Parsons, 132 Iowa, 543, 109 N. W. 1098. Where contract gave plaintiff entire charge of lands of other party, with power to dispose of them according to his best judgment, net proceeds of sales to be equally divided, and provided that it should be binding on other party's executors, and it was agreed that other party should make codicil to his will to that effect, held that neglect to make such codicil and assertion of executor and beneficiaries under other party's will of right to have estate administered regardless of such contract was breach rendering executor as such, liable for damages. Mills v. Smith, 193 Mass. 11, 78 N. E. 765. Repudiation by one party before other has completely performed is breach. Official catalogue Co. v. American Car & Foundry Co., 120 Mo. App. 575, 97 S. W. 231. Where evidence showed that certain person made silhouettes within defendant's concession with its knowledge and consent, held that, if making of them was breach of covenant granting plaintiff certain exclusive privileges, plaintiff was entitled to recover regardless of whether such person paid for concession from defendant to make them or not. Frankel v. German Tyrolean Alps, 121 Mo. App. 51, 97 S. W. 961. Evidence held to show that certain person made silhouettes within defendant's concession with its permission. Id. In action to recover money paid defendant under contract whereby he was to furnish plaintiff list of school lands which because of mineral character would entitle state to select other government land in lieu thereof, held that nonsuit was properly denied. Morse v. Odell [Or.] 89 P. 139. Where architect agreed to prepare plans for structure to cost not to exceed certain sum, and lowest bid under plans prepared largely exceeded such sum, held that he was not entitled to recover on contract. Graham v. Bell-Irving [Wash.] 91 P. 8. In action on contract whereby decedent agreed to give plaintiff certain interest in business when decedent deemed that he was able to withdraw certain sum from said business consistently with keeping up most advisable volume of business, acts of decedent held to show conclusively that, as against decedent and his representatives, time never did come when decedent was able to withdraw such sum, and hence no cause of action on contract or for its breach arose during his lifetime against which limitations could run. Ott v. Boring [Wis.] 110 N. W. 824. On his death, and refusal of his representatives to give plaintiff share in property, held that money cause of action arose in plaintiff's favor. Id. Right of plaintiff to recover on money demand held not barred by laches. Id. Where agent had right to resign, and right was lawfully exercised, held that resignation was not breach of contract. Security Trust contract,<sup>13</sup> or where he voluntarily puts it out of his power to perform,<sup>14</sup> or prevents performance by the other party.<sup>15</sup> Failure to perform any one of the things contracted for by the terms of an entire continuing contract providing for performance in installments is a partial breach, giving rise to a separate and independent cause of action.<sup>16</sup> A breach of an independent part of a severable contract does not put an end to the whole contract, or excuse performance of other independent provisions by the other party.<sup>17</sup> Partial failure to perform is insufficient as a defense where it is entirely immaterial, or capable of being fully compensated by damages.<sup>18</sup> The motive inducing a breach is immaterial.<sup>19</sup> In the absence of a provision in the contract covering the matter, a party cannot recover damages because it becomes impossible for him to perform unless he was induced to enter into the contract through some act or omission by the other party amounting to deceit.<sup>20</sup>

If a party to an entire executory contract, before the time for performance arrives, distinctly and unequivocally<sup>21</sup> renounces or repudiates it, the other party may, at his election, treat his action as a breach.<sup>22</sup>

& Life Ins. Co. v. Ellsworth, 129 Wis. 349, 109 N. W. 125. Failure of defendant to procure actual issue to himself of certain stock held not breach, contract requiring plaintiff to procure assent of company to issue, and evidence showing that stock was to remain to defendant's credit on company's books and certificates to be issued to customers found by plaintiff. Davidor v. Bradford, 129 Wis. 542, 109 N. W. 576. Evidence held not to show breach of contract not to re-engage in lumber business, it not being shown that defendants were in any way financially interested in certain firm. Jayne & Keve Bros. Lumber Co. v. Turner & Son, 132 Iowa, 7, 109 N. W. 307. Defendant held to have been engaged in management of business in violation of covenant not to engage in such business, and not merely to have been engaged in following her trade for wages. Angelica Jacket Co. v. Angelica, 121 Mo. App. 226, 98 S. W. 805. Evidence held to support finding that plaintiff had broken agreement not to engage in newspaper or job printing business in certain city for ten years. Skinner v. Wilson [Neb.] 107 N. W. 771. Evidence held to support finding that defendant violated agreement not to engage in certain business. My Laundry Co. v. Schmeling, 129 Wis. 597, 109 N. W. 540.

13. For distinction between entire and divisible contracts see § 4C, ante.

14. Transfer by employer of its entire plant and business held breach of contract of employment. White v. Lumiere North American Co., 79 Vt. 206, 64 A. 1121. Where contract obligated defendant to pay plaintiff certain sum in case defendant recovered judgment against a third person in a pending suit, held that plaintiff was entitled to recover said sum on defendant compromising said suit. Camden v. Jarrett [C. C. A.] 154 F. 788.

15. Party who is prevented by other party from performing may, at his election, treat contract as rescinded. Valente v. Weinberg [Conn.] 67 A. 369. Where contract required plaintiff to obtain options on two pieces of property, held that defendant by directing him not to procure one of them broke contract and plaintiff could recover damages for breach or on quantum meruit for services actually performed. Worthington v. McGarry [Ala.] 42 So 988.

16. Jones & Co. v. Gammel Statesman Pub. Co. [Tex.] 99 S. W. 701, revg. [Tex. Civ. App.] 94 S. W. 191.

17. Where defendant elected to treat contract as severable, held that it was bound to perform its part, and seek compensation in damages for breaches. Gates v. Detroit & M. R. Co. 147 Mich. 523, 111 N. W. 101. Covenant that defendant would not solicit orders, etc., from plaintiff's customers for three years after leaving his employ held an independent covenant entered into as a consideration of the employment, and that plaintiff was entitled to enjoin its breach, though defendant was discharged without notice, required by contract where he was tendered week's wages instead, covenant depending upon cessation of employment and not on manner of cessation. Mutual Milk & Cream Co. v. Heldt, 105 N. Y. S. 661.

18. Defendant held not relieved from contract obligation to pay plaintiff $843, on terminating contract of employment by reason of plaintiff's refusal to deliver to it list of names of subscribers to paper, which it secured from other sources at expense of $60 before commencement of action. Redpath v. Evening Exp. Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 287.

19. In suit to restrain violation of agreement not to engage in certain business, evidence as to defendant's purpose in so doing held immaterial. My Laundry Co. v. Schmeling, 129 Wis. 597, 109 N. W. 540.

20. Plaintiff contracted to construct receiving well for defendant on site to be fixed by defendant. After work was started its completion became impossible by reason of fact that water rushed up through old concealed test well, previously sunk by defendant on same site and flooded excavation. In action against defendant for damages resulting from plaintiff's inability to complete work, held error not to submit to jury question whether defendant, when it designated site, should have reasonably apprehended that presence of test well would render performance impossible and hence fraudulently imposed useless contract on plaintiff. Murtland v. Atlantic City [N. J. Err. App.] 65 A. 1049.

21. Rule equally applicable to both parties to a sale. McBeth v. Jones Cotton Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 383. Fact that plaintiff tendered cotton not deliverable in performance held not to entitle defendant to cancel contract before expiration of time within which delivery could be made under its terms. Id. Where land was conveyed under oral agreement to reconvey on demand, fact that defendant sold part of land and accounted to plaintiff for proceeds held not to constitute repudiation of contract as to remaining land so as to start running of limitations. Cromwell v. Norton, 193 Mass. 291, 79 N. E. 433. Refusal to deliver corn before delivery was due held not to entitle purchaser to buy other corn and sue for difference in price. Hall-Baker Grain Co. v. Le Mar [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1098.

22. Where one party advises other that he does not intend to carry out his part of contract, other party is absolved from further performance and may recover any damages sustained. Hobbs v. Ray, 29 Ky. L. R. 999, 96 S. W. 589. May sue at once for breach without waiting for day of performance. Holt v. United Security Life Ins. & Trust Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 118. Where vendee of personalty refused to carry out his agreement to execute notes for purchase price. Kelly v. Pierce [N. D.] 112 N. W. 995. Declaration of plaintiff before full time for him to perform had expired that he would not perform, either by marketing certain stock or paying his half of price, held to constitute such an anticipatory breach as gave defendant right to treat contract as terminated. Davidor v. Bradford, 129 Wis. 524, 109 N. W. 576. Where contract for sale of goods is still executory on both sides, notice by purchaser to seller that he will not accept any pay for goods amounts to breach. Rounsaville v. Leonard Mfg. Co., 127 Ga. 735, 56 S. E. 1030. Rule held inapplicable to mutual life insurance policy providing for payment of sum of money at insured's death, and hence renunciation by insurer did not entitle insured to sue at once for damages, but his remedy was in equity. Kelly v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co., 186 N. Y. 16, 78 N. E. 584, rev'd, 106 App. Div. 352, 94 N. Y. S. 601.

Stipulations and breaches held waived: Defaults in delivery of and payment for lumber. Demarest v. Dunton Lumber Co. 151 F. 508. Delay in delivering abstract of title, where it was accepted and retained without objection on that ground. Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Co. v. Blanton [C. C. A.] 149 F. 31. Requirement that part of purchase price of land be deposited in bank, by defendant's repudiation of contract, etc. Kissack v. Bourke, 224 Ill. 352, 79 N. E. 619. Allegations of answer held to show nullification of stipulation as to time of payment. Bearden Mercantile Co. v. Madison Oil Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 200.

Stipulations and breaches held not waived: Defendant's breach of contract by refusing to receive amount of potatoes called for thereby held not waived by subsequent delivery of potatoes to him. Graves v. Melia [Ark.] 99 S. W. 80. Allegations of answer held insufficient to show waiver of provision as to time of delivery. Bearden Mercantile Co. v. Madison Oil Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 200. Monthly payments for heat by lessee, and fact that action for damages was not commenced for nearly two years after she vacated house held not to necessarily estop her from recovering damages for breach of contract to furnish heat, though it was proper for jury to consider such facts in determining whether house was comfortably heated and whether she accepted heat furnished without complaint. Sargent v. Mason [Minn.] 112 N. W. 255. Acceptance of check less unauthorized discount held not waiver of discount. Taussig v. Southern Mill & Land Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 602. Letters seeking information held not waiver by telegraph company of provision requiring filing of written claim for damages for nondelivery of message. Eaker v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 97, 55 S. E. 129. Telegraph company held not to have waived requirement of notice of claim. Toale v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 117. Evidence held insufficient to require submission of question of waiver of provision requiring vendor of land to furnish abstract. Hampton Stave Co. v. Gardner [C. C. A.] 154 F. 805.

27. See, also, Sales, 8 C. L. 1751. In view of peculiarities necessarily characterizing sale and delivery of water through system of waterworks held that mere receipt and consumption of water by city did not conclusively show an acceptance of the service as a performance of the contract. Skowhegan Water Co. v. Skowhegan Village Corp. [Me.] 66 A. 714. Contract to furnish heat held an agreement to perform services and not sale of personal property, so that rule written contract may be shown by parol.<sup>28</sup> If the parties mutually adopt a mode of performance differing from the strict terms of the contract, or mutually relax its terms by adopting a loose mode of executing it, neither party can thereafter insist upon a breach because it was not performed according to its letter,<sup>29</sup> though he may require a return to the terms of the contract in the future<sup>30</sup> by giving the other party reasonable notice of his intention to do so.<sup>31</sup> So, too, one continuing to negotiate with a party in default cannot rescind without giving him reasonable notice to comply with the terms of the contract.<sup>32</sup>

(§ 6) C. Excuses for failure to perform.<sup>33</sup>—An unexcused breach of an entire contract by one party excuses performance by the other,<sup>34</sup> nor can one predicate any rights on a breach for which he is himself responsible.<sup>35</sup> A breach of an inde-

that voluntary payments preclude objection that property was deficient in quantity was inapplicable. Sargent v. Mason [Minn.] 112 N. W. 255. Defendant's use of plans held not to conclusively show waiver, so that instruction predicated waiver thereon was erroneous. Hudson v. Rodgers, 121 Mo. App. 168, 98 S. W. 778. Payment on account of plaintiff's services in drawing plans held not an acceptance or waiver where it was made without knowledge of defects. Dunne v. Robinson, 52 Misc. 545, 103 N. Y. S. 878. Payment on account held not an acceptance of plans where it was made before it was demonstrated by bids that they did not meet requirements of contract as to cost of construction. Graham v. Bell-Irving [Wash.] 91 P. 8. Knowledge of defects in boat held essential to waiver. Marine Iron Works v. Wiess [C. C. A.] 148 F. 145.

28. Agreement extending time for completing sale of land under contract under seal may be in parol. Kissack v. Bourke, 224 Ill. 352, 79 N. E. 619. Though standing timber can be sold only by conveyance in writing, held that right to forfeit written contract of sale for failure to remove timber within time specified could be, and was, waived by parol agreement, extending time for removal. Wallace v. Kelly [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 230, 111 N. W. 1049.

29. Gates v. Detroit & M. R. Co., 147 Mich. 523, 111 N. W. 101.

30. Letter held not repudiation of method of performance up to that time. Gates v. Detroit & M. R. Co., 147 Mich. 523, 111 N. W. 101.

31. If in course of execution some of terms of contract are departed from, and money is paid and received on such departures for some time, then before one party can recover from other for failure to pursue letter of agreement he must notify latter with clearness of his purpose thenceforth to stand on original contract, departure, until such notice, being treated as in nature of new undertaking. Hasbrouck v. Bondurant, 127 Ga. 220, 56 S. E. 241. Civ. Code 1895, § 3642. Mathis v. Harrell, 1 Ga. App. 358, 58 S. E. 207. Evidence held sufficient to justify finding that defendant waived provision that plaintiff should not sell goods on credit, so that direction of verdict was erroneous. Id.

32. Circumstances held to preclude rescission without notice. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Santa Clara Lumber Co., 186 N. Y. 89, 78 N. E. 701. Letter held wholly insufficient as notice of defendant's election to abandon contract unless plaintiff made advances by certain time. Id.

33. See 7 C. L. 813.

34. Contractor held not responsible for delay due to failure of architect to furnish drawings. Snead & Co. Iron Works v. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co., 225 Ill. 442, 80 N. E. 237. Instructions leaving it to jury to conjecture whether change in order of work was excuse for delay held erroneous where evidence entirely failed to prove allegations as to change, and, on contrary, showed that order was immaterial. First Nat. Bk. v. Carroll [Mont.] 88 P. 1012. Changes in specifications and extra work held not to excuse delay in completing vessel, it not appearing that delay was caused thereby, or that contractor notified owner that they would result in delay. Morse Dry Dock & Repair Co. v. Seaboard Transp. Co., 154 F. 90. Respondent's delay in delivering windlass held not proximate cause of failure to complete work in time. Id. Where contractor abandoned building contract because of failure of other party to pay installments due thereunder held that he was entitled to recover value of work actually performed thereunder. Peet v. East Grand Forks [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1003. Where one party advises other that he does not intend to carry out his part of contract, other party is excused from further performance. Hobbs v. Ray, 29 Ky. L. R. 999, 96 S. W. 589. Premature action of plaintiff in purchasing corn in market before expiration of time fixed by contract for delivery, and in notifying defendant of that fact and demanding damages for non-delivery, held to relieve defendant from necessity of complying with contract. Hall-Baker Grain Co. v. Le Mar [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1098. Evidence held not to require submission of issue of breach to jury. Hampton Stave Co. v. Gardner [C. C. A.] 154 F. 805.

35. Rule that if party contracts to do a thing within certain time without exceptions on account of contingencies which may arise he is liable for non performance within such time, though unavoidably prevented from performing, does not apply where he is hindered by fault of other party. Beat-tie Mfg. Co. v. Heinz, 120 Mo. App. 465, 97 S. W. 188. Party cannot make his own breach of executory contract basis of recovery of money paid by him pursuant to it. Balleisen v. Schiff, 105 N. Y. S. 632. Party who himself stopped work held not entitled to credit on contract price for causing work to be completed. Harrison v. Franklin [Mo.

pendent part of a severable contract does not, however, excuse performance of other independent provisions by the other party.<sup>36</sup>

As a general rule one who unqualifiedly undertakes to do a particular thing is not excused because performance is rendered impossible by some unforeseen contingency which might have been guarded against.<sup>37</sup> This rule does not, however, apply where performance is rendered impossible by operation of,<sup>38</sup> or a change in,<sup>39</sup> the law, or, in the case of contracts for personal services, by the death or disability of the party who is to perform them.<sup>40</sup>

One sued for breach of his contract cannot show that had he performed the other party would not have done so.<sup>41</sup> Repayment of a loan does not preclude enforcement of an agreement made as a part of the consideration therefor.<sup>42</sup> Excuses for delay do not excuse an absolute failure to perform.<sup>43</sup>

Iroquois Furnace Co.*, 124 Ill. App. 1. Where contract provided for deduction of specified sum for each day's delay in completing work, and plaintiff sought to excuse delay by showing that it was due to fault of defendant held that it was bound to measure delay for which defendant was to blame in periods of days, not leaving it to be guessed at from indefinite and uncertain evidence. Wheeling Mold & Foundry Co. v. Wheeling Steel & Iron Co. [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 826. When causes of delay set in operation by defendant were removed, held that contract in all its force continued binding on plaintiff unless modification of contract on which it relied to excuse delay extended time, or character of modification, or conduct of defendant was such as to necessarily delay performance of original contract. Id. Where contractor failed to furnish material to subcontractor as required by contract so that latter could complete work in time and delay was unreasonable, held that subcontractor was justified in abandoning work, and was not liable for resulting damages to contractor. Seventh St. Planing Mill Co. v. Schaefer, 30 Ky. L. R. 623, 99 S. W. 341. Vendee held not to have prevented furnishing of abstract of title by vendor. Hampton Stave Co. v. Gardner [C. C. A.] 154 F. 805. Where by terms of contract for sale of land balance of purchase money was not due until survey was made and deed tendered, held that vendor could not complain of delay in making payment where there was no survey or tender. East Jellico Coal Co. v. Carter, 30 Ky. L. R. 174, 97 S. W. 768. Failure to furnish and lay water pipe within time limited held not excused because inspector voluntarily appointed by purchaser, he not being required to furnish inspector, passed defective plates. First Nat. Bk. v. Carroll [Mont.] 88 P. 1012. Instructions held erroneous as leading jury to believe that they should take acts of inspector into consideration. Id. Requested instruction that if plaintiff requested change from contract in construction of boat he could not thereafter reject it because of such changes held improperly refused. Marine Iron Works v. Wiess [C. C. A.] 148 F. 145.

37. Rule inapplicable where delay due to fault of other party. Beattie Mfg. Co. v. Heinz, 120 Mo. App. 465, 97 S. W. 188. Restrictive clause of lease providing that no beer save of a particular manufacture should be sold on premises held not annulled by fact that excepted beer could not be lawfully obtained, it being presumed that both parties knew law and contracted with reference to it. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Nielsen [Neb.] 110 N. W. 746. Strike of carpenters held not to excuse failure to complete vessel on time, no such provision being contained in body of contract, and note at head of letter being ineffective because respondent's attention was never called to it, and it was not seen by its contracting officers. Morse Dry Dock & Repair Co. v. Seaboard Transportation Co., 154 F. 90.

38. Refusal of railroad company to make payment for ties by carrying freight for plaintiff as required by contract held excused where company was garnished in suit against plaintiff. Jonesboro etc., R. Co. v. Watts, 80 Ark. 543, 98 S. W. 358. Executive and managing officers of corporation will not be permitted to participate in its assets being administered through an insolvency proceeding on basis of breach of the contract of employment under their election to office, for that portion of period for which they were elected, unexpired and unearned at date of receivership. Williamson County Banking & Trust Co. v. Roberts-Buford Dry Goods Co. [Tenn.] 101 S. W. 421.

39. Where contract legal in its inception becomes invalid by subsequent statutory enactment, it is thereby wholly terminated as soon as statute takes effect though time fixed by its terms has not expired, and no recovery can be had for subsequent non-performance, though acts previously done under such contract are not rendered invalid. American Mercantile Exchange v. Blunt [Me.] 66 A. 212.

40. Contract for legal services is personal in its nature, so that death or disability which renders performance impossible discharges it. Corson v. Lewis [Neb.] 109 N. W. 735.

41. Where vendor broke contract by failure to furnish abstract of title, held that evidence that vendee would not have taken and paid for land had abstract been furnished was inadmissible. Hampton Stave Co. v. Gardner [C. C. A.] 154 F. 805.

Contract to procure subscriptions for corporate stock. Tyler v. Coleman, 29 Ky. L. R. 1270, 97 S. W. 373. Fact that certain subscriptions were conditional held immaterial, defendant having authorized their acceptance upon conditions imposed. Id.

Evidence held not to show performance: Insufficient to support finding that defendant was instrumental in making sale of machinery so as to entitle him to agent's commission. Port Huron Co. v. Miller, 127 Ill. App. 324.

47. See, also, § 9A, post. Parties are entitled to have contract executed according to its terms, and not according to some notion of equity or justice or upon some fanciful theory of computation by court or jury. Wheeling Mold & Foundry Co. v. Wheeling Steel & Iron Co. [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 826. Charge that party has right to recover when he has performed his service in pursuance of his contract held equivalent to instruction that services must have been such as were called for by contract and must have been performed according to its terms. Schofield v. Little [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 666. Evidence held not to sustain burden resting on plaintiff to show performance in accordance with terms of contract. Ansorge v. Moriarty, 103 N. Y. S. 815. In action on contract for sale, delivery, and hanging of gas fixtures, held error to award plaintiff judgment for full contract price where it was admitted that he did not hang fixtures, and evidence showed that defendant did so at his own expense. Baldinger & Kupferman Mfg. Co. v. Christ, 105 N. Y. S. 193. In action to recover money advanced for purchase of ties which it was claimed were never delivered, instruction authorizing recovery if agreement was made and defendant failed to deliver sufficient number of ties under contract to repay amount advanced by plaintiff held not objectionable for failure to require that ties must have been delivered at place where it was claimed contract required them to be delivered, in view of other instructions and fact that question whether contract required ties to be delivered at such place was for jury. Holcomb-Lobb Co. v. Kaufman, 29 Ky. L. R. 1006, 96 S. W. 813. Small specks in borders of prints not due to defects in plates or printing but to dust particles held not to preclude recovery, uncontradicted evidence being that they could not be avoided. Turner v. Osgood Art Colortype Co., 223 Ill. 629, 79 N. E. 306, affg. 125 Ill. App. 602. Approval and certification by land office of selection of indemnity school land by state having operated to exhaust bases offered in exchange, held that furnishing of list of such base land was no defense to action to recover money paid defendant to furnish list of valid base lands. Morse v. Odell [Or.] 89 P. 139. Plaintiffs held bound to substantially perform contract to prepare plans, so that if plans did not come within its terms they could not recover unless defendant waived deviation. Hudson v. Rodgers, 121 Mo. App. 168, 98 S. W. 778. Where contract required plaintiffs to prepare plans for building not to cost more than specified amount, by specified date, and plans as drawn called for building to cost more than said sum, held that they had no right to prepare second set after said date, and instruction authorizing recovery of reasonable value if defendant refused to permit them to make changes in plans necessary to make them conform to contract was error. Id. Evidence held to support finding that plans for drawing for which recovery was sought were defective and utterly unfit for use.

not accept those terms which are favorable to him and reject those which are onerous, but must accept or reject it in its entirety.<sup>48</sup> So, too, the terms of the contract are the only measure and criterion of his duty thereunder.<sup>49</sup> If a joint contract is performed by either of the promisors, the liability of the other party is complete.<sup>50</sup> Payment in full by one of several persons jointly liable is a defense to an action by the obligee against the others,<sup>51</sup> but a partial payment is only a defense pro tanto.<sup>52</sup>

In the case of building contracts a literal compliance is not required but a substantial performance in good faith authorizes a recovery of the contract price, less a reasonable allowance for inadvertent and trivial errors and omissions,<sup>53</sup> and this rule has been held applicable to certain other undertakings of a different character, under appropriate circumstances.<sup>54</sup>

Where the promisor undertakes to perform to the satisfaction of the promisee<sup>55</sup> or his agent,<sup>56</sup> an honest and reasonable objection by the latter precludes recovery.

Dunne v. Robinson, 53 Misc. 545, 103 N. Y. S. 878. Instruction that in determining whether certain plant constructed by plaintiff was antiquated and insufficient they might consider whether both parties intended that it should be modeled after certain other plant held proper. Mathieson Alkali Works v. Mathieson [C. C. A.] 150 F. 241. In action for services in establishing alkali plant in which English machinery was installed, held that evidence as to cost of similar American machinery was properly excluded, plaintiff not being responsible, under circumstances, for not knowing that latter could be purchased more cheaply than former. Id. Evidence held to sustain finding that work, in so far as performed, was in substantial compliance with terms of contract. Peet v. East Grand Forks [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1003.

48. Where claimant accepted money paid under modification of contract, held that he was bound by provisions of release executed pursuant thereto. William Cramp & Sons v. U. S. 41 Ct. Cl. 164.

49. In action for damages for breach of written contract to care for and cultivate grove of fruit trees, held no defense that plaintiff did not care for and cultivate adjacent grove not included in contract so well as defendant did grove included in contract, terms of contract being only criterion and measure of defendant's duty. Griffing Bros. Co. v. Winfield [Fla.] 43 So. 687. There being no evidence that there was any agreement that defendant was to receive only certain per cent of profit on actual cost, held immaterial that plaintiff offered to let him do work on that basis, and hence instruction on theory that refusal of such offer released plaintiff from further liability on contract was properly refused. Virginia Bridge & Iron Co. v. Crafts [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 322. Oil and gas lease held not to be void merely because lessor expected lessee to commence operations at once where by express terms of lease they could be delayed for five years. Ringle v. Quigg, 74 Kan. 581, 87 P. 724. Oil and gas lease held not void merely because lessee stipulated therein that at end of five years he should have option to keep lease in force by doing certain act which at date of lease he was unable to perform. Id. Certain firm held not to have given opinion that invention was patentable, so that, under terms of contract, defendant was not bound to take stock in corporation formed for purpose of utilizing it. Instruction approved. Randall v. Clafin [Mass.] 80 N. E. 594.

Doctrine held inapplicable to contract for making prints of pictures, which were refused. Turner v. Osgood Art Colorotype Co., 223 Ill. 629, 79 N. E. 306, affg. 125 Ill. App. 602.

55. Agreement to make coat for defendant out of skins furnished by her. Haehnel v. Trostler, 104 N. Y. S. 533. Where artist agreed to paint portrait to defendant's satisfaction, and defendant testified that he was not satisfied, held that judgment for plaintiff for contract price was erroneous. Clausen v. Vonnoh, 105 N. Y. S. 102. Where plaintiff agreed "to render satisfactory services in her specialties" during theatrical engagement of one week and was discharged in good faith after one performance because her services were not satisfactory to defendant or public, held that she could not recover contract price for week's services. Parker v. Hyde & Behman Amusement Co., 53 Misc. 549, 103 N. Y. S. 731.

56. See, also, Building and Construction Contracts, 9 C. L. 424. Where plaintiff agreed to purchase school bonds "when legally issued to the satisfaction of our attorneys," held that approval of attorneys was condition precedent to completion of purchase, and, where they honestly and in good faith advised against legality of bonds, defendant was not entitled to forfeit deposit made by plaintiff to secure performance. Webb v. Trustees of Morganton Graded School Dist., 143 N. C. 299, 55 S. E. 719. Question as to validity of bonds held not so free from

(§ 6) E. Demand or tender necessary to fix performance or breach.<sup>57</sup>—A demand is prerequisite to the recovery of money payable at an indefinite future time.<sup>58</sup> It is sometimes held that no other demand than the bringing of an action therefor is necessary to recover money payable on demand.<sup>59</sup> Where plaintiff's action is based on an alleged right to refuse further performance, no demand is necessary to entitle defendant to recoup damages for plaintiff's breach.<sup>60</sup> Where the contract gives one party an option to demand performance by the other party or not, at his election, he is bound, if he desires performance, to so elect, notify the other party of that fact, and tender performance on his own part, either on the date fixed or within a reasonable time thereafter.<sup>61</sup>

Under the civil law where a contract to do is violated by not doing what was covenanted to be done within the time stipulated, a putting in default is not a prerequisite to a suit for rescission, but is necessary only when damages are sought to be recovered for the breach.<sup>62</sup> Nor is a putting in default necessary where the other party has put it out of his power to perform.<sup>63</sup>

Where the acts to be done by the parties are mutual and to be performed at the same time, it is only necessary for plaintiff to aver that he was ready and willing to perform his part.<sup>64</sup> An absolute refusal by one party to perform renders a tender by the other unnecessary.<sup>65</sup> So, too, a tender at the time fixed for performance is excused when rendered impossible by the acts of the other party.<sup>66</sup>

58. Where decedent agreed upon certain contingency either to form partnership with plaintiff or to convey to him quarter of net assets of business after deducting certain sum, held that money liability could arise only on refusal of demand for performance, and limitations did not begin to run until such demand and refusal. Ott v. Boring [Wis.] 110 N. W. 824.

59. Complaint in indebitatus assumpsit alleging indebtedness of defendant to plaintiff for certain coins, delivered by latter to former, of value of specified sum, which sum defendant promised to pay on demand, held to state cause of action though it did not allege demand. Ex parte Horwitz, 2 Cal. App. 752, 84 P. 229.

60. Plaintiff's suit held to relieve defendant from necessity of demand for lumber according to terms of contract. Bailey Co. v. West Lumber Co., 1 Ga. App. 398, 58 S. E. 120.

61. Where defendants' intestate agreed to purchase stock at certain time and contract expressly gave plaintiffs option to sell or not. Hollis v. Libby, 101 Me. 302, 64 A. 621. Delay of one year and eight months held unreasonable under circumstances, and to preclude enforcement of contract. Id. Notices given to administrators before date fixed held not to constitute election, particularly as they were given for entirely different purpose. Id.

62. Where obligation is to do and is limited as to time of performance. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489. Is prerequisite only to recovery of future damages. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate v. Houssiere-Latreille Oil Co. [La.] 44 So. 481.

63. Where defendant himself put an end to plaintiff's agency for sale of land, had placed it out of his power to perform, and had withdrawn from prospective purchaser opportunity to show his good faith and ability to purchase, held not necessary for plaintiff to put him in default before suing for commissions. Lockett Land & Emigration Co. v. Brown, 118 La. 943, 43 So. 628.

Where vendee refused to accept deed for undivided five-sixths of coal on ground that it was entitled to conveyance of entire interest, held that vendor's administrator, on subsequently discovering that he owned six-sevenths interest, was not required to tender deed for that interest. Farber v. Blubaker Coal Co., 216 Pa. 209, 65 A. 551. Where agent of vendor positively refused to deliver deed, held that actual tender of money was not required. Douglas v. Hustead, 216 Pa. 292, 65 A. 670. Where defendant denied making offer to purchase stock, and absolutely refused to take it. Ellis Adm'r v. Durkee, 79 Vt. 341, 65 A. 94. Where defendant repudiated contract before tender could be made, held that none was necessary, but it was sufficient that he offered in bill for specific performance, to bring money into court. Sharp v. West, 150 F. 458.

66. Where defendant agreed to repurchase stock from plaintiff one year from date of issue, but was out of state at that time so that no formal tender was possible, held that tender of stock to him within reasonable time after his return was in time. Edmonds v. Everts, 146 Mich. 485, 13 Det. Leg. N. 867, 109 N. W. 844. Defendant having agreed to fix the matter up, duty of prompt action in future was shifted to him. Id.

§ 7. Damages for breach.<sup>72</sup>—The subject of damages is fully treated elsewhere.<sup>73</sup>

§ 8. Rescission and abandonment. A. By agreement or under special provisions of the contract.<sup>74</sup>—A contract may be rescinded at any time by mutual consent<sup>75</sup> without any new consideration.<sup>76</sup> An agreement to rescind may be shown by such circumstances, or such a course of conduct, as clearly indicates such an intention.<sup>77</sup> The contract itself often provides for its rescission under certain specified circumstances.<sup>78</sup>

84. Party voluntarily executing wholly executory contract after discovery of fraud

A failure of consideration for an entire contract,<sup>86</sup> or an unexcused<sup>87</sup> failure or refusal of one party to perform,<sup>88</sup> ordinarily* authorizes a rescission by the innocent party, provided he has himself been guilty of no default;<sup>89</sup> but the breach of a covenant which does not go to the whole consideration, but is subordinate and incident to the main purpose,<sup>90</sup> or an insignificant breach which can be easily compensated for in damages,<sup>91</sup> or a failure to completely perform, where one party has derived substantial benefits or the other has suffered material losses,<sup>92</sup> does not. Though performance is to a certain extent divisible, yet if the default in one item of a continuous contract is accompanied by an announcement of intention of the party thus in default not to perform it on the agreed terms, the other party may treat the contract as at an end,<sup>93</sup> cannot recover damages resulting from such execution. Richardson v. Lowe [C. C. A.] 149 F. 625. Waiver of right to rescind held not to preclude setting up fraud as defense. Id.

and the same is true if it appears that the failure to perform is deliberate and intentional, and not the result of mere inadvertence or inability to perform.<sup>94</sup> In the absence of a provision in the contract to the contrary, the violation of a condition subsequent does not ordinarily confer upon a party a right to a rescission of an executed contract where there has been no fraud or misrepresentations in the making of the contract, but the remedy is by an action to recover the consideration, or for damages.<sup>95</sup>

If contract did not fully express defendant's understanding of agreement, held that it was his duty to rescind same promptly on discovering his mistake, and, by accepting its benefits with full knowledge of obligations, he was estopped from subsequently setting up defense that he was mistaken as to its effect. Taylor Iron & Steel Co. v. Nichols [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 695. Where seller of judgment agreed to produce note on which part of it was based or to refund purchase price, but failed to do so, held that, if purchaser desired to rescind on that account, she was bound to assert right within reasonable time and tender reassignment of judgment, and that unreasonable delay and retention of judgment precluded recovery for breach of such collateral agreement without proof of damage. Newmyer v. Davidson, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 468. Receipt of checks and giving of receipts after payment was overdue held to preclude rescission for failure to pay on time. Kelley Brick Co. v. Clay Product Supply Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 408.

1. Marion Trust Co. v. Blish [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 415; Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489; Houts v. Scharbauer [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 679. May rescind only when both parties can be restored to condition in which they were before contract was made. Civ. Code 1895, § 3712. Purchaser who had accepted, paid for, and used part of corn delivered under contract held not entitled to rescind on ground that such part was inferior to that called for by contract. Henderson El. Co. v. North Georgia Mill. Co., 126 Ga. 279, 55 S. E. 50. Contract will not be rescinded by court where parties cannot thing of value received by him from the other party unless such restoration is waived.<sup>2</sup> The rule requiring restoration has been held not to apply to an action by the state to cancel an illegal contract.<sup>3</sup> It has also been held that payments made by way of liquidated damages for delay in performance need not be returned on rescission for nonperformance.<sup>4</sup> One cannot complain of delay which he himself induced.<sup>5</sup> An entire contract cannot be rescinded in part and affirmed in part.<sup>6</sup>

be put in statu quo. Bray v. Carroll [Ark.] 100 S. W. 744. Plaintiff held not entitled to rescind contract for board and tuition at school for fraud, and recover consideration where she had received board and tuition for two weeks, it being impossible to return what she had received. American Educational Co. v. Taggart, 124 Ill. App. 567. Where plaintiffs agreed that defendant might use money in his hands to pay for certain stock, and defendant, in reliance thereon, bound himself to pay purchase price of stock, held that it was then too late for plaintiffs to cancel or rescind since defendant could not be placed in statu quo. Wiger v. Carr [Wis.] 111 N. W. 657. Vendor rescinding contract for sale of mineral rights in land must restore installment of purchase price received by him. Brock v. Tennessee Coal Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1370, 101 S. W. 300; Id., 29 Ky. L. R. 1283, 97 S. W. 46. Heirs of vendors held not entitled to have sale decreed void on ground of lesion without tendering back portion of purchase price paid in cash. Rudolph v. Costa [La.] 44 So. 477. Restoration to statu quo does not mean that parties should be replaced in every sense as they were, but that injured party should restore whatever he has received that he can restore and surrender any advantage he may have received. Whiting v. Derr, 105 N. Y. S. 854. Where contract to build boat was rescinded by plaintiff for failure of defendant to complete it in time, defendant held not entitled to recover money he had expended for labor or materials. Id. Title to boat being constructed by defendant for plaintiff being primarily in defendant, and vested in plaintiff only by force of the contract, held that plaintiff could not both disaffirm said contract and assert such title. Id. Sale of personalty followed by actual delivery cannot be rescinded unless property is returned promptly to seller, or its return tendered and refused, or its return waived. Owens Co. v. Doughty [N. D.] 110 N. W. 78. Held that sale could not be rescinded by return or offer to return that part of property not resold by purchaser. Id. Where defendant relied on breach of express warranty solely as defense to cause of action on contract of sale, held that he was bound to show rescission of contract by showing that he had returned or offered to return goods purchased by him. Roots Co. v. New York Foundry Co., 51 Misc. 627, 101 N. Y. S. 104. One producing play under license and permission from plaintiffs held not entitled to question right to receive royalties stipulated in contract. Outcault v. Bonheur, 104 N. Y. S. 1099. Answer alleging fraud in procuring contract giving bankrupt license to produce play held not to state defense where it failed to allege return or offer to return manuscripts, etc., received by bankrupt, or that bankrupt notified plaintiff of intention to rescind. Id. Plaintiff deeded land to defendant pursuant to an agreement to do so if defendant would not contest or protest plaintiff's application for patent thereto. Defendant did not contest, but, subsequent to entry, filed protest in violation of his agreement. Held that, in absence of allegation of fraud in procuring contract, plaintiffs were not entitled to rescind, since defendant could not be placed in statu quo, time for contest having expired. Roy v. Harney Peak Tin Min., Mill. & Mfg. Co. [S. D.] 110 N. W. 106. Evidence held not to show tender back of deed as claimed. Guthrie v. Lyon [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 321, 98 S. W. 432. Held that there could be no rescission of sale of horse for fraud without return of horse or offer to return him. Dunham v. Salmon, 130 Wis. 164, 109 N. W. 959.

2. Evidence held to show waiver of technical tender back of amount paid for release which was claimed to have been obtained by fraud. Austin v. St. Louis Transit Co., 115 Mo. App. 146, 91 S. W. 450.

3. Since its officers have no authority to draw money for that purpose, all that is necessary being consent that other party may take judgment against state for amount paid by him. State v. Washington Dredging & Imp. Co., 43 Wash. 508, 86 P. 936.

4. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

5. Promoter held estopped to set up delay in suing to rescind stock subscription. Cox v. National Coal & Oil Inv. Co., 61 W. Va. 291, 56 S. E. 494.

6. Where contract for sale of lumber is entire, acceptance of material part by purchaser is acceptance of whole. Ward Furniture Mfg. Co. v. Isbell & Co. [Ark.] 99 S. W. 345. Where vendee accepted portion of quantity of goods contracted for, fact that they were of inferior quality held not to entitle him to refuse to receive balance if it came up to contract standard. Henderson El. Co. v. North Georgia Mill. Co., 126 Ga. 279, 55 S. E. 50. In pleading rescission must appear that there has been rescission in toto. Marion Trust Co. v. Blish [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 415. Cannot, on breach, ratify part of contract which is advantageous, and disaffirm unprofitable part. Owens Co. v. Doughty [N. D.] 110 N. W. 78. Defendants held not entitled to affirm part of contract of sale by counterclaiming upon it for damages for breach, and at same time disaffirm contract by return of goods and refusal to pay purchase price. Main v. Procknow [Wis.] 111 N. W. 508.

bility thereunder.<sup>8</sup> Either party may, however, recover back any money paid the other in furtherance of the contract.<sup>9</sup> After rescission the contract cannot be restored except by mutual consent.<sup>10</sup>

§ 9. Remedies for breach. A. The right and its accrual.<sup>11</sup>—No right of action for breach accrues until performance is due under the terms of the contract.<sup>12</sup> Damages may be recovered presently for breach of an agreement to deliver an obligation payable in the future.<sup>13</sup> As a general rule one cannot recover on, or compel performance of, an entire<sup>14</sup> contract unless he shows full performance on his own part of all the obligations imposed on him,<sup>15</sup> or a readiness and willingness to per-

8. Where plaintiff sued for amount agreed upon as due him on settlement on termination of contract by mutual consent, evidence tending to show that defendant had not furnished goods upon plaintiff's request as required by contract held inadmissible. Mathis v. Harrell, 1 Ga. App. 358, 58 S. E. 207. Agreement to treat contract of employment as terminated held waiver of breach by plaintiff in leaving without giving stipulated notice, and of right to recover damages therefor. Bailey v. Bowne Lumber Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 427.

9. Where contract has been rescinded by one party because of breach by other, action will lie for money had and received to recover back any money paid by either party to the other in furtherance of contract. Whiting v. Derr, 105 N. Y. S. 854.

10. Where contract was rescinded, held that nothing which supervened could operate to restore it without consent of other party. Peters Grocery Co. v. Collins Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 55 S. E. 90. Where plaintiffs notified defendant that they no longer desired performance and would sue for rescission, held too late for defendant to offer to perform. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

11. See 7 C. L. 823.

12. Action on building contract held not premature. Andrew Lohr Bottling Co. v. Ferguson, 223 Ill. 88, 79 N. E. 35. Objection that action was prematurely brought held waived by denial of liability on other grounds. Id. Defendant purchased certain land for benefit of third person upon promise of latter to furnish him sufficient lumber to build house thereon and give him five years in which to pay for it. Plaintiff cut timber on third person's land and, with knowledge of contract, and on such third person's order, furnished lumber to defendant. Held that plaintiff was not entitled to recover for such lumber from defendant until payment was due under terms of latter's contract, since if plaintiff acquired third person's claim against defendant he acquired no greater rights thereunder than such third person had. Taylor v. Harvey, 30 Ky. L. R. 1045, 100 S. W. 258. Where plaintiff's suit was not premature under original contract, held that defendant was entitled to set up in his answer and after default fact that contract had been subsequently modified and an extension given, which subsequent agreement plaintiff had ignored and violated by suing as soon as he did. Interstate Bk. & Trust Co. v. Welsh, 113 La. 676, 43 So. 274. Life insurance policy was assigned to bank for joint benefit of itself and plaintiff, bank agreeing to pay all premiums. Policy provided that it should be payable ninety days after insured's death. Bank failed to pay premiums and policy lapsed. Held that plaintiff's right of action against bank for breach of contract accrued immediately on insured's death, since her rights under policy would have then become vested. Scheele v. Lafayette Bank, 120 Mo. App. 611, 97 S. W. 621. Where contract provided that plaintiff should be paid for printing after defendant had been paid therefor by state, held that plaintiff could not recover items for which defendant had not been paid at time when action was commenced, though he was paid therefor pending the action. Quayle v. Brandow Printing Co., 116 App. Div. 9, 101 N. Y. S. 323. Agreement to pay half of any deficiency judgment entered against mortgagor held not mere covenant to indemnify him against loss, but that latter could maintain action thereon without having paid judgment. Dilcher v. Nellany, 52 Misc. 364, 102 N. Y. S. 264.

13. Failure or refusal of defendant to execute notes for indebtedness found due on accounting as required by contract held breach giving plaintiff right to sue thereon immediately regardless of fact that part of debt would not have been due had notes been executed. Parr v. McGown [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 950.

14. For distinction between entire and severable contracts see § 4C, ante.

15. For necessity of pleading performance see § 9F, post. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate v. Houssiere-Latreille Oil Co. [La.] 44 So. 481; Hall-Baker Grain Co. v. Le Mar [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1098; Mathieson Alkali Works v. Mathieson [C. C. A.] 150 F. 241. One failing or refusing to perform cannot recover for subsequent breach by other party. Wood, Curtis & Co. v. Scurich [Cal. App.] 90 P. 51. Must prove performance or that he was prevented from performing by other party. Kelley Brick Co. v. Clay Product Supply Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 408. Party performing in part held not entitled to recover on contract, particularly where it was guilty of fraud. American Copying Co. v. Lehmann [Cal. App.] 91 P. 414. Cannot recover for part performance unless full performance has been waived or prevented. Poynter v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 443. Where contract required plaintiff to procure two separate options, held that he could not recover on contract where he only obtained one of them by alleging and proving that he was prevented from procuring other by defendant, but his remedy was by action for damages for breach. Worthington v. McGarry [Ala.] 42 So. 988. Where architect's plans were so defective that they could not be used by a builder, held that he was not entitled to any compensation for his services. Dunne v.

form,<sup>16</sup> or an excuse for failure to perform,<sup>17</sup> or a waiver of full performance.<sup>18</sup> A repudiation by one party before the time fixed for performance may dispense with or excuse an offer to perform by the other party before bringing his action, but it does not ordinarily excuse ability to perform.<sup>19</sup> If the obligation is dependent upon the happening of a contingency, it must be shown to have happened.<sup>20</sup> The necessity for demand and tender is treated in a previous section.<sup>21</sup>

Ordinarily there can be but one recovery for the total breach of an entire contract.<sup>22</sup> Failure to perform any one of the things contracted for by the terms of an

Robinson, 53 Misc. 545, 103 N. Y. S. 878. Where architect agreed to pay plaintiff part of his commission if it would procure loan for his employer, and plaintiff did not procure it, held that plaintiff could not recover. McCrary v. Thompson, 123 Mo. App. 596, 100 S. W. 535. Plaintiffs held not entitled to recover for plans not substantially in accordance with contract. Hudson v. Rodgers, 121 Mo. App. 168, 98 S. W. 778. Failure to charge that party seeking enforcement of alleged executed contract must show performance on his part held error where evidence was conflicting. Bennett v. Burkhalter [Ga.] 57 S. E. 231. Evidence held to show that plaintiff's right to compensation depended on his success in procuring passage of certain congressional act and that he never succeeded in procuring passage, so that verdict in his favor was erroneous. Swift v. U. S. Regulation Firearms Co., 118 App. Div. 855, 103 N. Y. S. 736. Where contract requires certificate to be obtained from architect before payment becomes due, and action is brought upon theory of full performance, plaintiff must, in order to recover, either procure certificate, or show that it has been unreasonably refused, or that defendant has waived its production. Traitel v. Oussani, 51 Misc. 667, 101 N. Y. S. 105. Return of defective cans to plaintiff's factory held condition precedent to right of recovery for failure of warranty as to quality. Wasatch Orchard Co. v. Morgan Canning Co. [Utah] 89 P. 1009. Contract held to make delivery of lambs and crediting of price by defendant and crediting of price thereof on promissory note concurrent acts, so that before plaintiff could recover damages for breach by defendant it was incumbent on him to allege and prove performance, or readiness and willingness to perform, or some legal excuse for nonperformance. Longfellow v. Huffman [Or.] 90 P. 907. Where it appeared that note was not in plaintiff's possession or under his control, he having transferred it as collateral security, held that he could not recover damages for defendant's failure to deliver lambs. Id. Where plaintiff agreed to erect store within specified time on certain tract of land at some convenient place to be thereafter agreed on, held that agreement as to location was not condition precedent to right of action for breach, but, if failure to perform was due to breach by other party, that was matter of defense. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner [Iowa] 112 N. W. 820. Expenditure of funds given for advertising held not condition precedent to recovery of commissions earned, so that breach of that part of contract did not entitle defendant to withhold commissions for goods actually sold by plaintiff. Lowell Mfg. Co. v. Aultman Engine & Thresher Co. [Kan.] 90 P.

1132. In suit for specific performance, plaintiff must show performance on his part, or that he is able, ready, and willing to perform. Olympia Min. Co. v. Kerns [Idaho] 91 P. 92. Judgment which did not require performance of conditions precedent by plaintiff before decreeing specific performance held erroneous. Id. Transfer to defendant by corporation to be organized of certain of its stock fully paid and nonassessable until balance of stock had paid ten cents per share to corporation for development of certain mining claims held condition precedent to corporation's right to conveyance of claims to it. Id.

16. Statement by defendant that he was willing to carry out his contract held not to show that he was ready and offered to carry out contract where he contended for an erroneous construction thereof. Douglas v. Lowell [Mass.] 80 N. E. 510. Vendor of land who covenanted that it was free from incumbrances and to give warranty deed held not in position to demand payment or forfeit contract until he had discharged outstanding mortgage. Bartlett v. Smith, 146 Mich. 188, 109 N. W. 260. Plaintiff held not entitled to damages where he was completely disabled from performing by acts of third persons for which defendant was not responsible. Napier v. Spielmann, 103 N. Y. S. 982. If third company was bound by contract, it was merely in conjunction with plaintiff, so that its refusal to consign goods to defendants as required by plaintiff's contract was equivalent to refusal by plaintiff as matter of law. Id.

17. For excuses for failure to perform see § 6C, ante.

18. See § 6B, ante.

19. Where, on repudiation of contract by one party, other elects to keep it in force for purpose of recovering future profits, treating it as repudiated by other party, he must, as condition precedent to such recovery, allege and prove performance on his part, or legal excuse for nonperformance. Longfellow v. Huffman [Or.] 90 P. 907.

20. Condition of conditional promise to pay plaintiff amount withheld from purchase price of land having been performed, held that plaintiff was entitled to recover same. Choctaw, etc., Co. v. Bond, 6 Ind. T. 515, 98 S. W. 335.

21. See § 6E, ante.

22. Code 1899, c. 50, § 48, providing that where plaintiff has several demands on contract he must bring his action for all or be barred as to those not sued on, held not to require inclusion of demands not due at date of suit. Adams v. International Supply Co., 61 W. Va. 401, 56 S. E. 607. Held not to require joining demand on contract to receive, dress, and reload on cars certain lumber entire continuing contract providing for performance in installments is a partial breach, giving rise to a separate and independent cause of action.<sup>23</sup>

(§ 9) B. Particular remedies and election between them.<sup>24</sup>—On the breach of a contract the party not in fault may either treat the contract at an end and recover on a quantum meruit so far as he has performed,<sup>25</sup> or treat the contract at an end for all purposes of performance and sue for his resulting damages,<sup>26</sup> or treat it as still in force for the benefit of both parties until the expiration of the time for performance and then sue on the contract.<sup>27</sup> He may also, in a proper case, sue in equity for specific performance,<sup>28</sup> or set up such breach as a defense in an action against him on the contract.<sup>29</sup> A party may not, however, after repudiation by the other party, complete performance and recover the contract price.<sup>30</sup> On breach of where, at date of suit, lumber had not been reloaded. Id.

23. Action may be instituted for each breach. Jones & Co. v. Gammel Statesman Pub. Co. [Tex.] 99 S. W. 701, rev. 94 S. W. 191. Judgment for one of such breaches held not to preclude recovery for breaches occurring after institution of action in which said judgment was recovered and prior to its rendition, though they might have been included in former action by amendment. Id.

24. See 7 C. L. 825.

25. Where one party stops performance by other, latter may either recover damages for breach or on quantum meruit for services actually performed. Worthington v. McGarry [Ala.] 42 So. 988. One who without fault on his own part is prevented by other party from completing performance may treat contract as rescinded and recover on quantum meruit for work already performed under it. Valente v. Weinberg [Conn.] 67 A. 369. If he does so measure of damages is value of work performed, and not contract price less what it cost to complete work and any payments previously received by him. Id. May recover on quantum meruit when prevented from performing by other party. Limerick v. Lee, 17 Okl. 165, 87 P. 859. Contractor prevented from installing iron work owing to delay of owner in getting building ready. Barnum v. Williams, 115 App. Div. 694, 102 N. Y. S. 874. Where plaintiff complied with contract as far as he went, but was prevented from completing work by defendant, held that proper form of action was for work and labor done at instance and request of defendant, contract furnishing measure for valuation of work done, and plaintiff being entitled to reasonable value of uncompleted work, having regard to contract price. Harrison v. Franklin [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 585. Where vendor of realty is found to have only an undivided interest therein, vendee may either accept such interest as he can convey or rescind. Farber v. Blubaker Coal Co., 216 Pa. 209, 65 A. 551.

26. Where one party stops performance by other. Worthington v. McGarry [Ala.] 42 So. 988. Remedy of one prevented from performing is by action for damages for breach. Id. Where vendor of personalty is required by an entire contract to make successive deliveries of articles sold, and first deliveries fail to comply with terms of agreement, vendee may either terminate contract by promptly notifying vendor that he will refuse to further perform, or permit performance to proceed and rely on his damages for vendor's breach. McDonald v. Kansas City Bolt & Nut Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 360.

27. See 7 C. L. 826, n. 38.

28. See Specific Performance, 3 C. L. 1946. Where defendant failed to execute notes for amount of indebtedness found to be due on accounting, held that plaintiff could either sue for specific performance of contract to do so or for amount of indebtedness. Parr v. McGown [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 950.

29. Defendant held not required to prove notice of rescission where his defense was not predicated on rescission, but on plaintiff's refusal to perform. Wood, Curtis & Co. v. Scurich [Cal. App.] 90 P. 51. Where plaintiff failed to procure orders for picture frames as required by contract, its only attempt to do so being fraudulent alteration of orders for portraits procured by it, held that rescission by defendant was not necessary to defeat recovery on contract. American Copying Co. v. Lehmann [Cal. App.] 91 P. 414. Where contracting party failed to induce concern of which he was member to do what he agreed it should do, held that other contracting party was not bound to sue for specific performance, but could set up such breach as defense in action on contract. Napier v. Spielmann, 103 N. Y. S. 982. Where contract has been violated by obligor, the obligee who no longer desires that it should be performed is not bound to put obligor in default or to sue for rescission, but may refuse to allow contractor to perform, and, in case of suit by latter, plead breach by way of exception. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate v. Houssiere-Latereille Oil Co. [La.] 44 So. 481.

30. See, also, Damages, 7 C. L. 1029. Party to executory contract may stop performance by other party by distinct, unequivocal, and absolute renunciation thereof, and thereafter right of such other party is limited to recovery of damages for breach of contract involved. Tradesman Co. v. Superior Mfg. Co., 147 Mich. 702, 14 Det. Leg. N. 57, 111 N. W. 343. Where contract for sale of goods is repudiated by buyer, seller cannot thereafter deliver goods to common carrier consigned to buyer, and, having done so, treat contract as executed on his part by suing buyer for purchase price of goods sold and delivered. Rounsaville v. Leonard Mfg. Co., 127 Ga. 735, 56 S. E. 1030. Where defendant rescinded contract for advertising, held that plaintiff was not entitled to complete performance and sue for contract price, but his remedy was an action for damages for breach. Official Catalogue Co. v. American a contract to reimburse one for expenditures out of the income of specified property, the other party may either sue at law for damages or in equity for an accounting.<sup>31</sup> Whether a provision in the contract as to the rights of the parties in case of a breach is exclusive is a question of intention.<sup>32</sup>

One who fails to fully perform an entire contract cannot ordinarily recover on a quantum meruit<sup>33</sup> unless performance was prevented by the other party,<sup>34</sup> though he is sometimes permitted to do so if the other party has benefited by the partial performance.<sup>35</sup>

Since an express contract excludes an implied one on the same subject,<sup>36</sup> one cannot ordinarily recover the reasonable value of work or materials furnished under an express contract, but is limited to the contract price.<sup>37</sup> Where the contract is

Car & Foundry Co., 120 Mo. App. 575, 97 S. W. 231. Where, on repudiation of contract by defendant after part performance by plaintiff, plaintiff sued on contract for contract price, held that evidence of amount expended in part performance or of profit plaintiff would have made on full performance was inadmissible. Id. Employee wrongfully discharged held not at liberty to disregard dismissal by continuing his labor and claiming pay therefor after receiving notice of such discharge. White v. Lumiere North American Co., 79 Vt. 206, 64 A. 1121. Evidence tending to show that employee continued to act for employer held immaterial. Id.

31. Where contract provided that income of park should be used to reimburse plaintiff for expenditures, and defendant failed to turn over income received by it. Dockstader v. Young Men's Christian Ass'n [Iowa] 109 N. W. 906.

32. Penalty held not intended by parties as only price of breach of contract, so as to prevent injunction against breach. Heinz v. Roberts [Iowa] 110 N. W. 1034. Purchaser of jewelry held entitled to rescind for fraud though he had not exhausted provisions of contract authorizing exchange if goods were not satisfactory, etc. Lyon v. Lindblad, 145 Mich. 588, 108 N. W. 969. Plaintiff's remedy for failure of defendants to furnish necessary capital to carry on business held to seek reassignment of agency contract, and he was not entitled to maintain action for damages for breach of contract. Read v. Fox, 104 N. Y. S. 251. Provision for termination of contract on failure to pay minimum royalty held not exclusive, so that, by electing to terminate it, plaintiff did not waive payment according to contract during its continuance. Cummings v. Standard Harrow Co., 105 N. Y. S. 646. Corresponding extension of time for completion of battleship for delay caused by government in accordance with terms of contract held not to have deprived builder of right to maintain action for any damages it may have sustained by reason of said delay. William Cramp v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 164.

33. Contract to erect at a certain time or within a reasonable time thereafter a sarcophagus of Scotch granite on a foundation furnished by the contractor. Contractor a year after time agreed upon, without communicating with the owners, erects a sarcophagus the base of which is of native granite and places it upon a foundation which he finds others are building. Fish v. Correll [Cal. App.] 88 P. 489. Where contractor abandoned work of removing sunken vessel from channel before completion, government not having received any real benefit therefrom. Poynter v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 443. Where plans prepared by plaintiff were not in accordance with contract, and defendant neither accepted nor received any benefit from his work, and offered to return plans. Graham v. Bell-Irving [Wash.] 91 P. S. Where contract to paint and paper buildings was an entire one, and payment thereunder did not become due until work was completed, held that plaintiff was not entitled to recover any amount for materials and labor furnished where he did not substantially perform. Tinley v. Van Wert, 104 N. Y. S. 3. One who voluntarily fails to complete work which he has contracted to perform on realty of another cannot recover on quantum meruit for work performed, since part done cannot be returned. Douglas v. Lowell [Mass.] 80 N. E. 510. Use of bridge by public held not an acceptance of work thereon. Id.

35. Though one cannot recover on contract from which he has departed, he may recover on common counts for reasonable value of benefit which, upon the whole, opposite party has derived from what has been done. Contract to furnish municipality with water through system of waterworks. Skowhegan Water Co. v. Skowhegan Village Corp [Mass.] 66 A. 714. Recovery may be had for part performance of an entire contract, though there be no cause or excuse for its abandonment, if part performed is beneficial. Subcontract for railroad construction work. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Scott, 39 Ind. App. 420, 79 N. E. 226. Even where contractor has abandoned contract through no fault of owner he may recover on a quantum meruit for actual benefit received and retained by other party, less damages for nonfulfillment of his contract. Limerick v. Lee, 17 Okl. 165, 87 P. 859. Where plaintiff failed to furnish full amount of electric power called for by contract, but acted in good faith, and defendant used such power as was furnished, held that plaintiff was entitled to recover on quantum meruit for power furnished, less damages resulting to defendant from breach. Viles v. Barre & M. Trac. & Power Co., 79 Vt. 311, 65 A. 104. In action to recover on quantum meruit for power furnished under contract not fully performed, evidence tending to show that full performance was impossible held admissible for purpose of showing plaintiff's good faith. Id.

fully executed, however, and nothing remains to be done but to pay the contract price in money, plaintiff may declare generally on the common counts or specially on the contract, at his election.<sup>38</sup> One may recover on the common counts for extra work not called for by the contract.<sup>39</sup>

One having several inconsistent remedies must elect between them<sup>40</sup> within a reasonable time.<sup>41</sup> An election once made is irrevocable.<sup>42</sup>

Equity will enjoin the breach of a contract where there is no adequate remedy at law or by way of specific performance, and also the malicious interference of third persons with the contract rights of another.<sup>43</sup>

Tort liabilities growing out of the manner of performance, the liability of third persons inducing one to break his contract, are treated elsewhere.<sup>44</sup>

(§ 9) C. Defenses and counter rights.<sup>45</sup>—Breach of the contract by plaintiff is a good defense to an action to enforce it.<sup>46</sup> A collateral agreement modifying the contract sued on is available only by way of counterclaim, or as the basis of an independent action for damages.<sup>47</sup> Fraud in procuring the contract may be set up as a defense<sup>48</sup> even though the right to rescind on that ground has been waived.<sup>49</sup> Failure of consideration in whole or in part is a defense pro tanto.<sup>50</sup>

(§ 9) D. Limitations.<sup>51</sup>—The action must, of course, be brought within the contract to contract prices set forth in declaration held improper. Dick v. Biddle Bros. [Md.] 66 A. 21.

38. Bauer v. Hindley, 222 Ill. 319, 78 N. E. 626. Common indebitatus count is sufficient, it not being necessary to declare specially. Donegan v. Houston [Cal. App.] 90 P. 1073. Where complaint is in effect an indebitatus assumpsit count at common law, allegations of indebtedness and that services were rendered at defendant's request are unnecessary when the consideration as well as promise are implied from nature of transaction declared on. Id. As where complaint declares upon executed contract. Id. Such pleading held allowable under code and to carry with it general rule applicable to such counts. Id. Where full performance was shown, held that express promise to pay for work done under executed contract and implied promise as to extra work could be declared on in one count, since they together constituted indebtedness which law implied promise to pay. Id.

39. See, also, Building and Construction Contracts, 9 C. L. 424. Held that there was evidence tending to show defendant's liability for extra work. Dick v. Biddle Bros. [Md.] 66 A. 21.

40. Where purchaser of goods refused to accept them, and seller took them back as its own, and not to keep and store for purchaser, held that seller could not recover purchase price. Glasgow Mill. Co. v. Bugher, 122 Mo. App. 14, 97 S. W. 950. Action for specific performance and for damages for breach, being both based on contract and defendant's breach, held not inconsistent, so that suit for specific performance was not waiver of default. Balleisen v. Schiff, 105 N. Y. S. 692. Defendant held to have elected to rescind. Farber v. Blubaker Coal Co., 216 Pa. 209, 65 A. 551. Complaint or counterclaim seeking damages for breach is an affirmation of the contract, being inconsistent with claim that it has been rescinded or that party has right to rescind, and precludes rescission. Main v. Procknow [Wis.] 111 N. W. 508. Rescission of contract by government for failure of contractor to prosecute work held not to estop it from setting up fraud in its procurement when sued thereon. Atlantic Contracting Co. v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 244.

Must make election to rescind for breach promptly, and delay, vacillation, silence, or absence of immediate notice that he will not further perform, is election that performance shall proceed and that he will rely on his claim for damages. McDonald v. Kansas City Bolt & Nut Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 360.

42. Farber v. Blubaker Coal Co., 216 Pa. 209, 65 A. 551. Where plaintiff declined to accept goods because of their inferior quality and so informed defendant, but latter refused to take them back or refund money, held that there was no such election of remedies as to preclude plaintiff from thereafter taking goods and suing for damages. Brooks v. Romano [Ala.] 42 So. 819.

(§ 9) F. Parties, pleading, evidence, etc. Parties.<sup>57</sup>—The subject of parties is fully treated elsewhere.<sup>58</sup>

Pleading.<sup>59</sup>—The general rules of pleading apply.<sup>60</sup> The nature of the action is a question of construction to be determined from the complaint.<sup>61</sup> Allegations should be definite and certain,<sup>62</sup> and facts rather than conclusions must be pleaded.<sup>63</sup> Matters of evidence need not be alleged.<sup>64</sup> One suing on a contract to which he is not a party must allege facts bringing him within the class for whose benefit it was made.<sup>65</sup> So, too, where it appears that plaintiff has previously parted with his interest in the contract sued on, the complaint must show his present interest and right to maintain the action.<sup>66</sup> The complaint must contain a statement of the cause of action relied on, set forth with sufficient certainty to notify the defendant of the charge he is to meet.<sup>67</sup> Plaintiff must allege facts showing the making of the con-

Complaint held to state cause of action for breach of contract to present note to maker for payment and to return same in case of nonpayment, and not one for negligent breach of duty imposed by law. Kiblinger Co. v. Sauk Bk. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 709.

62. Complaint in action for services held to sufficiently appraise defendant of nature and amount of plaintiff's claim and to be sufficient to enable court to determine that, if allegations were proved, plaintiff was entitled to judgment prayed for. Corcoran v. Halloran [S. D.] 107 N. W. 210. Complaint in action for money loaned held sufficiently definite and certain. Citizens' Central Nat. Bk. v. Munn, 115 App. Div. 471, 101 N. Y. S. 435. Allegations as to damage held not sufficiently definite and specific. Hearn v. Gower, 1 Ga. App. 265, 57 S. E. 916.

63. Petition held to sufficiently allege making of new contract. San Antonio Light & Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 867.

Held conclusions: Allegation of duty and obligation of defendants under contract sued on, and count held demurrable where it did not contain allegations of fact showing such duty and obligation. Milligan v. Keyser [Fla.] 42 So. 367. Allegation that defendant broke contract held insufficient where no facts were stated on which to base it. Heart v. Gower, 1 Ga. App. 265, 57 S. E. 916. Allegation of indebtedness for money had and received, and complaint held demurrable where there was no allegation of promise to repay, or of facts from which promise could be inferred. Tate v. American Woolen Co., 114 App. Div. 106, 99 N. Y. S. 678. Allegation that instrument not under seal and not negotiable was executed and delivered "for a valuable consideration," without setting up facts showing consideration. Fulton v. Varney, 117 App. Div. 572, 102 N. Y. S. 608.

64. In action for breach of contract to care for orchard, evidence as to certain disease being allowed to develop therein held admissible though there was no allegation in pleadings in regard to it, it being proper detail of injury resulting from defendant's neglect. Grieffing Bros. Co. v. Winfield [Fla.] 43 So. 687.

65. Complaint alleging that defendants assumed and agreed to pay all liabilities of certain bank, and facts showing that bank was liable as indorser on note sued on, held sufficient. Moore v. First Nat. Bk. [Colo.] 88 P. 385.

66. Where it appeared that payee of chose in action suing thereon had previously parted with his title. Moore Bros. Glass Co. v. Drevet Mfg. Co., 154 F. 737.

67. Complaint in action to recover money advanced for defendant's benefit held sufficient. Craig v. Dowie [Cal. App.] 87 P. 250. Complaint in action for reasonable value of services rendered by plaintiff's assignee held sufficient. Union Collection Co. v. National Fertilizer Co., 2 Cal. App. 13, 82 P. 1129. Petition in action for breach of contract to maintain ditch, brought by successors in interest of party with whom it was made, held defective for failure to allege what lands were covered by said contract, and what part of them plaintiffs owned. Withers v. Wabash R. Co., 122 Mo. App. 282, 99 S. W. 34.

68. Must show existing contract. Fulton v. Varney, 117 App. Div. 572, 102 N. Y. S. 608. Declaration held to sufficiently allege making of contract. Bethlehem Iron Co. v. Hoadley, 152 F. 735. Allegation that parties "entered into" certain written contract, held sufficient to admit proof of oral acceptance of offer contained in written memorandum. Bailey v. Leishman [Utah] 89 P. 78. Held that acceptance of offer to sell might be shown under allegations of demand for performance. Id. Allegation that contract was "entered into" held sufficient to admit proof of delivery if denied. Id. Averment that plaintiff had purchased of defendant specified quantity of given article at stated price to be delivered at stated time and place held sufficient allegation that plaintiff had agreed to receive same at said time and place and to pay for same. Watson v. Hazlehurst, 127 Ga. 298, 56 S. E. 459. Declaration held not to show agreement by third person to pay future judgments in favor of creditors, and hence to be insufficient to authorize recovery by creditor whose claim was merged in judgment after agreement was made. Bethlehem Iron Co. v. Hoadley, 152 F. 735.

69. Allegation that defendant, "for a suitable and proper consideration had and exchanged between them," granted plaintiff permission to construct logging road, held to sufficiently allege valuable consideration. Storseth v. Folsom [Wash.] 88 P. 632. Petition held to sufficiently show consideration. San Antonio Light & Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 867.

70. See, also, § 9A, ante. Where undertakings on part of plaintiff are to be performed before those on part of defendant, declaration must allege performance by plaintiff or excuse for failure. Milligan v. Keyser [Fla.] 42 So. 367. Allegation that it was duty of defendants under said contract to perform their part, without stating facts imposing such duty, held not equivalent to allegation that plaintiffs had performed their part. Id. Complaint held demurrable for failure to show performance by plaintiffs and consequent duty of defendants to perform. Id. Is not sufficient to aver generally, in action on bond containing reciprocal obligations, that plaintiff had performed all of them, but must set out manner of performance or compliance with particularity. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Trustees of Baptist Church [Ky.] 102 S. W. 325. Complaint held insufficient for failure to allege performance of conditions precedent. Fulton v. Varney, 117 App. Div. 572, 102 N. Y. S. 608. Where contract provided that labor and services in preparation of certain booklets were to be paid for thirty days after delivery, complaint failing to allege delivery, held fatally defective. Powers Co. v. Gould Co., 104 N. Y. S. 345. In action to recover money paid under contract for building boat, which plaintiff had rescinded for failure of defendant to perform in time, allegation that defendant failed to complete and deliver boat held not to admit implication that defendant constructed boat until it was launched or fit for launching, and hence it was not incumbent on plaintiff to allege compliance with provision of contract that third payment must be made when boat was launched. Whitting v. Derr, 105 N. Y. S. 854. Complaint held demurrable for failure to allege compliance with provision of contract of affreightment requiring notice of loss or damage to stock. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Phillips, 17 Okl. 264, 87 P. 470. Allegation that defendant accepted work held sufficient allegation that it was done to satisfaction of defendant's superintendent as required by contract. Lang v. Crescent Coal Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 261. Averments as to what was required of plaintiff and what it did held sufficient averments that it discharged its whole duty under contract. Wheeling Mold & Foundry Co. v. Wheeling Steel & Iron Co. [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 826. Where complaint was in effect an indebitatus assumpsit count at common law and declared on executed contract, held that issue as to whether or not there was waiver of engineer's certificate required by contract was properly tried under implied allegation that contract had been fully performed by plaintiff and that nothing remained to be done but to pay money agreed upon. Donegan v. Houston [Cal. App.] 90 P. 1073. In action for breach of contract whereby plaintiff corporation agreed to increase its capital stock and defendant to buy a part thereof, where complaint alleged increase and tendered certificates, and allegations were specifically denied in answer, held that question of increase of stock and its legality was in issue. Pacific Mill Co. v. Inman, Poulsen & Co. [Or.] 90 P. 1099.

71. That defendants put it out of plaintiff's power to perform concurrent act, held not available where not pleaded in complaint. Longfellow v. Huffman [Or.] 90 P. 907. Averment by way of excuse for nonperformance within time specified of contract to manufacture and deliver machinery that plans to be furnished by defendant were not furnished until long after time specified for delivery of machinery held to sufficiently allege breach of implied duty of defendant to furnish them within reasonable time. Wheeling Mold & Foundry Co. v. Wheeling Steel & Iron Co. [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 826.

72. Complaint alleging that plaintiff aided one of the defendants in procuring contract for erection of monument in consideration for which such defendant agreed that he was to be paid five per cent of selling price by purchaser out of first installment paid thereon, and that contract was assigned to other defendant, a corporation, which had received certain payments thereon, but containing no allegation of notice to corporation, or fraud or bad faith, held not to state cause of action, no facts being alleged bringing corporation within position of liability, and there being no allegations showing receipt of any money by other defendant, or breach of contract on his part. McKeough v. Hinsdale, 51 Misc. 239, 100 N. Y. S. 812. Complaint in action on conditional promise to pay out of profits of particular job held insufficient for failure to allege that any of refusal to perform imports a demand.<sup>74</sup> In pleading rescission it must appear that there has been rescission in toto, and a disaffirmance of the contract and a restoration of or offer to restore status quo.<sup>75</sup> In an action on a written contract subsequently modified by parol, the contract as modified must be declared on.<sup>76</sup> One suing on an ambiguous contract and setting it out in haec verba must put a definite construction on it by averment.<sup>77</sup> A recovery quantum meruit may be had under the common counts in indebitatus assumpsit.<sup>78</sup> Failure of consideration<sup>79</sup> and payment<sup>80</sup> must be pleaded. A plea relying on matters which can only be proved by inadmissible evidence is bad.<sup>81</sup> Failure to plead illegality as a defense will not preclude the court from denying relief on that ground if such fact appears at any time during the progress of the trial.<sup>82</sup> So, too, where the answer contains a general denial, plaintiff must prove a valid, binding contract, and, if he fails to do so, his complaint may be dismissed, though the invalidity of the contract is not affirmatively pleaded as a defense.<sup>83</sup> The rule that an excuse for nonperformance cannot be shown where performance is alleged has no application where the contract is fairly performed.<sup>84</sup> Under a plea of the general issue, any fact may be shown profits had been earned. Fulton v. Varney, 117 App. Div. 572, 102 N. Y. S. 608.

73. Allegation that defendant broke contract by stopping plaintiff from work held sufficient without alleging that his act in so doing was wrongful. Smith v. Davis [Ala.] 43 So. 729. In action for breach of contract providing that newspaper carrier for defendant might sell his route, subject to defendant's approval, allegations that plaintiff procured purchasers but that defendant persuaded them not to purchase, held not to state cause of action in absence of allegation that assignments were actually made to purchasers and that defendant refused to approve them. Redpath v. Evening Exp. Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 287. Where contract provided that defendant should not be liable to reimburse plaintiff for expenditures on park grounds, held that petition alleging contract and that no sufficient income had been received from park grounds to reimburse plaintiff was demurrable. Dockstader v. Young Men's Christian Ass'n [Iowa] 109 N. W. 906.

74. Allegation that defendants refused to deliver cotton. McCleskey v. Howell Cotton Co., 147 Ala. 573, 42 So. 67.

75. Allegation of rescission of subscription to corporate stock held insufficient, allegation that stock was at all times without value not being enough. Marion Trust Co. v. Blish [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 415.

76. Whole matter is thrown into parol. Koons v. St. Louis Car Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 49. Cannot prove verbal modification unless it is pleaded. Taussig v. Southern Mill & Land Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 602.

77. This rule means merely that pleading must be sufficiently certain to support a judgment. Linton v. Brownsville Land & Irr. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 433. Petition held sufficient where by facts averred and relief demanded pleader clearly indicated construction placed by him on contract. Id.

78. Technical quantum meruit count held not necessary in action to recover value of power furnished under contract not fully performed. Viles v. Barre & M. Trac. & Power Co., 79 Vt. 311, 65 A. 104.

79. Moods & Co. v. Rowland [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 911. Admission of testimony tending to show that note sued on was for sum greater than defendant owed plaintiff held error where was no sworn plea impeaching consideration. Walker v. Tomlinson [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 157, 98 S. W. 906. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 645, providing that, in suit upon writing for payment of money, defendant may prove want or failure of consideration in whole or in part, held that partial failure of consideration may be shown under plea of total failure. National Tube Works Co. v. Ring Refrigerating & Ice Mach. Co., 201 Mo. 30, 98 S. W. 620.

80. Receipts held inadmissible as evidence of payment and settlement as an affirmative defense where such defense was not pleaded in answer. Auerbach v. Curie, 104 N. Y. S. 233.

81. In action for damages for breach of written contract under seal, plea is bad and subject to demurrer when it sets up matter which seeks to vary terms and patent import of such contract, and which would have to be established by parol evidence or evidence dehors the written instrument. Griffing Bros. Co. v. Winfield [Fla.] 43 So. 687. Allegations that things were understood or rights recognized in direct conflict with provisions of written agreement, understandingly entered into, must be ignored. Kerting v. Hatcher, 216 Ill. 232, 74 N. E. 783.

Rule that certain defenses of illegality must be pleaded is inapplicable where plaintiff on his own showing discloses invalidity of contract. Id. Complaint alleging knowledge and consent of principals to agreement whereby agent was to share fees of attorney whom he procured principal to employ held to state good cause of action. Id.

plaintiff to prove the reasonable value of such work or materials.<sup>94</sup> But if plaintiff's breach of contract be such as to subject defendant to consequential damage, such damage may be the foundation for a legitimate claim for recoupment, in which case the burden of proving such damage rests upon defendant.<sup>95</sup> Defendant has the burden of proving his version of an oral contract sued on in so far as it differs from that alleged in the complaint.<sup>96</sup> The burden of proving that certain words in the contract were used in a special sense,<sup>97</sup> or that a contract valid on its face is invalid,<sup>98</sup> or that there has been a failure of consideration,<sup>99</sup> or that a contract has been merged in and superseded by a subsequent one,<sup>1</sup> or that the contract has been broken by the other party,<sup>2</sup> is on the party so claiming.

One seeking to recover compensation for work done to promote the welfare of a family to which he belongs has the burden of proving that the work was to be paid for,<sup>3</sup> but if no family relation exists the party who accepted the work must prove that it was done gratuitously, or make compensation.<sup>4</sup> One seeking to hold a person belonging to a class made incompetent by statute to contract except in certain specified cases must show affirmatively that his claim is within the statutory exceptions.<sup>5</sup>

Admissibility.<sup>6</sup>—Contracts forming a part of the same transaction as the one in suit are admissible.<sup>7</sup> In an action on quantum meruit for services rendered under a contract, the contract is admissible as evidence of their value.<sup>8</sup> One's financial condition may be relevant on the issue as to the making of the contract sued on,<sup>9</sup> or payment.<sup>10</sup>

94. Question of recoupment, properly so termed, is not involved in such case. Skowhegan Water Co. v. Skowhegan Village Corp. [Mass.] 66 A. 714. In action by waterworks company to recover hydrant rentals from city, held that plaintiff was not entitled to recover more than the value of the services rendered to the city over and above all damages sustained by latter by reason of plaintiff's failure to perform, and burden was on plaintiff to show actual value to city of water furnished. Id.

10. Where defendant testified to cash pay-

Cases dealing with the admissibility of particular evidence to show whether an offer was accepted within a reasonable time,<sup>11</sup> whether or not an oral contract was in fact made, and what were its terms,<sup>12</sup> the execution of a written contract,<sup>13</sup> as to whether or not time was of the essence of the contract,<sup>14</sup> consideration,<sup>15</sup> modiment to plaintiff under contract, evidence that she was unable to pay her house rent just prior to that time, and was on that account compelled to vacate, held admissible on issue as to her ability to raise so much money. Walker v. Dickey [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 934, 98 S. W. 658.

11. Letter held admissible, since it tended to explain delay in accepting continuing offer to purchase stock. Ellis, Adm'r v. Durkee, 79 Vt. 341, 65 A. 94.

12. Evidence held admissible: In action to recover for services rendered decedent where it appeared that plaintiff and decedent had stood in same relations to each other for sixteen years, evidence that at commencement of relation decedent had asked plaintiff to take care of him, on issue as to whether services during last six years, for which recovery was sought, were rendered at his request. Leonard v. Gillette, 79 Conn. 664, 66 A. 502. Declarations of plaintiff, on issue as to whether money was loan or gift. Jenning v. Rohde, 99 Minn. 335, 109 N. W. 597. Sworn statements of plaintiff as to his taxable property, on issue as to whether he had given money to defendant. Id. Though there was complete oral contract, letter subsequently written by defendant and retained by plaintiffs stating terms of contract, on issue as to what oral contract was. Hudson v. Rodgers, 121 Mo. App. 168, 98 S. W. 778. Statement of decedent, to show positive agreement to pay her for her services. McMorrow v. Dowell, 116 Mo. App. 289, 90 S. W. 728. In action on alleged contract by defendant to purchase invention as soon as patented, letter written by plaintiff after making of alleged contract in which he urged defendant to procure patent on another invention and promised to repay cost of so doing when convenient. Broadwell v. Conover, 186 N. Y. 429, 79 N. E. 402. Fact that plaintiff had no other property or source of income than pension held evidence that money loaned by her was pension money. Rose v. Armstrong, 105 N. Y. S. 541. Where petition did not allege complete written agreement as basis of action for breach, but an ambiguous memorandum agreement was attached thereto, evidence that parties did agree upon a contract which was fully understood between them, and that plaintiff was ready and willing to perform his part, but was not permitted to do so. Kneipper v. Richards, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 581. Where complaint alleged that defendant agreed to return money paid him on certain condition, and allegation was denied in answer, evidence that after original contract was executed defendant promised to repay money. Morse v. Odell [Or.] 89 P. 139. Unsigned draft of contract, on issue as to terms of contract there being evidence tending to show that plaintiff had recognized it as the contract between them. Morgan v. Tims [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 832. Letter embodying terms of proposed agreement, prepared by plaintiff for signature of defendant's representative, as part of conversations and negotiations between parties. Chil- cott v. Washington State Colonization Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 113. Certain evidence as to statements of bookkeepers held admissible in rebuttal on issue as to contract price for doing certain work. Anderson v. Arpin-Hardwood Lumber Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 788. Where plaintiff sued on oral contract for commissions and defendant set up different oral contract providing for much smaller commissions, evidence of reasonable value of services rendered, as bearing upon issue between them and probability that one or the other agreement was made. Standard Plunger El. Co. v. Brumley [C. C. A.] 149 F. 184.

Evidence held inadmissible: On issue as to existence of contract whereby plaintiff was to reshoe automobile tires for defendant, and as to breach of such contract, evidence as to whether tires needed reshoeing. Morris v. Flisk Rubber Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 483. On issue as to whether defendant agreed to pay half cost of constructing certain road, evidence as to quality of land in vicinity owned by defendant's wife and other relatives. Albin v. Gheens [Ky.] 101 S. W. 297. Evidence that on particular occasion decedent told plaintiff that if she would stay at home and help on some extra work she would pay her well for it held to have no tendency to prove promise to pay her for her services generally. McMorrow v. Dowell, 116 Mo. App. 289, 90 S. W. 728. In proceedings to establish claim against decedent's estate on alleged contract for services, evidence that claimant failed to assert her claim during certain negotiations between decedent and third person, negotiations not having progressed so far that claimant was called on to speak. Pond v. Pond's Estate, 79 Vt. 352, 65 A. 97.

13. Evidence as to changes in instrument after same was signed held admissible under issue raised by denial of execution. Dennie v. Clark, 3 Cal. App. 760, 87 P. 59. On issue of genuineness of signature to note which mentioned sale of harness stock as consideration, testimony of witness that he inventoried stock and made report to payee when latter and defendant were present, and that he heard nothing as to giving of note, held admissible as tending to corroborate defendant's testimony that he did not sign note. Ayrhart v. Wilhelmy [Iowa] 112 N. W. 782. On issue as to whether plaintiff had executed contract dated in 1895 where defendant testified that she had built house pursuant thereto in 1895, and had paid out money in so doing, one of the items claimed to have been so paid being bill of lumber purporting to have been bought in that year, testimony of lumber dealer that he was not in lumber business until 1896, that bill heads were not printed until after that date, and that he had dated bill 1897, but that date had been changed by someone else, held admissible. Walker v. Dickey [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 934, 98 S. W. 658. Testimony of printer as to date when bill heads were printed held also admissible. Id.

14. Evidence that defendant had received benefits from paving of public street over which he had no control held inadmissible to show that time was not of essence of contract whereby he agreed to pay certain sum therefor if work was completed within specified time. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Laughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 554, 98 S. W. 948.

15. Where plaintiff pleaded pendency of action for divorce and attachment proceedings incident thereto as among facts leading up to, and entering into consideration for, agreement sued on, and answer contained general denial, held that papers in divorce case were properly admitted at her instance. Kinkead v. Peet [Iowa] 111 N. W. 48.

16. On issue as to whether plaintiff consented to vary oral contract of shipment so as to make it accord with terms of receipt limiting liability of carrier, evidence that he did not read such receipt held admissible. Cogswell v. Weir, 101 N. Y. S. 188.

17. Evidence held admissible: Where deceased upon payment of consideration named in contract was to receive deed of land from plaintiff, deed to him. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner [Iowa] 112 N. W. 820. On issue as to whether contract sued on had been performed, held competent and relevant to show that work which plaintiffs should have done had to be done by others and that it cost defendant accordingly, and defendant was not precluded from showing such cost because counterclaim was not interposed. Ryan v. Brown, 104 N. Y. S. 871. Testimony that witness loaned plaintiff money to enable him to perform, on issue as to plaintiff's ability and readiness to perform. Ives v. Atlantic & N. C. R. Co., 142 N. C. 131, 55 S. E. 74. Fact that effect would be to render witness real plaintiff held no legal objection to it. Id. Evidence as to formation of certain company, it sufficiently appearing that it was the company organized pursuant to agreement that plaintiff was to have stock in company organized to take over concession to be procured by him. Crichfield v. Julia [C. C. A.] 147 F. 65. Testimony as to efficiency and up to date character of plant constructed by plaintiff, it being claimed that it was obsolete and insufficient. Mathieson Alkali Works v. Mathieson [C. C. A.] 150 F. 241.

Evidence held inadmissible: In action on contract whereby defendant agreed to pay half cost of constructing certain road, evidence that contractor who built road got certain quantity of earth therefor, value of which was more than defendant's share of cost, held inadmissible under plea by way of counterclaim where written agreement, signed by defendant and showing his consent to taking earth, was introduced. Albin v. Gheens [Ky.] 101 S. W. 297.

18. Special circumstances, if any, known to both parties and which might have entered into making of contract, or those attending its breach, may be shown. Hale Bros. v. Milliken [Cal. App.] 90 P. 365. In action on contract to plant orchard, etc., question asked defendant as to order given third person to replace certain dead trees held properly excluded where there was nothing to indicate that such person was in any way connected with plaintiff's assignor who made original contract. Leathers v. Geitz [Iowa] 112 N. W. 191. Evidence that orchard was worthless in fall held material as tending to show its condition in spring. Id. In action to recover money paid under contract whereby defendant was to furnish list of school lands which, because of mineral character, would entitle state to select other government land in lieu thereof, held that testimony of agent of state, whose duty it was to supervise such exchanges, that after lands in list furnished had been rejected by land office for failure to prove mineral character, no further proof was offered as required by decree of rejection, and no appeal was taken from such decision, was admissible. Morse v. Odell [Or.] 89 P. 139. Entries on back of receipt for tuition showing that defendant was granted leave of absence held admissible as negating allegations that defendant had broken contract by remaining away without leave, and as tending to contradict plaintiff's testimony, though defendant did not in terms plead that she was absent with plaintiff's consent. Draughon v. Sterling [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 689. In action for breach of contract that notes given for interest in patent should be paid out of profits of sale of machines manufactured thereunder, and sale of right to manufacture, and that notes should not be sold held that value of stock of corporation to which all parties assigned their interests in patent for stock was immaterial. Myrick v. Purcell, 99 Minn. 457, 109 N. W. 995. In action for breach of contract whereby tenants authorized plaintiff to erect bootblackening stand on sidewalk, held error to allow introduction of written permit of mayor for erection of stand where he had no authority to issue permits. Speliopoulos v. Schick, 129 Wis. 556, 109 N. W. 568.

19. Letters written by plaintiff held admissible for sole purpose of proving that he gave defendant notice and warning that he objected to manner in which it was complying with contract, and did not acquiesce therein. Griffing Bros. Co. v. Winfield [Fla.] 43 So. 687. Letters and conversation held admissible as tending to show that provision requiring erection of building was not waived. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner [Iowa] 112 N. W. 820. In action on contract whereby defendant agreed to pay certain sum for paving if work was completed in specified time, evidence that he had been benefited by pavement held inadmissible as tending to show waiver of time limit, pavement having been constructed in public street over which defendant had no control, and benefit being no greater than that of other property owners. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Laughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 554, 98 S. W. 948.

20. In action for services as miner where plaintiff in effect alleged that his services were of value of three dollars per day, which was denied, held that evidence that ordinary miner's wages were three dollars per day was admissible. Corcoran v. Halloran [S. D.] 107 N. W. 210. Difference between claims of plaintiff and defendant as to contract rate for doing certain work held not so great as to render exclusion of evidence as to reasonable value thereof erroneous. Anderson v. Arpin Hardwood Lumber Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 788.

Parol evidence.<sup>21</sup>—As between the parties, extrinsic evidence is ordinarily inadmissible to vary, add to, or contradict the terms of a written contract.<sup>22</sup>

Failure of proof.<sup>23</sup>—There is a failure of proof where a party fails to substantially prove any of the material allegations of his pleadings.<sup>24</sup>

(§ 9) G. Procedure at trial, verdict and judgment. Questions of law and fact.<sup>25</sup>—The validity of a contract<sup>26</sup> and the legal consequences of a breach<sup>27</sup> are for the court. So, too, the construction of a written contract is generally a question of law for the court,<sup>28</sup> but, where the meaning can be understood only from extrinsic facts, it is a question for the jury,<sup>29</sup> unless there is no conflict in the evidence.<sup>30</sup>

40. Whether defendant, in making settlement or by his conduct pending continuation of business, waived provision that plaintiff should not sell goods on credit. Mathis v. Harrell, 1 Ga. App. 358, 58 S. E. 207. Waiver of provision requiring erection of building on certain land. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner [Iowa] 112 N. W. 820. Whether plaintiff rescinded lease and his claim for damages for breach. Herpolsheimer v. Christopher [Neb.] 111 N. W. 359. Whether certain letters taken in connection with other facts and circumstances constituted acquiescence by employee in lease of business by employer and consequent breach of contract of employment. White v. Lumiere North American Co., 79 Vt. 206, 64 A. 1121.

41. Holcomb-Lobb Co. v. Kaufman, 29 Ky. L. R. 1006, 96 S. W. 813. Whether there had been settlement, and whether or not plaintiff had voluntarily relinquished his claim to money held by city in consideration of latter releasing him from further performance, there being sharp conflict in evidence. Conte v. New York, 116 App. Div. 356, 101 N. Y. S. 491.

42. Though plaintiff's testimony on that subject was not contradicted. Harrison v. Franklin [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 585.

43. Friedman v. Urmann, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 440.

44. See 5 C. L. 750.

45. Judgment reversed where jury found for greater sum than that claimed in bill of particulars. Dick v. Biddle Bros. [Md.] 66 A. 21.

46. This topic includes only the equitable doctrine of contribution and exoneration; than his share of a liability common to all may recover from the others their proportionate shares of the excess<sup>48</sup> provided the equities of the parties are equal.<sup>49</sup>

§ 2. The right and defenses as between joint tort feorsors and persons in particular relations.<sup>50</sup>—It is a long-established rule that there is no right of contribution between joint tort feorsors,<sup>51</sup> but this rule is not applicable to a judgment for costs in the suit against the wrongdoers,<sup>52</sup> and is subject to so many other exceptions that it is perhaps more accurate to say that there can be no contribution where the tortious conduct shows moral guilt or intentional breach of legal duty,<sup>53</sup> but that it will lie where the breach is merely passive and involuntary.<sup>54</sup> Defendants in a joint judgment for a private wrong are given contribution by statute in Missouri.<sup>55</sup>

One of several sureties who pay equal amounts of the debt has no right of contribution against the others where he fails to abide by his agreement to prosecute to final determination with the others their claims against the principal for indemnity.<sup>56</sup>

Joint defendants who have paid an execution against themselves and others and procured a transfer of it from the judgment creditor may enforce the execution against the other joint defendants,<sup>57</sup> and even if the transfer was made for less than the full amount of the debt such enforcement may not be defeated by co-obligors who have not paid or tendered their shares of the amount actually paid.<sup>58</sup> excluding contract and common law liability of several to contribute to a common object (Corporations, 7 C. L. 862; Partnership, 8 C. L. 1261, and like topics), rights growing out of joint tenancy (Tenants in Common and Joint Tenants, 8 C. L. 2114), rights of subrogation (Subrogation, 8 C. L. 2041), and rights under contracts of indemnity (Indemnity, 8 C. L. 173).

47. See 7 C. L. 844.

48. Plaintiff who alone had long performed contract of himself and defendants to support another could have contribution. Payne v. Payne, 129 Wis. 450, 109 N. W. 105. One of two mortgagors who was compelled to pay a balance of the debt, interest, and costs in order to save the land held entitled to collect one-half of amount so paid out of interest of co-mortgagor. Thompson v. Griggs, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 608. Assignee of one of three vendees who paid for land held entitled to contribution from the other two, with interest and without deduction for expenses by the two in trying to perfect title. Ocean City Ass'n v. Cresswell [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 454.

49. A judgment creditor of a husband, who redeems from foreclosure under a mortgage given by the husband and wife on lands belonging to both to secure a debt of the husband, has no right of contribution as against heirs of the wife, the equities of the parties not being equal. Schroeder v. Bozarth, 224 Ill. 310, 79 N. E. 583.

50. See 7 C. L. 845.

51. Fakes v. Price, 18 Okl. 413, 89 P. 1123. Where negligence of a traction company and of a railway company both proximately and concurrently caused a collision. Northern Texas Trac. Co. v. Caldwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 869. Smelter company negligently maintaining pipe across railroad by which a switchman was injured, and railway company negligently failing to give warning, held joint tort feorsors where negligence of both concurred, hence no contribution. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. v. Binkley [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 181.

9 Curr. Law.—46.

Right of action against quasi trustees as partners who have been guilty of fraudulent breach of duty toward copartners is ex delicto, and tort may be treated as several or joint, and defendants have no right of contribution as between themselves. Goldsmith v. Koopman [C. C. A.] 152 F. 173. Code Civ. Proc. § 709, providing that where more than a due proportion of a judgment against several is satisfied out of property of one he may have contribution, etc., did not change rule that there is no contribution between joint tort feorsors, merely giving a judgment debtor entitled to contribution the summary remedy of using the judgment itself to enforce it. Forsythe v. Los Angeles R. Co., 149 Cal. 569, 87 P. 24.

52. Fakes v. Price, 18 Okl. 413, 89 P. 1123.

53. Eaton & Prince Co. v. Mississippi Valley Trust Co., 123 Mo. App. 117, 100 S. W. 551, and authorities cited.

54. Where death was caused without intentional wrongdoing, contribution lay both at common law and under Rev. St. 1899, § 2870, allowing contribution as between defendants in a joint judgment for a private wrong. Eaton & Prince Co. v. Mississippi Valley Trust Co., 123 Mo. App. 117, 100 S. W. 551. The rule that contribution does not exist between joint tort feorsors does not apply to torts which are the result of mere negligence. Mayberry v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 100 Minn. 79, 110 N. W. 356.

55. The remedy lies if the tort feorsors were guilty of only involuntary and passive breaches of duty which concurrently and proximately caused the damage though the parties were negligent in different respects, it not being necessary that they be negligent as to an identical care. Eaton & Prince Co. v. Mississippi Valley Trust Co., 123 Mo. App. 117, 100 S. W. 551.

56. Refusal to join in successful appeal. Pollard v. Pittman, 37 Ind. App. 475, 77 N. E. 293.

57, 58. Miller v. Perkerson [Ga.] 57 S. E. 787.

The statutes of Kentucky provide for contribution among devisees for debts of the testator, and the liability to contribute extends to a devisee of a devisee.<sup>59</sup>

Recovery over against persons primarily liable.<sup>60</sup>—One who is compelled to respond in damages as a legal but not an actual wrongdoer is entitled to exoneration from him who actually caused the injury.<sup>61</sup>

§ 3. Proceedings to enforce.<sup>62</sup>—The action must be timely brought.<sup>63</sup> Parties not necessary need not be joined,<sup>64</sup> hence plaintiff may proceed against any one or more persons liable to him for their proportionate share without joining all the persons so liable.<sup>65</sup> The complaint must show a common liability,<sup>66</sup> and the prayer must be consistent with the cause of action alleged.<sup>67</sup> In a suit for contribution for the payment of a joint judgment in tort, it is sufficient to allege that the judgment was obtained for the joint wrong of the parties, and that plaintiff was compelled to pay it, without setting out the particulars showing that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause.<sup>68</sup> Relevant evidence is properly admitted.<sup>69</sup> The recovery will be computed on the basis of plaintiff's actual outlay, any advantage gained in his settlement with the common creditor inuring to the benefit of his co-obligors.<sup>70</sup>

CONVERSION AS TORT.

§ 1. What Constitutes (722).
 § 2. Property Subject to Conversion (724).
 § 3. Elements Necessary to Maintain the Action (724).

§ 4. Defenses (725).
 § 5. Practice and Procedure (726).

The scope of this topic is noted below.<sup>71</sup>

59. Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2084, 2088, 2073. But where a devisee of one of two devisees agreed to surrender to the executor sufficient funds to pay all the testator's debts, she was not required to contribute further to a payment made by another devisee. Ferguson v. Worrall [Ky.] 101 S. W. 966.

60. For rights arising in contract see Indemnity, 8 C. L. 173; Subrogation, 8 C. L. 2041, and kindred topics.

61. Mulcted city could recover over against one who maintained defective sidewalk. City of Seattle v. Puget Sound Imp. Co. [Wash.] 91 P. 255. A connecting carrier delivering goods to a wrong person without requiring production of the bill of lading is guilty of laches precluding a recovery over against the initial carrier of damages recovered by the consignee. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Grayson County Nat. Bk. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 602, 91 S. W. 1106. As between principal and agent, the latter who purchased land without inquiring into the title should stand loss resulting from judgment against both recovered by true owner, principal having taken no part. Ayer & Lord Tie Co. v. Witherspoon's Adm'r, 30 Ky. 1067, 100 S. W. 259.

62. See 7 C. L. 845.

63. Too late thirty-two years after accrual of right. Schroeder v. Bozarth, 224 Ill. 310, 79 N. E. 583. Action maintainable against heirs of surety after two years from settlement of estate where complaint showed nonresidence, belief that note had been paid, insolvency of maker, etc. Clevenger v. Matthews [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 23.

64. A purchaser of realty who assumes a mortgage given to secure performance of a joint contract for the support of another is not a necessary party to an action for contribution by one who has performed, no effort being made to enforce mortgage. Payne v. Payne, 129 Wis. 450, 109 N. W. 105.

65. Plaintiff's wife not a necessary party. Payne v. Payne, 129 Wis. 450, 109 N. W. 105.

66. Petition held not demurrable for not showing "concert of action" or that defendant was responsible with plaintiff for negligence causing death. Eaton & Prince Co. v. Mississippi Valley Trust Co., 123 Mo. App. 117, 100 S. W. 551.

67. Complaint not sufficient for accounting and contribution where prayer for relief was for a sum of money only. Jones v. McNally, 53 Misc. 59, 103 N. Y. S. 1011.

68. Prima facie case shown by proving this, casting burden on defendant to show why contribution should not be awarded. Eaton & Prince Co. v. Mississippi Valley Trust Co., 123 Mo. App. 117, 100 S. W. 551.

69. In suit for contribution between contractors for support of another, evidence of value of land conveyed to plaintiff and one of the defendants as consideration, health of person supported, and reasonable value of support, held relevant. Payne v. Payne, 129 Wis. 450, 109 N. W. 105.

70. One who, being surety with another for an insolvent decedent, and at the same time debtor to said decedent's estate, succeeds in having the whole amount of his debt to the estate applied to the reduction of the decedent's debt upon which he is one of the sureties, and then pays the balance thereof in money, cannot compel contribution of his co-surety for more than a moiety of the amount actually paid in money; whatever advantage he gains by the application of his own debt inures to the benefit of his co-surety. Gares v. Stever, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 462.

71. Many applications of the rules as to what constitutes conversion are inseparable of dominion, ownership, or control by one person over the property of another to the exclusion of the exercise of the same rights by the owner,<sup>73</sup> and this may be effected either by taking actual corporal possession<sup>74</sup> with or without legal process,<sup>75</sup> or by an unlawful detention of the property,<sup>76</sup> or refusal to surrender possession on demand,<sup>77</sup> or by a wrongful pledge,<sup>78</sup> transfer,<sup>79</sup> delivery,<sup>80</sup> or sale,<sup>81</sup> under claim of ownership.<sup>82</sup> A mere temporary use of a chattel in good faith and with the consent from the rights and liabilities of persons in particular relations, and topics dealing therewith (Agency, 9 C. L. 58. Bailments, 9 C. L. 323; Factors, 7 C. L. 1642; Pledges, 8 C. L. 1431; Warehousing and Deposits, 8 C. L. 2258, and like topics) should be consulted.

72. See 7 C. L. 846.

73. France v. Gibson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 536. Where a landowner refused to allow his cropper to harvest his crop, but gathered it herself, an instruction that conversion was "the turning or applying the property of another to one's own use" was a proper definition under the facts. Crow v. Ball [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 533. There must be some repudiation of the owner's rights, or some exercise of dominion inconsistent with such rights, or some act done which has the effect of destroying or changing the character of the property. Merz v. Crozen [Minn.] 112 N. W. 890. That insurance company obtained possession of policy and canceled it, and paid insurance money to one not entitled, did not constitute conversion. Himmelman v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 132 Iowa, 668, 110 N. W. 155. Where president of a corporation surrendered to it ten shares of stock, and corporation then issued a certificate for ten shares to plaintiff, that president caused a new certificate to be issued to himself, and corporation refused to enter transfer to plaintiff on its books, did not show conversion of plaintiff's stock by the president. O'Dwyer v. Verdon, 115 App. Div. 37, 100 N. Y. S. 538. Question of conversion of sheep and wool held for jury. Hitson v. Hurt [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 292. Complaint alleging title in plaintiff and demand and refusal to deliver held to show conversion so that a counterclaim could not be set up. McIntyre v. Smathers, 118 App. Div. 776, 103 N. Y. S. 873.

74. So as to exclude owner's rights. France v. Gibson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 536. The taking possession by a mortgagee of chattel property upon which another holds a prior lien affords ground for an action for conversion. Mackey v. George McAlpin Co., 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 467. Evidence sufficient to sustain verdict in suit against vendee for taking more cattle than he was entitled to. Drumm-Flato Commission Co. v. Edmisson, 17 Okl. 344, 87 P. 311.

75. Evidence held to show that defendant took charge of lumber wrongfully levied on and placed it in custody of its agent. Three States Lumber Co. v. Blanks [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 79. A mere levy and sale of a mortgagor's interest in property, under legal process there being no delivery or change of possession, is not sufficient to render the officer guilty of conversion. Ayres v. Tinsman [N. J. Law] 65 A. 887. One who wrongfully claiming title from a vendor's agent replevies property from vendee at conditional sale and sells it is guilty of conversion. Westheimer v. State Loan Co. [Mass.] 81 N. E. 289. Second mortgagee held guilty of conversion in taking possession by replevin of property of which first mortgagee had previously taken possession under his mortgage. Dethoff v. Gattie, 103 N. Y. S. 589.

76. Where the minds of the parties do not meet so as to effect an attempted sale, but vendee keeps the article and converts it to his own use, he is liable for its value. Holmes Mach. Co. v. Chalkley, 143 N. C. 181, 55 S. E. 524. Refusal of buyer to pay for or return property sold for cash held to authorize action for conversion, seller not being required to sue for breach of contract. Lamb v. Utley, 146 Mich. 654, 110 N. W. 50.

77. Refusal to surrender stock on tender of amount for which it was held as collateral. Whipple v. Tucker, 123 Ill. App. 233. Where a sale was mutually rescinded, held not conversion for vendee to refuse to give up possession to vendor until repayment of payments made. Flaccus Glass Co. v. Alvey Ferguson Co. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 870.

78. Where a trustee held bonds and a mortgage which were not valid as against the corporation issuing them, the fact that an officer of the corporation pledged the bonds to the trustee to secure an individual debt did not constitute conversion (Medina Gas & Elec. Light Co. v. Buffalo Loan, Trust & Safe Deposit Co., 104 N. Y. S. 625), but a subsequent pledge by the trustee to one who became a bona fide holder was conversion (Id.).

79. Unauthorized indorsement by agent of checks payable to principal. Conversion lay against indorsees. Blum Jr's Sons v. Whipple [Mass.] 80 N. E. 501. Where a pledgee made a voidable purchase of the property at foreclosure, and later exchanged it for other property of same value without pledgor's knowledge, there was no conversion of any of the property. Hebblethwaite v. Flint, 115 App. Div. 597, 101 N. Y. S. 43. Evidence held to show termination of a lease of fixtures and that lessee did not commit conversion in removing them and having them stored subject to disposal of lessor. Adams v. Weir [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 726.

80. Wrong delivery by carrier. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Goodwin, 1 Ga. App. 351, 57 S. E. 1070. Evidence held to show a carrier's conversion by delivery to wrong person, and itself appropriating part of the goods. Moran Bolt & Nut Mfg. Co. v. Midland Valley R. Co., 120 Mo. App. 626, 97 S. W. 628.

81. Corporation held liable for purchasing a franchise with notice of plaintiff's interest therein. Russell v. Deutschman [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1164.

82. Agent who mingles principal's stock with his own and sells it as his own property without reporting to principal held guilty of conversion. Allsopp v. Joshua Hendy Mach. Works [Cal. App.] 90 P. 33. Pledgee's renunciation of rights of pledgor and sale under claim of ownership. Lowe v. Ozmun, 3 Cal. App. 337, 86 P. 729.

of an apparent owner in possession is not conversion,<sup>83</sup> and there can be no conversion for doing what one is authorized by contract to do.<sup>84</sup> The refusal to abide by the conditions of special property is not a conversion where a reasonable qualification is annexed thereto,<sup>85</sup> the question of the existence and reasonableness of the qualification being ordinarily for the jury.<sup>86</sup> For additional illustrations of what does or does not constitute conversion, reference should be had to the different articles dealing with particular legal relationships wherein property is held by persons having only a qualified or special interest in it,<sup>87</sup> and those treating of seizures under legal process,<sup>88</sup> the doctrine of bona fide purchasers and lienors,<sup>89</sup> and the like.

83. Conversion not shown as matter of law. Merz v. Crozen [Minn.] 112 N. W. 890.

84. Where defendant association was authorized to open athletic grounds completed for it by plaintiff. Dockstader v. Young Men's Christian Ass'n [Iowa] 109 N. W. 906.

85. As where carrier refuses to deliver goods to consignee because of alleged mistake as to rates. Sutton v. Great Northern R. Co., 99 Minn. 376, 109 N. W. 815.

90. See 7 C. L. 848.

91. Suit by keeper of gaming house for conversion of gambling paraphernalia. Robertson v. Porter, 1 Ga. App. 223, 57 S. E. 993.

92. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Karthaus [Ala.] 43 So. 791.

93. See 7 C. L. 848.

94. Evidence held to show title in plaintiff to certain whisky. Westheimer v. State Loan Co. [Mass.] 81 N. E. 289. Evidence insufficient to sustain finding that plaintiff was owner of grain alleged to have been converted. Bibb v. Roth, 101 Minn. 111, 111 N. W. 919. One who paid for a nontransferable mileage book held its owner, enabling him to maintain conversion though book was issued in another's name. Bartlett v. Cook, 115 App. Div. 836, 100 N. Y. S. 1036. Evidence held not to show ownership and possession of a desk and safe so as to sustain conversion by a company against its former president. Houston Transfer Co. v. Lee [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 842. Where a lease provided that on its termination the lessor should receive live stock, tools, etc., equal in value to what was on farm when rented, neither party had absolute title as against the other at termination of lease without agreement or decree of court, hence lessor could not be held for conversion, no equitable relief being asked. Wilson v. Griswold [Conn.] 66 A. 783. After rescission of contract of sale, title was in original owner, rendering carrier liable for delivery to vendee. Morris v. St. Joseph & G. I. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 159. Where, in a sale of chattels, conditions precedent are not performed, and consequently title does not pass, trover will lie to recover the goods or their equivalent in money. Wilson v. Comer, 125 Ga. 500, 54 S. E. 355. Purchaser of timber held to have cut and removed it within contract time so as not to be guilty of conversion. Plummer v. Reeves [Ark.] 102 S. W. 376.

