46. Petition for mandamus to erase from registration books residents and members of Soldiers' Home will not be granted where names of such persons are not stated and some of them are entitled to registration. State v. Willett, 117 Tenn. 334, 97 S. W. 299. Petition for mandamus to compel election commissioners to place the names of nominees upon official ballot under name and device of a certain party is insufficient if it fails to allege that certificate of nomination designated such title and device as required by Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6215. State v. Board of Election Com'rs of Marshall County, 167 Ind. 276, 78 N. E. 1016.

51. Granting such an injunction does not violate Const. art. 2, § 5, which declares "that all elections shall be free and open, and that no power, civil or military, shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the right of suffrage." Aichele v. People [Colo.] 90 P. 1122.

52. Brown v. Cole, 54 Misc. 278, 104 N. Y. S. 109. But a permanent injunction will not be granted restraining chairman of such a committee from putting into operation certain alleged illegal rules and regulations for conduct of primaries, where primaries have been held and there was no effort to enforce such rules and regulations, and neither party claims that he has any interest in alleged cause of action, or that such rules and regulations are in force or threatened to be enforced (Brown v. Cole, 105 N. Y. S. 196), but upon dismissal of such suit, if the rules and regulations are illegal, no costs will be allowed (Id.).

of granting a franchise on the ground that the election was illegal.<sup>55</sup> In Colorado the district court has jurisdiction to issue an injunction to restrain the county clerk from certifying to judges of election fraudulent and fictitious registrations made by him.<sup>56</sup> Any member of a political party may sue to enjoin the county committee of such party from enforcing an illegal system of enrollment for party primaries.<sup>57</sup> The complaint in an action for injunction must allege facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.<sup>58</sup> Certiorari may be brought to annul an injunction on the ground that it is issued without jurisdiction where the remedy by appeal is inadequate.<sup>59</sup>

§ 12. Judicial proceedings to contest or review. Rights and remedies.<sup>60</sup>—Statutes providing for the trial of election contests must conform to constitutional requirements,<sup>61</sup> and their provisions must be appropriate to the particular contest to which they have reference.<sup>62</sup> The charter of the city and county of Denver<sup>63</sup> did not create a right to contest a franchise election.<sup>64</sup> The statutes must be looked to to determine who is entitled to institute an election contest.<sup>65</sup> A defeated candidate may bring suit to set aside an election upon statutory grounds even though his petition does not show that he himself was elected to the office.<sup>66</sup> The validity of a stock-law election may be inquired into in a suit against a railroad for injuries to stock.<sup>67</sup> When jurisdiction to hear election contests is conferred upon a court, and the details of the procedure are not provided for, the court will adopt such procedure as is necessary to render the grant of jurisdiction effective.<sup>68</sup> Contests must be instituted within the time prescribed by statute.<sup>69</sup> The test to be applied in a contest where illegal votes have

Such an injunction will not be granted because, pending determination of validity of franchise by proceedings in quo warranto, plaintiff will suffer loss from depreciation of value of his stock in a rival company. Id.

60. See 7 C. L. 1250.

61. Laws 1907, c. 538, providing for a hearing and determination by supreme court of an election contest upon petition of a candidate, confined to such questions as arise on an inspection of the ballots, is not void as imposing only ministerial duties on the court (Metz v. Maddox, 105 N. Y. S. 702), nor is such statute unconstitutional under Const. art. 2, § 6, requiring that all laws creating boards or officers for counting votes shall secure equal representation to two largest political parties (Id.). The constitutional requirement, Const. art. 1, § 2, that trial by jury in all cases in which it has been heretofore used shall remain inviolate forever, is not violated by Laws 1907, c. 538, creating a new proceeding that did not exist when constitution was adopted for trial of election contests at suit of a contestant, because it does not provide for trial by jury. Id. Gen. Acts 1903, p. 431, § 7, providing that election to determine whether stock shall be prohibited from running at large may be contested on same ground and in same manner as contests of election of constable, is not violative of Const. art. 4, § 45, which provides that no law shall be revived, amended, or the provisions thereof extended or conferred by reference to its title only. Beason v. Shaw [Ala.] 42 So. 611.

62. Although Gen. Acts 1903, p. 434, § 7, relating to elections to determine whether stock shall be prohibited from remaining at large, provides that such elections may be contested in same manner as contests of election of constable, Code 1896, § 1697, the latter provision being inappropriate to a contest under the former statute cannot be resorted to. Beason v. Shaw [Ala.] 42 So. 611.

63. Section 182.

64. Williams v. People [Colo.] 88 P. 463.

65. One cannot contest an election for the office of county treasurer, under Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, unless he is an elector of the county in and for which contestant is declared elected. Dodson v. Bowiby [Neb.] 110 N. W. 693.

68. Whaley v. Bayer, 99 Minn. 397, 109 N. W. 820. Procedure established by general election law adaptable to hearing of contests instituted under Rev. Laws 1905, § 203, conferring jurisdiction on district courts. Id.

69. Colorado statute requiring election contests to be instituted "within ten days been secretly cast is to see whether the contestant will be elected if all the illegal votes are deducted from contestee's vote.<sup>70</sup> As one holding an election certificate is not a usurper, quo warranto cannot be brought against him by the defeated candidate.<sup>71</sup>

Grounds for contest or review.<sup>72</sup>—A contest may be based on the ground that the contestee was not eligible to the office at the time of the election,<sup>73</sup> that no valid election was held on account of the deterrent effect of an injunction,<sup>74</sup> that the contestee was guilty of bribery,<sup>75</sup> or that his election was the result of fraud or irregularities in the conduct of the election,<sup>76</sup> the disfranchisement of voters,<sup>77</sup> after the date when the votes are canvassed" does not begin to run until entire vote is canvassed, although at first meeting of board of canvassers the votes from all but one precinct were canvassed, and the returns therefrom will not affect result as between candidates for any single office. Vigil v. Garcia, 36 Colo. 430, 87 P. 543.

70. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

71. Civ. Code Prac. § 480. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

72. See 7 C. L. 1251.

73. There is ground under P. L. 1898, p. 312, § 163. Smith v. Ashmead [N. J. Law] 65 A. 877. Under Act April 16, 1846 (Rev. St. 1846, tit. 30, c. 21), as amended April 12, 1876 (P. L. p. 98; Gen. St. p. 3141), and Act of 1897 (P. L. 1897, pp. 235, 287, §§ 2, 6), a resident of a borough which has a population of less than 3,000 is eligible to the office of chosen freeholder for the township in which the borough lies. Id. That a statute provides that no officer of any corporation having any contract with a city shall be "eligible to any office" in such city is not ground for treating as nullities votes cast for such an officer for a city office, but the voters may reasonably assume that the candidate if elected will free himself from the disability before beginning his term, and thereby qualify himself to hold the office. Hoy v. State [Ind.] 81 N. E. 509. In Georgia where a person who is ineligible to hold the office receives a majority of votes cast in an election, the office does not go to the qualified person having the next highest number of votes, but the election is invalid, and a new one must be held. Dobbs v. Buford [Ga.] 57 S. E. 777.

74. An election is void which is not a full, free, and fair expression of the will of the voters on account of the deterrent effect of an injunction against holding such election. Brown's Estate v. Seattle, 43 Wash. 26, 35 P. 854.

75. Under Const. art. 2, § 6, the election of township trustee may be contested on the ground that the candidate gave or offered to give a bribe to secure his election. Tinkle v. Wallace, 167 Ind. 382, 79 N. E. 355. Contest held to be based on this provision and not on § 2328, Burns' Ann. St. 1901, and therefore that conviction under the statute was not an essential prerequisite to contest. Id. Under the statutes relating to bribery, Rev. St. 1898, §§ 4478, 4478a, 4481, to warrant ouster upon quo warranto proceedings of one elected on face of returns, it must appear that he "induced or procured" an "elector to vote for him * * * by bribery." State v. Bunnell [Wis.] 110 N. W. 177.

76. An election will not be declared void on ground of fraud unless fraud shown to have been perpetrated was sufficient to warrant conclusion that express will of legal voters was defeated. Childress v. Pinson [Ky.] 100 S. W. 278.

When irregularities will warrant setting election aside: A special election will not be set aside for irregularities which do not affect the fairness of the election or its result. Flores v. Police Jury of De Soto Parish, 116 La. 428, 40 So. 785.

When fraud and irregularities warrant excluding precinct: Where they occur in conduct of election to such extent that it is impossible to separate with reasonable certainty legal from illegal or spurious votes. Vigil v. Garcia, 36 Colo. 430, 87 P. 543. And even though actual fraud be not apparent, if negligence and misconduct of election officials has effect of destroying integrity of returns and avoiding prima facie character which they ought to bear, such returns will be rejected. Id. But if the integrity of the ballot has not been impaired, and illegal ballots can be easily separated from legal ones, the vote of a precinct will not be excluded. Id.

Fraud and bribery: Where it appears from an inspection of the whole record that there has been such fraud and bribery in an election that neither contestants nor contestees can be adjudged to have been fairly elected, the election will be declared void under Ky. St. 1903, § 1596a, subsec. 12. Orr v. Kevil, 30 Ky. L. R. 761, 100 S. W. 314.

Against whom fraudulent vote must be charged: Where it is shown that a fraudulent vote has been cast, but for whom it was cast cannot be established, it should not be charged against either party. Childress v. Pinson [Ky.] 100 S. W. 278.

77. Disfranchised voters are persons denied the right to vote, or persons whose votes by reason of fraud or other wrong have not been counted at all, or have not been counted as cast. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

Where there is no election in a precinct, all voters therein are disfranchised, in absence of proof that any of registered voters were illegal voters, ill, or absent from state on election day. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

Where there is no valid certificate of the election officers of a precinct, and the ballots therein have not been properly preserved, the precinct is wholly disfranchised. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

Polls kept open only during portion of hours prescribed: Where the polls in a precinct are kept open only during a portion of the hours prescribed, all voters who thereby are denied the right to vote are disfranchised, and their number will be determined by deducting the number of those who voted from the registered vote of the precinct. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

or the votes of persons not entitled to vote.<sup>78</sup> The refusal of a county clerk to place a candidate's name upon the ticket is not a ground for contest under the New Jersey statute.<sup>79</sup> The fact that the validity of a ballot was not questioned before the election officers will not prevent the defeated candidate from contesting it on a contest of the election.<sup>80</sup>

Jurisdiction.<sup>81</sup>—Jurisdiction to try contested election cases exists only when it is conferred by statute.<sup>82</sup> Such jurisdiction is generally conferred upon the courts,<sup>83</sup> but is sometimes vested in canvassing boards<sup>84</sup> or in municipal councils.<sup>85</sup> Statutes conferring such jurisdiction must not violate any constitutional requirement or inhibition.<sup>86</sup>

Fraud, violence, and intimidation: Where, in a precinct, fraud, violence, and intimidation are resorted to, and the polling place is dominated and controlled by a partisan police, and many illegal votes are cast, all tending to render the result uncertain, the vote of the precinct will be considered as disfranchised. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. And where fraud, intimidation, and violence result in the disfranchisement of enough voters to make it impossible to determine who is elected, the election is void and will be set aside. Id. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 1596a, subsec. 12, the court of appeals will set aside any election where fraud, intimidation, bribery, or violence affects the result to such an extent that it cannot be determined who was elected, even though contestee was ignorant thereof. Id.

78. Where there was a failure to provide for a special registration as required by statute, and voters were allowed to vote without presenting their registration certificates, the election was held to be invalid. De Haven v. Bowmer [Ky.] 102 S. W. 306. That votes in a town precinct, which embraces territory not within the town, exceed number of voters registered, does not show illegality where registration law applies only to voters in towns and cities. Duff v. Crawford, 30 Ky. L. R. 323, 97 S. W. 1123. Where seventy-six old men from a charitable institution were voted openly without having been required to take the statutory oath, it was held, the record not showing how they voted, that their votes should be counted as cast. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. The entire vote of a precinct will not be rejected on ground that a number of illiterates voted illegally where it is not shown for whom they voted. Duff v. Crawford, 30 Ky. L. R. 323, 97 S. W. 1123.

81. See 5 C. L. 1075.

82. Patterson v. Knapp [Ky.] 101 S. W. 379. In Kentucky, there being no provision for contesting result of election as to whether a tax should be imposed in aid of a graded school, the courts have no jurisdiction of such a contest. Id. As a general rule where lawmaking power provides for election to determine any question which it is proper to submit to popular vote, and there is no provision in the law, nor any general law authorizing judicial interference, and the right to interfere cannot be derived from the common law, a court of equity has no jurisdiction over matter, and all questions arising out of election must be determined alone by tribunal constituted by lawmaking power for that purpose. Ivey v. Rome [Ga.] 58 S. E. 852.

83. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 46, §§ 97, 98, the circuit court has jurisdiction to determine a contest as to election of city clerk. Smith v. Reid, 223 Ill. 493, 79 N. E. 148. Rev. Laws 1905, § 203, authorizes the district courts to hear and determine election contests instituted thereunder in the manner authorized by § 203. Whaley v. Bayer, 99 Minn. 397, 109 N. W. 820. The power conferred upon a city council by Kirby's Dig. § 5602, in relation to election of its members, is merely to pass upon face of returns. Jurisdiction to determine election contests for membership in councils is in the circuit court, under Kirby's Dig. c. 155. Doherty v. Cripps [Ark.] 102 S. W. 394. Where a contest involves title to office of each member of general council or aldermanic board of a city, Ky. St. 1903, § 2771, is not applicable, but the circuit court has jurisdiction under § 1596a, subsec. 12. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. The county judge and the two justices of the peace residing nearest the courthouse have jurisdiction to hear and determine contests of local option elections, notwithstanding Acts of 1898 and 1900, investing election commissioners with power to determine contested elections. De Haven v. Bowmer [Ky.] 102 S. W. 306.

84. Under Code 1902, §§ 205, 216, 217, a board of county canvassers has jurisdiction of a contest of a special election in a county on the dispensary question. Wright v. State Board of Canvassers [S. C.] 57 S. E. 536.

85. Under Gen. Laws 1895, p. 48, c. 8, § 114, the city council and the district court have concurrent jurisdiction to hear and determine an election contest for the office of alderman. State v. Craig, 100 Minn. 352, 111 N. W. 2. This statute was not repealed by Gen. Laws 1901, p. 584, c. 365, or by Rev. Laws 1905, § 336. Id. Ky. St. 1903, § 3486, providing that board of council of a city of fourth class shall judge of eligibility and election returns of its members, does not give such board jurisdiction where the election of members of board is contested. Orr v. Kevil, 30 Ky. L. R. 761, 100 S. W. 314.

86. Rev. St. 1905, § 203, in so far as it attempts to confer upon supreme court origi-

Notice or summons, pleadings and issues.<sup>87</sup>—In Missouri the contestant must give notice of intention to file petition, stating the place<sup>88</sup> and time<sup>89</sup> of filing. But such notice may be waived.<sup>90</sup> The contestant's initial pleading must state facts showing his right to bring the suit<sup>91</sup> and the grounds of contest.<sup>92</sup> In Kentucky the contestee cannot rely on any grounds of contest against contestant except such as are specifically alleged in his answer.<sup>93</sup> The answer need not plead facts which are admitted by the notice of contest.<sup>94</sup> The allowance of an amendment to answer introducing new matter is within the sound discretion of the court.<sup>95</sup> Where an exception to an amended answer refers to a statute which makes applicable to election contests the general rules controlling amendment of pleadings, it invokes those rules.<sup>96</sup>

Dismissal.<sup>97</sup>—Dismissal of an election contest on contestant's motion will not bar him from instituting another contest.<sup>98</sup>

Preservation and production of ballots.<sup>99</sup>—Disputed ballots cannot be considered where not certified as required by statute, although placed in an envelope and properly sealed.<sup>1</sup> An order removing ballot boxes from the custody of their legal custodians will be vacated if there is no evidence showing reasonable grounds for fear that they will be tampered with.<sup>2</sup> An order that the board of elections preserve in the ballot boxes the ballots cast at a municipal election will not be vacated where there is no public necessity requiring the immediate use of the bal-nal jurisdiction in election contests, is unconstitutional. Lauritsen v. Seward, 99 Minn. 313, 109 N. W. 404. Section 182, Charter of City and County of Denver, providing that election contests shall be heard by the county court, contravenes Const. art. 6, § 23; and art. 7, §§ 11, 12, and is void. Williams v. People [Colo.] 88 P. 463. Kirby's Dig. § 2856, conferring original jurisdiction upon circuit court to hear and determine contests for office of county and probate judge, is not unconstitutional under Const. art. 7, § 51. Sumpter v. Duffie, 80 Ark. 369, 97 S. W. 435.

87. See 7 C. L. 1251.

88. Where notice required by Rev. St. 1899, § 7057, states that it will be filed "in the circuit court," the place of filing is sufficiently designated though § 7062 requires petition to be filed "in the office of the clerk of the circuit court." State v. McElhinney, 199 Mo. 67, 97 S. W. 159. Such notice is not rendered invalid by fact that it states that petition will also be filed with a certain judge. Id.

89. Notice of intention to file petition ten days after service of notice, and within forty days after election, is sufficiently definite as to time of filing where period of forty days after election ends on a Sunday, and the ten days after service of notice on the Saturday preceding. State v. McElhinney, 199 Mo. 67, 97 S. W. 159.

90. It is waived where contestee appears in court and files answer to merits of case which is in part a cross complaint. State v. McElhinney, 199 Mo. 67, 97 S. W. 159.

91. In a contest for the office of county treasurer, under Cobby's Ann. St. 1903, §§ 5682, 5683, it is necessary to allege that contestant is an elector of county in and for which contestee is declared elected. Dodson v. Bowlby [Neb.] 110 N. W. 698.

95. Lipscomb v. Perry [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 787, 96 S. W. 1069. A party attacking the exercise of that discretion must show that it has been abused to his injury. Id. Sustaining exceptions to new matter introduced by amended answer, under circumstances of this case, no abuse of discretion. Lipscomb v. Perry [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 787, 96 S. W. 1069, rev. [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 1101. The fact that reference in exception to a particular statute under which it was alleged new matter came too late was erroneous did not limit the court's discretion. Id.

St. 1903, § 148, in regard to sealing disputed ballots, and certifying in relation thereto, are not complied with, such ballots cannot be counted. Neely v. Rice, 29 Ky. L. R. 1142, 30 Ky. L. lot boxes, and the ballots may be essential to a canvass of the votes, or to a trial of the title to the office.<sup>3</sup> Application for vacation of such order should be made by the board of elections against whom it operates, and not by the successful candidate.<sup>4</sup>

Evidence.<sup>5</sup>—In an election contest, the burden of proof is upon the contestant.<sup>6</sup> The rule that the evidence must be relevant to the question at issue prevails in election contests.<sup>7</sup> Testimony of a witness that one representing himself as contestee came to him in the dark and offered him a bribe is admissible, though witness does not positively identify contestee as such person.<sup>8</sup> Illegal votes cast by secret ballot are admissible to show the general uncertainty of an election, without proving for whom they were cast.<sup>9</sup> For whom illegal votes were cast may be shown by the evidence of the officers of election,<sup>10</sup> and it must be shown by them if the ballots were cast openly.<sup>11</sup> But where they were cast by secret ballot, the voters alone can prove for whom they were cast.<sup>12</sup> The result of an election cannot be established by parol proof.<sup>13</sup> It must be shown by the certificate of the election officers or by the ballots themselves.<sup>14</sup> The certificate is prima facie correct,<sup>15</sup> but the ballots themselves, when preserved as the law directs, are the better evidence, and must prevail where there is a difference.<sup>16</sup> But if the ballots are not so preserved the certificate must control.<sup>17</sup> Cases dealing with the sufficiency of the evidence to prove particular facts will be found in the note.<sup>18</sup>

6. Smith v. Ashmead [N. J. Law] 65 A. 877. In a contest of the office of county treasurer, under Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, §§ 5682, 5683, it is necessary to prove that contestant is an elector of the county in and for which contestee is declared elected. Dodson v. Bowlby [Neb.] 110 N. W. 698. A candidate who undertakes to purge the ballots of illegal votes must show for whom they were cast. Duff v. Crawford, 30 Ky. L. R. 323, 97 S. W. 1123; Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. Thus, where a vote is contested on the ground that it was not secretly marked, the burden is upon contestant not only to show that fact but also for whom it was cast. Combs v. Combs, 30 Ky. L. R. 161, 97 S. W. 1127. In an action under Ky. St. 1903, § 1596, subsec. 12, to set aside an election for fraud, intimidation, bribery, or violence, the burden does not rest upon contestant to show that he would have been elected but for the wrongdoing, but only to show that such wrongdoing existed to such an extent that it cannot be determined who was elected. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

7. A witness who has testified that he received a bribe cannot on cross-examination be questioned as to his motive in accepting it. Tinkle v. Wallace, 167 Ind. 382, 79 N. E. 355. Where evidence has been admitted that contestee when challenged at the polls for bribery failed to make the required affidavit, it is proper to ask contestee if he requested certain persons to seek the advice of anybody else, foundation having been laid therefor by an offer to show that he sought advice as to the affidavit he would be required to make in order to vote. But a ruling sustaining objection to such question is not reversible error. Id.

11. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. But in Combs v. Combs, 30 Ky. L. R. 161, 97 S. W. 1127, and Duff v. Crawford, 30 Ky. L. R. 323, 97 S. W. 1123, it was held that voters who voted openly may testify as to whom they voted for.

12. But they are protected against such disclosure by the privilege against self-incrimination. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. But see Duff v. Crawford, 30 Ky. L. R. 323, 97 S. W. 1123.

13. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

14. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. If there is no valid certificate from a precinct, and the ballots therein have not been properly preserved, the result of the election cannot be established, and the precinct is therefore wholly disfranchised. Id.

17. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. The contents of ballots cannot be proved by parol. Id. A lost or destroyed ballot cannot be supplied like a lost deed for the purpose of counting the vote. Id.

18. Evidence held sufficient to prove conspiracy of managers of democratic campaign to carry election by fraud, theft, and violence. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248.

Affidavit of election officers that ballots in box are in condition in which they were cast by voters is sufficient to establish validity of some of such ballots, in absence of opposing evidence, although as to others affidavit is shown to be untrue. Lipscomb v. Perry [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 1101.

Evidence insufficient to prove that fraudulent

Costs.<sup>19</sup>—In Arkansas a contestee in a contest of an election for the removal of a county seat is entitled to the costs of depositions taken by him before the regularity of the election was conceded, but not to costs of copying stenographer's notes, the statute not providing therefor.<sup>20</sup>

Decision and review thereof.<sup>21</sup>—In South Dakota a contestant of an election for the removal of a county seat is not entitled to a judgment by default where an elector has appeared to defend before application for such judgment,<sup>22</sup> nor where the affidavit for judgment fails to state that no elector has answered or appeared.<sup>23</sup> In Kentucky the court will settle a tie by lot.<sup>24</sup> The findings of the court must be sustained by the evidence,<sup>25</sup> and the judgment must be supported by the findings.<sup>26</sup> The statutes generally authorize an appeal from the decision in an election contest.<sup>27</sup> If rulings of the trial court are not assigned as error, they cannot be considered on appeal.<sup>28</sup> The appellate court will not weigh conflicting evidence, but will affirm the judgment below if there is sufficient evidence to sustain it,<sup>29</sup> and findings of fact will not be set aside if they are supported by competent testimony.<sup>30</sup> Upon certiorari the court cannot review the findings of fact or the merits, but may determine whether the lower court exceeded its jurisdiction.<sup>31</sup> Certiorari will not lie to determine whether petitioners have been elected members of a political committee.<sup>32</sup> Where the remedy by appeal is adequate to afford full relief, a writ of prohibition will not issue to review the decision or restrain the action of the trial court.<sup>33</sup>

Security for appeal; costs.<sup>34</sup>

§ 13. Offenses against election laws.<sup>35</sup>—In all the states there are statutes prescribing penalties for offenses against the election laws.<sup>36</sup> The constitutionality of the Missouri statute has been upheld.<sup>37</sup> In Minnesota no person is per-lent votes were cast for deomocratic ticket. Childress v. Pinson [Ky.] 100 S. W. 278.

26. In an election contest a judgment that the office is vacant is authorized by findings which show that contestee has been guilty of bribery, although it is not found that any opposing candidate is entitled to the office. Tinkle v. Wallace, 167 Ind. 382, 79 N. E. 355.

27. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2567, from a decision of the contest board refusing to assume jurisdiction of a local option election contest, an appeal lies to the circuit court. De Haven v. Bowmer [Ky.] 102 S. W. 306. Under Code 1902, §§ 205, 223-228, an appeal lies from a decision of a board of county canvassers, in a contest of a special election on the dispensary question, to the board of state canvassers. *Wright v. Laws 1897, c. 393, §§ 16, 17, 29, any person stealing, willfully destroying, mutilating, defacing, falsifying, or fraudulently removing or secreting ballots or fraudulently making any entry, erasure, or alteration in them, is guilty of a misdemeanor. *State v. mitted to hold any elective office procured, with his knowledge or consent, in violation of any of the provisions of the corrupt practices act.<sup>38</sup> A presiding judge of election who, without a warrant, orders the arrest of a voter whose only offense is carrying into the voting booth the initials of persons for whom he desires to vote, is liable for false imprisonment.<sup>39</sup>

The indictment.<sup>40</sup>—An indictment must be found within the time prescribed.<sup>41</sup> Usually the sufficiency of an indictment for an election offense is to be tested by the rules applicable to indictments in general, but a statute requiring a liberal construction of the election law, so as to prevent any evasion of its prohibitions and penalties by shifts or device, must be read in connection with the statutory requirements as to the essential elements of a good indictment.<sup>42</sup> The indictment, information, or complaint must charge all the essential elements of the offense,<sup>43</sup> but it need not allege a fact of which the court will take judicial notice.<sup>44</sup> An erroneous indorsement on the back of an indictment will not render it void.<sup>45</sup>

amending Rev. St. 1899, c. 15, art. 6. State v. Keating, 202 Mo. 197, 100 S. W. 648.

38. Within meaning of this act, Laws 1895, c. 277, p. 664, a political aspirant becomes a candidate at time of filing his affidavit of intention of becoming a candidate for a specified office, in accordance with Rev. Laws 1905, § 184. The verified statement which he is required to file need not include items of expenses incurred or paid anterior to filing such affidavit. State v. Bates [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1026.

39. Smyth v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 103 S. W. 899.

40. See 7 C. L. 1257.

41. In a prosecution for violation of primary election law, 20 Del. Laws (1897), c. 393, § 17, an indictment is in time if found within two years from time offense was committed. State v. Tyre [Del.] 67 A. 199.

42. Ky. St. 1903, § 1591, while it does not abrogate the code provisions relating to essential elements of a good indictment, should be read in connection with them as illustrating the legislative intent concerning prosecutions of offenses against election laws. Commonwealth v. Drewry [Ky.] 103 S. W. 266.

43. Fraudulent registration: In prosecution under Sess. Acts 1903, p. 155, § 2120j, information held insufficient in not charging all essential elements of offense. State v. Keating, 202 Mo. 197, 100 S. W. 648; State v. Walsh, 203 Mo. 605, 102 S. W. 513.

Illegal voting: Information insufficient in that it fails to allege defendant voted at more than one election precinct. State v. Helderle, 203 Mo. 574, 102 S. W. 558. In a prosecution under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 14, § 2, an allegation in complaint that defendant voted at a meeting of electors of the "town of North Providence * * * for the choice of town officers, state officers, and a representative in congress" is sufficient without alleging for what town and state, or that the representative in congress was for the congress of the United States. State v. Custer [R. I.] 66 A. 306. In a prosecution under this statute, defendant's disqualification to vote in a certain town is sufficiently alleged by averment that he "did not then have his residence and home in said town." Id. And the complaint is sufficient if it allege that defendant did "give in his vote," without alleging for whom he voted or how his ballot was marked. Id.

Offenses by aliens against Federal statutes: An indictment which alleges that defendant had in his possession a false certificate of naturalization, "with intent then and there unlawfully to use the same for the purpose of having himself registered as a voter," sufficiently charges an offense under Rev. St. U. S. 5425 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3669), although it fails to allege that purpose was consummated. Green v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 150 F. 560. Where an indictment charges defendant with having falsely made affidavit before a registration officer that he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, for the purpose of causing himself to be registered as a voter at a state election, it sufficiently charges an offense under Rev. St. U. S. 5428 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3670). Id.

Certifying to improper certificate of election: It is not a fatal defect in an indictment under Ky. St. 1903, § 1585a, making it a crime for an officer of election to "knowingly and wilfully" certify to an improper certificate of election, that the accusatory part charges defendant with "unlawfully and feloniously" certifying, etc., where the statutory words are employed in body of indictment. Commonwealth v. Drewry [Ky.] 103 S. W. 266. Indictment under this statute held to contain sufficient averment that defendant was an officer of election. Id.

44. Complaint in prosecution for illegal voting sufficient, though it does not allege date of election, as court will take judicial notice of date. State v. Custer [R. I.] 66 A. 306.

45. An indictment for violation of the primary election law, 20 Del. Laws 1897, c. 393, against one not an officer of election, under § 17, is not fatally defective because of an indorsement on the back by the attorney general that it is for violation of § 16 which relates to same offenses when committed by an officer of election. State v. Tyre [Del.] 67 A. 199.

46. See 7 C. L. 1257.

is not fatal.<sup>47</sup> Satisfactory proof of the commission of any one of several offenses charged in separate counts of an indictment will support the indictment.<sup>48</sup>

Burden of proof and evidence.<sup>49</sup>—In a prosecution for an offense against the election laws, hearsay evidence is inadmissible.<sup>50</sup> To warrant a conviction upon such a prosecution, the evidence must be sufficient to show the existence of all the elements of the offense.<sup>51</sup>

Opening of ballot boxes may be ordered to procure evidence from the ballots.<sup>52</sup>

Question for the jury.<sup>53</sup>

ELECTRICITY.

- § 1. Electric Franchise (1062).
- § 2. Contracts (1063).
- § 3. Duty of Care Respecting Electricity (1063).

- § 4. Causes of Action; Remedies and Procedure (1065).

This topic treats of the duties owed by persons furnishing or using electricity to others not in their employ,<sup>54</sup> except so far as such rights and duties are peculiar to a specific application of electricity, as its use in propelling street cars,<sup>55</sup> or in transmitting messages.<sup>56</sup> The general principles of negligence,<sup>57</sup> and the rules of damages,<sup>58</sup> are treated elsewhere.

Laws (1897), c. 393, § 17, it is not essential to conviction that proof should show commission of offense on day charged in indictment. Id. Where accused is charged with committing an offense with respect to a specified number of ballots, he may be convicted upon proof that he committed it with respect to any less or greater number. Id.

50. In a prosecution for illegal registration, testimony by state's witness in rebuttal as to what a certain person told him as to defendant's place of residence is hearsay and inadmissible. State v. Walsh, 203 Mo. 605, 102 S. W. 513.

51. In prosecution for fraudulent registration, evidence held sufficient to show, in absence of proof to contrary, that defendant did not reside in precinct where it is charged he registered. State v. Keating, 202 Mo. 197, 100 S. W. 648. Evidence in prosecution for unlawful registration held insufficient to prove that defendant fraudulently registered as a qualified voter in a precinct in which he did not reside. State v. Walsh, 203 Mo. 605, 102 S. W. 513. Evidence in prosecution for illegal voting held to sustain verdict of guilty. State v. Armstrong, 203 Mo. 554, 102 S. W. 503. Co. to maintain poles and feed wires, with consent of aldermen, for transmission of electricity in streets in which it had right to operate a railway. Williams v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 193 Mass. 305, 79 N. E. 484.

61. Where company incorporated under Act April 29, 1874 (P. L. 73), to manufacture light obtained permission to occupy streets, it was not obliged to renew its permission upon reorganizing under Act May 8, 1889 (P. L. 136), with power to supply light, heat, and power by electricity. Allegheny County Light Co. v. Booth, 216 Pa. 564, 66 A. 72. If, under Acts 1888, p. 1060, c. 583, tit. 16, § 2, action of department of parks of Brooklyn in authorizing Flatbush Gas Company to lay electric wires in Ocean Parkway required consent of city council, such consent must be presumed where no objection is made for 10 years. *People v. the terms thereof.<sup>63</sup> Permission to occupy the streets confers the right to lay conduits under the sidewalks.<sup>64</sup> Where the statute under which a company organizes gives it the right to "alter," etc., its system, it may change from a pole to a conduit system without municipal consent.<sup>65</sup> The right of an individual to object to the maintenance of a conduit in front of his property may be lost by laches.<sup>66</sup>

§ 2. Contracts.<sup>67</sup>—Where a customer makes a defective connection which would render the company liable to a third person in case of injury, the current may be shut off without liability.<sup>68</sup>

§ 3. Duty of care respecting electricity.<sup>69</sup>—While the courts seem to differ as to the degree of care required of persons using electricity, exacting from ordinary<sup>70</sup> to the highest care,<sup>71</sup> the true rule probably is that the care must be commensurate with the danger,<sup>72</sup> having regard to the dangerous character of the agency employed<sup>73</sup> as dependent upon the voltage used,<sup>74</sup> the probability of persons coming in contact with the wires,<sup>75</sup> and their right to be in close prox-

Telephone company is not insurer against shocks while using its instruments, but must exercise such care as a prudent person would exercise under same circumstances. Brucker v. Gainesboro Tel. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1162, 100 S. W. 240. Party is not held to anticipation of extraordinary events, but storms deranging to some extent wires of electrical companies are not extraordinary events, so unusual or unprecedented as to relieve such companies from legal necessity of reasonable precautions to protect others from dangers caused thereby. Toledo Rys. & Light Co. v. Rippon, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 334. Is presumed to have knowledge of conditions of its wires which would have been discovered by ordinary prudence. Citizens Tel. Co. v. came in contact with live trolley wire and carried current to fence, resulting in death of one touching fence, held that negligence of company in leaving wires in tree was proximate cause. Home Tel. Co. v. Fields [Ala.] 43 So. 711. Where guy wire becomes charged through defective insulation, fact that it would not have harmed decedent had he not also come in contact with hay wire attached to pole, held that proximate cause was current on guy wire. Yazoo City v. Birchett, 89 Miss. 700, 42 So. 569. Where broken wire dangling in street was taken by man and wrapped around post and decedent came in contact while tying horse to post, negligence of company and not act of man was proximate cause. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 879, 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532. If, in exercise of ordinary foresight and light of circumstances, negligent escape of powerful current from wires of power company to those of telegraph company should have been anticipated by former as likely to occur, such negligence will be deemed proximate cause of death or injury of employee of telegraph company occasioned by his contract while in performance of his duties, with his employer's wires so charged. Toledo Rys. & Light Co. v. Rippon, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 334. Where unused telegraph wire fell across electric light wire and pulled it down, fact that decedent came into contact with latter wire does not necessarily relieve telegraph company. Dannenhower v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Pa.] 67 A. 207.

80. Error to instruct that if plaintiff received injury from electric shock in stepping on defendant's tracks it is liable though defendant exonerated itself. Sullivan v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 117 App. Div. 784, 102 N. Y. S. 982. Error not cured by instruction that plaintiff must prove that injury was due to electric shock * * * and that jury has no right to speculate. Id. Evidence held to justify finding that deceased was thrown from pole by shock and did not accidentally fall. Smith v. Twin City Rapid Transit Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 100. Evidence held to show that decedent's death was caused by coming in contact with defendant's wire. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532, 99 S. W. 879. Evidence held to support finding that plaintiff was jerked from top of car by sagging wire. Todd v. Crete [Neb.] 113 N. W. 172.

81. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Westcott's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 922, 99 S. W. 1153. Where uncontradicted testimony shows that decedent had been warned that telephone was crossed with light wire and was dangerous, that he saw sparks flying from telephone box, that in sport he touched box with hand and wire and finally received fatal shock, peremptory instruction for defendant is proper. Id. Failure of deceased lineman to use rubber gloves held under evidence not to render him negligent as matter of law. Snyder v. Mutual Tel. Co. [Iowa] 112 N. W. 776.

taining the system in violation of ordinance.<sup>83</sup> Failure to insulate wires as required by ordinance is per se negligence.<sup>84</sup> A municipality operating an electric plant as a business enterprise<sup>85</sup> incurs the same liability as a private corporation.<sup>86</sup> The assurance of an employe beyond his agency that a wire is dead does not render his principal liable for an injury in reliance thereon.<sup>87</sup>

Where lineman was injured while climbing pole by coming in contact with exposed wire, held not negligent as matter of law where a man had safely preceded him and he looked at wire from ground without seeing defect. Gloucester Elec. Co. v. Dover [C. C. A.] 153 F. 139. Right to assume that electric company has properly insulated its wires does not relieve person of duty to exercise care of an ordinarily prudent man. Denver Consol. Elec. Co. v. Walters [Colo.] 89 P. 815. Where city constructs and maintains its electric light plant in careless manner, it cannot relieve itself from liability by casting burden of notice of danger on party injured. Village of Palestine v. Siler, 225 Ill. 630, 80 N. E. 345.

82. Where telephone lineman is injured by wire of third party while engaged in his work, held that doctrine of contributory negligence and not assumption of risks applied. Gloucester Elec. Co. v. Dover [C. C. A.] 153 F. 139. One undertaking to paint poles does not assume risk arising from defective cap. Smith v. Twin City Rapid Transit Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 100. For assumption of risk proper, see Master and Servant, 8 C. L. 840.

83. Where plaintiff caused electric light extension to be made without obtaining permit and without complying with regulations of national board of underwriters, as required by Lowell City Ordinance July 26, 1899, §§ 9, 10, 11, and he received shock because of such failure, no recovery can be had. Brunelle v. Lowell Elec. Light Corp. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 466.

84. San Antonio Gas & Elec. Co. v. Badgers [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 507, 103 S. W. 229.

85. City of second class of less than 5,000 inhabitants may operate electric lighting plant for commercial purposes. Todd v. Crete [Neb.] 113 N. W. 172.

86. See Municipal Corporations, 8 C. L. 1056.

87. Sent to burning building to look after company's property. Trouton v. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 569.

88, 89. See 7 C. L. 1263.

90. Petition construed to allege negligence only in failing to keep wire properly insulated and not in placing in improper place in house. Denver Consol. Elec. Co. v. Walters [Colo.] 89 P. 815. Allegation of negligence in permitting wire to fall and remain down held to imply charge of negligence in manner of maintaining wire and in permitting to remain around post after it had been wrapped there by third person. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532, 99 S. W. 879. Where it was alleged that defendant maintained electric wires so close to telephone pole on which plaintiff had to work as to injure him by current, injury was prima facie evidence of negligence and it was not necessary to allege the fact of imperfect insulation and escape of electricity. Brown v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 801.

91. Where complaint shows that defendant negligently permitted wire to become weak and rotten and that fall of wire was proximate cause of accident, but which does not allege that fall resulted from defective condition, is insufficient. Alken v. Columbus, 167 Ind. 139, 78 N. E. 657.

92. See 7 C. L. 1264.

93. Prima facie case is made against telephone company in evidence that its wire fell over heavily charged wire of power company at 8 o'clock p. m., that after mule came in contact therewith was severely injured man took wire from street and attached to pole, and that decedent was killed about 6 a. m. while tying horse to pole. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532, 99 S. W. 879.

94. Evidence that city installed electric globe and received compensation therefor held to sufficiently show duty to keep it properly insulated. Thomas v. Somerset, 39 Ky. L. R. 131, 98 S. W. 420. Blue print made day after accident and put in evidence by the Western Union Telegraph Co., defendant, on which wire causing accident was marked "W. U. Telegraph wire," held to supply formal proof of ownership. Dannenhower v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Pa.] 67 A. 207.

95. It is not essential to establish negligence in use of electricity to show precisely how injury occurred and particular defective agency. Goddard v. Enzler, 123 Ill. App. 108.

96. Where gist of action was negligence in permitting live wire to fall upon plaintiff's gate, variance between allegation that defendant negligently constructed wire across plaintiff's premises and proof that wires were constructed along sidewalk is not fatal. Houston Lighting Power Co. v. Hooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 410, 102 S. W. 133.

97. Injury resulting from live wire upon defendant.<sup>98</sup> The general rules respecting relevancy,<sup>99</sup> expert testimony,<sup>1</sup> evidence of prior accidents,<sup>2</sup> and subsequent conditions,<sup>3</sup> are applicable. Evidence of practice of a public officer not to make inspections as required by ordinance is not admissible to show that inspection would not have been made if application had been filed.<sup>4</sup>

Questions for jury.<sup>5</sup>—While the construction of an ordinance is for the court,<sup>6</sup> questions of fact, such as the cause of the injury,<sup>7</sup> defendant's negligence,<sup>8</sup> plaintiff's contributory negligence,<sup>9</sup> etc., are usually for the jury.

Instructions must not submit grounds of negligence not alleged,<sup>10</sup> issues not supported by evidence,<sup>11</sup> or influence the jury in favor of either party.<sup>12</sup> Again, raises presumption of negligence. Godard v. Enzler, 123 Ill. App. 108. Where death results from failure of transformer to reduce voltage, presumption of negligence arises. Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Schmitt, 123 Ill. App. 647.

98. Intimation in charge that presumption exists and remains throughout case that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence but exercised ordinary care was not prejudicial as requiring anything more than that negligence of plaintiff need be shown by preponderance of evidence only. Toledo Rys. & Light Co. v. Rippon, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 334.

99. Although only negligence alleged is failure to keep wires properly insulated, evidence as to location is admissible as bearing on degree of care [Denver Consol. Elec. Co. v. Walters [Colo.] 89 P. 815.], but court should instruct that such evidence should not be considered as showing independent negligence (Id.).

1. In action for death caused by breaking of wire and falling across another heavily charged, expert may testify whether there is any method whereby wires of upper system may be prevented from falling across those of lower system, but unless followed by proof of practicability of such method, it may be stricken. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532, 99 S. W. 879. In action for failure to keep wires properly insulated, expert may testify whether in his opinion, based on certain assumption of fact which some of the evidence tended to show, wire was properly insulated. Denver Consol. Elec. Co. v. Walters [Colo.] 89 P. 815.

2. In action against telephone company for injury from shock received while telephoning, evidence that prior thereto third person was injured at another phone is inadmissible. Brucker v. Gainesboro Tel. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1162, 100 S. W. 240.

3. Held not error to receive testimony of connection between service wire and guy wire two or three days after accident where witness stated that at time of accident there seemed to be a connection and there was nothing to show change of conditions. Snyder v. Mutual Tel. Co. [Iowa] 112 N. W. 776.

4. Brunelle v. Lowell Elec. Light Corp. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 466.

5. See 7 C. L. 1266.

6. Error to permit city inspector to testify that in his opinion it was duty of no one but himself to enforce ordinance relating to change in wiring system. Brunelle v. Lowell Elec. Light Corp. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 466.

7. In action for death of lineman, question whether circuit was caused by decedent's foot coming in contact with guy wire or by his grasping two service wires held for jury. Snyder v. Mutual Tel. Co. [Iowa.] 112 N. W. 776.

8. Held for jury: In placing heavily charged wires within 18 inches of, each other and on opposite sides of pole likely to be climbed by workmen, and in permitting one to become uninsulated. Memphis Consol. Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bell [C. C. A.] 152 F. 677. Where telephone wire fell over power wire and became charged thereby. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532, 99 S. W. 879. In action for loss due to lightning entering house over telephone wires left after removal of telephone box, negligence of defendant and of plaintiff. Evans v. Eastern Kentucky Tel. & T. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 833, 99 S. W. 936.

9. Held for jury: Shock received while attempting to replace glass insulator. Denver Consol. Elec. Co. v. Walters [Colo.] 89 P. 815. In taking held of electric light bulb, knowing that a boy had shortly before received shock therefrom. Grimm v. Omaha Elec. Light & Power Co. [Neb.] 112 N. W. 620. Of one injured by coming in contact with defectively insulated wire while climbing pole in failing to discover defect. Dover v. Gloucester Elec. Co., 155 F. 256. Of one coming in contact while climbing pole with wire which had become uninsulated at splice, after warning to treat such wire as uninsulated because of strong voltage, held for jury. Memphis Consol. Gas. & Elec. Co. v. Bell [C. C. A.] 152 F. 677.

10. Where only negligence alleged is failure to keep wires properly insulated, instruction submitting negligence in improperly placing is erroneous. Denver Consol. Elec. Co. v. Walters [Colo.] 89 P. 815.

11. Where there was no evidence that breaking of wire or its being permitted to remain in dangerous condition was due to negligence of servants not error to refuse to submit such question. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532, 99 S. W. 899.

they need not submit issues where only one inference can be drawn in respect thereto.<sup>13</sup>

EMBEZZLEMENT.

§ 1. Nature and Elements of Offense | § 2. Prosecution and Punishment (1069).
(1067).

This topic includes, in addition to embezzlement proper, the equivalent statutory offenses denominated larceny, larceny by bailee, larceny after trust, etc.

§ 1. Nature and elements of offense.<sup>14</sup>—Embezzlement is purely a statutory offense<sup>15</sup> and, in determining whether the acts charged constitute embezzlement, the terms of the statute are controlling.<sup>16</sup> It consists in the violation of a trust or fiduciary relation by the wrongful conversion or misappropriation of the trust property,<sup>17</sup> and it is the violation of this relation which distinguishes embezzlement from larceny.<sup>18</sup> Hence, while a mere agent de facto may commit this offense<sup>19</sup> one who does not hold himself out as agent and who stands in no repany and electric company, instruction that, if jury found against both companies, to find for telephone company against electric company held not error as tending to influence jury to find against electric company. San Antonio Gas & Elec. Co. v. Badders [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 507, 103 S. W. 229.

13. Where location of defendant's wire was such that it was bound to foresee that it would fall across heavily charged power wire if it should break, the likelihood of foreseeing such consequences need not be submitted. Citizens' Tel. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 532, 99 S. W. 879.

15. State v. Pellerin, 118 La. 547, 43 So. 159.

16. State v. Pellerin, 118 La. 547, 43 So. 159. There must at least be some act indicating an intent to segregate and hold for one's self the property converted, or deprive the owner of the same, or convert it to one's own use, and accused must have assumed personal dominion over it. Knight v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 585. Corporate officers knowingly using corporate money to pay private debt for a printing press bought by them, and later sold to corporation, held to violate Pub. St. 1901, c. 274, § 7. State v. Davison [N. H.] 64 A. 761. Agent guilty of embezzlement for refusing to pay over money admitted to be due because of principal's refusal to settle as he desired. National Life & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Gibson [Ky.] 101 S. W. 895. Vendee not guilty for retaining a ring after default where vendor did not comply with conditions entitling him to the property. People v. Gluch, 188 N. Y. 167, 80 N. E. 1022, rvg. 117 App. Div. 432, 102 N. Y. S. 758.

17. Embezzling is the wrongful and felonious appropriation to himself by a servant, employee, or other person designated in the statute, of property intrusted to him by his employer. State v. Pellerin, 118 La.

547, 43 So. 159. Gravamen is that one who has come rightfully in possession as agent, servant, etc., converts or secretes the property. Knight v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 585. Breach of trust gist of offense under Gen. St. 1906, § 3311, and its provisions do not apply unless accused held a relation of confidence or trust, had possession by virtue thereof, and converted it in violation of the trust reposed in him. Tipton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 684.

18. Defendant properly found guilty of embezzlement though acts would have been larceny if not committed in violation of fiduciary relation. State v. Pellerin, 118 La. 547, 43 So. 159. One who assists an employee having possession of property in removing it with intent to appropriate it is guilty of embezzlement and not of theft. Pearce v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 447, 98 S. W. 861.

NOTE. Who are bailees: Statutes punishing embezzlement by bailees have been held to apply to an innkeeper in possession of a guest's baggage (People v. Husband, 36 Mich. 306), to a person to whom money was delivered to buy goods for another (Reg. v. Arden, 12 Cox C. C. 512), to a person to whom accepted orders for goods were delivered (Hutchinson v. Com., 82 Pa. 472), to an attorney employed to collect money on percentage (Wallis v. State, 54 Ark. 611), but a person who receives money on property for another does not necessarily become a bailee within the meaning of such statutes. Thus, it is held that an employer is not a bailee as to money deposited by his agent to secure faithful performance by the latter of his duties (Mulford v. People, 139 Ill. 586), nor is one a bailee as to an excessive payment made to him by mistake (Fulcher v. State, 32 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621), nor is one to whom goods are delivered on conditional sale a bailee (Krause v. Com., 93 Pa. 418).—Adapted from Clark & M. Crimes, p. 518.

19. Tipton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 684.

lation of trust or confidence may not be found guilty.<sup>20</sup> To constitute embezzlement by an agent or servant, it must appear that accused was an agent or servant,<sup>21</sup> that the property came into his hands as that of his employer,<sup>22</sup> that he received it in the course of his employment,<sup>23</sup> and that he appropriated it to his own use with intent to steal it.<sup>24</sup> Criminal intent is essential<sup>25</sup> and must exist at the time of the conversion,<sup>26</sup> but must be gathered from the acts of the agent and the circumstances of the case rather than from his express declarations,<sup>27</sup> and defendant's motive is immaterial if the property is in fact fraudulently converted.<sup>28</sup> Unless made an element by statute, a demand is not necessary where the conversion is complete without a refusal,<sup>29</sup> and it is not necessary to show what disposition was made of the money.<sup>30</sup>

Property held by defendant in partnership with prosecutor cannot be embezzled as the latter's property;<sup>31</sup> but an agent may embezzle funds collected for his principal though he be entitled to a percentage commission.<sup>32</sup> One is not guilty of embezzlement in making an authorized sale though he may subsequently embezzle the proceeds,<sup>33</sup> and, where he holds as purchaser, he cannot embezzle the property or the proceeds of a sale.<sup>34</sup>

The willful failure of a custodian of public funds to pay them over to his successor at the expiration of his term is an offense under the Arkansas statute regardless of whether there has been a previous misappropriation.<sup>35</sup> The Federal statute extends the crime of embezzlement of public money to any person who is guilty of the acts therein enumerated.<sup>36</sup> Money coming into a bank

21. People v. Hemple [Cal. App.] 87 P. 227.

22. People v. Hemple [Cal. App.] 87 P. 227. Insurance taxes collected by state auditor without authority not money of the state within Acts 1905, p. 670, c. 169, § 389. Sherrick v. State, 167 Ind. 345, 79 N. E. 193.

23. People v. Hemple [Cal. App.] 87 P. 227. Evidence insufficient to show that defendant received the money alleged to have been embezzled. Id. State auditor could not be held for converting insurance taxes collected by him without authority and which should have been collected by the treasurer. Sherrick v. State, 167 Ind. 345, 79 N. E. 193. That state sued on his bond was not such ratification of the collection as rendered him guilty of embezzlement by withholding the money from the state. Id.

24. People v. Hemple [Cal. App.] 87 P. 227.

25. No felonious intent where conditional sale vendee refused to return a ring for non-performance of conditions by vendor. People v. Gluck, 188 N. Y. 167, 80 N. E. 1022. In proceeding for violation of Penal Code, § 528, evidence insufficient to show criminal intent in officer of insurance company who contributed to a campaign, at president's request, and received reimbursement. People v. Moss, 187 N. Y. 410, 80 N. E. 383.

26. Pawning ring with intent to redeem, and without intent to permanently deprive owner thereof, not theft as bailee. Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 97 S. W. 473.

27. Agent knowingly appropriating principal's money guilty of embezzlement though at the time he intends to restore it. National Life & Acc. Ins. Co. v. Gibson [Ky.] 101 S. W. 895.

28. Not error to charge jury need not trouble about motive if defendant embezzled the property. State v. Allen [S. D.] 110 N. W. 92.

29. Not necessary on proof of wrongful appropriation to employee's own use. State v. Pellerin, 118 La. 547, 43 So. 159. Prosecution barred. Ex parte Vice [Cal. App.] 89 P. 983. Not necessary under Acts 1902, p. 151, c. 66, in prosecution against trustee. Commonwealth v. Kelly, 30 Ky. L. R. 1293, 101 S. W. 315. Offense of larceny after trust complete without demand, under Pen. Code 1895, § 194, when bailment and fraudulent conversion are shown. Goodman v. State [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 558.

30. Knight v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 585.

31. Evidence held to show partnership in an organ and proceeds of sale. McCrary v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 309, 103 S. W. 924; Id. [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 309, 103 S. W. 924.

33. McCrary v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 309, 103 S. W. 924.

34. Where accused was to take the property from prosecutor at cost, sell, and divide proceeds. McCrary v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 350, 103 S. W. 926.

35. Davis v. State, 80 Ark. 310, 97 S. W. 54. Must appear, however, that the money was in his possession at expiration of his term. Id. See post, Indictment.

36. Not directed only against bank offi-through the collection by it of checks drawn by a state agent on third persons for goods bought from a penitentiary is state money, and the agent's subsequent appropriation thereof is an appropriation of money of the state.<sup>37</sup> That a state officer assumes to collect money for the state does not estop him from asserting that he is not in the class of persons mentioned in the statute.<sup>38</sup> Conversion of bank funds is "larceny in the bank" though committed outside the premises of the bank.<sup>39</sup> Subsequent restitution<sup>40</sup> or the fact that security was given will not purge of criminality.<sup>41</sup>

§ 2. Prosecution and punishment. Limitations and venue.<sup>42</sup>—Limitations will commence to run without a demand where the conversion is otherwise clearly shown.<sup>43</sup> Venue lies only in the county where the crime was completed,<sup>44</sup> but the trial may be had in the county in which defendant received the property and in which he was to return it, though he took it into another county.<sup>45</sup>

The indictment.<sup>46</sup>—The general rules against uncertainty,<sup>47</sup> duplicity,<sup>48</sup> and repugnancy<sup>49</sup> apply. The identical words of the statute need not be employed so long as the words used unequivocally convey the meaning of the statute and apprise accused of the charge,<sup>50</sup> and, under a statute requiring the facts to be set out with clearness and certainty, accused is not entitled to a bill of particulars,<sup>51</sup> especially where he is a public officer having peculiar knowledge.<sup>52</sup> Though 41. Proper to instruct that jury should not consider evidence thereof. State v. Allen [S. D.] 110 N. W. 92.

42. See 7 C. L. 1271. These are treated more fully in Indictment and Prosecution, 8 C. L. 189.

43. Prosecution barred after three years from time ticket agent converted money and left employ of company, though instituted shortly after demand. Ex parte Vice [Cal. App.] 89 P. 983.

44. Under Pen. Code 1895, § 191, the crime may consist in either a wrongful appropriation to one's own use or a disposition of the property and failure to account for its value on demand. The crime is complete in the first case upon the wrongful appropriation to one's own use, in the second, upon failure to account for the value of the property. Venue lies only in the county where the crime is thus completed. Raiden v. State, 1 Ga. App. 532, 57 S. E. 989.

sion of proceeds of consignment held sufficiently definite and specific. State v. Teasdale, 120 Mo. App. 692, 87 S. W. 995. An allegation that accused received the property "as bailee" is sufficient to advise him that he came into possession of the property of another to be held for the latter for a special purpose. Storms v. State [Ark.] 98 S. W. 678. Indictment for embezzlement of public money held to sufficiently describe offense charged. United States v. Greene, 146 F. 778.

48. Indictment not double for alleging that defendant as bailee converted money to his own use, "and stole, took, and carried away" the same. Storms v. State [Ark.] 98 S. W. 678. A charge that defendant embezzled "and fraudulently converted" certain funds is not uncertain or double, though the quoted words may also be used in the statute to describe a different phase of larceny. Under Comp. Laws, § 11,562, for embezzlement by cashier of a bank. People v. Messer, 148 Mich. 168, 14 Det. Leg. N. 157, 111 N. W. 854. Additional allegation that defendant did "take, steal, and carry away" the property held mere surplage so as not to make complaint charge two offenses. State v. Allen [S. D.] 110 N. W. 92. A count charging embezzlement of a draft and one charging embezzlement of the money obtained thereon held to charge the same offense. People v. Peck, 147 Mich. 84, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1004, 110 N. W. 495.

49. Indictment for defalcations of assistant financial agent of a penitentiary not repugnant for alleging that accused was an officer of the government and a clerk and employee of such officer. Busby v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 185, 103 S. W. 638.

50. Words "unlawfully," "willfully," "fraudulently," and "feloniously" include the word "wrongfully." State v. Pellerin, 118 La. 547, 43 So. 159.

52. State auditor not entitled to be informed by such bill as to how, on what ac-

Christian names should be given, an averment of the owner's name by initials is sufficient.<sup>53</sup>

Ownership<sup>54</sup> and wrongful appropriation must be shown,<sup>55</sup> and the indictment must state that the funds came lawfully into defendant's possession by virtue of his relation or employment,<sup>56</sup> and that the trust had continued up to the time of the conversion.<sup>57</sup> Under the Arkansas statute an indictment for the embezzlement of public funds must allege either a misappropriation of the funds or that the officer willfully failed to pay over to his successor funds in his hands at the expiration of his term.<sup>58</sup> In New Mexico it must be charged that he was "unable to meet the demands of any person lawfully demanding the same."<sup>59</sup> Demand need not be alleged where not necessary to constitute the crime.<sup>60</sup> An indictment for fraudulent conversion of bailee need not allege theft of the property or that it was obtained by false pretenses or fraudulent representations.<sup>61</sup>

State* [Ind.] 81 N. E. 660. But an allegation that accused was a cashier of a bank is equivalent, under the Michigan statute, to an express charge that the money was in his possession by virtue of his office. Under Com. Laws, § 11,562. People v. Messer, 148 Mich. 163, 14 Det. Leg. N. 157, 111 N. W. 854.

57. Charge that defendant received the money as agent or servant and embezzled and appropriated same to his own use, and not in the one and lawful execution of the trust, held to sufficiently show continuance of the trust up to time of alleged conversion. People v. Hemple [Cal. App.] 87 P. 227.

58. Not sufficient to allege that at expiration of term officer failed to pay over funds which had previously come into his hands. Davis v. State, 80 Ark. 310, 97 S. W. 54.

59. Failure to allege that county treasurer was "unable to meet the demands of any person lawfully demanding the same" held fatal under Comp. Laws 1897, § 1125. Territory v. Abeytia [N. M.] 89 P. 254.

60. Not necessary in indictment against trustee under Acts 1902, p. 151, c. 66, for conversion of trust property. Commonwealth v. Kelly, 30 Ky. L. R. 1293, 101 S. W. 315.

61. Sufficient under Pen. Code 1895, art. 877, to allege that property was obtained by contract of hiring, and subsequently converted. Jeffreys v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 334, 103 S. W. 886.

62. See 7 C. L. 1272.

63. Evidence insufficient where defendant was given money to deposit in another county. Knight v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 585.

64. Burden on financial agent of a penitentiary to eliminate his private funds from those of state. Busby v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 185, 103 S. W. 638.

65. In prosecution for embezzlement of penitentiary funds, held not error to exclude evidence of payment for certain goods to a convict bookkeeper, there being no evidence that accused was charged with that amount. Busby v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 185, 103 S. W. 638. Where evidence showed that a financial agent had placed money to the credit of a certain company, held not error to exclude evidence that witness had examined account of accused with the company and that accused had never made a claim against the company for the money. Id.

66. Evidence of certain checks, orders, and items held admissible in prosecution of financial agent of a penitentiary for embezzlement of state funds. Busby v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 185, 103 S. W. 638.

67. Testimony of expert bookkeepers appointed to examine the books of accused and report is admissible. Prosecution of agent of a penitentiary. Busby v. State bank officer is within the terms of the Michigan statute permitting the admission of evidence of acts of embezzlement committed within six months next after the time stated in the indictment.<sup>69</sup> It may be shown that a check that was used was a mere memorandum.<sup>70</sup>

A civil judgment against accused and his bondsmen is not admissible,<sup>71</sup> and books of account with the state should not be admitted unless kept by accused or under his direct supervision, or unless it appears that they were properly kept and were books of original entries.<sup>72</sup> So, also, self-serving declarations of defendant's successor in service,<sup>73</sup> and items barred by limitations, should be excluded.<sup>74</sup>

Sufficiency of evidence.<sup>75</sup>—Where the receipt and failure to account for public funds is shown only slight additional evidence is required to show fraudulent intent,<sup>76</sup> but fraudulent intent at the time when property was received cannot be presumed from proof of a subsequent failure to return it, since that would make the offense larceny.<sup>77</sup>

EMBLEMENTS AND NATURAL PRODUCTS.<sup>91</sup>

"Crops" in the broadest sense of the term means all products of the soil grown and gathered within a single season.<sup>94</sup> "Crops grown and to be grown" includes crops raised by tenants and share croppers.<sup>95</sup> Growing trees constitute part of the realty<sup>96</sup> and must be conveyed as such.<sup>97</sup> Trees sold with a view of immediate severance and sale are converted into personalty,<sup>98</sup> but if not severed within the time specified or within a reasonable time thereafter, they cease to be chattels and are restored to their rightful position as part of the realty.<sup>99</sup> The remedy for conversion is determined by the nature of the emblements as real or personal.<sup>1</sup> Hay is personalty when sold.<sup>2</sup> All growing and unharvested crops raised annually by labor or planting upon a leasehold go to the administrator or personal representatives as assets of the estate upon death of tenant,<sup>3</sup> and the same is true if crops are raised after death of the lessee but during the life of the lease, unless there be an exemption.<sup>4</sup> An outgoing tenant is not entitled to crops that mature after termination of his lease unless it be by custom of the country or by express agreement,<sup>5</sup> though the landlord may by act or conduct estop himself from denying his tenant such right.<sup>6</sup>

§ 1. The power of the state and delegations of it. A. Definitions and nature of power.<sup>8</sup>—Eminent domain is the superior right of property subsisting in a sovereignty by which private property may, in certain cases, be taken for the public benefit without regard to the wishes of the owner.<sup>9</sup> It is an incident of sovereignty inherent in the several states by virtue of their sovereignty.<sup>10</sup> In the United States private rights may not be taken without the owner's consent in any other manner,<sup>11</sup> and, when taken by the exercise of this power, it is generally conditioned on compensation first made or secured,<sup>12</sup> and statutes denying this to crop, well knowing that tenant sowed thinking he had a right to reap. Carmine v. Bowen, 104 Md. 198, 64 A. 932.

Where owners of lots on the opposite side of a street adjoining a harbor had filled them out into the harbor as authorized by statute, they acquired a right to maintain wharves of which they could not be deprived except by the exercise of the power of eminent domain. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co., 104 Md. 485, 65 A. 353. Where a street as originally dedicated was but fifty feet wide the city could not acquire a greater width except by condemnation, not by ordinance. Elliot v. Atlantic City, 149 F. 849.

12. Where a county takes land of a private owner to widen a road such owner is entitled to compensation for the land taken and for injury to remaining land. Terrell County v. York, 127 Ga. 166, 56 S. E. 309. Under the constitutional provision that private property shall not be taken without compensation, the legislature may not authorize boom companies to overflow lands of riparian owners without having acquired the right to do so by contract or condemnation. Burrows v. Grays Harbor Boom Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 937. A statute authorizing a city to take and hold land and privileges necessary for the construction of waterworks and to have appraisers appointed where compensation cannot be agreed upon contemplates that compensation shall be made, and it cannot without consent of an owner divert water from a stream without paying nominal damages. Breckerle v. Danbury [Conn.] 67 A. 271. Under Rev. St. 1895, authorizing canal companies to construct deep water channels for the purposes of navigation from salt water to the mainland to aid navigation, held that in crossing the mainland the canal company acted under the power of eminent domain rather than under the sovereign right to improve navigation, and was liable to a riparian owner for polluting waters of a bayou. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal Dock [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 4, 97 S. W. 686. The fact that change of grade is made in conformity to municipal ordinance does not preclude an abutting owner from recovering consequential damages. Const. 1877 (par. 1, § 3, Bill of Rights) gives a citizen this right. City of Macon v. Daley [Ga. App.] 53 S. E. 540. A railroad company incorporated by Laws 1846, p. 64, providing that the state may, after the expiration of a certain period, repeal the act providing the company is compensated is on repeal of the act entitled to compensation for loss of its franchise. *Michigan Cent. 14. Under Drainage Act May 29, 1879 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 42), providing for acquisition of ditch rights of way for drainage purposes is insufficient because not providing for ascertainment of damages for land taken. City of Joliet v. Spring Creek Drainage Dist., 222 Ill. 441, 78 N. E. 836.

15. Statutes providing for the exercise of the power must be definite and certain in their provisions for compensation. Litchfield v. Pond, 186 N. Y. 66, 78 N. E. 719.

16. The fact that an owner petitions for the opening of a street in front of her property does not of itself grant the city the right to take any of his property without compensation. Hab v. Georgetown [Wash.] 91 P. 10.

17. Laws 1893, p. 135, relative to condemnation by cities of the fourth class, has not been superseded by subsequent legislation. State v. Pierce County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 87 P. 521. Such statute authorizes condemnation of streets and alleys as well as property to be used by the corporation itself. Id.

power is conferred upon school boards.<sup>28</sup> Foreign corporations may not exercise the power unless it is expressly delegated to them.<sup>29</sup> A corporation which asserts the right to exercise the power must show itself to be within the provisions of the enabling act<sup>30</sup> and must comply with its provisions,<sup>31</sup> but it is held that a de facto corporation may exercise the power,<sup>32</sup> and a consolidated railroad company has the power if the constituent companies had.<sup>33</sup>

Rights of transferees, agents, or receivers, or delegates.<sup>34</sup>—The right of a private corporation to exercise the power is not such a property right as can be transferred by deed to another corporation,<sup>35</sup> but where a corporation after instituting proceedings transfers all its property and rights to another which has the same statutory powers as the transferor, the transferee becomes vested with the right to continue the proceedings.<sup>36</sup> The lessee of a railway company may exercise the power if authorized by statute to do so.<sup>37</sup>

The members of board of education of city of Hoboken in office at time of approval of general school act of 1903 became a body corporate under that act and were given the power to condemn lands for public school purposes. Their successors elected prior to the adoption of such act have such power. Wendel v. Board of Education of Hoboken [N. J. Law] 66 A. 1075.

29. Under the statutes and constitution of Washington, a foreign railroad corporation may come into the state and exercise the power upon compliance with c. 9, p. 238, Laws 1889-90, without regard to any line of road previously constructed. State v. Griffin [Wash.] 90 P. 661. Under the Laws of Montana a foreign corporation authorized by the law of its domicile to construct a dam on a river in Montana has not the power of eminent domain. Helena Power Transmission Co. v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. 210. A petition for condemnation for the purpose of supplying inhabitants of a town and other places in a county with water does not show that the use is exclusively a public one within Code Civ. for cuttings, embankments, etc., in excess of the six rods ordinarily allowed. Smith v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 501. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, p. 365, empowering commissioners to enlarge or change the channel of Des Plaines River, and acquire property necessary for the purposes of the sanitary district, it has power to acquire land necessary for the protection of remaining land of a party, a portion of whose land was taken. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Martin, 227 Ill. 260, 81 N. E. 417. Under 22 St. at Large, p. 934, giving light and water companies power to condemn rights of way and water courses, they have power to condemn land. Ingleside Mfg. Co. v. Charleston Light & Water Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 664. A railroad company which has leased its line may, if the lease so provides, extend its lines to benefit its lessee, and for this purpose may condemn land in its own name. Beckman v. Lincoln & N. W. R. Co. [Neb.] 112 N. W. 348. Where a railroad, limited in the number of tracks it may use, consolidated with a company which is unlimited, and the agreement contains no limit, the consolidated company is not limited. *New York Cent., etc., R. by the courts of some states. Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson, 12 Idaho, 786, 88 P. 426. In this state the general welfare and benefit of the public is considered, and if the taking is necessary to the complete development of the material resources of the state, such taking is for a public use. Id.

64. In order to entitle a private corporation to exercise the power, the use which forms the basis of its application therefor must be such as will subserve the public in some appreciable way. *Shasta Power Co. v. The fact that a corporation authorized to exercise the power to increase its water power to operate street railway and lighting systems is authorized by its articles to furnish power to individuals, which is not a public use, will not deprive it of its right to exercise the power. State v. Olympia Light & Power Co. [Wash.] 90 P. 656. Where the legislature has authorized the taking of land for a certain use, courts will not decline to acknowledge it a public use merely because of incidental private advantage unless it is manifest that the use does not imply a right in the general public to its enjoyment. *Mull v. Under Alaska Code (31 Stat. 522), providing that the right of eminent domain may be exercised for the purpose of procuring canals and flumes for transportation, and to supply water for mining and agricultural purposes, a mining corporation can exercise it to procure a right of way to carry water to work mining claims. Miocene Ditch Co. v. Pratt [Minn.] 112 N. W. 395. Under such statutes the power may be exercised to aid in the construction of canals and reservoirs to be used to create and distribute electric power for public use. Id. Complaint to condemn ditch right of way alleging that the corporation had acquired a franchise to sell inhabitants of a town light, heat, and power, and that it was necessary to the operation of its plant to conduct water in a ditch over the property sought to be condemned, shows that the property is sought for public use. *Shasta Power Co. v. 87. Only in the exercise of the power of eminent domain can the legislature authorize property dedicated to a specific public use to be used for an inconsistent purpose. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cincinnati, 76 Ohio St. 481, 81 N. E. 983. Property devoted to a public use cannot be taken unless the legislature has expressly or by necessary implication authorized it to be taken. Gillette v. Aurora R. Co., 228 Ill. 261, 81 N. E. 1005. The provisions of Consolidation Act, Laws 1882, p. 262, and greater New York Charter, relative to acquisition of land for streets, does not authorize taking of land previously taken for a railroad. In re East 161st St., 52 Misc. 596, 102 N. Y. S. 500.

88. A navigable stream may not be interfered with unless the statute expressly so provides. Minnesota Canal & Power Co. v. Pratt [Minn.] 112 N. W. 395. Under the general law, one railroad company cannot take property of another if such taking materially interferes with the prior use. Birmingham & A. R. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 679. The general power conferred by the legislature upon a local board to condemn lands for highways does not authorize it to condemn land previously taken for another public purpose. Station grounds of railroad company. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Williams, 148 F. 442. The taking of private property only is authorized by statutes providing for the exercise of the power of eminent domain unless there is express or clearly implied authority to extend them to public property. State v. Boone County [Neb.] 110 N. W. 629.

89. Evidence held to show a reasonable necessity authorizing taking of land devoted to one public service for another public service. State v. Skamania County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 91 P. 637. On the question of reasonable necessity for taking land devoted to one public service for another, the comparative expense in maintaining the latter (railroad) elsewhere may be considered. Id.

quirements of the latter corporation may be taken.<sup>90</sup> but necessity therefor must exist.<sup>91</sup> Whether the two uses will materially conflict is a judicial question.<sup>92</sup> A right in one railroad company to condemn a way across the line of another does not give it power to arbitrarily select its route.<sup>93</sup> The general power of condemnation will not authorize the taking of an abandoned right of way upon which there is a prior location where no necessity therefor exists,<sup>94</sup> nor will a specific right to condemn abandoned rights of way authorize condemnation of an abandoned right of way on which there is a prior street railway location.<sup>95</sup> A railway company may not by running its preliminary line preempt the property against another company.<sup>96</sup>

90. Section 2915, Rev. Laws 1905, authorizing one railroad company to condemn a right of way across the line of another, applies to companies organized under prior statutes as well as to those organized under the laws of 1905. In re Minneapolis & St. P. Suburban R. Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 13. One railroad company may take the land of another where there is necessity therefor, and it can be taken without material detriment to the owner. State v. Clarke County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 88 P. 332. Power in one railroad company to take a right of way across another line is implied from the law authorizing its construction. In this particular street railways cannot be differentiated from commercial railways, Shreveport Trac. Co. v. Kansas City S. & G. R. Co. [La.] 44 So. 457. Under Ann. St. 1906, pp. 1082, 1044, a telephone and telegraph company may condemn an easement on a railroad right of way to maintain its poles and wires. American Tel. & T. Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 202 Mo. 656, 101 S. W. 576. Construction of proposed telephone and telegraph line on railroad right of way held not to materially interfere with enjoyment of easement of the railroad company. Id. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4335, one railroad may condemn a way across another and take a portion of its right of way if it can be done without material detriment to the other. State v. King County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 90 P. 663. Where the legislature has provided that the right of way of a reclamation district may be crossed by another right of way or subjected to a common use with another public service corporation, it cannot be said that the court is without jurisdiction to a proceeding to take a levee right of way for a railroad right of way merely because the complaint shows that the strip is subject to an easement for a levee constructed thereon. Reclamation Dist. No. 551 v. Sacramento County Super. Ct. [Cal.] 90 P. 545. Under Civ. Code 1902, § 1895, providing that certain private carrier corporations have power to condemn a way across existing railroads, evidence held to show that it was essential to the conduct of the business of private railway company and reasonable necessity for condemnation of a crossing over an existing railroad. Salem R. Co. v. Alderman & Sons Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 940.

91. Under Rev. St. Idaho 1887, § 5212, providing that property already condemned shall not be taken except for a more necessary public use, held where defendant had acquired a right to drive a tunnel through plaintiff's mining claims, plaintiff did not acquire a right to use such tunnel to work their own mines on the theory that defendants condemnation was for a public use, necessity for such common use not appearing. It is no defense to a proceeding by a telegraph company to condemn a right of way along a railroad, where the height of the poles did not exceed the distance from their location to the end of the cross ties, that the right of way was already incumbered with one line, and the effect of another would be to menace the safety of its tracks and trains. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Atlantic Postal Tel. Cable Co., 152 F. 931.

92. Whether the proposed easement of a telegraph and telephone company on a railroad right of way would destroy or materially interfere with the use of the railroad easement is a judicial question. American Tel. & T. Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 202 Mo. 656, 101 S. W. 576. Where, in proceedings by a telegraph company to take such easement, the railroad filed a petition setting forth reasons and answers showing that the proposed use would materially interfere with its easement, the overruling thereof by the court constituted a judicial determination of the question. Id. Refusal of an instruction challenging sufficiency of evidence and in the nature of a demurrer held to constitute a judicial determination of the question. Id. In a proceeding by a railway company to take as a right of way, a right of way acquired by a reclamation district, where it is alleged that the two uses will not conflict the court cannot say as a matter of law that the uses cannot be so regulated as not to interfere with each other. Reclamation Dist. No. 551 v. Sacramento County Super. Ct. [Cal.] 90 P. 545.

93. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4335, providing that one railway company may procure a right of way across another, does not give power to arbitrarily condemn a right of way across the terminals of another company. State v. Whitman County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 88 P. 201. Evidence held to show that public necessity did not require that petitioner's route be established as proposed. Id.

95. Fayetteville St. R. Co. v. Aberdeen & R. R. Co., 142 N. C. 423, 55 S. E. 345. A street railway company which has located a right of way may protect the same by injunction against another company which seeks to condemn the same. Id.

Exercises of police or taxing power.<sup>9</sup>—The requirement of compensation does not impose any restriction upon the exercise of the police<sup>10</sup> or taxing power,<sup>11</sup> but chasing as an ordinary purchaser the land over which its line has been extended so impress the land with a public character as to preempt it against another company. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Indianapolis & L. R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 65. When the law under which two railroad companies are incorporated does not grant them a right of way, and one company seeks to condemn land purchased by another, their rights must be solved by priority of location accompanied by some public act tending to commit to a definite location. Id.

97. Private owners of land sought to be taken by a railroad company for additional tracks may not object to the right of the company to take part of a public park. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. v. Vonkers, 103 N. Y. S. 252.

98. See 7 C. L. 1285.

99. Where, in a suit to ex-propriate land for a railroad, evidence fails to disclose that petitioner, in selecting its route, was actuated by wanton purpose to inflict injury, but it appears that the route was selected in good faith, the right of the petitioner to select its route will not be subjected to judicial control. Colorado So. etc., R. Co. v. Boagni, 118 La. 268, 42 So. 932. Under Ann. St. 1906, pp. 1028, 1044, the discretion of a telegraph company in selecting its route cannot be interfered with in the absence of bad faith, malicious motive, or that such taking would entail great loss. *American Tel. & T. 2. The cutting of a ditch through private premises is a taking. Fraser v. Mulany, 129 Wis. 377, 109 N. W. 139.

3. In the absence of proof that a spur track was a temporary expedient, it is sufficiently permanent in character to entitle adjacent owners to recovery. Houston, & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 662, 100 S. W. 1013.

4. "Private way" as used in Comp. Laws 1897, § 6234, providing that compensation must be made for private ways taken, includes a private way created by a conveyance of a tract with right of way over an adjacent track. Detroit Leather Specialty Co. v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 588, 113 N. W. 14. Where the bed of a stream is taken, the owner is entitled to compensation. In re City of Buffalo, 116 App. Div. 525, 101 N. Y. S. 966. The right of a riparian owner to take water from a stream is property, within a provision that property shall not be taken without compensation. Bigham v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 4, 97 S. W. 686.

5. Where a railway company takes a vacated street for its right of way, it is liable to abutting owners for depreciation in the value of his property. Blackwell, etc., R. Co. v. Gist, 13 Okl. 516, 90 P. 839.

6. Under Const. Neb. 1875, art. 1, § 21, a property owner is entitled to compensation for special injury though no part of his property is actually taken. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. v. Wolf [C. C. A.] 148 F. 961. Damages may be recovered for noise, smoke, and cinders from railroad. Id. Where one was entitled to easements of way across a railroad, which easements were destroyed when an additional strip was taken, he was held entitled to damages therefor, the statute relative to farm crossings being of questionable applicability. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. v. Marshall, 105 N. Y. S. 686. The pollution of water by tide water flowing into a bayou rendering the fresh waters unfit for irrigation purposes, is a taking of riparian rights. Bigham v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 4, 97 S. W. 686.

7. Interference of easements of light, air, and access which were the only rights affected by the running of trains held not to constitute basis of recovery. Wolf v. Manhattan R. Co., 51 Misc. 426, 101 N. Y. S. 493. Where a city and private owner acquired their property by purchase with reference to a map showing streets and the property appeared to be laid out on a certain street, held that so long as the street remains open in front of the blocks upon which the private owner's property abuts, and it does not appear that the erection of a building on the portion of the street sought to be vacated will interfere with light and air, he is not deprived of any private easement. Reis v. New York, 188 N. Y. 58, 80 N. E. 573.

10. Act March 15, 1906, art. 2, providing that on an assignment of a lien where such assignment is not of record the original holder shall be liable, is not a taking. Shrader v. Semonin, 29 Ky. L. R. 1089, 96

the fact that the taking is for a public purpose does not avoid the necessity of compensation.<sup>12</sup>

Establishment or vacation of streets.<sup>13</sup>—On vacation of a street only, an owner whose property abuts on such street and whose means of access thereto is interfered with is entitled to compensation,<sup>14</sup> but, under a rule allowing damages for vacation of streets, an abutter is entitled to damages where a street is narrowed.<sup>15</sup> There is a conflict of authority as to whether an abutting owner is entitled to compensation for loss of lateral support caused by grading a street.<sup>16</sup>

Change of grade of streets.<sup>17</sup>—At common law a municipality is not liable for injuries to abutting property caused by change of street grade.<sup>18</sup> But in many states this rule is changed by statute,<sup>19</sup> and recovery may be had though the grade is reasonable and the work properly done.<sup>20</sup> In some states, damages may be had for improvements on the premises.<sup>21</sup>

Ann. St. 1906, p. 3608, making it unlawful to have in his possession the carcass of a deer which does not show the evidence of its sex, is not in violation of the provision that property shall not be taken for public use without compensation though it applies to domesticated deer. State v. Weber [Mo.] 102 S. W. 955. Ordinance requiring owners or occupants of property to remove snow from adjoining sidewalks is not a taking without compensation. State v. McCrillis [R. I.] 66 A. 301. Code, § 2297, providing that relatives of insane persons shall be liable to the county for sums paid by it to the state for hospital expenses of such insane persons, is not a taking. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133 Iowa, 171, 110 N. W. 454. Making of alterations in a bridge to remove obstruction of navigation is not a taking for which compensation must be made. Act Mar. 3, 1899, § 18. Union Bridge Co. v. U. S., 204 U. S. 364, 51 Law. Ed. 523. And see Stone v. Southern Illinois & Mo. Bridge Co., 206 U. S. 267, 51 Law. Ed. 1057.

11. An assessment against abutting property for paving a street is not a taking where the city can only use the amount of the assessment for the paving. Nalle v. Austin [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 54, 103 S. W. 825. Under Comp. St. 1897, § 101b, special assessments may be levied to pay for property taken for boulevard purposes upon all property benefited, and is not limited to property which abuts on the boulevard. State v. Several Parcels of Land [Neb.] 113 N. W. 248.

12. Though elevated railway tracks were built in streets under the police power, an abutting owner was entitled to compensation for impairment of his easements of light and access. Coyne v. Memphis [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 355. Under the rule that private property cannot be taken for public use without compensation, held, where a railroad erected a watertank which constituted a nuisance to a neighboring dwelling, necessity for location of the tank is no defense to an action for damages. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Edrington [Tex.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 175, 101 S. W. 441.

14. Only property owners whose property abuts on a street vacated and whose access to their property is cut off are entitled to compensation because of the vacation. Enders v. Friday [Neb.] 111 N. W. 140.

15. Under Laws 1895, p. 2037, providing for damages when streets are closed, an owner held entitled to compensation where a street was narrowed. People v. Delany, 105 N. Y. S. 746. Mandamus will lie to compel the appointment of commissioners to determine compensation where a street is narrowed, though the strip taken is narrow and the damage small. Id.

16. Where in grading a street a substantial portion of an abutting owner's land falls in because of removal of lateral support, it constitutes a taking of the soil and not a mere consequential injury, and the assessments of damages and benefits does not cover such taking. Dahlman v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 111 N. W. 675. Where a city owning the fee of streets in establishing a grade removes lateral support from the land of an abutting owner, it is not a taking. Talcott Bros. v. Des Moines [Iowa] 109 N. W. 311.

17. See 7 C. L. 1287. See, also, Highways and Streets, 8 C. L. 40.

18. Laws of New York providing for changes in railroad viaduct in a street so as to increase the size thereof is not unconstitutional as depriving an adjoining owner of his property, consisting of light and air easements, without compensation. Foster v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 118 App. Div. 143, 103 N. Y. S. 531.

19. Laws 1883, p. 100, amended by Laws 1884, p. 342, gave an abutter on a city street right to compensation for change of grade, which right is not destroyed by repeal of the statute as to one whose rights accrued under contract in a conveyance by him of his property to the village for a street while the statute was in force. Lawton v. New Rochelle, 51 Misc. 184, 100 N. Y. S. 771. This obligation is assumed by a city to which is transferred the obligations and duties of the village. Id. In changing grade of a street, a municipality is liable for impairment of the easement of access to and from an abutting lot. Coyne v. Memphis [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 355.

20. Under Laws 1893, p. 207, Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 821, a city is liable to an abutting owner for damage caused by change of grade of a street though the

Railroads or other ways or structures on city streets.<sup>22</sup>—Though an abutting owner owns the fee of a street, it is subject to the paramount right of the public to use it for all proper street purposes,<sup>23</sup> but for additional servitude thereon, such as the use thereof for steam railroads<sup>24</sup> or telephone lines,<sup>25</sup> he is entitled to compensation. The right of the public to use the streets includes the right to use the sub-surface if necessary for travel, but an elevated railway cannot be constructed unless the abutters are compensated.<sup>27</sup> A state decision that an elevated railroad in the street is not an additional servitude impairs no right protected by the Federal constitution.<sup>28</sup>

Use of rural highways for purposes other than general public travel.<sup>29</sup>—The construction of telephone lines<sup>30</sup> or laying of gas mains in a rural highway is an additional servitude,<sup>31</sup> but recovery may not be had for laying a railroad upon a highway until it interferes with the abutting owner's enjoyment of his property.<sup>32</sup>

24. Where the fee of a street is in an abutting owner, the location of a railroad in the street is a taking of his property. Taber v. New York, P. & B. R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9. The use of a street for steam railroad purposes is an additional servitude. Spalding v. MacComb & W. I. R. Co., 225 Ill. 585, 80 N. E. 327. The legislature may authorize a commercial steam railway company to lay its tracks in the street, but such permission is subject to the constitutional restraint that private property cannot be taken without compensation, and an abutting owner who is injured must be first compensated. Athens Terminal Co. v. Athens Foundry & Mach. Works [Ga.] 58 S. E. 891. An abutting owner may recover damages because of construction of a railroad in the street though the ordinance authorizing such construction vacates the portion of the street to be so used. Stehr v. Mason City & H. D. R. Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 701.

42. Laws 1905, p. 2022, providing that a municipality shall not condemn lands for new or additional sources of water supply until it has submitted maps and profiles thereof to the state commission does not apply to a proceeding to take a fully equipped plant. Village of Waverly v. Waverly Water Co., 117 App. Div. 536, 101 N. Y. S. 1070. Under Laws 1903, p. 337, providing for the taking of land for canals, held that the filing of the map, survey, and certificate and giving notice are essential to an appropriation which will authorize entry on and use of land for a canal. United Trac. Co. v. Ferguson Cont. Co., 117 App. Div. 305, 102 N. Y. S. 190. Laws 1889-90, p. 718, § 42, considered in connection with §§ 44-54, held not to require filing of a map as a condition precedent to condemn riparian rights. State v. Stevens County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 90 P. 650. A map which gives no idea of the width of the right of way, or as to whether a single line shown thereon is the median line of right of way or otherwise, is insufficient. Indiana So. R. Co. v. Indianapolis & L. R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 65. An insufficient map showing location of a railroad is not cured by a sufficient description in recorded deeds. Id. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5152, filing of a map and profile need not precede condemnation. Id.

43. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4335, requiring an attempt to agree, does not apply where a railroad company seeks to condemn a right of way across property of a boom company, another public service corporation. State v. Skamania County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 91 P. 637. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 1292 does not require an attempt to agree with the owner before condemning land for an alley. State v. Pierce County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 87 P. 521.

44. An offer of a fair price which is refused is sufficient negotiations to authorize commencement of proceedings. Bridwell v. Gate City Terminal Co., 127 Ga. 520, 56 S. E. 624.

Evidence held to show that an agreement could not be reached with a landowner though the agent negotiating misunderstood the exact location of the land desired. New York Cent. & H. R. Co. v. Yonkers, 103 N. Y. S. 252. Where a landowner refused to give right of way for improvement of a ditch, and stated to the commissioner that he would contest proceedings, no further attempt to agree was necessary, and the commissioner was authorized to institute condemnation proceedings under Comp. Laws, §§ 4322, 4325, 4326. Patterson v. Mead, 148 Mich. 659, 112 N. W. 742. Evidence that the agent of a corporation seeking appointment of appraisers had negotiated with a third person claiming to represent landowner, and had in his possession deeds executed to it, held admissible to show negotiations with the owner. Stafford Springs St. R. Co. v. Middle River Mfg. Co. [Conn.] 66 A. 775. Evidence that a person listed property of a corporation for taxation is admissible on the question of his agency. Id. Negotiations with landowners mutually precedes condemnation, but where it appears that negotiations were held prior to location of the road, it is not necessary that they be renewed after location. Id.

would be fruitless.<sup>46</sup> The obtaining from a municipality of a franchise is not a condition precedent,<sup>47</sup> but in Pennsylvania it is held that a railway company entering a city must first obtain municipal consent.<sup>48</sup> Public service corporations authorized to exercise the power become subject to governmental regulation and control,<sup>49</sup> but the actual exercise of the state's power to so regulate is not a condition precedent to the exercise of the power of eminent domain by the corporation.<sup>50</sup>

§ 6. Measure and sufficiency of compensation.<sup>51</sup>—The measure of compensation to be awarded in condemnation proceedings is governed by the general rules applicable to damages,<sup>52</sup> and the fair market value of the property<sup>53</sup> at the time of

45. Under Gen. St. 1902, § 3687, providing for appointment of appraisers if parties cannot agree, it is not enough to show that negotiations had been had in the best of faith with one not the owner, though he represented himself to be the owner. Stafford Springs St. R. Co. v. Middle River Mfg. Co. [Conn.] 66 A. 775.

46. Even if such statute does apply, the effort need not be made where it would be fruitless because of the fact that the boom company denies the right of the railroad company to take. State v. Skamania County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 91 P. 637.

47. Under Rev. Laws 1905, § 2916, a railway company has the right to condemn a way across streets and alleys of cities without securing a franchise from the city. In re Minneapolis & St. P. Interurban R. Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 13. A public service corporation authorized to exercise the power for the purpose of furnishing the public with light, heat, and power need not first obtain a municipal franchise. Minnesota Canal & Power Co. v. Pratt [Minn.] 112 N. W. 395.

48. Where, before municipal consent to condemnation is obtained, a railroad company attempts to condemn a building, and before consent is obtained the lease is extended, the tenant is entitled to compensation for the extended term. McMillan Printing Co. v. Pittsburg, C. & W. R. Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 1091; Shipley v. Pittsburg, C. & W. R. Co., 216 Pa. 512, 65 A. 1094.

51. See 7 C. L. 1291.

52. See Damages, 9 C. L. § 69. Damage to a riparian owner is shown where it appears that the taking will prevent the natural and usual flow of water of the stream. State v. Olympia Light & Power Co. [Wash.] 90 P. 656. Evidence held to show that abutting property was not injured by construction of railroad tunnel in the street. Burton Lumber Corp. v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822.

53. Taber v. New York, P. & B. R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9. The market value of the property is the measure. The owner's desire or unwillingness to sell is immaterial. Port Townsend So. R. Co. v. Barbare [Wash.] 89 P. 710. Evidence held to show that an award of $10,000 should be reduced to $8,000 for taking a right of way through a farm. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Jennings [Miss.] 43 So. 469. A landowner through whose land a railroad right of way is taken should be paid full value. Colorado So. etc., R. Co. v. Boagni, 118 La. 268, 42 So. 932. The value of the property to the owner, and not its value to the petitioner, is the measure. In re East River Gas Co. of Long Island City, 104 N. Y. S. 239. When compensation is made to abutting owners it is for the land taken, and not for abutting land. State Line Tel. Co. v. Ellison, 121 App. Div. 499, 106 N. Y. S. 130.

In determining compensation where the sewer system of a town is taken the town may show what it would cost to restore the system to its original efficiency. United States v. Nahant [C. C. A.] 153 F. 520. In determining the market value, consequential enhancement as well as consequential damage is to be considered. Instructions approved. City of Macon v. Daley [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 540. In determining value, a lot having a space of twenty-five feet between it and an adjoining building giving it light and air on three sides is not to be considered as an ordinary inside lot. In re Amsterdam Ave., 53 Misc. 342, 104 N. Y. S. 821. Instructions held to properly submit the elements of damages. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 662, 100 S. W. 1013. In arriving at damages any special benefits accrued should be deducted from special damages. Taber v. New York, P. & B. R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9.

Definitions: Market value does not mean speculative value, but the fair value of the property as it stands. Opelousas, etc., R. Co. v. Bradford, 118 La. 506, 43 So. 79.

Due compensation is such amount as will make the owner whole pecuniarily for the taking of injury done his property. King v. Vicksburg R. & Light Co., 88 Miss. 456, 42 So. 204.

Just compensation is such as will put the owner in as good a position pecuniarily as he would have been in had his property not been taken. United States v. Nahant [C. C. A.] 153 F. 520. Evidence insufficient to show that property had been wholly destroyed for school purposes by the construction of a railroad. San Pedro, etc., R. Co. v. Board of Education of Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 565. In taking a street, compensation is to be made on account of an easement or similar appurtenant. Folsom v. Gate City Terminal Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 314. Where certain railroad crossings were abolished and grades separated, the owner of a leasehold could only recover damages sustained because of the improvement on which taking<sup>54</sup> or date of filing the petition,<sup>55</sup> based on a consideration of the most profitable use to which it could be put,<sup>56</sup> with interest from the date of taking,<sup>57</sup> is to be allowed. The question of negligence in constructing the improvement is immaterial.<sup>58</sup>

Damages are not limited to land taken, but include injuries to land not taken<sup>59</sup> and such damages as the owner sustains to either his real or personal property by reason of the taking.<sup>60</sup> Where land is injured but not taken, the measure is the dimi-his property abutted. City of Detroit v. Little Co., 146 Mich. 373, 13 Det. Leg. N. 803, 109 N. W. 671. Where a city released all of a street to a railroad for the purpose of constructing a tunnel, but it appeared that a portion of the street was not closed, held, an abutting owner was not entitled to recover on the theory that the street was discontinued. Burton Lumber Corp. v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822. Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 22, where an easement of way is taken for a highway, the fee owner, mortgagee, and owner of the easement were not entitled to the full market value of the land, but only to damages sustained. Boston Chamber of Commerce v. Boston [Mass.] 81 N. E. 244.

54. Damages are to be assessed with reference to conditions existing at the time of the taking. Boston Chamber of Commerce v. Boston [Mass.] 81 N. E. 244. The measure is the value of the property as a whole, in its condition at the time of taking. Ranck v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1027. Under Civ. Code, art. 2633, the value is to be estimated as of the time of taking, and not when the improvement was proposed and the increase in value resulting from such improvement deducted. Ope-lousas, etc., R. Co. v. St. Landry Cotton Oil Co., 118 La. 290, 42 So. 940. Rev. Laws, c. 50, § 3, providing that damages shall be fixed as of the time of taking, means that they are not to be enhanced by any increase of value resulting from the improvement, and does not mean that when an easement taken if of less value than the land the value of the land is to be allowed. Boston Chamber of Commerce v. Boston [Mass.] 81 N. E. 244. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5468e, providing that street railways may exercise the power of eminent domain and shall file an instrument of appropriation, etc., held, the filing of the instrument of appropriation was a taking of the land upon which title passed, and the right to resulting damages vested in the then owner as a personal claim. Ft. Wayne & S. W. Trac. Co. v. Ft. Wayne & W. R. Co. [Ind.] 80 N. E. 837.

55. All damages for rights taken and resulting to remaining lands, both present and prospective, which are the natural and reasonable incidents of the proposed improvement, must relate to the time of filing the complaint. New Jersey, etc., R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.] 80 N. E. 420. The value of the property is to be fixed as of the date of filing the petition. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chapin, 226 Ill. 499, 80 N. E. 1017. Damages are to be ascertained as of the date of filing bond to pay damages. Schonhardt v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 216 Pa. 224, 65 A. 543.

56. The criterion of value is the fair market value in view of any and all uses to which the property may be put. Ope-lousas, etc., R. Co. v. Bradford, 118 La. 506, 43 So. 79. The market value may be shown with reference to the most available and valuable use to which the land may be put. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Alexander [Wash.] 91 P. 626. Evidence that the property had been used for a certain purpose for many years, and such use had tended to increase its value for such purpose, is admissible. Ranck v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1027. Evidence that one whose property was taken had fitted it up for a special purpose, and it was adapted to such purpose, is admissible. Ranck v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1027. An owner may testify that the land was good meadow land and as to how much hay he got from it yearly. Creighton v. Board of Water Com'rs, 143 N. C. 171, 55 S. E. 511.

57. Kimball v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 395; In re Morris Ave., 118 App. Div. 117, 103 N. Y. S. 180. One who sues to recover value of right of way taken may recover interest from the date he acquired title to the property. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132 Iowa, 11, 109 N. W. 309. Interest is to be awarded from the time possession is taken, and cannot be allowed if such date is not proved. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 131 Iowa, 680, 109 N. W. 209. Interest is not allowable from institution of proceedings where no property has been actually taken up to the time of trial, and compensation is based on cost of repairing property injured. United States v. Nahant [C. C. A.] 153 F. 520. On appeal from a finding of the jury of view as to value, the owner is entitled to interest from the date of order of condemnation where the appellate court finds for the same amount. Snowden v. Shelby County [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 90.

58. Recovery may be had without proof of negligence in the construction or operation of the road. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 662, 100 S. W. 1013.

59. Recovery may be had for injury to land though none be taken. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Rep. 662, 100 S. W. 1013. Under Act 1904, p. 147, v. 87, §§ 8, 9, providing the method of assessing damages where a burnt district commission of Baltimore exercises the power of eminent domain, the commission is bound in estimating damages to consider injuries to property not taken. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co., 104 Md. 485, 65 A. 353. Under Const. art. 16, § 2, compensation is not limited to abutting property, but extends to any work sufficiently near to make injury immediate and substantial. Robbins v. Scranton, 217 Pa. 577, 66 A. 977.

60. Arkansas Valley & W. R. Co. v. Witt [Okla.] 91 P. 897.

nution of value,<sup>61</sup> determined by ascertaining the difference in value immediately before and after the construction of the improvement.<sup>62</sup> Damage to land not taken must be determined by offsetting of special damages against special benefits.<sup>63</sup> Compensation should be made for all injuries which cause diminution in the value of the property,<sup>64</sup> and all damages present and future must be the recovered.<sup>65</sup> Every element which would be considered by the parties in negotiating a voluntary sale is to be considered.<sup>66</sup> The market value cannot be increased by the fact that it was taken

61. Terrell County v. York, 127 Ga. 166, 56 S. E. 309; Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. v. Wolf [C. C. A.] 148 F. 961. Where a street is partially vacated and access to property diminished, the measure is the depreciation in value, unaffected by conditions which affect general values in the vicinity. Gillespie v. South Omaha [Neb.] 112 N. W. 582. In determining such damages, diversions in travel, inconvenience in access, and diminution in business are to be considered. Id. Testimony showing excavations, embankments, and other obstructions to the flow of surface water is admissible to show injury to land not taken. Arkansas Valley & W. R. Co. v. Witt [Okla.] 91 P. 897. In an action for damages caused by change of street grade, evidence of the damage by fixing the value before and subtracting cost of bringing lot to new grade was admissible. Bond v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 67 A. 805. The measure for change of grade is depreciation in the market value of the property. Cost of filling is admissible. City of Macon v. Daley [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 540. The measure is the diminution in value by reason of the construction of the railroad. Birmingham Belt R. Co. v. Lockwood [Ala.] 43 So. 819. Complaint for damages because of change of street grade held sufficient to admit evidence of diminution in value. Barnes v. Grafton, 61 W. Va. 408, 56 S. E. 608.

62. Morrison v. Fairmont & C. Trac. Co., 60 W. Va. 441, 55 S. E. 669. The damages which the taking occasions should be first ascertained, then the special benefits should be ascertained and deducted and the difference awarded. Tidewater R. Co. v. Cowan, 106 Va. 817, 56 S. E. 819. Method of ascertaining amount of compensation where a right of way was condemned approved. Id. Where a railroad company had a prescriptive right to use a structure in the street of specified dimensions, an abutting owner was entitled to the net difference between the effect of a new structure and the old one on her property, less benefits conferred by the latter. Foster v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 118 App. Div. 143, 103 N. Y. S. 531. Where a railroad right of way is taken diagonally through a farm of sixty-five acres, damages should be assessed for the entire farm. Union Trac. Co. v. Pfeil, 39 Ind. App. 51, 78 N. E. 1052. Where an electric road is run across a farm, the measure of damages is the difference in the value of the farm before and after the construction of the road. In determining such value it is proper to consider value made by improvements. Buffalo, etc., R. Co. v. Phelps, 52 Misc. 315, 102 N. Y. S. 214. When property is injured because of change of grade, the measure is the difference in market value between date of commencement of the work and date of its completion, less direct benefits. Kimball v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 395. For taking riparian rights the depreciation in the value of the entire tract adjacent to the stream. Hercules Water Co. v. Fernandez [Cal. App.] 91 P. 401. Where a viaduct was built to cut off a dangerous grade crossing, cutting off access to a mill from one direction, but no land was taken, the jury could consider the entire situation before and after the improvement. Robbins v. Scranton, 217 Pa. 577, 66 A. 977.

63. Taber v. New York, P. & B. R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9. Where a railroad is located in a street, the fee of which is in abutting owner, he may recover the value of the land covered by the railroad at the time of location, subject to the public easement, and damages to remainder of the tract by reason of taking part for a railroad. Id.

64. Where a leasehold interest is taken, it cannot be complained of that the tenant recovered cost of removing machinery in addition to value of lease where the case was tried on the theory of such recovery. McMillan Printing Co. v. Pittsburg, C. & W. R. Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 1091. The measure where a quarry is condemned is the value of the stone in place, and, as to stone severed from the ledge, its value at the place where appropriated. Cole v. Ellwood Power Co., 216 Pa. 233, 65 A. 678. An owner is entitled to compensation for disturbance of a special right which he possesses in connection with his property, by reason of which disturbance he sustains special damages. Stehr v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 701.

65. Land taken for railroad. Union Trac. Co. v. Pfeil, 39 Ind. App. 51, 78 N. E. 1052. Where, in a proceeding to condemn land for widening a street, it appeared that claimant's improvements consisted of continuous frame structures, it could not be presumed that damages were allowed only for the portion of improvements on the land condemned. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co., 104 Md. 485, 65 A. 353. A statute authorizing a town to permit a street railway to change grade of a street without compensating abutting owners is not void, since compensation for such injury was made when the land was taken for a highway. Hyde v. Boston & W. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 517. Where land has been condemned, matters of ingress and egress to and from remaining land are presumed to have been considered at the time of taking. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scamp, 30 Ky. L. R. 437, 98 S. W. 1024. It is presumed that all damages sustained or to result from the taking are included in the award. Where the legislature required a surface railway to be replaced with an elevated one, the abutting owners were not entitled to additional damages. Leffmann v. Long Island R. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 487.

66. Every element of value which would be considered if the parties were negotiat-for such purpose.<sup>67</sup> When the right taken has no market value the measure is to be determined from the surrounding circumstances.<sup>68</sup> Mere speculative damages should not be allowed.<sup>69</sup> Double damages should not be allowed.<sup>70</sup>

Benefits.<sup>71</sup>—Except where authorized by law,<sup>72</sup> benefits resulting from the improvement may not be set off against the value of land taken,<sup>73</sup> but benefits direct ing a voluntary sale, including value of land after the right of way is taken. Yellowstone Park R. Co. v. Bridger Coal Co., 34 Mont. 545, 87 P. 963. Where a railroad was authorized to destroy a drain, it may be assumed that it would exercise its legal rights, and the effect of such destruction is to be considered. New Jersey, I. & I. R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.] 80 N. E. 420. Where a railroad was located in a street, the fee of which was in abutting owner, damages caused to tide land adjoining upland on the street is not an element because such tide land was owned by the state, but the damages might be considered in ascertaining value of upland. Taber v. New York, P. & B. R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9. Fixtures which have become part of the land are an element of damages. Heavy machinery. In re Acquiring Certain Property on North River in New York, 103 N. Y. S. 908.

67. Taken by a town for water supply purposes. Sargent v. Merrimac [Mass.] 81 N. E. 970. Where land is taken for water purposes, the owner is entitled to its fair value when taken plus such sum as a purchaser would have added on the chance that it might be used for water purposes at some future time. Id.

68. Where a railroad company had improved its right of way through swampy land and forests, and there was one telegraph line on the right of way, it could not be said that the easement for another line was of no more than nominal value. American Tel. & T. Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 202 Mo. 656, 101 S. W. 576. Instruction as to elements of damages where a telegraph company sought to condemn an easement along a railroad right of way held erroneous. Id. Where in a proceeding to take land owned by a gas company it appeared that it had maintained a gas holder on the land for many years and connections therewith, the city could not complain that compensation was awarded for the gas holder though the company had no franchise to connect mains with it. In re Water Front on North River in City of New York, 105 N. Y. S. 750.

69. Speculative or imaginary damages affecting only the natural beauty of the property cannot be recovered. Elbert County v. Swift [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 396. Remote or speculative loss in the conduct of a business is not a basis upon which to estimate damages. Robbins v. Scranton, 217 Pa. 577, 66 A. 977. Evidence that the best use the property could be put was the erection of apartment houses thereon which would cost $75,000, and that $14,000 per annum rents would be derived therefrom, held inadmissible as uncertain and speculative. In re Blackwells Island Bridge, 118 App. Div. 272, 103 N. Y. S. 441. Possibility that a river would ever be dredged so as to be navigable for ocean vessels held too remote to be an element of damage. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Alexander [Wash.] 91 P. 626. Incidental damage to other land not physically taken cannot be allowed. No allowance for gas from sewer. Seufferle v. Macfarland, 28 App. D. C. 94. In proceedings to take land under a river where the fee owner is not a riparian owner, and evidence as to value was speculative and conflicting, an award of nominal damages will not be disturbed. In re City of Buffalo [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 954.

Inconvenience resulting from loss of home and in moving is not an element. Madisonville, H. & E. R. Co. v. Ross [Ky.] 103 S. W. 330. A tract of land adjacent to a river and an island in the river could not be considered together for the purpose of assessing damages for a right of way through the main land, though the owner claimed he purchased the mainland to use in connection with the island as a sheltered nook to feed cattle, where nothing had been done to prepare the land for such use. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Aubuchon, 199 Mo. 352, 97 S. W. 867.

70. Where land was taken by a city from a gas company, and as a result the company was required to construct mains to another source of supply, and the company was awarded compensation for a gas holder on the land as a part of a going concern was held such compensation was sufficient as against an objection that compensation would be made for construction of another main. In re Water Front on North River in City of New York, 105 N. Y. S. 750. Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 22, providing that where several persons have estates in the land, the jury shall set forth the total amount of damage, and other sections of the statute are intended to give compensation for land taken or injured, but do not give to any one more damages than he sustains. Boston Chamber of Commerce v. Boston [Mass.] 81 N. E. 244.

71. See 7 C. L. 1294.

72. Laws 1901, p. 351, authorizing the city to acquire lands for improvement of the water front, construed, and held that, where two parcels were taken, special benefits resulting to parcels not taken were properly deducted from compensation for the land taken. In re Water Front on North River in City of New York, 105 N. Y. S. 750. Special benefits may be set off, in proceedings to condemn a right of way, against the value of the part taken, and damages shown to have accrued to the remainder. In re Mantorville R. & Transfer Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1033. The local advantages and disadvantages should be considered. Pattonville & Woodbury Turnpike Road Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 122.

73. Benefits can be set off only against damages to residue of the land, not against value of land taken. Morrison v. Fairmont & C. Trac. Co., 60 W. Va. 441, 55 S. E. 669. When land is taken for an electric interurban railroad company, no deduction should be made for benefits accruing to the land-and peculiar to the landowner,<sup>74</sup> as distinguished from those shared by him in common with other citizens,<sup>75</sup> and which are not speculative, contingent, or remote,<sup>76</sup> should be set off against damages to land not taken.<sup>77</sup> In determining whether benefits are special the test is whether the benefits are in fact such as add to the convenience, accessibility, and use of the property as distinguished from incidental benefits enjoyed by the public generally.<sup>78</sup> Property may be specially benefited though the benefit is shared by other property.<sup>79</sup> The term "special benefits," as used in condemnation of railway right of way, is the same as when used in highway, drainage, or ordinary municipal improvement proceedings only in so far as private property is taken by such proceedings.<sup>80</sup> Such benefits must be pro tanto a fair equivalent for the land parted with and damages inflicted.<sup>81</sup> The lien of a street assessment against property appropriated by the city for park purposes is merged in the higher title of the feet hereby acquired, and the city is entitled to retain the present value of assessments remaining unpaid from the amount assessed as compensation to the landowner.<sup>82</sup> Public parks not subject to taxation are not liable for special assessments,<sup>83</sup> but in Illinois streets are subject to drainage assessments.<sup>84</sup> Such benefits are to be determined by commissioners,<sup>85</sup> but land taken is not subject thereto.<sup>86</sup>

owner. Union Trac. Co. v. Pfeil, 39 Ind. App. 51, 73 N. E. 1052.

74. In determining damage to property not taken, benefits enhancing value must be deducted though they are common to property in the vicinity. Peoria, B. & C. Trac. Co. v. Vance, 225 Ill. 270, 80 N. E. 134. Instruction held prejudicial. Id. The benefits contemplated by Code 1904, p. 516, providing for establishment of highway, are confined to those direct and peculiar to the owner. Williamson v. Read, 106 Va. 453, 56 S. E. 174. Evidence that the improvement would benefit the property in the community is admissible. Ranck v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1027.

75. Benefits common to other landowners, parts of whose lands were not taken or benefits incidentally derived from construction of a railroad into a new country, are not special. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011.

76. No special benefits shown by establishing road through a farm where the only advantage was the cutting the farm into small lots and selling the same at increased value. Williamson v. Read, 106 Va. 453, 56 S. E. 174.

77. Special benefits are to be offset against damages where the owner's dominion over his property is not interfered with, but the property is only damaged. There is no invasion of property by a tunnel in the street which does not invade the half to which the property is adjacent. Burton Lumber Corp. v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822. Enhancement of value pleaded may be shown in offset to damages claimed. Id.

78. Hempstead v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 397. The usual beneficial results of the mutually advantageous arrangement between a state and a railway company having the right to exercise the power are not special benefits. In re Mantorville R. & Transfer Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1033. Mere increase in facilities of transportation is not a special benefit. Id. Where a via-duct is built, cutting off access to a mill from one direction, it is for the jury to say whether the substitution of a safe way, though a little longer, does not benefit the property. Robbins v. Scranton, 217 Pa. 577, 66 A. 977. Where a road was built through land which without it was of no immediate value, but with it was of some value, held such value was not a special benefit. In re Mantorville R. & Transfer Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1033.

79. Such benefits as accrue by reason of the construction of the improvement must be deducted. Eldorado, M. & S. W. R. Co. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 N. E. 231.

80. In re Mantorville R. & Transfer Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1033. Distinctions drawn as to meaning when used under various circumstances.

81. Must be special, not general; direct, not consequential; substantial, not speculative; proximate, not remote; actual, not constructive. In re Mantorville R. & Transfer Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1033.

82. William Scully v. Cincinnati, 9 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 63.

83. State v. Several Parcels of Land [Neb.] 113 N. W. 248.

84. Drainage Act May 20, 1879, § 55, and Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 121, do not confer on the drainage district power to assess benefits to public streets without the consent of the city. City of Joliet v. Spring Creek Drainage Dist., 222 Ill. 441, 78 N. E. 836.

85. Where a jury in proceedings to condemn a right of way for a drainage district determine that land not taken is not damaged, drainage district commissioners may determine whether it is benefited and assess benefits. City of Joliet v. Spring Creek Drainage Dist., 222 Ill. 441, 78 N. E. 836.

86. Lots actually taken for drainage purposes under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 42, cannot be assessed for benefits. City of Joliet v. Spring Creek Drainage Dist., 222 Ill. 441, 78 N. E. 836.

sidered on a private sale is to be taken into account.<sup>88</sup> All injuries reducing the salability of the property<sup>89</sup> and all rights of the owner impaired by the taking are to be considered.<sup>90</sup> As to whether the probability of fire from passing locomotives is an element, there is a conflict of authority.<sup>91</sup> It is generally held that danger to live stock from passing trains is not recoverable,<sup>92</sup> nor can recovery be had for other remote and speculative elements.<sup>93</sup> The value of improvements on the property is an element<sup>94</sup> if placed there before the property is taken,<sup>95</sup> but where land is taken for

88. Where it appeared that a plant sought to be taken could be developed and extended, an instruction to consider the hindrance to the extension did not authorize estimate based on future possibilities. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011. Where there was evidence that the tract, a part of which was to be taken, should be considered as one body though it was crossed by two roads, it was not error to instruct that if the tract was used as one body the depreciation in value of the entire tract should be awarded. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Drummond Realty & Investment Co. [Mo.] 103 S. W. 977. Where in taking a portion of a manufacturing plant there was evidence with reference to the feasibility of a switch to the plant, it was proper to charge that the owner would be required to bear the expense of building the switch even if he could procure its installation. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011. Where a city permitted streets to be rendered impassable before taking necessary proceedings for changing grades, it could not contend that because buildings were moved before judicial proceedings were commenced the owner could not recover for such removal. City of Detroit v. C. H. Little Co., 146 Mich. 373, 13 Det. Leg. N. 803, 109 N. W. 671.

89. Recovery may be had for vibrations, noises, smoke, etc., by operation of trains, which depreciates the value of the property. Novich v. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 264, 101 S. W. 476.

90. Where a landowner had a passage-way for cattle and for a water course under a private way which was taken for a public way, and the public constructed a stone culvert in its stead suitable as a pass way for cattle. The public could, fifty years thereafter, substitute a pipe without liability for loss of pass way for cattle. Snively v. Washington Tp. [Pa.] 67 A. 465. Evidence that drainage of a laguna would deprive an owner of seepage during summer months is admissible. Laguna Drainage Dist. v. Charles Martin Co. [Cal. App.] 89 P. 993.

91. In proceedings to condemn a right of way, damages liable to be caused by fire for which the railroad would be liable in another action cannot be recovered. Eldorado, etc., R. So. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 N. E. 281. The probability that crop will be set on fire by sparks from locomotives can be considered only in so far as it affects the market value of the land. Id. The danger of fire from passing locomotives, and danger to cattle do not constitute independent elements of damage, but may be considered in determining the value of land not taken. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Oliver, 17 Okl. 539, 37 P. 423. If one's property is specially exposed to fire from passing locomotives, different from other property in the vicinity, and is thereby depreciated in value, such depreciation is an element. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011. The increased hazard from fire being set by passing locomotives is an element. New Jersey, etc., R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.] 80 N. E. 420.

92. Damages resulting from danger to persons or stock from the operation of a trolley line are too remote. Indianapolis & C. Traction Co. v. Larrabee [Ind.] 80 N. E. 413. Under Acts 1903, p. 426, interurban railway companies are required to fence their tracts, and danger to animals on land not taken is too speculative to be considered as an element. Id. That live stock would be killed by trains is not an element. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Jennings [Miss.] 43 So. 469.

93. That laborers on farm would stop to look at trains, mules ran away, and weeds scattered over the farm, are not elements. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Jennings [Miss.] 43 So. 469.

94. Under Laws 1875, p. 243, providing that owners of piers may erect sheds thereon under license, a shed erected pursuant to license is a proper element of damage when the pier is taken. In re Piers Old Nos. 19, 20, East River, 117 App. Div. 553, 102 N. Y. S. 667. This is so though the owner of the shed leased a portion of the pier from the city. Id. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 282, making a city liable for injury to improvements by change of street grade, the city is liable where improvements are made after a grade is established but not carried into effect. Klmball v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 395. The fact that improvements were made on property taken prior to enactment of a constitutional provision that private property shall not be taken without just compensation does not preclude recovery. Id.

95. One who erects a building on a lot after appointment of commissioners of estimate and assessment is entitled to compensation, the city not having yet acquired title. In re Briggs Ave., 118 App. Div. 224, 102 N. Y. S. 1102. Where an owner moved building onto premises before they were taken, but after commissioners had begun hearings, he was entitled to recover therefor. In re Paychester Ave., 105 N. Y. S. 241. Where a building was moved onto a lot after damage map had been filed, the cost of removing it should be considered where it appeared that it could be moved onto other land without damaging it. Id. Where a street no recovery can be had for improvements made after the street had been platted.<sup>96</sup> There can be no recovery for a mere right to improve property.<sup>97</sup> All elements which tend to depreciate the value of the property<sup>98</sup> and which are capable of proof<sup>99</sup> are to be considered. A mere personal right is not to be considered.<sup>1</sup> Recovery may be had for unlawful and unjustifiable use of the right taken.<sup>2</sup>

Amount of damages as dependent on estate or interest appropriated or owned.<sup>3</sup> No compensation is to be allowed for property not taken.<sup>4</sup> It may be shown that petitioner already has an estate in the premises.<sup>5</sup> Where a leasehold estate is taken, the tenant may recover the value thereof<sup>6</sup> as ascertained from the facts of the particular case.<sup>7</sup>

§ 7. Who is liable for compensation.<sup>8</sup>

§ 8. Condemnation proceedings in general.<sup>9</sup>—The proceeding to acquire property under the power of eminent domain is wholly statutory,<sup>10</sup> and statutes must be

it appeared that a building had been moved onto the premises after the damage map was filed, an adjournment should have been allowed to enable the city to ascertain its exact location with respect to the widened street. In re Baychester Ave., 105 N. Y. S. 241.

96. Where after a street had been platted the owner of the land constructed buildings thereon, the fact that no compensation could be recovered for the buildings when the street was opened could not be considered as affecting value. In re South Twelfth St., 217 Pa. 362, 66 A. 568.

97. Where the owner of a pier had erected a shed thereon under revocable permission, he was not entitled to compensation on the theory that it was a shedded pier, because the taking of the pier by the city constituted a revocation of the permission to maintain the shed. In re Piers Old Nos. 19 and 20, 50 Misc. 477, 100 N. Y. S. 626. A possible right to obtain a permit to erect a shed on a pier as authorized by Laws 1875, p. 243, is not an element of damages where the pier is taken (In re Piers Old Nos. 19, 20, East River, 117 App. Div. 553, 102 N. Y. S. 667), but a contract right to maintain a shed on a pier is a proper element of damage when the pier is taken (Id.).

98. Cutting of fields into inconvenient shapes, interruption of ways for animals to pass, additional fencing required, are elements. New Jersey, etc., R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.] 80 N. E. 420.

99. A tenant at will may show with all possible definiteness that he was able to conduct a profitable business on the premises. Hayes v. Atlanta, 1 Ga. App. 25, 57 S. E. 1087. In determining the value of an easement for telegraph poles and wires on a railroad right of way, it is proper to consider the improved condition of the right of way. American Tel. & T. Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 202 Mo. 656, 101 S. W. 576.

1. The right to compensation where a sewer system of a town is taken extends to sewer pipes, but not to easements in the streets, nor to material spread upon the ground which has become part of the land. United States v. Nahant, 153 F. 520. Inconvenience or injury to traveling public cannot be considered, where a highway is destroyed by railway company, in estimating damages sustained by the county, but only cost of repairing it. Big Sandy R. Co. v. Floyd County [Ky.] 101 S. W. 354.

2. An interurban railway company operating heavy cars on city streets at a high rate of speed, and causing houses on abutting lots to shake and plaster to fall therein, is liable to the owner thereof in special damages. Kinsey v. Union Trac. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 922.

3. See 7 C. L. 1296.

4. Where, in a proceeding to take land owned by a gas company, gas mains in the land were not taken, their value was not an element of compensation. In re Water Front in New York, 118 App. Div. 865, 105 N. Y. S. 750. Where, in a proceeding to condemn a railroad right of way, it did not appear that removal of coal from beneath such right of way would impair its usefulness as a railroad, it was error to refuse to permit the company to file a stipulation that it would not claim underlying coal. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Sims, 228 Ill. 9, 81 N. E. 782.

5. Has an easement in the land for ditch purposes. Creighton v. Charlotte Water Com'rs, 143 N. C. 171, 55 S. E. 511.

6. In ascertaining the value of a lease. It is proper to determine what interest the tenant has, the rent he pays, and obligations he assumes and will assume. In re Delancey St., 105 N. Y. S. 779.

7. The value of the estate of a tenant at will must be determined from facts and circumstances. Hayes v. Atlanta, 1 Ga. App. 25, 57 S. E. 1087. Where building is condemned, cost to tenant of removing machinery may be considered as bearing on value of leasehold interest. McMillin Printing Co. v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 1091. In proceedings for separation of street and railroad crossing grades, a tenant of property injured was entitled to compensation for interruption of his business and injury thereto caused by changed condition of locality. City of Detroit v. C. H. Little Co., 146 Mich. 373, 13 Det. Leg. N. 803, 109 N. W. 671.

8, 9. See 7 C. L. 1297.

10. Appropriation of private lands for boulevard purposes is governed by Comp. St. 1897, § 101b, c. 12a. State v. Several Parcels of Land [Neb.] 113 N. W. 248. Laws 1901, p. 351, authorizing the city to acquire wharf property and lands under water for improvement of the water front, and pre-complied with<sup>11</sup> according to the construction given them,<sup>12</sup> and in special cases, if no method of procedure is prescribed, the general rules apply.<sup>13</sup> In Oklahoma the procedure prescribed by the enabling act is not exclusive.<sup>14</sup> After a railroad has entered on land of an owner with or without his consent, either party may institute condemnation proceedings to determine their respective rights and ascertain damages.<sup>15</sup> The proceeding must be prosecuted with diligence.<sup>16</sup> The entire damages

scribing the method of ascertaining compensation, does not violate the 14th amendment of the Federal constitution. In re Water Front in New York, 118 App. Div. 865, 105 N. Y. S. 750. Laws 1893, p. 135, procedure where cities of fourth class take land, is not unconstitutional. State v. Pierce County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 87 P. 521. The procedure by which land may be taken has been prescribed by statute in Idaho. Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson, 12 Idaho, 769, 88 P. 426. In proceedings under Ann. St. 1906, p. 4345, to establish a private road, the question of damages is the only one for the jury; those relating to necessity and dimensions are for the court. Allen v. Welch, 125 Mo. App. 278, 102 S. W. 665. Railroad held to have been incorporated under Priv. Laws 1861-62, p. 116, and that act together with its amendments regulate the power and method of acquisition of its right of way. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 55 S. E. 263. Under Const. 1901, § 235, the right to damages for injury to land by construction of works, highways, or improvements of a corporation is placed on the same basis as taking of land and the same remedies and limitations apply. Birmingham Belt. R. Co. v. Lockwood [Ala.] 43 So. 819. Proceedings to condemn an abutting lot will not be enjoined on the ground that the lot owner's interest in the street was not condemned. Bridwell v. Gate City Terminal Co., 127 Ga. 520, 56 S. E. 624. Under Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, c. 146, providing for change of venue where several defendants are joined, the court need not direct separate trials in his own court before a change of venue may be granted. Gillette v. Aurora R. Co., 223 Ill. 261, 81 N. E. 1005. Error in denying such change is not waived by going to trial where exception is taken. Id. In proceedings in a state court where different owners are joined under a statute permitting them to be joined or proceeded against separately, there is a separable controversy as to each owner, and owners who reside in different states may remove the cause as to themselves to the Federal court. Deepwater R. Co. v. Western Pocahontas Coal & Lumber Co., 152 F. 824.

11. Proceedings under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 24, to condemn land for ferry purposes, held not defective because showing that the city had no power to condemn the land sought to be condemned. Helm v. Grayville, 224 Ill. 274, 79 N. E. 689. Objections urged to defeat condemnations held not to be in bar or abatement within Laws 1905, p. 61, c. 48. Vandalia Coal Co. v. Indianapolis & L. R. Co. [Ind.] 79 N. E. 1082. Under Laws 1903, p. 50, and Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5620, where a trial by jury of the question of compensation, is not waived, failure to select the jury in the manner prescribed by law is prejudicial error. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. McCormick [Wash.] 89 P.

186. Where "taking" was not contested, the service of notice on the owner that the land had been condemned was not a commencement of proceedings. In re Wittkowsky's Land, 143 N. C. 247, 55 S. E. 617. Abutting owner held bound by proceedings under an act confirming agreement between a city and a railway company whereby the company acquired rights in a street. Leffmann v. Long Island R. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 487.

12. The power may be exercised by the president of a railroad company to whom is delegated the management of the business, subject to the approval of the directors, before the directors have approved the location of the line. Bridwell v. Gate City Terminal Co., 127 Ga. 520, 56 S. E. 624. Condemnation proceedings instituted to condemn a line not in violation of the charter are not void. Id. Where important rights affecting the public are involved and the substantial rights of all are protected, a technical objection is entitled to but little weight. Kittery Water Dist. v. Agamentious Water Co. [Me.] 67 A. 631. A proceeding instituted after the executive committee of the board of directors of a railroad company had adopted a resolution delegating the matter to certain officers was instituted after authority therefor had been given. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Yonkers, 103 N. Y. S. 252.

13. If the power is conferred upon a municipality by its charter, and no provision is made for its exercise, the general law of the state (Acts 1894, p. 176) is by implication a part of the law delegating the power. Stowe v. Newborn, 127 Ga. 421, 56 S. E. 516. Under the constitution of Mississippi, providing that the question whether the use is a public one is a judicial question and no method or tribunal is provided to try such question, held, it must be raised by injunction, enjoining the taking on the ground that the use is not a public one. Vinegar Bend Lumber Co. v. Oak Grove & G. R. Co., 89 Miss. 84, 43 So. 292. Where charter of a railroad did not prescribe method of computing damages, held, they must be determined by construction given Const. art. 1, § 16, providing for compensation when private property is taken. Taber v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9.

14. The statutes of Oklahoma authorizing railroad companies to exercise the power, and prescribing the procedure by which damages are to be ascertained, are not exclusive as to remedy, and the common-law remedy may be pursued by the landowner at his election. Blackwell, etc., R. Co. v. Bebout [Ok.] 91 P. 877.

15. Blackwell, etc., R. Co. v. Bebout [Ok.] 91 P. 877.

16. Where a proceeding was commenced in 1902 and summons returned "not found" two months later, and no further proceedings were taken until 1906, at which time should be ascertained in a single proceeding.<sup>17</sup> An owner is entitled to a judicial hearing on the question of damages.<sup>18</sup> In a proceeding by a city to condemn land for a street, the defendant may deny that the council has ordered condemnation.<sup>19</sup> In Kentucky the validity of the organization of the petitioner may be raised.<sup>20</sup> In Washington a lis pendens of the proceeding may be filed,<sup>21</sup> and when filed it creates a defect in the title.<sup>22</sup>

Discontinuance or abandonment.<sup>23</sup>—Proceedings must be abandoned within the period prescribed.<sup>24</sup> Proceedings may be discontinued as to a portion of the property,<sup>25</sup> if such action is timely taken,<sup>26</sup> in order to preclude the owner from recovering compensation.<sup>27</sup> An abandonment of the proceedings may be inferred from unreasonable delay in making compensation.<sup>28</sup>

Parties.<sup>29</sup>—All persons who claim an interest in the property must be made parties,<sup>30</sup> and where after proceedings are commenced it is ascertained that another the property had greatly increased in value, held, the proceeding was properly dismissed for want of prosecution. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chapin, 226 Ill. 499, 80 N. E. 1017.

18. St. Laws 1889, p. 127, authorizing a city to condemn land by having same appraised by a jury of twelve men selected by the marshal, from which the mayor was entitled to strike three and the owner three, and containing no provision for appeal, is void as in violation of due process clause. Tucker v. Paris [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 998, 99 S. W. 1127. Failure to appear, however, does not invalidate the proceedings, but the court must determine whether the use is a public one and ascertain the damages. Yellowstone Park R. Co. v. Bridger Coal Co., 34 Mont. 545, 87 P. 963. The deposit in court of the amount of an award, its acceptance by the owner, and the taking of possession by the petitioner, does not preclude the filing of exceptions and a jury trial on the commissioner's report. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Aubuchon, 199 Mo. 352, 97 S. W. 867. Though the amount of compensation is paid into court as a condition precedent to taking possession, and the money is taken by the owner, either party may file exceptions and litigate the question. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Drummond Realty & Investment Co. [Mo.] 103 S. W. 977.

19. City of Bluefield v. Bailey [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 805.

20. Under the statutes of Kentucky an owner of land sought to be condemned may in such proceeding raise the question of incorporation where it does not appear that statutory requirements have been complied with. Warden v. Madisonville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 101 S. W. 914.

21. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4887, authorizes the filing of lis pendens in proceedings to condemn land for a railroad right of way. Portland & S. R. Co. v. Ladd [Wash.] 91 P. 573.

24. Under Act March 20, 1900 (P. L. 1900, p. 85), one condemning land may not abandon the proceedings on payment of the owner's costs and expenses where he delays more than twenty days after the filing of the report of the commissioners. Walsh v. Board of Education of Newark, 73 N. J. Law, 643, 64 A. 1088.

25. Under Laws 1901, p. 426, providing that the board of estimate and approval of Greater New York may discontinue proceedings to acquire land for a street at any time before title is acquired, held, it may discontinue as to a portion of the property affected. In re City of New York, 52 Misc. 319, 102 N. Y. S. 159.

26. Under Shannon's Code, Tenn. §§ 1859, 1861, 1863, 1865, where a judgment has been entered on appeal, the petitioner may not discontinue as to a part of the land sought to be condemned merely because it believes damages awarded are excessive. Union R. Co. v. Standard Wheel Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 698.

27. After the council of the town of Stamford had approved the record of the board of appropriation and apportionment for lands taken under 14 Sp. Laws, p. 857, the city council could not rescind its action within the thirty days provided for publication of notice. Bohemian v. Stamford [Conn.] 67 A. 272. Under 14 Sp. Laws, p. 857, authorizing the City of Stamford to take land for park purposes, and the payment of compensation to owners of land taken after thirty days' publication, held, on completion of the proceedings for condemnation the city became absolutely indebted for the damages awarded though they were not payable for thirty days. Id.

28. Payment of the compensation must be made within a reasonable time if no time is fixed, otherwise the proceeding is deemed abandoned. Port Townsend So. R. Co. v. Earbare [Wash.] 89 P. 710.

31. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 721, and § 3368, where it was ascertained after proceedings were commenced that another person owned an interest in the property, it was proper to allow the petition to be amended. In re Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 53 Misc. 340, 103 N. Y. S. 294.

32. Where one intervened in proceedings but was dismissed over his protest, it was petitioner's duty to see that he was made a party and retained, even to the extent of appealing from the order dismissing him in order to protect itself. Storms v. Mundy [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 924, 101 S. W. 258.

33. A mortgagor who has been foreclosed and has sold his equity of redemption has no interest and is not a necessary party to condemnation proceedings though formal conveyance had not been executed when proceedings were instituted. Deepwater R. Co. v. Western Pocahontas Coal & Lumber Co., 152 F. 824.

34. In a proceeding in rem to condemn property rights, a lessee from the city is not estopped because of the relation of landlord and tenant from asserting certain rights in the property which it has as incident to its lease. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & P. Steamboat Co., 104 Md. 485, 65 A. 353.

35. See 7 C. L. 1299.

36. Under the constitution and statutes of Mississippi, the special court of eminent domain is of limited powers, and the question of compensation is the only one it can determine. Vinegar Bend Lumber Co. v. Oak Grove & G. R. Co., 89 Miss. 84, 43 So. 292. The special court of eminent domain created by Code 1892, c. 40, being authorized to determine only the question of compensation, the question of right to condemn cannot be raised on appeal from such court, and a trial de novo in the circuit court. Id.

ern Ind. R. Co. v. Indianapolis & L. R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 65. A petition under Act May 24, 1874 (P. L. 129), stating that a borough excavated in a street upon which plaintiff's property abutted, removed support, and destroyed fences and trees, states a change of grade, and it is not necessary to allege that the change was without consent of the owner or failure to agree as to the amount of compensation. Klenke v. West Homestead Borough, 216 Pa. 476, 65 A. 1079. The proceedings to condemn land incident to a change of line, the filing of a map showing the proposed change instead of the original was not a substantial defect where such map was shown to be authentic and correct. Smith v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 501. Where, in an action for injury to property by construction of a tunnel to the street, the petition treated the abutting property as a whole, the fact that the numbers of the lots were given did not make the suit one for damages to each lot separately. Burton Lumber Corp. v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822. A motion to dismiss a complaint for the assessment of damages serves the purpose of a demurrer, and is not to be regarded as a dilatory plea, the question raised being whether the complainant has stated sufficient grounds to maintain his complaint. Hurley v. South Thomaston, 101 Me. 538, 64 A. 1050. When such motion is overruled and exceptions taken, the case should proceed to trial, and only after trial on the merits should exceptions be taken to a court of law. Id.

40. Complaint in proceedings to condemn a right of way for an irrigation ditch held sufficient under Sess. Laws 1899, p. 261, requiring such complaint to allege ownership of land to be irrigated. Fulton v. Methow Trading Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 117. Under Acts 1905, p. 60, providing that the complaint shall state the names of all owners and claimants of property, it is not necessary to jurisdiction that all persons interested be joined, and persons joined cannot object to failure to join others. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081. Complaint alleging name of corporation desiring to condemn, name of owner of property, use, location of right of way, and description of the property, and that an agreement could not be reached without the owners, held sufficient. Vandalia Coal Co. v. Indianapolis & L. R. Co. [Ind.] 79 N. E. 1082. Under Gen. 41. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 786, authorizing railroads to condemn land adjacent to the highway, it is only necessary to allege that the taking is necessary. Warden v. Madisonville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 101 S. W. 914. A petition in proceeding by a city under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 24, to condemn land to establish an additional ferry, held to show that it was for a public purpose. Helm v. Grayville, 224 Ill. 274, 79 N. E. 689.

42. Petition by a telegraph company to condemn an easement on a railroad right of way held to describe the proposed easement with sufficient certainty. American Tel. & T. Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 202 Mo. 656, 101 S. W. 576. The petition must describe the land sought to be condemned. Petition held defective. Helm v. Grayville, 224 Ill. 274, 79 N. E. 689. A description is sufficient if it will enable one skilled in such matters to locate the property. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081. Description of land to be taken for a transmission line held sufficient under Acts 1905, p. 60, c. 48. Mull v. Indianapolis & C. Traction Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 657. A petition is not insufficient for failure to allege in terms that the land is in the county where action is brought where it showed the congressional township and range. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Indianapolis & L. R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 65. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 3360, requiring the petition to specifically describe the property, a petition for condemnation of a right of way for a telephone, and among other things the right to trim trees necessary to protect the line, without describing the extent to which such trimming would be necessary, is insufficient. Bell Tel. Co. v. Parker [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 1008. A petition for the appointment of commissioners to assess damages for taking land described it as land upon the "Beach" front. Held, the description showed the land to be between high and low water mark. Johnson v. Ocean City [N. J. Law] 64 A. 987. Under Acts 1905, p. 60, providing that the petition shall contain a description of the property, it is not necessary to describe any part of the defendant's property except the portion to be taken. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081. A complaint which describes a definite route and dimensions of the ditch sufficiently describes the quantity of land, within Laws 1899, p. 262. Fulton v. Methow Trading Co. [Wash.] 88

P. 117. A description stating the width of the right of way required on the line now located and staked over a certain donation claim in a certain township and county is sufficient. State v. Skamania County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 88 P. 334.

43. Complaint for damages for changes of grade, that the city and railway company combined, confederated, etc. Coyne v. Memphis [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 355. Damage to land not actually traversed by the right of way is not special in the sense that it must be specially pleaded. Yellowstone Park R. Co. v. Bridger Coal Co., 34 Mont. 545, 87 P. 963. A railroad company which fails to mention in his petition land not taken or damages thereto cannot object that damage to part not described is special. Id. The statutes of Montana does not require the defendant to set up his claim for damages by answer or counter claim. Id.

44. The sufficiency of a petition for condemnation may be raised by objections filed by the property owner in the trial court. Bell Tel. Co. v. Parker [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 1008.

