heirs during the life of their ancestor—Snyder v. Elliott, 171 Md. 362. There is no estoppel where owner did not know of encroachment until it was complete—Pocahontas Light & Water Co. v. Browning (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 267.

69. Insurance company inadvertently sending out premium notice at the wrong rate is not estopped to demand premiums for the rest of the term at the true rate—Smallwood v. Life Ins. Co. of Virginia (N. C.) 45 S. E. 519. Employer approving accounts based on the theory that the employe is entitled to a certain salary is estopped to deny it after he has continued in the service on the faith thereof—Moller v. Gates Land Co. (Wis.) 97 N. W. 174. Allowing certain members of a church to vote on all questions estops the other members from questioning their right—Davie v. Heal, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 517.

Clothing another with apparent authority. One putting record title to land in another is estopped as against one extending credit on the faith thereof (Rieschick v. Klingelhoefer, 91 Mo. App. 430) but possession of personal property gives no apparent right to sell the same—Rogers v. Dutton, 182 Mass. 187; McGinley v. Brechtel (Neb.) 95 N. W. 32. Where a husband takes title in his own name on a purchase by the wife, without her knowledge, she is not estopped—Woolsey v. Henn, 83 N. Y. Supp. 394.

Party held estopped to allege that he had discharged his attorney—Butcher v. Quinn, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 391. This subject is more fully discussed in Agency, ante, p. 45; and, as to corporate agents and officers in Corporations, ante, p. 773.

Giving appearance of solvency. One giving notes to bank to make it solvent is estopped to allege want of consideration therefor against creditors—Skordal v. Stanton (Minn.) 95 N. W. 449; Murphy v. Gumaer (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 800. Furnishing money to a debenture company for its guaranty fund—Christian v. Michigan Debenture Co. (Mich.) 96 N. W. 22. Creditor held not estopped by statement to prospective creditors that he would not press his claim—Rosencranz v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. (Mo.) 75 S. W. 445. One who was induced by fraud to buy corporate stock giving his notes therefor and as part of the contract entering into the employ of the corporation is not estopped by the sale of his notes as such employe to later defend for the fraud—Deppen v. German-American Title Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1110, 70 S. W. 868.

70. Recital of sale of certain land to A in a surrender of land to execution, is an estoppel as to one purchasing the land of A—York v. East Jellico Coal Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 927, 76 S. W. 532. One disclaiming title cannot set up a claim against one who purchased from another on the faith thereof though the disclaimer was made in ignorance of his rights—Ward v. Cameron (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 240; Chambers v. Bookman (S. C.) 46 S. E. 39. But see Parkey v. Ramsey (Tenn.) 76 S. W. 812. Exporter estopped to deny title as against one buying on faith of his custom house declaration—Simar v. Shea, 85 N. Y. Supp. 457. Admission by owner of verbal authority to another to sell is an estoppel in favor of one claiming under such person—Northington v. Granade (Ga.) 45 S. E. 447. Where there was a contract to cut timber on shares a statement by the owner to the subcontractor that he had received his share estops him to claim any of the remainder against the subcontractor—Plotts v. Warburton, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 496.

71. One cannot claim an estoppel from that by which his conduct was not influenced—First Nat. Bank v. Ragsdale, 171 Mo. 168; Booth v. Lenox (Fla.) 34 So. 566; Waggoner v. Dodson (Tex.) 73 S. W. 517; Evans v. Odem, 30 Ind. App. 207; Roach v. Springer (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 933. Relying on record title, and not on silence of owner—Strahl v. Smith, 30 Colo. 392, 70 Pac. 677. Full knowledge of facts—Gray v. Zelmer (Kan.) 72 Pac. 228; Perkins Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 117 Ga. 441; Bright v. Allan, 203 Pa. 394; Price v. Stratton (Fla.) 33 So. 644; Beacon Trust Co. v. Souther (Mass.) 67 N. E. 345. Record title plain—Sanborn v. VanDuyne (Minn.) 96 N. W. 41. No estoppel to attack encroachment where it was not known until after construction was complete—Pocahontas Light & Water Co. v. Browning (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 267. A statement by an injured employe exonerating the employer from liability is a mere admission and not an estoppel—Southern Bauxite Min. & Mfg. Co. v. Fuller, 116 Ga. 695. Silence does not estop an adjoining owner to object to an encroachment on a highway—Ackerman v. True, 175 N. Y. 353. Debts not shown to have been incurred on faith of promise to pay for services—Shugart v. Shugart (Tenn.) 76 S. W. 821.

72. Lawrence v. Cannavan (Conn.) 56 Atl. 556; Conway v. Supreme Council, 137 Cal. 384, 70 Pac. 223; Columbus State Bank v. Carrig (Neb.) 92 N. W. 324. Part payment of debt not an estoppel to deny balance when no rights of creditors are prejudiced—O'Malley v. Wagner (Ky.) 76 S. W. 356; Winegardner v. Equitable Loan Co. (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1110. Abandonment of an action without prejudice is not sufficient though costs were incurred—Hughes v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Wash.) 72 Pac. 452. A promise by the maker of a note to pay the same, made to one who stated that he held it only for collection, does not estop the maker to set up a counterclaim (Stuart v. Harmon [Ky.] 72 S. W. 365) nor does a promise to pay made to an indorsee estop the maker to allege defenses of which the indorsee had notice—Wilson v. Riddler, 92 Mo. App. 335. One who has given distinct notice of his refusal to waive delay in performance is not estopped by failure to promptly regence;[73] nor can he assert to another's prejudice, matters inconsistent with his own contracts,[74] or repudiate a transaction from which he has received benefits.[75] The turn securities—Barrett v. Twin City Power Co., 118 Fed. 861.

73. First Nat. Bank v. Andrews (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 956. Negligence in not reading contract does not estop where there was fraud—Spelts v. Ward (Neb.) 96 N. W. 56; Le Mond v. Harrison (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 956. Representations by agent of building association in conflict with the terms of the contract do not in the absence of fraud create an estoppel—Noah v. German-American Bldg. Ass'n (Ind. App.) 68 N. E. 615.

74. A grantee who joins in an agreement extending time for payment of a mortgage on the land cannot deny knowledge of an assumption of such mortgage in his deed—Cruzen v. Pottle (Neb.) 91 N. W. 858. One who has contracted for the abandonment by another of a competing enterprise cannot later assert that the price paid was excessive—Barrett v. Twin City Power Co., 118 Fed. 861. Lien claimants contracting for payment of a mortgage with knowledge of a defense thereto cannot thereafter urge the same—Jones v. Garrigues, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 539. The maker of a note is not estopped from showing fraud by paying discount on several renewals where they were not for his benefit—Adams v. Ashman, 203 Pa. 536. Giving of a bond to dissolve a mechanic's lien which bond recited that the construction contract was made by obligor's agent on his behalf estops him from claiming that he was not liable on the contract—Congress Const. Co. v. Worcester Brew. Co., 182 Mass. 355. Acquiescence by one having an equitable interest in a judgment to a compromise thereof—Moore v. Cloquet Lbr. Co., 87 Minn. 264. One who has given an absolute deed as security for a note is not estopped to assert the true nature thereof against an assignee with notice by receiving from the assignee a receipt for the property as a payment—State v. Mellette (S. D.) 92 N. W. 395. Where consumer equips his house for use of gas and company furnishes it without questioning contract for five years it cannot claim that provision therein for continuance as long as consumer desired lacked mutuality—Corbet v. Oil City Fuel Supply Co., 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 80. A principal performing a contract made by his agent is estopped to hold the agent for any excess of power therein—Hale Elevator Co. v. Hale, 201 Ill. 131. Payment of dues under protest after reduction of the amount of death benefit does not estop the member to allege invalidity of such reduction—Williams v. Supreme Council, A. L. of H., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 402. One procuring surrender of note and collateral in exchange for a new note is estopped to deny that the other party owned the note surrendered—Zuendt v. Doerner (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 873. Purchasing part of wife's goods as separate property estops husband to allege that they were not—Standard Furniture Co. v. Van Alstine, 31 Wash. 499, 72 Pac. 119. Agent estopped to claim that he acted for himself after allowing principal to assume the results of his action—Seacoast R. Co. v. Wood (N. J. Eq.) 56 Atl. 337. A contract to remove an unauthorized dam does not estop the party from obtaining legislative authority to build another—Manigault v. Ward, 123 Fed. 707. A member of an assessment association may retain a bond sent him as evidence of his membership without estoppel to claim under the constitution rights denied by such bond—Knights Templars' & M. Life Indemnity Co. v. Vail (Ill.) 68 N. E. 1103. A depositor who accepts an agreement by which the bank is allowed to reopen cannot allege its invalidity—State v. Germania Bank (Minn.) 95 N. W. 1116. Owner making payments on estimates cannot later object that they were made by the wrong person—Hopkins v. International Lumber Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 1113. Where one accepts a transfer as sufficient and rights are given up on the faith thereof he cannot afterwards question it—Davis v. National Surety Co. (Cal.) 72 Pac. 1001. Guarantor delivering fidelity bond held estopped to deny that premium was paid—Pacific Nat. Bank v. Aetna Indemnity Co. (Wash.) 74 Pac. 590. Practical construction of contract—Masterson v. Heitmann (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 983. City enforcing obligation of franchise cannot deny its validity—New Orleans, S. F. & L. R. Co. v. New Orleans, 109 La. 194.

75. One borrowing from a married woman is estopped to deny her capacity to sue on the note—Richards v. Bippus, 18 App. D. C. 293. One holding property under a decree cannot question its validity—Lincoln v. Lincoln St. R. Co. (Neb.) 93 N. W. 766. Informal execution cannot be urged after receiving benefits—Winslow v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 188 U. S. 646; Collins v. Cobe, 104 Ill. App. 142. Clerk receiving compensation under contract including services as notary cannot claim that contract to receive less than legal notary fees is invalid—Second Nat. Bank v. Ferguson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1298, 71 S. W. 429. Receiving security at creditors' meeting estops to attack security given another creditor—Conde v. Lee, 171 N. Y. 662. One who has repaired a drainage ditch and derived benefit from it cannot enjoin it as a nuisance—Grosjean v. Lulow, 118 Iowa, 346. One receiving the purchase price at a trustee's sale cannot impeach the purchaser's title for defects in the trustee's appointment—White v. Jenkins (Miss.) 33 So. 287. Stockholders cannot allege that a contract whereby a person should become an officer of the corporation and purchase certain stock to be repurchased at the end of his incumbency was against public policy where they have received the benefits thereof for four years—Bonta v. Gridley, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 33. Where one receives more value than he is entitled to by partition and the other lands have passed into the hands of third persons he cannot allege want of jurisdiction to make the partition—Greer v. Ford (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 73. Acceptance of income from trust for many years estops the beneficiary to question the validity of the trust—Dresser v. Travis, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 358. Chattel mortgagor cannot deny that he owned the goods—Layson v. Cooper, 174 Mo. 211. One taking lands by a devise cannot dispute the lien of a debt with which the same was charged—Ballard v. Gamplin (Ind.) 67 N. E. 505. Creditors accepting proceeds of an assignee's sale cannot attack the assignment—Lacy v. Gunn (Cal.)

doctrine that one assuming a certain position in the course of judicial proceedings is precluded thereby from another inconsistent therewith though not in strictness one of estoppel is closely related thereto.[76] Election between counts,[77] estoppel to claim appellate review,[78] waiver of and election between objections,[79] and the doctrine of election between inconsistent positions, are elsewhere treated,[80] as are the related questions of ratification and waiver.[81]

Extent. Persons benefited or bound.—An estoppel in pais does not extend beyond the reasonable inferences from the words or conduct creating it,[82] nor apply to after-acquired rights,[83] and is effective only between the parties and their privies.[84]

74 Pac. 156. One enforcing the terms of an alleged contract cannot afterward deny its contractual character—Grafeman Dairy Co. v. St. Louis Dairy Co., 96 Mo. App. 495. Where a party to a contract takes additional security from an assignee thereof he cannot deny its assignability—Flackenstein Bros. Co. v. Flackenstein (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 1043. Assignment of insurance by beneficiary precludes from attacking validity—Farmers' & T. Bank v. Johnson, 118 Iowa, 282. Receiving insurance premiums. Insurance company continuing to receive premiums with notice of a defense to the policy is estopped to raise the same—Alexander v. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 508. This branch of the subject is inextricable from the doctrine of waiver, and will be specifically treated in Insurance.

76. One procuring his own appointment as tutor of his child and filing an account as such cannot allege her illegitimacy as a defense to an attack on his account—Succession of Emonot, 109 La. 359. Disclaimer estops to object to any decree in rem—Bankers' Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Thomas (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1044. Stipulation from a position inconsistent therewith—Dupree v. Duke, 30 Tex. Civ. App. 360. Admission in a brief in a previous stage of the case does not—Leavenworth Light & Heating Co. v. Waller, 65 Kan. 514, 70 Pac. 365. Stipulation by creditors that the expenses of obtaining judgment by an assignee for benefit of creditors were satisfactory estops them to object to his claim for commissions on such judgment—Woodcock v. Reilly (S. D.) 92 N. W. 10. Purchase of property at an execution sale does not estop the debtor from claiming restitution on reversal of the judgment—Black v. Vermont Marble Co., 137 Cal. 683, 70 Pac. 776. Admission of promise to pay according to the tenor of a note does not estop defendant to claim that the note was delivered on condition—New Haven Mfg. Co. v. New Haven Pulp & Board Co. (Conn.) 55 Atl. 604. Where one interested in an estate asks confirmation of the administrator's account he cannot allege error therein—In re Sherwood's Estate (Pa.) 56 Atl. 20. Request for postponement after time to enter judgment has expired does not estop to object to subsequent rendition where there was no prejudice to the other party—Lawrence v. Cannavan (Conn.) 56 Atl. 556. That in a former bill one styled himself a citizen does not estop him from showing in a second bill that he is an alien—Marthinson v. Winyah Lumber Co., 125 Fed. 633. Unsuccessful attempt to prove cause of accident does not estop plaintiff to invoke doctrine of res ipse loquitur—Cassady v. Old Colony St. R. Co. (Mass.) 68 N. E. 10. Statement as to issues by which no one was misled is not binding—Steedman v. South Carolina & G. E. R. Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 84. One suing on a substituted bond cannot afterwards claim on that first given—Hesser v. Rowley (Cal.) 73 Pac. 156. One giving bond to discharge an attachment cannot urge irregularities in attachment proceedings as a defense—Metcalf v. Bockoven (Neb.) 96 N. W. 406. The court expresses doubt as to whether want of jurisdiction could be urged.

A plaintiff cannot claim that defendants joined by him are not proper parties—Gleason v. Hawkins (Wash.) 73 Pac. 533. Same, cross bill—Bourke v Hefter, 104 Ill. App. 126. One who avers that a contract has never become operative cannot urge that prior contracts merged therein—Stagg v. St. Jean (Mont.) 74 Pac. 740. Obtaining dismissal of appeal because judgment was not final estops to object against bill of review that it was—Taylor v. Crook, 136 Ala. 354. Giving evidence of a dedication in mitigation of damages in one suit does not estop the party from denying dedication in others—Hast v. Piedmont & C. R. Co., 52 W. Va. 396. One suing to establish a lien created by a certain sale cannot avoid the sale—Henry v. Thomas (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 599. Averment of defendant's negligence does not estop plaintiff from an amended complaint alleging that he did not know of such negligence when original complaint was made—Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. v. Pollard, 116 Ga. 297. Implied admission in answer of existence of contract estops defendant from objection to its introduction in evidence—Bushnell v. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co., 91 Mo. App. 523.

77. See Pleading.

78. See Appeal and Review.

79. See Saving Questions for Review.

80. Election of Rights and Remedies.

81. See Ratification; Waiver.

82. Hall v. Moore (Neb.) 92 N. W. 294.

83. Estoppel to set up present title by silence while improvements were made on the faith of a conveyance by another does not apply to after acquired title—Kentucky Union Co. v. Patton, 24 Ky. L. R. 701, 69 S. W. 791. Consent to a chattel mortgage does not estop the party from attacking the same for sales by mortgagor permitted by mortgagee—Brinker v. Ashenfelter (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1124. Silence by heirs during life of their ancestor—Snyder v. Elliott, 171 Mo. 362. Where one contracted to sell two tracts and represented that he was unable to obtain title to one whereupon the purchaser paid the full price for the other, after acquired title ac-

Application to government or municipalities.—While estoppel does not ordinarily operate against a governmental body, it applies to municipalities in the exercise of their private powers,[85] and the underlying principles of estoppel have been applied against the federal government when it seeks the aid of equity.[86]

Pleading.—Estoppel as an element of a cause of action,[87] or as a defense,[88] must be specifically pleaded;[89] but trial of the issue without objection waives failure to plead it.[90] Where the distinction between legal and equitable rights is strictly preserved, estoppel in pais is not available in ejectment,[91] but the general rule is that courts of law will take cognizance of an estoppel.

EVIDENCE.

Scope of article.—This article treats specifically of the competency of evidence; the competency of witnesses and the rules governing their examination being entirely excluded,[1] and questions of relevancy and sufficiency of evidence except so far as crues to the purchaser—Guthrie v. Martin, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 385.

84. Booth v. Lenox (Fla.) 34 So. 566; Coe College v. Cedar Rapids (Iowa) 95 N. W. 267. Recitals in a conveyance are not binding on strangers—Davis v. Moyels (Vt.) 56 Atl. 174. Stockholders acting on behalf of the corporation are bound by an estoppel against it—Kessler v. Ensley, 123 Fed. 546. Consent by a widow personally does not estop her as administratrix under a subsequent appointment—Rohn v. Rohn (Ill.) 68 N. E. 369. Estoppel of residuary legatee to dispute specific legacy operates also against creditor of former—Austin v. Buckman (Wis.) 95 N. W. 128. Company formed to take title to irrigation rights for benefit of purchasers held not in privity with irrigation company—Blakely v. Ft. Lyon Canal Co. (Colo.) 73 Pac. 249. Owners of stolen money are not bound by an estoppel of the person receiving it to his creditors—Lord v. Seymour, 83 N. Y. Supp. 88. Estoppel as to sureties to deny another's title does not operate in favor of creditors—Citizens' Bank v. Burrus (Mo.) 77 S. W. 748.

85. City cannot question the validity of permits to lay tracks after they have been acted on—People v. Blocki, 203 Ill. 363. A viaduct after it is laid under permission ambiguous as to the width thereof—Village of Winnetka v. Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. (Ill.) 68 N. E. 407.

Village held not estopped by action of trustees in approving grade crossing without authority of railroad commissioners—Village of Bolivar v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 84 N. Y. Supp. 678. State board of land commissioners held not estopped by act of its register, he having no authority in respect thereto—Florence Oil & Refining Co. v. Orman (Colo. App.) 73 Pac. 628. No estoppel to repeal vacation of street where nothing was done in reliance thereon—City of Ashland v. Northern Pac. R. Co. (Wis.) 96 N. W. 688. Levy of taxes on land does not estop a city or state to claim title thereto—Turner v. Mobile, 135 Ala. 73; Slattery v. Heilperin (La.) 34 So. 139; City of Uniontown v. Berry, 24 Ky. L. R. 1692, 72 S. W. 295. No estoppel from allowing occupation of unopened street—Russell v. Lincoln, 200 Ill. 511.

86. United States v. Stinson (C. C. A.) 125 Fed. 907.

87. Taylor v. Patton (Ind.) 66 N. E. 91.

88. Adams v. Adams (Ind.) 66 N. E. 153; Carthage v. Carthage Light Co., 97 Mo. App. 20; Western Realty Co. v. Musser, 97 Mo. App. 114; Leschen & Sons Rope Co. v. Craig (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 885; Wisconsin Farm Land Co. v. Bullard (Wis.) 96 N. W. 833; Carnahan v. Brewster (Neb.) 96 N. W. 590; Read v. Citizens' St. R. Co. (Tenn.) 75 S. W. 1056; Union St. R. Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Or.) 72 Pac. 586; George B. Loving Co. v. Hesperian Cattle Co. (Mo.) 75 S. W. 1095; Union State Bank v. Hutton (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1061; Pratt v. Hawes (Wis.) 95 N. W. 965.

89. Averment of facts without designating the plea as one of estoppel held sufficient—Rieschick v. Klingelhoefer, 91 Mo. App. 430.

90. McDonnell v. De Soto Sav. & Bldg. Ass'n (Mo.) 75 S. W. 438.

91. Grubbs v. Boon, 201 Ill. 98; Haney v. Breeden, 100 Va. 781; Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 202 Ill. 41.

1. Examination of Witnesses; Witnesses.

they illustrate some general rule being excluded to titles dealing with the particular subject or issue to which the evidence is addressed. Evidence in criminal prosecutions is also treated elsewhere,[2] though occasional holdings of undoubted general application have been included.

§ 1. Necessity and duty of adducing evidence. A. Judicial notice.—The courts will take judicial notice of matters of common knowledge,[3] of well established principles of science,[4] of the mortality tables,[5] of the intoxicating character of liquors,[6] of generally established customs,[7] of the usages of business,[8] of matters of history,[9] of the laws of nature,[10] of the coincidence of days of the week and of the month,[11] of the powers of political bodies,[12] of the political divisions of the state[13] and their population,[14] of notaries public and their residence,[15] of the organization and terms of courts of record.[16]

A court will especially take judicial notice of its own sessions[17] and of its rec-

2. Indictment & Prosecution.

3. Of the vicious nature of mules—Borden v. Falk Co., 97 Mo. App. 566. That the assessed value of property is less than its actual value—State v. Savage (Neb.) 91 N. W. 716. Of common knowledge as to the state of an art in determining the novelty of a patented device—Farmers' Mfg. Co v Spruks Mfg Co., 119 Fed. 594. That dynamite is a dangerous explosive—Fitzsimons & Connell Co. v. Braun, 199 Ill. 390. That the traffic in and shipment of live stock increases yearly—Chinn v. Chicago & A. R. Co. (Mo App.) 75 S. W. 375. That methods of instruction have changed in the last twenty-five years, so that competency to teach then is no evidence of present competency—People v. Maxwell, 84 N. Y. Supp. 947. While this ruling is put on the ground of judicial notice, it would seem that the doctrine of irrelevance of conditions remote in point of time furnishes a sounder basis.

4. That coal deposits generate gas—Poor v. Watson, 92 Mo. App. 89. Of the nature of vaccination—Commonwealth v. Pear (Mass.) 66 N. E. 719.

5. Nelson v. Branford Lighting & Water Co., 75 Conn. 548.

6. That whisky (Hodge v. State, 116 Ga. 852) and beer (Sothman v. State [Neb.] 92 N. W. 303) are intoxicating, and that bock beer is a malt liquor—Pedigo v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 1029, 70 S. W. 659.

7. Crawford Co. v. Hathaway (Neb.) 93 N. W. 781.

8. That drafts on New York are at a premium—Citizens' State Bank v. Cowles, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 571. That telegraph wires strung on poles are necessarily incident to the operation of a railroad will be judicially noticed but not the time required for their repair—Youree v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. (La.) 34 So. 779.

Not of colloquial terms ("sack raft")—The Mary, 123 Fed. 609.

9. That savings banks were chartered long before the National Banking Act—State v. Franklin County Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 74 Vt. 246.

10. Of the hour when the sun rises and sets (Montenes v. Metropolitan Street R. Co., 77 App. Div. [N. Y.] 493) or when daylight begins (Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Worthington, 30 Ind. App. 663) and in so doing may consult the almanac—Montenes v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 493.

That rice cannot be grown without water—Barr v. Cardiff (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 341.

11. Jordan v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 92 Mo. App. 84; Dorough v. Equitable Mortg. Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 22; Ryer v. Prudential Ins. Co., 82 N. Y. Supp. 971.

12. Conventions—State v. Liudahl, 11 N. D. 320.

13. Of the county in which a given township is located—City Nat. Bank v. Goodloe, etc., Commission Co., 93 Mo. App. 123. Of the corporate capacity of the city of St. Louis—State v. Nolle, 96 Mo. App. 524. That a county seat established by statute is within the county—State v. Buralli (Nev.) 71 Pac. 532. That a certain city is the county seat (Flynt v. Eagle Pass Coal & Coke Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 77 S. W. 831). Of the county in which a certain section, town and range is located—Parker v. Burton, 172 Mo. 85. That the county seat is not always located at the largest city in the county—Maricopa County v. Burnett (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 908. That two towns in the same state were in opposite directions from a third town—McGrew v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. (Mo.) 76 S. W. 995. Not of the fact that a point a certain distance from an unincorporated village was in a certain county—Anderson v. Commonwealth (Va.) 42 S. E. 865. Internal economy. Not of the "house line" on a certain street—New York v. Childs, 84 N. Y. Supp. 164. Nor the width of streets—Coe College v. Cedar Rapids (Iowa) 95 N. W. 267.

14. Of population of a county as shown by U. S. census—Board of Com'rs v. Garty (Ind.) 68 N. E. 1012. Or that a city is of the first class—Ft. Scott v. Elliott (Kan.) 74 Pac. 609. But the population of city cannot be judicially noticed to be greater than is stated by public records—Adams v. Elwood (N. Y.) 68 N. E. 126.

15. That a person taking an affidavit was a notary in a certain county—Black v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. (Iowa) 96 N. W. 984. Of what ward of a city in the county where the court sits a notary has been appointed for—Russell v. Huntsville Ry., Light & Power Co. (Ala.) 34 So. 855.

16. Who are judges—Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Lawn, 30 Ind. App. 515. Of the commencement of terms of court as fixed by statute but not their adjournment—Hadley v Bernero, 97 Mo. App. 314; Lanckton v. United States, 18 App. D. C. 348; Emery v. League (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 603; Moss v. Sugar Ridge Tp. (Ind.) 68 N. E. 896.

ords,[18] but not of the sessions of another court,[19] nor will a federal court judicially notice the rules of a state court.[20]

Judicial notice is taken of public statutes,[21] of executive rules made and published pursuant to statute;[22] but not of city ordinances,[23] though courts having jurisdiction of a prosecution under an ordinance take judicial notice of such ordinance.[24] Notice will not be taken of a foreign law,[25] the statute of another state,[26] nor of the laws of an Indian nation.[27]

(§ 1) B. Presumptions and burden of proof.—The so-called conclusive presumptions are mere rules of law and form no part of the law of evidence.[28] Presumptions properly so called may be divided into those arising by way of logical deduction or inference from facts in evidence, and those arising independently of deduction and based on considerations of convenience or public policy. Of the first class are the presumption of death from continued absence,[29] of the continuance of a state of facts once shown to exist[30] that a witness withheld,[31] or a document destroyed or not produced,[32] is unfavorable to the party withholding it, and a great variety of specific presumptions based on the ordinary course of human conduct and dealings, illustrations of which will be found in the note.[33] Among those presump-

17. Hadley v. Bernero, 97 Mo. App. 314.

18. Stewart v. Rosengren (Neb.) 92 N. W. 586. Of ancillary proceedings in the same suit—Jeffries v. Smith (Tex. Civ App.) 73 S. W. 48.

19. Hadley v. Bernero, 97 Mo. App 314.

20. Randall v. New England Order of Protection, 118 Fed. 782.

21. Rolla State Bank v. Borgfeld, 93 Mo App. 62. And of facts depending on them, such as the terms of court (Lanckton v United States, 18 App. D. C. 348; Hadley v. Bernero, 97 Mo. App. 314) or that a county seat fixed by statute was in the county—State v. Buralli (Nev.) 71 Pac. 532.

22. Larson v. First Nat. Bank (Neb.) 92 N. W. 729.

23. Lasher v. Littell, 104 Ill. App. 211. The width of city streets not established by charter will not be judicially noticed—Coe College v. Cedar Rapids (Iowa) 95 N. W. 267. Ky. St. § 2761 provides that judicial notice shall be taken of ordinances—Woolley v. Louisville, 24 Ky. L. R. 1357, 71 S. W. 893

24. On appeal in such prosecution the reviewing court likewise takes notice of the ordinance—Strauss v. Village of Conneaut, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 320.

25. McCurdy v. Alaska & C Commercial Co., 102 Ill. App. 120 The existence of the civil law as the basis of Mexican jurisprudence will be noticed, but not whether a particular rule thereof is in force—Banco De Sonora v. Bankers' Mut. Casualty Co. (Iowa) 95 N. W. 232.

26. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. Flynn (Ind. App.) 68 N. E. 327; Ferd Heim Brew Co. v. Gimber (Kan.) 72 Pac. 859; Southern Ill. & M. Bridge Co. v. Stone, 174 Mo. 1. The judicial interpretation of laws of another state will not be noticed—Pacific Exp Co. v. Pitman (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 312 The statute providing for such judicial notice does not extend to private laws—Miller v. Johnston (Ark.) 72 S. W. 371.

27. Kelly v. Churchill (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 817; Sass v. Thomas (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 893.

28. Common presumptions of this class are that of the incapacity of infants (see Infants) and of a grant from continued possession of land (see Adverse Possession).

29. In re Board of Education, 173 N. Y. 321; Willcox v. Trenton Potteries Co., 64 N. J. Eq. 173; Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Rosch, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 491.

30. Continuance in force of street railroad rule—Paquin v. St. Louis R. Co., 90 Mo App. 118. Of a foreign statute—Seaboard Air Line R v. Phillips, 117 Ga. 98. Continuance of life—Chicago, etc., R. Co v. Young (Neb.) 93 N. W. 922. Of domicile—In re Russell's Estate, 64 N. J. Eq. 313. Of public character of funds deposited by a public officer—Baker v. Williams Banking Co., 42 Or. 213, 70 Pac. 711. Of insanity once adjudicated—Eakin v. Hawkins, 52 W. Va. 124. A person absent for 20 years will not be presumed to have continued unmarried—Johnson v. Johnson, 170 Mo. 34.

31. Minch v. New York R. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 324; Katafiasz v. Toledo Consol. Elec. Co., 24 Ohio Circ. R. 127; Johnson v Levy, 109 La. 1036; Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Butler, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 459; Vandervort v. Fouse, 52 W. Va. 214. The rule does not apply where the witness was equally accessible to either party (Yula v. New York R Co., 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 59; Erie R. Co v. Kane (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 223; Shannon v Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294) or is beyond the jurisdiction—Fremont v Metropolitan St R. Co., 83 App. Div. (N Y.) 414.

32. Thompson v. Chappell, 91 Mo App. 297; Heller v. Beal, 23 Ohio Circ R 540

33. That a deed in the hands of grantee was delivered (Inman v. Swearingen 198 Ill. 437) on the day of its date (Atlantic City v. New Auditorium Pier Co., 63 N J Eq 644) and the same presumptions apply to a note—Wells v. Hobson, 91 Mo App. 379. That cohabitation meretricious at its inception so continued—Henry v. Taylor (S. D.) 93 N. W 641. That services rendered between persons in immediate family relations are gratuitous—Sloan v. Dale, 90 Mo App. 87 That a conveyance to a wife on consideration paid by the husband was a gift from him to her and not charged with a trust—Johnson v. Johnson, 96 Md. 144; Flanner v. Butler, 131 N. C. 155. That a railroad company owns and operates an engine running on its tracks—Brooks v. Missouri Pac. R.

tions dictated by public policy or convenience and which affect in the first instance the burden of proof are such presumptions as that official acts are regularly and legally done,[34] that judicial proceedings were regular and within the jurisdiction of the court,[35] that every man is sane[36] and solvent,[37] that every woman is chaste,[38] that men act in good faith and with innocent motives,[39] and without culpable negligence.[40]

There is no such general presumption of survivorship in common disaster.[41]

It will be presumed that the law of a foreign country[42] or of another state[43] is the same as that of the forum.

Co., 98 Mo. App. 166. That the holder of a negotiable instrument is the owner thereof —National Revere Bank v National Bank of Republic, 172 N. Y. 102; Beaman v. Ward, 132 N. C. 68; Michigan Mut Life Ins Co. v. Klatt (Neb.) 92 N. W. 325; Watford v. Windham, 64 S C. 509. The signature to a note is presumed to have been affixed before delivery and on the day of its date—Wells v. Hobson, 91 Mo. App. 379. The authorities are in conflict as to whether the holder of a note is presumed to be a purchaser in good faith. That he is, see Black v. First Nat. Bank, 96 Md. 399; Hahn v. Bradley, 92 Mo. App. 399. That he is not, where it appears that the note was procured by fraud see McGill v. Young (S. D.) 92 N W. 1066. Execution of chattel mortgage is not presumptive evidence of title in mortgagor—Syck v. Bossingham (Iowa) 94 N. W. 920.

34. State v. Savage (Neb.) 91 N. W. 716; Sheafer v Mitchell, 109 Tenn. 181; Watkins v. Havighorst (Okl.) 74 Pac. 318; Pine Tree Lumber Co v. Fargo (N. D.) 96 N. W. 357; Brown v Helsley (Neb.) 96 N. W. 187. Where work is begun under a franchise it will be presumed that the requisite consent of officials thereto was obtained—McWethy v Aurora Elec. Light & Power Co., 202 Ill. 218. Where a street railroad was authorized, it will be presumed that the requisite consent of property owners was filed—Mercer County Traction Co. v. United New Jersey R & C. Co., 64 N. J. Eq. 588. It will be presumed that a patent was countersigned by the recorder of the land office though the abstract does not show it—McLeod v. Lloyd (Or) 71 Pac. 795

But the presumption in favor of official acts does not obtain where a forfeiture is sought to be established by such acts—Irwin v Mayes (Tex Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 33.

35. Coveney v Phiscator (Mich) 93 N W. 619; National Bank v. Home Security Co., 65 Kan. 642. 70 Pac. 646; Talbot v. Roe, 171 Mo. 421, Haupt v. Simington, 27 Mont. 480. 71 Pac 672. Judgment of another state presumed valid—Gottlieb v. Alton Grain Co., 87 App Div. (N. Y.) 380. And see article on Courts.

36. Dickerson v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co , 200 Ill. 270; Davis v. State (Fla.) 32 So 822 And though it appears that one committed suicide it will be presumed that he was sane—Royal Circle v. Achterrath (Ill.) 68 N. E 492. But after an adjudication of insanity the presumption of the continuance of that state obtains--Eakin v. Hawkins. 52 W. Va. 124. The operation of this presumption where insanity is alleged as a defense to crime will be treated in Indictment and Prosecution.

37. Warren v. Robison, 25 Utah, 205, 70 Pac. 989; Lewis v. Boardman, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 394.

38. Griffin v. State, 109 Tenn. 17; Puckett v. State (Ark.) 70 S. W. 1041.

39. Mortimer v. McMullen, 102 Ill. App. 593. Adverse possession presumed to have been in good faith—Baxley v Baxley, 117 Ga. 60. That alterations in an instrument were made before delivery—Consumers' Ice Co. v. Jennings (Va.) 42 S. E. 879. That a will was not procured by fraud or undue influence—Swearingen v. Inman, 198 Ill. 255; Crossan v. Crossan, 169 Mo. 631; In re Holman's Will, 42 Or. 345, 70 Pac. 908. Alleged fraudulent conveyances—Culp v. Mulvane (Kan.) 71 Pac. 273; Edwards v. Anderson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 555. Malice in the institution of a prosecution is not to be presumed—Richards v. Jewett Bros., 118 Iowa, 629; Boush v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (Va.) 42 S. E. 877. That representations by an applicant for insurance were made in good faith—Alden v. Supreme Tent, K. of M., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 18. That insured did not commit suicide —Cox v. Royal Tribe, 42 Or. 365, 71 Pac. 73; Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Rosch, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 491; Western Travelers' Ass'n v. Holbrook (Neb.) 91 N. W. 276.

40. Brooks v. Louisville R Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1318, 71 S. W. 507; Franklin v. Missouri R. Co., 97 Mo. App. 473; Klos v. Hudson River Ore & Iron Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 566. And see articles on Master and Servant and Negligence.

41. Age, sex or condition of the parties creates none—Young Women's Christian Home v. French, 187 U. S. 401, 47 Law. Ed. 233; Faul v. Hulick, 18 App. D. C. 9; Middeke v Balder, 198 Ill. 590; Males v. Sovereign Camp, W. of W. (Tex. Civ. App) 70 S. W. 108.

42. Mittenthal v. Mascagni, 183 Mass 19. It will be presumed that the laws of every country give a right to compensation for personal injuries—Mackey v. Mexican Cent. R Co., 78 N. Y. Supp. 966.

43. Barringer v. Ryder (Iowa) 93 N W. 56; Fidelity Ins., etc., Co. v. Nelson, 30 Wash. 340, 70 Pac. 961; Second Nat. Bank v Smith (Wis.) 94 N. W. 664; Dinkins v. Crunden-Martin Woodenware Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 246; Peter Adams Paper Co. v. Cassard (Pa.) 55 Atl. 949. A statute shown to exist in another state will be presumed to have continued in force—Seaboard Air Line R. v. Phillips, 117 Ga. 98; Poll v. Hicks (Kan.) 72 Pac. 847; Dignan v. Nelson (Utah) 72 Pac. 936. In some states this presumption does not obtain as to statute law and the presumption is that the common law is in force —Baltimore R. Co. v. Adams, 159 Ind. 688; Price v. Clevenger (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 894;

Burden of proof.—Wherever a presumption of this latter class arises, the burden is of course on the party against whom the same operates to rebut it. No cases relating to the general doctrine of burden of proof were decided within the period covered by this issue and the burden of proving particular facts is not deemed of sufficient general value to be here treated, but will be found under the titles relating to the particular subjects or issues.

§ 2. Relevancy and materiality.[44]—Every fact tending to strengthen the probabilities on one side or the other is logically relevant,[45] but evidence as to a party's character is not relevant to render improbable acts inconsistent therewith.[46]

Where acts are alleged to be negligent, evidence that they were or were not in accordance with the usual practice is relevant.[47] Though the evidence must ordinarily be confined to the transaction in issue, evidence of previous similar transactions are sometimes deemed relevant,[48] evidence of previous similar accidents from the same cause being the most common illustration,[49] but only under similar condi-

Wells v. Gress (Ga.) 45 S. E. 418; Rosemand v. Southern Ry., 66 S. C. 91.

44. Only the most general holdings are here given, the relevancy of evidence to a particular issue being considered as peculiar to that subject matter and treated under the appropriate title.

45. Glassberg v. Olson (Minn.) 94 N. W. 554; Chamberlain v. Chamberlain Banking House (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1021. Much latitude is allowed where circumstantial evidence is resorted to—Mosby v. McKee, etc., Commission Co., 91 Mo. App. 500. Evidence that in a certain year a party paid no taxes on money at interest is relevant in support of his testimony that he had no knowledge of a transaction as part of which a note was alleged to have been made to him—Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294. Evidence that a certain laborer received no more wages than other members of the gang is irrelevant on the issue whether he was a vice principal—Fritz v. Western Union Tel. Co., 25 Utah. 263, 71 Pac. 209.

46. Evidence of character of defendant and of person aggrieved in criminal prosecutions is treated in Indictment and Prosecution and related criminal titles there referred to; evidence of character to support or discredit witness in Witnesses. Good repute of defendant in civil action for homicide, (Morgan v. Barnhill [C. C. A.] 118 Fed. 24) of a clerk sued for money embezzled, (Adams v. Elseffer [Mich.] 92 N. W. 772) of one alleged to have fraudulently conveyed property (Ellwood v. Walter, 103 Ill. App. 219) of one alleged to have suppressed a will (McElroy v. Phink [Tex.] 76 S. W. 753) of bad character for honesty of one sued for wrongful distress (Hurst v. Benson [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 417) and reputation of deceased for sobriety in an action for death by wrongful act—Chesapeake R. Co. v. Riddle's Adm'x, 24 Ky. L. R. 1687, 72 S. W. 22 have all been held inadmissible. But such evidence is admissible where evidence assailing the party's character has been admitted on behalf of the other party (Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Steenberger, 24 Ky. L. R. 761, 69 S. W. 1094) though evidence incidentally aspersing the party's character will not admit such proof—McCowen v. Gulf R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 46.

47. It may be shown that work was done in the usual manner, to rebut a charge that the method was unsafe (Stauning v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 88 Minn. 480; Hamilton v. Mendota Coal & Min. Co. [Iowa] 94 N. W. 282; Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Goodson [Ga.] 45 S. E. 680) and in support of such a claim the contrary may be shown—Devaney v. Degnon-McLean Const. Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 62; Fritz v. Western Union Tel. Co., 25 Utah. 263, 71 Pac. 209. Thus rules governing the same kind of work promulgated by other employes may be shown—Devoe v. New York Cent. R. Co., 174 N. Y. 1.

But it must appear that the usage was known to the party seeking to avail himself thereof—Bourbonnais v. West Boylston Mfg. Co. (Mass.) 68 N. E. 232. That improved appliances are in use by other employers is not competent unless it is shown that such improvements are practicable and produce greater safety—Bryce v. Burlington R. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 275.

In like manner, evidence that employes worked in the usual way is admissible to show absence of contributory negligence—Ham v. Lake Shore R. Co., 23 Ohio Circ. R. 496; International R. Co. v. Bearden (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 558; Galveston R. Co. v. Puente (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 362. Thus, manner of using defective street by others at about the same time is admissible to rebut contributory negligence—City of Charlottesville v. Stratton's Adm'r (Va.) 45 S. E. 737.

48. Salary of plaintiff's predecessor admissible on quantum meruit for services—Meislahn v. Irving Nat. Bank, 172 N. Y. 631. Other forgeries (Kingsbury v. Waco State Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 70 S. W. 551) or other acts of adultery (Goldie v. Goldie, 39 Misc. [N. Y.] 389) than those forming the subject of the action are not admissible. Evidence of similar misrepresentations to other persons similarly situated with reference to the same transaction is admissible—Barbar v. Martin (Neb.) 93 N. W. 722.

49. City of Kingfisher v. Altizer (Okl.) 74 Pac. 107; Smith v. Seattle (Wash.) 74 Pac. 674. This matter will be more specifically treated in the forthcoming article on Negligence. In action for injuries caused by slipping of belt, evidence that the belt had slipped on previous occasions is admissible (Houston Biscuit Co. v. Dial, 135 Ala. 168) as is evidence that other persons had been injured by the same cogwheels (Dorsett v.

tions.[50] Evidence of conditions after the transaction in issue is not relevant unless it appears that they have not changed,[51] and evidence of subsequent precautions to prevent recurrence of injury is inadmissible.[52]

On an issue as to the value of land, evidence as to the price paid for similar property in the vicinity is admissible,[53] but no other evidence of the value of adjoining lands than actual sales is within this rule.[54] The price paid by the owner of land is admissible as to its present value unless conditions have changed,[55] but not offers received by the owner.[56] Where detention from place of employment is alleged, the earnings of others in similar employment there is admissible.[57]

Evidence explanatory of facts in evidence or tending to rebut inference therefrom is relevant,[58] and where the admissions or declarations of a party are introduced, he is entitled to explain the same,[59] and the entire conversation or document in which the admission is made is admissible.[60]

Clement-Ross Mfg. Co., 131 N. C. 254) evidence that other cattle were made sick by feed for negligent sale of which action is brought—Houston Cotton Oil Co. v. Trammell (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 244. On issue whether obstruction was calculated to frighten horses, evidence that other horses were frightened thereby is admissible—Galt v. Woliver, 103 Ill. App. 71; Nye v. Dibley, 88 Minn. 465. Evidence of other fires started by a certain engine at about the time of that in question is admissible—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Chittim (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 294. But in Missouri and California it is otherwise held, evidence of previous injuries by same appliance (Edwards v. Barber Asphalt Co., 92 Mo. App. 221; Roche v. Llewellyn Ironworks Co. [Cal.] 74 Pac. 147) or by same defect in sidewalk (Smart v. Kansas City, 91 Mo. App. 586) being excluded.

Evidence of contributory negligence of employe on other occasions is inadmissible—International R. Co. v. Ives (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 772; Aiken v. Holyoke St. R. Co. (Mass.) 68 N. E. 238.

50. Florida Cent. R. Co. v. Mooney (Fla.) 33 So. 1010. Derailment of another car on a different track (Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Duffey, 116 Ga. 346) flooding of other cellars at different times and from different causes (Louisville Water Co. v. Weis, 25 Ky. L. R. 808, 76 S. W. 356) have been held irrelevant. Evidence that no overflow resulted from maintenance of previous dam is irrelevant unless it is shown to have been similar in height and construction to that complained of (Crossen v. Grandy, 42 Or. 282, 70 Pac. 906) and proof of satisfactory working of appliances similar to that claimed to be defective is irrelevant unless conditions are shown to be similar—Jewell Filter Co. v. Kirk, 200 Ill. 382.

51. Chicago v. Early, 104 Ill. App. 398. But conditions immediately afterward may be shown—Slack v. Harris, 200 Ill. 96. Fact that turn table was unlocked after an accident but on the same day held admissible—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Krayenbuhl (Neb.) 91 N. W. 880.

52. By some courts this class of evidence is deemed irrelevant; by others it is excluded on the theory that public policy forbids treating such precautions as an implied admission of negligence—Georgia Southern & F. R. Co. v. Cartledge, 116 Ga. 164; McGarr v. National & P. Worsted Mills, 24 R. I. 447; Elias v. Lancaster City, 203 Pa. 638.

53. Loloff v. Sterling (Colo.) 71 Pac. 1113; Board of Levee Com'rs v. Nelms (Miss.) 34 So. 149; Dady v. Condit, 104 Ill. App. 507; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Hughes (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 976; Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287; Houston v. Western Washington R. Co., 204 Pa. 321; Faust v. Hosford (Iowa) 93 N. W. 58. But this class of evidence is excluded in New York—Robinson v. New York El. R. Co., 175 N. Y. 219; Rosenblum v. Riley, 84 N. Y. Supp. 884. It has been held that sales of vacant land were relevant as to the value of improved land—O'Malley v. Commonwealth, 182 Mass. 196. But see contra, Fox v. Robbins (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 597. Yield of adjoining lands may be shown on issue of damage by destruction of crop—Condon v. Des Moines Mut. Hail Ass'n (Iowa) 94 N. W. 477. Prices paid to others during the season are relevant as to market price—Robichaux v. Segura Sugar Co. (La.) 34 So. 744. Admissibility of evidence as to land values will be found discussed with considerable fullness in the article on Eminent Domain.