95. A creditor who with the assent of a landowner and his hireling takes possession of the share of a crop set apart to the hireling, in satisfaction of a debt, may maintain conversion against a third person who removes the property. Farrow v. Wooley [Ala.] 43 So. 144. Delivery to plaintiff sufficient if owner and hireling directed plaintiff to go and take the cotton and apply it to the account. Id. Instruction on theory that it was necessary for plaintiff to buy the cotton from the landowner held properly refused. Id.

96. Present right of possession at time of conversion independent of ownership is sufficient to support action. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co., 79 Conn. 342, 65 A. 143. The heirs of a decedent may maintain trover for sand taken from decedent's land during his lifetime, though there is an administrator, where he has never taken possession. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Karthaus [Ala.] 43 So. 791. Association, though owner, held not entitled to maintain conversion for books and documents in possession of lawful custodian. County Armagh Ladies Social & Benevolent Ass'n v. Lennon, 102 N. Y. S. 522. Chattel mortgagee not having right to possession could not maintain conversion against third persons before maturity of debt. Wilson v. Curry [Ala.] 42 So. 753.

97. In trover, plaintiff must show title in himself or the right of possession wrong-sion, may maintain conversion against one who buys the property in disregard of his rights;<sup>98</sup> but the statutory lien of a hireling under a crop contract is not sufficient to support trover in Alabama.<sup>99</sup>

Demand and refusal<sup>1</sup> are necessary where a party comes lawfully into possession of the property,<sup>2</sup> except in cases where a demand would be useless<sup>3</sup> or where the conversion has already taken place.<sup>4</sup> A demand is sufficiently shown to be refused where it appears that defendant has wrongfully placed himself in a position which renders compliance impracticable.<sup>5</sup> Where property is accidentally destroyed while rightfully in one's possession, failure to comply with a demand afterwards made is not conversion.<sup>6</sup>

Who may maintain and persons liable.<sup>7</sup>—Part owners of property may sue for the conversion of their interest.<sup>8</sup> An administrator may recover against an heir for the conversion of a fund though the heir may be entitled to a portion of the fund in the distribution.<sup>9</sup> Where property is converted by a bailee, a subsequent purchaser from the bailor may sue.<sup>10</sup> One whose property has been taken in replevin against his agent or bailee may maintain conversion after delivery to plaintiff in the replevin suit,<sup>11</sup> but a plaintiff in replevin cannot be held for conversion pending trial of the cause unless he has sold or otherwise appropriated the property,<sup>12</sup> nor will conversion lie by a party to the replevin suit after judgment finding plaintiff therein entitled to possession on account of a special ownership unless he has done some act in relation to the property not authorized by the judgment.<sup>13</sup>

fully withheld from him by defendant. Groover v. Iler, 1 Ga. App. 77, 57 S. E. 906. A mere promise by a tenant in possession that certain chattels should stand good for a debt due the landlord, nothing being said about price, held insufficient. Id. An employe, under contract to perform certain work in consideration of receiving camp buildings, who abandons the work without completing it, does not acquire title or right of possession essential to maintain conversion against the employer who retains possession. Henry v. Manistique Iron Co., 147 Mich. 509, 111 N. W. 79. Attorney defending one charged with bringing stolen property into state held not entitled to the property under an order from accused given as compensation, though owner and prosecutor had agreed to turn it over to him after trial. Herman v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 43 Wash. 624, 86 P. 1068.

98. Thresher's lien. Hahn v. Sleepy Eye Mill Co. [S. D.] 112 N. W. 843.

99. Hence assignee could not maintain the action. Farrow v. Wooley [Ala.] 43 So. 144.

1. See 7 C. L. § 49.

2. This rule applies also to a vendee of such party. Action not maintainable against vendee of conditional sale vendee where without demand plaintiff allowed property to remain in conditional vendee's possession after default and no demand was made upon subvendee. Tompkins v. Fonda Glove Lining Co., 188 N. Y. 261, 80 N. E. 933. Where defendant had lawful possession, plaintiff must show either an unauthorized use of the property or a demand and refusal. Southwestern Port Huron Co. v. Cobble, 124 Mo. App. 647, 102 S. W. 9. Evidence held to sustain verdict for defendant. Id. A mortgagee who has only a lien without title or possession cannot maintain conversion against one who buys from the mortgagor until after default and demand by him upon the purchaser. Catlett v. Stokes [S. D.] 110 N. W. 84. other lien,<sup>17</sup> a bona fide purchaser,<sup>18</sup> that plaintiff had authorized the sale,<sup>19</sup> or title in defendant,<sup>20</sup> may be set up in defense; but, where both parties claim title through a common source, defendant may not show a superior title in a third person,<sup>21</sup> nor may he deny that plaintiff had a sufficient title to maintain the action after an unsuccessful attempt to claim under him.<sup>22</sup> That one commits a trespass by having property upon the premises of another does not authorize the latter to destroy it or convert it to his own use.<sup>23</sup> One who by the fraud of another is induced to appropriate the property of a third person will be protected only so far as he acted to his detriment upon the faith of an apparent ownership conferred by the owner.<sup>24</sup> A return of the property to the owner is not a bar, but operates only in mitigation of damages.<sup>25</sup>

and to this end must show title or right of possession,<sup>35</sup> and give a description of the property<sup>36</sup> and its value.<sup>37</sup> If the action depends upon proof of fraud, the facts constituting the fraud must be stated.<sup>38</sup> Where the tort is waived, it is not necessary to the court's jurisdiction or to plaintiff's right to recover that an express promise to pay be alleged.<sup>39</sup>

• Answer or plea.<sup>40</sup>—In trover the plea of not guilty puts in issue every matter pleadable in bar except a release.<sup>41</sup> Special arrangements or contracts limiting defendant's liability,<sup>42</sup> or a subsequent ratification by plaintiff, must be pleaded as new matter.<sup>43</sup> An admission in the answer that defendant was bailee and plaintiffs joint bailors is an admission of the right to a joint recovery on proof of the alleged conversion.<sup>44</sup>

Evidence, issues, proof, variance.<sup>45</sup>—The burden is on plaintiff to establish his ownership<sup>46</sup> and to make out a prima facie case.<sup>47</sup> Where the conversion is based upon a breach of a contract between plaintiff and a third person, the burden is on plaintiff to prove the breach.<sup>48</sup> The general principles of evidence apply.<sup>49</sup> Under 35. Allegation that third person delivered the property to defendant does not tend to deny plaintiff's title, but merely aids in its description. Bank of Sparta v. Butts, 1 Ga. App. 771, 57 S. E. 1061. An allegation of rightful possession at the time of the taking is sufficient without stating the source of the right (Harvey v. Lidvall [Or.] 87 P. 895), hence additional defective allegations as to such source do not render the pleading objectionable as stating mere conclusions (Id.). Not fatal that complaint alleged that possession was as mortgagee without setting out the mortgage. Id. Plaintiff cannot be compelled to disclose the evidence by which he proposes to prove title. Bank of Sparta v. Butts, 1 Ga. App. 771, 57 S. E. 1061.

A trustee in bankruptcy should count both upon his own title or possession and that of the bankrupt in order to avoid any variance as to where title or possession was at the time of the alleged conversion (*Burns v. 47. Proof of a wrongful detention of property after demand and refusal makes a prima facie case though the evidence as to value may not be satisfactory. Error to dismiss complaint. Plunkett Plumbing & Heating Co. v. Bassford Realty Co., 52 Misc. 479, 102 N. Y. S. 483. Proof that plaintiff was in possession of the property at the time of the alleged conversion is sufficient as against one who shows no higher rights. Defect in plaintiff's mortgage not fatal. Harvey v. Lidvall [Or.] 87 P. 895.

48. Rice v. Knostman [Wash.] 88 P. 194. Findings held to sustain judgment for defendant, a purchaser from one who had contracted to cut timber for plaintiff and for himself, it not being shown that contractor sold timber cut for plaintiff. Id.

49. Declarations of defendant's agent explanatory of his possession held admissible to show that defendant was claiming exclusive custody of timber wrongfully levied on though statements were made some time after levy. Three States Lumber Co. v. Blanks [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 79. In suit for conversion of lumber, evidence that prior to alleged trespass defendant's agent "made overtures with reference to the purchase of timber on the lands mentioned," etc., held irrelevant. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Dunn [Ala.] 44 So. 533. In suit for conversion of a crop claimed by plaintiff for rent, evidence for defendant held admissible to show that tenant had turned crop over to defendant in payment of a debt (Baker v. Cotney [Ala.] 43 So. 786), and to show the extent of plaintiff's lien and whether it had been satisfied (Id.). Certain evidence held admissible to show that cotton removed from plaintiff's possession had been set apart by a landowner to his cropper and turned over to plaintiff in satisfaction of a debt. Farrow v. Wooley [Ala.] 43 So. 144. Where defend-a general denial of plaintiff's ownership, title in another may be shown.<sup>50</sup> The proof must correspond to the pleadings.<sup>51</sup> An instruction defining conversion is properly refused where another correct definition has already been given.<sup>52</sup>

Verdict and judgment.<sup>53</sup>—An erroneous assessment of damages for detention and use may be disregarded as surplusage if the verdict otherwise sufficiently finds for plaintiff on the issue of conversion.<sup>54</sup> The judgment should be for damages and costs only without any provision for return of possession,<sup>55</sup> and, upon conversion being found, it is error to allow a counterclaim for storage.<sup>56</sup> Conversion being proven in a suit against an attaching creditor, and constable holding the property as his agent, verdict and judgment are properly rendered against both.<sup>57</sup>

CONVERSION IN EQUITY.

§ 1. Definition and Nature of Doctrine (728).

§ 2. How Effected (728).

§ 3. Reconversion (729).

§ 4. Effect of Conversion (729).

The scope of this topic is noted below.<sup>59</sup>

§ 1. Definition and nature of doctrine.<sup>60</sup>—Where realty is directed to be turned into money or money into realty, equity, regarding that as done which ought to be done, will treat the property as having been already converted though there has been no change in fact.<sup>61</sup>

§ 2. How effected. By will.<sup>62</sup>—The intention of the testator is controlling, and this may be shown either by a positive direction to sell<sup>63</sup> or by a necessity for a sale in order to carry out the testator's plans.<sup>64</sup> The intention being otherwise clear, the use of inapt terms is not controlling.<sup>65</sup>

ant sought to justify the taking under a mortgage which did not cover the property in question, evidence as to what the mortgagor did with the money he received for the mortgage was immaterial. Baker v. Cotney [Ala.] 43 So. 786.

50. Southern Car Mfg. & Supply Co. v. Wagner [N. M.] 89 P. 259.

51. In suit against purchaser of samples from plaintiff's agent, proof held to sufficiently correspond with allegations as to plaintiff's original ownership and agent's sale to defendant. Lauchheimer v. Jacobs, 126 Ga. 261, 55 S. E. 55.

52. Where court had already correctly defined conversion, held not error to refuse instruction that conversion was an illegal assumption or claim of ownership of the property of another, and that one must have appropriated the property illegally to his own use. France v. Gibson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 536.

53. See 7 C. L. 854.

54. "We, the jury, find for plaintiff for the mare valued at $40, and assess $10 damages for detention and use," held sufficient. McGowan v. Lynch [Ala.] 44 So. 573.

55. Schwartz v. Marks, 52 Misc. 109, 101 N. Y. S. 792.

58. See 3 C. L. 874. See, also, Damages, 7 C. L. 1029.

59. This topic includes the general rules of equitable conversion and reconversion. It excludes the specific application of such rules in the interpretation of wills (Wills, 8 C. L. 2305), administration of decedent's estates (Estates of Decedents, 7 C. L. 1386), and the settlement of partnership affairs (see Partnership, 8 C. L. 1261).

60. See 7 C. L. 854.

61. Devise of land directed to be converted into money and distributed should be treated as devise of money. Darst v. Swearingen, 224 Ill. 229, 79 N. E. 635. Where will directed sale and division of proceeds one year after testator's death. Miller v. Payne, 28 App. D. C. 296.

62. See 7 C. L. 854.

63. Conversion takes place where duty to sell is made imperative. Stebbens v. Turner, 105 N. Y. S. 945. Positive direction in codicil. In re Caldwell, 188 N. Y. 115, 80 N. E. 663. Doctrine applicable where there was a positive direction to sell personality and realty, income from proceeds to be paid to widow until children become of age. Llewellyn v. Llewellyn, 122 Mo. App. 467, 99 S. W. 809. That children sold their interests before they all became of age did not prevent distribution as directed. Id.

No conversion where will bequeathed residue of real and personal property after payment of debts and certain pecuniary legacies, and gave executors discretionary power to sell. Coann v. Culver, 188 N. Y. 9, 80 N. E. 362. Will held to make sale discretionary only. Stebbens v. Turner, 105 N. Y. S. 945.

64. Power of sale need not be express, but will be implied where necessary to carry out the plan of testator. Boehmcke v. McKeon, 103 N. Y. S. 930. Provision that after wife's death executors should turn over part of

If the committee of an incompetent by order of court increases the personal estate by a sale of land in ignorance of a valid devise of the land to him, the land though already sold will pass by the will as realty so as to entitle the committee to recover from the personal estate.<sup>66</sup> Where a power to convert realty is accompanied by a right to reserve ground rents, a sale for cash and ground rents still leaves as realty that part of the estate represented by the ground rents.<sup>67</sup> The rule that no conversion takes place when the heirs are made devisees in exactly the same proportions which they would have taken by descent has no application where there is a difference in either the amount or quality of the interest taken.<sup>68</sup>

The conversion generally dates from the death of the testator,<sup>69</sup> but this is also a question of intention to be gathered from the provisions of the will.<sup>70</sup>

By conveyance or contract.<sup>71</sup>—Partnership realty will be considered personalty for all purposes if such was the intent of the partners evidenced either by express agreement or by the facts and circumstances.<sup>72</sup>

§ 3. Reconversion.<sup>73</sup>—Where beneficiaries sui juris all concur,<sup>74</sup> they may elect to take without a conversion.<sup>75</sup> The removal of timber and execution of deeds is evidence of an election to treat the property as realty,<sup>76</sup> but the fact that the heirs instead of the executor execute a conveyance directed to be made does not show a reconversion where the proceeds are applied as though the executor himself had conveyed.<sup>77</sup>

§ 4. Effect of conversion.<sup>78</sup>—Where a will directs the conversion of land into personalty, it will be treated as such in the hands of the executors to the extent of its value.<sup>79</sup>

68. Darst v. Swearingen, 223 Ill. 229, 79 N. E. 635.

69. Where will gave home farm to wife for life, then to be sold and proceeds divided among testator's children, held, at testator's death, children took vested interests in proceeds of farm as personalty so that distributees of child who died before widow were entitled to share in proceeds after latter's death. Miller's Ex'r v. Sageser, 30 Ky. L. R. 837, 99 S. W. 913.

70. Where land was to be sold after death or remarriage of wife to whom it was devised for life, but no one was named to make sale, there was no conversion prior to time of sale, hence heirs had attachable interest after testator's death. Williams v. Lobban [Mo.] 104 S. W. 58.

71. See 7 C. L. 856.

72. Evidence held to show intent to treat as personalty even as between personal representatives of deceased partner and heirs. Buckley v. Doig, 183 N. Y. 238, 80 N. E. 913; Id., 15 App. Div. 413, 100 N. Y. S. 869.

73. See 7 C. L. 856.

74. All must concur. Darst v. Swearingen, 224 Ill. 229, 79 N. E. 635.

75. Where before actual conversion plaintiff acquired interests of all beneficiaries by conveyances and judicial proceedings, he could enjoin exercise of power of sale. Williams v. Lobban [Mo.] 104 S. W. 58.

81. This topic includes the status, rights, and liabilities of convicts, and contracts for convict labor. It excludes procedure for con-situated to inquire into the sanity of a convict under sentence of death, as provided by the Nebraska statute, is not affected by the fact that the warden fails to give notice that the convict appears to be insane.<sup>82</sup> A committee of the estate of a life convict may be appointed under the New York law of 1889, notwithstanding the convict becomes insane after his incarceration and is transferred to the state hospital for insane convicts.<sup>83</sup> Appointment of a committee by a court of general jurisdiction may not be collaterally attacked because a jurisdictional fact is not affirmatively shown by the record.<sup>84</sup> A convict may be tried and convicted for a crime committed while in prison.<sup>85</sup> That a warrant against a convict for an offense committed by him while in prison describes him as an "inmate" instead of a "convict" is not fatal under the Michigan statute,<sup>86</sup> and the prison warden may waive a mere technical defect in the warrant without prejudice to the rights of the accused.<sup>87</sup>

Convict labor contracts.<sup>88</sup>—In Georgia it is the duty of the county authorities to pay the fees of the court officers out of funds received by them for services of misdemeanor convicts and turn over to the county treasurer only whatever balance may remain.<sup>89</sup> After convict funds have been turned over to the county treasurer he has no authority to apply them to the payment of judgments in favor of officers of court for insolvent costs.<sup>90</sup> A lessee of convicts from the state may make a sublease with the consent of the prison commission,<sup>91</sup> and, though such sublease imposes upon the sublessee certain duties to the lessee and to the state,<sup>92</sup> it does not alter the obligations of the lessee to the state or to the convicts.<sup>93</sup> While the sublessee may not assign his contract without the consent of the lessee, the latter will be estopped to deny consent where he participates in arrangements to transfer the convicts to the place of service for the second sublessee with knowledge of the assignment.<sup>94</sup> A privilege of extension in the sublease passes by the assignment.<sup>95</sup> The prison commission has no jurisdiction of mere private disputes between a lessee and his sublessee as to who is entitled to the services of convicts where the protection or control of the convicts is not involved,<sup>96</sup> hence it may not merely at the request of the lessee deprive the sublessee of the services of the convicts and restore them to the control of the lessee, the sublessee not having failed in his duties toward the state.<sup>97</sup>

1. Assignee of right of copyright of original painting may take copyright though he

the article copyrighted<sup>2</sup> may be owned and transferred independently of each other. An author of a book may sell the copyright and retain right of dramatizing it,<sup>3</sup> but a contract authorizing publication of a story in a magazine does not constitute a sale of the copyright.<sup>4</sup> The copyright act does not give owner of the copyright the right to restrict the manner in which the article is to be sold,<sup>5</sup> and while it gives to a single publisher the right to do what he pleases with his copyrighted book, it does not confer upon him the right to commit acts in violation of the "Anti-Trust" law,<sup>6</sup> nor does the copyright of a pamphlet give its owner the right to the exclusive use of a plan of operation suggested therein.<sup>7</sup> The transferree of exclusive right to publish and vend a book during the terms of copyright is the equitable owner of copyright, and not a mere licensee.<sup>8</sup> The common-law right in literary property is superseded by the copyright act.<sup>9</sup> Registration of copyright in name of any person other than the owner thereof is invalid.<sup>10</sup> Filing of the title of a magazine is sufficient to secure copyright of articles therein if they are written or owned by proprietor of the magazine.<sup>11</sup> Failure to publish notice of American copyright in a British copyright edition does not waive the American copyright thereon,<sup>12</sup> and the publication of notice of American copyright in a British copyright edition which in its title and the contents of several pages differs from the American copyright is a violation of the statute.<sup>13</sup> The notice of copyright need not be placed upon the original painting or its mount.<sup>14</sup> Citizens of foreign nations whose laws grant to American citizens the benefit of copyright on the same basis as its own are in this country granted equal copyright protection.<sup>15</sup> Upon expiration of copyright, exclusive right to publish book or call it by its generic name ceases to exist.<sup>16</sup> Courts are not in accord on the question as to whether the copyright act should be strictly<sup>17</sup> or liberally<sup>18</sup> construed.

CORONERS.<sup>41</sup>

The scope of this topic is noted below.<sup>42</sup>

The Indiana statute authorizes a coroner to hold an inquest only when he has reasonable grounds to believe that death was caused by violence or casualty.<sup>43</sup> That the violence or death occurred in another county does not affect the jurisdiction of a coroner.<sup>44</sup> The determination of a coroner that a case requires an inquest is not conclusive against the county in passing upon his claim for fees,<sup>45</sup> but where the circumstances are such as to require it is a matter left largely to the discretion of the coroner,<sup>46</sup> and he will not be denied compensation in the absence of a showing of bad faith.<sup>47</sup> An inquest is a "criminal proceeding" within the meaning of a statute providing for salaries in lieu of all other fees.<sup>48</sup> Jurors and witness have no discretion justifying disobedience of the summons of a coroner,<sup>49</sup> hence cannot be denied compensation solely because it may afterward appear that the inquest was unnecessary.<sup>50</sup> That a statute requires a coroner to certify the fact of the services of a physician does not authorize him to appeal from a disallowance of the claim for the services, especially where the inquest was unauthorized.<sup>51</sup> A deputy coroner's certificate of death is admissible in evidence, in a prosecution for homicide, to prove the death and its cause.<sup>52</sup>

As between foreign and domestic corporations of similar names, priority in the use thereof is to be determined by the time of compliance by the foreign corporation with the statutes permitting it to transact business in the state. Central Trust Co. v. Central Trust Co., 149 F. 789. Domestic corporation held prior in right to use of corporate name similar to that of foreign corporation which had transacted business illegally in the state prior to incorporation of the domestic company. Id. Domestic corporation having established prior right to use name, bill would not lie by foreign corporation to compel delivery to it of all mail addressed with such name. Id.

Pleading and proof of incorporation.<sup>89</sup>—A general allegation of incorporation is sufficient on demurrer,<sup>90</sup> and the use of a name importing a corporation may dispense with the necessity of any such allegation at all.<sup>91</sup> Where the contract sued on is inserted in the declaration, insufficiency of allegation of corporate existence of the defendant may be supplied by the recitals of the contract.<sup>92</sup> An allegation that defendant is a corporation of a certain state is equivalent to an allegation that it is a corporation existing under the laws of such state.<sup>93</sup> Nul tiel corporation must be pleaded in abatement.<sup>94</sup> and the plea give the plaintiff a better writ.<sup>95</sup> Such a plea is inconsistent with the general issue.<sup>96</sup>

When corporate existence is alleged, the burden is on the other party to disprove such existence,<sup>97</sup> and the rule is the same where the name imports a corporation, though incorporation be not pleaded.<sup>98</sup> The original charter, duly certified, is the highest evidence of incorporation,<sup>99</sup> but such fact may also be proved by copies<sup>1</sup> and public records.<sup>2</sup> Whether an application for a charter was merely tentative or not is a question of fact for the jury.<sup>3</sup> A general appearance by a corporation defendant is an admission of its corporate existence.<sup>4</sup> Of course, corporate existence need not be proved when it is not material.<sup>5</sup>

90. On demurrer to complaint alleging merely incorporation and the filing of certificate of incorporation, without stating contents, it will be presumed that corporation was legally incorporated and that certificate contained information required by statute, remedy for indefiniteness or uncertainty in such regard being by motion to make more definite and certain. Avon Springs Sanitarium Co. v. Weed, 104 N. Y. S. 58.

91. Burden of proof on defendant to disprove corporate existence of plaintiff in suit by payee of note whose name imputed incorporation. Van Winkle Gin & Mach. Works v. Mathews [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 396. Name "M. Fust's Sons & Co." did not impart corporate existence so as to preclude amendment describing the concern as a partnership and giving names of partners. Austin v. Fust's Sons & Co. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 318. Assignment on certorari to review finding against illegality of execution that judgment was void because plaintiff was named as "Augusta Drug Co.," without allegation as to whether it was a corporation or partnership, overruled. Glenn v. Augusta Drug Co., 127 Ga. 5, 55 S. E. 1032. Mere use of term "company" in pleading and acknowledgment of such name by defendant by appearance does not import corporate existence. Keystone Pub. Co. v. Hill Dryer Co., 105 N. Y. S. 894.

thorizing the creation of corporations under general laws, the state may expressly reserve the power to alter, amend, or repeal, and such reservation becomes a part of the contract between the state and the corporation and is binding not only upon the corporation but also upon the stockholders;<sup>7</sup> but such reserved power applies merely as between the corporation and the state and will not authorize a change of the fundamental character of the corporation, the impairment of grants or vested rights, or of the obligation of contract between the stockholders among themselves or between them and the corporation, except insofar as such effects result incidentally from the exercise of the power as between the state and the corporation.<sup>8</sup> Nor does the reservation of the right to alter or repeal corporation charters authorize the impairment of the contracts of corporations with third persons.<sup>9</sup> A proviso in an act authorizing an amendment that nothing shall be inserted contrary to the law under which the corporation was organized will not prevent the insertion of powers conferred by an amendment to the original law or by general laws relating to corporations in general,<sup>10</sup> nor will such proviso prevent any such general law from being read into the amended certificate of incorporation as an existing law;<sup>11</sup> but the intention not to repeal special charter provisions by subsequent general statutes will be presumed.<sup>12</sup> An amendment by the stockholders must, of course, be within the scope of their authority to amend.<sup>13</sup> The competency of witnesses to a petition for amendment is controlled by the same rules applicable in the trial of cases.<sup>14</sup> An extension of the life of a corporation lessor extends also the operation of a lease originally for a term extending beyond such lessor's corporate life.<sup>15</sup>

§ 4. Effect of irregularities in organization, and of failure to incorporate.<sup>16</sup>—Defects and irregularities may be cured by subsequent statutes,<sup>17</sup> or by complying with the provisions of statutes enacted for such purpose<sup>18</sup> or in some cases by compliance with the provisions which should have been complied with in the first instance.<sup>19</sup>

corporators as partners or agents, though not identical with it, is the statutory liability growing out of defects in organization.<sup>21</sup>

De facto corporation.<sup>22</sup>—A de facto corporation results from a bona fide attempt to incorporate under a law providing for such incorporation, followed by a bona fide attempt to organize and to transact business,<sup>23</sup> or such a corporation may result from an attempted consolidation.<sup>24</sup> Such a corporation is recognized as a legal entity for most purposes,<sup>25</sup> even in criminal law,<sup>26</sup> such being the necessary result of the doctrine that the legality of its existence can be attacked only by the state,<sup>27</sup> the doctrine of collateral attack, and that of estoppel.<sup>28</sup>

21. Under Code, §§ 1614, 1616, stockholders are personally liable for corporation's debts where notice of incorporation required by § 1613 is not filed. Houts v. Sioux City Brass Works [Iowa] 110 N. W. 166. Pleading held to charge liability under Code, §§ 1614, 1616, and not as copartners, notwithstanding allegations of partnership. Id. Stockholder who became such within the three months allowed for publication of notice of incorporation held liable under Code, § 1616, for debt contracted thereafter, though he was not one of original incorporators. *Clinton Novelty Iron Works v. Corporation acting as such pursuant to articles regularly filed, having a board of directors, and exercising corporate functions, held at least a de facto corporation. Masters v. Umpqua Valley Oil Co. [Or.] 90 P. 151. De facto corporation held to result from bona fide attempt to organize improvement district under Kirby's Dig. §§ 5665-5666 where only defect was in signatures to petition for the incorporation and such defect was due to ambiguity of statute. Whipple v. Tuxworth [Ark.] 99 S. W. 86.

Transaction of business consists of doing some of the things which the corporation purports to be authorized to do, such as conveyance of property. Leavengood v. McGee [Or.] 91 P. 453.

Note: To create a de facto corporation there must be a law under which said corporation may be created, together with user under the law. American Trust Co. v. Minnesota & Northwestern Railroad Co., 157 Ill. 641, 42 N. E. 153. Where there was an honest attempt of the corporators to organize a corporation under the laws of the state, and all the necessary steps had been taken except that the final certificate had not been recorded by the recorder of deeds, and thereafter the necessary officers had been elected, who had proceeded to the transaction of business as a corporate body, these facts would establish a corporation de facto. Bushnell v. Consolidated Ice Machine Co., 138 Ill. 67, 27 N. E. 596. A corporation is a de facto one where the law authorizes such corporation and where the company has made an effort to organize under that law and is transacting business in the corporate name. 1 Cook on Stock & Stockholders & Corporation Law (3d Ed.) § 234; 8 Am. & Eng. Ency. of Law (2d Ed.) p. 747. A de facto corporation, as long as it exists, is a reality. It has a substantial legal existence. Society v. Cleveland, 43 Ohio St. 481, 3 N. E. 357; 8 Am. & Eng. Ency. of Law (2d Ed.) p. 748, and cases there cited. It is the settled law that neither the eligibility of the directors of a de facto corporation nor the rightfulness of its existence can be inquired into collaterally. *Cincinnati, Lafayette & Chicago Railroad Co. v. E. 788; Mitchell v. Deeds, 49 Ill. 416, 95 Am. Dec. 621. The introduction of the charter of a corporation, with the proof of the exercise under it of the franchises and powers thereby granted, is sufficient to establish the existence of a corporation de facto. St. Louis, Alton & Terre Haute Railroad Co. v. Belleville City Railway Co., 153 Ill. 390, 41 N. E. 916. The directors and officers of the de facto corporation are not relieved from the liability imposed by section 18 of said chapter 32 on corporations. "There must be a corporation de jure in order to escape that liability." Butler Paper Co. v. Cleveland, 220 Ill. 128, 77 N. E. 99, 110 Am. St. Rep. 230; Loverin v. McLaughlin, 161 Ill. 417, 44 N. E. 99. It was held, in Gade v. Forest Glen Brick & Tile Co., 165 Ill. 367, 46 N. E. 286, that the capital stock of a corporation might be reduced before recording the final certificate in the recorder's office, and that creditors, after notice of the reduction of such capital stock, would be confined to the reduced capital, as they did not become creditors until after the certificate was recorded and the notice of the reduction published as required by law. As to the various phases and duties of de facto corporations see Curtis v. Tracy, 169 Ill. 233, 48 N. E. 399, 61 Am. St. Rep. 168; McCormick v. Market Nat. Bank, 162 Ill. 100, 44 N. Collateral attack.<sup>29</sup>—The corporate existence of a de facto corporation cannot be collaterally attacked,<sup>30</sup> whether the irregularities or defects charged relate to its original organization,<sup>31</sup> amendments or changes in its charter,<sup>32</sup> consolidation with other corporations,<sup>33</sup> or forfeiture of its charter.<sup>34</sup>

Estoppel to deny incorporation.<sup>35</sup>—Persons dealing with a corporation as such are generally estopped to deny its corporate existence,<sup>36</sup> and a purported corporation may be likewise estopped,<sup>37</sup> but one is not usually estopped to assert total lack of corporate existence and powers on the part of a purported corporation,<sup>38</sup> nor is an alleged corporation estopped as against one who knew that it was not a corporation.<sup>39</sup> The state is not estopped to deny the corporate existence or to assert the illegality of the organization of a corporation by summoning it in quo warranto proceedings in its corporate name.<sup>40</sup>

Under Shannon's Code, §§ 2031, 2064, providing that neither corporation nor person dealing with it can set up want of legal organization, incompetency of witness to signatures of corporators to application for amendment to charter cannot be set up in action for subscription price of stock issued pursuant to the amendment. by its promoters,<sup>47</sup> but may ratify such engagements and take the benefit thereof<sup>48</sup> and become bound thereby.<sup>49</sup> Such ratification may be accomplished in the same manner as any other contract may be made,<sup>50</sup> but the mere continuation of a contract made by a promoter will not render the corporation liable thereunder prior to its assumption thereof.<sup>51</sup> The promoter will not be liable under his engagements in behalf of the corporation subsequently to their assumption by the corporation,<sup>52</sup> but he may contract for individual liability for services rendered after incorporation.<sup>53</sup> Questions relating to subscriptions to stock prior to incorporation are treated in a subsequent section in connection with subscriptions after incorporation.<sup>54</sup>

torts arise from negligence<sup>40</sup> or are willful and intentional<sup>41</sup> or malicious,<sup>42</sup> or fraudulent,<sup>43</sup> such as assault and battery,<sup>44</sup> conspiracy,<sup>45</sup> slander,<sup>46</sup> and malicious prosecution.<sup>46a</sup> A corporation will be liable for the torts of its lessee where such torts involve a breach of a public duty owed by the lessor.<sup>47</sup> Stockholders are not liable for the torts of their corporation,<sup>48</sup> and liability is not affected by the amount of stock held in absence of statute to such effect,<sup>49</sup> but incorporators cannot escape liability for their tortious acts by fictitious incorporation.<sup>50</sup> Where a fraud is committed in the name of the corporation by its officers for their own benefit, they will be personally liable,<sup>51</sup> and an agent will be liable for some torts regardless of the capacity in which he acted.<sup>52</sup>

The criminal liability of corporations is the result of gradual evolution, but is now well settled.<sup>53</sup> A corporation may be guilty of a criminal conspiracy,<sup>54</sup> even though its agent was not specially authorized to do the act upon which its responsibility is based,<sup>55</sup> and its agents through whom it acts may also be a party to the crime,<sup>56</sup> and the corporation may be a party so as to constitute the offense, though not itself indictable.<sup>57</sup> Except as otherwise provided, the general rules as to jurisdiction and procedure apply.<sup>58</sup> A corporation may, with reasonable restrictions, be ratified by assent or failure to interfere on part of business manager and president. White v. Apsley Rubber Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 500.

57. Individual held guilty of conspiracy with corporation under Anti-trust law, Acts 1903, p. 268, c. 140, though corporation was not indictable under the statute. Standard Oil Co. v. State, 117 Tenn. 618, 100 S. W. 705.

58. Pen. Code, §§ 1390-1397, merely provides mode of procedure against corporacompelled to produce its books and papers on a criminal investigation against it<sup>59</sup> or others,<sup>60</sup> and may be punished for contempt in refusing to do so,<sup>61</sup> but when such books and papers are not within the control of the officers commanded to produce them their refusal to do so will not sustain a charge of contempt against either them or the corporation.<sup>63</sup> Stockholders cannot be held responsible for crimes committed prior to the acquisition of their stock.<sup>64</sup> Under the various statutes, officers are made criminally liable for false entries,<sup>65</sup> misappropriation of corporate funds,<sup>66</sup> and transaction of business for a corporation having no license.<sup>67</sup>

tions charged with crime, and does not affect jurisdiction of a justice in a proper case under Const. art. 6, § 11, and Code Civ. Proc. § 115, and if procedure under Pen. Code, §§ 1290-1297, is inapplicable in proceedings before a justice resort must be had to procedure in trials of persons and to Code Civ. Proc. 187, authorizing any suitable procedure where course of procedure is not pointed out. People v. Palermo Land & Water Co. [Cal. App.] 89 P. 723.

63. Such point is formal and technical, but available in contempt proceedings. United States v. American Tobacco Co., 146 F. 557.

64. Ownership of all the stock six days after commission of misdemeanor charged held insufficient to show ownership at time of such commission. State v. Bass, 101 Me. 481, 64 A. 884.

65. Sufficient to charge in language of statute crime, under Rev. Laws, c. 208, § 58, of false entries by corporation's officer, without charging access to books. Section 59 making books to which defendant had access admissible, relates only to evidence and not to indictment. Commonwealth v. Dewhirst, 190 Mass. 293, 76 N. E. 1052. Statements of president in defendant's presence, and not denied by him, that defendant had made false entries, held admissible. Id. That stockholders received dividends based on false and fraudulent entries by officer is no defense, since such dividends are themselves a fraud on creditors. Id. Check books on which false entries were made held books of entry of corporation within Rev. Laws, c. 208, § 58. Id.

66. Charge held to sufficiently charge an intent as element of crime, under Pub. St. 1901, c. 274, § 17, of misappropriation of corporate funds by officers, etc. State v. Davison [N. H.] 64 A. 761. Change in such prosecution held not objectionable as abuse of discretion in regard to charging on evidence. Id. Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction under Pub. St. 1901, c. 274, § 17, for misappropriation of corporate funds by officers by payment, with corporate funds, of balance due by them on property sold by them to corporation in exchange for corporate stock. State v. Davison [N. H.] 64 A. 761.

67. Indictment under Ky. St. 1903, § 2223a, subsec. 11, against officer or agent of investment company for transacting business for it when it had no license, must show the particular capacity in which defendant acted and the business transacted in order to comply with Crim. Code Proc. § 122, requiring indictment to state offense in such manner as to enable person of common understanding to know what was intended. Commonwealth v. Loving, 29 Ky. L. R. 175, 92 S. Proc. § 525, subd. 1, requiring verification of pleadings of a domestic corporation to be by an officer thereof, members of liquidating committee appointed by authority of creditors and stockholders may make such verifications. Wills v. James Rowland & Co., 117 App. Div. 122, 102 N. Y. S. 386.

72. Under Rev. St. 1906, § 5102, authorizing verification of a corporation's pleadings by "an officer thereof, its agent, or attorney," tion defendant may be amended under statutory authorization of amendments as to names of parties.<sup>74</sup> When the plaintiff in an action against a corporation calls a stockholder as a witness, he may cross-examine him as being in reality a defendant.<sup>75</sup> By virtue of statute, corporations may be compelled to produce books and papers.<sup>76</sup> In the court of claims the usual practice is to examine the officers of corporate claimants.<sup>77</sup> A corporation may appeal from an order affecting its officers and agents as such, though not a party to the proceedings in which such order was entered.<sup>78</sup> Under the New York statute, proceedings supplementary to execution are not authorized upon judgments against corporations except in proceedings by or against the state.<sup>79</sup>

§ 11. Legislative control over corporations.<sup>80</sup>—Corporations exercising public franchises or privileges are subject to public control,<sup>81</sup> and when a corporation engages in interstate commerce it is subject to all the regulative provisions concerning such commerce constitutionally prescribed by congress.<sup>82</sup> Statutory regulations do not constitute a denial of equal protection where they apply to persons and corporations alike.<sup>83</sup> Regulative authority cannot be delegated,<sup>84</sup> but the state may exercise its power through duly constituted agencies.<sup>85</sup>

§ 12. How corporations may be dissolved; forfeiture of charter; effect of dissolution; winding up under statutory provisions.<sup>86</sup>—While a corporation may be dissolved ipso facto by operation of law,<sup>87</sup> as a general rule such is not the effect of acts, omissions, and conditions constituting grounds for dissolution but not made the basis of and adjudicated in dissolution proceedings,<sup>88</sup> and a forfeiture of charter absence of a prior demand upon the corporation to redress such wrongs or a good excuse for failure to make such demand.<sup>1</sup> Where insolvency is the basis of the suit, it must be sufficiently alleged.<sup>2</sup> The general rules as to multifariousness apply.<sup>3</sup> An officer cannot urge as grounds of forfeiture, acts and transactions in which he himself participated.<sup>4</sup> Except as otherwise provided by statute, the effect of dissolution is to terminate the existence of the corporation as a legal entity<sup>5</sup> and renders it incapable of suing and being sued in its corporate name.<sup>6</sup> Provision is generally made, however, for the prosecution and defense of suits by and against corporations after dissolution.<sup>7</sup> Where there is no statute providing for the continuation of the corporation for the purpose of settling its affairs,<sup>8</sup> provision is generally made for such settlement by certain designated persons,<sup>9</sup> and in such cases the corporation itself cannot sue or be sued.<sup>10</sup> Debts are not discharged by dissolution,<sup>11</sup> and in the absence of statutory provision in the premises, equity treats the assets as a trust fund for creditors and stockholders.<sup>12</sup> Forfeiture of corporate existence after judgment against the corporation will not affect the right to enforce the judgment against the stockholder.<sup>13</sup> Interests by way of special franchises are sometimes held to be independent of the life of the original corporation,<sup>14</sup> and hence a franchise may remain effective notwithstanding that the corporate owner thereof is guilty of acts or omissions constituting grounds of forfeiture.<sup>15</sup>

Dissolution by consent of stockholders or directors.<sup>16</sup>—A private corporation cannot surrender its charter and effect a dissolution without the consent of the state either previously expressed by statute of charter or by subsequent acceptance of the surrender.<sup>17</sup>

the consolidated companies.<sup>74</sup> Whether an agreement for consolidation will be set aside at the instance of minority stockholders in the constituent companies depends upon all the circumstances of the case, such as the consideration paid for the constituent stock,<sup>75</sup> extent to which the consolidation agreement has been acted upon,<sup>76</sup> attitude of the other minority stockholders,<sup>77</sup> the laches of the complainants,<sup>78</sup> and the complainants' purpose in acquiring their stock.<sup>79</sup> A consolidation or merger is not invalidated because the constituent corporations have common directors,<sup>80</sup> or because it practically amounts to a sale of one of the corporations to the other which holds a majority of the stock of the former,<sup>81</sup> the sole question in such case being whether the consolidation or merger will unfairly or illegally dispose of the assets of the corporations as against the objecting stockholders.<sup>82</sup> When, pending a suit to enjoin consolidation, a consolidation is effected lawfully except as between the parties, the injunctive relief becomes obsolete and the cause cannot be retained for other relief without bringing in the parties who have acquired interests by reason of the consolidation.<sup>83</sup> Technically, there is a distinction between consolidation and merger, the former involving the dissolution of the consolidated corporations and the creation of a new one, while the latter involves the dissolution of only the corporations merged,<sup>84</sup> but the terms are not always used with technical accuracy,<sup>85</sup> and it is sometimes necessary to consider all the circumstances in order to determine whether there has been a consolidation or a merger.<sup>86</sup> In both cases, however, the resultant corporation succeeds to all the rights and liabilities of the corporations consolidated or merged,<sup>87</sup> including obligations to stockholders.<sup>88</sup> In this connection it is im-

(§ 14) B. Capital stock and shares of stock.<sup>7</sup>—The capital stock of a corporation can be reduced only as authorized by law,<sup>8</sup> and the limitations thus imposed cannot be evaded by the exercise of other powers, such as the power to purchase its own stock<sup>9</sup> or the power to declare dividends.<sup>10</sup> An increase of capital stock must also be authorized by law.<sup>11</sup> An irregular increase may be ratified by the corporation,<sup>12</sup> but not so as to a mere overissue.<sup>13</sup> Such a ratification, however, operates by way of an estoppel, and is not available to charge a subscriber upon his merely executory contract to take such stock.<sup>14</sup> Stockholders have a pre-emptive right to participate in an issue of new stock to be sold for money in proportion to their holdings and on the same terms offered to outsiders,<sup>15</sup> and they cannot be deprived of this right without their consent,<sup>16</sup> and for a violation of such right they are entitled to damages,<sup>17</sup> or in a proper case they may invoke the aid of equity,<sup>18</sup> even though such relief involves the control of the corporation.<sup>19</sup> Such right, however, may be waived,<sup>20</sup> and must, therefore, be asserted in due time.<sup>21</sup> Such right may be assigned.<sup>22</sup> When the ownership

Seems that corporation cannot by reason of power to hold stock in another corporation and to vote in same, increase the capital of the latter to a sum largely in excess of the authorized capital of former. Robinson v. Holbrook, 148 F. 107. Acts 1903, p. 335, § 46, providing, with certain exceptions, for increase of capital stock "formed under this act or heretofore incorporated," applies to corporations incorporated before the enactment of the act, notwithstanding section 54, providing that provisions of act shall not affect rights, powers, etc., of existing corporations, such section being general in its provisions, and hence subject to the special provisions of section 46. 17. Stokes v. Continental Trust Co., 186 N. Y. 285, 78 N. E. 1090. Stockholder not entitled to difference between par value and market value of new stock, but to difference between market value and price fixed by the stockholders. Id.

18. When pro rata share was refused to stockholder in order that certain faction might retain control, holdings being such that such pro rata would give such stockholder control, and there was none of the stock on the market, he was entitled either to specific performance or a decree declaring him the owner of the stock. Schmidt v. Pritchard [Iowa] 112 N. W. 801.

19. Where plaintiffs were in control and defendants were attempting to oust them by manipulation of new stock. Schmidt v. Pritchard [Iowa] 112 N. W. 801.

20. Acceptance of less than a stockholder is entitled to does not waive his right to the balance of his pro rata. Schmidt v. Pritchard [Iowa] 112 N. W. 801. Where stockholder protested against sale of new stock to outsiders and offered to pay for his proportion at par, his failure to offer to pay for such proportion at a premium thereafter fixed did not waive his right to such proportion at the price fixed or his right to damages for a sale to outsiders at such price. Stokes v. Continental Trust Co., 186 N. Y. 285, 78 N. E. 1090.

of stock and of the income therefrom are severed, the right to subscribe to an increase of capital stock follows the ownership of the original stock,<sup>23</sup> but where such new stock is purchased with dividends declared at the time of its issue it will be treated as dividends.<sup>24</sup> The amount of authorized capital stock of a consolidated corporation is the amount stated in the certificate of consolidation required by law to be filed.<sup>25</sup> A suit to determine the title to stock, cancel the certificate thereof held by the defendant, and for injunction against the payment of money on account of such certificates, is a suit in equity.<sup>26</sup>

A certificate of stock is merely evidence of ownership and not property,<sup>27</sup> but the stock itself is personal property.<sup>28</sup> The manner in which stock shall be issued is usually within the discretion of the directors under the by-laws.<sup>29</sup> Preferred or guaranteed stock is entitled to priority only as to dividends and not as to the principal of the stock.<sup>30</sup> Shares in an elective incorporated club have no market value.<sup>31</sup>

(§ 14) *C. Hence such a subscriber cannot exercise such election and recover the price from the corporation. Boley v. Sonora Development Co. [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 975.

50. Agreement between subscriber to all stock of corporation and certain persons acting for themselves and for future subscribers, whereby he released his subscription except for certain number of shares, such stock, however, to remain in his name until issued, held not invalid as a release of subscription, the effect being to create joint liability against such subscriber and future subscribers, as, under R. S. c. 32, § 8, in case of transfer of unpaid stock. Hladovec v. Paul, 124 Ill. App. 589, affd. 222 Ill. 254, 78 N. E. 619. Such agreement held not an option or void as such. Id. Such agreement did not deprive the original subscriber of interest in the stock released while it remained unissued or relieve him of his liability to creditors on account of his original subscription. Id.

Evidence held to show that some of alleged subscriptions were not bona fide. Id. A subscriber may rely upon representations of officers or agents soliciting his subscription as to the organization of the company, and need not go to public records. Marine v. Midland Inv. Co., 132 Iowa, 272, 109 N. W. 801. Where secretary falsely represented that Codes, §§ 1613, 1614, relative to publication of notice of corporation, had been complied with, stockholders being individually liable for debts where such notice is not published. Id. In suit to rescind, it makes no difference whether representations were made with knowledge of falsehood or not. Id. Right to rescind on account of misrepresentations as to legality of organization stock prior to the institution of suit to rescind is not necessary.<sup>52</sup> The personal liability of the officer soliciting the subscription depends upon his good or bad faith in making the representations.<sup>53</sup> Failure of the corporation to deliver a certificate or a receipt for money paid on a subscription does not create the relation of debtor and creditor between the corporation and the subscriber.<sup>54</sup> Stock cannot be forfeited for breach of a collateral agreement.<sup>55</sup>

The corporation is not bound by agreements between promoters inter se,<sup>56</sup> and an application to promoters for shares is not binding on the promoters until accepted by them,<sup>57</sup> but one making a present subscription, as distinguished from an agreement to subscribe in the future, will be liable thereon upon acceptance by the corporation after organization,<sup>58</sup> especially where the act under which the corporation is organized contemplates such liability.<sup>59</sup> An agreement between promoters may give rise to an equitable right to stock,<sup>60</sup> and for a sufficient consideration the promoters may agree to indemnify a subscriber against loss on account of his subscription.<sup>61</sup> It is not essential to the validity of a subscription prior to incorporation that the corporation be organized by the parties to the subscription agreement or their representatives,<sup>62</sup> but the corporation must substantially carry out the prospectus upon which the subscription was secured,<sup>63</sup> and for fraud or variance in this regard the subscription may be rescinded.<sup>64</sup> A promoter, furthermore, is personally liable for money inducing subscription not waived by attendance at stockholder's meeting at which no business was transacted. Id.

56. Agreement between subscriber for all stock of corporation, none of which had been issued, and persons acting for themselves and future subscribers, whereby such subscriber agreed to release all his subscriptions except for ten shares, and the rest of stock was then to be issued in blocks of ten shares to the other parties and future subscribers, was not invalid, the corporation not being a party to the agreement, and hence not being precluded from issuing all unissued stock in case of necessity. Hladovec v. Paul, 124 Ill. App. 589, affd. 222 Ill. 254, 78 N. E. 619.

Co. v. Elliott*, 115 App. Div. 884, 101 N. Y. S. 328. Subscription to corporation to be organized to build railroad held equivalent to subscription to corporation to build, operate, and maintain such road, the latter objects being provided for by the statute under which the corporation was to be organized. Id.

64. Fraudulent prospectus. Cox v. National Coal & Oil Inv. Co., 61 W. Va. 291, 56 S. E. 494. Subscription secured by fraudulent prospectus may be rescinded by equity though fully executed. Id.

Waiver: Right to rescind on account of departure from objects contemplated by subscription held not waived by participation in notice of meeting and in meeting whereat vote was taken on adoption of articles in which such departure had been made, though the articles had already been filed, it being found that subscriber did not know that paid upon subscriptions obtained by a fraudulent prospectus gotten out by him.<sup>65</sup> unless, of course, the subscriber elects to affirm the subscription after discovery of the fraud.<sup>66</sup> The plaintiff in a suit to recover such payments need not show that the defendant was benefited by the fraud.<sup>67</sup>

A promoter with whom an underwriter's agreement is made has no right to change the basis of the underwriting agreement,<sup>68</sup> and has no authority to use applications for stock filed with him by underwriters except upon the conditions stipulated by the underwriting agreement,<sup>69</sup> and the enterprise for which the corporation is organized must be brought out within the time stipulated by the prospectus upon which the underwriting agreement is based, or at least within a reasonable time thereafter,<sup>70</sup> but the underwriter may lose his right to repudiate the acts of the promoter by acquiescence therein,<sup>71</sup> and cannot escape liability on account of a variance from the prospectus as to matters left to the discretion of the promoter through whom the underwriter's application for stock is made and whose interests are presumably identical with those of the underwriter.<sup>72</sup> A tender of performance by the holder of an underwriter's certificate must conform to the terms of the certificate,<sup>73</sup> and failure to tender the stock covered thereby within the specified time is not excused by the worthlessness of the stock,<sup>74</sup> or by unsuccessful attempts to have the stock transferred to the defendant on the books of the corporation, where it does not appear how long before the day for delivery or how soon after the plaintiff acquired the certificate such attempt was made.<sup>75</sup> An underwriter is not liable to the corporation upon a contract made with a promoter for the underwriting of stock.<sup>76</sup>

the articles, by being filed, had already become binding on the corporation, and he having voted and protested against their adoption. Smith v. Burns Boiler & Mfg. Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 1123.

65. Cox v. National Coal & Oil Inv. Co., 61 W. Va. 291, 56 S. E. 494. Circulars and letters sent out by promoter are admissible in evidence, in action to recover for worthless stock sold, in so far as knowledge is thereby disclosed on part of promoter that representations made by himself and his agents were false, but such letters and representations, however fraudulent, are not admissible where they relate solely to some other enterprise than the one in which the plaintiff purchased an interest. Russell v. Weiler, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 536.

66. No affirmation where subscriber demanded return of money and was induced by promoter to wait until certain options could be sold. Cox v. National Coal & Oil Inv. Co., 61 W. Va. 291, 56 S. E. 494.

67. Cox v. National Coal & Oil Inv. Co., 61 W. Va. 291, 56 S. E. 494.

68. Where agreement bound underwriters to take certain percentage of stock not subscribed by public, they were entitled to benefit of reduction in amount of stock issued and offered to public, and could not be bound for an increased percentage of stock not taken by public. Electric Welding Co. v. Prince [Mass.] 81 N. E. 306.

69. Where agreement provided that applications were to be filed by the promoter only in event of underwriters' failure, upon being called upon to do so, to make application for stock agreed to be taken. Electric Welding Co. v. Prince [Mass.] 81 N. E. 306. Basis of right to insist on compliance with provision that applications filed with promoter shall be used only upon underwriters' failure, upon demand, to apply for stock, lies in distinction between an agreement to apply for shares and actually becoming a stockholder, in that in the former case the underwriter may refuse to become a stockholder, subject to his liability to the promoter for damages, whereas in the latter case he would have no such option. Id.

71. Acquiescence in subscription for greater amount of stock than authorized by underwriting agreement. Electric Welding Co. v. Prince [Mass.] 81 N. E. 306. Underwriters held charged with notice that promoter had subscribed in their names for more stock than was authorized by agreement, and with knowledge of fact that they had not been called upon, as required by agreement, to subscribe. Id. Waiver of delay in bringing out corporation. Id. Seems that acquiescence in relation of payments on stock by underwriters would be waiver. Id.

Where certificate called for delivery of stock certificates, tender of an assignment of shares with power of attorney to transfer, and an offer to surrender the shares to a trustee, thus giving the maker of the certificate an equitable title only, instead of the legal title called for by the certificate. *Litchfield Sav. Liability on subscriptions is not dependent upon the existence of debts,<sup>77</sup> and a receiver may sue for subscriptions when so authorized by the appointing court,<sup>78</sup> but he cannot be called to account by a delinquent stockholder for failure to enforce subscriptions,<sup>79</sup> nor is he chargeable with neglect in refraining from enforcing subscription liabilities while restrained from so doing by an order of court.<sup>80</sup> A tender of stock need not be followed up by tendering it in court in a suit on the subscription therefor.<sup>81</sup>

Calls and assessments.<sup>83</sup>—Power to assess full paid stock must be derived entirely from statute, charter provisions, or the consent of the stockholder,<sup>84</sup> and neither the corporation nor a receiver representing it can recover the price of stock issued as fully paid,<sup>85</sup> nor can such a claim be indirectly enforced.<sup>86</sup> Liability for a call or assessment in any case depends on privity of contract, and does not exist in absence of transfer where transfer is required by law in order to create such privity,<sup>87</sup> and in the absence of statutory or charter provision to the contrary such liability rests upon the legal or registered owner.<sup>88</sup> Liability is determined by the law of the state of the corporation's creation.<sup>89</sup> The power to assess may be exercised notwith-

77. Hence in voluntary liquidation proceedings the fact that all debts had been paid did not deprive receiver of right to recover subscription price of increased stock. Pope v. Merchants' Trust Co. [Tenn.] 103 S. W. 792.

84. When articles of incorporation gave directors power to assess stock to pay debts and expenses and that articles might be amended in any respect by majority of stockholders, a majority of stockholders had power to amend articles so as to make provision for such assessment whenever debts exceed ten per centum of outstanding capital stock, notwithstanding Rev. Laws 1898, § 338, providing that articles cannot be amended so as to change liability of full-paid stock for assessment without consent of all stockholders. Nelson v. Keith-O'Brien Co. [Utah] 91 P. 30. Charter provision of corporation of first class organized under Act Apr. 29, 1874, P. L. 73, § 6, that on six months' default in payment of assessment the treasurer "shall proceed to collect the same by process of law," does not impose personal liability. Allegheny Valley Camp Meeting Ass'n v. Kountz, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 110. Statute authorizing any majority of stockholders to amend articles so as to make full-paid stock which is expressly made nonassessable by the original articles assessable held not within reserved power to amend, alter, etc., the charter. Garey v. St. Joe Min. Co. [Utah] 91 P. 269. Assessment on full paid stock valid as against stockholder who, as director, assented to it and where it was made pursuant to stipulations of stock certificate at time they were purchased by the stockholder. Mirage Irr. Co. v. Sturgeon [Neb.] 108 N. W. 977. Where agreement was for assessment in consideration of company's note, stockholder was not bound by call for advance to be secured by company's note or certificate of indebtedness "payable at the option of the company." Carbon Spring Water Ice Co. v. Hawk, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 13.

85. Liability on account of fictitiously paid up stock can be enforced by creditors alone. Bostwick v. Young, 118 App. Div. 490, 103 N. Y. S. 607. Stock issued in exchange for property at an admittedly over valuation. Goodnow v. American Writing Paper Co. [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 607; In Vogeler v. Punch [Mo.] 103 S. 88. Civ. Code, § 322, making equitable owners of stock liable as stockholders, relates only to liability to creditors, and hence trustee in whose name stock was registered was liable to assessment by corporation. Union Sav. Bk. v. Willard [Cal. App.] 88 P. 1098.

89. Liability for calls on subscription to stock in English corporation is determined by laws of England. Electric Welding Co. v. Prince [Mass.] 81 N. E. 306. Under the laws of England a registered stockholder must promptly repudiate his relation as standing the existence of unissued treasury stock, where the disposal of such stock is within the discretion of the directors<sup>90</sup> and the conditions are such that nothing can be realized from the issue of such stock.<sup>91</sup> Statutes relating to the enforcement of statutory liability for assessments must be followed strictly,<sup>92</sup> and the statutory right of forfeiture and sale must be exercised within the time specified by the statute.<sup>93</sup> When an assessment is authorized, the presumption is that it was made in good faith,<sup>94</sup> and the burden of proving otherwise is upon the stockholder,<sup>95</sup> and, though a stockholder is not in default until a call has been made,<sup>96</sup> proof of the subscription and of a call duly made makes a prima facie case for the recovery of the amount of the call.<sup>97</sup> An assessment is not assailable collaterally on account of irregularities.<sup>98</sup>

such, or otherwise be liable to calls so long as he remains a registered shareholder. Id.

4. Court will not inquire as to when such dividends were earned. Corgan v. Lee Coal Co. [Pa.] 67 A. 655.

Note: As between life tenant and remainderman, the rule in New Jersey is that dividends earned prior to the severance of right to dividends from the ultimate ownership of the stock belong to the remainderman, while dividends earned thereafter belong to the life tenant. Brown v. Brown [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 739. In reaching this conclusion the court said: "The rule to be applied, as between life tenants and remaindermen, with respect to dividends has been settled in this state by the case of Lang v. Lang's Ex'rs, 57 N. J. Eq. 325, 41 A. 705, followed in this court by Lister v. Weeks, 60 N. J. Eq. 215, p. 225, 46 A. 558, afid. 61 N. J. Eq. 675, 47 A. 1132. In the case first cited, at page 327 of 57 N. J. Eq., p. 705 of 41 A., the court says: 'The underlying principle applicable is that no corporate dividend declared after the right to the income has become severed from the ultimate ownership of the stock upon which such dividend is declared belongs in equity to the person entitled to income except so far as it is derived from the earning of the stock after such severance.' After alluding to the distinction which had been made in previous authorities between extraordinary dividends and ordinary or current dividends with respect to apportionment of those of the first class and not of the given to the holders of preferred stock,<sup>5</sup> and under an unrestricted preference diviothers, the court at page 328 of 57 N. J. Eq., p. 706 of 41 A., says that it cannot 'assent to the idea that some dividends should stand on a different footing from others,' and points out that to hold that, 'where a life estate begins one day before a dividend is declared, the entire dividend shall go to the life tenant, may be convenient but certainly is unjust.' At page 329 of 57 N. J. Eq., p. 706 of 41 A., the court applies the principle. That principle, as before stated, requires apportionment. There must, however, be evidence before the court of the periods for which the dividends were declared, the time of the previous dividend, the source from which it is derived—whether earnings currently made or surplus wholly earned before the decease of the stockholder—and other like matters." But in Iowa the respective rights of the parties are made to depend upon whether the dividends represent profits or capital. Kalbach v. Clark, 133 Iowa, 215, 110 N. W. 599. The following is an extract from the court's opinion in this regard: "Does a stock dividend pass to a legatee of a life estate in the original shares of stock, or are they part of the estate which passes directly to the remainderman? This question has been variously answered by the different courts of the country, and we have never before had occasion to consider it. Three rules seem to have been established by the decisions of the other courts—one known as the American or Pennsylvania rule, another the Massachusetts or the rule in Minot's Case, and the third the English rule. Under the so-called 'American rule' the courts inquire as to when the stock dividends were earned. If before the life estate arose, it is treated as belonging to the corpus of the estate, and does not go to the life tenant; but, if the fund out of which it was paid was earned or accrued after the life tenancy arose, then the stock dividend goes to the life tenant. Earp's Appeal, 28 Pa. 368; Biddle's Appeal, 99 Pa. 278; Philadelphia Co.'s Appeal [Pa.] 16 A. 734; Spooner v. Phillips, 62 Conn. 62, 24 A. 524, 16 L. R. A. 461; Hite v. Hite, 93 Ky. 257, 20 S. W. 778, 40 Am. St. Rep. 189, 19 L. R. A. 173; Williams v. Tel. Co., 93 N. Y. 162; Lord v. Brooks, 52 N. H. 72; Moss' Appeal, 83 Pa. 264, 24 Am. Rep. 164; Thompson on Corp. §§ 2192, 2193. Under this rule it becomes a question of fact as to the actual nature of the dividend. The mere fact that the directors of the corporation call it either one thing or the other is not controlling. The Massachusetts rule has also been adopted by the Supreme Court of the United States, but has been most severely criticised, and the court which first announced it has departed somewhat from the hard and fast principle just announced. Originally the courts of that state held that the form of action taken by the corporation was conclusive; that is to say, if the stock was issued as a capital dividend, this was an end of the inquiry. But this loses sight of the real inquiry as to what is income which should go to the life tenant. As we have said, however, the Massachusetts court has receded somewhat from that position. Heard v. Eldredge, 109 Mass. 258, 12 Am. Rep. 687; Davis v. Jackson, 152 Mass. 58, 25 N. E. 21, 23 Am. St. Rep. 801; Millen v. Guerrard, 67 Ga. 284, 44 Am. Rep. 720; Parker v. Mason, 8 R. I. 427; Greene v. Smith, 17 R. I. 28, 19 A. 1081. See, also, 5 Am. Law Rev. 720; Perry on Trusts (3d Ed.) §§ 544, 545. Under the English rule, ordinary cash or stock dividends go to the life tenant, while extraordinary dividends are treated as belonging to the corpus and go to the remainderman. Witt v. Steere, 13 Vesey, 363; Bates v. McKinley, 31 Beav. 280; In re Barton Trust, L. R. 5 Eq. 238. The rule has not however, been adhered to in all cases in England. See Gugden v. Alsbury, 63 L. T. R. 576; Ellis v. Barfield, 64 L. T. R. 625; In re Bouch, L. R. 29 Ch. Div. 635. With such divergence of opinion, it is manifest that cogent reasons may be given in support of either of these propositions. We shall not attempt to review the cases cited in support of the different rules. Our duty is performed when we establish a rule for this state which we believe best sustained on principle and by authority. That rule more nearly approximates what is called the American than any other. Under it we start with the notion that all pure dividends, whether in cash or stock or other property, are a part of the income, and, when declared, should go to the life tenant, and not to the remainderman, as it is not a part of the corpus of the property, but a part of the income derived from the use and management thereof. Any dividends, so-called, presumptively belong to the life tenant, as they are, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, assumed to have been divided as profits. If, however, the so-called stock dividends represent the corporate capital—that is, represent nothing but the natural growth or increase in the value of the permanent property, so that there is merely a change in the form of ownership—such stock should go to the remainderman; for in such cases the dividend is a dividend of capital, representing simply an increase in the value of the physical property, good will or other thing of tangible value. This is the modified American rule announced in Spooner v. Phillips, 62 Conn. 62, 24 A. 524, 16 L. R. A. 461; Hite's Devises v. Hite's Ex'r, 93 Ky. 257, 20 S. W. 778, 40 Am. St. Rep. 189, 19 L. R. A. 173; Williams v. Tel. Co., 93 N. Y. 162; Lord v. Brooks, 52 N. H. 72; Moss' Appeal, 83 Pa. 264, 24 Am. Rep. 164; Thompson on Corp. §§ 2192, 2193. Under this rule it becomes a question of fact as to the actual nature of the dividend. The mere fact that the directors of the corporation call it either one thing or the other is not controlling. The Massachusetts rule has also been adopted by the Supreme Court of the United States, but has been most severely criticised, and the court which first announced it has departed somewhat from the hard and fast principle just announced. Originally the courts of that state held that the form of action taken by the corporation was conclusive; that is to say, if the stock was issued as a capital dividend, this was an end of the inquiry. But this loses sight of the real inquiry as to what is income which should go to the life tenant. As we have said, however, the Massachusetts court has receded somewhat from that position. Heard v. Eldredge, 109 Mass. 258, 12 Am. Rep. 687; Davis v. Jackson, 152 Mass. 58, 25 N. E. 21, 23 Am. St. Rep. 801. The Georgia decision heretofore cited seems to be based upon a statute of that state. See Code Ga. 1873, § 2256; Millen v. Guerrard, 67 Ga. 284, 44 Am. Rep. 720."—From Kalbach v. Clark [Iowa] 110 N. W. 599.

dividends are cumulative until the amount guaranteed is paid to the exclusion of common stock,<sup>6</sup> and do not exclude participation in extra dividends paid on all stock regardless of its character.<sup>7</sup> A guaranty by a third person<sup>8</sup> of annual dividends on stock is impliedly conditioned on the continued existence of the corporation.<sup>9</sup> The question as to when dividends shall be declared may depend upon the terms of the statute,<sup>10</sup> or may not in the discretion of the directors.<sup>11</sup> A stockholder cannot sue for dividends until they have been declared,<sup>12</sup> but the corporation is the debtor of the stockholder as to dividends declared.<sup>13</sup> A mere agreement that dividends shall be declared periodically is enforceable only in equity.<sup>14</sup> Directors are not liable to stockholders for dividends declared until they have become segregated from the corporate funds so as to constitute trust funds in the hands of the directors,<sup>15</sup> a suit in equity against the directors being proper only when they have received the segregated dividends for distribution.<sup>16</sup> The remedy, therefore, for declared dividends in the possession of the corporation is by action at law against the corporation.<sup>17</sup> Dividends may be issued in stock,<sup>18</sup> and while it is a question of fact whether such dividends represent profits or capital,<sup>19</sup> they are presumptively profits.<sup>20</sup> Dividends cannot legally be paid out of capital stock,<sup>21</sup> and when such payment is positively prohibited it cannot be validated by either the action of the directors<sup>22</sup> or the stockholders,<sup>23</sup> and may be recovered back.<sup>24</sup>

Right to inspect the books and papers of the corporation.<sup>25</sup>—Stockholders have a common-law right to inspect the books and records of the corporation at reasonable times and for proper purposes,<sup>26</sup> and even where the right rests on statutes, it is not usually absolute and cannot be exercised for wrongful or frivolous purposes.<sup>27</sup> Where, however, the right is conferred in absolute terms, the purpose of the inspection becomes immaterial.<sup>28</sup> Even where a statement of the purpose of the inspection is essential, it is waived where the refusal is based on other grounds.<sup>29</sup> The right is purely personal to stockholders<sup>30</sup> and does not extend to a mere custodian holding the stock pending litigation in regard to the title thereto.<sup>31</sup> Whether a particular person comes within a statute conferring or defining such right depends, of course, upon the terms of the statute.<sup>32</sup> The stockholder has the right to use an accountant and a stenographer in the course of his inspection.<sup>33</sup> The remedy to enforce an absolute statutory right of inspection is a legal remedy,<sup>34</sup> and the usual remedy to enforce the right of inspection is mandamus.<sup>35</sup> This writ, however, lies only to enable stockholder to protect his interest as such.<sup>36</sup> Where the right to inspect is conferred in absolute terms, a petition for mandamus need not allege the purpose of the examination.<sup>37</sup>

St. 1903, p. 433, c. 437, § 30, providing for examination of stock and transfer books, etc., does not enlarge or limit stockholder's right to examine corporation's books for purpose of ascertaining the condition of the corporation. Id.

Note: It was formerly held in England that this right could be exercised, against the will of the managing officers, only when there was a specific dispute about some corporate matter, between the stockholders and the officers. Rex v. Merchant Tailors' Co., 2 B. & Ad. 115. But this rule has been modified by statute. See St. 8 & 9 Vict. c. 16, §§ 117, 119 and St. 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, table A. 78. The doctrine has not been adopted in America. The cases which go furthest in that direction holding that, if there is a dispute as to the alleged mismanagement of the corporation, it is enough to entitle the stockholder to an examination of the accounts to see whether there is a ground for an action. Com. v. Phoenix Iron Co., 105 Pa. 111, 51 Am. Rep. 184; Phoenix Iron Co. v. Com., 113 Pa. 563, 6 A. 75. According to the general rule in this country, it is not necessary that there should be any particular dispute to entitle the stockholder to exercise this right. Nothing more is required than that, acting in good faith for the protection of the interests of the corporation and his own interests, he desires to ascertain the condition of the company's business. *Guthrie v. Remedies for injuries to stockholders or to the corporation.<sup>38</sup>—A stockholder cannot complain of transactions consummated before he acquires his stock.<sup>39</sup> Fraud destroying the value of stock is actionable,<sup>40</sup> and the right of action is in the stockholders and not the corporation,<sup>41</sup> but no action lies in the first instance in behalf of a stockholder for injuries to the corporation whereby the value of its stock is destroyed.<sup>42</sup> A cause of action in favor of the corporation cannot be joined with one in favor of the stockholder personally,<sup>43</sup> and in the absence of fraud on the part of the defendants a corporation cannot be joined as defendant in a suit by a stockholder against corporate officers.<sup>44</sup> Stockholders must act promptly where the acts complained of are not per se illegal and do not involve moral turpitude.<sup>45</sup> In New Jersey executors and trustees under a will are not liable for losses caused by their holding stock, where they exercise good faith and reasonable discretion in holding the same.<sup>46</sup> An officer suing by virtue of statutory authority to redress corporate wrongs cannot obtain redress for personal grievances.<sup>47</sup>

Stockholders suing for corporation.<sup>48</sup>—Primarily the corporation itself is the proper party to redress its own wrongs and the only one that can do so,<sup>49</sup> but when the directors, after due and proper demand, refuse to sue, a stockholder may sue,<sup>50</sup> unless he is estopped by his own conduct.<sup>51</sup> The right of the stockholder to sue<sup>52</sup> arises only after he has made a demand upon the proper authorities to sue,<sup>53</sup> or when the circumstances are such as to excuse such demand.<sup>54</sup> The complaining stock-

Equity rule 94 does not apply in such case. Monmouth Inv. Co. v. Means [C. C. A.] 151 F. 159. The mere fact that defendant owned large majority of stock is not sufficient to excuse demand. Law v. Fuller, 217 Pa. 439, 66 A. 764. Where stockholder acquiesced in unauthorized assignaholder must allege and prove such demand<sup>55</sup> or such facts as will excuse the failure to make the demand.<sup>56</sup> A general allegation of a demand is insufficient.<sup>57</sup> Failure to allege such demand is not cured by the filing of a cross bill by the corporation and the defendant's answer thereto, where the relief sought by the bill cannot be granted under the allegations of the cross bill.<sup>58</sup> These rules, however, do not apply to suits involving rights antedating the formation of the corporation.<sup>59</sup> Stockholders suing for their corporation can assert only the rights and equities which the corporation, if willing to sue, could assert,<sup>60</sup> and any defenses are available which would be available against the corporation.<sup>61</sup>

Costs and allowances.<sup>62</sup>—Where an officer is authorized by statute to sue to redress corporate wrongs, costs may be allowed against the corporation.<sup>63</sup>

Receivers and injunctions.<sup>64</sup>—In certain cases a receiver will be appointed at the instance of a minority stockholder,<sup>65</sup> but a receiver will not be appointed contrary to the charter and statutory right of the stockholders to have the affairs of the corporation liquidated in a particular way,<sup>66</sup> where such proceedings offer the petitioning stockholder adequate remedy.<sup>67</sup> Misappropriations by officers may be considered in determining the propriety of appointing a receiver,<sup>68</sup> and mismanagement is sometimes made a ground for receivership.<sup>69</sup> From a stockholder's standpoint an overissue of stock is not ground for a receiver.<sup>70</sup> A receivership on account of insolvency may be in conflict with the national bankruptcy law.<sup>71</sup> When special relief is sought

ment of corporation's contract by its president, until it became apparent that such contract was valuable, and then acquired a large interest in the corporation, he could not avoid the necessity of making demand upon proper authorities to sue to repudiate the assignment on the ground that he had no time to make such demand or convene the directors. *Tevis v. against a portion only of the defendants, the cause of complaint against them should be distinctly and separately stated,<sup>72</sup> and even then must stand the test of multifariousness.<sup>73</sup> The general rules as to amendment of a bill for a receiver apply.<sup>74</sup>

The corporation is a proper party to a bill to enjoin the holders of certain stock from exercising the rights of stockholders and to require the stock to be returned to the treasury.<sup>75</sup> A bill for an injunction and other relief must stand the test of multifariousness.<sup>76</sup>

85. Fact that broker on reporting sale of stock transferred same to his clerks, who had no real interest in the stock, and that the stock, which was not transferred on corporation's books, was finally transferred by the broker to the pledgee who had placed it with him, did not show that there was no bona fide sale in the first instance, where it appeared that it was the custom among brokers to thus indorse stock to their clerks and then to sell it without disclosing their principal, and hence owner, having been credited with proceeds of sale, was not entitled to accounting from pledgee as to such stock. Smith v. Becker, 129 Wis. 396, 109 N. W. 131.

86. De facto existence sufficient to sustain contract for sale of shares. Marshall v. Keach, 227 Ill. 35, 81 N. E. 29.

Note: In Herter v. Eltzroth, 111 Ind. 159, it was held that there was no implied warranty on the part of the vendor of certificates of stock that the corporation issuing them was a corporation de jure, that, if the corporation was a de facto one, that was sufficient to relieve the vendor from liability as to any implied warranty as to the existence of the corporation. To the same effect is 26 Am. & Eng. Ency. of Law (2d Ed.) p. 258. The Indiana court cited, in support of its holding, Otis v. Cullum, 92 U. S. 447, 23 Law. Ed. 496, where, in a case involving the sale of authority, in passing on the question of implied warranty, the United States supreme municipal bonds issued without statutory court held: "The seller is liable ex delicto for bad faith, and ex contractu there is an implied warranty on his part that they belong to him, and that they are not forgeries. Where there is no express stipulation, there is no liability beyond this." The supreme court of Indiana, after this quotation from the Otis Case, supra, said: "A less liberal rule, clearly, cannot be applied to the sale of sale of shares in a de facto corporation may be specifically enforced.<sup>87</sup> As security for the payment of the purchase price of stock, the dividends thereon may be reserved to the seller by the contract of sale.<sup>88</sup> In a proper case an action for deceit will lie against the vendor of stock.<sup>89</sup>

Mode of transferring shares, registration, new certificates.<sup>90</sup>—Stock transfers may be regulated by by-laws,<sup>91</sup> subject, however, to the rights of persons holding and dealing in such stocks,<sup>92</sup> including the right to transfer them as property without unreasonable restraint.<sup>93</sup> As against third parties the transfer must usually be registered on the corporation's books.<sup>94</sup> Where registration is necessary to pass the title to stock,<sup>95</sup> if a transferee demands the registration of such transfer<sup>96</sup> a wrongful refusal of the corporation to register the transfer constitutes a conversion<sup>97</sup> for which the party entitled to such registration may recover his damages,<sup>98</sup> and a tender during the trial of such an action of the certificates demanded is no defense and transfer of certificates of stock." This court, in Hinkley v. Champaign Nat. Bk., 216 Ill. 559, 75 N. E. 210, held that the assignment of a judgment carries an implied warranty that the judgment is genuine, that it was entered in due form of law, but that there is no implied warranty that the judgment was impregnable to attack, and we there quoted with approval from the Otis case supra, the following: "If the buyer desires special protection, he must take a guaranty. He can dictate its terms, and refuse to buy unless it is given. If not taken, he cannot occupy the vantage ground upon which it would have placed him." In Higgins v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bk., 193 Ill. 394, 61 N. E. 1024, we held that the vendor of stock in a corporation impliedly warranted that the same was genuine, and that he was then the owner thereof and authorized to transfer title, and that, if the assignee desires further protection, he must exact a special guaranty.—From Marshall v. Keach [Ill.] 81 N. E. 29.

to the previous conversion.<sup>99</sup> The cause of action, however, for a wrongful refusal to register a transfer is against the corporation and not the officer upon whom the demand was made.<sup>1</sup> Mere lapse of time will not bar the right to have stock transferred on the corporation's books.<sup>2</sup>

Pledge or mortgage of shares.<sup>3</sup>—The pledgor has no cause of action against the pledgee for injuries to the corporation whereby the stock when sold under the pledge had no value.<sup>4</sup> Where stock has been rendered negotiable by endorsement, a pledgee receiving it from the holder without notice acquires a valid title.<sup>5</sup> The pledgee is entitled to the aid of the courts to prevent the dissipation of the corporation's assets.<sup>6</sup>

§ 15. *Management of corporations. A. Succession of corporations; reorganization; consolidation. Mere fact that object of one in purchasing majority stock pooled for sale was to stop litigation by corporation against him, and to quiet his possession of property claimed by the corporation, was not sufficient to show fraud on his part or a conspiracy with directors and majority stockholders to deprive the company of its property. *Hallenborg v. Pooling of majority of stock for sale, and its sale to one whose purpose was to stop litigation by corporation against him, and to quiet his possession of land claimed by corporation, held not fraud on corporation or minority stockholders where sale was made in good faith on advice of counsel, and the litigation had already, so far as it had been decided, been decided against corporation, and company's attorney

ness and policies of the corporation,<sup>16</sup> and the bona fide exercise of such right will not be interfered with by the courts.<sup>17</sup> The right of the majority either originally to direct or to affirm proceedings in which the directors or the majority are interested is subject, however, to the limitations imposed by the corporation's charter,<sup>18</sup> and to the qualification that they will not be allowed to act unjustly or unfairly to the injury of the minority,<sup>19</sup> and this limitation and qualification will be enforced by equity.<sup>20</sup> The minority, however, may waive their rights.<sup>21</sup> Fraud between one contracting with the majority and the officers through whom they act is not available to the objecting minority where such fraud does not enter into the inducement to the majority to act.<sup>22</sup>

necessary to constitute the quorum but not the majority will not invalidate the action of such majority where such member does not vote.<sup>39</sup> Where the result of the failure to comply with a provision of the articles requiring a new board to meet within a certain time is not specified, such provision will be held to be merely directory.<sup>40</sup> cieties, as in the community at large, that the acts of the majority, in cases within the charter powers, bind the whole. The majority here means the major part of those who are present at a regular corporate meeting. There is a distinction taken between a corporate act to be done by a select and definite body, as by a board of directors, and one to be performed by the constituent members. In the latter case a majority of those who appear may act; but in the former a majority of the definite body must be present, and then a majority of the quorum may decide.' This doctrine as laid down by Chancellor Kent is cited with approval by the following authorities, among others: Angell & Ames on Corporations, § 501; Leavitt v. Oxford & G. S. M. Co., 3 Utah, 272, 1 Pac. 356; Van Hook v. Somerville Mfg. Co., 5 N. J. Eq. 167; Foster v. Mullanphy, P. M. Co., 92 Mo. 88, 4 S. W. 260. In the case of Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 504, 46 Am. Dec. 743, it is said: 'In ordinary cases, when there is no other express provision, a majority of the whole number of an aggregate body, who may act together, constitute a quorum, and a majority of those present may decide any question upon which they can act.' In Buell v. Buckingham & Co., 16 Iowa, 284, 85 Am. Dec. 516, it appears that at a meeting of the board of directors of the corporation at which Elijah Buell, president, and Robert Buell and Robert Spear, directors, were alone present, a quorum under the by-laws being the president and two directors certain property of the corporation was sold to Elijah Buell, in consideration of the indebtedness by the corporation to him. Cole, J., said: 'In this case, although the requisite number of directors was present, Elijah Buell was disqualified from acting in the matter of the sale to himself; and the question then is: Can a majority of the quorum, which is itself but a bare majority, do a binding act? Then, after citing what has heretofore been said as the utterance of Chancellor Kent, the justice proceeds: 'Mr. Dane illustrates the same rule, as follows: "If the charter requires twelve common councilmen to elect or do an act, seven of them at least must be present, though four of the seven may give the vote," etc., 5 Dane's Abridg. 150. See, also, Angell & Ames on Corp. § 571; Cahill v. Kalamazoo Insurance Company, 2 Doug. (Mich.) 124, 43 Am. Dec. 457; Sargent v. Webster, 13 Metc. (Mass.) 497, 46 Am. Dec. 743; In re Insurance Company, 22 Wend. (N. Y.) 591; Ex parte Willcocks, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 402, 17 Am. Dec. 525. It follows, then, in the light of these authorities, that, since the president and two of the directors constituted a quorum it was competent for two, being a majority of that quorum, to bind the corporation; and, if two were able to act, even as against the opposing vote of the other, they could, a fortiori act without his concurrence.' The Justice then proceeds to say that which is peculiarly applicable to this case (it being remembered that Mr. Wallace was the president of the corporation): 'The ordinary duties of the president are to preside, determine questions of order, give the casting vote in case of a tie, etc.; and, since the vote of the directors was unanimous, there was no occasion or opportunity for the president to cast his vote, even if he had not been disqualified, and the contract of sale was made by just as many directors as was required by the by-laws, or as it was possible to have in the corporation as constituted.' In the same case, at page 290, Dillon, J., says, 'Three constituted a quorum. So far all is clear. Advancing in the argument the first proposition I lay down is that a majority of the quorum, all being present, have the power to act, and to decide any question upon which they can act. This proposition is clear upon the authorities.' He then proceeds to cite a number of authorities in support of the doctrine, which it is not necessary to repeat here. Hax v. Davis Mill Co., 39 Mo. App. 453, is an action instituted to recover of the milling corporation a salary alleged to be due plaintiff as president of the corporation. The court says: 'There is no question as to the plaintiff's disqualification to vote on his own salary. * * * It appears, then, that a majority of all the directors voted on the question and that a majority of those voted for the resolution and in our opinion legally adopted it. In the absence of anything to the contrary in the charter or by-laws a majority will constitute a quorum and a majority of that quorum can do the business of the board. Morawetz, Corporations, §§ 467, 531. The fact that plaintiff was present at this meeting will not alter the rule. He abstained from voting for the reason that he could not vote on the question, and the proceedings will be given the same effect as if he had been absent.' In Ex parte Willcocks, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 402, 17 Am. Dec. 525, it is also said: 'To make a quorum of a select and definite body of men possessing the power to elect, a majority at least must be present; and then a majority of the quorum may decide.' In Wells v. Rahway White Rubber Co. et al., 19 N. J. Eq. 404, it was said: 'At this meeting, three of the five directors were present and, although there is some proof that the entry is incorrect in stating that all three concurred in the resolution, yet it appears that two did concur unconditionally, and as of five directors three are a quorum, and two a majority of the three, the resolution must be taken as valid and binding.' In view of these authorities and others of similar import, we adopt the rule that where the board of directors of a corporation consists of five members, and, under the by-laws, it requires four to constitute a quorum, a majority of the quorum, being a majority of the board, can legally do any act which the entire board would be authorized to do." *Gumaer v. Where treasurer of charitable corporation procured change of corporate bonds owned by his corporation into negotiable securities by means of forged resolution of directors and then negotiated them. Carlson Home v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 182 N. Y. 47, 74 N. E. 571. Where agent of the corporation which issued the bond was deceived by the forgery and allowed the change of the bonds into negotiable securities, both he and his corporation were liable to the owner of the bonds. Id.

69. Jackson Brew. Co. v. Canton, 118 La. 823, 43 So. 454.

70. Broker appointed by officers whose powers had not been designated by directors held to have no authority to purchase land for corporation or to make contract for such purchase binding on either corporation or seller. Jackson Brew. Co. v. Canton, 118 La. 823, 43 So. 454.

71. Power to dedicate the corporation's lands to public must be derived from directors. Town of West Point v. Bland, 106 Va. 792, 56 S. E. 802.

Agents appointed by directors to execute a contract for the corporation are the agents of the latter and not of the directors.<sup>72</sup> Authority may be conferred by parol.<sup>73</sup> Designation of certain officers as authorized to "execute" contracts does not deprive other officers of the power to make oral contracts.<sup>74</sup> A mere reference by an officer disclaiming authority to another as having authority in the premises will not invest the latter with such authority,<sup>75</sup> and the mere consent of one officer that another officer may do an act requiring special authority from the corporation does not dispense with the necessity of such special authority.<sup>76</sup> Appointment to office will not make the officer the agent of the corporation as to prior engagements with third persons,<sup>77</sup> but the mere fact that an officer is a third party's agent in certain matters does not make him such party's agent in similar matters as to which he acts for the corporation.<sup>78</sup> A specific authority is not exhausted by an attempted exercise thereof which fails through mistake,<sup>79</sup> and an officer having power to make a contract also has power to re-execute it so as to take it out of the statute of frauds.<sup>80</sup> Authority delegated by directors is not ipso facto revoked by a change in the directorate.<sup>81</sup>

The president.<sup>82</sup>—While certain powers are held to be inherent in the president of a corporation as its executive head,<sup>83</sup> the powers of the president, like those of any other officer or agent, generally depend upon the scope of the authority that has specifically been delegated to him.<sup>84</sup> As a general rule he has no authority to sell

72. Kidd v. New Hampshire Trac. Co. [N. H.] 66 A. 127.

73. Authority to execute promissory notes. Crossley v. St. Philip Neri [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 27.

74. By-law providing that all contracts "executed" by corporation should be executed by president and secretary held not to preclude making of oral contract by manager. Freyberg v. Los Angeles Brew. Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 378.

75. Corporation not bound by contract for purchase of goods made by one to whom manager referred seller by saying that he, the manager, had no authority in the premises and that whatever such other person did would be all right, such person, however, not being an officer, not being employed on the corporation's premises, and having no authority to bind the corporation. Greenwald v. Petite Cigar Mfg. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 86.

76. Pelton v. Spider Lake Sawmill & Lumber Co. [Wis.] 112 N. W. 29.

77. One employed by purchaser of stock to secure its transfer remains personal agent of the stockholder as to such stock, though subsequently appointed secretary of corporation. Lucile Dreyfus Min. Co. v. Willard [Wash.] 89 P. 935.

78. Fact that secretary officially receiving stock for transfer is personal agent of owner as to other stock does not relieve corporation from liability for acts of secretary in regard to stock officially received. Lucile Dreyfus Min. Co. v. Willard [Wash.] 89 P. 935. Corporation not bound by act of secretary in issuing fraudulent certificates in lieu of stock which he undertook to purchase in open market for one employing him for that purpose, since in matter of depositing old certificates in exchange for those issued he was acting for his employer, though acting for corporation in issuing the new certificates, delivery of old certificates, however, being, to knowledge of secretary's employe, essential to issue of new. Id.

79. Where a bond with power to confess judgment was authorized by directors so as to be capable of being entered up at once, subject to the condition that no execution should issue thereon before a certain date unless other creditors sued or threatened suit, and a bond was executed payable on the specified date under mistaken idea that it could be entered up at once, the officers were authorized, without further action of the directors, to execute a new bond reforming the original so as to make it conform to the original agreement as authorized by the directors. Bergen v. Rogers [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 290.

80. Contract not to be performed within a year. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 412, 101 S. W. 867.

81. Kidd v. New Hampshire Trac. Co. [N. H.] 66 A. 127.

82. See 7 C. L. 918.

83. Corporation held bound by promises of president to defer sale of stock pledged as collateral. Furber v. National Metal Co., 118 App. Div. 263, 103 N. Y. S. 490. Guaranty of note discounted for benefit of corporation held within general powers of president. Lloyd & Co. v. Matthews, 223 Ill. 477, 79 N. E. 172. General authority of president authorizes him to collect outstanding accounts and to sell and assign them for their face value. Cogan v. Conover Mfg. Co., 69 N. J. Eq. 816, 65 A. 484.

84. Authority to act as chief executive in all corporation's operations and to supervise all other officers and all departments included authority to direct what services were to be performed by company's engineer so as to render company liable to pay therefor. Bogart v. New York & L. I. R. Co., 118 App. Div. 50, 102 N. Y. S. 1093. President of mining company had no inherent power to bind corporation by agreement to pay one claiming lease from company the expenses incurred in working the alleged leased property

The vice-president.<sup>88</sup>—The vice-president of a corporation has no inherent power to execute notes for the corporation<sup>89</sup> or to sell its land.<sup>90</sup>

The secretary.<sup>91</sup>—The secretary's powers outside of such as may be held to be inherent in the office depend upon the scope of the authority which has been delegated to him.<sup>92</sup> He is usually vested with authority to affix the corporate seal to its contracts,<sup>93</sup> but has no power ex officio to give corporate notes or obligate the corporation on commercial paper,<sup>94</sup> or to dispose of its property.<sup>95</sup>

The treasurer.<sup>96</sup>—A corporation's treasurer has no inherent power to execute notes for the corporation<sup>97</sup> or to dispose of its property.<sup>98</sup>

Business manager, salesman, etc.<sup>99</sup>—The manager of a corporation's business has only such powers as are necessary to the conduct of the business committed to his care.<sup>1</sup> With this limitation a corporation will be bound by the acts of anyone charged with the management of its business.<sup>2</sup> Whether a particular act is necessary or incident to the management of a corporation's business depends upon the character of the corporation and the nature of its business,<sup>3</sup> and the scope and character in consideration of such person's abandonment of claim to such lease. Conqueror Gold Min. & Mill. Co. v. Ashton [Colo.] 90 P. 1124.

85. Salmon packing company not bound by agreement of its president to give certain broker the handling of the year's pack. Northwestern Packing Co. v. Whitney [Cal. App.] 89 P. 981. Deed executed by president pursuant to forged resolution of directors, the other directors and the stockholders having no knowledge of the transaction and the corporation receiving no benefit therefrom, held void. Ansley Land Co. v. Western Lumber Co., 152 F. 841.

86. Evidence held to show that rails sold by president of railroad company belonged to company. Saginaw Suburban R. Co. v. Connelly, 146 Mich. 395, 13 Det. Leg. N. 796, 109 N. W. 677. President estopped to deny company's title where he included property in statement of assets of company. Id. Purchaser of rails fixed to ties on corporation's railroad held charged with notice of company's title as against claim of president who sold them as his own. Id.

87. Town of West Point v. Bland, 106 Va. 792, 56 S. E. 802.

90. Vice-president of land and cattle company has no inherent or presumptive authority to sell company's land. Hurlbut v. Gainer [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 142, 103 S. W. 409.

91. See 7 C. L. 919.

92. Corporation held bound by act of secretary in converting stock received for transfer and issuing fraudulent certificates in its stead. Lucile Dreyfus Min. Co. v. Willard [Wash.] 89 P. 935.

93. Where instrument under corporate seal is signed by secretary, it is presumed that the seal is that of corporation and that it was affixed by authority of corporation. Bliss v. Harris [Colo.] 87 P. 1076. Presumption that seal to instrument signed by secretary was affixed by authority of corporation not overcome by absence of showing of vote of directors or other governing body. Id.

94. Pelton v. Spider Lake Sawmill & Lumber Co. [Wis.] 112 N. W. 29. Has no power to bind his corporation by an accommodation indorsement of his own paper. Wheeling Ice & Storage Co. v. Connor, 61 W. Va. 111, 55 S. E. 982. Secretary of corporation organized to deal in land for hotel purposes, establish, erect, and maintain a hotel and to manage the hotel business, held to have no power to execute promissory notes for the corporation for accommodation or otherwise, especially where by-law required such notes to be otherwise executed. First Nat. Bk. v. Abilene Hotel Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 9, 103 S. W. 1120.

95. Has no inherent power to sell and assign corporation's choses in action. Maroney v. Cole, 52 Misc. 451, 103 N. Y. S. 560.

96. See 7 C. L. 919.

97. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bk. [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 707, 99 S. W. 850.

98. Treasurer charged with custody of charitable corporation's contracts and securities held to have no power to have the register of non-negotiable bonds of another corporation owned by his corporation so changed as to render them negotiable and then to sell them. Clarkson Home v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 182 N. Y. 47, 74 N. E. 571.

99. See 7 C. L. 919.

1. Manager could not bind mining corporation by agreement to pay to one claiming lease from corporation his expenses incurred in working leased property in consideration of abandonment of claim to the property. Conqueror Gold Min. & Mill. Co. v. Ashton [Colo.] 90 P. 1124.

2. Corporation held bound by contract relating to disposition, for benefit of levying creditors, of property levied on. Lewiston Lumber & Box Co. v. Garvey [Idaho] 89 P. 940. President charged with general management held to have had power to assign contract of corporation which it was unable to carry out. Tevis v. Hammersmith [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 614.

3. General manager of corporation engaged in buying and selling saloons had of particular duties assigned to him.<sup>4</sup> He has no inherent power to redeem outstanding stock,<sup>5</sup> or to dedicate the corporation's land to public use.<sup>6</sup> A salesman has no inherent authority to borrow money<sup>7</sup> or to indorse and transfer checks payable to the corporation.<sup>8</sup>

Pleading and evidence of authority.<sup>9</sup>—In an action by a corporation the authority of the officer who made the contract sued on is not in issue unless raised by the pleadings.<sup>10</sup> An allegation that an act was that of the corporation is a sufficient allegation of the authority of the officers acting for the corporation.<sup>11</sup> An answer denying the execution and delivery of an instrument purporting to be signed by the defendant corporation is sufficient to put such matters in issue.<sup>12</sup> One seeking to hold a corporation upon an agreement made with an alleged officer or agent has the burden of proving the status of such officer or agent,<sup>13</sup> and that he had the requisite authority in the premises,<sup>14</sup> but the introduction of an instrument purporting to be signed by the defendant corporation makes a prima facie case,<sup>15</sup> and when the execution and delivery of the instrument is denied by the corporation it has the burden of proof on the issue thus raised.<sup>16</sup> Where the act is not within the scope of the officer's duties, anyone relying upon the validity of the act must prove actual authority.<sup>17</sup> The date of an officer's election is immaterial when the act in question is performed during his tenure.<sup>18</sup> Where the act is done in the name of an officer by another person, the authority of the latter to act for the former must appear.<sup>19</sup> It must appear that the officer was acting for the corporation,<sup>20</sup> though this may be power to sell furniture and fixtures of saloon and license to conduct same. Freyberg v. Los Angeles Brew. Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 378. Manager of land and cattle company has no presumptive authority to sell company's land. Hurlbut v. Gainer [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 142, 103 S. W. 409. Manager of real estate company held authorized to undertake to lease property sold and to collect rents thereon and apply same to purchase price. Harvey v. Sparks Bros. [Wash.] 88 P. 1108. Employment of mining engineer held within general authority of manager of mining corporation. Golden Age No. 2 Min. & Mill. Co. v. Langridge [Colo.] 88 P. 1070. Corporation bound by manager's agreement to pay certain compensation for services performed in securing lands to be used in corporation's business. Chilcott v. Washington Colonization Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 113. Superintendent of street railroad company has no implied authority to prosecute for embezzlement of company's funds so as to render company liable for malicious prosecution. Canon v. Sharon & W. St. R. Co., 216 Pa. 408, 65 A. 795.

4. Corporation officer and agent having charge of corporation work, with general authority to hire employees has implied authority to so fix the compensation of employees hired by him. Kelly v. Jersey City Water Supply Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 108.

18. Allegation that officer was elected May 27, 1904, and continued in office during 1906, held supported by finding of election April 28, 1905, and continued in office during 1906, so far as material to authority in 1906. First Baptist Soc. v. Dexter, 193 Mass. 187, 79 N. E. 342.

19. Note signed by president's son. Dreeben v. First Nat. Bk. [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 707, 99 S. W. 850.

20. Evidence that certain person, "manager for the plaintiff," a corporation, owed defendant a certain sum, did not show any claim against the corporation. Douglas presumed from the circumstances.<sup>21</sup> Presumption of authority is indulged where a contract is under the seal of the corporation<sup>22</sup> but special authority will not be presumed where the instrument sued on is not under seal.<sup>23</sup> Present authority may be presumed from past authority.<sup>24</sup>

Evidence of prior acts of the same character is not admissible where it does not appear that the corporation had notice of such prior acts,<sup>25</sup> nor are declarations of the officer or agent, unknown to the corporation, admissible to prove his authority in the premises,<sup>26</sup> but the fact that a director referred to a certain officer as being authorized in the premises may be considered.<sup>27</sup> The testimony of the officer or agent is admissible on the question of his authority.<sup>28</sup> Telephone conversations with one claiming to be an officer are admissible for what they are worth.<sup>29</sup> Both the status and the authority of the alleged officer may be proved by parol evidence.<sup>30</sup> Statutes making written instruments admissible without proof of signature are held to be applicable to instruments executed by corporations.<sup>31</sup>

Authority of president to execute chattel

(§ 15) K. Apparent authority of officers and agents and estoppel of the corporation and of others.<sup>37</sup>—The presumptive or apparent authority of an agent of a corporation is the same as that of an agent of an individual,<sup>38</sup> and the corporation is bound by all acts of its officers and agents within the apparent scope of their authority,<sup>39</sup> without regard to secret limitations.<sup>40</sup> The authority of an officer or agent of a corporation, therefore, need not be express, but may be implied from the circumstances<sup>41</sup> or from acquiescence in a general course of business or conduct,<sup>42</sup> or in the particular act in question or similar acts.<sup>43</sup> Hence, when a corporation holds one out and permits him to act as an officer or agent, it will be liable for his acts within the scope of his apparent authority the same as if he had been vested with actual authority,<sup>44</sup> and where a corporation allows a person in a large measure to control its business transactions, his acts in the name of the corporation will be held to be the acts of the corporation until it has been shown affirmatively that they were unauthorized.<sup>45</sup> The corporation will not be liable for the acts of its agent outside of both his actual and apparent authority,<sup>46</sup> nor where the transaction is such as of itself negatives the authority of the officer or agent,<sup>47</sup> as where the transaction is obviously for the officer's or agent's personal benefit.<sup>48</sup> There seems to be some conflict as to the effect of matters which would have given rise to an implied authority if known to the party dealing with the officer or agent, but which were not in fact known to him.<sup>49</sup>

Whether a corporation is estopped in a particular case is usually a question of fact,<sup>50</sup> and the burden of establishing the estoppel is on the party asserting it.<sup>51</sup> As in other cases, knowledge on the part of the corporation is essential to an estoppel to deny an officer's or agent's authority,<sup>52</sup> and absence of notice on the other party's part as to any defect of authority.<sup>53</sup> One may also be precluded by his own negligence to assert an estoppel against the corporation.<sup>54</sup> A stockholder may be estopped to assail the authority and qualifications of officers.<sup>55</sup>

this doctrine does not apply where the transactions are in behalf of the officer or agent personally.<sup>58</sup> Where the corporation's liability on account of acceptance of benefits depends upon such acceptance being a ratification, knowledge is essential to its liability.<sup>59</sup> Where the corporation wishes to repudiate the transaction, it must at least offer to restore the statu quo.<sup>60</sup>

(§ 15) M. Notice to or knowledge of officers or agents as notice to or knowledge of corporation.<sup>78</sup>—The rule that notice to an officer or agent is notice to the corporation<sup>79</sup> applies only where it is the duty of the officer to communicate his knowledge to the corporation,<sup>80</sup> and the circumstances are such as not to rebut the presumption of the performance of such duty.<sup>81</sup> The knowledge of an officer will not, therefore, be imputed to the corporation unless received in an official capacity,<sup>82</sup> or under such circumstances as, in fidelity to the corporation, require him to impart it to the corporation,<sup>83</sup> nor will the officer's knowledge be imputed to the corporation where it does not relate to matters within the scope of his duties,<sup>84</sup> but under some circumstances notice to an officer in one capacity may be notice to him in another capacity and thus operates as notice to the corporation.<sup>85</sup> The presumption of performance of duty by communication to the corporation may be rebutted by the personal interest of the officer in the transaction,<sup>86</sup> but such is not the necessary result

14. Act of officer having no stock to sell for corporation in selling in own behalf stock for future delivery, and subsequent purchasing of treasury stock at less price and delivering same to purchasers, held not misappropriation where he paid fair value for stock at time of his purchase. Hercules Oil Refining Co. v. Hocknell [Cal. App.] 91 P. 341.

15. See 7 C. L. 926.

16. Continuing an officer in office after knowledge of defalcations and misappropriations by him. Murphy v. Penniman [Md.] 66 A. 282. Allowing officer's bond to lapse after knowledge of misappropriations covered thereby. Id. Where, in order to show sufficient reserve to entitle corporation to do business in foreign state, a reserve company was created, a certain number of shares of which were purchased by directors and resold to their corporation, the desired result being accomplished, but the shares thus sold being worthless, and subsequently, in order to make another such report, the same shares were purchased by the directors from their corporation with money taken from its treasury. Bowers v. Male, 186 N. Y. S. 28, 78 N. E. 577. Ignorance of matters which it is the duty of the officers to know will not excuse them. Elliott v. Farmers' Bk., 61 W. Va. 641, 57 S. E. 242.

17. Elliott v. Farmers' Bk., 61 W. Va. 641, 57 S. E. 242.

18. Director's knowledge of purpose of unauthorized loan to president and his unofficial consent thereto which did not enable the president to obtain the money did not render director liable therefor. Hirsch v. Jones, 115 App. Div. 156, 100 N. Y. S. 687.

19. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. McCurdy, 118 App. Div. 815, 103 N. Y. S. 829.

20. Suit against officers to recover funds wrongfully withdrawn by them from a depository. McRee v. Mexican Gulf Oil & Mineral Co., 127 Ga. 383, 56 S. E. 451.

21. Where directors sold worthless stock to corporation as part of plan to raise reserve required by statute. Bowers v. Male, 186 N. Y. S. 28, 78 N. E. 577. Fact that one of directors sought to be charged in a suit by receivers is also a receiver, and as such a party plaintiff, is not ground for demurrer where the case for the plaintiff is really controlled by attorney appointed by the court. Murphy v. Penniman [Md.] 66 A. 282.

22. Bill not subject to objection for multifariousness on account of the various causes of action stated where it alleges that all the defendants were connected with all the acts complained of. Murphy v. Penniman [Md.] 66 A. 282.

23. Evidence in suit by stockholder held sufficient to warrant inference that stockholder knew of and acquiesced in practices of director charged as mismanagement in suit by stockholder. Davenport v. Crowell, 79 Vt. 419, 65 A. 557. Holder of stock will not be heard to complain on the ground that it was illegally sold by the directors to the president. Gumaer v. Cripple Creek Tunnel Transp. & Min. Co. [Colo.] 90 P. 81.

24. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. McCurdy, 118 App. Div. 815, 103 N. Y. S. 829.

25. Bill held not demurrable for uncertainty in alleging the cause of action against the defendants. Murphy v. Penniman [Md.] 66 A. 282. Petition against president and secretary for withdrawal of corporate funds from depository for wrongful purpose held good on demurrer. McRee v. Mexican Gulf Oil & Mineral Co., 127 Ga. 383, 56 S. E. 451.

26. Since stockholders are not liable for mismanagement. Brown v. Utopia Land Co., 118 App. Div. 364, 103 N. Y. S. 50.

27. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. McCurdy, 118 App. Div. 815, 103 N. Y. S. 829.

28. Other defendants only entitled to credit on recovery against them. Murphy v. Penniman [Md.] 66 A. 282. Court order authorizing receivers to settle with portion of defendants did not authorize release under seal, and hence such release did not discharge other defendants. Id. Where portion of defendants settled with receivers on understanding that release under seal would be executed to them, and such release was so executed, but without authority of court, the other defendants were not released, but the effect of the sealed release could be avoided by repayment of the amount paid by the defendants who were parties to the release. Id.

Statutory actions against directors.<sup>29</sup>

(§ 15) R. Dealings between a corporation and the directors or other officers, and personal interest in transactions.<sup>30</sup>—The officers of a corporation cannot represent it in matters in which they are interested.<sup>31</sup> An officer, therefore, cannot in his official capacity deal with himself in a personal capacity,<sup>32</sup> but the mere lending of the corporation's credit in a transaction in which an officer is interested is not necessarily fraudulent.<sup>33</sup> Nor will a transaction necessarily be stamped as fraudulent merely because an officer secures an advantage by superior diligence in looking after his rights,<sup>34</sup> nor by irregular bookkeeping by which a transaction is kept off the books of the corporation.<sup>35</sup> Nor is a director bound by an agreement with his codirectors to do an ultra vires act.<sup>36</sup> But officers and agents will not be allowed to use their official powers and authority to acquire benefits to themselves at the expense of the corporation,<sup>37</sup> or to otherwise acquire benefits in violation of their trust relation,<sup>38</sup> and they will be treated as trustees ex maleficio for the corporation as to all property<sup>39</sup> or profits<sup>40</sup> thus acquired, unless to do so might work detriment to the interests of the other party to the transaction,<sup>41</sup> and the officer is liable to an accounting in equity therefor,<sup>42</sup> and in a proper case an injunction may issue in aid of such accounting.<sup>43</sup>

31. Haines Mercantile Co. v. Highland Gold Mines Co. [Or.] 88 P. 865. Notes and mortgage executed to director to pay for stock purchased from him by another director held invalid as to creditor of corporation. Id.

32. Officer having power to lend money cannot lend money to himself or to others for his own benefit when such others know purpose of loan. McGregor v. Witham, 126 Ga. 702, 56 S. E. 55.

33. When manager borrowed money on corporation's note and turned same over to his wife, also an officer and the largest stockholder, and who paid both note and interest. Figge v. Bergenthal, 130 Wis. 594, 109 N. W. 581. Rehearing denied. Id., 110 N. W. 798. Where officers pledged own property to secure personal loan, a pledge at the same time of corporation's property to secure loan the proceeds of which went to corporation held not rendered fraudulent by clause in pledge agreement that property might be held for all debts of pledgor to pledgee where such clause was afterwards canceled. Figge v. Bergenthal, 130 Wis. 594, 109 N. W. 581.

34. A judgment against a corporation in favor of the wife of a director will not be vacated at the instance of its receiver merely because procured through selfish activity of such director and the purposeless inactivity of the other directors. Gen. Corp. Act, §§ 64, 86, Gen. St. pp. 919, 924, providing that on final dissolution of corporation its property shall be vested in its stockholders as tenants in common, having no application to such a case. Shinn v. Kummerle [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 949.

35. Where manager borrowed money for his wife on corporation's note which was not charged to the wife, who was also an officer, but the note was treated as her obligation, and she paid it and the interest thereon. Figge v. Bergenthal, 130 Wis. 594, 109 N. W. 581. Rehearing denied. Id., 110 N. W. 798.

36. Where the corporation has no power to purchase its own stock, a director may disregard an agreement with his codirectors to purchase for the corporation and may purchase for himself. Dacovich v. Canizas [Ala.] 44 So. 473.

37. President, acting as general manager, occupies fiduciary relation towards stockholders, and cannot in the course of such management secure to himself any advantage or profit not known to the stockholders. Levis v. Hammersmith [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 614.

38. Cannot acquire for own benefit lease of premises occupied by corporation. Jacksonville Cigar Co. v. Dozier [Fla.] 43 So. 523.

39. Lease of premises occupied by corporation and acquired by director. Jacksonville Cigar Co. v. Dozier [Fla.] 43 So. 523. Stock purchased with corporate funds is held in trust for corporation though it has no power to purchase such stock. Dacovich v. Canizas [Ala.] 44 So. 473. Stock of corporation purchased with corporate funds. Barker v. Montana Gold, Silver, Platinum & Tellurium Min. Co., 35 Mont. 351, 89 P. 66. It is immaterial whether such profits are derived directly or indirectly from the corporate funds. Id. When corporation's stock was purchased by officer partly with corporate and partly with own funds, he was entitled to amount of stock proportionate to amount of own funds invested. Id.

40. Sale of goods to corporation by partnership of which the manager, purchasing agent, and director of corporation was secret member. Lozier Motor Co. v. Ball, 53 Misc. 375, 104 N. Y. S. 771. Where purchasing agent purchased goods from partnership of which he was secret member. Rickert v. White, 54 Misc. 114, 105 N. Y. S. 653.