45. Under Acts 1905, p. 61, c. 48, providing that pleadings may be amended, the petition may be amended as to the description after verdict. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081.

46. Filing complaint in open court under Acts 1905, p. 59, is a substantial compliance with the provision requiring complaint to be filed in the office of the clerk of court. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081.

47. See 7 C. L. 1301.

48. Laws 1901, p. 198, amended by Laws 1905, p. 93, providing for condemning land for a highway, and that a person aggrieved may within six months apply for a jury to assess damages, does not in terms require notice of such appointment to township trustees, but such notice is required by the general law of the land. In re Wittkowsky's Land, 143 N. C. 247, 55 S. E. 617.

49. An owner cannot be placed in default by ratification of a notice void when given. Bridwell v. Gate City Terminal Co., 127 Ga. 520, 56 S. E. 624.

50. Though a notice stated that it was desired to condemn a fee, the statute would attach to such proceeding the restriction that only such interest would be acquired as was necessary for the purposes for which the property was taken. Georgia Granite R. Co. v. Venable [Ga.] 58 S. E. 864.

51. Where a notice stated that it was desired to condemn a fee, an amendment amendment.<sup>52</sup> The notice is not defective because signed by the clerk in three capacities, one of which was that in which he was required to sign.<sup>53</sup> Notice to owners need not state in what capacity they are notified.<sup>54</sup> Personal service on nonresident owners is not required in some states.<sup>55</sup>

§ 12. Hearing and determination of right to condemn.<sup>56</sup>—Upon a preliminary hearing the only issues allowable are such as go to defeat or abate the asserted right to exercise the power,<sup>57</sup> and no pleadings other than the complaint and written objections thereto filed by the defendant are allowed.<sup>58</sup> On application for approval of bond, the court should confine itself to the questions presented by the bond.<sup>59</sup> Questions for the determination of the trial court cannot be determined on prohibition to restrain the court from proceeding with the trial,<sup>60</sup> nor can the determination of questions referred by statute to one tribunal be referred to another.<sup>61</sup> A petitioner must see that statutory requirements as to trial are complied with.<sup>62</sup> If no proof of necessity is required, none is necessary.<sup>63</sup> The president of a petitioning corporation though a witness may not be excluded from the court room though other witnesses are put under rule.<sup>64</sup> Where Federal questions are involved the cause may be removed to a Federal court.<sup>65</sup> A removal to the Federal court by one of several owners joined as permitted by statute does not carry with it proceedings against other owners.<sup>66</sup>

could be made on appeal stating that the proceeding was under the statute, and it was really desired to condemn such interest as the statute authorized. Georgia Granite R. Co. v. Venable [Ga.] 58 S. E. 864. Where the notice recited previous negotiations for a fee, it could be amended on appeal to recite that such negotiations were for a right of way. Id. It was also competent to amend by alleging that after assessment the company had tendered and the owners accepted the award. This did not prevent appeal, but waived irregularity in notice or assessment. Id.

68. Under the constitution and statutes of Missouri, though proceedings may be commenced by appointment of commissioners, either party is entitled to a jury trial of the question of damages. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Drummond Realty & Investment Co., 103 S. W. 977. Laws 1897, p. 15, expressly provides that where a landowner appeals from an award by commissioners he is entitled to have his damages assessed is to be selected in the manner prescribed by law.<sup>69</sup> In states where compensation is assessed by commissioners, such commissioners must be fair and unprejudiced,<sup>70</sup> but mere suggestion of possibility of interest is not sufficient to disqualify a commissioner.<sup>71</sup> The appointment of commissioners<sup>72</sup> and their compensation<sup>73</sup> is determined by statute. Appraisers authorized to assess damages have no power to decide any other question.<sup>74</sup> On vacation of a street, damages sustained by owners must be ascertained by five disinterested householders of the city.<sup>75</sup>

§ 14. The trial or inquest, and hearings on the question of damages.<sup>76</sup>—The action to recover compensation must be brought within the statutory period.<sup>77</sup> The landowner is not confined to the element of damages claimed by him before the jury of view.<sup>78</sup>

Under Stanford City Charter, § 8, creating a board of appropriation and apportionment for condemnation of land, the mayor being a member of such board with power to vote in case of a tie, held, in case of tie in a proceeding under 14, Sp. Laws 1905, p. 858, the mayor's vote was sufficient to make a majority. Bohamman v. Stanford [Conn.] 67 A. 372. The constitutional right to the verdict of a jury as to compensation is not violated by a provision that the court may fix the amount of an additional fund to protect an owner in case the property is not taken, since the verdict for the taking would cover loss for temporary taking. Helibron v. Sacramento Super. Ct. [Cal.] 90 P. 706.

Where a railroad took no steps to learn whether one of the damage commissioners was a freeholder, it may not attack the report on the ground that one was not qualified where it does not appear that such fact was prejudicial to it. Tidewater R. Co. v. Cowan, 106 Va. 817, 56 S. E. 819.

72. Under Code W. Va. 1906, §§ 1363, 1366, providing for application to the court for appointment of commissioners to ascertain compensation, and requiring 10 days notice of such application to be given to owners, such notice may be given either before or after application is presented. Deepwater R. Co. v. Western Pocahontas Coal & Lumber Co., 152 F. 824. After an ordinance had laid out a street by a particular description pursuant to statute some of the owners within the described street dedicated the land, held not necessary that the order appointing commissioners to assess damages should particularly describe remaining land. Johnson v. Ocean City [N. J. Law] 64 A. 987. Under Gen. St. 1902, § 3687, providing that a judge shall appoint appraisers, where the amount of compensation cannot be agreed upon, where notice of an application to appoint appraisers has been given and a party admits an allegation of interest, the judge may not determine whether his claim is well founded. *New York, etc., R. It was not error to admit reproduction of sounds made by operation of trains by means of phonograph. Boyne City, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson, 146 Mich. 328, 13 Det. Leg. N. 739, 109 N. W. 429. Where the act of condemnation of a right of way gave the company the right to take materials for the construction and repair of the road, and the right to convey water by drains, such provisions were for the benefit of the company and did not require it to restore a surface water drain. New Jersey, etc., R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.], 80 N. E. 420. Where a railroad had placed a tile drain in a natural surface water drain, it was proper to show that the drain clogged and water backed up from time to time. Where at the time of trial a railroad had been partially constructed and an embankment built across a drain, evidence as to the extent water had already been set back was admissible. Id. Where a change of street grade placed the surface of a lot sixteen instead of five feet below the street, the cost of raising the lot eleven feet was admissible. Bond v. Philadelphia [Pa.], 67 A. 805. Testimony held admissible as amounting merely to evidence that the same general course in values of property would have prevailed as to land in front of which an elevated railroad had been built, as in the case of other lands, but for the road. Shaw v. New York El. R. Co. [N. Y.], 79 N. E. 984.

83. Where the fact that one party owned all land in the vicinity affected value, it was proper to consider such fact. Pullman Co. v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 248, 79 N. E. 572. In an action for damages caused by change of street grade, the city may show that the elevation was a part of its general scheme of improvement. Bond v. Philadelphia [Pa.], 67 A. 805. In assessing damages to abutting lot caused by change of grade, the fact of additional elevation of the street as affecting value of the property after change of grade may be shown, but not the cost of lifting the whole surface to the new grade. Id. A property owner was not prejudiced by the fact that a witness in estimating damages considered the character of a crossing already constructed, where the petitioner had indicated the crossing it would construct. *Guinn v. Witnesses and examination thereof.<sup>2</sup>—The number of witnesses each party may introduce may be limited.<sup>3</sup> Witnesses who are adequately informed as to values of property similar to that in controversy may give their opinion as to value<sup>4</sup> and may be permitted to testify as to the facts upon which their opinion is based,<sup>5</sup> but one not

91. Rendition of property for taxes is admissible on question of value. Burton Lumber Corporation v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822.

92. Evidence of structural value of buildings on property apart from the market value of the property is not admissible. In re Blackwell's Island Bridge, 118 App. Div. 272, 103 N. Y. S. 441. The value of a quarry on the land as personal property cannot be established separate from the land. St. Louis Belt & Terminal R. Co. v. Cartan Real Estate Co., 204 Mo. 565, 103 S. W. 519.

93. A witness may not state what special benefit his land would derive from the construction of a railroad. Taber v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9.

94. A witness may give his opinion as to whether a railroad would be a future benefit to the property under conditions which are not impossible. Taber v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9.

95. In a proceeding by a town to take land for water supply purposes, testimony as to what municipalities or communities could use the water in the land as a water supply is inadmissible. Sargent v. Merriam [Mass.] 81 N. E. 970.

96. Evidence of rents derived from other property in the vicinity and of income that could be derived from other vacant property if improved is inadequate. Pullman Co. v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 248, 79 N. E. 572.

97. Where there was no claim that the land was specially valuable for a saw mill plant, it was not proper rebuttal to show that it could be so used when divided by the right of way. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Alexander [Wash.] 91 P. 626. An admission made by petitioner's attorney for the purpose of expediting a former trial, to the effect that certain witnesses if called would testify to a certain fact, is not admissible. City of Detroit v. C. H. Little Co., 146 Mich. 373, 13 Det. Leg. N. 803, 109 N. W. 671. The fact that school grounds, a portion of which had been condemned for railroad purposes, had been abandoned is not admissible on an issue as to whether the entire grounds had been rendered unfit for school purposes. San Pedro, etc., R. Co. v. Board of Education of Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 565. Instruction held erroneous as charging that if authorities acted conscientiously in abandoning the premises, the property might be regarded as wholly destroyed for school purposes. Id. In proceeding to condemn a right of way through a brick making plant, evidence that petitioner had offered to give the owner the clay excavated from the land and that he refused it is not admissible. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011. Testimony as to the existence of coal in adjoining land is incompetent to show existence of coal in the land sought to be condemned. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Sims, 228 Ill. 9, 81 N. E. 782.

98. Witness permitted to state contents of written contract. Stafford Springs St. R. Co. v. Middle River Mfg. Co. [Conn.] 66 A. 775. Certain maps showing location of road held admissible though not made by one who made the survey. Portland & Seattle R. Co. v. Ladd [Wash.] 91 P. 73. Upon trial of an appeal from award of appraisers, an unproved map showing location of a route of another company is not admissible; if the map had been proved, it was error to admit testimony that the center line of the route passed over the property in question. In re Central R. Co. [N. J. Law] 65 A. 905.

99. Where an owner disclaimed any right to recover for increased fire risk, evidence as to insurance rates in the vicinity is not admissible. Boyne City, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson, 146 Mich. 328, 13 Det. Leg. N. 739, 109 N. W. 429.

1. Where report of commissioners of estimate and apportionment was not confirmed and new commissioners were directed to revise it or make a new report, it was error to reject testimony given before the first commission. In re Amsterdam Ave., 53 Misc. 342, 104 N. Y. S. 821.

2. See 7 C. L. 1308.

3. Limiting the number of witnesses on the question of compensation to four on each side is not arbitrary and erroneous. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Aubuchon, 199 Mo. 352, 97 S. W. 867.

4. Witnesses familiar with brick making and the value of property similar to that sought to be condemned are competent, though they were not familiar with values in the vicinity. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011. Where a witness testifies to his observation of the effect of an elevated road near a business house, his testimony cannot be rejected because he moved away from the house before the road was built. *Lewis v. acter of soil and various crops to which it is adapted. New Jersey, I. & L. R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.] 80 N. E. 420.

6. A witness who had had no opportunity to observe the locality where the land lay except in a single instance is incompetent to testify as to value because of lack of special knowledge. Walsh v. Board of Education of Newark, 73 N. J. Law, 643, 64 A. 1088.

7. See Examination of Witnesses, 7 C. L. 1598. On cross-examination a landowner's witnesses may be asked as to the value of a part of the land after it had been cut off by the railroad seeking to condemn it. Davis v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 215 Pa. 581, 64 A. 774. Where a complainant has placed the market value of his property at a certain sum, he cannot be asked on cross-examination what other property in the neighborhood has been sold for within two years. Schonhardt v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 216 Pa. 224, 65 A. 543. Experts may not be permitted to testify on redirect examination as to sales of pieces of property about which they had not been questioned on cross-examination. In re Blackwell's Island Bridge, 118 App. Div. 272, 103 N. Y. S. 441. Where a witness testified that certain adjoining property had sold for $10,000 two years before, the owner was not prejudiced by an improper question as to whether or not he knew that the property had been assessed at $7,000. Pullman Co. v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 248, 79 N. E. 572. A witness for the landowner, who testified that value of remainder of tract would be depreciated may be asked whether he knew of any farm which had been depreciated in value because of a railroad running through it. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 N. E. 281.

8. A witness may not state the effect of building a railroad on abutting property, so far as the net result is concerned, by deducting special damages from special benefits, as that is a question for the jury. Taber v. New York, P. & B. R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9. It was not prejudicial error to permit experts to testify as to amount of depreciation in value instead of requiring them to state the value before and after the improvement. Hempstead v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 397.

9. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 131 Iowa, 680, 109 N. W. 209.

10. See 7 C. L. 1208.

11. Erroneous instruction as to damages held cured by other instructions. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 201 Mo. 491, 100 S. W. 583. Where the court charged that if an owner's property was injured he was entitled to compensation, refusal to charge that the fact that the taking was a public necessity did not relieve petitioner was not error. Burton Lumber Corporation v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822. Instructions held not to authorize speculative damages. Union Trac. Co. v. Pfeil, 39 Ind. App. 51, 78 N. E. 1052. It is not error to charge that in computing damages all doubts as to amount are to be resolved in favor of the property owner. Taber v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 9. Where instructions enumerate the different elements of damage and include all advantages and disadvantages to be considered, a claimant was not prejudiced by refusal to charge that the taking of dock rights which had not been condemned should be considered. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co., 104 Md. 485, 65 A. 353.

12. Where the jury understood that the only issue was as to whether property had been damaged, and such issue was to be determined by a preponderance of evidence, it was not error to charge that the burden of proof was on the owner. Burton Lumber Corp. v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822. Error in instruction to consider value of land at time of taking instead of at time of commissioner's report is harmless where it was of the same value on both dates. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 201 Mo. 491, 100 S. W. 593. An instruction that the jury should not consider the award previously made by commissioners but should confine themselves exclusively to the testimony was correct where the award was not introduced. Yellowstone Park R. Co. v. Bridger Coal Co., 34 Mont. 545, 87 P. 963.

13. Giving of special charge authorizing consideration of cost of fencing held to allow double damages, as such element was authorized under the general charge. Wise County v. McClain [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 76, 100 S. W. 802. Instruction not confined to special benefits held properly refused. Hempstead v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 397. Where it was claimed that a landowner derived special benefits from a depot erected a short distance from the land but it did not appear that such depot could be reached by any road from the farm, the action of the court in refusing to permit petitioner to show a special benefit of $5 per acre to the land was proper where the jury were properly charged. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 201 Mo. 491, 100 S. W. 583. Where a jury has viewed the premises it is error to charge them to fix damages from the evidence without requiring them to consider the knowledge they obtained from the view. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Scott, 225 Ill. 352, 80 N. E. 404. Where there were no improvements on the land it was error to charge that the fact that improvements would be cut off from other portions of the land should be considered. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 N. E. 281. Where it did not appear that there were buildings on the premises which would be jarred by operation of trains and no one lived in the vicinity to be inconvenienced by smoke or noise, it was error to charge that incidental injuries resulting from perpetual moving of trains should be considered. Id. Instruction held not bad for failing to confine the right to construct watermains across the right of way to such as were reasonably necessary. Union Trac. Co. v. Pfeil, 39 Ind. App. 51, 78 N. E. 1052. Where the only issue was as to the amount of damages, it was proper to refuse an instruction that jurors should be open to influence by argument of other jurors, but should not agree to a compromise which did violence to his belief, the jury having been charged that damages must be found from the evidence. Id. In proceeding to condemn wharf rights, a request to charge that the city had never asserted any wharf rights at the wharf in question which would interfere with claimant's rights properly refused. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co., 104 Md. 485, 65 A. 353. Refusal to allow compensation for loss of emoluments to arise from wharfage held proper, there being no evidence that revenues had ever been received from such source. Id. Where no claim of injury to business is made and no evidence in support thereof was introduced, it was not error to refuse an instruction that no recovery should be allowed therefor. Ranck v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1027. It is not error to refuse to charge that ownership of an entire tract which was crossed by several roads was sufficient to divide it into several tracts and preclude recovery as to tracts not injured. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Drummond Realty & Investment Co. [Mo.] 103 S. W. 977. Where there was no evidence that damage would be occasioned by smoke or noise from passing trains, and buildings were located 150 feet from the track, it was held error to instruct as to such element. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Scott, 225 Ill. 352, 80 N. E. 804. When damages were claimed because of injury to a quarry, but it appeared that the quarry could be worked only by injuring lands of the petitioner, the jury were properly charged to disregard evidence as to that element. Portland & S. R. Co. v. Ladd [Wash.] 91 P. 573.

dence.<sup>15</sup> They must be clear and definite,<sup>16</sup> and if given under agreement by the parties cannot be complained of.<sup>17</sup> A court need not qualify an instruction relative to damages unless requested.<sup>18</sup> Erroneous admission of evidence may be cured by instructions.<sup>19</sup>

14. Instruction held erroneous as assuming that a landowner refused crossings. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 201 Mo. 491, 100 S. W. 583.

15. Use of word "peculiar" in an instruction held not to render it objectionable as intimating that in the opinion of the court there was something peculiar in the location of the road. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011.

16. Instructions held not misleading in failing to require the jury to find from the evidence. Union Trac. Co. v. Pfeil, 39 Ind. App. 51, 78 N. E. 1052. Use of "adjacent" held not misleading where it clearly appeared where the road was located, though three lots intervened between the tracks and land involved. Houston & I. C. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 662, 100 S. W. 1013. Instruction as to measure of damages held not misleading. Burton Lumber Corp. v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822. Where an appeal is taken to the court and the case is tried to a jury, the jury should not be informed of the amount of the commissioner's award, and where the right to interest depends on whether the award of the jury exceeds that of the commissioners, that question should be reserved for the determination of the court. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Oliver, 17 Okl. 589, 87 P. 423.

17. Instructions as to elements of damages given under agreement of both parties may not be complained of. Tidewater R. Co. v. Cowan, 106 Va. 817, 56 S. E. 819.

18. Sargent v. Merrimac [Mass.] 81 N. E. 970.

19. Where the jury were charged to disregard rental value as a separate item of damages, the admission of evidence of rental value was harmless. Hempstead v. Salt Lake City [Utah] 90 P. 397. Evidence that improvements on property were rendered unfit for a residence by change of grade was not prejudicial where the jury were charged that such evidence should be considered only as affecting market value of the property. Id. Where there was no dispute as to the location of the line or area of land sought to be taken, error in admitting certain maps which did not coincide in all particulars was harmless. Portland & S. R. Co. v. Ladd [Wash.] 91 P. 573. Error in admission of evidence as to how much property depreciated because of laying of car track in the street held cured by correct instructions as to elements to be considered. Camden Interstate R. Co. v. Stein, 30 Ky. L. R. 140, 97 S. W. 394.

20. See 7 C. L. 1309.

21. On an appeal from an award of viewers, it is discretionary with the court to allow a view. Bond v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 67 A. 805. Act May 21, 1895, providing for a view as a matter of right, does not apply to an appeal from an award of viewers. Id.

22. It is proper to charge that the purpose of view is to enable the jury to understand the testimony and apply it, and that they must consider the testimony in the light of their view, but determine the facts from the evidence. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 131 Iowa, 680, 109 N. W. 209.

§ 16. Verdict, report, or award; judgment thereon and lien or enforcement of judgment.<sup>23</sup>—The judgment rendered must be in conformity to statute.<sup>24</sup> It should at least refer to the description of the land taken as set forth in the petition.<sup>25</sup> The award can be amended only by the assessors themselves under permission of the court.<sup>26</sup> Taxes levied after the property is taken cannot be deducted from the award.<sup>27</sup>

Judgment or confirmation and enforcement.<sup>35</sup>—A judgment conforming to the statute is sufficient,<sup>36</sup> and informalities therein may be cured by the record.<sup>37</sup> A

28. See 7 C. L. 1311.

29. The verdict of a jury as to value of land and necessity for width of right of way taken will not be interfered with on appeal unless clearly erroneous. Opelousas, etc., R. Co. v. Bradford, 118 La. 506, 43 So. 79. Evidence sufficient to sustain a judgment for the amount of damages awarded. Bremer v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 118 App. Div. 139, 103 N. Y. S. 318. An appellate court will not disturb an award which is supported by evidence. St. Louis Belt & Terminal Co. v. Cartan Real Estate Co., 204 Mo. 565, 103 S. W. 519. A jury of farmers is well qualified to deal with the question of compensation to be awarded for a railroad right of way through a plantation, and their finding is to be given great weight. Colorado So., etc., R. Co. v. Boagni, 118 La. 268, 42 So. 932.

30. The award of commissioners will not be disturbed except for error of law plainly manifest. In re Redmond, 105 N. Y. S. 936. A court will not in reviewing awards of commissioners disturb them unless the commissioners acted upon wrong principles or their award is grossly inadequate. Buffalo L. & R. R. Co. v. Phelps, 52 Misc. 315, 102 N. Y. S. 214. Evidence held to show such gross inadequacy of an award as to justify refusal to confirm it. Id. Under Laws 1901, p. 417, allowing an appeal from report of commissioners of estimate and apportionment, providing that the appeal shall not stay the proceedings except as to the parcel involved in the appeal, where one of the parties did not appeal, he had no standing to move to vacate an order extending the time for the appellant to file appeal papers. In re Foster Ave. in New York, 104 N. Y. S. 71. Report of viewers as to amount will not be disturbed unless they were controlled by wrong principles or the record shows inadequate damages. Williamson v. Read, 106 Va. 453, 56 S. E. 174. Commissioners decided that land not taken would not be injured. Eight witnesses testified that it would be injured and six witnesses testified that it would not. No showing of corruption. Held, report properly confirmed. Barnes v. Tidewater R. Co. [Va.] 53 S. E. 594.

31. An assessment by a jury which viewed the premises, where the damages allowed were within the range of value testified to will not be held inadequate because far less than the owner's witnesses testified to, their estimates being based on a particular improvement. Pullman Co. v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 248, 79 N. E. 572. An award will be confirmed where the evidence is sufficient to sustain it though a greater award might be justified. New York Cent., etc., R. Co. v. Sayles, 52 Misc. 601, 103 N. Y. S. 826. Evidence insufficient to show that commissioners adopted an erroneous theory of appraisal or disregarded competent evidence. In re East River Gas Co. of Long Island City, 104 N. Y. S. 239.

32. Verdict allowing the landowner more damages than he himself claimed held excessive and unsustainable. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Scott, 225 Ill. 352, 80 N. E. 404.

33. An award will be set aside where numerous errors appear in the admission and exclusion of testimony and there is a considerable discrepancy between the allowance and the value of the property. In re Blackwell's Island Bridge, 118 App. Div. 272, 103 N. Y. S. 441.

34. Blackwell, etc., R. Co. v. Bebout [Ok.] 91 P. 877. Under a statute providing that the jury shall find the amount of recovery, where they were instructed to find damages as of the date of summons and allow interest from time of actual occupancy, where the jury returned a verdict in a specific sum, held, the court was not justified in adding interest. Butte Elec. R. Co. v. Mathews, 34 Mont. 487, 87 P. 460.

35. See 7 C. L. 1311.

36. Where in condemnation proceeding an order was made declaring the use a public one, held, on trial of issue as to value, it was proper under Ball. Ann. Codes & St.

judgment may be reformed to conform to the facts,<sup>38</sup> and such facts may be shown by parol.<sup>39</sup> A judgment may be set aside for errors at the trial,<sup>40</sup> but unless void it is not subject to collateral attack.<sup>41</sup> Only matters involved are determined by the judgment.<sup>42</sup> The rule of res judicata applies in condemnation proceedings unless the circumstances of the second suit show greater or different necessity.<sup>43</sup> A judgment is not conclusive against one not a party, especially where petitioner had notice of the outstanding claim.<sup>44</sup> Limitations run from the date judgment is payable.<sup>45</sup>

§ 17. Costs and expenses.<sup>47</sup>—Eminent domain statutes generally provide that one whose property is taken is entitled to costs and attorney's fees<sup>48</sup> and other expenses incident to the proceeding,<sup>49</sup> especially where the petitioner dismisses,<sup>50</sup> or where the award exceeds the amount of the offer to purchase.<sup>51</sup>

§§ 5641, 5642, to enter judgment on the verdict, and on payment of compensation another judgment of appropriation. Port Townsend So. R. Co. v. Barbare [Wash.] 89 P. 710. Upon an application for assessment of damages for change of grade, municipal authorities indorsed that they assessed no damages for the reason that no liability of the town was shown held, such decision afforded the applicant a remedy by complaint to the supreme judicial court under Rev. St. 223, § 68. Hurley v. South Thomaston, 101 Me. 538, 64 A. 1050.

37. Any informality in the decree in not conforming to Laws 1899, p. 262, requiring that the decree provide that the money be paid to the clerk of court before work commences, is cured by a showing that it was so paid. Fulton v. Methow Trading Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 117.

38. Where an award referred to the petition for a description of the property, and the petition failed to describe a portion of the land, but the commissioners knowing what land was to be taken out did not read the petition, the award and judgment could be reformed to conform to the facts where the owner was at the hearing. Getzendaner v. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 511, 102 S. W. 161.

39. Where there was a mistake of one party to the record which would amount to legal fraud on the other if not corrected, parol evidence is admissible to show the facts as a basis to correct the award and judgment. Getzendaner v. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 511, 102 S. W. 161.

40. The judgment for damages may be set aside for erroneous instructions. Union R. Co. v. Maulden [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 342 [advance sheets only].

41. A judgment of the circuit court, on an appeal from an award of assessors, dismissing the proceedings and declaring that rights of parties had not become vested, is not void though erroneous, and is not subject to collateral attack. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081.

42. Where condemnation proceedings were prosecuted to take a particularly described strip for the purpose of widening a street, vesting title to such strip in the public, such proceeding did not constitute an adjudication of title between the strip condemned and the street. Pinney v. Winsted, 79 Conn. 606, 66 A. 337. Where borough authorities condemned property to widen a street, neither the fact that complainant accepted an award nor the fact that the statement recited that the property was needed to widen the street stopped them to claim title to a strip between the strip condemned and the street. Id.

43. Laguna Drainage Dist. v. Martin Co. [Cal. App.] 89 P. 993. One contesting the second suit has the burden to prove that there are no facts to justify taking, and that none existed at the time of the first suit. Id. A complainant in a second suit is not bound by the first where it appears that the first was in effect withdrawn in consideration of a conveyance of other rights. Id.

48. Where it was necessary for owners to employ counsel to present their claims, held, they were entitled to reasonable attorney's fees, to the extent of five per cent of the award, not exceeding $1,000. In re Board of Rapid Transit R. Com'rs, 117 App. Div. 160, 102 N. Y. S. 400. In a proceeding to recover the value of property taken, attorney's fees are recoverable. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132 Iowa, 11, 109 N. W. 309. Under § 17, c. 33 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, p. 556), where after verdict commissioners elected to dismiss proceedings, the landowner is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and costs. Deneen v. Unverzagt, 225 Ill. 378, 80 N. E. 321. Under Comp. Laws 1897, § 6240, authorizing the court to allow attorney's fees, the trial judge is arbiter of the amount. Boyne City G. & A. R. Co. v. Anderson, 146 Mich. 328, 13 Det. Leg. N. 739, 109 N. W. 429. Under Code, § 2007, authorizing attorney's fees, the court may hear testimony as to the value of such services. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 133 Iowa, 714, 110 N. W. 1039.

It is also liable for his loss of time in attending proceedings. Id. In such case it is not necessary that the attorney's fees should have actually been paid, but only that the owner is under obligation to pay them. Id.

50. Under § 10, eminent domain act (c. 47, Hurd's Rev. St. 1905), providing that if petitioners fail to take land condemned the court may order them to pay costs and attorney's fees, defendants are entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees though the same had not been paid. Deneen v. Unverzagt, 225 Ill. 378, 80 N. E. 321. Under Ann. St. 1906, p. 1043, providing that cost of proceeding by a railroad company shall be paid by the company up to time of filing report of commissioners, a railroad may dismiss the same as a matter of right subject only to taxation of costs. St. Louis & G. R. Co. v. Cape Girardeau & Thebes Bridge Terminal R. Co. [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 1042. On motion to dismiss, the court could not require the payment of costs and attorney's fees of adverse party which he could recover only by separate suit. Id.

51. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 3372, providing for allowance of cost where award is less than or in excess of an offer made for the property, held, where one who contested proceedings was unsuccessful, but was awarded more than the offer, he was entitled to his costs before the commissioners, but the petitioner was entitled to costs of the court proceedings. In re Village of Theresa, 105 N. Y. S. 568.

52. See 7 C. L. 1312.

53. The legislature having the constitutional right to take lands for a public purpose and to delegate such power to municipal officers, the act of taking is the exercise of a legislative function, and not reviewable by the courts. Hayford v. Municipal Officers of Bangor [Me.] 66 A. 731. Landowner in Butler county may, under acts Apr. 15, 1891, and May 26, 1891, appeal to common pleas from report of road jury refusing him damages. Kohler v. Butler County, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 305.

54. Under Shannon's Code, §§ 1858-1861, providing that report of jury shall be in writing, returned to court, and confirmed where no objection is made, but authorizing appeal and trial anew, a party filing exceptions to the report is not, where they are overruled, precluded from appealing, the remedies by exceptions and appeal being concurrent. Eldridge v. Overton County R. Co. [Tenn.] 98 S. W. 1051. The proceeding is a controversy concerning title to land. Gives jurisdiction for a writ of error. City of Bluefield v. Bailey [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 805.

55. Under Const. art. 3, § 17, and Code 1892, §§ 1603, 1696, where petitioner after taking an appeal deposited the amount of the award in court and took possession of the land, it thereby waived its right of appeal. Helm & N. W. R. Co. v. Turner, 89 Miss. 334, 42 So. 377. Under Ky. St. 1903, p. 1839, providing for appeal on execution of bond, and that upon payment into court the railroad may take possession, payment of damages and costs into court is not an abandonment of an appeal. Madisonville, etc., R. Co. v. Ross [Ky.] 103 S. W. 330.

56. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Williams, 148 F. 442.

57. See 7 C. L. 1312.

58. A motion for new trial is not authorized and is not necessary to present for review a ruling of the court at a preliminary hearing for the appointment of appraisers under Acts 1905, p. 59. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081. An owner may appeal from a default judgment fixing damages for error in summoning the jury without first moving to vacate the judgment or bringing the question before the trial court. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. McCormick [Wash.] 89 P. 186.

59. An objection that the proceedings were not instituted according to law, and that the court has no jurisdiction, made under Acts 1905, pp. 59, 61, is too general to raise the question as to defect of parties. Darrow v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 1081.

60. See 7 C. L. 1313.

61. Under Gen. St. 1902, §§ 791, 792, 807, in proceedings for appointment of appraisers of damages for land taken for railroad purposes, the judge may extend the time for filing the appeal for more than ten days after the filing of his finding. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Illy, 79 Conn. 526, 65 A. 965.

62. Bond, on appeal from assessment of damages for land taken for a highway, not approved by the president of the board, not payable to the county, not filed until after adjournment of the board, as required by Ann. Code 1892, § 3896, held void and insufficient to sustain an appeal. Evans v. Sharkey County, 89 Miss. 302, 42 So. 173.

64. Under Ann. Code 1892, § 3896, providing for review by the court of proceedings of board of supervisors in laying out a highway, a bill of exceptions is not required where the appeal is simply to have the jury assess damages. Evans v. Sharkey County, 89 Miss. 302, 42 So. 173.

65. See 7 C. L. 1313.

66. Where an order of the probate court dismissing a condemnation proceeding was appealed to the circuit court, under Comp. Laws 1897, § 669, and such court heard the matter on its merits instead of reversing and remanding it, such action did not render its order interlocutory, but it was final, and reviewable by certiorari. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. U. S. Gypsum Co., 148 Mich. 308, 14 Det. Leg. N. 155, 111 N. W. 913. Writ of error lies from an order that a railroad company has a right to take land and appointing commissioners to determine compensation. White Oak R. Co. v. Gordon, 61 W. Va. 519, 56 S. E. 837. An order that there is a right to condemn and appointing commissioners to assess damages, and an order filing report of commissioners and allowing money to be paid into court, are final and writ of error lies therefrom, but not where the only question is amount of compensation. City of Bluefield v. Bailey [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 805.

67. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1238, the determination of the trustees of a drainage district as to the necessity for draining is final, and not reviewable by the courts. Laguna Drainage Dist. v. Martin & Co. [Cal. App.] 89 P. 993. No appeal lies from an order of condemnation in a proceeding to establish a county road. Sess. Laws 1901, p. 213. State v. Pierce County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 89 P. 178.

68. Where report of commissioners is set aside at a special term and new commissioners appointed, such order is not an exercise of power conferred on the court by Laws 1893, pp. 325, 328, but is independent thereof, so that the second commissioner's report is an original one and is appealable. In re Daly [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 560.

69. Under Laws 1893, p. 325, providing for an appeal to the supreme court from an appraisal of commissioners, and that the court may direct a new appraisal which shall be final and conclusive, no appeal lies from an order confirming the report on a second appraisal. In re Daly, 116 App. Div. 798, 102 N. Y. S. 22.

72. Where the landowner does not raise the question of necessity of taking in the lower court, the appellate court is not required to decide it. Vandalia Coal Co. v. Indianapolis & L. R. Co. [Ind.] 79 N. E. 1082. Where, on filing the petition as an initiatory step under Laws 1889-90, p. 719, for condemning riparian rights, the party affected appeared generally and did not object to want of notice required by § 45, such objection could not be considered on writ of review or the judgment. State v. Stevens County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 90 P. 650.

73. Where proceedings were carried to the order of condemnation, it is presumed that issues were properly made, and plaintiff cannot object that defendants failed to answer. Yellowstone Park R. Co. v. Bridger Coal Co., 34 Mont. 545, 87 P. 963. An owner who appeared pursuant to notice for appointment of commissioners to ascertain compensation to be made, and failed to question the regularity of the proceedings, is estopped to raise such question on appeal from an order confirming the award. In re City of Buffalo, 101 N. Y. S. 966. The objection that benefits are not shown to be special if not raised in the trial court cannot be raised on appeal. Burton Lumber Corp. v. Houston [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 580, 101 S. W. 822. Record of appeal showing the manner in which a jury was selected held to bring error therein before the appellate court. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. McCormick [Wash.] 89 P. 186. When it was claimed that there were certain irregularities in a proceeding, but the parties agreed to waive them and proceed with the assessment, which was done, on appeal from the award such irregularities could not be availed of though it was also agreed that any question might be raised which could have been made before assessment. Georgia Granite R. Co. v. Venable [Ga.] 58 S. E. 864.

74. The right of the petitioner to show prior ownership in part of the waters awarded him by the judgment by way or reduction of damages will not be considered on review of the judgment, as such question belongs to the hearing on question of damages. *State v. An owner of property abutting on a street upon which interurban cars are run may recover special damages resulting from improper operation of the cars, though he sells the property pending the action, and seeks to enjoin the wrong complained of. Kinsey v. Union Trac. Co. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 922.

99. Where a railroad company enters land with the consent or acquiescence of the owner, the right to recover damages is personal and does not pass to a vendee. McCutchen v. Texas & P. R. Co., 118 La. 436, 43 So. 42; Birmingham Belt R. Co. v. Lockwood [Ala.] 43 So. 319.

1. Where a deed from a former owner of property contained a reservation of such owner's right of action for damages for the operation of an elevated railroad in front of the premises, the present owner was not entitled to any portion of such damages. Friedman v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 52 Misc. 20, 100 N. Y. S. 981.

2. Where a quarry is leased by parol, reserving royalties, and is taken in condemnation proceedings, the lessee is entitled to damages for his loss. Cole v. Ellwood Power Co., 216 Pa. 283, 65 A. 678. On conflicting evidence as to whether the lease had been terminated before the property was taken, the question is for the jury. Id. Under Revision 1900, P. L. p. 79, providing for compensation to all persons who have an interest, one who has an easement over the land taken is entitled to compensation. Butterworth-Judson Co. v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 198. Where a town has acquired land for sewers and constructed expensive improvements thereon and maintained the same without objection for several years, it has such an interest as entitles it to compensation, where the same are taken by the United States without regard to the regularity of the proceedings by which it acquired its rights. United States v. Nahant, 153 F. 520. Under Laws 1901, p. 423, c. 466, providing that where lands of a city are required for street purposes it is entitled to compensation, where a street is laid out over land acquired by the city for water-works purposes, the city is entitled to compensation, the payment for the land as first acquired being made in a different manner. In re Van Cortlandt Ave. [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 952. Where mortgaged property is taken, and on foreclosure the sum realized was insufficient to cancel the debt, the mortgagee has a lien on a portion of the award sufficient to make up the deficiency. In re Morris Ave. in New York, 118 App. Div. 117, 103

N. Y. S. 180. The fee owner is not entitled to the entire award where easements of light, air, and access are vested in another. In re Jerome Ave. of New York, 105 N. Y. S. 319.

3. Where lots of a tract are sold subject to building restrictions, owners of lots not taken have not such an easement in those taken as entitles them to compensation. Wharton v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 153 F. 876. Where one platted land and sold all the lots with reference to a proposed street, after which the street was laid out, he was entitled to nominal damages only. Wilkins v. Manchester [N. H.] 67 A. 560. Where land reserved by an owner as a canal, though subject to an easement of use by abutting owners, was taken, owners of easement could not complain that the owner of the canal was awarded value of the fee. In re Canal Place of New York, 115 App. Div. 458, 101 N. Y. S. 397.

4. See 7. C. L. 1320.

5. Under Laws 1858, p. 452, the City of New York in taking property necessary for the construction of the bridge over Harlem River took a fee without right of reversion. In re Jerome Ave. of New York, 105 N. Y. S. 1009. Where the state prays damages for injury to land on the basis of permanent appropriation, and the land is platted and recorded as land appropriated, and the owner accepts the damages with knowledge of such facts, the state acquires the title to the lands. People v. Fisher, 116 App. Div. 677, 101 N. Y. S. 1047.

6. Where a water company sought to condemn the riparian rights of a fee owner which were appurtenant to and co-extensive with his estate, held, they must participate in the water on the basis that the riparian owner's rights were appurtenant, and must expropriate his perpetual easement. Clear Creek Water Co. v. Gladeville Imp. Co. [Va.] 58 S. E. 586.

7. In proceedings to open a highway, the court should not divest the owner of title, but should give the public an easement only. Carroll v. Griffith, 117 Tenn. 500, 97 S. W. 66. Only the interest required by the necessities of the contemplated use is acquired. Reed v. Winona Park Com'rs, 100 Minn. 167, 110 N. W. 1119. Where an interurban railway condemned a right of way, it acquired the right to construct any number of tracks thereon, and to run any number of cars. Union Trac. Co. v. Pfeil, 39 Ind. App. 51, 78 N. E. 1052. Under Const. art. 2, § 13, providing that where land is taken for railroad tracks the fee remains in the owner, the owner has the right to mine coal beneath the right of way. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Sims, 228 Ill. 9, 81 N. E. 782. A watercourse on land taken cannot be closed to the detriment of the owner of the remainder of the tract. Reed v. Winona Park Com'rs, 100 Minn. 167, 110 N. W. 1119.

use,<sup>8</sup> but the rights of the petitioner in the estate taken are superior to any individual right retained by the fee owner.<sup>9</sup> One who exercises the power in improving the floatability of non-navigable streams does not thereby become entitled to the exclusive use of such streams.<sup>10</sup> Where land is taken subject to taxes, the petitioner is estopped to deny the validity of tax liens.<sup>11</sup> In condemning land a railroad company may limit by stipulation the rights or easements which it seems to acquire.<sup>12</sup> Successors in interest of the petitioner are bound by covenants made by the petitioner which run with the land.<sup>13</sup> Dower is extinguished by condemnation proceedings during the husband's life.<sup>14</sup>

§ 23. Relinquishment or abandonment of rights acquired.<sup>18</sup>—The question of abandonment is one to be determined from the facts of each case.<sup>19</sup> In New York city, streets may be vacated only in the method prescribed by law.<sup>20</sup>

8. Such interest is taken as is necessary to enable the corporation to carry out its purposes, with reversion in case it should cease. Folsom v. Gate City Terminal Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 314. No greater right is acquired than is necessary to satisfy the purpose of the statute. Leffmann v. Long Island R. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 487. Title acquired by the Lake Superior & Mississippi Railway Company under c. 93, p. 323, Laws 1857, was in the nature of an easement or terminable fee, and the lands revert to the owner where abandoned for the purposes required. Chambers v. Great Northern Power Co., 100 Minn. 214, 110 N. W. 1128. Unless the language of the statute clearly authorizes the taking of a fee, only an easement will be taken. Where land is taken for park purposes. Reed v. Winona Park Com'rs, 100 Minn. 167, 110 N. W. 1119. Where a leased building and leasehold interest is condemned, the railroad cannot exercise the landlord's right under the lease to compel the tenant to vacate on ten days' notice. Shipley v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 216 Pa. 512, 65 A. 1094. The only right the public acquires in country highways is an easement of passage, and the laying of gas or water mains is an additional servitude. Baltimore County Water & Elec. Co. v. Dubreuil [Md.] 66 A. 439. The right which a railroad acquires by condemnation is for railroad purposes only, and it cannot for profit permit a private use; such as that by a telegraph company. Pittcock v. Central Dist. & Printing Tel. Co., 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 589.

9. Where land has been taken for a high way, the rights of the public therein are superior to any right of individual owners of the soil. Snively v. Washington [Pa.] 67 A. 465.

10. Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson, 12 Idaho, 769, 88 P. 426.

11. Where land is taken under a judgment of appraisal providing that there shall be no deductions for taxes or assessments, the land being taken subject to all special and general taxes, the city is estopped to deny the validity of liens. City Safe Deposit & Agency Co. v. Omaha [Neb.] 112 N. W. 598.

12. Such stipulation is binding on landowner. State v. King County Super. Ct. [Wash.] 90 P. 663.

13. Reservations and stipulations placed on an easement acquired in condemnation proceedings have the effect of covenants running with the land, and are binding on successors of petitioner. American Tel. & T. Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 202 Mo. 656, 101 S. W. 576.

Scope of title.—This topic is confined to a general treatment of equity principles and procedure, the specific application of such principles to particular subjects,<sup>1</sup> and the consideration of particular equitable remedies,<sup>2</sup> being more particularly and exhaustively treated under their appropriate titles. Separate articles have also been devoted to certain matters of practice,<sup>3</sup> and so far as pleading in equity has been made by statute to conform to the rules applicable to pleading in actions at law, it has been treated in connection therewith.<sup>4</sup> Masters in chancery are the subject of a separate topic,<sup>5</sup> and the equity jurisdiction of particular courts is also treated elsewhere.<sup>6</sup>

§ 1. Nature of, and general principles controlling, equity.<sup>7</sup>

§ 2. Equity jurisdiction and occasions for relief. A. In general.<sup>8</sup>—It is difficult to lay down any definite rule as to what special circumstances will enable an injured party to invoke the aid of equity. Each case must rest in a large degree upon its own particular facts.<sup>9</sup> The test of jurisdiction is ordinarily to be found in the nature of the case made by the bill and the relief sought,<sup>10</sup> but even jurisdic-

10. Becker v. California Super. Ct. [Cal.] 90 P. 689. When fraud is sufficiently alleged with proper parties to a bill, a demurrer will not lie (Wheeling Ice & Storage Co. v. Connor, 61 W. Va. 111, 55 S. E. 982), except where it would be equally available at law (Fludd v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 75 S. C. 315, 55 S. E. 762; Poling v. Poling, 61 W. Va. 78, 55 S. E. 993). The court must look to the allegations of the complaint in limine to ascertain whether it has jurisdiction. Complaint to quiet title stating possession of plaintiff and his title and asking to have same quieted shows equity jurisdiction. Earle Imp. Co. v. Chatfield [Ark.] 99 S. W. 81. Equitable relief is not granted as a matter of course but only when an adequate appeal has been made and such facts shown as bring the case within a recognized principle of equitable jurisdiction. Bill to cancel a deed for lack of proper signature cannot be maintained where the title

tional allegations are unavailing unless supported by proof.<sup>11</sup> but on motion to dismiss the burden is on defendant to disprove the jurisdictional averments.<sup>12</sup> The fact, however, that a complainant does not succeed in establishing all that he claims does not oust the court of its jurisdiction to give judgment for so much as is established.<sup>13</sup> but this rule cannot be employed as a mere pretext for bringing law cases into a court of equity.<sup>14</sup> Where a proper case for equity is presented, a bill asking both equitable and legal relief is maintainable.<sup>15</sup> Equity may obtain jurisdiction over the action through a cross complaint, although plaintiff's complaint is insufficient to confer jurisdiction.<sup>16</sup> Where allegations showing equity jurisdictions are made in the complaint, a motion to transfer to the law court stating contrary facts does not rob equity of its jurisdiction.<sup>17</sup> In a case of doubtful jurisdiction the pleadings should make out a clear case.<sup>18</sup> Where equity acquires jurisdiction to determine a right, it will retain jurisdiction to afford a remedy.<sup>19</sup> Where the court has jurisdiction of the person of the defendants, it thereby has plenary power to compel them to act, in cases of fraud, contract, or trust, in relation to their property outside its territorial jurisdiction.<sup>20</sup> There is a conflict of authority as to whether or not the question of jurisdiction may be raised after issue made and trial on the facts,<sup>21</sup> but it is very generally held that jurisdictional objections cannot be raised for the first time on appeal.<sup>22</sup>

Effect of code or statutory provisions.<sup>23</sup>—Distinctions between legal and equitable actions have been abolished by statute in many states so that all controversies may be determined in one action.<sup>24</sup> Statutes creating special remedies for wrongs already cognizable in equity do not impliedly deprive equity of jurisdiction,<sup>25</sup> and was fairly in the grantee named therein. Laythe v. Minnesota Loan & Investment Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 65. Lamphere*, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 187. Equity has power to compel conveyance of land in another state when the persons interested are within the jurisdiction, but it acts upon the person only and cannot affect the title to land. in fact an adverse decision on the legal remedy sought may not bar a subsequent suit to obtain equitable relief.<sup>26</sup> The legislature has no power to divest courts of jurisdiction where such is granted by the constitution,<sup>27</sup> but it may change the practice and procedure.<sup>28</sup> The legislature of a state cannot enlarge the equitable jurisdiction of courts of the United States, but at the same time it may provide for the enlargement of equitable rights, and such rights may be enforced by the circuit court of the United States by virtue of its equitable jurisdiction in the same manner as such rights are enforced in the state courts.<sup>29</sup> Equity cannot supplant or exercise any supervisory jurisdiction over the probate court, but must act if at all in aid of that court.<sup>30</sup>

(§ 2) B. Maxims and principles controlling the application of equitable relief. General principles and maxims.<sup>31</sup>—Conscience and good faith are necessary to call a court of equity into activity.<sup>32</sup> A court of equity will not exercise its jurisdiction uselessly,<sup>33</sup> or to enforce a hard and unconscionable bargain.<sup>34</sup> Equity seeks the substantial rights of parties and applies the remedy in such a manner as to relieve those having the controlling equities.<sup>35</sup> He who seeks equity must do equity.<sup>36</sup> In some cases it is held that the offer to do equity must be contained in the bill,<sup>37</sup> but in most instances this principle is satisfied by the court's making in its decree the relief awarded the plaintiff conditioned upon his equitable performance,<sup>38</sup> but even where a petition was held defective in that it contained no offer to do equity, the defendant waived his rights to attack it on that ground where he answered to the merits and went to trial.<sup>39</sup> Equity aids the vigilant.<sup>40</sup> That will be regarded as Refuses to aid speculation. Jahn v. Champagne Lumber Co., 152 F. 669. The statute of frauds will not operate as a bar to the enforcement of a parol agreement to convey an interest in lands if the same has been partly performed so as to render it a fraud on the vendee to permit the vendor to avail himself of the statute. Agreement to convey easement. Burrell v. Middleton [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 978.

33. Equity will not reform an instrument merely for the sake of reforming it but only to enable a party to assert some right thereunder. Travelli v. Bowman, 150 Cal. 587, 89 P. 347.

34. Will enjoin enforcement of a judgment which in justice and good conscience should not be collected. Brown v. Pegram, 119 F. 515. Boyd* [Ind.] 81 N. E. 71. This maxim does not apply to a bill to set aside by the heirs a grant of homestead void for failure of the wife to join, and it is not necessary to tender the amount of grantor's debt for which grant was made, as a homestead is exempt from debt. *Woods v. 40. Bill brought forty-six years after done which ought to be done.<sup>41</sup> A court of equity is reluctant to enforce a forfeiture,<sup>42</sup> and will sometimes relieve against the consequences of a breach of a condition and save an estate from forfeiture.<sup>43</sup> The smallness of a claim may be a ground for refusing jurisdiction.<sup>44</sup>

Clean hands.<sup>45</sup>—He who comes into equity must do so with clean hands,<sup>46</sup> for equity will not grant relief where parties are in pari delicto.<sup>47</sup> This is subject to the exception that where public interest requires equity will intervene, although the result is to grant a benefit to one party who is of equal guilt with the other.<sup>48</sup> Where the party suing is not equally in the wrong, a court should grant relief.<sup>49</sup> It is only with regard to the plaintiff's rights against the defendant that the plaintiff must come into court with clean hands.<sup>50</sup> The bad faith or the unconscionable conduct that will justify the application of this maxim must be based upon actual knowledge or willful fraud.<sup>51</sup>

46. Where certain promoters responsible for false statements with regard to a corporation were no longer connected with it, the corporation was not debarred from requesting relief in equity against these promoters. Cuba Colony Co. v. Kirby [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 494, 112 N. W. 1133. Equity will not aid a donor to recover money back which was paid for sexual intercourse. Platt v. Elias, 186 N. Y. 374, 79 N. E. 1. Where one learns of a secret process through no breach of confidence but through one who has thus obtained the knowledge, he is not guilty of such unconscionable conduct as will prevent his seeking relief in equity against one who has fraudulently learned the process and is making use of it. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 339. Equity sometimes refuses aid to claims obtained without consideration for speculation to protect honest creditors, but where the defendant confesses himself guilty of fraud, he will not be protected by a plea of speculation from making discovery. Jahn v. Champagne Lumber Co., 152 F. 669.

47. Wood v. Stewart [Ark.] 98 S. W. 711.

48. Equity will enjoin sales by alderman to the city under constitutional provision prohibiting such, although the complainant when an alderman had also made sales. Noxubee County Hardware Co. v. Macon [Miss.] 43 So. 304.

49. Wood v. Stewart [Ark.] 98 S. W. 711.

50. Beekman v. Marsters [Mass.] 80 N. E. 817. Mere general iniquitous conduct unconnected with the matter in suit is not sufficient to cause equity to refuse relief. Peters v. Case [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 733. Where a stockholder sued for the benefit of the corporation to recover losses of funds by the directors in gambling transactions in grain, and it appeared that the plaintiff on his own account had similarly speculated and lost, he was not barred on the ground of lack of clean hands. Hingston v. Montgomery, 121 Mo. App. 451, 97 S. W. 202.

51. The fraud of an agent who learns a trade secret that is by mere imputation chargeable upon a complainant will not render the hands of the latter unclean so that equity will not enjoin the use of such trade secret by a third party who has fraudulently obtained it. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 339. Claims of a patent medicine held not to be such a fraud on the public as to amount to unclean hands preventing an injunction against unfair competition. Dr. Fahrney v. Ruminer [C. C. 53. Monmouth Inv. Co. v. Means [C. C. A.] 151 F. 159; Beekman v. Marsters [Mass.] 80 N. E. 817. Where a landowner seeks to interfere with the operation of a railroad on the ground of defective title to its right of way, equity has jurisdiction to enjoin such act, for the remedy at law is insufficient, since to compel a railroad to stop operation until its rights could be determined would work irreparable injury to the railroad and the public. Nittany Valley R. Co. v. Empire Steel & Iron Co. [Pa.] 67 A. 349. Where a parol agreement cannot be specifically enforced because of un-basis thereof.<sup>54</sup> Even where there is concurrent jurisdiction at law and in equity, Agreement between husband and wife that if she supplied the money for the purchase of lands the title should be in her name. Cross v. Her, 103 Md. 592. 64 A. 33.

54. Equity has no jurisdiction to grant relief where there is an adequate remedy at law. Brophy v. Sheppard, 124 Ill. App. 512; Northwestern Traveling Men's Ass'n v. Crawford, 126 Ill. App. 468; Day v. Bullen, 127 Ill. App. 155. No matter how gross a fraud may be, equity will not interfere if there is a complete remedy at law. Bill to abate purchase price for fraudulent representation as to value of land. Purchase price not all paid and notes given for balance. If it is attempted to collect on these notes there is a good defense at law. Williams v. Neal [Ala.] 44 So. 551.

Cases in Which the Legal Remedy Has Been Held Adequate. Accounting: Action at law adequate where no complicated accounting for damages for waste and trespass. Godfrey v. McConnell, 151 F. 783. A bill for an accounting alleging a contract with a railroad company to do certain work, a portion of which was sublet to a subcontractor to receive ten per cent off the contract price and that contractor took full charge after part performance by the subcontractor, making payments on his behalf does not state a cause for equity jurisdiction, there being an adequate remedy at law, since all amounts are readily ascertainable. Hunt v. O'Connor, 151 F. 707. Where complete relief can be obtained in the surrogate's court, the supreme court will refuse to exercise its equitable powers to entertain an action for an accounting. In re Smith, 105 N. Y. S. 223. Complainant contracted to deliver bonds to the defendant at the same price he was to receive for them from a third party. Defendant fraudulently misrepresented the price which he received. There was no adequate remedy at law for the balance. Martin v. Wilson [C. C. A.] 155 F. 97. A bill against a county treasurer for excess collection charges which shows the exact amounts claimed raises a question for a law court only. Board of Sup'rs of Nottoway County v. Powell, 106 Va. 51, 56 S. E. 812.

Bankruptcy: Equity is without jurisdiction to grant relief to a trustee in bankruptcy against a mere preferential payment by a bankrupt where he has not exhausted his remedy at law. Brock v. Oliver [Ala.] 43 So. 357.

Boundary disputes: The settlement of boundary disputes is not a matter for equitable jurisdiction. Orr v. Cox, 61 W. Va. 361, 56 S. E. 522; Watkins v. Childs, 79 Vt. 234, 65 A. 81. Courts of equity have jurisdiction to appoint commissions to ascertain confused boundaries (Watkins v. Childs [Vt.] 66 A. 805), but only where some equity exists superinduced by the act of the defendant. Fraud or misconduct; a relation between the parties making it the duty of one to preserve the boundaries (Id.), or a danger of multiplicity of suits (Id.).

Contracts: Where complainant's bill was for specific performance but it appeared that he could be adequately compensated for a breach in an action at law and there was no allegation that the defendant was insolvent, his suit could not be maintained. Marthinson v. King [C. C. A.] 150 F. 48. Legal remedy adequate to recover from administrator money loaned to decedent, neither discovery or accounting being necessary. McKee v. Allen, 204 Mo. 655, 103 S. W. 76.

Corporations: Suit at equity against directors of a corporation does not lie to enforce payment of a declared dividend. There is an adequate remedy at law. Searles v. Gebbie, 115 App. Div. 778, 101 N. Y. S. 199. But where a particular fund has been set aside for the payment of a dividend and is within the control of the directors, they are trustees and a bill may be maintained to reach the fund and charge the directors with misconduct. Id.

Covenant of title: Where land is sold with express warranty of title, equity is without power to grant relief unless the vendor is insolvent. Grant what relief it can whether purchaser has a deed and is in possession or not. Yarbrough v. Thornton, 147 Ala. 221, 42 So. 402.

Damages: A bill cannot be retained solely for the purpose of awarding pecuniary damages, there being a plain and adequate remedy at law. Barnes v. Roy, 27 R. I. 534, 65 A. 277. Executors, removal of. Clark v. Peck's Ex'rs, 79 Vt. 275, 65 A. 14.

Right to property or possession: Equity will not assume jurisdiction to try a controverted legal title to an easement of way. Burrell v. Middleton [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 978.

Trespass: Where the relief asked for is pecuniary damages for waste and for trespass and no complicated accounting is sought and no discovery, there is an adequate remedy at law. Godfrey v. McConnell, 151 F. 783.

Cases in Which the Legal Remedy has Been Held Inadequate. Accounting: There is no adequate remedy at law on accounts where, although the account is only on one side, it is complicated and difficult and discovery is sought. Miller v. Russell, 224 Ill. 68, 79 N. E. 434. Where real estate brokers informed an owner that $5,062 was the highest obtainable offer when in fact they had an offer of $5,500 and she thereupon executed a deed receiving only $5,062 out of the $5,500 paid, a bill praying for an accounting is not demurrable on the ground of an adequate remedy at law. Dawson v. Leschziner [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 449.

Cancellation of instruments: A suit to cancel a note and mortgage is properly brought in equity as there is no issue at law. Leigh v. Citizens' Sav. Bk. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 233.

Contracts: An action at law for damages for breach of a contract to convey lands the jurisdiction of the latter will not ordinarily be exercised where the remedy at law is adequate and there are no independent grounds of equity jurisdiction,<sup>55</sup> but a concurrent remedy at law does not necessarily oust equity of jurisdiction.<sup>56</sup> Where jurisdiction of law and equity is concurrent, the decision of a law court in sending a case to the equity court will not be reversed after trial of the case except for manifest error.<sup>57</sup> The adequate remedy at law which will deprive a court of equity of jurisdiction must be a remedy as certain, complete, prompt, and efficient to attain the ends of justice as the remedy in equity.<sup>58</sup> It is unnecessary to allege the lack of does not afford an adequate remedy as a suit for specific performance. Wilhite v. Skelton [C. C. A.] 149 F. 67. Failure to execute a trust with which contract to convey land is charged. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606. There is no adequate remedy at law for breach of an agreement by which land is transferred to be built upon by the defendant who fails to carry out the agreement. Mosier v. Walter, 17 Okl. 305, 87 P. 877. An action at law does not afford an adequate remedy for breach of a contract to convey land. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606. There is no adequate remedy at law where the plaintiff claims a breach of contract, but there is no right of action upon the contract because of fraud by the defendant in writing it. Robertson v. Covenant Mut. Life Ins. Co., 123 Mo. App. 238, 100 S. W. 686.

Corporations: Where a particular fund has been set aside for the payment of a dividend and is within the control of the directors, they are trustees and a bill may be maintained to reach the fund and charge the directors with misconduct. Searles v. Gebbie, 115 App. Div. 778, 101 N. Y. S. 199.

Deeds: Where a deed has been delivered in escrow and before time for delivery to the grantee the grantor transfers the land to another, the first grantee has no adequate remedy at law and his proper remedy for relief is in equity. Wilkins v. Somerville [Vt.] 66 A. 893.

Estates of decedents: There is no adequate remedy at law barring equitable jurisdiction to set aside a probate decree obtained by fraud and to protect the estate on behalf of the legatees. Ewing v. Lamphere, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 87.

Injury to business: Where it appears that defendant unlawfully threatens to interfere or interferes with plaintiff's business or rights, and it further appears that damages will not afford an adequate remedy, equity will issue an injunction. Interference by defendant to break plaintiff's contract with an exposition company to be its sole agent. Beekman v. Marsters [Mass.] 80 N. E. 817.

Insolvency: Remedy at law not adequate where an agreement to sell complainant's beer exclusively is broken by the defendant because of the difficulty of proving the extent of the violation and the profits complainant would have made, the necessity of a multitude of suits, and the uncertainty of defendant's financial responsibility. Feigen-span v. Nizolek [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 703.

Lien: Equity has jurisdiction to enforce a lien and will not leave plaintiff to his remedy at law. Suit to enforce lien on timber for nonpayment of taxes by vendee of timber. Michigan Iron & Land Co. v. Nester, 147 Mich. 599, 14 Det. Leg. N. 47, 111 N. W. 177.

Negotiable instruments: No adequate remedy at law to protect one from whom a note has been obtained by fraud and without consideration, since the note may find its way into the hands of a bona fide holder for value and the payor be utterly ruined by being obliged to pay the same. Monmouth Inv. Co. v. Means [C. C. A.] 151 F. 159. Bill to cancel note and mortgage. Leigh v. Citizens' Sav. Bk. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 233.

Right to property or possession: Where in a bill to quiet title complainant alleges possession and at the hearing proves possession, he has no adequate remedy at law. North Carolina Min. Co. v. Westfeldt, 151 F. 290.

Trespass: Equity will enjoin trespass for which there is an adequate remedy at law only when irreparable loss or injury is alleged and shown. Bledsoe v. Robinett, 105 Va. 723, 54 S. E. 861.

Trusts: Where the subject-matter of a suit in equity was the gains and profits arising out of a trust, equity will retain jurisdiction although the amount claimed could be liquidated in cash. Bay State Gas Co. v. Rogers, 147 F. 557.

55. Dawson v. Leshziner [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 449.

56. Contract of sale. Fraud. Dawson v. Leshziner [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 449. Where a bill in equity is filed in the court of chancery for an accounting by trustees who subsequently file an account, without knowledge of the bill, in the prerogative court, but before service of subpoena, the jurisdiction of the chancery court has been properly invoked and that court will maintain jurisdiction since it has first taken it. Gillen v. Hadley [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 1087.

57. Harris v. Remmel [Ark.] 102 S. W. 716. Right at law to petition the court for an order upon an administratrix to file a petition for sale of real estate to pay a judgment or for her removal is not as certain, complete, etc., as a bill to subject the land to the payment of the judgment. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145.

58. Castle Creek Water Co. v. Aspen [C. C. A.] 146 F. 8; Farwell v. Colonial Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 480. An action at law for damages against the vendor of corporate stock is not as adequate and efficient as a suit in equity against the vendor and corporation to rescind the sale, to recover the purchase price, and to relieve the complainant from liability to the corporation on account of his stock. Id. Relief demanded by minority stockholders against an adequate remedy at law, but facts should be pleaded from which that conclusion can be drawn.<sup>59</sup> Objection to jurisdiction on the ground of adequate remedy at law can only be interposed in the earlier stages and will not be considered after the case is at issue,<sup>60</sup> and cannot be first raised on appeal.<sup>61</sup> In the Federal courts the defense is one of substance and may be raised at any time or by the court of its own volition, but should best be raised by demurrer.<sup>62</sup> The fact that a complainant in a bill in a Federal court has an adequate remedy at law in the state court does not affect the jurisdiction of the Federal court.<sup>63</sup> A Federal court will not turn a complainant in equity over a remedy at law in a state court, but only to the law side of the Federal court.<sup>64</sup> A defendant who is prevented from making a complete defense in an action at law may enjoin the same and make his defense in equity,<sup>65</sup> but equity cannot bar an innocent suitor from his legal rights because of any hardship their enforcement may cause others.<sup>66</sup>

an unlawful adjournment to prevent them from cumulating their stock vote on one candidate for director will not be denied on the ground that they have an adequate remedy at law. West Side Hospital v. Steele, 124 Ill. App. 534. It is not necessary that there be an entire want of legal remedy. It is sufficient if such remedy is inadequate or will not effect complete justice. Apollo Trust Co. v. Safe Deposit & Title Guar. Co., 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 524. Where the cause is such that equity can grant relief in addition to that which could be procured at law, the case is not so foreign to equity jurisdiction that the court will dismiss of its own motion. Shedd v. Seefeld, 126 Ill. App. 375. Equity cannot acquire jurisdiction on the ground of no adequate remedy at law where a party is very old and requires a speedy adjustment of a matter. Clark v. Peck's Ex'rs., 79 Vt. 275, 65 A. 14.

W. 119. In a suit between guardian and ward where equity obtained jurisdiction to vacate a probate order allowing a final account, it would retain jurisdiction for the purpose of doing complete justice between the ward and the guardian's sureties who were parties. Baum v. Hartmann, 226 Ill. 160, 80 N. E. 711. Equity having otherwise acquired jurisdiction will determine which of two sets of officers of a private corporation are the lawful officers. West Side Hospital v. Steele, 124 Ill. App. 534. In a suit in equity for the sale of property to satisfy the claim of complainant, the court acquires jurisdiction of the property and parties, and subsequent proceedings by any of the parties in other courts without leave are ineffectual to establish claims adverse to those of the complainant; hence, it is the duty of the court first acquiring jurisdiction to hear and determine such claims when properly presented. In suit against administratrix to subject real estate to payment of a judgment, the court should permit her to file a cross bill for expenses and allowance as widow and determine such claims. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. Equity has jurisdiction to afford relief to one who has been induced by fraud of the officers to subscribe to the stock of a corporation, and may rescind the contract, though fully executed, and compel restitution of payments. Cox v. National Coal & Oil Inv. Co., 61 W. Va. 291, 56 S. E. 494. Jurisdiction to establish partition of a de-

the rights involved but in affording remedies for their enjoyment,<sup>69</sup> and any relief to which any of the parties are entitled may be granted,<sup>70</sup> regardless of whether such relief is legal or equitable.<sup>71</sup> Where there are substantial grounds of equity jurisdiction, legal relief may be granted although equitable relief is denied on account of the particular circumstances of the case,<sup>72</sup> or on account of matters arising pending suit which render equitable relief impossible.<sup>73</sup> A cause will not, however, be retained to grant purely legal relief where it appears from the pleadings that complainant is not entitled to equitable relief.<sup>74</sup> Where equity has jurisdiction of the subject-matter of a suit, it will not retain jurisdiction to determine counsel fees except by consent of parties.<sup>75</sup>

Multiplicity of suits.<sup>76</sup>—Where jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties to a controversy has been acquired, equity may and should grant complete relief to the end that litigation may cease and a multiplicity of suits be avoided.<sup>77</sup> Whether a court of equity will take jurisdiction to prevent a multiplicity of suits depends upon the circumstances of each case.<sup>78</sup> A court of equity will not take jurisdiction cedent's land may be retained to adjudicate claim against the estate. Lester v. Kirtley [Ark.] 104 S. W. 213. Cross demands and counterclaims may be enforced by way of set-off in equity even though they are legal claims, and for unliquidated damages whenever the circumstances are such as to warrant the interference of equity. Bill to restrain collection of judgment and a set-off of claims against judgment creditors. Brown v. Pegram, 149 F. 515.

69. Bill to determine claim of lien on land of testator and declare rights of parties. The court having made a finding was not bound to remand the cause to the probate court for the enforcement of the rights established. Quinton v. Neville [C. C. A.] 154 F. 432.

70. Where equity has jurisdiction of a suit by tenants in common of standing timber against a cotenant for an accounting, the jurisdiction is not ousted by one cotenant setting up an issue of title, for the court will proceed to determine the whole controversy. Gulf Red Cedar Lumber Co. v. Crenshaw [Ala.] 42 So. 564. Where defendant in an action to quiet title by counterclaim alleges ownership of the land and demands that his title be quieted, the court may determine the issue thus presented. Fox v. Cornett, 29 Ky. L. R. 246, 92 S. W. 959. Where a court has jurisdiction over a bill by a trust creditor, it may after decreeing the amount due retain the cause and administer the trust either through the old or new trustees appointed by it, or through its own commissioners. Washington Nat. Bld'g & Loan Ass'n v. Buser, 61 W. Va. 590, 57 S. E. 40. It is the duty of defendants to present all their defenses and plaintiff will be protected from them after judgment. Asher v. Uhl, 29 Ky. L. R. 396, 93 S. W. 29.

71. When a court of equity acquires jurisdiction for one purpose, it acquires it for all purposes, and it makes no difference that some of the rights may be legal rights which could not otherwise be enforced outside of a court of law. Revive a judgment in suit to quiet title. Wehrheim v. Smith, 226 Ill. 346, 80 N. E. 908. Where the prevailing party in ejectment elects to take judgment for the value of the land, a court of equity does not lose jurisdiction to enforce on behalf of the party against whom judgment is entered a lien against the land, as the court has jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter and could make such decree as equity demanded. Taylor v. Roniger, 147 Mich. 99, 13 Det. Leg. N. 994, 110 N. W. 503. Under Gen. St. 1906, §§ 1939-1946, in partition proceedings, one whose bona fide object is partition among owners, one or more of whom are complainants and the balance defendants, all controversies as to the legal and equitable title should be settled by the chancellor. Williams v. Clyatt [Fla.] 43 So. 441.

72. Equity will not require a railway to restore a way, which it has excavated, to its prior condition where it will subject the company to great inconvenience and the plaintiff has unreasonably delayed enforcement of his right, but will retain the bill to assess damages. Levi v. Worcester Consol. St. R. Co., 193 Mass. 116, 78 N. E. 853.

73. Where the court obtains equity jurisdiction for the purpose of granting equitable relief and it appears from facts ascertained at the hearing but not previously known to the plaintiff that such relief is impracticable, equity will retain jurisdiction to grant the alternative legal relief of damages. Suit to cancel notes transferred to bona fide holders without plaintiff's knowledge. Luetzke v. Roberts, 130 Wis. 97, 109 N. W. 949. Where equity has jurisdiction to enforce a lien, such jurisdiction will not be defeated by the fact that before the case was brought to a hearing the articles to which a lien might attach were removed by defendant. Michigan Iron & Land Co. v. University Heights Realty & Devel. Co. [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 1060. Where an agent to collect money does so and deposits the same in another's hands, who refuses to give it to the principal, a bill in equity may be maintained against the agent and depositary, for no suit at law could be maintained against them jointly, and settle and adjust the various rights of the parties. Mazzolla v. Wilkie [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 584. Where there is an adequate remedy at law for breach of contract and bond given to secure performance, there is no such danger of a multiplicity of suits as will give equity jurisdiction. Lewman & Co. v. Ogden Bros., 143 Ala. 351, 42 So. 102. Equity has jurisdiction of a suit by several depositors of an insolvent bank against the directors for fraud, in order to prevent a multiplicity of suits, although the cause of action of each if asserted alone would be at law. Blumer v. Ulmer [Miss.] 44 So. 161.

79. Release of a prior lien in favor of a second mortgagee. Foreclosure by second mortgagee and sale. Bill by first mortgagee against second mortgagee and purchaser. Cross bill by purchaser against second mortgagee upon covenant of good title. Held that a decree was improperly entered against the second mortgagee on the cross bill. Marsden v. White [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 181.

80. Headrick v. Larson [C. C. A.] 152 F. 93.

81. Equity will not retain a bill to enforce liability against stockholders where it appears that each complainant has an independent claim, the adjudication of one of which would settle nothing with relation to the other. Miller v. Willett [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 981.

82. See 7 C. L. 1337.

83. Webb v. Marlar [Ark.] 104 S. W. 144. Specific performance is a matter of judicial discretion, but courts of equity enforce contracts to convey land as a matter of course and will be controlled by the fundamental principles of equity in the case of contracts relating to personalty, and, if chattels have a peculiar value above their market value, contracts concerning them will be specifically enforced. Marthinson v. King [C. C. A.] 150 F. 48. Contract to convey land. Seven Mile Beach Co. v. Dolley [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 191. To enforce contract to supply tomatoes to a canning factory where the market is uncertain. Curtice Bros. Co. v. Catts [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 935. Equity will enforce an agreement for a valuable consideration to grant a right of way by a decree for specific performance. Burrell v. Middleton [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 978. Option to purchase land. Marthinson v. King [C. C. A.] 150 F. 48. Will not enforce contracts interfering with judicial proceedings or wrongfully imposing on the jurisdiction of the courts. Court will not enjoin enforcement of a judgment which was obtained against the complainant by agreement between him and the defendant for the purpose of obtaining jurisdiction over a third party, the understanding being that it would not be enforced against complainant. Wood v. Stewart [Ark.] 98 S. W. 711. Contract relating to real estate. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606. See, also, Specific Performance, 8 C. L. 1946.

84. Bill for discovery. Bloede Co. v. Carter, 148 F. 127. A complainant is entitled to probe the conscience of each individual defendant, but is not entitled to have each or any enter upon an exhaustive search to discover and marshal facts necessary to the complainant's case. Park v. Bruen, 147 F. 884. Complainant cannot by propounding interrogatories require the defendant to enter into a tedious and expensive investigation. Id. Where equity has jurisdiction of the subject-matter of a suit, the complainant may have all the discovery relevant and necessary in aid of relief he is entitled to. Bill to restrain collection of judgment. Discovery to ascertain equitable owners of judgment and against whom plaintiff had set-offs. Brown v. Pegram, 149 F. 515. Equity will discover property wrongfully withheld and concealed from the owner and compel the wrongdoer to an accounting. Millard v. Millard, 123 Ill. App. 264. The fact that defendant admits having property for the recovery of which complainant has resorted to equity does not deprive this court of jurisdiction if other property might in the investigation be discovered, and jurisdiction is not lost though, in fact, no additional property is discovered. Id. See, also, Discovery and Inspection, 9 C. L. 990.

85. See Subrogation, 8 C. L. 2041.

86. Equity has exclusive jurisdiction to reform deeds for mistake. Martin v. Smith [Me.] 65 A. 257. To permit of reformation on the ground of mistake, evidence must be clear that deed does not express the agreement. Graham v. Carnegie Steel Co., 217 Pa. 34, 66 A. 103. Reformation of deed to land to comply with oral agreement is not permitted where a subsequent oral agreement has been acted on in conflict with original oral agreement. Urlich v. Watts, 69 N. J. Eq. 604, 66 A. 432. Bill to reform a trust deed given to secure a note barred by the statute of limitations. Title under deed remained in trustees until amount of debt was paid, and to reform the deed was to perfect a valuable right. Travelli v. Bowman, 150 Cal. 587, 89 P. 347. Equity will correct a deed to give it intended effect. Smyth v. Wallace, 30 Ky. L. R. 1232, 100 S. W. 1186. See, also, Reformation of Instruments, 8 C. L. 1708.

87. Jurisdiction of the court to cancel a deed is a matter of sound discretion in a court of equity to be assumed or refused according to its own ideas of what is reasonable and right. Mosier v. Walter, 17 Okl. 305, 87 P. 877. Equity may cancel a negotiable note obtained by fraud. Sipola v. Winship [N. H.] 66 A. 962. Inadequacy of consideration will not warrant the cancellation of a contract in equity, but, if combined with such a degree of mental weakness as to justify the inference that advantage had been taken of such weakness, such an inference is sufficient to warrant equitable interference. Allen's Adm'r's v. Allen's Adm'r's, 79 Vt. 173, 64 A. 1110. Evidence showing mental incapacity on the part of the grantor, and undue influence exercised upon him, warranted a setting aside of certain deeds. Id. Cancellation of a contract substituted for the original contract by fraud. Robertson v. Covenant Mut. Life Ins. Co., 123 Mo. App. 238, 100 S. W. 686. Note and mortgage. Leigh v. Citizens Sav. Bk. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 233. Equity jurisdiction to cancel an instrument does not depend upon the inadequacy of the remedy at law, but is a matter of sound discretion in a court of equity. Mosier v. Walter, 17 Okl. 305, 87 P. 877. Where from the evidence it appears that a bill is brought in equity for rescission for the purpose only of forcing a good settlement, equity will not grant a decree. Old Colony Zinc & Smelting Co. v. Garrick [C. C. A.] 153 F. 173. See, also, Cancellation of Instruments, 9 C. L. 454.

88. A creditor's bill filed by an assignee of a judgment for $2,500 is not demurrable for want of equity as a mere speculative venture because the assignment recited the consideration to be $15 and other sufficient and valuable consideration. Jahn v. Champagne Lumber Co., 147 F. 631. Where the property of a judgment debtor is so incumbered with liens that, although the judgment is a lien thereon under the law of the state, such lien cannot be effectively enforced by execution, the creditor may maintain a bill in equity for the adjustment of the rights and priorities of the several lien holders. Huff v. Bidwell [C. C. A.] 151 F. 563.

89. Harris v. Rammel [Ark.] 102 S. W. 716. A court of equity is justified in taking jurisdiction where the facts are not disputed but only a question of law on the construction of a writing which involved complainant's right to an account. Gallagher v. Hicks, 216 Pa. 243, 65 A. 623. A court of equity has jurisdiction over the accounts of guardians. Stevenson v. Markley [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 185. Accounting between owners in common of water rights where one uses more than his share. Roberts v. Claremont R. & Lighting Co. [N. H.] 66 A. 485. Accounting of a cotenant's interest in gold dust extracted from a mine. Dettering v. Nordstrom [C. C. A.] 148 F. 81. The circuit court of the United States sitting in equity has no jurisdiction of a bill for an accounting between an insured under a tontine policy and the insurer. Peters v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 149 F. 290. Accounting by a president of a company into whose custody or under whose control, as president and trustee, property of the company came and was withdrawn from the company by him or with his consent and disbursed without authority and for unlawful purposes. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. McCurdy, 118 App. Div. 822, 103 N. Y. S. 840. Accounting between agent to collect rents and principal. Quirk v. Quirk, 155 F. 199. A court of equity will review settlements of accounts made in the orphan's courts for fraud or mistake. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 215. Equity will set aside a guardian's account obtained in a court of law by misconduct. Scoville v. Brock, 79 Vt. 449, 65 A. 577. See, also, Creditors' Suit, 9 C. L. 849.

90. Against nuisances. Inhabitants of Houlton v. Titcomb [Me.] 66 A. 733. Crematory and fertilizer plant. Laird v. Atlantic Coast Sanitary Co. [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 387. Injunction to restrain violation of building restrictions. Barton v. Slifer [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 899. Injunction against boycotting. Jonas Glass Co. v. Glass Bottle Blowers Ass'n [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 953. Injunction against picketing. Id. Enjoin breach of trust. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 239. Enjoin conspiracy to suppress competition. Spaulding v. Evenson, 149 F. 913; Evenson v. Spaulding [C. C. A.] 150 F. 517. Will restrain ticket scalpers from dealing in cut rate, nontransferable tickets issued and to be issued. Pennsylvania Co. v. Bay, 150 F. 770. Restrain combination to suppress competition. Dunbar v. American Tel. & T. Co., 224 Ill. 9, 79 N. E. 423. Enjoin use of trade name. Giragosian v. Chutjian [Mass.] 80 N. E. 647. Enjoin action at law. Benziger v. Steinhäuser, 154 F. 151. Enjoin obstruction of highway. Nelson v. Randolph, 222 Ill. 531, 78 N. E. 914. Enjoin trespass when it threatens destruction or irreparable injury. Hume v. Burns [Or.] 90 P. 1009; Bledsoe v. Robinett, 105 Va. 723, 54 S. E. 861. Injunction to hold in statu quo a deed delivered in escrow where grantor has withdrawn the deed and attempted a transfer to a third party. Wilkins v. Somerville [Vt.] 66 A. 893. See, also, Injunction, 8 C. L. 279.

91. Asher v. Uhl, 29 Ky. L. R., 396, 93 S. W. 29. A suit to redeem real estate from an admitted tax lien is not one to quiet title or remove a cloud within the rule of the Federal courts that equity is without jurisdiction of such suits against a defendant in possession. Klenk v. Byrne, 143 F. 1008. May maintain bill to quiet title where classification may be based upon the subject-matters in connection with which equitable relief may be invoked, such as relations of confidence,<sup>92</sup> and trust,<sup>93</sup> contracts<sup>94</sup> and rights arising out of contract but not resting on privity of contract,<sup>95</sup> constitutional rights,<sup>96</sup> corporations<sup>97</sup> and corporate stock and stockholders,<sup>98</sup> estates of de-premises sold to one who will not accept title by reason of adverse claim of defendant. Heffenstall v. Leng, 217 Pa. 491, 66 A. 991. In a bill to quiet title, it is necessary to allege actual or constructive possession in the complainant. Merritt v. Alabama Pyrites Co., 145 Ala. 252, 40 So. 1028. Equity will prevent the execution of a deed on the ground that it will cloud the plaintiff's title. Tax deed to the state containing a description legally sufficient to charge property with delinquent taxes. San Diego Realty Co. v. Cornell, 150 Cal. 637, 89 P. 603. See, Quieting Title, 8 C. L. 1570.

92. An unfair feature of a family arrangement may be set aside without destroying the entire settlement. No provision for the support of one not capable of understanding the arrangement should he survive others. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161. Equity will enforce contracts the consideration for which is a termination of family controversies. Belt v. Lazenby, 126 Ga. 767, 56 S. E. 81.

93. Every cestui qui trust is entitled to the aid of a court of equity to avail himself of the benefit of the trust, and the forbearance of the trustee may not prejudice him. Bill to enforce a trust created by the deposit of bonds for the benefit of claimants against the depositors. Morrill v. American Reserve Bond Co., 151 F. 305. Evidence insufficient to show that land purchased with money of a husband and standing in the name of the wife was held in trust, and not an absolute gift. Lipp v. Fielder [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 189. Beneficiary of a benefit policy who agrees with the insured to hold part of the funds for another is a trustee for such other. Clark v. Callahan [Md.] 66 A. 618; Coyne v. Supreme Conclave of Improved Order of Heptasophs [Md.] 66 A. 704. Courts of equity do not have original jurisdiction of all trusts. Clark v. Peck's Ex'rs, 79 Vt. 275, 65 A. 14. Where a deed is delivered in escrow, the grantor is as to the land a trustee for the grantee and the grantee as to the money a trustee for the grantor, and one who takes title from the grantor subsequently with notice stands in the same equity as his grantor, and will be compelled to perform the contract by a conveyance of the land. Wilkins v. Somerville [Vt.] 66 A. 893. Where a director of a company operating under a secret trade formula holds a written copy of the formula in trust, severs his connection with the company, and starts a competing company, using such formula, his act is a breach of trust which equity will enjoin. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 339. A joint stockholder is entitled to an accounting where upon the death of one member certain members operate the property under a declaration of trust and the trustees fail to divide the profits. Taber v. Breck, 192 Mass. 355, 78 N. E. 472. Evidence held to establish a mere loan, and not a voluntary trust. McKee v. Allen, 204 Mo. 655, 103 S. W. 76.

94. As to specific performance, cancellation, etc., of contracts, see supra, in this section. Equity will enforce negative covenants in a contract. Agreement to sell complainant's beer exclusively. Feigenspan v. Nizolek [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 703. Equity will take cognizance of and enforce a valid contract for the testamentary disposition of the estate of a decedent. Belt v. Lazenby, 126 Ga. 767, 56 S. E. 81.

95. Assignee of a part interest of a cestui qui trust may maintain a suit without the consent of the assignor to enforce an execution of the trust. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606.

96. Where penal ordinances injuriously affect existing property rights, their legality or constitutionality may be inquired into by a court of equity, and their execution in a proper case enjoined. Ordinance excluding the erection of baseball parks within certain limits. New Orleans Baseball & Amusement Co. v. New Orleans, 118 La. 228, 42 So. 784. Federal courts have equity jurisdiction to determine the constitutionality of state statute. Passenger rate law, St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hadley, 155 F. 220.

97. Courts of equity have jurisdiction of causes brought to enforce director's liability. Bill by receivers against directors Murphy v. Penniman [Md.] 66 A. 282. An allegation that a director is liable for illegal loans because of his failure to attend a meeting at which such loan is made is demurrable. Id. Where negotiable bonds were procured to be issued by fraud, the corporation may maintain a suit in equity against holders with notice for cancellation and to enjoin their transfer. Control of corporation obtained, and bond issued for purpose of buying up stock held by parties getting the control, at an inflated value. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Bradford, 149 F. 492. If a director violates the duties which he owes to the corporation, courts of equity will intervene. New York Automobile Co. v. Franklin, 49 Misc. 8, 97 N. Y. S. 781. A corporation or, upon its refusal, a stockholder may maintain a bill to restrain directors from conspiring to increase the capital stock in an illegal and improper manner for their personal aggrandizement. Searles v. Gebbie, 115 App. Div. 778, 101 N. Y. S. 199.

98. Stockholders may bring a bill in the Federal courts to enjoin the corporation from complying with an unconstitutional statute where after request the directors refuse to not comply with such statute. Perkins v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 155 F. 445. Where contracts made by directors are voidable, in the absence of any conspiracy or actual fraud, there is no ground upon which equity could entertain a suit by a stockholder to recover a money judgment against directors or other party to the contract. Godfrey v. McConnell, 151 F. 783. Every lawful owner of stock has a right to say that others assuming to vote shares of stock which they have no legal right to vote shall be restrained. Dunbar v. Amerl-

can Tel. & T. Co., 224 Ill. 9, 79 N. E. 423. Stockholder has right to restrain fraudulent acts against the corporation, such as an attempt to acquire control by a competitor to stifle competition. Id. Stockholder against corporation to prevent carrying out of a contract. Mitchell v. United Box Board & Paper Co. [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 938. Where a stockholder was formerly a director and knew of the practice of the directors of exchanging notes with another corporation, he is estopped from subsequently bringing suit to recover losses due to such practice. Davenport v. Crowell, 79 Vt. 419, 65 A. 557. Equity will protect minority stockholders against an unlawful adjournment for the purpose of preventing them from electing a director by cumulating their stock vote. West Side Hospital v. Steele, 124 Ill. App. 534.

99. Ewing v. Lamphere, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 187; Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 853. Equity has jurisdiction to settle estates devised by wills. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580. Equity will take cognizance of and enforce a valid contract for the testamentary disposition of the estate of a decedent. Belt v. Lazenby, 126 Ga. 767, 56 S. E. 81. A debt due an administrator from a firm of which he is a member is collectible only in equity. Strother's Adm'x v. Strother, 106 Va. 420, 56 S. E. 170.

1. Shaw v. Ward [Wis.] 111 N. W. 671. One petitioning for paving of a street is not estopped to enjoin proceedings where a change of grade is contemplated for which she has received no damages. Town of New Decatur v. Smith [Ala.] 41 So. 1028.

2. The rule that courts of equity will not enforce forfeitures is not absolute, and in cases otherwise properly cognizable in equity a forfeiture will be enforced when that is more consonant with the principles of right, justice, and morality than to withhold equitable relief. Forfeiture of lease for breach of covenant. Lindeke v. Associates Realty Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 630. Courts have no right to disregard any provisions of a contract or to save rights that are lost thereunder through the act of the party seeking relief, unless it is made to appear inequitable or unconscionable to do or not to do so. Failure to renew option on lease. Furniture & Carpet Installment House v. Berets [Utah] 91 P. 279. Equity will enforce forfeitures of mere opportunities where no property rights are lost. Failure to take up option to renew lease. Id. Equity will grant relief, where valuable rights will be forfeited according to the provisions of a contract, if reasonable compensation is made. Clause that vendee should forfeit title to land if failed to pay vendor interest and taxes. Mead v. Morse [Mass.] 80 N. E. 513. Contract permitting defendant to cut and remove timber. Time for removal expired and there was an oral agreement for more time if the defendant paid taxes which he did. Timber was not all removed and plaintiff sought to enjoin removal. Wallace v. Kelly, 148 Mich. 336,

14 Det. Leg. N. 230, 111 N. W. 1049. B. & C. Comp. § 4946, authorized an action to declare a lease of a county road forfeited. Tillamook County v. Wilson River Road Co. [Or.] 89 P. 953.

3. Suit by judgment creditor to set aside conveyance to wife as fraudulent. Farr v. Hauenstein [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 877. Evidence sufficient to sustain a decree in equity setting aside a conveyance of real estate as fraudulent. McCauley v. Shockey [Md.] 66 A. 625.

4. Enjoin obstruction of highway. Nelson v. Randolph, 222 Ill. 531, 78 N. E. 914. Abuttor may enjoin construction of street railway. Spalding v. Maccomb & W. I. R. Co., 225 Ill. 585, 80 N. E. 327. Violation of contract between city and street railway company permitting the use of the city's streets by the company. Asbury Park & S. G. R. Co. v. Neptune Committee Tp. [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 790. Equity will enjoin a municipality from ordering the removal of tracks laid by a street railway under authority of a municipal ordinance granting that right. Id. Equity will not intervene to restrain the use of streets by the defendant where the complainant's right to occupy is being contested by the city. Tacoma R. & Power Co. v. Pacific Trac. Co., 155 F. 259. Contract to lay tracks between turnpike company and street railway will be specifically enforced as to location by an injunction. Chester & Darby Telford Road Co. v. Chester D. & P. R. Co., 217 Pa. 272, 66 A. 358.

5. A contract between husband and wife with reference to the wife's separate property can be enforced against him by her in equity when properly established. Wife furnished money to husband for purchase of land, title to be in her. Title was taken in husband's name and upon his death she brought a bill against the children to establish her right to funds. Cross v. Iler, 103 Md. 592, 64 A. 33. Equity has exclusive jurisdiction of contracts entered into between husband and wife because of their incapacity at law to contract together. Separation agreement. Buttlar v. Buttlar [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 485.

6. Conspiracy to suppress competition will be enjoined. Dunbar v. American Tel. & T. Co., 224 Ill. 9, 79 N. E. 423; Spaulding v. Evenson, 149 F. 913; Evenson v. Spaulding [C. C. A.] 150 F. 517. Enjoin ticket scalping. Pennsylvania Co. v. Bay, 150 F. 770. Use of trade name. Giragosian v. Chutjian [Mass.] 80 N. E. 647. Co. v. Case Threshing Mach. Co.* [C. C. A.] 154 F. 365. Enjoin unfair competition in foreign countries. Vacuum Oil Co. v. Eagle Oil Co., 154 F. 867. Equity will enjoin an intentional taking away from a plaintiff of his contractual rights. Defendant sought to have an exposition company break its contract with plaintiff to be its sole New England agent to secure patronage. Beekman v. Marsters

tition,<sup>10</sup> receivers,<sup>11</sup> vexatious litigation,<sup>12</sup> wills,<sup>13</sup> frauds,<sup>14</sup> and mistake<sup>15</sup> are subjects

[Mass.] 80 N. E. 817. Will restrain use of a trade name which misleads the public. Eureka Fire Hose Co. v. Eureka Rubber Mfg. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 870.

7. May prevent the use of a judgment procured by fraud as a defense. Scoville v. Brock, 79 Vt. 449, 65 A. 577. Equity will enjoin the collection of a judgment which in justice and good conscience should not be collected. Brown v. Pegram, 149 F. 515. That decrees probating wills are not subject to review in equity for fraud or mistake, and that this is an exception to the general rule, see Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. Enjoin enforcement of judgment obtained by fraud. Ewing v. Lamphere, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 187. Notice of hearing not given defendant as agreed. Steyermark v. Landau, 121 Mo. App. 402, 99 S. W. 41. Bill to set aside guardian's account. Scoville v. Brock, 79 Vt. 449, 65 A. 577. Equity will set aside judgments obtained without jurisdiction. Barron v. Feist, 51 Misc. 589, 101 N. Y. S. 72. Equity has power to stay and prohibit the enforcement of a legal judgment, even one regularly rendered by a court of general jurisdiction, when the inequity of enforcing it is made to appear. Clark v. Chase, 101 Me. 270, 64 A. 493. The remedial powers of a court of equity may be exercised as well after a judgment in an action at law as before. If it should transpire that equitable rights do exist which the court at law is unable to enforce by reason of their limitations, the remedial powers of this court may be extended to such conditions as well after as before judgment. Continental Compressed Air Co. v. Franklyn [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 897. Equity will assume jurisdiction where it appears that a judgment was obtained by perjured testimony and that it was impossible to prove it at the trial, and will restrain the operation of the judgment. Sargent Co. v. Baublis, 127 Ill. App. 631. Equity will relieve against judgments and grant a new trial resting upon fraud where the party seeking relief is free from negligence and the prevailing party has secured an illegal and unconscionable advantage. Id.

8. Equity has jurisdiction to establish a lost deed. White v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 1017.

9. Alabama Great So. R. Co. v. Prouty [Ala.] 43 So. 352. A court of equity at common law has jurisdiction to restrain nuisances [Inhabitants of Houlton v. Titcomb [Me.] 66 A. 733], and has specific jurisdiction in some states by statute [Rev. St. c. 79, § 6, par. 5] (Id.) May enjoin operation of a crematory and fertilizer plant the operation of which amounts to a nuisance. Laird v. Atlantic Coast Sanitary Co. [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 387. Equity does not always as a matter of course afford relief by way of injunction in cases of nuisance where a right of action exists. Royce v. Carpenter [Vt.] 66 A. 888. Equitable jurisdiction regarding private nuisances is based upon the ground of restraining irreparable mischief. Backing up of water owing to maintenance of a dam (Id.), or of preventing vexatious litigation (Id.), or a multiplicity of suits (Id.); but to justify the interposition of a court of equity there must be such an injury as from its nature is not susceptible of being adequately compensated by damages at law (Id.), or such as from its continuance or permanent mischief must occasion a constantly recurring grievance which cannot be otherwise prevented but by an injunction (Id.). Action resulting in permanent injury to neighbor will be restrained. Desberger v. University Heights Realty & Development Co. [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 1060.

10. Equity has jurisdiction over suits for partition between tenants in common. § 5770, Kirby's Digest. Lester v. Kirtley [Ark.] 104 S. W. 213.

11. Equity may appoint a receiver against the legal title in a strong case of fraud combined with danger to the property. Horner v. Bell [Md.] 66 A. 39. Appointment of receivers of corporations for the protection of stockholders and creditors. Culver Lumber Co. v. Culver [Ark.] 99 S. W. 391.

12. Royce v. Carpenter [Vt.] 66 A. 888; Marsden v. White [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 181.

13. Court of equity has no jurisdiction to construe a will. Clark v. Peck's Ex'rs., 79 Vt. 275, 65 A. 14. A party cannot come into a court of equity for the mere purpose of obtaining a judicial construction of the provisions of a will where there is only a legal estate and no trust. Gillen v. Hadley [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 1087. Where a bill in equity prays for the determination of the title to real estate under provisions of a will, and also for an accounting by trustees, the bill makes a case within the jurisdiction of the court independent of the title to real estate. Id. That decrees probating wills are not subject to review in equity for fraud or mistake, and that this is an exception to the general rule, see Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. Equity has jurisdiction to settle estates devised by will. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580. Under N. J. Chancery Act 1907, § 79 (P. L. 1902, p. 537), in an action in chancery if a question arises as to the validity of a devise, and the reading of the clause in question does not settle the matter, the court may hold the bill until an action at law is brought to establish the title, or it may refer the question to a court of law for an opinion. Gillen v. Hadley [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 1087.

14. Where a fraudulent sale has been made by a trustee, the beneficiary may pursue the proceeds without attempting to disturb the transfers. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161. Equity will avoid a contract or sale where there has been a material misrepresentation which was an inducement to contract, deceived the vendee, and caused damage. Farwell v. Colonial Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 480. To rescind for fraud, one must act promptly or he waives his right. Purchase of mines. Richardson v. Lowe [C. C. A.] 149 F. 625. A complaint which alleges that an old woman was fraudulently induced by her son-in-law, a lawyer, and a probate judge to repudiate her husband's will and take under the law states a cause of action entitling her to avoid her election. Whitesell v. Strickler, of equity jurisdiction concurrent, however, with that of law. New Jersey equity courts have a general jurisdiction in cases of fraud as well where there is a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law as in other cases.<sup>16</sup> The courts may interfere to prevent a wrong of a repeated and continuing character<sup>17</sup> or which occasions damages which are estimable only by conjecture and not by an accurate standard.<sup>18</sup> Equity has power to declare deeds absolute on their faces to be mortgages.<sup>19</sup> A bill in equity cannot ordinarily be sustained for the mere violation of a municipal ordinance<sup>20</sup> unless it would amount to a nuisance if done.<sup>21</sup> Equity will sustain a bill to determine the ownership of a fund for the payment of damages to land where the findings of the board of assessors allowing damages is not reviewable.<sup>22</sup> Equity has no power to control the exercise of legislative functions.<sup>23</sup>

§ 3. Laches and acquiescence.<sup>24</sup>—Independently of the statute of limitations, courts of equity have inherent power to refuse relief after undue and inexcusable delay.<sup>25</sup> Such delay is called laches and will bar equitable relief.<sup>26</sup> Laches is a question of fact to be determined by the circumstances of each case.<sup>27</sup> It will be used

167 Ind. 602, 78 N. E. 845. Equity jurisdiction does not extend to false representations as to character and quality of property, nor the title thereto, which involve no breach of trust or contract. Aberthaw Const. Co. v. Ransome, 192 Mass. 434, 78 N. E. 485.

15. Equity will relieve against the consequences of inadvertence and mistake. A lessee for a term of ten years, with an option to renew upon six months' notice, failed for nineteen days to give such notice, being abroad and unable to return earlier. The lessor suffered no damage by delay and the lessee had built up a big business. Equity would relieve. Doepfner v. Bowers, 53 Misc. 7, 102 N. Y. S. 920. Reform deeds for mistakes. Graham v. Carnegie Steel Co., 217 Pa. 34, 66 A. 103; Martin v. Smith [Me.] 65 A. 257. Judgments obtained by mistake may be set aside. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. A decree of distribution is subject to review in equity upon a showing that it was procured by fraud or mistake. Id. A judgment may be set aside for mistake of the court or of the injured party. The amount named $10,000 in a will mistaken for $2,000. Id.

24. See 7 C. L. 1347.

25. That statutes of limitation in actions at law have been enacted does not necessarily give a party invoking equity the full statutory time in which to do so. Clark v.

Chase, 101 Me. 270, 64 A. 493. In an action to quiet title it was held that the statute limiting actions to a period of thirty years did not apply. Haarstick v. Gabriel, 200 Mo. 237, 98 S. W. 760. Where a married woman and not subject to the statute of limitations fails to assert her title to land but watches the defendant improve the same for ten years, she is guilty of laches. Bucher v. Hohl, 193 Mo. 320, 97 S. W. 922.

26. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind.] 81 N. E. 71. Where a deed to secure a debt was not recorded and no attempt made to assert a lien under it for 9 years, and meantime other parties had secured interests therein, equity will not aid. Sturdivant v. Cook [Ark.] 98 S. W. 964. Stockholders of a mining corporation who had the means of knowledge but who have not actually investigated the levying of an assessment must act promptly if they desire to arrest the consequences of such levy. Jones v. Bonanza Min. & Mill. Co. [Utah] 91 P. 273.

27. Whether a court will sustain a demurrer to a bill on the allegation of laches is a matter of discretion. Stevenson v. Markley [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 135. No precise limit of time can be defined within which a bill to rescind a contract for fraud should be brought, and what is a reasonable time lies within the discretion of the court to say in each case. Suit to rescind lease seven years after it was made was not barred. Garrett v. Finch [Va.] 57 S. E. 604.

Illustrations. Conduct Amounting to Laches. Accounting: Where wards wait nine years after the coming of age of the youngest and until the guardian is dead before attempting to question his accounts. Clark v. Chase, 101 Me. 270, 64 A. 493. Where a person negotiating with a corporation agreed to turn over to it the model of a machine if he were made manager and later it was turned over to another corporation, the first mentioned corporation cannot, after a lapse of more than three years, maintain an action for an accounting for profits earned by use of the model. New York Automobile Co. v. Franklin, 49 Misc. 8, 97 N. Y. S. 781.

Cotenants: Where a tenant redeems from a mortgage sale, two years is a reasonable time for the exercise by his cotenants of their right to elect to contribute and reinstate their title, and if they do not attempt to do so for ten years they are barred by laches. Savage v. Bradley [Ala.] 43 So. 20.

Fraudulent conveyance: Where a judgment creditor of a husband failed to file a bill to set aside a conveyance to his wife for thirteen years. Farr v. Hauenstein [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 377.

Estates of decedents: Where complainants as heirs knew at the time of a sale of realty that one of the executors furnished nearly half the purchase price but take no steps for four years towards ascertaining the facts but allow the purchaser to remain in possession. Brinkerhoff v. Brinkerhoff, 226 Ill. 550, 80 N. E. 1056. Devise to wife for life remainder to nephew. The wife made no claim of dower and after her death the nephew entered possession. None of the heirs for thirteen years claimed any interest in the property which changed hands several times without any notice of any claims and increased in value. One purchasing the claim of the heirs. Warner v. Hamill [Iowa] 111 N. W. 939. Where a testator died in 1894 and his widow in 1900 and his will was not offered for probate until 1906, a claim for support of the widow by one of the executors. Lester v. Kirtley [Ark.] 104 S. W. 213. Nine years' delay by adult heirs to have administrator appointed to try priority between vendor's lien and unrecorded deed. Chisholm v. Crye [Ark.] 104 S. W. 167. Three years' delay in procuring probate of a second will held laches barring bill to review decree based on probate of former will. McGowan v. Elroy, 28 App. D. C. 188.

Highways: Where an electric company has for six years been engaged in moving its wires from poles to conduits without complaint from any one, equity will not decree a removal of the conduits. Allegheny County Light Co. v. Booth, 216 Pa. 564, 66 A. 72.

Lease by beneficiary: Bill to cancel release of lease by lessee acting as trustee. The trustee operated a leased coal mine for ten years at a loss and released the remaining term to the owners. This bill brought five years later. Mexican Nat. Coal, Timber & Iron Co. v. Frank, 154 F. 217.

Mine: In a suit to recover a decedent's interest in a mining claim it appeared that the plaintiff had notice 12 years prior to bringing suit that the interest of the decedent had been forfeited by law, that the plaintiff did not know when application for patent had been made or when it was unnecessary to continue the assessment work on the claim, that since patent issued plaintiff had not paid taxes and had not been on the claim for several years. Kavanaugh v. Flavin, 36 Mont. 133, 88 P. 764.

Municipality: Failure by taxpayers to object to the construction of a bridge until six months after work was commenced by the contractor. Melstrell v. Ellis County Com'rs [Kan.] 91 P. 65. Where a defendant in a suit to quiet title by one claiming under a will filed a claim to the premises in 1904 averring his right under a partnership agreement made in 1880, and the testator died in 1895, and the defendant knew the executors were holding adversely and further the testator's wife died in 1900 leaving the premises to trustees, and five years prior to the testator's death both resided in the same city, and the trustees and the testator and testatrix had paid taxes under color of title for many years. Samuel & Jessie Kenney Presbyterian Home v. Kenney [Wash.] 88 P. 108.

Street railway: Acquiescence by a landowner and his representatives in the operation of a street railway for a long time. Taylor v. Erie City Pass. R. Co., 212 Pa. 487, 61 A. 992.

Title to land: Where a married woman not subject to the statute of limitations fails to assert her title to land and watches the defendant improve and occupy the same for ten years. Bucher v. Hohl, 199 Mo. 320, 97 S. W. 922. Where the obligee of a title bond assigned the same to his son, half absolutely and half under a secret trust to support the father, and the son assigned the bond to a creditor and the obligee concurred by vacating the land, the obligee after many years cannot invoke equity to aid in revoking his election, especially where the value of the land has changed. Sheffield v. Hurst [Ky.] 104 S. W. 350.

Trusts: Failure to establish a secret trust in regard to a mining claim for fourteen years. Reed v. Munn [C. C. A.] 148 F. 787. Where a bill was brought to establish a trust and for an accounting forty-six years after creation of alleged trust and both original parties were dead, it was impossible for equity to do complete justice and the court will refuse relief. Elliott v. Clark [Cal. App.] 89 P. 455.

Conduct Not Amounting to Laches. Action at law: Where payments of royalties were made by a publisher to parties other than the author but not upon a written assignment, the publisher is not guilty of laches in failing to require such parties to establish their rights until sued by the administrator for a second payment. Benziger v. Steinhauser, 154 F. 151. Where a judgment was obtained by default against a plaintiff because he was not served with process and he filed a motion to set it aside, which was denied, he is not barred by laches in bringing a suit in equity to restrain its enforcement two years after it was rendered, but one month only after motion to set aside was denied. National Metal Co. v. Greene Consol. Copper Co. [Ariz.] 89 P. 535.

Creditor's suit: Delay of four years does not bar the prosecution of a creditor's bill. Bennett v. Boshold, 123 Ill. App. 311.

Deed: Where trustees seek to reform a deed for a misdescription of land, it is not laches not to have brought a bill for seven years and until the mistake was discovered, for one is not bound to discover mistakes by party executing. Travelli v. Bowman, 150 Cal. 587, 89 P. 347. Failure to bring bill to declare a deed in reality a mortgage for a long period held not to constitute laches barring relief. Davisson v. Smith, 60 W. Va. 413, 55 S. E. 466.

Estate of decedents: Where heirs by concealment of a will obtained an order of distribution of an estate and the legatees on discovering the will brought proceedings to probate it, a suit in equity four years later, and while the probate proceedings were still pending, to have the order of distribution set aside and to protect the funds was not barred by laches. Ewing v. Lamphere, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 187. Failure to request setting aside of sale of to promote but never to defeat justice,<sup>28</sup> and is particularly favored as a defense where the situation of parties has changed and new rights arisen during the delay.<sup>29</sup> A party cannot be chargeable with delay until his rights have been repudiated, or until he has knowledge or notice of the same.<sup>30</sup> In suits between parties standing land fraudulently made by executors held not to amount to laches. Beall v. Dingman, 227 Ill. 294, 81 N. E. 366.

Husband and wife: The failure of either husband or wife to prosecute each other in equity during the continuance of the marital relation is not evidence of laches in the absence of special equitable circumstance. Bennett v. Finnegan [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 239. It has never been policy of law to apply doctrine of laches with nice particularity between husband and wife. Hudson v. Wright, 204 Mo. 412, 103 S. W. 8.

Lease: Bill to rescind lease for fraud after a lapse of seven years is not barred. Garrett v. Finch [Va.] 57 S. E. 604.

Nuisances: Where adjoining owners do not object to the erection of a garbage crematory nor to its operation for several years while the amount of offensive matter dealt with was small, they are not guilty of laches preventing relief from a much greater use of offensive matter amounting to a nuisance. Laird v. Atlantic Coast Sanitary Co. [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 387. Where work on a ditch which would constitute a nuisance was begun several years prior to suit some distance from the complainant's land, but complainant did not know just what defendant contemplated until within a few days of bringing suit, there was no laches. Desberger v. University Heights Realty & Development Co. [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 1060.

Partition: There is no laches in the failure to bring partition proceedings by one tenant in common against another for a year after ouster, though the defendant had taken possession for more than ten years. Stern v. Selleck [Iowa] 111 N. W. 451. Evidence held insufficient to show that tenants in common were guilty of laches in bringing bill for partition. Oneal v. Stimson, 61 W. Va. 551, 56 S. E. 889.

Restrictions: Where a property owner sought to enjoin the violation of restrictions placed upon buildings erected on adjoining property, he was not guilty of laches in allowing the building to become partially erected before filing his bill. Barton v. Slifer [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 899.

Title to property: In a suit to quiet title under a judgment for back taxes brought in 1902, where a defendant acquired title in 1899, he is not barred by laches from asserting that the taxes had been improperly assessed. Manwarring v. Missouri Lumber & Min. Co., 200 Mo. 718, 98 S. W. 762.

Trusts: Where land was purchased in trust for complainants, the understanding being that it would be transferred to complainants on payment of purchase price, it is not laches to bring a bill six years later where upon application by complainants to have land transferred to them the purchaser refuses except at an advance. Whetler v. Sprague, 224 Ill. 461, 79 N. E. 667.

28. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145.

29. Delay of many years and until after death of guardian before questioning his accounts. Clarke v. Chase, 101 Me. 270, 64

A. 493. Heirs did not assert claim to land for several years, during which time it changed hands several times and increased in value. Warner v. Hamill [Iowa] 111 N. W. 939. Bill to establish a trust and for an accounting forty-six years after it was created and after the death of both original parties. Elliott v. Clark [Cal. App.] 89 P. 455. Bill to restrain work by municipality six months after contractor had commenced work (Meistrell v. Ellis County Com'rs [Kan.] 91 P. 65), but a party seeking to enforce a building restriction is not barred by allowing the structure to become partially erected (Barton v. Slifer [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 899). Bill to cancel release of mining lease after a lapse of five years and after the acquiring of interests by others. Mexican Nat. Coal, Timber & Iron Co. v. Frank, 154 F. 217. Where a married woman not subject to the statute of limitations fails to assert her title to land and watches the defendant improve and occupy the same for ten years, she is guilty of laches. Bucher v. Hohl, 199 Mo. 320, 97 S. W. 922. The rule refusing aid to stale claims is especially applicable where the difficulty of doing entire justice arises through the death of the principal participants, or of a witness, or by reason of the original transactions having become so obscured by time as to render the ascertainment of exact facts impossible. Kavanaugh v. Flavin, 35 Mont. 133, 88 P. 764. Six years' delay in commencing suit after discovery of tax title in agent of mining claim which was greatly enhanced in value meanwhile by conduct of holder of tax title. Steinbeck v. Bon Homme Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 333.

30. Insanity of complainant and ignorance of the necessity for taking steps. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161. Where property was sold by brokers and fraud on their part was not discovered for six months and a bill was filed four months later, this delay in seeking relief is not laches for which the bill should be dismissed. Dawson v. Leschziner [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 449. Receiver of a corporation brought a bill to set aside a mortgage given by it to the wife of an officer. Practically all of the stockholders were ignorant of this fact and had been deceived by the officer. Voorhees v. Nixon [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 192. Where a bill to recover profits of a trustee was filed six years after the alleged profits were made, the complainant is not guilty of laches where the facts were not known until shortly before the bill was brought. Bay State Gas Co. v. Rogers, 147 F. 557. Where a woman was misled by her husband, one of the executors of a will, as to the amount of her legacy and did not learn of her mistake until after a divorce and shortly thereafter began an action to vacate the probate decree, she was not guilty of laches. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. In suits to enforce a trust against an express trustee, the courts do not follow analogies of statutes of limitation at law.

in a purely fiduciary capacity it is not favored,<sup>31</sup> nor in cases of fraud.<sup>32</sup> Laches is no defense to a prayer for an injunction to restrain future misconduct,<sup>33</sup> nor will it act as a bar where the defendant voluntarily concedes the complainant's right.<sup>34</sup> Where laches has commenced to run against an ancestor, it continues to run against a minor heir the same as the statute of limitations.<sup>35</sup> The defense of laches may be taken advantage of by demurrer where laches is apparent on the face of the bill,<sup>36</sup> and if not apparent on the face of the bill it is a defense to be presented by plea or answer.<sup>37</sup> In some jurisdictions the defense of laches must be set up by plea or answer.<sup>38</sup>

Excusable delay.<sup>39</sup>—Delay may be excused by lack of knowledge or notice of the wrong.<sup>40</sup> Ignorance of the law will not protect from the operation of the rule of laches.<sup>41</sup> Delay may be excused by negotiations looking to a settlement.<sup>42</sup> Where circumstances enforce delay, laches does not result.<sup>43</sup> The burden is on the plaintiff to excuse his laches.<sup>44</sup>

Application of analogous statutes of limitation.<sup>45</sup>—While statutes of limitation do not in terms extend to suits in equity, it is true that equitable remedies must be sought without unreasonable delay, and that in analogy to such statutes courts of equity ordinarily apply rules of limitation which will bar remedies in equity that are barred at law,<sup>46</sup> but if unusual conditions or extraordinary circumstances make it

Purchase of land for benefit of another. Whetsler v. Sprague, 224 Ill. 461, 79 N. E. 667.

31. A claim by a beneficiary is not barred by laches where there has been no settlement between beneficiary and trustee. Miller v. Saxton, 75 S. C. 237, 55 S. E. 310. Guardian and ward. Stevenson v. Markley [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 185.

32. Acts complained of, namely the fraudulent certification of tickets by ticket brokers, are in violation of law and a fraud on complainant. Pennsylvania Co. v. Bay, 150 F. 770.

33. Unfair competition. Acquiescence in the use of similar trade name will not prevent injunction. Dr. Fahrney & Sons Co. v. Ruminer [C. C. A.] 153 F. 735.

37. King v. Dekle [Fla.] 43 So. 586.

38. So as to afford the complainant an opportunity to amend his bill. Spalding v. Macomb & W. I. R. Co., 225 Ill. 585, 80 N. E. 327.

39. See 7 C. L. 1350.

40. Insanity of complainant and ignorance of his rights. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161. Fraud of brokers in making sale not discovered. Dawson v. Leschziner [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 449. Stockholders ignorant of acts of officers. Voorhees v. Nixon [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 192. Profits by a trustee. Bay State Gas v. Rogers, 147 F. 557. Woman misled by husband. Learned of her rights after divorce. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. Where by fraud a widow was induced to repudiate her husband's will by a lawyer and a probate judge and was told not to tell that the judge had advised her, her laches were sufficiently excused in not bringing the suit until she learned of the fraud. Whitesell v. Strickler, 167 Ind. 602, 78 N. E. 845. Laches does not apply when the person seeking such relief has no knowledge of the necessity of taking any action to protect his interests and is not chargeable with negligence, and the rights of the third parties have not been prejudiced by delay. Insanity of complainant and ignorance of the necessity of taking any steps. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161.

41. Warner v. Hamill [Iowa] 111 N. W. 939.

42. Where one who has purchased stock of a corporation upon false representations demands a rescission and return of his money but allows the corporation time within which to make good and does not bring suit for a year, during which time no other rights have intervened, he is not guilty of laches. Cox v. National Coal & Oil Inv. Co., 61 W. Va. 291, 56 S. E. 494.

43. Where long delay in proceeding was due to the fact that party was unable to obtain necessary proof to enable him to proceed, and it appears that he used due diligence in procuring it, he is not guilty of laches. Roth v. Burnham, 126 Ill. App. 222. Where premises are occupied by widow of deceased as a homestead, delay in selling it to pay debts of estate until the homestead rights expired does not constitute laches. Miller v. Hammond, 126 Ill. App. 267.

44. Where neglect and abandonment of claims to land are shown with equitable circumstances in favor of the defendant from which laches may be imputed to the plaintiff, the burden rests on him to excuse such laches. Warner v. Hamill [Iowa] 111 N. W. 939. Fact that material allegation as to reason for delay in bringing suit was not denied by answer held not to have relieved plaintiff from supporting it by proof. Shuld v. Wilson, 225 Ill. 336, 80 N. E. 259.

45. See 7 C. L. 1350.

46. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161. Payment of taxes for a long period inequitable to allow the prosecution after a briefer,<sup>47</sup> or to forbid its maintenance after a longer period than that fixed by statute, the chancellor will not be bound by the statute but will determine the extraordinary case in accordance with the equities which condition it,<sup>48</sup> and delay less than the time required for the running of the statute may constitute laches.<sup>49</sup> The question whether or not the statute of limitations applies to bills in equity is an open one in some states,<sup>50</sup> but in matters affecting continuing trusts the statutes do not begin to run until after their termination.<sup>51</sup>

of time but less than that provided for in a statute of limitations, together with an increased value in the land, would not ordinarily bar the owner because of laches. Updegraff v. Marked Tree Lumber Co [Ark.] 103 S. W. 606. Bill to cancel tax sale where defendants had paid taxes for five years. Statute of limitations gave title after seven years' payment. Fact that land had greatly increased in value did not require application of doctrine of laches. Earle Imp. Co. v. Chatfield [Ark.] 99 S. W. 84. Courts of equity are not bound by, but they usually act or refuse to act in, analogy to the statute of limitations relating to actions of law of like character. Steinbeck v. Bon Homme Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 333. A state statute of limitations limiting all actions to four years except to recover real estate will be applied to a bill to cancel a release of a mining lease and the suit held barred by laches. Mexican Nat. Coal, Timber & Iron Co. v. Frank, 154 F. 217. Under ordinary circumstances a suit in equity will not be stayed on account of laches before, and it will be stayed after, the analogous statutes of limitations at law. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. A suit by a widow to rescind her election to repudiate the will and take at law because of fraud may be brought at any time within the six years limited by statute, provided she give sufficient excuse for laches. Whitsell v. Strickler, 167 Ind. 602, 78 N. E. 845. Where the remedies are concurrent equity will follow the law and refuse to enforce a claim barred by the statute of limitations. Carey-Lombard Lumber Co. v. Daugherty, 125 Ill. App. 258.

47. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. Independently of any limitation prescribed for guidance of courts of law, equity may in the exercise of its own inherent powers refuse relief where it is sought after undue and unexplained delay, and where injustice would be done by granting the relief prayed for in the particular case. Sturdivant v. Cook [Ark.] 98 S. W. 964. When a suit is brought within the time limited by the analogous statute, the burden is on the defendants to show from the face of the bill or from their answer that extraordinary circumstances exist which require the application of the doctrine of laches in order to secure a just result. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. A purely money demand which would not be barred by the statute of limitations at law would not be concurrently barred in equity unless there were some peculiar basis in reference thereto. Bay State Gas Co. v. Rogers, 147 F. 557. Radical changes in the condition and value of property often induce them to apply the doctrine of laches in shorter time than that fixed by statutes. Six years' delay in commencing suit after discovery of tax title in agent of mining property which was greatly enhanced in value meanwhile by conduct of holder of tax title. Steinbeck v. Bon Homme Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 333. That statutes for limitations of action have been enacted does not necessarily give a party invoking the equity powers of the court the full statutory time in which to do so. Action nine years after right accrued and not brought until the death of the other party. Clarke v. Chase, 101 Me. 270, 64 A. 493. Delay for a time less than the period of limitation does not amount to laches unless it occasions or may be presumed to occasion a wrong or prejudice to the other party. Failure to petition for the vacation of an allowance granted in divorce proceedings. Cohen v. Cohen, 150 Cal. 99, 88 P. 267. Parties dead. Every fact known and possession acquiesced in for years. Potter v. Potter's Receiver [Ky.] 101 S. W. 905.

48. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. Where in an action to quiet title plaintiff had held legal title for nearly forty years, but no one had ever been in possession or paid taxes for more than thirty years, plaintiff's action was not barred by the thirty year statute of limitations. Haarstick v. Gabriel, 200 Mo. 237, 98 S. W. 760. Applied only when equity demands. In a suit to enforce a trust in land purchased in the name of another, the court will not follow the analogy of the statute of limitation. Whetsler v. Sprague, 224 Ill. 461, 79 N. E. 667.

equity cases in Federal courts is governed by Federal law and uniform rules, and is the same no matter in what state the court is sitting.<sup>56</sup> Federal courts when sitting in equity administer the principles of equity as they prevail in these courts without regard to any state legislation as to the remedy.<sup>57</sup> Cases construing equity rules are cited below.<sup>58</sup>

§ 5. Parties.<sup>59</sup>—It is the general rule that all persons interested in the subject of an equitable action should be made parties to prevent a multiplicity of suits and to secure a final determination of their rights.<sup>60</sup> Equity recognizes three classes of parties, namely: formal,<sup>61</sup> substantial,<sup>62</sup> and necessary.<sup>63</sup> A bill will be dismissed for

56. Demurrer and answers filed to whole bill according to the state court practice on appeal to Federal court ordered that demurrers be stricken from record. Bryant Bros. Co. v. Robinson [C. C. A.] 149 F. 321.

57. Equity will cancel usurious mortgage without an averment in the bill of an offer to pay amount of loan with legal interest as provided by state usury laws. Olds v. Curlette, 145 F. 661.

58. Federal equity rule 67, as amended May 17, 1893, does not authorize the court to require an unwilling party to adduce his evidence orally in open court on final hearing, though it may at its discretion permit such procedure. Hyams v. Federal Coal & Coke Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 970. A witness cannot refuse to answer questions where his testimony is being taken orally before an examiner under rule 67 on the ground that it is immaterial or irrelevant, although there may be cases where the evidence is so clearly outside the issues that he will be protected by the court. New England Phonograph Co. v. National Phonograph Co., 148 F. 324. Where a bill charges fraud and prays discovery, a plea to the whole bill under Federal equity rule 32 must be supported by an answer denying the fraud and giving discovery. Jahn v. Champagne Lumber Co., 152 F. 669. Where an order fixing the time and place of hearing is made by consent, if one side fail to appear at such time and place, the court cannot hear the case unless fifteen days' notice has been given under Rule 15 of the Court of Chancery. In re Rule Chancery Ct. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 982.

60. Sarasota, Ice, Fish & Power Co. v. Lyle & Co. [Fla.] 43 So. 602. Action to set aside deed. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161. Where the aid of equity is sought to determine confused boundaries, all persons interested, whether their estates are present or future, must be made parties. Watkins v. Childs [Vt.] 66 A. 805. Bill to remove cloud on title. Grantor of a deed in the chain of title not a party. Gibson v. Tuttle [Fla.] 43 So. 310. Where equity has jurisdiction to administer estates, all persons interested in the administration of an estate in any manner must be made parties. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580.

61. Perkins v. Hendryx, 149 F. 526.

62. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606. Parties who would have an interest in the result and ought to be joined if they are within the jurisdiction, but whose interests are separable so that full equity may be done to the parties joined. Perkins v. Hendryx, 149 F. 526. In a suit for discovery against a corporation, it is proper to join the officer from whom information is sought. Nixon v. Clear Creek Lumber Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 805. If a proper party is incapable of being made a party because beyond the jurisdiction or if his joinder would oust jurisdiction of the court as to the other parties, the suit may proceed without him and the decree will not affect his interests. One who assigned his rights is not an indispensable party. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606. To a bill of review to vacate a decree in favor of a partnership where the partnership has been dissolved and one of the partners deceased, his administrators are substantial but not necessary parties and if not brought in because out of the jurisdiction the bill will not be dismissed but will proceed against the other partners. Perkins v. Hendryx, 149 F. 526.

63. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606. Those whose absence would prevent a determination consistent with equity and good conscience. Perkins v. Hendryx, 149 F. 526. Indispensable parties are those whose claims are so interwoven with those of other defendants that no decree could be made by the court without affecting their rights. A decree declaring complainant owner of certain lands and restraining others from asserting title does not affect the claims of still others against the property. North Carolina Min. Co. v. Westfeldt, 151 F. 290. Bill to enjoin operation of a railroad the terminus of which was at the sawmill of a company having an interest in the railroad's right of way. The company a necessary party. Arkansas S. E. R. Co. v. Union Sawmill Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 304. In a bill to declare the deed of an intestate a mortgage, his heirs are necessary parties. Wynn v. Fitzwater [Ala.] 44 So. 97. Necessary parties are all persons having a material interest in the litigation, or who are legally or beneficially interested in the subject-matter of the suit, and whose rights or interests are sought to be concluded thereby. Id. Minors are necessary parties and must be specifically named as defendants and not as wards of a guardian named. Oneal v. Stinson, 61 W. Va. 551, 56 S. E. 889. Where heirs bring a bill to set aside a judgment recovered against an administratrix as such who has long since been discharged, she is not a necessary party. King v. Deckle [Fla.] 43 So. 586. If parties will not be in any way affected by a decree, they are not necessary parties. Nichols v. Nichols, 79 Conn. 644, 66 A. 161.

want of jurisdiction over nonresident defendants who are necessary parties.<sup>64</sup> and it cannot be cured by dismissing the suit as to such parties;<sup>65</sup> but where the court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties except such as are not indispensable, a bill may be dismissed as to the parties not indispensable and retained as to the others.<sup>66</sup> There must be a community of interests among defendants to warrant their being joined in a single suit in the absence of fraud.<sup>67</sup> The question of misjoinder of defendant can only be raised by the party claiming to be wrongfully joined.<sup>68</sup> The objection as to parties may be raised by demurrer,<sup>69</sup> but the court may notice without objection by demurrer the failure to join necessary parties,<sup>70</sup> and consideration of the question of misjoinder of parties and causes of action may properly be left to a final hearing and not be taken up on demurrer.<sup>71</sup> It is not misjoinder of parties to make two parties defendant who appear to have title to land in question despite the fact that the interests of one defendant are identical with that of the plaintiff.<sup>72</sup>

Intervention.<sup>76</sup>—The right of intervention in equity proceedings is governed by the general rules of equity,<sup>77</sup> and to entitle a party to intervene he must appear to have a sufficient interest in the subject-matter of the suit,<sup>78</sup> and where intervention is attempted after hearing, the question of granting or refusing leave to do so is in the discretion of the court.<sup>79</sup> Parties cannot intervene and make charges making a

In a suit to recover profits made by one of three trustees, the others need not be joined where there is no claim that he shared the profits with the others. Bay State Gas Co. v. Rogers, 147 F. 557.

65. Oneal v. Stimson, 61 W. Va. 551, 56 S. E. 889.

66. North Carolina Min. Co. v. Westfeldt, 151 F. 290.

67. Accounting by stockholder, corporation president and secretary joined. Schell v. Alston Mfg. Co., 149 F. 439.

68. Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 553. Defendant cannot demur because other parties are improperly joined. Herman v. Essex County Chosen Freeholders [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 742. In equity a defendant cannot demur merely because other parties are improperly joined as defendants, but such objection can only be made by defendants improperly joined as to whom bill will be dismissed on their demurrer or at hearing. Id.

69. Where an injunction is sought by a voluntary association, the bill being brought in the name of such association and not in the names of the members, the question of the capacity to sue in the associate name should be raised by demurrer or a motion to dissolve the injunction. *Flannery v. 74. On a petition for divorce where property rights are involved, it is necessary to bring in the heirs as parties if the husband dies. Strickland v. Strickland, 80 Ark. 451, 97 S. W. 659. Where after the filing of a bill by a stockholder to enjoin the consolidation of two roads a preliminary injunction is denied and consolidation is effected, the bill cannot be preserved for granting other relief even if it states grounds therefor, unless other parties rendered necessary by the consolidation are brought in. Bonner v. Terre Haute & I. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 985. Assignee of a part interest of a cestui que trust without the consent of the assignor may maintain a suit to enforce an execution of the trust upon condition that other part owners are made parties, but the failure to join these parties who are not indispensable is curable by amendment bringing in other owners or showing an excuse for their absence. Rogers v. Penobscot Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 606.

75. Where a defendant not named in a bill is summoned in and appears and demurs to the allegations of the bill raising practically the same issue as the defendant named in the bill, the plaintiffs are not required to amend their bill in order to obtain a judgment upon that issue binding upon such defendant. Pinney v. Winsted, 79 Conn. 606, 66 A. 337.

77. Day v. Bullen, 127 Ill. App. 155.

78. The interest which will entitle a party to intervene in equity must be in the subject-matter of the litigation, and such that he will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment. Day v. Bullen, 127 Ill. App. 155. Holder of bonds secured by deed of trust may intervene in suit to foreclose deed of trust. Parsons v. Little, 28 App. D. C. 218.

79. Whether or not after a cause has been taken under advisement leave should new cause.<sup>80</sup> Other parties cannot complain that the intervention should have been by supplemental bill.<sup>81</sup>

§ 6. Pleading. A. General rules.<sup>82</sup>—Every intendment is to be taken against the pleader.<sup>83</sup> Questions not put in issue by the pleadings will not be considered.<sup>84</sup> A defendant is not entitled to further time to plead over where he has had an opportunity to plead twice and has been overruled and has argued his case in court and had judgment rendered against him.<sup>85</sup>

(§ 6) B. Original bill, petition, or complaint.<sup>86</sup>—All facts material to the plaintiff's case must be averred positively and with certainty.<sup>87</sup> The bill must formally, or in some plain, distinct way, makes parties plaintiff and defendant, otherwise it is fatally defective.<sup>88</sup> A bill should not join an action at law and in equity.<sup>89</sup> Where a bill is filed in two aspects, relief must be allowable of the same general character in each aspect.<sup>90</sup> A bill brought by a corporation and signed by counsel is sufficiently authenticated and need not be sealed by the corporate seal.<sup>91</sup> A party is not required to file with his bill the original papers which form the basis of his claim but may aver their contents and file copies as exhibits at his leisure.<sup>92</sup> Verification of a bill by one of several complainants is sufficient.<sup>93</sup> A bill to establish a vendor's lien for the price of land need not be verified.<sup>94</sup> Question of lack of proper verification cannot be raised for the first time on appeal.<sup>95</sup> Verification by one of several complainants is sufficient under Mass. Equity Rule 2.<sup>96</sup> The allegations of a bill are controlled by exhibits annexed thereto.<sup>97</sup>

be granted a third party to intervene is within the discretion of the chancellor. Wills v. Babb, 123 Ill. App. 511.

Robnett*, 105 Va. 723, 54 S. E. 861. Allegations when considered with reference to certain plans held sufficient. Spalding v. Macomb & W. I. R. Co., 225 Ill. 585, 80 N. E. 327. Bill in equity seeking to set aside a decree rendered in another suit as a cloud on title which does not allege fraud in obtaining decree, or that complainant's title was equitable, or that the lands were wild or that he was in possession of them, shows no ground for equity. Hopes v. Goldman an allegation of fact within the defendant's knowledge, of which discovery is sought, is sufficient though made on information and belief.<sup>2</sup> In suit against a fiduciary for an accounting, the plaintiff is not required to make allegations with the same certainty and definiteness as in other suits.<sup>3</sup> If the allegations set out the case intended to be made, with certainty, this is sufficient.<sup>4</sup> Where a complaint fails to state a cause cognizable in equity but the answer makes out a cause, equity acquires exclusive jurisdiction of the entire suit.<sup>5</sup> The allegations of the bill must show a prima facie case in support of complainant's claim,<sup>6</sup> and a prima facie case is sufficient to sustain jurisdiction in the absence of an answer or affidavit denying the averments of the bill.<sup>7</sup> It is better practice to aver the residence of parties and it is sometimes necessary to do so in order to show jurisdiction,<sup>8</sup> but where the complainant is within the jurisdiction of the court and the defendant appears unconditionally, the failure to aver residence of the parties is immaterial.<sup>9</sup> It is not necessary to state the age of the parties as they are presumed to be sui generis.<sup>10</sup> No matters should be alleged by way of recitation in a bill of complaint, which are not material, on which an issue can be made and evidence taken as essential to the cause of action.<sup>11</sup> An allegation made in an ambiguous or alternative form must be taken most strongly against the pleader.<sup>12</sup>

Multifariousness.<sup>13</sup>—There is no absolute standard by which to determine whether or not a bill is multifarious and it is impossible to state a rule applicable to all cases.<sup>14</sup> The question is largely within the discretion of the court and is dependent to a very considerable degree upon the particular facts of each case.<sup>15</sup>

The essence of multifariousness is the improper blending of distinct demands or independent matters in one bill,<sup>16</sup> and it may consist of the misjoinder of parties<sup>17</sup> or causes of action<sup>18</sup> or both.<sup>19</sup> In cases involving the question of fraud a great latitude is allowed in pleading, provided one connected scheme to defraud be averred.<sup>20</sup> The combination of a legal and equitable demand in a bill does not ren-

Pegram*, 149 F. 515. Bill to restrain several separate organizations of ticket scalpers from dealing in cut rate tickets is not multifarious. Pennsylvania Co. v. Bay, 150 F. 770. A bill to restrain operation of a railroad rate law was not multifarious because it joined the attorney general and the railroad and warehouse commission. Perkins v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 155 F. 445. A bill to recover a claim in complainant's own right and also as administrator against a partnership in which he was a partner is not multifarious. Strother's Adm'x v. Strother, 106 Va. 420, 56 S. E. 170. A bill for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of property fraudulently conveyed is not multifarious because many claimants were joined, they being the various alleged fraudulent transferees. Horner-Gaylord Co. v. Miller, 147 F. 295. A bill to remove administration of an estate from the probate to the chancery court is not multifarious because it joins defendant as administrator and personally. Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 853.

18. Held multifarious: Bill to enforce certain contracts and to set aside others for the transfer of land. Cecil v. Karnes, 61 W. Va. 543, 56 S. E. 885. Father filed bill against children claiming money and real estate standing in deceased mother's name. Hutchinson v. Dennis, 217 Pa. 290, 66 A. 524. Bill sought to have a trust declared in land and to have alimony decreed to complainant. Prickett v. Prickett, 147 Ala. 494, 42 So. 408. Bill to restrain enforcement of several distinct contracts made by defendant with separate and distinct parties is multifarious. Williams v. Harper, 127 Ill. App. 619.

Held not multifarious: An action for an accounting by a president of property coming into his custody is a single cause of action. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. McCurdy, 118 App. Div. 822, 103 N. Y. S. 840. A creditor's bill seeking to reach the property of a dissolved corporation and to have the stockholders make payment of amounts due on their subscriptions if necessary to pay debts is not multifarious, the object of the bill being to reach the corporate assets. Jahn v. Champagne Lumber Co., 147 F. 631. A bill by a corporation alleging conspiracy and praying the cancellation of notes and the return of a payment made by its secretary without its knowledge to his codefendants is not multifarious. A bill by a stockholder seeking distribution of assets and also to have two-thirds of the stock declared void is not multifarious. Wheeling Ice & Storage Co. v. Connor, 61 W. Va. 111, 55 S. E. 982; Central Land Co. v. Sullivan [Ala.] 44 So. 644.

19. Bill by a stockholder against a corporation and its president and secretary charged misconduct and prayed for an accounting, the reissue of smaller stock certificates, ratification of certain stock dividends, the issue of another stock dividend, an accounting of damages incurred, that complainant's stock be declared free of a lien, for an injunction from selling further stock, and that a receiver be appointed. Multifarious as to both subject-matter and parties. Schell v. Alston Mfg. Co., 149 F. 429. Where there are two distinct claims, one of which interests some of the plaintiffs and some of the defendants to the exclusion of the others, and the other claim involves the remaining plaintiffs and defendants but not those interested in the first claim, the bill is multifarious. White v. North Georgia Elec. Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 33. A bill having three distinct grievances against two railroad companies may be multifarious. Alabama Great So. R. Co. v. Prouty [Ala.] 43 So. 352.