54. Opinions as to value—Bullock v. Lake Drummond Canal Co., 132 N. C. 179; Sirk v. Emery (Mass.) 67 N. E. 668. Price at which adjacent lands are held by owner—Eastern Tex. R. Co. v. Scurlock (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 366.

55. Wells, Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314. But not where the purchase was in connection with other lands for a lump sum; or as part settlement for an existing claim against an insolvent—Lanquist v. Chicago, 200 Ill. 69. Or was made several years before the time of inquiry—Id.; McNicol v. Collins, 30 Wash. 318, 70 Pac. 753. The fact that property was sold to a public board does not show that it was a forced sale so as to render the price inadmissible—O'Malley v. Commonwealth, 182 Mass. 196.

56. Walker v. Farrell, 84 N. Y. Supp. 182; Stewart v. James (Neb.) 95 N. W. 778; Wells, Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

57. Johnson v. San Juan Fish Co., 31 Wash. 238, 71 Pac. 787.

58. Where it appears that injured person did not have medical attendance he may show that he could not afford it—Muller v. Hale, 138 Cal. 163, 71 Pac. 81.

A witness may explain away discrediting evidence. See Witnesses.

59. Coldren v. Le Gore, 118 Iowa, 212.

§ 3. Competency or kind of evidence in general.[61]—Conversations otherwise admissible are not to be excluded because had over a telephone.[62] Merely negative evidence unless of a conclusive nature is not competent.[63] Though evidence be incompetent, it is admissible to rebut similar incompetent evidence introduced by the adverse party.[64]

§ 4. Best and secondary evidence.—The rule in its most general form is that evidence must be the best of which the nature of the case admits,[65] its most common application being the exclusion of oral evidence to prove the contents of a writing,[66] and a fortiori of specialties,[67] books of account,[68] and judicial,[69] official,[70] or corpo-

Mistake in a writing—Ritchey v. Seeley (Neb.) 93 N. W. 977. Proof of changes in master's report to limit admissions implied from consent to entry of order thereon—In re Duncan, 64 S. C. 461. Where an expert has testified to construction of certain rules other rules inconsistent with his opinion are admissible though not otherwise relevant—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Owens (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 579.

60. Elizabeth City Cotton Mills v. Loeb (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 154; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Story, 104 Ill. App. 132; Hewlett v. Hyden (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 839. An admission in an answer may be introduced without introducing accompanying denials of other parts of the cause of action—Lewis v. Norfolk R. Co., 132 N. C. 382. Where a letter has been introduced for an admission therein, the other party may introduce all the correspondence on that subject—Lewis Pub. Co. v. Lenz, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 451.

61. Includes only the few miscellaneous rulings as to competency of evidence not covered by the general rules of competency represented by the following sections.

62. Galt v. Woliver, 103 Ill. App. 71. But there must be proof over the identity of the persons speaking—Kimbark v. Illinois Car & Equipment Co., 103 Ill. App. 632. Conversation by telephone admissible where adverse party admits that there was a conversation. The court intimates a doubt as to whether preliminary evidence, as of recognition of voice, is necessary in any event—Lincoln Mill Co. v. Wissler (Neb.) 95 N. W. 857.

63. That no effort was made to apprehend any person for murder is incompetent on an issue as to suicide—Treat v. Merchants Life Ass'n. 198 Ill. 431. Evidence of an employe that he never saw the machinery inspected is inadmissible—Duntley v. Inman, Poulson & Co., 42 Or. 334, 70 Pac. 529.

64. Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294; Yank v. Bordeaux (Mont.) 74 Pac. 77; McNicol v. Collins, 30 Wash. 318, 70 Pac. 753; San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Griffith (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 438. Expert testimony—Hutter v. DeQ. Bottle Stopper Co., 119 Fed. 190. Character evidence—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Steenberger, 24 Ky. L. R. 761, 69 S. W. 1094. But only where the attack on character is direct—McCowen v. Gulf R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 46. Though a conversation is hearsay, if evidence as to the same is introduced by one party the other may prove his version of it—Johnson v. Doon (Mich.) 91 N. W. 742; Droege v. Baxter, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 78. Evidence of the arrest of defendant's employe for the transaction in issue authorizes evidence that he was discharged after arraignment—James v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 364. Evidence that plaintiff made no complaint of injury authorizes proof of complaints by him—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hawk (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1037. But in an action for damage caused to a building by an explosion, evidence that the explosion did not damage one adjoining building does not authorize evidence that it did damage another—Fitzsimmons & Connell Co v. Braun, 199 Ill. 390. Where defendant in a personal injury case shows the appliances used elsewhere in his mine he cannot object to evidence that they are more secure than that complained of—Brazil Block Coal Co. v. Gibson (Ind.) 66 N. E. 882. Where a party shows the manner in which an account is kept the other party may prove at whose request it was done—Hill Bros. v. Bank of Seneca (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 307.

65. The Ulalia, 37 Ct. Cl. 466.

66. Mahaney v. Carr, 175 N. Y. 454. There is an exception in case of written notices, that served and that retained being considered duplicate originals—Eisenhart v. Slaymaker, 14 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 153 (leading case); Florida Cent., etc., R. Co. v. Seymour (Fla.) 33 So. 424.

67. Graham v. Warren (Miss.) 33 So. 71 Title to land (Arnold v. Cofer, 135 Ala. 364; Wright v. Roberts, 116 Ga. 194) or the conveyance thereof (Houck v. Patty [Mo. App.] 73 S. W. 389) cannot be shown by parol.

68. Wilson v. Morse, 117 Iowa, 581; Rogers v. O'Barr (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 593.

69. Judgment cannot be proved by parol—Rosenberg v. Goldstein, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 753. Record is not the best evidence of services rendered by an attorney in the action—Cahill v. Baird (Cal.) 70 Pac. 1061. The docket entry is the best evidence of the filing of a claim against a decedent's estate—Kornegay v. Mayer, 135 Ala. 141. The decree is the best evidence of the condemnation of a vessel in admiralty—The Ulalia, 37 Ct. Cl. 466. That a person participated in a certain action may be shown by parol—Daly v. Everett Pulp & Paper Co., 31 Wash. 252, 71 Pac. 1014. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1922 the legal existence of a justice court in another state may be proved by the testimony of the justice—Banister v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 455, 71 Pac. 504. Original papers filed in court are not secondary to certified copies—Bradley Timber Co. v. White (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 779. Docket entries of a referee in bankruptcy are the best evidence of matters therein stated—Davis v. Ives, 75 Conn. 611.

70. Municipal authorization of the digging of a ditch cannot be proved by parol—Town of Jackson v. Ellis, 116 Ga. 719. Contents of a petition on file with the town clerk cannot be proved by parol—Seigel v.

rate records,[71] and private copies stand on the same footing as oral evidence.[72] As to the existence of a writing, however, the general rule seems to be that parol evidence is admissible.[73] Where the contents of a writing is only collaterally in issue, the rule does not apply.[74]

The rule requires, however, only the best evidence available, and where the primary evidence is lost or destroyed[75] beyond the jurisdiction,[76] or in the hands of the adverse party,[77] secondary evidence is admissible; but there must be preliminary proof of the destruction of the writing,[78] or, if it is alleged to be lost that after diligent search it cannot be found, the sufficiency of such proof being generally in the discretion of the court.[79]

Town of Liberty (Wis.) 95 N. W. 402. The contents of the tax rolls cannot be proved by parol—Montpelier Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. School District, 115 Wis. 622. But a witness may testify that an examination of the tax records did not show the filing of a certain return—Vizard v. Moody, 117 Ga. 67. An official plat is not better evidence than a plat made by a witness who has surveyed the land—City of Chicago v. Le Moyne (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 662. The fact that an examination of certain accounts has been made by the public examiner may be moved by parol—Culver v. Caldwell (Ala.) 34 So. 13.

71. Corcoran v. Sonora Min. & Mill. Co. (Idaho) 71 Pac. 127. Corporate resolution fixing salary of officer may be shown by parol—Selley v. American Lubricator Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 590. As to whether entry of corporate proceedings in the minute book excludes oral evidence of such proceedings the authorities are in conflict. The better rule on reason would seem to be that it does not—Blanton v. Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Co., 120 Fed. 318. But the weight of authority seems to be that it does—Central Elec. Co. v. Sprague Elec. Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 925.

72. Peycke v. Shinn (Neb.) 94 N. W. 135. Copy of report by police officer—Crane v. Bennett, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 102. Copy of book entries—Smith v. Castle, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 638. Letter press copy of letter—Heller v. Heine, 38 Misc (N. Y.) 816; Haas v. Chubb (Kan.) 74 Pac. 230.

73. A witness may testify that certain proceeding before an exchange committee was instituted by written charges—Collins v. McGuire, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 443. Or that he bought a railroad ticket between certain stations—Oliver v. Columbia R Co., 65 S. C. 1.

74. Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287; Lipscomb v. Citizens' Bank (Kan.) 71 Pac. 583. Where the authority of an agent to make a contract is denied in a suit thereon such authority is not collaterally in issue but the best evidence thereof must be produced—Continental Fire Ass'n v. Bearden (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 982. The amount paid by a garnishee may be shown by parol in a collateral proceeding.—Curtis v. Parker & Co., 136 Ala. 217.

75. Larson v. Cox (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1011; Conkling v. Nicholas (Mich.) 95 N. W. 745; Hodge v. Palms (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 396; The Ulalia, 37 Ct. Cl. 466; Brookshier v. Chillicothe Town Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 91 Mo. App. 599; City of South Omaha v. Wrzensinski (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1045; Smith v. Ridlay (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 235; Blanton v. Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Co., 120 Fed. 318; State v. Conser, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 270; Lochridge v. Corbett (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 96; Thistlewaite v. Pierce, 30 Ind. App. 642. The rule admitting secondary evidence applies to proof of judgment, execution, etc., under Comp. Laws, § 10,203, relating to proceedings in aid of execution—Crane v. Waldron (Mich.) 94 N. W. 593.

76. Where the recipient of a letter was a non-resident and died before the trial secondary evidence of the contents of the letter may be received—Hirsch v. C. W. Leatherbee Lumber Co. (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 645. But see Central Elec. Co. v. Sprague Elec. Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 925.

77. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Harris (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 71; Nunn v. Jordan, 31 Wash. 506, 72 Pac. 124. Copies of papers in the hands of the adverse party, and forming part of its private records which it cannot be compelled to surrender, are admissible—Speiser v. Phœnix Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Wis.) 97 N. W. 207.

78. Zollman v. Tarr, 93 Mo. App. 234. Testimony by the recipient of letters that he has destroyed them is sufficient—June v. Labadie (Mich.) 92 N. W. 937. Proof of the loss of a railroad service telegram is sufficient to admit secondary evidence where there is no evidence of a practice of making office duplicates—Southern R. Co. v. Howell (Ala.) 34 So. 6.

79. Evidence of diligent search necessary—Samuelson v. Gale Mfg. Co. (Neb.) 95 N. W. 809. Preliminary evidence of loss is in the discretion of the trial judge—Cox v. McDonald (Ga.) 45 S. E. 401. Circumstantial evidence of loss is sufficient—Bright v. Allan, 203 Pa. 386. Where the loss of a paper belonging to a corporation is otherwise proved the proof is not invalidated by testimony of the president that he thinks he gave it to one person who denies receiving it and that he has seen it in the hands of another whose whereabouts is unknown—Dupee v. Chicago Horse Shoe Co. (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 40. Proof by the grantee that he could not find certain deeds is not invalidated by a statement that he may have given them to a certain person, where that person is absent and his whereabouts is unknown—Denny v. Broadway Nat. Bank (Ga.) 44 S. E. 982. Proof that the justice who had certain records is dead and that they are not in the clerk's office, without showing inquiry of the justice's family, is insufficient—Smith v. Garris, 131 N. C. 34. Testimony that witness did not think he had a deed and had made some search but does not remember what is insufficient—Orchard v. Collier, 171 Mo. 390. Testimony that witness had laid certain papers on his

Where the writing is in the hands of the adverse party, notice must be given to produce the same at the trial, to admit secondary evidence on his failure to do so.[80] Where a proper foundation is laid for secondary evidence, letter press[81] or other copies[82] are admissible, as is oral evidence.[83]

§ 5. Parol evidence to explain or vary writing.—A rule which the later authorities deem one of substantive law,[84] but which is ordinarily considered as part of the law of evidence, is that where a contract is reduced to writing it will be presumed that the parties intended thereby to place their agreement beyond the uncertainties of oral testimony and accordingly if the written terms are unambiguous, oral evidence is inadmissible to vary, modify, or contradict them;[85] and a fortiori desk and that a few days later they were not on the desk and that he had searched for them and could not find them is sufficient—Stuart v. Mitchum, 135 Ala. 546.

Superior Court Rule 42 allowing copies of instruments "between the parties litigant" to be admitted on an affidavit of loss of the original does not apply to instruments between third persons—Cox v. McDonald (Ga.) 45 S. E. 401. Under a statute making an affidavit that the party is unable to "procure" the original prima facie evidence of loss, an affidavit that he cannot "produce" it is sufficient—Williamson v. Work (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 266.

Order of Proof. It is in discretion of the court to admit secondary evidence on a promise to supply later the necessary foundation—Haller v. Gibson, 30 Ind. App. 10. And see article on Trial.

80. Hess-Mott Co. v. Brown, 84 N. Y. Supp. 168; Union Surety & Guaranty Co. v. Tenney, 200 Ill. 349. A mere statement of counsel that notice has been given is insufficient—Landt v. McCullough, 103 Ill. App. 668. A notice given during the trial to produce a paper at the office of defendant in another town is not sufficient—Continental Fire Ass'n v. Bearden (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 982. Where there is evidence that the document is lost (Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Patton, 104 Ill. App. 550) or destroyed (Bickley v. Bickley, 136 Ala. 548) notice to produce is unnecessary.

81. Union Surety & Guaranty Co. v. Tenney, 200 Ill. 349.

82. Hagey v. Schroeder, 30 Ind. App. 151; City of South Omaha v. Wrzensinski (Neb.) 92 S. W. 1045; Orchard v. Collier, 171 Mo. 390; Peycke v. Shinn (Neb.) 94 N. W. 135.

83. Members of the family who have listened to the reading and discussion of letters may testify to their contents the letters being lost—Brier v. Davis (Iowa) 96 N. W. 983.

84. Pitcairn v. Philip Hiss Co. (C. C. A.) 125 Fed. 110.

85. Foote & Davies Co. v. Malony, 115 Ga. 985; Hart v. Hart (Wis.) 94 N. W. 890; Norfolk Beet Sugar Co. v. Berger (Neb.) 95 N. W. 336; Sims v. Greenfield R. Co. (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 421; Rose v. Lanyon Zinc Co. (Kan.) 74 Pac. 625; Oil Creek Gold Min. Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co. (Colo. App.) 74 Pac. 543; Lawder & Sons Co. v. Albert Mackie Grocer Co. (Md.) 54 Atl. 634; Bullard v. Brewer (Ga.) 45 S. E. 711; Arthur v. Baron De Hirsch Fund (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 791; J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Hall (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 835; Douglass v. Campbell, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 241; Finck v. Bauer, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 218; Drumm-Flato Commission Co. v. Barnard (Kan.) 72 Pac. 257; Heard v. Tappan, 116 Ga. 930; Sexton v. Barrie, 102 Ill. App. 586; Consumer's Ice Co. v. Jennings (Va.) 42 S. E. 879; Mefford v. Sell (Neb.) 92 N. W. 148; Rolfs v. Atchison R. Co. (Kan.) 71 Pac. 526; Johnson v. Zweigart, 24 Ky. L. R. 1323, 71 S. W. 445; Wear Bros. v. Schmelzer, 92 Mo. App. 314; New Idea Pattern Co. v. Whelan, 75 Conn. 455; National Computing Scale Co. v. Eaves, 116 Ga. 511; Wilson v. Hinnant, 117 Ga. 46; Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., v. Bunkers, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 487; Walther v. Stampfli, 91 Mo. App. 398; Dady v. O'Rourke, 172 N. Y. 447.

Bills and Notes—Brewer v. Grogan, 116 Ga. 60. Evidence of contemporaneous agreement depriving note of negotiability not admissible—Mallory v. Fitzgerald's Estate (Neb.) 95 N. W. 601. Maker of a promissory note may show an agreement for payment in labor—Ramsey v. Capshaw (Ark.) 75 S. W. 479.

Deeds, Leases and Patents to Land. Not admissible to vary unambiguous deed as to property (Uihlein v. Matthews, 172 N. Y. 154; Van Husan v. Omaha Bridge & T. R. Co., 118 Iowa, 366; Riehlman v. Field, 81 App. Div. [N. Y.] 526) or estate conveyed—Cauble v. Worsham (Tex.) 70 S. W. 737; Mays v. Shields (Ga.) 45 S. E. 68. It may be shown by parol that a mortgage was given not only for existing debts but as a continuing security—Lippincott v. Lawrie (Wis.) 97 N. W. 179. Term of tenancy as specifically stated in lease cannot be varied by parol—Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Schum, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 657. Unambiguous field notes referred to in a patent cannot be varied—Giddings v. Winfree (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1066.

Bill of Lading—De Sola v. Pomares, 119 Fed. 373. Endorsement of a bill of lading for transfer does not imply a contract in law, it not being a negotiable instrument, and accordingly the real nature of the contract may be shown by parol—Walker v. First Nat. Bank (Or.) 72 Pac. 635. Special contract as to time of delivery cannot be shown to vary a bill of lading—Sloman v. National Exp. Co. (Mich.) 95 N. W. 999. Where a bill of lading did not specify the route parol evidence as to the agreement in respect thereto is admissible—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Duncan (Ala.) 34 So. 988.

Receipts. A receipt is not a contract within the rule and may be contradicted by parol (Lacraberi v. Wise [Cal.] 71 Pac. 175; Meislahn v. Irving Nat. Bank, 172 N. Y. 631; Rarden v. Cunningham, 136 Ala. 263; Komp v. Raymond, 175 N. Y. 102) and this has been held to include a receipt for goods "in good condition" (Comerford v. Smith, 82 to vary official or judicial records,[86] and prior and contemporaneous oral agreements, are not admissible unless they relate to a distinct subject-matter,[87] or one upon

App. Div. [N. Y.] 638) but a contract embodied in a receipt stands on the same footing as other contracts—Grier v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 542. A recital of full satisfaction of certain claims has been held to be contractual and not to be varied by parol—Vacheron v. Hildebrant, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 61. A receipt in full on account of a certain purchase does not preclude evidence that the buyer did not finally accept the goods and waive defects—Seeger v. Manitowoc Steam Boiler Works (Wis.) 97 N. W. 485.

Customs and usages. Evidence of usage is not admissible to contravene the terms of a contract—Currie v. Syndicate Des Cultivators, 104 Ill. App. 165; Withers v. Moore (Cal.) 71 Pac. 697; McIntosh v. Pendleton, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 621; Swift v. Occidental Min. & Petroleum Co. (Cal.) 74 Pac. 700. Contract requiring seller to pay duties, etc., on cargo cannot be modified by evidence of usage that reductions of duty operated to the benefit of the purchaser—Withers v. Moore (Cal.) 74 Pac. 159. As to usage to explain ambiguous contract, see infra, this section, page 1144.

Showing representative capacity of obligor. It is generally held that one signing a contract apparently a personal obligation cannot show that he signed as agent for another—Bohn Mfg. Co. v. Reif (Wis.) 93 N. W. 466; American Alkali Co. v. Bean, 125 Fed. 823. It may however be shown that joint makers of a note signed as partners—Markham v. Cover (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 474.

86. To show what was included in an adjudication—Rubel v. Title Guarantee & Trust Co., 199 Ill. 110; Oster v. Broe (Ind.) 64 N. E. 918. But see Waterhouse v. Levine, 182 Mass. 407; Cassidy v. Mudgett, 71 N. H. 491. But the judgment cannot be impeached by such evidence—Rubel v. Title Guarantee & Trust Co., 199 Ill. 110. To show that a continuance was granted—Speirs Fish Co. v. Robbins, 182 Mass. 128. To show the date when costs were taxed—State v. Stinebaker, 90 Mo. App. 280. Contracts of the fiscal court cannot be varied by parol—Danville, etc., Turnpike Road Co. v. Lincoln County Fiscal Court (Ky.) 77 S. W. 379. A letter of the judge is inadmissible to contradict the record of his court—Bent v. Stone (Mass.) 68 N. E. 46.

Assessment roll cannot be varied by parol as to date of assessment—Allen v. McKay (Cal.) 72 Pac. 713.

87. Rector v. Hartford Deposit Co., 102 Ill. App. 554; Martens v. Pittock (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1038; Drischman v. McManemin, 68 N. J. Law, 337; Fuller & Co. v. Schrenk, 171 N. Y. 671; Bowery Bank v. Hart, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 121; Ross v. Portland Coffee & Spice Co., 30 Wash. 647, 71 Pac. 184; Christopher, etc., Foundry Co. v. Yeager, 202 Ill. 486; Peterson v. Ferbrache (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1011; Sutton v. Griebel, 118 Iowa, 78; Over v. Walzer, 103 Ill. App. 104; Ferguson Contracting Co. v. Manhattan Trust Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 791; Grubbs v. Boon, 201 Ill. 98; Colwell v. Brown, 103 Ill. App. 22; Cannon v. Michigan Mut. Life Ins. Co., 103 Ill. App. 414; Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Jeter (Ark.) 71 S. W. 945; Franklin v. Browning (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 226; Gam v. Cordrey (Del.) 53 Atl. 334; Tyson v. Neill (Idaho) 70 Pac. 790; Arnold v. Scharbauer, 118 Fed. 1008; Howard v. Scott, 98 Mo. App. 509; John O'Brien Lumber Co. v. Wilkinson (Wis.) 94 N. W. 337; Sargent v. Cooley (N. D.) 94 N. W. 576; Mead v. Dunlevie, 174 N. Y. 108; First Nat. Bank v. Wells, 98 Mo. App. 573.

The agreement to be proved by parol must relate to a subject distinct from that to which the writing relates—Johnson v. Kindred State Bank (N. D.) 96 N. W. 588. Parol evidence is held inadmissible to prove contemporaneous agreement by lessor to repair (Thompson Foundry & Mach. Works v. Glass, 136 Ala. 648) by mortgagee to extend time of payment (Connersville Buggy Co. v. Lowry [Mo. App.] 77 S. W. 771) by employer to pay bonus (McGarrigle v McCosker, 83 App. Div. [N. Y.] 184) to show that one adopting child by written articles agreed to make her his heir (Brantingham v. Huff, 174 N. Y. 53). To show a collateral agreement as to the purpose for which money secured by mortgage was to be used in an action to enforce the mortgage as a purchase price lien (Crow v. Kellman [Tex. Civ. App.] 70 S. W. 564) to show collateral agreement as to good will in connection with a bill of sale silent thereon (Walther v. Stampfli, 91 Mo. App. 398) to show agreement not to reengage in business as collateral to a contract for sale of business including good will (Zanturjian v. Boornazian [R. I.] 55 Atl. 199) to show oral warranty in connection with written contract of sale (Kummer v. Dubuque Turbine & Roller Mills Co. [Neb.] 93 N. W. 938) to show that seller agreed to secure the release of liens—Ruckman v. Imbler Lumber Co., 42 Or. 231, 70 Pac. 811.

On written contract to ship all lumber by vessels of a party oral evidence of the understanding as to amount to be shipped is inadmissible—Dennis v. Slyfield (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 474. Where there is a written agreement for appraisal of loss a parol agreement that a certain sum would be paid in any event cannot be shown—Townsend v. Greenwich Ins. Co., 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 87. Where a lease provided for a renewal at such sum as lessor might in the meantime receive an offer of, a parol agreement that if no offers were made the renewal should be at the same rate cannot be shown—Slaughter v. De Vitt (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 616.

Collateral agreements held admissible. Where the written order for goods does not purport to contain any of the conditions of the sale, parol evidence of a warranty is admissible—Puget Sound Iron & Steel Works v. Clemmons (Wash.) 72 Pac. 465. An agreement by grantor to construct certain streets near the premises does not vary a deed—Drew v. Wiswall (Mass.) 67 N. E. 666. Parol evidence of negotiations consistent with the contract is admissible—Colvin v. McCormick Cotton Oil Co., 66 S. C. 61. The fact that rules are printed on the same sheet with a time table stating when it took effect does not preclude oral evidence of when the rules took effect—Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Charman (Ind.) 67 N. E. 923. Writing contemwhich the writing is incomplete.[88] Parol evidence is admissible to explain a writing where it is ambiguous,[89] to show grounds of invalidity not apparent on its poraneous with order may be shown though it conflicts with printed terms on order blank—Eastern Mfg. Co. v. Brenk (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 538.

88. Guttentag v. Whitney, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 596. A parol agreement as to possession contemporaneous with a bill of sale is admissible—Clark v. Shannon, 117 Iowa, 645. It may be proved that the date inserted in a blank was contrary to the agreement of the parties—Pacific Mut. Ins. Co. v. Shaffer (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 566. The purpose for which an assignment was made may be shown by parol—Matthews v. Capital Fire Ins. Co., 115 Wis. 272. Agreement of a carrier as to watering stock, etc., may be shown though there was a written bill of lading—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Eblen, 24 Ky. L. R. 1609, 71 S. W. 919. One of the parties to a building contract may show a contemporaneous agreement that the materials were to be purchased in eastern markets—Creedon v. Patrick (Neb.) 91 N. W. 872. Parol agreement as to time of payment may be shown when the written contract is silent thereon—Ashe v. Carolina R. Co., 65 S. C. 134. A written contract of employment to gather certain cattle does not exclude a contemporaneous oral employment to gather other cattle—Lonabaugh v. Morrow (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 724. Where one agreed in writing to make "a satisfactory provision of settlement" of a certain mortgage it may be shown by parol that he was to pay it—Lawrence v. Sullivan, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 453. A contract of sale providing for sight draft with bill of lading attached is not varied by a subsequent agreement as to the bank on which such draft should be drawn —Town v. Jepson (Mich.) 95 N. W. 742. A letter merely confirming a previous sale is not a contract and the terms of the sale may be shown by parol—Courtney v. Knabe & Co. Mfg. Co. (Md.) 55 Atl. 614.

89. Ambiguity of particular contracts. Where the Christian name of a party is left blank in the contract it may be shown by parol—La Vie v. Tooze (Or.) 74 Pac. 210. And where there are two persons of the same name parol evidence is admissible to show who was referred to by an instrument—Newberry v. Norfolk & S. R. Co. (N. C.) 45 S. E. 356. Where there was a written bill of sale and a collateral agreement in writing for a resale on certain terms, parol evidence is admissible to show whether the transaction was a sale or a loan—Farmer v. Farmer & Son Type Founding Co., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 218. Where a letter was written in French and the meaning of a word therein was ambiguous, the evidence of the writer's French teacher as to his suggestion of such word and the meaning which he told the writer attached thereto was held, by a divided court, to be inadmissible—Commonwealth Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Coleman (Pa.) 55 Atl. 320. Where the description of the contract secured by a bond is ambiguous, the contract may be identified by parol—Nelson v. Willey (Md.) 55 Atl. 527.

There is no ambiguity admitting parol explanation in a contract to keep a building "in a good habitable condition" (Jordan v. Neal [Miss.] 33 So. 17) or in the clause "with privilege of longer" in a lease (Howard v. Tomicich [Miss.] 33 So. 493) nor in a contract for the building of a road because it is silent as to the material (Trustees, etc., of Town of Southampton v. Jessup, 173 N. Y. 84) but parol evidence has been admitted to explain a contract "to establish and maintain a freight and passenger depot—Murray v. Northwestern R. Co., 64 S. C. 520.

A contract to furnish paper "same as has been furnished during the last 12 months" is ambiguous as to whether the reference to past delivery limits the quantity or only indicates the quality—Excelsior Wrapper Co. v. Messinger (Wis.) 93 N. W. 459. Where a contract provides for work to be done in the same manner as during the previous year, parol evidence is admissible—Oliver v. Oregon Sugar Co., 42 Or. 276, 70 Pac. 902. Articles of incorporation for the sale of "directory machines" may be explained by showing the make of machine intended—National Mechanical Directory Co. v. Polk (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 742.

A contract for rent "for the first three years at $3,000" is clear that the $3,000 is for the entire three years and parol evidence that $3,000 per year was intended is inadmissible—Liebeskind v. Moore Co., 84 N. Y. Supp. 850. Order held ambiguous as to whether it was continuing—Burmister & Sons Co. v. Empire Gold Min. & Mill. Co. (Ariz.), 71 Pac. 961. Contract for railroad construction held unambiguous—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Truskett (Kan.) 72 Pac. 562. Patent to land held to present ambiguity admitting oral evidence—Dillingham v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 791.

Agreement to erect a "complete plant" held not ambiguous—Rooney v. Thomson, 84 N. Y. Supp. 263. Contract for procuring insurance held ambiguous as to whether it included property outside the state—Tanenbaum v. Levy, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 319. There is no ambiguity in a release of damages for specified physical injuries which will admit evidence that other injuries were then unknown—Moore v. Missouri R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 997. Contract for piping water to residence held ambiguous as to whether contract was to pipe only from main point of diversion or from sources of supply—Daly v. Ruddell, 137 Cal. 671, 70 Pac. 784.

Customs and usages. Usage is admissible to explain ambiguities—Gehl v. Milwaukee Produce Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 26; Hayes v. Union Mercantile Co., 27 Mont. 264, 70 Pac. 975; Richardson v. Cornforth (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 325. Thus it may be shown that by usage words used in a contract have acquired a peculiar sense (Ocean S. S. Co. v. Aetna Ins. Co., 121 Fed. 882) or that timber of certain dimensions meant in the green and not after shrinkage—Rastetter v. Reynolds (Ind.) 66 N. E. 612. As to usage to contravene unambiguous terms, see supra, this section, page 1143.

Technical words. Parol evidence is always admissible to explain the meaning of technical words and phrases used in a contract—Hinote v. Brigman (Fla.) 33 So. 303; Heyworth v. Miller Grain & Elevator Co., 174 Mo. 171; Cannon v. Hunt, 116 Ga. 452; Glenn face,[90] to show what the consideration was or that it has failed,[91] and under this rule proof of conditions precedent to the taking effect of the contract has been admitted,[92] as has evidence of performance of a parol contract to secure which the written obligation was given.[93] The real nature of the instrument may be shown,

v. Strickland, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 88. It has been held inadmissible to show that "gas" meant gas from a gas well only not gas from an oil well—Burton v. Forest Oil Co., 204 Pa. 349.

To identify subject matter. Where the description in a deed is indefinite parol evidence is admissible to identify the property (Keplinger v. Woolsey [Neb.] 93 N. W. 1008; Sloan v. King [Tex. Civ. App.] 77 S. W. 48; Fidelity Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Murphy [Neb.] 95 N. W. 702; Stancill v. Spain [N. C.] 45 S. E. 466; Orvis v. Elmira R. Co. 172 N. Y. 656) but where a description is patently inadequate, parol evidence is inadmissible (Cammack v. Prather [Tex. Civ. App.] 74 S. W. 354; Goodsell v. Rutland-Canadian R. Co. [Vt.] 56 Atl. 7) and an offer of "my lot" is too indefinite (Farthing v. Rochelle, 131 N. C. 563) as is a mortgage on "seventy more or less of corn in field" (Augustine v. McDowell [Iowa] 94 N. W. 918) though a description of land as that of a party "adjoining on the east" to certain premises may be rendered certain by parol—Heyward v. Willmarth, 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 125. And parol evidence is not admissible to identify the property described in a contract in a suit to have it specifically enforced—Farthing v. Rochelle, 131 N. C. 562; Knight v. Alexander, 42 Or. 521, 71 Pac. 657.

A description of coal lands held not open to proof that a particular vein and not all coal within the boundaries given was intended—King v. New York & C. Gas Coal Co., 204 Pa. 628. Description of building of a certain street number and "additions" held ambiguous as to whether it included an adjoining building having a separate street number—Connecticut Fire Ins. Co. v. Hilbrant (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 558. Where chattel mortgage covers all the goods in a certain store, the goods may be identified by parol—Davis v. Turner (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 605. Plat referred to in deed as part of description may be identified by parol—Snooks v. Wingfield, 52 W. Va. 441.

90. Fraud. Le Bleu v. Savoie, 109 La. 680; Leicher v. Keeney, 98 Mo. App. 394; American Cotton Co. v. Collier (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1021; Hurlbert v. Kellogg Lumber Co., 115 Wis. 225; Telluride Power Transmission Co. v. Crane Co., 103 Ill. App. 647; Rambo v. Patterson (Mich.) 95 N. W. 722. And where fraud is charged parol evidence of the understanding of the parties is admissible to rebut the charge—Sloan v. Rose (Va.) 43 S. E. 329.

Mistake—Kee v. Davis, 137 Cal. 456, 70 Pac. 294; Gwaltney v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc., 132 N. C. 925; Wieneke v. Deputy (Ind. App.) 68 N. E. 921; Windell v. Readman Warehouse Co., 30 Wash. 469, 71 Pac. 56; Equitable Trust Co. v. Milligan (Ind. App.) 65 N. E. 1044; Butler v. State (Miss.) 33 So. 847 That the contract was not correctly reduced to writing—Fidelity Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Lowe (Neb.) 93 N. W. 749. That blanks were not filled in accordance with the understanding of the parties—Gribble v. Everett (Mo. App.) 71 S. W. 1124; Windell v. Readman Warehouse Co., 30 Wash. 469, 71 Pac. 56. Fraud or mistake must be pleaded—Krueger v. Nicola, 205 Pa. 38; New Idea Pattern Co. v. Whelan, 75 Conn. 455. And it has been held that reformation must be asked where mistake is claimed in the statement of an account—Nystuen v. Hanson (Iowa) 91 N. W. 1071.

Subsequent conduct of parties. Invalidity of a chattel mortgage by reason of acts of ownership permitted to the mortgagor may be shown by parol—Stevens v. Curran (Mont.) 72 Pac. 753.

91. Wade v. Bent, 24 Ky. L. R. 1294, 71 S. W. 444; Linkswiler v. Hoffman, 109 La. 948; Conklin v. Hancock, 67 Ohio St. 455; Henry v. Zurtlieh, 203 Pa. 440; Clark v. Hedden, 109 La. 147; Groos & Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 402; First Nat. Bank v. Flynn, 117 Iowa, 493; Cheesman v. Nicholl (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 797. But see Arnold v. Arnold, 137 Cal. 291, 70 Pac. 23; Harraway v. Harraway, 136 Ala. 499; Teague v. Teague (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 555. But in Arkansas it is held that parol evidence is not admissible to dispute the recitals of consideration in a deed—Davis v. Jernigan (Ark.) 76 S. W. 554.

Want or failure of consideration—Holmes v. Farris, 97 Mo. App. 305. Particularly where the statement of the consideration is ambiguous—Burke v. Mead, 159 Ind. 252.

92. Caudle v. Ford, 24 Ky. L. R. 1764, 72 S. W. 270; Medical College Laboratory v. New York University, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 48; Clark v. Ducheneau (Utah) 72 Pac. 331. But see contra, Findley v. Means (Ark.) 73 S. W. 101; Third Nat. Bank v. Reichert (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 893; Sargent v. Cooley (N. D.) 94 N. W. 576. That the contract was not to be delivered until further directions (McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Morlan [Iowa] 96 N. W. 976) or was not to be used unless another signed as joint obligor is admissible (People v. Sharp [Mich.] 94 N. W. 1074) but where the subject matter of such condition is embodied in the contract it cannot be shown by parol (Jamestown Business College Ass'n v. Allen, 172 N. Y. 291) and evidence of a condition subsequent on which the contract should become void is inadmissible—Central Sav. Bank v. O'Connor (Mich.) 94 N. W. 11.

Oral agreement making payment of interest on mortgage conditional on payment of another debt by the mortgagee (Mott v. Rutter [N. J. Ch.] 54 Atl. 159) or notes conditional on certain machinery being put in good working order (Aultman v. Hawk [Neb.] 95 N. W. 695) or on funds for payment being realized from a certain source (Fuller v. Law [Pa.] 56 Atl. 333; Boone v. Mierow [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 772) or that security given by another would be first exhausted—Anderson v. Matheny (S. D.) 95 N. W. 911.

93. The maker of a note may show that it was given to secure the performance by him of a contract and that he has performed the same—Gifford v. Fox (Neb.) 95 N. W as that a deed absolute on its face was charged with a trust[94] or was intended as security,[95] that a bill of sale was intended to operate as a chattel mortgage;[96] but not that a sale was conditional where the bill of sale was absolute;[97] and the real nature of the obligation of persons signing or indorsing promissory notes may be shown by parol.[98]

The rule excluding parol evidence to vary a written contract applies only to the parties thereto and their privies,[99] and not where the writing is merely collateral to the issue.[1]

§ 6. Hearsay. A. General rules.—Subject to certain exceptions, either arising ex necessitate rei from the difficulty of other proof or from circumstances giving added guaranty of their reliability, statements out of court by persons not parties to the suit are not admissible in evidence,[2] and this rule applies equally to letters and other private writings.[3] Matters of age or family history, by reason of the difficulties of direct proof form an exception to the hearsay rule.[4] Where the statements are admissible for a purpose other than of proving the facts stated, the hearsay rule does not apply.[5]

1066. As that it was given for money to be used by him in the purchase of property for the payee and that the property has been purchased and accepted by payee—Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co. v. Stewart, 24 Ky. L. R. 934, 70 S. W. 285.

94. Booth v. Lenox (Fla.) 34 So. 566; Martin v. Martin (Or.) 72 Pac. 639. But it is otherwise held in Kentucky—Holtheide v. Smith, 24 Ky. L. R. 2535, 74 S. W. 689. Evidence that a purchase at foreclosure sale was for the benefit of a third person does not vary the sheriff's certificate of sale—Emery v. Hanna (Neb.) 94 N. W. 973.

95. Brown v. Johnson, 115 Wis. 430; Ross v. Howard, 31 Wash. 393, 72 Pac. 74; Stafford v. Stafford (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 984; Hurlbert v. Kellogg Lumber Co., 115 Wis. 225; Beebe v. Wisconsin Mortg. Loan Co. (Wis.) 93 N. W. 1103; Northern Assur Co. v. Chicago Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 198 Ill. 474. But it has been held that in an action at law such proof is inadmissible—Billingsley v. Stutler, 52 W. Va. 92.

96. Miller v. Campbell Commission Co. (Okl.) 74 Pac. 507.

97. Finnigan v. Shaw (Mass.) 68 N. E. 35; Hess v. Liebmann, 84 N. Y. Supp. 178.

98. Indorser—Loeff v. Taussig, 102 Ill. App. 398; Lyndon Sav. Bank v. International Co. (Vt.) 54 Atl. 191; Elliott v. Moreland (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 224; Jaster v. Currie (Neb.) 94 N. W. 995; Young v. Sehon (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 136; Herndon v. Lewis (Mo.) 74 S. W. 976; Marshall Nat. Bank v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 237. But see Williams Bros. Co. v. Hanmer (Mich.) 94 N. W. 176. Maker—McDavid v. McLean, 104 Ill. App. 627; Markham v. Cover (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 474. As that a maker signed for accommodation—Tobriner v. White, 19 App. D. C. 163. A transferror may show an oral agreement for a retransfer on certain conditions—Playa de Oro Min. Co. v. Gage, 172 N. Y. 630.

99. Central Coal & Coke Co. v. Good (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 793; British & A. Mortg. Co. v. Cody (Ala.) 33 So. 832; Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. v. Johnson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1902, 72 S. W. 754; Pacific Biscuit Co. v. Dugger, 42 Or. 513, 70 Pac. 523; French v. Westgate, 71 N. H. 510; Northern Assur. Co. v. Chicago Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 198 Ill. 474. A principal, suing his agent for the consideration received by the agent under a contract made by the latter in his own name may contradict the recitals of the contract as to consideration—Barbar v. Martin (Neb.) 93 N. W. 722; Livingston v. Stevens (Iowa) 94 N. W. 925; Livingston v. Heck (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1098; Crockett v. Miller (Neb.) 96 N. W. 491; First Nat. Bank v. Tolerton (Neb.) 97 N. W. 248.

1. Bill of sale introduced to prove agency therein recited—Pacific Biscuit Co. v. Dugger, 42 Or. 513, 70 Pac. 523.

2. Kramer v. Kramer, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 20; Rich v. Hayes, 97 Me. 293. Declarations by a husband that he was forced into the marriage are inadmissible—Love v. Love (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 255. Statement of decedent before accident may be received under Gen. St. 1898, c. 535, providing that statements of a deceased person made in good faith before suit shall not be considered hearsay—Boyle v. Columbian Fire Proofing Co., 182 Mass. 93.

Market price. Offers received by the owner are no evidence of value—Loloff v. Sterling (Colo.) 71 Pac. 1113; Walker v. Farrell, 84 N. Y. Supp. 182; Stewart v. James (Neb.) 95 N. W. 778; Wells, Fargo Exp. Co. v. Williams (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 314.

General reputation. Adultery cannot be proved by neighborhood repute (Hopkins v. Hopkins, 132 N. C. 25) nor can financial standing (Coleman v. Lewis [Mass.] 67 N. E. 603), or ownership of locomotives by a certain railroad company—Louisville & N. Terminal Co. v. Jacobs (Tenn.) 72 S. W. 954.

3. Black v. First Nat. Bank, 96 Md. 399; Culver v. Smith (Mich.) 91 N. W. 608; Weigley v. Kneeland, 172 N. Y. 625; Oliver v. Columbia R. Co., 65 S. C. 1. A letter stating the writer's reasons for placing his sister in an insane asylum held inadmissible—Kuster v. Press Pub. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 615.

4. Declarations by father held inadmissible to show age—Bowen v. Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 458. But a book of original entry by family physician has been admitted—Smith v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 401. One may testify to his own age—State v. Scroggs (Iowa) 96 N. W. 723; Hancock v. Supreme Council, C. B. L. (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 246.

5. Statements of an injured person are

(§ 6) B. Res gestae.—Acts and declarations of the parties to a transaction contemporaneous therewith and growing naturally therefrom are admissible as part of the res gestae,[6] as are the involuntary exclamations of bystanders at an accident,[7] and the rule includes, to an extent incapable of precise definition, acts and declarations before[8] and after[9] the transaction in issue if intimately connected therewith.

admissible to show that he was conscious—Hayes v. Pitts-Kimball Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 249. Statements of a grantor at the time of a conveyance admissible as tests of mental capacity—Thorn v. Cosand (Ind.) 67 N. E. 257.

6. A declaration must be made under such circumstances as to raise a presumption that it was spontaneous; whether a particular declaration is within this rule rests largely in the discretion of the trial court—Pledger v. Chicago R. Co. (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1057. The acts or declarations must accompany and tend to illustrate the fact in issue—Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294. Under this rule have been admitted statements by an agent while attending to the principal's business (Hoffman v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 198 Ill. 452) if contemporaneous with the transaction and forming a natural part of it (Balding v. Andrews [N. D.] 96 N. W. 305) conversion during the transportation of cattle between the owner and the carrier's servants (Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Landers, 135 Ala. 504) declaration of employe in charge of machine that it worked satisfactorily, made in presence of representatives of the seller (Stecher Lithographic Co. v. Inman, 175 N. Y. 124) declaration of a surveyor at the time of locating a boundary (Hornberger v. Giddings [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 989) direction to prepare a new will, made on learning of the destruction of the old one (McElroy v. Phink [Tex. Civ. App.] 74 S. W. 61), or that a bond was not to be used unless another signed (People v. Sharp [Mich.] 94 N. W. 1074) declarations of a street commissioner as to the orders under which he was acting (Haggart v. California Borough, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 210) declarations of signer of note at the time of signing as to the purpose for which it was given (Terrill v. Tillison [Vt.] 54 Atl. 187) statements made by a seller for the purpose of tendering the goods for inspection—Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. v. Kerlin Bros. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 414.

The general understanding of persons in the vicinity that one had gone to a certain place for a specified purpose is no part of the res gestae—Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Crump (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 335. On an issue whether there was heat in a depot, a direction of the agent to a boy to get coal is part of the res gestae—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Patterson (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 987. Where injuries were caused by the negligence of a person not an engineer who was running a switch engine it may be shown who sent him out, as part of the res gestae—Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Stone (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 19. On an issue whether theatrical performances were meritorious, remarks of the audience while leaving during the performance are admissible as part of the res gestae—Charley v. Potthoff (Wis.) 95 N. W. 124. In an action for maintaining a nuisance, statements of plaintiff's boarders when leaving are admissible—Hoffman v. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co., 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 371. On an issue of residence statements of the person made on his trial for vagrancy that he was a tramp are part of the res gestae—Thomas v. Macon County (Mo.) 74 S. W. 999.

Contemporaneous memoranda. Entries of log measurements made by a seller when the logs were measured by him and the buyer are admissible—Place v. Baugher, 159 Ind. 232. But not memorandum taken during conversation without the knowledge of the other party thereto—Gans v. Wormser, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 505. The numbers as called out by the men counting a flock of sheep may be shown as part of the res gestae—Gresham v. Harcourt (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 808.

Declarations characterizing possession. Declarations of owner in possession as to title, etc., have been admitted (Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425) but only where declarant has both title and possession (Whelchel v. Gainesville R. Co., 116 Ga. 431; Enneking v. Woebkenberg, 88 Minn. 259) as have declarations at the time of erecting building by one claiming adversely (Kellum v. Mission of Immaculate Virgin, 82 App. Div. [N. Y.] 523) declarations of intent accompanying a trespass (United States v. Gentry [C. C. A.] 119 Fed. 70) declarations of ownership by one in possession of a contract (New York Life Ins. Co. v. Johnson's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1867, 72 S. W. 762) but declarations of one in possession as agent are not within rule admitting declarations characterizing possession (Perkins v. Brinkley [N. C.] 45 S. E. 652) and declarations of one in possession may characterize his possession but cannot establish (Dozier v. McWhorter [Ga.] 45 S. E. 61) nor are admissions by occupant that his possession was not adverse admissible when made after the running of the statutory period—Baty v. Elrod (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1032.