41. Enforcement of trust as to lease to director of premises occupied by corporation refused where it appeared that director requested lease to corporation which was refused by lessors for reasons which did not appear, and lease to director stipulated against subleasing. Jacksonville Cigar Co. v. Dozier [Fla.] 43 So. 523.

42. Lozier Motor Co. v. Ball, 53 Misc. 375, 104 N. Y. S. 771; Rickert v. White, 54 Misc. 114, 105 N. Y. S. 653.

or to restrain a violation of the trust relation,<sup>44</sup> but equity has no jurisdiction of a mere action for damages predicated upon the fraud of directors and persons associated with them.<sup>45</sup> The policy which forbids personal transactions between a corporation and its directors includes a director's wife,<sup>46</sup> especially where it appears that the husband is personally interested in such transaction and that it is not openly and fairly conducted.<sup>47</sup> The same policy is applicable to those in privity with corporate officers and having notice of the latter's breach of trust,<sup>48</sup> and to transactions after the termination of the trust relationship.<sup>49</sup> Dealings between a corporation and its officers are not, however, void per se<sup>50</sup> in the absence of fraud,<sup>51</sup> though they constitute bad business policy,<sup>52</sup> and even where the transaction is such that the officer cannot act without a breach of trust, it is only voidable<sup>53</sup> and may be ratified or adopted by the corporation or its stockholders,<sup>54</sup> and hence stockholders cannot sue to

Limitations: Where the acts of the officers are utterly incompatible with innocent construction and are actually known to the corporation, the doctrine that the right of action for an accounting does not accrue until the termination of the fiduciary relation has no application. Figge v. Bergenthal, 130 Wis. 594, 109 N. W. 581. Rehearing denied, Id., 110 N. W. 798. Right to equitable relief held to have accrued so as to be barred by six years' limitations, whether the cause of action be considered as cognizable in both law and equity, hence barring equitable relief regardless of time of discovery of fraud, or whether the cause of action be considered as one cognizable prior to Feb. 28, 1857 only in equity, and hence as accruing only upon discovery of fraud. Id. No demand upon the officers charged with the fraud is necessary to start limitations to running from the discovery of the fraud. Id. Suit by stockholder under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3237, 3239, to redress fraudulent wrongs to corporation by officers thereof, held not based on contractual relations within section 4226, fixing limitation on actions on open accounts. repudiate such acts without a previous demand upon the corporation to act in the premises,<sup>55</sup> nor at all where they have acquiesced in such acts.<sup>56</sup> An indirect benefit to the corporation will not validate a transaction which is invalid because of the interest of the directors,<sup>57</sup> but, where the sole beneficiaries of the transaction are the corporation's only stockholders, the corporation cannot avoid the transaction.<sup>58</sup> A corporation is not bound to return property purchased from a director as a condition to its right to sue him for secret profits.<sup>59</sup> In such a suit it is no defense that other directors not joined as defendants are equally guilty with the defendant.<sup>60</sup> The burden of proving the good faith of transactions between a corporation and its officers is upon the latter,<sup>61</sup> or persons, other than bona fide purchasers for value without notice, claiming under them.<sup>62</sup> A transaction between two corporations may be rendered invalid by reason of the interest of the officers consummating it as officers of both of the corporations,<sup>63</sup> but a dispute between two corporations arising under a contract between them does not necessarily require directors common to both corporations to resign,<sup>64</sup> and as members of their respective boards they may properly act for the interest of the respective corporations.<sup>65</sup> Incapacity by reason of directors being interested in or controlled by another corporation relates to the directors, and not to the corporation,<sup>66</sup> and the principle under which contracts between corporations with common directors may be avoided at the suit of a stockholder relates only to those contracts in which the action of the common directors concludes the contract and binds the corporations and their stockholders,<sup>67</sup> and since the avoidance of such contracts is the enforcement of a right of the corporation as such,<sup>68</sup> and such contracts may be ratified by the corporation acting through its stockholders,<sup>69</sup> such principle does not extend to cases where the acts of the directors must finally be approved and consummated by the stockholders.<sup>70</sup>

Purchase of corporate property.<sup>71</sup>—A sale by a corporation to one of its officers is not presumptively fraudulent,<sup>72</sup> but the officer will not be allowed to gain an unfair advantage,<sup>73</sup> and persons in privity with him and having notice stand in the same position relative to the sale as the stockholder.<sup>74</sup> It is not necessary to prove actual fraud in order to set aside a sale of corporate property to directors,<sup>75</sup> or to a corporate vendee controlled by them,<sup>76</sup> and such a sale may be attacked by corporation creditors.<sup>77</sup> In the enforcement of an execution in his favor against the corporation, a director may purchase at the execution sale,<sup>78</sup> and the sale will not be set aside unless it appear that some undue advantage has been taken by him by reason of his fiduciary position.<sup>79</sup> In a proper case a preliminary injunction may issue to prevent delivery of the property.<sup>80</sup>

to a stockholder as fraudulent.<sup>87</sup> A statute giving creditors an absolute right to inspect the corporation's books in connection with their claims creates a legal remedy,<sup>88</sup> and such right may be enforced by mandamus.<sup>89</sup> A petition to enforce such a right must show specifically the relation between the creditor's claim and the papers or books sought to be inspected, a general allegation that they are related being insufficient.<sup>90</sup> This may be done, however, by an allegation of the information desired and a request to examine all papers and records containing such information.<sup>91</sup> Where the right is absolute, the purpose of the demand to inspect is immaterial,<sup>92</sup> as is also the question whether such records or papers would be admissible under general rules of evidence.<sup>93</sup>

Voluntary preferences.<sup>94</sup>—Subject to the rights of bona fide purchasers for value without notice,<sup>95</sup> a voluntary preference by an insolvent corporation is invalid,<sup>96</sup> even though the creditor has no notice of the corporation's insolvency.<sup>97</sup> An intent to defraud is essential to constitute a preference within the meaning of some statutes.<sup>98</sup> Where the creditor in good faith surrenders security which cannot be restored to him, in consideration of payment or of new security, the transaction does not constitute a preference,<sup>99</sup> but the rule is different as to the excess, or where the security released has no further value to the corporation,<sup>1</sup> or where the security consists of personal indorsements.<sup>2</sup>

relative to transactions between the corporation and its officers,<sup>9</sup> nor can they invoke mere irregularities in the execution of prior liens.<sup>7</sup>

Assets for creditors.<sup>8</sup>—The assets of an insolvent corporation constitute a trust fund for its creditors<sup>9</sup> and may be followed into the hands of anyone who receives them with notice of the trust,<sup>10</sup> and the recipients will be liable to the full extent of the assets so received.<sup>11</sup> The exhaustion of his legal remedies gives the creditor a standing in equity to follow such assets though he has acquired no specific lien thereon.<sup>12</sup> Such a suit is not based upon subrogation of the creditor to the rights of the corporation but upon a constructive trust, and is in the nature of a creditors' suit to reach assets fraudulently transferred,<sup>13</sup> and limitations begin to run not from the time of the transfer but from the accrual of the creditor's right to sue.<sup>14</sup> The rule is the same where the transfer is to another corporation. Hence a corporation taking over the assets of another corporation with knowledge of its indebtedness takes such assets cum onere,<sup>15</sup> and the payment of a valuable consideration will not defeat the claims of creditors;<sup>16</sup> but where a new corporation takes over all the assets of an old corporation, giving its stock therefor but is not a continuation of the old corporation, it is liable to creditors only to the extent of the value of the property so taken over,<sup>17</sup> and the creditor's remedy is in equity only.<sup>18</sup> A transfer of property between two corporations whose chief officers are practically identical is presumptively a fraud upon creditors,<sup>19</sup> but this presumption is merely one of fact and may be overcome by clear proof of good faith.<sup>20</sup> Where property of a corporation is purchased in good faith and for value, the trust in favor of creditors does not attach to the property but only to the proceeds,<sup>21</sup> and the purchaser is not liable for the general debts of the corporation or concerned in any controversy between the corporation's creditors and the stockholders who made the exchanges,<sup>22</sup> and even in the case construed as intended to prevent exodus of employees in time of corporation's embarrassment, must be construed to give a preference to the general manager of a printing company. Buvinger v. Evening Union Printing Co. [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 482. Under corporation act, § 84, labor claims are postponed to chattel mortgages recorded more than two months prior to institution of insolvency proceedings against the corporation. Id. The fact that an employee is a director and a member of the board that employed him does not deprive him of his statutory preference as an employee. Id.

of a fraudulent conveyance the purchaser will be held liable only to the extent of the value of the property received.<sup>23</sup> Under the trust fund doctrine a corporation's property cannot be distributed as dividends as against the claims of existing creditors,<sup>24</sup> but subsequent creditors cannot complain of such a distribution.<sup>25</sup> Such doctrine, however, is not available to defeat the title of a bona fide holder of a corporation's commercial paper.<sup>26</sup>

Winding up proceedings, assignment, receivership.<sup>27</sup>—In the absence of statutory authority, equity has no inherent power to appoint a receiver solely on the ground of insolvency.<sup>28</sup> The remedy, therefore, being merely ancillary, must fail where the main action is not sustained.<sup>29</sup> Total suspension of business is not an absolute test as to insolvency authorizing a receivership.<sup>30</sup> A receiver may be appointed on the ground of fraud upon and deception of creditors.<sup>31</sup> A managing receivership is never granted except with a view of winding up the corporation's affairs.<sup>32</sup> A contract creditor of a corporation will not be heard to ask for the appointment of a receiver to collect unpaid stock subscriptions until he has reduced his claim to judgment and execution has been returned unsatisfied,<sup>33</sup> nor will the cause be retained for the benefit of such cross petitioners.<sup>34</sup> A statutory right to have a receiver is not affected by the motives of the applicant,<sup>35</sup> and may extend to nonresident creditors suing in a Federal court.<sup>36</sup> A statute providing for receiverships is not repealed by a subsequent statute providing for forfeiture proceedings where the two remedies are not inconsistent.<sup>37</sup> The authority of the receiver depends upon the terms of the order of the court.<sup>38</sup> The rights and liabilities of the creditors and debtors of an insolvent corporation are determinable as of the time of the appointment of a receiver.<sup>39</sup> The possession of the receiver under order of court is exclusive of the right of the corporate officers to deal with the property,<sup>40</sup> and such possession will be protected by a court of equity.<sup>41</sup> Merely presenting their claims to the receiver will not give creditors, not parties to the receivership proceedings, the right to appeal.<sup>42</sup> Federal court will not, through receivers appointed by it for a corporation, prevent the corporation from appealing from judgment against it.<sup>43</sup> A creditor's share on distribution of assets cannot be curtailed on account of security held by him.<sup>44</sup> Stockholders as such cannot be paid anything out of the assets until the creditors are satisfied.<sup>45</sup> The expenses of winding up take precedence even over prior encumbrances.<sup>46</sup> On the discharge of the receiver the corporation's property may be restored to the corporation subject to existing liabilities.<sup>47</sup> Assessment against stockholders is treated elsewhere.<sup>48</sup>

In re Wyoming Valley Ice Co., 153 F. 787. counting to the corporation cannot recover from it items constituting a part of such accounting until the accounting has been rendered.<sup>80</sup>

The status of officers as creditors on account of services is treated elsewhere.<sup>81</sup>

Preferences.<sup>82</sup>—A director will not be allowed to use his office to secure a preference over other creditors,<sup>83</sup> and the same rule applies to creditors associated with a director and having knowledge of his fiduciary capacity.<sup>84</sup> Nor can the directors of an insolvent corporation redeem outstanding stock and thus prefer the stockholder.<sup>85</sup> Directors may even be postponed to other creditors by reason of losses through mismanagement of the corporation.<sup>86</sup> Even where voluntary preferences are allowed, directors cannot be preferred by an insolvent corporation.<sup>87</sup> The priority of a stockholder as a creditor under a decree of court depends upon the terms of the decree.<sup>88</sup> A corporation may apply the proceeds of a sale of its property to the repayment of advancements by stockholders<sup>89</sup> or to the indemnity of officers and stockholders who have assumed corporate obligations.<sup>90</sup>

session of a stock certificate is insufficient to fix liability as a subscriber,<sup>90</sup> and a stockholder purchasing stock at par is entitled to the presumption that the original subscriber therefor paid for the stock in full, and a claim on account of unpaid subscription will not lie against such purchaser,<sup>1</sup> nor is a subscriber to full paid stock through the medium of the holder of an option thereon rendered liable because the corporation issues to him unpaid stock of another series.<sup>2</sup> One's right to enforce the liability to creditors on unpaid subscriptions depends upon his status as a creditor.<sup>3</sup> A secured creditor may pursue the stockholders,<sup>4</sup> but the stockholders are entitled to the benefits of the proper application of the securities.<sup>5</sup> Such liability may be enforced by the corporation's receiver<sup>6</sup> or trustee in bankruptcy.<sup>7</sup> In winding up proceedings the court may finally adjudge the amount of assessment on stockholders necessary to be made,<sup>8</sup> but not the liability of any persons as stockholders who are not parties to the suit by personal service.<sup>9</sup> As a general rule all the stockholders are necessary parties to a suit to enforce their subscription liability,<sup>10</sup> and where only a part of the stockholders are joined, the corporation, as the principal debtor, is, if still existent, an indispensable party,<sup>11</sup> and if it has been dissolved then all the stockholders must be made parties,<sup>12</sup> but in some jurisdictions it is held that each stockholder must be separately sued,<sup>13</sup> and then equity has no jurisdiction of a suit against several stockholders on the ground of multiplicity.<sup>14</sup> The defendant must have become a stockholder within legal contemplation,<sup>15</sup> and subscribers whose stock has been forfeited need not be joined.<sup>16</sup> A recovery of judgment against the corporation is unnecessary where it will be fruitless.<sup>17</sup> The complaint must allege a promise, either express or implied, to pay for the stock.<sup>18</sup> but payment need not be denied expressly.<sup>19</sup> Subscription liability is not necessarily discharged by a discharge in bankruptcy.<sup>20</sup> Where the liability of stockholders is several, a recovery will be apportioned against the defendants in the proportion that the amount due from each bears to the amount due from them all, and not in the proportion that the amount due from each bears to the total amount of unpaid subscriptions.<sup>21</sup> It is sometimes provided that a judgment in a suit by a single creditor will inure to the benefit of all on certain conditions.<sup>22</sup> The decree may expressly reserve the right to make defenses not concluded by the decree.<sup>23</sup> In some instances subscription liability may be enforced by way of set-off,<sup>24</sup> but the rights of creditors will not be concluded by the corporation's failure to avail itself of this remedy.<sup>25</sup> A creditor's liability as a subscriber cannot be set off by the defendant stockholders, though the corporation is made a nominal party,<sup>26</sup> but the plaintiff will be made to bear his proper proportion.<sup>27</sup>

fraudulent intent on the part of the directors,<sup>30</sup> and the illegality of the transaction is no defense.<sup>31</sup> When liability is fixed by the state constitution, it cannot be changed by charter provisions.<sup>32</sup> The stockholder's liability can be enforced only by creditors.<sup>33</sup> There is some conflict as to the effect of the creditor's knowledge of the facts, it being held on the one hand that creditors who extend credit with knowledge that stock is fictitiously paid up cannot hold the stockholder as for unpaid subscriptions,<sup>34</sup> while on the other hand it is held that the creditor's knowledge that stock issued as fully paid is not such will not relieve the stockholder from liability,<sup>35</sup> and participation in the issue of fictitiously paid up stock and receipt of a part thereof will not estop the stockholder from participating, as a creditor, in proceedings to collect unpaid subscriptions,<sup>36</sup> or estop him under the doctrine of in pari delicto, etc.<sup>37</sup> The fraudulent contract under which the stock was issued need not be set aside in an independent suit before suing to enforce the stockholder's liability.<sup>38</sup> Bona fide purchasers in open market are not liable on account of the fictitiousness of the original consideration given for the stock.<sup>39</sup>

(§ 16) F. Personal liability of stockholder for debts of corporation, and remedies.<sup>46</sup>—Stockholders or incorporators will be liable on transactions negotiated on their own credit,<sup>47</sup> but otherwise and aside from their subscription liability their liability to creditors is dependent entirely upon statute.<sup>48</sup> This statutory obligation or liability of stockholders cannot be increased without running counter of the Federal constitutional inhibition against impairment of contracts,<sup>49</sup> but the remedy for the enforcement of such liability may be changed so as to make it more efficient.<sup>50</sup> Where the rights of the creditor are fixed by dissolution, they are not affected by the subsequent extinction of the right of action against the corporation.<sup>51</sup> A discharge in bankruptcy does not necessarily discharge the bankrupt's statutory liability as a corporate stockholder.<sup>52</sup> Law and equity may have concurrent jurisdiction to enforce the statutory liability of stockholders,<sup>53</sup> and though such liability is not entirely contractual, being primarily upon the statute, it may nevertheless, in the absence of statute to the contrary, be enforced in foreign jurisdictions.<sup>54</sup>

Persons liable as stockholders.<sup>55</sup>—Statutory liability attaches to all who are stockholders<sup>56</sup> at the time of the enforcement of such liability, regardless of the date on which they became stockholders.<sup>57</sup> Under a will providing that all debts of

The amendment of § 3 of Article XIII of the constitution of the state, which went into effect November 23, 1903, repealed by implication the provision of § 3258 as to double liability of stockholders, which was in force at that time. Sheets Mfg. Co. v. Neer Mfg. Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 201. It follows, therefore, that stockholders in Ohio corporations are relieved from double liability for debts incurred by such corporations, not only from and after the legislative enactment of April 25, 1904, but from going into effect of the constitutional amendment on November 23, 1903. Id. Moreover, the provision of the constitutional amendment of Nov. 23, 1903, that "in no case shall any stockholder be individually liable otherwise than for the unpaid stock owned by him or her," does not merely indicate a line of policy without supplying the means by which such policy is to be carried into effects, but is absolutely prohibitory in its character and became self-executing. Id. Corporation organized to purchase stock and assets of implement manufacturing corporation and also for purpose of manufacturing mechanical implements, engines, etc., held not a corporation organized for purpose of carrying on manufacturing or mechanical business within Minn. 57. Umsteater v. Newark Sav. Bk. Co. 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 150. In action to enforce statutory liability of stockholders, demurrer will lie to allegation in answer that de-

the estate shall first be paid, the stock of an insolvent corporation comes into the hands of the executor as a liability and not as an asset,<sup>58</sup> but where the executor is the sole devisee, and the stock is not specifically mentioned in the will and is not accepted by the devisee, the statutory liability cannot be enforced against him personally.<sup>59</sup> The liability of other stockholders must be exhausted before enforcing that of one who has assigned his stock in good faith.<sup>60</sup>

Ascertainment of corporate liability and exhaustion of remedy against it.<sup>61</sup>—While an action to enforce stockholders' liability ought usually to be postponed until an ascertainment has been made by the receiver of the corporation as to what its assets will be, an action brought by a creditor prior to such ascertainment is not demurrable on that ground.<sup>62</sup> As a general rule the remedies against the corporation must first be exhausted,<sup>63</sup> and where this rule applies<sup>64</sup> an agreement to do so will not support a promise from the stockholders to pay the balance left unpaid.<sup>65</sup>

Limitations.<sup>66</sup>—The term of limitation depends, of course, upon the various statutes.<sup>67</sup> General limitations upon "liabilities created by statute," apply to a stockholder's statutory liability.<sup>68</sup> Where the rights of the creditor are fixed by dissolution, the statute begins to run upon dissolution.<sup>69</sup> Where there are two remedies the statute runs from time when right to pursue either accrues.<sup>70</sup> Demurrer will lie to an allegation by the executor of a deceased stockholder that he has fully settled up the estate where he does not plead the statute of limitations.<sup>71</sup> The limitation upon an action upon an assessment begins to run from the accrual of the right to sue.<sup>72</sup>

Parties.<sup>73</sup>—A court by reason of its jurisdiction of proceedings to wind up a corporation acquires no jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against a stockholder not served,<sup>74</sup> or to adjudicate the fact of such stockholder's membership in the corporation,<sup>75</sup> but it may be legally provided that assessments may be made against defendant was not stockholder at time debt mentioned in the petition was contracted. Id.

Laws, c. 110, § 44, requiring the filing with state secretary of detailed statement as to property received in payment for stock, a statement that stock was paid for in cash and invested in property rendered directors liable under Rev. Laws, c. 110, § 58, cl. 5, where the stock was paid for by check which was returned to the subscribers in exchange for their business which the corporation was organized to conduct. Id. Payment in cash which is returned to subscriber by way of loan on his note held equivalent to acceptance of note in first instance, which is forbidden by Rev. Laws, c. 110, § 44. Id. Knowledge of return of subscription money to subscriber by way of loan not imputable to director merely because by-laws provided that no loan shall be made except upon vote of directors, where no vote on loan in question is shown. Id. Evidence held to charge directors with knowledge that money received for stock was returned to subscriber by way of loan. Id. Where director does not know that stock was not paid for in cash, he cannot be charged on ground that he acted recklessly in making oath to settlement that it was so paid. Id. False statement that stock subscribed had been paid for in cash held excused by advice of counsel that the transaction constituted cash payment. Id. Attorney not incapacitated to give such advice by fact that he subscribed and paid in cash for several shares of stock. Id.

101. All directors held necessary parties to suit based on liability of directors under provision that "every director shall be personally liable for the debts incurred by the corporation during his administration to an amount not exceeding $5,000." Bauer v. Hawes, 115 App. Div. 492, 101 N. Y. S. 455. In suit against directors, a several interlocutory judgment appointing referee to take proof of claims could not be rendered, and there being no separate issues of law and fact, thus rendering Code Civ. Proc. § 1220, authorizing division of actions where such several issues are involved, § 1205 did not authorize judgment against director not appealing without new trial after reversal on appeal by another director. Id.

the feelings though no actual pecuniary loss is alleged or proved.<sup>5</sup> A wife who buries her husband's body in a lot belonging to her father, and who is authorized as administratrix to erect a monument to her husband's memory, may erect a monument within the prescribed cost limit bearing such proper inscriptions as she and her father may agree upon not in violation of the cemetery rules.<sup>6</sup> In such case the father may impose a condition to the erection of the monument that the widow shall also place the names of her father and mother thereon,<sup>7</sup> and the heirs of the deceased may not enjoin the maintenance of such names upon the monument.<sup>8</sup>

In a proper case a court of equity has power to render a decree authorizing relatives of a deceased person to disinter and remove the remains buried in a cemetery maintained by a religious congregation.<sup>9</sup> In the absence of any regulation of the congregation as to who shall determine the right to disinter, such right will be determined by the general principles of equity, and not by ecclesiastical law.<sup>10</sup> Mere membership in a congregation is insufficient to justify an inference that the member had subscribed to a rule prohibiting disinterment.<sup>11</sup>

A "morgue" is a place or house where the bodies of persons found dead are exposed for identification, or so that they may be claimed by their friends.<sup>12</sup> A statute prohibiting the establishment of any morgue in residence districts without the consent of persons residing near the proposed place does not prohibit the location of an undertaking establishment on a residence street,<sup>13</sup> nor make it unlawful to receive in a private room of such establishment bodies of known and identified persons brought by friends or relatives that funeral services may be there conducted.<sup>14</sup> of or incident to the judgment by way of compensation to the successful party and against the other.<sup>16</sup>

§ 3. Prepayment or security and suits in forma pauperis.<sup>24</sup>—A court of equity has discretionary power to require a complainant to give security for costs,<sup>25</sup> and courts of law are sometimes held to have a similar discretion.<sup>26</sup> Security for costs is required in prosecutions at the instance of a private person<sup>27</sup> who becomes liable on acquittal of accused unless the court certifies that there was probable cause for the prosecution.<sup>28</sup> In civil cases the most common statutory ground for security is the nonresidence of plaintiff.<sup>29</sup> But, in the case of a nonresident suing in a representative capacity, the right to security is not absolute, but discretionary,<sup>30</sup> except where appointment was made in another jurisdiction.<sup>31</sup> A solicitor may be liable for costs where complainant is a nonresident and security is not first filed.<sup>32</sup> But a judgment by default for a non-resident plaintiff will not be set aside for failure to file security.<sup>33</sup> Security is waived by failure to move for it in the trial court.<sup>34</sup>

Even then the application may be denied for laches,<sup>35</sup> for the absolute right to security is usually waived unless it is asserted before answer.<sup>36</sup> After answer it will be granted, not as a matter of right, but only if sufficient excuse is shown.<sup>37</sup> In Louisiana, however, the right of defendant to require security is not confined to the inception of the litigation.<sup>38</sup> A motion for security may be properly denied where plaintiff files an affidavit that he is a resident, though subsequently at the trial it appears he was not a bona fide resident.<sup>39</sup> An order denying a motion to compel a nonresident plaintiff to give security for costs is not appealable.<sup>40</sup> An order for additional security vacates an order setting the case for trial.<sup>41</sup> In requiring security to be filed, the court must allow at least as much time as the statute gives.<sup>42</sup> On showing that a bond has not been filed within the time set by the court, the action may be dismissed<sup>43</sup> unless defendant waives his right by proceeding with the case,<sup>44</sup> or it appears that plaintiff is unable to file additional security.<sup>45</sup> In the same suit, judgment may be entered as well against the surety as against plaintiff.<sup>46</sup> Only respondents in whose favor the bond runs are entitled to costs in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings.<sup>47</sup> In Texas a replevin bond does not secure the costs.<sup>48</sup>

In forma pauperis.<sup>49</sup>—In many jurisdictions one may be released from the payment of fees on filing an affidavit that he is a poor person,<sup>50</sup> and in such case the court cannot require a promise of reimbursement out of the proceeds,<sup>51</sup> or impose other conditions.<sup>52</sup> An ex parte order requiring security can only be vacated on motion regularly made and proper showing of poverty.<sup>53</sup> Mandamus lies to compel a court to allow a poor person to sue,<sup>54</sup> but defects in application cannot be amended in the appellate court,<sup>55</sup> and the statutory provisions must be strictly complied with.<sup>56</sup> In Federal courts, in such cases, the attorney, without regard to his contract, is entitled to reasonable compensation, to be determined by the court;<sup>57</sup> but, where plaintiff's attorney is financially interested in the result of an action, plaintiff cannot sue in forma pauperis without a showing that the attorney was unable to give security.<sup>58</sup> Where suit has been dismissed, plaintiff cannot bring another suit on the same cause of action without paying costs of first suit, or filing a pauper affidavit.<sup>59</sup> But this is unnecessary if second action is brought against additional parties.<sup>60</sup> One suing in a representative capacity may sue as a poor person and be relieved of payment of costs of previous action for same cause.<sup>61</sup>

§ 4. Parties entitled to or liable for costs in general.<sup>62</sup>—In the absence of statute, costs will be imposed against representatives individually.<sup>63</sup> This will always be so where the representative is really acting in his individual capacity,<sup>64</sup> or where acting in bad faith.<sup>65</sup> But frequently representatives will be allowed costs and counsel fees in litigation against the estate.<sup>66</sup> Where they are liable, representatives and others may be taxed jointly, in the discretion of the court.<sup>67</sup> Costs cannot be taxed against the state in the absence of statutory authority,<sup>68</sup> but, where it is permitted, the state, and not relators, should be taxed where the state was solely benefited by the proceeding.<sup>69</sup> Costs may be allowed against public

59. Failure a ground for plea in abatement. Board of Education of Tennille v. Kelley, 126 Ga. 479, 55 S. E. 238. That clerk of court at request of counsel for plaintiff charged the cost to counsel did not constitute payment thereof. Id. Two previous suits for same cause of action dismissed, and as proper affidavit had been filed in third it was immaterial if costs of first suit had not been paid or affidavit filed in second suit. Seaboard Air-Line R. v. Randolph, 126 Ga. 238, 55 S. E. 47. No showing that dismissal was intended to harass defendant, or burden him with unnecessary costs. Hobbs v. Louisville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 818. Court has discretion to refuse to dismiss a third action, where costs on two previous dismissals had not been paid, on showing plaintiff unable to pay and had a meritorious case. In first case, evidence ruled out and plaintiff allowed to amend on payment of costs which he failed to make and case dismissed; in second case there was voluntary nonsuit on account of surprise by certain evidence. Odegard v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 659, 110 N. W. 809.

60. First suit against individual dismissed,

86. Court directed verdict for a party of its own accord which was set aside on appeal, but said party was taxed with costs as he had not demanded that the case be submitted to the jury. Haak v. Kellogg, 146 Mich. 541, 13 Det. Leg. N. 855, 109 N. W. 1068. Expenses of citing a nonresident defendant by publication, and fees of his attorney appointed by the court, should not be taxed against plaintiff who prevailed in an action to cancel a forged deed. Bruce v. Knodell [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 433. Defendant prevailed and entitled to full costs including witness fees to term of court from which there had been a change of venue. American Foundry & Furnace Co. v. Berlin Board of Education [Wis.] 110 N. W. 403.

87. Person defending was not the person intended to be sued though his name was same as in summons except middle initial omitted, and he was properly served, not coming in officiously as a defendant. City of New York v. Ackerman, 51 Misc. 424, 101 N. Y. S. 687.

88. Dismissal as to one party, and plaintiff liable. Bruce v. Knodell [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 433.

89. Discretionary; where court awards without application, the remedy is an order striking from judgment that part awarding costs. Ljungqvist v. Hartmetz, 104 N. Y. S. 498.

8. In suit to recover possession of street, defendant on trial admitted right of village, and offered at once to surrender possession. Village of Shumway v. Leturno [Ill.] 80 N. E. 403.

9. Practically all costs incurred on items are frequently awarded to abide the event,<sup>10</sup> but, where there is a reversal and judgment absolute, a party is entitled to costs all through.<sup>11</sup> Costs will be adjudged against the judgment debtor up to the time he made his application for an allowance in lieu of homestead; costs made thereafter must be paid by the execution creditor.<sup>12</sup>

(§ 5) B. Waiver of right and effect of tender or offer of judgment.<sup>13</sup>—Where a defendant offers to allow judgment for a certain sum and accrued costs, and on rejection plaintiff fails to recover a sum equal thereto, he cannot recover subsequently accruing costs.<sup>14</sup> Where plaintiff recovers a certain sum which together with interest is more than defendant's offer, he may tax costs.<sup>15</sup> To make a tender effectual, the money should be paid into court and proper disclaimer made and proved at trial.<sup>16</sup> It is not necessary that offer of judgment in admiralty should include docket or deposition fees.<sup>17</sup> If an offer is withdrawn, costs should be taxed as if it had not been made.<sup>18</sup>

§ 6. Right dependent on minimum amount of demand or recovery.<sup>19</sup>—Where except for the amount claimed an action could have been brought in a lower court,<sup>20</sup> particularly before a justice of the peace,<sup>21</sup> and the jurisdictional or other fixed amount is not recovered,<sup>22</sup> no costs will be awarded a successful plaintiff unless defendant was not personally served,<sup>23</sup> or the lower court did not have jurisdiction,<sup>24</sup> as on account of the fact that defendant was a city.<sup>25</sup> An appellant from a justice court is liable for costs in appellate court if he recovers less than he did below.<sup>26</sup>

24. Costs given in action for neglect to return a note where amount of note was in excess of jurisdiction of justice of peace, though only nominal damages were awarded. Kiblinger Co. v. Sauk Bk. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 709.

25. Costs allowed in supreme court though less than $500 was recovered, as city could not be sued in city court. O'Connor v. New York, 51 Misc. 560, 101 N. Y. S. 295.

26. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1436; subject to court's discretion. Julius Kessler & Co. v.

Frequently in actions of tort where the damages recovered are less than a certain fixed amount there can be no more costs than there are damages recovered,<sup>27</sup> unless a certificate of the judge is made that greater damages should have been awarded.<sup>28</sup> No costs are awarded in Federal court if the recovery is less than five hundred dollars.<sup>29</sup> A plaintiff's action in remitting part of the damages has the same effect as if the verdict had originally been returned for that sum.<sup>30</sup>

A. In general.<sup>31</sup>—An action on liquor dealer's bond is an action on a contract and not for a penalty, and it carries costs.<sup>32</sup> In admiralty the prevailing libellant is entitled to costs unless the libel is prematurely brought,<sup>33</sup> or the recovery is less than an offer,<sup>34</sup> or there are cross appeals.<sup>35</sup> A libellant is not liable for costs of third party unnecessarily brought in by the claimant.<sup>36</sup>

Burckell [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 173. In justice court, plaintiff demanded judgment of $175, but defendant insisting judgment should be according to evidence, it was given for $187.50; on appeal plaintiff recovered only $175, but was allowed costs in both courts. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Bennett [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 137.

27. Plaintiff recovered $1 and allowed $1 costs where originally contract, and the tort count had been subsequently added, costs being discretionary as to the contract count. Scharff v. Schultz, 79 Conn. 304, 64 A. 737. Twenty dollars, or certificate of judge that greater sum should have been awarded, but this has application to circuit, not to county courts. Clark v. (§ 7) E. On appeal or error.<sup>70</sup>—Costs are ordinarily allowed the prevailing party,<sup>71</sup> though on reversal only part of respondents may be taxed where there are separate interests<sup>72</sup> or they file separate briefs.<sup>73</sup> But on cross appeals,<sup>74</sup> or where the judgment is affirmed as to some and reversed as to others,<sup>75</sup> or where a question of public interest is involved,<sup>76</sup> costs may be discretionary. A prevailing party is not entitled to costs where he was responsible for the error, as where he pursued the wrong remedy,<sup>77</sup> or failed to call trial court's attention to the error,<sup>78</sup> urging it for the first time in the appellate court,<sup>79</sup> or where he merely raises an academic question.<sup>80</sup> So appellants are not liable for costs where the order appealed from was erroneous at the time of appeal, though the error thereafter became harmless.<sup>81</sup> An unsuccessful respondent is liable for the costs of an appeal though he finally prevails,<sup>82</sup> so, though costs are given to a party to abide the event, the other party cannot tax the costs of that appeal on his subsequently prevailing.<sup>83</sup> Where a plea in bar to a writ of error was sustained and amendment allowed on payment of costs, plaintiff in error cannot on reversal tax costs of briefs filed before the amendment.<sup>84</sup>

37. Reviewable on appeal in court of appeals as question of law where facts undisputed. Campbell v. Emslie [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 458. Addressed to discretion of trial court and reviewable only for abuse of discretion. Rowe v. Granger, 118 App. Div. 459, 103 N. Y. S. 439. Not allowed for expense in procuring record of trial in another state on plea of res judicata. Campbell v. Emslie [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 458.

38. Agreed on disposition of case without trial, though no agreement as to facts. Campbell v. Emslie [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 458.

39. Fifteen dollars, but not allowed where counterclaim dismissed. Benning v. Pouker, 104 N. Y. S. 409.

40. Judgment ordering a party to pay specific sum of money into court, and authorizing adverse party to withdraw it as soon as paid, is a judgment for the payment of money, and entitled to ten per cent damages. Robinson Norton & Co. v. Corsican Cotton Factory [Ky.] 102 S. W. 869.

41. St. 1865-66, p. 66, c. 91, allowing, in San Francisco, the prevailing party five per cent, not exceeding $100 on the amount recovered, together with disbursements is not repealed. Doyle v. Eschen [Cal. App.] 89 P. 836.

42. See 7 C. L. 970.

43. All being properly a part of the appellate proceedings therein. McGourin v. DeFuniak Springs [Fla.] 42 So. 187.

44. Additional abstract filed by appellee being necessary to supply omissions. Manufacturers' Fuel Co. v. White [Ill.] 81 N. E. 841.

45. To insert matters overlooked by his attorney and necessitated reprinting of record. Volhard v. Volhard, 115 App. Div. 548, 101 N. Y. S. 453.

46. Though done at instance of plaintiff in error, and not of clerk, where it was accepted and no objection made. Jayne v. Loder [C. C. A.] 153 F. 739. Clerk taxed the reasonable cost which was overruled. Receipted bills attached to affidavit and was liable for actual cost. Portland Iron Works v. Willett [Or.] 90 P. 1000.

47. Printed pages six and one-half inches in length, when rule 18 required them to be seven inches, and taxation therefor refused. Clark v. Else [S. D.] 111 N. W. 543.

48. Insurance companies took separate appeals with separate transcripts which were consolidated in appellate court, and costs not allowed on separate transcripts. Nixon v. Malone [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 278, 490, 93 S. W. 380.

49. Appellant taxed one-third for unduly prolix bill of exceptions. Bessemer Coal, Iron & Land Co. v. Doak [Ala.] 44 So. 627. Charges given or refused may be brought up for review with exceptions noted under statute or in the ordinary bill of exceptions, but not in both ways and if it is done the transcript then contains unnecessary matter which cannot be taxed. West v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 445. Rule 7 provides record of former appeal may be placed with the new, and accordingly cost of copying transcript of former appeal was disallowed. Sandy River Cannel Coal Co. v. White House Cannel Coal Co. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 320. Deducted the cost of printing twenty-eight pages of respondent's brief containing unnecessary matter reprinted from the abstract. State v. Richardson [N. D.] 109 N. W. 1026. Pleas of privilege and bills of exceptions not made the basis of any assignment of error. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 847, 96 S. W. 1087.

50. Full copy of stenographer's minutes amounting to three hundred and ninety-four pages where one hundred pages would have been sufficient. Fruit Dispatch Co. v. Le Seno, 147 Mich. 149, 110 N. W. 526.

51. Papers inserted by appellee had some bearing on the case, and master's report, though prolix, was not padded. Reid v. Southern Development Co. [Fla.] 42 So. 206.

52. Penalty ten per cent. Florence Oil & Refining Co. v. First Nat. Bk. [Colo.] 88 P. 182.

53. Appeal from refusal to direct verdict where conflicting evidence of negligence and correct instructions. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Edwards, 80 Ark. 273, 96 S. W. 1061. Needlessly consumed time of court, and har-faith.<sup>54</sup> In Kentucky, where a supersedeas is filed and the judgment is for the payment of money, ten per cent damages may be awarded.<sup>55</sup>

assessed collection of debt. Twenty per cent. penalty. Florence Oil & Refining Co. v. McRae [Colo.] 90 P. 507.

54. An appeal in order to obtain a review by the U. S. supreme court, though there was no question presented to state supreme court, was not penalized. Bonner v. Gorman [Ark.] 101 S. W. 1153.

55. Does not apply to action to enjoin collection of a tax where injunction continued and bond given pending an appeal. Bell's Trustee v. Lexington, 30 Ky. L. R. 609, 99 S. W. 344.

56. See 7 C. L. 973.

57. Liability can be adjudged only on rule to show cause. Walker v. Doty [S. C.] 57 S. E. 181.

58. Action to declare deed a mortgage. Opinion was no part of the findings and decision and without legal effect when in conflict with them. Wadleigh v. Phelps, 149 Cal. 627, 87 P. 93.

59. Where filed within ten days from signing the judgment, but more than ten days after it was ordered and entered on the minutes, it was too late. Kinsley v. New Vulture Min. Co. [Ariz.] 90 P. 433.

60. One seeking to have costs awarded generally in appellate court, taxed in lower court, must comply, for otherwise one would be deprived of his property without due process of law. Bell v. Superior Court of San Francisco [Cal.] 87 P. 1031. Costs taxed without notice may be vacated on motion at subsequent term. Beeman & Cashin Mercantile Co. v. Sorenson [Wyo.] 89 P. 745. Defendant duly taxed costs on notice, from which plaintiff appealed, and proper to enter costs without notice on filing of remittitur, as party had had his day in court. Gaffey v. Mann [Cal. App.] 91 P. 172. Where the statute allows $15 costs and disbursements, a confession of judgment including $16.68 costs and disbursements is not irregular, although it does not appear that they were formally taxed by the clerk, he having certified the judgment. Anderson v. Shutts, 114 App. Div. 308, 99 N. Y. S. 893.

61. Burden of showing the contrary on party disputing them unless they appear bad on their face. Brande v. Babcock Hardware Co. [Mont.] 88 P. 949.

62. Though not verified, but accompanied by supplemental affidavit, that is a sufficient compliance. Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co. v. Doernbecher Mfg. Co. [Or.] 87 P. 530.

63. Where a party appears and objects to items of taxation, he cannot thereafter move for a retaxation on the ground that the first had been prematurely made. Statute required memorandum to be filed five days after verdict or notice of decision, defendant filed memorandum after special finding of jury but before conclusions were made by court, and plaintiff contested on the merits. Smith v. Alvord [Utah] 88 P. 16.

64. Struck out item on his own initiative. La Rosa v. Wilner, 104 N. Y. S. 952.

65. On review only such papers can be used as were before the clerk. La Rosa v. Wilner, 104 N. Y. S. 952. Too late at subsequent term except for statutory cause allowing court to set aside or modify a judgment. Meade Plumbing, Heating & Lighting Co. v. Irwin [Neb.] 109 N. W. 391. Witness allowed mileage of more than twenty miles, but too late to retax after three months had elapsed. Moritz v. Herskovitz [Wash.] 89 P. 560.

66. Witnesses subpoenaed from another county can only be allowed mileage for distance traveled in county of trial. Smith v. Bartlett [Neb.] 110 N. W. 991.

67. Cannot be stricken from bill. La Rosa v. Wilner, 104 N. Y. S. 952.

68. Board of supervisors have power to audit though taxed by justice of peace to a constable. McGuire v. Iowa County, 133 Iowa, 636, 111 N. W. 34.

69. Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co. v. Doernbecher Mfg. Co. [Or.] 87 P. 530. Error to tax $100 for transcribing stenographer's notes used in lower court. An executor taxed with costs personally is not entitled to a review unless he makes himself a party individually. Meyer v. O'Rourke [Cal.] 88 P. 706. Where improper charges imposed on party amending, it may be corrected on appeal, and he is not required to tender proper amount. Williams v. Myer [Cal.] 89 P. 972. Duty of parties to file statement of items and upon failure to do so the court will not, after expiration of term, order a retaxation. McGouri v. DeFuniak Springs [Fla.] 42 So. 187.

70. Taxed by clerk, retaxation on appeal to circuit court. McGilvray v. Manistee Circuit Judge, 146 Mich. 480, 13 Det. Leg. N. 835, 109 N. W. 852.

considered incidentally in connection with appeal from the whole decree.<sup>71</sup> The appeal will be dismissed if not taken within proper time,<sup>72</sup> which runs from time taxation was finally completed.<sup>73</sup> On dismissal the question cannot be reviewed on the bill of exceptions.<sup>74</sup> The appellate court has no authority to tax costs,<sup>75</sup> and where discretionary will not alter on appeal unless abuse shown.<sup>76</sup> A judgment that a decree is reversed with costs is sufficient,<sup>77</sup> and, in absence of statute, costs in supreme court should be taxed by clerk, subject to review by court.<sup>78</sup> The judgment may be entered against sureties on appeal bonds.<sup>79</sup> Costs taxed by appellate court cannot be altered by clerk of lower court.<sup>80</sup>

§ 10. Enforcement and payment.<sup>81</sup>—The failure to pay motion costs operates as a stay of all proceedings except those to review or vacate the order.<sup>82</sup> It is proper to impose condition on amendment,<sup>83</sup> or grant of a discretionary new trial,<sup>84</sup> that party shall pay accrued costs. Before one is entitled to a voluntary dismissal of an appeal, costs must be paid.<sup>85</sup> The failure<sup>86</sup> to pay required docketing fee in advance<sup>87</sup> will not deprive the court of jurisdiction,<sup>88</sup> but costs must be paid before an appeal can be perfected.<sup>89</sup> Where security is given, one may recover in one action costs of trial and appeal.<sup>90</sup> The judgment for costs on an appeal may be offset

74. Campbell v. First Nat. Bank [Idaho] 88 P. 639. Bill of exceptions will be stricken from transcript. Id.

75. Where reversal for failure to allow plaintiff's attorney's fees in a successful prosecution of a liquor nuisance. Plank v. Hertha, 132 Iowa, 213, 109 N. W. 732. Motion to retax costs in appellate court only questions propriety of costs in that court, not of costs in trial court. Terminal R. Ass'n v. Larkins, 127 Ill. App. 80.

76. Partial costs allowed in mechanic's lien foreclosure. Boesen v. Preston, 130 Wis. 418, 110 N. W. 208. No review of action of trial judge in giving certificate that plaintiff was entitled to greater damages, which prevents costs from being limited to the amount of the damages. Buford v. Christian [Ala.] 42 So. 997.

77. Carries the costs duly taxed by the clerk. Santa Clara Valley Mill & Lumber Co. v. Prescott, 127 Ill. App. 644.

78. Statute held to apply only to trial court, and required objections to be verified. Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co. v. Doernbecher Mfg. Co. [Or.] 87 P. 530.

79. Comp. Laws, § 933, as well as against appellant. Also applies where appeal by writ of certiorari. Knack v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 147 Mich. 485, 111 N. W. 161.

80. Claim not entitled because no notice of argument or any oral or written argument made; can only be urged on motion for resettlement of order. Hill v. Muller, 53 Misc. 262, 103 N. Y. S. 96. But may make its judgment conform to mandate. Chapman v. Hughes, 3 Cal. App. 622, 86 P. 908.

81. See 7 C. L. 975.

82. But where amended answer was permitted, but was not served on account of defendant's sickness, it was excusable and he was entitled to an order requiring plaintiff to accept answer, and he could make a trial amendment notwithstanding failure to pay costs. Tracy v. Lichtenstadter, 113 App. Div. 754, 99 N. Y. S. 331.

83. Not merely costs of motion. Palazzo v. Degnon MacLean Contracting Co., 115 App. Div. 172, 100 N. Y. S. 681. Accrued taxable costs, not merely costs of motion. Parties improperly joined. Town of Palatine v. Canajoharie Water Supply Co., 116 App. Div. 530, 101 N. Y. S. 810. Entitled to costs after notice and before trial, including a trial fee. Costs on demurrer not properly taxable under order of appellate term granting leave to plead over. Hill v. Muller, 53 Misc. 262, 103 N. Y. S. 96. May require party to pay costs already incurred and counsel fees, but cannot oblige party to pay county expenses, as to per diem and mileage of jurors. Williams v. Myer [Cal.] 89 P. 972.

84. Hart v. Kaplan, 52 Misc. 653, 101 N. Y. S. 763.

85. Fort v. Fort [Tenn.] 101 S. W. 433.

86. To pay docket fees does not deprive court of jurisdiction of appeal from justice court. Whether should operate a continuance is for court to determine on motion. Johnson v. Anna Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 126 Ill. App. 592.

87. If filing fee on appeal from justice court is not paid, other party entitled to pay and have appeal dismissed, such payment not being voluntary. Little v. Blank [Utah] 87 P. 708.

88. Action to determine validity of general statement of consent for sale of liquor in county, and refused to dismiss for failure to pay docketing fee where case had already been docketed. Dye v. Augur [Iowa] 110 N. W. 323.

89. All costs in Corning City court except attorney's fee. Rising v. Sebring, 104 N. Y. S. 486.

11. Pol. Code, § 3969, authorizing resurvey of inadequately marked boundary lines, jury.<sup>13</sup> And in the absence of a constitutional inhibition, provision therefor may be made by special act,<sup>14</sup> but to justify a resurvey, conditions contemplated by the statute must exist.<sup>15</sup> The legislature may, in advance of actual survey, declare a line to be subsequently marked the legal boundary of the county<sup>16</sup> and may declare the line established conclusive, though it varies from the statutory designation.<sup>17</sup> Meander lines on water boundaries are not favored,<sup>18</sup> the thread of the stream being usually taken as the true boundary.<sup>19</sup> The validity of an extension of county boundaries cannot be collaterally attacked,<sup>20</sup> but an illegal change of boundaries may be enjoined at the suit of a resident citizen and taxpayer.<sup>21</sup> Though counties cannot vary boundaries established by statute, their conduct may be of aid in construing an ambiguous statute.<sup>22</sup>

contemplates the remarking of the line previously established, and not the making of a new and independent line, though former line did not correspond with latitudinal boundary declared by statute. Trinity County v. Mendocino County [Cal.] 90 P. 685.

12. Pol. Code, §§ 3969-3972, providing for joint survey of inadequately marked boundaries by county surveyors or by surveyor general, and Sp. Act Mar. 30, 1872, providing for survey commission for certain counties with power to appoint surveyor to run and mark previously established line, held not so inconsistent as to repeal either. Trinity County v. Mendocino County [Cal.] 90 P. 685. Pol. Code, §§ 3914, 3918, 3919, providing that fortieth parallel of north latitude should constitute common boundary of certain counties, held a codification of prior laws on subject, and it therefor did not repeal Sp. Act Mar. 30, 1872, providing for survey commission to run and mark such boundaries, nor nullify survey made thereunder. Id.

13. In fixing county boundaries, the state has no power to destroy private property without providing compensation to the owners. Laws 1902, p. 1125, c. 473, appropriating $40,000 to pay expenses of survey of disputed boundaries, held not to provide compensation for injury to private property caused thereby. Litchfield v. Pond, 186 N. Y. 66, 78 N. E. 719.

14. Legislature may provide for survey of boundaries by special act though general law contains provision therefor. Trinity County v. Mendocino County [Cal.] 90 P. 685.

15. Pol. Code, § 3969, authorizing resurvey of inadequately marked boundary lines, does not authorize such survey where line has been run and marked pursuant to Sp. Act March 30, 1872, merely because line did not coincide with previously declared but unmarked latitudinal boundary unless monuments had been destroyed so that line was no longer adequately marked. Trinity County v. Mendocino County [Cal.] 90 P. 685.

16. May in advance of survey declare line subsequently run and marked according to a previously declared latitudinal boundary conclusive without rendering the act void as an unconstitutional delegation of power. Trinity County v. Mendocino County [Cal.] 90 P. 685.

17. Words "accurately run" and thoroughly mark boundary line of county according to fortieth parallel of north latitude, in act authorizing creation of survey commission with power to appoint surveyor to run and mark county boundaries, held directory merely, and line surveyed pursuant thereto constituted the true boundary though it did not coincide with latitudinal line. Trinity County v. Mendocino County [Cal.] 90 P. 685.

Caddo Parish*, 118 La. 938, 43 So. 556. Water boundary construed and thread of stream through lake caused by overflow held line between two parishes. Parish of Caddo v. De Soto Parish [La.] 43 So. 978. Where an island in an unnavigable stream forming the boundary line between two counties lies substantially south of what would be the middle thread of the entire stream, extending only eight or ten feet north thereof, and the channel south of the island is not more than half the width of that on the north, the boundary line follows the thread of the northern channel, and the island lies in the southern county. *Overly v. 24. The legislature may confer upon a special commission full power to construct public buildings. Commission created under 97 Ohio Laws, p. 111, as amended by 98 Ohio Laws, p. 53, held to have full power to construct courthouse, §§ 794-801, Rev. St., not being applicable. Mackenzie v. State [Ohio] 81 N. E. 638. Board of supervisors held to have power to construct an additional courthouse where county was divided into more than one jury district. Lyon v. Steuben County Sup'rs, 115 App Div. 193, 100 N. Y. S. 676. Building committee appointed under P. Hospital for the insane, constructed by a county, is a county building though conducted at expense of state, and hence erection of an extension thereto comes within an inhibition buildings is entirely a matter of statutory regulation. Under the Oklahoma separate school act, an alienable title to school buildings constructed by the county does not vest in it,<sup>26</sup> and the county board has no power to interfere with school officers in the control and management of schools.<sup>27</sup> A constitutional convention assembled to revise and amend a constitution has no power to enact an ordinance providing for additional court houses in certain counties.<sup>28</sup>

Removal of county seats.<sup>29</sup>—Common statutory conditions to removal of county seats are the giving of proper notice,<sup>30</sup> the filing of a petition,<sup>31</sup> and a bond conditioned to pay all expenses of election in the event of the project being voted down,<sup>32</sup> and the consent of the electors as signified by a majority vote<sup>33</sup> at an election held pursuant to a valid statute.<sup>34</sup> Irregularities in the election not affecting the result<sup>35</sup> do not render it nugatory, nor does the fact that some of the commissioners voting for submission were remotely interested vitiate an otherwise valid removal.<sup>36</sup> Strict compliance with a statute requiring publication of notice of election is not required,<sup>37</sup> substantial compliance being sufficient.<sup>38</sup> That a prior election was defective does not prevent resubmission.<sup>39</sup> Failure of public officers to take action within the time required by law does not cause proceedings to lapse.<sup>40</sup> A change of site for the location of county buildings does not come within the purview of an act relating to the change of the county seat itself,<sup>41</sup> nor does the building of an additional courthouse against expenditure of more than $1,000 in any year for public building without submission to vote of people. Superintendents of Poor of Wayne County v. Auditors of Wayne County, 147 Mich. 384, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 110 N. W. 1080.

25. The board of revenue, possessing powers formerly held by court of county commissioners, has full power and control over public buildings, and may assign and reassign rooms in courthouse to different county officers. White v. Hewlett, 143 Ala. 374, 42 So. 78.

31. Several petitions for relocation of a county seat at the same place, and praying for an election to be held at the same time, constitute but one petition. One bond suffices for all. Chambers v. Cline, 60 W. Va. 588, 55 S. E. 999.

32. Bond held sufficient and to have been tendered in time. Chambers v. Cline, 60 W. Va. 588, 55 S. E. 999.

33. Const. § 41, requiring majority vote of qualified voters of county as condition to removal, held to mean a majority of votes cast, and not a majority of all qualified electors. Ex parte Owens [Ala.] 42 So. 676.

34. Acts 1903, p. 117, regulating removal of county seats and providing for all counties according to their needs, held not to infringe constitutional requirement of uniformity of election laws. Ex parte Owens [Ala.] 42 So. 676.

35. Failure of board to furnish inspectors holding election a certified list of registered voters in each precinct of county, or failure of voters to produce certificates of registration, and receipts of tax collector showing payment of poll taxes, etc., held a mere irregularity in absence of showing that illegal ballots were received which affected result. Court of Com'rs of Washington County v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 465.

36. That two commissioners were stockholders in corporation donating site for courthouse in proposed location does not invalidate removal. Court of Com'rs of Washington County v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 465.

37. Sufficient if such notice was given that great body of electors were in fact informed of the time and purposes of the election. Court of Com'rs of Washington County v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 465.

38. Publication held sufficient though notice was not published for four consecutive weeks within time required by statute. Court of Com'rs of Washington County v. State [Ala.] 44 So. 465.

39. Where an election to determine the question of removal of a county seat has been held a nullity, the matter may be again submitted at an election called for that purpose. Chambers v. Cline, 60 W. Va. 588, 55 S. E. 999.

40. Erroneous order of court requiring board to hear and determine petition for removal without directing giving of statutory notice held not to prevent consideration of petition upon giving of notice. Kaufer v. Ford, 100 Minn. 49, 110 N. W. 364.

41. P. L. 1903, p. 47, authorizing change of location of county buildings, and requiring submission to vote, construed as relating only to a removal of the county seat. Christie v. Freeholders of Bergen County [N. J. Law] 66 A. 1073.

in a different city constitute a removal.<sup>42</sup> Under an act authorizing removal to any city, town, or village, a village selected need not be incorporated,<sup>43</sup> and the fact that in such case its limits are necessarily undefined is immaterial.<sup>44</sup> A judgment compelling the county board to reconvene to hear and determine a petition for the removal of a county seat is conclusive of the jurisdiction of the board in a subsequent action to restrain removal.<sup>45</sup> Under a statute making proceedings of county court for removal of a county seat final, a writ of error does not lie to review its determination.<sup>46</sup> A territorial act submitting the question of removal to the voters of the county may be subsequently ratified by congress.<sup>47</sup>

§ 2. Officers; personal rights and liabilities.<sup>48</sup>—The eligibility, appointment or election, mode of qualifying, term of office, right to deputies, compensation, and civil and criminal liability of county officers, and the liability of their bondsmen, in so far as the law governing same is equally applicable to other public officers, is treated in a separate article.<sup>49</sup> A general provision as to holding over yields to a special provision that, upon consummation of consolidation, terms of officers of consolidated municipality shall cease.<sup>50</sup>

§ 3. Public powers, duties, and liabilities. A. General powers, duties and liabilities.<sup>51</sup>—Counties being involuntary governmental corporations<sup>52</sup> can exercise only such powers as are expressly conferred, or necessarily implied, or essential to carry out the powers conferred.<sup>53</sup> The levy and collection of taxes,<sup>54</sup> establishment and maintenance of roads,<sup>55</sup> bridges,<sup>56</sup> drainage works,<sup>57</sup> the regulation of health,<sup>58</sup> and the care of paupers,<sup>59</sup> and analogous matters, are delegated more or less to counties. These matters are treated in appropriate articles.

Contracts, debts, and expenditures.*<sup>2</sup>—Contracts by public governmental bodies are fully treated in a separate article.<sup>3</sup> Practically the only questions arising from such contracts which may be properly treated here are ratification and estoppel to assert the invalidity of unauthorized contracts. Ultra vires contracts are void<sup>4</sup> and cannot be ratified by unauthorized acts of county officers,<sup>5</sup> nor do such acts operate as an estoppel.<sup>6</sup>

Debts and expenditures.<sup>7</sup>—The nature and extent of the indebtedness which a county may legally incur, and the manner in which its funds may be expended, are usually limited by constitutional<sup>8</sup> and statutory provisions, among the most common of which are inhibitions against expenditure for other than county purposes,<sup>9</sup> or beyond a certain percentage of the current tax levy,<sup>10</sup> or in excess of the taxing power of the county; but it has been held that such a provision does not apply to ordinary and incidental expenses.<sup>11</sup> The estimate made by the board of probable county expenditures does not constitute a rule for the disbursement of county funds,<sup>12</sup> nor does such an estimate operate as an appropriation of the levy based upon it, or as an apportionment among the several purposes specified.<sup>13</sup> A new county is liable for all usual current expenses of the county from which it was taken incurred after its creation, but during the year of its creation and before its organization.<sup>14</sup>

Bonds.<sup>15</sup>—The power to issue and purposes for which bonds may be lawfully issued, together with necessary preliminaries to issuance, is treated in a separate ar-

(§ 3) F. Property and funds.<sup>22</sup>—Where for purposes of appropriation county moneys are divided into separate funds, receipts<sup>23</sup> must be allotted to and appropriations<sup>24</sup> made from designated funds.

Depositories.<sup>25</sup>—Statutes of most states provide for the selection of county depositories, frequently requiring banks selected to be situated in the county,<sup>26</sup> and limiting the amount which may be deposited in any of several depositories.<sup>27</sup> Such statutes are not unconstitutional because discriminating in favor of state or national as against private banks<sup>28</sup> or natural persons.<sup>29</sup> Power to designate county depositories does not confer power on the board to specify the amount which must be deposited in each,<sup>30</sup> this, in such case, being discretionary with the treasurer, subject to statu-

23. Interest received from depositories must be credited to the general fund, and can be disbursed only as other moneys belonging to that fund. Where general fund of certain years cannot be drawn on to pay warrants issued against levy for subsequent year, interest thereon cannot be used for such purpose. State v. Clark [Neb.] 112 N. W. 857.

L. 274), nor is the manifest purpose of the act to keep the public funds of a particular county within the natural and usual channels of trade in that county, subverted by an award of these funds to a bank situated in another part of the state. State v. Oviatt, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 481.

27. That treasurer had on deposit in a county depository a sum $1,100 in excess of its pro rata share held not to render him liable therefor, no bad faith being shown, and such sum not being in excess of prohibition against deposit of more than half amount of bond. Holt County v. Cronin [Neb.] 112 N. W. 561.

28. The Ohio act providing for county depositories (98 O. L. 274), does not fall of uniform operation throughout the state by reason of the provision that in counties where there are located banks or trust companies incorporated under the laws of the state of Ohio, or of the United States, such banks only shall be regarded as eligible to bid for and receive the county funds, but, in counties where there are no such banks located, private banks may be awarded these funds. State v. Oviatt, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 481.

29. The Ohio act providing for county depositories (98 O. L. 274) is not in contravention of sections 1 or 2 of article 1 of the state constitution, or of the fourteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States, by reason of the fact that it discriminates against natural persons and in favor of banks and trust companies. State v. Oviatt, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 481.

tory limitations.<sup>31</sup> Where preliminary steps have been complied with, designation may be made nunc pro tunc.<sup>32</sup> An unauthorized depository may be required to account for interest received on public funds.<sup>33</sup> The relations between counties and their depositories is that of debtor and creditor,<sup>34</sup> hence a depository is not a public officer,<sup>35</sup> and the bond given by him is not in the strict sense an official bond.<sup>36</sup> This being true, the debt is a continuous one and the sureties are liable, although losses occurred during a period covered by a prior bond.<sup>37</sup> Statutes governing county depositories will be read into the conditions of the bond.<sup>37</sup> Mere irregularities in the bond do not affect the liability of the sureties,<sup>39</sup> and, as against them, a bond is valid although no preliminary order designating the depository was entered.<sup>40</sup> Failure of the depository to pay public funds in his possession on demand creates an actionable breach of the bond.<sup>41</sup> The depository's sureties are not liable for defalcations of the county treasurer.<sup>42</sup>

37. Where preceding depository did not turn over to his successor at end of his term county funds in his possession, and latter paid all drafts presented by treasurer until insolvency, sureties on his bond were held liable though deficit occurred prior to execution of bond. Henry County v. Salmon, 201 Mo. 136, 100 S. W. 20.

44. Special act of 1873, imposing upon county commissioners of Franklin county duty to "audit and allow all claims against the county for extra services rendered by any county officer," held not to have been repealed by general act of 1881. Franklin County v. Crow [Ga.] 57 S. E. 784. Under Act No. 7, p. 6, Pub. Acts 1903, auditing of bills incurred by the public in cases of infectious and dangerous diseases is lodged in board of supervisors. Dawe v. Board of Health of Monroe, 146 Mich. 316, 13 Det. Lcg. N. 741, 109 N. W. 433.

45. Term "competent tribunal" in 1 Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 393, providing that auditor shall draw warrants for claims allowed by county commissioners and for other lawful claims approved by a competent tribunal, means a court or judge, hence claim of fruit inspector for salary must be presented and allowed by county board, though under act creating office commissioner of horticulture is required to issue certificate of number of days' work performed on which he shall receive payment from county. State v. Blumberg [Wash.] 89 P. 708. A judgment for costs against a county in a criminal case cannot be enforced except upon presentation to the board of supervisors for allowance, and in the event of a refusal to allow same by suit against the county therefor. McGuire v. Iowa County, 133 Iowa, 636, 111 N. W. 34.

46. Pol. Code 1895, § 362, requires claims against counties to be presented to proper authorities in writing within twelve months after accrual, or same are barred. Elbert County v. Swift [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 396.

47. Notice of disallowance of a claim of town held sufficient where it was mailed to one who was a town officer at time of filing of claim, but who had resigned prior to receipt of notice, same having been turned statute. As a rule, in actions against the county, the complaint must allege presentation,<sup>49</sup> though it need not allege that a reduction thereof was without claimant's consent.<sup>50</sup> Payment of a claim by the proper officer terminates the county's liability therefor, though such payment was in fact unauthorized.<sup>51</sup> Statutes frequently require an appropriation for the payment of a claim as a condition to its allowance,<sup>52</sup> but such an appropriation is not essential as to claims not within the statute.<sup>53</sup> Mandamus will not lie to compel the payment of a judgment for which the county could not constitutionally levy a tax,<sup>54</sup> and, where the pleadings upon which the judgment is founded show that the county was not liable for the acts complained of, the principle of res adjudicata does not apply.<sup>55</sup> Under a statute providing that segregated territory shall continue liable for its proportionate share of bonded debt upon the order of the old county, the latter may compel contribution,<sup>56</sup> and a judgment directing the levy of a tax is proper though it does not include segregated territory.<sup>57</sup>

(§ 3) H. Warrants; issuance and enforcement.<sup>58</sup>—Warrants issued on a void claim are a nullity.<sup>59</sup> The treasurer may refuse to pay an illegal warrant though approved by the proper officer.<sup>60</sup> A warrant issued against the general fund for a certain year is not payable out of the same fund for a subsequent year.<sup>61</sup> County orders are payable on demand<sup>62</sup> in the order of their presentation for payment,<sup>63</sup> and as a rule are assignable.<sup>64</sup> A general law fixing the rate of interest in the absence of an agreement does not apply to counties,<sup>65</sup> and a law allowing interest on warrants over by him to his successor within statutory time for giving of notice. Lincoln Tp. v. Kearney County [Neb.] 112 N. W. 608.

49. Petition held to allege that claim had been presented for allowance in accordance with statute. Sheridan County Com'rs v. Denebrink [Wyo.] 89 P. 7.

50. Failure of complaint to aver that reduction of claim by board was refused by claimant does not render it bad on demurrer. Calhoun County v. Watson [Ala.] 44 So. 702.

51. Payment by sheriff in violation of direction of fiscal court held to bar recovery on same claim by subsequent assignee. Perry County v. Eversole, 30 Ky. L. R. 453, 98 S. W. 1019.

52. The county auditor cannot be compelled to draw a warrant for the payment of a claim against the county, in the absence of a showing that a sufficient amount of money had been appropriated and remained in the treasury unexpended for the payment of such warrant. State v. Parks [Ind.] 81 N. E. 76.

53. An act prohibiting an allowance of a claim against county, in absence of an appropriation by the county council for its payment, has no application to a claim of a township for money unlawfully collected from it by the auditor for procuring and delivering lists of road taxes to the township trustee. Jay County Com'rs v. Pike Civil Tp. [Ind.] 81 N. E. 489.

54. Brunson v. Caskie, 127 Ga. 501, 56 S. E. 621.

58. See 7 C. L. 997.

59. Warrants issued on a contract payable in installments are void under a statutory prohibition against incurring future indebtedness. Harrison County v. Ogden, 133 Iowa, 9, 110 N. W. 32. Orders appearing on their face to have been drawn for the payment of a claim for which the county was not liable are absolutely void. Franklin County v. Crow [Ga.] 57 S. E. 784. A warrant issued on a void claim cannot form the basis of an action either on the warrant itself or on the quantum meruit. Harrison County v. Ogden, 133 Iowa, 9, 110 N. W. 32.

60. Mandamus will not lie to compel payment, as certificate of approval by comptroller does not render legality of warrant conclusive. Bechtel v. Fry, 217 Pa. 591, 66 A. 992.

61. Unless included in estimate for latter year, or unless after deducting items included in estimate sufficient remains to pay warrant. State v. Clark [Neb.] 112 N. W. 857.

62. When payment is insisted upon. State v. Melton [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 729.

63. Where particular fund is exhausted by drawing of orders thereon, the county court cannot vary the order of payment so as to favor holders of certain orders to detriment of holders of others, nor can it prevent payment of outstanding orders in order that necessary current charges against county not yet due may have priority on becoming due. State v. Melton [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 729.

64. Subject to right of sheriff or collector to deduct taxes due from payee thereof. State v. Melton [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 729. See Assignments, 9 C. L. 262.

65. Mill's Ann. St. § 2252, allowing inand other certificates of indebtedness does not authorize recovery of interest prior to the issuance of warrants.<sup>66</sup>

The cancellation and reissue of warrants, procedure thereon,<sup>67</sup> notice<sup>68</sup> and publication required,<sup>69</sup> and presentation of outstanding warrants,<sup>70</sup> are entirely matters of statutory regulation. One not injured by an invalid portion of an order for presentation and reissue cannot object to same on that ground.<sup>71</sup>

terest at rate of eight per cent on all moneys or accounts after they become due, held not to render counties chargeable. Montezuma County Com'rs v. Wheeler [Colo.] 89 P. 50.

67. Under Kirby's Dig. § 1178, authorizing county court to call in warrants annually, such an order need not recite that no order of same character had been made within a year. Yell County v. Wills [Ark.] 103 S. W. 618.

68. Under an order requiring sheriff to post notices on courthouse, "door," a return that notices were posted at each "entrance" held sufficient. Yell County v. Wills [Ark.] 103 S. W. 618.

69. Publication of notice of presentation held sufficient when published in one newspaper having a bona fide circulation in county where proceedings were had, under Kirby's Dig. § 4923, if construed as repealing section 1176, providing specifically for notice in such cases. Yell County v. Wills [Ark.] 103 S. W. 618.

70. Under Kirby's Dig. § 1175, requiring that time for presentation shall be at least three months from date of order, an order made April 6, requiring presentation "on or before" July 26, held sufficient. Yell County v. Wills [Ark.] 103 S. W. 618.

71. One holding county warrants cannot object to validity of order calling for cancellation on reissue of same on ground that order included county certificates of indebtedness other than warrants. Yell County v. Wills [Ark.] 103 S. W. 618.

72. See 7 C. L. 998.

73. The regularity of proceedings of the board and the validity of its decisions can be reviewed on certiorari only. Bartlett v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 81 N. E. 204.

74. An appeal lies from a final order of the board of a judicial character. Board acts judicially in vacating streets and alleys. MacGinnitie v. Silvers, 167 Ind. 321, 78 N. E. 1013.

75. An appeal does not lie from a discretionary order of the county board. Allowance to attorney defending indigent persons. Long v. Miami County Com'rs, 75 Ohio St. 539, 80 N. E. 188.

76. An appeal does not lie from administrative acts of the county board. Entering into contract with architects for preparation of plans for and superintendence of construction of county courthouse. Kraus v. Miami County Com'rs, 39 Ind. App. 624, 80 N. E. 544. Decision of county board to proceed to construct a courthouse is not appealable. Kraus v. Lehman [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 550.

77. A county cannot appeal from an adverse order by its own board of commissioners. Rev. St. 1887, as amended by Sess. Laws 1899, p. 248, authorizes an appeal by any taxpayer or person aggrieved. Kootenai County v. Dittmore, 12 Idaho, 758, 88 P. 232.

78. The filing of a remonstrance with the board of county commissioners in proceedings to vacate streets and alleys makes the person filing it a party, and to entitle him to appeal he need not file an affidavit of his interest and that he was aggrieved by the decision. MacGinnitie v. Silvers, 167 Ind. 321, 78 N. E. 1013.

79. Under St. 1903, § 978, allowing an appeal from the fiscal court where amount in controversy exceeds $25, a health officer whose claim for $500 was reduced to $100 may appeal. Butler County v. Gardner, 29 Ky. L. R. 922, 96 S. W. 582.

80. Acceptance of benefits of determination of the county board is a waiver of the right to appeal therefrom. After review by supervisors of claim appealed from town board, claimant accepted payment of amount allowed. People v. Rockland County Sup'rs 105 N. Y. S. 19.

81. Where the interests of remonstrators are distinct, a separate appeal may be prosecuted by each. Proceedings to vacate streets and alleys, remonstrators having signed a single document showing diverse interests. MacGinnitie v. Silvers, 167 Ind. 321, 78 N. E. 1013.

82. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 4225, requires auditor to file transcript within twenty days after filing of bond on appeal. Kelly v. Lawson, 39 Ind. App. 613, 80 N. E. 553.

Art. 7, § 11, provides that county court shall be held by county judge, section 12 authorizes legislature to provide for election of two commissioners to sit with him while transacting county business. B. & C. Comp. § 2533 so provides. Held that judge and commissioners do not constitute separate tribunal, but judge and commissioners together, as well as judge alone, constitute county court. State v. MacElrath [Or.] 89 P. 803. Held immaterial whether duties imposed by local option law on county court be discharged by county court when presided over by judge alone or by judge and commissioners. Id.

92. Acts 1907, p. 7 c. 5, creating superior courts in counties of Elkhart and Saint Joseph held not unconstitutional as violative of Const. art. 4, § 19, relating to title. (Board of Com'rs of Elkhart County v. Albright [Ind.] 81 N. E. 578), because of provision that judge should not receive less than judge of S. J. circuit court (Id.), because sheriff and clerk were given extra compensation for additional services, nor as permitting them to hold two lucrative offices (Id.), because prosecuting attorney of circuit court is made ex officio the prosecutor in superior court (Id.); nor is title delusive in that while purporting to create a superior court it creates a court of same jurisdiction as the circuit court (Id.). Provision requiring county commissioners to provide place for holding court held not attempt to regulate county business in violation of Const. art. 4, § 22. Id. Const. art. 7 § 1, as amended 1881; providing that judicial power shall be vested in supreme court, in circuit courts, and in such "other courts" as general assembly might establish, does not prevent general assembly from creating a superior court with same jurisdiction as circuit court. Board of Com'rs of Elkhart County v. Albright [Ind.] 81 N. E. 578. Unconstitutionality of 3rd proviso of § 11, c. 5, p. 10, Acts 1907, relating to venue, held not to invalidate the entire act. Id. Const. art. 6, §§ 23-26, relating to "courts of Cook County," does not limit power of general assembly under § 1 to establish other city courts in Cook County. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Greer, 223 Ill. 104, 79 N. E. 46. Legislature may create court by special act. Board of Com'rs of Elkhart County v. Albright [Ind.] 81 N. E. 578; Act March 26, 1874, § 21 (1 Starr v. C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 1200), as amended by Act May 10, 1901 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, p. 631), establishing city court in cities of 3,000 or more, etc., held not unconstitutional as special legislation (Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Greer, 223 Ill. 104, 79 N. E. 46), nor as infringing Const. art. 6, § 29, probe of general and uniform operation (Id.). Laws 1905, p. 182, c. 117, establishing juvenile courts, held not unconstitutional because conferring on them jurisdiction previously exercised by district courts, especially in view of Const. art. 8, § 1 (Mill v. Brown [Utah] 88 P. 609), nor as special legislation, because it creates such courts in cities of first and second class, and confers exclusive jurisdiction on them over juvenile offenders (Id.), and being complete in itself, and not purporting to amend another, it is not amending act within constitution as to titles of such acts (Id.). Unconstitutionality of § 7 thereof held not to render entire act invalid. Mill v. Brown [Utah] 88 P. 609. Special courts created by act of 1894 (Acts 1894, p. 80) are all of same grade and class, the legislature may create or abolish<sup>93</sup> courts, but it cannot delegate such power.<sup>94</sup> In Mississippi courts can be created only by the legislature.<sup>95</sup> The court of appeals of Georgia was established as of the date of governor's proclamation declaring the creative constitutional amendment ratified.<sup>96</sup> A change of name of a court does not affect existing judgments.<sup>97</sup> Upon the abolishment of a court, a transfer of pending business is usually provided by the act,<sup>98</sup> but, under a general act in Georgia, the creation of a new county transfers suits pending in county or counties from which it is created to its courts.<sup>99</sup>

§ 3. Places, terms, and sessions of courts.<sup>4</sup>—The place for holding court must be designated as prescribed by statute<sup>5</sup> by the proper authority,<sup>6</sup> and court must be

and act is not violative of constitutional provision contained in Civ. Code 1895, § 5859, requiring jurisdiction, powers, etc., of courts of same grade to be uniform. Kennedy v. Meara, 127 Ga. 68, 56 S. E. 243. Acts 1896-97, p. 802, creating county court of Cleburne County are not unconstitutional for conferring on county court same jurisdiction and powers as circuit. State v. Fuller, 147 Ala. 164, 41 So. 990. Acts 1905, p. 596, dividing Union County into two judicial districts, is not unconstitutional as taking private property without compensation, since provision that court shall be held in public hall of bank building, etc., contemplates consent, and, if withheld, county court may provide place elsewhere. Pryor v. Murphy, 80 Ark. 150, 96 S. W. 445. Acts 1901, p. 120, dividing court of twenty-fifth judicial circuit into two divisions, providing for two judges, etc., held not unconstitutional as containing subject-matter not expressed in title, although matter of change of venue is not mentioned in title, it having a natural connection therewith. Coffey v. Carthage, 200 Mo. 616, 98 S. W. 562.

93. District court of district of Alaska, created by Organic Act 1884, c. 53 (23 Stat. 24), held supplanted by courts created by Alaska Code (Act June 6, 1900, c. 786 [31 Stat. 32.]). United States v. Newth, 149 F. 302.

94. Fact that final operation of statute depends on determination by council of advisability or necessity of establishment of court and as to number of judges, does not constitute delegation of legislative power. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Greer, 223 Ill. 104, 79 N. E. 46, Act March 26, 1874, § 21 (1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 1200), as amended by Act May 10, 1901 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, p. 631), providing for establishment of city court in cities of 3,000 or more whenever council shall adopt ordinance or resolution submitting question to voters, and two-thirds votes cast shall favor establishment, held not to delegate legislative power to council in determining whether city has 3,000 inhabitants. Id.

95. Amendment of Feb. 17, 1904, to Vicksburg City Charter 1884 passed in manner provided by Code 1892, § 3039, creating office of police justice, and designating him as presiding officer of city court which, in his absence, should be presided over by mayor, held not to create new court but only new presiding officers. Ex parte Dickson [Miss.] 42 So. 233.

96. Hence it has jurisdiction of writ of error signed thereafter but before qualification of judges and organization of court. Gainesville Midland R. Co. v. Jackson, 1 Ga. App. 632, 57 S. E. 1007.

97. Laws 1883, p. 20, c. 26, changing name of marine court of the City of New York to the city court of New York held not to render former an extinct court whose judgment could not be made basis of action. Peace v. Wilson, 186 N. Y. 403, 79 N. E. 329.

98. Order of district court of Alaska abolishing precinct, annexing its territory to that of another, and directing commissioner to "deliver records and property of his office" to commissioner of precinct to which it is annexed, transfers pending probate matters. Cheney v. Alaska Treadwell Gold Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 808.

99. Acts 1905, p. 46, and hence, where motion for new trial is made in new county, bill of exceptions and transcript should be transmitted by clerk of court of new county. Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Johnson, 127 Ga. 392, 56 S. E. 482.

2. Will take judicial notice of duty to be present and personal order of court is not necessary. Kelly v. The United States, 41 Ct. Cl. 246. Attorney general has no power to take from crier his salary as such on appointing him to office of deputy marshal. Allen v. The United States, 41 Ct. Cl. 235.

5. Act No. 272, p. 418, Pub. Acts 1905, requiring judge after 1905 to designate place when fixing time for holding court is sufficiently complied with by order designating place, but leaving time as previously fixed. McCall v. Calhoun Circuit Judge, 146 Mich. 319, 13 Det. Leg. N. 757, 109 N. W. 601. Object of Act No. 272, p. 418, Pub. Acts 1905, being to designate places for holding circuit court in certain circuit, its title "An act to held thereat.<sup>7</sup> The county seat is usually designated,<sup>8</sup> and, where it is provided generally that court shall be held at the court house,<sup>9</sup> an act designating the county seat is sufficiently definite.<sup>10</sup> The failure, however, to designate the particular building will not ordinarily invalidate the proceedings.<sup>11</sup> In Kentucky, if there is a town larger than the county seat, but not larger than fourth class, and not less than twelve miles<sup>12</sup> by the most convenient route usually traveled from the county seat,<sup>13</sup> alternate sessions of the circuit court must be held thereat. Offices of court officials must also be maintained at the places designated.<sup>14</sup> The date of the beginning of a term is usually prescribed by statute<sup>15</sup> or otherwise, and court must be held at the time fixed.<sup>16</sup> When the court has been duly convened, the term continues until legally adjourned by the court<sup>17</sup> or by operation of law,<sup>18</sup> and it rests within the discretion of the judge as to how often it shall be opened for incidental business after the close of the regular business.<sup>19</sup> Whether the commencement of another term in the same county<sup>20</sup> or another<sup>21</sup> adjourns a pending term depends upon local statute. An ad-designate the places for holding the circuit court in 37th judicial circuit" is sufficient although act provides details carrying out its provisions. Id.

6. Act No. 272, p. 418, Pub. Acts 1905, held not delegation of legislative power because of proviso that council or citizens of place to which two terms were to be removed should furnish suitable building, jail, and vaults, which were to be subject to approval of judge. McCall v. Calhoun Circuit Judge, 146 Mich. 319, 13 Det. Leg. N. 757, 109 N. W. 601.

7. Motion for change of venue under Revisal of 1905, § 425, cannot be made out of district where action is pending. Garrett & Co. v. Bear [N. C.] 56 S. E. 479.

8. Except as provided by statute, district court must sit at county seat for trial of actions or proceedings involving facts, unless parties consent to trial elsewhere. Bell v. Jarvis, 98 Minn. 109, 107 N. W. 547. Applicable to election contest. Id. Where due objections are made to court being held elsewhere they are not waived by taking part in subsequent proceeding. Id.

9. Act No. 272, p. 418, Pub. Acts 1905, providing that two terms of court of certain circuit shall be held at county seat and two at another city modifies Comp. Laws 1897, § 305, providing that terms shall be held at courthouse, only so far as repugnant. McCall v. Calhoun Circuit Judge, 146 Mich. 319, 13 Det. Leg. N. 757, 109 N. W. 601.

10. Act No. 272, p. 418, Pub. Acts 1905. McCall v. Calhoun Circuit Judge, 146 Mich. 319, 13 Det. Leg. N. 757, 109 N. W. 601.

11. Held not to affect conviction in absence of showing of prejudice. In re Moran, 203 U. S. 96, 51 Law. Ed. 105.

12. Acts 1906, p. 339, c. 71, § 1, held not applicable where limits of larger town are between nine and nine and one-half miles from limits of county seat along county road, and distance over railroad by which most of the travel takes place is eleven miles between limits, but thirteen miles between stations. City of Middlesborough v. Pineville, 30 Ky. L. R. 331, 98 S. W. 298.

13. "County seat" held not to refer to county buildings, but to town in which they are located. City of Middlesborough v. Pineville, 30 Ky. L. R. 331, 98 S. W. 298.

14. Code 1896, § 656, requiring register in chancery to keep his office at place at which court is held, only requires that it be in same town or city, but not necessarily in same room, or even in courthouse. White v. Hewlett, 143 Ala. 374, 42 So. 78.

15. Acts 1903, p. 539, fixing time for holding court in seventh circuit though local law is not within § 106, Const. 1901, as to giving notice before passage. Ex parte Birmingham & A. R. Co., 145 Ala. 514, 42 So. 118. Where act establishing courthouse at particular place is void, dependent act fixing time for holding court therein becomes inoperative. Id.

16. Where county judge and county commissioners assembled at time other than prescribed by B. & C. Comp. 915, or fixed by general order of court made and entered on journal, etc., they did not compose county court. State v. Rhodes [Or.] 85 P. 332. Act of 1905, fixing time for holding court of general sessions in Cherokee County, held not to repeal Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 27, providing that if any business remains before court of general sessions on day fixed for holding court of common pleas the latter may be adjourned. State v. Hasty [S. C.] 56 S. E. 669.

17. Judge of district court may adjourn regular term without day and order to clerk before time fixed for holding is sufficient. Russell v. State [Neb.] 110 N. W. 380. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 673, authorizing adjournment to day certain, adjournment subject to call ends term. Myers v. East Bench Irr. Co. [Utah] 89 P. 1005.

18. Where judge is not present at time set for opening term, and court is not adjourned as provided by Rev. St. 1898 § 703, term ends. Myers v. East Bench Irr. Co. [Utah] 89 P. 1005.

19. United States district court opened for entry of orders and decrees in bankruptcy. Owen v. The United States, 41 Ct. Cl. 69.

20. Where two terms of same court may be held at same time, commencement of new term does not terminate current one. People v. Warden of City Prison, 117 App. Div. 154, 102 N. Y. S. 374. Under § 909, Comp. Laws 1897, term of district court continues until day fixed for commencement of another term, unless sooner adjourned. Territory v. Armijo [N. M.] 89 P. 267. Code Civ. Proc. § 45, and Code Cr. Proc. § 432, providing that term may be continued after time appointed, to journalment of the court is an adjournment of the term, unless the order or a statute otherwise provides.<sup>22</sup> Under a statute providing that a term "shall continue until the causes therein pending are disposed of," the term continues by operation of law.<sup>23</sup> Trial of a cause at the wrong term,<sup>24</sup> or when the court is not regularly in session,<sup>25</sup> unless the parties consent thereto,<sup>26</sup> is generally an irregularity only, though in some states the proceedings are held void without regard to consent of parties.<sup>27</sup>

The Louisiana court of appeals may hold adjourned sessions.<sup>28</sup> Under the statutes of many states, a judge may convene special terms<sup>29</sup> under certain conditions,<sup>30</sup> by proper order,<sup>31</sup> and upon due notice.<sup>32</sup> In Kentucky an order calling a special term of circuit court for trial of chancery cases need not specify the causes to be tried thereat,<sup>33</sup> and, where the call is regular, failure of the clerk to enter the order on the minutes does not defeat jurisdiction.<sup>34</sup> The terms of court held at Mayaguez at the time regularly designated by the judge are not "special terms."<sup>35</sup> continue a case, apply only to terms which terminate at a particular time by statute or otherwise. People v. Warden of City Prison, 117 App. Div. 154, 102 N. Y. S. 374.

21. Holding of another term of district court in another county by same judge does not terminate. Territory v. Armijo [N. M.] 89 P. 267. Under Kirby's Dig. §§ 1320, 1531, intervention of regular term in another county ends current term unless continued by order of court. Roberts & Shafter Co. v. Jones [Ark.] 101 S. W. 165.

22. Record entry under certain date that court convened and continued in session during the day "when it adjourned" held adjournment of term, notwithstanding a subsequent direct order. Marengo Sav. Bank v. Byington [Iowa] 112 N. W. 192.

23. No act on part of court is necessary. Smith v. Chapman & Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 817.

24. Although, under act creating October term of Chatham superior court, case was properly triable at December court and could not be tried at October term except by consent of parties, yet, if so tried without consent, judgment was irregular and not void. Horrigan v. Savannah Grocery Co., 126 Ga. 127, 54 S. E. 961. Issue of law raised by demurrer may be tried at special term for motions on consent. Peabody v. West, 103 N. Y. S. 942.

25. Under statute providing that court is always open to hear actions except issues of fact, judgment in contested case rendered when not regularly in session is irregular only and cannot be vacated after time of appeal has elapsed. Lockard v. Lockard [S. D.] 110 N. W. 104.

26. Judgment in a term case rendered out of statutory term is valid if parties consent thereto. Hayward v. Fisher [Neb.] 110 N. W. 984.

27. Myers v. East Bench Irr. Co. [Utah] 89 P. 1005.

28. Brown v. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co., 118 La. 87, 42 So. 656. It will be presumed that session was an adjourned session rather than special session in absence of showing, such session being authorized. Id. Appearance and trial on merits waives lack of due notice of time of holding adjourned session. Id.

29. Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 4735. Russell v. State [Neb.] 110 N. W. 380. Under Code 1896, §§ 928, 930, circuit judge may hold special term during session of regular term.

Williams v. State, 147 Ala. 10, 41 So. 992. Under Const. art. 5, § 7, providing that legislature shall have power to authorize holding of special term, legislature may empower judge to fix date thereof. Ex parte Boyd [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 64, 96 S. W. 1079. Under Const. art. 5, § 29, commissioners' court has exclusive power of fixing time for any term, and Code Cr. Proc. 1895, art. 572, authorizing county judge to hold special terms for trial of certain criminal cases, is unconstitutional. Ex parte Cole [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 249. Record on appeal from judgment rendered at special term which does not show organization of court, or that term was held in compliance with statute, does not show appealable judgment. Tidmore v. Perritt [Ala.] 42 So. 818.

30. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 964, circuit judge may call special term to try two persons jointly indicted for murder. Fitzgerald v. Commonwealth, 30 Ky. L. R. 349, 98 S. W. 319. Special term may be called for purpose of passing sentence under statute enacted subsequent to conviction, it not being objectionable as ex post facto. Ex parte Boyd [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 64, 96 S. W. 1079.

31. Acts 29th Leg. (Gen. Laws 1905, p. 116, c. 83, § 1) held to repeal provision of Sayles' Rev. Civ. St. tit. 28, c. 4, requiring order to be made at preceding term, and hence order may be made during vacation. Ex parte Boyd [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 64, 96 S. W. 1079.

32. Under Acts 29th Leg. (Gen. Laws 1905, p. 116, c. 83, § 1), together with Rev. St. 1895, arts. 1113, 1114 providing that judge of district court may call special term during vacation, and that former laws are repealed only so far as inconsistent, posting of thirty days' notice in compliance with Rev. St. 1895, art. 1115, is proper. Ex parte Boyd [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 64, 96 S. W. 1079. Const. 1898, art. 117, making sessions of district court continuous for ten months, and authorizing judge to hold court when in his opinion it may be necessary, held to supersede Rev. St. 1870, § 1932, requiring posting and publishing of notice. State v. Freddy, 118 La. 468, 43 So. 53.

33. Order under Gen. St. p. 370, c. 28, art. 6, § 1. Potter v. Potter's Receiver [Ky.] 101 S. W. 905.

Bayer*, 99 Minn. 397, 109 N. W. 596, 820. Under St. 1869, p. 733, c. 416, standing justice of district court may promulgate reasonable rules. Gardner v. Butler, 193 Mass. 96, 78 N. E. 885.

Particular rules sustained and applied: Prohibiting change in pleadings after case is set for trial except upon good cause shown. Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Core, 126 Ill. App. 272. Supreme Court Rule 12 (28 South, iv), denying rehearing on orders granting or refusing a rule nisi on application for mandamus, sustained. State v. Summit Lumber Co., 117 La. 643, 42 So. 195. Rule 4, § 1, providing for certain proceedings in vacation, held not to exceed authority conferred on court en banc to adopt rules. Conery v. His Creditors, 118 La. 864, 43 So. 530. Rule 6, requiring bonds in district court to be acknowledged in like manner as deeds before same shall be received or filed, being valid exercise of power under Comp. Laws, § 874, has force and effect of a statute. Hendry v. Cartwright [N. M.] 89 P. 309. Rule of circuit court held to permit judge to hear contested motions in its discretion without placing it on contested motion calendar. Hunt v. Pronger, 126 Ill. App. 403. Rule 14, subd. 3, proving for production of an "article or property" for inspection, does not authorize order compelling assembling and operation of machine. Pina Maya-Sosal Co. v. Squire Mfg. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 482. Rule 4 held to authorize hearing of opposition to appointment of syndics in vacation time. Conery v. His Creditors, 118 La. 864, 43 So. 530.

Where a right is asserted under rule of court, record promulgating such rule must be put in evidence. Chicago City R. Co. v. Gregory, 123 Ill. App. 259.

38. Where rule violates statute, latter controls. Twaddle v. Winters [Nev.] 89 P. 289. Rule requiring new notes of issue to be filed for purpose of making new calendar held void in so far as it conflicted with Code Civ. Proc. § 977. Rauchberger v. Interurban St. R. Co., 52 Misc. 518, 102 N. Y. S. 561. Code Civ. Proc. § 803, authorizing court to compel production of a "book, document, or other paper," does not authorize rule 14 subd. 3, requiring production of personal property generally. Pina Maya-Sisal Co. v. Squire Mfg. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 482.

Supreme Court Rule 9, providing for substitution of personal representative upon death of party to appeal, does not conflict with Comp. Laws, § 3111, the statute being broader. Twaddle v. Winters [Nev.] 89 P. 289. Rev. St. 1898, § 3131, providing that cases shall be placed on calendar in order and remain there until disposed of or dropped by consent of parties or order of court, does not prevent adoption of rule requiring that cases shall be noticed for trial before being placed on calendar, although on previous calendar. Riddle v. Quinn [Utah] 90 P. 893. Nor is such rule in conflict with Rev. St. § 3132, providing that either party may bring issue to trial in absence of other party, which is applicable only to cases on calendar. Id.

39. Rule requiring party to make requests for instructions before he "rests his case," and to cite authorities supporting same, is void in view of Rev. St. 1898, § 2853, conferring right to have correct and appreciable instruction given. Odegard v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 659, 110 N. W. 809.

40. Where new note of issue was made out and failure to file was due to neglect of law clerk or clerk of court dismissal of action for failure to comply with rule is too harsh where statute of limitations will prevent new action. Rauchberger v. Interurban St. R. Co., 52 Misc. 518, 102 N. Y. S. 561.

41. Appeal dismissed for failure to timely file briefs. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Kidd [C. C. A.] 146 F. 499.

42. Rule established by one judge is binding though successor does not formally adopt same. Berthelot v. Hotard, 117 La. 524, 42 So. 90.

43. Court may violate rule for its benefit unless injustice will result to parties. Hunt v. Pronger, 126 Ill. App. 403. Parties cannot by stipulation waive rules formulated for court's benefit. Timely filing of briefs. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Kidd [C. C. A.] 146 F. 499.

44. General law regulating practice in county courts and "city courts" established on recommendation of grand juries (Cr. #### COVENANT, ACTION OF.<sup>70</sup>

Covenant is the appropriate action to recover damages for the breach of a contract under seal.<sup>71</sup> Allegations negating the words of the covenant are usually sufficient averments of the breach.<sup>72</sup> In Illinois plaintiff may proceed to trial although all of the defendants have not been served.<sup>73</sup>

COVENANTS FOR TITLE.

§ 1. Making of Covenants; Persons and Estates Benefited or Bound (846).

§ 2. Performance or Breach (846).

§ 3. Enforcement of Covenants (847).

Scope of title.—This article treats only of covenants usually contained in deeds. Those in leases,<sup>74</sup> covenants restrictive of the use of land<sup>75</sup> and relative to affirmative burdens not pertaining to title,<sup>76</sup> and warranty in the sale of personal property,<sup>77</sup> are treated in appropriate topics.

judges is valid. Bowles v. Wood [Miss.] 44 So. 169. Not necessary that full bench participate in decision. Greene County v. Wright, 127 Ga. 150, 56 S. E. 288. See Appeal and Review, 9 C. L. 108.

61. Where case was argued and submitted before constitutional supreme court was changed from three to seven numbers, but was decided thereafter, no valid opinion could be given by two judges. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Burchard, 35 Colo. 539, 86 P. 749.

62. Where evenly divided, judgment stands affirmed by operation of law. Mugge v. Tate, Jones & Co. [Fla.] 41 So. 603; Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132 Iowa, 11, 109 N. W. 309.

64. Where right to publish reports has become public, agreement not to publish will not be implied from contract with state to print and manufacture reports for state and to deliver plates to state. State v. State Journal Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 763.

65. Contract between state and another that latter should print and manufacture for former certain supreme court reports, and that "plates" so used should become property of state, does not constitute such person agent of state in the "publishing business" so as to prevent him from publishing on own account. State v. State Journal Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 763. But law will imply agreement not to use property of state for any purpose not contemplated by contract. Id.

66. Clerk may prescribe reasonable rules and regulations. Ex parte Brown, 166 Ind. 593, 78 N. E. 553.

67. Notwithstanding Const. art. 7, § 6, directing legislature to provide for publication and prohibiting any judge from publishing same. Ex parte Brown, 166 Ind. 593, 78 N. E. 553.

68. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7798 (Rev. St. 1881, § 5831), prescribing the fee to be charged by clerk for copies of opinions, applies only to certified copies. (Ex parte Brown, 166 Ind. 593, 78 N. E. 553), and clerk may furnish uncertified carbon copies at less rate (Id.).

69. As to his right to furnish uncertified copies of opinions at less than statutory rate for certified copies, and his rights and duties as to permitting a publisher access to office for purpose of making copies. Ex parte Brown, 166 Ind. 593, 78 N. E. 553.

71. Assumpsit will not lie. Fry v. Talbott [Md.] 66 A. 664. For breach of covenants for title. Hayden v. Patterson [Colo.] 88 P. 437. Suit by subcontractor in name of United States against contractor, by virtue of act of congress of Aug. 13, 1894, for work and material furnished contractor under contract, is upon bond of contractor, and not on contract to furnish labor and materials, hence covenant lies though latter contract is not under seal. Purington v. U. S., 126 Ill. App. 323.

72. Special averments are necessary only when general assignment does not show breach. Damren v. Trask [Me.] 65 A. 513. Petition construed to sufficiently allege breach of covenant in refusing to pay for clapboards taken, and in refusing to take and pay for the remainder. Id.

73. Under Practice Act (R. S. c. 110, § 10), others may be made parties to judgment by scire facias. Purington v. U. S., 126 Ill. App. 323.

§ 2. Performance or breach.<sup>86</sup>—Where covenants are independent,<sup>87</sup> violation of any one gives a cause of action.

78. See 7 C. L. 1004.

79. Under Rev. St. 1901, par. 728, covenant against incumbrances is implied from use of word "grant" or "convey" in fee simple conveyance unless negated by express terms. Sherman v. Goodwin [Ariz.] 89 P. 517. Assignment of contract conveying trees as realty in the words "do hereby sell, assign, transfer and set over unto said party of the second part all his right, title, and interest in and to a certain contract" held not to imply a warranty. Pierce v. Coryn, 126 Ill. App. 244.

80. Where title fails because of adverse possession of part, warrantor is liable although covenantee knew such part was inclosed by another. Mayer v. Wooten [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 423.

81. Mere words "executor as aforesaid" after name of the warrantor held insufficient to restrict. Baxter & Co. v. Camp, 126 Ga. 354, 54 S. E. 1036.

82. Warranty of such title "as vested in him as executor as aforesaid" held not a warranty of the title generally. Baxter & Co. v. Camp, 126 Ga. 354, 54 S. E. 1036.

83. Excepting of street assessments does not impose obligation on grantee to pay same. Waldschmidt v. Bowland, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 411.

84. Covenant against incumbrances except dower of certain person, "which claim for dower said second party is to procure without cost to party of first part" held not to create trust in favor of widow with lien on lot for value thereof. Cain's Adm'r v. Kentucky & Indiana Bridge & R. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 593, 99 S. W. 297. Nor did it impose upon the vendee any obligation to compel widow to assert her claim or to take legal steps to divest her of it. Id. Recital in covenant of warranty, "except maturing street assessments on Floral avenue which the grantee assumes and agrees to pay," construed to relieve grantor from liability on account of said assessment, and not contract inuring to benefit of municipality. Bell v. Norwood, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 425.

89. Hence covenantee may sue thereon though he has conveyed land. Thompson v. Richmond [Me.] 66 A. 649.

90. Held an Incumbrance: Tax lien. White v. Gibson, 146 Mich. 547, 13 Det. Leg. N. 872, 109 N. W. 1049. Unexpired lease. Sugarman v. Goldberg, 100 N. Y. S. 1012.

Held not an Incumbrance: Cost of curbing until included in assessment of land taxes. Bowers v. Narragansett Real Estate Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 521. Agreement between lot owner and city whereby latter was to have five feet of lot for widening street if done within one year is not an incumbrance after expiration of year for performance. Fleet v. Wait [Vt.] 66 A. 1031.

91. Confirmation of drainage assessment creating lien attaching as of time of filing of petition for drain. Pierse v. Bronnenberg's Estate [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 419.

92. Where consideration is stated generally in deed, such assumption may be shown by parol evidence though deed is executed pursuant to written contract which did not cite such consideration. Pierse v. Bronnenberg's Estate [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 419.

93. Weeks v. Grace [Mass.] 80 N. E. 220.

94. See 7 C. L. 1005.

95. Legal title in trustee. Jones v. Haseltine, 124 Mo. App. 674, 102 S. W. 40. Or at least upon rendition of decree establishing adverse title. Hayden v. Patterson [Colo.] 88 P. 437. Hence covenantee may sue covered thereby<sup>96</sup> without an eviction.<sup>97</sup> In Missouri however, the covenant implied from the use of words "grant, bargain, and sell" is one of indemnity and runs with the land,<sup>98</sup> the action for substantial damages accruing upon eviction.<sup>99</sup>

though he has sold land. Eames v. Armstrong, 142 N. C. 506, 55 S. E. 405.

96. Habendum, in deed conveying two tracts, was to have and to hold "the aforesaid tracts" together with rights to entire property known as R. property. Covenant of seisin, which was continuation of habendum, was to "said premises." Held that covenant extended to C. tract though not part of R. tract. Eames v. Armstrong, 142 N. C. 506, 55 S. E. 405.

97. Eviction or threatened litigation not necessary. Eames v. Armstrong, 142 N. C. 506, 55 S. E. 405. Damages resulting from outstanding title is sufficient without eviction. Jones v. Haseltine, 124 Mo. App. 674, 102 S. W. 40.

98. Quick v. Walker, 125 Mo. App. 257, 102 S. W. 33.

99. Leet v. Gratz [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 696.

1. See 7 C. L. 1006. Action held on special covenant to refund for acreage shortage, and not on general warranty. Holt v. Mynhier's Adm'x, 29 Ky. L. R. 819, 96 S. W. 477.

2. After breach a covenant of warranty becomes a mere chose in action and does not run with the land. DeLong v. Spring Lake Beach Improvement Co. [N. J. Law.] 66 A. 591.

3. Quick v. Walker, 125 Mo. App. 257, 102 S. W. 33.

4. Held broken when covenantee of vacant property purchases paramount title to protect own. Hayden v. Patterson [Colo.] 88 P. 437. Where decree of partition orders sale, and covenantee purchases, there is constructive eviction. Morgan v. Haley [Va.] 58 S. E. 564. Judgment against covenantee in ejectment prosecuted by him is sufficient eviction. Hubbard v. Stanaford, 30 Ky. L. R. 1044, 100 S. W. 232. And he need not await the pleasure of the covenantor in bringing the action. Id.

5. Sale, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1617 et seq., to satisfy dower interest, surplus being paid to covenantee constitutes partial eviction. Olmstead v. Rawson [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 456.

6. Warranty does not extend to unlawful claims. Pierce v. Coryn, 126 Ill. App. 244. Allegation of eviction by city under agreement between covenantor and city that latter was to have five feet of lot for widening street if done within year without showing entry within year is demurrable. Fleet v. Wait [Vt.] 66 A. 1031.

7. Laufer v. Moppins [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 109.

8. Kitzman v. Carl, 133 Iowa, 340, 110 N. W. 587. Words equivalent to "more or less" do not excuse shortage of 12.9 acres which had been lost from 80 acre tract by adverse possession. Mayer v. Wooten [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 423. In conveyance of "The S. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  of the S. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  and the east 30 acres of the S. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  of section 34 \* \* \*, containing 70 acres more or less," held that phrase "more or less" applies to 30 acre tract as well as other. Kitzman v. Carl, 133 Iowa, 340, 110 N. W. 587.

9. Nonperformance of agreement to attend to securing of patent and to notify covenantor of defect therein. Menasha Wooden Ware Co. v. Nelson [Wash.] 88 P. 1018. That covenantor was prevented from perfecting title by securing patent by covenantee's selection of other land without notice to covenantor, or without giving opportunity to perfect title constitutes a defense. Id. Evidence held insufficient to show that party making selection was acting for covenantee. Id.

14. Does not extend to unlawful claims or seizure. Pierce v. Coryn, 126 Ill. App. 244.

15. Covenant that "said party of the second part shall have quiet possession of the premises hereby conveyed with covenants of special warranty for quiet possession. Campbell v. Watkins' Ex'rs, 105 Va. 824, 54 S. E. 939.

prescribed by statute<sup>17</sup> after the accrual of the cause of action.<sup>18</sup> A petition based on the covenant against incumbrances must show a valid incumbrance,<sup>19</sup> and the plea must meet the cause of action alleged.<sup>20</sup> Contrary to the common law, the codes usually impose the burden of proving a breach of the covenant of seisin on plaintiff,<sup>21</sup> unless admitted by the answer.<sup>22</sup> Purely affirmative defensive matter must be proven by the defendant.<sup>23</sup> In an action on the covenants of warranty and against incumbrances, plaintiff must establish the covenants and a violation thereof.<sup>24</sup> In some actions<sup>25</sup> the covenantee may call in his warrantor by proper notice<sup>26</sup> and thereby render the judgment therein conclusive as to the paramountcy of the asserted claim,<sup>27</sup> but, if the land involved is not covered by the description in the deed, its identity cannot be shown by parol, in the absence of appropriate pleadings.<sup>28</sup> Judgment in an eviction suit to which covenantor was not a party is admissible to show eviction.<sup>29</sup> While in the absence of allegations of fraud or mistake,<sup>30</sup> parol evidence is inadmissible to contradict a covenant, it is competent to show the meaning intended by the parties in case of ambiguity.<sup>31</sup> Where eviction is necessary, as in the case of warranty and the Missouri implied covenant of seisin, an action for partial eviction is no bar to a subsequent action for further eviction.<sup>32</sup>

CREDITORS' SUIT.

§ 1. Nature and Grounds of Remedy (849).

§ 2. Property Which May be Reached (850).

§ 3. Pleading and Procedure (850).

The scope of this topic is noted below.<sup>34</sup>

§ 1. Nature and grounds of remedy.<sup>35</sup>—One object of a creditor's bill is to uncover property which the debtor has sought by fraud or concealment to place beyond the reach of his creditors,<sup>36</sup> and another is to subject to the payment of plaintiff's judgment equitable assets or choses in action of the debtor, which cannot be reached by general execution;<sup>37</sup> but creditors' suit is not available to determine and set apart the interest of an heir to real property.<sup>38</sup> The courts will distinguish between cases where judgment gives a lien and cases where the creditor seeks property that cannot be reached at law,<sup>39</sup> but a creditors' bill is not maintainable except where legal remedies have proven ineffectual,<sup>40</sup> or there has been an affirmative showing of insolvency,<sup>41</sup> or the exhaustion of legal remedies is waived,<sup>42</sup> however, having execution returned nulla bona is the most that the law can or does require,<sup>43</sup> and in some jurisdictions this is not essential.<sup>44</sup> It is not necessary to resort to mandamus,<sup>45</sup> and the defendant is estopped to show as a defense that the judgment, whereon a creditor's bill is based, is void.<sup>46</sup>

General creditors' suits.<sup>47</sup>—The creditors of a corporation have the same right to pursue its funds that the corporation itself would have.<sup>48</sup>

Intervention.<sup>49</sup>—Having a claim for less than $2,000 will not prevent intervention in a suit in Federal court.<sup>50</sup>

Limitations and laches.<sup>51</sup>—The statute of limitations begins to run against a creditor's suit after judgment execution has been returned nulla bona,<sup>52</sup> and the equitable doctrine of laches also applies.<sup>53</sup> paramount title separately. Leet v. Gratz [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 696. Independent causes of action, and not a splitting of a single cause. Id.

37. Code § 4087 held not available to judgment creditors to reach property subject to general execution. Kalona Sav. Bank v. Eash, 133 Iowa, 190, 109 N. W. 887.

38. Because any interest of defendant in real estate was subject to levy and sale under judgment even though the interest was undivided and subject to undetermined claims. Kalona Sav. Bank v. Eash, 133 Iowa, 190, 109 N. W. 887.

42. Defendant voluntarily appeared, confessed the debt, admitted its insolvency, and joined in asking for the appointment of a receiver, although the bill was filed by creditors who had neither judgment nor other lien. Horne v. Pere Marquette R. Co., 151 F. 626.

43. Williams v. Commercial Nat. Bk. [Or.] 90 P. 1012.

44. Return nulla bona not essential to bill in aid of execution to remove fraudulent conveyance. First Nat. Bk. v. Dawson, 127 Ill. App. 295.

45. The debtor a municipal corporation. Southern R. Co. v. Hartshorne [Ala.] 43 So. 583.

46. Defendant had failed to account as guardian, questioned the jurisdiction of the court that appointed him, and offered to show that his successor, the plaintiff, had not qualified. His remedy would be to move to vacate the judgment. Havens v. Ahlering, 29 Ky. L. R. 1265, 97 S. W. 344.

47. See 7 C. L. 1008.

48. The corporation's president bought land with money belonging to the corporation and failed to prove that the corporation owed him the money. Arbuckle Bros. v. Columbia Grocery Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 781.