20. Bill to cancel contract for fraud. Garrett v. Finch [Va.] 57 S. E. 604. A series of acts involving different conveyances and fraudulent judgments made to different parties at different times may properly be the subject of one bill to reach the property for creditors providing only that it is alder it multifarious unless the causes of action are wholly distinct and each one is sufficient as stated in the bill.<sup>21</sup> Where a bill charges all the defendants with responsibility for all alleged improper acts, it is not multifarious.<sup>22</sup> Causes of action between complainant and defendant arising out of the same instrument may be dealt with in one suit.<sup>23</sup> It is not indispensable that all the defendants should have an interest in all the matters in litigation.<sup>24</sup> The mere fact that part of the relief sought is not appropriate does not render a bill multifarious.<sup>25</sup> Where a bill was multifarious for joining two distinct parties but was dismissed as against one by consent, it was relieved of the defect of multifariousness.<sup>26</sup> Where a demurrer to a bill on the ground of multifariousness is sustained, the bill is dismissed without opportunity to amend.<sup>27</sup> A hearing on the merits waives multifariousness,<sup>28</sup> and so does consent to the issuance of a preliminary injunction.<sup>29</sup>

Prayer.<sup>30</sup>—A party seeking equitable relief must specifically demand it unless the nature of the cause itself indicates that the relief sought is equitable.<sup>31</sup> Prayers for relief must be supported by allegations averring the necessity therefor,<sup>32</sup> and prayer for improper relief does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to grant other relief properly prayed.<sup>33</sup> In a case of doubt a complainant may so frame his bill as to entitle him to an alternative prayer for relief.<sup>34</sup>

(§ 6) C. Amended and supplemental bills, complaints, or petitions.<sup>35</sup>—Bills may be amended and the allowance of such amendment is within the discretion of the court,<sup>36</sup> and a decree will not be set aside for refusal of an amendment unless it

leged that the same was done pursuant to a single and forbidden scheme. Wright v. Simon, 118 App. Div. 774, 103 N. Y. S. 911. A bill is not multifarious which joins a corporation, its stockholders, and other parties to a fraudulent sale where conspiracy is alleged. Andrews Co. v. National Bk. of Columbus [Ga.] 58 S. E. 633. Execution returned nulla bona, bill brought to set aside transfers as fraudulent. Regester v. Regester, 104 Md. 359, 65 A. 12. Bill for rescission of a lease alleged that complainant had been induced to contract by fraudulent representations, warranties, and statements of the lessors and their agents, and that he would not have contracted but for his faith in these representations. Garrett v. Finch [Va.] 57 S. E. 604.

Bill to reach property fraudulently conveyed joined with the debtor a number of grantees to whom separate parts of his property had been transferred. Regester v. Regester, 104 Md. 359, 65 A. 12.

25. Andrews Co. v. National Bk. of Columbus [Ga.] 58 S. E. 633. An averment of the general liability of a city upon bonds in connection with an equitable cause created by statute does not render the bill multifarious, for if a good equitable cause of action has been stated in the bill no error of judgment in framing a prayer which confuses legal distinction will conclude the court. Olmstead v. Superior, 155 F. 472.

36. Scheuer v. Chloupek, 130 Wis. 72, 109 N. W. 1035. Bill to quiet title failed to aver no other suit pending. Court allowed 20 days within which to amend. Corona Coal & Iron clearly appears that such discretion was abused.<sup>37</sup> Amendments may be allowed at almost any stage of the proceeding,<sup>38</sup> and in Maryland either party in equity upon application to the court has the right to amend the pleadings at any time before final decree, upon a payment of such costs as the court may direct, so as to bring the merits of the controversy fairly to trial.<sup>39</sup> Amendments, however, to the substance of the bill itself or for putting new matter in issue to meet allegations in the answer will not be allowed.<sup>40</sup> Plaintiff may amend his bill so that he may obtain complete relief<sup>41</sup> so that his pleading will conform to his proof<sup>42</sup> to meet a defense pleaded,<sup>43</sup> to acquire jurisdiction,<sup>44</sup> to make the bill coincide with an exhibit,<sup>45</sup> to bring in new parties.<sup>46</sup> Where an amended bill strikes out before answer all averments of the original bill, no matter contained in the original bill is before the court.<sup>47</sup> When, on a motion to dismiss, it appears from the bill that amendments can be made which would entitle the complainant to relief, such amendments will be considered as made and the motion be denied,<sup>48</sup> but such amendments when made should not have to contain new and independent facts.<sup>49</sup> Where, however, a

Where none of the claims in a bill for title to real estate have been sustained by the evidence, an amendment asking that an agreement be treated as a mortgage and that the complainant be allowed to redeem it after the debts it was given to secure have been barred by the statute of limitations is properly refused. McKenna v. Houlihan [R. I.] 66 A. 834.]

37. Refusal of amendment after trial when necessity of amendment was pointed out at commencement thereof. Scheuer v. Chloupek, 130 Wis. 72, 109 N. W. 1035.

38. Amendment after evidence all in. Filston Farm Co. v. Henderson & Co. [Md.] 67 A. 228. Original bill for an injunction at time of hearing of prayer for preliminary injunction presented only a cause of action at law, and complainant was allowed an amendment supplying the necessary allegations. Spaulding v. Evenson, 149 F. 913; Evenson v. Spaulding [C. C. A.] F. 517. After demurrer to the whole bill has been sustained. Scoville v. Brock, 79 Vt. 449, 65 A. 577.

39. Amendment to a bill to enforce mechanics' lien making specific the vague and general allegations allowed after the taking of testimony. Filston Farm Co. v. Henderson & Co. [Md.] 67 A. 228.

40. Complaint for infringement of patent in Eastern dist. of New York. Plaintiff after appearance and answer sought to amend its bill by alleging infringement elsewhere in the United States. Western Wheeled Scraper Co. v. Gahagan, 152 F. 648.

41. Plaintiff may amend his bill by filing additional counts necessary to determine his rights at law. City of Manchester v. Hodge, 73 N. H. 617, 64 A. 23.

42. Where a bill against a former administrator and his wife of an estate is based on the theory that such administrator abstracted $20,000 from the estate which was used by his wife in buying two mortgages of $10,000 each, and the evidence showed that only $15,000 of this money was used in buying the mortgages, the other $5,000 being used for other purposes, the plaintiff was entitled to amend his bill in such a way as to claim alternative relief against the defendants for the $5,000 to be enforced against the interest of the wife in the mortgage represented by the borrowed money she had paid therefor. Sargent v. Wood [Mass.] 81 N. E. 901. Federal courts sitting in equity always have the power to permit amendments of the pleadings to conform them to the proof after the hearing. Bankruptcy petition. In re Broadway Sav. Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 152.

43. Where a discharge in bankruptcy is pleaded to a bill, it is properly met by an amendment stating facts to which bankruptcy is no bar. Judgment recovered more than four months prior to filing of petition. Brunson v. Rosenheim [Ala.] 43 So. 31.

44. Amendments to a bill on the hearing for a preliminary injunction may be made before answer and demurrer under equity rule 28. Amendment alleging a threatened continuance of acts to be enjoined, also an amendment joining further defendants. Evenson v. Spaulding [C. C. A.] 150 F. 517. Whether an original bill contained equity is not material under an inquiry to determine whether an amendment constitutes a departure. Alabama Terminal & Imp. Co. v. Hall [Ala.] 44 So. 592. After a demurrer to the whole bill has been sustained. Scoville v. Brock, 79 Vt. 449, 65 A. 577.

45. An exhibit is part of a bill and in the case of a discrepancy between the two the court may go by the exhibit and allow an amendment to the bill. Bill stated judgment rendered Sept. 23, 1905, and execution thereon Dec. 4, 1905. Judgment annexed to bill showed it was issued Oct. 18, 1905, and execution issued Dec. 6, 1905. Richardson v. Ebert, 61 W. Va. 523, 56 S. E. 887.

46. See § 5 supra, Bringing In New Parties.

47. Where original bill set out a will and amended bill set out a new theory of recovery and an amendment thereto specifically abandoned all allegations of original bill, the will was not before the court. Johnson v. Potterfield [Ala.] 43 So. 228.

48. Merritt v. Alabama Pyrites Co., 145 Ala. 252, 40 So. 1028.

demurrer to a multifarious bill is sustained, the bill is dismissed without an opportunity to amend.<sup>50</sup> An amendment must be restricted to the matter allowed in an order granting leave to amend.<sup>51</sup> Parties who have appeared in a suit in equity have a reasonable time to demur or answer an amended pleading.<sup>52</sup> An amendment to a bill in a Federal court does not entitle a defendant who has answered the original bill to demur, plead, or answer anew to the entire bill,<sup>53</sup> but where a party fails to appear and answer within the time limited, he waives his rights and is not entitled to notice of amendments unless the substance of the original petition has been radically changed, in which case equity might grant an opportunity to answer the amended bill.<sup>54</sup> A complaint which is sworn to may be amended to include subjects appearing to be germane when the amendment is accompanied by an affidavit excusing the failure to include the matter in the original bill, and when such amendment is necessary to make the pleading sufficient in furtherance of justice.<sup>55</sup> The refusal to allow such amendments is an abuse of discretion which may be reviewed on appeal.<sup>56</sup> Statutes provide in some states for amendments as a matter of right before final decree, subject only to the limitation that the amendment shall not entirely change the parties or cause of action.<sup>57</sup> Under Federal court practice the defendant cannot require the complainant to amend his bill.<sup>58</sup>

A supplemental bill<sup>59</sup> is proper where it is necessary to bring in matters arising pending the suit,<sup>60</sup> even though it turns the action into one for damages.<sup>61</sup> Discovery may be had on a supplemental bill if the facts are material and incidental to relief sought and within defendant's knowledge.<sup>62</sup> Where the demurrer to an entire bill has been sustained and the complaint amends, the defendant is entitled to answer anew and waive answer to the original bill.<sup>63</sup>

59. See 7 C. L. 1359.

60. A supplemental bill is usually brought because of some change in the rights or status of the parties which must be brought in and which could have been covered by an amendment to the original bill. Bill to restrain enforcement of passenger rate law. While pending another statute was passed and was properly introduced by a supplemental bill. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Hadley, 155 F. 220. Where equity had jurisdiction to enforce a lien for taxes, complainant might file a supplemental bill to recover for taxes and interest the claim for which accrued after filing original bill. Michigan Iron & Land Co. v. Nester, 147 Mich. 599, 14 Det. Leg. 47, 111 N. W. 177. Dissolution of partnership and accounting. Napier v. Westerhoff, 153 F. 985.

61. A plaintiff who has filed a bill to enjoin the sale of lands under an execution obtained by fraud, and a preliminary injunction having been refused has paid the execution to prevent a sale, may file a supplemental bill alleging such payment and pray for damages in lieu of an injunction. Everett v. Tabor, 127 Ga. 103, 56 S. E. 123.

65. Where a defendant has equities arising out of the subject-matter of litigation which entitle him to affirmative relief against other parties thereto, he may as a matter of right present such equities by way of crossbills. Venner v. Denver Union Water Co. [Colo.] 90 P. 623. Where a defendant in a suit for an accounting, etc., under an oil lease answers and files a cross bill alleging that others made claim to the oil lands and praying that their rights may file a cross bill against a co-defendant<sup>66</sup> and, while a cross bill filed against a co-defendant must rest on considerations of equity, a different and more liberal rule applies when the cross bill is filed against the complainant.<sup>67</sup> To grant or refuse permission to file a cross bill<sup>68</sup> and the time for filing the same are matters within the discretion of the court,<sup>69</sup> and, unless it affirmatively appears that the party against whom the bill was filed was prejudiced by reason of its being filed at the time it was, the discretion of the court will not be disturbed.<sup>70</sup> Cross bill should not introduce new and distinct matters<sup>71</sup> or new parties.<sup>72</sup> Although the general rule is that a defendant is entitled to no affirmative relief without a cross bill,<sup>73</sup> yet a cross bill is not entertained when the party filing it can obtain the full relief to which he is entitled in the original suit.<sup>74</sup> A cross bill for affirmative relief must contain within itself sufficient averments to entitle the cross complainant to the relief asked for, or for some equitable relief.<sup>75</sup> A cross bill must not be founded solely on matters which can properly be availed of by way of answer.<sup>76</sup> The dismissal of the original bill generally carries with it the cross bill, and this is especially true when the subject-matter is simply defensive.<sup>77</sup> The court may strike out part of a Brast* [C. C. A.] 149 F. 149. Where a complaint is brought upon an ordinance granting a location of tracts upon payment of certain sums, but no reference to compensation is made in the original bill, a cross bill asking for an accounting may be filed and is not subject to the objection that it introduces new matter not within the scope of the original suit. *Asbury Park & S. Defendant could not file a cross bill praying removal by plaintiff of obstructions in another part. Peters v. Case [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 733. In a suit to quiet title to an alleged appropriation of a water right, a cross bill claiming priority might be filed by one defendant against a codefendant. Rickey Land & Cattle Co. v. Wood [C. C. A.] 152 F. 22. In foreclosure proceedings a cross bill by one defendant against another for professional services is not related to the subject-matter of the suit, and cannot be maintained. Novak v. Novak [Iowa] 111 N. W. 10. Third parties and codefendants can only be brought in where the cause of action affects the subject-matter of the principal action. By statute, § 6088, Kirby's Digest. Bill to quiet title. Defendants sought by cross bill to recover other lands in hands of other persons. Naler v. Ballew [Ark.] 99 S. W. 72.

72. New parties cannot be introduced into a cause by cross bill. Newton v. Gage, 155 F. 598. A cross bill is bad which sets up matter necessary to a complete determination of the cause, but yet goes further and brings in new parties with distinct interests and an independent contract on which a separate suit for specific performance could be maintained. Cecil v. Karnes, 61 W. Va. 543, 56 S. E. 885.

Upon a bill for an injunction, affirmative relief by way of foreclosure should not be granted to a defendant upon an answer in the absence of a cross bill. Smith v. Connor [Fla.] 44 So. 340.

74. Foreclosure suit by holder of two of several notes secured by a mortgage. Affirmative relief may be decreed to defendants holding other notes without cross bill. Winkleman v. White, 147 Ala. 481, 42 So. 401. A cross bill is not necessary in a bill for an accounting, for it is implied that there is an uncertain balance to be determined which the plaintiff will pay if it is found to be against him. Downes v. Worch [R. I.] 65 A. 603. Where defendant who is merely a nominal party and against whom no relief is prayed, files a cross bill, and if a decree is rendered on the original bill he will get all the relief he is entitled to, it is proper to dismiss the cross bill. Dunbar v. American Tel. & T. Co., 224 Ill. 9, 79 N. E. 423.

75. Miller v. Rickey, 146 F. 574.

76. In a suit to enjoin diversion of water, a cross bill merely alleging priority in the defendant and diversion by complainant, and praying affirmative relief, sets up only matter of defense which may properly be taken by answer, and is demurrable. Miller v. Rickey, 146 F. 574.

cross complaint which is bad.<sup>78</sup> To go to trial without answering a cross complaint is an election to treat the allegations of the cross complaint as issues in the case,<sup>79</sup> and the failure to answer is waived by going to trial without objection.<sup>80</sup> A demurrer is the appropriate form of objection to an answer in the nature of a cross bill setting up new matter.<sup>81</sup>

Form.<sup>92</sup>—A demurrer must not introduce contrary or additional averments to those alleged in the bill. Such a demurrer is known as a "speaking demurrer" and will be overruled.<sup>92</sup> Two or more parties desiring to demur separately to the same pleading on the same ground may unite in the same paper.<sup>94</sup>

Effect of, and procedure on, demurrer.<sup>95</sup>—A demurrer admits the truth of the material facts of the bill, but denies that they are sufficient to authorize the relief prayed for,<sup>96</sup> and it also admits all facts that can be implied from the allegations by reasonable intendment,<sup>97</sup> but it admits only facts well pleaded.<sup>98</sup> Where facts are alleged on information and belief, a demurrer merely admits the information and belief, and not the facts,<sup>99</sup> but if the allegation based on information and belief is an allegation which according to the rules of equity may be properly charged, it is admitted by demurrer.<sup>1</sup> A demurrer does not admit an allegation of lack of signature to a certain notice where such notice is annexed to and made a part of the bill and is there shown to be signed as a matter of fact.<sup>2</sup> A general demurrer goes to the whole bill<sup>3</sup> and will be overruled if, upon the whole bill, the complainant is entitled to any equitable relief.<sup>4</sup> General demurrers are not favored when interposed to a bill charging fraud and conspiracy.<sup>5</sup> Where a bill is good in part and bad in part, the demurrer should not be to the whole bill but should specify what is alleged to be bad,<sup>6</sup> and, where questions of great importance are presented, the court will give allegations a liberal construction.<sup>7</sup> A bill is properly dismissed upon demurrer which fails to show that the complainant is entitled to relief,<sup>8</sup> and the entire case is, strictly speaking, out of court; but by rules of court it is now generally established that the court will permit the orator to make out a new case by amending his bill,<sup>9</sup> in which case the defendant is entitled to answer anew and waive answer to the original bill.<sup>10</sup> As a general rule a plea or answer to the whole or part of a bill, the whole of which is demurred to, overrules the demurrer.<sup>11</sup> Where a demurrer has been filed but no mention is made thereof in the final decree, it will be treated as having been overruled,<sup>12</sup> and where a demurrer is not expressly passed upon, but hearing is had on the demurrer and the relief prayed for is granted, the demurrer is impliedly overruled.<sup>13</sup> Where upon appeal a demurrer is sustained, the bill fails and all subsequent proceedings go with it.<sup>14</sup> Where a demurrer to a bill is joint and several, it may be good as to one and bad as to the other,<sup>15</sup> but where it is joint it must be good as to each of them.<sup>16</sup> Allowance of right to answer over an overruling of demurrer rests in discretion.<sup>17</sup> A demurrer may be amended.<sup>18</sup> Where a joint demurrer is overruled, an appeal by one defendant is irregular, for appeal should be taken in the name of both defendants;<sup>19</sup> such irregularity is waived

by the joinder in error of the plaintiff on the record.<sup>20</sup> No ground for demurrer can be considered on appeal which was not assigned in the trial court unless the trial court was without jurisdiction.<sup>21</sup>

bill and setting up new matter in avoidance will not dissolve an injunction.<sup>58</sup> An answer filed by a person not properly a party is without effect.<sup>59</sup> Answer waives demurrer as a general rule.<sup>60</sup> An answer by one of several co-defendants which goes to the whole bill and under which plaintiff is unable to show that he is entitled to relief causes a dismissal of the whole bill and plaintiff is not entitled to a decree against defaulting defendants.<sup>61</sup>

As evidence.<sup>62</sup>—Where oath to answer has been waived, the answer though sworn to has only the evidential weight of an ex parte affidavit upon motion for preliminary injunction.<sup>63</sup> New matter set up in an answer and not responsive to the bill is not evidence.<sup>64</sup> An answer to a bill of discovery under oath has certain probative force, while an answer not under oath becomes a mere pleading.<sup>65</sup> Defendant cannot avail himself of facts specifically denied in the answer.<sup>66</sup>

Admissions.<sup>67</sup>

(§ 6) H. Replication, exceptions, and motions.<sup>68</sup>—By filing replication to a plea the complainant admits the sufficiency of the facts stated as a defense, the only question being as to their truth.<sup>69</sup> Where an answer setting up new matter is filed and an issue made by a replication thereto, it is incumbent upon the defendant to make out a prima facie case before plaintiff must make proof of the allegations of the bill.<sup>70</sup> An exception to a bill of complaint is in some respects like a demurrer. If it go to the whole bill and any part of it be good, the exception cannot be sustained, and if it be taken to a whole paragraph any part of which is good, the exception must be denied as a whole.<sup>71</sup> The sufficiency of the answer may be tested by exceptions,<sup>72</sup> but the exception must not be too broad nor should it be sustained if the answer would thereby be mutilated or falsified.<sup>73</sup> A motion to strike is proper where the bill itself raises a doubt as to the complainant's right to equitable relief,<sup>74</sup> and it may be treated as essentially a demurrer to the bill.<sup>75</sup> Motions against answers are confined to striking out parts of the answer as insufficient, obtained by fraud. If injunction dissolved would be sold to innocent purchasers for value and lost. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Bradford, 149 F. 492.

(§ 6) *J. 93. Tipton v. Tipton [Tenn.] 104 S. W. 237.

§ 8. Abatement and revival.<sup>94</sup>—A suit in equity abates upon the death of a defendant who has appeared, so far as proceedings against him are concerned, and if he were an indispensable party, all proceedings must be suspended till his representatives have been brought in; but if his interest wholly ceases by his death, or wholly survives to one of the other parties, no revivor is necessary,<sup>95</sup> but where a decree determining the property rights of the parties was rendered during the lifetime of both, the subsequent death of one, after submission on appeal, does not abate the suit and such decree is reviewable on appeal.<sup>96</sup>

§ 9. Dismissal. Voluntary dismissal.<sup>97</sup>—A complainant has an absolute right to dismiss his suit without prejudice at any time before hearing on payment of costs and without terms, where the dismissal will deprive the defendant of no substantial right acquired since suit, and he is not entitled to and has not prayed for any affirmative relief.<sup>98</sup> Where, however, other parties have acquired rights, the complainant no longer has power to control the suit and it is proper to refuse a non-suit.<sup>99</sup> Where an agreement to dismiss is made out of court and has never been acted upon by the court and no one properly representing the complainant attempts to discontinue the case, the court is not called on to give the agreement effect, but the defendant will be left to the proper proceeding by cross bill.<sup>1</sup>

Involuntary dismissal.<sup>2</sup>—A motion to dismiss lies for failure to join necessary parties,<sup>3</sup> want of jurisdiction,<sup>4</sup> because of adequate remedy at law,<sup>5</sup> pendency of another suit involving the same issues,<sup>6</sup> and because of the passing of the necessity or possibility of relief.<sup>7</sup> By statute in some states if the complainant has commenced proceedings in the wrong court it is no ground for dismissal, but the same should be transferred to the proper court.<sup>8</sup> If the appellate court is of the opinion that on final hearing a bill must be dismissed, it should make final disposition of the cause at once despite the fact that the appeal is from an interlocutory order.<sup>9</sup> Part of a bill which is not indispensable may be dismissed and the rest retained.<sup>10</sup> Where a bill shows equity, any defects should be reached by demurrer and not by a motion to dismiss.<sup>11</sup> Courts are not required in all cases to dismiss a bill because a person appears upon both sides of the record.<sup>12</sup> A dismissal of a bill for want of equity where the equity of the bill is directly challenged is as proper in vacation as in rulings upon the admissibility of evidence.<sup>26</sup> While the finding of a chancellor in directing a verdict by a jury will be deferred to somewhat, yet the appellate court reserves the right to review the evidence and determine whether the chancellor came to the right conclusion.<sup>27</sup> The finding of the jury upon one issue properly submitted will not be affected by the improper submission of other questions.<sup>28</sup> The matter of referring a case to a master is generally within the discretion of the court<sup>29</sup> and, if a cause has been sent to a master, the court is not bound by the master's report,<sup>30</sup> and even where it is adopted the parties are not deprived of a hearing before the court.<sup>31</sup> The order should not be made until all the issues are properly made up.<sup>32</sup> A trial of the main issue should first be had before the court, which being disposed of and it then appearing that an accounting is necessary, it may be provided for in the interlocutory decree.<sup>33</sup> If the party at whose instance a reference is made does not have the order of reference executed within the required time, it is within the discretion of the chancellor to dismiss the bill.<sup>34</sup> Courts of equity may infer such facts from a master's report as necessarily or fairly result therefrom.<sup>35</sup> A master's finding approved by the court and not against the manifest weight of evidence is conclusive on appeal<sup>36</sup> unless fraud or corruption is shown, there being evidence to sustain the findings.<sup>37</sup> It is within the discretion of the court to allow exceptions to a master's report at the hearing,<sup>38</sup> and in passing on exceptions to a master's report a judge may cause issues to be framed and submitted to the jury if the facts depend upon conflicting and doubtful testimony.<sup>39</sup> The report of a master is not subject to exceptions where it simply follows the decree directing the reference and makes a report based on a finding contained in such decree.<sup>40</sup> In the absence of exceptions to a report, the only question open on appeal is whether the decree was warranted by the pleadings and report,<sup>41</sup> for the appellate court will review the evidence contained in the record, determine what is competent, defendant upon the issues submitted is not error if the finding is authorized by the evidence, for in effect this is a finding of the chancellor of his own motion. Southern Bk. of Fulton v. Nichols, 202 Mo. 309, 100 S. W. 613.

and make its own conclusions.<sup>42</sup> Where a decree appointing a master to hear evidence and report his findings to the court did not require a report of the evidence, his findings of fact are final.<sup>43</sup> A master need not report all the facts on which an ultimate finding is based even though the findings be a conclusion resulting from mixed questions of law and fact.<sup>44</sup> It is not necessary that an account decreed in a suit in equity should be stated by a master, but it is within the discretion of the court, if for any reason it deems it proper to do so, to state the account itself.<sup>45</sup> Exceptions should be definite and specific.<sup>46</sup> A motion to recommit a case to a master and reopen it for further testimony should be addressed to the court<sup>47</sup> and is a matter within the discretion of the chancellor.<sup>48</sup> Where a cause is re-referred to a master to hear evidence on a specific matter evidence of other matters is properly excluded.<sup>49</sup> A master's report will be liberally construed in aid of the relief awarded.<sup>50</sup>

Decree.<sup>63</sup>—The relief afforded by a decree in equity must conform to the pleadings,<sup>64</sup> the relief sought,<sup>65</sup> and the proof.<sup>66</sup> A decree not supported by any pleading in writing is void.<sup>67</sup> A decree rendered in a suit in which all persons in interest are not specifically made parties is null and void.<sup>68</sup> Where no answer has been filed nor decrees taken pro confesso, a submission for final decree is premature.<sup>69</sup>

Effect and construction.<sup>70</sup>—The plain and unambiguous terms of a decree cannot be extended or contracted by construction in the absence of proof to a reasonable certainty that such was the purpose of the court.<sup>71</sup> A decree granting an injunction will not be construed on application for such construction, but only upon proceedings requiring its construction and application to acts alleged to be done or omitted under it.<sup>72</sup> Where no appeal is taken and a bill of review is denied, all matters within the pleadings and jurisdiction of the court expressed in a decree are res judicata.<sup>73</sup> A judgment on the merits is conclusive between the parties not only as to every matter offered but as to every admissible matter which might have been offered to sustain or defeat the claim or demand,<sup>74</sup> but, where two or more defendants make issues with the plaintiff, a judgment determining those issues in favor of the defendants settles between them no fact that might have been, but was not, put in issue by proper pleading.<sup>75</sup> The effect of a decree is limited by the pleadings and proof.<sup>76</sup> A decree dismissing a bill is a final decree, and not a mere order for a decree.<sup>77</sup> A decree which settles the rights of the parties and leaves nothing to a master but a statement of an account on a basis fixed by the decree is a final judgment.<sup>78</sup>

82. Where there is only a general prayer for relief, the court in a suit to set aside a sale of land has power to take an accounting between parties and to fix terms upon which relief is granted. Beall v. Dingman, 227 Ill. 294, 81 N. E. 366. If upon final hearing of petition for injunction it appears that the equitable relief prayed for cannot be granted because of a change of status since bringing the bill, the plaintiff may be awarded damages in lieu of the equitable relief sought. Bill to enjoin sale of land under an execution obtained by fraud. Preliminary injunction refused and, to prevent sale, plaintiff paid executions and amended his petition stating the same. This amounted to fixing his damages should he prevail. Everett v. Tabor, 127 Ga. 103, 56 S. E. 123. By code the court may grant any relief that the parties may show themselves entitled to, whether it is specifically prayed for or not, if the petition contained a prayer for general relief. Fraudulent conveyance. Decree for sale of land. Heckling v. Gehring's Ex'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 1198, 100 S. W. 824.

88. Decree granting joint use of railroad right of way. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Wabash R. Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 849.

89. A court of equity which has by mistake entered up a decree against a married woman may vacate the same upon petition filed four years later, in the absence of laches or intervention of rights of other parties. Rice v. Cummings [Fla.] 40 So. 889.

90. A decree obtained by fraud cannot be set aside by a bill of review, this must be done by an original bill in the nature of a bill of review. Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. McSherry Mfg. Co., 155 F. 524. A decree against infants will not be set aside because their guardian did not present facts readily discoverable on the ground of newly discovered evidence, though if his failure was due to gross negligence or fraud the relief would be granted. Probate records. Harris v. Bigley [Iowa] 111 N. W. 432. A bill to impeach a decree for fraud and enjoin its enforcement is not the same in purpose as an appeal, and the court rendering the decree has jurisdiction to entertain such a bill although an appeal from the decree is pending. Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. McSherry Mfg. Co., 155 F. 524. An original bill may be filed by a minor to impeach a decree for fraud or for errors of law appearing upon the face of the record. Teel v. Dunihoo, 221 Ill. 471, 77 N. E. 906. To entitle a party to relief against a decree on the ground of fraud, it must appear that he had a defense on the merits which he was prevented from interposing owing to the fraud of the prevailing party. Bill to foreclose. Venner v. Denver Union Water Co. [Colo.] 90 P. 623. By statute, infant defendants during their minority, or six months after, may maintain a bill showing such error, fraud, or surprise as entitles them to a reversal of the decree. Poling v. Poling, 61 W. Va. 78, 55 S. E. 993. Where a bill originally brought to establish a lien for rent against the proceeds of the sale of a tenant's goods is amended after trial so as to ask judgment against defendants for the amount of the rent, thus changing the action from one at equity to one at law, the defendants are entitled to have the decree set aside and have a trial by jury. Hartwig v. Iles, 131 Iowa, 501, 109 N. W. 18.

91. Suit on lost note. Statute required affidavit of loss. No affidavit. Judgment for complainant set aside by chancellor. Hudson v. Wright, 204 Mo. 412, 103 S. W. 8. A defendant by failing to move to transfer an action at law to equity waived his right to have the case heard in equity, and is not entitled to a reversal of a decree merely because the action was brought in the wrong court. Wilson v. White, [Ark.] 102 S. W. 201.

of a decree must be tested by the record as it was at the time the decree was pronounced.<sup>10</sup> The admission of testimony in a case which is tried de novo on appeal is not ground for reversal.<sup>11</sup> Under a general leave reserved for further directions, an alteration of the decree made on the original hearing cannot be made, nor a decree inconsistent with it.<sup>12</sup> A decree cannot be attacked collaterally by a party because of mistakes made by the chancellor in construing testimony,<sup>13</sup> but it may be for want of jurisdiction.<sup>14</sup> The Rhode Island Practice Act does not warrant the superior court in setting aside decrees entered by consent.<sup>15</sup>

Time for bill; laches.<sup>31</sup>—The right to file a bill of review may be lost by laches,<sup>32</sup> and where there is no limitations by statute, they should be brought within the period limited for bringing writs of error.<sup>33</sup> Laches may be excused for good cause shown.<sup>34</sup>

Grounds.<sup>35</sup>—The function of a bill of review is to obtain a reversal of a decree by the court which rendered it, either for error of law apparent on the record<sup>36</sup> or newly-discovered evidence.<sup>37</sup> It lies to review a decree on account of fraud in its procurement, but where the fraud relates to matters upon which the bill was rendered, it will lie to review the bill only on the ground of newly-discovered evidence.<sup>38</sup> In some jurisdictions a bill of review can be sustained only for errors apparent on the face of pleadings, proceedings, or decree,<sup>39</sup> and the whole record is drawn under consideration of the court and advantage may be taken of any error or irregularity, including all such as might have been urged on review.<sup>40</sup> A bill of review will not be entertained to question jurisdiction to render the decree, where the original bill was of a class of which equity has jurisdiction and no objection to the jurisdiction was made.<sup>41</sup> When the bill is for errors of law, consideration can be given to the record of the original cause only and the evidence cannot be examined and any facts averred in the bill of review inconsistent with the pleadings, and decree in the main case, can have no effect in determining the correctness of the decree.<sup>42</sup> A bill of review

tion.<sup>64</sup> Where mortgaged property escheats,<sup>65</sup> the state may not be divested of title by foreclosure without its consent.<sup>66</sup> In Kentucky a school board in cities of the first class may sue to recover land escheated from a corporation.<sup>67</sup>

ESCROWS.<sup>68</sup>

There must be an intention to surrender all present control over the instrument,<sup>69</sup> and delivery in escrow cannot be made to the grantee<sup>70</sup> or obligee.<sup>71</sup> If no time is specified for performance of conditions, a reasonable time will be implied by law.<sup>72</sup> Title does not pass until compliance with the conditions even though such conditions be in violation of the terms of the contract,<sup>73</sup> but equity will grant relief in favor of a vendee whose grantor by his conduct has disabled himself to perform, where the rights of innocent purchasers have not intervened.<sup>74</sup> If the grantor dies before delivery by the depository, a subsequent delivery relates back to that of the grantor by fiction of law,<sup>75</sup> but the doctrine of relation is inapplicable in a case where the death of the grantor renders the subsequent performance of conditions impossible.<sup>76</sup> A contract to sell and delivery of the deed in escrow does not revoke a prior specific devise of the land,<sup>77</sup> and hence if performance does not take place until after the grantor's death, the devisee takes the proceeds of the sale despite the doctrine of relation.<sup>78</sup> A subsequent return of the deed by the depository to the grantor without the consent or knowledge of the grantee and its destruction by the grantor does not deprive the grantee of his interest.<sup>79</sup> Erroneous delivery by the depository may be cured by an estoppel against a grantor who retains the consideration and recognizes the transfer.<sup>80</sup> A depository of funds is entitled to prove any facts which will defeat the depositor's claim thereto.<sup>81</sup> A second grantee pending deposit is not bound to look beyond the terms of an apparently complete escrow agreement filed with the depository,<sup>82</sup> and new conditions may not be added by parol.<sup>83</sup>

The scope of this topic is noted below.<sup>84</sup>

84. Matters relating to the descent of property under the intestate laws (see Descent and Distribution, 9 C. L. 970), the validity, probate, and interpretation of wills (see Wills, 8 C. L. 2305), testamentary trusts (see Trusts, 8 C. L. 2169), the administration of partnership property by the surviving partner (see Partnership, 8 C. L. 1261), and of community property by the survivor of the community (see Husband and Wife, 8 C. L. 122), administration on the estates of absentees (see Absentees, 9

C. L. 9), and inheritance and succession taxes (see Taxes, 8 C. L. 2058), are treated in separate articles. Matters relating to the taxation of costs (see Costs, 9 C. L. 812) and the allowance of attorney's fees (see Attorneys and Counselors, 9 C. L. 300), in actions by and against representatives have been excluded, but allowances to the representative for costs and attorney's fees incurred by him on behalf of the estate have been treated.

85. See 7 C. L. 1387.

estate of a deceased ward cannot be settled in the guardianship proceedings, but administration is necessary for that purpose.<sup>86</sup> The fact that the estate has been finally settled and the representative discharged does not prevent the subsequent issue of letters on the discovery of unadministered property belonging to the estate, or if it becomes necessary or proper for any other reason.<sup>87</sup> It has been held to be unnecessary to have a representative appointed and made a party to a suit by a legatee to subject realty in the hands of a grantee to the payment of an annuity charged on the entire estate, where there was no personalty remaining unadministered and no debts.<sup>88</sup>

In some states the heirs may, by mutual agreement, settle the estate without administration.<sup>89</sup> In others on the death of the husband without lineal descendants the wife is his sole heir, and, upon payment of his debts, if any, may take possession of his estate without administration.<sup>90</sup> In Louisiana the question whether a succession shall be placed under administration rests to a large extent in the sound discretion of the trial judge.<sup>91</sup>

86. Cannot determine validity of agreement by heirs that guardian shall have whole estate, nor whether there are any claims against it. In re Lindsay's Guardianship, 132 Iowa, 119, 109 N. W. 473.

87. Does not prevent subsequent issue of letters testamentary, or of administration, or of administration with will annexed. Otero v. Otero [Ariz.] 90 P. 601. Petition held sufficient to give court jurisdiction to appoint administrator to administer on unadministered assets, though it also prayed for vacation of order of final discharge which court had no jurisdiction to grant because term in which it was rendered had expired. Id. Order appointing administrator held not void so as to be subject to collateral attack because it also purported to revoke previous order discharging administrator, which court had no jurisdiction to do. Id.

88. Dixon v. Roessler [S. C.] 57 S. E. 203.

89. For construction and effect of agreements between interested parties in regard to distribution of estate, see § 17 A, post. Under Kirby's Dig. § 15, heirs may sue for and collect demands left by intestate without administration provided all heirs and distributees are of full age, and intestate was under no legal disability at time of his death. Chisholm v. Crye [Ark.] 104 S. W. 167. Heirs may settle estate and render administration unnecessary. In re Lindsay's Guardianship, 132 Iowa, 119, 109 N. W. 473. Rule held inapplicable to agreement made by heirs of ward before latter's death that guardian should have whole of ward's estate, particularly in proceeding to wind up guardianship in which only question was liability of guardian to estate of deceased ward. Id. Even if all persons interested in estate could, by mutual agreement, dispose of all or part of assets, held that settlement of controversy in regard to assets by one of them alone was without validity. Williamson v. Robinson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1012. In order to dispense with necessity of administration there must be no debts, heirs entitled to share in distribution must all be of full age, and must unanimously agree, either expressly or by acts, to dispense with administration. Griesel v. Jones, 123 Mo. App. 45, 99 S. W. 769.

90. Where widow as sole heir took possession of husband's estate without administration under Civ. Code 1895, § 3355, par. 1, claiming that there were no debts, held that, on suit by her to recover property claimed to have belonged to husband, requested instruction that any debt which husband might have owed, which was not known to wife and was not brought to her knowledge, would not defeat title to any of the property vesting in her, and that law only contemplated payment of such debts as were brought to her knowledge, was properly refused. Demmons v. Booker [Ga.] 57 S. E. 103.

91. Where intestate succession owes no debts save those incurred in connection with last illness, death, and burial of decedent, which are trifling compared with assets, and holders of which appear and disclaim any desire for administration, and there are no minors, administration should not be ordered at instance of one of eight major heirs who applies to be appointed administrator, even though he claims the benefit of inventory. Succession of Weincke, 118 La. 206, 42 So. 776. District court held not to have abused its discretion in holding that appointment of administrator was necessary. Miguez v. Delcambre, 118 La. 1062, 43 So. 703. Placing of succession under administration held proper, though it owed no debts, where one of heirs was resident of another state, and there were several minor heirs, and there was no opposition. Succession of Trahan, 118 La. 762, 43 So. 400. After administrator had filed his account, held too late to litigate issue as to necessity of administration, in direct action against administrator to have his appointment, and all subsequent proceedings annulled. Id.

92. See 5 C. L. 1185.

93. Probate court held to have no authority, either under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 3, §§ 11, 17, 72, or otherwise, to appoint temporary administrator or administrator pro tem on petition of legatee, to sue executrix to recover property which legatee claimed she had converted, and which executrix claimed belonged to her personally. Day v. Bullen, 226 Ill. 72, 80 N. E. 739, afg. 127 Ill. App. 155.

The jurisdiction of the various courts over proceedings to administer on the estates of Indians,<sup>1</sup> to revoke letters,<sup>2</sup> to contest or collect claims,<sup>3</sup> to sell realty,<sup>4</sup>

94. See also, Jurisdiction, 8 C. L. 579.

95. See 7 C. L. 1389.

96. Evidence held to sustain finding that domicile of decedent was in District of Columbia. Thorn v. Thorn, 28 App. D. C. 120. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2381, letters must be granted in county where, at his death, intestate was an inhabitant. Williams v. Dougherty, 39 Ind. App. 9, 78 N. E. 1067.

97. Existence of property within state is necessary to appointment of an ancillary administrator. Miller v. Hoover, 121 Mo. App. 568, 97 S. W. 210. Situs of judgment debt held place where judgment debtor resides, so that where intestate recovered judgment before he died, and judgment debtor removed to another state, ancillary administrator could be appointed in latter state to collect judgment. Id. Resident of Ohio executed deed for property in that state, but died before delivery of deed or payment of purchase price. Thereafter, and in order to perfect title, grantor's heirs who resided in Missouri conveyed property to third person, who conveyed to purchaser, and collected purchase price, out of which he paid mortgage on said property and took balance, which he admitted he held as representative of estate, into Missouri. Were creditors in latter state. Held that said balance was assets in Missouri authorizing appointment of administrator in that state. Turner v. Campbell [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 119. Interest of nonresident decedent in trust estate in process of settlement in court having jurisdiction of subject-matter and trustee held property within state authorizing appointment of administrator. Rev. Laws, c. 137, § 1, and c. 162, § 3 construed. Vinton v. Sargent [Mass.] 80 N. E. 826.

98. Motion to vacate administration held not sustainable on ground of want of assets. Turner v. Campbell [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 119. Rev. St. 1899, § 2, authorizing court to refuse administration where value of estate will not exceed allowance to widow or minor children, held inapplicable where decedent left neither widow nor children. Id.

99. Will extend only to that part of estate within jurisdiction granting it. Turner v. Campbell [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 119.

1. Under Laws 1892, p. 1575, c. 679, § 5, held that surrogate's court had jurisdiction to appoint administrator where petitioners were without other remedy to enforce their claims for lack of peacemaker's court or other Indian judicial tribunal. In re Print- up's Estate, 121 App. Div. 322, 105 N. Y. S. 74. Laws 1900, c. 252, ratifying constitution of Seneca Nation of Indians which provides for creation of surrogate's courts for that nation, held not in violation of Const. art. 3, § 16, providing that no local bill shall embrace more than one subject which shall be expressed in its title. Jameson v. Lehley, 51 Misc. 352, 101 N. Y. S. 215. Surrogate's court held to have no jurisdiction over estates of Indians, or authority to admit their wills to probate. In re Jack's Will, 52 Misc. 424, 102 N. Y. S. 333.

2. Power of surrogate, on application to revoke letters on ground that they were issued because of false representation that estate was fully administered, to determine truth or falsity of allegations of petition for appointment, held to carry with it power to determine whether, under will and circumstances, estate was fully administered. In re Rathyn, 115 App. Div. 644, 101 N. Y. S. 289.

3. As to jurisdiction of courts of equity see post, this section.

New Jersey: Where a claim against an insolvent estate is excepted to, orphan's court has jurisdiction to adjudicate thereon unless claimant elects to proceed against representative at law or in equity. Wheedon v. Nichols [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 445. Representative cannot elect to so proceed against himself to enforce his personal claim, but in such case jurisdiction of orphans' court is exclusive. Id.

New York: Answer to petition for payment of certain claims held evasive and not to state any fact tending to show that executors had good defense, so that surrogate properly refused to dismiss same. Code Civ. Proc. § 2722. In re De Forrest's Will, 104 N. Y. S. 342. Fact that it did not appear therefrom that there was money applicable to pay claim under contract calling for monthly payments, which could be so applied without injuriously affecting interests of others, held not to require dismissal, executors having made previous payments, treated estate as sufficient for that purpose, and having discontinued them on other grounds. Id. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1903, as amended, surrogate held to have jurisdiction, in proceedings for settlement of accounts of administratrix, to direct allowance and payment of claim for funeral expenses out of sum recovered for wrongful death of decedent, which constituted only property coming into her hands. In re McDonald's Estate, 51 Misc. 455, 101 N. Y. S. 275. Hence proceedings for settlement would not be postponed pending trial of action brought against administratrix in supreme court to recover same. Id.

4. Since under Revisal 1905, § 129, superior court has concurrent jurisdiction for the setting off of the widow's allowance,<sup>5</sup> to recover property in the hands of third persons alleged to belong to the estate,<sup>6</sup> to determine whether property belongs to the representative individually or to the estate,<sup>7</sup> to determine the validity of the representative's official bond,<sup>8</sup> for an accounting by the representative,<sup>9</sup> for the recovery of legacies or distributive shares,<sup>10</sup> to determine conflicting interests of heirs or distributees and third persons,<sup>11</sup> and to determine questions incidentally involved in such proceedings, is largely regulated by statute, and varies in the different states. The same is true in regard to the equitable jurisdiction of courts of probate.<sup>12</sup>

Jurisdiction of courts of equity.<sup>13</sup>—As in other cases, courts of equity will not with probate court to settle estates and subject realty to payment of debts, held that said court had jurisdiction on motion of judgment creditor, to order sale of realty to pay judgment recovered in action before it to which all interested persons were parties. Shober v. Wheeler, 144 N. C. 403, 57 S. E. 152.

5. Issue as to whether one filing in probate court notice of her claim to be admitted to certain rights in estate as widow, and for allowance, was in fact married to decedent, may be determined by that court. Bechtel v. Barton, 147 Mich. 318, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1047, 110 N. W. 935.

6. Surrogate held to have discretionary power to direct examination of person cited under Code Civ. Proc. § 2707 as having in her possession property belonging to estate though she filed verified answer claiming ownership, it being claim of title supported by facts shown upon examination, and not allegations of answer, which requires him to dismiss proceedings. In re Packard's Estate, 53 Misc. 163, 104 N. Y. S. 474. Surrogate held to have no jurisdiction of proceeding by surety of temporary administrator against third person to compel latter to restore assets alleged to have been fraudulently obtained by him from said administrator. In re Weissell's Estate, 51 Misc. 325, 101 N. Y. S. 273.

7. New York: Surrogate may determine issue on accounting. Code Civ. Proc. § 2731. In re Archer's Estate, 51 Misc. 260, 100 N. Y. S. 1095; In re Cavanagh, 105 N. Y. S. 850.

Pennsylvania: Administrator's title to savings deposits standing in decedent's name can only be determined by orphans' court, and he cannot maintain bill in equity for that purpose. Hutchinson v. Dennis, 217 Pa. 290, 66 A. 524.

8. Surrogate in New York has no jurisdiction to determine validity of administrator's bond. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Moshier, 151 F. 806.

9. See, also, post, this section, Jurisdiction of Courts of Equity. Supreme court will exercise its concurrent jurisdiction to compel an accounting only when complete relief cannot be obtained in surrogate's court. In re Fogarty's Estate, 117 App. Div. 583, 102 N. Y. S. 776; Volhard v. Volhard, 104 N. Y. S. 578; In re Smith, 105 N. Y. S. 223. Surrogate having no jurisdiction to try title to realty, held that where, on proceeding to compel accounting, it appeared that question relating to title to realty was involved which ought to be decided before accounting was ordered, proceeding should have been dismissed. In re Fogarty's Estate, 117 App. Div. 583, 102 N. Y.

S. 776. Surrogate has authority to compel temporary administrator to account as to all matters connected with his trust. In re Goetz, 104 N. Y. S. 832. Pendency in supreme court of action brought by temporary administrator for construction of will held no defense to application to require him to account in surrogate's court. Id.

10. Under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 16, § 93, equity has jurisdiction of suit to recover legacy even where bond has been given to pay debts and legacies. Matthews v. Targarona, 104 Md. 442, 65 A. 60. Statutory remedy by action at law to recover legacy or distributive share is in addition to that existing in equity, and in no way limits or qualifies jurisdiction of court of chancery over the subject. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 215.

11. Michigan: Probate court distributes and assigns property of intestate to those apparently entitled to its possession, but has no power to adjudicate in respect to extent of their titles or validity of titles and interests of others, and hence does not, by orders, originate or establish any muniments of title in distributees. Rich v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 380.

Nebraska: Since, under Federal statute, heirs of timber culture entryman who dies before patent is issued take title as donees of government and not by inheritance, and entryman's interest is therefore not devisable, held that county court had no jurisdiction to determine title by adjudging that devisees of entryman were owners to exclusion of heirs to whom patent was issued. Walker v. Ehresman [Neb.] 113 N. W. 218.

New York: Surrogate cannot determine rights between legatee and assignee. In re Faile, 51 Misc. 166, 100 N. Y. S. 856.

12. Alaska: Probate court held to have no jurisdiction to determine whether partnership existed between decedent and another, and whether certain property belonged to it. Bartleson v. Feidler, 14 F. 299.

Colorado: Probate court held to have no jurisdiction in equity to enjoin consummation of scheme to despoil estate and get control of its interests represented by outside corporation. Monmouth Inv. Co. v. Means [C. C. A.] 151 F. 159.

New York: Surrogate held to have no jurisdiction to pass on claim made on accounting that executrix should be surcharged with value of certain bonds and mortgages, assignment of which was alleged to have been procured by fraud. In re Dittrich, 53 Misc. 511, 105 N. Y. S. 301.

13. See 7 C. L. 1293. See, also, Equity, assume jurisdiction of matters relating to estates of decedents where there is an adequate remedy at law.<sup>14</sup> They generally have jurisdiction to set aside decrees of the probate court obtained through fraud<sup>15</sup> or mistake,<sup>16</sup> but will not act in this regard while the matter is still pending in the latter court.<sup>17</sup>

Where the probate court has exclusive jurisdiction over the administration of estates, equity cannot interfere except in cases where that court has not adequate power to give full and complete relief,<sup>18</sup> as where it is necessary to protect 9 C. L. 1110; jurisdiction, 8 C. L. 579. For jurisdiction of courts of equity in particular proceedings see, also, this section.

14. Adequate remedy at law which will deprive court of equity of jurisdiction must be as certain, complete, prompt, and efficient as that in equity. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. Where administratrix refused to commence proceedings to sell realty to pay judgment recovered in Federal court, held that remedy by application to county court for direction to her to do so, or by application for her removal, was much less prompt and efficient than suit in equity in said Federal court to subject such realty to payment of its judgment. Id. Is an absence of an adequate remedy at law in the Federal courts, and that alone, which conditions jurisdiction in equity in those courts, fact that there is remedy at law in state courts being immaterial. Id. One seeking to recover money intrusted to decedent for investment, and alleged to have been in latter's possession at time of his death, held to have adequate remedy at law against decedent's estate. McKee v. Allen, 204 Mo. 655, 103 S. W. 76. Rev. St. 1899, § 187, providing that actions commenced against representative after decedent's death shall be considered demands legally exhibited against estate from time of service of original process on representative, held to have reference merely to time when claims shall be exhibited within meaning of § 185, and not to be authority for holding that bill in equity was proper proceeding to obtain allowance for money judgment. Id. Claims for attorney's fees and for services rendered by real estate agent in procuring purchaser for realty being entitled to priority, held that equity had jurisdiction of suit to enforce them since under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 184, 187, 191, 208, they could have only been allowed as claims of fifth class. Matson v. Pearson, 121 Mo. App. 120, 97 S. W. 983. Remedy for improper issuance of letters of administration by surrogate of Seneca Nation of Indians held by appeal to council of the nation, so that suit in equity for revocation of letters could not be maintained. Jimeson v. Lehley, 51 Misc. 352, 101 N. Y. S. 215. Where husband took out letters of administration on estate of his deceased wife, and thereby obtained possession of savings deposits standing in her name, but which he claimed belonged to him personally, held that his title to money could only be adjudicated in orphans' court, and he could not maintain bill in equity for that purpose. Hutchinson v. Dennis, 217 Pa. 290, 66 A. 524. Claim of administrator, who was husband of decedent, that realty standing in decedent's name belonged to him by virtue of resulting trust from payment of purchase money, held proper basis of equity jurisdiction. Hutchinson v. Dennis, 217 Pa. 290, 66 A. 524.

15. Is no adequate remedy at law barring suit in equity to set aside decree of distribution alleged to have been obtained through fraudulent suppression of will, and to protect estate in meantime. Ewing v. Lamphere, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 187. Suit held one against persons of defendants, so that court was not deprived of jurisdiction because property was outside of state. Id.

16. Decree of distribution is subject to review in equity upon a showing that it was procured by fraud or mistake, it not being part of same proceeding as decree probating will in such sense as to preclude such review. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. Code Civ. Proc. § 1666, providing that decree is conclusive unless reversed, set aside, or modified on appeal, held not to prevent such review. Id. Code Civ. Proc. § 473, authorizing relief by motion in case in which decree was rendered, held not exclusive. Id. Relief may be given where judgment was result of mistake, unmixed with fraud, and not result of negligence of injured party. Id. Decree awarding plaintiff smaller legacy than will gave her set aside for mistake of parties. Id.; Soule v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 495, 89 P. 324. Mistake held not one of court, there never having been any real contest as to amount of legacy. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. Suit is direct attack on said decree, and will be admissible to prove mistake, right of plaintiff, and injury to her from erroneous decree. Id.

17. Complaint in action in district court to set aside sale to pay debts alleging sale pursuant to decree, execution of administrator's deed, and that several years had elapsed, held to sufficiently show that matter had been finally disposed of in county court, though it was not expressly alleged that report of sale had been filed or that sale had been confirmed, or that estate had been finally settled, statute requiring report of sale to be made at next term of court, and that conveyance shall not be made until sale has been approved, and sale being special proceeding, distinct from administration proper. Ryan v. Geigel [Colo.] 89 P. 775.

18. Must appear that interference is necessary. Clark v. Peck's Ex'rs, 79 Vt. 275, 65 A. 14. Chancery does not have jurisdiction on ground that trust is involved, where trust relation is that of an executor, over which jurisdiction is given to probate court exclusively. Id. Bill for injunction to restrain widower from disposing of estate and destroying books, etc., relating thereto, held not to clearly show that he was in possession of estate or was wasting or threatening to waste same so as to warrant such relief. Id. Bill held to show that if es-

the funds of the estate,<sup>19</sup> or to prevent the despoiling of the estate,<sup>20</sup> or to prevent oppressive and vexatious litigation.<sup>21</sup> It cannot exercise any supervisory jurisdiction nor restrict or supplant the jurisdiction of the probate court, but must act, if at all, in aid of that court.<sup>22</sup> Where the jurisdiction is concurrent, equity will not ordinarily assume jurisdiction except on a showing of special circumstances rendering the remedy in the probate court inadequate.<sup>23</sup> In some states tate was being misappropriated it was being done by permission of executors, and hence that probate court could give as full and adequate relief by removing executors as would be obtained by injunction. Id. Held that court of chancery would not take charge of settlement of estate merely to prevent multiplicity of suits, there being no special reasons alleged for doing so other than those which might be urged in every testate estate. Id. Cannot take jurisdiction on ground that plaintiff is old and needs annuity claimed to be given him by will. Id. Fact that conspiracy existed between executors and widower to rob estate held not to give chancery court jurisdiction, probate court having full power to call executors to account, remove them, and appoint others in their stead. Id.

19. To prevent distribution under decree in administration proceedings pending proceedings for probate of will alleged to have been fraudulently concealed. Ewing v. Lamphere, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 187.

20. Remedy at law held inadequate, and not to prevent injunction to restrain despoiling of estate, etc. Monmouth Inv. Co. v. Means [C. C. A.] 151 F. 159. Fact that probate court displaced derelict executor, and appointed administrator with will annexed in his place, held not to require dismissal of bill against him and others by his coexecutor to enjoin them from carrying out scheme to despoil estate and get control of its interests represented by an outside corporation, probate court having no jurisdiction to enjoin such acts. Id.

21. Equity has jurisdiction to enjoin pending or threatened proceedings in county court to prevent oppressive and vexatious litigation, particularly when such litigation is not brought in good faith, but is instituted for an illegal and wrongful purpose. Alderman v. Tillamook County [Or.] 91 P. 298. Administratrix held entitled to enjoin prosecution of proceeding for her removal instituted in county court by attorneys for county pursuant to conspiracy between them and county judge, object of which was to prevent her from continuing to defend estate against claim filed by county, in prosecution of which county judge had been most active. Id. Suit for such an injunction held not an interference with exclusive jurisdiction of county court over appointment and removal of administrators, decree if rendered operating only on parties, and not on court. Id. Remedy of plaintiff by appearance in county court, contesting removal, and appealing from adverse decree, held not adequate under circumstances, since attempt to make defense there would be unavailing, and appeal from order of removal would not stay such order. Id. Expiration of term of county judge held no ground for abatement of suit. Id.

22. Clark v. Peck's Ex'rs, 79 Vt. 275, 65 A. 14.

23. Jurisdiction of chancery court to remove the settlement of estate from orphans' court, and itself conclude such settlement, will not be exercised except upon satisfactory showing of fraud or mistake in procurement of account, or in proceedings before orphans' court. Vineland Historical & Antiquarian Soc. v. Landis [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 946. Will entertain bill against representative for discovery of matters in regard to which information is appropriately needed, and in regard to which the orphans' court has no means of procuring disclosure. Id. Executrix interested in estate compelled to disclose all property belonging to estate which she held or had held in her own name. Id. Will not compel executrix by answer in advance to restate her accounts, or to give any statement of accounts, or to state any matters in nature of accounts which are properly procurable in orphans' court and can be easily reached by that court by its ordinary procedure. Id. When jurisdiction has been assumed by orphans' court, next of kin has no right to change forum of settlement at his pleasure, but chancellor must, in his discretion, judge of propriety of court of chancery's interference. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 215. If any progress has been made in settlement of accounts, court of chancery should not interfere unless some good reason for so doing is shown. Id. Ordinarily fraud or mistake in procurement of settlement are only grounds upon which chancery will look behind settlement of an account in orphans' court, and defects and errors in account should be remedied in latter court. Id. Where bill by next of kin for ascertainment of complainant's distributive share alleged fraud in accounts filed in orphans' court, and sought, by series of special interrogatories, information in regard to certain securities which had come into defendant's hands, held that allegations of answer that there had been settlement in orphans' court in which complainant had participated did not excuse defendant from answering all material averments and interrogatories, after which court would determine whether it would review proceedings already had in orphans' court. Id. Supreme court will not exercise its concurrent jurisdiction to compel temporary administrator to account where surrogate has full and complete jurisdiction in premises. In re Goetz, 104 N. Y. S. 832. Will not take jurisdiction of proceeding to compel accounting unless under circumstances requiring interposition of court of equity. Volhard v. Volhard, 104 N. Y. S. 578. Allegation of petition that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 2729, governing admission of evidence as to payments by executors where no vouchers can be produced, executor would be unable in surrogate's any interested party<sup>24</sup> other than the representative may, by a bill filed for that purpose,<sup>25</sup> to which all persons in any manner interested in the estate are made parties,<sup>26</sup> remove an administration from the probate to the chancery court,<sup>27</sup> as a matter of right and without the assignment of any special reason,<sup>28</sup> at any time before the concurrent jurisdiction of the probate court has attached by the institution of proceedings having substantially the same object.<sup>29</sup> If, however, such proceedings have been commenced in the probate court, or if the power of the chancery court be invoked by the personal representative, some special equitable reason for removal must be assigned.<sup>30</sup> After removal the chancery court is controlled by and must follow the rules of law which would obtain on a settlement in the probate court.<sup>31</sup>

Jurisdiction of Federal courts.<sup>32</sup>—A Federal court has no jurisdiction of the administration of the estates of deceased persons as such.<sup>33</sup> It has, however, jurisdiction over controversies arising during the pendency of the administration in the state courts, which involve the enforcement of its own judgments or decrees,<sup>34</sup> or the rights of aliens, citizens of other states, or other parties who might invoke its action and jurisdiction had the controversy arisen otherwise,<sup>35</sup> and its adjudications of such issues prevail over state statutes and the decisions of state courts.<sup>36</sup> So, too, where the other jurisdictional requisites exist, rights and remedies provided by state statutes to be pursued in the state courts of general jurisdiction may be enforced and administered in the Federal courts either at law or in equity, as the case may be.<sup>37</sup> An executor who is a nonresident citizen is not pre-court to testify as to payment made by him or to introduce all his evidence tending to show payment, held no reason why supreme court should take jurisdiction, said section being equally applicable to accountings in that court. In re Smith, 105 N. Y. S. 223. Supreme court will exercise jurisdiction where title to realty is involved. In re Fogarty's Estate, 117 App. Div. 583, 102 N. Y. S. 776; Bushe v. Wright, 118 App. Div. 320, 103 N. Y. S. 410.

24. Heir distributee, or legatee. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580. Creditor is interested party. Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 853.

25. Averments of bill held sufficient on demurrer. Cronk v. Cronk [Ala.] 42 So. 450. Bill praying sale of realty for distribution held not one seeking sale independent of orderly administration of estate, but to invoke court's action to that end in due course of administration. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580. Bill held not multifarious in joining administrator in both his representative and individual capacity. Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 853.

26. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580.

27. Chancery court has original and general jurisdiction over administration and settlement of estates. Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 853. Is not in any way affected or taken away by concurrent jurisdiction of probate court, but concurrent jurisdiction is expressly recognized by Const. 1901, § 149. Id.

28. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580.

29. At any time before probate court has taken steps for, or entered upon, final settlement. St. John v. St. John [Ala.] 43 So. 580. Code 1896, § 321, providing that no suit shall be commenced against executor until six months, etc., held to have no application to suit to remove administration.

Id. Code § 2263, inapplicable. Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 853.

30. Order of probate court directing sale of personalty on petition of administrator for that purpose held not a proceeding upon which jurisdiction of probate court for final settlement would attach so as to require assignment of special reason. Rensford v. Magnus & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 853.

34. State statutes cannot deprive Federal courts of power to enforce their judgments. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. Only limit on this power of Federal courts is that they may not seize or take from another court property in its exclusive legal custody. Id. Where decree of Federal court was allowed as only claim against estate in process of administration, and administratrix refused to institute proceedings for sale of certain realty, the only property of the estate, claiming that it was exempt, held that Federal court in which said decree was rendered had jurisdiction of suit in equity by judgment creditor to compel sale of land. Id.

35. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145.

36. Not deprived of jurisdiction by state statutes granting exclusive jurisdiction over estates of decedents to county courts. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. Fact that state statute required representative to institute proceeding to sell realty to pay debts held not to prevent judgment creditor from instituting such proceedings in Federal court in his own name for purpose of enforcing judgment recovered in said court. Id.

37. Since statutes of Colorado (Mills' Ann. St. § 4751) give district courts juris-

cluded from suing in the Federal courts by reason of the fact that another executor may have qualified in the state of the situs of the estate.<sup>38</sup> Jurisdiction of a Federal court when once acquired cannot be ousted by a change in the personnel of the representatives.<sup>39</sup> As a general rule, where the state and Federal courts have concurrent jurisdiction, the court first acquiring jurisdiction of specific property in a suit or proceeding to enforce a lien against it, or to subject it to sale, wherein it may be necessary to take possession or dominion of it, may retain the exclusive legal custody of it until the suit is at an end, or until ample time for its termination has elapsed,<sup>40</sup> and the duty is imposed upon it to hear and determine every claim to a lien upon, to an interest in, or to a right to, that property.<sup>41</sup>

§ 3. The persons who administer and their letters. A. Selection and nomination.<sup>42</sup>—The executor named in the will ordinarily has an absolute right to the appointment<sup>43</sup> unless he is within the class of persons declared by statute to be incompetent,<sup>44</sup> or unless he renounces his right either expressly or by failure to apply for letters within the time prescribed by law.<sup>45</sup>

In case the executor named in the will dies, is incompetent, or fails to qualify, letters of administration with the will annexed should ordinarily be issued to the person or persons who would have been entitled to administrator had decedent died intestate.<sup>46</sup> diction to entertain suits in chancery for sale of realty of decedents to pay debts while administration is pending in county courts, held that Federal court of equity had jurisdiction to decree sale to satisfy judgment rendered by it against deceased during his lifetime, or claim of foreign creditor. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145.

38. Monmouth Inv. Co. v. Means [C. C. A.] 151 F. 159.

39. Jurisdiction of suit by one executor against his coexecutor to enjoin threatened danger to interests of estate cannot be ousted by substitution of an administrator with will annexed for derelict executor. Monmouth Inv. Co. v. Means [C. C. A.] 151 F. 159.

40. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145. Where no proceeding for sale of land to pay debts had been instituted in county court, and state statute conferred concurrent jurisdiction on state district court to make such sale, held that fact that land was in custody of county court did not deprive Federal court of jurisdiction of suit to procure its sale, county court's custody and jurisdiction being limited by grant to district court. Id. Since, if suit had been instituted in state district court, legal custody of property for purpose of sale would have passed to it, and since party loses no right or remedy by going into Federal court, held that institution of suit in Federal court divested plenary jurisdiction of property from county court and vested it in Federal court for purposes of sale. Id. After commencement of suit in Federal court, held that proceedings in county court by administratrix for allowance for administration expenses, and for allowance to her as widow, were of no avail in so far as proceeds of said realty were concerned. Id.

41. Where Federal court of equity acquired jurisdiction of proceedings to sell realty of decedent to pay judgment previously rendered by it, held that it should have determined claim of administratrix for allowance of expenses of administration, and for allowance to her as widow, out of proceeds of sale. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145.

42. See 7 C. L. 1395.

43. Executor derives his authority to act from will, granting of letters testamentary being pro forma act to give effect to will of testator, and can be deprived of his right to administer only by his own renunciation or by failure to appear when cited to prove will and take out letters. In re Miller's Estate, 216 Pa. 247, 65 A. 681. Until executor has refused or renounced trust, register has no authority to grant letters of administration with the will annexed. Act March 15, 1832 (P. L. 140, § 18). Id.

44. Admission of will to probate by register is judicial determination of its validity and, unappealed from, conclusive as to appointment of person named therein as executor. In re Miller's Estate, 216 Pa. 247, 65 A. 681. Where register admitted will, held that he had no authority to take testimony as to executor's sanity and refuse to grant him letters on ground that he was insane, remedy in case of his insanity being by proceedings for his removal. Id. Testimony held to sustain finding of orphans' court on appeal from register that executor was sane and competent to act. Id.

45. Time within which it is imperative for executor to accept or renounce is when he is cited to do so. In re Miller's Estate, 216 Pa. 247, 65 A. 681.

46. Under Rev. St. c. 66, § 22, where there is no person who can be appointed executor, or executor fails to qualify. Farnsworth v. Whiting [Me.] 66 A. 833. Where sole executor named in will died before testator, held that order directing appointment of next of kin as administrator with will an-

Letters of administration on the estate of one dying intestate must be granted in the order of preference prescribed by statute.<sup>47</sup> The right is generally given first to the surviving husband or wife,<sup>48</sup> and then to the next of kin,<sup>49</sup> if competent and suitable.<sup>50</sup> Where there is a public administrator, his right is generally prior to that of a stranger.<sup>51</sup> In some states a guardian takes the place of his ward in so far as the right to administer is concerned.<sup>52</sup>

The right of nonresidents<sup>53</sup> and corporations<sup>54</sup> to act as representative depends on the statutes of the various states. In some states the person having the preferential right to the appointment may designate any competent person to serve in his stead.<sup>55</sup> The right to do so is sometimes limited to cases where the person having the preferential right is himself competent to serve.<sup>56</sup>

47. Probate court cannot deviate from order so fixed. Hollingsworth v. Jeffries, 121 Mo. App. 660, 97 S. W. 632. When cause for administration exists and application is made to proper court, neither fact that it is made by person not entitled to administration, nor that person not so entitled is appointed, renders appointment wholly void so as to be subject to collateral attack. Steinberg v. Saltzman, 130 Wis. 419, 110 N. W. 198.

48. Application for letters made on ground that widow, who was entitled to prior right, had not applied, denied where it appeared that she had obtained letters of administration on decedent's estate under different name, there being no question that two applications related to same person. In re Zerwinski's Estate, 51 Misc. 661, 102 N. Y. S. 203. If any doubt as to whether letters bore proper name, held that proceedings should be instituted to amend them. Id.

49. Allegation in application otherwise sufficient that applicant was entitled to appointment "being one of the next of kin of the deceased" held not to show want of jurisdiction to make appointment on theory that it meant that applicant was such at time of application and not at time of decedent's death, though it appeared that sixty-eight years had elapsed between decedent's death and date of application. Medlin v. Downing Lumber Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 232. Order directing appointment of next of kin, if qualified and suitable, as administrator with will annexed, held proper. Rev. St. c. 66, § 18. Farnsworth v. Whiting [Me.] 66 A. 833. Verdict that certain person died intestate, that petitioner was his next of kin, was more than twenty-one years old, and was suitable person to be administrator, held in due form, it affirmatively finding facts entitling petitioner to be appointed under Court & Prac. Act 1905, p. 237, § 824. Sayles v. Probate Ct., 27 R. I. 563, 65 A. 272. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3812, 3813, 3814, construed, and held that, though relative applying within three months would be entitled to preference over creditor, letters issued to creditor, instead of to nominee of relative who filed petition within that time, were not void for want of jurisdiction, but voidable only, and would be treated as valid until revoked in proceeding properly instituted for that purpose. In re Owen's Estate [Utah] 91 P. 283.

50. Where petitioner was entitled to appointment if a suitable person, and it was found that she was, held that evidence as to qualifications of another person was properly excluded. Sayles v. Probate Ct., 27 R. I. 563, 65 A. 272. Evidence as to competency of another than petitioner held properly excluded where his competency was not disputed. Id. Question asked petitioner as to how many counsel she had had held properly excluded as immaterial. Id.

51. Person nominated in petition who is not of next of kin or creditor is not entitled to appointment in preference to public administrator without being joined with others having right to such appointment prior to public administrator. Code Civ. Proc. § 2660. In re Printup's Estate, 121 App. Div. 222, 106 N. Y. S. 74.

52. Guardian of minor who, if of age, would be entitled to administer, is in right of his ward entitled to letters in preference to strangers, and stands, so far as his right to administer is concerned, in shoes of ward, and to that extent represents him. In re Weeks' Estate [Ind. (§ 3) B. Procedure to obtain administration and grant of letters.<sup>59</sup>—The petition for letters must substantially comply with the statutory requirements, and show facts entitling the applicant to the appointment.<sup>60</sup> Provision is generally made for the filing and hearing of objections.<sup>61</sup> The required notice must be given<sup>62</sup> unless waived.<sup>63</sup> The filing of the will in the state within a specified time after decedent's death is sometimes made a prerequisite to the grant of ancillary letters to a foreign executor.<sup>64</sup> The order of appointment is generally effective from the date of its rendition rather than that of its entry.<sup>65</sup>

(§ 3) C. Security or bond, and oath.<sup>66</sup>—The representative is generally required to give a bond conditioned on the faithful performance of his duties<sup>67</sup> unless the will provides to the contrary, and even in such cases the court may ordinarily require him to do so on a proper showing.<sup>68</sup> In some states, corporations desiring to act as executors are required to deposit securities of a specified value with the state treasurer.<sup>69</sup>

60. Since, under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2643, 2644, stranger to estate cannot be appointed administrator with will annexed without citation or renunciation of all legatees, next of kin, heirs, devisees, and creditors, held that petition which failed to show that there was no person entitled to letters prior in right to person whose appointment was sought, unless such person prior in right was cited or had renounced, was insufficient. In re Wiggins, 103 N. Y. S. 518. Second petition referred to as amended petition, filed without order permitting it, not referring to original, and on which no citation was issued, held to have no proper place in proceeding, and to be disregarded. Id. Petition for revocation of order discharging administrator, and that he be required to administer on newly-discovered assets, held sufficient as petition for appointment of administrator, there being complete compliance with Rev. St. 1901, par. 1597. Otero v. Otero [Ariz.] 90 P. 601.

Failure to require bond as provided by Code, § 3301, or postponement of fixing of amount thereof, held not to deprive court of jurisdiction, or subject appointment to collateral attack in will contest. In re Wiltsey's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 776. Failure to require bond held cured where it was given and approved after objection had been raised in proceedings to which administrator was party, no prejudice being shown. Id.

68. Code 1896, § 67, giving devisees right to require bond upon showing their interest in estate, and alleging that such interest is or will be endangered for want of security, held equally applicable where administration is removed to court of equity. Cronk v. Cronk [Ala.] 42 So. 450. Averments of bill by remaindermen to remove administration to court of equity and to compel executor, who was also life tenant and had power of sale, to give bond, held sufficient on demurrer. Id.

(§ 3) D. Removals.<sup>71</sup>—The representative should be removed only for good cause shown.<sup>72</sup> The power of removal is given for the protection of the estate, and should not ordinarily be exercised when the purpose of the petitioner is clearly not to protect the estate, but to punish the representative.<sup>73</sup> Among the common grounds for removal are want of jurisdiction to make the appointment,<sup>74</sup> or failure to comply with the statutory procedure,<sup>75</sup> the false suggestion of a material fact in the petition for letters,<sup>76</sup> and that the person seeking revocation has the prior right to the appointment.<sup>77</sup> Provision is generally made for the citing or bringing in of the representative<sup>78</sup> and for a hearing.<sup>79</sup> Letters of administration granted on the supposition of intestacy are generally ipso facto revoked by the subsequent admission of a will to probate,<sup>80</sup> though in some states an order of revocation is necessary.<sup>81</sup> In some states, letters granted to a feme sole abate by operation of law on her marriage.<sup>82</sup>

A judgment of removal renders the representative functus officio.<sup>83</sup> After revocation the same procedure and formalities are necessary to the grant of new letters as are necessary to the grant of letters in the first instance.<sup>84</sup>

In re Kilborn [Cal. App.] 89 P. 985. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1349, providing that court may, upon objections, decline to appoint executor named in will, held that court may inquire into financial responsibility of corporation so named, though it has complied with St. 1891, c. 264, certificate of bank examiners not being conclusive on that question. In re Burr, 118 App. Div. 482, 104 N. Y. S. 29.

74. Letters of administration properly annulled and appointment set aside where administrator was appointed by court of county other than that where decedent resided at his death. Williams v. Dougherty, 39 Ind. App. 9, 78 N. E. 1067.

75. Letters will be canceled where issued before hearing on opposition filed in due time. Succession of Weineke, 118 La. 206, 42 So. 776.

76. Omission of material facts from petition for appointment of administrator c. t. a, held false suggestion of material fact justifying revocation, regardless of whether petitioner acted under honest mistake or with evil intent. In re Rathen, 115 App. Div. 644, 101 N. Y. S. 289.

§ 4. The authority, title, interest, and relationship of personal representatives.
 A. In general.<sup>85</sup>—An executor's interest is derived from the will and his qualification relates back to the death of decedent.<sup>86</sup> By declining to serve, or resigning, he surrenders only such powers as relate strictly to the office of executor.<sup>87</sup> An administrator derives his authority by virtue of the order appointing him.<sup>88</sup> His qualification relates back to the time of his appointment as regards acts done by him in the interim which are for the benefit of the estate,<sup>89</sup> but the doctrine of relation does not authorize one not an administrator to seize and take possession of the property of a decedent from one in possession and claiming to be the owner thereof or to appoint an agent to do so.<sup>90</sup> Acts of an administrator otherwise valid are not rendered void by the subsequent probate of a will.<sup>91</sup> So, too, where the court has jurisdiction, letters which are voidable or are irregularly issued, while unrevoked, furnish complete protection to an administrator acting under them,<sup>92</sup> and his acts thereunder are not invalidated by their subsequent revocation.<sup>93</sup> The authority of the representative continues until his resignation, removal, or discharge.<sup>94</sup> In some states letters granted to a feme sole abate on her marriage.<sup>95</sup>

87. Where trust is annexed to office of executor, resignation of latter office carries with it relinquishment of former place. Cushman v. Cushman, 116 App. Div. 763, 102 N. Y. S. 258. Widow, by declining executorship, held to have surrendered none of the powers given her by will except those relating strictly to office of executrix. Trout v. Pratt, 106 Va. 431, 56 S. E. 165.

88. Letter written by debtor to heir before his appointment as administrator held not such an acknowledgment as to revive cause of action in favor of estate barred by limitations, he not being authorized to represent estate. Visher v. Wilbur [Cal. App.] 90 P. 1065.

89. Qualification held to relate back to commencement of action for death by wrongful act. Archdeacon v. Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 76 Ohio St. 97, 81 N. E. 152. Rule held applicable though amount recovered would go to next of kin only. Id.

90. Agent appointed by widow for that purpose, before widow was appointed administratrix, took possession of cattle in possession of another on which decedent had mortgage. Held that subsequent appointment of widow as administratrix did not render agent's acts lawful, or preclude recovery of cattle by party from whom they were taken. James v. Nunley, 6 Ind. T. 336, 97 S. W. 1028.

91. Under Revisal 1905, § 37, providing that on production of will probate court shall make order revoking letters of administration previously issued, and cause it to be served on administrator, and that all of latter's acts done in good faith before service of order shall be valid, held that letters of administration were not rendered void by subsequent probate of will, and judgment recovered against administrator could not be attacked on that ground in proceeding to subject realty to its payment. Shober v. Wheeler, 144 N. C. 403, 57 S. E. 152.

92. Action of court of county other than that where decedent resided in appointing administrator, though voidable on direct attack, held not void on subject to collateral attack. Williams v. Dougherty, 39 Ind. App. 9, 78 N. E. 1067.

93. Administrator acting in good faith under letters which, though voidable, were not void for want of jurisdiction, held entitled, on subsequent revocation of letters, to reimbursement for costs and expenses and to commissions, in view of Code Civ. Proc. § 4043. In re Owen's Estate [Utah] 91 P. 283. Though fact that person applying for letters of administration is non-resident is good ground for refusing appointment or for removing him after his appointment, his acts as administrator when once appointed are not void or voidable, and cannot be set aside for that reason, particularly in collateral proceeding. Meikle v. Cloquet [Wash.] 87 P. 841.

94. See § 14, post.

95. Under Code of 1866, letters granted to widow abated on her remarriage, provision to that effect not having been impliedly repealed by married woman's act of that year (Civ. Code 1895, § 2474). Wilson v. Wood, 127 Ga. 316, 56 S. E. 457. Second husband could assume administration until ordinary appointed another administrator, but unless he actually did so, or ordinary appointed successor, effect of remarriage was to leave estate unrepresented. Id. Rule changed by Civ. Code 1895, § 3368, and letters do not now abate. Id.

96. Sealed bond for debt given by decedent to creditor held conclusive as against administrator as to amount of creditor's insurable interest in life of decedent. Woody's Adm'r v. Schaaf, 106 Va. 799, 56 S. E. 807.

The administration of an estate commenced by a public administrator and not completed on the expiration of his term of office is nevertheless to be completed by him and does not devolve on his successor.<sup>97</sup>

The authority of a special or temporary administrator is ordinarily limited to the preservation of the estate,<sup>98</sup> and ceases on the appointment of a permanent representative.<sup>99</sup>

In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary,<sup>1</sup> an administrator de bonis non can recover from his predecessor or his representatives only such property as remains in specie, the right to recover for assets wasted or converted being in the distributees.<sup>2</sup>

An administrator with the will annexed succeeds to the powers conferred upon the executor as such, but not to those devolved on him as trustee with trust duties to perform.<sup>3</sup>

One is not bound personally by the judgment in a suit to which he is a party as representative,<sup>4</sup> nor can a personal judgment be rendered against one sued as representative.<sup>5</sup> A representative cannot sue in his individual capacity on a judgment recovered by his decedent.<sup>6</sup>

97. O'Rourke v. Harper, 35 Mont. 346, 89 P. 65.

98. May defend against claims, and, without special authority from probate court, appeal from allowance of claim. McNamara v. Michigan Trust Co., 148 Mich. 346, 14 Det. Leg. N. 250, 111 N. W. 1066. Temporary administrator of deceased stockholder, who was also residuary legatee under will which was being contested, held not entitled to maintain proceeding for inspection of corporation's books, he being stranger to corporation, and proceeding not being necessary to preserve decedent's interest therein. In re Hastings, 105 N. Y. S. 834. Temporary administrator has no standing to maintain action to construe will, he having no authority to distribute estate, but only to preserve it and account therefor to court appointing him, except that he may pay out rents as directed by surrogate under Code Civ. Proc. § 2675. In re Goetz, 104 N. Y. S. 832. Cannot maintain action as one to determine conflicting claims to rents in his hands, since he can be discharged from liability and obligation of his surety be canceled by accounting to surrogate and paying money into court or to party entitled thereto. Id.

99. On appointment of administrator with will annexed. Code Civ. Proc. § 2670. In re Goetz, 104 N. Y. S. 832.

1. Pending suit by administrator d. b. n. under act Feb. 24, 1834, § 31, P. L. 70, against sureties of insolvent deceased administrator to recover assets misappropriated by latter, held error for orphans' court to award balance found due from said administrator to guardian of decedent's heir rather than to administrator d. b. n., particularly where guardian and administrator were same person and demanded that award be to him as administrator. Hill's Estate, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 508.

2. Motion to strike name of one suing as administrator de bonis non from complaint, in action to recover property alleged to have been converted by defendants and deceased executrix, held properly sustained. Yager's Adm'r v. Bank of Kentucky, 30 Ky. L. R. 1287, 100 S. W. 848. All heirs at law must be made parties, either as plaintiffs or defendants, to action to recover property alleged to have been converted by deceased executrix and third persons. Id. Money deposited in bank to credit of one as executor held unadministered assets so that, on his death, right to collect it passed to administrator de bonis non and not to administrator of executor. Clark's Adm'r v. Farmers' Nat. Bk., 30 Ky. L. R. 733, 99 S. W. 674.

3. Held, under Neb. Comp. St. 1903, §§ 2982, 2987, charged with execution of trusts conferred upon executor. Quinton v. Neville [C. C. A.] 152 F. 879. Has all powers of executor, except such as arise from personal trust or confidence. Civ. Code 1895, § 3309. Hodges v. Stuart Lumber Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 354. Held charged with duty under Shannon's Code, § 3976, to sell land and personalty which will directed executors to sell. Hardin v. Hassell [Tenn.] 100 S. W. 720. Code Civ. Proc. § 2613, providing that administrators with will annexed shall have same rights and powers as if named as executors in will, held not to confer on him capacity to exercise discretionary power of sale. Coann v. Culver, 188 N. Y. 9, 80 N. E. 362, rev. 108 App. Div. 360, 95 N. Y. S. 1122. Held not to succeed to implied power of sale devolving upon executor as testamentary trustee. Casselman v. McCooley [N. J.] 67 A. 436. Where executor and testamentary trustee had fully performed all duties devolving on him in former capacity, held that he thereafter held property as trustee and on his subsequent death county court had no jurisdiction to appoint administrator with will annexed, but further administration of trust could only be accomplished by trustee and that district court had jurisdiction to appoint trustee for that purpose. McClelland v. McClelland [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 120, 101 S. W. 1171.

4. Whitehead v. Pitts, 127 Ga. 774, 56 S. E. 1004. Fact that former administrator individually was made party to motion to open judgment authorizing him in his representative capacity to sell land held not to dispense with necessity of joining him as administrator. Whitely Grocery Co. v. Jones [Ga.] 58 S. E. 623.

Only ministerial acts may be delegated.<sup>7</sup>

Letters testamentary or of administration have no legal force or effect beyond the territorial limits of the state in which they are granted,<sup>8</sup> and hence the representative as such ordinarily has no authority nor liability,<sup>9</sup> acquires no title to property,<sup>10</sup> and cannot sue or be sued<sup>11</sup> in any other state until he qualifies under its laws. Such qualification is not, however, a necessary prerequisite to a sale under a power of sale expressly conferred on him by a mortgage,<sup>12</sup> though the will must, in such case, be proved and recorded in the state where the land is situated.<sup>13</sup> A judgment against a representative in one state does not bind either a representative or the assets of the estate in another.<sup>14</sup> It has, however, been held that a valid judgment against a foreign administrator, rendered in a state other than that of his appointment, is conclusive on the local administrator in that state, and a bar to a subsequent suit by him involving the same issue, and the parties to which are otherwise the same.<sup>15</sup> water furnished plaintiffs for irrigation purposes, held that judgment could not be rendered against defendant individually where it appeared that water pipes belonged to estate of decedent, and that she was acting only as administratrix, nor would estate which she represented be bound by any judgment rendered against her personally. Perrin v. Smith [Colo.] 89 P. 648.

6. Administrator held not entitled to do so in foreign state, he not being party of record thereto. Miller v. Hoover, 121 Mo. App. 568, 97 S. W. 210.

7. Even if executor had power, in absence of order of probate court, to settle controversy in regard to property of estate, held that he could not delegate such power to widow. Williamson v. Robinson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1012.

8. Miller v. Hoover, 121 Mo. App. 568, 97 S. W. 210. No proceedings may be maintained for recovery of claim due decedent without taking out letters of administration in state where action is brought. Vinton v. Sargent [Mass.] 80 N. E. 826. Courts will not enforce debts due foreign decedent until ancillary administration is obtained. Brown v. Smith [Me.] 64 A. 915. Probate of will in state other than that of decedent's domicile does not entitle party named therein as executrix to act as such therein, but issuance of letters to her in that state is also necessary. Webster v. Clark [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 773, 99 S. W. 1019, affg. 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 320, 94 S. W. 1088.

9. Power and authority over estate is confined to sovereignty by virtue of whose laws he is appointed. Brown v. Smith [Me.] 64 A. 915. Administrator has no authority over debt due estate by resident of state other than that of his appointment, and cannot assign same so as to entitle assignee to sue thereon. Id. Debt follows debtor after death of creditor. Id. Administrator cannot, by virtue of original letters, assign mortgage on land situated in another state so as to entitle assignee to enforce payment thereof in latter state. Id. Executors cannot, by virtue of any authority conferred by will, sell land in foreign state until they have qualified in state where land is situated. Scott v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 44, 56 S. E. 548. Conveyance of mortgaged premises by executors of mortgage held, in effect, nothing more than an assignment of mortgage debt and mortgage, which did not deprive them of power of sale conferred upon them by said mortgage. Id.

10. Miller v. Hoover, 121 Mo. App. 568, 97 S. W. 210.

11. See § 10, post.

12. Where mortgage expressly confers power of sale on executors, they derive their authority to sell by virtue of contract and not from will. Scott v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 44, 56 S. E. 548. Under Revision 1905, § 1031, power of sale in mortgage may be exercised by mortgagee's executors as an incident of the contract, though mortgage does not expressly so provide. Id.

13. Scott v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 44, 56 S. E. 548. Such probate made after the conveyance will, however, relate back and validate it, provided no rights of third parties have intervened. Id.

14. Defendant was both executrix and devisee of New York will. Suit against decedent was revived against her as executrix only, in that state and judgment rendered against her in that capacity. Held that such judgment only operated to subject assets within that jurisdiction, and did not establish such debt against her as an individual so that action could be maintained thereon against her as devisee in Texas to subject lands in that state received by her as devisee to its payment. Webster v. Clarke [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 773, 99 S. W. 1019, affg. 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 320, 94 S. W. 1088. Domiciliary executor and estate in state of decedent's domicile cannot be affected by acts of foreign administrator, or by any judgment or decree rendered against latter in state of his appointment. Brown v. Fletcher's Estate, 146 Mich. 401, 13 Det. Leg. N. 818, 109 N. W. 686. Rule not changed because suit in which judgment was rendered was pending in foreign jurisdiction at time of testator's death. Id. Stipulation entered into by decedent before his death, whereby cause was referred to arbitrator by court, and decedent bound himself, his executors and administrators to abide by award, pursuant to which decree was rendered, held not to change rule. Id. Decree against ancillary administrator in state where he was appointed held satisfied as to him when, giving it due credit, he had distributed estate according to law of forum. Id.

(§ 4) B. Contracts, conveyances, charges, and investments. Contracts.<sup>16</sup>—

The representative is generally held to be personally liable on all contracts made by him, though acting in his official capacity and for the benefit of the estate.<sup>17</sup> and persons rendering services thereunder must look to him alone for their compensation,<sup>18</sup> though disbursements by reason thereof, when necessary and reasonable in amount, will constitute a charge in his favor against the estate.<sup>19</sup> It is sometimes held that he has power to bind the assets of the estate in his hands whenever authority to do so is conferred upon him by statute or the will, and that within these limitations claims arising out of his contracts are demands against the estate, and, as such, enforceable at law against it.<sup>20</sup> It has also been held that the court having charge of the administration will enforce as against an attorney a contract for legal services entered into between himself and the representative, where it is reasonable and beneficial to the estate.<sup>21</sup> A testator has no power to control executors in the choice of the attorneys or counsel who shall act for them in their representative capacity.<sup>22</sup>

17. Where administrator contracted in representative capacity to convey land of decedent, and on demand failed to perform, held that vendee could sue for specific performance with prayer for alternative relief for return of money paid on account, with interest and expenses, in case administrator had no authority to make contract, though latter made contract under mistaken idea as to his authority. Elliott v. Asiel, 105 N. Y. S. 655. Executor leasing property of estate may sue out distress warrant in his individual capacity, and terms indicating representative capacity, if used, may be treated as descriptio personae and disregarded as surplusage. Dean v. Donaldson [Ga.] 58 S. E. 679. Held no variance between judgment rendered and affidavit and warrant. Id. Where administrator contracted to sell realty of estate "the deed to be given as soon as possible after estate is advertised and the deed can be given," and probate court refused to make order of sale, held that administrator was not liable in damages for breach of contract. Wilson v. Root [Conn.] 67 A. 482. Fact that, after presenting matter to court, he discovered that property was worth more than contract price, and so informed heirs and court, held not to estop him from relying on fact that condition precedent never came into existence. Id. Where he did not purport to represent heirs, held that contention that he was guilty of fraud in leading plaintiffs to believe that he had authority of heirs to sell was untenable. Id.

18. Representative, and not estate, is personally and primarily liable for legal services rendered for benefit of estate at his instance and request. Besancon v. Wegner [N. D.] 112 N. W. 965. Attorney has no cause of action against estate for recovery of value of such services. Id. Executor personally liable to counsel employed by him. In Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020.

19. See § 9D, post.

20. Claims for attorney's fees incurred in management of estate held enforceable by attorneys directly against it. Matson v. Pearson, 121 Mo. App. 120, 97 S. W. 983. Where will gave executor power to sell land, held that he could bind estate by contract to pay real estate agent for services in procuring purchaser therefor to the extent that he would himself be entitled under statute to compensation for same services. Id. Since under Rev. St. 1899, § 223, providing that representative is entitled to commission of 5 per cent on money arising from sale of realty, he is not entitled to such commissions unless sale is actually made, held that agent could not recover from estate for services in procuring purchaser where sale was not consummated. Id.

21. Attorney who has induced representative to employ him to represent estate by use of such language as would reasonably induce representative to believe that compensation will not exceed specified sum is estopped to demand greater sum than that suggested as an inducement to his employment. In re Rapp's Estate [Neb.] 110 N. W. 661.

22. Provision in will in reference to attorneys to be employed held to be regarded merely as expressive of wish on part of testator which it was proper for executors to observe if in accordance with their judgment, but which they were otherwise not bound to regard. In re Caldwell, 188 N. Y. 115, 80 N. E. 663, revg. 100 N. Y. S. 1109. Provision in will appointing attorney to assist executor in settling estate held to be construed as advisory provision merely, which executor could follow or disregard according to his own judgment, and not to disqualify such person as attesting witness or from testifying in support of will. In re Pickett's Will [Or.] 89 P. 377.

23. Agreement between administrator and others whereby business of decedent, who died largely indebted, was to be continued for benefit of decedent's sons, held one in violation of N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2717-2719, prescribing duties of representatives. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Moshier, 151 F. 806.

ESTATES OF DECEDENTS—Cont'd.

Conveyances.<sup>24</sup>—A representative has no power to sell and convey realty belonging to the estate except under an order of court for the payment of debts,<sup>25</sup> or for the purpose of distribution,<sup>26</sup> or for some other purpose authorized by statute,<sup>27</sup> or under a power of sale conferred upon him by will.<sup>28</sup>

Investments.<sup>29</sup>—Statutes in some states provide in what securities the funds of the estate may be invested.<sup>30</sup> The representative is not liable for losses due to the shrinkage of securities where their purchase and retention is within the discretionary power conferred on him by the will.<sup>31</sup> He is sometimes relieved from liability for losses due to the depreciation of securities owned by decedent during his lifetime where he continues to hold the same in the exercise of good faith and reasonable discretion.<sup>32</sup> In some states he cannot sell any dividend bearing securities owned by the decedent at the time of his death until so ordered by a court of equity.<sup>33</sup>

(§ 4) C. Title, interest, or right in decedent's property.<sup>34</sup>—Except where the rule is changed by will,<sup>35</sup> or by statute, the legal title to the personalty of a decedent vests in the executor or administrator on his qualification or appointment.<sup>36</sup> He holds the same in trust, however, for the creditors and the distributees or beneficiaries under the will.<sup>37</sup>

The legal title to realty vests in the heir or devisee immediately on the death of the decedent,<sup>38</sup> subject to the statutory right to sell the same for the payment of debts,<sup>39</sup> or for purposes of distribution,<sup>40</sup> and to any powers of sale conferred by the will.<sup>41</sup> The character of the estate cast upon the heir is the same as that held by the ancestor.<sup>42</sup>

In Georgia, when an executor assents to a devise or legacy, all interest of the estate in the property passes out of him.<sup>43</sup> The assent is generally irrevocable, even though the assets remaining are insufficient to pay the debts.<sup>44</sup> A presumption of assent may arise from lapse of time.<sup>45</sup>

In re Moon's Estate [Or.] 88 P. 673. Will created void trust in realty, but trustee, assuming its validity, conveyed trust property. Creditor of certain of testator's heirs obtained judgment against them before testator's death, and after conveyance by trustee levied execution on interests of said heirs. Held that property descended to heirs, that trustee's deed conveyed no title, and that title acquired under execution sale was superior to that of those claiming under grantee of trustee. Lyons Nat. Bk. v. Schuler, 115 App. Div. 859, 101 N. Y. S. 62. Administrator in individual capacity and heirs at law were sued for specific performance of contract for sale of land made by former alone, in his official capacity. Court having found against contention that administrator acted as agent of heirs, plaintiff expressly disclaimed all right to have specific performance as against latter. Held that disclaimer precluded decree of specific performance as against administrator, since title was in heirs. Wilson v. Root [Conn.] 67 A. 482. All heirs of one of purchasers of land, for which part of purchase price had been paid, held proper parties to suit against vendors for specific performance, though decedent left no debts and it was agreed by certain of said heirs that their interest should go to others on payment by them of balance of purchase price, since vendors would act at peril in conveying to part of heirs only. *Jackson v. legatees and devisees held not necessary parties to suit to foreclose mortgage on property forming part of estate where will, by imperative power of sale, worked conversion of realty into personalty. Boehmcke v. McKeon, 103 N. Y. S. 930. Under Kan. Gen. St. 1901, §§ 7961, 7966, relating to recording of foreign wills, and Id. § 3009, empowering foreign executors or administrators to sue or be sued in that state, held that, where will authorized sale of land, foreign administrator c. t. a. who, by laws of state where he was appointed, was charged with execution of trust conferred on executor by will, and who had filed copy of letters and recorded will in Kansas, and was in possession, had such title and possession as authorized him to sue in Kansas to remove cloud on title to realty in that state, and to redeem from equitable lien thereon created by testator. Quinton v. Neville [C. C. A.] 152 F. 879.

52. For right of representative to maintain action see § 5E, post. Under law as it existed in 1840, held that heirs of deceased mortgagor were not necessary parties to suit to foreclose mortgage. Flack v. Braman [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 107, 101 S. W. 537. Fact that attempt to bind nonresident heirs by published notice was without statutory authority held immaterial. Id. Presumed on collateral attack that mortgagor's administrator was properly served. Id. Even if service by publication was insufficient to authorize judgment against nonresident heirs, held that judgment against administrator was sufficient to bind property of estate against which foreclosure was had. Id.

Since administrator has right to replevy personalty belonging to estate, and code authorizes any person interested in property to become party to replevin action and to litigate his claim therein, held that administrator, on his appointment, could intervene in replevin action previously instituted by widow against heirs to recover personalty belonging to decedent, and recover property as against both her and heirs. Id. Widow's rights to allowance, etc., may be worked out through orderly administration, and are not dependent on her possession of any property belonging to estate. Id. Sale under deed of trust given to secure debt held invalid where it was not made until after creditor's death intestate, and there had been no administrator appointed for her estate, in absence of clear proof that she left no unsatisfied debts, and that it was agreed between her sole distributee and the debtor that said sale might be made. *Armistead v. 58. Leasehold held chattel real, which, except for homestead interest, passed to administrator. In re Ring's Estate, 132 Iowa, 216, 109 N. W. 710. Growing and unharvested crops on land of decedent at time of his death, such as are raised annually or periodically by labor or planting, go to representative as assets, particularly when upon a leasehold. Id. Crops planted after death of lessee on premises leased by him during his lifetime belong to estate unless there is an exemption thereof. Id. Not entitled to crops planted upon homestead and grown by himself and widow after decedent's death. Id. Shares of stock in corporation organized to own and sell realty, etc., are personalty. Elkhorn Land & Imp. Co. v. Childers, 30 Ky. L. R. 1121, 100 S. W. 222. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 96, held that cause of action for injuries to realty accruing in decedent's lifetime passed to administrator. *Mitchell v. Money deposited in bank to credit of one as executor held unadministered assets, so that right to collect it passed to administrator de bonis non, and not to administrator of executor. Clark's Adm'r v. Farmers' Nat. Bk., 30 Ky. L. R. 738, 99 S. W. 674. Title to money turned over to defendant by testator held to have vested in defendant, whether he was strictly a trustee or not, so that executor was not entitled to recover same. Morris v. Wucher, 115 App. Div. 278, 100 N. Y. S. 878. In action to recover money alleged to have been turned over to defendant by plaintiff to be deposited for latter's benefit, evidence held insufficient to sustain defense that money belonged to plaintiff in her capacity as administratrix of her deceased husband and not individually. Crane v. Phillips, 105 N. Y. S. 417. Where note and mortgage securing it provided that no part of principal should be paid during payee's lifetime if interest was paid as therein provided, and that, at latter's death, note should become property of payee's granddaughter, held that interest accruing between last annual interest payment and death of payee belonged to granddaughter, and not to payee's estate. Rogers v. Osborne, 146 Mich. 613, 13 Det. Leg. N. 898, 109 N. W. 1123. Where father transferred property to son for benefit of father's heirs, held that any right of action accruing after father's death by reason of wrongful conduct of son as trustee belonged to heirs as beneficiaries of trust, and not to father's administrator. *Griesel v. that intestate, at time of his death, was in possession of land which he had rented for year, during which he died, and that rent, consisting of cotton, had been taken possession of by defendants without right or authority, and with notice of plaintiff's right to same, and sold, and asking judgment for proceeds on ground that action could not be maintained because plaintiff had not title to cotton. Id. Rents of lands, belonging to heirs as tenants in common, accruing while in possession of administrator, belong, after deducting expenses of administration, to the several tenants in common in proportion to their interest in entire estate at time administrator took charge of land. Haden v. Sims, 127 Ga. 717, 56 S. E. 989. Administrator held not entitled, in suit by assignee of heir at law to recover distributive share, to set off claim for rents of dower lands accruing after death of doweress and collected by plaintiff who had acquired life estate of doweress, it not being alleged that plaintiff's tenants ever attorned to administrator, or that plaintiff's possession was held under him, and fact that plaintiff tortiously remained in possession after death of life tenant not giving rise to implied promise to pay or account for rent. De La Perriere v. Bowles, 127 Ga. 18, 55 S. E. 1030. Administrator held to have right of action for trespass which, however, could not be set off in action on contract. Id. Rents accruing before decedent's death go to representative as assets, but those accruing thereafter are to be apportioned among those entitled to realty and in same proportions. St. 1903, § 3865. *Eastwood v. 67. Under Kirby's Dig. § 15, authorizing heirs to sue for and collect demands left by intestate without administration where all heirs and distributees are of full age, and intestate was under no legal liability at time of his death, held that heirs could not sue until all were of full age. Chisholm v. Crye [Ark.] 104 S. W. 167. Limitations held not to have commenced to run against right of heirs until all became of age. Id. Heirs held barred by laches from asserting, as against mortgagee, that lien of purchase money notes was superior to that of mortgage subsequently given by purchaser, since adult heirs could have instituted administration proceedings for purpose of collecting notes before minor heirs became of age, though they could not have sued in their own names before that time, and since minor heirs delayed unreasonable time after becoming of age. Id. Claim against purchaser held not barred by laches. Id. Laws of state where suit was instituted, where debtor resided, and where property on which vendor's lien was sought to be enforced, held to control as to right of heirs to sue. Id. Where widow and son were only heirs, held that complaint, in action to recover bank deposits for son's benefit, alleging that there were no unpaid claims, and no debts against estate, and no administration, was good on demurrer though it did not aver payment of widow's allowance, since, widow's claim being fixed by law, it showed that plaintiff was entitled to judgment in some amount. Merchants' Nat. Bk. v. McClellan [Ind. App.] 80 N. E.

tlements of claims in favor of the estate by the sole heir have, however, been sustained against a representative subsequently appointed where there were ample assets for the payment of debts.<sup>68</sup> Limitations against a cause of action in favor of the estate accruing after decedent's death do not begin to run until his appointment.<sup>69</sup>

As a general rule the heirs alone have the right to bring actions in regard to realty.<sup>70</sup> In some states the representative has the sole right to do so unless there is no administration or he consents to a suit by the heirs.<sup>71</sup> Lack of administration may be shown by the testimony of any person who has made an examination of the records.<sup>72</sup> In Louisiana the widow in community, administering the succession of her deceased husband as natural tutrix of her minor children, is authorized to bring an action for the ejectment of an alleged lessee from succession and community property.<sup>73</sup> An heir cannot ordinarily attack conveyances of his ancestor as in fraud of creditors,<sup>74</sup> though the representative is sometimes permitted to do so.<sup>75</sup> It has been held that the representative may redeem realty from a tax sale where the personality is insufficient for the payment of debts.<sup>76</sup>

Statutes in some states provide for a summary proceeding in the probate court for the recovery of assets,<sup>77</sup> or for the examination of persons alleged to have possession or knowledge of any deeds or other documents bearing on the right, title, or interest of the decedent in any property.<sup>78</sup>

554. In order to dispense with necessity of administration, there must be no debts, heirs entitled to share must all be of full age, and must be unanimity among them, as expressed by their agreement or acts, to dispense with administration. Griesel v. Jones, 123 Mo. App. 45, 99 S. W. 769.

68. Settlement by sole heir of claim for damages for sufferings of deceased as result of personal injuries due to defendant's negligence held binding on administrator subsequently appointed, and a bar to an action by him for same injuries, where it was alleged that he had ample property for payment of claims allowed, and that time for presentation of claims had expired. *McKelgue v. veyed all his property to defendant, and for accounting. Borchert v. Borchert [Wis.] 113 N. W. 35.

The widow is generally given an allowance for the support of herself and the minor children during the period of administration.<sup>4</sup> In some states where the value of the estate does not exceed a specified sum, she is entitled to the whole of it for that purpose,<sup>5</sup> and the administration comes to an end on its being assigned to her.<sup>6</sup> The procedure to obtain the allowance,<sup>7</sup> and whether it is to be regarded as a debt against some states all exemptions allowed to the husband as head of the family are, on his death, set apart to the widow as her property.<sup>16</sup> Whether deficiencies in the value of exemptions may be made up by a cash allowance in lieu thereof,<sup>17</sup> and whether the widow's rights are superior to those of creditors,<sup>18</sup> depends on the statutes of the various states.

(§ 5) E. Management, custody, and control of estate.<sup>19</sup>—It is the duty of the representative to insure the property, and he is responsible for losses resulting from his failure to do so.<sup>20</sup> The fact that the owner of property sought to be sold for taxes is dead and his succession is under administration does not preclude the tax collector from proceeding with the sale.<sup>21</sup> In Georgia, during the pendency of the administration proceedings, an independent executrix who is a married woman may receive assets of the estate and execute all instruments necessary thereto without reference to her husband.<sup>22</sup> The management and disposal of property under testamentary trusts is treated elsewhere.<sup>23</sup>

Control by courts.<sup>24</sup>—Whether the court will instruct executors as to their duties under the will is largely a matter of discretion.<sup>25</sup> A court of equity will not ordinarily take the execution of discretionary powers conferred on an executor by the will out of his hands unless he has abused it or refused for a reasonable time to execute it.<sup>26</sup> Where, however, he fails to sell land as directed by the will, the court may order a sale in a suit instituted for that purpose.<sup>27</sup> mortgage to secure part of purchase price. One of said executors bid in land at foreclosure sale as it was conveyed to him. Later he alone conveyed it to third person. His returns showed cash receipt as final payment from original purchaser. Held that, in litigation between grantee of third person and widow in regard to land, it was error to exclude deed, and evidence that executor bid in land under agreement with mortgagor that he should do so and allow mortgagor reasonable time in which to redeem, and that such agreement was carried out, and redemption was made, and conveyance to third person was in consummation thereof. Board of Education of Glen County v. Day [Ga.] 57 S. E. 359. Devisees could not, after redemption and conveyance, with knowledge of facts, claim proceeds of contract and also land itself on ground that executor had no authority to make agreement. Id. Suit by devisee against executor to recover proceeds of unauthorized conveyance would amount to election to confirm and ratify it, if begun with knowledge or notice of facts. Id.

42. St. 1903, § 4707, prohibiting executors or administrators from selling "any dividend paying stocks" owned by decedent at time of his death until so ordered by court of equity, held to refer only to stocks actually earning dividends, and not to those upon which dividends may be paid. Chappell v. Chappell, 30 Ky. L. R. 935, 99 S. W. 959.

43. Provided he acts in good faith and exercises such degree of care and diligence as reasonably prudent man would have exercised under like circumstances. Christy v. Christy, 125 Ill. App. 442, afid. on other grounds, 226 Ill. 547, 80 N. E. 242. Corporate stock being personalty, held that administrator had authority to sell nondividend paying stock without order of court, particularly in view of St. 1903, § 4707, prohibiting sale of dividend paying stock owned by decedent at time of his death without order of court of equity. Chappell v. Chappell, 30 Ky. L. R. 935, 99 S. W. 959. Code, § 1412, permitting representatives to apply to clerk for order to sell insolvent evidences of debt and providing for sale at public auction, held directory only, and not to disallow authority to sell nondividend private administrator of common-law authority to sell at private sale at his own risk. Odell v. House, 144 N. C. 647, 57 S. E. 395.

45. Administrator obtained order of court for sale of all property, including realty and personalty, on petition praying for distribution of proceeds among heirs after paying debts and costs. Expenses of administration were due and demandable, and there were no funds wherewith to pay them. Major heirs had not accepted succession unconditionally, nor offered to pay said expenses. Movables alone were sold. Held that sale of movables was not a nullity, though administrator had no authority to have property sold to effect a partition without following formalities required by law, since he did have a right to apply for and have movables sold to pay expenses of last illness and legal expenses of opening succession. 47. Petition in suit by distributees to set aside sale of corporate stock by administrator for fraud must allege the facts constituting the fraud. Chappell v. Chappell, 30 Ky. L. R. 935, 99 S. W. 959. Evidence held insufficient to show fraud on part of purchaser. Id.

48. Administrator held properly required to account for profits of decedent's business from date he was authorized to sell it until date of sale, he having carried it on in meantime, sale not passing such profits since he was not authorized to sell them. Roberts v. Weimer, 227 Ill. 138, 81 N. E. 40.

A. Claims provable<sup>49</sup> embrace the personal obligations<sup>50</sup> of the decedent growing out of valid contracts, express<sup>51</sup> or implied,<sup>52</sup> which are not extinguished by his death, and torts which survive.<sup>53</sup> They must subsist in law and be enforceable against a plea of limitations,<sup>54</sup> or of the statute of frauds,<sup>55</sup> or other like defense.<sup>56</sup>

Funeral expenses<sup>57</sup> are presumed to have been incurred on the credit of the estate of the deceased.<sup>58</sup> One paying them may recover them back from the estate provided the amount so paid is reasonable.<sup>59</sup> Payment by the estate to the undertaker of an amount deemed reasonable by the probate court does not affect his right to recover the difference between the amount so paid and a sum which a third person expressly agreed to pay him for his services.<sup>60</sup>

(§ 6) B. Exhibition, establishment, allowance, and enforcement of claims. Jurisdiction.<sup>61</sup>—The jurisdiction of the various courts to pass on and allow claims has been discussed in a previous section.<sup>62</sup>

Occasion and necessity of proving claims.<sup>63</sup>—In most states all claims must be presented to and allowed by the probate court or the representative before they can be paid or enforced.<sup>64</sup> This rule does not, however, ordinarily apply to claims on which suit is pending at decedent's death where the action is subsequently revived against his representative.<sup>65</sup> As a general rule mortgages and other liens on land may be foreclosed without presenting claims for the debts secured thereby, an exception being sometimes made in the case of liens on the homestead.<sup>66</sup> Provision is generally made for the presentation and allowance of contingent claims, and for the retention of sufficient funds to pay them when they become due.<sup>67</sup> In some states

71. Where decedent died pending his appeal from a judgment against him, held that it was duty of judgment creditor to have action revived within two years from date of letters of administration, and, where he failed to do so, claim was barred under Rev. St. 1899, § 185, barring claims not exhibited within two years. In re Hensley's Allowance, 121 Mo. App. 695, 97 S. W. 645. Administratrix disallowed claim. After her death, and before short statute of limitations (Code Civ. Proc. § 1822) had run, administrator de bonis non admitted claim and promised to pay it. Held that claim was not barred. In re Hallenback, 104 N. Y. S. 568.

Claim of vendee of realty against vendor for false and fraudulent representations with respect to title held to have accrued immediately upon perpetration of fraud, and not to have been postponed to such time as he sustained actual loss. Id. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3840, held that court, after giving of required notice, had discretionary power to extend time originally fixed on verified petition without hearing evidence in support thereof. Seidemann v. Karstaedt, 130 Wis. 117, 109 N. W. 942. Evasive answer held not to have wholly destroyed probative force of petition, but to have left matter for determination of county court in exercise of its discretion. Id.

73. Where a creditor requested an attorney to represent his claim, and attorney promptly notified him that he could not act as he was employed by administrator, held that creditor was not excused from presenting claim on ground that attorney was derelict in advising him of his rights. Melkle v. Cloquet [Wash.] 87 P. 841. Administrator held not to have misled claimant or to have been guilty of any act whereby he was induced not to file his claim in time. Id. Fact that claimant did not discover fraud on which his claim was based until after expiration of time fixed for filing claims held not to extend time for filing, statute of nonclaim making no exception in favor of such cases. Burling v. Allvord's Estate [Neb.] 110 N. W. 683.

74. Contract of guaranty held contingent one so that Rev. St. 1899, § 185, barring demands not presented within two years after publication of notice of letters, did not begin to run against claim thereon until liability became fixed. Binz v. Hyatt, 200 Mo. 299, 98 S. W. 637.

75. Claim is absolutely extinguished if not sued within two years from publication of notice of appointment of representative. Kenyon v. Probate Ct. of East Greenwich, 27 R. I. 566, 65 A. 267. Judgment was rendered against administrators of deceased surety on a bond in suit in equity to which they were parties in 1871, within year after his death, but, owing to litigation carried on by representatives, decree adjudging amount of estate's liability was not entered in said cause until 1902. Held that the court was not deprived of jurisdiction to enter latter decree by lapse of time, running of limitations having necessarily been suspended to enable court to determine liability of estate, nor by Code 1887, § 2920, providing that right of action against decedent's estate accruing after his death shall not continue longer than five years. Sipe v. Taylor, 106 Va. 231, 55 S. E. 542. Decree of 1902 held conclusive that limitations had not run against claim when said decree was rendered. Id.

84. Should sufficiently indicate nature and amount of demand to enable representative and judge of probate to act advisedly upon it. Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238, 83 P. 911. It need not state facts with all preciseness and detail required in a complaint, nor is its sufficiency to be tested by rules applicable to pleadings. Id. Claim held sufficient. Id. Should give representative notice of amount and nature of claim and dates between which it accrued. Hoskins v. Saunders [Conn.] 66 A. 785. Claim held sufficient. Id. All that is required is that statement of claim shall show nature of claim so that representative may know what he has to defend against. Claim based on services rendered decedent held sufficient. Christianson v. McDermott's Estate, 123 Mo. App. 443, 100 S. W. 63. Statement of claim for services rendered under contract held sufficiently specific. Smith v. Williams, 123 Mo. App. 479, 100 S. W. 55.

85. Defect in verification resulting from omission of words "after allowing all proper credits" (Code 1896, § 133) may be cured by amendment. Gillespie v. Campbell [Ala.] 43 So. 28. When claimant is corporation, should appear from affidavit that person acting on its behalf is officer thereof, presumed from his official position to have sufficient knowledge of its affairs, or, if made by some other person, that his relation to company is such as is calculated to place him in possession of requisite information. Maier Packing Co. v. Frey [Cal. App.] 89 P. 875. Affidavit made and signed by certain company by its president held insufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 1494 for failure to assign any reason why it was not made by claimant, there being no statement in it showing that said company was incorporated, and court not being authorized to presume that fact. Id. Affidavits held not in conformity with St. 1903, § 3870, and hence to be insufficient. Spradlin v. Stanley's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 928, 99 S. W. 965. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 3870, if demand be other than obligation signed by decedent or a judgment, must also be verified by person other than claimant, who must state facts showing that claim is just, in addition to statement that he believes it to be just and correct. Id. Where party to suit to settle estate and to sell land to pay debts who was sui juris stood by and permitted commissioner's report allowing claims not properly verified to be confirmed and a judgment to be entered without objection, held that he could not raise objection on appeal. Id. Rule does not apply to infants, but erroneous judgment against them may, in such case, be reversed on appeal where their condition appears in record, or error may be corrected by court rendering judgment under Civ. Code Prac. § 518, when it does not. Id.

86. See 7 C. L. 1428.

87. Complaint in action on claim for services held not demurrable as failing to state for what indebtedness was incurred, or whether work was done for administrator or decedent, or that work was done during filing is necessary, it must be alleged<sup>89</sup> and proved.<sup>90</sup> In some states the representative is not bound to plead matter by way of answer, except set-off or counterclaim.<sup>91</sup> Recovery must be had, if at all, on the cause of action set up in the claim as filed or presented.<sup>92</sup> Ordinarily the representative is bound to interpose the defense of limitations,<sup>93</sup> though there seems to be some conflict of authority in this regard.<sup>94</sup> Where the estate is settled by a court of equity in a suit instituted for that purpose, different creditors having separate demands may unite in a bill to subject the assets of the estate to their payment.<sup>95</sup> In such suits interested persons are generally given the right to file objections to claims and provision is made for a hearing thereon.<sup>96</sup>

Allowance and rejection.<sup>97</sup>—The rule that the allowance of claims by the probate court is tantamount to a judgment applies only to such claims as were debts against the decedent himself, and not to expenses or disbursements of the administrator.<sup>98</sup> In states where estates are settled by the institution of a suit in equity for decedent's lifetime, or as failing to show whether it was for account stated or for work and labor. Gillespie v. Campbell [Ala.] 43 So. 28. Petition held to sufficiently show that all legal offsets, credits, and payments had been allowed. Dashiell v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 843.

88. In action on claim for services rendered decedent during his last illness, held error to admit evidence as to what administrator paid another person for similar services. Gillespie v. Campbell [Ala.] 43 So. 28. Verified claim first presented held admissible as admission against interest in action on claim in different terms subsequently filed. Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238, 88 P. 911. Claim held not within rule that where party amends a pleading statements in superseded pleading cannot be used as admissions, it not being a pleading, and there being no provision for amendment of claims. Id.

89. Complaint held sufficient as against objection that it did not show that sufficient claim was filed in probate court within prescribed time. Gillespie v. Campbell [Ala.] 43 So. 28. In action on note complaint must allege that claim accompanied by copy of note has been presented to administratrix in accordance with requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1494, and rejected. Wills v. Booth [Cal. App.] 91 P. 759.

91. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2479, held not necessary for administrator sued on note to file verified plea of non est factum in order to impose on plaintiff burden of proving execution of note and of assignments of same. Digan v. Mandel, 167 Ind. 586, 79 N. E. 899.

92. Cannot recover upon any other cause of action. Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238, 88 P. 911. Variance between claim as presented, and allegations of complaint, proofs, and findings in action thereon, held immaterial. Id. Where claim as filed was based on written agreement, held that claimant could not recover on proof of oral one. Leonard v. Leonard [Iowa] 111 N. W. 409. Where claim as filed did not indicate whether it was based on express or implied contract, held that pleading filed in proceedings on contest alleging express contract was properly allowed to be amended so as to seek recovery on implied contract, though more than year had elapsed since filing of original claim. Sarchfield v. Hayes [Iowa] 112 N. W. 1100. In view of liberal rules in respect to such matters in county courts, and treatment of filed claim as complaint on appeal to circuit court, held not error for latter court to permit amendment by adding that work for which compensation was sought was done under agreement that it should be paid for at decedent's death, where original claim, though indefinite, included enough to suggest that it was based on agreement of some sort, and that right thereunder was not barred by limitations. Longwell v. Mierow, 130 Wis. 208, 109 N. W. 943. Fact that amendment was not reduced to writing and filed held immaterial, where cause was tried on theory that it had been made. Id.

93. Special statute requiring action to be brought within two years after appointment of representative. Kenyon v. East Greenwich Probate Ct., 27 R. I. 566, 65 A. 267.

94. Where claimant against insolvent estate elects to proceed against representative by action at law or suit in equity, latter is not bound to interpose defense of general statute of limitations, nor is statute a bar to allowance of personal claim of representative which is necessarily tried in orphans' court. Wheedon v. Nichols [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 445.

95. To subject realty and personalty. Mann v. Brazie, 61 W. Va. 613, 57 S. E. 43.

96. Where will gave estate to one for life to be used and enjoyed by her as she might desire, with remainder over of so much as was left after her death, held that remainderman was not interested in claims against life tenant's estate and could not object to their allowance. Cumberland University v. Roberson, 30 Ky. L. R. 947, 99 S. W. 1152. In suit to settle estate and to sell land to pay debts, held that objection that some of claims were barred by limitations must be made in circuit court by written exceptions, and that if exceptions were filed claimants should be allowed reasonable time to take proof. Spradlin v. Stanley's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 928, 99 S. W. 965.

that purpose, claims are generally referred to commissioners to examine and pass upon them.<sup>99</sup>

Evidence and proof.<sup>1</sup>—Claims are generally required to be established by very satisfactory evidence.<sup>2</sup> Where the statute requires the creditor to purge his claim from usury by his oath or affidavit before the same will be allowed, a judgment recovered against the decedent is not conclusive as against that defense.<sup>3</sup> Cases dealing with the question as to when contracts to pay for services and the like will be implied, and the sufficiency of the evidence to establish implied<sup>4</sup> or express contracts,<sup>5</sup> are treated elsewhere.

Set-off.<sup>6</sup>—As a general rule, in actions by the representative asserting a demand in favor of the estate, the defendant may set off any demands he may have had against the decedent at the time of his death, subject to the usual rules in regard to set-off and counterclaim.<sup>7</sup>

Judgments in actions on claims and enforcement thereof.<sup>8</sup>—As a general rule a judgment against the representative in an action on a claim against the estate operates merely to establish the claim.<sup>9</sup> The right to take land under an execution

3. Judgment on note held not conclusive as against defense of usury so as to require administrator to pay same and then sue at law to recover back money, but he could interpose usury as defense to claim on judgment in action to settle estate consolidated with suit commenced by decedent to vacate judgment. *Owsley v. 7. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 355, providing that neither of two persons entitled to set-offs shall be deprived thereof by death of other, held that holder of claim against intestate, acquired during latter's lifetime but not reduced to judgment until after his death, could set it off against lien on property of claimant which intestate's administrator had secured by assignment, pursuant to agreement made by intestate, claim being one which could have been pleaded as set-off if intestate had acquired and attempted to enforce lien in his lifetime. Hatfield v. Mahoney, 39 Ind. App. 499, 79 N. E. 408, 1086. Judgment against defendant for debt due by him to estate held erroneous, where estate was insolvent, and he was liable, as decedent's surety, to third person for sum largely in excess of amount of said debt. Barnes v. Barnes' Adm'r, 106 Va. 319, 56 S. E. 172. Where defendant having claim against estate filed answer alleging that he had in his hands for collection notes belonging to estate in amount larger than his claim, and commissioner reported that he should retain amount of his claim out of funds in his hands when collected, held not error, after his death, for court to decree amount of claim to his personal representatives on answer filed for that purpose, there being no proof that he collected and retained amount thereof in his lifetime, nor any contention that claim was not just charge against estate. Brown v. Cresap, 61 W. Va. 315, 56 S. E. 603. Under St. 1898, § 3847, held that a defendant pleading a counterclaim was not bound to plead affirmatively facts showing that his demand was not affected fatally by any statute of limitations, that being matter of defense. Rust v. Fitzhugh [Wis.] 112 N. W. 508.

9. Limitations do not run against such a judgment pending administration, and no action thereon is necessary to keep it alive. Code Civ. Proc. § 1504. Shively v. Harris [Cal. App.] 90 P. 971. Filing of complaint in action of such judgment, which was abandoned before service of summons, held on a judgment rendered against decedent during his lifetime,<sup>10</sup> or against his representative after his death,<sup>11</sup> depends on the statutes of the various states.

(§ 6) C. Classification, preferences, and priorities.<sup>12</sup>—Claims are generally classified by statute and provision made for their payment in the order of such classification.<sup>13</sup> The preferential right of the widow to her allowance and statutory exemptions has been treated in a previous section.<sup>14</sup>

(§ 6) D. Funds, assets, and securities for payment.<sup>15</sup>—Debts secured by mortgage should ordinarily be paid out of the general personal assets of the estate, if adequate for that purpose.<sup>16</sup> In some states claims secured by a mortgage on the homestead must be presented for allowance and paid out of the general funds of the estate in so far as they are available for that purpose, the lien being enforceable only for any deficiency.<sup>17</sup> As a general rule firm creditors are entitled to priority of payment out of partnership assets and individual creditors out of individual assets.<sup>18</sup> Creditors of a business conducted by the representative, whose claims accrue after decedent's death, are, in equity, entitled to a preferential right to payment out of the profits of the business, if any, or out of the funds and assets invested therein, where said business is conducted with the consent of all interested parties.<sup>19</sup> Where there are funds in two different states it is the duty of the executor to so marshal the assets as to reduce the amount of transfer taxes to be paid by the legatees to the smallest not election of remedies estopping judgment creditor from asserting it against estate. Id.

10. See § 8, post.

11. Claimant concluded by judgment in claim case has no right in equity to enjoin the fl. fa., which is against an executor de bonis testatoris until an accounting can be had with executor on ground of alleged insolvency of estate in latter's hands, so as to ascertain relative priority of the judgment lien and other claims with view of lessening amount for which judgment may be enforced. Hollinshead v. Woodward [Ga.] 57 S. E. 79. Under probate act of 1840 there was no authority for sale of property of estate in process of administration under execution issued out of district court upon judgment against administrator foreclosing mortgage executed by decedent, but judgment should have been collected through probate court. Flack v. Braman [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 107, 101 S. W. 537. Party instituting suit for foreclosure of purchase-money mortgage and procuring sale held estopped to question title of purchaser. Id. Right of heirs of mortgagor to question sale held barred by delay of sixty years. Id.

12. See 7 C. L. 1432.

13. Since priority granted by Code 1904, § 2660, to debts due as trustee for persons under disabilities, as guardian, etc., is limited by its language to guardians who qualify in the state, held that debt owing by decedent as guardian de son tort was not entitled to priority. Watts v. Newberry [Va.] 57 S. E. 657. Ward held not entitled to priority of payment out of estate of guardian de son tort for money misappropriated by latter on theory that fund never became part of estate, where guardian had so commingled it with his own property that it could not be identified or traced. 16. Will devised certain realty to executrix for life with remainder over. At time of its purchase he assumed payment of mortgage thereon as part of consideration. Held that, as mortgage debt was personal debt of testator, and lawful charge against estate, it was lawful for executrix to pay it. Mosier v. Bowser, 226 Ill. 46, 80 N. E. 730.

17. Code Civ. Proc. § 1475. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Co. v. Hinz [Cal. App.] 88 P. 730.

18. See, also, Partnership, 8 C. L. 1261. Neither creditors of commercial firm of which deceased was member, nor surviving partner, whether as liquidator or individually, can be maintained in possession and use of succession and community property to prejudice of right of creditors, in general, of succession, and of widow in community and minor children of deceased, to demand that his individual property be administered in his succession for benefit of all concerned, and not in liquidation of his business for benefit of portion of his creditors. Campbell v. Hart, 118 La. 871, 43 So. 533. Defense to action seeking to eject lessee held sufficient. Id.

19. Where administrator carried on business of decedent, held that creditor of such business, whose claim arose after decedent's death, could in equity show that administrator was insolvent and that estate derived profit from business, and ask to have such profit applied on their debt, or show that business was continued with consent of all parties, and ask to have funds and assets invested in it first used in payment of their claims. American Surety Co. v. McGuire, 54 Misc. 79, 103 N. Y. S. 753. Motion of creditor to be made party to proceedings by surety of deceased administrator, to compel his executor and the administrator de bonis non to account, granted. Id. Fact that receiver was custodian of trade funds, or that surety might not be liable to petitioner, held immaterial. Id.

possible amount.<sup>20</sup> In some states the estate must be presumed and treated as solvent in suits by creditors until its insolvency has been ascertained and declared by a decree of the probate court, and the actual lack of assets does not relieve a representative from liability on a bond conditioned on the payment of claims for failure to pay a judgment recovered against him by a creditor, where he fails to take the necessary steps to have the estate administered as insolvent.<sup>21</sup> The abatement of legacies for the payment of debts is treated elsewhere.<sup>22</sup>

§ 7. Subjection of realty to payment of debts under order of court. A. Right to resort to realty.<sup>30</sup>—The right to resort to realty for the payment of debts is to be determined by the law in force at the time of decedent's death.<sup>31</sup>

Where decedent who resided in New Jersey left money in that state and in New York, held that executor had right, and it was his duty, to pay taxable legacies out of New Jersey assets, and to distribute New York assets to persons who, under laws of that state, were exempt from any tax whatever. In re McEwan's Estate, 51 Misc. 455, 101 N. Y. S. 733.

21. Fact that testator left no estate held no defense to action by judgment creditor on bond of executrix conditioned on payment of claims for which judgment had been rendered against her, where she failed to comply with Rev. Laws, c. 142, §§ 1, 2, by representing to probate court that estate was insolvent, or to file inventory or account. McIntyre v. Parker [Mass.] 80 N. E. 798.

24. Administrator satisfying mortgage on land of estate out of proceeds of sale of land under order of court for payment of debts held not entitled to credit for amount so paid where he failed to take assignment of mortgage as condition precedent to its payment. Denman v. Payne [Ala.] 44 So. 635.

25. Where in suit to settle estate executor was directed to settle his accounts and order of reference was made directing those having claims to present them to commissioner, held that executor had no right to proceed with settlement of estate, and subsequent payment of claims was at his own risk. Hannen v. Harrod, 30 Ky. L. R. 976, 99 S. W. 976. If there is no judgment effective for his protection, must at least show that in paying claim he employed such prudence and diligence as, in general, prudent men of discretion and intelligence employ in their own like affairs. 31. Where B. & C. Comp. § 1172, making personality not specifically bequeathed primarily liable for payment of debts, was in force at testator's death, held that court had no authority to order sale of realty to pay debts where there was personality not specifically bequeathed undisposed of notwithstanding passage in meantime of Laws 1905, p. 233, authorizing sale of realty before disposing of personality when it is made to appear that best interests of all concerned would be subserved thereby, and though said act provided that it should apply to estates in process of administration. In re Noon's Estate [Or.] 88 P. 673.

32. Orphans' court cannot order sale of lands to pay debts until executor has applied all personal estate to their payment, including specific legacies. In re Whitaker [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 124. Though specific legacies and lands devised must contribute ratably after application of balance of estate, legatee's right to contribution cannot be considered in the proceeding to sell the land. Id.

33. Deed offered for purpose of showing title in decedent held competent. Code 1896, § 186. Hunt v. Curtis [Ala.] 44 So. 54. Fact that name of grantee in deed did not include one of middle initials contained in decedent's name as given in petition held not to render deed inadmissible, particularly realty,<sup>34</sup> not exempt from sale on execution,<sup>35</sup> as may be necessary,<sup>36</sup> may be sold for the payment of his debts.<sup>37</sup> In the absence of a statute to the contrary,<sup>38</sup> a sale by the heir passes only his interest, and does not preclude a subsequent sale to pay debts.<sup>39</sup> The representative is, in such case, limited to his right to sell the land, and cannot recover the proceeds of the sale by the heir from him.<sup>40</sup>

Proceedings to procure a sale must be instituted within the time limited by statute,<sup>41</sup> or, if no time is fixed, within a reasonable time.<sup>42</sup> where testimony identified decedent as grantee. Id.

34. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1901, c. 3, § 111, probate court may order sale of realty of which decedent is seized with legal or equitable title where payment for same has not been completed and estate is not able to make complete payment with advantage. Fitzgerrell v. Turner, 223 Ill. 322, 79 N. E. 76. Decedent held to have equitable interest where he had been in possession under bond for title, and had made payments for thirty-five years, though notes were not paid when due. Id.

35. Surviving husband's title to homestead under Code Civ. Proc. § 1474 held not affected by subsequent order of sale. Fisher v. Bartholomew [Cal. App.] 83 P. 608. Purchaser takes no title to homestead where sale was made as if no question of homestead was involved. Steinberg v. Saltzman, 130 Wis. 419, 110 N. W. 198.

36. Representative seeking to have land sold must show that personalty is insufficient. Hunt v. Curtis [Ala.] 44 So. 54. Value of personalty must be established by proof of disinterested witnesses taken by deposition. Id. Witnesses should not be permitted to give their opinions as to whether personalty is sufficient to pay debts, but should depose to facts, and court should draw conclusion. Id. Though devisee whose land is sold may thereafter compel contribution by other devisees, orphans' court has no authority to direct sale of all of realty for purpose of securing ratable contribution among devisees. In re Whitaker [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 124. May direct sale of all of it only when sale of part would diminish value of remainder. Id. Order directing sale of several houses and lots held erroneous. In re Whitaker [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 124.

37. Realty held to descend directly to heir, subject only to right of administrator to sell same under order of court to pay debts. Tippecanoe Loan & Trust Co. v. Carr [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1043. Devisees take subject to debts. Lake v. Hathaway [Kan.] 89 P. 666. Interests of widow and children in deceased husband's property held subject to his debts, whether liens thereon or not. Lyons Nat. Bk. v. Schuler, 115 App. Div. 859, 101 N. Y. S. 62. Decree charging claim against realty held proper, it having been established, and it appearing that there was not sufficient personalty to pay it, and decree on settlement having directed sale of realty. Brown v. Cresap, 61 W. Va. 315, 56 S. E. 603.

38. Under Civ. Code 1902, § 2572, et seq.,

held that lands sold by devisees in good faith before action for that purpose was brought could not be sold to pay debts, neither vendor nor vendee having knowledge of existence of claims sought to be so enforced, will not having charged debts on land, and purchaser not having obligated himself to pay them. Galloway v. Galloway [S. C.] 57 S. E. 523. Fact that sale was made within twelve months after testator's death, within which time executor was exempt from suit for recovery of debts, held not to change rule. Id. Interest of vendee held also exempt from payment of any proportion of fee awarded plaintiff's counsel in suit by executors to procure sale and for partition. Id.

39. Tippecanoe Loan & Trust Co. v. Carr [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1043.

40. Since it is realty, and not proceeds of sale thereof by heir, which statute authorizes administrator to convert into assets. Tippecanoe Loan & Trust Co. v. Carr [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1043. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2413, relating to intermeddlers, has no application to such case. Id.

41. Statute providing no period of limitation within which administrator must file petition, held that, by analogy to statute relating to lien of judgments, must be done within seven years unless delay is satisfactorily explained. Cruttenden v. Finlay, 123 Ill. App. 523. Petition held not to show satisfactory excuse for delay. Id.

42. Since homestead not exceeding $1,000 in value cannot be sold to pay debts until after termination of exemption in favor of widow, held that it is not laches to delay selling same until premises cease to be so occupied, regardless of length of delay. Miller v. Hammond, 126 Ill. App. 267.

43. See 7 C. L. 1436.

44. Where administratrix after written demand refused to institute proceedings, held that creditor could do so in his own name, making her a defendant. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145.

45. Is land, and not proceeds of sale thereof by heir, which representative is authorized to convert into assets. Tippecanoe Loan & Trust Co. v. Carr [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1043. Where whole estate, both real and personal, is insufficient to pay debts, held that petition for sale of realty should be made under orphans' court act 1898, § 92-110 (P. L. 1898, p. p. 748-756), relating to insolvent estates, instead of under Id. §§ 82-90. In re Godfrey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 202. Where, on return of rule to show cause issued on petition under §§ 82-90 based on insufficiency of personalty, ing the necessity for a sale must be alleged and proved.<sup>46</sup> It must be shown that there are valid existing debts against the estate.<sup>47</sup> The required notice must be given.<sup>48</sup>

In some states a court of equity may, on a proper showing, direct a sale to satisfy a judgment previously rendered by it.<sup>49</sup> The fact that a state statute requires the representative to institute proceedings to procure a sale does not preclude a judgment creditor from instituting a suit in a Federal court of equity in his own name to procure a sale to satisfy a judgment recovered by him in that court.<sup>50</sup> Where the estate is settled by a court of equity in a suit instituted for that purpose, different creditors having separate demands may unite in a bill to subject the realty to their payment.<sup>51</sup> The proof of claims in such suits is treated in a previous section.<sup>52</sup>

it appears that personalty and realty are, and are known to administrator to be, together insufficient to satisfy debts claimed, court may decline to make order on ground that application should have been made under §§ 92-110. Id. Proofs held to justify inference that administrator acted in bad faith in making application under §§ 82-90, so that it was proper for orphans' court to decline to make order of sale on that ground. Id.

46. Petition alleging that personalty was insufficient to pay debts and that sale was necessary for that purpose, held sufficient to confer jurisdiction, being substantial following of language of Code 1896, § 156. Peavy v. Griffin [Ala.] 44 So. 400. Order directing sale held not open to objection that it was made without proofs required by P. L. 1898, p. 745, § 83, in view of recitals therein. In re Whitaker [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 124.

47. That claims for said debts have been properly presented by some one authorized to present them. Hunt v. Curtis [Ala.] 44 So. 54. Administratrix is not required to prove existence of debts by depositions of witnesses, but may do so by oral examination. Id. Where contestants offered evidence to show that claimants' ancestor had received rent cotton from lands prior to his death which should have been credited on claim, held proper to show that rents received were from other lands owned by her, and that deed to such lands was admissible to show ownership. Id.

48. One attaching interest of heir in decedent's realty and subsequently recovering judgment against him held person interested in said realty within meaning of Code, § 3324, and entitled to notice of proceedings. Mullin v. White [Iowa] 112 N. W. 164. Proceeding is adversary and not one in rem, so that notice is jurisdictional. Id.

49. Where chancery court, to which administration had been removed, decreed that estate was indebted to administrator with will annexed, authorized him to reimburse himself out of assets, and decree provided that all matters in regard to same were subject to further orders and decrees of court, held that court could, on showing that there was no other way of satisfying said indebtedness, order sale of realty belonging to estate to satisfy said decree though will conferred power of sale on executor, particularly in view of contention that amounts for which decree was rendered did not come within power. Johnson v. Porterfield [Ala.] 43 So. 228. Fact that petition was defective for failure to allege which of parties were married women, and because minor was not joined, should have been raised by demurrer or motion, and was not grounds for reversal. Id. Contention that order of sale was erroneous because it was not proven what rents had been collected, and what was balance due, held untenable, there being nothing to show that any rents had been collected, and matter being one to be determined on final settlement. Id. Decree directing sale held not erroneous for failure to ascertain decedent's debts. Id. Where petition alleged that sale was necessary, and such allegation was not controverted, and there was no showing that sale of part only would probably produce amount sufficient to satisfy decree, held order directing sale of all the realty was not erroneous. Id.