7. Exclamation of bystander indicating belief that defendant's effort to run a train over an injured bridge was dangerous (Harrill v. South Carolina R. Co., 132 N. C. 655) or outcry by a bystander who saw the impending danger (Oliver v. Columbia R. Co., 65 S. C. 1) are admissible, but not declarations of bystanders after an accident (Gosa v. Southern R. [S. C.] 45 S. E. 810) as to the conductor immediately after the accident that if the car had stopped the plaintiff would not have been hurt—Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Whitaker (Ind.) 66 N. E. 433.

8. An assault upon a woman and the fact that she informed her husband and he went immediately to the scene of the assault are part of the res gestae of the killing of the husband by the assailants of the wife—Petrie v. Cartwright, 24 Ky. L. R. 954, 70 S. W. 297, 59 L. R. A. 720. Declarations of insured shortly before death indicating suicidal intent are admissible (Kerr v. Modern Woodmen of America [C. C. A.] 117 Fed. 593) as is a letter indicating intent to commit suicide found in the room of one who disappeared

(§ 6) C. Admissions or declarations against interest.[10]—Upon the presumption that one will not readily speak untruthfully against his own interest, admissions and declarations out of court are admissible if made by a party[11] or one in during the night from a steamer—Rogers v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co., 138 Cal. 285, 71 Pac. 348.

9. Statement of decedent's daughter after a suicide as to where the revolver was is admissible but not her statements as to how it came to be there (Treat v. Merchants' Life Ass'n, 198 Ill. 431) declarations by an assailant some time after the assault (Gollbart v. Sullivan, 30 Ind. App. 428) declarations as to the fact of a sale made some time afterward not admissible (Lumm v. Howells [Utah] 74 Pac. 432) declarations of a foster parent after adoption and not in the presence of the child as to their relations Rulofson v. Billings [Cal.] 74 Pac. 35) declarations of maker two days after execution of note as to amount thereof (Union Trust Co. v. Seelig, 83 App. Div. [N. Y.] 568) statements as to the origin of a fire after it was over (Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Phipps [C. C. A.] 125 Fed. 478) or 15 minutes after it started (Lyman v. Southern R. Co., 132 N. C. 721) declarations of bystander after an accident (Gosa v. Southern R. [S. C.] 45 S. E. 810) declarations by testator 15 minutes after executing will (Davidson v. Davidson [Neb.] 96 N. W. 409) subsequent narrations of a party as to what was said at the making of a contract (New York Life Ins. Co. v. Johnson's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1867, 72 S. W. 762; Standard Life & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Holloway, 24 Ky. L. R. 1856, 72 S. W. 796) are no part of the res gestae. But threatening language by a carrier's employe immediately after an assault by him on a passenger is admissible—Shaefer v. Missouri R. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 154.

Employes. Statement of conductor coming to the scene of the accident immediately after it occurred as to the cause thereof (Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Moles [C. C. A.] 121 Fed. 351) declarations as to cause of accident immediately afterward (Union Casualty & Surety Co. v. Mondy [Colo.] 71 Pac. 677; Early's Adm'r v. Louisville R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1807, 72 S. W. 348) declarations by a superintendent while examining into the cause of an accident (Roberts v. Port Blakely Mill Co., 30 Wash. 25, 70 Pac. 111) of a ship captain immediately after an accident on board (Lambert v. La Conner Trading & Transp. Co., 30 Wash. 346, 70 Pac. 960) declarations of an employe while in the act of endeavoring to rescue deceased (Hupfer v. National Distilling Co. [Wis.] 96 N. W. 809) a declaration of a motorman while alighting immediately after a collision, "that comes of running without a headlight" (Ensley v. Detroit United R. [Mich.] 96 N. W. 34) an exclamation by a brakeman immediately on discovering that he had closed the car door on plaintiff's hand (Trumbull v. Donahue [Colo. App.] 72 Pac. 684) have been held part of the res gestae. But statement of motorman immediately after running over a child that he was looking in another direction (Koenig v. Union Depot R. Co. [Mo.] 73 S. W. 637) declaration of an employe an hour (Leonard v. Mallory, 75 Conn. 433) or half an hour after an accident as to the cause thereof (Briggs v. East Broad Top R. & Coal Co. [Pa.] 56 Atl. 36) statement of agent the day after the transaction in question (Helm v. Missouri R. Co. [Mo. App.] 72 S. W. 148) statement of motorman after accident that he "could not help it" (Rogers v. Interurban St. Ry. Co., 84 N. Y. Supp. 974) statements by employes as to cause of fire made after it was over (Marande v. Texas R. Co. [C. C. A.] 124 Fed. 42) refusal of conductor to stop the car after an accident (Gotwald v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 77 S. W. 125) and statements by manager after accident in response to inquiry by injured man (Luman v. Golden Ancient Channel Min. Co. [Cal.] 74 Pac. 307) have been excluded.

Injured person. Declarations as to cause of accident by injured person immediately afterward (Sutcliffe v. Iowa State Traveling Men's Ass'n [Iowa] 93 N. W. 90; Scheir v. Quirin, 77 App. Div. [N. Y.] 624; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Schilling [Tex. Civ. App.] 75 S. W. 64) immediately on regaining consciousness (Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Partin [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 236) or two minutes afterward (Murray v. Boston & M. R. [N. H.] 54 Atl. 289) have been admitted. But statements of collateral circumstances immediately afterward (Bumgardner v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 43 S. E. 948) and declarations one minute afterward (Pledger v. Chicago R. Co. [Neb.] 95 N. W. 1057) ten minutes afterward (Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Tarwater [Tex. Civ. App.] 75 S. W. 937) statements several hours afterward (McCowen v. Gulf R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 73 S. W. 46) narration of injury long after (Tenney v. Rapid City [S. D.] 96 N. W. 96; Hicks v. Galveston R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 322) and a deliberate narration to one called by the injured person because "he wanted to make a statement" (Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Logan, 65 Kan. 748, 70 Pac. 878) have been excluded.

Complaints of present suffering are admissible (Hamilton v. Mendota Coal & Min. Co. [Iowa] 94 N. W. 282; Gosa v. Southern R. [S. C.] 45 S. E. 810; Indiana R. Co. v. Maurer [Ind.] 66 N. E. 156; Styles v. Decatur [Mich.] 91 N. W. 622; Oliver v. Columbia R. Co., 65 S. C. 1; Hicks v. Galveston R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 322; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 69 S. W. 1010; Arrington v. Texas R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 70 S. W. 551; Bredeau v. Town of York, 115 Wis. 544) as are statements to physician for the purpose of receiving treatment are admissible (Sellman v. Wheeler, 95 Md. 751. But see International, etc., R. Co. v. Boykin [Tex. Civ. App.] 74 S. W. 93) but not statements for the purpose of enabling him to testify—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Donworth, 203 Ill. 192.

10. Only admissibility as original evidence is included. Admissions and declarations for the purpose of impeaching a witness whose testimony is inconsistent therewith are treated in Witnesses.

11. Declarations of strangers against a party's interest not admissible—Mizell v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Fla.) 33 So. 454.

privity with him,[12] and against his interest,[13] and such admissions are original evi-

12. Persons jointly interested. Where persons have a joint interest in property the admissions of one are ordinarily admissible against all in actions relating thereto—Seymour v. Richardson Fueling Co., 103 Ill. App. 625. Joint legatees are in privity within this rule (Gibson v. Sutton, 24 Ky. L. R. 868, 70 S. W. 188; Wall v. Dimmitt, 24 Ky. L. R. 1749, 72 S. W. 300) as are joint receivers (Shirk v. Brookfield, 77 App. Div. [N. Y.] 295) and joint administrators Crouse v. Judson, 41 Misc. [N. Y.] 338) but not joint trustee (Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287) codefendants (Finelite v. Sonberg, 75 App. Div. [N. Y.] 455, 12 Ann. Cas. 1; Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294) tenants in common (Naul v. Naul, 75 App. Div. [N. Y.] 292) or connecting carriers—Thyll v. New York R. Co., 84 N. Y. Supp. 175.

Privity of title. Declarations made after parting with possession by grantor (Holton v. Dunker, 198 Ill. 407; Adair v. Craig, 135 Ala. 332; Ikard v. Minter [Ind. T.] 69 S. W. 852; Ellis v. Newell [Iowa] 94 N. W. 463; Pfeffer v. Kling, 171 N. Y. 668; McKnight v. Reed [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 318), or mortgagor (Newgass v. Auburn Loan Co., 81 App. Div. [N. Y.] 411), or by a seller of chattels (Moravec v. Grell, 78 App. Div. [N. Y.] 146, 12 Ann. Cas. 294; Wooley v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 797), or chattel mortgagor (Meyer v. Munro [Idaho] 71 Pac. 969; Ward v. Johnson [Kan.] 72 Pac. 242), are not admissible against the grantee or mortgagee. Declarations by a dowress in possession are not admissible against the holder of the fee—Maraman v. Troutman, 24 Ky. L. R. 1539, 71 S. W. 861. To make declarations of a grantor as to fraudulent intent admissible against the grantee, prima facie evidence of fraud must be first given—Moore v. Robinson (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 890.

Agents and Employes. Declarations of agents and employes must be made while they are in the employ of the principal (American Copper, etc., Works v. Galland-Burke Brew. Co., 30 Wash. 178, 70 Pac. 236; Loving v. Hesperian Cattle Co. [Mo.] 75 S. W. 1095; Small v. McGovern [Wis.] 94 N. W. 651) within the scope of their authority (Leary v. Albany Brew. Co., 77 App. Div. [N. Y.] 6; Hill v. Bank of Seneca [Mo. App.] 73 S. W. 307; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Irvine [Tex. Civ. App.] 73 S. W. 540; Huebner v. Erie R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 55 Atl. 273), and statements as to a contract by an agent who had nothing to do with making the same (Wallingford v. Aitkins, 24 Ky. L. R. 1995, 72 S. W. 794) are inadmissible. Thus the manager of ranch having nothing to do with sales cannot bind employer by admissions as to condition of goods sold—Peterson v. Mineral King Fruit Co. (Cal.) 74 Pac. 162. To bind the employer, the declarations must be made in the course of the performance of a duty, subsequent narrations not being admissible—National Bank v. Byrnes, 82 N. Y. Supp. 497; King v. Phoenix Ins. Co. (Mo. App.) 76 S. W. 55. To be admissible against his principal, the declarations of an agent must have been made (1) in respect to a matter within the scope of his authority (2) in reference to the subject matter of his agency (3) while actually engaged in the transaction and as part of the res gestae thereof—Cooper Grocer Co. v. Britton (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 91. In North Carolina the entire doctrine that an admission of an agent not part of the res gestae is admissible against the principal is denied—McEntyre v. Levi Cotton Mills Co., 132 N. C. 598. Authority of an agent cannot be proved by his own declarations—Orange Belt R. Co. v. Cox (Fla.) 33 So. 403; Currie v. Syndicate Des Cultivators, 104 Ill. App. 165; Parker v. Brown, 131 N. C. 264; Dyer v. Winston (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 227. Evidence of a shipper that he had always paid the freight to a certain person is insufficient to show that he is authorized to bind the carrier by declarations as to shipments—Helm v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 148. Proof of agency of insurance adjuster insufficient—Legnard v. Standard Life & Acc. Ins. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 320. Admission by teamster as to condition of goods delivered to him held unauthorized—Sibley Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Durand & Kasper Co., 200 Ill. 354.

Corporate officers and agent. A corporation is bound to the same extent as an individual by the authorized declarations of its agents—Ulysses Elgin Butter Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 384; Lipscomb v. South Bound R. Co., 65 S. C. 148. Statements of selling agents held admissible to show combination of corporations to fix prices—State v. Armour Packing Co., 173 Mo. 356. But not by declarations outside the agent's duty—Harper v. Western Union Tel. Co., 92 Mo. App. 304. Thus statements by a street railroad official about the safety of a coupling device (Hayzel v. Columbia R. Co., 19 App. D. C. 359), of a corporate officer present at the test of a machine to be purchased by the corporation (Haney-Campbell Co. v. Preston Creamery Ass'n [Iowa] 93 N. W. 297; Allington & C. Mfg. Co. v. Detroit Reduction Co. [Mich.] 95 N. W. 562), admissions by corporate officers as to previous decisions of the board of directors or trustees (Central Elec. Co. v. Sprague Elec. Co. [C. C. A.] 120 Fed. 925), and a letter written by a bank president as a personal communication (Utica City Nat. Bank v. Tallman, 172 N. Y. 642) have been excluded. But statements of the officer who employed a clerk as to his compensation (Meislahn v. Irving Nat. Bank, 172 N. Y. 631), and directions by the conductor to a passenger as to the length of time the train would stop (Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Gore, 202 Ill. 188; Childs v. Ponder, 117 Ga. 553), and to board a moving train (Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Gore, 202 Ill. 188; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Flaherty, 202 Ill. 151) are admissible.

Public officer. An admission by one who had been a public officer of the receipt of a paper during his term of office is admissible against the city—South Omaha v. Wrzensinski (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1045. Reports by a policeman of facts not within his personal knowledge are inadmissible against the city—Sterling v. Detroit (Mich.) 95 N. W. 986.

Insured and Beneficiary. Admissions by an insured are not admissible against the beneficiary—Sutcliffe v. Iowa State Traveling dence and no foundation need be laid.[14] The rule includes not only declarations in ordinary conversation but admissions implied from acquiescence by silence to

Men's Ass'n (Iowa) 93 N. W. 90. But see (Callies v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 72 S. W. 713) and it is otherwise where the insured retains the right to change the beneficiary at will—Foxhever v. Order of Red Cross, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 56. Nor are the admissions of a local lodge of a fraternal order which under its bylaws made proofs of loss for the beneficiary (Cox v. Royal Tribe, 42 Or. 365, 71 Pac. 73) such lodge being the agent of the society—Patterson v. United Artisans (Or.) 72 Pac. 1095.

Coconspirators. Declarations of a conspirator in pursuance of the common purpose are admissible against his coconspirators—Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Hillmon, 188 U. S. 208, 47 Law. Ed. 446; Suttles v. Sewell, 117 Ga. 214; Mosby v. McKee, etc., Commission Co., 91 Mo. App. 500; Cleland v. Anderson (Neb.) 92 N. W. 306; Cohn v. Saidel, 71 N. H. 558; Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 144; Boyer v. Weimer, 204 Pa. 295; Lasher v. Littell, 202 Ill. 551.

Assignee and creditors. Declarations of a trustee for creditors as to the purposes of the assignment held admissible against those claiming under the assignment—Fourth Nat. Bank v. Albaugh, 188 U. S. 734, 47 Law. Ed. 673.

Guardian and ward. Complaint by guardian ad litem for accident not witnessed by him not admissible against ward in subsequent proceeding—Shlotterer v. Brooklyn & N. Y. Ferry Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 330.

Husband and wife. Declarations of husband are not admissible against wife as to property in respect to which they claim adversely—Vermillion v. Parsons (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 994. And declarations by a husband in respect to the wife's business or property are not admissible against her unless it is shown that he was specially authorized—Montgomery v. Mann (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1109; Winans v. Demarest, 84 N. Y. Supp. 504.

Principal and Surety. Declarations of principal in fidelity bond while in the performance of his guaranteed duties is admissible against the surety—Guarantee Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co. (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 170.

Deceased and heir, legatee or personal representative. Admissible against heirs—Deuterman v. Ruppel, 103 Ill. App. 106. But the declarations must be against interest—Johnson v. Cole, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 606. Declaration against interest as to fact of partnership by deceased partner admissible against survivor—Card v. Moore, 173 N. Y. 598. Declarations of deceased trustee admissible againts beneficiary as to ownership of securities—Putnam v. Lincoln Safe Deposit Co., 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 738. Declaration by deceased donor admissible on behalf of donee—Gross v. Smith, 132 N. C. 604. Declarations by decedent are not admissible against an heir as to the existence of an indebtedness—Pym v. Pym (Wis.) 96 N. W. 429. Declarations of deceased absolving employer from negligence are admissible in action for his death —Dixon v. Union Iron Works (Minn.) 97 N. W. 375. Declarations of ancestor that he held land in trust are admissible against his heirs—McClellan v. Grant, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 599. Declaration by deceased grantor that the deed was not fraudulent is admissible against his heir in a suit to set aside the deed—Donnelly v. Rees (Cal.) 74 Pac. 433. Declarations of want of testamentary capacity made by a sole legatee are admissible against the will. but admissions by one legatee are not admissible against others—Stull v. Stull (Neb.) 96 N. W. 196. Admissibility of declarations of testamentary intent on issue of undue influence see Wills.

13. As a general proposition any statement inconsistent with the position of the party in the action in which it is offered is against his interest. Admission of purchase of property by one sued for price—Moore v. Crosthwait, 135 Ala. 272. Declaration of beneficiary under will that testator was incompetent—Lundy v. Lundy, 118 Iowa, 445. Declarations of intent to pay a member of declarant's family for domestic services—Tuohy v. Trail, 19 App. D. C. 79; Bonebrake v. Tauer (Kan.) 72 Pac. 521. Declarations of insolvency—Quinby v. Ayres (Neb.) 95 N. W. 464. Declarations of agent that he had no authority to make a contract in suit against him personally thereon—Anderson v. Adams (Or.) 74 Pac. 215. Statement that plaintiff's services were to be paid for by another than defendant—Wright v. Reed, 118 Iowa, 333. Admission that the claim sued on had been settled—Upton v. Adeline Sugar Factory Co., 109 La. 670. Admissions by plaintiff of truth of alleged libel —Davis v. Hamilton, 88 Minn. 64. Admissions as to the purpose for which stock was transferred—Collins v. McGuire, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 443. Declarations of owner as to value of property—Houston v. Western R. Co., 204 Pa. 321. Statements by beneficiary of insurance policy that insured committed suicide—Voelkel v. Supreme Tent, K. of M. (Wis.) 92 N. W. 1104, 1135. As to amount of property tending to show that an assignment for the benefit of creditors was fraudulent—Armour v. Doig (Fla.) 34 So. 249. Tax returns are admissible to show falsity of representations as to property—Mashburn v. Dannenberg Co. (Ga.) 44 S. E. 97.

Self serving declarations inadmissible—Stockley v. Cissna (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 812; Work v. Kinney (Idaho) 71 Pac. 477; Edwards v. Bates County, 117 Fed. 526; Duvall v. Hambleton & Co. (Md.) 55 Atl. 431; McNicol v. Collins, 30 Wash. 318, 70 Pac. 753; National Lumberman's Bank v. Miller (Mich.) 91 N. W. 1024; Healy v. Malcolm, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 69. Report of accident by street railroad employe—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Lieserowitz, 197 Ill. 607. Pleading in another action—Bennett v. City of Marion (Iowa) 93 N. W. 558. Statement as to accident delayed until witnesses were present—Atchison, etc. R. Co. v. Logan, 65 Kan. 748, 70 Pac. 878. Declarations of husband that transfer by him to wife was not gift but trust—Johnson v. Johnson, 96 Md. 144. Memorandum discharging broker not communicated to him inadmissible for principal—Diamond v. Wheeler, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 58. As to title to land—Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425. Declaration of seller that he intended to make delivery—Price v. Beach, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 291. Declaration of the maker of a note that he owed part of the statements made in the party's presence,[15] and, of course, admissions in the course of judicial proceedings,[16] and in books of account.[17] Subsequent repairs are sometimes urged as an implied admission of negligence, but as such evidence is usually excluded on grounds of relevancy, it is elsewhere treated.[18] For reasons of public policy, offers of compromise are not admissible as implied admissions,[19] though express admissions of fact therein are competent.[20]

§ 7. Documentary evidence.[21] A. General rules—Private writings.—Contracts, conveyances, and correspondence between the parties are admissible if their contents is material, but there must be preliminary proof of their execution and authenticity;[22] proof of handwriting or that the letter or telegram was part of a reg-amount thereof held self serving—Luke v. Koenen (Iowa) 94 N. W. 278. Declarations of insured that policy was in force—New York Life Ins. Co. v. Johnson's Adm'r, 24 Ky. L. R. 1867, 72 S. W. 762. A sale of property as chattels pending a proceeding to subject them to a mortgage as fixtures held self serving—Lord v. Detroit Sav. Bank (Mich.) 93 N. W. 1063. Declarations tending to excuse declarant from contributory negligence—Over v. Missouri R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 535. Self serving declarations in a will not admissible in favor of the estate—Bennett's Estate v. Taylor (Neb.) 96 N. W. 669.

14. Moore v. Crosthwait, 135 Ala. 272; Second Borrowers & Investors Bldg. Ass'n v. Cochrane, 103 Ill. App. 29; Dunafon v. Barber (Neb.) 92 N. W. 198.

15. Silence when charged with acts constituting contributory negligence—Holston v. Southern R. Co., 116 Ga. 656; Givens v. Louisville R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1796, 72 S. W. 320. But the silence of one suffering from recent injuries is not to be construed as an admission—Schilling v. Union R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 74. Failure to contradict a statement made by a witness at a former trial is not to be construed as an admission of its truth—Horan v. Byrnes (N. H.) 54 Atl. 945. Declarations made in the presence of the adverse party are not admissible unless it appears that he heard them—Platt v. Hollands, 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 231.

16. In pleadings—Younglove v. Knox (Fla.) 33 So. 427; Tague v. Caplice (Mont.) 72 Pac. 297; Seymour v. Richardson Fueling Co., 103 Ill. App. 625; Houston, etc., R. Co. v. De Walt (Tex.) 70 S. W. 531. An abandoned pleading referred to in a substitute is admissible for admissions against interest therein—Orange Rice Mill Co. v. McIlhinney (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 428.

In motion papers—Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Brown (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 915.

In affidavits—Cornelissen v. Ort (Mich.) 93 N. W. 617.

In previous testimony—Rosenfeld v. Siegfried, 91 Mo. App. 169; Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Eq.) 54 Atl. 144; Sternbach v. Friedman, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 418; Egyptian Flag Cigarette Co. v. Comisky, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 236. A deposition of a party though filed too late may be used by the adverse party as an admission—Profile & F. Hotels Co. v. Bickford (N. H.) 54 Atl. 699.

17. Entries against interest in account books may be introduced as admissions—Kent v. Richardson (Idaho) 71 Pac. 117; Second Borrowers & Investors Bldg. Ass'n v. Cochrane, 103 Ill. App. 29.

18. See § 2, ante.

19. Kelly v. Strouse, 116 Ga. 872; Higgins v. Shepard, 182 Mass. 364. But merely saying "Let us settle up this matter" is not an offer of compromise—Collins v. McGuire, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 443. Nor is the filing of a written claim for damages—Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Lock (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 456; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Smith (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 28. Offer to purchase outstanding title admissible—Hughes v. Rowan, 27 Mont. 500, 71 Pac. 764. Offer by defendant in bastardy proceedings to pay for an abortion is not an offer of compromise—Gatzmeyer v. Peterson (Neb.) 94 N. W. 974. Letter seeking to procure an adjustment of dispute not admissible—Halstead v. Coen (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 957. But it has been held that negotiations looking to ascertainment of amount due are admissible between the parties for admissions therein contained—Hunter v. Helsley, 98 Mo. App. 616. An amicable adjustment is not as to third persons an admission by either party—Creighton v. Chicago R. Co. (Neb.) 94 N. W. 527.

20. Offers of compromise are not admissible unless they contain admissions of fact, and a proposition to settle "our affair" and stating that plaintiff should be paid but not stating for what is not an admission of fact within this rule—Rudd v. Dewey (Iowa) 96 N. W. 973.

21. Only the admissibility of documents as such is here treated. Questions of the competency and relevancy of facts are treated under the various rules of evidence irrespective of whether they are shown by oral or documentary evidence.

22. Peycke v. Shinn (Neb.) 94 N. W. 135; Hugumin v. Hinds, 97 Mo. App. 346; Nye v. Daniels, 75 Vt. 81; Baum v. Rainbow Smelting Co., 42 Or. 453, 71 Pac. 538; Brinkley v. Smith, 131 N. C. 130. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 486, provides that if inspection of a material writing is given before trial with notice of intent to introduce the same, proof of execution is unnecessary unless denied by affidavit, and this includes all papers material as evidence and not merely those on which the suit is founded—Boseker v. Chamberlain (Ind.) 66 N. E. 448. Admission of contract without production of subscribing witnesses held proper—National Computing Scale Co. v. Eaves, 116 Ga. 511. Where the writer of a letter denies the genuineness of a postscript, it is not admissible without proof of authenticity—Love v. Love, 98 Mo. App. 562. Authentication of insurance policy by circumstances held sufficient—Price v. Garvin (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 985. A telegram must be authenticated by some ular course of correspondence being sufficient,[23] and where the signature is of one as a corporate officer, his authority must be shown.[24] Formal execution and acknowledgment are usually held to dispense with proof of execution,[25] and proof of execution is unnecessary as to ancient documents.[26] Interlineations and alterations apparent on the face of the writing must be shown to have been made before execution.[27] Mere private memoranda are inadmissible.[28]

Photographs and drawings are usually admissible,[29] as are the standard mortality tables.[30] Printed books as a rule are not.[31] proof of genuineness—Reynolds v. Hinrichs (S. D.) 94 N. W. 694; Peycke v. Shinn (Neb.) 94 N. W. 135.

23. A telegram in answer to one shown by the evidence is admissible without further proof—People v. Hammond (Mich.) 93 N. W. 1084. Testimony of a son of the signer that it looked like his father's signature but he could not tell is insufficient—Farrell v. Manhattan R. Co., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 393. A letter must be identified by proof either of the handwriting or that it was received in answer to previous letters—Whitwell v. Johnson (Neb.) 96 N. W. 272. Where a letter is signed with a rubber stamp, there must be evidence as to who affixed the same—Reynolds v. Phillips (Neb.) 95 N. W. 491. Testimony that the letter was on the stationery of a party and signed in the same way as other letters received in regular course of correspondence is sufficient to identify a letter signed with a rubber stamp—Price v. Oatman (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 258.

24. Where a document is signed by one as officer of a corporation there must be proof of his authority (Coney Island Automobile Race Co. v. Boyton, 87 App. Div. [N. Y.] 251) though written on the letter head of a corporate officer (Wickham v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 85 App. Div. [N. Y.] 182) and it must be shown that a corporate seal was affixed with authority where it appears that the seal was accessible to unauthorized persons—Quackenboss v. Globe & R. Fire Ins. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 168. But in Montana it has been held that authority of corporate officers to execute a contract will be presumed—Tague v. Caplice (Mont.) 72 Pac. 297.

25. Brown v. Collins (Neb.) 96 N. W. 173; McKenzie v. Beaumont (Neb.) 97 N. W. 225. A conditional bill of sale, duly attested and recorded is admissible under the same rules as govern registered mortgages—Anderson v. Leverette, 116 Ga. 732. Probate of a deed in another state which does not identify the deed in question as the one which the witnesses saw signed is insufficient and is not aided by a certificate of the clerk of court that the probate is sufficient—Brinkley v. Smith, 131 N. C. 130. Where the execution of a bond (Craw v. Abrams [Neb.] 94 N. W. 639), or deed (Williamson v. Gore [Tex. Civ. App.] 73 S. W. 563) is denied there must be affirmative proof of execution. Execution of a bond for title must be proved though it has been recorded—Burkhart v. Loughridge (Ky.) 76 S. W. 397.

See article on Acknowledgments for necessity and sufficiency of acknowledgment to admit conveyance in evidence.

26. Kimball v. Morris (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 759; Bradley v. Lightcap, 201 Ill. 511. Possession of property by grantee is not necessary to the admission of an ancient deed—Hodge v. Palms (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 396. And an ancient notarial copy of an act of sale stands on the same footing as the original—Hodge v. Palms (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 396. Plan and report of railroad company filed under the chartering act many years before is admissible without proof of the authority of the persons signing as executive committee—MacDonald v. New York, etc., R. Co., 25 R. I. 40.

27. Landt v. McCullough, 103 Ill. App. 668; Rambousek v. Supreme Council (Iowa) 93 N. W. 277; Consumers' Ice Co. v. Jennings (Va.) 42 S. E. 879. Died-Long v. Stanley, 79 Miss. 298; Landt v. McCullough, 103 Ill. App. 668; Rambousek v. Supreme Council (Iowa) 93 N. W. 277; Holladay-Klotz Land Co. v. Moss Tie Co., 87 Mo. App. 167.

28. Turner v. Cochran (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1024. Ancient memorandum as to adverse possession admitted—Hamerschlag v. Duryea, 172 N. Y. 622.

29. X-ray photographs are admissible for the purpose of showing the condition of internal tissues of the body—City of Geneva v. Burnett (Neb.) 91 N. W. 275. Photographs of place of accident, shown to be accurate, are admissible—Sterling v. Detroit (Mich.) 95 N. W. 986. Must be identified as photograph of locality in question—Smart v. Kansas City, 91 Mo. App. 586. Photographs taken after the events in issue, if it appears that the situation of the premises has not changed—Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Corson, 198 Ill. 98; Robinson v. St. Joseph, 97 Mo. App. 503; Leeds v. New York Tel. Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 121. Where it appears that a photograph (in this case an X-ray photograph) truly represents the object in question, it is not necessary to show that it was taken by a skilled photographer—Carlson v. Benton (Neb.) 92 N. W. 600. And a photograph taken by an eye witness of the accident in controversy may be admitted in connection with his testimony though he is unskilled in photography—McGovern v. Smith, 75 Vt. 104. Evidence of one familiar with the person represented that the photograph is a good likeness dispenses with the necessity of authentication by the photographer—Stiasny v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 172 N. Y. 656. A map made from notes whose correctness is not shown cannot be received—Hays v. Ison, 24 Ky. L. R. 1947, 72 S. W. 733. It is in the discretion of the court to allow a witness to produce a sketch to illustrate his testimony—Chicago v. Le Moyne (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 662. A photograph of a hall where an accident is admissible to show the situation of the premises though the alleged negligence is insufficient lighting which the photographer does

The provision of the war revenue act of 1898 excluding documents not bearing revenue stamps required by that act is applicable only to federal courts.[32]

(§ 7) B. Books of account.—Books of account are admissible as admissions against interest,[33] and are admissible in favor of the person keeping the same when the entries are made in the ordinary course of business, contemporaneously with the transaction in question and by an authorized person.[34] The shop book rule extends only to books of a party,[35] and the rule obtains generally that cash entries are admissible only when small amounts are involved.[36] There must be preliminary proof of the identity and genuineness of the books offered,[37] and of the facts necessary to render them admissible in evidence.[38] not show—Bretsch v. Plate, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 399.

30. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Mortson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 770; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Hubbard (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 112; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 226; Coffeyville Min. & Gas Co. v. Carter, 65 Kan. 565, 70 Pac. 635. The Carlisle mortality tables are admissible without preliminary proof of correctness or identity—Atlanta Ry. & Power Co. v. Monk (Ga.) 45 S. E. 494. As are the Northampton tables—Banta v. Banta, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 138. One relying on the mortality tables must show that deceased was of the class of sound and healthy persons on which the tables are based—Vicksburg R., Power & Mfg. Co. v. White (Miss.) 34 So. 331.

31. Scientific book—McEvoy v. Lommel, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 324. Private catalogue of horse dealer not admissible as pedigree record—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Frazee, 24 Ky. L. R. 1273, 71 S. W. 437. Proof of foreign law by printed volume of statutes, see § 7, c, post.

32. Davis v. Evans (N. C.) 45 S. E. 643; Pierpont v. Johnson, 104 Ill. App. 27; Dillingham v. Parks, 30 Ind. App. 61; State v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 117 Iowa, 524; Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425; Foster v. Pacific Clipper Line, 30 Wash. 515, 71 Pac. 48.

33. Kent v. Richardson (Idaho) 71 Pac. 117; Second Borrowers' & Investors' Bldg. Ass'n v. Cochrane, 103 Ill. App. 29. Entry of payments on debtor books as evidence to avoid bar of limitations—Kirkpatrick v. Goldsmith, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 265.

34. Duty v. Storrs (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 357. Books of original entry. Entries must be contemporaneous—Wells v. Hobson, 91 Mo. App. 379. Where the book of original entry is destroyed a ledger is admissible—Burr v. Shute, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 62. On an issue as to solvency in general a cash book made up from memoranda and not verified by testimony of the bookkeeper is admissible to show the general nature and extent of the business—Kuh v. Glucklick (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1105. The appearance of the account in question and other entries in the book may be considered in determining the admissibility of the book—Holden v. Spier, 65 Kan. 412, 70 Pac. 348. Book held admissible when made from contemporaneous memoranda, and the person making the memoranda testified to their general correctness—Bloomington Min. Co. v. Brooklyn Hygienic Ice Co., 171 N. Y. 673.

Data from which made. Entries made from information telephoned to bookkeeper held not admissible—Rathborne v. Hatch, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 115. Entries made from weight slips held admissible—Bloomington Min. Co. v. Brooklyn Hygienic Ice Co., 171 N. Y. 673. Where the person making the entries testifies that they were made at the time from his personal knowledge the book is admissible—Alabama Const. Co. v. Wagnon (Ala.) 34 So. 352. Books made up from memoranda furnished to the bookkeeper held not admissible without testimony as to the correctness of the memoranda—Trainor v. German-American Sav. Loan & Bldg. Ass'n (Ill.) 68 N. E. 650.

Usual course of business. Book entries of money not being customary are not admissible—Rothschild v. Sessell, 103 Ill. App. 274. Mere memoranda (Hottle v. Weaver [Pa.] 55 Atl. 838) such as a memorandum of date of execution of contract (Tobler v. Austin [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 407), pencil memorandum on books of bank as to name of transferee of a certain pledge (Rankin v. Fidelity Ins., Trust & Safe Deposit Co., 189 U. S. 242) or of delivery of deed (Lloyd v. Simons [Minn.] 95 N. W. 903) are not admissible, nor are entry of payments in books of mortgagor—Rarden v. Cunningham, 136 Ala. 263. Or maker of note—Gregory v. Jones (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 899.

Non-commercial books. Register kept at hospital inadmissible to show entries as to symptoms and condition of patient—Price v. Standard Life & Acc. Ins. Co. (Minn.) 95 N. W. 1118.

Copies of corporate books. Burns' Rev. St. § 474, providing that corporate acts may be proved by a sworn copy of the record does not allow a sworn copy of a corporate book of account to be introduced—Coppes v. Union Nat. Sav. & Loan Ass'n (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 1022.

35. Books kept by an agent of his own business are not admissible on behalf of the principal—Rathborne v. Hatch, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 115; McKeen v. Providence County Sav. Bank (R. I.) 54 Atl. 49.

36. See Davis v. Sanford, 9 Allen (Mass.) 216; Bustin v. Rogers, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 346; Silver v. Worcester, 72 Me. 322. Rev. St. 1898, § 4187, makes inadmissible books containing cash items exceeding $5.00—Brown v. Warner (Wis.) 93 N. W. 17.

37. Wilson v. Morse, 117 Iowa, 581.

38. Wimmer v. Key (Minn.) 92 N. W. 228. Account book not verified in manner prescribed by Rev. St. 1898, § 4186, is not admissible—Brown v. Warner (Wis.) 93 N. W. 17. Accounts with other persons cannot be introduced as corroboration—Gregory v. Jones (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 899. A book kept

(§ 7) C. Public and judicial records and documents.—Public and judicial records and documents are admissible in evidence,[39] and in view of the public inconvenience resulting from use of the originals in evidence, certified copies are almost universally authorized by statute.[40] by one who is the joint agent of the parties is admissible against either—Copeland v. Boston Dairy Co. (Mass.) 68 N. E. 218.

39. A record book prepared by the general land office as a substitute for one destroyed in a local office is admissible as an original—Jessé D. Carr Land & Live Stock Co. v. United States (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 821. Original declaration of homestead (Smith v. Veysey, 30 Wash. 18, 70 Pac. 94) and tax roll (Smith v. Scully [Kan.] 71 Pac. 249) are admissible. Tract book of land office is prima facie evidence that lands therein listed are public—Jesse D. Carr Land & Live Stock Co. v. United States (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 821. Record of survey admissible under How. Ann. St § 619 though it is recorded on two pages if they are shown to be connected—Sherrard v. Cudney (Mich.) 96 N. W. 15. Report of commission to define county boundaries inadmissible without proof of appointment and authority of commissioners —Daniel v. Bailey (Ga.) 45 S. E. 379. Records of United States weather bureau are admissible in evidence (Nolt v. Crow, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 113) without the testimony of the officer keeping the same—Scott v. Astoria R. Co. (Or.) 72 Pac. 594. Health board record of vital statistics is not admissible—Beglin v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 173 N. Y. 374. Nor is school census admissible to show age of person listed therein—Edwards v. Logan, 24 Ky. L. R. 1099, 70 S. W. 852. The fact that an original marriage license is in the hands of a private person who does not account for his possession thereof does not render it inadmissible—State v. Pendleton (Kan.) 72 Pac. 527.

Certificates. Certificate of officer admissible when so declared by statute—Robles v. Cooksey (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 584. A certificate of death made in pursuance of statute is admissible—Ohmeyer v. Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, 91 Mo. App. 189. There is no authority for the admission of a clerk's certificate to the non-existence of a fact—Boyd v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 103 Ill. App. 199. A statement of the account of a public officer from the books of the treasury department and properly certified is admissible—Laffan v. United States (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 333.

Statutes and ordinances. Municipal ordinances may be proved by the certificate of the city clerk (Florida Cent. & P. R. Co. v. Seymour [Fla.] 33 So. 424) as may the publication of an ordinance (Hazen v. Mathews [Mass.] 68 N. E. 838) and by a printed certificate of the clerk to a compilation—Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Beaver, 199 Ill. 34. But the non-existence of an ordinance on a particular subject cannot be proved by certificate of the clerk—Boyd v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 103 Ill. App. 199. The record book of the secretary of the council is admissible to prove an ordinance without proof that its keeping was authorized by the act of incorporation—McCaffrey v. Thomas (Del.) 56 Atl. 382. Minutes of council proceedings held sufficiently authenticated by testimony of city clerk—State v. Badger, 90 Mo. App. 183. Printed volumes of laws of another state do not prove themselves—Hewitt v. Bank of Indian Territory (Neb.) 92 N. W. 741. Copies of English statutes authenticated by testimony of English attorney admissible—Nashua Sav. Bank v. Anglo-American Land, etc., Co., 189 U. S. 221.

Judicial proceedings. Pleadings (Church v. Pearne, 75 Conn. 350) and decrees are admissible—Alexander v. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 508. Judgment is admissible though rehearing in appellate court is pending—Salt Lake City Water & Electrical Power Co. v. Salt Lake City, 25 Utah, 441, 71 Pac. 1067. But the judgment of a justice of the peace must be authenticated by proof of his handwriting—Patterson v. Freeman, 132 N. C. 357. Judicial opinions (Work v. Kinney [Idaho] 71 Pac. 477) or transcripts of evidence (Walker v. Walker, 117 Iowa, 609) are not admissible; and a coroner's inquest is not a judicial proceeding so as to be admissible in evidence—Cox v. Royal Tribe, 42 Or. 365, 71 Pac. 73. Order admitting will to probate held sufficient to admit will in evidence—Turner v. Hause, 199 Ill. 464. The manner of proving testimony on a former trial is discussed in § 8, post; the admissibility of testimony and proceedings as admissions against interest in § 6C, ante.

40. A certificate of the rendition of a judgment summarizing its terms is not admissible as a certified copy thereof—United States v. Lew Poy Dew, 119 Fed. 786. But a certificate embodying the judgment has been held a sufficient certified copy thereof—Kentucky Land, etc., Co. v. Crabtree, 24 Ky. L. R. 743, 70 S. W. 31. Certified copy of commissioner's deed held admissible without proof of the judgment authorizing it—Helton v. Belcher, 24 Ky. L. R. 927, 70 S. W. 295. The bond of a constable required to be recorded in the county court is a "judicial record" and accordingly the seal of the court is essential to a certified copy thereof—Morgan v. Betterton, 109 Tenn. 84. And where such bonds are required to be filed with the county clerk they are records of his office and may be proved by his certificate—State v. Yourex, 30 Wash. 611, 71 Pac. 203. Certified copy of foreign grant—Hollifield v. Landrum (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 979. Certified copies which have been recorded under Rev. St. art. 4642, providing that a deed may be recorded in any county and a certified copy of such record recorded elsewhere are admissible—Moody v. Ogden (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 253; Logan's Heirs v. Logan (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 416. A certified copy of an adjudication of bankruptcy in federal court is admissible in a state court—Rosenfeld v. Siegfried, 91 Mo. App. 169. Certified copies of tax collector's delinquent list held admissible—Davis v. Pacific Imp. Co., 137 Cal. 245, 70 Pac. 15. Copy of school warrant is properly certified by the auditor—Mitchelltree School Tp. v. Hall (Ind. App.) 68 N. E. 919. Certified copy of assessment roll admissible as "public record" (Rev. St. art. 2305)—Brummer v. Galveston (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 239. Judicial record authenticated ac-

(§ 7) D. Proceedings to procure production of documents.[41]—The customary process to procure production of documents at the trial is the subpoena duces tecum,[42] and in case of documents in the possession of third persons this is the only available remedy, but the court will frequently, by order in the course of the trial, require a party to produce papers.[43] The books of a going concern needed in its business should not be required to be left in court.[44]

§ 8. Evidence adduced in former proceedings.[45]—Statutes in many states provide that where a witness who testified on a former trial of the action is dead or beyond the jurisdiction, his testimony at the former trial may be introduced.[46] Evidence at a former trial may be proved by any person who heard it,[47] by the notes of the court stenographer if supported by his testimony to their correctness,[48] or by the return or bill of exceptions on appeal when certified by the court,[49] or supported by the testimony of the stenographer.[50]

§ 9. Expert and opinion evidence. A. Conclusions and nonexpert opinions.—As a general rule, it is improper for a witness to state a mere conclusion, whether the same be of law or by way of inference from facts,[51] and on matters which are cording to the statute is admissible without proof that the court is one of record—Brown v. Collins (Neb.) 96 N. W. 173. A certified copy of a county map from the office of the secretary of state is admissible without preliminary proof—Berry v. Clark, 117 Ga. 964. Under the act of Congress judicial records must have certificate of judge showing that he is commissioned and qualified—Taylor v. McKee (Ga.) 45 S. E. 672. Authentication of English court record held sufficient—Linton v. Baker (Neb.) 96 N. W. 251. A transcript of a Federal judgment in the same state is admissible if certified by the clerk though not by the judge—Allison v. Robinson, 136 Ala. 434.

41. Notices to produce documents, as laying a foundation for secondary evidence are treated in § 4, ante, while proceedings to procure inspection of documents before trial are discussed in Discovery and Inspection.

42. Plaintiff in action for newspaper libel is entitled to subpoena duces tecum for the mailing and subscription lists—Palmer v. Mahin (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 737. A preliminary showing that the documents are pertinent to the issue is usually required (Prac. Act, § 12) —Bentley v. People, 104 Ill. App. 353. An attorney for a party may be required by subpoena duces tecum to produce a lease in his possession—Jones v. Reilly, 174 N. Y. 97.

43. Rarden v. Cunningham, 136 Ala. 263; Neukirch v. Keppler, 174 N. Y. 509. It must appear that the documents are material—Bucki & Son Lumber Co. v. Atlantic Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 233.

44. In re Randall, 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 245.

45. Includes only use thereof in lieu of appearance of witness, former testimony as an admission against interest being discussed in § 6C, ante, and use thereof for impeachment in Witnesses.

46. Sievers-Carson Hardware Co. v. Curd, 24 Ky. L. R. 1317, 71 S. W. 506; Persons v. Persons (N. D.) 97 N. W. 551. Testimony of witness beyond the jurisdiction admitted though no effort was made to procure his attendance—McGovern v. Smith, 75 Vt. 104. Testimony before referee admitted though the reference was never concluded on account of the death of the referee—Taft v. Little, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 74. Evidence of deceased witness in action between other parties is not admissible—Ellis v. Le Bow (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 576. Search for missing witness held sufficient diligence—People v. McFarlane, 138 Cal. 481, 71 Pac. 568, 72 Pac. 48; People v. Witty, 138 Cal. 576, 72 Pac. 177. Evidence that a witness who resided in Mexico was seen to take a train presumably bound there is sufficient—State v. Bolden, 109 La. 484. Where the witness resided within the state and where his deposition might be taken though beyond the reach of process to compel attendance at the trial, his testimony at a former trial cannot be read—Southern Foundry Co. v. Jennings (Ala.) 34 So. 1002.

47. Egyptian Flag Cigarette Co. v. Comisky, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 236.

48. Dady v. Condit, 104 Ill. App. 507. But not unless so verified—Cerrusite Min. Co. v. Steele (Colo. App.) 70 Pac. 1091. Transcript certified by him, not being admissible—Jordan v. Howe (Neb.) 95 N. W. 853.

49. Egyptian Flag Cigarette Co. v. Comisky, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 236. Testimony taken down by a magistrate but not certified and the magistrate having no independent recollection in respect thereto cannot be received —Gamblin v. State (Miss.) 33 So. 724.

50. Smith v. Scully (Kan.) 71 Pac. 249. But it has been said that this practice, though not erroneous, is of doubtful propriety—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Story, 104 Ill. App. 132.