49. See 5 C. L. 882.

53. Delay of four years held not such laches as to bar creditors' suit. Bennett v. Boshold, 123 Ill. App. 311.

The decree.<sup>54</sup>—If of advantage to the debtor, the court should direct division of the land subjected to his debt and sale of a part of it only.<sup>55</sup> The court should know the total debt that property is subject to before decreeing a sale of it.<sup>56</sup> It may be ordered that a debtor's contingent interest in a policy of insurance on his life be ascertained by sale, appraisal, or other means within the ordinary procedure of the court,<sup>57</sup> and his interest in a partnership by finding the balance due him after paying the firm debts and adjusting the accounts of the partners.<sup>58</sup>

§ 2. Property which may be reached.<sup>59</sup>—A creditors' suit will reach any assignable property interest,<sup>60</sup> including a life estate by the curtesy<sup>61</sup> and the remainder thereof,<sup>62</sup> the debtor's real estate held in the name of a third person,<sup>63</sup> and property under control of a probate court,<sup>64</sup> also property of an insolvent corporation in the hands of a stockholder,<sup>65</sup> and property given away after judgment,<sup>66</sup> but not stock only nominally owned.<sup>67</sup> Equitable assets can only be reached after the remedies at law have been exhausted.<sup>68</sup>

§ 3. Pleading and procedure.<sup>69</sup>—A creditors' bill is not multifarious because it seeks discovery both as to misapplication of assets and as to the amount due on stock subscriptions.<sup>70</sup> If the property sought is equitable, plaintiff must allege facts which bring the case within the domain of equity,<sup>71</sup> but that the debtor has an equitable interest in certain property is a sufficient allegation.<sup>72</sup> The clerk's endorsement that a transcript of judgment was filed is insufficient basis for a creditors' bill.<sup>73</sup> It is necessary to allege that the legal remedies have been exhausted against both of two joint judgment creditors,<sup>74</sup> but not when they are joint and several,<sup>75</sup> and not

56. The holder of a mortgage on the property, though served, neither answered nor appeared. The court found that the mortgage was a first lien and ordered the property sold. Held that the mortgagee should have been ruled to answer to show the amount claimed before decree of sale was entered. Buckley's Assignee v. Stevenson, 30 Ky. L. R. 952, 99 S. W. 961.

57. The value of debtor's interest in his endowment policy depended on whether he or his wife would survive. Biggert v. Straub, 193 Mass. 77, 78 N. E. 770.

60. The judgment had an assignable interest in the remainder of a certain trust fund. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 1879, held not to apply to an assignable interest. See 7 C. L. 1099, n. 26. Bergmann v. Lord, 51 Misc. 213, 100 N. Y. S. 990.

61. For joint debt of husband and deceased wife. Buckley's Assignee v. Stevenson, 30 Ky. L. R. 952, 99 S. W. 961.

62. Where the remainder was in the children and the mother's estate was the debtor. Some of the remaindermen were infants and one was absent. Buckley's Assignee v. Stevenson, 30 Ky. L. R. 952, 99 S. W. 961.

63. Provided he be either insolvent or that a judgment lien exists or will arise upon the setting aside of the transfer. Prior to the judgment, the land had been fraudulently transferred to relatives of the debtor. Drahos v. Kopesky, 132 Iowa, 497, 109 N. W. 1021.

64. The creditor had judgment and, on it, execution and sale to himself of certain real property belonging to an estate in probate court, whereof the debtor was heir. The creditor was not required to present his claim to the probate court and his rights were not affected by subsequent distribution of the property to the debtor. Martinovitch v. Marsicano [Cal.] 89 P. 333.

65. Defendant corporation, which was the chief stockholder of the insolvent corporation, had absorbed it and was charged with a trust to pay its debts. Williams v. Commercial Nat. Bank [Or.] 90 P. 1012.

66. Defendant municipal corporation, after judgment, paid the price of certain land so that it might be given to defendant Railway Company. Southern R. Co. v. Hartshorne [Ala.] 43 So. 533.

67. The debtor held stock merely to enable him to act as director of the corporation and had no beneficial use of it. Herancourt v. Taylor, 29 Ky. L. R. 1299, 97 S. W. 359.

68. McNeal v. Hayes Mach. Co., 118 App. Div. 130, 103 N. Y. S. 312.

69. See 7 C. L. 1009.

70. The stockholders had fraudulently divided the assets of the corporation and only 50 per cent of the stock had been paid up. The creditors wished to reach the stock subscriptions in case the misappropriated assets should prove insufficient. Jahn v. Champagne Lumber Co., 147 F. 631.

71. Kalona Sav. Bk. v. Eash, 133 Iowa, 190, 109 N. W. 887.

72. The debtor had only his equity in land that his brothers held as security for his debt to them of unknown amount. Nichols-Shepard Co. v. Ringler [Iowa] 112 N. W. 542.

73. Nothing further appeared except date and explanations of counsel. Green v. Forney [Iowa] 111 N. W. 976.

74. The complaint left to inference that necessarily as against a surety.<sup>76</sup> A statutory rule for equitable action to reach jointly held personal property has no analogy to the rule for real property held jointly.<sup>77</sup> Persons interested in trust funds sought to be reached are proper parties defendant,<sup>78</sup> but of several assignees only the final one is necessary,<sup>79</sup> and the debtor's grantor is not necessary.<sup>80</sup> The judgment debtor is not a necessary party to a bill in aid of execution to subject property fraudulently conveyed.<sup>81</sup> A creditor may maintain an equity suit against a judgment creditor under any name by which it transacts business unless it pleads the misnomer.<sup>82</sup> To give a Federal court jurisdiction, it is not necessary that each of the creditors have a claim for over $2,000.<sup>83</sup> Jurisdiction over a debtor's interest in his life insurance policy is where the company is located,<sup>84</sup> and the question of jurisdiction is the same as in an action at law to reach property by trustee process.<sup>85</sup> The courts have jurisdiction to determine priority of liens.<sup>86</sup>

Sources of the criminal law.<sup>92</sup>—Crimes may be created and defined by municipalities within the scope of their delegated power<sup>93</sup> and by the state and Federal governments within the respective province of each,<sup>94</sup> subject to constitutional limitations preserving the rights of citizens,<sup>95</sup> and those regulating the enactment of statutes.<sup>96</sup> While common-law crimes are now recognized in but a few states,<sup>97</sup> where the statute creates an offense eo nomine, the court will look to the common law for its definition.<sup>98</sup> It is no objection to a statute that it does not provide a minimum penalty.<sup>99</sup> Failure of the legislature to grade an offense as required by Louisiana constitution does not invalidate statute creating it.<sup>1</sup>

Felonies<sup>6</sup> include all offenses declared by statute to be such,<sup>7</sup> and in most states all offenses punishable by imprisonment in the state prison,<sup>8</sup> the penalty which the statute authorizes and not that imposed in the particular case being determinative.<sup>9</sup> Where a woman's prison is established to which female offenders of all grades are sentenced, the grade of an offense by a woman is to be determined by the place of imprisonment of a man convicted of such offense.<sup>10</sup>

minor acts in obedience to parental command may rebut an inference of fraudulent intent.<sup>19</sup> Composition with the injured person is no defense.<sup>20</sup>

§ 3. Capacity to commit crime.<sup>21</sup>—At common law and by statute in most states, the burden is on the prosecution to show the capacity of a child over seven and under fourteen years of age,<sup>22</sup> and his capacity is to be determined as of the time of the offense<sup>23</sup> and should be submitted to the jury,<sup>24</sup> while as to persons over fourteen, no incapacity from infancy alone can be claimed, even as to crimes whose gist is the making of a contract.<sup>25</sup>

If a man has reason sufficient to distinguish between right and wrong in respect to the act charged, he is criminally responsible,<sup>26</sup> neither transitory frenzy,<sup>27</sup> weakness of mind,<sup>28</sup> nor partial insanity being a defense unless it produces incapacity to distinguish between right and wrong.<sup>29</sup>

Voluntary drunkenness is no defense to crime not involving specific interest,<sup>30</sup> but may be considered in determining the capacity to entertain such an intent,<sup>31</sup> unless the intent was formed before accused became intoxicated.<sup>32</sup> One who from drugs, or drugs and intoxicating liquor combined does not know what he is doing is not responsible.<sup>33</sup>

CURTESY.<sup>94</sup>

The statute in force at the time of the acquisition of the property by the wife usually determines the interest of the husband therein.<sup>95</sup> At common law there must be birth of lawful issue,<sup>96</sup> and under the statute of Nebraska the wife must be seised of at least a freehold interest.<sup>97</sup> The estate of curtesy initiate has been abolished in Arkansas.<sup>98</sup> The married woman's act of Missouri does not render the estate by the curtesy consummate subject to the wife's debts.<sup>99</sup> A contract giving the wife "full control" of the property of each does not release curtesy interests.<sup>1</sup>

CUSTOMS LAWS.

§ 1. Interpretation and Operation of Customs Laws in General (§60).

§ 2. Dutiable Articles and Classification of the Same (§61).

§ 3. Administration of Customs Laws

(§65). Entry (§67). Reliquidation (§67). Enforcement of Duties (§67). Refund for Salvage (§67). Protests and Appeals (§67).

§ 4. Violations of Customs Laws and Consequences Thereof (§69).

§ 1. Interpretation and operation of customs laws in general.<sup>37</sup>—Imports from Cuba entered prior to the date when the treaty signed in 1902 went into effect were not entitled to tariff reductions provided therein.<sup>38</sup> Merchandise imported into Cuba from the United States by an American citizen during the military occupation of the island and after the treaty of Paris was not exempt from duties imposed by the military government for necessary governmental purposes incident to the occupation.<sup>39</sup> The provision of the Foraker act that goods imported from Porto Rico prior to its passage and entered under bond for warehousing shall be subject to the duties imposed by that act does not apply to goods wrongfully warehoused by the collector for nonpayment of duty.<sup>40</sup> The Isle of Pines is a "foreign country" within the meaning of the Dingley act, so as to render importations therefrom subject to duty.<sup>41</sup> It was legal for congress by the act of 1906 to ratify the illegal collection of duties on imports to the Philippine Islands levied under the president's order before the enactment of a tariff of duties for those islands.<sup>42</sup> States may not levy duties on permit funeral processions to pass uninterrupted. Wilmington City R. Co. v. White [Del.] 66 A. 1009.

31. Take judicial notice of custom only when general as to territory and not limited to certain class. Schultz v. Ford Bros., 133 Iowa, 402, 109 N. W. 614. Custom and usage among traveling salesmen to include in sales those solicited which employer accepts held not so general as to enable court to take judicial notice thereof. Id.

32. Held not sufficient to allege that privilege of sawing timber into lumber on premises is customary consequence of its sale. Bowles v. Rice [Va.] 57 S. E. 575.

33. Schultz v. Ford Bros., 133 Iowa, 402, 109 N. W. 614. Where member of stock exchange has not testified to knowledge of its rules or customs, or that there was any general custom or that appellee had knowledge thereof, proper foundation has not been laid for proof of supposed custom. Whipple v. Tucker, 123 Ill. App. 223. It cannot be held as matter of law that retail fur merchants have not sufficient knowledge of custom between wholesalers and retailers to sell goods conditionally to testify thereto. Hess v. Shurtleff [N. H.] 65 A. 377.

34. Lauchheimer v. Jacobs, 126 Ga. 261, 55 S. E. 55. Cannot be held as matter of law that evidence of retail fur merchants as to custom of wholesalers to sell to them conditionally was not sufficient to establish custom. Hess v. Shurtleff [N. H.] 65 A. 377.

35. Whether trade custom or usage is established by evidence, whether it was known to party contracting or was so generally known as to raise presumption of knowledge, held for jury. New Roads Oil-mill & Mfg. Co. v. Kline, Wilson & Co. [C. C. A.] 154 F. 296.

36. Where plaintiff asserts that sales, because of usage of traveling salesmen, include sales solicited and afterwards accepted by house, evidence that there was no such custom is admissible. Schultz v. Ford Bros., 133 Iowa, 402, 109 N. W. 614. In action seeking to hold defendant for failing to ship plaintiff's car of corn "closed," claiming that such was method of doing business existing between them, defendant may show that he made "open" shipments to plaintiff's father-in-law. Smith v. Landa [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 470.

imports or exports without the consent of congress, except such as may be necessary for the execution of inspection laws.<sup>43</sup>

While no inference can be drawn against a particular construction of a schedule merely because it results in imposing double or treble duties by the addition of duty for each stage in manufacture,<sup>44</sup> doubts arising from ambiguities should be resolved in favor of the importer,<sup>45</sup> and a uniform construction of a particular provision by the treasury department for a number of years will not be lightly overruled by the courts.<sup>46</sup>

§ 2. Dutiable articles and classification of same.<sup>47</sup>—Apparatus imported for educational institutions are not free unless reasonable regulations of the secretary of treasury are complied with.<sup>48</sup> Household effects need not be used abroad continuously for a year in order to be admitted free, it being sufficient if the periods of use aggregate one year,<sup>49</sup> and the fact that a machine is extensively repaired shortly before importation does not render it subject to duty as an entirety where the value of the new manufacture may be easily determined.<sup>50</sup> Fruit condemned by local health officials while being unloaded and after being freed from customs supervision, but before passing into the actual control of the importer should be treated as a non-importation not dutiable.<sup>51</sup>

A long and uniform construction of an expression by congress or the customs authorities is generally controlling on the question of classification.<sup>52</sup> In its absence, the general rule is that specific provisions control general ones,<sup>53</sup> and the commercial meaning of a term or phrase prevails over the popular<sup>54</sup> unless previous legislation shows that it was used in its popular sense;<sup>55</sup> but where no trade designation is established, the ordinary dictionary definitions prevail.<sup>56</sup> That an article of a given name has previously been properly classified at a certain rate is not <sup>72.</sup> The wine or liquid gallon is the only one adopted or recognized by the Federal government. Dry olives should be measured by the liquid gallon, and not by the dry. Ceballos v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 380. Where a commodity is dutiable at a certain rate per gallon, the actual quantity should be ascertained though the importation is in gallon cans. Quantity of olive oil ascertained by weight though described as being in "gallon tin cans." United States v. Zucca & Co., 154 F. 172. Under the provision for fish in tins, the actual capacity of the tins, rather than the quantity of fish in them should be considered. Gandolfi & Co. v. U. S., 152 F. 656. Where water is added to berries put up in barrels, to serve only as a cushion to prevent crushing, in assessing duty "per quart" the dry, not the liquid, quart should be used. United States v. Boak Fish Co., 146 F. 104. Congress assumed to have known of practice of treasury department to consider fifty-seven pounds of onions as a bushel. Hills Bros. Co. v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 476. Fractions of degrees though small will not be disregarded in making polariscopic tests of sugar. 56,025 held "56 and above." United States v. Lueder [C. C. A.] 154 F. 1. The method employed by the customs officials in the ascertainment of dutiable quantity should not be disturbed in the absence of a clear showing of unfairness or injustice. United States v. Zucca & Co., 154 F. 172.

one package out of ten.<sup>75</sup> It will be presumed that in making a reappraisal return the board of general appraisers included the value of coverings where they fail to state whether the coverings were included.<sup>76</sup> In making an addition to the invoice value at the time of entry in order to prevent penal duties, an importer should state the added value with sufficient definiteness to enable the customs officials to ascertain the amount,<sup>77</sup> but mere reference to an item is sufficient if the amount is officially known to the officials.<sup>78</sup> An appraisalment by the local appraiser is presumed valid,<sup>79</sup> and, in the absence of evidence showing it to be invalid, it cannot be set aside by a mere appeal resulting in no valid reappraisalment,<sup>80</sup> but the rule that an appraisalment is conclusive unless reviewed by reappraisalment does not apply where the appraiser proceeds on a wrong principle.<sup>81</sup>

Whether goods are subject to double or treble duty depends upon the construction of the particular provisions under which they fall.<sup>82</sup> The additional duty imposed for unusual coverings used otherwise than in the bona fide transportation to the United States should be imposed in addition to the duty on the covering as a shipping box or package and not only as a substitute.<sup>83</sup> Where the value of goods is understated in the entry, and the quantity is understated in the invoice, additional duties should be collected on the excess in quantity over that stated in the invoice as well as on the value in excess of that declared in the entry.<sup>84</sup> Wool which has been changed in its character or condition for the purpose of evading duty is subject to twice the duty to which it would otherwise be subject.<sup>85</sup> Countervailing duties on the products of crude petroleum should be based on the duty imposed by the country where the products are produced.<sup>86</sup>

The customs administrative act empowers the secretary of treasury to authorize the board of general appraisers to adopt rules for the avoidance of conflicting decisions,<sup>87</sup> and where in accordance with a rule duty and regularly adopted<sup>88</sup> a case is transferred to another board after a decision has been prepared but not handed down, the decision of the second board is valid.<sup>89</sup>

Entry.<sup>90</sup>—While the statutory provision authorizing the exaction of storage charges in cases where the entry is incomplete or where it is made without the specification of particulars was not affected by the section of the customs administrative act abolishing all fees,<sup>91</sup> it was modified by the statute legalizing the incomplete entry of "packed packages," so that no charge may be exacted in connection with the entry of such packages because it is incomplete,<sup>92</sup> and a fee charged by the collector to defray the expense of administering the law relative to such packages is unauthorized.<sup>93</sup>

Reliquidation.<sup>94</sup>—In the absence of fraud or protest, a settlement of duties or passage of goods free is final after the expiration of one year from the time of entry,<sup>95</sup> but it is not conclusive on the government before the expiration of that time,<sup>96</sup> and hence a collector may reliquidate an entry and assess increased duties at any time within the year, though duties first assessed have been paid and the goods withdrawn for consumption.<sup>97</sup> The presence of a protest relating only to a portion of an importation does not, however, give the collector the right to reliquidate as to portions to which the protest does not relate.<sup>98</sup> A decision of the board of general appraisers directing a reliquidation "from the invoices, samples, or record" does not require the collector to consider data outside the record made before the board.<sup>99</sup>

Enforcement of duties.<sup>1</sup>—An action to recover duties alleged to have been illegally imposed at Manila during the Philippine insurrection is not an action to recover for a tort, so as to deprive the court of claims of jurisdiction.<sup>2</sup> The importer and consignee will be held liable for the amount of a reliquidation.<sup>3</sup> In an action for unpaid duties, the circuit court has ample power to suspend the trial until the importer by payment of the duties assessed may place himself in a position to try the question of classification before the board of general appraisers.<sup>4</sup> The government's right to exact a proper duty cannot be destroyed by long delay on the part of the customs officials in forwarding protests to the board of general appraisers whereby the importer's evidence is impaired.<sup>5</sup> Liquidated duties bear interest after demand on the importer.<sup>6</sup> packages, though no entry may have been made at the custom house.<sup>9</sup> Importers seeking an allowance for decay of perishable imports need not avail themselves of the statute relating to abandonment of merchandise.<sup>10</sup> A liquidation or reliquidation is conclusive on the owner or importer unless notice of objection is given within ten days,<sup>11</sup> but as to merchandise in bonded warehouse a protest that the duty should be assessed on the basis of weight at time of withdrawal cannot be made until withdrawal of the merchandise from bond,<sup>12</sup> and is timely if made within ten days after demand for reliquidation at time of withdrawal.<sup>13</sup> As to goods entered for consumption, the collector's decision as to amount and rate of duty will be final, as it will also unless the importer makes payment, under timely protest, of the full amount of the duties assessed.<sup>14</sup> Protests must state the reasons for objections distinctly and specifically.<sup>15</sup> Treasury regulations relative to government tests are made for the guidance of customs officials in the assessment and collection of duties when no protest is made, and not as judicial rules on appeal to the board of general appraisers.<sup>16</sup>

On appeal to the circuit court, the findings of the board of general appraisers are presumed proper and justifiable.<sup>17</sup> An assignment of error stating that the merchandise should have been held to be covered by a certain paragraph of the free list is not sufficient where the merchandise in fact comes within another paragraph,<sup>18</sup> and an additional general assignment that the protest should have been sustained does not make the protest a part of the petition so as to remedy the omission.<sup>19</sup> Assignments of error may not be amended after expiration of time for taking additional evidence and after the case has come to trial.<sup>20</sup> Importers who give no evidence before the board of general appraisers other than an affidavit and samples should not be permitted to introduce "further evidence" on appeal to the circuit court,<sup>21</sup> but the fact that no evidence is introduced before the board or on appeal is no ground for dismissing the appeal.<sup>22</sup> The ordinary rules of evidence are applicable in taking proofs before appraisers, and ex parte affidavits of manufacturers are not admissible before a general appraiser sitting as referee for the introduction of evidence in the circuit court.<sup>23</sup> In proving the character of merchandise, actual samples are not essential, the testimony of witnesses familiar with the goods being sufficient.<sup>24</sup>

12. Protest held premature. American Cigar Co. v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 484.

13. American Cigar Co. v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 484.

14. Legality of rates not litigable in suit by collector, no payment having been made under protest. United States v. Tiffany & Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 473.

15. Protest against action of collector in considering a certain amount as entered value held sufficient. Woodruff & Co. v. U. S., 154 F. 861. Protest against rates on lithographic prints, etc., held sufficient. Fuld & Co. v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 165. Where goods should have been classified free as "jute baggage," a protest that they should be free as "burlaps" was insufficient. Corbitt & Macleay Co. v. U. S., 153 F. 648. Objection that "said merchandise was dutiable at the appropriate rate, and under the proper paragraph according to the appropriate material of chief value," held too general. Rosenberg v. U. S., 146 F. 84.

16. In making polariscopic of sugar drainings, the board of general appraisers need not confine the evidence to government tests made according to treasury regulations, but may consider other evidence in addition. United States v. Lueder, 146 F. 149.

17. Where record was defective for loss of evidence. Schoellkopf v. U. S., 147 F. 855. Presumption of correctness of classification not overcome by testimony of officer that he was in doubt as to whether he had not erred. Thorpe & Co. v. U. S., 154 F. 864.

18, 19, 20. Vandegrift & Co. v. U. S., 154 F. 923.

21. Under provision of customs administrative act that court "may" refer case for further evidence. Mendelson & Co. v. U. S., 146 F. 78. Importers should present to the board of general appraisers all the evidence obtainable, and little weight will be given mere cumulative evidence on appeal, where it could easily have been produced before the board. Bromley & Sons v. U. S., 154 F. 399.

22. Case may be heard on facts appearing in certificate of collector. Lehigh Mfg. Co. v. U. S., 153 F. 596.

23. White & Co. v. U. S., 154 F. 175.

24. United States v. Hermann [C. C. A.] 154 F. 196.

Where of two alternative contentions in a protest the board of appraisers sustains the wrong one, and it is assigned as error that the board's decision was erroneous and that the goods were properly assessed, it may be decided on further appeal that the goods are dutiable under the other alternative.<sup>25</sup> A judgment of the circuit court may be reformed for the purpose of correcting computations made under it, though the term at which it was entered has ended.<sup>26</sup>

§ 4. Violations of customs laws and consequences thereof.<sup>27</sup>—Jurisdiction of a proceeding for a forfeiture exists only in the district where the seizure is made, which is the district in which the goods are found.<sup>28</sup> Proceedings must be commenced within three years after accrual of the forfeiture.<sup>29</sup> The provision for forfeiture and other penalties for the fraudulent entry of goods should be construed strictly,<sup>30</sup> and does not apply to mere errors of judgment or mistakes in description unaccompanied by any intent to defraud the government.<sup>31</sup> Section four of the administration act requiring the production of an invoice or declaration of merchandise,<sup>32</sup> and the first part of the forfeiture provision relating to entries by means of false or fraudulent statements or practices, apply only where the importation is not concealed.<sup>33</sup> Precious stones carried loose in a pocket of a passenger are baggage within the meaning of the customs law, and the passenger is bound to declare them the same as articles contained in his trunk.<sup>34</sup> An immigrant who lands and willfully omits to mention to the officials merchandise concealed upon his person is guilty of a willful act or omission by means of which the United States is deprived of lawful duties, within the meaning of the statute,<sup>35</sup> and is also guilty of unloading merchandise without a permit.<sup>36</sup> To constitute smuggling, it is not necessary that the goods shall have gone beyond the customs lines established on the dock.<sup>37</sup> Except in the case of common carriers, property used in transportation of smuggled merchandise is subject to forfeiture regardless of knowledge on the part of its owner of the purposes for which it is used.<sup>38</sup> A native and citizen of Porto Rico may maintain an action in the United States court of claims to recover the amount of a penalty exacted from him for his alleged smuggling of goods imported from the United States at a time when such goods were entitled to free entry.<sup>39</sup> On judgment for claimant of property seized as fraudulently imported, a certificate of reasonable cause should be entered by the court, though the verdict was clearly right where it affirmatively appears that the officers acted in good faith and on reasonable ground of suspicion.<sup>40</sup>

Nominal damages<sup>44</sup> are such damages as are awarded merely in recognition of a plaintiff's right and its technical infraction.<sup>45</sup> They should be allowed where a breach of duty owed is established but no actual damages are proved,<sup>46</sup> or where there is a failure of proof as to amount of damage.<sup>47</sup>

Liquidated damages<sup>48</sup> are those the amount of which has been determined by anticipatory agreement between the parties.<sup>49</sup> Whether a sum stipulated to be paid 41. This topic excludes measure of compensation for taking property for public use (See Eminent Domain, 7 C. L. 1276) and damages for death by wrongful act (See Death by Wrongful Act, 7 C. L. 1083). What law governs as to allowance of damages is also excluded. Conflict of Laws, 9 C. L. 596.

42. See 7 C. L. 1030.

43. See post, §§ 4A, 4F, and as to pleading special damages, see § 7.

44. See 7 C. L. 1030.

45. One illegally removed from office may, on reinstatement by mandamus, recover only nominal damages, since on restoration he was entitled to all accrued emoluments. Hill v. Mayor of Boston, 193 Mass. 569, 79 N. E. 825.

46. For breach of contract to complete a theater building by a certain date, at least nominal damages. Dunnevant v. Mocksoud, 122 Mo. App. 428, 99 S. W. 515. Nominal damages should be allowed for breach of contract if no actual damages are established. American Structural Steel Co. v. Rush, 100 N. Y. S. 1019. Where liability is shown, a plaintiff is entitled to at least nominal damages. Prewitt v. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 812.

47. Where in an action for obstructing a passway it appears that plaintiff's rights have been invaded, he is entitled to some damages though he does not show pecuniary loss. Dewire v. Hanley, 79 Conn. 454, 65 A. 573. One suing for breach of contract has the burden of proving actual damages, otherwise a verdict for substantial damages is unauthorized. Milledgeville Water Co. v. Fowler [Ga.] 58 S. E. 643.

48. See 7 C. L. 1031.

49. Where a specified sum is stated as liquidated damages in case of breach of contract, the measure is limited to such sum. Donovan v. Hanauer [Utah] 90 P. 569. Where the owner of a building in process of construction contracted for materials and called attention to the necessity of having them furnished within a specified time, and it was agreed that the furnisher would pay $10 for each day's delay, such stipulation fixed the measure of damages. Morrison v. Richardson [Mass.] 80 N. E. 468. The fact that the owner rented a portion of the building and used a portion of the materials would not defeat recovery. Id. For breach of contract to carry mails, the bondsmen are liable for the face of the bond irrespective of actual damages sustained where the bond was given in pursuance of 18 Stat. 235, providing that the sureties shall be liable for the face of such bond as liquidated damages. United States v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 151 F. 534. The stipulated amount was not excessive, was not a penalty, and would be enforced. Morrison v. Richardson [Mass.] 80 N. E. 468. It is presumed that a deposit made during negotiations for a lease is made as security for damages in case of default. Brodfield v. Schlanger, 104 N. Y. S. 369. Award of liquidated damages for breach of contract for sale of good will sustained. Skinner v. Wilson [Neb.] 107 N. W. 771.

in case of breach of contract is to be regarded as liquidated damages or a penalty is to be determined from the intention of the parties<sup>50</sup> as gathered from the entire contract.<sup>51</sup> The fact that the contract designates the sum named as one or the other is not conclusive.<sup>52</sup> If the damages for breach of contract are uncertain and difficult of ascertainment, the sum stipulated is usually held to be liquidated damages.<sup>53</sup> A provision for liquidated damages is waived when a party by his own act renders the contract incapable of performance within the time specified,<sup>54</sup> but not by changes in specifications which do not require extra time.<sup>55</sup> A stipulation for liquidated damages in case of delay in completing a contract does not apply where the contract is abandoned.<sup>56</sup> Liquidated damages stipulated for breach of contract may be recovered without proof of actual damages.<sup>57</sup> Where the right thereto depends on condition precedent, such condition must be complied with.<sup>58</sup> The surety for the performance of a contract is bound by a provision therein for liquidation of damages.<sup>59</sup>

50. Where it appears that damage approximating the amount stipulated in case of breach of contract has been sustained, the amount stipulated can be recovered. Ford v. Ingles Coal Co. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 332.

51. Whether a stipulation to pay a certain amount in case of breach of contract is one for a penalty or for liquidated damages is a question of law. Geiger v. Cawley, 146 Mich. 550, 13 Det. Leg. N. 848, 109 N. W. 1064.

Held liquidated damages: A provision in a contract for the exchange of property that either party would forfeit to the other $500 in case of breach is not to be construed as a penalty. Howard v. Adkins, 167 Ind. 184, 78 N. E. 665. An agreement to pay $200 in case of breach of a contract not to enter into a certain line of business in a certain place for five years. Geiger v. Cawley, 146 Mich. 550, 13 Det. Leg. N. 848, 109 N. W. 1064. Where in a sale of buildings the owners agreed that if at the time the sale was closed building department certificates could not be furnished, a sum should be deposited as security for damages which might flow because of such failure, but liability of vendors should not be limited thereto. Harris v. Snyder, 105 N. Y. S. 502. Where a contract for the construction of a certain appliance indicated clearly that time was deemed of great importance, a deduction of $35 per day for each day's delay will be held liquidated damages, and not penalty. United States v. Bethlehem Steel Co., 205 U. S. 105, 51 Law. Ed. 731. Contract for liquidated damages for delay in completing building sustained. Jenkins v. American Surety Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1112.

Held a penalty: Where a mail carrier at $5.50 per year gave a bond for $800 recovered as liquidated damages, and not as a penalty. Coker v. Brevard & Co. [Miss.] 43 So. 177. Where the parties in their correspondence and contract designate a per diem sum to be withheld as a "penalty" for delay, and the sum would amount in a year to thirty-five per cent of the cost of the article, the court cannot find that it was intended as liquidated damages. Bethlehem Steel Co. v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 19. A stipulation in a contract to do railroad work for $350 per mile that $50 per mile should be held back as a guaranty that the work would be completed. Henderson-Boyd Lumber Co. v. Cook [Ala.] 42 So. 838. A stipulation in a contract for the sale of land binding the vendor to keep premises in repair, insure buildings, and furnish an abstract within thirty days, and that either party would pay $500 for his breach of the contract. Boulware v. Crohn, 122 Mo. App. 571, 99 S. W. 796.

52. A stipulation in a contract that either party would pay a certain "penal sum" in case of breach is a stipulation for liquidated damages. Westbay v. Terry [Ark.] 103 S. W. 160.

53. An agreement to pay $600 in case of breach of contract to construct a depot in a certain place is one for liquidated damages. Jonesboro, etc., R. Co. v. Crigger [Ark.] 103 S. W. 1153. A stipulation for a certain sum per day for liquidated damages in case of failure to complete a contract within a certain time is conclusive where it is recited that the measure of damage is hard to ascertain and it so appears. Chapman Decorative Co. v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 189.

54. Callahan Road Imp. Co. v. Oneonta, 117 App. Div. 332, 101 N. Y. S. 1056.

55. Where one contracted to convert a ship into a barge within a specified time or pay a certain sum per day liquidated damages, he is not released from such liability on the ground that delay was occasioned by changes in specifications and extra work which did not affect the time required, but where delay was occasioned by a strike for which no provision had been made. Morse Dry Dock & Repair Co. v. Seaboard Transportation Co., 154 F. 90.

56. National Contracting Co. v. Hudson River Water Power Co., 118 App. Div. 665, 103 N. Y. S. 641.

58. Where a contract provides for liquidated damages in case of delay in completion unless delay is caused by owner or architect, in which case claim must be made to the owner or architect within twenty-four hours, the latter provision is binding. Clapman Decorative Co. v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co., 149 F. 189. Where an architect's certificate was required as proof that a contract was not completed within the time specified liquidated damages could not be recovered where no such certificate was procured. Swift Co. v. Dolle, 39 Ind. App. 653, 80 N. E. 678.

59. Mercantile Trust Co. v. Hensey, 27 App. D. C. 210.

Exemplary damages.<sup>60</sup>—Exemplary, punitive, or vindictive damages are those awarded, not as compensation, but as punishment, and are ordinarily recoverable only in actions ex delicto.<sup>61</sup> In some states, provision for the allowance of such damages is made by statute.<sup>62</sup> Where the wrongful act was done willfully, maliciously,<sup>3</sup> or wantonly, violently or under other circumstances of aggravation,<sup>64</sup> or in conscious disregard of another's rights,<sup>65</sup> or where there has been such a want of care as to amount to a reckless and conscious disregard of consequences,<sup>66</sup> exemplary damages may be allowed. But they may not be allowed in cases of simple negligence,<sup>67</sup> nor

60. See 7 C. L. 1032.

61. See, however, post, § 4A. See, also, for allowance of such damages in special case, post, § 4F. The mere bringing of an unfounded action against a person is not grounds upon which to allow punitive damages. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 580. Punitive damages cannot be recovered for breach of contract unless fraud is alleged and proved. Prince v. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 766.

62. 23 St. at Large, p. 1071, allowing punitive damages in actions for negligence of a railroad company, does not take property without due process. Osteen v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 196.

63. Exemplary damages may be recovered where a railroad company negligently, wantonly, and maliciously permits noxious weeds to go to seed on the right of way and spread onto adjacent land. Doeppenschmidt v. International & G. N. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 950. Exemplary damages may be given where the words uttered are slanderous per se. Held justifiable where defendant called plaintiff a thief. Conwisher v. Johnson, 127 Ill. App. 602.

64. May be recovered by one who went into a pit under an engine on the engineer's assurance that the engine would not be moved, but the engineer did move it. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Satterfield, 30 Ky. L. R. 1168, 100 S. W. 844. Properly awarded where a motorman running his car at a high speed fails to get it under control until too late to prevent collision with a person whom he sees or should have seen in time to avoid the injury. South Covington & C. St. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 30 Ky. L. R. 1072, 100 S. W. 283. An action under Civ. Code 1902, §§ 2851, 2852, for wrongful death, is a new cause of action, and not the survival of an action accruing to deceased, and authorizes exemplary damages where negligence was the result of malice or willfulness. Osteen v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 196. Punitive damages properly allowed where employees of a railroad company attempted to lay a track in a street against the protest of the city authorities. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Klute, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 409. Evidence of shooting at trespasser held to warrant exemplary damages. Lewis v. Fleer, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 237.

65. Exemplary damages may be allowed where injury complained of was inflicted in a lawless manner and in utter disregard of the rights of others. Held proper in case of assault without provocation. Coal Belt Elec. R. Co. v. Young, 126 Ill. App. 651. Punitive damages may be recovered where it appears that defendants, with full knowledge of the fact that plaintiff's husband had been twice confined in an asylum because of excessive use of liquor, continued to sell him liquor. Leverenz v. Stevens, 124 Ill. App. 401. Where one who became intoxicated before entering a car, but conducted himself with moderation after the relation of passenger was established, was subjected to an unjustifiable and unprovoked assault and ejection, a verdict in his favor will not be set aside because for a substantial sum and out of proportion to the physical injuries which he sustained. Scioto Valley Trac. Co. v. Graybill, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 469. Where railroad employees by reckless negligence caused a collision between a train and a street car at a crossing, exemplary damages are recoverable. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Kessee [Ky.] 103 S. W. 261. Evidence of persistent neglect to repair reservoir, by leakage of which plaintiff's land was damaged, held to warrant exemplary damages. Greeney v. Pennsylvania Water Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 136. In an action under Civ. Code 1902, § 2139, for violation of § 2132, relating to signals at crossings, the jury may give punitive damages. Osteen v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 196. The act of a railroad company in leaving a hole close to a frequented path is some evidence of wanton disregard of the rights of users of the path. Ruddell v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 75 S. C. 290, 55 S. E. 528.

66. Under Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 2866, in action for wrongful death, exemplary damages may be recovered where the decedent could have recovered such damages had he lived and not otherwise. Otto Kuehne Preserving Co. v. Allen [C. C. A.] 148 F. 666. To authorize such recovery the negligent party must have acted maliciously or wantonly, or have been grossly negligent. Id. Exemplary damages are not recoverable from the bailee where, after notice from a purchaser of the subject-matter of the bailment from the bailor of his acquisition thereof, the bailee denies the title of the purchaser, justifying his conversion of the property on the theory that the property belongs to another. Riddle v. Blair [Ala.] 42 So. 560.

Error to authorize such recovery if an act was done "negligently, intentionally, or wantonly." Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Wise [Ala.] 42 So. 821. Exemplary damages held not allowable for failure to give passenger reasonable time to embark. Chocataw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Cantwell, 78 Ark. 331, 95 S. W. 771. Civ. Code, § 3294, authorizing punitive damages for wrong not arising out of contract where there is oppression, fraud, or malice, does not authorize recovery of such damages for simple negligence. Spen- where the unlawful act is done in good faith under a belief of right<sup>68</sup> or upon provocation.<sup>69</sup> An injured person is not entitled to such damages as a matter of right in any case, and whether they shall be awarded is a matter wholly within the discretion of the jury.<sup>70</sup> In Connecticut exemplary damages may not exceed the natural expenses of litigation in excess of taxable costs.<sup>71</sup> A principal is not liable in punitive damage for an act of his agent, in the absence of previous authorization or subsequent ratification,<sup>72</sup> but may be held so liable if such fact exists.<sup>73</sup>

cer v. San Francisco Brick Co. [Cal. App.] 89 P. 851.

Not recoverable for anything short of gross negligence. Henderson City R. Co. v. Lockett, 30 Ky. L. R. 321, 93 S. W. 303. Cannot be awarded in an action for injuries unless there is gross negligence or wanton disregard for the safety of others. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Lence, 30 Ky. L. R. 988, 100 S. W. 215. Where injuries occurred because of the spreading of rails, the mere fact that some of the ties of the road were rotten did not warrant a finding of gross negligence justifying recovery of exemplary damages. Id. Gross negligence without any evidence of willfulness, wantonness, or conscious indifference to consequences, does not justify punitive damages. Harris Lumber Co. v. Morris, 80 Ark. 260, 96 S. W. 1067.

Evidence insufficient to show gross negligence warranting recovery of punitive damages where a person was injured while alighting from a train. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mount [Ky.] 101 S. W. 1182. To justify recovery of punitive damages under Civ. Code, § 3294, where a negligently constructed bulk head gave way and injured property. Spencer v. San Francisco Brick Co. [Cal. App.] 89 P. 857. Evidence that a car was running at unusual speed when derailed presents a question of gross negligence, so as to authorize punitive damages. Louisville St. R. Co. v. Brownfield, 29 Ky. L. R. 1097, 96 S. W. 912.

68. Punitive damages are not recoverable for painting a sign on a wall without the owner's consent where the painter believed in good faith that he had a right to do so. Louisville Gunning System v. Knighton [Ky.] 104 S. W. 332. Refusal to permit an inspection of cotton books as prescribed by 21 St. at Large, p. 793, under advice of counsel, is a matter from which the jury may infer actual and punitive damages. Parks v. Laurens Cotton Mills, 75 S. C. 560, 56 S. E. 234.

69. Punitive damages are not allowed in action by father for illegal carnal assault on his daughter where it appears that her conduct with defendant at time of assault fell but little short of consent. Palmer v. Baumn, 123 Ill. App. 584.

70. The awarding of punitive damages rests in the discretion of the jury when the evidence discloses a proper case for such award. Sneve v. Lunder, 100 Minn. 5, 110 N. W. 99. It is error for the court to direct such award in any case. Id. Punitive damages may not be directed in an action for criminal conversation. Eupes v. Nephue, 105 N. Y. S. 542.

Where one seeks a recovery for electric power furnished where he failed to furnish the quantity he agreed to furnish, it may be shown that failure to do so caused the defendant to lose patronage and earnings. Vilas v. Barre & M. Trac. & Power Co., 79 Vt. 311, 65 A. 104. The rule that prospective profits cannot be recovered in a suit for breach of contract does not apply to a contract for the doing of work which the contractor expects to perform himself in part with the expectation of getting good wages or of making something out of the job. Leffler v. Witten, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 192.

Too contingent: For failure to furnish material for construction of a pipe line to carry water to a city, loss of profits on the water which would have been carried are not recoverable where such profits were dependent on various contingencies. First Nat. Bk. of Portland v. Carroll, 35 Mont. 302, 88 P. 1012.

Where two parties entered into a contract for the construction of a pipe line to furnish water to a city, and one of them breached such contract, it was held that the other was not entitled to recover speculative profits nor expenditures made prior to the contract, the measure being the amount expended in reliance on the contract. Curran v. Smith [C. C. A.] 149 F. 945. No recovery can be had for speculative, conjectural or possible profits. Fact that if machinery ordered had been delivered on time purchaser could have manufactured and sold goods at a profit is too remote. Cobb Chocolate Co. v. Crocker-Wheeler Co., 125 Ill. App. 241. Avoidable consequences.<sup>97</sup>—A person injured by the wrongful act of another may recover only such damages as an exercise of reasonable care by him would not have prevented;<sup>98</sup> hence, where one party to a contract breaches it, it is the duty of the other to minimize his damages.<sup>99</sup> Where the person injured attempts in good faith to arrest his loss but his acts result in increasing the injury, he may recover for all loss sustained.<sup>1</sup> An injured person must exercise ordinary care to obtain proper medical attention and treatment, but such duty extends only to the selection of a physician of ordinary skill, and he is not responsible for mistakes of the physician<sup>2</sup> or his lack of skill.<sup>3</sup>

Mental suffering.<sup>4</sup>—Damages for mental suffering are ordinarily allowable only where there has been bodily injury causing physical pain and the mental suffering cannot be distinguished from the physical,<sup>5</sup> or where there has been a malicious or willful invasion of legal rights.<sup>6</sup> Many courts hold that there can be no recovery capacity, the defendant may not complain that plaintiff did nothing to lessen his damage, he being under no duty to buy lumber to keep the mill going, defendants having objected to his doing work for others. Beckman Lumber Co. v. Kittrell, 80 Ark. 228, 96 S. W. 988.

St. 1906, § 5446, takes the place of the property to the extent of the interest therein which claimant may establish in a suit on the bond, and the value of said interest with interest from date of delivery of the bond to the claimant is his measure of damages. Adamson Co. v. Izor, 76 Ohio St. 64, 80 N. E. 1037. Under Rev. Laws, c. 173, § 4, an assignee of a contract can recover no greater damages for its breach than his assignor could have recovered. Earnshaw v. Whittemore [Mass.] 80 N. E. 520.

26. A parent seeking recovery for injuries to his child may recover expenses of restoring or attempting to restore the child to a healthy condition so that it could earn wages. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 722. A parent may recover expenses in nursing a child which are in excess of the ordinary services the parent is bound to render to the child. Simons v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 202. A parent suing for injuries to his child may recover for his own loss of time and expenditures in caring for the child but not for mental anguish suffered by him. Brinkman v. St. Landry Cotton Oil Co., 118 La. 835, 43 So. 453.

27. In an action by a minor for injuries, medical expenses paid by his father are not elements. Tucker v. Buffalo Cotton Mills [S. C.] 57 S. E. 626.

28. Value of loss of services of minor child is justified where extent of injuries and fact that he lived at home are shown. Drogmund v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 1091. Value of nursing rendered by parent may be recovered though there is no proof of value. Id.

29. It is error to allow a minor to recover for value of services during minority which services presumptively belong to his parents. Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 789. Such error was held to have been cured by a remittitur. Id.

30. In an action by an emancipated minor testimony of value of time lost is admissible. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McNab [Ala.] 43 So. 222.

31. For injury to wife, husband may recover for loss of services, society, aid, and comfort and compensation for diminished earning capacity. Kimberly v. Howland, 143 N. C. 398, 55 S. E. 778. Damages to husband for loss of services of wife are inferred from the fact of injury and need not be alleged and proven. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Booth [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 948, 97 S. W. 128.

32. Damages claimed because of loss of services and companionship of wife, and expense incurred in giving her medical attention, were not the proximate consequences of the acts complained of. Sappington v. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co., 127 Ga. 178, 56 S. E. 311.

33. In an action by a husband for loss of services of his wife, loss of wages of his daughters who remained at home while the wife was incapacitated was not an element of damages. Kenan v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 118 App. Div. 36, 103 N. Y. S. 61.

34. Under Code 1896, §§ 2521, 2526, 2527, 2529, expenses paid by a wife on account of injuries are an element. Town of Elba v. Bullard [Ala.] 44 So. 412.

35. In Georgia a wife cannot recover damages for wages or salary lost by her husband. Glenn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 1 Ga. App. 821, 53 S. E. 83.

married woman's property by the operation of trains adjacent thereto is not liable for repairs to the plaintiff's property made and paid for by her husband,<sup>36</sup> nor for repairs to her house made necessary by its age and natural wear and tear.<sup>37</sup>

§ 4. Measure of damages for breach of contract. A. In general; miscellaneous contracts.<sup>38</sup>—The damages recoverable for breach of contract are such as may be fairly and reasonably considered to arise naturally from the breach,<sup>39</sup> and likely to result therefrom in the ordinary course of events,<sup>40</sup> or such as may reasonably be supposed to have been in contemplation of the parties at the time the contract was made as a probable result of a breach.<sup>41</sup> Special damages can be recovered only where the party in default had notice of the special circumstances out of which such damages naturally arose.<sup>42</sup> Profits which it is reasonably certain would have been realized but for the breach are recoverable.<sup>43</sup> The application of these general prin-

38. See 7 C. L. 1042.

39. Only those damages which are the natural and probable result of a breach of contract and which the parties reasonably anticipate may result from its breach under the particular circumstances of the case are recoverable. McDonald v. Kansas City Bolt & Nut Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 360. For breach of contract the measure is compensation for all detriment proximately caused or which in the ordinary course of things would be likely to result therefrom. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Stribling, 18 Okl. 417, 89 P. 1129. All direct and proximate loss sustained, including expenses incurred in getting ready to perform, loss of time, and personal services, may be recovered. Taylor v. Spencer [Kan.] 83 P. 544. To entitle one to recover damages for breach of contract, he must show that the wrong done and the injury sustained bear towards each other the relation of cause and effect. The damages must be the proximate result of the wrong complained of. Bahr v. Manke [Neb.] 110 N. W. 300. Where one liable for certain interest contracted with another to pay it but had notice that such other person was not paying it and having neglected to pay it himself he was entitled to recover from the party liable only sums he neglected to pay with interest. Gardner v. Welch [S. D.] 110 N. W. 110. Where one is sued for breach of contract to perform certain work, it was error to allow plaintiff for labor furnished to aid defendant where plaintiff was not requested nor required to perform such work. Munson v. Smith Woolen Mach. Co., 110 App. Div. 398, 103 N. Y. S. 502. For breach of contract, not what has been suffered by the party who performed by performing, but what was suffered by failure of the other party to perform. Pope v. Graniteville Mfg. Co., 1 Ga. App. 176, 57 S. E. 949.

40. Under Civ. Code, § 3300, fixing the measure for breach of contract as the amount likely to result in the ordinary course of things, the damages are only such as may reasonably be supposed to have been contemplated by the parties at the time the contract was made in light of facts known. Hunt Bros. Co. v. San Lorenzo Water Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 1093. For breach of contract by an owner of mineral springs to furnish water to a dealer who is to have the exclusive sale thereof in a certain place, the above rule applies. Id. One who is to procure laborers and be reimbursed cannot recover for amounts paid arbitrarily and beyond the current local rate of wages. Westendorf v. Dininny, 103 App. Div. 593, 92 N. Y. S. 858.

41. The measure for breach of contract is compensation for the direct consequences of the breach such as usually occur from the infraction of like contracts and were within the contemplation of the parties at the time the contract was entered into. Sargent v. Mason [Minn.] 112 N. W. 235. Error to fail to so instruct. It must appear from the complaint that damages alleged were contemplated by the parties at the time the contract was made. Morrison-Trammell Brick Co. v. McWilliams, 127 Ga. 159, 56 S. E. 306. Under a contract whereby a party agreed to erect a store building on certain premises and conduct a general mercantile business therein, the parties may be presumed to have contracted with reference to what was usual and customary in the vicinity. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner [Iowa] 112 N. W. 820. Loss of the purchaser of a scale by reason of its under-weighing held not within contemplation of parties. Wright v. Computing Scale Co. [Wash.] 91 P. 571.

42. Damages not ordinarily resulting from breach of contract are not ordinarily recoverable unless the party sought to be charged had notice of the special circumstances. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Twaddell [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 1120. Proof of knowledge by the defaulting party at the time he makes a contract of special circumstances which make other damages than those ordinarily implied by the contract and naturally flowing from its breach will warrant recovery thereof. McDonald v. Kansas City Bolt & Nut Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 360. For breach of contract to install a fire protection system within a reasonable period, damages by reason of destruction of the plant by fire before such equipment was installed may not be recoverable. Schaeffer Piano Mfg. Co. v. National Fire Extinguisher Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 159. For breach of contract to complete work within a specified time, notice to the defaulting party of special circumstances warranting special recovery must be proved. Korin v. Rutz, 98 N. Y. S. 845.

43. To furnish a certain amount of lumber to be planed, the profits which would have been made by doing the work. Beekman Lumber Co. v. Kittrell, 80 Ark. 228, 96 S. W. 988. For breach of contract to furnish enough lumber to keep a planing mill running at full capacity, damages may not be limited to what profits would have been made had lumber been furnished for ripping only as this would have left a part of the machinery idle. Id. Where two parties enter into construction work and one who agrees to furnish material fails to do so for the purpose of making the other breach his contract, the latter may recover prospective profits. Harris v. Paris-Kesl Const. Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 760.

44. Breach of building and construction contracts: Where a contractor was prevented by the owner from completing his contract, the measure is the contract price less what it would cost him to complete the contract. Spafford v. McNally, 130 Wis. 537, 110 N. W. 387. Where an owner prevents a contractor from completing his contract, is the value of labor performed and not the total contract price less the cost of completing the work. Valente v. Weinberg [Conn.] 67 A. 369. A certain building held, under the circumstances, not "wholly completed" on a certain date within the meaning of a contract imposing damages for delay. Phaneuf v. Corey, 190 Mass. 237, 76 N. E. 718. For breach of a contract to complete a structure in accordance with its terms, where the contractor had agreed with a materialman that if he did not so complete it the materialman might do so and recover all damages incurred, the second party was not limited to reasonable cost of completion but could recover actual sum expended in good faith. Baer v. Sleichner [C. C. A.] 153 F. 129. In an action to recover on a contract for building a water tower, which the answer alleges has not been constructed in accordance with the specifications, the proper finding for the jury to make is not the amount of money which would be required to make the tower conform to the specifications, but the diminished value of the tower by reason of the failure to construct in accordance with the specifications. Village of Madisonville v. Rosser, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 387. For breach of building contract, the sum necessary to make the building conform to the contract, or the difference in value in the building as constructed, and what it would have been worth had the contract been complied with. Forbes v. Hunter [Ky.] 102 S. W. 246. The owner may show cost of completing the house. Smith v. Davis [Ala.] 43 So. 729. It is error to authorize recovery for both profits and value of work and materials. Id. It is error to allow cost of completing work without deducting contract price. Brown v. Mader, 105 N. Y. S. 70. For breach of contract to furnish and erect the iron work of a building, the measure is the difference between the contract price and the cost of work. Peirce v. Cornell, 117 App. Div. 66, 102 N. Y. S. 102.

For abandoning a contract before completion of a house and using inferior material in construction, the amount necessary to remedy defects and complete the building in accordance with the contract. American Surety Co. v. Lyons [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 947, 97 S. W. 1080. Where a contractor abandons work before completing it, the measure is the difference between the cost of completing it and what the owner would have had to pay the contractor. National Contracting Co. v. Hudson River Water Power Co., 118 App. Div. 665, 103 N. Y. S. 641. Where a contractor abandons the work and the owner completes it, he will not be allowed compensation for unreasonable expenditures in completing the work. Id. Where a contractor completes work let to subcontractor, the reasonable expense of so doing. Seventh St. Planing Mill Co. v. Schaefer, 30 Ky. L. R. 623, 99 S. W. 341. Where deduction from contract price is claimed because of work done by the owner, such deduction will be allowed if it appears that it was work which the contractor should have done. Noyes v. Noullet & Co., 118 La. 888, 43 So. 539. To complete a building within the time limited, the rental value thereof. Tally v. Ganahl [Cal.] 90 P. 1049. For breach of contract to furnish labor and materials, the measure is the difference between the contract price and reasonable cost of completing the work. Jacobs v. Mandel, 104 N. Y. S. 721. Where parties enter into construction and one who has agreed to furnish material fails to do so through no fault of his own, the measure of damages is the value of the work already done and damages sustained by reason of delays and cost of appliances for executing the contract. Harris v. Paris-Kesl Const. Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 760.

For failure to deliver a life policy in accordance with agreement, the amount of premium paid. Prince v. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 766.

To bore a gas well 2,000 feet deep unless gas was sooner discovered and it appeared that the well was bored but 1,500 feet, the cost of cleaning and casing the well and sinking it the remaining distance. Corbin Oil & Gas Co. v. Mull, 30 Ky. L. R. 91, 97 S. W. 385.

To keep up premiums on a life policy, the amount the beneficiary would have received had the contract been performed with interest. Scheele v. Lafayette Bk., 120 Mo. App. 611, 97 S. W. 621. For wrongfully cutting out a subscriber's telephone, actual damages, inconvenience and annoyance. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Hobart [Miss.] 42 So. 349. For wrongfully shutting off water, illness of a member of the user's family is not an element unless the company had notice of such fact. Freeman v. Macon Gas Light & Water Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 61. For wrongfully shutting off water, evidence that the injured person had contracted for sale of water for 21 days at $20 per day does not show $420 damage, it not appearing when water was to be furnished or whether any was furnished. Calkins v. Sorosis Fruit Co. [Cal.] 88 P. 1094. Where a manufacturer of a machine contracted with a dealer to exhibit it at a fair but did not do so, and it was not exhibited the dealer cannot recover what it would have cost to exhibit it. Winston Cigarette Mach. Co. v. Wells-Whitehead Tobacco Co. [N. C.] 57 S. E. 148.

To bury body of child in usual manner, actual damages for mental anguish may be recovered. Wright v. Beardsley [Wash.] 89 P. 172.

For negligently performing a contract to excavate and place underpinning under a house so that the house fell, the measure is the difference between the value of the house before and after the fall. Olson v. Goerig [Wash.] 88 P. 1017.

To furnish not less than 500 cars for switching at $4 per car, the full contract price may be recovered where it appears that such rate was influenced by other provisions of the contract. International R. Co. v. Central Ice Co., 105 N. Y. S. 579.

To furnish operator and apparatus for giving a moving picture exhibition where plaintiff had purchased films is the difference between the cost and market value of the films. Pappas v. Miles, 104 N. Y. S. 369.

To take from a broker the entire output of certain silk mills, the measure is the value of the contract to the broker if performed. Napier v. Spielmann, 103 N. Y. S. 982. Under an agreement to pay cost of doing a job where it appears that actual cost was intended, the person doing the work is not entitled to any profit. Raisler Heating Co. v. Dowd, 52 Misc. 656, 102 N. Y. S. 504. In an action for breach of contract to rent a hall for a dance where the only damages proved were nominal with the exception of the deposit and sums paid to watchmen to warn people that the ball would not be held, nominal damages was all that could be recovered. Independent Trembowler Young Men's Benev. Ass'n v. Somach, 52 Misc. 538, 102 N. Y. S. 495. For breach of contract not to engage in business within a prescribed territory, measure of damages held to be the amount paid as consideration for such contract. Vandiver v. Robertson, 125 Mo. App. 307, 102 S. W. 659. The measure of damages for breach of a contract to board with plaintiff is the difference between the cost of furnishing the board contracted for and the price agreed to be paid. Dock v. Pratt, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 598.

To return a note by a certain time in case of failure to collect, but where it does not appear that it could have been collected if returned, nominal damages only can be recovered. Kiblinger Co. v. Sauk Bk. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 709.

Contract to furnish advertising matter and other aid in making sales, the measure is the amount of loss suffered by reason of such default. Simpson v. Crane [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 1071, 110 N. W. 1081. Where a contractor fixed up athletic grounds under an agreement that he was to be paid out of the revenues, and thereafter the owner refused to permit the use of the grounds for revenue, the measure of the contractor's damages was the amount of revenues he was prevented from deriving and not the amount he expended. Dockstader v. Young Men's Christian Ass'n of Des Moines [Iowa] 109 N. W. 906. Where a company through its agent took a dealer's order for a quantity of stock food, and at the time the order was taken the agent agreed to help create a market for it and sell it but immediately thereafter quit the company, the measure of the buyer's damages was the value of the services the agent agreed to furnish. Myers Royal Spice Co. v. Griswold [Neb.] 109 N. W. 736. Where persons entered into a contract to purchase corporate stock and one party agreed to sell the stock at a profit but thereafter refused to comply, the other had a cause of action against him for damages. Davidor v. Bradford, 129 Wis. 524, 109 N. W. 576.

Not to enter into similar business where the plaintiff showed that his employees left and went to a firm with which defendant was connected, and it did not appear that they would not have gone there in any event, evidence held insufficient to support a judgment for damages for breach of the contract. My Laundry Co. v. Schmeling, 129 Wis. 597, 109 N. W. 540. Where a discharged bankrupt agreed to pay a discharged debt in monthly installments and breached such contract, only installment due at the date of commencement of action could be recovered. Nathan v. Leeland, 193 Mass. 576, 79 N. E. 793.

A stockholder who has not been given an opportunity to subscribe for his proportionate share of new stock at the price fixed by stockholders, and who has offered to take his share at par, is entitled to the difference between the market value and the fixed price, and not the difference between the market value and the price he offered. Stokes v. Continental Trust Co. of New York, 186 N. Y. 285, 78 N. E. 1090. Where a building contract did not prescribe a penalty for nonperformance within the time specified, and time was not of the essence of the contract, but there was no extension of time or waiver, the measure for nonperformance within the time prescribed is the rental value. Wing & Bostwick Co. v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 150 F. 672. Where a contract relates to the drilling of an oil well, the plaintiff averring that he was not permitted to perform the work, a judgment for one-half of the amount claimed as the probable difference between the cost of the work and the amount to be paid therefor will not be disturbed, in view of the expenses to be incurred and the hazards of the work. Leffler v. Witten, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 192. Where an agent agreed to sell a manufacturer goods for a year, the manufacturer to guaranty him against losses for one per cent and the agent breached the contract, the manufacturer could recover the one per cent guaranty on total sales less the losses. Wilson v. Wernwag, 217 Pa. 82, 66 A. 242. Where a person agreed to act as selling agent for a manufacturer for a year and thereafter breached the contract and the manufacturer had agreed to guaranty him against loss for failures to the extent of one per cent on sales, the sales made and the losses sustained by the agent's successor could be taken as the data on which to estimate profits due on the guaranty. Id. For breach of warranty of an ice plant, the measure is the difference in the value of the plant installed and its value if it had been as warranted together with the amount of expenditures occasioned or made necessary because of such breach of warranty. Wilmington Candy Co. v. Remington Mach. Co., 5 Pen. (Del.) 543, 65 A. 74.

To plow land the difference between the contract price and what it was worth to do the work. Hill v. Leigh [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 351.

To permit one to cut and remove timber from land, the value of the timber lost. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Tinsley, 30 Ky. L. R. 1095, 100 S. W. 272. For breach of covenant by a vendee to erect a party wall where it did not appear that the vendor intended to erect a building on the adjoining lot or had lost a sale of such lot because of failure to erect such wall, he was not entitled to recover damage for failure to erect such wall within the time specified in the covenant. Hagins v. Sewell, 30 Ky. L. R. 750, 99 S. W. 673.

To care for growing trees for a term of years, the difference between the value of the land at the end of the term had the contract been performed and its value as it then was. Griffing Bros. Co. v. Winfield [Fla.] 43 So. 687. In an action for breach of contract to erect a store building on certain land and conduct a mercantile business therein, evidence held to show that if the store had been built it would have increased the value of the land $4 per acre. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner [Iowa] 112 N. W. 820. For breach of contract to construct a store building on certain premises and conduct a general mercantile business therein, the measure is the amount the improvements would have increased the value of the land. Id. For breach of contract to construct and deliver a building free from liens, reasonable attorney's fees are an element where the owner was compelled to defend against mechanic's liens. Tally v. Ganahl [Cal.] 90 P. 1049. Where one having a right by contract to cut timber from certain land was sued to enjoin such cutting and for damages for trespass and hired counsel to defend such action, such counsel fees are a proper element of damages in an action on the injunction bond. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Tinsley, 30 Ky. L. R. 1095, 100 S. W. 272.

For wrongful dishonor of a check, such temperate damages as would be reasonable compensation for the injury. Hilton v. Jesup Banking Co. [Ga.] 57 S. E. 78. In an action for wrongful dishonor of a check, evidence as to the customer's financial credit and standing is admissible though there is no claim for special damages. Id.

Where compensation is to be made in some other thing than money, and there is a refusal to perform, recovery may be had for what the specific thing is worth, to be ascertained in the usual method of finding the value of personal property. Ware v. McMurray [N. J. Law.] 64 A. 967. For failure to exercise the required degree of skill and care in tearing down a house, such damages as result from such failure. McBurnie v. Stelsly, 29 Ky. L. R. 1191, 97 S. W. 42. Where insurance agents contracted with another to procure insurance on his property, policies to take effect in the future, and such policies were refused before the time they were to take effect, the agent could not recover the amount of commissions he would have received. Weingrad v. Kletzky, 52 Misc. 129, 101 N. Y. S. 588.

45. Where a contract which provided a unit price for each class of work was abandoned and completed by the owner who proved cost of completing certain items without showing anything with reference to other work, held the owner was not entitled to recover amount shown by his evidence, as other work might have been done for less than the contract price entitling him to a credit. National Contracting Co. v. Hudson River Water Power Co., 118 App. Div. 665, 103 N. Y. S. 641. Where the contractor proved estimated profits on other classes of work, held he was entitled to deduct such profits from the damages proved by the owner. Id. Where a building contract provided that in case of breach by the contractor an architect's certificate should show the amount expended in completing the contract, such certificate was admissible against the contractor suing to recover, though no set off was filed. Smith v. Davis [Ala.] 43 So. 729. Where a sale is not complete but the purchaser keeps the article, he is liable for its value. Holmes Mach. Co. v. Chalkley, 143 N. C. 181, 55 S. E. 524.

46. See 7 C. L. 1045.

47. For failure to convey land, the difference between the contract price and market value. Whitworth v. Pool, 29 Ky. L. R. 1104, 96 S. W. 880. Upon breach by a vendor of a covenant to furnish an abstract in a contract which grants a time option to purchase, the measure is the difference between the contract price of the land and its value, the issue whether the vendee would have bought if the abstract was furnished is too remote. Hampton Stave Co. v. Gardner [C. C. A.] 154 F. 805. Measure of damages for breach of contract to sell land is price paid and expenses incurred on faith of contract, unless fraud be shown. Glasse v. Stewart, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 385. The measure of damages for breach of a parol contract for the sale of land is, in the absence of fraud, the purchase money paid and the actual damages incurred by the purchaser. Stephens v. Barnes, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 127.

48. Not deficiency in price of another sale. Cowdery v. Greenlee, 126 Ga. 786, 55 S. E. 918.

49. For breach of contract to sell land where the vendor acted in good faith is the deposit with interest and cost of investigating title if he did not act in good faith, the excess of market value over contract price may also be recovered. Hornor v. Beasley [Md.] 65 A. 820. Where the vendor in an unrecorded contract breached it by selling to another, the measure of the vendee's damages was the amount of payments made and value of improvements. Bartlett v. Smith, 146 Mich. 188, 13 Det. Leg. N. 713, 109 N. W. 260.

50. Where persons moved onto a farm under an oral contract to support the owner in consideration of his contract to deed them the farm, held on the breach of such contract by the landowner he was entitled to set off against the claim of the other parties proceeds of the farm used by them. Bovee v. Barrett, 116 App. Div. 20, 101 N. Y. S. 322.

does not include expenses of condemning land for a right of way. Cape Girardeau & C. R. Co. v. Wingerter [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1113. For breach of contract to convey a right of way, where the company agreed to relocate its road, expenses incurred in relocation cannot be recovered. Id.

52. See 5 C. L. 917.

53. For breach of covenant of warranty where the purchase price was paid in goods, the value of the goods. Mayer v. Wooten [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 423. In fixing damages for breach of covenant in a deed where it became necessary to determine value of corporate stock conveyed with the land, its value should be determined as of the date the covenant was made and not by subsequent financial condition of the corporation. Lemly v. Ellis, 143 N. C. 200, 55 S. E. 629. For breach of the covenant of quiet enjoyment where the title wholly fails is the purchase price. Sweet v. Howell, 96 App. Div. 45, 89 N. Y. S. 21; Olmstead v. Rawson, 110 App. Div. 809, 97 N. Y. S. 239. In action on covenant of seisin and warranty, plaintiff may recover actual loss unless it exceeds consideration, in which case consideration with interest thereon for time for which he has been compelled to respond to evictor for mesne profits is measure of damages. Quick v. Walker, 125 Mo. App. 257, 102 S. W. 33.

54. For breach of covenant of warranty of wild land, the sum paid with interest. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Barrow [Miss.] 42 So. 345. For breach of covenant of warranty where the covenantee was liable for rent after the judgment of eviction, was entitled to interest on damages recovered. Mayer v. Wooten [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 423.

55. For breach of covenant of warranty, the purchase price with costs of litigation. Mayer v. Wooten [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 423. Warrantee may recover costs, attorney's fees, and for time spent in defending suit by owners of paramount title, though notice was not given where it was impossible. As where warrantor was dead and administrator had not been appointed. Quick v. Walker, 125 Mo. App. 257, 102 S. W. 33. Where by statute the covenant to warrant and defend includes covenant for possession, the covenantee may recover money necessarily expended in acquiring possession. Weatherbee v. Lillybeck, 86 Miss. 156, 38 So. 284. Cannot recover for money expended in purchasing personal trade fixtures of the tenants, though purchased to get possession. Id. But see Shook v. Laufer [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1042, holding that the covenantee may not recover costs of eviction suit (Shook v. Laufer [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1042), or attorney's fees paid in defending the title (Id.). Counsel fees incurred by a covenantee in defense of suit for eviction cannot be recovered in action for breach of covenant of warranty. Morgan v. Haley [Va.] 58 S. E. 564.

56. Error to allow the damage to the estate as of the date of trial. Bailey v. Agawam Nat. Bk., 190 Mass. 20, 76 N. E. 449.

57. Jones v. Haseltine, 124 Mo. App. 674, 102 S. W. 40. Where covenantee retained part of consideration with which to perfect title, and secured patent direct from government for less sum he can recover only nominal damages for breach of covenant of seisin. Castor v. Dufur, 133 Iowa, 536, 111 N. W. 43.

58. See 7 C. L. 1045.

59. For breach of covenant of quiet enjoyment, the measure is the difference between the rental value and the rent reserved, together with such special damages as are pleaded and proven. Herpolsheimer v. Christopher [Neb.] 111 N. W. 359.

60. For breach of covenant by a lessor to keep a lessee in possession the difference between rent reserved and rental value with such special damages as are alleged and proven. Devers v. May, 30 Ky. L. R. 528, 99 S. W. 255. All damage sustained may be recovered in one action. For breach of covenant by lessor to keep lessee in possession, evidence that the premises were worth a specified sum in excess of the rent reserved is admissible. Id. For breach of covenant by lessor to keep lessee in possession, the lessee need not plead and prove effort to rent other land or engage in other occupation, recovery not being for loss of time. Id.

61. The measure for wrongful eviction of a tenant is ordinarily the rental value of the premises for the unexpired term less the rent reserved. Shutt v. Lockner [Neb.] 109 N. W. 383. Special damages in addition may be awarded if they are the certain and natural result of the wrong complained of. Id.

62. For breach of contract to rent a farm for a certain rental, the difference between rent reserved and rental value. Palmer v. Ingram [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 362. Not the difference between rent reserved and gross value of products of farm. Id. For breach of lease to let a tenant into possession, the agreed rental value. Broussard v. Hinds [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 855.

63. Where a landlord makes his tenant's premises uninhabitable with intention of causing him to abandon his lease, punitive is not a waiver of damages already accrued.<sup>64</sup> The measure for failure to give possession though founded on a legal rule, is also based upon equitable considerations.<sup>65</sup> Where a lessee breaches his contract of lease, the measure is the rent reserved.<sup>66</sup> For failure of a tenant to keep the premises free from foul weeds, the measure is the cost of restoring the land to its proper condition.<sup>67</sup> The measure for disturbing a light and air easement is the depreciated rental value.<sup>68</sup> For breach of covenant to make repairs, the cost of such repairs is the measure<sup>69</sup> or the difference of rental value of the premises as existing and as they would have been had the agreement been performed.<sup>70</sup>

damages may be recovered. Darnell v. Columbus Show Case Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 631.

64. Huntington Easy Payment Co. v. Parsons [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 253.

65. Which bind the tenant to such reasonable exertion as will mitigate the injury and prevent such damages as he can. Huntington Easy Payment Co. v. Parsons [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 253. Where a landlord fails to give possession on the date specified but tenders possession shortly thereafter, at which time the lessee can accept without serious inconvenience, he is limited to general damages for breach of covenant of quiet enjoyment for the period possession was withheld. Id.

66. For breach of contract of lease where the landlord elected to stand on the lease, his recovery was not lessened by the fact that he could have re-rented the premises. Davidson v. Hirsh [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 269.

67. For breach of stipulation by a tenant to keep land free from brush and burrs, the measure is the depreciation in rental value during the period necessary to eradicate the foul growth and expense and labor necessary to restore the land to a proper condition. Brown Land Co. v. Lehman [Iowa] 112 N. W. 185. In an action against a tenant for breach of contract to keep the land free from foul weeds, where there was evidence that a special course of treatment was necessary to eradicate the foul weeds, an instruction eliminating the expense and labor so required was erroneous. Id.

68. For disturbing easement of light and air, depreciated rental value. Darnell v. Columbus Show Case Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 631.

69. For breach of contract of a landlord to make repairs where the ceiling fell and injured the tenant, the measure of damages is the expense of doing the work which the landlord failed to do. Schiff v. Pottlitzer, 51 Misc. 611, 101 N. Y. S. 249.

70. Gorman v. Miller, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 62.

71. See 7 C. L. 1046.

72. See ante, § 4A. Such damages as would naturally and probably be in the contemplation of the parties at the time the contract was made. Tompkins Co. v. Monticello Cotton Oil Co., 153 F. 817. Where a seller of machinery contracted to install machines within a specified time and the buyer thereafter made contracts dependent for fulfillment on such installation, the seller of machinery was not liable for losses on such contracts because he failed to so install. Id. Where one agreed to install certain manufacturing machinery within a prescribed time, and in reliance on such contract the purchaser purchased a large quantity of raw material, the measure of damages is the difference between the value of the material at the time the machinery should have been ready and when it was installed. Id. Where there was no proof of such values, only the cost of putting the material in shape and value of material damaged could be recovered. Id. Under Laws 1897, p. 542, providing that on breach of conditional sale the vendor may recover the property, where the vendee's successor refuses to deliver it, the measure of damages is the sum of purchase price remaining unpaid. Davis v. Bliss [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 851. For breach of contract to furnish machinery for a mill, it is error to charge defendant with rental value of the mill where it did not appear that in the performance of the contract the entire mill was necessary. Munson v. Smith Woolen Mach. Co., 118 App. Div. 398, 103 N. Y. S. 502. In an action for failure to supply mill machinery within the time specified, evidence of rental value shown by estimate of profits the mill might have made with a satisfactory market for purchase of supplies is incompetent because too remote. Callahan Co. v. Chickasha Cotton Oil Co., 17 Okl. 544, 87 P. 331.

73. Anderson Carriage Co. v. Gilmore, 123 Mo. App. 19, 99 S. W. 766; Anson v. Moriarty, 103 N. Y. S. 815; Leesville Mfg. Co. v. Morgan Wood & Iron Works, 75 S. C. 342, 55 S. E. 768. This is the rule whether goods were bought for specific purpose or general purpose of buyer's business. Id. This is the rule defendant had notice of special circumstances affecting damages. Tillinghast v. Providence Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 268, 55 S. E. 621. For breach of contract to furnish cement, the measure is the difference between the contract price and what it could be purchased for on the open market, and not profits which could have been made on the order. Atlas Portland Cement Co. v. Hopper, 116 App. Div. 445, 101 N. Y. S. 948. For breach of contract to sell metal. Moers v. Dietz, 52 Misc. 173, 101 N. Y. S. 590. For breach of contract to sell lumber is the difference between the contract price and the ages as were contemplated by the parties at the time the contract was made,<sup>74</sup> but not those not contemplated.<sup>75</sup> If there is no market value for the goods, the actual value<sup>76</sup> as shown by the evidence<sup>77</sup> or lost profits<sup>78</sup> may be recovered. Where a vendee refuses to accept goods ready for delivery, the measure is the difference between the sale price and market value,<sup>79</sup> or the vendor may resell and recover the market price at place of delivery and not the difference between the contract price and the price for which the buyer had contracted to sell it. Floyd v. Mann, 146 Mich. 356, 13 Det. Leg. N. 811, 109 N. W. 679. For failure of a wholesaler to deliver coal within the contract time, a retailer is not entitled to recover the difference between the wholesale price and the retail price at time and place of delivery under the contract. Stecker v. Weaver Coal & Coke Co., 116 App. Div. 772, 102 N. Y. S. 89. The measure is the difference between the contract price and the wholesale market price on delivery date. Id. A buyer seeking to recover for failure of seller to deliver goods may show what efforts he made to procure the goods in open market. Falcott v. Freedman [Mich.] 113 N. W. 13.

For breach of contract of exchange of property, the measure is the value of the property which has been received. Fagan v. Hook [Iowa] 111 N. W. 981. Where an exchange of property is rescinded for a valid reason by one party after he has parted with possession of his property his measure of damages is the value of his property. Id.

74. For failure to deliver goods sold, the natural consequences flowing from the breach and contemplated by the parties. Green v. Lineville Drug Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 216. For breach of contract to furnish wire for use in manufacture of tubing where it appeared that the buyer was required to shut down his plant because of the breach, he could recover, in addition to loss of profits, loss of rent and interest on capital invested. Nicholls v. American Steel & Wire Co., 117 App. Div. 21, 102 N. Y. S. 227. For breach of contract by a manufacturer in furnishing defective steel pipe bands, which he knew were to be used to bind certain wooden pipes, the measure is the cost of hauling, loading, unloading, distributing, counting, painting, etc. McDonald v. Kansas City Bolt & Nut Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 360. But damages for loss of time, trouble, and extra work of superintendence are too remote. Id. The measure of damages for refusal of a buyer to receive the goods is the seller's loss of profit and any expense he has been put to. Ketcham v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 220.

75. For refusal of a buyer to take yarn contracted for, the manufacturer cannot recover for loss on resale of wool bought two years before it was required and reserved for the contract. River Spinning Co. v. Atlantic Mills, 155 F. 466. For delay in delivering saw mill machinery, there can be no recovery for loss because of inability to fill a contract for lumber, where the carrier had no notice of such contract. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mink [Ky.] 103 S. W. 294. For delay in delivering oil to an ice plant, damages are not recoverable for being compelled to shut down the plant, loss while idle, profits, etc. Haberzettler v. Trinity &

B. V. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 219. Where a manufacturer takes an order from a jobber without notice that the jobber expects to use the goods as part of his stock in trade to offer to his customers, he is not liable for profits the jobber might have made if he had not failed to deliver in time. Holloway v. White-Dunham Shoe Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 216.

76. For breach of contract to take from a manufacturer certain stoves ordered where some of them had been completely manufactured and as to others parts had not been assembled, the measure is the contract price less net price received by the manufacturer for some of the stoves sold by him, also deducting cost of "assembling" stoves not completed. St. Louis Range Co. v. Kline-Drummond Mercantile Co., 120 Mo. 438, 96 S. W. 1040.

77. For breach of contract to take stoves specially made so that they had no market value, the reasonable value at time and place of delivery is to be ascertained by evidence of actual sales of the stoves made, and testimony of persons familiar with the stove trade. St. Louis Range Co. v. Kline-Drummond Mercantile Co., 120 Mo. App. 438, 96 S. W. 1040. Where goods had no market value, authorizing the jury to award "reasonable selling value" was not error. Id.

78. For refusal of seller to deliver goods, the difference between the contract and market price if the goods can be procured in the open market, otherwise lost profits. Talcott v. Freedman [Mich.] 113 N. W. 13.

79. St. Louis Range Co. v. Kline-Drummond Mercantile Co., 120 Mo. App. 438, 96 S. W. 1040; Benjamin v. Maloney, 155 F. 494; Allen v. Rushforth [Neb.] 110 N. W. 687; Hanks Foundry Co. v. Woodstock Iron Works, 127 Ga. 108, 56 S. E. 106. For breach of contract of a railroad company to purchase ties, the difference between contract price and cost of making the ties. Duke v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 106 Va. 152, 55 S. E. 548. For breach of contract to accept certain beams and channels ordered the seller, who had ordered the material from another, could not recover the difference between the contract price and cost of material to him where the material had not been manufactured or paid for or liability incurred on the order. Isaacs v. Terry & Tench Co., 103 N. Y. S. 103. For breach of contract to give notes for the purchase price of property, the measure is the contract price of the property. Kelly v. Pierce [N. D.] 112 N. W. 995. For breach of contract to purchase coal from a mining company by refusing to take the quantity ordered, where a custom among coal dealers rendered it necessary to make such contract and the company contracted with others only for the balance of its output, the damages may be computed by deducting from the contract price, the original cost and expense of mining the coal. Thistle Coal Co. v. Rex Coal & Mining Co., 132 Iowa, 592, 109 N. W. 1094. For refusal to accept difference between the contract price and price received on resale.<sup>80</sup> For breach of warranty as to quality, the measure is the difference between the actual value and the value if the goods had been as represented.<sup>81</sup> For a breach of warranty as to quality of seed sold for planting, the measure is the difference between the value of the crop produced and what would have been produced had the seed been as warranted.<sup>82</sup> Prospective profits reasonably certain to have been made are recoverable<sup>83</sup> if specially pleaded,<sup>84</sup> and the loss thereof was contemplated when the contract was made.<sup>85</sup> A purchaser of goods who discovers their unfitness for the purpose for which they were bought may not increase damages by using them.<sup>86</sup> and pay for a crop of corn, the measure is the value of the corn raised less what it was worth to the grower. Pancost v. Vail [Del.] 65 A. 512. For breach of contract to accept corporate stock which was to be taken from one who claimed to own it, the measure is the contract price. Lydon v. Sullivan [Ky.] 101 S. W. 940. One who receives and accepts goods ordered under a contract to pay a specified price is liable for reasonable market value irrespective of invalidity of contract or the fact that the goods were of an inferior grade. Stewart v. Sachs & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 845, 96 S. W. 1091. Where one purchased all timber on certain land at a certain price per thousand to be removed within a certain time, but cut only large trees, the owner could recover for all timber on the land. Coat Lumber Co. v. Pope [Miss.] 43 So. 434. For breach of contract to purchase a stock of goods, evidence as to amount of fire insurance collected on the goods and disposition made of the money is admissible in reducing damages. Moritz v. Herskovitz [Wash.] 89 P. 560.

80. Reese v. Hoeffcker [Del.] 65 A. 588. For breach of contract to accept railroad ties where there is no market value, the difference between the contract price and the price at which the owner was required to sell. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Coyle, 30 Ky. L. R. 201, 97 S. W. 772. As to ties not manufactured at time of breach, difference between contract and selling price. Id.

81. Mark v. Williams Cooperage Co., 204 Mo. 242, 103 S. W. 20; Miller v. Aldrich, 123 Ill. App. 464. The difference in value between the goods furnished and those contracted to be furnished is the measure recoverable by the vendee in the absence of notice to the vendor of special circumstances which make other damages natural and probable. McDonald v. Kansas City Bolt & Nut Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 360. For breach of warranty of title to personalty purchased, the measure of damages is the amount the purchaser paid because of the transaction. Caproon v. Mitchell [Neb.] 110 N. W. 378. For breach of warranty of a machine, the measure is the difference between the value of the machine as warranted and its actual value. Isaacs v. Wanamaker [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 763. For breach of warranty as to quality of phosphate rock sold, the measure is the difference between the value in the port of delivery of the rock of the quality called for and of the rock furnished. Petrified Bone Min. Co. v. Rogers, 150 F. 445. The price at which it was sold after its inferior quality was discovered is some evidence of the market value but not conclusive. Id. For breach of warranty in sale of a horse, the measure is the difference between its value as warranted and its value in its unsound condition. Ellison v. Simmons [Del.] 65 A. 591.

82. For breach of guaranty in sale of seed, the difference between the value of the crop grown and the value of the crop which would have been grown had the seed been as guaranteed. De Pew v. Peck Hardware Co., 105 N. Y. S. 390. In an action for selling defective seed which was so full of foul seed that the crop raised was worthless, the expense of refitting the ground and the cost of seed for second sowing were proper items of damage. Id. Where in an action for selling defective seeds the buyer proved that the seed contained seeds of weeds so that it was necessary to plow the crop under to destroy such growth, it was not necessary to prove the value of the crop which would have grown had the field not been plowed. Id. Where in an action for sale of defective seed the buyer gave evidence that the crop produced was worthless, and the seller gave no proof on the subject, it was proper to charge that the buyer was entitled to recover the value of the crop if the seed had been as represented. Id.

83. For failure of a manufacturer to deliver goods to a retailer, the profits the retailer would have made and the increase in price of the goods from the date of purchase of date delivery should have been made. Roberts, Wicks & Co. v. Lee [Ky.] 102 S. W. 300. For refusal of buyer to take goods, specially manufactured for him, the profit the manufacturer would have made. River Spinning Co. v. Atlantic Mills, 155 F. 466. Where one contracted with a city to furnish a boiler and then entered into a contract with a manufacturer to make it and the latter breached his contract and the boiler could not be purchased on the open market but the contractor furnished one which was accepted by the city in lieu of it, he could recover from the manufacturer the profit lost on the contract by abandoning it, or perform his contract (Crowley v. Burns Boiler & Mfg. Co., 100 Minn. 178, 110 N. W. 969), and having elected to pursue the latter course, he could recover the difference between the contract price of the manufacturer and the amount paid for the substituted boiler (Id.).

84. For breach of a wholesaler to deliver goods to a retailer, profits of the retailer is not an element to be considered unless pleaded. Stecker v. Weaver Coal & Coke Co., 116 App. Div. 772, 102 N. Y. S. 89.

85. For failure to install machinery within the time prescribed, the purchaser

(4) F. Liability of bailees, carriers, and telegraph companies.<sup>87</sup>—For loss of or nondelivery of goods, a carrier is liable for their value at the time and place they should have been delivered.<sup>88</sup> Where goods having no market value are lost in transportation, evidence of value at place of shipment is admissible,<sup>89</sup> or, if they have no market value at any place, the rule of damages is its value to the plaintiff, and in ascertaining this value inquiry may be made into the elements of the cost to plaintiff in producing it,<sup>90</sup> and if there is no proof of value the valuation prescribed by the bill of lading controls.<sup>91</sup> There is a conflict of authority as to whether a carrier can limit its liability for its negligence.<sup>92</sup> For delay in delivery<sup>93</sup> or for injury to goods in transit,<sup>94</sup> the measure is the depreciation in value<sup>95</sup> or the value of the use of the goods during the period of delay,<sup>96</sup> and necessary expense incurred in tracing the may not recover profits on the manufacture and sale of a large quantity of raw material which he purchased and might have manufactured and sold if the machinery had been installed in time. Tompkins Co. v. Monticello Cotton Oil Co., 153 F. 817.

86. Unfitness of steam pipe while installing it may not increase damage by using it. Mark v. Williams Cooperage Co., 204 Mo. 242, 103 S. W. 20.

87. See 7 C. L. 1047.

88. Not profits which the consignee would have made had he received them. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Hansford, 30 Ky. L. R. 1105, 100 S. W. 251. Where title had passed to the consignee, the value of the goods and not the cost price. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wilson's Hack Line [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1042. Where secondhand goods have no market value, their actual value. Id. For failure of a carrier to deliver freight damaged by Act of God while in its possession, its value in its damaged condition. Starr-Hardnett & Edmiston Co. v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 122 Mo. App. 26, 97 S. W. 959. In absence of evidence of peculiar conditions affecting market value at place of delivery, it may be presumed that general market value in the neighborhood of place of delivery affords measure of damages. Chaney v. Hotchkiss, 79 Conn. 104, 63 A. 947.

89. Ross v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 190 Mo. App. 290, 95 S. W. 977.

90. Rule applied to manuscript of literary production. Southern Exp. Co. v. Owens, 146 Ala. 412, 41 So. 752.

91. For goods lost by a carrier which was not valued and there was no proof as to carrier's negligence, a clause in the bill of lading limiting the liability of the carrier to $50 was binding. Norton v. Adams Exp. Co., 123 Mo. App. 233, 100 S. W. 502.

92. Where a shipper accepted a bill of lading stamped "valuation restricted to $5 per 100 lbs.," the recovery will be limited to the amount stated, though the agent of the shipper testified that she did not understand the provision. Lansing v. New York, etc., R. Co., 52 Misc. 334, 102 N. Y. S. 1092. A stipulation in a receipt given by a carrier at time of receipt of the goods as to the value is not binding on the owner unless expressly agreed to by him. Southern Exp. Co. v. Briggs, 1 Ga. App. 294, 57 S. E. 1066. A carrier cannot limit its liability for negligence in transporting goods. McConnell Bros. v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 965.

93. For delay in transporting merchandise, the depreciation in market value of the goods and expense caused by the delay. McKerall v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 965.

For unreasonable delay by a carrier in transportation of goods, the depreciated market value, in the absence of notice of special circumstances. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Nelson, 30 Ky. L. R. 114, 97 S. W. 757. Notice of special circumstances to an agent after failure of goods to arrive within a reasonable time is not sufficient to warrant recovery of special damages. Id.

94. Damages to property injured in transit are estimated on the basis of net value at place of delivery, notwithstanding a stipulation that measure should be value at point of shipment since such stipulation is void. McConnell Bros. v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 559. A shipper of stock is not limited to damage apparent when the stock was delivered to him at the end of the carrier's line, but may show injuries subsequently discovered. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Logan, 29 Ky. L. R. 1123, 96 S. W. 910. In an action against a carrier for wrongful exposure of hogs in transit to a virulent disease, evidence that subsequent to the transportation the hogs communicated the disease to other hogs is admissible. Council v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 123 Mo. App. 432, 100 S. W. 57.

95. For delay in shipment of goods, the difference between market value at date it should have arrived as shown by the contract price and the market price when sold, with storage charges and other necessary expense made necessary by the delay. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Wilkinson, 106 Va. 775, 56 S. E. 808. On contradictory evidence as to whether a shipping contract was oral or written, and the evidence tended to show actionable negligence under either theory, damages can be recovered according to the contract established. Cornelius v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 74 Kan. 593, 87 P. 751. In an action by a buyer for the seller's refusal to deliver goods, evidence as to a fire in the buyer's store several months after the transaction is immaterial. Falcott v. Freedman [Mich.] 113 N. W. 13. Measure of damages for delay in transportation is the difference in value of article shipped at time of shipment and upon its arrival at its destination. Wabash R. Co. v. Foster, 127 Ill. App. 201.

96. For delay in delivery of baggage consisting of wearing apparel of wife and child, the value of the use of such articles during the period of delay, the fact that the wife deprived herself of certain clothing for the goods,<sup>97</sup> or the measure prescribed by statute.<sup>98</sup> Punitive damages may be recovered for willful and wanton delay in delivering baggage,<sup>99</sup> but willful disregard of the shipper's rights must be apparent.<sup>1</sup> Injury to feelings is not an element for refusal to deliver goods until certain charges are paid.<sup>2</sup> Mental anguish is an element in action for mutilation of a corpse.<sup>3</sup> Special damages are not recoverable<sup>4</sup> unless the carrier had notice of the special circumstances.<sup>5</sup> For delay<sup>6</sup> or failure<sup>7</sup> to furnish benefit of the child, however much to her discomfort, is no basis upon which to estimate damages. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Russell [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 607, 97 S. W. 1090. A complaint by a traveling salesman against a carrier for delay in transporting baggage through willful negligence thereby making it impossible for him to sell goods and causing him inconvenience and loss of time does not relate to remote or special damages not within the contemplation of the parties. Webb v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 954.

97. For delay of carrier in delivering goods, the value of the use of goods during delay and expense incurred in informing company of nonreceipt. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Christmas [Miss.] 42 So. 169. For delay in delivering goods a carrier is liable for expense of telegraphing in endeavoring to trace the shipment. Haverzette v. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 219.

98. For failure of a carrier to deliver goods within a reasonable time, the measure is prescribed by Civ. Code 1895, § 2319, and where the goods have been rendered valueless by delay, the full value at time and place of delivery may be recovered. Southern Exp. Co. v. Briggs, 1 Ga. App. 294, 57 S. E. 1066. Under the statute of Arkansas permitting recovery of attorney's fees in actions against a railroad company for violation of any law regulating transportation of freight or passengers, such fee cannot be recovered where no statute was violated. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Knight [Ark.] 99 S. W. 684.

99. Any willful or wanton failure to transport baggage with reasonable dispatch is a willful violation of a public duty for which punitive damages may be recovered. Webb v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 954. Punitive damages may be recovered for delay of a carrier in transporting baggage where the negligence is so gross and reckless as to assume the nature of wantonness or willfulness. Id. Punitive damages may be recovered for four days' delay in delivering baggage where there were three separate and distinct acts of negligence on the part of the carrier. Id.

1. Mistake of a carrier's clerk in billing goods to wrong destination, which was immediately corrected by sending out a tracer, and refusal of connecting carrier to deliver without payment for extra haul resulting from the mistake, does not show willful disregard of shipper's rights authorizing punitive damages. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Christmas [Miss.] 42 So. 169.

2. Recovery may not be had for injury to feelings in an action against a carrier for refusal to deliver goods until certain charges are paid. Gates v. Bekins [Wash.] 87 P. 505.

3. Mental anguish is an element in an action at the suit of a husband against a carrier for soiling and ruining the casket containing the body of his dead wife and for mutilating and disfiguring the corpse by negligently exposing it to rain. Lindh v. Great Northern R. Co., 99 Minn. 408, 109 N. W. 823.

4. Special damages cannot be recovered for delay in delivering baggage unless the carrier had notice of the special circumstances. Strange v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 724. For delay in delivery of feed for cattle where the carrier was not informed of the special elements of damages until after the contract was made, special damages could not be recovered. Patterson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 78, 97 S. W. 426. Where a shipper notified a carrier that goods shipped were for a special purpose and were required within a limited time, it was not such notice as would render the carrier liable for special damages. McKerall v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 965. Special damages are not recoverable for delay in delivering cotton seed meal and hulls where at the time the goods were received the carrier had no notice of the urgent necessity for prompt delivery or notice of the purpose for which the shipment was intended. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Nelson, 30 Ky. L. R. 114, 97 S. W. 757. Cotton seed meal and hulls are not of such character as to charge a carrier, with notice that prompt delivery was necessary to avoid loss on cattle to be fed. Id. For delay in delivering baggage, a passenger cannot recover for what he would have made with tools therein without allegation and proof that the carrier had notice of circumstances under which special damages are claimed. Milhous v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 75 S. C. 351, 55 S. E. 764.

5. For delay in delivering baggage where the carrier had notice that it was required at a certain place at a certain time for a special purpose, the injury to such purpose, together with expense and loss of time incurred in searching for the baggage. Strange v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 724. For delay in delivering freight, such damages as normally result, as well as such as result from special circumstances known to the carrier, may be recovered. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mink [Ky.] 103 S. W. 294.

6. For delay in delivering cars for transportation of cattle damages caused by cattle losing flesh, and by declination of market. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Timon [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 418. For delay in transportation of cattle, shipper held entitled to recover for expense in holding the cattle until purchaser could be found, for their loss of weight, and for decline in the market price. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Arnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 834.

7. For breach of contract to furnish cars for transportation of cattle, plaintiff may have full recovery, though the cattle were cars for the delivery of cattle, the measure is the damage occasioned by declination of the market and loss of weight by the cattle,<sup>8</sup> and extra expense for feed.<sup>9</sup> A provision in a shipping contract requiring notice of damage does not apply to injuries not specified in the contract.<sup>10</sup>

For breach of a carrier's duty owed a passenger, at least nominal damages should be awarded,<sup>11</sup> and the passenger is entitled to compensation for actual damage sustained.<sup>12</sup> Such damages include compensation for physical inconvenience and discomfort,<sup>13</sup> humiliation and wounded feelings,<sup>14</sup> and mental and physical pain,<sup>15</sup> providing the circumstances are such as to give rise to mental suffering.<sup>16</sup> owned jointly by himself, his brothers and father. Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Morris [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 433.

8. For delay in furnishing cars to carry horses to T., where the horses were unloaded and sold at W., values at T. should control on the question of damages. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Shipman [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 152, 98 S. W. 449. In an action for failure to deliver cattle in time for a certain market, evidence was admissible to show the difference in market value at the time the market was held and at the time of delivery. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Whitehill, 104 Md. 295, 64 A. 1033. In an action for delay in transporting and delivering cattle in time for a certain market, it may be shown by circumstances of the case that the railroad company knew that they were intended for such market on a particular day. Id. For negligent delays in transporting cattle, the measure is the loss sustained because of decline of the market where the cattle were delivered. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Fry, 74 Kan. 546, 87 P. 754.

9. For delay in shipment of cattle, extra expense for feed at destination is recoverable. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Gunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 152.

10. A provision in a live stock shipping contract that notice in writing of the shipper's claim for damages shall be a condition precedent to recovery for loss or injury to stock does not cover damages such as loss of market or other losses occasioned by delay. Cornelius v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 74 Kan. 539, 87 P. 751.

11. For breach of a carrier's contract to carry a passenger to a particular place, at least nominal damages. Williamson v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 127 Ga. 125, 56 S. E. 119. For carrying a passenger beyond destination, at least nominal damages. Sappington v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co., 127 Ga. 178, 56 S. E. 311.

12. Where a carrier negligently refuses to stop, for a passenger standing at a flag station, such person may recover damages resulting, whether the action be brought ex contractu or ex delicto. Williams v. Carolina & N. W. R. Co. [N. C.] 57 S. E. 216. For ejection of a passenger who did not have a ticket because of a mistake of the ticket agent in failing to place the ticket in an envelope given the passenger, the measure of damages is the amount of the fare. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. McCormick [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 202. For wrongful ejection of a passenger from a train who held a ticket providing that any claim for damages resulting from bona fide mistake of the conductor should be limited to the value of the ticket, where the conductor did not act in good faith, substantial damages could be recovered. Pierson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Mich.] 112 N. W. 923. The measure for wrongful ejection of a passenger is such sum as the jury believe to be fair compensation. De Board v. Camden Interstate R. Co. [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 279. Where by reason of negligence of an engineer in not seeing a signal he does not stop for a person at a flag station, such person is entitled to actual but not to punitive damages. Williams v. Carolina & N. W. R. Co. [N. C.] 57 S. E. 216.

13. Compensatory damages may be recovered for physical inconvenience, discomfort, and pain resulting from a breach of contract to reserve a drawing room in a sleeping car for a man and his wife, who in consequence are compelled to sit up the greater part of the night and to change cars twice, and a verdict of $125 recovered therefor is not excessive. Pullman Co. v. Willett, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 173. Where a carrier negligently fails to stop for a person at a flag station, such person need not wait for the next train but may walk to the next station and recover any damages he sustains. Williams v. Carolina & N. W. R. Co. [N. C.] 57 S. E. 216.

14. A passenger may recover for humiliation and wounded feelings caused by an insult offered by the carrier's servant. Wolfe v. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 899. Shame and mortification are elements for public ejection of passenger from car. Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 122 Mo. App. 338, 99 S. W. 495. For ejection from a street car where no force or insulting language was used, compensation for humiliation, and fare paid. Camden Interstate R. Co. v. Frazier, 30 Ky. L. R. 186, 97 S. W. 776. Mortification and humiliation resulting to a passenger from being put off at the wrong station may be recovered for though punitive damages are not recoverable. Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Brasher's Guardian, 29 Ky. L. R. 1277, 97 S. W. 349.

15. Where a passenger was put off at a wrong station, testimony that the weather was damp and cold, roads rough, that the passenger suffered mental and physical pain, and contracted illness, was admissible. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 194. The company could not escape liability on the theory that damages were not contemplated. Id. A passenger put off at a wrong station may recover for a sprained ankle resulting from the mistake though caused by the long walk and not by being forced to alight from the moving train as alleged. Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Brasher's Guardian, 29 Ky. L. R. 1277, 97 S. W. 349.

16. Mental suffering is not an element where a carrier refused to honor mileage

Disrespectful treatment offered a passenger may be considered in aggravation of damages,<sup>17</sup> and disrespectful conduct on the part of the passenger may be considered in mitigation.<sup>18</sup> It is the duty of a passenger put off at a wrong station to mitigate damages as much as possible.<sup>19</sup> Punitive damages may be awarded if the circumstances show reckless disregard of consequences,<sup>20</sup> or of the rights of a passenger,<sup>21</sup> but not otherwise.<sup>22</sup>

Actions for failure to or delay in delivering telegrams,<sup>23</sup> or for erroneous transmission of a message, are usually considered ex contractu and the damages recoverable are measured by the rules applicable to other contracts.<sup>24</sup> The damages recoverable are such as arise naturally and directly from the wrongful act or negligence of the telegraph company,<sup>25</sup> or such as may reasonably be supposed to and the holder thereof was required to borrow money from her brother to pay her fare. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Crane [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 738. Mental anguish or wounded feelings arising solely from the circumstance that a passenger was carried beyond his destination are not recoverable for. Sapington v. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co., 127 Ga. 178, 56 S. E. 311. For delay of a carrier in delivering a ticket purchased to bring one from a distant town, a carrier is not liable for the mere prolongation of mental anguish caused by such delay. Southern Pac. Co. v. Milner [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1170.

17. Disrespectful treatment by a master of a vessel to a woman passenger on her making complaint that she had been assaulted and robbed may be considered in aggravation of damages. The Western States, 151 F. 929. Where one who became intoxicated before entering a car, but conducted himself with moderation after the relation of passenger was established, was subjected to an unjustifiable and unprovoked assault and ejection, a verdict in his favor will not be set aside because for a substantial sum and out of proportion to the physical injuries which he sustained. Scioto Valley Trac. Co. v. Graybill, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 469. An instruction that a railway company is liable for actual damages caused by abusive conduct of its conductor. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Granger [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 987.

18. In an action for insults offered passengers by a conductor, a charge that the fact that the passengers insulted the conductor could be considered in mitigation of damages was erroneous as not confining such matter to unprovoked insults. San Antonio Trac. Co. v. Lambkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 574.

19. Where a passenger has been inadvertently informed that a through train stops at a local station, she must on discovering the error minimize damages as much as possible and cannot go to the next station beyond and walk back nine miles through heat and rain. Carter v. Southern R. Co., 75 S. C. 355, 55 S. E. 771.

20. Where a passenger was pushed from a slowly moving train by the conductor at a station at which he did not wish to alight, it was proper to instruct on the question of punitive damages. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Potts [Ga.] 57 S. E. 686. For willful misconduct in inducing a passenger to leave a train in the nighttime at a dangerous place, punitive damages may be recovered. Wil-

Hamson v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 127 Ga. 125, 56 S. E. 119.

21. Where an engineer sees a passenger standing at a flag station and willfully refuses to stop, punitive damages may be recovered. Williams v. Carolina & N. W. R. Co. [N. C.] 57 S. E. 216. Exemplary damages may be recovered for the malicious, wanton, or willful act of a conductor in arresting and imprisoning a person on a train. Davis v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 61 W. Va. 246, 56 S. E. 400.

22. A passenger who gets off at the wrong station in reliance on the assurance of the conductor, who was new on the run may not recover punitive damages. Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Brasher's Guardian, 29 Ky. L. R. 1277, 97 S. W. 349.

23. It is not essential that the particular loss or injury should have been contemplated. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Milton [Fla.] 43 So. 539. For delay in delivering telegram the tolls paid, though the sender was not otherwise damaged. Klopf v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 829.

24. See ante § 4A. For incorrectly transmitting a telegram, compensation for injury proximately resulting, which were contemplated or should have been foreseen. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Milton [Fla.] 43 So. 495. Where the sender of a telegram was unable to purchase certain goods because of delay in delivering a telegram, probable profits which might have been made were too conjectural. Bird v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 973. Where sender lost the sale of apples, he could recover the difference between price he would have received and price he could then have procured, and not the difference between what he would have received and what he did receive over thirty days later, plus loss for decay, repacking, etc. Thorp v. Western Union Tel. Co., 118 Mo. App. 398, 94 S. W. 554.

25. For breach of contract to transmit a telegram, at least nominal damages. Glenn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 1 Ga. App. 821, 58 S. E. 83. The sendee of a telegram proves a case by proving long delay in delivery and damages. Kirby v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 10. Where one was required to make a certain trip because of failure to deliver a telegram, evidence of what it cost a third person to make such trip is inadmissible, plaintiff being entitled to recover only actual expense. Salinger v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Iowa] 111 N. W. 320. Where the sender of a telegram told the agent that have been in the contemplation of the parties as a probable result of a breach.<sup>26</sup> As in other contracts, it is the duty of the injured party to minimize his damages.<sup>27</sup> Special damages are not recoverable unless the company had notice of the special circumstances,<sup>28</sup> but if the message on its face furnishes such notice, the company is liable.<sup>29</sup>

In many jurisdictions mental anguish is an element irrespective of pecuniary loss,<sup>30</sup> especially where the company has notice that such consequences will result he wanted to get home that night and the message showed contemplated use of a horse and carriage, whether suffering caused by exposure could have been avoided had the message been delivered held for the jury. Toale v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 117. The fact that plaintiff remained in a livery barn exposed to cold was not the result of delay in delivering a telegram and the only recovery should be cost of sending message. Jones v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 208, 55 S. E. 318. For delay in delivering a telegram which answered a letter offering barrels for sale, where the message did not accept the terms of the offer, no final contract was completed and nominal damages only could be recovered. Cherokee Tanning Extract Co. v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 143 N. C. 376, 55 S. E. 777.

Evidence held insufficient to show that delay in delivering telegram resulted in detention of a person in a quarantined town for several weeks and exposure to smallpox. Mitchiner v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 182, 55 S. E. 222. Compensatory damages cannot be recovered for failure to deliver a telegram, constituting a mere proposal to sell. Bashinsky v. Western Union Tel. Co., 1 Ga. App. 761, 58 S. E. 91. Delay in transmitting a telegram asking permission to bid on a stock of goods, does not give rise to a cause of action where the sendee had not agreed to bid but only to furnish the sender money on conditions which there is no evidence the sendee could have complied with. Bird v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 973. For delay in delivering a telegram, the fact that the sendee was prevented from being present at the death of his wife to console his daughter is not an element. Arkansas & L. R. Co. v. Stroude [Ark.] 100 S. W. 760.

26. For delay in delivering a telegram, the measure is the loss arising from breach of contract to deliver promptly and were presumed to have been in the contemplation of the parties. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lehman & Bro. [Md.] 66 A. 266. For failure to deliver telegram to a father informing him of the death of his son and requesting him to come, the length of time the body was kept and failure of the father to accompany it may be considered as contemplated by the parties. Walker v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 512, 56 S. E. 38. For failure to deliver a telegram, exposure and hardship caused by walking eight miles could not have been in the contemplation of the parties nor anticipated by them as a probable result of breach of the contract. Key v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 962.

27. Whether one used all means to minimize suffering because of delay in delivering a telegram held for the jury. Dempsey

v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 9. Where in an action for failure to deliver a telegram it is set up that the sendee did not use means to diminish damages, evidence that he received the message in unintelligible form and tried to but could not telephone was admissible. Walker v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 512, 56 S. E. 38.

28. Where failure to deliver a telegram "Will be in Perry on morning train" resulted in sickness and exposure, it cannot be said as a matter of law that such result could have been anticipated. Dempsey v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 9. A message "Your mother is dead, come at once," would not give the company notice that delay in delivery would cause the sendee to miss a conveyance sent for her. Kirby v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 10. Where because of failure to deliver a telegram the sendee was compelled to sit in a cold waiting room at night, she having no money to pay hotel bill, she cannot recover therefor unless the company had notice of such fact. Id.

29. Where a message was given a company for transmission and it showed on its face that immediate delivery was essential, and other circumstances charged the company with notice that it was important, profits which would have been made held recoverable. Western Union Tel. Co. v. True [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 1150.

30. A grandchild may recover for mental anguish for delay in delivery of a telegram announcing death of his grandparent and bidding him to come. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Prevatt [Ala.] 43 S. 106. Where it appears that delay in delivering a telegram resulted in the sendees being unable to attend his brother's funeral, the consequent grief is an element. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Caldwell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 840. Mental anguish is an element for delay in delivering a message announcing sickness of one. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Heathcoat [Ala.] 43 So. 117. Grief and mental suffering are elements in an action for failure to deliver a telegram. Arkansas & L. R. Co. v. Stroude [Ark.] 100 S. W. 760. Damages for mental suffering can be recovered because of delay in delivering a telegram which prevented the sendee from being present at his brother's funeral, but not because he was unable to be present with other relatives. Buchanan v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 974. In an action for delay in delivering a telegram, whereby one's wife was exposed to smallpox, the greatest length of time for which damages for mental anguish could be recovered is from receipt of telegram to when the person could be removed from such danger. Mitchiner v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 182, 55 S. E. 222.

Only fair compensation can be awarded

if the message is not promptly delivered,<sup>31</sup> but not otherwise.<sup>32</sup> Such element is not to be considered as to persons not mentioned in the telegram,<sup>33</sup> nor where the nature of the message is not such that failure to deliver should give rise to mental anguish.<sup>34</sup> Such element is to be considered if damages therefor are allowable in the state from which the message was sent.<sup>35</sup> Statutes permitting recovery for mental anguish apply only to personal or social messages.<sup>36</sup>

Punitive damages may be recovered for gross breach of duty toward a patron,<sup>37</sup> or gross negligence in transmitting the message,<sup>38</sup> or willful delay in delivering,<sup>39</sup> but where an effort is made to make delivery, such damages are not recoverable.<sup>40</sup> for mental anguish for delay in telegram and it is error to authorize recovery, according to the feelings of the jury. Shepard v. Western Union Tel. Co., 143 N. C. 244, 55 S. E. 704. Where in an action for mental suffering for delay in delivering a telegram which prevented the sendee from being present at his brother's funeral, the company adduced proof to overcome the presumption that the degree of mental anguish a brother ordinarily feels under such circumstances, it was error to exclude plaintiff's testimony as to grief he felt. Buchanan v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 974. For failure to deliver a telegram announcing death of grandchild, evidence that the sendee was unusually fond of the child was not objectionable as proof of abnormal sensibility. Doster v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 671.

31. Where a message shows on its face that a death has taken place and the sender sought to provide for prompt reception of the body, the company was charged with notice that mental suffering would result if the message was not delivered. Lyles v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 725. Where for failure to deliver a telegram recovery for mental suffering is sought because of failure of sendee to be with sender and comfort him after the death of his wife, it must appear that the company had notice of the peculiarly tender relations existing between the parties. Butler v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 759. Delay in delivering a telegram stating that the sendee's mother was very low, and stating where the sendee was to get money to go home with, is sufficient to charge the company with notice that mental suffering would result if the message was not delivered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Blackmer [Ark.] 102 S. W. 366. Where a telegram announced death and requested an answer as to whether sendee could come, the company had notice that delivery was expected at once. Smith v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 53 S. E. 6.