50. Brun v. Mann [C. C. A.] 151 F. 145.

54. Petition to enforce execution of order held, in absence of good excuse for delay, barred after twenty years by analogy to statute of limitations relating to liens of judgment, there being no express statutory provision on the subject. White v. Horn, 224 Ill. 233, 79 N. E. 629, affg. 127 Ill. App. 222. Existence of dower interest, and fact that lands had been worth nothing in market until shortly before petition was filed, held not to excuse delay of twenty-three years. Id.

55. See § 15, post.

56. See 7 C. L. 1438.

57. Subject of sale is title of decedent at his death. Denman v. Payne [Ala.] 44 So. 635. Purchaser at sale of decedent's equitable interest under bond for deed held to take place of decedent and his heirs, and to be entitled to conveyance from vendor agreements, and warranties of the representative are not binding on the estate.<sup>59</sup> Confirmation passes the equitable title to the purchaser,<sup>60</sup> fixes his liability for the amount of his bid,<sup>61</sup> and cures irregularities of procedure.<sup>62</sup> A purchaser buying land at a specific price cannot afterwards contend that what he bought included and carried back to him any portion of the money he expressly agreed to give.<sup>63</sup>

The heirs may have the sale set aside for fraud,<sup>64</sup> or where the representative,<sup>65</sup> or a commissioner appointed to make the sale,<sup>66</sup> himself becomes the purchaser. The reversal of a decree, in a suit in equity for the settlement of the estate, confirming the commissioner's report of debts and ordering a sale for their payment, because of irregularities in the proof of claims, does not affect the title of the purchaser.<sup>67</sup> Infant heirs need not wait until they become of age before suing to set aside a sale invalid as to them, and hence the chancellor may order a resale on petition of the representative because of such invalidity where they, by their guardian, join in the application.<sup>68</sup>

§ 8. Subjection of property in hands of heirs or beneficiaries to payment of debts.<sup>69</sup>—By statute in many states, heirs and devisees are liable to the extent of the only upon paying balance of purchase price, vendor not being confined to remedy of collecting claim for balance against estate in same manner as other creditors. Fitzgerald v. Turner, 223 Ill. 322, 79 N. E. 76.

59. Agreement between representative and mortgagee that mortgaged land should be sold under order of court to pay debts, that purchaser should get whole title, and that mortgage should be paid out of proceeds, held not to have relieved administrator of duty to take assignment of mortgage on payment of mortgage debt, since nothing but deceased mortgagor's equity of redemption was sold, and sale did not affect liability of estate for debt. Denman v. Payne [Ala.] 44 So. 635.

60. Confirmation of sale made pursuant to order of court, granted after hearing upon due notice, held to have passed equitable title to land to innocent purchaser, and to have entitled him to deed on payment or tender of purchase price. Lake v. Hathaway [Kan.] 89 P. 666. Fact that after sale was ordered, and before it was made, heirs of testator, including executrix, entered into contract to settle indebtedness without sale of realty, which contract was not brought to notice of purchaser or attention of court until after sale was confirmed and deed approved, held not to have deprived court of jurisdiction to confirm sale, nor to have affected rights of purchaser. Id.

61. Dull v. Slater, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 488.

62. Fact that sale was made on terms differing from those prescribed held irregularity cured by confirmation. Sipe v. Taylor, 106 Va. 231, 55 S. E. 542. Any objection to validity of sale must be made by purchaser at the return of the sale, and if he submits to decree confirming it he cannot afterwards attack validity of sale in action to enforce it, or contend that what he bought included portion of money he agreed to pay for land. Dull v. Slater, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 488.

63. Dull v. Slater, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 488. Where land sold was charged with sum of money, interest of which was payable to decedent's mother for life, and principal after her death to heirs of decedent's father, and sale was made subject to such charge, part of purchase price to be retained by purchaser to satisfy it, and sale was confirmed without objection, held that purchaser could not, after widow's death, contend that shares of certain of the heirs merged in estate which he acquired by said purchase. Id.

64. Where heirs seeking to recover property sold must, in order to prove title, resort to evidence allunde the record, and facts showing fraud on part of adversary, they may sue in equity or in ejectment. Steinberg v. Saltzman, 130 Wis. 419, 110 N. W. 198. Complaint held to show probable ground for relief, notwithstanding delay. Id. Complaint in action to set aside sale held to sufficiently allege fraud. Id. Allegations on information and belief challenging title on ground that no license to sell was granted held insufficient, matter being one of public record in regard to which truth was readily ascertainable. Id.

65. See § 9A, post.

66. Where commissioner purchased land through third person, held that there was no sale, but title remained in heirs. Penn v. Rhoades, 30 Ky. L. R. 997, 100 S. W. 288. Heirs held not estopped by conduct from questioning validity of sale. Id. Heirs held properly required to refund purchase money as condition precedent to having title quieted in them. Id.

67. Spradlin v. Stanley's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 928, 99 S. W. 965.

68. Land was sold without appraisement required by statute, and purchased by widow as administratrix. Subsequently she, believing title to be invalid, instituted suit to set sale aside and for resale. Infant children, by guardian, answered, admitting allegations of petition and joining in prayer for resale. Chancellor ordered resale at which larger price was obtained. Held that chancellor had jurisdiction to order resale, and that purchasers acquired good title, action serving same purpose as though instituted by children. Grunewald v. Cox [Ky.] 103 S. W. 275.

estate received by them for the debts and liabilities of the testator,<sup>70</sup> not barred by limitations.<sup>71</sup> An heir or devisee discharging such a liability is entitled to contribution from each of the others in proportion to the value of the estate received.<sup>72</sup> The right to take land under an execution on a judgment rendered against decedent during his lifetime,<sup>73</sup> or against his representative after his death,<sup>74</sup> depends on the statutes of the various states. In some states, on a sale of realty in an action for partition, provision may be made for the payment of debts outstanding against the 70. St. 1903, §§ 2084, 2088. Ferguson v. Worrall [Ky.] 101 S. W. 966. To extent of assets received, if heir dies and estate received by him from testator passes to his heir or devisee, it is liable as if in hands of original devisee. Id. Where there is no personality, remedy of creditors is to subject realty to their demands or to obtain personal judgment against devisees on account of assets received, under St. 1903, § 2084. Withers' Adm'r v. Withers' Heirs, 30 Ky. L. R. 1099, 100 S. W. 253. Promise by devisee to pay funeral expenses for which she was liable to extent of assets received by her, and which were lien on property devised to her, held not within statute of frauds. Id. Promise held not without consideration, she having received assets of estate, and being to that extent liable for debts under St. 1903, § 2084. Id. Action by creditor, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1483 et seq., against sole heir to recover amount due on promissory note executed by decedent, praying that same be collected out of property descending to heir, or, in case of its sale in pending partition proceeding, that it be charged as lien upon, and paid out of, defendant's share of proceeds, held one on contract and for recovery of money only, justifying attachment under §§ 635, 636, where defendant was nonresident. Avery v. Avery, 52 Misc. 297, 102 N. Y. S. 955. Where property has passed into hands of sole devisee and independent executor, held that he held same subject to debts of estate and might be sued by creditor of estate and property condemned to payment of debt regardless of in which capacity he held it. Tison v. Gass [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 751. Petition in suit for that purpose held not multifarious. Id. Judgment disposing of all issues as to all parties held final though it did not in terms dispose of case against defendant in his capacity as executor. Id. Where defendant had taken possession of estate as owner under will making him sole devisee and independent executor, held that, in suit to reach and condemn property to satisfaction of plaintiff's claim against decedent, defendant could not set up rights of other creditors as defense without at least making them parties and seeking to have property in his hands properly applied to payment of all debts. Id.

71. Claim for funeral expenses based on oral contract held governed by five year statute of limitations. Withers' Adm'r v. Withers' Heirs, 30 Ky. L. R. 1099, 100 S. W. 253. Promise by executor to pay debt held only to bind personal estate in his hands, and not to prevent running of limitations in favor of heirs to whom title to realty passed directly under will. Id. Evidence held to show direct and unequivocal promise by devisees to pay claim. Id. Absence of devisees from state held to have estopped running of limitations as to them. Id. Fact that by will property is devised subject to debts and funeral expenses merely gives creditors lien on property, and does not affect running of limitations as to funeral expenses or debts. Id. Action by bank against heirs and distributees to recover amount of overdraft by testator and to enjoin executor from paying out funds to them held barred when not brought until more than two years after grant of letters, though overdraft was not discovered until after that time owing to mistake in bookkeeping. Lawrence County Bk. v. Arendt, 80 Ark. 523, 98 S. W. 356. Judgment was rendered against administrators of deceased surety on bond in suit in equity on bond, to which they were parties, in 1871, but, owing to litigation carried on by them, decree adjudging amount of estate's liability was not entered in said cause until 1902. Held that suit against heirs at law to charge realty in their hands with amount found due, instituted within five years after decree of 1902, was not barred by Code 1904, § 2920, limiting time within which claims may be proved to five years after qualification of representative, claim having been proved by judgment of 1871, and decree of 1902, being conclusive that debt was not barred by limitations as against estate. Sipe v. Taylor, 106 Va. 231, 55 S. E. 542.

72. St. 1903, § 2073. Recovery of judgment by creditor against heir or devisee not condition precedent to right of contribution, though payment before judgment is at risk of person making it. Ferguson v. Worrall [Ky.] 101 S. W. 966. Defendant held to have been discharged from liability by agreement settling will contest. Id.

73. Since death of one against whom judgment has been recovered puts an end to it until it has been revived against his representatives, held that execution issued after death of one of several judgment defendants, without revivor, was void as to him, and did not stop running of limitations. People's Bk. of Kentucky's Assignee v. Barbour, 30 Ky. L. R. 712, 99 S. W. 608. Judgment creditor of decedent, more than ten years after rendition of judgment, served on his widow and children notice of application for leave to issue execution under Code Civ. Proc. § 1380. Thereafter widow and children gave mortgage on property to third person who took with notice, and certain of the children conveyed their interest to mother. Held that lien of judgment creditor was superior to mortgage and deed, though, under § 1252, notice of levy could not be recorded until execution was issued, which could not be done until leave was obtained. Lyons Nat. Bk. v. Schuler, 115 App. Div. 859, 101 N. Y. S. 62.

estate of a decedent, to whose interest one of the parties has succeeded as devisee and representative, by directing the retention from his share of a sufficient sum for that purpose.<sup>75</sup>

76. See 7 C. L. 1443.

77. Administrator held properly charged with face of mortgage due estate, which had been paid, and interest up to time of appraisal of assets, but not with interest after that time, it being presumed, in absence of proof, that past due debts were promptly collected. Knapp v. Jessup, 146 Mich. 348, 109 N. W. 666. Claim against executor for rents of portion of estate received during settlement held properly allowed. In re Van Auken's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 782. In action by distributees against administrator and surety for account and settlement and to recover sum due them, held that plaintiffs were not compelled to take sale of certain securities, alleged to have been made by administrator, at time he made it, as conclusive evidence of their value, but could establish actual market value by any competent evidence. State v. Johnson, 144 N. C. 257, 56 S. E. 922. Administrator charged with value of certain personalty belonging to estate and disposed of by him. Wolfe v. Morgan, 61 W. Va. 287, 56 S. E. 504. Findings of commissioner, based on conflicting evidence and approved by chancellor, charging administrator with value of certain lumber sold, and certain sum for rentals, sustained on appeal. Id. Judgment for plaintiff, in suit by executor and others for settlement of estate in which claim of defendants that executor and another had jointly converted assets of estate was determined in executor's favor, held bar to another action against executor individually and said third person for same conversion, at least in so far as executor was concerned, though third person was not party to original suit. Clement v. Clement [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 575, 99 S. W. 138. Evidence held insufficient to support finding that defendant's testator received certain property as executor of his first wife. Volhard v. Volhard, 104 N. Y. S. 578. Evidence held not to show that decedent turned over money to person afterwards appointed administrator for purpose of defrauding his creditors, so as to preclude heirs from recovering same. Kirby v. Moore, 30 Ky. L. R. 1020, 99 S. W. 1156. Evidence held to show that fund deposited by decedent in name of himself and his daughter, who was his executrix, was so deposited for purpose of restoring to her money earned by her and deposited with him for safe keeping, so that it was error to surcharge her account with the amount thereof. Carlin v. Carlin [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1018. Objection to jurisdiction of surrogate to pass on claim of administratrix that all property returned by her as assets belonged to her personally held not an admission that she was in possession of property under claim of gift, or that she personally owned it. In re Cavanagh, 105 N. Y. S. 850. Evidence held insufficient to show that deposits assigned by decedent to executor belonged to estate. In re Archer's Estate, 51 Misc. 260, 100 N. Y. S. 1095. Evidence held to sustain finding that decedent gave certain sum to administrator. Yeager's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 202.

78. Payment by executor of mortgage on lands devised to him held unauthorized, so that item therefor was properly disallowed. In re Humphrey, 54 Misc. 198, 105 N. Y. S. 922. Evidence held insufficient to show agreement by testatrix to pay mortgage on land devised to executor, but at most to show intention to make gift which she afterwards decided not to do. Id. Every person having vested interest in estate having signed paper protecting executors in payment of certain claims, and releasing them from any responsibility for so doing, held that they were estopped to question same on accounting, and that item therefor would be allowed, there being nothing to show that claims were not just and proper. In re Robinson, 53 Misc. 205, 104 N. Y. S. 599. Burden held on contestant to show impropriety of payment to counsel for services rendered deceased during her lifetime. In re Dittrich, 53 Misc. 511, 105 N. Y. S. 301. An accounting of natural tutrix of minor heirs administering succession of her deceased husband, held that evidence did not sustain claim for note donated by husband and not paid by tutrix as averred. Gaspard v. Coco, 116 La. 1096, 41 So. 326. Evidence held to sustain finding that natural tutrix of minor heirs administering succession of her deceased husband had paid certain claims against his estate for which she was entitled to credit. Id. Evidence held to justify credit to administrator for caring for widow, it being understood by heirs that he should do so. Knapp v. Jessup, 146 Mich. 348, 109 N. W. 666. Evidence held to show that claim for services rendered decedent, and for which he agreed to pay fair compensation, was reasonable, so that executrix was properly allowed sum expended in paying it, particularly as objectors acquiesced in its allowance. In re Branch's Estate, 123 Mo. App. 573, 100 S. W. 516. Executor credited with amount paid for nursing deceased. In re Ramsay's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 410. Item for board of children of executor and decedent disallowed, evidence showing that he never intended to charge therefor. Id. Executor held entitled to credit for payment on account of principal sum of mortgage given by testatrix on land belonging to estate, in which executor and his children were equally interested. Id. Also for interest paid on mortgages given by decedent during her lifetime. Id. Administrator held and the expenses of administration.<sup>79</sup> On his removal he must account to his successor for all such property.<sup>80</sup> He is not personally responsible for property held by decedent as life tenant which never came into his hands.<sup>81</sup> The representative of a deceased representative can only be charged with so much of the property of the estate as comes into his hands.<sup>82</sup> Though a temporary administrator has no authority to pay legacies, he will be given credit on accounting for the amount of a legacy paid by him, provided the party receiving it is entitled to it, and the estate is able and liable to pay it after all prior charges are provided for.<sup>83</sup>

The rights, duties, and liabilities of testamentary trustees are entirely separate and distinct from those of the executor.<sup>84</sup> Where the same person is both executor and testamentary trustee,<sup>85</sup> or representative and guardian,<sup>86</sup> his liability in one capacity does not cease, nor his liability in the other commence, until he has turned the property held by him in the former capacity over to himself in the latter capacity.

In the management of the estate the representative is bound to act with that degree of skill and diligence which an ordinarily prudent man would exercise in the direction and management of his own affairs under like circumstances,<sup>87</sup> and where he does so, is not ordinarily liable for losses.<sup>88</sup> He is, however, liable for losses entitled to credit for balance found due creditor of estate, which he paid. Wolfe v. Morgan, 61 W. Va. 287, 56 S. E. 504. Where executor paid claims barred by limitations, etc., and which were not proved according to law, after making of order directing him to settle his accounts and order of reference to commissioner in suit to settle estate, held that he did so at his own risk, and that loss must fall on him rather than on estate, particularly where petition in action for settlement alleged that he was about to pay barred claims, and he knew that it did. Hannen v. Harrod, 30 Ky. L. R. 976, 99 S. W. 976. Not entitled to credit for amount expended in paying claim barred by special statute of limitations. Kenyon v. East Greenwich Probate Ct., 27 R. I. 566, 65 A. 267.

79. See § 9D, post.

80. For right of administrator de bonis non to recover property converted by his successor, see § 4A, ante.

81. In action against executrix to recover property alleged to have been received by her testator under will giving him estate for life with remainder over, held that she could only be compelled to account therefor as executrix, and no personal judgment could be recovered against her. Volhard v. Volhard, 104 N. Y. S. 573.

82. Estate of deceased executor held properly charged with interest on mortgage investment traced into his hands. In re Rossell, 105 N. Y. S. 1098. Evidence held insufficient to support finding that legacy was in hands of executor at time of his death, so that his estate was improperly charged therewith. Id.

83. Administrator pendente lite. Steelman v. Wheaton [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 195.

84. Where trustees assumed duties of testamentary trust, held that neither beneficiary of trust nor her administrator could call upon executor to execute trust or compel him to account as trustee, nor compel him to account for trust fund if he failed to pay it over to trustee. Atwill v. Dole [N. H.] 67 A. 403. Failure of testamentary trustees to give official bond held not to have imposed upon executor duties of administering trust. Id.

85. Mere retention of fund by executor and trustee held not to have operated to terminate his liability as executor and to have imposed liability on him as trustee, in absence of an affirmative act showing his intention to hold it as trustee. Fleming v. Walker [Ala.] 44 So. 536.

86. Where administratrix was also guardian of decedent's minor children, held that receipt by her as guardian to herself as administratrix for sum belonging to minors, without any actual payment of the money, did not operate to discharge herself and her sureties as administratrix, or to impose any liability on herself or her sureties as guardian. In re Switzer, 201 Mo. 66, 98 S. W. 461. See, also, State v. Whitehouse [Conn.] 67 A. 503.

87. If his acts stand test of this rule, cannot be held liable for any loss sustained by estate. Christy v. Christy, 226 Ill. 547, 80 N. E. 242, affg. 125 Ill. App. 442. Must at least show that he exercised such prudence and diligence in paying claim where there is no judgment effective for his protection. In re Watson, 115 App. Div. 310, 100 N. Y. S. 993. Direction in will to sell land as soon as same could be sold without sacrifice held to refer to time when land could be sold, and to have in no way lessened measure of executrix's duty when she decided to sell. In re Branch's Estate, 123 Mo. App. 573, 100 S. W. 516. Discretionary power given executors by will to compromise, compound, and discharge debts must be exercised by them at their peril, and their action will be approved or disapproved according to whether, in view of all facts, it was for best interests of estate. Brown v. Brown [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 739.

88. Administrator held not liable for loss due to failure to collect purchase price of lands sold under order of court where purchaser was insolvent. Denman v. Payne [Ala.] 44 So. 635. Administrator held not liable for failure to obtain higher price for corporate stock, there being no evidence of fraud or bad faith. Christy v. Christy, 226 Ill. 547, due to his negligence.<sup>89</sup> or to his unauthorized acts or omissions.<sup>90</sup> It is his duty to administer the estate as directed by the will, and he is personally liable to legatees for the amount of their legacies where he fails to do so.<sup>91</sup>

In the performance of his duties, the representative must act with the highest degree of fidelity and the utmost good faith.<sup>92</sup> As in the case of other trustees, he may not use or deal with the property of the estate to his own personal advantage.<sup>93</sup>

80 N. E. 242, afg., 125 Ill. App. 442. Failure to obtain order of court for sale of personality held to impose no higher degree of diligence than he would be otherwise bound to exercise. Id. Not liable for error of judgment, in absence of showing of bad faith or negligence. In re Ring's Estate, 132 Iowa, 216, 109 N. W. 710. Not liable for failure to make opportune sale though has order for sale of all personality. Id. Fact that he acted upon request of the widow or heirs will excuse him, in absence of showing of bad faith. Id. Where widow requested him not to sell personality to one making offer therefor, held that fact that he did not do so did not render him personally liable for expenses thereafter incurred in caring for it, or deprive him of right to compensation for so doing. Id. Administrator held not liable for loss due to failure of bank where there was nothing to show that he was negligent in depositing funds therein. Knapp v. Jessup, 146 Mich. 348, 109 N. W. 666. Evidence held to show that executrix obtained full rental value of land leased by her. In re Branch's Estate, 123 Mo. App. 573, 100 S. W. 516. Where purchase and retention of securities by executors and trustees was within scope of discretionary power given them by will, held that they would not be charged with any loss incurred by reason of shrinkage in value. In re Hawk's Estate, 54 Misc. 187, 105 N. Y. S. 856.

89. Administrator held not liable for loss due to failure of bank in which funds were deposited on ground that he was dilatory in settlement of estate where he had right to retain funds for care of widow, and it was understood by heirs that he should do so. Knapp v. Jessup, 146 Mich. 348, 109 N. W. 666. Executrix held not negligent in selling land to son because she did not try to obtain other bids or place land on market. In re Branch's Estate, 123 Mo. App. 573, 100 S. W. 516. Evidence held to show that executrix sold land for reasonable market value. Id. Evidence held not to show that better price could have been obtained. Id. Executor held guilty of negligence in paying claim. In re Watson, 115 App. Div. 310, 100 N. Y. S. 993. If he negligently allows an invalid claim to go to judgment, judgment will afford him no protection, and he may be properly charged with amount paid thereon. Id. Executors surcharged with amount of invalid claim where, though doubtful as to its validity, they failed to make any defense or even to disclose facts. Id. Executor held not chargeable with waste under Vt. St. 2412, providing that when administrator neglects or unreasonably delays to raise money by collecting debts or selling property of estate, or neglects to pay over money in his hands, and value of estate is thereby lessened, or unnecessary cost or interest ac-crues, or persons interested suffer loss, same shall be deemed waste, and damages sustained may be charged and allowed against him in his account, or he shall be liable therefor on his bond. In re Lane's Estate, 79 Vt. 323, 65 A. 102.

90. Where paper purporting to be consent decree, in case to which administrator was party, was inoperative as judgment because court was without jurisdiction, held that, even though it was operative as agreement to which administrator was party, it did not preclude heirs from calling administrator to account for any matter therein charging estate with claims with which it was not chargeable, or which provided for distribution of assets in any other manner than that authorized by law. Sapp v. Williamson [Ga.] 58 S. E. 447. It being duty of representative to insure barn, held that, where he did not do so, he was not entitled to credit for amount expended in rebuilding it after its destruction by fire, even though deceased was unwilling to have it insured in her lifetime. In re Ramsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 410. Administrator selling chattels and taking neither cash nor security for purchase money held chargeable with amount thereof. Wolfe v. Morgan, 61 W. Va. 287, 56 S. E. 504.

91. Where administrators with will annexed failed to convert realty and personality into money and pay legacy out of proceeds as directed by will, though it appeared that there was sufficient property for that purpose, but administered estate regardless of will, held that they were properly charged with amount of legacies as found in their hands, at instance of one having interest in remainder therein. Hardin v. Hassell [Tenn.] 100 S. W. 720.

92. Christy v. Christy, 226 Ill. 547, 80 N. E. 242, afg. 125 Ill. App. 442. Where administratrix assented to an amicable action on claim against estate, made no defense thereto, gave testimony in favor of plaintiff, and was beneficially interested in obtaining an award in plaintiff's favor, held that law would infer fraud and collusion, administratrix having placed herself in position where her duty as such and her personal interest were in conflict. White v. Penuel [Del.] 66 A. 362.

93. Cannot take assignment of mortgage on his intestate's land and exercise power of sale therein to foreclose interests of heirs. Morton v. Blades Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 31, 56 S. E. 551. May with his own funds purchase and take an assignment of a note outstanding against his intestate and avail himself of any securities held by creditor. Id. Will, in such case, be subrogated to rights of creditor, but can collect from estate only amount paid out by him with interest, and will not be permitted to speculate upon or make a profit by buying in debts of his intestate, nor to use any advantage in way of securities or otherwise which he has thus acquired to injury of creditors, distributees, or heirs. Id. Judgment of nonsuit, in suit by minor heirs to set aside mortgage foreclosure sale, held erroneous in view of allegations of fraud and collusion, etc., in complaint. Id. Executors held to hold realty acquired by mortgage foreclosure in their representative capacity though deed was made to them individually. Hine v. Hine, 118 App. Div. 285, 103 N. Y. S. 535. Deceased left money in firm business, standing to her credit at time of her death. Executors turned business into corporation, and issued to themselves, as executors, stock in payment of money due by them to estate. Held that they should be charged with amount standing due deceased at time of her death, with interest, even though they were guilty of no wrongdoing. In re Boyer, 54 Misc. 182, 105 N. Y. S. 857. Title to property purchased at partition sale was taken in name of third person who furnished money to pay purchase price, and who agreed to convey to bidder on repayment thereof, bidder giving him his note for amount so paid. On death of bidder his administratrix paid note out of funds belonging to estate, and took deed in her individual capacity. Held that, note being debt of estate which she was bound to pay, she took title in trust for estate. Montgomery v. Montgomery [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1018, 99 S. W. 1145.

A purchase by him of the property of the estate at his own sale is generally held to be voidable<sup>94</sup> at the election of the heirs or other interested parties.<sup>95</sup> So, too, transfers by heirs and legatees to the representative of their interests in the estate are generally held to be void at their election.<sup>96</sup>

94. Cannot purchase at his own sale directly or through agent. Brinkerhoff v. Brinkerhoff, 226 Ill. 550, 80 N. E. 1056. Cannot purchase property and so manipulate it as to acquire title, particularly when widow and heirs are misled and imposed upon by him by reason of confidence reposed in him. Roberts v. Weimer, 227 Ill. 138, 81 N. E. 40. Administrator sold decedent's business to widow and was ordered to distribute part of purchase price to heirs. Widow subsequently transferred property to corporation organized by administrator and in which he was principal stockholder, and he paid heirs in stock at par value in lieu of cash, crediting himself with amount he was required to pay them. Held that heirs, on discovering that stock was practically worthless, had right to return stock to him and require him to account for money, and to charge himself with amount for which he had taken credit as paid. Id. Held proper to charge administrator with full amount reported as having been received by him from sale, though in excess of appraised value, and to refuse to set aside sale to corporation, since heirs had right to ratify same. Id. Heirs held not estopped to ask payment in cash and that administrator be required to account for profits of business up to time of sale to widow, they having relied on his misrepresentations and repudiated stock transfer promptly on discovering facts. Id. Executrix procured order to sell certain tract of land to pay debts, but delayed making sale, and procured sale of said tract under trust deed thereon for purpose of herself becoming purchaser. She did in fact purchase at said sale with her own funds for amount of mortgage debt with costs. Held that she would be divested of title so acquired at suit of heirs, and title revested in estate, but that she would be subrogated to rights of cestui que trust under trust deed. Stitt v. Stitt [Mo.] 103 S. W. 547. Sale of stock in trade to third person, from whom it was immediately repurchased by administratrix, held collusive, so that latter acquired no rights therein as against estate, but was bound to account for property as administratrix. In re Frey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 192. Complaint to set aside purchase of property of estate by executor held to state cause of action. Smith v. Stevenson Brew. Co., 117 App. Div. 690, 102 N. Y. S. 672. Where one executor procured transfer of property of estate to corporation formed by him for his personal benefit, held that his coexecutor was entitled to sue in his representative capacity to have transaction set aside though part of stock in said corporation had been transferred to him without consideration, and, as he claimed, without knowledge of fraud. Id. Complaint by executor alleging that his coexecutor had fraudulently procured transfer of property of estate to corporation formed by him for his personal benefit, that part of stock of said corporation had been transferred to plaintiff individually without consideration, that there were no bona fide stockholders, joining all stockholders, and praying that transfers and conveyances be declared void, or that all stock be declared to be property of executors and transferred to them, held to state cause of action in favor of plaintiff individually. Id. Sale of boat by executors to themselves, they having subsequently turned it over to corporation which they organized, held void, so that they were chargeable with it at its inventory value. In re Boyer, 54 Misc. 182, 105 N. Y. S. 857. Sale of decedent's interest in partnership by executor who had qualified to one named as executor in will who had not yet qualified, but afterwards did so, held voidable at option of residuary legatee, who was entitled to require executors to account for profits thereof, and for value of good will. In re Silkman, 105 N. Y. S. 872. Evidence held to sustain surrogate's findings as to profits. Id. Value of good will determined. Id.

95. Such a purchase is not void, but voidable only, and right to set it aside may be lost by unreasonable delay in asserting it. Brinkerhoff v. Brinkerhoff, 226 Ill. 550, 80 N. E. 1056. Where heirs, knowing that executor had furnished part of purchase price, took no steps for four years to ascertain his interest, and permitted purchaser to remain in possession during that time, held that bill to set aside sale was properly dismissed for want of equity. Id. Evidence held to show that parties seeking to set aside sale knew from day it was made, or shortly thereafter, that executor had furnished part of money put into land. Id.

96. Rule with relation to transactions between parties occupying relation of confi-

The representative is not chargeable with the rental value of property while it is occupied by persons whom the will provides may occupy it rent free,<sup>97</sup> nor after it has been turned over to a legatee in satisfaction of his legacy,<sup>98</sup> nor of property in which he has a personal interest as tenant in common where it is doubtful whether any rental could have been obtained therefor.<sup>99</sup>

The burden of showing that the representative has received property for which he has not accounted is on the party so contending.<sup>1</sup>

In Louisiana the remedy of an heir seeking to charge the representative with property claimed by him personally is by a direct action against him for its recovery,<sup>2</sup> and the remedy of one seeking to hold him personally liable for his acts is by opposition to his account.<sup>3</sup>

Subrogation of representative to rights of estate or third persons.<sup>4</sup>—A representative purchasing with his own funds an outstanding claim against the estate, and taking an assignment of a mortgage given to secure it, will be subrogated to the rights of the creditor to the extent of the amount paid with interest.<sup>5</sup> The same is true of a representative purchasing property of the estate at a sale under a trust deed.<sup>6</sup>

Executors de son tort.<sup>7</sup>—One taking possession of an estate without any administration is ordinarily chargeable with the value of all the property received by him, less all payments for which a lawful representative would have been entitled to dence held inapplicable where administrator personally took no interest in estate under deed of heir conveying to him all his interest in estate in trust for creditors. Boddie v. Ward [Ala.] 44 So. 105. Held that purchaser for value from administrator was entitled to protection where he did not participate in or have notice of undue influence practiced by his grantor in securing deed from heir, though he had knowledge or notice of existence of confidential relation. Id. Bill seeking to set aside conveyance alleged to have resulted from representations of administrator where such representations were not alleged to have been false in any respect. Id. Where deed by heir recited that estate had been judicially decreed to be insolvent, held that it was necessary for bill seeking to set aside deed and conveyance thereunder to innocent third party to negative said recital and affirm solvency of estate, claimant having no interest in estate if it was insolvent. Id. As in case of other trustees, limitations begun to run when representative repudiates his trust, and knowledge of that fact is brought home to heir. Jolly v. Miller, 30 Ky. L. R. 341, 98 S. W. 326. Heirs gave administrator power of attorney authorizing him to compromise claims belonging to estate and to sell realty. Subsequently an heir sold his entire interest in estate to administrator. In action to set aside said sale, held that heir's deed revoked power of attorney executed by him, and severed trust relation existing between himself and administrator by virtue of latter's office, and that limitations commenced to run in favor of administrator when said deed was executed and delivered. Id.

97. Clift v. Newell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 832.

98. House belonging to testator was occupied by executor and his wife at testator's death. It was subsequently agreed that wife, who was residuary legatee, should take house and lot in payment of her legacy, and executor conveyed same to her through their person. Held that executor who continued to occupy property until his death was not liable for rental value thereof after execution and delivery of deed therefor, it not appearing that transaction was not advantageous to estate. In re Lane's Estate, 79 Vt. 323, 65 A. 102.

99. In re Robinson, 53 Misc. 205, 104 N. Y. S. 599.

1. Heirs and universal legatees claiming that executor had received certain money from decedent during her lifetime for investment, which he had not accounted for or inventoried, and that he had purchased certain realty in his own name with part of said fund, which should be inventoried, held to have burden of proving those facts. Succession of Hough [La.] 44 So. 190. Evidence held insufficient to sustain allegations. Id.

2. Executrix, who in her individual capacity holds and claims as owner, under a conveyance from her testator, property which is claimed by coheir as belonging to succession, has right to demand that any attack on her title be made by means of a direct and independent action, regularly docketed and allotted, and her objection, made in limine, that such action has been begun in the succession, without allotment, is properly sustained. Const. art. 134. Succession of Kranz, 117 La. 647, 42 So. 197.

3. Proper remedy of one seeking to hold administrator personally responsible for his acts, and to contest existence of amount of expenses incurred, and distribution of balance among heirs, held to be by opposition to account filed by him, and not by direct, separate action against him. Succession of Trahan, 118 La. 762, 43 So. 400.

credit.<sup>8</sup> Statutes relating to intermeddlers have no application to a sale of realty belonging to the estate by an heir.<sup>9</sup>

(§ 9) B. Representative as debtor or creditor.<sup>10</sup>—As a general rule the representative is chargeable with his personal indebtedness to the estate as so much money in his hands for the usual purposes of administration,<sup>11</sup> in the absence of a showing that he was hopelessly insolvent at the time of his appointment, and continued in that condition during all the time of his administration up to and including the time of his final settlement,<sup>12</sup> the burden of establishing such insolvency being on him.<sup>13</sup> He cannot be permitted by virtue of his trust position to gain any advantage with reference to his own indebtedness which he would not otherwise possess.<sup>14</sup>

Personal claims of the representative against the estate must ordinarily be presented, proved, and allowed in the same manner as other claims,<sup>15</sup> and will share in the distribution of assets on the same basis as those of other creditors.<sup>16</sup> In states

8. Gen. St. vol. 2, p. 1426, § 3. Widow. Tuite v. Tuite [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 1090. Complainants permitted to amend bill seeking to charge defendant as trustee so as to make it one for an accounting from her as executor de son tort, making a representative of estate a party. Id.

9. Since he has right to sell his interest, and sale by him passes only such interest as he has, and does not preclude subsequent sale by administrator to pay debts, Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2413. Held to have no application. Tippecanoe Loan & Trust Co. v. Carr [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1043.

10. See 7 C. L. 1449.

11. State v. Johnson, 144 N. C. 257, 56 S. E. 922. He and his sureties are liable therefor on his official bond. Kirby v. Moore, 30 Ky. L. R. 1020, 99 S. W. 1156. Where administrator had property belonging to decedent in his hands immediately before his appointment, held that it devolved upon him and his surety, if they desired to show that it did not come into his hands as administrator, to show some disposition of it before date of his qualification. Id. Evidence held to show that administrator held money of decedent as his agent, so that it became assets in his hands on his qualification. Id. Administrator held properly charged with indebtedness, evidence being insufficient to show payment. Denman v. Payne [Ala.] 44 So. 635. Administrator by accepting letters held to have become chargeable with amount of indebtedness, represented by notes and checks, of firm of which he was member. In re Ablowich, 118 App. Div. 626, 103 N. Y. S. 699. Fact that letters were revoked before estate was administered, and that he turned notes and checks over to his successor, who accepted them, held not to have released original administrator from such liability. Id.

12. State v. Johnson, 144 N. C. 257, 56 S. E. 922. Evidence held to sustain finding that administrator was solvent when appointed. Id. On issue of solvency application of administrator to surety company for his official bond, in which he stated value of his estate over his liabilities, and on which bond was issued, held admissible as against him and surety. Id. Evidence as to number of docketed judgments in administrator's favor held admissible. Id.

13. State v. Johnson, 144 N. C. 257, 56 S. E. 922.

14. Son, acting as agent of his mother, collected certain rents of realty belonging to her, and, without her consent, but with that of his brother, expended them upon property in which he and his brother were jointly interested. Brother and mother died and son was appointed latter's administrator. Held that minor children of brother could compel administrator to pay to estate which he represented amount of rents so collected, though they had received by inheritance the property on which they were expended. Coffey v. Coffey, 193 Mass. 398, 79 N. E. 742.

15. Where letters provided that all claims not filed within year should be barred, held that administrator's personal claim was barred when not so filed. In re Ring's Estate, 132 Iowa, 216, 109 N. W. 710. Claim that he did not know that it was necessary held no excuse, his mistake being purely one of law, and due to his own neglect. Id. Where parties failed to agree upon arbitration under Rev. Laws, c. 141, §§ 6, 7, to pass upon personal claim of administrator, held that it became duty of court to pass upon it, as well as upon all other matters involved in his account. Wood v. Farwell [Mass.] 81 N. E. 294. Representative administering insolvent estate under the statute may present his own claim, and, unless it is made to appear to be dishonest or fraudulent, may be admitted to participate in distribution of assets on same footing as other creditors. Wheedon v. Nichols [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 445. Mere fact that general statute of limitations has run against claim does not, without further proof, justify inference that claim is dishonest. Id. He cannot, in such case, elect to proceed at law or in equity against himself as other claimants might do, but jurisdiction of orphans' court is exclusive. Id. Claim of executor for services rendered decedent during his lifetime cannot be allowed where it does not appear that any price therefor was agreed on, and reasonable value of such services is not shown. In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020. Claim allowed in part and rejected in part. Id.

16. Wheedon v. Nichols [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 445. Executor of insolvent estate cannot retain full amount of debt owing to him by estate, but must accept dividend same as other creditors. In re Wiley's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 212.

where the representative may waive the general statute of limitations, his personal claim cannot be disallowed solely on the ground of the running of limitations unless it is shown to be dishonest or fraudulent.<sup>17</sup>

(§ 9) C. Interest on property or funds.<sup>18</sup>—As a general rule the representative is not chargeable with interest unless he has actually received it, or where, from culpable delay in settling his accounts, it may be fairly inferred that he has made a profit out of the funds in his hands,<sup>19</sup> nor with interest on funds in his hands uninvested during the period allowed by law for the settlement of the estate.<sup>20</sup> He will, however, be charged with interest on money paid out without authority of law,<sup>21</sup> or used by him for his own individual benefit.<sup>22</sup>

In calculating interest it should ordinarily be charged on each year's balance from its close,<sup>23</sup> with annual rests.<sup>24</sup>

(§ 9) D. Allowance for expenses, costs, counsel fees, and funeral expenses.<sup>25</sup>—The representative is entitled to a reasonable allowance for all necessary expenses incurred by him in the care, management, and settlement of the estate,<sup>26</sup> even when acting, in good faith, under a voidable order of appointment,<sup>27</sup> but not for expenses incurred because of his own negligence or neglect of duty.<sup>28</sup> Thus, he has been held to be entitled to credit for sums necessarily expended for traveling expenses,<sup>29</sup> repairs,<sup>30</sup> taxes,<sup>31</sup> insurance,<sup>32</sup> caring for crops on leased land,<sup>33</sup> and collecting claims.<sup>34</sup>

17. Since statute relating to administration of insolvent estates does not require representative to interpose limitations as defense against claim of third person, on which latter elects to proceed by action at law or suit in equity, running of limitations is not bar to his own honest claim which is necessarily tried before orphans' court. Wheedon v. Nichols [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 445.

18. See 7 C. L. 1450.

19. Administrator held not chargeable personally with interest on funds held by him pending his appeal from decree of distribution, appeal not being frivolous, he not having made any profit on said fund, and it not appearing that he could have profitably invested it. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 38 P. 957.

20. During year allowed for settlement. Wyckoff v. O'Neil [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 32, afg. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 982.

21. Executor not being entitled to commissions until his accounts have been settled and allowed by court, held that he would be charged with interest to time of accounting on money withdrawn on account of commissions prior to settlement. Wyckoff v. O'Neil [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 32, afg. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 982. Burden held on contestant to show that executor could with reasonable diligence have received six per cent interest on funds wrongfully withdrawn. In re Silkman, 105 N. Y. S. 872.

22. Where executors turned decedent's business into corporation, and issued to themselves as executors stock therein in payment of money due by them to estate, held that they would be charged with amount standing due deceased from business at her death, with interest. In re Boyer, 54 Misc. 182, 105 N. Y. S. 857.

23. Wolfe v. Morgan, 61 W. Va. 287, 56 S. E. 504.

24. Court in statement of administrator's account made annual stops and rests, crediting him with current expenses of administration, and charging him with interest at eight per cent on balance from year to year to date of final settlement, though usual exculpatory affidavit was filed. Held that distributees were not prejudiced. Howard v. Rutherford [Ala.] 43 So. 30.

25. See 7 C. L. 1450.

26. Is within judicial discretion of chancery court to appropriate corpus of estate to reimbursement of administrator for expenses incurred in and about estate in matters which would have been authorized by court had previous application been made therefor. Johnson v. Porterfield [Ala.] 43 So. 228. Oath of administrator held to justify allowance of items for expenses of administration. Wolfe v. Morgan, 61 W. Va. 287, 56 S. E. 504.

27. On revocation of appointment, where letters were not void for want of jurisdiction. Code Civ. Proc. § 4043. In re Owen's Estate [Utah] 91 P. 283.

28. Executor held not entitled to allowance for penalty collected for failure to pay inheritance taxes on time, or for interest on amount of such tax after expiration of year, at which time he was bound to pay them. Wyckoff v. O'Neil [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 32, rvg. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 982.

29. Expenses incurred in dealing with certain mortgage securities. Wyckoff v. O'Neil [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 32, rvg. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 982.

30. Executor held entitled to credit for amount spent in repairing and painting house in which he and his two children resided, both property and fund from which payment was made belonging to the three equally, and also for painting another house. In re Ramsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 410.

31. State and county taxes assessed against estate and paid by him. Howard v. Rutherford [Ala.] 43 So. 30. Collateral inheritance taxes paid by him on legacies, and interest collected thereon under statute for one year at six per cent, though it was his duty to deduct such tax at settlement with legatees. Wyckoff v. O'Neil [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 32, rvg. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 932. Held error to charge executrix personally with amount of tax paid Federal government which was not proper charge against estate, it being conceded that same could be recovered back under law as interpreted by Federal courts. In re Marx, 117 App. Div. 890, 103 N. Y. S. 446.

There is a conflict of authority as to whether he is entitled to be reimbursed for the cost of a surety bond.<sup>35</sup>

He is entitled to a reasonable allowance for necessary attorney's fees<sup>36</sup> and the costs and expenses of litigation necessarily incurred,<sup>37</sup> even though such litigation is unsuccessful,<sup>38</sup> but not for attorney's fees incurred in litigation for his individual benefit,<sup>39</sup> or rendered necessary by his improper conduct,<sup>40</sup> nor for the performance

32. Item for insurance premiums disallowed, there being no evidence to support it. In re Wiley's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 212.

33. In re Ring's Estate, 132 Iowa, 216, 109 N. W. 710.

34. Money paid society for obtaining money from debtor of intestate in Germany, and taking proceedings to recover half of it from intestate's father, the expectant, to whom it was improperly paid. In re Frey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 192.

35. Administrator held not entitled to allowance for sum paid guaranty company for becoming surety on his bond, it being his duty to furnish bond. Hays v. Johnson's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 614, 99 S. W. 332.

36. Where counsel are employed and render services in prosecuting and defending claims, etc., administrators are entitled to be allowed reasonable counsel fees, paid or to be paid. Ward v. Koenig [Md.] 67 A. 236. Previous order of orphans' court authorizing employment is not necessary to justify allowance. Id. Compensation should not be greater because three counsel were employed instead of one. Id.

Propriety of allowance for particular services and amount to be allowed determined. Howard v. Rutherford [Ala.] 43 So. 30; Hays v. Johnson's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 614, 99 S. W. 332; Ward v. Koenig [Md.] 67 A. 236; Wyckoff v. O'Neil [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 32, rvg. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 932; In re Wiley's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 212; In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020. For successfully resisting motion to remove executor. In re Boyer, 54 Misc. 182, 105 N. Y. S. 857. For successfully defending suit attacking title of testator to realty and his right to dispose of same by will, and for damages, whether suit was technically one against him as executor or individually. Ackermann v. Ackermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 99 S. W. 889. Where agreement by devisees established legacy and gave legatees lien on certain realty for amount thereof, held that it was duty of executor to defend suit by devisees attacking status of legatee's claim, and that he was entitled to employ counsel at expense of estate for that purpose, though legatee also employed counsel. Id.

Items for fees disallowed: Fees for extra counsel, where no reason appeared why counsel regularly retained at regular salary could not have conducted litigation. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 88 P. 957. For advising administratrix, where latter mismanaged estate and objections to account were sustained. In re Frey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 192. Fees incurred in resisting application for additional time in which to elect between will and dower, interests of estate not having required such resistance. In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020. Fees incurred in unsuccessful attempt to procure removal of coexecutor. In re Archer's Estate, 51 Misc. 260, 100 N. Y. S. 1095. For services on probate of will, as not necessary or beneficial, executor, who was himself an attorney, having done all the work. In re Wick's Estate, 53 Misc. 211, 104 N. Y. S. 717. Fees in defending small claim and allowance therefor limited to taxable costs and disbursements. Id.

37. Will not be charged personally with costs of action or defense unless it appears that he was guilty of mismanagement or bad faith with reference thereto. Code Civ. Proc. § 1859. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 88 P. 957. Where representatives of two estates appealed, using one transcript and one brief, held that cost of preparing same should be divided and representative on one of said estates was not entitled to allowance of more than half amount so expended. Id.

Items allowed: Costs and guardian ad litem fees. Howard v. Rutherford [Ala.] 43 So. 30. Sum paid security company for becoming security on administrator's appeal bond to supersede judgment against estate. Hays v. Johnson's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 614, 99 S. W. 332. Costs and expenses of litigation and costs of appeal. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 88 P. 957. Amount paid for copies of answers in chancery suits which executor was justified in defending. In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020.

38. Fact that services may have proved unsuccessful does not preclude allowance, where there was reasonable grounds for instituting or defending proceedings. Ward v. Koenig [Md.] 67 A. 236. Appeal by administrator with will annexed held justified so that he was properly credited with costs thereof though unsuccessful. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 88 P. 957.

39. Fees incurred by executrix in suit instituted by her in which she set up claim in hostility to estate. Brown v. Cresap, 61 W. Va. 315, 56 S. E. 603.

40. Executor failing to appeal from assessment of collateral inheritance taxes in foreign state within time allowed by law held not entitled to allowance for fees expended in subsequent attempt to have such assessment opened for purpose of discharging himself from liability. In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020. Refusal of executor to render account on demand held not to preclude allowance to him for fees incurred in defending account in suit for accounting, etc., by heirs, it appearing that if he had rendered them the account filed in said suit they would not have been satisfied therewith, and suit would still have been necessary to settle of services which it was his duty to personally perform.<sup>41</sup> He will, ordinarily be allowed the expense of probating the will and procuring the appointment of a representative.<sup>42</sup> There is a conflict of authority as to whether he will be reimbursed for expenses incurred in defending a will admitted to probate.<sup>43</sup>

The burden is on the representative to show that the expenditures for which he seeks reimbursement were in fact made,<sup>44</sup> and that they were necessary.<sup>45</sup>

Funeral expenses.<sup>46</sup>—The reasonable funeral expenses of deceased are a proper charge against his estate.<sup>47</sup>

(§ 9) E. Rights and liabilities of corepresentatives.<sup>48</sup>—An executor to whom the will gives the right to use the personalty for life as legatee is entitled to exclusive possession thereof as against his coexecutor.<sup>49</sup> Knowledge of one representative in regard to the affairs of the estate is generally the knowledge of all.<sup>50</sup> An attorney employed by one of several representatives will be held to represent them all where the others know that he is acting for the estate and do not object.<sup>51</sup> All corepresentatives must ordinarily join in the exercise of powers conferred on them jointly.<sup>52</sup> One representative may sue his corepresentative where questions arise between the estate and the latter jeopardizing the rights of person interested in the estate.<sup>53</sup> A representative who refuses to or cannot join in a complaint by his corepresentative may be made a party defendant.<sup>54</sup>

11. Ackerman v. Ackerman [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 99 S. W. 889.

41. Not for preparing account. In re Ramsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 410. Not for services in preparing and defending account, where executor was member of bar, and it did not appear that he did not prepare his own account, and account was surcharged with excessive amount paid for counsel fees. In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020. Not for services in examining contents of safe, etc., and assorting and arranging papers and accounts of deceased, or in preparing final account. In re Wiley's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 212. Not for services not of legal character, which should have been performed by executor personally. In re Archer's Estate, 51 Misc. 260, 100 N. Y. S. 1095.

42. Expense of probating will and procuring letters of administration with will annexed on death of executor allowed. In re Pearce's Estate, 53 Misc. 215, 104 N. Y. S. 469. Fifty dollars allowed for services of counsel in advising executor as to manner of probating will, course he should pursue, and attendance at court to prove will. In re Wiley's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 212.

43. Duty of executor to defend will from attack does not confer upon him an unqualified right to incur and charge against estate all items of expenditure in so doing that he may see fit, but he can only be allowed for such expenditures as are necessary and are made in defending attack upon original probate in good faith, in view of fact that Code Civ. Proc. § 1332, gives court discretionary power to determine whether, when resistance is unsuccessful, executor shall be charged with them or they shall be paid out of estate. In re Dillon's Estate, 149 Cal. 683, 87 P. 379. Where account of executor was filed pending determination of petition to revoke probate and to admit alleged later will, held error to allow items for expenditures in defending first will, but such items should have been retired from account for consideration after contest had been determined. Id. Held duty of executor to defend ejectment suit brought to test validity of will, so that he was entitled to reasonable counsel fee for that purpose. In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020.

44. Items excepted to. In re Wiley's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 212. Evidence held to show payment for burial lot, headstone, etc. In re Frey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 192. Representative is himself competent witness on question of payment. Id.

45. That expenditures for attorney's fees were rendered necessary by requirements of estate. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 88 P. 957.

46. See 7 C. L. 1453.

55. Provided he has not intentionally or otherwise contributed to it, and has not made himself liable by execution of bond. Fleming v. Walker [Ala.] 44 So. 536. Executor held not liable for devastavit of co-executor who had sole control, custody, and management of fund. Id. In absence of proof that executor had transferred fund to himself as trustee, held that his co-executor and trustee could not be held liable as cotrustee for his devastavit. Id. Evidence held not to show transfer. Id.

56. Where executor, by signing checks in blank, enabled coexecutor to draw and misappropriate funds of estate, held that his account was properly surcharged with amount misappropriated. In re Ramsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 410. Executor held not guilty of breach of trust or negligent omission of duty because he left management of estate to the coexecutor, where he was in poor health and coexecutor was an attorney in good practice who had acted as decedent's attorney before latter's death and was apparently competent and trustworthy in every respect. *Hine v. Where, pursuant to authority conferred by will, executors sold realty for certain sum, and reserved ground rent capitalized at another sum, two sums aggregating full value of whole property, held that they were not entitled to commissions on the capitalization of the ground rent, since it remained realty and was not subject to executor's account, they having received commissions on rentals, provision having been made for paying them commissions on annual rentals, and they and their broker having been compensated for making sale. Id. Claim of executor for caring for estate held properly reduced. In re Van Auken's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 782.

60. Compensation determined. In re Ring's Estate, 132 Iowa, 216, 109 N. W. 710. Unproductive property, not shown to have required least care or attention from executors, cannot serve as basis for commission. In re Pierce [La.] 44 So. 446. Where executors' services went both to administration of separate estates of spouses and community, held that commission was properly allowed on appraised value of community property. In re Pierce [La.] 44 So. 446. Allowance of statutory fees held proper. Knapp v. Jessup, 146 Mich. 348, 109 N. W. 666. Executor held not entitled to commissions on appraised value of testator's interest in foreign partnership which never came into his hands and for which he was in no wise responsible, but which was bequeathed to surviving witness subject to payment to widow which could be made without his intervention. In re Flaacke's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1020. Nor on sum standing to widow's credit on books of partnership to which testator belonged. Id. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2730, providing for commissions on "all sums of money" received and paid out, executors held not entitled to commissions on unsold realty, title to which never passed to executors as such but devolved upon them as trustees, subject to power of sale given executors. In re Wanninger, 105 N. Y. S. 4. Even if will showed intention to work conversion, realty could not be considered as money for purpose of awarding commissions until actual conversion. Id. Where life tenant was entitled to possession of property on giving bond to remainderman, held that executors were entitled to commissions thereon irrespective of whether it was reduced to cash or not. In re Fleming's Estate, 51 Misc. 662, 102 N. Y. S. 204. Commissions held properly allowed on amount received and paid out, but not including amount by which account was surcharged. In re Silkman, 105 N. Y. S. 872.

61. Where statute provided that allowance should not exceed five per cent. on sums received and distributed, held that administrator was not entitled to additional allowance for extraordinary services. Hays v. Johnson's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 614, 99 S. W. 332. Allowance reduced. Id.

62. In absence of showing to contrary, will be presumed that compensation beyond that fixed by statute was for extraordinary services. Anderson v. Sabin, 132 Iowa, 507, 109 N. W. 1080. faith under voidable letters is entitled to commissions on their subsequent revocation.<sup>63</sup>

Where an estate is administered by successive representatives, the compensation should be apportioned among them according to the services rendered.<sup>64</sup> Double commissions can be allowed to one acting both as executor and testamentary trustee only when his duties in each capacity are distinct and severable.<sup>65</sup> One acting as representative and guardian is entitled to commissions in each capacity though the property passing through his hands is the same.<sup>66</sup>

Compensation may be withheld where the representative has mismanaged the estate,<sup>67</sup> or, in some states, where he fails to settle his accounts within the time prescribed by law.<sup>68</sup> The right to commissions may be waived,<sup>69</sup> and agreements as to the amount to be paid are generally held to be valid,<sup>70</sup> provided they do not amount to a trafficking in the office of representative.<sup>71</sup>

As a general rule commissions are allowed on the settlement of the final account.<sup>72</sup> Commissions of an ancillary representative on personalty should be deducted before the same is transferred to the state of decedent's domicile.<sup>73</sup>

Administration being pending before court, held not necessary to fix salary by way of extra compensation in advance. Id. Allowance of extra compensation held proper. Id. Claim of executor for allowance for extraordinary services disallowed. In re Van Auken's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 782. Executor held not entitled to an allowance for "extra services" for himself serving citations. In re Wick's Estate, 53 Misc. 211, 104 N. Y. S. 717.

63. Where court granting letters had jurisdiction. In re Owen's Estate [Utah] 91 P. 283.

64. In view of fact that statute provided for allowance of but one aggregate sum for commissions, held that there was no basis for making apportionment until closing of estate, and hence allowance to first administrator before that time was premature. In re Owen's Estate [Utah] 91 P. 283.

70. Agreement to serve for less compensation than that fixed by law. In re Callaway [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 565. Where testator directed executor to continue business, held that arrangement whereby he was to receive commission based on amount of such business, and whereby he received same sum as he received from deceased for managing said business during latter's lifetime, was valid. In re Kempf's Estate, 53 Misc. 200, 104 N. Y. S. 585. Evidence held not to show that allowance to one of executors of attorney's fee for services, pursuant to stipulation, was on condition that no further demand for substantial compensation was to be made by either executor. Anderson v. Sabin, 132 Iowa, 507, 109 N. W. 1080.

71. Agreement by public administrator with heir to administer estate for sum less than compensation fixed by law, in consideration of heir making no objection to his acting as administrator, held void as contrary to public policy. In re Callaway [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 565.

72. Claim for services as administrator held not conclusively determined until final settlement and judgment thereon by probate court, rule that allowance of claim by probate court is tantamount to judgment being inapplicable. In re Erickson's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 356. Executor not entitled to commissions until his accounts have been settled and allowed by court. Wyckoff v. O'Neil [N. J. (§ 9) G. Rights and liabilities of sureties and actions on bonds.<sup>74</sup>—As a general rule liability on the bond arises on a misappropriation by the representative of the funds of the estate in his hands, or his failure to pay them over to distributees<sup>75</sup> or creditors.<sup>76</sup> The sureties are ordinarily liable for the personal indebtedness of the representative to the estate as for so much money in his hands.<sup>77</sup> Sureties on the second official bond of a public administrator, who serves two terms, are not liable for his default in the matter of an estate entrusted to him during his first term, though it occurs during his second term.<sup>78</sup> The sureties on the bond given by a sheriff as public administrator on assuming the administration of a particular estate, rather than those on his official bond as sheriff, are primarily liable for losses due to his failure to properly administer said estate.<sup>79</sup> As in other cases any fraudulent concealment of a material fact on the part of those for whose benefit the bond is given releases the surety.<sup>80</sup> A purchase of a distributee's interest in the estate by the at-

74. See 7 C. L. 1456.

75. Administrator appropriated funds of estate to his own use, and was thereafter appointed guardian of minor distributees in foreign state. He did not in fact transfer funds of estate belonging to minors to himself as guardian, or any other funds in lieu thereof, though he claimed to have done so and filed account in foreign court in which he charged himself with such sum as guardian. Held that sureties on his bond as administrator were not relieved from liability for funds belonging to minors by reason of fact that, at time of his appointment as guardian, he was solvent and owned property from which he could have realized sufficient funds to repay amount taken from estate, or which he could have transferred to minors or their guardian in lieu thereof, facts failing to show actual or constructive transfer. State v. Whitehouse [Conn.] 67 A. 503. Fact that he acknowledged his liability as guardian, and that he as guardian, and sureties on his guardian's bond, might be held liable for his failure to collect from himself as administrator, held not to relieve sureties on his administrator's bond from liability for his misappropriation of funds as administrator. Id. Proceedings in foreign court for removal of guardian and in which he was directed to pay over funds in his hands to his successor, in which minors were not represented, held not to preclude new guardian from contending that administrator had never turned over to himself as guardian minor's share of estate. Id. His account as guardian filed in foreign court, but never approved by such court, held properly admitted as evidence of fact whether funds were transferred to him as guardian, but that court correctly ruled that it was not such evidence as should transfer in law if there was none in fact. Id. Power of attorney given by distributee to administrator authorizing latter to manage all his affairs in relation to estate, etc., held not to have authorized administrator to claim moneys coming into his hands as such to himself as distributee's attorney in fact, and thereby absolutely absolve his surety from liability therefor. Lahn v. Sullivan, 116 App. Div. 669, 101 N. Y. S. 920. Under such construction held that surety was not prejudiced by giving of said power. Id.

76. Where bond of executrix, given without sureties, bound her to pay, if demanded and estate was solvent, all debts, judgments for which had been rendered against her as executrix, and she failed to comply with Rev. Laws, c. 142, §§ 1, 2, by representing to probate court that estate was insolvent, and did not file an inventory or account, held that she was liable on said bond to creditor who had recovered judgment which she had not paid on demand, though testator in fact left no estate. McIntyre v. Parker [Mass.] 80 N. E. 798. Claim evidenced by final decree in equity held proved according to law within meaning of Gen. Laws 1896, c. 218, § 27, providing that, if executor neglects or refuses to pay over what he has in his hands to creditors "whose claims have been presented and allowed or proved according to law," and, on being cited before probate court, shall fail to show reasonable cause therefor, said court may decree that he is guilty of unfaithful administration, and thereupon an action may be brought upon his bond by any such creditor damaged thereby. Williams v. Starkweather [R. I.] 66 A. 67. Decree cannot be collaterally attacked in such proceeding. Id. Executor held estopped to contend that estate was insolvent where he made no attempt to have it declared so within statutory period, and his attempt to attain that result by bill in equity was unsuccessful. Id.

77. For liability of representative under such circumstances, see § 9B, ante. Kirby v. Moore, 30 Ky. L. R. 1020, 99 S. W. 1156.

79. Where sheriff gave bond as required by Kirby's Dig. § 257, on assuming administration, and widow became surety thereon, held that widow on failure of administrator to pay her dower, as directed by probate court, was required to exhaust her remedies on said bond, and had no recourse on administrator's official bond as sheriff. Briggs v. Manning, 80 Ark. 304, 97 S. W. 289.

80. Creditor, who was party to agreement whereby administrator was to administer estate in violation of law, and one who succeeded without consideration to rights of another party thereto, held not entitled to recover on bond or failure of administrator to account for money coming torney for a surety has been held to be valid.<sup>81</sup> Interest is not chargeable on the penalty of the bond before judgment, though the judgment bears interest from the date of its rendition.<sup>82</sup> One of several sureties may compel contribution by the others.<sup>83</sup>

A valid judgment fixing the liability of the representative is, in most states, conclusive as against the sureties as to the amount due.<sup>84</sup> In some states a judgment may be rendered against the sureties in a summary proceeding brought by an administrator de bonis non to compel his predecessor to make final settlement, provided they are made parties thereto.<sup>85</sup>

§ 10. Actions by and against representatives and costs therein.<sup>86</sup>—Matters relating to the abatement of actions by the death of a party and their subsequent revival by or against his representative,<sup>87</sup> and to actions for damages for death by wrongful act,<sup>88</sup> are treated elsewhere.

The complaint in an action by a representative must show his interest in the cause of action.<sup>89</sup> His appointment can, ordinarily, only be questioned by special plea.<sup>90</sup> A person representing two estates should not appear both as plaintiff and defendant in an action involving a controversy between them, but should be placed on the same side in both capacities.<sup>91</sup> A representative who refuses to or cannot join in a complaint by his corepresentative may be made a party defendant.<sup>92</sup>

84. Adjudication of probate court as to amount of liability of administrator to widow for dower. Briggs v. Manning, 80 Ark. 304, 97 S. W. 289. Where administrator was served with notice of proceeding in probate court wherein he was charged with certain fund, and appeared by attorney, held that he had plain remedy by appeal if judgment was erroneous. Gorman v. Bonner, 80 Ark. 339, 97 S. W. 282. In action against administrator's sureties for amount with which he was charged by probate court, answer alleging that neither he nor sureties were present when probate court made settlement held not to show that he was not served with notice or that recital in said judgment that he appeared by attorney was not true, so that demurrer thereto was properly sustained. Id. Judgment of circuit court against sureties based on judgment of probate court charging administrator with certain fund held conclusive as to validity of latter judgment as against sureties who were parties thereto. Id. Held that equity would not enjoin enforcement of judgment of circuit court because of errors in action, no fraud being alleged. Id. Since under code party may interpose equitable defenses in action at law, held that sureties should have set up defense that judgment of probate court charging administrator with certain fund was void when sued at law for his failure to pay over said fund, and, having let judgment go against them, could not enjoin its enforcement on that ground. Id. Judgment of supreme court that administrator had no right to pay unprobated claims, and that he was not entitled to credit for amount expended in so doing. State v. Canterbury, 124 Mo. App. 241, 101 S. W. 678. In absence of fraud surety is bound by decree on accounting. In re Bodine, 104 N. Y. S. 138.

85. In proceeding under Rev. St. 1899, § 48, judgment should be rendered against both. State v. Canterbury, 124 Mo. App. 241, 101 S. W. 678. Judgment against administrator which failed to pass on liability of sureties held not final judgment so that case was still pending against sureties and should be disposed of by setting aside judgment, trying case again, and rendering such a judgment as would dispose of case as to all defendants, which would render subsequent separate action against sureties unnecessary and result in its dismissal. Id.

90. Only by special plea in nature of a plea in abatement, and is not put in issue by a general denial. Gross v. Watts [Mo.] 104 S. W. 30. Plea denying plaintiff's representative capacity at time action by him was instituted held formally correct. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Perkins [Ala.] 44 So. 602.

91. Held irregular for one as administrator of testator's widow to be one of the defendants in action brought by himself and another as executors of testator's will and affecting widow's estate. Medlin v. Simpson, 144 N. C. 397, 57 S. E. 24. Held that, if instead of moving to strike his name as party defendant, motion had been to transfer and make him a plaintiff, it should have been granted. Id.

92. As where executor seeks to enjoin

Since the letters of the representative have no legal force or effect beyond the territorial limits of the state in which they are granted,<sup>93</sup> he cannot, in the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, sue or be sued in his representative capacity in a state other than that of his appointment,<sup>94</sup> but in most states the disability is removed on his filing an authenticated copy of his letters,<sup>95</sup> or complying with certain other formalities.<sup>96</sup> A defendant may waive want of capacity of a foreign representative to sue and plead to the merits,<sup>97</sup> and when he does so and pleads a counterclaim, may recover the full amount to which he shows himself entitled.<sup>98</sup>

Costs and counsel fees.<sup>99</sup>—All matters relating to costs<sup>1</sup> and to the allowance of counsel fees<sup>2</sup> in actions by and against representatives are fully treated in separate topics. Allowances to the representative on accounting for costs and counsel fees paid by him have been treated in a previous section.<sup>3</sup>

§ 11. Accounting and settlement by representatives. A. The right and duty.<sup>4</sup> An accounting is a necessary prerequisite to an order directing the representative of a deceased representative to pay over to the administrator de bonis non a sum found due the estate.<sup>5</sup> Proceedings to compel an accounting must, of course, be brought within the time fixed by the statute of limitations.<sup>6</sup> The representative is a trustee within the rule that limitations do not commence to run in favor of a trustee against one otherwise entitled to an account until he has repudiated his trust.<sup>7</sup>

§ (11) C. Scope and contents of account.<sup>11</sup>—As a general rule the account should show all payments made by the representative as such.<sup>12</sup> In some states, it should not embrace charges against distributees on their distributive shares, but such charges should be made and allowed the administrator against the distributive share after ascertaining the share of each distributee in the settlement of the estate.<sup>13</sup> In most states the account must be accompanied by vouchers covering all expenditures or all those over a certain specified amount.<sup>14</sup>

(§ 11) D. Procedure.<sup>15</sup>—The procedure on accounting in the probate court is purely statutory and varies in the different states.<sup>16</sup> A petition to compel the filing of a final account must allege facts showing that the estate has been fully administered, where the duty of the representative to account is dependent on that fact.<sup>17</sup> estate to administrator held not entitled to accounting by latter until he had succeeded in having conveyance set aside. Jolly v. Miller, 30 Ky. L. R. 341, 98 S. W. 226. 10. In action by executor to settle accounts, held that he could not be compelled to account for his testator's acts as executor to a defendant who was representative of a deceased legatee or devisee under will, and also his legatee and devisee, remedy being by proceeding for accounting brought by successor of deceased executor against latter's representative under Code Civ. Proc. § 2606. Bushe v. Wright, 118 App. Div. 320, 103 N. Y. S. 410. Allegations and separate findings of referee that debts and legacies of estate represented by testator had all been paid, and that no one was interested in estate except testator's executor and the legatee seeking the accounting, held not to change rule, it appearing that no judicial settlement of accounts of testator as executor had ever been had, and being manifest that limitations might not yet have run against creditors or legatees of estate which he represented, and referee's said finding not being open to consideration because not embraced in his report. Id. Even if action could have been maintained by representative of deceased beneficiary of estate represented by testator, or by such beneficiary's legatee or devisee, held that testator's successor in trust was necessary party. Id. Rule authorizing bringing in of necessary parties held not to avail defendant, it being inapplicable to case where new issue is sought to be presented in which parties other than those already before court are interested. Id. Representative being responsible only to estate which he represents, held that executrix of deceased executor could be compelled to account for property received by latter in official capacity only to representative of estate which he represented, so that appointment of representative was necessary to compel such an accounting. *Volhard v. 16. Practice in proceedings in county court on petition for final accounting is in nature of that in suits in equity rather than actions at law. B. & C. Comp. § 1100. In re Morrison's Estate, 48 Or. 612, 87 P. 1043.

17. In view of B. & C. Comp. § 1202, making it duty of representative to file final account "when the estate is fully administered," held that petition must allege that estate is ready for final settlement and fully administered. In re Morrison's Estate, 48 Or. 612, 87 P. 1043. Petition by certain distributees, who were entitled to only part of estate, showing that several notes and claims remained to be collected, and failing to allege any contract between all distributees for their distribution in kind, held fatally defective. Id.

The required notice must be given<sup>18</sup> unless waived.<sup>19</sup> Any person interested is ordinarily given the right to file objections.<sup>20</sup> The burden is upon the accountant to present a true account and verify it by his oath.<sup>21</sup>

(§ 11) E. The decree or order.<sup>22</sup>—The inclusion of items of property in annual accounts as belonging to the estate has been held not to estop the representative from alleging on final settlement that they in fact belonged to the widow.<sup>23</sup> The costs and expenses of an accounting are ordinarily payable out of the estate. The conclusiveness of the decree on the representative's sureties in a subsequent action on the bond,<sup>24</sup> and its immunity from collateral attack,<sup>25</sup> are treated in other sections.

§ 12. Distribution and disposal of funds.<sup>26</sup>—The jurisdiction of the various courts over proceedings to obtain distribution, and to determine matters incidentally involved therein, has been treated in a previous section.<sup>27</sup>

Occasion and time for distribution.<sup>28</sup>—Provisions in the will as to the time when legacies shall be paid are, of course, controlling.<sup>29</sup> By statute in some states, when no time is fixed by the will, the representative is given a year from its admission to probate in which to pay them.<sup>30</sup> A discretionary power to determine whether a condition on which payment is to be made to a legatee has been performed, vested in several executors, may be exercised by one of them after the others have resigned.<sup>31</sup> The payment of a legacy,<sup>32</sup> or distribution,<sup>33</sup> may sometimes be presumed from lapse of time.

18. Giving of notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 2791, is an indispensable requirement, and order of allowance will not be binding unless it is given. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 88 P. 957. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2796, finding in order of settlement that clerk had given notice of settlement of account in manner and for time theretofore ordered by court held conclusive upon parties on appeal from said order. Id. Surety not entitled to notice. In re Bodine, 104 N. Y. S. 138.

19. Since notice takes place of summons, held that service of notice was waived by appearance of parties and their participation in proceedings. In re Davis' Estate, 35 Mont. 273, 88 P. 957.

20. While, upon request, court may order filing of specifications of alleged errors if accountant seems to need them for his information, such course is not necessary to jurisdiction. Wood v. Farwell [Mass.] 81 N. E. 294. Creditor may file exceptions to account of administrator on his resignation where assets are insufficient to pay debts, or if there has been waste. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 268, 271. Taylor v. Bader, 117 Mo. App. 72, 98 S. W. 80. Exceptions held to sufficiently show that assets were insufficient to pay debts. Id. Persons averring that they were heirs who filed objections to final account held entitled to have them disposed of in orderly and legal manner, so that it was improper to summarily dismiss them on motion of administrator on mere assumption, without proof, that they were not heirs, that being question of fact to be determined upon evidence regularly offered and submitted. In re Olischlager's Estate [Or.] 89 P. 1049. Records and files in previous guardianship proceedings held not properly considered on accounting on issue as to whether persons offering objections were heirs, where it was not offered or admitted in evidence. Id.

29. Where under will legatees were not entitled to legacies until death of executrix, who was also life tenant, held that she was not bound to pay them until that time. Mosier v. Bowser, 226 Ill. 46, 80 N. E. 730.

30. Gen. St. p. 1938, § 1. Where order of orphans' court admitting will was suspended by appeals, held that executor had year from date when certified copies of decrees of appellate courts were filed with surrogate and probate adjudged by him in which to pay legacies. Smith v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 869.

31. Power of judgment as to performance of condition on which corpus of estate was to be paid over. Cushman v. Cushman, 116 App. Div. 763, 102 N. Y. S. 258.

32. Presumption does not arise until after expiration of twenty years from time of accrual of right to it. Paterson Gen. Hospital Ass'n v. Blauvelt [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 1055.

33. After lapse of twenty years from date of qualification of representative, as general rule it is legitimate to presume that estate has been fully administered and distribution had according to law or the will, if terms of will do not negative such inference. Hodges v. Stuart Lumber Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 354. Presumption is not conclusive, but burden is upon representative seeking to assert right or title of estate, as where he sues for trespass to realty, to show facts sufficient to remove same. Id.

Persons entitled to receive payment or transfer of share.<sup>34</sup>—Distribution should be made to those entitled under the will,<sup>35</sup> or under the statutes of descent and distribution. The validity of contracts between the heirs and distributees affecting the manner of distribution,<sup>36</sup> the effect of the assignment of shares to third persons,<sup>37</sup> and the jurisdiction of the various courts to pass on such matters,<sup>38</sup> are treated in other sections.

Procedure to obtain order for final distribution.<sup>39</sup>—A petition for distribution may ordinarily be filed at any time after the period fixed by the statute for the settlement of the estate.<sup>40</sup> The required notice must be given.<sup>41</sup>

Adjustment of shares.<sup>42</sup>—Adult legatees acquiescing in a distribution in conformity to the construction given to the will by the executors are estopped from thereafter contending for a different construction.<sup>43</sup> A legatee accepting and retaining an article purchased by the executor as in full satisfaction of a legacy to her for the purchase of such an article cannot thereafter complain that the full amount authorized was not expended.<sup>44</sup> Where the subject of a specific bequest is rightfully

Where will bequeathed stock and certificates of indebtedness to one with provision that they should go over to another in event he died without leaving a family, and decree in suit in chancery directed executor to at once turn over to legatee property bequeathed to him to be held by him under terms of will, held that executor had right, before surrendering certificates, to indorse thereon that they were held by legatee under the terms of the will. De Loney v. Hull [Ga.] 58 S. E. 349. Where will gave widow, who was also executrix, certain personalty to have income thereof for life, with right to use principal if she should need it, held that she had right to possession of said personalty and to pay same to herself as legatee. In re Trelease, 115 App. Div. 654, 100 N. Y. S. 1051, affg. 49 Misc. 205, 96 N. Y. S. 318. Legatee held not deprived of her right to any part of her annuity because, by reason of her unsuccessful opposition to probate of will, executor was prevented from immediately making investments required to provide it, estate having, in meantime, been in hands of administrator pendente lite, and it not appearing that latter did not keep money invested. Steelman v. Wheaton [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 195. Where auditor was asked to indicate person to receive share of legatee, but no particular person was indicated to him, held that it was not error for him to distribute it to "the trustee appointed or hereafter to be appointed" of said legatee. Gorman's Estate, 32 Pa. 41. No final settlement shall be made and approved unless heirs have been notified thereof in such manner as court may direct. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 3, § 112. Reizer v. Mertzt, 223 Ill. 555, 79 N. E. 283, revg. 125

Ill. App. 425. Fixing by court of manner in which notice of final settlement and application for discharge is to be given, where notice is constructive, is jurisdictional, and no constructive notice can be given to nonresident devisee of final settlement and application for discharge which will bind him unless court has fixed manner of giving notice by order entered of record prior to time such notice is given. Id. Where county court did not order publication of notice, held that publication was without authority of law, and hence Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 100, §§ 1, 3, providing that when any notice shall be required by law or order of court to be published publisher's certificate shall be sufficient evidence of publication, had no application, and such publication failed to confer jurisdiction of person of nonresident devisee, and order approving final report and discharging executor was void as to such devisee. Id. Recital in order approving report and discharging executor that latter had made due proof of publication of notice held not a finding that executor made proof that nonresident devisee had been duly notified by publication in accordance with direction of court. Id. There being no proper notice to nonresident, held that order directing his share to be paid to other heirs and discharging executor was no bar to action by such nonresident to vacate such order and to require executor to pay her her distributive share. Id. Order assigning land to widow held nullity, where there was no proof that any order appointing time for hearing was made, or that any notice of application was given, as required by Comp. Laws Mich. 1897, § 9448. Rich v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 389.

44. Where will gave daughter $600 to purchase piano and administrator purchased one for $550, which was accepted and retained by her in satisfaction of bequest, and administrator was credited with latter amount on settlement, held that she could not thereafter complain that full amount consumed by the executor, the legatee should be allowed its value from the estate.<sup>45</sup> The distributee must account for advancements received by him from the decedent,<sup>46</sup> and for partial distributions and anticipations.<sup>47</sup>

Interest on legacies.<sup>48</sup>—Legacies do not draw interest until they become payable under the terms of the will.<sup>49</sup> Interest on arrears of an annuity provided for in the will is sometimes allowed from the end of the year in which the first instalment becomes due.<sup>50</sup>

Setting out and retaining funds and precedent interests.<sup>51</sup>—A sufficient sum should be set aside to pay annuities provided for by the will.<sup>52</sup> An annuity fund created by the testator which is concededly larger than is necessary to produce the surviving annuities may be reduced to a proper amount, and the excess transferred to the residuary fund.<sup>53</sup>

Partition of realty among heirs or devisees.<sup>54</sup>—The rule of caveat emptor applies to sales under order of court for the purpose of distribution.<sup>55</sup> In Louisiana there is nothing to prevent the heirs from consenting to a sale of particular properties in the succession or to a partial partition thereof.<sup>56</sup>

was not expended, or recover $600 from administrator, particularly in view of her laches. Clift v. Newell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 832.

47. Items of board against distributees held properly allowed against their distributive shares. Code 1896, §§ 227, 239. Howard v. Rutherford [Ala.] 43 So. 30. Court, in order to ascertain amount due distributees on final settlement, deducted from share of each distributee allowances and advances made to him by administrator during the particular year, and charged administrator with interest on balance from rest or stop so made. Held not injurious to distributees. Id. In accounting between heirs in partition suit to determine their distributive shares, husband of decedent held properly charged with money and certificates of deposit belonging to her and taken by him after her death as payments made to him on account of his share in her estate, regardless of three years' statute of limitations. Goodnough v. Webber [Kan.] 88 P. 879. Evidence held to show that certain distributees received their shares. Knapp v. Jessup, 146 Mich. 348, 109 N. W. 666. Evidence held to show that income from trust fund was paid to beneficiary's husband and others on her account and with her consent, so that executors were entitled to credit for such payments as payments to her. In re Sheldon's Estate, 101 N. Y. S. 729.

52. Executor held justified in setting aside immediately a sum sufficient to indemnify him against payment of annuity. Steelman v. Wheaton [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 195. Where legatee acquiesced in failure of executor to set apart and invest fund to secure payment of annuity charged on entire estate, held that those claiming under her could not complain for purpose of exonerating realty. Dixon v. Roessler [S. C.] 57 S. E. 203.

53. Where fund established by executors, pursuant to directions of will, later became too large owing to death of some annuitants, held that it might be reduced by court to proper sum, and excess and unappropriated income be transferred to residuary estate. Griffen v. Keese, 187 N. Y. 454, 80 N. E. 367, modifying 115 App. Div. 264, 100 N. Y. S. 903.

55. Where land was sold, for purpose of division among legatees, under valid decree of court of competent jurisdiction, and was duly advertised and regularly sold to highest bidder. Mercer v. Sager [Ga.] 58 S. E. 1037. Being no misrepresentation or fraud on part of executrix or anyone conducting sale, and it appearing that alleged defects could have been discovered as well before as after sale, held that purchaser was bound by his bid, and court properly decreed specific performance though purchaser claimed that distribution was premature under terms of will, and that sale was not binding on contingent beneficiaries not parties to the proceedings. Id.

Suits for payment of shares or settlement.<sup>59</sup>—The representative is not a necessary party to a contest over the distribution of the estate.<sup>60</sup> Where there is no personality, an administrator de bonis non has no right to maintain an action for the settlement of the estate.<sup>61</sup> In some states a bill in equity may be filed for the recovery of a legacy or distributive share either before or after a settlement in the probate court.<sup>62</sup> The right of a legatee to follow funds of the estate into property in which they have been wrongfully invested is treated elsewhere.<sup>63</sup> Actions or proceedings for the recovery of legacies must, of course, be brought within the time fixed by the statute of limitations.<sup>64</sup> The right to enforce payment of a legacy may be lost by laches.<sup>65</sup>

Decree of distribution; its form, enforcement, and effect.<sup>66</sup>—A decree of distribution is a protection to an administrator who acts under it in good faith.<sup>67</sup> Where the proceeding is regarded as in the nature of a proceeding in rem, a decree otherwise regular is not void for want of jurisdiction though the property is not assigned to those entitled thereto.<sup>68</sup> The final decree of distribution closes the estate in so far as any claims against it are concerned.<sup>69</sup> The conclusiveness of the decree and its immunity from collateral attack are treated in a subsequent section.<sup>70</sup>

59. See 7 C. L. 1471.

60. All devisees, legatees, and persons claiming an interest in estate having been made parties to suit to compel specific performance of decedent's contract to leave property in particular manner by will, held that executor was not necessary party. Stewart v. Smith [Cal. App.] 91 P. 667.

61. Nothing to settle so far as he is concerned. Withers' Adm'r v. Withers' Heirs, 80 Ky. L. R. 1099, 100 S. W. 253.

62. Statutory remedy by action at law, which can be maintained only after decree of distribution, is in addition to that existing in equity, and in no way limits or qualifies jurisdiction of court of chancery over the subject. Van Dyke v. Van Dyke [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 215. Bill held not defective for failure to contain specific prayer that amount, when ascertained, be decreed to be paid to complainant, the sureties of the administrators being made parties, so that decree ascertaining complainant's distributive share would fix extent of their liability and afford basis for action on bond, and prayer for general relief justifying decree for payment of such share. Id.

63. See Trusts, 8 C. L. 2169.

64. Agreement by executor to pay legacy in instalments held to have created an express trust between himself and the legatee, and that limitations did not begin to run against legatee's right to recover balance due her until there was demand and refusal to pay. Glennon v. Harris [Ala.] 42 So. 1003. Trust relation not changed by executor's erroneous impression as to amount of legacy, but legatee was entitled to recover amount paid by him to residuary legatee through mistake. Id. Where will left certain sum in hands of defendant for plaintiff "to be given her when he thinks best," held that limitations did not begin to run as against legatee until date when payment was demanded by her. Harrison v. Watkins, 127 Ga. 314, 56 S. E. 437. Code Civ. Proc. § 1819, providing that, for purposes of statute of limitations, cause of action for recovery of legacy is deemed to accrue when representative's account is judicially settled, held not to apply to special proceeding in surrogate's court to compel payment of legacy, but limitations in such case begin to run after one year from granting of letters. In re Cooper, 51 Misc. 381, 101 N. Y. S. 283. Though limitations did not begin to run against minor legatee until she became of age, held that proceeding in surrogate's court begun twenty years after that time was barred. Id.

65. Suit by beneficiary attacking final settlement of administrator, and seeking to recover property alleged to be due her, held barred where not brought until twelve years after such settlement, and eleven years after she became of age. Cliff v. Newell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 832. Legatee held not barred from enforcing legacy as lien on land belonging to residue on which it was charged. Pater-son Gen'l Hospital Ass'n v. Blauvelt [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 1055. Daughter held not guilty of laches so as to bar her right to enforce payment of annuity by answer in suit to construe will. Willcox v. Willcox, 106 Va. 626, 56 S. E. 588.

66. See 7 C. L. 1472.

67. Cleaveland v. Draper [Mass.] 80 N. E. 227. Decree of distribution made to correct former decree, regularly made, in which certain heirs were, by mistake, not provided for, held to have properly provided for protection of administrator in reference to payments made under first decree. Id. Evidence held not to show such negligence on part of administrator in connection with making of first decree as would deprive him of right to rely thereon. Id.

68. Though by mistake property was not assigned to real next of kin. Cleaveland v. Draper [Mass.] 80 N. E. 227.

69. Held that creditor of insolvent bank could not maintain action against executors of deceased stockholder to recover his proportionate share of bank's indebtedness after final decree of distribution, notwithstanding pendency of appeals therefrom which merely attacked that part of it determining who were rightful distributees. Childs v. De Laveaga, 150 Cal. 281, 89 P. 82.

§ 13. Enforcement of orders and decrees by attachment as for a contempt.<sup>71</sup>

§ 14. Discharge of personal representative.<sup>72</sup>—The authority of the representative continues until his resignation, removal, or discharge.<sup>73</sup> The trust relation between a representative and a legatee growing out of the representative's promise to pay the legacy in instalments is not changed by his discharge as representative.<sup>74</sup>

§ 15. Probate orders and decrees.<sup>75</sup>—Courts having charge of the administration of estates are usually regarded as courts of general jurisdiction in regard to probate matters, and hence, when such is the case, their judgments and decrees are as binding on parties and their privies,<sup>76</sup> and, until vacated, or reversed, set aside, or modified on appeal, as conclusive as to matters necessarily involved in the determination of the questions passed upon,<sup>77</sup> as those of any other court. The existence

Same held true in case of action by insolvent bank to collect assessment on decedent's stock. Union Sav. Bk. v. De Laveaga, 150 Cal. 395, 89 P. 84. After decree of distribution and pending an appeal therefrom, which merely attacked that part of it determining who were rightful distributees, creditor of insolvent bank sued executor of deceased stockholder for his proportionate share of indebtedness. Thereafter decree of distribution was reversed, and amended decree was entered below and executor discharged, no appeal being taken therefrom. Held that judgment for defendant in creditor's action would be affirmed, there being no executor of said decedent and no administration pending, so that no relief asked for by creditor could be made applicable or enforced. Childs v. De Laveaga, 150 Cal. 281, 89 P. 82. Same held true in case of action by insolvent bank to collect assessment on decedent's stock. Union Sav. Bk. v. De Laveaga, 150 Cal. 395, 89 P. 84.

73. His functions do not necessarily cease upon final settlement and approval of his account, but he may, if occasion arises, pursue his duties further for the benefit of estate, unless probate records show formal discharge from trust. Root v. Beymer, 146 Mich. 692, 13 Det. Leg. N. 932, 110 N. W. 57. Where administration continues through existence of a dower estate, on falling in of dower administrator may take possession of land, if for no other purpose than to distribute it among heirs at law. Haden v. Sims, 127 Ga. 717, 56 S. E. 989. Former administratrix held not necessary party to bill filed by heirs at law after her discharge, seeking to set aside judgment recovered against her in representative capacity and sheriff's sale and deed of lands of estate made to satisfy said judgment, she having no right or interest, either personal, representative, or proprietary, in subject-matter of litigation that could be affected thereby. King v. Dekle [Fla.], 43 So. 586.

74. Agreement by executor to pay legacy in monthly instalments having created express trust between him and legatee as to the fund, held that subsequent final settlement of his accounts in probate court, and his discharge as executor, did not change his trust relation as to amount of said legacy then remaining in his hands, nor did subsequent payment of said sum over to residuary legatee through mistake. Glennon v. Harris [Ala.] 42 So. 1003.

75. See 7 C. L. 1473.

76. See, also, Former Adjudication, 7 C. L. 1750. Decree of surrogate is not conclusive upon parties in establishing rule of law which will control in later administration of estate, though, if not appealed from, it will serve as complete protection to accounting executor or trustee, against all parties duly cited, as to all questions concerning correctness of his accounts thereby approved, and the disbursements therein directed. In re Hurlbut's Estate, 51 Misc. 263, 100 N. Y. S. 1098. Jurisdiction to construe will or to define rights of beneficiaries of trust as between themselves is limited to necessities of accounting then before him. Id.

77. Appointment of representative: Order appointing administrator conclusive as to necessity of administration. Lambert v. Tucker [Ark.] 104 S. W. 131.

Sale of realty: Order of probate court directing sale of land of deceased wife held not a judicial determination that no valid homestead existed in property in favor of husband, so as to preclude latter from attacking same in action to quiet title. Fisher v. Bartholomew [Cal. App.] 88 P. 608. Orders of sale and confirmation from which no appeal was taken held to have conclusively established that sale was necessary to pay debts, and that land was regularly and legally sold for fair and adequate consideration. Lake v. Hathaway [Kan.] 89 P. 666.

Accounting: After appointment of ancillary administrator for estate of nonresident decedent, another person was appointed and qualified as administratrix. Ancillary administrator gave no bond, estate owned no debts in state, and sole property in jurisdiction was certain legacy. On accounting proceeding to which both were parties, legacy was awarded to administratrix, administrator taking no appeal. Held that said decree was final, and administrator, having waived all his rights under his letters by failing to appeal, could not maintain proceeding to revoke letters of administratrix on ground of his prior appointment. In re Schmid, 116 App. Div. 706, 102 N. Y. S. 80. Administrator filed account showing equal division of residue of estate between himself and adopted daughter of decedent as her sole heirs, accompanied by her receipt for her share. Adoption was under statute afterward declared unconstitutional. Held that order, made in accordance with prayer of administrator's petition, settling and allowing his account and ordering his discharge, was not res adjudicata as to daughter's right to property, nor did it on receipt vest title in her, latter being given under erroneous belief that she was entitled to share in estate, and no money having in fact been received by her, and hence on her death her heir was not entitled to recover any part thereof. Doyle v. Campbell, 147 Mich. 544, 14 Det. Leg. N. 26, 111 N. W. 165.

of all facts necessary to give jurisdiction will be presumed unless the contrary appears,<sup>78</sup> and such judgments and decrees cannot be collaterally attacked<sup>79</sup> except for want of jurisdiction apparent on the face of the record,<sup>80</sup> or fraud or collusion.<sup>81</sup>

Distribution: Order of probate court of Alaska distributing property to heirs held not conclusive adjudication that partnership did not exist between decedent and another to which property belonged, as against creditor of alleged partner who sought to follow property into hands of heirs, court not having chancery powers necessary to be exercised in hearing and deciding such questions. Bartleson v. Feidler, 149 F. 299.

78. See, also, Judgments, 8 C. L. 530. Records, orders, judgments, and decrees of probate courts shall have accorded to them like force and effect and legal presumptions as those of district court. Rev. St. 1901, par. 1597. Otero v. Otero [Ariz.] 90 P. 601. Where order directing payment of widow's dower was silent as to whether notice of application therefor was given, held that it would be presumed that it was given. Briggs v. Manning, 80 Ark. 304, 97 S. W. 289. On collateral attack, unless record affirmatively shows that there was no vacancy, it will be presumed, in the appointment of an administrator de bonis non, that a vacancy existed. Peavy v. Griffin [Ala.] 44 So. 400. Every fact necessary to make judgment of court of ordinary valid and binding will be presumed in its favor. Medlin v. Downing Lumber Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 232.

79. See, also, Judgments, 8 C. L. 530. Action by nonresident heir, whose share court directed to be paid to other heirs, to vacate order approving final report, and discharging him, held not collateral attack on such order. Reizer v. Mertz, 223 Ill. 555, 79 N. E. 283, rvg. 125 Ill. App. 425.

Appointment of representative: Decree appointing administrator cannot be collaterally attacked in action brought by him because it had not been formally entered on minutes of court when action was brought. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Perkins [Ala.] 44 So. 602. Order held sufficient as order appointing administrator to administer on newly-discovered assets, and, being based on sufficient petition, not subject to collateral attack because it also purported to revoke order discharging original administrator after lapse of term in which it was made. Otero v. Otero [Ariz.] 90 P. 601. Cannot be collaterally attacked on ground that administration was unnecessary. Lambert v. Tucker [Ark.] 104 S. W. 131. Pleadings held not to show that applicant was not next of kin of decedent at latter's death. Medlin v. Downing Lumber Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 232. Not subject to collateral attack because made by court of county other than that in which decedent resided. Williams v. Dougherty, 39 Ind. App. 9, 73 N. E. 1067. Failure to require administrator to give bond, as provided by Code, § 2301, or postponement of fixing of amount thereof, held not to deprive court of jurisdiction or to subject order of appointment to collateral attack in proceeding in which administrator claims right to act in pursuance of appointment and letters. In re Wiltsey's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 776. Validity of letters cannot be collaterally attacked in action by administrator. Griesel v. Jones, 123 Mo. App. 45, 99 S. W. 769. Appointment of administratrix after ancillary letters had issued to another held not void or without jurisdiction, and not subject to collateral attack. In re Schmid, 116 App. Div. 706, 102 N. Y. S. 80. When cause for administering estate exists, and application is made therefor to proper court, neither fact that it is not made by person entitled to administration, nor that person not so entitled to administer is appointed, renders appointment wholly void and subject to collateral attack, but it is voidable only by some appropriate direct proceeding. Steinberg v. Saltzman, 130 Wis. 419, 110 N. W. 198.

Sales of realty: Decree confirming sale to pay debts. Dull v. Slater, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 488. On collateral attack, validity of sale of realty to pay debts does not depend upon irregularities in proceedings, but upon whether court had jurisdiction to order and confirm sale. Lake v. Hathaway [Kan.] 89 P. 666. Fact that, after sale was ordered, and before it was made, heirs of testator, including executrix, entered into contract to settle indebtedness without a sale, which contract was not brought to notice of purchaser nor to attention of court until after sale was confirmed, held not to have deprived court of jurisdiction to confirm sale, nor to have affected rights of purchaser. Id.

80. Parties voluntarily appealing and taking part in administration held not entitled to collaterally attack appointment of administrator for want of notice. Otero v. Otero [Ariz.] 90 P. 601. Pleadings held not to show want of jurisdiction to appoint administrator, as failing to show that applicant was of next of kin of decedent at his death. Medlin v. Downing Lumber Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 232. Proceeding to sell realty for payment of debts being adversary, and not one in rem, creditor of heir, who had attached his interest, and who was not served with notice thereof, held entitled to attack sale collaterally in action to enforce his judgment. Mullin v. White [Iowa] 112 N. W. 164. Decree of county court determining title to realty not belonging to estate, and adjudging that devisees took title to it to exclusion of heirs to whom patent issued from Federal government, held subject to collateral attack. Walker v. Ehresman [Neb.] 113 N. W. 218.

Probate orders are generally effective from the date of their rendition rather than that of their entry.<sup>82</sup>

The right of the court to vacate or modify its decrees and the procedure for so doing, depends upon the statutory provisions of the various states.<sup>83</sup> Courts of equity will generally set aside judgments or decrees of the probate court obtained through fraud or mistake,<sup>84</sup> provided limitations have not run,<sup>85</sup> and if the party seeking relief has not been guilty of negligence<sup>86</sup> or laches.<sup>87</sup> vitiating administration proceedings, or to render them subject to collateral attack. Meikle v. Cloquet [Wash.] 87 P. 841.

82. Order appointing administrator is effective from date of its rendition, and not from date of its entry on minutes of probate court. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Perkins [Ala.] 44 So. 602. Proceedings nunc pro tunc, or appeal to authority conferred on probate judge by Code 1896, §3372, to complete incomplete minute entries and decrees on application, would be improper where entry of order is made within three months as prescribed by § 3365. Id.

Arizona: Order discharging administrator held final one which probate court did not have jurisdiction to set aside after lapse of term in which it was entered. Otero v. Otero [Ariz.] 90 P. 601.

Georgia: Administrator is necessary party to motion to set aside judgment of court of ordinary authorizing sale of land by him. Whitley Grocery Co. v. Jones [Ga.] 58 S. E. 623. If letters of dismissal have been granted to him, judgment discharging him must be reopened before motion can be entertained. Id. Rule not changed by fact that purchasers at sale and those holding under them, and former administrator as an individual, are made parties. Id. Held no abuse of discretion in refusing to open judgment of ordinary, made after due notice, directing recording of return of appraisers on application of widow for year's support, to permit filing of objections not filed in time. Foster v. Turnbull, 126 Ga. 654, 55 S. E. 925.

New York: Code Civ. Proc. § 2481 construed, and held that surrogate had no authority to vacate decree on accounting after time for appeal had expired and refer matter back to referee on ground that contestants had been guilty of laches, that on account of delays, etc., many of administrator's books, vouchers, and papers had been lost so that he could not exculpate himself, and that his counsel had stated that next of kin had agreed to abandon claims, or because referee acted upon proof that he had no right to consider, place to urge such objections being before referee and surrogate on application to confirm his report, and remedy being by appeal. In re Rodine, 104 N. Y. S. 138. Surrogate held entitled to correct default decree of distribution entered on motion of public administrator distributing estate to collateral relatives who had not appeared and who were not entitled to it. In re Hoes, 104 N. Y. S. 529. After expiration of time to appeal, surrogate has power to vacate so much of his decree assessing transfer tax as was made without jurisdiction. In re Jones' Estate, 54 Misc. 202, 105 N. Y. S. 932. Contestant held not prejudiced by order correcting former order directing filing of supplemental account so as to permit surrogate to pass on any claim for expenses and commissions due executor, it not authorizing allowance of any claims not legal and proper charges against estate. In re Hull's Estate, 105 N. Y. S. 961.

Pennsylvania: Where orphans' court awarded all personalty to decedent's husband and administrator in accordance with laws of Pennsylvania, when it should have awarded him only half of it in accordance with laws of Maryland where decedent was domiciled at time of her death, held that it had power to revoke decree and make proper distribution. Ehrhart's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 120.

85. Limitations held not to have commenced to run against suit to set aside decree of distribution for mistake until mistake was discovered. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317.

86. Plaintiff in suit to set aside decree of distribution for mistake held not to have been guilty of negligence. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. Failure of plaintiff to sooner discover true amount due him held not such negligence as to bar relief as matter of law, question being at most one of fact. Soule v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 495, 89 P. 324.

87. Plaintiff in suit to review decree of distribution for mistake held not to have been guilty of laches, she having brought suit shortly after discovery of mistake. Bacon v. Bacon, 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317. Plaintiffs in suit to set aside decree of distribution alleged to have been obtained through fraud, and to protect estate pending establishment of will alleged to have been fraudulently suppressed, held not guilty of laches. Ewing v. Lamphere, 147 Mich. 659, 14 Det. Leg. N. 28, 111 N. W. 187.

90. Settlement held final one from which appeal to circuit court could be taken. Taylor v. Bader, 117 Mo. App. 72, 93 S. W. 80.

Appeals are generally allowed from all final orders or decrees,<sup>90</sup> and may be taken by any interested party aggrieved thereby.<sup>91</sup> The steps necessary to perfect the appeal and the practice in the appellate court depend on the statutes of the various states.<sup>92</sup> All persons whose rights may be affected by a reversal must be made

91. It being duty of special administrator to defend against claims, held that he could, without special authority from probate court, appeal from allowance of claim. McNamara v. Michigan Trust Co., 148 Mich. 346, 14 Det. Leg. N. 250, 111 N. W. 1066. Creditor entitled to file exceptions to settlement held entitled to appeal from judgment of probate court if aggrieved thereby. Taylor v. Bader, 117 Mo. App. 72, 98 S. W. 80.

92. Time of taking: Objection that appeal to prerogative court from decree of orphans' court surcharging account of executrix was taken too late held waived by taking testimony, though untimely motion to dismiss on that ground had been previously made and refused. Carlin v. Carlin [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1018.

Allowance of appeal: Order allowing appeal from probate to circuit court is unnecessary. Pruden v. Clark, 148 Mich. 163, 14 Det. Leg. N. 102, 111 N. W. 853. Order directing service of notice of appeal on administrator, and certified by probate judge as order allowing appeal, held sufficient though it did not in terms state that appeal was allowed. Id. Under Act March 15, 1832, § 1, P. L. 135, appeal to orphans' court from order of register of wills revoking letters of administration is matter of right, and allowance of appeal by orphans' court is not necessary. Laukhuff's Estate, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 538. After case is brought up, proper practice is for appellant to present petition to court setting forth facts, upon which citation will be granted on parties interested to show cause why appeal should not be sustained and decision complained of set aside. Id.

Bonds: Rev. St. 1901, par. 1947, providing that where appeal is taken by executor or administrator no bond shall be required unless such appeal personally concerns him, in which case he must give bond, held not to authorize appeal without bond from order revoking letters of administration granted to appellant and appointing another in his place, he being personally interested. In re Morale's Estate [Ariz.] 89 P. 540. In any event, appeal held one taken in his individual rather than his representative capacity. Id. Is discretionary with surrogate whether he will determine sufficiency of sureties or undertakings on appeal from their affidavits of justification, or whether he will require them to attend and be examined before approving such undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 1335 being inapplicable to appeals from surrogate's court, but, after he has approved undertaking and indorsed approval thereon, it is sufficient for all purposes. In re Sheldon's Will, 117 App. Div. 357, 103 N. Y. S. 177.

Record, transcript, etc.: On appeal to circuit court from order allowing claim, copy of report of commissioners on claims must be filed, that being record of allowance appealed from. Pruden v. Clark, 148 Mich. 163, 14 Det. Leg. N. 102, 111 N. W. 853. Appeal should not be dismissed for failure to file it within thirty days, provided it is filed before motion to dismiss is actually heard. Id. Proceedings in county court to compel final accounting being in nature of suit in equity, on appeal to circuit court from decree therein, suit must be tried on transcript and evidence accompanying it as prescribed by B. & C. Comp. § 555, and, if no evidence is taken up, only question open to consideration is whether pleadings support decree. In re Morrison's Estate, 48 Or. 612, 87 P. 1043. Where it clearly appeared from transcript that case was decided by county court without the taking of testimony, held that such record could not be enlarged or contradicted by an ex parte certificate of the county judge filed in circuit court after cause had been there argued and submitted. In re Ollschlager's Estate [Or.] 89 P. 1049. An appeal to orphans' court from order of register of wills revoking letters of administration, held immaterial that paper filed as appeal did not by its caption certify that case was in orphans' court where record of docket entries showed that such an appeal was filed, defect being one of form. Laukhuff's Estate, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 538.

Transfer of jurisdiction: Where judgment of county court on appeal from probate court was entered by clerk pursuant to order of court, and then certified to probate court pursuant to Vt. St. 2599, held that county court had no further control over case, and no power at following term, on motion, to vacate and set aside said judgment. Nichols v. Nichols' Estate [Vt.] 67 A. 531.

Assignment of errors, etc.: Under Rev. Laws, c. 162, § 10, on appeal from probate court to supreme judicial court, objections to decree appealed from must be filed in latter court simultaneously with entry of appeal, jurisdiction depending on compliance with statute. Codwise v. Livermore [Mass.] 80 N. E. 609. Filing of statement by executor held to have conferred jurisdiction on appellate court. Id. Objections are in nature of assignment of errors, and must disclose issue to be tried, but are not to be construed with strictness applicable to pleading at common law. Id. Statement filed by executor held to have sufficiently notified other party of objections relied on, though argumentative, etc. Id. Matters not presented in notice of claim or petition on appeal, decree on exceptions to account cannot be considered. In re Frey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 192.

Practice on appeal in general: Appeal seeking to bring up for review action of commissioners in disallowing a single claim presented by single party, and in allowing claim in favor of another party for sum of money for which decedent was accountable either to latter or to appellants, and an accounting for which to either would inure to benefit of appellants, in behalf of whom decedent had assumed to receive it, held not parties.<sup>93</sup> As a general rule the trial is de novo<sup>94</sup> and the scope of the review is confined to the issues raised below.<sup>95</sup> The right to a jury trial depends on the statutes of the various states.<sup>96</sup> An appeal from an order removing a representative ordinarily does not operate as a stay, but his duties devolve on the person appointed in his place.<sup>97</sup>

void as single appeal from action of commissioners in dealing with independent claims of two creditors in severalty, and action of superior court in erasing it from docket as void was erroneous. Bennett's Appeal, 79 Conn. 578, 65 A. 946. Combining two appeals in single paper held not to have deprived superior court of jurisdiction, but to have been, at most, an irregularity and ground for plea in abatement. Id. Decree in circuit on appeal from judgment of county court denying petition to compel final accounting being based on petition, such petition must be treated as complaint, and objection that it does not state facts sufficient to entitle petitioner to relief prayed for is not waived by answering over after demurrer thereto is overruled. In re Morrison's Estate, 48 Or. 612, 87 P. 1043.

Dismissal: Granting of motion to dismiss appeal to circuit court from order allowing claim held error where notice required by rule 19 was not given. Pruden v. Clark, 148 Mich. 163, 14 Det. Leg. N. 102, 111 N. W. 853.

Decision and determination: Under Rev. Civ. Code Proc. § 151, providing that court may, at any time within one year after notice thereof, relieve party from judgment taken against him through mistake, inadvertence, etc., held that where, on appeal from county court to circuit court from order appointing administrator, circuit court in affirming judgment, through mistake or inadvertence, assumed to determine who were heirs and to distribute estate, which were matters not involved, it was proper to vacate such order and enter new one simply affirming order appealed from. In re Skelly's Estate [S. D.] 113 N. W. 91. Where all persons who had filed petitions in county court and were proceeding to establish their claims to heirship joined in application to show cause why judgment should not be vacated, held that such showing was sufficient to authorize correction of judgment though no affidavits of merits were filed. Id. Where, on appeal to circuit court, judgment of county court was affirmed by stipulation, held that no findings were necessary. Id. Stipulation that judgment of county court might be affirmed held to authorize circuit court, on vacating original order of affirmance for mistake in including therein matters not before it, to affirm judgment without ordering trial de novo. Id. Where circuit court by mistake included in order affirming judgment of county court matters not properly before it, held that on vacating same it was proper to direct that new order of affirmance should be entered nunc pro tunc as of date of original order, no rights of third persons having intervened. Id.

Where guardian ad litem of heirs appeared in proceeding to sell realty and consented to sale, held that he was entitled to be served with notice of appeal from order confirming sale though he did not appear at hearing for confirmation, both being parts of same proceeding. Id.

<sup>95.</sup> Though Rev. Prob. Code, § 359, provides that on appeal from county to circuit court "on questions of both law and fact the trial must be de novo," only issues that can be tried on such an appeal are those presented by record in county court and passed upon by that court. In re Skelly's Estate [S. D.] 113 N. W. 91. Failure of circuit court to adjudge that certain person was widow of decedent held not error where it did not affirmatively appear by order appealed from that county court passed on that question. Id. On appeal to circuit court from order of county court disallowing claim, held error to allow amendment setting up entirely new items. In re Taylor's Estate [Wis.] 111 N. W. 229.

15. Not cost of improvements, but enhancement in value. Ward v. Johnson, 30 Ky. L. R. 240, 417, 97 S. W. 1110.

16. Not mere repairs, or such things as were needed to meet ordinary wear and tear, or to keep place in as good condition as when received. Ward v. Johnson, 30 Ky. L. R. 240, 417, 97 S. W. 1110.

17. Price of land sold by father to son held not inadequate so as to require son to collate difference. Succession of Sharp, 117 La. 751, 42 So. 255. Son not required to collate commissions paid him by father out of profits arising from sale of vegetables, he having rendered services in raising and selling them. Id.

18. Where mother made donation to one of her children declaring that she did so "to equalize the advance in money and otherwise which she had made to her other children," held that property was not subject to collation, even though, as matter of fact, no advances had been made to other heirs which were collatable. Darby v. Darby, 118 La. 328, 42 So. 953.

19. See 7 C. L. 1487.

20. Sales to representatives are treated in § 9A, ante. Sale of interest by forced heir held not procured by fraud. *Gougenheim's Heirs v. ### ESTOPPEL.

§ 1. In General (1217).

§ 2. Estoppel by Record (1218).

§ 3. Estoppel by Deed (1218).

§ 4. Estoppel in Pais (1219). Pleading and Proof; Questions of Law and Fact (1227).

§ 5. Extent of Operation of Doctrine of Estoppel (1227).

Scope of title.—Many common applications of the doctrine of estoppel are so closely related to other subject-matters that it is deemed best to treat them elsewhere; thus, estoppel to assert the doctrine of ultra vires or to aver want of authority in a corporate officer or agent,<sup>1</sup> to question the existence or scope of an agent's authority,<sup>2</sup> to deny partnership,<sup>3</sup> the estoppel of a tenant to deny his landlord's title,<sup>4</sup> and questions of estoppel peculiar to insurance,<sup>5</sup> are elsewhere discussed. Waiver of or election between rights which lacks some elements of an estoppel, but is sometimes so termed, is also treated in a separate article.<sup>6</sup>

§ 1. In general. Kinds of estoppel.<sup>7</sup>—Estoppels are usually of three classes, namely, estoppels by record, by deed, and by matter in pais.<sup>8</sup> Conflicting estoppels set the matter at large.<sup>9</sup>

22. Orders held made and accepted in view of provisions of will, and where will directed sale of land and division of proceeds, holders of said orders had right to payment in money and could join in suit to compel sale same as legatees could have done. Mitchell v. Carrollton Nat. Bk., 29 Ky. L. R. 1228, 97 S. W. 45.

23. Notice of assignment of legacy held sufficient to put testamentary trustee on notice. Seger v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 977, affg. 112 App. Div. 911, 98 N. Y. S. 1114.

24. Creditor of devisee attaching realty devised to him held not required to present his claim to probate court, and not entitled to participate in distribution of his estate, but property when distributed continued subject to lien of attachment. Martinovich v. Marsicano, 150 Cal. 597, 89 P. 333.

25. Creditor cannot maintain suit in equity to have his interest determined and set aside to satisfy judgment. Kalona Sav. Bk. v. Esch, 133 Iowa, 190, 109 N. W. 887.

26. Where heirs and administrator of vendee of timber continued, after latter's death, to cut timber under contract of sale, deriving large profits therefrom, held that decree against them all requiring them to perform provision of contract that vendee should pay taxes on land during its continuance was proper. Michigan Iron & Land Co. v. Nester, 147 Mich. 599, 14 Det. Leg. N. 47, 111 N. W. 177. Where third person held land under agreement to convey to decedent on payment of note for purchase price given him by latter, and after decedent's death administratrix paid note out of assets of estate, held that heir to whom half of land descended was properly required to pay half of amount so paid. Montgomery v. Montgomery [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1018, 99 S. W. 1145.

27. Vendee of land died before making any payments, leaving widow and minor children. Vendor subsequently forfeited contract for nonpayment, as he was authorized to do by its terms, and sold part of it, agreeing to convey rest of it to widow for difference between sum thus realized and price named in decedent's contract. Transaction was approved by court on final settlement of estate. Held that petition of children claiming interest in part sold, and asking for partition, was properly dismissed for want of equity. Harris v. Graf [Iowa] 111 N. W. 434.

9. Adverse claimants to water rights being both estopped by recitals in deeds in their chains of title, their rights will be adjusted without regard to estoppel. Schmidt v. Olympia Light & Power Co. [Wash.] 90 P. 212.

§ 3. Estoppel by deed.<sup>13</sup>—Parties and privies<sup>14</sup> are estopped by recitals of fact in instruments under seal.<sup>15</sup>

One who assumes to convey property by deed may not defeat his grantee's title by saying he had no title at the time of the conveyance,<sup>16</sup> nor may he deny to the deed its full effect<sup>17</sup> in the absence of fraud.<sup>18</sup> Accordingly a grantor who covenants against incumbrances is estopped to assert, as against his grantee, a title subsequently acquired through foreclosure of an incumbrance existing at the time of the grant,<sup>19</sup> and a wife's renunciation of dower by instrument in proper form precludes her from thereafter asserting title.<sup>20</sup>

14. Third persons are not estopped by recitals in a deed to which they are not parties. Lyons v. Lawrence, 113 La. 461, 43 So. 51.

15. Where an instrument under seal contains a recital of facts, upon the truth of which the validity of the contract depends, the recital is conclusive on the parties thereto in the absence of a reformation on the ground of mistake, especially where contract has been executed. Altman v. McMillin, 115 App. Div. 234, 100 N. Y. S. 970. Daughter taking deed reciting as consideration $5 and love and affection held precluded from showing that real consideration was a previous agreement with father as against one purchasing before execution of deed to daughter. Lawson v. Mullinix, 104 Md. 156, 64 A. 933. Party to oil and gas contract estopped by recited consideration of $1 as against assignee. Dill v. Frazee [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971. Landlord estopped to deny terms of lease. Mueller v. Rhein [Conn.] 66 A. 770. One who executes a power of attorney is estopped by recitals of fact therein as against one who buys in reliance thereon. Recital by married woman that she was sole. Jones' Estate v. Neal [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 392, 98 S. W. 417.

Delivery bond conclusive that defendant had possession of property at time of seizure in replevin. Indiana Union Trac. Co. v. Bick [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 617. Recital in contractor's bond that contract was valid and subsisting held to preclude sureties from asserting that it was ultra vires. Bell v. Kirkland [Minn.] 113 N. W. 271.

16. Gardner v. Wright [Or.] 91 P. 286. Expectant heirs who had taken quitclaim deed from stepmother and executed a statutory warranty mortgage held estopped to assert that their title was imperfect as against mortgagee and those having claims founded on mortgage. Griffis v. First Nat. Bk. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 490.

After acquired title: Equitable estate subsequently acquired by grantor with warranty held to pass to grantee under Kirby's Dig. § 734. Osceola Land Co. v. Chicago Mill & Lumber Co. [Ark.] 103 S. W. 609. An after-acquired title does not inure where the grantee knew that the grantor had no title and did not expect to procure any (Gardner v. Wright [Or.] 91 P. 286), or where only an inchoate interest is purported to be conveyed, the completion or forfeiture of which depends upon acts or diligence on the part of the grantee. Water privileges (Id.). As against one of two grantees of possessory title and water rights, grantor is not estopped to assert after-acquired title to interest conveyed to the other who had made only an oral transfer of his rights to cointerestee, there having then been no diversion, nor prior to diversion by grantor. Id.

Quitclaim by holder of bond for deed did not pass title subsequently acquired. Tabler v. Peverill [Cal. App.] 88 P. 994.

Grantor may acquire interests not inconsistent with previous grant: Assignor of timber lease could acquire rights to take effect after expiration of assigned lease. Baker v. Davis, 127 Ga. 649, 57 S. E. 62. Grantor who did not undertake to convey that portion of certain land lying east of a supposed meander line held not estopped to assert title thereto by subsequent patent. Barringer v. Davis [Iowa] 112 N. W. 208.

Adverse possession of water rights. Gardner v. Wright [Or.] 91 P. 286.

17. Gardner v. Wright [Or.] 91 P. 286. Grantor estopped, by executing and recording deed, to enable grantee to execute a mortgage though deed was not manually delivered. Creeden v. Mahoney, 193 Mass. 402, 79 N. E. 776. Devises partitioning by mutual exchange of warranty deeds in fee estopped to claim any right of survivorship under will. Walker v. Taylor, 144 N. C. 175, 56 S. E. 877. A warranty deed of the interest of one as heir expectant, if executed in good faith, estops the grantor from thereafter asserting any interest in the expectancy though he received no part of the consideration paid. McAdams v. Bailey [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 171. Plaintiff, as heir of another, could not ignore, on ground of absolute nullity, a transfer of legal title by mother to her mother. Cain v. Bauman, 118 La. 82, 42 So. 654. Grantees of one who had previously conveyed water rights with reservations estopped to object to defendants' use of water so long as reservations were not impaired. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co., 150 Cal. 520, 89 P. 338. Plaintiff's privy with first deed did not estop him from making appropriation of water in lake subject to appropriation, or from objecting to use of water in excess of rights granted if such use interfered with right of appropriation. Id.

18. A deed obtained by fraud does not estop the grantor. Misrepresentations whereby deed was made to include more timber than parties intended. Goodwin v. Fall [Me.] 66 A. 727.

19. Under statute providing that word "grant" or "convey" implies a covenant, that

A person will not be permitted to impeach a title under which he claims,<sup>21</sup> but one in possession may purchase an outstanding claim without prejudice to his rights already existing,<sup>22</sup> and a deed providing that it shall be void upon breach of conditions does not estop the grantee after breach from asserting title under an earlier deed from another.<sup>23</sup>

A grantee who assumes the payment of a mortgage is estopped to thereafter assert its invalidity,<sup>24</sup> but one who has received no benefits is not estopped to set up usury.<sup>25</sup>

A defendant in ejectment is estopped to question the title of a common grantor.<sup>26</sup>

§ 4. Estoppel in pais<sup>27</sup> precludes one from repudiating his own representations or conduct to the injury of persons who have acted thereon in good faith.<sup>28</sup> It is now applied as liberally in courts of law as in courts of equity,<sup>29</sup> the only estoppels available in equity being such as relate to titles and relations not cognizable at law.<sup>30</sup> It will be cautiously applied, however, where it is sought to divest title to land.<sup>31</sup>

Elements.<sup>32</sup>—It must appear that the party claimed to be estopped has made some misrepresentation<sup>33</sup> or wrongful concealment<sup>34</sup> of material existing facts<sup>35</sup>

owing to the general sense in which the word "estoppel" is often used, and because of their close relation to real estoppels.

Pleading and proof; questions of law and fact.<sup>57</sup>—The party seeking to establish an estoppel in pais has the burden of pleading<sup>58</sup> and proving it.<sup>59</sup> A plea which omits any essential element of estoppel is insufficient.<sup>60</sup>

§ 5. Extent of operation of doctrine of estoppel.<sup>61</sup>—An estoppel affects parties and privies.<sup>62</sup> Hence an ordinary heir cannot be heard to allege the turpitude of the person under whom he claims, or to assert any claim which such person would be estopped to assert,<sup>63</sup> but a forced heir is not estopped to attack, to the extent necessary to protect his legitime, the alleged illegal, fraudulent, or simulated conveyances of the person to whom he occupies that relation,<sup>64</sup> and a grantee of one in possession is not estopped by prior statements of his grantor of which he had no knowledge.<sup>65</sup> As to personalty, an executor is in privity with a legatee so as to enable him to avail himself of an estoppel in favor of the latter.<sup>66</sup>

While the doctrine of estoppel applies to infants of years of discretion for intentional and fraudulent conduct,<sup>67</sup> estoppel by contract or for mere silence does not apply to them,<sup>68</sup> and the unauthorized acts of a guardian with reference to his ward's estate will not estop an infant.<sup>69</sup> A married woman may be estopped<sup>70</sup> if her conduct amounts to fraud.<sup>71</sup> The doctrine has also been successfully invoked

57. See 7 C. L. 1507.

58. Must be pleaded where it is the basis of suit or defense. Saginaw Suburban R. Co. v. Connelly, 146 Mich. 395, 13 Det. Leg. N. 796, 109 N. W. 677. If there is opportunity to do so. Christian v. Eugene [Or.] 89 P. 419. Estoppel of widow to elect to take child's part not provable unless pleaded. Keeney v. McVoy [Mo.] 103 S. W. 946. An estoppel in pais need not be pleaded. Bernhard v. Rochester German Ins. Co., 79 Conn. 388, 65 A. 134.

59. Claim of title to land by estoppel. Beaufort Lumber Co. v. Price, 144 N. C. 50, 56 S. E. 684. Burden on defendant to show that a bank was estopped to claim funds diverted by cashier. Home Sav. Bk. v. Otterbach [Iowa] 112 N. W. 769. Mortgagee bound to allege and prove matters in estoppel against creditors of partnership and partner who did not sign as required by statute. Lellman v. Mills [Wyo.] 87 P. 985.

Evidence insufficient, where presence of wife, when husband's notes were taken in reliance on realty, was merely a matter of surmise. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Perkins [Iowa] 110 N. W. 15.

60. Plea demurrable for failure to allege that when defendant purchased land she was ignorant that city had a further lien thereon. Kraut v. Dayton, 30 Ky. L. R. 191, 97 S. W. 1101. A plea of estoppel for acquiescence in defendant's conduct must show a duty on plaintiff's part to have made objection. Plea that plaintiff was estopped by acquiescence in construction of sewer polluting a stream. Virginia Hot Springs Co. v. McCray, 106 Va. 461, 56 S. E. 216.

61. See 7 C. L. 1508.

62. An assignee of one estopped to claim rents. Carrigg v. Mechanics' Sav. Bk. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 329. Where defendant in garnishment was estopped to claim commissions from garnishee, plaintiff in garnishment was also estopped. Munson v. Mabon [Iowa] 112 N. W. 775.

Client bound by attorney's estoppel to object to bill of exceptions. Memphis Consol. Gas & Elec. Co. v. Simpson [Tenn.] 103 S. W. 788.

63, 64. Jones v. Jones [La.] 44 So. 429.

65. Chase v. Cochran [Me.] 67 A. 320. Grantee of a servient estate not estopped by prior statements by his grantor inducing one to purchase dominant estate, though grantee of easement was in possession, where contract creating easement was on record. Metcalfe v. Faucher [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1038.

66. Executor could set up estoppel of testatrix's daughter to assert a claim against estate as against legatee. Pond v. Pond's Estate, 79 Vt. 352, 65 A. 97.

67. Headley v. Hoopengartner, 60 W. Va. 626, 55 S. E. 744.

68. Headley v. Hoopengartner, 60 W. Va. 626, 55 S. E. 744. Infant not bound by silence as against father's execution creditor, there being no intentional and fraudulent conduct. Harper v. Utsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 17, 97 S. W. 508.

69. That guardian agreed to and did receive less oil as rent than that to which infants were entitled. Headley v. Hoopengartner, 60 W. Va. 626, 55 S. E. 744. Infants continuing to receive same amount after maturity not estopped. Id.

70. Release of dower. Wilkins v. Baker [S. C.] 57 S. E. 851. Married woman estopped by power of attorney reciting she was a feme sole. Jones' Estate v. Neal [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 392, 98 S. W. 417. A married woman is not estopped if the other party knew all the facts, notwithstanding a statute providing that married women shall be bound by estoppel in pais. Indianapolis Brew. Co. v. Behnke [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 119.

71. In absence of misrepresentations or deception, married woman not estopped to assert title to property not legally transfer-against a city,<sup>72</sup> but neither a municipality<sup>73</sup> nor the state<sup>74</sup> will be held estopped by the unauthorized acts of its agents.

Estoppel is intended only to prevent injustice, and imposes silence on one only when in conscience and honesty he should not be allowed to speak.<sup>75</sup> It follows that one may be estopped only as to matters to which his representations or conduct related,<sup>76</sup> and persons who are not misled may not take advantage of an estoppel,<sup>77</sup> nor may it be asserted by one whose hands are not clean.<sup>78</sup>

While one who has been active in procuring the adoption of an invalid law and who has received the full benefit thereof may be estopped from contesting the collection of a tax to pay for such benefit according to the terms of the law,<sup>79</sup> he will not be concluded as to acts done not strictly thereunder,<sup>80</sup> nor as to matters yet remaining to be done, or expenses not yet incurred.<sup>81</sup>

Estoppel cannot be invoked so as to frustrate the public policy of the state.<sup>82</sup>

Sloss* [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 600, 100 S. W. 354.

15. The court of appeals of the Indian Territory will not take judicial notice of what the law of the Chickasaw Nation is; this must be alleged and proved the same as foreign law, or by publications thereof, the absence of statute requiring such judicial recognition. A Federal court will take judicial notice of a general statute of the state in which it sits.<sup>18</sup> Upon the question whether the courts of one state will take judicial notice of the laws of another state, in an action upon a judgment of a court of such other state, the authorities are in conflict.<sup>19</sup> It is said that the safer rule is to require proof of the laws of other states in cases of this kind as well as in others.<sup>20</sup> It is held in Georgia that while a foreign statute which is relied upon must be pleaded and proved, yet no particular kind or quantum of proof is required,<sup>21</sup> and the court may even proceed upon its own knowledge of such law when necessary to render a correct decision.<sup>22</sup> In that state there is a statute which is said to authorize judicial recognition of foreign statutes.<sup>23</sup>

All courts take judicial notice of matters of common and general knowledge<sup>24</sup>

or by the testimony of some person learned therein. Elliott v. Garvin [Ind. T.] 104 S. W. 878.

That "rough on rats" contains arsenic, or that name is always applied to the same compound, or that two packages, similarly sealed and labeled, taken from the same stock, contain the same article. State v. Blydenburg [Iowa] 112 N. W. 634. That insurance society is a fraternal organization, and of general customs and usages.<sup>25</sup> An existent fact, which is per se neither the subject of legislation nor adjudication, can be judicially known and recognized as a fact,<sup>26</sup> and such judicial recognition does not amount to the exercise of legislative functions.<sup>27</sup> Thus, courts may take judicial notice of social status, and of the superiority and inferiority of races<sup>28</sup> without affecting the civil rights of the citizen.<sup>29</sup>

A court may take evidence to refresh its memory as to facts of which it takes judicial notice,<sup>30</sup> and is not precluded, by the introduction of other evidence, from making use of its own knowledge of a fact in passing upon a particular issue.<sup>31</sup>

(§ 1) B. Presumptions and burden of proof.<sup>32</sup>—Presumptions of law are such inferences as are warranted by the legal experience of courts in administering justice and are usually founded on reasons of public policy and social convenience and safety.<sup>33</sup> They are conclusive, and have become rules of law; others are rebuttable.<sup>34</sup> Only rebuttable presumptions are here treated, conclusive presumptions being discussed in connection with the subject-matter to which they relate.<sup>35</sup>

Presumptions of fact are inferences which enlightened common sense and experience may draw from the connection, relation, and coincidence of facts and circumstances with each other.<sup>36</sup> Presumptions of fact must always be drawn by the

as alleged in a bill of interpleader, where the claimant alleges it is an old time company. Smith v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. of Missouri, 124 Mo. App. 181, 101 S. W. 662. In a proceeding by the state to abate a dam as a public nuisance, the complaint alleging that the stream is navigable, on a demurrer to the complaint, that the stream is nonnavigable and so prevent any proof by the state. State v. Norcross [Wis.] 112 N. W. 40. That certain electrical devices will not cure certain diseases, and that claims to that effect are false, but in a proceeding to revoke a physician's license these facts should be proved. Macomber v. State Board of Health [R. I.] 65 A. 263. In determining reasonableness of ordinance prohibiting maintenance of signs extending more than 18 inches from the building, the court cannot take judicial notice of conditions at a particular place. City of St. Louis v. St. Louis Theatre Co., 202 Mo. 690, 100 S. W. 627. Of solvency of a foreign state so as to support a finding that its bonds are of par value. Hebblethwaite v. Flint, 115 App. Div. 597, 101 N. Y. S. 43.

25. General custom of carriers to transport sample trunks as personal baggage. Fleischman, Morris & Co. v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 974. To authorize courts to take judicial notice of a custom or usage, it must be general as to territory and not limited to a certain class. Schultz v. Ford Bros., 133 Iowa, 402, 109 N. W. 614. An alleged custom or usage among traveling salesmen whereby the words "sales," "sell," and "sold" include the soliciting of sales which the employer is willing to accept, or which he does accept or fill, held not so general as to warrant the court in taking judicial notice of it. Id. Courts will take judicial notice of the general custom whereby persons desiring to take out life insurance are required to sign applications stating material facts and will presume that this custom was followed in a given instance in the absence of contrary evidence. Taylor v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. of Minnesota, 101 Minn. 72, 111 N. W. 919.

34. City of Indianapolis v. Keeley, 167 Ind. 516, 79 N. E. 499. Irrebuttable presumptions, or presumptions of law, are those which proceed from an arbitrary rule of law that a particular inference of fact shall necessarily be drawn from certain established facts. Sowers v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 104 S. W. 1122. There are, however, some presumptions of law, so-called, which are rebuttable. Id.

trial court or jury from the evidence, and the only presumptions of fact which the law recognizes are such immediate inferences as the court or jury may reasonably draw from facts proved.<sup>37</sup> A presumption of fact cannot be based upon another disputable presumption.<sup>38</sup> Presumptions or inferences of fact are always disputable,<sup>39</sup> and whether they have in fact been overcome is a question for the trial court or jury.<sup>40</sup>

Among the commonly recognized presumptions of fact are the following:<sup>41</sup> Where a fact is proved which is in its nature continuous, it is presumed to exist until the contrary is proved,<sup>42</sup> even though there is a general presumption against the condition so shown,<sup>43</sup> but no presumption arises that such conditions existed anterior to the date proved.<sup>44</sup> Proof that a letter was properly addressed, stamped, and mailed<sup>45</sup> warrants the inference that it was received in due course,<sup>46</sup> but receipt of a letter purporting to be signed by a certain person is no evidence that it was written or signed by such person,<sup>47</sup> unless it also purports to be a reply to a letter written to such person.<sup>48</sup> Absence from a person's domicile for seven years, and the fact that he is not heard from for that period, raises a presumption of death,<sup>49</sup> but

37. Error to instruct that person injured was presumed to be without fault at time of accident. City of Indianapolis v. Keeley, 167 Ind. 516, 79 N. E. 499. While the court cannot infer facts not proven, it may draw all the inferences from proven facts that naturally follow therefrom. Home Inv. Co. v. Clarson [S. D.] 109 N. W. 507. It cannot be presumed that a newspaper is published daily from the mere fact that the word "daily" occurs in its name. Fox v. Wright [Cal.] 91 P. 1005.

42. Thus residence, once established, is presumed to continue until a change is shown. State v. Jackson, 79 Vt. 504, 65 A. 657. Where there is testimony that a note and mortgage had never been paid, there is a presumption that the person to whom it was made and delivered was still the owner. Marsters v. Umpqua Valley Oil Co. [Or.] 90 P. 151. Proof that several years before action a certain person had been treasurer of a domestic corporation and that no list of officers had been annually filed thereafter as required by law held to justify presumption that he was still the treasurer. Stafford Springs St. R. Co. v. Middle River Mfg. Co. [Conn.] 66 A. 775. Where railway tracks were shown to belong to defendant, its possession and use thereof would be presumed to be exclusive until the contrary was shown. Jennings v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 121 App. Div. 587, 106 N. Y. S. 279. Possession once established is presumed to continue. Burgener v. Lippold, 128 Ill. App. 590.

43. Insanity once shown is presumed to continue until mental soundness is shown. Beard v. Southern R. Co., 143 N. C. 137, 55 S. E. 505. Where it is alleged that grantor in deed was 85 years old and mentally incompetent, allegations that she was not restored to soundness of mind are unnecessary, since the presumption would be that she remained incompetent. Studebaker v. Faylor [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 861. Every person is presumed to be of sound mind until the contrary is shown, and one asserting mental unsoundness has the burden of proving it. Rogers v. Rogers [Del.] 66 A. 374. The law presumes mental soundness, and where legal incompetency is alleged to show an instrument invalid, the burden is upon him who asserts such incompetency to prove it by a fair preponderance of the evidence. Ireland v. White [Me.] 66 A. 477.

44. Proof of property at a certain date is no proof of title a year previous. Gibson v. Clark, 131 Iowa, 325, 108 N. W. 527.

45. Bankers' Mut. Casualty Co. v. People's Bk. of Talbotton, 127 Ga. 326, 56 S. E. 429. Testimony of witness that he wrote a letter and left it as usual on a mailing table from which it was customary for boy who did that work to take and mail it held sufficient to warrant inference that letter was properly addressed, stamped, mailed, and received. Smith v. Heitman Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 124, 98 S. W. 1074. Where letter was addressed "Mulberry street" (New York) without street number, the presumption of delivery could not prevail against positive testimony of the addressee that he never received it. Cagliostro v. Indelli, 53 Misc. 44, 102 N. Y. S. 918.

46. Beard v. Southern R. Co., 143 N. C. 137, 55 S. E. 505. Presumed that papers to be served on a nonresident defendant contained in a securely enclosed, postpaid wrapper, properly directed to the correct address of the defendant, was received by defendant. Mishkind-Feinberg Realty Co. v. Sidorsky [N. Y.] 82 N. E. 448. Held to apply to the mailing of attachment notice. Smith v. Berz, 125 Ill. App. 122.

47. Beard v. Southern R. Co., 143 N. C. 137, 55 S. E. 505.

48. American Bonding Co. v. Ensey [Md.] 65 A. 921. Letter signed by corporate name "per G." held admissible, though "G" was not the president. Leesville Mfg. Co. v. Morgan Wood & Iron Works, 75 S. C. 342, 55 S. E. 768.

no such presumption is raised by a showing that a person has left the state to establish a new domicile and has not been heard from for seven years; absence from the new domicile would in such case be necessary.<sup>50</sup>

Failure or refusal of a party to testify to facts within his knowledge,<sup>51</sup> or an attempt to suppress evidence,<sup>52</sup> or failure to call available witnesses or produce available evidence,<sup>53</sup> may be considered by the jury,<sup>54</sup> and such failure or refusal to testify or produce evidence, if unexplained, raises the presumption that the testimony or evidence if produced would be unfavorable to the party suppressing it.<sup>55</sup> To meet this presumption it may be shown that persons who had knowledge of the facts in issue could not be produced to testify.<sup>56</sup> Where it does not appear that a party holds back evidence within his power to produce, the nonproduction of more full and definite evidence than he presents raises no presumption against him.<sup>57</sup>

49, 50. Gorham v. Settegast [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 432, 98 S. W. 665.

51. Testimony tending to show that one of defendants was avoiding service of a subpoena by plaintiff and that he had been in the city but failed to appear in court held admissible. Walker v. Dickey [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 934, 98 S. W. 658. When a party refuses to answer interrogatories submitted before trial, they may be taken as confessed. Locust v. Randle [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 673, 102 S. W. 946.

52. Where in a disbarment proceeding it was shown that the attorney sought to be disbarred had attempted to intimidate a person who had signed a deposition, in the action in which improper conduct was claimed, to change the deposition, the deposition was admissible, the facts tending to show a consciousness of guilt. In re Durant [Conn.] 67 A. 497. All reasonable presumptions will be indulged against one who destroys evidence pertinent to the issue. William Grace Co. v. Larsons, 129 Ill. App. 290.

53. Jury has a right to consider the unexplained absence of witnesses, and failure to submit evidence presumably within a party's control. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Osborn, 39 Ind. App. 333, 78 N. E. 248, 79 N. E. 1067. Failure to produce an available witness warrants inference by jury that his testimony would be unfavorable. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Sherman, 123 Ill. App. 202. In action for injuries based on failure to provide proper means to transfer passengers safely from one train to another, evidence that there were two other passengers in the coach with plaintiff, and that they were not called as witnesses, though plaintiff knew where they resided, was held admissible. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Harrington [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 653.

54. It has been held in New York that failure to produce an available witness raises no presumption unfavorable to the party but is a circumstance to be considered by the jury in weighing the evidence. Ferrari v. Interurban St. R. Co., 118 App. Div. 155, 103 N. Y. S. 134. While no presumption attaches to failure to call a witness who might corroborate, the jury has the right to consider the failure to call him or explain his absence. Richter v. Solomon, 104 N. Y. S. 405.

55. Where corporation withheld records and books under its control, presumption was that if produced the evidence would be unfavorable to it. Williams v. Commercial Nat. Bk. [Or.] 90 P. 1012. If evidence material to the issues is shown to be particularly within the possession and control of either party and he has neither produced it nor accounted for his failure to do so, it is to be presumed that such evidence if produced would not be to the advantage of such party. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Barnes [Kan.] 90 P. 233. In action for injuries caused by breaking of defective coupling, the company removed the defective part and failed to produce it at the trial, though notified to do so. Held the presumption arose that the appearance of the defective part would not be evidence in favor of the company. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Young [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 929, 100 S. W. 993.

56. Lord v. Manchester St. R. [N. H.] 67 A. 639. Where agent who delivered insurance policy was not in company's employ at time of suit on the policy, and his whereabouts was unknown to it, failure to produce him as a witness was no ground for the indulgence of any unfavorable presumption against the company. Mutual Industrial Indemnity Co. v. Perkins [Ark.] 98 S. W. 709.