51. Veum v. Sheeran, 88 Minn. 257; Read v. Valley Land & Cattle Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 622. Statements held conclusions. For whom property was bought—Arnold v. Cofer, 135 Ala. 364. Whether a foreign corporation was doing business in New York—Huey v. Rothfeld, 84 N. Y. Supp. 883. Whether another acted in good faith—Durrence v. Northern Nat. Bank, 117 Ga. 385. Whether an instrument was a bill of sale or a mortgage—Stuart v. Mitchum, 135 Ala. 546. As to the construction of a written contract—Independent School Dist. v. Swearngin (Iowa) 94 N. W. 206. That certain improvements were intended to be provided for in a deed of trust —Martin v. Texas Briquette & Coal Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 651. That a balance of a certain sum was due—Smith v. Castle, 81 the subject of expert testimony, one not an expert cannot express an opinion,[52] but certain matters are regarded as so far within the common knowledge of mankind

App. Div. (N. Y.) 638. Whether the whole of a conversation which has been testified to is embodied in a writing before the court—Union State Bank v. Hutton (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1061. Whether the conduct of parties indicated a family relation or that of master and servant—Bullard v. Laughlin (Neb.) 96 N. W. 159. Whether a road was public—Big Lake Drainage Dist. Com'rs v. Commissioners of Highways, 199 Ill. 132. Whether a stream could be forded without difficulty at a certain place—Perry v. Clarke County (Iowa) 94 N. W. 454. Whether anything occurred that would have a tendency to injure—Birmingham Ry. & Elec. Co. v. Ellard, 135 Ala. 433. As to the regularity of a writ—Faville v. State Trust Co. (Iowa) 96 N. W. 1109. Who was liable for a doctor's bill—Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bauman, 104 Ill. App. 600. Who was the owner of property—Perkins v. Knisely, 102 Ill. App. 562. That plaintiff was obliged to get on an electric car track in order to cross a railroad track—Birmingham Ry. & Elec. Co. v. Jackson, 136 Ala. 279. The purpose of a bill of sale—Emory Mfg. Co. v. Rood, 182 Mass. 166. Whether book entries showed a sale or a discount—Black v. First Nat. Bank, 96 Md. 399. Whether a marriage was according to Indian custom—Henry v. Taylor (S. D.) 93 N. W. 641. The place of delivery under a contract—Althouse v. McMillan (Mich.) 92 N. W. 941. Whether misstatements in an application for insurance were material to the risk—New Era Ass'n v. Mactavish (Mich.) 94 N. W. 599. Whether goods ordered by a party were of the kind needed by him—New York Cent. Iron Works Co. v. United States Radiator Co., 174 N. Y. 331. Whether a publication was true—Davis v. Hamilton, 88 Minn. 64. Who was the real party in interest—United Press v. Abell, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 550. Whether acts of ownership were exercised—Red River Valley Nat. Bank v. Monson, 11 N. D. 423. Cause of injury to cattle, as based on their appearance—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Landers, 135 Ala. 504. That nothing could have been done to avert an accident—Springfield Consol. R. Co v. Puntenney, 200 Ill. 9; McGovern v. Smith, 75 Vt. 104. Whether a sidewalk was unsafe—Bradley v. City of Spickardsville, 90 Mo. App. 416; Gordon v. Sullivan (Wis.) 93 N. W. 457; Metz v. Butte, 27 Mont. 506, 71 Pac. 761. Whether ice on a sidewalk was formed from water from a certain source—Wittman v. New York, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 585. Whether an accident would have occurred if plaintiff had stopped when warned—Cosgrove v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 173 N. Y. 628. Whether a tool was unfit for use—Nash v. Dowling, 93 Mo. App. 156. Statements held of fact. That a train did not stop long enough for witness to get off—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Byers (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 558. Whether witness had anything to do with a certain occurrence—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Story, 104 Ill. App. 132. That a person came in response to a cry for help—Golibart v. Sullivan, 30 Ind. App. 428. That no one in the car with witness appeared to have suffered injury—Coldren v. Le Gore, 118 Iowa, 212. What was the habit of engineers in examining the engine for defects—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Collins (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 560. Whether a car step was too high for safety in alighting—International, etc., R. Co. v. Clark (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 587. That one was in possession of premises—Wright v. State, 136 Ala. 139. That a shipment was C. O. D.—Davidson v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 808. Whether in a certain contingency a party would have been able to meet his obligations as they arose—Buckl & Son Lumber Co. v. Atlantic Lumber Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 233. Whether a train could be seen from a certain point—Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Weeks (Ala.) 34 So. 16. That witness suffered pain from certain organs—Sellman v. Wheeler, 95 Md. 751. That certain injuries incapacitated one from following a certain occupation—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. McDowell (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 974. That witness was made sick by certain gases complained of—Suddith v. Incorporated City of Boone (Iowa) 96 N. W. 853. That a ticket agent saw the children for whom tickets were purchased is a statement of a fact—International, etc., R. Co. v. Anchonda (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 557. Whether a third person claimed property—Rice v. Melott (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 935.

Intent, knowledge or understanding. One may testify directly as to his own intent (Mayers v. McNeese [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 68; Fox v. Robbins [Tex. Civ. App.] 70 S. W. 597; Fitzgibbon v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 93 N. W. 276; Pardridge v. Cutler, 104 Ill. App. 89; Warfield v. Clark, 118 Iowa, 69; Gray v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 77 App. Div. [N. Y.] 1) or as to his reasons for certain acts (McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Hiatt [Neb.] 95 N. W. 627) but not as to the intent (McKnight v. Reed [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 318) knowledge of others as that an employe was familiar with the location of appliances in a switch yard (International, etc., R. Co. v. Bearden [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 318) or knowledge of others certain fact (Sheldon v. Bigelow, 118 Iowa, 586) whether a child knew the danger of crossing railroad tracks (Over v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 73 S. W. 535) that one person knew that another claimed certain land (Ashford v. Ashford, 136 Ala. 631) whether a third person understood certain facts (Plano Mfg. Co. v. Kautenberger [Iowa] 96 N. W. 743) or the reason for the conduct of another—Southern R. Co. v. Shelton, 136 Ala. 191; Holmes v. State, 136 Ala. 80. But statements as to the "understanding" of the parties are admissible where it is obvious that "agreement" is meant—Mallory Commission Co. v. Elwood (Iowa) 95 N. W. 176. And it has been held that a witness may testify that a person did not appear to realize that there was danger in his position—Fritz v. Western Union Tel. Co., 25 Utah, 263, 71 Pac. 209.

Computations. An accountant may state the result of his examination of a long account—Rosenfeld v. Siegfried, 91 Mo. App. 169. But computations are not admissible where data is before jury—Blauvelt v. Delaware, etc., R. Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 857.

52. Whether a fire could have been stopped with certain appliances—Cumberland Tel. Co. v. Dooley (Tenn.) 72 S. W. 457. Within what space a car could be stopped—that special qualification is not necessary to entitle a witness to express an opinion thereon.[53] A nonexpert stating an opinion under this rule should be required to state with it the facts on which it is based.[54]

(§ 9) B. Subjects of expert testimony.—An expert opinion is not admissible as to the ultimate issue to be found by the jury,[55] nor as to matters as to which men

Bliss v. United Traction Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 235. Whether car could have been stopped had conductor been in a different position—Von Diest v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 632. Technical meaning of a word—Butte & B. Consol. Min. Co. v. Montana Ore Purchasing Co. (C. C. A.) 121 Fed. 524. Whether a grating forming part of a side walk was heavy enough—Lentz v. Dallas (Tex.) 72 S. W. 59. Cause of death of cattle—White v. Farmers' Fire Ins. Co., 97 Mo. App. 590; Wilson v. Southern R., 65 S. C. 421.

53. That horse tracks indicated that the animal was running—Craig v. Wabash R. Co. (Iowa) 96 N. W. 965. A witness without special knowledge cannot testify to effect of piers or dams on flow of water—Jones v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. (S. C.) 45 S. E. 188.

Age—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Bowles (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 451; Danley v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 958; Earl v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 175.

Physical condition—That a person was suffering pain—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Randolph, 199 Ill. 126; Isherwood v. Jenkins Lumber Co., 87 Minn. 388. That a person was crippled and that his condition had not improved—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Brown (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1010. That an animal was blind—Rarden v. Cunningham, 136 Ala. 263. But not cause of sleeplessness—Nichols v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 25 Utah, 240, 70 Pac. 996.

Intoxication—Marshall v. Riley, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 770; League v. Ehmke (Iowa) 94 N. W. 938.

Mental condition—One well acquainted with a person may express an opinion as to his sanity—Higgins v. Nethery, 30 Wash. 239, 70 Pac. 489; Keegan v. Kane, 139 Cal. 123, 72 Pac. 828; Sheehan v. Allen (Kan.) 74 Pac. 245; Halde v. Schultz (S. D.) 97 N. W. 369; Wright v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 1838, 72 S. W. 340; Scarborough v. Baskin, 65 S. C. 558. But not a casual visitor—Apland v. Pott (S. D.) 92 N. W. 19; Page v. Beach (Mich.) 95 N. W. 981. And that testator was easily influenced (Michael v. Marshall, 201 Ill. 70) or that he "acted foolish" (Wallace v. Whitman, 201 Ill. 59) or whether testator had capacity to understand will is improper—Baker v. Baker, 202 Ill. 595.

Value—Porter v. Hawkins, 27 Mont. 486, 71 Pac. 664; Ruckman v. Imbler Lumber Co., 42 Or. 231, 70 Pac. 811; Eckington, etc., R. Co. v. McDevitt, 18 App. D. C. 497; Houghtaling v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 117 Iowa, 540; Chandler v. Parker, 65 Kan. 860, 70 Pac. 368; St. Joseph, etc., R. Co. v. McCarty (Neb.) 92 N. W. 750.

Distance—San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Griffith (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 438.

Lapse of time—Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Strickland, 116 Ga. 439.

Speed of trains—Id.; Flanagan v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 173 N. Y. 631; Potter v. O'Donnell, 199 Ill. 119; Mathieson v. Omaha St. R. Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 639. One accustomed to time the speed of cars is competent to state the speed of a car on which he was a passenger—Fisher v. Union Ry. Co., 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 365. Not proper where witness can form no opinion except from the result of subsequent calculation—Mathiesen v. Omaha St. R. Co. (Neb.) 97 N. W. 243. One having no experience in running street cars is not competent to express an opinion as to speed based solely on the noise made by its movement—Campbell v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. (Mo.) 75 S. W. 86.

Damages. Party cannot estimate amount of his damages—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hall (Ark.) 74 S. W. 293; De Wald v. Ingle, 31 Wash. 616, 72 Pac. 469; Tenney v. Rapid City (S. D.) 96 N. W. 96. Though it is otherwise held in South Carolina—Oliver v. Columbia, etc., R. Co., 65 S. C. 1. Nor can a nonexpert third person—Foote v. Malony, 115 Ga. 985.

54. Hawes v. Warren, 119 Fed. 978; State v. Barry, 11 N. D. 428. This rule has been held to apply to an opinion as to sanity by a family physician who has treated the person for other diseases—Scott v. Hay (Minn.) 97 N. W. 106. Where the opinion is shown to be erroneous by the facts elicited it should be stricken out—Keating v. Cornell, 104 Ill. App. 448. But one may testify that a person "appeared despondent" without first giving the facts on which the statement was based—State v. McKnight (Iowa) 93 N. W. 63.

55. Read v. Valley Land & Cattle Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 622. Whether injuries were inflicted by accident or with suicidal intent—Treat v. Merchants' Life Ass'n, 198 Ill. 431. Whether a person was competent to transact ordinary business (McGibbons v. McGibbons [Iowa] 93 N. W. 55) the amount of damages sustained (Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cochrane [Tex. Civ. App.] 69 S. W. 984) are improper. But an expert has been allowed to state that a certain article resembled or was an imitation of butter—State v. Ehinger, 67 Ohio St. 51. Difference in value of property before and after construction of railroad "excluding benefits and injuries common to the whole community" is a mixed question of law and fact and not the proper subject of an opinion—Boyer v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1038. Whether it was safe to work in a certain ditch without having the sides braced is not proper—Sullivan v. Rome, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 107. Whether a person had testamentary capacity is not proper—Page v. Beach (Mich.) 95 N. W. 981. Whether the excessive use of intoxicants is a "pernicious habit" is not a subject of expert testimony—Union Life Ins. Co. v. Jameson (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 199. Whether it was necessary for plaintiff's intestate to do certain acts alleged to constitute contributory negligence improper—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Holmes (Neb.) 94 N. W. 1007. In a suit for nuisance whether filter beds would be of benefit to plaintiff is not admissible, though the general effect thereof would be—Suddith v. Incorporated City of Boone (Iowa) 96 N. W. 853. Whether of common understanding are equally competent to form a judgment,[56] but as to questions other than the ultimate issue whose proper understanding calls for special knowledge or experience, the opinions of experts may be admitted.[57]

a building was in substantial compliance with the contract for its erection is not proper—Zimmerman v. Conrad (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 139.

56. It is not enough that the witness know more of the subject than the jury, but the matter in question must pertain to some trade, art, or science so that persons versed therein may be supposed to have more information in regard thereto than other persons of average intelligence—Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co., 97 Me. 381. The proper height of stakes at the ends of a car loaded with ties is not a matter for expert testimony—Kerrigan v. Market St. R. Co., 138 Cal. 506, 71 Pac. 621. The dangers of a simple piece of machinery—Edwards v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 92 Mo. App. 221. Whether the distance run by a car after an accident indicated that brakes were not set—Koenig v. Union Depot R. Co., 173 Mo. 698. The proper length of a "push stick"—Bookman v. Masterson, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 4. Whether an obstruction was calculated to frighten horses—White v. Town of Cazenovia, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 547. Whether telegraph poles were calculated to frighten horses—Missouri & K. Tel. Co. v. Vandevort (Kan.) 72 Pac. 771. That a shooting could not have been accidental—Barnard v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 957. That inspection would have disclosed a defect not proper—Dittman v. Edison Electric Illuminating Co., 83 N. Y. Supp. 1078. An expert railroad man may testify that a defect in a brakestaff could have been discovered by inspection—International, etc., R. Co. v. Collins (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 814. Where the facts may be clearly shown and understood, expert opinions are not admissible—Sumner v. Sumner (Ga.) 45 S. E. 509. Whether a hammer was a safe and proper tool is not—Vant Hul v. Great Northern R. Co. (Minn.) 96 N. W. 789; Ft. Pitt Gas Co. v. Evansville Contract Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 63.

57. An expert may testify that cattle suffered no more from being left in the cars than they would from being unloaded under existing weather conditions (Southern R. Co. v. Crowder, 135 Ala. 417) as to the necessity of feeding cattle in course of shipment (Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Irvine [Tex. Civ. App.] 73 S. W. 540) as to the probable effect of stagnant pool on health of community (West v. State [Ark.] 71 S. W. 483) as to whether bananas would decay in shipment between two certain points (Fruit Dispatch Co. v. Murray [Minn.] 96 N. W. 83) but not as to whether a person had committed suicide (Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Kaiser, 24 Ky. L. R. 2454, 74 S. W. 203) as to the effect of pneumonia on testamentary capacity (Lorts v. Wash [Mo.] 75 S. W. 95) or as to life expectancy—Hamilton v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. (Mich.) 97 N. W. 392.

Disputed handwriting—Roy v. First Nat. Bank (Miss.) 33 So. 494. A statute allowing comparison of handwritings does not permit an opinion that certain cancellation marks through a signature were not made by the person who wrote the signature—In re Hopkins' Will, 172 N. Y. 360, 12 Ann. Cas. 55.

Construction and management of structures and appliances. Proper method of loading boilers (Palmquist v. Mine & Smelter Supply Co., 25 Utah, 257, 70 Pac. 994); effect of loosening certain bolts in a passenger elevator (Slack v. Harris, 200 Ill. 96); whether an elevator was properly constructed (Craig v. Benedictine Sisters Hospital Ass'n [Minn.] 93 N. W. 669); whether a laundry mangle was defective (Coleman v. Perry [Mont.] 72 Pac. 42); whether a furnace pit was properly constructed (Behsmann v. Waldo, 38 Misc. [N. Y.] 820); proper means of guying a derrick (Scheider v. American Bridge Co., 73 App. Div. [N. Y.] 163); whether a certain gasoline engine was liable to explode (Charter Gas-Engine Co. v. Kellam, 79 App. Div. [N. Y.] 231); possibility of a certain construction of the hoist in a mine (Hedlun v. Holy Terror Min. Co. [S. D.] 92 N. W. 31); proper method of stringing wire in proximity of a live wire (Fritz v. Western Union Tel. Co., 25 Utah, 263, 71 Pac. 209); proper manner of securing mine roof (People's Gaslight & Coke Co. v. Porter, 102 Ill. App. 461); as to whether crossing was dangerous (Seifred v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 55 Atl. 1061); whether a structure was safe within the meaning of the labor law (Jenks v. Thompson, 83 App. Div. [N. Y.] 343); whether a certain interior construction was safe in respect to fire (Friedman Co. v. Atlas Assur. Co. [Mich.] 94 N. W. 757); whether an iron handle was properly welded (Murphy v. Marston Coal Co. [Mass.] 67 N. E. 342) have been held proper. But whether a plank would if sound have been strong enough to support a man is not a subject of expert testimony—Cogdell v. Wilmington & W. R. Co., 132 N. C. 852.

Disease and physical injuries. Whether condition might have resulted from asphyxiation is not competent—Walden v. City of Jamestown, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 433, 12 Ann. Cas. 313. But it has been held proper to allow an expert to testify that a condition could have been caused by a severe contusion (Wagner v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 79 App. Div. [N. Y.] 591); or whether certain injuries could have been produced in a certain way (Sachra v. Town of Manilla [Iowa] 95 N. W. 198) and the probable effect of injuries (Stembridge v. Southern R., 65 S. C. 440) as that they would be permanent (Walden v. City of Jamestown, 79 App. Div. [N. Y.] 433) would tend to increase (Robinson v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 77 S. W. 493), or would result in paralysis—Walden v. City of Jamestown, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 433, 12 Ann. Cas. 313. But an opinion that the parties condition "might" have come from certain injuries (Moritz v. Interurban St. R. Co., 84 N. Y. Supp. 162) or that the injury was the cause of subsequent headaches is too speculative—Huba v. Schenectady R. Co., 85 App. Div. (N. Y.) 199. An expert may state his opinion as to whether injuries will unfit for ordinary labor—Palmer v. Warren St. R. Co. (Pa.) 56 Atl. 49. Or as to how long a patient continued to suffer pain—Wilkins v. City of Missouri Valley (Iowa) 96

(§ 9) C. Qualification of experts.—The preliminary question of fact as to the competency of an expert rests largely in the discretion of the court;[58] experience and opportunity for observation being generally sufficient as to matters not pertaining to a particular art or science,[59] and as to matters within the scope of a profession, a practitioner thereof is presumptively competent.[60]

N. W. 868. Value of services—Donk Bros. Coal Co. v. Stroff, 200 Ill. 483.

Cause of overflow—Read v. Valley Land & Cattle Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 622; Akin v. St. Croix Lumber Co., 88 Minn. 119.

Knowledge or intent. Whether a mining shaft had been sunk with an intention of concealing the vein is not a subject of expert testimony—Davis v. Shepherd (Colo.) 72 Pac. 57.

Technical words—Heyworth v. Miller Grain & Elevator Co., 174 Mo. 171.

58. Garr v. Cranney, 25 Utah, 193, 70 Pac. 853; Czarecki v. Seattle, etc., R. & Nav. Co., 30 Wash. 288, 70 Pac. 750; State v. Barry, 11 N. D. 428; Davis v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 822; Schmuck v. Hill (Neb.) 96 N. W. 158. Court may deem that statement of what witness "guesses" is intended to express his judgment—Hunter v. Helsley, 98 Mo. App. 616. Preliminary cross examination as to qualifications should be allowed—Friday v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 204 Pa. 405.

59. One who has seen animals which were struck by lightning is competent as to whether a particular animal was so killed—White v. Farmers' Fire Ins. Co., 97 Mo. App. 590. The fact that experts were not able to give the date of experiments on which they base certain conclusions does not render them incompetent—Orient Ins. Co. v. Leonard (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 808. One accustomed to handle shoes is competent as to weight though he has never weighed a box of shoes—Hunter v. Helsley, 98 Mo. App. 616. One who has dissected horses is competent as to condition of organs, though not a veterinary—Wisecarver v. Long (Iowa) 94 N. W. 467. A physician familiar with the work of a nurse may give an opinion as to her competence—Ward v. St. Vincent's Hospital, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 317. One engaged for many years in lumber business and familiar with certain tract of timber is competent as to whether the same could be profitably cut and manufactured—Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287. Dealers in precious stones are not competent as to the commercial uses of imitations thereof—Lorsch v. United States, 119 Fed. 476. One familiar with a certain class of clothing may testify as to effect of rain thereon, though he has never seen the particular clothing—Henry Sonneborn & Co. v. Southern R., 65 S. C. 502. Surveyor held competent as to amount of land lost by lappage of surveys—Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287. An expert as to seepage and leakage from irrigation reservoirs is competent as to probability of damage to adjacent lands therefrom—Loloff v. Sterling (Colo.) 71 Pac. 1113.

Machinery and construction. Steam fitter held incompetent as to cause of explosion of engine (Wolff Shirt Co. v. Frankenthal, 96 Mo. App. 307) and millwright as to cause of breaking of pulley—Duntley v. Inman, 42 Or. 334, 70 Pac. 529, 59 L. R. A. 785. Mechanical engineer competent as to strain of a certain structure on its supports—Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co., 97 Me. 381. A carpenter and builder is not competent as to the tensile strength of wire cables—Id. It is not error to hold an experienced contractor or builder incompetent as to strength of a certain board—Thompson v. Worcester (Mass.) 68 N. E. 833. A civil engineer may testify as to the slope which should be given to the sides of a railroad cut, though he has never been engaged in railroad construction—Scott v. Astoria R. Co. (Or.) 72 Pac. 594.

Operation of trains and street cars. Railroad fireman competent as to proper management of engine—Texas Southern R. Co. v. Hart (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 833. An experienced railroad employe is competent as to the time within which a train can be stopped—Buckman v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 270. A motorman without experience in the use of reverse power is not competent as to the distance within which a car could be stopped by that means—Bliss v. United Traction Co., 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 235. Witness who is familiar with steam railroads may testify to general effect of curves on speed of an electric car—Atlanta R. & Power Co. v. Monk (Ga.) 45 S. E. 494.

Disease and insanity. Women who claim to have had miscarriages are not competent to testify from a comparison of symptoms that plaintiff had so suffered—Gray v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 175 N. Y. 448. One who had been a physician for 21 years and had treated many cases of insanity is competent as to sanity of testator—White v. McPherson (Mass.) 67 N. E. 643.

Values. One who has dealt in cattle for many years is competent—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Landers, 135 Ala. 504. As is one who has been for twenty years engaged in farming—Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Deperade (Okl.) 71 Pac. 629. One who has owned hunting dogs all his life is competent as to the value of such dogs—American Exp. Co. v. Bradford (Miss.) 33 So. 843. One who has learned the market value of cattle from daily market reports which he habitually consults is competent—St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Barnes (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1041. One familiar with the horse market and who has spent several days investigating the market price at a certain place is competent though he never sold any horses there—Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Patton, 203 Ill. 376. An inspector of ten years' experience with a certain commodity is competent in respect to deterioration from delay and dampness—San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Josey (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 606. One who knows the value of the article in question is not incompetent because he does not know the value of similar articles of smaller size—Ruckman v. Imbler Lumber Co., 42 Or. 231, 70 Pac. 811.

Physician competent as to value of services of nurse—Beringer v. Dubuque St. R. Co., 118 Iowa, 135.

Familiarity with the property in question and with the general selling price of property in the vicinity is necessary to constitute one an expert as to land values—Friday v.

(§ 9) D. Basis of expert testimony and examination of experts.—The opinion of an expert may be based on his personal knowledge of the facts,[61] on the evidence of other witnesses heard by the expert,[62] on real evidence or other exhibits before the court,[63] or on a hypothetical question;[64] but where a hypothetical question is asked,

Pennsylvania R. Co., 204 Pa. 405. One who lived in the vicinity, bought and sold much land therein, and operated stone quarries, is competent as to value of land containing a quarry—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. One familiar with property, its location, soil, etc., is competent though he has had no expert training and though there have been no previous sales of land in the vicinity—Board of Levee Com'rs v. Nelms (Miss.) 34 So. 149. One who was a member of a firm and of a corporation formed from it and another firm is competent as to the value of the good will of both firms—White, Corbin & Co. v. Jones, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 373. Though a witness to land value states that he knows the market price from what he paid for it, his testimony will not be excluded unless it appears that he based his opinion on this alone—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Charwaine (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 401. Witness familiar with land for many years and who knows from sales the value of land in the neighborhood is competent as to value—Smith v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 205 Pa. 645; Leiby v. Clear Spring Water Co., 205 Pa. 634. But one who knew nothing of property before the running of a railroad line thereon is incompetent as to the damage—Shimer v. Easton R. Co., 205 Pa. 648. And witnesses who are familiar with land but do not know its market value are incompetent as to depreciation by construction of railroad—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Douglass (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 449. One having no knowledge of property in the vicinity is not competent—Lynch v. Troxell (Pa.) 56 Atl. 413. One who has occupied premises is competent to testify to the value of the use and occupation thereof—Ish v. Marsh (Neb.) 96 N. W. 58.

Handwriting. An expert as to handwriting is not rendered incompetent by the fact that he did not become familiar with the writing of the person in question till after the writing in dispute was written—Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425. An agent who has received letters from his principal is competent as to the principal's handwriting—Monumental Bronze Co. v. Doty (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 234. An expert in handwriting may testify that a forged signature was written by a certain person other than the purported signer, but mere familiarity with the writing of such person does not qualify—Neall v. United States (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 699. An instructor in penmanship of thirty years' experience, who has for many years made special study of the comparison of handwritings, is competent—Heffernan v. O'Neill (Neb.) 96 N. W. 244.

Foreign law. A lawyer familiar with the civil law generally, but not with the laws of Mexico other than that the civil law is the basis of its jurisprudence, is not competent as to the Mexican law on a particular question—Banco De Sonora v. Bankers' Mut. Casualty Co. (Iowa) 95 N. W. 232.

60. Physician assisting at operation competent as to probable duration of injuries—San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 226.

61. It may be based on information derived by physician from examination of patient—Skelton v. St. Paul City R. Co., 88 Minn. 192; Oliver v. Columbia, etc., R. Co., 65 S. C. 1; State v. Johnson (S. C.) 44 S. E. 58. But the court may require the facts to be stated—O'Malley v. Commonwealth, 182 Mass. 196. And an opinion on undisclosed facts within the witness' knowledge is incompetent—Raub v. Carpenter, 187 U. S. 159, 47 Law Ed. 119; Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co. (Iowa) 96 N. W. 718. The fact that the knowledge of the expert as to a machine was acquired after the time is immaterial if there was no change in its condition—Huber Mfg. Co. v. Hunter (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 484. An opinion as to the best method of doing certain work based in part on the practice of the trade is inadmissible—Independent School Dist. v. Swearngin (Iowa) 94 N. W. 206.

62. Rafferty v. Nawn, 182 Mass. 503. It has been held improper as usurping the province of the jury to ask an expert his opinion based on all the evidence in the case as to the sanity of defendant in a criminal case—Porter v. State, 135 Ala. 51.

63. If a witness can state the nature and cause of a defect from the article itself its history need not be shown—White Mfg. Co. v. De La Vergne Refrigerating Mach. Co., 84 N. Y. Supp. 192. An article somewhat similar to that concerning which an expert is asked to testify may be shown to him in connection with a hypothetical question—Murphy v. Marston Coal Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 342.

64. A hypothetical question must not assume any fact not shown by the evidence (Bennett v. City of Marion [Iowa] 93 N. W. 558; Nichols v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 25 Utah, 240, 70 Pac. 996; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Baumgarten [Tex. Civ. App.] 72 S. W. 78; Hicks v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 71 S. W. 322; Smart v. Kansas City, 91 Mo. App. 586) and where the evidence is wholly insufficient to establish the facts assumed it must be excluded (Berry v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 96 Md. 45) and it is not enough that such facts appear in a pleading (Bennett v. City of Marion [Iowa] 93 N. W. 558) but any fact which may reasonably be inferred from the evidence may be assumed (Economy Light & Power Co. v. Sheridan, 200 Ill. 439; Turney v. Baker [Mo. App.] 77 S. W. 479) it not being necessary that the evidence in respect thereto be uncontradicted—Chicago v. Early, 104 Ill. App. 398; Orient Ins. Co. v. Leonard (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 808.

Hypothetical questions need not cover all the evidence and may embrace any state of facts which it tends to prove (Kirsher v. Kirsher [Iowa] 94 N. W. 846; Williams v. State [Fla.] 34 So. 279) and may be based on any state of facts which the evidence justifies and does not assume facts beyond the evidence though it does not assume every fact in the case—Woodward v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 66; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wallace, 104 Ill. App. 55; Id., 202 Ill. 129; Herpolsheimer v. Funke (Neb.) 95 N. W. 688. All the undisputed facts must be the witness must base his answer wholly on the facts assumed therein.[65] Comparison of handwritings is of course based on the standards introduced.[66] The expert must give his judgment, not his conjectures,[67] in a direct manner,[68] but may state the reasons for his opinion and the names of standard authors supporting it.[69] Cross-examination may be directed both to the competency of the expert and to the conclusion to which he testifies.[70]

§ 10. Real or demonstrative evidence.—Demonstrative evidence, being the best of which the matter is susceptible, is usually admissible whenever available. It includes articles connected with the issue,[71] exhibition of physical injuries sued for,[72] comparison of handwritings by the jury.[73] Whether experiments in court shall be allowed rests largely in the discretion of the trial judge.[74] embodied in the question, but the adverse party's theory of disputed facts need not be—Schulz v. Modisett (Neb.) 96 N. W. 338. The facts necessary to the formation of an opinion must be included—Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Butler, 135 Ala. 388. Question as to quantity of earth a miner could move in a day, not stating season or character of soil, is properly excluded—Walton v. Wild Goose Min. Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 209. Question as to interior construction in respect to danger of fire held to present sufficient facts to elicit an intelligent opinion—Friedman Co. v. Atlas Assur. Co. (Mich.) 94 N. W. 757. Evidence held insufficient to show injury to spine assumed in question—Maynard v. Oregon R. Co. (Or.) 72 Pac. 590. Hypothetical question to elicit opinion as to whether overitis resulted from fall held proper—O'Neill v. Kansas City (Mo.) 77 S. W. 64.

65. Hicks v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. (Tex.) 72 S. W. 835.

66. Notice of intended production of standards and formal evidence of their genuineness is unnecessary where the other party had full opportunity to investigate them—Storey v. First Nat. Bank, 24 Ky. L. R. 1799, 72 S. W. 318. The word "paid" written on one instrument is not admissible as a standard of comparison with the same word written on another instrument—Sheppard v. Love (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 67. Expert may compare disputed signature with signature of party to pleas in the case—Tower v. Whip (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 179. Though the statute allows a disputed signature to be compared not only with that of the purported signer but with that of any person accused of the forgery, it cannot be so compared without evidence connecting the person with it—Cook v. Strother (Mo. App.) 75 S. W. 175.

67. A statement that witness thought there must have been about a certain number of bushels raised on a field by the looks of the crop is not a mere guess but an expression of judgment—La Rue v. St. Anthony & D. Elevator Co. (S. D.) 95 N. W. 292.

68. Statements that plaintiff is a mental and physical wreck; is in a condition in which there is no enjoyment of life, etc., are inadmissible—Sterling v. Detroit (Mich.) 95 N. W. 986.

69. Scott v. Astoria R. Co. (Or.) 72 Pac. 594.

70. Facts not in evidence may be assumed for the purpose of testing the expert's knowledge—Bennett v. City of Marion (Iowa) 93 N. W. 558; Houston Biscuit Co. v. Dial, 135 Ala. 168. Where a physician testified that an injured woman could not walk he may be asked if she could not hobble with frequent rests—Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Ellard, 135 Ala. 433. A witness who testifies to having prospected certain land may be asked how he spent his time when so doing—Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287. A physician may be asked whether many men do not have similar ailments and do considerable work—McGovern v. Smith, 75 Vt. 104. A handwriting expert may be asked whether on a former trial he did not examine spurious signatures and pronounce them genuine—Hoag v. Wright, 174 N. Y. 36. An expert as to land value may be required to state the neighboring property with which he is familiar and the source of his information—Friday v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 204 Pa. 405. It is incompetent to ask an expert whether he subscribes to a passage read from a medical book—Pahl v. Troy City R. Co., 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 308. An expert may be asked as to the amount of his compensation—Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294. An expert may be asked whether one who has testified to a contrary opinion is not regarded as an eminent authority—State v. Greenleaf, 71 N. H. 606. A question as to whether other physicians might not come to a different conclusion is improper—Root v. Boston El. R. Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 365. Redirect. Witness who has been cross-examined as to whether certain injuries were feigned may be asked on redirect whether when examining the party he thought the injuries were feigned—Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Fortier (Ill.) 68 N. E. 948.

71. Clothing worn by plaintiff at time of accident—Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bauman, 104 Ill. App. 600. Part of a machine belt by the breaking of which plaintiff was injured—Boucher v. Robeson Mills, 182 Mass. 500. Piece of flange of car wheel—Roberts v. Port Blakely Mill Co., 30 Wash. 25, 70 Pac. 111. Bar and rope used by convict in escape, though same are not in exact condition as when used—People v. Flanigan, 174 N. Y. 356.

72. Orscheln v. Scott, 90 Mo. App. 352. Examination of injury by physician in the presence of the jury may be refused—Aspy v. Botkins (Ind.) 66 N. E. 462.

73. As to comparison by experts see § 9, ante. The authenticity of the writings offered as standards must be proved—Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294.

74. Clark v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 478.

§ 11. Quantity required and probative effect.[75]—The party sustaining the burden of proof in a civil action must establish his cause of action or defense by a preponderance of the evidence,[76] even though the cause of action is based on acts constituting a crime,[77] though on some issues greater certainty of proof is required,[78] and where the testimony is in equilibrium, the party having the burden of proof must fail.[79] Positive evidence is usually, but not always, of greater weight than negative.[80] The weight of testimony is ordinarily for the jury, even where there is no contradiction,[81] but uncontradicted testimony of an unimpeached witness free from all suspicious circumstances is said to be conclusive,[82] and a party is necessarily bound by uncontradicted evidence introduced by himself,[83] and by his own testimony.[84]

An expert opinion is sometimes held to make a prima facie case,[85] but cannot prevail against positive testimony,[86] and opinions based on a hypothetical case are of less value than those based on observation of the facts.[87]

75. The credibility of witnesses and the means by which they are impeached or sustained will be treated in Witnesses.

76. Preponderance of evidence means that the evidence on one side appears more credible than that on the other—McKee v. Verdin, 96 Mo. App. 268. Requirement of a "fair" or "clear" preponderance states the rule too strongly—Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Rosch, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 491; Western Mattress Co. v. Potter (Neb.) 95 N. W. 841. Such proof as satisfies the jury is not required—Collins v. Clark (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 97; Ball v. Marquis (Iowa) 92 N. W. 691. Circumstantial evidence need not exclude every other reasonable conclusion—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wood (Kan.) 72 Pac. 215. But the inference must be clear and direct—Jolivette v. Young's Estate, 103 Ill. App. 394. And where it was attempted to establish by circumstances that plaintiff's intestate stopped, looked, and listened before crossing a railroad track it was said that the inference must be the only one which can fairly and reasonably be drawn from the facts—O'Reilly v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 492.

77. Preponderance is sufficient in civil action for assault—Clasen v. Pruhs (Neb.) 95 N. W. 640; Kurz v. Doerr, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 507.

78. To contract a written receipt (Rouss v. Goldgraber [Neb.] 91 N. W. 712); establish that a deed absolute on its face was intended as a mortgage (In re Holmes, 79 App. Div. [N. Y.] 264; Little v. Braun, 11 N. D. 410; Holladay v. Willis' [Va.] 43 S. E. 616); or to warrant reformation of a deed (Forester v. Van Auken [N. D.] 96 N. W. 301) the evidence must be clear and convincing. And evidence of grantor is insufficient to impeach certificate of acknowledgment—Adams v. Smith (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 1043.

79. Ahern v. Melvin, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 462. But the mere fact that witnesses directly contradict each other does not necessarily produce a balance—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Lieserowitz, 197 Ill. 607. And mere number of witnesses does not determine the preponderance of the evidence—Campbell v. Delaware & A. Tel. Co. (N. J. Sup.) 56 Atl. 303. Testimony of husband and wife in their own interest will not prevail against a single disinterested witness—Greditzer v. Continental Ins. Co., 91 Mo. App. 534.

80. Evidence that signals were not given, by one who must have heard them if they had been, is of as much weight as evidence that they were given—Stanley v. Cedar Rapids R. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 489; Selensky v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. (Iowa) 94 N. W. 272.

81. Blount v. Medbery (S. D.) 94 N. W. 428. Circumstances in evidence tending to discredit testimony—Phoenix Life Ins. Co. v. Opper, 75 Conn. 295. Appearance of witness or inherent improbability of story may discredit uncontradicted testimony—United States v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442. Testimony of child of tender years—Shannon v. Swanson, 104 Ill. App. 465. Similarity of testimony of two witnesses not necessarily suspicious where they live together and must have frequently discussed the transaction—Fatjo v. Seidel, 109 La. 699. Though evidence is contradictory and improbable the jury may consider it—Shortsleeve v. Stebbins, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 588; Hallett v. Fish, 120 Fed. 986.

82. Testimony of party—Second Nat. Bank v. Weston, 172 N. Y. 250.

83. Haas v. Zimmermann, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 304; Stadermann v. Heins, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 563. One who proves an admission is not concluded by the accompanying explanation—Detroit Electric Light & Power Co. v. Applebaum (Mich.) 94 N. W. 12.

84. Daugherty v. Lady (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 837. A party is concluded by the admissions in his testimony to the full extent of the strongest admission made by him—Cogan v. Cass Ave., etc., R. Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 738.

85. As to significance of technical term—Barber Asphalt Co. v. Howcott, 109 La. 692. Not sufficient as to whether title to land was defective—Hess v. Eggers, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 726. Opinion that 16 men were necessary to lift a 600 pound rail disregarded as absurd—Haviland v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 172 Mo. 106.

86. Testimony of witnesses to execution of instrument sustained as against testimony of experts that signature was forgery—Card v. Moore, 173 N. Y. 598. That loans to insured were on account of premiums paid—Smith v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 173 Mo. 329. Opinion that dislocation could not result from certain accident cannot overcome evidence of physician that dislocation existed—Highfill v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 93 Mo. App.

Admissions are not conclusive,[88] but are usually held to be prima facie evidence,[89] but their weight varies with the circumstances under which they were made.[90]

The sufficiency of evidence is generally questioned on a request for an instruction,[91] or for a special finding or on objection or exception to findings,[92] or on motions to dismiss or nonsuit,[93] or to direct a verdict or on a demurrer to the evidence,[94] or on motion for new trial or other revisory proceeding.[95] Facts which evidence or which in accurate speech constitute or form a predicate for a given right, cause of action, defense or duty, are assigned to such titles as treat of the particular matter.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

§ 1. General rules of examination.—The form of questions and methods of examination are largely within the discretion of the trial court.[1] The questions should be definite[2] and contain a single interrogatory,[3] though questions asking for answers in a narrative form are sometimes allowed.[4]

Models, diagrams, and tools may be used to illustrate evidence.[5]

219. Opinions that "green stick fracture" could not occur to man 69 years old cannot overcome testimony that such fracture was present—Gorman v. St. Louis Transit Co., 96 Mo. App. 602.

87. Evidence of family physician and attorney more valuable as to capacity than experts testifying from hypothetical questions—In re Kane's Estate (Pa.) 55 Atl. 917. Evidence of physicians to testamentary capacity is entitled to more weight than that of laymen if they have had opportunity for personal observation of the testator; otherwise it is not—Ward v. Brown (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 488. Expert opinion on hypothetical case of little value where facts are disputed—In re Richmond's Estate (Pa.) 55 Atl. 970.

88. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. De Walt (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 774. Approval of account rendered—White City State Bank v. St. Joseph Stock Yards Bank, 90 Mo. App. 395.

89. Joralman v. McPhee (Colo.) 71 Pac. 419; Burk v. Hill (Ga.) 45 S. E. 732. The insertion of a claim against himself in an inventory by an executor is not of itself sufficient to sustain a plea of set off in an action by him against the estate—Siebert v. Steinmeyer, 204 Pa. 419.

90. Their intrinsic weakness is enhanced by death of declarant and lapse of time—Kinney v. Murray, 170 Mo. 674; Reed v. Morgan (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 381.

91. See Instructions.

92. See Verdicts and Findings.

93. Dismissal and Nonsuit.

94. Directing Verdict and Demurrer to Evidence.

95. New Trial, etc.; Appeal and Review; Certiorari.

1. Burson v. Bogart (Colo. App.) 72 Pac. 605; Mathis v. State (Fla.) 34 So. 287. It is within the discretion of the court to deny a request for a consultation with a party's witness called to the stand before an examination, though he had not had an opportunity to do so before—Hudson v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 854. Harmless error. Error in allowing a witness to be asked an improper question is harmless if the answer contains no incompetent testimony—Younglove v. Knox (Fla.) 33 So. 427. And see Harmless Error for a full discussion.

2. Whether a foreman had given any orders on any other day than the day of the accident, as to the position the men should occupy on a hand car, is too general and indefinite—Western R. Co. v. Arnett (Ala.) 34 So. 997. A witness may not be asked in regard to defendant's complaints as to his physical condition unless there is reference to some particular time that will not render the statement open to the objection of a self serving declaration—State v. Bailey, 31 Wash. 89, 71 Pac. 715.

3. A question whether a witness had not made a certain statement and knew it to have been a fact, is objectionable as involving two interrogatories—State v. Burrell, 27 Mont. 282, 70 Pac. 982.

4. Where questions could easily be framed which would have brought out the same testimony, a party will not be prejudiced by the court allowing testimony to be given in a narrative form—Goldsmith v. Newhouse (Colo. App.) 72 Pac. 809.

5. A model may be used by a witness for the purposes of illustration though not introduced in evidence—Geist v. Rapp (Pa.) 55 Atl. 1063. But such exhibits should not be considered by the jury as evidence—State v. Wilson (Kan.) 71 Pac. 849. Where in an action for injuries caused by a defective weld in a piece of machinery, another sim-

The court may, in furtherance of justice, question a witness,[6] but the practice of extended examination by the court is not approved.[7]

The question should not assume facts,[8] nor call for conclusions.[9]

Repetition of questions fully answered should not be allowed.[10]

Leading questions are questions which suggest to the witness the answer desired.[11] Their allowance by the trial court is discretionary.[12]

ilar piece of machinery on which was an old weld, was put in evidence without objection, the latter could be used in framing hypothetical questions propounded to experts—Murphy v. Marston Coal Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 342. It is not good practice to allow witness to indicate the position of the parties by reference to objects in the court room, without evidence in the record as to the distance to aid the appellate court in reviewing the case—Rachmel v. Clark, 205 Pa. 314.

6. South Omaha v. Fennell (Neb.) 94 N. W. 632. While the practice by a court of injecting a series of questions on the examination of each witness, may easily grow into an abuse calling for reversal in a proper case, this will not be the result where the questions were asked without objection or exception of any kind and in an apparent impartial desire to elicit the truth—Metcalfe v. Gordon, 86 App. Div. (N. Y.) 368.

7. Pardridge v. Cutler, 104 Ill. App. 89.

8. The question is not open to the objection that it assumes facts where its purpose is merely to identify an occurrence—Traveler's Ins. Co. v. Hunter (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 798. Asking a witness whether on a former trial he did not testify to a certain fact, is not objectionable for assuming the fact of a former trial—Gilliland v. Dunn & Co., 136 Ala. 327. The question what, if anything, witness had to do with a transaction is not objectionable as assuming that she had something to do with it—Coldren v. Le Gore, 118 Iowa, 212. A question why, if witness was such a good friend of deceased he did not tell him of threats against him is improper as assuming a friendship and that the witness had not told deceased—Stewart v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 818.

9. Sheldon v. Bigelow, 118 Iowa, 586; Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Jackson, 136 Ala. 279. Admissibility of conclusions of witness are discussed in Evidence, § 9A.

10. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Gilbert, 24 Ohio Circ. R. 181; State v. King (Iowa) 96 N. W. 712; Hutchins v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 97 Mo. App. 548. Where question has been fully answered on direct examination there is no error in excluding it on cross examination—Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Baumann, 203 Ill. 295; Edwards v. State (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1038; Carlson v. Holm (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1125. Where a witness testifies that his recollection is not aided by newspaper articles relating to the matter in controversy, the court may refuse to allow him to be again examined as to the matter—U. P. Steam Baking Co. v. Omaha St. R. Co. (Neb.) 94 N. W. 533. A witness may not be cross examined as to matters fully covered by his previous cross examination in the case—Hoover v. State (Ind.) 68 N. E. 591.

11. "On what part of the running board when you first saw him?" a party was standing (San Antonio Traction Co. v. Bryant [Tex Civ. App.] 70 S. W. 1015); whether a locomotive was properly handled when passing a certain point (Texas So. R. Co. v. Hart [Tex. Civ. App.] 73 S. W. 833); whether witness had ever witnessed objects floating down a stream and if so, whether the course taken was toward a certain shore (State v. Johnson [S. C.] 44 S. E. 58); whether witness has ever received anything by way of payment (Rothstein v. Siegel, 102 Ill. App. 600); whether it was or was not dangerous to do a certain thing (Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Puente [Tex. Civ. App.] 70 S. W. 362); whether or not witness' foot was twisted or wrenched at the time of the injury (Indiana R. Co. v. Maurer [Ind.] 66 N. E. 156) have been held not to be leading. A question reciting fact already testified to by a witness is not leading—Oliver v. Columbia, etc., R. Co., 65 S. C. 1. Where it is not clear from the answer whether a witness intended to place his damages at one amount or another, the question whether or not his actual damage was one of the amounts, was not objectionable as leading—Harzburg & Co. v. Southern R. Co., 65 S. C. 539. In an action against a city where the issue is a defect in a grating on a sidewalk, a question—"Those grates were mighty light to start with,"—is leading—Lentz v. Dallas (Tex.) 72 S. W. 59. Asking a prosecutrix whether she had told any one what defendant had done to her should be excluded as leading in a prosecution for rape—Oakley v. State, 135 Ala. 29.