32. Mental anguish is not an element for delay in delivering a telegram in the absence of notice to the company of its probable occurrence. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Butler [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 704. Delay in delivering telegram "Can make big money next month, come at once," does not charge the company with notice that commissions will be lost because of failure to deliver. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Twaddell [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 1120.

33. Mental anguish suffered by a wife and children cannot be recovered for where they were not mentioned in the telegram.

Todd v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 53 S. E. 433.

34. Mental anguish is not an element for failure to deliver a telegram from sister to brother "meet me to-night," though because of such delay her brother did not meet her. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Westmoreland [Ala.] 44 So. 382. Mental anguish by reason of nondelivery of a telegram is not shown by testimony that the sendee could not have suffered mental anguish if she could have seen her sister before her death, where such nondelivery prevented her from attending the funeral. Roberts v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 960.

35. Mental anguish unaccompanied by physical pain is an element for failure to deliver a telegram where it is an element in the state to which the message was sent, though not at the point where received. Gentle v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Ark.] 100 S. W. 742.

36. A statute making telegraph companies liable for mental anguish does not authorize such recovery for mere worry and uneasiness over business affairs, but is limited to social and personal matters. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Shenep [Ark.] 104 S. W. 154.

37. Where an agent when asked about nondelivery of a message laughs and gives offensive answers, punitive damages may be recovered. Toale v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 117.

38. Where a message was transmitted at night from a day blank which meant "transmit at once" and no information was given the receiving office or effort made to deliver it until next day, the company was liable for punitive damages and mental anguish, though effort was made to deliver it next day, and if delivery had been made the sendee could not have attended the funeral of his mother. Bolton v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 543. Wantonness may be inferred from failure of a company to repeat a message when opportunity is furnished it, though it is received in unintelligible terms. Walker v. Western Union Tel. Co. 75 S. C. 512, 56 S. E. 38.

39. On an issue of willfulness in delay in delivering a telegram, it may be shown that the receiving office was a small one and the agent was operator, railroad, and express agent. Doster v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 671. Failure of an agent to hear a call on Sunday while working in the freight office and giving an important message to a passerby to deliver is evidence for the jury on the question of willfulness. Id. It is not error to charge that punitive damages can be re-

A provision on the telegraph blank that claims for damages must be presented within a specified time is binding,<sup>41</sup> unless waived by the company,<sup>42</sup> but the company cannot by stipulation on its blanks limit its liability to the sum paid for the message.<sup>43</sup>

covered for failure to deliver a telegram, it being charged that they could be given only on proof of willfulness. Dempsey v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 9. Unexplained delay of seventeen hours in delivery of telegram raises question of willfulness. Id. Punitive damages may be recovered for willful failure to deliver a telegram if proven. Harrison v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 267, 55 S. E. 450. Punitive damages not recoverable for failure to promptly deliver a message from sister to brother "Meet me to-night." Western Union Tel. Co. v. Westmoreland [Ala.] 44 So. 382.

40. Uncontradicted testimony of an attempt to deliver a telegram precludes recovery of punitive damages. Butler v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 757; Foster v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 759. Where there is undisputed evidence of an attempt to deliver a telegram, and it is not delivered because the sendee is located too late to render the message of any avail, punitive damages cannot be recovered. Todd v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 433. Punitive damages should not be awarded for failure to deliver a telegram where it was received out of office hours in a small town and the sendee was not known to the agent who finally located him by telephone, and a message was sent over the telephone to the assistant superintendent who promised to deliver it but did not. Key v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 962.

41. A stipulation on the back of a telegraph blank that claims for damages must be presented within a certain time is binding on one who has the agent write the message for him. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Prevatt [Ala.] 43 So. 106. Asking an explanation of discourtesy of an agent and demanding an apology is not a claim for damages within a stipulation that such claims should be presented within sixty days. Toale v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 117.

42. A provision on a telegraph blank that claims for damages must be presented within sixty days may be waived. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Heathcoat [Ala.] 43 So. 117. A waiver may rest in parol. Id. The head man of a local office may waive it. Id. Evidence insufficient to show waiver by a telegraph company of a stipulation that claims for damages should be presented within sixty days. Toale v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 117.

43. A telegraph company cannot by stipulation on its blanks limit its liability to the sum paid for the message. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Milton [Fla.] 43 So. 495.

44. See 7 C. L. 1053.

45. For wrongful discharge of a school teacher under a contract for employment from June 1 until the following May 31, where the discharge occurred in January, and it appeared that teachers were usually employed in May or June, it being his duty to get other employment. Peacock v. Coltrane [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 107. For breach of contract of employment, the remainder of the contract price unpaid is the measure, unless the employer shows that the discharged employe might have obtained other employment. American China Development Co. v. Boyd, 148 F. 258. The measure of damages for the breach of a contract for employment, so long as the services are satisfactory, is the amount of money which the employe would have earned at the stipulated salary from the time of his discharge to the time of the trial, together with the amount he could in future earn in the time during which he could reasonably be expected to serve, taking into account his age and state of health, and deducting whatever amounts he could reasonably have earned at other employment since his discharge, and what he might so earn in the future by reasonable diligence. Lake Shore & Western R. Co. v. Tierney, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 521. Where an attorney is employed to conduct a suit at an agreed compensation and fully performs his contract until discharged, he may recover the unpaid balance of the contract price. Sessions v. Warwick [Wash.] 89 P. 482.

46. Wages of workmen, and hire of machinery kept idle by delay in execution of subcontract, are elements, in an action by the contractor, but ordinarily a general contractor is not entitled to recover for loss of his own time where he is at liberty to obtain other contracts, nor for injury to business reputation, nor damages not within contemplation of parties when contract was made. Noyes v. Noullet & Co., 118 La. 888, 43 So. 539. An employe suing for wrongful discharge must render an accounting showing what he has earned by other employment. Kansas Union Life Ins. Co. v. Burman [C. C. A.] 141 F. 835.

47. In an action for breach of contract of employment it was proper to refuse an instruction that if the employe did not make reasonable effort to secure other work of similar kind he could not recover where the element that he could have procured such work had he tried was not included. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 867. In an action for breach of contract of employment it was proper to refuse to instruct that if the employe did not make reasonable effort to procure employment, he portion of profits reasonably certain to have been made are recoverable,<sup>48</sup> but remote consequences,<sup>49</sup> or elements not constituting a part of the contract,<sup>50</sup> are not to be considered. The fact that the employee could have procured other employment is a matter of defense.<sup>51</sup>

(§ 4) H. Promise of marriage.<sup>52</sup>—Injury to feelings, reputation, and standing, are elements to be considered.<sup>53</sup> Seduction may be set up as an element of punitive damages.<sup>54</sup>

§ 5. Measure and elements of damages for torts. A. In general; miscellaneous torts.<sup>55</sup>—Generally speaking, in actions ex delicto, damages may be recovered for all the natural and probable consequences of the wrongful act,<sup>56</sup> and if the tort was willful, punitive damages may be recovered,<sup>57</sup> but remote or conjectural damages may not be recovered.<sup>58</sup> In Georgia the damages recoverable are restricted to injuries to person, property, or reputation.<sup>59</sup>

Assault and battery.—For unjustified assault and battery, the measure recoverable is compensation for all injuries sustained,<sup>60</sup> together with such punitive could not recover, where the instruction did not require that such work continue throughout the term. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 867.

48. Prospective profits may be recovered where an employee has been prevented from performing his contract to conduct a business for one-half the profits. Belch v. Big Store Co. [Wash.] 89 P. 174. Recovery in such case being limited to amount deemed reasonably certain had breach not occurred. Where a contract by which an employee was to receive a share of the profits was terminated by a sale of the business, in determining the measure of damages, it was proper to consider only the average profits for three years past and not consider a previous year during which profits were exceedingly large. Smith v. Smith, 116 App. Div. 165, 101 N. Y. S. 521. Where one agreed to work for another an entire year for a percentage of gross receipts but only worked two and one-half months, he could not recover the average rate for the entire year. Tradesman Co. v. Superior Mfg. Co., 147 Mich. 702, 14 Det. Leg. N. 57, 111 N. W. 343.

49. For wrongful discharge of a boy employed for a term at specified wages and what he could earn from outside mounts, he could not recover for loss of outside earnings. Tucker v. Horn [Ky.] 103 S. W. 717.

50. For breach of contract of employment for one year the employee may not show what he has paid out for board in the absence of proof that it was part of the expense which his employer had agreed to pay. Seago v. White [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1015.

51. The fact that an employee wrongfully discharged could have obtained other employment is a matter of defense, and must be alleged and proven by the defendant. Peacock v. Coltrane [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 107. For breach of contract of employment the employer has the burden to prove that the employee could have procured work for the balance of the term at the same salary. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 867.

52. See 7 C. L. 1054. See, also, Breach of Marriage Promise, 9 C. L. 407.

53. Injury to feeling, reputation, and standing, are elements in breach of marriage promise. Johnson v. Levy, 118 La. 447, 43 So. 46.

54. Seduction may be pleaded as an element of punitive damage in breach of promise notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 374, giving a woman a right of action for her own seduction. Lanigan v. Neely [Cal. App.] 89 P. 441.

55. See 7 C. L. 1054.

56. For premature foreclosure of a trust deed, the difference between the reasonable value of the property and the amount of the debt secured at date of foreclosure. Missouri Real Estate Syndicate v. Sims, 121 Mo. App. 156, 98 S. W. 783. A relator in mandamus can recover for false return to an alternative writ only what he could recover in an independent action, and counsel fees or other expenses of the suit may not be included. Code Civ. Proc. § 2088. People v. New York Cent. & H. R. Co., 116 App. Div. 849, 102 N. Y. S. 385. Where a cotton buyer knew that there was a statute requiring him to allow inspection of books and yet refused, the motive which prompted the refusal was a question for the jury on the issue of damages. Park v. Laurens Cotton Mills, 75 S. C. 560, 56 S. E. 231. In an action for conspiracy in procuring a false imprisonment, one who procured money for the purpose of procuring release, but was not a party to the conspiracy, is liable for the money he procured only. Lupinek v. Woytisek, 110 App. Div. 688, 97 N. Y. S. 471.

57. Compensatory and punitive damages may be recovered for willful tort. Wilson Lumber Co. v. Anderson & Sons Co., 75 S. C. 299, 55 S. E. 447. Exemplary damages may be recovered for wrongful eviction where there is evidence of aggravation. Sperry v. Seidel [Pa.] 66 A. 853.

58. Where smallpox was negligently communicated to a person, losses to his business on account of people being kept away for fear of contracting the disease is not too remote to furnish basis of recovery. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Raney [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 589.

59. There can be no recovery for annoyance and wrong. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Baker, 1 Ga. App. 832, 58 S. E. 88.

60. Actual damages sustained may be re-damages as the jury see fit to award,<sup>61</sup> if the assault was accompanied by malice or wantonness.<sup>62</sup> Damages not contemplated as a probable result of the assault may not be recovered.<sup>63</sup> In assessing damages, mitigating circumstances are to be considered.<sup>64</sup> Loss of services and expenses resulting from confinement,<sup>65</sup> disgrace suffered by himself and family, are proper elements of damages in an action by the father for illegal carnal assault of his daughter,<sup>66</sup> but no money expended for support of child resulting from illegal carnal assault.<sup>67</sup>

covered for unjustified assault. Lovelace v. Miller [Ala.] 43 So. 734. Where a conductor in wrongfully ejecting a passenger from a street car hit him in the face in the presence of a car full of people and forcibly ejected him, recovery could be had for injury to feelings and indignity, though pecuniary damage was not proved. Samuels v. New York City R. Co., 52 Misc. 137, 101 N. Y. S. 534. Where an assault was accompanied by circumstances of malice and oppression, and life or great bodily harm was threatened, damages may be recovered for pain and mental anguish, although no physical injury resulted. Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 122 Mo. App. 338, 99 S. W. 495. In an action for damages caused by the infliction of an unnecessary and cruel physical injury in a personal encounter where there was some provocation on both sides, it was held there was no error in allowing plaintiff a little more than the actual expenses and loss of time resulting from the injury. Milam v. Milam [Wash.] 90 P. 595.

61. Punitive damages are recoverable only when the assault is characterized by express malice, violence, oppression, or wanton recklessness, and their allowance should always be left to the discretion of the jury. Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 122 Mo. App. 338, 99 S. W. 495. Allowance of punitive damages for assault and battery is not a violation of a provision against a person being twice punished for the same offense, though he has been previously punished. Doerhoefer v. Shewmaker, 29 Ky. L. R. 1193, 97 S. W. 7.

62. Exemplary damages may be awarded in an action for assault and battery where there is malice premeditated or wantonness in the assault. Shupack v. Gordon, 79 Conn. 298, 64 A. 740. In an action for assault in leading a person through a store during business hours and taking certain money from her, compensatory damages may be recovered as may punitive damages under circumstances of peculiar indignity. Henderson v. Agon [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 106, 111 N. W. 778. Allegations of petition in action for assault and battery held to support a claim for punitive damages under the Georgia statute, Civ. Code, § 3906. Morgan v. Langford, 126 Ga. 58, 54 S. E. 818. In an action for assault in ejecting a person from a hotel, an instruction authorizing exemplary damages if defendant was guilty of "culpable negligence" is erroneous, culpable negligence not implying malice or recklessness. Noonan v. Luther, 104 N. Y. S. 684.

63. For assault and battery committed on a person in the presence of his wife, recovery may not be had for injuries to his wife occasioned by fright and loss of services of his wife. Hutchinson v. Stern, 115 App. Div. 791, 101 N. Y. S. 145.

64. The fact that a passenger applied to the conductor who assaulted him an opprobrious epithet may be considered in mitigation of damages. Mitchell v. United Rys. Co., 125 Mo. App. 1, 102 S. W. 661. Where one committing an assault on information of an insult offered his daughter, evidence as to what he heard half an hour prior to the assault was admissible. Lovelace v. Miller [Ala.] 43 So. 734.

65, 66, 67. Palmer v. Baum, 123 Ill. App. 584.

68. See 7 C. L. 1054.

69. In an action for alienation of affections of a husband, proof of mental suffering is admissible without allegation of special damage. Klein v. Klein [Ky.] 101 S. W. 382.

70. In actions involving malice where exemplary damages may be awarded, the financial condition of the defendant may be shown. White v. White [Kan.] 90 P. 1087. Alienation of affections. Id.

71. See 7 C. L. 1054.

72. See, also, Fraud and Undue Influence, 7 C. L. 1813. Phillips v. Hebden [R. I.] 65 A. 266. For fraud in taking an invoice of a stock of merchandise for sale, the difference between the actual value and the price according to invoice. Smith v. Owsley [Ky.] 102 S. W. 277. For false representations made by vendor as to rents received, the measure is the difference in market value if the rents had been as represented and the actual market value. Ettlinger v. Weil, 184 N. Y. 179, 77 N. E. 31. The measure for fraud inducing one to discharge a mutual benefit society from liability on its contract is the difference between the amount paid by the society for the release and the actual value of the certificate released. Supreme Council of Knights and Ladies of Columbia v. Apman, 39 Ind. App. 670, 80 N. E. 640. For fraud in the sale of goods, the difference between the price paid and the market value. Cerny v. Paxton & Gallagher Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 882. For false representations inducing the purchase of corporate stock, the good will of the company is to be considered in determining the value of the stock.

Von Au v. Magenheimer, 115 App. Div. 84, 100 N. Y. S. 659. For deceit in lease of premises, the measure is the difference between the value of the lease for the unexpired term and the stipulated rent, with cost of moving and not prospective profits. Brown v. Morrill, 105 N. Y. S. 191. For false representations as to title, recovery may not be had for expense in procuring plans for a building on the land unless he shows that such plans are worthless for all other purposes. Curtley v. Security Sav. Soc. [Wash.] 89 P. 180. The measure of damages for fraud in procuring an application for a life policy and a note for the first year's premium is the amount the defrauded person was required to pay because of the note and such other damages as proximately resulted. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595.

73. In an action for fraud in procuring an application for a life policy, where evidence showed the amount of actual damages and none other, a verdict in excess of such amount was excessive. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595.

74. For fraud, reasonable attorney's fees paid out because of the fraud are recoverable. Curtley v. Security Sav. Soc. [Wash.] 89 P. 180.

75. Punitive damages cannot be recovered against an agent for fraud in procuring an application for a life policy, and a note for the first premium. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595. The agent not being liable for such damages, the insurer was not. Id.

76. See 7 C. L. 1055.

77. Where in an action for malicious prosecution plaintiff alleged that he lost time and incurred expense in defending the prosecution, evidence as to such expense, loss of time, and earnings prior to the prosecution is admissible. Carp v. Queen Ins. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 78. In an action for malicious prosecution, testimony that plaintiff went around hanging his head and acting as if he was in deep trouble and not in his right mind is not proof of mental suffering and disgrace. Id.

78. For malicious prosecution, reasonable attorney's fees in the prosecution may be recovered. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co., 143 N. C. 419, 55 S. E. 815.

79. Punitive damages are recoverable for institution of malicious prosecution for arson. Carp v. Queen Ins. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 78.

80. Actual malice is essential to the recovery of punitive damages in malicious prosecution. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co., 143 N. C. 419, 55 S. E. 815.

81. An officer who levies a wrongful writ of execution is the agent of the person for whom it is levied and is liable for compensatory damages to the person injured. Duff & Repp Furniture Co. v. Read, 74 Kan. 720, 88 P. 263. For wrongful attachment of tools, the measure is value of their use and injury to them and not what the owner might have made with them during the period of detention. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038. For wrongful attachment of cars, the measure is interest on the value increased or diminished by deterioration while in daily use or while tied up. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co., 126 N. C. 621, 55 S. E. 422. Where stock in trade was wrongfully levied upon, cost of fitting up store could not be recovered but value of use of detained premises may be. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038.

82. For wrongful attachment, recovery may be had for loss of profits arising from established business. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 643, lost profits may be recovered in an action on an attachment bond. Manning v. Grinstead, 28 Ky. L. R. 787, 90 S. W. 553.

83. Prospective profits may not be recovered for wrongful attachment where it appears that the business was disrupted and disorganized. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038.

84. Damages for injury to reputation, pride, or feelings may not be recovered in an action for wrongful attachment. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038.

85. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038.

86. For wrongful attachment loss by reason of decline of market cannot be recovered where the sheriff had informed the owner of the goods that he might sell them and deposit the proceeds in court. Bell v. Thompson [Ky.] 102 S. W. 830.

87. Statutory costs but not attorney's fees may be recovered in an action for wrongful attachment. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038. Attorney's fees are not an element of damages in an action on a bond for wrongful attachment. Chisenhall v. Hines [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 362. For wrongful attachment a reasonable attorney's fee is recoverable, and where he had not agreed to pay a stipulated fee, it was proper to leave the amount to the jury. State v. Allen [Mo. App.] 103 S. W.

falls within the statute by which they are authorized,<sup>89</sup> but may not be awarded if no actual damage results.<sup>90</sup> In some states multifold damages are authorized by statute.<sup>91</sup>

False imprisonment.<sup>92</sup>—The damages recoverable for false imprisonment are peculiarly a question for the jury.<sup>93</sup> Compensation should be allowed for physical inconvenience, mental suffering, and humiliation,<sup>94</sup> and expense of procuring release.<sup>95</sup>

(§ 5) B. Loss of, or injury to, property.<sup>96</sup>—The measure of damages for temporary injury to land is the depreciation in rental value<sup>97</sup> together with cost of repairs<sup>98</sup> or other necessary expense,<sup>99</sup> unless such cost exceeds the value of the land, 1090. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 643, attorney's fees are not recoverable in an action on an execution bond. Manning v. Grinstead, 28 Ky. L. R. 787, 90 S. W. 553.

88. Punitive damages as well as damages for mental suffering and expenses of suit are recoverable against a party causing a wrongful levy of execution. Duff & Repp Furniture Co. v. Read, 74 Kan. 730, 88 P. 263. Where an attorney for a creditor went to a debtor's store with a United States marshal, and after reading a writ told the debtor that if he did not give up property peaceably they would take it anyway and arrest him, and he surrendered it under threat of arrest, there was sufficient evidence to justify exemplary damages. Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Core, 223 Ill. 58, 79 N. E. 108.

89. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5857, authorizing punitive damages for wrongful attachment if malicious, such damages are not recoverable in a common-law action for suing out a writ of attachment. McGill v. Fuller & Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 1038.

90. Exemplary damages are not recoverable for wrongfully suing out a writ of attachment where no actual damage results. Stewart v. Smallwood [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 159.

91. Mill's Ann. St. § 2564, authorizing recovery of three times the value of property taken by wrongful levy, applies to an execution creditor who knowingly ratifies the act of an officer. Seerie v. Brewer [Colo.] 90 P. 508.

92. See 5 C. L. 924.

93. Baker v. Tyler [R. I.] 67 A. 430. In an action for false imprisonment where unlawful restraint and special damages were alleged, general damages would follow from proof of imprisonment and nonsuit was properly denied. Neves v. Costa [Cal. App.] 89 P. 860.

94. Physical inconvenience, mental suffering, and humiliation, are elements of general and compensatory damages in false imprisonment. Neves v. Costa [Cal. App.] 89 P. 860. Mental suffering is an element. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Wilson [Ky.] 103 S. W. 364.

95. Neves v. Costa [Cal. App.] 89 P. 860.

96. See 7 C. L. 1055.

97. For injury to land the principle of compensation controls. Young v. Extension Ditch Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 296. The measure of damages for injury to real estate is the cost of restoration or the difference in market value, according to which is the lesser amount. Swanson v. Nelson, 127 Ill. App. 144. Where land is not injured but owner is prevented from raising a crop, the measure is rental value with interest. Young v. Extension Ditch Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 296. For burning over meadow land where roots of grass were destroyed so as to require reseeding, the value of the grass destroyed and rental value of land for succeeding year, but not loss of crop and pasturage for the next year. Knight v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 81. In an action against the owner of underlying coal mines for failure to support the surface if the injury is reparable, cost of repairs may be recovered, but if such cost is greater than diminution in value, the latter is the measure. Weaver v. Berwind-White Coal Co., 216 Pa. 195, 65 A. 545. The owner of underlying mines who fails to support the surface is liable for the destruction of springs resulting from his failure to construct surface supports, but is not liable if such injury results from the removal of coal which he has a right to remove. Id. For trespass by cattle where it does not appear that they were on the land during an entire season, the measure is the damage to the crop and not rental value of the land. Cole v. Thompson [Iowa] 112 N. W. 178.

98. The measure for injury to premises caused by escaping chlorine gas may be either the depreciated value of the premises, or, if it is reasonably possible to restore the premises to their former condition the cost of such restoration. Senglaup v. Acker Process Co., 105 N. Y. S. 470. For temporary injury to land, the cost of repairs with interest. Young v. Extension Ditch Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 296. If the thing injured be an appurtenant of the land, its value as such may be considered as a basis of recovery, but indirect injuries caused by a trespass specified in the statute and others not specified cannot be trebled and recovered. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Grant [Kan.] 89 P. 658. An allegation in trespass of cutting and removing trees to plaintiff's damage authorizes recovery of value of timber and for injuries to the land. Davis v. Wall, 142 N. C. 450, 55 S. E. 350.

99. Where contractors in erecting a building did the work so negligently that a house on adjoining premises had to be vacated, the tenant could recover for discomfort, cost of storing his goods and difference between cost of living in the house and in a hotel. McFadden v. Thompson-Starrett Co., 116 App. Div. 285, 101 N. Y. S. 467. For injury to an abutting lot by filling in a street, the cost of filling the lot is not an element of damages unless it is necessary to fill in order to preserve the property from further damage, but destruction in which case the value of the land is the measure.<sup>1</sup> Compensation may also be had for other injuries which necessarily result.<sup>2</sup> If the injury is permanent, the measure is generally the depreciation in value.<sup>3</sup> The measure of damages for injury to growing crops is the market value less cost of harvesting and marketing.<sup>4</sup> For of sod and shrubbery may be shown as relevant to the uses to which the property was adaptable. Godbey v. Bluefield, 61 W. Va. 604, 57 S. E. 45. Measure of damages for injury to premises is ordinarily the cost of restoring them to their original condition together with compensation for the loss or impairment of the use during the meantime. Herr v. Altoona, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 375; Keats v. Gas Co. of Luzerne County, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 480. Measure of damages of mill owner for pollution of stream is cost of removing deposits in water and compensation for impairment of use of property during the continuance thereof. Bricker v. Conemaugh Stone Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 283.

1. Bigham v. Pittsburg Const. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 86; Glasgow v. Altoona, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 55.

2. Where in an action for flooding property plaintiff claimed that he contracted rheumatism by wading, such issue together with his contributory negligence in wading was properly submitted. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Stewart [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 282. Where one was caused inconvenience in getting to and from his premises by reason of flooding, and claimed no damages for injury to the land, the jury could allow damages without evidence as to the money value thereof. Id.

3. Young v. Extension Ditch Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 296. If land is taken or destroyed, the cash value with interest is the measure. Id. In determining damages to adjoining owners for negligent operation of a spur track, it is proper to consider depreciation in value of the property, inconvenience, discomfort, and unpleasantness. Thomason v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 300, 55 S. E. 198. It was also proper to consider injury to furniture by smoke and cinders. Id. It is also error to authorize consideration as an element of permanent damage, of liability of lot to be flooded by surface water collected by the street, since that injury is recurring and intermittent. Godbey v. Bluefield, 61 W. Va. 604, 57 S. E. 45. For invasion of a forest and cutting trees therein, the diminution in value to the whole premises may be shown. Morrison v. American Tel. & T. Co., 115 App. Div. 744, 101 N. Y. S. 140. In trespass for cutting a strip through a woodland and erecting a telephone line, the measure of damages was properly based on the timber cut, making of road, etc., to the commencement of the action, but since future actions might be maintained, it was not proper to allow therefor on the theory that trespass might be permanent. Id.

For burning over land, the difference in value before and after the fire. Southern R. Co. v. Herrington [Ga.] 57 S. E. 694. For injuries to land by digging up grass roots, the measure is the depreciated value in the land. Warrick v. Reinhardt [Iowa] 111 N. W. 983.

Failure to furnish subjacent support: Where underlying coal is sold, the measure of damages for injuries to land for failure to give support to the surface is the depreciation in the value of the land. Weaver v. Berwind-White Coal Co., 216 Pa. 195, 65 A. 545. In an action against the owner of underlying mines for failure to support the surface, evidence of the value of springs destroyed is admissible on the question of depreciation in value of the land, but not as an independent item not connected with such general value. Id. The measure for injury to a building caused by the negligent digging of a ditch in the cellar of an adjacent house near a party wall is the depreciation in value of the property, and not the cost of restoring it to its former condition. Hopkins v. American Pneumatic Service Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 624. The fact that the source of injury was settling of the party wall did not affect this measure. Id. For injury to a lot by filling in the street on which it abuts, the difference in value less special benefits between the market value before and after the fill. Godbey v. Bluefield, 61 W. Va. 604, 57 S. E. 45. For destruction of a spring of percolating water, the measure is compensation for injury sustained estimated in connection with diminished value of the farm. Little v. American Tel. & T. Co. [Del.] 67 A. 169. For injuries to land by flooding caused by defective culverts, where injury is permanent, the depreciation in the value of the land. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Green [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 573; Gebhardt v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 122 Mo. App. 503, 99 S. W. 773. Injury occurring after filing of suit may be recovered for. Id.

For flooding land the fair rental value of that portion of the land on which no crop could be grown and for that portion upon which crops were grown, the difference in value between the crop grown and which could have been produced had the land not been flooded. Jones v. Cooley Lake Club, 122 Mo. App. 113, 98 S. W. 82. For injury to lot by change of grade of an alley, the difference in value just before and just after the injury. McMillan v. Columbia, 122 Mo. App. 34, 97 S. W. 953. In an action for injuries to property by construction and maintenance of a line of railroad, depot and cattle pens, an instruction not to consider general benefits enjoyed by the community in general, but to consider special benefits was proper. Dallas, etc., R. Co. v. Langston [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 316, 98 S. W. 425.

4. For injuries to growing crops by flooding, the measure is the value of the crops when destroyed together with the value to mature and harvest them. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Ass'n v. Schultz, 226 Ill. 409, 80 N. E. 879. Proof of market value of crops without proof of cost of harvesting is erroneous in an action for destruction of crops. Fleming v. Pullen [Tex. Civ. App.] 116 Tex. Ct. Rep. 891, 97 S. W. 109. For destruction and injury to crops by flooding, fair compensation with interest. Little Rock & Ft. Smith R. Co. v.

destruction of a crop, the market value at the time<sup>5</sup> as shown by evidence of probable yield<sup>6</sup> and value.<sup>7</sup> The injured party has the burden to prove the extent of his damage.<sup>8</sup> The measure for injury and destruction of fruit trees is the value of such trees,<sup>9</sup> or the depreciation in the value of the land upon which they stand.<sup>10</sup> As in other cases it is the duty of the injured person to diminish his damages as much as possible,<sup>11</sup> and he may not recover for injuries which result from his own negligence.<sup>12</sup>

The measure recoverable for destruction of personal property is its actual value at the time it was destroyed.<sup>13</sup> If the property has no market value, the value

Wallis [Ark.] 102 S. W. 390. Evidence sufficient to sustain findings as to amount of damages for trespass by cattle on growing crops. Durkee v. Chino Land & Water Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 389. In an action for trespass by cattle where there is no proof of damage except rental value, an instruction that plaintiff must prove that the cattle trespassed and the amount of damage done in order to recover was erroneous for failure to point out the measure of damages because at most plaintiff was entitled to nominal damages. Cole v. Thompson [Iowa] 112 N. W. 178.

5. For destruction of crop, too late to be replanted, the value of the crop at the time it was destroyed. Hunt v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 133; Teller v. Bay & River Dredging Co. [Cal.] 90 P. 942; Dennis v. Crocker-Huffman Land & Water Co. [Cal. App.] 91 P. 425; Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Rogers [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 193. For herding and grazing sheep on lands of another, the measure is the value of crops at time of destruction. Risse v. Collins, 12 Idaho, 689, 87 P. 1006. Where evidence shows that there is a market value for growing crop destroyed, it is error to submit an issue as to reasonable value. Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Rogers [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 193.

6. Where a crop was destroyed, testimony of the owner as to the yield of the land for several years prior to the flood is admissible. Dennis v. Crocker-Huffman Land & Water Co. [Cal. App.] 91 P. 425. Where a growing crop of potatoes was destroyed, other growers who were growing crops on land of the same character and under the same conditions could testify as to the yield of their lands. Id.

7. In determining the value of crops destroyed, the jury must consider facts showing most profitable use of the crop, the nearest period marketable, and labor and expense necessary to bring it to marketable condition. Risse v. Collins, 12 Idaho, 689, 87 P. 1006. An instruction that in determining the value of a growing crop to find the probable yield and value thereof and deduct therefrom the cost of producing and marketing the crop. Feller v. Bay & River Dredging Co. [Cal.] 90 P. 943.

8. Where stock belonging to several owners trespassed at different times and committed distinct and separate injuries, and there was no proof from which to estimate the damages done by the stock of a particular owner, nominal damages only could be allowed. Foster v. Bussey, 132 Iowa, 640, 109 N. W. 1105. In an action for grass destroyed by cattle where, it appears that the plaintiff's own cattle were also on the land and no other proof of damages were proven, evidence was held insufficient on the question of amount of damage. Fleming v. Pullen [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 891, 97 S. W. 109.

9. For burning an orchard, the value of trees destroyed and difference in value before and after the fire of those injured and not depreciation in value of the entire farm. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Beeler [Ky.] 103 S. W. 300. Where in an action for cutting vines the plaintiff gave testimony as to the value of the vines and their ornamental effect on the premises, it was error to reject evidence on the same points offered by defendant. Martin v. Erwin [N. J. Law] 65 A. 888.

10. For destruction of fruit trees and vines, the depreciation in value of the land, or the value of the trees. Mogollon Gold & Copper Co. v. Stout [N. M.] 91 P. 724. In an action for damages to growing trees, evidence of the effect of the destruction of the trees on the value of the land is admissible where the nature of the trees destroyed is such that they have no value except as part of the real estate. Alberts v. Husenetter [Neb.] 110 N. W. 657.

11. An instruction that if one whose land was injured by overflow of a ditch did not exercise ordinary care to protect her crop if it was within her power she was negligent was objectionable as leading the jury to consider such fact as a complete defense when it was only relevant in mitigation. Belnap v. Widdison [Utah] 90 P. 333. Where surface water has been wrongfully diverted onto one's premises, he must exercise ordinary care to protect his property. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Moore [Ky.] 101 S. W. 934. Where land was burned over and grass roots destroyed, the owners who were farmers were required to protect themselves against future loss as far as possible by tilling the land. Knight v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 93 S. W. 81. Whether a reasonable effort to diminish the loss was made by feeding timothy hay to cattle and otherwise seeding the land held a question for the jury. Id.

12. Where one's property was injured by surface water negligently permitted to flow on his property by a city, the fact that his own negligence contributed to the injury is admissible in mitigation of damages but not as a defense to his action. Cromer v. Logansport, 38 Ind. App. 661, 78 N. E. 1045.

13. The measure for total destruction of a vessel in collision is its value at time of destruction to be determined by estimates of experts qualified to testify as to such value. The Mobila, 147 F. 882. The value of cattle killed may be found from evidence as to number, condition, and weight of cattle at time of shipping, and average shrinkage during transportation, and market value at destination. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Dodson [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 109, 97 S. W. 523. For killing a mule, its value at date of injury not including interest from such date. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Guthrie [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 211. Where a windmill company negligently constructed a windmill upon a barn and it fell and injured the barn and property stored therein, the owner was entitled to recover for the property stored in the barn. Flint & Walling Mfg. Co. v. Beckett, 167 Ind. 491, 79 N. E. 503.

to the owner may be recovered.<sup>14</sup> The measure for injury to property is the depreciation in value,<sup>15</sup> or the value of use and cost of repairs.<sup>16</sup>

For cordwood burned, its value in the place where it was standing and not its value standing less cost of cutting. Hart v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 559. An instruction that the measure for wood burned was its value in the locality where it was, was not erroneous because of use of "locality," since such word would be understood to mean place. Id. For cutting and converting timber, the value of the logs severed from the land. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Dunn [Ala.] 44 So. 533. Damages may be recovered by a husband for mutilation of corpse of his wife. Medical College of Georgia v. Rushing, 1 Ga. App. 468, 57 S. E. 1083. Mental suffering and injury to feelings are elements though not an action against a municipality for destruction of a frame building maintained pecuniary loss has been sustained. Id. In within fire limits in violation of ordinance and contract, expense of owner in removing his stock from the building may not be shown. Wheeler v. Aberdeen [Wash.] 87 P. 1061. In an action against a municipality for destruction of a frame building maintained within fire limits in violation of contract and ordinance, it is not admissible to show that the city had not removed other like buildings. Id. For destruction by a municipality of a building maintained within fire limits in violation of contract and ordinance, recovery may not be had for injury to leasehold, mental distress, shame, humiliation, or disgrace. Id. For destruction of building by fire, what it would cost to replace it, though there is no demand for such building. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Falconer, 30 Ky. L. R. 152, 97 S. W. 727. Finding as to value of a building held sustained. LaCotts v. Quertermous [Ark.] 103 S. W. 182.

14. Where property lost has no market value, the monetary worth thereof to the owner may be recovered. Austin v. Mills-paugh & Co. [Miss.] 43 So. 305. For destruction of hand painted china which has no market value, the actual value to the owner. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Green [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 197 S. W. 531.

15. For injury to goods in transit, amount of loss with interest from time of delivery. Fell v. Union Pac. R. Co. [Utah] 88 P. 1003. For injury to cloth delivered to a cleaner to be sponged, the measure is the depreciated value. Miller v. Levy, 104 N. Y. S. 368. For loss of two steers and injury to a third, the difference in value just before and just after the injury plus necessary expense bestowed upon the injured steer. Hat v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 123 Mo. App. 172, 100 S. W. 693. For injury to personal property, the difference between the market value just before and just after the injury with interest from date of injury. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Levy [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 195. Not cost of repairs. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mertz, Ibach & Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 7. For injury to colts in transit, the difference between the market value thereof at the time they were delivered to the carrier and the value when delivered to the owner. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Logan, 29 Ky. L. R. 1123, 96 S. W. 910. The condition, temper, disposition, and character of yearling colts and the effect of these traits on racing horses and that injuries would affect the value is admissible on an issue of damages. Id. Evidence held insufficient to raise an issue as to the value of calves at a certain place in their damaged condition. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Coggin [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 431. Allowance of $150 for injuries to automobile where there was no testimony that it was used for any business purpose or that a vehicle was hired in its stead, but the verdict was based on expert testimony as to what the use of the machine was worth. Foley v. Forty-Second St., etc., R. Co., 52 Misc. 183, 101 N. Y. S. 780.

16. For injuries to a vessel, reasonable cost of repairs and value of use of vessel while laid up. Southern R. Co. v. Reeder [Ala.] 44 So. 699. For temporary disabled and permanently injured horse, reasonable hire during disability and diminution in market value, limited to the actual value of the horse, and also expenses in treating the injury. Telfair County v. Clements, 1 Ga. App. 437, 57 S. E. 1059. For injuries to a horse the measure is compensation for actual injury including loss of use and expenses incurred in attempting to cure him. Stidham v. Delaware City [Del.] 67 A. 175.

17. See 7 C. L. 1057. See, also, Nuisance, 8 C. L. 1180.

18. Evidence insufficient to show that typhoid fever was the result of maintaining stagnant water near plaintiff's premises. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Craft [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 170.

19. In an action for nuisance it is admissible to show that odors arising therefrom caused plaintiff and his family physical discomfort. Town of Vernon v. Edgeworth [Ala.] 42 So. 749. On an issue as to whether a privy was a nuisance, plaintiff may show that while sitting in his dining room he could see paper and droppings fall. Id.

20. Under Civ. Code, § 4330, providing that the measure of damages for breach of

(§ 5) F. Wrongful taking or detention of property.<sup>31</sup>—For the wrongful detention of property, recovery may be had for all damages proven.<sup>32</sup> The measure obligation not arising out of contract is compensation for detriment resulting, the cost of abating a nuisance after neglect to do so by one maintaining it after request to abate it is recoverable. Murray v. Butte, 35 Mont. 161, 88 P. 789.

21. See 7 C. L. 1058.

22. In trespass quare clausum for cutting timber, the measure is the difference in value of the land before and after the trespass. Davis v. Miller Brent Lumber Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 639. Measure of damages for willful trespass and conversion of trees. Cummings & Co. v. Masterson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 33, 93 S. W. 500.

23. For trespass on land, at least nominal damages can be recovered if no special damages are proven. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Kuhnen, 127 Ga. 20, 55 S. E. 967. Where an adjacent owner pursuant to orders from a building inspector committed a technical trespass by putting in a retaining wall and extending it over his line, and his acts were known to and tacitly assented in by the other owner, the latter was estopped from claiming given nominal damages. Sharpless v. Boldt [Pa.] 67 A. 652. Nominal damages should be allowed for a trespass which would ripen into title by adverse user. Wing v. Seske [Iowa] 109 N. W. 717. The rule that failure to give nominal damages is not reversible error does not apply in such case. Id.

24. Miller v. Rambo, 73 N. J. Law, 726, 64 A. 1053.

25. See 7 C. L. 1058.

26. For conversion of goods by a wholesaler, the wholesale price or value only. New Liverpool Salt Co. v. Western Salt Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 152. Where grain was converted and the person guilty of the conversion dealt with it as of a certain value and received a sum of money for it, he cannot complain that the judgment was for that sum though technical market value was not proven. More v. Burger [N. D.] 107 N. W. 200. Where a carrier refused to deliver stock shipped except on payment of more freight alleged to be due because of erroneous classification, but thereafter placed the stock in a livery barn and notified the owner that it was there at his expense, the owner was held entitled to recover the ordinary measure of damages in conversion. Sutton v. Great Northern R. Co., 99 Minn. 376, 109 N. W. 815. The market value of corporate stock converted is the price it was selling at on the open market at the date of the conversion. Dooley v. Gladiator Consol. Gold Mines & Mill. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 864. The rule that one suing for the conversion of household goods may recover the value of the goods to him based on actual money loss from being deprived of their use applies to books kept for personal use. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co., 79 Conn. 342, 65 A. 143. Where refusal of a corporation to register a transfer of stock constitutes a conversion, the value of the stock with interest from date of refusal constitutes the measure of damages. Dooley v. Gladiator Consol. Gold Mines & Mill. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 864. For unauthorized sale of futures by a broker, the measure is the difference between the price paid and the highest market price between date of sale and date the broker received the last letter repudiating the sale and stating that he would be held. Hurt v. Miller, 105 N. Y. S. 775. Where brokers made an unauthorized sale of stock, the measure is the difference between the price received and the highest market price a reasonable time thereafter, and not a reasonable time after learning of the conversion. Burnham v. Lawson, 118 App. Div. 389, 103 N. Y. S. 482.

27. In case of technical conversion where the owner receives back the goods in as good condition as they were in when taken, nominal damages and costs is all that can be recovered. Sutton v. Great Northern R. Co., 99 Minn. 376, 109 N. W. 815.

28. For removal and conversion of ore under a bona fide belief of right, a reasonable royalty on the amount recovered. Sandy River Cannel Coal Co. v. White House Cannel Coal Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1303, 101 S. W. 319.

29. Young v. Pine Ridge Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 784.

30. Lusch v. Huber Mfg. Co. [Neb.] 112 N. W. 234.

31. See 7 C. L. 1059.

32. For wrongful detention of property the damage proven, and if none are proven nominal damages. Hyde v. Elmer [N. M.] 88 P. 1132. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 119, § 22, providing that if property replevied was held for the payment of any is generally the value of the use of the property less cost of caring for it.<sup>33</sup> If no actual damages are proven, nominal damages only can be recovered.<sup>34</sup> If no willful wrong or fraud be shown, punitive damages are not recoverable.<sup>35</sup> For infringement of a ferry privilege, compensation for tolls lost may be recovered.<sup>36</sup> For infringement of a trade mark,<sup>37</sup> at least nominal damages,<sup>38</sup> but punitive damages may not be awarded.<sup>39</sup>

money the judgment may be in the alternative that plaintiff pay the sum for which the property is held or make return of the property, held, where property taken by the sheriff on execution was replevied and plaintiff after judgment against him failed to return the property, the measure of damages in an action on the replevin bond was the amount of the alternative judgment in the replevin suit. Martin v. Hertz, 224 Ill. 84, 79 N. E. 558. Where one holding property under conditional sale sells the same after more than one-fourth the purchase price has been paid, the original vendor may not retake the property without tender of the amount paid by the second vendee less value of use, and if he does such amount is the measure of damages. 95 Ohio Laws, p. 60. National Cash Register Co. v. Cervone, 76 Ohio St. 12, 80 N. E. 1033.

For conversion the value of the property with interest. Corn Exch. Bk. v. Peabody, 111 App. Div. 553, 98 N. Y. S. 78; Jones v. Minnesota & M. R. Co., 97 Minn. 232, 106 N. W. 1048.

33. In claim and delivery, an instruction to assess damages at value of use of property from time of taking was error as the jury should have been told to deduct from such value expense in caring for it. Haggerty Bros. v. Lash, 34 Mont. 517, 87 P. 907.

34. Where a complaint for value of certificates of corporate stock was on the theory of complete deprivation of property, and after issue joined defendant returned the certificates, nominal damages only could be recovered. Owen v. Williams [Colo.] 89 P. 778. One seeking to recover for articles not returned by a laundry to which they were sent may not recover where he does not prove the value of goods not returned, the only proof of value being the value of all goods sent and it not appearing that all were not returned. West Side Laundry Co. v. Calumet Hotel Co., 103 N. Y. S. 820.

35. In replevin where testimony does not show willful wrong, fraud, or malice, punitive damages may not be recovered. Gregory v. Woodbery [Fla.] 43 So. 504.

36. Hatten v. Turman [Ky.] 97 S. W. 770. Damages for infringement of a ferry right are presumed from diminution in receipts and use of prohibited ferry by the public. Id.

37. In a suit by joint owners of a patent for infringement thereof, profits which accrued from infringement prior to the date of joint ownership cannot be recovered. Canda Bros. v. Michigan Malleable Iron Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 178. In an action for infringement of a patent, the infringer may not deduct from profits made during a certain period losses subsequently incurred in a separate transaction, only losses occurring concurrently may be deducted. Id.

38. For infringement of trade mark, at least nominal damages though no actual are shown. Lampert v. Judge & Dolph Drug Co. [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 659.

39. Punitive damages may not be recovered for infringement of a trade mark. Lampert v. Judge & Dolph Drug Co. [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 659.

40. See 7 C. L. 1059. See, also, Libel and Slander, 8 C. L. 713.

41. Loss of or injury to reputation are elements in slander though there is no specific proof of such loss or injury. Rosenbaum v. Roche [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1164. In an action for libel it is not essential to a recovery for injury to feelings resulting from the publication that her reputation be worse after the publication than before. McArthur v. Sault News Printing Co. [Mich.] 112 N. W. 126. Proof of reputation in denial of slander must be confined to proof of the trait of character involved in the offense charged in slander. Earley v. Winn, 129 Wis. 291, 109 N. W. 633. In slander for charging one with having beaten her mother, proof of her reputation for having illtreated her mother but without physical abuse is admissible. Id.

42. Under Civ. Code § 3294, providing that malice warranting recovery of exemplary damages may be either express or implied, when a publication actionable per se is set forth in an action for libel, malice is presumed and exemplary damages may be recovered. Tingley v. Times Mirror Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 1097. In libel where actual and punitive damages are sought, evidence of prior and subsequent publication of similar articles is admissible on the question of malice. Id.

44. Where special damages sustained were due to a repetition of slander by third persons which repetition was actionable, the consequences thereof were not chargeable to the defendant. German Sav. Bk. v. Fritz [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1008.

45. Under Ann. Code Miss. 1892, § 1301, making it a misdemeanor for a telegraph operator to disclose the contents of a message to any one except the sendee in an action for publishing a libelous telegram where it did not appear that the contents were known to anyone except the operators, such fact should be considered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Cashman [C. C. A.] 149 F. 367.

46. See 7 C. L. 1060.

47. Consolidated Trac. Co. v. Schritter, 124 Ill. App. 578; Malone v. Sierra R. Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 522. Mental suffering which is the natural result of physical injury is an element of damages. Chicago Consol. Trac. Co. v. Schritter, 222 Ill. 364, 78 N. E. 820. Mental suffering is an element where proof shows serious injury, great pain for two years, and disfigurement. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Leamons [Ark.] 102 S. W. 363. Mental suffering is an element as to a child four years of age. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Sauter [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 201.

48. Damages may be recovered for physical or personal inconvenience. McRae v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 125 Mo. App. 562, 102 S. W. 1032. It is not erroneous to charge that the fact that an injured person will be deprived of the pleasure and satisfaction of life that only those persons can enjoy who are possessed of a sound body. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Cozatt, 39 Ind. App. 682, 79 N. E. 534.

49. It is permissible to show that a nervous condition is a result of injuries. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Stoy [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 135. Where it appeared that appendicitis resulted from an injury it was competent to show results following the disease. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Moore [Ala.] 42 So. 1024.

Deafness resulting from a nervous shock is a proper element. Dreyfus v. St. Louis & S. R. Co., 124 Mo. App. 585, 102 S. W. 53. Diminution of health and vigor are elements where one contracted pneumonia in a cold waiting room and was ill for several weeks. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hook [Ark.] 104 S. W. 217.

50. Recovery may not be had for medical expenses in the absence of proof of the amount. Gibler v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis [Mo.] 101 S. W. 37. Recovery for medical services and nursing should be confined to reasonable value thereof and not what was actually paid. York v. Everton, 121 Mo. App. 286, 97 S. W. 604. Money paid out for medicines cannot be recovered where it does not appear that the medicines were prescribed or necessary or that the amount paid therefor was the reasonable value. Elzig v. Bales [Iowa] 112 N. W. 540. The amount paid for medical services is not necessarily the measure of recovery. The reasonableness of the charge must be established. Storm v. Butte, 35 Mont. 385, 89 P. 726. Value of physician's services rendered an injured person may be considered if the attention given was reasonably proper under the circumstances. Allen v. Durham Trac. Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 942.

51. An instruction submitting the question of expenditures for medical expenses is proper where it is alleged and proved that such expenses have been incurred. Young v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 135.

52. An orphan under guardianship of a curator may recover for injuries all sums paid for medical treatment or for which liability had been incurred on her behalf. Stotler v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 200 Mo. 107, 98 S. W. 509. In an action by a married woman for injuries, evidence held to show that she paid medical expenses. Town of Elba v. Bullard [Ala.] 44 So. 412. A minor suing by his next friend may recover for sums paid for medical services and medicines. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McNab [Ala.] 43 So. 222. Medical treatment cannot be recovered for where there is no proof of its value, or that any sum was paid or contracted to be paid. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Craft [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 170. The right to recover expense of medical attendance is not affected by the fact, that the injured party has paid therefor. Sotebier v. St. Louis Transit Co., 203 Mo. 702, 102 S. W. 651. Evidence of the value of nurse hire is admissible though the injured person was nursed by his wife. Indianapolis & E. R. Co. v. Bennett, 39 Ind. App. 141, 79 N. E. 389. Where injuries render a person to some extent unable to care for herself necessitating hiring of a servant, such fact is an element to be considered. Kline v. Santa Barbara Consol. R. Co. [Cal.] 90 P. 125.

53. An injured person may state what vocation he followed prior to injury. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Knowles [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 867. The fact that an injured person is an insurance solicitor and his earnings contingent does not preclude recovery for loss of time. Gregory v. Slaughter, 30 Ky. L. R. 500, 99 S. W. 247. A milliner may recover for loss of business during disability. York v. Everton, 121 Mo. App. 286, 97 S. W. 604. An injured person may testify as to what wages he had received for three or four months prior to his injury. West Pratt Coal Co. v. Andrews [Ala.] 43 So. 348. The fact that wages have been lost may be assumed where the uncontradicted testimony shows that the injured person was earning certain wages and was totally disabled by the injury. Sotebier v. St. Louis Transit Co., 203 Mo. 702, 102 S. W. 651. Where one was injured by being wrongfully ejected from a street car and testified that he was prevented by his injuries from carrying on his business and lost profits thereby and it appeared that he was a jobber working without capital, it was proper to permit him to show that he made $500 per month before the injury and but $50 or $75 thereafter. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Brethauer, 223 Ill. 521, 79 N. E. 287. The value of time lost by the injured person as distinguished from wages he might have earned is an element. Sibley v. Nason [Mass.] 81 N. E. 887. Where there was no evidence as to what an injured person earned but his occupation or employment was proven, he was entitled to more than nominal damages. Malone v. Sierra R. Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 522. A complaint for injuries to a minor child alleging physical injuries and confinement to bed authorizes recovery for loss of services, nursing, and other medical expenses. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 722.

earning ability.<sup>54</sup> In short, the damages recoverable are those which will compensate the injured person.<sup>55</sup> Compensation for future pain and suffering,<sup>56</sup> or future

54. Evidence as to whether injuries were permanent held for the jury. Chenoweth v. Sutherland [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1105. [Advance sheets only.] Allegations that an injured person had been unable to work from date of injury and would be for a long time incapacitated for work and was crippled for life are sufficient to admit proof of earning capacity and character of occupation. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Stovall [Colo.] 89 P. 764. In an action for injuries the defendant may introduce evidence as to the plaintiff's prior physical condition. Missouri, K. T. R. Co. v. Lindsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 863. Issue of impaired earning ability properly submitted where fingers were injured and were stiff and crooked and one-half years after the injury. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Neeley [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 481. On the question of earning capacity of a man employed a portion of his time in different lines of work, it is permissible to show how much time he devoted to each line and what he received in each. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Still [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 176. Evidence showing condition and nature of injuries, character of business, and effect of injuries on capacity to perform business, authorizes recovery for diminished earning capacity. International & G. M. R. Co. v. Cruseturner [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 987, 98 S. W. 423. Diminished earning capacity is an element for permanent injuries disabling one from performing labor. Town of Elba v. Bullard [Ala.] 44 So. 412. Where a girl fifteen years of age, healthy and capable of performing labor, was permanently injured and earning capacity diminished, she could recover therefor though it did not appear that she ever had worked or would be compelled to. Stotler v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 200 Mo. 107, 98 S. W. 509. Evidence as to impaired earning capacity held for the jury. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Leamons [Ark.] 102 S. W. 363. Where the fingers of a four year old child were permanently injured, evidence as to musical talent was admissible on the question of impaired earning capacity. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Sauter [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 201. The fact that an injured person is not wholly incapacitated for work does not preclude recovery for such decreased earning capacity. Spencer v. Bruner [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 578. Where a machinist had his thumb and little finger torn off and had been unable to work at his trade since his injury and his capacity to perform labor of any kind had been impaired, held sufficient to justify a recovery for decreased earning capacity. Chicago Consol. Trac. Co. v. Schritter, 222 Ill. 364, 78 N. E. 820. Where two physicians examined an injured person and testified to his condition and the injured person and his wife testified as to his diminished earning capacity, as to his annual earning in his usual vocation, and inability to longer pursue it, evidence held sufficient to justify recovery for diminished earning capacity. Lewless v. Detroit United R. Co., 146 Mich. 531, 109 N. W. 1051. In an action for injuries which prevent a person from following his usual vocation, loss of earnings is an element of damages and evidence of average monthly earnings is admissible. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stibbs, 17 Okl. 97, 87 P. 293. Where in an action for injuries resulting from coming in contact with a live wire experts testified that the injured person might recover under proper treatment, it was proper to refuse an instruction that no recovery could be had for permanent injuries as she would probably recover within two or three years. Colorado Springs Elec. Co. v. Soper [Colo.] 88 P. 165.

55. An instruction to consider nature and extent of injuries so far as proved his suffering, loss of time, and inability to work, money expended for medical bills, and allow such sum as would reasonably compensate so far as alleged and proved, was proper. Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co. v. Thil, 228 Ill. 233, 81 N. E. 857. For injuries resulting because of unskillful operation of a surgeon, compensation for bodily and mental pain and suffering and impairment of ability to earn money. Dorris v. Warford, 30 Ky. L. R. 912, 100 S. W. 312. Where no loss of time or expense is alleged, the measure is reasonable compensation for mental and physical pain and suffering and permanent impairment of earning capacity, and compensation for temporary injury may not be recovered. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Giboney, 30 Ky. L. R. 1005, 100 S. W. 216. For personal injuries such damages as the jury think proper under the evidence not exceeding the amount prayed. Southern R. Co. v. McGowan [Ala.] 43 So. 378. Pain, suffering, disfigurement and pecuniary loss. Payne v. Georgetown Lumber Co., 117 La. 983, 42 So. 475. For injuries sustained in a collision with a street car at a crossing because of negligence of the company, the measure is compensation for injuries to person, horse, wagon, and harness, pain and suffering may be considered as well as medical expense and loss of time. Heidelbaugh v. People's R. Co. [Del.] 65 A. 587. The measure for personal injuries negligently inflicted is reasonable compensation for injuries proved, including loss of time and wages, pain and suffering, past and future, and also for any permanent injuries. Simcoe v. Lindsay [Del.] 65 A. 778; Bowring v. Wilmington Malleable Iron Co., 5 Pen. (Del.) 594, 66 A. 369. For personal injuries, reasonable compensation for injury, including pain and suffering and all disability which may result. Reiss v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del.] 67 A. 153; Smithers v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del.] 67 A. 167; Heinel v. People's R. Co. [Del.] 67 A. 173. An instruction to consider every particular and phase of the injury, loss of time, impaired earning capacity, and physical powers, pain, loss or expense,<sup>57</sup> may be recovered, providing it is shown with reasonable certainty that such pain and suffering<sup>58</sup> or loss will result.<sup>59</sup> Loss of time and inability to work during minority are not elements of damages for injury to infant.<sup>60</sup> An aggravation of an existing disability may be recovered for.<sup>61</sup> An injured person cannot recover for aggravation of an injury resulting from his own negligence in obtaining medical attendance,<sup>62</sup> but the wrongdoer is liable for all the consequences of the wrongful act,<sup>63</sup> though the injury may have been aggravated by unskillful treatment of attending physicians.<sup>64</sup> Suffering caused by unskillful treatment and suffering, past and future, and personal disfigurement, was proper. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Collins [Ind.] 80 N. E. 415. Such instruction was not erroneous as not requiring a verdict based on the evidence. Id. One who seeks to recover for the death of a child may recover damages measured by the same rule as if the action had been brought by the decedent during his life time. Willmot v. McPadden, 79 Conn. 367, 65 A. 157.

56. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 132 Iowa, 724, 109 N. W. 475. Where an injured person was still suffering from his injuries at the time of the trial, compensation for future suffering was properly allowed. Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co. v. Thil, 228 Ill. 233, 81 N. E. 857.

57. Where injuries are shown to be permanent and the injured person will necessarily have to expend money for future medical treatment, such fact may be considered. Northern Texas Trac. Co. v. Mullins [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 433. Loss of future earnings is to be considered where injured person was a healthy man earning wages at the time he was injured and the injuries were permanent. Dean v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 199 Mo. 336, 97 S. W. 910. Future medical treatment is an element where the injured person is a hopeless paralytic and will continue to grow worse. Sotebier v. St. Louis Transit Co., 203 Mo. 702, 102 S. W. 651. Where a married woman was injured it was competent to show the extent of her family and that she took care of them prior to the injury and had not been able to do so since. Latimer v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 1102. Where an injured person had not fully recovered at the time of the trial an instruction that the past could be considered was proper. Keokuk & Hamilton Bridge Co. v. Wetzell, 228 Ill. 253, 81 N. E. 864.

58. Future suffering is not an element where the action is brought fourteen years after the injury and the wound has entirely healed up. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 162. For personal injuries damages for future consequences of such injury may be recovered only with respect to such consequences as are shown reasonably certain to ensue. Daigneau v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 153 F. 593. Recovery may be had only for such future pain and suffering as is reasonably certain to result as distinguished from such as may possibly result. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Newsome [C. C. A.] 154 F. 665. Where in an action for injuries to a leg it was a matter of conjecture whether amputation would be necessary, testimony of a physician as to the process of amputation and its effect upon the nervous system was not admissible. Elzig v. Bales [Iowa] 112 N. W. 540. To justify recovery for future suffering, it must appear with reasonable certainty that such consequences will follow. Cordiner v. Los Angeles Trac. Co. [Cal. App.] 91 P. 436. Civ. Code, § 3283, providing for recovery for detriment resulting or certain to result does not authorize an instruction to estimate prospective damages on what the jury believed might be the future suffering. Malone v. Sierra R. Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 522.

59. Testimony that an injured person was a tomato grower and prior to receiving his injuries was an active man does not authorize recovery for diminished earning capacity. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Acker [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 121.

60. Richardson v. Nelson, 123 Ill. App. 550; Id. 221 Ill. 254, 77 N. E. 533.

61. Actual damage resulting may be recovered though they would have been much less except for the diseased and weakened condition of the injured person at the time of the injury. Ross v. Great Northern R. Co., 101 Minn. 122, 111 N. W. 951. Where it appeared that an injured person had been previously injured in the same place and had recovered therefor, an instruction was required that he could recover only for increase or aggravation of troubles which existed when he received the injuries sued for. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Johnson [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 167, 97 S. W. 1039. For maintaining a dangerous sidewalk a city is liable for injury caused though the person injured was at the time suffering from a disease which aggravated the consequences of the injury. City of Roswell v. Davenport [N. M.] 89 P. 256.

62. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mount [Ky.] 101 S. W. 1182.

63. Where a complaint alleged that an injured person had been rendered impotent and proof thereof was introduced, it was not error to refuse to instruct the jury to disregard such evidence. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Likes, 225 Ill. 249, 80 N. E. 136. Where one was thrown from a street car an injury to the shoulder was a proper element of damages whether caused directly by the fall or by ligating the arm after the fracture was reduced. O'Donnell v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 578. Where it was claimed that as a result of the accident the injured person gave birth to a still born child evidence as to the child's weight and whether it was well developed was material on the question whether the accident was the cause of its being still born. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Ertrachter, 228 Ill. 114, 81 N. E. 816. The fact that blood poisoning subsequently develops from an injury does not preclude recovery unless the treatment given was negligent. Rosier v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1111.

64. In an action for personal injuries evidence of the condition of the injury up by physician of injury sustained by reason of defendant's negligence is an element of damages, if ordinary care was used in the selection of physician.<sup>65</sup> Medical expenses may be recovered though discharged in bankruptcy,<sup>66</sup> but not if the injured person incurred no liability therefor.<sup>67</sup> Loss of time is an element though the injured person has received full pay from his employer during disability,<sup>68</sup> but is not an element if no pecuniary loss was sustained because of such loss of time.<sup>69</sup> Mere unhappiness resulting from impaired freedom of action is not an element.<sup>70</sup> The damages recoverable for impaired earning ability is the difference between the wages the injured person was capable of earning before and after the injury.<sup>71</sup>

to the time of trial and to what extent that condition was due to the negligent act and to what extent due to malpractice of attending surgeon is admissible. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Heil [C. C. A.] 154 F. 626.

65. Village of Bethany v. Lee, 124 Ill. App. 397.

66. An injured person is not precluded from recovering medical bills by the fact that such debts have been discharged in bankruptcy. Sibley v. Nason [Mass.] 81 N. E. 887.

67. Expenses of nursing is not an element where the injured person is cared for by members of his own family and there is not contract to pay them. Gibney v. St. Louis Transit Co., 204 Mo. 704, 103 S. W. 43.

68. An injured person is not precluded from recovering for lost time because of the fact that his employer continues to pay him his salary as a gratuity. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Wittnebert [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 424.

69. In an action for personal injuries profits in a lunch business cannot be recovered, it not appearing that the injured person had particular skill in preparing food or that the business could not have been as successfully conducted by employes. Weir v. Union R. Co., 188 N. Y. 416, 81 N. E. 168.

70. Unhappiness resulting from impaired freedom of action and from being deprived of social intercourse with his friends are not elements. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Ray, 167 Ind. 236, 78 N. E. 978.

71. For diminished earning capacity the difference in earnings before and after the injury. Town of Elba v. Bullard [Ala.] 44 So. 412. An injured person was properly permitted to testify that several years prior to the accident he was earning $40 per week as a wheelwright and had been earning more since as a broker as tending to show earning capacity at time of injury. Southern R. Co. v. Stockdon, 106 Va. 693, 56 S. E. 713.

72. See 7 C. L. 1063.

73. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lighthouse [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. City of Columbus v. Allen [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 114. Where a jury in an action for injuries awards inadequate damages, the court may refuse to receive the verdict and direct the jury to reconsider it. Douglas v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 452. The damages awarded must be sustained by ascertained and established facts. Poels v. Brown [Neb.] 111 N. W. 798. Verdict sustained on conflicting evidence of medical experts as to character of plaintiff's injuries. Johnstone v. Seattle, R. & S. R. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 1125. Where there was some evidence that the value of the property destroyed equalled the amount of the verdict, it will not be set aside as excessive. Hennessey v. Baugh & Sons Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 310. Findings of chancellor upon question of damages upon dissolution of injunction will not be disturbed unless wholly against weight of evidence. Marks v. Chicago Yacht Club, 121 Ill. App. 308.

Recovery held adequate: Five hundred dollars for permanent injury to elbow of boy eleven years of age, which injury caused constant pain. Richardson v. Missouri Fire Brick Co., 122 Mo. App. 529, 99 S. W. 778. One thousand one hundred thirty-five dollars for slight injuries to a married woman where it did not appear that subsequent fits of hysteria was the result of the injury. Des Moines v. New York City R. Co., 118 App. Div. 848, 103 N. Y. S. 618. Three thousand, five hundred dollars held a sufficient award. Smith v. Smith, 116 App. Div. 165, 101 N. Y. S. 521. One thousand dollars for injuries resulting in hemorrhages from the lungs. Schierloh v. Interurban St. R. Co., 115 App. Div. 455, 101 N. Y. S. 437.

74. Ordinarily a new trial will not be awarded because of inadequacy of damages for a tort. Lufkin v. Hitchcock [Mass.] 80 N. E. 456. Where the verdict of the jury is excessive, a new trial may be granted on motion. Von Au v. Magenheimer, 115 App. Div. 84, 100 N. Y. S. 659. An award which is not so excessive as to indicate passion, partiality, or prejudice, will not be disturbed. Southern R. Co. v. Clarke, 106 Va. 496, 56 S. E. 274.

Recovery held inadequate: Two hundred fifty dollars for injuries to spine and ribs, broken arm, and great pain suffered, where it appeared that a juror was guilty of misconduct. Bird v. Texas Midland R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 734. Two hundred dollars for two ribs broken, back and spine injured, confined to bed for six weeks, had frequent fainting spells, and sustained permanent injury to knee. Tourtellotte v. Westchester Elec. R. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 50.

upon passion or prejudice or a misconception of the evidence.<sup>76</sup> The holdings as to excessiveness of verdicts are grouped in the notes.<sup>77</sup>

75. An appellate court will require a reduction only where the verdict seems unreasonably large under the most favorable aspect of the testimony. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Still [Tex. Civ. Where special injury is sustained from obstruction of a navigable stream, damages may be recovered without proof of negligence. Dreus v. Burton & Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 176. In an action for a work done on a contract where there was no proof of value of such work, there can be no recovery. Polstein v. Miller, 49 Misc. 615, 97 N. Y. S. 211. For breach of contract to furnish goods within a certain time, in order to recover for loss of orders, plaintiff must show that the persons who ordered from him had canceled their orders and had a right to do so. Korin v. Rutz, 98 N. Y. S. 845.

4. In an action for injuries where the injured person was laid up for four weeks and procured a boy for $5 per week and there was no other evidence of damages or cost of board for the boy, the evidence was held insufficient to sustain a verdict for more than $5 per week for four weeks. Friedman v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 52 Misc. 477, 102 N. Y. S. 525. In suits for unliquidated damages notwithstanding absence of plea or answer, plaintiff must prove amount of damage. Palmer v. Ingram [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 362. Expenses for medical treatment cannot be recovered unless the amount thereof be proved. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Leamons [Ark.] 102 S. W. 363. Where there was no evidence as to value in an action for failure to deliver rice as per contract, there could be no recovery. Davis v. Reisinger, 105 N. Y. S. 603. One suing for injuries to land kept for lambing purpose has the burden to prove extent or damage and value of use of land. Painter & Co. v. Stahley Bros. [Wyo.] 90 P. 375.

5. An injured person has the burden to prove that his injuries caused appendicitis. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Moore [Ala.] 42 So. 1024. Evidence that an injured person was suffering from rheumatism resulting from the injury held for the jury. Detrich v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 125 Mo. App. 608, 102 S. W. 1044. A plaintiff in an action for breach of contract does not lose his right to damages by reason of failure to offer evidence as to the loss he has sustained, where by a ruling of the court he has been deprived of the testimony necessary to make out his case, and a court is not authorized under such circumstances to direct a verdict for the defendant. Kneipper v. Richards, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 581.

6. Such proof must be sufficient to cover all the essential elements of such facts. Huntington Easy Payment Co. v. Parsons [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 253. The burden of proving that damages for breach of contract could have been mitigated rests on the party guilty of the breach. Ramsey v. Perth Amboy Shipbuilding & Engineering Co. [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 461. Evidence insufficient to show that loss could have been mitigated. Id.

7. Money expended for medicines may not be recovered in the absence of proof of reasonable value. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Morris [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1038. A contractor who sues a subcontractor for expense of completing work which subcontractor refused to do has the burden to prove that expenses incurred were necessary. Seventh St. Planing Mill Co. v. Schaefer, 30 Ky. L. R. 623, 99 S. W. 341. In an action for medical expenses and loss of services of his wife where medical expenses were proved but loss of services was not, the verdict be proven with some degree of certainty.<sup>8</sup> The quantum of proof required is a preponderance of the evidence,<sup>9</sup> and where there is some evidence of damages,<sup>10</sup> or where the damages are not susceptible of proof,<sup>11</sup> or where the testimony is conflicting,<sup>12</sup> the question becomes one for the jury. Reasonable rather than absolute certainty of future pain and anguish is all that is required to justify recovery therefor.<sup>13</sup> The law infers mental<sup>14</sup> and physical suffering from serious bodily injury.<sup>15</sup> should be limited to medical expenses. Friedman v. Horn, 104 N. Y. S. 745. Expense of nursing cannot be recovered where no evidence that expense had been incurred but it appeared that the injured person had been cared for by his friends and such care was worth $15 or $20. Jones & Adams Co. v. George, 227 Ill. 64, 81 N. E. 4. Where the jury were not authorized to allow recovery to a husband for loss of services by a wife suing for injuries, evidence as to the wife's inability to work was not objectionable as tending to show such damage. Farrell v. Dubuque, 129 Iowa, 447, 105 N. W. 696.

8. Damages for injury to land must be proven with some degree of certainty and cannot be left to guess, conjecture, or speculation. Young v. Extension Ditch Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 296.

9. Impairment of earning capacity need be proved only by a preponderance of evidence, clear and convincing proof not required. Rowe v. Whatcom County R. & Light Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 921.

Evidence held sufficient upon which to base an estimate of the damage done to an animal, though proof as to amount was not made in usual manner. McKissick v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 629.

10. In an action for failure to deliver a telegram where there was some evidence of damage, the question was for the jury. Harrison v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 267, 55 S. E. 450. Question of damages for injury to land kept for lambing purposes held for jury. Painter & Co. v. Stahley Bros. [Wyo.] 90 P. 375. Where an injured person presents himself and such evidence as he has before the jury, it is their province to say what sum will compensate him. Cleaver v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1059, 100 S. W. 223.

11. The assessment of damages for loss of society of a wife is within the discretion of the jury and specific proof of value thereof is not required. Northern Texas Trac. Co. v. Mullins [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 433.

12. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Moore [Ala.] 42 So. 1024; Hale v. Milliken [Cal.] 90 P. 365. On conflicting evidence as to whether injuries were the result of an accident or were due to prior physical conditions, the question is for the jury. Simone v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 202.

13. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 132 Iowa, 724, 109 N. W. 475.

14. Galveston R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 98 S. W. 932. Galveston H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Stoy [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 135. Mental suffering is an element in an action for injuries though not specially alleged. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Dickey [Ky.] 104 S. W. 329. An issue as to mental suffering may be submitted on proof of physical injuries from which such suffering can be inferred. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Gracia [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 198. Serious and continuing bodily injury will support recovery for mental suffering. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Parish [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1175.

15. Where in an action against a surgeon for performing an unauthorized operation the evidence showed that he had removed the uterus, pain and suffering would be inferred for which damages could be had. Pratt v. Davis, 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562.

16. See 7 C. L. 1073.

17. Evidence of pelvic injury is admissible where notice of such injury was given to defendant's surgeon and immediately reported to its counsel. O'Donnell v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 578. A husband suing for injuries to his wife, who alleges that her services consisted in keeping house for him, could not prove that she assisted him in his office. Keenan v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 118 App. Div. 56, 103 N. Y. S. 61. Where in an action for injuries caused by wreck of a tank car of petroleum and permitting the oil to run into a water tank damages to land were not alleged, evidence as to value of the land before and after the injury was not admissible. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 122, 98 S. W. 440. Where in an action for delay in delivering a telegram there was no allegation of mental suffering because of a baby, evidence of circumstances from which mental suffering would result on such account was not admissible. Mitchiner v. Western Union Tel. Co., 75 S. C. 182, 55 S. E. 222. Where there was no allegation of loss of business, evidence as to loss by reason of inability to attend to it was not admissible. Dunn & Lallande Bros. v. Gunn [Ala.] 42 So. 636. In libel where plaintiff's testimony was that she had a large acquaintance and suffered much mental distress because of the publication, cross-examination as to family ties, public controversies, etc., is not admissible in determining susceptibility to mental suffering. Tingley v. Times-Mirror Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 1097. Where defendant testified that plaintiff had stated that his damages were less than the sum claimed, plaintiff could prove that such statement was made by way of compromise. Jones v. Cooley Lake Club, 122 Mo. App. 113, 98 S. W. 82.

18. Exclusion of expert testimony as to rental value of real estate to show that it missibility of evidence to show value of property destroyed or injured,<sup>20</sup> loss of

was equal to representations is error. Ettlinger v. Weil, 184 N. Y. 179, 77 N. E. 31. Expert testimony is admissible as to the length of time necessary to eradicate foul weeds permitted by a tenant to grow in violation of the contract, as bearing on the depreciated rental value of the land. Brown Land Co. v. Lehman [Iowa] 112 N. W. 185. In an action for injuries to cattle, an expert may give his opinion as to weight and shrinkage. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Dodson [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 109, 97 S. W. 523.

19. One who has been engaged in mercantile business for a considerable period may testify as to the value of his services. Howard v. McCabe [Neb.] 112 N. W. 305. Where rental value of a mill was claimed as an element of damage, one who had not been in the mill for fifteen years and knew of its machinery only by hearsay was not competent to give an opinion as to rental value. Munson v. James Smith Woolen Mach. Co., 118 App. Div. 830, 103 N. Y. S. 502. A rancher in the habit of buying cows and familiar with prices paid at sales is competent to testify as to the value of a cow. Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1167. The fact that a physician did not see an injured person until two years after the injury did not render his testimony that she was suffering from tuberculosis, probably the result of the injury, incompetent where other evidence showed that hemorrhages occurred immediately after the injury and continued to date of trial. Van Cleve v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 632. Where in an action for injuries alleged to have caused a rupture where the injured person and his wife testified that he had never been affected with a rupture, testimony as to another action for injuries alleging that they had resulted in a rupture is competent. Ruemer v. Clark, 105 N. Y. S. 659. In an action for injury to a leg a witness may not testify as to the probability of absorption "in a case of scar tissue that has been there for more than a year" where there was no showing that scar tissue had existed for that length of time. Elzig v. Bales [Iowa.] 112 N. W. 540.

35. In an action by a Christian Scientist for physical and mental suffering, evidence as to her belief that she suffered only when she thought so and not otherwise was pertinent as to the issue of suffering. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Travis [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1141.

36. Admission of evidence as to proper medical treatment in an action by a child for injuries held not prejudicial, since the action was brought by the child and not by the parents whose duty it was to furnish proper medical treatment. Colorado Springs Elec. Co. v. Soper [Colo.] 88 P. 165. A physician may testify as to remedies used, the value of his services being in question. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ala.] 43 So. 844.

37. See 7 C. L. 1076.

38. Carlisle tables of mortality are ad-

Physical examination and exhibition of injuries.<sup>41</sup>—As a general rule an injured person is not required to submit to physical examination<sup>42</sup> unless he calls as a witness his own physician.<sup>43</sup> An application by the defendant for a physical examination may be refused where he has had opportunity to make such examination before trial.<sup>44</sup> An injured person may exhibit his injuries to the jury.<sup>45</sup>

missible where injury is permanent. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lighthouse [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Where an injured person contends that injuries are permanent and offers competent evidence in support of such contention, mortality tables are admissible. Hodd v. Tacoma [Wash.] 88 P. 842; Southern R. Co. v. Cunningham [Ala.] 44 So. 658; Howard v. McCabe [Neb.] 112 N. W. 305; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Ross [Ind.] 80 N. E. 845; Banks v. Braman [Mass.] 80 N. E. 799. Carlisle expectancy tables which make no reference to sex are admissible to show expectancy of life of a female. Croft v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 723. Mortality tables prepared pursuant to § 1471a, Code Supplement, are admissible. Clark v. Van Vleck [Iowa] 112 N. W. 648. Where the question of permanent injury was the subject of extended cross-examination, defendant waived objection to introduction of mortality tables. O'Donnell v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 578. An expectancy table not shown to be established or recognized as authority but was simply prepared by actaries of a life insurance company is not admissible. Banks v. Braman [Mass.] 80 N. E. 799.

39. Where the question of future pain and suffering is in issue. Patton v. Sanborn, 133 Iowa, 650, 110 N. W. 1032.

40. Life tables are not admissible where the person injured is abnormal or has an incurable disease. Colbert v. Rhode Island Co. [R. I.] 67 A. 446.

41. See 7 C. L. 1076.

42. Chicago v. McNally, 227 Ill. 14, 81 N. E. 23. In an action for injuries, defendant may prove that plaintiff refused prior to trial to submit to physical examination, but may ask her on the stand if she is willing to submit to such an examination. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Booth [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 948, 97 S. W. 128.

43. Where an injured person calls her physician to testify in her behalf, the court may direct that she submit to examination by two other reputable physicians on defendant's behalf. Johnston v. Southern Pac. Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 348.

44. Where an injured person had offered to submit to physical examination and offered while on the stand to permit defendant's experts to examine his arm, and it appeared that two of such experts had examined it and another given an opportunity to do so, it was not error to refuse defendant's application for a physical examination. Malone v. Sierra R. Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 522.

45. An injured foot may be exhibited to the jury and the injured person may testify that it is stiff at the ankle joint and by movements show the effects of the injury. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Lighthouse [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Though ordinarily plaintiff in an action for personal injuries may exhibit the injured member to the jury, yet where it has been amputated it is harmless error for the court to refuse an exhibit of the injury. Ford v. Providence Coal Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 698, 99 S. W. 609.

46. See 7 C. L. 1077.

47. In every case the jury should be instructed as to the measure of damages applicable to the particular facts. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Baker, 1 Ga. App. 832, 58 S. E. 88. The entire question of damages should not be submitted without any criterion for the determination of the damages recoverable. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lehman [Md.] 67 A. 241. It is error to instruct to assess damages for unreasonable delay of a carrier in delivering goods without giving any rule by which damages for such delay could be measured. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Christmas [Miss.] 42 So. 169. Where action is founded on breach of oral contract, the court should charge as to the elements of damage and prescribe rules by which the jury can ascertain damages recoverable. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co. v. Stribling, 18 Okl. 417, 89 P. 1129. An instruction that if defendant's conduct indicated reckless disregard of its duty to plaintiff the jury might increase the allowance of damages for that reason authorizes recovery of punitive damages. Wilson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 333, 55 S. E. 257. It is erroneous to charge the provisions of Civ. Code 1895, § 3907, relative to actions for torts where entire injury alleged is to place, happiness, or feelings where damages are claimed for lost time, medical expenses, and decreased earning capacity. Southern R. Co. v. Broughton [Ga.] 58 S. E. 470. Civ. Code, § 3333, provides that one injured because of negligence of another may recover compensation for all detriment proximately resulting. Held an instruction to allow damages for all suffering present and future and such sum as in "your best judgment will fairly and fully compensate for any injury received" was not erroneous as permitting the jury to award damages according to any feeling they might have. Hersberger v. Pacific Lumber Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 587. An instruction permitting recovery for pain and "anguish" shown to be the direct result of the injury does not authorize recovery for humiliation and mental annoyance. Evans-ton v. Richards, 224 Ill. 444, 79 N. E. 678. Authorizing "such further sum as would fairly compensate her for loss of her foot" is erroneous. Lexington R. Co. v. Herring, 30 Ky. L. R. 269, 97 S. W. 1127. An instruction that it was fair for the jury to award what they would accept under similar circumstances for the pain and suffering endured is erroneous. Rhodes v. Union R. Co., 52 Misc. 501, 102 N. Y. S. 510. It is error to authorize recovery on the basis of what not invade the province of the jury.<sup>49</sup> They should be clear<sup>50</sup> and not misleading.<sup>51</sup>

jurors would "want" if standing in plaintiff's place. Greer v. Union R. Co., 53 Misc. 638, 103 N. Y. S. 88. In an action for injuries to land by flooding, the introduction of evidence as to value of seed and expense laid out on the crop planted was prejudicial, though the damages sustained were properly proved, the jury not having been instructed as to the impropriety of the testimony. Jones v. Cooley Lake Club, 122 Mo. App. 113, 98 S. W. 82. Such error was not cured by submitting the correct measure of damages but not referring to the testimony. Id.

48. The word "caring" is synonymous with nursing in an action for injuries. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 722. Instruction as to care required of an injured person as to his wounds subsequent to the injury held to exact no greater degree than that required of an ordinary, prudent man, and not objectionable. Rowe v. Whatcom County R. & Light Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 921. In an action for injuries resulting from obstruction of a watercourse where damages are claimed for permanent injuries for inundation, and being compelled to go a circuitous route to cross a stream, a charge to allow the damages claimed for the overflow if the obstruction did not prolong the time which the water stood on the land, properly refused as ignoring an element of damages. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walker [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 268, 97 S. W. 1081.

49. An instruction that for injury to a wife a husband could recover for loss of services for such time in the future as it was reasonably certain he would sustain, loss in view of the nature of the injury, expectancy of life according to mortality tables, her health, habits of life, and all other evidence is not erroneous as arbitrarily fixing the expectancy of life by the tables. Croft v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 723. In an action for unliquidated damages, it is error for the court to intimate that the question of the amount of damages is not for the jury or to indicate the amount the court considers adequate. Douglas v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 452. Instruction as to measure of damages applicable only in the event that the jury made certain finding held not objectionable on the weight of evidence. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 96 S. W. 53. An instruction in assault and battery that plaintiff was not entitled to recover exemplary damages, though issues were found in his favor, invades the province of the jury. Barlow v. Hamilton [Ala.] 44 So. 657. An instruction that the expectancy of life of a person sixteen years of age is forty-four years invades the province of the jury. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McNab [Ala.] 43 So. 222.

Assumption of facts: In an action by a married woman, instructions held erroneous as assuming that money paid for medical expenses as paid by the husband. Town of Elba v. Bullard [Ala.] 44 So. 412. When it is conceded that goods had some value, it is not error to assume such fact. Stewart v. Jacob Sachs & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 845, 96 S. W. 1091. An instruction to allow what had been paid in effecting a cure, medical and nursing bills, is erroneous as assuming that such bills had been paid. York v. Everton, 121 Mo. App. 286, 97 S. W. 604. An instruction that the measure for injury to property was its diminished value and that such difference should be the amount of the verdict held to assume that the property had been injured by the defendant. Dallas, etc., R. Co. v. Langston [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 316, 98 S. W. 425. Instructions as to measure of damages held not to assume facts. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stibbs, 17 Okl. 97, 87 P. 293.

50. Instruction as to the measure of damages for injuries held not confusing, nor to authorize double damages not other damages not shown by the evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Middleton [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 203. Instruction in an action for breach of contract to allow " * * * and which the parties could reasonably anticipate would result and which were known to them when the contract was made" was erroneous as meaningless and limiting damages to such as the parties knew at the time would result. First Nat. Bk. v. Carroll, 35 Mont. 302, 88 P. 1012. An instruction "If you find he will suffer in the future you may allow therefor" is too favorable to defendant because requiring absolute certainty of future suffering. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 132 Iowa, 724, 109 N. W. 475. An instruction to allow compensation for plan or suffering endured as a result of any injury which he had sustained up to the present time, if any, held not objectionable as permitting recovery for injuries not the result of negligence complained of. Kelly v. Butte, 34 Mont. 530, 87 P. 968. Instruction on the issue of damages in an action for libel held not to authorize recovery for the publication as a whole, though there may have been justification for a portion of it. Meriweather v. Publishers: George Knapp & Co., 120 Mo. App. 354, 97 S. W. 257.

51. In an action on an injunction bond, an instruction that the damages recoverable could not exceed the amount prayed for but that "all damages" that had their origin in the restraining order should be considered held not erroneous as misleading the jury to consider elements not alleged. Sullivan v. Cartier, 147 F. 222. An instruction in an action for false imprisonment that unless the jury believe that punitive damages should be awarded only actual damages should be awarded, and if no actual damages were sustained then only nominal damages, is misleading. Gambill v. Fuqua [Ala.] 42 So. 735. An instruction in an action for putting a passenger off at the wrong station to allow damages for mental and physical pain and humiliation or mortification does not authorize punitive damages. Tennessee Cent. R. Co. v. Brasher's Guardian, 29 Ky. L. R. 1277, 97 S. W. 349. Authorizing recovery of smart money if it was found that the assault was made wantonly and maliciously is not erroneous in failing to require that such finding be based on the evidence. Cody v. Gremmler, 121 Mo. App. 359, 99 S. W. 46. Instruction au-

authorizing recovery by a parent for injuries to minor son for loss of services prior to majority held not erroneous for failure to direct deduction because of present payment. El Paso Elec. R. Co. v. Kitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 587. Authorizing recovery for any mental or physical pain a person "may" suffer is not erroneous though the word "will" would have been preferable. South Covington & C. St. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 30 Ky. L. R. 1072, 100 S. W. 283. In an action for breach of contract to take stoves specially manufactured, where the parts of a portion of the stoves had not been assembled and the testimony as to whether the stoves were worthless was conflicting, it was held error to refer to the property left on plaintiff's hands as "material" out of which to complete stoves. St. Louis Range Co. v. Kline-Drummond Mercantile Co., 120 Mo. App. 438, 96 S. W. 1040. An instruction authorizing the jury to consider the question whether property was new or secondhand does not submit an issue as to whether it was new. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Wilson Hack Line [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1042.

52. An instruction as to a particular measure of damages should be refused if the evidence does not permit of its application. Keroes v. Weaver, 27 App. D. C. 384. Instructions should confine measure of recovery to such damages as are sustained. Instruction to find in such amount as jury believes evidence warrants erroneous except where vindictive damages are recoverable. Haisler v. Hayden, Jr., 124 Ill. App. 264.

Not supported by evidence: In an action for injury to an abutting lot by filling in a street, it is error to authorize recovery of such damages as the jury believe the owner entitled to, and authorize them to consider cost of filling, injuries to trees and shrubbery, there being no evidence as to such cost or injury and no other rule being given. Godbey v. Bluefield, 61 W. Va. 604, 57 S. E. 45. Where a discharged employee testified that his services were worth a certain sum after wrongful discharge, but did not testify that he had been able to earn such sum, it was improper to authorize deduction of such amount. San Antonio Light & Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 867. No evidence of injury to spine. Chenoweth v. Sutherland [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1105 [advance sheets only]. Where in an action for fraud in procuring an application for a life policy punitive damages were not recoverable and a verdict was returned for $282.33, and actual damages proved was $32.32, error in allowing punitive damages was prejudicial. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595. In an action for permanent injury as the result of the negligent setting of a bone, an instruction authorizing recovery for impairment of health was erroneous in the absence of evidence of injury to plaintiff's general health. Albertson v. Lewis, 132 Iowa, 243, 109 N. W. 705. In an action for malpractice in setting a fractured arm, where there was no evidence that a future operation was contemplated, it was error to authorize the consideration of such expense. Id. No evidence of impairment of earning capacity. Henderson City R. Co. v.

Lockett, 30 Ky. L. R. 321, 98 S. W. 303. An instruction on loss of profits, not supported by evidence nor applicable to the pleadings. First Nat. Bk. v. Carroll, 35 Mont. 302, 88 P. 1012. No evidence that money had been expended for physician's services or medicines. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McNab [Ala.] 43 So. 222. No evidence upon which to base a recovery for a particular element. Southern R. Co. v. Broughton [Ga.] 58 S. E. 470. Elements of damage not covered by the evidence. Western Coal & Min. Co. v. Buchanan [Ark.] 102 S. W. 694. It is error to authorize recovery of punitive damages in an action for wrongful distress for rent where there was no evidence that the distress warrant was wantonly or recklessly sued out. Manchester Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Porter, 106 Va. 528, 56 S. E. 337. It is proper to refuse an instruction limiting a recovery to nominal damages where evidence showed actual loss by reason of failure of a railroad to promptly transport cattle. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Whitehill, 104 Md. 295, 64 A. 1033.

Not based on pleadings: Punitive not claimed. San Antonio Trac. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 554. Where there was no allegation of loss of time or expense of cure and no evidence of impairment of earning ability, it was error to authorize recovery of such sum as would compensate for the injury, including suffering. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Farris, 30 Ky. L. R. 1193, 100 S. W. 870. Refusal to charge relative to punitive damages where only compensatory damages were prayed for was not prejudicial to defendant. Colorado Springs Elec. Co. v. Soper [Colo.] 88 P. 161. Where in an action for liquidated damages the amount stipulated was prayed for but actual damages were not, it was error to give a charge permitting recovery of actual damages. Work v. Cross [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 865, 98 S. W. 208. An instruction as to special damages is erroneous where no claim therefor. First Nat. Bk. v. Carroll, 35 Mont. 302, 88 P. 1012. No allegation of diminished earning capacity. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. McNab [Ala.] 43 So. 222. It is error to authorize punitive damages where there is no allegation nor evidence that injury was willful, wanton, or reckless. Wilson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 333, 55 S. E. 257. In an action for damages on account of the wrongful injury of an infant, it is erroneous to instruct the jury to special damages, when the petition does not allege nor the evidence show special damages, and so as to time lost and diminished earning capacity when there is not evidence relating thereto, and no evidence of the emancipation of the minor. Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Wooley, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 122.

Held proper: An instruction in assault and battery permitting recovery of compensation for pain, suffering, and humiliation, and also punitive damages does not authorize such punitive damages as punishment without regard to plaintiff's loss. Doerhoefer v. Shewmaker, 29 Ky. L. R. 1193, 97 S. W. 7. Instruction to allow compensation for mental and physical pain which may be suffered in the future and for permanent injuries sustained if he has sustained permanent injury does not permit recovery therefor unless they are reasonably certain to result. O'Keefe v. United Rys. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1144. Where in an action for injuries plaintiff alleged that he had expended large sums and had obligated himself to pay out large sums, an instruction to consider what he had expended or obligated himself to expend was not beyond the issues. Chicago Consol. Trac. Co. v. Schritter, 222 Ill. 364, 78 N. E. 820. Where uncontradicted testimony shows mental distress for failure to deliver a telegram, it was error to submit as an issuable fact whether mental distress was suffered. Prewitt v. S. W. Tel. & T. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 812. An instruction that an injured person may recover for any loss of earnings she "may" suffer in the future is not objectionable as authorizing such recovery without proof that such loss is reasonably certain to occur. Dean v. St. Louis Transit Co., 121 Mo. App. 379, 99 S. W. 33.

53. Rule violated: Instruction authorizing recovery for past and future mental and physical pain, impairment of ability to follow pursuits of other girls and to enjoy life, and for decreased capacity to enjoy life and perform services, is erroneous as permitting double damages. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Adams [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 58, 98 S. W. 222. Double damages are allowed by an instruction authorizing recovery for services while one was totally disabled, and diminished earning capacity without limiting recovery under the second item to time succeeding period of confinement. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Morris [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1038.

Rule not violated: Instruction to allow compensation for lost time and for permanent impairment of earning capacity not erroneous as permitting recovery of double damages. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Barrickman [Ky.] 104 S. W. 273. Instruction to assess damages at such sum "as if paid now will fairly compensate him for the injury" does not allow double damages. Beaumont Trac. Co. v. Edge [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 746. An instruction in an action for loss of an eye that the injured person was entitled to recover such sum as would fully compensate him for his loss, disadvantage, and disfigurement, and inconvenience reasonably certain to result was not misleading as allowing double damages. Hocking v. Windsor Spring Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 685. An instruction to allow compensation for loss by impairment of earning capacity, pain, suffering, and mental anguish, and if injuries are permanent such further sum, etc. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fink [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 204. An instruction in assault to consider mental pain and humiliation suffered in consequence of the assault. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Bean [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 721.

54. Williams v. Meadville & Cambridge Springs Street R. Co., 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 580.

55. It is the duty of the court to explain to the jury the meaning of punitive damages and to state the conditions and circumstances under which such damages may be recovered. Sneve v. Lunder, 100 Minn. 5, 110 N. W. 99. Failure to define "actual," "remote," and "speculative" is erroneous where the charge in which the terms are used would confuse the jury. First Nat. Bk. v. Carroll, 35 Mont. 302, 88 P. 1012. In instructing the jury that if they find an assault was made wantonly and maliciously they may assess punitive damages, failure to specifically define the meaning of "wantonly" is not error. Cody v. Gremmler, 121 Mo. App. 359, 99 S. W. 46.

56. Instructions in an action for delay in delivering a telegram to allow compensation for mental anguish suffered renders refusal to charge that there can be no recovery for grief at hearing news of death not error. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hardison [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 541.

57. An instruction that the measure of damages was reasonable compensation, that in estimating the amount the jury should consider whether the injury was permanent, the effect upon his health, physical pain and mental anguish, time lost and future consequences, "together with all facts and circumstances in evidence," was erroneous. Monongahela River Consol. Coal & Coke Co. v. Hardsaw [Ind.] 81 N. E. 492. An instruction authorizing the jury, in assessing damages, to consider "all the circumstances of the case as shown by the evidence" and "all the evidence" is erroneous. Knoefel v. Atkins [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 600.

58. Instructions considered as a whole held not erroneous. Chicago City R. Co. v. Smith, 226 Ill. 178, 80 N. E. 716. Definition of willfulness warranting recovery of punitive damages, taken in connection with other instructions, held proper. Talbert v. Charleston & W. C. R., 75 S. C. 136, 55 S. E. 138. In action against carrier for injury resulting from unheated depot, instructions held to sufficiently present the nonliability of the carrier for subsequent exposure to cold elsewhere. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Lowe [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 265, 97 S. W. 1087. An instruction which leaves the jury free to exercise its judgment as to the amount of damages without regard to the evidence, is cured by one which requires it to predicate its verdict upon the evidence. National Biscuit Co. v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 33. It is not error to instruct the jury to limit the verdict to the amount prayed for where the court also instructed to find only such sum as the evidence warranted. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Snell [Ark.] 100 S. W. 67. Instruction authorizing recovery for pain and anguish "which plaintiff may hereafter suffer" is verdict.<sup>59</sup> Erroneous instruction as to measure of damages is not ground for reversal where damages awarded are in accordance with law and justified by the evidence.<sup>60</sup>

(§ 7) D. Trial.<sup>61</sup>—If an action is primarily for the recovery of a money judgment for damages, the question of amount is for the jury,<sup>62</sup> but if the right to damages is merely incidental and the suit is primarily for injunctive relief, the court may assess the damages without the intervention of a jury.<sup>63</sup> Damages ex delicto may be recovered though they may have arisen by reason of breach of contract.<sup>64</sup> For a single tort only one award of damages may be had.<sup>65</sup> Damages for tort may be assessed without calculating altogether the pecuniary loss of the party.<sup>66</sup> Questions propounded to experts should embrace all the elements upon which the opinion is to be based.<sup>67</sup> Evidence in support of a set-off is not admissible in a hearing for assessment of damages after default.<sup>68</sup> Where suit is brought for specific performance against a defendant who has no title, and his want of title was known to the plaintiff at the time of the bringing of the suit, the petition cannot be retained for assessment of damages.<sup>69</sup> Damages recoverable for breach of contract are governed by the law of the place where the breach occurred.<sup>70</sup>

not erroneous where it is otherwise instructed that damages should be limited to pain and suffering shown by the evidence. Dean v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 199 Mo. 386, 97 S. W. 910. Instructions considered as a whole held to show that a charge as to pain and suffering which, if standing alone, would be erroneous, referred to measure of damages therefor and not to right to recover therefor. Goodwyn v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 688. An instruction to allow compensation in whatever sum it is found the crop was injured is to be read in connection with an instruction stating the measure of damages. Hunt v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 133.

Error not cured: Error in permitting recovery of punitive damages without mentioning the term is not cured by a charge that punitive damages could not be recovered. Wilson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 333, 55 S. E. 257. In an action for delay in delivering a telegram where the court details the duty of the jury in regard to the facts, it is not error to charge that such damages may be awarded as resulted from the negligence. *Harrison v. #### DEATH AND SURVIVORSHIP.<sup>81</sup>

This topic treats of the presumption and proof of death and of survivorship. It excludes statutory administration of estates of absentees.<sup>82</sup>

A rebuttable presumption<sup>83</sup> of death arises from a continuous and unexplained absence from home or place of residence for seven years,<sup>84</sup> and the party asserting continued life has burden of proving the same.<sup>85</sup> There is no presumption of survivorship between those perishing in a common disaster or that they died at the same instant,<sup>86</sup> but in New York property is distributed as of simultaneous death in the absence of proof of survivorship,<sup>87</sup> and hence one claiming under a legatee

73. Where a statute permits multifold damages, it is immaterial whether the jury return the sum to which plaintiff is entitled or only actual damages, and the court may direct entry of judgment in accordance with the statute. Richards v. Sanderson [Colo.] 89 P. 769.

74. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 999, providing that a trial judge may in his discretion entertain a motion to set aside a verdict and grant a new trial because of excessive damages, the court has no authority to reduce the verdict to nominal damages and direct judgment to be so entered. Howard v. Bank of Metropolis, 115 App. Div. 326, 100 N. Y. S. 1003.

75. Where the jury agreed that plaintiff was entitled to recover $900, any error in arriving at a verdict by lot for $950 is cured by remitting any sum in excess of $900. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Gentry [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 860, 98 S. W. 226.

77. Where in libel plaintiff sued for $5,000 actual and $5,000 punitive damages, and the court submitted two forms of verdict, one for actual damages and one for both actual and punitive damages, and the jury returned a verdict for $5,000 on the form used for actual damages, held that such verdict could not be considered as containing any actual damages. Meriwether v. Publishers; George Knapp & Co., 120 Mo. App. 354, 97 S. W. 257.

78. A verdict will not be set aside because it separates the damages under different heads. Telfair County v. Clements, 1 Ga. App. 437, 57 S. E. 1059. Where in an action for ejection of a child from a street car the right to recover depended on a finding of willful and malicious negligence, and if the act was wanton and malicious the jury were authorized to find exemplary damages, the fact that a verdict for exemplary damages was not returned does not establish that the act of the conductor was not malicious and inhuman. statute rendering carriers liable in certain instances does not create liability on the part of their employes.<sup>2</sup> In Massachusetts street railway companies are liable for death due to corporate negligence,<sup>3</sup> or to the gross negligence of employes,<sup>4</sup> and procedure therein prescribed must obtain.<sup>5</sup> Under the Indiana Employers' Liability Act, it is not necessary that the negligence of the vice principal be in the discharge of duties as such.<sup>6</sup> A municipality is liable in Alabama for a death due to its wrongful act.<sup>7</sup> In Louisiana no recovery can be held for the death of an illegitimate child,<sup>8</sup> but in Colorado a cause exists for the death of an adult leaving no spouse or children.<sup>9</sup> Both lessor and lessee railroad are liable for death caused by lessee road.<sup>10</sup>

The statutes quite generally allow recovery only where decedent would have had a cause of action for his injuries had he survived,<sup>11</sup> and hence negligence<sup>12</sup>

or illegal conduct<sup>13</sup> on his part proximately contributing to the death defeats recovery. Likewise, a release by decedent,<sup>14</sup> or a settlement by the sole beneficiary,<sup>15</sup> or the personal representative where he is authorized to sue, unless fraudulent,<sup>16</sup> constitutes a bar. The right of action for wrongful death does not survive the wrongdoer in Missouri.<sup>17</sup>

72. Petition under Rev. St. 1899, § 2864 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1637). Casey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 103 S. W. 1146. Held entitled to amend where petition was drawn in reliance on decision of Kansas City court of appeals. Id. Where allegations of petition and evidence brings case within § 2864, Rev. St. 1899 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1637), except that only $4,500 damages were demanded, instruction limiting recovery to such amount is erroneous, as full $5,000 should have been demanded. Gormley v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 103 S. W. 1147.

73. Will be presumed. Woodstock Iron Works v. Kline [Ala.] 43 So. 362.

74. Bellamy v. Whitsell, 123 Mo. App. 610, 100 S. W. 514.

75. Where married sisters are designated by Christian names of their husbands with prefix "Mrs.," petition may be amended so as to give own Christian names, there being no change of cause of action. Grace & Hyde Co. v. Strong, 224 Ill. 630, 79 N. E. 967. Where suit is brought in name of father for death of infant son, and verdict is returned for full damages to both parents, mother may be made party by amendment. Waltz v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 286. Where action may be brought by widow or by personal representative as nominal plaintiff for benefit of widow, action by widow as representative may be amended so as to stand in widow's right, especially under Civ. Code 1895, § 5106. Atlanta, K. & N. R. Co. v. Smith, 1 Ga. App. 162, 58 S. E. 106.

76. Atlanta, K. & N. R. Co. v. Smith, 1 Ga. App. 162, 58 S. E. 106.

77. Due qualification relates back to time of appointment. Archdeacon v. Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 76 Ohio St. 97, 81 N. E. 152.

78. Where original answer admitted that plaintiff was duly appointed and qualified administrator, leave to amend at time of trial two years later to deny such fact so as to take advantage of statute of limitations should be denied. Archdeacon v. Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 76 Ohio St. 97, 81 N. E. 152. Where original answer admits due appointment and qualification of plaintiff, and amended answer reaffirms all allegations except that plaintiff was duly qualified and avers that he was appointed and qualified at subsequent date admission of due appointment stands. Id.

79. Declarations or admissions of decedent are hearsay in action by widow, under Rev. St. 1892, §§ 2342, 2343. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 So. 516.

80. In action for death of minor son who had left home without consent of parents, letters and conversations indicating an intention to return are not inadmissible as self-serving. Dean v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 824.

81. Where in action by parents for death of minor son undutiful conduct of son towards mother is shown, evidence as to what mother said when called a liar is immaterial. Bellamy v. Whitsell, 123 Mo. App. 610, 100 S. W. 514.

82. Where physician was called to see deceased as soon as he was taken from locomotive tank which he was painting, he standard mortality tables.<sup>83</sup> Where no witnesses survive the accident, the manner and cause thereof may be shown by circumstantial evidence,<sup>84</sup> and evidence of decedent's careful habits is admissible to show due care.<sup>85</sup> The admissibility of evidence to show decedent's earning capacity,<sup>86</sup> and the damage to the beneficiaries,<sup>87</sup> is treated in the notes. Although it is presumed in Nebraska that the widow and children were dependent upon deceased,<sup>88</sup> direct proof thereof is admissible.<sup>89</sup> Where decedent was not supporting his wife at the time of death, facts relieving him from the legal obligation to do so may be shown.<sup>90</sup>

The burden of proving negligence on the part of defendant,<sup>91</sup> proximately causing death,<sup>92</sup> is on plaintiff, but contributory negligence is an affirmative defense in most states,<sup>93</sup> though the burden of disproving it rests upon plaintiff in a few.<sup>94</sup> Where action is brought by one married to decedent in due form of law, dissolution may testify as expert that death was caused by inhaling fumes of paint, basing his opinion on observation and on undisputed statements of circumstances under which decedent died. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Rutland [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 529.

83. Valente v. Sierra R. Co. [Cal.] 91 P. 481. Admission thereof without proof of authenticity and reliability is discretionary with court. Id.

84. Where accident results in death of all persons connected therewith and there is no direct proof as to how it happened, manner of occurrence may be shown by circumstantial evidence from which jury may infer manner and cause of accident, if inference is reasonable though not a necessary resulting fact. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Deselms, 18 Okl. 107, 89 P. 212.

85. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Wilson, 225 Ill. 50, 80 N. E. 56.

86. Fact that returns from farming depend largely upon weather conditions does not render proof of what decedent usually made inadmissible. Wrightsville & T. R. Co. v. Gornito [Ga.] 58 S. E. 769. Fact that home of decedent was mortgaged is incompetent where offered in derogation of earning capacity, value of business as fire insurance agent is competent, as is testimony by wife as to affability and other personal characteristics of assistance to him in securing business. Wheeling & Lake Erie R. Co. v. Parker, 9 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 28.

87. Where it appeared that decedent cared for her children besides doing other work, evidence of number and age of children is admissible. Lord v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 67 A. 639. Evidence that deceased had agreed to reimburse father for expenses of education by aiding in education of sisters is admissible. Huff v. Peoria & Eastern R. Co., 127 Ill. App. 242. In action by widow under Minors Act, she may testify as to the number of minor children so as to assess entire damages in one action. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Bruzas, 125 Ill. App. 464. Evidence that decedent and witness walked from sister state to place of employment and on way begged food and slept in barns is immaterial. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. v. Griffin [Ala.] 42 So. 1034.

88. Hence of pecuniary injury. Standard Oil Co. v. Parkinson [C. C. A.] 152 F. 681.

89. Presumption being rebuttable, direct proof in support thereof is not incompetent or immaterial. Standard Oil Co. v. Parkinson [C. C. A.] 152 F. 681.

90. Where recovery is limited to "a fair and just compensation for the pecuniary injury," etc., and it is admitted that decedent has contributed nothing to widow's support for 15 years, evidence that during all of such time she was notoriously living in adultery is admissible as relieving him from duty to support. Orendorf v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 222.

91. Where only evidence of negligence is inference drawn from circumstances, and other circumstances are proven, from which inference of absence of negligence is clearly a more natural and stronger inference, and verdict is for plaintiff, it is duty of court to see that party on whom burden is cast sustains that burden, and to set aside verdict, which is in effect based upon conjecture of jury that defendant was negligent. Hamilton v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 249. See negligence, 8 C. L. 1090.

92. Evidence held sufficient to show that accident was proximate cause of death. Kelly v. Wills, 116 App. Div. 758, 102 N. Y. S. 223. Question of cause of death is for jury, and they are not required to find that cause beyond reasonable doubt, nor to find specific affliction with certainty of a medical determination, and they may disregard medical testimony. Id. Where causal connection between injury and death is not sufficiently shown, order setting aside verdict for plaintiff is proper, but judgment dismissing complaint is erroneous as deficiency may be supplied on new trial. McIntyre v. Interurban St. R. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 106.

93. Baker v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 149 F. 882. In action by widow for death of husband under Rev. St. 1892, §§ 2342, 2343, burden of pleading and proving contributory negligence is on defendant. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 So. 516. Where no witness saw accident, administrator is entitled to presumption of due care. Ellis v. Republic Oil Co., 133 Iowa, 11, 110 N. W. 20. Presumption of due care on part of decedent is inapplicable where surrounding circumstance negatives such care. Rich v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 79. See Negligence, 8 C. L. 1090.

94. Proof that decedent, engineer, was found dead on floor of hallway between revolving fly wheel and wall of building with skull cut off, held insufficient to show due care. McCarty v. Clinton Gaslight Co., 193 Mass. 76, 78 N. E. 739.

of a former marriage prior thereto will be presumed.<sup>95</sup> Where legitimacy of decedent is attacked and marriage of parents denied, the mother suing has burden of proving marriage.<sup>96</sup> Burden of proving that homicide was committed in self-defense is on the defendant.<sup>97</sup>

DEBT, ACTION OF.<sup>5</sup>

An action of debt will not lie where the mutual obligations of the parties can be adjusted only in equity.<sup>6</sup> An assignee of rent who has not the reversion may maintain debt or rents.<sup>7</sup> An action to recover a statutory penalty for usury is one of debt.<sup>8</sup>

DECEIT.

§ 1. Nature and Elements (936).

Scope of topic.—The topic embraces fraud as a ground of action for damages whether in the common law form for deceit or an equivalent action under the code. Fraud as a ground for relief other than the recovery of damages is elsewhere treated.<sup>9</sup>

95. Defendant must prove contrary though it necessitates the proof of a negative. Johnson v. St. Joseph Terminal R. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 641.

96. Lynch v. Knoop, 118 La. 611, 43 So. 252.

97. Where evidence shows that defendant intentionally stabbed decedent, and only theory upon which act would not be unlawful would be that of self-defense, charge that there was presumption that defendant did not unlawfully kill decedent is erroneous. Cobb v. Owens [Ala.] 43 So. 826.