57. Failure to swear motorman who knew nothing of accident did not raise any presumption. Shields v. Georgia R. & Elec. Co., 1 Ga. App. 172, 57 S. E. 980. In action for injuries to passenger it did not appear that passenger's wife, who accompanied him, knew anything about the occurrence. Held no unfavorable inference could be drawn from failure to call her as a witness. Tauger v. New York City R. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 681. In action for injuries to employee, failure of defendant to have at the trial as witnesses certain persons who saw the accident could not be considered as a circumstance tending to show negligence. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 954, 101 S. W. 453. Held that no inference could be drawn from failure of defendant railroad to produce engineer in collision case. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ala.] 43 So. 844. Where a witness was equally accessible to both parties and could have been called by either to prove or disprove a statement by one party as a witness, it was error to allow counsel to argue that the absence of the witness was the basis for an unfavorable inference against plaintiff. Sears v. Duling, 79 Vt. 334, 65 A. 90.

Where a plaintiff fails to make out a prima facie case, failure of the defendant to call witnesses, or any particular witness, raises no presumption unfavorable to him,<sup>58</sup> nor can such failure of the defendant assist the plaintiff<sup>59</sup> or relieve him from the burden of proving his case.<sup>60</sup> An attempt to bribe a witness favorable to the adverse party raises no presumption against the party guilty of such act, but is a fact to be considered by the jury in weighing the testimony.<sup>61</sup>

As already observed, there are certain rebuttable presumptions indulged by the courts on grounds of public policy. Thus, the law presumes the validity and regularity of the official acts of public officers within the line of their official duties, and this presumption obtains until overcome by proof as to such acts.<sup>62</sup> Judicial proceedings of a court of competent jurisdiction are presumed to be regular and valid.<sup>63</sup> All persons are presumed to know the law,<sup>64</sup> and, in general, compliance with the law will be presumed until the contrary is made to appear.<sup>65</sup> Similarly, the presumption is in favor of innocence, legitimacy,<sup>66</sup> and right and proper conduct in compliance with one's obligations,<sup>67</sup> and fraud and wrong conduct will not be presumed,<sup>68</sup> and such presumption will prevail in case of conflicting presumptions.<sup>69</sup> A written instrument will be presumed to have been executed on the day of its date.<sup>70</sup>

Presumption is that customs officer appointed another who had statutory qualifications as his duty required of him. Erhardt v. Ballin [C. C. A.] 150 F. 529. Court will not presume, in the absence of evidence, that acts of county commissioners were illegal in letting contracts. State v. Switzer [Neb.] 112 N. W. 297. Presumption is that a law as certified to by secretary of state is in the same form as when passed and signed by the governor. Erford v. Peoria [Ill.] 82 N. E. 374. Where return of process was signed by sheriff by his deputy, it was presumed, in absence of evidence to contrary, that it was in fact served by that officer. Eversole v. Eastern Kentucky Asylum for the Insane, 30 Ky. L. R. 989, 100 S. W. 300. While presumption is that clerk of court properly dated a summons, this presumption is disputable. Gehlert v. Quinn, 35 Mont. 451, 90 P. 168.

63. Martel v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate, 118 La. 391, 42 So. 975.

64. State statute prohibited savings banks from borrowing money for ordinary purposes. Another bank in the state was conclusively presumed to know that law. State v. Corning State Sav. Bk. [Iowa] 113 N. W. 500.

65. Presumption indulged that insane person was present at inquest as required by law. Eversole v. Eastern Kentucky Asylum for the Insane, 30 Ky. L. R. 989, 100 S. W. 300. Where county clerk's certificate attached to abstract of judgment recited that abstract was entered on judgment index, etc., it was presumed that it had been indexed in alphabetical order as required by statute. Abee

67. Trust deed vested title in trustee with duty to convey on written request, and trustee gave a deed. Held, 20 years after, a written request to convey would be presumed. Pope v. Patterson [S. C.] 58 S. E. 945. Seals of private corporations do not prove themselves, but where it is shown or admitted that an instrument is signed for the corporation by its proper officer, the presumption is that it is duly executed, and this presumption includes the authenticity of the seal shown. Griffing Bros. Co. v. Winfield [Fla.] 43 So. 687. Manager of corporation is presumed to act with authority of corporation in making demand for corporate property. Stovell v. Alert Gold Min. Co. [Colo.] 87 P. 1071. The seal of a corporation on an instrument, accompanied by signature of secretary, is presumptive proof of authority of the corporation to execute the instrument, and this presumption is not overcome by proof that there was no vote of the directors or other body authorizing the act. Bliss v. Harris [Colo.] 87 P. 1076.

68. Creeden v. Mahoney, 193 Mass. 402, 79 N. E. 776. It should be presumed that an applicant for the purchase of school lands proceeded legally and regularly rather than fraudulently and illegally. Henshall v. Marsh [Cal.] 90 P. 693. The presumption is that contracts for future delivery of grain are valid and are to be performed, and one who attempts to show that there was no intention to carry them out has the burden of proof. Charge v. Laidley [C. C. A.] 149 F. 346.

69. On proof of prior valid marriage by one suing as widow, divorce rather than bigamy will be inferred. Johnson v. St. Joseph Terminal R. Co., 203 Mo. 381, 101 S. W. 641. The presumption of identity of person from identity of name yields to that against official misconduct. Shuler v. State, 125 Ga. 778, 54 S. E. 689.

70. Kauffman v. Baillie [Wash.] 89 P. 548.

There is a presumption against suicide,<sup>71</sup> where the circumstances are equally consistent with death from some other natural cause,<sup>72</sup> and there is also a presumption, arising from the instinct of self-preservation, that a person accidentally killed was in the exercise of due care at the time, in the absence of evidence as to the facts.<sup>73</sup>

Where there is no proof of the law of another state, it will be presumed that the common law prevails in that state<sup>74</sup> and that its law is the same as that of the forum,<sup>75</sup> but it is only the common law of the forum which is presumed to be the same as that of the sister state. There is no presumption that the statute law of the forum prevails in another state.<sup>76</sup> There, are, however, authorities to the contrary.<sup>77</sup> The common law of England will not be presumed to prevail in a state never subject to that law.<sup>78</sup>

It is presumed that a letter is written on the date appearing on the top thereof, but this presumption is rebuttable by evidence clearly showing it to be a clerical error. Dowie v. Sutton, 126 Ill. App. 47.

71. Presumption is that death resulted from natural cause and was not self-inflicted. Hildebrand v. United Artisans [Or.] 91 P. 542. See, also, Insurance, § C. L. 377.

72. White v. Prudential Ins. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 87.

73. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that a man who was killed was exercising due diligence at the time of his death. Meier v. Way, Johnson, Lee & Co. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 420. Where person injured was left unconscious and could not testify directly to her acts, the presumption would prevail that she exercised due care in the absence of contrary evidence. Statler v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 200 Mo. 107, 98 S. W. 509. Where person was killed by car, presumption is that decedent was in the exercise of due care and saw the car. Powers v. St. Louis Transit Co., 202 Mo. 267, 100 S. W. 655. Where there were no eye witnesses to accident causing death of deceased, and only circumstantial evidence to show the manner of his death, the presumption was held to arise that he was in the exercise of due care. Cahill v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo.] 103 S. W. 532. In an action for death of a person run down by a train, it was held that the presumption arising from the instinct of self-preservation would be sufficient to sustain the burden of proof in the first instance that deceased was not at fault, though this presumption could not prevail against evidence showing he could not have used due care. Christopherson v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077. In action for wrongful death, the presumption that decedent exercised due care has no weight when the circumstances attending the accident are shown. Savage v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 633. See, also, Death by Wrongful Act, 9 C. L. 926.

74. Crane v. Blackman, 126 Ill. App. 631; Ellington v. Harris, 127 Ga. 85, 56 S. E. 134. Presumed that the common law prevails in Illinois in the absence of proof of statute law on the subject. Jordan v. Pence, 123 Mo. App. 321, 100 S. W. 529. On a common-law question courts of one state will assume that common law prevails in a sister state in the absence of contrary proof. Forsyth v. Barnes, 228 Ill. 326, 81 N. E. 1028. Ordinarily, in absence of proof of law of sister state, the common law is presumed to prevail if it has a "common law." Waterford v. Alabama & Florida Lumber Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 567.

75. In the absence of proof of the law of a sister state, it will be presumed that the common law prevails and that such common law is the same as that of the forum. Demelman v. Brazier, 193 Mass. 588, 79 N. E. 812; Hodgkins v. Bowser [Mass.] 80 N. E. 796; Commonwealth v. Stevens [Mass.] 82 N. E. 33. Law of Wisconsin not being proved in action in South Carolina, it will be presumed to be the common law as understood and enforced in South Carolina. Jonesville Mfg. Co. v. Southern R. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 422. Law of Arkansas presumed same as that of Tennessee in absence of proof. Star Clothing Mfg. Co. v. Nordeman [Tenn.] 100 S. W. 93. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the presumption is that the laws of New Mexico are same as those of Texas. Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Curtis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 743, 99 S. W. 566. Law of West Virginia regarding duties of railroad companies to employes walking on the track presumed same as those of Virginia, except a statute with regard to remedy for death which was set out in declaration. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Denny's Adm'r, 106 Va. 383, 56 S. E. 321.

76. It will not be presumed that New York has statute similar to Mass. Rev. Laws, c. 73, § 103, abolishing days of grace on promissory notes. Demelman v. Brazier, 193 Mass. 588, 79 N. E. 812. Statute law of a sister state can be considered only so far as proved. Commonwealth v. Stevens [Mass.] 82 N. E. 33.

77. In absence of contrary proof, general incorporation laws of sister state will be presumed to be the same as of the forum. Bannard v. Duncan [Neb.] 112 N. W. 353. In the absence of proof to the contrary, courts of Nebraska presume the constitution and statutes of another state to be the same as those of Nebraska. Cook v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 718. A party desiring to avail himself of the usury law of another state must plead and prove such laws; otherwise they will be presumed to be the same as those of the forum. Betz v. Wilson, 17 Okl. 383, 87 P. 844. Statute of another state as to showing relation of party to note by parol may be presumed same as the lex fori, in the absence of positive evidence. Windhorst v. Bergendahl [S. D.] 111 N. W. 544.

The burden of proof.<sup>79</sup>—The burden of proof is on the party who substantially asserts the affirmative of the issue, whether he be nominally plaintiff or defendant,<sup>80</sup> and it does not shift during the progress of the trial,<sup>81</sup> though the burden or duty of adducing evidence may shift.<sup>82</sup>

common law cannot be presumed to prevail there, in the absence of proof of its law, in an action in Alabama. Watford v. Alabama & Florida Lumber Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 567.

79. See 7 O. L. 1520.

80. Walker v. Carpenter, 144 N. C. 674, 57 S. E. 461. Averment in replication to special plea that money claimed did not arise out of a partnership, but was a separate debt, casts the burden of proving it on the plaintiff. Hartzell v. Murray, 127 Ill. App. 608. Held to apply to one asserting that proceedings to secure a lien on personal property were fraudulent. Smith v. Berz, 125 Ill. App. 122. Burden of proving defense in confession and avoidance is on defendant. Bogart v. Tannebaum, 53 Misc. 310, 103 N. Y. S. 98. Where defendant counterclaims and an issue is raised thereon, the burden is upon him to establish his claim. Hollander v. Farber, 117 App. Div. 908, 102 N. Y. S. 506. In replevin suit by administrator to recover property from decedent's father, the burden was on defendant to prove his defense that he bought the property. Gibson v. Swofford, 122 Mo. App. 126, 97 S. W. 1007. Burden of showing lack of consideration for note and mortgage is on party seeking to invalidate them, since they import a consideration. Borden v. Lynch, 34 Mont. 503, 87 P. 609. In suit for money had, where defendant admitted receiving the money but claimed he retained it with plaintiff's permission to pay certain debts of plaintiff, the burden was on defendant to prove that defense. Bailey v. Porter, 30 Ky. L. R. 915, 99 S. W. 932. Where defendant in his answer states facts by way of a defense or in avoidance of the averments of the petition, the burden is upon him to establish such facts and not upon plaintiff to disprove them in making his case. Collier v. Munger [Kan.] 89 P. 1011. Evidence insufficient to sustain counterclaim for value of goods not returned in action for price of laundry work. West Side Laundry Co. v. Calumet Hotel Co., 103 N. Y. S. 820. A negative allegation to bring a case within an exception must be proved by defendant. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Moore [Ind.] 82 N. E. 52.

81. The burden of proof does not shift during the trial but remains where it was fixed by the pleadings. Roberts v. Padgett [Ark.] 101 S. W. 753. The terms "prima facie" and "presumption" do not impart that the burden of the issue is changed, but that on the facts indicated the plaintiff is entitled to have his cause submitted to the jury under a proper charge as to the existence or nonexistence, and the effect of any presumption which may attach. Harper Furniture Co. v. Southern Exp. Co., 144 N. C. 639, 57 S. E. 458.

82. In an action on a note by the assignee defendant admitted its execution and pleaded want of consideration and transfer, after maturity, and that plaintiff was not a bona fide holder. The burden of proof was held to be upon defendant and did not shift upon introduction of proof of fraud in procuring the note and failure of consideration, though plaintiff was then obliged to adduce proof of bona fide holdership. Roberts v. Padgett [Ark.] 101 S. W. 753.

83. See 7 C. L. 1520.

84. The test of the admissibility of evidence is whether it has a tendency to effect belief in the mind of a reasonably cautious person who should receive and weigh it with judicial fairness. Brewer v. Cochran [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 796, 99 S. W. 1033. Evidence is any matter of fact, the effect, tendency, or design of which is to produce in the mind a persuasion, affirmative or disaffirmative, of the existence of some other matter of fact. Page v. Hazelton [N. H.] 66 A. 1049. It is relevant to put in evidence any circumstances which tend to make the propositions at issue either more or less probable. Todd v. German-American Ins. Co. [Ga. App.] 59 S. E. 94. Where there is a direct conflict in the evidence of witnesses relating to a material issue, any collateral fact or circumstance tending in any reasonable degree to establish the probability or improbability of the fact in issue is relevant. Shepherd v. Lincoln Trac. Co. [Neb.] 113 N. W. 627.

85. Held relevant: Whether it was dangerous to let seven empty cars down an incline of a certain height was relevant in an action for death of a minor servant riding on cars which were being let down under those circumstances. Woodstock Iron Works v. Kline [Ala.] 43 So. 362. On issue of reasonableness of railroad rates on a particular division, evidence of the through rate and the division thereof at each end was held admissible. E. L. Halliday Mill. Co. v. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co., 80 Ark. 536, 98 S. W. 374. On the question as to whether a note is forged, evidence as to the financial situations of the parties at the time of its alleged execution is admissible. Gregory v. Estate of Gregory, 129 Ill. App. 96. Letter containing continuing offer to purchase stock held admissible in action on contract resulting from acceptance, where it tended to sustain some, though not all, of the material allegations of declaration. Ellis Adm'r v. Durkee, 79 Vt. 341, 65 A. 94. In ejectment by one claiming under a deceased owner the answer alleged that at the time of giving the deed deceased was much impaired in mind and body and weak and incapable of properly caring for his property. Held the condition of the grantor's mind at the date of executing the deed was material. Doherty v. Courtney, 150 Cal. 606, 89 P. 434. Issue being whether a powder magazine which exploded on March 5, 1904, was a nuisance, proof of the condition of the magazine on February 18, 1904, was not too remote. Ker- other specific rule of evidence forbids.<sup>86</sup> Where evidence is competent for one purpose, the fact that it tends to show a cause of action not pleaded does not render it inadmissible.<sup>87</sup> Evidence as to collateral matters, not directly in issue,<sup>88</sup> and not related to or connected with the transaction or matter in issue,<sup>89</sup> and furnishing no legal inference as to the truth or falsity, existence, or nonexistence, of facts in dispute,<sup>90</sup> is irrelevant and inadmissible.<sup>91</sup> To prove the existence or nature of a par-

Evidence tending to establish the issue is admissible though not of itself sufficient. Nugent v. Watkins [Ga.] 58 S. E. 888. Evidence of condition of orchard in December, in connection with proof that trees had not leaved out in the summer, is material on the issue of its condition in the spring. Leathers v. Geitz [Iowa] 112 N. W. 191. Where good faith of party to a deed given as security was in issue, proof of information on which he acted at the time was admissible though he acted thereon four years later. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind.] 81 N. E. 71. Where pendency of divorce action was pleaded, papers in that action were admissible to show basis of contract on which suit was brought. Kinkead v. Peet [Iowa] 111 N. W. 48. In an action to recover on a promissory note, a copy of which is set forth in the petition, proof of loss of the note and of its execution and contents may be received though no mention of the loss is made in the petition. Bare v. Ford, 74 Kan. 593, 87 P. 731. Proof of an intention or preparation of a party to commit an assault may be shown. Conklin v. Consolidated R. Co. [Mass.] 82 N. E. 23. On issue of good faith of transfer of property to plaintiff before seizure under attachment as property of defendant, the fact that the bill of sale to plaintiff had been recorded on the day of its date, at a certain hour, was relevant. Gehlart v. Quinn, 35 Mont. 451, 90 P. 168. In action for damage to goods caused by bleaching liquid, defendant introduced proof that he had bleached some of the same goods without injuring them. Held evidence that the same fluid was used for all the goods was relevant. Davis v. Oakland Chem. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 693. Testimony of a practical bleacher that he had used the same fluid on goods without injuring them was also relevant. Id. Evidence that a claimant stated to a witness, at a time when he claimed a decedent was indebted to him, that he needed money and could not pay his note, and that he did not try to collect the alleged debt of decedent, had a tendency to prove that the alleged debt did not exist. Page v. Hazleton [N. H.] 66 A. 1049. 'In action for injuries to person struck by street car, motorman testified that he was running the car at three-fourths the maximum rate. Held evidence of a qualified witness who had tested the car as to its maximum speed was admissible. San Antonio Trac. Co. v. Haines [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 606, 100 S. W. 788. In action for damages to shipment of cattle, held not error to allow witness to state that it was the general rule of railroads to transport cattle as quickly as possible. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Gunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 571, 99 S. W. 152. Where there was a question whether a partnership contract covered a certain paint, proof of a custom covering the disputed matter was proper. Morgan v. Barber [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 914, 99 S. W. 730. Where defendant testified to a cash payment of $2,400, evidence that she had shortly before been compelled to vacate the house she was occupying because of failure to pay rent was admissible to show inability to make alleged payment. Walker v. Dickey [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 934, 98 S. W. 658. Where a judge was charged with having conspired with others to defeat and delay collection of taxes and with belonging to a party having that end in view, what he said and did prior to his election was admissible to sustain a charge as to acts after his election. Perry v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 180, 98 S. W. 411. Where delivery and validity of deed from husband to wife was questioned, a statement by the wife, prior to the husband's death, that he had given her all his property, was held competent as tending to show knowledge of and acceptance of the deed. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 286, 98 S. W. 198. Proof that steam escaped from an engine and obscured the engineer's view of the track on an occasion other than that in question held admissible without proof of similarity of conditions, the evidence not being of an experiment. Stone v. Union Pac. R. Co. [Utah] 89 P. 715.

86. All facts having rational probative value are admissible unless some specific rule forbids. Kirchner v. Smith, 61 W. Va. 434, 58 S. E. 614.

87. Evidence tending to show that plaintiff exercised ordinary care cannot be excluded because it likewise tends to show that master did not furnish him with a safe place within which to work, the latter question not being in issue. United States Wind Engine & Pump Co. v. Butcher, 126 Ill. App. 302.

88. If an issue raised by the pleadings is wholly immaterial, evidence in regard thereto should be excluded. Allen v. Ruland, 79 Conn. 405, 65 A. 138.

89. Proof of facts not shown to have any connection with any issue in the cause is properly excluded. Leathers v. Geitz [Iowa] 112 N. W. 191. Stock certificate held inadmissible where stock was in no way concerned in litigation. Jackson v. Gallagher [Ga.] 57 S. E. 750.

90. All evidence should be excluded which is incapable of affording any reasonable presumption or inference as to the principal fact or matter in dispute. On issue of falsity of representations made to induce acceptance of trust deed, evidence that subsequently the grantor owned a valuable residence and corporate stock was irrelevant. Guthrie v. O. T. Lyon [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 321, 98 S. W. 432. Evidence the releticular fact or transaction, or the intention of parties in a particular instance, evidence of wholly independent transactions,<sup>92</sup> such as those between parties other than vancy of which is not made to appear is properly excluded. Brusseau v. Lower Brick Co., 133 Iowa, 245, 110 N. W. 577.

91. Held irrelevant: Evidence of the amount spent for labor in installing an equipment in a building is inadmissible to prove an element of the loss recoverable on insurance policy without proof of the reasonableness of such expenditures for labor. Schaeffer Piano Mfg. Co. v. National Fire Extinguisher Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 159. Evidence in action for injuries to child at railway crossing, tending to show abandonment of the road, held inadmissible. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 162. Where the question whether railway company had been instructed as to kind of shipment to make was in issue, held proper to exclude testimony of shipping clerk that he would not have made shipment on credit, where it did not appear that he had authority to determine the kind of shipments. Smith v. Landa [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 130, 101 S. W. 470. In action for purchase price of stock, whether stock could have a fictitious market value was irrelevant where there was no evidence that the stock in question had a fictitious market value. Commercial & Sav. Bk. v. Pott, 150 Cal. 358, 89 P. 43. Where witness stated he did not know whether a railroad coach in question contained a certain sign, it was proper to exclude his answer to a question as to the contents of signs ordinarily placed in cars as to standing on platforms. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Crosby [Fla.] 43 So. 318. Where contract was for jewelry cases that would look like "Field's," evidence as to the manner in which they worked was irrelevant. Crankshaw v. Schweizer Mfg. Co., 1 Ga. App. 363, 58 S. E. 222. In action on a draft, the issue being whether plaintiff bank was the agent of the drawee, drawers being defendants, evidence as to the quality of apples for which draft was given was inadmissible. Shacklett v. Henderson County Sav. Bk. [Ky.] 100 S. W. 241. In an action to recover the value of land which defendant wrongfully refused to reconvey in accordance with an oral promise so to do, proof of friendly relations between the parties was irrelevant. Cromwell v. Norton, 193 Mass. 291, 79 N. E. 433. Where both parties testify to an express contract which excludes a general custom, evidence of such custom is inadmissible. Stearns v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 148 Mich. 271, 14 Det. Leg. N. 108, 111 N. W. 769. In action for price of building material, testimony of one who had figured the work for the seller as to what he figured was held irrelevant on issue of what contract called for. Rikerd Lumber Co. v. Hoertz, 146 Mich. 386, 13 Det. Leg. N. 809, 109 N. W. 664. In action for common-law negligence, ordinance offered by plaintiff, which he claimed defendant had violated, held properly excluded, no such violation being alleged. Fechley v. Springfield Trac. Co., 119 Mo. App. 358, 96 S. W. 421. Where evidence all tended to show that elevators which burned had been fired from the outside, evidence that spontaneous combustion was more liable to occur in elevators than other buildings was irrelevant. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Missouri Pac. R.

Co., 123 Mo. App. 513, 100 S. W. 569. Summons in other action introduced to contradict a witness held inadmissible where there was no evidence which was contradicted thereby. Gunn v. Mumford [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 989. In an action to recover the value of a horse alleged to have been killed by hard driving, whether the same distance had been covered by another with a single horse was irrelevant. Welch v. Fransioli [Wash.] 90 P. 644. Where witness testified that he had conducted a bakery on certain premises with profit, evidence that he had done so previous to the time when premises were mortgaged was irrelevant. Stillman v. Thompson [Conn.] 67 A. 528. Evidence as to rights of third person whom the judgment would not affect immaterial. Chapman & Dewey Land Co. v. Bigelow, 77 Ark. 338, 92 S. W. 534. Where plaintiff did not call upon defendant for an account but claimed damages for violation of particular contract declared on, on specific ground set up in petition, held that admission of evidence having in view settlement of accounts between the parties was erroneous. Mayville Canal Co. v. Lake Arthur Rice Mill. Co. [La.] 44 So. 260. In action for services in establishing alkali plant, where witness was permitted to state fully all the facts and to give his opinion as to insufficiency and obsolete character of plant as constructed, held proper to refuse to allow him to testify as to reasons for failure of negotiations for consolidation of works with those with which witness was identified. Mathieson Alkali Works v. Mathieson [C. C. A.] 150 F. 241. On an issue as to whether a corporation has complied with an unambiguous written contract, a party is not entitled to go into the material affairs of the corporation and demand its records and papers. Doddridge County Oil & Gas Co. v. Smith, 154 F. 970. Where issue was whether horse was vicious, photographs of the horse on two occasions showing him at rest were irrelevant. Morgan v. Hendricks [Vt.] 67 A. 702. In action against a physician for malpractice in treating a broken leg, testimony of plaintiff's brother that he had furnished plaintiff with money to go to another city for treatment was immaterial. Sheldon v. Wright [Vt.] 67 A. 807.

Manchester* [Mass.] 81 N. E. 884.

94. Where delay in shipping cattle was basis of action, witness was properly allowed to state in what time prior shipments over same route had been made. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Gunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 571, 99 S. W. 152. In action for loss of goods claimed to have been in a certain box, evidence that goods of the same amount and description had been packed by witnesses in a similar box was relevant. Mussellam v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 104 S. W. 337. In action for damages for destruction of crop of potatoes by a flood, evidence of the yield on other lands similarly situated, and having similar soil, and proof of yields in former years on the land flooded, was relevant. Dennis v. Crocker-Huffman Land & Water Co. [Cal.] App.] 91 P. 425. In action for damages for breach of pasturage contract by failure to supply water, evidence as to condition of another pasture was held admissible in connection with evidence as to the condition of the two lots of cattle pastured in the two pastures. Tuttle v. Robert Moody [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 161, 97 S. W. 1037. Action for negligently issuing a torn transfer ticket to plaintiff, on presentation of which plaintiff was ejected from a car. It appeared that plaintiff bought two tickets at the same time, one being given to his companion. There was proof of the manner in which the tickets were cut and their appearance. Held the other transfer was admissible to show how the torn one would look when issued and to explain how it became torn. Montgomery-Trac. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Ala.] 43 So. 136. In action to recover for grading, held proper to show by witnesses familiar with the work what "surfacing" meant and whether it was necessary in the grading done, and what was customary in such cases, and what the customary charges were. Henderson-Boyd Lumber Co. v. Cook [Ala.] 42 So. 838.

95. Issue being validity of assignments and genuineness of signatures thereon, proof that names of witnesses and of children were forged as well as that of insured, was purpose of showing a course of business<sup>96</sup> or a fraudulent intent.<sup>97</sup> If evidence, though relevant, is so remote as to have little or no evidentiary value, it may be excluded;<sup>98</sup> the admission or exclusion of evidence of this character is largely discretionary with the trial court.<sup>99</sup>

On the issue of negligence, alleged as the cause of injury, evidence of other similar accidents or occurrences is inadmissible<sup>1</sup> except to show notice.<sup>2</sup> To prove the competent, all being a part of the same transaction. Illich v. Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 297.

96. On issue whether money was loaned to a corporation or to its president, to whose order checks for the money had been made payable, evidence of a similar prior transaction in which the corporation had ratified the deal and repaid the money without protest was admissible. Martin & Co. v. Logan, 30 Ky. L. R. 799, 99 S. W. 648. In action on partnership note, signed by one partner, a contract relating to the partnership business signed by the partner who signed the note, and in the same way, was admissible, in connection with evidence tending to show that this partner sometimes signed contracts of the firm in his own name. Churchill v. Mace, 148 Mich. 456, 14 Det. Leg. N. 213, 111 N. W. 1034.

97. On issue whether claim by constable was fraudulent, claims presented in other cases similar in character were held admissible to show systematic scheme to defraud county. McGuire v. Iowa County, 133 Iowa, 636, 111 N. W. 34. Where fraud in selling stock at par and representing that that was its value was alleged, it was proper to show that at the same time defendant was offering stock at 55 cents on the dollar. Gilluly v. Hosford [Wash.] 88 P. 1027. Action to recover money alleged to have been obtained by means of confidence game, conspiracy between defendants being alleged. Held evidence regarding other transactions of the same character wherein defendants acted in concert was admissible. Stewart v. Wright [C. C. A.] 147 F. 321. Where fraud is alleged considerable latitude is permissible in the introduction of testimony, even when it is only remotely connected with the transaction in question. Fraud cannot always be proved by direct evidence. Dantzler v. Cox, 75 S. C. 334, 55 S. E. 774. Acts of a party similar to the one under investigation may be offered for the purpose of showing the knowledge, intent, or design of such party which are elements of his fraudulent conduct toward the other party. Crosby v. Wells [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 295. Offers to other persons of oil shares, and what plaintiff said about such shares, held relevant where defendant set up fraud by plaintiff in sale of shares to him (defendant). Id. In action for fraudulent representations in procuring an application and note for premium of life insurance policy, proof of similar representations made to others for the same purpose was admissible on the issue of intent. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595. In action for breach of warranty of variety of seed wheat sold, where there was evidence that defendant had no wheat of the variety which it was claimed, and which he denied he had warranted that sold to be, evidence that he had sold wheat to others and had made the same warranty to them was admissible. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 88 P. 380.

98. On issue of whether will was executed under undue influence, evidence regarding acts of defendant several years before was held too remote and irrelevant to establish undue influence by him at the time the will was made by testatrix. Vannest v. Murphy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 236. In action for libel for publishing statement that a woman had a record known to the police at the time of her marriage, testimony by persons who were policemen two or three years before her marriage was admissible; testimony of persons who were policemen after that time but before publication of the alleged libel was inadmissible. Harriman v. New Nonpareil Co., 132 Iowa, 616, 110 N. W. 33. Value of corporate property being in issue, a speech of the president calling attention to profits and proof of such profits several years after the time in question was inadmissible. People v. Barker, 121 App. Div. 661, 106 N. Y. S. 336. Mortgage given five years prior to deed in question held irrelevant on issue whether description in deed included a particular tract. Goyette v. Keenan [Mass.] 82 N. E. 427. In action for injuries caused by horse becoming frightened by an automobile, evidence of condition of highway 300 feet from place where accident occurred held too remote. Strand v. Grinnell Automobile Garage Co. [Iowa] 113 N. W. 488.

99. If evidence is relevant, the fact that it is remote does not make its admission error. Page v. Hazleton [N. H.] 66 A. 1049. The introduction of irrelevant [remotely relevant?] testimony must be left largely to the discretion of the trial court. Dantzler v. Cox, 75 S. C. 334, 55 S. E. 774. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. §§ 1868, 1870, 1958, 1960, provide that evidence must be relevant to the question in dispute, and that evidence of any facts may be given from which a fact in issue is logically inferable. Held that the admission of collateral facts to prove a fact in issue is largely discretionary and will not be reversed if the admitted evidence has any tendency to prove a disputed fact. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 88 P. 380.

1. On the issue of contributory negligence, evidence on the question as to whether or not plaintiff at other times suffered a similar injury is inadmissible. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Johnson, 128 Ill. App. 20. In personal injury cases upon an issue as to the cause of plaintiff's injuries, testimony as to the cause of a similar injury to another person is inadmissible. City of Chicago v. Saldman, 129 Ill. App. 282. In cases of negligence the evidence must be confined to the time, place, and circumstances of the injury in question, and the fact that the same person has been guilty of negligence on certain other specified occasions can have no legitimate bearing upon the question of his carelessness or competency at the time in controversy.

existence of a certain condition or state of facts at a certain time, evidence of the condition or situation before or after the time in question is admissible,<sup>3</sup> if not too remote,<sup>4</sup> and when it appears that no substantial change has taken place.<sup>5</sup> Proof of conditions at places other than that in question is inadmissible, unless a close similarity or some other connection is shown.<sup>6</sup> Proof of what is usually or customarily done under the same circumstances is held admissible on the issue of negligence,<sup>7</sup>

Damren v. Trask [Me.] 65 A. 513. In action for injuries received by workman in a cinder pit, evidence that a similar accident occurred in the pit a month later, and that another pit not shown to be similar, had a certain barrier was held inadmissible. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Dickens [Ind. T.] 103 S. W. 750. In action for injuries caused by electric shock while using a telephone, testimony that witness had received a shock while using another telephone in the same city at another time was inadmissible. Brucker v. Gainesboro Tel. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1162, 100 S. W. 240. Where question is whether a person has been negligent in doing or failing to do a particular act, evidence is not admissible to show that he has been guilty of a similar act of negligence or even habitually negligent on similar occasions. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 162. In action for personal injuries, evidence of a prior statement of a witness that he nearly lost both hands in the morning was held inadmissible in the absence of proof showing a similarity of circumstances with the accident in suit. Loughlin v. Brassil [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 854. In action against telephone company for failure to deliver a call, evidence of other acts of negligence was irrelevant. Sabine Valley Tel. Co. v. Oliver [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 579, 102 S. W. 925.

2. Evidence of previous similar injury to another held admissible to show whether shaft was dangerous. McGinnis v. R. M. Rigby Printing Co., 122 Mo. App. 227, 99 S. W. 4. Evidence that others of about plaintiff's age had been injured by machine which injured plaintiff held admissible to show notice. Leathers v. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co., 144 N. C. 330, 57 S. E. 11. Evidence that several other people had fallen at a coal hole in the walk held admissible as tending to show the place dangerous and to raise a presumption of knowledge of its character. City of Chicago v. Jarvis, 226 Ill. 614, 80 N. E. 1079. In an action for damages based on statute making the owner of an animal liable for all damages caused by the animal when suffered to remain at large by the owner, evidence that the bull which caused the damage had escaped through a fence three times before was admissible as tending to show that the owner suffered him to be at large. Hadtke v. Grzyll, 130 Wis. 275, 110 N. W. 225. In action for injuries caused by the kick of an alleged vicious horse, proof of previous acts of viciousness was competent to show notice to the owner of the habit of the animal. Morgan v. Hendricks [Vt.] 67 A. 702. In action for injuries to a person's hand caught between two cars passing on parallel tracks, evidence that similar cars had been seen and felt to scrape in passing at the place in question was admissible. Staples v. Rhode Island Suburban R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 431.

3. In action for injuries from falling over coal hole, proof of its condition an hour and a half later was admissible, since there was no evidence of a change in its character. City of Chicago v. Jarvis, 226 Ill. 614, 80 N. E. 1079. Testimony of doctor as to condition of plaintiff several months after accident is admissible where other testimony shows that such condition existed since the accident but not prior thereto. Hanchett v. Haas, 125 Ill. App. 111. Amount of work done by housewife before and after she was injured held admissible to show extent of injury and its effect. Patton v. Sanborn, 133 Iowa, 650, 110 N. W. 1032. Evidence of defective condition of engine before and after an accident admissible on the issue of its defective condition at the time, and also (as to prior condition) to show notice by the company. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Edmondson [Neb.] 110 N. W. 650. It is error to exclude testimony as to the condition of a room immediately prior to and after the accident. Pana Coal Co. v. Becker, 130 Ill. App. 40.

4. Condition of planks taken out of a walk soon after an accident caused by defect in walk may be shown on issue of condition of walk at time of injury. Patton v. Sanborn, 133 Iowa, 650, 110 N. W. 1032.

5. In action for injuries caused by alleged defective machinery, evidence of an expert that the machinery worked well at a particular time was admissible where there was also evidence that the condition of the machinery at that time was the same as at the time of the accident. Odegard v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 659, 110 N. W. 809. Where it is charged that deceased was killed by coming into contact with primary wire, evidence that another person received a shock by coming into contact with secondary wires after primary current had been cut off is inadmissible. Goddard v. Enzler, 123 Ill. App. 108. See 222 Ill. 462, 78 N. E. 805. In action for injuries caused by alleged defective machine, where there was evidence of material changes in the machine since the accident, it was held error to admit evidence that the machine worked well at the time of trial. Odegard v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 659, 110 N. W. 809.

6. In action for injuries caused by defect in sidewalk, plaintiff may show poor condition of walk in the close vicinity and is not confined to the particular board which caused the injury. Thompson v. Poplar Bluff [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 709. Where injuries in suit were caused by fall of part of roof of round house, evidence that other parts of the roof similarly situated were out of repair was admissible. Lamb v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 217 Pa. 564, 66 A. 762.

7. Evidence as to usual and ordinary mode of fastening pile drivers held admissible on issue of negligence in fastening a pile driver whereby an injury was caused. Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 789. Proof of a general custom of street cars but not to excuse negligence.<sup>8</sup> Proof of repairs or other precautions to prevent injury subsequent to the occurrence in question is excluded on the issue of negligence,<sup>9</sup> but may be competent to show the practicability of maintaining the place in question in a condition of safety.<sup>10</sup>

On the issue of the market value of land or other property, evidence of sales in the usual course of business of other similarly situated property in the vicinity is admissible;<sup>11</sup> proof of mere offers,<sup>12</sup> or of a price asked by an owner,<sup>13</sup> or of a price received at a forced or tax sale,<sup>14</sup> is inadmissible. The price actually paid<sup>15</sup> or agreed to be paid<sup>16</sup> is some evidence of the value of property at the time, but is not evidence of market value at another place or time.<sup>17</sup> In condemnation proceedings, what the petitioner paid for other property may not be shown.<sup>18</sup> stopping to allow steam trains to pass held proper in collision case. Northern Texas Trac. Co. v. Caldwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 88, 99 S. W. 869. Customary speed of car may be shown as tending to show speed at a particular time. Lord v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 67 A. 639.

8. Previous course of defendant with reference to inspection and repair of belt lacking held irrelevant on issue of due care where a particular belt broke. Gilmore v. American Tube & Stamping Co., 79 Conn. 498, 66 A. 4.

9. Proof of repairs after an accident is inadmissible. Matteson v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 67 A. 847. Where negligence alleged was maintenance of platform too small to accommodate passengers and traffic proof that after accident, wherein a passenger was crowded off, the platform was enlarged was held proper to show practicability of maintaining larger one, but not to show negligence. Beverley v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 507.

10. Beverley v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 507.

11. Value or market price of an article may be proved by direct or circumstantial evidence or both. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Harris, 1 Ga. App. 667, 57 S. E. 1030. Sales of land similarly situated and prices paid may be shown. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 N. E. 281. Market value of property may be shown by public sales of the same in the ordinary course of business. Rau v. Seidenberg, 53 Misc. 386, 104 N. Y. S. 798. Evidence of the price at which land is actually sold is relevant upon the question of market value at the time. Wolff v. Meyer [N. J. Law] 66 A. 959. While the value or selling price of similar property may be taken into consideration in determining the value of the piece of property in litigation, it is well settled that the character and location of such property should be similar and the sales reasonably near in point of time to the time when the value of the property in litigation is in question. Hewitt v. Price, 204 Mo. 31, 102 S. W. 647. In action for depreciation in value of property caused by railroad and appurtenances operated near it, where a witness testified that he had bought property in the vicinity in the year the road was built at a certain figure, evidence of a value placed on the property in a deal three years before, conditions not being shown the same, was too remote. Dallas, etc., R. Co. v. Langston [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 316, 98 S. W. 425.

12. Offers cannot be proved either by the offeror or offeree. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Alexander [Wash.] 91 P. 626. Offers for similar lands in vicinity held inadmissible as hearsay in condemnation proceedings. Yellowstone Park R. Co. v. Bridger Coal Co., 34 Mont. 545, 87 P. 963. Specific offers to purchase property are inadmissible on issue of value, in action for breach of contract of sale of house. Horner v. Beasley [Md.] 65 A. 820. Evidence of isolated sales or offers is not competent on the value of personality. Hammond v. Decker [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 556, 102 S. W. 453. On issue of damages to lot by change of grade of alley, testimony of witness that he would not buy lot after the change, though he had thought of buying it, was improper. McMillen v. Columbia, 122 Mo. App. 34, 97 S. W. 953.

13. What plaintiff would or would not take for his property is no criterion of market value. Town of Vernon v. Edgeworth [Ala.] 42 So. 749. In condemnation proceeding, owner of land in vicinity cannot testify as to what he holds his land at. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Alexander [Wash.] 91 P. 626.

14. Actual market value cannot be shown by what property would bring and usually brought at tax sales. Stark v. Cummings, 127 Ga. 107, 56 S. E. 130.

15. Price paid for property at actual bona fide sale is presumptive evidence of value. Rathbone v. Ayer, 105 N. Y. S. 1041. In action against county on contract to purchase a turnpike, evidence of the original cost of construction of the road, and what the construction would cost when the county took it was admissible on the issue of the value of the road when taken. Nelson County v. Bardstown & L. Turnpike Road Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1254, 100 S. W. 1181.

16. Contract price is some evidence of value where action for goods is on the common counts for value. Lehigh v. Standard Tie Co. [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 283, 112 N. W. 481.

17. In action for injuries to cattle shown to have market value at destination, evidence of what plaintiff paid was immaterial. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 96 S. W. 53.

18. What railroad paid for right of way over land a half mile distant is irrelevant. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 N. E. 281. Error to allow defendant to show what petitioner and other roads paid per acre for other lands in the vicinity.

Proof of specific acts is inadmissible to prove the reputation of a person,<sup>19</sup> but such proof is competent where a person's character is in issue,<sup>20</sup> but by some courts it is held that character cannot be proved by specific acts but only by proof of reputation.<sup>21</sup> A person's habits of intoxication cannot be proved to contradict direct testimony that he was not intoxicated at a particular time.<sup>22</sup>

§ 3. Competency or kind of evidence in general.<sup>23</sup>—Where one party has introduced evidence of a certain kind or relating to a particular matter without objection, the other party may introduce similar evidence in a rebuttal,<sup>24</sup> though such evidence should have been excluded on the ground of incompetency or irrelevancy if a proper objection had been made in the first instance.

§ 4. Best and secondary evidence.<sup>25</sup>—What is the best evidence of a fact to be proved depends upon the nature of the fact and the circumstances of the case.<sup>26</sup> Evidence which carries on its face no indication that better evidence exists is not

Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Scott, 225 Ill. 352, 80 N. E. 404. In a condemnation proceeding, what the condemning party paid for other lands is inadmissible. Union R. Co. v. Maulden [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 342 [advance sheets only]. See, also, Eminent Domain, 9 C. L. 1073.

19. Specific instances, even of same act as that charged in an alleged slander, held inadmissible to prove reputation of plaintiff in action for slander. Earley v. Winn, 129 Wis. 291, 109 N. W. 633.

20. In habeas corpus proceeding by mother to recover a child which had been placed in an orphans' home, on the ground that the mother was notoriously immoral and unfit to bring up the child, proof of the reputation of the mother, and of specific acts of immorality, was held competent. Moore v. Dozier [Ga.] 57 S. E. 110.

E. 1101. A party who has introduced evidence on a certain issue cannot object to evidence of the same kind by the other party on the ground that it is inadmissible under the pleadings. Cobb v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 12, 97 S. W. 513. In action for damages to land, defendants proved that plaintiffs had stated they would take a sum less than that claimed in the suit. Held competent for plaintiffs to show that sum named was to be received in case of a compromise with all parties. Jones v. Cooley Lake Club, 122 Mo. App. 113, 98 S. W. 82. Where all or part of a conversation is put in evidence by one party, the other is entitled to explain, vary, or contradict it. Stanley v. Beckham [C. C. A.] 153 F. 152. Where suit was based on contract and one party had placed in evidence his interpretation of it, the other was entitled to introduce the contract in its entirety. Holt v. Zwisohn, 51 Misc. 576, 101 N. Y. S. 191. Written memorandum of proposed contract held admissible as part of negotiations and conversations though unsigned. Chilcott v. Washington State Colonization Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 113. Where a writing was introduced on the cross-examination of plaintiff and both parties were examined as to their understanding of it, and the court was not asked to construe it, one of the parties could not object to such evidence. Whitney v. Haskell, 216 Pa. 622, 66 A. 101. Where a claimant to sustain his claim against a decedent's estate introduced entries from decedent's account-book, other entries rebutting the inference sought to be drawn therefrom were competent on the part of the executor. Page v. Hazleton [N. H.] 66 A. 1049.

25. See 7 C. L. 1529.

26. Record of entries of credits on mortgage is best evidence of such credits. Baker v. Cotney [Ala.] 43 So. 786. Bank books are the best evidence of a depositor's account; not a statement of the account. Berry v. Joiner [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 282, 101 S. W. 289. Where corporate minutes showed employment of secretary and stated when his employment should begin but failed to state the amount of salary or when it should be paid, oral evidence was competent to show the omitted facts. Grath v. Mound City Roofing Tile Co., 121 Mo. App. 245, 98 S. W. 812. Declaration of plaintiff that he felt no pain, made to physician, held properly excluded where plaintiff himself testified fully as to his pain and injuries. Goodwyn v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 688. A certificate of the pedigree of a sow, issued by a breeders' association, and authenticated by the secretary and seal of the association, is competent evidence that the sow is a thoroughbred. Warrick v. Reinhardt [Iowa] 111 N. W. 983. Copy of telegram as sent admissible without notice to defendant to produce original where counsel stated defendant did not have the original, having never received it. Kohl v. Bradley, Clark & Co., 130 Wis. 301, 110 N. W. 265. In action for damages for delay in delivering a message, "relay messages" were inadmissible, since, if copies, the originals were not accounted for, and if original records, it was not shown that they came from the proper custody or were correct. Buchanan v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 45, 100 S. W. 974.

Photographs, whether introduced to represent the originals, or as demonstrative evidence, are the best evidence of what appears on them. Physician cannot testify to what he saw on an X-ray photograph. Elzig v. Bales [Iowa] 112 N. W. 540.

objectionable as secondary,<sup>27</sup> but evidence which shows on its face that there exists better or more original evidence cannot be introduced without first accounting for such other evidence.<sup>28</sup> Thus, oral evidence cannot be substituted for any instrument which the law requires to be in writing,<sup>29</sup> or for any written evidence of a contract which the parties have reduced to writing,<sup>30</sup> or for any writing the existence or contents of which is disputed and which is material to the issues raised.<sup>31</sup> Oral evidence is usually held incompetent to prove facts shown by original entries in books of account,<sup>32</sup> though a summarization of complicated accounts is usually permitted.<sup>33</sup> Similarly, copies of writings cannot be substituted for originals, when it does not appear that the originals cannot be produced.<sup>34</sup>

The rule under discussion, however, requires only that the best evidence available shall be produced. Thus, secondary proof is admissible of facts which have been reduced to writing or made a matter of record, when the proper foundation has been

Oral proof of presentation of claim against estate and payment thereof held not objectionable as not the best evidence though the claim was filed. Joyce v. Joyce [Conn.] 67 A. 374. Third person with interest may prove that title pleaded to oust him is simulated, and parol evidence is competent for that purpose. Lyons v. Lawrence, 118 La. 461, 43 So. 51. Oral evidence is competent to show the performance of a religious marriage ceremony between certain parties. Even if a writing is required, oral testimony is competent and is the best evidence of the identity of the parties. Massuco v. Tomasi [Vt.] 67 A. 551.

28. Where it did not appear that stenographer's notes of testimony of deceased witness could not be procured, it was proper to reject testimony of a witness who heard the deceased witness testify. Studebaker v. Faylor [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 861. Parol proof of letter and printed matter on letter head held incompetent where no foundation was laid. Bush v. McCarty Co., 127 Ga. 308, 56 S. E. 430. In action for injuries to crops and land by reason of diversion of water, oral proof of what appeared on a topographical map prepared by the U. S. government survey was incompetent. Evansville & Princeton Trac. Co. v. Broermann [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 972. In an action to charge defendant with assets of plaintiff's debtor, a tabulated statement of all assets received from defendant and all liabilities assumed under contract with defendant was held inadmissible, defendant's books being the best evidence. Barrie v. United Rys. Co., 125 Mo. App. 96, 102 S. W. 1078. Verbal statement of counsel as to contents of instrument cannot be taken as evidence; the instruments, or records, or certified copies, should be produced. Volhard v. Volhard, 104 N. Y. S. 578. Where contents of letters were sought to be shown in order to show the sanity of the writer, the letters themselves were the best evidence. Heath v. Slaughter, 127 Ga. 747, 57 S. E. 69. Parol evidence is inadmissible to show the powers or character of a corporation, the best evidence thereof being the articles of incorporation. Oral proof that corporation was charitable organization inadmissible. Gitzhoffen v. Sisters of Holy Cross Hospital Ass'n [Utah] 88 P. 691.

29. Parol evidence is incompetent to prove or destroy legal title to real property. Tutwiler Coal, Coke & Iron Co. v. Wheeler [Ala.] 43 So. 15; Munsey v. Hanly [Me.] 67 A. 217. But possession and parol evidence of title suffices to prove ownership of land. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. Green [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 573. Declarations of subordinate employes of railroad held incompetent in action to establish title to railroad right of way. Perkiomen R. Co. v. Kremer [Pa.] 67 A. 913.

30. Bill of lading. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Fowler [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 564, 102 S. W. 732.

31. Witness may not testify that a certain act was contrary to rules of railroad company, the rules themselves being the best evidence. Barschow v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 147 Mich. 226, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1060, 110 N. W. 1057.

32. Davis v. Royal Arcanum Sup. Council [Mass.] 81 N. E. 294; Cobb v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 12, 97 S. W. 513. But see § 7b, post, as to when entries are secondary proof.

33. See 7 C. L. 1531, n. 51.

34. Copy of bill of lading. Morris & Co. v. Southern Shoe Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 564, 99 S. W. 178. Three bills of lading were made, one signed by shipper and sent to auditor of company, one received by the shipper, and the third, on which signatures were copied, was filed. Held, third was a copy, inadmissible without proof of loss of originals. Walker v. So. R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 952. Execution of contract being in issue, and plaintiff having introduced a letter claimed to have been received from defendant relating to the contract, and defendant having denied the writing or sending of the letter and having offered a copy of a letter which he claimed to have sent, it was held error to admit the copy without accounting for original. Barton-Parker Mfg. Co. v. Miller Mercantile Co., 18 Okl. 137, 89 P. 1128.

Carbon copy of letter held incompetent where it appeared that original had been received by addressee and was at his office in another city, and that no effort had been made to obtain it. State v. Teasdale, 120 Mo. App. 692, 97 S. W. 995.

W. 1086; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lynch [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 97, 99 S. W. 160. Where records in adoption case were lost, the fact that there was a decree could be established by evidence that the clerk of the court read such decree to witness, though the contents could not be proved by the witness, he never having read the decree. Kennedy v. Borah, 226 Ill. 243, 80 N. E. 767. Where order of publication in tax lien case and certified copy given the printer were both lost, it was proper to admit the files of the paper containing the published order, where the editor testified that the published order was a correct copy of the copy given him by the clerk for publication. Davis v. Montgomery [Mo.] 103 S. W. 979. Where city established a sewer district and made an estimate and map, which were lost, parol evidence was competent to show the original plan so as to enable the city to carry it out. Silva v. Newport [Ky.] 104 S. W. 314. Contents of court files and records in adoption proceedings provable by parol, records having been burned. Kennedy v. Borah, 226 Ill. 243, 80 N. E. 767. Where affidavit of tax collector accompanying delinquent tax list had been lost, oral evidence to establish it was competent. Kirby's Dig. § 7083, not requiring that it be recorded. Brasch v. Western Tie & Timber Co., 80 Ark. 425, 97 S. W. 445. Memoranda from which will was made, having been destroyed (will also having been destroyed), oral proof was competent to show contents. In re Roger's Will [Vt.] 67 A. 726. Where bills of fare had been destroyed, parol proof that a certain person's name appeared at the head of them was competent on the issue of ownership of the restaurant. North American Restaurant & Oyster House v. McElligott, 227 Ill. 317, 81 N. E. 388. Where it appeared that an inventory of stock had been kept in accordance with the terms of an insurance policy, and that after a fire the inventory had been turned over to an adjuster and had been lost, parol proof of the inventory was competent. Arkansas Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Woolverton [Ark.] 102 S. W. 226. Fire policy required insured to keep books showing condition of business. In action on policy, it appearing that a cash book was lost, cash sales were provable by other books, supplemented by parol evidence. McMillan v. Insurance Co. [S. C.] 53 S. E. 1020.

37. In scire facias on a bail bond, the bond having been lost or misplaced and not being found after diligent search, secondary proof of its contents was admissible without substitution of the bond. Day v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 166, 101 S. W. 806. Where attorney testified that title bond had been given him to record, that he had mislaid it and had searched for but could not find it, and that it was not intentionally concealed, oral evidence of its contents was competent. Burkhart v. Loughridge, 30 Ky. L. R. 303, 98 S. W. 291. To establish the execution of a deed by circumstances, predicate must be laid by proof of a search for the deed and inability to find it. Punchard v. Masterson [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 826. Mere statement of party that he could not find letters held not to make secondary proof of their contents admissible. Owensboro Wagon Co. v. Hall [Ala.] 43 So. 71. A mere showing that inquiry was made "among his kinsfolk" for a last deed was held insufficient to warrant proof of the contents of the deed by parol. Taliaferro v. Rice [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 865, 103 S. W. 464. Oral testimony as to contents of letters which witness said had passed between him and another held incompetent where witness merely said he did not have the letter, but did not say what had become of it. Bagnell Tie & Timber Co. v. Goodrich [Ark.] 102 S. W. 228. Copies of letters held inadmissible because no sufficient search for originals shown. Leesville Mfg. Co. v. Morgan Wood & Iron Works, 75 S. C. 342, 55 S. E. 768. Mere evidence by a constable that he does not know what has become of one of the notices which he posted of the sale of property levied upon does not authorize parol proof of the contents of the paper. O'Neill Mfg. Co. v. Harris, 127 Ga. 640, 56 S. E. 739. Proof that trustee to whom mortgage was delivered did not know where it was, but that his last recollection was that it was in a safe at a store, and that person who had charge of papers in the store had destroyed many papers thought to be worthless, but that he did not know whether mortgage was among them, held insufficient to warrant secondary proof of mortgage. McEntyre v. Halrston [Ala.] 44 So. 417.

38. Secondary proof of contents of letter held incompetent where only preliminary proof was search among the files in the action for it. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038. In action on indemnity policy, plaintiff proved that it had carried insurance for a number of years, renewing its policies from year to year. It also proved that after a thorough search among its papers and books the policy could not be found. Held the policy for the preceding year, offered as a copy except as to dates, was admissible without proof of search among private papers of officers of the corporation plaintiff. Edgefield Mfg. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. [S. C.] 53 S. E. 969.

39. Where evidence showed that original notices had been served on railroad com-the secondary evidence, if a copy, is correct and properly authenticated.<sup>41</sup> Whether a proper foundation has been laid for the introduction of secondary evidence is a matter resting largely in the discretion of the trial court.<sup>42</sup> The existence, execution, and genuineness of a writing must usually be shown before secondary proof of its contents is admissible.<sup>43</sup> For this purpose the genuineness of a writing may be established by direct or circumstantial evidence.<sup>44</sup>

pany, and that plaintiff had kept exact copies, the copies were competent." Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzhugh [Ark.] 100 S. W. 1149. Contents of letter may be shown by secondary evidence where the party offering it does not have possession or control over the original, or legal means of procuring it. White v. White [Kan.] 90 P. 1087. Plaintiff's testimony that he had executed a deed held competent against himself in an action of ejectment, where it appeared deed was executed and unrecorded and that grantee was a nonresident, the presumption being that deed was in grantee's possession. Sellers v. Farmer [Ala.] 43 So. 967. Insured gave insurer's agent a list of articles destroyed, after a fire, and requested it to be returned, which was not done. Held duplicate was admissible in action on policy. Spring Garden Ins. Co. v. Whayland, 103 Md. 699, 64 A. 925. A policy of insurance produced by defendant in a suit thereon was claimed by plaintiff not to be genuine, or the policy issued, and plaintiff offered a copy claimed to have been made at the time of making proof of death. Held, defendant not having proved the policy produced by it to be the original, and not having produced original, the copy was competent. Carr v. Prudential Ins. Co., 115 App. Div. 755, 101 N. Y. S. 158.

40. Hiss v. Hiss, 228 Ill. 414, 81 N. E. 1056. Where copy was not admitted or proved to be correct, and no notice to produce original was given, it was properly excluded. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613. Party desiring to use policy in possession of the other as evidence must give reasonable notice to produce it. Thompson Bros. v. Piedmont Mut. Ins. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 848. Secondary evidence of the contents of a paper in the possession of the adverse party cannot be given except after a reasonable notice to produce the original. Leesville Mfg. Co. v. Morgan Wood & Iron Works, 75 S. E. 342, 55 S. E. 768. Due notice having been given the mortgagee to produce the original mortgage, a certified copy was admissible. Sims v. Scheussler [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 693. If a paper is not produced after notice to the party who has it to produce it, secondary evidence of its contents is admissible. Mussellam v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 104 S. W. 337. In action on contract a witness testified that he had made out a written proposal which had been received and accepted by one of the defendants, and he had failed to produce it after notice to do so. Secondary proof of its contents was competent. Dick v. Biddle Bros. [Md.] 66 A. 21. In action for injuries resulting from failure of carrier to furnish accommodation and protection to passenger, oral evidence was competent to show the class of the ticket, where it had been surrendered to the company, and notice given to produce it. Mc-

Collum v. Southern Pac. Co., 31 Utah, 494, 88 P. 663. Rev. St. 1898 § 3410, relating to secondary proof after notice to produce original, held applicable to railway ticket. Id. The action being in tort and not on the contract, the rule that diligent effort to procure the original must first be shown was not applicable. Id.

41. Where a writing purporting to be a copy of a letter is offered in evidence, it must be shown to be a true copy. Hall & Co. v. Callingham [N. J. Law] 65 A 123. Where sheriff's deed was offered, a judgment identical in dates, amounts, and parties with that recited in the deed, but different as to the court and the rate of interest, was held to make the deed competent, the original papers in the case being lost or destroyed. Clark v. Rice Institute for Advancement of Literature, Science & Art [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 608, 103 S. W. 1110. A certified copy of a will cannot be objected to on the ground that certain erasures and discrepancies appeared in the original; the objection should be made to the copy offered. Stone v. Smith, 127 Ga. 483, 56 S. E. 640. Where copy of writing was offered as a "substantial copy," and it was not claimed to have been made at the time the original was executed, or before the action was commenced, and it was evident that it was made from memory, it was proper to exclude it. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613. Where original applications for insurance were at insurance company's home office, and no showing was made as to correctness of copies produced at trial, they were incompetent. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Duparquet, Hout & Moneuse Co., 53 Misc. 581, 103 N. Y. S. 800.

42. Turner v. Elliott, 127 Ga. 338, 56 S. E. 434; Thompson v. Piedmont Mut. Ins. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 848; Leesville Mfg. Co. v. Morgan Wood & Iron Works, 75 S. C. 342, 55 S. E. 768.

43. One who relies upon a lost deed to establish his title to land must prove the execution of the deed, the material parts thereof, and its loss, by clear, satisfactory, and convincing evidence. Houghtalling v. Houghtalling [Iowa] 112 N. W. 197. Where abstract of title contained abstract of a lost deed showing date, acknowledgment, description, consideration, where recorded, etc., and there was proof that the record was made from the original, and the abstract was made from the record by a former recorder, there was sufficient proof to warrant proof of contents by secondary evidence. Kries v. Holladay-Klotz Land & Lumber Co., 121 Mo. App. 184, 98 S. W. 1086. Where a certified copy of a recorded deed is offered in evidence and is met by an affidavit of forgery provided for in Civ. Code 1895, § 3628, the burden is on the party offering it to show the existence and genuineness of the

The best evidence rule does not apply to proof of merely collateral facts,<sup>45</sup> and does not exclude oral proof that an act was done or a writing or record made, where it is not sought to show the contents of the writing or record by parol.<sup>46</sup> The right to have the best evidence produced may be waived.<sup>47</sup>

In case of duplicates each is primary evidence and one may be introduced without the other,<sup>48</sup> but secondary evidence of the contents of one is incompetent without proof of the loss of both.<sup>49</sup> original without reference to the fact that it has been recorded, and this is so even though it appears that the original was more than 30 years old. Chatman v. Hodnett, 127 Ga. 360, 56 S. E. 439. Civ. Code 1895, § 3628, does not apply to a will duly probated and admitted to record, and the procedure authorized by that section is not applicable except in case of registered deeds. Stone v. Smith, 127 Ga. 483, 56 S. E. 640. A copy of an instrument required by law to be recorded taken from the proper registry and duly certified is presumptive evidence of the existence of an original. Sims v. Scheussler [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 693.

44. Proctor & Gamble Co. v. Blakeley Oil & Fertilizer Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 879. When so proved, an authenticated copy of the instrument is competent. Id.

45. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lynch [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 97, 99 S. W. 160. Parol evidence competent to prove a person the manager of a corporation, this fact being a collateral one in a replevin suit to recover corporate property. Stovell v. Alert Gold Min. Co. [Colo.] 87 P. 1071. Justice of peace may testify that he held the office of justice at a particular time without producing election certificate, when that fact is only collateral and not a material issue. Breeden v. Martens [S. D.] 112 N. W. 960. In action against carrier for loss of rice being transported, oral proof of the purchase of a certain quantity of rice is competent, the contract between the seller and purchaser being collateral. Charles v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 927. Contents of rules of railway company may be shown by testimony of witnesses where the existence of such rules was not brought out by the pleadings but only in the course of the evidence, and defendant had a printed copy of the rules in its possession. Northern Alabama R. Co. v. Key [Ala.] 43 So. 794. Where a letter by a party to a third person was material only to show that negotiations for a trade were pending, letters were competent, and proof of substance of one by oral evidence was competent. Gulliford v. McQuillen [Kan.] 89 P. 927. Indebtedness is a fact which may be proved by oral evidence, notes being merely collateral; hence failure to produce or account for notes would not make oral proof inadmissible to prove such fact. Stein v. Local Board of Review [Iowa] 113 N. W. 339. Parol evidence may be admitted to show that witness was at the instance of plaintiff placed under a conservator in explanation of previous statement by witness that she was hostile to plaintiff because of his treatment of her. Blair v. Blair, 125 Ill. App. 341.

46. Proof of a shipment may be made without producing the bill of lading. Dorough v. Harrington [Ala.] 42 So. 557. County treasurer may testify that he issued a liquor tax certificate, his endorsement thereon not being the sole evidence of the fact under Liquor Tax Law, § 17, subd. 11. Cullinan v. Horan, 116 App. Div. 711, 102 N. Y. S. 132. Witness may state that there had been litigation between certain parties, but record would be best evidence of facts of the litigation. Ball v. Laughridge, 30 Ky. L. R. 1123, 100 S. W. 275. Question to witness whether he had not brought another action for same injury held not to call for secondary evidence, since the contents of a complaint as such was not called for. Ruemer v. Clark, 105 N. Y. S. 659. Bill of lading is not best proof of receipt of goods; receipt of drayman is competent. Dorough v. Harrington [Ala.] 42 So. 557. A question whether a labor inspector had made a report on a plant held not open to objection of not being the best evidence. Brusseau v. Lower Brick Co., 133 Iowa, 245, 110 N. W. 577. Statement of justice that he made a certain entry in his docket is not objectionable as not the best evidence. Breeden v. Martens [S. D.] 112 N. W. 960. In suit to set aside a judgment on the ground that plaintiff was not a party thereto, his attorney in that action may testify that plaintiff voluntarily made himself a party thereto. Cage v. Owens [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 6, 103 S. W. 1191.

Contra: The best evidence of the filing and docketing of a claim in the probate court is the docket entries there made. Gillespie v. Campbell [Ala.] 43 So. 28.

47. Where opposing party's counsel was called and testified without objection that a certain exhibit was a correct copy of an original paper which had been sent up with the transcript on appeal, thereby becoming part of a public record, the objection that it was not the best evidence (P. & C. Comp. St. § 742, requiring original or certified copy of records) was waived, the instrument having been identified. First Nat. Bk. v. Miller, 48 Or. 587, 87 P. 892.

48. International Harvester Co. v. Elfstrom [Minn.] 112 N. W. 252; Cole v. Ellwood Power Co., 216 Pa. 283, 65 A. 678. Where three copies of an instrument were made at the same time by one impression of the pencil, it was held they were triplicate originals, and one was competent evidence without notice to produce others. Virginia Carolina Chem. Co. v. Knight, 106 Va. 674, 56 S. E. 725.

Carbon copies of an entire instrument, including the signature, produced by the same act as produced the copy actually written upon, are entitled to be treated as originals and each is admissible without accounting for others. International Harvester Co. of America v. Elfstrom [Minn.] 112 N. W. 252. Letter-press copies distinguished. Id. And see 7 C. L. 1535, n. 83.

Facts which, if they exist, would be shown by a public record, cannot be proved by parol or other secondary evidence.<sup>50</sup> Such records are themselves the best evidence of their contents,<sup>51</sup> but owing to the nature of public documents and records and the inconvenience or impossibility of producing them in court, copies or transcripts certified and authenticated in the manner required by law are competent proof of their contents in practically all jurisdictions. Similarly, instruments required or allowed by law to be filed are usually provable by a properly authenticated copy,<sup>52</sup> and where a certified copy of the record can be procured, oral evidence of the contents of such an instrument is incompetent.<sup>53</sup> Extraneous facts relating to matters shown by a record, or facts omitted therefrom,<sup>54</sup> or not made a matter of record,<sup>55</sup> may be shown by parol, and extrinsic proof is competent to supplement or explain a record.<sup>56</sup> Oral

50. Appraised value of property for taxes, shown by grand tax list, cannot be shown by parol. Town of Ripton v. Brandon [Vt.] 67 A. 541. Parol evidence is incompetent to show contents or allegations of complaint which was never filed. Tomlinson v. Bennett [N. C.] 59 S. E. 37.

51. Records held best evidence of whether deeds had been recorded. Selvert v. Galvin [Wis.] 113 N. W. 680. Where original records were in court, oral evidence was held incompetent to show that sworn copies thereof were incorrect. Glos v. Holmes, 224 Ill. 436, 81 N. E. 1064. Original legislative journals are best evidence of form of statute as passed when it is claimed that a change was subsequently made. Erford v. Peoria, 229 Ill. 546, 82 N. E. 374. Proof of trial and conviction of one before a mayor should be made by producing the record or the mayor's docket. Cooke v. Loper [Ala.] 44 So. 78. A certificate by a clerk of court that a receiver duly qualified is not evidence of the fact, the record, or a certified copy, is the best evidence. Hagan v. Holderby [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 289. Testimony of land commissioner, based wholly on his records, inadmissible, records themselves or certified copies being best evidence. Patterson v. Knapp [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 96, 99 S. W. 125. As to what property was embraced in an entry purporting to be a levy, the entry itself was the best evidence. Gray v. Joiner, 127 Ga. 544, 56 S. E. 752. Best evidence of whether constable filed claim against county, itemized and verified, is claim itself, not oral testimony as to whether it was filed. McGuire v. Iowa County, 133 Iowa, 636, 111 N. W. 34. The record is the best evidence that a judgment has been set aside not the fact that the state's attorney directed execution to be returned because of the setting aside of the judgment. Bonner v. Com., 30 Ky. L. R. 992, 99 S. W. 1150. Affidavits stating that signers of a petition for formation of an irrigation district had the necessary qualifications, and abstracts of title, held not the best evidence in proceedings to determine the validity of the organization of the district and of a bond issue. Ahern v. High-Line Irr. Dist. Directors [Colo.] 89 P. 963. The record of a judgment of a justice of the peace is only prima facie evidence of its recitals and can be impeached by competent evidence. Albie v. Jones [Ark.] 102 S. W. 222.

52. Records of deeds inadmissible without preliminary proof required by Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 30, § 36. Tucker v. Duncan, 9 Curr. L.—79.

224 Ill. 453, 79 N. E. 613. To prove the execution of lost deeds the record books of the county were held admissible, especially where the clerk testified that he copied them as best he could, that they were old and worn, and that they came from a representative of the estate of the grantee. Jones' Estate v. Neal [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 392, 98 S. W. 417. Under California statutes, where a copy of a patent duly certified by the land office is recorded in the county where the land is situated, a certified copy of the record is competent without accounting for the original patent. Preston v. Hirsch [Cal. App.] 90 P. 965. Certified transcript of lease for less than three years is not competent evidence under Code, § 935. Goodman v. Greenberg, 53 Misc. 583, 103 N. Y. S. 779.

53. Under the act of March 7, 1905, providing for the recording of stock brands and the issuance of certificates of the record, oral evidence is incompetent to prove ownership of a stock brand. State v. Dunn [Idaho] 88 P. 235.

54. Bill of exceptions incorporated in transcript on appeal is not a part of the record, and hence parol evidence is competent to show that it was not signed within the time allowed by law and that the order extending the time was invalid. Rainey v. Ridgway [Ala.] 43 So. 843.

55. Action taken at annual school election may be proved by parol where no record of the meeting was kept. Kinney v. Howard, 133 Iowa, 94, 110 N. W. 282. City decision to engage in removal of ashes from limits not being a legislative act may be proved by any evidence; an ordinance is not necessary. Johnson v. Somerville [Mass.] 81 N. E. 268. Where drainage commissioners acted as agents of two parties in settling a drainage dispute, their acts were provable by parol, there being no official record thereof. Dunn v. Youmans, 224 Ill. 34, 79 N. E. 321. Where a highway is both a highway of record and by user, proof of user is not objectionable as secondary evidence, both modes of proof being competent. Hariman v. Moore & Co. [N. H.] 67 A. 225.

56. Where the evidence furnished by the journals of the legislature is ambiguous or contradictory as to the actual time of its final adjournment, so that it is impossible to tell with certainty therefrom upon what day the legislature adjourned sine die, recourse may be had to other competent evidence to supply the omission. State v. Junkin [Neb.] 113 N. W. 256. In an action to recover costs of litigation from one who proof of facts disclosed by an examination of a record is competent where the contents of the record is not sought to be thus proved.<sup>57</sup>

In a proceeding to register a title under the Illinois statute, an abstract of title is inadmissible without proof of loss of the original instruments,<sup>58</sup> and proof that the abstract was made in the regular course of business.<sup>59</sup>

§ 5. Parol evidence to explain or vary writings.<sup>60</sup>—When a written contract imports on its face to be a complete expression of the whole agreement, it is presumed that the parties have introduced therein every item or term<sup>61</sup> and that all prior negotiations and contemporaneous oral agreements have been merged therein;<sup>62</sup> hence the well settled rule that evidence of prior or contemporaneous agreements, negotiations, or representations,<sup>63</sup> or other parol or extrinsic evidence,<sup>64</sup> is inadmissible had promised to pay them, on settlement of a will contest, parol evidence was admissible to show that the will contest was the litigation referred to, this evidence not contradicting the record but supplementing it to show the subject-matter. Jordan v. McDonnell [Ala.] 44 So. 101. Where assessment rolls described land as a certain numbered lot of a named tract, the description could be supplemented by proof that there was a tract known by that name and that a survey and plat referred to the lot in question, which was a known subdivision thereof. Chapman v. Zobelein [Cal.] 92 P. 188.

57. Competent to show that records in ordinary's office do not show the granting of letters of administration upon a particular estate. Wilson v. Wood, 127 Ga. 316, 56 S. E. 457. The facts that returns had been made to the court and withdrawn by an executor need not be proved by entries made thereon. American Surety Co. v. Wood [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 1116. An officer having in his custody the records of his predecessor showing real estate agent licenses, as required by statute, and who has examined such records, may testify that his predecessor did not issue a license to a particular person. Reeder v. Jones [Del.] 65 A. 571. Where tax collector filed list of delinquent taxes in clerk's office, but the list when found had no affidavit attached as required by law, testimony of the collector and his deputy that the affidavit had been made and attached but had been detached was competent. Brasch v. Western Tie & Timber Co., 80 Ark. 425, 97 S. W. 445. To establish identity of corporation named as grantee in deed, testimony of secretary of state that his records did not show the creation of a corporation with the name shown in the deed was competent. Cobb v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 12, 97 S. W. 513.

58, 59. Glos v. Wheeler, 229 Ill. 272, 82 N. E. 234.

60. See 7 C. L. 1536.

61. In absence of fraud or mistake there is a conclusive legal presumption that a written contract contains the entire agreement of the parties. Smith v. Vose & Sons Piano Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 527. Proof of conversations and oral negotiations prior to written contract, tending to contradict it, held incompetent, under Rev. Civ. Code, § 1239. Gardner v. Welch [S. D.] 110 N. W. 110. Where a writing does not show on its face that it is incomplete and does not purport to contain the entire agreement, oral evidence is not admissible on the theory that the contract is partly oral and partly written. Koons v. St. Louis Car Co., 203 Mo. 227, 101 S. W. 49.

62. Manson v. Dayton [C. C. A.] 153 F. 258.

63. Horner v. Beasley [Md.] 65 A. 820; Wallace v. Kelly, 148 Mich. 336, 14 Det. Leg. N. 230, 111 N. W. 1049; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Wolfson, 124 Mo. App. 286, 101 S. W. 162; Gilroy v. Everson-Hickok Co., 118 App. Div. 733, 103 N. Y. S. 620; Michels v. Studnitz, 103 N. Y. S. 817; Walker v. Brosius [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 384, 90 S. W. 655. Letters, ante-dating and leading up to and culminating in written contract of agency, held inadmissible to vary its terms. Haas v. Malto-Grapo Co., 148 Mich. 358, 14 Det. Leg. N. 187, 111 N. W. 1059. Proof of oral representations as to the effect of a contract and rights of a party thereto is incompetent, when not amounting to proof of fraud. Tradesman Co. v. Superior Mfg. Co., 147 Mich. 762, 14 Det. Leg. N. 57, 111 N. W. 343. Oral proof of an understanding at time contract of sale was executed, which contradicted the writing, held inadmissible. Newell v. Lamping [Wash.] 88 P. 195. An oral agreement which alters an agreement in writing is not valid or binding unless executed; hence proof of the oral agreement is not competent to change the written contract. Page v. Geiser Mfg. Co., 17 Okl. 110, 87 P. 851. In an action on a contract of guaranty, a parol agreement prior to execution of the contract, that defendant would not be bound if certain other parties should fail to sign, could not be shown. Lefkovits v. First Nat. Bk. [Ala.] 44 So. 613. Where steamship ticket signed by the buyer provided for a limitation of liability for baggage, parol evidence of what took place between the buyer and agent at the time was inadmissible to vary the terms of the contract then reduced to writing. Bachman v. Clyde S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 403.

64. Words in a contract having a clear and unambiguous import will not be subject to explanation by parol to show what the parties meant. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428. Contract held complete and unambiguous and oral proof which would add a term excluded. United States v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 596. Where no fraud, duress, or mistake in connection with a written contract was alleged, it was error to admit testimony as to surrounding circumstances tending to impeach it. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Timon [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 349, 99 S. W. 418. In the absence of ambiguity to vary, add to, or contradict the terms of a valid written instrument.<sup>65</sup> The rule ap-and of fraud, accident, or mistake, parol evidence is not admissible to assist in the interpretation of a written contract. Wheeler v. Moore [Neb.] 111 N. W. 121. Where the final agreement of the parties is embodied in an instrument under seal, other writings, prior or contemporaneous, not under seal, are incompetent to vary or contradict the sealed instrument. Kidd v. New Hampshire Traction Co. [N. H.] 66 A. 127.

65. Southeastern Const. Co. v. Farnham Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 619; Lower v. Hickman, 80 Ark. 505, 97 S. W. 681; Boylan v. Cameron, 126 Ill. App. 432; McKee v. Owen, 104 N. Y. S. 373; Garrison v. Kress [Okl.] 91 P. 1130; Perkiomen R. Co. v. Bromer, 217 Pa. 263, 66 A. 359; Reed v. Coughran [S. D.] 111 N. W. 559; Teague v. Ricks [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 656, 100 S. W. 794.

Illustrations. Miscellaneous Contracts and writings: Parol evidence inadmissible to aid to or vary terms of written rent contract. Smith v. Green [Ga.] 57 S. E. 98. Where a way bill was complete on its face and no fraud or mistake appeared, parol evidence was incompetent to show an agreement to deliver at a certain packing house, nor could such term be added by proof that a way bill issued for use of employees only contained such stipulation. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Griffith [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 520, 103 S. W. 225. A contract with the United States provided that payment was to be made at such times and in such amounts as the officer in charge of the work might elect. Proof that government officers said just before the contract was signed that payments could be expected every thirty days was inadmissible. Ramsey v. Perth Amboy Shipbuilding & Engineering Co. [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 461. Writing construed as complete contract for sale of lands for right of way, and hence parol evidence inadmissible to show a time limit for completion of part of road or other terms. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Lane [Mich.] 113 N. W. 22. It is not competent to vary a contract certain in its terms by proof of a custom. Leonhart v. California Wine Ass'n [Cal. App.] 89 P. 847. Purpose for which property was purchased by a club held admissible in evidence in order to explain legal nature of trust instrument executed at the time. Eis v. Croze [Mich.] 112 N. W. 943. A written agreement provided for an exchange of property and the giving of a note and mortgage by plaintiff to defendant, which were given. Held, in a suit by plaintiff to redeem from the mortgage, plaintiff could not show an oral agreement by defendant to release the mortgage on payment of part of the note and release of a mortgage held by plaintiff. McCusker v. Geiger [Mass.] 80 N. E. 648. Where written contract of employment showed that it was of indefinite duration, oral evidence was incompetent to show that it was to be for a year. Wightman v. New York Life Ins. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 214. Where notes were turned over as collateral to secure a debt, and a written contract provided that the notes were to be returned when the debt was paid, oral proof was incompetent to show that parties agreed that notes were to be turned over to debtor for collection at maturity in order to avoid expense of collection. Buxton v. Alton-Dawson Mercantile Co., 18 Okl. 287 90 P. 19. Where written contract for laying an asbestos granite floor was complete, parol evidence was incompetent to show a collateral agreement between defendant and plaintiff's soliciting agent that the floor was to be polished and the colors therein permanent. McKeige v. Carroll, 105 N. Y. S. 342. Where draft by creditor on debtor in favor of a bank was discounted by the bank, evidence of an unexpressed intention of the drawer when the draft was presented and discounted was held inadmissible. Provident Nat. Bank v. Hartnett Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 748, 100 S. W. 1024. In an action for failure to deliver hogs according to terms of written contract, evidence that defendant failed to deliver all his hogs was admissible, the contract using the term "my hogs," but proof changing the effect of the written terms was inadmissible. Watson v. Lamb, 75 Ohio St. 481, 79 N. E. 1075. Where contract of settlement was full, clear, and unambiguous, parol evidence was incompetent to show a contemporaneous agreement whereby one of the parties thereto was to pay an additional sum. First Nat. Bank of Lincoln v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 519. Where a contract involving several vessels is entire and complete, parol evidence is inadmissible to show that a part of it never became effective owing to the nonfulfillment of a condition precedent. Morris v. Chesapeake & O. S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 11. Parol understandings of parties prior to written contract cannot, though they induced making of contract, be permitted to vary its plain provisions. Gates v. Detroit & M. R. Co., 147 Mich. 523, 111 N. W. 101. Receipt for property levied on by an officer was signed by a director of a corporation in his individual capacity. In an action on the receipt oral proof of an agreement that the signer was to be liable only as a director was held to contradict the subsequent writing, and hence inadmissible. Dejon v. Street, 79 Conn. 333, 65 A. 145. Where a written contract bound the obligor to pay a certain sum if a third party failed to pay it, an oral statement at the time of signing that the obligor would not be called on to pay was inadmissible. Doyle v. Nestling, 37 Colo. 522, 88 P. 862. A written accord and satisfaction "of all claims to date," including three hogs killed, and claims for damage to land or crops or from failure to erect gates, held to exclude oral proof that it did not include damages arising from failure to maintain fences. Rowland v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 124 Mo. App. 605, 102 S. W. 19. Inadmissible to show that plaintiff was to receive instructions in courses other than specified in contract. American Educational Co. v. Taggart, 124 Ill. App. 567. Parol evidence is inadmissible to change the legal effect of an application for dram-shop license signed by an abutting owner. People v. Griesbach, 127 Ill. App. 462.

parol agreement to pay by boarding certain employes cannot be shown. Andrews v. John Church Co., 1 Ga. App. 560, 58 S. E. 130. Where a written agreement provided for the furnishing of certain articles for a specified consideration, parol evidence that a certain note was to be turned in as the last payment was held inadmissible. Houts v. Sioux City Brass Works [Iowa] 110 N. W. 166. Where contract stated that goods were sold and that buyer assumed certain debts of seller and was to proceed to sell the goods and pay proceeds to the seller less the debts assumed, oral evidence was inadmissible to prove that the transaction was not in fact an absolute sale. Doolittle v. Murray & Co. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 999. Where sale of sawmill was evidenced by complete, unambiguous contract in writing, oral evidence was incompetent to prove a warranty of the capacity of the mill. Lower v. Hickman, 80 Ark. 505, 97 S. W. 681. In the absence of proof of fraud, accident, or mistake, oral evidence held incompetent to prove omission of statement of capacity of sawmill, where contract was complete on its face and contained a detailed memorandum of terms and items sold. Id. Where written contract for sale of flour did not contain an alleged oral agreement to send salesman to introduce the flour, proof thereof, and of a breach of it, was inadmissible. Columbia Mill. Co. v. Russell Co., 89 Miss. 437, 42 So. 233. Where contract of sale of machinery was clear and complete and no fraud was alleged, parol evidence was incompetent to prove a breach of warranty, not contained in the writing, as to the capacity of the machinery. Barry-Weh-miller Machinery Co. v. Thompson [Ark.] 104 S. W. 137. Contract of sale of plantations provided for payment in cotton instead of cash, and the contract was clear and unambiguous. Held parol evidence that the cotton was to be grown on the land sold was inadmissible. Soudan Planting Co. v. Stevenson [Ark.] 102 S. W. 1114. Sale contract contained certain warranties and was on its face complete. Held an additional warranty could not be shown by parol. Johnson, Berger & Co. v. Hughes & Co. [Ark.] 103 S. W. 184. In an action for the price of pictures, proof of a custom not to "rough" pictures unless expressly ordered so to do was inadmissible, where the order was for pictures like samples in defendant's possession. Turner v. Osgood Art Color-type Co., 223 Ill. 629, 79 N. E. 306. Written contract for sale of stock cannot be varied by proof of prior negotiations. Commercial & Savings Bank v. Pott, 150 Cal. 353, 89 P. 431. Written contract provided for delivery of specified quantities of grapes of a certain kind at certain prices. Held proof of a custom relating to amount of daily deliveries was incompetent, the contract not providing for any limitation on the amount of daily deliveries. Leonhart v. California Wine Ass'n [Cal. App.] 89 P. 847.

Leases: A lease is a contract within the meaning of the parol evidence rule. Hinsdale v. McCune [Iowa] 113 N. W. 478. Where a written lease expressly included all of certain premises including a farm, oral evidence that it did not cover the farm was inadmissible. Suderman-Dolsen Co. v. Rogers [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 346, 104 S. W. 193. Where written lease is for a term of one year, oral evidence is incompetent to show a tenancy from month to month. Dodd v. Pasch [Cal. App.] 91 P. 166. Parol evidence is inadmissible to annex to a written lease a condition which would defeat its operative effect. Morris v. Healy Lumber Co. [Wash.] 91 P. 186. In an action for an accounting between a landlord and tenant, evidence of an oral agreement by the landlord to construct a drain, made without consideration, and of damage to the land by reason of failure to construct it, is inadmissible, the oral agreement being omitted from the written lease. Gandy v. Wiltse [Neb.] 112 N. W. 569. Prior and contemporaneous conversations are inadmissible to change terms of written lease. Jackson Brewing Co. v. Wagner, 117 La. 875, 42 So. 356. Where party did not claim that a mistake had been made in a lease, a conversation after its execution was held inadmissible. Johnston v. Mulcahy [Cal. App.] 88 P. 491.

Deeds and mortgages: When the consideration stated in a deed for land made by a father to a daughter is one dollar, the daughter takes the land as purchaser, and parol evidence is not admissible to show that the consideration was not paid, and that in fact the consideration was natural love and affection. Cowden v. Cowden, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 277. The terms of a deed cannot be varied, altered, or modified by parol evidence. Sutton v. Lemen, 130 Ill. App. 50. Parol evidence held incompetent to prove that a patent from the state conveyed the land to the grantees in trust. Sanborn v. Loud [Mich.] 113 N. W. 809. Deed to right of way for telephone line being unambiguous, parol evidence was incompetent to limit its effect to a grant for a noncommercial line. North-eastern Tel. & T. Co. v. Hepburn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 747. Where deed is clear and unambiguous, only a clear case of fraud, accident, or mistake will warrant admission of parol proof as to its terms. Taylor v. Southerland [Ind. T.] 104 S. W. 874. Where a deed is unambiguous and purports to convey the present title, parol evidence not directed to proof of such attendant circumstances as to raise an implied trust is not admissible to contradict the deed by showing that it was not intended to become binding until the happening of a future event to be brought about by the grantor. Williams v. Smith [Ga.] 57 S. E. 801. Where deed contains special warranty against incumbrances, grantor cannot recover tax assessed prior to conveyance from grantee on parol proof that this tax was to be paid as a part of the consideration. Edison Elec. Illuminating Co. v. Gibby Foundry Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 479. Parol evidence that mortgage was intended to cover crops in a county other than that named in the mortgage held inadmissible. Baker v. Cotney [Ala.] 43 So. 786. Parol evidence is incompetent to contradict an absolute deed by showing an agreement that buildings on the premises were not to be conveyed. Mahaffey v. Rumbarger Lumber Co., 61 W. Va. 571, 56 S. E. 893. In the absence of proof of fraud or mistake, parol evidence is inadmissible to show that grantor did not intend to include a certain tract in a deed. McCreary v. Skidmore [Ky.] 99 S. W. 219. Where deed was broad enough to include everything on the land conveyed except certain personal effects, parol evidence was inadmissible to vary or contradict it. Carter v. Childress [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 392, 99 S. W. 714.

NOTE. Parol evidence rule as applied to deeds, mortgages, etc.: "The general rule of law which excludes testimony of prior or contemporaneous oral declarations and agreements to carry the terms or legal effect of a written contract is too elementary to permit of argument or citation of authorities. It is also well established that a deed purporting to transfer or convey title to property may be shown by parol to have been given and received as a mortgage whether the action be in equity or at law. McAnnulty v. Selick, 59 Iowa, 586, 13 N. W. 743; Frick v. Kabaker, 116 Iowa, 502, 90 N. W. 498. This rule is not altogether an exception ingrafted upon the former; because, ordinarily speaking, a deed is not evidence of the contract between the parties, but is rather the consummation of a contract resting in parol or in another writing. Trayer v. Reeder, 45 Iowa, 272; Saville v. Chalmers, 76 Iowa, 325, 41 N. W. 30; Bever v. Bever, 144 Ind. 162, 41 N. E. 944; Davis v. Hopkins, 18 Colo. 153, 32 P. 70. But where any inconsistency is found between the terms of the preliminary contract and the deed which witnesses the consummation, the latter will prevail. Philbrook v. Emswiler, 92 Ind. 590; Cole v. Gray, 139 Ind. 396, 38 N. E. 856. It may be further conceded that the purpose for which a writing was delivered may generally be shown by parol; but this is subject to the restriction that the purpose thus shown must not be in contradiction of the express terms of such writing. Courtwright v. Strickler, 37 Iowa, 382; Dickson v. Harris, 60 Iowa, 727, 13 N. W. 335; Blair v. Buttolph, 72 Iowa, 31, 33 N. W. 349; DeGoey v. Van Wyk, 97 Iowa, 492, 66 N. W. 787. These rules have been most frequently applied to conveyances of real estate, but have sometimes been invoked in the consideration of bills of sale of personal property. Voorhies v. Hennessy, 7 Wash. 243, 34 P. 931; Seavey v. Walker, 108 Ind. 78, 9 N. E. 347; Frick v. Kabaker, 116 Iowa, 502, 90 N. W. 498. But, where the writing is something more than a formal transfer of title credited by the parties, and contains mutual stipulations and provisions which the parties specifically undertake to observe, it is held with very general unanimity that parol evidence is not admissible.

"It has been held that, where a mortgage secures in express terms the payment of a given sum of money, parol evidence will not be admitted to show the real purpose of the parties was to secure the performance of an oral agreement. Adair v. Adair, 5 Mich. 204, 71 Am. Dec. 779. Nor will such evidence be admitted to show that a mortgage given by an individual was in fact the mortgage of a partnership of which he was a member. Jones v. Phelps, 5 Mich. 218. One B. having acknowledged, in writing, the receipt of payment from G. for a private way across his land, it was incompetent for him to show by parol that the grant was understood to be personal only, and subject to revocation by the grantor. Wetherell v. Brobst, 23 Iowa, 586. Where the parties have in writing declared in clear and unambiguous terms the purpose of their agreement, that declaration cannot be denied or varied by proof of prior

"It is believed that no case can be found where parol evidence has been received for the purpose of showing that such an instrument (assignment) was given merely as collateral security, and not for the precise purpose mentioned in it. Without commenting upon the authorities, the following are ample to show that the evidence was not competent—citing 1 Greenl. Ev. § 275; McCrea v. Purmort, 16 Wend. [N. Y.] 461, 30 Am. Dec. 103; Kellogg v. Richards, 14 Wend. [N. Y.] 117; Goodyear v. Ogden, 4 Hill [N. Y.] 104; Graves v. Friend, 5 Sandf. [N. Y.] 568; Coon v. Knap, 8 N. Y. 402, 59 Am. Dec. 502; Cocks v. Barker, 49 N. Y. 107; Hinckley v. Railroad Co., 56 N. Y. 429; Van Bokkelen v. Taylor, 62 N. Y. 105; Shaw v. Ins. Co., 69 N. Y. 286; Wilson v. Deen, 74 N. Y. 531; Eighmie v. Taylor, 98 N. Y. 228; Thomas v. Scutt, 127 N. Y. 133, 27 N. E. 961." "Parol evidence is inadmissible to annex to a bill of sale or contract of sale any condition inconsistent with the conditions therein expressed. 17 Cyc. 645; Davis v. Robinson, 71 Iowa, 618, 33 N. W. 132; Daly v. Kimball, 67 Iowa, 132, 24 N. W. 756; Fawcner v. Lew Smith Wall Paper Co., 88 Iowa, 169, 55 N. W. 200, 45 Am. St. Rep. 230; McCormick v. Market, 107 Iowa, 340, 78 N. Murray & Co.* [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1003.

Insurance policies: Insurance policy described property as dwelling house, and that destroyed consisted of stores and dwelling house combined. Held, proof that broker who wrote the policy had maps showing the property correctly was inadmissible. Bowditch v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Co., 193 Mass. 565, 79 N. E. 788. No claim of fraud or mistake being made, oral evidence tending to vary or contradict insurance policy held incompetent. Rief v. Continental Casualty Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 502. Oral evidence to show agreement prior to signing of application for insurance. Prince v. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 766. The parol evidence rule applied to a contract of insurance. Gish v. Insurance Co. of North America [Okla.] 87 P. 869. Where an application for fire insurance and the policy clearly indicated that the policy covered only lumber in the yard or sheds and excluded stock in the sawmill and additions, oral evidence was inadmissible to vary the contract by showing that it covered all the lumber. Ferguson v. Lumbermen's Ins. Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 128.

Notes: Parol evidence may be received to explain that a promissory note was an accommodation note, or to be held as collateral, but cannot be received to defeat recovery thereon where the payee, on the strength of its execution and delivery and at the maker's request, extended credit to a third person. Willoughby v. Ball, 18 Okl. 525, 90 P. 1017. Where a note is given as a subscription to a railroad corporation to aid in the construction of a road, representations made prior to or contemporaneous with the execution of the note are not admissible to contradict, change, vary, or add to the conditions plainly incorporated into and plies as well to terms necessarily implied or read into a contract by law as to those expressly stated.<sup>66</sup> Parol evidence is of course incompetent to supply elements of a contract required by the statute of frauds to be in writing,<sup>67</sup> though proof of the circumstances surrounding its execution and the condition of the parties may be shown,<sup>68</sup> and is particularly applicable when the contract declares on its face that it is unconditional except as therein noted.<sup>69</sup>

Where it appears, however, that the parties did not intend to reduce the entire contract to writing, oral evidence is competent to show omitted terms consistent with those contained in a written memorandum,<sup>70</sup> since the existence of such a partial memorandum does not exclude parol proof of the real and entire contract of the parties,<sup>71</sup> but this rule does not permit contradiction of the written terms by parol.<sup>72</sup> made a part of the note. Guthrie & W. R. Co. v. Rhodes [Okl.] 91 P. 1119. One who knowingly gives promissory notes for the price of land, and accepts a bond for deed from the payee providing for payment of the sum secured by notes, cannot defeat collection of the notes by showing an antecedent, executory agreement by the payee to give him the land or to sell at a price other than that stated in the written contract. Carroll v. Hutchinson [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 309. In a suit on a promissory note, a verbal agreement by the payee to take less than the stipulated sum is inadmissible. Bowen v. Waxelbaum & Bro. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 784. Oral evidence is incompetent tending to show an oral contract made at the time a note was executed altering the effect of the note. Whitehead v. Emmerich [Colo.] 87 P. 790. In the absence of any allegation of fraud, accident, or mistake, parol proof is incompetent, in an action on promissory notes, to show that they were given as security only, and that the promisor was not to be bound. Byrd & Co. v. Marietta Fertilizer Co., 127 Ga. 30, 56 S. E. 86. Plaintiff gave a note to trustees of a railroad conditioned only upon construction of a railroad to a certain city, and the note was transferred to a trustee, the assignment reciting that the consideration was the benefit to be derived from building of the road. Held parol evidence inadmissible to show an oral agreement not to build a station between two certain towns. Farrington v. Stuckey [Ind. T.] 104 S. W. 647.

Endorsements on negotiable instruments: An indorsement in terms "with recourse" on a note cannot be shown by parol to be intended to be "without recourse." Kinsel v. Ballou [Cal.] 91 P. 620. Where a note is transferred by written assignment to a certain person, it is not competent to show by parol that title was in another than the assignee. Hester v. Gairdner [Ga.] 58 S. E. 165. The legal effect of a blank indorsement on a note cannot be varied by parol. Torbert v. Montague [Colo.] 87 P. 1145. A contract of indorsement (promissory note) cannot be varied by evidence that the indorsee promised to keep the indorser informed as to the maker's conduct and failed to do so. Hopkins v. Merrill, 79 Conn. 626, 66 A. 174. Contract made by indorsement and delivery of a negotiable promissory note cannot be varied or contradicted by parol, contemporaneous agreement. Crilly v. Gallice [C. C. A.] 148 F. 835. Parol evidence held incompetent to change legal effect of written waiver of demand placed on a note by an indorser. Toole v. Crafts [Mass.] 82 N. E. 22.

66. United States v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 596. If what the law implies from the written terms makes the contract complete, this is sufficient to exclude parol proof. Peterson v. Chaix [Cal. App.] 90 P. 948. Where the statute fixes the status of a party to a negotiable instrument as being that of an indorser, parol evidence is not admissible to vary that status. Baumeister v. Kuntz [Fla.] 42 So. 886. Where a statute provides a standard of weight, and also provides that contracts are to be construed with reference to such statutory standard, it will be presumed that parties contracted with reference thereto, and proof of a usage in conflict therewith is inadmissible. (Sale of structural steel at a certain price per pound.) Hale Bros. v. Milliken [Cal. App.] 90 P. 365.

67. Where the description in a contract for the sale of land is definite, certain, and complete, parol evidence is incompetent to show that entirely different tract was intended, the entire contract being required by Civ. Code, § 1741, to be in writing. Willmon v. Peck [Cal. App.] 91 P. 164. In the absence of fraud or mistake, extrinsic evidence is incompetent to supply omissions or rectify defects in a contract to convey land which is lacking in some essential element. Chambers v. Roseland [S. D.] 112 N. W. 148.

68. While parol evidence is incompetent to vary or change a written contract or add a memorandum insufficient under the statute of frauds, yet it is competent to show the surrounding circumstances and the condition of the parties when the writing was made. Great Western Print. Co. v. Belcher [Mo. App.] 104 S. W. 894.

69. Scientific American Compiling Dept. v. Creighton, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 140.

70. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Wynne Hoop & Coopercage Co. [Ark.] 99 S. W. 375; Chicago Tel. Supply Co. v. Marne & Elkhorn Tel. Co. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 935; Taylor v. Elmira Storage & Supply Co., 54 Misc. 363, 104 N. Y. S. 557; Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613. Where note was dated a certain year and day and made payable on a certain day of a certain month, no year being given, parol proof was competent to supply the omission. Leffler Co. v. Dickerson, 1 Ga. App. 63, 57 S. E. 911.

71. Where contract rests partly in writing and partly in parol, the parol portion

Where the written evidence of a contract or a term thereof is ambiguous or uncertain, oral or extrinsic evidence is admissible to explain the ambiguity or clear up the uncertainty, in order that the real intention of the parties may be made to appear.<sup>73</sup> For this purpose evidence of the facts and circumstances leading up to thereof may be proved by oral testimony. Hueni v. Freehill, 125 Ill. App. 345. If it is apparent that a writing does not contain the entire agreement of the parties, oral evidence is competent to show the entire agreement, or a collateral agreement, which does not contradict the written evidence. Roquemore v. Vulcan Iron Works Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 557. Where it appeared that a contract for the sale of a business was only partly reduced to writing, parol evidence was competent to show the entire contract. McConnell v. Camors-McConnell Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 321. Where contract of sale of telephones did not purport to contain all the terms and contained no warranty, the fact that a printed catalogue contained a warranty did not exclude parol evidence of a different warranty. Chicago Tel. Supply Co. v. Marne & Elkhorn Tel. Co. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 935. The parol evidence rule applies only where there is in fact a written contract; it does not apply to a contract partly written and partly oral. Hallowell v. McLaughlin Bros. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 428. Parol evidence is competent to show whether a certificate of deposit was given for a deposit or a loan. State v. Corning State Sav. Bank [Iowa] 113 N. W. 500. Where a written contract is stricken from a pleading and it is introduced as evidence merely, parol proof that it did not express the true agreement of the parties is admissible without a plea of fraud or mistake. Martin v. Ferguson [Ky.] 104 S. W. 698. Where the original contract was verbal and entire, the fact that part of it was afterwards reduced to writing does not make parol evidence incompetent to show the entire agreement. Picard v. Beers [Mass.] 81 N. E. 246. Where agreement as to sales of stock was oral, and tickets were thereafter given showing the terms of the transaction, which were not signed by either of the parties, oral evidence was competent to show the contract. Id. Writing held a mere memorandum of items sold and not contract, and hence parol proof was competent to show terms of contract. North Packing & Provision Co. v. Lynch [Mass.] 81 N. E. 891. Oral sale was completed on April 3, 1903. A written instrument was drawn and signed May 26, reciting a present sale, and one dated Dec. 1 recited the sale of April 3, and each altered the terms of the original agreement as to time of payment and security. Held the writings did not purport to contain the entire agreement of the parties, and hence oral evidence was competent. Cooper v. Payne, 186 N. Y. 334, 73 N. E. 1076. Where letter did not purport to be a complete contract but was a mere memorandum reciting and confirming an oral agreement, the oral agreement was the real contract and the letter was not conclusive as to its terms. Perry v. Bates, 115 App. Div. 337, 100 N. Y. S. 881. Where written order for typewriter was admitted to be part of the contract, testimony tending to show that payment was to be made in part by allowing a commission on sale of other machines to be applied thereon was held not to contradict the writing but to supplement it by showing the entire agreement. Smith Premier Typewriter Co. v. Rowan Hardware Co., 143 N. C. 97, 55 S. E. 417. "Sixty days net" held ambiguous. Hagen Co. v. Greenwood, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 239. Resort to prior negotiation allowed in case of ambiguity as to whether penalty or liquidated damages was intended. United States v. Bethlehem Steel Co., 205 U. S. 105, 51 Law. Ed. 731. Extrinsic evidence held admissible to explain ambiguous provisions as to amount of work to be done. Jones & L. Steel Co. v. Monongahela & W. Dredging Co. [C. C. A.] 150 F. 298. In action at law against carrier for injuries to live stock, where carrier relied on provision of contract of carriage exonerating it from part of liability, held that plaintiff might show that, through mistake, said contract was not properly reduced to writing, and that writing set up did not contain real agreement. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Pendleton, 29 Ky. L. R. 721, 96 S. W. 434.

73. Massey Bros. v. Dixon Bros. [Ark.] 99 S. W. 333; Kitzman v. Carl, 133 Iowa, 340, 110 N. W. 587; Schuster v. Snawder [Ky.] 101 S. W. 1194; Smith v. Vose & Sons Piano Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 527; Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613; Loomis v. MacFarlane [Or.] 91 P. 466; Sellers v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 1102. Contract for sale of coal vein held not ambiguous. Armstrong v. Ross, 61 W. Va. 38, 55 S. E. 895. Ambiguity in description by metes and bounds held to admit parol proof that bounds were agreed upon and set on the land. Haskell v. Friend [Mass.] 81 N. E. 962. Where written contract was for driving of well which would produce a certain number of gallons per minute, oral proof was competent to show that fresh, not salt, water was intended. Bill of lading held ambiguous as to place of delivery of goods so as to render competent proof of custom to show meaning of terms used and intended place of delivery. Southern R. Co. v. Cofer [Ala.] 43 So. 102; Smith v. Vose & Sons Piano Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 527. Writing addressed to "E. Agent," and signed by defendant stating that he would pay a certain sum for property and pay a certain commission, held ambiguous as not showing whose agent "E" was nor to whom the commission was to be paid. Hanna v. Espalla [Ala.] 42 So. 443. Lease gave lessee right to conduct on premises restaurants and "buffets." Held evidence was competent to show that the word "buffets" was intended to include bars. Pine Beach Inv. Corp. v. Columbia Amusement Co., 106 Va. 810, 56 S. E. 822. Salesman's contract provided for certain salary if sales "averaged" a certain amount per annum, and contained other provisions for compensation. It was held ambiguous. Novelty Hat Mfg. Co. v. Wiseberg, 126 Ga. 800, 55 S. E. 923. Contract of employment of fur cutter provided for certain salary during "busy season" and other salary during "dull season." Oral proof to explain meaning of these terms in the fur trade was admissible. Schultz v. Simmons Fur Co. [Wash.] 90 P. 917. An agreement between a widow having a dower interest in land and a person owning a four-fifths interest, relating to the boundary, provided that each was "to have and to hold" one "end" of the land. Held there was a latent ambiguity as to the estate each was to have to explain which parol evidence was competent. Slusher v. Slusher [Ky.] 102 S. W. 1188. An assignment of a judgment contained the statement that the assignor appointed the assignee its irrevocable attorney with power of substitution. Held the assignment was ambiguous as to the interest intended to be transferred to the assignee, and parol evidence on the question was competent. First Nat. Bank v. Miller, 48 Or. 587, 87 P. 892. Contract of shipment of cattle being silent as to exact point of delivery in a certain city, parol evidence on that point was admissible in explanation. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Coggin [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 75, 99 S. W. 1052. Extrinsic evidence held admissible to explain writing whereby party acknowledged receipt of money and stated that full settlement should be deferred until a date named in "a note," this making the writing ambiguous. Zerr v. Klug, 121 Mo. App. 286, 98 S. W. 822. Where a memorandum of a broker's contract for compensation was silent or at least ambiguous on a certain point (who was to do a certain act), extrinsic evidence was competent to supply the omission and explain the contract. Blake v. Miller [Iowa] 112 N. W. 158. Contract bound owner of land to convey to railroad a right of way 50 feet wide on each side of the center line, as finally located, at $100 per acre. Parol evidence was held competent to show that line had already been located, that owner knew it, and that part of a right of way already bought and paid for was included, and that railroad was not to pay for such portion. Albert v. Tidewater R. Co. [Va.] 58 S. E. 575. Accident policy insured a person as "contractor, office and traveling." Held oral proof that agent knew insured was a railroad contractor was admissible to show what was meant by the quoted words. Trow v. Preferred Acc. Ins. Co. [Vt.] 67 A. 821. A theatrical contract employed an actress for a certain part for the "regular season." Held parol evidence was competent to show what theatrical men understood by that term. Lovering v. Miller [Pa.] 67 A. 209.

Contract or writing held unambiguous and parol or extrinsic proof excluded: Contract unambiguous and oral evidence inadmissible. Harrison v. Franklin [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 585. Provision in policy of insurance exempting company from liability under certain facts held unambiguous. Wheeler v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 709. Stipulation in a bill of sale that title was conveyed subject to liens of record held clear and unambiguous. Townsend v. Southern Product Co., 127 Ga. 342, 56 S. E. 436. Contract of sale held unambiguous and conversation of parties inadmissible to contradict it. Cobb v. Johnson, 126 Ga. 618, 55 S. E. 935. Written contract was for sale of "about" 250 tons of grapes, "more or less." Held quoted words did not make it ambiguous so as to let in parol proof. Peterson v. Chaix [Cal. App.] 90 P. 948. Contract provided that vendor of ranch would sell and "deliver" it to the vendee and vendee would "take" it. Oral evidence of an agreement to allow tenants to remain as tenants of the vendee was incompetent. Pierce v. Edwards, 150 Cal. 650, 89 P. 600. Erroneous recital of source of grantors' title in a deed held not to make deed ambiguous so as to let in parol evidence. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428. Oral evidence inadmissible to show intention of writer of letter acknowledging a debt, where the letter was clear and unambiguous. Robertson v. Warren [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 100 S. W. 805. An insurance policy containing the words "fully insured" cannot be varied by parol to show that property was insured to only three-fourths its value. Kentucky Wagon Mfg. Co. v. People's Supply Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 676. In action on contract for sale of land describing land by courses and distances, and reciting "said dimensions being more or less," parol evidence incompetent to show the understanding of the parties as to the words "more or less." Beardmore v. Barry, 118 App. Div. 334, 103 N. Y. S. 353. Where premises were leased "including the use of the heating plant and water system and plumbing, all as now connected up," the quoted clause was held unambiguous and not open to explanation by parol. Wheeler v. Moore [Neb.] 111 N. W. 120. Where contract for sale of land was entire and provided for a certain price in money, and was upon condition that the timber on the land be sawed into lumber and delivered by the vendee to the vendor at a stipulated price, it was unambiguous and parol evidence was incompetent to show that the provisions for manufacture and sale of the lumber were intended merely as security for the payment of the price of the land. Burton v. O'Neill Mfg. Co., 126 Ga. 806, 55 S. E. 933. A contract of sale, read in connection with certain deeds and other writings to which it referred, showed on its face that the subject of the sale was a portion of a vein of coal lying partly under a certain tract of land, described and conveyed in the deeds, and separately described and treated as coal in said deeds, as known to the parties to the deeds and contract, in point of area, existence, location, and relative position. It was held that the contract did not include other veins of coal in said tract of land which were not known to the parties, and that therefore parol evidence was not necessary to apply the contract to the subject-matter, though other veins were afterwards discovered. Armstrong v. Ross, 61 W. Va. 38, 55 S. E. 895. Iowa Code, § 4617, that where terms of a contract have been intended in different senses by different parties thereto the contract shall be construed against either party in the sense in which he had reason to believe the other understood it does not authorize the introduction of oral evidence to explain a contract which is unambiguous on its face. Inman Mfg. Co. v. American Cereal Co., 123 Iowa, 71, 110 N. W. 287. Oral evidence that seller of machinery was told by and attending the execution of the writing is admissible,<sup>74</sup> and acts of the parties tending to show the construction placed by them upon their contract may also be shown.<sup>75</sup>

Extrinsic evidence is also competent when necessary to identify or locate the subject-matter of the contract.<sup>76</sup> Where the description in a deed is uncertain or the buyer that if the machinery would do a certain amount of work it would be satisfactory held inadmissible as affecting construction of written contract that machinery was to be satisfactory to the buyer. Id. Where seller's agent lived in New York and sale was made in Illinois, and was to be performed in Iowa, and contract was construed differently under laws of first two states from construction under Iowa laws, yet oral evidence that seller understood the contract as construed in New York and Illinois was inadmissible. Id. Under above statute, where a contract provided that buggies were to be delivered in "good condition" at a time specified, oral evidence was admissible to explain meaning of "good condition," but not to show what either party understood as the time, since the contract was clear on that point. Capital City Carriage Co. v. Moody [Iowa] 110 N. W. 903. Contract for sale of land free of encumbrances and warranty deed were parts of same transaction and made a clear and unambiguous contract. Held a parol agreement that if certain assessments became payable they were to be paid by the grantee was inadmissible to prove a defense to an action on the warranty against encumbrances. Pierce v. Bronnenberg's Estate [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 739. Contract between husband and wife held to show clearly an intent to renounce marital relations; hence parol proof to contradict that intent was inadmissible. Hill v. Hill [N. H.] 67 A. 406.

74. Harris v. Faris-Kesl Const. Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 760. Negotiations properly allowed to be shown to explain meaning of word "cost" as used by parties. Raisler Heating Co. v. Dowd, 52 Misc. 656, 102 N. Y. S. 504. For the purpose of explaining an ambiguity in a deed, negotiations preceding its execution and what was then said and done may be shown. McSurlay v. Venters [Ky.] 104 S. W. 365. Even in the case of contracts within the statute of frauds, parol evidence may be given of the situation and relation of the parties and the surrounding circumstances. Howard v. Adkins 167 Ind. 184, 78 N. E. 665. Letters and plats present and referred to when a contract was made are admissible to explain ambiguous parts but not to contradict the contract. Bent v. Trimboli, 61 W. Va. 509, 56 S. E. 881. Where contract for furnishing lumber provided for construction of waterway of "heart of yellow pine," proof, negotiations, and circumstances surrounding execution of contract was admissible to explain the term quoted. San Miguel Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Stubbs [Colo.] 90 P. 842. Contract being obscure in meaning, proof of what was said and done by the parties at the time of its execution is competent to explain it. Shenandoah Land & Anthracite Coal Co. v. Clarke, 106 Va. 100, 55 S. E. 561. Where there are peculiar circumstances leading up to and surrounding the transaction in question and the execution of the contract in issue, which were known to the parties, it is proper to place these circumstances before the jury. Hale Bros. v. Milliken [Cal. App.] 90 P. 365. Evidence of preliminary negotiations held admissible to aid the court in determining whether a written instrument was intended as a contract of sale or lease of certain machinery. Lambert Hoisting Engine Co. v. Carmody, 79 Conn. 419, 65 A. 141. Where casualty insurance policy was to cover all injuries to employes of news agency while at work on trains, and was procured because of contract with railway company exempting said company from liability for injuries, evidence was admissible to show all the circumstances and knowledge of this contract by the casualty company in order to show extent of liability on the bond. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Southern R. News Co. [Ky.] 103 S. W. 297. Where written order for jewelry was obscure, the representations of the salesman could be shown to interpret it in order to show a failure of consideration for an accepted draft in action against acceptors. Johnson County Sav. Bank v. Rapp [Wash.] 91 P. 382. Where delivery of deeds by a decedent was in issue, held proper to show by justice who drew the deeds what was said and done by the parties and by him at the time. Napier v. Elliott [Ala.] 44 So. 552.

75. In an action on a note contained in an order for goods, where defendant denied on oath the making of the note, evidence of what took place between the parties when the writing was made was admissible. Acme Food Co. v. Tousey, 148 Mich. 697, 112 N. W. 484. Written lease contained covenant not to sublet for any other purpose than for "lodge use" or "lodge purposes" without the lessor's consent, and premises were sublet to lodges who used them for dancing, and lessor sought to restrain use of premises for that purpose. Held proof of custom of lodges of the city as to dancing and of contemporaneous acts and conversations of the parties, their subsequent conduct, and the situation at the time, was admissible to explain meaning of "lodge use" and "lodge purposes." O'Neill v. Ogden Aerie No. 118, F. O. E. [Utah] 89 P. 464. Where deed was executed and was broad enough to convey certain uncut grain on the land, proof that the grantee permitted the grantor to cut and stack it on the land, and that grantee then offered to buy it, was admissible to explain their conduct and to show the intention of the parties. Carter v. Childress [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 392, 99 S. W. 714.

76. Sale of "Texas red rust-proof oats" was made through a broker, and purchaser brought suit for damages resulting from delivery of oats of a different kind. Held competent for broker to testify that contract was made with the mutual understanding that the quoted term meant oats raised in Texas. Brackett Co. v. Americus Grocery Co., 127 Ga. 672, 56 S. E. 762. Where the language of a mortgage as to the description ambiguous, but is capable of being made certain, extrinsic evidence is competent for that purpose;<sup>77</sup> but if a description is so deficient as to render a deed void, parol evidence is incompetent to supply the deficiency, since oral evidence cannot be received to describe land sold and then to apply the description.<sup>78</sup>

of the debt intended to be secured is uncertain, indefinite, and general in its terms, and does not describe the same with such precision as to identify it by a comparison with the mortgage, its identity may be established by parol. Boyes v. Masters, 17 Okl. 460, 89 P. 198. Where by a written contract of settlement one party sold to another a certain number of staves, more or less, branded with certain named marks, parol evidence was held competent to show that certain staves bearing a brand not mentioned in the contract were not included therein. Little Rock Cooperage Co. v. Gunnels [Ark.] 101 S. W. 729. Contract for sale of house provided also for sale of coal and cattle feed on the premises and certain mirrors, and showed an indorsement of $100 paid for the coal and feed. Oral evidence was held competent to show whether parties considered mirrors as part of the house. Martin v. Ferguson [Ky.] 103 S. W. 257. Where written lease showed that it did not include all of a farm, but did not designate the portion leased, parol evidence was competent to identify the portion covered by the lease. Cockrell v. Egger [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 569, 99 S. W. 568. Where company transferred its property by a written contract, oral evidence was competent to show that certain articles, not expressly mentioned in the contract, were the individual property of a member of the firm and intended to be sold by the instrument. Houston Transfer Co. v. Lee [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 842. Description in mortgage as "all my crops, corn, cotton, etc., now up and growing on about 240 acres of land, all the above property is in Jackson district, county and state aforesaid," may be aided and explained by parol as between the parties. Read Phosphate Co. v. Weisenbaum Co. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 122. In applying contract to its proper subject-matter, resort may be had to circumstances attending execution. Territory of Hawaii*, 206 U. S. 206, 51 Law. Ed. 1026.

77. If a description is not void for uncertainty, oral evidence is competent to identify the land to which it was meant to apply. Walden v. Walden [Ga.] 57 S. E. 323. In suit to have deed declared a mortgage, parol proof was competent to show a mistake in the description and to show what property was intended to be included therein. Openshaw v. Rickmeyer [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 103, 102 S. W. 467. Where description in sheriff's deed was ambiguous but referred to records, which showed only one deed to judgment debtor, this deed was admissible in aid of description in sheriff's deed. Clark v. Wm. M. Rice Inst. [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 608, 103 S. W. 1110.

Where deed referred to street as a boundary and also to a map, and the map showed no street, oral proof to explain the ambiguity was competent. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Payne [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 765, 104 S. W. 1077. Where descriptions in deeds mentioned certain objects, parol evidence was competent to show what and where they were; also testimony of witness who saw the line run as to where it was. Ball v. Loughridge, 30 Ky. L. R. 1123, 100 S. W. 275. A call in a deed being for a line over "Cat Face" to a tree, evidence of the location of the monument known as "Cat Face," and of the traditional derivation of the name, was admissible to identify and locate the call. Douglas Land Co. v. Thayer Co. [Va.] 58 S. E. 1101. Where description of land in deed referred to a point on the boundary line of a tract entered by a certain person as the place of beginning, oral evidence was competent to show the location of the land. Staub v. Hampton, 117 Tenn. 706, 101 S. W. 776. A deed contained two irreconcilable descriptions intended to apply to the same land. Held oral evidence was competent to show the real intention of the parties. Hornet v. Dumbleck, 39 Ind. App. 482, 78 N. E. 691. Where the description of premises in a contract is uncertain, parol evidence is admissible to identify it. Where the subject-matter of a contract is not sufficiently identified therein, parol evidence is admissible for that purpose. Bennett v. Palmer, 128 Ill. App. 626.

78. If the description in a deed is so patently ambiguous and defective as not to pass title, oral or extrinsic evidence is inadmissible to aid it; such evidence cannot make the deed operate on land not included in the descriptive words. Gorham v. Settegast [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 432, 98 S. W. 665.

79. Where signatures to contract and names recited as parties did not tally, parol proof was competent to show who were the real parties. Schuster v. Snawder [Ky.] 101 S. W. 1194. Parol proof is competent to show that payee in promissory note is not the owner thereof, but that note was made for benefit of a firm. Rhomberg v. Avenarus [Iowa] 112 N. W. 548. Parol evidence is admissible as between several indorsers to show that they agreed to become liable otherwise than in the order in which they indorsed. Under P. L. 1902, p. 594 (§ 68 of Neg. Instr. Law). Wilson v. Hendee [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 413. It may be shown by parol that an indorsement on a note was made for a special purpose, as, for instance, as authority to collect. Goette v. Sutton [Ga.] 57 S. E. 208. Note reading "we promise to pay," and containing stamp of name of company and signature of president under it, held to be ambiguous so as to render competent extrinsic proof that it was the note of the provided their relation thereto and their obligations thereunder are not clearly shown<sup>81</sup> or fixed by implication of law.<sup>82</sup>

It is usually held that a simple receipt is only prima facie evidence of the fact recited and is subject to contradiction or explanation by parol;<sup>83</sup> but if the writing constitutes or is accompanied by a contract, the parol evidence rule applies.<sup>84</sup> The recitals of consideration in a contract, being in the nature of a receipt, are not conclusive; oral evidence is always competent to show the real consideration.<sup>85</sup> The company and not the president. Dunbar Box & Lumber Co. v. Martin, 53 Misc. 312, 103 N. Y. S. 91. Parol proof is admissible to show the circumstances in which persons other than the payee, and apparently not connected with a note, endorsed it. Kinsel v. Wieland [Colo.] 88 P. 153. Oral evidence held competent to show that property conveyed to "Odd Fellows' Building & Savings Association" was intended to be conveyed to "Odd Fellows' Building & Exchange Company of Texas." Cobb v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 12, 97 S. W. 513. In action to try title held that oral evidence was competent to show that a corporation which had appeared in a former partition suit and consented to judgment of partition was the same corporation as that under which defendant claimed. Id. In some states it is held that where it is uncertain from the face of the note whether it was intended to be the note of the corporation or of the individuals signing, or both, if the litigation arises between the original parties, evidence may be introduced to explain the ambiguity. Conflict on point noted. Western Grocer Co. v. Lackman [Kan.] 88 P. 527. Parol evidence is admissible to show the actual relations of the parties with reference to a written contract. Parol evidence is admissible to show that chattel mortgage was not intended to be effective between the parties. Van Norman v. Young, 129 Ill. App. 542.

80. Under Rev. Civ. Code S. D., § 1994, one appearing by terms of note to be a joint maker may be shown by parol to be a surety only, in the absence of any showing that same person has relied, to his injury, on such other's apparent character as principal. Windhorst v. Bergendahl [S. D.] 111 N. W. 544.

81. If contract is unambiguous as to who are contracting parties, extraneous evidence is inadmissible to vary or contradict it. Schuster v. Snawder [Ky.] 101 S. W. 1194. A person whose name does not appear upon a promissory note cannot be charged as endorser thereof by parol proof that the nominal payee in accepting and indorsing it was acting as his authorized agent where nothing upon the face of the note suggests the existence of any agency. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Martindale [Kan.] 88 P. 559.

82. See cases supra, holding that parol evidence rule applies to terms of a contract implied by law.

83. Schlessinger v. Schlessinger [Colo.] 88 P. 970; Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Sherman, 123 Ill. App. 202; Wegmann v. Rothwell, 121 Mo. App. 413, 99 S. W. 59. Receipts in full may be explained to show for what they were given. Brown v. Crown Gold Milling Co., 150 Cal. 376, 89 P. 86. Receipt for freight is not conclusive but is only prima facie evidence of what was received from the carrier. Mussellam v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 104 S. W. 337. Writing "Received of C. fifty dollars option money in part payment on $1,000 for L's interest in an option (description) taken by C." held a mere receipt which did not exclude oral proof that a sale of the option by L. was not intended. Lazier v. Cady [Wash.] 87 P. 344. Negotiations for settlement of a dispute resulted in the giving of a receipt. Held that recitals thereof were not conclusive, but that real facts of settlement could be shown. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Tinsley, 30 Ky. L. R. 1095, 100 S. W. 272.

84. Where a release was intended by the parties to express their final agreement, being more than a mere receipt, parol evidence to vary its legal effect was held incompetent. Allen v. Ruiland, 79 Conn. 405, 65 A. 138. Bills of lading, except as to recitals of the receipt of goods by the carrier and their condition when received, are contracts and come within the rule excluding parol evidence to vary or contradict the terms thereof. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Griffith [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 520, 103 S. W. 225.

85. Kinthead v. Peet [Iowa] 111 N. W. 48; Crafton v. Inge, 30 Ky. L. R. 313, 98 S. W. 325; Scanlon v. Northwood, 147 Mich. 139, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1013, 110 N. W. 493; *Dilcher v. Where defendant agreed to build on a lot or to repay to plaintiff his profits if he resold and did not build, and this agreement was an inducement to and part of the consideration for the deed, proof of it, resting in parol, was not objectionable as contradicting the deed. Bourne v. Sherrill, 143 N. C. 381, 55 S. E. 799. Though lease expressed a money consideration, parol evidence was held admissible to show that the employment of a certain party as physician was a part of the consideration. Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Rogers [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 346, 104 S. W. 193. A recital in a note that it is given in part payment of a hearse is not a part of the contract and may be varied by parol as against a purchaser after maturity. Kampman v. McCormick [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 588, 99 S. W. 1147. Written contract gave defendant exclusive agency for sale of certain goods; parol evidence was competent to show an agreement by plaintiff to use due efforts to sell goods and to employ its organization and other means for that purpose. Taylor v. Elmira Storage & Supply Co., 54 Misc. 363, 104 N. Y. S. 557. Recital of consideration and payment fact that there was or was not a consideration or that it has failed may also be shown by parol,<sup>88</sup> but where a recital on consideration is contractual in its nature, constituting a substantive part of the agreement of the parties, it cannot be varied by parol,<sup>87</sup> nor can a recital of consideration be contradicted in any case for the purpose of impairing the validity or operative effect of the instrument.<sup>88</sup>

Fraud in the inception of the contract,<sup>89</sup> or which induced its execution, may be shown by parol, though the contract is in writing, and where it is claimed that through fraud or mutual mistake the contract as written is not the one actually made, parol evidence is admissible to show the true contract.<sup>90</sup> Parol evidence is admissible thereof in deed is only prima facie evidence. Morton v. Morton [Ark.] 102 S. W. 213. Real consideration for deed may be shown by parol. Dean v. Carpenter [Iowa] 111 N. W. 815; Blackwell v. Blackwell [Mass.] 81 N. E. 910; Faust v. Faust, 144 N. C. 383, 57 S. E. 22. Oral evidence held competent to show value of land which was consideration for deed in action for damages for breach of covenants of deed. Mayer v. Wooten [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 431, 102 S. W. 423. Recital of consideration in a deed is not conclusive; the subject is open to modification or explanation by parol as to time, place, amount, and other considerations. Allen v. Rees [Iowa] 110 N. W. 583. The recital of a certain consideration in a deed of conveyance is not conclusive; extrinsic evidence is admissible to show a consideration greater or less, or different from the one recited, so long as the existence of some consideration to support the conveyance is not denied. Jost v. Wolf, 130 Wis. 37, 110 N. W. 232. Where deed conveyed both land and personality, and recited a stated money consideration, parol evidence was admissible to show how much applied on the land and how much on the personality. Goette v. Sutton [Ga.] 57 S. E. 308.

86. Way v. Greer [Mass.] 81 N. E. 1002. Failure of consideration may be shown by parol in any case. Lefkovits v. First Nat. Bank [Ala.] 44 So. 613. In an action on a written instrument made payable at the death of the obligor, heirs may show by parol that no consideration passed and that there was a failure of consideration as to an agreement contained therein. Sere v. Darby, 118 La. 619, 43 So. 255.

87. Where a consideration expressed in a contract is something more than a mere acknowledgment of receipt and is of a contractual nature and is made of the essence of the contract, then parol evidence is inadmissible to change the terms thereof. Lefkovits v. First Nat. Bank [Ala.] 44 So. 613. Provision as to payment in contract for sale of a business held contractual in character and hence could not be contradicted by parol. Farquhar v. Farquhar [Mass.] 80 N. E. 654. The consideration in a deed (to take effect after the grantor's death) was one dollar and that grantee should look after the grantor's welfare and his business when so required. Held this was contractual and could not be varied by parol. Rogers v. Rogers [Miss.] 43 So. 434. Chattel mortgage for payment of $4,500 reciting that that sum was the amount of the debt held conclusive as to such recital. Sturmdorf v. Saunders, 117 App. Div. 762, 102 N. Y. S. 1042.

88. Where a warranty deed fully recites the consideration, it cannot be contradicted by parol for the purpose of avoiding the deed. Redmond v. Cass, 226 Ill. 120, 80 N. E. 708. In the absence of fraud, a want of consideration cannot be shown as against a recital of consideration for the purpose of defeating the operative words of a deed. Strong v. Whybark, 204 Mo. 341, 102 S. W. 968. Where deed reciting love and affection as consideration (from father to daughter) was attacked by one holding a contract for a valuable consideration. Lawson v. Mullinix, 104 Md. 156, 64 A. 938. The consideration of a contract may always be inquired into in order to show that the promise is no longer binding according to its tenor, but in inquiring into the consideration the promisor cannot deny that he made the promise evidenced by the writing. Byrd & Co. v. Marietta Fertilizer Co., 127 Ga. 30, 56 S. E. 86.

89. McCusker v. Geiger [Mass.] 80 N. E. 648. The defense of fraud and want of consideration may be shown by parol, not to contradict or vary, but to destroy the legal and binding effect of a written contract. Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Otis [Neb.] 110 N. W. 550. Where an indorser of a note waived demand in writing, parol evidence was competent to show fraud or duress and to show surrounding facts and circumstances. Toole v. Crofts [Mass.] 82 N. E. 22. Fraud inducing execution and acceptance of lease of premises for a particular purpose may be shown. Hinsdale v. McCune [Iowa] 113 N. W. 478.

90. Parol proof of fraud, accident, or mistake is competent to vary the terms of a written agreement. Dillard v. Jones [Ill.] 82 N. E. 206. Where it is alleged that receipts showing settlement in full were obtained by fraud and that the party defrauded was in fact entitled to mere parol evidence was admissible to show the fraud and the true facts. Sawyer v. Walker, 204 Mo. 133, 102 S. W. 544. The parol evidence rule does not exclude proof that the answers in the application of the insured were not written by him and that he did not know the contents of the application when he signed it. Modern Woodmen of America v. Angle [Mo. App.] 104 S. W. 297. Where assignments to defendant by a deceased person to whom he stood in a confidential relation were alleged to have been procured by undue influence, parol evidence on his part was competent to show that the assignments were consistent with her previous acts and purposes as to defendant. Taylor v. Vall [Vt.] 66 A. 820. A court of equity may consider parol evidence in determining whether through fraud, mis-

to show that delivery of a contract was conditional,<sup>91</sup> and that by reason of the non-performance of a condition precedent the contract never became operative,<sup>92</sup> or to show that delivery was not intended,<sup>93</sup> or that an instrument was not valid when delivered,<sup>94</sup> or that it has been altered since delivery,<sup>95</sup> or to show which of two writings embodies the actual agreement of the parties.<sup>96</sup> It may always be shown by parol that a written contract was made in furtherance of an illegal purpose or object.<sup>97</sup>

take, or inadvertence the writing falls to express the true agreement of the parties, and may enforce the true agreement so proved. Cook v. Sterling Elec. Co. [C. C. A.] 150 F. 766. In a suit to cancel a policy of insurance, where it appeared that applicant thought he was getting a fifteen payment policy, and his policy was in fact a different kind, evidence of what took place between the applicant and the agent at the time was admissible. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 335, 99 S. W. 580. A vendor included in a second conveyance a part of land already sold, and an action was brought to recover part of consideration for first conveyance. Held vendee may show that such portion was included in second conveyance by mistake, and that no consideration was paid therefor. McLendon Bros. v. Finch [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 690. Fraud which induced written contract may be shown by parol, though the contract is in writing. American Educational Co. v. Taggart, 124 Ill. App. 567. Party signing contract in blank may show as against those who filled it that the agreement was other than expressed by the terms thereof. Martin v. Trainer, 125 Ill. App. 474. If pleaded. Trainer v. Schutz, 93 Minn. 213, 107 N. W. 812.

91. Van Norman v. Young, 228 Ill. 425, 81 N. E. 1060. Though a note has been delivered, oral evidence is competent to show a previous agreement that the note was not to become effective until certain other persons had signed. Hodge v. Smith, 130 Wis. 326, 110 N. W. 192.

92. Hinsdale v. McCune [Iowa] 113 N. W. 478; Way v. Greer [Mass.] 81 N. E. 1002. In action on a draft, evidence of an agreement that the draft should be accepted only upon delivery of an attached bill of lading was held admissible to show condition precedent. National Park Bank v. Saitta, 55 Misc. 93, 106 N. Y. S. 328. In action on a written contract for the installation of a system of cash and package carriers in a store, oral evidence was held admissible to show that the contract was not to be delivered or take effect until certain arrangements in the store had been completed. Barr Cash & Package Carrier Co. v. Brooks-Ozan Mercantile Co. [Ark.] 101 S. W. 408. Oral evidence tending to establish an independent collateral agreement as a condition precedent to a contract becoming operative is not evidence tending to vary or impeach the written contract. Manhattan Guide Co. v. Gluck, 52 Misc. 652, 101 N. Y. S. 528.

93. Parol evidence is competent to show intent in turning over policy of insurance to assured, whether or not delivery was intended. Waters v. Security Life & Annuity Co., 144 N. C. 663, 57 S. E. 437. Possession of deed by grantee is prima facie evidence of delivery, but parol evidence is competent to show no delivery was in fact intended. Drinkwater v. Hollar [Cal. App.] 91 P. 664. Where husband took title to land in his wife's name and thereafter had the title transferred to him but never filed the deed, which was found in his safety deposit box after his death. Held oral and circumstantial evidence was competent to show that actual transfer of title to the husband from the wife was not intended. Hamlin v. Hamlin, 117 App. Div. 493, 102 N. Y. S. 571.

94. In ejectment action plaintiff may show by parol that his deed to defendant's grantor did not have a seal when delivered, that the seal was afterwards added and the record changed, since in Virginia a deed without a seal is void. Burnette v. Young [Va.] 57 S. E. 641.

95. Price v. Stanbra [Wash.] 88 P. 115.

96. Where supposed duplicate copies of one agreement differ as to some particulars, parol evidence is competent to show which of the two embodies the real agreement of the parties. Bowman v. Poppenberg, 53 Misc. 373, 103 N. Y. S. 245.

97. Twentieth Century Co. v. Quilling, 130 Wis. 318, 110 N. W. 174. Where an agreement is contrary to public policy, the parties cannot by reducing unobjectionable portions of it to writing (promissory note) preclude the introduction of oral evidence to show the entire agreement. Id.

98. Where an option contract and an oral agreement to pay a commission for sale of land were separate and distinct, proof of the latter did not vary or contradict the former and was competent. Green v. Booth [Miss.] 44 So. 784. Where an independent parol agreement has been made as the inducement to the making of a written contract, the former may be proved and enforced though not referred to in the latter. Agreement to move plaintiff's family as inducement to contract of employment. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 567, 104 S. W. 1074. An oral promise by one of the parties made at the time and used to procure the execution of the written contract may be proved though its effect is to change the written contract. Oral agreement by railroad president at time of execution of grant of right of way to build a crossing connecting parts of grantor's lands was provable, though not mentioned also to show a subsequent modification of a written contract resting in parol.<sup>99</sup> Parol evidence is admissible to show that a deed absolute on its face is in fact a mortgage.<sup>1</sup> The parol evidence rule does not exclude oral proof of collateral facts having no tendency to contradict or vary the terms of the writing.<sup>2</sup>

The parol evidence rule applies only as between parties to the written contract, and not as between third persons or a party and a third person,<sup>3</sup> and has no application to the contents of letters and other writings which do not bring the writer into contractual relations with the recipient.<sup>4</sup> Where entries made in a book of original entry are admissible as part of the res gestae, evidence explaining the meaning of such entries is competent.<sup>5</sup> in the deed. Perklomen R. Co. v. Bromer, 217 Pa. 263, 66 A. 359. In action for breach of lease, parol proof was held competent to show a collateral agreement made prior to and in consideration of the lease whereby defendant agreed to give plaintiff possession of the premises on a certain date and to have them in a tenable condition by that date. Schweig v. Manhattan Leasing Co., 54 Misc. 233, 104 N. Y. S. 371. Land was conveyed for an expressed money consideration and deed recorded. While grantor was in possession land was attached in action against grantee, who had reconveyed. Held a parol agreement that grantee was to build and live on the land, and that he failed to do so and had reconveyed in accordance with the terms of the agreement, could be shown. Paris Grocer Co. v. Burks [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 892, 99 S. W. 1135. The presumption that a sale of land is by the acre and not in gross, where the quantity is referred to in the contract, may be met and overcome by evidence that the parties intended to be governed by the estimated quantity, and this evidence does not tend to vary or contradict the deed, but establishes a collateral contract. Emerson v. Stratton [Va.] 58 S. E. 577.

99. Roquemore v. Vulcan Iron Works Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 557. Consent to the alteration of a written instrument may be shown by parol. State v. Baird [Idaho] 89 P. 238. While a written contract cannot be contradicted by parol, evidence of any character is competent to show that a new contract, resting mainly in parol, has been substituted for the former written one. Jost v. Wolf, 130 Wis. 37, 110 N. W. 232. Evidence to show a subsequent abandonment of a written contract and the substitution of an oral contract therefor is competent. Fleming Bros. v. Linder [Iowa] 109 N. W. 771. In action by payee of note against one who indorsed in blank before delivery for the purpose of giving credit to the maker, note being payable one day after date, proof of the circumstances and conduct of the parties is admissible to show that presentment for payment was waived. Baumeister v. Kuntz [Fla.] 42 So. 886.

1. Smith v. Hope [Fla.] 41 So. 69. Parol evidence is competent to show that a deed absolute on its face was in fact a mortgage given to secure a loan, and the entire transaction may be shown. Krebs v. Lauser, 133 Iowa, 241, 110 N. W. 443. Where a deed is shown by parol to have been given as security, in an action for judgment and to establish a lien, parol evidence is also competent to show that the deed was given to secure a debt to the amount stated as to the consideration, and also to secure future advances. Hester v. Gairdner [Ga.] 58 S. E. 165.