12. Anthony v. State (Fla.) 32 So. 818; Rio Grande Western R. Co. v. Utah Nursery Co., 25 Utah, 187, 70 Pac. 859; Campion v. Lattimer (Neb.) 97 N. W. 290; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Kinnare, 203 Ill. 388; Colvin v. McCormick Cotton Oil Co., 66 S. C. 61; Rainey v. Potter (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 651; Edwards v. State (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1038; Carlson v. Holm (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1125. Particularly in examination of prosecutrix in prosecution for seduction—State v. Burns (Iowa) 94 N. W. 238. A reversal will not necessarily result because an attorney persists in asking leading and suggestive questions which are immediately excluded as the matter is discretionary with the trial court—Sullivan v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. (Iowa) 93 N. W. 367. Leading questions allowable by auditor where ends of justice may be subserved thereby—Rusk v. Hill (Ga.) 45 S. E. 42. Where both the court and the attorneys are uncertain as to the meaning of statements made by witness, the court may allow the attorney to propound a leading question to get a clearer understanding of facts and this particularly where the other party was not prejudiced thereby—Rio Grande Western R. Co. v. Utah Nursery Co., 25 Utah, 187, 70 Pac. 859. The witness may be asked leading questions as to an undisputed matter—San Antonio Traction Co. v. Crawford (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 306. Questions asked for the purpose of contradicting former testimony may be leading—Jensen v. Steiber (Neb.) 93 N. W. 697. The master in an undefended divorce case may examine a witness by leading questions if he seems inclined to evade disclosure, but this does not allow the counsel of the party to also ask leading questions—Seeley v. Seeley, 64 N. J. Eq. 1. A witness disappointing the party calling him, may be asked questions tending to test his memory by recalling previous statements and drawing out explanations of apparent inconsistency, and tending to show the circumstances under which the witness was called—Creighton v. Modern Woodmen, 90 Mo. App. 378. Where the answers are relevant and admissible, the error in allowing leading questions on direct examination will not work a reversal—Rome v. Stewart, 116 Ga. 738.

Code provisions allowing examination of a party as if under cross-examination extend only to adverse parties.[13]

Hypothetical questions used in the examination of expert witnesses,[14] must be based on facts proved,[15] or which the evidence tends to prove,[16] and it is not necessary that they should contain all the facts in evidence.[17] It is no objection that the recital is partisan.[18]

Refreshing memory.—A witness may refresh his memory by reference to memoranda in the preparation of which he participated and the accuracy of which he has personal knowledge of,[19] though he has no independent personal recollection.[20]

13. Non answering partners in an action against several as partners are not adverse parties—Moore v. May (Wis.) 94 N. W. 45. And may not be invoked in a suit in equity in a federal court—Calivada Colonization Co. v. Hays, 119 Fed. 202.

14. Not necessary where facts are within knowledge of witness—Rafferty v. Nawn, 182 Mass. 503. See Evidence, § 9D for a discussion of the basis of expert testimony.

15. Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Butler, 135 Ala. 388; Kirsher v. Kirsher (Iowa) 94 N. W. 846; Maynard v. Oregon R. Co. (Or.) 72 Pac. 590. Error in a hypothetical question which embraces facts not proven, is cured by an instruction that the value of an opinion on a hypothetical question depends on facts proven which are embraced in the question—Thomas v. Dabblemont (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 463.

16. The hypothetical question asked an expert need only be based on what the evidence tends to prove and need not cover all of that—Kirsher v. Kirsher (Iowa) 94 N. W. 846.

17. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wallace, 104 Ill. App. 55; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Baumgarten (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 78. A hypothetical question which assumes and fairly states the existence of any state of facts which the evidence directly and reasonably tends to establish or justify, and which does not assume facts beyond the range of the evidence and the legal presumptions in the case, may be properly asked and answered though it does not assume every fact in the case—Woodward v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 66. A hypothetical question is not to be rejected because it does not include all the facts in evidence, where other elements are omitted; the other party deeming such elements material and desiring the opinion of a witness, in view of such elements may impeach him in the further questioning on cross-examination—Herpolsheimer v. Funke (Neb.) 95 N. W. 688. A hypothetical question reciting the methods used to remodel and improve the entire interior of a building and asking if the witness thought the construction perfectly safe, is not objectionable as not stating facts sufficient to enable witness to give an intelligent opinion—Friedman Co. v. Atlas Assur. Co. (Mich.) 94 N. W. 757.

18. Murphy v. Marston Coal Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 342.

19. Titus v. Gunn (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 735; Lenney v. Finley (Ga.) 45 S. E. 317; Taft v. Little, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 74. A physician may refer to a memorandum made at the time of visiting patient, to refresh his memory as to condition of patient at time of visit—Bailey v. Warner (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 395. Memoranda kept in connection with a cash register are sufficient where witness testifies as to their correctness—Gross v. Scheel (Neb.) 93 N. W. 418. A depositor may refresh his recollection as to the denominations of money deposited, by reference to the original deposit slip written by him at the time he made deposit—State v. Stevens (S. D.) 92 N. W. 420. Books of account. A witness may refresh his recollection by reference to entries made by him in due course of business of his firm, by reference to the original entries—Hodgkins v. Smith, 104 Ill. App. 420. To book entries where a witness saw goods sold and charged all entries of the same—Sonneborn & Co. v. Southern R., 65 S. C. 502. Where a book is not the book of original entries and has not been offered in evidence and is shown to have been made up by a clerk from memoranda furnished by others, the clerk cannot testify as to sales by refreshing his memory from the bill book—Owen v. Rothermel, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 561. A witness testifying to particular items of stock of goods and their value, may refresh his memory by reference to an inventory of the goods made by himself—Gross v. Scheel (Neb.) 93 N. W. 418. Though a physician could not state the number of calls he made, from memory, or even from memory refreshed by the books, yet if the books enabled him to say on oath that the fact was as the books stated, the evidence was admissible—Mayberry v. Holbrook, 182 Mass. 463. On the question of the residence of a person at a certain place on a certain date, a merchant may be permitted to testify that he sold the party a bill of goods on that day and may refresh his memory as to the day by reference to his books of account and enumerate the articles sold—Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294. Books being

The memorandum must be made at the time of the transaction or so directly thereafter as to be a part of the same,[21] but need not necessarily be admissible as evidence,[22] nor is it necessary that the memorandum should have been made by the witness provided he is able to testify from his own recollection after an inspection.[23] A witness may testify from a memory refreshed by a transcript of former testimony.[24] A copy of the memorandum may not be used unless the absence of the original is satisfactorily accounted for.[25]

The memorandum used by witness is admissible not as original evidence but as an aid to the jury.[26]

Interpreters.—Witnesses may be examined through interpreters.[27]

Responsiveness.—The answer of the witness should be responsive to the question, and where the witness fails in this respect the answer should be stricken.[28] The trial court has large discretion in the matter.[29] in evidence a public examiner testifying as to solvency may refresh his memory by reference to memoranda made at the time of examination. Held in prosecution for receiving a deposit after insolvency—State v. Stevens (S. D.) 92 N. W. 420.

20. So long as he knows that the memorandum was made in accordance with the truth—Loose v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 526. A landlord of a hotel after his examination of a register may testify that a certain person was a guest at his hotel on certain days though independently of the register he had no recollection of the party having been in the hotel on such days—State v. Douette, 31 Wash. 6, 71 Pac. 556. But see Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704.

21. Sibley Warehouse Co. v. Durand, 102 Ill. App. 406; Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704; Johnson v. Spaulding (Neb.) 95 N. W. 808; Welch v. Greene (R. I.) 54 Atl. 54.

22. One testifying as to goods furnished an estate may refer to the bill rendered therefor in order to refresh his memory, though the bill itself would have been inadmissible on account of not having been made by the witness and not being an original entry—Ellis v. Baird (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 960. As where a witness testifying to dying declarations made a memorandum at the time but failed to have same signed—Fuqua v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 2204, 73 S. W. 782; Foley v. State (Wyo.) 72 Pac. 627.

23. Telegrams—Commonwealth v. Burton (Mass.) 67 N. E. 419. In Pennsylvania a witness may refresh his memory from a written notice signed by him in his own handwriting though the notice was written by a clerk at his order—Athens Car & Coach Co. v. Elsbree, 19 Pa. Super. Ct. 618.

24. Connell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 75 S. W. 512. Under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 2047, provision allowing a witness to testify from anything written by himself or under his direction when he testifies as to the correctness of the writing, though retaining no recollection of the fact, the testimony of a witness to facts appearing in the testimony on a previous trial is admissible, the witness stating that if the record represented him as testifying as appeared, the testimony was true and that his memory was better at that time, and tried to tell the truth and did so, so far as he knew, but that the reading of the record did not refresh his recollection so that he had any present memory of the facts to which he had formerly testified—People v. McFarlane, 138 Cal. 481, 71 Pac. 568, 72 Pac. 48. A court reporter's evidence is admissible where he swears from his notes to statements of the witness though he has no recollection independent of his notes—Miles v. Walker (Neb.) 92 N. W. 1014.

25. Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704. A witness may refresh his memory from a copy of the original memorandum which had been made by him or under his direction at the time the event occurred—Welch v. Greene (R. I.) 54 Atl. 54.

26. Alabama & V. R. Co. v. Sol Fried Co. (Miss.) 33 So. 74; Gross v. Scheel (Neb.) 93 N. W. 418. A cash register memorandum may be introduced as detailed statement of items where the witness testifies to its correctness—Gross v. Scheel (Neb.) 93 N. W. 418. Books or papers used by a witness to refresh his memory do not become primary evidence unless the opposing party makes them so by cross examination as to the entries—McKeen v. Providence County Sav. Bank (R. I.) 54 Atl. 49. Where a witness testifies fully to a fact and his memory is perfect, and his testimony is not impeached on cross examination, memorandum prepared by him will not be received—Zwangizer v. Newman, 83 N. Y. Supp. 1071. The admission of the entire memorandum may not be required. Where a member of the grand jury who acted as secretary, when called on to impeach certain witnesses, refreshed his memory from stenographic notes taken by him of proceedings taken before the grand jury, it was not error to refuse to allow all such notes to be read to the jury, counsel not having asked to see the notes and cross examine upon them—People v. Salsbury (Mich.) 96 N. W. 936. It being admitted that an absent witness would swear to a certain fact does not authorize the admission of books with which he could have refreshed his memory—McKeen v. Providence County Sav. Bank (R. I.) 54 Atl. 49.

27. It is within the discretion of the trial judge to appoint an interpreter for a witness claiming inability to talk English (Code Civ. Proc. § 1884)—People v. Morine (Cal.) 72 Pac. 166; Brzozowski v. National Box Co., 104 Ill. App. 338. A case will not be reversed because a witness testified in a foreign tongue where it is not claimed that his testimony was not correctly interpreted—Commonwealth v. Greason, 204 Pa. 64.

§ 2. Cross-examination.[30] Limitation to scope of direct examination.—As a general rule a party has no right to cross-examine a witness without leave of court as to any facts or circumstances not connected with matters testified to on his direct examination,[31] and where this is done the witness becomes the witness of the cross-examiner and he is bound by the evidence adduced.[32] Where a portion of a conversation is testified to on direct, the cross-examiner may ask for the remainder,[33] and where a part of a conversation is called out by cross-examination, the opposite party may call for the entire conversation.[34] A subscribing witness called to testify as to the execution of a will may be cross-examined on the whole case.[35]

Limitation to issues.—Subject to many exceptions, principally as to testing memory or attacking credibility, the witness should not be cross-examined as to matters irrelevant to the issues,[36] and may not be impeached for answers to such 28. Golibart v. Sullivan, 30 Ind. App. 428; Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Jackson, 136 Ala. 279; Lisker v. O'Rourke (Mont.) 72 Pac. 416; Union Life Ins. Co. v. Jameson (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 199; State v. King (Iowa) 96 N. W. 712.

29. Neifeld v. State, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 246; Carle v. People, 200 Ill. 494. An answer that the witness had been a married man for 21 years is not open to the objection that it was not responsive to the question "You have been a railroad man for 30 years and have not been affected with a venereal disease?"—International, etc., R. Co. v. Collins (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 814. Where the witness' answer tended to support a contention as to the excessive speed of street cars it was held competent though not strictly responsive—Reagan v. Manchester St. R. (N. H.) 56 Atl. 314.

30. The statutory right to examine an adverse party as on cross examination is discussed in § 1, ante.

31. McKnight v. United States (C. C. A.) 122 Fed. 926; Rudd v. Dewey (Iowa) 96 N. W. 973; Goldstein v. Morgan (Iowa) 96 N. W. 897; Mock v. Garson, 84 App. Div. (N. Y.) 65; Peaden v. State (Fla.) 35 So. 204; Black v. Webber (Neb.) 96 N. W. 606; Sheldon v. Bigelow, 118 Iowa, 586; State v. Fullerton, 90 Mo. App. 411; Sauntry v. United States (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 132; Commonwealth v. Scouton, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 503; Jordan v. Seattle, 30 Wash. 298, 70 Pac. 743; Blauvelt v. Delaware, etc., R. Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 857; Glenn v. Philadelphia, etc., Traction Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 860; Rogers v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 18. A witness testifying merely to the construction of a bridge and a displacement discovered after an injury to it, may not be asked on cross examination as to the effect of the impact of a boat against the bridge —Hopper v. Empire City Subway Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 637. One who testifies merely as to the length of time a piece of machinery has been in use, may not on cross examination be asked as to injuries caused to others by the machinery in question—Duntley v. Inman, 42 Or. 334, 70 Pac. 529. In an action against a railway company for a crossing accident, an engineer testifying that he made a report at the time, may not on cross examination be asked as to negligence at other times and that on one such occasion he made no report—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Meeks (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 329. Where in an action on notes it is shown that they had been pledged by the payee and indorsed to plaintiff, and the defendant on direct examination of plaintiff had inquired into the circumstances under which the notes were taken, it is proper on cross examination to allow plaintiff to show witness the note for which the notes sued on were pledged as security and admit the same in evidence—Black v. First Nat. Bank, 96 Md. 399. Under a procedure allowing an accused to make a supplemental statement to the jury, he may be cross examined as to a matter to which his attention is directed by his counsel—Walker v. State, 116 Ga. 537. Defensive matter may not be drawn from the witness (Freehill v. Hueni, 103 Ill. App. 118; State v. Bailey, 31 Wash. 89, 71 Pac. 715) and if it is the party calling the witness may discredit him as to such matter—Hubner v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 290.

32. Deutschmann v. Third Ave. R. Co., 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 413; Goldstein v. Morgan (Iowa) 96 N. W. 897; Sheldon v. Bigelow, 118 Iowa, 586; Barton v. Bruley (Wis.) 96 N. W. 815.

33. People v. Rich (Mich.) 94 N. W. 375; Glenn v. Philadelphia, etc., Traction Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 860. Where the witness who drew a will, testified that a certain inventory contained a true list of testator's property, he may on cross examination be allowed to state that the testator, the day the will was executed, told him that he had agreed to sell certain stock contained in the inventory and would deposit the proceeds in a certain bank, and that the witness had the bank book showing that deposit, as the conversation testified to enabled the witness to identify the sum deposited as the proceeds of the sale—Berry v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 96 Md. 45.

34. Hudson v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 854.

35. O'Connell v. Dow, 182 Mass. 541.

36. Cabell v. McKinney (Ind. App.) 68 N. E. 601; State v. King (Iowa) 96 N. W. 712; Hoover v. State (Ind.) 68 N. E. 591; Edwards v. State (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1038; Carlson v. Holm (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1125. On cross examination of a witness as to injuries received in a street car accident and testifying on cross examination as to injuries to himself by the company at another time, he may not be asked as to whether he presented a claim —Daum v. North Jersey St. R. Co. (N. J. Sup.) 54 Atl. 221. On a prosecution for an assault, the prosecuting witness having testified that he had some difficulty with defendant over questions.[37] The test whether a matter inquired about on cross-examination is collateral is, whether the cross-examining party would be entitled to prove it as a part of his case tending to establish his plea.[38]

Examination going to credibility of witness.—A large discretion is left with the trial court as to the extent of cross-examination to test the credibility and accuracy of witnesses,[39] and much latitude is allowed in the examination of parties testifying in their own behalf,[40] persons accused of crime,[41] and prosecuting some mining claims, it was proper to exclude a question on cross examination as to whether he had made re-locations as it might have misled the jury into seeking for an excuse to justify the assault—State v. McCann (Or.) 72 Pac. 137. In Texas, one suing for personal injuries may not be asked on cross examination whether he refused to submit to a physical examination—Austin, etc., R. Co. v. Cluck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 569; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Brooks (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 571. A retired partner testifying as to the relations of a new partner of the firm with the old firm and the new, may not on cross examination be asked questions tending to show false statements of witness to other partners with reference to financial condition of the firm on his retirement, that matter being a collateral and immaterial issue—Sheldon v. Bigelow, 118 Iowa, 586. In an action for damages caused by an overflow, a witness may not be cross examined as to the manner in which he irrigated his land, or whether he promised his tenant to protect him from water by a levee—Crossen v. Grandy, 42 Or. 282, 70 Pac. 906. In a prosecution for keeping a disorderly house the court properly refused to permit cross examination of a state's witness as to whether in his opinion the fact that certain persons of low character who frequented the place were relatives of defendant, would excuse him in receiving them—State v. Babcock (R. I.) 55 Atl. 685. On cross examination of a surgeon testifying as to his conclusion in regard to a disease, the court properly excluded a question as to whether other surgeons might not arrive at a different conclusion—Root v. Boston El. R. Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 365. Where the witness testifies to an immaterial matter, he may not be further questioned as to what he said in regard to the same immaterial matter—Hutchins v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 97 Mo. App. 548.

37. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 104 Ill. App. 37; Lankaster v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 388; George Burke Co. v. Fowler (Neb.) 93 N. W. 760; State v. Pucca (Del.) 55 Atl. 831; Trussell v. Western Pennsylvania Gas Co., 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 423.

38. George Burke Co. v. Fowler (Neb.) 93 N. W. 760.

39. Jennings v. Rooney (Mass.) 67 N. E. 665; Commonwealth v. Foster, 182 Mass. 276; Root v. Boston El. R. Co. (Mass.) 67 N. E. 365; Gatzmeyer v. Peterson (Neb.) 94 N. W. 974; Glenn v. Philadelphia, etc., Traction Co. (Pa.) 55 Atl. 860; Guertin v. Hudson, 71 N. H. 505.

40. Bassett v. Glass, 65 Kan. 500, 70 Pac. 336. Where the plaintiff testifies to the removal of a corner stone he may be cross-examined to show acquiescence—Grogan v. Leike, 22 Pa. Super. Ct. 59. In an action by an officer of a corporation for services performed outside of his regular duties, where he testifies as to the services performed outside his duties, he may be asked as to the duties of his position; and where he testifies that he had nothing to do with the preparation of certain reports, he may be asked who did prepare the report in question and other similar reports; and where he testifies as to certain departmental services, cross examination intended to show that the subject was generally before the officers of the company and one in which they took part and rendered services, is proper—Stout v. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co., 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 129. In an action for the balance of an account, defendant may cross examine plaintiff as to certain of the items sued on and a refusal of the court to allow such cross examination is erroneous—Smith v. Castle, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 638. Where in an action for the value of goods, plaintiff in his own behalf testified as to their value, defendant may have plaintiff identify certain of the articles shown him on cross-examination and ask him what value he placed on such articles—Lemon v. McBride (Mich.) 96 N. W. 453. Where defendant alleged an alteration of a chattel mortgage by inserting after the description the words "in her store house" she may on cross examination be asked if she did not intend to mortgage goods in her store house—Cabell v. McKinney (Ind. App.) 68 N. E. 601. On cross examination of plaintiff in an action for assault she may be questioned as to her character as a lewd woman—Osborne v. Seligman, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 811. In an action on a note against which an alteration is averred where plaintiff alleges transfer of the note for value before maturity, the defendant on cross examination of plaintiff may dispute the testimony, that the payee had assigned before maturity, and show why he had not received payment and dispute that the note had not been in his possession as testified by him—Reese v. Bell, 138 Cal. XIX, 71 Pac. 87. A party denying his signature to a note may be cross examined as to his ability to identify his own handwriting—Brown v. Woodward, 75 Conn. 254.

41. Accused testifying in his own behalf may be cross examined as to former criminal delinquencies—Williams v. United States (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 871; State v. Callian, 109 La. 346; State v. Blitz, 171 Mo. 530; Powell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 218; Jones v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 71 S. W. 962; McDonald v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 72 S. W. 383. The party on trial for keeping a disorderly house, may on cross examination as affecting his credibility, be asked if he has not previously been convicted of the same offense—State v. Babcock (R. I.) 55 Atl. 685. The accused on his cross examination may be asked as to his denial of the killing, as to his reasons therefor and also as to his reasons for concealing the offense—Rogers v. State (Tex. Cr. App.)

witnesses.[42] The witness may be asked as to previous contradictory statements,[43] and inconsistencies between his present and previous testimony.[44] Bias or interest of the witness may be inquired into,[45] and a witness may be properly asked 71 S. W. 18. Where accused had not offered evidence of good character, the court should not permit the state on cross examination, to ask him as to a previous arrest and then strike out that part of his affirmative answer in which he stated he was not guilty of the offense for which he had been arrested—State v. Nussenholtz (Conn.) 55 Atl. 589. Though one accused may not be compelled to give evidence against himself yet where he is examined in chief and has testified to his life, occupation and habits from boyhood he may be examined with reference thereto for the purpose of affecting his credibility, the state being bound by his answers—State v. Melvern (Wash.) 72 Pac. 489. Where the code provides that a statement shall not be under oath, an accused sworn on such examination may not on cross examination on the trial be asked whether his testimony on direct examination was not contradictory of such statement—State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014.

42. Where a prosecutrix testifies to complaints to different persons and they testify in corroboration, defendant has a right to cross examine as to the details of the complaints—State v. McCoy, 109 La. 682. An abuse of this discretion will work a reversal —O'Connell v. Pennsylvania Co. (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 989.

43. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Brooks, 135 Ala. 401; People v. Adams, 137 Cal. 580, 70 Pac. 662; People v. Payne (Mich.) 91 N. W. 739; State v. Broadbent, 27 Mont. 342, 71 Pac. 1. Where a witness is asked as to whether he has not made inconsistent statements, it is not necessary that the times, places and persons present should be stated, these facts only being required where it is sought to impeach the witness—State v. Burrell, 27 Mont. 282, 70 Pac. 982. One testifying that nothing was said as to the price to be paid for an article may be asked if it was not agreed that the price should be the same as that paid at a certain market—Smith v. Castle, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 638.

44. Gilliland v. R. G. Dun & Co., 136 Ala. 327. As preliminary to impeachment a witness may be asked whether he has not on a previous trial made a statement contradictory to his present testimony—Palmer v. Burleigh (Neb.) 93 N. W. 1049. Limiting examination of witness as to testimony of witness in former trial—McCoy v. Munro, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 435. In an action for the death of a child in a street railroad accident, where it is claimed by plaintiff that the motorman was not looking ahead and this prevented his stopping the car in time, and the defendant claimed that the motorman was looking ahead and the child ran in front of the car, plaintiff on cross examination of the motor man may inquire particularly as to his methods of operating the car at particular places and as to his testimony on a former trial and whether or not the present version differed from his previous testimony—Willsen v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 98. Plaintiff may read to a witness for defendant his testimony on a former trial as reported by the stenographer—Southern R. Co. v. Shelton, 136 Ala. 191. In an action for conversion, the court properly refused to allow defendant to introduce plaintiff's answers to interrogatories on plaintiff's cross-examination before defendant's side of the case had been reached, the court having stated that plaintiff might be asked on cross-examination for the purpose of contradiction, whether certain responses had been made to the interrogatories —Wilson v. Hoffman, 123 Fed. 984. Where it is desired to impeach a witness by contradictory statements his attention must be called to the conversation on which it is proposed to contradict him and also to the time, place and person to whom he is supposed to have made such statements—Gordon v. Funkhouser (Va.) 42 S. E. 677; Dunafon v. Barber (Neb.) 92 N. W. 198. Does not obtain as to written statements—Hanlon v. Ehrich, 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 359. See, also, Witnesses as to foundation for impeachment.

45. Rarden v. Cunningham, 136 Ala. 263; Houston Biscuit Co. v. Dial, 135 Ala. 168; Styles v. Village of Decatur (Mich.) 91 N. W. 622; State v. Broadbent, 27 Mont. 342, 71 Pac. 1; New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Johnson (Neb.) 93 N. W. 778; Hedlun v. Holy Terror Min. Co. (S. D.) 92 N. W. 31. A witness may be examined as to collateral matters where such examination goes to the question of the witness' interest or bias—Kizer v. Walden, 198 Ill. 274. A physician testifying in an action against a street railroad for personal injuries, admitting that he had been sent by the company to the injured person, but denying that he was its physician, may be asked on cross examination whether he had not frequently visited and examined persons hurt in accidents on the company's line as its representative—Guckavan v. Lehigh Traction Co., 203 Pa. 521. A defendant in ejectment claiming to have taken possession and made valuable improvements relying on an oral contract of sale and plaintiff's assurance that he would make deed on obtaining patent, may be asked on cross examination whether he had not contributed a fund for the purpose of breaking the patent under which plaintiff held—Cobban v. Hecklen, 27 Mont. 245, 70 Pac. 805. Where a witness in a prosecution for malicious injury testifies that defendant had nothing to do with the commission of the offense and that the witness had no interest in shielding defendant, he may on cross-examination be asked why he did not make any disclosure of the evidence—People v. Boren, 139 Cal. 210, 72 Pac. 899. A real estate dealer testifying as to the amount he had received from a city for services in making investigations in special assessment proceedings, may not on cross examination, be asked as to how his income from his real estate business compared with his income from the city—Gordon v. Chicago, 201 Ill. 623. On cross examination of a physician participating in the procuring of a release he may be asked whether he had not witnessed other releases of the same character for plaintiff—Dorsett v. Clement-Ross Mfg. Co., 131 N. C. 254. Where the accuracy of a map used in a pros-as to the reasons for living under an assumed name,[46] as to violation of a rule against talking about a case,[47] as to the binding effect of his oath as a witness.[48] The witness may be asked whether he is as positive as to every other fact testified to by him as he is to the particular fact asked about.[49] Cross-examination beyond reasonable limits to test credibility or show bias will not work reversal where the witness gave no testimony pertinent to any material issue in the case.[50]

As to probability of testimony.—A large latitude is allowed the cross-examiner in testing the probability of the direct evidence,[51] and the witness may be asked as to knowledge and conduct inconsistent therewith,[52] and these rules have been applied to witnesses to value of property,[53] witnesses as to the operation of trains,[54] and of experts generally.[55]

Examination as to documents.—Where a party produces his books of original entry, he may be cross-examined as to the entries without any subpoena duces tecum.[56] A cross-examiner may not require surrender to him of letters and notes ecution for murder was disputed, it is proper on cross examination of the witness who made the map to allow defendant to show the directions given by the county attorney for its preparation—State v. Tighe, 27 Mont. 327, 71 Pac. 3.

46. A woman having testified for a party may be properly asked as to her relation with the party, and as to her reasons for living under an assumed name, the cross-examination tending to impeach credibility—McCarty v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 934.

47. Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Ellard, 135 Ala. 433.

48. In this case a Jew was asked as to the binding effect of an oath taken by him with his hat off—Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Mason (Ala.) 34 So. 207.

49. Central of Ga. R. Co. v. Edmondson, 135 Ala. 336. The rejection by a court of a question on cross examination, whether the witness' recollection by reason of his condition was the same on all answers made by him as on a certain answer just made, is within the court's discretion—Zwangizer v. Newman, 83 N. Y. Supp. 1071.

50. State v. King, 88 Minn. 175.

51. Shannon v. Castner, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 294. On cross examination of a witness testifying as to the habits of an insured as to sobriety, may be asked on cross-examination as to complaints made by insured to the witness of pains in his head and chest—Union Life Ins. Co. v. Jameson (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 199. One testifying to an act and that it was witnessed by others may be asked to name some of the parties—Bigcraft v. People, 30 Colo. 298, 70 Pac. 417.

52. Welch v. Greene (R. I.) 54 Atl. 54. On cross examination of plaintiff suing for personal injuries he may be asked whether a few months earlier he had met with a serious accident without saying anything to any one about it—Brace v. St. Paul City R. Co., 87 Minn. 292. One testifying that an elevator shaft was not dangerous may be asked on cross examination whether other persons had not fallen down the shaft—Reid v. Linck (Pa.) 55 Atl. 849. A foreman of a section gang testifying that he had given orders that none of the men should stand in front of the lever to pull it, may be asked on cross examination as to whether he made any objection to the way in which the men were operating the car or gave any orders as to the position they should occupy on the occasion of the accident—Western R. v. Arnett (Ala.) 34 So. 997.

53. Witnesses asked to fix the value of property in condemnation proceedings, may be asked on cross examination as to the methods by which they arrived at their conclusions, what elements of damage they considered and the reasons for their opinions—Seattle & M. R. Co. v. Roeder, 30 Wash. 244, 70 Pac. 498. Where party in an action for damages caused by the falling of a building, testifies in chief as to the value of different items of property in question by reference to invoice made by himself and wife with view of selling an interest in the same, he may be asked on cross examination as to the fair market value of the property at the time of the injury—Payne v. Moore (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 1005.

54. An operative testifying as to his manner of starting a car, may be asked on cross examination how he usually started his car from a station—Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Ellard, 135 Ala. 433. Where a brakeman has testified as to manner in which train was stopped and that it was stopped without any unusual jerk, he may be asked on cross examination as to the difference between a long and short train with reference to stopping it, and whether if there is air on two-thirds of the cars, he would have to put on as many brakes as if he had air on only a part of it—Southern R. Co. v. Crowder, 135 Ala. 417.

55. Belding v. Archer, 131 N. C. 287; McGovern v. Smith, 75 Vt. 104; Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Ellard, 135 Ala. 433. And authorities holding their views—State v. Greenleaf, 71 N. H. 606. On cross examination of a physician testifying as to numerous diseases affecting decedent, he may be properly asked on cross examination if he treated decedent for all of them—Ellis v. Baird (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 960. Where a physician as a witness in a will contest, testifies on direct that testator a year before the execution of the will sustained a fall which shocked his nervous system for a day or two, he may on cross examination be asked whether the shock in any way impaired his mind—Berry v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 96 Md. 45.

used by the examiner.[57] A witness denying his signature, on being asked if certain signatures other than that on the instrument in question were his, is not entitled to see the instrument to which they are attached.[58]

Character witnesses may be asked as to specific acts of the person as to whom they testify,[59] the cross-examiner being bound by the answers.[60]

§ 3. Redirect examination.—The redirect examination is properly limited to matter drawn from the witness on cross-examination, and the examiner may ask questions allowing an explanation of the sense and meaning of expressions used on cross-examination.[61] This does not allow the witness to put his own interpretation on his testimony.[62] Where a witness on cross-examination has been asked as to a former statement made by him, the party calling him may re-examine him as to the same matter and in rebuttal introduce evidence to support him.[63]

§ 4. Recalling of witness for further examination.—It is within the discretion of the trial court to allow witness to be recalled for further examination at the instance of either party.[64] It is properly allowed where its purpose is to answer matter introduced by the opposing party as part of his case.[65]

56. Elliott v. Moreland (N. J. Law) 54 Atl. 224.

57. Where letters written by the payee to the maker of a note, were produced by the state in a prosecution of the payee for forgery and defendant had the full benefit thereof, the court properly refused to compel a delivery of the letters to defendant's counsel during his cross examination of the maker of the note—State v. Donovan (Vt.) 55 Atl. 611. Where the prosecuting attorney had possession of notes of testimony taken before the grand jury from which he questioned defendant's witness, it was not error to refuse to allow defendant's counsel to examine these notes—People v. Salsbury (Mich.) 96 N. W. 936. Where a party, for the purpose of showing mental incapacity, introduces a paper on which testator had made incorrect calculations he may on cross examination be required to produce another paper on which the calculations were correct—Berry v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 96 Md. 45. The opposite party may examine memorandum used by witness to refresh his memory—Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704; Schwickert v. Levin, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 373, 12 Ann. Cas. 96.

58. Brown v. Woodward, 75 Conn. 254.

59. On cross examination of a character witness testifying that he had heard that the witness sought to be impeached had been indicted he may be asked as to the court in which the indictment was found—Bohlman v. State, 135 Ala. 45. Where defendants offered evidence as to their reputation for honesty and integrity, the witnesses on cross examination may be asked whether they did not know that the defendants were not generally reputed to be gamblers—State v. Thornhill (Mo.) 74 S. W. 832. Where on cross examination of a witness as to the character of deceased, he testifies as to some difficulties deceased had been involved in at one time, he may not be asked whether he had been prosecuted therefor—Bearden v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 17.

60. Barnes v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 1143, 70 S. W. 827.

61. Merrell v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 979; Commonwealth v. Carter (Mass.) 66 N. E. 716. A claim agent in the prosecution of a party for false pretences in obtaining settlement of a claim, on cross examination testifying to a warning that he had received from some unknown person, that the injuries claimed were received prior to the accident for which the railroad company was sued may on re-direct examination be permitted to state that he did not believe the warning, as bearing on the question as to whether he relied on defendant's statement in making settlement—Commonwealth v. Burton (Mass.) 67 N. E. 419. Where on cross examination of one seeking to recover for the obstruction of an elevated road, inquiry is made as to the effect on other property, the party on redirect examination may fully inquire with reference thereto but he cannot give evidence as to additional property not embraced in the examination—Robinson v. New York El. R. Co., 175 N. Y. 219. On a criminal prosecution, a prosecutrix asked whether the act had not been committed by others and who answered yes, may be asked on redirect whether the statement so made was true—Smith v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 74 S. W. 556. A witness testifying in a prosecution of a distillery company for creation of a nuisance that the distillery was operated by a company other than defendant may explain that he did not know but what it had been changed to defendant—Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Co. v. Commonwealth, 24 Ky. L. R. 2154, 73 S. W. 746. In a prosecution for keeping a disorderly house allowing state's counsel on redirect examination to ask whether it was since the last winter that the witness went there, is not objectionable as allowing the state to cross examine its own witness and this where the witness was uncertain as to the date of his visit—State v. Babcock (R. I.) 55 Atl. 685.

62. Golibart v. Sullivan, 30 Ind. App. 428.

63. Martin's Adm'r v. Richmond, etc., R. Co. (Va.) 44 S. E. 695.

64. Dixon v. State, 116 Ga. 186. The court in its discretion may allow a witness who has been examined, to take the stand a second time after conference with his counsel and correct his original testimony—Central of Ga. R. Co. v. Duffey, 116 Ga. 346.

§ 5. Privilege of witness.—The privilege of a witness to refuse to answer questions tending to criminate him is secured by the fifth amendment to the federal constitution and the constitutions of many of the states,[66] and may not be abrogated by statute.[67] The privilege is secured by the common law.[68] A constitutional provision that one may not be compelled to be a witness against himself is available to all witnesses and is not limited to parties.[69] The privilege may be violated by orders requiring the production of books,[70] or by laws compelling a person to plead or deny upon oath a charge involving a criminal offense.[71] It is not violated by asking accused to stand up in court for identification by the prosecuting witness,[72] nor by the use of his shoes for comparison with tracks made by the person committing the crime,[73] nor by merely requiring a witness to be sworn before the grand jury.[74] One is compelled to be a witness against himself by a prosecution under an indictment founded on his own involuntary testimony.[75] The extent to which the privilege may be invoked rests solely with the witness,[76] and the privilege being a personal one may not be claimed by another.[77] A witness called upon to testify to self-criminating evidence may, where his privilege is wrongfully refused, decline, and if imprisoned for contempt, may obtain redress by habeas corpus.[78] If he yields, he may save his exceptions and obtain a reversal of the judgment.[79]

65. Where defendant in action for personal injury introduced testimony to show that plaintiff's physical condition was as bad before as since the injury, plaintiff may be recalled as to her condition before the accident—Birmingham R. & Elec. Co. v. Ellard, 135 Ala. 433.

66. The provision in the federal constitution is not extended to the states by the fourteenth amendment—People v. Wyatt, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 456. There is no such prohibition in the constitution of New Jersey—State v. Zdanowicz (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 743.

67. The constitutional provision that no one can be compelled in a criminal case to be a witness against himself, justifies a witness' examination before a magistrate on information charging another with keeping a gambling house, to refuse to give evidence tending to incriminate himself, notwithstanding the Penal Code provides that no person shall be excused from giving testimony upon any investigation or proceeding for violation of the chapter, because of the tendency of the evidence to convict him of a crime, but such testimony cannot be received against him upon any criminal investigation or proceeding, as a witness cannot be compelled to even disclose circumstances or sources of evidence which would aid his prosecution, and any statutory protection short of absolute immunity is insufficient—People v. O'Brien, 81 App. Div. (N. Y.) 51.

68. State v. Zdanowicz (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 743.

69. A Code provision that the neglect or refusal of a defendant to testify shall not create a presumption against him, applies only to defendants and is not the same as the constitutional provision against compelling a witness to testify against himself, which provision includes not only defendants but all witnesses (Code Cr. Proc. N. Y. § 393)—United States v. Kimball, 117 Fed. 156.

70. Bankrupt will not be required to produce his books where he deposes that the furnishing of such books and the filing of schedules pursuant to usual order would tend to incriminate him and compel him to be a witness against himself—In re Kanter, 117 Fed. 356.

71. The New York Liquor Tax Law which allows a forfeiture of a certificate unless the holder files a verified answer to the petition in a proceeding for its revocation and denies every alleged violation compels the certificate holder if guilty to confess to his guilt either by his oath or by silence (Liquor Tax Law, § 28, subd. 2)—In re Cullinan, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 445.

72. Coles v. State, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 313.

73. People v. Van Wormer, 175 N. Y. 188; Thornton v. State (Wis.) 93 N. W. 1107.

74. United States v. Kimball, 117 Fed. 156.

75. State v. Gardner, 88 Minn. 130. An affidavit on a motion to quash an indictment because found on evidence that defendant was compelled to be questioned before the grand jury, need not set forth the evidence given by defendant in detail, it being sufficient if it fairly alleges the fact of compulsion—Id. Evidence given in a grand jury investigation by persons subsequently indicted is not by finding indictment on such evidence used elsewhere, in violation of a statute declaring that any evidence voluntarily given by a witness, cannot be used against him in any criminal prosecution (Rev. St. U. S. § 860)—United States v. Kimball, 117 Fed. 156.

76. A witness prosecuted for robbery and concealment of the stolen property, though testifying to the robbery, may under his privilege refuse to testify as to the concealment—People v. Loomis, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 243.

77. May not be invoked by accused as against testimony of accomplice—Barr v. People, 30 Colo. 522, 71 Pac. 392.

78, 79. State v. Faulkner (Mo.) 75 S. W. 116.

A witness may refuse to answer a question collateral to the issue, the answer to which will degrade him.[80] The privilege is personal and may not be invoked by another.[81] The court in its discretion may allow or refuse an answer where the witness does not refuse to answer.[82]

A witness may refuse to answer questions tending to subject him to penalty or forfeiture.[83]

Acts securing one from prosecution for disclosures made thereunder are constitutional.[84] The provision of the bankruptcy act that no testimony given by the bankrupt shall be used against him in any criminal proceeding does not prevent the introduction of incriminating circumstances obtained from sources other than the bankrupt, though knowledge of such sources was obtained from the bankrupt's testimony.[85] The proper method for one claiming the protection of the statute exempting him from prosecution for an offense of which he gave testimony in another case is by motion to quash the indictment.[86]

Waiver of privilege.—A witness may waive his right to refuse to give self-criminating evidence, as the privilege is a personal privilege, which he will be held to have waived, if he voluntarily answers without objection.[87] Where a defendant becomes a witness for himself, he waives any constitutional or common-law protection against being compelled to be a witness against himself, and may be cross-examined by the prosecutor.[88]

EXCHANGE OF PROPERTY.

Validity.—Contracts for exchange of property must be mutual.[89] They must be written if involving land.[90]

Transition of title need not be simultaneous to each party.[91]

Performance.—A party cannot complain of nonperformance if he is in default,[92] or cannot make clear title,[93] or has assented to the delay.[94]

80. The asking of the question is not error—State v. Hill, 52 W. Va. 296. On prosecution for assault with dangerous weapon, the complainant's witness may not be asked on cross examination as to whether he had not conducted a disorderly resort, and whether he was not in the same business at the time of the trial. An affirmative answer would have tended to degrade him, and the fact that he was engaged in such business was without relevancy on the question of his guilt or innocence—Meehan v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 173.

81, 82. State v. Hill, 52 W. Va. 296.

83. The postal department under the laws of the United States may prohibit officials from furnishing information regarding registered mail on penalty of removal—Nye v. Daniels, 75 Vt. 81.

84. The Illinois anti-trust act exempts corporate officers from criminal prosecution for anything truthfully disclosed by affidavit as to compliance with the law—People v. Butler St. Foundry & Iron Co., 201 Ill. 236.

85. State v. Burrell, 27 Mont. 282, 70 Pac. 982.

86. Sandwich v. State (Ala.) 34 So. 620.

87. Rev. St. U. S. § 860—United States v. Kimball, 117 Fed. 156; State v. Faulkner (Mo.) 75 S. W. 116; Litton v. Commonwealth (Va.) 44 S. E. 923. Where the bankrupt on examination before a referee made no objections to testimony on the ground that his answers might incriminate him, he waived his privilege and admissions could be used on cross examination in a criminal proceeding against him—State v. Burrell, 27 Mont. 282, 70 Pac. 982.

88. State v. Zdanowicz (N. J. Err. & App.) 55 Atl. 743; People v. Tice, 131 N. Y. 651; People v. Dupounce (Mich.) 94 N. W. 388. See case for list of authorities supporting text.

89. A contract for exchange from which one party reserves the right to withdraw cannot be specifically enforced—Tryce v. Dittus, 199 Ill. 189.

90. Beckmann v. Mepham, 97 Mo. App. 161. Exchange of possession under a parol contract of exchange of land passes title as against subsequent transferees—Baldwin v. Sherwood (Ga.) 45 S. E. 216. Appropriation by cotenant of exclusive use of land jointly held and relinquishment to other cotenant of land held by first solely—Laufer v. Powell (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 549.

91. Pratt v. Wickham (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1059.

92. Agreement to execute deed as soon as plaintiff should execute deeds individually and as guardian—Ellis v. Light (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 551.

93. Representation that there was no incumbrance proved untrue—Godfrey v. Rosenthal (S. D.) 97 N. W. 365.

94. Delay pending proceedings to remove cloud from title—Godfrey v. Rosenthal (S. D.) 97 N. W. 365.

Rescission is warranted where the exchange is secured by fraud or misrepresentation.[95] Rescission must be prompt, but time is not alone to be considered.[96] An accounting will be taken to place the parties in statu quo.[97]

Effect.—Title passes on turning of the property over to the other with such intent.[98] Insurance for improvements thereon, which without knowledge of either party were destroyed by fire before the exchange was consummated passes by the exchange.[99]

Vendor's liens may be implied on exchange of land.[100]

EXCHANGES AND BOARDS OF TRADE.

Discipline and expulsion of members.—Methods provided for discipline of members are supreme unless violative of the law of the exchange or of the land, or void for unreasonableness. The member may have a remedy in equity, if he has none other, if the corporation violates its laws in his trial to the injury of his property rights.[1] A judgment of the governing committee as to disciplinary matters will not be reviewed.[2] A decision expelling a member is presumed to be justified,[3] and will not be reviewed on the merits.[4] The trial of members cannot be enjoined on the ground that the committee will commit jurisdictional error,[5] or on the ground that the charges are not sufficiently specific to comply with the rules of the corporation.[6] Where there is no by-law to the contrary, charges against a member may be preferred by a member of the board of triers.[7]

By-laws may warrant trial for dealings outside the jurisdiction of the body, or with strangers.[8] On an investigation of the conduct of a member, the exchange

95. Exchange of land for mortgage falsely represented to be first lien—Nisley v. Spencer (Neb.) 95 N. W. 798. Fraud in agent acting for opposite party in effecting exchange—Brown v. Holden (Iowa) 94 N. W. 482. Concealment and misrepresentation as to title—Campbell v. Spears (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1126. Where one party to an exchange assumes payment of a mortgage barred by limitations of which fact he has knowledge and the other party has not, the second party may rescind if had he had such knowledge he would not have exchanged. He is entitled to relief also on the ground of mistake (Civ. Code, §§ 1568, 1572, 1577)—Hartwig v. Clark, 138 Cal. 668, 72 Pac. 149. On misrepresentation as to title the possession of the party desiring to rescind need not have been disturbed to allow such action—Campbell v. Spears (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1126.

On rescission for fraud of a trade of a stock of goods for land by retaking the goods, the retakers are liable only in nominal damages for conversion though they retake a day or two before they complete the rescission by tendering back the deed for the land—Wilcox v. Morten (Mich.) 92 N. W. 777.

96. Depends on all the circumstances—Beardsley v. Clem, 137 Cal. 328, 70 Pac. 175. Delay of three months not laches—Nisley v. Spencer (Neb.) 95 N. W. 798. Delay of year after discovery of fraud not laches—Campbell v. Spears (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1126. Bringing an action is a sufficient demand to prevent laches being urged against a second action for rescission brought immediately on dismissal of the first—Hartwig v. Clark, 138 Cal. 668, 72 Pac. 149.

97. Rents, taxes, improvements, disbursements, etc.,—Campbell v. Spears (Iowa) 94 N W. 1126.

98. Instruction as to effect of alteration of bull exchanged held to embody this rule—Pratt v. Wickham (Mich.) 94 N. W. 1059.

99. Beardsley v. Clem, 137 Cal. 328, 70 Pac. 175.

100. To the extent title to the land conveyed as consideration fails—Johnson v. Burks (Mo. App.) 77 S. W. 133.

1. Wood v. Chamber of Commerce (Wis.) 96 N. W. 835. Notes. Control of exchanges by the courts, see note to 68 Am. St. Rep. 860, 862. Review of decisions of exchange, see note 49 L. R. A. 358, 361, 364.

2. Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373; Alton Grain Co. v. Norton, 105 Ill. App. 385.

3. All the evidence on which it rested need not be introduced in defense to an injunction to compel recognition of expelled member. Plaintiff is confined to the issue of sufficiency of evidence of fraud authorizing expulsion, and the decision need be based only on such evidence as to justify honest minds in the conclusion—Young v. Eames, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 229.

4. Weukirch v. Keppler (N. Y.) 66 N. E. 1112.

5. Where by laws gave power to board of directors to censure, suspend, or expel members, equity will not determine whether the facts alleged constitute an offense against the corporation—Wood v. Chamber of Commerce (Wis.) 96 N. W. 835.