98. Request to charge that if jury believe that, in natural course of events, decedent would have spent all his earnings on his maintenance during his life if he had lived his expectancy, plaintiff cannot recover, held abstract. Woodstock Iron Works v. Kline [Ala.] 43 So. 362.

99. See 7 C. L. 1092.

1. Hence surrogate has jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. § 1903, to make distribution before expiration of year from appointment of administrator and without advertisement to creditors. In re McDonald's Estate, 51 Misc. 318, 101 N. Y. S. 275.

2. Under Civ. Code 1895, §§ 3828, 3829, minor child is entitled to distributive share in amount recovered by widow and may, through legal representative, maintain action therefor. Griffith v. Griffith [Ga.] 57 S. E. 698.

3. Hence not necessary to postpone settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 1903, until termination of action in supreme court for funeral expenses. In re McDonald's Estate, 51 Misc. 318, 101 N. Y. S. 275. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1903, as amended by Laws 1904, p. 1285, c. 515, providing that from sum recovered by administrator for death of decedent he "may deduct" the reasonable funeral expenses of the decedent, held that leave should be granted to one who has recovered a judgment for funeral expenses against the administrator to issue an execution thereon to be paid out of amount in his hands as proceeds of suit by him for death by wrongful act of his decedent after payment of costs of such suit. In re McDermott's Estate, 49 Misc. 402, 99 N. Y. S. 829.

4. Especially where facts justify submission of issue as to whether each of plaintiffs has suffered injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Munn [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 442. Where defendant does not complain that verdict as whole is too large, he cannot complain that particular beneficiary received too much. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Scarborough [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 408.

5. See 7 C. L. 1092.

6. Parties to joint adventure. Jones v. McNally, 53 Misc. 59, 103 N. Y. S. 1011.

7. F. Groos & Co. v. Chittim [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1006.

8. Waltman v. Empire Loan Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 499.

9. See Fraud and Undue Influence, 7 C. L. 1813; Reformation of Instruments, 8 C. L. 1708; Wills, 8 C. L. 2305.

There must be some representation,<sup>18</sup> though under some circumstances mere concealment is sufficient,<sup>19</sup> but the maker of false representation is not liable to one whom he had no reason to believe would be misled by them.<sup>20</sup> It is a sufficient basis for an action against a principal if made by his authorized agent,<sup>21</sup> but representation by one partner will not bind his firm unless done in the course of the firm's business.<sup>22</sup>

16. Representation that an option has been secured on land at certain price upon which others rely in entering into contract for its purchase jointly with those making such statements amounts to fraud where in fact a rebate was to be made from the price though upon inquiry it might have been learned that the statements were false. Vennum v. Palmer, 123 Ill. App. 619. Vendor of merchandise stock assisting in taking inventory for purpose of arriving at price at which it is to be sold, who gives the values thereof in excess of price marked thereon, is guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation. Smith v. Owsley [Ky.] 102 S. W. 277. False statement that certain property was clear of incumbrance and that a mortgage given thereon is a first lien amounts to fraud where a mortgage was given and filed an hour before but not spread on record until next day. Hill v. Coates, 127 Ill. App. 196. An action for damages will lie in favor of a party who, by false representations, was induced to change his position to his injury. Farquhar v. Farquhar [Mass.] 80 N. E. 654. Facts considered and held sufficient to constitute actionable fraud where plaintiff and defendant were joint owners of a mine and defendant represented to plaintiff that he had a purchaser therefor at a certain sum and induced plaintiff to convey his interest to him for purpose of sale, whereas price he received therefor was in excess of sum named to plaintiff of which fact plaintiff was ignorant. Christy v. Campbell, 36 Colo. 261, 87 P. 548.

19. Where insurance agent undertakes to fully explain policy in procuring application, but willfully neglects to inform applicant of certain onerous conditions his silence on that subject amounts to fraudulent concealment. Hartford L. Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595.

20. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Schriver [C. C. A.] 141 F. 538.

21. Principal is liable for false representation of agent as to validity of a bill of sale and as to ability of a third party to pay, made to induce plaintiff to loan money to said third party with which latter paid indebtedness to defendant. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061.

23. See 7 C. L. 1094. Positive and detailed statement of financial responsibility may be construed as a statement of fact. Phillips v. Hebden [R. I.] 63 A. 266. Statement by agents of insurance company that such company was issuing certain policy under which certain benefits would be derived in the future is of existing fact. Hartford L. Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595. Positive statements of value of stock in a corporation and the dividends it will earn, made by its president, are statements of fact. Gilluly v. Hosford [Wash.] 88 P. 1027. Where controlling considerations inducing plaintiff to enter into contract were statements of existing fact, fact that he may also have been induced by false promises as to future transactions is immaterial. Damers v. Sternberger, 102 N. Y. S. 739. Whether certain statements as to value of company's assets were statements of fact or matters of opinion held a question for jury. Hawley v. Wicker, 117 App. Div. 638, 102 N. Y. S. 711.

24. Statement made to plaintiff that he could perform certain work in a given time whereas it required double the time stated is an expression of opinion. Chamberlayne v. American Law Book Co., 148 F. 316.

sion of opinion.<sup>25</sup> but a fraudulent statement of an intent which does not exist may give basis for an action for deceit,<sup>26</sup> as may also a promise to perform with the present intention not to do so,<sup>27</sup> though some courts hold that promises to perform some act in the future does not, though made with an intention not to perform.<sup>28</sup> The representation must be false<sup>29</sup> and the question of its falsity is generally one of fact.<sup>30</sup>

The maker must know it to be false<sup>31</sup> or make it with such disregard of its truthfulness as to be equivalent to actual fraud.<sup>32</sup>

The falsity must have been willful and made with intent to deceive.<sup>33</sup>

The representation must be material,<sup>34</sup> and the question of materiality is generally one of fact.<sup>35</sup>

The representation must be relied upon<sup>36</sup> and the person injured thereby deceived.<sup>37</sup>

It must be such that the defrauded person is entitled to rely upon,<sup>38</sup> and such as will mislead a reasonably prudent man,<sup>39</sup> unless the parties occupy fiduciary relations toward each other.<sup>40</sup> That the defrauded party should have discovered the fraud before changing his position to his injury is no defense.<sup>41</sup>

25. Statement that third party is "a 'nice young man' and will probably make a good customer" cannot give basis for action for deceit, though he is in fact insolvent and unable to pay his bills. Bretzfelder, Bronner & Co. v. Waddle, 122 Mo. App. 462, 99 S. W. 806.

26. Statement of intention to purchase property on which plaintiff held option on condition that he make no effort to sell others, thereby inducing him to hold property until option expired and then purchase from owner, is a fraudulent representation. Complaint in action for fraudulent representations as to defendant's intent resulting in damage to plaintiff held good as against demurrer. Rogers v. Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 1.

27. Promise to see that property is sold at a certain figure under foreclosure without intent to perform, made to induce plaintiff to give mortgage, is a false statement of an existing fact. Cerny v. Paxton & Gallagher Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 882.

28. Plaintiff was induced to invest in corporation upon representation that defendant would invest a considerable sum and give his time to the business. Defendant did not perform. Held to give no cause of action for deceit. Chambers v. Mitchell, 123 Ill. App. 595.

29. Evidence must show that representations were false, that they were made knowingly and with intent to deceive. Ames v. Thren, 125 Ill. App. 312; Hartford L. Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595.

30. Whether or not certain statements were true held a question for jury. Hawley v. Wicker, 117 App. Div. 638, 102 N. Y. S. 711.

31. See 7 C. L. 1095. False statement made through carelessness and without reasonable ground for believing it to be true does not amount to fraud. Pittsburg Life & Trust Co. v. Northern Cent. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 674. Representation concerning credit of another, though false, is not the basis for deceit if honestly made. Bartles v. Courtney, 6 Ind. T. 379, 98 S. W. 133.

32. In order to justify recovery for vender's false representations as to title, it must appear that he knew of their falsity or made them under such circumstance that knowledge will be implied. Curtley v. Security Sav. Soc. [Wash.] 89 P. 180. Evidence that defendant did not know whether endorser of note had certain property held sufficient to show that he knew his statement to that effect was false, the indorser in fact owning no such property. Farmer v. Lynch [R. I.] 67 A. 449.

33. See 7 C. L. 1095. Where in negotiation for sale of its property defendant supplied plaintiff with inaccurate statement thereof, which had been made for its own use prior to such negotiations, without knowledge of its falsity, deceit will not lie. Pittsburgh Life & Trust Co. v. Northern Cent. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 674.

34. See 5 C. L. 955. Kranz v. Lewis, 115 App. Div. 106, 100 N. Y. S. 674.

§ 2. Action and procedure.<sup>43</sup>—One who acted as agent for defrauded party cannot bring action in his own name.<sup>44</sup> In action for damages for deceit whereby plaintiff was induced to enter into a written lease, the cause of action is not governed by the lease.<sup>45</sup> Court of law has jurisdiction of action by party defrauded in buying into a firm.<sup>46</sup>

Pleading.<sup>47</sup>—The facts constituting fraud must be specifically alleged.<sup>48</sup> The complaint must show the relation of cause in effect between the fraud and the damage alleged,<sup>49</sup> and must definitely state the damage suffered.<sup>50</sup> It must show that the representations were in fact false,<sup>51</sup> that the defendant was aware of their falsity,<sup>52</sup> and that defrauded party relied upon them and acted thereon to his injury.<sup>53</sup>

Evidence.<sup>54</sup> The evidence adduced must be sufficient to sustain the allegations of the complaint,<sup>55</sup> but the necessity of proving the falsity of the representations is confined to those necessary to show facts sufficient to sustain recovery.<sup>56</sup> Relaxation of the rule res inter alia acta,<sup>57</sup> and of the parol evidence rule, is permitted.<sup>58</sup> In action for damages resulting from fraud, judgment roll is admissible to show that it had been rendered for breach of contract caused by such fraud but not to show grounds on which it was rendered.<sup>59</sup> Where fraud in representing an instrument to be valid security is the gist of an action for deceit, it is

condition of corporation and chose to rely on defendant's statements, recovery cannot be defeated on ground that plaintiff should have made investigation. Gilluly v. Hosford [Wash.] 88 P. 1027. 56. Where plaintiff was induced to loan money to third party upon false representations by defendant as to solvency of third party and his associates, fraud was sufficiently shown by evidence of insolvency of such party. *Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. 57. Evidence of similar false representations to others is admissible as bearing on the question of intent. Hartford L. Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595.

58. Oral evidence is admissible to prove false representations though it adds to or varies a written contract. American Educational Co. v. Taggart, 124 Ill. App. 567. In action for deceit whereby plaintiff was induced to make a written lease, evidence of oral representations cannot be excluded on the ground that it varies the terms of the lease. Brown v. Morrill, 105 N. Y. S. 191.

§ 1. What is dedication.<sup>69</sup>

60. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061.

61. Where there is undisputed evidence that party making false representations was defendant's agent and that defendant had ratified his act, it was not error to permit plaintiff to show that he informed defendant's manager of the falsity of agent's statements. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061.

62. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061.

64. Where there is direct conflict as to whether certain statements were made, an instruction that where a transaction is capable of two constructions that in favor of honesty should be accepted is erroneous. Russell v. Stoops [Md.] 66 A. 698. If the materiality of representations is undisputed, it is proper to refuse a special instruction on that subject. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061. Rule that withholding of information when asked or use of trick for concealment may amount to fraud has no application to action for damages against defendant for false statements as to credit standing of his customer, and instruction to that effect in such action is erroneous. Bartles v. Courtney, 6 Ind. T. 379, 98 S. W. 133.

65. Where plaintiff was fraudulently induced to give note for certain sum which he paid, but did not suffer any other damages, verdict in excess of note and interest is to that extent excessive. Hartford L. Ins. Co. v. Hope [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 595. Measure of damages for failure to keep promise fraudulently made, to see that at foreclosure sale of property it brought a certain sum, is difference between what sale brought and value of goods at time of sale. Cerny v. Paxton & Gallagher Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 882. In determining value of stock whose sale is induced by deceit, good will of corporate business is an element of value. Von Au v. Magenheimer, 115 App. Div. 84, 100 N. Y. S. 659. Defendant's fraud whereby he induced plaintiff to buy lot without receiving title resulted in breach of contract by plaintiff for the erection of a house thereon. Held that the fact that plaintiff could have had the house built on another lot cannot be considered in mitigation of damages. Curtley v. Security Sav. Soc. [Wash.] 89 P. 180. Where plaintiff exchanged house for defendant's farm and assumed mortgage on farm and defendant falsely represented that interest on mortgage had been paid, and mortgage was afterwards foreclosed by reason of non-payment of interest, which plaintiff made no effort to pay or have defendant pay, the damages plaintiff is entitled to is the interest and not the value of the house. Russell v. Stoops [Md.] 66 A. 698.

66. Measure of damages for deceit inducing plaintiff to execute lease is difference between rental value of premises and sum stipulated and moving expenses. Brown v. Morrill, 105 N. Y. S. 191.

67. Reasonable attorney's fees paid out in defending action by third party directly attributable to the fraud of defendant may be recovered. Curtley v. Security Sav. Soc. [Wash.] 89 P. 180.

68. Where representations were false and designedly made to injure plaintiff. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061.

§ 3. The purposes of dedication.<sup>72</sup>

Acceptance<sup>83</sup> by the public before the offer is withdrawn is necessary.<sup>84</sup> Acceptance need not ordinarily be in any particular form<sup>85</sup> and may be implied,<sup>86</sup> assumption of control,<sup>87</sup> or user and improvement at the public expense, being ordina-

74. Plat not made by surveyor as required by Rev. Laws 1833, p. 599, § 1. Nelson v. Randolph, 222 Ill. 531, 78 N. E. 914. Acknowledgment of plat by two of the three county commissioners not a compliance with Rev. Laws 1828-29, p. 184, § 3. Spalding v. Macomb & W. I. R. Co., 225 Ill. 585, 80 N. E. 327.

Note: Under the laws of the state of Illinois, which provided that when an addition was surveyed and a plat made and certified by the county surveyor and acknowledged by the proprietor the fee to the streets and alleys would pass to the city, it was held that plat made and certified by a deputy surveyor and acknowledged by the agent of the proprietor was insufficient to constitute a statutory dedication. Wilder v. Aurora, etc., Traction Co., 216 Ill. 493, 75 N. E. 194.

While this is according to precedent in Illinois (Village of Auburn v. Goodwin, 128 Ill. 57, overruling Gebhardt v. Reeves, 75 Ill. 305; Thompson v. Maloney, 199 Ill. 276, 93 Am. St. Rep. 133), it seems somewhat arbitrary. A more satisfactory result could be obtained by applying the following rule, proposed by Judge Elliott (Roads and Streets, § 119), "to resolve doubts in such cases against the donor, within reasonable limits to construe the dedication so as to benefit the public rather than the donor," or, as expressed by Dillon in his Municipal Corporations (note 2, § 628), "If the plat as recorded * * * contains enough to show that it was intended by the owner to be a dedication under the statute, it would seem to the author to be right, notwithstanding a defective acknowledgment, or the like, to hold the proprietor estopped to make the objection that he did not comply with the statute."—See *Regan v. rily evidence of acceptance.<sup>88</sup> Acceptance is sometimes, however, required to be by official action,<sup>89</sup> it being said in Virginia that there is a difference in this respect between city streets and rural highways.<sup>90</sup> User, while evidence of acceptance, is not prerequisite thereto.<sup>91</sup> Acceptance may be at any time<sup>92</sup> if before withdrawal of the offer,<sup>93</sup> or the running of limitations in favor of an adverse occupant.<sup>94</sup> Acceptance by a town after incorporation obviates the fact that it was not incorporated at the time of dedication.<sup>95</sup> Purchase of land with reference to plat is acceptance of streets thereby dedicated,<sup>96</sup> and one holding under a deed referring to plat is estopped to deny acceptance by city of streets therein mentioned.<sup>97</sup>

Filing of plat or sale of lots with reference to a plat<sup>98</sup> by the owner<sup>99</sup> operates as a dedication of streets indicated<sup>1</sup> on the plat as filed;<sup>2</sup> and it is no objection that dedicatior did not at the time of platting own the land if he ratified it by subsequent conveyances with reference to the plat.<sup>3</sup> It is usually said to be a common-law dedication,<sup>4</sup> based on estoppel.<sup>5</sup> Platting may be a statutory dedication if the statute is strictly complied with,<sup>6</sup> or if the defect is obviated by curative acts,<sup>7</sup> or by a subsequent deed to the dedicator.<sup>8</sup> Recordation of plat and deeds with reference thereto is notice of dedication to subsequent purchaser.<sup>9</sup>

Dedication is a question of fact,<sup>10</sup> the burden of proof being on him who alleges it,<sup>11</sup> and the question being ordinarily one for the jury on all the facts.<sup>12</sup>

§ 5. Effect of dedication.<sup>13</sup>—A dedication takes effect<sup>14</sup> and becomes irrevocable<sup>15</sup> on acceptance. While the rights of city to dedicate lands cannot be lost by estoppel,<sup>16</sup> the owner of the fee may by adverse possession for the statutory time, with such acquiescence by the public as to show an abandonment, exclude the public easement,<sup>17</sup> and that he excepted the offered property in a mortgage given by him during the period of occupancy does not avoid this result.<sup>18</sup> In the absence of statute,<sup>19</sup> dedication does not divest the dedicator of title but only subjects the land to the public easement,<sup>20</sup> and on disuse it will revert.<sup>21</sup> Likewise, where the dedication was for a specific use, it must not be departed from,<sup>22</sup> and it is only by the exercise of the power of eminent domain that the legislature can divert property to a purpose other than that for which it was delegated.<sup>23</sup>

§ 6. Remedies.<sup>24</sup>—The remedy of a dedicator to cure an error in the plat is by bill in equity joining all persons interested.<sup>25</sup> Though dedication was by deed to county, the municipality in which it is situated is a proper party to sue to preserve the use for which dedication was made.<sup>26</sup>

DEEDS OF CONVEYANCE.

§ 1. Nature, Form, and Requisites (943). Requisites (945). Delivery (947). Acceptance (950). Validity of Assent (950). Consideration (950).

§ 2. Recordation (951).

§ 3. Interpretation and Effect (951). Covenants (953). Designation of Parties (954). Description of Property Conveyed (954). Quantum of Estate Conveyed (955). A Reservation (957). Conditions and Restrictions (958). Restrictions (959). Extinguishment of Rights (959).

§ 1. Nature, form, and requisites. Deeds distinguished from other instruments.<sup>27</sup>—An instrument in form a deed is presumed to be what it purports to be,<sup>28</sup> and where it purports to pass a present interest, it will not be held a testamentary disposition,<sup>29</sup> though enjoyment of the estate conveyed is postponed until after the grantor's death,<sup>30</sup> but where it plainly appears that the intention of the maker was to execute a will, it will be given effect as such<sup>31</sup> and held void if not properly executed as a will.<sup>32</sup>

A deed absolute on its face may be shown to be in fact a mortgage,<sup>33</sup> if it was so

An instrument in form of a deed but reserving in the habendum "Except a lifetime lease on the land in three days after said party of the first part is deceased this deed shall be in full force" held a deed with reservation of a life estate and not a will. Pentico v. Hays [Kan.] 88 P. 738. An instrument in form a deed is what it purports to be where there has been a valid delivery, though there is evidence that the grantor told the draughtsman that he desired to make a will. Griswold v. Griswold [Ala.] 42 So. 554. Instrument held to be a power of attorney and not a deed. Taylor v. Burns, 203 U. S. 120, 51 Law. Ed. 116.

29. An instrument in form a deed, reciting an agreement to reconvey when called upon to do so, and a power of attorney executed by the grantee authorizing the grantor to collect rent during life, held a deed and not a will. Stamper v. Venable, 117 Tenn. 557, 97 S. W. 812.

30. Held a deed: An instrument in form a deed conveying certain property "together with all the rights and privileges thereunto belonging, at my death, forever, in fee simple." Kytte v. Kytte [Ga.] 57 S. E. 748. Deed from husband to his wife and child reciting that it was executed in order that the grantees should be provided for after the grantor's death. Ecklar's Adm'r v. Robinson, 29 Ky. L. R. 1038, 96 S. W. 845. Instrument by which one conveyed to a grandson, reserving a life estate and also providing that the instrument should not take effect until after the grantor's death. Venters v. Wickens, 224 Ill. 569, 79 N. E. 946. An instrument conveying all the grantor's property in consideration of one dollar and future services "to take effect and be of force after the grantor's death." Rogers v. Rogers [Miss.] 43 So. 434. Where a deed is placed in the hands of a third person to be delivered to the grantee on death of the grantor, a provision therein that it shall not take effect until the death of the grantor, will in the absence of other circumstances be construed to mean that title is to vest at once, the enjoyment being postponed. Nolan v. Otney [Kan.] 89 P. 690. Where deeds were deposited with a third person to be delivered after the grantor's death and a will executed the same day referred to the deeds and recited that the grantor should have a life estate in crops, held the deeds constituted a present grant reserving a use of the rents and profits. Schillinger v. Bawek [Iowa] 112 N. W. 210. A recital that the grantee is to care for the grantor during his life is not inconsistent with such interpretation. Id.

31. Where deeds were placed in the hands of a stranger to be delivered after the grantor's death and were referred to in a will. Schillinger v. Bawek [Iowa] 112 N. W. 210. A deed cannot be delivered to take effect as a will and to be effective only in case the grantee survive the grantor. Russel v. Mitchell, 223 Ill. 438, 79 N. E. 141. Instrument construed and held that it was the intention of the testator to make a testamentary disposition. Aldridge v. Aldridge, 202 Mo. 565, 101 S. W. 42. Where an aged woman and her husband desired to make testamentary disposition of her property and she executed a deed to him to take effect at her death, and such deed was deposited in bank, evidence held to show that the wife did not intend to part with control of it and that it was testamentary. Sappingfield v. King [Or.] 89 P. 142.

32. Where a grantor delivered a deed to her son with directions to sell the land after her death and distribute the proceeds, she continued in possession during her life, held the conveyance was void as a testamentary disposition. Oswald v. Caldwell, 225 Ill. 224, 80 N. E. 131.

33. See, also, Mortgages, 8 C. L. 1022. Lebensburger v. Scofield [C. C. A.] 155 F. 85; Hill's Guardian v. Hill, 29 Ky. L. R. 201, 92 S. W. 924. It may be shown in a suit to foreclose that a deed was intended as a mortgage. Hill v. Griffin [Kan.] 90 P. 808. A deed intended as a mortgage does not pass title. Texas So. R. Co. v. Harle [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 878. A deed may be shown to be a mortgage as between the grantor and a third person. Stumpe v. Kopp, 201 Mo. 412, 99 S. W. 1073. May be shown by parol to be a mortgage where the intended at the time of its inception,<sup>34</sup> as evinced by the surrounding circumstances,<sup>35</sup> and there is a subsisting debt after execution.<sup>36</sup> Whether it is a mortgage must be determined from the circumstances of each case.<sup>37</sup> The fact that it is a mortgage may be established by parol,<sup>38</sup> but he who asserts it has the burden of proving such fact<sup>39</sup> by clear and satisfactory proof.<sup>40</sup>

grantee has not taken possession of the property. Askew v. Thompson [Ga.] 53 S. E. 854. An act purporting to be a vente a remere but made for an inadequate consideration and unaccompanied by delivery of possession will be treated in the absence of sufficient countervailing evidence, as a contract by which the thing nominally sold stands as security. Leger v. Leger, 118 La. 322, 42 So. 951. Where a deed was procured from ignorant persons on representations that it was a mortgage. Abercrombie v. Carpenter [Ala.] 43 So. 746. An absolute deed intended as a mortgage remains a mortgage. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549.

34. Parties to a deed having treated it as a mortgage are bound by their construction. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549. Where an agent of a creditor authorized to foreclose a mortgage instead of doing so takes a deed with an agreement that rents and profits are to be applied on the debt, and the land reconveyed when the debt is paid, and the creditor accepts the conveyance, he does so subject to the conditions which render it a mortgage. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189.

35. A deed executed contemporaneously with other instruments which show that the deed was intended as a mortgage, will be given effect as such. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549. A deed to husband and wife jointly where the wife is named as grantee to secure payment to her of a loan to her husband to make the purchase is as to her a mortgage, and when the loan is paid her interest terminates. Hubbard v. Cheney [Kan.] 91 P. 793. In a controversy between the heirs of such grantees as to whether the deed was a mortgage, declarations of the husband at the time of the purchase and while he was in possession of the land, explaining the rights of his wife, are admissible. Id. Relations existing between the parties at the time the instrument was executed may be considered in determining whether a deed was intended as a mortgage. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189.

36. An agreement to reconvey land if the grantee would pay a certain debt with interest together with any other indebtedness that might accrue showed the continued existence of a debt. Francis v. Francis [S. C.] 58 S. E. 804. Whether a conveyance with promise to reconvey on payment of a debt constitutes a mortgage or conditional sale depends largely on whether the debt continued or was discharged by the conveyance. Id. A deed given to satisfy a debt is not a mortgage though accompanied by a promise to reconvey upon being reimbursed the amount of the debt. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Turner [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 932.

37. Where parties sustain the relation of debtor and creditor and the grantee surrenders the evidence of indebtedness and such debt is intended to be satisfied, the transaction will be held a deed. Harrah v. Smith [Neb.] 112 N. W. 337.

That a person loaned money to another to purchase land and took the deed in his own name as security may be shown by parol. Krebs v. Lauser, 133 Iowa, 241, 110 N. W. 443. The defeasance agreement may rest in parol. Linkeman v. Knepper, 226 Ill. 473, 80 N. E. 1009; Abrams v. Abrams, 74 Kan. 888, 88 P. 70; Jennings v. Demmon [Mass.] 80 N. E. 471. This rule does not violate the statute of Frauds. Id.

The rule that a deed absolute is what it purports to be does not require that the record of an appeal from a judgment declaring a deed to be a mortgage must be entirely plain and convincing to the appellate court. Wadleigh v. Phelps, 149 Cal. 627, 87 P. 93. Complaint to have a deed declared a mortgage held sufficient. Id. In a suit to have a deed absolute decreed a mortgage, self-serving declarations of the grantor are not admissible. Wilson v. Terry [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 983.

Evidence insufficient to show a deed to be a mortgage. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Turner [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 932; Lemke v. Lemke [Neb.] 111 N. W. 138. Where the value of the equity conveyed did not greatly exceed the consideration, the grantor knowing the difference between a deed and a mortgage and the attorney for the grantee refusing to take a mortgage. Sahlin v. Gregson [Wash.] 90 P. 592. Evidence sufficient to show a deed with an option to repurchase to be a deed and not a mortgage. Hinchman v. Cook [Wash.] 88 P. 921. Evidence sufficient to show that a deed was what it purported to be. Osborne v. Osborne [Wash.] 89 P. 881; Cooper v. Strauber [Or.] 89 P. 641. Conveyance and contract to reconvey construed and held a conditional sale and not a mortgage. Maxwell v. Herzfeld [Ala.] 42 So. 987.

Evidence sufficient to show a deed to be a mortgage. Meeker v. Shuster [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1102; Harper v. Hays Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 360; Cusick v. Spencer [Mich.] 112 N. W. 1111; Harrah v. Requisites.<sup>41</sup>—A deed executed in the manner prescribed by law is necessary to pass title.<sup>42</sup> As a general rule no particular form of instrument is necessary,<sup>43</sup> but the intention to pass a title presently must be apparent.<sup>44</sup>

A deed must be executed by one who has some estate in the property or authority to convey,<sup>45</sup> but an owner may ratify an unauthorized signature,<sup>46</sup> and a conveyance by an infant may be ratified after he attains majority;<sup>47</sup> and it has been held that joining in a deed by one not named therein is effective as a conveyance by him.<sup>48</sup> It must contain a definite and certain description of the property,<sup>49</sup> or one capable not charge that proof must be clear and satisfactory as such charge is on the weight of evidence. Irvin v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 343, 98 S. W. 405.

41. See 7 C. L. 1105.

42. Where a married woman purchased the assets of a railroad company in receiver-ship proceedings and a new company was organized to take over the property, the issue of stock to the married woman in payment of her interest did not operate to transfer her title. Texas So. R. Co. v. Harle [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 878. Third persons who took stock in liquidation of judgments against the company, who had notice of the condition of the title, did not acquire title to any portion of the property. Id. Where title is shown to be in a person, it cannot be divested except by writing under seal. Adams v. Bristol, 114 App. Div. 390, 100 N. Y. S. 145.

43. Any writing, signed and sealed, by which for a valuable consideration one person sells land to another, is a bargain and sale deed passing title. Code 1906, § 3033. Waldron v. Pigeon Coal Co., 61 W. Va. 280, 56 S. E. 492. A restrictive agreement executed so as to be entitled to record affects title to real estate within St. 1898, § 2242, defining a conveyance. Boyden v. Roberts [Wis.] 111 N. W. 701.

44. Instrument signed by both parties reciting that one had conveyed "with deed in fee" certain lands to the other, on condition that such other make certain payments, and reciting that a lien was retained, held a contract and not a deed. Powell v. Hunter, 204 Mo. 393, 102 S. W. 1020.

45. Where a grantor signed by his initials but his full Christian name was recited in the body of the deed, held sufficient. Woodward v. McCollum [N. D.] 111 N. W. 623. A deed from Henry S. Woodworth signed "Harry S. Woodworth" held sufficient, the identity of the person being apparent. Id. In order that a deed made by a receiver may be offered in evidence, it must be shown by the record of the court wherein the cause was pending that the receiver qualified by giving the required bond. Hagan v. Holdrby [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 289. It must also appear that the court authorized the execution of the deed, and that it had jurisdiction to do so. Id. A recital in a deed of a special receiver showing his appointment and authority to execute the same is not evidence of such authority as against persons not claiming under it. Id. Deed reciting "that I, D. R. Crawford, agent of D. M. Crawford, have granted," etc., signed, "D. R. Crawford, agent for D. M. Crawford," is not effectual as the deed of D. M. Crawford. Crawford v. Crawford [S. C.] 57 S. E. 837.

A deed executed by an agent in his own name is not the deed of his principal. Wilson v. Hammond, 146 Ala. 987, 40 So. 343.

46. A person may execute a deed by having another sign for him or by accepting the signature as his own after another has signed. McAllen v. Raphael [Tex. Civ. App.] 96 S. W. 760. Evidence sufficient to show ratification of an agent's acts in executing a deed where the principal accepted the purchase price and had full notice of the fact that a deed had been executed. Kirkpatrick v. Pease, 202 Mo. 471, 101 S. W. 651.

49. A sheriff's deed does not require a more definite description than a voluntary deed. Gallup v. Flood [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 426.

Description held sufficiently definite. Gallup v. Flood [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 426. Fifteen acres "more or less" of the southwest corner of a quarter section signified a sale in gross of fifteen acres and was not uncertain because of the words quoted. Early & Co. v. Long, 89 Miss. 285, 42 So. 348. "Fifteen acres, more or less, of the southwest corner of the northeast quarter" of a section meant fifteen acres to be taken in a square body and not fifteen acres to be taken off the west end of the S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the N. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$ . Id. A description "twenty acres of the E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the N. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$ " of a certain section is the same as "a strip of land consisting of twenty acres off from the west side of" said section. Glos v. Holmes, 228 Ill. 436, 81 N. E. 1064. "All the property and estate whatsoever and whosoever situated and being of K. and howsoever the same may have been acquired." Lewis v. Kinnaid, 104 Md. 653, 65 A. 365. "One tract containing 320 acres patented by J. H. Durof being made definite.<sup>50</sup> The fact that the description is imperfect will not invalidate a deed if it is sufficient to identify the property.<sup>51</sup> It must specify a grantee<sup>52</sup> competent to take,<sup>53</sup> but a grantee's name may be inserted after delivery.<sup>54</sup> Where father and son have the same name as a grantee in a conveyance, in the absence of other circumstances, the father will be presumed the grantee.<sup>55</sup> Such presumption is rebutted by the fact that the son gave the father a mortgage on the land, which the father accepted and recorded.<sup>56</sup> Where a seal is required it must be affixed,<sup>57</sup> and attestation as prescribed by law is essential.<sup>58</sup> Statutory requirements must be complied with.<sup>59</sup>

Execution and genuineness are questions of fact if denied,<sup>60</sup> and are to be proven in the manner prescribed by law.<sup>61</sup> The execution and delivery of a deed may

Held too indefinite: "Part of the southwest east quarter, containing 31¼ acres." Early & Co. v. Long, 89 Miss. 285, 42 So. 348. A description of a tract by metes and bounds is insufficient as to certain lots unless it appears that the lots are within such description. Phelps v. Nazworthy, 226 Ill. 254, 80 N. E. 756. A description "Beginning at the N. E. side of N's survey, thence to the south line of said survey, containing 400 acres, to run off N's tract and adjoining the west line of B's survey," is void unless the west line of B's survey can be located. Gorham v. Settegast [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 432, 98 S. W. 665. A description as commencing on the northern side of a certain bayou where the eastern line of a survey intersects it is void where the survey does not touch the bayou at such point. Id. A description as 1612 acres of land, being a part of the headright league of a decedent, situated in a certain bayou. Id.

50. Where a description reciting that the land was patented to a certain person is sufficiently definite when read in connection with the patent to show the land conveyed, it is enough. Ball v. Loughridge, 30 Ky. L. R. 1123, 100 S. W. 275. Where the description in a tax deed is so indefinite as to make it impossible to locate the land, the holder of the deed cannot bring to his aid a plat in the auditor's office to which no reference is made in the deed, and such a deed is void for want of certainty. Marmet-Halm Coal & Coke Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., Elec. R. Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 554. One claiming land to be within an exception to a patent has the burden to prove such fact. East Lake Lumber Co. v. East Coast Cedar Co., 142 N. C. 412, 55 S. E. 304. Description of an exception to a patent held not void for uncertainty of identification. Id.

51. Sylvester v. State [Wash.] 91 P. 15.

52. Where the grantor had a sister and daughter of the same name, evidence held to show that the conveyance was made to the sister and not to the daughter. Luty v. Cresta [Cal. App.] 88 P. 642. Evidence sufficient to sustain a finding as to the identity of a grantee. Leidenthal v. Leidenthal, 105 N. Y. S. 807. A deed to Henry S., Frank E., and Chauncey C., Woodworth held to vest a two-thirds interest in two of the grantees. Woodward v. McCollum [N. D.] 111 N. W. 623. Where it is claimed that the grantee in a deed is a fictitious person and the grantor testifies that he lived in a certain locality, persons living in such locality may testify that no such person lived there. Phelps v. Nazworthy, 226 Ill. 254, 80 N. E. 756.

53. Evidence insufficient to show that the beneficiary of a deed of trust was a freed woman so as to be capable of taking as a beneficiary. Wright v. Nona Mills Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 620, 98 S. W. 917. A deed to a church community which was not a corporation, de facto nor de jure, and not stating who constituted the community and under which no possession was ever taken passed no title. Rixford v. Zeigler [Cal.] 88 P. 1092.

54. Where the space for the grantee's name is left blank but the deed is delivered to a person to whom it is intended to pass title, title vests in the person whose name is inserted. Hall v. Kary, 133 Iowa, 465, 110 N. W. 930.

55, 56. Hess v. Stockard, 99 Minn. 504, 109 N. W. 1113.

57. Under Va. Code 1904, p. 1175, a seal is necessary. The mere recital "witness the following signature and seal" is insufficient. Burnette v. Young [Va.] 57 S. E. 641. It may be shown by parol that no seal was affixed to the grantor's signature at the time of execution but that it was added after recordation. Id.

58. Under the Florida statute any attestation clause which clearly denotes that the persons signing were witnesses is sufficient. Richbourg v. Rose [Fla.] 44 So. 69. Attestation held sufficient where the names of two persons were subscribed in the place for witnesses with "Wit." written above them and the testificandum clause is "In witness whereof we have hereunto," etc., other facts showing delivery. Id.

59. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 52, a deed to a homestead not signed by both husband and wife is not valid unless possession is taken thereunder. Venters v. Wickens, 224 Ill. 569, 79 N. E. 946.

60. Evidence as to genuineness of a deed held for the jury. West v. Houston Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 927. Question of forgery of a deed held for the jury. Helm v. Lynchburg Trust & Sav. Bk., 106 Va. 603, 56 S. E. 598.

61. Code 1896, § 1797, expressly provides that the execution of a deed may be proven by the grantor's testimony. Sellers v. Farmer [Ala.] 43 So. 967. Under Revised 1905, § 981, requiring for registration of an ancient deed an affidavit to the effect that be shown by circumstantial evidence.<sup>62</sup> A preponderance of evidence is all that is required.<sup>63</sup> A defective execution may be cured by acknowledgment and delivery.<sup>64</sup>

A conveyance of a future estate need not be limited on a particular estate.<sup>65</sup>

Delivery<sup>66</sup> to the grantee or to some person for him,<sup>67</sup> with intent to pass title,<sup>68</sup> and in such manner as to terminate the grantor's control over the instrument,<sup>69</sup> is essential, and where a grantee obtains possession of the deed wrongfully there is no delivery,<sup>70</sup> unless his act is subsequently ratified.<sup>71</sup> The question of delivery is one affiant believes such deed to be the deed of the grantor named in addition to proof that witnesses were dead, and affidavit that affiant claims title under such deed is insufficient. Allen v. Burch, 142 N. C. 524, 55 S. E. 354. Where a certified copy of a deed is offered in evidence and is met by an affidavit of forgery as prescribed by Civ. Code 1895, § 3628, the party offering the deed has the burden to prove it to be genuine, notwithstanding the fact of recordation or that it appears to be 30 years old. Chatman v. Hodnett, 127 Ga. 360, 56 S. E. 439.

62. Jante v. Culbreth [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 279.

63. A preponderance of evidence is sufficient to establish execution of a deed. Brewer v. Cochran [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1033. Evidence insufficient to show execution. McSurley v. Venters [Ky.] 104 S. W. 365; Burke v. Pence [Mo.] 104 S. W. 23; Dukes v. Davis, 30 Ky. L. R. 1348, 101 S. W. 390. Statement of a witness that there was a deed from the heirs of a certain person was not sufficient proof of execution. Poland v. Porter [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 214. Evidence of a conspiracy of heirs of the grantor to deprive the grantee of the land is admissible as an admission that the deed existed. Chew v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 427. Certain letters, recitals in an ancient deed as well as entries in account books, held admissible on the question of execution of a deed. Brewer v. Cochran [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1033.

64. London v. Crow [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 177.

65. Under Civ. Code, § 767, providing that future estates need not be limited upon precedent estates, a conveyance, to take effect on the grantor's death, and reserving to him the use of the property for life is valid. Ripperdan v. Weldy, 149 Cal. 667, 87 P. 276.

66. See 7 C. L. 1107. Davis v. Robinson, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 90; Drinkwater v. Hollar [Cal. App.] 91 P. 664. Delivery either actual or constructive is essential. Garrett v. Goff, 61 W. Va. 221, 56 S. E. 351. It is incomplete until delivery. Id. There can be no acceptance by the grantee without delivery. Id.

67. Where a father executed a deed to his son but did not deliver it during his lifetime, his wife could not make it effective by signing and delivering it after his death. Jolly v. Graham, 222 Ill. 550, 78 N. E. 919. Where deeds were placed in the hands of a third person to be delivered after the grantor's death and were so delivered, there was a good delivery. Schillinger v. Bawek [Iowa] 112 N. W. 210. Where a sale of land was made through brokers and the owner when he delivered the deed to the brokers instructed them not to deliver it to the grantee until he investigated the value of corporate stock, which was a part of the consideration, but the brokers disregarded his instructions, held no delivery. Drinkwater v. Hollar [Cal. App.] 91 P. 664. Where a deed was executed and delivered to a certain person but before recording the name of the grantee was stricken and the name of his wife inserted without the knowledge of the grantor, held it passed no title to her because there was no delivery nor meeting of minds. Perry v. Hackney, 142 N. C. 368, 55 S. E. 289.

68. Delivery must be made with intent to pass title. Broom v. Herring [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1023. It must appear that the grantor intended to part with title and that he parted with the deed by placing it beyond his control. Central Trust Co. v. Stoddard [Cal. App.] 88 P. 806. Mere delivery is ineffective without intention to pass title. Oswald v. Caldwell, 225 Ill. 224, 80 N. E. 131. Where deeds were executed from wife to husband to take effect only in case he survived her, and shortly prior to the grantor's death she asserted ownership of the property, there was no delivery. Russell v. Mitchell, 223 Ill. 438, 79 N. E. 141. Where a grantor executed certain deeds and deposited them with a third person to be delivered after his death, there was held a delivery. Wells v. Wells [Wis.] 111 N. W. 1111. Evidence sufficient to show that delivery was without the grantor's consent and therefore ineffective. Birdsall v. Leavitt [Utah] 89 P. 397.

69. There is no delivery not in escrow where the instrument is to take effect only upon the happening of a contingency. Russell v. Mitchell, 223 Ill. 438, 79 N. E. 141. Where a deed is delivered by the grantor to a third person to be delivered to the grantee after the grantor's death, and no control over the instrument is reserved, there is delivery. Wilson v. Wilson [Utah.] 89 P. 643. Where a deed is delivered to a third person to be delivered to the grantee after the death of the grantor, who parts with all control over it, the fact that the custodian was to retain possession of the instrument until certain conditions were performed, does not render the delivery ineffective, such conditions being capable of performance during the lifetime of the grantor. Nolan v. Otney [Kan.] 89 P. 690. Where a grantor directed the conveyance to deliver the deeds to the grantee, which was done, the fact that the grantor subsequently had access to it did not render the delivery ineffective. Wilson v. Wilson [Utah] 89 P. 643.

70. Evidence sufficient to show that a grantee obtained possession of the deed wrongfully and without the knowledge of the grantor. Holmes v. Salamanca Gold Min. & Mill. Co. [Cal. App.] 91 P. 160. No delivery where the grantee obtains possession of the deed by fraud. Burns v. Kennedy [Or.] 90 P. 1102.

71. A deed procured without delivery may subsequently be ratified by the grantor.

72. Whether there has been a delivery is a question of fact, depending on the intention of the grantor. Garrett v. Goff, 61 W. Va. 221, 56 S. E. 351. In a controversy between heirs involving delivery of a deed, the defense could show that on the day of decedent's death plaintiff took a package of papers from her trunk. Napier v. Elliott [Ala.] 44 So. 552. Delivery is a question of intention and may be effected by any act or word manifesting an unequivocal intention to surrender the instrument so as to deprive the grantor of all control over it. Sappingfield v. King [Or.] 89 P. 142.

73. In a controversy between heirs involving delivery of a deed, the grantee could show all circumstances attending the execution of the deed. Napier v. Elliott [Ala.] 44 So. 552. Central Trust Co. v. Stoddard [Cal. App.] 88 P. 806.

Evidence of delivery: Declarations of a grantor that he had given his boys the land are admissible as against interest on an issue as to delivery. Chew v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 427. Testimony that a grantor did not deliver a deed is a conclusion. Id. Where a grantor executed a deed and thereafter divided the same land and the grantee sought to probate the will but could not because of a prior will and then recorded the deed, held that the fact that he offered the first will for probate was no evidence of non-delivery. Smithwick v. Moore [N. C.] 58 S. E. 908. Where delivery of a deed from husband to wife was denied, statement of the wife prior to the husband's death that he had given her all his property was admissible though in her own favor. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 286, 98 S. W. 198. Evidence corroborative of her testimony held admissible. Id. While between grantor and grantee the question of delivery is one to be determined by a preponderance of evidence, where rights of third persons have intervened, proof of nondelivery must be clear and convincing. Central Trust Co. v. Stoddard [Cal. App.] 88 P. 806. A prima facie delivery shown by proof of delivery to the agent of the grantee who turns over to the grantor the purchase money may be rebutted by proof that the deed was to have been made to a third person, and as soon as the mistake was discovered it was returned to the grantor for correction. Scarborough v. Holder, 127 Ga. 256, 56 S. E. 293.

74. Delivery may be inferred from the fact of execution and filing in name of the grantee. Cantwell v. Nunn [Wash.] 88 P. 1023.

Held a sufficient delivery: Where a creditor wrote a debtor offering a certain price for land and told him to go to his attorneys and fix it up and he did so, and the deed was placed with the creditor's papers, held a sufficient delivery though the creditor was not notified of the deed. Elliott v. Morris [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 259, 98 S. W. 220. The delivery to a third person with directions to deliver to the grantee after the grantor's death is a valid delivery where the grantor reserves no control over the instrument. Griswold v. Griswold [Ala.] 42 So. 554. Where a mother executed a deed to her 9 year old child reserving a life estate, and the deed is not actually delivered but is retained by the mother until her death, there is sufficient delivery where the circumstances show that the mother intended that title should pass. Pentico v. Hays [Kan.] 88 P. 738. Where a mortgage was executed, placed in a strong box, and the key given to a third person with instructions to get the mortgage and deliver it to the mortgagee, which was done after the mortgagor's death. Booker v. Booker, 104 N. Y. S. 21. Where a grantor handed a deed to the grantee who gave it to a third person who was to keep it and record it after the grantor's death, and it was understood that the grantor was to have a life estate. Ranken v. Donovan, 115 App. Div. 651, 100 N. Y. S. 1049. Where a grantor gave a deed to the grantee's husband and directed him to deliver it to his wife, but the husband placed it among his private papers. Russell v. Mitchell, 223 Ill. 438, 79 N. E. 141. Where husband and wife executed a deed but agreed between themselves that there should be no actual delivery until after the wife's death, of which agreement the grantee had no notice, and the deed was delivered and recorded during the wife's lifetime. Blake v. Ogden, 223 Ill. 204, 79 N. E. 68.

Delivery insufficient: Where a grantor sent a deed to her agent for delivery but prior to delivery the grantee had notice that since the execution of the deed the grantor had changed her mind and directed the agent not to deliver, held the delivery did not execute the sale. Burke-Mobray v. Ellis [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 827, 97 S. W. 321. A grantor executed and recorded a deed to a niece who lived in another state. He remained in possession until he conveyed the premises to a son who took possession. The niece was not under disability and did not know of the deed. Held no delivery. Abrams v. Beale, 224 Ill. 496, 79 N. E. 671. Where a grantor delivered a deed to his son with directions to place them in the grantor's desk and if he died to record them, otherwise to destroy them, there was no delivery. Phelps v. Pratt, 225 Ill. 85, 80 N. E. 69. A deed from wife to husband delivered to him with intention that it should not take effect until after death of wife, and if she survived her husband it was to be destroyed, held not delivered. Elliott v. Murray, 225 Ill. 107, 80 N. E. 77.

Evidence insufficient to show want of delivery. Jolly v. Graham, 222 Ill. 550, 78 N. E. 919; Gleason v. Stonehouse [Mich.] 113 N. W. 315; Leidenthal v. Leidenthal, 105 N. Y. S. 807. Though the deed was recorded. McCune v. Goodwillie, 204 Mo. 306, 102 S. W. 997. Where a corporation authorized execution of a deed and it was executed and the officers retained it in their possession until after the grantee commenced suit, when it was recorded. It did not appear that the grantee paid any part of the consideration or that immediate delivery was intended. Holmes v. Salamanca Gold Min. & Mill. Co. [Cal.] App.] 91 P. 160. Where parents executed a deed to their homestead to their children reserving a life use of the property, but the deed was not delivered during the lifetime of the wife, it was held void. Meikle v. Cloquet [Wash.] 87 P. 841.

Evidence sufficient to show delivery. Broom v. Herring [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1023; Akers v. Shoemaker [Ky.] 102 S. W. 842. Where a father executed a deed to his daughter reserving a life estate and deposited it with a third person to be delivered to the grantee after his death. Young v. McWilliams [Kan.] 89 P. 12. Where a grantor executed and delivered a deed to the grantor's son and told him to return the deed if he did not want it, and several months later wrote the grantee demanding the purchase price. Smith v. Stephens [Ark.] 100 S. W. 78. Where a deed was delivered to one of the grantees with instructions to deliver it to the proper parties after the grantor's death, title passed at the time. Strickland v. Griswold [Ala.] 43 So. 105. An answer denying that a deed was delivered is insufficient to show nondelivery. Gulf Red Cedar Lumber Co. v. Crenshaw, [Ala.] 42 So. 564. Question of evidence held for the jury where a deed was delivered to one of several grantees with instructions to deliver it to the proper parties after the grantor's death. Strickland v. Griswold [Ala.] 43 So. 105.

75. Delivery may be shown by acts of the grantor showing an intention to pass title, and evidence that after the execution of the deed the grantor treated the property as belonging to the grantee. Chew v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 427. Finding of constructive delivery held warranted where the grantee took possession and held the premises for two years, paid taxes and interest, etc., without objection of the grantor. Balin v. Osoba [Kan.] 91 P. 57. Where a grantor places a deed on record with intention to pass title, manual delivery is not essential. Fryer v. Fryer [Neb.] 109 N. W. 175. Acts of grantee showing acceptance coupled with acts of grantor showing delivery. Atkins v. Atkins [Mass.] 80 N. E. 806. Acts of grantee showing acceptance, coupled with a purpose of the grantee to treat the deed as delivered, is sufficient. Creeden v. Mahoney, 193 Mass. 402, 79 N. E. 776.

76. Where a deed is in the hands of the grantee, there is a strong implication of delivery which can be overcome only by clear proof to the contrary. Blake v. Ogden, 223 Ill. 204, 79 N. E. 68. Possession by a grantee is prima facie evidence of delivery. Morton v. Morton [Ark.] 102 S. W. 213. Where a deed duly signed is found in possession of the grantee, satisfactory evidence to overcome presumption of delivery is required.

Central Trust Co. v. Stoddard [Cal. App.] 83 P. 806.

77. Where a deed was found among the grantor's papers after his death and there was testimony that the grantee never saw the deed and the scrivener who drew it stated that he delivered it to the grantor. Evidence held insufficient to show delivery. Ostrom v. De Yoe [Cal. App.] 87 P. 811.

78. While possession is prima facie evidence of delivery, it may be rebutted by evidence that the grantor never made delivery with intent to pass title. Drinkwater v. Hollar [Cal. App.] 91 P. 664. Where a married woman executed deeds to her husband and placed them in a safe deposit vault to which he had access, held that the fact that they were found there after his death was not evidence of delivery. Hamlin v. Hamlin, 51 Misc. 111, 100 N. Y. S. 701. This is especially so where the acts of the husband were consistent with his wife's ownership. Id.

79. McCune v. Goodwillie, 204 Mo. 306, 102 S. W. 997; Smithwick v. Moore [N. C.] 53 S. E. 908; Blake v. Ogden, 223 Ill. 204, 79 N. E. 68. Where a grantor executed and recorded a deed for the purpose of enabling the grantee to execute a mortgage on the premises, which was done, held, though there had been no delivery, the grantor could not invoke. Rev. Laws, c. 127, § 5, providing that recordation shall be conclusive evidence of delivery as to bona fide purchasers. Creeden v. Mahoney, 193 Mass. 402, 79 N. E. 776.

Consideration.<sup>95</sup>—Like other contracts, a deed should be based on a consideration,<sup>96</sup> but a consideration is not essential to validity,<sup>97</sup> and the fact that the consideration fails does not affect the operation of the deed.<sup>98</sup> Adequate consideration is presumed after a long lapse of time.<sup>99</sup> The rule that if any portion of a single consideration is unlawful the contract is void does not apply where the grantor has retained the consideration.<sup>1</sup> The recital of consideration in a deed is not conclusive,<sup>2</sup>

88. The deed must not only pass from the control of the grantor but the grantee must accept it. McCune v. Goodwillie, 204 Mo. 306, 102 S. W. 997.

89. If beneficial to the grantee, acceptance is presumed. McCune v. Goodwillie, 204 Mo. 306, 102 S. W. 997. Infant grantee. Akers v. Shoemaker [Ky.] 102 S. W. 842.

90. Acceptance is shown where the grantee accepted the recording ticket and subsequently accepted and held the deed and expressly claimed title to the land. Hartman v. Thompson, 104 Md. 389, 65 A. 117. The execution by the grantee of a mortgage on the premises is an acceptance. Blackwell v. Blackwell [Mass.] 81 N. E. 910. A grantor was the grantee's general agent and looked after all private papers. He recorded the deed and retained possession of it with other papers of the grantee. Held an acceptance as agent. Id.

94. See Incompetency, 8 C. L. 169. A deed will not be set aside because of incompetency of the grantor until he has been adjudged an incompetent by a court of equity. Smith v. Ryan, 116 App. Div. 397, 101 N. Y. S. 1011.

95. See 7 C. L. 1109.

96. A deed of bargain and sale is effective under the statute of uses and must be based on a consideration. Redmond v. Cass, 226 Ill. 120, 80 N. E. 708.

Consideration held sufficient: Release of a judgment lien is sufficient consideration. Brown Hardware Co. v. Catrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 559. The consideration of love and affection is sufficient to support a deed from a parent to his child. Rittenhouse v. Swango, 20 Ky. L. R. 145, 97 S. W. 743. A preexisting debt. Treseder v. Burgor, 130 Wis. 201, 109 N. W. 957. Services rendered a grantor by his son's wife are a valuable consideration for a deed to the son. Finch v. Green, 225 Ill. 304, 80 N. E. 318. A deed from parent to child based on a consideration of love and affection will not prevail against a prior contract between the parent and a third person based on valuable consideration. Lawson v. Mullinix, 104 Md. 156, 64 A. 938. Where aged persons conveyed to their children in consideration of their maintenance for life, held the children were required to support them though they reserved a house and a portion of the land. Alvey v. Alvey, 30 Ky. L. R. 234, 97 S. W. 1106. Such a conveyance will be rescinded upon the failure of the children to substantially perform the contract. Id.

1. Under Civ. Code, § 1608, providing that where any part of a single consideration for a contract is unlawful the contract is void, does not apply to a grantor who has retained the consideration which was unlawful in part. Ripperdan v. Weldy, 149 Cal. 667, 87 P. 276.

2. The true consideration may be shown by parol. Faust v. Faust, 144 N. C. 383, 57 S. E. 22. Is only prima facie evidence. Morton v. Morton [Ark.] 102 S. W. 213. May be shown by parol or circumstances to be untrue. Crafton v. Inge, 30 Ky. L. R. 313, 98 S. W. 325. In a hypothecary action to enforce a judicial mortgage, parol evidence is not admissible to prove that the purchase price of the property was not paid in cash, as recited in the deed to defendants' author, but that the true consideration was partly cash, a special mortgage held by the purchaser, and his assumpsit of a vendor's lien and mortgage held by a third person. Abbeyville Rice Mill v. Shambaugh, 115 La. 1047, 40 So. 453. Where a deed is delivered and accepted, it is an executed transaction and the consideration may be shown by parol. Blackwell v. Blackwell [Mass.] 81

12. It is presumed that a deed duly executed conveys title and that the grantor had the title he purported to convey. Stetson v. Grant [Me.] 66 A. 480. A grantor in a deed which has been delivered is estopped by his covenants from claiming legal title. Creeden v. Mahoney, 193 Mass. 402, 79 N. E. 776. A clause in a quitclaim deed that the grantor makes no representations as to title is not a disclaimer of title, nor does it show a prior abandonment of the land. State Finance Co. v. Myers [N. D.] 112 N. W. 76.

13. Waldron v. Pigeon Coal Co., 61 W. Va. 280, 56 S. E. 492; McSurley v. Venters [Ky.] 104 S. W. 365. of fact. Williams v. Virginia-Pocahontas Coal Co., 60 W. Va. 239, 53 S. E. 923. The intention must prevail unless contrary to law. Sharp v. Sharp, 148 Mich. 278, 111 N. W. 767. In a suit in equity, where both sides are seeking to quiet title to a strip of land, and the evidence shows that the purpose of the original grantor was to give to his two sons-in-law equal portions of the disputed strip and a line midway of the strip was acquiesced in by them as the dividing line, a decree will be granted making such line the established boundary between subsequent grantees and heirs, notwithstanding an ambiguity in the original deeds gives color to the claim of the plaintiff to a legal title in the whole strip. Challen v. Martin, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 473. A clause near the beginning of a deed reciting a consideration of one dollar and stating that other considerations will be set forth in the deed discloses an intent to make the reservation clause part of the consideration, there being no other provision for the benefit of the grantor. Beverlin v. Castro [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 411. Where the granting clause granted to a woman, "her heirs and assigns," and the habendum was "to have and to hold" to said woman, her heirs and assigns in fee and after her death to such children as she may have, held to convey a life estate to the woman, remainder to her children. Cobb v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co. [Ga.] 58 S. E. 862. Trust deed construed and held to convey legal title in the trustee until death or sale at the request of the grantor, and that it being the trustee's duty to convey on request of the grantor, the statute of uses did not execute the trust. Pope v. Patterson [S. C.] 58 S. E. 945. Equity will not cancel a deed from daughter because it was not signed by the daughter's husband, where it appeared that the mother in fairness should hold the legal title. Laythe v. Cleveland [S. C.] 57 S. E. 33. Where land was conveyed in trust, income to be paid to a beneficiary with right on her part to sell the land at any time, an attempted limitation over after the death of such beneficiary was void for repugnancy and uncertainty. Morgan v. Morgan, 60 W. Va. 327, 55 S. E. 389. Where a deed was executed to one for life, and remainder to his wife if she survived him, otherwise to a corporation which furnished no part of the consideration, such corporation had no interest in the property if the wife was the survivor. Webb's Academy & Home for Shipbuilders v. Hidden, 118 App. Div. 711, 103 N. Y. S. 659. A conveyance in trust to one for life "and after her death to her heirs at law" passes the remainder to heirs in existence at the time of her death and not to those living at the date of the conveyance. Gilliam v. Guaranty Trust Co., 186 N. Y. 127, 78 N. E. 697. Deed construed and held that the word "heirs" therein was a word of purchase and not of limitation, and that certain heirs took a remainder in fee contingent upon their surviving the grantor. Ex parte Porter, 30 Ky. L. R. 118, 97 S. W. 391. A deed from husband to wife conveying a life estate and providing for a reverter to the husband or his heirs, held not to vest an estate in their only child, six years old, and that a deed joined in by both would pass a fee. Due v. Woodward [Ala.] 44 So. 44.

14. The cardinal rule of construction is to ascertain the true intent and purpose of the maker from a consideration of all parts of the instrument and the surrounding circumstances. Aldridge v. Aldridge, 202 Mo. 565, 101 S. W. 42. Where language of a deed is ambiguous and susceptible of more than one meaning, the parties are bound by the sense in which it was mutually used. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428. In a conveyance for the purpose and with a limitation that rock taken by the grantee is to be used by him only and for railroad purposes, and another clause providing for forfeiture if a railroad was not constructed within two years, held that the premises and subsequent clauses were not in irreconcilable conflict, but the latter qualified the former and reserved to grantor a contingent estate. Pavkovich v. So. Pac. R. Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 1097. The deed was not to be construed as giving to grantee the right to remove all the rock he desired with a limitation on the use he might make of it. It is not the law that if it was not the intention of a husband to pass title by a deed to his wife the instrument would not be operative, without regard to the grantee, knowledge of such intent or the recited consideration. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 286, 98 S. W. 198.

15. Union Water Power Co. v. Lewiston, 101 Me. 564, 65 A. 67.

16. All of its parts must be considered and all its provisions made effective if possible. Beverlin v. Casto [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 411.

17. It will not be so construed as to render it a nullity as to any of the parties if by any reasonable construction such result can be avoided. Beverlin v. Casto [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 411.

18. Where a deed given in January recites that it was made in lieu of one for the same property executed the preceding October, and it does not appear that there has been change of consideration or circumstances during the interval, both deeds are to be considered part of the same transaction. Rihner v. Jacobs [Neb.] 113 N. W. 220.

19. Edwards v. Brusha, 18 Okl. 234, 90 P. 727. A description "20 acres off the north end" of a certain tract being all the portion remaining unsold, passes all of such tract, though it contains more than 20 acres. Hornet v. Dumbeck, 39 Ind. App. 482, 78 N. E. 691. The expressions in the deed with reference to payment of a street assessment will be construed in favor of the grantee where of an indefinite character, or where the agreement to pay an assessment is found in a separate clause and not as a part of the purchase price, nor does the language of the warranty that the premises are free and clear of all incumbrances except certain unpaid street assessments impose upon the grantee per se the obligation to pay such assessments. Waldschmidt v. Bowland, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 411. Declarations in the deed relating to annuity, aleatory conditions, and the disposition the vendors proposed to make of the proceeds of sale, do not affect rights of grantee. Rudolf v. Costa [La.] 44 So. 477. It will not be presumed that a grantor executing and recording a deed to enable the grantee to mortgage the premises intended to perpetrate a fraud on the mortgagee, when in fact no title passed, though Rev. Laws, c. 127, § 5, provides that recordation shall be evidence of delivery as to bona fide purchasers. Creeden v. Mahoney, 193 Mass. 402, 79 N. E. 776.

20. Union Water Power Co. v. Lewiston, 101 Me. 564, 65 A. 67. The rule that a deed is to be construed most strongly against the grantor does not prevail where its terms are ambiguous and it appears that the parties used the language in a permissible, but special, sense. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428.

21. In construing an ancient deed, the

The fact that the scrivener who drew the deed was unskilled in such work is to be considered.<sup>23</sup> In case of ambiguity, resort may be had to parol evidence of attending circumstances,<sup>24</sup> but the effect of an unambiguous deed cannot be limited by parol.<sup>25</sup> The practical construction given by the parties is to be considered.<sup>26</sup> The first part of a deed prevails over later portions.<sup>27</sup> The habendum clause may sometimes enlarge the estate in the thing granted but it cannot enlarge the thing itself.<sup>29</sup> Where general words follow particular words, they must be so construed as to limit their meaning to the estate embraced in the latter.<sup>29</sup> The rule that a specific or particular description controls a general one does not apply where it appears that the former is incomplete or defective.<sup>30</sup> A general clause erroneously referring to a particular source of the title of the interests conveyed by the granting clause will not serve to restrict the interests thus conveyed.<sup>31</sup> In case of conflict between the printed and written parts of a deed, the latter is to be given effect.<sup>32</sup> fact that the person who drew it understood the meaning of technical, apt and fitting terms is to be considered. Contemporaneous deeds of like import may also be considered. Hoysrandt v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 151 F. 221. A particular word, phrase or term may express a meaning different from its common meaning when used in instruments concerning a subject-matter in relation to which such different meaning is generally understood and accepted. Union Water Power Co. v. Lewiston, 101 Me. 564, 65 A. 67. The word "quitclaim" in what purports to be a deed is sufficient to pass the interest of the grantor. Barnard v. Duncan [Neb.] 112 N. W. 353.

Covenants<sup>33</sup> are implied from the use of certain words,<sup>34</sup> and are to be so construed as to effectuate the intention of the parties.<sup>35</sup> A covenant is not to be read into a deed,<sup>36</sup> but if expressed is affected by a subsequent exception.<sup>37</sup>

22. Though technical words should ordinarily be given their technical meaning, if such use would be meaningless, any other use in which they may appear to have been employed will be favored. McSurley v. Venters [Ky.] 104 S. W. 365.

23. Where a deed is drawn by one not skilled in such work, greater latitude is permitted and less attention paid to technical words than would otherwise be the case. Miller v. Mowers, 227 Ill. 392, 81 N. E. 420.

24. Negotiations leading up to the execution of the instrument are admissible. McSurley v. Venters [Ky.] 104 S. W. 365. The intention of the parties as gathered from surrounding circumstances existing at the time of execution is to be given effect. Miller v. Mowers, 227 Ill. 392, 81 N. E. 420.

25. Where a deed is unambiguous, its effect cannot be limited by parol. North-eastern Tel. & T. Co. v. Hepburn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 747. Parol evidence is not admissible to show that a deed to the state is upon condition that the property should be used for a capitol building. Sylvester v. State [Wash.] 91 P. 15. In the absence of a plea of fraud or mistake, parol evidence is not admissible to show any other intention of the grantor than that expressed in the deed. McCreary v. Skidmore [Ky.] 99 S. W. 219. Where a deed described certain property, a subsequent clause reciting that it consisted of the grantor's share in an inheritance, which was an erroneous statement of the source of title, did not render the deed ambiguous nor authorize parol evidence to vary the meaning of the terms of the grant. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428. Parol testimony is not competent to alter the terms of warranty in a deed but is competent to show the meaning given by the parties themselves to terms used where such meaning is doubtful. Kitzman v. Carl, 133 Iowa, 340, 110 N. W. 587.

26. Where a deed was to one and her heirs "during her natural lifetime" and was for 26 years treated as passing a life estate only, held to pass a life estate, the word "heirs" not bringing it within the rule in Shelley's Case. Miller v. Mowers, 227 Ill. 392, 81 N. E. 420. A petition by sole heirs of a grantor to set aside a deed will be dismissed where it appears that the grantor left a will devising the same land which has been filed for probate and a caveat filed by the heirs at law and the issue thereby made is still pending in the court of ordinary. Murray v. McGuire [Ga.] 58 S. E. 841.

27. Where the granting clause conveyed property in fee, a provision in the habendum that if the grantee should die without issue and before her husband the property should revert to her husband was void. Carllee v. Ellsberry [Ark.] 101 S. W. 407.

28. Union Water Power Co. v. Lewiston, 101 Me. 564, 65 A. 67.

29. Quitclaim deed construed and held not to pass certain interest in the land owned by the grantor. Dooléy v. Greening, 201 Mo. 343, 100 S. W. 43.

30. Cornett v. Creech, 30 Ky. L. R. 1265, 100 S. W. 1188.

31. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428.

32. Miller v. Mowers, 227 Ill. 392, 81 N. E. 420.

33. See 7 C. L. 1113. See, also, Covenants for Title, 9 C. L. 845.

34. Under Rev. St. 1901, par. 728, a conveyance of a fee in which the word "grant" or "convey" is used impliedly covenants that the estate is free from incumbrances. Sherman v. Goodwin [Ariz.] 89 P. 517.

35. Where a deed contained a stipulation against warranty as to acreage, letters

Designation of parties.<sup>38</sup>—A typographical error in the name of a grantee will be disregarded.<sup>39</sup>

Description of property conveyed.<sup>40</sup>—As a general rule a particular description controls a general one.<sup>41</sup> This rule is limited to the evident subject-matter of the conveyance,<sup>42</sup> and applies where the specific description is unambiguous.<sup>43</sup> A description with reference to other instruments will be construed as embodying such instruments,<sup>44</sup> unless it appears that such reference was only used to designate the source of title.<sup>45</sup> Where two descriptions of the same land are irreconcilable, evidence of extrinsic facts is admissible,<sup>46</sup> and one found not true must be rejected.<sup>47</sup> Neither controls if one is no less certain than the other,<sup>48</sup> and the doctrine of election does not apply where no election has been made.<sup>49</sup> A call omitted by mistake or inadvertence may be supplied.<sup>50</sup> In case of plain mistake a call may be read according to the intention of the parties.<sup>51</sup> Surplusage may be rejected.<sup>52</sup> The description is to be taken most strongly against the grantor,<sup>53</sup> and the intention of the parties effectuated if possible.<sup>54</sup> Parol evidence is admissible to explain a latent ambiguity,<sup>55</sup> from the grantor to his attorney shown to the grantee prior to the execution of the deed were admissible as showing the surrounding circumstances. Latta v. Schuler [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 166. The words "More or less" ordinarily mean that the grantor does not warrant the precise quantity of land named, so that if there is but a reasonable deficit there is no breach of covenant. Kitzman v. Carl, 123 Iowa, 340, 110 N. W. 587.

36. A deed describing the property by metes and bounds and as extending to a 20 foot alley in the rear, held not to constitute a warranty that the alley existed. Fulmer v. Bates [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 900.

37. An exception in the covenant of freedom from incumbrances does not limit the effect or extent of a prior unconditional grant. Martin v. Smith [Me.] 65 A. 257.

38. See 7 C. L. 1113.

39. Where a deed showed on its face that it was made to a male grantee, the fact that it ran to "Elizah" instead of "Elijah" would be presumed a typographical error. Bernheim v. Heyman [Ky.] 104 S. W. 388.

40. See 7 C. L. 1114.

41. Tate v. Betts [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 707.

42. Description is limited. It does not require the inclusion of other matter. Peasley v. Dinsko [Me.] 65 A. 24.

43. Haskell v. Friend [Mass.] 81 N. E. 962.

44. Where land is described as a lot laid off and designated on a certain plat of survey, the plat becomes a part of the deed. Schwalm v. Beardsley, 106 Va. 407, 56 S. E. 135. Where a recorded plat is referred to as related to a matter of description, unless controlled by other facts, it is to be considered as furnishing a true description. Quade v. Pillard [Iowa] 112 N. W. 646.

45. A description "the same deeded to me by B" may only indicate the source of the grantor's title or locate and identify the land; it does not necessarily adopt the boundaries named in the prior deed. Peasley v. Drisko [Me.] 65 A. 24. A deed containing such description and also "meaning and intending to convey meadow land" held to convey meadow land only. Id.

46. Where two descriptions intended to apply to the same land are not reconcilable evidence of extrinsic facts, is admissible to show intention of the parties. Hornet v. Dumbeck, 39 Ind. App. 482, 78 N. E. 691.

47. Where a deed contains two descriptions, one of which when applied to the land is found not true, it must be rejected. Hornet v. Dumbeck, 39 Ind. App. 482, 78 N. E. 691.

48. Where two descriptions are conflicting and one is no less certain and definite than the other, one does not control the other. Hornet v. Dumbeck, 39 Ind. App. 482, 78 N. E. 691.

49. The rule that where two descriptions conflict the grantee may elect does not apply where the grantee has never made an election and neither is more favorable to him than the other. Hornet v. Dumbeck, 39 Ind. App. 482, 78 N. E. 691.

50. Cornett v. Creech, 30 Ky. L. R. 1265, 100 S. W. 1188.

51. "Southeast" read "Southwest." Siedschlag v. Griffin [Wis.] 112 N. W. 18. Where it is claimed that the scrivener who drew the deed made a mistake in describing the property, a recital in a conveyance that the land transferred was deeded to the grantor by a certain person is evidence of the description and intention of the parties. Rankin v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1049.

52. Where there is no patent ambiguity and it appears that land was sold and intended to be conveyed, a false portion of the description should be rejected as surplusage. West v. Houston Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 927.

53. Quade v. Pillard [Iowa] 112 N. W. 646. In a sale of land having so many arpents front by so many in depth, it is presumed that side lines run perpendicular to front lines, and this presumption where it appears that one side line falls perpendicular to the front line. Ramos Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Sanders, 117 La. 615, 42 So. 158.

54. Where the description contained in a deed reads "north with the half section line," the phrase denotes direction and not necessarily that the line intended is identical with the half section line, and the line connecting the corners and not the half section line must be taken as the dividing but not to aid a patent one.<sup>56</sup> The situation of the property and the contemplated use are to be considered.<sup>57</sup>

Quantum of estate conveyed.<sup>58</sup>—A deed is presumed to pass the greatest estate consistent with the terms employed,<sup>59</sup> and where it contains inconsistent provisions it will be held to pass such estate as was intended.<sup>60</sup> The quantum or nature of the estate conveyed is often a matter of intention to be determined by construing the instrument.<sup>61</sup> A deed passes title to all it purports to convey,<sup>62</sup> but conveys no line. Puntt v. Zimmer, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 455. "Containing by estimate" is equivalent to "more or less" where land is described by metes and bounds. Mayer v. Wooten [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 423.

55. Gorham v. Settegast [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 432, 98 S. W. 665. Where adjacent owners give boundary deeds to each other to establish a line and the location of objects called for is necessary to an understanding of the case, testimony of one present when the line was run is admissible. Ball v. Loughridge, 30 Ky. L. R. 1123, 100 S. W. 275.

56. Gorham v. Settegast [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 432, 98 S. W. 665.

57. Deed of milling property construed as to right of flowage conveyed. Grothe v. Lane [Neb.] 110 N. W. 305.

58. See 7 C. L. 1114.

59. The grant of a right to maintain a telephone line over certain premises confers to right to construct a single line of poles with any number of arms thereon. North-eastern Tel. & T. Co. v. Hepburn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 747. A deed of a right of way for a pipe line with right to set up telegraph or telephone line thereon does not confine the right to use the telephone exclusively for purposes of the water plant and pipe line, but it could be used for commercial purposes. Id. Where a deed conveyed certain land reserving certain rights previously granted which had been terminated, held to convey a fee subject only to the possible servitude of the right previously granted. Burlington & C. R. Co. v. Colorado Eastern R. Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 154. A deed from father to son for a nominal consideration of an interest in community lands is prima facie a discharge of the son's community claim. Locust v. Randle, [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 946. Deed by devisees under a will construed and held to pass a fee. Sheppard v. Jones [S. C.] 57 S. E. 841. A clause in a deed from parents to son "the parties of the first part do hereby reserve a lifetime dower and support of one the above land set joint in this deed" secures the grantors' support for life but gives them no estate in the land. Beverlin v. Casto [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 411. A deed to one "for her lifetime and at her decease to her lawful heirs * * * heirs and assigns forever" conveys a fee to the grantee. Poston v. Midland Lumber Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 546. A deed conveying all land between certain streets including specified plats as shown by certain maps, which showed that two of the lots were bounded by a plat of land laid out as an excavated canal, passed title to canal land. In re Canal Place in City of New York, 115 App. Div. 458, 101 N. Y. S. 397.

60. Where a deed contains inconsistent provisions, one indicating that a life estate is granted and one indicating that a fee is conveyed, it will be held to pass such estate as was intended upon a consideration of the entire instrument. Deed construed and held to pass an equitable fee. Morgan v. Morgan, 60 W. Va. 327, 55 S. E. 389.

61. A deed in usual form reciting that the grantor reserved the use of the premises for life and that the deed was not to take effect until his death gave the grantor a life interest and the grantee a remainder. Dudley v. Herring, 30 Ky. L. R. 270, 98 S. W. 289. A deed to husband in trust for his wife for their joint lives, and if she survived him to her in fee, and if she died during coverture, leaving children, to the children, gives the wife an equitable estate for the joint lives of herself and husband with a contingent remainder dependent on her surviving him. Cherry v. Cape Fear Power Co., 142 N. C. 404, 55 S. E. 287. A provision in the deed that the wife could not alienate without the consent of trustee applied to her power to sell her estate and did not indicate an intention to permit her to dispose of a greater estate than she possessed. Id. Where parents conveyed to their children, reserving a life estate, by deed providing that if any of the children should die without heirs of their body the land received should revert to the survivors, held not to create a life estate nor defeasible fee in the children, but to pass the title to any child dying without issue during the lives of the grantors to the survivors. Cosby v. Newby, 30 Ky. L. R. 1375, 101 S. W. 306. A deed to a trustee reserving to the grantor the net profits of the land during life as well as absolute power of disposition, and directing the trustee to convey to such persons as the grantor may designate, and upon his death to convey the residue to certain persons, held the grantor retained an equitable estate in fee. Meyer v. Barnett, 60 W. Va. 467, 56 S. E. 206. Deed to Y "her and her children and her assigns forever," with warranty, Y having had no children, held to convey a conditional fee to Y and a deed from her and her grantee to another passes the fee. Dillard v. Yarbboro [S. C.] 57 S. E. 841. Where land was conveyed to a married woman for life, remainder to her children, at the death of the mother the interest of the children became vested. May v. May, 29 Ky. L. R. 1033, 96 S. W. 840. Where a wife advanced the principal part of the consideration and it was understood that the husband and wife should have a life estate and their child a remainder, and such a deed was delivered but never recorded, a deed made by the grantor to the wife for life, remainder to the child, after the husband's death, should not be set aside, the former deed being lost. Noble v. Noble, 30 Ky. L. R. 629, 99 S. W. 339.

62. Where the granting clause described certain land and continued "and the said party of the second part is hereby granted greater estate than the grantor has,<sup>63</sup> nor no more land<sup>64</sup> nor other interests than it purports to convey,<sup>65</sup> nor does it pass a mere chose in action arising out of the land.<sup>66</sup> It is generally provided by statute that fee tail estates are converted into fee simple<sup>67</sup> or life estates only,<sup>68</sup> but to warrant the application of such statutes the instrument must fall within their terms.<sup>69</sup> Under the rule in Shelley's Case a deed to one for life, remainder to his heirs, creates a fee in the first taken.<sup>70</sup> A warranty deed passes title subsequently acquired by the grantor,<sup>71</sup> but a deed containing no cove-free access to a certain mineral spring," held the grant of access to the spring was as much a part of the deed as if mentioned in the granting clause. An instrument granting "the sole and exclusive right and privilege to operate for all purposes under the franchise" transfers the franchise and not a mere right under it. In re Long Acre Light & Power Co., 117 App. Div. 80, 102 N. Y. S. 242. A deed purporting to convey one-half of a government quarter section of land that has not been previously subdivided by plat or survey or otherwise is operative as a conveyance of a quantitative half of the tract without regard to the rules of the Federal land department with reference to the subdivision of such tracts. Kirkpatrick v. Schaaf [Neb.] 110 N. W. 730. Where from all the circumstances it appears that it was the intention to sell all the property of succession, it will be held to have passed though the description according to plats and maps omitted a portion of it. Chaffe v. Minden Lumber Co., 118 La. 753, 43 So. 397.

63. A deed conveying all the grantor's right, title, and interest is satisfied by a life estate. Rich v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 380.

64. A deed of one-third of a league, the head right of the grantor, does not include any part of a league donated to the grantor by the legislature. Wright v. Nona Mills Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 620, 98 S. W. 917. A deed executed in 1854 of a league and labor of land donated to the grantor for losses suffered during the Mexican invasion does not include a league donated the grantor in 1858 because of wounds received in the service of the republic of Texas. Id. That a grantor was wounded in the service of the Republic of Texas is no evidence that a league of land claimed to have been included in his deed of 1854 then belonged to him by virtue of Laws 1837, p. 93, providing that persons permanently wounded in such service were entitled to land, where the extent of his injuries did not appear. Id.

65. A quitclaim deed by one partner of all interest of the partnership conveys only the interest of the partner who executes the deed. Jackson v. Gunton [Pa.] 67 A. 467. Where one as heir of her father deeded her interest as such heir in certain property the deed did not pass her interest as heir of her mother. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428. Deeds from a person as heir of her parents held not to pass any interest in the lands acquired by her as heir of her brothers and sisters. Id. A deed releasing a railroad company from all claims for damages to property occasioned by construction and operation of its tracks in the street does not release damages caused by surface water flowing onto the premises because of a change of grade. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v.

Smith [Miss.] 43 So. 611. A provision in a deed that it is subject to all railroad rights of way of all railroads "now located over said lands" does not confer rights on a company which was a mere trespasser. Clak v. Wabash R. Co., 132 Iowa, 11, 109 N. W. 309.

66. The right to damages in eminent domain where property is taken for street purposes at once accrues to the owner and does not pass by a deed, though the amount is not ascertained until after the deed is executed. In re Trinity Avenue of New York, 116 App. Div. 252, 101 N. Y. S. 613; Harris v. Kingston Realty Co., 116 App. Div. 704, 101 N. Y. S. 1104; Black v. Skinner Mfg. Co. [Fla.] 43 So. 919.

67. A conveyance from husband to wife "and the heirs of her body begotten by me," creates an estate tail which is by Shannon's Code, § 3673, converted into a fee. Speight v. Askins [Tenn.] 102 S. W. 74.

68. Under a statute converting fees tail into life estates, a deed to one for life remainder to heirs of her body, and she had two children, one who died in infancy and another who survived her, the surviving child took a fee. Dick v. Ricker, 222 Ill. 413, 78 N. E. 823. Under Ky. St., § 2345, providing that where there is a limitation over to bodily heirs or descendants the first taker takes but a life estate, a deed to one for life, remainder to bodily heirs or nearest blood, gives the father but a life estate and his only child could not convey a fee during his father's lifetime. Clubb v. King, 30 Ky. L. R. 830, 99 S. W. 935.

69. Deed from parent to children during their natural lives without power to alienate, remainder to their bodily heirs, held to give the first takers a life estate and not a fee tail which was converted into a fee by Ky. St. § 2343. Jones v. Carlin, 29 Ky. L. R. 1077, 96 S. W. 885.

70. In a deed to a man and wife "for their joint lives and for the life of the survivor of them" and "to their joint heirs," the use of the word "joint" before "heirs" does not render the rule in Shelley's Case inapplicable as designating who is to take after the termination of the life estates. Waller v. Pollitt, 104 Md. 172, 64 A. 1040. A deed showing that the grantor intended that the grantee should hold the legal title with power to convey it after her youngest child should attain the age of 21 years and containing a limitation over, held not within the rule in Shelley's Case, but to give the children a remainder. Berry v. Spivey [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 11, 97 S. W. 511.

71. Under the rule that a conveyance of a fee implies a covenant of freedom from incumbrances, a title procured by the grantor on foreclosure of a mortgage given by them inures to the benefit of their grantee.

nants of warranty does not.<sup>72</sup> A confirmatory deed passes no estate not included in the original.<sup>73</sup> Where a deed contains a void limitation on his power of alienation, the grantee takes a fee.<sup>74</sup> As to whether a deed signed by one not described as grantor passes his estate, there is a conflict of authority.<sup>75</sup> A grantee takes subject to the conditions expressed in the deed.<sup>76</sup> A reference to streets for the purpose of boundary is not a claim of title to the streets.<sup>77</sup> At common law the word "heirs" was necessary in order to pass a fee,<sup>78</sup> but in some states a fee may pass without the use of such term.<sup>79</sup> Words of succession are not necessary to the granting of a fee to the state.<sup>80</sup> In Arkansas a deed to two or more creates a tenancy in common.<sup>81</sup> Parol evidence is not admissible to limit the estate conveyed,<sup>82</sup> but evidence of the conduct of the parties is admissible to show a verbal reservation of a growing crop.<sup>83</sup>

Lowry v. Carter [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 930. A conveyance containing covenants of warranty and against incumbrances estops the grantor from afterward enforcing a mortgage, unless subsequent grantees convey subject to mortgage, thereby setting of one estoppel against another. Tappan v. Huntington, 97 Minn. 31, 106 N. W. 98.

72. Rich v. Victoria Cooper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 380.

73. A quitclaim deed given for the purpose of releasing a vendor's lien, held insufficient to pass title to lots described therein which were not described in the original deed. Sanborn v. Crowds Bros. & Co. [Tex.] 102 S. W. 719. Quitclaim deed discharging a vendor's lien held sufficient to pass title to lots therein described but not described by the first deed. Sanborn v. Crowds Bros. & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 444.

74. Suspending power of alienation for 21 years is void. Booker v. Booker, 104 N. Y. S. 21.

75. The signing of a deed by one who is not mentioned or described in the body of the instrument as a grantor has no effect to convey such party's estate. Jason v. Johnson [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 42. One who signs, seals, and delivers a deed, though not named as grantor, is bound as grantor and the deed conveys his estate. Sterling v. Park [Ga.] 58 S. E. 828.

76. Where one conveyed to a drainage district with condition that the grantee maintain a ditch and levee to protect other lands of the grantor, such deed when accepted becomes a valid contract between the parties, and the grantee takes the land burdened with the provisions of the deed. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Martin, 227 Ill. 260, 81 N. E. 417. Where the grantee failed to perform such conditions and the grantor's remaining land was flooded, he was entitled to damages. Id. One who purchases an equitable fee subject to be divested by the death of the grantor prior to that of the life tenant takes subject to such contingency. Clay v. Chenault, 29 Ky. L. R. 1085, 96 S. W. 1125.

77. Where conveyances of lots on both sides of an abandoned street which had never been opened refer to it and lots are bounded by the center and side of it, such description is for the purposes of boundary only and not a claim of the streets. Lewisoohn v. Lansing Co., 51 Misc. 274, 100 N. Y. S. 1077.

78. No estate of inheritance is created by a deed which mentions heirs only in the warranty clause. Wilson v. Garland [S. C.] 57 S. E. 728.

79. A deed to a grantee "his children and assigns forever" conveys a fee under Rev. St. 1899, § 4590. Tygard v. Hartwell, 204 Mo. 200, 102 S. W. 989. The use of the word "heirs" or other words of perpetuity in a trust deed are not necessary to vest a fee simple title in a trustee where the face of the deed discloses a purpose to grant power of sale to the trustee. Vaughan v. Zitscher, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 90. The omission to name successors in a trust deed is without significance so far as sales by the original trustee are concerned, and should a new trustee be appointed he can be empowered to carry out the purpose of the trust so far as is found necessary. Id.

80. A deed to the Territory of Washington did not require words of succession in order to pass a fee, because it was to the government which has an uninterrupted existence, though the form was changed from territory to state. Sylvester v. State [Wash.] 91 P. 15.

81. Kirby's Dig. § 739, expressly provides that an estate granted to two or more persons is deemed to create a tenancy in common unless expressly declared otherwise. Lester v. Kirtley [Ark.] 104 S. W. 213.

82. When a deed is broad enough to include growing crops, parol evidence is not admissible to deny or contradict its terms. Carter v. Childress [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 714.

83. Where a deed was sufficient to carry title to crops, the fact that the grantee permitted the grantor to cut a crop and then offered to buy it was admissible to explain the conduct of the parties and rebut the grantee's claim to the crop. Carter v. Childress [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 714. Where a deed was broad enough to include a growing crop but the grantee permitted the grantor to cut it and then offered to buy it, whether there was a verbal contract reserving the crop was for the jury. Id.

84. See 7 C. L. 1118.

85. Edwards v. Brusha, 18 Okl. 234, 90 P. 727. A provision in a deed conveying land by metes and bounds, reserving certain strips of land for street purposes, creates a reservation and the fee passes to the grantor. Id. Where a grantor reserved out of a tract conveyed to a cemetery assofrom the operation of the deed some part of the estate which would otherwise pass.<sup>86</sup> A reservation cannot be made to a stranger to the title.<sup>87</sup> A reservation or exception is to be construed in favor of the grantor.<sup>88</sup> An exception which refers to certain conveyances which in fact exist is sufficiently certain.<sup>89</sup>

Conditions and restrictions.<sup>90</sup>—The law favors the present vesting of estates and will lean to a construction which makes a condition subsequent rather than precedent.<sup>91</sup> If the act upon which the estate depends must be performed before the estate can vest, it is a common precedent,<sup>92</sup> but if the performance of the act does not necessarily precede the vesting of title but may accompany or follow it, it is a condition subsequent.<sup>93</sup> Conditions subsequent<sup>94</sup> are not favored<sup>95</sup> and must be created by express terms,<sup>96</sup> and if it is doubtful whether terms used create a condition or covenant, they will be construed as creating the latter.<sup>97</sup> ciation a certain lot for burial purposes, such lot was not a part of his estate subject to partition among his heirs. Sharp v. Sharp, 148 Mich. 278, 111 N. W. 767. Where at the time of execution of a deed all rights of the owner of a ditch across the property had been terminated, a provision reserving such rights was neither an exception nor reservation. Burlington & C. R. Co. v. Colorado Eastern R. Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 154. Exception in a deed held not a reservation to grantor but a disavowal of title to the excepted land. Kran v. Case, 123 Ill. App. 214.

86. Edwards v. Brusha, 18 Okl. 234, 90 P. 727; Spencer v. Wabash R. Co., 132 Iowa, 129, 109 N. W. 453. It differs from a reservation in that the latter creates a new right issuing out of the thing granted which did not exist before as an independent right. Id. A reservation of all standing timber, with a right to remove it within 40 years held an exception of such timber which passed to his heirs and they must remove it within the period prescribed. Williams v. Jones [Wis.] 111 N. W. 505. Where a railroad right of way was excepted, on abandonment of the road, the land reverted to the grantor and not to the grantee. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 133 Iowa, 714, 110 N. W. 1039.

87. Reservation of rent held void. In re Palin [R. I.] 65 A. 282; Brace v. Van Eps [S. D.] 109 N. W. 147; Edwards v. Brusha, 18 Okl. 234, 90 P. 727.

88. Pavkovich v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 1097. An exception of land occupied by a railroad as a right of way, excepts the soil itself and not merely an easement. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 133 Iowa, 714, 110 N. W. 1039. A deed to a tract of land reserving timber held to reserve to the grantor all dead timber suitable for saw-mill purposes, except so much thereof as was necessary for plantation purposes which passed to the grantee. A reservation of a life estate in the grantor does not give him power to sell growing timber. Gulf Red Cedar Lumber Co. v. Crenshaw [Ala.] 42 So. 564.

89. Clause excepting portions of premises conveyed by four certain persons held to include land conveyed by an unrecorded deed. Sanford v. Stilwell, 101 Me. 466, 61 A. 843.

90. See 7 C. L. 1119.

91. Spies v. Arvondale & C. R. Co., 60 W. Va. 389, 55 S. E. 464. A condition in a grant of underlying coal that it should be void unless a railroad was built into the region within five years is a condition subsequent and not precedent. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931.

92. Spies v. Arvondale & C. R. Co., 60 W. Va. 389, 55 S. E. 464. Where a deed was executed to one upon her agreement to pay a certain sum within a certain time, the payment of such sum was not a condition precedent to vesting of title. Mackey v. Kerwin, 222 Ill. 371, 78 N. E. 817.

93. Spies v. Arvondale & C. R. Co., 60 W. Va. 389, 55 S. E. 464.

94. Conveyance construed and held upon condition subsequent that the grantee and his heirs should build and forever maintain a line fence. McCue v. Barrett, 99 Minn. 352, 109 N. W. 594. A conveyance in trust to the use of the preacher who shall preside at a certain church and for no other purpose, the land to revert if otherwise used, is upon condition subsequent. White v. Britton, 75 S. C. 428, 56 S. E. 232. A provision that the grantee should pay a certain annual sum to the grantor for life and on failure to do so the deed should be void held a condition subsequent upon a breach of which title reverted in the grantor free from a mortgage executed by the grantee. Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Hanson [Minn.] 112 N. W. 217.

95. An expressed term will not be held to impart such a condition. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931.

96. A conveyance to a city of land for park purposes on condition that the premises should be held for no other purposes is in trust and not upon condition and may not be recovered on the ground that it was not so used within a reasonable time. Ashuelot Nat. Bank v. Keene [N. H.] 65 A. 826. A provision that upon final abandonment of a right of way over the premises the rights granted should revert to the grantors should be construed as a limitation and not a condition subsequent, and upon happening of the contingency the use of the property vested in the owner of the fee without re-entry. Burlington & Co. R. Co. v. Colorado Eastern R. Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 154.

97. A provision that the grantees shall not permit the property to be used as a cemetery is a covenant and not a condition subsequent. St. Peter's Church v. Bragaw, 144 N. C. 126, 56 S. E. 699. A provision in a deed of a right of way requiring a station house to be erected and all trains stopped at a certain place held a covenant and not a condition. Minard v. Delaware etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 153 F. 578.

but where the intent of the parties is clear, their rights are determined and enforced as in other contracts.<sup>98</sup> Conditions subsequent are to be strictly construed against the grantor,<sup>99</sup> and will not be enforced if in the nature of a penalty<sup>1</sup> without allowing the grantee a reasonable time within which to perform,<sup>2</sup> and nothing will be held to constitute a breach of such condition which is not a clear violation of its terms,<sup>3</sup> a forfeiture for breach of condition subsequent may be waived by acts as well as by express agreement,<sup>4</sup> and where once waived the grantor cannot again take advantage of it.<sup>5</sup> An estate upon condition subsequent is not defeated by mere breach of the condition, but such breach must be followed by re-entry,<sup>6</sup> and re-entry can be made only by the grantor or his privies in blood.<sup>7</sup> The question of method of forfeiture for breach of condition subsequent can be taken advantage of by the grantee only.<sup>8</sup>

Restrictions.<sup>9</sup>

Extinguishment of rights.<sup>10</sup>—Though delivery back of an unrecorded deed does not affect the legal title, yet where it is done with intention that it be destroyed and for the purpose of revesting title, it passes the equitable title.<sup>11</sup>

98. Where a grantee forfeited land by breach of condition subsequent to paying the grantor an annual sum, he could after default and re-entry by the grantor establish a mortgage lien by making payments past due. Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Hansen [Minn.] 112 N. W. 217. Where a state held a deed from a certain person and secured another deed from his heirs reciting that unless the land remain as a capitol site the deed should be void, it is estopped to assert that it holds under different tenure from that expressed in the later deed. Sylvester v. State [Wash.] 91 P. 15. A conveyance on condition subsequent is in legal effect a conveyance of an absolute title with a mortgage back. Ordway v. Farrow, 79 Vt. 192, 64 A. 1116. Where land is conveyed for railroad purposes only the grantor could recover a part of the land abandoned. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Kamper, 88 Miss. 817, 41 So. 513.

99. McCue v. Barrett, 99 Minn. 352, 109 N. W. 594. Provisions for forfeiture for breach of condition are strictly construed and viewed with disfavor. Richter v. Distelhurst, 116 App. Div. 269, 101 N. Y. S. 634.

1. A provision for forfeiture in case of failure to comply with a building restriction is a penalty and is not enforceable. Klasener v. Robinson, 30 Ky. L. R. 1032, 100 S. W. 255.

2. Where a deed is upon condition subsequent that the grantee must remove timber within three years, a forfeiture will not be decreed but the grantee will be allowed a reasonable time to perform after the expiration of the period. Ordway v. Farrow, 79 Vt. 192, 64 A. 1116.

3. Where land was conveyed "for railroad purposes only," the grantor could not have the deed canceled on the ground that it was understood that a main line would be located on the land and it was used for a branch line. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Kamper, 88 Miss. 817, 41 So. 513. A condition in a deed to underlying coal that the grant should be void "if a railroad be not commenced within five years from date" is satisfied by a road constructed close enough to the coal fields to carry the coal to market. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931. A condition subsequent that the land shall be occupied only by the pastor of a certain church is not breached by an offer by one of the trustees, to sell, nor by the fact that it is occupied by the pastor of another church, the church having been attached to another circuit having a parsonage and the occupation being only temporary. White v. Britton, 75 S. C. 428, 56 S. E. 232. A provision that in case the grantees abandoned the property it should revert is not violated by a sale of the property by the grantee. St. Peter's Church v. Bragaw, 144 N. C. 126, 56 S. E. 688. A provision for forfeiture in case a certain class of building is erected on the tract is equivalent to a provision for re-entry by the grantor. Richter v. Distelhurst, 116 App. Div. 269, 101 N. Y. S. 634. A provision for re-entry on breach of condition subsequent must be based on a consideration. Id.

4. Forfeiture for breach of condition subsequent to build and maintain a line fence held waived where it was removed and remained down for 12 years. McCue v. Barrett, 99 Minn. 352, 109 N. W. 594. The right to claim a forfeiture for failure to maintain a school building on certain land is waived where after the school building was removed for seven years the grantor permitted it to be relocated on the land. *Trustees of Common School Dist. § 1. Elements and Indicia of Default (960).
 § 2. Procedure on Default; Taking Judgment (961).

§ 3. Opening Defaults (961). Appeal (963).
 § 4. Operation and Effect of Default and Proof of Damages (963).

§ 1. Elements and indicia of default.<sup>12</sup>—A default is the failure of a party to an action to take some step therein required of law, such as the failure to plead<sup>13</sup> within the statutory time<sup>14</sup> or an extension thereof,<sup>15</sup> in the first instance or after the original pleading has been stricken out.<sup>16</sup> Likewise, the failure to file a pleading<sup>17</sup> or to call the court's attention to a pleading filed,<sup>18</sup> may place a party in default. Before one can be in default, however, he must be under a legal duty to act, hence the court must have acquired jurisdiction<sup>19</sup> by valid process<sup>20</sup> legally served.<sup>21</sup> Where issue has been joined, mere failure to be present at the trial thereof,<sup>22</sup> or to present evidence thereon,<sup>23</sup> does not generally put a party in default, although the contrary is held in New York.<sup>24</sup> A case may be noticed for trial before the expiration of the time within which defendant may amend his answer, and a default

12. See 7 C. L. 1122.

13. Presence of defendant on answer day in court of Coffeyville without answering does not prevent default. Stockman v. Williams [Kan.] 91 P. 64. Where answer is returned under Code Civ. Proc. § 528, because of insufficient verification, defendant has reasonable time to cure defect, and default judgment entered within three hours is premature. Rosenthal v. Cohn, 105 N. Y. S. 943. Where complaint alleges sale which was denied and defendant avers by counterclaim that goods were shipped to be sold on commission and demands judgment for sale price less commissions, complaint puts answer in issue so that plaintiff is not in default. Tillinghast v. Providence Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 268, 55 S. E. 621. Motion for default against defendants for failing to answer within statutory period cannot be sustained where not made until after defendants have filed meritorious motion to make complaint more certain. Washington Dredging & Improvement Co. v. Cannel Coal Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 836.

14. Rule of court of common pleas, adopted under Act April 22, 1889 (P. L. 41), providing that judgment in assumpsit may be entered on failure of defendant to plead within 15 days after return day, etc., held not in conflict with act May 25, 1887 (P. L. 271). Johnson v. Royal Ins. Co. of Liverpool [Pa.] 67 A. 749.

15. Where court permits untimely filing of pleading, default cannot thereafter be entered. Tillinghast v. Providence Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 268, 55 S. E. 621. Where court strikes answer to interrogatories submitted under Ballinger's Ann. Code. St. § 6009, and demands a more specific answer, he should fix time for filing same so as to fix time of default. Lawson v. Black Diamond Coal Min. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 1120.

16. Where answer is stricken out as "sham and unverified" and defendant elects to stand thereon he may be adjudged in default and judgment entered without specific ruling on motion for security for costs. Pilant v. Hirsch & Co. [N. M.] 88 P. 1129.

17. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2999, providing that pleadings subsequent to complaint must be filed with clerk and copy thereof served on adverse party or attorney, service on attorney by leaving copy of demurrer at residence and mailing of original to clerk at time when it could not reach him within time for filing does not prevent default. Cutler v. Haycock [Utah] 90 P. 897.

18. Bartlett v. Jones Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 103 S. W. 705.

19. Where court had jurisdiction of subject-matter and record recited that defendant appeared by counsel and moved to dismiss cause and that default was entered for failure to plead as required by rule, court had prima facie jurisdiction. Everett v. Wilson, 34 Colo. 476, 83 P. 211.

20. Under Sayles' Rev. Civ. St. 1897, art. 1214, requiring citation to command officer to summon the "defendant," citation directing that agent of defendant corporation be summoned is insufficient. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Uecker [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 872. For validity of process, see Process, 8 C. L. 1449.

21. Default judgment against foreign corporation based on service upon one not its agent is void. National Metal Co. v. Greene Consol. Copper Co. [Ariz.] 89 P. 535. For service of process, see Process, 8 C. L. 1449.

22. Leahy v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 304, 13 Det. Leg. N. 158, 107 N. W. 1060. Plaintiff must prove his case. First Nat. Bank v. Sutton Mercantile Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 306. Where defendant filed plea to jurisdiction of court over his person which was denied, judgment entered on trial thereof is not by default. Davis v. Robinson [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 1048.

23. Where contestants of will offer no evidence, there is no default as to them or as to one who could have become party but did not. Seward v. Johnson, 27 R. I. 396, 62 A. 569.

24. Where, on day peremptorily set for trial, court had before it unfinished case and another ready for trial and which was tried, and defendant's counsel was engaged in supreme court, plaintiff should not have been allowed to take an inquest until case was actually called for trial. Pierce, B. & P. Mfg. Co. v. Kleinfeld, 103 N. Y. S. 86.

created thereby stands unless defendant amends.<sup>25</sup> The filing of a pleading after a default has been taken does not affect the same.<sup>26</sup> In Washington a default may be interposed for failure to answer material<sup>27</sup> interrogatories, but not for a failure to produce documents called for.<sup>28</sup> A default judgment, however, cannot be entered unless plaintiff's pleadings authorize a recovery.<sup>29</sup>

26. Code Civ. Proc. § 542, and plaintiff may proceed to inquest. Langer v. Swasey, 54 Misc. 301, 103 N. Y. S. 1086.

27. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 6013, providing for striking of pleading and entry of judgment upon failure of party to answer interrogatories submitted under § 6009, held to apply only to material interrogatories, hence not unconstitutional as taking property without due process of law. (Lawson v. Black Diamond Coal Min. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 1190), and one seeking to have pleadings stricken and default entered must allege and prove materiality of interrogatories (Id.).

28. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 6047, prescribes remedy for failure to produce documents called for, and it is error to strike pleadings and render default under § 6013. Lawson v. Black Diamond Coal Min. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 1120.

29. Complaint alleging that defendant was indebted in specific sum for merchandise sold, that specified sum had been paid, leaving named balance due, and which made a verified account a part of complaint, held sufficient. Poole v. Peoria Cordage Co., 6 Ind. T. 298, 97 S. W. 1015. Allegation that defendants became indebted to plaintiff in certain sum is sufficient averment of indebtedness to sustain default judgment as against objection that it is conclusion of law. Kilillea v. Wilson [Cal. App.] 89 P. 621.

32. Entry "Def't" on judge's docket held sufficient entry of fact that no defense had been filed. Brawner v. Maddox, 1 Ga. App. 332, 58 S. E. 278. Entry of final judgment by clerk of circuit court on appearance day in face of duly filed appearance without prior entry of default is absolutely void. King v. Dekle [Fla.] 43 So. 586.

Williams [Kan.] 91 P. 64. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 5090, providing that in action on contract for recovery of money only plaintiff may file proof of personal service of summons and complaint on defendant, and court "shall" thereupon enter judgment, held not to require immediate entry so that court could not enter default judgment four years after filing of proof. Peirce v. National Bank of Germantown [Wash.] 87 P. 488. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 597, as amended by Laws 1901, p. 86 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 623), and § 826 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 796), where personal service was made more than 30 days before first day of term at which summons was returnable, and, upon change of venue, transcript and papers were filed more than 10 days before opening of term of court to which transferred, judgment rendered at such term was not premature. Davis v. Robinson [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 1048.

34. Recital in decree pro confesso that it was "made known" to register that party personally served was president of defendant corporation, held insufficient as it might have been made known without legal proof. Boyet v. Frankfort Chair Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 546.

35. Where final judgment entered by clerk in action on promissory notes and open account states that plaintiff "produced and filed in this court the original notes of the defendant and his sworn account," etc., it furnishes sufficient statement of the evidence upon which judgment was entered. *Lord v. 39. Opening of default at trial term after defendant conforms to conditions imposed by Civ. Code 1895, § 5072, is discretionary. Brawner v. Maddox, 1 Ga. App. 332, 58 S. E. 278. Held no abuse to open where default occurred through sickness of counsel. Id. Where default is taken off and defendant again defaults, it is not abuse of discretion to deny motion to take off second default. Squier v. Barnes, 193 Mass. 21, 78 N. E. 731.

40. It is not competent to vacate judgment on motion for new trial, so as to allow opening of default on ground that there were no "proceedings taken after default," thus indirectly violating rule 12, subd. b (64 N. W. 4). Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Kent Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 687, 13 Det. Leg. N. 279, 108 N. W. 363.

Procedure.<sup>44</sup>—Application to set aside a default confers jurisdiction.<sup>45</sup> The facts set forth in the return of the officer serving the summons cannot be attacked on a motion to open a default judgment.<sup>46</sup> The answer filed with the application must set forth facts.<sup>47</sup> Showing a full and complete defense to so much of the claim as it is directed against,<sup>48</sup> and it must appear that there is a reasonable probability of establishing such defense on the trial.<sup>49</sup> Fraud need not be directly alleged.<sup>50</sup> The court must pass upon all the consistent grounds of the motion.<sup>51</sup> Where the appli-

41. Right of party under Civ. Code 1895, § 5070, to open default within 30 days by payment of costs cannot be taken away by dating default as of previous term. Currie v. Deaver, 1 Ga. App. 11, 57 S. E. 897. Under Acts 1905, pp. 404, 405, §§ 17, 18, judge of city court of Washington cannot open default after trial term, rules of superior court in respect thereto being inapplicable. Thurmond v. Groves & Co., 126 Ga. 779, 55 S. E. 915. Code Civ. Proc. § 473, authorizing court to vacate default judgment if application is made within reasonable time after entry, in no case extending more than six months, does not prevent denial for untimely application though six months has not elapsed. Smith v. Pelton Water Wheel Co. [Cal.] 90 P. 932, 934, 1135. Where application was not made for four months after counsel had knowledge of judgment and only excuse offered was illness of non-resident counsel and that local counsel thought that appeal from denial of motion for change of venue stayed proceedings, held untimely. Id. Where inquiry of damages is required, office judgment does not become final on last day of succeeding term of court, but defendant may plead at any time before inquiry. Code 1899, c. 125, §§ 46, 47, construed. Philip Carey Mfg. Co. v. Watson, 53 W. Va. 189, 52 S. E. 515; Federation Window Glass Co. v. Cameron Glass Co., 53 W. Va. 477, 52 S. E. 518.

42. Inexcusable failure to employ counsel to enter appearance held no ground for opening default. Benedict v. Hadlow Co. [Fla.] 42 So. 239. Where case in which rule nisi to foreclose mortgage had been granted was taken out of order at first term and rule absolute granted for lack of answer, motion to reinstate and for leave to file defense held properly granted on showing of meritorious defense, and that it would have been filed in due time if case had been taken up in order. Nays v. Harkness, 127 Ga. 182, 56 S. E. 291. Where answer discloses meritorious defense and there is reasonable excuse for delay resulting in default, default should be opened where no prejudice has resulted to plaintiff. Barrie v. Northern Assur. Co., 99 Minn. 272, 109 N. W. 248. Where it was agreed between counsel that it would be all right for defendant's counsel to take a particular train to place of trial, and plaintiff's attorney failed to advise court of situation although train was due soon, default should be opened. Id. For the power of a court to open and the grounds for opening a default judgment, see Judgments, § C. 43. Court may impose costs as condition of opening default even as against a poor litigant. Cohen v. Meryesh, 48 Misc. 628, 96 N. Y. S. 264. Where default judgment is entered notwithstanding affidavit of engagement entitling defendant to adjournment as matter of right, must be opened unconditionally. Dorfman v. Hirschfield, 53 Misc. 538, 103 N. Y. S. 698. Where defendant has been in default for 56 days, it is not abuse of discretion to grant leave to answer to merits only, refusing to allow plea that plaintiff, a foreign corporation, had not complied with § 39, c. 23, Gen. St. 1901. Kansas Torpedo Co. v. Erie Petroleum Co. [Kan.] 89 P. 913.

44. See 7 C. L. 1126.

45. Motion to set aside default for lack of service should not be denied on ground that no default exists, since motion confers jurisdiction. Waldman v. Mann, 101 N. Y. S. 757.

46. Especially those facts which it was officer's duty to set forth and where return is sufficient on its face. Talbott v. Southern Oil Co., 60 W. Va. 423, 55 S. E. 1009.

47. In motion to set aside default judgment in action to quiet title, applicant must set forth facts upon which he relies, and answer denying allegation of plaintiff's petition is insufficient. Peterson v. Plunkett [Cal. App.] 88 P. 283.

48. Need not cover entire claim. Williams v. Kiowa County Com'rs, 74 Kan. 693, 88 P. 70. Defendant's claim must appear from answer and whole case to be meritorious. Kremer v. Sponholz, 129 Wis. 549, 109 N. W. 527. Although affidavits filed are insufficient as affidavits of merit, answer denying all material allegations of complaint is sufficient. Montijo v. Robert Sherer & Co. [Cal. App.] 91 P. 261. Where evidence on cause of defendant's default is conflicting, issue should not be decided upon affidavits but opened on proper terms. Monroe Bank v. Lichtenstein, 96 N. Y. S. 260.