2. City ordinance prohibiting use of scales until inspected by city inspector held to be part of contract of sale of scales, with warranty that they were correct. Held introduction of ordinance did not vary or contradict the contract, since it was a part of it. Wright v. Computing Scale Co. [Wash.] 91 P. 571. Where a note is not produced but appears to be lost or mislaid, and its contents are proved orally, it will be presumed that the note contained the terms shown to be a part of the entire oral agreement, and proof will not be excluded on the theory that it contradicts the writing. Abney v. Marshall, 124 Mo. App. 483, 101 S. W. 694.

3. Does not apply to conversations between one of the parties and a third person. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Rilling, 121 Ill. App. 169. The parol evidence rule does not apply in an action between parties, only one of whom is a party to the written contract. Glidden v. Newport [N. H.] 66 A. 117. The rule that parol evidence is inadmissible to contradict or vary the terms of a written contract is inapplicable in a case in which the agreement assailed is between strangers to the parties to the suit, since the former cannot by their ignorance, carelessness, or fraud estop the litigants from proving the truth. George S. Good & Co. v. Central Coal & Coke Co. [Ind. T.] 104 S. W. 613. Where deed from husband to wife is sought to be set aside as a fraud on creditors, the true consideration may be shown by parol to be different from that recited, love and affection and $1. Aultman Engine & Thresher Co. v. Greenlee [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1007. The parol evidence rule applies only to the parties to the contract or their privies; as against a stranger to the contract the parties thereto may assert that it was other or different, in any respect and to any extent, than that which the writing imports. 6. See 7 C. L. 1547; see, also, supra, § 4, Best and Secondary Evidence.

7. The official record of the contents of an ordinance cannot be varied by parol evidence. Fogg v. Ocean City Sewer Co. [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 609. Where the record of a divorce case showed that the court's findings were made from evidence adduced and not from a stipulation, evidence of a party, in a suit to modify the decree, that she did not understand the stipulation was inadmissible. Chappell v. Chappell [Wash.] 89 P. 166. A court record of a trial, though meager, must be taken as true, and cannot be enlarged or charged by parol, but only by amendment by the court or magistrate of whose action it purports to be a record. Warburton v. Gourse, 193 Mass. 203, 79 N. E. 270.

8. While records of city common council cannot be contradicted by parol, facts omitted therefrom may be shown, and it may be shown that bills allowed by the council left out certain facts and that council knew the facts omitted. Wheat v. Van Tine [Mich.] 112 N. W. 933. While record in condemnation proceeding cannot be contradicted, yet other evidence, consistent with the record, including parol proof, is competent with respect to matters on which the record is silent to show what was considered, involved, and adjudicated. Stone v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 90 P. 251. County order not a contract. Worth County v. Sykes [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 380. Apparent omissions in public records may be supplied by parol evidence. Where a comparison of the records of two suits does not disclose their identity, parol evidence is admissible for that purpose. Wiehe v. Atkins, 126 Ill. App. 1.

9. Where a mistake was made in an eminent domain proceeding so that the judgment and award were erroneous as to one party, and to allow it to stand would amount to legal fraud on the part of another, oral evidence was admissible to show the true facts so that the correction could be made. Getzendaner v. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 511, 102 S. W. 161.

and in such disputes general reputation or tradition as to the location of boundaries may be proved.<sup>23</sup>

Admissions or statements made in the course of a telephone conversation are not objectionable as hearsay if the person talking is clearly identified,<sup>24</sup> and it is now held that where a person places himself in connection with a telephone system through an instrument in his office he thereby invites communication in relation to his business through that channel,<sup>25</sup> and that a conversation with one apparently connected with and authorized to speak for such person or business concern may be proved, though the persons talking are unknown to each other.<sup>26</sup>

Matters of pedigree.<sup>27</sup>—In matters of family history or pedigree general repute in the family may be testified to by a member of the family,<sup>28</sup> and admissions and declarations in respect to such matters are competent<sup>29</sup> and shown to have been made by a member of the family<sup>30</sup> or a person closely related or intimately acquainted with the family<sup>31</sup> ante litem motam,<sup>32</sup> when it is further shown that the declarant is dead<sup>33</sup> or that his or her testimony is inaccessible.<sup>34</sup> Such declarations by mem-

26. Cashier of bank telephoned to commission company and asked for a certain person and was told he was not in. Later the bank was called and told the person wanted at the commission company's office was there and the cashier then talked to him. The cashier did not know the other person's voice. Held the telephone conversation was competent evidence. Godair v. Ham Nat. Bk., 225 Ill. 572, 80 N. E. 407. In action by hospital for services rendered for employes of defendant corporation, the defendant denying employment of the hospital, a witness for plaintiff was properly allowed to testify that he had had a telephone call purporting to come from defendant to send the ambulance for two injured men, and that the person speaking had said the corporation would stand the expense. General Hospital Soc. v. New Haven Rendering Co., 79 Conn. 581, 65 A. 1065. In an action to recover a bill for advertising, the issue was whether defendant corporation authorized the advertisements. Held that proof that a person had called up one of the plaintiff's staff on the telephone, had said he was the president of the defendant, and spoke of the advertisements "we are putting in," was admissible though the persons speaking were not known to each other. *Kansas City Star Pub. 30. Declarations by a deceased member, or declarations by persons shown by other evidence to be members of the family, may be proved. Scheidegger v. Terrell [Ala.] 43 So. 26. Witness stated that her information concerning a certain person was derived from her mother, then dead, who was a sister of the person. Held proper to allow witness to state certain facts concerning such person's pedigree and relationship, and the date of his death. Kirby v. Hayden [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 746. To prove matters of pedigree, declarations of a person related by blood or marriage to the person whose pedigree is in question, and since deceased, are competent, but the rule does not admit declarations of a stranger based only on information and belief. Bernards Tp. v. Bedminster Tp. [N. J. Law] 64 A. 960. Statements of members of a family respecting relationships, births, marriages, and deaths, made ante litem motam, are competent when pertinent to the issue, the reason for the rule being that this is frequently the only kind of evidence available to prove such facts. Taylor v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. of Minnesota, 101 Minn. 72, 111 N. W. 919. On issue of falsity of statement of date of birth in application for insurance, another application previously made to another company containing a statement of the date was held competent. 14.

bers of the family must be made either upon what such members know to be the general repute in the family or on what they have heard other members of the family say.<sup>35</sup> A declaration which merely expresses information collected from persons not qualified to be declarants, or from other sources than family tradition, or the statements of other members who knew the facts, is inadmissible.<sup>36</sup> Where a declaration of a member of the family is sought to be proved, the declaration itself and not the declaration of the witness from it should be proved.<sup>37</sup>

It has been held that the exception to the hearsay rule, in the case of matters of pedigree, is not applicable to prove illegitimacy,<sup>38</sup> but the weight of modern authority seems to be to the contrary.<sup>39</sup> Thus, declarations of the deceased mother and of members of her family are generally held competent to establish the illegitimacy of her child,<sup>40</sup> in cases where the child was born before marriage of the mother or in cases where she had never been married.<sup>41</sup> Some courts admit also declarations of the putative father and members of his family,<sup>42</sup> though on this point there is some conflict.<sup>43</sup>

A living person may testify to his age or date of his birth though his information is derived from his parents or others having knowledge of the facts.<sup>44</sup> The source of money used by a member of the family cannot be proved by hearsay under the exception as to matters of pedigree.<sup>45</sup>

Market reports<sup>46</sup> in journals such as the commercial world rely upon are competent evidence of the state of the market.<sup>47</sup> of controversy, and growing naturally therefrom, are admissible as a part thereof.<sup>52</sup>

52. The admissibility of declarations as a part of the res gestae rests largely in the discretion of the court. Clark v. Van Vleck [Iowa] 112 N. W. 648. To be admissible as a part of the res gestae declarations must be natural and spontaneous and so closely connected with the transaction as to form a part of it. Id. Entries in above made at time of transaction and in presence of adverse party are admissible as part of the res gestae. Statement of motorman when given signal of danger is admissible as part of the res gestae. Wiggins v. Wilson, 123 Ill. App. 663; Chicago City R. Co. v. McDonough, 125 Ill. App. 223. All that is said and done by conductor in ejecting a passenger from his car is admissible as part of the res gestae. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. McClevey, 126 Ill. App. 21. Conversations between plaintiff and conductor in action for unlawful ejection of passenger are admissible as part of the res gestae where they tend to show whether or not plaintiff in good faith believed he was a passenger. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Brethauer, 125 Ill. App. 204. Statements made in the course of a transaction, or so soon thereafter as to form a legitimate part of it, are admissible in favor of the party making them in so far as they tend to explain it, or the relation of the parties to it. Robinson v. Stahl [N. H.] 67 A. 577. To be competent as a part of the res gestae, declarations must be substantially contemporaneous with the litigated transaction, and must be the instinctive, spontaneous utterances of the mind, under the active, immediate influence of the transaction, the circumstances precluding the idea or reflection or design. State v. Way [S. C.] 56 S. E. 653. Declarations are admissible as a part of the res gestae only when they are coincident with the main fact under consideration and are so connected with it as to illustrate its character. Hayes v. Jersey City, etc., R. Co., 73 N. J. Law, 639, 64 A. 119. Declarations of a superintendent and agent of a lumber company, while engaged in directing the construction of a trestle, in the direction of, and a mile from certain timber, claiming the timber, as stating that they were going across to get it, held competent to show a claim by the company, but not to show title, it appearing that some of the timber was already cut. Gray Lumber Co. v. Harris, 127 Ga. 693, 56 S. E. 252. In action for malicious prosecution in taking out a warrant and causing plaintiff's arrest, declarations of defendant's manager, before the justice, at the time the warrant was procured, explaining and characterizing his act, were held admissible. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co., 143 N. C. 419, 55 S. E. 815. To prove intention, knowledge, or other mental state, the statements of the person in question are admissible. Weiss v. Haight & Freese Co., 148 F. 399. Where pedestrian was killed by a train, his statements just after being run over that it was his own fault, that he saw the switch engine and thought he could get across, but did not see a flat car, were competent against his administrator. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Clarkson [C. C. A.] 147 F. 397. In action for injuries caused by defective pinch bar, statements made by parties present at the time as to the defective condition of the pinch bar were held admissible. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Schuler [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 478, 102 S. W. 783. Action for damage to bridge by vessel, alleged to have been caused by captain ordering boat ahead at a particular time. Held, what the captain said at the time and immediately after giving the order was competent as a part of the res gestae. Multnomah County v. Willamette Towing Co. [Or.] 89 P. 389. In action for timber alleged to have been cut in excess of that provided for by contract, evidence of a statement by the foreman in charge of cutting the timber while the work was being done, that certain trees ought not to have been cut, as they belonged to plaintiff, and he would have to pay for them, was held competent as a part of the res gestae. Gray Tie Co. v. Clark, 30 Ky. L. R. 409, 98 S. W. 1000. Liability for expenditures in caring for a pauper being in issue, declarations of the pauper while he was arranging for the removal of his family from one town to another, and while making arrangements for the board of his family in the latter town, were held admissible as a part of the res gestae. Town of Jericho v. Huntington, 79 Vt. 329, 65 A. 87. Shortly before collision of schooner and barge, being towed by same tug, captain of schooner called to master of barge to stop sheering, and master replied that the tug was going "all the way around the river." The statement was held competent as a part of the res gestae. The Theodore Roosevelt, 154 F. 155. In action for injuries received in collision between street car and train, held proper to prove what conductor of street car said to passengers about going ahead to look out for the crossing, his remarks being made just before the crossing was reached, as he started forward, a few seconds before the collision occurred. Northern Texas Trac. Co. v. Caldwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 88, 99 S. W. 869. Where a certain agent of defendant was charged with the duty of inspecting a trestle and reporting defects, a conversation with him in regard to the trestle, showing notice to him of defects, and his acts and statements with reference to reported defects, were held competent as a part of the res gestae, in an action based on the subsequent fall of the trestle. Bundy v. Sierra Lumber Co., 149 Cal. 772, 87 P. 622.

Held incompetent as res gestae: In action for death caused by explosion of dynamite used to break up iron machinery, proof that one of the defendants told witness the morning of the day of the accident that he would be in another city was not competent as a part of the res gestae. Falender v. Blackwell, 39 Ind. App. 121, 79 N. E. 393. In action by widow for death of husband, declarations or admissions of the deceased on the morning before the afternoon when he was killed as to his physical condition were held inadmissible, not being a part of the res gestae, and the action being by the widow under Rev. St. 1892, §§ 2342, 2343. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 Sp. 516. Street car superintendent put a motorman on a car at 10:30 a. m., and at 4:30 he caused a collision in which plaintiff was injured. After the collision the cars were run to another point four miles away, where the employees were talking about the accident, when the superintendent came and said he ought to have known better than put the motorman on a car. Held, his statement was inadmissible. Ft. Wayne & Wabash Valley Trac. Co. v. Crosbie [Ind.] 81 N. E. 474. Vessel was injured by collision with drawbridge by reason of bridge tenders failure to open bridge in time. Evidence that tender visited vessel next morning and asked if a certain sum would be accepted and the matter dropped was not admissible as a part of the res gestae. Southern R. Co. v. Reeder [Ala.] 44 So. 639.

It is not essential that a statement or admission should be exactly coincident with the act if it arises naturally therefrom and tends to characterize or explain it.<sup>53</sup> But statements subsequent to the transaction in issue which do not form a part thereof, but are in effect only narrative of past events, are incompetent.<sup>54</sup>

53. The real test is not whether the declarations are in point of fact contemporaneous, but whether the circumstances exclude premeditation and design. Christopher v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077. Declaration of injured person as to how accident occurred, made just after recovering consciousness, held admissible. Id. In action for assault, statement of plaintiff before she regained her feet that defendant pushed her, held admissible. Robinson v. Stahl [N. H.] 67 A. 577. Where boy was killed by suffocation in a bin of oats, declarations of foreman that he had sent boy to the bin to do a certain act, made to boy's father five minutes after he disappeared, and shortly afterwards to the boy's mother and brother, all made before they supposed the boy was dead, were admissible as part of the res gestae. Meier v. Way, Johnson, Lee & Co. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 420. Statement of man mortally injured, a few minutes after his injury was received, and a few feet from where it occurred, as to how it happened, held competent, the declarant having died a few hours after. Kansas City So. R. Co. v. Morris, 80 Ark. 528, 98 S. W. 363. Where infant child was injured on a train, statements of its mother thirty or sixty seconds after the injury were competent as res gestae. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Crosby [Fla.] 43 So. 318. In action for injuries to passenger, proof of his statements to persons who came to his assistance not more than five minutes after the accident, while he lay where he had fallen in answer to general questions as to how he came there, were competent. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hugen [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 752, 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 65, 100 S. W. 1000. Plaintiff tried to catch a moving train, but caught hand rail only, and fell after being carried 800 feet. Flagman ran back to him as soon as train stopped. Held, evidence that flagman told plaintiff as soon as he reached him that he would have stopped the train before, but that the signal cord was out of order, was admissible. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cotter [Ky.] 103 S. W. 279. Witness reached passenger who had fallen in about three or four minutes, and conductor came two minutes later. Proof that conductor said passenger had fallen, and that passenger denied it and said conductor pushed him off, was held properly admitted, or at least its admission was not reversible error. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Haislup, 39 Ind. App. 394, 79 N. E. 1035. Plaintiff was injured in a runaway caused by her horse being frightened by the whistle of a locomotive. Immediately on recovering consciousness she said no signal was given until the train had reached the crossing, when a loud whistle was sounded, which frightened the horse. This statement was held admissible as a part of the res gestae. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Calvin [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 890, 103 S. W. 428. Statement of injured person five or six minutes after receiving injury in car collision, while lying next the steps of the car, held admissible as res gestae. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Coats [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 645, 103 S. W. 662. Statements of railroad engineer as to cause of a wreck made less than five minutes after the accident, while he was lying near the wreck, to the first person who came to him, held admissible. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Houchins [Ky.] 101 S. W. 924. Where employee was killed by train as alleged result of defective condition of engine, evidence of a declaration by the engineer in charge of the engine, made when the body was discovered by him, that there was something the matter with the air, and that it had bothered him all the way from a certain place, was admissible. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Edmondson [Neb.] 110 N. W. 650. Passenger was injured by being thrown from a car which she was attempting to board, and after re-entering the car the conductor asked her if she was hurt and she said she was. Held her statement was competent. Nixon v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. R. Co. [Neb.] 113 N. W. 117.

54. Upon issue as to whether plaintiff boarded car as passenger or to assist his companion in getting started, statement of companion made after car had gone a block is not part of the res gestae, plaintiff not being present at the time it was made. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Lowenrosen, 125 Ill. App. 194. Statements by superior of school as to why plaintiff was not allowed to attend made long after her dismissal is inadmissible in an action for damages against person whose slanderous statements caused the dismissal. Legriss v. Marcotte, 129 Ill. App. 67. Statement made after accident by motoneer as to the condition of appliances in his car are no part of the res gestae. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Daly, 129 Ill. App. 519. Declarations of employees of defendant subsequent to the time of an accident held incompetent in action for injuries. Weinstein v. Interurban St. R. Co., 52 Misc. 468, 102 N. Y. S. 512. In action for injuries to boy struck by automobile, a conversation between the father of the boy and the automobilist, after an accident, relating to the manner of the accident, was held merely narrative of a past event, and inadmissible. Clark v. Van Vleck [Iowa] 112 N. W. 648. In action for injuries at railroad

Complaints or natural expressions of present existing pain or suffering, or other natural expressions of an existing bodily or mental condition, may be shown under the res gestae rule.<sup>55</sup> Statements by an injured person to an attending physician, merely descriptive of the patient's present physical condition, are competent<sup>56</sup> provided they can be fairly considered a part of the res gestae,<sup>57</sup> and where the circumstances are such as to exclude the idea of providing evidence to support a claim for damages.<sup>58</sup>

Declarations accompanying and characterizing the possession of property are competent,<sup>59</sup> but declarations relating to title and not to possession are incompetent,<sup>60</sup> and declarations of a grantor, made after he has parted with his title, are inadmissible to impeach the title of anyone claiming under him.<sup>61</sup> crossing, evidence of statements of engineer some minutes after accident held inadmissible. Davis v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 172, 97 S. W. 1122. Statements of engineer a half hour after running over and killing a person, several miles from the place of the injury, held inadmissible. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Munn [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 102 S. W. 442. On the issue whether a man struck by train had been seen by the engineer, a statement of the engineer after he had arrived at the next station that he had knocked a man off the track was incompetent as a part of the res gestae. Frye v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 200 Mo. 377, 98 S. W. 566. In action for injuries to an employe while assisting others to put a car on the track, statements by the fireman, after the accident, he not having seen it, were merely hearsay. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Erisco [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 171, 100 S. W. 989.

55. Armour & Co. v. Skene [C. C. A.] 153 F. 241; Patton v. Sanborn, 133 Iowa, 650, 110 N. W. 1032; Sheldon v. Wright [Vt.] 67 A. 807. Usual and natural expressions of present pain or suffering may be shown, and the fact that they were made some time after an accident in issue may go to the weight, but not to the competency, of the evidence. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Boyer [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 1070. The admissibility of declarations of an injured person depends upon the circumstances of each case, and is largely within the discretion of the trial court; the exact length of time is not mathematically controlling. Christopherson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077. Evidence of groans is part of the res gestae. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Johnson, 128 Ill. App. 20.

56. Gilmore v. American Tube & Stamping Co., 79 Conn. 498, 66 A. 4. Declaration of injured person as to how accident occurred, just after recovering consciousness, held competent though in response to question by physician, the question not being leading or suggestive. Christopherson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077. Subjective symptoms if evidenced at examination of patient, made solely for the purposes of treatment, are admissible as part of the res gestae. Chicago City R. Co. v. Mauger, 128 Ill. App. 512.

57. City of Chicago v. McNally, 227 Ill. 14, 81 N. E. 23. In personal injury action, held proper to allow physician who attended plaintiff to testify that he asked her what hurt most and that she indicated her back and side, the accident having occurred in the afternoon, and the statement being made that night. Dublin Gas & Elec. Co. v. Frazier [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 714, 103 S. W. 197. Declaration of plaintiff, made to physician, that he felt no pain when a needle was stuck into his finger held inadmissible. Goodwyn v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 688.

58. As where examination is prior to action and without reference to bringing it. City of Chicago v. McNally, 227 Ill. 14, 81 N. E. 23. Statements during examination made at the instance of a defendant, with a view to the trial, would be competent. Id. The test of the admissibility of declarations of an injured person, after his injury is received, is whether they relate to the principal transaction and are explanatory of it, and are made under such circumstances of excitement, still continuing, as to show that they are spontaneous and not the result of deliberation or design. Christopherson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077. Statements of an injured person to a physician with a view to bringing suit are inadmissible. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Giese, 229 Ill. 260, 82 N. E. 232. Held proper to exclude evidence of what plaintiff complained of to physician when he called on her. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Moore [Ala.] 43 So. 841.

59. Declarations of person in possession that she held under a certain will. Steadman v. Steadman, 143 N. C. 345, 55 S. E. 784. Statements of one in possession of land, explanatory of such possession, are admissible even though self-serving in their tendency. Brewer v. Cochran [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 796, 99 S. W. 1033. Where ownership of stock was shown by circumstantial evidence, proof of statements as to ownership of it by an interested party was held admissible. San Antonio Brew. Ass'n v. Magoffin [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 682, 99 S. W. 187. On issue whether wife was named as grantee in deed simply to secure an advance made by her to her husband to apply on the purchase price, in controversy between heirs of the two grantees, declarations of the husband while in possession of the land, contained in letters, were held admissible. Hubbard v. Cheney [Kan.] 91 P. 793. In boundary dispute, declarations as to the boundary of a remote grantor at the time of the conveyance were competent. Bollinger v. McMinn [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 104 S. W. 1079. In action for price of land, statements of grantors as to true boundary line held admissible in favor of their vendees. Gurley v. Starr [Ky.] 99 S. W. 972.

60. Declarations not relating to declar-

ant's possession, but to his legal title, are inadmissible, since legal title cannot be proved or defeated by parol. Munsey v. Hanly [Me.] 67 A. 217.

61. Jonas v. Hirshburg [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 1058. Declarations of grantor in deed to one of two brothers, after executing and delivering deed, that he desired the land equally divided and gave the deed only to get rid of the grantee (defendant in ejectment), were incompetent. Bain v. Bain [Ala.] 43 So. 562. Where a mother deeded land to her child, her statements in derogation of the title of the child or its grantee were held inadmissible, in an action after the mother's death, where the deed had been recorded but not delivered when the statements were made. Pentico v. Hays [Kan.] 83 P. 738. In a replevin action where defendant bases his title and right to possession on the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage, declarations of the mortgagor after executing the mortgage are inadmissible to impeach the mortgage or to show that he did not have the legal title or right to make the mortgage at the time of making it. First Nat. Bk. v. Yoeman, 17 Okl. 613, 90 P. 412. Statements of the grantor in a deed and of the attorney who prepared the deed that it was not made in good faith held incompetent. Hargus v. Hayes [Ark.] 103 S. W. 163. The rule that declarations of a vendor after he has parted with title are not admissible to disparage the title held applicable to a report of a sale by the assignee of a bankrupt. Beall v. Chatham [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 553, 99 S. W. 1116.

62. See 7 C. L. 1558.

63. In action by administrator to recover money converted by defendant, statements by decedent's children were incompetent. Zimmerman v. Beatson, 39 Ind. App. 664, 79 N. E. 518, 80 N. E. 165. Declarations of a person whose mental condition is in issue, in a proceeding to have a guardian for declarant appointed, tending to show mental unsoundness, held competent as admissions of a party against interest. Conway v. Murphy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 764. A letter containing an admission against interest by the writer, a party, is admissible though not shown to have been delivered to the other party. Austin v. Long, 1 Ga. App. 258, 57 S. E. 964. Where agency was in issue, proof that defendant had testified that the person in question was his agent, in another action, was competent. C. N. Robinson & Co. v. Green [Ala.] 43 So. 797. In action on note by payee against maker, defense being that note was for machine, and that buyer was to be repaid in case it was found that the machine was an infringement of a patent, and the machine returned, admissions of the payee, subsequent to the maturity of the note, tending to sustain the defense, were competent. Theophine v. Valchos, 53 Misc. 612, 103 N. Y. S. 776.

64. Admission of predecessor in title that he had given land to certain persons held competent as against alleged successor in interest in trespass to try title. Chew v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 678, 102 S. W. 427. A deed containing admissions of facts generally conclusive between parties and their privies, amounting to declarations of pecuniary or proprietary nature against interest, is admissible in evidence by a stranger, whether plaintiff or defendant against all other parties to the suit who have a joint interest in the matter with the party making the admissions. Peters v. Nolan Coal Co., 61 W. Va. 392, 56 S. E. 735. The admissions of a defendant in execution against his interest, before the pendency of litigation, are admissible in evidence in favor of either the claimant or the plaintiff in execution. Rountree v. Gauden [Ga.] 58 S. E. 346. Declarations of testator held admissible against executor in action to recover testator's share on policy of insurance. Ormond v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [N. C.] 58 S. E. 997. In action by surviving husband against the administrator of his wife's estate for a decree adjudging land standing in the wife's name to be community property, statements in the petition for letters, subscribed and sworn to by the administrator, that the land was the wife's homestead, were not competent against the husband, he not being shown to have knowledge of the contents of the petition, though he had waived his right to administer. Deming v. Gamble [Cal. App.] 91 P. 408. After proof of joint liability, declarations of one debtor are competent against the other. Where a prima facie case of joint liability has been made, admissions of one of the debtors are admissible though not made in the presence of the other. Thomas v. Mosher, 128 Ill. App. 479.

65. A statement made by a party or his privy, suggesting any inference as to any fact in issue, or relevant fact unfavorable to the contention of such party, is competent. Ogden v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World [Neb.] 113 N. W. 524.

66. When a plaintiff knows from the pleadings that defendant will deny the validity of a claim, he may prove the latter's admissions against his own interest without first examining him in reference thereto. Atlas Lumber & Coal Co. v. Flint [S. D.] 104 N. W. 1046.

67. Held admissions against interest and competent evidence: Where, in action on benefit certificate, the condition of the member's health at the time of his reinstatement, after suspension, was in issue, evidence of a statement by plaintiff (beneficiary) to attending physician that her husband (member) had been sick three weeks was competent as an admission. Woodmen of The World v. Jackson, 80 Ark. 419, 97 S. W. 673. In action to quiet title based on plaintiff's title by prescription, a petition and schedule in bankruptcy and a statement of property rendered the assessor omitting all mention of the property were competent as admissions against interest. Code Civ. Proc. § 1870, subd. 2. Spotswood v. Spotswood [Cal. App.] 89 P. 362. In an action involving the location of a boundary, the declaration of a party when the adverse party was building a line fence that he had all the land which belonged to him was competent. Manuel v. Flynn [Cal. App.] 90 P. 463. In suit to specifically enforce oral contract to convey land to a corporation, an entry in the journal of the corporation showing the resolution and sale was competent. Meridian Oil Co. v. Dunham [Cal. App.] 90 P. 469. Admissions by defendant to others that her husband was her general agent held competent evidence against her. Ham v. Brown Bros. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 316. In an action against an estate for money loaned decedent, there being no written evidence of the debt, a witness to whom deceased made admissions may testify in regard thereto. Schell v. Weaver, 225 Ill. 159, 80 N. E. 95. Where in an action for the value of services, under an oral contract, the defense was that the work was done under an express contract providing for the price, entries in an account book kept by the plaintiff, tending to sustain defendant's theory, were competent as admissions against interest. Milhollen v. McDonald & M. Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 112 N. W. 812. St. Louis Belting & Supply Co.*, 121 Mo. App. 89, 97 S. W. 990. Where a note was ambiguous, not showing whether it was the personal note of the president of a company or that of the company, a memorandum by the president of the payee company indicating that he regarded it as the note of the payor company only was admissible against the payee. Dunbar Box & Lumber Co. v. Martin, 53 Misc. 312, 103 N. Y. S. 91. Statement by agent of seller of typewriter in explaining ambiguous terms of a written order that a commission for selling other machines was to be applied on the purchase price held competent against seller, being made when the transaction was being closed. Smith Premier Typewriter Co. v. Rowan Hardware Co., 143 N. C. 97, 55 S. E. 417. The rule that acts and declarations of an agent can be proved against the principal applies to declarations made before and after a particular act, such as a threat to commit assault which is afterwards committed. Conklin v. Consolidated R. Co. [Mass.] 82 N. E. 23.

thority as agent,<sup>89</sup> are competent against the principal. There must be at least a prima facie showing of the existence of the agency before such admissions or declarations are admissible;<sup>90</sup> neither the fact of the agency, nor the extent of an alleged agent's authority, can be shown by his acts or declarations.<sup>91</sup>

a part of the res gestae, are hearsay. Miller & Co. v. McKenzie, 126 Ga. 746, 55 S. E. 952. Statements of employe after transaction in issue had been finished held inadmissible. Crankshaw v. Schweizer Mfg. Co., 1 Ga. App. 363, 58 S. E. 222. Declarations of an agent while engaged in looking after his principal's tenants cannot be introduced for the purpose of proving that the principal was engaged in excavating for railroad, during the course of which an explosion injured a tenant and her house. Bessemer Coal, Iron & Land Co. v. Doak [Ala.] 44 So. 627. In action against a carrier for injuries to goods, statement of agent at point of shipment that goods never left defendant's line, without a showing that the agent had investigated or knew the facts, made a month after the shipment, was held inadmissible. Reason v. Detroit, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 113 N. W. 596. Admissions of agent of property owner who negotiated a lease of the premises, made after execution of the lease, held inadmissible in action to rescind the lease for false representations by lessor as to ownership of the property. Finch v. Causey [Va.] 57 S. E. 562. Husband was wife's agent only for sale of certain property, and the wife executed the deed. The consideration was paid and the deed accepted and recorded. Held, declarations of the husband after the transaction was closed were inadmissible against the wife. Hartman v. Thompson, 104 Md. 389, 65 A. 117.

89. Held admissible: Where the issue concerns the honesty or fraud of corporate dealing, letters by those who control the corporation which describe and characterize its fraud are admissible. Weiss v. Haight, 148 F. 399. Defendant's attorney took possession of a stock of goods under a void writ and made an inventory of them. Held, in action of trespass, the inventory was competent evidence against defendant on the issue of the value of the goods. Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Core, 223 Ill. 58, 79 N. E. 108. While a statement of a director of a bank, other than the cashier, is not ordinarily binding on the bank, it will be binding if reported to or acted on or acquiesced in by the bank or its managers. West Branch State Bank v. Haines [Iowa] 112 N. W. 552. Statement of one who was carrier's agent to deliver goods that one box was missing, but would be along in a few days, held competent against the carrier. Mussellam v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 104 S. W. 337. Where it appeared to be telephone lineman's duty to ascertain information concerning injuries to employers, an admission as to what hit plaintiff, made by one acting as lineman, and when ascertaining such information, was held competent against defendant. McNicholas v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Mass.] 81 N. E. 889. Where it appeared that plaintiff was real party in interest in transactions in which his son was nominal party, statements of the son were competent against plaintiff though not made in his presence. Rice v. Eisler, 103 N. Y. S. 1054. Admission of one who was at various times manager, treasurer, and trustee of corporation in regard to a contract held admissible against the corporation. Chilcott v. Washington State Colonization Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 113. Statements of a promoter of corporation who acted for it in making a contract, and later became a manager, held admissible in action on contract against corporation. Id. Admissions made by attorney in the management of litigation are admissible against his client. Question as to whether attorney did not at previous trial of cause admit that certain figures were in the handwriting of his client held improperly ruled out. Kirchheimer v. Barrett, 125 Ill. App. 56.

Held inadmissible: Where agent was authorized only to deliver certain property, his declarations as to the purpose of delivery are not admissible against the principal. Trainor v. Schutz, 98 Minn. 213, 107 N. W. 812. In action for damages to shipment of cattle because of insufficient pens, certain statements of the railroad employes, made to third persons, that the company would upon notice provide means for through shipments, to avoid using insufficient pens, were held inadmissible because not authorized by the company. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Crowder [Ark.] 103 S. W. 172. Where it did not appear that a report of the killing of plaintiff's cow was made by an agent who had authority to bind the company, it was proper to exclude proof that such a report had been made. Young v. Darien & W. R. Co., 1 Ga. App. 317, 57 S. E. 921. Where person injured sent her son for a physician, a statement by the son to the physician that the physician would get $100 and more out of the company if he attended his mother, and would testify at the trial in her favor, was inadmissible against the injured person, the son having no authority to make such statement. Gainesville Midland R. Co. v. Jackson, 1 Ga. App. 632, 57 S. E. 1007. Statements of employe of a party not shown to have authority to bind his company held inadmissible. Crankshaw v. Schweizer Mfg. Co., 1 Ga. App. 363, 58 S. E. 222. Statement by soliciting agent who had no power to make contract agreeing to something not contained in the written contract held inadmissible against defendant. McKeige v. Carroll, 105 N. Y. S. 342. In action for damages to shipment of cattle, evidence of statement by brakeman should have been excluded on the ground that he had no authority to make it. St. Louis & S. Co. v. Levy [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1012, 100 S. W. 195. Letter of attorney not known to or approved by defendant not an admission against defendant. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Knight, 106 Va. 674, 56 S. E. 725.

90. Declarations of an alleged agent are

Statements and admissions of an attorney at law in respect of his principal's business are inadmissible against his principal unless it is specially shown that they were authorized or that they were made in the due and orderly conduct of a case for the distinct purpose of dispensing with formal proof of the facts to which they relate.<sup>92</sup> An admission by an attorney, made to expedite the trial, that the other side's witnesses would testify to certain facts, if called, is incompetent in a subsequent trial.<sup>93</sup>

Where several persons are jointly interested, the admissions of one may be shown against all.<sup>94</sup> Otherwise an admission may be proved only against the person making it, or the party for whom he was acting at the time.<sup>95</sup> Where there is independent prima facie proof of partnership, declarations of either of the alleged partners, written or spoken, are admissible in corroboration.<sup>96</sup> In the case of "old line" insurance, where the beneficiary acquires a vested interest in the insurance, it is usually held that admissions or declarations by the insured, either before or after issuance of the policy, are inadmissible against the beneficiary;<sup>97</sup> but in the case of fraternal insurance, where the beneficiary acquires no interest in the policy or certificate, the contract being with the member of the order, the rule is otherwise.<sup>98</sup> Admissions and declarations of a legatee are admissible in evidence against the will when he is not competent to prove agency in the first instance (Ham v. Brown Bros. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 316), but if the agency be prima facie proved, declarations of the agent are admissible in corroboration (Id.). The fact of agency may be established by proof of circumstances, apparent relations, and the conduct of the parties, and, the fact of agency once established, declarations and admissions of the person whose agency is thus shown, within the scope of his authority are admissible against the principal. Cable Co. v. Walker, 127 Ga. 65, 56 S. E. 108. Declarations of alleged agent are inadmissible until agency is shown. Howell v. Maine & Co., 127 Ga. 574, 56 S. E. 771. Verbal and written statements of president of corporation before incorporation held inadmissible against corporation subsequently formed. Horowitz v. Broads Mfg. Co., 54 Misc. 569, 104 N. Y. S. 988. Admissions of one not defendant's agent, and receipts signed by him, held inadmissible against defendant. Fensterheim v. Abeles, 105 N. Y. S. 280. Letter by agent before agency arose held inadmissible against principal. Ohly v. Mendham, 104 N. Y. S. 413. Admissions of defendant's husband held inadmissible against defendant without proof of agency. McKee v. Owen, 04 N. Y. S. 373. An assessor's return of real estate is not competent against the owner on the issue of the value of the land, he having nothing to do with the valuation placed thereon by the assessor. Lewis v. Englewood El. R. Co., 223 Ill. 223, 79 N. E. 44.

91. On issue whether buyer of lumber was defendant's agent, letter by alleged agent to a lumber exchange, and letterhead showing buyer as agent, were incompetent. Rice v. James, 193 Mass. 458, 79 N. E. 807.

92. Horseshoe Min. Co. v. Miners' Ore Sampling Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 517.

93. City of Detroit v. Little Co., 146 Mich. 373, 13 Det. Leg. N. 803, 109 N. W. 671.

94. Where evidence showed that two persons were acting jointly in a certain transaction, the admissions of one were competent against the other. Miller v. Harris, 117 App. Div. 395, 102 N. Y. S. 604.

95. Admissions of one defendant contrary to his testimony held merely to tend to discredit him as a witness and not to constitute substantive evidence against his codefendant. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Perkins [Iowa] 110 N. W. 15. Admission of one defendant, in letter written by him, that he did not own legal title to land, but was only a mortgagee, obviated necessity for proof as against him, but was not binding on his cotenant. Nichols-Shepard Co. v. Ringler [Iowa] 112 N. W. 543. In suit for dissolution of partnership and for an accounting, a statement by one defendant to a commercial agency, not adopted by a codefendant, is inadmissible to show the assets and liabilities of the partnership. Kliger v. Rosenfeld, 105 N. Y. S. 214. Files in another cause inadmissible where it appeared one defendant therein had consented to the filing of them, and no showing as to others, and no offer to limit proof to defendant who had consented. Bain v. Bain [Ala.] 43 So. 562.

96. Davidson v. Waxelbaum & Bro. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 687.

98. Taylor v. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., 101 Minn. 72, 111 N. W. 919. On issue whether applicant for membership had made false statement of date of birth, a prior application by him to another company, showing a different date, was held admissible in favor of the order. Id. Evidence being held sufficient to show that both applications had been made by the same person. Id. In an action on a certificate of a fraternal insurance order, where the contract was with the assured, and the beneficiary acquired no vested interest in the certificate, statements of the assured prior to his death were admissible in favor of the order to show what he considered his standing with the order to be. Ogden v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World [Neb.] 111 N. W. 797.

the sole beneficiary under it,<sup>99</sup> but not when there are several legatees.<sup>1</sup> Acts and admissions of a conspirator during the pendency of the conspiracy are admissible against his co-conspirators.<sup>2</sup>

(§ 6) D. Declaration of a person since deceased,<sup>3</sup> made in good faith, ante motam litem, are competent,<sup>4</sup> though statutes in most states forbid any party in interest to testify to such declarations.<sup>5</sup> The rule as to declarations of decedents relating to boundaries does not make competent declarations of a living person not shown to have been made on the land.<sup>6</sup>

§ 7. Documentary evidence. A. In general.<sup>7</sup>—A written instrument upon which the action is based,<sup>8</sup> or any private writing the contents of which are relevant and material,<sup>9</sup> is admissible in evidence when the proper foundation has been laid by due and sufficient proof of its identity and authenticity,<sup>10</sup> and proper execution.<sup>11</sup>

99. The time, place, and circumstances of such admissions go only to their weight, not their competency. In re Miller's Estate, 31 Utah, 415, 88 P. 338.

1. In action to vacate probate of will, evidence of statements of one of the contesting legatees as to advancements received by him is inadmissible. Vannest v. Murphy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 236.

2. Acts and admissions of a conspirator held admissible against all when done during the pendency of the conspiracy. Perry v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 180, 98 S. W. 411.

3. See 7 C. L. 1567.

4. Mass. Rev. Laws, c. 176, § 66, makes competent declarations of a person since deceased if made in good faith before commencement of an action. Declarations of person for whose death action was brought held competent. Chaput v. Haverhill, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 597. Letter written by one since deceased, before action was begun, contradicting material testimony of a party, held competent. Randall v. Claflin [Mass.] 80 N. E. 594. Declarations of a person since deceased against his interest, and not made with a view to opening legislation, are admissible in any case. American Surety Co. v. Wood [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 1116. In action for trespass based on title derived from a deed by a decedent, declarations by decedent, at the time of a survey of the land, were competent. Fincannon v. Sudderth, 144 N. C. 587, 57 S. E. 337. In proceeding for settlement of executor's account, held proper to allow proof of declarations of decedent in her husband's presence by witnesses who were not parties to the proceeding. Medlin v. Simpson, 144 N. C. 397, 57 S. E. 24. Private account books kept by a person since deceased when accompanied by proof that they were his books and of his handwriting are admissible at common law in behalf of his estate, though Mills' Ann. St. § 4817 does not contemplate the admission of such evidence except when the books are shown to have been kept in the usual course of business. Davie v. Lloyd [Colo.] 88 P. 446. Admissions of a person since deceased against his pecuniary interest are admissible to bind his estate. Schell v. Weaver, 128 Ill. App. 106. Where deceased actually delivered property to his daughters under circumstances which may or may not have constituted a gift, his statements before and after delivery are admissible. McIntosh v. Fisher, 125 Ill. App. 511. Conversations otherwise competent are not rendered inadmissible by reason of the fact that one of the participants is dead. Hueni v. Freehill, 125 Ill. App. 345.

7. See 7 C. L. 1567.

8. A state deed or grant relied on as the foundation of title in an action of ejectment is admissible unless probate is defective; no objection not going to competency of instrument is available. Bealmear v. Hutchins [C. C. A.] 148 F. 545.

9. Correspondence between parties held competent. Wefel v. Stillman [Ala.] 44 So. 263. Renewal of lease being in issue, letters between the parties, showing that negotiations for renewal were pending, were admissible. Wallace v. Dorris [Pa.] 67 A. 858. Certain notes set out as exhibits, and properly identified, and not denied, held admissible in evidence. Owsley v. Boles' Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 1016, 99 S. W. 1157. Conveyances are admissible to prove ownership as a collateral fact. Richardson v. Nelson, 221 Ill. 254, 77 N. E. 583. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1854, providing that when a detached writing is introduced any other writing necessary to explain the first is competent, a reply to a letter which has been introduced is not admissible when the letter can be understood without the reply. Hale Bros. v. Milliken [Cal. App.] 99 P. 365. Where cross claim was made for failure to deliver rice, and plaintiff claimed rice had been taken under writ of sequestration, the writ was admissible in evidence. Borden v. Le Tulle Mercantile Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 99 S. W. 128. Though deed of homestead was invalid because not separately acknowledged by the wife, it was held admissible to explain a subsequent deed given to confirm the first, though the names therein were not the same. Davis v. Miller Brent Lumber Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 639. Where several writings were executed as parts of the same transaction, all were admissible in evidence. Kampmann v. McCormick [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 588, 99 S. W. 1147. Coal lease being offered in evidence, the whole thereof, including an indorsement, was evidence, and it was proper to require the endorsement to be read. Wallace v. Dorris [Pa.] 67 A. 853.

St. Louis Coffin Co.* [Ala.] 43 So. 212. To render original papers in a suit competent evidence, they must be identified by a witness who has personal knowledge in regard to them. Carp v. Queen Ins. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 78. In action for loss of express, receipt for express held inadmissible, not having been properly authenticated. Southern Exp. Co. v. Hill [Ark.] 98 S. W. 371. Letters held inadmissible because execution not proved, nor signatures established, nor recitals of agency therein shown to be true. Henry Vaughan [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 711, 103 S. W. 192. Drilling contract provided that foreman should keep and furnish a report of the formation through which he drilled. Held, in action on contract, an unidentified paper, purporting to give such formation, found on the floor of the house where the foreman lived was inadmissible to show that his report furnished defendant was incorrect. Runyan v. Punxsutawney Drilling & Cont. Co. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 854. Requisition on carrier for cars held inadmissible without proof of its authenticity. Di Giorgio Importing & Steamship Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 104 Md. 693, 65 A. 425. Time cards furnished by railroad company to the public held admissible as against objection that it was not shown to be authorized. Western Union Tel. Co. v. O'Fiel [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 653, 104 S. W. 406. Letters addressed to defendant and found in her possession not admissible unless shown to have been answered or that they were part of a series. Jones v. Jones, 124 Ill. App. 201.

11. Proof of execution of letters by purported writer is prerequisite to their admission as evidence. Ex parte Denning [Tex. Cr. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 740, 100 S. W. 401. Lease which provided for a renewal, and letters exercising the option to renew, held competent evidence though not attested and recorded like a deed. Parker v. Gortatowsky, 127 Ga. 560, 56 S. E. 846. A deed not properly attested or probated for record is not rendered admissible as a recorded deed by reason of the indorsement thereon, some months later, by the maker of a power to the grantees to sell all rights and privileges previously conveyed by the deed, this power being witnessed, and it and the power being recorded together. Gray Lumber Co. v. Harris, 127 Ga. 693, 56 S. E. 252. Instrument purporting to be certificate of registration of horse, and showing his pedigree, held inadmissible without proof of its due execution, though a witness testified that any horseman anywhere would recognize it as a certificate of the American Trotting Register officials. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Newsome [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 646. In action for price of materials for a heating plant, a writing purporting to be a memorandum of sale, made by the selling agent, and not signed by the buyer who did not know its contents, was held inadmissible. Crane & Ordway Co. v. Jones [S. D.] 113 N. W. 80. Where there were no subscribing witnesses to a contract, proof by three witnesses that they were present at its execution and saw it signed was sufficient. Lefkovits v. First Nat. Bk. [Ala.] 44 So. 613.

12. Deeds, if registered, can be put in evidence, when otherwise competent, even when registered during the trial. Johnson v. Eversole Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 717, 57 S. E. 518. Under Code 1896, § 1792, providing that testimony must be given in open court, under oath, a certain agreement between parties as to time of bringing suit, waiver of service, and notice of issue, and as to time for hearing, was inadmissible when its execution was proved only by an affidavit made out of court before the bill was filed. Durr v. Hanover Nat. Bk. [Ala.] 42 So. 599. Where it appeared that a subscribing witness to a written instrument was attending school in another state at the time of the trial, his absence was sufficiently accounted for, and execution of the instrument could be proved otherwise than by his testimony. Civ. Code 1895, § 5245, construed. Terry v. Broadhurst, 127 Ga. 212, 56 S. E. 282. Civ. Code 1895, § 3628, relating to filing of an affidavit of forgery to a deed, and having a special issue made up and tried as to the genuineness of a deed attacked for forgery, is inapplicable to a fieri facias and entry of levy thereon offered in connection with a sheriff's deed which is also attacked for forgery. Vickers v. Hawkins [Ga.] 58 S. E. 44.

13. Certificate which fails to state that the paper is a copy and that party certifying is the keeper of the original records is insufficient. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Young, 123 Ill. App. 628.

14. Deed admitted by pleadings and written instrument, the execution of which was conceded, held admissible. Kauffman v. Baillie [Wash.] 89 P. 548.

15. Proof of facts necessary to show competency of tax deed may be allowed to be made after the deed is offered. Treasury Tunnel, Min. & Reduction Co. v. Gregory [Colo.] 88 P. 445.

16. French exhibits not admissible. Squadrelli v. Ciervo, 101 N. Y. S. 661. Ex-

A party offering in evidence an instrument showing alterations must explain the alterations before the instrument is admissible.<sup>17</sup> Such explanation may satisfactorily appear from the instrument itself, as altered,<sup>18</sup> or it may be made by extrinsic evidence.<sup>19</sup>

A deed purporting to have been executed by an officer of the court is inadmissible without extrinsic proof of the authority of such officer<sup>20</sup> in the absence of a statute to the contrary.<sup>21</sup> The absence of a Federal revenue stamp from an instrument required by law to be stamped does not impair its competency as evidence<sup>22</sup> in the absence of an express statutory inhibition. A reply letter received in due course, purporting to be executed by the addressee of the one to which it purports to be a reply, is admissible without further proof.<sup>23</sup>

An ancient record or document, if it comes from a custody which the court deems proper,<sup>24</sup> and is in itself free from any indication of fraud or invalidity, proves itself.<sup>25</sup> Such an instrument will be presumed to have been executed upon lawful authority,<sup>26</sup> even though defectively acknowledged.<sup>27</sup> The rule as to ancient deeds, hibits in Spanish language held inadmissible. Brummer v. George B. Van Cleve Co., 105 N. Y. S. 3.

17. Gage v. Chicago, 225 Ill. 218, 80 N. E. 127. Code Civ. Proc. § 1982, provides that a party producing a writing as genuine which has been altered must account for the alteration, hence an instrument showing an alteration is inadmissible over objection without first accounting for the alteration. Manuel v. Flynn [Cal. App.] 90 P. 463. Part of an application for policy of insurance held inadmissible without proof explaining why it was not all produced. Trow v. Preferred Acc. Ins. Co. [Vt.] 67 A. 821.

18. Certified copy of ordinance with pen and ink alterations of the printed portions held to constitute a harmonious and consistent whole, and to be admissible without further explanation. Gage v. Chicago, 225 Ill. 218, 80 N. E. 127.

19. Gage v. Chicago, 225 Ill. 218, 80 N. E. 127.

20. If a deed conveying land purports to have been executed by an officer of court under a decree, in order to make it admissible in evidence, the power or authority of the officer to make the deed must be shown unless waived. Winn v. Coggins [Fla.] 42 So. 897. A recital in a deed by a special receiver, showing his appointment and authority to execute it, is not evidence of such authority against persons not claiming under it. Hagan v. Holderby [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 289.

21. Under Texas statutes, allowing administrator to specifically perform contracts of the intestate, an administrator's deed is admissible in evidence without further proof. Sayle's Rev. Civ. St. art. 2153, making such deed prima facie evidence that all requirements of law have been complied with. Hughes v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 122, 97 S. W. 525.

22. Contract of sale admissible though not stamped. Phillips v. Hazen, 132 Iowa, 628, 109 N. W. 1096.

23. Letter in reply to one asking sick benefits, purporting to be signed by insurer's president, written on insurer's letterhead, enclosed in its envelope, and mailed at its place of business, was held admissible without proof of its execution by insurer's president. Hays v. General Assembly American Benev. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 104 S. W. 1141. Where letter written by one defendant to bank was an answer to a letter to him concerning certain land, and the cashier of the bank identified the signature as the same as that on other letters in the correspondence concerning this land, a sufficient foundation was laid for admission of the letter. Nichols-Shepard Co. v. Ringler [Iowa] 112 N. W. 543.

24. Proper custody of a document purporting to be ancient is required in order to give credit to its genuineness. But it is not necessary that the place from which it came should be the best and most natural place; it is enough if it appears that it came from a place where it was natural and proper for it to be. Woodward v. Keck [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 97 S. W. 852. Certified copy of notification of intention to claim land under Oregon donation act, genuine and regular on its face, held competent evidence of date when it was given, though notification was found in general land office at Washington instead of in the Oregon office, the land being a part of Oregon Territory. Sylvester v. State [Wash.] 91 P. 15.

25. Where a deed is thirty years old, is free from suspicion, and comes from the proper custody, it is admissible in evidence without the necessity of proof of accompanying possession or acts of ownership corroborative of its genuineness. Woodward v. Keck [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 97 S. W. 852. Deeds over fifty years old, shown to have come from custody of a representative of the grantee's estate, held competent as ancient instruments. Jones' Estate v. Neal [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 392, 98 S. W. 417.

26. The existence of the power under which ancient instruments purport to have been executed will be presumed. Jones' Estate v. Neal [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 392, 98 S. W. 417.

27. Under Shannon's Code, § 3761, providing that where a deed has been registered for more than twenty years it shall wills, and other instruments executed under the solemnities of the law is held to apply with equal force to letters, receipts, official endorsements, and all other ancient writings;<sup>28</sup> but is held inapplicable in the case of a copy of such an instrument.<sup>29</sup> Recitals in ancient deeds are competent evidence of the facts recited.<sup>30</sup> The issue of the genuineness of ancient documents sought to be used as evidence should go to the jury where their genuineness is attacked.<sup>31</sup>

Standard mortality tables<sup>32</sup> are competent when life expectancy is in issue,<sup>33</sup> but not otherwise.<sup>34</sup> Hospital records are inadmissible without proof of their correctness and the manner in which they were made.<sup>35</sup> Standard scientific works are competent when relevant.<sup>36</sup>

Proof of handwriting<sup>37</sup> may be necessary when the genuineness of a signature or other writing is disputed.<sup>38</sup> Any person who has seen a party write or who is familiar with his handwriting may express his opinion as to the genuineness of an alleged signature of such party.<sup>39</sup> Where there are subscribing witnesses, testimony be presumed to have been upon lawful authority, and the probate shall be good, it was held that a deed, registered for more than twenty years, was admissible in evidence though the acknowledgment taken by the justice of the peace of another state was defective. Kobbe v. Harriman Land Co., 117 Tenn. 315, 98 S. W. 175.

28. Woodward v. Keck [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 97 S. W. 852. Where identity of patentee in ancient patent was in issue, it appeared that a letter had been written by one of the same name as the patentee to an attorney, directing him to get a patent, and enclosing notes of survey of the tract desired. The letter also mentioned that the writer had had a chill. The letter and notes were found in the land office and were indorsed in the manner shown, to conform to the practice of the land office. There was evidence tending to show the truth of the fact mentioned in the letter. Held, to establish genuineness of ancient patent, the letter, notes of survey, and other evidence above mentioned, was competent. Id.

29. The rule that an ancient document, coming from the proper custody, is admissible, is not applicable to a copy of the instrument in question. Ball v. Loughridge, 30 Ky. L. R. 1123, 100 S. W. 275.

30. Where issue was whether a certain deed had been executed, a recital in a deed forty years old that grantor was grantee of plaintiff's ancestors, from whom deed was claimed, was held competent evidence. Brewer v. Cochran [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 796, 99 S. W. 1033.

31. Woodward v. Keck [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 97 S. W. 852.

32. Where life expectancy table was not shown to be a standard table, nor in general use by insurance companies, mere proof that it was contained in a book on insurance and prepared by the actuaries of certain companies did not make it competent. Banks v. Braman [Mass.] 80 N. E. 799. Expectancy tables included in legislative code, for use in assessing inheritance taxes on life and term estates, held competent where personal injuries were proved permanent. Clark v. Van Vleck [Iowa] 112 N. W. 648.

33. Standard mortality tables competent in action for death. Valente v. Sierra R. Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 481. Carlisle expectancy tables held competent in action for personal injuries where there is evidence that injuries are permanent. Howard v. McCabe [Neb.] 112 N. W. 305. Where permanency of injuries was placed in issue, life tables were competent. O'Donnell v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 578. In action for permanent injuries, Carlisle mortality tables are competent. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Light-heliser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033.

34. Where life estate had terminated by death of tenant, when inheritance taxes had been assessed thereon, life tables to determine its value were inadmissible. Kahn v. Herold, 147 F. 575.

35. Entries in hospital record held incompetent where it was not shown by whom the entries were made, and no evidence whatever to prove their authenticity or correctness was produced. State v. Trimble, 104 Md. 317, 64 A. 1026.

36. Passage from Encyclopedia Britannica on life expectancy held competent on issue of damage from permanent personal injury. Patton v. Sanborn, 133 Iowa, 650, 110 N. W. 1032. Standard medical dictionary held competent evidence of definition of certain medical terms, to aid the memory and understanding of the court, even though judicial notice might have been taken thereof. State v. Wilhite, 132 Iowa, 226, 109 N. W. 730. Standard medical works on subject of inquiry held competent evidence. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Moore [Ala.] 42 So. 1024.

37. See 7 C. L. 1579.

38. Where a letter is not shown to have been received in response to one sent to the purported writer, it is inadmissible without proof of the signature. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Britton [Ala.] 43 So. 108.

39. Ware v. Burch [Ala.] 42 So. 562. A witness who has corresponded with a person or seen him write may testify as to whether an alleged signature of such person is genuine. Griffin v. Working Woman's Home Ass'n [Ala.] 44 So. 605. Testimony of person familiar with handwriting of a deceased admissible to show whether endorsement of check, in which deceased was payee, was in his handwriting. Campbell v. Collins, 133 Iowa, 152, 110 N. W. 435.

by others should not be admitted until the absence of such witnesses is accounted for.<sup>40</sup> Experts who have compared such writings may state their opinions on the genuineness of the disputed writing,<sup>41</sup> even though there is other testimony by non-experts,<sup>42</sup> but one not an expert may not give an opinion based on a comparison of writings.<sup>43</sup> There is a conflict of authority as to whether such a comparison may be made by the jury.<sup>44</sup> A paper which has been used as evidence for some other purpose in the case, and which is admitted or proved to have been signed by the party whose signature is in issue, is competent as a standard of comparison to prove the disputed signature.<sup>45</sup> Where a document, the signature to which is in dispute, is an ancient one, other ancient documents which have been treated as authentic are competent as standards of comparison.<sup>46</sup> A comparison may not be instituted between a disputed writing and extraneous papers though the latter are shown to be genuine,<sup>47</sup> and writings not otherwise relevant and admissible are not admissible for the sole purpose of instituting a comparison either by the jury or experts.<sup>48</sup>

(§. 7) B. Books of account.<sup>49</sup>—It was the common-law rule that entries in books of account or shop books made in the regular course of a person's business or employment were admissible in evidence on proof of the handwriting of the entrant, after his death.<sup>50</sup> The rule has now been extended in most jurisdictions so as to

A witness who swears that he knows and would recognize the handwriting of a person may testify to the genuineness of his signature. Brown v. McBride [Ga.] 58 S. E. 702.

Witness not qualified: Contract erroneously admitted where only proof of execution was by witness who said he did not know the party's signature for sure, but had corresponded with him and had letters from him signed by him. Morris & Co. v. Southern Shoe Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 564, 99 S. W. 178. One who testified that he was familiar with decedent's handwriting at time of trial, but not when the will was written, ten or twelve years before, was not qualified to identify the handwriting in the will. Carmical v. Carmical [Ky.] 104 S. W. 1037.

40. Where there are subscribing witnesses to a contract whose absence is not accounted for, it is not error to refuse to allow the execution of the contract to be proved by a person familiar with the signer's handwriting. North Penn Iron Co. v. International Lithoid Co., 217 Pa. 538, 66 A. 860.

41. Expert may make comparison and give opinion. Griffin v. Working Woman's Home Ass'n [Ala.] 44 So. 605. Experts may properly compare writings admitted to be genuine with a disputed signature and give their opinions thereon. Pulliam v. Sells, 30 Ky. L. R. 456, 99 S. W. 289. Under Court and Practice Act of 1905, § 399, previous acquaintance with a person's handwriting is not now necessary to qualify a witness to testify in regard thereto, since comparison may be made by witnesses between the disputed writing and any writing proved to the satisfaction of the judge. Municipal Ct. of Providence v. Kirby [R. I.] 67 A. 8.

42. Where it is sought to prove a signature by comparison with other writings conceded to be genuine, expert opinion is competent though there are witnesses who testify from personal knowledge and observation. Howard v. Creech [Ky.] 101 S. W. 974.

43. Griffin v. Working Woman's Home Ass'n [Ala.] 44 So. 605. Only experts may make comparisons between writings shown or admitted to be genuine and disputed writings. Ware v. Burch [Ala.] 42 So. 562.

44. Comparison of disputed with admitted or proved writing may be made by jury. Griffin v. Working Woman's Home Ass'n [Ala.] 44 So. 605. Held error to allow counsel for propounder of will, in his argument, to point out revocatory words on the margin to the jury and show differences between the signature there and the signature to the will. In re Shelton's Will, 143 N. C. 218, 55 S. E. 705.

45. Woodward v. Keck [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 97 S. W. 852. Where genuineness of signature to second will was in issue, the first will, admitted and treated as genuine, and which was in evidence, was properly used as a standard of comparison. Griffin v. Working Woman's Home Ass'n [Ala.] 44 So. 605. Where an affidavit for capias in action for alienation of affections contained certain charges, and there was offered a written statement by the affiant retracting the charges, which was charged to be a forgery, the affidavit was competent as a standard of comparison to prove the signature on the statement. Brown v. Evans [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 476, 112 N. W. 1079.

46. Woodward v. Keck [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 425, 97 S. W. 852.

50. Remington Mach. Co. v. Wilmington Candy Co. [Del.] 66 A. 465. Entry in books of physician since deceased, showing visit to testatrix whose capacity was in issue, and payment of charge therefor, held admissible not only to show payment but all the facts stated, date, nature of disease, etc., the entry being against the interest of the one who made it. Knapp v. St.

render such entries competent during the life of the entrant under certain conditions.<sup>51</sup> Thus, it is generally held that where books of account are shown to have been regularly kept,<sup>52</sup> original entries therein, made in the usual course of business, at or near the time of the transaction to which they relate,<sup>53</sup> and shown to be true and correct,<sup>54</sup> are competent evidence of the facts to which they relate,<sup>55</sup> though some courts limit the rule to cases where the witness verifying them is unable to testify

Louis Trust Co., 199 Mo. 640, 98 S. W. 70. Where shopkeeper kept his own books, and copied therein orders taken by his clerk and entered in an order book, and the clerk had only general knowledge of the business and no personal knowledge of various accounts, the books were competent, the shopkeeper being dead. Van Name v. Barber, 115 App. Div. 593, 100 N. Y. S. 987.

51. Remington Mach. Co. v. Wilmington Candy Co. [Del.] 66 A. 465.

52. Original books of a corporation, regularly kept, and identified by the proper custodians as books kept pursuant to Civ. Code, § 377, are competent evidence in an action between other parties. Hurwitz v. Gross [Cal. App.] 91 P. 109. There being an agreement between plaintiff and defendant that defendant's son should keep a memorandum of the transactions between them, the books of account, and testimony of the son as to credit placed therein at his father's direction, were competent. Gray v. Joiner, 127 Ga. 544, 56 S. E. 752.

53. Entries need not be made at the exact time of the event recorded, and whether they are made sufficiently near in point of time depends on the particular facts of each case. Murray v. Dickens [Ala.] 42 So. 1031. Where entries were made each week, based on weekly reports submitted by an employee, they were held competent as against the objection that they were not shown to have been made contemporaneously with the events recorded. Id. Account book showing sales of meal tickets held admissible where preliminary proof showed that the owner of the business kept the books, in Chinese, and that the book was the only one he kept, and showed original entries made at the time of the sales recorded, and that the charges there shown corresponded to the ordinary charge. Yick Wo v. Underhill [Cal. App.] 90 P. 967.

54. By weight of authority, such entries are now held to be competent when verified and adopted by the entrant as correct. See Remington Mach. Co. v. Wilmington Candy Co. [Del.] 66 A. 465. Where book of account had been shown to be correct and treated so by all the parties, it was competent evidence. McGrath v. Stein [Ala.] 42 So. 454. Where shopkeeper kept his own books, and witnesses testified that their accounts were always found correct, and it appearing that the books were regularly kept, they were held sufficiently authenticated. Van Name v. Barber, 115 App. Div. 593, 100 N. Y. S. 987. Books held competent when shown to be kept by a member of the firm, and to be correct, though it was not shown that he kept no clerk. Hinkle v. Smith & Son, 127 Ga. 437, 56 S. E. 464. If a witness has personal knowledge of the transactions recorded, he may identify and testify to correctness of books of account, and render them competent though he did not keep the books. Pelican Lumber Co. v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 262, 93 S. W. 207. Report of police officer on an accident held incompetent without proof of its correctness. City of Chicago v. Jarvis, 226 Ill. 614, 80 N. E. 1079. Book of a bank held inadmissible because not sufficiently identified, not shown to be correctly kept, nor by whom kept. Lester-Whitney Shoe Co. v. Oliver Co., 1 Ga. App. 244, 53 S. E. 212. In action on corporate notes, entries in company's books, relating to bills payable, made after the notes were executed by a person not produced as a witness, were incompetent when not shown to have been known by and consented to by the payee. Baines v. Coos Bay, etc., R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 89 P. 371. Page from ledger held incompetent, not being a book of original entries, and the entries thereon not being proved just and correct. Holloway & Bros. v. White-Dunham Shoe Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 216. Whether records made by an employee in the regular course of business are properly verified so as to entitle them to admission as original evidence for the purpose of corroborating a witness is a question addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court. Held proper to exclude report of boiler maker on particular engine day before an accident. Strand v. Great Northern R. Co., 101 Minn. 85, 111 N. W. 958. Scaling book held inadmissible where person who kept it said he did not know where timber came from that was entered therein except by letters from other employees, and the testimony of the others not identifying the items. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Dunn [Ala.] 44 So. 533.

55. Train sheets, identified by train dispatcher and shown to have been kept in the usual and regular course of business, held competent to show what trains passed a certain place and the time thereof. Big River Lead Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 123 Mo. App. 394, 101 S. W. 636. In action against city for rent of premises, on issue whether city held over after expiration of the lease, books of the lessor, regularly kept, showing payments by city, though authority of officer making them not shown, after expiration of the lease, were competent. Commercial Wharf Corp. v. Boston [Mass.] 80 N. E. 645. Books of a fraternal order, required by law to be kept, read in open lodge and approved by the members, and constituting records of the lodge, and containing the only complete history of its financial transactions, made by the recorder, held, when identified, to be competent evidence against members in an action by the lodge. Union Pacific Lodge No. 17, A. O. U. W. v. Bankers' Surety Co. [Neb.] 112 N. W. 263.

from present recollection of the facts recorded.<sup>56</sup> Entries made by one person from information given by others are competent, though not strictly original, when shown to have been regularly made in the usual course of business,<sup>57</sup> and when sufficiently corroborated by the entrant and by those having personal knowledge of the facts recorded, at the time.<sup>58</sup> An entry not connected with the regular business in which books are kept is not admissible,<sup>59</sup> but such entry does not render the books incompetent as to other regular entries concerning the business.<sup>60</sup> Books of account are not competent to prove a prior special agreement,<sup>61</sup> but books of account showing charge on sale are admissible though the sale was on order made and accepted in writing.<sup>62</sup> Books showing only one side of an account are incompetent,<sup>63</sup> and self-serving entries in private books of account are also excluded.<sup>64</sup>

Expert accountants are usually allowed to testify to the result of an examination of complicated accounts. In Louisiana the report of an expert on books of account, sworn to and filed, but not homologated, is incompetent when the expert is not examined as to the correctness of his report.<sup>65</sup> Commercial books should be properly audited below, and not sent to the supreme court for general examination.<sup>66</sup> Stipula-

56. See Remington Mach. Co. v. Wilmington Candy Co. [Del.] 66 A. 465. Entries and book of accounts made by witness and not used by him to refresh his memory, but as substantive evidence, held incompetent. Dick v. Biddle Bros. [Md.] 66 A. 21. Where date of cutting certain timber was in issue, and a witness used pay rolls to fix the date and refresh his memory, and was permitted to show them to the jury, it was proper to refuse to admit the pay rolls as evidence. Moore v. Luehrmann Hardwood Lumber Co. [Ark.] 102 S. W. 385. Books of account are competent when it is shown that they were regularly kept, that the items shown therein are original entries, and they are true, and were made at the time of the transaction to which they relate. Where party who made entries in book testified that they were books of original entry, that the items are correct, and were made at the time of the transaction, such books are admissible in evidence. Garlick v. Mutual Loan & Bldg. Ass'n. 129 Ill. App. 402. Book kept for the purpose of indicating when certain notes will mature is not admissible as a book of original entry. Wiggins v. Wilson, 123 Ill. App. 663.

57. Entries in a book were made each week of the number of days a stream hoist had been used, based on reports of an employee in charge of it. Held, the entries were not objectionable as not having been made in the usual course of business. Murray v. Dickens [Ala.] 42 So. 1031. Entries regularly and correctly made are not inadmissible, merely based on information given by others to the person making the entries. Where one party testifies that he knew the correctness of the items and correctly gave them to another who testifies that he received such information and correctly entered the items in the original book of account, such book is admissible in evidence. Wright v. Charbonneau, 122 Ill. App. 52.

58. Where memoranda of sales were made by a merchant and his clerks as sales were made, and the slips were kept and entered in the books each month, the books were competent, when verified by the merchant and clerks, to show delivery of goods. Petty v. Benoit, 193 Mass. 233, 79 N. E. 245. In action for breach of warranty of ice making machine, "time slips" were offered to show amount of ice manufactured per day. The entries were made by a bookkeeper who received his information from other employees who had personal knowledge of the facts.

59. Both the bookkeeper and his informant testified that entries were correct. They were held competent. Remington Mach. Co. v. Wilmington Candy Co. [Del.] 66 A. 465. Where entries in books based on reports by an employee were supported by the testimony of the person making them, and also by the testimony of the employee who made the reports that they were correct, they were held to be sufficiently corroborated. Murray v. Dickens [Ala.] 42 So. 1031.

61. Yick Wo v. Underhill [Cal. App.] 90 P. 967.

62. Corporate book entries showing payments by stockholders held incompetent to prove that money was paid for treasury stock sold them, but never delivered. Jacobs v. Morganthaler [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 307, 112 N. W. 492.

63. Vallee Bros. Elec. Co. v. North Penn Iron Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 111.

64. Books of account showing only charges against defendant and no payments by him held incompetent. Dugan v. Longstaff, 52 Misc. 288, 102 N. Y. S. 1120.

65. Entries in a testator's cash book held incompetent in favor of his executor. Page v. Hazelton [N. H.] 66 A. 1049. In suit to have deed from husband to wife through a third person declared a mortgage, entries in the wife's private diary, she having since died, were held incompetent in behalf of her successors in interest. Wilson v. Terry [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 983. Pay rolls and time books held competent so far as they contained original entries, made in regular course of duties of persons making them but private entries therein by corporation for its own use and benefit held incompetent. Eureka Hill Min. Co. v. Bullion Beck & Champion Min. Co. [Utah] 90 P. 157.

66. Hewitt v. Williams, 118 La. 236, 42 So. 786.

tion whereby statement drawn from books of original entry is admitted in evidence does not obviate the necessity of laying a proper foundation for the entry of the books.<sup>67</sup>

(§ 7) C. Public and judicial records and documents.<sup>68</sup>—Public official documents<sup>69</sup> and public official records required by law to be kept by sworn officials are competent evidence of the facts required by law to be shown therein.<sup>70</sup> Unofficial statements on public records not required by law to be recorded are inadmissible.<sup>71</sup> Instruments so executed as to be entitled to recordation<sup>72</sup> are provable by the record or duly authenticated copies thereof.<sup>73</sup> Records of courts,<sup>74</sup> of legislative bodies,<sup>75</sup> and of administrative or executive branches of government,<sup>76</sup> are competent. Record of instrument not entitled to be recorded because acknowledged before an officer without authority is incompetent. Ball v. Loughridge, 30 Ky. L. R. 1123, 100 S. W. 275.

73. Copies of articles of incorporation, under certificate and seal of secretary of state of a sister state, held competent proof of corporate capacity. Bannard v. Duncan [Neb.] 112 N. W. 353. Under Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3094, county plat books are admissible in evidence when properly certified by the register or receiver, when entries relate to those made by a receiver or register of a U. S. land office, and not otherwise. Stewart v. Lead Belt Land Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 767. Plat of lands, certified by legal custodian as true copy of plat on file, held competent evidence together with certificate, though latter also covered number of acres contained in each of three tracts, which information was given on the plat itself. Austin v. Whitcher [Iowa] 110 N. W. 910. Under Act Feb. 4, 1842, a certified copy of a certificate by the clerk of the district court that plaintiff, in an action to establish a state land certificate, had recovered a verdict for certain land, and that judgment had been duly entered, the clerk's certificate having been filed in the general land office, from which the certified copy came, was competent evidence. Kirby v. Hayden [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 746.

74. The record of a court in which a case is being tried, when relevant, is itself competent; a certified transcript is not necessary. Sellers v. Page, 127 Ga. 633, 56 S. E. 1011. The fact that Rev. St. 1899, § 3135, makes a properly attested and certified copy of court records admissible, does not render the original records inadmissible when properly identified. Carp v. Queen Ins. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 78.

75. Contents of ordinance as well as fact of passage by council may be proved by original record properly identified. City of Grafton v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co. [N. D.] 113 N. W. 598.

76. Town plat from volume of state papers held competent evidence in absence of objection to authenticity. Twombly v. Lord [N. H.] 66 A. 486. A volume of the records it is impracticable to produce the originals, public records are almost universally provable by copy or transcript, which must be authenticated, as required by statute.<sup>77</sup>

Public statutes or ordinances may usually be proved by printed copies purporting to be printed and published with authority.<sup>78</sup> A public document should be received in evidence or rejected in its entirety, and where portions thereof are for any reason inadmissible, the jury should be instructed to disregard that portion.<sup>79</sup>

of permanent surveys of the county surveyor forming a part of the public records of the county is not discredited as evidence because it may contain an original paper of a survey instead of a copy. Scott v. Williams, 74 Kan. 448, 87 P. 550.

77. Sworn copies of proceedings and papers in tax case, of record, held competent. Glos v. Holmes, 228 Ill. 436, 81 N. E. 1064. In an action on an official bond, of a Federal officer, a certified transcript of his account with the United States, as shown by the books of the treasury department, was admissible, being made competent by U. S. Rev. St. § 886. Ewing v. U. S. [Ariz.] 89 P. 593. Certified copies of papers on file or orders shown in minutes of probate court held admissible; copies of unsigned orders held inadmissible. Teague v. Swasey [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 290, 102 S. W. 458. Copy of judicial record of another state must be certified according to the Federal statute or C de Civ. Proc. Kan. § 371; it is not sufficient that it is certified according to § 372, Kan. Code, as this relates only to records required to be kept by statutes of Kansas or of the United States. Ayres v. Deering & Co. [Kan.] 90 P. 794. Only final judgments and decrees rendered and entered in the circuit courts of the state, and certified copies thereof, are admissible as prima facie evidence of the entry and validity thereof, under Acts 1899, p. 115, c. 4723; the act does not extend to the judgments of a justice of the peace docketed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court under Rev. St. 1892, § 1624. Palmer v. Parker [Fla.] 42 So. 398. Certified copy of proceedings of Federal court in Indian Territory held inadmissible because not showing certificate by judge that attestation of clerk was in due form as required by U. S. Rev. St. § 905. Hagan v. Snider [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 213. Rev. St. U. S. § 905 has reference to authentication of state judicial records, and not records of Federal courts. Hence, held that copy of writ of error from U. S. Circuit Court, authenticated with seal and certificate signed "X. Clerk of U. S. circuit court, per Ina Allison, Deputy Clerk," was sufficiently authenticated. Jordan v. McDonnell [Ala.] 44 So. 101. An exemplification of the record of proceedings in a foreign justice court is incompetent to prove a judgment of such court; neither Rev. St. U. S. § 905, nor Rev. Codes N. D. 1905, § 7292, authorizes such proof. The judgment can only be proved as other facts are proved, in some common-law method. Strecker v. Railson [N. D.] 111 N. W. 612. The fact that such foreign justice court judgment had been filed in the district court of the sister state would not make an exemplification of the abstract of the judgment so filed competent, as the judgment still remained a judgment of the justice of the peace. Id. Certificate of transcript from records of court of ordinary, signed by a named person as ordinary of the county, sufficiently authenticates the record where it affirmatively appears in the certificate that the ordinary had no clerk, but was acting as his own clerk. This last fact may be shown by the ordinary's certificate. Civ. Code 1895, § 4250 (11). Sellers v. Page, 127 Ga. 633, 56 S. E. 1011. A certificate of the ordinary purporting to certify a copy of a marriage license appearing of record in his office does not render the copy admissible unless it is made to appear affirmatively that there is no clerk other than the ordinary. Smallwood v. Kimball [Ga.] 58 S. E. 640.

78. A printed pamphlet containing village ordinances, purporting to be published by authority of the president and board of trustees of the village, held competent evidence thereof, and of date of passage as shown therein. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Warriner, 228 Ill. 91, 82 N. E. 246. Code 1896, § 1821, provides that any public or private statutes, or the proceedings of any legislative body, purporting on the face of the book to be printed by authority of the government or state or territory, are evidence without further proof. Compton v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 685. Parts of Georgia Code held provable by book purporting to contain the Code, showing when adopted, and by whom prepared and printed, and showing also "entered according to act of congress, in 1896, by state of Georgia, in the office of the librarian of congress at Washington." Id. Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903 Neb. § 1381, provides for proof of statutes and written laws by duly authenticated printed volumes thereof, and of common or unwritten law only by parol; hence statutes and constitution of another state cannot in Nebraska be proven by parol. Cook v. Chicago, etc., & Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 718.

79. Held to apply to coroner's verdict though it attempted to fix the responsibility for the accident occasioning the death. O'Donnell v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 127 Ill. App. 432.

80. See 7 C. L. 1576; also subject Discovery and Inspection, 9 C. L. 990.

81. Held to compel production of corporate books would not be an "unreasonable search and seizure." United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 148 F. 486. As a general rule, subject to exceptions for privilege, where it is shown that a paper which would be evidence material to the issue is in the court, it is the duty of the court to require the production of such duce such evidence should be given before the aid of the court is invoked.<sup>83</sup> A petition for a subpoena duces tecum is sufficiently definite if the books and documents are designated so as to enable the witness to produce them without uncertainty.<sup>84</sup> The petition should set out facts showing prima facie the relevancy of the documentary evidence desired, a mere allegation of relevancy is not enough.<sup>85</sup> An order to produce books and documentary evidence should in a proper case be made absolute, though the relevancy of the evidence may be passed upon at the time of the trial.<sup>86</sup> The court should determine the materiality of papers before making a peremptory order for their production,<sup>87</sup> but such determination is for the court and not for the witness.<sup>88</sup>

§ 8. Evidence adduced in former proceedings.<sup>89</sup>—At common law and by statute in many states,<sup>90</sup> testimony of a witness on a former trial is admissible when the witness is dead or beyond the jurisdiction,<sup>91</sup> provided the issues and parties in the two actions are substantially the same,<sup>92</sup> and depositions read at a former trial are competent under similar circumstances.<sup>93</sup> A stenographic transcript of testimony in a former trial is usually competent,<sup>94</sup> when properly authenticated,<sup>95</sup> or such documentary evidence instant, and, if the alleged holder is in court, to grant a proper request for an investigation to determine whether the paper is in fact in court and whether its production should be required. Moore v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 1 Ga. App. 514, 58 S. E. 63. Production of an instrument may be ordered for the purpose of aiding witness to frame his answer. Columbian Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Leeds, 128 Ill. App. 195.

82. A court of equity has power to compel the production of books and papers by virtue of its inherent and general jurisdiction, and this power is not confined to parties to the suit but extends to third persons. United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 148 F. 486.

83. Where a paper is in the possession of the adverse party, he should be notified to produce it before trial or procure a rule for its production, otherwise the court may refuse to require its production. Mussellam v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 104 S. W. 337.

84, 85. United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 154 F. 268, modifying 148 F. 436.

86. International Coal Min. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 152 F. 557. A witness may not refuse to produce papers on the ground that they are not relevant or material, this being a question for the court when produced. United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 148 F. 486.

87, 88. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Lewis [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 674.

89. See 7 C. L. 1577.

90. The common-law rule allowing proof of former testimony of deceased witness was not altered in Pennsylvania by Act May 23, 1887. Keim v. Reading, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 613.

91. Testimony of witness at former trial may be read to the jury when it appears witness is beyond the jurisdiction of the court. Dolph v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 426, 112 N. W. 981. Subpoena for witness was returned "not found" and it appeared he had left the county and was on his way to his home in another state. Held testimony on a former trial competent. Woodstock Iron Works v. Kilne [Ala.] 43 So. 362. Where witnesses who testified at former trial were not dead at time of second trial and their testimony did not consist of admissions in the course of their duties as officers of defendant bank, it was error to admit testimony given by them on a former trial. Citizens' Sav. Bk. v. Boswell [Ky.] 104 S. W. 1014. In action for injuries to child on the railroad track, the testimony of the conductor of the train at a former trial was inadmissible where it appeared he was present at the present trial and had not been called as a witness. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Nesbit [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 825. Testimony of a living witness at a former trial can only be used to refresh the memory of a witness or to contradict him. Dambmann v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 55 Misc. 60, 106 N. Y. S. 221.

92. Where a company to which an elevated road had been leased was made a party to a suit to enjoin the operation of the road on the second trial thereof, testimony of a witness, since deceased, given at the first trial was competent on the second. Shaw v. New York El. R. Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 984. Under Iowa Code Supp. 1902, § 245a, making reporter's shorthand notes competent on a retrial, such notes taken in a will contest instituted by a widow and her children in their individual rights were held competent on a retrial wherein the widow appeared as administratrix, the widow and children having been erroneously substituted for another in the former proceeding. In re Wiltsey's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 776.

93. Depositions read at former trial of same cause admissible, deponents having died. Rogers v. Rogers [Del.] 66 A. 374. Depositions used in another case held admissible where parties against whom they were offered had been represented by counsel in the other action though not named as parties thereto. Brownlee v. Bunnell [Ky.] 103 S. W. 284.

94. Temple v. Phelps, 193 Mass. 297, 79 N. E. 482.

95. Transcript of testimony of witness on a former trial, not shown to be correct by the testimony of the stenographer who took it down and transcribed it, held inadmissible. El Paso Elec. R. Co. v. Kitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 376, 99 S. W. 537.

testimony may be proved by one who was present in court and heard it.<sup>96</sup> In Missouri such testimony, preserved by a bill of exceptions, may be read in the same manner as a deposition.<sup>97</sup> It is error to allow the introduction of portions of the testimony of a witness on a former trial without any showing as to the relevancy thereof.<sup>98</sup> A judgment in a criminal prosecution cannot be received in a civil action to establish the truth of the facts on which it was rendered.<sup>99</sup>

The use of testimony in a former trial or proceeding to impeach or contradict a witness is elsewhere treated.<sup>1</sup>

§ 9. Expert and opinion evidence. A. Conclusions and nonexpert opinions.<sup>2</sup>—Mere conclusions of the witness,<sup>3</sup> and opinions of nonexperts on issues which

Testimony of witness at former trial held not identified as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 3146, and inadmissible, where witness and stenographer were dead, and no one could be found who could read the stenographer's notes or testify to their correctness or that they embodied the witness' testimony. Pew v. Johnson, 35 Mont. 173, 88 P. 770.

96. One who was present at a former trial and heard the testimony may state what his recollection of the testimony of a certain witness is. Carp v. Queen Ins. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 78.

97. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3149, testimony taken at a former trial and preserved by bill of exceptions may be read in evidence in the same manner as a deposition. Harris v. Quincy, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 601. Under Missouri statutes the deposition of a judge, lawyer, or physician, or his testimony at a former trial, preserved by a bill of exceptions, may be read in evidence, though he has not been summoned as a witness, if it appear that he is engaged in professional duties. Doyle v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 598.

98. The whole record should be introduced, and counsel should not be allowed to select portions arbitrarily. Rumford Chem. Works v. Hygienic Chem. Co., 148 F. 862.

99. Judgment of acquittal in case where plaintiff was prosecuting witness inadmissible in action on accident policy growing out of assault by defendant in criminal action of assault. Myers v. Maryland Casualty Co., 123 Mo. App. 682, 101 S. W. 124.

Held proper also to question inspector as to how crowd could be controlled and kept from getting too large. Id. Ownership of chattels being in issue, it is competent for a claimant to answer the question "To whom did the property belong?" Lipschitz v. Halperin, 53 Misc. 280, 103 N. Y. S. 202. Witness properly allowed to state that no precaution was taken to warn foot passengers of approach of cars at a street crossing. Aurora, etc., R. Co. v. Gary, 123 Ill. App. 163. Nonexpert with usual knowledge of time and distance may estimate speed of car which he saw. Hall v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1137. One who sees a moving street car, and has a knowledge of time and distance, may give an opinion as to its speed. Coffey v. Omaha & C. B. St. R. Co. [Neb.] 112 N. W. 589. Witness who had railroaded for sixteen years and one who had traveled on trains for twenty years held qualified to testify as to speed of train which they saw at the duce the witness' observation.<sup>12</sup> Thus, a witness shown to have knowledge of the facts may testify as to a person's health at a particular time,<sup>13</sup> his ability to use his limbs, or organs, or sight, or hearing,<sup>14</sup> whether he was suffering pain,<sup>15</sup> or manifested particular symptoms or ill health,<sup>16</sup> or was conscious or in possession of his faculties,<sup>17</sup> and whether he appeared to be acting under the stress of particular emotions.<sup>18</sup>

As to the admissibility of nonexpert opinion evidence on the subject of a person's mental capacity, the courts are not in accord, though it is generally held that time in question. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Smith [Fla.] 43 So. 235. One who has observed the running of trains and compared speed of different trains, or whose training or experience is such as to entitle his opinion to weight, and who had a fair opportunity to observe a moving train at the time in question, may give an opinion as to the rate of speed. Stotler v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 200 Mo. 107, 98 S. W. 509.

12. Nonexperts may express opinions when the subject-matter is such that its nature cannot be reproduced or described to the jury precisely as it appeared at the time. City of Chicago v. McNally, 227 Ill. 14, 81 N. E. 23. Statements in the nature of conclusions are competent when they relate to matters which cannot well be reproduced or described to the jury as they appeared to the witness. As that testatrix "acted very childish." Vannest v. Murphy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 236. Witnesses may not state whether a woman is financially able to rear her child, when the statement is based upon hearsay, though an opinion based on facts personally known to a witness, and detailed in evidence, would be competent. Moore v. Dozier [Ga.] 57 S. E. 110.

13. Testimony that plaintiff in a personal injury action "was ill" at a certain time and place held competent. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Boyer [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 1070. Testimony as to the appearance of a party, whether she appeared to be injured, held competent. Id. In a personal injury action held proper to allow a witness who had known plaintiff for twelve years to testify that she had always had good health prior to the accident, but that thereafter she had been in poor health and had lost weight. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 416, 99 S. W. 715. A nonexpert witness having been in constant attendance on an injured person and having opportunity to observe his movements and general physical condition may testify whether such person's health is good or poor, and whether he is afflicted with or free from pains. *Davis v. In some cases witnesses may be allowed to testify directly to the conclusion or inference that another was on a particular occasion angry, calm, agitated, excited, intoxicated, rational, or irrational, where from the nature of the case the facts on which the inference or conclusion is based cannot be described in words. Sneed v. Marysville Gas & Elec. Co., 149 Cal. 704, 87 P. 376. Rule as to stating appearance of a person held not to render competent testimony that a person did not seem to be "pleased" by a certain occurrence. Fleckinger v. Taffee [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 545, 113 N. W. 311.

any person, qualified by observation or acquaintanceship,<sup>19</sup> may state an opinion as to another's mental condition,<sup>20</sup> when the opinion is accompanied by a statement of the facts on which it is based.<sup>21</sup> Such opinion should not go beyond the facts stated.<sup>22</sup> By some courts it is held that one shown to have had an intimate personal acquaintance with, and opportunity and occasion to observe the actions of, a person whose mental capacity is called in question, may testify affirmatively that in his opinion such person was normal and of sound mind at the time;<sup>23</sup> while a person called to give an opinion that the person whose condition is in issue was insane at the time must first state particular facts and observations on which the opinion is based.<sup>24</sup> It is held in New York that nonexpert witnesses may testify to acts and statements of a person and characterize them as rational or irrational, but may not testify that such person is of sound or unsound mind.<sup>25</sup>

19. Whether a witness is shown to be an "intimate acquaintance" of a decedent, so as to qualify him to testify as to decedent's sanity at the time of making a will, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1870, subd. 10, is a question addressed to the discretion of the trial court, the exercise of which is reviewable only where an abuse is shown. Huyck v. Rennie [Cal.] 90 P. 929. Person who drew deed and witnessed its execution is qualified to testify that person executing it then appeared rational. Arellanes v. Arellanes [Cal.] 90 P. 1059. Mere casual acquaintance and one who had given decedent massage treatments three times held not "intimate acquaintances." Huyck v. Rennie [Cal.] 90 P. 929. Under Civ. Code Proc. § 1870, a sister of decedent who lived with her was qualified to give an opinion as to decedent's sanity at a particular time. Doherty v. Courtney, 150 Cal. 606, 89 P. 434.

20. Held competent for witness to give opinion on whether person executing a release had sufficient mental capacity to know what he was doing. Beard v. Southern R. Co., 143 N. C. 137, 55 S. E. 505. The sanity of one of the parties being in issue, nonexpert witnesses may testify that they know such party and have seen nothing in his appearance or conduct to indicate insanity. Proctor v. Pointer, 127 Ga. 134, 56 S. E. 111. Skillful and reputable physicians, though not experts on the subject, may testify to the mental condition of their patients whom they have observed, and such testimony is testimony to facts of observation, and is not of the character of expert opinion, legal competency, or incompetency. Ireland v. White [Me.] 66 A. 477. Nonexpert witnesses shown to have especial opportunities of observation are allowed to give opinion evidence on the mental condition of one under investigation in this respect, having first stated the facts on which such opinions are based, or without stating the facts when opportunity is given to cross-examine in regard thereto. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Barnes [Kan.] 90 P. 293. Witness may testify what his opinion is as to a person's condition mentally, based on his observations, when the facts are such that they cannot clearly be shown in detail to the jury. Nelson v. Thompson [N. D.] 112 N. W. 1058.

21. Nonexperts may state their opinions as to a person's mental condition when they state also the facts on which their opinions are based. Wightman v. Grand Lodge A. O.

U. W., 121 Mo. App. 252, 98 S. W. 829. A nonexpert may testify to the condition of a testator's mind at the time of executing a will, after stating the facts on which his opinion is based. Brown v. McBride [Ga.] 58 S. E. 702. A nonexpert must state the facts on which he bases his opinion as to insanity. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Randle [Ala.] 43 So. 355. Where question, "What did you observe with respect to her mental condition?" was treated by witnesses as calling for incidents bearing on condition of mind of deceased, the admission of their answers was not prejudicial. Vannest v. Murphy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 236. Where questions asked nonexperts as to mental condition of testatrix, and their answers that she was of sound mind were based on facts already detailed in evidence, their testimony was competent. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8.

22. Question as to a person's mental condition going beyond the facts testified to by the witness is improper. Loveman v. Birmingham R. L. & P. Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 411. Opinion of nonexpert as to whether testator was easily influenced held inadmissible without stating the facts. Heath v. Slaughter, 127 Ga. 747, 57 S. E. 69. A nonexpert witness may state all the facts he knows in relation to a testator bearing on the state of his mind and the nature of his acts, and may give his opinion, based on such facts as to the condition of the testator's mind, but it is improper to ask him to state whether, in his opinion, the testator had a decided and rational desire when he made the will or whether his desires were like the ravings of a madman or the pratings of an idiot, or the whim of a child. Id.

23. In re Wilson's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 788. Where a nonexpert testifies in favor of mental capacity, he cannot be limited so strictly to specific facts as one who testifies to mental unsoundness or insanity. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8.

24. In re Wilson's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 788.

25. Schoenberg & Co. v. City Trust, Safe Deposit & Surety Co., 52 Misc. 104, 101 N. Y. S. 798. In New York nonexperts may characterize the acts and words of a person as rational or irrational, but may not so characterize the person doing or saying them. In re Small's Will, 118 App. Div. 602, 103 N. Y. S. 705.

As to values: Witness shown to have independent knowledge of market value of horses held qualified to testify in regard thereto. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Hickox [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 691, 103 S. W. 202. A witness may state market prices of cattle at a particular time and place, basing his testimony on current authentic market reports, but if such testimony is based on private letters, telegrams, or advices, it is incompetent. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Slater [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 682, 102 S. W. 156. Carriage dealers and repairers held qualified to give opinions on value of vehicles, new and second-hand. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wilson's Hack Line [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 226, 101 S. W. 1042. Witness who was in produce business, owned a ranch, had bought cows, and had personal knowledge of several sales and prices paid, held qualified to give opinion on value of cow. Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 401, 101 S. W. 1167. A witness whose information is based on regular market reports may testify to the market value of cattle, though he also gets information from other sources. Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Bennett [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 995, 103 S. W. 1115. In a proceeding for the assessment of street easements for taxation witnesses who had been students of taxation for years and had examined and testified to the value of easements in many cities were qualified to testify to the value of a gas company's easements, knowing their extent, character, etc. Consolidated Gas Co. v. Baltimore [Md.] 65 A. 628. One familiar with the value of real property in the vicinity and with the property in question may testify as to its value. Horner v. Beasley [Md.] 65 A. 820. To qualify a witness in a condemnation proceeding it should appear that he is familiar with the property and uses to which it may be put, and the nature of the improvements, also that he is familiar with the general price and value of property in the neighborhood. Markowitz v. Pittsburg & C. R. Co., 216 Pa. 535, 65 A. 1097. Witness resident in an adjoining borough for thirty years, who had been assessor for twelve years, was familiar with values in the borough in question and knew of sales and prices received. Held qualified in condemnation case. Id. In condemnation proceedings by an elevated road, witnesses who have occupied business houses near elevated roads and observed their effects on the value of such property may testify in regard thereto. Lewis v. Englewood El. R. Co., 223 Ill. 223, 79 N. E. 44. A person whose business is such that he is familiar with the value of an article which is a common subject of sale is competent to testify to its market value, though he has no personal knowledge of any particular sales. Cleveland v. Rowe, 99 Minn. 444, 109 N. W. 817.

Witnesses held not qualified: It is error to allow witnesses to testify to value of land and its boundaries when not shown to be qualified by particular knowledge of the facts. Arnd v. Aylesworth [Iowa] 111 N. W. 407. Witness held not qualified to testify to market value of horses at a town in another state where his knowledge was based on information given by others by letter and telegram, and in part on verbal information, and partly from a sale made there the year before, and on newspaper notices. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Hughes [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 263, 98 S. W. 410. Brakeman who said he did not thoroughly understand railroad braking was not qualified to state whether seven cars going down a certain grade could be stopped with two brakes. Woodstock Iron Works v. Kline [Ala.] 43 So. 362. Witness who had not been in a mill for fifteen years, and knew of machinery in it, only from plaintiff's testimony, held not qualified to give an opinion on the rental value of the mill based solely on cost of maintenance and interest on investment. Munson v. James Smith Woolen Mach. Co., 118 App. Div. 398, 103 N. Y. S. 502. The customary location of signs in street cars could not be proved by conductors who stated that they did not know of any general custom, but that they placed the signs in a certain place. San Antonio Trac. Co. v. Lambkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 382, 99 S. W. 574. Where witness had no special knowledge of values of land in vicinity and had knowledge of only one transaction, his opinion on the value of a tract of land was properly rejected. Walsh v. Board of Education of Newark, 73 N. J. Law, 643, 64 A. 1088. Witness who had not qualified as to the strength of belt lacings, how often they should be replaced, etc., when certain use was shown, held not competent on issue whether proper care was used in replacing lacing. Gilmore v. American Tube & Stamping Co., 79 Conn. 498, 66 A. 4. Testimony as to value of stock properly excluded where witnesses were not shown to be qualified. Commercial & Sav. Bk. of San Jose v. Pott, 150 Cal. 358, 89 P. 431. Where witness testified merely that he knew some of the values of lands adjoining a tract in controversy, he was not shown to have such knowledge that his opinion on the value of the tract in question was competent. Butsch v. Smith [Colo.] 90 P. 61. The mere fact that a person has inspected records does not render competent his testimony that a chattel mortgage was not recorded. Buxton v. Alton-Dawson Mercantile Co., 18 Okl. 287, 90 P. 19. Where physician testified that he had seen and known a case where epilepsy resulted from a head injury seven years thereafter, but on cross-examination it appeared his knowledge consisted wholly of what others had told him, his testimony should have been stricken. Defguard v. New York & L. B. R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A 609.

41. Lumber salesman held qualified to testify as to market price of lumber delivered at New York though he lived in Philadelphia. Kilpatrick v. Whitmer, 118 App. Div. 98, 103 N. Y. S. 75. Expert plumber not qualified to state whether sinking of iron pillar was cause of breaking of tile drain eight or nine feet below. Epstein v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 52 Misc. 184, 101 N. Y. S. 793. Witness who testified that he had had considerable experience with horses, had lived on a farm when a boy, and that his father was a horse trader, held not qualified to state whether a certain injury killed an animal, or what in his opinion killed the horse. Southern R. Co. v. Taylor [Ala.] 42 So. 625. Person who was a plasterer by trade, and not a physician, but who had paid some doctor's bills and surgical bills, held not qualified to give opinion on reasonableness of doctor's charges, where he stated he did not know whether charges were reasonable but they seemed to be customary. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Craig [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 547, 98 S. W. 907. Where experts were shown to be qualified as to the value of street easements of a gas company, it was not necessary to show knowledge of the value of the easements as real estate. Consolidated Gas Co. v. Baltimore [Md.] 65 A. 628. Professional nurse is not qualified as an expert on the value of services rendered by one not a professional nurse, witness admitting that she knew nothing about the value of the services actually rendered. Schou v. Blum, 104 N. Y. S. 887.

43. The proper mode of examining experts is by a hypothetically stated case which should embody substantially all the facts relating to the subject. Hildebrand

Such questions should not include facts not sustained by some evidence.<sup>45</sup> They need not include all the evidentiary circumstances and conditions in detail, where the facts stated necessarily imply the details omitted.<sup>46</sup> It is proper to embody in a hypothetical question the theory of the party proposing it within the limits of what that party's evidence tends to prove,<sup>47</sup> and the question may be so framed as to

v. United Artisans [Or.] 91 P. 542. Hypothetical question should include all facts relevant to the issue which the evidence at the time the question is asked tends to prove. Fregstad v. Great Northern R. Co., 101 Minn. 40, 111 N. W. 838. Instruction on rule that hypothetical question should embody facts in evidence criticized. Vannest v. Murphy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 236. The proper course in examining a medical expert is to state hypothetically the facts in evidence and ask an opinion based thereon. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McCollum, 130 Ill. App. 267.

44. Question to expert on value of personality properly excluded where facts on which the opinion was to be based were not included in the question. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co., 79 Conn. 342, 65 A. 143. A hypothetical question to lawyers to show reasonable value of services rendered held proper which stated in detail the services, time required, work done, value of property involved, responsibility of attorney. Morehead's Trustee v. Anderson, 30 Ky. L. R. 1137, 100 S. W. 340. Where a hypothetical question was designed merely to elicit the fact whether a condition of plaintiff's leg was permanent, it was not objectionable because not assuming all the facts in evidence. Rosier v. Metropolitan Street R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1111. A hypothetical question need not recite all the facts shown by the evidence, but only those necessary as a basis for the opinion sought. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hook [Ark.] 104 S. W. 217. On the issue whether plaintiff's malady had been aggravated by defendant's negligence, opinion evidence was held competent to the effect that his trouble had stopped at a certain time and had grown worse thereafter, where the facts in evidence, on which the opinions were based, showed the plaintiff's symptoms during the entire time. Nelson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 130 Wis. 214, 109 N. W. 933.

45. The hypothetical question should not assume facts not in evidence. Western Elec. Co. v. Prochaska, 129 Ill. App. 589. Opinion based on appliance in evidence which is not shown to be similar to the one causing the injury is incompetent. Id. Expert who has no personal knowledge of the cause of an injury may testify hypothetically as to what might have caused it. City of Chicago v. Saldman, 129 Ill. App. 282. Hypothetical questions based on facts not in evidence are improper. Butler v. Phillips [Colo.] 88 P. 480. Question assuming fact not in evidence held improper. Elzig v. Bales [Iowa] 112 N. W. 540. Hypothetical question improper because not based on facts in evidence. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Craft [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 510, 102 S. W. 170. Expert testimony held inadmissible because based on facts not in evidence. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Leggett [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 676, 99 S. W. 176. Where hypothetical question was designed to draw out opinion on mental capacity of testatrix, but assumed facts as to the giving of medicines to testatrix not supported by evidence, the question was properly rejected. Robinson v. Jones [Md.] 65 A. 814; Frigstad v. Great Northern R. Co., 101 Minn. 40, 111 N. W. 838. Hypothetical question to expert held proper where facts assumed were substantially shown by evidence. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Moore [Ala.] 42 So. 1024. Hypothetical questions should be based upon such facts only as the evidence tends to prove. If as to any material hypothesis such question is without the support of evidence, it should be excluded. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Barnes [Kan.] 90 P. 293.

Questions held proper: Hypothetical question held to assume facts within the evidence. Lanigan v. Neely [Cal. App.] 89 P. 441. Where physician who attended decedent during his last illness testified that he died of embolism, it was proper to assume, in questions to experts as to cause of death, that the physical ailment of which he died was embolism. Kelly v. Wills, 116 App. Div. 758, 102 N. Y. S. 223. Where a physician who had observed plaintiff's symptoms made a clear and positive statement of them, other physicians could give opinions as to what she was suffering from, though the first physician was uncertain as to which of two conditions prevailed. Louisville R. Co. v. Oppenheimer [Ky.] 104 S. W. 720. Question attempting to elicit cause of explosion which assumes the use of steam pipes materially different from those shown by the evidence improper. City of Chicago v. O'Donnell, 124 Ill. App. 78. Where evidence shows that one eye was injured three years before trial and there is no testimony showing the condition of the other eye, it is improper to permit expert to state what would be the result if the uninjured eye became inflamed. Western Elec. Co. v. Prochaska, 129 Ill. App. 589. A hypothetical question reciting facts, and embodying testimony of witnesses heard by the expert, by asking him if he heard it, and assuming it to be true, held proper in form. City of Chicago v. Didier, 227 Ill. 571, 81 N. E. 698.

46. Question held to include necessary facts though omitting details. Nelson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 130 Wis. 214, 109 N. W. 933.

47. Indianapolis Trac. & T. Co. v. Formes [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 872. Hypothetical questions based on testimony of witnesses of party propounding them held proper. Hanstad v. Canadian Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 332. While hypothetical questions must be based on facts in evidence, they may be so framed as to call for an opinion on the theory of the case maintained by the party proposing it. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Barnes [Kan.] 90 P. 293. Hypothetical question based on facts sufficient to enable expert to state whether an injury was permanent held not improper as assuming that it was caused by defendant. Rosier v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1111. It is not error for a party to state to an expert hypothetically the case made by his witnesses, and to have the witness state his opinion upon such hypothetical case of the probable cause of plaintiff's condition as shown by the evidence. City of Chicago v. Bork, 227 Ill. 60, 81 N. E. 27.

48. The mere fact that the answer of an expert may decide the very question at issue before the jury, if the jury should believe it, is no ground of objection to the question and answer. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Henefy [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 407, 99 S. W. 884.

49. Expert who has no personal knowledge of the cause of an injury may testify hypothetically as to what might have caused it. City of Chicago v. Saldman, 129 Ill. App. 282.

50. In considering expert opinions, jury are not to consider personal knowledge of witnesses but only the facts shown by evidence. Vannest v. Murphy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 236. Medical expert cannot give opinion based upon information derived from private conversations with a witness. Hanchett v. Haas, 125 Ill. App. 111.

51. Where physician was called to see deceased after he fell from a tank which he was painting and saw him before he died, his opinion that the man died from inhaling fumes from the paint, based in part on his observations and in part on testimony, was competent. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rutland [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 134, 101 S. W. 529.

52. City of Chicago v. McNally, 227 Ill. 14, 81 N. E. 23. An opinion as to a patient's condition based on outward appearances indicating that a person is irritable, nervous, feeble, or is suffering pain, or capable of performing physical or mental labor, is not objectionable as being based on subjective symptoms. Id. Experts properly allowed to testify as to whether plaintiff was feigning paralysis, their testimony being based wholly on their experiments and what they had observed, her statements to them and subjective symptoms and condition being excluded from their opinions and from the jury. Chicago City R. Co. v. Shreve, 226 Ill. 530, 80 N. E. 1049.

53. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Giese, 130 Ill. App. 608. Opinion of medical expert based solely upon examination of injured person is competent, notwithstanding conversations between them with reference to the injury. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Johnson, 128 Ill. App. 20. Where opinion of medical expert is based on subjective symptoms only, such statements of the patient as relate to symptoms and sufferings at the time of the examination should be considered. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McCollum, 130 Ill. App. 267. Opinions of a physician based in part on self-serving declarations of the patient are incompetent. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Giese, 229 Ill. 260, 82 N. E. 232.

54. Opinion of medical expert based on narration of patient or history of his ailment is inadmissible. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McCollum, 130 Ill. App. 267. Where examination by physician is made for the purpose of supplying testimony as to nature of injuries, all testimony based on subjective symptoms is inadmissible. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Giese, 130 Ill. App. 608. Where physician examines patient for sole purpose of supplying evidence as to his condition, opinion based on subjective symptoms is inadmissible. Chicago City R. Co. v. Shreve, 128 Ill. App. 462.

55. Medical expert may be permitted to testify to pain, suffering, irritability, and dependency, where he shows that he can tell such conditions from objective symptoms. City of Chicago v. McNally, 128 Ill. App. 375. Where opinion of medical expert is based on objective symptoms, the fact that his examination was made long after the accident does not render his testimony inadmissible. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Hampe, 130 Ill. App. 596. Where examination of patient was made solely for purpose of supplying evidence as to the nature of the injuries, the opinion must be based solely on objective symptoms. Chicago City R. Co. v. Manger, 128 Ill. App. 512.

56. What another physician found injured person was suffering from and what treatment he found it necessary to give is improper as the basis of the opinion of a medical expert. City of Chicago v. France, 124 Ill. App. 648.

based on the testimony he has heard in open court is inadmissible,<sup>57</sup> but opinion based on the assumption that the entire testimony of one witness is true is allowable.<sup>58</sup> A hypothetical question must not be so framed as to call upon the expert to pass upon the weight of testimony.<sup>59</sup> The hypothetical question should assume that all facts stated therein are true.<sup>60</sup> Speculative opinions are incompetent.<sup>61</sup> However, only general rules can be prescribed in regard to the character of hypothetical questions, and much discretion must of necessity be vested in the trial court.<sup>62</sup> Wide latitude should be allowed in the examination,<sup>63</sup> which may be directed both to the qualifications of the witness<sup>64</sup> and the soundness and accuracy of the opinion or conclusion which he has stated.<sup>65</sup> Thus the facts on which the opinion is based and the reasons therefor may be shown.<sup>66</sup> The rule that a hypothetical question to an expert must be based on facts proved in the case does not apply on cross-examination of experts.<sup>67</sup> The extent of such cross-examination rests in the sound discretion of the trial court.<sup>68</sup> Substantive evidence not competent in chief is not, however, admissible.<sup>69</sup>

59. Question reciting that one witness "charged" a certain fact which was denied by another held improper. King v. Gilson [Mo.] 104 S. W. 52. Where testimony of physicians that plaintiff's injuries were permanent was based on facts not shown by the evidence, or on plaintiff's own testimony, the weight of which and the facts established by it they must have determined, its admission was error. Leahy v. Gaylord & Eitapenc Co., 117 App. Div. 316, 102 N. Y. S. 78.

60. Illinois Central R. Co. v. McCollum, 130 Ill. App. 267.

61. Expert opinion as to reason for illuminating gas in a room, wholly speculative, and not based on any fact proved, held incompetent. White v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America, 105 N. Y. S. 87.

62. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Barnes [Kan.] 90 P. 293. It should not be required that the question be based on conceded facts, nor that it embrace all the facts of which there is evidence; neither is technical accuracy required in the framing of the question, but no material exaggeration of facts assumed is permissible. 64. Cross-examination of defendant's witness, a physician, to show he could not be as well informed on the facts as plaintiff's physician, held proper. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fink [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 344, 99 S. W. 204. Where physician testified to effect of an injury on bones of the leg, it was error to restrict cross-examination to show his knowledge of the position of the bones normally. Morgan v. Hendricks [Vt.] 67 A. 702. Held improper to inquire on cross-examination of expert how much he was paid for an examination and whether he was paid in other cases. Rowe v. Whatcom County R. & Light Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 921. Questions directed under the theory that injury resulted from causes other than accident complained of are admissible. City of Chicago v. Rosenbaum, 126 Ill. App. 93.

65. Held proper to ask medical expert what authorities sustained his position. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Ertrachter, 228 Ill. 114, 81 N. E. 816. Full cross-examination of person testifying to handwriting should be permitted to show extent of familiarity or knowledge of writing of person in question. Griffin v. Working Woman's Home Ass'n [Ala.] 44 So. 605.

66. Where experts compare writings and give their opinions on the genuineness of a disputed writing, they may properly be required to state their reasons for their opinions. Howard v. Creech [Ky.] 101 S. W. 974. Where witness in railway condemnation case testified that land would depreciate in value on account of the railroad crossing it, it was proper to ask him on cross-examination if he knew of any land which had depreciated or would sell for less because of a railroad crossing it. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 N. E. 281. Expert witnesses should be permitted to state the reasons for their opinions. Quincy Gas & Elec. Co. v. Schmitt, 123 Ill. App. 647.

67. Thomas v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York [Md.] 67 A. 259.

68. The extent of cross-examination of an expert to test his accuracy and credibility rests in the sound discretion of the trial court. Thomas v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York [Md.] 67 A. 259. It is within the discretion of the court to widen the range of cross-examination of an expert even to the inclusion of matters not pertinent to the issues to test his means of knowledge, memory, accuracy, or credibility. West Pratt Coal Co. v. Andrews [Ala.] 43 So. 348.

69. A witness to value may be cross-examined to show his qualification, but substantive evidence not competent in chief is inadmissible. Schonhardt v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 216 Pa. 224, 65 A. 543. Where plaintiff as a witness had placed a certain market value on his property, he cannot on cross-examination be asked what other property in the vicinity has sold for in the last two years. Schonhardt v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 216 Pa. 224, 65 A. 543.

allowed,<sup>72</sup> and courts have power, in such cases, to order plaintiff to submit to a physical examination in proper cases, and under proper circumstances.<sup>73</sup> It is also proper to ask the plaintiff while on the stand in his own behalf if he is willing to submit to such examination.<sup>74</sup> This subject is more fully discussed elsewhere.<sup>75</sup>

71. When the question is as to the working of a mechanical device, as for instance whether a certain link would stay on a knob of a device, the safer plan is to introduce the device itself in evidence and illustrate its workings to the jury. Spurlock v. Shreveport Trac. Co., 118 La. 1, 42 So. 575. In action on fire insurance policy, where defendant introduced evidence that goods burned were cheap and of poor grade, it was not error to introduce in rebuttal some of the articles of the same stock. Bloch v. American Ins. Co. [Wis.] 112 N. W. 45. It is error to admit garment introduced to illustrate the nature of an accident without proof that it is in the same condition as it was immediately after the accident. Chicago Term. Trans. R. Co. v. Korando, 129 Ill. App. 620.

72. Held not error for injured employee to exhibit injured foot to jury and to show by movements and testimony its condition. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lichteiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Refusal to allow exhibition of man's leg which had been amputated, to show extent of injury, held error, though not prejudicial. Ford v. Providence Coal Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 698, 99 S. W. 609. It is proper to allow an injured limb to be exhibited to the jury. McIlwain v. Gaebe, 128 Ill. App. 209.

Contra: A plaintiff, in a personal injury action, cannot be compelled to submit to a physical examination. City of Chicago v. McNally, 227 Ill. 14, 81 N. E. 23.

NOTE. Power of courts to order a physical examination of a plaintiff in a personal injury action: "As to the power of a court to order such examination in proper cases, the overwhelming weight of authority is that it exists. The supreme court of the United States substantially alone has denied the power in Railroad Co. v. Botsford, 141 U. S. 250, 35 Law. Ed. 734. In Brown v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 12 N. D. 61, 95 N. W. 153, the Botsford Case is reviewed. It is said that it is not authority in a state court, and that the reason of the rule as to federal courts comes from the fact that all United States courts other than the supreme court must, in the absence of statute, follow the mode of proof as it existed in actions at common law. By the state courts, however, with unusual unanimity, it is held that courts have the power to order such examinations, and should exercise it with a sound discretion. In some states, as New York, the matter is controlled by statute, but where it is not a matter of statute the courts are uniform in declaring the existence of the power. Says the supreme court of Minnesota: 'To allow the plaintiff in such cases to call in as many friendly physicians as he pleases, and have them examine his person, and then produce them as expert witnesses upon the trial, but at the same time to deny the defendant the right in any case to have a physical examination of plaintiff's person and leave him wholly at the mercy of such witnesses as the plaintiff sees fit to call, constitutes a denial of justice too gross in our judgment to be tolerated for one moment.' Wanek v. Winona, 73 Minn. 98, 80 N. W. 851, 79 Am. St. Rep. 354, 46 L. R. A. 448. Says the supreme court of Indiana in City v. Turner, 156 Ind. 418, 60 N. E. 275, 83 Am. St. Rep. 200, 54 L. R. A. 396: 'When serious and permanent injuries are claimed by the plaintiff, and he or she has submitted to an examination by a chosen physician or surgeon, who appears as a witness in plaintiff's behalf, and the nature, extent, and effect of the injury are to be deduced from objective conditions, and so fully from no other source, no degree of sentiment will justify the refusal of the motion. When it becomes a question of probable violence to the refined and delicate feelings of the plaintiff, on the one hand, and probable injustice to the defendant on the other, the law will not hesitate; the court in making such orders with respect to time, place, and person, in every case, having such due regard for the feelings of the plaintiff and proprieties of the case as the ends of justice will permit.' Photographs,<sup>76</sup> and maps or plats, are competent evidence when authenticated and shown to have been properly made,<sup>77</sup> and when it is shown that they correctly represent the actual conditions of facts sought to be proved or explained.<sup>78</sup> Photographs are received as either secondary or demonstrative evidence according to their use.<sup>79</sup> Whether a photograph, plat or model offered in evidence has been properly verified is a question for the trial court, the decision of which is ordinarily final.<sup>80</sup> Where evidence of this character is introduced only to explain or apply testimony of witnesses, greater latitude is permitted.<sup>81</sup> A plat which purports to show matters not within its province is inadmissible,<sup>82</sup> but the fact that photographs and plats are incorrect in respect to minor matters not in issue does not render them incompetent.<sup>83</sup>

76. Photographs of scene of accident held competent. Kansas City So. R. Co. v. Morris, 80 Ark. 528, 98 S. W. 363. In action for injuries at railroad crossing, photographs of the railway and highway at the crossing were competent evidence. Illinois So. R. Co. v. Hayer, 225 Ill. 613, 80 N. E. 316. In action for personal injuries, photograph of sore, taken some weeks after injury, held competent evidence. Davis v. Adrian, 147 Mich. 300, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1023, 110 N. W. 1084. X-ray photographs, or skiographs, properly authenticated, are competent evidence. Elzig v. Bales [Iowa] 112 N. W. 540. Photographs of two cars which had collided held competent in action for injuries received by motorman of one who jumped. Edge v. Southwest Mo. Elec. R. Co. [Mo.] 104 S. W. 90. Where photograph is admitted for the purpose of showing the general surroundings of the place of accident but not as to a particular feature, it is error to exclude evidence tending to show that the photograph was a correct representation of conditions at the time of the accident and to exclude from the jury a consideration of such particular feature. City of Chicago v. Hutchinson, 129 Ill. App. 239. Where X-ray photograph of injured limb is introduced in evidence, it is error to exclude a photograph of a normal limb. Mellwain v. Gaebe, 128 Ill. App. 209.

77. X-ray photographs held admissible when shown to have been made by post graduate physician with twelve years' experience who had experience with such photographs, who testified they were correct representations of the subject-matter. Chicago City R. Co. v. Smith, 226 Ill. 178, 80 N. E. 716. Physician in describing plaintiff's condition used photographs showing the patient's back and illustrating enlargement of certain vertebrae of the spine. The photographer was not called, but the physician testified that photographs were made in his presence and under his direction. They were held competent. McKarren v. Boston & N. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 477. Where map was shown to have been made by a person under direction of witness who said he was familiar with the premises, but was not shown to be correct by the sworn statement of the person who made it, the map was inadmissible. Camden v. New York, 103 N. Y. S. 971. Unproved map showing route of proposed railroad incompetent. In re Central R. Co. [N. J. Law] 65 A. 905.

78. Photograph of furniture held not to show its quality and condition so as to be competent evidence of its value. Foss v. Smith, 79 Vt. 434, 65 A. 553. Photographs of scene of railroad accident, three years after the accident, inadmissible where there was no proof that the place had not changed. Columbia, etc., R. Co. v. State [Md.] 65 A. 625. Photographs of sidewalk where accident occurred, taken the day after, held inadmissible where the only evidence that its condition was the same consisted in testimony that there was no great change, or no change except more wear. Crandall v. Dubuque [Iowa] 112 N. W. 555. In action for damages by fire, photographs of the place burned over, showing combustible material and remains, were held admissible though photographer did not testify to correctness of photograph, other evidence showing that they substantially represented the conditions. Smith v. Central Vermont R. Co. [Vt.] 67 A. 535.

79. As secondary, a photograph represents the original, as demonstrative it serves to explain, illustrate, or apply the testimony. Elzig v. Bales [Iowa] 112 N. W. 540.

80. McKarren v. Boston & N. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 477.

81. Maps of railroad right of way containing descriptions shown to be correct held admissible to illustrate testimony of witnesses though not made by persons who made survey. Portland & S. R. Co. v. Ladd [Wash.] 91 P. 573. Where correctness of a survey was in issue and surveyor testified, an uncertified plat was held competent to aid in showing in a general way the shape and location of the land in question. Austin v. Whitchee [Iowa] 110 N. W. 910.

82. Plat of a room with statement thereon to the effect that a door shown therein is always locked is inadmissible. Corning v. Dollmeyer, 123 Ill. App. 188.

83. Photograph showing that portion of the place where accident occurred concerning which testimony was given it is admissible though it does not show all of the conditions of the place. Illinois S. R. Co. v. Hayer, 128 Ill. App. 315.

86. Proof of experiments. De Loach Mill Mfg. Co. v. Tutweiler Coal, Coke & Iron Co. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 790. In action against railroad for killing stock, the vital point on the issue of negligence was the distance the stock could have been seen on the track by the engineer. Held competent for plaintiff to prove the results of experiments covering this point, made subsequently to the time of the accident, when made at the same place, under facts and circumstances substantially similar to those surrounding the accident. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Hudson [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 500. Experiments in presence of jury should be permitted only when conditions are shown to be the same. Chicago Tel. Supply Co. v. Marne & Elkhorn Tel. Co. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 935. In action for death of man riding velocipede on railroad track, struck by a train, on the issue whether the engineer could have seen the man killed, he testifying that he could not see him until within 750 yards of him, evidence of two experiments were held admissible; one was at 3:30 p. m. and the other about 6 p. m., and at both times it was shown that a man six feet high, in his shirt sleeves, standing at the place in question, could be seen at a distance of 1,000 yards plainly. Houston & T. G. R. Co. v. Ramsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 745, 97 S. W. 1067. Where action was for injuries caused by bursting of steam pipe, experiments to show the pressure to which the pipe had been subjected were properly excluded, where the conditions were not shown to be substantially the same. Mitchell v. Sayles [R. I.] 66 A. 574. Plaintiff was burned by electric wires and tests were made to determine the cause. Held evidence as to whether the report of the tests contained a true statement of the manner in which the plant was run when the tests were made was admissible. Rasmussen v. Wisconsin Trac., Light, Heat & Power Co. [Wis.] 113 N. W. 453.

Scope of this section: Only a few general rules are here included, other topics treating of the province of court and jury (Questions of Law and Fact, 8 C. L. 1566), the propriety of granting a nonsuit (Discontinuance, Dismissal and Nonsuit, 9 C. L. 982), or directed verdict (Directing Verdict and Demurrer to Evidence, 9 C. L. 975), the extent to which appellate courts will review questions of fact (Appeal and Review, 9 C. L. 211), and the sufficiency of evidence on particular issues (see topic dealing with the particular matter involved, such as Master and Servant, 8 C. L. 840).

89. See Witnesses, 8 C. L. 2347.

90. The jury should reconcile evidence if possible, if not they should accept that most entitled to credit under all the circumstances. Reed v. Continental Ins. Co. [Del.] 65 A. 569; Rogers v. Rogers [Del.] 66 A. 374; Reese v. Hoeffcker [Del.] 65 A. 583; Staunton v. Smith [Del.] 65 A. 593; Simeone v. Lindsay [Del.] 65 A. 778. It is the duty of the jury to reconcile conflicting testimony if possible. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Miller [Fla.] 44 So. 247. Where facts and circumstances shown in evidence are so much at variance with the testimony of a witness as to cast a doubt upon the truthfulness of the witness, his testimony is not to be given the greater weight. Johnston v. New York City R. Co., 54 Misc. 642, 104 N. Y. S. 812. Testimony of a disinterested witness to a fact within his knowledge which is not improbable and not in conflict with other evidence is legal proof of the fact. In re Miller's Will [Or.] 90 P. 1002. In estimating the weight of testimony the jury should consider the witnesses' means of knowledge, their intelligence, apparent fairness and truthfulness, and other facts and circumstances shown by the evidence going to the reliability of such witnesses. Simeone v. Lindsay [Del.] 65 A. 778. The jury may believe part of the testimony of witnesses and disregard other parts. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 190, 101 S. W. 506. Where in an action for damages for wrongful death there was positive, uncontradicted evidence that deceased had never been sick prior to the injury resulting in his death, it was held that life expectancy tables were conclusive on the issue of his life expectancy. Davis v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 147 Mich. 479, 111 N. W. 76. See Questions of Law and Fact, 8 C. L. 1566.

91. The testimony of an interested party is not conclusive though he is not impeached and his testimony is uncontradicted. Burleson v. Tinnin [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 350. But the fact that a witness may have some interest in the controversy does not warrant rejecting his testimony in toto. The fact that certain witnesses were or had been in the employ of one of the parties held not to warrant jury in disregarding their testimony. Christianson v. Graver Tank Works, 223 Ill. 142, 79 N. E. 97.

92. Where a hostile witness uses ex-means of knowledge, apparent intelligence or capacity,<sup>93</sup> his conduct or demeanor while on the stand,<sup>94</sup> and the inherent improbability of the testimony offered.<sup>95</sup> Thus the testimony of a witness is not ordinarily conclusive even though uncontradicted,<sup>96</sup> though it will ordinarily be controlling in the absence of any impeaching or discrediting circumstances, or inherent inconsistency or improbability.<sup>97</sup>

A preponderance of the evidence, by which is meant the greater weight of evidence, and not necessarily the greater number of witnesses,<sup>98</sup> is all that is required in civil cases.<sup>99</sup> In determining whether a recovery is warranted, all the evidence pressions favorable to the side he opposes, a court may properly attach more importance thereto than to the main purport of his narrative. Fleming v. Howard, 150 Cal. 28, 87 P. 908.

93. Intelligence and capacity of witnesses, or their want thereof, may be considered. Manufacturers' Fuel Co. v. White, 228 Ill. 187, 81 N. E. 841. Though a six year old child is allowed to testify, its age is an important element in determining the weight to be given its testimony, which is for the jury. Van Salvellergh v. Green Bay Trac. Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 1120.

94. Jury is not required to believe a witness, though he is not impeached directly or by the inherent impossibility of facts stated by him; it may disregard his testimony because of his manner of testifying and his behavior on the stand. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Murray [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 566, 99 S. W. 144.

95. Oral testimony in direct contravention of natural laws must be deemed incredible. Oral testimony that railroad semaphore showed red to one, green to another, and blurred to a third, all looking at it from the same direction. Tillson v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 67 A. 407. Neither courts nor jurors are bound by the uncontradicted testimony of an interested party, which appears to be untruthful by reason of improbable or inconsistent statements. Testimony by holder of note that he was bona fide holder, note being without consideration, rejected. Gosline v. Dryfoos [Wash.] 88 P. 634. Party's own testimony that he could not see objects directly in front of him held entitled to no weight where circumstances showed that he must have seen them. Scanlon v. Butler-Duncan Land Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 364.

96. The jury is not bound by uncontradicted testimony which is not consistent with other circumstances proved. Logue v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [Me.] 65 A. 522. Though testimony is uncontradicted, it may be rejected if inherently improbable or self-contradictory. Gorman v. Hand Brew. Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 209. Jury is not bound to accept testimony of witness as conclusive though uncontradicted. McCracken v. Lantry-Sharp Contracting Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 939, 101 S. W. 520. Credibility of witnesses and evidence is for trial court, trying the facts, though direct testimony of two witnesses on issue was uncontradicted. Hunter v. Wethington [Mo.] 103 S. W. 543. The jury may disregard testimony of interested parties, though uncontradicted, and find for the opposing party, subject of course to the court's power to grant a new trial. First State Bk., Iowa, v. Hammond [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 677. Jury are sole judges of credibility of witnesses and weight to be given their testimony, and they may reject the testimony of a witness, although he is not contradicted by other witnesses when the circumstances cast a suspicion on his statements or render them inconsistent with reason or common observation. El Paso Foundry & Mach. Co. v. De Guereque [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 405, 101 S. W. 814.

97. Plaintiff's corroborated and uncontradicted testimony on a point held not to have been rendered improbable by other testimony. Berus v. New York City R. Co., 52 Misc. 181, 101 N. Y. S. 748. Testimony which is not improbable and is not in any way contradicted is conclusive. Molloy v. Whitehall Portland Cement Co., 116 App. Div. 839, 102 N. Y. S. 363. Where defendant offers no testimony, plaintiff's testimony must be taken as true, and inferences therefrom which are reasonable must be drawn. McGill v. Gargoula, 103 N. Y. S. 113. Where a plaintiff is the sole witness in her own behalf, but her testimony is clear, uncontradicted, and not inherently improbable, and is sufficient as to the facts shown to constitute a cause of action, it is error to render judgment for defendant. Karl v. New York City R. Co., 52 Misc. 650, 101 N. Y. S. 750. Uncontradicted and unimpeached testimony of an employee that he had warned a street car conductor to look out for a pole near the track held sufficient to sustain burden of showing a warning had been given. Savage v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 633. Mill company's quotation for flour delivered at a certain place being only evidence of market value, and not being attacked, held proper basis of finding thereon. Bowie v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 59 S. E. 65.

98. Preponderance of evidence does not depend on the number of witnesses. Atoka Coal & Min. Co. v. Miller [Ind. T.] 104 S. W. 555. Where there are but two witnesses and their testimony is in direct conflict, it does not necessarily follow that plaintiff has failed to establish his case by a preponderance of the evidence, the circumstances pointing to the truth of plaintiff's testimony. Omensky v. Gieske, 125 Ill. App. 77. The number of witnesses may be considered in determining where the preponderance of evidence lies. Elgin, J. & E. R. Co. v. Lawlor, 229 Ill. 621, 82 N. E. 407.

99. Reed v. Continental Ins. Co. [Del.] 65 A. 569; Hartzell v. Murray, 127 Ill. App. 608. Preponderance of evidence is sufficient to prove claim for services rendered to decedent. Miller v. Steele [C. C. A.] 153 F. 711. In a civil action the party having adduced by both parties should be considered,<sup>1</sup> and if possible reconciled.<sup>2</sup> The proof must correspond to the facts alleged,<sup>3</sup> since a party cannot plead one cause of action and recover upon proof of another.<sup>4</sup> A prima facie case, unrebutted, warrants a recovery.<sup>5</sup> A verdict may be supported by circumstantial as well as by direct evidence,<sup>6</sup> but the circumstances shown must reasonably tend to establish the theory of the party relying on such evidence,<sup>7</sup> and must be inconsistent with every other reasonable theory.<sup>8</sup>

Usually, positive testimony is entitled to be given greater weight than negative,<sup>9</sup> but this rule does not render negative testimony incompetent<sup>10</sup> or insufficient<sup>11</sup>

the burden of proof is not required to show the existence of a fact absolutely, but is only required to reasonably satisfy the jury of its existence. Dorough v. Harrington [Ala.] 42 So. 557. An instruction that a party must establish a fact "to the entire satisfaction of the jury" held erroneous. McEntyre v. Hairston [Ala.] 44 So. 417.

1. In determining whether the evidence is sufficient to sustain a verdict, all the evidence, adduced by both parties, will be considered. Murray v. Butte, 35 Mont. 161, 88 P. 789. A deficiency in plaintiff's evidence may be supplied by defendant's evidence so as to warrant judgment for plaintiff. Western Assur. Co. v. Chesapeake Lighterage & Towing Co. [Md.] 65 A. 637.

5. Temple v. Phelps, 193 Mass. 297, 79 N. E. 482.

6. In civil as well as criminal cases a fact may be established by circumstantial evidence, and a jury may accept such evidence and base a finding or verdict thereon, although opposed by the direct and positive testimony of witnesses. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Colliati [Kan.] 88 P. 534. Sending and receipt of papers by mail may be proved by circumstantial evidence. Cain v. Corley [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 644, 99 S. W. 168. Notice of facts to put a person on inquiry may be shown by circumstantial evidence. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. City Trust, Safety Deposit & Surety Co. [Ind.] 82 N. E. 52.

7. Where circumstantial evidence is the only kind available, as in action for damages by fire alleged to have been started by sparks from a locomotive, a verdict for plaintiff will not be set aside if the circumstances shown furnish ground for the jury to find that it was reasonably probable that sparks from the locomotive started the fire. Minard v. West Jersey & S. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1054. There is nothing for the jury in a case supported wholly by circumstantial evidence, unless it tends to establish the conclusion claimed in some appreciable degree; a mere scintilla of inconclusive circumstances, giving no scope for legitimate reasoning by the jury, does not carry the burden of proof. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Harris, 1 Ga. App. 714, 57 S. E. 1076. There must be some substantial evidence to support a verdict or findings, the jury cannot be left to conjecture in passing upon the issues. Evidence held insufficient to show that work was done for defendant at the request of any authorized person. Silver Mountain Mine Co. v. Anderson [Colo.] 92 P. 226.

8. Where a plaintiff in a civil case supports his action solely by circumstantial evidence, he is not entitled to a verdict unless the circumstances shown are shown by a preponderance of evidence to be consistent with the theory advanced by him, and inconsistent with every other reasonable theory. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Harris, 1 Ga. App. 714, 57 S. E. 1076.

9. Testimony of one witness that signal was given is stronger than of another that he did not hear it. Illinois Southern R. Co. v. Hamill, 128 Ill. App. 152. Testimony of witness that he had not heard matter contained in contract discussed held to have no weight. Bryson's Adm'r v. Biggs [Ky.] 104 S. W. 982. Positive testimony of engineer and fireman that locomotive whistle was blown held entitled to greater weight than testimony of other witnesses whose attention was not called to the situation that they did not hear it. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCoy [Ind. T.] 104 S. W. 620. When one or more witnesses testify that they saw an object or heard a signal upon a given occasion, their testimony is to prevail over that of a same number of witnesses of equal candor who testify that they did not hear or see it. The Fin Mac Cool [C. C. A.] 147 F. 123.

10. Where it was charged that a guardian's deed was fraudulent and that grantee was a fictitious person, and guardian testified that he lived in a certain county, testimony of persons who lived in the county that they were well acquainted there and knew no one of that name was competent. Phelps v. Nazworthy, 226 Ill. 254, 80 N. E. 756.

11. The rule as to the superiority of positive over negative testimony does not necessarily render the latter inefficient in case of the former, its weight is for the jury. Van Salvellergh v. Green Bay Trac. Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 1120. Testimony of witnesses who were in a position to hear whistle of train, if blown, and bell, if rung, and whose attention was called to the train, that no signals were given, is entitled to some weight and is some evidence that no such signals were given. Stotler v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 200 Mo. 107, 98 S. W. 509. In action for injuries resulting from collision with car, held not necessary to disregard plaintiff's positive testimony that he looked for but could not see a car, though other witnesses testified that they were able to see it for some distance. Indiana- where there is also positive testimony. The weight to be given negative testimony depends upon the situation of the witness, his opportunity to hear or see or know the facts, his attention or inattention and other attendant facts and circumstances.<sup>12</sup>

polls St. R. Co. v. Taylor, 39 Ind. App. 592, 80 N. E. 436. In action for damages for killing animals on railroad track, positive, uncontradicted testimony by three of the train crew that they did not see the animals on the track could not be totally disregarded by the jury. Miller v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [S. D.] 111 N. W. 553.

12. The rule as to positive and negative testimony should not be applied inexorably, but due regard should be had to the circumstances of the particular case. The Pin MacCool [C. C. A.] 147 F. 123. Where it is alleged that a locomotive bell was not rung as it approached a crossing, the evidence of witnesses who were present, conscious, in the possession of their physical senses, and listening for signals, that they did not hear it ring has probative value sufficient to take the issue to the jury, though other witnesses testify that the bell did ring. Cotton v. Willmar & S. F. R. Co., 99 Minn. 366, 109 N. W. 835. Where trackman was struck by a train, and the engineer, fireman, and brakeman testified positively that the crossing and danger signal was given, and three others testified that danger signal was given, the testimony of three other persons, more than a half mile away, eating breakfast inside closed doors that no signals were given was held insufficient to raise a conflict in the evidence. Hoffard v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 446. It is improper to charge the jury that positive testimony is to be believed in preference to negative without qualifying the charge with reference to the credibility of witnesses. Central of Ga. R. Co. v. Orr [Ga.] 57 S. E. 89.

NOTE. Negative and affirmative evidence: "When it is sought to prove the non-existence of sound by the testimony of witnesses, the conditions essential to the competency of the evidence must be supplied. The probative value to be given to the fact that a witness did not hear the sound depends upon the condition of his senses, his proximity to place, the degree of attention, and other such circumstances which render it more or less probable that, if the sound had been made, the witness would have heard it. Hence the mere statement of a witness that he did not hear a bell rung is valueless as evidence, unless it further appears that he was able to hear and was in a position and under conditions where he would probably have heard the sound had it been made. The degree of attention will affect the value of the evidence but the fact that the witness was not giving his direct attention at the time for the purpose of learning whether signals were given will not destroy the value of the evidence if he was present at the crossing, was conscious, and in the possession of his ordinary senses, and testifies positively that he heard no signal. The testimony of a witness that he did not hear a bell rung is thus of itself, as against direct and positive testimony of another that the bell did ring, no evidence that it did not ring, but, taken in connection with evidence showing that the witness could and probably would have heard it, had it been rung, and that he was listening to hear it ring, is evidence that it did not ring. The position and situation of the witnesses, the attention they were giving, and their credibility, and the weight of the evidence are questions for the jury. Moran v. Eastern R. Co., 48 Minn. 46, 50 N. W. 930; Green v. Eastern R. Co., 52 Minn. 79, 53 N. W. 808; Peterson v. Mpls. St. R. Co., 90 Minn. 52, 95 N. W. 751; *Tenn., etc., R. Co. v. Such evidence, while negative in form, is affirmative in substance. Grabill v. Ren, 110 Ill. App. 587. The cases cited by appellant are not inconsistent with this rule, as a careful examination of the facts of each case will disclose that some essential element was absent. In Bohan v. Milwaukee, etc., R. Co., 61 Wis. 391, 21 N. W. 241, and Tully v. Fitchburg R. Co., 134 Mass. 499, stress is laid upon the inadequacy of such evidence. The substance of these decisions is that it is not enough for a witness to say merely that he does not remember having heard a bell ring. "Courts have often been asked," says Wigmore, "to exclude testimony based on what may be called negative knowledge—i. e., Testimony that a fact did not occur—founded upon the witness' failure to hear or see a fact which he would supposedly have heard or seen if it had occurred. But there is no inherent weakness in this kind of knowledge. It rests upon the same data of the senses. It may even sometimes be stronger than affirmative impressions. The only requisite is that the witness should have been so situated that in the ordinary course of events he would have heard or seen the fact had it occurred." 1 Wigmore, Evidence, § 664; 2 Elliott, Ev. § 969; 6 Thompson, Negligence, § 7865; 5 C. L. 1369.—From opinion by Elliott, J., in Cotton v. Willmar & S. F. R. Co., 99 Minn. 366, 109 N. W. 837.