6, 7. Wood v. Chamber of Commerce (Wis.) 96 N. W. 835.

8. By laws of Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce held to authorize such trial—is not limited to fraud in a single transaction which is set out in the specification as furnishing evidence of what is the real charge.[9] The same transaction may be both a fictitious sale and a fraud, either authorizing expulsion of a member.[10]

Where an expulsion is based on fraud of the member, the authority, if questioned, to expel for fraud on proof of fictitious sales, must be specifically challenged.[11]

Arbitrary expulsion must be malicious to impose liability for injury to business reputation, nor can dues for the current year be recovered as against the members.[12]

The right of membership is regarded as property in a limited sense,[13] though held not subject to transfer tax as personalty.[14] It has been held subject to the owner's debts.[15]

Board contracts.—Liability of members on board contracts is controlled by board rules,[16] but equity will relieve against rules compelling submission of disputes involving property rights to a committee of the board, where power to make such rules is not conferred by charter.[17]

Market quotations.—Quotations will not be protected in equity where based on gambling operations.[18]

Market quotations cannot be copied from the tape of a gathering company by a rival and sold to other persons,[19] and a company which pays a board of trade for the privilege of disseminating its quotations has a property right which will be protected by injunction.[20] A telegraph company furnishing quotations may reasonably require subscribers to agree not to engage in bucket-shopping.[21]

Wood v. Chamber of Commerce (Wis.) 96 N. W. 835.

9. Expulsion on charge of fraud in fictitious sales—Young v. Eames, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 229.

10. Young v. Eames, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 229.

11. Pleadings held insufficient to raise such issue on injunction to compel recognition of member—Young v. Eames, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 229.

12. Erroneous expulsion of member of coffee exchange without hearing for violation of rules—Lurman v. Jarvie, 82 App. Div. (N. Y.) 37.

13. Seat is taxable in New York though owned by non-resident—In re Glendinning's Estate, 171 N. Y. 684.

14. Laws 1896, § 2, subd. 5, §§ 220, 221—In re Hellman's Estate, 77 App. Div. (N. Y.) 355. It is not taxable in Maryland. Wheat in an unincorporated exchange not transferable except to person selected by governing committee not within Bill of Rights, § 15 or Poe's Supp. Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1900, art. 81, § 2—Baltimore v. Johnston (Md.) 54 Atl. 646.

15. Not "tools of trade" exempted from execution—Leggett v. Waller, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 408. Not exempt in bankruptcy (Bankr. Act 1898, §§ 6, 70, 30 St. 566, c. 541, §§ 6, 70)—Page v. Edmunds, 187 U. S. 596. May be reached in supplementary proceedings—Leggett v. Waller, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 408.

16. Member in refusing to be bound by unratified contract of clerk where rule forbids clerk contracting cannot be held to have violated rules of board—Bartlett v. L. Bartlett & Son Co., 116 Wis. 450.

17. Payment of money under decision of such a committee settling a "corner" enjoined—Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373; Alton Grain Co. v. Norton, 105 Ill. App. 385.

18. So held where proof showed 90 per cent of transactions for future delivery, determining quotations, were closed by payment of differences—Board of Trade of Chicago v. Donovan Commission Co., 121 Fed. 1012; Board of Trade of Chicago v. Kinsey Co., 125 Fed. 72; Christie Grain & Stock Co. v. Board of Trade of Chicago (C. C. A.) 125 Fed. 161 (In opinions below the circuit court held contra, 116 Fed. 944, and also on final hearing, 121 Fed. 608, that a requirement that persons to whom quotations were furnished should not conduct bucket shops was not in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust act, 26 Stat. 209).

19. Reproduction on the tape not regarded as a publication—National Tel. News Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed 294.

20. Taking quotations from wires or offices of patrons restrained—Illinois Commission Co. v. Cleveland Tel. Co. (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 301.

21. Sullivan v. Postal Tel. Cable Co. (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 411.

EXECUTIONS.[22]

§ 1. The right to have execution.—A judgment is essential.[23] A fee bill is the proper process for the collection of costs in civil actions, and an execution may not issue therefor solely.[24] Mandamus takes the place of an execution to enforce judgments against a municipality.[25] A surety on a note may have execution issued first against the maker.[26] A creditor may not have an execution against his own property.[27] A party entitled to an execution under a decree is not deprived of that right by a later decree ratifying an auditor's report by consent of parties that property was insufficient to pay claims and directing distribution among lienors other than complainant.[28]

§ 2. Stay and how procured.—Execution may be stayed by the execution of a supersedeas bond[29] by order of court,[30] by stipulation of the parties.[31] Liability of certain property to execution should be raised by appeal and the court should not stay execution as to such property.[32]

§ 3. Procedure to procure issuance of writ.—The judgment need contain no special direction for issuance of execution.[33] The New York code requires se-

22. Procedure for collection of judgments against receivers, see Receivers. Supplementary proceedings, see Supplementary Proceedings. Execution against the person, see Civil Arrest.

23. Attempt to collect costs in criminal case without judgment therefor—Hendon v. Delvichio (Ala.) 34 So. 830. Chancery decrees are enforced the same as judgments at law in Illinois—Whalen v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 779, providing for execution against personalty to enforce an order, on failure to perform an order requiring clients to pay an attorney his compensation on substitution of other attorneys, the attorney may have an execution—Kane v. Rose, 87 App. Div. (N. Y.) 101.

24. Decker v. St. Louis, etc. R. Co., 92 Mo. App. 50.

25. United States v. Saunders (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 124.

26. Hollimon v. Karger (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 299. And where not satisfied and the surety pays the judgment he may have execution against the maker for the amount paid —Id.

27. Land reverted to seller and he levied on same—Missouri & S. W. Land Co. v. Quinn, 172 Mo. 563.

28. McCarthy v. Holtman, 19 App. D. C. 150.

29. A supersedeas bond is not effectual prior to receipt of countermand by the sheriff (Code Iowa, §§ 4128, 4130, 4131)—Edwards v. Olin (Iowa) 96 N. W. 742. The effect of a stay or supersedeas bond is merely to stay proceedings on the judgment or order appealed from. It does not destroy or vacate the judgment—State v. Superior Court (Wash.) 73 Pac. 779. See as to stay pending appeal Appeal & Review, ante, pp. 124-127 and see generally Stay & Supersedeas.

30. Courts in the exercise of equitable powers may stay execution on a judgment confessed on notes under powers of attorney pending a hearing on motion to quash and may allow judgment to be opened on a proper showing—Pearce v. Miller, 201 Ill. 188.

31. The acceptance of a check to be applied on a judgment on condition that the execution be stayed, otherwise the check to be returned, is a sufficient consideration for the agreement to stay execution—Standard Oil Co. v. Goodman Drug Co. (Neb.) 95 N. W. 667.

32. Lewis v. Linton, 204 Pa. 234.

33. Knotts v. Crossly (Neb.) 95 N. W.

curity of a guardian ad litem before he may proceed by execution to collect a judgment.[34] A substituted writ may issue after sale and delivery of deed where there is a showing of loss of the original.[35]

§ 4. Power and authority to issue or allow issuance of writ.—The right to execution against lands on transcripted judgments is a statutory right and precedent conditions must be complied with.[36] The time within which execution must issue is regulated by statute in the various states.[37] Execution cannot be ordinarily issued to a county other than that where the judgment was rendered or has been docketed.[38]

§ 5. Form and contents of writ.—An execution must conform to the judgment[39] or the order of the court.[40] An execution against one as agent for another is against the former; the words "agent for" being merely descriptio personæ.[41] Failure of the clerk to affix the seal of the court renders the execution voidable only.[42] Trivial errors of form will be disregarded after a long lapse of time.[43] Less formality is required in executions issued from justice courts.[44]

The transfer of an execution under the laws of Georgia must be in writing.[45]

848. The judgment of a district court entered on appeal of a claim against an estate, should not direct the issuance of an execution to satisfy the judgment—Bennett's Estate v. Taylor (Neb.) 96 N. W. 669. A direction in a decree that certain property be sold as upon execution sufficiently authorizes a sale by the sheriff—Cochran v. Cochran (Neb.) 95 N. W. 778.

34. Wileman v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 80 App. Div. (N. Y.) 53.

35. Morrison v. Taylor (Del.) 55 Atl. 335.

36. Execution cannot issue on a transcripted judgment under the laws of Illinois unless the return on the execution from the justice shows that defendant was without personalty sufficient to satisfy the judgment (2 Starr & C. Ann. St. [2d Ed.] p. 2454, c. 79, par. 135)—Merrick v. Carter (Ill.) 68 N. E. 750. A return indorsed "Demand made on" a certain date does not show insufficiency of personalty—Id. Where a judgment has been registered in the office of the probate judge in Alabama the proper method of enforcing the judgment is by execution (Code, 1896, §§ 1920, 1921)—Emrich v. Gilbert Mfg. Co. (Ala.) 35 So. 322. Though a lien against realty is created by filing a transcript of a judgment rendered in another county, an execution sale based on such transcript is void unless authorized by statute. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 5132, governing matter of liens of transcripted judgments confers no such authority—Humphries v. Sorenson (Wash.) 74 Pac. 690. Where the only proof of the issuance of an execution on a judgment, an abstract of which had been filed in another county, was an execution which appeared never to have been delivered to an officer for service, it was insufficient to sustain the lien of the judgment as against land subsequently acquired—Schneider v. Dorsey (Tex.) 74 S. W. 526.

37. In Iowa, at any time within twenty years from the date of the judgment though the lien of the latter has expired—Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. Maxwell (Iowa) 94 N. W. 207. The Kansas Code provision that if execution is not sued out within five years from the date of the judgment it shall become dormant, refers only to general executions against the property of the debtor and not to special executions (Code Kan. § 445)—Watson v. Keystone Iron Works Co. (Kan.) 74 Pac. 269. A provision that a dormant judgment shall cease to be a lien does not apply to a decree for the sale of specific realty (Code Kan. § 445)—Id.

38. In Iowa, a decree in a chattel foreclosure may direct the issuance of two special executions to different counties—King v. Nelson (Iowa) 94 N. W. 1095. A decree of foreclosure of a chattel mortgage directing sale under special execution in an adjoining county, cannot be collaterally attacked—Id. In Texas, the first execution must be issued to the county in which the judgment was rendered, and not to a county in which it was filed to obtain a lien—Schneider v. Dorsey (Tex.) 74 S. W. 526. In North Carolina, a levy on land located in another county may be made without docketing the transcript in the county where the land is located—Evans v. Aldridge (N. C.) 45 S. E. 772.

39. There is no variance between a judgment against a minor and his next friend and an execution against the minor alone, the whole judgment showing that a personal judgment against the next friend was not intended—Day v. Johnson (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 426.

40. Special execution—Norton v. Reardon (Kan.) 72 Pac. 861.

41. Armour Pkg. Co. v. Lovell (Ga.) 44 S. E. 990.

42. Defect cured by a later act, that defects and irregularities in issuance of execution should be disregarded (Mont. Act Mar 2, 1899, p. 145, § 2)—Kipp v. Burton (Mont.) 74 Pac. 85.

43. Incorrect date for docketing judgment raised 45 years after sale—Dixon v. Dixon, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 652.

44. Brann v. Blum (Cal.) 72 Pac. 168. See Justices of the Peace.

45. Civ. Code 1895, § 3682—Jones v. Hightower (Ga.) 45 S. E. 60.

§ 6. Quashal of writ.—A justice has no power to quash an execution,[46] no appeal having been taken, nor can a United States commissioner do so on the ground that his judgment is invalid.[47] An order overruling[48] or granting[49] a motion to quash is appealable.

§ 7. Successive, alias and pluries writs.—An alias writ of special execution is not allowed in Illinois.[50] An alias execution for interest on a judgment will not issue where money levied upon is held by the sheriff under stipulation until the determination of a claim proceeding.[51] Where court has jurisdiction, an officer may not refuse to execute an alias writ for irregularities in prior execution.[52]

§ 8. The levy. A. Leviable property and order of leviability.[53]—The general rule is that any property which may be sold by the owner is, except as affected by exemption laws, subject to levy on execution against him, as growing crops,[54] but not beer in a state of intermediate fermentation.[55]

Under the laws of some of the states, both the equitable and legal interest of the judgment debtor in lands and tenements,[56] may be levied on, but not a contingent remainder,[58] the interest of the grantee of a mortgagee,[59] curtesy initiate,[60] nor the interest acquired by a purchaser of land at a commissioner's sale before a commissioner's deed is executed.[61] Where a trust makes no valid direction for accumulation, the surplus beyond support of the beneficiary may be applied to claims of creditors.[62] Partnership personalty is subject to levy for an individual debt,[63] and corporate lands are subject to execution to the same

46. Brownfield v. Thompson, 96 Mo. App. 340.

47. Time to appeal had expired—Little v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. (Ind. T.) 76 S. W. 283.

48. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 6500—Hewitt v. Root, 31 Wash. 312, 71 Pac. 1021.

49. Little v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. (Ind. T.) 76 S. W. 283. An appeal from an order quashing an execution is not an appeal from a final judgment for the recovery of money within Ballinger's Ann. Codes & Stat. § 6505, providing that an appeal bond shall be double the amount of the judgment involved (State v. Superior Court [Wash.] 73 Pac. 779) and certiorari will lie to review an order fixing the amount thereof—Id.

50. Keeley Brew. Co. v. Carr, 198 Ill. 492.

51. Adams v. National Bank, 30 Wash. 20, 70 Pac. 105.

52. Mollineux v. Mott, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 493. He may not object that prior executions were invalid—State v. Rainey (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 250. An alias execution issued on a justice's judgment is not invalid because prior executions were returned by plaintiff's direction before they had run the statutory time—State v. Stokes (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 254.

53. See Exemptions.

54. Johns v. Kamarad (Neb.) 96 N. W. 118.

55. Goepper v. Phoenix Brew. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 84, 74 S. W. 726.

56. Whiteford v. Hootman, 104 Ill. App. 562. The interest of an heir not subject to homestead right of a mother, is subject to sale under execution against such child—Dinsmoor v. Rowse, 200 Ill. 555. Heirs are owners in common of residue of property remaining for distribution and have a leviable interest therein, though the purchaser will be deferred in receiving any benefit therefrom until it can be ascertained what share of the proceeds he was entitled to—Hardy v. Wallis, 103 Ill. App. 141. A lien reserved in a deed for additional purchase price to be conditionally paid is property subject to execution sale—Fryberger v. Berven, 88 Minn. 311. A mortgagor taking up a mortgage with money furnished by a third person and turning same over as collateral security for a loan has a leviable equity in the mortgaged premises which may be subjected to the payment of his debts subject to the lien of the holder of the mortgage—Bracken v. Milner (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 225. A debtor conveying land to secure a debt without taking back a defeasance has an unenforceable equity in the land which may be sold for whatever a purchaser may choose to give—Eberly v. Shirk (Pa.) 55 Atl. 1071.

Right of a locator who has fully paid for public lands though he has yet no patent (Sayles' Civ. St. art. 4218f)—Martin v. Bryson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 615.

58. Shannon's Code, § 63, allows execution against rights and interests in the land whether legal or equitable, but a remainderman has no interest legal or equitable previous to life tenant's death—Nichols v. Guthrie, 109 Tenn. 535. Code Iowa, §§ 3801, 48, par. 8—Taylor v. Taylor, 118 Iowa, 407.

59. Johnston v. Case, 131 N. C. 491.

60. Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 4339, expressly exempting it—Ball v. Woolfolk (Mo.) 75 S. W. 410.

61. Civ. Code Proc. Ky. §§ 394, 397, 399; Ky. St. §§ 1681, 1709—Goodin v. Wilson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1521, 71 S. W. 866.

62. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 859—Magner v. Crooks, 139 Cal. 640, 73 Pac. 585.

63. Standing timber in the hands of a purchaser under a contract specifying no time for its removal is realty for the purposes of an execution sale. The contention was that it was partnership personalty and accordingly not subject to levy for individual debt—Dils v. Hatcher, 24 Ky. L. R. 826, 69 S. W. 1092. And see Partnership.

extent as if owned by individuals.[64] Personalty in possession of the owner is generally subject to levy,[65] and where the judgment debtor is left in possession, a levy is good against a purchaser[66] or mortgagee,[67] and a creditor may levy on property fraudulently transferred by his debtor.[68] Where a sale of property is not completed, the seller may rescind the sale so as to defeat an execution against the buyer levied meantime.[69] In like manner property conveyed without consideration and with a secret agreement to reconvey is subject to execution against grantee.[70] Money deposited in lieu of an undertaking for appearance belonging to another may not be levied upon for debt of the party bound.[71] Property in custodia legis is not subject to levy.[72] Under the national bankruptcy act, levies within four months before filing the petition are void.[73] An agreement that no levy shall be made on certain property cannot be enforced by injunction prior to an actual levy.[74]

(§ 8) B. Mode of making levy.—A sheriff is not required to notify a debtor of his homestead rights where he has abandoned same.[75] The description of the wrong mortgage in the levy on an equity of redemption vitiates the levy.[76] Fixtures may not be levied on as personalty.[77] A leasehold is an interest in real estate within laws governing manner of levy.[78] Standing timber sold on contract fixing no time for its removal is to be levied on as realty.[79]

(§ 8) C. Duty to make levy. Indemnification of officer.—An officer is liable for failure to make levy,[80] but may require indemnity.[81]

64. Poor v. Chapin, 97 Me. 295.

65. Taylor v. Plunkett (Del.) 56 Atl. 384; Peters v. Cape May, etc., S. S. Co. (N. J. Eq.) 53 Atl. 692. Sufficiency of evidence to create prima facie presumption that purchaser in possession was in control of business at time of levy—Wood v. Matter, 88 Minn. 123. Sufficiency of evidence to show property in judgment debtor—Harmon v. Church (Neb) 93 N. W. 209.

66. The stock of one doing business in his own name is liable for his debts to one without notice though the title to the property in another is of record—Partlow v. Lickliter, 100 Va. 631. Personalty may be levied on as the property of the seller unless it has been delivered to the buyer with reasonable dispatch—Taylor v. Plunkett (Del.) 56 Atl. 384.

67. Where the mortgagee is not in possession and the mortgage is not on file at the date of the levy, a purchaser at the execution sale under a judgment against the mortgagor will take free of the mortgage, though he had notice of its existence prior to the sale—Johns v. Kamarad (Neb.) 96 N. W. 118.

68. Brasie v. Minneapolis Brew. Co., 87 Minn. 456. He may maintain ejectment to recover possession—Id.

69. State v. Jenkins, 170 Mo. 16.

70. It is not material to the validity of a levy that the property was conveyed to the judgment debtor for a bad purpose—Oliver v. Wilhite, 201 Ill. 552. A promise by a son against whom an execution was levied to his mother that he would not record a deed will not avail as against a creditor without knowledge of the promise—Id.

71. People v. Gould, 75 App. Div. (N. Y.) 524, 12 Ann. Cas. 6.

72. Property taken from an officer under a writ of replevin and returned to him on the giving of a re-delivery bond, is in custodia legis and a sale of the property on an execution after the property is so taken and during the pendency of the replevin proceedings may be prevented by injunction—Overton v. Warner (Kan.) 74 Pac. 651. Pendency of an action for the foreclosure of an alleged chattel mortgage in which a temporary injunction has been granted restraining defendant from disposing of the property during the pendency of the action, does not withdraw the property so as to prevent creditors in another court from levying an execution, the property is not in the custody of the law, and the principles applicable are those pertaining to the doctrine of lis pendens—Ryan v. Donley (Neb.) 96 N. W. 49.

73. In re Darwin (C. C. A.) 117 Fed. 407; Gabriel v. Tonner, 138 Cal. 63, 70 Pac. 1021; Ninth Nat. Bank v. Moses, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 664; Rodgers v. Forbes, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 438.

74. Crook v. Lipscomb (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 993.

75. Smith v. Thompson, 169 Mo. 553. A requirement that notice of levy shall be filed in the county in which land occupied as a homestead is situated does not apply where the homestead is abandoned after rendition of judgment (Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3178)—Id.

76. Bartlett v. Gilcreast (N. H.) 55 Atl. 189.

77. Taylor v. Plunkett (Del.) 56 Atl. 384.

78. State v. Superior Court (Wash.) 73 Pac. 779.

79. Dils v. Hatcher, 24 Ky. L. R. 826, 69 S. W. 1092.

80. A sheriff cannot excuse failure to levy on the ground that the execution was issued before return of a previous execution (Mollineaux v. Mott, 78 App. Div. [N. Y.] 493). He has the burden of showing the validity of a homestead exemption claim—Johns v. Robinson (Ga.) 45 S. E. 727. A recital in a constable's return that he returned the same

(§ 8) D. Extent and adequacy of levy.—An insufficient levy cannot be fortified or perfected by a levy made after the return of the execution.[82] The entry of levy must show the property levied upon.[83]

(§ 8) E. Conflicting levies and liens and priorities between them.—Under the laws of Kentucky, the lien of an execution attaches from the moment the execution is placed in the hands of an officer for collection.[84] The plaintiff in a junior judgment by suing out execution and levying upon land acquires priority over an older judgment upon which execution is subsequently issued.[85] Where a chattel mortgage was not filed as required by law, the mortgagor could transfer the property so as to vest in transferee a title superior to the rights of the judgment creditor.[86]

(§ 8) F. Relinquishment and dissolution of levy. Replevin.—A levy is not abandoned by leaving ponderous articles on the debtor's premises in charge of a custodian in the employ of the debtor, who continues using them.[87] In Iowa, property cannot be replevied from an officer by the owner unless he shows it to be exempt.[88] Where the property is returned to him on his executing an undertaking, it is his duty to retain the property in his possession until determination of the replevin suit,[89] and an attempted sale meantime will be restrained by injunction.[90]

(§ 8) G. Release of property on receipts or forthcoming or delivery bonds.—Garnishees, receipting for property of the judgment debtor delivered to them by the sheriff, are estopped from showing that the sheriff never had possession.[91] An adjudication in favor of plaintiff in execution proceedings is necessary to right to proceed on a forthcoming bond.[92] A surety on a forthcoming bond is released from liability, where the levying officer subsequently seized and sold the property under a lien of superior dignity, applying the proceeds to such superior lien.[93]

(§ 8) H. Liability of officer for loss of property levied upon.—A sheriff making a levy is not excused from liability for loss of the property by the fact that the attorney of plaintiff permitted him to leave the property of the debtor until it could be disposed of.[94]

(§ 8) I. Effect of death of execution debtor.—The death of the execution debtor after issuance of execution will not affect validity of levy made thereunder.[95]

by direction of plaintiff's attorney in order that another execution might be issued to another constable, is only prima facie evidence of such fact in an action against the constable for failure to execute writ—State v. Rainey (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 250.

81. A constable may require an indemnity bond on claim of property by a third person though he has previously attached the property in the suit on which the execution was based—Smith v. Rogers (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 243. An indemnity bond is not invalidated by a variance between the levy and bond as to name of a machine where there is no variance in the description of the machine—Id. Where a constable threatens to release property claimed by third persons, unless given a bond of indemnity, the bond is a good common law obligation and not invalid for duress—Id.

82. Canfield v. Browning (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 101.

83. Where an execution against several defendants is levied on certain land, and the entry of levy does not show whose property was levied on, a sale and deed made under the levy will not divest the title of the real owner—Cooper v. Yearwood (Ga.) 45 S. E. 716.

84. Richart v. Goodpaster (Ky.) 76 S. W. 831.

85. Canfield v. Browning (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 101.

86. McDonald v. City Trust, Safe Deposit & Surety Co., 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 552.

87. Meyer v. Michaels (Neb.) 95 N. W. 63.

88. Code Iowa, § 4163—Young v. Evans, 118 Iowa, 144.

89. Rev. St. Ohio, 1892, § 5820—Uphaus v. Roof, 68 Ohio St. 401. There is a prima facie case of regularity where there is an admission that an officer held the goods in pursuance to an execution issued on a judgment rendered—Gruber v. Janns, 84 N. Y. Supp. 882.

90. Uphaus v. Roof, 68 Ohio St. 401.

91. Colbath v. Hoefer (Or.) 73 Pac. 10.

92. Pepperdine v. Hymes (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 1078.

93. Floyd v. Cook (Ga.) 45 S. E. 441.

94. Johns v. Robinson (Ga.) 45 S. E. 727.

95. Under the laws of Indiana the death of a judgment debtor does not affect an execution issued before his death (Burns' Rev. St. 1901, §§ 802, 2484)—Blumenthal v. Tibbits (Ind.) 66 N. E. 159. A sheriff's sale after the death of the execution debtor on an execution issued in his lifetime, will not be set aside.

(§ 8) J. Liability for wrongful levy.—A levying officer is not bound to inquire into the validity of proceedings on which execution is based.[96] A sheriff is liable for levy on exempt property.[97] The action for selling exempt property is not for misconduct in office within acts conferring jurisdiction on certain courts.[98] A sheriff may not interpose an appraisement as a defense where he fails to inform appraisers of exemption and appraisement is made without allowance therefor.[99] A seizure under void process is a naked trespass as against a stranger in rightful possession of property.[1] A mortgagee may recover for conversion against one who sells mortgaged chattels on execution against the mortgagor after he is in default so that the mortgagee's right of possession is complete.[2] The purchaser taking no part in the removal of property is not jointly liable with the officer for the trespass and conversion.[3] The fact that the debtor had personal property sufficient to satisfy the execution at the time of the levy on land will not invalidate the sale, the debtor having a remedy against the sheriff for damages sustained.[4] A petition alleging that there were no proceedings on which an execution could issue, but that to exact illegal costs an execution was levied on plaintiff's property, sets out a cause of action against the levying officer.[5] An officer levying on live stock belonging to a third person must deliver same to the party and is not relieved from liability by turning it back on the range without notice to him.[6] Where a judgment has been paid, there is no issue of its validity for a jury in an action for wrongful levy.[7] Cases on damages for wrongful levy are found in footnote.[8]

§ 9. Claims of third persons.—Affidavit of property required on claim by third person is not necessary, when at the time of the seizure the property is in the lawful possession of the claimant.[9] The issue is between a right to subject the property and the claimant's title, not the right of property between claimant though at the time of the sale no legal representative of the deceased debtor had been appointed and there were minor heirs and debts due by the estate of a higher dignity than the lien of the execution—Hudgins v. McLain, 116 Ga. 273.

96. Wilbur v. Stokes, 117 Ga. 545.

97. Thompson v. Donahoe (S. D.) 92 N. W. 27; Baughn v. Allen (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1063.

98, 99. Strong v. Combs (Neb.) 94 N. W. 149.

1. Hagar v. Haas (Kan.) 71 Pac. 822.

2. Biehler v. Irwin, 84 N. Y. Supp. 574.

3. Hoxsie v. Nodine (C. C. A.) 123 Fed. 379.

4. Allen v. Farley (Ky.) 76 S. W. 538.

5. Hathaway v. Smith, 117 Ga. 946.

6. Kieffer v. Smith (S. D.) 93 N. W. 645.

7. Deleshaw v. Edelen (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 413.

8. In an action for wrongful levy on the ground that defendant was denied the right to point out property to be levied on, the measure of damages is the value of the goods seized at the time of the levy less the amount of the judgment—Avindino's Heirs v. Beck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 539. In an action against a sheriff for trespass, the levy being unlawful and the sale illegal, the plaintiff will not be liable for the expenses of the levy and sale—Hillman v. Edwards (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787. In an action for unlawful seizure of property under an execution where defendant sets up the judgment in justification, but asks no affirmative relief and prays that it be dismissed with costs, he is not entitled to a set-off against plaintiff's damages in any amount—Id. In an action against an officer for forcible entry of premises to seize property on an execution, it is proper to show what amount of the proceeds of the property taken subject to the execution had been credited on the judgment in mitigation of the damages—Id. The measure of damages for trespass committed by an officer in making a levy and seizing property, is the value of the property as assessed by the jury less the amount that had been credited on the judgment—Id. In an action for wrongful execution, one compelled to employ attorneys may recover attorney's fees as part of the punitive damages—Deleshaw v. Edelen (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 413. An instruction submitting profits lost as a measure of damages is properly given where the petition in an action for wrongful execution avers a levy on plaintiff's business and injury to his business and trade—Id. The measure of damages is the value of the chattels, the difference between it and the mortgage debt being the subject of an account between the parties on an accounting—Biehler v. Irwin, 84 N. Y. Supp. 574. $250 held not inadequate for levy of a wrongful execution—Avindino's Heirs v. Beck (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 539. In an action for damages for levy on a homestead there can be no recovery for worry and discomfort and failure to dispose of the property unless there is a showing of the actual loss suffered—Whitworth v. McKee (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1046.

9. Gen. St. Minn. 1894, § 5296—Wood v. Matter, 88 Minn. 123.

and defendant in execution.[10] In Texas, a levy made by seizing property instead of by giving notice as provided by the laws, though one of the claimants was in possession as joint owner, is not void, though irregular.[11] A claimant of property with knowledge of its seizure who sued the officer but dismissed his suit without fault of the officer could not afterwards prosecute his claim though he was not served with the statutory notice by the officer.[12] Where property is returned to claimant on the execution of bond to the sheriff, the title vests in the claimant and the execution lien is at an end.[13] One giving a claimant's bond, a proceeding under the Texas statute to test rights to the property, waives the manner of the levy.[14] In a claim case, the plaintiff in fi. fa. assumes the burden of proof.[15] On the trial of a claimant's issue, plaintiff to recover must offer in evidence the judgment; the offer of the execution and the judgment roll is not sufficient.[16] See note for sufficiency of evidence in claim cases.[17] Under the laws of Louisiana, minors whose property has been illegally sold as that of another person are not forced to attack, by direct action, title of the party in possession; they may ignore it as an absolute nullity, and institute a petitory action for its recovery.[18]

Property levied on may be replevined from the officer by persons having property therein other than the execution defendant.[19]

10. Volusia County Bank v. Bigelow (Fla.) 33 So. 704.

11. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2349, provides for taking possession of personalty on levy where the defendant in execution is entitled to possession; where he has an interest in the personalty but is not entitled to possession the levy to be made by giving notice to the person entitled to possession or to one of them where there are several. Article 2352 requires a levy on the interest of a partner to be made by leaving a notice with one or more of the partners or with a clerk —Davis v. Jones (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 63.

12. Small v. Finch (Ind. App.) 66 N. E. 1015. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, §§ 1613, 1614, requires officer to give notice within 20 days where it is likely that there are claimants.

13. Meyer v. Knight, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 1. In West Virginia, the delivery to the sheriff of a suspending bond by a claimant of property levied on under a fi. fa. stays the execution and the sale is void (Code W. Va. 1899, c. 107, § 4)—August v. Gilmer (W. Va.) 44 S. E. 143. A purchaser at a sale after the claimant of property has given a suspending bond acquires no title to the property and on a rule to show cause may be summarily required to return the property to the custody of the sheriff—Id.

14. Property levied on as the property of a debtor was claimed by two joint claimants, one of whom was the debtor's wife, the bill of sale ran to the debtor and he signed notes for deferred payments, but had paid nothing, although claimant had paid certain sums on account of the purchase price, and the money paid by the debtor's wife and part of it paid by the other claimant was paid on one of the notes after the levy was made. Held not to show no interest in the property subject to the execution—Davis v. Jones (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 63.

15. Cannon v. Shahan (Ga.) 44 S. E. 824.

16. Blalack v. Stevens (Miss.) 33 So. 508.

17. Where a security deed is given to secure a note and after judgment on the note the land re-conveyed and execution levied, a claim is filed by a third person, proof of the possession of land by the grantor in the security deed at the time of its execution, makes a prima facie case against the claimant—Ford v. Nesmith, 117 Ga. 210. On the trial of a claim filed to the levy of an execution issued on a mortgage foreclosure, where the plaintiff in execution fails to introduce any evidence of title or possession in the mortgagor at the time of the execution of the mortgage, and a prima facie case against the claimant is not made out, a verdict finding the property subject, should be set aside as contrary to the law—Jones v. Hightower, 117 Ga. 749. There is evidence that the property seized was subject to the levy, where the bill of sale to a claimant was made about the time of bringing the action, and the consideration was for services rendered a father by a son during his minority, and the sale was not intended to be absolute —Parsons v. Smith (Ga.) 45 S. E. 697.

18. Jewell v. De Blanc (La.) 34 So. 787. Where property belonging to minors has been levied on and sold as the property of another, a bad faith purchaser at such sale in possession cannot require as a condition to the commencement of a suit for its recovery, that plaintiff offer to reimburse him the amount he has paid for the property—Id.

19. Evidence sufficient to show that plaintiff in replevin was the owner and entitled to possession of property levied on as property of other parties—Leschen & Sons Rope Co. v. Craig (Colo. App.) 71 Pac. 885. Where one of the parties to replevin claims the property by virtue of a levy made by him as an officer, it is proper to direct the jury in case they find for him, to find the fair, reasonable and market value of the property without at the same time directing their attention to the manner in which the property was sold by the officer and his want of discretion possessed by other owners of goods to accept or reject such offers as are not

§ 10. Appraisement.—Under the Kentucky code, the execution lien is not lost by the fact that the constable levying on joint property failed to make an inventory and appraisal.[20] Where the sale is made with reference to a tax lien, the purchaser taking advantage of the deduction thereof from the appraisement may not deny the validity of taxes in a proceeding to enjoin their collection.[21] Certificates of lien against land sold on execution may be waived, and, where waived, the sheriff may proceed with the sale without them.[22] An objection as to the form of certificates of liens goes to the appraisement and must be raised before sale.[23] On allotment of the wife's dower as against a purchaser claiming under execution sale against the husband, the value of permanent improvements made by the purchaser cannot be taken into consideration in estimating the value of the land.[24]

§ 11. Execution sales. In general.—A sale will relate back to an attachment.[25] Under the Kentucky laws, all sales under execution of land of which another person has adverse possession are null and void.[26]

Notice and advertisement.—The description is sufficient where lands levied on can be distinguished and identified.[27] It is not important that the description includes more property than that subject to levy.[28] In New York, provision is made for inclusion of diagram in notice.[29] The right to raise the question of insufficiency of description may be waived.[30] In Washington, the notice must be posted in a conspicuous place on the land to be sold, but where tracts are widely separated it is not necessary that notice should be posted on all such tracts.[31] Posting in a public place at the court house satisfies a requirement that notice be posted at the court house doors.[32] An act requiring publication of notice once a week during a certain number of weeks does not allow a shortening of the period by publishing the last notice early in the week.[33]

Conduct of sale.—Under a provision requiring sales to take place between specified hours, a sale at a later hour is void.[34] Lands should be sold in the manner most likely to produce the largest returns. This will ordinarily result where they are offered in parcels.[35] The sale must be made for cash.[36] Where there is considered fair—Meyer v. Michaels (Neb.) 95 N. W. 63.

20. Civ. Code Ky. § 660—Richart v. Goodpaster, 25 Ky. L. R. 889, 76 S. W. 831.

21. Omaha Sav. Bank v. Omaha (Neb.) 95 N. W. 593; Equitable Trust Co. v. Omaha (Neb.) 95 N. W. 650.

22. Moore v. Hornsby (Neb.) 95 N. W. 853.

23. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Marshall (Neb.) 95 N. W. 357. Nebraska Code does not require the use of a seal by officers who have no seal, and it is sufficient if they certify under their hands—Id.

24. Ewell v. Tye, 25 Ky. L. R. 976, 76 S. W. 875.

25. Poor v. Chapin, 97 Me. 295.

26. Farmers' Bank of Beattyville's Assignee v. Pryse, 25 Ky. L. R. 807, 76 S. W. 358.

27. Canfield v. Browning (N. J. Law) 55 Atl. 101. Land described as a certain parcel of land containing a given number of acres situated in the northeast corner of a certain league of land is insufficient—Edrington v. Hermann (Tex.) 77 S. W. 408.

28. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Kiene (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 872. A notice of sale is not invalid by reason of including more than the sheriff is authorized to, or in fact did sell—Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Marshall (Neb.) 95 N. W. 357.

29. Francis v. Watkins, 72 App. Div. (N. Y.) 15. A purchaser will be relieved on the ground of mistake in a diagram included in notice where the mistake was unintentional and the property was correctly described in the notice—Id. That purchaser was not misled by a mistake in diagram into bidding an amount in excess of the value is shown where another bidder bid within $50 of the successful bid of $54,500—Id.

30. Where a debtor's grantee suing an execution purchaser to enjoin the execution of a deed, alleges that the purchaser levied on the land as the property of the debtor and advertised a sale and purchased the same, she may not take advantage of an insufficiency of the description in the sale proceedings—McCormick v. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. (Iowa) 95 N. W. 181.

31. Laws Wash. 1899, p. 85—Whitworth v. McKee (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1046.

32. Whitworth v. McKee (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1046.

33. Currens v. Blocher, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 30.

34. Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2163—Hancock v. Shockman (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 826.

35. Palmour v. Roper (Ga.) 45 S. E. 790. A sheriff is not required to sell lots separately by reason that the deed securing the notes described the property by the number of the lots composing the tract, the description not no collusion, a wife may purchase her husband's land at execution sale and acquire good title to the same which may not be subjected to the payment of his debt.[37]

Bids and acceptance thereof.—On default of bid, the sheriff may, on repayment of the advertising fees, treat the matter as no sale, and sell again.[38] On default of bidder, the purchaser is liable for the difference between the amount of the bid and the price for which the property subsequently sold.[39] Inadequacy of bid at execution sale is not notice to the grantee of the purchaser of want of title in the judgment debtor.[40] An agreement to bid in property and hold it in trust for one who is insolvent is void as against creditors.[41]

Liability of officer for failure to sell.—A sheriff in an action for failure to sell must make it affirmatively appear that he parted with possession under order of a competent court or that the execution could not be legally enforced.[42] There can be no recovery of damages against a sheriff for refusal to sell realty on execution, where there is a complicated condition of title, and no damage appears to have been sustained by the parties by reason of such refusal.[43] An action will not lie against an officer for failure to execute the writ where the failure complained of was directed by the party's attorney.[44] Where the equity of redemption is levied on, it requires the consent of the mortgagor, mortgagee, and plaintiff in fi fa to sell the entire interest in the property so as to free it from the strict lien.[45]

Proceeds.—The courts of New Jersey may order money, which by the terms of the writ is payable to a person named, to be paid into court.[46] The surplus proceeds of the sale should be turned over to the estate of a deceased judgment debtor.[47] The judgment creditor has a right of action for wrongful disposition.[48]

§ 12. Return or certification of sale to court and confirmation. Return.—Statutes fixing time for return do not apply to special executions.[49] Under a code provision allowing return nulla bona to be made two days after issuance of execution, an execution issued on the 21st, and returned nulla bona on the 23d, is invalid.[50] A sheriff is exonerated for failure to make return where he shows that the levy was abortive by reason of the failure of the creditor to give a proper indemnifying bond.[51] An order to an officer to return an execution should not direct the form of the return.[52] An officer's return giving only the initials of plaintiff's name is necessarily implying that the lots were separately pledged—Id. An injunction will issue to restrain a sheriff from selling realty in bulk, where a showing is made that larger returns will be received from a sale in parcels—Reynolds & H. Estate Mortg. Co. v. Kingsberry (Ga.) 45 S. E. 235. The objection that lots should have been sold separately may not be raised for the first time on appeal—Allen v. Farley, 25 Ky. L. R. 930, 76 S. W. 538. After lapse of 45 years a sale will not be held invalid for sale in bulk—Dixon v. Dixon, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 652.

36. Bradley v. Challoner's Sons Co., 103 Ill. App. 618. A purchaser of land under a levy against a resulting trust deed may not hold the land as against the beneficiaries of the trust, unless he pays a consideration therefor other than the giving of credit for the price on the judgment—Hicks v. Pogue (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 786.

37. Bracken v. Milner (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 225.

38. And may not compel a payment of the bid—Bradley v. Challoner's Sons Co., 103 Ill. App. 618.

39. Hughes v. Miller (Pa.) 55 Atl. 793.

40. Hart v. Gardner (Miss.) 33 So. 442.

41. Gibson v. Jenkins, 97 Mo. App. 27.

42. Woodward v. McDonald, 116 Ga. 748.

43. Porter v. Trompen (Neb.) 96 N. W. 226.

44. State v. Rainey (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 250.

45. Civ. Code, § 2759—Milner v. Pitts (Ga.) 45 S. E. 67.

46. Gifford v. McQuinness, 63 N. J. Eq. 834.

47. Carr v. Berry, 116 Ga. 372.

48. The presumption of application of proceeds to the payment of the judgment may be rebutted as far as the judgment debtor is concerned that the creditor was deprived of the proceeds by operation of law or the act of the judgment debtor—Adams v. National Bank of Commerce, 30 Wash. 20, 70 Pac. 105. In an action against a sheriff for a wrongful disposition of proceeds plaintiff must not only show a lien but a right to participate and payment to persons not entitled—Dowd v. Crow, 205 Pa. 214.

49. Norton v. Reardon (Kan.) 72 Pac. 861.

50. Graves v. Spry (Del.) 55 Atl. 334.

51. State v. Jenkins, 170 Mo. 16.

52. Mollineaux v. Mott, 78 App. Div. (N. Y.) 493.

sufficient.[53] A return may be amended by leave of court.[54] An entry by an officer on an execution issued from a justice's judgment, unless recorded on the execution docket of the superior court of the county where defendant resides, will not arrest the running of the Georgia Dormancy Statute.[55]

Confirmation.—A sale on execution is not complete until confirmed by the court.[56] A confirmation continues in full force, notwithstanding an appeal therefrom, until reversed.[57] A sale is sufficiently confirmed by a trial had before a jury who find that the sale was valid, the verdict being approved by the trial court and judgment rendered.[58] Under the laws of Washington, it is not required that notice be given a debtor of a motion for confirmation.[59] Where a judgment on which the sale was made had been paid when the execution was issued, and an agreement was made to satisfy the same, a motion to set aside the confirmation of the sale should have been sustained.[60]

§ 13. Purchaser's certificate of sale.—The description of realty in the certificate of purchase is sufficient, though not as particular as that required in tax sales.[61] There is no presumption of knowledge of secret equities against the assignee of a certificate.[62]

§ 14. Redemption.—The purchaser acquires no right to the possession of fixtures during the redemption period.[63] A redemption terminates the effect of a sale.[64] Judgment creditors having a lien may redeem.[65] A debtor may confess a judgment expressly for the purpose of enabling the judgment creditor to redeem if there is a bona fide indebtedness existing and due to such creditor.[66] The assignee of the undivided interest of joint owner of judgment may redeem from a prior lien to the same extent and for the same purpose as the assignor.[67] Generally an attaching creditor has no enforceable lien entitling him to redeem from a former execution sale.[68] The grantee of an unrecorded deed is not such a creditor of the grantor as will entitle him to redeem under the laws of Michigan.[69] The right is denied to the grantee of a fraudulent conveyance.[70] Redemption by a creditor taking a quit claim from the owner will not displace the liens of judgments obtained by assignees of certificates of sale.[71]

53. Poor v. Chapin, 97 Me. 295.
54. State v. Jenkins, 170 Mo. 16.
55. Smith v. Bearden (Ga.) 45 S. E. 59.
56. Hendryx v. Evans (Iowa) 94 N. W. 853.
57. Hendryx v. Evans (Iowa) 94 N. W. 853. On affirmance a confirmation order is ratified and confirmed as originally entered, and the rights of the parties relate back to that time—Id.
58. Evidence held insufficient to sustain the claim of debtor's children, that property levied upon belonged to them—Smith's Heirs v. Johnston (La.) 34 So. 677.
59. Whitworth v. McKee (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1046.
60. Linton v. Cathers (Neb.) 95 N. W. 1044.
61. McCormick v. McCormick Harvesting Machine Co. (Iowa) 95 N. W. 181.
62. Blumenthal v. Tibbits (Ind.) 66 N. E. 159.
63. Off v. Finkelstein, 200 Ill. 40.
64. Brand v. Baker, 42 Or. 426, 71 Pac. 320.
65. Byers v. McEniry, 117 Iowa, 499. The holders of a subsequent judgment lien may redeem by paying a proper amount to the clerk, and need not produce a certified copy of the judgment docket, files and records on which the redemption is based, but it is sufficient if the clerk has knowledge thereof, and the papers are called to his attention—Hunter v. Mauseau (Minn.) 97 N. W. 651. In California, the purchaser at execution sale acquires a title allowing him to redeem from another sale but this does not divest the judgment creditor of his right also to redeem—Pollard v. Harlow, 138 Cal. 390, 71 Pac. 454, 648. Where realty has been attached and sold according to law, a second attaching creditor takes nothing by purchase under his execution at sheriff's sale except the right of redemption from the sale on execution under the first attachment—Poor v. Chapin, 97 Me. 295.
66. Becker v. Friend, 200 Ill. 75.
67. Hunter v. Mauseau (Minn.) 97 N. W. 651.
68. Code, § 3989, making levy a lien from entry in clerk's office is intended to act simply as a lis pendens—Byers v. McEniry, 117 Iowa, 499.
69. Spring v. Raymond (Mich.) 95 N. W. 1003.
70. Warden v. Troutman, 25 Ky. L. R. 247, 74 S. W. 1085.
71. Byers v. McEniry, 117 Iowa, 499. A redemptioner redeeming under a quit claim from the owner may not claim that the redemption was by agreement to preserve the

Equity will entertain a bill by heirs to redeem where valuable property of decedent was sold to creditors for a grossly inadequate amount.[72] One seeking to have redemption set aside must act promptly.[73]

One entitled to redeem from two sales, the last of which covers the equity of redemption, must pay the amount of both purchases.[74] The purchaser at an execution sale holding the property as security for advancements and the purchase price is entitled to interest on moneys expended to pay mortgages necessary to the preservation of his security.[75] There may be a right of redemption independent of a right of possession, and vice versa.[76] A purchaser at execution sale is not liable for rents on redemption where he had not been in possession and had not received benefits of crops.[77] The purchaser may consent to an extension of the time to redeem.[78]

§ 15. Deeds and title under sales.—The successor of the sheriff making a sale may execute a deed to assignee of the heirs of a deceased certificate holder and the deed will relate back to the time of the sale.[79] The deed may be avoided for insufficiency of description.[80] Under the Iowa laws, the rights of a purchaser become vested when he pays his money for a sheriff's certificate, and hence an act curing defective certificates of acknowledgment to deeds theretofore executed but which expressly provides that it shall not apply to vested rights does not affect a purchaser who paid his money before the act took effect.[81]

The deed passes title as of the date of the levy and free from later incumbrances.[82] A purchaser acquires no greater title than the judgment debtor has.[83] land subject to the claims of himself and other creditors under a parol agreement and that this purpose having failed he was entitled to return of the redemption money and this more particularly where he was not a party to the agreement—Id.