49. Truth of allegations of proposed answer may be tested by proofs produced on motion as to probability that claim can be established on trial. Kremer v. Sponholz, 129 Wis. 549, 109 N. W. 527. Allegations of answer and facts of case held so inconsistent as to authorize court to refuse to open judgment because of improbability of defendant's ability to establish claim. Id.

50. Complaint to vacate judgment alleging willful disregard of court rule in setting case for trial without notice, whereby complainant was prejudiced, held sufficient though not directly alleging fraud. Riddle v. Quinn [Utah] 90 P. 893.

51. Where defendant moved to open judgment by default on ground that summons was not personally served and also under Code Civ. Proc. § 195, finding of due service does not render statutory provision inapplicable so as to dispose thereof. Vander Veen v. Wheeler [S. C.] 56 S. E. 679.

§ 2. Procedure to obtain deposition.<sup>81</sup>—Usually, but not always,<sup>82</sup> it is neces-

71. See 7 C. L. 1129.

72. Gardner v. Roycrofters, 103 N. Y. S. 637.

73. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 887, such commission may issue in proper case. Oakes v. Riter, 118 App. Div. 772, 103 N. Y. S. 849. See, also, Discovery and Inspection, 7 C. L. 1167.

74. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 887, 888, a commission to take testimony of nonresident witnesses upon written interrogatories will issue where an issue of fact has been joined in action pending in court of record and the testimony is material to applicant in the prosecution or defense thereof. Oakes v. Riter, 118 App. Div. 772, 103 N. Y. S. 849; Tirpak v. Hoe, 53 Misc. 529, 103 N. Y. S. 798; Cullinan v. Dwight, 51 Misc. 221, 100 N. Y. S. 896; Gardner v. Roycrofters, 103 N. Y. S. 637. An application cannot be granted under this statute to take testimony of witnesses material to a motion yet to be made to punish for contempt, upon which no issues have been joined. Gardner v. Roycrofters, 103 N. Y. S. 637. Nor can such an application be granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 894, authorizing an open commission where the testimony is "material and necessary in the prosecution or defense of the action." Id. A reference by agreement, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2718, of a disputed claim against an estate is an action in the supreme court in which an issue of fact has been joined, within the meaning of § 893, authorizing in such case the issuance of a commission to take depositions of witness without the state upon oral questions. Deery v. Byrne, 104 N. Y. S. 836.

75. Rule 7, § 4, of the rules of the circuit court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, providing for taking of depositions on rules to show cause, is valid and does not conflict with any federal statute or any state note adopted by the Conformity act. Despeaux v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 147 F. 926.

76. Section 889, Code Civ. Proc., requiring issuance of commission to take testimony upon written interrogatories upon satisfactory proof of the facts authorizing its issuance under §§ 887, 888, is mandatory in the absence of bad faith. Oakes v. Riter, 118 App. Div. 772, 103 N. Y. S. 849. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 2878 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1660), commission to take testimony of nonresident witness issues as a matter of right. Hendricks v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 675.

77. So held upon motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 885, to obtain depositions to be used upon motion for new trial. Davis v. William Rosenzweig Realty Operating Co., 53 Misc. 1, 102 N. Y. S. 868. But it was held proper under this statute to grant such motion where witness refused to verify proposed affidavit on ground that he had no knowledge of the matters therein contained, but, nevertheless, refused to make any affidavit himself. Id.

78. Evidence sought from employes of defendant, a manufacturer, in regard to formula of preparation sold as a medicine. Cullinan v. Dwight, 51 Misc. 221, 100 N. Y. S. 896.

79. Code Civ. Proc. § 870. Hallenberg v. Greene, 105 N. Y. S. 664.

80. Smith v. International Mercantile Co., 154 F. 786. The Act Cong. March 9, 1892, c. 14, 27 Stat. 7 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 664), did not enlarge the power of the Federal courts in this respect. Id. The depositions authorized by P. L. N. J. 1903, p. 537, § 140, cannot be taken in cases in Federal courts sitting in New Jersey. Id.

81. See 7 C. L. 1130.

82. Under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 35, §§ 16-18, it is not necessary in order to take sary in order to take depositions that a commission should be issued by the court. The commission is issued upon motion accompanied by affidavit showing the facts necessary to authorize its issuance.<sup>83</sup> The affidavit used on a motion for a commission to examine a nonresident witness need not set out the exact place of his residence.<sup>84</sup> The class of commission to be issued to take the testimony of a witness without the state must rest in judicial discretion, to be exercised according to the particular facts presented.<sup>85</sup> An oral examination is permitted only when very strong and special reasons therefor are shown to exist.<sup>86</sup> Upon granting an open commission to examine witnesses in a remote jurisdiction, defendants may be given the option, either to prepare their cross interrogatories after the direct testimony has been returned, or at that time to elect orally to cross-examine the witnesses.<sup>87</sup> As a condition precedent to granting an open commission, the court may require the moving party to pay a reasonable amount for the expenses that it will entail upon the adverse party.<sup>88</sup> In a case where the adverse party cannot be thus protected, an open commission will not be granted.<sup>89</sup> Interrogatories must be framed in compliance with statutory requirements.<sup>90</sup> Motion for commission may be barred by laches.<sup>91</sup> Unless applicant has been guilty of laches or bad faith, it is customary to grant a reasonable stay with the order for a commission.<sup>92</sup> The issuance of a commission may be waived.<sup>93</sup> depositions of nonresident witnesses not parties, in court of equity, that a commission should be issued from court. Such depositions may be taken on notice to opposite party. Clark v. Callahan [Md.] 66 A. 618.

83. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 889, moving papers must set up necessary facts authorizing issuance of commission as prescribed in §§ 887, 888. Oakes v. Riter, 118 App. Div. 772, 103 N. Y. S. 849. Affidavit accompanying motion for commission to take testimony of witness absent from state held to comply with rule 82, general rules of practice, which requires that "the affidavit shall specify the facts and circumstances which show, in conformity with subdivision 4 of section 872, that the examination of the person is material and necessary." Moriarta v. Raymond, 105 N. Y. S. 973. Affidavit averring facts sufficient with reference to merits of action and materiality of evidence sought under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 888, 894. Cullinan v. Dwight, 51 Misc. 221, 100 N. Y. S. 896. Under the New York statutes, where affidavit accompanying motion for commission to take testimony of witness absent from state names the person from whom information as to the facts to which the absent witness would testify was obtained, an affidavit of such person need not be attached to the moving papers or its absence accounted for. Moriarta v. Raymond, 105 N. Y. S. 973.

84. Tirpak v. Hoe, 53 Misc. 529, 103 N. Y. S. 798. It need not give the name of the street or the number at which he resides. Id.

85. Deery v. Byrne, 104 N. Y. S. 836.

86. No such reason shown in this case. Depue v. Depue, 115 App. Div. 466, 101 N. Y. S. 412. Commission to take testimony on oral questions will not be granted if moving affidavits fail to state good reasons or necessity for putting either party to expense incident thereto. Mark v. Fox, 102 N. Y. S. 464. Facts warranting issuance of commission to take depositions upon oral questions. Deery v. Byrne, 104 N. Y. S. 836. Facts not warranting grant of open commission. Cullinan v. Dwight, 51 Misc. 221, 100 N. Y. S. 896.

87. Maryland Trust Co. v. Kirby Lumber Co., 149 F. 443. In latter event witnesses must be produced for cross-examination on reasonable notice. Id.

88. Deery v. Byrne, 104 N. Y. S. 836.

89. Where proponent of a will applied for and was granted an open commission to take testimony in England, the court holding that it was without power to grant an allowance asked by the special guardian of an infant heir opposing probate, to cover expenses that such commission would entail, order for allowance of open commission was vacated and closed commission issued. In re Sentell's Estate, 53 Misc. 165, 104 N. Y. S. 477.

90. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 912, interrogatories to witnesses in a foreign country may be framed both in English and in the foreign language where it appears by the attorney's affidavit that he is informed by his clients, who have seen the witnesses, that they do not speak nor understand English. Roth v. Mautner, 115 App. Div. 148, 100 N. Y. S. 707.

91. Not so barred where facts were discovered several months before motion but were not made known to movant's attorney because their importance was not appreciated, there being no delay after attorney learned them. Davis v. William Rosenzweig Realty Operating Co., 53 Misc. 1, 102 N. Y. S. 868. Though defendant is tardy in moving for commission to take deposition of nonresident witness, if motion is made before cause appears on day calendar for trial, and there is nothing to indicate that plaintiff has been prejudiced by the delay, the motion will not be denied on ground of laches. Tirpak v. Hoe, 53 Misc. 529, 103 N. Y. S. 798.

92. Held in view of nature of case applicants not shown to have been guilty of such

§ 3. Taking the testimony or evidence adduced. Officers authorized to take.<sup>94</sup> In New York an order for a commission to take testimony of nonresident witnesses upon interrogatories, must name the person to whom it is issued.<sup>95</sup> Depositions taken by a referee appointed by consent of the parties will not be excluded because such referee is not a notary public as is stated in the order appointing him.<sup>96</sup>

Notice of hearing and attendance of witness.<sup>97</sup>—Notice of the taking of testimony is generally required to be given to the opposite party.<sup>98</sup> It must be served on such party or his counsel,<sup>99</sup> must state the time and place of taking the depositions,<sup>1</sup> and give the names of the witnesses proposed to be examined;<sup>2</sup> but it need not, in the absence of express statutory requirement, state that the person proposed to be examined is a material witness and a nonresident.<sup>3</sup> Defects in notice may be waived.<sup>4</sup> In the absence of objection the time for taking depositions may be postponed to a time later than that fixed by the notice.<sup>5</sup>

Proceedings at hearing.<sup>6</sup>—The authority to take depositions can only be exercised in pursuance of the notice given.<sup>7</sup> The testimony must be taken in proper form,<sup>8</sup> and the statutory requirements in that regard must be complied with.<sup>9</sup> The form in which the answers shall be made is sometimes controlled by stipulation of counsel.<sup>10</sup> In the absence of restriction a full examination of the witness may be laches as to have acted in bad faith. Roth v. Mautner, 115 App. Div. 148, 100 N. Y. S. 707.

93. It is waived where adverse party receives notices that depositions are to be taken and appears at the times and places designated and cross-examines witnesses without objecting that no commission had issued. Bishop v. Hilliard, 227 Ill. 382, 81 N. E. 403.

of Revised Evidence Act (Laws 1900, P. L. p. 362). Ferguson v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 67 A. 602.

4. Objection that notice was that depositions would be taken at the same time in two different places is waived if counsel of party notified appears at one of such places and cross-examines witness without objecting to notice. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613.

5. In this case due notice was given defendants of the time of taking, and on the day specified an agent of theirs attended before the notary and made no objection to postponement. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 847, 96 S. W. 1087.

8. Testimony de bene esse may be taken in typewriting. Edgefield Mfg. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. [S. C.] 58 S. E. 969. Evidence is not in proper form where witness in answer to interrogatories stated that her recollection was refreshed from a copy of stenographic notes taken by her and that she believed the copy to be correct, and then endorsed the several pages which were certified by the commissioner as exhibits. In re Tift's Will, 115 App. Div. 915, 101 N. Y. S. 1072.

9. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 2878 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1660), and § 2882 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1661), deposition of nonresident witness need not be taken on interrogatories but may be taken in narrative form. Hendricks v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 675. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 380, a deposition must be reduced to writing in presence of officer taking same, either by officer, witness, or some disinterested person. American Bonding Co. v. Pulver [Neb.] 109 N. W. 156.

10. Where counsel agreed that any disinterested party might act as sole commissioner but that answers must be written by witness personally, the stipulation is complied with when witness dictates his answer to another who writes them out on a type-had.<sup>11</sup> In taking the testimony of a witness by virtue of notice given agreeably to the New Jersey statute,<sup>12</sup> strict rules of cross-examination do not apply.<sup>13</sup> It is too late after witness is sworn to object to the production by him of a letter and to questions concerning it, on the ground that it is a privileged communication, where the order for the deposition directed the production of the letter and no appeal was taken therefrom.<sup>14</sup> Objection to the manner in which the oath is administered may be waived.<sup>15</sup> If for any reason the taxing of depositions is adjourned to the following day, the cause therefor should be noted by the commissions.<sup>16</sup>

Cost of taking and transcribing.—The compensation to be paid for taking a deposition and transcribing it from shorthand is determined by statute.<sup>17</sup>

§ 5. Suppression of objections before trial.<sup>22</sup>—For formal defects objection must be made by motion to suppress the deposition.<sup>23</sup> Motion to suppress must be made before trial,<sup>24</sup> and greater promptness is sometimes required.<sup>25</sup> It is ground for suppression that the adverse party was not notified of the time and place of taking writer and then, being sworn and having answers read to him, witness signs same. Glenn v. Zenovitch [Ga.] 53 S. E. 26.

11. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 885, where an order directing the taking of a deposition does not limit its scope, a full examination of the witness may be had. Bankers' Money Order Ass'n v. Nachod, 105 N. Y. S. 773.

17. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 1741, and act of March 26, 1904 (Acts 1904, p. 298, c. 121), when by consent of parties a deposition is taken in shorthand, the officer for transcribing it is entitled to the fees fixed by latter act in addition to per diem compensation allowed by former. Reuscher v. Attorney General, 30 Ky. L. R. 109, 97 S. W. 397; Co-Op. Mfg. Produce & Home Co. v. Rusche, 30 Ky. L. R. 790, 99 S. W. 677.

32. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 5668, objection that an interrogatory is misleading will not be considered if not made and filed with the interrogatories before the issuing of the commission. Gress Bros. v. Berry Bros. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 384. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2289, objection to the form of answer to interrogatory must be made and acted upon at the first term after the deposition is filed. Borden v. Le Tulle Mercantile Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 123. That officer taking deposition did not give the parties at least five days' notice in writing of time and place of taking, as required by Act 1905, p. 107, c. 76, art. 2282, is not ground for suppression at any time after filing, under art. 2284, but such objection is governed by art. 2289. *El Paso & S. 35. Plaintiff may read in evidence a deposition taken by defendant. Chesapeake Stone Co. v. Fossett, 30 Ky. L. R. 1175, 100 S. W. 825.

36. Under Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 1363, a deposition and exhibit thereto attached when properly identified by deponent may, when material to the case, be given in evidence by the party not taking the deposition. Keller v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 111 N. W. 384.

37. Such a deposition is admissible though not filed in the present action previous to trial, where counsel for party objecting to its admission was present when it was taken and cross-examined the witness, it not being shown that any prejudice resulted from failure to file it. Rev. Code Proc. § 519. Edwards v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 110 N. W. 822.

38. In suit for libel where parties stipulate that depositions taken in another case may be admitted in evidence, such depositions will be admitted for the purpose of showing absence of malice, although they constitute evidence of facts relating to plaintiff unknown to defendant at the time of publication of the libel. Butler v. Gazette Co., 104 N. Y. S. 637.

39. Southern Bk. v. Nichols, 202 Mo. 309, 100 S. W. 613. But the party making the admission is entitled to have so much of the deposition read as bears upon the question in regard to which he has been interrogated. Id.

40. Answers to interrogatories are not admissible in evidence unless it appears that notice of intention to take testimony was given to opposite party or his counsel in manner prescribed by law, or that such notice was waived. Wright v. Sparks, 127 Ga. 365, 56 S. E. 442. A deposition is properly excluded if the name of the witness was not inserted in the notice of the names of the witnesses proposed to be examined. Hartman v. Thompson, 104 Md. 389, 65 A. 117. But a deposition will not be excluded on ground that it was taken without notice if introduction of a deposition must be laid.<sup>41</sup> That testimony is contained in a deposition does not give it additional credence.<sup>42</sup> In Kentucky a party is not concluded by a deposition read by him in evidence, but may contradict it by other testimony.<sup>43</sup>

Objections.<sup>44</sup>—The objection that evidence in a deposition is incompetent is properly made when such evidence is offered at the trial.<sup>45</sup> but objections not going to the competency of the testimony or of the witness are generally required to be made before trial, and come too late when the deposition is offered in evidence.<sup>46</sup> That an interrogatory was not correctly propounded by the commissioner will not necessarily preclude the admission in evidence of such interrogatory and the answer thereto.<sup>47</sup> An answer not responsive to the interrogatory propounded should be excluded.<sup>48</sup> The rules applicable to the admission of evidence and the examination of witnesses apply to testimony in a deposition.<sup>49</sup> Where a deposition was taken before notary certifies that it was taken before him pursuant to notice attached, and no exceptions are taken to insufficiency of notice. Helm v. Lynchburg Trust & Sav. Bk., 106 Va. 603, 56 S. E. 598.

41. Rev. St. 1899, c. 18, § 2904 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1669), providing that facts authorizing reading of deposition may be established by testimony of deposing witness or officer taking same, does not exclude resort to other sources to lay proper foundation for introduction of deposition. Doyle v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 598. Rev. St. 1899, c. 18, § 2904 (Ann. St. 1906, p. 1669), does not require as prerequisite to introduction of deposition that deposing judge, lawyer, or physician shall have been summoned as a witness. If deponent be a physician or lawyer, it only requires that he shall be engaged in discharge of professional duties at time of trial. Id. Under the Illinois statute it is not essential to use a deposition as evidence that it should be accompanied by certificate of official character of officer taking it, but such certificate may be produced at hearing and official character of such officer then established. Bishop v. Hilliard, 227 Ill. 382, 81 N. E. 403. Under Kirby's Dig. §§ 3157, 3158, if a deposition discloses that witness was a resident of another state, and he is not in attendance upon the court, the deposition is admissible. Hayes v. Brandt, 80 Ark. 592, 98 S. W. 368.

Overruling motion, presented after jury is sworn, to suppress depositions on ground that evidence is incompetent and hearsay, and reserving ruling on evidence until it is offered on the trial, is not erroneous. Hilt v. Griffin [Kan.] 90 P. 808. Under Civ. Code § 587, subsec. 2, objections to competency of witness or relevancy or competency of testimony may be taken at any time before or during trial. Robertson v. Sebastian, 30 Ky. L. R. 883, 99 S. W. 933.

143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613. Deposition will not be excluded on ground that it was not filed in time, if it was filed two months before entry of decree, and no exceptions were taken to time of filing. Helm v. Lynchburg Trust & Sav. Bk., 106 Va. 603, 56 S. E. 598. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2289, the general rule is that all objections to the position of a witness, except such as challenge the admissibility of the testimony because of its intrinsic character, or on account of incompetency of the witness, must be made before trial. Ellis v. Lewis [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 189. In Alabama, where interrogatories are filed and no objections are filed to them, if the depositions given in answer are responsive thereto and material to the issues, objection to them at the trial is too late. Mississippi Lumber Co. v. Smith & Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 475. Objection to deposition on ground that evidence is secondary made after trial has begun and when deposition is being read to jury is too late. Id.

47. Interrogatory propounded was whether witness had received from defendant letter with relation to termination of lease "dated May 28, 1904, or thereabouts," and as propounded by commissioner was whether witness had received such letter "dated May 24, 1904, or thereabouts." It was held refusal to strike out interrogatory and answer was not error. Crawford v. Kline [N. J. Law] 65 A. 441.

48. Answer not responsive to cross interrogatory. Central Tex. Grocery Co. v. Globe Tobacco Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1144. An answer to a general and final interrogatory should be excluded when it contains material and important testimony of a fact of which opposite party was not put on notice, either by the question embraced in the particular interrogatory or when taken in connection with preceding interrogatories. Taylor v. Globe Refinery Co., 127 Ga. 138, 56 S. E. 292. But in Alabama it is held that even if answers to interrogatories are not responsive the objection cannot prevail when made for first time during trial. Mississippi Lumber Co. v. Smith & Co. [Ala.] 44 So. 475.

49. Immaterial and irrelevant testimony inadmissible. Short v. Frink [Cal.] 90 P. 200.

Leading questions: The rule that the allowance of leading questions is largely within the discretion of the trial court applies to depositions. Breiner v. Nugent [Iowa] 111 N. W. 446; Gress & Co. v. Berry Bros. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 384. Interrogatory held the trial judge who ruled on the objections when made and allowed exceptions, it is not necessary to renew such exceptions at the trial.<sup>50</sup> Objections to a deposition must be specific if any part thereof is admissible in any view of the case.<sup>51</sup> In Texas an objection to the form and manner of taking a deposition can be considered only when presented in writing.<sup>52</sup> Objection to testimony in a deposition may be waived.<sup>53</sup>

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION.

§ 1. Law Governing Descent (970).

§ 2. Persons Entitled to Share or Inherit (970).

§ 3. Inheritable and Distributable Property (971).

§ 4. Course of Descent and Distribution (972).

§ 5. Quantity of Estate or Share Acquired (973).

§ 6. Husband or Wife as Heir (973).

The descent of realty is governed by the law of its situs.<sup>58</sup>

§ 2. Persons entitled to share or inherit.<sup>59</sup>—One claiming title to land by collateral descent must establish all the different links in the chain of descent from the former owner to himself, together with the extinction of all lines which could claim any preference to him.<sup>60</sup> not leading. Gress Co. v. Berry Bros. [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 384.

Plaintiff disqualified from testifying after defendant's death: Plaintiff gave notice to take depositions and defendant's deposition was taken on plaintiff's behalf. Subsequently plaintiff was introduced as a witness in his own behalf and, pending his examination in chief, defendant died. Plaintiff's examination was thereafter resumed and his deposition taken over objection of administrator. It was held that after defendant's death plaintiff was disqualified from testifying by Code 1904, § 3346. Puckett v. Mullins Admr, 106 Va. 248, 55 S. E. 676.

Where strict rules of cross-examination not applicable: When by consent there is read, at the trial of one action, the testimony of a witness out of the state, taken originally in another action, the propriety of a question and answer, part of the cross-examination in such other action but really part of the examination in chief in the latter action is not tested by the strict rules of cross-examination. *Crosby v. The party objecting must specify each question or answer upon which he desires a ruling, and the particular grounds of his objection, unless he objects to the admissibility of the deposition as a whole, in which case he should specify his grounds therefor. Id. A general exception to each and every question and answer in a deposition, without specifying the objection, is too broad to raise the question of error in admitting a single answer alleged to be hearsay. Jarvis v. Andrews, 80 Ark. 277, 96 S. W. 1064. But if on the face of a question in a deposition there appears no purpose for which the evidence asked could be admissible, a general objection of irrelevancy, incompetency, and immateriality is sufficient. Short v. Frink [Cal.] 90 P. 200. A motion to strike out the testimony after it is read is not essential in such case. Id. But such motion is essential where it is not apparent from the question that the response would be inadmissible. Id.

One becomes an heir only on the death of his ancestor,<sup>61</sup> and the heirs at law and next of kin to whom the estate of an intestate passes are to be determined as of that date.<sup>62</sup>

The right of aliens,<sup>63</sup> adopted children,<sup>64</sup> bastards,<sup>65</sup> and Indians<sup>66</sup> to inherit, and of others to inherit from them, is fully treated elsewhere. Posthumous children ordinarily inherit in like manner as if they had been born during the lifetime of the intestate and had survived him.<sup>67</sup> By statute in many states the posthumous and pretermitted children of one dying testate are entitled to the same shares they would have taken had the parent died intestate.<sup>68</sup>

The title to lands or any interest therein ordinarily vests in the heir, and the title to personalty in the administrator, immediately upon the death of the ancestor.<sup>76</sup> The character of the estate cast upon the heir is the same as that held by the ancestor.<sup>77</sup> He takes it subject to all existing liens and charges,<sup>78</sup> and subject to the payment of the ancestor's debts.<sup>79</sup> He cannot ordinarily be heard to allege the turpitude of the person under whom he claims, nor to assert any claim which the latter would be estopped to assert.<sup>80</sup> A forced heir under the civil law may, however, attack the alleged illegal, fraudulent, or simulated conveyances of the person to whom he occupies that relation to the extent necessary to protect his legitime.<sup>81</sup> An ancestor's warranty can only be enforced against his heirs to the extent of the land acquired by them by descent.<sup>82</sup>

§ 4. Course of descent and distribution.<sup>83</sup>—A sister inherits immediately from her brother and not mediately through the father.<sup>84</sup> Children of different marriages ordinarily share equally in the estate of their common parent.<sup>85</sup> Brothers and sisters of the full blood generally take to the exclusion of those of the half blood.<sup>86</sup> Where the heir is a married woman at the time of descent cast, the whole of the estate goes to her, her husband's interest in it being carved out of her estate after it has vested in her.<sup>87</sup> Brothers and sisters, by renouncing in favor of their mother the succession of a deceased brother, do not estop themselves to contest the right of persons claiming as children of such deceased brother to share in the mother's estate.<sup>88</sup>

In New York, if there is no widow and no children, and no representatives of a child, the whole surplus of the personalty goes to the next of kin in equal degree to the deceased and their legal representatives.<sup>89</sup> If the surviving next of kin are of unequal degrees of kindred, the surplus is to be apportioned among those entitled thereto according to their respective stocks, those taking in their own right receiving equal shares, and those by representation the share to which the parent whom they represent would have been entitled if living.<sup>90</sup> In Texas, if there are no children, father or mother, brothers or sisters, or husband or wife, half of the estate goes to the paternal and half to the maternal, kindred.<sup>91</sup> If there is a surviving which went to her deceased brother and sister as their heir and not as heir of her father. West v. Hermann [Tex. Civ. App.] 104 S. W. 428.

Collateral heirs have no standing to attack for fraud, or as simulated, or as a donation made in violation of Civ. Code art. 1497, a contract made by their de cujus and fully executed by other contracting party. Thielman v. Gahlman [La.] 44 So. 123. Collateral heirs cannot attack conveyance which is neither sale nor donation on ground that such contract is unknown to the law, where it has been fully executed by other party. Id.

85. Wife paid principal part of consideration for land. Bond for title ran to husband, but was intention, understood by all parties, that land should be conveyed to husband and wife for their lives with remainder to their child. This was done, but deed was not recorded and was lost. After husband's death vendor made new deed to widow for life with remainder to child. Held error to set aside latter deed on theory that children of husband by former marriage had interest in land. Noble v. Noble, 30 Ky. L. R. 629, 99 S. W. 339.

DETINUE.<sup>22</sup>

Detinue is the common-law action to recover personal property wrongfully detained,<sup>23</sup> and damages for the detention thereof<sup>24</sup> being now generally succeeded by the statutory action of replevin.<sup>25</sup> While plaintiff must usually show title,<sup>26</sup> mere possession is sufficient as against one wrongfully taking the same,<sup>27</sup> and where both claim through a common source, defendant cannot assert an outstanding title.<sup>28</sup> A suggested defendant under the Alabama statute need not file the affidavit required of defendants generally,<sup>29</sup> and, upon voluntarily coming in, he becomes liable for damages for wrongful detention.<sup>30</sup> Where plaintiff claims under a mortgage, defendant is entitled to have the amount thereof ascertained in Alabama only when he claims under the mortgagor.<sup>31</sup> In detinue for a "yoke of oxen," the value of the oxen need not be separately assessed.<sup>32</sup> Where defendant fails to deliver property within thirty days after affirmance of adverse judgment, he forfeits his forthcoming bond.<sup>33</sup>

Dodge v. Rush, 28 App. D. C. 149. If there is any evidence which with rea-or where the evidence establishes a prima facie case.<sup>53</sup> In many states the rule is that a verdict may properly be directed where a contrary verdict would be set aside,<sup>54</sup> but this is not the rule in Illinois.<sup>55</sup> A verdict may be directed for the plaintiff as well as for the defendant,<sup>56</sup> but in some states direction in favor of the party having the burden of the issue<sup>57</sup> is improper where the motion is based on oral testimony.<sup>58</sup> Defects in pleadings<sup>59</sup> or a material<sup>60</sup> variance between the allegations and proof may be made the basis of the motion, and in the latter case the same questions arise as upon a motion to direct because of the insufficiency of the evidence.<sup>61</sup> A directed sonable inferences therefrom would support a verdict, it is improper to direct one. Berry v. Chase [C. C. A.] 146 F. 625; Sunderland v. Cowan [Md.] 67 A. 141; *Ewing v. U. Where inferences from evidence support verdict, affirmative charge is improper. Mobile & O. R. R. Co. v. Glover [Ala.] 43 So. 719. 61. Request for verdict for defendant on verdict for the defendant cannot be predicated upon failure of proof where by the court's ruling plaintiff was prevented from introducing the testimony required.<sup>62</sup> In some states the insufficiency of the plaintiff's evidence is not ground for the direction of a verdict,<sup>63</sup> and in states where a contrary rule prevails the insufficiency of the evidence must be clear and obvious,<sup>64</sup> but a mere scintilla of evidence will not suffice.<sup>65</sup> Where the allegations of the petition are denied and evidence is submitted to sustain the issues joined, a verdict is improperly directed for the plaintiff though the defendant introduces no evidence in his own behalf,<sup>66</sup> and where the defendant introduces no evidence, a verdict is improperly directed in his favor though plaintiff has failed to prove his case.<sup>67</sup> Where the court rules against plaintiff as a matter of law on an issue and the only remaining issue is abandoned, a verdict is properly directed for the defendant.<sup>68</sup> Upon a denial of plaintiff's motion for a continuance, the court may impanel a jury and in the absence of evidence direct a verdict for defendant.<sup>69</sup>

The motion.<sup>70</sup>—A motion for a peremptory instruction must be determined solely on plaintiff's evidence<sup>71</sup> which it admits to be true together with all reasonable inferences which may be deduced therefrom<sup>72</sup> for the purpose of denying its sufficiency in point of law.<sup>73</sup> The party against whom a direction is sought is entitled to the benefit of all fair and reasonable inferences from the testimony,<sup>74</sup> and the view most favorable to him will be adopted.<sup>75</sup> The court is without power to weigh the evidence<sup>76</sup> or to determine the credibility of witnesses<sup>77</sup> except to ascertain its account of variance is same as request on ground of insufficiency of evidence, and its refusal raises only question as to whether the evidence fairly tended to support cause of action. Chicago Union Trac. Co. v. Brethauer, 223 Ill. 521, 79 N. E. 287.

62. A plaintiff in an action for breach of contract does not lose his right to damages by reason of failure to offer evidence as to the loss he has sustained where by a ruling of the court he has been deprived of the testimony necessary to make out his case, and a court is not authorized under such circumstances to direct a verdict for the defendant. Kneipper v. Richards, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 581.

63. When the plaintiff fails to make out a prima facie case, it is the better practice to render a judgment of nonsuit rather than direct a verdict for the defendant. Oliver v. Warren, 124 Ga. 549, 53 S. E. 100; Zipperer v. Savannah [Ga.] 57 S. E. 311.

true. Schillinger Bros. Co. v. Smith, 225 Ill. 74, 80 N. E. 65. On a motion to direct, the court must take as established all facts proved and all inferences which can be logically and reasonably taken from the evidence. Harris v. Lincoln Trac. Co. [Neb.] 111 N. W. 580.

73. In considering motion, court cannot ignore favorable testimony of plaintiff's witnesses nor testimony of plaintiff on direct examination because testimony of latter on cross-examination was at variance therewith. Hayward v. North Jersey St. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 65 A. 737.

In passing on a motion to direct a verdict, it is not the province of the judge to weigh the evidence. Berry v. Chase [C. C. A.] 146 F. 625. Motion never presents a question as to the weight of the testimony. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Henderson, 126 Ill. App. 530. Direction is not authorized merely because in judgment of court a prima facie case has been overcome by contrary evidence. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Bailey, 222 Ill. 480, 78 N. E. 833.

77. The court is not at liberty to review the probabilities of the case or the weight or credibility of the testimony. Weston v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A.

probative force.<sup>78</sup> The motion must set forth the grounds upon which it is based,<sup>79</sup> but a rule requiring a motion for a nonsuit to be based on specific reasons will not be extended so as to include a motion to direct a verdict.<sup>80</sup> The court need not specify its reasons for directing a verdict.<sup>81</sup> There is no difference between "permitting" and "directing" a verdict so far as the action of the court is concerned.<sup>82</sup> Where a direction would be improper at the close of plaintiff's case, it is also improper at the close of all the evidence,<sup>83</sup> but the converse is true, and where it would have been proper it may be made at the close of all the evidence unless defendant's evidence has added to plaintiff's case.<sup>84</sup>

A joint motion for a directed verdict submits the facts to the court for decision as a matter of law,<sup>85</sup> and its decision thereon has the same binding force as a verdict of the jury.<sup>86</sup> Until final action<sup>87</sup> is taken, either of the parties to the motion may request submission, but even in such case, where there is more than one issue of fact, the party asking submission must specifically point out the issues which he desires submitted.<sup>88</sup> The submission of requests for instructions with or following a motion to direct a verdict does not constitute a withdrawal of the latter where both parties join in the motion.<sup>89</sup>

Effect of ruling; appeal; waiver.<sup>90</sup>—A motion for a directed verdict is waived by proceeding with the trial upon its denial,<sup>91</sup> but a waiver of a motion for a nonsuit at the close of plaintiff's evidence does not preclude defendant from seeking a directed verdict at the close of all the evidence.<sup>92</sup> The denial of a motion for a directed verdict will not be reviewed where no grounds were stated in the motion.<sup>93</sup> On review of an order directing a verdict, only the plaintiff's evidence will be considered,<sup>94</sup> and will be construed most favorably to him.<sup>95</sup> When the pleadings warrant the verdict and the evidence is not preserved, it will be presumed on appeal that the action of the trial court in directing a verdict was proper.<sup>96</sup> The erroneous direction of a verdict instead of a nonsuit may be corrected and the appeal affirmed with directions.<sup>97</sup>

Effect.<sup>9</sup>—The demurrer must be determined on plaintiff's evidence only<sup>10</sup> which must be taken as true,<sup>11</sup> and every reasonable inference must be drawn therefrom in his favor.<sup>12</sup> If defendant's evidence adds to plaintiff's case, it may also be taken into account.<sup>13</sup> The court can consider only those facts and inferences which are favorable to plaintiff.<sup>14</sup>

DISCONTINUANCE, DISMISSAL AND NON SUIT.

§ 1. Voluntary Nonsuit or Discontinuance (982).

§ 2. Involuntary Dismissal or Nonsuit (984). Grounds in General (984). Jurisdiction (984). Defects in Pleadings; Parties (985). Failure of Prosecution (985). Non-suit for Failure of Proof (986). Variance (987). Motion for Nonsuit; Effect (987). Effect of Dismissal or Nonsuit (988). Setting Aside Order; Reinstating Cause (989). Practice on Appeal (989).

§ 1. Voluntary nonsuit or discontinuance.<sup>16</sup>—Where no affirmative relief is claimed by the answer, plaintiff may discontinue the action,<sup>17</sup> except where the rights of defendant, third persons, or the public would be thereby substantially prejudiced,<sup>18</sup> or he may dismiss as to one defendant where such action would not prejudice the rights of a codefendant.<sup>19</sup> Payment of the costs may be required but the court has no power to impose unreasonable terms.<sup>20</sup> Strictly a discontinuance cannot be had without leave of court,<sup>21</sup> but in many states such leave is assumed in the first instance<sup>22</sup> and may be implied from orders of the court subsequent to attempted discontinuance.<sup>23</sup> Usually the motion is required to be in writing,<sup>24</sup> and of such a character as clearly to indicate an intention to dismiss.<sup>25</sup> An agreement to dismiss made out of court, for a valuable consideration, does not affect the jurisdiction of the court to proceed,<sup>26</sup> but advantage of it may be taken by a plea in abatement<sup>27</sup> or cross bill.<sup>28</sup> An order of dismissal by mistake erroneously reciting the name of the party dismissing may be corrected.<sup>29</sup> A motion to set aside a discontinuance is addressed to the discretion of the court.<sup>30</sup>

An attorney<sup>31</sup> of record in California controls the action, and it is held that as

18. Action on public officer's bond, held that no rights were prejudiced by dismissal. School Dist. No. 11 v. Clifcorn [Wis.] 112 N. W. 1099.

19. The court, with plaintiff's consent, may dismiss as to a defendant against whom his codefendants have no legal claim. Where on foreclosure of a mortgage plaintiff would have the right of subrogation as to a defendant claiming under a prior mortgage, but no such right existed in a codefendant, a dismissal as to such defendant with plaintiff's consent was proper. Edmonston v. Wilbur, 99 Minn. 495, 110 N. W. 3.

20. In an action at law where no counterclaim has been interposed and where no equities exist in favor of the defendant, plaintiff may discontinue upon payment of costs, but the court has no power to impose terms that plaintiff stipulate not to assign a claim to a resident for the purpose of bringing suit thereon. Telephonine Co. of America v. Douthitt, 115 App. Div. 362, 100 N. Y. S. 781.

21. Consolidated Nat. Bk. v. McManus, 217 Pa. 190, 66 A. 250. The plaintiff has no such control over the action as to entitle him to dismiss without action by the court. School Dist. No. 11 v. Clifcorn [Wis.] 112 N. W. 1099.

22. Consolidated Nat. Bk. v. McManus, 217 Pa. 190, 66 A. 250.

23. The discharge of a rule to take off a continuance is equivalent to a grant of leave to discontinue. Consolidated Nat. Bk. v. McManus, 217 Pa. 190, 66 A. 250.

24. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 581, subd. 1, requiring filing of written request for dismissal, a motion in open court by plaintiff's attorney will not suffice though plaintiff had previously filed such a request signed by himself alone, his attorney being required to join therein. Boca & L. R. Co. v. Lassen County, Super. Ct., 150 Cal. 153, 88 P. 718.

25. A notice by plaintiff that he has lost personal interest in the action intended merely to relieve the plaintiff from costs does not authorize the court to discontinue the action. Such a notice does not amount to stipulation for a consent to discontinuance. Brown v. Cole, 54 Misc. 278, 104 N. Y. S. 109.

26. McFadden v. Heisen [C. C. A.] 150 F. 568.

27. Is waived by pleading to the merits. McFadden v. Heisen [C. C. A.] 150 F. 568.

28. An executory agreement to discontinue is available only on cross bill and will not be disposed of summarily where complaint does not appear to consent thereto. Snyder v. De Forest Wireless Tel. Co., 154 F. 142.

29. Where an infant sued by her next friend, the caption reciting that the latter also sued individually, but there being no allegation showing that personal recovery was sought, a dismissal by the latter so far as she sued personally by mistake reciting that same was by the infant held properly corrected. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Kesse [Ky.] 103 S. W. 261.

30. Consolidated Nat. Bk. v. McManus, 217 Pa. 190, 66 A. 250. Will not be granted unless discontinuance works hardship on defendant. Id.

31. See 7 C. L. 1157.

a party cannot appear in an action both in person and by attorney, the latter has sole power to dismiss,<sup>32</sup> and in such case where the plaintiff attempts to dismiss by his own action, a subsequent motion by his attorney of record not in compliance with the statute will not suffice.<sup>33</sup> The attorney, however, has no such personal interest in the litigation as to entitle him to object to a dismissal upon a settlement by the parties.<sup>34</sup>

Where affirmative relief is demanded.<sup>35</sup>—At common law the plaintiff having full control of the action might dismiss though defendant interposed a counterclaim,<sup>36</sup> but under the practice acts in most states this rule has been changed,<sup>37</sup> and in such states dismissal can only be had without prejudice to defendant's right to relief.<sup>38</sup> The status of the action at the time of the filing of the motion determines the right to dismiss.<sup>39</sup> It has been held, however, that statutes prohibiting dismissal where the answer seeks affirmative relief have no application to the dismissal of a count of the petition.<sup>40</sup> While plaintiff may dismiss the action where interveners claim no affirmative relief,<sup>41</sup> he cannot, after the court has determined that a party has a litigable interest in the subject-matter of the suit, dismiss as to such parties and proceed to obtain relief as to other defendants,<sup>42</sup> in the absence of an order vacating permission to intervene.<sup>43</sup>

Effect of discontinuance.<sup>46</sup>—A dismissal terminates the pending action,<sup>47</sup> but, as in bringing an action for injuries to a child the parent acts as trustee, the court does not lose jurisdiction over the action by a mere formal order of dismissal entered upon stipulation but may for good cause shown set aside the dismissal and order the cause reinstated.<sup>48</sup> A voluntary dismissal, as a rule, is not a bar to a subsequent proceeding,<sup>49</sup> and only such orders as were entered in the Proc. § 581, subd. 1, provides that an action may be dismissed "by the plaintiff himself" by filing a written request therefor and paying costs, no affirmative relief being sought by answer, held not to authorize a plaintiff who appeared and was still represented by an attorney of record to dismiss upon complying with its provisions. Id.

ing in an action to quiet title. Hanson v. Hanson [Neb.] 111 N. Y. S. 368.

39. Amendment of answer after filing of motion so as to allege a counterclaim does not affect the motion. Doll v. Slaughter [Colo.] 88 P. 848.

40. Under Code, § 3764, plaintiff may dismiss a count of his petition notwithstanding § 3766 providing that, where a counterclaim is interposed, defendant shall have the right to proceed thereon regardless of a dismissal by plaintiff of his cause of action. Houts v. Sioux City Brass Works [Iowa] 110 N. W. 166.

47. Where after all defendants with one exception had confessed judgment the suit was ordered "filed away," the court was without power at a subsequent term to enter judgment against the defendant who had not confessed, such order being equivalent to a dismissal. Aikman v. South, 29 Ky. L. R. 1201, 97 S. W. 4.

48. Facts held to justify setting aside of dismissal entered upon stipulation signed by parent of minor child. Picciano v. Duluth, M. & N. Ry. Co. [Minn.] 112 N. W. 885.

49. Stipulation dismissing, action without proceeding itself are affected thereby.<sup>50</sup> A dismissal as to one of two defendants not jointly liable does not affect plaintiff's rights as against the other.<sup>51</sup> Where a motion by defendant to reinstate a cause which plaintiff was without power to withdraw was granted, the court may order plaintiff's action against defendant restored.<sup>52</sup> An order setting aside a dismissal is appealable as it prevents the entry of judgment.<sup>53</sup>

Retraxit.<sup>54</sup>—An agreement between the parties to a suit settling their dispute and dismissing the action is a retraxit<sup>55</sup> and has the same effect as a decision on the merits,<sup>56</sup> but a mere dismissal on stipulation<sup>57</sup> has no such effect.

§ 2. Involuntary dismissal or nonsuit.<sup>58</sup>—The granting of an involuntary nonsuit in the proper case does not contravene constitutional guarantees of the right to a jury trial.<sup>59</sup> Where evidence discloses liability on the part of only one or two persons sued jointly, the action may be dismissed as to the other and continued as to the one liable.<sup>60</sup>

Grounds in general.<sup>61</sup>—The admission of incompetent testimony does not warrant a nonsuit,<sup>62</sup> nor is the erroneous granting of a new trial after verdict ground for nonsuit or a subsequent trial,<sup>62a</sup> but refusal to obey orders of the court concerning the proceedings in the action is usually ground for dismissal.<sup>63</sup> As failure to answer admits the allegation of the petition, a nonsuit is improperly directed in favor of a defaulting defendant where the petition states a cause of action.<sup>64</sup> The right to a dismissal is waived by proceeding with the trial after a denial of the motion,<sup>65</sup> or after the right accrues.<sup>66</sup>

69. Failure of plaintiff in replevin to direct sheriff in writing that possession was not required. Pedrick v. Kuemmell [N. J. Law] 65 A. 906.

Defects in pleadings; parties.<sup>70</sup>—Where it is apparent from the petition that plaintiff is not entitled to a recovery, the court may of its own motion raise the question and entertain a motion to dismiss,<sup>71</sup> but the failure of a complaint to state a cause of action against one defendant does not entitle a codefendant to dismissal.<sup>72</sup> Want of capacity to sue,<sup>73</sup> or nonjoinder of necessary parties, is ground for dismissal,<sup>74</sup> but by statute in most states misjoinder of causes of action or parties does not constitute a ground.<sup>75</sup> The filing of an answer does not preclude defendant from moving to dismiss on the ground of the insufficiency of the complaint where the answer adds nothing in aid of its allegations.<sup>76</sup> Where by amendment the petition fails to state a cause of action against one defendant, it may be dismissed as to him at any time.<sup>77</sup>

Failure of prosecution.<sup>78</sup>—Independent of statute,<sup>79</sup> the court may order a dismissal for failure of prosecution,<sup>80</sup> no sufficient excuse therefor being presented.<sup>81</sup> While dismissal for failure to comply with a rule of court is discretionary, such discretion must not be exercised arbitrarily or so as to work injustice.<sup>82</sup> In determining a motion to dismiss for want of diligent prosecution, the court may consider all facts appearing in the record bearing upon the question of dili-

Dig. § 5028, provides that defect of parties shall be ground for demurrer, and § 5016 provides for the striking out of causes of action improperly joined. Tishomingo Elec. Light Power Co. v. Dismissal for failure to proceed to trial on date set held an abuse of discretion, plaintiff's attorney presenting a sufficient excuse at that time and being prepared to proceed on the following day. Bane v. Cox [Kan.] 88 P. 1033. Affidavit of plaintiff's attorney in explaining delay of eleven years in bringing case to trial that his recollection was that delay was due to pendency of negotiations for settlement held insufficient, especially in view of positive contradiction by defendant. St. Paul's Church v. Mt. Vernon Suburban Land Co., 103 N. Y. S. 858. Affidavit of plaintiff that attorney repeatedly told him case would be taken care of, and of latter that on account of press of business he was unable to give it his attention, held not a sufficient excuse for a delay of nearly five years in bringing case to trial. Krauss v. Wood, 104 N. Y. S. 455.

82. Dismissal by court on its own motion without request of defendant and despite excuse and protest of plaintiff for failure to comply with court rule requiring dismissal, where no progress had been made for period of one year, held arbitrary and unjust. Cleaveland v. Nubian Min. Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 179. Dismissal for failure to comply with rule of court of doubtful validity requiring undisposed of cases on preceding calendar to be noticed for succeeding term held harsh and unreasonable, where plaintiff in good faith attempted to comply therewith and believed he had done so. Rauchberger v. Interurban St. R. Co., 52 Misc. 518, 102 N. Y. S. 561.

gence, whether same occurred before the action was begun or afterward.<sup>83</sup> Statutes requiring dismissal for failure to return summons with proof of service within a specified time after the commencement of the action apply only to actions which have not been tried,<sup>84</sup> and while failure to enter a judgment or default within a reasonable time after filing the summons and proof of service is ground for dismissal,<sup>85</sup> the entry of judgment prior to the making of the motion to dismiss forecloses the right to dismissal.<sup>86</sup> In Iowa failure to give a bond for costs within the time prescribed by law does not require dismissal,<sup>87</sup> as the court may extend the time therefor and an order denying a motion to dismiss is equivalent to an extension.<sup>88</sup> The right to dismissal for want of prosecution may be waived.<sup>89</sup>

Nonsuit for failure of proof.<sup>90</sup>—A nonsuit is properly directed where there is no evidence,<sup>91</sup> or where that offered is legally insufficient to establish the cause of action, or where a verdict for the party against whom it is directed would be set aside,<sup>92</sup> but where the proof lacking is not such as could not be supplied on a second trial,<sup>94</sup> or where plaintiff may avail him of defects in the answer,<sup>95</sup> the dismissal should be without prejudice.<sup>96</sup> Failure to prove facts not in issue is not ground for dismissal.<sup>97</sup> Where plaintiff fails to establish a cause of action, the municipal court of the City of New York can only order a dismissal without prejudice.<sup>98</sup> Though a nonsuit may be granted on the opening statement of counsel,<sup>99</sup> it is improper unless facts stated together with the reasonable inferences therefrom would be insufficient to support a verdict for the plaintiff.<sup>1</sup> A nonsuit is improper if there is any evidence tending to support the claim alleged,<sup>2</sup> or where benefit of reasonable inferences which can be drawn from the evidence.<sup>19</sup> Where a motion to dismiss is made on the opening statement, every allegation of fact in the pleading must be taken as admitted and plaintiff is entitled to the benefit of every fair and reasonable presumption which may justifiably be implied therefrom.<sup>20</sup> A motion to dismiss for failure of proof should be made at the close of plaintiff's evidence and before the issues are submitted on their merits.<sup>21</sup> As a rule a motion for a nonsuit must state the grounds upon which the moving party relies,<sup>22</sup> and where the defect could have been remedied at the time by further evidence, failure to state the grounds of the motion constitutes a waiver.<sup>23</sup> The introduction of evidence after a denial of a motion to grant a nonsuit waives it<sup>24</sup> where it was not renewed at the close of all the evidence,<sup>25</sup> and this rule has been held to apply to the New York court of claims.<sup>26</sup> By submitting evidence after a denial of a motion for a nonsuit, defendant assumes the risk of supplying deficiencies in plaintiff's proof.<sup>27</sup> The fact that the judgment of discontinuance did not condemn the plaintiff to pay the costs of the action does not render it a nullity.<sup>28</sup>

Effect of dismissal or nonsuit.<sup>29</sup>—In actions ex contractu a discontinuance as to a party served, not on account of any defense personal to him, operates as a discontinuance of the entire cause.<sup>30</sup> Under the Oregon statute an involuntary judgment of nonsuit is not a bar to a subsequent action for the same cause,<sup>31</sup> and recitals in the order sustaining the motion cannot make it a judgment on the merits.<sup>32</sup> Where an action is dismissed for want of capacity in plaintiff to sue, a counterclaim interposed in the action falls with it.<sup>33</sup>

Setting aside order; reinstating cause.<sup>34</sup>—A judgment of dismissal and a default entered thereon must be set aside before a cause can be restored to the calendar.<sup>35</sup> Reinstatement of an action is discretionary,<sup>36</sup> and when granted cures error in improperly dismissing the action.<sup>37</sup> It can be had only within the time and on the ground applicable to grants of new trials and the vacation of determinative orders.<sup>38</sup> A motion to reinstate is to be regarded as filed when actually presented to the court for action.<sup>39</sup>

Practice on appeal.<sup>40</sup>—Reinstatement<sup>41</sup> or refusal to nonsuit<sup>42</sup> being discretionary will not ordinarily be reviewed. A nonsuit entered by consent<sup>43</sup> will not be received, but where the rulings of the court preclude recovery, a nonsuit entered thereon is not voluntary.<sup>44</sup> All facts essential to review must appear in the record<sup>45</sup> which may be considered in its entirety.<sup>46</sup> A nonsuit improperly granted on one ground will not be sustained on appeal on another ground,<sup>47</sup> but where the court was justified in granting a nonsuit, formal defects will not work a reversal.<sup>48</sup> Error in admitting evidence for the plaintiff cannot be reviewed on appeal from a judgment of nonsuit.<sup>49</sup> Where plaintiff's case is meritorious and the statute of limitations has run against the cause of action, the action of the trial court in dismissing the complaint for lack of prosecution may be reversed on terms.<sup>50</sup> Plaintiff's evidence and all reasonable inferences deducible therefrom will be considered in the view most favorable to him,<sup>51</sup> and where the dis-

Where the record fails to show an adverse ruling warranting the plaintiff in taking a nonsuit an order setting same aside because of error in the ruling will be reversed. 60. Under Const. art. 6, § 5, granting to superior courts jurisdiction in all cases in equity, such courts may compel discovery in all cases in which under the established rules of chancery practice existing at time of adoption of constitution a party would have been entitled to such relief. Union Collection Co. v. San Francisco Super. Ct., 149 Cal. 790, 87 P. 1035.

61. Statutes held not to deprive equity of such jurisdiction. Nixon v. Clear Creek Lumber Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 805.

62. Suit to restrain collection of judgment by one defendant for benefit of others against whom complainant has set-offs, held clearly equitable. Brown v. Pegram, 149 F. 515.

63. Where facts within knowledge of defendants are material and incidental to relief sought, bill of discovery will issue. Napier v. Westerhoff, 153 F. 985. Where contract for construction of machines to be used in South America provided for test there upon freshly cut material, court will not compel test elsewhere upon dried material where such test would be immaterial. Pina Mayas-Sisal Co. v. Squire Mfg. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 482. Bill for discovery held proper where administrator had reason to expect to find certain property in safety vaults, which was not there, and defendants had admitted taking some property in surreptitious manner. Millard v. Millard, 123 Ill. App. 264. Receiver for insolvent corporation who has been ordered to collect instalment due from stockholder may maintain bill of discovery against broker to compel disclosure of real ownership of purchased stock (Brown v. Magee, 146 F. 765) placed in name of irresponsible person (Kurtz v. Brown [C. C. A.] 152 F. 372).

64. Union Collection Co. v. San Francisco Super. Ct., 149 Cal. 790, 87 P. 1035. Does not lie to discover whereabouts of defendants for purpose of getting service. Id.

65. Production of books and accounts relating to trust accounts may be compelled though answer does not admit possession thereof. Alabama Girls' Industrial School v. Reynolds, 143 Ala. 579, 42 So. 114.

70. See 7 C. L. 1168.

71. Rev. St. § 724 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 583), providing that on trial of actions at law Federal courts may require parties to produce books or writings, etc., held not to authorize order compelling production for inspection before trial. Cassatt v. Mitchell Coal & Coke Co. [C. C. A.] 150 F. 32.

72. Court rule 14, subd. 3, providing for inspection of personal property, held inconsistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 803, except as to inspection of "a book, document, or other paper," and not authorized by § 804 (Pina Maya-Sisal Co. v. Squire Mfg. Co., 105 N. Y. S. 482), and if valid held not to authorize order compelling defendant to assemble, install, and run a machine for plaintiff's inspection (Id.).

73. Where letter and cablegrams to lawyer relate to his employment as attorney in fact to sell real estate, they are not privileged. Avery v. Lee, 117 App. Div. 244, 102 N. Y. S. 12.

74. Party may be required to produce books and papers under Rev. St. § 724 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 583) in advance of trial only when clear that ends of justice require it. American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 153 F. 943.

75. In action on contract of employment for wrongful discharge in which commissions are not sought, held that there was no necessity for inspection of defendant's books to enable plaintiff to prepare for trial as to authorize inspection under Code Civ. Proc. § 803, and Gen. Prac. Rules 14 and 15. Sivins v. Mooney, 54 Misc. 66, 104 N. Y. S. 503. Where insurance policy gave holder thereof certain options at end of dividend paying period which could be intelligently exercised only by inspection of books of company showing its financial condition, held proper to order inspection under St. 1898, § 4183, and Circuit Court Rule 19, subd. 1, § 1 (new rule 18). Ellinger v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. [Wis]. 111 N. W. 567. Where, in action for services rendered, defendant sets up counterclaim for fifty items of money alleged to have been misappropriated by plaintiff, and which presumably appear on defendant's books, inspection thereof should be granted. Edmonds v. Attucks Music Pub. Co., 117 App. Div. 486, 102 N. Y. S. 636.

Where in action against carrier for non-delivery defendant alleges delivery to expressman on order signed by plaintiff and plaintiff denies signing, plaintiff may inspect copy and photograph such order and may inspect and copy entries in defendant's forms and books relative to such transaction. Kamber v. Ben Franklin Transp. Co., 52 Misc. 640, 102 N. Y. S. 804. Where executors and trustees under will bring action for construction of will and compromise agreement and seek permission to sell real estate, inspection of books, inventories, and records of estate is proper. Muller v. Philadelphia, 118 App. Div. 276, 103 N. Y. S. 387; Id., 104 N. Y. S. 781.

76. Where application was not made until case had been set for trial on short cause calendar, and had several times appeared on day calendar and had been marked "Ready," held barred by laches. Sivins v. Mooney, 54 Misc. 66, 104 N. Y. S. 503.

77. In action based on alleged maintenance of monopoly in violation of Laws 1899, p. 1514, c. 690, application of attorney general for examination of books, etc., under §§ 4-7 will not be presumed to proceed from bad motives upon mere allegation to that effect in defendant's affidavits. People v. American Ice Co., 54 Misc. 67, 105 N. Y. S. 650.

78. Where, in action for royalties, defendant sets up written release of claim and agreement accepting another as debtor, plaintiff may compel inspection where he is ignorant of such alleged papers. DeKoven v. Ziegfeld, 52 Misc. 93, 101 N. Y. S. 586.

79. National Distilling Co. v. Van Emden, 105 N. Y. S. 657.

80. Discovery may be had under rule 50 (87 N. W. vi) without showing of indispensable necessity of inspection and without alleging that subpoena duces tecum will not compel production at trial. London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 146 Mich. 477, 13 Det. Leg. N. 834, 109 N. W. 1049.

81. Where, in action based on alleged maintenance of monopoly in violation of Laws 1899, p. 1514, c. 690, attorney general applies for order directing production of books, papers, etc., as authorized by Laws 1899, pp. 1515, 1516, his position is somewhat analogous to one having right to inspect before commencement of action and strict rules should not be applied. People v. American Ice Co., 54 Misc. 67, 105 N. Y. S. 650.

pends upon the nature of the action and the issues involved.<sup>82</sup> While, ordinarily, inspection of the originals must be granted,<sup>83</sup> production of certified copies may be allowed where great inconvenience would otherwise result,<sup>84</sup> and the cost thereof charged to the party benefited.<sup>85</sup> An order allowing inspection of one paper is not res adjudicata as to another.<sup>86</sup>

82. In action against ice company under Laws 1899, p. 1514, c. 690, to avoid contracts alleged to have been made to establish a monopoly, inspection of books, etc., held properly allowed to extend back to organization of company (People v. American Ice Co., 54 Misc. 67, 105 N. Y. S. 650) and not confined to present administration period (People v. American Ice Co., 104 N. Y. S. 858). Order held to improperly allow plaintiff to examine every scrap of paper in mere hope of discovering something to sustain complaint (Id.), to inspect books and vouchers showing profits (Id.), and stock books, since inspection thereof would not reveal whether defendant owned stock of other corporations (Id.).

83. If applicant is entitled to any relief at all under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 804, and Gen. Rules of Prac. 14, subd. 3, he is entitled to inspect books and records themselves, and order directing defendant to furnish sworn statements and copies is erroneous. Pfaelzer v. Gassner, 54 Misc. 579, 104 N. Y. S. 847.

84. Where papers required to be produced are in a foreign jurisdiction, proviso in order of inspection authorizing production of certified copies (Muller v. Philadelphia, 118 App. Div. 276, 103 N. Y. S. 387), with right to inspect originals at home office, held proper (National Distilling Co. v. Van Emden, 105 N. Y. S. 657).

85. Where, in action by executors and trustees of will for construction of will and compromise agreement, certified copies of papers in foreign jurisdiction are ordered for inspection, cost thereof is properly charged to estate. Muller v. Philadelphia, 118 App. Div. 276, 103 N. Y. S. 387.

86. Application for inspection held to relate to different affidavit. Memphis Trotting Ass'n v. Smather, 118 App. Div. 362, 103 N. Y. S. 498.

87. See 7 C. L. 1170.

88. In action against corporation, examination of its officers apart from examination of corporation cannot be had, under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 870, 872, 873. Shumaker v. Doubleday, Page & Co., 116 App. Div. 302, 101 N. Y. S. 587; Meade v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n, 104 N. Y. S. 523. Where it is clear that applicant desired order for examination of corporation by examination of officer and moving papers are sufficient to sustain such order, on motion to vacate order running against secretary alone, it should be modified into proper form. Id.

89. Under Code 1896, § 1850, it is proper to permit interrogatories to be filed by plaintiff to defendant in an action of trover, Nashville, C. & St. L. R. v. Karthaus [Ala.] 43 So. 791.

90. Examination of defendant held not necessary to enable plaintiff to draw complaint for accounting. Pierce v. McLaughlin Real Estate Co., 121 App. Div. 501, 106 N. Y. S. 28. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 870-872, where plaintiff has some kind of a cause of action against defendant, he is entitled to examination of defendant before framing his allegations either in fraud, in conversion, on contract, or for accounting, and though he had framed complaint for accounting in another state which was futile and was terminated. Hill v. McKane, 115 App. Div. 537, 101 N. Y. S. 411.

91. Where, in action for personal injuries, defendant is ignorant as to manner in which injuries were sustained, he may examine plaintiff in respect thereto under Code Civ. Proc. § 870. Tirpak v. Hoe, 53 Misc. 532, 103 N. Y. S. 795. Examination before trial may be allowed in action on note where plaintiff's testimony is material to defense that he was not a bona fide taker. Koppel v. Hatch, 50 Misc. 626, 98 N. Y. S. 619. Where, in action for rent due for space in department store, defendant alleged that he rented upon false representations of plaintiff as to number of his charge customers and that he had paid plaintiff sum for advertising in excess of proper charge therefor, defendant may examine plaintiff as to accounts with customers and his advertising. Ehrlich v. Winter & Co., 52 Misc. 641, 103 N. Y. S. 1023. Where, in action for specific performance of contract of sale of real estate, it appears that sale was subject to approval of party sought to be examined and question of approval is in issue, examination may be had under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 870, 872, 873. Bender v. Bork, 52 Misc. 295, 102 N. Y. S. 152. In action by committee of incompetent against one formerly acting as attorney for such incompetent for fraud in conducting business, held error to so modify order for examination as to prevent true state of affairs from being brought out. Malcom v. Gibson, 104 N. Y. S. 753.

92. Defendant, in action by administrator to recover property claimed to have belonged to decedent and to have been fraudulently obtained and disposed of by defendant and to be concealed and withheld, may refuse to be examined in respect thereto on ground that answers might tend to accuse him of crime. Const. art. 1, § 6, Code Proc. § 837, and Pen. Code, § 142, construed. Chappell v. Chappell, 116 App. Div. 573, 101 N. Y. S. 846. Order for examination should not be withheld because witness may be the applicant's cause of action.<sup>94</sup> Where a party makes a case within the New York statute, he is entitled to an order for examination as a matter of right,<sup>95</sup> if sought in good faith,<sup>96</sup> and not merely for the purpose of prying into his adversary's evidence<sup>97</sup> or defense.<sup>98</sup> The evidence taken under such statute being also for use at the trial, it is immaterial that the applicant has personal knowledge,<sup>99</sup> that the information may be obtained from another source<sup>1</sup> or in another manner,<sup>2</sup> that the party to be examined denies knowledge<sup>3</sup> or will appear at the trial.<sup>4</sup> While such state statutes are not applicable to the Federal courts,<sup>5</sup> under the Revised Statutes a claimant<sup>6</sup> against the government may be examined within the jurisdiction of the court,<sup>7</sup> and it is immaterial that the facts are within the knowledge of the defendant.<sup>8</sup> While defendant need not answer interrogatories privileged, as privilege should be asserted on examination. Meade v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n, 104 N. Y. S. 523. In action to enjoin illegal combination under Valentine Anti-Trust Law for damages resulting from such combination, plaintiff when called, under Rev. St. 5243, for examination before notary is not at liberty, on ground that it is a trade secret and therefore privileged, to refuse to disclose names of dealers from whom he has succeeded in obtaining partial supply of goods the combination had refused to furnish him. Jones v. Goode, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 589. But such questions being irrelevant in examination under § 5243, refusal of witness to answer them must be sustained. Id.

93. In action for libel defendant cannot examine plaintiff as to specific acts of misconduct for purpose of proving that her reputation for chastity was bad, such evidence being inadmissible on trial. Oakes v. Star Co., 104 N. Y. S. 244.

94. Plaintiff cannot examine before trial officers of one defendant corporation to ascertain on whom to serve summons to bring in another defendant. Grant v. Greene Consol. Copper Co., 118 App. Div. 853, 103 N. Y. S. 676.

95. Where application contains requisite facts as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 870, 872, 873, such application "must" be granted. Shonts v. Thomas, 116 App. Div. 854, 102 N. Y. S. 324; Tirpak v. Hoe, 53 Misc. 532, 103 N. Y. S. 795.

96. Although language of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 870, 872, 873, is mandatory, application may be refused where it appears that it is made for purpose of annoyance or delay. Bender v. Bork, 52 Misc. 295, 102 N. Y. S. 152. Where real purpose of motion for order to examine officers of corporation is to obtain inspection of defendant's books and papers, and officers never had any personal knowledge concerning such records, hence no memory to be refreshed, motion should be denied. Shumaker v. Doubleday, Page & Co., 116 App. Div. 302, 101 N. Y. S. 587.

97. In action to compel abatement of obstructions to natural watercourses, plaintiff cannot examine engineers of defendant city and compel inspection of maps, etc., respecting investigation relating to plaintiff's cause of action. Lewis v. Buffalo, 115 App. Div. 735, 100 N. Y. S. 1052.

98. Where plaintiff alleges specific contract and defendant admits a contract but denies it is in form alleged, examination in respect thereto must be denied. Merrill v. Woolworth, 53 Misc. 253, 103 N. Y. S. 57. Where in action for breach of promise to marry defendant alleges a release in defense, he is not entitled to examine plaintiff as to whether she admits or denies signing same. Pitt v. Dunlap, 54 Misc. 115, 105 N. Y. S. 846.

99. Where defendants denied plaintiff's allegation that they were doing business under a certain name plaintiff was entitled, under Code Civ. Proc. § 870, to examine defendants before trial in respect thereto, though complaint was not upon information and belief, personal knowledge of facts being immaterial. Istok v. Senderling, 118 App. Div. 162, 103 N. Y. S. 13. No defense that plaintiff had access to books of defendant at one time where information sought could not be obtained therefrom. Turck v. Chisholm, 53 Misc. 110, 103 N. Y. S. 1095.

1. In absence of bad faith, party may examine adversary before trial as to facts shown to be material and of which he has knowledge and to take his deposition for use on trial, though party could procure evidence from other persons and could subpoena adverse party. Grant v. Greene, 118 App. Div. 850, 103 N. Y. S. 674; McKeand v. Locke, 115 App. Div. 174, 100 N. Y. S. 704.

2. As by bill of particulars. Tirpak v. Hoe, 53 Misc. 532, 103 N. Y. S. 795.

3. Turck v. Chisholm, 53 Misc. 110, 103 N. Y. S. 1095.

4. Turck v. Chisholm, 53 Misc. 110, 103 N. Y. S. 1095; Bender v. Bork, 52 Misc. 295, 102 N. Y. S. 152.

5. P. L. N. J. 1903, p. 537, § 140, authorizing party to submit interrogatories to adversary, etc., held inapplicable to Federal courts sitting in New Jersey. Smith v. International Mercantile Co., 154 F. 786. Notwithstanding Act. Cong. March 9th, 1892, c. 14, 27 Stat. 7 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 664), authorizing depositions to be taken in mode prescribed by laws of state where court sits. Id. Party may raise objection thereto by motion to strike and need not wait until answers are offered in evidence. Id.

6. Although nominal claimant is corporation, where two persons own practically all the stock, they may be examined as claimants under Rev. St. § 1080. Atlantic Cont. Co. v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 244.

7. Held not unreasonable to compel claimants to come within jurisdiction of court for examination. Atlantic Cont. Co. v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 244.

8. Atlantic Cont. Co. v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 244.

attached to a bill for discovery where complainant waives answer under oath,<sup>9</sup> yet, if he undertakes to do so, he must state whether he has knowledge or information respecting the matter.<sup>10</sup> Where plaintiff, having no counter letter, proceeds in limine to interrogate defendant in respect thereto, defendant's answer stands as a part of the pleadings.<sup>11</sup>

Procedure.—The petition for an order for examination must make a statutory showing<sup>12</sup> and be properly verified.<sup>13</sup> While the affidavit must contain facts showing the materiality of the information sought,<sup>14</sup> it need not expressly state that the deposition is for use upon the trial.<sup>15</sup> The Iowa statute does not require that the interrogatories be annexed to the petition when filed,<sup>16</sup> but exceptions thereunder must be taken before the entry of an order to answer,<sup>17</sup> and a party assenting to such order waives all objections to the regularity and propriety of the interrogatories.<sup>18</sup> The order for examination must comply with the statute as to time of service.<sup>19</sup> A subpoena duces tecum may issue with the order for examination<sup>20</sup> to compel the production of papers. Where answers to interrogatories are evasive and mere conclusions,<sup>21</sup> they have no prohibitive force in Maryland unless sustained by proof.<sup>22</sup> The refusal of an ex parte application to vacate an order for examination is no bar to a formal motion on notice.<sup>23</sup>

While a court has inherent power to enforce its orders,<sup>24</sup> the statutes usually prescribe the penalty for refusing to be examined or to answer interrogatories.<sup>25</sup>

9. Bloede Co. v. Carter, 148 F. 127.

10. Bloede Co. v. Carter, 148 F. 127. Answer that defendants did not know and could not set forth as to their belief, etc., is insufficient, since, though denying knowledge, it does not deny information. Id.

11. Hence, where destructive of plaintiff's case, exception of no cause of action will lie. Wells v. Wells, 116 La. 1065, 41 So. 316.

12. Where it appears that plaintiff must establish course of action between several corporations in which it is alleged that defendant had taken part, held to sufficiently aver knowledge by defendant as against objection that his relation to corporation was stated as a conclusion. Grant v. Greene, 118 App. Div. 850, 103 N. Y. S. 674. Affidavit, referring to unverified complaint attached to and made a part thereof, sufficiently shows nature of action, though reference thereto is not a verification so as to permit complaint to be read and considered as an affidavit. Grant v. Greene, 118 App. Div. 850, 103 N. Y. S. 674. Affidavit is sufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 873 which states name of secretary, as officer of corporation desired to be examined, and specifies papers desired to be inspected, without formally stating that it is the corporation that plaintiff desires to examine. Donaldson v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 178.

13. Where petition for order for examination of defendant is verified out of state, signature of officer must be accompanied by certificate as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 844. Miller v. Nevins, 115 App. Div. 139, 100 N. Y. S. 703. Affidavit upon information and belief is not insufficient because not accompanied by affidavit of informer where information was partly obtained from documents purporting to have been issued by adverse party. Meade v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n, 104 N. Y. S. 523.

14. Where moving papers for examination of plaintiffs to enable defendant to answer show that defendant possesses all information necessary to enable him to tender issues, application must be denied under Code Civ. Proc. § 872, subd. 4, and Gen. Rules Prac. 82. Waitzfelder v. Moses' Sons & Co., 104 N. Y. S. 796.

15. Sufficient if such fact fairly appears. Ehrich v. Winter & Co., 52 Misc. 641, 103 N. Y. S. 1023.

18. As untimely annexation to petition. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 143.

19. Where order for examination of defendant directs service thereof less than five days before examination, it must be vacated unless it recites circumstances which render such shortened service necessary, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 873. Miller v. Nevins, 115 App. Div. 139, 100 N. Y. S. 703.

20. Where it appears from nature of the matters to be investigated and from party's attitude that he will not or cannot testify without reference to books, subpoena duces tecum may issue before examination has commenced. Crompton v. Dobbs, 104 N. Y. S. 698.

21. As an answer that deeds were delivered and accepted on date of delivery, and that whole transaction emanated from grantor without suggestion and was her voluntary act, to interrogatory calling upon defendant to state when and under what circumstances deeds came into his possession. Horner v. Bell, 102 Md. 435, 62 A. 736.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.<sup>29</sup>

Disorderly conduct as herein treated includes not only the common-law offense of the breach of the peace,<sup>30</sup> but also violations of statutory acts prohibiting specific acts of disorderly conduct, as the use of loud and vociferous language calculated to disturb others,<sup>31</sup> using profane language in the presence of a female,<sup>32</sup> disturbing the peace of the family by threatening to fight and fighting,<sup>33</sup> using violent, obscene, or profane language so as to disturb the peace of a neighborhood or family,<sup>34</sup> or doing acts generally tending to disturb the public peace.<sup>35</sup> In some states abandonment of family<sup>36</sup> and neglect and refusal to support it, thereby leaving its members in danger of becoming a public charge, constitute a breach of the peace,<sup>37</sup> but the abandonment must be voluntary.<sup>38</sup> Statutes defining this offense are strictly construed.<sup>39</sup> The indictment must charge facts bringing the case clearly within the statute,<sup>40</sup> and must be fully sustained by the proof,<sup>41</sup> but it is sufficient if it charge the offense in the language of the statute.<sup>42</sup> The general rules of evidence applicable to criminal prosecutions apply.<sup>43</sup> An acquittal izing court to compel answers by contempt and by striking pleadings, court has authority to enforce its orders requiring answers. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 143. Where before time for examination stay is secured on motion to vacate order, which is granted but reversed on appeal, failure to appear as directed by subsequent order puts party in contempt. Grant v. Greene, 105 N. Y. S. 641. Inclusion in order refusing to vacate order for examination of plaintiff, a stay of proceedings until she submitted thereto is improper where no motion to that effect was before court. Oakes v. Star Co., 104 N. Y. S. 244.

25. Before failure of party to answer interrogatories shall be taken to sustain claim of adverse party under Code, § 3610, he must be given opportunity to answer by order fixing a time therefor, and penalty cannot be invoked where time for answering has elapsed without extending same. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 143. Where defendant's amended answer admits all facts sought to be elicited, court cannot strike pleadings and enter default as authorized by Code, §§ 3610, 3611. Id.

38. Failure to support wife who refuses to live with defendant does not amount to abandonment. People v. Demos, 115 App. Div. 410, 100 N. Y. S. 968. The order made on the verdict of a jury convicting defendant of disorderly conduct on the ground that he failed to support his family must adjudge him to be a disorderly person and specify the amount he is to pay for the support of his family. Terhune v. Reed [N. J. Law] 67 A. 180.

40. One charging defendant with disturbing peace of one person is insufficient under statute prohibiting disturbance of peace of any town, village, or family. Miles v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 103 S. W. 598.

42. State v. Brower [Kan.] 88 P. 884.

43. Evidence that party assaulted was on the charge of conspiracy to assault an officer does not bar prosecution for disturbing the peace of a family by fighting.<sup>44</sup> In Vermont, if the fine for breach of the peace is not paid within twenty-four hours, defendant may be imprisoned in the house of correction as many days as thrice the number of dollars he is required by the sentence to pay.<sup>45</sup>

DISORDERLY HOUSES.<sup>46</sup>

This topic includes the criminal offense of keeping or frequenting a bawdy house;<sup>47</sup> the keeping of gaming houses,<sup>48</sup> offenses against the liquor laws,<sup>49</sup> and the remedies against bawdy houses as nuisances<sup>50</sup> are elsewhere treated.

Disorderly houses have been variously defined as those kept for purposes of fornication,<sup>51</sup> those of common resort for the commission of petty offenses against the law, though not otherwise disorderly,<sup>52</sup> those in which persons are permitted to gather and gamble in violation of law however quietly it may be done,<sup>53</sup> and as common, ill governed, and disorderly houses to the encouragement of idleness and drinking,<sup>54</sup> but a club house for the exclusive use of its members in which liquor is dispensed is not a disorderly house,<sup>55</sup> and in New Jersey it is provided by statute that where the offense consists wholly of the unlawful sale of liquor it shall be unlawful to convict for keeping a disorderly house.<sup>56</sup> The general reputation of a house being kept as a lewd house is admissible,<sup>57</sup> but unless otherwise corroborated will not sustain conviction.<sup>58</sup> In some states the keeper of a house of prostitution is liable for permitting an unmarried female under 18 years of age<sup>59</sup> to become an inmate thereof.<sup>60</sup> An indictment in two counts, for "keeping and maintaining a lewd house" and "keeping a disorderly house," is not void for duplicity.<sup>61</sup> Upon trial of accused as owner of house used as bawdy house, deeds tending to show title in another are admissible,<sup>62</sup> but where the owner of a house or his agent who given to use of violent and abusive language is inadmissible as tending to establish self-defense in action for disturbing peace of a family by fighting. Wilcox v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 103 S. W. 774. On trial for using abusive language in the presence of a female, it is competent to show by prosecutrix what she said to accused and what accused said to her at time he used language charged. Nicholson v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 365. Evidence that defendants were together on day previous to committing assault on another person is admissible under charge of disturbing peace by fighting as tending to prove a conspiracy. Wilcox v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 103 S. W. 774. Evidence of agreement between defendants to entice victim to designated place for purpose of assaulting him is admissible under charge of disturbing the peace by fighting to show concert of action. Id.

58. Conviction is not sustained where it is shown that inmates are of good character and that during ten years they lived in the house the house was watched by authorities but no act of lewdness discovered. Jones v. State [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 559; Botts v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 155 F. 50; Hall v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 155 F. 52. Evidence that three females lived together and that men were seen frequenting their place by night and by day together with evidence of general reputation of the place and its inmates is sufficient to sustain conviction. Mimbs v. State [Ga. App.] 58 S. E. 499.

76. Also of county for six months. Brashear v. Brashear [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 568. The prerequisite of residence in the state for the statutory period is jurisdictional and must be both alleged and proved, except in case of adultery. Beekman v. Beekman [Fla.] 43 So. 923. A statute requiring the complainant to be "an actual resident" is construed to mean a legal domicile or established residence as distinguished from a mere temporary abode. Departure from an established domicile and residence elsewhere depends largely on the party's intention and the circumstances of the case. Bechtel v. Bechtel [Minn.] 112 N. W. 883. Sufficient proof of plaintiff's residence. Heer v. Heer [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 1013.

77. Where statute requires proof of at least two years' residence previous to time of filing petition, testimony a month thereafter that petitioner had been a resident for two years is insufficient to confer jurisdiction. West v. West, 38 Ind. App. 659, 78 N. E. 987. If the offense for which divorce is sought was committed in the state, it is sufficient that complainant be an actual res-wife may acquire a separate domicile if her welfare demands it or she may adopt that of her husband.<sup>78</sup> If a husband deserts his wife her domicile continues in state of the matrimonial domicile unless she acquires a new domicile elsewhere.<sup>79</sup> The state in which parties married and resided, and in which the husband deserted his wife, is the matrimonial domicile, and courts of such state have jurisdiction though the husband could not be served with process.<sup>80</sup> In Louisiana the practice is for the court to assign a residence to the wife pending suit for divorce.<sup>81</sup> Where, after a decree of divorce was set aside or bill of review and the original bill amended so as to meet a demurrer, and defendant filed a cross bill, the court had jurisdiction, as both parties were before it.<sup>82</sup>

Service of process on a nonresident defendant.<sup>83</sup>—Where the defendant in a divorce suit is a nonresident of the state, service by publication is usually provided for by statute.<sup>84</sup> The affidavit for an order of publication is jurisdictional, and failure to follow the statutory requirements thereof is fatal,<sup>85</sup> rendering void a decree of divorce based thereon.<sup>86</sup> If plaintiff secure an order of publication on affidavit of his attorney that defendant's residence was unknown, when in fact it was known by plaintiff, a divorce founded on such service will be set aside though defendant appears generally.<sup>87</sup> Though the defendant be absent from the state for an indefinite time, service of process upon him as a nonresident is insufficient if he have a legal residence and family domicile in the state at which service could have been perfected on him personally or by leaving a copy,<sup>88</sup> but if a subpoena is issued and returned without service, a statutory order of publication duly made and served on the defendant in another state is a sufficient service.<sup>88a</sup> The Minnesota statutes make no substantial change in the law as to service by publication in divorce suits.<sup>89</sup>

A wife by leaving her husband for just cause may acquire a residence in another state in which she may sue for divorce. Ransom v. Ransom, 54 Misc. 410, 104 N. Y. S. 198. Action for separation by wife, after husband failing to obtain divorce, went to another state to seek it, is properly brought in court of original domicile, and service may be had on him without the state. Woolworth v. Woolworth, 115 App. Div. 405, 100 N. Y. S. 865.

79. No presumption as to place of birth being domicile of wife. Hibbert v. Hibbert [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 1028.

80. Such desertion by husband does not affect wife's domicile for purposes of divorce. State v. Morse, 31 Utah, 213, 87 P. 705.

81. Rosenthal v. Rosenthal, 117 La. 786, 42 So. 270. After a husband has obtained a judgment of separation from bed and board for abandonment, the wife is justified in disobeying a summons to return to the matrimonial domicile, if the court has assigned her another and different domicile pending the suit for divorce. Rohr v. Stechman [La.] 42 So. 991.

84. Proof that newspaper in which notice of suit was published was one of general circulation. Ruth v. Ruth, 39 Ind. App. 290, 79 N. E. 523.

85. Where statute allows order of service by publication to be based on allegation in petition, the petition must be sworn to by the plaintiff in person, and if not so sworn to it cannot be amended by a verification on the day of final decree, defendant not having appeared. Hinkle v. Lovelace, 204 Mo. 208, 102 S. W. 1015.

86. Cordray v. Cordray [Okla.] 91 P. 781. Judgment for costs based on improper service is void. Burch v. Burch, 116 App. Div. 565, 102 N. Y. S. 305.

87. Such order being obtained by fraud on the court. Metzler v. Metzler [Wis.] 113 N. W. 49.

88. Insufficiency of substituted service on attorney in such case. Stallings v. Stallings, 127 Ga. 464, 56 S. E. 469.

88a. Jurisdiction thus acquired will incidentally support a decree for alimony and custody of children. McGuinness v. McGuinness [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 937, commented on in 4 Mich. L. R. 556.

89. Insufficiency of affidavit to justify order of publication. Becklin v. Becklin, 99 Minn. 307, 109 N. W. 243.

90. See 7 C. L. 1177.

91. Under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 16, § 37, adultery is no ground for divorce a mense et thoro. Stewart v. Stewart [Md.] 66 A. 16.

93. Pfannebecker v. Pfannebecker, 133 Iowa, 425, 110 N. W. 618. Sufficient proof of abandonment, Johnson v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 644, 102 S. W. 943; Heer v. Heer [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 1013. Wife leaving husband at marriage altar, never living with him, and willfully refusing to do so for the statutory period, entitles him to divorce for desertion. Castilow v. Castilow, 60 W. Va. 586, 55 S. E. 592. Husband's desertion of wife with whom he lived but few months, and continued abandonment for statutory period, entitles her to divorce. Cain v. Cain, 29 Ky. L. R. 1163, 96 S. W. 1113. In Louisiana repeated abandonment of the wife, coupled with defamatory and insulting letters, are sufficient grounds for separation from bed and board. Dowden v. Dowden [La.] 44 So. 115.

94. To constitute desertion there must not only be a separation but also an intent to cease to live together with abnegation of marital duties. Kupka v. Kupka, 132 Iowa, 191, 109 N. W. 610. The intention to desert must be shown by some act or statement, as mere absence is insufficient. Stevens v. Stevens, 29 Ky. L. R. 953, 96 S. W. 811. Proof of the continuance of the separation is not sufficient unless the original separation is shown to have been a desertion. Desertion by plaintiff herself, who returned to her father's home in another state, and defendant merely failed to visit her. Sharp v. Sharp [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 985. Husband, after removing from foreign country, wrote wife to prepare to come over, she replying that she did not then want to come and requested him to send her money, which he did for some time, not sufficient proof of her desertion from date of refusal. Mizorowsky v. Mizorowsky [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 456.

95. Nagging by wife no excuse for desertion. McAndrews v. McAndrews, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 252.

96. In suit by wife for alimony, husband's agreement to pay it and also transportation to her father's home does not show that he is willing for her to leave, as affecting his right to divorce for desertion, if he was obliged to agree to it or let the court fix the amount. Klein v. Klein, 29 Ky. L. R. 1042, 96 S. W. 848. If parties agree by antenuptial contract to continue to live separately for awhile after marriage, the wife could not maintain a suit on the ground of abandonment until she had made an effort to require her husband to live with her. Dennison v. Dennison, 52 Misc. 37, 102 N. Y. S. 621. Under a statute making abandonment for a certain period ground for divorce, a husband whose wife remains absent for that period is entitled to a divorce, though he never urged her to return. Patterson v. Patterson [Wash.] 88 P. 196.

97. A party seeking a divorce on the statutory ground of abandonment by defendant without plaintiff's fault has the burden of proving that he was not to blame for the desertion. Adair v. Adair [Ky.] 104 S. W. 365.

98. Vercade v. Vercade, 147 Mich. 398, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1033, 110 N. W. 942.

99. Evidence held to show that husband did not make proper effort to persuade his wife to return. Smith v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 986.

1. Foote v. Foote [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 205.

2. If she leave the home of husband's parents where she was comfortably cared for merely because of difference with mother-in-law, and remain without state for statutory period, he is entitled to divorce. Klein v. Klein, 29 Ky. L. R. 1042, 96 S. W. 848.

3. Baurens v. Giroux, 117 La. 696, 42 So. 224.

4. Wife left husband because of ill treatment. Davenport v. Davenport, 106 Va. 736, 56 S. E. 562.

5. Especially if her physical condition justifies her refusal. Pfannebecker v. Pfannebecker, 133 Iowa, 425, 110 N. W. 618. Continued refusal of sexual intercourse by wife is not a desertion under Rev. St. 1899, § 2921. Williams v. Williams, 121 Mo. App. 349, 99 S. W. 42.

6. Single night's absence from home by husband not ground for wife leaving home and suing for divorce for abandonment. Heyman v. Heyman, 104 N. Y. S. 227.

Cruel and inhuman treatment and indignities<sup>7</sup> are ground for divorce in most states, what constitutes such treatment varying under different statutes.<sup>8</sup> For a wife to consistently refuse to cohabit with her husband has been held extreme cruelty warranting a divorce,<sup>9</sup> but similar refusal has been held not "indignity to the person" within the Pennsylvania statute.<sup>10</sup> What constitutes cruel treatment is a question of law for the court.<sup>11</sup>

7. See 7 C. L. 1179.

8. Physical violence and threats thereof: A husband who withholds from his wife the affectionate regard due her, uses abusive language to her, and seizes her person with violence and threats of greater injury, is guilty of cruelty. Davenport v. Davenport, 106 Va. 736, 56 S. E. 562. Personal violence and abusive language on several occasions sufficient. Hullinger v. Hullinger, 133 Iowa, 269, 110 N. W. 470. Infrequent acts of cruelty culminating in physical violence and abusive words are grounds for divorce, especially if plaintiff be mere girl. Boyle v. Boyle [N. J. Eq.] 67 A. 690. Blows and threats amounting to cruelty. Sharp v. Sharp [Md.] 66 A. 463. Kicking and beating wife and falsely accusing her of adultery as constituting cruelty. McNulty v. McNulty, 104 N. Y. S. 251. Threats of mistreatment of such flagrant and violent kind as to cause reasonable and abiding fear of bodily violence are ground for divorce. Beekman v. Beekman [Fla.] 43 So. 923. An assault on a husband by the wife's brother, brought on by an attempt of the wife to get possession of her child, is not an act of cruelty entitling the husband to a divorce. Galigher v. Galigher [Or.] 89 P. 146. Repeated physical violence coupled with abuse held sufficient. Quick v. Quick, 132 Iowa, 302, 109 N. W. 783; Guerin v. Guerin [Wash.] 88 P. 928. Forcible removal of wife from room on one occasion because she was using obscene language not cruelty. Bain v. Bain [Neb.] 113 N. W. 141.

Verbal abuse and false accusations: Repeated false charges by wife of adultery producing constant turmoil and bringing husband into public disrepute held sufficient. Williams v. Williams [Minn.] 112 N. W. 528. Continuous fault finding, threats, etc., intended to annoy the other party, may cause such mental suffering as to be ground for divorce, though each act be trifling in itself. Mosher v. Mosher [N. D.] 113 N. W. 99. For a wife to habitually use obscene and profane language before her husband and third persons against his wishes is ground for divorce, if it causes him humiliation and mental suffering. Id. Nagging and accusations of infidelity may endanger life, but whether they do or not is a question of fact. Husband's life held not endangered thereby. Pfannebecker v. Pfannebecker, 133 Iowa, 425, 110 N. W. 618. Repeated false accusations of adultery publicly made, coupled with neglect, held sufficient. Massey v. Massey [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 977. Accusations of adultery amounting to cruelty. Markowski v. Markowski [Wash.] 87 P. 914. Abusive language towards and groundless charges of unchastity against the wife do not entitle her to a divorce, if she left nearly a year afterwards for entirely different reasons. Gray v. Gray [Ark.] 98 S. W. 975. Threats, false accusations, and constant fault finding and abuse by husband held sufficient. Viertel v. Viertel, 123 Mo. App. 63, 99 S. W. 759. But for a wife to repeatedly and causelessly accuse her husband of adultery in the presence of others is held to be extreme cruelty. Campbell v. Campbell [Mich.] 112 N. W. 481. Mere occasional ill temper will not justify a divorce on the ground of extreme cruelty. Haines v. Haines [Neb.] 113 N. W. 125. Statements which might be ground for divorce, if not caused by the conduct of the other party, do not constitute such ground if so caused. Mosher v. Mosher [N. D.] 113 N. W. 99. In Florida the habitual indulgence of a violent temper is ground for divorce, but mere petulance and temporary irritation or capriciousness is not habitual indulgence in violent temper. Beekman v. Beekman [Fla.] 43 So. 923. Telling wife that other men would provide money for her aid to get it from them, and that he had good time with other women, as to whom if she was half as pretty he would not be ashamed of her. Wares v. Wares, 122 Mo. App. 129, 98 S. W. 91. Persistent villification and abuse of wife ruining her health held cruelty. Gehrkin v. Kinberger, 118 La. 458, 43 So. 50. Abusive language not shown to have seriously wounded feelings of wife or destroyed her peace of mind insufficient. Whitney v. Whitney [Neb.] 110 N. W. 555. Irritability and occasional outbreaks of temper held insufficient. Gray v. Gray [Ark.] 98 S. W. 975.

Neglect of domestic duty: Continued neglect by wife of household duties and frequent protracted absence at religious meetings not "indignities." Johnson v. Johnson, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 53. That husband was gambler and neglected his family and wasted his money therein not sufficient. Wisner v. Wisner [Mich.] 112 N. W. 948. Failure to prepare meals and perform other duties held not cruelty. Smith v. Smith, 146 Mich. 686, 13 Det. Leg. N. 929, 110 N. W. 59; 111 N. W. 342.

Conduct productive of mental anguish: Husband's habit of stealing goods and concealing them about house as ground for divorce. Galigher v. Galigher [Or.] 89 P. 146. In the absence of physical violence, cruelty as a ground for divorce must produce a degree of mental anguish which threatens to impair health, or renders cohabitation unsafe. Bush v. Bush [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 757, 103 S. W. 217; Beekman v. Beekman [Fla.] 43 So. 923. Evidence of persistent undue familiarities by wife with other men held to render cohabitation insupportable. Duvall v. Duvall [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 975, 101 S. W. 521.

11. Definition under Code 1895, § 2427. Brown v. Brown [Ga.] 58 S. E. 826.

Habitual drunkenness<sup>12</sup> as a cause of divorce requires both drinking to intoxication<sup>13</sup> and that the same shall be habitual.<sup>14</sup>

Conviction of crime.<sup>15</sup>—Condemnation to an infamous punishment is ground for divorce even after a full pardon has been granted.<sup>16</sup>

Adultery.<sup>17</sup>—The adultery of either party usually entitles the other to a divorce,<sup>18</sup> but the uncorroborated evidence of one party which is contradicted by the other is insufficient proof of adultery.<sup>19</sup> In New York, if the defendant in a suit for adultery puts the act of adultery in issue, he is entitled to a jury trial of such issue.<sup>20</sup>

Impotency.<sup>21</sup>—If owing to a malformation the wife is prevented from having sexual intercourse, and she knew of her incapacity before marriage without informing her husband thereof, he is entitled to a divorce.<sup>22</sup>

Failure or refusal of the husband to support the wife.<sup>23</sup>—In some states failure or refusal of the husband to support the wife is a good ground for divorce.<sup>24</sup> An antenuptial agreement releasing the husband from liability for support, is void as against public policy, and is no defense to a suit for divorce by the wife for refusal to support her on request.<sup>25</sup>

§ 3. Defenses and facts constituting a bar.<sup>26</sup>—If the court believes that an absent party who has only been served by publication, has a good defense, it may continue the hearing and order an investigation by the prosecuting attorney.<sup>27</sup> Insanity at the time of committing adultery precludes a divorce on that ground,<sup>28</sup> but insanity at the time of trial is no bar.<sup>29</sup>

McCune v. McCune, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 248. Occupying same apartments for long period. Dings v. Dings, 123 Ill. App. 318. Mere imprudent conduct justifying suspicion not enough. Jones v. Jones, 124 Ill. App. 201. Evidence of opportunity and inclination held insufficient. Hutchinson v. Hutchinson, 53 Misc. 438, 104 N. Y. S. 1674. In suits for adultery the measure of proof is the preponderance of the evidence with the presumption of innocence being weighed in favor of the accused. Taft v. Taft [Vt.] 67 A. 703. After proof of two acts of adultery and an adulterous disposition, evidence of other opportunities is admissible. Id. Though the cause of divorce must have existed before commencement of suit, evidence tending to prove adultery since its commencement is admissible to show a lustful relationship with the co-

Condonation.<sup>34</sup>—Condonation is a forgiveness followed by a reconciliation and reinstatement to such conjugal cohabitation as is adaptable to the circumstances.<sup>35</sup> Such reconciliation of the parties after the fact which might have been ground for separation extinguishes the cause of action,<sup>36</sup> but merely living in the same house without resumption of marital relations is no proof of condonation.<sup>37</sup> Condonation is revoked and the original cause for divorce revived by the guilty party resuming the former misconduct.<sup>38</sup> The possibility of a reconciliation by a reasonable effort on the plaintiff's part may preclude the necessity for granting a divorce.<sup>39</sup>

Recrimination.<sup>40</sup>—Recrimination need not be of the same nature as the ground relied on by the plaintiff, but it must be such as would be a legal ground for divorce.<sup>41</sup> If each party alleges and proves cruelty on the part of the other, neither is entitled to a divorce on that ground.<sup>42</sup>

§ 4. Practice and procedure.<sup>43</sup>—Where the same charge is ground for either absolute divorce or divorce a mensa et thoro, the court may in its discretion grant either.<sup>44</sup> If, in a suit for divorce by the wife, the husband obtains a decree for divorce on a counterclaim, he is liable for her costs including a reasonable attorney's fee.<sup>45</sup> In divorce suits the chancery court will enforce purely equitable rules and maxims against the complainant.<sup>46</sup>

Pleading.<sup>47</sup>—The petition must allege residence for the statutory period before the filing thereof in order to show jurisdiction.<sup>48</sup> Demurrer is the proper method of taking advantage of a petition which does not contain such allegation as would warrant a divorce, but of the objection goes to the whole petition except the prayer for spondent to spend evening alone is guilty of connivance. Noyes v. Noyes [Mass.] 79 N. E. 814. A husband will not be granted a divorce for a single act of adultery by his wife if he connived at it and in legal contemplation consented to it. Delaney v. Delaney [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 217. Insufficiency of proof of plaintiff's connivance in scheme to cause adultery. Lindbarger v. Lindbarger [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 870. Fact that plaintiff's detective went with defendant to house of prostitution is not a connivance at his deliberate act of adultery. Tuck v. Tuck, 117 App. Div. 421, 102 N. Y. S. 688.

35. Offer by wife to keep house but expressly refusing to continue "wifely relations" not a condonation. Taber v. Taber [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 1082. Where husband living separate from wife with knowledge of her infidelity sends her word of his illness and she thereupon comes and waits on him until his recovery, condonation will be implied. *Phelps v. Condonation is a conditional forgiveness of all antecedent acts of cruelty, and if they have been condoned by subsequent cohabitation such acts will not be revived as a ground for divorce, except by fresh acts of cruelty. Brown v. Brown [Ga.] 58 S. E. 825.

41. Wife charged adultery and husband set up desertion as recrimination. Court cannot find against the desertion and dismiss the complaint on the ground that the wife was not mindful of her marital obligations. Cushman v. Cushman [Mass.] 79 N. E. 809. Defense of plaintiff's adultery must be properly pleaded and supported by enough proof to sustain a divorce on that ground. De Marco v. De Marco, 116 App. Div. 304, 101 N. Y. S. 600. In suit by wife for desertion, proof of her adultery is a good defense, though husband also be guilty of adultery. Hawkins v. Hawkins, 105 N. Y. S. 889.

A suit to annul the marriage, on the ground that at the time of the marriage the plaintiff was of unsound mind, is a proceeding for divorce, and the complaint must be verified to give the court jurisdiction. Johnson v. Johnson, 142 N. C. 462, 55 S. E. 341.

alimony, the defense is properly made by answer, as a demurrer would admit the charge.<sup>49</sup> Unless the time and place of the adultery charged and the name of the co-respondent are alleged, they cannot be proved.<sup>50</sup> A petition alleging unfounded accusations of immorality and slanderous repetition of same to third persons is not open to general demurrer where the statute makes treatment rendering living together "insupportable" a ground for divorce.<sup>51</sup> Though plaintiff be unable to maintain a charge of desertion, divorce may be granted defendant on a cross bill alleging abandonment by plaintiff without cause, if such allegation be sustained.<sup>52</sup> An answer, in a divorce suit on the ground of desertion, stating that the absence was caused by the plaintiff leaving home ostensibly in search of work and that defendant sent him money and urged him to return is sufficient.<sup>53</sup> An answer in which the defendant by way of cross petition prays for alimony and injunction should be verified.<sup>54</sup> Mere clerical errors not affecting the merits of the case be amended by leave of court, but until properly corrected a decree should not be granted, if the errors make the record confusing or misleading.<sup>55</sup>

Evidence and proof.<sup>56</sup>—The evidence of witnesses to prove grounds of divorce must be weighed as in other cases.<sup>57</sup> If all the evidence proves the grounds alleged, it is error to dismiss the petition.<sup>58</sup> It is reversible error for the court after hearing plaintiff's evidence to interrupt defendant's testimony and grant a divorce denying defendant's prayer of cross complaint.<sup>59</sup> Where the parties lived together and were recognized by society as husband and wife, the burden is on the party denying the marriage if the evidence thereto is conflicting,<sup>60</sup> but proof of marriage by one uncontradicted witness is sufficient to establish it.<sup>61</sup> A divorce for desertion will not be granted merely on the uncorroborated testimony of the party seeking it,<sup>62</sup> but a statute requiring corroborative evidence does not necessitate the testimony of the other witnesses.<sup>63</sup> Where evidence of good character is made inadmissible in civil suits by statute, proof of a wife's good character is not admissible in a suit against her for adultery.<sup>64</sup>

Conclusiveness of decrees; vacation and modification.<sup>68</sup>—A verdict of the jury resting on only one party's testimony will not be set aside if both parties are competent,<sup>69</sup> but though the court announce that a divorce decree would be granted and the property disposed of in a certain way, if at the request of both parties no decree was entered or signed, the plaintiff is estopped to assert in a subsequent suit that the former was valid and binding.<sup>70</sup> Though a decree of divorce was not entered by the clerk until after one of the parties had remarried, a proper entry nunc pro tunc may be made.<sup>71</sup> Where by fraud of defendant a divorce decree makes no provision for alimony, such decree may be impeached and alimony granted without disturbing the divorce decree.<sup>72</sup> A divorce suit being personal, the decree for divorce will not be set aside, after the death of the successful party, for lack of jurisdiction,<sup>73</sup> but a decree which is void because of insufficiency of the petition is subject to collateral attack.<sup>74</sup> A petition to reopen a judgment of divorce must allege sufficient reasons therefor.<sup>75</sup> A motion by plaintiff to set aside a divorce decree, for want of jurisdiction, cannot be opposed by intervention of a third party on the ground that his title to property will be affected thereby.<sup>76</sup>

Appeal and review.<sup>77</sup>—No appeal lies in divorce suits except by statutory or constitutional provision, and though so provided for in most states, no such right is conferred in Rhode Island in either divorces a vinculo or a mensa et thoro.<sup>78</sup> If all the facts are before the appellate court, it will finally determine what the decree should be and direct the lower court to enter it.<sup>79</sup> The weight and sufficiency of the evidence in divorce suits will not usually be reviewed on appeal.<sup>80</sup> It will be presumed on appeal, where the evidence is not preserved and made part of the record, that the decree of the lower court was sustained by the proof.<sup>81</sup> A decree for divorce and order dividing the property are so independent that a new trial may be asked and appeal taken as to the order of division alone.<sup>82</sup> On appeal from a divorce decree determining property rights, the case must be reviewed in order to adjust the property rights, notwithstanding plaintiff's subsequent death.<sup>83</sup> At any time before final decree the entire proceedings may be reviewed and new evidence introduced.<sup>84</sup> It is too late for plaintiff to urge for the first time on appeal that defendant should have obeyed the court's order to return home or submitted to the order of separation.<sup>85</sup>

tody if she become able to support it and is a proper person to raise it.<sup>95</sup> Though a father be deprived of the custody of his children by a divorce decree for his misconduct, he is not thereby relieved of his obligation to support them.<sup>96</sup> Where a decree awarding the custody of a child to one parent is made subject to the order of the court, it may be modified by proof that changed conditions have made it for the best interest of the child to be given into the control of the other parent.<sup>97</sup> Where all the prayers of plaintiff as to custody of children and share of property are granted, the decree cannot be subsequently modified so as to require defendant to pay an additional sum for the care and education of the children.<sup>98</sup>

An infant child of divorced parents is not deprived of his right to the support of his father by the fact that the custody of such infant is given to the mother. Sipple v. Laclede Gaslight Co., 125 Mo. App. 81, 102 S. W. 608. Though children whose custody was awarded by a divorce decree to the mother be illegally removed by her from the state, the father is not thereby relieved from an obligation imposed on him by the court to provide for their support without complaint to the court of such removal. Feinberg v. Feinberg [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 610. The dissensions of parents do not release the father from the obligation to support his children, and the fact that he has obtained a decree of divorce in another state, after a separation which continued for many years, does not bar recovery by the wife from him of money expended in the support of their children prior to the granting of the decree, nor can aggression on her part be inferred as a matter affecting the rights of children, where the decree assigns no cause for the divorce and makes no provision for alimony or for the children. *Clark v. Interlocutory judgment disposing of children's custody cannot be modified by another court. Powers v. Powers, 104 N. Y. S. 94. An order denying a petition by a mother for the restoration of young children, awarded to the father's custody by a divorce decree, should provide that it is without prejudice to her right to again apply for the privilege based on her future good conduct. Bakley v. Bakley [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 440. The continuing jurisdiction which is vested in the court of common pleas with reference to the custody of children for the purpose of modifying orders in divorce proceedings does not authorize a rehearing of a matter theretofore submitted and determined, but is only to be called into exercise when a substantial change in the condition of the parties requires a modification of the former order. Graviess v. Graviess, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. C.) 135. On a petition for modification of a decree awarding the custody of a child to the husband, testimony of the wife's understanding of an agreement relating thereto should be excluded if conflicting with the record. Where the court's finding was "from the evidence adduced." Chappell v. Chappell [Wash.] 89 P. 166. Order awarding custody of young children to mother may be modified, when boy becomes old enough to require father's control, by permitting him to go to father, and younger ones to remain with mother, if she is still the better one to raise them. Schultze v. Schultze [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 950. Decree permitting husband to have children with him for certain time provided they consent will not be modified so as to allow him to take them without their consent. Hullinger v. Hullinger, 133 Iowa, 269, 110 N. W. 470. Under Vermont statute giving court granting divorce power to make such further order as appears proper concerning the custody of minor children, an adjudication on a habeas corpus before a supreme court judge as to child's custody does not affect jurisdiction by court which divorced its parents to determine the question. Whittier v. McFarland, 79 Vt. 365, 65 A. 81.

divorce suit for a division of their property is valid.<sup>3</sup> In adjusting the property rights of the parties the courts exercise a wide discretion in making as equitable adjustment as possible.<sup>4</sup> Where the court is empowered by statute to divide the husband's estate with the wife as it might deem right, a division by entirety is proper.<sup>5</sup> The court may award to the wife specific articles of personal property from the husband's estate.<sup>6</sup> If community property is not disposed of by the divorce decree, it is thereafter held by the parties as tenants in common.<sup>7</sup> If the wife out of her earnings has paid off a mortgage on the homestead, she is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee, though the divorce be rendered in the husband's favor.<sup>8</sup> By statute in some states property obtained by one party from the other in consideration or by reason of the marriage must upon divorce be restored.<sup>9</sup> A third party who is joint owner of lands that might be in controversy in a divorce suit may become a party by interpleader to have partition thereof.<sup>10</sup>

§ 7. Effect of divorce.<sup>11</sup>—Decrees of divorce mensa et thoro do not involve any severance of the marital relation.<sup>12</sup> The disabilities of coverture are not removed by a void divorce, but continue until the death of the consort.<sup>13</sup> In Louisiana a marriage between one who has been divorced for adultery and the accomplice in such adultery is absolutely void and has no civil effect, if the accomplice knew that the other party was married at the time of the adultery.<sup>14</sup>

§ 8. Foreign divorces.<sup>15</sup>—A divorce decree rendered in a foreign state is void and may be collaterally attacked, if the plaintiff therein was not at the time a resident of such foreign state but of the state of the forum, and hence a subsequent marriage in the foreign state is invalid in the state of the forum.<sup>16</sup> Though under the

DOCKETS, CALENDARS AND TRIAL LISTS.

Right to Go on the Calendar (1008).
Placing Cause on Calendar (1008).
Posting of Trial List (1009).
Passing or Advancing Cause (1009).

Transfer, Correction, or Striking Off (1009).
Short-Cause Calendar (1009).
Reinstatement and Restoration (1010).

The topic treats only of the calendars of trial courts,<sup>18</sup> and excludes docket entries as judicial records,<sup>19</sup> and consolidation or severance of cases at trial.<sup>20</sup>

Right to go on the calendar.<sup>21</sup>—The statutes usually prescribe the conditions upon which cases are entitled to go on the calendar.<sup>22</sup> Where an appellate court remands with directions to amend the decree in specified particulars, the case need not be placed on the chancery calendar for a rehearing.<sup>23</sup> A contested motion may be heard in Illinois without placing it on the contested motion calendar.<sup>24</sup> The special term in allowing an amendment to the complaint may preserve the position of the case on the trial term calendar;<sup>25</sup> nonpayment of docketing fee does not authorize the dismissal of an appeal to the district court from the action of the supervisors on a statement of consent for sale of liquors.<sup>26</sup>

Placing cause on calendar.<sup>27</sup>—Although a case has been placed upon the calendar of the Utah district court, it is not entitled to go upon the calendar of succeeding terms unless noticed therefor.<sup>28</sup> While the allotment of a case in the civil district court of Louisiana may be waived, a litigant may insist thereon.<sup>29</sup> Where the clerk does not docket a case because of a pending motion to strike a plea, upon disposing thereof, the court may order it docketed for the same term.<sup>30</sup> By statute in many states a preference is given to certain classes of cases,<sup>31</sup> unless the party en-though record contains averment of citizenship. State v. Westmoreland [S. C.] 56 S. E. 673. Though defendant knew of the decree and suggested a separation. But if the foreign court had jurisdiction by reason of the husband's domicile and the domicile of matrimony being in that state, it may consider it still the domicile of the wife though she has left the state, thus rendering its decree valid in other states. Post v. Post, 105 N. Y. S. 910. After husband who had deserted wife obtained default decree of divorce in foreign state, a decree of separation subsequently obtained by the wife in home state is an adjudication of the invalidity of such foreign divorce in home state. Olmsted v. Olmsted, 51 Misc. 309, 100 N. Y. S. 1083.

Code 1906, p. 13, an equitable action in which some of defendants were not summoned but appeared during term and joined issue is not triable at such term unless plaintiff consents that answer be taken as true. *Howard v. 27. See 7 C. L. 1192.

28. District court rule 21, providing that clerk shall make up trial calendar five days before first day of each term and include all cases at issue noticed for the term prior to making up of calendar held not void as conflicting with Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3131, 3132 (Riddle v. Quinn [Utah.] 90 P. 893), and to require service of notice before each term. (Id.)

30. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Scarborough [Fla.] 42 So. 706.