Opinion evidence on value of services is not conclusive on the jury. Jennings v. Stripling, 127 Ga. 778, 56 S. E. 1026. Testimony of attorney, claiming for services, and of his expert as to value of services, held not binding on the jury. Jetter v. Zeller, 104 N. Y. S. 229.

14. Jury may find injuries to be permanent, though such finding is not supported by expert testimony, such testimony not being exclusive. Payne v. Whatcom County R. & Light Co. [Wash.] 91 P. 1084.

15. Expert testimony is to be given consideration like all other testimony which the court allows to go to the jury and accorded such weight, as, in view of all the evidence, of every kind and nature, and its reasonableness, and the apparent candor and competency of the witnesses, in fairness demands. Instructions on weight to be given expert testimony criticised. Ball v. Skinner [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1022. In the consideration of the testimony of medical experts the test of consistency and reasonableness, always having reference to the other testimony in the case, which their opinions may tend to corroborate or contradict, should be applied. If the opinion of a medical expert is made up from a prejudiced view and with a predetermined purpose, it has no weight and is in fact unsafe and dangerous. Id. The opinions of experts based on hypothetical questions have little or no weight unless the assumed facts are true, and it is proper for the court to so instruct the jury. Anderson v. Husted, 79 Conn. 535, 66 A. 7. Expert testimony in response to hypothetical questions is not wholly valueless, though there is a variance between the facts assumed and those shown by the evidence; its weight is for the jury. Id.

tions based on the assumption that he received a certain letter, he could not thereafter claim that the proof failed to show that he received the letter. Auer v. Hoffmann [Wis.] 112 N. W. 1090.

19. Statements of a party against interest are presumptively but not conclusively true. Randolph v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 125 Mo. App. 620, 102 S. W. 1085. Letter claiming a certain amount is not conclusive when there is evidence that a mistake was made in the letter in stating the amount. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Pelham, 52 Misc. 658, 102 N. Y. S. 461. It is improper to instruct that testimony by plaintiff against her interest "must be taken as true," while statements made by her as a witness in her own favor are to be given such credit as the jury believe them entitled to. McGinnis v. Rigby Printing Co., 122 Mo. App. 227, 99 S. W. 4. Admissions of liability for loss of property which defendant had agreed but failed to keep insured, made after the loss occurred, held insufficient to support cause of action because without consideration. Wilson-Moline Buggy Co. v. Pruebe, 123 Mo. App. 521, 100 S. W. 558. A mere statement of defendant's attorney that defendant concedes that a certain amount is due plaintiff, nothing being said by the other attorney, is not such a concession as to warrant a reversal. Ryan v. Brown, 104 N. Y. S. 871. Admissions upon a former trial are merely evidence taking the place of proof. Potash v. Utopia Land Co., 48 Misc. 402, 95 N. Y. S. 571. Pettet v. Benoit, 193 Mass. 233, 79 N. E. 245.

21. Indefinite admissions of the decedent to a third party held insufficient to prove a claim against his estate, evidence of this character being weak and unsatisfactory. Clarke v. Roberts Estate [Colo.] 87 P. 1077. While parol proof of admissions and declarations of a decedent is the weakest species of evidence, it is entitled to consideration when corroborated by contemporaneous memoranda and the action and conduct of deceased with reference to the subject-matter at issue. Succession of Zacharie [La.] 43 So. 988.

22. Miller & Co. v. McKenzie, 126 Ga. 746, 55 S. E. 952.

Evidence admitted without proper objection may be considered even though it would be inadmissible over a proper objection,<sup>23</sup> and on a motion for a nonsuit evidence which is relevant must be considered though erroneously admitted.<sup>24</sup>

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

§ 1. General Rules of Examination (1312).
Leading Questions (1314). Responsiveness (1315). Refreshing Memory (1315).

§ 2. Cross-examination (1317).
§ 3. Redirect Examination (1324).
§ 4. Recalling Witness for Further Examination (1325).

Scope of article.—This article treats generally of the rules governing the examination of witnesses in both civil and criminal cases, except those peculiarly applicable to the examination of experts, which are treated in the preceding article.<sup>26</sup> Matters pertaining to the impeachment of witnesses, and the privileges of witnesses,<sup>27</sup> and general questions of trial procedure, such as the exclusion of witnesses from the court room,<sup>28</sup> and the proper manner of raising objections,<sup>29</sup> are elsewhere discussed.

§ 1. General rules of examination.<sup>30</sup>—The manner of examining witnesses is a matter resting largely in the discretion of the trial court, though controlled by certain well settled general rules.<sup>31</sup> Greater latitude is allowed in the examination of an ignorant and illiterate witness who does not understand the English language nor the methods of taking testimony in court procedure.<sup>32</sup> It is proper for the trial court to examine witnesses, when this course is deemed necessary to elicit the truth, but this right should be carefully exercised so as not to indicate, directly or indirectly, any opinion on the merits or any bias in favor of either party,<sup>33</sup> and in the exercise of Extracts from deeds and title books, containing substance of deeds greatly abbreviated, being admitted by agreement, would be construed according to their manifest meaning. Evans v. Foss [Mass.] 80 N. E. 587. Evidence which is relevant is to be weighed, notwithstanding an objection to its competency if made would have been sustained. Metropolitan Music Co. v. Shirley, 98 Minn. 292, 108 N. W. 271.

24. Without or against objection. Archibald Estate v. Matteson [Cal. App.] 90 P. 723.

25. The Louisiana rule that a contract above $500 must be proved by at least one credible witness and corroborating circumstances does not apply where the items of the contract are amply proved. Harliss v. Drews [La.] 43 So. 1008. To establish the existence and contents of a lost deed, the proof must be so cogent, clear, and forcible as to leave no doubt in the mind of the chancellor. Haworth v. Haworth, 123 Mo. App. 202, 100 S. W. 531. A written instrument will not be overturned by parol testimony unless the testimony be clear, unequivocal, and decisive. Mason v. Harlins [Ark.] 102 S. W. 228.

31. Not error to permit county attorney to read from the statement of facts in a former trial and ask witness if she made certain statements. Pool v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 271, 103 SW 892.

32. State v. Fowler [Idaho] 89 P. 757.

33. State v. Caron, 118 La. 349, 42 S. 960. Judge has inherent right to question witness, but should be so guarded as not to give even a hint of his opinion of the veracity of the witness, or any impression as to merits of case. Dreyfus v. St. Louis & S. R. Co., 124 Mo. App. 585, 102 SW 53. Presiding judge should not by form or manner of his examination intimate an opinion upon the facts. Rouse v. State [Ga. App.] 58 SE 416. Leading question asked by court held proper to clear up misunderstanding as to testimony given on cross-examination, which was susceptible of two meanings. Territory v. Meredith [N. M.] 91 P. 731. Chance remark of court regarding a practice held not ground of objection. State v. Cornelius, 118 La. 146, 42 S. 754. Court in examination of witness held to have violated Civ. Code 1895, § 4334, in intimating opinion to jury. Dicks v. State [Ga. App.] 58 SE 335. Witness having made positive assertion of fact, held improper for court to catechise witness at length as to his being absolutely sure of the truth of the fact stated, and to tell a sound discretion the trial court may permit a juror to ask a witness a question.<sup>34</sup> For the court to assist a witness, liable to embarrassment or confusion, by directing the manner of testifying is not improper.<sup>35</sup> The number of witnesses to be examined may, in some instances, be limited in the discretion of the court.<sup>36</sup> Needless repetition,<sup>37</sup> or a prolonged and useless examination,<sup>38</sup> may be prevented in the discretion of the court. Counsel in their interrogatories should not improperly characterize facts as to which inquiry is made.<sup>39</sup> Questions should be asked in proper form or they will not be allowed.<sup>40</sup> They should call for the knowledge and not cogitations of witnesses.<sup>41</sup> Questions put to witnesses should not call for a conclusion,<sup>42</sup> nor should they assume as true facts in issue,<sup>43</sup> or as to which there is no evidence.<sup>44</sup> Questions should not be too general in their nature,<sup>45</sup> but should be clear,<sup>46</sup> specific, and certain.<sup>47</sup> Hypothetical questions, pertinent to the subject under investigation, may be witness if he was mistaken he could correct his statement, and to ask him to think and see if he was not mistaken, and to correct his testimony if there was any doubt. Glover v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 147 F 426. See, also, Trial, 8 C. L. 2163, for remarks and conduct of court indicating bias.

34. Must not be in violation of general rules established for eliciting testimony. State v. Kendall, 143 N. C. 659, 57 SE 340.

35. Held not error for trial court to direct prosecutrix, a girl under sixteen years of age, to tell in her own way all that occurred at the time an alleged assault was made upon her. People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 91 P 810.

36. Limited to eight on question of reputation for peaceableness and quietness of defendant in homicide. People v. Wright [Cal. App.] 89 P 364.

37. Gracy v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Cal.] 42 S 903; American Car & Foundry Co. v. Hill, 226 Ill. 227, 80 NE 784; Elgin, J. & E. R. Co. v. Lawlor, 229 Ill. 621, 82 NE 407; Tucker v. Buffalo Cotton Mills [S. C.] 57 SE 626. The court may limit the examination of a witness to prevent a reiteration of his testimony. Benson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 257, 103 SW 911. Refusal to permit defendant to restate matters of testimony fully gone over no error. Stern v. Bradner, Smith & Co., 225 Ill. 430, 80 NE 307. Sustaining objection to question where matter had already been brought out on examination held no error. State v. James [Utah] 89 P 460.

38. Court has power to prevent useless examinations that do not tend to throw light on the issues. State v. Caron, 118 La. 349, 42 S 960. Discretion held not abused in refusing to hear further evidence on point to which questions directed. Mutchmor v. McCarty, 149 Cal. 603, 87 P 85.

39. Held error for prosecutor to characterize an alleged conversation in his interrogatory as "cruelty" or "ill-treatment." State v. Blydenburg [Iowa] 112 NW 634. Likewise, held improper for witness to do so in his answer, even inferentially. Id.

40. Question held not in proper form, and properly disallowed, where in an action for personal injuries, plaintiff, on cross-examination, was asked if she was willing to submit to a physical examination as to her injuries. City of Chicago v. McNally, 227 Ill. 14, 81 NE 23.

41. In an action for maintaining a nuisance, the question if witness did not think a privy had been for years located at or within a few feet of a new privy held objectionable as not calling for knowledge of witness. Town of Vernon v. Edgeworth [Ala.] 42 S 749.

42. McGuire v. Iowa County, 133 Iowa, 636, 111 NW 34. Error held not prejudicial. Doyle v. Eschen [Cal. App.] 89 P 836. The question "what were they aiming to do?" asked concerning the common objects of certain employees, held properly refused as calling for a conclusion. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Hill, 226 Ill. 227, 80 NE 784. Question held not objectionable as calling for conclusion. Iler v. Miller [Neb.] 111 NW 589.

43. Fleming v. State [Ala.] 43 S 219. In the absence of proof to establish allegations necessary to be proved, held improper to ask questions predicated on the assumed existence of the facts pleaded. Dewey v. Komar [S. D.] 110 NW 90. Hypothetical question asked expert held not objectionable as assuming facts not in proof. Coon v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 89 P 682.

44. Allred v. State [Ala.] 44 S 60; Alabama Lumber Co. v. Cross [Ala.] 44 S 563.

45. Compressors were installed in defendant's plant by plaintiff, and on the issue of their sufficiency a question asked an expert as to whether or not in 1885 he saw better compressors than those installed in use in England was properly excluded as too general. Mathieson Alkali Works v. Mathieson [C. C. A.] 150 F 241.

46. Schmoe v. Cotton, 167 Ind. 364, 79 NE 184. A question asked an expert witness: "State whether or not this hay you saw there is considered as marketable hay here in Baker City, compared with other kind that is sold here," held to sufficiently advise the court as to what was sought to be proved by the witness. Eaton v. Blackburn [Or.] 88 P 303.

47. Where question called for condition of highway 300 feet east of where witness saw defendant's automobile, east of place of accident, objection for not specifying place with certainty sustained. Strand v. Grinnell Automobile Garage Co. [Iowa] 113 NW 488. Matter may be made more definite and exact on cross-examination. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Martin [Ala.] 42 S 618. A question calling for witness' opinion as to a testator's mental asked on cross-examination, especially where they do not assume impossible conditions.<sup>48</sup> It has been held proper to permit a witness to use a map to explain his testimony.<sup>49</sup>

Leading questions.<sup>50</sup>—In general, leading questions, that is those which suggest a desired answer,<sup>51</sup> are improper on direct or redirect examination, but the matter is one resting in the trial court's discretion,<sup>52</sup> and a ruling will not be interfered with on appeal unless an abuse of discretion is made to appear,<sup>53</sup> whether a question is leading, or, if leading, is objectionable, depends largely upon the circumstances attending the examination of the witness.<sup>54, 55</sup> Where a witness is hostile or unwill-capacity prior to a certain date was held objectionable for indefiniteness as to time. Huyck v. Rennie [Cal.] 90 P 929. Not identifying persons referred to by pronoun. Strickland v. State [Ala.] 44 S 90.

48. Held error not to permit witness on cross-examination to give his opinion as to whether a railroad would be a benefit to land under certain future conditions, which were not impossible. Taber v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 67 A 9.

49. Although map not admitted in evidence. State v. Harrison [N. C.] 58 SE 754 [advance sheets only].

On redirect examination. Indianapolis & E. R. Co. v. Bennett, 39 Ind. App. 141, 79 NE 389. Trial court vested with reasonable degree of discretion to permit leading questions. People v. Way, 104 NYS 277. Although testimony taken in form of deposition. Breiner v. Nugent [Iowa] 111 NW 446. In bastardy proceedings held within discretion of court to permit district attorney to ask prosecutrix leading questions (Johnson v. State [Wis.] 113 NW 674), or to ask defendants' witness if he had drunk anything the day before (Id.). Though a party calls the opposing party to the stand as his witness, the court may prohibit counsel for the latter from asking leading questions on cross-examination. Lauchheimer v. Jacobs, 126 Ga. 261, 55 SE 55. Court may ask witness a leading question. Territory v. Meredith [N. M.] 91 P 731.

53. "Only in extreme cases, if at all, will a reviewing court order a new trial because leading questions were propounded to the witness." Barker v. State, 1 Ga. App. 286, 57 SE 989. While improper, the fact that an examination was conducted by the state by asking a series of leading questions held not reversible error. Taylor v. State [Ark.] 102 SW 367. Discretion not abused in allowing leading questions to be asked a witness thirteen or fourteen years old, somewhat unfamiliar with the English language, and embarrassed while on the stand. McCann v. People, 226 Ill. 562, 80 NE 1061. Discretion not abused in permitting. Purcell Cotton Seed Oil Mills v. Bell [Ind. T.] 104 SW 944; People v. Way, 104 NYS 277; Territory v. Meredith [N. M.] 91 P 731; People v. Sexton, 187 N. Y. 495, 80 NE 396.

54, 55. Held leading and objectionable: Question "when an engine is out upon a track, * * * is there not any usual or general custom, * * * with reference to whether or not a machinist working under such engine shall protect himself?" held leading and objectionable. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Conrad [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 566, 99 SW 209. Witness having stated that having a railroad in the street abutting owners could get spur tracks for manufacturing concerns by asking for them held no error to allow question on cross-examination—"They always get spur tracks, do they, when they ask for them?" Davis v. Farwell [Vt.] 67 A 129. Question, in action by employee for wrongful discharge, whether or not after witness had made his contract with defendant it was generally understood that plaintiff was to be discharged held leading and erroneously permitted. Seago v. White [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 183, 100 SW 1015. Question "was there any necessity for any one in removing the brake shoe to put himself in such position that the engine driver would run over him and catch him?" held leading and objectionable. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Conrad [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 566, 99 SW 209.

Held not objectionable: Question "Did you make any demand upon the defendant for the value of said damaged goods?" held not leading. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Drought & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 912, 100 SW 1011. Question "Did you see any other tracks there like those you described a while ago?" held not leading. Hickey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 142, 102 SW 417. Where accused's testimony tended to show that he killed his wife accidentally, held not error for state to ask him "So, you killed your wife accidentally?" Thomas v. State [Ala.] 43 S 371. Held not leading though answerable by "Yes" or "No." St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Lowe [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 265, 97 SW 1087. Hypothetical question asked physician, testifying concerning plaintiff's injuries, in action for damages for personal injuries, held not leading. Gal-

ing,<sup>56, 57</sup> or is lacking in intelligence and cannot comprehend the questions propounded,<sup>58</sup> it is not error to allow leading questions to be asked, and such questions are also proper to refresh or aid the recollection of a witness whose memory has failed him.<sup>59</sup> Ordinarily it is permissible to ask expert witnesses leading questions, when an opinion is desired on subjects concerning which such witnesses have peculiar information on account of professional knowledge.<sup>60</sup>

Responsiveness.<sup>61</sup>—Voluntary statements of the witness not responsive to the question may be excluded on application for such relief.<sup>62</sup> Whether an answer should be stricken out on motion as not being responsive is a matter resting within the discretion of the trial court,<sup>63</sup> and a ruling will not be disturbed unless the discretion is abused.<sup>64</sup> Where the question asked concerns an original contract, an answer referring only to a copy is not responsive.<sup>65</sup> That an answer is not responsive does not necessarily render it inadmissible,<sup>66</sup> and only the examining party can complain that an answer is not responsive.<sup>67</sup> A motion to take from the jury an entire answer as unresponsive is properly overruled, where a part of the answer is directly responsive and the remainder is not prejudicial.<sup>68</sup>

Refreshing memory.<sup>69</sup>—For the purpose of refreshing his memory, a witness may consult any memorandum made at or near the time of a transaction or occurrence, whether made by himself or another,<sup>70</sup> when the recitals of the memorandum

App. 101, 79 NE 219; Harrold v. Territory, 18 Okl. 395, 89 P 202. The placing of limitations upon the cross-examination discretionary with trial court. Earley v. Winn, 129 Wis. 291, 109 NW 633. On cross-examination much is left to the trial court as to latitude and range to test sincerity and recollection of witness. Gregory v. State [Ala.] 42 S 829. It is the duty of the court to protect the witness and to insist on his being treated with the proper respect by counsel, but, in view of the latitude allowed in cross-examination, and of the fact that the demeanor of the witness is before the court, much must be left to the discretion of the court. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ala.] 43 S 844. It was discretionary with the court to limit the cross-examination of state's witness, respecting his prejudice against defendant, to his feelings in a general way, and then not to permit detail. State v. Baird, 79 Vt. 257, 65 A 101. Within discretion of court to refuse to compel witness of contestant of will, on ground of lack of testamentary incapacity, on cross-examination to state which of several circumstances indicating insanity was in his judgment the most significant. O'Dell v. Goff [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 399, 112 NW 736. Where an investigator of defendant traction company testified in its behalf the scope of the cross-examination with reference to the work he had done for defendant in other cases was held largely in discretion of trial court. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Ertrachter, 228 Ill. 114, 81 NE 816. In an action on a beneficial certificate witness was asked on direct examination to identify a letter from defendant's supreme secretary referring to certain proof papers, and was asked to what papers the letter referred, and defendant was permitted on cross-examination of witness to have him identify the proof papers and mark them for subsequent reference. Held error harmless, but such practice should not be encouraged. Hildebrand v. United Artisans [Or.] 91 P 542.

92. Exercise of discretion held extreme, but not grounds for reversal. Earley v. Winn, 129 Wis. 291, 109 NW 633. Discretion not abused. Mefford v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co., 121 Mo. App. 647, 97 SW 602. Ruling held not erroneous or prejudicial. People v. Sexton, 187 N. Y. 495, 80 NE 396. No abuse of discretion in refusal to permit witness to be asked on cross-examination whether in making certain statements she told the truth. Wright v. State [Ala.] 43 S 575. No error in permitting witness to be asked if she realized what would happen to her in another world if she swore falsely, and if she knew the nature of an oath, and penalty for false swearing. State v. Armstrong, 118 La. 480, 43 S 57. Court did not err in sustaining objection to question asked witness by defendant if he was as certain as he was of everything else he had testified about. Gregory v. State [Ala.] 42 S 829. Question relating to witness being a fugitive from justice at time of arrest held not objectionable. State v. Cornelius, 118 La. 146, 42 S 754. Held that trial court unduly and needlessly restricted cross-examination. People v. Mitchell [Cal. App.] 89 P 853.

93. A question already substantially answered may be excluded. Schmoe v. Cotton, 167 Ind. 364, 79 NE 184. Repetition of question for third time on cross-examination properly disallowed. Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 211, 102 SW 1134.

94. Extent to which prolonged largely within discretion of trial court. Horton v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 870, 103 SW 467. Where plaintiff while on the stand as an adverse witness produced a written agreement, and twice denied that there was any agreement except the written one, the court was justified in stopping further examination. State v. Walker, 133 Iowa, 489, 110 NW 925; Odegard v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 659, 110 NW 809.

95. Error in refusal to allow plaintiff when testifying to be cross-examined as to called for cross-examination.<sup>96</sup> The trial court has discretionary power to permit one defendant to cross-examine a co-defendant,<sup>97</sup> or witnesses introduced by a co-defendant.<sup>98</sup> Ordinarily a party cannot cross-examine his own witness,<sup>99</sup> but the right to do so, and extent to which carried, is a matter resting largely within the discretion of the trial court.<sup>1</sup> The defendant cannot cross-examine counsel of complainant on statement filed after close evidence constituting a mere summary prepared from the evidence.<sup>2</sup> Usually, the direct examination cannot be interrupted to permit a cross-examination on the same subject, as the cross-examination may be made when the direct examination is concluded.<sup>3</sup> When a defendant in a criminal prosecution takes the stand in his own behalf, he may be cross-examined the same as any other witness,<sup>4</sup> and his credibility may be impeached in the same manner.<sup>5</sup> previous admissions tending to show knowledge that would affect claim. Snell v. Roach [Ala.] 43 S 189. On cross-examination of a person injured by being expelled from a train, it was not objectionable to ask witness if it was not a fact that it was because she was a Christian Scientist. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Travis [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 70, 99 SW 1141. Sustaining objection, held error, as invading the right of cross-examination. Id. It is proper to allow a party on the stand, testifying in his own behalf, to state where he had lived and what business he had followed, in order that the jury may have a better idea of who the witness is and what weight his opinion merits. Mussellam v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 104 SW 337.

96. Plaintiff called by defendant. Odegar v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 659, 110 NW 809. Held not error to permit plaintiff, in an action against a corporation, to examine an owner of the corporate stock called by him in such manner as would elicit the facts, though amounting to a cross-examination, as he was in reality a defendant. North American Restaurant & Oyster House v. McElligott, 227 Ill. 317, 81 NE 388. Cross-examination of plaintiff by defendant held proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 3376. Mahoney v. Dixon, 34 Mont. 454, 87 P 452.

97. In an action against a seller for failure to deliver according to the contract of sale, and against the carrier for failure to deliver according to the contract of carriage, being consolidated, it was held that the seller, if called as a witness by the carrier and appearing hostile, could be cross-examined, and if called in his own favor, and the court found that the carrier was affected by his evidence, could permit the carrier to cross-examine him. Sullivan v. Fugazzi, 193 Mass. 518, 79 NE 775.

98. One joint defendant who did not offer evidence on the trial, and at the close of plaintiff's evidence announced its intention to abide by its motion for a peremptory instruction, which had been refused, was properly allowed to cross-examine witnesses introduced by the other defendant, and to argue to the jury facts brought out by the witnesses. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Likes, 225 Ill. 249, 80 NE 136.

Waives constitutional right to silence, and is subject to same latitude of cross-examination as ordinary witness. Harrold v. Territory, 18 Okl. 395, 89 P 202. May be examined, cross-examined, or impeached as any other witness. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 S 312. Subject to full cross-examination (State v. Rowell, 75 S. C. 494, 56 SE 23), except that he is not bound to incriminate himself (Id.). Held proper to permit cross-examination of accused, in prosecution for violating prohibitory law, to a previous charge, and plea of guilty, to violation of same law, where instructions given to fully protect his rights. State v. Plomondon [Kan.] 90 P 254. Cannot defeat cross-examination on ground that testimony might tend to incriminate. Ex parte Hedden [Nev.] 90 P 737. When accused takes stand he waives the constitutional protection, as to incriminating evidence, concerning all facts relevant to the issues, and may be fully cross-examined. Pate v. State [Ala.] 43 S 343. Where accused on trial for homicide was asked on cross-examination concerning his criminal intimacy with a certain woman, and if he had not threatened to kill any one who went to see her, held no error, if so not prejudicial. Carr v. State [Ark.] 99 SW 831. Accused, on trial for violating local option law, having testified on direct examination that on the day of arrest he made "more bonds than one in similar cases," held not reversible error to allow state to ask on his cross-examination if he had been arrested in eleven other cases for violations of same law. Benson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 113, 101 SW 224. Defendant, on prosecution for practicing medicine without certificate, on taking stand compelled to respond to inquiry as to what was the ingredient of a so-called nerve food used by him. State v. Hefferman [R. I.] 65 A 284. Could not refuse to answer on ground that the secret as to the composition of the nerve food was his private property. Id.

App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 172, 101 SW 993. Cross-examination must be limited to the material matters testified to in chief. Mamuel v. Flynn [Cal. App.] 90 P 463. Held no error to refuse cross-examination as to matter to which direct examination did not relate. Morse v. Odell [Or.] 89 P 139. Under Missouri statute the cross-examination of an accused must be confined to subject-matter of examination in chief. State v. Teasdale, 120 Mo. App. 692, 97 SW 995. Witness not having given an opinion on direct examination, held no error to refuse cross-examination as to a conversation he had in which he expressed an opinion. Ross v. Minneapolis, etc. R. Co. [Minn.] 113 NW 573. Proper to refuse proponent to cross-examine witness of contestant of will who had testified to lack of testamentary capacity of testator induced by spiritualism, on subject of other religions and their effect on testamentary capacity. O'Dell v. Goff [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 399, 112 NW 736. Where an examination in chief of a character witness was confined to defendant's general reputation, the court may refuse cross-examination concerning his actual character. Green v. Dodge, 79 Vt. 73, 64 A 499. On direct examination witness not having testified to general character of prosecutrix could not be asked on cross-examination if there was not a report in the community derogatory to her character. State v. Whitley, 141 N. C. 823, 53 SE 820. On cross-examination of defendant's employee, who did not prepare answer, and concerning which he was not examined in chief, objections to questions relative to averments therein properly sustained. Multnomah County v. Willamette Towing Co. [Or.] 89 P 389. No objection that answers affect credibility. State v. Brown, 118 Ala. 373, 42 S 969. Witness who did not on direct examination touch on accident resulting in injury should not be asked the name of party who witnessed it. Chicago City R. Co. v. Strong, 230 Ill. 58, 82 NE 335. Where direct examination was confined to identification of a book and as to the contents of a lost writing, cross-examination as to witness' private business affairs is improper. Citizens' Sav. Loan & Bldg. Ass'n

v. Weaver, 127 Ill. App. 252. Where a witness used only two pages of a book to refresh his memory, cross-examination as to the entire book is improper. Bistriz v. Star Fire Ins. Co., 105 NYS 116.

8. Cross-examination held responsive to direct examination. Rector v. Robins [Ark.] 102 SW 209; Wefel v. Stillman [Ala.] 44 S 203. Questions held to be within scope of direct examination. Lanigan v. Neely [Cal. App.] 89 P 441. On cross-examination, it appearing that witness was commonly called "doctor," and that when asked by the conductor of the car on which plaintiff, witness' wife, was injured, his name, witness handed him a handbill containing his name, picture, location of his office, and advertisement of his methods of treatment, held proper inquiry on cross-examination if witness was a licensed practitioner, if he prescribed for his wife (Grant v. Spokane Trac. Co. [Wash.] 91 P 553), and handbills properly admitted in evidence (Id.).

9. Witness having testified generally to situation and conditions surrounding an accident, and to certain acts of decedent, may be cross-examined in detail as to conduct of decedent immediately preceding the accident. Fadley v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 153 F. 514. Party introducing a contract may be cross-examined as to the circumstances of its execution. Ruderman v. Schwartz, 100 NYS 1017. Accused, on trial for selling whisky to Indians, having testified in chief as to whisky, beer, and intoxicating liquors possessed by him at the time of and prior to the offense charged, was properly cross-examined regarding what alcohol he kept about the premises. Bruchman v. U. S. [Ariz.] 89 P 413. A witness having been questioned regarding the directions and instructions of a testator for drawing his will was properly cross-examined in full as to statements by testator regarding his testamentary wishes. Huyck v. Rennie [Cal.] 90 P 929. Plaintiff having admitted receiving certain letters from defendant which were not produced, and that copies shown him were correct, on cross-examination, defendant was entitled to ask him concerning contents of letters. Beard v. Southern R. Co., 143 N. C. 137, 55 SE 505. In an action for damages for personal injuries, witness having been asked on direct examination if he asked plaintiff how he was hurt, or location of injuries, and what, if anything, he said about being hurt in the back, and on what part of his leg he said that he was hurt, held proper on cross-examination to ask if in the same conversation plaintiff told witness how he got hurt and to tell what he said. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Lindsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 304, 101 SW 863. Where witness on direct examination testified as to the habit and custom of an engineer in making couplings, held proper on cross-examination to ask whether or not engineer was in the matters connected with the subject-matter of the direct examination, and which tend to explain, contradict, or discredit the testimony in chief, are competent.<sup>10</sup> Where a cross-examination covers matters outside the scope of the direct examination, the examining party makes the witness his own to that extent.<sup>11</sup>

Limitation to issues.<sup>12</sup>—The cross-examination should generally be confined to material issues in the case,<sup>13</sup> but this, also, is a matter resting largely within the discretion of the trial court,<sup>14</sup> and the examination may include collateral matters under some circumstances.<sup>15</sup>

Examination going to credibility of witness.<sup>16</sup>—It is always proper on cross-examination to interrogate a witness, within reasonable bounds, as to any matter of fact calculated to affect his credibility or the weight of his testimony,<sup>17</sup> and the extent of the examination for this purpose is necessarily left largely to the discretion habit of making couplings with unusual force or violence. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Crosby [Fla.] 43 S 318.

10. Harrold v. Territory, 18 Okl. 395, 89 P 202. An agent of the purchaser of bank stock having testified to his reliance upon the reports of the bank to the comptroller of the currency, held error to exclude answers to questions calling for explanations of agent's testimony bearing upon extent of reliance. Smalley v. McGraw, 148 Mich. 384, 14 Det. Leg. N. 226, 111 NW 1093. Where witness testified that he was present at time crime committed, held proper, on cross-examination, to ask who else was present, and if others were present if they could have seen or did see a knife in the hand of decedent. Benson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 257, 103 SW 911. Witness having testified to flooding of land by construction of defendant's railroad bridge, and the size and extent of gullies and depressions thereby resulting, on cross-examination, held proper to ask if land was not subject to overflow before building bridge, and the depressions then existing. Matteson v. New York Cent. & H. R. Co. [Pa.] 67 A 347. A state witness on his direct examination having testified to a sale by defendant to him of six bottles of beer, at a certain time and place, held proper to permit him to testify on cross-examination that he purchased the beer from defendant on the day named, between stated hours, and gave two bottles to certain persons, and another bottle to a person he did not know. Seiwert v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 109 Tex. Ct. Rep. 135, 103 SW 932.

11. Bispham v. Turner [Ark.] 103 SW 1135.

12. See 7 C. L. 1607.

13. State v. Seigenthaler, 121 Mo. App. 510, 97 SW 271. As being irrelevant plaintiff, a broker, suing for commissions for procuring a purchaser of real estate, could not be asked, on cross-examination, if he had a license as a real estate agent. Reeder v. Jones [Del.] 65 A 571. The purpose of witness not on trial, in receiving a bribe, as to which he has testified in an election contest, not being in issue, cannot be brought out on cross-examination. Tinkle v. Wallace, 167 Ind. 382, 79 NE 355. In action for personal injuries by certain machinery, witnesses for both sides having testified as to size of rope at cotton press where injury occurred, held not irrelevant on cross-examination of defendant's witness to ask if specifications sent out by dealers in the machinery called for a special sized rope that size would be necessary. McCarley v. Glenn-Lowry Mfg. Co., 75 S. C. 390, 56 SE 1. Objection to question properly sustained on ground of irrelevancy and materiality. Du Bose v. State [Ala.] 42 S 862. Permitting questions not bearing on any phase of issues and tending to prejudice witness in opinion of jury held error. Wallen v. Wallen [Va.] 57 SE 596. No error in refusal to permit question on cross-examination having no apparent relevancy to issue. Douglass v. State [Fla.] 43 S 424. Error to allow state to show on cross-examination that witness claimed a reward for arresting accused. Smith v. State [Miss.] 43 S 465. Matter held collateral to issue, and objection to question properly sustained. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Carr, 106 Va. 508, 56 SE 276.

14. Unless discretion is flagrantly abused, it is not reviewable. Harrold v. Territory, 18 Okl. 395, 89 P 202. Abuse of discretion to permit questions wholly foreign to issues, although the court gave the witness the privilege of not answering. State v. Belknap [Wash.] 87 P 934.

15. May extend to matters not inquired about on examination in chief. Harrold v. Territory, 18 Okl. 395, 89 P 202. Question on cross-examination of defendant held not objectionable as invading rule against state putting character of deceased in issue, where defendant has not put his character in issue. Bays v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 99 SW 561.

16. See 7 C. L. 1608.

17. Miller v. Oklahoma Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 330; State v. Blackburn [Iowa] 110 NW 275; Mahoney v. Dixon, 34 Mont. 454, 87 P 452. Inquiries having tendency to diminish force of witness' testimony, or impeach his credit, held proper. Crosby v. Wells [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A 295. Witness may be cross-examined in regard to his conduct having a tendency to discredit his testimony. State v. Caron, 118 La. 349, 42 S 960. Moral character may be impeached on cross-examination if it assists justice. Id. But even to affect credibility it is inadmissible to ask a witness if stolen property had not been found in his possession, and if he had not been forced to pay for the property. Miller v. Oklahoma Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F 330.

of the trial court.<sup>18</sup> Matters tending to show the interest, bias, or hostility of the witness may be shown,<sup>19</sup> and questions tending to test the fullness and accuracy of a witness' observation, examination, and recollection, or his truthfulness, character, and skill, are proper.<sup>20</sup> Thus, particular facts inconsistent with a general statement

18. It is discretionary with the court to permit inquiry about collateral and irrelevant fact, if it materially aids jury in forming opinion as to credibility of witness. Shotts v. McKinney, 39 Ind. App. 101, 79 NE 219. Action will not be disturbed except for such abuse as works injury to party complaining. State v. Pugh [Kan.] 90 P 242. Discretion not abused. State v. Kanton [Wash.] 91 P 250; City of Greenville v. Spencer [S. C.] 57 SE 638. No abuse of discretion in latitude of cross-examination allowed. Horton v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 870, 103 SW 467. The discretion of the trial court must in a large measure determine the extent to which cross-examination upon wholly collateral issues may be permitted for testing a witness' honesty, credibility, or accuracy of recollection. Greer v. Union St. R. Co., 193 Mass. 246, 79 NE 267. As preliminary to evidence affecting witness' credibility, it was discretionary with the court to permit on cross-examination witness to be asked if he was the person who had a lawsuit in the court some time since, in which he swore that he did not execute a note to a person named. Shotts v. McKinney, 39 Ind. App. 101, 79 NE 219.

19. Pendency of suit between witness and party. Gosdin v. Williams [Ala.] 44 S 611. Witness may be asked if he has any feeling toward either party. Blair v. Blair, 125 Ill. App. 341. May be asked if he did not assist in selecting jury. Village of Humboldt v. Watkins, 123 Ill. App. 62. Held proper for defense, for purpose of impairing testimony of prosecution's witness, to show his interest by asking if he had not contributed money to aid prosecution, and his purpose in so doing. Miller v. Oklahoma Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F 330. Held proper for defense to show that an attorney, offered as a witness for the prosecution, had received a retainer in the case to assist the prosecution, also capacity in which retained. Miller v. Oklahoma Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F 330. As showing interest and bias, held permissible to ask witness, a doctor, on cross-examination, such questions as would show that he had been habitually called by plaintiff's counsel, and that his fees for professional services were contingent on a recovery of damages. Horton v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 870, 103 SW 467. Allowing state to cross-examine witness for defense as to whether he was not a suitor of accused's daughter held proper. State v. Miles, 199 Mo. 530, 98 SW 25. Held permissible in state on prosecution for homicide to ask witness on cross-examination if he did not tell a certain person, called as a witness, not to say anything about the affair. Heninburg v. State [Ala.] 43 S 959. Great latitude to show bias should be allowed. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. McManus, 1 Ga. App. 302, 58 SE 258. Permissible to show prejudice against defendant in a general way, but inquiry in detail refused. State v. Baird, 79 Vt. 257, 65 A 101.

Cross-examination permitted to discover motives, feelings, and prejudices. Chicago City R. Co. v. Smith, 226 Ill. 178, 80 NE 716. No error in refusing to allow cross-examination to extend to collateral matters to show motive or prejudice. Id.

20. City of Greenville v. Spencer [S. C.] 57 SE 638. Questions are proper on cross-examination which might affect the fullness and accuracy of the observations and examinations of a physician testifying as to examination of plaintiff at time and place of wreck, in which he received personal injuries. Southern R. Co. v. Lester [C. C. A.] 151 F 573. Witness testifying that he bought of a certain person may be asked if he did not in fact buy of another. Coburn v. State [Ala.] 44 S 58. In an action for injury to a horse in transitu, where the evidence of market value was slight, and was chiefly opinion evidence covering a wide range of values, and the evidence showed a recent sale of the horse for $300, held error to sustain objection to question, on cross-examination, to witness who stated that horse was worth $7,000, as to whether, if the horse was bought for $300, and other horses like him could be bought in the market for the same price, the horse would be worth $7,000. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Newsome [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 SW 646. A stenographer who took down testimony at a former trial, and testified to the testimony in such trial by a deceased witness, held properly cross-examined by being required to read his transcript of the evidence for purpose of testing his memory and veracity. Austin v. Com., 30 Ky. L. R. 295, 98 SW 295. On cross-examination of plaintiff held permissible to show, as a mere test of memory, that he was mistaken in its accuracy, that he was a man of large possessions, and operator in many affairs. Waggoner v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 490, 101 SW 1058. Questions designed to test accuracy and knowledge on subject testified to on direct examination are proper on cross-examination. San Antonio Trac. Co. v. Haines [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 606, 100 SW 788. Improper to inquire into correctness of witness' opinion in cases about which questioned. Horton v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 870, 103 SW 467. Where witness could not recall the number of cases in which he testified, proper to allow counsel to name a particular one. Id. Where matter merely prejudices jury outside of issue, or beyond object legitimately falling within the reason for cross-examination, question is properly refused. State v. Seigenthaler, 121 Mo. App. 510, 97 SW 271. Question erroneously permitted. Id. For purpose of impairing credibility, witness may be cross-examined concerning his past conduct and character. State v. Pugh [Kan.] 90 P 242. Questions tending to test character or skill of witness permissible. Harrold v. Territory, 18 Okl. 395, 89 P 202.

of the witness may be inquired into.<sup>21</sup> In the case of experts or witnesses who give opinion evidence, a wide range of examination is proper to test the accuracy and value of their opinions.<sup>22</sup> A character witness may be examined as to his knowledge of particular facts concerning the person whose reputation is in issue.<sup>23</sup> Previous statements inconsistent with the testimony on the trial may be shown,<sup>24</sup> provided the statements are not so vague and indefinite as not to have any tendency to contradict the witness,<sup>25</sup> when the proper foundation has been laid.<sup>26</sup> A foundation for the impeachment of a witness may be laid on cross-examination.<sup>27</sup> Ordinarily, a witness

21. Witness having testified on direct examination that he had no money except such as his father gave him, held proper, on cross-examination, as tending to contradict him, to ask if he had not presented a claim for $115 against a certain estate, and if it was not paid. Joyce v. Joyce [Conn.] 67 A 374. Accused, on trial for violating the local option law, having stated on his direct examination that he was merely engaged in running a pool hall and selling tobacco, held proper, on cross-examination, to allow the state to ask if he did not have an internal revenue license. Benson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 113, 101 SW 224. Plaintiff on direct examination having stated that defendant never said anything about paying for a window broken in building leased, held proper on cross-examination to ask concerning an offer made by defendant conditioned on plaintiff's repairing window at once, and as to an inability to bring the top of the door within the case, and to defendant's repairs in that respect. Drouin v. Wilson [Vt.] 67 A 825. Cross-examination held proper, and if not answer was not prejudicial. Borden v. Lynch, 34 Mont. 503, 87 P 609.

22. Expert witness may be cross-examined as to basis of opinion, and as to whether the authorities are not to the contrary. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Ertrachter, 228 Ill. 114, 81 NE 816. Permissible to ask physician testifying as expert if he agreed with statements on the subject found in text books, admitted by them to be standards. State v. Blackburn [Iowa] 110 NW 275. In proceedings to condemn right of way for railway, witness having testified for landowner and given opinion concerning injury to the remainder by the building of the road, held competent to ask witness if he knew of any farm which was depreciated in value by reason of a railroad like petitioner going across it, or any farm that sold or would sell for less on that account. Eldorado, etc., R. Co. v. Everett, 225 Ill. 529, 80 NE 281.

23. Where district attorney had stated that he would not attack reputation of defendant, on trial for homicide, for peaceableness, held not error to allow cross-examination as to such reputation. People v. Wright [Cal. App.] 89 P 364. Witnesses having testified that the character of decedent for peace and quietude was bad, held proper to ask on cross-examination as to particular instances showing bad character of which they had personal knowledge. Weaver v. State [Ark.] 102 SW 713.

24. Cross-examination held proper where import of question, if answered in the affirmative, would tend to modify and discredit statements on examination in chief. Sperbeck v. Camden & S. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A 1012. Questions as to occurrence of a conversation containing statements inconsistent with testimony permitted. People v. Tubbs, 147 Mich. 1, 13 Det. Leg. N. 959, 110 NW 132. Cross-examination as to conversations contradictory of testimony held proper. Gurden v. Stevens, 146 Mich. 489, 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 NW 856. The averments of an original declaration, which had been withdrawn, filed by plaintiff's authority, and on information to some extent furnished by him, properly admitted on cross-examination for purpose of impeaching him. Browder v. Southern R. Co. [Va.] 57 SE 572. On cross-examination witness may be asked concerning alleged written statement signed by him without introducing the paper in evidence. State v. Rowell, 75 S. C. 494, 56 SE 23. Witness having testified on direct examination that he was present when the liquor, sold in violation of law, was delivered by accused, his brother, and that accused merely acted as agent for another person, purchasing the liquor, held proper on cross-examination to ask if he had not, prior to trial, stated to prosecuting attorney that accused was not at the place in question on the day he was alleged to have sold the liquor. Hood v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 106, 101 SW 229. On the cross-examination of a physician, a medical certificate signed by him, stating that he had examined insured on a certain day was properly admitted to contradict his former evidence that he had not made an examination at that time. Paquette v. Prudential Ins. Co., 193 Mass. 215, 79 NE 250. Quaere: If on cross-examination it is permissible to show by a witness that he had testified differently on a former occasion, and that his testimony was correct. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Gunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 571, 99 SW 152. As bill of exceptions did not show what answer of witness would have been, no prejudice was shown by refusal of lower court to permit witness to answer, and assignment of error overruled. Id.

25. Gleason v. Daly [Mass.] 80 NE 486.

26. Where a witness is cross-examined as to a conversation with certain persons in which his statements were inconsistent with his testimony, the occasion should be fully identified to witness. Gurden v. Stevens, 146 Mich. 489, 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 NW 856.

27. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Rodas [Ky.] 102 SW 321. Question whether witness for defense had been arrested, tried, and convicted of assault and battery held proper on cross-examination for purpose of im-cannot be cross-examined as to collateral and irrelevant matter for the purpose of contradicting him,<sup>28</sup> though the matter may be governed by statute,<sup>29</sup> and having answered as to collateral or irrelevant facts, the answer cannot be contradicted,<sup>30</sup> even for the purpose of impeachment;<sup>31</sup> but this rule does not wholly preclude cross-examination as to collateral matters relevant to the issue for the purpose of contradicting witness,<sup>32</sup> and has no application to testimony introduced by the opposite party.<sup>33</sup> Where facts sought to be shown are such as tend to discredit the witness in the particular case on trial, as distinguished from facts which tend to discredit him generally, the rule forbidding contradiction on collateral matters does not apply.<sup>34</sup> A witness cannot be impeached by incompetent evidence.<sup>35</sup> A defendant in a criminal peachment. People v. Tubbs, 147 Mich. 1, 13 Det. Leg. N. 959, 110 NW 132. Witness may be asked on cross-examination if he had a conversation with certain persons, and made certain statements, contradictory to his testimony, for the purpose of impeaching him. Gurden v. Stevens, 146 Mich. 489, 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 NW 856. No error in refusing impeaching questions where no foundation had been laid. Whitney v. Cleveland [Idaho] 91 P 176.

28. Loranger v. Carpenter, 148 Mich. 549, 14 Det. Leg. N. 223, 112 NW 125; Moody v. Peivano [Cal. App.] 88 P 380; Mathieson Alkali Works v. Mathieson [C. C. A.] 150 F 241. Cross-examination on collateral matters, not relevant to issues, properly refused. State v. Sweeney [Kan.] 88 P 1078. Questions having no bearing on the issues are not admissible to test witness' credibility, where the evidence which may be thus elicited does not tend to contradict witness' testimony in his direct or previous cross-examination. Greer v. Union St. R. Co., 193 Mass. 246, 79 NE 267. Permission to inject collateral matter into case to afford opportunity to contradict witness held properly refused. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Quinn [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 825, 104 SW 397. Witness cannot be cross-examined as to any fact collateral or irrelevant to the issue merely for purpose of contradiction by other evidence should he deny it, thus discrediting his testimony. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Crosby [Fla.] 43 S 318. In action for deceit refusal to allow defendant to inquire into grounds of separation between plaintiff and her first husband held proper, fact being immaterial. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 524, 101 SW 1061. So, with attempt to show that plaintiff had testified in another case that she had never borne but one child, while in present case she testified she was the mother of four children. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 524, 101 SW 1061. On cross-examination of defendant, held proper to ask as to number of times he had testified in the case before, if he had not testified in all of the trials, and if at a certain trial he testified the same as in the present trial. Hickey v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 142, 102 SW 417. That no objection is made to an irrelevant statement brought out on cross-examination of defendant does not entitle prosecution to draw it into the issue and contradict it. Dalton v. People, 224 Ill. 333, 79 NE 669.

Evidence held material and not purely collateral. Pelkey v. Hodgdon [Me.] 67 A 218. The extent to which a party who becomes a witness in his own behalf may be cross-examined on irrelevant matters to affect his credibility rests largely in the discretion of the trial court. State v. Quirk [Minn.] 112 NW 409. Though extended and severe, held not to exceed discretion. Id.

29. By Code Civ. Proc. § 3144, the trial court is vested with discretionary power to permit inquiry into collateral facts affecting the credibility of a witness. Mahoney v. Dixon, 34 Mont. 454, 87 P 452.

30. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Carr, 106 Va. 508, 56 SE 276; Dunham v. Salmon, 130 Wis. 164, 109 NW 959.

32. Smith v. Mine & Smelter Supply Co. [Utah] 88 P 683.

33. "The rule that testimony collateral to the issue cannot be contradicted does not apply to testimony introduced by the opposite party, but is confined to testimony introduced by cross-examination of an opponent's witness, or otherwise, by the party which proposes to contradict it." Pelkey v. Hodgdon [Me.] 67 A 218.

34. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Clements [Ark.] 99 SW 1106. Specific acts may be shown which tend to discredit, though collateral and irrelevant. State v. Pugh [Kan.] 90 P 242. Witness may be cross-examined on matters foreign to the issue when it reasonably tends to affect his credibility. State v. Katon [Wash.] 91 P 250. On cross-examination of plaintiff in libel suit, held proper exercise of discretion to permit question as to how many times she had been a witness before and on denial that she had been a witness a dozen times, to ask questions showing that she was mistaken. Butler v. Gazette Co., 104 NYS 637.

35. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ala.] 43 S 844. Credibility cannot be impeached by showing witness' association with persons reputed thieves. Miller v. Oklahoma Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F 330. Whether a witness has been arrested for stealing is immaterial and inadmissible to affect credibility. State v. Stewart [Del.] 67 A 786. The record of conviction being the best evidence, held no error, in refusing permission to prove by witness on cross-examination, as showing his incompetency, that he had been convicted of perjury in another state. James v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 104 SW 607. On prosecution for simple assault accused cannot be cross-examined concerning payment of fines prosecution testifying in his own behalf may be impeached as any other witness.<sup>36</sup> He may be cross-examined as to a habit, the existence of which would discredit his testimony and render probable the occurrence of the offense with which he is charged.<sup>37</sup>

for fighting prior to charge of assault, as fighting is not an offense involving moral turpitude. Pollok v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 76, 101 SW 231.

36. State v. Rowell, 75 S. C. 494, 56 SE 23. On the cross-examination of a defendant who has taken the stand in his own behalf, held permissible for the state to prove specific facts tending to discredit him, or to impeach his moral character. People v. Gluck, 117 App. Div. 432, 102 NYS 758. Defendant having testified that he did not kill deceased or employ any one to kill him, held proper on cross-examination to ask where he was at the hour of night the homicide was committed. People v. Soeder, 150 Cal. 12, 87 P 1016. Held permissible for purpose of impeaching credibility to ask defendant, testifying in his own behalf, on cross-examination if he had not been prosecuted for other offenses. State v. Clark, 117 La. 920, 42 S 425. Held proper, on cross-examination of accused in prosecution for robbery, for state to prove, as affecting credit of witness, that he had murdered his wife. Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 211, 102 SW 1134.

37. Defendant, charged with use of profane language, which he denied, properly asked on cross-examination if he did not habitually use profane language. Nicholson v. State [Ala.] 43 S 365.

38. See 7 C. L. 1610.

39. Witness having testified on cross-examination concerning a book formula, it was held error to permit counsel to read from the book an extended extract and ask witness on redirect examination if he did not find it there. Ball v. Skinner [Iowa] 111 NW 1022. May adopt and enforce rule restricting redirect to new matter brought out on cross-examination. Commonwealth v. Campbell, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 9. Where witness on cross-examination denied making certain statements during a cross-examination, it is error to permit him on redirect examination to state the conversation. Chicago City R. Co. v. Gregory, 123 Ill. App. 259.

40. McGuire v. Neils Lumber Co., 97 Minn. 293, 107 NW 130.

41. No such abuse of discretion as to be reversible error. Concord Apartment House Co. v. O'Brien, 228 Ill. 360, 81 NE 1038.

42. On redirect examination witness was properly allowed to explain and reconcile letter introduced as tending to contradict his testimony on cross-examination. Hale

Bros. v. Milliken [Cal. App.] 90 P 365. Where plaintiff on cross-examination was asked if she had told defendant that property claimed was hers, to which she replied she had not, held proper on redirect examination to permit her to explain why she was silent. Yordi v. Yordi [Cal. App.] 91 P 348. Held that defendant had legal right to state on redirect examination that in giving a mortgage, the execution of which she admitted on cross-examination, she had no motive or design to hinder the collection of plaintiff's claim. Pelkey v. Hodgdon [Me.] 67 A 218. Where witness on cross-examination states that his feeling of hostility toward a party is justified, he may be called upon to explain what induced it. Blair v. Blair, 125 Ill. App. 341. It being shown on cross-examination that insured executed mortgage on premises shortly before fire occurred, held proper to permit him on redirect examination to explain that the mortgage was intended to cover another building on the same lot and not the insured building. Smith v. Mutual Cash Guaranty Fire Ins. Co. [S. D.] 113 NW 94. On cross-examination, plaintiff having testified that he received certain money and for what, held not prejudicial to permit him to tell how much money he received. Southern R. Co. v. Gentry [Ga.] 57 SE 703. Where on cross-examination a portion of witness' testimony at inquest was introduced to contradict him, held proper to allow remainder of testimony to be offered on the redirect examination to explain the part already in evidence. Corpus v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 225, 102 SW 1152.

43. Where a witness' testimony on cross-examination materially differs from that given on the direct examination, material testimony given on the direct examination may be read to him on the redirect examination and witness examined upon it. People v. Tubbs, 147 Mich. 1, 13 Det. Leg. N. 959, 110 NW 132. Permitted, by reading two of witness' former answers, which he admitted to be true, it also appearing from witness testimony that he had been subpoenaed by adverse party. Id.

44. Discretion not abused in refusing to allow question asked and answered on direct examination to be repeated on redirect examination. Lauchheimer v. Jacobs, 126 Ga. 261, 55 SE 55.

45. Matters of explanation not admissible on direct examination may properly be admitted on redirect examination. Wheeler v. State [Neb.] 113 NW 253.

direct examination of one's own witness as to testimony on a former trial should be confined to refreshing his memory.<sup>46</sup> It is not permissible after examination in chief and cross-examination of the witness, and motion to strike out the evidence, to amplify by redirect examination the testimony given on the direct examination.<sup>47</sup> The object of the cross-examination being to show the feeling of witness toward the accused, it is not competent on the redirect examination to go into details concerning the relation between the parties.<sup>48</sup> Where the course of the cross-examination renders admissible testimony inadmissible on the examination in chief, such testimony may be admitted on the redirect examination under proper restrictions.<sup>49</sup>

§ 4. Recalling witness for further examination.<sup>50</sup>—This also is a matter resting in the sound discretion of the trial court.<sup>51</sup> A witness may be recalled to lay foundation for impeachment.<sup>52</sup> A witness for the adverse party may be recalled after cross-examination for further examination without the consent of the latter.<sup>53</sup>

EXCHANGE OF PROPERTY.<sup>54</sup>

The general contract rules governing the exchange of property are elsewhere treated.<sup>55</sup>

An "exchange," as distinguished from a "sale," is the giving of property in consideration of the receipt of other specific property instead of money.<sup>56</sup> A contract for the exchange of real estate of a married woman executed by her husband without authority is unilateral in California.<sup>57</sup> In the exchange of corporate stock there is no implied warranty that the corporation issuing the same is de jure.<sup>58</sup> A stipulation making time the essence of the contract may be waived,<sup>59</sup> and where no

47. On cross-examination it appeared that a character witness based the whole of his testimony in his direct examination upon his personal relations and private dealings with the party about whom he was testifying, and, after motion to strike out his testimony, refusal to permit witness to be further examined to amply testify on direct examination held no error. State v. Stewart [Del.] 67 A 786.

48. Held not prejudicial where witness had indicated extreme hostility, and the redirect examination added nothing to the objection already expressed. State v. Judd, 132 Iowa, 296, 109 NW 892.

49. Where on cross-examination it became necessary for a prosecuting witness on his cross-examination to give evidence of the character of accused by way of explanation of his own conduct at the time of the commission of the offense charged, held proper, on redirect examination, to allow him, under proper restriction, to give such evidence. Craig v. State [Neb.] 111 NW 143.

In discretion of trial court to refuse to recall witness for further cross-examination, and its ruling is not reviewable in absence of abuse. Hirsch & Sons Iron & Rail Co. v. Coleman, 227 Ill. 149, 81 NE 21. Held discretionary with court to permit state to examine a witness after close of defendant's evidence, though not in rebuttal, and more properly brought out before state rested. Nicholson v. State [Ala.] 42 S 1015. Cross-examination as to previous conflicting statements. Sperbeck v. Camden & S. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A 1012.

In determining whether transaction is sale or exchange, court must ascertain whether there is a fixed price at which properties were to be exchanged or whether such prices were mere estimates incidental to the exchange. Pagan v. Hook [Iowa] 111 NW 981. Contract whereby owner of land "sold" his land at $16 per acre and agreed "to accept as part payment" other land, held under code to be an exchange of property and not a sale, where actual money to be paid was insignificant. Steere v. Ginery [S. D.] 110 NW 774.

time for performance is stated, each party has a reasonable time.<sup>60</sup> Where co-owners agree to exchange property with a third person, the latter cannot justify nonperformance on grounds concerning co-owners alone.<sup>61</sup> In the case of fraud,<sup>62</sup> or nonperformance,<sup>63</sup> the usual contractual rights and remedies obtain.<sup>64</sup> Where property is exchanged subject to trial and plaintiff, after discovering a deficiency, continues to use the property, he thereby elects to stand on the contract.<sup>65</sup> Where a contract for the exchange of realty calls for a marketable title,<sup>66</sup> or for an abstract showing such,<sup>67</sup> they must be furnished. Before one can recover liquidated damages, he must show performance on his part.<sup>68</sup> Where a contract is rescinded, the agreed value therein of the property does not fix the damages for nonreturn of the property delivered.<sup>69</sup> A vendor's lien does not exist in the exchange of property.<sup>70</sup> Where a contract provided that plaintiff's goods should be invoiced at St. Louis cost prices, plaintiff must furnish reasonably satisfactory evidence of such prices.<sup>71</sup>

EXCHANGES AND BOARDS OF TRADE.

Membership, rights, and dealings.<sup>72</sup>—An exchange or board of trade is generally a mere voluntary association with the right of selecting its members,<sup>73</sup> and hence its consent is usually made a condition precedent to a transfer of membership.<sup>74</sup> On joining one becomes subject to the constitution and by-laws of such organization.<sup>75</sup>

60. Payment of current taxes. Warren v. Mount [Pa.] 67 A 742.

61. As that one co-owner discharged liens with money obtained from different source than that agreed upon with co-owner. McKenna v. Mickelberry, 228 Ill. 460, 81 NE 1012. Where contract provided that such third should convey his property to trustee for use of one co-owner "as provided in a certain contract" between co-owners "of even date," it was no defense that latter contract was oral. Id.

62. Fact that agent of one party divided commissions with other party held under facts not to show a conspiracy to obtain from principal more than property was worth. MacKeller v. Thompson, 103 NYS 853. Where property was to be exchanged free from liens, except one assumed, party cannot relieve himself from his obligations by a collusive trust deed placed thereon by one of the co-owners. McKenna v. Mickelberry, 228 Ill. 460, 81 NE 1012.

63. Where defendant has fully performed his part of contract except payment of less than $7 of accrued but not due interest, plaintiff cannot rescind contract without demand for payment of interest (McConnell v. Newell, 133 Iowa, 736, 111 NW 17), nor can he recover damages for non-payment in absence of appropriate pleadings (Id.).

64. See Fraud and Undue Influence, 7 C. L. 1813; Contracts, 9 C. L. 654, etc.

65. Cannot thereafter rescind and repel in his property. Fox v. Wilkinson [Wis.] 113 NW 669.

66. Held marketable though perfected by adverse possession, if statutory elements be clear. Freedman v. Oppenheim [N. Y.] 79 NE 841. As to what constitutes such title, see Vendors and Purchasers, 8 C. L. 2216.

67. Where contract required an abstract showing good title except as to an assumed lien, fact that abstract showed certain other liens does not relieve other party from performance where such liens are discharged before time for delivery of title papers, and abstract was not corrected because other party had fraudulently obtained possession thereof. McKenna v. Mickelberry, 228 Ill. 460, 81 NE 1012.

68. Where contract provides "Both parties to give warranty deeds and abstract showing title," party can not recover stipulated damages where action to quiet title necessary to perfect record title was based on insufficient publication of service. Denser v. Gunn, 74 Kan. 748, 87 P 1132.

69. Fagan v. Hook [Iowa] 111 NW 981.

70. Vendor taking land in exchange for his land waives his vendor's lien. Ross v. Clark, 225 Ill. 326, 80 NE 275. Vendor has no lien for damages resulting from misrepresentations as to amount of rent that can be received from apartment houses received in exchange. Id.

71. Defendant held not bound to accept judgment of experts, or himself furnish better method. Inlow v. Bybee, 122 Mo. App. 475, 99 SW 785. Whether plaintiff furnished such evidence held for jury. Id.

72. See 7 C. L. 1613.

73. Chicago Board of Trade so held although incorporated and deriving income from rent of offices. People v. Board of Trade, 224 Ill. 370, 79 NE 611.

74. Hence, where assignor becomes bankrupt after assignment but before exchange has acted thereon, membership passes to trustee as asset, though it may be subject to equities in assignee, and controversy to determine right thereto or to proceeds is within exclusive jurisdiction of bankruptcy court. O'Dell v. Boyden [C. A.] 150 F 731. When board of trade has not consented to sale of membership, it has jurisdiction to try member for violation of its rules. Bostedo v. Board of Trade, 227 Ill. 90, 81 NE 42.

75. Courts will not interfere with action

Such bodies may adopt reasonable<sup>76</sup> rules and regulations for the conduct of their affairs,<sup>77</sup> provided they are not in conflict with positive law.<sup>78</sup> Likewise, they may provide for the expulsion of members, and courts will not interfere so long as they act in conformity with their by-laws.<sup>79</sup> While members must generally seek relief within the corporation before applying to the courts,<sup>80</sup> such rule does not obtain where rights are being forfeited by irregular procedure,<sup>81</sup> or where it appears that an appeal to the association would be futile.<sup>82</sup>

Property and contract rights of board.<sup>83</sup>—Until they are published generally,<sup>84</sup> market quotations are property of the exchange,<sup>85</sup> and one unlawfully obtaining and using the same<sup>86</sup> will be restrained.<sup>87</sup> The value of quotations wrongfully obtained is the value of the right to the exchange to control its quotations and not the rate paid by defendant to the telegraph company from which he received them.<sup>88</sup> Where an exchange collected a balance due from its members to a bankrupt member and distributed the same among creditor members with the consent of the bankrupt, and the trustee made no claim thereto until after distribution, the exchange is not liable.<sup>89</sup>

of exchange when in conformity with its constitution and by-laws, however injurious to member. Quentell v. New York Cotton Exch., 56 Misc. 150, 106 NYS 228.

76. By-law providing for exclusion of member from rooms upon failure to pay assessments within thirty days from time when due and ipso facto forfeiture of membership, if not paid during fiscal year, held not unreasonable, immoral, or contrary to public policy or law. People v. Board of Trade, 224 Ill. 370, 79 NE 611. Rule providing that directors shall fix value of commodities for marginal purposes, and where parties fail to a just claim under contract on which margins have been deposited, party claiming deposit may apply to board, who shall direct payment, etc., held valid. Albers Commission Co. v. Spencer [Mo.] 103 SW 523.

77. By-laws of Chicago Board of Trade held to require suspended members to pay dues. People v. Board of Trade, 224 Ill. 370, 79 NE 611, affg. 125 Ill. App. 20.

78. Cohen v. Budd, 52 Misc. 217, 103 NYS 45. Rule providing that money due to defaulting member from other members may be collected and applied to obligations of such defaulting member to members is invalid as in violation of bankruptcy law. Id.

79. People v. Board of Trade of Chicago, 125 Ill. App. 20. Where charges have been preferred against a member, equity will not enjoin the board of directors from trying him in compliance with by-laws complying with charter (Bostedo v. Board of Trade, 227 Ill. 90, 81 NE 42), though such party may lose valuable rights (Id.). Where by-laws require that, upon proceedings against a member, copy of complaint, documentary evidence, and list of adverse witnesses shall be served upon him, proceedings not in conformity therewith may be restrained. Quentell v. New York Cotton Exch., 56 Misc. 150, 106 NYS 228. Facts held to show that proceeding was something more than voluntary preliminary examination, and hence regular procedure must be followed. Id.

80. One objecting to payment of marginal deposits on ground that member had unlawfully cornered wheat cannot invoke equity without first applying to exchange for relief as provided by rules. Albers Commission Co. v. Spencer [Mo.] 103 SW 523.

The scope of this topic is noted below.<sup>93</sup>

§ 1. Definition.<sup>94</sup>—An execution is a writ proceeding from and directed to a competent authority, by which the former requires the latter to do some act.<sup>95</sup>

and distributing quotations (Id.). That its sales are made only during market hours. Id. Characterizing complainant's property right in its quotations furnished to telegraph companies and how it will be destroyed by defendant's action. Id. Reciting circumstance which induced complainant to refuse to allow quotations to be given to telegraph companies except under contract restraining distribution thereof. Id. That defendants have not delivered to telegraph companies any contract entitling them to receive quotations. Id. That, to carry out illegal purpose of simulating complainant's quotations, certain defendants organized a board of trade (Id.), and that offerings through such exchange were not bona fide, that their alleged contracts were not real and did not contemplate delivery at Chicago (Id.).

Not material: Allegations that, in order to overcome legal obstacles and to simulate complainant's quotations, defendants, by petition, assert that transactions in defendant's exchange is for future delivery in Chicago. Board of Trade of Chicago v. National Board of Trade, 154 F 238. That no person or corporation was receiving quotations from telegraph companies except those who had contracted not to give quotations to bucket shops. Id. Showing willingness of complainant to make like contracts with all telegraph companies. Id. Showing relation of complainants with telegraph companies with which defendants have no relation. Id. Number of complainant's members, cost of its buildings, and the maintenance thereof, and how the money is raised. Id. As to purpose and object of defendant exchange, what it did and what it represented in reference to simulation of complainant's quotations. Id. In suit by Chicago exchange to restrain simulation of its quotations by persons in Kansas City and vicinity, allegations that there were no business conditions justifying trading in grain in Kansas City for delivery in Chicago or dissemination of quotations in such transactions. Id.

92. In suit to restrain simulation of quotations, allegation of successful suit to enjoin certain bucketshops from surreptitiously obtaining quotations, and that some of defendants were parties thereto, held mere evidence at most. Board of Trade of Chicago v. National Board of Trade, 154 F 238.

at law.<sup>1</sup> Neither can it issue if the judgment is dormant,<sup>2</sup> or has been set aside,<sup>3</sup> or marked satisfied,<sup>4</sup> and a sale under execution on an amended judgment is invalid.<sup>5</sup> But the writ may issue from the circuit court on a transcript judgment and the constable's return of "no property found" on the justice's execution,<sup>6</sup> and an alias may issue without the judgment so providing.<sup>7</sup> It may issue at any time after entry of judgment,<sup>8</sup> and transferees may enforce it,<sup>9</sup> payment of the debt by such transferees being inferred from a recital that such transfer was for value.<sup>10</sup> If plaintiff dies after assignment of the judgment, execution should issue in the name of his personal representative.<sup>11</sup>

§ 3. Stay and how procured.<sup>12</sup>—Execution will be stayed while case is pending on certiorari,<sup>13</sup> but the fact that the judgment was not authorized by the verdict is no ground for a stay,<sup>14</sup> nor will the Federal courts stay execution against a judgment defendant who owns no real estate,<sup>15</sup> nor will the writ in one action be stayed by order in another.<sup>16</sup> The validity of a stay bond is not affected by clerical errors.<sup>17</sup>

§ 4. Procedure to procure issuance of writ.<sup>18</sup>—Under California statute, notice of the application for execution is not required.<sup>19</sup>

§ 5. Power to allow or issue and to recall writ.<sup>20</sup>—The probate courts have no power to issue executions against realty,<sup>21</sup> nor, in the absence of statutory authority, can the superior court clerk issue it on a judgment rendered by a city court, subsequently abolished,<sup>22</sup> but the circuit clerk may on a judgment of affirmance in the appellate court,<sup>23</sup> and he may do so in vacation.<sup>24</sup> In California the power to allow execution on a dormant judgment is discretionary<sup>25</sup> and, in that state, on motion and a proper case made, the court may recall the execution.<sup>26</sup>

is sufficient;<sup>29</sup> hence omission of the name of plaintiff will not render it void if otherwise complete,<sup>30</sup> and it is also sufficient if the description of parties conform in that respect with the caption of the judgment.<sup>31</sup> To identify the parties named in the writ, the complaint may be consulted.<sup>32</sup> The execution is not invalidated by the failure to itemize the bill of costs,<sup>33</sup> nor by a variance as to amount.<sup>34</sup> It may be amended so as to limit the lien of the judgment to the date of recording notice,<sup>35</sup> but the deputy has no power, under a general oral authority, to sign the clerk's name thereto.<sup>36</sup>

§ 7. Quashal of writ.<sup>37</sup>—The court may quash its own void execution,<sup>38</sup> but a mis-statement of facts by the appellate court, in affirming a judgment, is no ground for doing so.<sup>39</sup>

§ 8. The levy. A. Leviable property and order of levability.<sup>40</sup>—Generally any title which may be asserted by claim is subject to execution,<sup>41</sup> hence a legal title<sup>42</sup> or a vested remainder may be levied on.<sup>43</sup> In Colorado both legal and equitable estates in land are leviable,<sup>44</sup> and in Missouri any interest a debtor has therein may be sold under such writ to satisfy a judgment rendered in the same county;<sup>45</sup> but in other jurisdictions a leasehold interest is not subject to sale thereunder,<sup>46</sup> nor is a determinable estate,<sup>47</sup> nor a growing crop,<sup>48</sup> nor property acquired by a bankrupt subsequent to docketing judgment.<sup>49</sup> Money is leviable though in the hands of a public ministerial officer,<sup>50</sup> but not a mere indebtedness,<sup>51</sup> nor choses in action unless made so by statute or voluntarily given up.<sup>52</sup> An income payable under a trust cannot be taken in execution,<sup>53</sup> nor can property conveyed by trust deed, in effect a mortgage, until the execution creditor pays or tenders the amount secured thereby.<sup>54</sup>

(§ 8) B. Mode of making levy.<sup>55</sup>—In levying on an undivided interest, possession by the officer is not necessary, but notice to the party in control is sufficient.<sup>56</sup>

(§ 8) C. Duty to make levy.<sup>57</sup>

(§ 8) D. Extent and adequacy of levy.<sup>58</sup>—A valid levy cannot be made on land not described in the execution,<sup>59</sup> nor will a levy on specifically mentioned personalty and "all other goods and chattels belonging to" debtor include a leasehold interest.<sup>60</sup> Where land can only be levied on in its entirety, though of considerably more value than the amount of execution, the levy will not be considered excessive.<sup>61</sup> If, however, it is alleged to be so, the burden is on the party so alleging;<sup>62</sup> but this question, and whether the property is capable of subdivision, the jury must decide.<sup>63</sup>

(§ 8) F. Relinquishment and dissolution of levy.<sup>74</sup>

(§ 8) G. Release of property on receipts or forthcoming or delivery bonds.<sup>75</sup> A defendant giving a forthcoming bond retains the property as the agent of the sheriff.<sup>76</sup> The obligors on such bond are liable on its breach, though such instrument is not good as a statutory bond,<sup>77</sup> and they are estopped to deny its validity.<sup>78</sup> Such obligors are also liable when the claim to the property is shown to be fraudulent,<sup>79</sup> and the fact that the assignee for the creditors failed to attack the fraudulent conveyance will not affect their right to recover,<sup>80</sup> nor is this right affected by the debtor's discharge in bankruptcy.<sup>81</sup> A refusal to deliver constitutes a breach of the bond<sup>82</sup> for which the officer to whom it was given is the proper party to sue,<sup>83</sup> but the execution need not be made a part of the petition,<sup>84</sup> nor is the liability of the property to levy an issue in the action.<sup>85</sup> The measure of damages is fixed by statute.<sup>86</sup>

(§ 8) H. Liability of officer for loss of property levied upon.<sup>87</sup>

(§ 8) I. Rights as to custody of property levied on and incidental to taking possession.<sup>88</sup>—The sheriff, by levy, acquires a special or qualified title, but the debtor's title is not wholly divested.<sup>89</sup>

(§ 8) J. Effect of death of debtor.<sup>90</sup>—Execution against a dead defendant is void, there being no other defendant in the case,<sup>91</sup> but where a codefendant dies insolvent, execution against the survivor is not prejudicial.<sup>92</sup>

(§ 8) K. Liability for wrongful levy.<sup>93</sup>—A wrongful levy is a trespass.<sup>94</sup> No liability attaches to execution creditors for its wrongful levy if done without their sanction or presence,<sup>95</sup> nor are they liable for a levy made by seizing the property held in the hands of the debtor, though present,<sup>96</sup> nor, in action by a wife, for damages done community property.<sup>97</sup> In some jurisdictions an execution creditor may be held liable in treble damages for a wrongful levy,<sup>98</sup> but damages for sickness, mental and physical suffering, are not recoverable.<sup>99</sup>

§ 9. Claims of third persons and trial thereof.<sup>1</sup>—A claim is a statutory proceeding, the object of which is to prevent sale, on the ground that the property levied on belongs to claimant and is not subject,<sup>2</sup> hence, the sole issue in such case is whether the property is subject.<sup>3</sup> The claim may be filed by a next friend for a minor,<sup>4</sup> but cannot be consolidated with a controversy over the proceeds of other property.<sup>5</sup> A claimant holding under a fraudulent conveyance cannot resist sale,<sup>6</sup> nor can a mortgage given superiority over judgments of older date be asserted by claim,<sup>7</sup> nor will the writ be dismissed on the ground of payment, evidenced by unexplained entries of levy alone,<sup>8</sup> nor because levy was not made in officer's bailiwick,<sup>9</sup> but the fact that claimant and execution debtor lived together will not defeat the claim.<sup>10</sup> By giving forthcoming bond the claimant is estopped to question the legality of the levy,<sup>11</sup> unless the execution is void on its face,<sup>12</sup> and he is also estopped to question the sufficiency of description in the notice of sale.<sup>13</sup> The true owner may claim though the property was in possession of the judgment debtor unless credit was extended on the faith of such possession,<sup>14</sup> and though he has never had possession he may claim against an execution creditor whose right of action was acquired with knowledge of the true state of the title.<sup>15</sup> The burden is on execution plaintiff to show the property levied to belong to the debtor,<sup>16</sup> and this he must sustain or the claimant will prevail.<sup>17</sup> If claimant admits execution debtor was in possession at the time of the levy, and assumes the burden of proof, the execution need not be introduced.<sup>18</sup> The evidence to support the claim, if relevant,<sup>19</sup> and going directly to show title in claimant, is admissible,<sup>20</sup> and he may also show that the execution is void,<sup>21</sup> but letters of third parties, tax bills, and assessor's certificate, articles not mentioned in claim, and title deeds to realty, will not be admitted.<sup>22</sup> Whether the property levied on is liable is for the jury,<sup>23</sup> whose verdict should definitely determine the issue.<sup>24</sup>

§ 10. Appraisalment.<sup>25</sup>

§ 11. Execution sales. In general.<sup>26</sup>—The sale must be made pursuant to statute;<sup>27</sup> it must be advertised as the statute directs,<sup>28</sup> hence, a sheriff executing a justice's fi. fa. must advertise the sale as constables are required to do,<sup>29</sup> but such advertisement is not necessary where defendant refuses to deliver up the property under forthcoming bond.<sup>30</sup> In determining the sufficiency of notice, fractions of a day are not considered,<sup>31</sup> and whether posted in public places is a question for the jury.<sup>32</sup> Generally, sales of real property must be made in the county where situated,<sup>33</sup> but a sale of railroad property made outside of the county in which was its principal office has been held valid,<sup>34</sup> nor does it avoid the sale if a part only of such property be sold.<sup>35</sup> A sale is not complete, however, until the purchase money is paid.<sup>36</sup>

Costs.<sup>39</sup>—Execution debtor, not causing delay and supplemental proceedings, is not chargeable with the costs incident thereto,<sup>40</sup> nor will he be required to pay the cost of an inaccurate notice.<sup>41</sup>

§ 12. Return and confirmation of sale.<sup>42</sup>—If the return complies with the spirit of the statute, and is substantially in form, it is sufficient; <sup>43</sup> it is also sufficient if, taken as a guide, it points the way to the land and readily enables the enquirer to identify it, and for this purpose parol evidence is admissible,<sup>44</sup> but if there was a failure to surrender the property, the return should show it.<sup>45</sup> A return of "no property found" means that the defendant had no goods or chattels whereof to levy the execution,<sup>46</sup> but if there is a proper tender of the debt, interest and legal fees, the writ should be returned "satisfied" before sale,<sup>47</sup> when such return, as it appears on the writ, should be recorded on the execution docket.<sup>48</sup> In determining the time of return, the date of issue will be excluded.<sup>49</sup> The return will not overcome the presumption that the officer did his duty,<sup>50</sup> but, on the contrary, if attacked for insufficiency, the law will presume he acted within his authority.<sup>51</sup> It will be aided, even, by claim affidavit as between the parties,<sup>52</sup> and oral evidence is admissible to identify lands, if defectively described.<sup>53</sup> Generally, when necessary, an amendment may be made as a matter of right <sup>54</sup> so as to conform to the facts,<sup>55</sup> hence, an entry of levy on land, if it sufficiently describes it, may be amended in other respects by the officer at any time, so long as he is in office, and, by order of court, when out of office,<sup>56</sup> but it will not be canceled at the suit of the execution plaintiff though the sale was void.<sup>57</sup> To pass title there must be a confirmation of the sale,<sup>58</sup> but such confirmation cures no defects other than irregularities in the manner of conducting it.<sup>59</sup>

61. Iowa statute provides that person chaser at sale may do so, even from a subsequent purchaser,<sup>63</sup> but the owner, as against innocent purchasers, may be estopped to claim the right to redeem on the ground of mistake in appraisement.<sup>64</sup> One claiming such right must pay off the liens, however,<sup>65</sup> and, on redemption, acquires no greater interest than that of the judgment debtor at the time of the accrual of the lien under which the sale was made.<sup>66</sup> A parol contract of redemption, made at or before sale, will be enforced,<sup>67</sup> and an agreement to permit redemption waives laches.<sup>68</sup> A complaint in a proceeding to redeem, which sets out a legal deposit and bond, is sufficient,<sup>69</sup> nor need notice of redemption be given to others than the execution creditor and purchaser,<sup>70</sup> a waiver of which may be conclusively shown from a recital of waiver in the certificate and lapse of time.<sup>71</sup> An action to set aside a fraudulent certificate of redemption is limited to three years in Washington,<sup>72</sup> and in such action the acceptance of a deed to a portion does not estop grantee to deny grantor's title to the remainder of the premises.<sup>73</sup> subject to dower interest,<sup>87</sup> or equities in favor of the debtor,<sup>88</sup> or the party in possession,<sup>89</sup> but possession is constructive notice only as to the lot actually occupied.<sup>90</sup> Recitals in a mortgage may be sufficient to charge him with notice of previous conveyances,<sup>91</sup> but the burden to show this is on claimants under such deed.<sup>92</sup> He takes title over the holder of an unrecorded deed of which he had no notice,<sup>93</sup> nor will he be affected by an outstanding equitable interest of which he had no notice at time of the purchase, though he had before deed was made.<sup>94</sup> nor will notice affect his title, if plaintiff in execution had none when he acquired his judgment execution lien.<sup>95</sup> Purchaser's title cannot be collaterally attacked for mere irregularities in the levy and sale,<sup>96</sup> nor can a vendee, having notice of proceedings to issue execution, claim against it,<sup>97</sup> nor will a claim, based on prior purchase under void trust, defeat his title,<sup>98</sup> nor will a subsequent conveyance or voluntary surrender by the debtor defeat the sale under the levy,<sup>99</sup> nor a vacation of the judgment after sale,<sup>1</sup> and one who alleges the title to be vitiated by fraud must prove it.<sup>2</sup>

Right to possession of realty.<sup>3</sup>—The legal title remains in the judgment debtor till the execution and delivery of the sheriff's deed,<sup>4</sup> but the purchaser may maintain ejectment to recover property fraudulently conveyed before action,<sup>5</sup> and where the land was subject to the lien, possession will not be restrained on the ground that the sheriff refused to accept an insufficient claim affidavit.<sup>6</sup>

The sheriff's deed.<sup>7</sup>—The execution of a sheriff's deed is not necessary to the validity of the sale,<sup>8</sup> nor is the deed void for failing to recite the county where land situated,<sup>9</sup> nor because sale was made contrary to directions not received till after it was consummated,<sup>10</sup> but such deed, based on an illegal sale, will be canceled.<sup>11</sup> The deed, under judgment in attachment, relates back to the attachment,<sup>12</sup> and that it was made to party entitled by direction of the purchaser named in the return will be presumed from circumstances and long acquiescence.<sup>13</sup>

the judgment or another. to restrain the sale,<sup>15</sup> where the remedy at law is complete<sup>16</sup> and adequate.<sup>17</sup> Therefore, the enforcement of the execution will not be enjoined where the defendant had a remedy by motion,<sup>18</sup> or by affidavit of illegality,<sup>19</sup> or on any ground available in a claim case,<sup>20</sup> nor will it lie on the ground that the judgment has been satisfied,<sup>21</sup> nor because the complainant's property is being pursued exclusively,<sup>22</sup> nor because of mistake,<sup>23</sup> nor because of a mere possibility,<sup>24</sup> nor will sale be restrained till an executor account,<sup>25</sup> nor because of mere irregularities<sup>26</sup> which would not avoid it;<sup>27</sup> but when the judgment upon which the execution is based is void,<sup>28</sup> the invalidity affirmatively appearing from the record,<sup>29</sup> or where the judgment was obtained by fraud,<sup>30</sup> or when the sale would cast a cloud on the title, courts will enjoin.<sup>31</sup> The wife and children of a debtor may enjoin a sale of their property taken as his under execution,<sup>32</sup> and so may one having a lien on land as equitable owner,<sup>33</sup> and even one not a party, if he is interested, may do so,<sup>34</sup> nor will their petition be dismissed for harmless irregularities.<sup>35</sup>

Affidavits of illegality.<sup>36</sup>—The office of an affidavit of illegality is not to attack the validity of the judgment, if defendant has had his day in court, but to resist the execution because of some injustice in the party seeking to enforce it,<sup>37</sup> and the issue in the case is that made by the affidavit of illegality to try which the fi. fa., with entry of levy, and the affidavit, constitute the pleadings.<sup>38</sup> On the trial the affiant may avail himself of any entry appearing on the execution,<sup>39</sup> but the remedy will not lie to defeat a special lien for purchase money,<sup>40</sup> nor, where the execution is in favor of a minor, is it ground of illegality that the prochein ami has not given bond,<sup>41</sup> but the debtor may resist by showing the debt was paid before execution issued,<sup>42</sup> or that the levy was made under a void execution,<sup>43</sup> or he may resist by showing a good defense to suit abandoned on agreement,<sup>44</sup> but he must allege compliance with the terms of the agreement.<sup>45</sup> At the trial, if execution be omitted from the record, it may be attached to the transcript as a part thereof.<sup>46</sup>

Setting aside the sale.<sup>47</sup>—The court giving judgment has power to set aside the sale when justice demands it,<sup>48</sup> but will not do so on motion of a substituted party.<sup>49</sup> Petition to set aside should set out the amount property sold for and what it would probably bring on resale,<sup>50</sup> and should be verified by affidavit where facts averred are aliunde the record.<sup>51</sup> Generally, inadequacy of consideration alone is not sufficient evidence of fraud to justify setting aside an execution sale on that ground,<sup>52</sup> where parties stand on equal footing and no confidential relations exist between them, unless the inadequacy is so gross as to be proof of fraud or shock the judgment and conscience,<sup>53</sup> and the fact of gross inadequacy must clearly appear.<sup>54</sup> If, in connection with gross inadequacy of price, the debtor was ignorant of the sale,<sup>55</sup> or the property was susceptible of division but sold en masse without first offering it in separate parcels, relief will be given,<sup>56</sup> but not if the property is incapable of division,<sup>57</sup> and if, also, in connection with such gross inadequacy, there was fraud by the creditor purchaser,<sup>58</sup> or the debtor's attorney, relief may be had,<sup>59</sup> but to set aside the sale for fraud and collusion,<sup>60</sup> or for fraud of the purchaser, it must be clearly shown.<sup>61</sup> "Mere inadequacy of price" means simply an inequality in values between the subject-matter and the price.<sup>62</sup> The sale will be set aside where the levy is so excessive as to amount to fraud in law,<sup>63</sup> and a sale for an amount materially in excess of the amount due is void.<sup>64</sup> A sale made by execution plaintiff pending appeal from a judgment, afterwards reversed, will be set aside,<sup>65</sup> so, too, if made under execution based on a void judgment,<sup>66</sup> and false representations resulting in chilling bidding

79. Exemption refused where assignor was not a resident householder at the time of the assignment, under Burns' Ann St. 1901, §§ 715, 2907, providing for exemption in favor of a resident householder who assigns. Miller v. Swhier [Ind. App.] 79 NE 1092.

80. Under laws of Wisconsin a homestead owned by a bankrupt is exempt although it was purchased by him while insolvent from the proceeds of nonexempt property. In re Wood, 147 F 877.

81. Where the statement of facts admitexemptions,<sup>82</sup> and does not affect the allowance to bankrupts of the exemptions which are prescribed by the state laws in force at the time of filing the petition.<sup>83</sup> As in other cases where the Federal courts apply state statutes,<sup>84</sup> the courts of bankruptcy will follow the construction placed on the exemption laws by the highest courts of the state, so far as they have received a construction, and beyond that will apply to them the general, established rules of construction.<sup>85</sup> Exemption statutes prevail against demands in favor of the state as well as against executions in civil cases.<sup>86</sup> Property purchased with exempt money is exempt.<sup>87</sup>

Bankrupt allowed exemption under St. 1903, § 1702, providing for exemption of a homestead if occupied by debtor in good faith at the time the attempt is made to subject it to execution, provided that the debt or liability did not arise prior to the purchase of the land or erection of improvements. In re Downing, 148 F 120. Bankruptcy court not bound to follow an obiter dictum of state court. In re Sullivan [C. C. A.] 148 F 815.

86. Rev. St. 1899, § 3159 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1795), giving exemptions to the head of a family, entitles a criminal, convicted and sentenced to pay fines and costs, to exemptions. Betterton v. O'Dwyer [Mo. App.] 101 SW 628.

87. Where a debtor purchased a homestead with money exempt under Ky. St. 1903, § 1697, the exemption followed the money into the homestead despite § 1702, which provided that the exemption should not apply to a homestead as against a debt existing prior to its purchase. Nicholsons Trustee v. Nicholson [Ky.] 101 SW 985. Payments to wife from earnings to pay off mortgage on house regarded as rent, and exempt under statute exempting earnings necessary for family support, so that they could not be followed into the house. (Lynch v. Rodebaugh, 4 Ohio N P. [N. S.] 260), whereas payments for the land made from the earnings, before the house was built, held not necessary for the family support and could be followed into the land (Id.).

89. Where there was a separation by mutual consent, held bankrupt husband was not a "head of a family" within the meaning of homestead exemption laws of South Carolina. In re Finklea, 153 F 492. Under Const. 1898, art. 244, a husband need not as a condition precedent to claiming a homestead prove that his wife did not own or enjoy property exceeding $2,000. Garner v. Freeman, 118 La. 184, 42 S 767. A "head of a family" is entitled to a homestead exemption although at the date of the seizure his wife and children were not living with him (Id.) and he was in prison (Id.). The purpose of the act being to protect the wife and children, exemptions will be allowed a criminal as well as an improvident husband. Betterton v. O'Dwyer [Mo. App.] 101 SW 628. Proof that the debtor is a resident with a family and needs money to keep them up is insufficient to establish a right of exemption to money which is not exempt of itself. Further proof as to the other property of the debtor or lack of provisions for which money could be substituted under the statute was necessary. O'Sullivan's Trustee v. Douglass, 30 Ky. L. R. 366, 98 SW 990.

90. Three things must concur in the creation of a homestead: First the person must be a householder; second, he must have a family; and third, the premises must be occupied as a residence. Daughters v. Christy, 223 Ill. 612, 79 NE 292. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 715, 2907, a resident householder who assigns has the right to exemptions to the amount of $600 (Miller v. Swhier [Ind. App.] 79 NE 1092), but the statute does not apply to one who is not a resident householder at the time of assignment although he becomes one directly after (Id.). Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1390-92, a woman with a family is entitled to the same exemptions as a householder and head of family. Galowitz v. Bumford, 54 Misc. 41, 104 NYS 492.

In Ohio in a suit for necessities only ninety per cent of the personal earnings of the debtor are exempt (Sweet v. Barnum & Co., 8 Ohio C. C. [N. S.] 108), and in proceedings in aid of the execution it may be shown by parol that the original claim was for necessities (Id.). The exemption given by Pub. Acts 1901, p. 235, act No. 172, of a certain portion of an indebtedness for personal labor from garnishment, cannot be claimed by a nonresident. Kelson v. De-

2. Const. N. C. art. 10, § 1, providing for exemption of personal property to the value of $500 does not contemplate an exemption of $500 in cash, but the bankrupt must select property to that value which may then be sold and proceeds paid to him. In re Ansley Bros., 153 F. 983. Where such sale is made, the bankrupt should be charged his percentage of the difference between the appraised value and the price obtained. Id.

use.<sup>11</sup> Where a sale of property is made with the bankrupt's assent, no exceptions having been set off, the right to exemption in the proceeds will be postponed to superior claims thereto.<sup>12</sup> Execution against a debtor's wages for the satisfaction of a claim for rent is not authorized by a statute permitting a resort to wages to satisfy claims for "necessaries sold," etc.<sup>13</sup> Exemptions are in some states allowed only in actions on contract.<sup>14</sup>

§ 5. Loss of exemption rights.<sup>15</sup>—Waiver of exemptions in some states is deemed invalid.<sup>16</sup> Where a debtor who has waived exemptions goes into bankruptcy and has his exemptions set off, the creditor to whom the waiver was given who has not proved his claim in bankruptcy may, in Georgia, go into equity and get a judgment in rem against the exempted property or have a receiver appointed.<sup>17</sup> One who has concealed or denied the ownership of property to prevent its being subjected to the payment of his debts forfeits thereby his claim to exemptions.<sup>18</sup> The right to exemptions is not affected by the imprisonment of the debtor.<sup>19</sup> Where a debtor ceases to be a resident of a state before property belonging to him becomes applicable to a creditor's claim, the general exemption laws of the state cease to operate in his favor.<sup>20</sup> Under the Washington statute a bankrupt seller in bulk of merchandise cannot claim exemptions out of the purchase price.<sup>21</sup> When a bankrupt fails to make a full disclosure of personal property, exemptions should not be set off until all the property is accounted for.<sup>22</sup> Where a bankrupt converts the proceeds of a sale of property between the time of the filing of the petition and the time when the marshal took possession, the amount so converted should be deducted from the exemption.<sup>23</sup> A bankrupt does not lose his exemption rights by assenting to a sale of property by the receiver,<sup>24</sup> but in such case the bankruptcy court may pass upon the right to exemption from, and conflicting claims to, the proceeds of the sale.<sup>25</sup>

with defrauding or intending to defraud his creditors.<sup>28</sup> In Kansas a chattel mortgage of exempt property given without the consent and signature of the mortgagor's wife is invalid.<sup>29</sup>

§ 7. How the right is claimed and enforced.<sup>30</sup>—An affidavit setting forth the claim and grounds of exemption is required in some states,<sup>31</sup> while a schedule of property and list of exemptions is required in others.<sup>32</sup> The schedule required in Indian Territory must be filed with the court after notice to the creditor, and a supersedeas may then issue staying proceedings against the exempt property,<sup>33</sup> while that required by the Georgia statute to gain a "short" or "statutory" homestead must be recorded and contain a description of the property sufficiently definite to give constructive notice.<sup>34</sup> An appeal bond is necessary, in Arkansas, in an appeal from a judgment refusing an exemption to suspend proceedings on the judgment.<sup>35</sup> A removal of exempt property to another state to defraud creditors will be deemed a selection of the property, removed as exempt, by the debtor.<sup>36</sup> Exemptions should be pleaded and proved.<sup>37</sup> In an action to set aside a transfer as fraudulent, a claim that the property is exempt is admissible under an answer of general denial.<sup>38</sup>

§ 8. Recovery for selling exempt property or evading exemption laws.<sup>39</sup>—The fact that suit has been instituted on a claim in another state, whereby the debtor's wages were attached, raises the presumption of an intent to evade the exemption laws,<sup>40</sup> and a resident creditor may be enjoined from prosecuting such an action,<sup>41</sup> and such injunction does not violate the Federal constitution.<sup>42</sup> Dam-

EXPLOSIVES AND INFLAMMABLES.<sup>59</sup>

Liability for injury to employees,<sup>60</sup> and liability for maintaining dangerous premises generally,<sup>61</sup> are excluded.

One maintaining a magazine or discharging explosives under circumstances rendering the same a nuisance<sup>62</sup> is liable for injury irrespective of negligence,<sup>63</sup> and so too is one who causes a physical invasion of another's property<sup>64</sup> without his assent,<sup>65</sup> or inflicts a direct personal injury,<sup>66</sup> provided the appropriate action is brought;<sup>67</sup> and, in all cases, one negligently maintaining or discharging<sup>68</sup> explosives is liable for injuries proximately resulting therefrom,<sup>69</sup> unless the party injured is a trespasser.<sup>70</sup> One knowingly<sup>71</sup> or negligently<sup>72</sup> selling<sup>73</sup> a dangerous explosive as to cause a reasonably prudent man to foresee danger. Nephler v. Woodward, 200 Mo. 179, 98 SW 488.

56. Held not negligence to fail to look for holes in carpet. Nephler v. Woodward, 200 Mo. 179, 98 SW 488.

57. In action for injuries to patron of theater by alleged hole in carpet causing her to fall, verdict held not so contrary as to indicate passion or prejudice. Nephler v. Woodward, 200 Mo. 179, 98 SW 488.

58. Where plaintiff's witness testified that hole in theater carpet had existed for two weeks and court instructs to find for defendant unless jury believes plaintiff's evidence, instruction that defendant must keep theater in a reasonably safe condition is not erroneous as ignoring whether condition existed for sufficient time to give notice. Nephler v. Woodward, 200 Mo. 179, 98 SW 488.

60. See Master and Servant, 8 C. L. 840.

61. See Negligence, 8 C. L. 1090.

62. Whether maintenance of a powder magazine within 1,000 feet of dwelling house is a nuisance held for jury. Kerbaugh v. Caldwell [C. C. A.] 151 F 194. Discharge of fireworks in park held not per se public nuisance. Crowley v. Rochester Fireworks Co., 183 N. Y. 353, 76 NE 470.

63. Kerbaugh v. Caldwell [C. C. A.] 151 F 194.

64. But where injury results from shock, liability exists only in case of negligence. Bessemer Coal, Iron & Land Co. v. Doak [Ala.] 44 S 627. In action for injury to house and cistern from shock of blasting, held that proof of negligence was essential to recovery. Thurmond v. Ash Grove White Lime Ass'n, 125 Mo. App. 73, 102 SW 617.

65. Where owner of land conveyed strip thereof to railroad for right of way, held that he could not recover for rocks cast upon his land by necessary blasting done in careful manner. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hanks, 80 Ark. 417, 97 SW 666.

66. Defendant is liable as trespasser. Richter v. Solomon, 104 NYS 405.

67. Where plaintiff sues on case for negligent blasting, proof of naked trespass by casting rocks on land without injury does not entitle him to recovery. Thurmond v. Ash Grove White Lime Ass'n, 125 Mo. App. 54, 102 SW 619.

68. Proof that case of rocket fell upon plaintiff, a spectator at fireworks display, with sufficient force to fell her to ground, held to make case of negligence for jury in using such heavy rockets. Crowley v. Rochester Fireworks Co., 183 N. Y. 353, 76 NE 470. Evidence that defendant was blasting with dynamite within 175 yards from plaintiff's house, that foreman was not an expert blaster, that he was away a part of time, and that workmen were unskilled, held to make question of negligence for jury. Kimberly v. Howland, 143 N. C. 398, 55 SE 778. Evidence that blasting had caused injury to house and cistern and had cast about two wagon loads of rock on plaintiff's farm, with evidence that blasting was carried on prior and subsequent thereto without injury, held to make case of negligence for jury. Thurmond v. Ash Grove White Lime Ass'n, 125 Mo. App. 73, 102 SW 617.

69. Where defendant in making gas pipe connection negligently permits gas to escape into room, fact that it was ignited by another does not relieve him, since such result should have been foreseen. Moore v. Lanier [Fla.] 42 S 462. One blasting with dynamite within 175 yards from dwelling house and without properly smothering blast held bound to foresee possible injury, though not exact nature thereof. Kimberly v. Howland, 143 N. C. 398, 55 SE 778. Dropping of lighted match into open vent-hole of drip wagon, thereby causing explosion, by boy seven and one-half years old, held not such intervening agency as to break causal connection between defendant's negligence in leaving wagon in street unguarded and injury, such boy being irresponsible. Iamurri v. Saginaw City Gas Co., 148 Mich. 27, 14 Det. Leg. N. 163, 111 NW 884.

70. Where defendant left drip wagon with uncovered vent-hole in street and injury resulted to plaintiff from explosion, fact that plaintiff had climbed onto wagon held not to make him trespasser so as to defeat recovery. Iamurri v. Saginaw City

Gas Co., 148 Mich. 27, 14 Det. Leg. N. 163, 111 NW 884.

71. Selling of coal oil with which gasoline had become mixed, of which fact defendant had knowledge, held actionable negligence, especially where defendant knew that it would be retailed as coal oil. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 18 Okl. 107, 89 P 212.

72. In action for death caused by explosion of substance sold for kerosene and used as such, evidence held sufficient to require submission of defendant's negligence in sale and delivery thereof to jury. Ellis v. Republic Oil Co., 133 Iowa, 11, 110 NW 20.

73. In action for injuries caused by gasoline explosion, evidence held insufficient to sustain finding that defendant delivered gasoline instead of kerosene to plaintiff. Wilkins v. Standard Oil Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A 985.

74. Circumstantial evidence held sufficient to show that death of plaintiff's wife and children was due to explosion. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 18 Okl. 107, 89 P 212.

75. Use of kerosene to start fire held not negligence as matter of law so as to defeat recovery for death caused by more dangerous explosive sold and used as kerosene. Ellis v. Republic Oil Co., 133 Iowa, 11, 110 NW 20; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 18 Okl. 107, 89 P 212. Held that plaintiff was not negligent in permitting fifteen year old daughter to use kerosene for lighting fire. Nelson v. Republic Oil Co. [Iowa] 110 NW 24.

76. Where dynamite obtained by contractor, engaged in widening railroad tracks for use in work, exploded from unknown cause and injured plaintiff, railroad company held not liable where it had nothing to do with dynamite. Hall v. New York, etc., R. Co., 121 App. Div. 488, 106 NYS 106. See Independent Contractors, 8 C. L. 176.

77. Person employing one to break up machinery by explosion of large charges of dynamite near road is liable, though latter is an independent contractor. Falender v. Blackwell, 39 Ind. 121, 79 NE 393.

78. In action for injury to employe by premature blast, caused by alleged defective fuse, evidence that explosion occurred immediately after lighting three foot fuse held insufficient to show that fuse was defective or that by due care employer could have discovered same. Langhorn v. Nelson, 30 Ky. L. R. 482, 99 SW 223. Employer held liable where he set common laborer without knowledge of explosives to work in disentangling and straightening wires connecting dangerous explosive caps without warning, and injury resulted. Lavia v. Kountz Brothers Co., 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 481. See Master and Servant, 8 C. L. 840.

79. Brick structure entirely open on one side held not a "vault or safe" within ordinance regulating storage of explosives. Smith v. Mine & Smelter Supply Co. [Utah] 88 P 683. Keeping of dynamite for immediate use by contractor widening railroad tracks held not within ordinance making it unlawful "to have or keep" dynamite except in magazines, etc., such ordinance relating to "storing." Hall v. New York, etc., R. Co., 121 App. Div. 488, 106 NYS 106.

80. Smith v. Mine & Smelter Supply Co. [Utah] 88 P 683. Where defendant left a drip wagon with vent-hole uncovered and injury resulted from explosion caused by child dropping match in vent-hole, ordinance prohibiting leaving of wagons in street held admissible as showing negligence. Iamurri v. Saginaw City Gas Co., 148 Mich. 27, 14 Det. Leg. N. 163, 111 NW 884.

81. Ordinance of city of Spokane prohibiting blasting within city unless covered in such manner as to prevent danger held to apply to "spring shot" which is designed to simply make chamber at bottom of drilled hole. City of Spokane v. Patterson [Wash.] 89 P 402.

82. Master held criminally liable for blasting within city limits without covering same as provided by ordinance, though he did not assent thereto and directed employe to adopt different course. City of Spokane v. Patterson [Wash.] 89 P 402. Member of partnership engaged in quarrying held criminally liable for blasting contrary to ordinance, though he did not, as partner, participate therein or consent thereto. Id.

83. Under Gen. St. 1902, § 4579, making it an offense to keep for sale illuminating fluids inflammable at lower temperature than that prescribed, one who keeps such fluid for sale is liable though acting as employe of another. State v. Boylan, 79 Conn. 463, 65 A 595.

84. Statute prescribing a particular test for coal oils and gasoline sold for domestic use cannot be held void because some other test may be better suited to accomplish purpose (Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 18 Okl. 107, 89 P 212), nor will it be declared unconstitutional because it excludes certain oils equally safe as others passing test (Id.).

85. Where in prosecution for keeping for sale illuminating fluid inflammable below prescribed temperature evidence is conflicting as to which devise should be used for of oils, the city of Chicago has no power to require an additional inspection at seller's cost.<sup>86</sup> In actions for personal injuries resulting from explosives, the usual rules respecting pleadings,<sup>87</sup> evidence,<sup>88</sup> and variance<sup>89</sup> apply.

EXTORTION.<sup>90</sup>

EXTRADITION.

§ 1. International (1347).

§ 2. Interstate (1348).

§ 1. International.<sup>91</sup>—One may not be held for extradition where there is no legal evidence of the commission of the crime charged.<sup>92</sup> The decision of the authorities of the country on which demand is made that an offense is or is not extradictable under a treaty is final and cannot be reviewed by the courts of the demanding country after extradition.<sup>93</sup> As to offenses not covered by treaty, each country may exercise its discretion as to the surrender of a fugitive,<sup>94</sup> and if a demand is acceded to either on the theory of treaty obligation, or as an act of comity, accused cannot raise the question that the offense was not within the treaty.<sup>95</sup> A person surrendered under an extradition treaty is not subject to arrest or trial for any other offense than that charged in extradition until after a reasonable time for return unmolested to the country from which he was brought,<sup>96</sup> but this immunity does not extend to offenses committed subsequent to extradition.<sup>97</sup> In testing, question is for jury unless statute prescribes test. State v. Boylan, 79 Conn. 463, 65 A 595. Evidence held to sustain a verdict that fluid kept for sale was inflammable below prescribed temperature. Id.

86. Since Act July 1, 1874, Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 104, §§ 1-8, provides complete scheme for inspection of oil, held that ordinance creating office of city oil inspector and providing for additional inspection at expense of sellers is void. City of Chicago v. Burke, 226 Ill. 191, 80 NE 720.

87. Allegation that defendants wantonly and recklessly exploded powder "well knowing that said acts would probably result in injury to plaintiff and with reckless disregard to consequences" held to charge willful conduct. Bessemer Coal, Iron & Land Co. v. Doak [Ala.] 44 S 627. Where declaration alleges that defendant negligently and carelessly permitted acetylene gas to escape into room while making pipe connections, well knowing that it was liable to explode, and an explosion resulted, held sufficient without alleging means whereby it became ignited. Moore v. Lanier [Fla.] 42 S 462.

88. Where magazine exploded on March 5th, evidence as to quantity of explosives and conditions under which it was stored in February and on March 1st, held not too remote as bearing on question of nuisance. Kerbaugh v. Caldwell [C. C. A.] 151 F 194. Evidence as to what was done to protect child from injury from subsequent blastings held immaterial where no injury from such blasts is alleged. Bessemer Coal, Iron & Land Co. v. Doak [Ala.] 44 S 627. Where caps are not kept in vault or safe as required by ordinance, evidence of comparative explosive power of fulminate of mercury, component part of caps, and gun powder, is admissible where ordinance prohibits keeping of explosives stronger than gunpowder within city. Smith v. Mine & Smelter Supply Co. [Utah] 88 P 683. Where on direct examination defendant's salesman testifies that two or three days before explosion defendant had 2,000 electric exploders in vault, and on cross-examination testifies that defendant was selling same, on redirect he may testify whether defendant would be likely to sell 2,000 exploders during two or three days to meet inference that they might have been all sold. Id.

89. In case of negligent blasting, alleging that defendant caused rocks to fall on and among his cattle and crops, etc., recovery cannot be had for entry of defendant's servants to drive cattle out of danger. Thurmond v. Ash Grove White Lime Ass'n, 125 Mo. App. 57, 102 SW 619.

Ex parte Browne, 148 F 68; Johnson v. Browne, 205 U. S. 309, 51 Law. Ed. 816. Omission of words "or be punished" from the treaty held not to justify the imprisonment. Id.

determining whether an indictment charges the same offense for which accused was extradited, it is immaterial whether or not the crime has the same name in both countries, it being sufficient if the same acts are charged.<sup>98</sup> Where an indictment charges an extraditable offense, the fact that after extradition it is quashed in the demanding state for technicalities does not entitle accused to a reasonable time to return to the country of asylum before being called on to answer a new indictment charging the same facts.<sup>99</sup>

§ 2. Interstate. Origin and extent of power.<sup>1</sup>—A state has no sovereign power to surrender fugitives to another jurisdiction, but can grant extradition only under the Federal constitution and statutes.<sup>2</sup> These, however, impose upon the executive authorities of the different states and territories the duty of apprehending fugitives under the conditions therein specified.<sup>3</sup> It must appear that accused is charged with an offense against the laws of the demanding state<sup>4</sup> and that he is a fugitive from justice, but to constitute a fugitive it is necessary only that he should have been in the demanding state when the crime was committed and have thereafter left that state and been found in another.<sup>5</sup> Whether or not, when he left the demanding state, he believed that he had committed a crime, is immaterial.<sup>6</sup>

Though Porto Rico is not a "territory" or "foreign country" within the meaning of the extradition laws,<sup>7</sup> its governor has power by virtue of the organic act of the island to issue a requisition for the return of a fugitive by a state.<sup>8</sup>

Procedure.<sup>9</sup>—An indictment is sufficient upon which to base extradition proceedings if it states the substance of the offense, regardless of inartificialities, surplusage, or mere technicalities.<sup>10</sup> That the venue as stated in an affidavit is followed by the unnecessary naming of the parties does not render it defective.<sup>11</sup> The indictment or affidavit must be properly certified as authentic by the governor of the demanding state.<sup>12</sup> It will be implied from the authentication that the officer certifying to be the jurat of the affidavit was such magistrate as he is therein represented to be.<sup>13</sup> The governor of the surrendering state need not require independent proof apart from the requisition papers that accused was a fugitive from justice.<sup>14</sup> The executive warrant need not show that the acts charged constitute an offense under the laws of the demanding state, or that the fugitive

3. Whenever the executive authority of a state or territory demands a person as a fugitive from justice from the executive authority of another state or territory, and produces a duly certified copy of an indictment or affidavit charging the commission of a crime in the demanding state, it is the duty of the latter authority to issue his warrant for the arrest of such person, having first ascertained that he is a fugitive from justice. U. S. Rev. St. § 5278 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 3597). Ex parte Denning [Tex. Cr. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 740, 100 SW 401.

5. Appleyard v. Massachusetts, 203 U. S. 222, 51 Law. Ed. 161; Depoilly v. Palmer, 28 App. D. C. 324. Evidence that accused had resided in demanding state more than three years after date of crime properly rejected. Depoilly v. Palmer, 28 App. D. C. 324.

8. Rev. St. § 5278 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3597), made applicable by Organic Act of April 12, 1900, putting in force in Porto Rico all Federal statutes not locally inapplicable. In re Kopel, 148 F 505; People v. Bingham [N. Y.] 81 NE 773, affg. 117 App. Div. 411, 102 NYS 878.

9. See 7 C. L. 1640.

was charged in accordance with the procedure of that state.<sup>15</sup> That it recites that relator was charged upon "complaint" instead of by "affidavit" is not fatal where it was issued upon a charge which was in form and legal effect an affidavit.<sup>16</sup> That the arrest and deportation is so carried out that accused is given no opportunity to prove in the surrendering state that he was not a fugitive from justice, or to appeal to the courts of that state to prevent his illegal deportation, does not violate the constitution or laws of the United States.<sup>17</sup> The issuance of a commitment for an arrest under executive warrant is justified under the New York statute if it appears to the satisfaction of the magistrate that the person is charged in some other state with crime and that he has fled from justice, it not being necessary to show that his return to the demanding state is justified.<sup>18</sup>

Review.<sup>19</sup>—In habeas corpus the court may go behind the executive warrant and examine the sufficiency of the papers upon which it was issued,<sup>20</sup> and if the indictment or affidavit is sufficient, the prisoner will be discharged;<sup>21</sup> but the executive warrant being in due form, the burden is on accused to overcome the prima facie case thereby established.<sup>22</sup> The identity of relator with the person named in the extradition papers must appear,<sup>23</sup> but, in the absence of any claim by relator in his petition or in his traverse of the return thereto that he is not the person named in the warrant, the presumption arising from identity of name is sufficient prima facie evidence.<sup>24</sup> Where no attempt is made to show on what date the offense was in fact committed, nor that there is any error in the date stated in the affidavit, relator is simply required to show that he was not present in the demanding state on the date charged.<sup>25</sup> That the indictment was not found within the period of limitations is not conclusive, it not being shown that accused was in the demanding state during the period.<sup>26</sup> Evidence as to the actual guilt or innocence of relator is inadmissible,<sup>27</sup> and the court cannot inquire into the motive or ultimate purposes of the extradition proceeding.<sup>28</sup>

Rights of extradited persons.<sup>29</sup>—Accused will not be entitled to a release because the methods by which his presence in the demanding state was secured may have violated the constitution and statutes relating to extradition, he being held under an indictment for a crime against the laws of that state.<sup>30</sup>

The relation of factor to consignor.<sup>33</sup>—One having possession<sup>34</sup> of goods with the authority to sell the same and to collect the price is a factor,<sup>35</sup> possession and authority to collect distinguishing him from a broker.<sup>36</sup>

Rights and liabilities inter se and as to third persons.<sup>37</sup>—As between factor and consignor, their rights and liabilities are controlled largely by their contract,<sup>38</sup> especially in regard to compensation,<sup>39</sup> and their previous course of dealing.<sup>40</sup> A factor has no implied authority to dispose of goods in satisfaction of his private debts,<sup>41</sup> or to delegate to another the powers vested in him,<sup>42</sup> but an unauthorized act may be ratified by the principal.<sup>43</sup> The burden of proving a ratification rests upon the party seeking to bind the principal.<sup>44</sup> A factor is not obliged to depart from his usual course of business at the direction of his principal.<sup>45</sup> In Texas a factor receiving goods of one as the property of another in possession is protected only under the doctrine of estoppel.<sup>46</sup> In actions growing out of the relation, the general rules of evidence<sup>47</sup> and trial<sup>48</sup> apply.

34. Where one seeking to buy and resell goods directs that they be sent to particular place and they are shipped in name of owner with draft attached to bill of lading, and in letter offering goods for sale such party states that goods were "owned by mill company and we are merely selling for them," held there was no such possession as to constitute him factor. Robinson, Norton & Co. v. Corsicana Cotton Factory, 30 Ky. L. R. 580, 99 SW 305.

35. Contract construed not sale but consignment for sale on commission. Federal Chemical Co. v. Green & Sons, 30 Ky. L. R. 223, 97 SW 803. Where contract provided that title should remain in consignor until consignee had sold and settled for same and who was to report unsold fertilizers at a specified time, failure to report did not vest title in consignee. Id. Tobacco warehouse company may charge commissions for sale of tobacco and cannot be held responsible for samples taken out. *Orr v. 38. Principal's instructions held not to direct immediate sale where corn was graded lower than 2 and factor did not think an appeal from grading justified. Aygarn v. Fraser Co., 123 Ill. App. 95.

39. Where insurance company elected to take over damaged goods under its option, such taking held not to constitute a sale within contract, fixing factor's compensation, but came within clause providing commissions where unsold goods are transferred to another at principal's request. Wertheimer v. Talcott, 118 App. Div. 840, 103 NYS 692. Held that expense incurred by factor in employing insurance adjusters to settle loss was properly allowed, though other adjusters would have done the work cheaper, there being no evidence of negligence or bad faith. Id.

40. Where principal consigned goods to factor with power to sell or reconsign, and company of which factor was president reconsigned same and sold draft drawn on new consignee, held not binding on principal unless authorized by previous course of business. Smith v. Jefferson Bk., 120 Mo. App. 527, 97 SW 247.

41. Cannot accept payment by balancing account against consignments of purchaser (Liebhardt v. Wilson [Colo.] 88 P 173), and custom among factors of city to so do is not binding on principal (Id.).

43. Subsequent ratification of unauthorized act is equivalent to prior authority, unless intervening rights of third persons will be prejudiced thereby. Smith v. Jefferson Bk., 120 Mo. App. 527, 97 SW 247. Where goods consigned to factor were reconsigned by company of which factor was president, and company's draft sent in payment, held that if principal accepted draft with knowledge of facts he thereby ratified reconsignment (Id.), but not if he accepted draft in belief that reconsignment was regular (Id.). Held that, if he accepted draft believing company to be solvent, he might thereafter repudiate reconsignment if rights of third persons would not be prejudiced. Id. Ratification held for jury under facts of case. Id.

46. Where one permits cotton to be shipped as property of another, he is not estopped to assert title as against factor who prior thereto had made advancements to latter upon false representations that he owned certain cotton and would ship same, factor not being misled by owner's action (Kempner v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 SW 351), nor is he estopped by advancement thereafter made where it was not made upon ownership of particular cotton which was small in amount, but upon all of consignor's cotton in his possession and promises of future shipments (Id.).

§ 1. What Constitutes, Persons Liable, and Jurisdiction (1351). | § 2. The Action to Recover Damages (1352).

§ 1. What constitutes, persons liable, and justification.<sup>49</sup>—False imprisonment is the unlawful restraint of the personal liberty of another.<sup>50</sup> It differs from malicious prosecution in that the latter proceeds under lawful process but from malicious motives and without probable cause.<sup>51</sup> It may consist of an unauthorized arrest or incarceration<sup>52</sup> without legal warrant<sup>53</sup> or probable cause,<sup>54</sup> but an arrest lawfully made is not rendered unlawful by a subsequent discharge of accused before the expiration of a reasonable time to procure a warrant or present him before a magistrate.<sup>55</sup> Actual force or visible physical restraint is not essential.<sup>56</sup> president and draft drawn on new consignee was sold to and collected by bank, action by principal against bank for conversion, letters by principal to third person repudiating transaction held hearsay (Smith v. Jefferson Bk., 120 Mo. App. 527, 97 SW 247), as are also telegrams by factor to principal to effect that he had wired new consignee that goods belonged to him and letter written by company to effect that consignee had been directed to remit direct to principal (Id.). Where company of which factor was president wrongfully reconsigns goods and sends its draft to principal, which is accepted, held that principal's knowledge of facts which should warn him of company's insolvency may be considered in determining whether he intended to ratify action of company whether solvent or not. Id.

48. Where goods consigned to factor were wrongfully reconsigned by company of which he was president and draft of company sent in payment, and purchaser of draft drawn on new consignee relied on acceptance of company's draft as ratification, instruction that, as draft was dishonored, principal's acceptance was not payment unless he accepted it as payment held misleading. Smith v. Jefferson Bk., 120 Mo. App. 527, 97 SW 247.

49. See 7 C. L. 1643.

50. Placing a person against his will in a position where he cannot exercise it in going where he may lawfully go and detaining him without lawful authority held false imprisonment. Robinson & Co. v. Green [Ala.] 43 S 797. Evidence held not to show that plaintiff was restrained of his liberty. Cramer v. Barmon [Mo. App.] 103 SW 1086. Evidence insufficient to connect defendant with an unlawful arrest and imprisonment. Scheurmann v. Vaccaro, 118 La. 67, 42 S 648.

51. Neves v. Costa [Cal. App.] 89 P 860. Complaint charging that plaintiff was arrested and imprisoned on a false charge and without probable cause held not to charge false imprisonment as well as malicious prosecution. Clark v. Palmer, 116 App. Div. 117, 101 NYS 759. One arrested without process and on complaint stating no offense could not sue for malicious prosecution, but action for false imprisonment was barred. Hackler v. Miller [Neb.] 112 NW 303.

52. Arrest of father for telling son in defendant's hearing that defendant was after him for army desertion held violation of Ky. St. 1903, § 1221, against illegal arrests, where son was clearly not subject to arrest because of limitations. Commonwealth v. White, 30 Ky. L. R. 1322, 101 SW 331. Where court was without jurisdiction to order an arrest on ground of insufficiency of an affidavit, the truthfulness of such affidavit and affiant's knowledge relative thereto were immaterial. Neves v. Costa [Cal. App.] 89 P 860. Police judge had authority to arrest plaintiff in forcible detainer for injuring tenant's property, though detainer proceedings had terminated. Read v. Shipley [Ky.] 104 SW 1001. Proceedings for incarceration of plaintiff for violating an ordinance held valid so as not to render judge or marshal liable for false imprisonment, though excessive costs were taxed. Rowe v. Reneer, 30 Ky. L. R. 545, 99 SW 250.

53. One who arrests another on the sole authority of a private telegram and without ascertaining that a crime has been committed acts at his peril. Janes v. Wilson [La.] 44 S 275. In prosecution for arrest without a warrant for violation of an ordinance, held immaterial whether ordinance was valid or not, it not having been violated in defendant's presence. Gambill v. Cargo [Ala.] 43 S 866. Presumed that a magistrate's warrant of arrest was based on proper affidavit or personal knowledge. Read v. Shipley [Ky.] 104 SW 1001. Allegations that plaintiff was arrested on a body execution and imprisoned did not show false imprisonment, it not appearing that execution or judgment was invalid. McClerg v. Vielee, 116 App. Div. 731, 102 NYS 45. In suit for arrest without warrant, question whether plaintiff was intoxicated held for jury. Snyder v. Thompson [Iowa] 112 NW 239.

54. An officer's arrest without a warrant is not false imprisonment where he acts with probable cause. O'Malley v. Whitaker, 118 La. 906, 43 S 545. Conductor held not to have had probable cause for arresting an alleged trespasser. Davis v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 61 W. Va. 246, 56 SE 400.

55. Not false imprisonment. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Hinsdell [Kan.] 90 P 800. Where plaintiff had committed larceny by taking goods from possession of a carrier having a lien, that carrier's agent described his offense as running away without pay-

One at whose instance or request the tort is committed is liable as a party thereto.<sup>57</sup> A master or principal is liable for a false imprisonment by his servant or agent within the scope of the latter's employment or authority.<sup>58</sup> A judge of inferior jurisdiction is responsible for an imprisonment in proceedings beyond his jurisdiction.<sup>59</sup> An election judge who without authority arrests and detains a voter is liable though he be a judicial officer with judicial discretion within prescribed limits.<sup>60</sup>

Justification and excuse.<sup>61</sup>—One is protected where an arrest was lawful,<sup>62</sup> or where he acted under regular legal process<sup>63</sup> executed as directed.<sup>64</sup> Ordinarily the motive of a person in making an illegal arrest is immaterial except to show malice as a basis for smart money damages,<sup>65</sup> but an officer may defend on the ground of probable cause.<sup>66</sup>

Damages.<sup>67</sup>

§ 2. The action to recover damages.<sup>68</sup>—The complaint must state a cause of action<sup>69</sup> for false imprisonment as distinguished from malicious prosecution.<sup>70</sup> An information alleging an assault without lawful authority sufficiently charges violence<sup>71</sup> and want of authority by law to arrest and detain.<sup>72</sup> When one is arrested without a warrant it is more important that he be informed by the plea of the grounds of arrest than where a warrant is used.<sup>73</sup>

The burden is on defendant to justify the imprisonment.<sup>74</sup> Testimony by ing his bill, and that all carrier wanted was its money, held not to authorize recovery. Id. See, also, Arrest and Binding Over, 9 C. L. 249.

56. McAleer v. Good, 216 Pa. 473, 65 A 934. Policemen inducing one to go with them to chief of police who searched and incarcerated him held liable. Id.

57. One at whose instance an arrest is made is liable as a party thereto, although he did not expressly direct the officer to make the arrest. McAleer v. Good, 216 Pa. 473, 65 A 934. Persons at whose request plaintiff was seized and detained in a sanitarium held joint tort feasons, though they did not know that confinement was without legal commitment. Allen v. Ruland, 79 Conn. 405, 65 A 138.

58. In suit against a railroad held for jurv. under the evidence, whether person making the arrest acted as special police officer or within scope of his duties as employe of defendant. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Twilley [Md.] 67 A 265. Street railway held liable for arrest of passenger caused by superior officer who had right to take charge of car at any point. Carmodity v. St. Louis Transit Co., 122 Mo. App. 338, 99 SW 495. Not necessary that authority of agent be expressly conferred, or that particular act complained of should have been authorized. Authority may be implied from agent's relation to principal, nature of employment, and mode in which he was permitted to conduct the business. Robinson & Co. v. Green [Ala.] 43 S 797. Evidence held to show that defendant had given his deputy authority to make arrests. Gambill v. Cargo [Ala.] 43 S 866.

59. Justice without jurisdiction causing arrest, trying and sentencing accused. McCarg v. Burr, 186 N. Y. 467, 79 NE 715. Order for imprisonment in house of correction instead of in common jail. Brewer v. Casey [Mass.] 82 NE 45. Recital that accused was committed to "prison" did not show excess of jurisdiction. Id.

65. East v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 115 App. Div. 683, 101 NYS 364.

66. If a police officer wantonly and maliciously arrests an innocent person, he is liable in as heavy punitive damages as a private person would be for a malicious prosecution, but if in the honest endeavor to arrest a felon he takes an innocent person, justly suspected, he is not liable. *McAleer v. 74. To show that it was by authority of law. McAleer v. Good, 216 Pa. 473, 65 A 934. Officer making arrest without a warplaintiff that he was detained against his will is not opinion evidence.<sup>75</sup> It is proper to show that the person who made an arrest was defendant's agent,<sup>76</sup> and the extent and character of his authority,<sup>77</sup> though matters in justification are ordinarily not admissible under the general issue.<sup>78</sup> It has been held proper to show under a general denial that at the time of an arrest plaintiff was committing a misdemeanor.<sup>79</sup> Evidence of defendant's good faith,<sup>80</sup> of plaintiff's mental suffering,<sup>81</sup> and that he was released on habeas corpus,<sup>82</sup> may be admitted on the question of damages. That an indictment against plaintiff was dismissed can be considered only for the purpose of determining whether the prosecution had terminated favorably to him.<sup>83</sup> That the evidence shows that the imprisonment did not immediately follow an arrest does not constitute a variance where it was the final result of the arrest.<sup>84</sup> An information against an election judge for imprisonment of a voter is supported by proof that he ordered the marshal to take the voter into custody and that this was done.<sup>85</sup>

Questions of justification are often for the jury.<sup>86</sup> Instructions must properly state the law,<sup>87</sup> must not be misleading,<sup>88</sup> and must be supported by the pleadings and evidence.<sup>89</sup>

Larceny by trick and general rules of criminal law and procedure<sup>92</sup> are excluded.

Elements of offense.<sup>93</sup>—It must appear that accused knowingly made a false pretense<sup>94</sup> with intent to cheat and defraud,<sup>95</sup> and by such pretense actually did defraud and obtain the property.<sup>96</sup> A false pretense is such a fraudulent representation of a fact past or existing by one who knows it to be untrue as is adapted to induce the person to whom it was made to part with something of value,<sup>97</sup> and it may consist of any act, word, or token knowingly and designedly employed to defraud another of personalty.<sup>98</sup> While a mere promise or representation as to something to take place in the future does not amount to a pretense,<sup>99</sup> yet a promise and a statement as to an existing fact may be considered together where the latter becomes effective only by reason of the former.<sup>1</sup> Knowledge of county officers that a claim presented is false will not be imputed to the county for the protection of one who fraudulently obtains money thereon.<sup>2</sup> It being shown that money was obtained with intent to defraud, it is immaterial to whom the benefit subsequently accrued.<sup>3</sup>

The place of the crime.<sup>4</sup>

Statutory cheats, swindling, etc.<sup>5</sup>—Among the offenses especially prohibited by statute may be mentioned the presentation of fraudulent claims,<sup>6</sup> the passing of fictitious bank notes of banks not in existence,<sup>7</sup> the working of the so-called "confidence game,"<sup>8</sup> and the obtaining of money or other property on a contract of hiring with

96. State v. Briscoe [Del.] 67 A 154. Must be shown that representations were made; that they were knowingly and designedly false, and made with intent to deceive and defraud; that they did deceive; that they related to existing facts or past events; that other party was induced to part with property in reliance thereon. Goddard v. State [Ga. App.] 58 SE 304.

97. State v. Briscoe [Del.] 67 A 154. Representation that another had agreed to go on defendant's note held of existing fact. Fairy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 314, 97 SW 700. Person guilty who obtained goods by false representations that he had a contract with another for upholstering of certain articles at a certain price. Martin v. Com. [Ky.] 102 SW 273. 99. State v. Hollingsworth, 132 Iowa, 471, 109 NW 1003.

1. Indictment charging that defendant represented he had arranged to go into business, that he would be married, would go and establish the business, etc., held not demurrable. State v. Hollingsworth, 132 Iowa, 471, 109 NW 1003.

3. Where accused swindled in sale of hogs belonging to son and later turned money over to son. Speer v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 297, 97 SW 469.

4, 5. See 7 C. L. 1648.

6. On the issue of whether accused obtained money from a county on false representations that it was owing him, it is immaterial that the claim presented was not in perfect legal form. State v. Talley [S. C.] 57 SE 618. Rev. St. 1898, § 4083, punishing the presentation of fraudulent claims to public officers not amended or superseded by Laws 1903, c. 48, amending Laws 1901, c. 137, relative to presentation of bounty claims. State v. Swan, 51 Utah, 336, 88 P 12.

7. Two incomplete bank notes pasted together held false and fictitious within Pen. Code, § 476. People v. Harben [Cal. App.] 91 P 398. Pen. Code, § 470, relating to signing name of fictitious person with intent to defraud, held not applicable to § 476. Id.

8. Procuring cash deposit from applicant for employment by representations that defendant was conducting a large business held to violate Hurd's Rev. St. p. 692, c. 38. Hughes v. People, 223 Ill. 417, 79 NW 137. Obtaining money by bogus check. Jurelich v. People, 223 Ill. 484, 79 NE 181. That defendant sold stock in a gold mining company guaranteeing it to pay a certain amount each year held not to render him guilty of obtaining money by confidence game. Lory v. People [Ill.] 82 NE 261. Inducing intent to defraud.<sup>9</sup> In Texas the acquisition of title to property by false pretext is swindling, whereas the acquisition of mere possession by such pretext is theft.<sup>10</sup> A false oral representation as to the present truth of a formal written financial statement is sufficient under the New York statute requiring representations as to a purchaser's ability to pay for goods to be in writing in order to make them criminal.<sup>11</sup> The word "person" as used in a statute punishing one who obtains money or property from "any other person" includes a corporation.<sup>12</sup>

Defenses.<sup>13</sup>—In a few states it is held that no conviction can be had for inducing one to part with money or property for an illegal purpose,<sup>14</sup> but in a prosecution for obtaining a loan it is no defense that the loan was usurious.<sup>15</sup> That defendant was acting as attorney for the one to whom he made the representations does not relieve him from criminal responsibility therefor.<sup>16</sup>

Limitations.<sup>17</sup>

The indictment.<sup>18</sup>—All the essential elements of the offense must be set forth<sup>19</sup> with precision and certainty.<sup>20</sup> Thus it must be sufficiently shown that accused knowingly<sup>21</sup> made false representations<sup>22</sup> as to past or existing facts,<sup>23</sup> feloniously and designedly pretending them to be true,<sup>24</sup> and with a present intent to defraud and deceive,<sup>25</sup> that these were relied on,<sup>26</sup> and that money or something prosecutor to part with money on defendant's representations that he would engage in business with prosecutor held obtaining money by confidence game, and not a mere breach of a civil contract. Chilson v. People, 224 Ill. 535, 79 NE 934.

9. Act Aug. 15, 1903, does not deny equal protection of law. Vance v. State [Ga.] 57 SE 889. Not invalid for failure to declare measure of proof sufficient to overcome presumption of fraudulent intent declared to arise on proof of certain facts. Id. Not in conflict with provision providing for uniformity of operation throughout the state (Id.), nor with provision for public and speedy trial by jury (Id.). Does not violate constitutional inhibition against amendments or repeals by mere reference to title or section. Id. The statute was not designed to create a remedy for the collection of debts or for compelling performance of contracts. Mulkey v. State, 1 Ga. App. 521, 57 SE 1022; Heywood v. State, 1 Ga. App. 530, 57 SE 1025. Provision creating presumption of fraudulent intent on proof of obtaining money on contract, failure to perform, etc., must be restricted in application so as not to result in imprisonment for debt or nonperformance of contract. Mulkey v. State, 1 Ga. App. 521, 57 SE 1022. Evidence as a whole must show beyond reasonable doubt that fraudulent intent existed at time money was obtained. Id. Hence accused should not be convicted where he engaged in the promised services so long as to make it unreasonable to presume that he did not intend to perform. Id.

22. Must allege facts from which it may appear wherein the representations were false or fraudulent. People v. Carpenter [Cal. App.] 91 P 809.

23. That the representations alleged are not all of existing facts does not render the indictment defective. That some were as to hopes and intentions. People v. Sattlekai, 104 NYS 805.

Use of words "by virtue of the premises, to wit," followed by particulars, held not to destroy effect of previous allegation that defendant falsely and feloniously pretended that another was owner of land. Id.

of value was obtained thereby.<sup>27</sup> It must also be shown from whom the property was obtained<sup>28</sup> and what was its character,<sup>29</sup> and amount or value,<sup>30</sup> but a statement that accused intended to defraud of a certain sum in money sufficiently places a value on the property which he intended to procure,<sup>31</sup> and it need not be stated who owned property falsely represented by accused to be owned by him;<sup>32</sup> neither is it necessary to allege the purpose for which complainant paid the money to accused.<sup>33</sup> That some of the statements in the indictment are inconsistent does not necessarily render it demurrable.<sup>34</sup> Where two counts charge the same transaction, the state is not required to elect.<sup>35</sup>

Evidence; admissibility.<sup>36</sup>—The intent to defraud may be established by either direct or circumstantial evidence,<sup>37</sup> such as by proof of similar transactions in which accused participated.<sup>38</sup> Minor false representations connected with and surrounding the main false representations relied on are admissible as part of the res gestae.<sup>39</sup>

Tex. Ct. Rep. 297, 97 SW 469. Indictment charging defendant with assigning wages and subsequently collecting them himself held insufficient to show violation of Pen. Code, § 670, against cheating by any deceitful means or artful practice, it not stating that representations were made with intent to defraud or with present intent to himself collect the wages. Crawford v. State [Ga. App.] 58 SE 301.

26. The indictment need not expressly state that complainant relied on the representations. People v. Sattlekau, 104 NYS 805. An equivalent allegation, as that accused obtained the money or property by the aid and color of the representations set out, and with intent to defraud, is sufficient. Id. Allegation that prosecutor was induced to part with the property sufficient without distinct allegation of reliance. Fairy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 314, 97 SW 700.

Allegation that prosecutor sold and delivered certain goods in exchange for a pretended conveyance held sufficient allegation that deed was delivered to and received by prosecutor in exchange for the property delivered to accused. State v. Roberts, 201 Mo. 702, 100 SW 484.

28. Information that accused intended to defraud R and C held good though it stated only that he obtained money from C, Pen. Code, § 956, making immaterial erroneous allegations as to person injured. People v. Hines [Cal. App.] 89 P 858.

Held admissible: Contract for services executed by accused who signed by mark held admissible after proof by witnesses who signed his name. Campbell v. State [Ala.] 43 S 743.

Not admissible: On trial for swindling by false representations as to ownership of property, claim affidavits, bonds, etc., filed by third persons to a levy on certain property as defendant's held not admissible. Kinard v. State, 1 Ga. App. 146, 58 SE 263.

For obtaining personality in exchange for realty not owned by defendants. State v. Roberts, 201 Mo. 702, 100 SW 484. The facts when clearly proven usually speak for themselves, and other proof of guilty intent is not required. State v. Sparks [Neb.] 113 NW 154. In such cases, evidence of similar and independent transactions should not be received. Id. But when the transaction relied on is such as to require further proof of guilty knowledge, and intent, evidence of like crimes, committed in like manner, at or about the same time, or as part of the same scheme, may be received. Id. That an indictment for presenting a false claim in an account set forth the entire account, and specifically charged that one item was fraudulent, did not preclude state from showing falsity of other items. Thomas v. Ter. [Ariz.] 89 P 591. Evidence of subsequent passing of fictitious bank notes held admissible on intent and for identification of defendant. People v. Harben [Cal. App.] 91 P 398. Evidence of similar representations made to another at about same time held admissible in corroboration of prosecutor as to fact that representations were made, as being inconsistent with plea of not guilty. People v. Ward [Cal. App.] 89 P 874.

39. People v. Colmey, 117 App. Div. 462,

Sufficiency of proof.<sup>40</sup>—The state must establish all the elements of the offense.<sup>41</sup> It is not sufficient to establish facts which would render accused liable in a civil action or subject him to prosecution under some other provision of the criminal statute.<sup>42</sup> Where, however, several false pretenses enter into a transaction, proof of any one of them constituting an operative cause is sufficient to support a verdict of guilty,<sup>43</sup> and the jury may take into consideration the acts and conduct of the parties in determining the truth or falsity of the representations.<sup>44</sup> So, also, the state need not prove that accused obtained the particular sum of money specified in the indictment.<sup>45</sup> A material variance is fatal.<sup>46</sup>

Instructions and verdicts.<sup>47</sup>—The court should instruct on the question of intent<sup>48</sup> and should not invade the province of the jury.<sup>49</sup> This question of intent is one of fact for the jury where circumstances are relied on which have some tendency to negative fraud.<sup>50</sup> Accused cannot complain of the omission of statutory terms from a charge where such omission is favorable to him,<sup>51</sup> and instructions not warranted by the evidence are properly refused.<sup>52</sup> Formal defects in verdict, not prejudicial, are not fatal.<sup>53</sup>

FENCES.