72. Property worth $10.000 incumbered for $1,847 sold to creditor's attorney for $500. Another tract worth $15,000 sold in the same manner for $835—Barstow v. Beckett, 122 Fed. 140.

73. The holder of a certificate under a judgment who had notice of redemption a short time after it was effected but brought no action to set it aside and compel issuance of a deed to him until six years later, was guilty of laches preventing relief—Becker v. Friend, 200 Ill. 75.

74. Ky. St. 1899, §§ 2364, 2365—Warden v. Troutman, 25 Ky. L. R. 247, 74 S. W. 1085.

75. Natter v. Turner (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 650.

76. Hartman Mfg. Co. v. Luse (Iowa) 96 N. W. 972. Under a Code provision allowing the debtor to redeem realty from execution sale at any time within a year from the day of sale, and entitling him to possession thereof in the meantime, a judgment creditor levying on and purchasing his debtor's statutory right of redemption in the mortgaged premises at foreclosure sale acquires no right to the possession of the premises—Id.

77. Laws Wash. 1899, p. 85, c. 53, §§ 13, 15—Kennedy v. Trumble (Wash.) 73 Pac. 698. Where in proceedings to redeem the statement of rents and profits is not sworn to the time for redemption is as though no statement was given (Laws Wash. 1899, p. 85, c. 53, §§ 12, 13)—Id.

78. Botts v. Botts, 25 Ky. L. R. 300, 74 S. W. 1093. A valid agreement by an execution purchaser to permit the debtor to redeem does not require that the time for such redemption should be fixed—Throckmorton v. O'Reilly (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 56. There is a sufficient consideration where the creditor purchases premises at a grossly inadequate sum—Id. A mere parol agreement to allow an execution debtor to redeem land made after the statutory period has expired, cannot be enforced by the debtor—Herring v. Johnston, 24 Ky. L. R. 1940, 72 S. W. 793.

79. Certificate on execution sale issued 40 years thereafter—Dixon v. Dixon, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 652.

80. A sheriff's deed describing land as a certain number of acres in the northeast corner of a certain league is void for insufficiency of description, where the execution defendant owned no land in the extreme corner, though he did own land which would have been included in a square survey of that number of acres in such corner—Edrington v. Hermann (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 936.

81. Iowa act of 24th Gen. Assem. c. 42—Koch v. West, 118 Iowa, 468.

82. Pepperdine v. Bank of Seymour (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 890. Where the deed of a purchaser at execution sale passes the legal title and is recorded, the title is as against one claiming under a later deed from the execution debtor valid, though the grantee of the execution purchaser makes no claim to the land—Williamson v. Gore (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 563.

83. Costello v. Friedman (Ariz.) 71 Pac. 935; Markley v. Carbondale Inv. Co. (Kan.) 73 Pac. 96. The thing actually sold and transferred is the real interest of the debtor in the property, and not merely his interest as determined by the appraisers—Hart v. Beardsley (Neb.) 93 N. W. 423. The title of grantee of swamp lands conveyed by a county to which they were patented by the state, grantee having been in actual possession by

He takes title subject to equities of third persons of which he has knowledge,[84] and this rule has particular application to a creditor purchasing at his own sale,[85] and free from unrecorded deeds[86] and trust agreements of which he has no knowledge.[87] A purchaser at execution sale of interest of heirs takes title subject to administration.[88] The interest of a mortgagee in land is not affected by sale under execution against the mortgagor.[89] The purchaser of land subject to mortgage buys merely the right to redeem the land by paying the mortgage debt,[90] and may not contest its validity,[91] and previous to redemption, he is not entitled to possession.[92] In the absence of proceedings to set aside a homestead right, an execution sale of homestead property vests in the purchaser only the legal title to the excess over the amount of the homestead allowance.[93] The sale of a husband's realty under an execution on a judgment against him alone does not extinguish the wife's inchoate right of dower.[94] Where the husband's property was sold under execution, the dower right of the wife therein is to be determined by the law in force at the time of the sale.[95]

The right of the purchaser to protection against defects affecting the sale may depend on whether he is a bona fide purchaser.[96] The rights acquired by a bona a tenant claiming title to the whole, is superior to the title acquired under execution sale on judgment against the county after the county had parted with its title—Houck v. Patty (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 389.

84. Perry v. Trimble, 25 Ky. L. R. 725, 76 S. W. 343. A judgment creditor taking land on execution from a debtor with notice of an outstanding equitable title in another is in no better position than he would have been had he with such notice taken a direct conveyance from his debtor—Hengeveld v. Stuver, 104 Ill. App. 362. Where there is no affirmative showing that one purchasing land at execution sale subsequent to a deed by the judgment debtor to his wife purchased without notice and in good faith, parties claiming through the wife need show no more than the sufficiency of the deed to pass title—Watts v. Bruce (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 258.

85. Beidler v. Beidler (Ark.) 74 S. W. 13; Perry v. Trimble, 25 Ky. L. R. 725, 76 S. W. 343; Throckmorton v. O'Reilly (N. J. Eq.) 55 Atl. 56. An execution creditor having notice of the existence of a deed should proceed by bill in aid of execution before sale to ascertain the rights of a judgment debtor in the land—Spring v. Raymond (Mich.) 95 N. W. 1003.

86. Hart v. Gardner (Miss.) 33 So. 497. A conveyance by a husband and wife and possession by their grantee was not constructive notice to a purchaser under a judgment against the husband in whose name record title stood when judgment was rendered, of a prior unrecorded deed from such husband to his wife antedating judgment—Koch v. West, 118 Iowa, 468. Where the judgment creditor before recovery of judgment, had no notice of an unrecorded deed of the debtor, a purchaser at an execution sale will not be affected with notice given on the day of sale, as he is entitled to the same protection as the judgment creditor—Danner v. Crew (Ala.) 34 So. 822. Under the Nebraska Code, a prior unrecorded deed or mortgage executed in good faith and for valuable consideration, takes priority over a conveyance based on sheriff's sale, if recorded before evidence of the execution sale is recorded, otherwise if recorded afterwards—Hendryx v. Evans (Iowa) 94 N. W. 853.

87. A purchaser at an execution sale under judgment against the grantee of land takes the land free from a trust therein in favor of the grantor, of which he had no notice—Home Sav. & State Bank v. Peoria Agricultural & Trotting Soc. (Ill.) 69 N. E. 17.

88. Hahn v. Willis (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1084.

89. The judgment creditor who has levied on the land mortgaged by the judgment debtor cannot maintain a writ of entry against the mortgagee in possession—Carrasco v. Mason (N. H.) 54 Atl. 1101.

90. Steele v. Walter, 204 Pa. 257; Bartlett v. Gilcreast (N. H.) 55 Atl. 189. Ky. St. §§ 1689, 1709 subsecs. 1, 3—Wilson v. Flanders, 24 Ky. L. R. 1302, 71 S. W. 426.

91. Steele v. Walter, 204 Pa. 257.

92. Wilson v. Flanders, 24 Ky. L. R. 1302, 71 S. W. 426.

93. Butler v. Brown (Ill.) 69 N. E. 44; Whitworth v. McKee (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1046. Where the land sold was worth more than the value of the debtor's homestead interest therein and the sheriff failed to set off such interest, the purchaser after conveyance to him under the sale may maintain a bill to have such interest set off or to pay the debtor the value thereof in cash—Krupp v. Brand, 200 Ill. 403.

94. Martin v. Abbott (Neb.) 95 N. W. 356.

95. Hanley v. Kubli (Or.) 74 Pac. 224.

96. A creditor acquiring a sheriff's deed is a good faith purchaser for value and entitled to protection—Hendryx v. Evans (Iowa) 94 N. W. 853. The application of the bid of a judgment creditor for land sold under execution to costs of the sale under execution will not render such a creditor a bona fide purchaser—Hicks v. Pogue (Tex. Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 786. A purchaser cannot claim land as an innocent purchaser, where he bought from a purchaser at an execution sale knowing of fatal irregularities in the execution sale and that it had been set aside by the court for that reason—Day v. Johnson (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 426. On a sale under execution on a voidable judgment, findings that a purchaser from one who bought at execufide purchaser for value under an execution on a justice's judgment, fair on its face, will not be disturbed, though the judgment be invalid.[97] Purchasers at judicial sales are not bona fide purchasers as against a claim of fraud on the debtor in the sale, the doctrine of caveat emptor applying.[98] Parties having knowledge of the fact may not take advantage of a sale on an execution for the full amount of the judgment where the judgment was fully paid except a small amount of costs.[99]

A tenant renting land before the execution is entitled to the crops on maturity as against the purchaser.[1] The purchaser is entitled to crops planted after confirmation.[2]

Under the laws of Nebraska, a sheriff's deed is of itself prima facie evidence of the validity of the judgment on which execution sale is had,[3] and that the grantee holds all the title and interest in the land that was held by the judgment debtor at the rendition of the judgment or at any time thereafter up to the sale.[4]

The mere filing of a supersedeas bond will not prevent the issuance of a deed, the code requiring the filing of a petition in error to make the bond operative as a stay.[5] Where the sale is made under a special execution based on two judgments rendered in the same action to foreclose first and second mortgages, the fact that the judgment on the inferior mortgage is afterwards reversed does not affect the validity of the sale though the judgment plaintiff is purchaser.[6]

Whether the notice of a motion against the execution defendant for writ of possession is sufficient may not be raised by persons coming into the case by petition claiming interest in the land and who on the issues on their petition are defeated.[7] Under a provision allowing revivor of judgment for purchaser's benefit on failure to recover possession for irregularities in the sale, a totally void execution is an irregularity.[8] An agreement of an execution creditor to hold a purchaser harmless covers necessary expenses of the purchaser in defending the title where the creditor fails to make the defense after request.[9]

Equity will not entertain a suit, by a purchaser of realty at execution sale who is not in possession against a party who is in possession, to set aside a prior conveyance made by a judgment debtor as a cloud on complainant's title, on the ground that such conveyance was in fraud of creditors.[10]

§ 16. Remedies against defective levy or sale. Setting aside sale.—A sale to plaintiff in an action may be set aside on motion.[11] Where there is no irregularity or defect in the judgment and the land is purchased by persons not parties to the action, a sale will be set aside only by action in the proper court.[12] A sale will not be set aside for mere technical irregularities in the proceedings which tion sale knew that the judgment debtor claimed the land and that the judge ordering the judgment did not inquire into the terms of the agreement on which judgment was ordered, are insufficient to show that he had notice of facts rendering the judgment voidable—Id.

97. Carpenter v. Anderson (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 291. One buying property which he knows to be worth $2.500 for $53 is not an innocent holder for value, so as to support the conveyance, where the judgment is invalid—Id.

98. Barstow v. Beckett, 122 Fed. 140.

99. Baird v. Given, 170 Mo. 302.

1. Johnson v. Cook, 96 Mo. App. 442. Where a lease is made after the date of the judgment, a purchaser acquires only the interest of the owner in the growing crops—Garrison v. Parker, 117 Ga. 537.

2. Jaques v. Dawes (Neb.) 92 N. W. 570.

3. Code Civ. Proc. Neb. § 500—Everson v. State (Neb.) 92 N. W. 137.

4. Everson v. State (Neb.) 92 N. W. 137.

5. Rev. St. § 590, p. 498—Hendryx v. Evans (Iowa) 94 N. W. 853.

6. Falk v. Ferd. Heim Brew. Co. (Kan.) 72 Pac. 531.

7. Read v. Cochran, 24 Ky. L. R. 1412, 71 S. W. 487.

8. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 708—Merguire v. O'Donnell, 139 Cal. 6, 72 Pac. 337. A failure to recover possession is not complete until an adverse determination of the matter in the judgment debtor's suit to quiet title—Id.

9. Cassidy v. Taylor Brew. Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 242.

10. Ropes v. Jenerson (Fla.) 34 So. 955.

11, 12. McCarthy v. Speed (S. D.) 94 N. W. 411.

could not have been prejudicial.[13] Want of knowledge of confirmation will not authorize setting aside sales in states where notice of motion for confirmation is not required,[14] nor may party avail himself of disobedience of orders by agent where he retains the fruits.[15] An executor in his individual capacity may move to set aside a sale of his property on an execution on a judgment against him as executor.[16] Where the execution is set aside for invalidity of the judgment which was fair on its face, the vendee is entitled to reimbursement.[17] The evidence on application to set aside a levy on land as the debtor's homestead must show that the debtor was the head of a family or entitled to the homestead, or that the land levied on had been selected as a homestead.[18] A finding that a judgment was paid before execution will not be disturbed on appeal where the evidence is conflicting.[19]

Inadequacy of price, though gross, will not be sufficient to set aside a sale, unless coupled with other circumstances sufficient to give rise to a presumption of fraud.[20]

Injunction.—An injunction will not lie to restrain a sale, where there is an adequate legal remedy to protect the title,[21] nor for the purpose of reviewing the action of the lower court.[22] The enforcement of a judgment fully satisfied may be restrained by injunction.[23] An injunction will not lie to enjoin an execution issued on a void judgment.[24] The privilege of defendants to have suit to enjoin execution brought in the county where judgment was rendered may be waived by proceeding to trial without objection or plea to jurisdiction.[25] An injunction restraining sale under execution in favor of a county was properly commenced, not in that county, but in the county in which the sheriff having charge of the sale and on whom the writ was general had his domicile.[26] A county court of one

13. Cochran v. Cochran (Neb.) 95 N. W. 778.

14, 15. Brand v. Baker, 42 Or. 426, 71 Pac. 320.

16. McCarthy v. Speed (S. D.) 94 N. W. 411.

17. Carpenter v. Anderson (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 291.

18. Cope v. Snider (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 10.

19. Hamilton v. Perry, 25 Ky. L. R. 547, 76 S. W. 52.

20. Palmour v. Roper (Ga.) 45 S. E. 790; Koch v. West, 118 Iowa, 468; Martin v. Bryson (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 615. A sale will not be set aside for mere inadequacy on account of the failure of a lienholder to bid where such lienholder left the matter of bidding to a representative who forgot about the sale because of unusual business duties—Westmoreland Guarantee Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Nesbit, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 150. An execution sale is properly set aside where the purchaser was appointed an appraiser and valued the property worth $200 at $20 and purchased it for $14—Hamilton v. Perry, 25 Ky. L. R. 547, 76 S. W. 52. A sale will be set aside where land was sold for a grossly inadequate price, and defendant was not called to point out the property levied upon, the writ was made returnable in 90 days instead of 60 days as required by law and sale took place after 60 days and the description of the land sold was doubtful—Day v. Johnson (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 426. Sale for $140 of an incumbered title worth $2,000 and equity of redemption worth $4,000, the superior liens amounting to $5,330 will be set aside for inadequacy—Simmons v. Sharpe (Ala.) 35 So. 415.

21. Hahn v. Willis (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1084. A judgment debtor claiming that certain of the costs taxed as part of the judgment was illegal, has an adequate remedy at law by motion to re-tax the cost and by a stay of execution pending the motion, and hence may not maintain a suit to restrain the levy of the execution—Ward v. Rees (Wyo.) 72 Pac. 581. Under the laws of Georgia, the owner of abutting property on which an execution has been levied for a street improvement assessment has a complete statutory remedy by affidavit of the illegality and is not entitled to an injunction to restrain sale by execution—Rice v. Macon, 117 Ga. 401.

22. Where a justice has jurisdiction to determine a plea of res adjudicata involving an amount insufficient to authorize an appeal, he will not be restrained from issuing an execution on the judgment rendered on determination of the plea—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Coca Cola Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 563.

23. A petition averring payment and satisfaction and praying that an injunction be made perpetual and for general relief justifies a decree enjoining issuance of execution on the judgment—Deleshaw v. Edelen (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 413.

24. Howlett v. Turner, 93 Mo. App. 20.

25 Foust v. Warren (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 404.

26. Little v. Griffin (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 635.

county may not enjoin execution of a judgment of a county court of another county.[27] A provision requiring writs of injunction to restrain execution to be made returnable to and tried in the court rendering the judgment does not apply to judgments of justice courts as such courts have no authority to issue writs of injunction.[28] When an action is brought by one judgment debtor to restrain the sale of land owned by him on execution, on the ground that the land is not liable to execution, his co-judgment debtors are not necessary parties to the action.[29] Complainant must state facts either on personal knowledge or on information reasonably sufficient on which to base his relief.[30] An execution debtor is not entitled to equitable relief where he makes no complaint that the judgment is unjust, nor that the debt on which it was founded was not a valid demand against him.[31] The suit should be dismissed where there was no request to amend a complaint vulnerable to a general demurrer.[32] Where to obtain an equitable set-off, the judgment debtor sought to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment against it by a member of a firm against which he had suits pending and which subsequently resulted in favor of the firm, he could, on petition for permanent injunction, prove that he expected to move for a new trial.[33] On review, it will be presumed that sufficient facts were found to warrant making the order.[34] The defendant's death leaving an estate to be administered as insolvent dissolves the attachment under the laws of New Hampshire and justifies the court in overruling an exception to a refusal to modify an injunction staying execution against the estate so as to admit of the sheriff's further prosecution of his action.[35]

§ 17. Restitution on reversal of judgment.—On reversal of judgment, restitution of property sold on execution may be ordered,[36] and where the debtor has died in the meantime, it should be made to his personal representative.[37] Under the California code, the measure of damages in an action to recover property sold under an execution on a judgment subsequently reversed is limited to the proceeds of an execution sale less the expense thereof.[38] Under the same provision, attorney fees may not be recovered.[39]

EXEMPTIONS.[40]

§ 1. The right to exemptions generally.—Exemption statutes are to be liberally construed to effect their intent and purpose.[41] They have no extra terri-

27. Aultman v. Higbee (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 955.
28. Foust v. Warren (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 404; Osborne v. Gatewood (Tex. Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 72.
29. McGill v. Sutton (Kan.) 72 Pac. 853.
30. Magruder v. Schley, 18 App. D. C. 288.
31. Kendall v. Smith (Kan.) 72 Pac. 543. An execution will not be enjoined on the ground that the judgment debtor was not served with summons, where he fails to allege or prove an equitable defense—Foust v. Warren (Tex. Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 404.
32. Noerdlinger v. Huff, 31 Wash. 360, 72 Pac. 73.
33. Harris v. Gano, 117 Ga. 934.
34, 35. Fairfield v. Day (N. H.) 55 Atl. 219.
36. Where a judgment is subsequently reversed and the property ordered to be reconveyed, the debtor is entitled to the rents and profits which were or might have been received by the purchaser during his occupation less the amount paid for repairs, insurance and taxes and the amount paid by the purchaser in interest—Cavenaugh v. Wilson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1507, 71 S. W. 870. It is the duty of the judgment creditor to restore the property to the judgment debtor after the reversal of the judgment—Nelson v. City of Beatrice (Neb.) 96 N. W. 288.
37. Black v. Vermont Marble Co., 137 Cal. 683, 70 Pac. 776.
38. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 957—Dowdell v. Carpy, 137 Cal. 333, 70 Pac. 167.
39. Dowdell v. Carpy, 137 Cal. 333, 70 Pac. 167.
40. See, also, Taxes for exemption from.

torial effect and operate only against executions issued in the state of claimant's residence,[42] being governed in bankruptcy proceedings by the law of the domicile.[43] The state may regulate and change exemptions at will.[44]

§ 2. Persons who may claim exemptions.—Exemption laws are frequently confined to certain classes of persons, such as laborers[45] or heads of families.[46]

§ 3. Goods and other chattel properties exempted.—The laws of some of the states exempt the proceeds of insurance policies and beneficiary certificates,[47] pension money,[48] wages or earnings,[49] tools or implements of trade,[50] live stock,[51] and taxation; Homesteads for exemption of homesteads; Estates of Decedents for widow's allowance.

41. Cook v. Allee (Iowa) 93 N. W. 93; Caldwell v. Renfro (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 340.

42. Sexton v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 1; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Rogers, 52 W. Va. 450; Dinkins v Crunden-Martin Woodenware Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 246.

43. In re Le Vay, 125 Fed. 990; Pulsifer v. Hussey, 97 Me. 434; In re Boyd, 120 Fed. 999; McKenney v. Cheney (Ga.) 45 S. E. 433; In re Staunton, 117 Fed. 507. Decisions of the state court declaring certain specific property exempt will be followed—In re Stone, 116 Fed. 35; Page v. Edmunds, 187 U. S. 596.

44. Kittel v. Domeyer, 175 N. Y. 205. Laws increasing their amount are not objectionable as impairing the obligation of contracts—Folsom v. Asper, 25 Utah, 299, 71 Pac. 315.

45. One engaged at manual labor is not to be deprived of his exemption as a laborer by the fact that he has control of other employes engaged in similar work—Stothart v. Melton, 117 Ga. 460. A person having the care of a stallion kept for breeding purposes is a laborer (Code of Iowa, § 4008)—Krebs v. Nicholson, 118 Iowa, 134.

46. A person bound to support a child of a former marriage is the head of a family within a statute exempting wages of such persons—Maag v. Williams, 92 Mo. App. 674. A partner though the head of a family cannot claim an exemption in the partnership property levied on by firm creditors—Lynch v. Englehardt, etc., Mercantile Co. (Neb.) 96 N. W. 524. A married woman claiming the benefit of the South Dakota exemption laws must show that she is head of a family—Blount v. Medbery (S. D.) 94 N. W. 428. In some states the wife may claim the exemption where the husband neglects or refuses to make the claim (Comp. Laws S. D. § 5133)—Thompson v. Donahoe (S. D.) 92 N. W. 27; Baum v. Turner, 25 Ky. L. R. 600, 76 S. W. 129.

47. Pulsifer v. Hussey, 97 Me. 434. The provision of the bankruptcy act that an insured shall pay to the trustee the cash surrender value of a policy payable to himself, his estate, or personal representatives and thereafter may continue to hold such policy free from claims of creditors, does not include policies payable to the wife or kindred of insured, but only applies to policies payable to insured or his personal representatives—Id. Moneys received from a fraternal insurance society are exempt under the laws of New York (Laws N. Y. 1901, c. 397)—Ellenson v. Schwartz, 38 Misc. (N. Y.) 669. Under the law that life insurance premiums in excess of $500 annually renders the insurance purchased with the excess liable to insured's debts, premiums on policies assigned by the wife and her husband before his death to secure a debt of the husband will not be considered as part of $500 or charged against the wife in determining the amount of life insurance to which she is entitled—Kittel v. Domeyer, 175 N. Y. 205. Under such laws, the wife is not deprived of any portion of the insurance moneys, until it is determined that the other assets of deceased will not satisfy the creditors' claims and until such claims are discharged, they are a lien on the insurance purchased in excess of the premium allowed by law—Id. A provision exempting the proceeds of insurance policies for prior debts of beneficiary exempts property purchased therewith (Code Iowa, § 1805)—Cook v. Allee (Iowa) 93 N. W. 93. A mutual aid society having no ritual composed of members of a secret society is not within an act exempting benefits received from secret societies having a lodge system with a ritualistic form of work—Miles v. Odd Fellows Mut. Aid Ass'n (Conn.) 55 Atl. 607.

48. Under laws exempting pension moneys and property purchased therewith property of less value than the statutory exemption on which a mortgage has been discharged with pension money is exempt (Code Civ. Proc. Neb. § 531b)—Dargan v. Williams (Neb.) 91 N. W. 862. The pension money exemption extends to property taken in exchange for property discharged from a lien with pension money and the increase of such property—Id.

49. A provision that one-half the earnings of a debtor shall be exempt and that the exemption sum in all cases shall not exceed a certain sum, means that the exemption shall not be reduced to a less amount (Rev. St. 1899, p. 1019, § 3951)—Lafferty v. Sistalla (Wyo.) 72 Pac. 192. Where money due the laborer is exempt it cannot be reached by garnishment—Hill v. Arnold, 116 Ga. 45. The Missouri statute exempting apparel and implements of unmarried persons does not cover salary or wages of such persons (Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3158)—Dinkens v. Crunden-Martin Woodenware Co., 91 Mo. App. 209. The laws of Montana allow a placer miner the gold dust taken from claim within 30 days next preceding a levy where he is a poor man at the head of a family and the debt is not for necessaries (Code Civ. Proc. § 1222, subd. 7)—Dayton v. Ewart (Mont.) 72 Pac. 420.

50. A laborer having the care of a stallion kept for breeding purposes may claim a road cart and harness used as a means of conveyance to different standing stations (Code Iowa, § 4008)—Krebs v. Nicholson, 118 Iowa, 134.

51. An exemption of a certain number of in some cases property of a specified value to be selected by the debtor.[52] In such case the debtor may claim as exempt a debt,[53] a judgment,[54] a seat in a stock exchange,[55] property not paid for by him where the seller had no lien thereon,[56] the proceeds of property which had been assigned by him for the benefit of his creditors in the hands of his trustee,[57] a liquor license.[58] In Nebraska, one against whom property is partitioned in proceedings by a creditor may not claim an exemption in the proceeds.[59]

The proceeds of the sale of exempt property,[60] and homesteads, are exempt,[61] as is a judgment recovered in protecting an exemption.[62]

§ 4. Debts and liabilities inferior or superior to right of exemption.—In some states, there may be no exemption in property against a creditor for the purchase price,[63] or for necessaries.[64] Court costs cannot be enforced against the bankrupt's exemptions,[65] nor can a court of bankruptcy subrogate the trustee to the right of a creditor who had acquired a lien on the bankrupt's exempt property.[66] Exemptions cannot be claimed against penalties for violation of laws.[67]

§ 5. Loss of exemption rights.—The exemption is lost by a fraudulent disposition of the debtor's property.[68] The right is not lost by failure to make im-hogs to the head of a family, is for the purpose of furnishing food and will not include a hog chiefly valuable for exhibition use on account of his large size (Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3159)—Wabash R. Co. v. Bowring (Mo. App.) 77 S. W. 106.

52. The $300 exemption allowed the head of a family in Missouri is in addition to the household and other specifically exempt property (Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3162)—Rolla State Bank v. Borgfeld, 93 Mo. App. 62.

53. Rolla State Bank v. Borgfeld, 93 Mo. App. 62; Green v. Baxter, 91 Mo. App. 633.

54. Bowen v. Holden, 95 Mo. App. 1. The assignor of a judgment having a residuary interest therein may claim an exemption in such interest though the assignment would have been constructively fraudulent as to creditors—Green v. Baxter, 91 Mo. App. 633.

55. Pennsylvania court decisions so holding followed (Page v. Edmonds, 187 U. S. 596) but see as to a working tool under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1391—Leggett v. Waller, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 408.

56. In re Butler, 120 Fed. 100.

57. In re Talbott, 116 Fed. 417. But exemptions cannot be claimed out of property recovered by the trustee which had been transferred as a preference—In re Long, 116 Fed. 113. But where he had transferred a judgment to a trustee for certain creditors, and the trustee did not assume ownership and it was paid to the trustee in bankruptcy the bankrupt may claim exemption therein—Bashinski v. Talbott (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 337.

58. In re Celewine, 125 Fed. 840.

59. First Nat. Bank v. Snyder (Neb.) 96 N. W. 285.

60. Brand v. Clements, 116 Ga. 392.

61. Lee v. Hughes (Ky.) 77 S. W. 386.

62. Long v. Collins (S. D.) 94 N. W. 700. A judgment for the value of exempt property seized and sold on execution is exempt—Treat v. Wilson, 65 Kan. 729, 70 Pac. 893.

63. Cannon v. Dexter Broom & Mattress Co. (C. C. A.) 120 Fed. 657. Under the laws subjecting personalty to execution for the purchase price, the right of a creditor to seize such property is not lost by the fact that the purchaser gave notes providing that until payment was made title should remain in the seller who could take possession on default without legal process as the right given by the note was cumulative and not exclusive of the statutory right (Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3170)—De Loach Mill Mfg. Co. v. Lathan (Mo. App.) 72 S. W. 1080. Where a bankrupt invoked the benefit of the bankrupt act and prevented the seller of exempt property from obtaining judgment and levying execution thereon as required by a law declaring that none of the exemptions prescribed should be allowed against the execution for the purchase money of the property, he could not object that the court of bankruptcy had no jurisdiction to order the property sold and the proceeds applied to the unpaid purchase price on the ground that no judgment had been recovered or execution levied—In re Boyd, 120 Fed. 999.

64. What are necessaries within the exemption statutes making wages liable for necessaries, is a question of fact dependent on circumstances of the case—Fisher v. Shea, 97 Me. 372. Legal services rendered in behalf of defendant in an action for assault have been held necessaries—Id. The fact that defendant was not arrested in the action, but was liable to arrest on execution after judgment against him, may be considered in determining the necessity of attorney's services—Id.

65. In re Hines, 117 Fed. 790; In re Le Vay, 125 Fed. 990.

66. In re Rosenberg, 116 Fed. 402.

67. Under the gambling statute of Indiana, the state's right to recover depends on the statute solely and one winning at gambling is not entitled to the benefit of the exemption law as against an execution issued on a judgment against him in its favor—State v. Morgan (Ind.) 67 N. E. 186.

68. Hoodinpyle v. Bagby, 104 Ill. App. 620; In re Duffy, 118 Fed. 926; In re Taylor, 114 Fed. 607; In re Evans, 116 Fed. 909. As where he carried on a business in the name of another as agent, and nearly all the indebtedness was created within five months mediate claim,[69] nor by mere promises before right to claim becomes available,[70] nor by a husband's abandonment of his family, they may still be claimed by the wife.[71] The right of the head of a family to an exemption attaches at the time of the levy and is not lost by a later removal from the state.[72] An agreement of partners that their business be continued by another, the proceeds to be devoted to the payment of debts waives the exemptions of the members of the firm.[73] An instrument waiving exemptions is binding on an assignee.[74]

§ 6. Selling or transferring exempt property.—The ownership of exempt property is absolute,[75] and a sale by a debtor to his creditor is not in fraud of other creditors.[76] In some states, a mortgage of exempt property requires joint execution by the husband and wife.[77]

§ 7. How the right is claimed and enforced.—The exemption right is personal and may not be claimed by another.[78] The claim may be made at any time before the actual appropriation of the property to the payment of the debt.[79] The manner of claiming exemptions is regulated by the statutes of the various states,[80] and in bankruptcy proceedings by the bankruptcy act.[81]

preceding his bankruptcy and the better portion of the stock was sold off at auction, the balance being worth less than the exemption—In re Williamson, 114 Fed. 190. Sufficiency of evidence to show that the bankrupt was not chargeable with fraud in concealing property from creditors, such being the ground of forfeiture of exemptions under Georgia Code, § 2830—In re Stephens, 114 Fed. 192; In re Boorstin, 114 Fed. 696; In re Thompson, 115 Fed. 924. Evidence held insufficient to show a fraudulent disposition of property by a bankrupt so as to effect a forfeiture of his exemptions under the state law—In re Duffy, 118 Fed. 926. There is a showing of fraud preventing one from claiming exemptions where he makes a showing as to his property as largely in excess of liabilities and seven months later makes another showing indicating a shrinkage of about nine-tenths and there is no explanation of the cause of depreciation—Blount v. Medbery (S. D.) 94 N. W. 428. Where the sale is for a fair consideration and with an honest motive the right will not be lost though the effect is to leave nothing for creditors—In re Duffy, 118 Fed. 926. A sale of property held fraudulent does not restore title to the vendor beneficially so that he may claim an exemption therein. The vendee may claim any right there is to exemption—Williamson v. Wilkinson (Miss.) 33 So. 282.

69. Mere failure of debtor to assert right in attachment suit by motion or application to discharge the attachment or for a release of the property on the ground that it is exempt is not a waiver—Rempe v. Ravens (Ohio) 67 N. E. 282. Demand may be made at any time before actual appropriation to the creditor's claim—Id.

70. A prospective exemption in the avails of an insurance policy is not lost by mere statement of insured that he intends their use for the payment of his debts (Code Iowa, § 3313)—O'Melia v. Hoffmeyer (Iowa) 93 N. W. 497.

71. Baum v. Turner, 25 Ky. L. R. 600, 76 S. W. 129.

72. Caldwell v. Renfro (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 340.

73. Levy v. Rosell (Miss.) 34 So. 321.

74. Barhyte v. New Hampshire Real Estate Co. (Kan.) 71 Pac. 837.

75. Creditors may not question its transfer—Skinner v. Jennings (Ala.) 34 So. 622.

76. Heisch v. Bell (N. M.) 70 Pac. 572.

77. Searle v. Gregg (Kan.) 72 Pac. 544. Idaho Act Feb. 16, 1899—Kindall v. Lincoln Hardware & Imp. Co. (Idaho) 70 Pac. 1056; Alexander v. Logan, 65 Kan. 505, 70 Pac. 339. In Wisconsin the mortgage is invalidated by want of witness to wife's signature—Lashua v. Myhre (Wis.) 93 N. W. 811. Laws requiring joint consent of husband and wife to mortgage of exempt property require joint signature and not joint acknowledgment (Code Iowa, § 2906)—Brown v. Koenig (Mo. App.) 74 S. W. 407.

78. Assignee, (Wabash R. Co. v. Bowring [Mo. App.] 77 S. W. 106) garnishee—Dinkins v. Crunden-Martin Woodenware Co. (Mo. App.) 73 S. W. 246.

79. Rempe v. Ravens (Ohio) 67 N. E. 282; Messenger v. Murphy (Wash.) 74 Pac. 480. The claim may be made while the fund realized on execution is in the hands of the court when the levying officer did not notify the debtor of his exemption—Rolla State Bank v. Borgfeld, 93 Mo. App. 62. The exemption laws of North Carolina do not prevent an action to charge the separate estate of a married woman though her personal estate does not exceed the statutory amount (Code N. C. § 443)—Harvey v. Johnson (N. C.) 45 S. E. 644.

80. Under the laws of New Jersey wages can be reached under execution only under an order of court determining the amount to be paid from time to time. Acts N. J. 1901, p. 372, may not be evaded by attachment against non-absconding debtor—Morgarum v. Moon, 63 N. J. Eq. 586. The debtor need not cite the law under which he makes his claim—Rolla State Bank v. Borgfeld, 93 Mo. App. 62. A second affidavit of exemption is not required on a second garnishment—Lafferty v. Sistalla (Wyo.) 72 Pac. 192. Under acts exempting earnings for personal services rendered within 60 days next before commencement of supplementary proceedings and necessary for support the debtor must show that the money was the result of his personal services—In re Wyman, 76 App.

§ 8. Recovery for selling exempt property or evading exemption laws.—A wife abandoned by her husband may sue for the wrongful attachment of exempt property.[82] Where special damages are not averred, the recovery is the value of the property with interest from the date of the levy.[83] In an action for conversion of exempt property, a judgment will not be allowed as a set-off.[84]

Injunction will lie to prevent the prosecution of a suit in a foreign jurisdiction in evasion of the exemption laws.[85] It will not lie to prevent the employer from paying wages to a nonresident assignee; the remedy is by action against the employer for the wages.[86] A judgment creditor assigning his judgment to a nonresident to evade the exemption laws of the debtor's state is made liable to the debtor by the laws of Nebraska.[87]

EXHIBITIONS AND SHOWS.

Public buildings cannot be used for entertainment purposes for private profit.[88] To permit persons to stand in the passageways leading to exits in theatres is

Div. (N. Y.) 292. Allegation that property levied on is not exempt must be proved. Plaintiff must prove the allegation of a garnishment affidavit that the indebtedness is not exempt—Eastlund v. Armstrong (Wis.) 94 N. W. 301. The laws allowing an exemption of personalty, household goods and tools worth $1,250 evidence of ownership of household goods, a piano, tools and office furniture worth upwards of $1,000 does not show personalty subject to execution—Whitworth v. McKee (Wash.) 72 Pac. 1046.

81. The particular property which the bankrupt wishes to retain under the state exemption laws must be set up in his schedule (In re Duffy, 118 Fed. 926; In re Le Vay, 125 Fed. 990) and he must follow the procedure required by the state statute. Merely claiming the benefit of the statute held insufficient—In re Garner, 115 Fed. 200. If the trustee failed to follow the statute in setting aside the exemption to which the bankrupt is entitled, he will not be allowed the payment. Bankruptcy Act, § 47, subd. 11, makes it the duty of the trustee to set aside exemptions of the bankrupt and "report the same to the court"—In re Hoyt, 119 Fed. 987. Where no trustee has been appointed, the bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to set apart particular property belonging to the bankrupt as exempt, though § 47, (11) makes it the duty of the trustee to set it apart—Smalley v. Laugenour, 30 Wash. 307, 70 Pac. 786. In ejectment brought by a purchaser under execution sale three days after the defendants filed a petition in bankruptcy, the defendants may show an order made by the bankruptcy court setting aside the particular property as exempt (Id.). If the only assets of a voluntary bankrupt were exempt and there was no necessity for the appointment of a trustee, the court still had jurisdiction to order it set apart, (Id.). The order relates back to the time of the filing of the petition and it is an adjudication that there are no existing liens thereon—Id. The act of the trustee in bankruptcy in setting aside exempt property is a ministerial act—In re Campbell, 124 Fed. 417. Where an exemption is set apart under the state law the trustee in bankruptcy acquires no title to the exempt property—McKenney v. Cheney (Ga.) 45 S. E. 433. As no title to exempt property passes to the trustee in bankruptcy, creditors having claims for unpaid portions of the purchase price of property, claiming the right to have it sold and the proceeds applied to their claims are proper persons to present the action and not the trustee in bankruptcy (In re Boyd, 120 Fed. 999) and it is no longer within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court (In re Seydel, 118 Fed. 207); therefore the court cannot entertain a petition after the discharge of the bankrupt for a readjustment of the exemptions. If the creditor had notice of the claim of exemptions and failed to appear and object to the allowance he would at any rate be precluded by laches to have the proceedings re-opened after discharge of the bankrupt and the exemptions readjusted, (In re Reese, 115 Fed. 993) or to enforce a special lien against it, (In re Seydel, 118 Fed. 207) or a lien not affected by the bankrupt's discharge—White v. Thompson (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 868. A creditor may object to a bankrupt's exemption allowance—In re Campbell, 124 Fed. 417. Where on the hearing of the exceptions to the report setting aside exempt property to the bankrupt neither the bankrupt nor creditors holding notes waiving exemptions made proof that the property set off was paid for and the referee decided against the right of exemption the cause will not be reopened for such proof after sale of the property by agreement of the parties in interest—Id.

82. Baum v. Turner, 25 Ky. L. R. 600, 76 S. W. 129.

83. Morris v. Williford (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 228. Plaintiff's conclusion as to the amount of the damages is inadmissible; he must show the circumstances—Id.

84. Staggs' Heirs v. Piland (Tex. Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 762.

85. Galbraith v. Rutter, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 554; Biggs v. Colby (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 910. An injunction to restrain the prosecution of a suit in a foreign jurisdiction in evasion of the exemption laws is to prevent a fraud and not to stay proceedings within a law against injunction to stay proceedings on judgments under a certain amount—Id. The writ will not be denied by reason of statutes against its issuance where the judgment is by some laws forbidden.[89] The space between the orchestra circle seats and the rear wall has been held not a "passageway,"[90] but the space necessary to reach a side entrance to the theatre is.[91] A statute making it unlawful to refuse to admit to an opera house, theatre, or race course any adult person who produces a ticket, is a proper exercise of the police power of the state,[92] and a recovery under such statute will not include damages for injuries to the business of the person refused admittance,[93] though exemplary damages may be awarded.[94]

For injuries to spectators resulting from the negligence of the exhibitor, he may be held liable,[95] and whether proper precautions were taken to protect spectators is a question for the jury.[96]

EXPLOSIVES AND COMBUSTIBLES.

Cities may regulate the storage of combustibles and explosives,[97] and prohibit the explosion of firecrackers without the written consent of the mayor.[98]

A statute punishing the manufacture of compressed gases in tenements does not prohibit their use therein in the manufacture of other compounds.[99] Ignorance of the existence or scope of an ordinance against shooting firecrackers and the fact of general violation of same without punishment will not excuse a violation of the ordinance.[1] The inspector of combustibles in New York, knowing of an illegal storage, may confiscate same without orders from the fire commissioner.[2]

The care required in the use of explosives is that of ordinarily prudent men having in mind the dangerous nature of the agency,[3] and it is the duty of a seller to notify purchasers of inherent dangers.[4] The placing of dynamite par-less than a stated amount as such statutes have no extra territorial effect—Id.

86. Galbraith v. Rutter, 20 Pa. Super. Ct. 554.

87. Sufficiency of evidence of an evasive assignment—Frieden v. Conkling (Neb.) 96 N. W. 615.

88. The owner of an opera house, however, cannot restrain such use—Amusement Syndicate Co. v. Topeka (Kan.) 74 Pac. 606. School buildings—Sugar v. Monroe, 108 La. 677, 59 L. R. A. 723.

89. Laws 1897, c. 378; New York City Charter—Sturgis v. Grau, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 330.

90. Sturgis v. Grau, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 330.

91. Sturgis v. Hayman, 84 N. Y. Supp. 126.

92. St. 1893, p. 220, c. 185—Greeneberg v. Western Turf Ass'n (Cal.) 73 Pac. 1050.

93. Evidence of other refusals than the one sued on is therefore not admissible—Greeneberg v. Western Turf Ass'n (Cal.) 73 Pac. 1050.

94. Under Code Cal. § 3294—Greeneberg v. Western Turf Ass'n (Cal.) 73 Pac. 1050.

95. Held not liable for injuries resulting from explosion of fireworks—Sebeck v. Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 11. An agricultural society is in duty bound to use reasonable care in keeping its grounds and approaches thereto safe (Thornton v. Maine State Agr. Soc., 97 Me. 108) and in granting exhibition privileges to, and in the exercise of such privileges by others, it must see that public safety is not jeopardized—Texas State Fair v. Marti (Tex. Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 432; Texas State Fair v. Brittain (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 713.

It is not, however, necessary to expressly state facts in the declaration wherein the defendant neglected its duty in failing to take proper care of its grounds—Benedict v. Union Agr. Soc., 74 Vt. 91.

96. Sebeck v. Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 11.

97. An ordinance making it unlawful to store explosive oils within 1,000 feet of dwellings, stores, etc., in greater quantities than 250 gallons is not unreasonable as applied to a plant in operation before the erection of such buildings—Standard Oil Co. v. Danville, 199 Ill. 50.

98. Not void as a delegation of legislative power—Centralia v. Smith (Mo. App.) 77 S. W. 488.

99. Pen. Code, § 389—People v. Lichtman, 173 N. Y. 63.

1. Nor the fact that the citizens had advertised a Fourth of July celebration—Centralia v. Smith (Mo. App.) 77 S. W. 488.

2. Greater New York Charter, §§ 727, 728, 731, 763, 771—People v. Murray, 76 App. Div. (N. Y.) 118.

3. Steam boilers—Merryman v. Hall (Mich.) 91 N. W. 647. Gas—Indianapolis Abattoir Co. v. Temperly, 159 Ind. 651. Persons giving fireworks exhibitions must use the care and prudence of ordinarily prudent men to protect spectators from injury and this care is used where competent persons are employed to superintend the exhibit and spectators are required to view the exhibit at a reasonable distance from the place of discharge—Sebeck v. Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 11.

4. A seller of champagne cider negligently charged without testing bottles and failing to notify purchaser of its intrinsic danger is liable for injuries caused by its extially exposed on a vacant lot used by children as a play ground constitutes actionable negligence.[5] Persons engaged in blasting are liable for injuries to buildings without regard to the care exercised.[6]

Under laws which require ventilation of mines, a mine owner failing in this respect is liable for injuries caused by explosion of gas.[7]

It is not unlawful or a nuisance per se to shoot bombs, rockets, and explosives in a careful and suitable manner on one's own premises.[8] It is negligence for persons giving fireworks exhibits to discharge bombs so poorly constructed that they will not explode in the air and are thrown into private premises where they may be handled by persons not acquainted with their dangerous nature.[9] Where the defect in fireworks is not apparent or discoverable on inspection, the failure of exhibitors to ascertain the defect is not negligence.[10] A fireworks company selling a bill of goods and sending a man to superintend their firing is liable for his negligence.[11]

Actions for injuries.—The negligence of defendant must be shown as in other cases of negligence.[12] An engineer injured by the explosion of oil purchased by his employer may not maintain an action against the seller.[13] For breach of warranty in the sale of a flash lamp warranted to contain no explosive compound, scienter need not be alleged.[14] On the question of negligence in blasting causing injury to building, the weight of the blasting charges used, the preparation of holes for the charge, the weight put upon the blasts, and their effect on the damaged walls, may be shown.[15] Negligence in the manufacture of lubricating oil will not be inferred from the fact of an explosion where gasolene was used in the room for lighting purposes.[16] The measure of damages for injuries to buildings caused by an explosion is the fair and reasonable cost of restoration to condition at the time of the explosion.[17] There may be a recovery for disease resulting from nervous shock caused by blasting.[18]

Contracts relating to grounds or buildings often contain stipulations regulating keeping of explosives.[19]

EXTORTION.

The crime at common law is the unlawful taking, by any officer, by color of his office, of money or other valuable thing not due to him or more than is due or before it is due. It sometimes signifies any injury under color of right.[20] plosion—Weiser v. Holzman (Wash.) 73 Pac. 797.

5. Nelson v. McLellan, 31 Wash. 208, 71 Pac. 747.

6. Fitzsimons v. Braun, 199 Ill. 390.

7. Tenn. Acts 1881, § 7—Russell v. Dayton Coal & Iron Co., 109 Tenn. 43. Injuries from explosion of gas generally, see Gas.

8, 9. Bianki v. Greater American Exposition Co. (Neb.) 92 N. W. 615.