31. Code Civ. Proc. § 791, subd. 13 (Laws 1902, p. 943, c. 357), giving preference to actions for "absolute" divorce, etc., held to be inapplicable to action for separation. Seligman v. Seligman, 52 Misc. 9, 100 N. Y. S. 770. Fact that preferred case has resulted in three mistrials and is disorganizing business of court does not justify court in refusing to set case for trial. State v. Reid [La.] 44 So. 689. In absence of special circumstances, fact that sole de-titled thereto waives the right by untimely application.<sup>32</sup> A motion for preference because of plaintiff's failing health and probable death is addressed to the discretion of the court.<sup>33</sup> The taking of the statutory preference does not preclude a party from advancing his case under the rules of court as a case triable in two hours.<sup>34</sup>

Posting of trial list.<sup>35</sup>

Passing or advancing cause.<sup>36</sup>—The passing or advancing of a case upon the calendar rests largely within the discretion of the trial court.<sup>37</sup>

Transfer, correction, or striking off.<sup>38</sup>—Where an equity suit is erroneously brought in the law court,<sup>39</sup> or a law action in the chancery court,<sup>40</sup> or the nature of the action is changed after it is properly instituted,<sup>41</sup> it may be transferred to the proper docket upon timely application.<sup>42</sup> Where a case has been abandoned,<sup>43</sup> or is otherwise improperly upon the calendar, it may be stricken off on timely motion.<sup>44</sup>

Short-cause calendar.<sup>45</sup>—Lack of sufficient notice to place a case on the short-cause calendar is not a jurisdictional irregularity.<sup>46</sup>

fendant is executor only entitles case to preference over non-preferred issues, noticed for same term. Gegan v. Union Trust Co., 105 N. Y. S. 243.

32. Where state officer failed to move for trial on day stated in notice for trial, he waived his right and his motion for order declaring case a preferred one, and setting it for trial at later date was addressed to discretion of court. Clement v. Mast, 103 N. Y. S. 1025. Failure to assert right to preference when issues are first noticed for trial waives right. Gegan v. Union Trust Co., 105 N. Y. S. 243. And it is not revived by amendment of complaint not changing cause of action. Id. Where both parties noticed case for trial at November term and plaintiff, an infant, gave notice of motion for preference but defaulted on hearing, he waived his right to preference, and subsequent notice for another term does not avoid the effect thereof. Meyerson v. Levy, 117 App. Div. 475, 102 N. Y. S. 704.

33. Ortner v. New York City R. Co., 54 Misc. 83, 104 N. Y. S. 502. Affidavit of physician held not to show such immediate necessity and compelling circumstances as to warrant preference. Id. Appellate division will not interfere with order of trial judge preferring a case and setting it for trial on day certain because of extreme age of plaintiff. Hickman v. Schimper & Co., 105 N. Y. S. 636.

34. Plaintiff, in action against corporation on note, by obtaining preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 791, authorizing preference in such actions, does not preclude himself from having cause advanced under city court of New York rule 2, as case triable in two hours. *Ferrara v. 35. See 5 C. L. 1039.

36. See 7 C. L. 1193.

37. Where parties answer ready to call off case on reserve section of day calendar, case will not be passed when reached on ready section in absence of excuse. Loehr v. Brooklyn Ferry Co., 115 App. Div. 666, 101 N. Y. S. 209.

38. See 7 C. L. 1193.

39. Fact that long and complicated account is involved does not entitle party as a matter of right to transfer to equity docket, since law court has jurisdiction. Bagnell Tie & Timber Co. v. Goodrich [Ark.] 102 S. W. 228. In Arkansas it is held that, where answer presents defense at law, it is error to transfer case to equity. Equitable Mfg. Co. v. Thomasson, 78 Ark. 240, 95 S. W. 459.

40. Where law case is transferred to equity, parties believing that certain statute made action equitable, upon repeal thereof either party may have case transferred to law docket. Sharrock v. Kreiger, 6 Ind. T. 466, 98 S. W. 161. Where plaintiff sued in equity for specific performance to which relief he was not entitled, case was properly transferred to law calendar for trial where cause of action for damages was stated. *Robinson v. ### DOMICILE.

Domicile for particular purposes, such as voting,<sup>49</sup> jurisdiction,<sup>50</sup> and the probate of wills,<sup>51</sup> is more fully treated in appropriate topics. Effect of the lex domicilii in foreign jurisdictions is also treated elsewhere.<sup>52</sup>

Definition, elements, and establishment.<sup>53</sup>—Domicile is the actual or constructive presence of a person in a given place, coupled with the intention to remain there permanently.<sup>54</sup> It is distinguishable from "citizenship" in that the latter is a matter of public, while the former is of private, concern.<sup>55</sup> "Inhabitant" or "resident" ordinarily indicates a person with a fixed domicile,<sup>56</sup> but the word "residence" will not be construed as synonymous with "domicile" if, thereby, the usefulness of a law will be impaired.<sup>57</sup> A residence may be claimed apart from domicile on question of venue.<sup>58</sup> Where a dwelling is on a dividing line, residence is determined by the location of that part most closely connected with the primary purposes of a dwelling.<sup>59</sup> The husband's domicile is the wife's even though she maintain a separate establishment in another state,<sup>60</sup> or is deserted by him.<sup>61</sup> Minors are incapable of choosing a domicile,<sup>62</sup> hence, the father's<sup>63</sup> or guardian's domicile is theirs.<sup>64</sup> Where both parents are dead the minor's domicile is fixed by that of the last surviving parent,<sup>65</sup> hence, the domicile of the child changes with that of the father<sup>66</sup> and is not affected by agreement between the parents,<sup>67</sup> nor, except temporarily, by a

65. People v. Hendrickson, 54 Misc. 337, 104 N. Y. S. 122. Father of minor died at his domicile in Arkansas. At time of action minor resided in North Carolina. No evidence that mother had changed her status after the father's death. Minor's domicile was where father died. Nunn v. Robertson, 80 Ark. 350, 97 S. W. 293.

66. Hering v. Mosher, 144 Mich. 152, 13 Det. Leg. N. 183, 107 N. W. 917; Lanning v. Gregory [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 587, 99 S. W. 542, followed in [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 136, 101 S. W. 484.

67. Parents domiciled and divorced in Texas. Agreement between them that father should give mother custody and control of child whenever she desired it. Father removed to Louisiana, which was held to be the domicile of the child, notwithstanding the agreement. Lanning v. Gregory [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 587, 99 S. W. 542, followed in [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 136, 101 S. W. 484.

judgment of a court not having jurisdiction.<sup>68</sup> At the father's death, however, the grandfather, having lawful control of the minor, may change its domicile.<sup>69</sup> The domicile of a female minor is not changed by marriage.<sup>70</sup> The wife of an insane husband may change her domicile.<sup>71</sup> Abandonment of a wife by the husband will not effect such change,<sup>72</sup> nor will the annexation of territory work a change of residence, unless the party is then dwelling upon the land, actually or in legal contemplation.<sup>73</sup> To accomplish a change of domicile, not only must the intent to do so exist,<sup>74</sup> but there must be an actual removal accompanied with such intent.<sup>75</sup> A change of domicile will not operate to change allegiance.<sup>76</sup>

Issues and evidence.<sup>77</sup>—The presumption that a minor's domicile is with the parent may be rebutted by showing a different state of facts.<sup>78</sup> Residence, once established, is presumed to continue till the contrary is shown,<sup>79</sup> therefore, permanent change of residence will not be inferred from removal alone,<sup>80</sup> and the law will not presume the place of birth the domicile unless the last domicile was definitely abandoned and no new one adopted.<sup>81</sup> The unauthorized statements of third parties are insufficient to prove a change of domicile.<sup>82</sup> Domicile is a question of fact,<sup>83</sup> or law and fact, to be determined under the evidence.<sup>84</sup> So, too, a change of domicile is ordinarily a question of fact depending on the intent,<sup>85</sup> as evidenced by acts and declarations.<sup>86</sup> On motion for change of venue because plaintiff not domiciled where suit brought, burden of proof is on movant.<sup>87</sup>

68. Minor domiciled with father in Louisiana. On visit of minor to Texas mother brought habeas corpus proceedings for possession, which was awarded her. On appeal, judgment reversed and possession restored to father. Lanning v. Gregory [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 587, 99 S. W. 542, followed in [Tex. Civ. App.] 18 Tex. Ct. Rep. 210, 101 S. W. 484.

69. The father, on the death of the mother, and pursuant to agreement between them, placed his infant in the custody of its grandfather, where it remained for years. The grandfather's domicile was that of the infant's domicile of origin. The father went to a distant country, leaving the child behind, and died. The grandfather properly made application for guardianship in the county of his domicile. Hering v. Mosher, 144 Mich. 152, 13 Det. Leg. N. 183, 107 N. W. 917.

70. Minor domiciled with her parents in Ohio does not change her domicile by marriage with a man domiciled in Florida. Beekman v. Beekman [Fla.] 43 So. 923.

71. Husband insane and in confinement, wife becomes head of the family and may change her domicile to another state, leaving her husband behind. McKnight v. Dudley [C. C. A.] 148 F. 204.

72. Haddock v. Haddock, 201 U. S. 562, 50 Law Ed. 867; Hibbert v. Hibbert [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 1023. Husband and wife living in Utah. His abandonment of her and leaving the state did not effect a change in her domicile. State v. Morse, 31 Utah, 213, 87 P., 705.

73. Party's residential property was situated in the town of Barre. By act, the boundary line between said town and the city of Barre was so changed as to include the property in the latter place. At the time the act was passed the party was living in East Montpelier. East Montpelier v. Barre, 79 Vt. 542, 66 A. 100.

85. A married woman who is compelled to leave her husband's residence and reside in another state does not thereby change her domicile. Bechtel v. Bechtel [Minn.] 112 N. W. 883.

86. Party born in New Jersey, where he lived 45 years, went to New York and resided in a boarding house during the winters, returning to New Jersey in summer.

DOWER.

§ 1. Nature of Dight; Persons Entitled; Election (1012).
 § 2. In What Dower May be Had (1013).
 § 3. Extinguishment, Release or Bar, and Reviel of Dower (1013).

§ 4. Liens and Charges on Dower (1014).
 § 5. Assignment of Dower and Money Awards (1015).
 § 6. Remedies and Procedure (1015).

§ 1. Nature of right; persons entitled; election.<sup>91</sup>—The law favors dower,<sup>92</sup> but it is entirely within the control of the legislature until it becomes vested by the death of the husband,<sup>93</sup> and common-law dower has in many states been abolished or modified by statute.<sup>94</sup> The right is governed by the law in force at the death of the husband.<sup>95</sup> Where pending administration of his estate in bankruptcy the bankrupt dies, his widow's right to draw is governed by the Federal bankrupt act and not by the laws of the particular state in which the property is situate.<sup>96</sup> The wife's inchoate right prior to her husband's death is not a vested interest,<sup>97</sup> and it is generally held that it does not become vested until assignment,<sup>98</sup> but it is an incumbrance upon the husband's real estate.<sup>99</sup> In Indiana, if upon a judicial sale of a husband's land, the wife's inchoate dower interest is not directed to be sold, such interest will become absolute in the wife when the legal title to the property sold vests in the purchaser.<sup>1</sup> The income from the dower estate during its existence

He owned no property in New York but voted and paid personal tax there several years prior to his death. Some months prior to death he left New York, expressing intent not to return but to remain in New Jersey, where he was at his decease. He was a resident of New Jersey. In re White's Estate, 116 App. Div. 183, 101 N. Y. S. 551. Evidence that party had left witness' house, taking all his clothes, declaring he was going west, and that he never returned, was sufficient to show non-residence. Kelson v. Detroit, etc., Co., 146 Mich. 563, 13 Det. Leg. N. 850, 109 N. W. 1057.

93. Griswold v. McGee [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1020; Hilton v. Thatcher, 31 Utah, 360, 88 P. 20. Until vested legislature may modify, abrogate, increase, or diminish it at pleasure, at least as it affects the wife. Id.

94. Abolished in Minnesota. Griswold v. McGee [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1020. Under § 17 organic act establishing a territorial government, and Const. art. 24, § 2, the common law respecting dower was in force while Utah was a territory, and continued in force after it became a state, except as modified by statutory enactment. Hilton v. Thatcher, 31 Utah, 360, 88 P. 20. It was in force continuously from 1837 to Jan. 1, 1898. Id. Rev. St. § 2832, which provides that "there shall be neither dower nor curtesy," construed in connection with § 2826, held not to bar recovery by widow of a third interest in property conveyed by husband without her consent previous to enactment to those sections. Id. Widow, upon husband's death, held to have become seized in fee simple of one-third interest in his interest in addition to property given her by will. Warner v. Hamill [Iowa] 111 N. W. 939.

95. Hilton v. Thatcher, 31 Utah, 360, 188 P. 20. Statutes creating a substitute for common-law dower speak as of the date of the death of the husband. Griswold v. McGee [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1020. Widow cannot take under a law repealed prior to that time. Id.

96. Except in so far only as such laws act for the determination of such right, are adopted and preserved by the bankrupt. Hurley v. Devlin, 151 F. 919.

97. Griswold v. McGee [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1020; Arnold v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 452. The wife's right under the Minnesota statutes is inchoate and does not become vested until the husband's death. Griswold v. McGee [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1020.

98. Fishel v. Browning [N. C.] 58 S. E. 759. Until dower has been lawfully assigned, the right thereto is a nearer chose in action, and confers no title to or seizure of the land itself. Munsey v. Hanly [Me.] 67 A. 217. Dower after death of husband and before assignment is not an estate in the realty and is unassignable. Francis v. Sandlin [Ala.] 43 So. 829. Until assignment the widow has no right to retain possession of her deceased husband's lands against the heir or those claiming under him. Fishel v. Browning [N. C.] 58 S. E. 759.

99. Saldutti v. Flynn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 246. It is such an incumbrance prior to assignment. Fishel v. Browning [N. C.] 58 S. E. 759. Where land is sold by administration to pay debts prior to assignment of dower, the wife's inchoate right works a breach of covenant against incumbrances contained in purchaser's deed. Id.

1. Act 1875, p. 178, c. 123, § 1 (Burn's Am. St. 1901, § 2669). Where the sale is belongs to the widow absolutely.<sup>2</sup> Dower is not lost to the widow by reason of her being insane.<sup>3</sup> In Georgia a widow is permitted to take in lieu of dower a child's share in her husband's estate.<sup>4</sup>

§ 2. In what dower may be had.<sup>5</sup>—The right of dower attaches to all the realty.<sup>6</sup> The widow is entitled to dower in lands in which her husband had a perfect equitable estate in fee simple,<sup>7</sup> and dower in the husband's equitable estates is sometimes conferred by statute.<sup>8</sup> At common law a widow was not dowable of an equity of redemption.<sup>9</sup> No dower attaches to an estate in remainder.<sup>10</sup> In New Jersey, in the case of an estate tail, the widow of the life tenant is entitled to dower.<sup>11</sup> Dower attaches to determinable estate.<sup>12</sup> An interest equivalent to dower is sometimes allowed by statute in the fund arising from the sale of husband's lands.<sup>13</sup> In Kentucky an adult child has no such interest in the homestead occupied by his widowed mother as will entitle his widow to dower when he dies before his mother.<sup>14</sup>

4. Civ. Code 1895, § 3395. Rountree v. Gaulden [Ga.] 53 S. E. 346. Such election must be exercised within 12 months from grant of letters testamentary or of administration. Civ. Code 1895, § 4639. Id. Election to take a child's part must affirmatively appear. Id. But if the widow deals with an interest in her husband's real estate as if she was absolute owner, an inference will arise that she has elected to take a child's part and the burden of proof will shift. Id. This is true though widow through mistake of law claims one-sixth interest when she is entitled to one-fifth. Id.

8. A title bond or contract for deed creates an equitable estate in real property, within Code, § 3368, providing that widow shall, with certain exceptions, be entitled to one-third of all the "legal and equitable estates in real property" possessed by husband during coverture. Hutchinson v. Olberding [Iowa] 112 N. W. 647.

9. Harris v. Powers [Ga.] 59 S. E. 1038. In Georgia where one makes deed to secure indebtedness and takes bond for reconveyance upon payment of debt, and dies without having paid any part of debt, or having obtained a reconveyance, his widow is not entitled to dower either in the land as a whole or in the equity of redemption, at least not without first redeeming the property. Id.

10. A wife has no dower interest in lands where the interest of the husband therein is but a vested remainder expectant upon a life estate. Russell v. Wales, 104 N. Y. S. 143. Where a trust is created by will to continue during the life of testator's widow with remainder over to his children, a son's wife has no inchoate dower right in the property during life of testator's widow. In re Faile, 51 Misc. 166, 100 N. Y. S. 856.

12. Midyette v. Grubbs [N. C.] 58 S. E. 795. A grant of the standing timber on certain land to be removed within a time specified creates a qualified fee in such timber to which dower attaches, but the dower right is determinable as to timber not removed within the time specified. Id.

13. Sale under P. L. 1857 p. 488, authorizing sale of lands limited over to infants or in contingency in cases where such sale will be beneficial. In re Dowe, 68 N. J. Eq. 11, 64 A. 803.

15. See 7 C. L. 1199.

16. If there is reasonable doubt as to whether provisions in an antenuptial contract are made in lieu of dower, the widow will take both. Provisions in this case held in addition to and not in lieu of dower. Brown v. Brown, 117 App. Div. 199, 102 N. Y. S. 291.

17. Bechtel v. Barton, 147 Mich. 318, 13 Det. Leg. N. 1047, 110 N. W. 935. But the contract and settlement must be equitable and fair. In this case it was not. Id.

18. Quitclaim deed of wife, whose husband was under guardianship held effectual under Rev. St. 1899, § 4334 (Am. St. 1906, p. 2377), to convey all her marital interests in the real estate of her husband sold by his curator. Dooley v. Greening, 201 Mo. 343, 100 S. W. 43. Where a husband conveys fee of certain lands, wife not joining provides, no contract of sale or conveyance made by a husband without the signature of the wife will operate to deprive her of her dower.<sup>20</sup> Under statutes in some states, however, dower may be extinguished by a conveyance of the husband alone, or by an execution or other judicial sale,<sup>21</sup> and inchoate dower is extinguished by the exercise of the power of eminent domain.<sup>22</sup> Where a wife accepts a deed in fee simple from her husband, her inchoate dower right is merged in the fee,<sup>23</sup> but a gift to the wife of lands not expressed to be in satisfaction of dower will not bar her dower in other lands of the husband.<sup>24</sup> An estoppel to claim dower may arise against the wife,<sup>25</sup> and, of course, her death extinguishes her interest, unless by statute the fee is conferred upon her.<sup>26</sup> A widow is not deprived of her dower on remarriage by a statute which makes her homestead right determinable in that event.<sup>27</sup>

in conveyance, and subsequently wife executes a quitclaim deed to purchaser in which husband does not join, she thereby releases her dower right, under Code, § 2919. Fowler v. Chadima [Iowa.] 111 N. W. 808.

19. A deed executed and acknowledged by husband and wife extinguishes inchoate right of dower. (Saldutti v. Flynn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 246), but an agreement to convey, though signed by wife, will not extinguish her inchoate right if she does not acknowledge it. Id. Under Code 1906, § 3079, where a wife joins in a deed conveying her husband's land, she thereby relinquishes her inchoate right of dower, and this notwithstanding a reservation clause reserving to grantors a "lifetime dower and support" in the land. Beverlin v. Casto [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 411.

20. Delaney v. Manshum, 146 Mich. 525, 13 Det. Leg. N. 876, 109 N. W. 1051. The foreclosure of a mortgage executed by a husband alone will not debar the wife of her inchoate right of dower in the premises mortgaged. Anderson v. McNeeley, 105 N. Y. S. 278.

21. Under Gen. Laws 1901, p. 34, c. 33, an execution sale of husband's lands prior to his death divests wife of her inchoate interest in such lands. Griswold v. McGee [Minn.] 112 N. W. 1020. This statute applies to cases in which marriage and seisin occurred prior to its enactment. Id. It is constitutional. Id. Under Gen. St. 1901, p. 2510, excluding a nonresident wife from any interest in lands in Kansas of which the husband has made a conveyance, or which have been sold on execution or other judicial sale, such wife cannot be excluded by a judgment which husband fraudulently procures to be rendered against him, an under which he causes the land to be sold on execution, and title to be passed to a party to the fraud. McKelvey v. McKelvey [Kan.] 89 P. 663. Under the Iowa statutes a sale under a trust deed executed by husband to secure a debt, if made in strict accordance with terms of deed, will bar dower right in property conveyed. *Pierce v. 25. By renunciation of her dower a wife is estopped from claiming title as against a mortgagee of husband. Wilkins v. Baker [S. C.] 57 S. E. 851. Certificate of notary that renunciation was made by wife upon private examination by him as required by statute is conclusive against an innocent purchaser or mortgagee. Id. Where after a sale of land decreed at suit of cotenants judgment creditors of one of them sought to have proceeds subjected to payment of their judgments, and the wife of such cotenant filed cross complaints asking that her right in such proceeds be decreed superior to that of creditors, she is estopped to claim that her interest in the land did not pass by the sale. Staser v. Gaar, Scott & Co. [Ind.] 79 N. E. 404. Facts held not to estop wife from asserting her dower right against husband's grantee. Stevens v. Wooderson, 38 Ind. App. 617, 78 N. E. 681.

St. 1906, pp. 1690, 2039, 2042), where a widow is vested with a homestead on the death of her husband (that being all the real estate of which he died seized), there is no merger of the homestead and dower interests, and the widow upon remarriage does not lose her dower Id.

§ 5. Assignment of dower and money awards.<sup>32</sup>—The measure of the dower interest to which the widow is entitled is generally determined by statute.<sup>33</sup> The assignment of dower must be made according to the statute in force at the time of the death of the husband,<sup>34</sup> except as against the existing rights of third persons in the lands of the husband, acquired by contract, in which case the assignment must be made under the law in force at the time of the contract.<sup>35</sup> The exception does not cover a judgment lien which is a creation of statute and not of contract.<sup>36</sup> The interest of the widow is in the land itself, to be apportioned to her out of each specific parcel.<sup>37</sup> This rule is sometimes modified by statute.<sup>38</sup> In Kentucky the widow is entitled to one-third of rents and profits of her husband's real estate from his death until dower is assigned, or until her death if she dies before assignment.<sup>39</sup> The effect of assignment is to change the widow's inchoate right into a vested estate.<sup>40</sup> The right to have dower assigned ends at the death of the widow.<sup>41</sup> The return of commissioners laying out dower is not admissible as tending to show title in the estate of the deceased husband as against persons who were neither parties nor privies to such assignment.<sup>42</sup> proceedings, the wife of one of the cotenants is entitled, under Act 1875, p. 178, c. 123, § 1, Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 2669, as against his judgment creditors, to such partition of the proceeds of the sale as is equivalent to her dower. Id. Stasar v. Gaar, Scott & Co., 38 Ind. App. 696, 78 N. E. 987.

Kirby's Dig. § 2709, providing that if husband dies leaving widow and "no children" widow shall be endowed of one-half of personal estate as against collateral heirs, does not apply where husband leaves no children but does leave a grandchild. Britton v. Oldham, 80 Ark. 252, 96 S. W. 1066. Code 1896, § 1506, construed in connection with §§ 1505, 1507, and 1462, does not deny dower to a widow whose husband dies without lineal descendants, where the widow at his death possesses a statutory separate estate greater in value than her dower interest, but of less value than the personal estate. The restriction of § 1507, however, applies in such case, and the widow will only be allowed so much as will, when added to the value of her separate estate, equal the value of her estimated dower interest and distributive share. Guice v. Guice [Ala.] 43 So. 199. Rev. St. 1899, § 3621, diminishing dower by amount of interest of widow in homestead, has no application where widow elects, in lieu of dower, to take child's portion under § 2944. Quail v. Lomas, 200 Mo. 674, 98 S. W. 617.

34. Davidson v. Richardson [Or.] 89 P. 742. In an action for the establishment of dower the calculation of the dower interest by the law in force at the time is not rendered incorrect by the subsequent repeal of such law by a statute which diminishes the dower interest. Dougherty v. Dougherty, 204 Mo. 228, 102 S. W. 1099.

35. Davidson v. Richardson [Or.] 89 P. 742. Where husband conveys lands without wife's consent, the measure of her interest therein after his death is determined by the law in force at the time of the conveyance. *Hilton v. may be given as well before as after the filing of the application.<sup>46</sup> The widow may sue upon the bond of her husband's administrator for his failure to pay her dower.<sup>47</sup> Where the interest conferred upon the widow by statute is not an inheritance, she may maintain ejectment against one unlawfully in possession.<sup>48</sup> As to whether a widow is entitled to bring an action to protect her interest against a trespassor prior to assignment of dower, there is some conflict of authority.<sup>49</sup> Where the widow did not join in an assignment for the benefit of creditors, she may maintain a common law action of dower against a purchaser from the assignee.<sup>50</sup> In an action to have the dower interest set off, the petition must allege facts showing the widow's right.<sup>51</sup> The mode of trying the issue in an action for admeasurement of dower is determined by statute.<sup>52</sup> Where the record of the probate court is silent as to notice of application for dower, the presumption is that it was duly given.<sup>53</sup> An adjudication of the probate court allowing dower is conclusive in any subsequent suit as to any defenses which might have been but were not set up.<sup>54</sup> The statute of limitations runs against an action of ejectment by a widow to recover her statutory interest from the date of her husband's death.<sup>55</sup>

84. Map showing street construed to dedicate a way 50 feet in width over locus. Elliot v. Atlantic City, 149 F. 849. Evidence of dedication and acceptance by more than 30 years' use by the public of highway under U. S. Rev. St. § 2477 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1559), granting a right of way for construction of highways over public lands not reserved for public uses. Van Wanning v. Deeter [Neb.] 110 N. W. 703. The rule of law as to easements by dedication, where lots are bounded on a street or described by reference to a map on which streets are shown, is a rule of presumption resting on an implied grant or reservation and vanishes when deed indicates a contrary intention. Lewisohn v. Lansing Co., 104 N. Y. S. 543, affg. 51 Misc. 274, 100 N. Y. S. 1077. There being no express reservation and fee of street being granted, no easement was intended to be conveyed. Id. Evidence held insufficient to establish a dedication. Canton Co. of Baltimore v. Baltimore [Md.] 67 A. 274. Where the sea eats away land within the lines of a street as dedicated and later the land is formed again by accretion, such new land is subject to the easement. Elliot v. Atlantic City, 149 F. 849. See, also, Dedication, 9 C. L. 939.

11. Hofherr v. Mede, 226 Ill. 320, 80 N. E. 893. "Exclusive use" means that the right to use belongs to the user and does not depend on a like right in others (Schmidt v. Brown, 226 Ill. 590, 80 N. E. 1071), others may use a way and yet the use be exclusive (Id.).

12. Hofherr v. Mede, 226 Ill. 320, 80 N. E. 893. A user under a contract void under the statute of frauds is a good claim of right. Schmidt v. Brown, 226 Ill. 590, 80 N. E. 1071. The visible, open, continuous, and unmolested use of a way for 30 years raises presumption of claim of right. Fleming v. Howard, 150 Cal. 28, 87 P. 908. Such claim of right must be bona fides, and when there has been a user for the statutory period the bona fides of the claim is established. Walton v. Knight [W. Va.] 58 S. E. 1025. Mere user of a way for 33 years but without evidence of a claim of right is insufficient to establish a way by prescription under Code, § 3004, providing that mere use of an easement is not evidence of a claim of right which must be established by independent evidence. McBride v. Blair [Iowa] 112 N. W. 169. Evidence insufficient to establish claim. City of Chicago v. Galt, 224 Ill. 421, 79 N. E. 701. Question for the jury whether use under claim of right. Wells v. Parker [N. H.] 66 A. 121.

13. Knowledge need not be proved by actual notice but may be inferred from circumstances. Wells v. Parker [N. H.] 66 A. 121. User for 10 years without more is taken to be with the knowledge and acquiescence of the owner and prima facie gives the right. Walton v. Knight [W. Va.] 58 S. E. 1025. Evidence showed no knowledge by the owner of a continuous user in such a way as to indicate that the public had any right in the locus. City of Chicago v. Galt, 224 Ill. 421, 79 N. E. 701. Express notice of claim of right required under Code, § 3004. McBride v. Blair [Iowa] 112 N. W. 169. Recognition of user's rights clear. Schmidt v. Brown, 226 Ill. 590, 80 N. E. 1071.

14. Evidence held insufficient to show the creation of a public way by prescription under Laws 1871-72, p. 675, § 1, Laws 1883, p. 137, and Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, c. 121, § 1, providing that all roads used by the public as highways for the periods prescribed therein should be highways. Village of Peotone v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 224 Ill. 101, 79 N. E. 678. An elevated road may acquire by prescription easements of abutting owners. Goldstrom v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 115 App. Div. 323, 100 N. Y. S. 911, and the intention of the owner not to dedicate the way is immaterial (Id.). The words "improved lands" in Civ. Code 1895, § 3065, which provides for a right of way by prescription by 7 years uninterrupted user through improved lands, includes an entire sable to the existence and enjoyment of an easement that the dominant and servient tenements should be contiguous.<sup>15</sup> No prescriptive rights can be acquired by permissive use<sup>16</sup> or under a license.<sup>17</sup> The adverse user must continue for the statutory period.<sup>18</sup> As a prescriptive easement presupposes a grant,<sup>19</sup> it can only arise where a valid grant could have been made in the first instance.<sup>20</sup> In Kentucky an easement in the nature of a passageway along or across a railway right of way cannot be acquired by prescription.<sup>21</sup>

Creation by estoppel.<sup>22</sup>—An easement may be created by estoppel, as where a licensor has allowed a licensee to expend money and labor to make use of the license,<sup>23</sup> or where lots are sold with reference to a plat or map showing streets.<sup>24</sup>

by elevated railways of the rights of the owner of property in a street is not a recognition of similar rights by a tenant so as to rebut the presumption of a grant by the tenant. Id. Action by tenant for injuries to his easement does not interrupt the running of the statute against the landlord. Goldstrom v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 115 App. Div. 323, 100 N. Y. S. 911. Continuous use of way as of right for 15 years, if unexplained, creates presumption (Bryars v. Rash [Ky.] 100 S. 62. Northeastern Tel. & T. Co. v. Hepburn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 747.

63. Not bound by agreement that a telephone line should only be used in connection with waterworks plant. Northeastern Tel. & T. Co. v. Hepburn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 747.

64. See 7 C. L. 1210.

65. Right to use land for newspaper office building so long as it was used for that purpose. Frederic v. Mayers, 89 Miss. 127, 43 So. 677.

66. Occupation of part of way by half of a boundary wall for more than 15 years gives no right to land covered by adverse user. Dewire v. Hanley, 79 Conn. 454, 65 A. 573.

67. Actual enclosure of locus and no use allowed except by express permission. Canton Co. of Baltimore v. Baltimore [Md.] 67 A. 274. Bed of street fenced for 50 years. Lewisohn v. Lansing Co., 104 N. Y. S. 543.

68. Easement to drain across land by means of tile. Dunn v. Youmans, 224 Ill. 34, 79 N. E. 321.

69. Variation to avoid muddy or worn places. Walton v. Knight [W. Va.] 53 S. E. 1025.

70. Immaterial changes made without intention of abandoning the way. Trustees of Cincinnati So. R. Co. v. Slaughter [Ky.] 104 S. W. 291.

71. Proudfoot v. Saffle [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 256.

72. See 7 C. L. 1211.

73. Inability to use the whole of way because of part of boundary wall on it does not constitute an abandonment. Dewire v. Hanley, 79 Conn. 454, 65 A. 579. Nonuser for 4 years insufficient to raise presumption of abandonment. Agnew v. Pawnee City [Neb.] 113 N. W. 236.

74. A claim of ownership of fee of a street and user of the land before street is opened does not show an intent to abandon easement for street purposes. Lewisohn v. Lansing Co., 104 N. Y. S. 543, overruling 51 Misc. 274, 100 N. Y. S. 1077. Abandonment must be pleaded and proved and the burden on owner of servient estate. Burden not sustained. Agnew v. Pawnee City [Neb.] 113 N. W. 236. A mere nonuser of an easement for more than 20 years will not afford conclusive evidence of its abandonment. Canton Co. of Baltimore v. Baltimore [Md.] 67 A. 274.

Measure of damages for obstruction of a way is the difference in value of property with the way closed and with the way open. Bell v. Louisville Water Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 866, 96 S. W. 572. Damages for loss of subjacent support can only be recovered to time of suit. Catlin Coal Co. v. Lloyd, 124 Ill. App. 394. If the obstruction is remediable the diminution in value of the use of the property during the time the obstruction continued until the filing of the suit may be recovered. Id. Sickness caused by water accumulated by obstruction too remote. Big Sandy R. Co. v. Bays [Ky.] 102 S. W. 302.

Measure of damages for permanent obstruction of an appurtenant right of way is the difference between the reasonable market value of the land before it was known the way was to be obstructed and the value of it immediately after it was destroyed. Id.

88. Obstruction of a public or private road will be enjoined at the instance of one suffering special and peculiar injury therefrom. Bent v. Trimboli, 61 W. Va. 509, 56 S. E. 881. ## EJECTMENT (AND WRIT OF ENTRY).

§ 1. Cause of Action and Nature of Remedy (1026.) Title or Prior Possession in Plaintiff (1027). Nature of the Remedy (1028).

§ 2. Defenses (1028).

§ 3. Parties (1030).

§ 4. Process and Pleading (1030).

§ 6. Trial and Judgment (1035).

§ 7. New Trial (1036).

§ 8. Mesne Profits and Damages (1036).

§ 9. Allowance for Improvements and Expenditures (1037).

§ 1. Cause of action and nature of remedy.<sup>98</sup>—Ejectment is an action to recover the immediate possession of real property; <sup>99</sup> not only the surface of the ground but, within reasonable limitations, the space above and the part beneath.<sup>1</sup> In Maryland it will not lie to recover an incorporeal right or easement in land,<sup>2</sup> but in New Jersey it may be brought by a municipality against a person unlawfully encroaching upon a public highway under its control.<sup>3</sup> It will not lie to recover personal property.<sup>4</sup> Plaintiff must have the immediate right of possession<sup>5</sup> at the time of suit.<sup>6</sup> warrant mandatory injunction. Dewire v. Hanley, 79 Conn. 454, 65 A. 573. Rule held not to apply and injunction granted. North-eastern Tel. & T. Co. v. Hepburn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 747.

92. See 5 C. L. 1055.

93. See 7 C. L. 1212.

94. Failure to allege exclusive adverse possession for 10 years under claim of right immaterial after judgment where proof establishes those facts. Agnew v. Pawnee City [Neb.] 113 N. W. 236. Under an allegation that a private way has been opened and in use continuously for more than 7 years in a petition to remove obstructions therefrom, under Pol. Code 1895, § 679, proof that the way has been in use as a private way for more than a year and has been closed by the owner without giving the 30 days' notice required by Pol. Code 1895, § 673, insufficient. Nugent v. Watkins [Ga.] 58 S. E. 888.

95. A declaration which described the right of way as "toward Holcomb Road" but not otherwise designating the terminus held too vague and should have been the subject of special demurrer. Poole v. Greer [Del.] 65 A. 767.

96. Abutting owner may enjoin obstruction of private easements in street although it constitutes a similar injury to similar easements of others. Williams v. Los Angeles R. Co., 150 Cal. 592, 89 P. 330.

97. Burden on plaintiff. Must show that he has sustained damage. Poole v. Greer [Del.] 65 A. 767.

98. See 7 C. L. 1212.

99. Code Civ. Proc. § 3343, subd. 20. Butler v. Frontier Tel. Co., 186 N. Y. 486, 79 N. E. 716. Strictly speaking it is a possessory action and the issue may or may not involve title. Fulton v. Mathers [Kan.] 90 P. 256.

Land occupied by partition fence: Ejectment will lie for the recovery of land unlawfully occupied by a partition fence. Rose v. Linderman, 147 Mich. 372, 110 N. W. 939.

Land covered by tide water: Is proper action for recovery of possession of land covered by tide water. City of Providence v. Comstock, 27 R. I. 537, 65 A. 307.

Land overflowed by dam: Ejectment, for the purpose of determining the legal rights of the parties, may be maintained for land overflowed by the erection of a dam, where the defendant claims a perpetual right of overflow. Reynolds v. Munch, 100 Minn. 114, 110 N. W. 368.

1. Butler v. Frontier Tel. Co., 186 N. Y. 486, 79 N. E. 716.

Telephone wire: Will lie where a telephone wire is stretched across plaintiff's premises a few feet above soil, although surface is not touched. Butler v. Frontier Tel. Co., 186 N. Y. 486, 79 N. E. 716.

Projection of foundation of building: Will lie to recover possession of property from which plaintiff has been ousted by projection beyond his line of foundation of building erected by adjoining proprietor, although projection is entirely below surface. Wachstein v. Christopher [Ga.] 57 S. E. 511.

6. Smith v. Ryan, 116 App. Div. 397, 101 N. Y. S. 1011. Ejectment will not lie against

Unlawful detention by the defendant is an essential element,<sup>7</sup> and, therefore, it can only be brought against one in possession.<sup>8</sup> The Missouri statute has not changed this rule,<sup>9</sup> but in Wisconsin the action may be brought for unoccupied lands against one claiming title to them.<sup>10</sup> In Pennsylvania one claiming title may be required to bring ejectment upon petition of one in possession.<sup>11</sup>

Title or prior possession in plaintiff.<sup>12</sup>—Plaintiff must recover on the strength of his title, not on the weakness of defendants.<sup>13</sup> He must have the legal title,<sup>14</sup> or must show that he was in actual possession and was ousted by defendant.<sup>15</sup> Except one who holds under deed regular upon its face and properly executed and delivered, if grantor has not been adjudged an incompetent. Id.

11. Act March 8, 1889, as amended by Act April 16, 1903 (P. L. 212). Fearl v. Johnstown, 216 Pa. 205, 65 A. 549. But rule should not be granted if there is substantial conflict as to fact of possession or if evidence leaves that fact in doubt. Id. Where court has found that petitioner's claim to title has been sufficiently shown and that he is in possession of part of tract claimed, it should under Act April 16, 1903 (P. L. 212), grant rule on defendant to bring ejectment for so much of land as petitioner is found to be in possession of. Welsh v. Clough, 216 Pa. 276, 65 A. 677. In such proceeding it cannot be determined whether petitioner's possession is under a title superior to his own. Id.

Pickering* [Utah] 88 P. 696; Meyers v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. [Wis.] 112 N. W. 673. When plaintiff's testimony shows defendant in possession under claim of ownership, plaintiff must recover on superiority of his title. Runkle v. Welty [Neb.] 113 N. W. 160, 111 N. W. 463. A plaintiff who has failed to show a prima facie title in himself cannot complain that defendant is a mere trespasser and therefore not entitled to set up an outstanding title to defeat his action. De Land v. Dixon Power & Lighting Co., 225 Ill. 212, 80 N. E. 125.

But in Kansas a cotenant may recover the whole property against one who has no title. Horne v. Ellis [Kan.] 90 P. 275.

14. Carpenter v. Joiner [Ala.] 44 So. 424. Harris v. Butler [Fla.] 42 So. 186; Winn v. Coggins [Fla.] 42 So. 897; Sanborn v. Loud [Mich.] 113 N. W. 309; Bridenbaugh v. Bryant [Neb.] 112 N. W. 571. Plaintiff must show a regular chain of title back to some grantor in possession or to Federal government. Henry v. Brannan [Ala.] 42 So. 995. But complainant need not deraign his title into a grant from state where he and defendant both claim from a common source. Rucker v. Hyde [Tenn.] 100 S. W. 739. Where both parties claim under the same grantor, defendant is estopped from questioning his title. Steadman v. Steadman, 143 N. C. 345, 55 S. E. 784. Plaintiff who establishes legal title need not have had actual possession to entitle him to maintain the action. Froman v. Madden [Idaho] 88 P. 894. A purchaser of real estate for valuable consideration without notice of a prior conveyance, if his deed was first recorded, may maintain ejectment against a prior purchaser who did not acquire possession until after plaintiff's purchase. Rev. St. 1887, § 3001. Id. Where a bar of the statute of limitations is complete in favor of grantee in tax deed, he or one claiming under him has absolute title to land and may maintain ejectment therefor against former owner. Wisconsin River Land Co. v. Paine Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 393, 110 N. W. 220.

15. Harris v. Butler [Fla.] 42 So. 186; Winn v. Coggins [Fla.] 42 So. 897. Plaintiff must show that he was formerly in possession, that he was ousted or deprived of possession, and that he has a right to re-enter and take possession. Butler v. Frontier Tel. Co., 186 N. Y. 486, 79 N. E. 716. But the ouster need not be entire or absolute. Id. It is sufficient if defendant is in partial possession of premises while plaintiff is in possession of remainder. Id. If there is a visible and tangible structure by which possession is withheld to the extent of the space occupied thereby, ejectment will lie. Id. Any physical, exclusive and permanent occupation of space above land is a disseisin of the owner to that extent. Id. One who had prior possession of lands under claim of title may maintain ejectment against one afterwards found in possession, unless the latter set up paramount title in himself or in some other person. Rogers v. Keith [Ala.] 42 So. 446. Where neither party has legal title, plaintiff, in order to recover on a possession prior to that of defendant, must show a possession continuing up to time when defendant or those under whom he claims entered or an animus revertendi. Fletcher v. Riley [Ala.] 42 So. 548. Under where the rule has been changed by statute, recovery cannot be had upon the equitable title alone.<sup>10</sup> A mortgagee, although his mortgage is in the form of a deed absolute on its face, cannot maintain ejectment against the mortgagor in possession.<sup>17</sup> A purchaser at execution sale of land fraudulently conveyed by a debtor previous to judgment against him may recover possession in ejectment.<sup>18</sup> A plaintiff who has failed to show a prima facie title in himself cannot recover on the ground that the defendant is estopped upon equitable grounds from asserting his title.<sup>19</sup> At common law a grantee may recover although the defendant was in adverse possession at the time of the grant,<sup>20</sup> and this is the rule under the North Carolina statute,<sup>21</sup> but the contrary rule prevails under the statutes in Alabama and Kentucky.<sup>22</sup> Where the action is brought by the person in possession against the grantee, the Kentucky statute is of no avail to the plaintiff if the jury has found his possession was not adverse.<sup>23</sup>

Nature of the remedy.<sup>24</sup>—Ejectment is a legal action and equitable rights and interests cannot be determined,<sup>25</sup> and the rules of courts of equity do not obtain,<sup>26</sup> but ejectment and a suit in equity are sometimes concurrent remedies.<sup>27</sup>

§ 2. Defenses.<sup>28</sup>—That the plaintiff is not entitled to possession,<sup>29</sup> and that the legal title is in defendant,<sup>30</sup> are good defenses, but the defendant cannot set up an equitable estate or interest,<sup>31</sup> except in states where by statute such defense is made available.<sup>32</sup> As to whether the fact that plaintiff's title was obtained by fraud is a

Civ. Code 1895, § 5008, plaintiff may recover on his prior possession alone, even though he may have relinquished such possession, if such relinquishment was animo revertendi. Jackson v. Strickland, 127 Ga. 106, 56 S. E. 107.

16. Mead v. Chesbrough Bldg. Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 998. This is the rule of the Federal courts even when they are sitting in states in which equitable titles are triable in ejectment. Id. Plaintiff cannot recover upon ground that conveyances pursuant to foreclosures were obtained through a breach of fiduciary duties of trustees, or were fraudulent in the view of a court of equity (Id.), but he may recover on ground that such conveyances were actually fraudulent and therefore void ab initio (Id.).

17. Mortgage in form of deed absolute was given to secure one who furnished purchase money, and mortgagor took possession and made valuable and lasting improvements. Abrams v. Abrams, 74 Kan. 888, 88 P. 70.

If a person has legal title to lands and is entitled to possession thereof as against another wrongfully withholding same, and his right involves fraud of such other which must be established by evidence aliunde, he may sue in ejectment though he may also sue in equity. Steinberg v. Saltzman, 130 Wis. 419, 110 N. W. 198.

28. See 7 C. L. 1215

29. In an action by administrator, widow and heirs of intestate, where sole ground of recovery relied on is administrator's right of possession pending settlement of estate, defendant is not estopped by leases taken by him from widow and heirs, to which administrator was not a party, from denying the latter's right of possession. Thomas v. Young, 79 Conn. 493, 65 A. 955.

30. Defendant having shown a prior recorded deed conveying title out of plaintiff's grantor, and having connected her own possession with such outstanding title. It was immaterial whether or not it was given for purpose of securing a debt, and the court did not err in directing verdict for defendant. Hamilton v. Cargile, 127 Ga. 762, 56 S. E. 1022.

A beneficial interest cannot be interposed upon a motion for a nonsuit. Mitchell v. Cleveland [S. C.] 57 S. E. 33.

32. Under system of procedure in force in California, where special forms of action have been abolished, a defendant may set up by way of equitable defense any matter good defense, the authorities are not in entire accord.<sup>33</sup> It is a good defense that the defendant has acquired title by adverse possession,<sup>34</sup> that the action is barred by the statute of limitations<sup>35</sup> or by laches,<sup>36</sup> or that an estoppel has arisen against plaintiff precluding his recovery.<sup>37</sup> In an action by a subsequent purchaser whose deed was first recorded against a prior purchaser, it is a good defense that plaintiff received his deed with knowledge of the prior conveyance.<sup>38</sup> A conveyance by plaintiff of the land sued for, pending the action, is a good defense.<sup>39</sup> So it is a good defense that which would, if presented by him as basis of an original bill in equity, have entitled him to a judgment for the relief sought by his answer. Doherty v. Courtney, 150 Cal. 606, 39 P. 434. A tenant of an administrator may set up defense that intestate's deed under which plaintiff claims was procured by undue influence. Id. Where plaintiff prior to suit had, with full knowledge of defendant's equities in the property in dispute, obtained a decree quieting her title against the holder of the legal title, the effect of such decree was to make plaintiff the successor, with notice of defendants' equities, of the rights of the legal holder, and therefore such equities are a good defense to the ejectment suit. King v. Dugan, 150 Cal. 258, 18 P. 925.

33. In Michigan it cannot be determined in ejectment whether a deed under which plaintiff claims was obtained by fraud. Loranger v. Carpenter, 148 Mich. 549, 112 N. W. 125. But in Illinois it is a good defense that deed under which plaintiff claims was made by guardian for purpose of defrauding his ward. Phelps v. Nazworthy, 226 Ill. 254, 80 N. E. 756. It is not a bar to recovery by widow of her statutory interest in her deceased husband's estate that he parted with his title in such a fraudulent manner as to preclude recovery by his heirs. McKelvey v. McKelvey [Kan.] 89 P. 663.

34. Defendant in adverse possession for more than twenty years claiming under deed by which it was intended to convey premises in dispute, though by mistake in description they were not included. Mutual Trust Co. v. Polymero, 54 Misc. 379, 105 N. Y. S. 1024. Where defendant has not shown twenty years' adverse possession, and plaintiff has legal title, as law carries seisin to him when neither party is in possession, he is not precluded from maintaining ejectment by Revisal 1905, § 383, which bars recovery unless it appears that plaintiff was "seized or possessed of the premises" within twenty years before beginning action. Bland v. Reasley [N. C.] 53 S. E. 993. Where evidence shows a mixed possession by both parties, the party having the legal title is entitled to possession. Nevin v. Disharoon [Del. Super.] 46 A. 362. Defendant in order to sustain defense of adverse possession is not compelled to admit that suit was properly brought against him as the person in possession, where his tenant was in actual possession at time suit was brought, the character of possession required in the two cases being different. Hunter v. Wethington [Mo.] 103 S. W. 543. Where suit is brought by heir to recover land in which intestate's widow had dower interest, defendant cannot set up adverse possession prior to widow's death. Rich v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 380.

35. The three years' limitation prescribed by Code 1896, § 4089 (Code 1886, § 606), does not apply where possession is acquired, under auditor's deed, of land bid in by state at tax sales and resold under provisions of Act Feb 9, 1895 (Acts 1894-95, p. 488). Doe v. Moog [Ala.] 43 So. 710. Where petition demanded damages for injury to property, amendment relating to damages filed more than statutory period after cause of action accrued held not to set up new cause of action within prohibition of statute. Anderson v. Acheson, 132 Iowa, 744, 110 N. W. 335. Statute of limitations does not begin to run against action by widow to recover her statutory interest in her husband's realty until death of husband. McKelvey v. McKelvey [Kan.] 89 P. 663. Where tax deed holder sues within the two year period of limitation, Gen. St. 1901, § 4444, and recovers judgment, running of statute is arrested, and subsequent delay in taking other steps to remove defendants from premises will not put statute in motion. Fulton v. Mathers [Kan.] 90 P. 256.

36. Facts held not to constitute laches precluding plaintiff from suing to recover possession of bed of non-navigable lake. Rhodes v. Cissell [Ark.] 101 S. W. 758.

37. If one who held legal title to land, though unrecorded, represented that title was in another person, who appeared from record to be the owner, and that such other person had right to sell and make a bond for title, and thus induced an innocent purchaser for value to accept a bond for title from the other person, to give notes for purchase money, and to pay some or all of them, the person so acting would be estopped from denying title of such third person. Sewell v. Norris [Ga.] 58 S. E. 637. But if the whole agreement of sale was a mere sham to defeat creditors of real owner, and taker of bond participated in such scheme and knew the real facts, no equitable estoppel would arise in his favor so as to prevent the holder of the legal title from asserting it, if he could do so without relying on or taking advantage of the fraudulent transaction. Id. Where plaintiff's case rests upon theory that a third person had no interest in property, he is estopped to complain that such person was not made a party to foreclosure proceedings under which defendant claims. Wright v. Jessup [Wash.] 87 P. 930. Facts held not to estop plaintiff from claiming ownership against defendant of bed of non-navigable lake after disappearance of water therefrom. Rhodes v. Cissell [Ark.] 101 S. W. 758. Facts held not to estop plaintiff from claiming that a certain line was the true boundary line between his property and defendants. Cottrell v. Pickering [Utah] 88 P. 696.

38. Froman v. Madden [Idaho] 88 P. 894.

39. So held where plaintiff had acquired title by purchase at execution sale, and de-plaintiff has, since attaining majority, ratified a sale of the land made during his infancy by one assuming to act as his trustee.<sup>40</sup> Where there is some evidence that the parties claim title from a common source, a nonsuit will not be granted.<sup>41</sup> The abandonment of possession by defendant after suit brought will not defeat the action.<sup>42</sup> It is no defense to an action of ejectment and for damages to the property by a tenant in common where the acts complained of are in the nature of an ouster of possession and the commission of waste that they were consented to by plaintiff's cotenant.<sup>43</sup>

Process.<sup>51</sup>

The complaint.<sup>52</sup>—Complaint must allege title,<sup>53</sup> and is sufficient if it conforms to statutory requirements in this respect,<sup>54</sup> but if in addition the title and source of title of each of the parties is set out, a demurrer will bring up for consideration all the facts pleaded.<sup>55</sup> Where plaintiff relies on prior possession he need not aver that defendant is a trespasser.<sup>56</sup> There must be reasonable certainty in the description of the premises.<sup>57</sup> Irrelevant or redundant matter does not destroy nor vitiate the facts well pleaded, nor change the nature and character of the action.<sup>58</sup> defendant, the execution debtor, had remained in possession. Sellers v. Farmer [Ala.] 43 So. 967.

St. 1906, p. 1756), requiring ejectment to be brought against person in possession if landlord is off premises and tenant in actual possession, action may be brought against both, but not against landlord alone. Hunter v. Wethington [Mo.] 103 S. W. 543.

53. Allegations of complaint held not to show any title in plaintiff. Bothwell v. Denver Union Stockyards Co. [Colo.] 90 P. 1127. Where plaintiff bases his title to land formerly constituting parts of certain streets on ground of a reversion to original grantor and a deed from him, he must allege in his complaint how and when title reverted. Id. In Kentucky it is not necessary to set out the choice of title relied on. Morris v. Martin [Ky.] 101 S. W. 914. It is sufficient to state that plaintiff is owner of and entitled to possession of land, describing it, and that defendant wrongfully holds possession thereof. Id.

54. A petition which merely sets forth the statutory requirements of a cause of action is good against demurrer. Jones v. Carnes, 17 Okl. 470, 87 P. 652. Complaint held sufficient under Rev. St. 1898, § 3077, it alleging all the facts required thereby. Wisconsin River Land Co. v. Paine Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 393, 110 N. W. 220.

56. Jackson v. Strickland, 127 Ga. 106, 56 S. E. 107.

57. Hunter v. Wethington [Mo.] 103 S. W. 543. Premises must be described with such certainty that, if plaintiff recovers, a writ of possession issued upon judgment and describing the premises as laid in petition will so identify them that sheriff in execution of writ can deliver possession in accordance with its mandate. Clark v. Knowles [Ga.] 58 S. E. 841. Description of premises in petition held insufficient. Id.

58. Wisconsin River Land Co. v. Paine Lumber Co. 130 Wis. 393, 110 N. W. 220.

Demurrer.—In Iowa, where face of petition shows a nonjoinder of parties, defendant must demur and failure to do so constitutes a waiver.<sup>59</sup>

Answer.<sup>60</sup>—The question raised by the general issue is who has the better title.<sup>61</sup> In New Jersey the defendant is confined to the plea of not guilty,<sup>62</sup> but in Illinois such plea does not put in issue the possession of the premises by defendant or that he claims title or interest therein,<sup>63</sup> but such questions must be put in issue by special pleas verified by affidavit.<sup>64</sup> Where defendant relies on a tax deed it is not necessary to allege all the initial proceedings culminating in the issuance of the deed.<sup>65</sup> In California, if defendant seeks affirmative relief affecting the property to which the action relates, he may, in addition to his answer, file a cross complaint.<sup>66</sup>

Pleadings subsequent to answer.—If defendant sets up a deed good on its face, a reply is necessary to raise the issue as to whether it was fraudulent.<sup>67</sup> Where the replication alleges that defendant claims title or interest, a rejoinder denying such title or interest puts the question in issue.<sup>68</sup> In Illinois where defendant takes a new trial under the statute, the granting of his motion for leave to file rejoinders to the replications, not made until the case is called for trial, is in the sound discretion of the court.<sup>69</sup>

reasonable doubt. It is sufficient if he prove it by a preponderance of the evidence.<sup>79</sup> Title may be proved by the deeds,<sup>80</sup> wills, and descents under which it is claimed,<sup>81</sup> or by showing adverse possession for the required period before the commencement of the action.<sup>82</sup> If plaintiff relies on a record or paper title, he must show a regular claim of title from the government, or from some grantor in possession, or from a common source from which each of the litigants claims.<sup>83</sup> But to avoid a nonsuit, he need only show prima facie title as against defendant.<sup>84</sup> The instrument under which plaintiff claims must so describe the property conveyed as to identify it.<sup>85</sup> When plaintiff establishes a prima facie case, he is entitled to recover unless affirmative evidence is introduced to meet it.<sup>86</sup> This burden defendant may meet by showing a superior title, title in himself,<sup>87</sup> or that plaintiff has no title<sup>88</sup> or is estopped

80. Nevin v. Disharoon [Del.] 66 A. 362. Where plaintiff claims under a deed of conveyance duly executed and recorded, the presumption is that title passed, that grantor had sufficient seisin to enable him to convey, and that seisin and title correspond with each other. Stetson v. Grant [Me.] 66 A. 480. A guardian's deed is insufficient to establish title in plaintiff where the record fails to show an order authorizing sale, or an order confirming it. Phelps v. Nazworthy, 226 Ill. 254, 80 N. E. 756.

81. Nevin v. Disharoon [Del.] 66 A. 362.

82. Twenty years in Delaware. Nevin v. Disharoon [Del.] 66 A. 362. In action by heir, deed purporting to convey to intestate fee simple title, and oral evidence that he was in possession during thirty years immediately preceding his death, will warrant judgment against defendant who disclaims title. Tucker v. Duncan, 224 Ill. 453, 79 N. E. 613. Where plaintiff, an administrator, relies upon proof of possession in his intestate at time of his death, and evidence only shows that he was then in possession of small portion of tract, which it fails to identify, verdict for defendant is demanded regardless of evidence offered in support of his title. Whitehead v. Pitts, 127 Ga. 774, 56 S. E. 1004. Evidence held not to prove title by adverse possession in ancestor through whom plaintiffs claim. Winn v. Coggins [Fla.] 42 So. 897. Adverse possession by ancestor being shown, proof of conveyance to plaintiff by all other heirs is admissible. Henry v. Frohlichstein [Ala.] 43 So. 126.

83. Runkle v. Welty [Neb.] 111 N. W. 463.

If chain does not reach back to sovereign or to a common source, plaintiff must prove that he, or at least one of the grantors in his chain, had, at same time, been in possession of premises. Runkle v. Welty [Neb.] 113 N. W. 160.

In action by village to recover land forming part of street, evidence of chain of conveyances from government to P., and plat made by him of village, and deed from him to plaintiff executed subsequent to date of plat, held sufficient to establish title in plaintiff. Village of Shumway v. Laturno [Ill.] 80 N. E. 403.

Deeds and patents held to establish plaintiff's title. Cowles v. Carrier [Ky.] 101 S. W. 916.

Usual duplicate receipt of a receiver of a United States land office, in full force and unimpeached, is sufficient evidence of title, except as against one having a patent to same land, or persons claiming under him. Oldfather v. Ericsson [Neb.] 112 N. W. 356.

Informal deed: The fact that a deed in plaintiff's chain of title, executed by a non-resident of the state, was not signed and acknowledged by grantor's wife, will not preclude recovery. Rev. St. 1898, § 2160. Washburn Land Co. v. Swanby [Wis.] 110 N. W. 806.

Deed from one apparently a stranger to paramount title, and who does not appear to have ever been in possession, is insufficient to show title in grantee. Nesmith v. Hand [Ga.] 57 S. E. 763. And fact that such grantee has a homestead set apart in land does not strengthen his title thereto, nor the title of the beneficiaries of such homestead, as his heirs at law, nor prevent prescription running against any of them. Id.

84. This he does by producing his deed and in connection therewith a survey clearly identifying the premises and showing possession under the deed. Cottrell v. Pickering [Utah] 88 P. 696. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2861, such a deed and survey establishes prima facie code of right of possession of all the land contained in deed, notwithstanding survey shows erection of a division fence cutting off part of such land. Id.

85. Description held insufficient to prove conveyance of certain lots. Phelps v. Nazworthy, 226 Ill. 254, 80 N. E. 756.

86. Temple v. Phelps, 193 Mass. 297, 79 N. E. 482. Where plaintiff claims title through foreclosure of mortgage, it is only in case failure to pay according to terms of mortgage is established by him, or prima facie evidence of it introduced, the effect of which defendant seeks to avoid by proof of a subsequent payment, that burden is on defendant to establish payment. Id. A grant of lands from state under Pub. Laws N. C. 1835, p. 7, c. 6, as amended by Pub. Laws 1836-37, p. 29, c. 7, re-enacted 1 Rev. St. N. C. 1837, c. 42, §§ 1, 36, is sufficient to establish a prima facie case, and to shift the burden of proof to defendant. Bealmear v. Hutchins [C. C. A.] 148 F. 545.

87. Evidence in action against railroad company held to show that land in dispute was within defendant's right of way at time deeds to plaintiffs were executed. Meyers v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. [Wis.] 112 N. W. 673.

88. Where plaintiff bases claim upon fact that his ancestor died in possession of realty sued for, proof that it was set apart as a year's support to ancestor's widow, from setting it up.<sup>89</sup> Where the defendant sets up adverse possession as a defense, the burden rests upon him to prove it<sup>90</sup> but when he has established a prima facie case, the burden shifts to plaintiff.<sup>91</sup> Evidence to be admissible must bear upon an issue made by the pleadings.<sup>92</sup> Irrelevant evidence is excluded.<sup>93</sup> A patent,<sup>94</sup> a deed<sup>95</sup> or the record thereof,<sup>96</sup> a mortgage,<sup>97</sup> or a will,<sup>98</sup> is admissible to prove title, and that plaintiff is not her heir, requires finding for defendant. Moore v. Moore, 126 Ga. 735, 55 S. E. 950.

89. Evidence held to show an agreed line, with improvements, constituting an estoppel against plaintiff. Stumpe v. Kopp, 201 Mo. 412, 99 S. W. 1073. Evidence held to sustain finding that there was no agreement between parties respecting boundary line. Cottrell v. Pickering [Utah] 88 P. 696.

90. Rich v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 380; Nevin v. Disharoon [Del.] 66 A. 362. He must show continuous adverse possession for the required period. Bland v. Beasley [N. C.] 58 S. E. 993. Evidence held to show adverse possession for statutory period. Stumpe v. Kopp, 201 Mo. 412, 99 S. W. 1073. Evidence held insufficient to show adverse possession under color of title. Hunter v. Wethington [Mo.] 103 S. W. 543. In Nevada it has been held that, where defendant alleges an agreement that she shall be left in possession of lands in dispute and shall receive a conveyance thereof, the burden remains upon plaintiff to present evidence of something to overcome defendant's possession for a time sufficient to give title under statute of limitations. Adams v. Child, 28 Nev. 169, 88 P. 1087.

91. Evidence held not to establish either interruption of possession or seisin or possession by plaintiff's ancestor within twenty years before commencement of action. Clo-suit v. John Arpin Lumber Co., 130 Wis. 258, 110 N. W. 222.

92. Under the general issue, it is competent to disprove plaintiff's allegation of seisin by showing title in a third party, even though defendants do not claim under him. Stetson v. Grant [Me.] 66 A. 480. But if plaintiff shows seisin within twenty years, defendant cannot show a subsequent conveyance to a third party under whom he does not claim. Id. Where it is alleged that one of the defendants was in the actual occupancy of the premises, and that the others each claimed same title or interest therein, testimony that they did not claim any title or interest is inadmissible in the absence of a denial by verified plea. Glos v. Swanson, 227 Ill. 179, 81 N. E. 386.

93. Irrelevant: Where defendant claims under parol gift, from one since deceased, opinions of neighbors as to who appeared to be head of house. Wood v. Praul, 217 Pa. 293, 66 A. 528. Evidence that heirs of one under whom plaintiff claims, who held only legal title, redeemed property from foreclosure sale, offered for purpose of showing beneficial interest in estate of intestate. Sutton v. Whetstone [S. D.] 112 N. W. 850. A letter to one, since deceased, through whom plaintiff claims, from his brother, asserting title in their mother, in absence of testimony showing what response was made thereto. Mitchell v. Cleveland [S. C.] 57 S. E. 33. Question to witness for defendant as to whether he found record of deed to deceased clerk of court through whom plaintiff claims. Id.

Relevant: Evidence that boundary lines as established by early settlers are in harmony with disputed monuments relevant as tending to show that such monuments are true corners. Bridenbaugh v. Bryant [Neb.] 112 N. W. 571. Where answer alleged that plaintiff's grantor obtained deed from one deceased by undue influence, and deed to plaintiff was without consideration, evidence tending to show that plaintiff paid no consideration admissible to prove that property in hands of plaintiff was subject to infirmity attaching to title of his grantor. Doherty v. Courtney, 150 Cal. 606, 89 P. 434. Question held relevant to issue raised by answer as to mental and physical condition of grantor under whom plaintiff claims at time of execution of deed. Id. Patent and deeds which form defendant's title to land to which he claims land in suit is an accretion. Stoner v. Royar, 200 Ala. 444, 98 S. W. 601. Receipt from state treasurer for purchase money for land sought to be recovered, paid by one from whom plaintiff claims as heir, admissible in connection with other evidence of purchase. Rogers v. Keith [Ala.] 42 So. 446. Item in will of plaintiff's ancestor held to convey title. Webb v. Hicks, 127 Ga. 170, 56 S. E. 307.

94. Patent from United States and deeds following admissible to prove title. Stoner v. Royar, 200 Mo. 444, 98 S. W. 601. Error in excluding such patent and deeds for this purpose is not cured by allowing their introduction as showing color of title in support of claim of title by adverse possession. Id.

95. Instrument held to be a deed, and admissible as part of defendant's chain of title. Hamilton v. Cargile, 127 Ga. 762, 56 S. E. 1022. Valid tax deed admissible to prove defendant's title. Treasury Tunnel, Min. & Reduction Co. v. Gregory [Colo.] 83 P. 445. When such a deed, valid on its face, is excluded on sole ground that it is void upon its face, defendant need not offer proof that statutory notice was given of expiration of time for redemption, or that assessment was less than $500. Id.

96. Brucke v. Hubbard, 74 S. C. 144, 54 S. E. 249.

97. Unpaid mortgage admissible as a link in plaintiff's chain of title, though there is endorsed thereon receipt for part payment of mortgage debt, dated several years after law day of mortgage, and after default in payment thereof. Foster v. Carlisle [Ala.] 42 So. 441.

98. But in Alabama plaintiff's recovery cannot be defeated by a will which has not been probated and proven. Griswold v. Griswold [Ala.] 42 So. 554. In New York, if defendant relies upon an unprobated will to sustain his title, plaintiff is entitled to prove that at time of execution testator had not testamentary capacity. Smith v. Ryan, 116 App. Div. 397, 101 N. Y. S. 1011. Where or as a link in a chain of title. Proof that land was the homestead of defendant's father admissible where such homestead vested ipso facto in widow and in children.<sup>99</sup> As a rule, the only objection that can be raised to the admission of a grant or deed is that the probate is defective.<sup>1</sup> A deed from executors will not be excluded on the ground of informality in the sale.<sup>2</sup> And though a deed be void for uncertainty, and inadmissible as a muniment of title, it may be admissible to show color of title.<sup>3</sup> But a deed is not admissible where the property sought to be conveyed was derived by purchase at a void sale.<sup>4</sup> A tax deed is admissible for the purpose of bringing in the defense of the statute of limitations,<sup>5</sup> but a deed in which the description of the land intended to be conveyed is so indefinite that it cannot be located is not admissible for such purpose.<sup>6</sup> Under a rule of court requiring parties to file copies of their abstracts of title, the proponent of an abstract is not entitled to have it admitted in its entirety as affirmative evidence in his favor.<sup>7</sup> Evidence of a survey made to ascertain the land intended to be conveyed is admissible.<sup>8</sup> Tax receipts are admissible to show that the party paying the taxes claimed the land.<sup>9</sup> Evidence is admissible to show that the deed under which plaintiff claims was made to a fictitious person.<sup>10</sup> Statements of one under whom plaintiff claims in regard to his title are inadmissible in plaintiff's favor.<sup>11</sup> In South Carolina a plaintiff is not precluded from testifying that he left the deed under which he claims title with the grantor for safe-keeping by the fact that the grantor is dead.<sup>12</sup> Evidence that a deed under which plaintiff claims was obtained by fraud,<sup>13</sup> or tending to impeach the fairness of plaintiff's method in procuring his deed,<sup>14</sup> is not admissible. Evidence is admissible to show that defendant's possession was not adverse.<sup>15</sup> Expert testimony as to locations is

99. Homestead under $500 in value. Snell v. Roach [Ala.] 43 So. 189.

1. State grant offered by plaintiff. Bealmeear v. Hutchins [C. C. A.] 148 F. 545.

2. Hamilton v. Cargile, 127 Ga. 762, 56 S. E. 1022.

3. Admissible where there is evidence that claiming under it purchaser took possession of particular lands in suit. Rogers v. Keith [Ala.] 42 So. 446.

4. Deed from state auditor to defendant not admissible where title sought to be conveyed was derived by state by purchase at tax sale founded on an assessment of property of one who had no title to the land and whose acts of possession were solely as agent for plaintiffs. Rogers v. Keith [Ala.] 42 So. 446.

5. Doe v. Moog [Ala.] 43 So. 710.

6. Even though it be shown that the grantee entered into possession of same land under grantor. Whitehead v. Pitts, 127 Ga. 774, 56 S. E. 1004.

7. The purpose of such rule is to enable court to learn whether parties trace title from a common source, and, if so, to limit proofs to subsequent conveyances and transactions. Davis v. Jennie Bros. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 696.

And in case of conflict, the marks thereof will control the description in the deed, and this though the same result is reached as if a bill in equity had been filed to correct the deed. Staub v. Hampton, 117 Tenn. 706, 101 S. W. 776. Record of a certificate and plat of survey found in book kept by county surveyor not admissible where survey does not purport to be official act of such surveyor. Stumpe v. Kopp, 201 Mo. 412, 99 S. W. 1073.

9. Langston v. Cothran [S. C.] 53 S. E. 956.

10. Where grantor testifies that grantee lived in a certain township, evidence of persons well acquainted with inhabitants of such township is admissible to prove that no such person ever lived there. Phelps v. Nazworthy, 226 Ill. 254, 80 N. E. 756.

11. Sutton v. Whetstone [S. D.] 112 N. W. 850. A complaint of intervention sought to be filed by one under whom plaintiff claims, in a suit to which defendant was a party, is inadmissible for purpose of showing title in such person. Id.

15. Evidence tending to show that defendant's possession has been as lessee of plaintiffs. Thomas v. Young, 79 Conn. 493, 65 A. 955. The leases admissible for this purpose. Id. It is permissible for plaintiff to testify as to his reason for allowing defendant to remain in possession. Brucke v. Hubbard, 74 S. C. 144, 54 S. E. 249. It is not permissible to ask plaintiff if he was in possession of the land in controversy without specifying any time. In action against one claiming title by adverse possession. Flanagan v. Fabens [Neb.] 110 N. W. 655.

Instructions.<sup>24</sup>—The instructions must conform to the pleadings<sup>25</sup> and the evidence.<sup>26</sup> They must not submit a question of law to the jury,<sup>27</sup> or charge upon the facts,<sup>28</sup> or assume a fact which should be submitted to the jury.<sup>29</sup> Charges which are argumentative, or which single out and give undue prominence to certain testimony adduced at the expense of other testimony, are bad.<sup>30</sup> It is not reversible error to add explanatory words to a requested charge which do not change the proposition of law embodied therein.<sup>31</sup>

Verdict and judgment.<sup>32</sup>—The verdict<sup>33</sup> and findings<sup>34</sup> must be sustained by the evidence. Special findings of the court must be consistent with its general conclusions.<sup>35</sup> The court cannot determine the rights of persons not parties to the suit.<sup>36</sup> Where there are several defendants, the default of one does not relieve the plaintiff from the necessity of establishing his case as against those who appear and plead.<sup>37</sup> Judgment must be rendered upon the issue raised by the pleadings<sup>38</sup>

16. Where issue is as to the location of a certain lot, expert testimony as to the location of lands and boundaries is admissible. Chappel v. Roberts [Ala.] 43 So. 489.

17. Declarations of defendant's grantor contemporaneous with making of deed, made for the purpose of settling a boundary, are admissible. Rix v. Smith, 145 Mich. 203, 13 Det. Leg. N. 508, 108 N. W. 691. But his declarations relative to plaintiff's title, made after execution of deed, are not admissible. Id. Declarations of such grantor, while in possession, that she held under her father's will, are admissible. Steadman v. Steadman, 143 N. C. 345, 55 S. E. 784.

18. Advertisement of land for sale by one as administrator held not admissible, in action brought by his successor in office against him as an individual, as an admission of prior possession of intestate. Whitehead v. Pitts, 127 Ga. 774, 56 S. E. 1004.

19. Sister of grantor under whom plaintiff claims, who had been living with her, competent, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1870, to give opinion respecting her mental condition. Doherty v. Courtney, 150 Cal. 606, 89 P. 434.

26. Whitehead v. Pitts, 127 Ga. 774, 56 S. E. 1004. It is proper to refuse a requested charge if there is no evidence to support it. Langston v. Cothran [S. C.] 58 S. E. 956. Where plaintiff by his testimony eliminates a claim made in one count of his complaint, court need not instruct in reference thereto. Chappell v. Roberts [Ala.] 43 So. 489.

27. Charge instructing jury to find for defendant if they find he was in adverse possession at time of conveyance to plaintiff is erroneous in not setting forth constituents of adverse possession. Chambers v. Morris [Ala.] 42 So. 549.

28. Charge not violative of constitutional inhibition. Mitchell v. Cleveland [S. C.] 57 S. E. 33.

and must be sustained by the evidence.<sup>39</sup> Judgment may be given for a portion of the land sued for.<sup>40</sup> In a proper case the sale of the land under execution on the judgment will be restrained by injunction,<sup>41</sup> and upon sufficient affidavit an injunction pendente lite will issue to restrain defendants from removing a growing crop.<sup>42</sup>

Writ of possession.<sup>43</sup>—The writ of habere facias possessionem cannot be made to include personal property.<sup>44</sup> The execution of a writ of ejectment will be enjoined if it appears that defendant has an equitable estate in the locus in quo.<sup>45</sup>

§ 7. New trial.<sup>49</sup>—An erroneous instruction as to plaintiff's right of recovery is ground for a new trial.<sup>50</sup> In New York defendant is entitled to a new trial as of right upon payment of costs within three years from the entry of judgment.<sup>51</sup> The Pennsylvania statute providing that one judgment in ejectment shall be conclusive between the parties is not retroactive.<sup>52</sup>

§ 8. Mesne profits and damages.<sup>53</sup>—In Iowa damages for withholding possession or using or injuring the premises may be recovered,<sup>54</sup> but in Alabama mesne profits only are recoverable.<sup>55</sup> Where the court finds title in the plaintiff, it is proper, in instructing the jury upon the question of compensation to be allowed for timber cut upon the land, to assume plaintiff's ownership.<sup>56</sup> In Arkansas, where judgment for defendant has been reversed as to part of the lands and the cause remanded,

38. Simmons v. Sharpe [Ala.] 42 So. 441. Where complaint describes property claimed as a fractional portion of two streets and claims title by reversion to original grantor and conveyance from him, plaintiff cannot recover on ground of title acquired by ownership of abutting lots. Bothwell v. Denver Union Stockyard Co. [Colo.] 90 P. 1127. Where plaintiff relied on sheriff's deed or execution sale and defendants, one being defendant in execution and others mortgagees who acquired their right to separate parcels of the land sued for, joined in a plea of not guilty, a judgment against all the defendants was held proper. Simmons v. Sharpe [Ala.] 42 So. 441.

Provided verdict specifies with certainty the portion that is found to be his property. Alexander v. Thompson [Ga.] 58 S. E. 836.

41. Injunction will issue at suit of defendant who is equitable owner of a mortgage on land. Taylor v. Roniger, 147 Mich. 99, 13 Det. Leg. N. 994, 110 N. W. 503.

42. Affidavit sufficient where defendants made no showing against application. O'Connor v. Oliver [Wash.] 88 P. 1025.

43. See 7 C. L. 1220.

44. Keystone Coal Co. v. Williams, 216 Pa. 217, 65 A. 407. If such property is seized under writ, it may be recovered in a common-law action, and a rule to open judgment and set aside writ, so far as it relates to personality, should be discharged. Id.

45. In this case after defendant had purchased the locus in quo by parol agreement from predecessor in title of plaintiff, plaintiff iff purchased from record owner at time when defendant was in visible possession under his prior purchase. Atlantic City R. Co. v. Johanson [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 719. The fact that locus in quo is a highway, and that possession of defendant consists of occupancy thereof with a steam railway, is no ground for refusing to enjoin execution of writ. Id.

ELECTION AND WAIVER.

§ 1. Election in General (1037).

§ 2. Occasions for Elections (1037).

A. Of Remedies (1037).

B. Of Rights and Estates (1038).

§ 3. Waiver in General (1039).

§ 4. Acts and Indicia of Election and Waiver (1039).

§ 5. Consequences of an Election or Waiver (1040).

§ 6. Pleading (1041).

Only a general treatment of the doctrines of election and waiver is here attempted. For application of the principles involved, reference must be had to the topic dealing with the subject-matter concerned. Election between counts<sup>1</sup> and the waiver of objections in judicial proceedings<sup>2</sup> are specially treated elsewhere, as are the doctrines of estoppel<sup>3</sup> and laches.<sup>4</sup>

§ 1. Election in general. Definition.<sup>5</sup>—An election is a choice between two or more available, inconsistent rights or remedies.<sup>6</sup>

§ 2. Occasions for elections. A. Of remedies.<sup>7</sup>—One may elect between available and coexistent remedies,<sup>8</sup> but he cannot at the same time have remedies which are inconsistent.<sup>9</sup> A distinction must be made between an election and a mistake of remedy.<sup>10</sup> Hence an attempt to apply a remedy not in existence does not bar the right to subsequently invoke the proper one.<sup>11</sup> At common law one could waive a

8. Under Code 1887, §§ 2902, 2903, 2906, and act Jan. 29, 1894, where one injured by another's negligence dies pending suit, his administrator may either continue the action or sue for wrongful death. Brammer's Adm'r v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. [Va.] 57 S. E. 593. One from whom money has been fraudulently obtained may either sue in tort for damages or proceed under the law authorizing recovery of the money itself. Morgan's Louisiana, etc., Co. v. Stewart [La.] 44 So. 133. A conditional sale contract will not be held to give to the vendor both the right to retake possession on default and the right to enter judgment for the full amount of the price unless it so provides expressly or by necessary implication.

Ketcham v. Davis, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 583.

9. Party who obtained a judgment for price of lumber sold could not claim the material as against a vendor of land under an alleged agreement with vendee. Mosca Town Co. v. Wellington [Colo.] 89 P. 783. Where title to certain materials was in plaintiff only by virtue of a contract, he could not disaffirm and also claim title. Whiting v. Derr, 105 N. Y. S. 854. A purchaser of a horse may not recover actual damages and also statutory damages for false statements as to pedigree. Galbraith v. Carmode, 43 Wash. 456, 86 P. 624. Suit by infant against attorneys who wrongfully paid proceeds of a suit to his father as next friend not inconsistent with previous suit by infant against father for the money. Wood v. Claiborne [Ark.] 102 S. W. 219. Applicant for school land put to election between enforcing rights as purchaser and accepting statement of land commissioner that he had lost his opportunity and was entitled to only his cash payment. Hamilton v. Gouldy [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 12, 103 S. W. 1117.

10. Rule that adoption of one of two or more inconsistent remedies bars resort to the others does not apply where there is only one remedy. Clark v. Heath, 101 Me. 530, 64 A. 913. The party must have had two valid, available, and inconsistent remedies, and must have undertaken to pursue one of them. Bandy v. Cates [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 811, 97 S. W. 710. An effort to enforce a supposed but nonexistent remedy does not constitute an election. Id.

11. Attempt to foreclose a lien when debt was barred held not to preclude right tort and sue in assumpsit only in cases of conversion or where a contract relation existed between the parties.<sup>12</sup> A cestue que trust may elect between ratifying and disaffirming an unauthorized transaction and will be concluded by an election once made.<sup>13</sup> Statutory rights of action for different kinds of negligence confer no right of election.<sup>14</sup> Where a right already exists at law or equity a new remedy given by statute is cumulative.<sup>15</sup>

(§ 2) B. Of rights and estates.<sup>16</sup>—One may not take under and against a will or other instrument at the same time,<sup>17</sup> hence a widow is often put to an election between testamentary provisions and dower,<sup>18</sup> but she cannot be required to elect unless an intention to deprive her of dower is expressly stated or clearly implied,<sup>19</sup> and in the absence of a will no election is necessary to entitle a widow to common-law dower.<sup>20</sup> A wife's or husband's right of election is purely a personal one,<sup>21</sup> hence it cannot be enforced to suit the creditors of the survivor.<sup>22</sup> A statutory proto have trustee foreclose out of court. Bandy v. Cates [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 811, 97 S. W. 710. Conditional sale vendor by attempting to enforce a lien under mistaken theory that title had passed held not precluded from subsequently suing in replevin. Bierce v. Hutchins, 205 U. S. 340, 51 Law. Ed. 828. Rejected request of conditional sale vendee to be permitted to treat contract as a lease held not to preclude his right to redeem where not made until after time for payment of last installment. Hamilton v. Highlands, 144 N. C. 279, 56 S. E. 929. Bringing trover did not bar assumpsit where the latter was the only remedy. Clark v. Heath, 101 Me. 530, 64 A. 913. Bringing of assumpsit against an officer wrongfully levying upon property but before sale does not waive the tort, since the officer was not liable until sale. Holmes v. Smith [Mich.] 112 N. W. 912. Suit for rescission of contract for exchange of property not a bar to subsequent suit for damages where first suit was dismissed for bad pleading. Dooley v. Crabtree [Iowa] 109 N. W. 889. An unnecessary and unsustainable suit on a judgment against administrators, dismissed before service of summons, held no election of remedy. Shively v. Harris [Cal. App.] 90 P. 971. Proving claim in bankruptcy of brokerage firm no bar to recovery from member of stock exchange who did the buying. Doucette v. Baldwin [Mass.] 80 N. E. 444. In suit to compel conveyance of land bought at receiver's sale, a plea that plaintiff had proceeded by error to have the sale set aside should have been overruled where on its face the writ was fatally defective, though its validity had not then been passed upon. Miller v. Drought [Tex. Civ. App.] 19 Tex. Ct. Rep. 416, 102 S. W. 145.

12. Husband could not waive tort and sue in assumpsit for medical expense for his wife injured by defendant's negligence. Plefka v. Detroit United R. Co., 147 Mich. 641, 14 Det. Leg. N. 33, 111 N. W. 194.

13. Where executors exchanged realty without authority, a devisee's assignment of his interest in proceeds of a foreclosure sale of land received in exchange held a ratification. Hine v. Hine, 118 App. Div. 585, 103 N. Y. S. 535. Where executors instead of foreclosing certain mortgages took title to mortgaged premises and sold them action of interested persons in holding executors responsible for full amount which should have been collected on the mortgages held to bar recovery of proceeds of sale. Id.

14. Right of action under Rev. St. 1899, § 2864, for death caused by negligence of a defendant's officers or employees is distinct from that given by §§ 2865, 2866, for death caused by defendant's negligence, and for death resulting from negligence of character specified under § 2864 one may not elect to sue under the subsequent sections. Cassey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 103 S. W. 1146.

15. Statute providing for mechanic's lien on personalty, and giving remedy for its enforcement, did not take away pre-existing right of lien holder to attach the property without losing lien. That other remedies may exist for the abatement of a public nuisance does not affect the power in this regard conferred on a district attorney by statute. People v. McCue, 150 Cal. 195, 88 P. 899.

vision as to the rights of a widow who renounces her husband's will assumes the existence of a valid will, and hence it does not preclude the widow from contesting a will as sole heir.<sup>23</sup> A widow's long delay in making an election does not constitute laches where the election is in fact made within the time allowed by law.<sup>24</sup> Under the Missouri statutes the mere passive enjoyment by a widow of her quarantine right does not defeat her right to elect to take a child's part,<sup>25</sup> nor can an heir defeat such right by filing a suit for the assignment of dower and for partition.<sup>26</sup>

30. Acts held to constitute an election: Filing mechanic's lien for balance unpaid on a heating plant held election to abandon title and recover price. Kirk v. Crystal, 118 App. Div. 32, 103 N. Y. S. 17. Refusal to accept an undivided interest in coal under contract for the fee held an election to rescind the contract. Farber v. Blubaker Coal Co., 216 Pa. 209, 65 A. 551. Evidence that a husband delivered certain articles to be disposed of as directed in his wife's will held admissible to show that he elected to take under will. In re Church's Estate [Vt.] 67 A. 549.

Held no election: Tenant's allegation in former action that landlord had agreed to protect him from leaks in the roof of leased building held not such election to sue on contract as to bar action to enforce common-law liability. Pratt, Hurst & Co. v. Tailor, 53 Misc. 82, 103 N. Y. S. 1094. That testatrix's children accepted from husband deeds to land in part acquired by him under the will did not preclude them from suing to set aside the probate. Holland v. Coutts [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 113, 98 S. W. 236.

31. Ignorance of nature of property or rights justifies revocation of election unless outside rights have intervened. Talley v. Poteet [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 811. Replevin suit no bar to subsequent recovery of certain expenses caused by defendant, but not known to plaintiff when first suit was brought. Haughwaut v. Royse, 122 Mo. App. 72, 98 S. W. 101.

32. Failure of husband to assert rights against life tenants under wife's will held no bar to his claim against remaindermen, the latter not having been misled or injured. Davis v. Fenner, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 389.

36. Where an administratrix claimed as a gift property returned by her as assets, an objection to the surrogate's jurisdiction did not admit that administratrix was entitled to the property or waive contestant's claim that the property was assets. In re Cavanagh, 105 N. Y. S. 850. Securing injunction held not to preclude recovery of damages for injury to property before it was obtained or for period covered by its restraint. Miller v. Rambo, 73 N. J. Law, 726, 64 A. 1053.

37. Acts held waived: Buyer's fraud in failing to take up a note in six hours as agreed held waived by sellers keeping him in his employ for several weeks and failing to bring suit until after a month. Warren v. Osborne [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 851. Failure to set up claim to certain land in suit on a bond held to preclude assertion of claim under bond fifteen years later. Cornett v. Moore, 30 Ky. L. R. 280, 97 S. W. 380. Father recovering damages for son held "estopped" from thereafter himself recovering such damages. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Hill, 226 Ill. 227, 80 N. E. 784.

Held no waiver: Reconveyance of part of land obtained by fraudulent deed did not prevent setting aside of first deed where grantor was ignorant of her rights in the land and of the effect of the deeds. *Tolley v. 81. A statute requiring publication of a list of polling places in a certain borough to be made in newspapers "advocating the principles" of a certain political party is satisfied by publication in newspapers which advocate the principles but do not support the candidates or platform of such party. People v. Voorhis, 187 N. Y. 327, 80 N. E. 196, affg. 115 App. Div. 218, 100 N. Y. S. 927.

82. The mode of giving notice of propositions to be submitted to annual meeting of voters of a school corporation is governed by Code, § 2746, and not by § 2763. Kinney v. Howard, 133 Iowa, 94, 110 N. W. 282.

83. Where there is a substantial compliance with requirement of Const. art. 17, § 1, as to publication of proposed amendment thereto prior to submission to vote of people, the fact that publication was made for one week less than required time in one county will not invalidate amendment. State v. Winnett [Neb.] 110 N. W. 1113.

84. Notice sufficient under ordinance providing for election to determine advisability of issuing municipal bonds. State v. Wilder, 200 Mo. 97, 98 S. W. 465.

85. See 7 C. L. 1233. Qualification of officers (See Officers and Public Employees, 8 C. L. 1191), jurors (see Jury, 8 C. L. 617) as defendant on right to vote are excluded.

86. Code, § 2747. But save for sex they must have the same qualifications as men. Kinney v. Howard, 133 Iowa, 94, 110 N. W. 282.

Residence.<sup>87</sup>—Residence within the state and election district is always a prerequisite to the right to vote therein. The residence of a married man is the place where his family reside.<sup>88</sup> The law is otherwise as to an unmarried man who has no family or home except the home of his parents or his rooming or boarding place.<sup>89</sup> Whether inmates and employes of a national soldiers' home are entitled to vote in the state where the home is located depends upon whether they reside within the without the home.<sup>90</sup>

Registration.<sup>91</sup>—Registration as a prerequisite to voting is now an almost universal requirement.<sup>92</sup> But the Kentucky registration law applies only to voters residing in a city or town.<sup>93</sup> In Pennsylvania the registration commissioners cannot order the name of a petitioner to be added to the register unless he has complied with the statutory requirements.<sup>94</sup> An appeal lies from the decision of the commissioners refusing an application for registration.<sup>95</sup> In Maryland an appeal lies to the courts from a decision of the board of registry, but the jurisdiction of the courts is appellate only.<sup>96</sup> In Kentucky, where a special election is ordered, a special registration must be ordered.<sup>97</sup> Notice by publication of the location of the registration places is usually required.<sup>98</sup>

Payment of taxes.—In many jurisdictions, payment of a poll tax is an essential prerequisite to the right to vote,<sup>99</sup> and in some states only property taxpayers can vote at certain elections.<sup>1</sup> In South Carolina proof of payment of taxes for the previous year, including the poll tax, is essential.<sup>2</sup>

87. See 7 C. L. 1234.

88. The mere temporary absence of the family does not change his residence. Jackson v. Washington, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 453.

89. Jackson v. Washington, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 453.

90. Inmates, officers, and employes of National Soldiers' Home in Tennessee, who reside within the home, are not residents of the state entitled to vote as such. under Const. 1870, art. 4, § 1. State v. Willett, 117 Tenn. 334, 97 S. W. 299. But inmates and employes who, with more or less regularity, eat their meals at the home, but have homes and families outside where they spend their nights, are residents of the state, entitled to vote as such. Id.

91. See 7 C. L. 1236.

92. Under Const. art. 2, § 4, and Code 1902, §213, production of certificate of registration is a condition precedent to the casting of a legal ballot. Wright v. State Board of Canvassers [S. C.] 57 S. E. 536.

93. Duff v. Crawford, 30 Ky. L. R. 323, 97 S. W. 1123. Under Laws 1904, p. 31, c. 6, when a local option election is held in territory embracing part of a city, the voters residing within the city cannot vote unless they shall have presented to election officers their certificates of registration. De Haven v. Bowmer [Ky.] 102 S. W. 306.

94. Where one claiming right to vote by reason of naturalization has not produced to registrars his naturalization papers or a certified copy thereof, and does not allege that he was prevented from registering by illness or unavoidable absence, registration commissioners cannot order his name to be added to register. Registration Act Feb. 17, 1906 (P. L. 49). In re Mulholland's case, 217 Pa. 631, 66 A. 1105.

95. Under § 15 (P. L. 59), an appeal may be taken to court of common pleas, but no further appeal is given. In re Laurman [Pa.]

67 A. 418. But no appeal lies where petitioner neglected to take required steps to entitle him to registration, or to allege that he was prevented by illness or unavoidable absence from doing so. In re Mulholland's case, 217 Pa. 631, 66 A. 1105.

96. Code 1904, art. 33, § 24. If no action is taken by board upon objections properly before them as to registration of disqualified person, the courts are without jurisdiction. Smith v. McCormick [Md.] 65 A. 929.

98. A statute requiring publication of a list of places for the registration of votes in a certain borough to be made in newspapers "advocating the principles" of a certain political party is satisfied by publication in newspapers which advocate the principles but do not support the candidates or platform of such party. People v. Voorhis, 187 N. Y. 327, 80 N. E. 196, affg. 115 App. Div. 218, 100 N. Y. S. 927.

99. This is an essential requirement in South Carolina. Wright v. State Board of Canvassers [S. C.] 57 S. E. 536. Under the constitution of Louisiana, payment of poll tax two years preceding is essential prerequisite to right to vote at special election to raise a tax. Gruner v. Police Jury of Claiborne Parish [La.] 44 So. 295.

1. Proposition to issue bonds for certain municipal purposes: Loc. Acts 1905, p. 470, No. 536, limiting right to vote upon submission of such proposition to taxpayers, held not violative of Const. art. 7, § 1. Menton v. Cook, 147 Mich. 540, 111 N. W. 94.

Elections relating to schools: In Louisiana only property taxpayers are entitled to vote at a special election for voting a special tax in aid of public schools. Const. 1898, art. 232. Flores v. Police Jury of De Soto Parish, 116 La. 428, 40 So. 785. This qualification can be shown only by an assess-

§ 3. Nominations by convention or petition. Conventions and nominations.<sup>9</sup> The mode in which nominations shall be made is generally prescribed by statute.<sup>4</sup> In New York the majority of the democratic state committee which controls the party conventions and nominations, cannot expel members of the committee representing the democratic electors of a county.<sup>5</sup>

Petitions.<sup>6</sup>—Provision is generally made for nominations by petition.<sup>7</sup> A material alteration in a petition, made without authority, after it has been signed by electors, will invalidate it.<sup>8</sup> But if no objection is made on that ground prior to election, the election of the candidate named will not be invalidated thereby.<sup>9</sup> A signer of a petition is usually required to add to his signature his residence, and sometimes his place of business also.<sup>10</sup>

Certificates and declination and vacancies.<sup>11</sup>—Laws in reference to certificates of nomination by independent bodies are liberally construed.<sup>12</sup> Under the New York election law, a certificate is not invalid because it names more than one candidate,<sup>13</sup> nor will the fact that the districts of the candidates are not coterminous invalidate it where a thousand bona fide residents of both districts have signed it.<sup>14</sup> The certificate must be signed by the number of electors required by statute.<sup>15</sup> The electors signing certificate must add to their signatures their residence, and must make affidavit thereto,<sup>16</sup> to which fact the notary must certify.<sup>17</sup> But if the requisite

ment, but if the voter has been assessed, and the assessment is final as to him, he is entitled to vote though the assessment roll has not been filed. Id. The requirement of art. 270, Const. 1898, excluding taxpayers appearing for first time on current assessment, has no application to special tax elections under art. 232. Id. In Oregon ownership of property is an essential prerequisite to the right to vote at school elections. The ownership must appear from the assessment and cannot be shown by extrinsic evidence. B. & C. § 3386. Setterlun v. Keene, 48 Or. 520, 87 P. 763. The statute is constitutional, as Const. art. 2, § 2, defining qualifications of voters, does not apply to school elections. Id.

7. In New York nominations for village officers, if not made by a political party, must be made by a petition signed by one hundred or more electors. In re Freund, 53 Misc. 354, 103 N. Y. S. 420.

8. Where an election is to be held both for full term of an office and for unexpired term, and by statute separate nomination papers are required, and, after nomination papers of a candidate are signed by qualified electors, they are changed by the candidate by the interlineation of the words "for the unexpired term," such alteration being wrongful and without authority, the papers do not entitle the candidate to nomination for the unexpired term. State v. Bunnell [Wis.] 110 N. W. 177.

10. Under Rev. Pol. Code, § 1902, where petition is signed by more than required number, but less than that number add to their signatures their places of residence, it is fatally defective. Harris v. King [S. D.] 109 N. W. 644. The requirement of Rev. St. 1898, § 30, subd. 3, that each voter signing a nomination paper shall "add to his signature his business and residence," is sufficiently complied with where a voter places ditto marks below the business or residence of some former subscriber. *State v. 55. The requirements of the primary election law, § 3, Act Feb. 17, 1906 (P. L. 36), as to time at which notice of officers to be elected at next election shall be given by secretary of commonwealth to county commissioners, and as to time of publication by commissioners of names of such officers are mandatory. But where a vacancy becomes known too late for such requirements to be complied with, § 3 is not applicable, but the alternative provisions of § 12 govern. Commonwealth v. Blankenburg [Pa.] 67 A. 645. Under Laws 1896, p. 922, c. 909, § 56, a primary or caucus for the nomination of village officers can be held only after a suitable call or notice emanating from the organization representing the political party in the village. In re Freund, 53 Misc. 354, 103 N. Y. S. 420.

56. Brown v. Cole, 105 N. Y. S. 196.

57. Pol. Code, § 1366a, requiring each elector at time of registering to declare name of political party with which he intends to affiliate at ensuing primary election, and § 1361a, empowering political parties to prescribe additional tests, are not violation of Const. art. 2, § 2½. Schostag v. Cator [Cal.] 91 P. 502. Nor does the former provision conflict with Const. art. 2, § 1. Id. And it is not void on ground of unreasonableness (Id.), or because, in the Persons who have voted at the primary of one party cannot thereafter vote at the primary of another party.<sup>58</sup> In New York, upon the removal of an enrolled elector from the election district, it is the mandatory duty of the court to strike his name from the primary enrollment book.<sup>59</sup> In Wisconsin where a canvass of a primary election has been made and a certificate issued, the certificate holder cannot be deprived of his right by any subsequent action of the canvassing board.<sup>60</sup>

Control by party committees.<sup>61</sup>

Ballots for primaries. Review and contest of primary.<sup>62</sup>—The validity of ballots cast at primary elections is to be determined by the provisions of the primary election laws.<sup>63</sup> Under the New York primary law when the oral proclamation and the written statement of the result of a primary election vary, the latter will control.<sup>64</sup> The special term of the supreme court in New York has jurisdiction of primary election contests.<sup>65</sup> In Wisconsin the original jurisdiction of the supreme court is properly exercised in determining abstract questions as to the proper construction of a primary election law operating throughout the state.<sup>66</sup> event that one political party determines not to nominate candidates, members of that party will be deprived of right to vote at ensuing primary (Id.). And the fact that it contains a saving clause permitting electors registered before its enactment to vote at ensuing primary, though their affidavits of registration contain no declaration of affiliation with any party, does not render it unconstitutional on ground of nonuniformity in its operation. Id. The requirements as to qualifications of a voter at a party primary, under Laws 1896, p. 922, c. 909, § 53, must be regularly adopted by county convention or committee duly authorized by such convention, and must not conflict with any provision of the statute. Brown v. Cole, 54 Misc. 278, 104 N. Y. S. 109, 105 N. Y. S. 196. The requirements cannot be such as will exclude a party voter, nor can it be left to an enrolling board to say whether one may be enrolled, but the applicant may be required to qualify under oath. 63. Under Acts 1898, § 59, made applicable to primary elections by P. L. 1903, p. 603, a ballot at a primary election is not invalid because cast for one who is a member of another political party. Freeman v. Metuchen [N. J. Law] 67 A. 713. Under Acts 1898, §§ 58, 59, which are made applicable to primary elections by P. L. 1903, p. 603, ballots at a primary election cannot be rejected as marked ballots because upon each of them the name of the same candidate is written in the same handwriting. Id. Under Primary Election Law, Laws 1903, pp. 758, 759, 760, 762, 763, 766, c. 451, §§ 9, 12, 16, 18, 20, 25, construed in connection with Rev. St. 1898, § 41, where upon an official primary election ballot the name of no candidate appears for a certain office, voters may write in the name of one who, not having filed nomination papers, is not entitled to have his name printed on ballot. State v. Church, 115 App. Div. 82, 100 N. Y. S. 764.

66. Where in an original action brought in supreme court to determine which of two candidates at a primary election was entitled to have his name placed on official ballot, it appeared that abstract questions were involved concerning proper construction of a new primary election law making a radical change in conduct of all elections, and involving duty of all election officers in state, it was proper for the court to exercise its original jurisdiction for determination of such questions, but not for determination of question at issue between the two candidates. State v. Goff, 129 Wis. 668, 109 N. W. 628.

68. The mode prescribed by Act May 18, 1905 (Laws 1905, p. 203), § 33 for selecting and appointing judges of election, is mandatory. People v. Edgar County Sup'rs, 223 Ill. 187, 79 N. E. 123. By this statute the precinct or district and not the township is made the unit in selecting judges. Id. Under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 11, § 32, requiring town council to appoint supervisors of election from lists presented by town committees of the political parties, the existing committee of a party, which has been duly elected and subsequently recognized by the state central committee, is the committee from whose list supervisors must be ap-of appointment must, of course, be constitutional.<sup>69</sup> The appointment can be made only by the persons authorized.<sup>70</sup> In Texas a state or county officer cannot act as a judge of election.<sup>71</sup> The powers of judges of election are determined by statute.<sup>72</sup> A moderator of an electors' meeting is not liable in damages for erroneously rejecting a ballot where he acts in good faith and without malice.<sup>73</sup>

§ 8. Marking and signing ballot; irregularities and ambiguities therein.<sup>77</sup> The marks.<sup>78</sup>—Under the Australian ballot law the lines forming the cross must intersect within the proper circle or square.<sup>79</sup> If a ballot has a cross in the square before the names of each of opposing candidates for the same office, it should be counted for neither.<sup>80</sup> A ballot which shows in the square opposite the word "yes," which follows the question, a diagonal mark and nothing more is illegal and cannot be counted,<sup>81</sup> nor will a ballot be counted for an office if the elector mark more names than there are persons to be elected.<sup>82</sup>

The writing in of names.<sup>83</sup>—Where a voter is permitted to write upon a ballot the name of the office to be filled and of the person for whom he desires to vote, the fact that such names are written by one other than the voter is of no consequence, if the voter adopts the ballot.<sup>84</sup>

pointed. Tarbox v. Garlick [R. I.] 65 A. 604. Ky. St. 1903, § 1596a, subsec. 3, does not require that a county board of election commissioners shall alternate in the appointment of clerks and sheriffs at voting places so as to give each party one-half of the clerks and sheriffs, but it is only required that the sheriff and clerk at each voting place shall be of a different party. Tribble v. McElroy [Ky.] 104 S. W. 286.

69. Act May 18, 1905 (Laws 1905, p. 203), § 33, prescribing the manner of selecting and appointing judges of election, is not special legislation in conflict with Const. art. 4, § 22, nor is it unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power. People v. Edgar County Sup'rs, 223 Ill. 187, 79 N. E. 128.

72. Under Laws 1903, p. 133, c. 101, §§ 37, 65, a presiding judge of election has no authority, without a warrant, to order arrest of a voter whose only offense is carrying into voting booth a paper containing initials of persons for whom he desires to vote. *Smyth v. 76. Laws 1905, p. 400, c. 267, authorizing use of voting machines at elections, does not contravene constitutional mandate, Const. art. 7, § 6, that elections shall be by ballot. Elwell v. Comstock, 99 Minn. 261, 109 N. W. 113, 698, and the power delegated to voting machine commission created by this statute to determine efficiency of voting machine thereby authorized is administrative in character and is not a violation of constitutional inhibition, Const. art. 3, § 1, against delegation of legislative or judicial powers (Id.), but Pub. Acts 1907, No. 287, § 10, providing for use of voting machines which do not afford opportunity to all to vote a secret ballot, is unconstitutional (Helme v. Lenawee County Election Com'rs [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 469, 594, 113 N. W. 6).

84. Carlough v. Ackerman [N. J. Law] 64 A. 964. Under P. L. 1898, p. 268, § 59, a voter may write upon the official ballot the name of any person for whom he desires to vote, and also in the name of the office, when such office is to be filled at the election, and its name is not printed on the ballot. Id.

85. See 7 C. L. 1246.

86. Constitution, § 179, requiring all elections to be "by ballot," does not imply such lot while in a booth to himself, and this even though he cannot read.<sup>87</sup> Ballots having marks made by the voter which are clearly distinguishing will be discarded.<sup>88</sup> The test to determine whether a mark is distinguishing is whether it discloses the identity of the voter to any person other than himself.<sup>89</sup> The elector cannot be heard to say that he did not intend the mark for the purpose of identification.<sup>90</sup> Capital letters apparently the initials of the name of the voter,<sup>91</sup> and rectangular marks or blotches instead of crosses in the squares opposite the names of candidates,<sup>92</sup> have been held to be distinguishing marks, but the following have been held not to be distinguishing marks: The name of elector written on back of ballot and then completely erased;<sup>93</sup> the word "nit" written after name of candidate;<sup>94</sup> the words "May the best man win" written after the names of several candidates for a certain office;<sup>95</sup> the words "For Mayor, Charles S. Roswell" where a mayor is to be elected and the name of the office is omitted from the ballot;<sup>96</sup> and names written in pencil as candidates for offices other than the one involved in the contest where such names are printed in other places on the ballot as candidates for the same offices.<sup>97</sup>

§ 10. Count, return, and canvass, custody of ballots and recount; determination of result and certificates.<sup>98</sup>—The statutory requirements as to counting the vote and announcing the result must be complied with.<sup>99</sup> The Nebraska statute<sup>1</sup> providing for counting straight party votes for a constitutional amendment when such party has indorsed such amendment is not unconstitutional.<sup>2</sup> A ballot will not be counted if the voter's choice cannot be determined,<sup>3</sup> or if the ballot consists of parts of a ballot of each political party pasted and folded together,<sup>4</sup> but ordinarily a ballot will not be rejected for an error that is purely technical.<sup>5</sup> Where in the return of a stock law election the managers style themselves "We the undersigned inspectors of an election," the return is not objectionable because they sign their individual names thereto.<sup>6</sup> In New York, if unofficial ballots are voted, they must be returned in a package with the void and protested ballots.<sup>7</sup> Where the power to prescribe how the votes shall be canvassed

87. In Kentucky a voter who cannot read but who is not blind or physically disabled must mark his ballot in the booth to himself after clerk of election has indicated in pencil where mark is to go, and if instead he marks it openly or in presence of a judge of election, his vote is void. *Combs v. 97. Smith v. Reid, 223 Ill. 493, 79 N. E. 148. And even if such names are not printed on ballot, the written names will and returns made is delegated, it must be exercised by the officers authorized.<sup>8</sup> The duty of canvassing boards is purely ministerial and confined to tabulating and ascertaining the result of an election as shown by the face of the returns.<sup>9</sup> A board cannot refuse to canvass the returns on the ground that the election was illegal,<sup>10</sup> and although mandatory, statutory requirements are disobeyed in the preparation of the official ballots, such ballots, when voted, will not on that account be rejected,<sup>11</sup> nor will the fact that nomination papers were altered without authority, where no objection was made thereto prior to election, warrant the rejection of votes cast for the nominee,<sup>12</sup> but "questioned ballots" not preserved in the manner required will not be counted.<sup>13</sup>

Recount of ballots.<sup>14</sup>—Upon a recount the ballots are the best evidence if it is shown that they have been properly preserved.<sup>15</sup> In West Virginia the successful candidate in a recount, by which the result shown by the face of the returns was not changed, has no right of action against the unsuccessful candidate for his costs and expenses.<sup>16</sup>

Determination of result; certificates.<sup>17</sup>—A certificate of election, when issued by the proper officers, is the authority which the successful party has for qualifying for the office.<sup>18</sup> The certificate of the board of canvassers declaring the result of the election is conclusive in a controversy arising collaterally.<sup>19</sup> Sometimes, in elections upon questions of local interest, the determination of the result by the canvassing officers is made final without right of appeal.<sup>20</sup>

taxpayer of a town may institute mandamus proceedings to compel the registrars of voters not to count an improperly marked ballot cast at a local option election.<sup>41</sup> Two candidates on the same ticket, claiming election, may join in a petition for mandamus to compel a canvass of the returns and issuance of certificates of election.<sup>42</sup> Mandamus proceedings to compel the performance of a duty incumbent upon a board of officers should be brought against the board as such and not against the members as individuals.<sup>43</sup> The mayor of a town who is the presiding officer of the council is a proper party to mandamus proceedings to compel the council to canvass the returns of a municipal election.<sup>44</sup> The petition for mandamus must designate the duty sought to be enforced<sup>45</sup> and state facts sufficient to warrant its enforcement.<sup>46</sup> In Washington, where mandamus issues to compel a town council to canvass the returns of an election, service of the writ on a majority of the council is sufficient.<sup>47</sup> Where mandamus is issued to compel a canvassing board to canvass the returns of an election, costs may be awarded against the board.<sup>48</sup> The fact that election officers have performed some of the acts commanded by mandamus does not preclude their appealing from the order granting the writ.<sup>49</sup>

Injunction.<sup>50</sup>—An injunction will be granted to restrain a county clerk from certifying to judges of election fraudulent and fictitious registrations,<sup>51</sup> and a temporary injunction will issue to restrain a county committee of a political party from enforcing an illegal system of enrollment for party primaries,<sup>52</sup> but an injunction will not issue to direct or control the mode in which an election shall be held,<sup>53</sup> to restrain the placing of the names of candidates duly nominated upon the official ballot on the ground that there is no vacancy to be filled at the election,<sup>54</sup> or to restrain a county clerk from canvassing the vote on the question

42. Candidate claiming election to a municipal council. State v. Kendall [Wash.] 87 P. 821. The candidates for sheriff and treasurer of a county on the same ticket may join, under Code Civ. Prac. § 10. Lehman v. Pettingell [Colo.] 89 P. 48.

43. Mandamus proceeding to compel calling of election to vote upon disincorporation of a city, as required by Henning's Gen. Law, p. 989, § 1, must be brought against board of trustees. Taylor v. Burks [Cal. App.] 91 P. 814.

44. State v. Kendall [Wash.] 87 P. 821.

45. Where petition is for mandamus to compel inspectors of town meeting to declare and clerk to enter result of meeting, if inspectors have failed to count ballots, such count is fairly within prayer of petition, and proceeding will not fail because it is not expressly requested. People v. Armstrong, 116 App. Div. 103, 101 N. Y. S. 712.