Rights, duties and regulations. See 7 C. L. 1654.—The duty to construct and maintain a fence may be imposed by contract.<sup>54</sup> By statute in most states, railroads are required to construct and maintain fences along their right of way,<sup>55</sup> and in some states one must enclose his lands before he may recover for trespasses thereon by stock.<sup>56</sup> Statutes also frequently provide for the construction and maintenance of partition fences.<sup>57</sup>

Construction, maintenance and cost. See 7 C. L. 1654.—A statutory partition fence must be of a character permitted by the statute<sup>58</sup> and located on the division line,<sup>59</sup> and if not so located ejectment will lie.<sup>60</sup> Where the maintenance of a partition fence has been assigned by the viewers, it may be replaced by any other lawful fence.<sup>61</sup> In order to bring a hedge fence within the statutory provision that it shall not be cut back if it protects an orchard, etc., it must be affording present protection.<sup>62</sup>

Crimes and penalties. See 7 C. L. 1655.—It is a criminal offense in Nebraska to construct a barbed wire fence across a road or track in common use.<sup>63</sup> The Missouri penal statute prohibiting the cutting of fences is not limited to partition fences,<sup>64</sup> but applies to a fence entirely upon the land of one<sup>65</sup> which does not lead to the inclosure of the other,<sup>66</sup> and a statement for the cutting of such fence need not allege that the adjoining fields were under cultivation or that statutory notice was not

54. Where two adjoining landowners agree that each shall build and maintain one-half of line fence "entirely on his own land," such fence does not constitute a statutory division fence, but duties and rights of parties are contractual. McLean v. Berkabille, 123 Mo. App. 647, 100 SW 1109.

55. See Railroads, 8 C. L. 1590.

56. See Trespass, 8 C. L. 2147; Animals, 9 C. L. 100.

57. Code, § 2355, providing that owners of adjoining lands, except timber lands used only for timber thereon, shall erect fences, etc., does not apply to or require erection of fence on each side non-navigable division river, the bed being necessarily regarded as uninclosed land. Foster v. Bussey, 132 Iowa, 640, 109 NW 1105. Fact that Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 54, § 7, authorizes fence viewers to assign hedge partition fence belonging to one to adjoining owner to maintain, and thus giving right of removal, held not unconstitutional as taking property without due process of law. Hill v. Tohill, 225 Ill. 384, 80 NE 253.

58. Under Comp. Laws, § 2415, relating to partition fences, held that worm or Virginia fence may be lawfully built though it requires strip of land from three to five feet wide, as also may stump fence built in accordance with local practice and approved by viewers. Rose v. Linderman, 147 Mich. 372, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1046, 110 NW 939.

59. Where it requires strip from three to five feet wide, equal amount may be taken from each adjoining pieces, builder not being required to place same on own land. Rose v. Linderman, 147 Mich. 372, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1046, 110 NW 939.

60. Rose v. Linderman, 147 Mich. 372, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1046, 110 NW 939.

61. Where hedge fence was assigned to one adjoining owner, under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 54, § 7, for maintenance, held that he could replace with wire fence, without adjacent owner's consent. Hill v. Tohill, 225 Ill. 384, 80 NE 253.

62. Mere intention of adjoining owner to plant orchard at future time held not bringing case within Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 54, § 3. Hill v. Tohill, 225 Ill. 384, 80 NE 253.

63. Information based on § 108, c. 78, Comp. St. 1903, making it unlawful to "build a barbed wire fence across or in any plain traveled road or track in common use," which omits to charge that track or road was in "common use," is defective. Gilbert v. State [Neb.] 111 NW 377. Words "common use" held to apply to both roads and tracks. Gilbert v. State [Neb.] 112 NW 293.

64. Action held under Rev. St. 1899, § 4573 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 2486), for cutting of fence wholly on plaintiff's land. Frederick v. Bruckner [Mo. App.] 101 SW 619. Where plaintiff constructed fence on own land and did not intend that defendant should use the same, it was not a partition fence. Frederick v. Bruckner [Mo. App.] 101 SW 619.

65. Where surveyor ran two division lines which did not coincide, and evidence tends to show that parties agreed to accept one as true boundary, and that plaintiff built fence on his side thereof which was torn down by defendant, agreement held properly submitted by instruction as question of fact. Frederick v. Bruckner [Mo. App.] 101 SW 619.

66. Failure of statement to allege that fence destroyed did not lead into defendant's enclosure, as required by Rev. St. 1899, § 4573, creating liability, was cured by failure to raise such objection by demurrer. Frederick v. Bruckner [Mo. App.] 101 SW 619.

given.<sup>67</sup> Where a fence obstructs a public street, one inconvenienced thereby, may remove the same without liability.<sup>68</sup>

FERRIES.<sup>69a</sup>

In many states the granting of franchises generally, or to a particular class of persons,<sup>69</sup> rests in the sound discretion of the court,<sup>70</sup> and its judgment in respect thereto is not subject to collateral attack.<sup>71</sup> While the posting of a notice of application is jurisdictional in Kentucky,<sup>72</sup> the order granting the right need not show such posting.<sup>73</sup> A statute limiting the period for which a franchise may be granted will be read into an order silent in respect to duration.<sup>74</sup> In Illinois a city may acquire land for ferry purposes by condemnation.<sup>75</sup> The right of a ferryman to use the property of another for a landing depends largely upon statute.<sup>76</sup> Ferriage charges are often regulated by statute or other public act.<sup>77</sup> In Kentucky a ferry for hire<sup>78</sup> cannot be established within one mile of an existing one, and, if so established, the operator thereof is liable in damages.<sup>79</sup> The operator of a ferry is

67. Such provisions of Rev. St. 1899, § 4573 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 2486), held to relate only to partition fences. Frederick v. Bruckner [Mo. App.] 101 SW 619.

68. State v. Godwin [N. C.] 59 SE 132. In prosecution under Revisal 1905, § 3673, for injuring and removing fence surrounding yard, etc., whether fence was one within statute and whether land had been dedicated as street, held under evidence for jury. Id.

69. Under Shannon's Code, §§ 1696, 1699, 1703, empowering county court to grant franchise to one owning a ferry landing or land on both sides of stream, held to authorize granting of franchise to one who was only tenant in common. Guinn v. Eaves, 117 Tenn. 524, 101 SW 1154. One operating ferry, using public road on his land as one landing and land of third person for opposite landing, has no preference over franchise subsequently granted to such third person, under Shannon's Code, §§ 1696-1699, 1703 (Id.), and such person cannot increase his rights by changing landing on eve of litigation (Id.).

70. Granting of second ferry franchise by county court, although not necessary to accommodate public, held not such abuse of discretion as to authorize superior court to interfere. Guinn v. Eaves, 117 Tenn. 524, 101 SW 1154.

71. As in action for infringement of privilege. Hatten v. Turman [Ky.] 97 SW 770.

72. Ky. St. 1903, § 1804, providing that no application to establish ferry shall be heard unless notice thereof shall be posted, etc. Hatten v. Turman [Ky.] 97 SW 770. Evidence of posting of notice together with presumption in favor of validity of judgment establishing ferry held to show posting. Id.

73. Hatten v. Turman, 30 Ky. L. R. 382, 98 SW 1000.

74. Where order establishing ferry is silent as to the period for which right is granted, Ky. St. 1903, § 1802, prohibiting grant for more than twenty years, will be read into it, and in action for infringement of privilege it will be conclusively presumed that it was for twenty years. Hatten v. Turman [Ky.] 97 SW 770; Hatten v. Turman, 30 Ky. L. R. 382, 98 SW 1000.

75. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 24, § 194, providing that it shall be lawful for a city "to build or acquire ferries, by purchase, lease, or gift," city may condemn land for ferry purposes and is not limited to acquisition by "purchase, lease, or gift." Helm v. Grayville, 224 Ill. 274, 79 NE 689. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 55, § 23, which is part of chapter on ferries, conferring power to take or damage private property for ferry landing, is not limited to ferries to be operated under such chapter, but applies to ferries to be established under c. 24, § 194. Id. It is no defense that one landing will be in another state, and city may not be able to acquire a landing there. Id. In proceedings under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 24, § 194, to condemn land for ferry petition alleging that business interests of city require greater ferry facilities than those afforded by existing ferry held to sufficiently show that ferry was for public purposes. Id.

76. Kirby's Dig. § 3556, providing that person operating ferry and owning land on one side shall have privilege of landing on opposite bank, held not to give right of landing on private property, but merely on public property. Lake v. Combs [Ark.] 104 SW 544.

77. Act of February 6, 1799 (Gen. St. p. 1469), does not suffice to authorize chosen freeholders of Hudson county to fix rate of ferriage of foot passengers from New Jersey to New York. New York Cent. etc., R. Co. v. Board of Chosen Freeholders of Hudson County [N. J. Law] 65 A 860. As to power of states to prescribe charges on interstate commerce and as to what constitutes such commerce, see Commerce, 9 C. L. 583.

78. Where storekeeper establishes ferry and issues tickets therefor with purchases, he is maintaining ferry for hire in violation of Ky. St. 1903, § 1820. Hatten v. Turman [Ky.] 97 SW 770.

79. Where ferry privilege has been infringed, measure of damage is such sum as will compensate owner for tolls lost. Hatten v. Turman [Ky.] 97 SW 770. And damages will be presumed from showing that public is using defendant's ferry and a diminution of receipts, it not being necessary to show that such persons would have

Where a verdict is against several defendants, it must separately assess the fine against each.<sup>85</sup> Fines imposed for the violation of penal statutes or ordinances are not debts within a constitutional inhibition against imprisonment for debt.<sup>86</sup> But while a sentence may provide for imprisonment if a fine and costs are not paid within a given period,<sup>87</sup> such imprisonment must not result in a confinement for an offense for a longer period than that prescribed by law.<sup>88</sup> Where a statute provides for imprisonment one day for every dollar of fine and costs, and a commitment is made under several distinct and similar judgments simultaneously entered, an incarceration sufficient to discharge one is a discharge of all the others in the absence of any order for successive incarcerations.<sup>89</sup> Where a misdemeanor convict is sentenced to work with a provision for discharge upon the payment of a fine, the court used his ferry. Id. Where it appears that plaintiff's daily receipts for five years were about $1.50 lower than for five years prior to infringement, held that verdict for $1,000 was not excessive. Id.

80. Liable for failure to provide reasonably safe way to board for one intending to take passage, though not yet a passenger in that fare has not been paid or the intention signified. Burke v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 120 Mo. App. 683, 97 SW 981.

81. Cradle track consisting of detached railway track with irons connecting rails, and which rested upon regular track at water's edge and arranged so as to be movable, held not a reasonably safe means of getting foot passengers aboard. Burke v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 120 Mo. App. 683, 97 SW 981.

82. In action for injuries received while boarding ferryboat, instruction that point of junction of ferryboat and dock may be dangerous, and that plaintiff was bound to use care accordingly, held not erroneous. Gassert v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A 1014. Where plaintiff testified that cradle track was not in motion when he went upon it, and that he was injured by sudden lurch thereof, held sufficient to prevent peremptory instruction on ground of contributory negligence. Burke v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. 120 Mo. App. 683, 97 SW 981. Verdict for plaintiff thereon held not so against the evidence as to indicate prejudice. Id. Negligence in failing to observe that gangplank was tilted up, or in slipping thereon if such fact was observed, held for jury. Gassert v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A 1014.

83. Amendment of § 845, Rev. St. 1892, providing that county commissioners shall be liable for negligence "in keeping any such road or bridge in proper repair," held not to apply to free ferry. Board of Com'rs of Morgan County v. Marietta Transfer & Storage Co., 75 Ohio St. 244, 79 NE 237.

84. It includes the enforcement, payment, and disposition of fines imposed on conviction of crime.

It excludes the amount of fine which may be imposed and the determination of excessiveness (See Criminal Law, § 6, 9 C. L. 851) and the procedure for imposition (See Indictment and Prosecution, 8 C. L. 189).

87. United States circuit court had common-law jurisdiction to commit one, until he paid a fine imposed under Federal Statutes, for willful refusal to allow search by revenue officers for goods imported without payment of duty. Ex parte Barclay, 153 F 669. When a fine is assessed, trial court must either imprison defendant or sentence him to labor under §§ 5423-5425, Code 1896, unless fine and costs are paid or judgment confessed. Perry v. State [Ala.] 43 S 18. Judgment ordering performance of additional labor, not to exceed a certain time, at eighty-three cents per day until the costs are satisfied, is not a determination of the time necessary to work out the costs at thirty cents per day as required by Code 1896, § 4532. Moore v. State [Ala.] 42 S 996.

88. Where six months was limit for a misdemeanor, and prisoner was unconditionally sentenced to jail for five months, he could not be sentenced to six months more if he failed to pay a fine. Wallace v. State, 126 Ga. 749, 55 SE 1042. Relator entitled to discharge where, after being fined $72.42, including costs, she remained in jail twenty-six days after filing her affidavit in forma pauperis as required by law. Ex parte Woodroe [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 SW 226. That on one day prisoner claimed he was sick did not defeat his right to discharge after confinement for sufficient length of time to discharge the fine. Ex parte Clayton [Tex. Cr. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 236, 103 SW 630.

89. Peed v. Brewster [Ind.] 79 NE 1039.

should prescribe a reasonable time for payment.<sup>90</sup> If it fails to do so, or prescribes two irreconcilable limits within which to pay, the law will allow a reasonable time.<sup>91</sup> One may not insist on his being required to work out a fine where under the statute this is left discretionary with the town authorities.<sup>92</sup> A fine imposed for a criminal offense is not enforceable by the state after the death of the person upon whom it was imposed.<sup>93</sup> Though a bond for the payment of a fine does not conform to the requirements of a statute,<sup>94</sup> it may constitute a valid common-law obligation,<sup>95</sup> so that where the sheriff is subsequently compelled to pay the amount of the fine to the county<sup>96</sup> he may recover on such bond against the principal and sureties.<sup>97</sup> A fine paid by one convicted under a void indictment cannot be recovered by him by rule against the sheriff who collected it.<sup>98</sup> In Ohio, where fines for the violation of the municipal local option law or the law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sunday are collected by the clerk of the court of common pleas, they must be paid by him into the county treasury,<sup>99</sup> and where imposed by the municipal court they must be paid into the treasury of the municipality.<sup>1</sup>

Co.* 127 Ga. 550, 56 SE 638. Finding of negligence sustained, although it appeared that fire was set out while weather conditions were favorable in extinguishing the same after it has spread to the property of another.<sup>10</sup> It has been held, however, that one is not liable for negligently permitting a fire to escape from his premises where he was not responsible for its origin.<sup>11</sup> Defendant's negligence must be the proximate cause of the loss,<sup>12</sup> and no recovery can be had for damage caused by a fire carried beyond his control by a sudden and violent wind,<sup>13</sup> though, if he negligently permits a fire to escape, it is no defense that it would have missed plaintiff's property had the wind not changed.<sup>14</sup> No recovery can be had for losses which could have been prevented by due diligence on plaintiff's part.<sup>15</sup>

§ 2. Remedies and procedure. See 7 C. 21. Where defect alleged to have caused fire was spark arrester, recovery must be had upon such negligence. Barker v. Collins [Del.] 63 A 686. Evidence that fire was started by sparks from locomotive is inadmissible to prove allegation that, "the servants, agent and employees" did negligently set fire to brush and grass on right of way. Riley v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 SW 156.

22. Where, in action for fire set by sparks, plaintiff alleges negligence in use of too much steam, he must prove connection between use of too much steam and emission of sparks, which is not done by showing that other fires were started by sparks. *Louisville & N. In action for damages from fire alleged to have been caused by traction engine, evidence that such engine emitted sparks on day preceding fire is inadmissible where it is not shown that engine was in same condition. Barker v. Collins [Del.] 63 A 686. Where it is alleged that defendant's engine set fire to barn, which in turn communicated fire to house, evidence as to how far sparks were carried from barn is admissible to show that fire was so communicated. Cleveland, etc. R. Co. v. Hayes, 167 Ind. 454, 79 NE 448. Evidence of fires repeatedly occurring, of which defendant had knowledge may be considered in determining whether defendant exercised due care in respect to particular fire. Hayes v. Brandt, 80 Ark. 592, 98 SW 368. Evidence that defendant's servant who set fire had been in habit of piling and burning brush, that fire previously occurring therefrom had burned plaintiff's fence, and that he had warned servant that such fires would "burn plaintiff out," held admissible to show knowledge by defendant of dangerous character of the fires. Id.

26. Instruction that if plaintiff was owner of barn, contents, and hog pen mentioned in petition, etc., held not objectionable as referring jury to petition for issues. Big River Lead Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 123 Mo. App. 394, 101 SW 636. Where evidence shows that all property sued for was destroyed and tends to show value of each item, instruction that damages should be such as barns, contents, and hogpens were reasonably worth, not exceeding amount sued for, to wit, $6,479, held not erroneous as not setting out each item. Id.

FISH AND GAME LAWS.

§ 1. Public Control of Fish and Game (1364).	§ 3. Private Rights in Fish and Game (1367).
§ 2. Offenses; Penalties; Prosecutions (1366).

§ 1. Public control of fish and game.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1659</sup>—In the exercise of its police power, a state may make reasonable regulations for the preservation and protection of fish and game,<sup>38</sup> which power cannot be contracted away.<sup>39</sup> These statutes, however, must observe constitutional requirements<sup>40</sup> as to title,<sup>41</sup> taking of private property<sup>42</sup> without due process of law<sup>43</sup> and without compensation,<sup>44</sup> denying equal privileges to all citizens,<sup>45</sup> interfering with Federal regulation of interstate commerce,<sup>46</sup> and impairing the obligation of contracts.<sup>47</sup> The preservation and protection of fish and game is effected by statutes of various character, the more common ways being to prohibit the taking thereof during certain seasons or for a specified period,<sup>48</sup> restricting the methods of capture<sup>49</sup> by requiring hunters to take out

Laws 1902, p. 36, c. 969, providing for punishment of persons having short lobsters in their possession, and that possession of any such lobster shall be prima facie evidence to convict, held not violative Const. art. 1, § 10, guarantying a speedy and public trial by impartial jury, and that accused shall be confronted with opposing witnesses, or § 14, providing that every one shall be presumed innocent, etc. State v. Sheehan [R. I.] 66 A 66. Laws 1905, c. 344, § 56, making it unlawful to interfere with game and fish commission in gathering spawn, held not to allow commission to arbitrarily interfere with business, and not violative of Federal or State constitution. State v. Tower Lumber Co. 100 Minn. 38, 110 NW 254.

41. Laws 1905, p. 161, § 13 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 3608), entitled "An act relating to the preservation, propagation, and protection of game animals," held sufficiently broad to cover domesticated deer. State v. Weber [Mo.] 102 SW 955. Act. No. 48, p. 106, of 1906, prohibiting sale of plumage of certain birds, held sufficient as to title. In re Schwartz [La.] 44 S 20. Title to c. 344, p. 598, Laws 1905, held sufficiently broad to cover § 56, making it unlawful to interfere with game and fish commission in gathering of spawn. State v. Tower Lumber Co., 100 Minn. 38, 110 NW 254. Title of Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 302, held sufficient as to title to authorize conviction for fishing in illegal manner though fish caught were not game or food fish to which title specifically referred. Commonwealth v. Kenney, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 544.

42. Rules limiting power of legislature to prohibit possession of personal property generally are not applicable to game. People v. Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Co., 118 App. Div. 723, 103 NYS 434; Sherwood v. Stephens [Idaho] 90 P 345.

43. Laws 1900, p. 28, c. 20, § 31, as amended by Laws 1904, p. 1409, c. 582, and Laws 1902, p. 487, cc. 194, 141, prohibiting possession for sale of pheasants until 1910 except that pheasants bred or purchased and liberated in Suffolk county might be possessed in Greater New York for consumption only, held not unconstitutional in so far as it prohibited possession of foreign killed pheasants as taking property without due process of law. People v. Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Co., 118 App. Div. 723, 103 NYS 434.

44. Laws 1905, p. 161, § 13 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 3608), making it unlawful to have in possession the carcass of any deer which has not thereon the natural evidence of its sex, does not violate. Const. art. 2, § 21, prohibiting taking of private property for public use without compensation, though applicable to domestic deer. State v. Weber [Mo.] 102 SW 955.

45. Act 1899, p. 194, c. 117, § 1, providing that nothing in this or any other act shall prevent any Indian from taking fish at any time for use of himself and family, includes only Indians not citizens, hence it does not render an act which it qualifies unconstitutional as denying equal privileges to all citizens. State v. Lewis [Wash.] 88 P 940.

46. Act. No. 48, p. 106, of 1906, prohibiting sale of body or plumage of certain birds whether killed within or without state, held not violative of § 8, art. 1, Federal Const. In re Schwartz [La.] 44 S 20.

47. Contractual rights of boom company incorporated with special rights in particular stream held subordinate to police power respecting fish. State v. Tower Lumber Co., 100 Minn. 38, 110 NW 254.

48. Amendment of 1906 of game laws 1903 (P. L. 1906, p. 699,) is to be read as independent enactment, extending closed season for deer for three years from 1906. State v. Snyder [N. J. Law] 67 A 934.

49. Under Kirby's Dig. § 3600, it is unlawful to catch fish with trammel net regardless of size of meshes, such qualification applying only to seines. Rowe v. State [Ark.] 103 SW 613. Act 1899, p. 194, c. 117, § 1, providing that nothing in this or any other act shall prevent any Indian residing in this state from taking fish at any time for use of himself and family, held to constitute proviso to Sess. Laws 1905, p. 343, c. 170, § 4, making it unlawful to catch salmon except with hook and line between 6 P. M. Saturday and 6 A. M. Monday. State v. Lewis [Wash.] 88

A person knowingly<sup>55</sup> having short lobsters in his possession is liable in Rhode Island. Municipal officers have no power in Maine to regulate the catching of clams until the voters have failed to act thereon at town meeting.<sup>56</sup> Since Oregon and Washington have concurrent jurisdiction over the Columbia river, a regulation respecting fishing therein must be concurred in by both states.<sup>57</sup> Before an order of the forest, fish, and game commission of New York, prohibiting the fishing in a stream, passed upon request of town board, becomes effective, a copy,<sup>58</sup> thereof must be filed with the town clerk.<sup>59</sup> In many states, license fees or a portion thereof<sup>60</sup> go into the state treasury to constitute a game protection fund.<sup>61</sup>

P 940. One fishing in manner prohibited by Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 302, is liable though fish caught was not a game or food fish. Commonwealth v. Kenney, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 544.

50. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, p. 1114, c. 61 § 25, making it unlawful to hunt rabbits, etc., without license, held constitutional and a reasonable exercise of police power. Kyle v. People, 226 Ill. 619, 80 NE 1081. Laws 1905, pp. 168, 169, § 54, providing that it shall be unlawful for any person to hunt in the state outside the county in which he lives without first obtaining a license, does not require one to take out license to hunt in county where he resides. *State v. 51. Owner who knowingly allows or suffers his dog to run loose out of his sight and control "permits" such dog to run at large within § 24. Act April 14, 1903 (P. L. p. 526), as amended April 5, 1904 (P. L. p. 406). Conner v. Fogg [N. J. Law] 67 A 338.

52. Laws 1905, p. 161, § 13 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 3608), making it unlawful to have in possession the carcass of any deer which has not thereon the natural evidence of its sex, applies to domestic deer. State v. Weber [Mo.] 102 SW 955. Under Laws 1900, p. 28, c. 20, § 31, as amended by Laws 1904, p. 1409, c. 582, providing that there shall be no open season for English pheasants, nor shall same be killed or possessed etc., prior to 1910, and Laws 1902, p. 487, c. 194, providing that when possession of game or fish is prohibited such statute shall be equally applicable to game or fish coming from without state, one having pheasant for sale in New York City, though killed in foreign state, is liable. People v. Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Co., 118 App. Div. 723, 103 NYS 434.

53. Forest, Fish, and Game Law, § 8 prohibiting shipment of slaughtered deer, wild or domesticated, held constitutional exercise of police power. Dieterich v. Fargo, 52 Misc. 200, 102 NYS 720. For purpose of protecting wild deer, legislature may prohibit transportation of domesticated deer as well. Dieterich v. Fargo, 104 NYS 334, Id., 52 Misc. 200, 102 NYS 720. Forest, Fish and Game Law, Laws 1900, p. 24, c. 20, § 8, as amended by Laws 1906, p. 1337, c. 478, providing that deer or venison killed within state shall not be transported, etc., applies to domesticated deer. Dieterich v. Fargo, 104 NYS 334. Reference in Act May 25, 1900, c. 553, § 4, requiring packages to be marked, to section 1, is clerical error, section 3 being intended, hence not applicable to game birds killed during open season and shipped out of state in violation of state law. United States v. Thompson, 147 F 637.

54. Laws 1892, p. 985, c. 488, as amended by Laws 1904, p. 1403, c. 580, construed, and held that before amendment sale of foreign grouse and woodcock was not prohibited, but is now prohibited unless seller has complied with provisions requiring bond. People v. Weinstock, 117 App. Div. 168, 102 NYS 349. Where grouse or partridge are sold without bond prescribed by Laws 1900, p. 27, c. 20, § 27, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 612, c. 335, it is immaterial whether they were killed within or without state. People v. Stillman, 117 App. Div. 170, 102 NYS 351. Laws 1900, p. 27, c. 20, § 27, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 612, c. 335, prohibiting sale of grouse or partridge without giving prescribed bond, held to apply to selling agents of a nonresident. Id. Held question for jury whether defendant was selling agent of a nonresident or mere delivery and collecting agent. Id.

While an indictment need not negative purely defensive matters,<sup>66</sup> it should allege all facts necessary to make defendant's acts an offense,<sup>67</sup> though a failure may be aided by verdict.<sup>68</sup> It must not be duplicitous.<sup>69</sup> The game warden may serve the warrant and make the arrest in a case in which he is prosecutor, and hence entitled to one-third of the penalty in New Jersey.<sup>70</sup> The proof must establish the offense charged.<sup>71</sup> While the prosecution must make out its case<sup>72</sup> by competent evidence,<sup>73</sup> possession is presumptively illegal in some states.<sup>74</sup> Where an exception is not in the enacting clause, the defendant has the burden of bringing his case within it.<sup>75</sup>

pp. 3605-3621), creating game warden and requiring all license fees to be paid into state treasury, state, and not game warden, is proper party to sue to compel county clerk to turn over such fees, although they become a part of game protection fund. State v. Moody, 202 Mo. 120, 100 SW 619.

62. Sherwood v. Stephens [Idaho] 90 P 345.

63. Penalty prescribed by § 24, Act April 14, 1903, (P. L. p. 526), as amended April 5, 1904 (P. L. p. 406), held to relate to portion of act prohibiting dogs running at large in fields inhabited by rabbits as well as that prohibiting running of rabbits at night. Conner v. Fogg [N. J.] 67 A 338. Dredging over private oyster bed held not an "illegal" dredging within Gen. St. 1902, § 3241, providing for seizure and sale of boat engaged in illegal dredging. Doolan v. The Greyhound, 79 Conn. 697, 66 A 511.

64. Fact that act imposes a fine for each bird killed in violation of Act No. 48, p. 106, of 1906, held not to invalidate it as imposing excessive penalty. In re Schwartz [La.] 44 S 20.

65. One arrested under Laws 1900, p. 57, c. 20, providing for enforcement of civil judgments recovered under game law by execution against the person, is entitled to the liberties of the jail as provided by Code § 149. People v. Monaco, 54 Misc. 25, 105 NYS 401.

66. Under Rev. St. c. 41, § 17, indictment need not charge that short lobsters were not liberated alive, such fact being matter of defense. State v. Brewer [Me.] 66 A 642.

67. Indictment under Rev. St. c. 41, § 17, need not allege that live lobsters in accused's possession were less than ten and one-half inches long when caught, but must so allege in respect to cooked lobsters. State v. Brewer [Me.] 66 A 642. Indictment under act 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 44), amending Pen. Code 1895, § 221, for hunting on posted land, must allege that at time of registering of name of landowner and the posting of the land in register he also registered description of land as required by statute. Hardaway v. State, 1 Ga. App. 150, 58 SE 141.

68. Indictment under Acts 1895, p. 256, c. 127 § 1, as amended by Acts 1897, p. 679, c. 321, failing to allege that fish were not caught for private use, is good after verdict where evidence shows such fact. Freeman v. State [Tenn.] 100 SW 723.

69. Held that catching fish with seine having meshes of less than four inches is a distinct offense, under Kirby's Dig. § 3600, from that of catching by other prohibited means hence indictment charging that defendant did "unlawfully catch fish with a net and a seine" is duplicitous. Rowe v. State [Ark.] 103 SW 613. Indictment under Rev. St. c. 41, § 17, alleging that respondent "did have in her possession sixty-seven live lobsters and fifty-three cooked lobsters, each less than ten and one-half inches," etc., charges only one offense. State v. Brewer [Me.] 66 A 642.

70. Under P. L. 1897, p. 109. State v. Snyder [N. J. Law] 67 A 934.

71. Under Kirby's Dig. § 3600, defendant cannot be convicted of using a trammel net under indictment charging the use of a seine, the acts constituting distinct offenses. Rowe v. State [Ark.] 103 SW 613.

72. In prosecution under § 24, Act April 14, 1903 (P. L. p. 526), as amended by Act April 5, 1904 (P. L. p. 406), for permitting dog to run at large in field inhabited by rabbits, testimony that "there are rabbits in that field" together with evidence tending to show that dog caught one, held to show that field was inhabited by rabbits. Conner v. Fogg [N. J. Law] 67 A 338.

73. In prosecution under Pub. Laws 1902, p. 36, c. 969, for having short lobsters in possession, evidence that on previous occasions defendant had in his possession lobsters of lawful size is inadmissible. State v. Sheehan [R. I.] 66 A 66.

74. In replevin under game act (Sess. Laws 1899, p. 188, c. 98, § 15), by game commissioner for deer skins, defendant has burden of alleging and proving facts which, under the act, entitles him to possession. People v. Johnson [Colo.] 88 P 184.

75. In prosecution under § 24, Act April 14, 1903 (P. L. p. 526), as amended by Act April 5, 1904 (P. L. p. 406), for permitting dog to run at large in violation thereof, held not necessary for state to show that field was not inhabited by deer. Conner v. Fogg [N. J. Law] 67 A 338.

78. A right in gross to take fish from millpond is neither assignable nor inheritable. Mallet v. McCord, 127 Ga. 761, 56 SE 1015.

79. Where town meeting, under Town Law, Laws 1890, p. 1215, c. 569, § 24 (1 Rev. St. p. 340, § 6), voted that trustees should no longer lease the bottom under waters of town or oyster planting, subsequent lease is void. People v. Warner, 116 App. Div. 863, 102 NYS 362.

80. Act March 30, 1874, St. 1873-74, p. 940, c. 671, § 1, providing that any citizen may lay down and plant oysters in any public waters, and the ownership and exclusive right to take up the same shall remain in him, etc., held that privilege was mere personal license, and not an estate of inheritance subject to partition under Code Civ. Proc. § 752. Darbee & Immel Oyster & Land Co. v. Pacific Oyster Co., 150 Cal. 392, 88 P 1090.

81. Under Code 1904, § 2137, rights held subject to previously acquired rights of dock and ship building company to dredge for construction of shipyard over same area. Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. v. Jones, 105 Va. 503, 54 SE 314.

83. See Accession and Confusion of Property, 9 C. L. 10.

84. Building once affixed to realty becomes part thereof in absence of agreement to contrary (Barnes v. Hosmer [Mass.] 82 NE 27), though built by mistake upon the land of another (Rollinger v. McMinn [Tex. Civ. App. 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 104 SW 1079].

Sugar cane boiler placed under building, in large horse stable, as part of watering system, held fixture. Brigham v. Overstreet [Ga.] 57 SE 484. Sugar cane mill constructed by placing four large posts firmly in ground and spiking mill thereto and sugar cane boiler placed in furnace, which rested on ground with chimney running up through mill house, held fixtures. Id. Assignee of lease containing option of purchase and covenants requiring lessee to make improvements in certain amount which should revert if option was not exercised to owner of land, held upon abandonment, that buildings became part of realty, and not subject to attachment as property of assignee. Peters v. Stone, 193 Mass. 179, 79 NE 336.

85. Shelving nailed to walls of storehouse, large and cumbersome counters, tables and meat box placed therein to carry out purpose for which building was erected, and to be used therewith, held fixtures, passing with sale of realty. Brigham v. Overstreet [Ga.] 57 SE 484. Fire hose attached to standpipe in hotel by being screwed onto projecting valves, and hose rack attached to pipe by clamps, held to constitute fixtures so as to support mechanic's lien, though they could be easily removed without injury to pipe being adapted to permanent use with hotel. Crane Co. v. Epworth Hotel Const. & Real Estate Co., 121 Mo. App. 209, 98 SW 795. Building erected upon substantial rock foundation to effectuate purpose for which land was conveyed and for permanent use held a fixture. Mosca Town Co. v. Wellington [Colo.] 89 P 783. Instruction that whatever was placed on premises and attached to realty or connected in any way therewith for use and improvement of same for a vinegar factory, and all tanks erected therein appurtenant to its use, became a part of realty, held too broad. Lord v. Rowse [Mass.] 80 NE 822.

86. Mining houses and machinery attached to soil with intent that they should remain alone has been held sufficient in the case of heavy and cumbersome machinery.<sup>87</sup> Since intention is of primary importance in determining whether a chattel has become a fixture, relationships such as licensor and licensee,<sup>88</sup> vendor and vendee,<sup>89</sup> landlord and tenant,<sup>90</sup> etc., apparently invoke different rules. In Louisiana movables which are permanently attached to realty by the owner, or which are placed thereon for its service and exploitation, are "immovables by destination,"<sup>91</sup> and cannot be demobilized by a mere act of will of the owner<sup>92</sup> or by cessation of the work in which they are employed.<sup>93</sup>

By agreement or estoppel.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1667</sup>—By agreement a chattel which would otherwise become a part of the realty may retain its character as personality<sup>94</sup> unless of such a character as to be necessarily incorporated into the realty.<sup>95</sup> Where a contract of sale of land reserves fixtures, the question as to what constitutes fixtures thereunder is for the jury.<sup>96</sup> The owner of realty in many cases may sever the fixture and treat it as personality,<sup>97</sup> and when it is wrongfully severed by another, he and become part of freehold are fixtures. Hoye Coal Co. v. Colvin [Ark.] 104 SW 207.

87. Storage tanks, fermenting tubs, chip casks, a large kettle and pipes in brewery, attached only by weight, but which could not be removed except by taking to pieces, and which were adapted to use in the brewery, held fixtures. Dehring v. Beck, 146 Mich. 706, 13 Det. Leg. N. 930, 110 NW 56.

88. Where structure is affixed to premises of another by temporary occupant or licensee, it is deemed temporary in character and not part of realty. Young v. Chandler [Me.] 66 A 539. Annexations with consent of owner or mortgagee by licensee are presumed to be removable and to remain property of one annexing in absence of facts indicating contrary intent. Id.

89. Substantially same rules prevail between grantor and grantee as between mortgagor and mortgagee, but different rules apply as between landlord and tenant. Young v. Chandler [Me.] 66 A 539. Where vendor of house containing large mirrors anchored to walls entered into negotiations for purchase of mirrors after entry of decree for sale of land under her vendor's lien, such negotiation did not preclude her from claiming same on taking deed to property as part of realty. Martin v. Ferguson [Ky.] 103 SW 257.

90. Tenant cannot remove fixtures placed on property while owner thereof which passed with realty as between vendor and vendee. Brigham v. Overstreet [Ga.] 57 SE 484. Manure produced in the usual course of husbandry upon farm during term of lease cannot be removed. Id.

91. Civ. Code La. art. 468 (458). Morton Trust Co. v. American Salt Co., 149 F 540. Instances given thereunder of "immovables by destination" are illustrative, and not limitative. Id. Machinery and apparatus placed on land for sinking or working salt wells, horses used in connection therewith, and goats used in keeping brush and weeds down, held immovable by destination. Id.

94. By agreement between owner of personality and owner or mortgagee, personal property may retain its status after annexation. Young v. Chandler [Me.] 66 A 539. Heating plant installed under contract reserving title until paid for. Kirk v. Cry- tal, 118 App. Div. 32, 103 NYS 17. Sprinkling system is installed under contract reserving lien until payment, with right of entry and removal upon default. Schaeffer Piano Mfg. Co. v. National Fire Extinguisher Co., 148 F 159. Defendant contracted to sell his dwelling to T, reserving right to remove fixtures. T. contracted to sell to B. with like reservation. B. assigned contract to plaintiff. Title was closed between plaintiff and defendant on basis of defendant's contract with T., and, while deed did not reserve right to remove fixtures, it was orally agreed that they could be removed. Held that defendant could remove same, contract not being merged into deed. Brunswick Const. Co. v. Burden, 116 App. Div. 468, 101 NYS 716. Where tenant erects building which would become part of realty, except for provision in lease that at expiration of term lessor shall purchase same or grant a new lease, title thereto vests immediately in landlord upon execution of new lease not reserving title in lessee. Precht v. Howard [N. Y.] 79 NE 847. And lessor is not estopped to assert such title because of contract entered into under misapprehension of facts extending time within which she could exercise her option to give new lease or to purchase house, lessee not being prejudiced thereby. Id. Original agreement that building should remain personality may be shown by inference from subsequent recognition of rights which could only so exist. Barnes v. Hosmer [Mass.] 82 NE 27. Where, in replevin, issue was whether property was personality or fixtures, instruction that plaintiff would not have right to remove articles which were fixtures, but that he could remove such as were personality, either under the law or by agreement under which they were attached, held sufficiently favorable to defendant. Lord v. Rowse [Mass.] 80 NE 822.

95. Drive pipe and well casing held to become a part of realty despite agreement. Perry v. Acme Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 80 NE 174.

96. Brunswick Const. Co. v. Burden, 116 App. Div. 468, 101 NYS 716. Mantels and hinges made to match furniture, and parquet flooring laid over a permanent floor, held fixtures within contract to sell dwelling, reserving right to remove fixtures. Id.

97. Though slag dumped as refuse from ore smelter ordinarily becomes part of may recover it as a chattel or suit for damage to the realty.<sup>98</sup> Where written contract does not show whether particular things passed as fixtures or as personalty, such fact may be shown by parol evidence.<sup>99</sup>

Right to remove. See 7 C. L. 1668.—Tenant's fixtures may be removed at any time before surrender of possession of the premises,<sup>1</sup> but not thereafter<sup>2</sup> unless removed under contract right.<sup>3</sup> In many states the taking of a new lease without reserving the right of removal destroys the right.<sup>4</sup>

§ 3. Title of third persons. See 7 C. L. 1669.—While an agreement as between the parties thereto,<sup>5</sup> prior vendors of the realty taking back the property under a reserved lien<sup>6</sup> or persons acquiring an interest in the realty with notice thereof<sup>7</sup> may continue the personalty character of the annexed chattel, it is ineffectual as against bona fide purchasers.<sup>8</sup> In Maine mortgagor cannot by agreement with third party affect the rights of a "prior" mortgagee.<sup>9</sup>

6. Where plaintiff sold gasoline engine to L. under agreement that title thereto should remain in plaintiff until full payment of purchase price, with right of entry and removal, such engine remained personalty, though substantially affixed to realty, as against vendor of realty who resumed possession upon default (Davis v. Bliss [N. Y.] 79 NE 851), notwithstanding L. wrongfully removed and sold the engine replaced thereby (Id.), and agreement between vendor of realty and vendee that all machinery installed should become part of realty (Id.). Contract construed and held to justify inference that parties contemplated installation of machinery which should remain subject to seller's lien. Id.

7. Where it is practicable to remove casing in oil well, such casing is fixture within lease giving tenant right of removing fixtures and may be removed as against one purchasing property with notice. Churchill v. More [Cal. App.] 88 P 290. Evidence tending to show that promoters of corporation when purchasing mining property knew that air compressor thereon, which could be removed without injury to land, belonged to plaintiff, held to sustain finding that same was not a fixture. Possell v. Smith [Colo.] 88 P 1064.

8. Where heating plant, installed under contract reserving title until payment, consisted of large boiler and pipes extending through house, connecting radiators and intended as only heating system, it becomes part of realty as to bona fide purchaser. *Kirk v. 10. It includes regulation of food prod-power,<sup>11</sup> food departments may be established<sup>12</sup> and the sale of injurious foods prohibited or regulated.<sup>13</sup> Such statutes and ordinances must observe constitutional requirements<sup>14</sup> and be sufficiently definite to admit of enforcement.<sup>15</sup> The regulatory power of a municipality depends largely upon its charter.<sup>16</sup> The New York board of health is an administrative body,<sup>17</sup> and a permit to sell milk granted thereby is a mere license,<sup>18</sup> revocable without notice or hearing<sup>19</sup> and although there is no existing ordinance of the board authorizing revocation.<sup>20</sup> Cream of tartar sold by merchants of New York must be of the standard of purity established by the latest edition of the United States Pharmacopæia.<sup>21</sup> At common law there is acts and powers and duties of boards and officers charged with their enforcement.

It excludes matters relating to adulteration (See Adulteration, 9 C. L. 37), the police power of the state and of municipalities to legislate in the interest of purity of food products (See Constitutional Law, 9 C. L. 610; Municipal Corporations, 8 C. no implied warranty that food stuffs sold to a provision dealer are wholesome.<sup>22</sup> Equity will restrain unlawfully threatened prosecutions where of a character to result in great and irreparable injury.<sup>23</sup>

Crimes; prosecutions. See 7 C. L. 1671—Ordinarily any one may institute criminal proceedings for the violation of the pure food laws.<sup>24</sup> An indictment or information in the language of the statute is usually sufficient<sup>25</sup> and need not negative defensive matters.<sup>26</sup> In Pennsylvania one indicted for illegally selling oleomargarine may be enjoined from further sales until determination of the case.<sup>27</sup> The fact that a penalty is to be paid to the dairy and food commissioner, to be by him turned into the state treasury, does not make his title to office a material issue in a prosecution.<sup>28</sup> Questions of fact are for the jury.<sup>29</sup>

A. The Cause of Action (1371).

B. Procedure (1374).
§ 2. Criminal Responsibility (1377).

While this topic includes some cases arising out of the statutory application of the remedy to tenants holding after termination of their leasehold rights, that phase of the subject is more fully treated in an appropriate topic.<sup>30</sup>

§ 1. Civil rights and remedies. A. The cause of action. See 7 C. L. 1671—The purpose of the action is to preserve the peace by preventing those not in the actual possession of real property from resorting to physical force or threats or intimidation of any kind to gain possession of the property from the one in the actual enjoyment thereof.<sup>31</sup> The conditions essential to the right to this action vary in the different states.<sup>32</sup> It is generally held essential that plaintiff be shown to have merchants selling cream of tartar only from visitatorial powers of State board of pharmacy and not exempt them from general provisions against adulteration. State Board of Pharmacy v. Gasau, 52 Misc. 490, 102 NYS 539.

22. Hence, consumer cannot sue original vendor whatever may be his rights against his vendor. Tomlinson v. Armour & Co., [N. J. Law] 65 A 883. Declaration charging that defendant packed and sold some diseased ham to retailer of whom plaintiff purchased and was made sick by eating same held to state no cause of action. Id.

23. Though equity will not ordinarily restrain public officer from enforcing criminal laws, it will enjoin state officer from unlawfully placing in hands of every stockfood dealer a bulletin in effect threatening them with prosecutions if they use manufacturer's product sold in lawful form. Pratt Food Co. v. Bird, 148 Mich. 631, 14 Det. Leg. N. 304, 112 NW 701.

24. No objection that prosecution for violation of Act June 26, 1895, was agent of department of agriculture. Commonwealth v. Arow, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.

25. Information in language of § 18 of Ordinance 20,808, of city of St. Louis, prohibiting sale of milk containing less than three per cent butter fat by weight, specifying time and place of violation, is sufficient. City of St. Louis v. Bippen, 201 Mo. 528, 100 SW 1048.

26. Indictment under Act of June 26, 1895, P. L. 317, need not allege that article sold was not within third section thereof, that being matter of defense. Commonwealth v. Arow, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.

27. Petition under act May 29, 1901, for order restraining one indicted for illegally selling oleomargarine from further sales, is sufficient if it charges that defendant has again been guilty of the offense set forth in indictment, contrary to act May 29, 1901. Commonwealth v. Henderson, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 382.

28. Prosecution under Act June 26th, 1895. Commonwealth v. Arow, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.

29. On a prosecution for violating the pure food law by selling a compound for pure honey where the label used was made up of "Honey" in bold type, "Compound" in smaller and lighter faced type, and "Honey-Syrup" in still smaller type, and the seller testified that he sold it as a compound, held a question for the jury whether the statute was violated. People v. Berghoff, 112 App. Div. 712, 99 NYS 201.

30. See Landlord and Tenant, 8 C. L. 696.

31. Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097. "The remedy of forcible entry and detainer is provided so that possession of real property may be obtained in a judicial and orderly way, and without resorting to violence or steps likely to provoke a breach of the peace. Having this remedy, no one is permitted to vindicate his claimed rights with his own hand." Wilson v. Campbell [Kan.] 88 P 548.

32. Under the Missouri statute relating to forcible entry and detainer, all that needs to be shown to sustain plaintiff's right to restitution is that plaintiff was in the actual possession of the property and was forcibly dispossessed by the defendant. Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097. And see post, Pleading.

33. Brown v. French [Ala.] 42 S 409; Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097; Check v. Reiter [Ky.] 102 SW 287. In an action of unlawful detainer, the principle is elementary that the plaintiff must recover upon the strength of his right to possession, and not rely upon the weakness of the adversary right. Fisk v. Arnold [Ind. T.] 104 SW 824.

Constructive possession of a tract of land under a deed definitely describing its boundaries, connected with actual possession of part of the premises, is sufficient in Tennessee to authorize and maintain an action of unlawful entry and detainer. Stockley v. Cissna [Tenn.] 104 SW 792.

User must be continuous and uninterrupted: A claim to possession of the premises, based upon the fact that the complainant from time to time cut timber therefrom and used it for the grazing of his stock, not showing that such user was continuous and uninterrupted, will not sustain the action of forcible entry and detainer. Stockley v. Cissna [Tenn.] 104 SW 792.

35. Fowler v. Ohnlick [Wash.] 87 P 1050; Redman v. Perkins, 120 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097.

The possession by a tenant of plaintiff is, as to strangers, possession by plaintiff, his landlord, and his abandonment of the premises during the tenancy does not oust plaintiff from possession though he was not present and did not appear until after the entry had been accomplished. Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097. An attornment by a tenant to a stranger who is not within any of the excepted clauses of section 4112 of the Mo. Rev. St. 1899 is void and will not affect the possession of the landlord. Thus, where the plaintiff enters into a contract of lease with a person whom he knows to be in possession as a tenant of a third person, this will not give plaintiff such possession as will sustain an action of forcible entry and detainer though he exercised some acts of ownership, such as repairing fences, preparing some of the land for plowing and receiving a portion of the crop raised. Id.

Successful party in homestead entry contest may maintain: The successful party in a contest as to homestead entry before the secretary of the interior, after such contest is closed, may prosecute an action for forcible entry and detainer. Howe v. Parker, 18 Okl. 282, 90 P 15.

36. School directors may bring, though only trustees may sue if title to school lands is involved. McDaniel v. Stephenson County School Directors, 125 Ill. App. 332. Validity of election of trustees cannot be questioned in such action by them. Id.

Acts held to constitute forcible entry: Under § 1159 of the Cal. Code Civ. Proc., every person is held to be guilty of a forcible entry who "by breaking open doors, windows or other parts of a house * * * enters upon or into any real property." Winchester v. Becker [Cal. App.] 88 P 296 holding that the use of a false key constituted forcible entry within the statute. Entry and tearing down fence erected by tenant. Brown v. French [Ala.] 42 S 409. Entry under claim of title, erecting fence and preventing its removal. Check v. Reiter [Ky.] 102 SW 287; Fowler v. Ohnlick [Wash.] 87 P 1050. A number of men, at the instance of the owner, in the absence of the person in possession and his agent, invaded the premises, opened the building and detached and carried out the furniture and fixtures. Held that the entry was of such a character as to authorize the action of forcible entry and detainer. Wilson v. Campbell [Kan.] 88 P 548.

39. Wilson v. Campbell [Kan.] 88 P. 548. Evidence tending to show that defendants went to premises and by threats and intimidation caused plaintiff's agent to leave, and that they intended to use such force as might be necessary, held sufficient. Collins v. Stanley [Wyo.] 88 P 620.

40. Under subsection 1 of section 452 of the Ky. Civ. Code, "a forcible entry is an entry without the consent of the person having the actual possession." Check v. Reiter [Ky.] 102 SW 287. Under subdivision 6 of § 3 of the Washington Laws of 1905. c. 86, p. 173, any person is guilty of forcible entry or forcible detainer who shall without the permission of the owner, and without having any color of title thereto, enter upon the land of another, and who shall fail or refuse to remove therefrom after three days' notice in writing, to be served in the manner provided in the act. Stahl Brew. & Malting Co. v. Van Buren [Wash.] 88 P 837. In Stahl Brewing, etc., Co. v. Van Buren [Wash.] 88 P 837, the lessee, under a lease stipulating against assignment without written consent of the landlord, agreed to give possession to defendant without such consent. The landlord afterwards leased the premises to the plaintiff and the defendant paid rent to the plaintiff and proffered the rental to plaintiff after being notified by him to leave the premises. It was contended by defendant that no relation existed between him and the plaintiff which would entitle the latter to maintain the action of unlawful detainer been held that ejectment under process which, though irregular, is not void, will not render the one procuring such ejectment guilty of forcible entry and detainer.<sup>42</sup> The action of unlawful detainer presupposes that the defendant obtained possession without force, but wrongfully refuses to surrender it on demand to the person having the legal right thereto.<sup>43</sup> The action being merely possessory,<sup>44</sup> questions of title<sup>45</sup> or right of possession prior to entry are ordinarily not involved, though title may become important as determining the right of possession where the entry was peaceable and the gist of the action is the wrongful detainer.<sup>46</sup> The only question to be determined is possession,<sup>47</sup> but what is possession must be determined in this action just as in any other action.<sup>48</sup> against him. It was held, however, that the action would lie under the above statute, the word "owner" being used in a more comprehensive sense than the record or title owner of the land.

Defenses.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1674.</sup>—Superior title in the defendant is no defense.<sup>49</sup> A defense only available in equity cannot be pleaded to an action of forcible entry and detainer.<sup>50</sup>

41. Possession by mortgagor after foreclosure and taking of possession under master's deed is without color of right. Johnson v. Anna Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 126 Ill. App. 592. Evidence held for jury as to whether defendant was tenant or intruder. Smallwood v. Jones [Ga.] 57 SE 99.

42. Thus in French v. Burr [Conn.] 66 A 504, after a judgment for possession, the plaintiff had been put in possession by the voluntary act of the defendant and had then died. The administrator upon his estate, having subsequently found the original defendant again in possession, employed an attorney to eject him, and the attorney proceeded to do so under an execution on the satisfied judgment. It was both a misuse of process and the use of an irregular process, but neither of these facts rendered the writ absolutely void, and its service would not render the administrator guilty of forcible entry and detainer.

43. Such refusal to make restitution is in its nature an exhibition of force, and consequently is constructively a forcible entry for which an action will lie. Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097.

44. Fisk v. Arnold [Ind. T.] 104 SW 824; Jones v. Com. [Ky.] 104 SW 782; Stockley v. Cissna [Tenn.] 104 SW 792.

45. Folsom v. Hunter, 6 Ind. T. 453, 98 SW 156; Hendrickson v. Linville [Ky.] 104 SW 688; Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097; Moore v. Shoup, 123 Mo. App. 409, 100 SW 53; Stockley v. Cissna [Tenn.] 104 SW 792. The preservation of peace furnishes the reason upon which is founded the statutory prohibition against inquiry into the merits of the title. Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097. As to certification of cause to district court where it appears that the title is in dispute, see post, Jurisdiction. The question of title is immaterial except so far as tending to show the plaintiff's right of present possession. Folsom v. Hunter, 6 Ind. T. 453, 98 SW 156.

46. Neither the right of entry nor the right of property is therein involved. Engle v. Tennis Coal Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1269, 101 SW 309. In an action of unlawful de-tainer, the defendant may prove declarations made by him during the period covered by his possession, to the effect that he was in possession under claim of title and not as the tenant of any one. This is in accordance with the general rule that admissions of a person in possession of property are admissible for the purpose of showing the nature of his possession when that fact is a material issue in the case. Moore v. Shoup, 123 Mo. App. 409, 100 SW 53. It will lie against one taking possession by force under claim of right. Establishment of boundaries under Act May 10, 1901, does not authorize forcible taking of land so defined. Ross v. Youngman, 125 Ill. App. 494.

47. Hendrickson v. Linville [Ky.] 104 SW 688; Engle v. Tennis Coal Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1269, 101 SW 309; Check v. Reiter [Ky.] 102 SW 287; Stockley v. Cissna [Tenn.] 104 SW 792.

48. Hendrickson v. Linville [Ky.] 104 SW 688. Upon a motion to dissolve an attachment, in an action of unlawful and forcible entry, on the ground that defendants did not fraudulently or criminally contract the obligation as alleged in the affidavit for attachment, it was held that the circumstances out of which the plaintiff's cause of action arose might be inquired into although they might involve some of the facts upon the merits, such inquiry is for the purpose of determining whether grounds for the attachment exist, and not whether there is or is not a cause of action. Collins v. Stanley [Wyo.] 88 P 620.

49. "It matters not that the claimant out of possession may have the better right to immediate possession, if his title or right are not recognized by the one in possession he must not attempt to enforce his claim by the strong hand, but must seek redress in the courts, and, if through force of whatever nature he succeeds in ousting his adversary from possession, an action of forcible entry and detainer will lie against him no matter how strong may be his title or his right to possession. Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097. If the owner entitled to possession can legally obtain it, he may undoubtedly hold the same, but he has no right to resort to unlawful and forcible means to gain possession. Wilson v. Campbell [Kan.] 88 P 548.

50. Jones v. Com. [Ky.] 104 SW 782. The erection of valuable improvements in ac-

Damages. See 7 C. L. 1674.—The right to recover damages for the detention of the property has been held to be incident to the action for unlawful detainer though the latter is a possessory action,<sup>51</sup> and, in some states, provision is made for the recovery of double or treble damages by way of penalty.<sup>52</sup>

(§ 1) B. Procedure. See 7 C. L. 1674.—The remedy in forcible entry and detainer proceedings is under the law in force at the time of the commencement of the action.<sup>53</sup> In Washington the plaintiff may proceed under the amendatory act of 1905, in which he must prove the forcible or unlawful detainer as alleged, or under the act of 1891, under which the superior title will prevail.<sup>54</sup> A sufficient demand for possession or notice to quit,<sup>55</sup> properly executed and served, is generally required.<sup>56</sup>

cordance with the terms of a lease is no defense. Id.

51. Fisk v. Arnold [Ind. T.] 104 SW 824; Hinckley v. Casey [Wash.] 88 P 753. In Colorado, in the absence of statutory provisions therefor, a demand for damages or rent cannot be joined in an action for possession of the premises. Mackenzie v. Porter [Colo.] 91 P 916. Under the Colorado statute, provision is made for the recovery of rent in an action commenced under par. 4 of § 1973, but in no other class of cases. Id. Query, whether in an action of unlawful entry and detainer, instituted in the circuit court under c. 89 of the Code 1899 (Code 1906, §§ 3332-3335), damages can be recovered for the detention of the property. Montgomery v. Economy Fuel Co., 61 W. Va. 620, 57 SE 137.

Issuance of attachment in action for damages: An action to recover unliquidated damages for unlawful and forcible entry is a civil action within the meaning of Wyo. Rev. St. 1899, § 3988, authorizing the issuance of attachment in civil actions for the recovery of money. Collins v. Stanley [Wyo.] 88 P 620.

Recovery of damages by defendant: Upon demurrer sustained to the complaint in forcible entry and detainer, and refusal to amend by plaintiff who has obtained a writ of possession, and after judgment for return of the property to the defendant, it is the duty of the court, upon motion of the defendant, to award him a writ of inquiry for a jury to assess the damages and thereon to render a judgment against plaintiff therefor. Folsom v. Hunter, 6 Ind. T. 453, 98 SW 156. The officer's return to a writ of possession issued in an action of forcible entry and detainer, showing that such writ was duly executed, is conclusive evidence in the proceeding for award of damages that the plaintiff had possession from then until the judgment for damages. Id.

52. Under § 5542, Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St., it is provided that the jury or the court "shall also assess the damages occasioned to the plaintiff by any forcible entry or by any forcible or unlawful detainer * * * and, if the alleged unlawful detainer be after default in the payment of rent, find the amount of any rent due, and the judgment shall be rendered against the defendant guilty of the forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer for twice the amount of the damages thus assessed, and of the rent, if any, found due." Hinckley v. Casey [Wash.] 88 P 753. This penalty is imposed for the refusal to surrender possession on the termination of the tenancy, whether it be terminated by the terms of the lease, for nonpayment of rent, or for any of the other causes specified in the statute. Id. Section 1995, Mills' Ann. St., provides for recovery, in separate action, of treble damages for any damages or injury sustained by the plaintiff during the time he shall have been deprived of the possession of the premises. Mackenzie v. Porter [Colo.] 91 P 916.

53. Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Moss [Wash.] 87 P 951. The act of 1905 is applicable though the entry was made before such act took effect, the act being a purely remedial one. Id.

54. If he fails to append an abstract of title to the complaint and sues out a writ of restitution before final judgment, he will be taken to have proceeded under the former or general forcible entry and detainer act, and his rights will be determined by that act. Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Moss [Wash.] 87 P 951.

55. Three days' notice in writing. Stahl Brew. & Malting Co. v. Van Buren [Wash.] 88 P 837.

New notice after verdict of not guilty: Where a lease is by the month, either party may abandon it by giving one month's notice, and therefore where the landlord in such a lease gave a notice to vacate, and on refusal to deliver possession brought an action of forcible entry and detainer, in which a verdict of not guilty was rendered, he may give a new notice for any other month to vacate and proceed thereunder. In such new proceedings a plea of former acquittal is untenable. Pulliam v. Sells, 30 Ky. L. R. 456, 99 SW 289.

56. Martin v. Hartshorne, 17 Okl. 586, 87 P 854; Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Moss [Wash.] 87 P 951; Stahl Brew. & Malting Co. v. Van Buren [Wash.] 88 P 837. It is sufficient service where notice to quit was served upon defendant by agent of plaintiff who handed a copy personally to defendant more than three days before the suit was instituted. Iler v. Miller [Neb.] 111 NW 590.

Return day: A summons in an action of unlawful entry and detainer can be made returnable to any day of a term of a circuit court. Montgomery v. Economy Fuel Co., 61 W. Va. 620, 57 SE 137.

57. Bunker v. Hanson, 99 Minn. 426, 109 NW 327, in which it was held that the municipal court of the city of Minneapolis has

Limitations See 7 C. L. 1675 are governed by the statutes of the different states.

Jurisdiction. See 7 C. L. 1675.—The action of forcible entry and unlawful detainer is a local action involving the ouster of the tenant from the lands and the restitution of possession thereof to the owner. Jurisdiction of the land is therefore essential to its maintenance.<sup>57</sup> In Colorado it is the duty of a justice of the peace to stay the proceedings and certify the cause to the district court where it appears from sufficient affidavit, on the evidence upon the trial of an action of unlawful detainer, that the title is in dispute and an adjudication of the same may be necessary.<sup>58</sup>

Parties. See 7 C. L. 1676.—Where an action is brought against several defendants jointly, which action embraces, among other causes of action, unlawful entry and detainer, upon the death of one of the defendants, the action of unlawful entry and detainer abates as to him.<sup>59</sup> Parties in possession under lessees are proper defendants.<sup>60</sup>

Pleadings. See 7 C. L. 1676.—In some jurisdictions the complaint is required to be in writing,<sup>61</sup> while in others written pleadings are not required in proceedings of forcible entry and detainer, or either.<sup>62</sup> With regard to the allegations of the complaint, the usual rules of pleading apply to a large extent. Thus the plaintiff must set out the facts upon which he relies for recovery, and must prove his cause of action as alleged,<sup>63</sup> and may not introduce evidence which contradicts his pleading.<sup>64</sup> The complaint should describe the property with reasonable certainty.<sup>65</sup> Where it is desired to recover treble damages under statute authorizing such recovery, the action should be brought for the recovery of treble damages, and there should be allegations bringing it within the scope of the statute.<sup>66</sup> Amendments may be al-

no jurisdiction in forcible entry and detainer proceedings based upon breach of the contract of a lease to lands part of which were within Hennepin County and part of which were without that county. A county court has jurisdiction to hear and determine an issue formed by a counter affidavit to a warrant issued against one as a tenant holding over. Harper v. Tomblin, 127 Ga. 390, 56 SE 433.

58. Bonnell v. Gill [Colo.] 92 P 13 holding that an attempt to put the title in dispute by a general denial in the answer of the averments of the complaint as to ownership will not sustain a motion to certify. The party desiring to have a case certified must apply to the justice at the earliest opportunity, and he may not, after trial before the justice on the merits, and on appeal from an adverse judgment, raise the question of the right of the justice to proceed with the trial after filing an answer, as provided in conformity with the provisions of the statute, for the first time in the county court. Id.

63. Under the Washington forcible entry and detainer act as amended, the plaintiff must prove his cause of action as alleged, namely, that he is the owner of the property, that the defendant entered without permission and without having color of title thereto, that a proper, notice to surrender was given and served, and that the defendant has failed to comply therewith. If he fail to prove the forcible entry or the unlawful detainer as alleged, he will fail in the action. Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Moss [Wash.] 87 P 951. Under the statutory action for forcible entry and detainer, the complaint must necessarily show, by apt pleading, that either the relation of landlord and tenant exists between plaintiff and defendant or that defendant by force and arms ousted the plaintiff from possession. Folsom v. Hunter, 6 Ind. T. 453, 98 SW 156. Under § 2 of the Wash. Act of 1891, an abstract of the plaintiff's title must accompany the complaint, while under § 8 of the general forcible entry and detainer act the complaint need only be in writing and set forth the facts upon which the plaintiff seeks to recover. Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Moss [Wash.] 87 P 951.

64. Evidence cannot be introduced by the plaintiff, in an action of unlawful detainer, tending to prove that he was at all times mentioned in the proceedings the beneficial owner of the premises when the complaint states that a certain other person was the owner of the property subject to a deed of trust. McFarland Real Estate Co. v. Joseph Gerardi Hotel Co., 202 Mo. 597, 100 SW 577.

lowed in proper cases.<sup>67</sup> An answer under the Colorado act must specifically admit or deny all the material facts set forth in the complaint.<sup>68</sup> Matters in "excuse, justification, and avoidance," required by the Minnesota forcible entry statute to be pleaded, are such as constitute "new matter" under the general practice act.<sup>69</sup> Under the Kentucky practice, if either party conceive himself injured by the finding of the jury, he may file a traverse thereof with the judge or justice within three days next after the finding.<sup>70</sup> Whereupon the judge or justice shall stay all further proceedings on the inquisition and return the whole of the papers and proceedings, or a fair transcript thereof, to the office of the circuit court of said county within ten days thereafter.<sup>71</sup> The traversee joins issue on the traverse, and it is tried and judgment given on the verdict as in other cases.<sup>72</sup> Objection to the sufficiency of the complaint must be by motion to quash.<sup>73</sup>

Evidence. See 7 C. L. 1676.—The burden is upon the plaintiff, in an action of unlawful detainer, from the start to the close of the case, to show by the evidence that he was legally entitled to have and recover the possession of the land in question as against the defendant.<sup>74</sup> In forcible entry and detainer proceedings, the question in litigation is the right of possession, and by joining issue all matter that may throw light upon the question involved may be proved pursuant to the rule obtaining with reference to the introduction of evidence.<sup>75</sup> It has been held that a judgment in ejectment will not bar an action for forcible entry and detainer, notwithstanding the

70. Check v. Reiter [Ky.] 102 SW 287. The traverse is, in effect, the plea of the traverser, unsuccessful party on the first trial or inquisition that "the inquisition returned in this case is not true." Jones v. Com. [Ky.] 104 SW 782.

71. Check v. Reiter [Ky.] 102 SW 287.

72. The practice in respect to proceedings on traverse in the circuit court is announced by the Ky. Civ. Code of Practice, § 465, of which provides: "The clerk shall docket the traverse as other actions; it shall stand for trial as docketed; the traversee shall join issue on the traverse; and it shall be tried by a jury and judgment given on the verdict as in other cases; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the court from giving judgment against either party for default, nor from deciding any question of law as in other cases." Jones v. Com. [Ky.] 104 SW 782. No form is given by § 465 of the Ky. Civ. Code providing for a joinder of issue on the traverse, and it has been held that nothing more formal is required than the appearance of the traversee and his undertaking to uphold the verdict of the jury. Check v. Reiter [Ky.] 102 SW 287. Following plea by which the traversee joined issue was held to be in correct form: "Comes Calvin Jones and joins issue of the traverse herein, and denies that the inquisition in this case is not true, and says that it is true." Jones v. Com. [Ky.] 104 SW 782.

73. Haynes v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 126 Ill. App. 414.

74. Fisk v. Arnold [Ind. T.] 104 SW 824. It is unnecessary for the latter to offer any proof until the plaintiff shall have by the weight of evidence shifted the burden of defense upon him. Id. The burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show that the one on whose possession he relies as giving him the right to maintain the action was his tenant. Redman v. Perkins, 122 Mo. App. 164, 98 SW 1097. While under the Washington forcible entry and detainer act, as amended by the act of 1905, if the plaintiff fail to prove the forcible or unlawful detainer, he will fail in his action, under the act of 1891, the only effect of such failure is to convert the action into one of ejectment where the superior right will prevail. Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Moss [Wash.] 87 P 951.

Evidence held to make prima facie case: Where the plaintiff in an action of forcible entry and detainer alleges and proves his title to the property, that the defendant entered without permission and without having color of title thereto, that due notice to remove from the premises was given, and that the defendant failed to comply therewith, this makes a prima facie case for the plaintiff, and it is error to grant a nonsuit. Columbia & P. S. R. Co. v. Moss [Wash.] 87 P 951.

75. The defendant's claim of right to possession was under a parol contract not to be performed within a year, and therefore, within the statute of frauds unless he could show part performance of the contract. It was, therefore, proper to allow him to show that he was required by the contract to sow a certain portion of the land in wheat, and that such sowing constituted part performance of the contract. Jones v. Com. [Ky.] 104 SW 782.

identity of the parties and the land in question, the nature of the actions and the issues involved being different.<sup>76</sup>

The Judgment. See 7 C. L. 1676.—It has been held that there can, properly speaking, be no "judgment" in summary proceedings, although the final order is frequently referred to as a judgment and in effect is a judgment.<sup>77</sup> As to the conclusiveness of the judgment in summary proceedings, the rule differs in the various states.<sup>78</sup> Where the justice has jurisdiction and the plaintiff recovers, he is entitled to possession of the premises in any event.<sup>79</sup> Where a demurrer to the complaint in forcible entry and detainer has been sustained and the plaintiff who has given bond and obtained a writ of possession refuses to amend, it is the duty of the court to dismiss the complaint and render judgment for the return of the property to defendant, and for costs.<sup>80</sup>

Appeal See 7 C. L. 1677 or other method of review is controlled by statute.<sup>81</sup> The appellant should give notice<sup>82</sup> and is ordinarily required to give bond.<sup>83</sup> Where no exception to the final judgment has been taken and preserved, the supreme court, on appeal from the judgment in an action for unlawful detainer, is not called upon to consider the sufficiency of the evidence to support such judgment.<sup>84</sup>

76. Stockley v. Cissna [Tenn.] 104 SW 792. The parties to a forcible entry and detainer action will, however, be concluded by the decision in a prior action of ejectment that a grant of land by the state to the plaintiff was invalid. Id.

77. Seymour v. Hughes, 105 NYS 249.

78. In New Jersey it has been held that summary proceedings under the landlord and tenant act do not result in any judgment that is binding as between the landlord and the tenant. Their purpose is merely to secure a warrant that shall justify the constable or other executive officer in removing the tenant from possession and putting the claimant into possession. The result of the proceedings is conclusive as between the officer and the tenant. Richardson v. Smith [N. J. Law] 65 A 162. In New York, however, a judgment in summary proceedings by a landlord for non-payment of rent is conclusive between the parties as to the existence and validity of the lease, the occupation of the tenant, and the fact that rent was due, and also as to any other facts alleged in the petition or affidavit which are required to be alleged as a basis of the proceedings. Meyerhoffer v. Baker, 51 Misc. 598, 101 NYS 24, holding that such judgment was conclusive as to the validity of the lease in a suit by the tenant on the ground of fraud inducing the lease. The fact that a forcible entry and detainer action has been brought by one person against another will not bar a suit in equity under Ky. St. 1903, § 11, by the latter against the former where the relation of landlord and tenant is not shown to exist. Engle v. Tennis Coal Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1269, 101 SW 301.

79. See 7 C. L. 1677.

80. Folsom v. Hunter, 6 Ind. T. 453, 98 SW 156.

81. By the New Jersey landlord and tenant act the proceedings are not subject to review by appeal or certiorari, but the landlord remains liable in an action of trespass for any unlawful proceedings under the act. Richardson v. Smith [N. J. Law] 65 A 162. In West Virginia in an action of unlawful entry and detainer, a writ of error lies to the supreme court of appeals, but if, upon consideration thereof, it is found that there is no error in the judgment giving recovery for the possession of the property sued for, the action of the court below in allowing damages for the detention thereof cannot be reviewed unless the amount of such damages, exclusive of costs, exceeds the sum of $100. Montgomery v. Economy Fuel Co., 61 W. Va. 620, 57 SE 137.

82. Although a written notice of appeal from a final verdict of a jury in favor of the tenant, in summary proceedings by the landlord, states that the landlord "appeals from the judgment," this sufficiently apprises his adversary that the appeal is from the final order, as there could, strictly speaking, be no final judgment entered. The misdescription of the final order in the notice of appeal should be corrected by amendment by substituting the words "final order" for the word "judgment." Seymour v. Hughes, 105 NYS 249.

83. Under the Utah statutes (B. & C. Comp. 5754), on appeal in a forcible entry and detainer action, "if judgment be rendered against the defendant for the restitution of the real property described in the complaint, or any part thereof, no appeal shall be taken by the defendant from such judgment until he shall, in addition to the undertaking now required upon appeal, give an undertaking to the adverse party, with two sureties, who shall justify in like manner as bail upon arrest, for the payment to the plaintiff of twice the rental value of the property of which restitution shall be adjudged from the rendition of such judgment until final judgment in such action, if such judgment shall be affirmed upon appeal." Wolfer v. Hurst [Or.] 91 P 366.

84. Bonnell v. Gill [Colo.] 92 P 13.

§ 2. Criminal responsibility. See 7 C. L. 1678—In Mississippi it is an offense, punishable by fine, to go upon the enclosed land of another without his consent, after having been notified by such person or his agent not to do so, or to remain on such land after a request by the owner or his agent to depart.<sup>85</sup>

§ 1. General rights and defenses and remedies available. Rights and defenses in general. See 7 C. L. 1678—A conveyance conditioned for support may be foreclosed as a mortgage.<sup>88</sup> A senior mortgagee who buys at foreclosure of a subsequent mortgage on a part of the land does not thereby lose his right to foreclose as to the remainder,<sup>89</sup> but one who also holds junior mortgages must take proper steps to protect his rights if he buys on foreclosure of the senior one,<sup>90</sup> and an oral agreement by the mortgagor's grantee to pay off the junior liens will not entitle him to foreclose them.<sup>91</sup> A tenant's mortgagee who after the tenant's eviction takes a lease for the balance of the term does not thereby lose his right to foreclose a statutory right of redemption in the tenant.<sup>92</sup>

A lender may elect to look first to the security given by one at whose request he made the loan.<sup>93</sup> The rule that a senior mortgagee must first resort to land not covered by a junior mortgage cannot be defeated by a secret oral agreement between the senior mortgagee and the debtor that the former shall first resort to the common security.<sup>94</sup>

A junior mortgagee not a party in foreclosure of a prior mortgage must satisfy the equity of the senior mortgagee or purchaser before he can subject the property to his mortgage.<sup>95</sup>

cured, the mortgagee may foreclose though there is no precipitating clause.<sup>97</sup> A forfeiture will not be allowed where the mortgagor is able and willing to make a payment but without fault on his part cannot find the mortgagee.<sup>98</sup> Failure to pay interest<sup>99</sup> or taxes,<sup>1</sup> or to maintain insurance,<sup>2</sup> are often made grounds for foreclosure. While a provision that on default in payment of interest the whole debt shall be due at the option of the mortgagee does not require the latter to give formal notice of election to the mortgagor.<sup>3</sup> It confers but a mere option which may be lost by unreasonable delay or by failure to exercise it before interest is in fact paid.<sup>4</sup> The mortgagee's mere mental determination or direction to his own agents is not a sufficient election.<sup>5</sup> Whether it was intended that a foreclosure for nonpayment of interest should be in enforcement of payment of both principal and interest depends upon the terms of the mortgage.<sup>6</sup> The mortgagor's insolvency authorizes foreclosure before contract due-date.<sup>7</sup>

Payment,<sup>8</sup> release,<sup>9</sup> extension,<sup>10</sup> fraud, and failure of consideration,<sup>11</sup> are good defenses, and assignees are subject to all the equities existing as against their assignors.<sup>12</sup> A surety may show satisfaction out of lands pledged by the principal.<sup>13</sup>

8. Lapse of time and failure to collect interest not conclusive on question of payment. Edmonston v. Wilbur, 99 Minn. 495, 110 NW 3. That an assignee of the mortgage fails to notify the mortgagor of the assignment does not preclude him from foreclosing the mortgage as against a defense of payment to the mortgagee where after the alleged payment the mortgagor, by extension agreements made with the mortgagee, recognizes the continued existence of the note and mortgage as binding obligations. Gemkow v. Link, 225 Ill. 21, 80 NE 47.

13. Where mortgage to secure debt of husband also covered land belonging to wife. White v. Rovall, 105 NYS 624.

An unauthorized and fraudulent compromise of a foreclosure suit by a mortgage trustee does not defeat a second foreclosure as against a subsequent mortgagee with record notice.<sup>14</sup> A provision that payment shall be made only out of sales of the land to procure which the mortgagor is required to exercise reasonable diligence does not bar foreclosure after failure of mortgagor to exercise diligence in making sales within a reasonable time,<sup>15</sup> and a stipulation against sales for less than prescribed prices does not authorize the arbitrary fixing of prices by the mortgagor so as to postpone indefinitely the accomplishment of the purposes of the agreement.<sup>16</sup>

The mortgagor is estopped to deny his title,<sup>17</sup> and one who assumes payment of a mortgage by purchasing subject thereto cannot question its validity.<sup>18</sup> One whose interest in the land was divested prior to attaching of the mortgage lien may not object to foreclosure,<sup>19</sup> but a question from the mortgagor is sufficient to protect the grantee against foreclosure by a junior mortgagee whose rights were lost under the first foreclosure.<sup>20</sup> One who, being in law the real debtor, pays part of the notes secured and takes an assignment from the mortgagee may not claim priority thereunder in foreclosure by the latter to enforce payment of the balance.<sup>21</sup> A plea in bar good as against one of two mortgagors of the same property will not prevent judgment against the other and against the land.<sup>22</sup>

The remedies See 7 C. L. 1684 are more particularly discussed in other sections.<sup>26</sup> An action at law will lie for premature foreclosure.<sup>27</sup> Upon refusal of a trustee to execute a trust created by a trust deed in the nature of a mortgage, the beneficiaries may resort to equity for adjustment of right and sale.<sup>28</sup> Neither a trustee

§ 2. Foreclosure by scire facias and by executory process. Scire facias. See 7 C. L. 1685—The plea of usury must set out facts from which the court can determine whether there was usury.<sup>30</sup>

§ 3. Sale by Trustee in deed or under power. A. Right and authority to sell. See 7 C. L. 1685—Limitations will not begin to run until maturity of the mortgage.<sup>31</sup> A proceeding by a trustee to foreclose a trust and by advertisement in accordance with its terms is not an "action" within the meaning of a statute limiting the time for bringing certain actions,<sup>32</sup> and a sale under power is not barred because an action on the note is barred.<sup>33</sup>

An instruction by bond holders that the principal be declared due is a sufficient request that the power be exercised.<sup>34</sup> Where the mortgage authorizes the trustee to foreclose upon default, his right is not dependent upon request of the bondholders though the latter are also given the right to require foreclosure.<sup>35</sup> A trustee may foreclose regardless of who owns the obligation.<sup>36</sup> Usury infecting the debt does not avoid a power.<sup>37</sup> After death of mortgage creditor a trustee may not foreclose until appointment of an administrator,<sup>38</sup> but a foreign executor may exercise a power without qualifying in the state where the land is located,<sup>39</sup> and his prior execution of a deed of the premises will not prevent it.<sup>40</sup> An unauthorized sale may be enjoined.<sup>41</sup> After such sale by the mortgagee to an innocent purchaser the remedy is an action for damages against the mortgagee.<sup>42</sup>

(§ 3) B. Notice. See 7 C. L. 1687—Such notice as the mortgage requires must be given,<sup>43</sup> but in the absence of statute none other need ordinarily be given to the mortgagor.<sup>44</sup> Where, however, the mortgagee dies and the debtor agrees to a sale

(§ 3) C. Sale and deed. See 7 C. L. 1688.—The stipulated date controls.<sup>46</sup> Removal of county seat may change the place of sale.<sup>47</sup> A provision as to sale in parcels must be observed,<sup>48</sup> and a fair opportunity for bidding must be given.<sup>49</sup> Execution of a power by the mortgagee in his own name is sufficient if the recitals in the deed show that he intended to convey in behalf of the mortgagor.<sup>50</sup> Recitals in an affidavit made by one who sells under a power, as evidence that the power has been executed, will not estop him from showing the true condition of the title in a suit to enforce the contract of sale or for a reconveyance.<sup>51</sup> Where a trustee holds possession of the proceeds of a sale for several years, he will be charged such interest as with reasonable care he could have realized.<sup>52</sup> Questions relating to fraud, mistake, or inadequacy of price,<sup>53</sup> or the right of the trustee or beneficiary to purchase,<sup>54</sup> are discussed in subsequent sections.

(§ 3) D. Costs and fees. See 5 C. L. 1446.—Sureties are bound by a stipulation as to trustee's commissions.<sup>55</sup> A "reasonable compensation" will be computed with reference to the circumstances and the nature of the services rendered.<sup>56</sup>

§ 4. Entry and possession or possessory action. See 5 C. L. 1446

§ 5. Strict foreclosure. See 5 C. L. 1446.—In the interest of justice and economy, equity may decree a strict foreclosure where the mortgagor is insolvent and has parted with his interest and no prejudice can result to junior lienors.<sup>57</sup>

§ 6. Foreclosure by action and sale. A. Right of action and nature of remedy. See 7 C. L. 1688.—A proceeding in equity to enforce a trust agreement covering the property of different owners is not barred by the pendency of an action at law to subject a portion of the property to the payment of the debt,<sup>58</sup> and the foreclosure of an equitable mortgage does not bar a subsequent foreclosure of another mortgage to which plaintiffs became subrogated.<sup>59</sup> The validity and extent of alleged prior incumbrances asserted by intervenors are proper subjects of inquiry.<sup>60</sup>

58. Whole matter properly disposed of in one action. Michigan Trust Co. v. Frymark [Neb.] 107 NW 760.

59. Plaintiffs took absolute conveyance of the land in trust to mortgage it and with the proceeds clear off incumbrances and did so. On trial the conveyance was declared a mortgage and foreclosed, the other mortgage still subsisting. Plaintiffs were then compelled to pay their mortgage note and ask to be subrogated to the rights of their mortgagee. The two mortgages constituted separate contracts enforceable separately. Koppang v. Steenerson, 100 Minn. 239, 111 NW 153.

Jurisdiction. See 7 C. L. 1689—A court is not deprived of power to foreclose a mortgage and enter a deficiency judgment merely because a portion of the property has been conveyed to a sovereign power which insists on immunity from suit.<sup>61</sup> If the mortgage covers property in two counties, foreclosure may be in either.<sup>62</sup>

Limitations. See 7 C. L. 1690—A payment by one of two joint mortgagors tolls limitations,<sup>63</sup> and in the absence of statute the full period of limitations as to the mortgage runs from the date of the last payment, regardless of limitations as to the debt.<sup>64</sup> Statutes have been enacted, however, barring foreclosure where the debt is outlawed.<sup>65</sup> Absence of mortgagor from the state will not suspend the running of limitations in favor of his grantee, though the latter may not have held the property for the entire statutory period.<sup>66</sup>

The defense of limitations is not available to a debtor who originally instituted the suit in equity for the purpose of relieving his property from the trust deed in the absence of fraud or a showing that the conditions of the trust have been performed.<sup>67</sup> An exception of the mortgage from a covenant of warranty in a deed does not estop the grantee from invoking the defense.<sup>68</sup>

63. Comp. Laws 1897, § 9725, held not to alter the common-law rule of Whitcomb v. Whiting, 2 Doug. 652. Brown v. Hayes, 146 Mich. 474, 13 Det. Leg. N. 875, 109 NW 845.

64. Payment of interest gave twenty years more within which to foreclose though note was barred six years thereafter. Hughes v. Thomas [Wis.] 111 NW 474.

65. The provision of Act Feb. 18, 1891 (Rev. St. §§ 4276, 4277), referring to limitations two years after its passage, does not apply to mortgages theretofore executed where debt was not then barred. McCauley v. Brady, 123 Mo. App. 558, 100 SW 541. Under Laws 1901, p. 13, c. 11, limitations run "from maturity of whole debt secured by the mortgage" and not from maturity as stated in the mortgage, hence agreements of extension must be considered. *Trudeau v. 69. Proper or necessary: Persons claiming interest in premises and in mortgage held proper parties defendant though complaint denied any interest in them. Doherty v. Doherty [Wis.] 111 NW 478. One of several against whom a joint decree is sought is a necessary party. Sarasota Ice, Fish & Power Co. v. Lyle & Co. [Fla.] 43 S 602.

Not necessary: Wife of one executing mortgage while single not necessary party, though living with him on premises. Adams v. Bartell [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 102 SW 779. Under the law existing in 1843 the heirs of a deceased mortgagor were not necessary parties in foreclosure against the administrator. Flack v. Braman [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 107, 101 SW 537. Where under a will the realty was equitably converted into personalty, residuary legatees and devisees were not necessary parties to suit to foreclose a mortgage on property of the estate. Boehmcke v. McKeon, 103 NYS 930.

70. Rights of judgment owner not affected where he was not made party. Smith v. Wehrheim, 126 Ill. App. 328; Wehrheim v. Smith, 226 Ill. 346, 80 NE 908.

71. Persons in possession under a tax title apparently superior to the mortgage lien are not proper parties defendant. Tax title held superior to lien of prior mortgage. Erie County Sav. Bk. v. Schuster [N. Y.] 79 NE 843. Bank president made mortgagee to secure money loaned third party by the bank. Bank held tax certificates but on foreclosure the president did not make it a party. Making the bank a party would not have required it to include the tax lien in its demand for relief. Bushey v. National State Bank [N. J. Eq.] 66 A 592.

terminated.<sup>72</sup> Beneficiaries need not always be joined in a suit by a trustee.<sup>73</sup> Where the mortgagor has parted with his equity, he is not a necessary party.<sup>74</sup> A mortgagor's administrator is not of proper party for the purpose of establishing the liability of the estate for the mortgage indebtedness.<sup>75</sup> A tenant by curtesy whose wife's grantor failed to record his deed is not bound under the New Jersey law unless made a party.<sup>76</sup> Foreclosure will not lie against a state without its consent,<sup>77</sup> and the fact that the attorney general is made a party and asks any surplus that may arise does not authorize investiture of the state's interest.<sup>78</sup>

New parties and intervention. See 7 C. L. 1693.—Where a prior mortgage also covers other land, a second mortgagee who holds a decree of foreclosure and sale may await foreclosure of the first mortgage and have his rights determined in that proceeding and cannot be required to sell at once under his decree.<sup>79</sup>

The process. See 7 C. L. 1694.—Provisions in the statute or mortgage relative to publication,<sup>80</sup> posting,<sup>81</sup> and service on the occupant or mortgagor,<sup>82</sup> must be strictly followed, and the affidavit of publication must show publication for the required time.<sup>83</sup> Publication of the name of a mortgagee firm as it appears in the mortgage is sufficient.<sup>84</sup> Proper service will be presumed on collateral attack though not recited in the judgment.<sup>85</sup> A defendant who appears is not entitled to have default of the other defendants vacated on the ground of no service.<sup>86</sup>

80. Publications commencing Dec. 18, 1906, held to have been made "at least twice a week for three successive weeks immediately preceding sale," which took place Tuesday, January 8, 1907. Cortland Sav. Bk. v. Lighthall, 53 Misc. 423, 104 NYS 1022. Four weeks' notice means that twenty-eight days must elapse between first publication and sale. Publication for twenty-three successive days is not "four weeks' notice." Quinn v. McDole [R. I.] 57 A 327. After confirmation, sale will not be set aside because time for advertising was changed from that fixed in trust deed where decree was passed on application of mortgagor and trustee, and approved by a large majority of bondholders. Parsons v. Little, 28 App. D. C. 218.

81. The statute provided for posting notice on court house door. There was no positive evidence that this had been done. Shea v. Ballard, 61 W. Va. 255, 56 SE 472.

82. Notice of foreclosure by advertisement must be served on the occupants of each of two farms covered by the same mortgage. Casserly v. Morrow, 101 Minn. 16, 111 NW 654. A statute requiring service of the notice of sale on the grantor, his agents or personal representative, does not require service on his assignee. Code 1899, § 7, c. 72. Code 1906, § 3056. Shea v. Ballard, 61 W. Va. 255, 56 SE 472.

83. Affidavit of publication of notice of sale reciting that the notice was published "seven successive times" in a "weekly newspaper" held sufficient proof of publication for six successive weeks. Cook v. Lockerby [N. D.] 111 NW 628.

84. The mortgage ran to "Cook & Dodge." The publication recited the names in the same way without giving given names. Mortgage held good and statutory foreclosure sustained. Cook v. Lockerby [N. D.] 111 NW 628.

davit.<sup>87</sup> The bill or complaint must show plaintiff's interest,<sup>88</sup> and default in the conditions of the mortgage,<sup>89</sup> but when the suit is between the original parties it need not specifically allege that complainant is the owner of the note and mortgage.<sup>90</sup> Each of several notes need not be made the subject of a separate count where no personal judgment is sought.<sup>91</sup> There is no misjoinder of causes in uniting all parties who conveyed their property in trust to secure the same debt,<sup>92</sup> and a petition is not demurrable for failure to include the actual occupant of the land where it does not appear that the land was actually occupied.<sup>93</sup> Where one acquires an interest pending the proceedings, an amendment to the bill must state that interest and supply a proper prayer as against him.<sup>94</sup> A bill seeking foreclosure of a mortgage or in the alternative, to enforce a vendor's lien is not repugnant.<sup>95</sup> It is not always necessary to aver a readiness to do equity.<sup>96</sup>

Demurrer, plea, or answer. See 7 C. L. 1695.—In foreclosure of a purchase-money mortgage an answer setting up fraud in defense to the note and a cross bill for rescission of the contract on account of the same fraud are not inconsistent.<sup>97</sup> A defendant's failure to deny that he claims an interest but that plaintiff's lien is superior is an admission authorizing foreclosure as against him.<sup>98</sup> It must appear what interest the pleader has in the question he raises.<sup>99</sup>

Cross bills and supplemental bills. See 7 C. L. 1695.—An intervenor's petition should be verified.<sup>1</sup> A cross bill to reach the rents during the redemption period is in time though filed after execution by sale on foreclosure,<sup>2</sup> and is not rendered faulty by failure to allege that the property was improved and rented.<sup>3</sup> Cross bills are not necessary to authorize relief as between defendants where the original pleadings involve the whole subject.<sup>4</sup> The rule to avoid circuity of action will not support a cross bill so as to favor one defendant by depriving another of a good defense.<sup>5</sup>

87. Such an affidavit cannot be amended, and in case of foreclosure and levy thereon there was no case before the court. Meadows v. Alexander, 1 Ga. App. 40, 57 SE 901.

88. A complaint alleging an assignment of the mortgage to plaintiff must also allege an assignment of the debt. Smith v. Thompson, 118 App. Div. 6, 103 NYS 336. Complaint by one claiming under an assignment from an executrix held sufficient as against general demurrer to show title in plaintiff, though there was no allegation of confirmation of the transfer by the court. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. McCarthy [Cal. App.] 90 P 203.

89. Complaint basing right to foreclose on failure of mortgagor to maintain insurance held insufficient for failure to state that mortgagee had procured such insurance and demanded premiums from mortgagor. Laws 1896, p. 596, art. 7, § 219, subd. 3. Bumpus v. Willett, 55 Misc. 94, 106 NYS 366.

4. In suit by holder of two notes, relief could be decreed to defendants holding other notes secured by same mortgage. Winkleman v. White, 147 Ala. 481, 42 S 411.

5. Plaintiff released priority to defendant association which foreclosed without making plaintiff a party and sold to W. Plaintiff then filed his bill making the association and W. parties. W. set up breach of covenant against the association and decree was entered against it in favor of plaintiff for the amount of the mortgage debt. Reversed. Marsden v. White [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 181.

Trial and hearing.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1695</sup>—No notice of reference is necessary to a defendant in default.<sup>6</sup> A defendant's admission that plaintiff "is" the owner of the mortgage relates back to the time of filing the petition.<sup>7</sup>

Evidence.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1696</sup>—Plaintiff need not prove title in the mortgagor as against the latter and his privies,<sup>8</sup> nor need he offer any proof so long as he has a prima facie case on the pleadings.<sup>9</sup> A statutory allegation as to whether any portion of the debt has been collected by any other action need not be affirmatively proven as a part of plaintiff's case.<sup>10</sup> Material allegations of the complaint put in issue by intervenors require proof though intervenors do not appear at the trial.<sup>11</sup> In the absence of other evidence, the amount due may be ascertained from an admission of a former owner of the equity of redemption.<sup>12</sup> An allegation in the present tense of an election to treat the principal due does not authorize proof of election before commencement of suit.<sup>13</sup> It may be shown that a deed subsequently taken by the mortgagee in consideration of a release of a part of the land from the mortgage was in fact intended as a mortgage.<sup>14</sup> The sufficiency of the evidence is governed by the ordinary rules.<sup>15</sup>

(§ 6) D. Decree or judgment.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1697</sup>—Judgment should not be rendered against persons not parties.<sup>16</sup> Questions not in issue cannot be determined as between codefendants.<sup>17</sup> That a widow accepts part of a mortgaged homestead in satisfaction of her homestead right is not ground for subjecting the remainder first.<sup>18</sup>

(§ 6) E. Sales.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1698</sup>—The land must be sold in the county in which it is situated and by the sheriff of that county.<sup>19</sup> Stipulations in a trust deed against sale by grantor at less than prescribed prices are not binding in foreclosure based on grantor's failure to sell.<sup>20</sup> Ordinarily, land capable of division should be sold in parcels.<sup>21</sup> Where the mortgage covers both a husband's curtesy interest and

20. Where trust deed provided for sale of lots to satisfy debt but grantor failed to make sales within reasonable time, not necessary for court to direct that sale be made at not less than minimum prices stated in deed. Earle v. Sunnyside Land Co., 150 Cal. 214, 88 P 920.

21. Sale of land in bulk contrary to con-

the remainder, the curtesy interest should be first sold,<sup>22</sup> and only so much of the remainder as will satisfy the debt, if the land is divisible.<sup>23</sup> If before execution of an order of sale the debt is discharged, the sale should be stayed,<sup>24</sup> though such order provided for the distribution of part of the proceeds to an intervenor who had made improvements,<sup>25</sup> care being taken that the judgment be so modified as not to prejudice intervenor's rights in the improvements.<sup>26</sup>

On confirmation. See 7 C. L. 1699.—Invalidity of the decree,<sup>27</sup> or gross inadequacy of price,<sup>28</sup> is ground for refusing to confirm. Confirmation involves a determination that the proceedings are regular,<sup>29</sup> and the presumption is in favor of the order.<sup>30</sup>

Resale. See 7 C. L. 1700

(§ 6) F. Receivership in foreclosure. See 7 C. L. 1700.—While a provision that the mortgagee shall be entitled to a receiver as a matter of right without regard to solvency or the value of the property is not conclusive on a court of equity,<sup>31</sup> a receiver should be appointed where in addition to such provision the rents and profits are specifically pledged and there is doubt as to the sufficiency of the security.<sup>32</sup> Where the parties have stipulated for notice of appointment of a receiver, either inability to give it or prejudice incidental to delay should be shown before a receiver is appointed without notice.<sup>33</sup> As against a junior mortgagee rightfully in possession, a senior mortgagee's lien on rents cannot be enforced through a receiver improperly appointed,<sup>34</sup> and the mortgagor's right of possession cannot be impaired by an unauthorized receivership.<sup>35</sup> A receiver's possession is unaffected by later adjudication in bankruptcy.<sup>36</sup> The receiver should not be permitted to expend large sums of money unnecessarily for the benefit of the holder of the certificate of sale,<sup>37</sup> nor should large expenditures be allowed without vouchers and evidence of their necessity.<sup>38</sup> Necessary expenses may be allowed though the receiver was improperly appointed.<sup>39</sup> A receiver's lease should not be summarily canceled by order of court to the prejudice of a tenant who has made expenditures in good faith merely because it covers an undivided interest not included in the mortgage.<sup>40</sup>

(§ 6) G. Costs, fees, and expenses. See 7 C. L. 1700.—Reasonable<sup>41</sup> attorney's fees stipulated for in the note or mortgage<sup>42</sup> are properly allowed if demanded.<sup>43</sup> Plaintiff is entitled to interest on taxes paid,<sup>44</sup> but no relief can be had for a voluntary payment of taxes.<sup>45</sup> Under a statute permitting the mortgagee to include a statement of defect of title in the notice of sale, only the cost of search in records subsequent to the date of the mortgage may be taxed.<sup>46</sup>

(§ 6) H. Effect of proceedings. See 7 C. L. 1701.—Foreclosure renders the mortgage functus officio, and merges in the decree the rights and liabilities thereby created,<sup>47</sup> but it does not necessarily pay the debt nor cancel the evidence of it.<sup>48</sup> Persons made parties and defaulting are barred where the petition sufficiently puts in issue the facts upon which they rely.<sup>49</sup> Under the Iowa statute providing for the foreclosure of trust deeds in accordance with their terms, a foreclosure of a deed in which a wife did not join is a judicial sale such as will bar her dower right.<sup>50</sup> Where a guardian without authority releases the priority of his wards' mortgage in favor of another mortgage, the statutory foreclosure of the two mortgages will not operate to reverse the priorities as against the wards.<sup>51</sup>

§ 7. Defective foreclosures and their avoidance. Defects and irregularities. See 7 C. L. 1702.—A period of eleven days between decree and sale may not be unreasonably short.<sup>52</sup> The erroneous appointment of a special master to sell is not fatal after failure to appeal.<sup>53</sup> The mere fact that a surety had been discharged before foreclosure does not entitle him to have the sale set aside.<sup>54</sup> The foreclosure of a mortgage given by a life tenant to replace a purchase-money mortgage, and also for other debts, cannot be sustained against the remaindermen though the first mortgage was good as against them.<sup>55</sup> A curative act validating sales made by a person not named in the power does not apply against remaindermen whose interest was not conveyed.<sup>56</sup>

Grounds available after confirmation. See 7 C. L. 1704—Laches, as usual, bars relief.<sup>57</sup> Failure of the clerk to affix his seal to the order of sale is not ground for collateral attack after confirmation,<sup>58</sup> and, as against an action to redeem, confirmation cures an irregularity in making the sale after the death of plaintiff without revivor.<sup>59</sup> Confirmation will not validate a sale made in the wrong county.<sup>60</sup>

Fraud, accident, or mistake. See 7 C. L. 1704—Fraud is ground for relief.<sup>61</sup> An agreement by a prospective purchaser that if he buys he will sell to another is not illegal unless intended to prevent competition,<sup>62</sup> and the fact that an arrangement to make a joint purchase may indirectly prevent the parties thereto from bidding is not sufficient to render it unlawful.<sup>63</sup> Ordinarily mere inadequacy of price will not avoid the sale,<sup>64</sup> but a sale for a grossly inadequate price due to mistake is voidable.<sup>65</sup> Failure of executors of a mortgagee to bid does not waive their right to submit to defendant's motion to set aside a sale for inadequacy of price.<sup>66</sup> After a fair determination of amount due, a second accounting will be refused.<sup>67</sup>

Modes of attacking sale. See 7 C. L. 1705—Proper grounds existing, a sale may be enjoined.<sup>68</sup> Errors in including in the decree property not covered by the mortgage

But if no such relation existed, the fraud will not make such pretended agent a trustee ex maleficio so as to entitle the owner to a recovery of the land without disaffirming the sale. Id. A wife whose land or by the complaint cannot be corrected in a suit to annul the decree on the ground of lack of jurisdiction.<sup>69</sup> An objection that the property was not sold by lots as described in the mortgage may not be availed of in an outside attack on the purchaser's title.<sup>70</sup> Only apparent substantial errors can be reached by bill or review,<sup>71</sup> and no presumptions will be indulged against the proceedings.<sup>72</sup> A mortgagee who acquires legal title by a foreclosure which by accident or mistake was incomplete as to heirs may foreclose anew as against them for an unpaid balance.<sup>73</sup>

A suit to set aside a foreclosure and to redeem must be brought in the county in which the land is situated.<sup>74</sup> After term at which a sale in full satisfaction of the debt was approved, the court has no further jurisdiction of the property in the proceeding.<sup>75</sup> A bill to enjoin a mortgage sale should aver a tender of interest from date of maturity to date of tender.<sup>76</sup> An averment that no attorney's fee was due is a mere conclusion.<sup>77</sup> The burden of proof is on the party charging fraud or other irregularity.<sup>78</sup> Recitals in a trustee's deed that the requirements of the trust deed were duly complied with are prima facie evidence against the mortgagor.<sup>79</sup> Where a defendant does not choose to rely on a legal presumption as to notice arising from a trustee's deed, the question must turn on the evidence.<sup>80</sup> On proof of fraud the court may not require the purchaser to take the land at a price fixed by it,<sup>81</sup> but the sale should be set aside.<sup>82</sup> Setting aside the sale of one of two connected tracts may be ground for setting aside the other.<sup>83</sup> In a suit to enforce a contract of sale under a power or for a reconveyance, the foreclosure proceedings should not be set aside on account of the invalidity of the contract where the mortgagor whose debt was satisfied is not a party and the time for redemption has expired.<sup>84</sup> After foreclosure equity will not correct an error in the mortgage so as to cover additional land without directing another foreclosure and sale and opportunity to redeem.<sup>85</sup>

Offer of equity.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1706</sup>—An heir not made a party may not maintain ejectment against a purchaser who went into possession without first tendering the amount due on the mortgage.<sup>86</sup> In ejectment a plea on the theory that defendant is entitled to subrogation under a previous mortgage is insufficient without an offer to surrender on payment of the amount claimed.<sup>87</sup>

Remedies to assert or protect title.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1714.</sup>—In a suit to establish title to land through foreclosure of a mortgage, the burden is on plaintiff to prove a breach of condition at the time of the foreclosure.<sup>4</sup> A beneficiary who buys under a trust deed describing a tract of land not intended may later have the trust deed reformed in equity if the intended tract has not passed to innocent purchasers,<sup>5</sup> but he cannot have the trustee's deed reformed.<sup>6</sup> Execution issued in good faith after the death of the mortgagee is not void so as to render the administrator liable in forcible entry.<sup>7</sup>

Writ of assistance.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1713.</sup>—Rights of persons not made parties in the foreclosure suit cannot be adjudicated on application for a writ of assistance,<sup>8</sup> and if any such person is in possession he may restrain execution of the writ.<sup>9</sup> Laches may bar recovery against a person in possession under recorded deed.<sup>10</sup>

and taxes,<sup>20</sup> and the claims of senior lienors, will be first satisfied.<sup>21</sup> A second mortgagee is entitled to a surplus as against a mere bondholder,<sup>22</sup> but a vendee who refused performance, thus acquiring no interest in the land, is not entitled to any surplus.<sup>23</sup> After satisfaction of the mortgage debt insurance money for fire loss occurring after foreclosure belongs to the person having the right of redemption.<sup>24</sup> A trustee in bankruptcy is not entitled to reimbursement from the security fund for expense in litigating the right of bondholders to share therein, the same having been principally incurred for the benefit of the general creditors.<sup>25</sup> That the second instead of the first of two notes is paid from the proceeds does not cancel the first as against one who converts personalty also mortgaged to secure the same debt.<sup>26</sup>

§ 10. Personal liability and judgment for deficiency.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1717</sup>—In the absence of release<sup>27</sup> a personal judgment for a deficiency may be recovered,<sup>28</sup> if there is a covenant to pay the debt.<sup>29</sup> Such judgment may be rendered though all the mortgaged property be not first applied where part of it has become immune by conveyance to a sovereign power.<sup>30</sup> In a suit for a deficiency the mortgagee will be charged only with the amount realized at the foreclosure sale, regardless of the actual value of the land at the time of the sale.<sup>31</sup> Execution in enforcement of a deficiency judgment entered on foreclosure cannot issue after sale and redemption and after expiration of the period for the issuance of execution on other judgments.<sup>32</sup> A vendee who takes property "under and subject" to a mortgage is liable to his vendor for the amount the vendor may be compelled to pay under a deficiency decree,<sup>33</sup> But this does not apply where the deficiency creditor was purchaser and suffered no loss.<sup>34</sup>

A mortgagee who fails in the foreclosure proceeding to assert against the land a claim for taxes paid by him cannot thereafter have personal judgment against the mortgagor or subsequent owners.<sup>35</sup>

22. Where vendor of land took trust deed to secure part of price and a bond for the balance and foreclosed trust deed leaving a balance over amount secured thereby, such balance should go to the holder of a second trust deed, though bond was recorded. Carpenter v. Duke, 144 N. C. 291, 56 SE 938.

§ 11. Redemption.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1719</sup>—Statutes providing for redemption are liberally construed.<sup>36</sup> A statute providing a method to determine who has the right to redeem does not exclude the right to proceed in equity to effect a redemption where tender has been refused.<sup>37</sup> A purchaser at execution<sup>38</sup> or an assignee of a judgment creditor may redeem,<sup>39</sup> but a wife who merely joined in a mortgage on her husband's property to secure his debt cannot.<sup>40</sup> A remote grantee is within a statute allowing redemption from the "purchaser or his vendee."<sup>41</sup> The time for redemption is variously regulated by statute.<sup>42</sup> When the mortgagee is purchaser the "purchase money" required by a statute to be tendered by the mortgagor is the amount of the debt, though the bid was in excess of that amount.<sup>43</sup> Matters determined in foreclosure and in a prior ejectment suit are conclusive, as against parties and privies, in a suit to redeem.<sup>44</sup> If the certificate of purchase becomes void even after failure to redeem, the mortgagor by his former title becomes the absolute owner.<sup>45</sup> A judgment creditor not made a party to the proceedings does not lose his lien by failure to redeem.<sup>46</sup>

Rights to possession pending redemption.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1722</sup>—In the absence of special provisions, rent and profits accruing during the period for redemption belong to the owner of the equity.<sup>47</sup>

Title and rights acquired by redemption.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1723</sup>—Redemption by a tenant inures to the benefit of cotenants,<sup>48</sup> provided within a reasonable time they elect to contribute and reinstate their title.<sup>49</sup> Redemption of a life estate from foreclosure of the fee does not entitle the redemptioner to contribution from the reversioners.<sup>50</sup> A redemption procured by fraud against an incompetent mortgagor will be annulled and his subsequently appointed guardian allowed to redeem.<sup>51</sup>

| FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.

§ 1. Status, Privileges, and Regulation (1395). Permits (1397). License, Excise, or Franchise Taxes (1397). Operation and Construction of Regulatory Statutes (1397). Noncompliance with Statutes; Effect (1400).

§ 2. Powers (1403).

§ 3. Actions by and Against; Jurisdiction of Courts (1403). Right to Sue (1404). Venue (1404). Limitations (1404). Service of Process (1404).

§ 4. Remedies of Stockholders and Creditors (1404).

Scope of topic.—This article is confined strictly to foreign corporations as such, and excludes matters relating to corporations generally and not affecting their status in states other than that of their domicile. Process and venue are also excluded.

§ 1. Status, privileges, and regulation.<sup>1</sup>—In the absence of any prohibitory statute, a corporation having the domicile of its origin in one state has, as a matter of comity, the right to do business in other states,<sup>2</sup> but since the right rests on comity a state may, for the protection of its citizens, prescribe terms and conditions upon which foreign corporations may do business in the state,<sup>3</sup> and such regulation is usually upheld as not in violation of the Federal constitution,<sup>4</sup> unless it interferes with interstate commerce.<sup>5</sup> Foreign corporations, however, are entitled to the constitutional right to equal protection of the laws,<sup>6</sup> and contractual obligations cannot be impaired in the exercise of such prerogative.<sup>7</sup> The regulative prerogative

2. Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., v. American Tobacco Co. [N. C.] 59 SE 123.

3. Williams v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n [N. C.] 58 SE 802. Permission to foreign corporations to do business in the state is a proper subject of state legislation. Pittsburg Const. Co. v. West Side Belt R. Co., 151 F 125. A state, under its police power, has power to protect its citizens from imposition, fraud, and wrong from the abuse of corporate privileges by imposing conditions upon the right of foreign corporations to do business in the state. Such was purpose of Laws 1898, p. 27, c. 10, known as the Bush act. State v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Kan.] 90 P 299; State v. Pullman Co. [Kan.] 90 P 319. In the absence of state constitutional restrictions it is the sovereign and political prerogative of a state to permit to or forbid, at its own pleasure, foreign corporations from doing a domestic business within its borders. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Alabama, 155 F 792.

4. Acts W. Va. 1905, c. 39, requiring foreign and nonresident corporations to appoint state auditor as agent for service of process, and exacting fee of $10, held not to deprive corporations of equal protection of laws or of liberty or property without due process of law. St. Mary's Franco-American Petroleum Co. v. West Virginia, 203 U. S. 183, 51 Law. Ed. 144. Foreign corporation which is not subject to process from the courts of a state cannot invoke the provision of the fourteenth amendment, that no state shall deny any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of its laws. Merchants' Nat. Bk. v. Ford, 30 Ky. L. R. 558 99 SW 260. Bush law requiring charter for and judgment of ouster thereunder depriving Pullman company of right to charge or collect for services to intrastate passengers did not violate obligation of contracts between such company and railroad lines running through the state whereby railroad company agreed to haul Pullman cars and Pullman company agreed to furnish such cars, and this though the value of the Pullman company's right, under the contract, to collect fees for its services was greatly diminished. State v. Pullman Co. [Kan.] 90 P 319. Mo. Rev. St. § 7890, prohibiting life insurance companies, domestic or foreign, from avoiding policy liabilities on account of misrepresentations by insured in his application unless the matters to which such representations relate actually contributed to the contingency or event on which the policy, by its terms, became due and payable, held not to deprive foreign corporations of equal protection of laws or of liberty or property without due process of law. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Riggs, 203 U. S. 243, 51 Law. Ed. 168. Corporations are not citizens within U. S. Const. art. 4, § 2, guaranteeing to the citizens of each state all the privileges and immunities of the citizens of the several states (Merchants' Nat. Bk. v. Ford, 30 Ky. L. R. 558, 99 SW 260), or within section one of the fourteenth amendment, forbidding the states from abridging the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States (Id.)

5. State v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Kan.] 90 P 299. See Commerce, 7 C. L. 667. For noncompliance with the state law a foreign corporation may be deprived of the right to do intrastate business, though it is also engaged in interstate commerce and business of the Federal government, and though the fees from the governmental and interstate business is not alone sufficient to justify the corporation in continuing its business in the state. is also subject to the Federal constitutional limitation relative to due process of law.<sup>8</sup> The mere fact that a corporation is acting under authority of Federal laws does not exempt it from state regulation.<sup>9</sup> The right to regulate sometimes comes within the reserved power to amend charters.<sup>10</sup> For some purposes foreign and domestic corporations may be placed in different classes, and greater burdens be placed on the former,<sup>11</sup> and for the purpose of regulation corporations with their places of business and works outside of the state may be classed as foreign corporations.<sup>12</sup> A provision for revocation of the license of a corporation applying for removal to Federal courts of actions growing out of its business is not unconstitutional,<sup>13</sup> nor is any unconstitutional discrimination in requiring foreign corporations to do what is substantially required of domestic corporations,<sup>14</sup> and such conditions may be imposed on corporations already doing business in the state.<sup>15</sup> As already stated the right of a foreign corporation to do business in states other than that of its creation rests on comity, and hence additional requirements may be made of corporations already doing business in the state.<sup>16</sup> While, therefore, the statute and its acceptance may in some cases constitute a contract,<sup>17</sup> as a general rule foreign corporations which have been permitted to transact business acquire no vested right in such regard.<sup>18</sup>

A foreign corporation which has complied with the laws of the state so as to be entitled to do business therein and which is actually doing such business, acquires, for most purposes, the status of a domestic corporation,<sup>19</sup> and is amenable to the laws of the state in all matters connected with such business.<sup>20</sup> On the other

9. Acceptance of conditions and obligations imposed by an act of Congress (14 Stat. 221, c. 230, § 1), granting Western Union Telegraph Co. permission to construct and operate its lines over the public domain and navigable waters of the United States, did not relieve such company from regulation by state of Kansas, though it conducted business in such state when it was a mere territory. *State v. 11. Act, Ill. 1905, § 1, exempting charitable and educational devisees from inheritance tax, but, according to construction of state court not extending such exemption to foreign corporations, held in view of state's power over inheritances, not invalid as denial of equal protection of laws or abridgment of privileges and immunities of citizens of United States. Production of documents and papers relating to its business in the state may be compelled, and neither the corporation's duty nor the court's jurisdiction ceases merely because such documents and papers hand, so long as a foreign corporation is allowed to do business in a state, it is entitled to the equal protection of the laws of such state,<sup>21</sup> but it cannot demand rights which are not accorded to citizens of the state.<sup>22</sup> The status of foreign corporations with regard to the removal of causes to Federal courts is treated in another article.<sup>23</sup>

Permits.<sup>24</sup>

License, excise, or franchise taxes.<sup>25</sup>—The police power of a state over foreign corporations may be exercised by imposing a charter fee,<sup>26</sup> and the character of such a fee is not changed merely by the fact that some revenue is derived from it.<sup>27</sup> Provisions imposing such fees are usually upheld as constitutional.<sup>28</sup> The power to impose additional or greater license fees may be limited by contractual obligations under prior laws,<sup>29</sup> but as a general rule foreign corporations which have been permitted to transact business without a license acquire no vested right to an exemption from license,<sup>30</sup> and in the absence of such exemption, expressly made or clearly implied, they may be subjected to state regulation and license,<sup>31</sup> but the corporation in such case may escape license fees by withdrawing from the state when the same are imposed.<sup>32</sup>

Operation and construction of regulatory statutes.<sup>33</sup>—The general rules as to construction of statutes apply to statutes regulating foreign corporations, as, for example, in determining whether a former statute is repealed by a later one,<sup>34</sup> and the Federal courts will follow the construction adopted by the courts of the enacting

Kelsey*, 116 App. Div. 910, 101 NYS 902. states.<sup>35</sup> General laws making no distinction between domestic and foreign corporations apply to both,<sup>36</sup> and if unconstitutional as to one cannot be confined to the other by judicial construction and thus be rendered constitutional as to the other.<sup>37</sup> A provision subjecting foreign corporations entering a state and complying with its laws relative to such entry to all the liabilities of domestic corporations exempts it from any greater liability,<sup>38</sup> and such a provision constitutes a contract for the term of years fixed for the life of domestic corporations,<sup>39</sup> which cannot be impaired by subsequent legislation.<sup>40</sup> Whether a particular transaction comes within the terms of the statute depends, of course, upon the terms of the statute.<sup>41</sup> One of the questions which the courts are most frequently called upon to decide is the meaning of such terms or phrases as doing business or transacting business in the state. This question is, of course, largely one of fact,<sup>42</sup> but, the facts being proved or undisputed, it is held that the business referred to is the general prosecution of the ordinary business for which the corporation was organized,<sup>43</sup> and does not include every act which the corporation is authorized to do<sup>44</sup> or single, isolated, or occasional transactions.<sup>45</sup>

the state, and hence do not apply to foreign contracts or nonresidents,<sup>56</sup> nor does the prohibition of suit by a noncomplying corporation extend to the actual beneficiary of the transaction claiming through the corporation,<sup>57</sup> or to an assignee of the corporation, provided the noncompliance with the statute does not render the contract absolutely void,<sup>58</sup> which latter question is treated in the next subdivision;<sup>59</sup> nor is compliance with such provisions essential to the right of a foreign corporation to act as agent for another foreign corporation which has complied therewith.<sup>60</sup>

Prohibitory provisions are self-executing,<sup>61</sup> and the operative effect of such provisions is not impaired by the failure to provide any penalty or to declare the effect of a violation,<sup>62</sup> or by provisions for a money penalty and express prohibition of suit by the noncomplying corporation.<sup>63</sup>

Noncompliance with statutes; effect.<sup>64</sup>—The effect of noncompliance with regulatory statutes necessarily depends upon the construction placed thereon by the courts, and the construction of such statutes has already been considered for most intents and purposes.<sup>65</sup> One phase of the question, however, deserves particular consideration, and that is whether noncompliance renders the transactions of the corporation void or merely affects its capacity to sue. Of course there can be no question as to capacity to sue where the statute is express on the subject,<sup>66</sup> nor is there any doubt where the noncomplying corporation's transactions are expressly declared to be void, such provisions being held not unconstitutional as depriving foreign corporations of their property without due process of law,<sup>67</sup> or as denying equal protection of the laws,<sup>68</sup> or as taking private property for private use,<sup>69</sup> or as disturbing the title of property.<sup>70</sup> The doubt and conflict arises where the statute does not expressly declare such transactions void, and in some jurisdictions they are held void,<sup>71</sup> while in other jurisdictions the contrary doctrine obtains.<sup>72</sup> In Illinois the cases are in conflict.<sup>73</sup> Where a contract of a noncomplying corporation is held to be void, it cannot be validated by subsequent compliance prior to performance,<sup>74</sup> even though such compliance is prior to performance,<sup>75</sup> nor is an award under such contract effective,<sup>76</sup> and no action can be maintained in a Federal court on such a transaction.<sup>77</sup> Where the contracts of noncomplying corporations are not void, the right to sue thereon is determinable as of the date of the suit,<sup>78</sup> and suit may be maintained in a Federal court though not maintainable in the state courts.<sup>79</sup> Where part of a transaction is void and part valid, the corporation cannot apply general payments to the illegal transaction.<sup>80</sup> The right of a foreign corporation to do business in the state cannot be collaterally raised by private persons unless there be something in the statute either expressly or by necessary implication authorizing them to do so,<sup>81</sup> but the other party to a contract or transaction with a non-complying corporation is not estopped to assert and to rely upon the effect of such noncompliance.<sup>82</sup>

right to sue is a matter of defense<sup>83</sup> and cannot be raised collaterally in subsequent proceedings based on the judgment,<sup>84</sup> and compliance with the statutory conditions need not be pleaded and proved by a foreign corporation plaintiff in the first instance.<sup>85</sup> Incapacity to sue by reason of noncompliance is not raised by a general denial.<sup>86</sup> Since foreign corporations are not absolutely forbidden to sue, but only prohibited in certain instances,<sup>87</sup> proceedings will not be dismissed merely because the petitioner is a foreign corporation, where it does not appear that it comes within the prohibition.<sup>88</sup> Where noncompliance does not go to the substance, but merely affects capacity to sue, it cannot be taken advantage of by nonsuit, but must be raised by demurrer if apparent on the face of the complaint, or otherwise by answer.<sup>89</sup>

92. A suit by a county attorney to recover a penalty for noncompliance with the regulating statute, the proceeds of the recovery being payable to the county's general fund except a portion allowed the attorney as compensation, is a suit against the state, and hence cannot be enjoined by a Federal court. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Andrews, 154 F 95.

The effect of noncompliance upon the corporation's right to the use of a certain name as against domestic corporations is treated elsewhere.<sup>94</sup>

§ 2. Powers.<sup>95</sup>—The powers of a foreign corporation must be exercised subject to the laws and policies of the state in which it attempts to do business.<sup>96</sup> Where, therefore, foreign corporations are prohibited from transacting business on more favorable terms than domestic corporations,<sup>97</sup> it will not be allowed to do business or to file articles authorizing business which domestic corporations cannot do,<sup>98</sup> and a disavowal of intention to do such business in a petition for mandamus to compel the allowance of the filing of such articles will not entitle the petitioner to the writ.<sup>99</sup> A foreign corporation cannot exercise the power of eminent domain unless such power is conferred upon it by the laws of the state where it is to be exercised.<sup>1</sup>

§ 3. Actions by and against; jurisdiction of courts.<sup>2</sup>—Foreign corporations doing business in a state or doing certain acts therein are usually subjected by statute to the jurisdiction of the state courts.<sup>3</sup> Merely soliciting business within the state through an agent does not subject a foreign corporation to the jurisdiction of the state courts,<sup>4</sup> but a foreign corporation doing business in a state without license or permission may nevertheless be a resident for jurisdictional purposes and within the practice acts.<sup>5</sup> A state court has jurisdiction to enjoin the exercise by a foreign corporation of corporate functions in violation of the laws and policies of the state.<sup>6</sup> Jurisdiction of a domestic corporation is not ousted by its consolidation with a foreign corporation.<sup>7</sup> A Federal court has no jurisdiction of a suit against a corporation unless it is subjected by the state laws to the jurisdiction of the state courts in some one of the counties within the territorial jurisdiction of the Federal court.<sup>8</sup> In an action against a foreign corporation the complaint must show the jurisdiction of the court,<sup>9</sup> and defects in this regard are available by answer,<sup>10</sup> but it is unnecessary to allege the state in which the corporation was incorporated.<sup>11</sup>

Right to sue.<sup>12</sup>—A constitutional provision entitling foreign corporations to the right to sue the same as natural persons is a sufficient protection from a statutory forfeiture of the right to do business in the state for bringing a suit in a Federal court.<sup>13</sup> The right to sue as dependent upon compliance with state statutes is treated elsewhere.<sup>14</sup> Jurisdiction is dependent entirely upon the local statutes.<sup>15</sup> Unless the corporation appears,<sup>16</sup> such jurisdiction is predicated upon the transaction of business in the state,<sup>17</sup> or the maintenance of an office,<sup>18</sup> or the ownership of property in the state,<sup>19</sup> but the mere maintenance of an agency to take sales orders which are filled from the home office is not sufficient.<sup>20</sup> The mere appointment of a receiver in another state, the corporation not being dissolved, affects neither pending suits against the corporation<sup>21</sup> nor its liability to other suits.<sup>22</sup> As to pending suits the receiver may, on proper application, be made a party, but if he does not apply he will nevertheless be bound by the judgment.<sup>23</sup> As to subsequent suits the receiver is a proper party, and he should be permitted to appear and defend, but the fact that he is not a party will not nullify the judgment.<sup>24</sup> jurisdiction,<sup>32</sup> and such right may be enforced by mandamus.<sup>33</sup> A court of equity has no jurisdiction to dissolve and wind up a foreign corporation,<sup>34</sup> but in a proper case it may appoint a receiver to take charge of the property of the corporation in the state and enforce the rights of stockholders and creditors in regard to the same.<sup>35</sup> and where the corporation has been dissolved and its affairs finally wound up in the home state, the court may make final distribution of the assets within its jurisdiction and control, without remitting any part of such assets to the state of the corporation's domicile.<sup>36</sup> A court of one state cannot, however, compel the officers of a foreign corporation who reside in another state to obey its decree respecting the management of the affairs of the corporation.<sup>37</sup>

Whether deposits required of foreign corporations are for the benefit of a particular creditor or class of creditors depends upon the intention of the legislature in requiring the deposit,<sup>38</sup> and the liability of officers of foreign corporations to creditors under a domestic statute depends upon, among other things, whether the statute applies to such corporations.<sup>39</sup> The liability of stockholders to creditors is primarily enforceable in the home state of the corporation,<sup>40</sup> and where it is sought to be enforced elsewhere the procedure of the home state will be followed,<sup>41</sup> and while it is held that the statutory limitation on actions of the state of the former will prevail over that of the state of the corporation's domicile,<sup>42</sup> a Federal court sitting in one state will follow the decisions of another state as to when the liability of stockholders accrues under the laws of the latter state.<sup>43</sup> A fortiori a proceeding cannot be followed which is authorized by the laws of neither the forum nor the state of the corporation's domicile.<sup>44</sup> A decree in winding up proceedings making assessments upon members is binding on nonresident members if binding on resident members.<sup>45</sup>

67. Jurisdiction presumed, see ante, § 1. Where complaint shows action commenced in foreign court of general jurisdiction, appearance of defendant therein, and rendition of judgment sued upon, it is sufficient though it contains no pleadings and does not show that judgment was responsive to issues. *Roberts v. parties.<sup>68</sup> The pendency of a suit to set aside a judgment is usually sufficient to prevent judgment in an action thereon,<sup>69</sup> although if such action is allowed to go to judgment such judgment is valid in the absence of fraud,<sup>70</sup> notwithstanding the basic judgment is subsequently vacated.<sup>71</sup>

Defenses. See 7 C. L. 1737.—Since a foreign judgment is conclusive of all matters which were or which might have been litigated in the action,<sup>72</sup> no defense can be interposed which goes to the merits of the controversy,<sup>73</sup> but lack of jurisdiction may always be asserted.<sup>74</sup>

Proof of foreign judgments. See 7 C. L. 1737.—The Federal statutes provide for the authentication<sup>75</sup> of judgments of courts of general jurisdiction.<sup>76</sup> State statutes also frequently regulate the same matter.<sup>77</sup> Where a judgment record is admitted though not duly authenticated, such defect may be remedied in New York by presentation of a proper record on appeal.<sup>78</sup> Where jurisdiction is denied, judgment must be accompanied by proof thereof.<sup>79</sup>

§ 1. Protection and regulation of forests and trees. See 7 C. L. 1737.—Where

68. In pleading judgment of justice of peace, complaint must show jurisdictional facts unless statutory method prescribed by § 6871, Rev. Codes 1905, is followed. Strecker v. Railson [N. D.] 111 NW 612. Pleading must be couched in exact language of Rev. Codes 1905, § 6871, using the words "duly given or made" or words of the exact equivalent thereof. Id. In action on judgment rendered by court of special jurisdiction, general averment that judgment was given as authorized by § 372, Burns' Ann. St. 1901, is sufficient. Hardin v. Hardin [Ind.] 81 NE 60. Application for writ of habeas corpus based on foreign divorce decree which fails to show that court was one of general jurisdiction or had jurisdiction of the subject-matter or parties is defective. Id. Where suit is brought by trustee of insolvent insurance company on a foreign decree levying assessment under statutes of domiciliary state, petition must allege that court rendering such decree had jurisdiction of subject-matter. Swing v. Karges Furniture Co., 123 Mo. App. 367, 100 SW 662.

69. Parker v. Bowman [Ark.] 104 SW 158.

70. Where there was nothing to show that plaintiff, assignee of judgment, knew of want of service in original action, mere fact that he proceeded after institution of suit to vacate is not fraud. Parker v. Bowman [Ark.] 104 SW 158.

71. Parker v. Bowman [Ark.] 104 SW 158.

72. See ante, § 2.

73. Stillwell v. Smith [Pa.] 67 A 910.

74. Want of jurisdiction in court to set aside judgment of dismissal and to render judgment sued on may be asserted as defense whatever remedies the local practice may afford. Wetmore v. Karrick, 205 U. S. 141, 51 Law. Ed. 745.

75. Authentication of record of judgment held in substantial conformity to Rev. St. § 905 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 677). Seymour v. Du Bois, 145 F 1003.

76. Rev. St. § 905 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 677) held not to apply to judgment in justice court. Strecker v. Railson [N. D.] 111 NW 612. Filing of transcript of judgment of justice with clerk of district court held not to make it a judgment of such court so as to authorize its authentication as a judgment thereof. Strecker v. Railson [N. D.] 111 NW 612.

77. Transcript of justice of peace of foreign state must be authenticated in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415, and not § 414, which relates to judgments of courts of record. Gordon Bros. v. Wageman [Neb.] 108 NW 1067. Rev. Codes N. D. 1905, § 7292, providing for exemplification of records, held inapplicable to judgment rendered in justice court. Strecker v. Railson [N. D.] 111 NW 612. Where transcript of foreign judgment was authenticated as required by Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 458, 479, and exhibited a personal judgment against defendant rendered by court of general jurisdiction, held admissible as prima facie evidence of debt though not containing any pleadings or issues. Roberts v. Leutzke, 39 Ind. App. 577, 78 NE 635.

78. Milliken v. Dotson, 117 App. Div. 527, 102 NYS 564.

79. Swing v. St. Louis Refrigerator & Wooden Gutter Co., 78 Ark. 246, 93 SW 978.

80. It includes the regulation and protection of forestry and matters of contract relating to logging and floatage.

It excludes regulations designed to prevent fire (See Fires, 9 C. L. 1361), timber rights on the public domain (see Public Lands, 8 C. L. 1486), floatage rights in navigable waters (see Navigable Waters, 8 C. L.

lands paid for by the state are held under a restricted agency by a university for the purpose of instruction in scientific forestry,<sup>81</sup> the state has an interest in them sufficient to enable it to invoke the aid of the courts for the protection of the forests thereon,<sup>82</sup> and neither the university<sup>83</sup> nor one claiming under it will be permitted to destroy the forests.<sup>84</sup> Under the Federal constitution, congress has power to establish forest reserves<sup>85</sup> and to provide for the making of rules and regulations as to their use,<sup>86</sup> and no state legislation or policy can interfere with this right or embarrass its exercise.<sup>87</sup> An indictment will lie to punish<sup>88</sup> and an injunction will lie to prevent the violation of regulations made by the executive department of the United States government for the protection of forest reservations.<sup>89</sup> The constitution of New York provides for the preservation of lands constituting the forest preserves.<sup>90</sup> Penalties have been provided for the unlawful cutting of the trees of an-1083), sale of manufactured lumber (see Sales, 8 C. L. 1751), and matters of trespass (see Trespass, 8 C. L. 2147) and waste (see Waste, 8 C. L. 2261).

81. Under Laws 1898, p. 230, c. 122, authorizing Cornell University to acquire, at the expense of the state, forest lands for the conduct of experiments in forestry, the university was agent of the state with special and restricted powers. People v. Brooklyn Cooperage Co. [N. Y.] 79 NE 866. The statute is constitutional, since the state had never been vested with the legal title to the lands; art. 7, § 7, of the constitution providing that the lands of the state constituting the forest preserve shall be kept as a wild forest, and that timber thereon shall not be sold, removed, or destroyed, is not violated (Id.), nor is art. 8, § 9, providing that neither the credit nor the money of the state shall be given or loaned to or in aid of any associated, corporation, or private undertaking, violated (Id.).

82. State entitled to injunction to restrain cutting and removing of timber by party claiming under the university. People v. Brooklyn Cooperage Co. [N. Y.] 79 NE 866.

83. Under Laws 1898, p. 230, c. 122, authorizing Cornell University to acquire, at the state's expense, forest lands for experiments in forestry and to raise, cut, and sell timber of such species and quantities as it may deem best for forestry purposes, it being provided that after thirty years the lands should be conveyed to the state, a contract between the university and a private corporation requiring the former to cut and deliver for fifteen years wood to a given amount as required is hostile to the scheme of the act and will be enjoined. People v. Brooklyn Cooperage Co. [N. Y.] 79 NE 866.

84. A corporation dealing with the university holding the lands as above described, having notice of its special and restricted powers as to the land, contracted with it in relation thereto at its peril and was bound by the provisions of the statute giving the university its authority, and therefore could not cut and remove the timber on the lands. People v. Brooklyn Cooperage Co. [N. Y.] 79 NE 866.

85. Under art. 4, § 3, which provides "that congress shall have the power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States," congress had the power to pass act June 4, 1897, c. 2, 30 Stat. 35, 36. United States v. Shannon, 151 F 863.

86. The delegation of the power to make rules and regulations to the secretary of the interior is within the constitutional right of congress (United States v. Shannon, 151 F 863; United States v. Domingo, 152 F 566), and the rules and regulations, regarding the use of forest reserves for grazing, of October 3, 1903, are not beyond the power delegated (United States v. Shannon, 151 F 863). Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, by prescribing the same penalty as provided in act June 4, 1888, effectually provides penalties for its violation, although the offenses in the two acts are different. United States v. Domingo, 152 F 566.

87. Ordinance No. 1, Const. Mont., providing that "the people inhabiting the said proposed state of Montana do agree and declare that they forever disclaim all right and title to the unappropriated public lands lying within the boundaries thereof," was adopted in accordance with the Enabling Act of congress and shows knowledge of this ownership and right of control. United States v. Shannon, 151 F 863. The right of the United States government to regulate the use of forest reserves for grazing is paramount to the policy of the state of Montana to allow cattle to run at large on public or unfenced lands. Id.

88. Violation of rule forbidding pasturing of live stock without a permit is punishable under act June 4, 1897, 30 Stat. 35 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1540). United States v. Deguirro, 152 F 568. Regulation 72 of the secretary of the interior which forbids any grazing or driving of live stock upon, on, or across a forest reservation without a permit is not a law but only a rule, and valid (United States v. Domingo, 152 F 566), while the part prescribing a fine and imprisonment for such unpermitted acts is invalid, but may be treated as surplusage which does not invalidate the balance of the rule (Id.).

89. Grazing without permit from the secretary of the interior or commissioner of the general land office and in disregard of rules and regulations contained in the compilation of October 3, 1903, restrained. United States v. Shannon, 151 F 863.

90. Art. 7, § 7. People v. Fisher, 116 App. Div. 677, 101 NYS 1047. The forest, other against his consent in some states.<sup>91</sup> Injunction will issue to restrain the unlawful cutting of timber,<sup>92</sup> but equity has no jurisdiction to grant relief for an unlawful cutting or conversion where the remedy is adequate at law.<sup>93</sup> The Pennsylvania act prohibiting the cutting of timber on state lands applies to growing trees of any size.<sup>94</sup> Willfulness or intent is not essential to the offense.<sup>95</sup> Violations of the act must be prosecuted by indictment at quarter sessions.<sup>96</sup> fish, and game law, Laws 1900, p. 61, c. 20, § 216, provides that the forest preserve shall include lands owned or hereafter acquired by the state. Id. The holding of a belt of timber land in connection with its canal system is not inconsistent with its being part of the forest preserve, the purpose being not to cut the timber and devastate the land, but the reverse. Id.

§ 2. Logs and lumbering; booms and floatage.<sup>See 7 C. L. 1739</sup>—Questions involving public and private rights on legally navigable waters,<sup>97</sup> contracts relating to sales of manufacturing lumber,<sup>98</sup> and questions concerning the measure of damages for breach of timber contracts, are discussed in separate articles,<sup>99</sup> as is the right to condemn land for haulways and other logging purposes.<sup>1</sup>

91. Treble damages under Gen. St. 1902, § 1097. Avery v. White, 79 Conn. 705, 66 A 517. Defendant who sent his agents on plaintiff's land to cut trees of a certain size is liable nevertheless for smaller trees cut, it not being shown that the smaller stuff was necessarily cut to get at and remove the larger timber. Id. State held entitled to penalties for cutting timber on state lands under forest, fish, and game law (Laws 1900, pp. 63, 64, c. 20, § 222). People v. Fisher, 116 App. Div. 677, 101 NYS 1047.

92. See, also, Injunction, 8 C. L. 279. Cutting down trees and bushes is waste, and injunction lies to restrain the threatened continuance. Hatton v. Gregg [Cal. App.] 88 P 594. Injunction granted although defendant was solvent and plaintiff had not a "perfect title" as required in some cases by Civ. Code 1895, § 4927, where the damages were irreparable and the evidence showed that the acts were constantly recurring and a multiplicity of suits probable. Lewis v. Hutchinson, 127 Ga. 789, 56 SE 998. Held error to refuse injunction where the damage would be irreparable. Baker v. Davis, 127 Ga. 649, 57 SE 62. Injunction granted on the ground of irreparable injury to the plaintiff. Burton v. O'Neill Mfg. Co., 126 Ga. 805, 55 SE 933. In action of trespass in cutting timber, plea of title by adverse possession overruled, cutting timber on land not constituting possession. Morgan v. Pott [Mo. App.] 101 SW 717. Where an oral extension of time for removal of timber was given in consideration of payment of taxes, an injunction to restrain removal of timber thereunder refused on ground that no case was made out and equity would not aid to enforce a forfeiture. Wallace v. Kelley, 148 Mich. 336, 14 Det. Leg. N. 230, 111 NW 1049. Injunction dissolved, no grounds for equitable relief. Godwin v. Phifer [Fla.] 41 S 597. Right to injunction barred by statute of limitations, Revisal of 1905, § 391 [4], limiting rights of action to ten years after they accrue. Bernhardt v. Hagamon, 144 N. C. 526, 57 SE 222.

93. Injunction to restrain cutting after time specified in deed refused. McCarty v. Wilson [Ark.] 98 SW 682.

94. Act Feb. 25, 1901 Commonwealth v. LaBar, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 228.

95. Commonwealth v. LaBar, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 228.

96. Justice has no authority to entertain summary proceeding. Commonwealth v. LaBar, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 288.