10. Sebeck v. Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 11.

11. Consolidated Fireworks Co. v. Koehl (Ill.) 68 N. E. 1077.

12. That injury occurred on vacant lot of defendant used as dump and by material from the ammunition maker's plant not sufficient where explosive was not put on lot by defendant but must have been removed from plant surreptitiously—Travell v. Bannerman, 174 N. Y. 47. A manufacturer of powder fuse conducting his business with care is not liable for an explosion of a powder magazine caused by the wilful act of a stranger—Kleebauer v. Western Fuse & Explosives Co., 138 Cal. 497, 71 Pac. 617, 60 L. R. A. 377. Sufficiency of evidence as to the effect of explosion—Cameron v. New England Tel. Co.; 182 Mass. 310.

13. Standard Oil Co. v. Murray (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 572.

14. Wood v. Anthony & Co., 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 111.

15. Cebrelli v. Church Const. Co., 84 N. Y Supp. 919.

16. Standard Oil Co. v. Murray (C. C. A.) 119 Fed. 572.

17. Consolidated Gas Co. v. Getty, 96 Md. 683; Fitzsimons Co. v. Braun, 199 Ill. 390; Irvine v. Smith, 204 Pa. 58.

18. Watkins v. Kaolin Mfg. Co., 131 N. C. 536, 60 L. R. A. 617.

19. See Insurance; Landlord & Tenant.

20. Cyc. Law Dict. "Extortion." The term is often in loose use confused with Blackmail, ante, p. 343, and with the statutory Threatening discharge from employment is not a menace to "property" within a statutory definition of "extortion by threats."[21]

An indictment for "extortion by threats" need not particularize the threat.[22] Evidence of relationship of parties is admissible though incidentally showing other crimes.[23]

A civil remedy to forfeit overcharges by motion in the court wherein services were rendered gives a court jurisdiction though the sum is less than the ordinary jurisdictional minimum.[24]

EXTRADITION.

§ 1. International.—Under the treaty with Great Britain, extradition cannot be asked where the place of the offense was not at the time thereof under British rule.[25] Stockholder working for share of profits is within embezzlement clause of French treaty.[26] Funds in municipal savings bank are public funds within the treaty with Prussia.[27] Acts "made criminal by the laws of both countries" include acts made criminal by the demanding government and the state where the fugitive is found,[28] and absolute identity of statutes is not essential.[29]

Proceedings.—A United States commissioner must have been designated to act in extradition proceedings.[30] The proceedings must be in the state or district where the fugitive is found.[31] No preliminary requisition from the demanding government is necessary,[32] nor is evidence of authority of foreign consul to make complaint.[33] The complaint must charge the offense with certainty.[34] Embassador's certificate to depositions, etc., substantially in language of Act Aug. 3, 1882, § 5, is sufficient.[35] Under the treaty with Russia, no copy of the warrant need be produced.[36]

Review.—Territorial jurisdiction of the demanding power over the place of the crime may be reviewed,[37] but sufficiency of the evidence to show criminality cannot be.[38] Objection that warrant should be returnable before judge issuing instead of commissioner cannot be raised for the first time on habeas corpus.[39] Pendency of a second complaint covering the same ground does not require dismissal of an appeal in habeas corpus proceedings.[40]

§ 2. Interstate.—Extradition depends on the federal constitution, not on comity.[41] One not in the demanding state at the time the offense was commit-crime of Threats. Oppression in office, see Officers and Public Employes.

21. Pen. Code, § 7—In re McCabe (Mont.) 73 Pac. 1106. Evidence held sufficient to show putting in fear—Glover v. People (Ill.) 68 N. E. 464.

22. Glover v. People (Ill.) 68 N. E. 464. Averments held sufficient to lay threats to accused within hearing of person threatened —Id. "Willful" held equivalent to malicious —Id.

23. Demand for reimbursement of expense of a former prosecution—Glover v. People (Ill.) 68 N. E. 464.

24. State v. Reeves (Fla.) 32 So. 814.

25. Not for offense committed in South African Republic before proclamation of annexation—In re Taylor, 118 Fed. 196.

26. He is a person "hired or salaried" by the corporation—In re Balensi. 120 Fed. 864.

27. In re Reiner, 122 Fed. 109.

28. Treaty with Great Britain (26 Stat. 29)—In re Wright, 123 Fed. 463.

29. Fraudulent acts as corporate director held extraditable—Wright v. Henkel, 190 U. S. 40.

30. Rev. St. U. S. § 5270. His jurisdiction is not impaired by the fact that the designation was not made until after the warrant was issued—Grin v. Shine, 187 U. S. 181. No designation is necessary to entitle him to administer the oath to the complainant—Id.

31. In re Walshe, 125 Fed. 572.

32, 33. Grin v. Shine, 187 U. S. 181.

34. Complaint for embezzlement held sufficient—Grin v. Shine, 187 U. S. 181.

35. The certificate was that the documents were so authenticated as to be admitted "in evidence" for similar purposes in Russia the words quoted not being in the statute—In re Grin, 112 Fed. 790.

36. Grin v. Shine, 187 U. S. 181.

37. In re Taylor, 118 Fed. 196.

38, 39. Grin v. Shine, 187 U. S. 181.

40. Wright v. Henkel, 190 U. S. 40.

41. People v. Hyatt, 172 N. Y. 176.

ted is not a "fugitive from justice,"[42] though he has been there after the crime but before the extradition,[43] but to make him a "fugitive" it is not necessary that he left to avoid prosecution.[44]

Proceedings.—The act giving the federal judge in the Indian Territory the power of a governor to demand extradition is valid.[45] Extradition may be had in a prosecution commenced by information.[46] The nature of the charge must be clearly shown,[47] and that it was not barred by limitation.[48] The essential elements are that the person has been charged in another state with a crime and has fled from justice.[49] The demand, and papers accompanying it, are to be considered in determining the validity of the warrant.[50] The copy of indictment accompanying the requisition need not state that it is such;[51] and conflicts in the affidavits as to date of indictment may be resolved in favor of the indictment.[52] The warrant for arrest and delivery need not recite the governor's findings,[53] and is sufficient if it command the officer to arrest the person demanded and deliver him to the demanding officer.[54] The evidence before the governor need not meet the requirements of legal proof.[55]

Review.—The warrant is only prima facie evidence,[56] as is the finding of the governor that the person is a fugitive;[57] but the action of the governor issuing the warrant cannot be reviewed,[58] and to authorize any review beyond the face of the papers the evidence must be in the record.[59] The question of guilt will not be tried,[60] and misjoinder of counts in the indictment will not be considered.[61]

Rights of extradited persons.—Discharge from arrest in civil process is not a matter of right after appearance.[62] One extradited for robbery may be tried for larceny from the person.[63]

FACTORS.[64]

A factor has no implied authority to delegate his powers.[65] His employment

42. Hyatt v. People, 188 U. S. 691. One shown to have left the demanding state after some of the acts constituting the crime were committed is a fugitive—State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594.

43. Hyatt v. People, 188 U. S. 691.

44. That having committed a crime within one state he was thereafter found in another is sufficient—Ex parte Dickson (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 943.

45. Either of the three district judges has the power conferred on the single judge in office when the act was passed (Act May 2, 1890, § 41)—Ex parte Dickson (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 943.

46. People v. Stockwell (Mich.) 97 N. W. 765.

47. Statement that charge was "uttering forged wills" held sufficient—State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594.

48. Statement that accused was a fugitive from justice held to avoid bar apparent from date of crime—State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594.

49. Information that prisoner hired a horse in New Jersey and failed to return same, that an indictment was found against him for larceny and that he thereafter fled from New Jersey and is now in New York is sufficient—People v. Warden of City Prison, 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 456.

50. State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594.

51. The governor's certificate stated that it appeared from the annexed papers that the defendant was charged with a crime, etc.—Ex parte Dickson (Ind. T.) 69 S. W. 943.

52. Affidavits were conflicting while caption of indictment agreed with the affidavit giving the date as after the crime—State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594.

53. State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594.

54. Pub. St. c. 263, § 8, requires that it authorize the demanding agent to take the prisoner to the state line and require all civil officers to render needful assistance—State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594.

55. Copy of affidavit certified by demanding governor held sufficient to show that accused was a fugitive—State v. Clough (N. H.) 55 Atl. 554.

56. It may be shown that the prisoner was not in the demanding state when the crime was committed (Hyatt v. People, 188 U. S. 691) but such fact does not require his discharge on habeas corpus (Id.) and accused is not entitled of right to be heard before the governor in respect thereto—State v. Clough (N. H.) 55 Atl. 554.

57. State v. Clough, 71 N. H. 594; Id., 55 Atl. 554; Bruce v. Rayner (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 481.

58. Hyatt v. People, 188 U. S. 691.

59. People v. Hyatt, 172 N. Y. 176.

60. Bruce v. Rayner (C. C. A.) 124 Fed. 481. But accused may show that the prosecution is barred by limitations—Id.

61. Indictment good under decisions of demanding state but constitutionality of practice doubtful—State v. Clough, 71 N. H 594.

62. It will be ordered only in case of may be terminated at any time where duration is not specified.[66] He must make reasonable and diligent effort to make the most favorable sale.[67]

A factor is not protected by good faith in disposing of feloniously or fraudulently acquired goods.[68]

Lien.—To have a lien, factor must have actual or constructive possession.[69] It is extinguished on wrongful conversion of the property.[70]

Proceeds of sale retained for application to uses of the principal become a trust fund.[71] If the factor takes notes he becomes personally liable on their negotiation or application to his own indebtedness.[72]

Commissions.—Though the factor first place the parties in business relations, that does not entitle him to commissions on their subsequent transactions.[73]

FALSE IMPRISONMENT.

§ 1. What constitutes, persons liable, and the recovery.—The actual detention of a person and the unlawfulness thereof constitute a trespass, the gravamen being the unlawfulness of the imprisonment,[74] and an arrest and detention on a writ or warrant not based on information,[75] or complaint filed,[76] or if the warrant is void on its face as where it failed to state that information, complaint, or affidavit had been filed, is unlawful.[77] Malice is not an element.[78]

If there was probable cause for making the arrest without a warrant no action will lie,[79] and the officer has the burden of proving justifiable cause,[80] by a pre-fraud or abuse of process—White v. Marshall, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 376.

63. The former offense including the latter—State v. Dunn (Kan.) 71 Pac. 811.

64. The distinction between a factor and a mere agent or broker lies in the possession of the property—People's Bank v. Frick Co. (Okl.) 73 Pac. 949. See Agency; Brokers.

65. Subagents or persons employed by him in handling the property do not become agents of his principal—People's Bank v. Frick Co. (Okl.) 73 Pac. 949.

66. Outerbridge v. Campbell, 84 N. Y. Supp. 537.

67. Where he agrees to get the highest obtainable price is not bound to obtain the highest market price—Craig v. Harrison-Switzer Milling Co., 103 Ill. App. 486. Ordinary care, skill and diligence relieves against sale for less than market value—Drumm-Flato Commission Co. v. Union Meat Co. (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 634.

68. Liable to true owner for conversion, though not negligent in believing the goods were placed in his hands for one having title and though a carrier has been negligent in allowing the goods to be diverted from their proper destination to the factor by means of a forged way bill—Johnson v. Martin, 87 Minn. 370, 59 L. R. A. 733. So factor is liable for conversion of goods which he sells which came into his hands from a buyer who had bought for cash and not paid, though the factor act in due course of business and without notice—Flannery v. Harley, 117 Ga. 483.

69. People's Bank v. Frick Co. (Okl.) 73 Pac. 949. Advances after possession has passed to purchaser will not support lien and he must sue in the name of his principal for purchase price though he sell in his own—Ermeling v. Gibson Canning Co., 105 Ill. App. 196.

70. People's Bank v. Frick Co. (Okl.) 73 Pac. 949.

71. If deposited in bank by the factors after their insolvency the bank if with knowledge of the insolvency is placed on inquiry and liable to true owner for diversion—Interstate Nat. Bank v. Claxton (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 44.

72. People's Bank v. Frick Co. (Okl.) 73 Pac. 949.

73. Employment to sell two trainloads of cattle which were shipped as one train, does not entitle factor to commissions on cattle subsequently shipped the purchaser who took the first on the consignor's agreement to make a further shipment of better quality—Taylor v. Johnston (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1022.

74. See this case for charge to jury—Petit v. Colmary (Del.) 55 Atl. 344.

75. As where defendant filed affidavits charging criminal offense informing the justice that the prosecuting attorney desired a warrant, no information being filed and no advice of a necessity of issuance of a warrant by the justice—McCaskey v. Garrett, 91 Mo. App. 354.

76. Kossouf v. Knarr (Pa.) 55 Atl. 854.

77. Church v. Pearne, 75 Conn. 350.

78. Kelly v. Durham Traction Co., 132 N. C. 368.

79. As where the plaintiff was standing on the platform of a moving train under circumstances indicating that he was intending to steal a ride under Laws 1897, p. 116—Summers v. Southern R. Co. (Ga.) 45 S. E. 27. The arrest of a person in commission of an act supposed to be criminal though not technically so, is justifiable—Van v. Pacific Coast Co., 120 Fed. 699.

80. Franklin v. Amerson (Ga.) 45 S. E. 698; Edger v. Burke, 96 Md. 715; Marshall v. Cleaver (Del.) 56 Atl. 380.

ponderance of evidence.[81] An attempted departure from the state with personalty in possession in violation of a contract is not an excuse for an arrest without a warrant.[82] A detention of the person, however, for a period longer than necessary to obtain a warrant, renders him liable for false imprisonment,[83] or if the officer of his own motion discharges the person he becomes a trespasser ab initio;[84] but if the officer made a justifiable arrest, the detention for the purpose of examining the person as to his sanity will not necessarily render the detention unlawful.[85] If the arrest was illegal because done by an officer without a warrant, recovery can be had for the detention only up to the time of delivery of custody to the officer having the warrant.[86]

If the justice who issues the warrant is without jurisdiction, he is personally liable.[87]

All persons assisting in the procurance and issuance of the void warrant,[88] or who without probable cause caused the arrest by an officer without a warrant, may be held liable.[89] Advice of counsel is not a defense by a person not acting in good faith.[90] Whether the prosecuting witness was guilty of mere inadvertence or negligence in causing a defective warrant to be issued is a question for the jury.[91] The principal is liable for the false arrest by his agent only where the latter acted within the scope of his authority in making the arrest,[92] and where the agent honestly believed that he was justified in making the arrest, but if done falsely and for the purpose of extortion, the principal would not be liable.[93] The question whether the principal ratified the acts of the agent in making the false arrest is for the jury.[94]

By accepting a discharge from the officer making the arrest without a warrant,[95] or by appearing pursuant to a void warrant,[96] or by pleading to the charge

81. Stewart v. Feeley, 118 Iowa, 524.

82. Park v. Taylor (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 34.

83. Burns' Rev. St. 1901, § 1771—Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286.

84. Stewart v. Feeley, 118 Iowa, 524; Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286.

85. Particularly where the person consented to his discharge by the officer after the report of the examining physicians—Mulberry v. Fuellhart, 203 Pa. 573.

86. McCullough v. Greenfield (Mich.) 95 N. W. 532.

87. The issuance by the justices of the peace sitting as a fiscal court, of a warrant to enforce attendance of another justice, is without jurisdiction—Stephens v. Wilson, 24 Ky. L. R. 1832, 72 S. W. 336. The arrest on an attachment of a witness for failure to appear in accordance with a subpoena issued after justice had lost jurisdiction of the action, renders the justice liable—Holz v. Rediske, 116 Wis. 353. Merely because the complaint on a criminal charge was defective would not render the justice issuing the warrant thereon liable as for a false imprisonment—Smith v. Jones (S. D.) 92 N. W. 1084. Because records of the court fail to show that sentence was imposed will not subject the court or its officer enforcing the sentence to liability for false imprisonment. The Mayor's Court causing the arrest not being a court of record; the failure is a mere irregularity—Gammage v. Mahaffey (La.) 35 So. 266.

88. As the prosecuting witness who made the complaint—McCaskey v. Garrett, 91 Mo. App. 354. The mere making of a complaint in good faith without further participation in the proceeding will not render the complaining witness liable (Smith v. Jones [S. D.] 92 N. W. 1084) as where he gave information of the fact that the plaintiff was of unsound mind and dangerous to persons and property of others—Dougherty v. Snyder, 97 Mo. App. 495. Sheriff making arrest under extradition warrant acts ministerially and despite his malice is not liable unless concerned in issuing writ—Regan v. Jessup (Tex. Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 972.

89. The complaint in such case must aver that it was done maliciously and without probable cause—Dierig v. South Covington & C. St. R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1825, 72 S. W. 355.

90. Burbanks v. Lepovsky (Mich.) 96 N W. 456.

91. Oates v. Bullock, 136 Ala. 537.

92. The proprietor of a department store is liable for a false arrest by a floor walker whose duty it was to watch customers and prevent them from doing wrongful acts—Cobb v. Simon (Wis.) 97 N. W. 276. Evidence held sufficient to submit the question of the consent of the husband to the wife's acts in causing arrest—Golibart v. Sullivan, 30 Ind. App. 428.

93. Cobb v. Simon (Wis.) 97 N. W. 276

94. Cobb v. Simon (Wis.) 97 N. W. 276. Ratification by the manager of a company is sufficient to render it liable—Simmon v. Bloomingdale, 81 N. Y. Supp. 499. Preparation for trial by the prosecutor without knowledge that the warrant was properly executed, is not ratification of the unlawful arrest—Oates v. Bullock, 136 Ala. 537.

without objecting to the mode of making the arrest, the plaintiff does not waive any rights.[97]

Damages.—If the arrest was unlawful, the plaintiff is entitled at least to nominal damages,[98] and exemplary damages can be recovered only when the officer acted maliciously.[99] Physical and mental pain and humiliation are proper elements of damage.[1] To warrant the recovery of special damages, they must be pleaded.[2] The amount of damages is a question for the jury.[3]

§ 2. The action to recover damages.—The complaint must aver detention and damage.[4] In Indiana, an allegation that the defendant unlawfully imprisoned plaintiff and deprived him of his liberty is sufficient,[5] but in New York, the complaint must set out the facts showing that the imprisonment and detention were caused by illegal means.[6]

The defense of justification must be pleaded,[7] and all the facts under which the defendant seeks to justify the arrest must be set out;[8] if the arrest was on a charge of felony, the plea need not state that it was under authority of a warrant.[9]

The defendant has the burden of establishing the legality of the arrest.[10] A discharge by the magistrate does not of itself establish that the plaintiff was improperly arrested.[11] Particular cases determining the admissibility and sufficiency of evidence and instructions by the court are collected in the footnotes.[12] The defendant may prove how much he earned, in mitigation of damages.[13]

95. Stewart v. Feeley, 118 Iowa, 524.

96. Church v. Pearne, 75 Conn. 350.

97. McCullough v. Greenfield (Mich.) 95 N. W. 532.

98. Kossouf v. Knarr (Pa.) 55 Atl. 854; Hoagland v. Forest Park Highlands Amusement Co., 170 Mo. 335; Maher v. Wilson, 139 Cal. 514, 73 Pac. 418.

99. Marshall v. Cleaver (Del.) 56 Atl. 380; Kelly v. Durham Traction Co., 132 N. C. 368; Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286; Petit v. Colmary (Del.) 55 Atl. 344. As affecting the question of damages, the defendant may show want of malice by proving that he had a mortgage and that he had probable cause to believe that plaintiff had removed it, the ground for the prosecution and arrest—Oates v. Bullock, 136 Ala. 537. Handcuffing plaintiff while under arrest held not ground for increasing the damages—McCullough v. Greenfield (Mich.) 95 N. W. 532.

1. Golibart v. Sullivan, 30 Ind. App. 428; Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286; Marshall v. Cleaver (Del.) 56 Atl. 380. See Petit v. Colmary (Del.) 55 Atl. 344 for charge to jury on elements of damage. In aggravation of damages plaintiff may show that he was arrested in the presence of his family—Young v. Gormley (Iowa) 94 N. W. 922.

2. Loss of time, however, may be proven on the allegation of deprivation of liberty—Young v. Gormley (Iowa) 94 N. W. 922. Under an allegation that plaintiff was put to an expense, he cannot prove an expense to secure his release—McCaffrey v. Thomas (Del.) 56 Atl. 382.

3. Young v. Gormley (Iowa) 94 N. W. 922; Pincham v. Dick (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 333. Damages held excessive (Cobb v. Simon [Wis.] 97 N. W. 276; Pincham v. Dick [Tex. Civ. App.] 70 S. W. 333); not excessive—Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286. In Kentucky a railroad may be sued for false imprisonment in a county through which it transported the plaintiff while under arrest that being the place of the injury—Evans v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 1258, 77 S. W. 708.

4. Pease v. Freiwald, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 549. Defect in petition held cured by answer—Evans v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 25 Ky. L. R. 1258, 77 S. W. 708. Complaint held not to state a cause of action—Dierig v. South Covington & C. St. R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1825, 72 S. W. 355.

5. Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286.

6. Pease v. Freiwald, 39 Misc. (N. Y.) 549.

7. Hoagland v. Forest Park Highlands Amusement Co., 170 Mo. 335. Mere matters of avoidance cannot be shown under a general issue—Noyes v. Edgerly, 71 N. H. 500. A general denial in an action against a justice and a constable is improper under Gen. St. Conn. 1902, § 609, and Court Rules, § 159—Church v. Pearne, 75 Conn. 350.

8. Edger v. Burke, 96 Md. 715.

9. Whether the officer was justified in making the arrest is a question to be determined by the court—Edger v. Burke, 96 Md. 715.

10. Black v. Marsh (Ind. App.) 67 N. E. 201.

11. Loughman v. Long Island R. Co., 83 App. Div. (N. Y.) 629.

12. Admissibility of evidence. (Golibart v. Sullivan, 30 Ind. App. 428; Hoagland v. Forest Park Highlands Amusement Co., 170 Mo. 335; Holz v. Rediske, 116 Wis. 353; Young v. Gormley [Iowa] 94 N. W. 922) on the question of damages—Bailey v. Warner (C. C. A.) 118 Fed. 395.

13. McCaffrey v. Thomas (Del.) 56 Atl. 382. Evidence tending to show a justification for the arrest, (Dougherty v. Snyder, 97 Mo. App. 495) or of good faith on the part of persons making arrest, is admissible—Pincham v. Dick (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 333. The result of the trial on the criminal charge cannot be shown by the plaintiff—McCaffrey v. Thomas (Del.) 56

FALSE PRETENSES AND CHEATS.[14]

Elements of offense.—The pretense or representation must be one respecting a fact.[15] It must be with knowledge and intent to deceive and defraud,[16] must be calculated to deceive,[17] and must deceive,[18] and be relied on.[19] The general rule is that the person to whom the pretense was addressed[20] must be defrauded.[21] The thing obtained must be within the statutes.[22] It is immaterial whether that which an infant procured was a "necessary."[23] Public moneys may be the subject of the crime,[24] and donations procured for an ostensible charity are included.[25] Partial truth[26] or negligence of the defrauded person is not a defense.[27] The crime is complete when and where the goods or property are surrendered.[28]

Atl. 382. Where the arrest was for contempt in attempting to avoid a subpoena, evidence of use of abusive language to the officer making the arrest is inadmissible—Holz v. Rediske, 116 Wis. 353.

Sufficiency of evidence (Young v. Gormley [Iowa] 94 N. W. 922; Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286; Burbanks v. Lepovsky [Mich.] 96 N. W. 456; Loughman v. Long Island R. Co., 83 App. Div. [N. Y.] 629) on question of probable cause (Burbanks v. Lepovsky [Mich.] 96 N. W. 456) to show bad faith on part of defendant in making the arrest, (Dougherty v. Snyder, 97 Mo. App. 495) to show ratification of an arrest caused by an employe—Kelly v. Durham Traction Co., 132 N. C. 368. The warrant on which plaintiff was arrested need not be offered in evidence, the legality of it not having been questioned—Kelly v. Durham Traction Co., 132 N. C. 368. Where the defendant is a corporation it is not necessary to prove who swore out the warrant, if it is shown that it was sworn out at the instigation or procurement of the defendant—Kelly v. Durham Traction Co., 132 N. C. 368.

Sufficiency of instructions—Edger v. Burke, 96 Md. 715; Cobb v. Simon (Wis.) 97 N. W. 276; Franklin v. Amerson (Ga.) 45 S. E. 698; Parham v. Shockler (Tex. Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 839; Harness v. Steele, 159 Ind. 286; Stewart v. Feeley, 118 Iowa, 524; Hoagland v. Forest Park Highlands Amusement Co., 170 Mo. 335; Pincham v. Dick (Tex. Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 333.

14. Includes falses pretenses proper and also analogous statutory crimes like cheats, swindling, confidence games and the like. In some states the offense is now covered by a statutory crime called larceny and as to those the title Larceny must be consulted since any separation would be impossible.

15. False representations of fact may consist in truthful statements of past facts coupled with a false declaration of future purpose—Smith v. State, 116 Ga. 587. Representations as to duty of school officers are of law—State v. Lawrence (Mo.) 77 S. W. 497.

Particular facts. Misrepresentation that one is an officer—Jackson v. State (Ga.) 44 S. E. 833. So under U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3679—United States v. Ballard, 118 Fed. 757. That accused had been injured in a collision and that injuries were of a certain character—Com. v. Burton, 183 Mass. 461.

16. Edwards v. State (Fla.) 33 So. 853. Mere concealment is not criminal—Crawford v. State, 117 Ga. 247.

17. School directors are presumed to know the law relating to purchase of books—State v. Lawrence (Mo.) 77 S. W. 497.

18. Obtaining money by pretenses of official character and threats of arrest for crime is blackmail when the fear of prosecution moved the threatened person—Jackson v. State (Ga.) 44 S. E. 833. See, also, United States v. Brown, 119 Fed. 482, a prosecution for obtaining money from one who had violated revenue laws.

19. Edwards v. State (Fla.) 33 So. 853; Jackson v. State (Ga.) 44 S. E. 833. Subsequent representations not criminal—State v. Pickett, 174 Mo. 663. They need not be the sole but only the controlling inducement—State v. Morgan, 109 Tenn. 157; Baker v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 566; Braxton v. State, 117 Ga. 703, citing 2 Clark & Marshall, Crimes, 841 and cases cited. If false pretenses of ownership were the inducement it makes no difference that a mortgage given on property was voidable for infancy—Lively v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 74 S. W. 321. Delivery to carrier by defrauded person is sufficient—In re Stephenson (Kan.) 73 Pac. 62. This element is not essential under Pen. Code 1895, art. 948 which makes the mere conversion by a guardian "swindling"—Walls v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 77 S. W. 8.

20. Code, § 1025 which dispenses with allegation of ownership covers a representation made to an agent who could not pass title. Obtaining from such an agent is not larceny—State v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 711.

21. The rule that one is not defrauded where accused only used false pretense to procure performance of a duty does not apply where the liability was uncertain and unliquidated and accused meant to defraud by obtaining too much—Com. v. Burton, 183 Mass. 461. If property was reclaimed under a mortgage for the price and no loss was suffered there is no crime—Lively v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 74 S. W. 321. A school district is not defrauded when beguiled into paying a legal obligation and a warrant if issued must be legally issued or the district being not liable is not defrauded—State v. Lawrence (Mo.) 77 S. W. 497.

22. Lodging is a "valuable thing" within the U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3679 relating to impersonating a federal officer—United States v. Ballard, 118 Fed. 757.

23. Lively v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 74 S. W. 321.

24. County defrauded by false auditing—State v. White (Del.) 54 Atl. 956.

25. Baker v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 566

A "cheat" has been held to mean such as not only to deceive the victim but also to thwart common prudence and care.[29]

The use of "false or bogus checks or other means, instruments," etc., includes worthless stocks.[30]

On a charge of presenting false pay rolls with intent to defraud, it need not be averred that he to whom they were presented had power to allow them.[31] In the crime of fraudulently disposing of goods purchased on credit,[32] it does not matter to whom they are sold.[33]

Indictment.[34]—Fraudulent intent must be averred.[35] Knowledge,[36] and the falsity of the pretense,[37] the nature of the fraud, artifice, or representation,[38] and reliance thereon,[39] the fact of defrauding,[40] the property or thing obtained,[41] and that it was obtained from the person defrauded,[42] must be set out with certainty. An indictment for aiding a cheat as a felony in another state must aver that it is such a felony there.[43] reviewing many cases and repudiating 17 Wend. 351, 31 Am. Dec. 303.

26. Mingling opinions with misrepresentations as to extent of injuries received—Com. v. Burton, 183 Mass. 461; Baker v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 566.

27. The mere fact of easy access to the truth by telephone does not disentitle one to rely—Harrison v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 421. Failure to examine a so called "cotton receipt" before making loan—Elmore v. State (Ala.) 35 So. 25. Records not examined showed that statement of "no incumbrances" was false—Keyes v. People, 197 Ill. 638; Crawford v. State, 117 Ga. 247.

28. Delivery to carrier to be shipped out of state—In re Stephenson (Kan.) 73 Pac.

62. Bunco game completed beyond state is not within jurisdiction—Cruthers v. State (Ind.) 67 N. E. 930. See Criminal Law; Indictment and Prosecution.

29. State v. Hood, 3 Pen. (Del.) 418.

30. Cr. Code, § 98—Du Bois v. People, 200 Ill. 157.

31. State v. Voute (Ohio) 67 N. E. 484.

32. 9000 laths out of 20000 purchased for a building held not a remnant which contractor might divert to another building (Rev. St. 1899, § 4226)—State v. Gregory, 170 Mo. 598.

33. Information need not state it—State v. Artus (La.) 34 So. 596.

34. Held sufficient against general demurrer—People v. Cadot, 138 Cal. 527, 71 Pac. 649. Offense of pretending to be revenue officers under Act Cong. April 18, 1884—United States v. Brown, 119 Fed. 482. Indictment for fraud in sale of wool under Ohio statute—Hogue v. State, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 567. Information for attempting to defraud bank issuing a certificate of deposit—State v. Riddell (Wash.) 74 Pac. 477.

35. "Designedly" or equivalent is requisite—State v. Pickett, 174 Mo. 663. Allegations of "knowledge" of falsity and of a "purpose to deceive" etc suffice—State v. Morgan, 109 Tenn. 157.

36. "Well knew" held sufficient—Baker v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 566.

37. But it need not be alleged that a chattel mortgage was a subsisting lien on property represented to be free of incumbrance (Cr. Code, par. 408)—Keyes v. People, 197 Ill. 638. Allegation that note represented to be valid was void and open to defense must particularize the defense and the invalidity—Com. v. Viser, 24 Ky. L. R. 1161, 70 S. W. 832. "That [accused] was not entitled" to a certain warrant which he obtained by falsely presenting unearned items of costs, held sufficient—State v. Morgan, 109 Tenn. 157. It need not state that accused was not authorized to settle a false charge of bastardy as he professed to be—People v. Stockwell (Mich.) 97 N. W. 765.

38. State v. Pickett, 174 Mo. 663. "Fraud and duress" too uncertain though the words of the statute—Haughn v. State (Ind.) 65 N. E. 287, 59 L. R. A. 789.

See note to Com. v. Weiss, 11 L. R. A. 530. Also, cases cited in note to 59 L. R. A. 789. Indictment for fraud—State v. Jaques, 65 S. C. 178. Charging part held inconsistent and repugnant as to representations alleged—State v. Lawrence (Mo.) 77 S. W. 497. Particular description and value of certain cattle which accused claimed to own for purpose of obtaining loan need not be added—State v. Hubbard, 170 Mo. 346. Fraudulent cost bills used need not be set out—State v. Morgan, 109 Tenn. 157. Fraudulent mortgage must be set out—Lively v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 74 S. W. 321. Sufficient allegations of fraud in obtaining county warrants—State v. Morgan, 109 Tenn. 157.

39. "By reason of" false representations accused "became possessed" is sufficient—State v. Morgan, 109 Tenn. 157. "By means of or by the use of" is requisite—State v. Pickett, 174 Mo. 663.

40. Where a teacher procured appointment of an assistant it must be averred that he was not entitled despite the falsehood to such assistance—State v. Mortimer (Miss.) 34 So. 214.

41. The procurement of a "signature" to an instrument does not appear from an allegation that the defrauded person "conveyed and delivered by warranty deed" certain land (Cr. Code, § 125)—Moline v. State (Neb.) 93 N. W. 228. County warrants may be set out by serial number and value—State v. Morgan, 109 Tenn. 157.

Proof of obtaining notes for $200 is not variant from "sum of $200."

42. It must state that he "did" deliver or part with property—State v. Kelly, 170 Mo. 151; State v. Hubbard, 170 Mo. 346. Proof of loan by a loan company not variant from allegation of loan by B (who did business in that name)—Elmore v. State (Ala.) 35 So. 25.

43. Cruthers v. State (Ind.) 67 N. E. 930.

Evidence[44] and trial.—Intent may be proved by similar transactions[45] or deceptions,[46] and guilty knowledge by equivocation and contradiction.[47] Circumstances may prove falsity.[48] It may be shown on re-direct examination that the defrauded person did not believe warnings given to him.[49]

Instructions.[50]—The sole testimony of accused is enough to call for a charge.[51] No instruction should be given respecting the legal rights of accused if his representations were true.[52]

Punishment.—An enactment of the same punishment as "larceny" means the same as prescribed for larceny of a like sum.[53]

FENCES.

§ 1. Division fences between co-terminous owners.—At common law, in the absence of agreement, an adjoining owner has no right to erect a division fence beyond his own land,[54] and the owner on whose land it is erected may remove it.[55] Statutes in many states provide for the joint maintenance of boundary fences,[56] and under them fence should rest equally upon the land of each of the co-terminus owners.[57] The adjoining owner may remove and rebuild the part of the division wall assigned to him without the consent of the other owner.[58] If the party bound to erect the division fence fails to do so, he cannot recover for a trespass committed by the adjoining owner's cattle,[59] and is liable if the animals are injured by reason of his failure to fence.[60]

§ 2. Fencing railroad right of way.—Railroads are usually required by statute to fence the right of way.[61] The company is entitled to a reasonable time to discover defects in the fence.[62]

44. Sufficiency of evidence. Swindling by cards—State v. Evans, 88 Minn. 262. Evidence in general—State v. Riddell (Wash.) 74 Pac. 477. Of the meaning of representations made—Smith v. State, 116 Ga. 587. Of deception of one who paid money when charged with bastardy—People v. Stockwell (Mich.) 97 N. W. 765. To show prudent reliance on verbal representations coupled with presentation of a "cotton ticket" which however was not an evidence of ownership—Elmore v. State (Ala.) 35 So. 25. Presentment of certificate of deposit at teller's window held a demand of payment—State v. Riddell (Wash.) 74 Pac. 477. Insufficient—State v. Lawrence (Mo.) 77 S. W. 497.

45. Com. v. Lubinsky, 182 Mass. 142; Baker v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 566.

46. Permitting others to be deceived as to the cause of injuries—Com. v. Burton, 183 Mass. 461.

47. State v. Riddell (Wash.) 74 Pac. 477.

48. Illustration. That a certificate of deposit was procured by a confidence game and that shortly afterwards accused presented it at bank—State v. Riddell (Wash.) 74 Pac. 477.

49. Com. v. Burton, 183 Mass. 461.

50. Instruction as to what is an "orphans' home" which accused professed to represent, sustained—Baker v. State (Wis.) 97 N. W. 566. Instructions as to validity of school warrants procured and power of directors held too narrow as omitting to submit an issue—State v. Lawrence (Mo.) 77 S. W. 497. Instruction held not misleading as to representations made to others than defrauded party (State v. Riddell [Wash.] 74 Pac. 477) as to representations of law and of fact held conflicting—State v. Lawrence (Mo.) 77 S. W. 497.

51. That accused believed the other knew the truth—Crawford v. State, 117 Ga. 247.

52. Com. v. Burton, 183 Mass. 461.

53. Three years in penitentiary sustained where $145 was obtained—People v. Wynn (Cal.) 74 Pac. 144.

54. Hoar v. Hennessey (Mont.) 74 Pac. 452. Erection of a fence by an adjoining owner enjoined as being within a contract between the parties—Silverfield v. Frank (Or.) 73 Pac. 1032.

55. The constructor cannot restrain such act—Currier v. Jones (Iowa) 96 N. W. 766.

56. The rights of private property are not invaded by a statute regulating the construction of division fences and inflicting a penalty for a violation thereof—Horan v. Byrnes (N. H.) 54 Atl. 945.

57. Hoar v. Hennessey (Mont.) 74 Pac. 452 and each must pay his proportionate share of the cost and maintenance thereof —Id.

58. Ropes v. Flint, 182 Mass. 473.

59. Oliver v. Hutchinson, 41 Or. 443, 69 Pac. 139, 1024; Gilmore v. Harp, 92 Mo. App. 77.

60. Howard v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 24 Ky. L. R. 1051, 70 S. W. 631.

61. A statute compelling railroads to erect fences along their right of way and on failure permitting the adjoining owner to erect same and recover the cost thereof with attorney's fees from the company is constitutional—Terre Haute & L. R. Co. v. Salmon (Ind.) 67 N. E. 918. Laws requiring railroads to fence their right of way are enacted for the benefit of the public at large—Ludtke v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co.,

§ 3. Destroying or injuring fences.—A threatened destruction of a fence may be restrained.[63] A wall used as a fence and not mentioned as a monument in any deed is not within a statute punishing the destruction of monuments,[64] but statutes exist in most states prohibiting the destruction of fences.[65]

§ 4. Erection by municipalities under stock-fence laws.—Statutes permitting public authorities to erect fences, generally known as stock-fence laws, to be valid must direct that the cost be assessed against the property benefited by the erection,[66] and the Arkansas statute is valid though it assesses the cost against the land, since such direction will be interpreted to mean according to the benefits.[67] Under the latter statute, a railroad right of way within the fencing district is not subject to assessment,[68] nor is the county poor farm,[69] nor are coal mines unless the lands containing the coal are also useful for agricultural or kindred purposes.[70] The proceedings creating fencing districts must be strictly followed,[71] and a written report of the plans and cost of the fence should be made to the court by the board.[72] The time within which the assessment can be questioned does not apply to jurisdictional and constitutional objections.[73]

FERRIES.[74]

County commissioners have a reasonable discretion as to the number of fer-

24 Ohio Circ. R. 120. Where the company is required to fence the duty is to the adjoining owner and not to the public. An owner of an animal therefore cannot recover for injuries to it where it entered the right of way from the unfenced land of another—Delphia v. Rutland R. Co. (Vt.) 56 Atl. 279. Generally railroads are not required to fence at places where public safety or convenience or safety of employes requires it to be kept open; as a place for switching—Redmond v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. (Mo. App.) 77 S. W. 768. Natural barrier held not to constitute a fence within the statute requiring railroads to fence—Taylor v. Spokane Falls & N. R. Co. (Wash.) 73 Pac. 499.

62. Colyer v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 93 Mo. App. 147; Hendrickson v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 68 N. J. Law, 612; Perrault v. Minneapolis, St. P., etc., R. Co. (Wis.) 94 N. W. 348. After a lapse of two years notice of the defect is presumed—Ludtke v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 24 Ohio Circ. R. 120.

63. Lynch v. Egan (Neb.) 93 N. W. 775.

64. R. L. c. 208, § 78—Ropes v. Flint, 182 Mass. 473.

65. The destruction of another's fence which does not inclose the owner's land is not within the statute inflicting a penalty for the destruction of another's fence (Rev. St. 1899, § 4573)—Wilson v. Burton, 96 Mo. App. 686. The person pulling down or removing the fence is liable to criminal prosecution, whether he did it as agent for or under the direction of another (State v. Campbell [N. C.] 45 S. E. 344) nor is it a defense that nothing was growing in the field at the time it being a cultivated field within Code 1883, § 1062 (Id.) or that the defendant had a better title than prosecutor, the latter being in actual peaceable possession—Id. The size of the field is immaterial—Id. Indictment and evidence. An indictment under a statute making such offense a misdemeanor charging the offense in the language is sufficient (Sand. & H. Dig. § 1784). Sufficiency of indictment—State v. Culbreath (Ark.) 71 S. W. 254. Admissibility of evidence on trial of indictment—Smith v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 70 S. W. 84; Caudle v. State (Tex. Cr. App.) 74 S. W. 545.

66. N. Car. act March 6, 1903 relating to New Hanover county is unconstitutional—Harper v. New Hanover County Com'rs (N. C.) 45 S. E. 526. That the property was benefitted by the fence is shown prima facie by the assessment—Stiewell v. Fencing Board (Ark.) 70 S. W. 308.

67. Stiewel v. Fencing Board (Ark.) 70 S. W. 308.

68. Stiewell v. Fencing Dist. (Ark.) 71 S. W. 247.

69. Stiewel v. Fencing Board (Ark.) 70 S. W. 308.

70. Stiewell v. Fencing Dist. (Ark.) 71 S. W. 247.

71. If the board did not take the prescribed oath it is not properly constituted—Stiewel v. Fencing Board (Ark.) 70 S. W. 308. The district, as formed, held not to vary with the district as petitioned for—Id.

72. But the objection should be made within limitation fixed by the statute—Stiewel v. Fencing Board (Ark.) 70 S. W. 308.

73. The proper constitution of the board is not such an objection—Stiewel v. Fencing Board (Ark.) 70 S. W. 308. Assessment held not excessive—Id.

74. Sufficiency of description in application for a ferry—Ferry Co. v. Russell, 52 W. Va. 356, 59 L. R. A. 513. Sufficiency of evidence as to inclusion of a certain body of water in prohibition of location of a ferry within a certain distance of an existing ferry—Robinson v. Lamb, 131 N. C. 229. Jurisdiction as to ferry privileges of Pasquotauk River as between counties of which it is the boundary settled under 2 Rev. St. p. 111 (Act 1877) creating Camden county and Code, § 2014—Id. Matters arising from the operation of ferry boats are treated in Shipping and Water Traffic.

ries to be licensed at one point.[75] The ownership or lease of land required of an applicant for a ferry does not require such an interest in land in another state on the opposite side of the river.[76]

A county court on one side of the river cannot take jurisdiction of an application for a ferry privilege by parties contesting an application for the same purpose pending in the county court on the other side. Notice of an intention to apply for a grant amounts to service of process on all interested persons.[77] A report on an application, signed by two of three viewers, is sufficient.[78] A ferry franchise may be transferred as any other incorporeal hereditament.[79] A ferry company of one state, operating on a boundary river, is deprived of property without due process of law by inclusion of a franchise from the other state, in its taxable property in the state of its domicile.[80] Failure of a ferry company to comply with statutes regulating its privilege is no defense to its suit to restrain trespass on its lands.[81]

FINES.[82]

The legislature may authorize a judgment in favor of the party aggrieved.[83] allow part of the fine to the informer.[84] or may, in the absence of constitutional restriction, provide at will for the disposition of fines.[85]

Fines paid on a conviction without jurisdiction may be recovered back,[86] unless voluntarily paid.[87]

A complaint by supervisors against a magistrate for fines collected is not invalidated by unnecessary averments of wrongful conversion.[88] Sureties on bond on appeal from fine and imprisonment are liable for fine though imprisonment is performed.[89] Only personal security for fines can be taken under the Arkansas statute.[90] An affidavit in forma pauperis is essential to discharge after ten days' imprisonment.[91]

75. Injunction will not lie against another application ([Rev. St. § 643]—Green v. Ivey [Fla.] 33 So. 711) but will lie against operation of a ferry without license—Id. An owner cannot recover for loss of business from establishment of another ferry—Ferry Co. v. Russell, 52 W. Va. 356, 59 L. R. A. 513. (In 59 L. R. A. 513-556 inclusive will be found an exhaustive monographic note on the establishment, regulation, and protection of ferries). A third ferry should not be established on application of the owner of one of two already existing where travel is insufficient and injury will result to the other existing ferry—Id.

76. Code, c. 44, § 2—Ferry Co. v. Russell, 52 W. Va. 356, reported with exhaustive note, 59 L. R. A. 513.

77. The latter court may issue a writ of prohibition under Civ. Code, § 479 to restrain the former court—Clark County Ct. v. Warner (Ky.) 76 S. W. 828.

78. Code, c. 13, § 17, cl. 2—Ferry Co. v. Russell, 52 W. Va. 356, reported with exhaustive note 59 L. R. A. 513.

79. The assignment does not change the control of the franchise-granting power and the rights of the assignee can only be questioned by that power—Evans v. Kroutinger (Idaho) 72 Pac. 882.

80. Louisville & T. Ferry Co. v. Kentucky, 188 U. S. 385.

81. St. 1899, § 1808, subsec. 3 regulating sale or lease, and St. §§ 3915, 3917-3919, against pools and combinations—Wilson v. Sullivan (Ky.) 77 S. W. 193.

82. Includes only enforcement and disposition. Propriety of particular punishments are treated in Criminal Law; procedure for their imposition in Indictment and Prosecution.

83. Such a judgment is not properly a fine and hence the provision does not contravene Const. Neb. art. 8, § 5, declaring that fines shall be for the benefit of the school fund—Everson v. State (Neb.) 92 N. W. 137.

84. The pardoning power of the governor is not thereby infringed—Meul v. People, 198 Ill. 258. Wilmington city charter providing that fines shall be paid into the city treasury "except as otherwise provided," includes subsequent exceptions, such as act May 26, 1897, allowing one-half of certain fines to a society—Law & Order Soc. v. Wilmington (Del.) 55 Atl. 1.

85. Rev. St. § 4364, providing that certain fines shall go to the municipality where imposed, sustained—Lloyd v. Dollisin, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 571.

86. Evidence held insufficient to show that the county had received same—Houtz v. Board of Com'rs (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 840.

87. Payment under mistake of law—Harrington v. New York, 40 Misc. (N. Y.) 165. Payment after giving bond for appearance at appellate court held voluntary—Houtz v. Board of Com'rs (Wyo.) 70 Pac. 840.

88. Town of Green Island v. Williams, 79 App. Div. (N. Y.) 260.

89. People v. Connolly, 84 N. Y. Supp. 617.

90. Not a chattel mortgage—Hubbard v. State (Ark.) 75 S. W. 853.

91. Ex parte Rodriquez (Tex. Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 1050.